It is various centres in the Punjab, North-West Frontier Province and Kashmir. At the instance of the Indian Research Fund Association the question of the possibility of cultivating the plant in India was discussed by a special Committee of the Advisory Board of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research in 1937 as a result of which it was decided to arrange for a co-ordinated experiment in suitable areas to find out if the cultivation of pyrethrum was an economic possibility.

The Imperial Council arranged to obtain some seed of the plant through the Director of the Plant Pathological Laboratory in England and distributed it for trials in selected centres in Madras, Bombay, United Provinces, Punjab, Bihar, Sind, North-West Frontier Province and Kashmir. Co-operation of a few private individuals was also sought in these trials.

While the seed failed to germinate in certain places (e.g. Lahore, Poona, and Sind), the results obtained in a few other places, namely Murree, Kashmir and the North-West Frontier Province were hopeful. The plant on the whole grew well on an elevation of 5,000 to 6,000 feet.
