No. 124. Read the following letter from the Inspector General of Police, to the Chief Secretary to Government, Fort Saint George; dated Kotagherry, 22nd August 1865, No. 1749.

I have the honor to submit my Report on the criminal statistics of the Presidency.

2. I must apologize for the delay that has occurred in submitting the review. The Magistrates and Police Officers started, as the Government is aware, with six months' arrears to bring up; and the system, though simple enough when once well started and understood, had to be worked through some hundreds of agents. Hence arose great difficulty and much reference, as well in District offices as in mine, before uniformity could be thoroughly brought about, and tabulating could be commenced. However, the system is now in good working order; and my best thanks are due to Magistrates and District Officers for the assiduity and anxious care which has enabled me to lay the subject in its present complete form before the Government.

3. I have analyzed these statements at greater length than will be requisite in future years; but I trust that the Government will not deem that too great detail has been entered into.

4. The only point to which I would venture to solicit the attention of Government this year is the feebleness of the action of Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd Class in the administration of Criminal Justice.

5. The important position occupied by this grade of our agency cannot be exaggerated. Their original jurisdiction extends over at least three-fourths of all charges which may be summarily disposed of by Magistrates; and nine-tenths of all committed cases come before them for the preliminary inquiry.

6. But they allow their criminal files to be burdened with an enormous number of petty and frivolous cases, one-half of which are never prosecuted to an issue; and of the other half an unreasonable proportion occupy their time without useful result—no convictions follow. It must be borne in mind, at the same time, that a large number of cases, in which some action has been likewise taken, disappears from these returns as false; so that the Statements, instructive as they are, do not represent the full amount of the futile labor which Sub-Magistrates are undertaking.

7. I have frequently spoken to intelligent Sub-Magistrates on the subject, and asked them why they do not refuse to take up these cases, or refer the complainant to the Head of the Village? Their invariable reply has been that, when they venture to do so, an appeal is made, and an endorsement obtained from a superior Magistrate, remarking on the refusal and directing inquiry; that, further, the charges are preferred under Sections of the Penal Code; and the Criminal Procedure Code does not recognize Heads of Villages.

8. I would venture to suggest that the remedy may lie in extending the powers of Heads of Villages in order to relieve the Stipendiary Magistracy. Surely the Village Courts are sufficient for the trial of petty insults, assaults, cattle trespasses and the like;—and if people will resort to criminal prosecution for all of their petty quarrels, they must be content with inferior tribunals, if they really are so; for we cannot afford to find Stipendiary Magistrates for the purposes to which they put our Criminal Courts. The Head of the Village might be required to sit with two Assessors.

9. The large proportion of committed cases which fail before the Session Court indicates another matter well worthy of the attention of Government. Cases are not prepared for committal with sufficient care and intelligence. But the fault does not entirely lie with the Sub-Magistrates. They must have relief before they can attend to these more important duties. Further, the Law does not provide for effective supervision by superior Magistrates over the details of the subordinates' work. They are left too much to themselves, and Courts now act in a judicial spirit, and assume less executive supervision than they formerly did.

10. I have not analyzed the table of castes and callings of convicted persons. I am not quite satisfied of their accuracy. Six months' arrears could not be so well brought up in this respect, without a great deal of trouble; and the review is already so full, that I have to ask the indulgent consideration of Government for its length, and fear to add further detail.

STATISTICS OF OFFENCES AND CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS UNDER PENAL LAWS DURING THE YEAR 1861.

Statistics of offences and penal proceedings are now collected in the Police Department; and each Superintendent is Criminal Registrar of his District. The whole are tabulated and analyzed in the office of the Inspector General of Police. All offences reported by the Police were necessarily brought on the crime Journal and Ledger of the Police; and now all Magistrates likewise send to their Superintendents a copy of their criminal files at the close of each month, through which the progress of each case is traced, and the result before the final tribunal is duly reported. Thus all facts are duly ledgered from month to month; all false charges are eliminated under the orders of the Magistracy; and no case is entered as detected unless punishment by competent Court has been awarded to the offenders. The Criminal Returns are, therefore, complete and very perfect—barring the few inaccuracies which are unavoidable on starting a new and precise system.

Offences committed and dealt with by Courts.

The number of offences reported and complained of, under all Penal Laws, during the year, including 737 brought forward from the preceding year, was 141,203. Three hundred and four thousand four hundred and forty-one (304,441) persons, or one in 79·5 of the population, were believed to have been concerned, or were charged with offences. Two hundred and forty-two thousand nine hundred and eighty-four (242,984) persons, or 79·8 per cent. of these were arrested or summoned to answer accusations. Ninety thousand one hundred and twenty-four (90,124) cases, or 69·5 per cent. of all charges preferred, with 176,694 persons, were brought to trial before some Court; and 64,780 cases, or 71·6 per cent. of these trials, resulted in the conviction of 107,291 persons, or 44·1 per cent. of all the persons compelled to appear.

Twenty-eight thousand five hundred and two (28,502) cases, in which 62,357 persons were accused, were not brought to a final issue, but were bailed by the Police, dismissed for default, withdrawn by the parties, or otherwise disposed of; and 1,715 cases, with 4197 persons, remained under trial at the close of the year.

The property lost by all offences against property was valued at Rupees 11,31,585. Rupees 2,32,096 worth, or 20·4 per cent., was recovered, leaving a net loss of Rupees 9,02,189 to the public.

Did these figures represent the real crime of the country, the tale they tell would be dreadful; but they include a vast number of petty and personal cases, and all the factious and licentious abuse of the criminal law by the people, who harass each other by a criminal prosecution for every petty squabble, and waste public time by putting the provisions of the criminal law in operation for every abusive epithet that may drop in a village wrangle. The statistics of any other civilized country are searched in vain for any similar burden on its criminal administration.

The following table illustrates the extent to which criminal Courts are resorted to for petty penal litigation. Stipendiary Subordinate Magistrates of the 2nd Class receive almost all these petty charges. In juxtaposition, is placed a statement of the number of cases of a similar character settled in Village Courts by Heads of Villages, who would be—did the law recognize them under the Code of Criminal Procedure—the proper persons to adjudicate the great bulk of these petty differences.

If these petty and personal cases be deducted, one-third (32·1 per cent.) of the apparent number of offences against all Penal Laws disappears, and the crime of the country is more faithfully represented. It were difficult to estimate the extent to which the time of Stipendiary Magistrates is wasted, with serious detriment to the proper and careful investigation and commitment of cases of real moment, by this petty criminal litigation. The abuse should be resolutely discouraged, as the first step towards the improvement of real criminal administration.

Offences against the Penal Code are divided into seven classes:—1st, offences against the person; 2nd, offences against property with violence; 3rd, offences against property without violence; 4th, malicious offences against property; 5th, forgery and offences against the currency; 6th, contempts and offences against public justice; 7th, miscellaneous offences not included in the above classes. Offences against other penal enactments are treated by themselves. The following abstract shows the offences under the Penal Code under each class:—

The returns show 27,772 offences against the person for the year 1864, in which 70,042 persons, or one in every 345 of the population, was concerned; 61,077 persons, exclusive of witnesses and prosecutors, were compelled to appear to answer these charges, of whom 7394 were arrested (these of course where the persons implicated in crime); and 53,423 were summoned before some Court. Only 13,839 charges, or one-half (49·9 per cent.) of those preferred, with 31,424 prisoners or defendants, were prosecuted to a final issue. Twelve thousand one hundred and fifty-six (12,156) cases, involving 28,362 persons, were allowed by the complainants to go by default, or were withdrawn.

But, as before shown, 23,955, or 86·2 per cent., of all alleged offences against the person were petty charges preferred before Stipendiary Magistrates under the Penal Code, against 61,981 persons; 53,414 persons were summoned to answer these charges. Eleven thousand one hundred and eighty-six (11,186) cases, with 25,552 defendants, went through all the formalities of a judicial trial, of which 7254 cases only, or 64·9 per cent. proved well founded; only 12,557 persons were punished, against 12,995 (or 50·8 per cent. of persons tried) who were released. The public time spent by the Stipendiary Magistracy, in investigating 46·0 per cent. of those petty charges which were tried, was thus absolutely thrown away; and every other person so arraigned was either guiltless, or was brought up without any fair prospect of the charge being legally established. Of those convicted, 10,170 were subjected to simple fine. Eleven thousand three hundred and seventy-eight (11,378), or one half of these petty charges, against 26,856 persons, were not brought to an issue at all, although public time had been wasted in hearing and filing the charges and issuing and serving processes on the parties and witnesses.

There is obviously something wrong in the working of the criminal law by Stipendiary Magistrates with reference to petty cases, when, as appears, 69·8 per cent. of the charges entertained by them either cannot be established, prove unfounded, or the parties themselves find that they are not worth proceeding with; and when no case is established against 79·6 per cent. of the persons charged, the fact probably is that the great bulk of these cases would be better disposed of by Heads of Villages. They certainly do their work better than Stipendiary Magistrates in every respect; ex. gr. 10,183 charges of petty assaults, &c., were preferred before Heads of Villages, against 18,494 persons; 7338 cases or 71·0 per cent. were proceeded with, against 11,603 persons, and 8065 persons, or 69·5 per cent. of the defendants, were convicted. The reason no doubt is that fewer false and malicious charges are ventured on in the Village Court of the scene of the offence. Subordinate Stipendiary Magistrates are obviously careless in the manner in which they receive such charges.—But to return to the real crime under the head of offences against the person—

Murder.

Two hundred and seventy-two (272) murders were reported; in 125 cases justice overtook the offenders. The District of Ganjam leads with 28 murders—five infanticides from the Khond highlands swell the number—for the first time the Law has reached this customary crime amongst these races; Malabar has likewise 28 murders; Bellary follows with 27; Vizagapatam with 25; North Arcot, Kurnool, and Canara had 19 murders each. The offence is least common in the Southern Tamil Districts. One murder only was committed in Trichinopoly District during the year.

Culpable homicide.

One hundred and seventy-nine (179) murderers were convicted, and 102 sentenced to death. Eighty-two (82) cases of culpable homicide were reported. Ganjam and Vizagapatam again take the lead with 11 each; 10 occurred in Tanjore. The annual average number of murders and culpable homicides for the last four years was 353. The average has scarcely been exceeded in 1864, when the two crimes together numbered 351. Two hundred and sixty-one (261) abortive attempts to commit suicide were reported; in 106 instances punishment was awarded.

Attempt to commit Suicide.

Eleven hundred and seventy-one (1171) suicides were reported during the year.

Causing miscarriage.

One hundred and forty-two (142) cases of causing miscarriage, concealment of birth, and abandonment of offspring were brought forward; in 41 cases, Courts convicted the females implicated. Two hundred and twenty-six (226) cases of aggravated hurt were reported; in 83 cases the parties were punished.

Hurt.

One hundred and six (106) charges of kidnapping and abducting were preferred; in 11 cases conviction followed. Charges of abduction, generally of women, are mostly viewed with great suspicion.

Kidnapping, &c.

Kidnapping laborers for the French colonies obtained in several coast Districts, especially in Tanjore; but the operations of the unprincipled agents employed are now vigilantly watched by the Police and Magistracy. Twenty (20) cases of prostitution of minors were brought forward; but in seven only was punishment awarded—the offence is difficult to prove.

Offences of lust.

One hundred and two (102) charges of rape, and 13 of unnatural offences, were made; but 10 cases of rape and three of unnatural offences only could be proved. The great majority of charges of rape are vindictively made to cover a detected intrigue. Petty cases of offence against the person have already been analyzed. Eliminating these, the serious offences against the person, under the Penal Code, stand as follows:—

		Offences committed and charges preferred.	Persons concerned or complained against.	Property. Lost.	Property. Recovered.	Persons apprehended or summoned.	Cases tried by all Courts. Namely, 3767 offences (instead of 27,722), of which 1162 were proved, and led to the punishment of 1853 persons.

Offences against property with violence include robbery, dacoity (or robbery by more than four persons) and house-breaking. The year was one of great pressure, arising from high prices of food and clothing and all necessaries of life. Eleven thousand and ninety-seven (11,097) offences were reported, in which 28,060 persons were implicated, and involving an alleged (generally exaggerated) net loss of Rupees 5,57,791. Three thousand one hundred and thirty-two (3132) cases were tried; and in 1452 cases, 2753 offenders were punished. Detection (13·0 per cent.) of this class of offences is feeble. Eleven hundred and eighty (1180) robberies were committed, and 98 attempts were reported; 80 offences only were of an aggravated type. The rest were unattended by circumstances of peculiar violence. Bellary leads with 174 cases; Nellore has 130; Cuddapah 128; Salem 120; North Arcot 115. In the Southern Districts, the offence is lightest. One hundred and seventy-two (172) robberies were committed in houses. Many of these cases were burglaries; but, on being detected in the act, the burglars used violence to effect their escape. Five hundred and twenty-nine (529) robberies were committed on highways and bye-paths; and 480 consisted of robberies of sheep-pens and grain heaps in the open fields. These latter offences are generally detected thefts; but the violence used in escaping places them under category of robbery. Under the latter head, too, many charges are unfounded. The watchers steal property entrusted to them to watch by night, and tell their masters that robbers came and carried it away violently. Three hundred and twenty-one (321) robbers were convicted, and 13 persons of attempts to rob.

2nd Class. Offences against property with violence.

Robbery.

Under dacoity, 914 cases were dealt with. Fifty-eight (58) cases only presented circumstances of aggravation; 237 offences were committed in houses; 313 on highways and bye-paths; and 376 on sheep-pens and grain heaps in the open fields. Cuddapah, as usual, leads; but before the close of the year, the three organized gangs of outlaw robbers had been broken up, and 60 of their members transported. Bellary had 157, and North Arcot 128. With few exceptions, dacoities are now comparatively unimportant offences committed by local evil doers. The successful suppression of torch light gang robbery progresses satisfactorily; a further decrease of 41·8 per cent., as compared with 1863, took place. The numbers respectively were 153 in 1864, against 263 in 1863. The average annual number of gang robberies for four years previous to 1861 was 820. The majority of these offences are now committed in unsecure huts in outlying hamlets. Three hundred and fifty-five (355) dacoits were convicted in 1864, against 287 in 1863. Twelve (12) cases of assembling to commit dacoity were reported.

Dacoity.

Eight thousand five hundred and ninety-six (8596) cases of house-breaking were reported; 2017 were brought to trial with 4139 prisoners, of whom 1612 were convicted and 2527 released. The great majority of these offences are committed in unsecure huts, either by, or with the aid of, the Village Watcher rapes. The offence is by far the most difficult to suppress with which the Police has to do. In towns, the offence is checked by the night watch; but in rural Districts great facilities present themselves; and hundreds of the criminal classes, who formerly practised dacoity and robbery, now commit the safer offence of house-breaking, instead. The average loss in each case was about 47 Rupees. Three-fourths of the cases were under 10 Rupees each.

House-breaking.

Seventeen thousand six hundred and fifty-seven (17,657) thefts, in which 31,934 persons were concerned, and involving a loss of Rupees 3,71,593 (of which 1,38,211 was recovered) were reported; 9127 cases, with 18,191 prisoners, were tried under the Penal Code, and 3rd Class. Offences against property without violence.

Theft.

9812 thieves (of whom 421 were females and 177 juveniles) were convicted. In addition to the above, 6669 cases of petty theft under one Rupee, triable by Heads of Villages, under Regulation IV of 1821, were reported, involving a loss of 1728 Rupees, of which 1381 were recovered; 6410 cases were tried by Heads of Villages, with 9877 prisoners, of whom 8770 were convicted.

Receiving, &c.

Six hundred and sixty-nine (669) cases of receiving stolen property were tried, with 1280 prisoners; and 470 receivers were convicted.

Misappropriation.

Two thousand two hundred and ten (2210) charges of misappropriation and criminal breach of trust were preferred against 4737 persons; 1585 cases were brought to trial, with 3078 prisoners; 1122 persons were convicted, and 1956 released.

Extortion.

Four hundred and thirteen (413) charges of extortion resulted in convictions against 99 persons; and 737 charges of cheating and using false measures were followed by convictions against 275 persons.

4th Class. Malicious offences against property.

Under the head of malicious offences against property, 4949 cases were reported, 15,618 persons being alleged to be implicated, of whom 12,269 were arrested or summoned. The loss of property was stated at 17,931 Rupees—2526 cases were tried, and 1857 were compromised or went by default; 3210 persons were convicted, of whom 2825 were simply fined.

Mischief by fire.

Cases of mischief by fire are the only offences of importance under this head—173 charges were preferred against 656 persons, of whom 426 were arrested—92 cases were tried, and 31 persons convicted; two (2) persons were whipped, five sentenced to imprisonment for ten years, 11 for five years, and two for three, and three for two years respectively. Charges of arson are very difficult to establish. The most serious case was one of firing Mission property in Tinnevelly. It was done three or four times consecutively; but the culprits were at length detected and punished.

Petty cases of mischief.

Four thousand, one hundred and ninety-six (4196) charges of petty mischief were preferred against 13,443 persons. The property alleged to have been destroyed amounted to 6309 Rupees; 2003 cases, or 47·7 per cent. only of the charges were tried. The rest went by default or were withdrawn. Of the 2914 persons convicted 2677 were fined on the average a little more than 4 Rupees each; 252 were confined for less than one month each; 87 only received severe punishment. Did the Law permit it, heads of the Villages might well dispose of most of these cases. Had they jurisdiction, fewer false and frivolous charges would be preferred.

Mischief to animals.

Three hundred and eighty (380) charges of mischief to animals, with an alleged loss of property amounting to 2,984 Rupees, were preferred—five persons were whipped, the rest were imprisoned for periods which in no case exceeded two years.

Aggravated mischief.

One hundred and ninety-eight (198) cases of mischief with aggravated circumstances—of which 156 were tried—resulted in 126 convictions; 106 persons were simply fined about 10 Rupees each, 14 were imprisoned for less than one month, five for six months, and one only was sentenced to one year's imprisonment. A large number of cases under this head are allowed by the parties to go by default or are compromised.

One hundred and sixty-two (162) charges of forgery were made against 475 persons; 136 cases were tried, and 42 persons convicted—323 being released.

5th Class. Forgery and offences against Currency.

One hundred and twenty-one (121) offences against Currency were reported; 110 cases were tried, and 66 persons convicted, four persons were whipped. The clumsy character of the coin passed indicates that it is of local manufacture.

Counterfeiting coin, &c.

Three thousand two hundred and thirty-four (3234) offences against public justice were reported, implicating 6778 persons; 2965 cases were tried, with 5916 prisoners; in 2117 cases conviction of 1051 persons followed—of whom 3136 were simply fined about 4 Rupees each; 387 were imprisoned for less than one month.

6th Class. Contempts and offences against public justice.

Two thousand nine hundred and eight (2908) persons were punished for contempts of legal process, of whom 2726 were simply fined about 2½ Rupees each.

Contempts and neglect of process.

Two hundred and five (205) charges of withholding or giving false information were preferred; but 72 only were successfully prosecuted; 103 persons were convicted, of whom 76 were simply fined, 13 were imprisoned for less than one month, and 13 for less than six months respectively. The difficulty of proving legal obligation secures to many immunity.

False information.

One hundred and fifty-nine (159) charges of giving false statement on oath and false evidence were made; 110 cases were tried, with 201 persons, of whom 82 were convicted in 69 successful cases. Since the repeal of the old Law respecting two conflicting statements, the proof of this offence has become more difficult.

Perjury, &c.

Forty-two (42) persons were convicted of compounding offences, and nine persons of taking a gift to recover property. Both these offences are very common, and are serious encouragements to crime. A large number of persons, chiefly of the village watcher races, make a regular trade of cattle-lifting in the Southern Districts, with a view to the ransom. The crime is most difficult to check; for the owner pays a few Rupees, recovers his property and tells the Police that the first charge of theft was hastily made; that he has recovered his strayed bullocks; and he withholds all aid in detecting the offence afterwards.

Compounding offences, &c.

One hundred and thirty-nine (139) cases of negligent escape occured; 131 cases came on for trial, and 125 Policemen were punished; 378 escapes from custody were made by 516 persons in 271 cases. The parties (121) were tried, and 329 persons were convicted. It has been ruled that no offence has been committed either by the Police Officer who suffers it, nor the person who escapes, unless the latter has been formally charged with an offence punishable under the Penal Code. Offenders therefore under both heads enjoy immunity in many cases. In 165 cases, 165 persons were punished for contempt of Court.

Negligent escape, &c.

One case of offence against the State was tried in Ganjam, and 10 persons (Khonds) implicated in the partial insurrection which took place in the hills about the latter end of 1863 were convicted and sentenced to two years' imprisonment each. One hundred and forty-eight (148) cases of unlawful assembly occurred, in which 1510 persons were concerned; 120 cases were tried—110 were summarily tried by Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd class; only two cases were tried by Session Courts—and 519 persons convicted. Six hundred and thirty-six (636) persons were convicted of rioting: of 140 cases tried only six were brought before a higher Court. One thousand and thirty-six (1036) persons were convicted of affray; 855 were fined small sums, the rest sentenced to imprisonment for less than one month. Two hundred and forty-one (241) charges of giving and receiving illegal gratifications were preferred against 494 persons; 211 cases came to trial, with 372 prisoners, of whom 98 or 26·3 per cent. were convicted. Sixty-two (62) charges of breach of duty were preferred against 137 public servants; in seven cases conviction of 10 persons followed, seven were simply fined, two imprisoned for less than one month, and only one for less than six months. Thirty-seven (37) cases of personating a public servant occurred, 33 were tried and 29 persons convicted. Twenty-eight (28) cases of spreading dangerous diseases and adulterating food were tried, and 24 persons convicted. One hundred and fifty-three (153) acts against public safety, and 19 against public decency were reported; 136 and 16 cases respectively were tried, and 153 persons convicted. Sixty-one (61) charges of criminal breach of contract were preferred against 206 persons in 18 cases, 30 persons were convicted, 12 were fined and 17 imprisoned for less than one month. One hundred and three (103) charges of adultery were brought; in 25 of the 74 cases which were tried with 117 defendants, 25 persons were convicted; one hundred and ninety-one (191) charges of bigamy and other offences relating to marriage were preferred; 137 cases were tried, with 278 defendants; 33 (one for bigamy) persons were convicted; two were females.

Again, petty and litigious cases unduly swell the apparent amount of crime under this head. The great majority (about three-fourths) of all the charges with occupied the stipendiary Magistracy—and Police in serving processes—under this class, were of a petty and personal character; under the heads of criminal tresspass, defamation and personal insult—criminal intimidation (161 charges) might be added—as follows:—

Of the 16,668 charges preferred under this class, 12,120 against 35,115 persons were alleged trespasses and petty insults; 27,977 persons were summoned or arrested to answer these complaints, only 5376 or 43·2 per cent. of these criminal charges were prosecuted by the parties to an issue, against 13,125 defendants or 37·3 per cent. only of the persons complained of; 5917 cases went by default or were otherwise disposed of; of the 5376 cases (with 13,125 defendants) which were tried by the Stipendiary Magistracy, 10·0 per cent. were dismissed as false or not proved, with 7011, or 53·5 per cent. of the persons arraigned. These results clearly show that public time is not profitably employed in this vexatious petty litigation, and that the people employ the criminal law to harass each other. The tax on the time, temper and convenience of witnesses, who are drawn into these cases, is very heavy. Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd Class entertained in the first instance almost all of these often frivolous charges. The Police are happily prohibited from receiving them. Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd Class tried 4813 such cases, against 442 tried by all other Magistrates together; only 12 (9 before Principal Sudder Ameens) cases came before the judicial Courts. The character of this litigation is shewn by the fact that of persons (6111) convicted, 5302 were simply fined about 4½ Rupees each, and 686 persons were imprisoned for about eight days each; while 114 only were sentenced to one month's imprisonment and upwards. Could the bulk of these cases be transferred to Village Courts' justice and public convenience would gain by the change. The larger number of the charges of so called criminal trespass are practically suits of a civil character; viz., were disputes about the occupation of the land, rights to water, and the like. The Procedure Code (Chapter XXII) reserves the jurisdiction over these cases for Magistrates of the 1st Class only. But Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd class are working Section 447 of the Penal Code in such a manner that they practically have assumed entire jurisdiction over almost all such disputes; for while throughout the entire Presidency, one case only of this character was tried by the tribunal contemplated by law, Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd Class entertained at least 9000 complaints of criminal trespass, in four-fifths of which probably Civil rights were the real issue. They actually tried 3669 cases.

If petty cases and matters of a Civil character be eliminated from the total under the class of Miscellaneous offences, the real crime assumes a very different numerical appearance as follows:

Under the Penal Code.	Offences committed or charges preferred.	16,668	4,218

In fact about three-fourths of the whole of the offences charged disappear.

Under the Criminal Procedure Code, 1161 charges of contempt and disobedience of process and of preferring frivolous charges were made, 1,118 cases were tried. One thousand and twenty-seven (1027) cases were successfully prosecuted to the conviction of 2519 persons or 85·4 per cent. of those brought to trial. The cases were trivial; 2206 were fined, on the average, 1½ Rupees each, and the rest were imprisoned for less than one month. Eleven thousand five hundred and three (11,503) offences against the Madras Police Act were committed; the bulk of them (10,686) being nuisances. Convictions were obtained in 10,501 cases, 18,962 person were punished, of whom 16,023 were fined an aggregate sum of Rupees 16,990. The punishments inflicted by Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd Class are not deterrent. Eight hundred and forty-five (845) offences against Cantonment Regulations were committed; 681 cases were tried, and in 146 the prisoners (701) were convicted: 517 were fined, 105 whipped, and the rest imprisoned for short periods. Sixteen (16) charges of offences committed against the Post Office Act, 14 cases were tried, and seven persons convicted. Three hundred and eighty (380) offences against the Railway Act were reported, 310 cases prosecuted, and 372 persons convicted. They were all unimportant cases. No case of placing obstruction on the line (now a rarer offence) was punished. Nine hundred and thirty-seven (937) cases under the Cattle Trespass Act were tried, and 135 under the Madras Boundaries Act. One Mopiah was dealt with under the local Act, for aiding in the fanatical murder which was committed during the month of fasting (Ramzan) in 1864. The actual culprit was hanged, his accomplice was imprisoned, and the inhabitants of the parish (Imahom) mulcted. Two thousand and twenty-eight (2,028) cases of trespass and petty assault by Europeans (1,417 cases against 6,702 persons were reported) were tried by Justices of the Peace; and 1,326 persons (of whom 235 were women) were convicted, 1,261 were fined 4,639 Rupees, 53 were imprisoned for less than one month, and 11 for less than six months. Of 86 offences against the Merchant Seaman's Act, 238 men were charged; 84 cases were tried, and 189 persons convicted; six were simply fined, 90 were imprisoned for periods not exceeding one month, and 93 for periods not exceeding six months. Five (5) offences against the Arms Act were tried, and four persons convicted.

Heads of Villages tried 7,519 petty assaults under Regulation XI of 1816, and convicted 8,051 persons, or 69·3 per cent. of persons tried by them. These Village officers likewise tried 6,110 cases of petty theft under one Rupee, with 9,877 prisoners; 6,009 cases, implicating 10,561 prisoners, were reported. They convicted 8,770 persons, or 88·5 per cent. of those tried by them. These Village Courts, presided over by the most influential landed proprietors of the village, aided by the intelligent accountant, and acting under the eye of the inhabitants, are most useful tribunals. Facts show that, comparatively, few false charges are preferred before them, and they that do their duty efficiently against the evil-doers over whose crime and offences they have jurisdiction. Justice is administered without cost to the State or public; cases are conveniently and readily prosecuted, for their prosecution involves neither expense, annoyance, or loss of valuable time and labour to parties or witnesses.

Only three cases of overcrowding Native Emigrant vessels were reported and tried; and two persons were convicted. All three cases were brought forward in Tanjore, where the shameless cruelty of native ship-owners (Labbies) has attracted the humane attention of the Magistrate and Superintendent of Police. The offence is not confined to Tanjore: were the conduct of Native shippers, especially in outlying Coast Districts, more looked to, grave abuse would be found prevalent.

Overcrowding. Native Emigrant Act.

Nine hundred and seventy-seven (977) charges were preferred under the Breach of Contract Act, and 1,409 persons were summoned or arrested; 504 cases were tried, with 892 defendants; 475 persons were convicted, of whom 279 and 114 were imprisoned for periods of less than one month and less than six, respectively. Four hundred and forty-three (443) cases and 336 cases were tried under the Salt and Abkari Regulations, respectively; 1,436 were convicted under the former, and 285 under the latter, of these Revenue Laws. Forty-one (41) charges were tried under the Stamp Act, and 122 persons convicted. In 152 cases, 232 persons were required to find security for good behaviour. In most cases, the persons so dealt with were noted robbers or burglars. The Magistrates of Vizagapatam, Nellore, North Arcot, Salem, South Arcot, Trichinopoly, and Tinnevelly, have made most effective use of this salutary preventive measure of legislation. Eight hundred and seventy-one (871) cases of neglect to maintain wives and children, were reported; 512 cases were tried, and orders were passed against 210 persons; 18 persons so neglecting to maintain their wives and children, were insane. One case only of disputed occupation of land was tried under the Procedure Code (Chapter XXII) by a Magistrate with full powers. As before remarked, Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd Class have practically assumed entire primary jurisdiction on the whole of these very important and lucrative cases by the manner in which they work under Section 447 of the Penal Code. How far this is lawful, or in accordance with the spirit taken of the old or existing legislation, has been much discussed; but no final ruling on the point has emanated from the High Court. Nine cases were disposed of under the Lunacy Acts, and orders passed relative to nine persons. The whole subject requires looking into. The number of cases brought forward does not represent the number of lunatics, amongst a population of 24 millions, who require the protection of the Law. Natives do not understand the treatment of Lunatics; and the most revolting practices of old times in England, may be met with in this country in the treatment of this miserable section of human life.

The Magistrates of the Town of Madras tried, under Act XIII of 1856, 1,970 thefts and minor, offences against property without violence; with 2,623 prisoners, and convicted 1,766 persons (187 of whom were juveniles); 314 were flogged, and 771 were imprisoned for periods not exceeding one year. They also tried 4,344 breaches of the peace, with 8,787 defendants, and convicted 7,256 persons; and 7,651 miscellaneous offences, with 9,150 defendants, of whom they convicted 7,351 persons. It is worthy of remark, that the intelligent European Magistracy of the Town of Madras convict about eighty (79·6) per cent. of all persons brought before them; while the native Sub-Magistracy in the interior scarcely convict one-half of the persons whose trial occupies their time. A variety of cases under the Marine Police, Assessment, Conservancy and other local Acts, were also disposed of by the Magistrates of the Town of Madras.

Proceedings of Magistrates and Courts.

Cases tried by all Courts.

In all, 99,124 cases were tried by competent Courts, with 1,76,694 persons; 69,103 persons, or 39·3 per cent. were released; and 1,07,291 convicted, as follows:—

	Cases tried.	Persons released.	Convicted.
			Males.	Females.	Juveniles.	Total.

Total..	90,124	69,103	99,012	7,231	1,048	1,07,291

Of all convictions, 6·7 per cent. were of females, and 0·9 per cent. were of youths of both sexes.

Females.

Under the Penal Code, 10 females were convicted of murder, and two of culpable homicide; 25 of attempts to commit suicide; 39 of causing miscarriage, exposure, and concealment of birth of their offspring; eight of prostitution of minors; 28 of robbery and house-breaking; 535 of theft, &c.; the other convictions under the Penal Code were for offences of a minor character; as for hurt, assault and affray, escape, contempts, trespass, mischief and the like. Under other Laws, 631 females were convicted of nuisance (Police Act); 55 of offences against cantonment regulations; and 193 of petty thefts under one Rupee by the Heads of Villages. The others were convicted of using abusive language, and other petty offences; 235 European females were convicted under Regulations II of 1820 and VII of 1853.

Juveniles.

Three (3) boys were convicted as dacoits, 12 of house-breaking; 158 boys and 31 girls were punished for theft, &c., under the Penal Code. Forty-three (43) boys committed mischief, three were detected uttering counterfeit coin; and the rest were punished for escape, trespass and other petty offences under the Penal Code. One hundred and thirty-two (132) boys and 30 girls were convicted of theft by Heads of Villages; and 178 boys and nine girls were convicted, under the Madras Town Police Act, of the like offence. The other offences committed by juvenile offenders were of a very petty character.

The returns erroneously show, that Heads of Villages disposed of 925 cases under the Penal Code. They derive their powers exclusively under the old Laws; but the error could not conveniently be rectified in so many statements. The error is immaterial and will not recur. These useful quasi-Village Magistrates are doing well. They summarily disposed of 14,855 cases, including 6,619 petty thefts, and 8,233 petty assaults and insults, and convicted 17,944 persons, or 77·7 per cent. of those tried by them. In fact, 16·8 per cent. of the petty criminal litigation of the country never left the village. The Police prosecute for all offences within their jurisdiction, before these village Courts.

Summary Convictions by Heads of Villages.

Subordinate Magistrates of the 2nd Class summarily disposed of 38,380 cases, or 42·5 per cent. of all cases summarily dealt with, convicted 48,674, and released 46,940, or 49·0 per cent. of all persons brought before them. This is clearly not as it ought to be. There is something wrong when every other person brought before a Court of Justice is either innocent, or is brought up without there being reasonable prospect of conviction. The fault does not lie with the Police; for they have nothing to do with the initiative of the great bulk of cases over which Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd Class have summary jurisdiction. Further, it must be borne in mind that these figures do not include a large number of cases, entertained in the first instance by Sub-Magistrates, and referred to the Police for local inquiry under Section 133 of the Procedure Code, which are subsequently struck off as false on their report. The fact is, Sub-Magistrates have been exceedingly careless in the manner in which they take up frivolous and groundless charges, and are only gradually being weaned from their bad habits (even now the practice of receiving criminal petitions by post, or through a letter-box, has not entirely disappeared). The marginal table illustrates where the defect most markedly manifests itself. The cases are all of a petty character, and are the kind of charges which vindictive parties bring to the annoyance of their neighbours. It is impossible to estimate the waste of public time and annoyance to defendants and witnesses, which are caused by futile criminal prosecutions, in which 81·0 per cent. of the defendants are released.

Sub-Magistrates of the 1st Class summarily disposed of 3,185 cases, convicting 4,943 persons against 3,319, or 40·1 per cent. released.

Magistrates with full powers, and Justices of the Peace, summarily disposed of 30,820 cases, and convicted 32,220 persons against 11,330, or 26·0 per cent. released. There is a marked difference in the care with which charges are entertained by Magistrates of the 1st Class and Magistrates with full powers, and vigor with which Justice is administered, as compared with the practice of Magistrates of the 2nd Class.

Commitments by Magistrates.

Some inaccuracy probably exists in the returns of commitments by Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd Class. This class of officers have in some districts, entertained charges cognizable by Magistrates with full powers, made the preliminary inquiry, and committed them to their superiors. It has recently been ruled, that the Procedure Code does not contemplate any commitment by a Subordinate Magistrate to a Magistrate with full powers. The former may only entertain charges, which he is competent to try or commit to the Sessions. The correct practice was, however, laid down too late in the year to admit of rectifying all the returns of commitments by Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd Class; and to a certain extent they are probably inaccurate, as they include this (not a large) class of cases.

By far the larger number of all commitments are made by Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd Class, on whom devolves the preliminary inquiry into most charges of a grave character triable by Sessions Courts. Sub-Magistrates of the 2nd Class committed 92·3 per cent. of all cases, and 91·5 per cent. of all persons sent up with a record of preliminary inquiry, for final trial by some higher Court. The influence of this class of officials on the general administration of Criminal Justice is, therefore, paramount; and on their ability and integrity depends, in a great measure, its vindication against the criminal population. Session Judges frequently complain of the incomplete state in which cases are submitted to them for adjudication; and it is a significant fact, that 43·8 per cent. of persons brought by commitment, before the Courts of Principal Sadr Amins and Session Judges, were released. Decided improvement is, however, in progress amongst Sub-Magistrates; and were their time less occupied by frivolous cases, their work would be more carefully performed.

Magistrates of the 1st Class committed 174 cases, with 318 persons, including four murders, and one attempt to murder, and two cases of culpable homicide, three cases of concealment of birth, and seven cases of hurt; five robbers (four cases), 20 dacoits (six cases), and 42 cases of house-breaking; 48 cases of theft, &c.; six cases of mischief; three of forgery; four of perjury; two of false charge, and four of escape under the Penal Code; also four offences under Abkari Laws, and three cases of pound breach under other Laws.

Commitments by Magistrates of 1st Class.

Justices of the Peace and Magistrates with full powers, committed 266 cases, with 600 persons; 39 were for offences against the person, including five murders, one attempt to murder, and two cases of culpable homicide, 15 cases of hurt, five of kidnapping, and three of rape: five cases of robbery, 15 cases of dacoity with 234 prisoners. In Cuddapah, the European Magistracy actively conducted all cases against the members of three outlawed robber gangs, which were broken up during the year, and most materially aided in the successful suppression of this grave offence, which has so long oppressed the District; and 31 cases of house-breaking. They committed 118 cases of theft, &c.; three of mischief, 13 of offences against the currency; 18 cases of perjury, and 11 of adultery.

Commitments by Justices of the Peace and Magistrates with full powers.

Disposed of by Courts.

Judicial Courts disposed of 2,792 cases, convicted 3,102, and released 2,681, or 44·0 per cent. of all persons committed to them as follows:—

Principal Sadr Amins disposed of 806 cases, and convicted 850, and released 407, or 32·5 per cent. of all persons committed to them. They tried 22 cases of attempt to commit suicide, and 19 of hurt, 187 of house-breaking, and 357 of theft and misappropriation, 20 of mischief, two of uttering counterfeit coin, and one of forgery, and 65 cases of offences against justice. The rest were miscellaneous cases of minor importance.

By Principal Sadr Amin

Session Judges tried 1,931 cases, convicted 2,505 persons, and released 2,226, or 47·0 per cent. of all persons committed to them for trial. The percentage of releases is very large, and attributable in part at least, to the imperfect state in which committed cases are prepared by Sub-Magistrates, who hold the preliminary inquiry in the great majority of grave cases. But very varied success attends prosecutions in different Courts. In Kurnool, few convictions were obtained during part of the year.

By Session Judges.

Four hundred and ninety-eight (498) cases were charges of offences against the person, including 165 charges of murder, 31 of attempt to murder, and 50 charges of culpable homicide, 59 cases of causing miscarriage, concealment of birth, and exposure of children, 101 of causing hurt, 22 of kidnapping, nine of prostituting minors, 26 of rape, and six of unnatural offences. Session Judges tried 817 charges of offences against property with violence, convicting 1,399, and releasing 1,279 prisoners. Two hundred and seventy-eight (278) were charges of robbery, 270 of dacoity, and 260 house-breaking. Two hundred and twelve cases (212) of theft and offences against property, without violence, were committed to Court, with 361 prisoners; 194 were convicted, and 167 released. Thirty-five (35) charges of mischief by fire, 42 offences against the currency, 53 charges of forgery, and 64 of perjury, and 104 charges of other offences against justice, were also tried by Sessions Judges. The other trials under the Penal Code were on charges of minor importance. Under other Penal Laws, three cases were tried under the Post Office, and two under the Railway Act, and one charge of offence against the Stamp Act.

One hundred and forty-seven (147) cases were tried before the High Court, with 203 prisoners; 155 persons were convicted, and 48, or 0·9 per cent. only, were released. The cases are committed by European Justices of the Peace. These included five charges of murder (with nine prisoners, of whom six were convicted), one of homicide, one of attempt to commit suicide, six of causing hurt, three of kidnapping, and one of rape—18 cases of house-breaking (with 30 persons, of whom 28 were convicted), 87 cases of theft and other offences against property without violence, 2 cases of uttering counterfeit coin, 4 cases of perjury, and 10 of adultery.

By High Court.

No Bill was found in 5 cases, involving 11 persons.

Six hundred and sixteen (616) were sentenced to transportation. One hundred and forty (140) were transported for life; of whom 65 were guilty of murder (57[illegible], attempt to murder (4), culpable homicide (3), and grievous hurt (1); and 75 were guilty of dacoity (66), robbery (7) and house-breaking (2).

Transportation for life

One hundred and sixty-nine (169) persons were sentenced to 10 years' transportation, and 307 to seven years, respectively. Of these, 27 were guilty of murder (9), and attempt to murder (6), and other offences against the person;—104 were convicted of robbery (120), dacoity (250), house-breaking (34), and offences against property with violence.

For ten (10) and seven (7) years.

Rigorous imprisonment.

Thirty-seven thousand four hundred and thirty-two (37,432) persons were imprisoned.

For life

Of these, 11 are imprisoned for life, for house-breaking (2), and theft (9).

For 14 years

Four (4) were sentenced to imprisonment for 14 years, for house-breaking.

Six hundred and twenty-nine (629) were sentenced to imprisonment for 10 to 5 years, of whom, 58 were guilty of offences against the person—2 of murder, 9 of attempts to murder, 13 of culpable homicide, 3 of causing miscarriage, 19 of causing grievous hurt, 2 of kidnapping, 2 of prostituting minors, 6 of rape, and 2 of unnatural offences;—139 were guilty of offences against property with violence; 93 of robbery, 231 of dacoity, 114 of house-breaking;—33 were guilty of theft and other offences against property without violence, and 16 of arson;—14 were guilty of counterfeiting coin (5) and forgery (9);—14 committed perjury, &c.;—15 were guilty of escape and rescue;—4 of abetting and attempting grave offences under the Penal Code. Three (3) persons were sentenced under other Penal Laws to 5 years' imprisonment.

For 5 years and under 10 years.

Two thousand two hundred and twenty-two (2,222) persons were sentenced to periods of imprisonment above one year, and not exceeding three years; of these, 162 were convicted of offences against the person; 34 were parties to murder and culpable homicide; three were convicted of attempting suicide; 33 of causing miscarriage, concealment of birth, &c.; 65 of hurt; 6 of abduction; and 4 of rape. The others were convicted of assault, &c,—825 were convicted of offences against property with violence; viz., 104 of robbery, 132 of dacoity, 574 of house-breaking, and 15 of breaking-open boxes, &c., containing property—762 were convicted of theft and other offences against property without violence—32 of mischief—64 of counterfeiting coin and forgery—34 of perjury, and 72 of escape. The others were sentenced to imprisonment for a variety of offences of less heinous character.

Imprisonment for one year and not exceeding three (3) years.

Three thousand four hundred and four (3,404) persons were sentenced to periods of imprisonment not exceeding 6 months.

Imprisonment for 6 months and under one year.

Thirty-one thousand one hundred and sixty-two (31,162), or 83·2 per cent. of all persons imprisoned, were sentenced to periods of confinement not exceeding one month. Heads of Villages sentenced 17,914 persons, many of whom, including 8,096 thieves, were confined in the village choultry for periods not exceeding 12 hours. Persons sentenced by Magistrates to be imprisoned for less than one month are confined in Magisterial lock-ups; and other returns show that the average duration of confinement is 8 days each.

Imprisonment not exceeding one month.

Two thousand five hundred and thirty (2,530) persons were whipped. Of these, 2,436 were whipped and released—3 were guilty of causing hurt, and 2 of indecent assault and rape;—427 were whipped for offences against property with violence, viz., 3 for robbery, 20 for dacoity, 393 for house-breaking, and 11 for breaking-open boxes containing property and the like.—977 were whipped for theft and other offences against property without violence—11 were whipped for mischief, and 4 for uttering counterfeit coin—103 were whipped under Cantonment Regulations, and 814 for theft under the Madras Town Police Act.

Persons whipped.

Ninety-four (94) persons were whipped in addition to other punishments; 21 were convicted robbers, dacoits, and house-breakers; 60 were thieves, and 3 forgers. The others had been convicted of various offences.

Simply whipped.

Persons whipped in addition to other punishment.

Sixty-nine thousand and five (69,005) persons were fined, in the sum of Rupees 2,12,354,—or at an average of Rupees 3¼ each. Of these, 66,395 were fined Rupees 2,01,613, without other punishment, and 2,610 were fined Rupees 10,751 in addition to other punishment.

Persons fined.

Of the latter, nine persons were fined 1,220 Rupees, in addition to other punishment, for attempt to murder; 728 were fined 4,709 Rupees for causing hurt of various degrees; and 211 persons were fined 2,400 Rupees for assault. Twelve (12) robbers and 35 dacoits were fined Rupees 1,020 and 3,190, respectively; and 41 house-breakers were fined Rupees 1,785.—755 thieves and persons guilty of offences against property without violence were fined Rupees 13,598;—90 persons who were punished for mischief, were likewise fined Rupees 1,295. Three (3) counterfeiters and utterers of false coin were fined Rupees 110, and 2 forgers Rupees 110, in addition to other punishment;—101 persons, punished for riot and unlawful assembly, were likewise fined Rupees 1,819. Others were fined, in addition to other punishment, for a variety of less important offences.

Fines in addition to other punishment.

Forty-three (43) persons charged with offences, or brought before Magistrates, were found insane. One committed murder; and one female, charged with procuring miscarriage, was Bailed by the Police.

The Police bailed 2,095 persons in 1,193 cases, against whom sufficient evidence to justify their placing the persons arrested before a Magistrate could not be found, or, on further inquiry, the charges appeared to be not well founded. Of 92 cases (171 persons) of offences against the person, 9 (23 persons) were charges of murder or attempt to murder and culpable homicide, and 21 (21 persons) of attempting suicide; 27 (65 persons) were charges of hurt; 7 (10 persons) of abduction; and 6 (6 persons) of rape:—54 cases (55 persons) were charges of robbery, 15 (65 persons) of dacoity, and 184 (318 persons) of house-breaking:—682 cases (1,122 persons) were thefts:—49 cases (85 persons) were charges of mischief by fire, &c. The other were charges of a less heinous character.

Cases dismissed for default and neglect to prosecute, and withdrawn by the parties.

Twenty-seven thousand two hundred and sixty-nine (27,269) cases, with 59,769 persons, went by default, or were withdrawn by the parties themselves—12,031 cases (28,102 persons) were charges of petty hurt, wrongful restraint and assault under the Penal Code. In 659 cases (1,626 persons) the charge preferred was theft, in 1,868 cases (4,456 persons) mischief, in 4,629 cases (10,851 persons) criminal trespass, and in 1,328 cases (3,316 persons) insult and defamation. In 2,522 cases (4,464 persons) Heads of Villages adjusted the petty differences in the village.—263 cases (499 persons) of breach of contract were settled by amicable adjustment, besides a large number of other miscellaneous petty charges.

Under trial

On the 31st December 1864, 1,715 cases, with 4,197 persons remained undisposed of. The great bulk of these were petty cases. It is purposed so to arrange these returns for the current year, that they shall show only offences which were committed, or charges which were made during the year, and how they had been disposed of. The returns are for the calendar year, and the two or three months which intervene before they need to be submitted with the report required at the close of the official year will suffice to clear off all files, and admit of showing a complete statement of offences and the result of trials, and obviate the confusion and difficulty of bringing forward a balance, and carrying on statement of cases under trial.

OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL OF POLICE,
KOTAGHERY, 15th August 1865.

(Signed) W. ROBINSON,
Inspector General of Police.

No. 125. ORDER THEREON, 10th February 1866, No. 214.

The Governor in Council has perused with interest the careful review of the criminal statistics for the year 1864, submitted with the foregoing letter from the Inspector General of Police. The Returns have been so fully analyzed in Mr. Robinson's Report that there are but few points which call for notice from the Government.

2. The great extent to which the time of the Subordinate Magistrates of the 2nd Class is taken up by the disposal of petty cases, which might well be settled by the Heads of Villages, is unquestionably a serious evil. It is probable that many of the cases referred to might be dealt with by the latter Officers under the provisions of Section 10, Regulation XI of 1816, which Section is still in force; and it seems very desirable that in such cases the Sub-Magistrates should refer the complaining parties to the Head of the Village. The matter is one which is deserving of the consideration of the Honorable the Judges of the High Court, who will be furnished with a copy of Mr. Robinson's letter and its accompaniments, with a view to the issue of such instructions as the Judges may deem it proper to give to the several District Magistrates on the subject. It is not improbable that the fact that the Section in question is still unrepealed has been overlooked in many Districts.

3. The Judges will also be requested to give their attention to the remarks made in Mr. Robinson's Report (page 15), in regard to the extent to which charges of criminal trespass really involving civil rights are disposed of by Subordinate Magistrates of the 2nd Class.

4. The only other point which calls for notice is the alleged prevalence (page 17 of Report) of the offences against the Act for the prevention of over-crowding of Native Emigrant ships, which calls for the attention of the Magistrates of the several coast Districts.

Judicial Department.

PROCEEDINGS of the MADRAS GOVERNMENT.

Read letter from Inspector General of Police.

dated 22 August 1865 No 7110.

Order thereon 10th February 1866 No 214.

The Governor in Council has perused with interest the careful review of the Criminal Statistics for the year 1864 submitted with the foregoing letter from the Inspector General of Police. The returns have been so fully analyzed in Mr Robinson's Report that there are but few points which call for notice from the Govt.

2 The great extent to which the laws of the subordinate Magistrates of the 2d Class is taken up by the disposal of petty cases which might well be settled by the Heads of villages is unquestionably a serious evil. It is probable that many of the cases referred to might be dealt with by the latter officers under the provisions of Section X. Reg XI of 1816 which section is still in force, and it seems very desirable that in such cases the Sub Magistrates should refer the parties to the Head of the village. The matter is one which is deserving of the consideration of the Honble the Judges of the High Court, who will be furnished with a copy of Mr Robinson's letter and its accompaniments with a view to the issue of such instructions as the Judges may deem it proper to give to the several District Magistrates on the subject. It is not improbable that the fact that the Section in question is still unrepealed has been overlooked in many Districts.—

3 The Judges will also be requested to give their attention to the remarks made in Mr Robinson's report (page 10) in regard to the
