NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF INDIA

ANNUAL REPORT, 1976

A. Some Highlights

The most notable developments during the year concerned the international activities of the National Archives. The South and West Asian Regional Branch of the International Council on Archives (SWARBICA) was inaugurated by the Education Minister of the Government of India at New Delhi on 11th December 1976. Out of the eight countries eligible to join the Regional Branch, five countries namely, Bangladesh, India, Iran, Nepal and Sri Lanka, joined as founder members, while Afghanistan was represented by an observer at the inaugural function. The members of SWARBICA unanimously decided to locate the Secretariat of the Branch in the National Archives of India at New Delhi, and two Assistant Directors of the National Archives of India, namely, Dr. N. H. Kulkarnee and Shri Ranbir Kishore, were unanimously elected to the key positions of the Secretary General and the Treasurer respectively.

Another signal honour extended to the National Archives of India by the international archival community was the unanimous election of Dr. S. N. Prasad, Director of Archives, as Vice-President of the International Council on Archives at the VIII International Congress held at Washington D.C. U.S.A., in September 1976. This is the first time that any archivist from the third world has been elected as an office bearer of the I.C.A.

Another pointer of the coming of age of the National Archives of India in the international field was the inauguration, in December, 1976, of the Institute of Archival Training, with a regional role. During 1976, 10 trainees from Afghanistan, two trainees from Malaysia, and one trainee from Nigeria attended the Archival Training Course under the aegis of the National Archives of India.

After repeated reviews, the Fifth Plan allocation of the National Archives of India was reduced from Rs. 224 lakhs to Rs. 157.65 lakhs. Within this ceiling, almost all the Plan projects of the National Archives of India, which had remained under consideration of Government, finally received sanction during 1976. These Plan projects included the revised design of the Annex building, supply of preservative materials to State Archives, setting up of a Record Centre at Jaipur, and expansion of several important activities. A total of 77 additional posts, covering different disciplines, were created during the year under these Plan Schemes and a Record Centre at Jaipur started functioning accordingly.

During the period under report, due to acute shortage of shelf space in the National Archives of India, only 7,134 files and volumes and 32 bundles, belonging to the Ministries of Works & Housing, Home Affairs and External Affairs, Viceroy's Executive Council, and the Crown Representative Records could be accessioned. Besides, some mere private papers of Dr. Rajendra Prasad and documents of the Punjab Conspiracy Case were received for permanent custody.

Two officers of the National Archives of India worked in the India Office Library and Records, London, for several weeks and prepared a detailed list of relevant records which could fill in the gaps in the existing record holdings of the National Archives of India. It is proposed to acquire microfilm copies of such records.
