"I may give the last reason for further examination. The Hon'ble Mr. Subbarayulu Reddiyar was quite right in saying that the object of asking for a public inquiry is not the certainty that a public inquiry will arrive at results different from those of the Government; but what is the difference? The difference is in the result. The difference is that the public will have a feeling of satisfaction and their doubts will be cleared. Your Lordship will see that even the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar in his question No. 81 includes certain suggestions. He says: 'Is it a fact that the shots were all sent in the direction in which Mr. P. Varadarajulu's carriage went out? If so, is there any reason ascertained for that direction being aimed at?' This is one of those wild doubts that the object of some of the police people was to shoot in the direction of Mr. Varadarajulu Nayudu. This is a very wild statement to make but evidently the statement has been made and the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar is anxious that such a statement should not be made. He refers to the examination of rifles and wants to know how many were discharged and how many were not. I had a statement made by certain lawyers who seem to know something about it and they say that there was a revolver found on the spot, and it was found discharged of its contents and that the bullet extracted from the body of the constable was found to be a bullet such as can be sent out from the revolver. These things go round and the idea prevails that somebody was in a terrible funk and fired off with a revolver issuing orders to the constables to fire. In order to set all these things at rest, it is desirable that there should be a public inquiry. I don't know what a public inquiry would result in. It may show that the police got so thoroughly funky that they shot one of their own number. But it is desirable that there should be a public inquiry even though the result of all this inquiry may delay for some weeks any Government Order. In these circumstances, I hope it will be possible to accept the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. Davidson:—"Your Excellency, I do not propose to detain the Council very long with my final remarks on this resolution. But there are one or two points on which I had better say a few words. There have been two references made to the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar's question No. 81 as suggestive of a line of examination which might elicit useful facts. We have not given a detailed answer to the question but it must not be supposed for that reason that attention has not been directed to practically all the points mentioned in the question. I do not think that Government can very well submit themselves to a detailed cross-examination on minor incidents brought out in an inquiry the record of which they are not prepared to lay on the table. The Deputy Inspector-General's report deals with almost all these points and the evidence which he and Mr. Paddison had before them also touched upon them. We have some evidence as to the equipment brought by the police constables present at the time; we have a record of the examination of their rifles both before and immediately after the firing took place; and that is of some value, not because it shows who caused the firing or the injury, but because it brings out quite clearly which of the police were guilty of a breach of discipline, if we accept the story that they had no order to fire. They knew perfectly well that they would be blamed for utilizing some of the cartridges in their pouches, and that was an inducement to give some specific explanation of how they came to use their cartridges but the story put forward that they positively heard an order to fire is, I believe, absolutely false. I have no doubt that, as Mr. Paddison says, in the process of unauthorized loading, some one touched his trigger and so blew off the head of the man in the front rank. There was a lot of noise and confusion at the time and a number of stones were thrown. We have statements that a number of constables were injured by stones, not very many, but some. It is quite likely that they were frightened, and the firing of a single shot set off a number of nervous constables. If that is the fact, any one would expect them to say in personal defence, 'we had an order.' So much for question No. 81 except for clause (j) which contains the suggestion that the shots were all sent in the direction in which Dr. Varadarajulu Nayudu's carriage went out. The 'Doctor' is the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar's appellation and not mine. Was there any reason for that direction to be aimed at? It is a fact that a certain number of shots went in that direction. It was to the south that the carriage would be leaving the compound and at the moment the firing took place it was straight in front. That is why the policeman in the front rank was hit, for they had fallen in again after the process of dispersing the crowd. Mr. Pelly attaches a rough sketch to his report; the position of the reserve police at the time when the firing took place was facing south and naturally they would fire in that direction. Mr. Pelly's remark is that unfortunately the firing was in the direction in which the accused's carriage and other carriages were proceeding. When he asked a number of policemen, one version was: 'I fired in the air and without aim'; others fearing they might be taken to task departmentally for not firing at the crowd said: 'I fired at the crowd' or 'I fired straight in front.' This surely gives the answer to clause (j). There is nothing to show that any shots were fired with a view to injure Mr. Varadarajulu Nayudu's carriage, but it happened to be just in front of the police.

(Mr. Davidson.)

[19TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

"The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar drew attention to a statement somewhere that no less than five shots had struck one particular jutka. The answer to that is very simple. What happened was that there were two sorts of ammunition used, buckshot and ball. As a rule, unless specific orders are given, buckshot is used. In this instance, several constables are known to have used buckshot. I do not know how many pellets there are in a cartridge; but they make very small holes and the examination of the jutka showed four or five holes, none of them large enough to allow a ball to go through. This does not mean that it was hit five times, merely that it received one charge of buckshot. Mr. Paddison specially mentioned this—I do not know if it was in his written report or elsewhere—and he sent in an envelope with a pencil showing the exact size of the holes. They were of such a size that no ball, no rifle ball, could go through them.

I may refer to two reasons against a further public inquiry. One is that Madura is fairly heated now and if you had a public inquiry at Madura, sitting at Madura as it must, local feeling being what unfortunately it is and has been, this would certainly not allay the feeling. Things are very much better without such an inquiry and I do not think it would contribute to the public peace of Madura. If there were a well-founded grievance or sore, it would only serve to keep open the grievance or sore. I do not admit that there is any such grievance or sore and I do not think there is any reason for a further public inquiry in a matter which has been adequately investigated and in regard to which we have taken steps to place the matter before the public.

"There is yet another reason. It is assumed that what is possible is a judicial inquiry. There has been a good deal of loose speaking and the assumption is that there would be a Court trying prisoners, that evidence would be taken, subject to cross-examination, and that there would be a regular judicial finding. I suppose the first essential of any such inquiry as has been suggested—I do not say particularly by the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar, but by other speakers—is that there must be somebody to be put on the dock. That must be on the complaint of a private individual, or on a charge preferred by the police. So far as a private individual is concerned, the only complaint we have had is that from the father of the Sowrashtro boy. He says: 'Your petitioner was not present and is not in a position to specify the person who fired.' He merely asks for an investigation. Under ordinary circumstances the preliminary investigation would be conducted by the police. There is no use ordering the police to investigate this matter but if any one could suggest to me that a criminal complaint should be filed before a Court against a particular individual, that would be something and one might consider the matter further. But we do not know who fired the fatal shots; in the preliminary inquiry conducted by the District Magistrate and the Deputy Inspector-General the outcome of which is before the public it is quite certain there is not any basis for a definite criminal charge against any one.

19TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Davidson; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.)

"I should like once more to emphasise the fact that 'mob-firing' is only a preliminary caution. The Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar perhaps misunderstood me when I used that phrase. I was desirous of giving the impression that it was a precautionary step taken by the Inspector. In military orders it is customary before the effective part of the order is given to precede it by what is known as a preliminary caution addressed to the unit concerned. Sometimes this is a single word and sometimes more."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I know full well caution was only to prepare the ground."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON:—"There is nothing wrong in an Inspector giving that caution. The actual order for firing could not follow until a later stage. I thought I had made this plain when I quoted from Mr. Pelly's report his statement of the normal procedure in cases where the command 'mob-firing' is given."

"One more point—the story of revolvers being used. I do not know if the sinister suggestion is that Mr. Elliot nervously used his revolver and blew out the brains of the constable. If so, the evidence recorded shows that there no revolver was used. Mr. Elliot had not got his with him. That is specially mentioned in Mr. Paddison's report in paragraph 7: 'There were vague allegations about revolvers being used. An astonishing story by one Jaya Rao Pillai who says he saw the District Superintendent of Police fire his revolver holding it behind his men when the Reserve Inspector ordered the men to fire.'—There is not a shadow of truth in this.—This man seemed to me to have a disordered brain. He was quite unsupported. The District Superintendent of Police, I observe from Mr. Pelly's enquiry, states specifically that he had not his pistol with him. It is incredible that the District Superintendent of Police should leave it to the Reserve Inspector to order fire and then himself fire in the back of his own men himself. No revolvers were fired though one witness says the Reserve Inspector drew his revolver and replaced it at once.' I have read these passages from Mr. Paddison's report in order to show that this revolver story was not left undealt with."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"All sorts of stories are going, that what was extracted from the dead man was a bullet that went out from a revolver."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON:—"In the inquest report which was sent up to me, there is no mention of anything of the sort; and there is no evidence that a revolver was used by any one."

"To sum up in a single sentence, the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar thinks that a public inquiry might throw light on who fired the fatal shot. It seems to me impossible that such a result could reasonably be expected to come from a further inquiry and I am afraid Government cannot accept this resolution."

The resolution was then put to the vote and lost.

RESOLUTION RE DRINKING WATER FOR CATTLE IN RESERVED FORESTS.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Your Excellency, this resolution is, I believe, one not unfamiliar to this Council. It is as follows:—

"II. This Council recommends to His Excellency in Council that adequate facilities should be afforded to cattle-owners taking permits for grazing cattle in reserve forests for getting drinking water for their cattle in or near the places where they graze."

"I believe the provision of drinking water for cattle in grazing grounds, whether they are away from reserves or in reserves is covered by several Government pronouncements and I believe the Famine Commission report deals with that subject. On the end of April 1914 we had a debate in this Council on the provision of water-supply for cattle in grazing grounds. I am reading from pages 754 and 757 of Council Proceedings of 1913-14 when this statement was made by the Hon'ble Sir Sivaswami Ayyar on behalf of Government: 'It will be possible, I hope, to take some steps in that direction'—in the direction of supplying water in grazing grounds—but beyond the provision of drinking water supplies in grazing grounds, whether situated in forests or elsewhere, it may not be possible to undertake any such large schemes as the Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao desires the Council to recommend to Government.' I am not now making the same recommendation which the late Mr. K. R. V. Krishna Rao made that, in all rural areas, provision should be made for the improvement of water-supply and pure drinking water. I am making a much more modest request and I find in the course of the same debate that Sir John Atkinson said that it was the object of the Government to carry out the recommendations of the Famine Commission which pointed out that wherever there were grazing grounds, Government should, as far as possible, provide water-supply for cattle that went there to graze. The reason why I have taken up a matter on which Government have admitted their liability and are making some efforts, is this: till recently there has been a failure of the seasonal rains and even now in several of the interior districts like Salem the rainfall has been anything but adequate. In Salem, we have had 50 per cent of our usual rainfall coming from the new year and the consequence is that there is very little pasture in various places and in various other places where there is pasture in reserves the water-supply has run short."

RESOLUTION RE DRINKING WATER FOR CATTLE IN RESERVED FORESTS.

(Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Mr. Couchman;
the President.)

[19TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

Government have provided a few tanks and a few troughs but these are all dry. A complaint was made to the local officers and they have been promising to pay some attention to the matter. The people of Salem however found that adequate attention had not been paid and two conferences have passed resolutions on this subject. One was at the Uttankarai conference in May when the situation was not quite so serious and that was sent up to the Government by the President of the conference and he sent me a copy asking me to press the Government to see that there is adequate provision of water-supply in grazing grounds in Government forest reserves. Very recently I had to preside at the Salem agriculturists' conference and there they pressed the same matter. I sent up a copy of the resolution passed by the conference to the Chief Secretary. That also deals with the same situation which however is now rendered much worse by continued failure of rains in the Salem district. The chief difficulty is that there are a large number of persons who send a good portion of their cattle to the forest reserves to get their grazing. Usually there would be water and also grazing-ground in most blocks but now on account of the failure of rains, a good many blocks exist which contain a little bit of pasture but in which there is no provision for water and therefore in consequence the working of the forests is largely left to the subordinates and what happens is that it is strictly an offence for a cattle-owner to allow the cattle to graze in one block and take water in another block for drinking. This is strictly a forest offence for which an officer if he is strict, charges the man, but some who are lenient do not do so. This situation has been explained to the local officers and the Collector of Salem and the forest officer promised to look into the matter. This difficulty continues to be felt. Some remedy must be found. There are blocks where some pasture is found without drinking water. If you do not find water in one block, permit us to go to another block where there is water—this is the request put forward in the various conferences. The reason of this is appreciated by a number of local officers and I am quite sure if the Government put themselves in touch with the local officers, they will find and admit its reasonableness. I am dealing with a matter on which Government have admitted their liability. It is their duty to see how many wells could be further deepened and whatever further arrangement they may make to enable the cattle to have drinking water. This is a matter in short which has only to be pressed on the attention of the Government and I am quite sure that Government would make some early provision for the relief of the ryot population.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao seconded the resolution.

The Hon'ble Mr. M. E. COUCHMAN:—"Your Excellency, the subject of provision of water-supply for cattle in forests was first of all raised by the Forest Committee who recommend that a considerable sum should be spent annually on the improvement of water-supply among other things. After the debate in the Legislative Council to which the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar referred, orders were issued to make adequate allotment for the purpose in drawing up the annual plan of operations and that special mention should be made in the annual administration report of the success of the measures adopted during the year. Orders were issued accordingly but the date of the order is 29th June 1914 and almost immediately after that war broke out and subsequently very strict financial restrictions were imposed by the Government. In 1915 one order was issued that "all expenditure which can be postponed without creating inconvenience must be postponed, and that no provision should be made for new schemes unless they are of pressing urgency." In the following year, it was laid down that measures involving increased expenditure should not be introduced unless there was an immediate necessity or unless they were immediately remunerative. That is the excuse for much not being done up to the present time. About Rs. 3,400 were spent last year and Rs. 4,500 the year before, but as soon as financial restrictions are removed, we have every intention of carrying out the programme. I accept the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"May I request information? Even now in cases of urgent necessity, you can provide money. Peace conditions are almost in sight. I would like to know whether even under the old orders something cannot be done."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. E. COUCHMAN:—"This is a matter for the local officers to deal with and if, in any particular case, matters are represented to them, I have no doubt that special relief would be granted. They would report it to me. The Collector of Salem reported to me some time ago that there was insufficient pasturage and therefore I decided to stop the supply of hay for the army from the Salem district. In Bellary and Kurnool considerable concessions were made in the way of allowing cattle to have free grazing and of throwing open reserves and of even allowing the cattle to be fed on the leaves of trees. Even the forest officers raised no objection to that. Whenever representations are made by local authorities of districts, we are prepared to make similar concessions. If he would represent to the District Forest Officer or to the Collector of Salem in which way relief is urgently required, I have not the slightest doubt that it will be given."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"As something is going to be done, I withdraw my resolution. (Laughter.)"

"I understand it has been accepted."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"It does not matter."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE SCALE OF GRAZING FEES IN RESERVES NOT TO BE INCREASED.

19TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

(Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Mr. Couchman.)

RESOLUTION RE SCALE OF GRAZING FEES IN RESERVES NOT TO BE INCREASED.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"The resolution that I have the honour to move runs in these terms:—

'III. This Council recommends to His Excellency in Council that the scale of grazing fees in reserves should not be raised.'

"With reference to this resolution, Your Excellency, the facts are slightly more complicated than those of the last resolution. The same Uttankarai conference to which I referred in dealing with the last resolution dealt also with these facts about the grazing fees. The facts are, in various places, different rates are being charged for permits for cattle, in some places three annas, in some places four annas; that was the state of affairs in Salem five or six months back and I find in other places, different rates were charged for different people. Question No. 167 shows that for different sets of people different rates are levied. In the case of Lambadia, the charges are raised from annas three to one rupee; in the Salem district, the rate has been raised in some places from four annas to eight annas in some other places, from three annas to nine annas. The Uttankarai conference pointed out the hardship in raising the grazing fee and the hardship was all the greater because it came into effect this year in certain places; effect was given to the raised fees from the 1st of July. By the 1st of July people were hard hit by the monsoon having proved unsatisfactory and people are feeling hard pressed on account of the higher rates. They were expecting free grazing of the cattle. Many of the cattleowners send some of their cattle to the forest and keep others to be fed on their own patta lands and when there was a failure of rain and patta lands yielded nothing, they sent even the remaining cattle and they hoped that Government would give them free grazing, but they found that, instead of getting free grazing, on the 1st of July the rates were raised. That is the position which several of them felt very keenly and at the agricultural conference over which I presided, many of them hoped that Government would see their way to cancel their arrangements from the 1st of July and in many other places proposals are still held in abeyance. In this resolution though I say that it should not be raised, it may be taken therefore that what I mean is this: in places where it has been raised, the previous state of things should be restored and in places where there are no rates, no rate should be levied. In the first place, the reason is owing to the peculiar conditions of this year. In the second place I may point out that there is hardly any necessity to increase the scale of grazing fees. I do not know on what particular grounds grazing fees have been raised. I shall await the reply of the Hon'ble Mr. Couchman before I say anything as to the reasons for the scale of the fees being raised. At present, as conditions are, in the present year, it is clearly desirable that the scale of grazing fees should not be raised. With these words, I place this resolution before this Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Chidambaramudaliyar seconded the resolution.

The Hon'ble Mr. M. E. COUCHMAN:—"Your Excellency, from the wording of the resolution I thought that the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar was going to raise a general question throughout the Presidency about raising the scale of fees. But if I understand him aright, he is raising the question only as regards the Salem district. Am I right in understanding him so?"

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"That is not so, because the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao says that the rates have been raised in other districts also."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. E. COUCHMAN:—"The subject is a vast one and the Forest Committee have gone through it so thoroughly that I do not know where to begin. I suppose most non-official members have read the Forest Committee's report and they must be aware of the history of the subject. I may just recall to their mind the fact that the evidence of witnesses examined by the Commission went to show the general feeling that forests were being overgrazed and that some restriction was necessary. I could give you a very large number of quotations from the Forest Committee's report to bear out that point. But I may read a few extracts from the evidence taken by the Committee.—

(1) By M.R.Ry. R. Subbarayudu Garu, B.A., B.L., Pleader, Nellore.

Q.—You expressed yourself rather strongly in favour of limitation?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Why?

A.—To prevent overgrazing.

Q.—In your opinion, are the Government forests overgrazed at present?

A.—I think they are.

Q.—And the result is?

A.—There is not sufficient pasture.

Q.—Have you had any personal knowledge of the grievances of the villagers of oppression, and what do you gather to be the principal grievance?

A.—The principal grievance seems to be there being no limitation whatsoever.

Q.—Is it that ryots generally regard that as a grievance?

A.—They do.

Q.—But if the limitation was enforced some ryots will be able to get no grazing at all?

A.—There will be some provision made.

(Mr. Couchman.) [19TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

Q.—You would have to exclude many of the cattle which now graze?
A.—May be. Many of the agricultural cattle may be excluded.

(2) By Muhammad Sharif Sahib.

Q.—How many do you send to the Government forest?
A.—All ten.
Q.—Is there good grazing there?
A.—No, bad grazing.
Q.—Why?
A.—Because there are too many cattle grazing in it.
Q.—Is the grass injured by unlimited grazing?
A.—Yes, not the trees.

(3) By Mapati Naveer Reddi of Vedicherla.

Q.—Do you think there are too many cattle grazing in your reserve?
A.—Too many cattle. It is overgrazed.
Q.—Is that the reason that there is nothing to eat in it?
A.—Yes. The cattle are very many and the grass is very little.
Q.—Will the grazing be better if so many cattle do not go in it?
A.—If only 100 cattle go to the reserve, there will be more grass.

(4) By Adinarayana Reddi Garu.

Q.—Why do you not send any of your cattle to Government forests?
A.—It is not worth while. Only poor and helpless people that have no other go send their cattle to Government forests. There is no good grass in it, almost nothing.
Q.—Why is that?
A.—Because the forest people do not reserve it when it ought to be reserved, when the rains set in, as we do. The nature of the soil of the district is not favourable to the growth of good grass. Lastly they allow too many cattle to graze there, and my cattle will not have sufficient grazing.
Q.—Do you consider limitation essential?
A.—Yes: without limitation there will be no use.
Q.—You think it is better that few cattle should be fed well and others badly fed?
A.—In the other case all will be badly fed. You let in as many cattle as that block can afford to feed.
Q.—In that way will the grazing be improved?
A.—Yes.
Q.—If you were a member of a panchayat in these circumstances how would you limit grazing?
A.—I would regulate the grazing according to the area cultivated and the total number of cattle to be admitted to that reserve. The highest I can allow is one animal for every four acres.
Q.—What are the difficulties in Government forests?
A.—There is not much grass in the reserves.

(5) By Vema Reddi Ranga Reddi Garu of Varagali.

Q.—Do you think that the number of cattle grazing in the Government reserves should be limited?
A.—It depends upon the area of the reserve.
Q.—Should it be limited according to the area and the grazing available?
A.—Yes. It is necessary.
Q.—Or should all be allowed to graze if they pay?
A.—It is only on account of that that we do not go to the reserves even if we are allowed free.
Q.—Is it overgrazed?
A.—Yes. It is overgrazed and there is no control. Some infected cattle from other places also come there.

(6) By M.R.Ry. V. Krishnaswami Rao Avargal, Union Chairman, Kavali.

Q.—I gather from your written statement that you are in favour of limiting grazing in reserves?
A.—Yes; because, I think, at present, they are overgrazed, and they have deteriorated for want of control.

19TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Couchman.)

"A very large number of instances I could pick out from the Forest Committee's report, but I will not trouble you with many of them. The Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar was a strong supporter of limitations and heavy punishment when cattle went into forests; I shall read what the Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao says—

By M.R.Ry. A. S. Krishna Rao Garu, Vakil, Nellore.

Q.—Will you please explain?

A.—So far as agricultural cattle are concerned, grazing may be limited. I am for limitation of grazing. Due regard being had for the quantity and quality of pasture available and the number of cattle in the particular area, the number of cattle allowed for free grazing must also be limited.

"The Forest Committee dealt with this question and they pointed out that it was impossible for Government officials to select what cattle should be allowed to graze and what should not. They proposed to establish forest panchayats throughout the Presidency to control grazing in forests where grazing was the chief consideration. In the other forests where grazing was not the chief consideration, they proposed to retain the forests under the management of the department, but to try and get the people to limit grazing. Salem district falls under one of these. It contains a very large number of valuable sandal-wood forests and we are trying to introduce there what is called the forest village system; in return for allowing them to graze, we allow them a rebate of the greater portion of the fee if they limit the number of cattle and if they protect the forests from fire and other damage. Before we can get them to agree to that, we have to raise the fees. If the fee is only As. 4 and we say 'if you behave well throughout the year, we will give you back the As. 4' that is not a sufficient inducement. If we raise it to As. 8 there will be something to bargain with. If a man has 50 cows, and pays As. 4 for each it will be only Rs. 12-8-0. But if he pays As. 8 he will have to pay Rs. 25.

"It is a larger sum and there will be greater reason for him to co-operate with us. In the Jaradi Hills we have given people free grazing on condition that they are to protect the sandal forests. Year before last, we refunded over Rs. 7,000 to Malayalis; because they helped in saving the sandalwood areas from damage. We raise the fee in the first instance and give it all back to them if the conditions we lay down for the essential requirements of the forests are kept up. That is one thing. In regard to grazing areas where grazing is an essential consideration and we do not care very much about the forests, we are trying to introduce panchayats. That was the solution which the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao and his colleagues considered. They were of opinion that people throughout the Presidency were quite willing to come forward and take up all these areas under panchayat management. But experience shows that they rather over-estimated the oppression of the villagers by the forest subordinates. The fact is that as long as forest guards are satisfied with the regulation mamul and as long as they allow the illicit privileges which the villagers bargain for, all goes on well and there is no complaint. It is only when a forest guard spurred on by some energetic superior interferes with the privileges and enforces strict conditions, difficulties arise. Suppose the forest guard has an expensive wedding in his house. Then he wishes to raise the mamul. As a rule, they get on very well together. In several districts it has been reported to me, in two districts I have been told, by the Collectors themselves that when they went round to get the people to agree to panchayats they said 'Why should we bother, we are able to get along with forest guards.' Therefore it is quite clear that the fear of oppression is not a sufficient motive for them to take up large areas under panchayat management. The latest figures, I find, show that there are less than 600 square miles under panchayat management, that is about 3 per cent of the reserved forests in the Presidency is actually under panchayat management. The question is how to induce the people to take them up under panchayat management, which we all want. We want in the words of the authors of the reform scheme to disturb their placid contentment. We want to put pressure upon them to take them up and we do it by raising the fee. We say 'if you do not take up the forest management under panchayats, we shall raise the fees.' The way it works is this: if there are 1,000 cattle grazing in the forests and if they pay Rs. 250, we say that next year it would be Rs. 500; but if you like, take it under panchayat management and pay only Rs. 250, that is to say, the average assessment of the past which is only Rs. 250; and even from that amount, we deduct the amount required to keep up the guard and therefore the result would be that they would have to pay Rs. 200 instead of Rs. 250. Here again although we are nominally raising the fee, we are really reducing it and we are doing so to induce them to take up self-government. In some cases they do come forward and take up the management.

"I should like Honourable Members to understand what a very small thing the fee actually is. It is As. 4 a year for feeding a cow. It is really nothing at all. In his report on the cattle of this Presidency Mr. Sampson estimates that an animal one year old will be worth on an average Rs. 20; in order to obtain that Rs. 20 the owner has only to pay 4 annas as grazing fee and 4 annas to the grazier and for an expenditure of 8 annas, he gets Rs. 20. That is about 4,000 per cent. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Aziz-ud-din who knows the secrets of merchants in Madras will be able to tell you if they would consider this a satisfactory rate of profit. If you take plough-cattle, a man pays 8 annas a year for grazing a pair of plough-cattle and that represents less than one day's hire; in less than a day they can earn their living for a year. I think very few of us are in that lucky position (laughter). The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao on a previous occasion was pleased to say that my salary was fat. I am sure I could not live for a year on one day's salary and I do not know if he could live for a year on his one day's earning as a vakil.

366. RESOLUTION RE SCALE OF GRAZING FEES IN RESERVES NOT TO BE INCREASED.

(Mr. Couchman; Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar; [19TH NOVEMBER 1918. Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.]

"As to the manuring cattle, here again the fee demanded cannot be considered high; I feel it difficult to believe that the manure they produce is worth less than 4 annas. If it is worth 4 annas, they should not mind paying it. If it is not worth 4 annas there is no use sending them to the forest. The actual fee now levied represents nothing at all. Therefore the main object we have in raising the fee is to improve grazing and protect the grazing grounds; we have also the interests of the forests in our mind. If too many cattle graze, the forests will disappear in course of time. Suppose every year all the young trees are grazed down; in course of time there would be no tree to take the place of the old trees and all the trees will have died out. I would like Honourable Members to see this picture which illustrates the difference between a place where there has been grazing and a place where there has been no grazing. If we have too many cattle grazing, it can only result in the complete disappearance of the forest and that is the reason why we try to restrict the number of cattle to graze to such a number as the forest can reasonably stand. I hope that no Honourable Members here will have any idea that we are trying to screw a little more money out of the ryots. I hope they will be satisfied that our main consideration is the improvement of our grazing grounds by raising the fees and that although we seem to raise the grazing fees it is always within the power of the people to get back the whole fee if they co-operate with us in reducing the excessive number of cattle and in protecting the forests. I hope this will satisfy the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar because this will apply particularly to the Salem district. In Salem we have raised the fee to 8 annas but we hope to introduce the forest village system by this means, by which we hope to be in a position to refund it. Therefore, I think, this explanation will quite satisfy the Honourable Member that it is reasonable and in the interests of the people."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"May I know what extent of grazing ground exists in each district and the proportion it bears to the cultivable area. My own fear is that there is very little public grazing ground so far as I am aware in a district like Tanjore."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. E. COUCHMAN:—"I am only speaking of reserve forests."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Couchman explained that this raising of fees was due to the desire to keep the grazing grounds in a better condition. The first question is whether there are grazing-grounds. If there is a sufficient extent of grazing-grounds, it may mean that raising the scale of fees may bring out an expansion of the present policy of the Government. That is why I asked the question whether in districts where there are common grazing grounds, whether their extent is at present really enough to justify such a policy."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"This beautiful hall has got such peculiar acoustic properties that on the last occasion when my Honourable Friend said that he accepted the resolution, I did not understand what he said. On this occasion I did not understand his last words. He seems to have said that there were some peculiarities in Salem and that the forest village system might be specially developed there and in view of that, they have raised the fee. I was not able to make out exactly. May I know what he meant?"

The Hon'ble Mr. M. E. COUCHMAN:—"What I said was that in the Salem district there are large areas of sandal wood forests which we want to protect by the introduction of the forest village system. We want to offer the villagers special concessions which will amount in very many cases to giving them free grazing provided they agree to certain restrictions."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I presume it will apply not merely to the Malayalis but to all people."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. E. COUCHMAN:—"Yes."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"May I know whether it is different from the forest panchayats that we are starting?"

The Hon'ble Mr. M. E. COUCHMAN:—"Different."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Your Excellency, I see in this matter Couchman in saying that there should not be over-grazing and that limits should be placed upon it. The extracts he read from the evidence given before the Forest Committee that over-grazing should be prevented are quite convincing; but the only question is whether the placing of the limit should be by raising the fee. On that matter, it is not quite clear that the fixing of the limit should necessarily be by raising the fee. The Hon'ble Mr. Couchman has advanced some other reasons. He seems to be of opinion that increased expenditure is required for guarding these grazing grounds and therefore it is just as well to get some more money out of cattle-owners and added to that, he says that the change from 4 annas to 8 annas is so small and the profit derived by a person who sends his cattle to graze is so great that one should not make any complaint in the matter. That was the impression I formed when the matter was first mentioned to me. But I noticed that there are reasons for such complaint. At present there are persons who own 20 or 30 heads of cattle and keep them for manure purposes. If the owner of 50 cattle is asked to pay not Rs. 12-8-0 but Rs. 25, he does think that this extra Rs. 12-8-0 is an additional burden and especially when it comes at a time like this when he wishes to get more fodder for his cattle; and when as a matter of fact, he gets less fodder, it does seem to me that there is difficulty to the cattle-owners. As to the argument that the man has got such a large return for his fee; that represents only one side. On the other side it may be said that the Government keep these cattle for such a long period that they get very valuable manure and the manure that the Government get is much more than counterbalanced by the value of the cow, namely, Rs. 20. If the real object is to disturb the contentment of the people in the language of the Reform Scheme, it is a novel and ingenious plea that is put forward. I do not know what to say to it but it does disturb their contentment and I see that and that is why they have asked me to move this resolution in this Council. I do think that it has disturbed their contentment. If it will have the effect of forming more panchayats, I shall rejoice. I have, however, my own doubts whether raising the fee will result in forming more panchayats for the reason that, in a district like Salem, people are in some places left without forest panchayats and without any responsibility being laid on their own shoulders. What the Hon'ble Mr. Couchman says that in some places they do not want panchayats is quite true. In point of fact, the present system may be described as a system of possible oppression by widespread corruption, which makes it possible for the people to get on well and difficulties arise only when there is a difference between the forest guard and the people. In some places, at any rate, I found that the district forest officer was not able to provide grazing ground, for certain areas which were willing to form panchayats. Anyhow, I do not know whether the attempt to constitute more of these forest village panchayats would result in any benefit to all the people concerned. I have myself had experience of one set of people who came complaining to me that their mamul extent of land had been taken and they had been asked to go in under the forest reserve system and made responsible for the prevention of fire and other damage. I do not know whether the forest village system will give relief to a large number of people. I am glad it is tried and I hope the Hon'ble Mr. Couchman will try in Salem to push it further. At present, it appears to me that the difficulty which made the agriculturists of Salem meet together and put forward this resolution, still exists. At any rate, during the present year I thought it would be possible for the Government to agree that the scale of grazing fees should not be raised. Under these circumstances, I would press this resolution on the attention of the Council and the Government in the circumstances of this year."

RESOLUTIONS RE SCALE OF GRAZING FEES IN RESERVES NOT TO BE INCREASED AND A COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE NATURE, ETC., IN REGARD TO THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC. 367

19TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Mr. Siva Rao.)

The resolution was put to the vote and lost.

RESOLUTION RE A COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE NATURE, ETC., IN REGARD TO THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"The resolution which I have the honour to move reads thus:—

'IV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a committee of 'experts' may be appointed to inquire into the nature and causes of the present 'influenza' epidemic and to suggest suitable remedies therefor, and also that urgent steps may be taken to combat the disease and to afford medical and other relief to the people suffering in the various parts of the Presidency.'

"Your Excellency's Government are aware that the epidemic of influenza has been violently raging in this Presidency not merely in the important cities, but also in almost every village as well with unprecedented virulence. It has been so raging for the last six months or so. It first broke out in the month of July in Bombay and it was branded as 'spanish influenza' in the first instance, and from Bombay it seems to have been communicated to towns; it first arose only in port towns and then spread with wonderful rapidity almost throughout the length and breadth of the other India. Nothing is known about the nature of this epidemic; I may say that it has disabled many during the last six months; it has attacked and broken out in almost every village, and in the villages it has attacked, almost the major portion of the population seems to have been affected, sometimes two-thirds, sometimes 90 per cent of the population and very many cases have proved fatal. I may say that the statistics of deaths due to this disease are not available; no doubt in the municipal towns, they have been sending up the returns of deaths due to this cause to the Sanitary Commissioner but as is apparent from the answer to question No. 5 on the agenda there have been no accurate statistics of the number of deaths due to this cause. It has been stated that there is no special column for the purpose and the Government have been pleased to say 'having regard to the qualifications of the staff available for registration of vital statistics, the Government do not consider it practicable to adopt the Honourable Member's suggestion.' So it is a pity that accurate statistics are not available and it is only in case of certain municipalities containing over 25,000 population, that returns are available. I may give some idea of the havoc which this epidemic has been playing in this Presidency. In the City of Madras, the deaths were over 700 to 800 per diem and in a town like Bellary the mortality rose to 60 and 70 and in smaller villages, its work has been more dreadful on account of want of medical relief; in a small village containing about 500 have lost several eminent men including our multimillionaire Mr. P. Ramamurti Chetti who made a donation of one lakh and 50,000 in his last will and testament to the public. In Vizagapatam I do not know what the official report is, but we are losing about 20 to 30 people every day and on a single day I noticed four corpses from the time that I started from my house to my office which is not more than a mile and the only information that we can get every day is that some corpses are ready to be carried and are carried silently without any tom-tom. In Bimlipatam and in Vizagapatam and in all those suburbs, influenza is causing considerable havoc much more than plague. With regard to influenza, there seems to be practically no medicine, while as regards plague some remedial measures were taken. I must say that some of our Ayurvedic doctors are coming to our help and what they prescribe is to give the patients some liquid food and give them complete rest. They are also giving some medicine for they are distributing an influenza mixture and are prescribing some sort of diet and some sort of treatment; but after all, I must say that nobody has been able to find out the real cause and this disease has been spreading even to quarters which are entirely under Government control. I refer to the Lunatic Asylum. When I left Vizagapatam, I heard that 70 lunatics had been attacked with influenza and some died. I do not know what has happened subsequently. I know the District Medical and Sanitary Officer and others are taking every precaution, but somehow or other the disease is spreading to places, under the control of the District Medical and Sanitary Officer, where special care is taken for the patients.

19TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Suryanarayana Rao ; Major-Genl. Giffard.)

and Sanitary Officer, where special care is taken for the patients.

"The only question is what can be done. This disease seems to be a world-wide disease. It is not confined to India and I really do not know what remedies are discovered on the continent with regard to putting down influenza. The other day the Bombay Government appointed a committee to inquire into the causes and the method of putting down influenza and I do not think we can have a special committee of experts to inquire into the question. We can advantageously take stock of the reports to be submitted by the experts in Bombay and see what has been done in the continent and we can benefit by the advice given there. If we can have those opinions and that advice and if we adopt the methods that are adopted there to put down influenza, probably we will be saving a good lot of men and money and probably there will be no necessity for a committee of experts. I appeal to Your Excellency's Government that it is absolutely necessary that something should be done to put down this epidemic of influenza and to allay the fears and anxieties of the public. In every house, where we see there are some 20 or 30 inmates almost all the members of the house are laid up with influenza and at least one or two are carried away before the disease finally leaves that particular house. That is how we are suffering. There is absolutely no certainty that a man who leaves his house will return to his house in the evening. That is the fear which we are having in our district. I now hear it has spread to Ganjam and is creating similar havoc there. It seems to me that the disease spreads throughout the whole of India and I hope something will be done and I hope the Surgeon-General will be pleased to take some steps in the matter."

"Your Excellency, it is not a simple task

The Hon'ble Major-General G. G. GIFFARD :—“ Your Excellency, it is not a simple task for me to answer these speeches and to deal with this resolution. I am entirely in sympathy with the ideas that are at the bottom of this resolution and with the desire that all that could be done and that can possibly be done ought to be done for the sick people of this Presidency. Both the Honourable Mover and the Seconder of the resolution have, I think, given us more arguments in favour of the impossibility of doing anything than suggestions as to what might be done. The fact is that India in ordinary times, as is only too well known, is hopelessly insufficiently staffed by medical people and India in epidemic times in vast areas of the Presidency is absolutely helpless. When this great epidemic sweeps over the country in war time, when the medical department is very badly depleted, matters are of course worse. We have already supplied the army with 40 out of 57 of our Indian Medical Service officers, we have sent 200 sub-assistant surgeons to the war and 75 of our best young graduates that have passed out during the last five years; had they been present in the country it would have been possible to do a great deal more. I think that we should have a committee of experts to possible to do a great deal more.

“The first part of the resolution suggests that we should have a committee of experts to examine and inquire into the nature and causes of the disease. We should be delighted to do that if we had the experts, but we have not got a single expert in the Presidency who is not overworked; and very few of those are competent to undertake the task because the only person who can really satisfactorily examine into the question of this kind is a highly trained physician and a highly trained bacteriologist. We have only one or two highly trained physicians capable of undertaking the task and only one bacteriologist. We have three who may undertake the work; but they are all at Guindy and already more than overworked. There ought to be six at Guindy but we have only three. It is not for want of desire to help that nothing has been done. I do not think this Presidency can take up such an inquiry. It is being done by the other people, in other parts of the world. I am sure that their results will be accepted by the Madras Presidency as soon as they are known. It is difficult for me to explain to this Council what this involves—an inquiry into the nature and causes of the epidemic. The cause of the epidemic is known to this extent, that we know that it is due to the influenza bacillus but what it is that makes this bacillus capable of travelling over the whole world in certain years and is unable to do so in other years—we do not know any more than we know why cholera if it once starts, ever stops, or why a cholera epidemic proceeds to kill persons in a definite rotation, nearly all those attacked in the beginning, 50 per cent in the middle and a very small proportion in the end. There is very little known about the epidemiology and the pathology of the disease

“Your Excellency, this disease of influenza has been creating considerable havoc in our Northern Circars; it has deprived us of some of our eminent men. In Coacanada we have lost the Zamindar of Polavaram, who died of influenza followed by pneumonia and in our town we

370 RESOLUTION RE A COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE NATURE, ETC., IN REGARD TO THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

(Major.-Genl. Giffard; Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.) [19TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

and there is a great deal to be known about epidemic disease. I really feel, Sir, that it is impossible to expect us in the present depleted position of the services to undertake an inquiry which is being undertaken by more capable people all over the world. I am afraid Madras cannot hope, until it gets its whole staff, to do any work and by the time the staff returns, the epidemic will have ceased.

"The second part of the resolution suggests that 'urgent steps may be taken to combat the disease and to afford medical and other relief to the people suffering in the various parts of the Presidency.' Your Excellency, I may say that as far as I have been concerned and the part of the department under my control, urgent steps have been taken. Every man who can be spared has been put on duty, but Your Excellency's Government know perfectly well that the Medical Department of this Presidency is, very largely, not under the control of the Surgeon-General. It is split up into 24 different departments with 24 different administrators and if these administrators of the medical department of the Presidency have not done all they can to take urgent steps to afford medical relief to the people, it is not my fault. Those who have applied to me for help have received it as quickly as possible. I cannot supply subordinates when they do not exist and there is no use transferring subordinates from one part to the other when the epidemic has spread all over the Presidency. District Board Presidents have, at their disposal, a certain number of assistant and sub-assistant surgeons and they can do anything they like without referring to Government or to the heads of the department. They have a certain number of dispensaries where they could stock medicine and if they want more medicine urgently, an urgent indent to Madras will supply them; if they want more money, if they have to incur more expenditure, they can ask Government for extra money. As far as any indents coming to Madras are concerned, I have pushed them through at once. It is only yesterday that I had an urgent indent from Ganjam and my Personal Assistant is at this moment at the Medical Stores to see that the medicines go away by to-night's mail. It is not fair to say that urgent steps should be taken when we have done everything that we can with the resources under our control. If, as the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao says, nothing has been done by local boards, and if they have made no attempt to do anything, then that is not my fault; that is the fault of the local boards. That is a fault, if it is a fault, of allowing local self-government to manage medical affairs all over the Presidency. As far as help is concerned, I am prepared to help in any way. I have done so from the first. The Madras Municipality came to me and at once we closed the Medical Schools and closed the Medical College and we asked all the students to go out to help the Health Officer and allowed everybody who can to go to the people whom the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao mentioned and help them wherever possible. We cannot order district board presidents or chairmen of municipalities to force their vaccinators or plague inspectors or sanitary inspectors to go out and treat the people; but if they wish to do so, they will get every encouragement from the Government, from the Surgeon-General and from the Sanitary Commissioner. I wish it were possible to do more as far as treatment is concerned. We have been greatly handicapped by the fact in the suburban parts of the Presidency, that the habits of the people are such that they spread the disease with extraordinary rapidity. When an ordinary villager is ill with fever especially in a cold place—that is why the epidemic has been more fatal in the hills than in the plains—he will go home and cover himself with a blanket and breathe his own breath and poison himself till he produces pneumonia. It is also the custom in most Indian villages to assemble a sick person's friends in the village and not only that, but he sends for them wherever they may be. That is absolutely the best way of spreading the disease. When I was in Cuddalore I was told that it is universally believed by the common people that it was sinful and irreligious to take medicine when you have this disease, that some goddess will be displeased by the taking of medicine. You cannot blame us if the people in their unfortunate ignorance infect themselves to this extent. If either the Honourable Mover or the Honourable Seconder of the resolution propose something definite or something new, I should jump at it; but it is hardly fair to come here and say that nothing has been done by Government or by the Medical department. We have, I submit, done the best that we can with our depleted staff and in the face of a population which did not want to be treated in most cases. Supposing we are able to get vaccine to vaccinate for this disease. It is very doubtful what the effect of it will be. It has only been tried in very few cases. Supposing it is proved to be a success and supposing it is proved to be cheap and easy to obtain, I feel certain that we should have some difficulty in applying this remedy to the people as we had in making them believe in inoculation for plague or in vaccination. I am afraid the epidemic will have passed away before this kind of treatment can be popularized. I think as I said before though I am in complete sympathy with those who spoke on this resolution, I do not think that any advantage would be gained by pressing this resolution."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBI MARAKKAYAR:—"Your Excellency, I have heard the answer given by the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General and I quite agree with him in certain points. As he promised it will do a great deal of help to put a stop to the epidemic, by opening several small dispensaries in big centres or towns, in district municipalities and to meet the extra expense, may I request Your Excellency's Government to issue a Government Order intimating the intention of the Government to supply extra medicines required for such dispensaries opened in the districts by the municipalities or the taluk boards or the district boards and also to meet the extra expense by employing extra men, sub-assistant surgeons over and above what they have at present? If this is done, I think it will do something to put a stop to this ruinous disease."

RESOLUTION RE A COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE NATURE, ETC., IN REGARD TO THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

19TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao consists of two parts which may be dealt with separately. The first part suggests that this Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a committee of experts may be appointed to inquire into the nature and causes of the present influenza epidemic and to suggest suitable remedies therefor. The second part suggests 'that urgent steps may be taken to combat the disease and to afford medical and other relief to the people suffering in the various parts of the Presidency'."

"So far as the first portion of this resolution is concerned, the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General has pointed out the difficulty of the problem and he suggested that, with the staff which is now depleted of its full strength, there are no experts available for the purpose. So far as that is concerned, I do not think that the Government have, at any time, grudged giving such advice in the matter of combating the disease as they have at their disposal. If it is possible to obtain the advice of experts and if it is possible to suggest definite means of combating the disease I have no doubt that the earliest opportunity will be taken by the Government to spread that knowledge in the rural areas."

"So far as the second part of the resolution is concerned, I am one of those who have all along been advancing the cause of Local Boards being entrusted with the duty of administering medical aid. I would not for one moment suggest a course which will take away that responsibility from the local bodies. I am at one with the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General in thinking that, so long as local bodies are in charge of medical institutions, whether they be district boards or municipalities, they should take the initiative in that respect, do all that lies in their power to combat the disease, get whatever staff is available, improve the staff to the utmost of their capacity and satisfactorily deal with this problem. I think it would have been more satisfactory if the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General had stated—he has indicated it, but I think the position can be made clearer—that in view of the peculiar nature of the disease and in view of the special expenditure to which local bodies must have been put in meeting this epidemic, Government would be prepared to render additional financial assistance. That is one important question which I wish to place before the Government at this stage. These local bodies may be encouraged to do all that lies in their power to the utmost of their capacity without stinting any expenditure, but meeting it boldly, with the assurance that to meet a deficit Government would be prepared to render assistance. I believe if that at least were definitely assured, much can be done in the way of combating this disease. I know that in several places, remedial steps were taken at considerable expenditure. For instance, so far as the Nellore municipality is concerned, it is a poor municipality; and it had to undertake considerable expense in combating this disease. I hope God will forbid any relapse of the disease but within a short time, we saw it subside. We had to spend medicines as freely as possible, and we distributed them throughout the town with the help of several honorary workers. The result was that several hospitals had been depleted of their medicines and indents had to be sent up to renew their stock. I take advantage of this opportunity to impress upon the Government that they should not only supply all available men, not only encourage certified private medical practitioners to take up such work but be prepared to allot funds as liberally as possible, to enable local bodies to take up this work and to discharge their duty satisfactorily as they are sure to do."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, I agree with the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General in thinking that no useful purpose will be served by the appointment of a committee of experts in regard to influenza. As he has pointed out, the disease has spread throughout the world and many persons are examining and taking steps to investigate the disease and formulate remedies that may be necessary in this matter. But My Lord, the point which arises for immediate practical solution is how local bodies and municipalities in the mufassal might discharge their responsibility in regard to medical relief in the mufassal. The Hon'ble the Surgeon-General said that it was not his fault if local bodies did not take the necessary steps in the matter. But I rather think that they have taken some steps. I, as chairman of a municipality, received a telegram from the Government to report to them what steps have been taken in the municipality for which I am responsible in regard to the fighting against this disease and I take it that the telegram went round all over the Presidency and it is quite clear that the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew would probably enlighten the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General that municipalities and district boards have taken such steps as are necessary for fighting against this disease. Therefore, there was no default so far as local bodies are concerned, to do what they can to meet the situation. But we quite recognize that the great difficulty in regard to the present situation is in regard to the shortage of medical men in this Presidency. There are none available in the Presidency towns and those who are available in Presidency towns and district areas are not enough to meet the current needs of the municipalities and the local boards."

"Just before this meeting was announced, I sent a resolution in a much more definite form than the one of which notice has been given. I definitely suggested to the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew that a sum of one lakh of rupees should be immediately distributed to the local boards and municipalities as subsidies for taking suitable measures against influenza. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew wrote to me acknowledging my letter and he explained to me that nothing particular could be done; but I do not know whether he is prepared to help the municipalities and local boards in regard to this additional expenditure. So far as I can see, the thing that can be immediately done is to afford such relief as we can by distributing more

372 RESOLUTION RE A COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE NATURE, ETC., IN REGARD TO THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Siva Rao.) [19TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

medicines, distributing to the poorer classes some kind of nourishment during the time that they are in bed and strengthening the establishments such as compounders and engaging such private medical practitioners as are available in towns and so on. All this means more money and for this purpose I suggest for the consideration of the Government that some more funds should be allotted and distributed immediately. That is the only practicable solution at present and this additional money would be very helpful in relieving the situation. On the general question as to what steps might be taken from a professional point of view, we must accept the verdict of the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General as to what is known of the disease at present that nothing more can be done, that what is known is already known and nothing more can be done for the purpose of elucidating the causes of the disease, or the spread of the disease. Whatever may be done from a professional point of view, I would suggest that some funds should be allotted for the objects that I have already mentioned including the purchase of medicine, the distribution of medicine and the distribution of nourishment, and the strengthening of the staff of compounders. It is only in this way that some help can be done. We thoroughly recognize that the shortage of medical men is only for a short time and we do not blame the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General or the Medical department for not doing more. I trust that what I have suggested—that that at least—should be done and I am sure it would be very thankfully received by the local bodies. The position is much more acute in the local board areas than in municipalities. There is some kind of medical relief in towns, but in the villages the situation is very deplorable and the district boards should have two or three itinerating men to distribute the medicines and instruct the patients as to what should be done. There is no doubt that there has been considerable mortality though in the last few days the epidemic has abated a little. I do think it has subsided in my part of the district and I do think it may cease very soon."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I quite appreciate the difficulties mentioned by the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General. He has said that there are 24 departments working and."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"District boards."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"He has said that there are 24 district boards working and that he has little or no control. I understood hitherto that the ultimate control of the Medical department is vested in the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General and it is the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General that helps us with the staff of assistant surgeons and sub-assistant surgeons and it is the Government Medical Stores that supplies medicines and I thought the ultimate control lay with him. However I leave it there, and I do not want to pursue the matter."

"He said that if the local bodies did not do anything it is none of our fault. I was careful enough to say that in the municipal towns something had been done. The Government have made inquiries by telegrams as to the steps that were being taken to combat the evil in the municipalities, but in the case of district boards and local boards, I wish to know whether the Government have elicited any such replies as to what they have been doing in the rural parts. I had a telegram and I described what all had been done, but in the case of rural areas, where men are dying in numbers, local boards and district boards have not moved. It is their fault, the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General says, but it is none of their fault, because they have not got the means of carrying it out. They have not got medical men. The dearth of medical men is due to the war, but is it impossible to raise some sort of medical men, some pensioners, or some sanitary inspectors with a rudimentary knowledge of the state of the disease? The Hon'ble the Surgeon-General said that the people were so ignorant of the nature and conditions of the disease that they refused to submit to treatment. I know that as a matter of fact, a man by his very breath or a single act of cough ejects millions and millions of germs of this type and as some medical practitioner has stated he felt inclined to blow the brains of a man who did such a thing, the social pest who spread this. Some of the elementary facts regarding the disease must be brought home to the people in general and some rudimentary knowledge of remedial measures should also be explained to them. I do not think this requires pakka medical men, with qualifications of assistant and sub-assistant surgeons. Sanitary inspectors and plague inspectors, if they are only trained for a week or so as to what they should do, will be quite enough for the purpose. The Hon'ble the Surgeon-General has been finding fault with me that I have not come out with any constructive proposals. I do not know what he meant. My proposals are, first, that local bodies should be helped by Government; this disease is so widespread in its character that the poor resources of local boards should not be saddled with this expenditure; they must be helped to enlist the services of a number of sanitary inspectors and plague inspectors who may be instructed as to what they should do; in the case of rural areas, means should be devised to distribute kanji and proper instructions should be given to enlighten the patients as to the nature of the disease and medicines should be dispensed to them. This is the time when we look back to the indigenous systems of medicine, but it is no use doing it as the Government have taken a very decisive attitude against them. If they had been fostered, they would have been a great relief. If Government had taken Ayurvedic men, a good deal could have been done. In reply to a question of mine put at the last meeting, it was stated that the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General was asked to send up a report in connexion with this disease and it was also stated that a special officer was deputed by him to go to Bombay to watch what has been done. I am yet to hear whether he has gone and what he has reported or whether he has returned with."

RESOLUTION RE A COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE NATURE, ETC., 373
IN REGARD TO THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

19TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (The President; Maj.-Genl. Giffard;
Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Sir Alexander Cardew,
Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.)

any lessons from Bombay. I have never suggested that the Government have not done much or that the local bodies have not done anything but I said that much more can be done in the matter. As regards experts, it is just possible to get experts from outside; if that is not possible, can we not make a request as Bombay has done to the Government of India to arrange for experts and to have a research made and to promise to bear a fair share of the expenditure? With these words, I press this resolution for the acceptance of the Council."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Does the Honourable Gentleman wish to divide the Council?"

The Hon'ble Major-General G. G. GIFFARD:—"Your Excellency . . ."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Before the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General replies, may I ask the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew to consider my request for money?"

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"I will mention it."

The Hon'ble Major-General G. G. GIFFARD:—"After hearing the discussion we come back to the same point where we began. Suggestions that have been made are that private practitioners should be employed, that sanitary inspectors and plague inspectors should be employed, that organized relief should be taken to the villages by medical or semi-medical people and lastly that Ayurvedic practitioners should be asked to help. I have not had specific reports from other parts of the Presidency but it is not possible to create medical practitioners, either Government ones or private ones. Every Government one has been working at full blast and every private one has been employed in private work and if you had advertised for a private one, you could have got none unless you pay fabulous sums. There are very few private practitioners in this Presidency unfortunately, and if you scan the list of our private practitioners you will find hardly any of them live in towns of less than 6,000 inhabitants. Most of them live in towns of over 20,000 and most of them crowd into great towns. This question is no new one to me. I was not blaming any one but I was only quoting the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao's own words when he said that local bodies were not doing anything. I was not making that statement, but it was the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao who made that statement. I understand that he now says that he did not intend that it should be taken in that way. If local bodies had asked me for specific advice, I should have been delighted to give it. What we did was to depute Major Elwes to go to Bombay to ascertain whether it was really influenza or a more formidable and unknown disease. When he was on his way in the train to Bombay, Doctor Gibson and Colonel Donovan were able simultaneously to ascertain from a number of patients that it was plain influenza. But as I have already stated, why this influenza happened to be so virulent and so fatal is a matter not yet settled and may not be settled for many years to come. Major Elwes arrived in Bombay and he consulted the doctors there and he came back in a couple of days. The bacteriologists there were quite satisfied that it was pure influenza and so there was no need for him to stay any longer."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Is it plain influenza or plague influenza?"

The Hon'ble Major-General G. G. GIFFARD:—"It is plain influenza. I mean to say, it was not complicated by any other micro-organism. It was thought at first that it might be a world-wide septicemia, a disease which is produced in cases of bad wounds—blood-poisoning."

"At the back of people's minds, there was an idea that it might have been due to the terrific world-struggle, but, as a matter of fact, in every case we have been able to examine so far critically and carefully only influenza has been found. It takes a very considerable time to be quite sure that you are dealing with the influenza bacillus. In every case we found it was plain, unadulterated, uncomplicated influenza. It has been suggested to me since this debate began that I might have sent out to every one a résumé of the position and actual advice as to treatment. I admit that I might have done it. I thought that so much had been written about it in all the public papers and the District Medical and Sanitary Officers and other medical officers knew very much or as much as I knew about it. When Major Elwes came from Bombay, we actually asked the Publicity Board to send out, to every one in the Presidency who can read, a description of what not to do and how to avoid getting it. I believe it went out in millions of copies and I am quite willing and I propose now at once to do what has been suggested to me and get my officers to help me to write a résumé and send it to the public press and to the Publicity Board. The question whether money can be obtained from Government is a matter for the Finance Minister to answer. If further suggestions are wanted from me as to what district board president or taluk board president or municipal chairman might do, even now, to combat the disease, I shall be delighted to give my advice to any one who asks it. But nobody has yet asked for it officially and it is not the custom for the Surgeon-General to send out gratuitous advice on these matters to presidents of district boards. If you wish as much publicity as can be obtained by speaking in this House, I may say that there is no specific treatment. There is no actual drug which will cure the disease. The patient can be made more comfortable and he may be nursed through, while in pneumonia in the same way as he can be nursed through in pneumonia from any other cause. If people would avoid infection, the mortality would decrease enormously and the way to avoid infection is to keep away from sick people and to put patients in the verandah or under a tree in the open air and to avoid the habit of crowding in a sick

374 RESOLUTION RE A COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE NATURE, ETC.,
IN REGARD TO THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

(Maj.-Genl. Giffard; Sir Alexander Cardew;
Mr. Siva Rao; the President; Mr. Krishna Rao;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Venkatapati Raju;
Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.) [19TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

room and prevent the patients covering themselves up with blankets and shawls. I do not think I need pursue the subject any further. If any local body desires to have advice, I shall be only too glad to give it to them. If advice means spending money, there are only two ways; one is to tax themselves and the other is to ask Government.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"Your Excellency, I did not hear the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao in his original remarks say that local bodies took no action. I suppose he did say that."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I said local boards."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"My impression is that all the local bodies in the country have done as much as lay in their power. Returns were obtained from municipal councils and the district boards and they have replied that they used all the materials they had to the best of their ability. I do not believe myself that there is any reason to suppose that they have not done their best. The truth is as the Diwan of Mysore said in a speech which I saw this morning this epidemic has caught us napping; we have not got sufficient staff of medical men in the country as the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General pointed out: in ordinary times we have not got enough number of medical officers and when we have parted with hundreds of them for war, we are much worse than before. I am afraid there is no immediate remedy to be applied. In many districts, the revenue staff which might be used for dissemination of information were down with influenza. In Bellary only one or two clerks were working in many taluk offices and it is the same with other establishments. I do not for a moment conceal from myself or from the Council the seriousness of the devastation which the epidemic has caused. I wish that we had more power to deal with it. It has spread with remarkable rapidity and it went through the Presidency and it reached its maximum virulence in quite a few days, so that it was peculiarly difficult to combat it. As to the practical request made to me by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao as regards funds, the question is a local one. There is no use distributing funds in those areas where the epidemic is disappearing, but if there are any local bodies which are short of money for useful purposes, and if they will apply for money, we will consider their applications in as sympathetic a manner as possible. The Hon'ble the Surgeon-General will, by sending out the circular which he has promised, put them in the way of knowing the lines on which they should take action. I regret we cannot do more under present conditions. I can only assure the Council that it is beyond the power of any Government to do more than what is being done."

The resolution was then put and lost.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We will ascertain the business on hand. It will be to the convenience of the Council because we have a short day on Thursday owing to the University Convocation. If any Honourable Gentleman will give information about any resolution on the agenda, it will be of interest to the other members of the Council. We shall take Resolutions V, VI and VII."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I do not propose to move Resolution V or Resolution VIII or Resolution IX."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Then we shall take X, XI and XII."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"XI goes along with VII."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"XIII we have already discussed and XIV is covered by VII, XV will be moved, XVI."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I have been asked to move XVI."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"XVII and XVIII will be moved."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I will not move XXIII, but I will move the others."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"XXI is covered by the previous resolution; VII, XXIV, XXV, XXVI, XXVII and XXVIII will be moved."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I shall not move XXIX."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"XXX, XXXI."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Annamalai Chettiyar has written to me to move XXX and XXXI if I think necessary. I shall submit them to-morrow."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"XXXII is covered by a previous resolution; XXXIII, XXXIV and XXXV will be moved."

That is the state of the whole agenda.

The Council then rose for the day.

H. G. STOKES,
Acting Secretary to Govt., L. & M. (Legislative) Dept.

Proceedings of an Adjourned Meeting of the Council of the Governor of Fort
St. George assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.

The Council re-assembled at the Council Chamber, Fort St. George, at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, the 20th day of November 1918.

P R E S E N T :

His Excellency the Right Hon'ble JOHN, Baron PENTLAND of Lyth, P.C., G.C.S.I.,
Governor of Madras—Presiding.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW, K.C.S.I.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR Avargal, C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON, C.S.I.

The Hon'ble MUHAMMAD AZIZ-UD-DIN HUSAIN SAHIB Bahadur, Khan Bahadur, C.I.E.,
I.S.O.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. BUCKLEY, C.S.I.

The Hon'ble Mr. M. E. COUCHMAN.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. DUNCAN.

The Hon'ble Major-General G. G. GIFFARD, C.S.I., I.M.S.

The Hon'ble Mr. R. A. GRAHAM.

The Hon'ble Mr. W. J. J. HOWLEY.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. R. KNAPP.

The Hon'ble Mr. S. B. MURRAY.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur R. RAMACHANDRA RAO Avargal.

The Hon'ble Mr. S. SRINIVASA AYYANGAR (Advocate-General).

The Hon'ble Mr. C. G. TODHUNTER.

The Hon'ble Mr. M. YOUNG.

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RANGA ACHARIYAR.

The Hon'ble the Rev. G. PITTENDRIGH.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURENARAYANA RAO PANTULU.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO PANTULU Garu.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO PANTULU.

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur A. SUBBARAYALU REDDIYAR Avargal.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR Avargal.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. KUMARAN RAMAN KAVALAPPARA MUPPIL NAYAR.

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur.

The Hon'ble Khar Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBHI MARAKKAYAR SAHIB Bahadur.

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER, Kt.

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER.

The Hon'ble Sir FAIRLESS BARBER, Kt.

The Hon'ble Sir GHULAM MUHAMMAD ALI SAHIB Bahadur, Khan Bahadur, G.C.I.E.,
Amir-i-Arcot or Prince of Arcot.

The Hon'ble the Most Rev. JOHN ARLEN, D.D.

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RICHMOND.

The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING, K.C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur K. B. SURENARAYANAMURTI NAYUDU Garu.

The Hon'ble Raja, RAJA SRI RAVU VENKATA KUMARA KRISHNA RANGA RAO
Bahadur of Bobbili.

(The President; the Prince of Arcot; [20TH NOVEMBER 1918.
the Raja of Bobbili.)

The Council re-assembled on Wednesday at 11 a.m.

TERMINATION OF THE WAR.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT:—"It will probably be the desire of the Council to proceed with the formal resolution of which notice was given yesterday. You will allow me to say that I have received from non-official members some slight suggestion as to the wording of the resolution. It does not in any way affect the sense of the resolution but I would just read that. There are very slight verbal changes and they do not really affect the substance of the resolution. I am very glad to give effect to them as it is the desire of non-official members. I will now read the wording as it is proposed: 'This Council desires to place on record the deep satisfaction and joy with which it has received the news of the Armistice between the Allied forces and Germany and its grateful admiration of the courage, endurance and heroic sacrifices of His Majesty's forces whose magnificent achievements have so powerfully contributed to the complete overthrow of his enemies and the final triumph of the Allied cause. This Council would respectfully offer to His Imperial Majesty its loyal and heart-felt congratulations on the victorious issue of this great struggle throughout which His Majesty's personal example and devotion to duty have been an inspiration to the subjects of the United Empire.' And here is the slight addition—'This Council would further convey to His Majesty an expression of its gratitude for India having been permitted to take her humble part in carrying the war to a victorious and righteous end and for the inclusion of an Indian representative in the approaching Peace Conference, as also of its renewed assurance of its profound and unflinching devotion to His Throne and Person.'"

The Hon'ble the PRINCE OF ARCOT:—"My Lord, it is my most pleasing task to move a resolution which is sure to evoke the hearty commendation of the whole Council. I consider it a privilege to be associated with it. The resolution reads thus—

'That this Council desires to place on record the deep satisfaction and joy with which it has received the news of the Armistice between the Allied forces and Germany and its grateful admiration of the courage, endurance and heroic sacrifices of His Majesty's forces, whose magnificent achievements have so powerfully contributed to the complete overthrow of his enemies and the final triumph of the Allied cause. This Council would respectfully offer to His Imperial Majesty its loyal and heart-felt congratulations on the victorious issue of this great struggle, throughout which His Majesty's personal example and devotion to duty have been an inspiration to the subjects of the United Empire. This Council would further convey to His Majesty an expression of its gratitude that India has been permitted to do her share in carrying the war to a victorious and righteous end and that representatives of India are to take part in the approaching Peace Conference; and would assure the King-Emperor of its profound and unflinching devotion to His Throne and Person.'

"It will be seen that the resolution is very modestly worded. The triumph of the Allies in general, and the glorious achievements of the British Arms in particular, to which the victory has been chiefly due, call for a resolution in more glowing terms, but as we all know the British are a generous and modest race and unlike other nations are averse to magnifying or parading their deeds before the world. There can be no doubt that the cessation of hostilities has given the greatest satisfaction to the whole world which had been either directly or indirectly drawn into the struggle by the impudence and aggression of Prussian militarism. Every nation, every community, in fact, every individual had been deeply deploring the waste of human life in the various theatres of the war. It is highly satisfactory that this world-war has been brought to a close in a manner most acceptable to the Allies and their people and that the cause of civilization, liberty and righteousness, for which they were fighting, has triumphed at last. The Allies cannot be too thankful to Great Britain for her immense sacrifices in their behalf and for her persistent devotion to their cause, but for which the termination of the war might not have been so sudden and successful. It is a matter of extreme gratification that India took a magnificent part in this struggle and that its valiant children, including the loyal Mussalman community, have acquitted themselves most gloriously at all fronts. We all pray that under the wise, benign and sympathetic guidance of His Imperial Majesty the King-Emperor, the British Empire will emerge from the war doubly strong and give the world a lasting and prosperous peace. With these few words I seek Your Excellency's permission to move the resolution formally."

The Hon'ble the RAJA OF BOBBILI:—"Your Excellency, it is with greatest pleasure I second this resolution. None who has realized what was at stake in this great struggle could help rejoicing at its successful termination. The victory of Great Britain and her Allies is the victory of civilization over militarism and barbarism. The unprecedented sacrifices made by the Empire in response to the call of duty, have averted a catastrophe which threatened to engulf the cause of freedom and the liberty of the world. Ever since the declaration of the war, and in spite of all the ups and downs that attended its course, no sane person in this country doubted its ultimate result. It is taught in our sacred books that wherever there is Justice, there is Victory. This great principle was vindicated five thousand years ago on the battlefield of Kurukshetra. It is over and over again vindicated in our day on the battlefields of Europe and Asia. All honour to those who have fallen in the sacred cause of Justice and Righteousness. May their glorious example be a source of inspiration to us all and to those who come after us.

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (The Raja of Bobbili; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

"To Indians, the proudest feature of this war is that Indian troops have taken a most conspicuous part, and emerged themselves with glory wherever they fought. There is no stronger tie than that of comradeship in arms, when men stand shoulder to shoulder and die clasping their hands in such an Imperial and common cause. I earnestly hope that the bond of brotherhood thus forged, in the furnace of Empire's trials, may endure for ever and usher in a new era of Hope and Progress for India."

"The war has further proved that Indian loyalty is not a mere sentiment, but an active and abiding force. When the call went forth that the sons of the Empire should be up and doing, the Indian Princes and peoples have thrown in their lot in favour of the Empire and placed all their wealth and resources at her disposal in her greatest struggle thereby showing their deep and heart-felt loyalty and devotion to the Throne. It is a matter for pride that His Majesty the King-Emperor has been pleased to refer in the following glowing words to India's humble services to the common cause in His gracious message to His Excellency the Viceroy on the 12th instant:—

'She has fulfilled my faith in her single-minded devotion to my person and Empire and she has vindicated my confidence in her loyalty.'

'Long live the King-Emperor. May the British rule over this ancient land continue for ever and ever, full of the blessings of peace and prosperity.'

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, in rising to associate myself with some of my Honourable Friends, in this Council, I may say it is with feelings of profound thankfulness that we have received the news of the cessation of hostilities between the Allies and Germany and the powers who are associated with her in this great and titanic struggle. My Lord, my Honourable Friend the Raja of Bobbili has referred to the abiding sentiments of Indian loyalty to the Throne of His Imperial Majesty. Ever since His Majesty's visit to India in 1911, the personal devotion of all classes of His Majesty's subjects, Princes and peasants, rich and low, high and poor is well-known and I believe that the approaching visit of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales will give another occasion to us for the expression of those sentiments of personal devotion to the Throne of His Imperial Majesty.

"My Lord, this titanic struggle which has just come to an end, has shaken the foundations of many Empires and in achieving the victories which have just been attained, many brave men have fallen in this cause and have shown unflinching courage and devotion. To all those who have fought for us, my Lord, we are deeply grateful and on an occasion like this, we cannot but remember that there are many and many to whom provision has to be made and I trust that all classes of His Majesty's subjects would join in making due provision for those by whose efforts and lives this great victory has been achieved. The great nations of the world who are associated with each other in breaking up this armed Imperialism of Germany have completely succeeded and the principles of liberty and freedom have been established and we trust that these principles of freedom and liberty will bring untold good to many parts of the world, to many countries, to many communities and to many peoples. The Prime Minister has stated that as a result these victories will be utilized as an impetus to a great movement of reform political, economic and social, and we, in India, are looking forward with great eagerness to the efforts of His Imperial Majesty and his Ministers in England in the promotion of those great schemes of reconstruction in which we in India hope to join.

"My Lord, the war has brought together in bonds of union all communities in India, European and Indian, Muhammadan and Hindu and Parsi and all classes of people; and not only this, it has brought together all people in all parts of the Empire and I trust that this bond of union and sympathy would promote mutual regard and esteem for India in the Colonies and elsewhere.

"My Lord, I have only to say that we are very grateful to the Premier, who recently addressed a message to the people in the letter addressed to His Excellency the Viceroy to which I may perhaps draw attention. He stated:

'I take this opportunity at the close of our deliberations in the War Conference of this year to convey through you to the Princes and people of India the cordial appreciation of Great Britain and the Overseas Dominions of India's contribution to the war and of her prompt response to the appeal I made last April when the situation on the Western Front was one of grave menace and serious complications were threatened in Asia. The weight of that period of anxiety is now happily lifted and we are within a measurable distance of the achievement of those ideals and principles in vindication of which Britain drew her sword against the force of calumny and organized militarism. In this titanic struggle India has borne a great and noble part and her soldiers with those of Britain and the Dominions have freely shed their blood in the battlefield of three continents. But though the tension is relieved, we must bear in mind that we have to fight a strong, determined and resourceful enemy with years of preparation behind him and the hour to put off the armour is not yet come. We must make greater efforts and heavier sacrifices to hasten that hour and I have every hope that these efforts and sacrifices India will readily and cheerfully make. India has held a fitting place in our councils of war to which she has added her weight through her accredited representatives and when the time comes she will have no less worthy a place in our deliberations of peace and reconstruction. She may rest assured that the declaration of August 20th will be carried into practical effect. The scheme of reform prepared by the Secretary of State and yourself is under consideration.

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; [20TH NOVEMBER 1918.
Sir Fairless Barber ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.]

"My Lord, no greater and more handsome acknowledgment could have been made of the efforts made by India in the present struggle. We are deeply grateful to the Premier for this acknowledgment and we trust that in the coming schemes of Imperial reconstruction, India will have her share. It is with a feeling of profound thankfulness that the whole country has received the news of the cessation of hostilities and we trust that the normal course of events will be resumed very soon."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"To Your Excellency, the representative of His Imperial Majesty in this Presidency, we offer our warmest congratulations on the glorious victory that it has pleased Almighty God to bestow to the arms of the British Empire, the Allies and the Americans. Mussalmans heartily rejoice with all the subjects of His Majesty the King-Emperor over the cessation of hostilities, which has practically terminated the great world-wide war. Those noble aims for which the British Empire fought and for the attainment of which the United States of America joined their forces with us have triumphed and the world will be all the more free, and its atmosphere all the more sweet, for the great and unprecedented sacrifices that have been made by almost half of humanity. We, Indians, are proud that our share in bringing about this triumphant issue was by no means small and it has profoundly touched our hearts that our beloved Sovereign has appreciated it in generous terms, worthy of him and the great people of his race. Your Excellency is aware that the sympathies of the Mussalmans of India extend beyond the confines of this country. As Asiatics we hailed with delight the symptoms of awakening in China and Persia. We went into raptures when Japan came to be recognised as one of the great Powers of the world. Equally deeply our sympathies were stirred when the foundations of democracy were laid in Turkey. In this war our hearts were lacerated to find that destiny had driven the Turks to be reckoned among the enemies of our beloved King. There appeared to be a conflict between our allegiance to the King and that to our Khalifa. Your Excellency will bear witness to the fact that we have not allowed the latter to cloud our vision and unbalance our mind, and the Mussalmans were not only firm and steadfast in their loyalty but they did not also remain behind any of their fellow subjects throughout the Empire in advancing the cause of the Allies, which was the cause of the whole humanity. I will fail in my duty if I do not mention that the British Government out of regard for the feelings of the Mussalman subjects of His Majesty, have throughout the period of the war exercised an extraordinary amount of consideration, discretion and tact in dealing with the Government of the countries which we Mussalmans hold as sacred. They form vital parts of the Turkish Empire. We, as Asiatics and as Mussalmans, cannot naturally look forward with equanimity to any terms of peace that might dismember the largest Asiatic and the largest Muslim power in the world. The idea of imposing a European Protectorate on any Asiatic country is also very galling to us. India does not want to extend her fortunes beyond her coasts, and her Government surely does not claim to rule over the countries which her army has been mainly instrumental in subjugating for the time being. Placing as we do entire confidence in the integrity, statesmanship and political sagacity of the representatives of the British Empire and of the Allies and America, our rejoicings on this occasion are untinged with any anxiety for the fate of the countries in which we Muslims of India are interested."

The Hon'ble Sir Fairless Barber :—"Your Excellency, the happy drafting of the resolution proposed by the Hon'ble the Prince of Arcot makes it unnecessary that many words should be said in support. Speaking on behalf of the non-official Europeans of Southern India, I support the resolution with all my heart. The anxiety for the last four years has been intense, but never for one moment did we falter in our belief that the final end will be a victory. Sacrifices have been heavy and there are few who have not cause to mourn. Sorrows have touched every family. Your Excellency, I think it is very fitting that an assembly like ours should recognise that it has so saved the Empire and that we should tender humble thanks and gratitude to those who have fought for us."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar :—"Your Excellency, I heartily support this resolution. On an occasion like this, it would not do merely to give a silent vote. From the first, Indians, educated Indians, whatever their shade of politics, threw their heart and soul into the cause and made up their minds to support the cause of the Allies and of our King-Emperor. The reasons which induced us from the very first to throw ourselves heart and soul into this cause, were first and foremost, our loyalty to the King-Emperor. The King-Emperor is the personal Sovereign of every one who dwells within the boundaries of the whole Empire. As General Smuts reminding the British audience told them 'he is not merely your King, he is the King of all of us.' That was the feeling with which we all took that humble part, whatever it was, in supporting this cause. Speaking to the Indian troops in France in 1914, His Majesty conveyed this gracious message :—"I look to all my Indian soldiers to uphold the Isat of the British Raj against an aggressive and relentless enemy. I know with what readiness my brave, loyal Indian soldiers are prepared to fulfil this sacred trust, shoulder to shoulder with their comrades from all parts of the Empire. I bid you go forward and add fresh lustre to the glorious achievements and noble traditions of courage and chivalry of my Indian army, whose honour and fame is in your hands."

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. Richmond.)

"Again, in the gracious message which He was pleased to send to India on September 14th, 1914, which His Excellency Lord Hardinge read in the Imperial Legislative Council, His Imperial Majesty said :—"I rejoice that every part of the Empire is with me in this decision. Paramount regard for treaty, faith and pledged word of rulers and peoples is the common heritage of England and India. Amongst the many incidents that have marked the unanimous uprising of the populations of my Empire in defence of its unity and integrity, nothing has moved me more than the passionate devotion to my Throne expressed both by my Indian and English subjects and by the Feudatory Princes and Ruling Chiefs of India, and their prodigious offers of their lives and their resources in the cause of the realm. Their one-voiced demand to be foremost in conflict has touched my heart and has inspired to the highest issues the love and devotion which, as I well know, have ever linked my Indian subjects and myself. I recall to mind India's gracious message to the British nation of good-will and fellowship which greeted my return in February 1912, after the solemn ceremony of my Coronation Darbar in Delhi ; and I find in this hour of trial a full harvest and a notable fulfilment of the assurance given by you that the destinies of Great Britain and India are indissolubly linked."

"Again, in the message which His Majesty was pleased to send on the 27th April 1918, this year, His Majesty was pleased to say :—"I learn with deep satisfaction that in response to the invitation of my Viceroy, the Ruling Princes and Chiefs, representatives of the Provincial Governments, and leaders of all ranks and sections of the community, European and Indian, are meeting in Conference at Delhi to reaffirm the abiding loyalty of the Indian people and their resolute will to prosecute to their utmost ability and to the full limit of their resources, in association with other members of the Empire, the war which our enemies have wantonly provoked and which they are ruthlessly waging against the freedom of the world. Great as has been India's contribution to the cause of the Allies, it is by no means the full measure of her resources and her strength. I rejoice to know that their development and the fuller utilization of her man-power will be the first care of the Conference."

"To a sovereign who can speak with that feeling and with that fullness of heart, what else can it be but devoted attachment to the people over whom he rules that prompted him ? There are other reasons also which induced us to take that interest though they are not so lofty, still of great weight. First and foremost is the feeling that India forms a part of the British Empire. It is no ordinary Empire. It does not seek to standardize the nations composing it ; but it seeks to develop them into great nationhood. They are to develop according to the principles of self-government, liberty and freedom. Those are the ideals which this Empire has set forth, which have won the admiration even of people who fought against it so recently, as the Boers of South Africa. If the Boers who fought against the Empire can have that confidence in the British Empire and its ideals and join hands with the rest of the Empire in fighting the enemy, what abiding faith should not India have in her Sovereign and in the ideals which that Sovereign has in view ? We feel safe and secure that under the British flag our nation will also grow into full nationhood like the rest of the Empire. The principles of self-government, freedom and liberty for which this Empire stands, we hope to reap the full fruits thereof."

"The next fact which also induced us to take this step is that we felt that, if India can advance as a nation, it could do so only under the British flag, and this depended on the defeat of Germany and her ideals."

"The third factor which counted with us was that India's economic advance depended on the defeat of Germany. Who does not know of the way in which Germany's industrial progress has been to the detriment and destruction of industries of other countries ? We neglected them in the past and the war has awakened our eyes to it. If India is to advance economically, it can only do so under the British flag and British ideals. It was essential that Germany's ideals in industrial matters should meet with an end. Therefore, it was not only by loyalty but also by our common interests that we were all actuated in supporting this noble and common cause. In the events of the last few months which have brought this war to a victorious termination, it is with a proud feeling that we call to our minds the progress of the Indian Army in Palestine and in Mesopotamia. These feats in the last six or seven weeks played no little part in bringing the war to a victorious end. After all, thank God that Germany has bowed to the inevitable. She has saved herself a worse fate by an early surrender. Now that we all rejoice that there is peace in the world and in the Empire, let us also hope for peace at home and in our Presidency also. There was one remark in Mr. Davidson's speech yesterday which appealed to me very greatly and that was that any public inquiry as regards the Madura incident would disturb the peace of Madura which is already disturbed. May I appeal to Your Excellency's Government to see your way to remove irritating causes, causes which may irritate the people, and apply the soothing medicine in order also to procure peace in this Presidency of ours ? May peace reign everywhere. May peace and plenty flourish in our land."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. Richmond :—"Your Excellency, on behalf of the domiciled community, I just desire to say a word in support of this resolution. I entirely associate myself with the noble expressions of loyalty which have fallen from His Highness the Honourable Mover and from the Honourable the Raja of Bobbili who has seconded the resolution. So far as the members of the domiciled community are concerned, they have taken their share in the war

(Mr. Richmond; Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar; [20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]
Mr. Kavalappara Muppil Nayar; the President.)

from the beginning and there is scarcely a family who has not a relative in Mesopotamia, Palestine or France and to them the cessation of hostilities has been a message of glad tidings. I have no doubt that peace which is now in sight will be the opening of a new era in the world's history and the opening of a bright chapter in the history of India. I trust that the people of India will realize their true position in the political advancement to which they are justly entitled."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBİ MARAKKAYAR :—" Your Excellency, on behalf of the Muhammadan community whom I represent in this Council, I beg to convey their heartfelt congratulations on the great victory that our benign Government and their Allies attained in the war. It is needless for me to say how Muhammadans in India have proved their loyalty in helping the Empire in the war by means of men and money and I can assure you, my Lord, that they will continue their loyalty throughout. I sincerely pray for the long and continued prosperity of the British Empire."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. K. R. KAVALAPPARA MUPPIL NAYAR :—" Your Excellency, on behalf of the Jenmis of Malabar, I wish to associate myself with what has been stated by the Honourable Mover and the Honourable the Raja of Bobbili."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" Gentlemen, before I put this resolution to the Council, you will perhaps allow me to say that it is a great satisfaction to me as to all members of this Council that such an early opportunity has been afforded to it of recording its profound gratitude for the victory which has at last been secured, its admiration for the gallant men who have fought and died and prevailed on many a stricken field and its homage to our gracious Sovereign the King-Emperor. It is in no conventional sense that we have so frequently sung 'God save the King' during the celebrations of the past week, but in genuine devotion and honour for a ruler who throughout the long strain of the war has identified himself with our efforts, our anxieties, our sorrows and our hopes. It is with full heart that in this hour of triumph we desire to express our loyalty to the Throne. In doing so, this Council speaks for the whole Presidency. From town and village and hamlet, from Raja and Zamindar, from merchant and ryot throughout the Presidency telegrams and messages of congratulation and rejoicing have poured in, and in church and temple and mosque thanksgiving services have been held and the prayers of his subjects have gone up to God that as in the days of adversity so in the day of triumph and in the years to come their King and Emperor may be sustained and preserved."

"We desire further at this time to associate ourselves with the rest of India and of the Empire and despite all our shortcomings and deficiencies which we know only too well I hold that here in Madras we have made good the right to do so."

"In this Presidency we cannot claim to have the full and vivid understanding of the havoc and misery caused by the wanton aggression of the Central Powers possessed by those who have seen the ruined homesteads, the blasted corn lands, the penniless and half-broken fugitives, and all the abomination of desolation to which Belgium and Serbia and Poland and some of the fairest provinces of France have been subjected; but we can claim that in all classes of society there has been an honest desire to help according to their means and aptitudes, to make the efforts and the sacrifices required and that as the demand for yet further efforts came, so too the measure of our response expanded in more than one direction."

"I do not propose now to give a detailed account of all that has been accomplished but the following brief summary may not be out of place. As you are aware, before the outbreak of the war recruiting in this Presidency was confined to a few select corps, some of which however such as the Pioneers and the Sappers and Miners had a high reputation for loyalty and efficiency to which their gallantry and devotion has added fresh laurels during this war. At the outbreak of the war the Madras units represented at full strength 8,928 men. On the 1st January 1917, the number enrolled in the combatant branches of the Indian Army from this Presidency had risen to 12,930. As the call for men became more insistent, the area of recruitment was enlarged and in July 1917 the Provincial Recruiting Board began its operations. In 1917, 11,136 recruits were obtained; in 1918, 26,082 have been obtained of whom no less than 19,110 have been enrolled during the last five months. For the non-combatant branches 3,200 recruits were obtained in 1917 and in the ten months of 1918, ending the 31st October, no less than 26,179 were obtained of whom 17,119 were enrolled during the last five months. As a result nine new battalions of Madras regiments have been constituted and in the number of recruits the Madras Presidency stands next to the Punjab and the United Provinces. And here I would take this opportunity of expressing our deep appreciation of the work of those who have made this result possible; to our recruiting officers, military and civil, to the members of the Recruiting Board, to Colonel Graham, the Divisional Recruiting Officer, to whose co-operation, experience and advice we owe so much; to Mr. Knapp whose energy and capacity have proved invaluable; and to Mr. Gillman, the Chairman of the Board, who has discharged a heavy burden of additional responsibility and work in a manner which has been beyond praise; I am sure that every member of this Council will join me in wishing him a speedy and complete restoration to health. We have also made a substantial contribution to the Indian Army Reserve of Officers and this has been largely due to the patriotic manner in which the mercantile and planting communities have laboured to make available every man who could possibly be spared. And it is only right to acknowledge the very important contribution in personnel made by the Madras Medical Department and the alumni of the Madras Medical College. A word is also due to the Indian Defence Force, the members of which have uncomplainingly fulfilled their obligations and rendered valuable assistance to the military authorities by helping to garrison the Presidency."

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

(The President.)

We are also indebted to those who have undertaken similar obligations in the Indian section of the Defence Force and devoted their holidays and leisure to fitting themselves for their duties."

"After men, comes money. And you will remember that this Presidency, not a wealthy and not an industrially organized province, has acquitted itself most creditably in investing Rs. 298 lakhs in the first Indian war loan and Rs. 325 lakhs to the second loan that of this year."

"The part which this Presidency has played in providing munitions of war also has been considerable. Of late years there has been a great awakening to our industrial potentialities, and much has been done to stimulate that interest and to examine the possibilities of development; but at the outbreak of the war we could make no claim to be industrially organized and with the exception of some old-established industries it might well have been anticipated that contributions from this Presidency would have been mainly in the shape of raw material. But thanks to the dexterity and adaptability of our artisans, to the capacity and versatility of our merchants and manufacturers, both European and Indian, and to the ability and energy of the local representatives of the Indian Munitions Board and to the services of those non-official gentlemen who have willingly and disinterestedly co-operated with them on the local Munitions Committee, the work accomplished in this Presidency has exceeded all expectations; and a gratifying feature is the manner in which small local manufacturers and business concerns all over the Presidency have contributed to this result. Among raw produce Madras tea, coffee, castor oil, castor-seed, coconut oil and groundnut oil have as might be expected been largely utilized by the Food Controller and perhaps I may make special mention of one interesting item, viz., the supply of 700 tons of coconut shell charcoal to the Ministry of Munitions for use in the manufacture of anti-gas respirators. Turning to prepared articles it was stated recently that the armies of the Empire have marched upon Madras leather! How true that epigrammatic statement is may be gathered from the fact that since August 1916 the Indian Munitions Board has purchased in Madras 144,779 bales of hides valued at Rs. 10,84,08,960; and since special measures were taken in respect of tanning stuffs in March last awaram and other tan stuffs to the value of Rs. 14 lakhs have been collected and bought by the Board. Large quantities of manufactured leather articles have also been provided: leather waistcoats for airmen, gloves for motor-drivers, saddlery and equipment of all kinds, munda shoes and numerous other articles have been turned out. Under textiles the record is equally satisfactory. To give one example the Buckingham and Carnatic Mills have turned out monthly approximately 1½ million yards of khaki drill, 250,000 yards of khaki pagri cloth, 40,000 yards of canvas duck, 75,000 yards of khaki tape and webbing and 90,000 yards of doosootie for tents. Other factories and mills have also been working at high pressure. A tent factory has been started and the making of from 125,000 to 150,000 garments for the army has exercised the well-known skill and industry of the Madras 'darzi'. The coconut and its products have, as might be expected, figured largely; over a million yards of coir screening for camouflage purposes, 40,000 yards coir matting, 200,000 fathoms coir rope, 250 tons coir string and 30,000 gallons of coconut oil. These figures will give some idea of the demand which has been made upon our plantations. The supply of 50,000 gallons of fish oil and of nine lakhs of tiles evidences the part played by two other important industries in this Presidency. Our railways, public workshops and numerous private engineering firms and metal workers have supplied large quantities of metal articles of all kinds, buckles, shackles, belts, water bottles, cooking utensils, metal fittings and other requirements of the Ordnance Department, and the impossibility of importing many articles has stimulated the ingenuity and inventiveness of local manufacturers in a way which is full of promise for the future. Our railways have also met the large demands for permanent-way material and for engines and rolling-stock without which the success of the operations in Mesopotamia would have been jeopardized. It may be said that all this activity has been for value received, but that does not discount the unceasing efforts which have been made and the willingness of those concerned to subordinate all other considerations to the requirements of the forces in the field."

"Further we have not forgotten the claims of patriotism, of charity and of humanity. Up to the 31st October 1918, a sum of Rs. 73,14,512 was subscribed in support of the Hospital ship, Madras, the Ladies Depot, and other patriotic and charitable undertakings which have been financed by the Madras War Fund. An additional sum of Rs. 39,221 has been specially raised in aid of the Ladies Depot and its affiliated centres and when I say that no less than six million Red Cross articles have been despatched from the Ladies Depot you will realize the immensity of the work which the ladies of this Presidency undertook and have supported and the practical manner in which irrespective of caste, creed or community they have shown their sympathy with and admiration for our gallant troops. A sum of Rs. 6,10,089 was collected in this Presidency on 'Our Day' and has been placed at the disposal of the Central Red Cross Committee at Simla. A sum of Rs. 17,70,868 has been contributed from this Presidency to the Imperial Indian Relief Fund. Among other relief funds I would mention the South Indian Planters' War Fund to which the planting community has contributed Rs. 84,310; the Belgian Relief Fund Rs. 1,13,602; the Serbian Relief Fund Rs. 22,062; the St. Dunstan's Blinded Soldier's Fund Rs. 13,079, and the Rupee Fund. Through the Madras War Fund also several of our leading zamindars have presented for His Majesty's acceptance loyal and generous gifts for the purchase of aeroplanes or motor ambulances. The total sum thus subscribed amounts to well over Rs. 100 lakhs."

"It is not in any spirit of boastfulness or even of satisfaction that we refer to these results. All our efforts and petty sacrifices are as nothing compared with the debt of gratitude which we owe. We would merely urge them as some evidence that this Presidency has throughout been at one with other parts of the Empire in its loyalty, in its desire to help, in its sympathy with the wounded and the afflicted and in its gratitude for the protection and the immunity from the horrors of the war which it has been privileged to enjoy. Gentlemen, I do not wish to detain you, and the feelings with which we have met here to-day have been admirably and eloquently expressed by those who have spoken to the resolution. But there is one point to which I may be allowed to refer. After the strain and stress of the past four years it might seem as if a period of rest and quietude alone could give relief to overwrought humanity. But inexorable time forbids, and after a brief rejoicing the Empire and its people will have to undertake the consideration and solution of that legacy of problems which the war and the convulsions attending it have inevitably left behind. Can we look forward with confidence to the task of reconstructing civilization, of restoring that shattered nexus of mutual interests, of trade, of manufacture, of development, of invention, of subtle interchange of thought and idea compared with which the mightiest civilizations of ancient times, even that of Rome itself, seem simple and easily understood, or will it prove beyond the power of statesmanship to devise a new mould or framework of states and principalities within which the political and social life of the future may find organic shape? Let us not ignore the facts. Throughout nearly two-thirds of Europe and over vast areas in Asia the old bonds of human society have been dissolved. In Germany and Austria there is but a welter of conflicting interests; elsewhere are the mutterings of revolution, and if there the forces that make for disorder should triumph over those that make for order who can prophesy that modern civilization burdened by its complexities will in any form survive this further attack upon its fabric? For my part grave as the situation is I cannot believe that the lessons of the war will be so speedily lost. Among all sober and thoughtful men the feeling that in these great issues there are no short cuts is more and more finding articulate expression. Germany has tried the short cut to power and failed; Russia for whose misfortunes our sympathies deeply are engaged seems to have tried the short cut to the millennium and failed. I have referred to the lessons of the war: they are plain to read for us as for others. The achievements of this Presidency during the war which I have ventured to summarize establish, beyond doubt to my mind that this Presidency has great material resources both actual and potential, has in the innate dexterity and practical capacity of its people the means whereby to utilize them, and is not lacking in men who are capable of developing those resources and organizing that capacity. The war has also shown us how this task must be accomplished. That we have been able to share in the efforts and achievements of the past four years is chiefly because throughout the Presidency and in all classes of the community there has been a desire to co-operate—a subordination of other considerations to a common purpose. There has been good-will and sympathy among men European and Indian alike who have worked together on committees and boards official and non-official and in many other spheres, and have striven to secure common aims, who have recognized that though men may differ even materially as to details of policy and even as to policy itself their ultimate aims do not necessarily diverge, and that there are still large fields in which joint endeavour and co-operation are open to them. The aim has been to emphasize points of agreement, rather than points of difference and to seek always the common good. The sense of our responsibilities and opportunities has been quickened by the experiences of the last four years. And so, when we express by this resolution our solemn sense of the debt which we owe and our pride that we have been privileged in some measure to serve our King-Emperor and to defend his cause, in a special sense during these last four years, let us pledge ourselves that so far as in us lies, for the years to come and in the labours for the public good which these years will bring, that good-will and sympathy and comradeship shall continue and multiply among us."

(The President: Mr. Siva Rao.) [20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I trust that this resolution will be carried. Now Honourable Members will please stand up."

The resolution was then declared unanimously carried, all the Honourable Members standing.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We will continue the business before this Council. I think resolution V should be taken."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I said I would not move V."

RESOLUTION RE SALARIES OF TEACHERS IN ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS.

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, the resolution I have the honour to move relates to the salaries of teachers of elementary and secondary schools and is in the following terms:—

'VI. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that early steps may be taken to raise the salaries of the teachers in the elementary and the secondary schools.'

* V. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the recommendations contained in the recent resolution on local self-government issued in the month of May last by the Government of India may be adopted and carried into effect.

RESOLUTION RE SALARIES OF TEACHERS IN ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS.

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Siva Rao.)

"Your Excellency, the low pay of the teachers in the elementary and secondary schools has been a long felt grievance. The grievance has attracted the notice of the Government of India and also of the Secretary of State. I may just quote a few extracts from the speech which the Viceroy delivered at the Conference of Directors held in January 1917. The Viceroy was pleased to say: 'But schools depend for their efficiency on the quality of their teachers and inefficient schools represent so much good money thrown away. I would press upon you, then, in the first place, concentration on the teaching problem. We want, as I said lately in Calcutta, to raise the status of the teaching profession, to make it a calling with prizes which will induce men to enter it as a life profession. For this we must raise the pay of the teachers. Much has no doubt been done in recent years to raise the pay of teachers, but I would ask you to consider whether the pay given now, and more especially the minimum pay, is adequate.' In the Indian Educational Policy issued in 1913, the Government of India state about primary school teachers: 'Trained teachers should receive not less than Rs. 12 per month (special rates being given in certain areas); they should be placed in a graded service; and they should either be eligible for a pension or admitted to a provident fund.' And speaking of teachers in secondary English schools they say in the same resolution that the policy of the Government of India is 'introducing a graded service for teachers of English with a minimum salary of Rs. 40 per month and a maximum salary of Rs. 400 per month.'

"Coming to the joint Report on Indian Constitutional Reforms, it is said: 'Educational wastage is everywhere excessive and analysis shows that it is largely due to underpayment and want of proper training in the case of teachers. The actual recruits for normal schools are too often ill-prepared and the teaching career which in India used formerly to command respect does not now offer adequate inducements to men of ability and force of character. The first need therefore, is the improvement of teaching.'

"Then turning to the latest Quinquennial Report issued by the Director of Public Instruction, relating to 1916-17, it is stated at page 33: 'Another desirable reform, so far as schools under board and municipal managements are concerned, would be to place the teachers in such schools in some kind of service so that promotion would not be confined to the school in which a teacher happened to be serving at the time but would be open to him by transfer as vacancies occurred elsewhere. His provident fund deposits also should be transferable on such transfer. At present in schools under public management conditions, though ameliorated by subsidies given to improve the pay and prospects of teachers, are not satisfactory. Provident funds are rare, the scale of salaries is often inadequate, promotion is limited, and the management is not always satisfactory.' So my Lord, it is universally recognized that the pay of the teachers both in the elementary and in the secondary schools is grossly inadequate and does not attract men of real ability.

"Before I proceed further I may just refer to the scales that are now in force in the various schools in the Presidency and these scales have been summed up in the memorial which has been recently submitted to the Director of Public Instruction by the Members of the Council of Association of Headmasters. I am quoting from that memorial. It states: 'From statistics collected by the South India Teachers' Union, we have information as to the salaries of 298 L.T.'s employed in various classes of schools scattered in different parts of the Presidency. Sixty of these are headmasters of complete secondary schools in receipt of salaries of Rs. 100 a month and above. Three of the 60 headmasters are on Rs. 100 a month, 16 receive between Rs. 100 and 125, 19 between Rs. 125 and Rs. 150, 3 between Rs. 175 and Rs. 200 and 2 Rs. 200. Of the remaining 238 L.T.'s only 55 get Rs. 100 or above, the others remaining on lower salaries than Rs. 100.'

"This is the present state of things and I must specifically draw the attention of the Council to the special difficulty which is felt in procuring teachers of ability in some of the districts in the Presidency. That difficulty is noted in paragraph 61 of the Quinquennial Report. 'A trained graduate assistant in Madras City or Tanjore will start now on about Rs. 70 per mensem rising probably to Rs. 100: the initial salary in Bellary or Anantapur will have to be at least Rs. 80 per mensem. An untrained graduate can command from Rs. 50 to Rs. 60 per mensem.' It is also noted that some parts of the Presidency can secure teachers more easily than others. It is well-known that these scales of pay of teachers in the various schools in the Presidency, in the public schools under the management of local bodies, and the Government schools and in the case of aided schools, vary very largely; but it is commonly felt that the pay is very inadequate. I must say something especially with reference to the scale of salary that prevails in the Municipal High School of Bellary, the net cost of which is borne by Government. Four assistants are employed on a scale of Rs. 65 to 85. In the same memorial, the scale of salary that they propose is given. They propose for a Headmaster Rs. 150 to 300, other L.T.'s Rs. 90 to 140, for pandits, Rs. 35 to 55, and so forth. It may be asked whether this resolution would apply to aided schools also, in other words, to private schools under private management which receive grants-in-aid from the Government. This resolution applies as well to private schools which have been given grants-in-aid and in that case it may be stated that they get one-half of the net cost and if the manager is willing to raise the salary in any particular case, he is at perfect liberty to do so. The difficulty is for the managers to propose a higher scale, because their funds do not permit them to bear even one-half of the cost. I would propose, as it is the case in Bombay, that if the ordinary grant is not sufficient, a supplementary grant may be made not exceeding one-third (and in the case of the poor but

384 RESOLUTION RE SALARIES OF TEACHERS IN ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS.

(Mr. Siva Rao; Mr. Venkatapati Raju; [20TH NOVEMBER 1918-deserving schools one-half) of the ordinary grant mainly for the improvement of the salaries of the teachers. I am aware, your Excellency, that something is being done by the Government of India and also by this Government in this direction. I am aware also that the Government of India have been making a liberal recurring grant of four lakhs per annum devoted to the improvement of the pay and the training of teachers. I know also how that recurring grant has been utilized and I may say that the teachers in the secondary schools have not been very much benefited by it. There have been two Government Orders issued in the matter—G.O. No. 361, dated 18th March 1918, distributing a sum of one lakh and odd rupees to local bodies towards the enhancement of the minimum pay of teachers in elementary schools. The minimum pay used to be Rs. 8 plus Rs. 2 allowance, it used to be Rs. 10; and now it has been raised by Re. 1, it is now Rs. 11; and in 1913 it was proposed by the Government of India that the minimum pay of teachers should be at least Rs. 12 and in the case of lady teachers in girls' schools, it must be something more. It has been raised to Rs. 12. But I submit it should be raised at least to Rs. 15 so that we might attract a better class of female teachers to be employed in girls' schools.
Mr. Duncan.]

"Then in the case of secondary schools there is a G.O. No. 994, dated 30th July 1918, which was issued sanctioning the distribution of about two lakhs to local bodies. I see here that about one lakh and odd has been distributed for the improvement of the scale of salaries of teachers in the secondary schools. But as I already stated, this grant has not gone very much towards improving the salaries of teachers in the said schools.

"The Government also recognize that the scale which was probably framed and devised some years ago before these new economic conditions arose would be hardly adequate under present conditions. I may refer the Council to the scale of salaries which the Government have sanctioned when new secondary schools under the management of local bodies were started in June 1918. The headmaster gets Rs. 125 and the assistants start on a uniform pay of Rs. 80 rising to Rs. 100. This scale is somewhat more liberal than the old scale which prevails in many other schools. This, I recognize, is somewhat an improved scale. It is certainly an improvement on the old state of things. So your Excellency, this is a very necessary reform. The want is recognized and so the only question is one of finance and so far as funds permit, I submit that something may be done to raise the pay of the teachers both in the elementary and in the secondary schools. I propose that in the case of teachers in elementary schools, the minimum pay should be raised to at least Rs. 12. The Government of India have already announced the grant of Rs. 5½ lakhs towards the development of primary education, a portion of which may be spent towards the improvement of the pay of elementary teachers by increasing it by Re. 1 and in the case of teachers of girls' schools, elementary schools, they ought to get at least Rs. 15 per mensem. In the case of secondary schools, a liberal scale may be adopted, and I leave it to your Excellency's Government whether the scale proposed by the Headmasters' association which is now pending before the Director of Public Instruction may not be given effect to. If that is a very high scale, some more modest scale at least may be adopted to suit the requirements of the times. With these words, I commend the resolution for the acceptance of the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Your Excellency, I do not think any words are needed to support this resolution, because it is a non-controversial resolution. The Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State and His Excellency the Viceroy have also stated that the pay should be increased. Therefore I heartily second this resolution and expect that it would be accepted by Government."

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. DUNCAN:—"Your Excellency, I quite sympathise with the resolution which has been moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao. From what he has said, it will be gathered that this Government also sympathise with the resolution. He has admitted towards the end of his speech that it is a matter of finance. I can go no further than that and say that in sympathising with him I cannot see my way to go the length he proposes in raising the salaries of teachers. I quite understand that it is desirable to increase the salaries of teachers; as far as funds permit, I think it ought to be done. But I would like to invite attention to the fact that there are several schemes involving large expenditure on education and these schemes have to be financed and the department has to be careful as to how it is going to distribute the funds at its disposal among the various schemes. There is a scheme here in this resolution which bears upon the betterment of the pay of teachers in elementary and secondary schools. As the Honourable Member has stated, Government have already done something in this direction and the something that they have done has entailed a certain amount of money. No doubt the terms of this resolution which has been moved by the Honourable Member, will be borne in mind, and I do not think that Government will turn a deaf ear to what is contained in it. I will say no more than that funds do not allow at present the enhancement of salaries as proposed by the Honourable Member; but I am quite prepared to give every consideration to the question of enhancement as far as it lies in my power to do so."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"In view of the sympathetic attitude of the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction, I withdraw my resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was then withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE MEASURES TO BE ADOPTED TO ALLEVIATE THE SITUATION DUE TO HIGH PRICES. 385

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (The President; Mr. Siva Rao;
Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Sir Alexander Cardew.)

RESOLUTION RE MEASURES TO BE ADOPTED TO ALLEVIATE THE SITUATION DUE TO HIGH PRICES.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I may just mention to the Council that with this resolution, resolutions Nos. XI*, XIV†, XXI‡ and XXXII§ will go together."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, the resolution I wish to move reads thus—

'VII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that suitable steps may be immediately taken for checking the abnormal prices of food-stuffs and other necessities of life: and also that relief measures may be started in the worst-affected parts to palliate the distress caused thereby and also by the failure of the last monsoon.'

"Your Excellency, I wish to omit the last words 'and also by the failure of the last monsoon', because I understand that there are several other resolutions specifically bearing on the point and they ask for relief on the ground of the failure of the last monsoon. I shall confine myself to the distress caused by the rise in prices. There are other resolutions to deal with that."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Which resolutions?"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Resolution No. XXXII§, my Lord."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Where do you stop?"

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I shall stop with the word 'caused thereby' in the last line of the resolution."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"In that case, the distinction is in the proposal that relief measures be started in the worst-affected parts. That corresponds to No. XXXII§. It is rather difficult to draw the line of distinction between high prices relief measures and relief measures for other causes, if you want to draw the line."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"The failure of the last monsoon is only one of the causes why relief measures should be taken. In fact, the rise in prices is another cause why relief measures should be adopted."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"What I mean to say is take resolution No. XXXII§. That means that there is to be an inquiry and there should be a report as to how best the failure of the monsoon may be met. It is really identical."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"If it does not interfere with the other resolutions, I shall move it as it is."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"There is no intention to limit discussion; if necessary, we may take division on the other points, without discussion. Let the resolution be moved as it is."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, the subject of high prices has been engaging the attention of Government since last April. In the month of April, I moved a resolution in the Legislative Council that an immediate inquiry should be made into the abnormal rise in prices and that suitable steps should be taken to regulate the prices. And the Hon'ble Member Sir Alexander Cardew gave a very sympathetic reply and at the end he proposed that in that state of things there was no reason for alarm and that no drastic steps need be taken under those conditions. But the Honourable Member promised that he would be active and vigilant and careful and that when the times required it, he would make proper

* The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—

XI. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council to take immediate steps to control the maximum prices of food-grains in the Presidency.

† The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—

XIV. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the press communiqué dated 28th September 1918 (Revenue) relating to the disturbances in various parts of the Presidency be reconsidered, that steps be taken as far as possible to prohibit transport of foodstuffs from one district to another and to procure the necessary foodstuffs to the areas from places where they are available and that instructions be issued to the several local bodies to take the question of the supply of essential foodstuffs to the poorest classes of people on hand on an assurance of a grant from the Government to a moiety of the loss incurred provided the said local bodies accept the conditions, if any, laid down by the Government to transact business as per instructions given.

‡ The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—

XXI. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the Government be pleased to make preliminary arrangements for the organisation of the system of village inspection and appointment of gratuitous relief staff, and to undertake sanctioned works of utility in villages such as village communications and irrigation works in localities where there is failure of rains and rise of prices and generally where distress is prevalent.

§ The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDAIYAR:—

XXXII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council the appointment of a committee consisting of an experienced Revenue Officer with two non-official gentlemen to make a full inquiry into the present situation in areas seriously affected by the failure during the year of both the monsoons in this Presidency and make an early report on how best it may be met by the Government and the people.

(Mr. Siva Rao.)

[20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

arrangements for the regulation of prices. This is what the Honourable Member stated on that occasion in April of this year:—'The case as regards food-grains, salt and probably fuel is somewhat different. As regards these articles, it is absolutely necessary that prices should not rise beyond certain levels or there will be danger of actual famine and the Government may therefore be forced to interfere in certain eventualities. We hope there will be no necessity for it, and we rely upon railway traffic. There is no doubt that a point will be reached when something might be necessary. We have accordingly asked the Government of India to enable us under the Defence of India Act to empower our district officers to obtain exact information regarding the stocks of all articles of common use.' Then he wound up by saying: 'I hope this statement will satisfy the honourable movers of the resolution.' So it was withdrawn and we have been waiting to see what would be done by Government in this matter. I must say that matters have gone on now very much worse than in April 1918. The first Government Order that was passed was in the month of May 1918. It is G.O. No. 2078, dated 29th May 1918, and this resolution is referred to in the Government Order, and the remedies proposed are all set forth in paragraph 2 of the Government Order: 'Where high prices are due to local scarcity, the only remedies are economy by the consumers and importation from localities where the supply is more abundant. In regard to the former, direct interference by Government is impossible. It must be left to persons of influence, non-official and official, to impress on the people of the locality the need for economy in the consumption of the articles in which the shortage is felt.' The first remedy is that people should be advised to practise economy in consumption. Then it says: 'The second remedy lies to some extent in official hands as the Director of Civil Supplies is empowered, on application made, to grant certificates of priority which will enable commodities which are urgently needed to be carried over the railways in preference to other traffic.' That is the second remedy. There is a third remedy also proposed and that is: 'Where however there is reason to believe that shortage in the market is due to the holding up of stocks or that the high prices represent profiteering on the part of local merchants it may be necessary for the Collector to invoke the powers conferred upon him by the law' and they empower the Collectors under the Defence of India Act 'to call for information for returns of stocks in hand, or expected together with information as to the prices at which the owner of the stocks has purchased or expects to purchase them'. Then they say: 'they would not give the Collectors the power of fixing prices but if, on inquiry, the Government were satisfied that resort to this further step is necessary they would most unhesitatingly resort to it.' Then I believe circulars were issued to all Collectors of the Presidency to call for stocks and then power was also taken to take possession of such stocks on payment of compensation to the owner and where the need was, Government said that they would be ready to exercise that power. This was all that was done. I know controllers were appointed in pursuance of some Government Order and then certain other Government Orders were also issued restricting and prohibiting the export of food-grains from this Presidency to Hyderabad, Mysore and other provinces like Bombay. I know that has been since recalled, I hear, on the representation of the Government of India and so people are now free to export articles of foodstuffs from this Presidency anywhere they like. The next order that was passed in the same connexion was the grant of some special concessions in the case of those who wanted to cultivate unoccupied assessed lands; that is G.O. No. 2735, dated 20th July 1918, and it stated: 'any cultivator raising dry grains upon unoccupied assessed land, in the districts of Kurnool, Anantapur and Bellary will be exempted from assessment during the current fasli.' And permission will also be given to the cultivators to cultivate railway poramboke lands and Collectors were also urged to advise the ryots to grow foodstuffs on dry lands in preference to any other crop. The Director of Civil Supplies was appointed to help the easy transport, the easy movement of grains from outside this Presidency into this Presidency and from one district to another in this Presidency. This is all that was done. No attempt was made to fix prices or to regulate them. Then there were Emergency Committees also appointed whose principal duty was defined to be 'to bring home to the people of the district in all possible ways the urgent need for economy, for avoiding unnecessary demands on the railways and for substituting as far as possible the use of home products for that of imported supplies.' And on the 27th of July 1918 there was a more elaborate Government Order passed in respect of the same matter specially with reference to dry grains in the Ceded Districts, Bellary, Kurnool, Anantapur and Onddappah. One step that was taken in that matter was the prohibition of exports, as I have already referred to, from the Ceded Districts to Hyderabad territory. They took this measure which went far to prevent hardship there. Then it was also said 'the only possible manner in which the resulting shortage in dry grains can be made good is by extending their cultivation.' Accordingly in the districts of Kurnool, Anantapur and Bellary where the shortage is most marked, Government, have, as a special case, sanctioned the cultivation of all unoccupied assessed lands in the districts free of assessment. In the matter of kerosene oil, they have taken the power to fix the rates and there is no difficulty and in the matter of salt also, there is no difficulty. These are the steps that have been so far taken by the Government and we shall see with what results. Those measures taken by the Government,— have they succeeded in bringing down the prices as was expected by the Government? The last week's gazette dated November 12th, discloses that the situation is far worse now than before. For instance, I need not go into the details, cholam which in Bellary forms the staple food is selling at 5·8 seers per rupee; a seer weighing 80 tolas; rice is selling at 4·5 seers per rupee. That forms the staple food of the well-to-do in those districts. Ragi is selling at 7·1 seers last week and 6·9 this week and so the prices are—I think I need not refer to other parts of the Presidency—very nearly the same in the other parts also except probably in

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Siva Rao; the President.)

Nellore where rice is selling at 9 seers a rupee where it was selling at 11 seers a rupee. In answer to a question put by my Honourable Friend Mr. Venkatapati Raju it has been elicited that scarcity rates prevail in most of the districts in the Presidency; scarcity rates given according to the latest return made by the Board of Revenue in pursuance of the instructions given by the Government. In answer to another question that has been put at the very same meeting, it has been elicited that lootings took place in several districts in the Presidency and it is given in appendix III of the Agenda paper. This is the present state of things and it behoves the Government to consider seriously what can be done and the measures that have been taken so far have been inadequate for the purpose. It does not require many words on my part to convince Honourable Members of this Council that the measures taken so far have been thoroughly inadequate.

"There has been a wide demand on the part of the people for some Government action in the matter of the regulation of prices. I may refer in the same connexion to the latest Government Order dated 28th September 1918. What took place before this Government Order was this: there was a serious looting in the city of Madras and the Emergency Committee of Madras communicated a resolution to the Government strongly urging the Government to obtain from the Government of India power to fix and control the prices of foodstuffs as the situation had become in their opinion very serious and was likely to become worse. It was in that state of things and it was on that representation made that the two Honourable Members of Government came to Madras and made special inquiries and consulted the local self-government committee which was then sitting in Madras and the result was this Press Communiqué, which was issued. Before I refer to it in detail I may say that the Honourable Members consulted the members of the local self-government committee including many Collectors from districts and they were all unanimous in proposing that some Government action or interference was necessary. I only refer to that opinion, because I was a party to that meeting and was personally present when the Honourable Member consulted some of the members of that committee. This is the position in which the Government Order laying the policy of the Government in the matter of these prices was issued. In paragraph 2 it is stated: 'The first matter which His Excellency in Council has had to consider in this connexion is the question to what extent there exists in this Presidency such severe economic distress as calls for the intervention of the State in the manner laid down in the Famine Code.' It is stated that prices are undoubtedly high but it is said that wages have also risen. I do not know about this state of things. I can confidently say that wages have not risen in the villages. In towns, and in the districts, wages have risen; but in villages, they remain where they were. It is also stated that there have not been many deaths on account of the distress, and that conditions had not reached a stage demanding relief measures under the Famine Code. It is also stated in paragraph 3 of that report which is a peculiar one in which they give a diagnosis of the serious looting that took place in Madras and probably also other lootings in various parts of the Presidency—'The occurrence of such disturbances in a generally orderly population is doubtless to be primarily ascribed to the weakening of respect for authority which has been brought about by the unbridled agitation of the past few years. Systematic attempts have been made with the deliberate object of destroying the belief of the people in the capacity and efficiency of the Government, their conduct, credit, and good faith have been perpetually attacked; and this agitation has produced its natural effect in the minds of the poor and the ignorant, viz., a contempt for authority and a disposition to take the law into their own hands.'

"What has been the action of a mob infuriated by hunger has been attributed to the unbridled agitation that has been going on in this Presidency for some time past. I humbly submit, your Excellency, that this diagnosis of the situation is not at all a correct one. The right cause lies elsewhere. The reason is that they were pressed by the enormous famine prices and they could not get anything to eat and it was that that drove them to acts of lawlessness and not any political agitation in the country. The Government Order also says that law and order should be maintained at any cost. Nobody disputes that position but before law and order should be maintained, it behoves the Government to relieve the tension or the distress that is now prevailing in the country. I may say, your Excellency, that I take this opportunity of saying that the Government have taken a totally wrong view of the matter in regard to these lootings that took place in several parts of the country. They are due simply to hunger and to the sufferings consequent on it. They had not the least idea of promoting any agitation. In this matter I must say that the situation has not been read correctly by Government. Then they go on to say 'His Excellency the Governor in Council has carefully considered the proposal of the Emergency Committee that the Government should take power to fix retail prices and has decided that it is wholly inexpedient. Such an attempt would soon result in the State being forced to take over the stocks of dealers and to undertake the entire conduct of the trade in grain and other provisions.' That may be, but that has to be undertaken when the situation demands it. It does not mean that the Government should turn themselves into a huge grain-shop. It means only that they have to check and control the whole business; and that co-operative societies and municipal bodies have to be helped in the matter by loans and grants and they must be financed to make these purchases and if necessary and if this state of distress continues, for a long time, I do not think Government can escape that situation and avoid the alternative of purchasing whole stocks. It may be it may cost them a lot. But it should not deter them from doing their duty if the situation requires it."

His Excellency the President:—"Will the Honourable Gentleman address the chair? His remarks would be better heard by the Council."

(Mr. Siva Rao.)

[20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I was stating that if the situation demands it, Government will have to purchase the whole stock and fix prices and they will have to distribute it to licensed dealers who should be enjoined to sell it at definite rates. It is also stated in the same Government Order that 'As regards the transfer of grain from district to district within the Presidency, His Excellency the Governor in Council has come to the conclusion that it should as far as possible be confined to transport by road.' I do not see much facility in prohibiting the movement of grain from district to district. There may be a district where there is a deficit and they have to make up this deficit from a district where there is a surplus. This export and import should be regulated and controlled and licensed; exports should be prohibited from any district unless it is certified that there is a surplus; but wholesale prohibition, I think, is undesirable. Then it is stated: 'The difficulties of the poorer classes due to the high prices of grain and other foodstuffs have been aggravated by the great rise in the price of cotton cloth, a result of the reduced imports from Europe and the high price of cotton throughout the world.' It is fortunate that the price of cloth has fallen recently and I do not think it need exercise any specific attention on the part of the Government.

"Before I close, your Excellency, I may refer to the latest resolution of the Government of India dated 11th October. What they contemplate is the appointment of a food commissioner for the whole of India and they say: 'The Government of India have after consultation with the various Provincial Governments, decided what quantities of foodstuffs are available for transfer from time to time from a surplus to a deficit province and the maximum prices at which such foodstuffs should be purchased; the foodstuffs commissioner will arrange through the agency of selected commercial firms for the purchase of the foodstuffs in question and their despatch to the destinations and consignees indicated by the Directors of Civil Supplies in the deficit provinces.' In other words, the Government of India have taken upon themselves to ascertain the stocks in each province and wherever there is a surplus they have decided to direct the foodstuffs commissioner to make purchases at stated prices and also to distribute them among the various provinces. That exactly is the policy laid down by the Government of India resolution and that may be followed by this Government when they have to deal with inter-district arrangements. The Government of India resolution also says: 'The operations of the foodstuffs commissioner will be directed to the question of supplies of wheat and rice', etc., and they say under the scheme, it will be a primary condition of supplies to dealers in deficit provinces, that they should be licensed by the Director of Civil Supplies or other local authority and that the grant and continuance of such licences shall be conditional on the holder selling within such prices as the Local Government may fix, with due regard to the prices previously fixed for purchases by the foodstuffs commissioner.' In other words, the order contemplates that these purchases should be made and distributed to the various provinces according to their needs; and they would be given for sale only to licensed dealers with instructions to sell them at fixed rates. That is the policy laid down by the Government of India and I earnestly urge on this Government to follow the lines laid down in that resolution. It is for the Provincial Government to distribute it, according to this resolution, to certain licensed dealers, who will sell it at a small profit and at stated prices. It is also stated in this resolution: 'It will also be within the discretion of local Governments, if they think this necessary, to arrange for the opening of Government and municipal depots or shops for the sale of foodstuffs at fixed prices.'

"When they get supply, according to the needs, the Government of India's policy is that they will have to sell it or give it over to some licensed dealers or to some co-operative societies or to some municipal or local bodies with instructions that they should sell it at stated prices. There is no reason why that policy should not be followed here.

"I was reading the other day as to what has been done in the same matter in the sister State of Mysore. The Diwan said in his recent speech: 'The situation requires very close watching and as it will probably be changing rapidly, we must be prepared to revise our forecasts and plans and go on adjusting efforts to obstacles almost from week to week.' And then the action taken by the Government is stated: He says: 'Ever since August this year, the situation has been giving room for anxiety. Taking advantage of the powers conferred on them by the Defence of India Regulation, Government brought under control paddy, rice, ragi and ohlam, as early as the 6th August. In September they took the further step of fixing maximum prices for certain foodstuffs in Mysore, Bangalore and Tumkur districts.' They have also issued a general circular as to what the Mysore Government have done: 'At present maximum prices have been fixed for ragi, rice, paddy and ohlam in certain specified areas. Steps are being taken to fix prices similarly throughout the State and orders in this matter will issue in another day or two.' Then it is a matter of detail and I need not detain the Council. Then it says: 'When stocks are taken over the officer in power to take delivery will prepare a mahazar showing the quantity taken over; that is again a matter of detail; it says again that 'the stock taken over will be placed in the safe custody of a responsible person and despatched to the destination indicated, or used to meet the demands of poor people requiring grain, sales being effected to them in small quantities at a fixed price.' Then it is said that co-operative societies are willing to undertake the business, respectable merchants may be licensed for the purpose or that committees may be formed for the purpose and the Government state that every care will be taken to avoid abuses and they have placed an advance of Rs. 10,000 at the disposal of each Deputy Commissioner for commandeering stocks. There is no reason why these steps should not be taken in our province as well. I might also say that the Bombay Government have decided to grant loans to local bodies to help them towards the purchasing of stocks and they have granted loans without interest to purchase stocks. I may also say that liberal relief measures have been also started in Mysore with reference to rise in prices. For instance, it is stated 'Each local area has a responsibility to provide for its own poor as far as possible. To this end, relief funds should be started and a complete organization brought into existence, aided if necessary by municipal and Government funds.' It is also stated: 'Lastly there is the question of finding employment for the labouring classes and the poorer cultivators. Large public works are in progress in several parts of the State, and there is no lack of employment. On the contrary it is difficult to get labour in many places at present. Village works will be started and relief works begun at a later stage, as soon as the necessity is felt.' These are the lines on which I suggest that action should be taken by the Government. I am emphatically of opinion that some Government action should be taken in the matter. If I am allowed to recapitulate I might perhaps be exceeding my time. I might do so in one minute. Prices have to be regulated, and, if necessary, Government have to make large purchases of stocks and power should be given to Collectors to call for returns of stocks and power should also be given to Collectors under exceptional circumstances to fix the rates. As regards Provincial supply, the Government of India have undertaken to do it. As regards inter-district arrangement, the Director of Civil Supplies will have to certify that there is a surplus in one and a deficit in another; and he must make proper arrangements for movement of grain from one part to another. Municipal bodies and co-operative societies and other local bodies should be encouraged to open shops and loans should be advanced by Government without interest to purchase stocks. These are large matters and I had to take some time over them. This has been exercising the mind of the Government for a long time as it is not capable of easy solution; and I had to indicate the lines on which Government may usefully proceed and therefore I had to take some time."

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

(Mr. Siva Rao; Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.)

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I second this resolution. The resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao suggests that steps be taken immediately for checking the abnormal price of foodstuffs and other necessities of life. I have, in the resolution of which I have given notice, thought it fit to bring prominently to the notice of the Government that at least in the case of food-grains, the time has come to fix maximum prices. I believe I need not detain the Council long to convince it of the abnormal prices of food-grains and other foodstuffs. That is a fact which is admitted. It is a difficult problem as to what remedies can be suggested to check this evil and to solve this problem. I quite admit that this problem is full of difficulties and complications and that it has to be met in a bold spirit and solved as speedily as possible. It might be urged that there are several difficulties in interfering with private trade and controlling the price of food-grains or other articles. It might also be urged, as was urged on other occasions, that merchants and landowners are entitled to make as much profit as possible and there ought not to be ordinarily any interference with their profits. My Lord, before I proceed further, I might draw the attention of this Council to the statement made by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew in reply to a resolution then moved by the Honourable mover of this resolution. He stated: 'The case as regards food-grains, salt and probably fuel is somewhat different. As regards these articles, it is absolutely necessary that prices should not rise beyond certain levels or there will be danger of actual famine and the Government may therefore be forced to interfere in certain eventualities. We hope there will be no necessity for it, and we rely upon railway traffic. There is no doubt that a point will be reached when something might be necessary.'

"It is, therefore, clear that on the 3rd April 1918, the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew recognized and realized that it was absolutely necessary that the prices of food-grains should not rise beyond certain levels and that otherwise there would be danger of famine and other necessary evils. The question which I now ask is whether the time has not arisen in view of the events which have taken place during these seven months for some measures, heroic as he then called them, being taken to check this evil. As to what has happened during this interval, everyone in this Council is aware of the various unfortunate incidents which have occurred in the various parts of the Presidency, the lootings, with consequent loss of property and with loss of lives in some cases. The answer given in reply to my question No. 37 printed at page 35 of the printed answers, will show in what places looting took place since the 1st of May 1918 and how much of loss or damage was caused thereby. It would be apparent from a careful analysis of that information that looting has taken place in about 96 places scattered in 18 districts of the Presidency. It will also be apparent that the looting which is scattered in 96 places between the 13th of May and the 20th of September—mostly it was in September—was mostly of paddy, so far as it could be ascertained, of paddy or rice and then cloths. After these facts were brought to the notice of the Government, an inquiry—an informal inquiry which they undertook on the receipt of a telegram from the Emergency Committee of the Corporation—was held on the 24th of September by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew and the Hon'ble Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar. Those of us in the mufassal who had the privilege to work in the emergency committees constituted in the mufassal did not then realize that the inquiry would be confined only to the metropolis and that we would have no opportunity of bringing to the notice of the authorities the circumstances prevailing in those places. Deputations, I find, were received from the Madras Corporation and another public meeting and the South Indian Chamber of Commerce and your Excellency's colleagues in the Executive Council, the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew and the Hon'ble Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar discussed with them various aspects of the question.

(Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.)

[20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

I would submit my Lord, that it would have been possible to come to more correct conclusions if opportunity was then taken to consult the various Collectors of the districts and also to consult the emergency committees which were appointed to advise the Collectors regarding the problems connected with this question. I would draw the attention of this Council to questions Nos. 39 and 40 put by me at this meeting of the Council and the answers given thereto. They are—

'39 Q.—(a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they called for and obtained reports from the Collectors of districts before issuing the press communique, dated 28th September 1918, as to the control of prices of foodstuffs?

'(b). Will the Government be pleased to lay those reports on the table?

'39 A.—The collection of information regarding the stocks of food-grains in the districts, the prices of food-grains and the control of transport of food-grains has been entrusted to the Director of Civil Supplies who is in constant communication with Collectors and it was therefore unnecessary to call for direct reports from Collectors before the issue of the communique in question.

"I venture to suggest that if only the Government sent a reference to the Collectors of districts at about the time of the inquiry, especially seeing that looting took place in the second and the third week of September in various places, it would have been possible for them to consult the emergency committees and place specific information at the disposal of the Government. I believe that it would have been more satisfactory if that information had been placed before Your Excellency's Government. The next question which I find was answered in somewhat too technical a manner which technicality might have been left to a Court of Justice, to a Court of Law, is as follows:—

'40 Q.—(a) Will the Government be pleased to state in what districts emergency committees of officials and non-officials were constituted to advise Collectors in matters affecting prices of foodstuffs?

'(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether, before issuing the press communique referred to in the preceding question, they (1) called for or (2) obtained the opinions of such emergency committees regarding the necessity to control the prices of foodstuffs?

'(c) Will the Government be pleased to lay those opinions on the table?

"This is the answer—

"The Honourable Member's attention is drawn to G.O. No. 2258, Revenue, dated the 13th June 1918, in which the formation of emergency committees was decided upon. It was there stated that the principal duty of these committees would be to bring home to the people of the district the need for economy, for avoidance of unnecessary demands on the railways and for use of home products instead of imported supplies. It was added that the local experience of the members would enable them to advise the Collector and through him the Director of Civil Supplies as to the state of supplies and the need for priority certificates, but it was no part of the duties of the committees to advise regarding the necessity to control the prices of foodstuffs, and no reference was made to them on that question."

"Even starting with that answer, which I submit is somewhat too technical and which I submit could have been a little more sympathetic so as to give opportunities to these committees—it is clear that the local experience of the members of the emergency committees would have enabled them to advise the Collector and through him the Director of Civil Supplies as to the state of supplies and the need of priority certificates. If they are in a position to advise the Collector as to the state of supplies, it would follow as a matter of course that they would be in a position to place the necessary information as to whether it is or is not desirable to control the price of foodstuffs. No doubt, that word is not in that Government Order, but if they could advise the Government on one question, they could advise them on another. However it is viewed from a technical point of view, whether that construction is correct or not; when once the emergency committees are formed in the various districts consisting mainly of merchants and landholders, would it not be possible for the Government to obtain first-hand information from the various districts regarding the circumstances therein? I am sorry to find that advantage was not taken of such an opportunity to find the real state of things in this Presidency so far as the various districts are concerned. I speak with some knowledge of this question, because I was myself on one of the emergency committees constituted there. At one of the earlier meetings of the emergency committee, shortly after the looting commenced in one or two places, and shortly before it took a virulent form in September, there was a discussion as to whether the price of foodstuffs should be fixed and controlled or not. In the emergency committee, care was taken to have some landholders who produce large quantities of paddy and who come under the head of 'Producers'. We had on that committee three merchants who trade mostly in rice, who are in the course of one week and without obvious reasons, they pushed up the price of paddy. The price of paddy was Rs. 60 and in two or three days the landowners were not prepared to sell it for less than about 90. There was an informal inquiry in the emergency committee; and neither the landholders nor the merchants were able to give any satisfactory explanation for that increase in prices. The one information we had was that there were some merchants from Dharwar who went to Nellore and who were trying to and willing to purchase at exorbitant prices, and that persons were naturally anxious to push up the prices very suddenly. We tried whether it was desirable to suggest that traffic should be controlled and export put a stop to temporarily; and the deliberate conclusion that they arrived at was that for a short period, export might be stopped. There was information before us that persons from other parts of the Presidency were taking paddy and that something must be done. I am not in a position to state what transpired subsequently between the Collector and the Director of Civil Supplies; but the Collector found it difficult to stop exports with the result that nothing was done. When we found that looting was going on in several places, the merchants that stored large quantities of paddy thought that the only way in which undue profiteering could be controlled was by prohibiting export at least temporarily. I remember that on the second occasion the emergency committee again met and came to the unanimous conclusion that to keep the price at a proper level there should be no export allowed though for a short period. I believe that effect was not given to that resolution with the result that even in places where formerly there was no complaint of shortage of food-grains, no complaints of depletion of stocks, prices have gone up by leaps and bounds. I am mentioning these facts to suggest that though the problem is a difficult one, still in the interests not merely of the poorer classes, but in the interests of the middle classes as well, steps should be taken to control the maximum price of these foodstuffs.

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao; Sir Alexander Cardew.)

"There is another aspect of this question which I wish to place before this Council, as it affects the conclusions arrived at by Your Excellency's Government in that press communique. It is very unfortunate that owing to whatever reasons, owing to whatever information at their disposal, the cause of these looting has been attributed to unbridled political agitation. I think I must take this opportunity of entering my most emphatic protest against that assumption. Those who have been in a position to go from place to place will testify to the fact that the grievance was a real one. You will find that in the long list of places where looting was committed, Nellore was omitted; though it was threatened at Nellore, in the case of the poorer classes some temporary relief was given, some temporary measures were taken and though rice was ordinarily selling at 6 seers, they were supplied at 8 seers though in small quantities. There was a practical stoppage of this threat of looting; and the panic subsided in a short time. I mention this to show that it was not a correct conclusion that was drawn by Your Excellency's Government that looting was due to agitation. There was a real grievance; and they really wanted that something should be done. They found it hard to purchase rice at 4 or 5 seers a rupee and eke out their livelihood; and they were satisfied as soon as relief measures were taken.

"Therefore I would submit, my Lord, that the time has come when some special measures, heroic measures though they may be, should be taken to check the increasing price of foodstuffs. If we only consider the prices given in the Fort St. George Gazette it will be found that, in some places it was 7 seers; but the average for November is published as also for the last 15 years. It will be seen therefrom that the price is abnormally high in every district of the Presidency.

"The only argument that will be advanced, will be that if we begin to prohibit export or check the price of these foodstuffs, some districts might find it difficult to have food supplies. I believe that even in the case of a district like Nellore, before export is allowed, it is necessary that there should be an accurate stock taken of the foodstuffs. Even to places outside the Presidency, foodstuffs have been exported with the result that it is difficult to find adequate supplies even within the Presidency. It is not only necessary to take stock of supplies; it is not only necessary to have only necessary to have special relief measures wherever possible; it is not only necessary to have grain shops opened wherever possible; it is not only necessary that co-operative societies and local bodies in this Presidency should be helped; but it is also necessary to fix the maximum prices of food-grains, so that it might be possible for persons, be they of the middle classes, or of the poorer classes, to eke out their livelihood and get on in this world. So far as persons of the lower classes are concerned, it has been possible to adopt some relief measures though for a short time. It is my experience and I believe the experience of several others in this Council, that it is not possible to carry on relief measures for a long time. We were able to do so only for a temporary period; but again the persons of the lower classes began to complain very soon 'you have been selling rice at 8 seers, but now the merchants have begun to sell it at the usual rates.' The merchants say, 'we have no other alternative as prices have gone up.' With these remarks, I second the resolution. I hope that relief measures, drastic measures if necessary, will be taken to check these abnormal prices."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"Your Excellency, I think I detected in the remarks of the two Honourable Members a certain accusatory tone. I feel sure that the Council will agree that this problem before us should not be regarded as a controversial one in which Government are on one side and Honourable non-official members on the other, but we should endeavour as far as possible, as far as we can, to look at the problem as a whole and take account of the difficulties that surround it and consider what is for the true interests of the Presidency, not in any partisan spirit or biased spirit. Government are, of course, keenly alive and have been for many months, to the serious position which has arisen in this Presidency through the high prices of food-grains. When the subject was before this Council in the month of April last, the difficulty was then largely one of distribution, and the question then was mainly due to want of resources, to reduction of railway rolling stock, and to difficulties in obtaining steamers. But since then a very great additional factor has come into operation and that has been the widespread failure of the south-west rains and the late and partial rain of the north-east monsoon. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Siva Rao, when he told us that matters had become steadily worse since April, of course stated a fact, but he did not tell the Council, he did not himself realize, that the Government had no control over the cause which has made matters worse. The cause which has made matters worse has been the bad season, which necessarily deprived the Presidency of large stocks which otherwise would have been raised and naturally and properly a strong stimulus has thus been created to hold grains from the market.

(Sir Alexander Cardew.)

[20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

"Soon after that meeting of April, we appointed the Director of Civil Supplies and his duties have been stated in answer to one of the questions yesterday. His duties were 'to consider stocks of foodstuffs and other necessities, to receive and examine applications from merchants and others for the movement of traffic, to scrutinize demands and reports sent by District officers, to consult with the railway authorities as to the movement of traffic and to issue certificates for traffic.' That function has been performed, I believe, not only with great care and devotion but also with considerable success, I believe, if you look back at the famine reports, when there was famine in 1887 and 1897, you will find that the absence of a Director of Civil Supplies to control the movement of grain was one of the causes which aggravated the conditions in those years; and the presence of the Director in the last six months has been the means of preventing acute symptoms which otherwise would have arisen.

"The first question we had to consider was whether India had to be treated as a whole and whether there should be free trade inside India or whether the circumstances of each Presidency must be taken into consideration. Naturally wealthy presidencies which had been making large profits by cotton and jute would have liked to treat India as a whole because the resources of their people being higher and the wages also higher, they could afford prices which would have ruined Madras; they could have drawn away all our stock and drained us of our supplies while our people were starving and suffering. The Madras Government have consistently held to the view that each Presidency must be considered to some extent as a separate unit, and that free export cannot be permitted, and to some extent that view has been accepted by the Government of India although its views on this matter have varied a good deal, but practically we have at last succeeded in limiting exports from the Presidency almost entirely and we had with much regret to turn our shoulder on our friends in Ceylon and prevent them from getting our supplies. They too are in difficulties. Then the second question which arose was; was the Presidency within itself to have free trade in grains or was control to be exercised on free movement from one district to another? Here too we were influenced by the same arguments that influenced us with regard to the other Presidencies. A wealthy district could afford a higher scale of prices than a poor district. There was the further reason that if we allowed the free movement of grain from place to place, it might mean that each dealer, if he saw chances of a profit 100 miles away, would move the grain thither, and if there was a profit being secured in another place, he would move the grain there. The railways would be occupied with unnecessary traffic by allowing free trade between districts and therefore with hesitation I think on the whole with sound judgment we have decided that free trade between the districts was to be stopped as far as, at any rate, the movement of grain by rail was concerned. We knew at once that this must result in some suffering in some of the districts by prices being pushed up. We realized that when that occurred, we should then have to relax the prohibition of the transport of grain from district to district and we should have to provide for the transport of grain to those deficit districts. I will come to that later on. Then came the third question on which Honourable Members are most interested whether we should endeavour to fix the maximum prices in the districts or in the Presidency or whether we should try by indirect means by controlling distribution and increasing supplies to control the prices without fixing them. This is the crucial point on which I would very much wish to be able to convince Honourable Members and not merely to put before them formal arguments. I would like them to consider what would follow supposing we were to fix prices. Suppose in the city of Madras we fix the price at four measures a rupee, I would like Honourable Members to consider what would follow. The immediate result would be that no grain would be imported from Burma because at the prices ruling in Burma it cannot be delivered here at four measures a rupee and therefore the main source to which we look to supplement our local supplies would be immediately cut off. No doubt it is true that if we were to take possession of all stocks and hold them, for a time everything would go on very smoothly; but our stocks would be thereby more rapidly denuded and in the absence of imports from Burma catastrophe would necessarily follow unless the Heavens were kind and gave us the rains which they have not done or local sources were able to supply all wants which they are not. Therefore it is a difficult question to fix the prices locally, which I find my Honourable friends are advocating in this resolution. When I came to Madras in September last and had a meeting with the South Indian Chamber of Commerce, we had a most instructive discussion and a gentleman there whose name I forget, who was a dealer in chillies—chillies were in a critical position—we asked this man, 'can you fix the price in Madras this moment?' The price at the time, I forget, say Rs. 1-12-0. He said it was utterly impossible to fix the price because in Guntur, where the chillies come from, we could not get enough, and we could not get any chilli from Guntur if we fixed the price of chilli in Madras. I have never seen that gentleman before, but his evidence was most convincing that we cannot fix the price except at the source of supply. We should go to Guntur and take possession of the crops from the fields, and then fix the price, but to fix here in Madras the price of the chilli would be to immediately stop the introduction of supplies and would produce famine results as soon as the small existing stocks were exhausted. That is an illustration of what would happen if the same principle were applied to rice; if we fix the price of rice at a figure which is below that at the centre from which we draw our supplies, we must immediately be cutting off our supplies by import. We have yet to see in the light of that fact how anything can be done to fix prices. The question is whether prices cannot be controlled at the source. The source for our present purposes is Burma and therefore the real question is whether or not something cannot be done to control prices in Burma. It appears hitherto they are not controlled. There are one or two other aspects of the matter as regards the fixing of prices which I may just notice in passing. One is, so far as I know, that in the worst famine of 1877-78 when millions of people died of starvation, prices were never fixed, the Government never attempted to do so. That is one argument and I suppose we must admit that experience would be of some value. Another point is that it will involve enormous expenditure. Our annual consumption of paddy is about nine millions of tons—that is a rough figure but I believe is approximately correct, our import at the present time—what we want, not what we can get—is about 32,000 tons per mensem or 192,000 tons for six months and in order to sell that small proportion of the total supplies at a cheaper rate, by reducing it by one measure a rupee while we purchase it at three measures a rupee, it would cost over one crore of rupees. Just imagine what will happen if we are unfortunate enough to have a further failure of the monsoon in June or July. We might have to set to work to sell our grain cheaper than the market rate. That is what we are asked to do. We might have expended a crore of rupees in six months in doing so, and on the top of that, we might have a further failure which would leave us in a more disastrous position than we are in now and a great part of our provincial balances already spent. Is it likely that if we did fix the price at four measures a rupee on the small quantity of the grain imported, is it likely that that would force down general prices? That is only 4 per cent of the consumption. If we import 192,000 tons and Government sold it, I doubt whether it will force down the price, because I find it is a matter of common knowledge that the public of this Presidency are so wedded to the food they are used to that they will not use the Burma rice which is cheaper than Madras rice. These are points which should be considered in this connexion. At any rate, for the reasons I have given, I am convinced that it is impossible to fix the prices except at the source, Burma, and therefore we must set to work to deal with the problem as far as possible by indirect methods and by indirect control. I am entirely in favour of Government doing all that is possible by indirect control to reduce the prices. That really brings us as to how we are to produce a decrease of prices by this means. The first of those measures no doubt is the regulation of railway traffic from other provinces. This has been done to some extent by the Director of Civil Supplies and large imports have been brought in from Bihar and Orissa and Bengal; in Ceylon their own stocks were running down and yet the transport to Ceylon has been prohibited. The second means of controlling prices is by the introduction of rice by sea. Here we are in the hands of the Deputy Controller of Shipping in Bombay. This gentleman has been appointed by the Government of India to control all steamers in eastern waters and he has got complete control which is worked with great care and I believe with great efficiency. In this matter, it is a question of hours or days. A steamer which is to-day in Calcutta will go to Rangoon and will be allowed three days or four days for being loaded and at the end of that period, so many days will be allowed for the voyage and for unloading and so many days and it will then be again ready for another place. All the steamers in Indian waters are being controlled by this officer, and he is responsible for giving us sufficient tonnage. I have nothing whatever to complain of regarding his treatment of this Presidency. He has given us steamers to a very considerable extent, but our main difficulty has not arisen from lack of tonnage but from the difficulty of getting the steamers filled. For instance, he offered us a steamer for Negapatnam and if we could have got it filled, we could have about 15,000 bags conveyed into Tanjore district. Unfortunately no merchants in Tanjore or Negapatnam would come forward to fill that steamer. Their position is quite intelligible. Rangoon prices are high and the moment we begin to buy in Rangoon, up goes the price. A further complication exists in the fact that there is a possibility at any moment of the Government stepping in to control the price in Rangoon. Suppose some one purchases grain and in 24 hours the Government fix the prices there; then this rice will have to be sold at a loss. That brings us back again to the necessity of control of prices in Rangoon. Until that is done, it is extremely difficult to see what remedy there is for the present position. Many representations have been made to the Government of India on these points and the Government of India have taken various action. It has prohibited, practically at any rate, what was going on in the export of rice from Burma to countries outside India, Japan and Java. That was going on till two months ago to a considerable extent and that necessarily affected the prices in Rangoon; but steps have been taken to withdraw some of the licences which were granted and the grant of further licences has been suspended and I understand that something definite has been achieved. I understand also that the Government of India has prevented the export of rice from Rangoon to Bengal, which is not a deficit province. But the final step which they have taken was taken so long ago as the 11th October and that is to appoint a Foodstuffs Commissioner for the whole of India with full power to take possession of supplies in Rangoon and distribute them to every Province according to its needs and to direct the whole course of trade. That is the most important step which we urged upon the Government of India and the Bombay Government also urged upon them and I am glad to say it has been taken. I am not in a position at present to tell the Council how exactly we are going to operate in this matter. Mr. Gubbay has been appointed Foodstuffs Commissioner. He has a great reputation for ability and we have every hope that under his control matters will be sensibly improved in future. We understand that Mr. Gubbay reached Rangoon two days ago and he is now there examining this question and seeing how he is going to exercise control of grain supplies in Rangoon. Until he has elaborated his machinery and decided what steps he is to take, the Madras Government are quite helpless in the matter. We can only wait for his decision. If he succeeds in taking over large stocks of Rangoon rice and bringing down prices, there must be a collapse in prices as has occurred in the case of cotton piece-goods. Until he does that,

[20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

(Sir Alexander Cardew.)

(Sir Alexander Cardew; Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.) [20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

I can see no remedy. I do not believe that the benefit of the high prices in Rangoon is going into the pockets of the ryots. From the information we have, it does not look like it. It goes no doubt into the pockets of the middleman who holds up the stocks and whenever there is an attempt to buy, pushes up the price. The Ceylon Government are finding exactly the same difficulty, the same attempt to exploit them for the benefit of the middleman and it is for Mr. Gubbay to deal with the problem as fast as possible. I think if the matter is looked at from that point, if Honourable Members realize that fixing prices in Madras without reference to our supplies coming from Burma would be disastrous and would stop the influx of supplies, it will be realized that the true remedy is to fix prices in Rangoon. I am sure you will agree that no detached action in this Presidency would produce the results which we all have at heart. I do not know really, after that statement of the Government's position, whether I need detain the Council very much longer. As regards the question of rioting, of course, we all know and everybody agrees that the immediate cause of the riots was a real grievance which the people felt, not at the high prices but at seeing stocks being exported out of the district and large stocks being at hand and this was natural. But the fact is that prices are higher now than then and yet rioting has ceased. The rioting therefore must have been due to an epidemic which went all over the Presidency beginning from Vizagapatam and coming down to Madras. It was evidently due to the general disordered condition of the public mind. They said 'it is a shame that we should pay high prices; there is a lot of grain here and Government have not got power to step in' and they actually believed that in many cases Government officials sympathized with looting and were not going to attempt to stop them. I suppose that was—I do not think any one can doubt—that was the cause which contributed to the sudden outbreak. The evidence was not in favour of the rioting having been done by starving people but the evidence was in favour of the rioting having been mainly by rowdies. It is almost proved that it was so by the character of the people who were convicted. In Salem, for instance, some people who were convicted were found to have taken away the doors of shops they looted and they were traced to railway coolies. The high prices no doubt were the cause immediate but the general feeling of unrest, the feeling that Government could be treated with a fair amount of contempt encouraged them to do things which they have never done before and which since the measures taken to stop it, they have not done again although conditions are worse now than they were.

"The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao referred to my speech in April and asked whether the time had not come when something should be done to relieve distress. That brings me really to the second question touched upon in the second part of the resolution, to which the speeches have been hardly directed. In some parts of the Presidency, the time has come when action will have to be taken. In this matter of relief, the experience of the last 30 or 40 years is crystallized in the rules of the Famine Code and by the rules of that Code Government propose to guide themselves because they represent the teaching of experience of the past famines of 1877 and 1897, in fact, all the famines which have occurred during the past 40 years. If you read the history of the famine of 1877, you will see how they were groping in the dark in the absence of a Code. The Famine Code lays down the main principle that the necessity for relief is to be tested by the willingness to work at a wage sufficient to keep a person alive. That is the principle which the Government will follow now. I had an interview with the Collector of Bellary two days ago and he told me that he thought that the time had come when we must begin, if there is a necessity for it, relief works in some portions of the district. The taluks of Bellary are now at a stage that even if rain fell, little good will be done. As soon as arrangements can be made to open works in those portions of the district we hope to do so. No other Collector has as yet reported, and I trust that in no other district it will be necessary that relief works should be opened. I hope that no other district will reach that position. I understand the agency taluks in Gōdāvari also are in a bad condition. We will have to take action towards relief of distress. These are the two parts at present where danger is actually felt and some action to deal with it is necessary. That is the position; but as Honourable Members well know, conditions have been changing in the last month from day to day. The rainfall in the Ceded districts in the last fortnight has been good and the whole difficulty may have been greatly reduced if not removed. In Gōdāvari if only the rains had extended inland, the crops would have been saved and there would have been no trouble at all. Something depends upon the course of the season. I can only assure the Council that a most careful watch is kept. The Board has called for reports from all Collectors as to the position in each district and wherever the necessity exists we shall at once apply the Famine Code and open test works; and if people come to them and apply for relief, relief will be given for the population. I hope the Council will think that that is a right course. Personally I cannot think that we can give away rice free except to the sick, the maimed and the disabled. We must apply the rules found most effective by our predecessors, which will prevent any very serious calamity. Government can only say again that they are determined to meet the necessities of the case in accordance with the principles which I have attempted to lay down and they believe that by applying these principles, though we may have to go through a period of distress and difficulty we shall be able to save the people from any serious catastrophe."

The Council then adjourned for a short interval and re-assembled at 3 p.m. when the discussion on the resolution about high prices was resumed.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBI MARAKKAYAR:—Your Excellency, I fully sympathise with the Honourable mover and the Honourable seconder of this resolution. It is high time that Government should take such steps as will alleviate the present difficulty. I do not call this a famine, but we are expecting a bigger famine next year, as the condition of the present crops is so bad that we could hardly expect 25 per cent crops. I do not know if the controlling of prices in the districts will work all right. It is not mirasdars and merchants that make money. It is the mill-owners that are making huge profits. They purchase all or almost all the paddy and stock the same with them. They mill the paddy as they wish and sell the paddy as they like. The price of local chamba rice was Rs. 13 a month ago. Now it is Rs. 19. If at all there should be any restriction or control, it should be on the mill-owners. As a merchant myself who has interest in shipping rice to Ceylon and Straits Settlements, sacrificing my own interest for the sake of the public, I suggested to the Director of Civil Supplies through the Collector in the capacity of an Emergency Committee member, to prohibit shipment to Ceylon and Straits Settlements for some time, until such time as the supply of food-stuffs is sufficiently safeguarded. I think, my Lord, this is one of the best remedies that Your Excellency's Government should adopt. I know, as a matter of fact, this order has been passed. What I mean is that this order should be continued for some time. I do not think that we could prohibit export from one district to another within the Presidency. There are some districts which are badly suffering from famine; such districts must be provided with sufficient food-stuffs from other districts of the Presidency and if necessary even from other Provinces. By putting a stop to exports of rice, to Ceylon and Straits Settlements, I am sure the people will grumble but we can tell them to go to Burma. Burma could supply any amount of grain. We can easily tell Ceylon and other Colonies, 'charity begins at home.' Now, my Lord, the next point is to remedy the evil. As the war is now over, I am sure almost all the steamers will be released and prices will, in the natural course of things, go down when merchants will be able to import a large amount of cargo from Burma.

[20TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.)

"With regard to the price at Burma I should say that the mill-owners of Burma are merely gambling with them. There is a business called 'chattai' in Hindustani; they contract in rice from one month to another and thereby they are making any amount of profit. It is these people who spoil the market and increase the prices. They are always on the alert to see how far the market in India goes up and accordingly they raise the price. They have a regular set of brokers under them, they are paid by them indirectly to raise prices to their own interests. All such things as suggested by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew will be put a stop to if the Government of India will appoint a Controller for Rangoon. When the merchants are able to consign large quantity from Rangoon and compete with the local merchants, if Your Excellency's Government really think that the merchants of this place are purposely raising the price, we can easily put a stop to it. If such arrangement is made after the steamers are freely allowed to sail, freely from one port to another and the price at Rangoon, the price that is already unduly increased on purpose, is controlled, famine in India or rather in the Madras Presidency will be easily averted.

"The next point I wish to say is the difficulty of merchants in importing large quantities of rice into Madras and Negapatam which is on account of the high prices that are in existence at Rangoon. (As suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Knapp), I sent a telegram to my firm at Rangoon to quote the price of paddy. I got a reply—paddy 170 for 100 baskets each bag containing 3½ baskets and measuring 2½ small kalams which works out to Rs. 4 a kalam and Rs. 11 per bag. This is a very high rate. I do not think we can import any grain at this price and sell them locally to help the poor. As a matter of fact, I thought of getting a steamer through the help of the Government and asked my firm to ship about 1,000 or 1,500 tons and land the rice at Madras and selling it for a small profit. Of course as a merchant, nobody would expect me to sell it at a loss but what I could do is to reduce the profit to a slender margin to cover risks and loss. As I mentioned to the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew, it is possible to reasonably combine philanthropy and business. I see from the present state of affairs that I am not at present able to undertake this important and big business. So I have wired to my firm in Rangoon to be on the alert and immediately the price goes down to 115 to let me know and then I will be able to assist the Government and the people in getting a steamer loaded with cargo and sell rice at a nominal profit. I have also wired to Akyab where I was told the price is cheap. If that price is suitable, I shall undertake to import a large quantity from there. One other reason why the price in Rangoon is high in addition to the reasons stated before, is that the crop seasons are over; and by the end of December or the beginning of January they will get a new crop when the price will go down considerably and when we will be able to compete with local merchants who wilfully raise the price and profiteer, causing a good deal of hardship and inconvenience to the poorer classes of people. As suggested by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew, if such things as the addressing of the Government of India to undertake the question of supplying steamers at a cheaper freight, with the Controller of Steamers in Bombay, are carried out, I am sure that will help us a great deal, as also the appointment of the Controller at Rangoon. With regard to the question of prohibition of export of rice to Ceylon and Straits Settlements: I strongly recommend that the order should be continued for some time. Otherwise, I am afraid merchants at the ports will considerably increase the price and compete with local merchants and mill-owners who are now demanding Rs. 19 and who might demand even Rs. 25. So I strongly recommend that the order issued by the Director of Civil Supplies prohibiting rice supply to Ceylon and the Straits should be continued for some time longer till the grave situation we are faced with, is relieved and prices touch a figure within the reach of those most affected and show a tendency to remain firm. With these few remarks I support the resolution."

(Sir Gordon Fraser.)

[20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER :—“ Your Excellency, I agree in the main with the remarks made by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew with reference to this resolution. The resolution, in the first place, asks for the control of prices of food-stuffs and in the second place for relief measures in the worst affected areas. As regards the second part of the resolution, I think as necessity arises, we can leave this very well in the hands of our Local Government. The main question before us is the control of prices and there is no doubt, as the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew has explained to us, that the problem bristles with difficulties. I think all Members of this Council, European non-officials as well as Indian non-officials and officials also are very much in sympathy with the object aimed at in this resolution. The only question is: Is it practicable, can we bring any scheme into force that will enable us to attain the end aimed at? I am afraid unless the Government of India come to the assistance of the local Government, very little can be done to keep prices down to a reasonable level. The wording of the resolution is that ‘steps may be immediately taken for checking the abnormal prices of food-stuffs.’ The natural way to check the abnormal price, is to get further supplies and not to control prices in the consuming markets when the goods are imported from a foreign market where there is no control. To do this would simply mean the cutting out of our supplies as the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew has explained to us. That this would result was shown by the events which succeeded the recent looting in Madras. Immediately after the looting, prices were reduced by the dealers probably in fear of further trouble but this had the immediate effect of the dealers of Madras stopping the import of rice from Rangoon. My firm does not deal in rice, it is a commodity which we have never touched, it is mostly in the hands of other dealers in the town; but the immediate result of these regular dealers stopping imports was that we had offers from Rangoon. We had telegrams saying that so many tons of space were available on the Rangoon steamers—they made us offers of the rice—and we accepted. It seems to me it is almost criminal, under the present conditions, to allow steamers to leave Rangoon for Madras with hundreds of tons space available. It commended itself to my firm and the total quantity we bought was about 2,000 tons which is at present on its way to Madras. This is bought at a very high price at Rangoon. We cannot help it, the price in Rangoon was high; but even then, even with those high prices, it seemed to me that it was a better policy to take advantage of the opportunity to have that high priced rice in Madras than to leave it in Rangoon. I do not want to condemn the regular dealers; but I think it shows rather a lack of public spirit to drop out like that, although from a business point of view it was perfectly sound. The price in Rangoon was high and there was practically no hope of making any profit. I propose to continue buying even though the price is high. It is evident that food supplies in our Presidency are short of our requirements and we are dependent for our balance upon Bengal and Burma and especially on Burma. In Burma, supplies at present are fairly large and ample and there is a very large crop, a record crop coming on very shortly. It is evident then that we must look to Burma to make up this deficiency and bring our supplies up to our demands. It is Burma that we must look to and I consider that this is only possible provided the Government of India will come in and help us. We want the Government of India to take steps to ensure that our Presidency receives a sufficient supply of rice from Rangoon to make up the deficiency that now exists in our own Presidency. If this is done, I am quite sure we can look with the greatest confidence to the local Government to take steps to distribute that rice and to see that the rice reaches the consumer without any unnecessary profits—without any profiteering on the part of the middleman. The control of the Government of India must be at the source of supply. I do not think it is justifiable on the part of the Government of India at present, allowing export of rice to foreign countries while we, in India and in this Presidency, are suffering from shortage. There is no doubt that other countries have been offering high prices, prices which resulted in large profits to Rangoon merchants; but like my Honourable friend I also think that ‘charity begins at home’, and until we are ensured against scarcity in India and in our own Presidency some restrictions should be placed on the free trade that is now going on from Rangoon to foreign countries. Unless prices are reduced and has been explained by my Honourable friend, merchants to buy in Burma at the rate of three measures per rupee which is approximately the price ruling there and retail it to consumers in Madras at 3½ measures or 4 measures a rupee. That cannot be done. I understand that steps have been taken to prohibit transport of food-stuffs from one district to another in the Presidency and also that steps are being taken that in districts where there are excessive supplies, these excessive supplies should be moved to districts where they are necessary. This of India from Burma should, I think, considerably relieve the present scarcity in Madras. In regard to the question of controlling, if districts are divided into water-tight compartments in the districts are in excess of the demand or equal to the requirements, but in any district where the supply is not equal to the requirements of that particular district I cannot see how any control could be effected. Because, you would have to rely upon the imported rice, whether imported from overseas or from the adjacent districts. The prices ruling overseas or in the adjacent districts will be the prices that you will have to pay. This is what is happening in this Presidency between us and Burma. I think the Honourable mover of the resolution referred to this question of controlling at the source of supply; or rather he referred to the control that has been brought into force in the case of kerosene oil. That is another case where control at the source of supply has been effective. The action taken by the Madras Government is to control the distribution, but in addition to that, we have had control at the source of supply from the commencement of the war, because oil companies from the commencement of the war fought hard against any profiteering and they kept their prices down with a view to letting the consumer have his oil at a reasonable figure. Control at the source of supply has been in existence all along, but oil companies not being official, they found they were quite helpless to put a stop to profiteering and they had to go to Government and represent their case and eventually a scheme was devised for this control and since then the Government and the oil companies have been working jointly to ensure that the oil reaches the consumer at a reasonable figure. I think the Honourable seconder of the resolution referred to possible objection being raised on account of the interference with private trade. But I think that is quite unnecessary. I cannot imagine that any objections from traders will be brought forward that action by Government in cases such as the present will be in any way interfering with private trade. The necessity for acting for the benefit of the general public and the country justifies in a case such as the present action by the Government, to try and alleviate any distress that is existing. The first thing, then in my opinion, is the control of prices at the source of supply. Secondly, I think the Government might well take some steps to try and prevent profiteering; in other words, see that the rice that is brought into this country is retailed and distributed with what we might call a reasonable margin of profit. I think there will be very little difficulty in doing this. If we grant for a moment that the appointment of Mr. Gubbay is going to result in further supplies, it would not then be difficult to devise a scheme whereby all the rice imported into this Presidency should come to certain licensed dealers who would be on the list previously compiled by the Director of Civil Supplies and all these dealers who receive the rice should be under a promise to retail it at a fixed margin of profit per bag. I think there will be very little difficulty in arranging this. There is one point that may be advanced and that is a sound one, if one wants to go into the position carefully. I am not putting it forward as an argument against control. In Rangoon we find a rise in prices and we find buyers of this rice from foreign countries at the higher prices. We now say: ‘control those prices, so that buyers may get it cheaply.’ That is, you are going to give foreign countries rice at lower prices and to do that, you are going to mulct the Rangoon ryot or the Rangoon merchant. Take the case of cotton. Cotton stands at Rs. 500 a candy, it has fallen since; suppose we had cotton mills here and Rangoon came along and said, ‘we cannot pay more than Rs. 300’ and then control came into existence to keep the prices down to Rs. 300, you would then benefit the foreigner also who wants to buy cotton, at the expense of the men of the country. That may happen in the case of rice. The only way to get over it is, it seems to me, to leave the Rangoon market absolutely free for trade to foreign countries, for the Government of Madras to go in and buy their rice at current prices, bring it over here and sell it at lower prices and stump up the loss, or in other words, to make it a bounty. That is the danger I put forward as against control in Rangoon. There is the danger that you give foreign countries the benefit at the expense of the Burmese ryot, or dealer. It is a very difficult question and it is very difficult to know how to vote on this subject. We are all in sympathy with the resolution and, instead of having a division on it, I would suggest that the matter might receive further consideration at the hands of the Government to see whether some scheme might not be devised, on the lines I have suggested. If you could get the rice, there is no difficulty at all in getting licensed dealers, in Madras and if that could be done, I shall be in favour of it. I hope the Government will take some action in that direction.”

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

(Sir Gordon Fraser; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—“ We all recognize the importance and the seriousness of the situation; and if I refer to what may be done and do not refer to what has already been done by the Government, it is not because I do not appreciate what has been done, but it is because I wish to make some suggestions as to what may further be done in order to relieve the situation. There are two causes, namely, the inadequacy of supply or production and the unsatisfactory nature of the distribution. As regards the first, that is the inadequacy of supply or production, Government should arm themselves with full and complete information as to the quantity now available and as to the quantity which is likely to be available in the next year. This information has become absolutely necessary in view of the failure of the south-west monsoon and also in view of the failure of the north-east monsoon. Too much expectation should not be raised by the fall of rains in the coast towns, the rain has been too abundant in these coast stations and where it went, it has been coming too profusely to be of any use to the crops on the land. On the other hand, if you get 35½ inches in the course of two or three weeks, no crop can survive such an attack; and therefore I do not think we can expect much from the recent rainfall that we have been blessed with. I wish it had been distributed over several months, but it came all too sudden and all too much. Therefore it is that I rather regret that the information called for and suggested in questions Nos. 17, 50, 53, 54, 104, 105 and 106 on the agenda has not been obtained. Government say they have not got the information or that they do not consider it necessary to get the information in certain cases. As has been pointed out by the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser just now, we will have to ask for information as regards the districts and we must have full information and we will have to make water-tight compartments of districts themselves. And therefore the information called for as regards cultivation of dry and wet grains in the various firkas of the districts will be necessary. I also notice that Government say that they did not get information as to the price of cloths. I think in these abnormal times Government should not be content with getting merely formal returns. They should open more columns in the return and get more information. They must arm themselves with information as to the quantity now available and likely to be available.

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. Thonger.) [20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

"As regards the other question about control of prices, it is a very difficult question indeed. But we have complete faith and confidence in the statesmanship of the Government to tide over the difficulties. Too much emphasis should not be laid on the difficulties. If we always think too much of the difficulties even in our private affairs, we shall be dissuaded from taking the steps which we ought to take. Difficulties should not be exaggerated. Government have controlled and have succeeded. I will instance wheat; I will instance hides; I will instance cotton-goods and also kerosene-oil. Where the Government have taken steps to control prices, they have succeeded in keeping down the prices and therefore I do expect Government to take steps in the matter; it is easy for them to take measures to control prices. I am afraid too much stress is laid on the rice question. We have got ragi, cumbu and cholam, and other local products which are all completely under the control of the Madras Government. The source of production of these crops is mostly in the Presidency and probably in the neighbouring province of Bombay. As regards chillies, the source is a neighbouring district and these stuffs are, I submit, under the control of the Local Government. I mean the source of production is under the control of the Local Government and I think that Government can take steps to control the prices at the places of production. Even as regards rice, one is often struck with the quotation of prices. The price in the suburban towns is Rs. 15 per bag, whereas in the interior of the district it is sold for Rs. 25 or Rs. 30. That shows that there is a great deal of profiteering. Control of prices is one thing and probably annexed to it is the control of profits. The Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser has hinted what Government may do in that direction, of controlling the profits of the merchant. Suppose a man buys at Rs. 100; let him not sell it at more than Rs. 105 or Rs. 110. That is a matter which the Government can safely take on hand. I do think that profits go up from place to place. In answer to an interpellation to-day Government say they have no information. That will hardly do. You must have information not only from municipal areas, but from outside as regards the prevalent prices. I do think in the interior parts, especially in ignorant places, prices go up and people are not able to buy the necessary foodstuffs for their sustenance. For instance, kar paddy sells at Rs. 3 per kalam and samba paddy at Rs. 3-14-0 and Rs. 3-12-0 in the Tanjore district. That is an unheard of thing. Even in the great famine of 1877 when people suffered very much, our best paddy was sold at only Rs. 3 per kalam. This shows that famine conditions have been reached so far as rice is concerned and even more than famine condition. I do not think at this time when ravages are committed by influenza and people are affected to a very high degree both by the high prices and by the prevalence of this disease, Government should swear only by the Famine Code. The Famine Code is made for certain conditions of agricultural distress produced by failure of rains. Government at a time like this must extend their operations beyond even the strict limitations of the Famine Code. Again there is such a thing as controlling freights. Much difficulty is caused by the recent rise in the railway and steamer freights. I do think that the Railway Companies have made huge profits. They made the war an excuse for putting up the freight and I do think that this Government or the Government of India at the instance of this Government should control freights. Certainly the time has come when freights should be reduced to their normal conditions. The Government, I am sorry to note, are laying too much burden on local bodies. The other day Mr. Wood speaking in the Corporation said that Government expected local bodies to take up this matter. In fact, the Corporation of Madras are trying to do their best to go outside the law. They are not entitled—in fact they are breaking the law—to spend money on the purchase of goods and supply it to the poor. They are breaking the law indeed. I think many a local body, if you throw this burden on them, will break down and you cannot expect them to bear the burden; it is too much to expect them to bear the burden. As the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew pointed out, it is the magnitude of the expenditure which stands in the way of the Government doing much. If the all-powerful Government are afraid of expenditure, how much can these poor local bodies do if you are going to entrust them with this work? I do not think it is proper or wise to trust them or even to private charity to do much in a matter like this.

"Again, I would point out that steps can be taken by the Local Government and I do trust they will put pressure upon the Government of India in the matter of controlling the price of rice in Burma. Public opinion all over the country will support the Government and I do ask the Government to put on more steam. We cannot be waiting long. From April last we have been urging on the Government to take steps; the people have been hoping for Government action and they cannot continue to starve. I think we must put more pressure upon the Government of India to help the Local Government to take a generous step to protect the people from this situation."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—"Your Excellency, every right-minded man must be in sympathy with a resolution of this kind. I have nothing whatever to do with the rice trade, and I do not know how it is conducted; but I, like every one else in this Presidency, cannot help seeing that prices have risen to such a point that the unfortunate low-paid Indian can hardly live. I am in full sympathy with the resolution, but I cannot say that I am in sympathy with all the arguments which the Honourable member may have brought forward. I could not hear a single word, but so far as his arguments are sound I should naturally support him. The Council should render a hearty vote of thanks to the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew for the elaborate way in which he has explained the steps that the Government are taking to meet the situation. I have no doubt the Government are fully aware of the dangers of interfering with trade. It gets into regular channels and it has characteristics which must be observed; otherwise, there is the danger that the object which the Government have in view will defeat itself. I am in practical agreement with the Government in saying that the right thing to do is to control prices at the source. Even then there is a danger which must not be overlooked. How are you going to control the prices? If you are going to fix them on a definite basis, how are you going to arrive at that basis? Care must be taken to see that it is a that control of prices had been successful in the case of oil. It may have been, but oil is a different product to rice. An oil well produces nothing but oil. Government may fix a price at which it must be sold, and whether it is an altogether satisfactory price or not the oil is still there. If, on the other hand, the Government say that rice must be sold at a certain price, and that price does not pay the producer, then rice will not be grown and other crops will take their place. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew said that the source of control must be Rangoon. To a certain extent I agree. I believe he also said that the amount of rice that came from Rangoon is infinitesimal as compared with the consumption in the Presidency which is some millions of tons. What is the good, gentlemen, of controlling supplies which amount to something like 198,000 tons in six months, when you want millions of tons which are not controlled? Is it not possible for Government to have some kind of organization to control the growing of rice and the collection of rice at various centres in this Presidency, as is being done by Mr. Gubbay in Rangoon? If Rangoon is a smaller source of supply than this Presidency, it seems to me very essential that the supply in the Presidency should be controlled to a greater extent than the source of the smaller supply. It has also been suggested that if we cannot control the retail trade, we might at any rate control retail profits. The same danger lies here. If you once get the rice trade away from the usual channels, what channels are you going to put it into? You must consequently consider very carefully what is a reasonable profit. You must know what a merchant's working expenses are, for if the profit is not such as to cover all his expenses, that man will turn to some other trade.

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Thonger ; Mr. Venkatapati Raju ;
Sir Alexander Cardew.)

"There is also another point which I should like to mention. I think stricter control should be exercised as to where the rice goes to from inside the Presidency to outside the Presidency. I know very well that we have a Director of Supplies who is supposed to know where every ton of rice goes to. There is however a feeling, and I believe it is justified, that rice is still going outside which ought not to do. If the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew wants to get farther information on the point, I have no doubt he can get it.

"Another point he raised, which I think is a very important one, is about the Famine Code. He said that if it becomes necessary to establish relief works, they will be established on well defined lines which have been proved to be sound as the result of many years' experience. Might I suggest that the Famine Code will not produce rice? The present complaint is not a complaint of want of work. There is plenty of work and the ordinary coolie can still earn his daily wage. What he wants is rice, and if he cannot buy the rice with the pay that he is earning how is he going to buy it with the money which he is going to earn from famine works? At the present time the Famine Code does not meet the requirements of the situation. Famine works are all very well in their way when there is rice to be got, and when the man on the spot has not got money wherewith to buy it.

"The question of expense has also been raised, that it might cost one crore to save these famine-stricken people. Let us make up our minds to spend the money if it is necessary. We cannot restore dead men—we can make more ropes. I support the Government most heartily in all the measures that they have taken and it is evident from what has been said that they have a wide grasp of the subject, but may I ask whether they have gone down sufficiently deep in details?"

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I understand that along with this resolution we are discussing resolutions Nos. XXI* and XXII*."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"I wish to mention that resolution No. XXII is not covered, but only XXI."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I take it therefore that resolutions XXI*, VII* and XXII* are now covered."

* The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"The Hon'ble Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju in Council that the Government be pleased to make preliminary arrangements for the organization of the system of village inspection and appointment of gratuitous relief staff, and to undertake sanctioned works of utility in villages such as village communications and irrigation works in localities where there is failure of rains and rise of prices and generally where distress is prevalent."

† XXII. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the Government be pleased to provide necessary funds to the Agricultural department for purchase of seeds in large quantities and to supply the same to the agriculturalists at cost price in localities where there is dearth of seed-grains owing to the failure of crop.

‡ The Hon'ble Mr. A. B. KANNARA RAU:—"The Hon'ble Mr. A. B. Kannara Rau in Council to take immediate steps to control the maximum prices of food-grains in the Presidency."

§ The Hon'ble Mr. P. SWA RAU:—"The Hon'ble Mr. P. Swa Rau in Council that suitable steps may be immediately taken for checking the abnormal prices of food-grains and other necessities of life, and also that relief measures may be adopted in the worst-affected parts of the Presidency caused thereby and also by the failure of the last season."

400 RESOLUTION RE MEASURES TO BE ADOPTED TO ALLEVIATE
THE SITUATION DUE TO HIGH PRICES.

(Mr. Venkatapati Raju; Sir Fairless Barber.) [20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

"Your Excellency, after the speech of the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew, much of the opposition was disarmed by the conciliatory tone adopted by him in not provoking unnecessary discussion about political matters and importing them into this discussion. There was a serious trouble which was admitted and the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew admitted that it was the duty of the Government and Honourable Members to co-operate with the people and to devise some measures to relieve them. Therefore, taking that view of the matter, we need not introduce any heat into the discussion, but we shall calmly consider whether the Government have done what they ought to do and what are the necessary measures to be adopted in this connexion. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew stated that we are bound to go by the rules of the Famine Code. Therefore, if scarcity rates are not reached, we need not bother ourselves. In the Famine Code they have not stated that the Government ought not to do any such thing. These are only instructions given under certain circumstances. The Collectors ask the Board of Revenue whether they should do any particular thing, but Government are perfectly entitled to take the necessary action whenever they find that there is distress prevailing in the country. I may at once state that the figures as they are published from time to time in the Fort St. George Gazette are not quite accurate. Our own personal experience shows with reference to the towns in which we live that, when it was shown as 6 or 7 seers, the actual price is far less; most Honourable Members who have got actual experience of this matter can vouch for that fact. Most of these figures are prepared in some katchoheri as a matter of routine and are passed on to Government. If special steps were taken by the Collector to find out the real price actually paid by an ordinary man and if special attention is paid to finding out the prices, then we will know the exact prices and then we will form an exact idea of the situation. After knowing the exact price, we can then adopt certain steps. There is one defect which cannot be ignored or which cannot be omitted. That fact is, knowing as we do, that we are in a scientific age, have the Government at any time during the last five months when famine rates were prevalent taken steps to ascertain what was the exact quantity of foodstuffs available in the Presidency, village by village, what was necessary for normal consumption and from what source the produce has to be brought in. We have got in that Fort St. George Gazette general information; for instance, in Vizagapatam, it is said that grain stocks are not available in the greater part of the district. So also in Kurnool and in another district and two taluks. In this scientific age, we must know accurately what was available actually and what was actually wanted. The information given in the gazette is not a detailed or an accurate information. Government have allowed looting at 96 places, I do not mean to say that Government are directly responsible for it, but they are indirectly responsible in this way that if they had taken necessary steps, there would have been no lootings. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew stated that on account of the steps taken by the Government, there were no lootings subsequently. If they had paid some attention in May or June, there would have been no lootings in July and after. The difficulty also is with reference to the food control between districts. In the interests of the people, Government want to introduce restrictions, but instead of helping the people, as a matter of fact, it is adding cost to the consumer, for instance, grain was prohibited from Gōdāvari into Vizagapatam district. There is only one river Tuni interceding. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew said that we generally prevent any transfer by rail, and that by carts even, grain will not be allowed to be removed. Then what is done is when the consumer has grain at a place within a furlong from the other place, he has to pay illegal gratification to the man who stops at the gate. He pays him one rupee or more in order to get his rice. Instead of paying it to the person to whom it should go he has to pay others, in order to get it not by legal means but by illegal means. This is known to officers also but they cannot prevent such a thing. If grain is available within a mile from the place in which you are living and if you have money where grain is not available, you will find some means or other to get the grain. Instead of doing that, wherever there is available stock in one district, there should be no prohibition to get it into other districts. That is practically done in districts where Collectors take some interest. The Collector of Vizagapatam and the Collector of Ganjam met at Chicacole and arranged that from one or two places they would allow the import of grain to Vizagapatam; there are no prohibitions against Collectors arranging transport. But in order to find out whether any such thing has to be done, we must first of all have a clear idea of the stock available. We have a belated issue of a Government Order wherein the Government propose to ascertain the available stock. If that is done, and if the exact stock is known, that will be a sure way to find out how best to meet the situation. We will have to get from Rangoon or from some other place where it is possible to get it. With reference to these matters, neither the Famine Code nor any other Code prevents us from giving advances to agriculturists to purchase available material, stocks for agricultural purposes under the Agriculturists Loans Act; and in these hard days steps might also be taken in the way of delaying the collection of assessment. All these things might be done instead of leaving things alone. The only thing wanted is energy. If some energy is put into the matter and some interest is taken, many minor things can be done which do not require the authority of any Code, but which requires ordinary understanding of how the people who are actually suffering can be helped. Under these circumstances, I expect, from the sympathetic way in which the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew wants to treat the subject, he would be taking the necessary action not only in the Bellary district, but in all the districts where the Collectors report that there is distress prevailing irrespective of the fact whether scarcity rates prevail or not. If there is distress, some steps should be taken by the Government."

The Hon'ble Sir FAIRLESS BARBER:—"Your Excellency, this matter is of much importance to my community and I have listened to the debate with interest. It may not be generally

RESOLUTION RE MEASURES TO BE ADOPTED TO ALLEVIATE 401
THE SITUATION DUE TO HIGH PRICES.

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Sir Fairless Barber; Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar; known, but, as a rule when prices rose high, the loss is borne by the estates and the coolies get their food at very much lower rate than the current market price. It is for this reason that we feel that we should not have to put up with the situation. The expenditure is serious as it is. Our manager is getting six measures for a rupee and if he sells at 8 measures to our coolies, we can easily see that his expenses will mount up. It is for this reason that I wish to emphasise what the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser said with regard to profiteering. There should be some control over local markets and also over the Burma market up country and some steps taken to see that the price bears a ratio to that in the nearest centre. Just before lunch, I gave the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar figures which he has used. First-class rice is selling at Rs. 15 and it is selling at Rs. 22 in Pollachi. That was last Saturday. A little while ago, Mysore rice was being sold at Cocanada in retail at a price varying between Rs. 27 and Rs. 33. I should like to ask the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew while agreeing that it would be profitable to control the price at the source, whether nothing can be done to control the price at intermediate places and whether power could not be given to Divisional Officers if any complaint is sent to them to deal with it forthwith. In the case of price at Manantoddy, I wrote to the Collector and he said that he was unable to do anything in the matter. There is one point which the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger has said and I agree with him. I think it would be quite necessary to control the local grain crop. If control over the surplus is exercised in Burma, it will automatically control the prices in local products. I thank the Government for the interest that they are taking in this matter, and that interest has been shown and a great deal of assistance has been already given to the planters in getting grain through and I should like particularly to thank the Divisional officers who have helped us."
Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I do not propose to say much, for the subject has been already sufficiently discussed. I only wish to lay before this Council the information that I have in reply to a letter that I addressed to the President of the local Emergency Committee, the Director of Civil Supplies, who told me that he was issuing his certificates 'fairly freely'. Those are the words. I then took objection to that aspect in which he was dealing with the matter, but inasmuch as he told me that if there was local scarcity, I had better address the Collector of the district. I then addressed the Collector and there the matter stands at present. Therefore, I wish to place for the earnest consideration of the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew and the Government this fact that it is as much necessary to prohibit an inordinate rise of prices, not only in other places like Burma and others, but it is equally necessary to prohibit the rise of prices in areas which produce rice, because as has been often said there is a great deal of profiteering unprohibited and uncured, profiteering which ought to be condemned in the true interests of the public at large. With regard to the other matters, I think sufficient has been said to place before the Government which already realize to the fullest extent, the importance of the scheme and I earnestly trust that the Government will do their utmost in the matter. I may say I generally agree in the main with the attitude taken by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew with regard to this question."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew began by saying that the speeches of the Hon'ble Mr. P. Siva Rao and the Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao began with some controversial matter. I may assure him on my own behalf and on behalf of my Honourable Friends that we do not want to introduce any controversy in a matter of grave importance to the general public of this Presidency. Unfortunately, a paragraph which was found in the Government Order gave rise to the general impression that the Government came to the conclusion that some of the riots were due to some unbridled political agitation for the last four years. I do not at all wish to go into the matter, because it seems to me it might be diverting the real issue before the Council. I may say Your Excellency referred to this question of political agitation at the last Budget meeting and Your Excellency was so pleased as to say that 'the unusually keen and protracted political controversy which happened last year, Government gladly recognize that for the most part it has been conducted with that regard for order and aversion to violence of language and conduct which are congenial to the good temper and commonsense of the people of this Presidency.' My Lord, that is a most handsome acknowledgment of the good sense and commonsense of the people of this Presidency and I hope that they have not taken leave of their commonsense during the last six months after that speech was delivered."

"I only wish to point out that as regards the particular causes of the riot, Honourable Members will look at the dates on which those riots happened. It may be stated generally that the riots in the northern districts happened in the months of May and June and in the southern districts in the months of August and September. May and June are the months in which there is plenty of un-employment and added to bad prices, un-employment produced that situation which had to be faced and so it was in the southern districts. On the other hand there was a suggestion in one of the Madras dailies which I am glad to say, was withdrawn later on, that the riots were due to political causes. I trust that so far as the present situation is concerned, judging from what the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew has stated to-day, Government are not still under that impression and we may therefore proceed to consider the whole question eliminating this side issue which does not really arise for consideration."

"We want to assure Your Excellency's Government that in whatever steps we may take in this matter, we will have every district in the mufassal at the back of the Government, either in the matter of control or any other arrangement which will go to reduce prices and which will conduce to the well-being of the people at large. My Lord, I may also inform before I proceed to deal with two or three matters, that since these riots have taken place, many charitable organizations have come into existence and they have been incurring expenditure by way of losses in selling grain and paddy at a lower rate than is justified by the quotations in the market. I may say that in districts in the north, the merchants and the general public have subscribed large sums and they have been selling rice at 7 or 7½ seers, purchasing it at a higher rate, thereby incurring the loss themselves. That was done as a help to the poorer classes who have been hard hit by present state of things. There were also many organizations for supplying kanji, and in these and other ways, Your Excellency will be pleased to see that after the riots took place, public mind had been attracted to the solution of this problem and they brought into existence organizations to temporarily check prices. I would not say check prices, but to supply grain to those that are most in need of it at a comparatively cheap rate. The fact that there were no subsequent demonstrations is certainly not evidence of the fact that there is no acute distress. It was only the day before yesterday that my Honourable Friend Mr. Suryanarayanamurti Nayudu informed me that 10,000 people assembled in Cocanada on the day he left the place and made a huge demonstration because ten wagons had been allowed to come to Madras or some other place. The effect of that was that immediately prices had been raised by Rs. 2 per bag and the poorer classes were considerably agitated; they gathered in large numbers and made representations to the local authorities on the matter. The situation is one fraught with the greatest amount of anxiety and I think the real questions are the ones that have been raised by the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger. He raised two or three crucial questions for which I think some solution has to be found. As he has pointed out, the imports of rice from Burma are comparatively little and if any control at the source of production is to be taken, it is to be taken in the districts which produce paddy in the Presidency and that is one way in which Your Excellency's Government may proceed to check the growing tendency of profiteering. That by itself I do not think would do. Among the numerous questions that appeared in the agenda of this meeting, there is one which asked for information about the decrease of the area under paddy. I saw a statement to that effect in the Madras Mail based upon the statistics of the Board of Revenue for the month of September. I put down a question on that matter and Government say that they have no information. I do not know how it happens that they have no information as to the extent of the area under paddy in this year. Whatever it is, it is quite clear that there is a contraction of the area under paddy and we are faced with the situation that there are difficulties of getting rice from Burma. On the whole, the situation is one which is fraught with the gravest anxiety and I believe steps will be taken in rice, cumbu and ragi producing districts for the purpose of preventing profiteering and keeping down the prices. I believe, my Lord, that in conjunction with it there should be an organization for eliminating the profits of retail dealers in each place. In regard to this matter I consider that a great deal might be done at the present time through the local bodies and through numerous charity organizations which are already doing work. I believe there will be absolutely no difficulty whatever in arranging for retail distribution without any unnecessary addition to the price. Therefore, my Lord, on the main question, as regards the controlling of prices at the source of production, it seems to me, judging from what the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew said, that the source of production so far as this Presidency is concerned, is this Presidency itself. We were an exporting Presidency till last year and I believe considerable quantities of rice have always left for Bombay and Hyderabad, at any rate, from the northern portion of the Presidency. Therefore, it seems to me that the line of argument, that the source of production, Burma, should be controlled, is one which requires reconsideration and it seems to me that steps may usefully be taken in this Presidency in districts which produce large quantities of paddy and other food-grains to limit prices and also to arrange subsidiary organizations for dealing with them in retail to the consumer.

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.) [20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

"There is only one remark that I should like to make and that is with reference to famine. I entirely agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger when he said that it is no consolation to mention the Famine Code. Taking our district, there is no famine at all. We produce large quantities of paddy and export much, but it is the price which is now the hardship to the poorer classes and I do not think that under any conceivable state of circumstances, it can be said that there is famine. Famine may be due to want of food commodities, but it is really a famine which is created by high prices. Therefore, my Lord, I think to proceed entirely under circumstances mentioned in the Famine Code does not seem to me to meet the present exigencies. We have to consider other means, other than those which the Famine Code was intended to provide. I do not think the situation is such as to warrant the Government to wait till Mr. Gubbay makes up his mind in Burma.

"My Lord, we have absolutely no information as to when Mr. Gubbay is going to take any stocks as to what is available in Burma and what would be made available for Madras. These are all matters of great complexity and while I fully sympathise with the difficulties of the Government, we have also to say on behalf of the general public that there are grave difficulties even at present and even at a cost of some public funds, it would be necessary to consider the whole situation. There are several businessmen in this Presidency and I trust if the matter is approached with a view to solution and with a view to practical solution of this problem, I am certain that a way can be found, by which both the object of introducing some kind of control in this Presidency and also developing subsidiary organizations, might be attained, and suggestions would be made towards that end and I am sure that the whole position can be cleared up.

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.)

"My Lord, there is only one other remark I should like to make and that is with reference to the coming crop. Whatever may be our prospects, of getting some rice from Burma, it seems to me absolutely clear that we cannot under existing circumstances, afford facilities for other provinces or other States to take away what is grown in this Presidency. The people of this Presidency have the first claim. I am making this special appeal for this reason: in May last, Your Excellency's Government in consequence of the riot in the Kistna district took steps to prohibit export of grain to Hyderabad and Bombay; but that prohibition was subsequently withdrawn at the instance of the Government of Bombay and I believe it is now agreed that no food-grains would be exported from this Presidency. I trust there would be no change in that decision, at any rate for the next six months. It is a matter of the utmost importance that Your Excellency's Government should take the most stringent steps to see that the crops in December in the various parts of the Presidency do not go out, especially in view of the uncertainty of our getting something from Burma. Therefore, my Lord, I lay special stress on this circumstance and I trust that Your Excellency's Government would not yield to any pressure from any quarter in removing the present prohibition on the export of grain from this Presidency. I may say, my Lord, that in Hyderabad the price was Rs. 36 per bag; and in Bezwada it is Rs. 18. I could give numerous instances of frauds, evasions of rules, getting away large quantities across the frontiers, but the most important thing is railway transport. I trust Your Excellency's Government will not relax the existing prohibition in this matter. With these remarks, I commend this resolution to the sympathetic consideration of the Government."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Your Excellency, at this late hour of the day, I do not propose to take up much time. This is a very complex matter and the resolution is in two parts. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew was misunderstood by the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger and the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao when the latter said that the opening of famine-relief works would be the principal solution. There are two propositions, one relates to the control of prices of foodstuffs and other grains and the second relates to the necessity for opening relief works in view of the distress caused by the failure of rains. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew said that in respect of the second portion wherever there was a necessity, relief works would be opened, but he never meant to say that by the operation of the second portion he will find more grain.

"With reference to the latter portion, which has been singularly free from any discussion, I do not wish to detain the Council further. But I would like to make one remark that amongst the districts mentioned, the district of Salem has not been brought to the notice of Government. I am not anxious that Salem should have distress but I have travelled through several taluks, Dharmapuri, Uttangarai and other taluks and I have noticed vast extents parched up where I used to find crops and I noticed also the volume of beggary increasing very largely—beggary of a sort which threatens the public peace. I am afraid that there may be an increase in robbery later on, that Salem might perhaps require aid in this respect.

"Passing on to the next and most important thing, I think the discussion of resolutions in this hall serves two purposes. One is to bring out the grievances and the second is to suggest remedies. After carefully watching the present discussion, I must confess we have been more successful in bringing out grievances than in suggesting remedies. We are just where the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew left us. As a number of suggestions have been made, I propose to take up a few points for suggestion.

"In the first place, as a preliminary, I may point out that doubts have been expressed by more than one member as to the feasibility of the control of prices, because usually the law of political economy is the law of supply and demand. Under the present circumstances, we are rather controlling everything except rain perhaps and therefore we have to control the supply and to some extent even the demand. We find in this connexion control has been exercised in various places, but we recognize that the control where exercised is purely temporary and that it operates for a few days or a few weeks or a few months. Afterwards, it is bound to be a failure by reason of the laws of political economy. Our object is not to control prices for all time, but to tide over the dangerous seasons. Notwithstanding the objection raised by some Honourable Members that control of price is impossible, I think it will be given effect to and that objections would fall to the ground. I may mention that at present we have really been going on the footing that it is possible to control prices. We have a Controller of Civil Supplies who has been controlling supplies. I have known also that in certain places prices have been fixed; for instance, the Collector of Salem did fix prices at Shevapett and so far as I have understood, that exactly describes what the Government should do. It is not possible for you to fix prices for any long period of time. The price of any article has to vary from time to time as the Diwan of Mysore stated. At present there seems to be no urgent necessity for fixing prices all over the Presidency for even rice. The question of rice was the only one discussed largely by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew and the question of the other grains was not discussed for obvious reasons, because the supply of them is a big conundrum. I therefore want to point out that the present situation seems to be finding its own remedy. The possibility of fixing prices for long periods seems to be very doubtful and I think there is one contingency in which prices have to be fixed and that is the contingency in which the Collector of Salem acted; and that is, the danger of rioting. By reason of the danger of rioting, he at once proceeded to exercise the powers under section 144. His action seems to be covered by that section. He

404 RESOLUTION RE MEASURES TO BE ADOPTED TO ALLEVIATE
THE SITUATION DUE TO HIGH PRICES.

(Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ; Mr. Kavalappara Muppil Nayar ; 20TH NOVEMBER 1918.
the President.)

acted under the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code and asked people to sell only at a particular price. It was observed for a few days and beyond that, it failed in its effect. That is the extent to which Government might authorize or issue instructions for the control of prices locally. At present, we are drifting in this particular matter without any set of instructions issued by Government to local officers. I hope it will be possible for Government to issue, before long, definite instructions to local officers as to what they are to do; under these instructions I would add that District Magistrates may issue orders either under the Defence of India Act or under the powers given to them by section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code, fixing the prices where the public peace demands it for a short period. Then as for further control, that must be by control of supplies. In regard to that, there is the harder question as the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger pointed out. You cannot control supplies largely, because if you control supplies to-day and ask for the articles, people may not manufacture the articles and the articles will not be coming in. Control of supplies will be affected only for a short period. As we are thinking of short periods alone I think it might be done. It might be that a ship may be arriving in a short time or it may be that some other supply may be available or that other advantages may be available to us. As we are contemplating control of supplies only for a short period, I think it will be possible to control supplies for short periods by orders issued by the Director of Civil Supplies. In that way we might go on pursuing the policy of restriction in preventing inter-district exports of food-grains. I notice that this Government have not got a free hand. The Government of India may come down with a heavy hand if we prohibit exports to sister Presidencies. But to the extent that this Government have the powers, I think we are pursuing a correct policy though I understand according to the orders issued by the Director of Civil Supplies, there are persons who are discontented and some people also think that as things are going on there are the usual defects of departmental management. It is the view of some that if there are a set of non-official gentlemen of position and standing to help Mr. Wood, his work would be better done. I throw it out as a suggestion whether the work which Mr. Wood is in charge of could not be better done by associating with him certain non-official gentlemen representing the various areas in the Presidency.

"Referring to the question of supplies, the suggestion I want to make is this: after all, as the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger pointed out, Rangoon may not produce all the quantity that we want at the price that the Government of India may fix, and rice lands may be used for producing other crops, though usually rice lands are rice lands, and continue to be rice lands. That is the suggestion; I think I may throw out one important suggestion—that we may take a leaf out of the Central Powers of Europe. One of the clauses of the Armistice between Austria and the Allied Powers is that the Central Empire may be permitted to have food-grains from India. I think it is high time for the Government of India and for the Government of Madras to press the authorities at home to ask for aid from Australia, to provide for the import of food-grains from Australia or America or Japan or some place outside British India to the extent that may be possible. That is a suggestion which I wish to throw out and also incidentally there may be more benefit if we press in this direction, because more freight will be placed at their disposal by reason of this motion being made by the Government of Madras. It may be that Mesopotamia may be able to send us back some more railway wagons or steamers, and more tonnage will be made available. To a very large extent, as pointed out by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew, we are forced to await Mr. Gubbay's arrival and we have to discuss with him and try and induce him to take the situation in Madras into consideration and help us in one of these ways to increase our supplies. We might also watch the Mysore experiment. The Mysore experiment reminds us of the patriarchal decision when Joseph commandeered the whole of the Egyptian crops, to provide for supplies in lean years out of the supplies of fat years.

"That is an interesting experiment to watch. I think that with these suggestions, we may safely leave the matter in the hands of the Government. We have not put forward any large number of suggestions for the Government to help us in this matter, but I hope, with the few suggestions that we have put forward, the matter may be carefully looked into."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. K. R. Kavalappara Muppil Nayar:—

His Excellency the President:—"I hope the Honourable Gentlemen will consider that this subject has been thoroughly discussed. I do not wish to cut out anybody but I think the subject has been thoroughly discussed."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. K. R. Kavalappara Muppil Nayar:—"Your Excellency, on the general aspect of the question, enough has been said and I do not wish to add anything; but there is one point which I wish to bring to the notice of the Government and that is that there is a considerable amount of rice trade going on between Cochin and Malabar. I believe the Cochin State has disallowed any rice being taken out of the State. Now there is one particular point connected with this trade. I may just point out that there are a set of brokers who come and buy up all the paddy from my part of the district, take it to Trichur and when the stock here is not enough, they bring it all the way from Trichur. By this new arrangement, I do not think it will be possible to bring back any rice from Trichur when rice is wanted in these parts. So unless some arrangement is made by the State, we will be at a considerable difficulty in my part of the district. I just wanted to bring this to the notice of the Government."

RESOLUTIONS RE OPENING OF MODEL GARDENS OF INDIGENOUS MEDICINAL PLANTS; TRAVELLING ALLOWANCE TO ALL VILLAGE OFFICERS; AND SCHOOLS FOR TEACHING NAVIGATION. 409

20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

(Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar ; the President ;
Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.)

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"XXXII" is not covered, Your Excellency."

His Excellency the President:—"I thought the words covered it."

The following resolutions standing in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. P. Siva Rao were not moved:—

RESOLUTION RE OPENING OF MODEL GARDENS OF INDIGENOUS MEDICINAL PLANTS.

"VIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the Government may open one or more drug model gardens of indigenous medicinal plants at suitable centres in the Presidency."

RESOLUTION RE TRAVELLING ALLOWANCE TO ALL VILLAGE OFFICERS.

"IX. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that travelling allowance and batta may be paid to the village officers whenever they are required to leave their villages on official duty."

RESOLUTION RE SCHOOLS FOR TEACHING NAVIGATION.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBI MARAKKAYAR:—"Your Excellency: 'The resolution that stands in my name runs as follows:

"X. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council the desirability of opening schools in important centres to teach navigation."

"This is a question of very great importance and one greatly agitated after the war. Your Excellency is well aware that the construction of sailing ships has been on the increase as will be seen from the statistics I have obtained from various ports. About 100 sailing ships on the Malabar coast, 21 in Godavari district besides 11 that are now under construction, about 20 in Tuticorin, 1 at Negapatam and 12 of them at Rangoon have been constructed during the war. The want of certified Indian mates and masters is very keenly felt, not only on account of increased number of vessels but also in consequence of the refusal of Government to modify section 13 of the Mercantile Shipping Act of 1859. As an instance, I may invite the attention of this Council to the letter addressed to the Government of Burma by the Chamber of Commerce, Rangoon, reading—

"The Burma Chamber draws attention to the difficulty in obtaining masters and mates for sailing vessels of over 800 tons in consequence of the refusal of Government to modify section 13 of the Merchants Shipping Act of 1859. The Burma Chamber further points out that many native mariners who have sailed the Indian seas for years and are fully competent to command such wooden sailing ships as are likely to be constructed in India and Burma cannot obtain certificates of competency as the official examinations are held in English.

"The Chamber suggests that these mariners should be permitted to appear before the Port officer at any of the leading ports to undergo an oral examination in the vernacular and that, should they prove to the satisfaction of the Port officers concerned that they possess the necessary knowledge to serve as master or mate of a coasting sailing vessel, then a temporary certificate of competency should be granted.

"The Burma Chamber further adds that this question of the officering of ships should be considered by Government at a very early date."

"A copy of this letter was forwarded to the Chamber of Commerce, Madras, who in their meeting held on 24th September last resolved to support the proposals put forward by the Rangoon Chamber of Commerce and forwarded a copy of their letter to the Government of Madras with a covering letter in support of same.

"On receiving a number of representations to open schools of navigation I moved a resolution at the Shipbuilding Committee meeting held on 12th August last which unanimously resolved to recommend my suggestion to Government. At that meeting of the Committee I offered to place at the disposal of the Government a building free of rent for the use of that school if one such school were to be opened at Negapatam as an experimental measure and I beg to confirm my promise in this Council. I have no doubt that a school, if opened at Negapatam, will surely be a success as there is a great demand for the same from the people already in the profession.

"As a matter of fact, Negapatam is such an important place, Your Excellency, that helped once the British India Steam Navigation Company a great deal in substituting a large number of Muhammadan officers at the time when all the European officers held a strike against their steamer companies and landed ashore from steamers simultaneously in all the ports for want of increased salaries. The Muhammadan officers were able to man the vessels quite alright and without much delay the steamers that were lying at the port also went as far as Rangoon and other places and joined the steamers which were lying there for want of officers. This happened about 20 years ago. Perhaps the Hon'ble Sir Francis Spring and the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser will remember this incident. Besides, we could teach navigation to the fishermen and boatmen as is done at Belgium.

* Page 385 supra.

(Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.)

[20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

"In this connexion I now beg to quote the paper read by Rao Bahadur V. Govindan, Assistant Director of Fisheries, Madras, at the Indian Industrial Conference held in Bombay in the year 1915 which, I trust, will be interesting to the Council—

THE TRAINING OF INDIANS AS SEAMEN AND NAVIGATORS.

(A paper read at the Indian Industrial Conference, 1915, by Mr. V. Govindan, B.A., F.Z.S., Assistant Director, Madras Fisheries.)

"This is a subject which has hardly received any adequate attention at the hands of the leaders of public opinion in this country. Unlike agriculture and other industries the seamen's occupation is from its very nature comparatively unknown to, and does not form a subject even for academic discussion by our educated classes, but it is a wonder why our merchant classes have not taken an interest in it, considering the large volume of commodities imported and exported by them by sea. With the exception of the efforts made by Mr. Muhammad Yusuf Ismail, who has been maintaining since last year a small training ship in the Bombay harbour for the benefit of the sons of our Indian seamen, no serious attempts have been made to give our sea-faring folk a scientific training in their hereditary profession according to modern requirements. Hence it is all the more creditable to Mr. Yusuf Ismail that he has undertaken at his own expense to organize a scheme which is "calculated to raise the status and accomplishment of our Indian seamen" and to the Government of Bombay who have welcomed his proposal with the support and encouragement it deserves. It requires no elaborate statistics to prove the huge volume of trade, which India carries on with almost every corner of the world. The following statement shows the number and tonnage of vessels which entered from and cleared to all countries during the five years ending 1908—13.

	Number of vessels.	Total tonnage.		Number of vessels.	Total tonnage.
1908-09 ..	8,001	12,910,823	1911-12 ..	8,868	16,616,435
1909-10 ..	8,042	14,597,091	1912-13 ..	8,737	17,451,985
1910-11 ..	8,435	14,984,528

"The number of such ocean-going vessels for the same period are distributed under the following flags:—

	1908-09.	1909-10.	1910-11.	1911-12.	1912-13.
British	4,238	4,722	4,751	5,117	5,129
German	437	455	419	412	503
Austro-Hungarian	156	220	205	213	245
Japanese	79	63	77	121	197
Norwegian	106	95	104	134	131
Italian	76	81	84	88	90
French	55	56	56	58	47

"This includes, no doubt, steamers belonging to the Indian Steam Navigation Companies, which are mostly coasting steamers, but their number is insignificant as compared with those of foreign nations, whose number and tonnage, as can be seen from the above statement, have been steadily increasing. It is therefore high time for India to step in and claim her due share of her over-sea-carrying trade. Attempts have been made from time to time to organize the so-called "swadeshi" Steam Navigation Companies, which have ended mostly in such disastrous failures as to discourage our country men from venturing again into that business. And before further steps are taken in that direction the real causes of such failures should be found out. It has been said that they failed because of the keen competition from the existing steamship companies. It is no doubt a true statement, but it is not the whole truth and unfortunately most people draw wrong conclusions from it. Competition is the soul of modern industrial development and every one who enters into an industry not only courts competition but also competes. Have not the humble weavers, smiths and other artisans of India to compete with their modern rivals in various countries backed with enormous capital and scientific resources? They no doubt come across the operations of their powerful rivals and do not know who they are, but a steam navigation company has its rivals at its very doors and having to face them at close quarters is comparatively unnerved. But the real cause of such failures is due to the lack trained in the art of modern navigation and technical skill to take charge of their vessels. The organizers of such companies hitherto depended on Indian capital, but that alone without Indian brains to run it and Indian seamen to navigate their vessels, was not enough to bring them success. The history of the development of the mercantile navy of Japan is valuable example and indicates how India should develop here. The Japanese were not expert navigators a century ago and depended upon Chinese bottoms to carry their commodities to distant lands whereas India by the technical skill and perfection which her sea-faring people attained in their calling from time immemorial occupied the proud position of "the queen of the eastern sea." India still possesses the descendants of those early navigators who are still engaged in their hereditary calling, though without any modern scientific training. All along the Indian coast from Baluchistan to Chittagong there are various sea-faring communities who carry on the coasting trade in their almost primitive sailing crafts such as dhows, buglowes, kottias, pattimars, dhonies, schooners, etc., some of them going far south as Zanzibar and to the east as far as Singapur, and as they are able to sail their vessels safe in these distant oceans depending as they do entirely on their instincts unaided by any modern scientific instruments and appliances, it may be safely presumed that with the necessary training in up-to-date scientific methods they could be made as capable navigators as any other people. We have decidedly the right sort of men and all that is required is to educate them and train them in the proper way. The first thing that Japan did when she began to organize her carrying trade was to train up her own men in modern methods. For this purpose selected men after a preliminary training were sent to serve on foreign vessels till they acquired the necessary knowledge and experience to man and navigate their own steamers. Japan and other maritime nations have established institutions for the special training of their navigators and seamen. Take for instance the example of Belgium, that dear little country that has suffered so much in this terrible war. Almost every important seaport in Belgium maintains institutions for the training of fishermen and seamen known as (Ecoles professionnelles de peche subsidees par l'Etat) (Professional fishery schools subsidised by the State).¹ Ecole de pupilles de la peche as well as the higher navigation schools supported by the State at Antwerp and Ostend. The first of these types of schools engaged in the professional education of young lads who may become fishermen, but as every fisherman ought to have a knowledge of navigation the programme of study includes a knowledge of language (French or Flemish arithmetic, geography, hygiene and such technical subjects as element of navigation including rules of the road, signalling with flags and lamps, telegraphy (including wireless in advanced classes), making of ropes, nets, etc., structure and working of a steam-boiler and engine. The lads are admitted into those institutions when they are about ten years old and have already passed through the ordinary elementary schools and learnt to read and write. After being trained for about six years in these institutions they are sent out as apprentices in fishing vessels for further practical training and experience; and on the completion of their apprentice course are examined by a Board appointed by Government who grant them certificates of competency to serve as regular hands on Board fishing vessels. After serving as seamen or engine room hands for a few years more those who wish to undergo a further course of training join the higher schools of navigation and pass out as qualified navigators and marine engineers. It will be seen that general education is an important factor in imparting a thorough training and in India also the same should be done and the pupils taught English and the general subjects before their technical training commences, especially in the case of pupils who wish to undergo the higher courses in navigation and become masters of ocean-going vessels. Such institutions can be established in India without any serious difficulty and the sooner our public spirited men undertake it the better it will be.

[20TH NOVEMBER 1918.]

(Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar; Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

"I understand the Government in its memorandum No. 41/0-2, Marine, dated 17th September, have asked the Presidency Port Officer to obtain the views of all port officers of the Presidency with regard to the desirability of opening such schools. I am sure the port officers would have supported my suggestion. I am in possession of the figures showing the number of Indian crafts that are registered in the Madras Presidency. I am also in possession of the number that is registered in Jaffna which numbers 111. The latter vessels though registered in Jaffna are plying on the Madras coast. Considering the enormous number of sailing vessels that are plying on this coast and the disadvantage the owners of the vessels are undergoing in not being able to secure competent persons to man their vessels, it is absolutely necessary that the Government should see its way to increase the number of qualified mates and masters by opening schools of navigation in all the important centres of this Presidency which will impart to the people a knowledge of navigation. I can quote many instances, in which number of vessels were lost at sea for want of competent hands to man them from one port to another. As a matter of fact several men are already in employment who have the practical experience in navigation and it will therefore be easy to teach such men the rudimentary knowledge of navigation. The suggestion that I have placed before the Council is not a difficult one or one which would tax the purse of the Government very heavily and I feel assured that Your Excellency will agree with me that this long-felt want can be easily tackled at least by opening as an experimental measure one such school at Negapatam.

"In conclusion, I hope Your Excellency's Government will kindly afford my resolution the strong support it rightly deserves. In doing so, the Government will be conferring a great benefit to the Indian trade by safeguarding the capital which is enormously invested by the Indian ship owners and traders of this Presidency.

"With these few remarks I commend my resolution for the acceptance of the Council."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"Your Excellency, I have much pleasure in seconding the proposition placed before the Council by the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar. The boat is of course the best school for training navigators, just as the sea is the best school for fishers to learn how to swim. My Honourable friend has shown from the speech that he quoted in support of his resolution that there is a large population in India which depends upon navigation for their livelihood. On the Bombay coast as well as the Madras coast, there are certain classes which make a sea-faring caste by themselves. Most of these people had migrated from Arabia several centuries ago. They know their work thoroughly; in fact it is not so much that the facilities for training are required by them as the facilities for passing a certain examination in order to get a certificate which is necessary, according to the Government of India Act of 1859. Section 13 of that Act provides that no one who is not certified can be an officer on any vessel of 300 and more tonnage. The result is that many persons who are quite fit to be officers of sailing vessels are deprived of attaining that position. There are, of course, many sailing vessels and they are of different capacity and they run up to 1,000 and more tonnage. Many of these persons, in order that they may be allowed to officer these vessels, register the vessels as say of 298 or 299 tonnage in order to avoid being caught by this Act of 1859. Of course, it would not be easy to persuade the Government of India to modify that section, as it is essential that a person who officers a vessel should know how to navigate. Otherwise there would be very great risk. What I say is that there are people who are able to navigate sailing vessels, but because there are no facilities for them to pass examinations, they are unable to get a certificate.

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [20TH NOVEMBER 1918-
Mr. Suryanarayana Rao; Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.]

"I understand that Bombay is the only place where the port officer arranges for some examination like this. A few months ago when I went to Ceylon, I was very pleased and gratified to find that the two steamers that ply between Dhanushkodi and Talaimannar had Muhammadan captains. They were from Surat and Bombay and they must have proved as efficient hands as any captain of any steamer. There may be many others who may be just as qualified as these officers are; but still because they have not got the facility for obtaining certificates, they are deprived of such posts. Your Excellency, I would beg the Government to start one school as an experimental measure. I think this Presidency is the proper place to make a beginning in this line, because the sea-board of this Presidency is the largest in India, and it extends from Mangalore in South Kanara to Tuticorin and from Tuticorin to Ganjam. As I have said in the beginning, there are a number of people who are dependent upon the sea-faring profession for their livelihood and it will be a great boon if they had facilities for acquiring the necessary knowledge and passing the examination and getting a certificate. With these words I second the proposition."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the Hon'ble Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar's resolution is one with which the Government have a considerable measure of sympathy. The Honourable gentleman brought up this subject before the Shipbuilding Committee of which he is a member last August. He wrote to the committee to say that he proposed to start a school for navigation at Negapatam and offered to pay half the charges. The committee sent that up to us with a recommendation that the Education Department should take immediate steps to afford facilities to teach elementary navigation in those ports where the hereditary sailor classes were to be found and that so far as Negapatam was concerned, the Hon'ble Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar's offer should be favourably considered. As soon as that came up to us, we referred it to the Presidency Port Officer and, as the Honourable Member is aware, we sent that officer a copy of the resolution passed by the Shipbuilding Committee and asked him for his remarks after obtaining the remarks of local port officers and also after examining the following points, namely, syllabus, medium of instruction, staff, supply of pupils, examination and prospects of employment for trained men. This reference went out on the 17th of September and, as soon as the Presidency Port Officer's reply comes in, we shall deal with the whole question carefully and I am sure that the valuable speeches which have been delivered on the subject by the Hon'ble Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar and the Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib will be very carefully considered; and I trust that, under these circumstances, the Honourable gentleman will allow us time to deal with this question and not press his resolution just now."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO:—"Your Excellency, as a Brahman, I have very little to do with fishermen. But I am encouraged to speak on the subject on account of paragraph 173 of the Indian Industrial Commission's Report where it has been stated that navigation and marine engineering should be encouraged and schools should be opened; but the Commission say that there are difficulties and expert knowledge of a particular kind is required to handle the subject, and they strongly recommend that schools should be opened for the purpose. I submit that the first school that should be opened should be in our Presidency. With these words I support the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBİ MARAKKAYAR:—"Your Excellency, on the assurance given by the Honourable Member in charge of the portfolio, I beg to withdraw my resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was then withdrawn.
The Council then rose for the day.

H. G. STOKES,
Acting Secretary to Govt., L. & M. (Legislation) Dept.

Proceedings of an Adjourned Meeting of the Council of the Governor of Fort St. George assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.

The Council re-assembled at the Council Chamber, Fort St. George, at 11 a.m. on Thursday, the 21st day of November 1918.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Right Hon'ble JOHN, Baron PENTLAND of Lyth, P.C., G.C.S.I.,
Governor of Madras—Presiding.
The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW, K.C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR Avargal, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble MUHAMMAD AZIZ-UD-DIN HUSAIN SAHIB Bahadur, Khan Bahadur,
C.I.E., I.S.O.
The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. BUCKLEY, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Mr. M. E. COUCHMAN.
The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. DUNCAN.
The Hon'ble Major-General G. G. GIFFARD, C.S.I., I.M.S.
The Hon'ble Mr. R. A. GRAHAM.
The Hon'ble Mr. W. J. J. HOWLEY.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. R. KNAPP.
The Hon'ble Mr. S. B. MURRAY.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur B. RAMASHANDRA RAO Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. S. SRINIVASA AYYANGAR (Advocate-General).
The Hon'ble Mr. C. G. TODD HUNTER.
The Hon'ble Mr. M. YOUNG.
The Hon'ble Mr. T. RANGA ACHARIYAR.
The Hon'ble the Rev. G. PITTENDRIDGE.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO PANTULU.
The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO PANTULU Garu.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO PANTULU.
The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur A. SUBBARAYALU REDDIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT.
The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. KUMARAN RAMAN KAVALAPPARA MUPPIL NAKAR.
The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBİ MARAKKAYAR SAHIB Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER, Kt.
The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER.
The Hon'ble Sir FAIRLESS BARBER, Kt.
The Hon'ble the Most Rev. JOHN ARLEN, D.D.
The Hon'ble Mr. T. RICHMOND.
The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING, K.C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur K. R. SURYANARAYANAMURTI NAYUDU Garu.
The Hon'ble Raja, RAJA SRI RAVU VENKATA KUMARA KRISHNA RANGA RAO Bahadur, of Bobbili.

(Mr. Krishna Rao.)

[21st NOVEMBER 1918]

The Council re-assembled at 11 a.m. when the discussion of resolutions on matters of general public interest was resumed.

RESOLUTION RE INQUIRY INTO THE SYSTEM OF DISTRICT ADMINISTRATION.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I beg to move—

'XII. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council to appoint a committee of officials and non-officials to inquire into the present system of district administration and suggest measures to improve the same so as to make it responsible to public opinion.'

"My Lord, this resolution deals with the question of district administration which affects the well-being and prosperity of the people in this Presidency who live mostly in rural areas. It suggests that an inquiry should be held into the present system of district administration; it suggests that measures should be taken to improve the district administration; it finally suggests that a committee should be appointed to report upon the various problems relating to district administration, some of them intricate and complicated, in order to come to a final conclusion in the matter.

"The Council is aware that, according to the present system of district administration, various functions are combined in the district officer, functions which if they are to be properly exercised will tax the capacity and ability of the best among administrators in this or in any other country. It will be remembered that the District Collector who dates very probably from 1765, the time of Warren Hastings, and who is supposed to be the head of the Revenue Department, has been invested with powers over various other kindred departments. He is the head of the magistracy and the police; he has to superintend the Department of Public Works including irrigation; he has control over the Excise Department; he has some powers of supervision over the local bodies and their working; and he has to organize several emergency measures such as plague measures, famine-relief, etc. As for the size of the districts in this Presidency, it is in every case too unwieldy for one officer, however capable and however energetic he may be, to be in direct touch with the whole of the people in that tract. So far as this province is concerned, the size varies from district to district excluding Madras and The Nilgiris and extends from Chingleput with an area of 3,072 square miles to Vizagapatam with the Agency tracts with an area of 17,221 square miles. Considering the population in each district we begin with Cuddapah with a population of 893,998 and go up to 3,015,119 in Malabar. I think it fit to draw the attention of the Council to the size of the various districts in this Presidency, for it is only then that we can have an adequate conception of the various functions which the district officers are called upon to discharge. It will be remembered that even the district officers who were examined on some occasions admitted the difficulty of the task imposed upon them and confessed that they did not find it possible to satisfactorily discharge the functions entrusted to them.

"While this question was before the Bengal District Administration Committee, an officer of considerable experience Mr. Birley, Collector of Dacca, stated as follows:

'As matters stand at present, we are neglecting the work which matters most, because neglect does not show, and in order that we may do the work which is intrinsically of no greater importance, but which must have the preference, because it comes more immediately to the notice of Government. It is because the mass of the people are so submissive to authority, and because they cherish an old belief that the British Government desires to do justice, that they do not make their voices heard, when the district officer fails to save them from such delay in obtaining justice in the criminal courts as amounts to a denial of justice, because he has no time to control the work of the courts; when the district officer fails to give them a fair price for their homestead land acquired for a public purpose, because he has not time to control the work of the land acquisition deputy collector; when the district officer allows the holdings of khas mahal ryots to be sold and fall into the hands of mahajans, because through want of time he exercises no control over collections, and allows an alternation of slackness and undue severity; and when the district officer fails to redress the just grievances of ryots in wards' estates, because he is defeated by the volume of the complaints and the passive resistance of the estate subordinates. None of these defects in the administration come very prominently before the notice of Government, because the people do not often complain; but the cumulative effect of these omissions, though slow, cannot fail to be far-reaching; and there is grave danger that the effect may become more rapid, now that ill-disposed people have set to work to persuade the masses that Government does not care for their interests. When the charge of a district officer is too heavy, these are the duties which he will in most cases neglect, and it has been so in the Dacca district.'

"And further on he says:

'At the cost of several mistakes due to hasty despatch of important business I have found time to discover many errors, but I have not found time to correct them; this can be done only by assiduous attention to individual cases, for which attention I have not found sufficient time. I cannot say that I have done more than increase the work by stirring up questions which I have not had time to settle.'

21st NOVEMBER 1918.]

(Mr. Krishna Rao.)

"This is what is stated by those who have inquired into the matter. Mr. Birley was an exceptionally able and zealous officer. That was his experience; I do not think the experience of any other officer will be different. So far as the position of the district officer is concerned, there cannot be any possible difference of opinion. Even in the Report on Constitutional Reforms the authors deal with this aspect of it, and state as follows: 'It is almost a truism to say that any extension of popular control over an official system of Government must be accompanied by some relaxation of the bond of superior official authority.' After pointing out the circumstances under which there was concentration of authority, they say: 'complaints were heard also that the prevalent unrest was due in part to loss of touch between officials and the people. The district officer was said to be too closely bound by rules and regulations; too much occupied in writing to his official superiors; too much of a machine and too little of a personality.' It is these circumstances, they say, that led to the appointment of the Decentralization Commission. In the same strain they remark as to the district officer and as to the system of district administration: 'It has the great advantage that in every district, and portion of a district—that is to say, in many parts of the country, within not more than 12 or 15 miles of every single inhabitant—there is a direct representative of Government, to whom complaints on every conceivable subject can be addressed, and through whom the Government can act. Its weaknesses are, we conceive, equally apparent. It is humanly impossible for the district officer to control the whole business of Government and to look after his army of subordinates as closely as is required. His utmost vigilance and energy do not suffice to prevent petty corruption and oppression from disfiguring official business. The people are slow to complain and prefer to suffer rather than to have the trouble of resisting.' Then they refer to the improvement of the subordinate services, and they suggest that the best remedy is in the awakening of public opinion. They also suggest the subdivision of the larger divisions and further advance in the cause of local self-government; and they further suggest that their proposals on constitutional reform must affect the district organization, though they do not consider it necessary to enter into that question at considerable length.

"I therefore submit to the Council that there can be no difference of opinion as to the present system of district administration and as to its not being in a position to cope with the present needs and requirements of the country. It is no doubt a difficult problem to suggest in what manner the system could be improved, and in what respects and directions alterations have to be effected in the existing state of things. To improve the personnel of the district administration amongst other things the Royal Commission on Decentralization was appointed; and they entered into the question at certain length and considered various suggestions made from time to time. One specific suggestion put forward and considered was whether it was necessary to constitute district advisory councils to help the Collectors in the matter of administration. That was a specific suggestion put forward. I will read the note placed before the Commission by Mr. Gokhale:

'I now come to the question of district administration. Here too the need of decentralization is manifest, but it must be decentralization accompanied by measures for a larger association of popular representatives with the work of the administration. There is no doubt that with the multiplication of central departments and a steady increase in the control exercised by the Secretariat of the Provincial Government, the position of the Collector, as the head of a district, has considerably deteriorated. There is also no doubt that the people require more prompt government, and more of it, so to say, on the spot. But this object will not be secured by a mere delegation of larger powers to the Collector. The time is gone by when the Collector could hope to exercise—and with beneficial results—a kind of paternal authority over his district. The spread of education, the influence of new ideas, the steadily growing power of the vernacular press make a return to the benevolent autocracy of the Collector of old times impossible. The only remedy lies in carrying a substantial measure of decentralization down to the villages and in building up local self-government from there. It will not do to be deterred by the difficulties of the task or by the possibilities of initial failure. Village panchayats must be created. Local and municipal boards must be made really popular bodies and larger resources than they can command at present made available to them. Last, but not least, district councils must be formed, whom the Collectors should be bound to consult in all important matters and with whose assistance they may be empowered to deal, with ever-increasing finality, with questions of district administration on the spot.

'This is the note regarding the improvement of the district administration which was placed before the Royal Commission and which the Commission considered at some length. Having considered that question they finally came to the conclusion that it was not desirable to appoint a district advisory council, and they summed up their position so far as this question was concerned in paragraph 531 of the report: "The general arguments adduced in favour of councils for Collectors were that it was very desirable to associate representatives of the people with the actual work of administration; and that to do this would not merely popularize the Government, but would permit the delegation of powers which witnesses who hold this view would not give to Collectors acting singly. Also, that such a system would enable the officers of Government, and the Government itself to get a clearer view of the feelings of the people on matters of policy and administration."

'On the other side it was argued:

'(a) That in most provinces Collectors already had district boards the members of which they could consult upon matters of general policy.

(Mr. Krishna Rao.)

[21st NOVEMBER 1918.]

(6) That any Collector worthy of his position would habitually obtain the opinions of non-officials whose views would be of value to him in dealing with any particular matter; that a new Collector would be guided in the selection of such persons by notes left by his predecessors, and by the darbar list, which is a register of district notables who should be invited to attend public functions; and that to tie the Collector down to a particular set of advisers, who would be largely drawn from a single class of the community, would be a mischievous step. Still more mischievous would it be to hamper him in the work of administration, which is mainly of a detailed character, by making his actions depend largely on the votes of an irresponsible body.

"These are some of the reasons urged by them for coming to that conclusion. I venture to suggest that, so far as the resolutions arrived at by the Commission are concerned, they cannot be accepted as correct especially when we have in view the composition of that Commission. It will be remembered that out of the six members of that Commission four were members of the Indian Civil Service who had been working as Collectors and who had been in close touch with the work of the department and who had naturally a sort of bias towards the official theory. There was only one Indian in that Commission Mr. R. C. Dutt. The other members had not much acquaintance with Indian conditions and the Indian frame of mind. I place these facts before this Council to suggest that it is not proper that we should place too much reliance upon the conclusions of that body, with whatever zeal and care they might have come to that conclusion. In a matter of this description the Commission should have paid more attention to non-official Indian witnesses rather than official witnesses. It will be noticed that amongst the various witnesses examined ten out of sixty-eight English officials accepted the theory of advisory councils; seventy-one non-officials were for advisory councils and thirteen against it; amongst Indian officials seven were for and seven against it. It would have been more satisfactory if the members of the Royal Commission, one of whom only was an Indian, had paid more attention to the opinions of the Indian witnesses both official and non-official. If that had been done, I have no doubt that the conclusion arrived at by them would have been somewhat different. I would suggest therefore that it is not a final conclusion arrived at by the Commission; but the question has to be examined from various standpoints.

"There is another aspect from which we can look at it. This Commission examined the question in 1908. What a wonderful change has taken place in the country in ten years! In ten years there have been changes of a striking character; and it is not desirable to accept these old ideals and work on those lines. This is a position which the authors of the Report on Constitutional Reforms actually recognize. After referring to the conclusion of the Decentralization Commission, they say: 'it would be unjust in us to blame the Commission for not taking a broader view of their task.' Again later on they say: 'their work must be judged by the conditions of 1908 and not those of 1918.' I only request this Council to consider this. When the conditions in 1908 were so different, we ought not to accept these theories now and draw conclusions from such positions.

"Having so far stated what was done by the Commission, I would now venture to point out various other problems which affect this important question when we consider the remedies. The question for solution is whether the powers of the Collectors of the districts ought to be increased or decreased. The Commission suggested that the Collector is very much tied down by restrictions, by various Government departmental rules; and if he is to do substantial justice promptly and speedily, he should be freed from some of the restrictions imposed upon him. Are we in a position to suggest that he should be freed from those restrictions when there is no means of checking the administration by means of popular bodies? Another question to be considered would be whether we want popular bodies to be brought into existence to administer the mere function of advising him in some branches of the administration. The other question will be whether you are going to start new bodies for the purpose of helping and advising the Collector in the administration of the various branches or whether you are going to utilize bodies we have in existence, i.e., the local bodies. That is also a question to be solved. The next question is, if we agree that some branches of the administration ought to be handed over to popular bodies, whether new bodies or the bodies already in existence, in what respects they can exercise administrative functions and in what respects they can advise the Collector in matters of administration. A further question will arise whether we agree that some branches of administration are to be handed over to popular bodies for the purpose of administration or consultation as to the restrictions and safeguards that ought to be provided to carry out that object.

"I have now indicated, my Lord, the various issues that arise in coming to a final decision. Every one of the issues is a very difficult one by itself; it is one on which the members of the Council, official or non-official, can entertain honest differences of opinion. It is for that purpose that I have suggested in this resolution the desirability of appointing a committee to go into these various problems. When questions of this sort are placed before this committee and when some suggestions are made—the suggestions I make are only as a basis for discussion and for consideration—I have no doubt whatever that, before the problem is satisfactorily solved, the suggestions must be subjected to scrutiny by a body of persons, both official and non-official, representing not only the official interest but also the public interests.

"Taking that view about the questions involved in this resolution I would, in the first place, suggest that we have gone far ahead of the old theories of having bodies for the purpose of consultation or advice alone. I believe that the time has come when we can demand that there should be popular bodies for the purpose of exercising some of the administrative functions which are now solely in official hands. The system or scheme of partially responsible government which it is proposed to introduce—let us hope it will be introduced—will be ineffective and will not be advantageous or beneficial, unless similar measures are devised in regard to matters affecting district administration. In the Provincial Government we can only sketch down the lines of policy, the broad principles for the guidance of the Government. But in matters of actual administration, it is the district officer on the spot that will be in close touch with the people, and their welfare or misery will depend upon the way in which he proceeds to discharge his functions. Therefore I suggest that the time has come when we should, in the first place, ask for devolution of powers, of administrative powers, to popular bodies.

21st NOVEMBER 1918.]

(Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.)

"Then the question will arise: whether new bodies have to be brought into existence or whether the existing local bodies can be used for the purpose. We are all aware that the Government have contemplated a definite advance of local self-government. They want to put them on as popular a basis as possible, and to extend the franchise as widely as possible. Therefore instead of bringing new bodies into existence, I would for myself suggest the desirability of enlarging the administrative functions of the local bodies which are already at work and which it is proposed to improve as early as possible. That is the position that I wish to take.

"Then it may be asked what are the powers which you would like to transfer to these new bodies. Before I make my suggestions, I may say that in the views I am putting forward I am supported by various responsible officials who have spoken on this question. In the first place as early as in 1893 Diwan Bahadur Srinivasaraghava Ayyangar who wrote on 'Forty years of progress in the Madras Presidency' suggested some devolution of powers. After referring to local administration he says: 'Further advance in this direction can be looked for only by entrusting to local bodies more and more of the work of real administration. The measures recommended by me for the settlement of petty litigation—civil and criminal—by means of popular bodies will, to some extent, have the effect of creating greater interest in public affairs than has been displayed hitherto. The assessment of taxes like the income-tax might, in rural tracts, be entrusted in course of time to local fund panchayats who might be assessed at a lump sum which would be distributed by them according to the means of the individuals liable to assessment. The obligation to maintain village forests, agricultural experimental farms, technical schools may, wherever possible, be imposed on them. In the matter of the dispensation of relief in times of distress, the assistance of local fund union panchayats might be made use of more than it has been. Under the influence of a watchful public opinion the duties and responsibilities of Government in this respect have greatly widened of late years, as the Government is made responsible for ensuring that, in times of failure of crops, no deaths by starvation ensue. This is a duty which it is very difficult for any Government to discharge satisfactorily.'

"Therefore he suggested that those functions should be made over to popular bodies. Coming to 1912 when a discussion arose in the Imperial Legislative Council about District Advisory Councils, Sir Reginald Cradock expressly stated that that should be the line of development. He said: 'The question of Advisory Councils of all kinds was in the air, and the district councils to which I referred in that note were not the district councils of Mr. Gokhale's scheme, but those district boards that we have already established and of which the foundations have been laid. These were to be the sources from which eventually, if ever, Advisory Councils were to spring, but I contemplated rather that these boards should themselves become not the Advisory Councils which Mr. Gokhale contemplates, but the agency for doing things themselves and not for advising the Collector how they should be done. And that is what I still think will be the future development not by giving a number of advisers—very often irresponsible—to executive officers like the Collector, but as time goes on for the Collector to divest himself of various functions and hand them over to responsible bodies like the municipalities and district councils. That is the line on which as far as my humble opinion goes, affairs will develop.'

"Now, my Lord, leaving aside the discussion in the Imperial Legislative Council I may draw the attention of the Council to the discussion which took place in February last in this Council and the pertinent remarks made by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar and Your Excellency on that occasion. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar in opposing the resolution moved by Mr. Ramachandra Rao and after quoting Sir Reginald Cradock, concluded as follows: 'That is a line, Sir, to which the Government have absolutely no objection. That is why I say, so far as the functions of these boards are concerned, we are prepared to, we will gladly, consider any suggestions made by Honourable Members for enlarging them.'

"Later on he said: 'My point is, whatever functions you give to the local boards, let those functions be complete and let the responsibility be complete. Let them deliberate, decide and act. Do not divorce action from advice. But I oppose making them advisory in certain respects in regard to which they cannot act. I hope my Hon'ble friend Mr. Ramachandra Rao understands the spirit in which I put forward my objections. It is as well that the objections to the particular idea should be known fully to the Council, because the idea is a particularly fascinating one. When the Local Boards Act is taken up, we would be most willing to consider suggestions for enlarging the functions of the local bodies. But to give them statutory power to offer advice in regard to all branches of the district administration would, I fear, not only paralyse that administration, but would do great injury to local self-government. I therefore feel bound to oppose that portion of the resolution.'

(Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.) [21st NOVEMBER 1918.]

"Later on in winding up the debate Your Excellency made a speech which induced the Hon'ble Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao to withdraw that motion, and in the course of that speech Your Excellency stated as follows:—

'As the Council is aware the Government are willingly and whole-heartedly committed to what is called the liberalising of the local administration. It is a part of our declared policy and the Council knows it. So far as extending the present functions of local boards is concerned, we are in entire sympathy with it. But it is a business matter which must be examined and it must be done in accordance with order, after full information has been received. So far as the principle is concerned, we are entirely in favour of it.'

"Therefore, so far as the enlargement of the functions is concerned, it is clear from the above remarks that it is the accepted policy of the Government. The only question is in what manner we should proceed. The question is whether the time has not come when we might appoint a committee to consider a scheme of development in that direction. It might also be remembered in this connexion that the Public Works Department Reorganization Committee, as the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew is aware, suggested not only that roads and buildings should be made over to local boards, but also that minor irrigation and also minor tanks in the hands of the Revenue Department and also of the Public Works Department should be handed over to local bodies. The recommendations made by them are now under consideration.

"Having referred to the opinions of Sir Reginald Craddock, of Your Excellency and of the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar, I venture to ask whether there is not sufficient information before us to induce us to take another step in solving this problem. Suggestions have been made about handing over buildings, medical relief, income-tax, maintenance of agricultural farms, agricultural operations, licensing and location of liquor shops. Various suggestions have been made from time to time that in affected areas, areas affected by famine and distress, questions of remission and suspension of revenues might also be entrusted to them subject to certain safeguards and restrictions. It is not the ordinary seasonal remission I am referring to; I am referring to cases of widespread distress and famine relief, in which cases, the help of these bodies may be taken advantage of. There is a fair consensus of opinion that it is desirable to hand over forests and grazing areas to village panchayats. There is no question about it that these panchayats which have been formed and which are at the bottom of local self-government should have control in these branches of administration. I have so far sketched out some of the lines on which we might proceed, some directions in which the functions of these bodies might be enlarged and the control of the district officers removed.

"Another question has been suggested and remains for consideration; whether in addition to administrative functions you can give them power to express opinions on other matters of administration and whether they may have administrative control over some branches of district administration and in regard to other matters give their opinion. That deserves careful consideration.

"These are some of the lines on which an inquiry may be made. I know that one proposal after another made by me or others is open to criticism. It is possible that differences of opinion are entertained. I would ask, when we contemplate a real scheme of development in the matter of local administration, when it is the accepted policy of the Government to liberalize the district administration—I am using the words used on the last occasion—is it not high time that we should consult freely and candidly talk over the matter to see in what direction you can improve the existing state of affairs? With these words I commend the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"My Lord, I second the motion. It is an important question which affects the well-being of the people. The district administration is the real administration carried on by the Government, as it exists at present, as is well pointed out in paragraph 125 of the report of Mr. Montagu and Lord Chelmsford: 'The system which we have described was originally due to imitation of the quasi-military organization of the Moghul Empire. The Council and local bodies are innovations, due to the totally different conception of administration which springs from English political thought.' They point out the remedy: 'Strong as it is, the official system is too weak to perfect the enormous task before it without the co-operation of the people.' Such is the all-pervading official activity in the various branches of administration committed to the district officer. The time has come to consider as to how best to associate the people in this difficult task of administration. It is after all on the successful popular administration of the district that the popularity and the efficiency of the Government depend and therefore it is a subject of great importance. It is a subject involving various complications and a subject beset with difficulties. This was the question really discussed in February last on the motion of the Hon'ble Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao who unfortunately framed his resolution in a way which although it raised this issue was not in a form which was acceptable to the Government. As Your Excellency pointed out in summing up the debate on that occasion, the issue which the Hon'ble Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao raised was whether there should be a closer association of the people with the administration of the district. Your Excellency pointed out the resolution did not bring forth that issue which he wanted to place before this Council. Myself and others tried to bring up an amendment on that occasion. I mentioned this method of appointing a committee to find out how best this question can be solved. Your Excellency considered that came in rather late and the Hon'ble Sir Francis Spring also sent up an amendment of which we have not got a copy which also came in too late. Therefore the resolution was withdrawn by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao. In that historic debate in which the eloquence of our esteemed friend the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar was raised to a pitch—it was a memorable debate—all points were fully brought out. If you peruse that debate, as I did this morning, you will become alive to the difficulties then pointed out. It is therefore meet that such a question should be considered by a committee after careful inquiry and consultation with various district officers and people acquainted with district administration. The time has come when something must be done in that direction. Your Excellency's Government are alive to this and the people are alive to it. Therefore sooner or later this question must be settled, how best to associate the people in the task of district administration. District administration can no longer run along the old lines. District Collector was a sort of Governor even without being hampered by an executive council. I need not dilate upon the importance of a district in this Presidency or in India. Some districts are larger than Denmark or Switzerland. The population in some places is more than that of New Zealand or Canada or some divisions of Canada. That shows the importance of the task which the district officers have to perform. It is but right that a system which was brought into vogue about the latter part of the eighteenth century should not be allowed to continue. We must take steps to associate the people in the every-day administration which is carried on by these district officers. How best to do that can be settled by a careful inquiry by a committee of officials and non-officials. Non-official aid should not be under-rated nowadays. Their value and importance are recognized all over the country. Therefore while we concede to officials an intimate knowledge of the problems, yet at the same time their points of view are not at times as sympathetic as they ought to be. After all it must be remembered that in discussing this question of district administration officials are bound to take different views and be honestly biased in favour of their own views. That is not the view that the public will take. The public want to have that administration liberalized and made more popular and more amenable to the public voice and public control. In that view it is not necessary to go into detail on an occasion when the question is whether a committee should go into the question as to how the district administration should be made more popular and liked by the people. The great object should be to train the people in the art of self-government which is the aim and goal which all have in view. Therefore it is but meet that steps should be taken and that at once to see how best the people can be associated with the every-day district administration. I therefore support the proposition."

[21st NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Sir Alexander Cardew.)

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"Your Excellency, the Honourable Member who has brought forward this resolution has given us a very long and eloquent speech, and in particular a nostrum which he advocates. The important question for us to consider as practical people is whether this is the time for us to go into these matters at all. The Government and the country have got before them a very wide and comprehensive scheme of political reforms. That scheme has got to be considered by the British Houses of Parliament and its ultimate result has got to be decided upon. Until that scheme has been settled, is it not rather difficult for this Council to go into changes of a subsidiary nature which must be dependent to a great extent upon the ultimate changes which the political changes involve? The authors of the joint report seem to have recognized this point, because they expressly refer to it and in paragraph 128 say as follows: 'Further as the principle of popular control is admitted into the Government through the medium of the Legislative Councils some means must be devised of enabling the established services to fall in with the new order of things. The precise means of doing so will depend on what we have to propose hereafter as regards the machinery of government.' Until you have settled your machinery of the government you cannot very well determine what administrative changes ought to be made. It is quite possible if you have the report carried into practice anything like a committee now appointed might not go so far as the future government might wish, or they might go further. It is thus premature to discuss the wide issues which the resolution seems to imply until the outline of the political changes is settled.

"On the other hand if the scheme contemplated by the Honourable Member who has brought forward this resolution is really the same as that debated last February—it is rather the conclusion at which I have arrived from the two speeches I have listened to, that this raises substantially the same point as was then debated at great length—then, as was then pointed out, the whole matter, so far as that aspect of it is concerned, would suitably be dealt with in connexion with the legislation before this Council, namely, the Local Boards Bill which is to be introduced into this Council. It is now, I think, under consideration by a committee; we are actually dealing with it, and it has been considered by the committee, it is going up to the Government of India. When we come to the practical things which the Honourable Member suggests, such as the suggestion that minor irrigation may be made over to local bodies, all that is necessary is to suggest the insertion of a clause to that effect in that Bill. I would put it to Honourable Members whether it would not throw back things tremendously and cause great delay if this resolution were accepted. If you appoint a committee de novo, the committee may draw up a further scheme of legislation which will take many years and which will have to be modified further when the reform scheme is settled. From whatever point of view you look at it, this is the wrong time to raise the question. I do not go into the merits of the scheme of devolution of powers regarding income-tax, assessment, minor irrigation, agricultural farms or grazing. All these details may well be discussed; they may be excellent suggestions, or they may not prove to be good suggestions. I only say that this is not the time when it will be wise in the interests of the object which he has himself before him to accept his resolution and appoint a non-official body to consider it. I think the Honourable Member will agree that, supposing a year hence a new scheme of government comes into operation and at the same time we now appoint a committee to examine into these questions on a large scale it would be embarrassing. It is a grave question whether even the revision of the Local Boards Acts can be carried through until we know what the future government is to be. If they are to be carried through then in the revision of the Acts you will have full opportunities of introducing these very matters which you want to introduce through this special committee. I have no personal opinion on any of these matters. I recognize that gradually larger powers must be given, larger scope must be given, to local bodies. How that is to be done is another question. I will not go into the question of advisory councils. Though the Honourable Member has raised it, he does not himself propose advisory councils, but he proposes the enlargement of the functions of the existing local bodies. At present that is a far better line of advance. But I submit to the Council that this is not the time really for discussing these questions; I submit we are wasting time in discussing this matter at this stage. When you have got this thing through, when we know where we are, it may be possible to shape the changes in the local administration. So far as is possible or feasible, I think these might be considered in connexion with the District Boards Bill. I do not think in this view I can accept this resolution. I would suggest to the Honourable Member to wait. This is not a thing to be settled in a hurry. I think without any reflection on the Honourable Member he can well afford to withdraw the resolution and wait till the matter is more ripe for discussion."

(Sir Alexander Cardew ; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.) [21st NOVEMBER 1918.]

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—" My Lord, my Honourable Friend who moved this resolution and the honourable seconder have already referred to the discussion which we had last February. I must say the discussion on the subject at that time was characterized by some amount of heat on both sides. I am glad that we have had as early an opportunity as possible after that discussion to reconsider the arguments and to urge those that have not been urged and take a general review of the position taken on the last occasion upon the present question."

" Before I proceed to make a few remarks I propose to refer to the three preliminary points on which the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew wishes to oppose this motion. The first of these is that a large scheme of constitutional reforms is now before the country and until that matter is decided the question of district administration ought not to be taken up; a great deal depends on how the proposals for constitutional reforms would be shaped and further subsidiary changes in the lower parts of the machinery of the governmental administration in the province will have to be undertaken in consonance with the scheme that may be finally adopted. My Lord, I challenge that position. Before I answer that point, I may say that this question of district administration has not been started with the present scheme of constitutional reforms. It was raised in 1908 at very great length before the Royal Commission on Decentralization, independently of enlarging the powers of the Provincial Governments, as a means of democratising the administration in the districts. It was examined at great length in 1912 in the Imperial Legislative Council on a motion made by Mr. Gokhale and ever since it has been before the country. It has been considered in connexion with the question of enlarging the powers of the Provincial Governments and the Government of India. Therefore whatever changes may be ultimately sanctioned by the statute of Parliament with reference to the provincial administrations and the central Government, it seems to me that the question of district administration, the discussion about which has hitherto proceeded independently of the present contemplated changes in the Provincial Government and the Government of India must be taken up separately. So far as I can see, even assuming that all the proposals under the scheme of constitutional reforms are accepted, the question of district administration and the proposals made by my Honourable friend can be considered without affecting in the slightest degree the machinery of the Government. I am not therefore able to appreciate that portion of the argument of my Hon'ble friend Sir Alexander Cardew."

" Then, my Lord, he asked us whether this was the time when this question ought to be considered. As regards that matter, my Lord, I may say, having had some experience of committees as well as of the work in this Council, that if there is one way of probably shelving a question it is sometimes by the appointment of a committee. It has been the saying of an eminent Parliamentarian that the best way of shelving a question is to appoint a committee. Whether that is so or not we need not consider. We have had an educational conference and it is now two and a half years since the question was reported upon. It takes up a great deal of time for the Local Government to sit upon the proposals to examine the financial proposals and reporting, returning and rereporting takes place is another question. How long this process of before any conclusion is arrived at on a question of the magnitude of changes in the district administration by a process like this. Therefore, my Lord, I do not think we are starting far too soon. If a committee is appointed now to examine this question, it will perhaps take one or two years for this committee to report. Then Your Excellency's Government will have to go into that report, and then it will go to the district officers themselves and other gentlemen who have plenty of experience to examine these proposals, then it will go to the Board of Revenue and they will take another year, and then it will come to the Government and the Government will take another year to go through it, looking at the magnitude and importance of the question, and it must then go to the Secretary of State and the Government of India. How long these authorities are likely to take or have taken on previous occasions in regard to similar questions is well known; but it must be a considerable time before final orders are issued. I do not certainly think it will be inopportune to appoint such a committee now."

" Now, my Lord, coming to the argumentative part of the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew's speech in answer to this resolution, Honourable Members would remember that the last time when I brought forward specific proposals to constitute the local boards as advisory committees, most of the eloquence of my Hon'ble friend Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar was expended on demonstrating the inutility of irresponsible advice. I admit it. Now my Honourable friend on the present occasion has abandoned that line. Now we do not want advisory councils, let us have a transfer of administrative functions. Now I have not heard any answer to that aspect of the question. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew said he had no views either for one side or for the other at present, because the question was far too important. He does not wish to answer that aspect of the case."

[21st NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Siva Rao.)

" My Lord, as regards the necessity of a committee I may perhaps also refer to what the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar himself said last time as showing the extreme complexity of the subject. My argument on the last occasion was that I was not prepared to give a cut and dry scheme because judging from the official experience and the non-official experience available it might be cut up and criticised in all kinds of ways; if a committee was appointed, the committee could command all the experience of the members and that was a much better method than to bring forward cut and dry proposals. Then the question was one for a committee. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar said, referring to my not bringing forward cut and dry proposals :—

" He indicated one or two things, but finally he wound up and in effect said, " I am not prepared to give you a cut and dry scheme, I hereby make a present to you of this idea, that the functions of these local boards should be enlarged, you had better work it out." I admit that we are under an obligation to work up an idea like this, because it is our policy to enlarge the functions of the local boards. If the Honourable Member would tell us the various directions in which it can be done, and if other Honourable Members would indicate their views on this subject by putting them on paper, or the local boards themselves in the province send up suggestions as to the way in which their functions should be enlarged, those suggestions would receive the most careful and sympathetic consideration. It is not possible for me to commit the Government off-hand to the view that the local boards could deal with this or that, e.g., minor irrigation works, excise or income-tax, or any other department of the Government. Each one of these things has to be examined carefully, it has to be thought out by the Government, and, if I may venture to add, it has to be thought out by Honourable Members and it has also to be considered by the local bodies whose functions we propose to enlarge."

" This is exactly the ground in support of the appointment of a committee. The persons that are to sit on the committee ought to be men who have dealt with the district administration both from the point of view of the officials as well as of the ordinary ryot, and it will have to consider the functions that can be so transferred. Therefore, I beg to submit that a strong case has been made out for the appointment of a committee. It is these very difficulties which are now in our way. The question cannot be answered and no proper scheme can be formulated by the Government or by ourselves as stated by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar. That is why on the present occasion the Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao has suggested the appointment of a committee and has not confined it purely to merely expanding the functions of the existing local bodies. It seems to me that the question is one which is very important and the sooner it is faced the better. If a committee were appointed, I take it that it would consist of men of different shades of opinion, official and non-official, they call and examine witnesses, call for statements of views from various departmental officers and adjust the machinery in the direction indicated."

" One other matter to which I would like to refer is the impending legislation with regard to local bodies. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew has stated to-day that at any rate in his opinion it may be that even these Bills about local self-government may have some kind of connexion with the new scheme of constitutional reforms, and perhaps they may also not be proceeded with. That was exactly the view taken in connexion with the City Municipal Bill by the non-official members, but that motion was defeated in this Council. On the present occasion it is suggested that these Bills may have some connexion with the reforms. Whatever that may be, there is this to be said; the Bills which have been framed relate to the present functions of these bodies and relate to local self-government—sanitation, education and matters of that kind. I do not think any of these Bills contemplate the transfer of other functions, functions such as those which are now vested in District officers. That being so, I expect, under the rules so far as I can see, it would be objected to on the part of the Government that this enlargement of these boards may not be within the purview of the Bills. If that position is taken up by the Government, we shall be altogether unable to do anything. That is an aspect of the case which I trust the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew will consider. So far as I know the legislative procedure, if there are any points for suggestions to enlarge these boards, the Government will probably have to obtain the sanction of the Government of India and the Secretary of State subject to whose sanction the Government can introduce Bills. I mentioned this point last time. I think even before these amendments can come in, it would be a wise step to appoint a committee generally to find out in what respects the functions of the local bodies can be enlarged. Therefore, my Lord, without going into the actual functions that have been suggested as suitable for the general desirability of appointing a committee is to my mind clear. I do not think that the conditions at present are unfavourable for the consideration of such a subject."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO :—" I give my strong support to the resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao. The gist of the resolution seems to be that steps should be taken to liberalize the district administration, and to carry out that purpose, he has asked for the appointment of a committee consisting of officials and non-officials to propose the necessary steps. I shall be very brief in this matter. I may say that the Collector of the district is virtually the governor of a very large tract of the country, as pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar. He is not a civil servant as in England who carries out mandates from the central government, but is himself virtually the governor, initiates policy and formulates schemes. That fact has been well recognized by the authors of the report on constitutional reforms. The Collector here is different from the public servant in England. If that be so, we naturally desire that that administration should be liberalised; in other words the people should be associated in matters of general administration. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew who replied on behalf of the Government did not give us the opinion of the Government; he reserved that opinion. But he feels that the time is inopportune because certain Bills are pending on the legislative anvil, specially the Local Boards Act. This resolution in my humble opinion does not commit the mover to any certain position. He asks for devolution of powers; he is not satisfied with a mere consultative body to advise the Collector. What he says is the times have very far advanced, and we have to go a step forward and ask for the devolution of certain powers in favour of local bodies. But he only suggests that it may not be desirable to form new bodies, and that the existing bodies, the municipalities and local boards, may be usefully utilized for the purpose. I do not think he commits himself to any definite opinion. He leaves it to the committee he proposes to decide this matter.

(Mr. Siva Rao ; Mr. Venkatapati Raju ; [21st NOVEMBER 1918.
Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.)

"The main objection of the Government to the formation of this committee is that these Bills will be under discussion in course of time and that will be the suitable occasion for considering them. As was pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao, all these proposals should be cut and dry and should be carefully thought out before the Bill is introduced into the Legislative Council. Then we can easily insert these provisions if we have the recommendations of this committee pointing out certain lines of advance and the powers which should be entrusted to these local bodies. The necessity for a committee could not be minimized. All sides of the matter have to be carefully considered and sifted. It is highly essential even when the Bills come into existence that the committee should sit over the proposals and come to a certain understanding.

"I may also point out in this connexion that the Public Works Department Reorganization Committee have already recommended that local bodies should be entrusted with the task of the construction of roads and buildings and also minor irrigation works. That is an expansion of the powers of the local bodies which they have proposed.

"With these remarks I strongly recommend the formation of a committee whose deliberations would be exceedingly useful to enable us to arrive at a definite conclusion."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I agree with the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew for one reason; we are thankful to him that the Government are not prepared either to condemn or to accept the proposal simply because the reform proposals are before the country and will be discussed later on. Otherwise we are pretty sure what would be the verdict of this Government where popular control is to be extended to district administration. There is some difficulty which I entertain in understanding the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew, because, when we oppose the introduction of the City Municipal Bill, another member of the Government said that we must have business as usual and we need not wait for the introduction of the reforms in order to give enlarged powers to local bodies and liberalize them. When we want to introduce popular control in district administration, the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew says, there is a Bill before you, why do you bother yourselves? Whatever it be, these things cannot be done in a moment. First of all we must have ideas and fructify them; we must liberalize the administration; and it will take a long time. It is not with the hope that this resolution will be carried or adopted by the Government that the Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao has brought forward the resolution. He has done so in order to make the Government understand how the people are feeling—that popular control is necessary in district administration. For that purpose it is absolutely necessary to go into this question if not in this shape, in some other shape in order to bring the district administration under popular control. Therefore, I strongly support the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I wish to state one or two reasons why this Council might accept this resolution. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew did not say that any harm would result from the formation of the committee, but he took up the attitude of saying 'not at present, just wait a bit.' The wait-and-see policy was not the cause of the successful conclusion of the war; it is the policy of activity that has given us brilliant results. We shall always be disposed to support any persons who recommend action for the purpose of doing any good rather than those who counsel us to wait and see how things get on. If the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew is really under the impression that it is impossible for the committee to do any work without the fate of the constitutional reforms being known, very few will be able to endorse his view. The real fact is the district administration can be improved before the Parliament shortly.

"The other point of view which he put forward, viz., that this matter may be considered in connexion with the Local Boards Act, is a matter which is hard for us to understand. Will the appointment of a committee as recommended by the Honourable mover be an obstacle to the work of the amendment of these Acts? Obviously not. The work of the committee now proposed will be fairly complex as to what is to be done. We are going to have two committees on one of which the Hon'ble Mr. A. Subbarayalu Reddiyar is to sit—committee to decide the functions in higher matters of the Provincial Government. Similarly in matters of district administration a committee might sit and take evidence and come to a conclusion or offer recommendations as to which would be the proper functions on which local bodies might have a decisive voice and in which matters their voice might be subject to other criticism. It is quite clear that far from there being any harm in constituting the committee, we shall be doing a lot of spadework which has to be done. When I was listening to the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew, I was reminded of some old dames who when any serious undertaking is about to be undertaken often say in the same strain as the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew, 'Not yet; now there will be difficulties, the stars are not propitious.' I was reminded of the Greek general who was in command of an expedition and who said that the stars did not sanction the sailing of the ships, and consequently the expedition had to be lost. It is not the stars that are being consulted; the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew is thinking of the joint report as a sort of star which is to decide the fate of this motion. I hope that this advice for inaction will be swept aside and the Council would go in for a thing which is not harmful and on which a large number of members have built up great deal of hope."

21st NOVEMBER 1918.]

(Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ;
Mr. Chidambaramatha Mudaliyar ; Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.)

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I give my strong support to the appointment of the committee. I feel convinced that this is one of those matters in which reforms have been long overdue. I think the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew's view that it should be put off is neither justifiable nor reasonable. District administration stands in great need of getting familiarised. There is absolutely no sort of control whatever by the public on district administration as such. I need not dilate upon the evils and inconveniences that result to the people by such a state of things. Sufficient has been said to the Council to show the need for reform in this matter at as early a date as possible. The question has been before the public for a pretty long time ever since the Decentralization Commission made their report and Mr. Gokhale brought forward his resolution in the Imperial Legislative Council. I hope Your Excellency's Government will see their way to take into their earnest consideration the resolution before the Council and give it early effect."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"My Lord, I find it difficult to follow the argument of the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew in opposing this resolution. He has not taken any exception to the principle embodied in this resolution. He has admitted the desirability of enlarging the functions of local bodies already in existence. His only argument is that it is somewhat premature to take up this question at the present juncture. It is only that aspect of it that is now before the Council; and it is not necessary to enter into an elaborate discussion of the details of the various suggestions and proposals made by me.

"The first position taken up by him is, we have a scheme of reforms published; that scheme is going to be considered in due course; it must have some bearing on district administration; so this is not the time to see what experiments are to be made in that direction. My Lord, I venture to suggest that this question of district administration had been engaging the attention of the Government and the public even before the expansion of the Legislative Council was thought of. If on this occasion the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew refers to the scheme of reforms, it is because, as we lawyers know, he finds it difficult to adduce any arguments against my resolution. It will be realised that whether our Councils are expanded or not, whether there is more representation in the Legislative Councils or not, the district administration ought to be improved if it is really to do any substantial good to the people of this country. So far as that question is concerned, I would submit, my Lord, it should be taken into consideration and satisfactorily solved as early as possible.

"The next point suggested is that there are other committees appointed to consider the draft Bills to amend the Municipalities Act and the Local Boards Act, that the Bills have been prepared and that during the discussion of those Bills this question might be solved. I hope the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar will be in a position to tell us if these questions were considered or referred to the committees appointed for the purpose. My information is that the question of enlarging the functions of these bodies was not referred to the committee and was not considered by them. I hope he will enlighten me in regard to this point. I also wish to have some information as to whether the contemplated Bills to amend the Local Boards Act and the District Municipalities Act embody any provisions for enlarging the powers beyond those now existing; because if they contain any such provisions there will be enough of scope for a discussion regarding these aspects of the problem, but if that is not the case, I doubt very much whether we will be in a position to discuss the question of the enlargement of the functions of these bodies when these Bills come up before the Council. As to the question of procedure the Hon'ble the Advocate-General will also be in a position to advise whether, if the contemplated Bills for amending the Municipalities Act and the Local Boards Act do not provide for the enlargements of the functions of those bodies, it will be open to this Council to ask for such provisions. I have serious doubts whether that can be done unless we come to a deliberate conclusion and address the Government of India for further sanction. I hope some light will be thrown on these questions which materially affect the problem I have suggested.

"Another point I have to suggest is this—assuming for a moment that the Government have already incorporated in these Bills a provision for the purpose, and assuming that it is open to this Council to raise this question in the course of the debate on the Bills, whether that will be the proper procedure to follow or whether the proper procedure will be to have an independent discussion of these proposals by a committee in consultation with the district officers. Everyone knows there is so much difference between debates in this Council with formal rules of procedure where everyone is called upon to speak within a certain time-limit and a discussion in a committee where persons can be more free to exchange views and come to a common understanding. That is the advantage of working in a committee which we cannot have in a formal discussion in the Council. That is the chief reason why I have thought fit to suggest a committee; otherwise I would have accepted the invitation of the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar and Your Excellency at the last meeting. When the Bills come up for discussion and are discussed in a formal manner, the results will not be as satisfactory as you would like them to be; whereas if the same question is debated in a committee it will be open to the non-officials to convince the officials or to the officials to convince the non-officials. To have a full discussion of the complicated problems that I suggest it is necessary to appoint a committee. I really do not see what harm or what serious consequences would be caused by the appointment of a committee. The committee will consist of several district officers of experience and will be able to offer sound advice; but the final action will be in the hands of the Executive Government."

(Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao ;
Sir Alexander Cardew ; the President.)

[21st NOVEMBER 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"I have listened with a great deal of interest to the speeches of the many Honourable Members who have spoken, because of the remarkable change of view which they seem to have undergone during the last few months. When we were discussing the City Municipal Bill in August last, the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan, who unfortunately has not favoured us with his views on the present occasion but whose views will become apparent later when we come to vote, told us that according to the reform proposals the question of local self-government would be treated as a transferred subject and would be in the charge of Ministers, and the local Government would be given a good deal of autonomy to manage their affairs and therefore we should put off the City Municipal Bill; a year is not a long period to wait he said; if the reformed Council cannot produce a better Bill than the present one, then the responsibility he added will be with the reformed Council. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Krishna Rao came into the discussion and he said: 'As has been pointed out already, very great constitutional changes are under contemplation; and there is absolutely no doubt that a substantial devolution of power will be given to the local Government; I have no hesitation in giving my support to the motion before this Council, i.e., to adjourn the consideration of the City Municipal Bill.' Then came the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar and he went a step further and was more logical in his conclusion. He has said to-day that I am counselling a policy of wait and see, and he is for going ahead. On the 14th of August he said: 'That leads me to a large proposition, that matters which are not urgent and which can possibly be postponed till after the new Council, when we shall breathe a freer air, should be invariably postponed because the voice of the people will then be heard.'

"It seems that we have a little changed our attitude since then. The Government on that occasion did not accept the proposal to adjourn the Corporation Bill, because that Bill was a measure which had been under discussion for years and which had reached a stage when it was ready for the practical work of the Council, and there was practical reason connected with finance for which we could not put it off. At present there is no proposal really ready for any action. Everything is in the air, we are asked merely to appoint a committee to investigate these things, and we are asked to take that step on the eve of the constitutional changes on account of which two months ago the Honourable Members thought it necessary to put off every concrete proposal. That attitude is inconsistent and I also venture to submit to the Honourable mover that it will be really better for the purpose he has in view not to go on with this proposal. I know for many years gentlemen have wished to have a larger control in district administration. They may be right or wrong, but I say again this is not the time when you ought to take up large questions of this sort. The changes which the joint report involves will have a far-reaching effect on the whole machinery of the Government, and I consider it would be wiser to wait till those changes are formulated and have been given a trial before you begin to tamper with your machinery further. India will be going through a period of considerable difficulty when the changes take place. If you are going to tamper with the machinery of Government the consequences will be serious. I do not say that the proposal is harmful, but this is not the time to insist upon the proposition. If you insist upon pressing it, the Government will be obliged to oppose it."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"What is the opinion of the Honourable Gentleman?"

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Let it be put to the vote."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The whole discussion has been out of order. It raises substantially the same issue, though in other words, that was raised in February last. We have been raising the same issue. I would ask Honourable Members if they mean to discuss the same issue, to enable me to judge what their intentions are, so that I may administer the rules of debate. I sometimes can see the similarity of resolutions that are submitted, but in this case I was not able to see the similarity. Although the Honourable Member took part in the debate on the last occasion, he overlooked it when he sent notice of the resolution."

"Let me say one word on the merits of this resolution. There is considerable distinction between proceeding with legislation which has taken years of preparation and initiating a new inquiry. The policy of the Government has been quite consistent throughout. For several years they had been engaged in preparing Bills relating to local administration. The City Municipal Bill has been approved by the Government of India. The other Bills are now under consideration. The District Municipalities Bill has gone up to the Government of India. The Local Boards Bill is about to go up to the Government of India. There is also an Education Bill which is about to go up to the Government of India. Much time and labour have been spent on the preparation of the Bills. They represent the consistent and clear policy of the Government to extend the sphere of Local Self-Government. I need not labour that point. Would it be wise to throw away all that work, all the labour which has been expended upon them or to cancel them? After much consideration the Government came to the conclusion that it was wise to proceed with these Bills and whether they bear a large part or a small part in the extension of this sphere of local self-government which takes place in this country, they will be an integral part, and it will always be useful to have them passed into law after due consideration by this Council.

21st NOVEMBER 1918.] (The President; Mr. Sadasiva Bhat.)

"Now I ask this Council what would be the position of a chairman and the members of such a committee as is now proposed if they were to meet a month hence and consider what their work is to be. The very first consideration which the chairman will have to put before the committee is that the Madras Corporation Bill has to be considered and passed, the District Municipalities Bill will have to be considered and passed and the Local Boards Bill will also have to be considered and passed into law; there is an Educational Bill which has also to be considered and passed into law; there is a Public Works Department reorganization committee which has been examining into the relations between the Provincial Government and the district boards and the Public Works Department, and those proposals will have to be considered. I feel almost certain that the committee would advise Government as a first step that it is better to postpone its labours until it can see if in these several directions the functions of local self-government are going to be extended. Yet at this moment when all these extensions are actually in sight though not actual in details, the Council is now invited to appoint another committee to institute a new inquiry in that very same field. I must say I feel it will not really redound to the practical capacity of this Council to adopt any such suggestion. I now put the resolution to the Council."

The resolution was put to the Council and lost.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar is not here to move resolutions No. XIII* and XIV*. We shall take resolution XV."

RESOLUTION RE REMISSION OF REVENUE IN SOUTH KANARA.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"Your Excellency, I beg to move—

'XV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that Government should extend the ordinary rules regarding remissions to the South Kanara district.'

"South Kanara is usually regarded as a district where the monsoon never failed and the crops which are dependent on the heavy rainfall were generally good. The district was settled only in 1902-1903 and since then we have not had any particularly bad year. In these circumstances there has been no occasion to consider the question of remitting revenue in South Kanara. But I regret however that the district has had to go through an exceptional season this year. Our rainfall which in normal years ordinarily went up to 200 inches in some parts of the district has been largely in defect throughout the district and what rain we had fell in a most unseasonal manner. In ordinary years there would be little rain in May and the heaviest rain would be from the middle of June to the end of July. This year however the monsoon behaved in a very strange way. We have had a very wet and rainy May when the cultivators were quite unprepared, and we have had the driest June and July. There never had been such a bad season in the memory of any living person in Kanara and I am informed that the records of the district show that the monsoon never played such a freak in any previous year."

"I must also point out that the cultivators did their best in the exceptional circumstances of the year. Some sowed seed broadcast though late in the season when usually they would transplant. A few others attempted to raise a dry crop while others merely looked up to the Heavens in despair. The result has been a smaller extent under cultivation and a very poor outturn on the area cultivated. I learn from the answer to an interpellation of mine that about 25,000 acres of paddy land were left altogether uncultivated; and in most of the one crop lands, the outturn has not been sufficient to cover the cost of cultivation and there have been several fields where the crop has been so poor that it had to be left ungathered and grazed in the field as the straw would not cover the expense of gathering it."

* The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—

XIII. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a committee consisting preferably of officials and non-officials be appointed to inquire into and report upon the steps to be taken in connexion with the recent incident in Madras in which the Reserve Police fired on the 27th ultimo on people in the Collector's office compound.

XIV. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the press communiqué dated 28th September 1918 (Revenue) relating to the disturbances in various parts of the Presidency be reconsidered, that steps be taken as far as possible to prohibit transport of foodstuffs from one district to another and to procure the necessary foodstuffs to the areas from places where they are available and that instructions be issued to the several local bodies to take the question of the supply of essential foodstuffs to the poorest classes of people on hand on an assurance of a grant from the Government of a moiety of the loss incurred provided the said local bodies accept the conditions, if any, laid down by the Government to transact business as per instructions given.

(Mr. Sadasiva Bhat; Mr. Kavalappara Muppil Nayar; [21st NOVEMBER 1918.
Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.]

"I also beg to make one or two observations to indicate to the Government why South Kanara deserves as a matter of fact a more lenient treatment than most other districts in the Presidency. In the first place the Government have not spent anything on any irrigation or other works to afford facilities for water-supply to the ryots and cultivators of South Kanara."

"The settlement was introduced in the district in 1902-03 under which the assessment was raised by over 9 lakhs which worked out at 131 per cent in one taluk and 85 per cent in another and an average increase of 64 per cent above the former assessment—although in the language of a former Settlement Commissioner 'all the cultivable lands in the district both wet and garden have been reclaimed by long years of patient toiling and moiling. There is in truth nothing to tax except the ryots' improvements.'"

"Again I understand that in other settled districts the practice has been to treat purely 'manavari' paddy growing lands as 'dry' but assessed at one sort higher than the ordinary dry land but in South Kanara bettu lands which even literally mean 'dry' have been classified with other rice growing lands in the valley as 'wet.'"

"Then again I wish Government to remember that in South Kanara cultivation has to be carried on under more than ordinarily difficult circumstances, that the heavy rainfall which has done away hitherto with the necessity for irrigation works entails otherwise much labour and expense on the cultivator. The heavy rainfall of the district entails much expenditure, though not always accurately appraisable in money for the repairing of bunds and the levelling of fields. Ploughing cattle have to be generally imported and the inclemency of the weather is considered to be unfavourable to their longevity. Wages though in most villages regulated by custom and therefore in some degree stationary when paid in kind are often high even in villages nearer the coast, owing to the existence of some diversity of employment for the working classes. Government provides no irrigation works and such irrigation sources as actually exist are all maintained in their efficient condition at the ryots' own expense. All these circumstances indicate that South Kanara deserves very lenient treatment particularly in the present year."

"The crop raised by the aid of the south-west monsoon is the main crop in South Kanara. The tenant has to pay the rent to the landlord out of that and the landlord has to pay the Sircar the assessment out of that also. It has also to be remembered that nearly half of the extent cultivated in the district yields only a single crop raised at the south-west monsoon. In these circumstances the Government and the members of this Council can form a fair idea of the calamity that has overtaken the district this year by the failure of the monsoon on which only the district is dependant for its crop. The conditions created by the war and the ravages of the influenza epidemic even in the remotest villages have only aggravated the hardship and the distress."

"I have no doubt that the Government are alive to the situation and in view of the failure of the crop took early steps to retain the available produce in the district itself by prohibition of export in any way before every other district in the Presidency; and the people have been anxiously looking forward to some relief at the hands of Government in the way of remissions of revenue."

"As I said however, there has been no experience of remissions in the district and the Government have also not preferred to make a statement of their policy regarding remissions in that district. The Board of Revenue in its proceedings No. 41, dated 15th March 1902 (paragraph 27) while passing orders on the settlement scheme remarked 'that when the new rates are introduced, the ordinary rules regarding remission should be extended to South Kanara.'"

"But the Government expressly said that they preferred not to announce their policy at that time. In the absence of any remission rules for the district and the hesitation of the Government in announcing their policy, the district authorities did not think they were justified in spending time and labour over the collection of detailed data regarding the state of the crops and outturn in the several classes of land in each village. It is for this reason I pray for remission for the district and that some rules may be framed for the guidance of district officers in such contingency."

"Since I sent up this resolution, I am advised by gentlemen whom I regard as authorities on the subject that the extension of the ordinary rules of remission to South Kanara will not be of advantage to the district and is not called for. Out of deference to them I do not seriously press for the extension of the ordinary rules. I shall be satisfied if the Government will treat the district of South Kanara in a lenient manner by granting remissions and will frame some rules for the guidance of district officers under similar circumstances in future. I am informed that since I sent up this resolution the Government have issued some instructions regarding remissions. I have not been favoured with a copy of the order nor do I know its terms. I move this resolution more with a view to elicit a statement from the Government."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. K. R. Kavalappara Muppil Nayar:—"I second the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar:—"I wanted to second this resolution clubbed with resolutions XXVI and XXVII of which I have given notice. I wish to support this resolution with this statement: I believe that the Honourable Mover of the resolution was induced to bring it forward in view of the special conditions and hardships prevailing in South Kanara. The same conditions are prevalent in so many places and therefore I sent up resolutions XXVI and XXVII. I understand there are very many features of the South Kanara district which would be dealt with by the answer of the Government, and I think the answer might [21st NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Mr. Buckley;

Mr. Couchman.)

cover resolutions XXVI and XXVII. I hope the spirit which actuated the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew and the Honourable Members in the discussion of the prices resolution would also actuate them in this matter. This is really a non-controversial question affecting the ryots which is causing them hardship and it appeals to all. Without anything more I place resolutions XXVI and XXVII as part of the same resolution. I hope one general statement will be made as to the Government policy."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. Buckley:—"May I ask the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar if he withdraws the resolution XXVI?"

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar:—"After hearing you I can say whether I shall do so or not."

The Hon'ble Mr. M. E. Couchman:—"Your Excellency, I have been asked to deal with South Kanara. That is a separate subject and it has no connexion with the larger resolution put down by the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar. As regards the question of remission in South Kanara, the position has been correctly described by the Hon'ble Mr. Sadasiva Bhat. I have only to add that one reason which influenced the Government in declining to make any announcement regarding remission in South Kanara is because the settlement of that district contains certain provisions peculiar to that district which are exceptionally favourable. These exceptional features were that in that district the usual allowance of 15 per cent for vicissitudes of season was allowed, although in allowing it the Board of Revenue remarked that vicissitudes of season were practically negligible. That is to say by calculating it at that rate that district was treated favourably. The Hon'ble Mr. Sadasiva Bhat admitted that during the fifteen years after the settlement was introduced there have been no important vicissitudes of season. That justifies the remark of the Board of Revenue. Another special circumstance in that district is there is no second-crop charge. There is no registered double crop land. The very best wet land pays one-fourth assessment even when there is a second crop, and the best wet land there is equal to the best wet land in any other district. A third wet crop is raised on some lands. We have treated that at a compounded rate, one and a quarter times the single crop rate."

"Another point is, when land registered as single crop is cultivated with a second crop, no additional charge is made. That is unique. When a piece of land is cultivated with a second crop, there is no further charge. When I was Settlement officer I had to convince Sir Henry Winterbotham that owing to the peculiar nature of the country it is practically impossible to exercise any check. Even in respect of one village you may have to climb several mountain ranges and the difficulties of inspection are enormous. The reports of karnams and revenue inspectors would never have been subjected to inspection by higher officers. That would have resulted in a great deal of corruption and it was chiefly on that ground that the Government decided to grant South Kanara the exceptional concession of levying no second-crop charge on single crop land, when a second crop is cultivated."

"Another concession was, when dry lands were converted into wet or when uncultivated hill sides were converted into dry or garden lands, no assessment was made for the settlement period. That was a considerable concession because land registered dry was paying two or four annas an acre fifteen years ago; it may now be highly valuable garden and land planted with arecanut or coconut. All these things the Hon'ble Mr. Sadasiva Bhat may know; the inhabitants of that favoured district scarcely realize how much better off they are than people in the East Coast districts. The main position is that during the settlement period they are allowed the whole of the ryots' improvements. At jamabandi there are no extra charges whatever for the ryot to pay; he is free from fasljasti, tirwajasti, etc. All the people in the East Coast will realize that that is a very favourable position. In consideration of these special circumstances the Government thought it best to make no announcement as regards seasonal remissions. This year on the recommendation of the Collector and the Board of Revenue the Government have granted remission as a special case under Board's Standing Order No. 14. That Government Order must have reached the Collector by this time. It provides for exceptional concessions under exceptional circumstances. The exceptional circumstance has occurred once in the settlement period. Therefore the procedure adopted by the Government is the correct one. Such a circumstance very seldom arises. The Government have shown that they are willing to deal with it when it does arise. In view of this explanation I hope the Honourable Member will withdraw his resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. Buckley:—"At the desire of the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar I will deal with resolutions XXVI and XXVII. Resolution XXVI asks that the collection of the land revenue may be immediately suspended. That is a request which it is not possible for the Government to comply with straightaway. But when we come to resolution XXVII it says 'that for affording relief to the agriculturists whose punja crops have almost wholly failed for want of seasonal rain, the question of remitting punja tirwa be considered by the Government and as a basis for the same the local revenue officers be directed to begin their inspection immediately.' In the areas in which distress has given rise to the greatest anxiety, I know Mr. Turing has under consideration the question of suspending assessments on dry lands. He has himself gone to Kudligi and will visit Rayadurg and Harpanahalli. I do not wish to raise any hopes that remission will be granted, because over a large area a gram crop has been put down; rain has been falling during the last ten days which is favourable to the crops. If the crop is successfully harvested, the ryots will get a good return in price. If the crop is not successfully harvested, it may be necessary to take some steps. In Kurnool and 428 RESOLUTIONS RE REMISSION OF REVENUE IN SOUTH KANARA; SUSPENSION OF THE LAND REVENUE COLLECTIONS OWING TO THE PREVALENT DISTRESS; REMISSION OF DRY ASSESSMENT IN AREAS IN WHICH THERE HAS BEEN FAILURE OF CROP AND COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER AMENDMENT OF THE ACTS RELATING TO VILLAGE SERVICE.

(Mr. Buckley; Mr. Sadasiva Bhat; [21st NOVEMBER 1918.
Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; the President;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

Mr. Raghavayya in Anantapur have, I know, been considering the question. I have no doubt the Collectors of all districts have been doing the same. I have been hearing from them about the state of the season not only in the weekly season report, but by means of special weekly, fortnightly and monthly reports. I have no objection to asking the Collectors to let me know at an early date whether they have any recommendations to make on this question."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"The Government, I am glad, have issued orders granting remissions. As I said, I am quite satisfied with regard to that point. I do not want to enter into a controversy now as to whether a favourable settlement has been granted to South Kanara or no although I had myself pointed out how the increase of assessment affected the different taluks. I beg to withdraw the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution XV was withdrawn.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I understand resolution XXVII has been accepted."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. BUCKLEY:—"I am prepared to ask the Collectors what recommendations they wish to make."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"You accept XXVII."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"On that assurance you can withdraw."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"XXVII is accepted and I withdraw XXVI."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Buckley accepts the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. BUCKLEY:—"The Honourable Member asks that the question may be considered by the Government. The question is already being considered by the Government."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"There is no necessity to accept the resolution. The Honourable Member may withdraw it."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I see that it is practically accepted. It does not matter whether it is withdrawn or accepted."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, resolutions XXVI and XXVII were withdrawn.

The resolutions XXVI and XXVII which were withdrawn were as follows:—

RESOLUTION RE SUSPENSION OF THE LAND REVENUE COLLECTIONS OWING TO THE PREVALENT DISTRESS.

"XXVI. This Council recommends to His Excellency in Council

(a) that in order to afford relief to the agriculturists from the distress occasioned by the failure of the rains in areas where such distress is acute, the collection of land revenue may be immediately suspended; and

(b) that further measures be taken as may be shown to be necessary after consultation with special local committees that may be formed for this purpose."

RESOLUTION RE REMISSION OF DRY ASSESSMENT IN AREAS IN WHICH THERE HAS BEEN FAILURE OF CROP.

"XXVII. This Council recommends to His Excellency in Council

(a) that for affording relief to the agriculturists whose punja crops have almost wholly failed for want of seasonal rains, the question of remitting punja tirwa be considered by the Government; and

(b) as a basis for the same, the local revenue officers be directed to begin their inspection immediately."

RESOLUTION RE COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER AMENDMENT OF THE ACTS RELATING TO VILLAGE SERVICE.

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"In the absence of the Hon'ble the Raja of Ramnad who is unfortunately unable to attend, I move resolution XVI. It runs as follows:—

"XVI. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a mixed committee of officials and non-officials be appointed to inquire and report to Government on what lines the Madras Proprietary Estates Village Service Act, 1894, and the Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act, 1895, should be amended."

"When I was approached to move this resolution, I was aware of the Bill submitted by Government for public criticism for the amendment of these particular Acts mentioned in the resolution. I was wondering what necessity there was for this resolution, and thereupon I put myself in communication with the Raja and he pointed out that the Bill as proposed does not touch the question which the zamindars have been putting before the Government for a long series of years. Two points he wishes to urge for the consideration of the Council. The first is 'It is unnecessary for me to mention at length the existing unsatisfactory provisions of the Act. We cannot sanction any leave, remove any village officer or exercise any manner of disciplinary control over them, in short a deputy tahsildar or tahsildar who gets a pay of Rs. 150 is given wider and larger power over these village officers and we feel it a humiliation and disgrace to go to these low-paid officers frequently for getting our own subordinates dealt with for dereliction of duty and other irregularities.' That is apparently the grievance felt all along by these zamindars. Your Excellency will find that the matter was brought forward for the consideration of this Council in 1911 by Mr. Shanmukam Pillai on the 22nd February when he brought forward for the consideration of the Government certain considerations for the amendment of the Act so as to clothe the zamindars with larger powers of discipline in order to ensure the efficient administration of the zamindaris entrusted to their charge. Again in 1914 on the 2nd April the zamindar of Doddappanayakkaur, the Hon'ble Mr. V. Ramabhadra Nayudu, moved a resolution. He put forward quite a number of opinions which he had collected from various people in charge of a number of zamindaris, Diwan Bahadur Jagannatham Chetti, the Trustees of the Ramnad Devasthanam, all of them men of experience. That resolution was seconded by the late lamented Mr. K. R. V. Krishna Rao and the Hon'ble the Raja of Dharakota supported the resolution. The zamindars find their position irksome. They find they cannot get their work done. They ask for more powers being given to them over the village officers.

RESOLUTION RE COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER AMENDMENT OF THE ACTS RELATING TO VILLAGE SERVICE. 429

21st NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Venkatapati Raju.)

"I find in the Bill published for public criticism no provision is made to meet the difficulties the zamindars have felt. My own view is that any criticism that may be offered on this Bill may include suggestions in order to amend the Act in the way the zamindars want. The zamindars are apprehensive that they have no right to offer suggestions outside the proposed provisions in the Bill. They think it is not open to them to offer suggestions to include other provisions in the Bill. I do not know if that is the correct view. I do not see why they should not offer suggestions to make the Bill more comprehensive. Apparently some of the gentlemen who have offered opinions seem to have been labouring under the impression that their opinion is asked for as regards the merits of the proposed amendments and not as regards new suggestions. If they can be assured that they can offer further suggestions on the proposed Bill that may get over some of the difficulties.

"As regards the particular point they have in view, I do not know what view the Government have taken with reference to that question. From the omission to make any provision in the proposed Bill notwithstanding that the matter was brought to their notice more than once in the Council, probably the Government have taken a view not favourable to the suggestions contained in this resolution. If that is so, then perhaps this is a matter on which the Government might accept a resolution that a committee may be appointed to inquire into the necessity of the proposed amendment which the zamindars so much desire. They all feel it a grievance. They say they are not able to manage their estates efficiently and properly as the village officers are not under their control. These village officers have to collect the rent and to keep accounts and in various other ways they have to help the zamindars. All the zamindars feel there is a pressing need for an amendment of this character. It is a matter on which there should be some inquiry and the Government should have the advantage of a report by a committee consisting of officials and non-officials. As the Government have taken up the amendment of the Act, it is but right that this grievance should be attended to. Therefore I move this resolution and ask the Government to accept it."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I may be permitted to second this resolution which the Hon'ble the Raja of Bobbili intended to second. He is unable to do so owing to illness. He has asked me to read his speech which I gladly do, as I am able to endorse it. This is the Raja's speech:—

"The present condition of the Proprietary Estates Village Service is anything but satisfactory. It has long been a matter for complaint, but no remedy has yet been found. The real cause of this lies in the defective provisions of the Proprietary Estates Village Service Act, and the Hereditary Village Offices Act. Under the old regulations the appointment of village officers vested entirely with the proprietor. He was also their paymaster so that he had the necessary disciplinary control over them. But the existing law has practically deprived the proprietor of all control over the village officers with the result that he is almost helpless. Except, that in a very few cases, the proprietor is empowered to punish them by a small fine, subject to appeal and he has no way of check or control over them, independently of the Government revenue authorities. The proprietor has to report for orders each and every case of default or neglect of duty, which is not always easy for him to do. It is no wonder that under these circumstances proprietors are put to difficulties of all sorts in managing the affairs of their estates, including the annual jamabandi settlement and collection of rents in due time. In some cases, proprietors are obliged to employ their own agents to perform the duties of the village officers. This is a clear proof that the existing law is altogether inadequate and requires an early amendment. In view of the conflicting interest involved in the settlement of this question, it is highly desirable that the matter should be referred to a Representative Committee for investigation and report, so that the necessary relief may be given to the proprietors on the basis of such a report."

430 RESOLUTION RE COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER AMENDMENT OF THE ACTS RELATING TO VILLAGE SERVICE.

(Sir Alexander Cardew ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ; Mr. Krishna Rao ; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.) [21ST NOVEMBER 1918.]

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—"Your Excellency, the Government in an Order of the 5th October of this year published a Bill to amend the Village Service Acts with the Statement of Objects and Reasons appended. This was expressly published for public criticism and it was published in all the vernaculars as well. The object of that was to elicit the gist of such criticisms as have been referred to in the two speeches that have been made. I quite agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar that there is nothing at all in the nature of this reference which would prevent the Hon'ble the Raja of Ramnad or anybody else from submitting opinions and drawing attention to those points which he wishes to be dealt with in the Bill. I can assure the Honourable mover of the resolution that representations on that subject will be fully considered if they are submitted by the Raja or anybody else and the Government are not bound merely to deal with the particular sections of the Act which are touched upon in the Bill. Until the criticisms which have been invited are received by the Government it will be hardly a practicable or useful step to appoint a committee. We have invited these criticisms. When we have received them, if they include this suggestion, we will consider it fully. The object proposed for the committee is a limited one. It is merely to deal with the powers of control over village servants, a very limited one. The Bill itself is of a much wider scope and deals with matters of very large importance, primogeniture and succession. Therefore I do not think it necessary to refer this suggestion to a mixed committee at the present stage. When we receive the criticisms invited, the question whether there is need for it will be considered. But it is more proper that the matter should be dealt with by a committee of this Council. I hope this statement will satisfy the Honourable Member."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—"I did not catch all that the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew said. I presume that it will be open to us to suggest that section 27 of the Act be repealed."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—"The question whether section 27 can be repealed is a matter which it would be quite open to anybody who wishes to raise it to bring forward in connexion with the Bill. That is quite different from what these gentlemen are referring to. The Government will be prepared to consider any suggestions relating to the amendment of the two Village Service Acts without prejudice to their decision thereon."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO :—"The resolution which has been moved raises a difficult problem with regard to the control and powers of punishment over village officers in the proprietary estates. A specific suggestion has been made in this resolution that the object of the Bill published for criticism is not satisfactory and that should be given to proprietors to appoint village officers. It is a very difficult problem. May I suggest that before any decision is arrived, it is necessary to obtain the views of the village officers. If we are to come to a satisfactory conclusion it is better that their views are ascertained. This Bill practically suggests that the powers of revenue divisional officers may be delegated to deputy tahsildars. There are very many things to be said about the delegation of powers to such officers. A question arises whether if the powers vested in the divisional officers are to be delegated, they cannot be delegated to the proprietors. I would suggest the desirability of placing before this Council full information as to whether the powers to be delegated should be in the hands of officers or proprietors."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"There is a great deal in favour of the view that, if the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew is agreeable to entertain the proposals made by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar, a re-draft of the Bill may be published. Here is the proprietor asking for delegation to himself. That is not a part of the present Bill. So far as the public are concerned, they know nothing of the suggestion. The village officers do not know proposal is embodied in a Bill. There is considerable force in the suggestion made by the Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao that if a proposal to delegate to the proprietors is to be introduced later, it would be necessary to ascertain public opinion, especially the opinion of those who will be affected by that delegation. There are two views of this matter, as to whether the proprietors should have the power of the administrative officer such as the divisional officer or the tahsildar. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew has to weigh the advantages and disadvantages of both these proposals. If these proposals are to be put into the Bill we must have adequate opportunity for discussion and criticism which cannot be afforded by the terms of the existing Bill. It is quite possible to consider this matter after publishing the draft of the Select Committee's report with reference to the suggestion. I take it that the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew's idea is to appoint a Select Committee who will examine the present proposals. The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar wants a committee independent of the Select Committee. Which of this is possible the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew is in a better position to judge than I am. If this request for control by proprietors is to be complied with, it must be placed before the public."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"I am obliged to the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew for his statement that it is open to all people interested to make suggestions not only on the proposed amendment but also all desirable amendments especially as the Bill has been published for criticism. I do not think it is necessary to press this resolution. If the proposals

RESOLUTIONS RE COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER THE AMENDMENT OF THE ACTS RELATING TO VILLAGE SERVICE AND ORGANIZING AN INDUSTRIAL AND ECONOMIC SURVEY OF MINING AND OTHER INDUSTRIES; MEASURES TO BE ADOPTED FOR INCREASING THE AREA UNDER COTTON CULTIVATION AND MEASURES FOR IMPROVING THE QUALITY, ETC., OF LIVESTOCK. 431

21ST NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. Suryanarayana Rao ; the President ; Mr. Venkatapati Raju.)

are accepted by the Government, the Bill will be published. I do not see any necessity for republishing the Bill. If the suggestions are accepted and the new Bill is prepared it will be published. It is hardly necessary to make that suggestion. After we give public notice and invite criticisms on these points, I do not think that any useful purpose will be served by my pressing the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE ORGANIZING AN INDUSTRIAL AND ECONOMIC SURVEY OF MINING AND OTHER INDUSTRIES.

The next resolution regarding the organizing of an industrial and economic survey of mining and other industries which stood in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. A. Suryanarayana Rao was as follows :—

"XVII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that an industrial and economic survey be undertaken by the Government with particular reference to the development of mining industries."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO :—"I request Your Excellency's permission to bring this resolution at the next meeting when I send up a resolution in connexion with the report of the Industrial Commission."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"The Honourable Member will send up a notice in the usual way for the February meeting."

The next resolution which stood in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. Suryanarayana Rao was as follows :—

RESOLUTION RE MEASURES TO BE ADOPTED FOR INCREASING THE AREA UNDER COTTON CULTIVATION.

"XVIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that steps be taken for increasing the area under cotton cultivation and for introducing the same on a large scale in districts where it is not in vogue."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO :—"I submit the same thing with regard to XVIII."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Let the Honourable Gentleman take the same course. We have discussed XIX. We shall now take up XX."

RESOLUTION RE MEASURES FOR IMPROVING THE QUALITY, ETC., OF LIVE STOCK.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU then moved the following resolution :—

"XX. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the Government be pleased to appoint a Committee of experts and private citizens to inquire and report measures to be taken for the qualitative improvement and increase in numbers of the agricultural livestock, cattle, sheep, and goats in this Presidency."

In doing so he said :—"This is a very simple resolution. The Government have taken immense pains to do something in the matter of improving the livestock. They have appointed an expert. But I do not see sufficient activity to find out any appreciable advance in either direction. We know that in some provinces a census is taken of the livestock once in five years, in some provinces annually, and when I asked a question when the census was taken and whether it was actual census or mere guess work of some karnam, the Government were pleased to state : 'The census figures are obtained by the usual census methods.' That is the answer to question No. 110. But when I actually referred to the statement showing the number of agricultural livestock in 1914-15, I found the figures in several districts separately given as actuals and estimates I understood them to be by actual census and by estimates and I thought they were guess work. If the estimates are actual, there is no reason to show them separately. Whatever it may be, with reference to goats in our Presidency which number nearly 7½ millions, the Government were pleased to state in answer to my question that a large portion of forest area has now been released from forest control, so that it will be available for the goats to graze therein. When we know that there are over ten million sheep and twenty million cattle which the Government must necessarily regard as so much wealth to the country, every possible step should be taken not only to see that useless animals are not maintained at the expense of the useful animals but also those that are retained are of good breed. It is true that the Government propose to start an experimental breeding station at one place, and perhaps it may take some time. But in the meanwhile suggestions may be taken from people who are actually

432 RESOLUTION RE MEASURES FOR IMPROVING THE QUALITY, ETC.,
OF LIVE STOCK.

(Mr. Venkatapati Raju; Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar; [21st November 1918.
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.]

dealing with these things in order to find out their grievance and to find relief with reference to these matters. Therefore my suggestion is: a committee may be advantageously appointed in the matter. In this connexion I may invite Your Excellency's attention to a question put in the Imperial Legislative Council by Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis in 1913, regarding the steps to be taken for a systematic cattle survey in all the provinces. He suggested that there should be a systematic cattle survey in all provinces. Sir Robert Carlyle replied that the cattle question was discussed by a conference held in the United Provinces in 1909 and a memorandum on cattle was published in the Central Provinces by Mr. Staunton and that a similar report was published in Punjab by Mr. Stokes. He further stated that the Government had advised all the local bodies that a preparation of cattle survey should be preceded by a general collection on the general lines foreshadowed in Mr. Stokes's report. Though I was unable to find that report even in our Council library, I believe the Government are in possession of a copy. I do not know whether any steps were taken by the Government subsequent to that advice given by the Government of India with reference to the cattle survey being undertaken in each province after obtaining the necessary information. If we are to be satisfied with the report of 1914-15 and with the casual references in the administration report to cattle, I think it is not a satisfactory method when we know that the wealth invested in agricultural livestock forms the wealth of the country. The only available information is with reference to any particular disease of cattle and the mortality of cattle noted down by karnams. Otherwise there is no knowing whether the cattle are increasing in numbers or decreasing. There is also a complaint that on account of the limited grazing area when we have a large number of useless cattle, it would not be helpful to the other cattle which are useful and which are necessary to be maintained. Even in the matter of breeding there is no use of deferring action for large number of years—to start one centre to breed one quality of cattle. It must be started in various centres in order to be helpful to the whole Presidency. In order to find out what steps can possibly be taken to improve the cattle qualitatively and quantitatively and as to where the Government propose to establish the breeding centre, the Government may be pleased to accept the resolution in the form moved by me or in any other form which the Government may think fit. This is a matter to which the Government ought to pay particular attention and obtain actual information and publish statements in order to be understood by the people as to what steps are being taken to improve the quality and number of cattle.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"I beg to second the resolution, and in doing so I may say that this is a matter which requires the careful and early attention of the Government. No doubt breeding farms have been started here and there, but certainly the Government must be aware that that can never meet the situation. Formerly in all the local areas where there were good breeds of cattle, breeding bulls were let out by the Government themselves in the villages at their own cost and kept in the cattle pound. Now neither that system nor any other system prevails. The result is that no care is taken to have good breeds of cattle. As the Hon'ble Mr. Couchman remarked to me the other day, there are a large number of useless cattle and the quality of cattle is greatly deteriorating. That seems to be the opinion of the officers of the Government. If that is so, there ought to be some remedy, early remedy. I would suggest the starting of breeding farms in as many centres as possible as the surest way of improving the quality of the cattle and the value of agricultural products."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the question of improving the livestock in the country both in quality and in numbers is, I need hardly say, one, the importance of which is appreciated by the Government. There is really no difference of opinion between the Government and Honourable Members in regard to this question. What I have not quite understood, if I may say so, is what exactly a committee can do by inquiring into and reporting on the question. Probably, it will be a convenience to the Council, if I state very briefly what has been done with regard to this matter and leave it to them afterwards to say whether these measures could be in any way furthered by the appointment of a committee such as is proposed by the Honourable Member. So, with the permission of the Council I will give a very brief account of what has been done."

"In August 1911 the Government deputed Mr. Sampson, the Deputy Director of Agriculture, to conduct a survey of cattle in the Presidency and to submit a report. Mr. Sampson submitted his report in 1912, and when his report was under consideration the Hon'ble Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar moved a resolution (at the meeting of the Council in January 1914) for the appointment of a committee of officials and non-officials to inquire into and report on the condition of cattle and on the measures to be taken for their improvement, exactly the same resolution as is now brought forward. That resolution was withdrawn as the attention of the Government had already been directed to the subject and as they had then the report of Mr. Sampson before them."

"Mr. Sampson's report was considered and orders thereon were issued in April 1914. The steps which the Government decided to take on Mr. Sampson's report were—

- (i) the establishment of stock-breeding farms in the localities where a good breed of cattle existed and to that end the appointment of a dairy expert for charge of cattle-breeding and dairy farms;
- (ii) better methods of supplying breeding bulls and an increase in their number; and
- (iii) the encouragement of the formation of private pastures by supplying the ryots with seed of good sorts of grass free or at cost price and the adoption of other methods

RESOLUTION RE MEASURES FOR IMPROVING THE QUALITY, ETC., 433
OF LIVESTOCK.

21st November 1918.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

"These are the things decided upon by the Government when they dealt with Mr. Sampson's report. I will now tell you what has taken place since then. In pursuance of that decision about stock-breeding farms and the appointment of an expert, the Government obtained the services of a cattle expert who entered on his duties in April 1916. His duties were defined in the following words: (a) the establishment and management of stock farms in localities in which a good breed of cattle exists; (b) the preservation on such farms of valuable strains of indigenous cattle and the distribution of good stock therefrom; (c) the formulation of systematic measures to improve the draught and good milking qualities of cattle by selection and crossing, etc. In pursuance of the duties laid upon the cattle expert, I will tell you what the cattle expert did—

(1) A cattle breeding farm costing more than a lakh of rupees has been opened in the Chintaladevi village, Kavali taluk, Nellore district.

(2) The Government have accepted a scheme for the purchase of good stud buffaloes of the country type for breeding purposes with a view to the improvement of the stock in the Northern Circars, the scheme being the result of the inquiries instituted with reference to a resolution moved by Mr. Venkatapati Raju for opening a farm for improving the breed of 'Bobbili-Kimedi' buffaloes.

(3) Mr. Carruth has also carried out a survey of the Madras dairy trade.

(4) The expert has now toured throughout the major part of the Presidency to gain information connected with the breeding and rearing of livestock and to study the lines on which improvements may be effectively made. He has also investigated the possible lines on which cross-breeding experiments might be taken up, especially with a view to fixing the type.

"Then in regard to the question of breeding bulls to which reference has been made, the system under which the breeding bulls were entrusted to village munsifs and veterinary assistants having proved a failure, the Government sanctioned a scheme for the better maintenance of bulls under which (i) a grant of Rs. 100 a year is made to an individual or a society in consideration of the maintenance at his or its cost of an approved breeding bull subject to the observance of certain conditions and (ii) the grant is made at the end of the year after inspection of the bull, the grant being renewable year after year for the same animal up to a maximum of three years: the conditions to be observed being (a) that the bull should be properly housed and maintained, (b) that a register of services by the bull is kept, (iii) that the herd of cows served is segregated, (iv) that the cows served are limited to those owned by the members of a society or by a particular breeder or group of breeders, (v) that a society may fix a scale of fees, etc. It is too early to judge of this experiment. In addition to the bulls maintained under this scheme the Agricultural department maintains breeding bulls at the agricultural stations at Hagari, Nandyal, Anakapalle, Manganallur, Koilpatti and Coimbatore.

"As regards the supply of seed of good grass, the department has only recently taken up the study of grasses and the Government of India have also been informed that this Government would, in course of time, need an 'agrostologist' in this connexion. A farm has been opened in Bantanahal, Bellary district, where the indigenous grasses are to be particularly studied. This subject will receive attention in the cattle farm also.

"The Government have also approved a scheme (1) to accord facilities to individuals or groups of individuals who wish to obtain a sufficient amount of suitable land for cattle and dairy farms, (2) to grant loans for preparing land, fencing in pasture and purchasing good stock, and (3) to give advice and assistance through the agency of the Agricultural department. Darkhast rules will be relaxed in favour of deserving persons. The working of the rules framed in this connexion and how far the ryots are taking advantage of these concessions are given in paragraph 51, page 27 of the Administration Report of the department for 1917-18. The general result may be stated to be, I am sorry to say, that no great use is being made of these concessions. Honourable Members are no doubt aware that the moment we attempt to regulate grazing, there is a cry and so far we have not been able to carry the agricultural population with us.

"What I have mentioned so far refers to the improvement of cattle only, but not of sheep and goats with which also the Honourable Member has dealt. On the question of improving sheep and goats the Government have sanctioned the opening of a sheep farm. Even before the opening of this farm the Deputy Director of Agriculture, I to III Circles, has been working at the improvement of sheep in the agricultural stations at Hagari and Nandyal.

"From this the Council will see that the department has been doing all it can to improve livestock subject to the limitations imposed upon its activities by considerations of finance and considerations of staff. The Honourable Member has stated that he does not see sufficient activity and there has been no appreciable progress in the department. I am very sorry that the Honourable Member does not see sufficient activity. I wonder if he has read all the papers connected with the subject, which Honourable Members have had at their disposal. I should be glad to furnish the Honourable Member with any papers that he may require. It is not possible to see sufficient progress in a matter like this in the course of five or six years. It would require a much longer period to see progress in a matter like this. I would therefore counsel a little patience on the part of Honourable Members and would ask them to allow the department to go on with its work. I do not think that the appointment of a committee such as the one suggested is likely to help or speed up the solution of the problems.

"I quite see that gentleman like the Honourable Member who is interested in the subject might have useful suggestions to offer, and I would therefore suggest that any individual members who have suggestions to make should put down their suggestions on paper and send

434 RESOLUTIONS RE MEASURES FOR IMPROVING THE QUALITY, ETC.,
OF LIVESTOCK AND SUPPLY OF SEEDS TO AGRICULTURISTS
AT COST PRICE.

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; [21st NOVEMBER 1918.
Mr. Venkatapati Raju; the President.)

them to me. I will then send them to the Agricultural department for examination and consideration. In that way, Honourable Members will advance matters more than by appointing a committee to go about taking evidence. You will no doubt have, by the appointment of a committee, a lot of generalizations, but these will lead to no result. As the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao pointed out some time ago, it will probably end in shelving the whole question. I therefore deprecate the appointment of a committee. I trust after hearing the account that I have given, the Honourable Member will not press for the appointment of a committee. I would gladly consider any definite suggestions he may have to make if he will put them on paper and send them to me."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"One remark I wish to make is that it is the general opinion that cattle are freely allowed to be exported out of the country. The Honourable Member will consider how far that is to the detriment or the welfare of this country and of our work. The Honourable Member might keep an eye on the number of good cattle being exported out of the country."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"After hearing what the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar has said, I do not think that any useful purpose will be served by pressing this resolution if the Government are prepared to take some more interest and put some more energy in the officers in order to facilitate the work and produce good results as early as possible. What is required is more energy put into the matter. I accept the suggestion of the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar that any suggestions we have, may be made to him so that action may be taken. With these words I do not press this resolution to a division, and with Your Excellency's permission I wish to withdraw it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"As the resolution is being withdrawn, I have nothing more to say. I wholly decline to accept the suggestion that there is want of energy or lack of advice. These things take time. So far as the materials before me go, that suggestion is wholly unwarranted, and I am certain that the Honourable Member himself has not got anything definite to say except a vague impression that nothing is being done. A vague general impression that nothing is being done does sometimes occur while as of want of energy. The department has met with difficulties, difficulties connected with the reluctance of the ryots in segregating cattle for breeding. These things will take time. The Government are doing their very best and to suggest want of energy will damp the spirits of those officers who are doing very good work."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I did not use energy in any sarcastic sense. If that is objected to, I withdraw it. I would say more interest."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I do not know whether the Honourable gentleman has improved matters by substituting the word 'interest' for 'energy.' I accept the word, and I do endorse all that the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar has said. If the Honourable gentleman only knew fully all that has been done and had informed himself not by any un- in this particular direction for the improvement of stock breeding, I can assure him that he would come to a very different conclusion. There is no branch of the work of the Agricultural department in which more energy and more interest has been put in recent years under very difficult circumstances, as my Honourable Colleague has pointed out, difficult circumstances not only in regard to financial respects, but in acquiring the services of experts. I feel sure that the Honourable gentleman, the more he looks into it the more will he appreciate the work of the Agricultural department in this respect. It should not go out from this Council that there has been any lack of energy or interest in this particular matter of which I happen to have some personal knowledge. The Honourable gentleman is good enough to withdraw the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE SUPPLY OF SEEDS TO AGRICULTURISTS
AT COST PRICE.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I hope this resolution will be accepted by the Government; the resolution is—

'XXII. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the Government be pleased to provide necessary funds to the Agricultural Department for purchase of seeds in large quantities and to supply the same to the agriculturists at cost price in localities where there is dearth of seed-grains owing to the failure of crop.'

"I may mention that hitherto agriculturists are enjoying the benefits provided by the Agricultural Department to secure seed with reference to any improved kind so that agriculturists who are unable to secure the seed can go to the Agricultural Department and secure it. That is being done for some years and it is true that the same help may be continued, but at the present time when famine is staring us in the face, most of the localities are suffering from want of timely rain and seed grains. Seed grains apart from food grains are essential to

RESOLUTIONS RE SUPPLY OF SEEDS TO AGRICULTURISTS AT COST 435
PRICE AND THE GOVERNMENT SOAP WORKS, CALICUT, TO BE HANDED OVER TO A LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY.

21st NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Venkatapati Raju; Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar; Sir Alexander Cardew; Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

secure a proper agricultural crop next year. Wherefore it is necessary to provide seed grain; it is necessary to secure them from localities where they are available because if it is gathered from famished crops, it will not be of much use. Therefore it is absolutely necessary to go to other districts to secure seeds. Another reason is the recent difficulties of transit. Seeds and food-grains cannot be transported from one district to another, and it is difficult to secure seeds from one district for another. In these circumstances there will not be much difficulty if the Government instruct the Agricultural Department to provide the people with the necessary seeds and to comply with the request of bona fide agriculturists with reference to the necessary seeds they may want at the price which it costs the Government without making any profits. This is my simple request. It may be said that if a large number of people were to ask for seeds the Agricultural Department may not be able to cope with the supply to all the agriculturists. I do not see any difficulty why the Agricultural Department should not help the people as much as possible, if not fully and completely, they may help the people as far as possible. Therefore my simple suggestion is that the Government might be pleased to provide funds to the Agricultural department so that they may render as much help as may be possible in supplying seed grain to localities where there has been failure of rains and famine."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar seconded the resolution.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"Your Excellency, as regards this resolution all that I have to say is that no Collector has represented to Government from any district in the Presidency that there is any difficulty at present as regards seed grain. No such representation has been received from any Collector from any part of the Presidency, and nothing so far as I know has been received from any private body or district association, nor has there been any representation in the press. So far as any information before the Government goes, there is no call for action at present; but if action has to be taken it will be taken probably by means of advances to enable agriculturists to obtain seed grain, under the Agricultural Loans Act. That is the well ascertained and established method of dealing with this difficulty in famine time. In Ganjam in 1908 Rs. 40,000 were advanced for the purchase of seed grain, not advances through the Agricultural Department who have really got no organization to distribute seed grain, but advances through the revenue authorities. Any demand for the money to finance such demands will be fully met to any extent that may be required out of the famine grant. In certain small limited localities it might be necessary to try and find seed grain. In 1908 seed grain to the value of Rs. 5,000 was distributed in Ganjam. But those were exceptional cases. The Honourable Member may be quite sure that whenever anything is wanted to be done in regard to the supply of seed grain the Government will use all the powers they have to provide financial assistance in the shape of loans to the agricultural population. That is as far as has ever been done in the past and as far as it is wise to go. It is better to leave the agricultural population to receive the loan and obtain its own seed grain. The organization of the Government is not sufficient to promptly and effectively supply seed grain to individual ryots all over the Presidency. If any difficulty arises in regard to the actual transport of grain in a district, the Director of Civil Supplies will provide the necessary certificate of priority. I do not anticipate there will be any difficulty in meeting the real object which the Honourable Member has in view in this resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew states that no reports have been received from the Collectors saying that there is necessity for such action as this. That is exactly our complaint. I, as the representative of the landholders, received many applications from several parts of the country to ventilate their grievances, and therefore I have placed this resolution for the consideration of the Government, because the people find it very difficult to secure transport from one district to another. But the Government are prepared to furnish the necessary advances out of the famine grant and also to instruct the Director of Civil Supplies to give additional facilities for transport of seeds when an application is made for that purpose. I think that these two statements with regard to additional facilities for transport and advances to purchase seed grains are satisfactory. Possibly the Agricultural Department may not be able to cope with the supply for all the needy agriculturists. I am satisfied with these two provisions intended to be made by the Government and I do not press the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE THE GOVERNMENT SOAP WORKS, CALICUT, TO BE HANDED OVER TO A LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY.

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"Your Excellency, the resolution which I have the honour to move runs as follows:—

'XXIV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the Government Soap Works, Calicut, be handed over to a limited liability company to be formed and registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1913, the share capital of which to be open to public subscription, the Government retaining a number of shares and a seat or two on the directorate of the company with a provision in the articles of association for affording facilities for the training of apprentices in the art of soap manufacture.'

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [21st NOVEMBER 1918.
the President.]

"Your Excellency, the public of this Presidency are very much obliged to the Government of Madras for having developed this industry in the last four years. Soap-making is not new to India. There are soap factories in almost all the provinces of India and the manufacture of soap is carried on to a large extent. It has become practically one of the chief industries in India. There are factories in Bengal, in Bombay, in Central India, in the Punjab, Rajputana, the United Provinces and elsewhere. Of these factories the North-West Soap Factory at Calcutta and Meerut is a very large concern. It has become a limited liability company and has a share capital of five lakhs of rupees and on its directorate there are Europeans and Indians. Sir Johnson MacRobert is, I believe, the President of the Board of Directors. The manager is a European, the assistant manager is an Indian who is an expert in soap-making. So also the rest of the staff consists of Europeans as well as Indians. The soaps manufactured by that company are considered to be very good and the company is in a flourishing state. That shows that the initiative has already been taken in the line of soap-manufacture in India and certain factories are working successfully, specially this factory which I have brought to the particular attention of this Council. In Madras very little was done. There were one or two small concerns not worth mentioning. But the Government have given a great stimulus to this industry by starting the factory at Calicut. It is strange that instead of the Department of Industries taking the initiative in this matter it remained for the Fishery department to start the soap factory. It came about in this way. In December 1913 Mr. Menon was employed by the Fisheries department as an oil chemist. He was trained in England as a Government of India technical scholar and he specialised there in oil and soap. He was employed by the Fisheries department as an oil chemist to make analyses and experiments in oil. He was deputed to the Indian Research Institute at Bangalore for further study, and then he remained for some time in the Agricultural College at Coimbatore for making experiments. While at Bangalore—"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR (interrupting):—"May I rise to a point of order and inquire what Mr. Menon's career has got to do with the transfer of the soap factory to a private company?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The honourable gentleman is going to connect Mr. Menon's career with his proposal to hand over the soap factory, but it does not need so much labour on the part of the Honourable Member to go into the biographical side."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur (continuing):—"Mr. Menon is the founder of that factory, and I wanted to show how this factory was brought about in connexion with the Fisheries department. I think by going a little into the history of the department I shall be able to show what the Government have done in developing the industry, in what position it is now and why it should be handed over to a private company. I know it is 2 o'clock and Honourable Members are anxious to have their lunch and your Excellency also would like to close the Council soon as you wish to go to the Convocation."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We are not at all disinclined to hear the honourable gentleman fully on the subject. We are quite ready to hear him. The point of the proposal which the honourable gentleman has brought forward before us is that the soap works as they stand should be handed over to a limited liability company. My honourable colleague rose to ask whether it was necessary that we should go so much into the early history of the matter. If it is more convenient for the Council we will adjourn and the honourable gentleman may resume his speech after lunch if that is more convenient."

At this stage the Council adjourned for a short interval.

The Council re-assembled, when the Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur resumed his speech. He said:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar asked what connexion the appointment of Mr. Menon in the Fisheries department had with the handing over of the soap factory to a limited liability company. He perhaps thought that I was going into a matter which was not relevant to the subject or he was impatient and wanted me to come to the point at once instead of beating about the bush. Your Excellency, this Council consists mostly of men who have very little to do with industries. They are interested in the development of industries, they are keenly interested in it and they wish to see the industries developed, but at the same time their knowledge as to how great industries can be brought into existence and made successful is limited. That is not only true of most members of the Council, but it is true almost of all our public men. Our public men interested themselves in industries when there was a swadeshi boom some time ago; large associations came into existence in Bengal and elsewhere; they collected large funds and they sent out every year 30 or 40 students to foreign countries to learn industries and much was done in that direction, but the result was that when these technically trained students returned to India they were not able to help in any way in the creation of new industries. Why was it so? Simply because they began at the wrong end. They thought if there were a sufficient number of people who knew certain industries, the industries would come into existence. They did not realize as all merchants and capitalists realize that a mere knowledge of industries is not enough to start industries. There are many other things which should be done before industries can be started and made successful. Mr. Menon himself was a Government of India scholar. He was sent out to England to specialise there in soap and oil. If he was not taken over by the Government and if in Sir Fredrick Nicholson he had not found an officer who gave him all sorts of encouragement and if the Government had not given him many facilities, this factory would not have come into existence. If he had gone to moneyed men and had asked their assistance for starting a soap factory he would never have succeeded in his attempt. Because capitalists first of all must be convinced that soap could be successfully manufactured here, that raw materials are available and the cost of production would be such that they can compete with foreign countries successfully and that the return would be enough for the investment of capital. You cannot expect that the capitalists, men who have money, will simply owing to patriotism put money at the disposal of a raw man who has nothing more than a qualification to manufacture one article. A man must know many other things in order to make a concern, a success, for example, whether raw materials are available in a particular locality, whether labour is suitable, whether transport arrangements are good and whether the cost of production will be cheap enough, and whether he could find a sale for his goods. He has to stimulate a demand for his article. He has to look to the business side of the thing and carry on the correspondence. All these things it is too much to expect to find in your technically trained man. If the Government had a training school which produced many experts like Mr. Menon do you think that the soap industry would have been successfully started? I do not think that it would have. That is because trained people would have had the same difficulty in starting a soap factory as Mr. Menon would have had if he had not been helped by the Government.

21st NOVEMBER 1918.] (Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

"It is not the technical training of some students that is necessary for industries to be brought into existence. There are other factors which I was going to mention, when I was interrupted. The Government took the very right way, quite the right way, when they started a soap factory in connexion with the Fisheries department. This was not a technical school. For the last four years not a single person was trained there. No facilities were given for training and even this year it is said in this report: 'a considerable number of applications was received from all parts of India from students, soap manufacturers and others for admission for training in the soapery, but as there is no accommodation in the present makeshift building and owing to the lack of facilities for teaching and want of time to teach such applications could not be considered favourably.' As far as the training of experts is concerned, the Government have done nothing so far. They intend to do something in future. I am not sorry that the Government have not done anything, because by starting a factory and working it on a commercial basis as any business man or as any capitalist would have done, they have given greater encouragement to the industry than they could have done by merely training a number of students. They have shown here that very good soap can be manufactured and it can be manufactured at such a small cost that it can compete with foreign soaps, and they have also stimulated a demand for it by exhibiting it at exhibitions and they have boomed the thing just as any commercial man would have done. I admire Sir Frederick Nicholson for having gone about the very right way of doing it. No Indian Civil Service man would have done it in the same way as the gentleman has done and our gratitude is due to him for it.

"In this report I find that orders are pouring in from all sides which they are not able to cope with and they cannot supply all those orders. So you will have to decide in one of the two courses open to you either to extend that factory and continue to work it as a commercial concern or turn it into a technical school for the training of soap makers. If you train a number of persons in the art of soap-making, these people will start factories of their own, and they do not possess the means of doing it on a large scale. If any person has already a factory big or small and he finds certain difficulties and certain problems to be solved in that connexion, he comes to the Government to solve these things for him. It is the business of the Government to help him to do it. From this report I find that some manufacturers of soap did require Government help in this way. This help can be given through the technological institute that is proposed to be established in connexion with the factory. It is the commercial factory that has first come into existence, and the technological institute is to be established hereafter. It is for you now to decide whether that institute or that experimental factory would give such information or training.

"There are people who have no opening elsewhere and who are crowded out of other departments. They will say, 'so much is talked of this industry, we will go and train ourselves in this industry; at least we might be able to eke out a living, and make more than what we can make as Government clerks.' If such people are given training you do not stimulate the industry. Then the harm done will be this. This factory will become a school and you will train people how to make soap and encourage them to establish mushroom factories all along the coast. It is stated in this report that 'The Government Soap Works has tempted capitalists from all parts of India and outside to start soap and allied industries in this Presidency, e.g., the enterprise of the Tatas at Ernakulam. There is enormous scope for several factories on this coast and the Government factory can hold its own and help in turning out more experts and foremen who may be required in other parts of this Presidency and outside for expanding the soap industry in India.'

"I do not think this step would be in the right direction. Your Excellency is aware the other day a reference was made why so many banks and industrial concerns came to grief some time ago. I think the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser referred to it. If you take the reports of the Registrars of limited liability companies, you will find that many of the companies which come into existence soon go to the wall simply because the men who promote them do not know how to organize industries. I do not want similar mistakes to be made in the case of soap industry. Simply because the soap factory has become a success with the Government, others may take up the soap manufacturing business and they may employ some of the men trained in the Government factory. That is not the right way to encourage the industry. On the other hand if the Government hand over to a limited liability company, this factory which is already known to be a successful thing, whose soaps are liked by the people and find a good sale in the market—many people who are willing to invest their money in safe concerns will come forward and put money in it and subscribe to the share capital of this company and take over this business. Instead of a number of mushroom companies, working on a small scale and starved for want of capital and struggling hard against foreign competition there would be one large well-equipped well-manned factory launched under the good auspices of the Government. It is stated in this report that the Tatas intend starting soap business in Ernakulam. I do not think they are starting any soap factory. All I heard was that they wished to do something in the extraction of oil. That is of course a very big thing and would be a very good thing if they do something in that line. After what Your Excellency's Government have done in this line it would be unfair if this business gets into the hands of outsiders. We must also remember that there is such a thing as trade secret. Every factory, every trade, every arts has some trade secret of its own. The trade secrets of cloth manufacture are so well guarded that when I went to Manchester I went from door to door to get into a mill just to see how they print clothes, I could not get admission though I had letters of introduction from the Members of the India Council. They said, they do not admit foreigners. I told them that I could not gain any knowledge of their secret, by a glance but it made no effect. Now in the case of the soap factory if nothing new is discovered you have the same process of soap manufacture as there is anywhere else and then the Government have done nothing to establish their claim for originality; on the other hand if you have found certain processes, if you have found out certain formulas, if you have discovered any special recipe for a certain soap that gives you advantage in competing with other manufacturers then you have a secret worth keeping. If you divulge that secret to every Tom, Dick and Harry that comes for training you make that thing too cheap and no capitalists would think it worth while to go in for this business because it is an industry that can be done everywhere. In that way you will discourage the development of the industry on proper lines and not encourage it. Applicants from Native States and other provinces want to come and learn things here. What business have they got to come here and learn things? If there is anything special to teach which they cannot learn anywhere else, the people in this Presidency should benefit by it and by the development of the industry in general.

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

[21ST NOVEMBER 1918.]

"Why I consider this is an opportune time for handing over this business to a private concern is this: that interest in industrial matter has been aroused by war and people are anxious to invest money in paying concerns—the Government have before this transferred other things. For example, it was the Government department of industries that introduced the aluminium industry. They developed it on a large scale and a fully equipped factory was established and was run by the Government for some years, and when its success was fully ensured it was handed over to a private concern. I was also concerned in the transfer of this business to a private concern. A company did come forward and took it up. Then in regard to the chrome leather factory the same thing was done. Recently the pencil factory was also handed over, sold to private people who, I understand, are going to make it a limited liability company. The pencil factory case illustrates what I have said about soap. The pencil factory was started as a private concern. It proved a total failure. Why was it a total failure? Not because the man who was in charge of making pencil did not know the art of making pencils. He must have known it, and yet the pencil factory became a failure. The Government took it over and they had to contend with difficulties. Sometimes they were not able to make out anything. At one time I had a talk with the Director of Industries and found him in despair about it who thought that pencil could not be manufactured cheaply enough. Experiments are now completed, and tenders were invited for the purchase of the factory as a going concern and large sum was paid for the concern. The same will be the case with soap. If you go on teaching people pencil making and turn out experts in manufacturing pencils, those experts though highly trained men would not be able to push the industry as well as you have done. That should be the case with soap too.

"It might perhaps be said that though this factory is successful still there is much to be done and if it still remained with the Government, they will be able to make it a better success and a model for others to copy. Sir Frederick Nicholson, in paragraph 6, says 'For want of a laboratory and assistance nothing worth mentioning could be done in the way of testing and refining oils.' The testing and refining of oils has been done to sufficient extent. Some of the oils were tested and they were found useful. You can continue testing. You do not want this Nicholson goes on to say 'For the same reasons it has been impossible to proceed with the manufacture of new classes of soap, but they do not say that they have yet to discover fresh processes of manufacturing soap. If they can manufacture one kind of soap they can manufacture twenty kinds of soaps. Their capacity is limited for want of sufficient plant. There is no use of keeping that factory with you in order to have a few more classes of soaps added to the category of soaps you have already produced. Then it is stated that 'it has been impossible to proceed with the recovery of glycerine by methods specially suitable to this country' including solar evaporation as a final, low temperature process; space for the plant and time for the attention of the manager were equally wanting' therefore they could not make it, that is also a thing in which the Government should make experiments and they can make them even if the factory is handed over to a private company.

21ST NOVEMBER 1918.]

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

"As for training other students you can train them in your department of industries, or in the factory itself you can teach them. I have put it in the resolution 'the Government retaining a number of shares and a seat or two on the directorate of the company with a provision in the articles of association for affording facilities for the training of apprentices in the art of soap manufacture.' When you are handing over a large concern, you can make any conditions, for you can put them in the articles of association, and the new company will be quite willing to train others in the factory. The training of some students will not do them any harm for trade secrets can be preserved even then.

"Another reason why this is an opportune time for transferring the business is just now Indians are very much inclined to come in and support industries. There are men who have money to spare and they would like to invest it in business in factories and limited liability companies. So if this is started now the capital will be flowing into this direction. Some may say, why not these people form a company and start a factory at Calicut and compete with this factory? Your Excellency is aware that in this Presidency business enterprise has its limits. If the Government say they are not prepared to hand it over to a private company, they would think there must be some reason for it. They will say that the Government are training so many people, who would do the thing on small scale, what is the use then of starting a large limited liability company? All sorts of discouraging factors will be thought of to show that such a venture will not have a chance of succeeding so well as it will do under the auspices of the Government. So I beg Your Excellency's Government to accept this resolution. If they tell me that eventually they will do as they have done in other cases and can convince me that by delaying it a little longer they will be able to give better encouragement to this industry, perhaps I might reconsider my position, but I would certainly require very strong reason to be convinced of it."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Chidambaramatha Mudaliyar seconded the resolution.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"I propose, Your Excellency, to confine myself to the resolution on the paper. The Honourable Member's resolution is that 'the business of the soap factory be handed over to a limited liability company to be formed and registered under the Indian Companies, Act 1913, the share capital of which is to be open to public subscription, the Government retaining a number of shares and a seat or two on the directorate of the company with a provision in the articles of association for affording facilities for the training of apprentices in the art of soap manufacture.' In the first place let me point out that the object of the Government is to start an industry and not a factory. An industry connotes scores of factories spread over a country in convenient localities and not merely a single monopolist factory. I know the Honourable Member's view is different. He said that he did not believe in having a number of small soap factories all over the country, he believes in having one company. We however believe in having a number of small ones. If people are able and willing to have small factories all over, there is no reason why we should not allow them to do so. The aim of the Honourable Member and of the Government being entirely so divergent, it is not a matter of surprise that we are wholly unable to accept this resolution. To hand over the initiatory Government factory to private enterprise would be to establish a single monopolist factory and to sacrifice an industry, to benefit the few and neglect the many.

"The objects and methods of a State institution started to develop a manufacturing industry absolutely novel to a country are (1) experiment, (2) demonstration, (3) instruction.

"In starting such industry, especially one involving complicated processes in applied chemistry, the stage of research and experiment is lengthy and costly. The State soap factory (I prefer the word 'State' to 'Government') only started serious work less than two years ago in a hired shed (where it still is), without a laboratory (still unprocurable), without any staff save one expert—of whom the Honourable Member has been good enough to give a long account—on oils largely unknown to Western practice and without certain oils so greatly used there, so that incessant experiment has been found necessary to ascertain the proper formulae for wholly new mixtures; the plant had to be and still is being devised and extemporised since it was not procurable—except to a small extent—from abroad; the men had to be trained, the soaps suitable to the market ascertained, and scores of other matters investigated, e.g., the recovery of glycerine, the causticizing of soda ash, the discovery and substitution of indigenous perfumes for those (now unobtainable) in use abroad, the designing of a proper factory, etc. Even in the second year longer experiment has resulted in effecting a considerable saving per ton over the first year on the few lines of soap at present made; much more requires to be done even in this way. Do people think that in two years, hampered as above, we can devise, start, and develop on a score of different lines of manufacture, a brand-new industry, absolutely novel to the Presidency so far as regards modern needs and ideas? We are still feeling our way experimentally in various lines, and many are not yet touched. To close the State factory as such would be to stop valuable experimental work in the first stage.

440 RESOLUTION RE THE GOVERNMENT SOAP WORKS, CALICUT, TO BE HANDED OVER TO A LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY.

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.) [21st November 1918.]

"And if stopped at this stage, how could we proceed to that thorough demonstration and instruction which after all, are the main objects of a State factory used as the starting point of a new industry? How would it be possible, for instance, for the Government to establish that standing exhibition of the oils and fats linked industries which is one of the main objects in this branch of industry, and to which the greatest importance is attached as a source of information and stimulation to private enterprise? How can we have that practical laboratory for the investigation and improvement of oils as prepared in the villages, so that the oil trades may start with oils of better initial quality than at present? or that laboratory for the detection of adulteration? Without the factory with its experts, how are we to solve the numerous practical problems (industrial, chemical, manipulative) which continually present themselves to the petty manufacturers whom we aim at establishing, or stimulate them and teach them in new and improved lines? How can we establish that trade school for the future managers and foremen of the industry if we have no factory in which to train them as practical men? With the State factory, its laboratory and its teachers, we can investigate, demonstrate, teach: without it we can do nothing. We have the beginnings of a factory, and we shall have a model one, a laboratory, a class of students, a going concern, and all without cost to the tax-payer. Its relinquishment now proposed is under present circumstances unthinkable.

"If private enterprise were now allowed to take over the State factory, it would necessarily become a monopoly—

(1) there is only one soap expert in the Presidency and presumably he would be lent to the factory;

(2) since the profit of shareholders is necessarily the main, perhaps the sole, object of a private factory, experiment would cease as soon as certain profitable lines were ascertained, publicity would be absolutely banned and profound secrecy maintained; all materials, processes formulae and accounts would be kept rigidly secret;

(3) the very last thing that a private factory would dream of would be to train up managers, etc., to compete in rival factories. Till now we have not made much progress in the training of people, because we have not had buildings, laboratory, etc. If the factory is transferred into a private concern, it really means that all further development is checked, not only in the matter of soap but of all allied industries. But, the very objects of a State factory are precisely experiment, demonstration (publicity), instruction of men desirous of starting, running, etc., factories. Consequently the handing over of the State factory to private enterprise would be to stunt experiment, stifle demonstration, and abandon instruction.

"The proposal is unworkable. The views and objects of the Government in its desire for continuous experiment, entire publicity, and thorough instruction of numerous experts, would be absolutely opposed to those of the private shareholders who require immediate and easy profits, without heavy expenditure in experiments, absolute secrecy, entire monopoly of knowledge and of experts. Hence incessant unavoidable clash. A factory cannot be worked where the idea of one party is to spread an industry, of the other to confine it.

"If it be admitted that the establishment of a great industry or series of linked industries (soap, glycerine, candles, edible fats and oils, paints and varnishes, etc.) is desirable yet necessarily costly, why should the profits arising necessarily in this factory out of State expenditure be diverted to private capitalists (who have done nothing for the initiation of the industry), and the cost of any subsequent State operations in such industries be thrown on the general tax-payer? At present the profits of the factory which have attracted the attention of capitalists, arise legitimately from the sale of genuine goods at moderate prices, replacing goods from outside; these profits pay, and will pay the whole cost of the institute with its experiments, demonstrations, instruction; the Government is actually initiating an important industry or set of industries absolutely without cost to the tax-payer! This unique position would be entirely nullified and destroyed by the seizure of the factory and its profits by a small group of capitalists who would thus reap without cost or labour the early fruits of State enterprise and would, ipso facto, either throw an equivalent burden on the general tax-payer if the Government decided on further steps, or would keep the industry in its own leading strings.

"Well, Your Excellency, I have only to add that the Honourable Member's proposal seems to be singularly inopportune. After a great deal of struggle the Government are slowly making up their minds to pursue a bolder policy in regard to industries than they had thought of at one time. This matter of soap is one of the early things, and it has hardly taken root when the Honourable Member proposes to choke it off. I appeal to Honourable Members not to vote for this resolution. The Honourable Member spoke about the pencil factory. Pencil is not a thing which could be made in all cottages. The moment we finished our work in regard to pencils we readily handed it over, which shows that our policy is not to keep anything going longer than is necessary. For another twenty years it may not be possible to hand soap over to private enterprise. At present we cannot possibly think of it. I earnestly advise the Council to reject the resolution which is fraught with evil consequences to the development of a valuable industry and connected industries."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"I have listened to this debate with an open mind, and I must say I am convinced by the statement made by the Honourable Member. I think that it will be too soon to hand over this business to any private company."

RESOLUTION RE THE GOVERNMENT SOAP WORKS, CALICUT, TO BE HANDED OVER TO A LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY. 441

21st November 1918.] (Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"My Lord, I have heard with great pleasure the vigorous and trenchant criticism of the resolution made by the Honourable Member. Like the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar, I had also an open mind. Some of us thought that this proposal was inopportune and invited my Honourable friend to a discussion. He asked me to listen to what he had to say on the subject and then make up my mind. I have heard him fully and I consider that the statement made by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar that the acceptance of this proposal would be fraught with grave consequences to the development of the soap industry in this Presidency is one which I fully endorse. My Lord, I thought the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan showed a tendency to favour large capitalists as against smaller capitalists or smaller industries. If he said so, as I believe he did if I understood him correctly, I think it would be an inadvisable step to choke off the development specially of the soap industry in this Presidency which must spread by smaller concerns rather than the bigger ones at which he is aiming. Whatever it is, my Lord, if anyone is anxious to start a limited liability company for the manufacture of soaps, I do not see what there is to prevent him from doing so. This is a concern in which Sir Frederick Nicholson has spent so much time in devoting his attention to ascertain what I would call the data of production for the benefit of all those who wish to enter into this business. The data of production is a most important element in the success of any venture. My Honourable friend wishes that this concern which is merely intended to ascertain the date of production of soap should be handed over to a limited liability company. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar has very truly pointed out that, if the proposal is that with the experience already gained with the staff of experts this factory is to be handed over to a limited liability company, it would be creating a monopoly. I would only invite my Honourable friend's attention in addition to the statement of policy of your Excellency's Government to what the Industrial Commission have to say about pioneering industries. I refer to page 159 of that most illuminating report which has just been placed in our hands, where they make a distinction between pioneering and demonstrating work, the various steps which the Government have to take in setting up cottage industries, small organized industries and larger organized industries—various steps which the Government might usefully take under these three heads to secure the development and assistance which might be given by Government. I do not wish to detain the Council any further but I only wish to refer to the following statement :—

"By 'pioneering' we mean the inception by Government of an industry on a small commercial scale, in order to ascertain and overcome the initial difficulties, and discover if the industry can be worked at a profit. It must be clearly understood that Government should only undertake the pioneering of industries when private enterprise is not forthcoming, and that, as a general rule, Government participation should only be continued till the object with which the operations have been started has been fully attained. By this we do not mean that the Government factory should necessarily be closed down, as soon as a private individual or company is willing to take it over, or it has reached some degree of commercial success. The opportune moment can be decided only by a full review of the circumstances of the case, and in some instances it will be found that the new industry is capable of development far beyond the initial stages at which it is profitable, before the withdrawal of Government becomes imperative in the interests of those who have invested, or are anxious to invest, capital in the new industry."

"On a review of the circumstances mentioned in the last report of Sir Frederick Nicholson I am certain that the time has not come when the Government should close this concern and hand it over to a private company. During the last ten or fifteen years various attempts were made to start soap factories in the Northern Circars but they came to grief. The data of production not having been ascertained, most of these men who went to Japan and got well-equipped knowledge and started this industry came to grief and a lot of money and a lot of time was wasted. I have used several of the soaps manufactured elsewhere and I am also using the soap manufactured in this company on the West Coast and there is absolutely no doubt that we are now reaching a stage when perfection will be obtained very soon in the manufacture of soap in this Presidency. I regret that if by any chance the present opportunity for the establishment of the industry on a firm basis in this Presidency is lost it will be really an unwise step.

"My Honourable friend referred to the pencil factory. I was one of the shareholders in the Anakapalle factory. He said that people knew how to make pencils. My Honourable friend Mr. Suryanarayana Murthi Nayudu was the creditor and had to take charge of the effects of that company and pass it on to Government. People did not know how to use graphite or to mix it in suitable proportions to make it useful for pencils. There was absolutely no information about wood. After the factory was removed to Madras, various attempts were made to find out where suitable wood would be available and how suitable mixture of chemicals could be made and to devise processes and a good deal of money had to be sunk in it and a great deal of preliminary work had to be done. It is now possible to place that factory on a sound basis. It would be quite an unwise step, in my humble opinion, to hand over this concern to a private company at present—I regret that my Honourable friend who is very keen in commercial matters has not seen his way to drop this proposal. I trust he will consider all that has been said on this matter and not push it to a division."

442 RESOLUTION RE THE GOVERNMENT SOAP WORKS, CALICUT, TO BE HANDED OVER TO A LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY.

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [21st November 1918. Sir Gordon Fraser.)

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar was very wise in depending on Sir Frederick Nicholson for facts to meet my argument. I am sorry that Sir Frederick Nicholson himself was not here. If he were here, I feel sure that after hearing me he would have met these points better. He had to anticipate some of my points in order to meet them with his counter-arguments. I did not quite catch where the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar was reading from—that wide publicity was bad. Was it the statement of Sir Frederick Nicholson?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"You said publicity was bad; I said it was good."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"That publicity was bad was the word used by you. I distinctly heard it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg your pardon; I did not say so. I was quoting you."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"I do consider publicity bad. I am sorry if Sir Frederick Nicholson thinks that publicity is good. Then there will be no trade secrets and anybody can get on with manufacturing soaps. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar wished that several small factories should come into existence instead of a single factory, because if there were only a single factory it would become a sort of monopoly, and that that would benefit the capitalists only and not the industry itself. Monopoly is not the correct word to use in this connexion. When a factory runs for some time and is making huge profits, several other people do come forward and start factories on the same scale and that gives stimulus to the further extension of the industry. Monopoly, if any, can only be of some secrets and processes. The process of manufacturing soap is complicated and requires study and many experiments and those who discover anything new can enjoy its monopoly. I am not opposed to a laboratory being established for Government experiments. I simply wanted that the business of this factory should be handed over to a company. It does not matter if you do not give over some of your own plant. What I want you to transfer is the goodwill and the business. What I mean is that in the case of private companies, when a company starts a manufacture and that manufacture becomes known, its trade mark is established; if any other company wants to purchase it, it pays so much for goodwill, for the right of manufacturing certain articles which have come to be known by some particular names. Here some soaps have come to be known. If you hand it over to a business company, it will help the business to be a success from the start instead of making it a success by stages. I do not ask for the transfer to a private company. I said it would be a limited liability company of which the shares will be purchased by a large number of people. If they were 5-rupee shares, there may be several lakhs of people who might buy them. I want the Government to take some shares, to reserve some seats on the directorate to have a controlling voice in that limited company and put in the Articles of Association that certain facilities for training should be provided. You can keep your laboratory in connexion with that. You will be able to do it because the Government will have just as much voice in the management of the company as any other director."

"The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar has said that it is our policy to hand it over to a private company as soon as it has become a success, and he qualified it by saying that it may be twenty years. The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao says it may take fifteen or twenty years. Why fifteen or twenty years? Experiments in manufacture will never come to an end. New discoveries will continue to be made, experiments can never end. There will be new things brought to light. Why do you set a limit? Why say after twenty years we will have completely known the art of manufacturing soap and there will be no further necessity for making experiments? That necessity will continue to exist even after twenty years. I do not want the Government to cease to make experiments. Let them go on making experiments and discovering new things and helping the industries still further. That is why in the Industrial Commission's report a recommendation has been made that Government should take the initiative in industrial matters."

"I will not labour the point any further. I will make only one observation, that is, I am glad that I was able to bring forward this proposition before this Council. Industrial questions very seldom come before this Council and members do not discuss these problems as often as I should like them to do. In future I should wish that industrial questions come up in this Council more frequently and be tackled with in the right spirit and that the Government also should develop their industrial department in a way that in the Council itself there may be a member of the Government who has only the portfolio of industries to look after and who makes it his particular concern and is able to handle it completely. As it is, industries form only a secondary question, and when it is brought forward here, as I have done, I find that some non-official members simply for want of knowledge and not for want of sympathy are not able to give it that help which would otherwise have been expected from them. I wish also that the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser had taken part in this discussion. He would have been in a position to show to withdraw this resolution and bring it forward at some more opportune time."

The Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser:—"If the honourable gentleman had given us a little more time, I would have taken part in the debate."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTIONS RE INQUIRY INTO THE SITUATION CAUSED BY THE FAILURE OF THE MONSOONS; ENCOURAGEMENT OF CO-OPERATIVE HOUSE-BUILDING SOCIETIES AND DOUBLE TRACK OF RAILWAY BETWEEN THE BEACH STATION AND CHINGLEPUT. 443

21st November 1918.] (The President; Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Sir Alexander Cardew; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.)

RESOLUTION RE INQUIRY INTO THE SITUATION CAUSED BY THE FAILURE OF THE MONSOONS.

His Excellency the President:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar's resolution XXXII has already been covered. We have got other resolutions to discuss. The Council will agree that it was covered and I cannot go back upon that. I have had a long personal conversation with him. That brings us to resolution XXV."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"My resolution is supposed to be covered by the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar, but he has not moved it."

His Excellency the President:—"I am sorry that the Honourable Gentleman does not see eye to eye with me. In my duty as Chairman I have to do my best, but with the assent of the Council I went so far as to put the matter to the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"The mover of the resolution omitted the last words 'the failure of the last monsoon'."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"No."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I am labouring under that mistake."

Resolution XXXII ran as follows:—

'XXXII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council the appointment of a committee consisting of an experienced Revenue Officer with two non-official gentlemen to make a full inquiry into the present situation in areas seriously affected by the failure during the year of both the monsoons in this Presidency and make an early report on how best it may be met by the Government and the people.'

His Excellency the President:—"We should only be discussing it twice. That leaves us with XXV, XXVIII, XXXIII, XXXIV and XXXV."

RESOLUTION RE ENCOURAGEMENT OF CO-OPERATIVE HOUSE-BUILDING SOCIETIES.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I shall move resolution XXVIII with an addition, that is inserting after the word 'house-building' the words 'for the poorer classes.' The resolution will then run as follows:—

'XXVIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency in Council that co-operative house-building for the poorer classes may be encouraged and assisted in this Presidency by financial help to the extent permitted by the present circumstances of this Government.'

"My object is in the present financial stress the poorer people might be helped. That is the sense of my Honourable Friends. I want to know if it is accepted by the Government."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO seconded the resolution.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"With that amendment I am prepared to accept the resolution."

The resolution as amended was accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"Will the Government be pleased to do anything by way of preliminary inspection in regard to resolution XXXII?"

His Excellency the President:—"I am sorry that the Honourable Member cannot agree with me. If the Honourable Gentleman wishes to move any resolution, he must submit it to the next meeting and it will be considered whether it can be taken."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"I am under the honest impression that my resolution was not covered. That is all I have to say."

His Excellency the President:—"That leaves XXV and the last three resolutions to discuss."

RESOLUTION RE DOUBLE TRACK OF RAILWAY BETWEEN THE BEACH STATION AND CHINGLEPUT.

Resolution XXV of which the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan Sahib had given notice ran as follows:—

'XXV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the South Indian Railway Company be asked to arrange for the laying of a double track between the Beach Station and Chingleput as soon as the war comes to an end.'

444 RESOLUTIONS RE DOUBLE TRACK OF RAILWAY BETWEEN THE BEACH STATION AND CHINGLEPUT; IMPROVEMENTS TO A SECTION OF THE BUCKINGHAM CANAL AND OPENING UP OF MINOR PORTS IN THE PRESIDENCY.

(Mr. Davidson; Mr. Yaqub Hasan Sahib; the President; 21st November 1918. Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar; Rajagopala Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON:—"I may perhaps save the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan trouble, if I say that while the Government are not able to accept the resolution as it stands, they will be glad to communicate it to the Agent of the South Indian Railway Company. This is not the first time this point has been before the Council; the necessity for improved service is admitted; and almost the only question is when the work can be started. The wording of the resolution is 'as soon as the war comes to an end.' When conditions will permit of commencement is a matter on which the Government cannot make any pronouncement. Again, an alternative to a double line has been suggested, consisting in a scheme for the electrification of the single line. As all these matters have been fully before the South Indian Railway Administration, it will probably serve the Honourable Member's purpose if the Government undertake to forward a copy of the resolution to the Railway Administration."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"Do I understand that the words 'as soon as the war comes to an end' should be omitted?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"What the Honourable Member has said is that he will be ready on behalf of the Government to communicate to the railway company the fact that this resolution has been proposed in the Legislative Council."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"That is quite enough."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The resolution will be communicated to the railway company by the Government. The Honourable Gentleman will then reserve his right to move it on a later occasion."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"May I point out with regard to resolution XXXIV that a similar resolution has been accepted by the Bombay Government?"

RESOLUTION RE IMPROVEMENTS TO A SECTION OF THE BUCKINGHAM CANAL.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We have XXXIII to deal with. Would the Honourable Gentleman move XXXIII?"

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"It would take some time."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"If the Honourable Gentleman does not wish to move it now, will he be good enough to move it at the next meeting of the Council?"

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"Yes, Your Excellency."

The resolution XXXIII which was not moved ran as follows:—

'XXXIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council the immediate repair and bringing into working order of the portion of the Buckingham Canal between Porto Novo and Tranquebar.'

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Will the Honourable Gentleman now move XXXIV?"

RESOLUTION RE OPENING UP OF MINOR PORTS IN THE PRESIDENCY.

Resolution XXXIV which stood in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar was as follows:—

'XXXIV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council the immediate opening up of as large a number of minor ports as possible in the Presidency.'

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"As a preliminary I may point out that a similar resolution has been accepted by the Bombay Government."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"If the Honourable Gentleman will omit the word 'immediate' I will accept the resolution. We are opening a number already decided to open a number of them in Kistna, Guntur and Ganjam districts (e.g.), ports are under investigation. If the word 'immediate' in the resolution is omitted, it comes into line with what we have been doing."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"I would substitute the word 'early' for 'immediate'."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I leave it to the Honourable Gentleman, but I may say that I would not quibble over that word. I advise the Honourable Gentleman to accept the suggestion made."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"Is it accepted by the Government?"

RESOLUTIONS RE OPENING UP OF MINOR PORTS IN THE PRESIDENCY; FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO LOCAL BODIES FOR MAINTENANCE OF THE MEDICAL INSTITUTIONS; CONTROL OF THE PRICE OF CLOTH; PETITIONS ABOUT RESETTLEMENT OF THE WYNAD AND AUTHORIZING DISTRICT MAGISTRATES TO ISSUE PASSPORTS TO PERSONS GOING TO STRAITS SETTLEMENTS, ETC.

445

21st November 1918.] (The President; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Krishna Rao; Mr. Venkatapati Raju; Mr. Annamalai Chettiyar.)

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Yes."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar accepted the resolution as amended.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I formally second it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I accept it."

The resolution (with the word 'immediate' omitted) was accepted.

RESOLUTION RE FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO LOCAL BODIES FOR MAINTENANCE OF THE MEDICAL INSTITUTIONS.

Resolution XXXV which stood in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao ran as follows:—

'XXXV. This Council recommends that the Governor in Council be pleased to render additional financial assistance to local bodies, to enable them to meet the increased cost of maintenance of the medical institutions under their control.'

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"XXXV is likely to take up some time unless it is accepted. As some non-official members are anxious to go away to-day, I do not wish to move it."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"If the Honourable Gentleman prefers to move it at a subsequent meeting of the Council, probably that will be the most convenient course."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Yes."

The following resolutions were not moved:—

RESOLUTION RE CONTROL OF THE PRICE OF CLOTH.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—

'XXIII. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that the Government be pleased to undertake necessary measures at an early date to reduce the high prices of cloth and to facilitate the supply of yarn at reasonable cost in weaving centres for local manufacture, besides supplying the standardized cloth.'

RESOLUTION RE PETITIONS ABOUT RESETTLEMENT OF THE WYNAD.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—

'XXIX. This Council recommends to His Excellency in Council that the claims and pleas of the Wynad landholders submitted to Government in connexion with the resettlement of the Wynad be further examined.'

RESOLUTION RE AUTHORIZING DISTRICT MAGISTRATES TO ISSUE PASSPORTS TO PERSONS GOING TO STRAITS SETTLEMENTS, ETC.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur S. R. M. ANNAMALAI CHETTIYAR:—

'XXX. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that instructions be issued by them to all District Magistrates to freely grant to all persons applying to them for the issue of passports to enable them to go over by sea to places in Straits Settlements and the Federated Malay States and in other British Colonies, and to places in the Colonies of Allied Governments for carrying on trade or business, unless such applicants are certified by the District Medical and Sanitary Officers to be physically unfit for the voyage.'

446 RESOLUTION RE REMOVAL OF RAILWAY RESTRICTION ON THE DESPATCH OF PARCELS OF INDIAN HAND-MADE CLOTHS.

(Mr. Annamalai Chettiar; The President.) [21st NOVEMBER 1918.

RESOLUTION RE REMOVAL OF RAILWAY RESTRICTION ON THE DESPATCH OF PARCELS OF INDIAN HAND-MADE CLOTHS.

The Hon'ble Rae Bahadur S. R. M. ANNAMALAI CHETTIYAR :—

'XXX'. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the restriction placed at present upon the despatch by Indian merchants and others by railway of parcels of Indian hand-made cloths in this Province may be removed.'

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"The Council will adjourn until the next meeting."

The Council was then adjourned sine die.

H. G. STOKES,
Acting Secretary to Govt., L. & M. (Legislative) Dept.

Proceedings of a Meeting of the Council of the Governor of Fort St. George assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.

The Council assembled at the Council Chamber, Fort St. George, at 11 a.m. on the 5th day of February 1919.

PRESENT :

His Excellency the Right Hon'ble JOHN, Baron PENTLAND of Lyth, P.C., G.C.S.I.,
G.C.I.E., Governor of Madras—Presiding.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW, K.C.S.I.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR Avargal, C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON, C.S.I.

The Hon'ble MUHAMMAD AZIZ-UD-DIN HUSAIN SAHIB Bahadur, Khan Bahadur,
C.I.E., I.S.O., O.B.E.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. BUCKLEY, C.S.I.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. Y. G. CAMPBELL, C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Mr. W. J. J. HOWLEY.

The Hon'ble Mr. W. HUTTON.

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES.

The Hon'ble Mr. N. E. MARJORIBANKS.

The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur R. RAMACHANDRA RAO Avargal.

(Sir Alexander Cardew.)

[5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Hon'ble Mr. S. SRINIVASA AYYANGAR (Advocate-General).
 The Hon'ble Mr. H. G. STOKES, C.I.E.
 The Hon'ble Mr. C. G. TODHUNTER.
 The Hon'ble Mr. M. YOUNG.
 The Hon'ble Mr. R. B. WOOD.
 The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR AVARGAL.
 The Hon'ble the Rev. G. PITTENDRIGH.
 The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO PANTULU.
 The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO PANTULU GARU.
 The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO PANTULU.
 The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO.
 The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur A. SUBBARAYALU REDDIYAR AVARGAL.
 The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR.
 The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIYA BHAT.
 The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR AVARGAL.
 The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR.
 The Hon'ble Sri RAJA RAO VENKATA KUMARA MAHIPATI SURYA RAO Bahadur, Raja of Pithapuram.
 The Hon'ble B. RAJA RAJESWARA SETUPATI alias MUTTURAMALINGA SETUPATI AVARGAL, Raja of Ramnad.
 The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU.
 The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARAM NATHA MUDALIYAR.
 The Hon'ble Mr. K. KUMARAN RAMAN KAVALAPPARA MUPPIL NAYAR.
 The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur.
 The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER, Kt.
 The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER.
 The Hon'ble Sir FAIRLESS BARBER, Kt.
 The Hon'ble the Most Rev. JOHN AZLEN, D.D.
 The Hon'ble Mr. T. RICHMOND.
 The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING, K.C.I.E.
 The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur K. R. SURYANARAYANAMURTI NAYUDU GARU.
 The Hon'ble Raja, RAJA SRI RAVU VENKATA KUMARA KRISHNA RANGA RAO Bahadur, of Bobbili.
 The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR.

NEW MEMBERS.

The following gentlemen took the prescribed oath or affirmation of allegiance to the Crown and then took their seats:—

The Hon'ble Mr. NORMAN EDWARD MARJORIBANKS.
 The Hon'ble Mr. RICHARD BOARDMAN WOOD.
 The Hon'ble Mr. ARCHIBALD YOUNG GIPPS CAMPBELL, C.I.E.
 The Hon'ble Mr. HOPETOUN GABRIEL STOKES, C.I.E.
 The Hon'ble Sri RAJA RAO VENKATA KUMARA MAHIPATI SURYA RAO Bahadur, Raja of Pithapuram.
 The Hon'ble Mr. WILLIAM HUTTON.
 The Hon'ble Mr. RICHARD LITTLEHAILES.
 The Hon'ble Mr. JAMES CHARTRES MOLONY.
 The Hon'ble Dr. TARAVATH MADHAVAN NAYAR.

THE LATE MR. GILLMAN.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"The painful duty again falls to my lot of having to bring before the Council the loss which it has sustained since our last meeting through the death of one of its members—I refer to the Hon'ble Mr. Gillman, C.S.I. Few who saw Mr. Gillman with his alert frame, his soldierly bearing, his quick response, would have foretold that we should so soon have had to deplore his loss. There is indeed reason to believe that he reduced his strength by his too great attention to the heavy duties of his office, and we know also that the final catastrophe was rendered inevitable by his disinclination to admit that he was ill or to take the necessary precautions. His life was indeed sacrificed to his sense of duty. It is not for me to refer here to his service except as seen in this Chamber. Every one who knew him here recognized, I believe, his high qualities, his directness of purpose, his manly straightforwardness, his conspicuous desire to be fair. These qualities were patent to all. Those who knew him better, whether as friend or colleague, knew also that behind his abrupt speech and 5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Sir Alexander Cardew; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao;

Mr. Kavalappara Muppil Nayar; the President.)

manner, there lay not merely a warm heart but a fine character, something singularly frank, boyish and unspoilt, a generous instinct, and an incapacity to commit any mean or unworthy action. Of him we may say with certainty,

'Whatever record leap to light
He never shall be shamed.'

"In Mr. Gillman we feel we have lost a comrade of rare temper and quality, and I believe that all members of this Council will join in deploring his loss. Your Excellency, I beg to move:—

'That an expression of the sincere regret of this Council at the death of the Hon'ble Mr. H. F. W. Gillman, C.S.I., Member of Council, and of its deep sympathy with Mrs. Gillman in her affliction be placed on record and conveyed to her.'"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, I beg to second this motion; and in doing so, myself and my colleagues the other non-official Members associate ourselves fully with the sentiments to which the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew has given expression in moving this resolution. When Mr. Gillman was leaving this Council just before his departure to Simla, I asked him when he was coming back, and in his usual playful way he said 'four or five months or perhaps never'. That unfortunately has come true. We very much sympathise with Mrs. Gillman and the members of his family in their great bereavement; this Presidency has lost an experienced official."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. K. R. KAVALAPPARA MUPPIL NAYAR:—"I wish to associate myself with what has been said by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Council, I am sure, will wish that their deep sense of loss should be conveyed to Mrs. Gillman and that this resolution should be recorded in the Council Proceedings."

The motion was agreed to.

ACT ASSENTED TO BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT announced that the Koodalmanickam Devaswom Act, 1918, received the assent of His Excellency the Governor-General on the 8th January 1919.

ACTS ASSENTED TO BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR.

The SECRETARY reported that the undermentioned Acts, which were passed at the meeting of the Council held on the 19th November 1918, received the assent of His Excellency the Governor on the dates noted against them:—

- | | | |
|---|----|---------------------|
| (i) The Koodalmanickam Devaswom Act, 1918 | .. | 14th December 1918. |
| (ii) The Port Trust Amendment Act, 1918 | .. | 20th December 1918. |

COMMUNICATIONS TO THE COUNCIL.

The SECRETARY reported the receipt of the following communications to the Council:—

- (i) Regarding the Bill to provide for the voluntary registration of Mussalman marriages and divorces.

- (1) From the President of a public meeting of Mussalmans held at Nellore, dated the 16th November 1918.
- (2) From the Honorary Secretary to the Muttialpet Moslem Anjuman, Madras, dated the 14th November 1918.
- (3) From the Honorary Secretary to the South Indian Islamia League, Madras, dated the 26th November 1918.
- (4) From Khan Sahib Saiyid Diwan Abd-ur-razzaq Sahib Bahadur, President, Anjumans Islamia, Coimbatore, dated the 25th November 1918.
- (5) From Khan Bahadur Waljee Laljee, Honorary Presidency Magistrate and Honorary Secretary to the Anjuman, Madras, dated the 30th November 1918.
- (6) From the Chairman of a Moslem public meeting held in the Esplanade Maidan, Madras, on the 2nd December 1918.
- (7) From the Chairman of a Moslem public meeting held in Lawley Hall, Mount Road, Madras, on the 18th November 1918.
- (8) From Adam Dand Sahib Bahadur, Honorary Magistrate, Udipi, dated the 6th December 1918.
- (9) From the Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali Khan, Khan Bahadur, dated the 10th December 1918.
- (10) From Waiz Muhammad Shams-ud-din Sahib, Chairman of a public meeting held at Ponneri on the 3rd December 1918.
- (11) From the Honorary Secretary, Moslem Educational Association, Nellore, dated the 15th December 1918.

(The President; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.) [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.

- (12) From the Secretary, Young Men's Moslem Association, Tellicherry, dated the 19th December 1918.
 (13) From the Honorary Secretaries of the Muhammadan Educational Association of Southern India, dated the 21st December 1918.
 (14) From the Moslem community of the Red Hills, dated the 19th December 1918.
 (15) From the President of a meeting held at Negapatam on the 3rd January 1919.
 (16) From the General Secretary, Anjuman-E-Hamdard-E-Islam, Ambur, dated the 30th December 1918.
 (17) From the President of a meeting held at Cochin on the 5th January 1919.
 (18) From the President, 'Cutechee Memon Jamaat', Madras, dated January 1919.
 (19) From the President of a public meeting held at Cochin on the 10th January 1919.
 (20) From Saiyid 'Abd-ul-ghafur Shah Sahib, B.A., Sub-Assistant Inspector of Schools, Madura, dated the 15th January 1919.
 (21) From the President of a public meeting held in Kalvathy Mahozara at British Cochin on the 12th January 1919.
 (22) From Mir Muhammad Kalimullah Sahib, Zamindar, Palakod, dated the 17th January 1919.
 (23) From the Honorary Secretary, People's Association, Pentland town, Vaniyambadi, dated the 20th January 1919.

(ii) Regarding the Madras City Municipal Bill, 1918.

- (1) From the Chairman of a public meeting of the women of Mylapore held on the 14th December 1918.
 (2) From the Chairman, Madras Trades' Association, dated the 16th January 1919.
 (3) From the Joint Manager, Madras Electric Tramways, Limited, dated the 23rd January 1919.

(iii) Regarding the Madras Agricultural Pests and Diseases Bill, 1918.

From M.R.Ry. R. Krishna Ayyar Avargal, Kaprangode Madam, Katampalipuram Post via Ottappalam, dated the 20th December 1918.

A MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Now we proceed to the order of the day No. (5)."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Your Excellency, before order No. (5) is taken up I have a motion for adjournment to make. I move that this meeting be adjourned for 24 hours. The object of this motion is to draw attention to two crying evils and to give the Government time to consider or reconsider their position in regard to those evils. The first evil is the tone of the last Madras administration report. The Government of Madras are issuing it and are responsible for its tone and contents. The Government of Madras are a highly personal element in the review of the political events of the year; it has gone further and displayed an attitude which looks adverse to various movements such as the movement for the attainment of self-government within the Empire by Indians and the movement of labour in Madras to organise itself and to better its material condition and prospects in its struggle with capital. There is unfortunately too much stress laid on the personality of one or some of the workers and the main course of the movements and their significance are sought to be ignored or belittled. This would have the effect of making vast masses believe the Government to take the side opposite to them, e.g., those engaged in the labour movement—the illiterate labourers especially—will take it that Government side with capital in this economic struggle."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I cannot accept that particular ground for the adjournment."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR (continuing):—"Those endeavouring to promote the progress of self-government within the Empire for the people are apt to take the sneers directed against the movement in the first paragraph of the said administration report as proof of Government's hostility to all such progress."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Will you proceed to the next point?"

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"My next point is that such ideas will have the effect of increasing mutual bitterness, and tend distinctly to weaken the prestige and authority of Government."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman is not proceeding to his next point. I am unable to admit the motion and accept the subject as a proper one for debate. I ask the Honourable Member to state for my information the next point on which he wishes to make the motion for adjournment."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Will your Excellency kindly listen to me? I am trying to convince the Council that my motion for adjournment is reasonable. I should not be muzzled and I hope your Excellency will permit me to put forward my grounds. Would not your Excellency allow me a chance? I am prevented from mentioning my grounds to Honourable Members. Would your Excellency not allow me so much liberty?"

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (The President; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar;
Sir Alexander Cardew.)

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I am merely stating to the Council that the first ground mentioned by the Honourable Member is not sufficient for putting his motion to the Council. Would he kindly proceed now to the next ground?"

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"May I ask your Excellency whether it is open to you to assume that the rest of the Honourable Members would not accept that point as a sufficient ground for adjournment?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I am bound to administer the rules, and in the first place I am bound to see whether the Honourable Gentleman's grounds are within the rules. The first ground does not come within the rules."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Which is the rule to which your Excellency is referring?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I must ask the Honourable Member to be good enough to follow my suggestion."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I am quite willing as far as I can to follow your suggestion, but I want to know whether the liberty of any member of the house to put forward his various grounds—some of them may be good, some not—in support of the motion for adjournment, is to be curtailed by the dictation of the chair. When is this dictation to cease?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Member will hear my reasons presently. The Council will be able to judge. I ask the Honourable Gentleman to be good enough to proceed to the next point."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Does your Excellency rule out of order any ground not approved of by your Excellency? Your Excellency, is it to be assumed that the Council has rejected my first ground as unsuitable?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman need not assume anything; let him be good enough to comply with my request to proceed to the next point on which he wishes to propose the motion."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Though I protest against any dictation of this sort, I proceed. I shall close my observations on the first point. I distinctly decline to obey any order which unlawfully curtails the liberty of a member."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"I rise to a point of order. Rule 35 (2) of the Financial Rules says: "No discussion on any point of order shall be allowed unless the President thinks fit to take the opinion of the Council thereon." I think the opinion of the great majority of Honourable Members is that this motion is a gross abuse of the rules of the house but at any rate the Honourable Member is now deliberately breaking the rules by disobeying your Excellency's ruling on a point of order."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"If your Excellency lays down a point of order I am bound to obey it, but your Excellency was giving me only a suggestion and not a ruling on any point."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Will the Honourable Member kindly follow the suggestion which I have already made?"

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I am in a dilemma; but I shall proceed. On a point of order, I agree with the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew, I am bound by the ruling of the Chair and I have no right to discuss it. I think there is no point of order. I proceed to the next point. This tendency and this effect are still more noticeable in the second evil I shall advert to. That relates to a very important circular largely circulated amongst the members of the Indian Civil Service in the course of which they proceed to put forward their claims and privileges as inconsistent with the placing of the Indian people in a position to control policy and to issue orders in pursuance of such policy to members of the service. This has been widely understood as a declaration of violent opposition to the policy enunciated on the 20th August but the fact that one-half of the Government is recruited from that service has added to the vague fears of the people; and there are not wanting men who readily assume and assert that there is no knowing if Government are not behind the circular."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT (interrupting):—"The Honourable Gentleman is not following my suggestion. He must either follow my suggestion and proceed to the second point, or I must ask him to resume his seat."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"What I am mentioning is the second point. The first is that paragraph in the Administration Report, and the second point is the circular of the Indian Civil Service. I dare say the Government are aware of that circular."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Will the Honourable Gentleman give me the circular?"

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I have got only one copy. In that circular, they proceed to put forward their claims and privileges as inconsistent with the placing of the Indian people in a position to control policy and to issue orders in pursuance of such policy to members of the service."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Neither of these grounds is in my opinion sufficient to justify such a motion and I am unable to accept the motion of the Honourable Gentleman."

(Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ; the President.)

[5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" May I make a request? Is your Excellency giving me a suggestion or does your Excellency say that I have no right to make the motion for adjournment?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" The Honourable Gentleman is asking me to put a motion for adjournment on grounds which he has stated. These grounds are not sufficient to justify me in putting such a motion before the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" May I know under what rule your Excellency is acting?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" The first and immediate ground is this: 'that the Amended Draft Financial Statement shall be presented to the Council on a day not later than the 5th day of February. That is the first and immediate ground on which I must rule the Honourable Gentleman out. He will find it in the book'."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" Then I shall make an amendment by substituting 'four hours' for '24 hours'."

"The motion as modified runs as follows :—

"That this meeting of the Council be adjourned or postponed for four hours for the consideration by Government of the two items of urgent and public importance."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" I am unable to accept the Honourable Gentleman's motion."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" May I know whether the motion is to be accepted by the President or by the Council? If there is any rule by which I am prevented, I am bound to accept it. But in the absence of a rule, your Excellency is exercising a power which is not provided for by the rules."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" If the Honourable Gentleman had given me warning, I should have considered the point. He suddenly comes to the Council and proceeds to make the motion. If I had time, I could have looked it up. I should have time to consider it."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" I have not the least objection to time being taken now."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" I will tell the Council why I would rule the motion out of order as I propose to do after I read the rules to the Council. These rules may not be complete and literally construed, and they may not have been framed to meet every emergency. But the rule of deliberative assemblies is this: that when a matter is of urgent public importance, so urgent that it will admit of no delay and no further opportunities for discussion will occur unless the present opportunity is taken, such a motion is legitimate; the president of any deliberative assembly would not be entitled to deprive the assembly of that right. But it is not the case that this is a matter of urgent public importance in that sense. If the rules permit, it is just as useful to discuss it the next day, the next week or at the next meeting of the Council, and no harm will be done by such postponement or delay. We are met on this occasion under the rules and under positive instructions that the Amended Draft Financial Statement shall be presented to the Council—that means it shall be presented for consideration—at a day not later than the 5th day of February. It would, I think, be in direct contravention of the spirit of that rule, in the first place, if I were to permit such a motion as this to be put before the Council. In the second place, for the reason which I have already given, neither of the grounds suggested by the Honourable Member makes these matters of urgent public importance in the sense that their discussion cannot take place at any other later date. I do not propose to allow this motion to be put before this Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" May I request permission to point out several grounds which do not admit of delay. I do not ask for an adjournment of 24 hours. I only ask for four hours, so that we might be strictly within the letter of the instructions I was just going to point out that unless the Government proceed to act quickly there is great public danger. I dare say the Government are absolutely innocent of the matter, but there is an unfortunate misapprehension which has to be removed—and the removal is very necessary—that the Government are behind that particular movement; the Government ought to dispel it at the earliest possible moment, in order to avoid serious consequences. I wish to give the Government this chance, before further mischief is done, to declare emphatically that they are not behind the movement, which is inimical to the country and which is considered to be engineered by certain prominent persons. I make this motion for that purpose and not at all with the view by the Indian Civil Service circular, because it is believed that the Government are behind that circular, because 50 per cent of the Government belong to that service."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" The Honourable Gentleman has really taken advantage of proposing this motion to discuss on their merits questions which are not before this Council. It is not desirable that it should be done in the interests of anybody. May I suggest to the Honourable Member that if ever he or any other Honourable Member of this Council wishes to move such a motion as this, he should consult me beforehand and allow me to contribute such information and advice as I can which will be freely at their disposal. I have no wish as President to restrict or confine the discussion. We have all got to co-operate in carrying out

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(The President ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ; Sir Alexander Cardew ; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

the rules of debate. I must invite the Council to endeavour to support me in this matter. I am very sorry I feel obliged in the exercise of my duty to say that this is not a motion which should be put."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" May I have information for my benefit. Under what rule is this ruled out?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" I have already stated the grounds on which I have given my ruling."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" That does not come within any rule. Is your Excellency creating a new rule?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" If the Honourable Gentleman wishes to know the rule which will cover my ruling, I will read this rule 15. 'The President may disallow any resolution or part of a resolution without giving any reason therefor other than that in his opinion it cannot be moved consistently with the public interests'."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" That is the Financial Rules. We are now under the general business rules."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" The same thing is in the Business Rules."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" I move the motion under rule 4 of the Business Rules and not under the Financial Rules. We have not begun the Financial Statement as yet. There is no such provision in the Business Rules."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" I will endeavour to find it out (after referring to the book). The Honourable Gentleman will find it on page 101, rule 7. 'The President may disallow any resolution or part of a resolution without giving any reason therefor other than that, in his opinion, it cannot be moved consistently with public interests'."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" That relates to resolutions and not to motions for adjournment. This is not a resolution."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" I am unable to continue the discussion."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" Your Excellency will give me a ruling. I protest against the ruling which is highly improper and I wish to mark my protest against it by leaving the hall. At least this morning, I wish to keep out of the hall as a mark of protest."

The Honourable Member then left the Council Chamber.

THE AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT FOR 1919-1920.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW, K.C.S.I., then presented the Amended Draft Financial Statement for 1919-1920 and in doing so he said :—" I beg now to present the Amended Draft Financial Statement. In doing so, I do not propose to detain the Council by any speech, as such remarks as I have to make are contained in the memorandum prefixed to the Financial Statement and which indeed forms part of it. There is only just one matter which I wish to mention, and that relates to some inquiries which have come through the Chief Secretary from some Honourable Members, asking for information regarding the Financial Statement. The Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar, whom I do not see present this morning, has sent a long list of requests for information and the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao has sent a short list for information. Certain items in these lists, though relating to matters of general interest, have nothing whatever to do with the Draft Financial Statement; and in future, an endeavour will be made to make it clear to Honourable Members that, when they ask for further information in connexion with the Draft Financial Statement, their request must relate to items in the Draft Financial Statement. This meeting is merely a business meeting for dealing with the figures in the Draft Budget, and not a meeting for general requests for information, or for asking whether papers will be laid on the table. I only mention that to remove some possible misunderstanding in future. With these words, your Excellency I present the statement and I proceed to introduce heads, 1 & 3. Land Revenue."

I. & 3. Land Revenue.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW introduced this head and in doing so, said :—" Under this head, a certain number of inquiries have been received which I might perhaps now answer. The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao has asked for information as to the scale of war allowances which have been recently sanctioned to subordinates drawing Rs. 50 and under. He asks why village officers and village servants have been left out. The answer to that is that the scale of allowances is shown in G.O. No. 16, Financial, dated the 7th January 1919, which has been laid on the Editors' table; and therefore it is unnecessary for me to give details of the exact allowances. Copies of it may be supplied to any member who might want them."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—" At that time, I did not know of the order."

(Sir Alexander Cardew; the President; [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Krishna Rao.)

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"As regards the reasons for excluding village officers, that is a matter which is going to be dealt with in resolution No. 3 and we shall then be able to discuss it fully.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar and the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao both asked for information regarding the entry of Rs. 2,900 on page 31 of the Civil Budget Estimates for the creation of a leave reserve in North Arcot district. Honourable Members will see that this too is coming up as a resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao and we shall come to that in due course.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao asks whether Mr. Tottenham's proposals for the reduction of work in the Secretariat and in the Collectors' offices have reached the Government. Though it is not a matter connected with the Financial Statement, I may say for the information of the Honourable Member that we have not yet received Mr. Tottenham's report.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar has various questions. He asks what are the items included in the provision of Rs. 6.93 lakhs for 'other items' shown in Appendix AA of the Civil Budget Estimate. The chief items included under this minor head are sale proceeds of coir, receipts from escheats, receipts from sale of tank beds, charge on achchukattu irrigation, assessment on salt pans, land revenue of Madras, ground-rent and back-yard assessment. No details of the amounts are available, nor could they be obtained without a reference to Collectors. He wants to know the details of the charges under coir establishment on page 32. The coir establishment and coir receipts arise out of an old arrangement under which the Government take over all the coir produced in the Amindivi Islands attached to the district of South Kanara at fixed rates and supply the islanders with cash or rice in return, also at a fixed rate. The coir thus received from the islanders is sold on behalf of Government and the receipts are included under the head 'other items' which are shown in the detailed account No. 1-A on page 236 of the Civil Budget Estimate. The administration of the establishment is in the hands of the Collector of South Kanara and the charges form a proper debit to district administration in accordance with the principle laid down in article 1006 of the Civil Account Code. No separate budget estimate of the receipts is available.

"Then the Honourable Member asks, what are the temporary establishments referred to under the Survey department (headquarters) employed on. The answer to that is that the temporary establishment is employed on preparing triplicate manuscript copies of field atlases, correcting topographical details of revenue maps in municipal towns, final examination of town and union survey maps, extra departmental work including publication and supply of sheets for the Survey of India, and generally in supplementing the sanctioned permanent establishment.

"Another matter on which the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar seeks information is as regards the duties performed by what is shown in the budget estimate as 'mica establishment' for which a sum of Rs. 5,110 is provided. This establishment is employed in the Nellore district in checking consignments of mica and examining the accounts at the mines with the stock in hand with a view to the payment of royalty. There are between 80 and 100 mines scattered about the Nellore district and the establishment which is shown on page 32 has been in existence for some years, but has hitherto been included under the major head 'Forests'. In June last, the Board of Revenue, on the initiative of the Accountant-General, recommended that the classification of the receipts and charges on account of mica mining in the Nellore district which had hitherto been shown under 'Forests' should be transferred to 'Land Revenue' on the ground that the mines were situated as much outside forests as inside forests. This accordingly has been done and an assignment has been obtained from the Government of India to cover the loss of revenue involved by the change from the undivided to the divided head, and the details will be found mentioned in the Financial Statement. The establishment is now for the first time separately shown under the head 'Land Revenue', but it is the old establishment and no new charge is involved thereby. These, I think, are matters on which I was asked to give special information under this head. I now beg to introduce it."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"In the ordinary course, we will take the resolutions."

RESOLUTION RE LEAVE RESERVE FOR THE REVENUE ESTABLISHMENT IN THE NORTH ARCOT DISTRICT.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I beg to move:—

'I. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in COUNCIL that the lump provision of Rs. 2,900 made under 3-A. LAND REVENUE for the creation of a leave reserve for the revenue establishments in the North Arcot district be omitted.'

"Your Excellency, as appears from the Amended Draft Financial Statement, this lump provision has been made for the creation of a leave reserve as an experimental measure, for the revenue establishment in the North Arcot district. So far as the principle of the creation of leave reserve is concerned, it is a principle which has been accepted and it is a principle which deserves consideration. Notwithstanding the provisions of article 197 of the Civil Service Regulations that leave of absence cannot be granted as a matter of right and that the Government may refuse or revoke leave, it is quite desirable and necessary that officers in the active service should have all possible facilities for obtaining leave and that necessary arrangements should be made for that purpose. So far as the principle of the creation of leave reserve is concerned, subject to certain limitations and safeguards, it is a principle which has been recognised and accepted; and if I take objection to the insertion of this provision in the Financial Statement, it is because of the indefiniteness of the proposals which have now been placed before this Council. It would be interesting to notice that so far as this province at least is concerned, in the case of the provincial civil service, executive side, there has been provision for a leave reserve to the extent of 14 per cent though it has not been found necessary to have any leave reserve on the judicial side. It would throw considerable light on this question, if I read some of the answers given before the Public Services Commission with reference to this important problem. I shall first read to the Council the answer given by Sir Ralph Benson, though the answers are confined to the judicial service. He said at page 18:—

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Krishna Rao.)

"The number of permanent and temporary officers in the service is determined by the number of such appointments, and the number of officers acting in vacancies is fixed with reference to the number of acting vacancies existing from time to time. It is satisfactory.

"No alteration is required, except perhaps in the rule by which all temporary appointments are placed in the lowest grade.

"In particular, is the leave reserve adequate, and the system on which it is graded suitable? There is no leave reserve. Selected candidates are always eager to act in a temporary vacancy. No alteration is required."

"It may be suggested that he spoke of the Judicial service, and that these remarks would more properly apply to that branch of the service, because they have got the vacation and other conveniences. I will now read to the Council the answers given by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew before the Public Services Commission. In his written answers he says in regard to this—

"Q. In particular, is the leave reserve adequate, and the system on which it is graded suitable?"

"A. Executive service.—The leave reserve for the Deputy Collector Service, viz., 14 per cent on the sanctioned strength, was sanctioned and introduced only in 1911, and it is therefore too soon to say it will prove adequate, but as it was based on the actual leave vacancies in several years (1906 to 1909) it will probably suffice.

"Judicial service.—There is no leave reserve in the judicial branch of the Provincial Service, and none is required, as sub-judges are usually selected from the ranks of district munsifs while leave vacancies among the latter are usually filled by selection from the bar or by promotion from the clerical staff."

"That is what is stated in the written answer. A question arose in the course of further examination by the Commission as to whether in the case of tahsildars any distinction was to be created. I will now refer the Council to the question put by Mr. Sly and the answer given by Sir Alexander Cardew in regard to that question. I am reading from page 125—

"Q. You have stated that the tahsildar's grade must be recruited by promotion from the lower ranks of the service, whilst for the more important and more responsible work of deputy collector you have admitted 50 per cent of the posts by competition. Is there any reason why the tahsildars and the deputy tahsildars should not be recruited by competition, in which they would get training just as good as that of the deputy collector and on the same basis?"

"A. There are two main reasons; one is that you would tremendously diminish the opportunities of the subordinate services below the Tahsildar and the Deputy Tahsildar and thereby of course prejudice that service, and the class of man you get in it, and the other reason is that you would not get men with the same expert knowledge of the revenue system that you get from men who have actually served as revenue inspectors and begun at the bottom.

"Q. The second objection applies equally to your scheme for deputy collectors?"

"A. Not quite, because the tahsildar has more detailed duties connected with the revenue administration."

"I thought it best to refer to these answers, because they have considerable bearing upon this question. So far as the provision of Rs. 2,900 is concerned, it is not quite clear from the information furnished in the Financial Statement whether it is intended for tahsildars or deputy tahsildars or for the deputy collectors already in service or other officers of this description. I am objecting to this lump provision, because it merely states that as an experimental measure it is intended for the revenue establishment in North Arcot district. So far as the question of principle is concerned, there is absolutely no difficulty in understanding the principle. If the scheme has already been formulated, it is best that we know what the scheme is; it is best that we know for which officers this leave reserve is intended and to what extent there should be this arrangement. I do not think that when once we start the experiment, we can stop there. It is a question which must eventually affect the whole province. Is it not therefore desirable that we have before us a fairly accurate idea of the whole scheme including the cost of the scheme, before we give our assent to the insertion of this lump provision of Rs. 2,900. It is stated that it is a lump sum of Rs. 2,900; but there is a sort of indefiniteness about it. If the scheme is ready, it is necessary that we should know what it is and what the scheme is likely to cost, before we give our sanction to this sum of Rs. 2,900. If the scheme is not ready and has yet to be formulated, I would venture to suggest that we can wait till the scheme is ready and that there would be no difficulty in the Government finding funds to give effect to the scheme.

"Then I would ask what is the necessity for inserting this provision when it is not known for what officers it is intended, to what extent it would apply and how many probationers would be required. It is only on that ground that I object to this provision: it is more on account of

(Mr. Krishna Rao ; Sir Alexander Cardew ; [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.
the President ; Mr. Venkatapati Raju.]

want of information in the Financial Statement that I move it. If there is no provision for the direct recruitment of tahsildars, we would like to know whether there should be a leave reserve ; and if there is leave reserve, whether it would not affect the promotion of men in the lower grade. In the absence of such information, I think the Honourable Member would enlighten us whether there is a scheme which will enable us to consider whether it can be tried. If the scheme is not ready, the Government can wait, as they will not find any difficulty in providing the funds."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—"I am sorry that the Financial Statement did not give more detailed information. I overlooked the point, because I knew what the figure related to. This proposal relates only to clerks on Rs. 35 and under, that is at the bottom of the scale. The question which the Government had to consider was whether some device could not be found to do away with the acting clerk in the taluk office who is generally a source of much inconvenience and is very unsatisfactory. There are great difficulties about the selection and appointment of acting clerks for acting vacancies on Rs. 35. It involves 'ladders', which I dare say some Honourable Members are aware of—ladders of leave and leave arrangements. Instead of that, it is proposed to try in the North Arcot district, the other plan of employing a sufficient number of men permanently on the establishment who will be available for acting in leave arrangements, so that you will not have any one acting for years on end, as there was when I was Collector. There was then a B.A. acting for five years on Rs. 15. That is a most miserable position, disheartening to the man and most unsatisfactory to Government. We cannot get good service when a man has not got certainty of tenure. To do away with that, we propose to try this plan of increasing the number of clerks between Rs. 20 and Rs. 35 ; so that when a man goes on leave, a permanent man will be available to act for him. This may involve a certain amount of expenditure, but it is difficult to foresee how many will be needed. It is estimated that in this district it will cost Rs. 2,900 and it is therefore presumed that it would cost three-fourths of a lakh for the whole Presidency. But there will be a saving on acting allowance if we get acting men from the permanent establishment, and therefore I do not think the expenditure will be too heavy. If the Honourable Member who moved the resolution would like that, I would be glad to lay on the table of this Council the Government Order on this subject, with Board's Proceedings dated the 17th July 1918, which gives full details of the establishment and the men proposed. The Honourable Member does not object to the principle and I hope this explanation will remove any uncertainty as to its application."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"May I take it that you are satisfied ?"

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO :—"Your Excellency, I have still some difficulty in the matter. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew no doubt indicated that it is intended to apply to clerks on Rs. 35 and below. I wish to know whether the proposal is only confined up to Rs. 35 or is eventually proposed to be extended."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—"No."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO :—"The next question that will arise will be whether any calculation has been made as to what amount would be required or what percentage of clerks should be entertained and on what grade."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—"I will lay that on the table if the Honourable Member wishes to have it."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO :—"Yes."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE DEDUCTION FROM PROVISION FOR TEMPORARY ESTABLISHMENT UNDER LAND REVENUE, SURVEY AND SETTLEMENT.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU :—"Your Excellency, the resolution which I have the honour to move is an old one and runs as follows :—

'II. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the sum of one lakh of rupees be deducted from 3-B. LAND REVENUE—Survey and Settlement out of the temporary establishment.'

"This is an old resolution which has been engaging the attention of this Council for the last so many years, that is, the reduction of the charges of survey. In March last this question was discussed and various aspects were presented by the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar, the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Acharyar and the Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew on behalf of Government stated that he would be most willing to agree with the Members in reducing the expenditure, but he found it impossible to follow that course, because on taking advice and consulting the Members of the Board of Revenue and the Settlement officers he found it difficult to reduce the expenditure. That was in March 1918. Six months after in the Administration Report on Survey and Settlement, passed on the 17th September 1918, I find the Government saying that 'the Government know that there has been a decrease in the cost of the controlling staff in settlement parties in the year under review and the possibility of further reduction is engaging the attention of Government.' I propose to test how far this attention which the Government have been paying has materialized in the present proposals. It is said in the Administration Report for 1917-18 that in that year the expenditure on settlement parties was Rs. 2,86,000 ; the present proposal is Rs. 4,29,400. This department is not reducing its expenditure, but on the other hand it is increasing the expenditure by 70 per cent. We must also consider that this expenditure on survey and settlement is admittedly, as the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew stated, unremunerative expenditure and therefore nobody is anxious to spend a pie more than what is absolutely necessary. But the question is whether the whole amount is absolutely necessary at all. We have nearly completed by 1917-18 about seventeen districts and in 1918-19 some more will be done and the rest would be completed in the year 1919-20 excepting some few taluks which will be left for 1920-21. What I find great difficulty in understanding is, when the survey and settlement operations began at first, they cost less to the Government, and when we are taking the re-settlement operations, naturally we would expect that the cost of the original settlement and original survey would have been more than that of the resurvey and the resettlement ; but we find an increase in the cost of resurvey and resettlement of more than cent per cent or nearly 200 per cent in the later years.

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Venkatapati Raju ; Sir Alexander Cardew.)

"Just to give you an idea as to what it cost the Government in previous years, I may be permitted to mention that there were five survey and settlement parties in the matter of settling the assessment. When we go to the years 1896-97, and also 1897-98, 1898-99 and 1899-1900, during the years 1896-97 and 1897-98, we spent over Rs. 6 lakhs ; in 1898-99, we spent Rs. 4 lakhs ; in 1899-1900, Rs. 5 lakhs. When we come to 1900-1901—this was including both survey and settlement—they spent only Rs. 6-94 lakhs ; they said that year that the increase was due to want of trained surveyors. Since then we have had enough of trained surveyors to attend to this business. In 1901-1902 the expenditure was Rs. 7-36 lakhs and in 1902-1903 Rs. 8-59 lakhs, that is, an increase of one lakh. This provision included a fifth survey party and strengthening the survey establishment."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—"I am sorry to interrupt the Honourable Member, but I beg to submit that the debate to-day on this sum is to deal with the figure in the Financial Statement and not with the policy of the Government in regard to survey parties. The Honourable Member has moved a resolution that a certain sum under the temporary establishment should be removed and his speech should be directed to that point. If he wishes to raise a debate on the general point, he may legitimately do so at the budget meeting ; but it is not relevant to the resolution on the agenda. Having given notice of a resolution for the reduction of only one lakh, he cannot discuss other points."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU :—"Your Excellency, I quite appreciate the observation of the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew. I do not propose to discuss the general question. That is not my intention. I wanted a reduction in the expenditure and I wanted to suggest how a reduction should be made, and in giving reasons therefor I stated that they employed five settlement parties and they incurred less expenditure. I say that by economizing expenditure they can reduce it. That is the main point I am placing before the Council. I am not discussing the settlement policy at all. That is a matter which we can discuss later on on another occasion. I am only stating that during these years a much smaller sum was found sufficient in employing all the five settlement parties and now my request is whether we should not have more economy in the matter of expenditure instead of increasing it. As I have mentioned, in the present proposal there is an increase of Rs. 1-40 lakhs. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew also asked why I should not discuss more directly about the temporary establishment. Even with reference to that, at page 37 of the Civil Budget Estimate, we notice that in the year 1917-18 Rs. 92,000 was found sufficient for the temporary establishment. This year they want Rs. 1-83 lakhs. Therefore, there is an increase in the temporary establishment and a general increase also.

"What was pointed out and complained of on the last occasion was this, how many villages were there and what was the extent of the ground to be covered by the settlement parties in order to find out whether there was any necessity for the employment of an additional party and for the increased expenditure. Now, from the budget figure I find that there are six survey parties. My humble submission is that we can get on with five parties. We have only three districts and we can get on with five parties for 1919-20. As I stated at the previous discussion, in Vizagapatam there are only three taluks. So far as the Nilgiris is concerned, one special officer will serve the purpose. In order to reduce the expenditure, my first suggestion is we must not be merely satisfied by receiving advice from those who are working ; we must also consult others. They must not be the sole arbiters to decide the question whether the whole expenditure is necessary or whether the same establishment should be continued. Naturally every department wants facilities to get on with its work more easily and wants more clerks and more persons to be employed. We see that it was stated in the year 1914-15 that 2,000 villages could be managed by five settlement parties. When we have only 429 villages in the year 1919-20, ought we not to be satisfied with the same five survey parties, instead of expending a larger amount on additional parties ? I do not propose to mention here the point which was urged last time, but I expect the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew would give us additional information as to how long this would continue and whether this would continue for subsequent years. What the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew stated last time was that after 1920 there cannot be possibly any resettlement. Therefore, I wish to know whether this would be discontinued afterwards. As it was stated last time that the survey party would be disbanded, I want to know whether this would be continued for the year 1920 or whether it will be continued

(Mr. Venkatapati Raju; Sir Alexander Cardew; [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.
the President; Mr. Sadasiva Bhat.]

for subsequent years also. Therefore I suggest that every possible precaution may be taken for reducing the expenditure and therefore I move for the reduction of one lakh under survey and settlement out of the temporary establishment."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"Your Excellency, the Honourable Member has not told us exactly from which item the amount should be taken off, whether from survey or settlement."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Settlement."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"I thought the Honourable Member was referring to five survey parties and six survey parties."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I meant settlement parties."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"I did not therefore quite grasp what the Honourable Member was aiming at, because most of his remarks were with reference to survey parties, and the remarks I made with reference to the prospect of reducing the number of parties at some future date. As regards the settlement, the position, so far as I understand it, is this: A certain proportion of the establishment in the party is temporary. In each party a certain proportion is temporary. Practically the result of taking away one lakh from the settlement temporary establishment would be that you would have to reduce the number of parties. If we are going to reduce the temporary establishment, we should reduce the number of parties. We come back to the question whether or not it is possible to reduce the settlement parties. This seems to be an indirect means of reducing the number of settlement parties. These parties have been employed with reference to the dates when resettlement becomes due. There are resettlements which fall due at fixed dates, and there are several resettlements which fall due either next year or shortly after that. In order to carry on the resettlement operations, parties are necessary for the charge of these resettlements. Unless the Honourable Member proposes to abandon the policy of resettlement and to extend the settlement period or something of that sort, it is necessary to have parties to carry on the resettlement operations. I am afraid that this proposal which is an indirect means of reducing the settlement work cannot be accepted, because it would cripple one or other of the parties. I do not know whether I can go very much further than this. The temporary establishment provided in the budget for 1919-20 is as follows: Rs. 21,000 in Tanjore, Rs. 67,000 in South Arcot, Rs. 4,000 in Bellary, Rs. 62,000 for Madura, Rs. 18,000 for Vizagapatam and Rs. 9,000 for Wynad. The Madura settlement is nearly finished; it has been introduced. South Arcot is nearly finished and is being introduced. The Bellary settlement is in its initial stages; the Vizagapatam settlement is similarly in its initial stages. The Tanjore settlement will not come on till 1922. I am not quite certain of the exact area in which these parties are engaged, some in completing the settlements that have been already carried on, such as South Arcot and Madura, or preparing for resettlements, as in Bellary, Vizagapatam and Tanjore, which are in immediate prospect. It will be impossible to reduce any one of these parties. It is also impossible to reduce the temporary establishment in these parties unless you create a permanent establishment to take their place. That explains I hope why the Honourable Member's proposal cannot be accepted."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Does the Honourable Gentleman wish to have votes taken?"

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Even after hearing the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew, I am not able to understand why the proposal for reducing the expenditure contained in the Government Order of September 1918 was not adhered to, because they stated there that the further reduction of the cost was engaging the attention of the Government. Why was the expenditure increased instead of being reduced? I expected the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew to explain how, when they were aware in September 1918 of the reduction of expenditure for that year and of the possibility of further reduction in the next year, there should be an increase in the expenditure instead of a reduction."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"May I put the motion to the Council?"

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I do not press the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE ADDITIONAL PROVISION UNDER 3-C. LAND RECORDS FOR PAYMENT OF WAR ALLOWANCES TO KARNAMS, VETTIS AND UGRANIS.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"I beg to move—

'III. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a provision of Rs. 1,00,000 be made under 3-C. LAND RECORDS for the payment of war allowances to karnams, vettis and ugranis and that a corresponding reduction be made under 45-B.'

"In commending this resolution for the acceptance of this Council, it is not necessary for me to refer at any length to the conditions which persuaded the Government to grant temporary allowances to their lower paid subordinates to meet the existing high prices of all necessities.

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Sadasiva Bhat; Sir Alexander Cardew; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

It is enough to say that the grant has been widely appreciated, and it will, to a fair extent, relieve the difficulties of many poor Government servants. These allowances were originally made to all public servants with the exception of the village service establishments and members of the executive police staff. The explanatory memorandum to the Draft Financial Statement supplied to the Honourable Members says: 'It was later on found necessary to afford a more substantial measure of relief to subordinates whose salaries did not exceed Rs. 20 and the Government were pleased to enhance the rate of allowances and to sanction a revised scale with effect from 1st January 1919. The scope of the scheme has also been extended to members of the executive police staff including police talaiyaris who were hitherto excluded.' The point which I wish to urge on the Government and on the Council is that, as will be seen, the only class excluded now from the benefit of this scheme are the village establishments and there is no good or valid reason to exclude them. It will be seen that a large majority of these karnams draw only Rs. 8 a month. A karnam's work has increased considerably in recent years and the nature of the work requires a man with a fairly high qualification. He is expected to keep all the village accounts, survey and prepare sketches of plots and inquire and report on all revenue matters, besides having to attend on every revenue and land records officer of the district. Considering the class of work to be done, I do not think there is any class of public servants so underpaid and so overworked as the karnam of the village. He prepares the records and the statistics on which all the decisions of the District officers and the Government are based. He is frequently summoned to taluk headquarters and detained for days where he has to pay four to five annas a meal at the hotel. The village karnam is the only public servant who has to deal directly with the poorer ryots and cultivators in their every day concerns, and is thus capable of doing a lot of mischief if he chooses to do so. It is only right and reasonable that he should be given a fair living wage. As it is, he has no increments in his pay and no hope of bettering his pay and prospects. No wonder that under the circumstances, several of these men are forced to be creating faction, taking sides, preparing incorrect records and trying to augment their income by improper means at the expense of the ryots of the village. The result is that their work has to be most closely scrutinized thus adding to the routine work and anxiety of the higher officers.

The other class of public officers who should not be excluded are the vettis and ugranis. Most of them are drawing a pay of Rs. 4 per mensem. These also are often called away from their villages to supplement the taluk office staff. I do not wish to take up the time of the Council by a statement of the grievances of this class, but shall content myself by representing that their grievances are the grievances of the poor ryots. These public servants have to live, and they are compelled to live, on the people. It is not a desirable state of things. They are paid less than the ordinary unskilled labourer who earns his wages in the villages and I feel no doubt in my mind that the lot of the class of public servants referred to in the resolution should be improved in the public interests as they are more deserving of consideration than several other classes now admitted to the allowance. After all, the allowances I ask for are temporary and I can conceive of no reason why these poor subordinates should be excluded from the scope of this benefit. I therefore hope that the Government will accept the resolution."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"Your Excellency, the question as regards village servants was considered as long ago as 1908 and it was then decided that compensation for dearth of food should not be given to village servants, because they stood in a different position from that of other officers of Government. In the first place, they have, many of them, lands of their own, not perhaps all, but many of them have lands. And so far as they have lands, and are able to raise their food supplies, they do not suffer from a rise in the price of grain, rather they gain by it. They are not in fact whole-time servants entirely limited to their salary. They have other sources of income, and on that account it was that the Government have adhered to the position that they should not be included in the scope of this concession. We all know that the pay of these servants is low and that it has not been increased on account of the great rise in prices, and we recognize a certain amount of hardship which is involved in their case. But I will ask the Council whether they would be prepared to face the expenditure which would be involved in such a proposal as to give them a war allowance. I will tell the Council that even to give them Rs. 3-8-0 each per annum would cost Rs. 50 lakhs, which would swallow all possible progress in all other directions. Rupees 50 lakhs of recurring expenditure would stop all our progress. Much as we should like to give them more, I am afraid we cannot afford it. The Presidency cannot afford more. This lakh of rupees which the Honourable Member has asked for in the resolution would give them nothing more than 4 annas each. In these circumstances, I cannot recommend the acceptance of this resolution, much as I should like to see something done."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the subject is one of very great importance. I quite realize the financial difficulty facing us in solving this problem; but at the same time to keep these people on this low pay is an enormous mistake. It tempts them to all sorts of corruption. It is quite true that the village munsifs have got lands, but speaking from my experience of the southern districts, I do not think the karnams as such own lands; I think most of them do not own lands. As regards the vettis and other petty labourers, they also have not lands from which they can be said to get grain. Therefore that argument that these people own lands may apply to village munsifs, but not to karnams, vettis and other petty establishment. The argument suggested by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew, namely, that they have their own lands and get their own grain, would not apply to the case of cloth, which again is a necessity to the poor people. The value of cloth has gone up by leaps and bounds and therefore looking at it from that point of view, they are in need of relief.

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao ; [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Sir Alexander Cardew ; Mr. Siva Rao.)

"As regards the illicit gratification that they receive, it is a well-known fact. All experienced revenue officers know the emoluments which the karnams and the village munsifs get from the mirasidars and land-owners. A time must come for the Government to put a stop to it. Now, if I may say so, they are conniving at it. It is a well-known fact. Of course the revenue officers are not able to take steps to put this down with a high hand; they wink at it, because their pay is low. If we increase their pay, there will be more honest work and there will be less of fleecing the poor ryots.

"Again, as regards the contention that they are not full-time labourers, I think it is again a mistake, having regard to the numerous duties which they have to perform. They have work not only in connexion with the collection of land revenue, but they have to attend on officers who tour through these parts almost every day; the officers of the salt department, the forest department, the police department, the revenue department, the medical department, of every department, who have to tour through these parts have to indent upon this establishment and their time is well taken up with Government work. It is not correct to suppose that they are not full-time servants. I do not think they have time to attend to their own private affairs, if they do their work properly. I therefore think a good case is made out and the Government will have to examine this problem with greater care and show more sympathetic consideration towards these petty village officers."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew in his closing remarks informed this Council that something might be done to improve the lot of village officers, though he did not give any indication as to the direction or manner in which it might be done."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"I expressed simply a pious wish or hope."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"If it is only a wish, I hope that he will not be merely satisfied with the expression of a wish but will do something substantial. I have been trying to find out whether a reasonable increase of their emoluments would involve an expenditure of so much as Rs. 50 lakhs, which he has suggested to this Council as the possible amount which will have to be provided. I would request the Council to draw a distinction between the case of karnams and the case of vettis and ugranis which has been placed before this Council; because if we consider the case of all these officers together and if we consider the old history of their service and the possibility of their getting emoluments, it is likely that by this combination, all of them will be prejudiced. It is therefore better that we take account of the village menials like the vettis apart from the karnams themselves. It cannot be denied for a moment that when it is possible to make adequate provision for all other Government servants in the matter of this war allowance, some further progress can be effected in the matter of affording reasonable additional remuneration to these officers. In the Financial Statement presented to-day it has been possible to insert a provision of Rs. 13½ lakhs under the head 'police' for additional provision for enhancing the war allowance. May I ask if in the case of village officers, the same provision cannot be made; I would not confine myself to the question of one lakh which has been suggested. I am sure that the Hon'ble Mr. Sadasiva Bhat wanted to place before this Council the grievances of these village officers and wanted to point out the imperative necessity of making some provision to give them some war allowance, as in the case of other officers, not that he himself thought that one lakh is quite sufficient to do justice to all these village servants. So far as the vettis are concerned, they are about 30,000 and odd. Most of them get about Rs. 4 per mensem and in the case of persons who have been for generations getting Rs. 4 or even less, an additional remuneration of one rupee or a rupee and a half would be considered substantial. If their pay is increased by one rupee, it would come to about three or four lakhs so far as they are concerned. In the case of karnams, a different scale of war allowance to village servants as it has been possible to make in the case of police officers. I believe something will be done to improve their condition."

"The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew looks at this question, I have no doubt, from the same standpoint as every one of us. He also feels that the lot of these village servants is very miserable. When he did not find it possible to make a provision, he could only express a pious hope that their lot should be improved. But in this year when we have taken permission to utilize a surplus of Rs. 70 lakhs, the question is whether it is not possible to do something to relieve their misery. From the discussion in the last few years it is clear that over and over again their grievances were brought to notice, but that owing to the huge expenditure involved the Government were not able to do anything for them. Sometimes we felt the force of their objections and found ourselves unable to press this matter. But now, we can make an attempt to do something, the war being over, and the circumstances being favourable."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I strongly sympathize with the Honourable Mover of this resolution. I have been trying for a long time to do something to ameliorate the condition of these village officers. More than once, I tried to bring up resolutions in regard to the increase of their salary and about the grant of batta and travelling allowance to them; but in those days when there were war conditions, there was a stringency of finance, and I felt myself that in those circumstances, I should not press the resolution. But now at least when the stringency of the war finance is no more, the unfortunate lot of these village officers especially the vettis, the nirgantis and the talaiyaris, may be favourably considered. It is undoubted that they are overworked and it is also undoubted that they fulfil a most responsible office.

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Siva Rao ; Mr. Rama Ayyangar.)

"The grounds urged against the grant of batta and travelling allowance, against all allowances of that kind, and against an increment in the salary do not hold good. One ground is they are not whole-time servants and the other ground is that they hold lands. As pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar, the vettis and the talaiyaris and most of the karnams do not own any lands. As the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew mentioned, the only difficulty is one of finance, how to find the money to satisfy the needs of these numerous village officers. Some solution must be found and something done to provide for the grant of an allowance to the vettis, the nirgantis and the revenue talaiyaris. I do not know why the Honourable Member has not included the revenue talaiyaris while he has included police talaiyaris. There are two classes of talaiyaris, the police talaiyaris and the revenue talaiyaris. The revenue talaiyaris deserve commiseration at the hands of Government. If the Government are not prepared to extend this benefit to the karnams and headmen, it may be extended to the vettis, the talaiyaris and the nirgantis at least."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"Your Excellency, I think there has been a little want of accuracy in the matter of the statements that have been made in connexion with this proposition. The proposition requires that one lakh of rupees be provided for payment of war allowance to karnams, vettis, etc. Practically it is not raising the other question of a permanent increase of salary. Again the question of Rs. 50 lakhs suggested. I am not able to follow either. The police talaiyaris as per the memorandum at page 15 of the Financial Statement have been brought under this head and are to be granted this allowance. Their number and the amount appears at page 107 of the Civil Budget Estimate which shows that about 35,000 servants of that class will be remunerated as per the proposals already made, and the Rs. 37 lakhs already provided include the payment to these talaiyaris. But a distinction is made, the servants coming under the three pages 39, 42 and 43 of the Civil Budget Estimate, drawing lower pay are sought to be excluded. We find on page 39 karnams, assistant karnams and village accountants, all coming to about 22,000 people. On page 42, we find village munsifs, triune officers and monigars and vettis, together making up about 48,000 people. On page 43 also we have got similar other people and their number comes in all to about 12,000. I find that the total number of these servants that will have to be helped like this will come to about 84,000. We have already made a provision for about 35,000 of these people and we are keeping out the 80,000 or 85,000 people that I refer to. I say if these people are brought under this list, we will not have to make any extraordinary allowance. Even if it is to be Rs. 2, the expenditure will be only about Rs. 1½ lakhs per mensem. What we have been doing is, we have been adding to our balances up till now in the hope that when times permit, they might be utilized for the purposes which we have been fighting for; but owing to the peculiarity of our Province, about Rs. 35 lakhs or Rs. 40 lakhs out of the Rs. 201 lakhs is to be drawn now towards the payment of war allowances. Nobody grudges it, because everybody feels that these low-paid poor people deserve help, and the Government have felt that the police talaiyaris come under that class of poor people who have to be helped. We know who these talaiyaris are. They are the relations of the vettis. We find the police side is opposed to the revenue side. We find 84,000 of these people. You will find that in every village there are a few people who work under the police that get the extra remuneration of war allowance, while the rest of the poor people will be left without a similar allowance. My Lord, it looks strange. It is not a matter of giving permanent help. It is a question of giving war allowance. I do not think it would look very proper for the Government to help one set of officers working under the same category while the other set of officers is left without help. We all know what is the rise in prices, and all of us absolutely agree with the Government in giving this allowance to the poor people. I do not see why this class of people should be kept out of this war allowance. The Hon'ble Mr. Sadasiva Bhat has not exactly calculated the amount and therefore put it as one lakh. That would give one rupee each to the 85,000 people I refer to. The remaining 34,000 people are already paid as per the proceedings of the Government. It would not be proper to give less to these people than what is given to the talaiyaris who are working under the police officers. It would be very proper to give these people as much as is given to these talaiyaris and it would work out to about 3½ lakhs, if we give them Rs. 2, Rs. 3 and Rs. 4 per annum. If 37 lakhs can with the consent of the Council and the Government be drawn for the purpose of paying war allowance only to a very small percentage, say .001 of the population of this Presidency or even less there is no reason why the rate-payers' money to the extent of Rs. 3½ lakhs should not be drawn for the purpose of helping a similar class of officers. It cannot be contended that all karnams own lands. For the matter of that, it may be contended that people drawing Rs. 35 and Rs. 50 in various departments of Government own lot of property. I have no doubt that very many sons of rich people are working in the Revenue Department drawing less than Rs. 50. The argument that the village headmen and karnams ought not to be given any allowance on the ground that they own land would not apply, because the war allowance in the case of clerks in the various departments applies to all people rich or poor. If you only take statistics amongst people who draw Rs. 20 to Rs. 50 more than half the people would own a large amount of landed property and would be getting a war allowance. That is not the criterion.

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Davidson; Sir Alexander Cardew; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.]

Therefore, my Lord, it would not be consistent or proper to make a distinction, and draw differences when it is a question of one set of officers as opposed to another, especially when the Government find it necessary to extend this benefit to village talaiyaris. Really the Government will not be committing themselves to much expenditure by helping these people. They will be absolutely free from blame; otherwise they will be considered unjust. We have already another Bill for consideration in respect of the hereditary rights of village officers. In these circumstances, my Lord, it would not be proper that the war allowance should not be allowed to them. They are working very hard in maintaining correct accounts of the Revenue Department. I request the Government will see their way to make a provision for these people also."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency I find no provision made forwar allowance for police talaiyaris. I would like to know where the Honourable Member finds that."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON:—"It is on page 5 of the Financial Statement."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"The resolution relates to Rs. 1 lakh, for payment of war allowance to karnams, vettis, ugranis and not to monigars or headmen or village munisifs. Opinions have been expressed by several Honourable Members who are in favour of limiting it to village servants, the talaiyaris, the vettis and so on. Of course, these village servants are not prohibited from having employment under others; they are not prohibited, at the time of cultivation from adding to their income by doing work under any other employer. But the Government quite recognize that the rise in prices must necessarily put considerable pressure on those who have not got land and who have not got time to carry on other occupations. We know that in some parts of the Presidency, Kurnool and Kistna, there has been considerable difficulty with the village servants. We have had in some cases to increase their pay. Conditions vary all over the Presidency and the pressure is greater in some places than in others. The question which the Council has to put before themselves is: is this so urgent a matter that they are prepared to curtail the expenditure in other directions? I submit these figures with some hesitation, because they have been hastily compiled. As far as I can see, there are 68,000 village servants; and to give them Re. 1 per mensem each would cost something over Rs. 8 lakhs. Surely the bill is very large indeed. To give Rs. 3-8-0 per mensem which is the maximum which has been given to anybody, would cost Rs. 30 lakhs. If the Honourable Member wants to do it, let him raise the amount mentioned in the resolution and let him suggest that Rs. 30 lakhs should be struck off from some other head. There is no use in moving for one lakh. I do not think it is a very practical suggestion. I do not see how we can find in the coming or current year Rs. 8 lakhs much as we should like to do it. The only suggestion I may throw out is that we might ask the Board of Revenue whether they can, by taking some special action, in regard to the darkhast rules, assist village servants to obtain lands under those rules. I do not say it will go very far, but it seems the only resource unless the Council want to take Rs. 8 lakhs from some other head. We cannot take it from the balances. We have already got permission to take Rs. 73 lakhs from that source. This will have to be cut off from some other head. But I cannot recommend this somewhat radical step. The only thing I can recommend is, it is really a case deserving sympathy and we shall find some means to meet urgent cases. I am quite ready to ask the Board; I do not know if it will lead to much. Otherwise, the resolution is useless. In other words I am afraid that for the present we must try to go on as we are. It is really a question of market price. The State get the people to accept the employment. I am ready to make a reference to the Board of Revenue if the Honourable Member is prepared to accept that as a small instalment. We shall consult the Board on the whole subject."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"May I say a word? The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew has suggested that there may be difficulties in adjusting the budget with reference to the Rs. 8 lakhs which will be the cost if we give Re. 1 per mensem to each of these low-paid servants. Perhaps it may be possible to deal with this subject from the item of Rs. 11 lakhs for unforeseen contingencies under 32. Miscellaneous. Therefore there is a reserve in the hands of the Government which if it is not used for any other purpose may be diverted to this purpose. There seem to be two or three resolutions which suggest a curtailment of the expenditure. One of them is with reference to the Royapetta hospital. If that resolution is accepted, or if the taking over of it is put off for a year—I do not think it is mature for Alexander Cardew suggested assignments of land. We are really working backwards. We began with the enfranchisement of the village service inams and we are going back to some extent to adopt the principle of giving back the lands."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW (interrupting):—"Not as inams."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"At any rate, to secure to them the advantage of having a piece of land which they can cultivate. This question of giving them some allowance is one which deserves the sympathetic consideration of the Government. I trust it will be possible to find the necessary money. I do not know whether the war allowances fall entirely on the Provincial Government. If it is so, it is better to undertake a revision of the salary of the village servants. For ten years the subject has been coming up with regard to one class of village servants after another, and the amount required is now 50 lakhs because the subject has been put off far too long. Let us take one class of village servants after another slowly; let us provide for the talaiyaris, the nirgantis, and then the karnams, monigars and village headmen. Anyway we recognize the difficulty of finding money. When so many public servants get some kind of help in these critical times, it is not right that these people should be forgotten."

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar; the President; Mr. Sadasiva Bhat; Sir Alexander Cardew; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Davidson.)

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I quite sympathize with the object of the resolution, and I am sorry that the Government have been unable to take any practical steps in the direction of improving the condition of these people. I should think, as the Hon'ble Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao has put it, that the suggestion of the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew for the assignment of land is really a step backward, and I wish to sound a note of warning that such a step should not be taken in the best interests of the public at large."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"There does not seem to be much difference between the views of Honourable Members and of the Government. It is not practicable without consideration to take so large a sum as Rs. 8 lakhs here and now distribute it among any class. It is not that we are opposed to the method of distributing the money which comes from that to people who are just as poor as those whom we wish to help. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew has proposed, on behalf of the Government, to the Honourable Member who moved this resolution, having in view the very varied conditions of the Presidency and of the different districts—I do not think any of us is familiar with all the conditions in each district in this Presidency—the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew has offered, on behalf of the Government, that the Board of Revenue would be asked to consider the whole matter. I think myself that it is a very genuine effort to meet the Honourable Gentleman. I can assure him that the Government are not less moved by a sense of sympathy with the difficulties of these people than himself. I really think that he might agree to that offer made by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew. It will certainly advance the matter and it will enable the Government to have a clear view of the matter. I would suggest that it is a good method of meeting the difficulty."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"I wish to suggest that possibly when all the resolutions are disposed of, we would be in a position to see whether the Government can save about Rs. 8 lakhs for the purpose of giving some special allowance, whether it is one rupee or two rupees to vettis and village menial servants. I do not press the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

1. Refunds and Drawbacks.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"I introduce 'Refunds and Drawbacks'. I do not think it requires any remarks."

6. Stamps, V. & 7. Excise, 10. Income-tax.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg to introduce the heads, 'Stamps, Excise and Income-tax'."

IX. & 11. Forests.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON:—"I beg to introduce the head 'Forests.' In introducing that head, I have to make replies to one or two inquiries for information. The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao Pantulu has asked for particulars of the provision made in the budget for the improvement of the water-supply in reserved forests. I have ascertained from the Board of Revenue, which gets copies of the detailed district budgets, that a specific provision to an aggregate amount of Rs. 10,500 has been made for 15 out of 30 odd forest districts. There are no details given in the budgets of the other districts; the Board presumes—I have no doubt, rightly—that the provision for that purpose is included under the general head 'other works.' The Board roughly estimates that there may be a provision of Rs. 20,000 in all, but that is only a guess."

"The Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar comments on the fall in the net surplus and states that this requires full explanation. The best explanation I can give of the large fall in the anticipated surplus is to refer to the published Forest Administration Reports for the two years ending 30th June 1916 and 30th June 1917. They do not cover exactly the same period as the statement in the budget, but they correspond roughly to it. These reports which have been laid on the Editors' Table explain the successive increase in these two years of Rs. 6.64 lakhs and Rs. 6.37 lakhs, or Rs. 13.01 lakhs in all under the head of 'surplus.' Those two years were abnormal. I propose to read from the relevant paragraphs of the Board's summary, which is contained in paragraph 32 of its Proceedings printed in the Government Order of the 10th January 1918 which was laid on the Editors' Table. Referring to the financial results of the year that paragraph says:—

"The gross revenue was Rs. 47.79 lakhs and the expenditure Rs. 27.84 lakhs, leaving a net surplus of 19.95 lakhs, the highest yet on record. This surplus was distributed over all the circles and was higher than that of the previous year by Rs. 6.64 lakhs. This result is partly due to rigid economy and the postponement of necessary expenditure owing to the war and also to an increase in the revenue from sandalwood, to the leases of Cassia auriculata and Cassia fistula which had not been sold for five years and also to the sale of reserved forests which had been given up. The expenditure on "A. Conservancy and works" increased from Rs. 10.98 lakhs to Rs. 11.89 lakhs and that on "B. Establishments" by Rs. .85 lakhs. As soon as favourable conditions return, a much larger expenditure will be necessary under both these heads.

(Mr. Davidson ; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.) [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"That is the explanation of the abnormal surplus in 1916-17. The following passage taken from the report of the next year which was laid on the Editors' Table a few weeks ago with a Government Order dated the 31st December 1918 explains the large surplus in that year; paragraph 22 of the Board's summary says:—

"The financial results of the year are noteworthy. The gross revenue realized during the year amounted to Rs. 54.16 lakhs, an increase of Rs. 6.37 lakhs over last year. This increase was chiefly due to the high prices of sandal, the sale of teak from the Nilambur plantations, the manufacture of hay for the army, the sale of forests no longer considered worth preserving in the South Arcot and Trichinopoly districts, and the high prices realized for tanning barks.

"The expenditure under "A. Conservancy and Works" increased from Rs. 11.89 lakhs to Rs. 13.34 lakhs and that under "B. Establishment" rose by Rs. 10.361 and the total expenditure under both the heads amounted to Rs. 29.20 lakhs. The net surplus amounted to Rs. 24.97 lakhs, compared with Rs. 19.95 lakhs of the last year. This surplus is the highest yet recorded but represents an unhealthy state of things, as all but the most urgently necessary expenditure was postponed. A good many officers are absent on military duty, and thus the efficiency of the department and the development of the forests has been retarded. This is an inevitable result of the war. Receipts have also been abnormally high, owing to the sale of forests and the great rise in the value of sandalwood and other produce. After the war, an increase in expenditure and a temporary decrease in revenue must be anticipated as a considerable capital outlay will be necessary to develop the forests."

"I need only add that the surplus in the budget for 1919-20 of Rs. 12.11 lakhs is in excess of the average of the five years ending with 1915-16 by Rs. 1.14 lakhs, notwithstanding the substantial additional expenditure explained in paragraphs 25 to 27 of the Amended Draft Financial Statement, which includes special items of outlay on deferred but necessary development (to the amount of 2.96 lakhs as detailed in paragraph 25), on the salaries of officers returning from military service and on war allowances, as also a provision of 1.25 lakhs for the partial reorganization of the controlling staff and subordinate establishments in accordance with sanctioned schemes; the introduction of the scheme in one case has been hitherto deferred owing to financial stringency; the other scheme we have definitely put before the higher authorities, and we hope it will be found possible to introduce it during the coming year. That completes all I have to say."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, I should like to make an inquiry. The budget under forests provides for the pay of the Chief Conservator for nine months in the coming year. I should like to know whether it is proposed to reduce the number of members of the Board from 4 to 3—because I find on page 71, provision is made in the coming year for the continuance of all the members of the Board of Revenue— or whether it is proposed to employ a Chief Conservator in addition to the Forest Member of the Board."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON:—"That is a question in regard to which a final decision has not been arrived at."

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR IMPROVING THE WATER-SUPPLY IN RESERVED FORESTS.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO then moved the following resolution:—

"IV. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 50,000 be provided in the budget estimate for 1919-20 under XI for the improvement of the water-supplies in reserved forests and that a corresponding reduction be made under 45. CIVIL WORKS—Civil Buildings."

In doing so, he said:—"Your Excellency, the resolution standing in my name refers to the question of water-supply in reserved forests. In regard to this matter, I moved a resolution in this Council in 1914 and I quoted at length the report of the Forest Committee which recommended greater expenditure on the conservation of water-supply in reserved forests. It was pointed out by that Committee:—

"At the time when most of the present grazing areas were reserved, it was definitely laid down that one of the chief reasons for levying of fees was the necessity for improving as well as for protecting the grazing grounds. But as far as the Committee has been able to discover for the last twenty years practically nothing has been done in the way of improving them. The Committee would therefore strongly recommend that a considerable sum should be spent annually on the extension of grazing facilities and the improvement of village grazing grounds, especially in the way of improving water-supplies."

"This was in 1914. Since then, I brought this subject up again to the notice of the Government by way of interpellation and resolution, and it was stated to me last year, some 5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Davidson ;

Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar ; Mr. Suryanarayana Rao ;
Mr. Marjoribanks.)

time at the end of last year, that a sum of Rs. 3,000 was spent on the improvement of water-supplies from 1914. From the statement made by the Hon'ble Mr. Davidson today I am very glad to note that during the coming year Rs. 20,000 is proposed to be spent for the improvement of water-supplies. The object of this resolution is to provide for continuous attention to the improvement of water-supply which is absolutely necessary in the interests of the numerous cattle owners who send their cattle for grazing. When I suggested that Rs. 50,000 must be provided for, I had no definite idea that in the coming year, some amount of expenditure was to be incurred for the purpose I had in view. I trust that the Board of Revenue and the Government will be able to increase the amount and provide as much as possible for the improvement of the water-supply in forests. I do not wish to press the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON:—"I understand the resolution is withdrawn. I need only say that in the final paragraph of the Forest Administration Report to which I referred particular attention was drawn to the debate in November in connexion with the resolution moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar on this subject."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE REDUCTION OF EXPENDITURE UNDER 11. FOREST.

The next resolution which stood in the name of the Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar was as follows:—

"V. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the estimate of expenditure under 11. FOREST be reduced by 1.25 lakhs which represents the additions proposed in paragraph 27 of the Financial Statement."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"Having heard the Hon'ble Mr. Davidson I do not propose to move this resolution."

The resolution was not moved.

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR OPENING A FOREST SCHOOL IN THE AGENCY TRACTS.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO:—"Your Excellency, the resolution that I have to move runs as follows:—

"VI. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 25,000 be added under IX. FOREST to open a Forest school in the Agency tracts and a corresponding reduction be made under 45-B. CIVIL WORKS."

"I confess this resolution is not very happily worded. I do not mean that a forest school should be opened in the Agency tracts. I would have it 'for the Agency tracts', or 'in the vicinity of Agency tracts.' I am not very particular with regard to the locality; but I am particular that a forest school should be opened somewhere in the Northern Circars. I see from page 60 of the Civil Budget Estimate that a provision has been made for stipends for rangers and deputy rangers deputed to the Forest Training College and also provision for a vernacular training school. I would suggest that this school may be opened somewhere in the Northern Circars somewhere in Koraput or somewhere in the Ganjam district which possesses a lot of forests. It would be very difficult for men who live in these parts to go all the way to Coimbatore to learn the elementary principles. I do not say that a College should be opened all at once; but a school might be opened now so that men might be trained as foresters, forest guards and forest rangers. And for this, I think that these persons need not go all the way to the Coimbatore college. If we have educated subordinates, certainly the forests would improve and as it is a productive agency, in course of time, we will realize considerable income. I have no doubt that what is spent on this school will be recovered in the shape of return from forests. I therefore commend this resolution for the consideration of Government and the department to provide, if not Rs. 25,000, at least Rs. 8,000, for a training school in the Northern Circars."

The Hon'ble Mr. N. E. MARJORIBANKS:—"Your Excellency, the Honourable Member's suggestion is to have a school, as I understand it, for the training of foresters and forest guards somewhere in the Circars. As a matter of fact, there is a school held every year in the northern circle. Up to the year before last it was held in Kurnool; last year, it was held in Ganjam and in the current year also it is proposed to hold it in Ganjam. This school is for the training of foresters and forest guards and lasts for six months and so far as the Board is aware, so far as we have been able to ascertain from the Conservator, there has been no case of any application which has been received and has been refused. So in the circumstances, I do not quite understand what is the want that the Honourable Member wishes to fill."

(Mr. Suryanarayana Rao; Mr. Marjoribanks; the President; [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar.]

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I would include rangers also in addition to foresters and forest guards. I would like to have permanent schools instead of an itinerant school, one at Ganjam, one at Vizagapatam and one at Kurnool."

The Hon'ble Mr. N. E. MARJORIBANKS:—"As regards the suggestion to include rangers, I would suggest that the course of training for rangers is of a very much more advanced description than that required for foresters and forest guards. We could not undertake to give the training required by an officer of a ranger's position except at a college. A school would be quite inappropriate for the training of a ranger."

"As regards the alternative suggestion made to multiply vernacular schools, it is really a matter of demand. We find that one school is quite sufficient and it would be waste of time of the instructors and of money to have schools in several districts in the same circle. In the year before last, there were no candidates at all, so that one school is quite sufficient to serve the existing demands. I may say that it will cost only about Rs. 2,500."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Does the Honourable Gentleman wish to press the resolution?"

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO:—"I do not press the resolution. I hope that the Government would be pleased to do something for the Agency tracts."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

X. & 12. Registration.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I introduce the head 'Registration'."

RESOLUTION RE ADDITIONAL PROVISION FOR THE REVISION OF PAY OF SUB-REGISTRARS.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg to move resolution No. VII. It runs as follows:—"

'VII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a provision of Rs. 22,800 be added under 12-B. Registration—District Charges—for revision of pay of Sub-Registrars in the first three grades and that the same amount be deducted from 32. Miscellaneous—Miscellaneous and unforeseen charges—Reserve provision at the disposal of Government—5 lakhs.'

"I now find that the figure, Rs. 5 lakhs, has been raised to 9 lakhs. I find from the Civil Budget Estimate that the number of sub-registrars in the first grade is 24, in the second 36 and in the third 115. There is a large number in the third grade and a correspondingly smaller number in the first two grades; and the result is that many sub-registrars are unable to rise to the first or the second grade. They either die or retire. I therefore propose that the total number of appointments, 175, be re-distributed thus: first grade 53, second grade 60, and I ask this Council to add this amount under Registration and take that figure from the Government."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I quite admit that we have to re-organize the cadre of sub-registrars. But the reason why I object to committing the Council just now to these details proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar is this: In connexion with the Public Services Commission's recommendation, we had a communication from the Government of India, dealing mainly with district registrars. We have answered that reference and we have proposed a substantial improvement in the position, prospects, salaries, etc., of the district registrars. That has gone up to the Government of India and, under the rules, we have to wait for a period of three months before we bring it into operation. A scheme about sub-registrars has also come up from the Inspector-General, and it is lying over for the other thing to be disposed of, because it is more convenient; because the maximum pay of the sub-registrar has to be fixed with reference to the minimum pay of the district registrar. The Public Services Commission recommended a minimum of Rs. 200 but we have put it at a somewhat higher figure. We have to re-organize our sub-registrars after knowing how the district registrars will stand. I may assure the Honourable Member that no avoidable delay will take place in the matter. As soon as the other thing is a revision which will be beneficial to the officers that are concerned, I hope to effect it, if brought into operation in the next official year, cannot be much and the money needed for re-appropriation; but the full scheme will come into operation only the year after that."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I accept the assurance. As the matter is under consideration, and will not be lost sight of, I withdraw the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Sir Alexander Cardew; Mr. Davidson;
Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

XII. & 13. Interest.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"I introduce the head 'Interest'. Neither the revenue nor the expenditure is open to discussion. Nothing is to be said about it."

18. General Administration.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"I also introduce the head 'General Administration'. On that, there is an inquiry by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar regarding the provision made on page 68 for an Additional Secretary, an Under Secretary and a Deputy Collector. As regards the work these officers have to do, I would first draw the Honourable Member's attention to the press communiqué which was issued last June. That communiqué stated that they would be employed on work connected with the war principally, and the main subjects connected with war were Recruitment and Publicity Board, Indian Defence Force Board, Military Transport, trading with the enemy and by hostile foreigners and ship-building. In addition to these matters, which were directly concerned with the war, the new department also dealt and still deals with the question of priority certificates and civil supplies and matters concerning the economic condition of the Presidency, prices, wages, trade, mining and industry. Since the armistice and the cessation of recruitment, the Revenue (Special) Department has taken over certain additional subjects connected with the industrial development of the Presidency, namely, Agriculture, Co-operation and Fisheries. It also deals with forests as has been mentioned in paragraph 36 of the Amended Draft Financial Statement. It is stated there that it has not been possible to abolish this Secretariat, because there is still much work to be done connected with demobilization, winding up of enemy concerns and so on. Meanwhile, the question of converting it into a development Secretariat dealing with the branches of administration concerned with the development of Industries, Agriculture, Fisheries, Forests and other resources of the Presidency is under consideration, and no definite decision has been arrived at. The provision is made in case it is decided to maintain it."

19-A. Law and Justice—Courts of Law.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON:—"I introduce the head '19-A. Law and Justice—Courts of Law'. There are one or two inquiries to be answered. The first is from the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar who asks with reference to the lump provision of Rs. 82,000 appearing at the foot of page 77 of the Civil Budget Estimate. He asks what is the number of Courts of Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs to be made permanent, what is the regrading proposed, and when this will be effected. The answer is that this matter is still under correspondence with the higher authorities. All I can say is that the Local Government have proposed to make permanent 25 of the temporary courts now existing, namely, 11 sub-courts and 14 district munsifs' courts. With regard to the question of regrading the proposed distribution is—"

Sub-Judges--			District Munsifs--
First grade	6		First grade	34
Second grade	8		Second grade	36
Third grade	15		Third grade	36
			Fourth grade	33

Whether these additions and scheme of regrading will be sanctioned by the higher authorities, I cannot say. Until that sanction is received no change can be effected."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I had some figures like these, and the amount comes up to Rs. 40,000; but this provision will give Rs. 80,000."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON:—"I do not know how the Honourable Gentleman's figure was arrived at. But Rs. 82,000 is the actual result."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"Does it include establishment?"

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON:—"The sum of Rs. 82,000 was arrived at after a detailed examination by the Finance Department. This was the outcome of the detailed examination of the proposals in the event of the scheme being sanctioned. I am quite ready to discuss the matter with the Honourable Member in detail afterwards."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"May I supplement that question, by another? Whether the question of increasing the pay of Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs is also under consideration?"

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON:—"I do not think any increase of pay was proposed in this scheme. It is merely a re-distribution of the grades."

"The next inquiry is by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao who asks for particulars and details of the lump provision shown at the end of paragraph 40 of the Amended Draft Financial Statement. The first is Rs. 30 lakh under the anticipated increase for additional process-serving establishment. This does not represent any new scheme; but it is a customary entry which you will find in successive budgets. The object, I think, is to make provision for revisions in establishment which the High Court may, from time to time, find to be necessary during the year. The Honourable Member is probably aware that the High Court has statutory powers to effect such revisions subject to the confirmation of the Government. We generally accept the proposals of the High Court in this matter as they are carefully worked out in the light of ascertained requirements. But there must be an item in the budget to cover such expenditure arising in the course of the year.

(Mr. Davidson ; Mr. Venkatapati Raju ;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar.) [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"The second lump provision referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao is Rs. 82 lakh which has been mentioned in connexion with the scheme of making permanent additional Sub-Judges and District Munsifs and regrading. This Rs. 82,000 is intended to meet the cost of the scheme for six months and not for the whole year. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew rightly reminds me that the redistribution affects all grades and incidentally improves the pay of men now in the lower grades.

"There remains the third provision Rs. 73 lakh for a revision of the pay of clerical establishment in mufassal courts. This is part of a large scheme which has been sanctioned recently by the Secretary of State. It has not been possible yet to work out the actual details of distribution under the various heads of the budget. It may, however, interest Honourable Members of this Council if I say that the principal items in the scheme were as follows:—Firstly, an increase in the pay of Saishtadars of District Courts from Rs. 150 to Rupees 150—10—200; secondly, the division into two grades in equal numbers on Rs. 50 and Rs. 60 per mensem respectively of the posts of head clerks in District Munsifs' Courts instead of the existing grades on Rs. 40 and Rs. 50 in which the posts are unequally distributed; and thirdly the regrading of clerks drawing a salary of Rs. 35 per mensem and less in District Courts, Sub-Courts and District Munsifs' Courts."

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR A UNIFORM RETAINING FEE FOR MUFASSAL GOVERNMENT PLEADERS.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU :—"I beg to move :

'VIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 18,360 be added to the expenditure head 19-Ab. Law officers for providing the uniform retaining fee of Rs. 100 to the 25 mufassal Government pleaders and the corresponding reduction be made under 45. CIVIL WORKS.'

"Your Excellency, my suggestion in this resolution is that all mufassal Government pleaders should be paid Rs. 100 as retaining fee instead of Rs. 15, 25, 35 and 50 also. Generally I am averse to increase of expenditure on any account, but as there is so much lavish distribution on account of increased allowances, I do not see any reason why some provision should not be made for the payment of these men. The Government pleader in the mufassal prosecutors—some of them are both public prosecutors and Government pleaders—are paid Rs. 25 a day, whereas in Bengal they are paid Rs. 35 a day. The present retaining fee was introduced years back, and some revision is now required and no additional reasons are necessary approve of it, if not immediately, some time hence they would see their way to increase their remuneration and give a uniform fee to all and not Rs. 15 to one, Rs. 20 to another, Rs. 25 to another and so on."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON :—"Your Excellency, this is a very small matter. The proposal is not a new one; in fact, I think it has been twice raised in this Council or suggested by interpellations, once in September 1912 and once in September 1916. On both those occasions the Government declined to take action on the ground that there was no reason to suppose that the existing scale of fees failed to attract the best men. The Honourable Member says it was a long time ago that the scale was fixed and a revision is now required. That would be a sound argument if it were not, as I believe it is, still the case that the scale does attract the best men. There is plenty of competition for the posts of Government pleaders, and it must be remembered that the retaining fee is not remuneration for work actually done. The object is to secure for Government the first claim upon the services of the best local vakils available. I believe that object is secured. Incidentally the holder of the post, who, be it remembered, is remunerated in fees for work actually done, benefits materially in status and prestige question of supply and demand, and I do not think it is incumbent on the Government to consider the question of an enhancement in the scale, which as far as we know is sufficient, in addition to other inducements, to bring the best men forward as competitors for the post of Government pleader. I think, Sir, there is no alternative but to oppose this resolution on the ground that there is no proved need for the enhancement of the scale."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"Your Excellency, I am not sorry that the Government are opposing this resolution. I would rather be for the abolition of any retaining fee in the shape of salary. By paying a retaining fee, the Government seek to get a hold on the gentleman who is often the leader of the Bar. Let there be no fee at all; let him be paid by the cases. I am not at all for this proposition. I would rather abolish the whole retaining fee."

[5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Venkatapati Raju ; Mr. Davidson ;
Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU :—"Your Excellency, I quite agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar that instead of losing for our public service our able men, the posts might be abolished; but the Government want to restrain them from attending political meetings and taking part in them. The Hon'ble Mr. Davidson says that this is a matter of supply and demand. At any rate, for the expression of that policy, I don't mind if my proposition is rejected; because if supply and demand is to be the rule and public servants are to be had at the market rate, if we can secure the best men and we can get the most efficient men at a lesser cost, the whole administration may be worked at 50 per cent less cost. If that is the policy to be adopted with regard to the Indian Civil Service, I shall be quite happy to withdraw the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON :—"I am afraid I cannot follow the Honourable Member in regard to the question of demand and supply into the region of the services generally. As he admits the validity of the ground for the rejection of this resolution, he may surely drop it."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

XVI-B. & 19-B. Law and Justice—Jails.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON :—"I beg to introduce the head 'Law and Justice—Jails'. There is one inquiry under this head received from a familiar source, the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar. It relates to the head 'dietary charges' at page 91 of the Civil Budget Estimate. He quotes the entry of Rs. 5 lakhs and he mentions the number of prisoners as 12,075 and then proceeds to calculate the diet cost per head as Rupees 41-6-6 per annum or about Rs. 3½ per mensem. He asks if this figure is correct. I do not question the Honourable Member's arithmetic. The Finance Department says his figure is correct and I have no doubt it is so. If he will refer to the second edition of the budget, he will see that the whole allotment has been raised from Rs. 5 lakhs to Rs. 5½ lakhs. What we are chiefly concerned with is the initial entry. That is based upon the average daily population or the average cost of diet in the three years 1915 to 1917. The additional half a lakh is made on account of the latest figures supplied by the Inspector-General of Jails. I suppose the idea underlying the inquiry is that the provision under diet is much below what would meet the cost of the supply of a reasonable diet."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR :—"Yes."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON :—"If so, I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the diet charges given in successive financial statements and also the comparative figures for a long series of years. In 1917 the average annual cost for all classes of prisoners was Rs. 38, a figure which is below Rs. 40."

XVII. & 20. Police.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON :—"I introduce the head 'Police'. There are no questions under that head."

RESOLUTION RE REDUCTION OF EXPENDITURE UNDER POLICE.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU moved the following resolution :—

'IX. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 10 lakhs be reduced from the expenditure head 20. POLICE by economising the service charges.'

In doing so, he said :—"Your Excellency, my resolution for the reduction of police charges is one of those resolutions for ventilating grievances, because we find an abnormal increase in the expenditure on police from time to time. In order to bring it prominently to the notice of the Government and to show our dissatisfaction with the piling up of this expenditure on police from year to year and to show that it requires some halt, I was obliged to move this resolution that a sum of 10 lakhs be reduced from the police expenditure by bringing it to the old figure of 1917-18. In 1917-18 Rs. 117 lakhs was the amount spent and in the present year Rs. 136 lakhs, out of which about 13½ lakhs is intended to cover war allowances. We know that this department is indispensable to secure the peace of the country, and as Lord Amthill has stated in this Council as President that we must increase the expenditure on education, because education means moral advantage, we have to safeguard the Police department because it looks after the watch and ward of the people. We know they are watching; I do not know that they are warding. We see that there has been an increase of 300 per cent during the last 16 or 17 years. I can quote figures; but I am afraid the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew might get up and say 'we do not want to discuss what was spent some time back.' I want only to place the amount actually spent some time back and what is spent now to show the utter disparity of expenditure on this account, and to show whether the Government cannot agree with us and reduce the expenditure. With that object, I shall quote the figures and not with the object of discussing the general policy of police administration."

(Mr. Venkatapati Raju ; Mr. Davidson.)

[5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"In 1895-96 we were satisfied with 45 lakhs. In the next year, 1896-97, it went up by 1 lakh, that is we spent 46 lakhs.

"In 1898-99, the famine year, we spent Rs. 45.95 lakhs.

"In 1905-06, we spent Rs. 61.42 lakhs.

Because there was the police re-organization, therefore we increased expenditure from 50 lakhs to 60 lakhs. That is where we were in the year 1905-06. At that time, when they wanted to introduce the police re-organization, they said about Rs. 37½ lakhs would, not only meet intermittent charges but also commutation charges. The present figure is Rs. 132 lakhs. Thirty-seven lakhs were proposed to be introduced on account of the police re-organization, of which 15½ lakhs was granted by the Government of India. We must cry a halt to this tremendous expenditure. It is true that during this period there was an increase of expenditure under education which is absolutely essential. Whatever amount is spent on education is so much good to the country and the people. But the amount spent on police must be regarded not as a benefit to the people as suggested in the present financial statement, because it is stated we are taking so much money from year to year and piling up balances, we ought not to hoard these for the future, but we must give back a portion of it for the benefit of the people from whom it is realized. But as a matter of fact, the amount now given is not giving benefit to the people. It is only for the benefit of a fractional number of persons in this service who are given allowance by spending about Rs. 37½ lakhs. We are taking money from 40 millions of people, but only half a million people are benefited. My suggestion is there must be a special inquiry and also some pronouncement made by the Government as to how far we are justified in this expenditure. Are we to go on for an unlimited time, because from Rs. 50 lakhs, we have come up to Rs. 135 lakhs? Next year out of this amount, probably Rs. 13½ lakhs might be dropped, but are we going to spend at the rate of Rs. 125 lakhs and go on extending it without any limit? It is ruinous expenditure and it will never benefit the people and it is not essential to spend so much. My suggestion therefore is that some method should be adopted to reduce the expenditure to a proper figure instead of piling up so much amount."

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON:—"I find it rather difficult to follow the Honourable Member into the sphere of general criticism of this expenditure on the Police department. I thought that we might perhaps have some specific suggestion for economy under particular heads, but I do not think he has put forward any. In one sense, his resolution raises a definite issue within the meaning of Rule 12 (b), because he does ask for a clear cutting off of ten lakhs from the Police budget. But for practical purposes the issue is anything but definite. He really asks the Government to carry out a roving inquiry for the purpose of effecting economy under all the different service heads of the budget. The Council will, I think, agree with me that this is not the proper time for embarking on any such inquiry. We are dealing with the figures of the budget, which have to go up for sanction almost at once. We have to provide for the establishment of a department, the organization of which has grown up year by year and must be carried on, unless and until after full inquiry scope for retrenchment is proved to exist. No such proof could possibly be obtained within the short interval of time when this budget has to go up for sanction to the Government of India. All I can say is that for a good while past, particularly during the stewardship of the Financial Department by my Honourable colleague Sir Alexander Cardew, it has been the usual practice to subject the proposals for additions to the Police department to the most rigid scrutiny. Both Mr. Gillman and I have found it a matter of extreme difficulty to persuade the Finance Department to help us to carry out improvements in the Police department which we thought very necessary. There has been no lack of scrutiny in regard to the proposals for increased expenditure on that department. If this ten lakhs which the Honourable Member asks us to strike off from the budget were eliminated, it could possibly come only from the single head of the provision of Rs. 13½ lakhs for war allowance. The Council will agree with me that it would be invidious to subject the lower-paid subordinates of the Police department to a forfeiture of that description while other departments are allowed to draw a war allowance. If you eliminate that item of Rs. 13½ lakhs, the Honourable Member's proposal is tantamount to a reduction of expenditure of Rs. 120 lakhs, all of which has been allocated to charges actually being incurred from day to day. Surely it is not a practical proposition to strike off or to cut down running charges on an important public department by Rs. 7 or 8 lakhs regardless of consideration as to in what particular head the cut should be made. I do not think, Sir, that any general review of possible economies, at this stage, would result in practical advantage. The Government have no alternative but to oppose the Hon'ble Mr. Venkatapati Raju's resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Your Excellency, I could have easily pointed out that all these additional appointments might be dropped and a reduction should be made. I did not want to press for the abolition of, for instance, the additional Commissioner in Madras or any other appointment. I wanted to avoid a detailed discussion, because I wanted to give a blank sheet for the Government to find some means of economising the expenditure. I expected the Government to state whether we have to proceed at this rate for ever: because accepting as the Hon'ble Mr. Davidson says, that we are spending every pie, the question is whether it is useful or absolutely necessary and these are to continue in this way for ever. Every year we are increasing the expenditure by Rs. 2 or Rs. 3 lakhs and this excess is met out of the income from land revenue. Are we to take the revenue we are raising for meeting

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Venkatapati Raju ; the President ;
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Littlehailes ;
Mr. Krishna Rao.)

the increased expenditure under Police? I know it is very difficult to curtail expenditure at one stretch. If we can come to an understanding that we should not go beyond a certain figure, and if attention is paid to a reduction of expenditure, I will be satisfied. Otherwise, the people would be complaining that an unnecessarily large amount is being spent on police which serves no useful purpose for the amount we spend on it. I do not press the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I may perhaps be allowed to point out to the Honourable Gentleman that I share the fault with him in this matter, because the resolution of the character he has proposed in his speech is not appropriate for this meeting at all. If I had been able to gather from the wording of the resolution that he wished to provoke a general discussion on the question of the expenditure on police, I should have been obliged to rule his motion out of order on the ground that it would be more appropriate to another meeting and not this meeting which is merely a meeting for the settlement of the finance in the Budget. Probably, it will be convenient for this Council now to adjourn for luncheon. Before I do so, may I ask them to give a little thought as to their probable convenience in regard to the course of business. I will ask them before we adjourn what is the best course in regard to our business. It is a pretty heavy agenda, and we have before us two Bills, the Insect Pests Bill and the Madras Corporation Bill. It is just a question as to how we should regulate our sitting. I will ask them whether we should not sit on Saturday or should go on continually till we finish. I do not know how long the resolutions will take. After that, we propose to take up the Bills, first the Insect Pests Bill which will not take more than two or three hours, and then the Corporation Bill which may take three days or even more. The Council will now adjourn for luncheon till quarter to three."

The Council then adjourned for a short interval and re-assembled at 2-45 p.m.

XVIII. & 21. Ports and Pilotage.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I introduce the head 'Ports and Pilotage'."

XIX. & 22. Education.

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES:—"I beg to introduce the head 'Education.' The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao has asked for additional information; he asks for a statement of applications from all the local bodies for provincial grants for educational purposes. This statement could not be prepared in the time at our disposal. He asks what are the circumstances under which the Victoria College at Palghat is to be taken over by the Government. The college is to be taken over by Government at the express request of the municipal council, as they say it is not within their limited means to meet the large expenditure for efficiently maintaining a college and a high school out of municipal funds."

"He asks for the progress made in the publication of the Tamil Lexicon and what further expenditure may be expected from Provincial funds. The progress made has been reported in G.O. No. 4, Home (Education), dated the 2nd January 1919. So far as the expenditure of Provincial funds is concerned, one lakh was originally sanctioned by Government and the payment of that has been spread over the intervening period between 1912 and the present time and Rs. 33,500 remains to be paid. Rupees 20,000 is included in the budget for 1919-20; the balance will be required in 1920-21 and no further expenditure is likely to be required from Provincial funds."

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF ADDITIONAL ASSISTANT INSPECTORS OF SCHOOLS IN THE PROVINCIAL EDUCATIONAL SERVICE.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I have the honour to move—

'X. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 29,400 be provided for the appointment of eleven additional assistant inspectors of schools of Provincial Educational Service and that a corresponding reduction be made under 45. CIVIL WORKS—Civil Buildings.'

"It will be seen from the details in the Civil Budget Estimate that there are fourteen assistant inspectors in the Provincial Educational Service, one in the first grade on Rs. 400, one in the second grade on Rs. 300, six in the third grade on Rs. 250 and six in the last grade on Rs. 200. There are eleven other sub-assistant inspectors working as assistant inspectors in the various districts of the Presidency, though in this detailed statement that fact is not separately shown. We find under the head of Inspection fourteen assistant inspectors shown. This resolution suggests that there should be eleven additional assistant inspectors in the Provincial Educational Service which will involve an additional expenditure of Rs. 29,400. The effect of it will also be that the eleven sub-assistant inspectors who are doing work as assistant inspectors will be relieved of this duty and they will be available for inspection work. I drew the attention of the Council by means of an interpellation at the meeting held in August last to the necessity of maintaining the distinction between the two classes of assistant inspectors which has been maintained since the reorganization in 1909. I draw the attention of the Council to the fact that while they are performing the same duties it is quite desirable that the other assistant inspectors should also be in the Provincial Educational Service with the status incidental to that position instead of in the subordinate service. I am aware that there has been a large scheme for improving the inspecting agency, both male and female, under the consideration of the Government for several years, but that it has not been possible to give definite effect to it or give it any definite shape all these years. This question of the controlling agency is referred to in the quinquennial report ending 1916-17 and this is what is stated in the report of the Director of Public Instruction : ' With the continuous expansion of education, considerable even under the present exceptional circumstances, and with the more rapid diffusion of education which the restoration of peace and of more normal financial conditions will bring, a further strengthening of both the male and the female inspecting agency will become imperative. The numerical increase in schools alone is a serious consideration. The multiplication of schools must, if the schools are to do good work, be accompanied by adequate provision for their supervision. There are, however, other considerations. Not only is the quantity of education increasing but also the complexity of the problems which it presents. The quality and suitability of the education imparted have to be considered. Further over the existing and the additional staff which will be necessary careful control and guidance will be required ; but even as it is the Circle Inspectors have not time enough to study thoroughly the problems of elementary education in urban and rural areas and to control and guide their subordinates. Most of their time is devoted to the inspection of secondary and training schools and to office work, and they are unable, with all the will in the world, sufficiently to keep in touch with other educational activities and tendencies and to co-operate with other departments. Such being the circumstances of the case proposals were in 1914 and 1915 submitted to Government for the reorganization respectively of the male and the female inspecting agencies. Later on at the meeting in August last it was stated in reply to a question put by me that proposals for the female inspecting agency were under consideration but not in respect of the male inspecting agency.

(Mr. Krishna Rao ; Mr. Littlehales ; the President.) [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

" It will be found, so far as this question of supervision is concerned, it is a question regarding which there is no dispute whatever. The number of elementary schools has been increasing with great rapidity, and even at the end of 1916-17 it was found that there were nine inspectors who had within their jurisdiction 360 secondary schools and 54 training schools and there were 23 assistant inspectors who had jurisdiction over 360 secondary schools along with 54 training and 28,867 elementary schools. I am placing before the Council this problem so far as the supervision of elementary schools is concerned. That number went further when we came to last year. The number of elementary schools has increased in that year with the result that the number of elementary schools for males at the end of 1918 was 29,848 and for girls 1,852. It will be found from the Amended Draft Financial Statement that the Government have been able to make additional provision for the expansion of elementary education and to allot about Rs. 6 lakhs for that purpose and that a scheme has been sanctioned whereby about 1,000 more elementary schools are to be opened both in rural and urban areas. It is, therefore, high time that adequate arrangements should be made, pending final orders upon the reorganization scheme which may take some time for sanction, for the effective supervision of elementary schools.

" It will be stated ' there are sub-assistant inspectors who are doing work as assistant inspectors ; why do you unnecessarily ask for additional assistant inspectors for that purpose ? ' It will be remembered that sub-assistant inspectors are in direct charge of various circles and are expected to exercise supervision ; and if Assistant Inspectors are to exercise proper supervision it is necessary that their status should be improved and that they should be drafted into the Provincial Educational Service and should not be persons belonging to the cadre of sub-assistant inspectors. Though I am not in possession of full information as to the details of the scheme which is in contemplation for improving the inspecting agency, at the meeting held in August last I wished to know whether the Government would publish the scheme ; but I got a reply that the Government were not prepared to do so. The Government have been making some changes pending final orders on the reorganization scheme. I would suggest that without prejudice to the final conclusions this small reform may be effected, by improving the status of assistant inspectors and making them supervise these largely increasing elementary schools efficiently and satisfactorily. With these words I commend this resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES :—" Your Excellency, as is well known, the future arrangements for the inspecting agency and their cadres are still under consideration and nothing can be said at this stage as to what will be the future organization of the inspecting agency, its cadres and the grading of Inspectors and Assistant Inspectors. The Honourable Mover of this resolution has adduced arguments which in the main tend to show that it is of imperative urgency to increase the supervising agency, but that is a point that does not come on till the next resolution."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" If I may supplement what the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction has said, the real truth is that we cannot move in this matter until we have the orders of the Government of India on the major scheme. That is the real truth, and technically it might really be possible to disallow discussion on this point because it is intimately bound up with the major scheme. For myself I think it is better to allow it to lie over without prejudice. We are really forced to that position."

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(The President ; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Krishna Rao ; Mr. Suryanarayana Rao ; Mr. Littlehales.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—" My Lord, I see that the next resolution deals with the entertainment of four Inspectors of Schools. May I know from the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction whether that portion of the establishment proposed for next year is not bound up with the major scheme which is now before the Government of India ? The budget does provide for an increase of the Inspectorate of a different kind. What my Honourable Friend really proposes is to increase the assistant inspectors, and it seems to me the argument applies equally to it."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" It is true, but we must not press it too far. Does the Honourable Gentleman wish to divide the Council ?"

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO :—" No."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" There is no unwillingness to consider the matter but really we cannot undertake to do so at present."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR FOUR ADDITIONAL CIRCLE INSPECTORS FOR EDUCATION.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO :—" The resolution that I beg to move runs thus :—

' XI. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 60,000 allotted towards expenditure for additional four Circle Inspectors under 22-B. be deducted and the sum added to the unallotted expenditure.'

" I invite your Excellency's attention to page 35* of the Amended Draft Financial Statement. I notice that under 22-B. ' Inspection ' in the budget for the year 1919-20 for the appointment of an additional Inspector of Schools Rs. 13 lakh is provided ; for the addition of four Inspectors' circles Rs. 23 lakh ; and for the appointment of twelve additional sub-assistant inspectors Rs. 24 lakh, making a total of Rs. 60 lakh. This is a new expenditure which is introduced for the first time in the present budget. I respectfully submit that the budget shows that a large increase has been sanctioned in the number of elementary schools and certainly a larger amount of inspection is wanted. But there is no emergency now for adding four Circle Inspectors at a cost of Rs. 23 lakh. In all these matters we must see that the subordinate agency is strengthened, and we must see that elementary schools are properly inspected. It is only after the subordinate establishment is well strengthened that we might well look to the superior agency. The superior agency and the higher schools can take care of themselves, and I do not think such a detailed inspection is necessary in the case of those schools. I think the proposal can very well wait till next year, and I appeal to the Government that this amount may not be spent this year, because the scheme is under consideration, for I notice on page 4 of the Director's report that ' the subordinate agency was already strengthened as a temporary measure pending the issue of orders on the scheme for the strengthening of the inspecting agency which is now under the consideration of the Government. ' The inspecting agency is about to be strengthened and I have no doubt that the whole scheme will be placed before the Council, and the Council will then be in a position to submit their views on the subject. The Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao has told us, that the Government were asked whether they would be pleased to place the scheme on the table and the Government were not in a position to do so. Unless the scheme is placed before us, we are not in a position to see how the whole thing will work. I therefore move that this provision be deleted from the budget."

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES :—" Your Excellency, I wish just to raise a technical point at the start, which is that the resolution is for the deletion of the provision of Rs. 60,000 made for four additional Circle Inspectors while as a matter of fact only Rs. 23,000 is allotted."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" That is a correction which the Council should bear in mind."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO :—" I confess the resolution is not happily worded. It was intended to apply to the whole of Rs. 60,000."

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES :—" This is a matter of urgency. It is well known that the work of the Inspector is in the main inspecting secondary schools and supervising and organizing the work of education in the whole of his districts. The Inspectors are over-worked. The Honourable Mover of the previous motion has already read a statement to this effect from the quinquennial report ending 1916-17. That is a very valid argument in favour of the provision which has been made in the budget. The Honourable Mover of this resolution desires to have this deleted because he considers the inspection of elementary schools is more important. I may submit, Sir, if that is the argument it ought to go towards the strengthening

(Mr. Littlehailes ; Mr. Suryanarayana Rao ; [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.
the President ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

of the cadre of Sub-Assistant Inspectors who have the majority of actual inspecting work to do in these schools. So far as the Circle Inspectors alone are concerned, we have had the present number for a good many years and it is absolutely necessary to have an increase. We have had an increase of 40 per cent in the strength of pupils attending secondary schools since 1913. We have had no increase whatsoever in the number of Inspectors. I need not detain the Council to emphasize the argument that the department is fully convinced of the urgent need of the appointment of additional Circle Inspectors. That is the prime need of the department. It is very undesirable to have this provision deleted."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO :—" Your Excellency, the resolution No. X provides for the appointment of 11 additional Assistant Inspectors. This resolution asks for the deletion of the provision for four additional Inspectors. It has been pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Littlehailes that the number of Circle Inspectors has remained the same for several years and therefore the number has to be increased. He says that the inspection agency of schools who can inspect the schools. I cannot understand why we should have four additional Inspectors. I think the two are inconsistent. If we are going to have one, the second can be deleted. If the Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao's resolution is accepted and 11 additional Assistant Inspectors are appointed, it is still more necessary that my resolution should be accepted by the Government. I do not think that we want both Circle Inspectors and additional Assistant Inspectors. When we have the whole scheme before us, we can consider how many Circle Inspectors and additional Assistant Inspectors we may have. But till the scheme has matured, I think this expenditure may be omitted altogether."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" I am reluctant to add anything to what the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction has said, because he has said everything that can be said. It is not permissible for us to go back and discuss resolution No. X. As a matter of fact resolution No. X involves not only the addition of additional Assistant Inspectors but the reorganization of the whole grade. In that sense it may be differentiated from the resolution we are now discussing. The point is simply this: The department is spending a certain amount upon secondary education and we are not getting the full value of that money without the inspecting agency. The Honourable the Director of Public Instruction has pointed out that since 1913, I think he said, 40 per cent has been added to the number of pupils in the secondary schools. If the department is to get full value for the money spent on educating these scholars, really it is in the opinion of the department essential that there should be for the time being at any rate an addition to the staff of the inspecting agency, and I cannot do otherwise than advise the Council to accept this provision. In the current year only 17 secondary schools and 49 model schools have been opened. At present the Inspectors are overworked. If we are to get the full value of the money the department cannot do better than advise the appointment of these Inspectors. Does the Honourable Member press the resolution ?"

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO :—" No."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" The Honourable Member will realize that this is a perfectly genuine and moderate demand that the department has made."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE GRANTS-IN-AID TO THE VANIYAMBADI MUHAMMADAN EDUCATIONAL SOCIETY FOR THE ISLAMIA COLLEGE.

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—" I beg to move—

'XII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the provision of Rs. 15,048 for the College for Muhammadans, Madras (temporary), under the head 22-C. be omitted and that an additional provision of Rs. 15,000 be made under the head 22-G. EDUCATION—Grants-in-aid—Teaching grant to Colleges—General, to be paid to the Vaniyambadi Muhammadan Educational Society for establishing Islamia College in connexion with its Madrasa Islamia.'

"The Government College for Muhammadans for which Rs. 15,048 are provided in the Financial Statement has come into existence in sudden and mysterious manner. In the Financial Statement that we discussed in this Council in March last a lump sum of 75 thousand was provided for the improvement of Muhammadan education including 'grants to a Muhammadan College.' This referred of course to the Usmania College for which His Exalted Highness the Nizam had sanctioned a monthly grant of Rs. 1,000.

"There is a difference between a Muslim College and a College for Mussalmans. One is a national institution managed and maintained by the Mussalmans themselves in which students are trained on Islamic lines under Muslim influences in Muslim surroundings, and Koran, Hadis (traditions) theology and Muslim history form part of the curricula of the studies. Government sympathised with the movement for the founding of the Muslim College and we are grateful to Mr. Stone, who, I am glad, has been knighted recently, for the valuable help he gave in the initial stage of the scheme. Unfortunately dissensions arose in the managing body of the Islamia High School at Vaniyambadi in connexion with which the college was to be established. The obvious course for the Government to adopt at such a juncture was to try to bring about reconciliation between the two warring elements in the managing body. There have been instances of more serious quarrels at Aligarh and Lahore in the managing bodies of the Muslim Colleges, but Government always intervened as peace-makers and restored harmony. I had personally appealed to your Excellency to take similar course. Your Excellency was at one time prepared to act on this request and with a view to give your Excellency free hand to arrange matters satisfactorily I even offered to resign the secretaryship of the Usmania College Board. This is what I wrote to your Excellency on the 18th June 1917 :—

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

"Allow me to thank you most heartily for the warm interest you have shown in the establishment of the Usmania College at Vaniyambadi and the kind efforts you are making for a satisfactory settlement of the differences that have unfortunately arisen. I beg to repeat what I have already told your Excellency that should my resignation of office as Secretary to the Board of the Management be in any way useful in bringing about an amicable arrangement that will ensure the placing of the institution on a stronger and more stable basis and secure the hearty co-operation and financial support of all the parties concerned, I shall, indeed, be quite willing to tender it to the Board at its very first meeting. I will do this most cheerfully, as the one thing I was longing for all these years is the establishment of a college for the advancement of education among my co-religionists. But the careful thought and consideration you have bestowed on this subject and the generous and sympathetic manner in which you propose to deal with it, will I am sure result in bringing the college into existence under more happy auspices than would have been the case otherwise."

"But your Excellency, for reasons best known to yourself, did not take any steps to carry out your original intention. In reply to Sir Stone's letter of the 21st June I wrote to him on the 24th as follows :—

"I am surprised that His Excellency the Governor has thought it fit to change the attitude he had taken in the matter of the Usmania College. When I had an interview with him at Ootacamund on the 13th instant, I understood distinctly that he had resolved to help the movement with a view to have the Usmania College established at Vaniyambadi in July next and to make it the best equipped and most efficient institution possible. He told me that the Government owed it to His Highness the Nizam that the object of his generosity should be realized in the way he would naturally desire it. He assured me that the Government would help the Usmania College with funds and place on the board of management additional educationists who would help in making the institution the best of the kind. His Excellency at the same time said that something might be done to conciliate the other party who were opposing the movement. I offered to resign the secretaryship in order that His Excellency's scheme of reconciliation might be carried out. His Excellency also told me that he would send for the three leaders of the Islamia party and tell them that the Government was resolved to help the Usmania College and ask them to set aside all personal considerations in the same spirit as, His Excellency was good enough to observe, I was prepared to do. His Excellency as well as myself felt sure that this scheme was bound to succeed and I proceeded to carry out my part of it. I had informed His Excellency at the same interview that with your approval I had made all the necessary arrangements for starting the Usmania College early next month, and His Excellency did not think there would be any need for disturbing them. I gave His Excellency on the 18th instant when he came to Madras my undertaking in writing. His Excellency again expressed his intention of meeting the Islamia party at an early date with a view to bring about the compromise. Since then I am not aware of any new developments that have led the Government to change their attitude. If His Excellency had acted on his original proposal and has seen the Islamia party I am sure the object in view would have been attained. Without any attempts in that direction it cannot be said that there is no prospect of any immediate restoration of harmony. If the Government do not think that they can grapple with the situation they may leave it to the Board to meet it as best as possible. The Board is bound to carry out the purpose for which it has been constituted. If, however, the Government think that they have not had sufficient time to arrive at a definite conclusion as to their attitude towards the Usmania College, its establishment may be postponed for a year, although all arrangements have been made for the accommodation for the college classes and the lodging of the students, necessary furniture has been made and a good staff can be appointed from among the numerous applications already received. Applications from students are also pouring in in response to the notice I had sent to all the eligible students of the year."

"At the particular request of Sir Stone the Usmania College Board in its meeting held on the 2nd July 1917 resolved 'that, in view of the fact that the arrangements for opening the college were very far from completion the Board is of opinion that the opening of the college be postponed till July 1918 and that meantime all necessary steps for securing this object be taken.'

"Very soon after this your Excellency made up your mind that Madras would be a better place for this college than Vaniyambadi. Your Excellency called half a dozen Mussalmans at a few hours' notice to the Government House on the 19th of July 1917 and got your Excellency's premeditated resolution subscribed to by the majority of those present. Two press communiqués followed in which the Government sympathized with the desire of the Muslim community to have a college of its own but at the same time made the community understand that the 'Government have decided that any financial aid which they are able to promise to the advancement of this branch of Muhammadan education shall be given towards the establishment of a college in Madras.'

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

[5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"After having indicated their attitude (in such unmistakeable terms) as to the location of the college the Government ought to have left the matter to the Usmania College Board to do the needful. Your Excellency did not allow the President or the Secretary of the Board to negotiate with His Exalted Highness the Nizam but carried on the correspondence yourself. We are quite in the dark as to what passed between the two Governments and what decision was eventually formed by His Exalted Highness the Nizam in respect of the monthly grant of Rs. 1,000. We can only surmise that he has refused to transfer to a college in Madras what he had specifically granted to the community at Vaniyambadi in appreciative furtherance of the great work it had already done there. I referred to this question in the budget meeting of last April, but Sir Stone was not in a position then to tell me definitely what would be the fate of the Usmania College scheme, and yet within two months the Government from the hills arranged to open the college in connection with the Madrasa-i-Azam in a most precipitate manner. I repeat what I had written to Mr. Stone in the letter I have quoted above:—

"Please allow me also to state that if the Government intervention results only in frustrating the scheme of the Usmania College which has not been launched without a good deal of consideration it will do great harm to the community—harm,—which cannot be counterbalanced by any scheme for advancing Muhammadan education which Government may see fit to launch on their own responsibility."

"The college that Government have started can never prove to be as useful to the community as the national college founded and maintained by Mussalmans is bound to be. I say this for the following reasons:—

"(1) No satisfactory arrangement can be made in a Government College for the compulsory teaching of Koran, Hadis, theology, Islamic history, etc.;

"(2) Religious discipline and Islamic manners and etiquette cannot be enforced;

"(3) Islamic culture cannot be imparted in an institution with the help of the staff which is not responsible to a Muslim management; and

"(4) Healthy traditions cannot be built up and public interest and enthusiasm cannot be created about an institution in the fortunes of which the community is not closely and keenly interested."

"It will be a waste of money for Government to equip and maintain a college in an efficient and up-to-date condition for Mussalmans in the town of Madras where the Government Presidency College is close at hand to serve the same purpose. There can never be any special feature in the Umdah Bagh College to attract Muslim students to it in preference to the Presidency College or for the matter of that to the Christian College. On the other hand a new disability is created for the Mussalmans by the establishment of this college and that is that Mussalmans will not be admitted in the other colleges of Madras and they have to be content with the second or third rate teaching of the Umdah Bagh College."

"Another disadvantage is that Mussalman students are denied the benefit of healthy competition with the bright Hindu fellow students. In the school stage of education we cannot help having separate schools and classes for Mussalmans on account of the vernacular but no such difficulty exists in the upper secondary and college classes. Hindu boys are freely admitted in the higher forms of the Vaniyambadi Islamia School and it was intended to admit Hindu students in the proposed college too."

"I therefore beg to urge upon the Government to give this matter their earnest consideration while there is yet time to retract the steps they have hastily taken. The college has not yet been affiliated to the University and can be given up in favour of a better and more acceptable scheme. If the Government persist in maintaining this college they will block the way for another Muslim college to come into existence. In the first place considering the small number of Muslim students two Muhammadan colleges will be too many and the University will not allow a superfluous institution to be established in competition with the Government College. Large amount of money and labour has been spent in making the Madrasa Islamia of Vaniyambadi the centre of Muslim learning and culture in this Presidency and great hopes were entertained about its becoming one day the Aligarh of the south. The active sympathy and munificent support of the great Muslim Prince His Exalted Highness the Nizam was enlisted on its behalf with that end in view. The inconsiderate, though of course well meaning action of your Excellency's Government has put a check, I hope only a temporary check, on the ordered progress of that institution. I appeal to your Excellency once more to remove this embargo that has been placed on our one solitary national institution in this Presidency and give it a chance to develop on the lines its founders have thoughtfully laid down for it. I understand that the managing body of the Vaniyambadi Madrasa has resolved last year to raise it this year to the status of a second-grade college. In this resolution I beg of your Excellency to transfer the amount earmarked for the Umdah Bagh College to Vaniyambadi as a grant-in-aid for the Islamia College to be established there in connection with the Islamia High School. It will arouse the interest and the enthusiasm of the community afresh and stimulate them to further educational activities to attain the new goal the Government will be placing before it. It may even be possible for the community to regain the sympathy and patronage of His Exalted Highness the Nizam by making their own efforts worthy of such generosity. Like God, Princes and Government help those who help themselves. We want your Excellency to help us in our attempts at self-help in the matter of education and not to kill this spirit in us by setting up to do for us what we are prepared to do for ourselves. The Muslim community had great expectations from the sympathetic attitude your Excellency had adopted towards Muslim education in general and the Vaniyambadi Madrasa in particular ever

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Littlehailes;
Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; the President; Mr. Aziz-ud-din.)

since your visit to that institution at my personal invitation. Let not your Excellency's career in this Presidency end in an act which can mean a death knell of the cherished hopes and aspirations of the community in the matter of their projected national college."

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES:—"Your Excellency, the college for Muhammadans in Madras was opened to meet a recognized public demand for a college for Muhammadans, a demand which was expressed freely throughout the whole Presidency. The resolution that has been now proposed is to close down this existing college and to pay over the funds allotted for its maintenance to an educational society which has as yet not started a college. So far as the University and so far as the department of education are aware, no scheme has been formulated for starting a new college or for its maintenance in a state of efficiency. I do not enter into the arguments of the Honourable Mover of this resolution regarding the site on which the single college for Muhammadans, which is all that he thinks is needed to meet the present requirement of the University, should be; but I think it would be a retrograde step if the college that has already begun were now to be closed. It is a college for Muhammadans to meet the demand of the Muhammadans. It is not intended to compel all Muhammadans to go to it. That is not the intention of the Government. Muhammadans will be free to attend any other college as they have been accustomed hitherto. But there is a certain section of the community which desires a college for Muhammadans pure and simple, and the Government have met that demand, and the existing provision in the budget is merely for the continued maintenance of the college."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"May I ask for information as to whether the apparent implication in this resolution is correct? Evidently a grant of Rs. 15,000 for the college at Madras seems to imply that Rs. 15,000 or some other grant that will be required for the development of the Vaniyambadi Muhammadan educational institution would not be forthcoming. Is there any basis for the idea that if the Vaniyambadi Educational Society should make an application for starting certain classes and the department should consider that there is no objection to their being started the money would not be forthcoming from the general grant-in-aid provided already?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I do not know whether the Hon'ble Mr. Littlehailes can say whether there is any application."

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES:—"There is no application. It is useless to make budget provision until an application is made."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur MUHAMMAD AZIZ-UD-DIN SAHIB:—"With your Excellency's permission I should like to say a few words in my individual capacity as a member of this House. I am not prepared to make any lengthy speech in reply to the long written speech of the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan, but I am bound to say this much, that the whole Mussalman community is very grateful to your Excellency for establishing a college for them in Madras. The question as to the location of the college was very carefully considered by your Excellency and in that conference the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan was also present. The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Abdur Rahim was very strong on the point that Madras was the best centre for the Muhammadan college. The local Mussalman press expressed its grateful thanks to your Excellency for the location of the college in Madras. It is unnecessary for me to narrate the grounds which induced your Excellency to establish it in the town of Madras in preference to any other place in the Presidency. The Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan has repeated the ancient history connected with the Usmania and Islamia Colleges and he has ventured even to remark that, when dissensions arose at Vaniyambadi on account of the unauthorized and ill-considered action of the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan, your Excellency's Government or your Excellency was not pleased to reconcile the two parties there. As far as I could see, it was impossible for the Government or anybody else to bring about any reconciliation at Vaniyambadi. Even as matters stand now, I think that it is not possible to bring about a reconciliation there. This very morning the leading Mussalmans of Vaniyambadi came to me and begged me to speak against the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hassan. It was no doubt unfortunate that the Vaniyambadi people did not accept to associate their intended college with His Exalted Highness the Nizam. That, I consider was a political blunder, but for all that the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan has to thank himself a great deal. I do not understand why the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan has thought it fit to call the Government College in Madras a temporary one or to say that no grant should be made to it. That is a college which has come into existence as a matter of fact. It is progressing and is appreciated by the Mussalman public. The idea of the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan running back again to the name of the Islamia College when he once so much asserted himself against it passes my comprehension. I do not know what changes have taken place since then. All that I know is that the dissensions among the Mussalmans of Vaniyambadi are now almost the same as they were when the apple of discord was thrown there by the rather ill-thought of action of the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan, who had no business to go to Hyderabad and to entreat the authorities there to give a certain name to the college without consulting those who were responsible for all the financial assistance they were prepared to give to the Islamia Madrasa at Vaniyambadi or to the proposed Usmania College. It was most unfortunate that the name of His Exalted Highness the Nizam was at all dragged in. But for all that mistake the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan was responsible. If he had only consulted the donors and the Mussalmans of Vaniyambadi before he undertook his trip to Hyderabad, I do not think all that trouble would ever have seen the light of day. However, as matters stand, the Mussalmans of Southern India are most grateful to your Excellency for having established a college for them in Madras. As to all those ideas of a National college and matters connected with it I think it is premature now to discuss them. The college has been started, and I am sure as it is going on, it will, develop and the future government will do for its development all that may lie in their power. If objections are started the moment the college is started, that will be prejudicial to the interests of the college.

(Mr. Aziz-ud-din ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan.) [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"I am taking this opportunity on behalf of the Mussalmans of Southern India for all that your Excellency has been pleased to do to advance the cause of Mussalmans. Several lower secondary schools have been established throughout the Presidency. Mussalman boys have been sent to England with the help of the Government and now the Government college in Madras is an accomplished fact. Everything is progressing in the right direction, and I hope that the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan will not be accepted.

"One thing which the Mussalmans of Vaniyambadi requested me to do is to ascertain from the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan what has become of the Rs. 25,000 which His Exalted Highness the Nizam gave for the College at Vaniyambadi. They want, in case the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan is earnest about the advancement of the education of Mussalmans, that that amount, in case it stands in his name, may be made over to the Government College in Madras."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"Your Excellency, the Hon'ble Mr. Littlehales has said that this college was brought into existence in response to the demand for a Muhammadan college. The demand was for a private Muhammadan college. That demand was recognized by the Government and in the two press communiques that I have quoted, it was stated that the Government sympathised with the demand of the Muhammadans, and whatever help they could give towards that college would be given by the Government if it was established in Madras. That itself shows that the College was to be a private college and that the demand was for a private college. The Government recognized the demand for a private college. There was no demand that the Government should establish a college. When the Government have established this college, they have done it on their own responsibility without any demand for it; at any rate it is not in response to that demand to which the press communiques referred.

"Then it was said that there was no other college started, and as far as the University was concerned there was no scheme for any other college. It is unfortunate that Sir J. H. Stone is not here. Mr. Littlehales succeeded him lately and he does not know the past history. But your Excellency knows there were two schemes before your Excellency. There was the scheme of the Islamia College and the scheme of the Usmania College and the Government chose to support the Usmania College scheme. That scheme was supported till April last. The Government corresponded with His Highness the Nizam with a view to transfer the grant of Rs. 1,000 from the college in Vaniyambadi to the college in Madras. That itself shows that all along it was a private college that the Government wanted to help. Of course, the Government at the same time tried to bring it under their own control for reasons known to themselves. In those days there was very much in the air about students taking part in politics, and the Government perhaps felt that if the college remained in the hands of persons who took interest in politics the students might be led astray, and if the college were founded in Madras it would be under better control and under the direct eye of the Government. Whatever reason it was, it was a private college which the Government wanted to bring under their own control, and there was never any mention of their starting a Government college. Because that grant of the Nizam was withdrawn, it was thought that Government had gone too far to recede. There were two schemes. The Islamia College they discouraged and they encouraged the Usmania College. Now that the Nizam's grant to the Usmania College was withdrawn the Government started a college in Madras without consulting the community. That college was started when the Government were on the hills. All of a sudden the college was started, and it cannot be said that it was a considered action on the part of the Government. In my speech I have characterized that action as inconsiderate. At the same time I have given your Excellency's Government credit for good intentions. They intended that our education should prosper, and I have myself in my speech expressed the gratefulness of the community for that.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Littlehales has said that they have started a college but they do not compel students to go there. Compulsion can be brought about indirectly. One student went to the Principal of the Madras Christian College and was told that this year he would not admit Mussalman students because it would be unfair to the Muhammadan college. Two second year students were brought over from the Presidency College against their will. The Presidency College refuses to admit students who take up subjects which are provided for in the Umdah Bagh College. If that is not compulsion, I do not know what compulsion means. What is the distinguishing feature between the Umdah Bagh College and the Presidency College? Both are Government colleges, and only secular education is arranged for and there is nothing to attract Mussalman students to the new college simply because it is called a Muhammadan college. If there were a Muhammadan college under the control of Muhammadans with Mr. Justice Abdur Rahim as president, there would have been great enthusiasm throughout the country and many people would have come forward and subscribed several thousands of rupees. The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Abdur Rahim got promises and expected to raise about two lakhs. All this money is lost to our education. The Government could not ask us to pay that money to the Government college. In one of the press communiques the Government have stated that Muhammadans would show their generosity in order to enable the first steps to be taken. Was it for the purposes of the Government college that Muhammadan generosity was asked for and not for a private college?

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

"The Hon'ble Mr. Aziz-ud-din chose to say something on this subject. His position in this Council is very peculiar. He is an official and he often speaks on behalf of the Government, but somehow or other when some Muhammadan question comes up he takes up his individual capacity and begins to speak on behalf of the community as if he represented that community in this Council or anywhere else. He chooses to say things which are not in keeping with the true facts of the matter. For example he now tells us that a body of Vaniyambadi Mussalmans asked him to oppose this resolution. The Mussalmans who went to him must be really most foolish people when they asked him to oppose the very thing that I was going to do for the sake of Vaniyambadi Mussalmans. They have got Rs. 70,000 for a college. The other day they negotiated for the purchase of a building in order that the income might be utilized for the college. Last year they wanted to start an Islamia college and they opposed the proposal to start the college here. I am trying to make it possible for the Islamia college to be started there. If the Government college becomes permanent, this Islamia college would not be started because two colleges would not be allowed. I am helping these very Muhammadans of Vaniyambadi who want this college to be started. If this resolution is thrown out and this college becomes permanent, the very object of the Mussalmans who went to the Hon'ble Mr. Aziz-ud-din will be thwarted. Here the Hon'ble Mr. Aziz-ud-din comes in as the representative of these Muhammadans and tells us that he opposes the resolution on their behalf. They may as well say, 'save us from such a friend.'

"Then he says dissensions exist still in Vaniyambadi. It takes two people to make a quarrel. In Vaniyambadi dissensions existed because there were two parties. One party has retired—the party who had to do with the Usmania college. I have not taken any part in Vaniyambadi affairs for the last one year and a half nor my friend Mr. Kalami who was associated with me in this matter. He has not gone there for two years. The dissensions do not exist now, because there are no two parties. How dissensions can exist even now passes my comprehension. If there are any Mussalmans there who do not like me personally, that does not mean that there are dissensions about the college or school there. Then he says it is impossible even to-day to reconcile these two parties. No reconciliation is necessary as there are no two parties existing.

"Then he accuses me of going into the ancient history about the Usmania college. But he himself goes into it. I went into the history as far as it referred to this matter, as far as it helped this resolution. But he goes into that ancient history and rakes up the quarrel about the name of His Highness the Nizam being given to that college. That is a different matter altogether. It does not arise at all out of this resolution. Whether I went there with or without the permission of the people is a different matter. I do not want to go into it. It will suffice to say that many officials of the Government helped us in that scheme. It was that scheme which His Highness the Nizam accepted on the recommendation of some friends of the Muhammadan community, and it was only lately when other people who posed as friends came mund about this matter, I said that the Hon'ble Mr. Aziz-ud-din was interfering in this matter and if he continued to do so he would spoil the whole thing. I find now that the scheme has been frustrated on account of the kindly interest that the Hon'ble Mr. Aziz-ud-din took in the matter of Vaniyambadi. That was not his concern and he ought not to have interfered in it. What he did in connexion with it has been responsible for the mischief that has arisen. Your Excellency you will recognize from the tone of my speech that I was very humble in my request. I appealed to Your Excellency in the most pleading manner I could command that I wanted everything that was controversial to be kept out. I did not want any heat to be introduced into this discussion. As I have said, we are grateful to Your Excellency for all that you have done for the community in the matter of our education. I want Your Excellency's career not to end without that beneficent work that Your Excellency has undertaken to do in connexion with this coming to fruition. Unfortunately something has occurred to upset the even tenor of that educational scheme. This college, I sincerely believe—the Government college—is not so very necessary for the promotion of my community's education as a college maintained by Muhammadans. When the decision that Your Excellency arrived at about the location of that college was come to, it is true that some people hailed that decision with pleasure and in the Mussalman press it was endorsed, because the Usmania college was in view and not the Muhammadan college which the Government have started. If the Hon'ble Mr. Littlehales had said that if the other scheme of Vaniyambadi matures at a later date and it was represented to the Government that they wanted the Islamia college to come into existence, then the Government would reconsider the matter and would not stand in the way of the Islamia college coming into existence, I would have felt satisfied. There is no doubt that in my resolution there is a technical flaw, that is to say, a grant cannot be given to a college that does not exist. But the Government college is a temporary one. I did not use the word 'temporary', but I quoted the language of the Civil Budget Estimate. That word temporary was not my word. The Hon'ble Mr. Aziz-ud-din thought I called it temporary and he wasted so many words over it. That is not my word. It is stated here and it is temporary so long as it is unaffiliated. I understand that an application has now been made for its affiliation. All that I want is not to get that college affiliated, but to continue to teach the students they have taken in and allow them to appear as private students according to the regulations of the

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Pittendrigh; the President; [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Ranga Achariyar.]

University, and next year probably you may reconsider the matter and consult the Muhammadan community and the Vaniyambadi Educational Society that has done so much for the education of Muhammadans. If Your Excellency concluded after consulting the community that they prefer the college to be maintained by the Government and not by Muhammadans or the Vaniyambadi Society, then Your Excellency's Government may come to that decision and on that decision the Government and the Muhammadan community may act. But before they do that, this college should not be affiliated and should not become a permanent institution. Once it becomes a permanent institution, the Educational Society will have to give up all their aspirations and all the noble aims that they have concerning their institution. That will be doomed to remain a high school and it will become parochial in its character. It will lose its character as a school for the whole Presidency, and the students who go there from all over the Presidency will cease to go there because they will find that this school will remain only a school and will never become a college. I appeal to Your Excellency once more not to destroy this scheme of a national college for Muhammadans that they have taken nearly twenty years to build up.

"One word more, Your Excellency: Reference was made to the 25,000 rupees grant which His Highness the Nizam has already paid for the Usmania college. That amount was paid for the building and equipment of the proposed Usmania college and the monthly grant of Rs. 1,000 was promised to be paid when the college came into existence. That amount is invested as a deposit in the Madras Bank as resolved by the Usmania College Board, of which the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Abdur Rahim is the President and the Director of Public Instruction is also a member. Sir J. H. Stone was a party to that arrangement. With reference to that there is a letter from Mr. Glancey, the Finance Assistant Minister of Hyderabad, saying that that amount is to be paid to the Board of the college that is to come into existence in Madras. That itself shows at any rate that Mr. Glancey is not aware that there is no such board and no such college as he has in view. This college is a different thing. Last time the board resolved that the wishes of His Highness the Nizam should be ascertained as to the disposal of the 25,000 rupees, and as soon as they are ascertained, that amount will be disposed of as His Highness directs. At the same time the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Abdur Rahim at the last meeting appealed to Mr. Duncan and said that 'when the Government are going to spend so much money on the college why should they take this Rs. 25,000 also; let this 25,000 rupees go towards the scholarship fund for Muhammadan students.' And he said if that amount was left with him he would be able to get some more money and create good scholarship fund. Even after that I have received a letter from Mr. Duncan asking me to hand over the Rs. 25,000 with interest. I appeal to Your Excellency's Government not to press for the payment of that small residue that has been left out of the generosity of the Nizam, to the Government college. It may be utilized more usefully in the other way."

The Hon'ble the Rev. Mr. G. PITTENDRIGH:—"May I rise to a question of fact? I do not propose to enter into the discussion because I presume it is closed. But the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan has made one statement which it seems to me requires explanation. He said that the Principal of the Christian College refused to admit Muhammadan students because they should be sent to the Muhammadan college. I think he must be under some misapprehension because there are a number of Muhammadan students in the junior Intermediate class admitted by Dr. Skinner. I simply mention it because in case the statement made in this Council should go forth without contradiction it would cause misapprehension."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"I saw Dr. Skinner at his house. I took the student and I asked him to admit him into the college. He said—why not I take this boy into the Muhammadan college and why should he come to the Christian College? And he told me what I repeated in my speech, that because that college was opened he thought it was fair that these students should go there. The fact that there are some students in the Junior class of the Christian College does not show that all those who sought admission got admitted. There are some subjects which are not taught in the Muhammadan college; perhaps in those subjects they may have been admitted; and this boy that I took had taken a subject which was taught in the Muhammadan college, and still Dr. Skinner was good enough to admit him as a special case in the Christian College."

His Excellency the President:—"Does the Honourable Gentleman press the resolution?"

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"Yes."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar:—"I wish to know whether the Government have definitely committed themselves to any policy with reference to the Educational Society."

His Excellency the President:—"What does the Honourable Gentleman mean?"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar:—"Whether they are prepared to encourage that society in case they open a college."

His Excellency the President:—"The Government cannot answer hypothetical questions of that kind. The Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction has stated all the facts, and we will now take the division."

The resolution was put and lost.

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Mr. Littlehailes;
Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.)

RESOLUTION RE GRANT TO THE MADURA MUNICIPALITY FOR PROVIDING SITES AND BUILDINGS FOR MUNICIPAL SCHOOLS.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"The resolution which stands in my name runs thus:—

'XIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 85,218 be provided for the acquisition of sites for municipal schools and for the construction of buildings for the same to be granted to the Madura Municipality and that the same be met from the provision for school buildings or by a corresponding reduction under the head 45-B.'

"This relates to the correspondence between the Director of Public Instruction and the Madura Municipality in respect of the number of primary schools that they maintain there and propose to extend in course of time. The amount that I refer to covers the acquisition of sites for four schools and buildings for six schools. The municipality maintains about 17 schools, some for girls and some for boys, some for Panchamas and some for Muhammadans. The Government have been communicated with by the municipality and in that communication they give exactly what they propose to do with a view to introduce schools in the various parts of the town so that boys may have the chance of attending school with the view of getting all the school-going population into these schools for primary education. The scheme has been submitted to the Government and a printed memorandum also. They propose to open 40 schools. They do not propose to ask the Government to help them immediately. The present proposal is to acquire four more buildings for four more schools and to put up buildings for six more primary schools. If the acquisition of sites is put off, the price of land in Madura increases steadily, and unless they are acquired as early as possible, the price may become much more prohibitive. As it is they cost a fairly large sum. In these circumstances my request is that this small fraction of the total scheme they have before them may be considered especially in a year of this kind when about Rs. 8 lakhs of expenditure has been added under the head of grants for buildings. It includes buildings for secondary schools also. The portion relating to elementary education will be about Rs. 4 lakhs. I beg to submit that I do not want that the scheme of the other municipalities and other boards should not be considered; but I contend that this municipality which has set a scheme before itself and proposes to expend money for the maintenance of these schools may be given this non-recurring grant so as to bring it under the category of bigger municipalities in the Presidency. It is second only to Madras. If compulsory education be introduced in any place next to Madras, it will be in Madura. As I said they have spread it over a number of years and the grants can be given in small bits. They have prepared plans and estimates, and I understand in respect of two of them they have been approved by the Sanitary Engineer also, and four others are modelled on the plan of the Goripalayam school which has been approved by the Government and has also been constructed. In these circumstances I hope that the Government may view this proposal with favour and help the municipality."

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES:—"Your Excellency, the crux of this matter rests on the fact that although the educational budget is large relatively to other budgets, yet the funds are limited, and the needs of the Madura Municipality will have to be considered with reference to the needs of other local bodies. I may mention that in the years 1917 and 1918 subsidies for building elementary schools to the amount of Rs. 40,000 out of a total of just a little over Rs. 1,64,000 for the whole Presidency were awarded to the Madura Municipality. That indicates that the needs of the municipality have not been neglected or ignored by the Government in the past. There is no fear that they will be ignored in future."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I do not want to press the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A SECONDARY SCHOOL FOR GIRLS AT NELLORE.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I have the honour to move:—

'XIV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 5,000 be provided under 22. EDUCATION for the establishment of a secondary school for girls at Nellore and that a corresponding reduction be made under 45. CIVIL WORKS—Civil Buildings.'

"I do not think it is necessary for me to say much in support of this resolution, so long as it is admitted that with the greater advance made in this Presidency in the matter of female education it is necessary to make adequate provision for imparting secondary education in the case of girls. It will be found that steady progress has been made and at the end of 1917-18 we find the number of schools for non-European girls increased by 153; but while public institutions showed an advance of 171, private schools decreased by 18. The total strength of these institutions increased by 7,700. It is high time that every district in the Presidency is provided at least with one secondary school for girls. If I have brought this specific proposal with regard to one district in particular, it is necessary for me to point out that with the gradual spread of female education and with the interest which is being shown in that matter, though the progress is not so rapid as we could wish, it is necessary to make arrangements for opening secondary schools in every district. I have prominently brought up the case of the Nellore district because I know that during the last four or five years representations have been made for the establishment of secondary schools for girls, and that the district has shown sufficient advance in the matter of female education. We find that at the end of 1917-18 the number of public institutions, non-European schools, elementary schools in the district were 10, 6, and 52 in the three groups and the number of elementary scholars in each group about 1,500. That is fairly good progress though there is scope for much better progress in that direction. It will certainly improve the quality of education if arrangements are made for opening a secondary school. I am sure that the object is one with which the Government are in sympathy. I only request that a provision should be made in the next budget."

(Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao ; Mr. Siva Rao ; the President ; [5TH FEBRUARY 1919, Mr. Littlehailes ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.]

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO :—"I have got a similar resolution. I may be allowed to say a word."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Yes."

The resolution which stood in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. P. Siva Rao was as follows :—

'XV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that an additional sum of Rs. 8,000 may be provided for in the budget for opening a secondary school for girls in the Ceded districts and that a corresponding reduction may be made under 45. CIVIL WORKS.'

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO :—"Your Excellency, mine is a similar resolution to open a secondary school for girls in the Ceded districts. I am aware, Your Excellency, that the Government have got the best interests of female education at heart. Even in the current year they allotted a lump provision of Rs. 53,000 for the development of female education in the Presidency, out of which a fair proportion must go towards starting four secondary schools for girls. For some reason or other none were started in the current year. The location of three schools seems to have been settled—one at Masulipatam, one at Cuddalore and one at Mangalore. In the next year's budget only Rs. 14,000 has been provided for the opening of three schools and in the lump allotment it is stated that 1.53 lakhs has been allotted for female education. I do not see why the fourth school should have been dropped in the coming year. I only want that it should be taken up. It is time enough that one should be located in the Ceded districts. As to the precise place, it may be opened at Bellary or preferably at Anantapur. This request was made last year and even in the present year I made the request. If for any reason it is not found possible to start a secondary school all at once, I strongly appeal to Your Excellency's Government to start a middle school in the Ceded districts. A small beginning may be made. Surely there is need for four or five secondary schools for girls in this Presidency. For these reasons I commend this resolution for the acceptance of the Council. Probably the scheme is under consideration for opening one secondary school at each district headquarters."

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES :—"Your Excellency, there is no need to provide additional funds in the budget for this purpose. We have a scheme which the Honourable Movers of these two resolutions already know and the scheme includes all these places: Nellore and also the three Ceded district centres which they have mentioned."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—"Is it all at district centres?"

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES :—"It includes one school in Kurnool, one in Bellary and one in Anantapur, which are Ceded districts. The question that we have to take up departmentally is where the demand for these schools is greatest and where the need shows itself most. That is a matter in which our inspecting officers must be consulted. All I can say is that the scheme exists and no budget provision is needed. We have all that is needed and due attention will be paid to the needs of the places mentioned."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO :—"I beg to withdraw the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO :—"I also withdraw my resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President both the Honourable Members withdrew their resolutions.

RESOLUTION RE INCREASE OF PAY TO THE TEACHERS IN THE SECONDARY SCHOOLS IN THE PRESIDENCY.

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO :—"Your Excellency, my next resolution stands thus :—

'XVI. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of 2 lakhs may be provided for in the budget under the head of 22. EDUCATION for raising the pay of the teachers in the secondary schools in the Presidency and that a corresponding reduction may be made under the head of 45. CIVIL WORKS.'

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Siva Rao ; Mr. Littlehailes.)

"Your Excellency, this is a very old question. This resolution discloses a very acute grievance on the part of teachers both in elementary schools and secondary schools. As regards elementary schools, I am glad to say that the Government have solved it in a way and in the coming budget they have provided for a small increase in the pay of elementary teachers both in the case of boys' schools and girls' schools. But I am sorry to note that absolutely nothing has been done for improving the pay and prospects of teachers in secondary schools. In November last I moved a resolution before the Council which was in these terms: 'This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that early steps may be taken to raise the salaries of the teachers in the elementary and secondary schools'. As I have already stated, the difficulty in the case of the elementary teachers has been solved to some extent. It is a notorious fact that the teachers in the secondary schools are under-paid; the salary that is now paid to them does not attract the best talent. In that connexion when I moved this resolution I drew the attention of this Council to the speech of His Excellency the Viceroy at the conference of Directors held in January 1917. Therein His Excellency said: 'We want, as I said lately in Calcutta, to raise the status of the teaching profession, to make it a calling with prizes which will induce men to enter it as a life profession'. I also referred the Council to what was stated in the 'Indian Educational Policy' issued in 1913. It is stated there that in the case of secondary teachers the policy of the Government of India is 'introducing a graded service for teachers of English with a minimum salary of Rs. 40 per mensem and a maximum salary of Rs. 400 per month'. I also quoted what was stated in the report on the Indian Constitution Reforms: 'Educational wastage is everywhere excessive and analysis shows that it is largely due to under-payment and want of proper training in the case of teachers'. What was stated by the then Director of Public Instruction in the quinquennial report was also quoted: 'Provident funds are rare, the scale of salaries is often inadequate, promotion is limited, and the management is not always satisfactory'. A memorial also has been submitted to the Government by the Council of the Association of Headmasters in which they have narrated the scales now in force. They quote statistics, and then state: 'From statistics collected by the South India Teachers' Union, we have information as to the salaries of 298 L.Ts. employed in various classes of schools scattered in different parts of the Presidency. Sixty of these are headmasters of complete secondary schools in receipt of salaries of Rs. 100 a month and above. Three of the 60 headmasters are on Rs. 100 a month; 16 receive between Rs. 100 and Rs. 125; 19 between Rs. 125 and Rs. 150; 3 between Rs. 175 and Rs. 200, and two Rs. 200. Of the remaining 238 L.Ts. only 55 get Rs. 100 or above, the others remaining on lower salaries than Rs. 100'. And then they propose the following salaries: for a headmaster Rs. 150 to Rs. 300, other L.Ts. Rs. 90 to Rs. 140, for pandits Rs. 35 to Rs. 55 and so forth. I understand that that memorial is still pending consideration at the hands of the Government."

"The Government sanctioned a scale for the new schools they started, the new secondary schools started in the Presidency. The Council is aware that some middle schools were raised to the status of secondary schools in the course of that year and then a uniform scale was provided under that scheme. The headmaster gets Rs. 125 and the assistants are started on a uniform pay of Rs. 80 rising to Rs. 100. It is time that something were done to improve the pay and prospects of these teachers. I would suggest that a small beginning be made next year, and large subsidies may be given to local bodies to increase the salary of the teachers in their employment. As regards the Government schools, there is no difficulty whatever. They may raise their salary at once. Some modest scale might be adopted. For the present I shall even be satisfied with the scale which the Government have recently sanctioned, and in the case of private schools liberal grants-in-aid may be given earmarked for the purpose of raising the salary of teachers in their schools. It has been done in Bombay. If the ordinary grant is not sufficient, a supplementary grant may be made in the case of deserving schools; and one-third or even half of the ordinary grant may be given mainly for the improvement of the salary of the teachers. That has been done in Bombay. There are so many grants for building purposes, for equipment and so on. Some special grant for raising the salary of teachers may be made, I am aware that the Government of India made a recurring grant of Rs. 4 lakhs for raising the pay and for the training of these teachers; but I am sorry to see that no portion of this grant has gone towards raising the pay of the secondary school teachers. Your Excellency, I think it is high time that something should be done in the matter. When I moved the last resolution, the then Director of Public Instruction was all sympathy with the resolution, though he was not prepared to go the length I suggested in the resolution. I wish that some allotment should be made for the purpose in the next budget."

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES :—"Your Excellency, various steps which I need not specifically enumerate have been taken to raise the pay of the teachers in secondary schools. The salaries of teachers in several secondary schools under local bodies or Government have been revised and proposals for others are under consideration. But the main body of our secondary school teachers are in aided institutions, which employ roughly speaking three out of every four teachers employed in the Presidency. If we are to accept this resolution, we shall find ourselves in a difficulty in the application of the Grant-in-Aid Code. The fundamental principle of our Code is that we pay one-half the net cost of maintaining secondary schools and whenever the management of a school has addressed the department with a suggestion or proposal that it is prepared to increase the pay of the staff, then the Government and the department have invariably been sympathetic and paid half the additional net cost. But the trouble lies with the management who are not, as a rule, prepared to meet half the additional expenditure. The question of revising the existing provision in the Code has been just referred back to the Director of Public Instruction in a Government Order of the 25th January, and I shall have to examine the question of alterations in the Code which is bound to include such a question as the one raised here, and it is possible that something may be found possible to aid these teachers who are really in need of an increased scale of salary. But nothing can be promised except that the matter will be investigated. In view of the fact that the question is just about to be re-considered, I do not suppose the Honourable Member will wish to press his resolution."

(Mr. Littlehailes ; Mr. Siva Rao ; Mr. Venkatapati Raju.) [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I wish to say a few words in reply. It is certainly true that most of these secondary institutions are managed privately, but the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction has said that if they are prepared to raise the salary, let them do so and the Government will be ready to pay half the cost. But even that half the cost the managers cannot afford to bear. It is just the same concession which is shown in the case of dispensaries started in rural areas. For instance the Government have offered to pay half the cost of a new dispensary opened in rural areas. How many local bodies have taken advantage of it? Only very few. Because they are not able to bear even half the cost. The result is even if the concession is shown, they take very little advantage. As I said, as has been done in Bombay some grant may be earmarked for the purpose specially. We have building grants, teaching grants, equipment grants. Let there be some grant for private schools for the purpose of enabling them to raise the salaries of teachers. In the case of schools under public management, the local bodies should be liberally helped in this matter. I do not think this was one of the matters referred to in the Government Order of the 25th January. I have to refer to it later on in another connexion. I do not think this is one of the matters that are discussed in that Government Order. Anyhow the Director of Public Instruction assures us or gives out the hope that this matter will be sympathetically considered, and that is all that I wish should be done. I have therefore no further wish to press the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE REDUCTION OF SCHOOL AND COLLEGE FEES.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU moved the following resolution:—

'XVII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 1,35,150, i.e., 25 per cent of the present school and college fees revenue shown in XIX a, b, c, d, be deducted and that the provision under 45-B. CIVIL WORKS be reduced by the same amount.'

In doing so he said:—"Your Excellency, my proposal in this resolution is to reduce the existing scale of fees in Government colleges and other institutions, technical and professional, by 25 per cent. I need not dilate once more in this Council upon the necessity of reducing the fees. That question I have raised and discussed threadbare. I know perfectly well the attitude of Government; they say that the institutions should be made self-supporting and therefore no encouragement should be given by reducing school fees. Then it was pointed out that the spread of education stopped on account of the high scale of fees levied in the institutions. We are not considering what steps we have to take with reference to the deduction of fees in other than Government institutions. because if we once agree to reduce the fees in Government institutions, it is very easy to secure a reduction in other institutions belonging to private bodies. But the question is whether it is desirable to maintain the fees at this high rate or whether it is desirable to reduce it. I have calculated that by the reduction the Government might lose Rs. 1.35 lakhs which is a small sum as compared with the amount which is provided for being spent on education. This will afford additional facilities for a large number of students. The high rate of fees is counterbalanced in other institutions by providing scholarships to a great number of poor students whose means are limited and who are unable to continue their study, but for some scholarships. But in these institutions we have not got even that advantage of having scholarships to keep pace with the demand of poor students who are men of ability but have not got the means of obtaining collegiate education. If the Government think it is necessary to raise the standard of fees to prevent boys who are otherwise unable to cope with the study for higher education because higher education is a luxury which could be secured only by those who can afford, who have the means to secure that education—if that is the policy, then we differ from that policy. We cannot discuss now that question. If you want to keep the fees at a high figure in order to see that persons who are unable to cope with it do not bother themselves with higher education and such of those poor people as have got the ability and as come to prominence in the lower classes are not to be given encouragement—if that is the policy I respectfully submit that is not the correct policy, because we must secure the wider spread of education to the largest number of people; it is not for us to say whether the students should go and take advantage of higher education. It is a fact known to everyone of the councillors that most of the people are unable to continue higher grades of study on account of the high fees and also on account of the cost of going to a different place because they have no institutions in the locality where they have their parents. As definite recommendations are wanted, I have made this important definite recommendation that one-fourth of the existing fees may be reduced to give help to the poor students."

5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Littlehailes ; Mr. Venkatapati Raju ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ; the President ; Mr. Sadasiva Bhat.)

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES:—"This resolution is, I submit, extremely vague in its application. The Council is asked to recommend that a sum of Rs. 1.35 lakhs, that is, 25 per cent of the present school and college fee revenue, be deducted. The vagueness is evident to any one who endeavours to ascertain how we are to reduce the fees by Rs. 1.35 lakhs. Is the reduction to take place on a uniform scale throughout or is the reduction to take place partly in one direction and partly in another, 50 per cent in one direction and 10 per cent decrease in another?"

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I said an all-round reduction."

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES:—"I do not think the resolution can be discussed. The policy of reduction of fees has been thoroughly threshed out in this Council and on the present occasion we are only concerned with the disposition of the available funds and we cannot discuss with any value or with any fruitful result the reduction of fees when the policy of reduction of fees has not been accepted."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"May I know what is meant by the reference to the fact that the policy of reduction of fees has been rejected?"

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES:—"May I explain? I merely meant to say that the Honourable Mover of the resolution had already spoken on a previous occasion and made his suggestion at a previous meeting at which it was not accepted."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I do not know if I was exactly present at that meeting and, I believe, it would not be ultra vires at this meeting to come to the conclusion that a reduction of fees is desirable, taking the present circumstances into consideration. The whole question is whether we should have a reduction of fees. The Hon'ble Mr. Littlehailes thinks that the discussion was so recent that it is unnecessary to raise it again. I will, however, say this, that the matter is one which is worthy of consideration by the Honourable Members of this Council, because we have repeatedly heard complaints that education is made increasingly costly and if any little effort can be made, by the reduction of 25 per cent or by some other method, it is worth while making it. Therefore there is something to be said in favour of the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Your Excellency, the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction says he does not agree, and the Government do not propose, to deviate from the policy once adopted. Still I press for a division on this resolution, because on principle we wish that there should be a wider spread of education at less cost to the students. I have suggested there should be a 25 per cent reduction in the school fees; where the present fee is Rs. 100, it must be reduced to Rs. 75. Because one definite mole has to be suggested I have suggested this, not that I am enamoured of this percentage. I still pray Your Excellency that a division may be taken."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"If I might say so, though I have admitted this resolution, the Honourable Gentleman would be better advised to bring it forward on another occasion. As regards the general principle of the reduction of fees, the difficulty which the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction has mentioned is a real one. We are now dealing with the figures in this particular budget, and unless we have a plan according to which we could reduce the fees, no reduction of fees can be made in this budget. It is a practical difficulty to which the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction is quite correct in drawing attention. The resolution is general in its terms. I am not quite sure whether I have not gone too far in admitting it in the order paper. In this matter of the financial discussion we must have definite proposals. Apparently the Honourable Member brought this forward on a previous occasion, and we have discussed it on the present occasion, but at a later period he will have a chance of bringing it forward when the general principle of the reduction of fees to be carried out may be brought forward and then the Government can set to work on a plan or decide to work out a reduction. That is all that can be said on the present occasion."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I do not press it, Your Excellency, though I am not satisfied."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE ADDITIONAL PROVISION FOR BOARD SECONDARY SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"I beg to move—

'XVIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that an additional provision of Rs. 16,000 be made under 22-E. EDUCATION for Board secondary school buildings and raising the status of the Karkal Board middle school, and the same be met by a corresponding reduction under 45-B.'

"In the first place I wish to beg Your Excellency's leave to state that I did not intend to ask for a provision for Board secondary school buildings generally in the Presidency, but I intended to ask for help for secondary school buildings in the South Kanara district. I beg leave to be permitted to add the words 'as a grant to the South Kanara District Board' or 'in the South Kanara district.'"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I hardly think these words are necessary."

(Mr. Sadasiva Bhat; Mr. Littlehailes;
Mr. Siva Rao.)

[5TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT :—" I put this resolution down, because I learnt that applications for grants to the extent of Rs. 16,000 had been sent by the South Kanara District Board in connexion with secondary school buildings in South Kanara. About Rs. 6,000 for the Karkal Middle school for rebuilding it and about Rs. 10,000 for the extension of the new high school in Udipi and the newly sanctioned middle schools in our district. I learn that the applications could not be sent in time before the Finance Committee met or before the preparation of the Financial Statement, and I was anxious that if the proposals should come up for consideration and should be taken up this year, there should not be any objection that there was no budget allotment for these proposals. Therefore it is I put down this resolution.

"With regard to the raising of the status of the Karkal school, that was a proposition which was unanimously recommended both by the taluk board which is managing the school and by the South Kanara District Board. I understand that the matter is under consideration and that the department have asked the district board to state whether any guarantee could be given for the maintenance of the high school classes in Karkal. I know as a matter of fact Rupees 10,000 have been promised by the people to the district board provided the fourth form is opened in the beginning of the next school year. I am therefore anxious that the Board should be in a position to accept this generous offer made by the people and that the Government should be able to find the funds for opening the fourth form class in the Karkal Board Middle school. This is a small sum and I hope that whether specifically these different items that I refer to are included in the budget or not, money should be found for them in the course of the year."

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES :—" Your Excellency, I may just mention that there is no need to make a separate budget provision for this Rs. 16,000. We have already provided in the budget a large amount for giving subsidies to local bodies for the construction of schools and the Honourable Member's request will be noted for consideration by the Government."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE GRANT OF SCHOLARSHIPS TO INDIGENT PUPILS IN SECONDARY SCHOOLS.

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO :—" Your Excellency, this resolution stands thus :—

'XIX. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the allotment under 22-G. EDUCATION—Grant-in-aid—may be increased by Rs. 40,000 to provide for the grant of scholarships to indigent pupils in secondary schools up to 10 per cent on the rolls in accordance with the recommendations of the Educational Conference of 1916 and that the same may be met by a corresponding reduction under the head of 45. CIVIL WORKS.'

"Your Excellency, this is a very old question. In 1916 the Director of Public Instruction was instructed to summon a conference of officials and non-officials for the purpose of discussing certain questions bearing on the Grant-in-Aid Code and the recommendation that was unanimously arrived at in that conference was : 'For the purpose of granting fee concessions to indigent pupils of marked ability, expenditure by managing bodies on scholarships up to a limit of ten per cent of the fee income, reckoned at the standard rates, be considered as legitimate expenditure for the purpose of assessing the grant that might be paid to a school, provided that the scheme for the award of scholarships or fee concessions has received the approval of the Director of Public Instruction.' That was the recommendation made in February 1916. It was pending consideration before the Government since then. In May 1917 I brought up the resolution. On the assurance of sympathetic consideration by the then Director of Public Instruction I made up my mind to withdraw it. Then I brought it up again; I waited for some time, nearly a year, and I brought it forward in March 1918. Then the Hon'ble Mr. Stone was pleased to say that he had recommended to the Government that in calculating the standard rates and the grants admissible 10 per cent should be disregarded in order to provide scholarships to indigent pupils. I had very high hopes that on the strength of the recommendation of the then Director of Public Instruction the scheme would be carried into effect. Again it was pressed from time to time, and on the 25th January 1919 a Government Order seems to have been issued by the Government vetoing that recommendation of the Educational Conference. The reasons given by them are these. The first reason given is : 'The Government observe that under the existing rules about 85.5 per cent of the possible pupils are already eligible for half-fee concessions.' I do not know how these figures are arrived at. In paragraph 8 they say : 'the original list of backward classes according to the Grant-in-Aid Code of 1880 contained only twelve classes. By repeated augmentations the list in the present Code now contains 132 classes, forming nearly 55 per cent of the population.' There they state 85 per cent, here they state 55 per cent. I do not know which is correct. But whatever it may be, under the present system there are concessions shown to Muhammadans, Uriyas and backward classes. They provide for half rates being levied from these people. There is absolutely no concession shown in the case of indigent pupils of marked ability unless they belong to the backward classes. I need not detain the Council with a definition of backward classes, but it is highly 5TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Siva Rao; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Littlehailes;

the President; Mr. Rama Ayyangar.)

necessary that indigent pupils, deserving pupils whose needs are scanty, should be helped in a matter like this. In the same Government Order it is stated : 'Effect can most suitably be given to it by a system of scholarships which will attract the best material into secondary schools. But the Government are unable to accept the view that a uniform ratio applied to each school irrespective of varying conditions and requirements is the most appropriate method.' They also say that if they fix a maximum 10 per cent all at once, probably the local bodies would abuse the discretion that has been vested in them; they will go on making reckless concessions. So far as that fear is concerned, it seems to me unfounded. There is no reason to be afraid that local bodies would make an indiscriminate use of this discretion. Local bodies will have power to sanction scholarships up to ten per cent, and the Government may take it for granted that the local bodies will use the power properly. The Government put forward an alternative suggestion that effect can most suitably be given to it by a system of scholarships which will attract the best material into secondary schools. Whether the controlling power is in their own hands or whether they give it to local bodies is not a matter of very great concern. I am anxious to see that at least the scholarships should be enlarged instead of being limited by making a provision in the Grant-in-Aid Code. If the allotment under scholarships is raised by Rs. 40,000 in order to provide for all these schools, I shall be satisfied. Now there are scholarships also under the present scheme. The Inspector of each circle is given ten or twelve scholarships to be distributed among all the secondary schools. This goes very little way towards palliating the evil. I should be thankful if the Government are pleased to raise the allotment. Let them retain the control in their own hands. Let the Inspector distribute the scholarships. If an assurance is given in that direction, that the scholarships would be raised, I shall be quite content. I do not want the local bodies to be given power or private bodies to be given the power to sanction these scholarships. But if the need is kept in mind, and if the Inspector of Schools is to allot the scholarships liberally, that is all that I ask for. Then it is also stated that 'The Director of Public Instruction is requested to re-examine the whole question in the light of these facts and to submit further proposals for the consideration of the Government.' This discussion will be a sort of guide to the Director."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—" Before the Director of Public Instruction replies to this resolution, I want to have some information with reference to paragraph 7 of this Government Order. There it is stated : 'The Government observe that, under the existing rules, about 85.5 per cent of the possible pupils are already eligible for half-fee concession.' I do not know if the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction is in possession of information to give to the House to-day as to the real percentage actually receiving half-fee concession. No doubt they may be allotable up to that limit, 85 per cent, but what is the actual percentage of pupils now receiving half-fee aid?"

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES :—" In the first place with regard to the question of the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar the figures could not be collected within any reasonable time. Secondly with regard to the general question I do not know whether the Honourable Member wishes to press it. The question has been referred back to the Director in a specific manner and I do not know if any useful purpose will be achieved by a discussion of the subject on its merits now."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO :—" I think the discussion will have its own value though I do not want to press the resolution."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" What the Honourable Member has said will certainly be noted."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—" Your Excellency, I only wish to point out that the way in which the question has been viewed in paragraph 7 of the Government Order is not the view that was taken by the conference. No doubt the Government have passed an order and sent it up for further consideration by the Director of Public Instruction. I only submit that the Government had already fixed certain standard fees which were found to be fairly very high. All that the conference recommended was that concession may be allowed on the principles to be laid down by the Director of Public Instruction to help indigent boys of real merit. Apparently the Government in the latter part say : 'They apprehend that, if the effect were given to the resolution, this proportion would be enhanced. Pressure would be exercised on each school to utilize to the full the suggested maximum limit of ten per cent, and regardless of the original intention the concessions would then be granted irrespective of the poverty of the parents or the capacity of the pupil. While fee concessions are a legitimate form of inducement in the case of elementary education until compulsion is introduced, in the case of secondary schools much greater regard must be had to the selection principle.' It is these observations which deserve to be modified. The real point is the inspecting officer or some other officer may be also allowed to pass the cases in which the management or the Principal may allow this reduction, but the general help that is needed is that in calculating the scale of fees, the full standard rate, this ten per cent may be allotted for this purpose. That would give a wide range for the boys in a particular area. It would be well to select areas at least and allow the principle as a whole. If it is to be decided on application in each individual case, I submit it will be impossible to arrive at a correct conclusion. In fact it will depend upon the various recommendations made. On the other hand, it is much better exercised by the Principal and the Inspector of the place who may be asked finally to pass the cases in which that recommendation is made or something like that. But, however, the principle that has been recommended by the conference, I submit, requires to be completely supported even at this stage by the Director of Public Instruction and the Government."

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. A. S. Krishna [5TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Rao; Mr. Siva Rao; the President; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.]

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—" My Lord, it is only this morning that I have been able to look into this Government Order which finally disposes of the recommendations of the Educational Conference which was called by the Government about three years ago. I think the Hon'ble Mr. Littlehales was the secretary of the conference. I was a member and I believe the Hon'ble Mr. Pittendrigh and the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar were also members. It was the unanimous opinion of all the managers of aided secondary schools who were present at the conference that they should have a certain amount of discretion in awarding scholarships to those who resort to their institutions. That was a very old privilege which was taken away and they wanted that this should be restored and that due allowance should be made in the calculation of the fee income for the purpose of grants to secondary institutions. Now, my Lord, I must express my great disappointment at the conclusion to which the Government have come to in paragraph 7 with reference to that important question, because that was a question debated for a great deal of time, and, I recollect, with a great deal of warmth by the managers of secondary schools who were present at that conference. Therefore if the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao is willing to accept the alternative that is suggested here, namely, of raising the number of the scholarships, I must express my dissent. If this is going to influence the Hon'ble Mr. Littlehales in re-examining the question, I must say clearly that the view expressed at the conference is the only view that would be acceptable to the managers of secondary schools. The awarding of scholarships is entirely on a different footing. I do not think that was what the conference intended to recommend. This portion of the order is not relevant to the present inquiry, and it is not at all in consonance with the discussion which took place at the time. On the general question of awarding scholarships as suggested here, there would be no difference of opinion. Perhaps a suitable scheme would have to be evolved and the number of scholarships increased. That is on a different footing. The question of increasing the number of scholarships also formed the subject of discussion here, but that is on an entirely different principle. Therefore, my Lord, I must express my dissent if the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao is willing to convert his request into a request for more scholarships."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO :—" I have a few remarks to make with reference to this resolution. Though this resolution deserves to be supported, a new point has been introduced in the course of the discussion which it is better to keep out of our minds for the present. The resolution suggests that the recommendations of the Educational Conference of 1916 should be given effect to, in so far as it suggested the grant of scholarships up to a limit of ten per cent; in other words to have it declared that expenditure can be legitimately incurred up to ten per cent for the purpose of encouraging indigent pupils. So far as that question is concerned, it is a matter in which the Government must enable the managing bodies to exercise their discretion in the best manner possible and to do it properly. The other question which has been introduced is not, I believe, quite relevant to the matter under discussion. It has been suggested that, though local bodies are not given discretion, still if scholarships are more liberally given by the Inspectors the purpose would be served. I myself have some objection to that course; but I do not think it is necessary to enter into any elaborate discussion of this principle, because the whole question is going to be reconsidered by the Director of Public Instruction. If this disagreement is not given expression to, it may be taken that others are also willing that Inspectors may be given a free hand and that the local bodies need not be given any discretion. I only wish that the recommendations of the Educational Conference are given effect to in the best manner possible. If, as pointed out in the Government Order, any safeguards are necessary to see that that power is not abused, let them be provided. It is urged that once this rule is passed, pressure may be brought to bear on the management to work up to ten per cent. If it is necessary to impose checks or safeguards, you may take precautionary measures to avoid such abuses; but do not take away the discretion from the managing authority."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO :—" If the whole matter is to be reconsidered by the Government, I withdraw the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" Before we adjourn, I should like to have some information as to the wishes of the Council. What we propose to do is to sit to-morrow and the day after and sit till 2 o'clock on Saturday and sit if necessary on Monday for the continuance of our business. If that is to the convenience of the Council, we will follow that course."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—" There is an idea that we might have the whole of Saturday free on account of the big Bill."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—" The discussion of the City Municipal Bill may be commenced on Monday if the rest of the business is finished by Friday evening. We do not want to have the discussion on the City Municipal Bill before Monday in any event."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" We shall see how we get on. We need not be too rigid."

The Council then adjourned till 11 a.m. on Thursday the 6th February 1919.

H. G. STOKES,
Acting Secretary to Govt., L. & M. (Legislative) Dept.

Proceedings of an Adjourned Meeting of the Council of the Governor of Fort St. George assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations, under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.

The Council re-assembled at the Council Chamber, Fort St. George, at 11 a.m. on Thursday, the 6th day of February 1919.

P R E S E N T :

His Excellency the Right Hon'ble JOHN, Baron PENTLAND of Lyth, P.C., G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., Governor of Madras—Presiding.
The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW, K.C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR Avargal, C.I.M.
The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble MUHAMMAD AZIZ-UD-DIN HUSAIN SAHIB Bahadur, Khan Bahadur, C.I.M., I.S.O., O.B.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. BUCKLEY, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. Y. G. CAMPBELL, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. W. J. J. HOWLEY.
The Hon'ble Mr. W. HUTTON.
The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES.
The Hon'ble Mr. N. E. MARJORIBANKS.
The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur R. RAMACHANDRA RAO Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. S. SRINIVASA AYYANGAR (Advocate-General).
The Hon'ble Mr. H. G. STOKES, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. O. G. TODHUNTER.
The Hon'ble Mr. M. YOUNG.
The Hon'ble Mr. R. B. WOOD.
The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble the Rev. G. PITTENDRIGH.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO PANTULU.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO PANTULU Garu.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO PANTULU.
The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur A. SUBBARAYALU REDDIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIYA BHAT.
The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR.
The Hon'ble Sri Raja Rao VENKATA KUMARA MAHIPATI SURYA Rao Bahadur, Raja of Pithapuram.
The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARAMNATHA MUDALIYAR.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. KUMARAN RAMAN KAVALLAPPARA MUPPIL NAYAR.
The Hon'ble Yaqub HASAN SAHIB Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER, Kt.
The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER.
The Hon'ble Sir FAIRLESS BARBER, Kt.
The Hon'ble the Most Rev. JOHN ABLEN, D.D.
The Hon'ble Mr. T. RICHMOND.
The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING, K.C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur K. R. SURYANARAYANAMUSTI NATUDU Garu.
The Hon'ble Raja Sri Ravu VENKATA KUMARA KRISHNA RANGA Rao Bahadur, Raja of Bobbili.
The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR.

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; Mr. Littlehailes.) [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

RESOLUTION RE INCREASED PROVISION UNDER BUILDING GRANTS FOR THE GOVERNMENT MUHAMMADAN SECONDARY SCHOOL, GEORGETOWN.

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"Your Excellency, I have the honour to move the following resolution:—

'XX. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the provision of Rs. 3,13,000 for building grants under the head 22-G. Education be raised by one lakh to provide buildings for the Government Muhammadan Secondary School, Georgetown, and some of the Government Muhammadan elementary schools in the City of Madras and the same be met by a corresponding reduction under the head 45. Civil Works.'

"Your Excellency is aware that there is an incomplete secondary school for Muhammadans in Georgetown, which has no building of its own. Last year I moved the Government to give this school the building which has subsequently been utilized for the housing of the Students' Club. The building in which the school is now located is very small and it has no room for some of the classes which are being held in the veranda; there is no room certainly for expansion. Nowadays a suitable building is considered a sine qua non for a school and it is strange that a Government school, of all others, should continue to remain in a hired building. The Madrasa-i-Azam which is now located on Mount Road was suffered to remain in a hired building for about half a century. I hope that will not be the case with the building of this school. Besides this school there are several elementary schools maintained by Government for Muhammadans in the City of Madras, none of which has a building of its own. Government schools used to be the model schools for municipalities and for private bodies to copy, but in the matter of buildings I find that the reverse is the case in this city. The Corporation has provided buildings for its elementary schools, whereas the Government have not provided any building for the Government elementary schools. Thus the Corporation has taken a march over Government in this respect, and I hope that the Government will lose no time in remedying this defect. There was a time when the putting up of a suitable building was taken up in hand before a school itself was established. I remember the late Director Dr. Bourne put up several buildings for elementary schools before the schools themselves were established. I ask in this resolution for one lakh of rupees to be allotted for this purpose. Of course, the whole amount will not be spent in the course of the year on the secondary school building because there is no plan to go upon. It will take some time, but still if this amount is ear-marked for this purpose, steps may be taken to acquire a site and some money will be spent on acquiring it and the remaining money may be utilized for some of the other elementary schools for Muhammadans, or at least sites may be purchased for them in the course of the year. What I want is that the Government should take up this matter seriously in hand; they must have a building programme and they should spend one lakh every year till the building programme is completed. I find in this budget that a sum of about Rs. 6 lakhs was provided as grant for elementary school buildings and a sum of Rs. 3 lakhs was provided for buildings for secondary schools, but afterwards that amount was reduced to Rs. 3,85,000 in the one case and Rs. 2,50,000 in the other case and these two amounts are kept aside as grants to local bodies for schools. I would suggest that, instead of reducing the grant under this head, the original figures may be restored, at any rate rupees one lakh may be allotted for buildings as far as the schools that I am speaking about are concerned. It is immaterial to me where this money is to be got from, all that I want is that one lakh be provided. To meet the rules and regulations I have provided that this money may be taken from Civil Buildings; but if the Government are willing to spend this money on Muhammadan schools they can surely find some way of finding money and I have no objection to it. With these words I commend the resolution for the acceptance of the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES:—"Your Excellency, I think I had better explain the position to the Honourable Mover. It is under the head 22-G. that the Government set apart a certain sum of money which ought to be spent as grants-in-aid to aided institutions. All Government institutions are under the Public Works Department and they are built by the Public Works Department and provision is made in the Public Works Department budget for the construction of new Government institutions. The proposal now if accepted would have exactly the opposite effect to that which is desired by the Honourable Mover of this resolution. That being the case, Sir, I think it is unnecessary for me to enter into what has been done by the department and into what is being done by the department for the construction of buildings and the advancement of education for Muhammadans."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"Your Excellency, as I said in my speech it is immaterial to me whether this allotment is got from this head or from that head. It is only a technical point that the Hon'ble Mr. Littlehailes has raised when he said that the amount allotted under Public Works Department head for educational buildings cannot be interfered with. What I aim at is that these schools which are Government schools should have buildings, and if there is anything in the resolution which could be amended so that this object is attained I am willing to amend it. All that I want is that one lakh of rupees should be spent in acquiring sites in the course of the year for buildings to be proceeded with."

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (The President; Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Krishna Rao; Mr. Littlehailes.)

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman is in error in putting down a motion which does not further the object he has in view. We are obliged in the Council to consider the motion which he has presented and which has been admitted and put on the paper. The motion on paper as pointed out by the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction will have the reverse effect of what he wishes. His speech has been directed not really to his motion but to another matter. That other matter is simply this, that he desires that as soon as may be practicable Government Muhammadan schools should be installed in Government buildings. That is what he really wants, that permanent buildings should be erected for the purpose. With that purpose, I may say generally that the Government are in sympathy and we are making some progress in that direction, but until plans and estimates have been prepared and until actual schemes can be put before the department, we cannot ask the Finance Department for the money. I hope he will rest content with that assurance. The motion that is put down will take the money away and prevent that being done."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"If I had said in my resolution that 1 lakh should be provided for this purpose it would perhaps have been alright. But as the Government are in sympathy with my object I have no objection to withdraw the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE INCREASED ALLOTMENT FOR SCHOLARSHIPS TO MUFASSAL STUDENTS.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I am asked to move the two resolutions standing in the name of the Hon'ble the Raja of Ramnad:—I beg to move the following resolution:—

'XXI. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 75,000 be added to the allotment made under 22-H. Education for giving scholarships to mufassal students pursuing collegiate course, and a corresponding reduction be made under 32-E. Miscellaneous (Miscellaneous and unforeseen charges).'

"This resolution is intended to afford additional facilities for poor and deserving students in the mufassal who find it difficult to pursue their studies in colleges. It is unnecessary for me to expatiate at any length to convince this Council that, with the increased college fees and the increased cost of living, it is not possible for persons of ordinary means to prosecute their studies in the college. For this reason brilliant young men in various mufassal districts in this Presidency are prevented from pursuing their studies and are forced to seek employment with very doubtful and uncertain results in the various walks of life. The problem for consideration is how best that situation can be got over and how best facilities can be really afforded to the deserving students for that purpose. Attempts made in this Council for the purpose of reducing college fees were not successful nor am I prepared to think that that would by itself solve the whole problem, because it is not the college fees alone which contribute to the increased cost of education but various other factors which have to be taken into consideration. One of the ways in which some facilities can be afforded to the really deserving students is by adopting this resolution and making some provision to enable deserving students to get scholarships for the purpose."

"This resolution suggests that a sum of Rs. 75,000 be provided for giving scholarships for mufassal students. The scheme is a very simple one and can be easily worked out, if funds are allotted for the purpose. If the scheme is accepted, it is possible to make provision for 10 students in each district getting a scholarship of Rs. 25 each, which will largely cover some of the important expenses attending collegiate education. With a scholarship of Rs. 25 for 10 students in all the 25 districts, there will be ample opportunity for 250 deserving students receiving the benefits of the collegiate education throughout the Presidency. I know this will necessitate increased expenditure in other directions—additional accommodation in colleges, and additional facilities for the purpose. I believe attempts are being made in various colleges to increase the accommodation and afford facilities for the purpose. If once this scheme is accepted it is not difficult to work out the details as to the manner in which it has to be carried into effect. It may be possible to appoint some sort of Selection Committees in each district consisting of the Collector, the heads of educational institutions in the district and also two or three leading gentlemen who will be in a position to appreciate the fitness and the capacity of the individuals and make a proper selection. I believe, my Lord, that if this provision is made much will be done to improve collegiate education in this Presidency. With these words I commend the resolution for the acceptance of this Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. LITTLEHAILES:—"Your Excellency, may I invite attention to the ambiguity of the wording of this resolution? We are asked to provide money for giving scholarships to mufassal students pursuing a collegiate course. We are not told where the mufassal students are to read, whether in Madras or in up-country colleges. We should draw a distinction between mufassal students who are living already in a collegiate centre and those up-country students who are not living in a collegiate centre. If we are to provide scholarships to be held in Madras, the question at once arises as to why there should be preferential treatment for Madras. Would not Trichinopoly, a large educational centre, demand its quota of scholarships? If these scholarships are to be held by students who are already living in a college centre, it is not quite clear why we should be asked to spend this large sum of Rs. 25 per mensem upon those students who are already residing with their parents in their own homes. I should like to draw attention to the immense advance that has been made in the budget provision for collegiate scholarships within recent years. For collegiate scholarships, Rs. 12,000 was the budget provision for scholarship in Arts colleges alone 16 years ago; it was Rs. 10,000 or Rs. 11,000 ten years ago. It was increased very much with the change in the regulations first to Rs. 13,000 and last year we spent Rs. 33,250 upon these scholarships. The Government have not been unmindful of the need of awarding scholarships and the prime factor that has to be taken into consideration when scholarships are to be awarded is that scholarships should be awarded only to those young men whom we have known to be brilliant. Now, sir, I take it that the brilliant young men are those who are capable of taking up the honours courses. We must assume that they are of that calibre. We already award an amount of money by means of which one-fourth of the total number of students reading in the honours classes are able to hold scholarships. The proposal to allot Rs. 75,000 additional would mean that 146 students in all would be able to receive scholarships while the total number of students in the Presidency reading in the honours courses is 134. The proposal would, therefore, mean the awarding of a larger number of scholarships than the total number of students reading in the honours classes throughout the Presidency. I think the Honourable Member may also take into consideration that scholarships are awarded by college authorities and further more there are university scholarships and there are special endowments, special provision being made by charitable bodies for awarding scholarships.

(Mr. Littlehales; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Rama Ayyangar.]

"Bearing this in mind it seems to me that the need for scholarships has been amply considered up to the present because, as I said at the start, our main factor as pointed out by the Honourable Mover himself is that we should have brilliant young men. Coupled with that we must have the added qualification that students cannot continue their studies without aid of some kind or another."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I do not understand the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction to say that the required needs are met and that no students are turned away for want of funds. Whether all the deserving students that apply for aid get it, whether the funds provided are sufficient and whether the department finds it difficult to meet the demands for scholarship with the funds now provided—these are the points on which the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction should give information to the Council. The first portion of his speech was I regret to note a verbal criticism on the terms of the resolution and in the latter portion did he grapple with the substance of the resolution. I ask the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction to note the substance of the resolution. If Rs. 75,000 is too much why not give Rs. 60,000 or Rupees 50,000? I know, as a matter of fact, poor students with excellent certificate from Principals of Colleges and headmasters of schools are going round everyday begging for aid; as a matter of fact, there are several of these and we have to provide for dozens of students like that in the course of the year and I do think that there is need for brilliant young men being provided with means to carry on their education. If I understood the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction to say that all these needs are met I am afraid his information is wrong. I would therefore ask the Honourable the Director to sympathetically consider this question and not merely to criticise the terms of the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"Your Excellency; I wish to add a few words to the discussion. Two words have been tried to be defined—who are brilliant young men. It was mentioned these are the men that will go up to the honours course. The wording of the resolution is that it should be the persons pursuing the collegiate courses. I mean that the resolution apparently wants that at the stage of the Secondary School-leaving Certificate class it happens that many students have to discontinue their studies and naturally when they give up their studies they take to some employment and they are not able to further their prospects except in exceptional cases. I know, My Lord, many Christian students, many non-Brahmans have been compelled to discontinue their studies because of their inability to pay their college fees in the intermediate course also. Personal references are not necessary, but I know a case in which a brilliant Christian boy from Periyakulam had to be helped to join the intermediate class. There was no chance of his continuing his studies, his father being a pastor who was not able to maintain the big family that he had. The boy was a brilliant young boy and the American Mission College was not able to give him a scholarship and the people at Madura had to join to keep up the boy in the college. There are many other cases of that kind. I think the case of non-brahmans, brilliant boys, boys who are likely to have a bright future, often they had to stop away from the collegiate courses. A thorough inquiry into this matter will fully well reveal that there is an abundant necessity for a much larger provision than what has been asked for; if only the Government accept the principle that there should be an attempt made to find out brilliant students whose courses will be out off after the Secondary School-leaving certificate is given them and put them in colleges where they will be able surely to exhibit the symptoms of the brilliancy which has been suggested in the course of the discussion, it will be enough. Brilliant young student does not mean that when he enters the honours course his brilliancy is proved. Even in the School Final Examination we find boys getting brilliant marks in particular subjects. It may be that in the previous places where they had not sufficient competition or they had not fine learning imparted to them by brilliant teachers, they look rather not quite fit to take up a brilliant course but by subsequent teaching or subsequent contact with the brilliant boys, the faculties of some boys are so much developed that in a short time, say with a two years' course in the intermediate class, the boys show a brilliancy and are able to disprove previous impressions. Therefore, My Lord, a careful attempt to select students, who would be absolutely unfit to continue their studies if left to themselves, but who after careful observation will be seen to exhibit symptoms of future good career should be made. The Selection Committee proposed in the course of the speech of the Honourable Mover will be able to exercise some amount of discretion to select the boys who will come under that category. I presume, My Lord, that it is now almost accepted by the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction in the course of the argument that he adopted that the Government are intent upon seeing that brilliancy is encouraged when otherwise it would stop away without further education. If this argument is granted, I think the provision that is asked to be made will be found to be too little if a serious attempt were made in each mufassal centre to select not very many but as it has been said to select only about 250 students in all the 25 districts we will find that there are a much larger number of students who deserve the scholarships and who will be able to prove to the satisfaction of Government that they have really been selected properly and their interest will be promoted so that really the worth of the country would advance. Those students will be able to add to the credit of the University by the studies that they make. Therefore I think it is a matter in which if the proposal is accepted we can select students in mufassal areas,—we are only proposing about 10 or 8 students for a population on an average of 2 millions and that is not a number which we will not get and it will be quite possible to find very brilliant students in a hopelessly poor condition in the school final course who will otherwise have to stop prosecuting their studies. I support this resolution."

[6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Mr. Siva Rao: the President;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I heartily sympathise with the object of this resolution. The only question seems to be whether the provision now made in the budget is sufficient to meet the needs of deserving but poor students who wish to pursue their collegiate course. Speaking of my own district, Ceded districts, I may say that many a student is cut off from college career because he has not got the means to pursue it; he can ill-afford to bear the heavy expenses of a college training. As regards the practical difficulties in working it out, I think the details may be left for subsequent settlement; difficulties as to whether the scholarship should be held in Madras or elsewhere or whether those residing in college centres should be given this scholarship or not these may be settled later on. But the principle of encouraging deserving but poor students ought to find recognition at the hands of Government. If Rs. 75,000 is too much the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction may propose some other suitable figure which will be sufficient for the needs."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I must remind Honourable Gentlemen, that we are not here to decide the principle. The Honourable Gentleman concluded by saying 'if the principle were accepted.' I must tell the Honourable Member and the Council that we are here to settle the figures. This is a meeting under our rules and regulations for settling the figures and we are not here to discuss generally the wisdom or the unwisdom of giving a scholarship. We have to settle the figure that is to be put into the budget for that purpose. We are bound to consider that. We have now before us a resolution that Rs. 75,000 should be added for that purpose. I must deprecate discussion going any further. I must deprecate also the remark of the Hon'ble Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar who understood the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction to say that every deserving pupil had a scholarship and that there are no more pupils deserving the scholarship. That is not what the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction said. The position is simply this; that the expenditure on scholarships during the last five years has grown double. That is the position. When we are dealing with the figures, we are dealing with a delicate machinery. We have to deal with Elementary, Secondary and College education. Considering all things up to the present moment there has been no sound or convincing reason for increasing the money for that particular purpose. With the general idea of helping deserving pupils, everybody is in sympathy. That is not the question before us. The question is how much money is to be put into this budget for that purpose. Government for the reasons given by the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction cannot advise the Council to increase the allotment at the present moment. We are under a great disadvantage in not having the Honourable Mover putting forward this motion. There is nothing to guide us as to why he wants the particular sum of Rs. 75,000. The Honourable the Director of Public Instruction has no option but to point out the meaning of the resolution or any ambiguity contained in the wording of the resolution. It is his duty and responsibility to do so, so as to inform the Council as to what they would be committing themselves to if they passed the resolution. My remarks apply very much to the next resolution also which also wants a total sum of Rs. 75,000, a lump sum. There is no information as to why that sum was taken or as to whether it was taken on any calculation of any number of students. Therefore I cannot advise the Council to accept it."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"With reference to the general observations made by Your Excellency, I will explain all our difficulties in the matter if Your Excellency will permit me. I quite see the force of Your Excellency's observation. But laymen as we are, unacquainted with the details of the department and exact requirements, Your Excellency may forgive us if we err on the side of extravagance. We want to bring to the notice of Government that the provision is not sufficient for the purpose. That is all that we can do. To expect us to go into the exact details would be throwing too much burden on non-officials as we are not in the inner Councils. I would therefore ask Your Excellency to consider that aspect of the question."

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar; the President; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Krishna Rao.)

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I will bear it in mind. The point is this; if we want to set out the general principles, they should not be debated at this meeting. I am far from limiting the discussion on these points. But what I want to point out is that we are tied down by the orders under which we sit. We are tied down to settle the figures and therefore any question of principle should be debated and settled at another meeting."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I am afraid the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction has been somewhat too technical in dealing with this resolution. He started by saying that there is an ambiguity in this resolution and that it is difficult to work it out. The wording of the resolution suggests that scholarships should be given to mufassal students pursuing the college course without specifying that they pursue their course in Madras or in any other college centre. It applies to every college centre, wherever these mufassal students might choose to pursue their studies. It is intended for the benefit of all students in the various districts. I may inform Your Excellency that I had information as to the object of the Honourable Mover of the resolution. The calculations I suggested are intended to provide ten scholarships for each of the districts at Rs. 25. This will work out to Rs. 75,000. Therefore so far as the resolution in itself is concerned, it does not commit itself to the amount given, viz., Rs. 25 or to any other question of detail. It does not specially refer to brilliant young men pursuing honours courses in regard to which the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction stated that the number will far exceed the requirements. The point for consideration is whether it is possible to provide Rs. 75,000 and whether it is desirable to provide Rs. 75,000 for the purpose. If it is not found feasible to provide Rs. 75,000 for the purpose of affording additional facilities for the scholarships, may I ask that some reasonable additional provision be made for that purpose? It is an alteration of the figures which is suggested. Might it not be possible to increase it to some reasonable extent? The attention of the Council has been drawn by the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction to the increased provision under the head of scholarships in colleges in general. We find that in colleges in general a sum of Rs. 27,000 was spent and in the revised estimate for 1918 we find Rs. 30,000; next year the same amount of Rs. 30,000 has been provided. Whatever may have been provided for that purpose, in previous years, in view of the circumstances of the last two or three years it must be stated that there has not been such a reasonable increase in the provision for scholarships as there should have been. Increase in 1917-18 and 1918-19 is about Rs. 1,500. It was Rs. 28,541 for 1917-18 and Rs. 30,000 is the amount provided for 1919-20. I would submit that if we are satisfied that the provision made does not meet the requirements of higher education in this country and some additional provision should be made, be it to the extent of Rs. 75,000 or any amount which may be found feasible, there is a proper reason for some increase being provided."

The motion was then put and lost.

RESOLUTION RE INCREASED ALLOTMENT FOR SCHOLARSHIPS TO STUDENTS PURSUING SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I have the honour to move:—

*'XXII. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 75,000 be added to the allotment made under 22-H. EDUCATION for giving scholarships to students pursuing scientific and technical education, and a corresponding reduction be made under 32-E. MISCELLANEOUS (Miscellaneous and unforeseen charges).'

"I need not detain the Council long because the observations made by me with reference to the previous resolution apply with greater force so far as this resolution is concerned. If there is need for increasing the provision for scholarships for higher education there is much greater need for spending an additional sum of money on scholarships for scientific and technical education. I shall not detain the Council by referring to the various recommendations of the Industrial Commission. They are well known and I will not propose to detain the Council long.

"I only wish to point out that so long as we are satisfied that in the best interests of the country additional facilities have to be afforded to enable students to pursue scientific and technical education, additional allotment is necessary for the purpose. As to the figure of Rs. 75,000 it is worked out exactly in the same manner as it was worked out in regard to the collegiate education—to provide the 25 districts with ten scholarships at Rs. 25 per mensem. With these remarks I commend the resolution for the acceptance of the Council."

* This resolution stood in the name of the Hon'ble the Raja of Ramnad.

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Littlehales; Mr. Krishna Rao; the President;
Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.)

The Hon'ble Mr. LITTLEHAILES:—"Your Excellency, we have a certain amount of provision for scientific education pure and simple in the ordinary award of scholarships to students who take up Chemistry, Physics, Biology and so on in the ordinary University course. For technical education we have a budget provision made in the College of Engineering, in the School of Engineering at Vizagapatam and in the School of Commerce at Calicut. There are the Government of India State Technical Scholarships and the Madras Government award scholarships tenable at the Victoria Technical Institute in Bombay and the local University awards scholarships. There are scholarships available at the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore. In addition to that, under the head—Scientific and Miscellaneous department and the development of industries—the budget provision has been increased by Rs. 9,000 on the recommendation of the Finance Committee for the purpose of providing industrial scholarships for students. Sir, the object of this resolution has my entire sympathy. All I have to remark is that so far as I can gather the provision that is at present made is as much as can be advantageously utilized at the present moment."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency it may be put to vote."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I hope the Honourable Member is satisfied with what the Finance Committee have done."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I understand that the provision was made for the benefit of students going abroad. So far as this is concerned, it is not for students going abroad but it is for students studying in the country. Therefore it stands on a different footing."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman is quite free to take his own course. It will be open to the Honourable the Director to assent to all the resolutions and to spend all the money and it will be much more agreeable to everybody concerned. It is all very well to say that Rs. 75,000 has been calculated on the basis of ten scholarships for each district of Rs. 25 each. That makes up the sum of Rs. 75,000. But that does not mean that the needs of the district have been carefully considered. Anantapur is put on the same footing as Vizagapatam. Rupees 25 is the existing amount of scholarship. I had hoped that the Honourable Member would have been satisfied with what has been done but I will however put it to the meeting. There is no difference of opinion as regards this matter. We should like to meet all the needs but the Honourable the Director believes that having in view the other necessities of elementary education, the needs of elementary and secondary education which we have been discussing, we are doing all that we can at the present time."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"If I understand from what the Honourable the Director has stated and what your Excellency has stated that, if the requirements of the situation would necessitate any further funds, they will be met, I have no objection to withdraw."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I have not said anything about that. We are settling the figures in the budget. The question is whether more is to be put into the budget. Government are unable to put any more money into the budget. I put the resolution to the Council."

The resolution was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"May I ask for a poll?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Certainly. Does the Honourable mover wish for a poll?"

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I have not asked for a poll but the rules provide for any member asking for a poll."

The poll was taken with the following result:—

For		Against
The Hon'ble Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.		The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.
" " P. Siva Rao.		" Mr. L. Davidson.
" " K. Rama Ayyangar.		" " O. G. Todhunter.
" " K. Sadasiva Bhat.		" " A. Y. G. Campbell.
" " K. R. Suryanarayanamurthi		" " R. Ramachandra Rao.
" " Nayudu.		" " M. Young.
" " B. Venkatapathi Raju.		" " L. E. Buckley.
" " Yaqub Hasan Sahib.		" " N. E. Marjoribanks.
" " A. Suryanarayana Rao.		" " B. B. Wood.
" " A. S. Krishna Rao.		" " Aziz-ud-din.
" " B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.		" " E. F. Barber.
		" " J. H. Thonger.
		" the Most Reverend John Aalen.
		" Sir Francis Spring.
		" Mr. Littlehales.
		" " Hutton.
		" " Howley.
		" the Advocate-General.
		" Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
		" " H. G. Stokes.

The resolution was lost, 10 voting for and 20 against.

(The President; Mr. Venkatapati Raju.) [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The next resolution is covered by the resolution we have just discussed."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"This is for technical scholarships abroad."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Will you go on?"

RESOLUTION RE INCREASED PROVISION FOR ADDITIONAL TECHNICAL SCHOLARSHIPS.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Your Excellency, the resolution which stands in my name runs as follows:—

'XXIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the sum of Rs. 1,59,000 shown under the head of Miscellaneous—XXV. Revenue be earmarked and spent for providing additional technical scholarships by increasing the figure under 22-H by that amount and the corresponding reduction be made under the head of 45-B. Civil Works.'

"Your Excellency, as observed by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar we labour under certain difficulties in offering what is expected by your Excellency that we should give sound and convincing reasons without referring to any principle whatsoever by substituting one figure for another. When we want an additional sum to be provided, we must give certain reasons and that is the reason why I state that a special sum of Rs. 1,59,000 should be earmarked. At page 20 of the Civil Budget Estimate, the budget estimate from unclaimed deposits is given as Rs. 1,59,000. It is not an unusual course to earmark certain funds for certain purposes. There is in England the Whisky money for technical education. Instead of relying on the excise revenue here, I want that the revenue that ought to have gone to others, that does not properly belong to us but on account of the negligence of the parties who have not recovered that amount has gone to the Government, instead of such sum being thrown into the general expenses, it may be earmarked for a particular purpose. I think that is a good principle. When a fund is not legitimate source of income but is an accidental windfall from time to time, it might be utilized for the benefit of the people. When it is suggested whether it could be returned to the original depositors who are entitled to it it was said that when they neglected to recover the amount, we cannot hand over the amount to them. We are getting year after year about Rs. 2 lakhs or some such amount. My suggestion is that we should utilize that amount for sending students abroad to Europe and other countries, for industrial studies. I know that the Industrial Commission reported that additional facilities should be provided for scholarships. The only facility we enjoyed hitherto was provided by the Government of India at a cost, for students, of about Rs. 8,200 and during the last seven years, they were able to send about 200 students. On the advice and suggestion of the Finance Committee the Madras Government have provided for two more scholarships though in the mode of allotting it, there is a grudging concession because we notice at page 10 of the proceedings of the Finance Committee, paragraph 48:—"In answer to questions, it was explained that industrial scholarships to Europe were paid for by the Government of India and that no expenditure was made on this account out of Provincial funds. The difficulty so far has been to find suitable candidates. The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. Rajagopala Achariyar explained that several of the men who had been trained had been failures." This is a most unfortunate statement. I do not know whether it is justified by facts. It continues:—"The difficulty of getting boys to go to the Bombay Technical Institute was also explained. It was decided to make provision for two scholarships of £250 a year for statutory Indians with passage money, or Rs. 9,000 in all, to be met from 'Unallotted'. When the Government neglected so long to provide technical knowledge to deserving persons in order to improve industries in the country, the sum allotted this year, Rs. 9,000 for providing scholarships, is too small, because at this rate we cannot have a sufficient number of teachers in order to impart the knowledge and learning to the various persons employed in the industries; and the figure I suggest would provide the total cost for sending 25 students and if we send 25 students every year for a period of ten years, we will be making a grand progress in the matter of technical education. Sending one or two men will not improve matters. Therefore I suggest that there should be a grant from this source. In the financial statement, Government state that when we are taking money from the people instead of keeping it there, it should be returned to the people. I would point out that this is an amount taken from the people not even in the shape of a tax, but only on account of their negligence. Let it be utilized by giving scholarships. We can provide for 25 scholarships for two or three years or for 75 students if we send for one year. In either way, if every year we can fall back upon this amount which we get from this source, it would be an easy way of securing a large number of technical scholarships. We have had sympathetic expressions from Government all along but we want them to materialise."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I understand that you wish to insert the word 'abroad'. You want technical scholarships abroad?"

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Yes, your Excellency."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The words 'for training out of India' are to be added after the word 'scholarships' in the resolution. The resolution would then read: 'This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the sum of Rs. 1,59,000 shown under the head of Miscellaneous—XXV. Revenue be earmarked and spent for providing additional technical scholarships for training out of India by increasing the figure under 22-H. by that amount and a corresponding reduction be made under the head of 45-B. Civil Works.'

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (The President; Mr. Littlehales; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Mr. Thonger; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Sir Alexander Cardew; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES:—"Your Excellency, as I have already remarked, the budget provision has been made on the recommendation of the Finance Committee for an additional allotment for this object. Although I have every sympathy with the idea of training people for industrial work, training both in India and out of India, I consider, Sir, that the existing facilities for scientific and technical education are at present sufficient for the purpose."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Your Excellency, the answer given to the motion by the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction is surprising. Its brevity itself is most unconvincing. A lot of sympathy is professed for the object. The Honourable Mover pointed out that sympathy has to materialise itself on this occasion because we are discussing about rupees, annas and pies."

"The plea is not put forward that there is no money available in the budget, but the plea put forward is that we have put down something already for it. What is that sum? It is Rs. 9,000 and what is the object? It is for training people abroad. It seems ludicrous to suppose that Rs. 9,000 is sufficient for technical training abroad. The proposition has only to be stated that it is sufficient to be condemned. The name of the Finance Committee is used. The Finance Committee have to make various recommendations to make different allotments. They allotted Rs. 9,000 for this, because they had to deal only with the unallotted sums. We are not now in the Finance Committee, we are in full Council and we are concerned with the debate as to how much money could be found for this important purpose. We find under the head 'Miscellaneous' a pretty large sum is left in the hands of Government evidently for later allotment. What is asked for is only one lakh and if the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction had only stated that it would be possible to find the money later one could understand the situation. As it is, we have had a curt reply that the Finance Committee have set apart Rs. 9,000 and we should be satisfied with it. It is a most unconvincing reply. It is not a sympathetic reply. It is necessary to find funds and therefore let us vote for it."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—"I think there is a business aspect in this and it is a point which the Council has not taken into consideration. If the idea is to provide Rs. 9,000 for educational instruction in India and abroad, naturally it will not be sufficient. On the other hand, there are very good reasons for not increasing that sum at present. First of all, we are practically still in a state of war, every expense has increased, travelling expenses are enormous and living at home is very costly. If we are going to send students home for technical education at present, it may cost 50 per cent or 100 per cent more than in ordinary days. Therefore it may be adjourned. There is also the other reason. The only way of getting them home is to get them C5 certificate. What is the use of putting them in C5 which class will not get home till next year?"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"The idea underlying this resolution appeals very largely to our minds. We are bound to make larger provision in future for technical and industrial education. I think if we accept the idea underlying this resolution of earmarking this particular money for this purpose, I think we will be preparing, although not for the present, but for the future. Although we are not able to spend it this year, this sum will be available for future use if we earmark it. I think the present difficulties should not stagger us in the way of appropriating this sum for this particular purpose. I do not know if there are any financial technical rules about it. I dare say there are; but if it is possible to do this, to earmark this sum for this particular purpose, that is providing scholarships not only for the coming year but for future years, we will have a store by. I think Rs. 1,50,000 every year will be of great use. Just as we are insuring against famine by providing funds, so also we may be insuring for technical and industrial education by earmarking this sum. If there are any financial rules which stand in the way I will ask the Government to do away with them, so that we may have a nucleus to start with, we may have a fund for students desiring to go abroad."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"The Honourable Member's idea on this point seems to be that while we provide a sum for the particular year for which the budget is framed it will be available for future years. This is impracticable. No amount can be provided in any one year unless it is believed that some one will turn up for the scholarship. As far as I understand, he says that this money is to be put in each year and the money each year is to lapse until some occasion arises for the expenditure. If there is a need in the year, we can provide for it. If there is no need, it will be contrary to principle to put money in the budget which will not be required. It is of course possible to put in a small sum each year."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, I would like to ask the Honourable the Director of Public Instruction for what purpose this Rs. 9,000 is put in the budget. So far as I have been able to see in the notes of the Finance Committee, stating that two scholarships are provided for, there are no details given as regards the exact line of study which it is intended to promote by these scholarships. The general idea I thought, of the Finance Committee, was that there must be some provision for stimulating technical and industrial education in view of the special circumstances that have arisen after the war. I do not know if when Rs. 9,000 could be budgeted, more could not be provided especially in view of the recommendations of the Industrial Commission who say that the only way of stimulating technical and industrial education is by sending students abroad. I do not know if the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction is right in saying that there is need for Rs. 9,000 and that there is no need for more. I should like to know whether there are any actual proposals for the utilization of this sum."

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Rama Ayyangar.]

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"The idea was mine. The Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction was not ready with any cut and dry scheme. I suggested that there should be scholarships for students going to England. They said that it was difficult to get students to go. I suggested that at least two students might be sent."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"If the general idea of sending students abroad is accepted, the proposal of my Honourable Friend is to increase the Budget provision and to send more students abroad. As regards the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger's objection that there would be difficulties about getting passages, we recognize the difficulties, but the sooner we start on the lines recommended by the Industrial Commission, the better for us. If we have to wait till everything settles down, it will probably be five or six years before we would be able to send out students. Therefore, I support this proposal. I am really unable to appreciate the difficulty of the Government in this matter. I take it My Lord, that it is Your Excellency's Government's intention to promote technical and industrial education, and all that has been stated in that report goes to show that the sooner we start in that direction, the better. In view of the provision already made, the request for increasing the allotment in the budget seems to be perfectly legitimate."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"Your Excellency, I beg to point out that in this case, we need not be tied down as in the case of the proposal to grant scholarships to students for collegiate courses. The principle of action in this case will have to be that people conversant in this country with this particular kind of technical and scientific education and pursuits will have to be induced to send their best boys to England or other countries for technical education. My Lord, I can refer to one or two communities like the Sourashtra community, the weaving and dyeing community in Madura and some other communities may be pointed out like the blacksmiths community in Dindigul and Srivilliputtur and other places. They are almost experts in manual labour. From among these classes, by general notification people may be invited to undergo a general examination and persons may be selected and sent abroad for getting themselves trained in the higher pursuits of their particular technical or industrial branch so that they may be useful when they return, to improve the conditions of their community and also to improve the industry to which they are attached. Here, the field of choice will be much wider and I have no doubt that if it is a question of lace-making or the higher studies in dyeing or weaving, the Sourashtras of Madura, some of whom have now attained fairly high standard in ordinary literary education, will be able to compete and offer themselves to go abroad for getting themselves trained in the arts, in the scientific researches which will enable them to improve the condition of their community and the industry in which they are interested. Similarly I have no doubt that in the 21 districts of the Presidency, we can select people who have an inclination for particular pursuits which may be found by the Government to afford large scope for the improvement of that particular industry or scientific study. If these communities are chosen and if from amongst them, by open competition students are chosen and sent abroad, I have no doubt that each one of these technical subjects will receive the impetus which will ensure the progress of Madras in these scientific studies and which will really improve the economic condition of the people in general. That being the object of the present proposal, my Lord, there could be no objection to sufficient money being found for providing a certain number of students with the necessary funds for the purpose. I know it is a recurring expenditure which will have to be increased for some years, because if we propose to maintain a certain number of students, say for five or for seven years, because ordinarily for a fairly good knowledge to be attained by students, to be sent abroad, we will have to maintain them for a number of years and the recurring expenditure is likely to be increased, but the attitude of this Government is to say that enough money is provided for the advancement of technical and scientific education and when that is so, we have to make a start. What the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger said about the difficulties of passage cannot stand in the way of giving a start. If in two years it is found that less provision has to be made, we might make less provision, we can reduce the expenditure but in the first year, we will not be spending all the provision we make but it will take some years; so that the sum that is asked for does not provide for many, comparing the population of the Presidency and the various pursuits which might with advantage be recommended by the Government to be the subjects of study by these students. I beg to submit that something must be done to start with—this budget comes into operation only from April and probably the terms also will have to commence in July and a proper notification made by the Government now will enable the Government to utilize any amount of money that will be put in the budget for this purpose. We are only in the beginning of February and if we make ourselves ready to choose a certain number of persons, of course the Government will fix the standard of the boys, for ascertaining the qualification of the boys who will have to be sent out. If those standards are fixed and if the boys are forthcoming, it will not be proper for the Government to say that there are no funds. Suppose the standard of the Secondary School-leaving certificate is chosen; if there are boys available with the particular training for the particular industries who will take them up and who are prepared to go abroad and study, it will not be proper for the Government to say that there are no funds to send them. Even if we are going to utilize only part of the provision made in the budget, full provision will have to be made as we do in the case of other things. In view of the alteration of the rules relating to the discussion of the Financial Statement, the Finance Member has stated in his Memorandum that this has been done specially with a view to adopt the suggestions of non-official Members as far as possible and as far as feasible. This is a case in which a sum of money has been provided as has been pointed out and there is a lump allotment for industrial and technical education; there is about Rs. 11 lakhs of money kept by the Government for unforeseen charges so that in all, we have about Rs. 16 or 17 lakhs and the money that is sought to be ear-marked by the Honourable Member is only a small portion which is now merged in the general balances. In whatever way it is got, this money must be provided so that an assurance may be given to the people on the matter and I think the necessary notification might be sent out by the department calling for applications and for selections being made before the beginning of the next official year. Therefore, My Lord, this is a case in which the representation on the non-official side may be accepted with advantage and the first fruits of the change in the financial rules may be allowed to be enjoyed by this council. I submit My Lord, that this may be accepted."

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rama Ayyangar ; Mr. Krishn Rao.)

The resolution was put and lost.

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR FREE BOARDING HOUSES FOR SCHOLARS OF DEPRESSED CLASSES

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO :—"I have the honour to move :—

'XXIV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 50,000 be provided under 22. EDUCATION for the establishment of free boarding houses in select places in the Presidency for the benefit of scholars of depressed classes and that a corresponding reduction be made under '45. CIVIL WORKS—Civil Buildings.'

"Your Excellency, the question of the education of the depressed classes including in that term the Panchamas has received continued attention for some time past and if I move this resolution it is with the full belief that unless steps are taken in that direction, much cannot be done to improve their condition and to improve their education.

"Before I offer a few remarks as to the necessity for the establishment of such free boarding houses it is but desirable that we take a retrospect of the advance made in the case of education of Panchamas during the last five or six years. It will be found in the quinquennial report from 1911-12 to 1916-17 that there has been an increase of about 1,910 institutions for the education chiefly of Panchamas. The number of institutions was 3,781 in 1911-12 and it increased to 5,691 at the end of 1916-17; and the strength of these institutions which was 100,881 at the end of 1911-12, increased to 158,593 at the end of 1916-17, an increase of 57,712 pupils. If you take into account the Panchama pupils alone in these institutions, it was 72,190 at the end of 1911-12 and it increased to 120,607 at the end of 1916-17, an increase of 48,417. This progress is and can be considered to be fair in that quinquennium. But when we take into account the progress made in the year 1917-18, we have a different story to consider. In the year 1917-18, that is the last year for which information is available, the number of institutions increased from 5,691 to 5,814, an increase of 123; the strength in these schools was 159,393 in 1916-17 and in 1917-18 it was 165,467, an increase of 6,874. Notwithstanding the increase in the number of schools intended for them by 123, and the number of pupils in these schools by 6,874, we find that the number of Panchama pupils alone increased only by about 71. It was 120,607 at the end of 1916-17 and 120,678 at the end of 1917-18. The number of schools increased by 123, the number of pupils by 6,874, but the number of Panchama pupils alone by only 71. Having placed these figures before this Council, I may remind the Council that there can be no denial of the fact that the people, generally, the municipalities and the local boards and the Government have been paying increasing attention to the question of the education of the depressed classes. That is a fact which cannot be denied or ignored. It must also be admitted that if any prejudice existed in the way of the admission of the Panchama boys for education, that prejudice has been waning. This is a fact which is known to everyone and which is also recognized in the report of the Director of Public Instruction for the year 1917-18. It is fairly acknowledged therein that the Hindu community is evincing greater interest in the matter of the education of these classes. There is one important cause which, it must be stated, has really obstructed the progress of education, and has made education neither real, nor useful and that is the poverty of these people. It is that aspect of it which I consider necessary to place before this Council to-day. You find in your own experience when you visit the Panchama schools, there are a number of cases in which there are no boarding houses or boarding places for their benefit, and the pupils are ill-fed and poorly clad and present a miserable appearance. If they are in that condition, can we really believe that they will have the real benefit of education and that they will improve by the education which is imparted to them in these schools? I can refer in this connexion to a very pathetic incident which was my own personal experience. It was on the 12th of December last, the Darbar day when all schools were instructed to have celebrations. It was usual for each individual school, to have all the pupils therein assembled on that day and to have some celebrations, probably some sweets and some festivities. On the last occasion, it struck me that so far as the municipal schools in Nellore were concerned, it would be better to take advantage of the opportunity, to bring all the pupils to a particular place so that the boys of all the schools may enjoy in common. There are two Panchama schools; and the headmasters of those schools went to me and pathetically requested that they might be excused from attending the celebration and that their pupils might not be asked to go there. They said 'we do not want to exhibit our Panchama pupils along with others; they have no clothes, they have no dress, they are ill-fed and they present a starving appearance. Do not insist on the attendance of these boys at that gathering. Please excuse us.' It was a pathetic story but with some inconvenience, some arrangements were made for their benefit and they were induced to come. Can we believe that if they are to be in that condition, a condition in which they cannot have proper food at home and proper clothing, they can really have the benefit of good education? I am sure not. If we find that persons of the depressed classes have been showing improvement, it is in places where there are schools under the management of Mission agencies, where there have been boarding houses and where arrangements have been made for their benefit. I would therefore suggest that this problem of the advance of Panchama education can only be satisfactorily solved if some arrangements are made in the immediate future for improving their condition and for establishing boarding houses for their benefit. It will be found that this aspect of it also was considered by the Department of Education in dealing with it in their report of the last quinquennium. After pointing out some difficulties and some prejudices in certain parts of the Presidency, and after referring to the general interest taken in the community it is stated that 'other difficulties in the way of progress are poverty and the want of teachers. Poverty proves a bar to education in two directions. The parent is naturally disinclined to send his child to school when his earnings may be of help to the family. On the other hand, if his son is sent to school, he often comes half-starved and benefits little from the instruction given.' That is the statement of the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction in the report. I have placed before this Council what was within my experience and what I believe would be within the experience of almost every Honourable Member of this Council.

(Mr. Krishna Rao ; Mr. Littlehailes.) [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"I do not think there can be any difference of opinion as to the object of this resolution. Every one will be satisfied at once that unless facilities are afforded, it is not possible to expect any improvement in their condition. The only question is whether it is feasible to take up this question and whether it is possible to make a provision in the budget for that purpose. That is the question with which I have to deal on this occasion.

"My Lord, I know that this question, if it is to be extended to all the schools in the Presidency all at once, may cost much more than what I have asked for in this resolution. I know that in working boarding houses in various parts of the Presidency, there are several initial difficulties to be contended against; but if Your Excellency's Government are satisfied that there has been increasing interest taken by local bodies in the development of the education of this community, I have every hope that the local bodies can be used as agencies for the purpose of establishing these boarding houses and maintaining them in a satisfactory manner. Government should come to their rescue and allot funds for that purpose, with whatever safeguards or restrictions that the Government may think fit to impose. It may not be possible to start these boarding houses all at once throughout the Presidency; but it is possible, I am sure, to start such free boarding houses in some selected places in the Presidency after considering the conditions of the locality, the number of persons who are likely to take advantage of these institutions and the agency which will gladly undertake that responsibility; and after taking steps in that direction in some selected places, the system can be gradually extended to other places as far as possible. It is with that object that I have considered it desirable to place this resolution before this Council to-day. I have asked for a budget allotment of Rs. 50,000 for this purpose. As soon as a scheme is made, a satisfactory scheme can be worked out by correspondence between the Department of Education on the one side and the local authorities on the other; when once it is understood that both of them have the cause of the depressed classes at heart and want to improve their education, there will be no difficulty whatever in working out a scheme which will satisfactorily solve this problem. With these remarks, I commend this resolution. I have not the slightest doubt that the Government would be in a position to allot some funds for this purpose, be it Rs. 50,000 or for an experiment being tried, Rs. 25,000. Some reasonable provision must be made in the coming year."

The Hon'ble the Most Reverend John Aalen seconded the resolution.

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES:—"Your Excellency, I feel I am voicing the sentiments of everyone when I say that we all have the object of this resolution at heart, that is to say the amelioration of the condition of the depressed classes. The difficulty lies not in sympathizing with the resolution, but in the practical application of our sympathy. The depressed classes have not, so far as I know, been carefully defined. We speak, in our ordinary code and rules, of the Panchamas and certain backward classes, as educationally backward classes; but the depressed classes of this Presidency number at a rough estimate about 10 millions and the question that is opened before us is so immensely large that I do not think, Sir, I see any way out of the difficulty that has been presented before us of ameliorating their condition by this specific method. The department has always given every consideration in the award of grants to Panchamas and backward classes and I am certain that the Government are always willing to consider what can be done in that direction. But the problem appears to me at present to be one of offering facilities for education to these backward classes who are able to take advantage of them. The matter of depressed classes is being considered by the department and until the department has further time to consider it, I do not think that it has reached the stage yet when a specific budget provision can be provided for; as the Honourable Mover has mentioned, a great deal of correspondence is required between the Director of Public Instruction and the local bodies and I do not think that any successful settlement of the question can be come to in the course of the incoming year which would necessitate the insertion of the budget provision."

[6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Littlehailes ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.)

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Your Excellency, on this resolution I expected that there would be something specific coming from the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction which would convince this council that this resolution should be negative. We have heard, ad nauseam, about the neglect of the interests of the depressed classes by various sets of persons, but the test has always been stated to be how far people are really coming forward to help the depressed classes out of their present lot of illiteracy. The question has always been, how much can be done and various apologists have come forward for the local bodies, for the Government institutions, and for various caste institutions to explain why much could not be done. I have had the pleasure of listening to one apology now from the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction, an apology for not doing more, and I must say that I am not convinced that the apology is satisfactory. There is a proposal now that we should start helping the depressed classes in a way that we have not done before. One particular way is chalked out now and that is providing for free boarding houses for such depressed classes as could be attended to within the sum of Rs. 50,000 during the budget year. I have not heard anything from the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction to show that this is a wild scheme or that the money is not forthcoming or that it will disturb the budget, that we will not be able to proceed further. The one objection which had some appearance of a ground in it was that correspondence would have to be maintained and this correspondence will go on not only during the rest of the present year, but during the major portion of the next year, that with our red-tapism we will not be able to get any scheme and therefore that no provision need be made. If that is so, I must say that this confession is sufficient condemnation of red-tapism and of our present methods and some drastic remedies must be adopted. The Honourable Mover pointed out that with very little correspondence, the scheme could be started. The Department of Public Instruction has got a great advantage in being more learned and has discovered a great many things about education. But on the simple question of finding out who the depressed classes are, who should be helped and in which way, the department has failed and we have now to trust local bodies to do it. Suppose to the Nellore District Board you hand over Rs. 10,000 or Rs. 5,000 and ask them to select five centres where they could give free boarding to Panchama boys to improve their education, rules as to funds have to be framed and other correspondence may be carried on for decades, but that is not such an essential pre-requisite that we should postpone the proposal if otherwise it is good. If this Council is going for this simple reason to reject the proposal, the Council will be open to attack by the poorer classes; they will say 'they will all talk nicely on platforms and in despatches, but when it comes to the true test of action, we find that their professions are only lip-deep; it is merely lip sympathy.' My own humble opinion is that it is much better that we do not lay ourselves open to such an attack. Apart from the question of attack or defence, let us consider whether there is anything serious that stands in the way of assisting Panchama education. The great block on the progress of education is the fact that there are so many millions who remain immersed in dense darkness and if we are going to suggest one slight way to get out of it, and if we are to be frightened by the correspondence which would stand in the way, I am afraid we do not deserve the name of business men. I am perfectly certain that correspondence of more than two or three months would be undesirable, and will prove that we shall lack in business habits. We can trust the presidents of various district boards to administer small sums with such supervision as the educational authorities can give. If there is the will, even red-tapism can give way. On this occasion I would earnestly entreat all Honourable Members here not to give way to this bogey of correspondence and veto this scheme. The other objection raised appears to be extremely departmental and technical and would not impress laymen. It is that the depressed classes are not defined. These terms have acquired a definite meaning. I am afraid even the term 'vegetable' cannot be fairly accurately defined. And yet vegetarianism is a fact. We people are apt to be too learned and may become unintelligible to ordinary people. The other objection stated was that the depressed classes number 10 millions and how can we do anything for them? It is undoubtedly true that the task is great, but is that a reason for giving up any scheme? If we can assist so many as two millions in the course of next year, we will have made an honest beginning. Else the ten millions are entitled to say 'your professions are great but your performances are poor'.

"There is a rather vague phrase of the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction that he does not see any way of improving these classes except by grants. Grants are well-known. Government are doing a great deal and private bodies have been doing a great deal so far as the past is concerned, but it is the future that has to be regarded because the past has really, after all is said and done, been a very poor performance. To add a word from my own personal experience, I must say in my attempts as chairman and as a public man to improve the Panchama classes and their status and education, I found that it was their grinding poverty that prevented my work. I wanted to go into the slums and tried to induce a few parents to send their children, but the Panchama was so wretchedly poor and the idea of sending a child five years old to school seems to be entirely out of his way. His idea is to keep the wolf from the door with the help of the child though the little child is practically naked without proper clothing. There are a number of obstacles which prevent him from sending the boy to school some of which would be removed by free boarding institutions. If a grant of Rs. 1,000 were to be placed at the hands of the Salem District Board, I can guarantee that you will find full value for every pie of your money; there will be no humbug, there will be no fraud; many councillors and many taluk board members will come forward with their real sympathy, not lip sympathy on the platform or in press communiqués. I hope the real sympathy of Honourable Members here in this Council which they have expressed any number of times would show itself in voting on this proposition."

(Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.
the President.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, I wish the Hon'ble Mr. Littlehailes had made a reply which was more satisfactory than it was. He gave three reasons for not accepting this resolution. One of them is that before this resolution can be accepted, the exact category of the classes who would come within the term 'depressed classes' must first be settled. My Lord, the Educational Conference took some pains to elaborate a definition of these classes who come within that category of the backward classes and Your Excellency's Government have rejected the proposals of the Conference and have referred the matter back to the Director of Public Instruction. I take it that his statement amounts to this: till he completes his inquiry as suggested in the Government Order, he will not be in a position to accept any such motion. That is the first argument. Independently of any inquiry as to who should be regarded as depressed classes, it seems to me that the question may be tackled by applying this grant to the class known as Panchamas. In the Telugu country the Malas and Madigas and in the Tamil country the Pallas, the Paraiyas and the Chucklers are known to belong to this class. Under these circumstances, it seems to me that it is unnecessary to wait till this inquiry as to who should be regarded as backward classes is completed. My Lord, I have been to many mission boarding houses which are maintained by voluntary subscriptions and a great deal of good work is being done for the amelioration of this class and what is now asked for is if the various depressed classes societies which are doing a good deal of useful work and which are in charge of educational institutions are asked to undertake the question of boarding, then the question of the education of Panchamas will be much more easy. Apart from this, there are also local bodies and I do not see how it would be difficult to distribute Rs. 50,000 or any lesser sum among these two agencies which are now doing educational work, namely, the local bodies, and the various depressed classes societies and also the missionary bodies to whom also some relief might be afforded. As regards the desirability of undertaking boarding, it is unnecessary to say in support of the proposal. If a Panchama is allowed to keep his child without education, he would prefer to do so for the very simple reason that he would like his boy to supplement his own resources, he would like his boy or girl to be employed either in agricultural labour or any other kind of labour. The whole question of Panchama education is beset with very great difficulties and even if Rs. 50,000 is taken merely for the purpose of an experiment to see what can be done and how we can improve their position and how we can keep them in some degree of comfort, at the time they are in school, if it does not lead to anything else, it will be valuable experiment in attacking the question of Panchama education. I trust, Your Excellency, that this proposal to put down some amount of money for maintaining boarding houses for these unfortunate people will be received with better consideration than it has from the Government and if I may say so, any money spent in this direction will never be objected to; but, on the other hand, I believe that every Honourable Member of this Council would welcome any proposals in aid of these unfortunates. If we are merely to confine ourselves to an elaborate scheme of educational facilities, I do not think that we should be doing very much in furthering Panchama education. It seems to me that we must go further and make an exception not merely for providing educational facilities, but also some facilities for boarding during the period of education. It is unnecessary to discuss this at greater length.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Might I be allowed to say a word? There has been a debate on a subject on which there is no difference of opinion. We are all anxious to help the education of the depressed classes. We are having rather a controversial debate on a matter on which there is perfect agreement generally on principle in the Council, but the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction has unfortunately been obliged to adhere to the rules and regulations under which these discussions have to be carried out. He has been obliged to point out that there is no scheme put before this Government for the allotment of this money, that the resolution is quite general in its terms and that it proposes to lay upon the Government the responsibility which they never had to bear hitherto. Let us try and reconcile the differences which seem to exist. It may be an excellent thing to establish boarding houses for such children, but let me say this: the difficulty is not in defining the backward classes, but the difficulty is in defining the depressed classes. It is quite easy for missionary societies or charitable or voluntary societies of any kind when they wish to establish boarding houses for children in any particular locality,—it is quite easy for them to admit children whom they wish to admit. But when you want to lay that responsibility on the Government, then they have to be impartial to all localities and as to what children are to be admitted into such institutions. The Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar's point of view is that district boards and local authorities should establish those institutions or other local authorities should establish such institutions and he said 'give the district board Rs. 1,000 and it will make a sound experiment on these lines'. I would ask the Honourable Gentleman how far this Rs. 1,000 would go towards paying the annual cost for a free boarding house for children of the depressed classes. Then the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao makes quite an interesting suggestion that voluntary societies who are already doing the work should be helped. I think that is a very good and practical suggestion that voluntary societies, missionary and other societies should be helped so that they may be encouraged, but as a matter of fact they have been encouraged; such institutions are being encouraged. I do ask this Council—I am afraid it is a very dull and prosaic view—to remember that we have to settle how much sum of money is to be put into the budget this year. There is practically no scheme before Government under which this money could be spent. I am quite sure if any society will send up a practical scheme, an experimental scheme for the purpose, it will be considered most carefully and that will possibly be the best way of approaching a subject of this kind. Let some experiment be started which may prove successful and which will reveal to us the difficulties which any institution of the kind has to meet. That is the practical way of dealing with the question. Let us for a moment withdraw this resolution, there is really no detailed scheme for the application of money; we shall not magnify differences and make differences when no differences exist. There are a great many questions that have to be considered when you transfer efforts of this kind from the voluntary sphere to the Government sphere. It is quite a different matter to lay on the Government a duty of this kind. You will have to treat all parts and all people equally, and you will have to be fair. I venture most respectfully to lay these suggestions before this Council."

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(The President; Mr. Venkatapati Raju;
Mr. Krishna Rao.)

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Your Excellency, there is no difficulty, so far as the application of this resolution is concerned, as to whom it is to be made applicable. We have taken it that it practically relates to the panchamas or the untouchables. Even in our own Presidency, when we refer to page 140 of the Civil Budget Estimate, we find, under the head of 'European education', boarding grants to children and grants to children in out-of-the-way places to the extent of Rs. 1,10,000. Therefore, we know how boarding grants are given for European boys. At the one end we have that class; now we shall go to the other end and give something to the panchama class. For the ruling class, we have provided; let us go to the other end and give to the panchamas some grant. How to provide grants, it is not difficult for the Secretariat to come to some understanding. If the intention is to provide something, a cut and dry scheme may be prepared in the Government office as to how best the budget grant may be utilized. I do not think that the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction will find it difficult to devise a scheme by which to provide free meals to panchama boys. The question is we must begin at one time or another, let us make a beginning now with the panchama boys."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, it has been suggested that so long as there is no difference in the object underlying this resolution and that so long as there is no ready scheme which can be worked out at once, it is not necessary to make a budget provision. Your Excellency will be pleased to notice that the idea of starting boarding houses and the method of working them is not a new one with which people are unacquainted in this country. Hostels have been established in various districts of the Presidency and are attached to various schools; and they are being worked in a satisfactory manner. The difficulty has been all along one of resources, one of ways and means, one of funds. If it is possible to find the funds, there can be no difficulty whatever in giving a start in various places. So far as the Hon'ble the Director of Public Instruction is concerned, his difficulty appears to be that much time is required for considering whether the Educational Department can take up this responsibility and for the Educational Department evolving a scheme which will be satisfactory. If the department is prepared to take up this work and start such boarding houses in some selected centres in the Presidency, it is, I believe, quite possible to have the necessary correspondence through the Inspectors and give it a start in the course of the next year. If for any reason it is believed that the correspondence between the Director of Public Instruction and the Inspectors, between the Inspectors and their assistants is likely to take much time, may I not ask that the necessary allotment can be made and the district boards may at once be consulted whether they can take up this task in suitable centres? I am quite sure that within the remaining portion of this year it will be possible for some of them to make up their minds and come forward with proposals; and in some cases a beginning can be made in that direction. I would, therefore, suggest, Your Excellency, that if for any reasons Government find it difficult to take up that heavy task without a very long inquiry, which cannot be completed till next year, some provision may be made and after consulting district boards funds may be allotted to some of them for giving a start to carry out this long-needed reform. I do not myself see that there would be any difficulties in carrying out this experiment. Several managers of schools are well acquainted with the system of starting boarding houses; and even the question of accommodation is not likely to cause difficulties, as hundreds of students are not likely to require accommodation. In the beginning they may be located in a rented house. It is very unfortunate that local bodies are not themselves in a position—by an examination of their

(Mr. Krishna Rao; the President;
Sir Alexander Cardew.)

[6TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

budgets, I say this—to give a start in this direction. An examination of the budgets sent by them shows that they find it very difficult to maintain the minimum balance and that they come forward to the Government with requests for money. Such is their unfortunate condition; and that is the reason why they are not in a position to make a beginning. If Government are pleased to make an allotment and help them, it will be possible to help the depressed classes. Even if it be only a few children who are helped, I think it will serve a useful purpose. As to the definition of depressed classes, I can inform Your Excellency that I have taken it in the sense in which it is used in the report of the Director of Public Instruction."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Is it depressed classes or backward classes?"

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I took it from the Quinquennial report, page 67. The heading is 'Education of backward and other special classes' and the sub-heading (a) is 'depressed classes'. Then they deal with the education of the depressed classes; they include under it the Panchamas, the Pallas, the Madigas, the Malas and they proceed to consider the progress made in education. I would request that for all practical purposes we can, for the present, adopt the definition given by the Director of Public Instruction; we might try the experiment and make a beginning."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I can assure the Honourable Member that any practical scheme that is sent up will be considered."

The resolution was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao demanded a poll which was taken with the following result:—

For	Against
The Hon'ble Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.	The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.
" " P. Siva Rao.	" Mr. L. Davidson.
" " K. Rama Ayyangar.	" " C. G. Todhunter.
" " K. Sadasiva Bhat.	" " A. Y. G. Campbell.
" " K. R. Suryanarayana-	" " R. Ramachandra Rao.
murti Nayudu.	" " M. Young.
" " B. Venkatapati Raju.	" " L. E. Buckley.
" " Muppil Nayar.	" " R. B. Wood.
" the Raja of Pithapuram.	" Khan Bahadur Aziz-ud-din
" Mr. A. Subbarayalu	Sahib.
Reddiyar.	" Mr. N. E. Marjoribanks.
" " T. Ranga Achariyar.	" " R. Littlehailes.
" Yaqub Hasan Sahib	" Sir Fairless Barber.
Bahadur.	" " Gordon Fraser.
" Mr. A. Suryanarayana Rao.	" Mr. J. H. Thonger.
" " A. S. Krishna Rao.	" " W. Hutton.
" " B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.	" " W. J. J. Howley.
" The Most Reverend John	" The Advocate-General.
Aelen.	" Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
	" " H. G. Stokes.

The resolution was lost 15 voting for and 19 against it.

XX-A. & 24-A. Medical.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"I now introduce the head XX-A. and 24-A. Medical."

RESOLUTION RE APPOINTMENT OF TRAVELLING SUB-ASSISTANT SURGEONS IN MUFASSAL HOSPITALS.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I have the honour to move:—

'XXV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 1,00,000 be provided under 24. Medical for the appointment of travelling sub-assistant surgeons in some of the mufassal hospitals in the Presidency and that the same be met from the reserve portion at the disposal of the Government under 32. Miscellaneous.'

"Your Excellency, it will be seen from the information available that there were at the beginning of 1917, 709 medical institutions open to the public and that at the end of the year there were 707. It is a problem which has been engaging the attention of the Government for several years. I am sure Government have been trying to improve the condition of these medical institutions to some extent. One of the suggestions that has been made and which has been considered by the Government is that in addition to the establishment of additional hospitals and dispensaries as they will do useful work within certain specified ranges. That is one of the important reforms which can be effected in the immediate future and which can be taken up without much difficulty and without much delay. I need not draw the attention of the

[6TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Krishna Rao; Sir Alexander Cardew;
Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

Council to the fact that during the last year especially, the health of the Presidency in the various districts has been causing considerable anxiety not only to the people in those localities, but to the Government themselves; and it is quite clear that on an occasion like that, the medical relief available was found to be inadequate and very insufficient. The Hon'ble the Surgeon-General who unfortunately is not here to-day will be in a position to tell us that he received several applications from various local bodies for additional sub-assistant surgeons, but he did not find it possible to cope with the situation and supply the persons required. I draw pointed attention to this circumstance to show that though it has been found necessary to increase the medical institutions to a considerable extent, the health of the Presidency on the whole has not been very satisfactory. So far as this is concerned, it suggests a simpler remedy: to the extent available and as far as possible, additional sub-assistant surgeons may be provided and attached to existing hospitals and may be asked to go to the surrounding villages and afford medical relief. I need not detain the Council very long because there can be no difference of opinion as regards the object underlying this resolution. I do not think that it need give rise to any debate. The principle underlying it is accepted. I suggest that provision of Rs. 1 lakh should be made for the purpose of enabling local bodies to take up this question. With these remarks, I commend this resolution."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"The proposal to appoint additional staff in mufassal hospitals and dispensaries with a view to enable medical aid to be brought into villages by travelling sub-assistant surgeons was contained in a Government Order of February 1917 and it has been, I think, generally approved of by local bodies. But the difficulty of carrying it out has arisen from the absence of a large number of our sub-assistant surgeons on military duty. Out of a total sanctioned strength of 762, the present strength is only 599 so that we have 163 less. The number of sub-assistant surgeons on military duty is even now 114 and that is the reason why we have not been able to progress with the scheme as much as the Government and local bodies would have liked. That difficulty, I am afraid, to some extent will continue in the coming year though to what extent we cannot tell, because we do not know yet when the medical department will relieve sub-assistant surgeons. The Government are quite as anxious as any one to see that this scheme is given a fair trial and the only objection which I feel to putting money in the budget—the only reason for not putting money in the budget—lay in this fact that under the Accountant-General's procedure payment made to local bodies to aid the outlay incurred on sub-assistant surgeons is only recovered from the Government and credited to local bodies at the end of each official year. Suppose a sub-assistant surgeon is appointed on the first of April in a mufassal hospital and continues till the first of September in that hospital or dispensary, the charges are first met by the local body and the Government are not compelled till the following year to meet them. That is why we did not put any money into the budget. It may be that some initial expense may have to be incurred in starting the scheme. Possibly the district boards will have to be furnished with equipment and also to encourage district boards by satisfying them that the money is in the budget, I have no objection to putting in a small sum of money but I doubt very much whether it will be actually spent in the year. If the Honourable Member will accept the amendment and put in Rs. 10,000 or something like that, which will come out of the head XXXII. Miscellaneous, I have no objection to accept it. I can assure him that we have every desire to push this scheme."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Will it not be possible to provide Rs. 20,000 to give it at least a fair trial?"

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"The Honourable Member had a talk with me and I said we could provide Rs. 20,000 but my fear is that it might not be spent. It is only after the end of the year that the accounts would be closed. It is only the initial expense that will have to be met. I did not remember the Accountant-General's procedure when I talked to the Honourable Member."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I accept the sum of Rs. 10,000."

The resolution as amended was put and agreed to.

RESOLUTION RE LUMP PROVISION FOR OPENING A MEDICAL SCHOOL AT BELLARY.

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"The resolution which I have the honour to move runs thus:—

'XXVI. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a lump provision of Rs. 20,000 be made under 24-Ad. Medical for opening a medical school at Bellary and this amount be met by a corresponding reduction under the head "45. Civil Works,"'

"Your Excellency, in the budget for the year 1918-19, a lump sum of Rs. 20,000 was provided for the opening of a medical school at Bellary, but afterwards I found that that amount was removed, and it was not included in this budget. I expected that this amount would be restored in the budget that we are dealing with now, but I do not find it anywhere. Government have recognized, as far back as 1916-17, that applications for admission into the medical schools are so many that new schools should be started to meet the demand and it was said in a Government Order that a school for Bellary was under consideration. There are at present four medical schools—one at Rayapuram, one at Calicut, another at Tanjore and another at Vizagapatam. These four schools are not enough to cope with the demand. They used to admit only about 120 students per year. In the year 1916-17 they raised the admission to 262 and even that was not considered enough. It will be seen that in the southern districts there are two schools—one in Malabar and one in Tanjore. There is one school in Vizagapatam for the Northern Circars, the Ceded districts are altogether unprovided for and Bellary was rightly selected as a centre and I do not see why provision should not be made for it this year. As has been pointed out by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew on account of the paucity of sub-assistant surgeons, we are not able to start any schemes even the Government schemes, referred to in the previous resolution. Unless this school is started, you will not be able to get a number of doctors sufficient for the purpose. As it is, the number is very small. Out of nearly 1,000 or to be more correct, 987 medical men of all services and grades, there are only 517 sub-assistant surgeons and there are about 99 temporary hands employed lately. Of course, the sub-assistant surgeons who are now employed for war purposes will soon be released, even then there will be the necessity for producing more; for the number of hospitals cannot be increased till sub-assistant surgeons are also increased. In fact, last year 17 medical institutions were closed, 10 of which were closed for want of medical men. There are 707 hospitals in the Presidency which are not at all enough and then there is a demand for the rural areas also for which travelling dispensaries are suggested and the scheme has been approved of. So Government should have no difficulty in accepting my resolution. I am not bringing forward any new thing or any big thing. It is only what the Government themselves contemplated to do last year and I only want them to do it in the course of this year. Rupees 20,000 as a lump sum provision is to be made for making a start. A site will have to be found, a building will have to be planned and something will have to be done and unless some money is provided in the budget, the school will not come into existence and will be lost sight of altogether. With these words, I commend the resolution."

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; Sir Alexander Cardew.) [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—"The Honourable Member who moved this resolution is quite correct in saying that there was a provision last year. In October 1917, the Surgeon-General was particularly asked by a memorandum from the Government to submit detailed proposals with reference to the proposed school at Bellary. Personally, I had great hopes that we should be able to start this school at Bellary at any rate in the year which is now drawing to a close. But in April 1918 Colonel Giffard in a long report on the subject entirely destroyed my hopes by the entirely adverse attitude which he took up on the subject. He said : 'After careful inquiry I have come to the conclusion that Bellary is a very unsuitable place in which to found a medical school. No more unpromising place for a medical school could be found in the Madras Presidency. The hospital, which was recently taken over by Government from the municipality, is badly equipped, badly staffed and has a very poor reputation. The average number of sick in hospital, last year, was only 19 although the hospital is capable of holding 60 patients. There are practically no women-patients in the (Sabhapathi Mudaliyar's old Municipal, now Government district headquarter) hospital either in the out-patients or in the in-patients. Only 12 women attended the headquarter hospital's dispensary on 30th March 1918. The mission hospitals of Jammalamadugu and the Mysore State hospitals attract most of the important cases.'

"In his letter he also says that there are very few post-mortem examinations, that comparatively little surgery is done, that the medical officer is badly handicapped by the fact that the municipality is unable to find funds even to feed the patients and he goes on :

"Inquiries reveal the fact that the four Ceded districts will probably produce each year only 24 school boys who have not proceeded to the intermediate course of instruction in a college, and who have a sufficient knowledge of English to be able to undertake a medical career. No one can say how many of these students will adopt medicine as a profession. There are only four Ceded district students now at Vizagapatam and two at Rayapuram. Five Ceded district students applied last year to this office for admission to the Civil Medical and Burma grades. Three, 2, 6 and 2 students applied for admission to the Rayapuram Medical school from Kurnool, Cuddapah, Bellary and Anantapur respectively. Only one student was admitted from Kurnool, all his certificates being in order. The other applicants did not send in any certificates and in some cases the marks obtained by them were not satisfactory. The state of the medical institutions in the Bellary town is such that it seems to me to be practically impossible to start a school at once."

"I think the Council will agree that when our expert advisor gives us such a definite finding against it, there was only one course to pursue and that was to take his advice. Instead of, therefore, carrying out the scheme and starting a medical school at Bellary we have adopted his suggestion and we have opened a school in connexion with the Madura hospital; but I have by no means given up the hope that we shall eventually see a medical school started at Bellary. The first step is undoubtedly to prepare to extend the hospital. That is the first procedure, and that has been taken. The land necessary for extension of the present hospital has been re-claimed from private ownership and has been made available for extension and as soon as plans and estimates are available, that scheme will be taken up. It will be eventually a matter of several years to complete the extension of the hospital and start the school and in the absence of clinical material, patients, bodies for dissection, etc., I should only be deluding the Council if I put money into the budget on the present occasion. I hope the Honourable 6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Sir Alexander Cardew ; Mr. Siva Rao ;

Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; the President ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

Member may be assured that we have not at all abandoned the idea that the Ceded districts should have a medical school though on the present occasion it is useless to provide funds as I did last year when I was in hopes of starting a medical school at once."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO :—"I wish to say a few words. I am very glad that the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan has taken up the case of the medical school at Bellary. I know the history of that school. Government very wisely sanctioned the location of a school at Bellary and provision was made in the current budget for the purpose. There is absolutely no doubt that there is a very urgent need for starting medical schools. We want more sub-assistant surgeons. It is also desirable that these schools should be located in various centres instead of being huddled in one corner of the Presidency and it is also equally well known that not one student in the sub-assistant surgeon cadre comes from the Ceded districts. The Ceded districts people are very averse to take up the medical profession and the men are very parochial in their habits. If they are told to go to Madura or Vizagapatam, they do not take the opportunity. It is this which induced the Government to decide to start the school at Bellary. The trouble arose when the Surgeon-General visited Bellary. Then the hospital was in a hopeless condition. That was the state when the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew visited it in December 1917 and the Honourable Member decided at once to take over the hospital. Accordingly he has taken it over. We shall take stock of the present situation. In the present budget there is a provision of Rs. 15,000 for extending it and there is a proposal to add to the nursing staff and there has been a proposal to shift the Victoria Women's hospital to the premises of the main hospital. Now, the clinical materials, the in-patients in the hospital have been increased but I need not tire the Council with indicating how the number of in-patients has since fallen. One of the reasons is that the municipality cannot afford to maintain it in an efficient condition. The other reason is that it is not properly staffed; it all depends upon the personnel of the medical staff. Now that the management has been taken over by Government, there are signs of improvement and I have noticed perceptible signs of improvement. The number of in-patients is steadily going up and if the Victoria Gosha hospital is shifted to the present hospital, it will add to the present number of in-patients. Between these two, we hope to have about 50 in-patients for the present, and thus there will be material for clinical study. During the two years that sub-assistant surgeons undergo their course, they confine themselves solely to theoretical study. Even if the medical school is opened this year, by the time the students reach their practical course the hospital will have been improved and when there is additional staff and increased accommodation and the best qualified surgeon is sent, everything will become better and the number of patients will be doubled. We have the District Medical and Sanitary Officer, who can deal with ophthalmic cases and therefore we have a number of eye-patients also. I hope the Government have not abandoned the idea. Let the provision be inserted; let the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General go again to Bellary and take stock of the present situation, and if it is feasible, let him start it. My main submission is this: for two years to come, there need not be much of clinical material, because the students will be busy with theoretical study. Let provision be made; let the Surgeon-General take fresh stock of the situation and then decide."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"My Lord, I should like to ask the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew whether it is not possible to start a school at Bellary and whether, if this is not feasible, he will consider the desirability of starting another medical school elsewhere. In that case, it will be possible to amend this resolution leaving the question of the Bellary scheme to be re-examined by next year. I brought to the notice of the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew by way of interpellation more than once that the applicants for admission into medical schools were more than 1,100, but the number actually admitted were below 400. Considering the absolute necessity of training sub-assistant surgeons, I venture to think that it is very desirable if the Bellary scheme could be pushed through as suggested or, if it is not possible, if another medical school can be started."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Notice has not been given of that."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"I am asking for information so as to enable me to decide whether Bellary might not be replaced by some other centre. I sent in an interpellation some time last year when they gave actual figures of the number of applications and the number admitted and it was found out that about two-thirds did not find admission."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew has been arguing this matter in a circle. He said he could not accept the previous resolution, because a sufficient number of doctors were not available."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—"I said sufficient number of in-patients and not doctors."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"I was referring to the previous resolution."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—"I am at one with the Honourable Member in the point of view that there is need for more medical schools. But we are only dealing with this particular case."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"If the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew will allow me to complete what I was going to say, I shall proceed that because medical practitioners were not available, he said in another resolution that the scheme could not be taken up in hand. Sufficient number of doctors cannot be produced unless there are enough of schools. When there is a proposal to start a school at a particular place, it is said that the hospital there does not afford sufficient ground for training students. If I ask him why that hospital should not be put in an efficient condition he would perhaps say that sufficient number of doctors are not available or he would say that surgical and clinical instruments cannot be obtained in war time and it would take several years before that hospital can become a good training ground. That is what I call arguing in a circle. As the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao has pointed out, steps are being taken to make that hospital efficient. Why not the Government also start a school there at the same time. They recognize the need for additional medical schools; they recognize that these schools should be so distributed throughout the Presidency that students in all parts of Presidency may not go a long distance for training. Why students of the Ceded districts should not be enabled to go to the nearest school to be trained there? When it is recognized that Bellary will be a suitable centre, why not the hospital there be brought to an efficient condition so that the school may be successfully started there? If Government wish to do it, they can take up both simultaneously, the equipment of the hospital as well as the starting of the school. It need not take several years; it could be brought about in a couple of years. The war has ended now and all the necessary materials will soon be available. If Government only make up their mind, they can do it; in the meanwhile if this money is provided, it can be utilized in purchasing a site and laying the foundation of the building; it will take some years for the school to be built up, to be ready for the school to be started and some money may be spent every year. The object of placing this amount in the budget is that this object may be kept in view so that something might be done at the earliest opportunity. On the other hand, if this amount disappears from the budget as it has done this year, the result will be that the whole scheme will be abandoned and nothing will be done to create one more school. The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao suggested that, if Bellary is not suitable, we might start it in some other centre. That should have been accepted by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew and this resolution could have been easily amended by substituting some other place for Bellary. As long as one additional school is given somewhere in the north, where students from the Ceded districts can go to be trained, we will be satisfied. I hope your Excellency's Government will devise some means of founding one more school.

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan; the President; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Siva Rao.)

"Let there be a provision of Rs. 5,000, Rs. 10,000 or any other figure just to show that the idea of another medical school is not abandoned."

The resolution was put and lost.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I am afraid I omitted to give the figures on Resolution No. XXII*. Ten were for and twenty were against."

RESOLUTION RE OMISSION OF THE PROVISION FOR TAKING OVER THE ROYAPETTA HOSPITAL.

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"The resolution which stands in my name runs thus:—

'XXVII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the provision of 3.25 lakhs made in the current budget for the taking over of the Royapetta Hospital by the Government may be omitted.'

"This resolution relates to an entry in paragraph 82 of the Amended Draft Financial Statement which provides for Rs. 3,25,000 for the taking over of the Royapetta hospital and it is to the insertion of this figure in the budget is that the scheme itself has not been examined, has not been sanctioned by the Government; the wishes of the Corporation do not seem to have been consulted in the matter—I am open to correction. But I wish to know what has been done in the matter. There is not a clear statement of the circumstances under which it is proposed to take over the Royapetta hospital. My first objection is that the scheme is not sanctioned and it is not usual to budget for it. It is unsound to insert any provision before the scheme is sanctioned."

"My second objection is this: the Royapetta hospital is maintained and managed at present by the Madras Corporation and I wish to know whether any reference was sent or any application made by them that they should be relieved of the burden of maintaining this hospital or, in other words, whether they have asked for financial relief. The third objection seems to be: why should the Madras Corporation which has a pretty big hospital be deprived of its legitimate activities in the matter and why should the Government seek to impose their control on the hospital which is successfully managed. Hitherto we are familiar with compulsory acquisition of lands. This seems to be a compulsory acquisition of an institution. This is an instance in which Government seek to impose their own control over an institution which has been doing quite well without it. One other consideration arises also in this matter: that the Government figures in the budget estimate at page 143, where a summary is given, Government spend for the Government General hospital about Rs. 4 lakhs and odd, for the Rayapuram hospital Rs. 1,30,802, for the Maternity hospital Rs. 1,84,637, for the Leper hospital Rs. 35,482, for the Ophthalmic hospital Rs. 90,768. In all, they have been spending Rs. 8,44,128 for the Presidency hospitals, and now according to the present budget they are spending a sum equal to that spent for all the hospitals and dispensaries throughout the Presidency. Now they are seeking to add to that expenditure an expenditure of Rs. 3,25,000 which is a pretty heavy amount, which will make up the total to about 12 lakhs per annum. Then there is the question of shifting the General hospital to some other place. Government are about to embark on a huge expenditure on that account of a new building for the General hospital. Government have pledged themselves to the scheme of the improvement of the head quarter hospitals. I do not think the money they have allotted now in the present budget will suffice for that purpose. They will have to spend more and more every year towards bringing up the headquarter hospitals in efficient condition. There is again the scheme for extending medical and sanitary relief in rural areas in mufassal dispensaries and other schemes. While we require money for financing those useful schemes, of improving the headquarter hospitals in the mufassal and extending medical relief in rural areas, is it desirable to take over a hospital which is maintained and managed very smoothly by the Madras Corporation without consulting their wishes in the matter and without an express request from them for financial assistance? For all these reasons, I object to the taking over of the hospital by Government. For the main reason that the Madras Corporation should be encouraged in its activities and that Government should not intervene in this matter and interpose their own control. There is no reason why the Government should take upon their own shoulders any more hospitals in the Presidency town."

* Page 194 supra.

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Siva Rao; Mr. Ranga Achariyar;
the President; Sir Alexander Cardew; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Perhaps your Excellency will permit me to make a few remarks before the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew speaks. So far as the Corporation is concerned, we considered the matter once when the proposal was made to the Corporation that we should hand over the Royapetta hospital to the Government. The Corporation then resolved not to do so. So far as we are concerned, no reference has yet been made to the Corporation on the subject and the Corporation has not considered it. Therefore I am not in a position to enlighten this Council as to the view which the Corporation may take on that subject when it comes again. On the principle that we are now acting, that we are budgeting for figures and not schemes, on a matter like this where the local authority concerned has not been consulted and their view has not been ascertained, on that principle, to provide for this large sum of money for the coming year is what is called loose budgeting. Speaking of my own inclination for the present, I would oppose such a proposition if it is brought forward in the Corporation; but till the Government place before the Corporation new facts which would induce the Corporation to take a different view—till that is done and till we are able to make up our minds in this matter—I support the proposition."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. Ramachandra Rao rose to speak.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Would it not be better to hear what the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew has to say so that you may be better able to say what you want?"

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"Your Excellency, a reference went to the Corporation executive a month ago. I do not know what the methods of the Corporation are with regard to business. If they have not yet found it possible to make it known to the Corporation, we must apply the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar's sarcasm as regards the methods of red-tapism. The Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao thinks that we are going to compel this body by some powers under the Land Acquisition Act. We have only asked the Corporation whether they would not like to do it. We have asked them and we have offered to pay them money, but it is open to them to do as they please. The Corporation have applied to the Government for a large grant for the total cost of building the infectious diseases hospital. The suggestion is in the nature of an arrangement for mutual convenience. We will give them money for the infectious diseases hospital and we will take over the Royapetta hospital because we want it for a teaching institution for the increase of medical men about which the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan is so insistent and which we too recognize is very necessary. It is entirely a question whether it is in the interests of the Corporation to make this exchange. If the Government take over the Royapetta hospital, it will save them a large amount of money which may be more suitably employed in building the infectious diseases hospital and Government will have to pay the bill in future. The only criticism is that the money might be spent on mufassal hospitals. It is for the Corporation to decide whether they would like to have the money or would like to see the money spent in the mufassal. I am pleased to find that the change in the budget procedure has had the effect of the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao saying that it is loose budgeting to put money into the budget until this amount is decided. I hope in future he will not bring forward any proposal for which a financial scheme is not available."

"In the meantime I will plead 'let this budget allotment remain', so that the Corporation will see whether it is to its advantage or else we will employ this amount on some other means of assisting medical relief. We do not know whether we should help the Corporation on building the infectious diseases hospital. They do want money. It is entirely up to the Corporation to decide it. I suggest that the provision be retained, because the money if it is not utilized for this purpose, will be utilized for any other medical relief."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, it is not only the Rs. 3,25,000 that the Government would have ultimately to spend upon this hospital but there are also the annual charges which amount to about Rs. 50,000 per annum on the Corporation budget. If the Royapetta hospital is taken up, Government would have to pay Rs. 3,25,000 for the value of the building. In addition to that, Government would have to spend Rupees

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Venkatapati Raju.]

50,000 for the maintenance of this hospital. One of the points brought out has been that these institutions for medical training should be started all over the Presidency and should not be concentrated in Madras. I for one speaking on behalf of the mufassal hospitals will not be a party to commit the Government to an expenditure of Rs. 3,25,000 immediately on buildings in Madras and an annual charge of Rs. 50,000. On that one ground, I would oppose this resolution.

"As regards the arrangement between the Madras Corporation and the Government, I cannot say very much. For the present, I can only say that the Madras Corporation will be delighted to be relieved of an expenditure of Rs. 50,000 per annum out of their medical budget. But, in my opinion, it would be at the expense of similar dispensaries elsewhere. Madras is already in a very favourable position with regard to medical relief. They spend comparatively very little on medical establishments as compared with the mufassal. The amount they spend both in recurring and maintenance charges is very little. If you only compare it with what any mufassal municipality or a district board spends out of its usual revenues on medical relief, it will be certainly much more than in Madras. I do not complain of it; large hospitals are situated in Madras, a large medical college is here and it is absolutely necessary for medical education that a certain amount of money must be spent in Madras both in colleges and in schools and also on hospitals. I do not grudge that, but it does not mean that for that very reason another Rs. 50,000 should be presented to the Madras Corporation by taking over the Royapetta hospital. On these grounds, I am sorry I have to support this motion however much I desire to see the extension of medical education. I wish that this sum of Rs. 50,000 were immediately put into two other medical schools elsewhere."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"Your Excellency, as a commissioner of the Corporation of Madras as well as a member of this Council, I oppose this idea of the transfer of the Royapetta hospital from the Corporation to the Government. I do so for various reasons. One is that the Government should not undertake more responsibility in the sphere of medical relief than they are able to attend to. Money is wanted for medical relief in other directions and this amount of Rs. 3,25,000 and Rs. 50,000 recurring expenditure that will have to be taken up with this can be better utilized on medical relief in other directions. It is the duty of the Corporation to provide medical relief. The Corporation is doing that duty and why should the Corporation be relieved of that duty in this instance? The infectious diseases hospital is also necessary and perhaps the Corporation may do something in that direction. If they cannot do anything without the assistance of the Government, they will come to the Government for assistance and then it will be our duty to see whether the assistance can be given to it. It is said that the hospital is required for the purpose of training students. If so, this hospital may be placed at the disposal of the Government and some more doctors might be appointed by the Government for the teaching work. The Corporation will be glad to allow this. In that way you will be giving your help to the Corporation in the medical line; but at the same time you will be doing your duty for the training of the students. It is also stated that if the Corporation does not agree to this proposal, this amount will be utilized for some other purpose. Then it is loose budgeting as the Hon'ble Mr. Banga Achariyar has pointed out. There was no scheme for locating a school anywhere else, we cannot take it over here by amending the resolution. But I say how can it be possible to spend Rs. 3,25,000 in other directions without bringing up the schemes before this Council in the budget. What I mean is that the Government should be consistent in their method of budgeting, they should remove this amount, and if they have got any other scheme, they should bring it forward next year."

The resolution was put and lost.

The Council then adjourned for a short interval.

The Council re-assembled after the interval at 3 p.m.

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR RAISING THE MEDICAL SCHOOL AT VIZAGAPATAM INTO A COLLEGE.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Your Excellency, the resolution which I have the honour to move runs in these terms:—

'XXVIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of 2 lakhs be added under the head of 22. EDUCATION for raising the medical school at Vizagapatam to a college and the corresponding reduction be made under 45-B. CIVIL WORKS.'

"Your Excellency, it is admitted that Vizagapatam town is growing in importance and there is every desire on the part of all to have more medical institutions not only for the training of lower classes but for the training of higher classes—the L.M. & S. and the M.B.O.M. The one institution we have in Madras is not sufficient to cope with it, because we find from year to year a large number of persons not being admitted, though they desire to enter the portals of the medical institution here. I do not think this is a controversial proposition at all, because as I understand it, when the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew was pleased to visit our town, the public waited on him in deputation and impressed upon him the necessity of raising this

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Venkatapati Raju ; Sir Alexander Cardew ;
the President.)

school to a medical college, and I think the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew heartily sympathized with that desire and if it is possible for him to help the people he would certainly do it. How much amount is wanted for starting a college, and how long it would take is a matter of detail which laymen cannot settle. But we can say some amount is wanted and some time is required in order to secure laboratory and apparatus and engage professors and also find students for the classes. We must begin with the first class. I also learn that there is some difficulty in securing midwifery cases, because you may not get many females to enter the hospital for the purpose of delivery, so that the boys will not be able to secure a large number of delivery cases to attend to. That is a difficulty that can be easily cured by promising to pay small amounts to barber women and other low class women. So it is not an insurmountable difficulty. So far as the present institution is concerned, it is most popular, not only the hospital which is built at a great cost, but also the school is very popular and it produces brilliant results. That shows when we have a separate institution in that locality the professors engaged are doing their level best to keep up their traditions in such a way that the students studying in the Rayapuram and other schools cannot be said to have better training than those trained in the Vizagapatam. I hope if a medical college is started, the instruction given there would be equal to if not better than that given in the metropolis. It all depends upon the enthusiasm of the persons employed there. The laboratory and other things can be got for money. So far as the climate is concerned, it is a salubrious climate, and students can stop there. Taking all circumstances into consideration and the possibility of its becoming an important centre of commerce in future, I earnestly appeal to the Government that some steps may be taken, and though the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew may not have the occasion to present this proposal at the next Council, I hope during his time he will do something or leave a note so that we can certainly secure a medical college, if not immediately, as soon as we can get funds. Therefore, I appeal that this recommendation may be accepted."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"Your Excellency, the unfortunate requirement of medical education is that it must be accompanied by an adequate number of patients from whom students can be taught. It is not like the law college or the ordinary arts college which you can put down anywhere or open at any time, because you merely want professors and students. When you want a medical school or college, there must be an adequate number of patients. The Hon'ble the Surgeon-General advises that there must be at least two beds for each of the students and that limits the progress very materially, because to provide for 50 students we must have 100 beds in the hospital. In the Vizagapatam hospital there are 137 beds and there is also a Maternity hospital which has 16 beds, the two together making 153 beds. The strength of the school in the third and fourth year will, in consequence of the increased admissions which have been made this year and which will be made next July, be 114. So that the hospital would not be sufficient to supply clinical material for the school, let alone the college to be created on the top of the school. Consequently it is not at present practicable to start a college at Vizagapatam. Before that can be done there is a good deal of spade work to be done. The construction of the hospital buildings undertaken at a cost of 5 lakhs will take a year and a half at the most sanguine estimate. When I was there at the end of December last, the foundations of the out-patients wards were not in, and it will take a year and a half to finish the hospital, and when this is finished the number of beds will be considerably increased. When we have added a third block which is not yet begun, it may eventually have 270 beds or enough to remove the students of the medical school of the third and fourth years to Cocanada or some other neighbouring hospital, and the reconstruction of the Cocanada hospital with a view to increasing its size and fitting it for teaching purposes is under consideration. The Hon'ble so by an attack of influenza. There is thus a great deal of work to be done before a college can be started at Vizagapatam. First of all we must extend the hospital, before we can provide the college; we must also rebuild the Cocanada hospital. Then there will be clinical training available for a college and Vizagapatam will get a college for that and the neighbouring portion of the province. As I said, in the meantime it is quite useless to put money in this year's budget. All I can hope is that the representatives of the Telugu country and the Ceded districts will keep on pressing this matter on Government till they get it. It cannot be done now for reasons which I have given and which I hope will be convincing to the Honourable Member. No time should be lost in making arrangements to bring about this college. I think we have made very good progress with the hospital and we are not losing any time."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I thank the Government and the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew for promising to do what is possible when the hospital is ready. I brought this forward on this occasion because we may not have another opportunity of discussing this before the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew who takes an interest in these matters."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE INCREASED PROVISION TO MUNICIPALITIES FOR PLAGUE EXPENDITURE.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Resolutions XXIX and XXX refer really to the same subject. We will take the decision on one as covering both."

(Mr. Venkatapati Raju; Mr. Suryanarayana Rao; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.]

Resolution No. XXIX which stood in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju was as follows:—

'XXIX. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 50,000 be added under the head of 24-Aa. MEDICAL—Plague to help the municipalities which incurred large untoward expenditure on account of plague and the corresponding reduction be made under 45-B. CIVIL WORKS.'

Resolution No. XXX which stood in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. A. Suryanarayana Rao ran as follows:—

'XXX. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 20,000 be added under head of 32. MISCELLANEOUS to provide the grant towards expenditure on plague preventative measures to Vizagapatam municipality and a corresponding sum be reduced from 45-B. CIVIL WORKS.'

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU moved resolution No. XXIX and in doing so said:—"Your Excellency, myself and the Hon'ble Mr. Suryanarayana Rao have asked for some provision to be made for grants to municipalities for plague expenditure. I have asked for a sum of Rs. 50,000 to help municipalities for meeting the expenditure on account of plague. It is true that most municipalities have suffered very much in meeting these epidemic charges. I have specifically taken plague, because it entails a large expenditure, on some of the municipalities particularly. I may mention Vizagapatam which has to spend a lot of money more than Rs. 20,000 to meet the plague expenditure. Similarly some other municipalities have to spend some amount. As a matter of fact, these municipalities have had to curtail their ordinary expenditure and they have had to reduce the amount on the sanitary and other departments in order to meet the cost of the plague expenditure. As it is, in Vizagapatam we have not got even the balance which is required under the rules, because we have to be satisfied with what we have got after reducing the normal expenditure. In cases where they are not able to meet the normal expenditure on account of the extra plague expenditure, I appeal to the Government that something should be done to help these municipalities in meeting this extra plague expenditure either in whole or in part. On previous occasions when this question was dealt with, the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar said that the Government were prepared to help municipalities to some extent when they made applications. I do not know whether other municipalities have made applications for grants, but I know that Vizagapatam has made an application and other municipalities may also have made applications. It all depends upon how far the Government can extend their help in relieving this additional burden of the municipalities. I notice that some provision is made to meet the cost of municipalities whenever there is a deficit. I therefore submit that the Government should help these municipalities."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO:—"Your Excellency, regarding the Vizagapatam municipality we applied last March for a grant of Rs. 20,000 on account of plague. The Government granted us about Rs. 11,000 and that was spent on removing prickly-pear. The Rs. 13,000 odd has been spent for compensation for houses and articles burnt, Rs. 5,000 for establishment and Rs. 8,900 on other expenditure on camp, etc. The total amount we have spent is Rs. 27,133. The Government have been pleased to grant us Rs. 11,000, and as I said that was spent upon the removal of prickly-pear. So there is a deficit of Rs. 16,000 which stares us in the face. The municipality is not rich and other expenses have had to be curtailed. Therefore the municipality prays that the Government may be pleased to grant the deficit to the municipality. It is not a new request that comes before this Council, because last year in March I brought up a resolution that Rs. 20,000 might be granted. With regard to the removal of prickly-pear we had absolutely no choice in the matter, because we were asked to remove the prickly-pear. Mr. Vernon was very particular to have it removed and it had to be removed. Therefore, we are short of funds. We hope that the Government would be pleased to make some provision for restoring some of the funds that we have been obliged to part with on account of the plague epidemic which was quite unexpected."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I shall begin by answering the Hon'ble Mr. Venkatapati Raju's query. I have to say that grants to municipalities towards plague expenditure are usually made from the provision under 32-D. Miscellaneous contributions—contributions in aid of municipal balances. A provision of Rs. 50,000 has been made under this head in the budget for 1919-20. That is the source from which, if the plague expenditure of any place is so very heavy that the finances of the local body are wholly crippled and the Government have to go to its relief, we will make a contribution."

"Having said that, let me also remind the Council that in our discussions regarding the incidence of plague expenditure in this Council we decided last year on a motion made by the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao that the whole incidence of plague expenditure as between the Government and the local bodies should be carefully gone into, so that some redistribution might be [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Venkatapati Raju;

the President; Mr. Rama Ayyangar.)

made which would to a substantial extent relieve the local bodies of this burden, our idea being that as far as possible the expenditure incurred under our supervision should be borne by the Provincial funds; and any expenditure which the local body supervises should be borne by it. It was in pursuance of this decision as well as of several recommendations made to us by our expert officers, we relieved local bodies very substantially of a great deal of the plague expenditure. For example the work of the notification system and disinfection which hitherto would fall on the local body have been abolished. Observation was transferred from the local bodies to the Provincial funds. Inoculation was provincial and continues to be provincial. The provision of shelter for the evacuated has been transferred from local to provincial. The police to guard evacuated houses in private camps has been provincial before and continues so now. Really almost the only thing that remains with the local bodies is rat destruction, which is essentially a matter which the local body has to tackle and also the treatment of plague patients. The local body is expected to treat plague patients just as any other patients. It has also to bear the cost of the inspection of grain. That being so, in the result we have had to provide in the budget for 1919-20 Rs. 89,000 for expenditure from provincial revenues, the greater portion of which would have fallen on local bodies previously but which now falls on us. Looking into the budget estimates of the local bodies and municipal councils who are dealing with plague I find that all the municipal councils for the year 1920 have budgeted for an expenditure of Rs. 36,500. That is the expenditure which under the new rules falls upon them. That is the amount for seventy municipalities. If in any case any of them is so crippled that it cannot meet that share of the expenditure that question will come up to the Government. But what the Council has now to deal with is whether an allotment of Rs. 50,000 is not sufficient to meet the possible difficulties of people who have to incur an expenditure of only Rs. 36,000. For these reasons I oppose this proposition."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Your Excellency, I thank the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar for the sympathetic way in which he has met this request. I think there is some misapprehension either in the way in which we presented our case or in his understanding us. According to the rules which the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar read, they apply for the year 1919-20. What about the cost which is already incurred? If it has retrospective effect, it would serve our purpose."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I submit, your Excellency, we are dealing with the figures for 1919-20. Are we dealing with the figures for the previous year?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"No."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"If we are, I am prepared to say that we have dealt with the municipalities in a very liberal way."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"My resolution is to help the municipalities which 'incurred'. 'Incurred' cannot be in 1919-20."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We are not dealing with the wording of the Honourable Member's resolution, but with the forthcoming budget."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"I ask for a provision to meet the expenditure in 1918-19. I leave the matter in the hands of the Government. I do not press the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

XX-B & 24-B. Sanitation.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg to introduce the head Sanitation."

RESOLUTION RE GRANTS-IN-AID TO DISTRICT BOARDS TO MAINTAIN RURAL SANITARY PARTIES.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"Your Excellency, the resolution that I propose to move runs as follows:—

'XXXI. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 2 lakhs be provided to give grants-in-aid to district boards to maintain sanitary parties to be used in rural areas and that the same be met by a corresponding reduction under the head 45-B.'

"My Lord, I have to remind the Council that this is almost the resolution which was moved by me last year when the Government kindly undertook to send round the discussion to the various local bodies. Unfortunately for me this paper containing the communications of the local bodies in connexion with this matter was placed into our hands only the day before yesterday—the Government Order, dated the 28th January 1919, which has been recently passed. Now my submission is the matter has been apparently discussed throughout the Presidency. The conditions of Malabar seem to be peculiar. I refer to the various communications made in connexion with this matter. As regards the other districts, I find that where they have entertained such parties already, they are satisfied with them and they want to continue them if possible. The other boards—I am now talking of district boards, I shall deal with the taluk boards separately—some of them think that the establishment would be a big drain and not knowing how they could find funds they have suggested that it would be costly and could not be entertained. Other district boards support the view that it is necessary. From the whole of this paper I find that about 11 district boards are in favour of the proposal and 13 district boards—in which I include district boards which say that they could not give any definite opinion in the matter and other district boards which say they have not funds for the purpose—about 13 are against the proposal to entertain sanitary parties. I find on analysis of the opinions of the taluk boards that about 35 taluk boards are in favour of the proposal, about 15 against or neutral or unable to give an opinion. That is how it has divided itself. As I said four or five taluk boards and one or two district boards have peculiar conditions, and they say that till more unions are formed in taluk board areas—I took of Malabar and those parts—they say it will not be necessary to entertain sanitary parties. So that that class of districts may be left out of consideration. It is clear that at least half the area of the Presidency is—I say at least half, it is much more than half—that the entertainment of sanitary parties will be very useful. In fact, I should also clarify another position which has apparently made it difficult for the boards to come to a definite decision. The discussion was circulated amongst them and they took it that the sanitary party must consist only of a sanitary inspector and a few peons, and therefore some district boards and taluk boards passed resolutions that the matter may be placed in charge of an assistant surgeon who may be in charge of the whole sanitary staff of the district. In other cases they wanted an assistant surgeon for each taluk board.

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.) 6TH FEBRUARY 1919.

“These are the individual opinions which, however they may vary, clearly indicate the necessity for the staff. Whether the staff is to consist of only sanitary inspectors without a superior officer or whether it is to consist of an assistant surgeon, is a matter for each taluk board or district board to decide. Whatever that may be, the boards which have opined against this proposal are those that have made no previous attempts to try to approach rural areas. In the case of a few taluk boards and one or two district boards that have already such a sanitary staff, they give a definite opinion that it is necessary and that it is good. So that we may take it that those that have not been trying this experiment and that look afraid at the idea of such an expenditure on rural areas when they have no money even for the needs they have, try to dispose of the matter by saying either that it is unnecessary at this stage, some of them say that they do not want it at present as if to-morrow there is a change in their financial position and they will then take it up. The document is worth perusal and ever since I got it I ran through it over and over again and I am satisfied that throughout the Presidency there is a feeling that this kind of help must be given as far as possible in the rural areas, though some say, some who have not tried the experiment, that it is not practical or practicable—that is the kind of language they use.

“Whatever that be, the point that I beg to place before this Council is that I find that resolution XXV which was moved by the Hon’ble Mr. Krishna Rao has been put under ‘Medical’ and this one has been put under ‘Sanitation.’ But this sanitary party apparently is a party that will have the sub-assistant surgeon referred to in resolution XXV which has been already moved and in regard to which some concession seems to have been made by the Government. Whatever may be the provision of sub-assistant surgeons, in this matter it will be absolutely necessary to take care of the rural areas much better than we do now. I have been connected with one or two taluk boards not as member but as a member of the district board to which these taluk boards are attached, and I know wherever they engaged a sanitary inspector it has given them entire satisfaction, and they find that they can at any time have a staff to ward off difficulties. The cholera party which were sent for last year both in Ramnad and Madura could not reach the places in time, so much so that some of the parts affected like Kamudi and others could not be given relief by the district board or the cholera party. In Madura of course there was a party placed at Sholavandan at one time and at another time in another place but it was not sufficient to give relief.”

The Hon’ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—“Has the Madura District Board replied?”

The Hon’ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—“I wanted to mention it also. Madura has sent up a resolution approving of this and I was present at that meeting. The taluk board has also approved of that, but I do not find the papers relating to the Madura District Board and Taluk Board; they are not printed here. There seems to have been some mislaying of papers or probably it has not been communicated. Whatever that may be, I should have had one more district board to add to the list of 11 which would have made it 12. These are the circumstances. Where they have engaged a single sanitary inspector and a few peons they have been able to immediately attend to the wants of the people within the taluk board area. That is the practical experience I have. I find from these resolutions that in other places in the north with millions of the population of the Presidency, and some in the south, all of them say that they have already entertained these parties and they are working and they support the proposal to have a general set of parties. Recently the Madura District Board in passing their budget set apart Rs. 15,000 for a sanitary scheme for the Madura District Board—to have a party which will have an establishment placed under each taluk board and a general supervising establishment with an Assistant Surgeon, who will be also called the Assistant District Medical and Sanitary Officer, to supervise the work of all the sanitary staff. They have set apart Rs. 15,000 and they expect the Government to help them as much as possible in their scheme.

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rama Ayyangar.)

“Whatever way the Government may view it, the question arises that about 35 taluk boards and 11 or 12 district boards are willing and are of opinion that it will be useful if such parties are engaged. That will naturally mean that the present cholera parties, six in number—I suppose I am right in saying that it is only six and I do not know if it has been increased recently—the six cholera parties will merge in this establishment or if particular district boards make a provision and incur the expenditure they may be utilized in other places where such diseases may want them. Therefore, while that expenditure also may be included in the provision to be made for these parties, this should be encouraged as much as possible.

“One thing must be definitely said about the attempt of this Government during the last five years during which I have been connected with this Council—the attempt on the part of this Government to try to improve the condition of the population in rural areas, there has been constant attempt made towards it. Cholera parties were started somewhere in 1914, with a view to give such relief. We have itinerating dispensaries which were also brought in. The sanitary parties which I refer to will also be itinerating. They will join the itinerant dispensary, and the proposal in Madura is to have the same officers go about and distribute such medicines as may be needed on occasions of fever, plague or cholera. That being so, my Lord, it would be very well to start the experiment and save many more of the rural population than we have been able to do. I am not in possession of full information as to the number of telegrams and letters that passed between the Madura and Ramnad District Board Presidents and the Government and between the Collectors of those districts and the Government when cholera was prevalent both in Madura and Ramnad last year. In spite of their best attempts it was not possible to secure a party in time, and when it was secured the area which was served did not immediately take to them as they would have done if they had a set of officers who were acquainted with these parts before the attack, and so the localities which ought to have been looked after could not be looked after. In fact the sanitary staff would have to be constantly touring and acquainting themselves with the population in the rural areas who would expect them to help in diseases and would wire to them or at once intimate to them as to how they could be saved from any particular disease. There will be a feeling of trust created in the rural areas if there is a constant party working. More than half the Presidency requires it. In these circumstances, I require that this two lakhs may be provided.

“The question may be asked whether two lakhs would be necessary for it. As I said, I am only referring to about 35 taluk boards and 11 district boards who are ready and willing to take up this work. If they are engaging parties according to Resolution XXV the travelling sub-assistant surgeons may also form a part of this sanitary staff. In these circumstances the amount that may be required will be fairly large. I said that Madura has provided Rs. 15,000. I think it would be well to give a grant-in-aid the ratio of which will have to be determined by the Government. If one-third comes from the district boards, two-thirds must come from the Provincial funds because it must be a wholly provincial matter in the present state of finance of the boards. There is no provision made to hand over any portion of the Provincial funds to these local boards and therefore it must be wholly taken up by the Government. As it is, even if they do not go to such an extent, two-thirds must be given by the Government and one-third by the boards and in particular cases the Government may decide to give a full grant, because rural areas will have to be protected as well as other areas. The recent change in the policy of the Government in taking over the headquarter hospitals of most districts shows the interest which the Government take in the matter and they have been considerably improving the position of these hospitals and they propose to spend much more to see that they are much more efficiently kept. If the principal centres are kept like that, it is only proper that rural areas must be kept properly and must be encouraged. If the Provincial funds bear the whole cost of the municipal hospitals—before, they contributed one-third of the maintenance cost, now it is all borne by the Government—similar steps might be taken when the boards agree to start these sanitary parties. As I said, the recent circular of the Government of India which has been communicated by the Government to the various local boards supports this view. They are for increasing the aid to local bodies. Some of the taluk board resolutions refer to the decision of the Government of India who have asked this Government to help rural areas in this way. Of course, the proposal there is to have a sanitary staff in each taluk board and a supervising staff under the district board. Though in the previous discussion I only mentioned it as an example that at least one sanitary inspector and a few peons should be attached to the taluk board, I do not want that it should not be an efficient establishment. I am willing that the Government should insist on the district boards spending money in a way that would efficiently help the masses in the rural areas, and if that requires a little more money being put in the district board budget the Government may help them in the matter, and instead of taking the whole of the rural areas directly themselves they might put them in charge of these taluk boards which are sure to attend to them especially when there is a supervising staff as proposed by the Government of India.

“I am not asking for much. In the medical budget in the coming year there is provision for an increased expenditure of about Rs. 11 lakhs, and in the sanitation budget of about Rs. 8 lakhs. Therefore this provision of Rs. 2 lakhs towards combined medical and sanitary relief is absolutely essential and I request that no pleas of difficulties would be raised in opposition to the resolution. I want the Government to sympathetically view the position and very soon teach these boards which think it unnecessary at present—teach them to learn that other boards which have made a provision fare much better. I have no doubt that the vital statistics will show that these rural areas are much better in point of health than the rural areas which do not have such parties. Apart from that, they will constantly attend to the health of the people, and when they are properly directed by a proper supervising staff, there is not the least doubt about that that western medical relief will be brought to the doors of the villagers and in most cases they will learn soon that a dose or two of the medicine cures, and the effect will be that they will be always thinking of the man, as to when he will come and effect a cure. That will be the position which will be created by the adoption of the proposition. The whole of the rural areas will feel that a paternal Government is looking after their interests every morning and evening as will be done by an arrangement of this kind. The taluk boards are now diminishing in area; sometimes the area is not much more than 1,000 odd square miles. Though there are a number of villages, if there is more than one sanitary inspector he will be going round them often on tour. That becomes the position and I submit the attempt of this Government to give this kind of relief should be recognized all through. I press this resolution and request the Government to accept it now that there is a general tendency to accept such resolutions."

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.]

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the Honourable Member brought this subject forward about this time last year in connexion with the budget of 1918-1919. Then he proposed to recommend to Your Excellency to give one lakh as grant-in-aid to taluk boards to maintain rural sanitary parties. I said then on behalf of the Government that the starting of a number of rural sanitary parties was rather a big change, and I would like to consult the local bodies about it. On that assurance the Honourable Member withdrew his resolution. The local bodies have now been consulted and their opinions are in this Government Order issued on the 28th January where all the reports are consolidated. Madura is not in it, because Madura did not reply till practically this Government order went to the press. I am sorry that the Madura District Board which should have taken most interest in the Honourable Member's proposal showed an unusual lack of sympathy with him if I am to judge."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR (interrupting):—"It was passed long long ago. There must have been some mistake there or here."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR (continuing):—"The Ramnad District Board which is next door to Madura has definitely said that the idea is impracticable. What we said was we would refer the matter to the local bodies, I was anxious that the Honourable Member should have the benefit of the opinions of the local bodies, and those opinions have now been received and the Honourable Member might see those views. So far as I was concerned, I felt no need to express any view or to commit the Government, because so far as I could see, the opinion of the district boards is very much against the idea, and I was not prepared to take up the position that we should force it down their throats however good it may be. That is not the policy that I have ever pursued and, I do not suppose, I will ever pursue. The only difference in the present resolution is the Honourable Member proposes to give not one lakh but two lakhs and not to taluk boards but to district boards. Let us see what the district boards have said. Fourteen of them have definitely said that they do not want it; eight of them wanted it, two stipulated that they should not be asked to pay anything, and one district board said it was neutral whatever that may mean. It is a matter for consideration whether on the facts brought out in this Government Order it would be wise for this Council to commit itself to this policy of the Honourable Member, or whether it would not be better for him to wait for some time longer till he is in a position to convince the local bodies and a substantial number of them are for carrying out the policy. So far as we are concerned, we take note of the fact that we are asked to give this money to district boards, and the district boards in a large majority of cases have voted against the Honourable Member's proposal. We cannot force money upon them to try a thing which they do not approve of, whatever may be the merits of the thing. On that ground I very much advise this Council not to commit itself to the proposal of the Honourable Member."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I should like to give one short answer. Fourteen district boards do not require it, but there are eight district boards which want it. There is no question of forcing the money on any of the boards. The proposition says give so much money to the district boards. If some do not want it let them not be given, but if others want it let them have it."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I am surprised that the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar must have thought that he has replied to my resolution by that statement. I very much regret that the taluk boards are now ignored. I do not know what is meant by ignoring the taluk boards. Last time the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar, I remember, said that the Government have no contact with the taluk boards direct and anything must come through the district boards. I do not know if he remembers that statement. If necessary I can quote it. That means the taluk boards are directly to apply to the district boards and the district boards should apply to the Government. I therefore framed my resolution so that it might not contravene this proposition of the Member in charge. Now he quietly says the district boards alone will be taken into consideration and the opinion of the taluk boards may be almost ignored for the purpose of this discussion. I am astonished at it. He does so probably because the Honourable Member feels that there are fifty taluk boards which support this view."

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar.)

I thought it has been felt, we have been pressing and the Honourable Member has also been accepting, that there must be as much decentralization as possible and more power must be given to taluk boards, and the district boards must confine themselves purely to supervising the work of the taluk boards or the distribution of the grants got from the Government. That was the view that was pressed in this Council for the last so many years. In spite of all that, when I said that more than half the area of the province require it nothing is said. I said Malabar was against it. I know the conditions there are peculiar. That makes it 14. I further accepted that the neutral boards may be taken as against the proposal. A large majority according to the Member in charge is against the proposal. I do not know how the majority is made up even taking the statement of the Member in charge. Taking that, we have 8 against 13 or 14. As I said, Madura is not taken into account. I am here to say that Madura passed a resolution approving of it. I do not want the Council to take it as a portion of this classification that I make. Apart from that, what about the 50 taluk boards as against 35? What is the area of the taluk boards that have agreed to it? I have said more than half. How does the question of majority come in now? Is the majority for or against the proposal? If the majority is for it, how can it be shelved by saying that a large majority of the district boards are against it? I question that statement that a large majority are against it but taking it so when eight district boards feel the necessity for wishing to take up this work, what is the decision of the Government in this matter? Are they for giving relief in rural areas or not? Have they not been trying to give relief in rural areas? If the boards directly say that they are willing to have it and they find it beneficial, is that not an experience upon which we meant to act last year. I submit, my Lord, the whole position seems to have taken a different stand and it seems not quite the line on which the argument was advanced in this Council last year. But to say that no provision will be made seems to be extraordinary. I have instanced one district board which has made a provision of Rs. 15,000 and a grant will be applied for. Am I to be told that it will be refused even if applied for? If that is to be the attitude of the Government, certainly it deserves to be known to us so that we may adjust ourselves in considering the budget. I submit, my Lord, it was expressly stated in 1913 it was not practicable. It was stated last year that the matter would be referred to these bodies. Now at least half the area hold that it is practicable and they have provided a portion of the fund. I submit the whole of this establishment must be treated as provincial because the boards have not been given any extra grant for this purpose and they have had no new sources given to them. They have still the charge of rural areas as well as trunk roads for which Rs. 20 lakhs has been provided last year and Rs. 6 lakhs next year and we have agreed to give money irrespective of its being grant-in-aid. I approve of it especially in view of the hoarded balances and the fact that we are going to give war allowances. We have decided to give Rs. 13 lakhs for that. It is but proper that rural areas must have some consideration shown to them. Fifty taluk boards agree to it and eight district boards want that money should be placed in their hands before the work is started. The Government may satisfy themselves that it works satisfactorily. To say that nothing will be done looks to me very hard. I submit this resolution deserves the sympathy of the Government."

The resolution was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar demanded a division which was taken with the result that 10 voted for and 24 against the resolution. The following is the division:—

For	Against
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. Ramachandra Rao.	The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.
" Mr. P. Siva Rao.	" Mr. C. G. Todhunter.
" K. Rama Ayyangar.	" A. Y. G. Campbell.
" K. Sadasiva Bhat.	" R. Ramachandra Rao.
" B. Venkatapati Raju.	" M. Young.
" Yaqub Hasan Sahib.	" L. E. Buckley.
" K. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar.	" N. E. Marjoribanks.
" A. Suryanarayana Rao.	" R. B. Wood.
" A. S. Krishna Rao.	" Aziz-ud-din Sahib.
" B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.	" T. Richmond.
	" G. Pittendrigh.
	" Sir Francis Spring.
	" Mr. A. Subbarayalu Reddiyar.
	" Sir Fairless Barber.
	" Sir Gordon Fraser.
	" Mr. J. H. Thonger.
	" Most Reverend the Archbishop Aelen.
	" Mr. R. Littlehales.
	" L. Davidson.
	" W. Hutton.
	" W. J. J. Howley.
	" the Advocate-General.
	" Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
	" H. G. Stokes.

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.]

RESOLUTION RE INCREASED PROVISION UNDER MINOR SANITARY GRANTS TO THE TUTICORIN MUNICIPALITY FOR DRAINS AND A SLAUGHTER HOUSE.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"This is a small matter. The resolution runs thus:—

'XXXII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 12,000 be provided under the head Minor sanitary grants to be given to the Tuticorin municipality for the improvement of the drains in the Sivan Kovil street and for the combined slaughter-house and that the same be met by a corresponding reduction under the head 45-B. Civil Works or from the provision for minor sanitary grants.'

"It asks for a grant for two important works. One was taken up with the approval of the Government, the improvement of the drains in the Sivan Kovil street. Extra cost has to be incurred. That is a very congested locality, and the drainage there is very bad. They have sent up the budget to the Government, and they could not spare the money. As regards the other work the slaughter house, the Sanitary Engineer has asked for this slaughter house to be opened because the present slaughter house is in the midst of the town and is causing inconvenience. These are small matters which in a place like Tuticorin would be of immense relief. The total cost is only Rs. 12,000. Even if the Government want that it might be met otherwise, I humbly request that the money may be given to the municipality to have this done as early as possible."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, probably it will be convenient to the Council to remind them what the procedure is in dealing with our minor sanitary works. The usual procedure in connexion with grants for minor sanitary works is to make a lump provision in the Civil Budget Estimate for such grants, and then to distribute the lump grant, after the Civil Budget Estimate has been finally passed, among the various local bodies with due regard to the nature of the sanitary works for which they have applied for grants, their relative importance and urgency and the financial position of the local bodies themselves. It is not usual to make a specific provision in the Civil Budget Estimate for specific minor sanitary works. For 1919-1920 there is a provision of Rs. 6 lakhs including one lakh for the Madras Corporation. That is the usual thing. A lump amount is provided and the local bodies know what it is and they send up applications. These applications are examined—applications from local bodies and municipalities—and we take into consideration the nature of the works, their urgency, the financial condition of the local bodies concerned and then we distribute the grant. Under this head there was an original allotment of Rs. 3.56 lakhs which has been raised to Rs. 6 lakhs including a grant of one lakh to the Madras Corporation. So that that money is available. The Honourable Member now proposes that we should by a resolution put a street in the Tuticorin municipality and a slaughter house in the same municipality on a special pedestal of their own and allow them to take precedence. The Council is told, whatever may be the distribution of the grant you may make, remember there are two things you must not overlook, namely the Sivan Kovil street in Tuticorin and the slaughter house in Tuticorin. It is a matter for consideration for the Council whether it should go into details like these and commit itself. Is it likely to conduce to the expeditious disposal of business that we should be asked to sit in judgment over the relative merits of this district which are represented here by what I might say less enterprising members than my Honourable Friend."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Of more modest."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"That is not for me to say. I shall stick to my word. I should very much like not to say anything to hurt anybody's susceptibilities. It does seem to me that this pitching upon one or two local requirements and putting them forward as special objects requiring attention, whatever may be the merits of those things, does not conduce to the benefit of local self-government or the benefit of this Council. With those words, I shall now pass on the merits of these two works. I am bound to deal with them."

"Taking the Sivan Kovil street, the Tuticorin Municipal Council asked for a grant of Rs. 8,500. The whole of the money was given. Later on it wanted another Rs. 6,000, we told the Council 'you had already Rs. 8,000; your finances will justify you in expending this Rs. 6,000; we will not give it'. That was on the 5th October 1918. No reasons have been given by the Honourable Member why the Government should depart from that position. The Tuticorin municipality will not get any grant. I am bound to say that, to prevent the impression that it has a chance of getting anything from that grant of Rs. 5 lakhs. It will not get any grant for that street."

"Proceeding to the slaughter-house, the slaughter-house expenditure was vetoed in pursuance of the decision come to by the Government so long ago as 1914 that we cannot make grants for slaughter-houses, because they are remunerative works. The Council may have a loan when they put up markets or slaughter houses. In case of works which bring in an income later on, it is not desirable to make a present of money. This is practically capital outlay on which they can get a remunerative yield. That ground remains. The Tuticorin slaughter-house like the Sivan Kovil street will, I am sorry to say, have to go without a grant. I oppose the resolution."

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, I must make a few remarks with regard to the speech of the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar. He objects to my Honourable Friend Mr. Rama Ayyangar making a specific request with reference to a municipality in the group which he represents on the ground that it is not desirable for this Council to take up specific requests such as those formulated in this resolution. Not only myself but I believe several of my Honourable Friends are exactly in the same position as the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar with regard to other specific requests. Therefore, it seems to me, without reference to the merits of the particular scheme, that the Honourable Member has not recognised our responsibility to our constituencies. I may say, though I did not put them forward in the shape of a resolution, that during the last few days I have been inundated with letters from every municipality or taluk board asking for money for specific purposes and saying that I should place them before Your Excellency's Government. It was only yesterday that I had a telegram from the Tenali municipality asking me to press for the weavers' extensions and some other requirements such as bridges, etc. The Honourable Member must see that we are responsible in a way along with the Government for the due appropriation of the finances of the Presidency. At the same time, we have a special responsibility to the district boards and municipalities that we represent in this Council. Therefore, I do not think I should accuse my Honourable Friend of any impropriety in asking for money for the two particular schemes which one of his constituencies has asked him to press. My Honourable friend Mr. Ranga Achariyar wishes to have something for the Madras Corporation. I see he has appropriated one lakh from the minor sanitary grants. The Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao wants a school in Nellore, and the Honourable Member would say that he should not have asked for it. I have asked for a grant for Guntur; the Hon'ble Mr. Suryanarayana Rao has asked for some grant for plague expenditure in Vizagapatam. These are all specific requests which we are bound to place before this Council. I am afraid that the Honourable Member has overdrawn the picture. While I recognise along with him our general responsibility for the proper appropriation of the grants and in assisting the Government with our suggestions, it seems to me it is equally our duty to press specific schemes on the attention of the Government. Therefore, I am not prepared to subscribe to the general proposition which the Honourable Member has laid down. We are perfectly willing to help the Honourable Member and the Government to see that there is due appropriation of the funds, but we are entitled to bring forward the special needs of our constituencies, and if it is necessary I will read to the Honourable Member the various letters."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR (interrupting):—"I am quite prepared to believe the Honourable Member that he has resisted a number of letters. The very circumstance that he resisted them shows that he is practically at one with me."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO (continuing):—"In fact I put down two requests, one for the Gōdāvari District Board for which Mr. Seshagiri Rao has asked for a provision of Rs. 2½ lakhs. There is another letter from Guntur for a grant of Rs. 1½ lakhs which appears to be very urgent. In the circumstances explained to me it is very urgent. It seems to me that the Honourable Member has placed us in an awkward position."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I never meant that no Honourable Member should bring forward any proposal in regard to any area in which he is interested. For instance, you have brought forward a resolution for money for depressed classes. I can quite understand big questions. But when we have a lump grant of Rs. 5 lakhs which has to be distributed with reference to particular localities, with reference to a large number of specific requests, with all respect to both the Honourable Members I do not think it is convenient that a few of them should be brought up here for specific commendation. It will serve no useful purpose because the Government cannot go into the merits until they are in a position to go into the other cases."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"It is our duty to make suggestions for fair distribution. I think a Member of this Council is entitled to suggest a scheme of distribution in a particular way. However I do not wish to pursue the matter. The Honourable Member and myself understand each other. I see his difficulty, and I believe he sees our difficulties."

"As regards the two particular works, I see the point of the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar. I asked him for a statement as to the applications received from district boards and municipalities for minor sanitary grants. It was only yesterday evening that I was furnished with the statement showing that the total amount of applications for minor sanitary grants is Rs. 23 lakhs and the amount allotted is Rs. 5 lakhs; originally it was Rs. 3½ lakhs but was subsequently raised to Rs. 5 lakhs. In complying with all these various requests for Rs. 23 lakhs I am certain that the Honourable Member would have considerable difficulty in making a selection to the extent of Rs. 5 lakhs from these applications. Therefore in coming forward and urging that a particular scheme should have precedence, that is to show the urgency of it, and it is only in that way that this question would be relevant. I do not know how the Honourable Member would be in a better position to allot Rs. 5 lakhs where the applications amount to (Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Rama Ayyangar ; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.

the President ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.]

Rs. 23 lakhs. I take it that he would take into consideration what has to be said by the district boards and by the representatives of the local bodies in this Council in support of these applications. Therefore My Lord, I would support the request of the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar for these two schemes."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"I am very glad that the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar gave us an opportunity to have this matter placed before the Government. My Lord, we have been taking it for granted these years that the Government have been doing their duty in the matter of this distribution as satisfactorily as possible and we did not actually press for the actual rights we had in this matter. My submission is 'there shall be appended to the Draft Financial Statement a memorandum indicating as fully as possible the manner in which the local Government provisionally proposes to allot the sum available for the total expenditure on new schemes referred to in clause (a) of sub-rule (2) and also indicating, if thought desirable, alternative measures of distributing this expenditure. In respect of each suggestion thus made the maximum expenditure, and the total expenditure (a) recurring and (b) non-recurring which it is proposed to incur in the next Financial year separately stated.' This is rule 5, sub-clause (3) of the Financial rules. I know that in the Draft Financial Statement there are details given with regard to the provisional distribution for medical buildings and certain other matters, but I submit if this Government or the Honourable Member in charge think that this Council has no right to consider the detailed distribution of all the money provided—"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"I must ask the Honourable Gentleman to confine himself to the resolution. This is a very wide question that he is now raising ; that has not been challenged. He must discuss the motion before this Council. Let us return to the street and the slaughter-house."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"May I take it that we are not entitled to go into it?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"We are not entitled on a question of this kind. We are here to adjust the figures. The Honourable gentleman wishes Rs. 12,000 put in for two purposes. Let him argue whether the money should be put in for these two purposes."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"My statement of the case was met by two grounds one was that I had no right."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"I never said that the Honourable Member had no right. If the Honourable Member had no right, I should have risen to a point of order and asked for Your Excellency's ruling. What I asked was whether it was wise for the Council to commit itself to a recommendation of this sort. That is quite a different matter."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"My submission is that the first duty of a Council Member here is to know how the distribution is proposed to be made by the Government and if possible press the claims of other applications so that the matter may be completely settled. I should have expected 200 resolutions on the Financial Statement instead of the 61 that we have."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"I dare say but we are not here to discuss the first duty of Honourable Members of this Council. I would ask the Honourable Gentleman to adhere to the subject-matter of the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"My Lord, the Member in charge actually began with a denial of that kind of right or at least the wisdom of the Members who brought forward such questions. I am certainly within my rights, and I say that it is much wiser than the plan adopted by the Honourable Member in charge."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"Far from discussing the wisdom of the Honourable Member, who is probably acting quite wisely from his own point of view, I was telling the Council what it should do."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"I have also to tell the Council what it should do. In that sense I am entitled to make a statement about that. I referred to the Financial rules only to indicate that we should be given full knowledge of what the detailed distribution is when an amount like that is put in. In fact I wrote a letter wishing to know what were the proposed provisional distributions to be made of these grants relating to minor sanitary works and other works that I referred to. I have not got a reply up till now. I wanted that only to know if there were more urgent cases so that I might drop some of my resolutions. If I wish to be a proper representative of my area, I ought to place before this Council the particular difficulties of the particular local boards and municipalities I represent. This provisional allotment must be made for every amount that is left at our disposal; otherwise, the budget would not be properly framed. We took it that the distribution was generally made after deep consideration by the department. But actually what happened was this: In the case of the two resolutions XXXII, and XXXIV* that I have placed before this Council I specifically asked for them because I found there was some difficulty in the Government granting them. I may at once tell the Honourable Member that I have had letters and correspondence showing that they have asked for nearly Rs. 3 lakhs from the Government. I have not placed all of them before this Council for consideration. I do expect the department to go into the question completely and thoroughly and duly discharge the duty of distributing the money. I am bringing up only such subjects as deserve special treatment at the hands of the Government after I saw that the question had been pending for a long time. Therefore I would even press that taking advantage of this opportunity it would be well to place before this Council the full detailed provisional distribution proposed to be made by the Government in all these cases. In fact applications were called for before the date of the Financial Statement. In fact they are got before the end of October and you have more than two months. If necessary it might be even advanced and these applications may be got in September. If the budget is to be scrutinized and properly passed, we must be given an opportunity to see that the distribution is properly made. I will give only one example though that was a case in which the Government made a grant of their own accord without giving the Council an opportunity. We find Rs. 13 lakhs has been distributed among a number of district boards. I find that it has been recently increased to Rs. 20 lakhs. We do not know what money is given to each board from the additional Rs. 7 lakhs provided for the 'construction of trunk roads which have been impaired by want of railway traffic.' Therefore we do not know how it is distributed. If it had been known I should have pressed the claim of Ramnad which gets only Rs. 18,000 out of Rs. 20 lakhs."

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rama Ayyangar ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"That is for the current year."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"Yes, if we had been given an opportunity of knowing the detailed distribution we would have had an opportunity of placing the claims of various local bodies before the Council and it would have been useful both to the Government and to ourselves. Therefore it is only very proper that these questions should be brought up before the Council. The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao said, before he heard me in reply, that he would not vote for me on the merits of the resolution. I leave him to himself. What I say is that Rs. 6,000 even according to the Honourable Member's statement was given as a grant in respect of the scheme by this Government. The Sanitary Engineer decided that the scheme would be imperfect if left in that way because the drainage was causing nuisance to a big locality. The municipality was committed to it by the Government grant. It had half finished it when the Sanitary Engineer's recommendation came. In these circumstances I submit that it is a very proper claim especially in this year's distribution of so many lakhs. If my moving this proposition should make the Honourable Member more resolute than ever, I only regret it. But whatever it is, I submit that the claims of Tuticorin ought to be considered apart from this fact of my being the cause of putting forward this resolution."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"It has been already refused."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"My submission is that the municipality which is one of the most congested—especially during this time of railway traffic being so much curtailed it has become very busy and there is an increase of population—deserves the consideration of the Government. I hope this resolve that it shall not be given will be modified and the question considered sympathetically."

"As regards the other matter the combined slaughter-house, there is a slaughter-house there and they may get revenue from it too. But the thing is proposed by the Sanitary Engineer as best suited to the locality and any income that might come is a matter to be taken into account later. But the construction has to be put up and a grant-in-aid may be given instead of a full grant. Whatever it be, to say that it would not be reconsidered look to me rather strange. I submit the matter requires sympathetic consideration. I do not press the resolution to a division."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE INCREASED PROVISION UNDER MINOR SANITARY GRANTS TO LOCAL BOARDS.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"My next resolution runs as follows :—"

'XXXIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 3 lakhs more be provided for minor sanitary grants to local boards and that the same be met by a corresponding reduction in the provision made under the head 32. Miscellaneous.'

"In the Finance Member's memorandum we find the amount of the unspent balances with local boards and municipalities on page 11. We find from that that grants for minor sanitary works to local boards and municipalities amount to Rs. 21.65 lakhs of which we distributed about Rs. 5 lakhs in the last budget. We had some years back Rs. 125 lakhs with these boards and municipalities as unspent balances and the Government said that they could not pay more money when they had so much money unspent. We find from the table given on page 11 of the Amended Draft Financial Statement under the head 'minor sanitation', while we paid Rs. 25 lakhs in 1914-15 we have been spending Rs. 8.10 lakhs, Rs. 5.15, Rs. 5.38, Rupees 5.67 lakhs and so on in later years and we have made a provision of only Rs. 5 lakhs in this budget. It will be proper to mention that out of this Rs. 21.65 lakhs referred to, one or two items are under correspondence. For example, I understand with reference to the Madura municipality about Rs. 1 lakh granted for the construction of toti huts could not be spent simply because the Sanitary department and the municipality are in correspondence and there have been schemes and revised schemes which are pending sanction with the Government. Similarly I can mention various other schemes in which the minor sanitary grants could not be spent because they are big grants in respect of which the Government are taking care to see that they are utilized as best as possible. In these circumstances the Rs. 21.65 lakhs shown in this budget does not indicate that there is any money left with them which can be properly thought as balances unspent. But the main portion of what we have been spending from minor sanitary grants is on the construction of wells in various places which are properly provided and sanitarily constructed. These have been commenced since 1913-14 and 1914-15 in many places and most of them have been finished. Some of them require a revised estimate and greater grant, and in that way I find that considerable need exists to continue what has been commenced in 1913-14 and see that the money that has been spent already is effectively utilized and is beneficial to the people. In that view even if a small distribution is to be made for each district, I find that a grant of Rs. 10 lakhs will be needed to see that the thing that was started then is completed. I find that in the districts that I represent they want three or four lakhs for minor sanitary grants. Similarly as pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao, about Rs. 23 lakhs grants have been applied for. When that is so, I submit it is time that more provision is made.

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.) [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"It may be properly asked why I bring it up this year. I tried to do it in 1914-15 and 1915-16 and gave it up subsequently because we were framing war budgets and we could not draw upon our balances. Now we have begun to draw upon our balances and I think the ryot has a right to have some portion of these boarded balances. These minor sanitary works deserve great attention. Therefore I submit this provision may be 10 lakhs. The money that is available with the Government is about Rs. 11 lakhs under the head 'Miscellaneous—32'. Originally it was 5 lakhs but it has been now increased to 11 lakhs. Therefore, I submit, it is proper to spend more on this. Not that I do not want that there should be a full scrutiny of the demands. Even if there be a scrutiny it cannot go below Rs. 10 lakhs out of the 23 lakhs demanded. My practical knowledge which covers the range of two or three districts enables me to tell the Council that these minor sanitary grants have been felt to be of immense use. Many of the villages have uranis and wells. The Panchamas and depressed classes have been provided with wells in certain places. This is a kind of help which deserves to be continued when we are drawing upon our balances. About 74 lakhs is to be drawn and it is very proper that much more money is put under minor sanitary grants than before. The Rs. 3 lakhs that I ask for will only make the total grant less than half the demand made by the district boards and municipalities. As far as I can see from the replies, four local boards and one or two municipalities have not asked for a grant, or it may be that the offices have not been vigilant. That is what the reply I received shows. It is wonderful that some district boards and taluk boards should not think of applying for a grant as if they have no want there at all. On the other hand there are many areas which require these wells as much as possible. Especially in the Ramnad district I find about 4,000 villages exist of which more than 2,000 have no provision for wells, and yet that board does not seem to have applied for a grant. That does not mean that there is no reason for applying. But to say that every application has been made by all district boards and municipalities is not quite correct. In fact, even so far as it goes the more vigilant boards and municipalities have applied and 23 lakhs are needed. Therefore, I submit this provision of 3 lakhs at least by way of a general modification of the Financial Statement is necessary so that we might have at least about half of what is asked for by the various boards this year when we are drawing upon our balances to the extent of 74 lakhs. I press this resolution for the acceptance of this Council."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I am anxious in the first place that the Council should realize that we are dealing with minor sanitary grants. I think large water-works and drainage works are dealt with separately. This, as the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar has pointed out, is made up of a number of comparatively small matters about which requests come up and for which we make an allotment provisionally so that the particular boards in regard to which the Honourable Member complains that they have not sent in their applications may have time to send them up. Having said that, let me point out that the resolution deals with the local boards and not local bodies. So far as local boards are concerned, as the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar has pointed out, one of the things which we have to take into consideration is how much they can usefully spend with reference to their past work. I find, sanitary grants more than 7 or 8 lakhs. That is the utmost that we could spend under minor agency of district boards and taluk boards upon these small things. That being so, we find that a few months ago on the 30th September 1918 the unspent balances with these boards amounted to about 12 lakhs, and even taking a most favourable account of their spending capacity as judged by past experience, they will have an unspent balance of about 10 lakhs on the 1st of April, to which the Government will have added the greater portion of the 5 lakhs out of the 6 lakhs minor sanitary grants of which one lakh goes to the Corporation and 5 lakhs go to local bodies. The chances are the bulk of that will go to the rural boards. That being so, they will have 13 or 14 lakhs. According to the spending capacity in the past it will take two years to spend that amount. What is exactly gained by a transfer of a large amount of money into the hands of local bodies beyond their spending capacity? The money is there. Suppose we had it, it relieves our balances. If it goes into their balances, they take two or three years to spend it; and in the meantime we want money for other sanitary works, bigger works which we are anxious to undertake to supply the sanitary needs of the localities. We originally put 3½ lakhs and the Finance Committee raised it to 5 lakhs. I do not think as matters now stand it will be possible for these boards to spend very much more on small works. I deprecate this resolution on that ground. Later on when their spending capacity increases let us supply them with funds as much as they can reasonably spend, but let us not transfer money to the credit of local boards. I put it solely on that ground, on the spending capacity of the boards judged from past experience. I am pretty certain that this sum of 5 lakhs probably represents as much as is likely they would need during the year."

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; Mr. Rama Ayyangar.)

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"While I remain unconvinced by what the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar has said, I remain still more unconvinced by what the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar said. I am indeed astonished to hear that the Government have deliberately put in 5 lakhs for minor sanitary grants while they are fully conscious that the local boards have roughly 10 lakhs in their hands. They add 4 or 5 lakhs for merely paper purposes."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"That is what the Finance Committee did."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I want to know whether the balance of 10 lakhs unspent by local boards remains with all the boards or with only some of the boards."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I am not in a position to give that information off-hand. I cannot say that all boards are remiss in spending."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I have again in this connexion to go to the discussion of 1913-14 and 1914-15. In fact when 25 lakhs were provided and other grants were given to taluk boards and district boards, instructions were sent that to the extent of 10 per cent of the grants additional establishment might be entertained if necessary. This was in 1913-14 and 1914-15. But suddenly in 1914-15 the grants that used to be given considerably had to be curtailed and there was a subsequent circular that with the existing establishment whatever could be done should be done. I know many district boards considered this subject and put off the entertainment of additional establishment pending the sanction of estimates. The effect of it was that this money which was being distributed later remained with the previous money and we had to remind the boards that monies would not be paid further unless they exhausted the money on hand on what they could do with the existing establishment. It is now time that the Government pursue the policy which they adopted before 1913-14. This is a means of providing good water for every resident in rural areas. As I understand it, mostly it favours the poor masses especially. Therefore if permission is given to utilize some portion of this for establishment as before, it will be possible to expend much more. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar will find that in 1916-17 and 1917-18 the expenditure was much more than in other years. I have been following it with great care. What happened was that the additional establishment which was entertained about the end of 1914-15 after the money reached their hands had to be dropped about 1917-18 and therefore they could not spend as much as before. This will be the natural consequence if matters are allowed to go on like that. Are we not almost bound to see that good water is provided throughout the Presidency in almost every village? Have we not got 52,000 villages each of which should have 4 or 5 wells? The present estimates cover from Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 1,500 for each well and on that basis we will have to spend 100 lakhs more. I submit it must be distributed over a small number of years and this policy of expecting these people to spend 11 lakhs will not be satisfactory if they are allowed to do it in the way they have been doing it."

"The next position is that in order to spend these balances and prepare estimates for the new things the establishment will not be sufficient."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"We want the establishment to be strengthened."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"Let some portion be spent on the establishment to see that the money that is given to them is spent. That was the policy of the Government in 1913-14 and 1914-15. In fact, divine interference prevented us from carrying out our policy for four years on account of the colossal war which detained everything. Meanwhile we have been able to add 200 wells. It is non-recurring expenditure; the money that we will hereafter get from our resources will be put under recurring expenditure. We find the recurring expenditure almost equals the other expenditure. If this is not the time when we should take up this question and make a provision, when are we going to take it up? Are we to say that the average expenditure of all the taluk boards, district boards and municipalities put together comes to 3 lakhs and therefore we will give only 3 lakhs? At that rate we would not be able to carry out the object which we aim at. I submit, my Lord, this is a matter in which the Honourable Member in charge will have to take a definite stand because it is a question of money going from one budget head to another which will have to be thought out with the Finance Member. My submission is that it has to be provided. There is enough money available and unless that money is provided and scope is given it would not be improved."

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.) [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.

sufficiently. The duty is there to improve it. Even now I can speak of hundreds of villages in which they depend upon the uranis or upon the goodwill of some upper caste people to bale out water. That state of things should be remedied. I submit, this is a matter in which the Government should take an advance step and I request that this resolution may be accepted."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I have only one word to say. There is this provision in the Account Code which says—'In respect of works carried out from Provincial grants, district boards may sanction special engineering establishments up to a limit of 10 per cent of the estimates for work carried out by means of these grants.'"

"That is G.O. No. 1910 L., dated 21st December 1915. I quite see, however, that the district boards should make more progress in the expenditure of the money and we would call their attention to that matter. With this reply I hope the Honourable Member will be satisfied."

The resolution was put to the Council and lost.

RESOLUTION RE GRANT TO THE DINDIGUL MUNICIPAL COUNCIL FOR OPENING AND WIDENING OF LANES.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR moved the following resolution:—

'XXXIV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 16,380 be provided for grant to the Dindigul Municipality for opening and widening of the lanes selected by the Sanitary Commissioner and approved in G.O. No. 992 M., dated 5th July 1915, and that the same be met from the minor sanitary grants or by a corresponding reduction under the head 45-B.'

In doing so he said:—"This again is a small resolution. As the resolution itself indicates, the Sanitary Commissioner himself selected these lanes in 1915 and the municipality whose budget is scrutinized every time and whose budget cannot be said not to be carefully prepared will not be able to find the money for this purpose. In fact, the Dindigul municipality is one of the important municipalities there. It is on the way to Palni, a big pilgrim centre, and people crowd there so that, though the population of the municipality is not very great, the congestion is very great; and the lanes that are sought to be opened are required to be opened as early as possible. It is not that every pie of the municipality is not scrutinized carefully, because it is one of the municipalities which have earned the appreciation of the Government for good work every year. I submit they have also applied. I want this matter which is a matter of 1915 to be considered by the Government and the request granted."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"This particular application, Your Excellency, has been referred to the Sanitary Commissioner for remarks. It went only on the 4th January. We have yet to know what the Sanitary Commissioner thinks, but the scheme itself is one which is eligible for allotment. If the Sanitary Commissioner recommends it, it will be taken up and considered along with the other applications in distributing the lump grant."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR A WATER-SUPPLY SCHEME FOR THE TINNEVELLY AND PALAMCOTTAH MUNICIPALITIES.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I beg to move:—

'XXXV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 20,000 be provided to investigate a suitable water-supply scheme and to install the necessary apparatus to relieve the immediate water scarcity in the Tinnevelly and Palamcottah municipalities and that the same be met by a corresponding reduction under the head 45-B.'

"This is rather a continuation of the discussion that we had last year in this Council in respect of a provision of Rs. 50,000 which I asked for the investigation of a water-supply scheme for the Palamcottah and Tinnevelly municipalities. It was then stated by the Member in charge on behalf of the Government that these municipalities deserved help, but the difficulty was that they could not pitch upon a scheme which was within the means of the municipalities even if the Government helped them with grants. Since that discussion the Honourable Member was kind enough to refer the matter and get information, and though no big scheme for investigation was recommended, I find some relief is proposed to be given by a provision of about Rs. 20,000 to be utilized in sinking tube wells in various places and then providing them with sanitary surroundings, so that the water may not be spoiled. It may well be asked why the municipality cannot provide for this. It is more or less a minor sanitary grant I am asking. I dare say the Honourable Member has scrutinized the budget of these municipalities; but they are not able to provide the funds and the letters that have been so kindly sent to me by the Government clearly indicate what water scarcity appears there for three or four months in the Palayam and other channels. Therefore this provision is absolutely necessary. The municipality cannot find the funds; they must be able to amass sufficient funds for the other schemes to be taken up. The combined Tambraparni scheme is being investigated and money is put down in the budget for such investigation. Similarly a scheme of water-supply is being investigated for Tuticorin and for that also money has been put. If it is possible for the three municipalities together to finance the scheme, that will be a matter to be reopened after many years. We know that these two municipalities are some of the most important ones which require greater provision for water, in almost every nook and corner. The demand made is very small, considering the importance of the municipalities and the inability of the municipalities to find the funds for big schemes and considering also that though the Tambraparni is flowing near by it has not been possible to store the water. So far as it goes, the water scarcity might be relieved. I submit the Government may give this money to these bodies."

[6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Ramachandra Rao.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the Honourable Member drew our attention to the discussion we had about this time last year. So far as these municipalities are concerned, it is not investigation that is wanted. Whatever scheme is hit upon is far beyond the financial resources of the municipalities even with the help of a Government grant. That is what has been blocking the way. The Honourable Member has referred to the correspondence I had with him since. We did examine an alternative proposal he made. We did not consider it feasible, and so far as these municipalities are concerned, they must get on with tube wells. On that point I am entirely at one with the Honourable Member. I find that 14 tube wells were sunk by the Tinnevelly municipality in 1915-16, 14 more in 1916-17 and 18 in 1917-18. In 1916-17, 57 tube wells were also provided with platforms and it was reported that the tube wells were increasing in utility and popularity. So that the municipality will certainly be well advised to follow the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar's suggestion to go on with tube wells and not wait for some scheme which may come later on but will not meet their immediate needs."

"In Palamcottah six tube wells were sunk in 1915-16; two new tube wells were sunk in 1916-17 and one of them was reported to yield a large supply of good drinking water. In 1917-18, two new tube wells were attempted to be sunk. One of them proved very successful and yielded a copious quantity of excellent drinking water and the other proved a thorough failure. Thus out of the grant of Rs. 5,000 only one large tube well was sunk newly with a high parapet wall and with arrangement for pumping water with a kite motion pump into a service reservoir fitted with several taps."

"Individually the tube wells do not cost much and the municipalities must put in their applications for that purpose which will be considered along with similar applications for similar works. That is all that I can say in regard to this resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I dare say this will receive attention. I do not want to press it."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE GRANTS TO DISTRICT BOARDS OF GODAVARI, KISTNA AND GUNTUR FOR THE ACQUISITION OF HOUSE-SITES FOR DEPRESSED CLASSES.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO moved the following resolution:—

'XXXVI. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 3,00,000 be provided under XXIV-B in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 as grants to the district boards of Godavari, Kistna and Guntur for the acquisition of house-sites for the depressed classes and that a corresponding reduction be made under 45. Civil Works—Civil Buildings.'

In doing so he said:—"The previous history of the subject is well known to Honourable Members of this Council. Sometime in 1916 I brought forward a motion in this Council that this subject of improving the lot of the depressed classes by a suitable provision for the acquisition of house-sites should receive the consideration of the Government. At that time I believe it was the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew that replied on behalf of the Government, and after considerable discussion I think Your Excellency's Government accepted the motion and appointed a special officer to undertake the acquisition of house-sites in the Kistna district. Subsequent to that the same officer was deputed to do work in the Guntur district. After that special officer's post was abolished there was no continuity of work to relieve the congestion in the deltaic tracts. Your Excellency, it is not necessary for me to say that the class of persons who are benefited by this are mainly the Panchamas who live in hamlets outside the villages. Especially in the deltaic tracts the difficulty of purchasing house-sites has become more and more insistent. The value of sites has gone up and altogether it has become imperative that something should be done. The principle of providing house-sites has already been accepted by the Government. I am merely asking for an allotment with the express object that the work already started may be continued in the year to come. I am told that proposals have come up from the Godavari District Board and the President of the Guntur District Board also would like to have a substantial grant for this purpose. I trust the Honourable Member would be able to accept this resolution and that the work which has now been given up could again be started."

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Rama Ayyangar ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar ;
Mr. Ramachandra Rao ; the President.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I do not wish to take up the time of the Council with details. This is a matter upon which we are all agreed. I could say a great deal as to what has been done in the past. The conclusion I have come to is, I am sorry to say, that these three district boards have not been pushing the matter on as well as they might have done. They might have local difficulties of which I am not aware. I have no doubt that this problem is a pressing one in these districts and we will now take action to put pressure upon the local bodies to proceed ahead with schemes for sanitation and we will provide one lakh under the head sanitation and earmark it for this particular purpose. We do not want the provision for houses for the depressed classes to be diverted. If it is not used for that purpose, it will lapse. The minor sanitary grant will be increased by one lakh and the increase will go towards the acquisition of house-sites. I hope that this explanation will be considered satisfactory."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Am I to understand that it is earmarked for these three districts?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Yes, these are the three districts about which we have had reports. The other districts can get help from the general distribution."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I may submit that other deltaic tracts may also be included."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"It will be introducing complications."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I do not propose to interfere with the distribution for these three districts. All that I say is there are applications for acquisition of house-sites for depressed classes from other deltaic tracts also and I want they may be considered in connexion with the distribution of money. I will add the words 'other districts with deltaic tracts' if Your Excellency will permit it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I cannot accept that amendment."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"That amendment is not purely verbal. It might introduce complications which are peculiar to the other districts. I would rather ask my Honourable Friend not to introduce that amendment."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, I am unable to accept that amendment for the obvious reason that more than once when I moved in this matter my Honourable Friends thought that I was treading on their toes. When I framed this resolution I had this in view. If I framed a general resolution, I might be faced with the difficulty that I asked for these districts where relief was not necessary. If I ask for my own district my Honourable Friend says I am asking for a special appropriation of one lakh without his districts being permitted to share in it. I am in the hands of the Honourable Member, but I must oppose this amendment because the condition in the other districts might be different from those prevailing in my districts. It is not that I am unwilling to share the money with him."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"If 'other deltaic tracts' will create difficulties, I will say 'the Periyar area.' There are applications for house-sites for the depressed classes in that tract. Why should it not also be given?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I am unable to accept the amendment."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I put the resolution in its original form. The only change is one lakh is substituted for three lakhs."

The resolution as thus amended was put and agreed to.

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION OF FUNDS FOR INFORMAL PANCHAYATS.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO moved the following resolution:—

'XXXVII. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a sum of Rupees 2,00,000 be provided under XXIV-B in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 for distribution to informal panchayats and that a corresponding reduction be made under 45. Civil Works—Civil Buildings.'

In doing so he said:—"I do not wish to say very much on this subject. The principle of giving some money to informal panchayats has been already accepted by Government. Last year I think, there was an allotment of 1.50 lakhs. I am asking for two lakhs to be allotted so that the work already started may be continued in the coming year. It is quite possible that the Honourable Member may say that legislation about panchayats is more urgent than money. I think that money is equally urgent as legislation about panchayats. It is far better to keep these informal panchayats already started going on doing the work which they have been doing, namely cleaning streets, digging wells, etc. I trust the Honourable Member will be able to see his way to accept the proposition."

6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Sadasiva Bhat ; the President ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ; Mr. Ramachandra Rao.)

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"I have given notice of a similar resolution.* I do not think I need add anything to commend this resolution. My request is for a much smaller sum. Probably the disparity is due to the fact that I have not been able to obtain this year the figures as to what may be the needs of the several informal panchayats. We have got only one panchayat in our side of the country and they submitted a forecast of the income and expenditure for the next year and they had applied for a grant of Rs. 1,00 and the Collector of South Kanara had recommended that grant. Unfortunately the panchayat received the reply that no further grant could be granted. So it is that I put down this resolution. We find that they are spending money usefully. In the reports that the several taluk boards have sent up in reply to the inquiry on the question of rural sanitary parties several taluk boards have suggested the employment of the informal panchayats as the best agency through which sanitary improvements in villages may be effected. We have seen that they spend money to the best advantage. I beg that some money may be distributed among the several panchayats."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR rose to speak.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Would you not wait till the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar replies?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Probably what he says might help me. I have no objection to his speaking."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"As I pointed out on the last occasion when my Honourable Friend moved this question the time has long passed for perpetuating these informal panchayats. I have made careful inquiries about the work of these informal panchayats and I think the time has come for the Government to grapple with the problem of putting them on a proper legal basis. There is no use of going on giving money which will be informally spent. It does not matter whether it is a few hundreds or a few thousands. The whole matter must be put on a legal footing so that these institutions may be revived. I do oppose this resolution."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I must thank the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar for having saved me some trouble. It is apt to be forgotten that these panchayats were started as an experiment. At the time we issued the order we said that we started them as an experiment because we had no experience and there was the danger if we immediately started with legislation we might enact an unsuitable law. It is with that view that the Government started this experiment and on more than one occasion when the Honourable Members proposed legislation I opposed it. Last year I gave one lakh to facilitate the experiment. We were told that with a little money they would get into a better working order. The reports about these panchayats will be in our hands before the end of this month. They are being compiled all over the districts and the reports will give us, I hope, some idea as to what the next stage should be. I agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar that the question as to whether legislation is or is not necessary has to be faced now. There is no use of putting it off. If it is decided to have legislation, there will be the further question as to what lines the legislation should take. These questions will come up for consideration before the Government shortly, and taking all circumstances into consideration I think it would be unwise just now to throw a lot of money on the heads of these panchayats. It is better to allow them to go on as they are now. As I went round the districts, I heard, what I was particularly sorry to hear, that many of these informal panchayats were getting on better before we gave the one lakh grant. In more than one place it was represented to me that certain people were collecting money and getting on with useful work and the Collector gave money to places where no collection was made and then in those places where money was being collected they stopped collecting the money. Before we do anything else we must take stock of the whole situation and decide what has to be done. Later on if they become statutory institutions we might consider what financial help we might give. For these reasons I appeal to the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao not to insist upon our giving money just now."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"May I ask how long we are to wait for the Bill? If it would take more than one year I should like to know from the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar what should be done in the meanwhile, whether he thinks these infants which we have brought into existence should be starved."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"The infants seem to get on better with their own food than with the food we force upon them. I will let them alone for the present."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"When is this legislation to come up?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"The Honourable Member will forgive me for not at once answering him. The future is always uncertain."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I do not wish to press this resolution, though I cannot say it is wise to give up the experiment before even it is tried for one or two years. The Honourable Member was good enough to distribute one lakh last year and if he is satisfied from the trial of one year with the expenditure of public money by these informal panchayats, that will be of material value in framing the legislation. I do not quarrel

* Resolution XXXVIII—vide page 528 infra.

530 THE AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT FOR 1919-1920

(Mr. Siva Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.
the President.)

Hampi ruins. It is a very important centre and lakhs of people go there. I do not see why that place should not get the benefit of their recommendations. They were able to visit only a few places. The reference might go to all the other district boards as well to see if they have got any proposals to make."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"So far as this resolution is concerned, it says 'for the improvement of the sanitary conditions of the pilgrim centres in the Presidency on the lines laid down by the Pilgrim Committee.' At present it would be well to confine ourselves to those centres which are dealt with by the committee and which are a subject under discussion. If he has any other centre, he may bring it up later."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I do not ask for any extra grant, but I only say that the grant now provided may be distributed among all the pilgrim centres."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"We cannot do that."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"My suggestion may be noted."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"As regards Resolution No. XXXIX if the 2 lakhs is reduced to 1 lakh and you omit the words 'and that a corresponding reduction may be made under the head 45. Civil Works,' the resolution will be accepted."

Resolution No. XXXIX as thus amended was accepted.

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. Ramachandra Rao withdrew Resolution XL.

The Council then adjourned till 11 a.m. on Friday the 7th February 1919.

H. G. STOKES,

Acting Secretary to Government, L. & M. (Legislative) Dept.

Proceedings of an Adjourned Meeting of the Council of the Governor of Fort St. George assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.

The Council re-assembled at the Council Chamber, Fort St. George, at 11 a.m. on Friday, the 7th day of February 1919.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Right Hon'ble JOHN, Baron PENTLAND of Lyth, P.C., G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., Governor of Madras—Presiding.
The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW, K.C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR Avargal, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble MUHAMMAD AZIZ-UD-DIN HUSAIN SAHIB Bahadur, Khan Bahadur, C.I.E., I.S.O., O.B.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. BUCKLEY, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. Y. G. CAMPBELL, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. W. J. J. HOWLEY.
The Hon'ble Mr. W. HUTTON.
The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES.
The Hon'ble Mr. N. E. MARJORIBANKS.
The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur R. RAMACHANDRA RAO Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. S. SRINIVASA AYYANGAR (Advocate-General).
The Hon'ble Mr. H. G. STOKES, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. C. G. TODHUNTER.
The Hon'ble Mr. M. YOUNG.
The Hon'ble Mr. R. B. WOOD.
The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble the Rev. G. PITTENDRIGH.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO PANTULU.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO PANTULU Garu.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO PANTULU.
The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur A. SUBBARAYALU REDDIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT.
The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR.
The Hon'ble Sri RAJA RAO VENKATA KUMARA MAHIPATI SURYA RAO Bahadur, Raja of Pithapuram.
The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. KUMARAN RAMAN KAVALLAPPARA MUPPIL NAYAR.
The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBI MARAKKAYAR SAHIB Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER, Kt.
The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER.
The Hon'ble Sir FAIRLESS BARBER, Kt.
The Hon'ble the Most Rev. JOHN AELEN, D.D.
The Hon'ble Mr. T. RICHMOND.
The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING, K.C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur K. B. SURYANARAYANAMURTI NAYUDU Garu.
The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR.

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [6TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Siva Rao; the President.]

with that view. I thought having started them, as pointed out by my Honourable Friend, on the off chance of the Bill being framed this year and sent to the Government of India and going forwards and backwards for two or three years—on the off-chance of legislation coming in to stop all grants to these institutions which the Government have fostered.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—“ After receiving the reports, one of the questions that will have to be dealt with will be whether they should receive any money pending legislation. Let us get the reports due this month and see them before we do anything.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—“ Before making further grants?”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—“ Before we do anything including the making of further grants.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—“ The Honourable Member is not quite clear. I do not wish to press this resolution.”

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

The discussion on this resolution covered also resolution No. XXXVIII of which the Hon'ble Mr. Sadasiva Bhat had given notice and which was in the following terms :—

‘XXXVIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a provision of Rs. 50,000 be made in the budget for distribution to the informal panchayats for village improvements and the said amount be found from Miscellaneous 32-E.’

RESOLUTION RE IMPROVEMENT OF THE SANITARY CONDITION OF PILGRIM CENTRES.

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO moved the following resolution :—

‘XXXIX. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that an allotment of two lakhs may be made under 24-B. SANITATION for the improvement of the sanitary condition of the pilgrim centres in the Presidency on the lines laid down by Pilgrims Committee and that a corresponding reduction may be made under the head 45. CIVIL WORKS.’

In doing so he said :—“ The Pilgrim Committee made certain recommendations and on a perusal of their report the local Government passed this Government Order on the 2nd July 1917. The last paragraph of that Government Order says ‘The local bodies concerned are requested to examine these suggestions, frame programmes for carrying out such works as are considered necessary and submit reports to the Government before the end of September, with proposals for financing the schemes proposed to be undertaken.’ I am aware that one lakh was given by the Government of India which has been fully distributed. I do not think it is adequate for the purpose. I move that something may be voted from the Provincial funds for the purpose of improving the health condition of the pilgrim centres. It is a well-known report and I need not take the time of the Council to show what has been laid down in it.”

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—“ Will you move yours?”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. Ramachandra Rao had given notice of a resolution on the above subject which was as follows :—

“ XL. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 10,000 be provided in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 under XXIV-B. Sanitation as grant to the District Board of Ramnad to carry out the recommendations of the Pilgrim Committee in regard to Ramesvaram.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—“ My resolution refers specially to Ramesvaram. A portion of the Pilgrim Committee's report deals with Ramesvaram and Dhanushkodi and also my dissenting minute. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar would have read it. I would invite his attention to that portion of the report containing my views.

I must also refer to the necessity for placing the sanitary administration of Ramesvaram and the three other subsidiary places of pilgrimage under a capable officer to be assisted by a special health officer. We have made a recommendation to this effect, which will be found in our notes on Dhanushkodi, and it is perhaps necessary to set out our reasons a little more fully. In dealing with Ramesvaram it has to be borne in mind that there are three other places of pilgrimage in its vicinity to which the pilgrims usually resort. Of these Devipatnam is a small village where we are informed that no sanitary arrangements of any kind exist, but we residents who are interested in keeping the place clean and that much success has not been attained by their efforts. Myself and my colleagues were unable to visit these two centres, but in view of their close connexion with Ramesvaram, I am of opinion that effective and continuous sanitary control is necessary in these two places. In the case of Dhanushkodi, attempts were made to constitute this area into a union, but on account of the small number of permanent inhabitants the idea was given up. Dhanushkodi is, however, important from the fact that all the pilgrims who come to Ramesvaram go there also to take a bath at the point and consequently the floating population at Dhanushkodi is as much as it is at Ramesvaram. As regards Ramesvaram itself the administration is an ordinary one of a small union with an annual income of about Rs. 4,000. We have fully referred in our notes to the importance of Ramesvaram and the three connected places of pilgrimage and the present administration of Ramesvaram is, in my opinion, inadequate to the needs of the locality and that better arrangements should be made, not only in the case of Ramesvaram but also of the other places referred to above. Most of the house-owners at Ramesvaram are either priests, pandas, or temple servants and the class of men who are available elsewhere to serve as chairman and members of the union is not available at Ramesvaram. Under these circumstances, and in view of the extreme importance of Ramesvaram and of the introduction of a water-supply scheme, I would strongly recommend that a full-time officer of the grade of Tahsildar be appointed as chairman of the union. This officer may also be entrusted with the duty of looking after Dhanushkodi, Devipatnam and Dharbhasayanam under the general direction of the President of the Taluk Board, Ramnad. The appointment of an administrative officer and a sanitary officer for Ramesvaram and the connected shrines is absolutely necessary in the peculiar circumstances of the case, and the entertainment of these officers and the additional staff for conservancy in these areas will involve at least an annual expenditure of Rs. 8,000.

[6TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Siva Rao.)

“ That is the portion relevant to the present resolution. I also received a communication subsequent to this resolution in which I have been informed that steps have been taken by the Government to give effect to the recommendations of the Pilgrim Committee. One of the recommendations that is relevant to this resolution is the appointment of a health officer. I see there has been considerable correspondence between the District Board of Ramnad and the Government and ultimately it has been decided to appoint a health officer, provided that the Ramnad District Board contributes half the cost. There the matter stands. The further question I wish to raise is whether in regard to this change in the administration Ramnad District Board would be consulted. It is only after consultation I trust that steps would be taken, and if the District Board of Ramnad is not prepared to pay for a sanitary officer I would strongly urge that the whole cost in Ramesvaram and Dhanushkodi should be met from the Provincial funds. It is extremely important that the floating population of three or four lakhs which go to this place where there are no sanitary arrangements should be amply protected, not only in the interests of Ramesvaram itself but also of other places from which the pilgrims come there.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—“ Your Excellency, the Pilgrim Committee gave us a very valuable report, and I quite agree that everything that we could do should be done to carry out their recommendations. But the Honourable Members no doubt recognize that this is not a matter wholly in the hands of the Government. Most of the things will have to be done by the local bodies. We have had a considerable volume of correspondence between the Government and the local bodies as to what should be done with regard to specific recommendations. As to what has been carried out, I have reason to believe from the information I have that a great deal has been done, but in the absence of a definite statement as to what has been done and not knowing what has been done, we are issuing a press communique stating clearly what are the recommendations of the Pilgrim Committee, what action was taken thereon, how much of these things has been carried out and which of them remain with the Government, which of them the Government have vetoed and which of them are with the local bodies. It is brought up to the end of December and when this is issued the Honourable Member will see how the whole thing is dealt with. Such of the district boards as are interested in particular pilgrim centres will know what they have to do and how they should do it. Till that is done it is difficult for me to say what exactly will be the financial liability in the current year. The Government agree to allot a sum of Rs. 1 lakh for this purpose which will also be added to the sanitary grant, but as in the case of other grants it will be earmarked; it will be used only for pilgrim centres and if it is not spent for that purpose it will lapse and it will not be open to the local bodies to transfer it. The Government of India have been so good as to tell us that they will be glad to give us another half a lakh, so that this province will get one and a half lakhs. Information about all these centres will be available in the press communique and it will be open to the Honourable Member to write to us and ask us for any further information and we shall be glad to welcome any suggestions he has to make. In these circumstances I do not think it is necessary to press this resolution.”

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO :—“ I do not wish to press it. I wish to get some information from the Honourable Member. Only certain pilgrim centres are dealt with in that report and the committee observe that there are many other places of equal importance. Was the reference sent only to the centres specially referred to in the report or to all pilgrim centres?”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—“ The report deals with certain pilgrim centres and the reference was sent only to the local bodies concerned with.”

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO :—“ They were able to visit only these centres, but the committee recognize there are other pilgrim centres of equal importance. I might mention the

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.) [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF WATER-SUPPLY AND DRAINAGE OF GUNTUR TOWN.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—“ My Lord, the resolution which I have the honour to move runs as follows :—

‘XLI. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 1,50,000 be provided under XXIV-B. Grants to local bodies—for the improvement of the water-supply and drainage of Guntur town and for the acquisition of vacant sites and that a corresponding reduction be made under 45. Civil Works—Civil Buildings.’

“ This resolution relates to a grant of one lakh and fifty thousand rupees to the municipality of Guntur. After having heard the remarks of the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar yesterday in regard to making specific requests it is perhaps better that I should say a few words showing the urgent necessity for making this grant. I do not know whether the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar has visited the town of Guntur. I rather think that he has not. My Lord, that this grant of Rs. 1.50 lakhs has been applied for by the Municipal Council for three purposes. The first and foremost relates to water-supply. The scheme of water-supply for the town of Guntur is what is known as an infiltration scheme, and though up to the present a considerable amount of money has been spent, the people are not able to get more than three to four gallons per head a day. The pipe-laying has not been extended to the various outlying parts of the town. There is considerable difficulty for water in the town of Guntur. Your Excellency has been to Guntur and I am sure the difficulties of the people will be fully realized.

“ The Chairman of the municipality writes to me as follows :—‘ There are several parts of the town to which the pipe-line has not been extended and unless satisfactory improvements are effected at the head-work there is no likelihood of the pipe-line being ever extended to Brodiepet, public offices, officers' quarters, Koritepadu, Nagarampalem and other localities and these improvements cannot be undertaken from municipal funds inasmuch as the council has still to pay for six years more a loan of Rs. 58,430.’ Then, my Lord, he also points out that there are several other works connected with water-works, recommended by the Sanitary Engineer and they cost a considerable sum of money. A comprehensive scheme for Rs. 1,09,120 was sent up by the Sanitary Engineer and is now with the Government awaiting sanction. Unless this scheme is immediately given effect to, the people will continue to be under the same disability as they have been in notwithstanding the water-supply scheme for the town. Three to four gallons per head is hardly sufficient for a town of that size and importance. Therefore, my first request is that this estimate of the Sanitary Engineer which is now with the Government for Rs. 1,09,120 for the improvement of the water-supply should be sanctioned and the necessary funds should be allotted without any delay.

“ My Lord, this has been the crying evil in Guntur for several years and the people have a legitimate grievance that notwithstanding that a considerable amount of money has been expended they are not able to get a fair return. House connexions have not been made and though the scheme has been in operation for five years still nothing has been done in this connexion, and this is one of the objects which deserve the sympathetic consideration of the Government.

“ The next object is in regard to the drainage. In connexion with this matter there may be a large comprehensive scheme for the drainage of the whole town. But I understand recently that a scheme costing Rs. 16,775 has been sent up through the Sanitary Engineer for the purpose of extending two of the most important open drains in the congested portions of the town to the outskirts and for providing a sewage farm for the disposal of the sullage water, and this is also a matter for very urgent reform. The town is a hot-bed of many diseases and recently plague has broken out and there is considerable alarm felt as to the health of the town. Therefore, my Lord, this grant is required for the purpose of extending two of these open drains in this congested portion. I do not think that this question can be hung up, pending the sanction of the comprehensive drainage scheme which, I understand, is also under preparation and is estimated to cost three lakhs. This small grant would probably do much more good than the comprehensive scheme which it will take several years to elaborate. This is the second item.

“ The third item to which I would invite the attention of the Honourable Members is with reference to the town extension scheme. The Zamindars of Vuyyuru, Bbadrachalam and Mirzapur estates own open grounds right in the centre of the town about 60 to 70 acres and this the council wishes to acquire. Of this 17.44 acres are required for town extension, 10 acres for a park, 10 for the industrial school, 5 acres for markets and the total cost of these may be able to find the money for this purpose. In the meanwhile the zamindars are likely to dispose of the sites in portions to various speculators with the result that what is now fore, my Lord, in order to prevent the sale of the open sites available right in the centre, it seems to me far better to spend some money now than to allow them to be sold by the zamindars to speculators who will make a good deal of profit by disposing of them to other persons. It is for these three purposes which are urgent needs that I venture to place this resolution before this Council and I trust that Your Excellency's Government will find it convenient to accept this resolution.”

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—“ Your Excellency, I wish to indicate briefly the position with regard to these matters. The question of augmenting the supply at the head-works has been engaging attention for a long time and various investigations have been made. In 1917 the Assistant Sanitary Engineer submitted plans and estimates amounting to Rs. 82,500 for certain improvements to the water-works and also an estimate amounting to Rs. 20,000 for digging a deep trench or an open gallery to a length of 1,600 feet. The idea was to excavate the gallery in the first instance and to decide what works will be required in connexion with the scheme after the results of the experimental gallery were known. In forwarding these estimates the Sanitary Engineer expressed the opinion that it would be sufficient in the first instance to excavate the gallery up to a length of only 800 feet and to put down a few additional borings. The cost of these experimental works was estimated at Rupees 14,500 and this proposal was eventually approved by the Chief Engineer and sanctioned by the Sanitary Board. These works are now under execution by the Public Works Department. The anticipated expenditure for the current year, 1918-19, is Rs. 12,000 which has been provided by the Council, so that only Rs. 2,500 will be needed for the next year when the work is expected to be completed. It is only when the results of these experiments are known that it can be settled what future works will be actually required. In these circumstances, it seems rather premature now to provide for any grant for the water-works improvement. That is the situation so far as the water-works are concerned, viz., that we are conducting experiments and provision for the experiments is made in the budget for 1919-20. Till these experiments are completed, we can not know where we should stand and we should not commit ourselves to any definite scheme for amplifying the supply of water. As soon as that is done, we shall know where we stand and we shall put ourselves in communication with the Municipal Council. If we now make any further grant to the municipality, the money will lapse as it could not be spent.

“ I now come to the drainage. The investigation of the drainage scheme has been completed, but plans and estimates have not yet been prepared. I see from the latest progress report that the scheme, as mentioned by the Honourable Member, would cost about Rs. 3 lakhs and the preparation of the plans and estimates will be taken up in the order of urgency. There also, so far as the general scheme is concerned, we should not provide any money just now. We must get the plans and estimates ; they must be scrutinized and approved, and then the financing must be considered, how much is to be given by the Government by way of grants and how much the municipality should bear, and in regard to the latter how the Council can finance it, whether by a loan or otherwise. Until all that is done, it is premature to make any allotment for the drainage scheme.

“ The Honourable Member has referred to some other works of a minor nature for which the Municipal Council wants a sum of Rs. 16,000. It is true that the municipality of Guntur has recently applied for an allotment of Rs. 16,675 as a minor sanitary grant for 1919-20 for the construction of certain drains in advance of the regular scheme. The question of giving this grant can be considered only when the estimates which have been sent to the Sanitary Engineer have received his sanction. Therefore I must deprecate the construction of drains piecemeal. I have not had the privilege of visiting Guntur, at any rate in recent years, and my knowledge of it is quite antiquated. But it has been found elsewhere that the very worst thing that a local body can do is to construct drains piecemeal, construct a drain here, another there and a third elsewhere. If you do so, finally you will find that these things do not fit in with one another and it will be a serious matter for us to commit ourselves to an expenditure of Rs. 16,000 in constructing a few drains in one place in advance of the big drainage scheme, for which we have to prepare plans and estimates, without any idea as to how these few drains will fit in with the general scheme. I do not want to say anything on the merits of that scheme. The Sanitary Engineer will no doubt look into it and we will postpone our decision till we know what the Sanitary Engineer says. If he approves of it, the question of giving this sum to the Guntur Council will have to be taken up along with the needs of other districts in the distribution of minor sanitary grants which will have to come out of the 5 lakhs in the Sanitary budget.

“ Then in regard to the acquisition of vacant sites, this question is a pretty old one, and various recommendations have been made from time to time. The council has not applied for any special grant for this scheme. Recently however it has proposed the acquisition of land to the extent of 17.44 acres. That is what the Honourable Member is referring to, and the council has applied for permission to submit an application for a loan of Rs. 60,000 to meet the cost of this acquisition. The Sanitary Commissioner has approved the site and the question of giving a loan is under the consideration of the Government. In regard to town extension the Honourable Member is no doubt aware that the question of a grant seldom arises. It is found that a loan is all that is needed. If it raises money and buys a large area and then sells it in small bits, the local body seldom loses over a transaction of this sort. What is wanted is to apply for a loan and start the operation. An application has come for a loan and the application has to be examined with reference to a number of circumstances. It is being examined and if it is found that it is a reasonable thing it will be sanctioned.

“ This is the situation in regard to these matters mentioned by the Honourable Member. I recognize that Guntur is an important place and the questions of water-supply, drainage and congestion are certainly important things. I do not put them as small things the mention of which I deprecated yesterday. But in order to provide funds in the budget we have to be reasonably certain that these funds will be utilized in the coming year; otherwise we will be locking up the money. For these reasons I deprecate the acceptance of this resolution."

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.) [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, I do not wish to detain the Council. I wish to point out that so far as the question of drainage is concerned, with reference to the two open drains it is the Sanitary Engineer that has sent in an estimate for Rs. 16,775. They are my instructions—that it is the Sanitary Engineer that has submitted the estimate. I take it therefore that if the Sanitary Engineer sent in the estimate, he must have considered the question whether these two drains would fit in with the general comprehensive scheme for drainage. As regards the question of drainage it seems to have been considered by the Sanitary authorities with a view to see whether the construction of these two open drains will fit in with the general scheme. This estimate of the Sanitary Engineer will have reached the Government."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I will have it verified."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"With regard to the open space I generally agree with the remarks made by the Honourable Member in regard to the financing of town extensions. If the scheme pays and there is a likelihood of money being repaid by reselling the sites, certainly the best way is by way of a loan. The municipality seems to have a proposal to reserve a portion of this site as a park and the application for a loan is for the town extension scheme. The extent of the site is 17 acres and 44 cents. That will pay itself out of the loan. As regards reserving a portion of the available site for a park, the cost of it can never be recovered and it cannot be met by taking a loan. Perhaps that is not included in the letter addressed by the Chairman to the Government, but he tells me that there is a proposal to acquire and reserve a portion of this site for opening a park to form as it were the lung of the town. If there are proposals before the Government, I trust they would receive consideration."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"The Council did not apply for a grant for that particular purpose, but only a loan for other purposes."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Town extension purposes 17.44 acres, 10 acres for park, 10 for industrial school and 5 acres for the chilly market."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Five acres for a chilly market? (Laughter.)"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Chilly is a staple product of Guntur. Twenty thousand tons is Mr. Wood's estimate of the annual export."

"With regard to the water-supply scheme, I take it that the idea of the experiments is to see whether a further scheme can be carried out—the allotment of Rs. 14,000 is to carry out experiments for the purpose of giving effect to the scheme for which estimates have reached the Government."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"To see whether it should be proceeded with."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"If the experiments are successful, I hope they will receive the sympathetic consideration of the Government."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Certainly."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

XXI-A. & 26-A. Agriculture.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg to introduce the head 'Agriculture'."

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR INVESTIGATION OF PADDY PESTS IN THE GODAVARI AND KISTNA DELTAS.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO moved the following resolution:—

'XLII. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 10,000 be set apart for the investigation of the paddy pests in the Godavari and Kistna deltas and that the necessary provision be made under XXVI-A. Agriculture, and that a corresponding reduction be made under 45-B. CIVIL WORKS—Civil Buildings.'

In doing so he said:—"This resolution relates to the question of further investigation about paddy pests in the Godavari and Kistna deltas. My Lord, during the last two or three years in these two deltas there have been pests which have done considerable damage and havoc. We have on the agenda of this meeting the Pests Bill, and this is a suitable opportunity to demonstrate the preventive and remedial measures which are recommended in that Bill to the ryots. So far as I know about the subject, this question of investigating paddy pests should receive further attention by actual experiments on the ground. I therefore propose that during the coming year the Government should set apart Rs. 10,000 for the purpose of appointing a special officer or Entomologist to be sent to these two districts so that experiments on the spot might be taken up. Whatever remedies are suggested—I know some remedies have been suggested—should be actually applied and the results verified. A great deal of harm has been done during the last two or three years and I trust that this small sum will be found for the purpose."

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, it would probably be convenient to the Council to know exactly how this matter stands in these two districts of Godavari and Kistna. I will give a brief account of it to show, as I am anxious to show, what the Agricultural Department has been doing in this matter. Reports that paddy seedlings in Kistna were seriously damaged by insects were received in July 1917 from the Bhimavaram Taluk Association and from the Assistant Director of Agriculture who had heard of the fact although Kistna is not in his jurisdiction. An Entomological Assistant was sent from Coimbatore. The insects had by that time disappeared, but it was ascertained that they were a caterpillar, and probably the well-known swarming caterpillar of paddy—spodoptera. Ryots were advised as to the remedies to be adopted in case of further attacks. The pest can easily be controlled by flooding the field, especially if a little kerosene oil is placed on the irrigation water. The ryots are used to controlling such pests by flooding, but in this case could not do so as there was no water in the canals. It was pointed out to the Bhimavaram Taluk Association by the Director of Agriculture that his department could have rendered help if the pest had been reported promptly in May. He also invited the attention of the Collector to the fact that no reports had been received from the village officers or tahsildars and asked him to wire information in future in such cases. A report was received from the tahsildar of Tanuku in October 1917 that the paddy crops were affected with further disease. Two agricultural subordinates were promptly sent from the I Circle and an Entomological Assistant from Coimbatore. The disease was found to be partly due to the damage already done to the seedlings by the previous attack and partly to another insect—the stem-borer caterpillar. There is no remedy for this once it is in the crop as the caterpillar lives inside the plant. Prevention is the only cure and the best preventive measure is the light trap for catching moths. Ryots were advised, and it is on record that three at least set up light traps and caught a number of moths, each of which would otherwise have laid a large number of eggs which would have developed into caterpillars in due course. Other measures, such as collecting eggs, clearing bunts of weeds and burning stubble were also advocated."

"In May 1918 the Government Entomologist edited a circular drawn up by the Collector of Kistna advising ryots as to the remedies to be adopted in case of recurrence of these pests. This was translated and circulated. An Entomological Assistant from Coimbatore toured and advised the ryots. No serious outbreak of pests was found then."

"In October 1918 the tahsildars of Bhimavaram and Tanuku reported further disease. An Entomological Assistant was sent and he found that the disease was mainly due to the stem-borer. His tour was cut short by influenza which paralysed the activities of the whole staff at that time. So far in regard to the Kistna district."

"In the adjoining taluks of Godavari the stem-borer was prevalent during 1917 and the Assistant Director of Agriculture, I Circle, and his assistants gave advice to the ryots on their tour as to remedies."

"I have just stated what has been done. Then about the question of investigation, the ordinary insect pests of paddy in Madras have already been investigated. The facts will be found in bulletin No. 67 where 25 insects are mentioned and the possible remedies indicated. The general methods of controlling insect attacks are summed up in leaflets Nos. 3 and 4 of 1914. What is needed is not further investigation but a campaign among the ryots in the infected locality to demonstrate methods of control to them. This can only be done by the district agricultural staff. We have such a staff in Godavari but none in Kistna as yet. The northern taluks of Kistna have recently been transferred to the I Circle, however, and will be provided with the staff from that circle as soon as possible. The Deputy Director of Agriculture, I Circle, and the Government Entomologist have been asked to arrange for a definite large scale demonstration of the use of light traps and other methods of control of the stem-borer this year in the affected tracts."

"In view of this statement I trust the Honourable Member will see that we have all the information, and what is needed is a regular campaign, and in conducting this campaign the new Bill which will be soon before the Council will be of some use in strengthening the hands of the Agricultural Department. So far as funds are concerned, the Agricultural Department has ample funds and the district staff is being strengthened all over. I confidently look forward to the time when it will be a comparatively easy thing to cope with this matter in co-operation with the ryots."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I was aware of all that the Honourable Member has said with regard to what was done. The feeling of the ryots is that a good deal of pen and ink is being wasted by reports and cross reports and by people being asked to go here and there. What they would appreciate more is the investigation by demonstration to see whether any of the methods recommended by the Agricultural Department are successful in the eradication of these pests. I know that Mr. Campbell was in charge at the time of the issue of the circular. He is also aware of the great clamour of the ryots on account of the paddy pests. What the ryots would appreciate is that the officers who advocate these remedies should apply them on the spot, verify the results and show whether the remedies suggested are really successful and economical. That is really a part of investigation work. The Honourable

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; the President.]

Member chooses to call it demonstration. I do not object to that term being used. But what would be very much appreciated is that a certain sum of money should be set apart for this demonstration at the time when the pests are on the ground and the necessary remedies advocated by the Agricultural Department applied and these traps should be used and we must then see what the result will be. Perhaps the feeling of some ryots is just like the feeling of a man when he heard of the bug remedy. Honourable Members are aware of the famous bug remedy which was advertised in the papers. It was altogether a failure. When the inventor was asked what should be done he said you must catch a bug and open its mouth and put the medicine in its mouth and then it will certainly die. It may be that some of the nostrums—I have great respect for the gentlemen of the Agricultural Department—these light traps recommended to the ryots for catching moths may be such as to call forth a hearty laughter."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"The flooding has been successful."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Yes, the flooding has been successful. Let us demonstrate it to them and see if it is successful and then let us revise our opinions as to the remedies. That is all that I am advocating. I know that a certain amount of attention has been paid. It is not necessary to give advice. I may perhaps call it irresponsible advice. How far this advice is useful and successful in the eradication of these diseases must be demonstrated. If the Honourable Member thinks that it is not necessary to provide money, if he gives me an assurance that he would demonstrate on the lines advocated by the officers of the Agricultural Department, on the lines of the advice given to the ryots—it would be much more satisfactory if that advice is carried out by the officers of that department as an experimental measure—if he says that that at least will be done, I do not wish to press the resolution."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"May I make a suggestion? I dare say it is being carried out already. In these matters of dealing with agricultural pests and insects, I dare say that the experienced ryots will give great aid to the department. I do not know if it will not be wise to depute some officers of the rank of Revenue Inspectors to go about and collect information as to how the ryots deal with the diseases. That sort of information will be useful. Probably in one tract one method is adopted and in another, another method. I do not suggest that they are not doing it already. I only throw it out for information, that information may be collected in that way by the department. I would say that about 20 more officers may be deputed to collect information like that and that money will be well spent."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I propose to communicate a copy of this discussion to the Director of Agriculture. I think that would be the best course. I am sure he will be very glad to read what the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao and the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar have said. So far as I am concerned, I am aware that of the two processes of investigation and demonstration, investigation cannot be done under the eyes of the ryots. Investigation is done by the department in their own way. Demonstration, I quite agree with the Honourable Member, should be done in such a way as to carry conviction to the ryot. That is the main point, and till I know anything to the contrary I assume that will be done; otherwise it would not be demonstration. Merely issuing leaflets and going away will not serve any purpose. Our officers should be there and do what is needed to stop the thing and guide the ryots. If it is done in one place others will follow it. I am sure that the Director of Agriculture and his staff understand it in that way. In any case the discussion will be communicated to him, and I am sure it will be of assistance to him. Under these circumstances there is no need for a further allotment so far as investigation is concerned."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

XXI-B. & 26-B. Scientific and Miscellaneous Departments.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg to introduce the head 'scientific and miscellaneous departments.' I have been asked for information on two points by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanaia Achariyar. I am sorry he is not here. I suppose I must give the information even if he is not here."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Yes."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Ramanaia Achariyar asks what is the necessity for the retention of the office of the Director of Civil Supplies next year when the war has come to a close. The answer is that the duties of the Director of Civil Supplies as stated in answer to a question put at the last meeting, include the regulation of food supplies throughout the Presidency. The cessation of hostilities has unfortunately not had the immediate effect which the Honourable Member attributes to it, of restoring the railway system to its original state of efficiency. It may take a considerable time probably to replace the deficiencies in rolling stock which have accumulated during the last four years, and as Honourable Members are no doubt aware, grain prices are still very high and the Government are being urged to take further and more comprehensive measures of control than have hitherto been resorted to. In these circumstances, the retention of the appointment will be necessary for some time. Hence the provision for it in the budget for the year 1919-20."

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan ;
the President.)

"The Honourable Member has also asked why the Cinchona department shows smaller net receipts. The smaller net receipts anticipated in 1919-20 are due to two causes. The first is an increase of about Rs. 60,000 in expenditure, the main cause of which is the sum of Rs. 70,000 provided for the purchase of European stores. This sum was provided in the budget for 1918-19 but owing to causes connected with the war it is not expected to be expended in the year and therefore has been repeated in the year 1919-20. The largeness of the sum is due to the heavy rise in the price of European stores, especially caustic soda. The other reason is smaller receipts from the sale of quinine due to the inferior quality of the bark which is expected to be worked up during the year. In the years prior to 1913-14 large purchases were made of cinchona bark grown in Java and possessing large quinine contents. These supplies of Java bark are now exhausted and it has been found impossible to obtain any more bark of similar quality. Accordingly the bark to be worked up during the coming year will be bark grown in India which is markedly inferior to that previously obtained from Java and thus gives a smaller yield of quinine and consequently smaller receipts and reduced profits. That is the information I have to give on the two matters on which the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanaia Achariyar has asked for information."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"May I ask?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR (interrupting):—"Have you given notice?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Probably you may be in a position to give it without notice."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"As regards the provision of Rs. 5 lakhs for soap-making experiments, I wish to know whether there are any particulars available."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Probably it will be more convenient to give it when the Honourable Member moves his resolution."

RESOLUTION RE PROPOSAL TO ABOLISH THE APPOINTMENT OF DIRECTOR OF FISHERIES AND TO INCREASE THE SALARY OF THE ASSISTANT DIRECTOR.

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur moved the following resolution:—

'XLIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the provision of Rs. 15,000 as salary of the Director of Fisheries under the head 26-Bk. Scientific and Miscellaneous Departments be omitted and the provision for the salary of the Assistant Director of Fisheries be raised from Rs. 4,800 to Rs. 7,200 the grade of that office to be fixed at Rs. 600-50-950.'

In doing so he said:—"In my opinion there is no longer any necessity for a separate Director for the Fisheries. This department can with advantage be placed under the Director of Industries just as the soap works which was started in connexion with the Fisheries is now transferred to the Department of Industries."

There are four branches of the Fisheries Department:—

1. Marine Biologist's Branch consists of Tuticorin fish farm and Pulicat oyster farm. Preparation of marine zoological specimens for educating work, beche de mer preparation, scientific and practical investigation and writing of bulletin are also entrusted to this branch.

2. Pearl and oyster branch over the whole coast from Madras to Cape Comorin.

3. Pisciculturists branch—fish farms at Sunkesula and at Ippur, larvicidal work, breeding of fish in inland waters, conservancy of various waters, scientific survey of the water of the Presidency, etc.

4. Director's branch—Technical work at Tanur and the Cannery, refrigeration of shoal fish, supervision of oil and guano factories. In shore fishing operations socio-economic work and education are included.

The first two branches which are on the eastern coast are in charge of the Marine Biologist Mr. James Hornell.

"The third branch was in charge of the Pisciculturist, the late Mr. Wilson. Mr. Govindan, the Assistant Director is looking after it since February 1918.

"In the Director's branch the Honorary Director Sir Nicholson was always assisted by the Assistant Director Mr. Govindan and now by the acting Assistant Director Mr. Sundaraj whose substantive office is that of assistant to the Pisciculturist.

"In every annual report Sir Nicholson spoke very highly of Mr. Govindan's work. The Industrial Commission report makes a special mention of him as a "highly educated gentleman, himself of the fisherman's caste with European scientific training."

"Sir Frederick Nicholson has organized the department in a thorough manner. He has made each branch a complete organization by itself and has trained the Assistant Director to look after the Director's branch in the most efficient manner.

"I want the present system to continue and not to be disturbed on any account."

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

[7TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"Let Mr. Hornell continue to work in the branch he is in charge of. Let a Pisciculturist expert be put in charge of that branch with Mr. Sundaraj as his Assistant till the latter gentleman in the usual course takes charge of it himself. Let Mr. Govindan revert to the post of Assistant Director for Fisheries in order that he may further develop the several works he has himself initiated under the inspiring direction of Sir Frederic Nicholson. The soap works are already transferred to the Department of Industries though the soap expert Mr. Menon is still working under Sir Frederick in his individual capacity and not as the Honorary Director of Fisheries."

"All these branches of the Fisheries should be placed under the direct control of the Director of Industries."

"There should be co-ordination among all the industrial works in this Presidency and that can only be secured by placing all of them under the control of one Director or Commissioner of Industries."

"The plea that the Director of Industries knows very little about Fisheries cannot be advanced as a reason for keeping that department separate. No Director of Industries can be expected to be an expert in all the industries in his charge. He can be an expert in one or two lines and an Indian Civil Service man has no technical knowledge of any Industries and yet he supervises them. He is assisted by experts in each department and will have the assistance of Marine Biologist, Pisciculturist and the Assistant Director of the Department of Fisheries as he has the assistance of leather expert, dye expert, soap expert and weaving and other experts in other departments under his control."

"There has been a difficulty in finding a suitable successor to Sir Frederic Nicholson. In the report for 1915-16 it is stated that 'the negotiations for a new expert Director did not materialize and the first officer has had to carry on.' The same sentence is repeated in the report for 1916-17. None of their staff Mr. Wilson or Mr. Hornell was thought of as a suitable successor during the last three or four years. Even the idea of bringing any one from abroad to take this place seems to have been dropped and no mention is made in the last report for 1917-18 of appointing a new Director."

"There will be much difficulty in filling this post by promoting to it one of the present members of the staff. Mr. Wilson the Pisciculturist who was in closer contact with the Honorary Director in his work on the Malabar coast is dead. Mr. Hornell was more concerned with chanks than with the principal technical work of the Department—the work for which the department was founded. According to the Indian Trades Journal, an official organ, he does not appear to have given satisfaction to his former employers in Ceylon and was asked to resign his appointment there. It is significant that his Assistant there succeeded to his post. It should be the dictate of common sense that Mr. Hornell should continue in the place where he has made himself useful and where he has been a source of good profit to the department by the advantageous sale of chank. Financially he will not suffer if he is not promoted to the Directorate for he is in the grade of Rs. 950-50-1,250, is now getting Rs. 1,100 and will soon get Rs. 1,250 the pay fixed for the Director."

"In the natural order of things it is the Assistant who has been working immediately under a Director who is entitled to succeed to the Director's post. Whenever this order was disturbed—the result has almost invariably been disastrous. The best course therefore to adopt in the case of Fisheries should be to instal in Sir Frederick Nicholson's chair a person who was his immediate subordinate whom he took with him to Europe to study the modern methods (I happened to be in Europe at the time and watched the movements of these two gentlemen with much interest) whom he took the special trouble to train and who has been conducting the very work which the Director had kept in his own personal charge, who has not merely carried out mechanically the work entrusted to him but has also initiated many a thing which evoked admiration from Sir Nicholson—I say the best and most natural course should have been to put Mr. Govindan in the place to be soon vacated by Sir Frederick. But Mr. Govindan has one defect which outweighs all his qualifications and that is that he has brown pigment in the texture of his skin. The pay of his post was fixed at 250-10-400 but he was started on 400. If I remember aright Mr. Hornell was also started on the same pay. But the latter officer managed to have his grade fixed at 950-50-1,250; consistent with this the grade of the Pisciculturist was also fixed on the same terms no doubt with a view to put a European in it. I find that in this year's budget that grade is removed and only Rs. 750 appears as the pay of the post."

"I do not want even Mr. Govindan to take the place of Sir Frederick Nicholson. He should continue to remain as Assistant Director. Instead of being Assistant to the Director of Fisheries he should in future be assistant to the Director of Industries. In that capacity he would carry on the industrial work so ably inaugurated by his superior officer. In recognition of his abilities and good work his salary should be raised. I do not propose that it should be raised to the graded pay that the Marine Biologist and Pisciculturist enjoy. Indians should be content to serve their country and Government on lesser pay than what a European is willing to give his service for. I propose in this resolution that the salaries of the Assistant Director for the Fisheries Department be fixed at Rs. 600-50-950. Thus the maximum pay of this appointment will be equal to the minimum pay of the other two officers in the same department."

"I conclude by repeating that the four branches of this department are so well organized that they can work by themselves under the directions of the Director of Industries assisted by an Assistant Director and that no separate Director is necessary for this department. It will be against the recommendation of the Industrial Commission if this department is not brought in touch with other departments of industries and placed under one Controller of Industries."

[7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the Honourable Member's proposal, as appears from his resolution, is to omit the provision for the headship of the Fisheries department and to increase the salary of the Assistant Director to Rs. 600-50-950. He deprives the department of its head. Now the Honourable Member has been so good in supporting this resolution as to make a number of suggestions as to the lines on which the department could with advantage be reorganized."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"I have said that it should not be disturbed and should get on as it is."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I am paraphrasing, all right. He has been so good as to criticize the capacity and judgment of several officers, he has told us who may be put away and he also lamented the fact that one of the officers would probably have been in a higher place but for the fact that he belonged to a certain nationality. All that I can say is, if we in this Council are going to deal with these personal questions—I do not say that members have no right to do so—it is a matter for consideration where it is likely to lead to. Taking this case, what must be the feeling of Mr. Govindan who is a gentleman for whom I have very high regard? I believe that my regard for him is as great as that of the Honourable Member. I have known him for a long time, from the time he was a boy. What would be his feeling when he reads the Honourable Member's speech? The Honourable Member says Mr. Govindan would have been the head of the department but for the man who has been so and so, and we are discussing his pay. All this cannot be agreeable to public servants. There is no necessity to bring in the personal element. Let us by all means do that if it is necessary, but the question is whether a resolution like this cannot be dealt with without any reference to such things."

"Having said that, I now propose to deal with the Honourable Member's proposal. The Honourable Member says the Assistant Director should be the Director. His proposal is that there should be no need for this department. If you want a head, let the head of some other department be its head. All that I can say is I should be extremely sorry for any department which has made substantial progress; it has which is treated like that. Here is a department which has made substantial progress; it has made a record of which we are all proud. I have a long note before me giving the organization and work of the Fisheries department which I do not propose to inflict on the Council. The Honourable Member referred to what the Industrial Commission have said. This is what they said of the Fisheries department which the Honourable Member now proposes to deprive of its head:

"The Madras Fisheries department has shown that much can be done to improve the methods of sea fishermen in drying fish and preparing fish oil and fish manure. As a result of its exertions some 250 small fish oil factories have been established along the coast, mainly by the fishermen themselves; and still further improvements in the preparation of the oil have been worked out by Sir Frederick Nicholson, the Honorary Director. The possibility of preparing tinned and cured fish of high quality has been amply demonstrated on a commercial scale. Co-operative societies have been started among fishermen and seem likely in course of time to prove both successful in themselves and valuable in developing a sense of self-respect and a higher standard of comfort among their members. Much experimental work has also been done in connexion with the stocking of tanks, rivers and canals with fresh water fish, and the cultivation of certain species in lagoon waters offers very promising prospects. We think that the Fisheries department deserves even fuller support from Government, especially in the further development of deep-sea fishing. The capture, preservation and transport of deep-sea fish require investigation and demonstration on a commercial scale. An organization for the marketing of the fish will also have to be provided. Owing to the present uncertainty of the results and the various difficulties interposed by the strong position of middlemen, the absence of refrigerating storage and other causes are many obstacles to overcome, and private enterprise is not likely to enter this field until Government has fully shown the possibilities of the industry and expert employers are available."

"All this progress the department has made, because it had a very capable head Sir Frederick Nicholson who it so happened served without any remuneration and who was the Honorary Director and is, I take it, still so. But I take it we cannot always expect honorary heads for our departments. Sir Frederick Nicholson notified us about a year ago that he wanted to hand over the work and we had to face the question of the re-organization of the department. After full consideration of the question and after discussing all the details, we re-organized it on these lines, namely by providing a Marine Assistant, a Marine Biologist, an Assistant Director, a Piscicultural Assistant and nine sub-assistants. The senior officer, Mr. Hornell, has been promoted as the head on the recommendation of Sir Frederick Nicholson. That is the best way of continuing the work. Now if you throw the whole thing overboard and leave this department to be vicariously dealt with by the head of another department, you cannot do anything worse. You cannot have a highly paid department without a head. The task of co-ordination is always very important, and I do not think that we can at all accept this proposal to omit the Director of Fisheries from our budget and to leave the department to be managed as proposed by the Honourable Member. For obvious reasons I refrain from going into the merits of Mr. Govindan and the question of pay. He was given an increase of pay after very full consideration. I leave it there, I do not propose to go into —."

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan.) [7TH FEBRUARY 1919]

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur (interrupting):—"Has he been given an increase of pay?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. Rajagopala Achariyar:—"He was in the grade of Rs. 400; we have now put him on Rs. 500. That increase was given after full consideration of what we thought proper in the case."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"Your Excellency, I myself wanted to refrain from going into the personal aspect of the question. But the question itself is such that I could not avoid it. I wanted to refrain for two reasons. One is, as suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar, that the feelings of Mr. Govindan will be hurt by the reference to him or to his department. No doubt he will feel awkward that his qualities are spoken of in this manner. But I could not help mentioning him. I have been taking much interest in this department as well as other industrial departments and from the reports that I have been reading in connexion with fisheries as well as other departments of industries, I found that in some industrial matters things are being done on the right line and that it is being done by certain persons and the very persons who are working satisfactorily are not encouraged as they ought to be. So unless the name of the persons is brought in, it is difficult to deal with the departments or with their work in an abstract manner. Here is a very good illustration. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar did not like my reference to the colour of Mr. Govindan but can anybody who looks at these things for a moment believe that but for that officer being an Indian he would not have been enjoying better salary and better status than he does? That is quite obvious. He cannot get away from it. I myself said in my speech that I did not want to raise him to the same salary as the European people are getting. I recognize that when Europeans come to a foreign country and they give their services for the benefit of that country, they are almost exiles from their home and they must be compensated and therefore they must get better salaries than the Indian. But at the same time Indians also should be given a salary which is commensurate with their work. Sir Frederick Nicholson has done so much good work and we gratefully recognize it. We are grateful to him for that. Who is his righthand man? Who is there that is assisting him in the work? All the quotation that has been placed before us by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar from the Industrial Commission's report, taken one by one, about oil factories, about fresh water tanks about all those things, you will find these are run by the Assistant Director, and yet when the Director goes away you think of putting somebody else in his place who is thousands of miles away from the immediate control of that work. I saw the announcement made by the Madras Mail about the person who was selected for this post.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar said that I was depriving the department of its head. I am not depriving the department of its head. I am giving it a better head—of course not quite as good a head as Sir Frederick Nicholson was. We cannot get a substitute for him. You yourself have tried to get a person from Europe and in three successive years you have failed to get another person. Any of his assistants were not considered good enough to take his place. Now you discover that one of them is able to manage his work. He is doing a useful work in one of the branches of the department, but he never did the Director's work. Let him develop his own work to further satisfaction. The pisciculturist is there; let him continue to do his work; and let the Assistant Director who has been doing that work—do the Director's work. He has practically been doing the Director's work. If you put somebody else above him, or he must be the head of the Department of Industries. The latter is what I suggest. I think my suggestion is a very good one. It was nowhere proposed in this Council that there should be twenty Departments of Industries and every department should have its own head. On the other hand it is suggested that there should be one superior officer in charge of the industrial works in the province. It is in keeping with this suggestion that I bring forward this resolution. I say make the Director of Industries, the Director of Fisheries also. I have pointed out in my speech that he can manage it just as anybody else can. Technical knowledge is required only in the branches, and these people there have the technical knowledge. If you remained in their own work, at the same time the supervision being given by the Director of Industries. I am glad to know that the pay of Mr. Govindan has been raised to Rs. 500. I ask Fisheries should get only Rs. 500 whereas other persons who will be virtually under him should get Rs. 950 to Rs. 1,250? Not only that, but you are adding insult to injury by bringing in another person who was technically under him and placing him over him. In the interests of the Department of Industries itself I make the proposal and not in the interests of any person, whether he be Mr. Govindan or somebody else. On the other hand, I am afraid I could not avoid it even to save him from any discomfort he might feel. I again ask Your Excellency to accept my resolution. You have practically accepted a portion of it, that is you are raising the salary. Bring it under the Department of Industries and do not put any other head over this department."

The resolution was put to the Council and lost.

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; the President.)

RESOLUTION RE REDUCTION OF PROVISION FOR SOAP-MAKING EXPERIMENTS.

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"Your Excellency the resolution I have the honour to move runs thus:—

'XLIV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the provision of Rs. 5,00,000 for soap-making experiments under the head of 26-Bk. be reduced to Rs. 1,00,000.

"If the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar can give this information I asked for, it will help me in moving this resolution."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. Rajagopala Achariyar:—"I shall give it to him after he moves the resolution."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"I have no objection to move it, but I am in the dark about it. I take it that this Rs. 5 lakhs has been given for soap-making experiments. In the Civil Budget Estimate it is stated 'provision for soap-making experiments—five lakhs', and then there is a foot-note: 'the increase is due to more extensive manufacture of soap at the Government Soap factory at Calicut'."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. Rajagopala Achariyar:—"That is the information."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"Then I take it that the whole of this five lakhs is to be spent on experiments in soap-making? On soda and other materials for making soaps all this five lakhs is to be wasted."

"His Excellency the President:—"What the Honourable gentleman says is what the figures show. Rupees 5 lakhs is provided in this year's budget. He must take the meaning of the statement."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"On that basis I proceed. I consider that it is a very large amount to be devoted for that purpose. Last year my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sadasiva Bhat brought forward a resolution in connexion with the Financial Statement and he wanted the allotment for soap-making experiments to be removed. I opposed him and I said that soap-making was a very important item; till then experiment in soap had not taken place to a large extent, and only a beginning was made and some soaps were being manufactured and there was yet room for further development of that industry. I said it would do great harm if that resolution were carried. I find in the last year's revised estimates Rs. 2'35 lakhs; I suppose all that amount must have been spent in the year 1918-1919, that is the current year. A large part of it must have been spent, and so soap-making experiments must have progressed to a very large extent. I find from the report of the soap factory that they are able to turn out very good soap, though of course they say that some more progress has to be made with some new classes of soaps that have to be manufactured. But when you manufacture twenty kinds of soap you can manufacture ten more kinds of soap with very little experiment. Such experiment does not cost as much as Rs. 5 lakhs to make. If it is proposed that some of this money should be spent in machinery and in any equipment or any building for the factory, that would have come under different heads, but as it is not given under different heads I take it that the whole of this amount would be spent in making experiments alone and nothing else. That is why I put this question, and the answer is it is to be spent on experiments alone."

"Now the soap industry is after all a minor industry when compared with many big industries like cloth manufacture and other things; and this industry does exist in India and it is carried on at this day successfully in some provinces of India. I have shown in my last speech that one big factory, the North-western Factory of Calcutta and Cawnpore is carried on with a total invested capital of five lakhs. That means working capital, cost of machinery and everything. Here five lakhs is wanted for soap-making experiments alone. I cannot understand what experiments can be made for the manufacture of soaps. I am not referring to glycerine and other things. If you have any other projects say so. But if it is to be spent not on the manufacture of soap but on experiments in soap-making, do you not think that five lakhs is a very large sum? I want that amount to be reduced to one lakh. I do not want that the department should be starved. Even that one lakh will be too much to spend on that. But considering there was five lakhs I hesitated in reducing it to anything less than one lakh. Even with that one lakh you can have other experiments about glycerine and other things. On the other hand, if you want to manufacture soap to a larger extent than you are doing now, it has been said that their ambition is to turn out about 20 tons a day—that will no doubt require a large working capital. If you want any portion of this to be set aside as working capital, I will have no objection to it, but I object to the entire amount being spent on experiment alone."

"Then the object of the factory was said to be educational. So far no educational work has been done. Now it is proposed that the training of students in the manufacture of soap should be started and it requires a technological institute. No provision is made for that institute. If any portion of this amount is to be diverted to that purpose, I have no objection. With the information at my disposal I can only say that much in support of my resolution. If anything further is said by the Honourable Member in charge of the port-folio I may add something afterwards."

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Siva Rao.) [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"Your Excellency, I fear that the word experiment is somewhat misunderstood. I would first of all venture to point out that this soap after being made is not thrown away but is sold to people and money is realized. When you take the receipts and expenditure of a big factory, which is what this has developed into, you must take both together. There is no use of taking the working charges alone and saying all this is waste. We have to consider that after the soap is made it is sold to the people and all of us use it."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"Then it is returned to us and the Government will not be out of pocket to that extent; but I do not find it; where is the profit?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"That is provided in the receipts. The Honourable Member's difficulty was at one time my own difficulty, and I feel considerable sympathy with the Honourable Member. We considered the question whether we may not put these things under one head so as to show the net revenue or expenditure, if any. But that is not allowable under the rules; all the expenditure should go under one head and the receipts under another head. In this very year when the Honourable Member has been lamenting this waste of 5 lakhs, if he will be so good as to refer to the receipts side he will find that we have budgeted for Rs. 5.57 lakhs. So it is really not so much a waste of 5 lakhs but a net revenue of over half a lakh. Even that is very much an under-estimate. Sir Frederick Nicholson wanted a sum of 7.57 lakhs to be entered. He said, 'you will get a profit of 2 lakhs.' But in a spirit of caution the Finance Department reduced it, because there was some delay in starting operations, and it was thought we might not be able to realize the whole thing. It is not so much that we are throwing away a lot of money by making needless experiments. The Honourable Member has been good enough to say that he would be content with spending one lakh. We should say that if the expenditure of 5 lakhs is unjustifiable the expenditure of 1 lakh is also equally unjustifiable. We must see the figures on both sides of the account, revenue and expenditure. I will tell him how the matter stands. In the year 1915-1919, that is the current year, we originally provided for a sum of Rs. 1.10 lakhs for experiments—experiment means all the raw materials and working charges—and also one lakh for the establishment of the factory on a permanent basis on a new site. But later on in the current year we wanted 1.40 lakhs in addition to the 1.10 lakhs which we had intended for experiments in the current year. So the total cost is 2.50 lakhs. Sir Frederick Nicholson says 'we have now put it on a permanent basis, and we will be able to work on a very much larger scale.' He anticipated an income of 7.57 lakhs, but in view of the delay in providing the machinery we were rather afraid that we might not be able to realize all that and we reduced it to 5.57 lakhs. Even according to that cautious estimate, the soap factory is going to give the general tax-payer a net profit of half a lakh. Whatever is not sold in one year will be sold in another year and the money will come in. I cannot help feeling that to some extent we are continuing an old debate. The Honourable Member does not approve of the Government continuing the soap factory."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"I did not say so."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"If he approves of the soap factory, he has adopted a curious method of showing his approval."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"If I suggested that the soap factory should be given to a private company it does not mean that I disapprove of the factory."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"At present the Government are committed to the soap factory. This Council after a very full discussion of the whole question, whether it should continue to be a Government concern or not, by a very large majority overruled the Honourable Member. So we are committed to the soap factory. The receipt side and what on the expenditure side of the concern to which the Government and the head of the department, says that he can spend Rs. 5 lakhs which would be necessary to it is finding a market. According to Sir Frederick Nicholson, the transactions of this year would give us a net profit of Rs. 2½ lakhs. In a spirit of caution the Government have reduced it by 2 lakhs and put it at half a lakh. The chances are it will be a great deal more. If in any case soap is not sold this year, it will be sold next year. This is one of those things about which we can go ahead unhesitatingly. The Honourable Member has raised the question of training students which does not really arise. But even from that point of view, unless you have shown to the Council that this is not the direction in which we should act. So I oppose the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO :—"After all the difference is a purely verbal one. It is possible that by entering it under the head 'soap-making experiments', the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan thought that the whole thing would be wasted in making experiments and investigations. But as has been now explained by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar, the money is meant as capital for working the factory. After this explanation I do not think there would be any more quarrel over the expenditure of 5 lakhs. The term is rather misleading and has given rise to misapprehension."

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Yaqub Hasan; the President.)

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"I only rise, Your Excellency, to say that we would gladly welcome productive expenditure of this sort to any number of lakhs if the Government will find their way to do it. It is this sort of expenditure that has not been hitherto encouraged. We hope, wish and trust that this departure will proceed with increased pace and volume."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"Your Excellency, it is now clear that the Government have made a mistake by putting down that 5 lakhs is for soap-making experiments. I was under the impression that they wanted to use it only for experiments and nothing else. So I asked for information, but that information was not given before. It is forthcoming now, and I find that 5 lakhs is not for experiments. It is to serve as working capital for the soap factory and will be used for the manufacture of soaps, and it is expected that 2½ lakhs will be the profit during the coming year, but to be on the safe side instead of showing that profit they have shown only a profit of Rs. 50,000. Even if there is no profit forthcoming and even if this Rs. 50,000 is actually shown to its debit and is spent, I will not be sorry because as I have said if these experiments make this industry a greater success than it has been, it is a legitimate expenditure. I am sorry that the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar has brought in his impression of the other debate and said that I was against anything being done in this line. That is far from my intention. I did try to induce the Government to give this factory to a private company. I failed, but some day I am sure the Government will hand it over. Any money that is spent in making it a greater success will only be more profitable to the private company who will take charge of it. Personally I do not think that much departmental money should be spent in this direction; but still, now that it is shown that this expenditure, if any, is not so high as that anticipated, I have no objection to that. But at the same time I must express my surprise that no provision has been made for a technological institute. I thought a portion of that 5 lakhs has gone towards the starting of a technological institute."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"I must remind the Honourable gentleman that he is making a reference to a question which is not before us. We are dealing with a specific matter."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"I made a reference to this because I thought I would be told that some of it would be utilized for that purpose but I am surprised it is not so. I withdraw the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE INCREASED PROVISION FOR THE SALARY OF THE DIRECTOR OF INDUSTRIES.

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"Your Excellency, the resolution that I have the honour to move runs as follows :—

'XLV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the provision of Rs. 18,000 for the salary of the Director of Industries under the head 26-B, be raised to Rs. 19,200 and the grade of that office be fixed at Rs. 1,500-100-2,000 and the excess charge be met by corresponding reduction under the head 45. CIVIL WORKS.'

"Since I gave notice of this resolution I find that in the revised estimate the amount has been raised. Originally Rs. 18,000 was provided, but I find that Rs. 23,616 is now provided and in the remarks column it is said 'Provision made for acting third-grade Collector on Rs. 1,800 plus a duty allowance of Rs. 250 per mensem subject to 4 per cent annuity deduction—vide Government of India, Home Department, letter No. 363 C, dated 14th January 1919.' Evidently that order has only come recently. I hope that the object of my resolution will be realized by this increased provision."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Does the Honourable gentleman intend to move this resolution?"

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"I shall withdraw it after saying a few words."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"It is not open to the Honourable Member to make a speech if at the end of his speech he does not intend to move the resolution. If he intends to move it, he may make a speech."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"Your Excellency has given me permission to move this resolution and in moving that I mention"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"I do not want to restrict his liberty, but it is not open to him to make a speech and then say at the end 'I do not intend to move the resolution'."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"I intend to move the resolution. The object of my resolution is this: I want that the officer who gains experience in the Industries department should not be disturbed but should remain there. When I saw that the present incumbent was in the past year getting a salary that he would have got in his own substantive appointment and that when in the usual course of service he is promoted he would go away from this department because the highest salary of this department would be less than what he would get as Collector. I brought this resolution with a view that a higher salary might be given to the same officer and his services may be retained in the same department and you may not remove him. If by this announcement the object is to keep the present Director of Industries in this place, I welcome it; but if, on the other hand, he is to go away and somebody else is to be brought in I would insist that my resolution should be carried rather than the other thing being given effect to. The salary of Rs. 1,500 is a very good salary for the Director of Industries. If a new person is to come, then he will be in the Assistant Collector's grade and it would be quite enough if he were paid only what I have provided in my resolution."

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan Sahib; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar.]

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I have not quite followed the Honourable Member, but I take it that he wants to raise the provision of Rs. 18,000 for the salary of Director to Rs. 19,200 and to fix the grade of the office at Rs. 1,500—160—2,000. In regard to both these things we are now concluded. This matter went up to the Government of India. The Government of India said that the question of a permanent head of the Industries department for this province, his qualifications, what his pay is to be, had better be deferred till the Industrial Commission had reported. We are not in a position to say what the Government would do on that report. Pending that they have sanctioned the appointment of an officer of the grade of Collector to the headship of the department, and for that purpose they have sanctioned the creation of a temporary post of Collector, third grade, for a period of two years or till some other permanent arrangement is made for the charge of the department whichever may happen earlier. That being so, we have given effect to the order of the Government of India and are making a provision for the pay of the Director as proposed by the Government of India. The only thing we will have to see is whether it is likely during the year 1919-20 that the whole thing would be disposed of, the Industrial Commission's report considered and final orders issued in regard to the officer who is to be the head of the department and what his pay is to be. I do not think it is possible. It is only now that the report has been published and we will have to report upon it and the Government of India have to deal with it and pass orders. Any new state of things in connexion with this matter will come into operation only after the close of the year with which we are now dealing. I trust in these circumstances the Honourable Member will see that the only course open to us is to make a provision for the appointment of the head of the department on the lines indicated by the Government of India for this year 1919-20 with which alone we are now concerned. I am therefore unable to accept his proposal."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"May I ask whether Mr. Innes will continue in his place at least this year?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"The Finance Department has provided for the pay of a third-grade Collector as directed by the Government of India for the headship of the department. Changes are being made. The other question does not arise now. The Government of India have said what we should do. This is a temporary arrangement and it is not to be disturbed before the end of 1919-20 with which alone we are concerned. Let us leave it alone."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"In one of the reports it is stated that a reference has been made to the Secretary of State to give this post to an Indian Civil Service officer. Is this arrangement in accordance with that order or as has been stated by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar this has not been settled?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"This is only a temporary arrangement."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"Is it temporary; I beg leave to withdraw the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE INCREASED ALLOTMENT FOR IMPROVING HAND-LOOM WEAVING IN THE PRESIDENCY.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I move—

'XLVI. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the allotment under 26-B. Development of Industries be increased by Rs 20,000 to take steps to help and improve handloom weaving industry in the Presidency and a corresponding reduction be made under 45. CIVIL WORKS.'

"In moving this resolution I wish to invite the particular attention of this Council to the following facts. One of the many lessons that this war has taught us is the importance of the development of handloom weaving in this country, particularly in this Presidency. The Industrial Commission after careful inquiry into the conditions of the country and after going carefully into the statistics make the following observations and recommendations:—

"A general review of the evidence tendered to us supplemented by numerous inspections in the towns and villages that we have visited confirms us in the conclusion that cottage industries are a very important feature in the industrial life of India; that they are by no means so 7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar;

Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

primitive as they are usually depicted; and that there is no real ground for belief that they are generally in a decadent condition. We have been unable to obtain accurate statistics regarding the actual number of workers in the various cottage industries, but in every town they still form a large percentage of the population, and they are to be found in almost every village, so that their numbers are still vastly larger than those of the operatives employed in organized industries. Of these cottage industries the most important is handloom weaving. It is believed that two and three million handlooms are at work in India, and their annual gross earnings must amount to something like fifty crores of rupees. And they recommend: 'In the case of weaving, provision should be made in the weaving schools, for the instruction of a small number of pupils of a higher class, with better educational attainments and prospects of being able to start for themselves in business. They should be given practice in the control of workmen, and should receive a training in the commercial as well as in the technical side of their profession either in private undertakings run with Government assistance as demonstration factories or in commercial sections attached to the industrial schools. Directors of Industries should be empowered to grant small loans to cottage workers and to supply tools and plant on the hire purchase system.'

"The very high price of yarn has been observed by the writer of the administration report of our province for the last year. The handloom weaving industry was however depressed by the very high price of yarn and shortage of dyes. I may observe that there is a great and increasing demand for hand-woven clothes, particularly female clothes, and the high price of yarn has greatly hindered it and made the people living by that industry suffer inexpressibly. So some steps should be taken in the direction of bettering the industry and the conditions under which that industry is carried on and also the ease and cheapness with which the materials are brought to the hands of these handloom weavers. It is high time that some steps are taken to develop such measures and to improve the present hard conditions. The Industrial Commission further suggests the training of master workmen and the establishment of small weaving factories and supplying other than purely technical knowledge in weaving schools 'with the avowed object of supplying training other than purely technical which a master weaver must possess before he can hope to start in business for himself' and they also say that some financial assistance should be given to these handloom weavers to enable them to get cheaper capital and to relieve them to the greatest possible extent from the clutches of money-lenders so that they might obtain money on easy terms. In cases where this cannot possibly be done by the organization of the co-operative societies the Director of Industries may also be empowered to grant small loans and to supply tools and plants on the hire purchase system. These are some of the directions in which it seems to me the improvement of the handloom weaving industry can well be effected. The demand for hand-woven textiles is perhaps on the increase and here in this Presidency it is carried on regularly by a class of people who are hereditarily attached to it. Not only would this help improve the ease and cheapness with which these most important articles of necessity, next to food itself, which have gone up sometimes 100 per cent and 200 per cent in price in recent years can be supplied to the people at large, but also the condition of a very large class of weavers who are hereditarily manufacturing these clothes. I may almost say 99 per cent of them are destitute and it is high time that their condition should be bettered. One might easily observe large families of these weavers from weaving centres going abroad purely as beggars simply for want of employment. In western countries a great deal is being done by statesmen and by responsible men at the head of the Government of the country to make provision for the employment of unemployed people. Here there is a class of labourers who have very good capacity for fine work and there is a great demand for the products of these workmen, and we see on one side the very workmen suffering from destitution and poverty and migrating from place to place and on the other side people suffering from absolute lack of stock. Even apart from the question of high prices I think it is high time that the Government, the responsible Government, should not look on at this state of things and merely content themselves with saying in the administration report that the abnormally high prices of yarn has very greatly depressed the handloom weaving industry. The Industrial Commission as a responsible Commission appointed by the Government of India have laid down the lines on which the betterment of the handloom weaving industry can most usefully be attempted. In these circumstances, I trust the Government will make an earnest endeavour to see that this most important industry next to agriculture itself is really helped and improved and its condition bettered as early as practicable. With these few remarks I commend this resolution for the acceptance of the Council."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I wish the Honourable Member had told us with somewhat more particularity what exactly he wanted to do with the Rs. 20,000. I understand that he has mentioned some of the difficulties of getting yarn at cheap rates. But Rs. 20,000 would be nothing to meet a difficulty like that. So far as the Industries department is concerned, probably it would be of advantage to the Council to know what we are exactly doing in regard to weaving. There is a weaving branch opened in the Madura Technical Institute for which we have provided in this budget more than Rupees 20,000. We expect a weaving expert very soon. There are peripatetic weaving parties going all round and latterly the co-operative department is doing its best to start as many cotton weavers' societies as possible to improve their lot by co-operative purchase and sale. In last June there were seven such societies in the Presidency, but apparently what the Honourable

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Chidambaramatha [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mudaliyar; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Sir Alexander Cardew;
Sir Gordon Fraser.]

Member contemplates is the immediate difficulty. In regard to that a scheme has been elaborated, the main outline of which is that the Director of Industries should purchase yarn at Government's cost and distribute it to the weavers through the co-operative societies and buy the cloth woven by them. The co-operative society is distributing the yarn among the weaver members and the members should return equal weight of cloth at a fixed price. The clothes woven will be taken over by the co-operative society at cost price plus a small amount to cover the working expenses. Several places have been suggested, Ichchapuram in Ganjam, Palghat in Malabar, and in North Arcot. The scheme has been started in Ichchapuram and Mr. Innes says in his report that 150 societies have been registered and a sum of Rs. 50,000 has been placed at his disposal. The Honourable Member may not be aware of what has been done in that particular matter. As to extending it to other places it is under consideration. I cannot say what is going to be done in those places. It depends upon a number of considerations. The Honourable Member is quite aware that a sum of Rs. 20,000 would be a flea-bite to supply cheap yarn to thousands of weavers all over the province. The only way we can do it is to make them start co-operative societies and give them Government supervision and some amount of financial help in the beginning to enable them to buy yarn wholesale and distribute it among them and then sell the cloths woven and recoup themselves. This is being tried and I think it would be well."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR (interrupting):—"Cannot anything be done in the School of Arts for the training of master workmen?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"They must go to the weaving school at Madura, but I would advise the Council to wait and see how these things are being dealt with. I do not want to say anything against the weavers or this particular problem. The Council will be interested to learn, when I was in a lower capacity I had a great deal to do with the condition of weavers, in several places. It has been generally found that the problem is much more difficult than one is apt to imagine and the obvious fact is that the weavers are a poor lot. When you go into it you find that their poverty is contributed by very many causes very few of which are under our control. I do not mention that by way of discounting the appeal made by the Honourable Member. But my objection to the proposal is that Rs. 20,000 is nothing compared to the needs. The Government have taken up the question of giving temporary relief and they have given Rs. 50,000 in one place and if there is need in other places it will be done, and the Council will allow the co-operative societies and Mr. Innes to go on with the work they have commenced. For these reasons, I would deprecate the passing of the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"May I know whether the list of places read out is exhaustive and it is confined to the five places?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"The places have been suggested to us. The starting of work at each one of the places will be a task of considerable difficulty. It is not exhaustive. After all we are handling the general tax-payers' money. Both Mr. Hemingway and Mr. Innes are proceeding cautiously."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Where is the provision found?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Probably in the revised estimate."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"Rupees 72,000 is provided on page 217 of the Civil Budget Estimate for 'Miscellaneous Experiments'."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"That is for next year. He is asking for the current year."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"Rupees 90,000."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I take it that it is with reference to the Rs. 90,000 that the experiment is now made in the five places. Evidently it will be less next year."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"It is not so. This money is not given away. It goes and comes back. It is not a grant; it is floating money. I do not know if the Honourable Member understands. There is provision in the next year's budget. How this will develop next year I cannot say. Each place will be taken up by itself. It is a slow process."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"There is a difference of about Rs. 20,000 between the current year and the next year, and that is why perhaps the Honourable Member wanted Rs. 20,000. In this connexion I want to say that the Salem weavers are in a very bad condition. They would not stoop to beggary, and it seems necessary to give relief to the weavers there and also in some other places and it seems necessary to provide this Rs. 20,000. I was going to support this proposal, but the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar thinks that even with this Rs. 72,000 it is possible to undertake this task as the money is going out and coming in. I do not wish to say anything further as that assurance is given to us."

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER:—"Your Excellency, I would like to be excused for making a few remarks on this resolution. It is not that I do not sympathise with it, but in my opinion it is not the right way of going about it to help the weavers. The Honourable Member 7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Sir Gordon Fraser; Mr. Venkatapati Raju;

Mr. Krishna Rao.)

has said that the handloom weaving industry is in a very bad way. The idea of this resolution is to assist in bettering the condition of the industry. I cannot quite see why the Honourable mover comes to the Government to achieve this; it is a task which is very well within the reach of all Indian industrialists. The remedy I should say is to form weaving societies, finance them—the funds required are not heavy—pay the weavers a fair daily wage and allow your society to control the buying of the yarn and to control the selling of the cloths. This is very much the scheme that the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar has just mentioned to the Council. I do not think that in helping the weavers the Government's intervention is necessary, except in the way of sympathy. Monetary assistance is not necessary. To prove that there is no difficulty, I might mention that my firm has already started one of these societies in Berhampur. I understand it is working satisfactorily and the weavers are extremely pleased with the treatment they are getting. We control the buying of the yarn in conjunction with the directors of the society and in selling the cloths; and the concrete advantage is, instead of each weaver going round the country trying to sell his daily production of cloths woven, they are bought by the society and the society can hold on to the cloths until the market rises. In former days the man had to go to the bazaar to find a purchaser who deferred buying as long as possible and the seller had to sell at any price and consequently the condition of the weavers was most miserable. They could not make a paying wage. I may mention also incidentally that the only thanks that we receive from the Indian Press for this is to be called exploiters and profiteers. We started this purely as an experiment because the Registrar of the Co-operative Societies came to me one day in great distress and asked us if we could help him. I promise to put all the books and show the methods of work before any Indian industrialist who wishes to copy our society at Berhampur. Everything is above board; they can have every assistance. The Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar has just referred to the very miserable condition of the weavers of Salem. I am perfectly certain that if he will take the matter in hand and interest the Indian industrialists at Salem he will have no difficulty whatever in ameliorating the condition of the weavers. At any time he likes I can make an appointment with him and let him see what we are doing. I will go further; I will allow my assistant in charge of the Berhampur weavers' society to go down with him to Salem and study the condition of the weavers in Salem and he will receive every possible assistance. I may tell him that that is a much more practical manner of trying to ameliorate the condition of the weavers in this Presidency than to keep asking the Government for small advances and asking the Government to interfere. The responsibility in a case like this does not rest with the Government but with the people. It is a matter which is so very easy to improve. There is no difficulty about it. If we find later on that even with this assistance the weaving industry is not a paying one and economically unsuccessful, the only thing is to drop it. There is no use of flogging a dead horse; if the handloom weaving industry is not a success, there is no use of making any bounty under the budget to relieve the weavers. By adopting the scheme suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar they will be given relief and the industry will be given a fair trial. My sympathies are with the resolution, but it is not the proper method to pursue to help the weavers."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Your Excellency, in a non-controversial resolution the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser has brought in a controversial point. The question is whether the State should aid this declining industry. The Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser knows that all countries in their own time helped declining industries. The present position of the industries of India is entirely due to English merchants. On account of the jealousy of the English merchants the Indian cotton industry was ruined. There is no gainsaying that fact. Now my Honourable friend comes forward and says that the State ought not to aid us. I do not understand on what principle he can urge that. It is the duty of the State to revive all dying industries. That is exactly the view with which the Hon'ble Mr. Chidambaramatha Mudaliyar has moved the resolution. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar says we want some practical scheme. I do not quarrel with that, but I object to the statement of the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser that it is not the duty of the Government to help industries. Perhaps if you go to the old history when they wanted to protect themselves in England they charged 80 per cent on cotton fabrics manufactured in India and thus they have actually killed the industry here. It is too late in the day to suggest now that the State should not help Indian industries."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I wish to make a few remarks in support of the resolution. I must express disagreement with the views expressed by the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser. We must thank him for the offer of assistance which he has given. He has suggested that those of us who are anxious to improve the condition of weavers in our respective districts will do well to follow the example adopted in the case of Berhampur and take advantage of the advice and assistance given. But in the present economic condition of this country and in view of the fact that it has not been possible to develop the industries of this country in a satisfactory manner, it is difficult to accept his advice or to act according to the suggestions made by him. The general remarks made by him in regard to the weaving industry can in a modified form be urged in the case of other industries; and that is why it is necessary for us to support the view that has been put forward by the Industrial Commission and support the policy which has been accepted by the Government. The old theory of the State's non-intervention in industry must be given up and the Government should as far as possible help the industries which are likely to benefit the people."

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Krishna Rao; [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.
the President; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Sir Gordon Fraser;
Sir Alexander Cardew; Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar.]

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I am very sorry to interrupt the Honourable Member, but I have to rise to a point of order. We are going further and further away from this small issue before the Council. If we are to go into the Industrial Commission's report and industrial policy, how industries were ruined on account of the import duties imposed in England I am utterly unprepared to meet that argument on behalf of the Government. I do not wish to be obstructive, but this is not exactly the resolution on which it will be possible for us to have that wide debate."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I am not going into that controversial question. I am putting forward a suggestion."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Would the Honourable gentleman please resume his seat? My attention has been called to the fact that the Honourable gentleman is straying from the point. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar is quite right in saying that he has gone very wide of the issue. We are confined, as I have already said, to the resolution on the paper. I must ask the Honourable gentleman to confine his remarks to that."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I was replying to the remarks of the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"If the Honourable gentleman will resume his seat, the Council will recollect what the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser said. His remarks were not correctly paraphrased by the Honourable gentleman. He gave the actual facts of the experiment directed to the resolution before the Council and there he spoke."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR (interrupting):—"May I point out, your Excellency, that the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser pointed out that it is not correct to appeal to the Government to assist this industry? It is that principle that we wish to attack."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable gentleman has realized that there can be two opinions about the resolution."

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER:—"May I make a personal explanation, your Excellency. There is evidently a misunderstanding on this point. I did not say that I oppose Government help. I welcome Government help. I think that is the point that started the debate. But I do want to impress upon everybody that in addition to Government help there is a duty on the Indian industrialist. So far as Government help goes, I welcome it. I think some Honourable Member made a remark yesterday that God helps those who help themselves. This is a similar case. It is quite up to the Government to help those who help themselves."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"In that view I have no quarrel. It was necessary to make a few remarks because it was said that the Government might show sympathy but not give help. Now that it has been explained by him, it is all right. Coming to the subject of the resolution the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar has been good enough to tell us that some experiments are being started in some of the districts of the Presidency with the co-operation of the Registrar of the Co-operative Societies, that the sum of Rs. 72,000 which has been provided would be enough and that this sum of Rs. 20,000 asked for by the Hon'ble Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar would not go a long way in solving the problem, if it is to be applied to doubt a very important question and involves considerable expenditure of money if it is to be worked in a satisfactory manner? The few experiments which are proposed to be made with the allotment of Rs. 72,000 will not go a long way in relieving the distressed condition of the weavers in various districts of the Presidency. It is true that the Rs. 20,000 asked for might not take us a long way; but may I ask if it will not to some extent improve the condition of the weaving industry and add to the help already given by the Government in that direction? As pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar, there is no need whatever for cutting short was provided in the revised estimate but in the budget only Rs. 72,000. When we are all satisfied that it is necessary and feasible to make headway in the matter of improving this industry, I would request the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar to consider if it is not possible to increase the provision made for the purpose. If it was Rs. 90,000 last year, it must be possible to spend such an amount this year. The Rs. 20,000 asked for is a very modest sum; and there should be no difficulty whatever in finding that sum."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"Your Excellency, I intervene because I think the Council is wasting its time so seriously. The only question is whether this sum of Rs. 20,000 is to be added. The argument used by the last speaker is that last year there was a larger sum. The Honourable Member is mistaken in that assumption. The provision last year was not for this purpose. Rupees 45,000 was intended for the Pencil factory which is no longer a Government factory and the provision this year is separate from that provision last year. The provision for the particular purpose is larger than in last year. Rupees 50,000 was allotted last year; this year is Rs. 72,000. There is really no issue before the Council except whether we should add Rs. 20,000. We know the Director of Industries has asked for Rs. 50,000 and he has been given that money."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"Your Excellency, as pointed out by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Narasimha Ayyar, my object was to bring up the figure to the

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar; Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

Rs. 92,000 which was the amount spent last year. Even in spite of the explanation given by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew, if I persist in asking for this Rs. 20,000, it is because if I asked for more, the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar might have come forward and said that I had asked for too big a sum. If I had asked for a small sum he would say I have asked for too small a sum and it will not go a long way. My main idea is to have the last year's figures. I should really be willing to ask for another Rs. 5 lakhs for the industry of handloom weaving so that it may take an equal place with the manufacture of soaps. As regards the actual figure that has been asked for, and not as regards the exception which the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser took to the reasonableness of Government help in this matter, I believe much has been said already. And I wish to say that inasmuch as this goes a long way to meet the public demand and public necessity—this industry really serves a public purpose—the public have every reason to ask for and expect the Government to interfere in this matter. As the Industrial Commission has pointed out, the industry should be helped by a responsible government, a government which has the best interests of the people of the country at heart. I am glad that the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser has been doing something in that direction. I only wish something more might be done by the Government themselves in this matter. I should certainly be glad also to see independently private people also had moved in that direction. If Rs. 70,000 can go some way, another 25 per cent of it will go, at least one-fourth of that extent more. The sum I have asked for is not a big sum. The Government can show their real interest in the matter by providing an additional sum and starting the experiment in southern districts preferably as put by the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar in the Salem district. With these few words I request the acceptance of this resolution by the Council."

The resolution was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar asked for a poll which was taken with the result that 14 voted for and 21 against the resolution. The following was the result of the division:—

For	Against
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. Ramachandra Rao.	The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.
" Mr. P. Siva Rao.	" Mr. L. Davidson.
" Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar.	" Mr. A. Y. G. Campbell.
" Mr. K. Sadasiva Bhat.	" Mr. C. G. Todhunter.
" Diwan Bahadur K. R. Suryanarayana-murti Nayudu.	" Diwan Bahadur K. Ramachandra Rao.
" Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju.	" Mr. M. Young.
" Diwan Bahadur A. Subbarayalu Reddiyar.	" Mr. L. E. Buckley.
" Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar.	" Mr. N. E. Marjoribanks.
" Yaqub Hasan Sahib.	" Mr. R. B. Wood.
" Mr. A. Suryanarayana Rao.	" Aziz-ud-din Sahib.
" Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.	" Mr. T. Richmond.
" Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.	" Sir Fairless Barber.
" Mr. A. T. G. M. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.	" Sir Gordon Fraser.
" Mr. K. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar.	" Mr. J. H. Thonger.
	" the Rev. J. Aelen.
	" Mr. R. Littlehales.
	" Mr. W. Hutton.
	" Mr. W. J. J. Howley.
	" the Advocate-General.
	" Diwan Bahadur P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
	" Mr. H. G. Stokes.

RESOLUTION RE REDUCTION OF PROVISION FOR SALARY FOR THE DIRECTOR OF CIVIL SUPPLIES.

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I beg to move—

'XLVII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the provision of Rs. 78,600 for the Director of Civil Supplies under the head '26-BI.' be reduced to Rs. 39,300 and the department be abolished in the course of six months.'

"Your Excellency, this office was created, as Honourable Members are aware, to meet the economic situation that had arisen owing to four main causes. The first cause was that the Military Department purchased large quantities of grain and other commodities, and that naturally according to the law of demand and supply increased the prices of the grains most commonly used. The second cause was that the shipping facilities were curtailed and the goods and necessities of life, like piece-goods and other things, could not be brought over to India in sufficient quantities. The third cause was that the manufacturing resources that we had in this country were most of them utilized for producing military requirements. The fourth cause, and that was the most aggravating cause, was that the railway rolling-stock in India were taken away out of this country for the purpose of the war. Now that the war has ended, most of these causes which contributed to the acute economic situation are gradually disappearing. The first cause, the purchase of grain and other commodities by the Military Department, is disappearing very rapidly. Their purchases are being very much reduced and in the course of the next few months they will be reduced altogether. The second cause is about shipping facilities; now more tonnage is available to carry goods from here and also bring goods from Great Britain and other countries to India. The third cause is also disappearing, that is to say, the cloth mills and other manufacturing industries which were so far engaged in producing military requirements are now coming to the end of the military orders and are going back to their normal condition of manufacture. As for the fourth cause, that is to say, the difficulty that has arisen owing to the depletion of the rolling-stock, it is for the Government to say when that cause is likely to be removed. Now that the war is over and the enemy is laid by the heel for ever, it is time that the rolling-stock and the wagons and other material that were taken out of the country should be brought back. Their detention in Mesopotamia or elsewhere cannot any longer be considered necessary for the purpose of the war. This, as I pointed out, was the main cause of the situation that had arisen, and when the Director of the Civil Supplies was appointed it was said that it was done in order to secure the best possible use of the railways at the present time. So if the rolling-stock is brought back or other railway stock is manufactured to take its place, that difficulty can be got over. Of course, that will take some time, but I do not think it will take such time as to retain this department throughout the whole year.

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; Sir Alexander Cardew.) [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"Even if this rolling-stock is not available, I do not see the necessity for this department to remain in existence simply to regulate the railway traffic. Though the regulation of railway traffic was the main reason, it was also anticipated that this appointment of the Director of Civil Supplies would relieve the trouble and miseries that were being felt on account of the want of sufficient supplies and also on account of the high prices that were being asked for the small supply that was available. I do not wish to enter into the question whether the creation of this department has brought any relief. Of course by arranging the easy transport of food-grains from one place to another and giving priority to the more necessary things over the less necessary things the prices might have been brought down to some extent. But after the war is over, there is no need for taking any special method to control the prices. The control over prices was never done even by the indirect means; the bringing about of a reduction of prices has not been done as it should have been done. The control of prices was not allowed to be taken in hand, as was suggested by the Indian public and the press. I do not wish to enter into that question. In my opinion this department is no longer necessary, but of course it should not be brought to an abrupt close. For a few months it may be retained. I have suggested that the amount should be only reduced to a half so that the department may remain for six months more, say, up to the end of September. Owing to the partial failure of the monsoon the crops are expected to be very much reduced and that will also bring about an acute situation. But to meet that situation the remedy lies elsewhere. That remedy cannot be found in this department. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar said, in giving information to a question put by some other Honourable Member, that this department will have to take this matter in hand and cope with it. I do not think this department can do that. Its past experience has shown us that it is not in a position to grapple with the situation that the failure of crops will bring about. And now there has been a change in the personnel of the Director also and the gentleman who was carrying on these operations has been transferred to a higher place and the experience that he had gained in this department is no longer available and somebody else will be placed in this department; that is also one good reason for not keeping this department for more than six months. With these few remarks, I ask Your Excellency to accept this resolution."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"Your Excellency, the Honourable Member referred us to four causes which he said had affected the economic situation during the war. But two of these causes are still in operation, namely, the deficiency in steamers and the deficiency in rolling-stock. How soon we shall get an adequate supply of tonnage I do not know. I do not think any one can foretell that, but it must be remembered that there are a very large number of troops to be moved from Europe to America, from Europe to Australia, from Egypt to India and to England and to move millions of men of that sort must continue to occupy the tonnage for a considerable number of months. How long none of us know."

"As regards the rolling-stock, the supply of rolling-stock for railways cannot be replaced even within a year after the cessation of hostilities. It must take much longer than that to bring the rolling-stock up to the standard which it possessed before the war. For four years the supplies have been cut short and the rolling-stock has deteriorated and worn out. It is not merely that rolling-stock had been taken away to Palestine and Mesopotamia, but it has worn out. That the rolling-stock taken away to Egypt, Palestine and Mesopotamia will be brought back to India, I imagine, is impossible. It must be retained for strategical reasons. Peace is not declared and there are still great difficulties."

"Apart from this difficulty we have an added reason—the season. I suppose the Honourable Member who has moved this resolution does not doubt the serious economic state of the Presidency. We are in a much more serious economic position than when we created the post of Director of Civil Supplies. Owing to the failure of the first monsoon and the late character and unsatisfactory distribution of the second monsoon, our crops are worse than before. What we shall get in the course of the next twelve months no one can say. Whether the monsoon will be favourable and will relieve our necessity or whether it will be scanty and will lead to a continuance of the present stringency no one can tell. But we do know that at present prices are unfortunately not going down and are rising. The object for which the Director of Civil Supplies is employed is to try and prevent it from going beyond all limits. It is a question whether or not there is any use in having a Director for this purpose, but the Collectors of the districts seem to be generally of the opinion that we should retain this measure of control. I happened to see the reports from the Collectors a fortnight ago and it is rather curious to find a Collector writing thus:—

[7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Sir Alexander Cardew ; Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar ; Mr Yaqub Hasan.)

"The price of the new paddy rose alarmingly between the 13th and 20th from Rs. 66 to Rs. 72 as against last year's price in the same week of about Rs. 55. The rise appears to be due partly to the action of foreign merchants buying up stocks in the expectation that all export restrictions will sooner or later be broken down, partly to the fact that the ryots also are hoping for this and holding up stocks."

"In other words the restriction on the movement of grain acts as a deterrent on the speculative purchase and holding of grain. For that purpose we do want a Director."

"There is one other point which the Honourable Member who moved the resolution has failed to notice, that is, we are not paying for him. The Government of India are paying for him. He was appointed on their initiative. If the Honourable Member will look into the Amended Draft Financial Statement at page 57* he will find 'assignment towards the cost of the Provincial Director of Civil Supplies,' Rs. 50,000 in the revised estimate and Rs. 79,000 in the budget estimate. So that we are not paying for him. We employ this officer under the orders of the Government of India and till they make up their mind to abandon this system of control, we cannot do anything. As it does not cost us anything from the Provincial funds, the Council may leave the entry in the budget as it is."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBİ MARAKKAYAR:—"In my opinion the control of foodstuffs must continue for some time. In the supply of wagons to bona fide merchants I know from personal experience a good deal of malpractice is played. Had it not been for the establishment of the Director of Civil Supplies and controlling the despatch of food-grains from this Presidency to other countries such as Ceylon and the Straits Settlements, I am sure that a good deal of looting would have taken place and the people and the poor ryots would have undergone great hardship in paying the high rate of prices for their foodstuffs. The control by the Director of Civil Supplies has not only put down the price of rice but also put down the excessive profits made by the merchants. He has put down the freight from Rs. 42 to Rs. 28 per ton to-day and also prevented the price of local paddy from being unduly increased. I therefore consider that in the interests of the subjects of Your Excellency's Government the office of the Controller of Food Supplies is necessary. If a highly paid officer, an able officer like Mr. Wood, cannot be spared, some less paid officer may be appointed and the control must be continued for some time. It is then and then alone that the malpractice that was played by the merchants can be put down. Of course, I am a merchant; I do not mind if I get 3 or 4 rupees profit per bag for myself if allowed. I only get 8 annas a bag as controlled. I wish that such control is exercised by the Government both over Indian and English merchants; otherwise the people will undergo a great deal of hardship."

"One other matter I wish to take this opportunity of explaining to the Council. At a meeting held at Negapatam on the representation made by the railway workshop coolies signed by four or five thousand people headed by Mr V. P. Pakirswami Pillai of the Emergency Committee, of which I am a member, they are strongly pressing the importation of paddy to this place. Until Burma paddy is imported the price of the local paddy will not go down. As the conditions and rules and regulations laid down by the Director of Civil Supplies are not so hard, they will continue to do the malpractice of increasing the prices. The condition is that if anybody goes against the rules and regulations and sells the rice at an excess profit his licence will be refused and his priority certificate will be stopped. These people can get on without it. So there is a likelihood of fraud being committed. So if I am in order, I should take this opportunity of appealing to Your Excellency's Government to make the necessary arrangement to import as much paddy as possible, as the people of this part rather like to import paddy from Burma and boil it here, rather than have the boiling done in Burma which is inferior. The boiling and milling is very cheap here. I strongly recommend that some step or other should be taken to import paddy from Burma. With these few words I beg to say that I am in favour of continuing the control of food supplies, I do not mean to say for years together but at least this year."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I was of course aware that the expenditure of this department was being met out of the Imperial funds. But if I see that a certain department is not necessary and should be done away with, the mere fact that this Government are not paying the expenses will not deter me from making that proposal. I have heard what the Hon'ble Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar has said. He has referred to the activities of the department in the past and he has paid a compliment to the department. We are dealing with the future of that department. In my opinion that department will not be necessary after six months. In the second place, that department is not competent to deal with the new situation that will arise out of the failure of the monsoon. As for the remark made by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew that the prices instead of decreasing are increasing, that is true only in respect of grain. It is not true in respect of other materials. In respect of cloths

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; 7TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Sir Alexander Cardew ; Mr. Todhunter ;
Mr. Davidson ; the President ; Mr. Rama Ayyangar.)

for example the prices are bound to go down in future. If it is said that steamers are wanted for transport of men and materials between the United Kingdom and Australia and between Egypt and other places and they may not be available for trade, yet the fact is that freight is going down day by day. The homeward freight has decreased considerably during the last few weeks and I understand that outward freights are also coming down in the United Kingdom. So later on facilities are bound to be more and as far as steam ships are concerned there need be no fear that freight is not likely to go down. After all this department is not concerned with steamer freight. It is only railway traffic regulation that it is concerned with. Of course, the rolling-stock will not be replenished for some time. We can see that. But to regulate merely railway traffic I do not think that the whole department should be retained for that purpose. That can be done at less cost. The difficulty is, if the department is retained, you will put upon it the burden of a task which it is not competent to carry and, if this department is abolished, some other department will be able to attend to it more efficiently. That is also one of the reasons why I made this proposal."

The resolution was put to the Council and lost.

XXII. & 29. Superannuations.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—" I beg to introduce the head 'Superannuations'."

XXIII. & 30. Stationery and Printing.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—" I introduce the head 'Stationery and Printing'."

XXV. & 32. Miscellaneous.

The Hon'ble Mr. C. G. TODHUNTER :—" I beg to introduce the head 'Miscellaneous'."

33. Famine Relief.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—" I introduce the head 'Famine Relief'."

XXIX. & 42. Irrigation—Major Works.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON :—" I introduce the head 'Irrigation—Major Works'."

XXX. & 43. Minor Works and Navigation.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON :—" I introduce the head 'Minor Works and Navigation'."

XXXI. & 45. Civil Works.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON :—" I introduce the head 'Civil Works'."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" After luncheon I propose to call upon the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar to move his resolution."

The Council then adjourned for a short interval.

RESOLUTION RE GRANTS-IN-AID FOR DISTRICT BOARDS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION AND IMPROVEMENT OF VILLAGE ROADS.

The Council re-assembled after the interval at 3 p.m.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—" Your Excellency, the resolution that I beg to move runs thus :—

'XLVIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 3,00,000 be provided to give grants-in-aid or total grants to the district boards for the construction and improvements of village roads and that the same be met by a corresponding reduction under the head "45-B".'

"My Lord, this resolution I propose to move only to bring to the notice of the Government a prior policy which had been adopted and which considerably worked to the advantage of the local boards in order to remind the Government to start the thing again after this period of stress is over with a view to give a real stimulus to the further construction of village roads. I have to take the Council back to the years 1911-12 and 1912-13. It will be found from a perusal of Table XVI attached to the Local Funds administration reports—which table has since been removed, the contents of the table being extracted in one of the paragraphs of the administration report itself—the previous reports contained in the table the number of miles of village road which existed at the beginning of the year, the number of miles of new roads constructed and the total expenditure. It will be found on a reference to the administration report of 1913-14, Statement XVI that about 5,681 miles of village roads existed at the commencement of the year; about 67 miles were newly constructed in that year. In the previous years 1912-13 and 1911-12 there were respectively 75 and 79 miles of new village roads constructed. The total outlay on village roads both on repairs and new roads amounted in 1911-12 to Rs. 4,42,000 and in 1912-13 to Rs. 4,73,000 and in 1913-14 to Rs. 4,62,000. Then what was done by this Government will be seen by a reference to the Finance Committee's reports. In each of the years 1914-15 and 1915-16 Rs. 3 lakhs were set apart for village roads and grants were made to the several boards and the effect of it could be seen by a reference to the reports of 1914-15 and 1915-16. In 1914-15 it will be found that actually 293 miles of roads were constructed. That appears again from Table XVI of the administration report for 1914-15 as against 67 in 1913-14 and 75 in 1912-13. The total expenditure on village roads on repairs and new roads ran up to Rupees 6,03,000 while it stood at Rs. 4,62,000 in the previous year. Previous to that it was only less. It can be also seen that in 1915-16 the total construction of new roads was 166 miles as against 67 or 79 miles in previous years, prior to the grants of 1914-15 and 1915-16 because these grants were made in 1913-14 and 1914-15; grants were made according to this budget of 1913-14, and they spent it in 1914-15 partly and in 1915-16 partly. In those two years we find that 293 and 166 miles of new roads were constructed. Since then owing to the stringency on account of war conditions we have not been able to earmark any money for this purpose and the effect of it is seen in the two subsequent reports. The last report I have is the one for 1916-17 which shows that the construction of new roads had gone down by about 80 miles. I find in paragraph 24, clause 2, of the administration report for the year 1916-17 that only 90 miles of new roads were constructed and the total expenditure on village roads reduced itself to Rs. 5,31,000 as against Rs. 5,89,000 in the previous year and as against Rs. 6,03,000 in the year 1914-15.

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar.)

"Therefore, my Lord, it clearly proves my case; statistics cannot err and they clearly prove that when a comparison of the money that has been given to the various local boards in these various years is made—in the present Amended Draft Financial Statement we find that this is brought out at page 11—grants given in aid of the resources of district boards and for roads and bridges were in 1913-14, 29.70 lakhs and in 1914-15, 29.75 lakhs; and they were subsequently reduced to 19 lakhs, 16 lakhs, etc. Of course in the present year and in the next year the proposal to expend this extra money on trunk roads is a different matter. I am referring to this only to show that when impetus was given by the Government to this matter in 1913-14 and 1914-15 from 40 miles of new roads constructed we ran to 293 and the next year it was 166. Subsequently it has gone down. Of course the financial condition necessitated this being limited to as small as 40 miles. But our conditions this year show that we have chosen to spend about 90 lakhs and odd more than last year and the expenditure is much more than what we had in 1913-14. Therefore I only remind the Government of this with a view to continue the policy which was adopted when affairs were favourable.

"As I have shown the total mileage of village roads now comes only to about 6,000 for about 52,000 villages. If we remove 2,000 villages for municipal towns and taluk board areas, for 50,000 villages we have got 6,000 miles of village roads. I do not say that it should take a very prominent part in the budget, but I do want that this should be recognized and attention paid to it. In fact I know from the experience of district board budgets that without aid from the Government they are not able to provide for the construction of new village roads ordinarily. Even when the Government made a grant of Rs. 3 lakhs each year for two years the question was raised by the district board engineer that the maintenance of these roads would fall upon the district board later and therefore they would prefer not to spend the money on new village roads but would add it on to the usual expenditure on the existing roads. This attempt was got over after a considerable fight on the part of the district boards and it was explained that part of their duty would be to improve the condition of villages and therefore in 1914-15 and 1915-16 though the grants to the Presidency were Rs. 3 lakhs, apparently the rise was only Rs. 1,45,000 in the expenditure, showing that out of the 3 lakhs granted about 1½ lakhs was utilized in getting the previous village roads into order. That is the result of an examination of the figures for the last six or seven years. Therefore, my Lord, my submission is that it is a matter in which unless the Government continue the policy, the tendency of the district boards will be to spend it on the existing roads and not to add to the cost of the maintenance of further mileage of roads.

"I am one of those who would like to press upon the Government the necessity to place as little restriction as possible in making grants to district boards. But while that principle exists, it is necessary for the Provincial Government to see that utilization is made of Provincial funds to improve the condition of the whole area in the Presidency. The ryots who are most concerned and whose money very largely goes to the pocket of the Provincial finance mostly live in the rural areas and they do suffer and everybody knows that they have to walk through ridges of fields in country parts and they have to wade through long distance of water in the rainy season. In these circumstances I only submit that it lies as a specific duty on the Provincial Government to see that as many of these roads as possible are constructed newly, the district boards taking of course the responsibility of maintaining them later on, as in the years 1914-15 and 1915-16 when, as I showed, they ran up from 50 miles to 293 and 166 miles. It was only because subsequently grants were not added, the total expenditure fell down and the number of new roads also fell down. Therefore the principle ought to be continued, and, my Lord, I press upon the Government this duty that the rural areas ought also to be benefited and when we are adding to our expenditure now for various reasons, it is only very proper that at least Rs. 3 lakhs should be ear-marked. My proposition relating to rural sanitary parties was open to so many objections and has not had the good fortune to be accepted. But this one at least will directly benefit the rural areas and it is not a matter in which we can afford to keep quiet. I request that this 3 lakhs may be provided for the construction of village roads. I have no objection if even a condition is added 'for new village roads.' Unless the Provincial Government take the whole responsibility, the boards would not extend the village communications. The natural tendency, as I have explained by the figures, is to spend money on the already existing roads. Therefore I submit that the matter may be given the full consideration that it deserves and the masses of rural areas may be allowed to benefit by some contribution which necessarily must benefit them. In the case of taluk boards they have some roads which they keep up and their funds are fairly sufficient, and the rural areas, where more than 70 per cent of the people live, do not get any benefit from roads except by way of trunk roads and other roads leading to towns. It is only right that they should be encouraged as much as possible. With all that an eye should be kept for the development of the policy which was started and which has substantially succeeded and which shows that the rural areas have benefited in the two years by grants which enabled us to have 460 miles more, whereas the average prior construction would have been only 80 miles. Therefore it is only very proper that the money should be ear-marked for that purpose and that village communications should be pushed forward as much as possible. I hope the Honourable Member in charge will start in right earnest and I have not the slightest doubt that if he begins to apply himself he will see that it is pushed through with the greatest possible speed. I press the resolution for the acceptance of the Council."

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.) [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"Your Excellency, to emphasise the importance of the construction of new village roads and also take up the suggestion let fall by my Honourable friend Mr. Rama Ayyangar in his opening, I propose to omit the words 'and improvements' in line 3 so as to earmark the money for the construction of village roads, and that the district boards may not claim this money for improving the existing village roads. I think this subject is of vast importance and I dare say the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar in his frequent tours into the interior of the Presidency, especially in the deltaic tracts, has witnessed the serious difficulties which the people living in the village parts are put to in having to do their necessary duties, in transhipping their grain from place to place. It is really a great difficulty and in order to draw the prominent attention of district boards to this primary duty on their part, I think if a separate head under village roads is maintained the controlling authority here will keep an eye whether they are dealing with it and pushing it on; whereas if this gets mixed up with the trunk roads the controlling authorities will not have an opportunity to see whether the district boards are performing their duty in this direction or not. I quite appreciate the position of the Government that these local authorities should be left to themselves in the management of their own affairs. That is the answer which I expect the Honourable Member is going to give in respect of this resolution."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"What is it, please?"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"That the local authorities should be left to manage their affairs and the central Government should not ear-mark it. I know he gave me this answer in the Finance Committee. While we appreciate that position, I appreciate also control and control from outside is also necessary even for the most self-governing subject. There must be some central controlling authority and they must keep an eye on this for certain purposes. That only shows that we realize the importance of this subject and, as has been pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar when we did ear-mark money for two years, the district boards showed signs of improvement and made more miles of new roads whereas they have now gone back. I remember that my honourable friend Mr. Siva Rao wanted to omit the reference to village roads in the heading in the Finance Committee. I do not know why he suggested that, I think it is very important indeed that some money should be ear-marked for this purpose so that the district boards and taluk boards may be induced to spend money in that direction. If that is done, applications will come pouring in for grants and the Honourable Member will find it difficult to make the distribution. There is one thing which we must remember. It is human nature; most of these district board members come from taluk boards and the difficulties in those roads attract more attention than village roads. I do not mean any reflection on district board members when I say that very few people go actually from the villages to the district board meetings. I therefore think that prominent attention should be drawn to this aspect of the question. The policy was wise and it should be kept up. I strongly press this resolution on the Government for acceptance."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"I think it is better that the Hon'ble Mr. Suryanarayana Rao who has given notice of a similar resolution should speak before I reply."

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Suryanarayana Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO :—"I have no objection. My resolution is with regard to the Vizagapatam District Board. It runs thus :—

'LV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of 1 lakh be added under 45. CIVIL WORKS for granting to Vizagapatam District Board for village communication and the corresponding sum be reduced under the sum of unallotted expenditure.'

"In the first edition of the budget nothing was provided for village communications. In the revised budget estimate I noticed that Rs. 46,900 has been provided. When I sent in that resolution I had no idea that Rs. 46,900 has been provided, but now I do notice it and my request is only that it should be rounded off to one lakh."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"Is it for village roads or is it the 13 lakhs distribution next year?"

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO :—"I ask for one lakh for the Vizagapatam District Board. The difficulty in this matter seems to be that under the Government Order issued by the Madras Government to district boards the boards were asked and they did not know exactly when the money was to be spent and there was some misapprehension in the mind of the Vizagapatam District Board President; hence he did not ask for the full amount. I know of the Vizagapatam District Board President; hence he did not ask for the full amount. I know one lakh is wanted, and in distributing the unallotted amount I would request that one lakh may be distributed to Vizagapatam. My resolution refers to village communications. Village communications are in a very bad condition and there are several roads to be opened and one lakh is not too much. Therefore I pray that the amount asked for in this resolution may be given. I appeal to the Government to give that one lakh."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"Your Excellency, the Honourable Member has raised a definite issue of policy in regard to these grants. We may as well deal with it and decide once for all whether in making these grants for communications we would be well advised in saying how much money should be spent on village roads and how much of it on what are called main roads. That is the point which he has urged and it is well to meet that point of view. He has been supported in that by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar, the ground being that unless that is done the local body will not pay that adequate attention to village communications which they deserve. It seems to me it is a rather severe indictment of local self-government to say that local bodies cannot be trusted with a free hand in regard to these sums that you may be able to spare for the development of their communications, and that you should tell them how much of that money should be spent on village communications and how much upon other communications. It may be that in some of the districts village communications may need more expenditure than other communications. In others the reverse may be the case. One would think that this is one of those things which we might leave to the local bodies, contenting ourselves with giving as much money as we can spare, and placing it at their disposal, leaving it to them to settle the distribution without earmarking it in advance. Personally I have never disguised my view that earmarking our help in so many ways is injurious to the development of local self-government. I would rather give them lump allotments and leave them to spend the money themselves. That appears to me to be the correct policy. They will have to judge the requirements of the different departments with reference to the circumstances of each locality, but that probably is a thing which we cannot aspire to just now."

"Now we have got a grant for that purpose, what is called the 14 lakhs grant which has now been stereotyped into 17 lakhs. That is a fixed recurring grant made to the district boards in aid of their resources generally. Personally I think the most satisfactory course will be, if they can spend the money, to give them as much as possible to their general resources leaving them to settle the details as to whether they should spend the money on this or that. Then comes the grant which is generally not fixed, 5 lakhs which is called a grant 'for village and other roads.' Originally it was called 'village roads' and afterwards we put in other roads. That 5 lakhs grant is really intended for the poorer district boards. When this old scheme of 14 lakhs was stereotyped, every board got a grant from us, a certain percentage of what they collected, with the result that the well-to-do boards got a percentage on what they collected which was generally much more than what the poorer district boards could get. The boards which were poor got poor help. It is to correct that, that this 5 lakhs grant has been started and is being utilized. The Honourable Members would see this distribution of 5 lakhs in 1917-18 and 1918-19. The distribution which is provisionally proposed for 1919-20 confines it to eight districts of which four are undoubtedly poor, Anantapur, Bellary, Cuddapah and Kurnool. Two of them get Rs. 80,000 each and two Rs. 90,000 each. I should be glad to know if there is any difference on this point that these are undoubtedly the poorest of our district boards. The district boards in the Ceded districts do require some help because their stereotyped share in the 14 lakhs grant is comparatively small, Bellary gets Rs. 35,100, Cuddapah 37,000, Kurnool 41,000 and Anantapur 26,000. It is to redress the inequality which is incidental to the stereotyping of that 14 lakhs grant or the 17 lakhs that this 5 lakhs is utilized. I propose in the next budget to put the thing on proper footing by calling this 5 lakhs, as specifically intended to help the poorer district boards. It is true that there are four other boards which are getting help from the 5 lakhs grant, namely, Salem, Nellore, Chittoor and Chingleput. They get Rs. 40,000 each. I think I am right in claiming that next to those poor district boards of the Ceded districts if you take another group of poor districts these will be the districts. If you are going to increase the allotment under this sum by bringing up other district boards, that will tend to obliterate the distinction which we draw between those which require more help and those who require less help, and the former will not receive the help that we want to give them because on account of their poor collections they get a poor share of the 14 lakhs grant.

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Siva Rao; Mr. Krishna Rao.) [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"You will also probably find that to give a definition of village roads and to make it work and enable us to control the expenditure in the way which is contemplated is extremely difficult. My own opinion is it will be a wise policy when we have money to give to local bodies—to give it to them for general purposes. If you want to stereotype it for particular purposes, stereotype particular heads, so much for education, so much for sanitation, so much for communications or bridges and culverts: that is intelligible. You had better not draw a distinction between village and other roads. So far as 1919-20 is concerned, the Government are not in a position to increase the grants already made for the local bodies. We have worked it out as far as we can go, and we have done what we could do. What we can do is in the distribution of the allotment already made. We shall not be in a position to give an extra amount of Rs. 3 lakhs and call it grants for village roads.

"In regard to the Vizagapatam District Board the Hon'ble Mr. Suryanarayana Rao referred to another matter in the distribution of 13 lakhs already made. This 13 lakhs had to be distributed in a particular way with reference to the reports we received from the districts as to how much of it they could spend within the year. I recognize that the distribution has been somewhat unequal on that account. But there are 6 more lakhs to be distributed this year and 7 lakhs next year and in making that distribution we will attempt to equalise, so that all the boards will feel that they have been treated with a reasonable amount of fairness. For these reasons I am not able to accept either resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I had no idea originally to take part in the discussion. But the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar referred to me and to the part I took in the Finance Committee and to my objection to these grants being described as for village and other roads. I do not know whether we could explain what we did in the Finance Committee; I may say that the discussion arose in this way. Out of the 5 lakhs granted to the poorer district boards, eight of them, the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar wanted that 3 lakhs should be earmarked for village roads. Then it was properly objected to by me that unless they were prepared to earmark the 17 lakhs for village roads or any other purpose there was no good of earmarking the five lakhs grant for these village roads and that fetters should not be placed on the discretion of the district boards and they should be left to spend the money as they liked. I have several times explained to the Council the origin of the 5 lakhs grant. The poorer district boards were not getting very much advantage from this 17 lakhs Imperial grant when it used to be distributed on the one-fourth basis and the inequitable nature of that distribution struck me when I came to the Council and I brought it to the notice of the Government and the Government promised to consider it and to revise the distribution. They did so in the revised estimate of 1917-18. They thought that the Imperial grant of 17 lakhs should be left intact, but out of the provincial funds something should be granted to the poorer district boards for the purpose of roads. That is the history of the origin of the 5 lakhs grant. The same grant is repeated in 1918-19 and is proposed to be retained in the budget for the coming year as well. When the 5 lakhs grant was intended to be earmarked for village purposes I did not know what the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar meant, whether anything out of the 5 lakhs should be reserved for village roads throughout the Presidency. I understood him to say that a portion of this, namely 3 lakhs should be earmarked for village roads, and I objected that as the 17 lakhs was not earmarked it was unnecessary to earmark these grants for this special purpose.

"As for the resolution on paper it is a harmless thing. It is only a question of funds. We have 13 lakhs grant this year, and if funds permit, it is quite open to the Government to make any grant for the improvement of village communications. As for the 5 lakhs let it not be earmarked for any purpose."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Though I find it difficult to agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar and the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar in regard to some of their observations, so far as the main object of the resolution is concerned, that of adding three more lakhs for the improvement of village communications, I have no quarrel whatever provided the money at our disposal will permit us to make such an allotment. I think it is necessary to remove a certain impression which might have been created that the district boards have not been alive to the improvement of village roads. I believe it is not fair to judge of the results achieved in the matter of improvement in the village roads by looking at the gradual increase in the construction of new roads or otherwise. The fact is that the normal expenditure of these district boards has been increasing out of proportion to their revenues. That has been the real stumbling block, not that they are not alive to the importance of village communications. If you only go carefully through the budgets they have been submitting to the Government, you will see that they have been finding it difficult to make both ends meet and to maintain the minimum balance. It may be remembered that in most of these districts there have been roads to the extent of thousands of miles. You will find from statement III (c) appended to the administration report that several of these taluk and district boards have to maintain roads of 1,500 miles, 1,000 miles and so forth. It is known that of late the cost of maintenance has increased beyond all bounds. If only you examine the schedule of rates published by the Local Fund department—not even the Public Works department—you will find that it has been found necessary to increase the expenditure under every possible item. If you have got thousands of miles of roads in these district boards, it is necessary to spend much larger sums of money, sometimes double and sometimes treble. Is it possible to expect that these district boards can neglect the roads already in existence and take up village roads? I do not know if there is any one who can urge the policy of neglecting the roads already in existence. That is, so far as I have been able to understand, the real difficulty which has been facing these district boards.

[7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Krishna Rao; Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

"There is an impression which seems to have been created by the remarks of the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar that possibly the district board members who own motor-cars might only think of the big roads and not the others. I do not know much of the conditions in other districts. But so far as the Nellore district is concerned, there is not even one member in the mufassal who owns a motor-car. Even the divisional officers come in rickety jukkas or bullock carts. It is quite clear that they themselves know the difficulty of these village roads; but still they find it difficult to make adequate provision for village roads."

"I may point out that Nellore is one of the districts which have had the benefit of this grant. But for the discretion given in that order that this money may be spent on village and other communications, it would not have been possible to utilize it to any appreciable extent. So far as the grant is concerned, every one is anxious to utilize it fully on village roads; but when once you take up new roads, the question of acquisition and of alignment comes up, which must cause delay. The question will arise whether we should allow the money to lie idle. One would naturally come to the conclusion that it is better not to let it lie idle but spend it on the maintenance of the existing roads or on some other important roads. For village roads the acquisition and the alignment will take some time. I believe the Government are therefore freely giving some sort of discretion to the district boards by not earmarking the money for village roads but allowing it for 'village and other communications.' It is true that they draw pointed attention to the fact that village communications should be improved; but they give them some discretion so that they need not look up the money, if they cannot use it for that purpose. Therefore while supporting the objects underlying these two resolutions, namely providing 3 lakhs for this purpose and 1 lakh for Vizagapatam, I agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar in saying that it is not desirable to earmark this for particular items. It is always desirable in the interests of local self-government to give the local bodies a free hand in the matter. If we ask the Government to fetter their discretion and to prevent them from dealing with it as they please, I believe we will be running counter to the various reforms we have been introducing from time to time."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I wish just to say a word. The whole discussion seems to have turned on the question of earmarking or not earmarking a particular grant. I am afraid the main issue raised by this resolution has been entirely lost sight of in this bye-discussion, if I may so call it. The Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar wants an additional grant of 3 lakhs for the improvement of village communications. In this Council I have as often as I could, pleaded and put forward the importance of improving the village roads and extending them as early as possible in almost all the districts which show such a poor state of village communication. Village communication particularly in an entirely agricultural province like ours means more than mere communications for people to go up and down. It affects the value that the marketable produce gets. The market depends upon the state of the village roads, and the tax-payer has a right to expect the Government to provide money for village roads being kept as efficiently as possible. The contribution to village roads means very much more than what it means in other countries."

"As regards this important question, I am sorry that the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar has said that the Government cannot possibly go any further. I should very much like, if there is any possibility, they should consider the matter deeply, review their decision and see that something more is provided on behalf of village communications so that the retrogression that has been pointed out in the progress of village roads by the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar might not continue and some real attempt might be made by the local boards to improve village roads and maintain them in a better condition than what they were three or four years ago."

"As to the principle of earmarking I think so long as the Government can think of earmarking for communications, it is no greater vice, no greater sin to earmark it for village communications particularly seeing the absolutely hopeless condition of village communications in an entirely agricultural province like ours. I am one of those who feel convinced that the Government will be doing their duty, not only to themselves but also their duty towards efficient communication, as the central power is expected to do by earmarking money for village communications. With these words, I strongly commend this resolution to the earnest consideration of the Council."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, I think it is better not to debate under cover of this resolution the question whether there should be any earmarking in favour of village roads or not. It seems to me it is far better to deal with the main question whether some more money should be put under communications. There are considerations either way and it will take far too long a time to set out all these considerations; and I trust that any vote that may be taken on this resolution should not be regarded as decisive of this question. As regards the question whether any further money should be spared for the purpose—that is the only question that should be properly considered as having been debated in this resolution—we have had the statement of the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar that the Government are not in a position to find more funds."

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.
the President; Mr. Rama Ayyangar.]

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"We are not in a position to give more money than what we have already provided to the local boards in the next year. The issue is the issue raised in the resolution and not the issue raised in the speeches. The Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar raised the issue, and I answered it. The resolution runs thus: 'that a sum of Rs. 3,00,000 be provided to give grants-in-aid or total grants to the district boards for the construction and improvement of village roads'. The answer is we have not got the money to give."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"We are now on the general question whether any portion of the grant should be earmarked for the particular purpose of village roads. My Honourable Friend wanted to give the Government an idea as to why he is asking for 3 lakhs more, and that is, in his view it will be usefully spent by the district board for the purpose mentioned by him. The broad general question whether any grants should be earmarked for this or that purpose is full of complications. It is only yesterday that my Honourable Friend while agreeing to devote one lakh for the relief of congestion in the deltaic tracts told us that it was specially earmarked for that purpose and he accompanied it with a condition that it should be spent during the year and that it would lapse if not spent within the year. These are all restrictions on the liberty of action of the district boards. I see the difficulties either way, and I have a great deal to say on that, but I venture to think this is not the occasion on which to debate this point. If the Honourable Member would find some more money for the purpose and not necessarily earmark it, we shall be satisfied. In this year the Government were good enough to give us 20 lakhs for the improvement of main communications. We have also an additional grant of 6 lakhs for the same purpose next year in addition to our usual grant of 17 lakhs and besides the 5 lakhs grant. These are all very good disposals of monies for the improvement of communications. If we can comply with the Honourable Member's request it is all that is required. I do not wish to raise the general question."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman need be under no misapprehension. The question has been raised and discussed. So far as the decision of the Council is concerned they can only decide the question raised in this resolution."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"If that is so, the resolution is that 3 lakhs more are required for a particular purpose. There is no question of earmarking."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"It says 'for village roads'."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I should have been very sorry if I had no opportunity to reply. Very cleverly the Honourable Member in charge raised an irrelevant issue and apparently made us all fight here. The question whether the 15 lakhs or 17 lakh grant was given to aid the general resources of boards is one which ought to include others is a point which cannot now be settled. I dare say he has gone through the records. I can tell the Honourable Member that it is a grant that was made in 1914 and since then it was to aid the general resources of the boards, because it was expressly found that as they then stood they could not get on without a deficit balance and they wanted it. The Honourable Member has scrutinized the budgets and he cannot say without that they could live as district boards. That is not relevant to this matter at all, nor was so much money distributed by the Government on the principle of non-earmarking. On the other hand it was earmarked as this 'in aid of the general resources of district boards'. To call it non-earmarked is not proper. I may also add, you have been giving sanitary grants, education grants and other grants. In all these you have earmarked them particularly all through. That is the first issue raised."

"I have to add one more point. This Government have not added to it by more than 1½ lakhs because of the peculiar stand taken by this Government, that in the case of particular district boards when they just added on to their taxation the road-cess they would be given equal grants and they added to that extent to the general resources by 175 lakhs to Malabar and South Kanara. If that is taken off, in aid of general resources this Government have only to add the general resources of district boards."

"The second point about 5 lakhs is absolutely a point that has been newly started, and it has been taken to aid the poorer district boards. To bring that in as a question here is absolutely irrelevant. It is not a matter which the Government are prepared to give all district boards. It was given to the poorer district boards which could not exist without this. It was discussed for three years, and it was after the Honourable Member took charge; and he now persists in calling it provisional money which has to be distributed to them. That money is not placed at the disposal of the boards. That has therefore no relevancy at all. Then what have we given, 13 lakhs or 20 lakhs this year. That again was taken hold of about the close of the year and after three months' notice the people were asked whether they would spend it in the course of the year; if not it would be distributed as the Government pleased. We have taken

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar; the President;
Sir Alexander Cardew.)

objection to that. The distribution that has been going on is quite unfair. That is a matter that is not relevant either. All the 13 lakhs that was distributed will not be used for anything but those that have deteriorated for want of railway communications. That is earmarked. I do not know why this Government who are now so much pleading for not earmarking thought it fit to earmark this 20 lakhs and to say that they distributed it so that it should be spent on roads which had fallen into disrepair owing to too much traffic. Now for the purpose of my statement and that of the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar and for making other people talk of earmarking the matter has been started. My Lord, I do not think it is fair in that discussion. The next point is we have had 201 lakhs balance."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I must really ask the Honourable Gentleman to confine his remarks to the subject matter of this resolution. I have done my best to give an indulgence to all who have spoken on this matter, but there must be some consideration for rules and the convenience of Members which is founded on the rules and protected by the rules."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I am just explaining."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT (interrupting):—"The Honourable Gentleman has been explaining the whole time."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"Within the time allotted to me."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"He has been going over the ground already covered. He has been giving the ancient history with which he admitted that my Honourable Friend is well acquainted. That is at the expense of the time of the other Honourable Members. I am bound to ask him to stick to his resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I am quite willing to obey the chair, but I must submit that the point that I am taking is a point which raises the very question before us. I am only dwelling on the balances you have accumulated, 201 lakhs. In fact it is only this year we have been able to draw upon it and we are spending 74 lakhs out of it. We were spending before 100 lakhs."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman does not propose to take it out of the general balance or out of something else."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"The balance of 74 lakhs is included under this head. I am referring to the 74 lakhs included under this head. The other balance has been settled both by this Government and by the Government of India and I cannot go into it. Therefore we are asked when moving resolutions to propose reductions in the budget to explain how from this balance, money can be found for a proposition like this and to show that it is properly placed before the Council."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT (interrupting):—"I understand that no further reduction of the balance is in order."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"No further reduction of the balance is possible."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I admit it but—"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT (interrupting):—"That subject is not open to discussion. Will the Honourable Gentleman kindly follow the subject matter of the resolution?"

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"May I explain that the 74 lakhs taken out of the balances is included in the money provided for next year?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Does it come under the head 45-B?"

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"It does come under it."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Will the Honourable Gentleman continue?"

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"So far as this portion goes, my submission is that we are able to spend from our balances. I should have pointed out that this should have been distributed over 20 or 25 years to district boards for general purposes by gradually reducing the balances. We have got an extraordinary contingency to meet and we are reducing the balances. What I say now is when we have these balances, let us have a programme by which we will be able to improve village communications. This principle has been adopted by the Government and it has been found quite successful in bringing into existence 400 miles of new roads. I therefore only request in continuation of that policy to just give 3 lakhs for such purposes. That is my main point. Having created these local boards, district boards, taluk boards and unions which serve particular areas, areas which are absolutely unable to spend money on this in spite of their collecting all the revenue from their areas, we must see that they do not neglect their duty and they are not indifferent; but, it is known to all here and the Government know it definitely, they have no means otherwise even to keep themselves going. Therefore when we are giving further grants, while we are spending money on trunk roads, it will be very wise to have a small grant which will be distributed over a number of years which will be utilized for this purpose of communications in the villages where the masses live who contribute most of the money and most of the road-cess that is spent by the taluk boards and the district boards. The money will serve the masses properly. I only want, if it is 25 lakhs—I want you to give them 3 lakhs. It is said there is 20 lakhs and 5 lakhs here and the two together make 25 lakhs. Out of that give us 3 lakhs to help our villages. When it is earmarked for trunk roads and poorer district boards, it is necessary to earmark some of that money for village communications. It is a policy which was started and it is necessary it should be continued."

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar ; the President ;
Mr. Suryanarayana Rao ; Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.) [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

It was kept in abeyance owing to exceptional circumstances. The question of the boards being restricted in the disposal of the money does not arise because the boards go long as they want it for other needs will continue to expend it like that. It is only proper that it should be set apart. No apple of discord is thrown. The matter must be taken in the spirit in which it is placed before the Council, that the provincial funds must be made actually beneficial to the masses. It is a matter in which I feel strongly. I do not think I am wrong in saying that the villagers deserve protection from this Government to some extent. I am not claiming much. Out of an expenditure of 820 lakhs, I am only claiming 3 lakhs for this purpose, in a year in which non-recurring expenditure which is not obligatory comes up to 100 lakhs. I ask the Government to place 3 lakhs for this purpose. I think this resolution deserves favourable consideration."

The resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar was put to the Council and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar demanded a poll which was taken with the result that 15 voted for and 22 against the resolution. The following was the result of the division:—

For	Against
The Hon'ble Mr. V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar.	The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.
" " M. Ramachandra Rao.	" Mr. L. Davidson.
" " P. Siva Rao.	" " C. G. Todhunter.
" " K. Rama Ayyangar.	" " A. Y. G. Campbell.
" " K. Sadasiva Bhat.	" " R. Ramachandra Rao.
" " K. Suryanarayanamurti	" " M. Young.
" " Nayudu.	" " L. E. Buckley.
" " B. Venkatapati Raju.	" " R. B. Wood.
" " A. Subbarayalu Reddiyar.	" " N. E. Marjoribanks.
" " T. Ranga Achariyar.	" " M. Aziz-ud-din Sahib.
" " Yaqub Hasan Sahib	" the Rev. G. Pittendrigh.
" " Bahadur.	" Sir Francis Spring.
" " Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.	" Mr. R. Littlehales.
" " K. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar.	" Sir Fairless Barber.
" " A. Suryanarayana Rao.	" Sir Gordon Fraser.
" " A. S. Krishna Rao.	" Mr. J. H. Thonger.
" " B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.	" Archbishop Aelen.
	" Mr. W. Hutton.
	" " W. J. J. Howley.
	" the Advocate-General.
	" Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
	" " H. G. Stokes.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I understand this disposes of Resolution No. LV standing in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. Suryanarayana Rao."

The Hon'ble Mr. SURYANARAYANA RAO:—"I do not think it need go to the vote. I am satisfied with the assurance of the Honourable Member."

With the permission of His Excellency the President Resolution No. LV was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE GRANT TO TANJORE DISTRICT BOARD FOR IMPROVEMENT OF ROADS.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBİ MARAKKAYAR SAHİB Bahadur:—"Your Excellency, the resolution that stands in my name runs as follows:—

'XLIX. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 1,50,000 be provided to the District Board of Tanjore out of the allotment of 13 lakhs set apart for district boards for improvement of important roads under 45-A. CIVIL WORKS.'

"I see from the Amended Draft Financial Statement that a sum of 20 lakhs has been given for the district boards by adding another 7 lakhs in excess of last year's allotment. The balance left for 1919-1920 is only Rs. 6 lakhs.

"The importance of this resolution was explained by me in the Finance Committee. It is a well-known fact that the communication of the main roads was overlooked, and the wanting deal. Further, from the standpoint of Government, it is absolutely necessary, in case of necessity and emergency it is always better to have the communication in good order and condition, especially from one port to another. Tanjore district and her importance is well known, especially that she possesses a large number of important sea-port towns. Consequently, it is only proper that such communications are encouraged. In the list of grants given to district boards last year, nothing was given to Tanjore district and I am sure Your Excellency's Government will see its way to set apart at least a lakh and a half rupees for the purpose of maintaining important roads. As a matter of fact, there are already a number of gravel roads in existence, leading from Negapatam taluk, in several branches, to Tanjore district and the maintenance of which was overlooked for want of funds and therefore the condition of the road is very bad at present. I therefore hope that my resolution will receive the sympathetic consideration of the Council."

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"This is a small matter. The Honourable Member evidently feels sore that in that distribution of Rs. 13 lakhs we have recently made, the Tanjore District Board finds no place. That is his point. The explanation is no grant was given to the Tanjore District Board as the President reported that the district was well supplied with bridges and it would not be possible to incur any special expenditure on roads for want of materials. When the Government of India sanctioned 26 lakhs to make up for the deterioration of roads all over the Presidency on account of the restriction of railway traffic, they said they had no objection to money being drawn from the Provincial balances and they said you may incur an expenditure of 13 lakhs provided the money is spent within the year. We asked all the district boards how much they could spend, we got their replies and we distributed the fund. The Tanjore District Board said it was well served with bridges and culverts and apparently it is not in a position to spend more. That is perfectly right. The Honourable Member will support me that in Tanjore it is not a question of money but they could not get the materials by rail on account of the restriction of railway traffic and they could not use the money. Now we have allotted another seven lakhs this year. The other 13 lakhs we had originally intended to give the next year, but it is found more convenient to give seven lakhs out of that this year and the balance next year. In making the distribution we have a freer hand and we hope to consider the claims of all the district boards to rectify inequalities as much as possible. The Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar has been so good as to bring up this matter separately. By all means let him do so and let him take this into consideration."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"There is one statement of the Honourable Member that the district of Tanjore was well supplied with bridges and culverts."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Bridges."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"The Honourable Member will remember that I brought forward a resolution last year about the sad want of bridges for four rivers for connecting the taluk headquarters with my portion of the district. I am glad that the Hon'ble Mr. Wood is here. He personally investigated the matter when he was Collector of Tanjore, and as District Board President he recommended that it should be undertaken. I know there are several such places where the district is in want of bridges. I cannot allow that statement to go unchallenged. There are places where bridges are wanted and if money were forthcoming, the difficulty will be rectified and the district will be greatly obliged to the Government. I support this motion of my Honourable Friend for a grant for the maintenance of trunk roads which are very important there as a means of communication. The Honourable Member will find from the correspondence on my resolution that they could not find money to maintain village roads and therefore the villagers are in a very deplorable condition. It is from that district that the land revenue and land cess is collected most heavily and yet the village roads are grossly neglected. The district board cannot find money to keep up trunk roads and to have bridges over the numerous rivers and canals which cut through the district. The district board has unfortunately been prevented from improving urgent communications by not being allowed to open the Tirutturaippundi-Vedaranniyam line by which they could have made an income of about Rs. 90,000. It is a pertinent appeal which the Hon'ble Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar has made on behalf of the District Board of Tanjore."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBİ MARAKKAYAR SAHİB Bahadur:—"With reference to the remark of the Honourable Member in charge of the portfolio that the district board refused to accept a grant, it may be true last year on account of the difficulty of securing wagons for transport of materials. What about this year? I think wagons are freely supplied and the materials are freely coming. Gravel is available in Tanjore and they can extend the roads. There are a number of roads which are half metalled, some portions of them have been metalled up to 1 mile and 2 miles and the other portion comes up to 1 or 2 miles, and in the intermediate places it stopped for want of funds. For want of repairs a number of roads are lying idle. The roads are so bad that people are undergoing a great deal of difficulty. The Hon'ble Mr. Wood is here; he has great experience of the Tanjore district and he will testify that Tanjore district badly requires funds for maintaining gravelled roads. The rice and other grains have to be brought by roads. In that way the roads have become bad and the heavy rains have washed away the remaining portion. It is only proper to be plain, Your Excellency; I heard from a number of high European officials it is absolutely necessary because we do not expect any more war like this to come on but if at all anything is to be done it is better we should have communications in the interests of Government so that traffic can go by the roads when the sea is blockaded; if as a matter of fact Negapatam is blockaded by enemies, it is better to have communications by roads so that we could march away our troops with arms and ammunitions. I strongly recommend that the sum asked for should be granted."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I wonder what view the Honourable Member takes of my assurance, that in distributing the balance of this money—the balance of the 26 lakhs, we will give due consideration to the Tanjore district with reference to its own importance and also with reference to the fact that it got nothing in the first distribution. Does the Honourable Member accept my assurance or does he want 1 lakh to be given immediately? If he accepts it, I have nothing to say."

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar ; [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Rama Ayyangar ; the President.)

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBI MARAKKAYAR SAHIB Bahadur :— "I see from the accounts that there are 7 lakhs distributed and 6 lakhs for next year. So there are 13 lakhs already. Though 7 lakhs are included in last year's estimate, still there are 6 lakhs available. I only ask for 1½ lakhs; in the face of the refusal of last year's grant 1½ lakhs is not a great thing. I ask Your Excellency to grant this. There is no use of refusing every grant. They asked for village roads and that was refused; if this is also refused it will create heart-burning. There is no use of refusing. I hope the Honourable Member in charge will not make any more refusal."

The resolution was put to the Council and lost.

RESOLUTION RE INCREASED GRANTS TO DISTRICT BOARDS FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF IMPORTANT ROADS.

The next resolution which stood in the name of the Hon'ble the Raja of Ramnad was as follows :—

'L. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a sum of one lakh of rupees be added to distribution of grant (of Rs. 13 lakhs) to local boards for the improvement of important roads, and the same be given to the Ramnad District Board for the completion of the Paramagudi-Mudukulattur, Ramnad-Kilakkarai roads and improvement of other roads in the Ramnad district generally, and a corresponding reduction be made in 45-B. CIVIL BUILDINGS.'

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"I have been asked by the Hon'ble the Raja of Ramnad to move this resolution No. L. This may be taken up along with resolution No. LIX standing in my name."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Resolutions Nos. L and LIX will be taken together."

Resolution No. LIX which stood in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar was as follows :—

'LIX. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 1 lakh be provided under the head 45-B for a contribution to be made to the Ramnad District Board for the completion of the new roads under construction and that the same be met by a corresponding reduction under the head 45-B.'

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"In both the resolutions the object is to have 1 lakh provided for the Ramnad District Board for the completion of the particular roads referred to in resolution No. L and generally for new roads under construction. This, My Lord, is a subject which in one form or other was brought up by me last year and there was a full discussion over it. I found in the reply made by the Honourable Member in charge to the other resolution that of the eight district boards which are helped by the 5 lakhs grant, four are really very poor and the other four were brought in under a questionable category. The question I raised last year is the Ramnad District Board, if not a poor board it is a board which is placed under the exceptional circumstance and which does not attain to the average of the rest of the Presidency in the matter of roads. I explained it by a full discussion last year and I would not repeat it here, I will only say that the average number of miles in that district as compared with the extent of village areas is much smaller than in other districts in the Presidency. The poorest district board has much more roads, though this district covers a much larger area and a much larger population and it contains in itself lot of sandy tracts. Among the districts we have the largest number of villages in this district, except the Agency tracts. We have got about 4,000 villages in the district. In spite of that the extent of roads is poor. I have explained why it is so, because when it was mixed up with Madura greater attention was paid to Madura which was the capital city and to the main roads. I do not want to repeat the arguments now. I have no doubt that the Honourable Member in charge who has been in that district knows that district in detail and need not be further told about the needs of that district. It is only recently that they have been trying to put up communications connecting the main centres, taluk centres. The two roads referred to there, the Paramagudi-Mudukulattur and the Ramnad-Kilakkarai roads are very important roads. They are in flourishing parts, they have been commenced and they have not yet been finished. In these circumstances I thought in this 13 lakhs grant which was distributed that district board would have got enough, but when I saw the Draft Financial Statement I found that it only got about Rs. 18,000. When I made inquiries I learnt that they were asked to state how much they could spend within the year and apparently with the staff they had and with the difficulty of finding pebbles and gravel in that area they said they could not spend more. Whatever that may be, now that the whole matter has been explained in connexion with the resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar, I think it will be granted one lakh this year as proposed in resolution No. L and another lakh as proposed in resolution No. LIX for the next year. That is a board which deserves the greatest consideration at the hands of the Government. As I said last year, if only Your Excellency had to go through the Ramnad portion of it to Tirupattur side the whole difficulty would be realized. There are no proper roads. Mr. Tottenham while he was there took it up in right earnest and tried to push it through. He was not able to get much money because in the interim war conditions began. Even in the matter of trunk roads the Madura-Ramnad road is in the worst condition. If the Honourable Member goes that side, he will probably find that for many years he would not think of that road. He will ask his man to drive to Tirupachiyur from Manamadurai. He will not care to travel on this road. If it is a motor-car it cannot travel more than three miles; if it is a jutka the horse will have to be renewed every fourth mile. This is a board with which I hope the Honourable Member will sympathise and it deserves the consideration of the Government till it is brought at least up to 700 miles. It is only 500 miles for 4,000 villages. Till it is brought up to 700 miles of trunk roads, taluk board and district board roads, it is absolutely necessary that it should be borne in mind by the Government as an exceptional board which deserves exceptional treatment. I hope both the resolutions will be accepted and provision made not only this year but next year."

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rama Ayyangar ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"The Honourable Member has not referred to his Resolution No. LI for the construction of a bridge over the Kodavanar river."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"I was dealing with L and LIX."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"I thank you very much. The Hon'ble the Raja of Ramnad's resolution really refers to the way in which we ought to distribute the 13 lakhs grant. I understand what the Honourable Member says. His complaint is also mainly on the ground that that distribution has not been equitable. I have already explained that matter and given the assurance to such of the Honourable Members whose district boards have had a smaller share of that money that we would try to redress the inequality as far as possible in distributing the remaining 13 lakhs, 7 lakhs this year and 6 lakhs the next year. But we are not in a position to spare any more money. I consider the Government have given as much money as they could and it would not be possible to add an extra lakh as proposed by the Honourable Member."

"The Honourable Member has reminded us of what I would otherwise have been bound to say, namely, that we gave him one lakh for this very purpose which went into the accounts of the year 1917-18. Now we did that in view of the necessity of the Ramnad District Board in the matter of communications. We have to be fair to all boards in this matter and I cannot commit the Government in advance to any promise, but in the further distribution of the 13 lakhs I will try to make it as even as possible and I will take note of what has been already done in the matter."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"Is the reply the same to Resolution No. LIX?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"Yes."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"I am satisfied with the assurance. I do not press the resolution though I want to say, because the Honourable Member has not referred to it, that the exceptional needs of this district should also be taken into consideration. It is not merely a question of judging the proportion of the several districts. It has exceptional needs and they have to be noted. I beg to withdraw the resolutions."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolutions were withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE GRANTS TO THE DINDIGUL TALUK BOARD FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF A BRIDGE OVER THE KODAVANAR.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR moved the following resolution :—

"LI. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 20,000 be provided for grants to the Dindigul Taluk Board through the Madura District Board for the construction of a bridge over the Kodavanar river and that the same be met from the provision for bridges and causeways or by a corresponding reduction under the head '45-B'."

In doing so he said :—"This is a small matter. There is a provision for bridges, causeways and culverts. This Kodavanar river has to be bridged and it is one of the portions which connects the main portion of Dindigul taluk. I have been told that this bridge should be put up as early as possible. I dare say the Honourable Member was there in Dindigul some time back and he knows the needs of the place. I dare say the money I ask for will be provided if it can be done."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"Your Excellency, the subject of this bridge for the Kodavanar river stands thus. We have no information whether any sanctioned estimates are ready for this work and we have no information as to what the estimated cost is. We have no information what the district, board or taluk board think of the need of this work. I think the proper thing in a case like that is not to make a provision in the budget for a bridge for a river in regard to the need of which no pronouncement is made by either the district board or the taluk board. If either the district board or taluk board takes it up and applies for a grant, we will apply our usual rules with regard to grants for the construction of bridges and culverts. In the absence of any information as to what the local bodies think of it, it is premature that the Council should say that this money should be provided."

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Rama Ayyangar; [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.]

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—The estimates and plans are ready, but they have not been submitted. I do not think I can press this resolution at this stage."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR THE KODAIKANAL MUNICIPALITY FOR SCAVENGERS' HUTS AND FOR IMPROVEMENTS OF THE MARKETS AND ROADS.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR moved the following resolution:—

"LII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 20,000 be provided for the Kodaikanal municipality for—

(a) constructing additional huts for scavengers and improving the existing market,

(b) widening and improving the roads, and that the same be met by a corresponding reduction under the head 45-B. and from the minor sanitary grants."

In doing so he said:—"This is another special case which I had to place before the Council last year and they made a grant of Rs. 10,000 for widening the roads. I am sorry to see that Your Excellency has not been there. It is one of the fine places which deserve to be noticed. That place is suffering very much. Just at the entrance we have this market and the neighbouring huts which present a sorry appearance and the roads are as small as possible. It is one of the finest places in the Presidency; some people would even put it above even Ootacamund, and he seemed to like that place. I had a personal interview with him. It deserves special treatment. We find that 1.07 lakhs have been provided as a special grant from 1913 for Ootacamund. We know the circumstances under which that has been continued. This is another place where there were about 3,500 people and during the war conditions many more people were sent there last year. This is a station which deserves special treatment."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Kodaikanal!"

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I only ask for Rs. 20,000 which may be given every year, Rs. 10,000 for the sanitary portion and Rs. 10,000 for roads till they are widened. I do not know if my Honourable Friend's interjection means that he is not quite of that opinion. I would join issue with him. He may be going to Ootacamund more often than to Kodaikanal. I go to Kodaikanal much more frequently than he. The Government will be the best judges in the matter. It is expending like anything. I do not know if the Honourable Member in charge knows that a lot of extra lands are being put to auction and they fetch a fair amount of money. All that will have to be kept in a sanitary condition. In these circumstances I do not suppose the Government will grudge this small amount to this municipality which is very poor. It has a very small population. There is a taluk office, there is a registration office and there is also the observatory; but during the summer season we find it overcrowded, and it is bound to get greater importance. For the health of the elite of the people in the Presidency it is very necessary to maintain that station in a sanitary condition. There is a ghat road and it is bound to get into importance very soon. We had a contribution from the Government which gave us Rs. 30,000 towards the construction of the roads. Unless this kind of help is given and the whole thing is brought into a condition fit to hold any further extension, it will be in a very poor condition. Therefore I press this resolution for the acceptance of the Council."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the Honourable Member wants a sum of Rs. 20,000 to be given to the Kodaikanal municipality for three purposes, firstly for constructing additional huts for scavengers, secondly improving the existing market and thirdly widening and improving the roads. So far as the construction of additional huts for scavengers is concerned, an application for a grant of Rs. 6,000 has come from the municipality and that application will be considered along with applications from other local bodies when we distribute the 5 lakhs grant under the head 'Minor Sanitary Improvements'."

"In regard to the improvements to the market I would point out that the market is a work of a remunerative nature, and the principle I brought to the notice of the Council yesterday would preclude us from giving any grant to the municipal council for this purpose."

"In regard to roads I would remind the Council that last year in March we gave a special grant of Rs. 10,000 to the Kodaikanal municipality for improving its roads. It was a special grant. The Chairman in May 1918 wrote that the grant made by the Government of 7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao;

Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Rama Ayyangar.)

Rs. 10,000 for improving the roads was very welcome and enabled a beginning to be made with a scheme prepared several years ago for rendering the main roads more nearly what they should be in a station of that importance and that detailed estimates were under preparation. That money has been given to them and it has not been expended. He has not reported further on the subject nor has he applied for an additional grant for 1919-20, and rightly so, for I find that on the 31st December 1918 the Council had a balance of Rs. 7,769 left out of the grant of Rs. 10,000 already sanctioned. It seems to me, therefore, premature to think of any further subvention in that direction in 1920. They have framed a scheme and they have to spend the money they have and then to prove that they are entitled to a greater volume of help. There is no need for setting aside any money for the Kodaikanal municipality during 1919-20 as proposed by the Honourable Member."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I think I must oppose this resolution for more than one reason. My Honourable Friend was encouraged by the grant which was given last year to the Kodaikanal municipality and he has given us a hint that he would like to have this grant of Rs. 20,000 stereotyped for improvements. That is a fair indication of what last year's grant is leading us to. That is one reason why I wish to say a few words. My Lord, I have no quarrel with Kodaikanal or Ootacamund. They are fine stations and we go there and enjoy ourselves. But that is no reason why public funds should be devoted, in the way in which the Honourable Member proposes, for improving the Kodaikanal municipality. So far as municipalities are concerned, there has been to the best of my recollection, no road grant at any time. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar would notice that Resolution No. LIV raises the substantial question that some help should be given out of the special grant for the improvement of important roads in other municipalities. If this request of the Kodaikanal municipality for the improvement of roads is to be admitted, I should be very much delighted because I would advise every Municipal Chairman to flood Your Excellency's Government with applications for improvement of roads. Let us once for all know whether a grant for the improvement of roads in municipalities is admissible. In that case we shall be in a position to have a fair treatment of all municipalities."

"As regards the rest of it, namely, the construction of huts for scavengers, it is also a very praiseworthy object to remove them from insanitary places, but there are more wants of a similar nature and much more insistent than that. While I appreciate all that has been done for the municipality already—because 7 lakhs have been spent in the last so many years—I must oppose this resolution for the various grounds I have urged."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I wish also to oppose this resolution but on a higher ground. These hill stations are the luxurious resort for the wealthy, and if the municipal resources are not sufficient to meet their demands, then the proper plan is to increase the rates of taxes and not to deprive the general public revenue of any sum of money. There are vast masses of people grovelling in dust and poverty and we are unable to find money for village roads and primary education. But for the fact that my Honourable Friend represents the Kodaikanal municipality I do not know whether his heart is in the resolution. It is on that ground that the hill stations should find the money out of the people who resort to them. I oppose the resolution. If people should choose to linger on the hills they should pay for that luxury and not the public revenues."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I am sorry that two prominent members of this Council should have raised their voice against the resolution, knowing as they do, after the reference by me to that matter, that for so many years they have been allowing a special grant to the Ootacamund municipality. I do not know whether the question of a general grant for roads to municipalities is relevant. The whole thing proceeds on ideas of beauty which I do not think will be compatible with other views. I dare say the Government would like to have such sanatoria in good condition and it is not right to compare them with ordinary municipalities. I do not want to press this to a division after the remarks of my Honourable Friends. I withdraw the resolution."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE GRANTS TO DISTRICT BOARDS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF BRIDGES AND CULVERTS IN DELTAIC TRACTS.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO moved the following resolution:—

"LIII. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 1,00,000 be set apart under 45. CIVIL WORKS for grants to district boards for the construction of bridges and culverts in the deltaic districts."

In doing so he said:—"I shall be as brief as possible in regard to this resolution. This year Your Excellency's Government have been good enough to allow 20 lakhs for the improvement of important roads and another 6 lakhs for the same purpose are to be given for the next year. Then we have the usual allotment of 17 lakhs and the 5 lakhs for the poorer district boards, so that nearly 40 lakhs are set apart for the improvement of main communications. What is required in districts like Tanjore, Godavari, Kistna, Periyar tract and Guntur is the construction of bridges and culverts. I am aware that for some years Your Excellency's Government have been setting apart a certain sum of money for bridges and causeways. There is also an allotment of 3 lakhs for next year in the budget. I maintain, my Lord, that this amount is absolutely insufficient. Under the existing orders no grant is being made except for bridges or culverts or main communications which have to be constructed on a main thoroughfare or main road."

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.) [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Has the Honourable Member any authority for the statement that no grant is made except for the main roads?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"The bridges and causeways, proposed for grants, should be situated on trunk roads. My Lord, all that I can say is, on behalf of the Ellore Municipal Council I sent up an application for a grant of a sum of money for the construction of a bridge, about Rs. 13,000. Instead of having a trunk road we have a canal separating one portion of the town from another. I was informed by the Government that the grant was not admissible because this grant is intended for bridges and causeways proposed to be constructed on trunk roads. So there seems to be no doubt that that is the state of things."

"My Lord, our difficulty in the deltas is that canals and irrigation channels cut up the lines of communication between village and village and this grant is specially required if through communications between village and village is to be maintained. My Hon'ble Friend Mr. Kanga Achariyar has already referred to the state of things in Tanjore, notwithstanding the report of the President of the District Board. As regards the districts which I represent, I can assure the Honourable Member that there is a great deal of need for bridges in the Kistna delta and Godavari delta. I have here a statement prepared by the District Board Engineer in one of these districts, which is a programme of continuous construction of bridges and culverts costing 25 lakhs. I take it also that the same state of things prevails in the district of Guntur. The President of the Guntur District Board writing to me a few days ago lays special stress on the difficulties felt on account of the want of bridges in these deltaic tracts. I do not wish to make this debate more lengthy than it need be. I do not wish to raise the points as to whether bridges or whether a subsidy should be given for the present. It seems to me that this grant of three lakhs may be raised as suggested here and as suggested in another resolution. This amount will be usefully spent on the construction of necessary bridges. Finally I may say that in the district of Kistna, three villages situated on either side of the canal have come forward with a substantial contribution to the district board of Rs. 10,000 and Rs. 7,000 for the construction of bridges across the canal. There were three applications; one of them has already been complied with and the bridge is under construction and I have no doubt whatever that this money will be very usefully spent and the return would be increased comfort for the people living there."

As regards the question whether this should be earmarked, I am perfectly certain that the presidents of the district boards would not complain of any interference with their liberty of action if it is earmarked in the manner suggested in this resolution. If one lakh is given to all the deltaic tracts and they are informed that it should be spent on bridges, I rather think their feeling would be one of thankfulness that after all they have got some money for the construction of bridges. Therefore I can assure my Honourable Friend that we would not feel any qualms of conscience that we interfere by giving this grant of one lakh for the purpose. I may also assure my Honourable Friends who represent the deltaic tracts that I do not ask this for the districts I represent. I ask it also for the Periyar valley and the Tambraparni valley. I hope that my Honourable Friend who wanted to stereotype the grant to a place like Kodaikanal would join with me in stereotyping the grants for bridges in deltaic tracts."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I have very little to say. We have not got the one lakh to give. As I have already said, we have gone as far as we can, and it will not be possible to give a lakh for this purpose. I do not want to go into the general question of earmarking it for bridges and culverts, but we have an allotment for bridges and culverts of Rs. 3 lakhs this year, that is only a provisional distribution. We are now bound to look into all applications that have come in, and choose those that are most necessary. I only mention that, because it is said there that it is a provisional distribution. Whatever each district requires will have to be got from that."

"The Council will be interested to learn that the Kistna district, my Honourable Friend's district, got out of the 13 lakhs 2-90 lakhs, that is nearly 3 lakhs. I am sure it will use it most profitably."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Not for bridges."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"For communications which includes bridges and causeways on main lines. If this is utilized for bridges and causeways on main lines, my Honourable Friend cannot say that we have not been liberal with him. So far as this thing is concerned, I must say I endorse what he has said about the need of a number of culverts in that tract of country—Tenali and Repalle. Unless you have them in a number of places, the communication is completely shut off. I think the proper thing will be for the district board to prepare a scheme comprehensively and formally pass it and send it up to Government saying how it proposes to finance it. Then there is a chance of its being passed and the work being carried out during a series of years. That would be the suitable course for the Honourable Member's district board. I myself had a talk with the District Board Engineer and saw a scheme which he put before me. It had better be elaborated and passed by the district board and sent up to us. Then it will be possible for us to examine it, and whatever orders are passed will be carried out over a number of years. I ask them to do that and I hope the Honourable Member will accept the suggestion and not press this upon the Government at present."

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Krishna Rao; Mr. Siva Rao.)

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE GRANTS TO MUNICIPALITIES FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF ROADS.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I beg to move—

'LIV. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of 2 lakhs be provided for grants to municipalities for the improvement of important roads and that a corresponding reduction be made under 45. CIVIL WORKS—CIVIL BUILDINGS.'

"It will be within the recollection of this Council that there are 26 lakhs provided for improvement of the roads which have been burdened with increased traffic in recent years on account of the restrictions on railway traffic, and there are a number of resolutions dealing with that subject. This is a grant sanctioned by the Government of India and we have just been informed that 13 lakhs has been already distributed and that it is proposed to distribute 7 lakhs in the course of this year and 6 lakhs in the course of next year. I do not wish on this occasion to raise the general question as to whether grants can or cannot be made to municipalities for improvement of roads. I think that as my Hon'ble friend Mr. Ramachandra Rao has raised that point, that general question may be reserved for a future occasion. I do not propose to raise a debate on that question, because I am making a specific request in view of special circumstances. I am quite sure that, so far as the general question is concerned, it can be argued with any amount of vehemence and warmth on both sides; but this is not the occasion when we need consider it from the theoretical point of view, whether grants can be made to municipalities or not. For the present I request your Excellency's Government to consider whether in a year wherein grants have been specially made up to 26 lakhs for the improvement of these roads on which traffic has increased in recent years in consequence of the restrictions on railway traffic it ought to be refused in the case of roads running through the district board areas through the been distributed to district boards for the purpose of improving roads running through the district board areas; but when the same roads pass from the district board areas through municipal areas, they have also to be improved for the same reasons for which they have to be improved in the case of district board areas. Is there any principle of differentiation so far as district boards or municipalities are concerned? It strikes me that in a year when with the help of the Government of India it has been possible to allot 26 lakhs to improve such communications on which there has been pressure of traffic owing to restrictions on railway traffic, municipalities also should be helped to a reasonable extent. There are several municipalities through which trunk roads pass. Owing to the increased cost of maintenance of these roads it is certainly difficult for these municipalities to maintain these roads in as efficient a condition as they ought to be maintained; and help is required because their resources are very limited. This point was raised in 1919-20, this question would be specifically considered. The point was the distribution in 1919-20, this question would be specifically considered. The point was raised whether help could not be given for trunk roads passing through municipalities; and it was suggested that this point would be considered in the distribution of 1919-20. In framing this resolution I have suggested that the money may be taken from 45. Civil Works—Civil Buildings, because if the Government have earmarked the money so far as district boards are concerned, I do not want to be a party to cutting short that provision. But all the same I wish to impress on the Council that when it has been possible to make an allotment for district boards, it is necessary to make an allotment for the improvement of similar roads in municipalities under the same circumstances and for the same reasons for which district boards are helped."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I wish to say a few words, your Excellency. A reference came to our municipality in the course of last year asking for our views as to whether or not it was desirable to effectively repair trunk roads; and reference was also made to us as to whether we had any causeways or culverts within the municipal limits which ought to be repaired. I dare say this reference went to all municipalities in the Presidency. We all said that it was quite necessary to keep the trunk roads in an efficient condition and we said that we could not afford to spend any money on these roads or in repairing the causeways, bridges and culverts over such roads in our present state of finance. When I looked at the Draft Financial Statement, I happened to find in the annexure the distribution of 13 lakhs and it was stated that this distribution was to be made to the local boards. I at once draw the attention of the Hon'ble the Finance Member that there was no reason to draw any invidious distinction between municipalities and local boards in a matter like this. I must state for the information of the Council that there are trunk roads within municipal limits as well. I may state that there are 8 miles of trunk roads in the Bellary municipality. There may be similar roads in other municipalities. If the benefit of this 13 lakhs in the current year and

(Mr. Sadasiva Bhat; Sir Francis Spring; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; the President; Mr. Rama Ayyangar.) [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

and it will be a matter of life and death to this important industry whether transport of these articles into Mangalore from other places in the district can be made cheap and easy to enable it to hold its own in the market. To the coffee industry too it is of the utmost importance that the transport of coffee from the plantations in Mysore to the coast should be as cheap as possible. The construction of bridges over the many rivers of our districts is therefore of the utmost importance. The District Board of South Kanara has been keeping this in view so far as its finances permitted. Some of the smaller streams have been bridged and the Government recently enabled the board to complete the Pane Mangalore bridge. The board is anxious if it can find the money to bridge the other streams particularly in the taluks not served by the railway. The Gurpur bridge will be on the main trunk road from Mangalore to Mysore via Agumbi Ghat and it will give Kanara a trunk road whereon all the streams will have been bridged. On account of the numerous estuaries on the coast road from Mangalore northwards motor travelling or any fast mode of travelling cannot be thought of, but if the Gurpur bridge is completed the administration will have a thorough motor road from Mangalore to any part of the district. I urge therefore that this bridge should be taken in hand as soon as possible.

"The other bridge referred to in the resolution is Pavangi on the coast road from Mangalore to Udupi. It is the smallest of unbridged rivers there and may be undertaken first."

The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING:—"Your Excellency, I would suggest that the only true and broad solution of the communication problem in South Kanara is that the local Government should press the Government of India or the Railway Board to extend the railway from Mangalore through Udupi to Baindur along the coast road. Merely to mend roads and bridges along that impassable road is only paltrying with the question."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"The Gurpur bridge is not on the coast road."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"The other bridge is"

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"Yes."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency this is the situation in regard to the two bridges. I did not gather whether any plans and estimates have been sanctioned."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"My information is they have been sanctioned."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"We have received no applications for any grant from the district board for either bridge. What the district board could do is to send up the plans and estimates for our scrutiny and then the question of a grant will be considered. We cannot consider it in advance. The Council is aware that we do give grants for bridges when estimates come, especially for large works we give a percentage of the cost, a moiety. There is no reason to think that South Kanara will be treated differently, and not given such consideration as we are showing to a number of other places. If plans and estimates have been prepared, they should send them up for scrutiny with a statement as to how they propose to finance it. As the Hon'ble Sir Francis Spring has pointed out it is a matter for consideration in regard to the Gurpur bridge whether not being on the coast it would be more important than one on the coast. Does the Honourable Member move the other resolution also with regard to foot-bridges?"

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"I do not intend to move it because I understand some grant has been made."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Does the Honourable gentleman withdraw resolution No. LVI?"

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"Yes."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Sadasiva Bhat did not move the resolution No. LVII of which, he had given notice and which was in the following terms:—

'LVII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a provision of Rs. 10,000 be made under 45-A as a grant to the South Kanara District Board for putting up foot-bridges in the South Kanara district.'

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR MAKING UP THE DEFICIT BALANCE OF THE USILAMPATTI TALUK BOARD.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR moved the following resolution:—

'LVIII. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 16,270 be provided for making up the deficit balance of the Usilampatti Taluk Board as recommended by the Madra District Board and that the same be met by a corresponding reduction under the head 45-B.'

In doing so, he said:—"This taluk board has been for many years in an impoverished condition. It has been utilizing all the money it could get otherwise for keeping up its present condition fairly all right. In fact Usilampatti is a tract which I dare say the Honourable Member in charge knows. If he does not, I will describe it as an almost arid tract of country which serves a very large area of Kallarnad mainly and the area served is about 2,000 square miles. The district board has tried to give subventions to make up this deficit during the last 6 or 7 years but this could not be wiped off. The Government have been pleased to give grants in cases where there is a deficit balance. So that if it is once started with nil balance it will be able to keep within bounds. The matter I understand is placed before the district board and it has also recommended it and the reasons are also given in detail. I only suggest that it may be considered as an exceptional case."

[7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Sir Alexander Cardew; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I am most unwilling to raise general questions or questions of policy but they do come up and I do not see how we can ignore them. The Honourable Member proposes that we should now take upon ourselves the financing of the budget of the taluk board. The practice is we do not deal directly with the taluk boards. The taluk boards are subordinate to the district boards and it is the district boards which should finance the budgets of the taluk boards. The district board is the proper authority to take note of the wants and conditions of finance of taluk boards and to balance them and then whatever we could give to the district boards in aid of their funds for this or that purpose. If we take it upon ourselves to say, 'here is the Usilampatti Taluk Board which has closed with a deficit balance, we will give it Rs. 16,000,' we take away the necessity for the district board to take an interest in the taluk board. This is really vicious in principle."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"It is an application from the district board."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Either it has asked or it has not. In no case can the district board be right in saying that it will shift the responsibility from its shoulders to the shoulders of the Government. If the finances of the district board are bad and they ask for money to finance their balances, that is a different matter. But when the district board asks us to meet the deficit of the Usilampatti Taluk Board while the district board has balances to its credit, I cannot understand it. I know nothing about the merits of the case. I know that the Usilampatti Taluk Board is in a deficit; it may be for perfectly unavoidable reasons. But I say it is wrong in principle to ask us to meet the deficit of a taluk board, and on that ground I oppose the resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"From what I could gather, Your Excellency, the letter of the district board is not before the Honourable Member or he has not read it. The district board has tried all it can and it explained that it cannot meet it out of its balance. What is its balance? The ordinary percentage available as balance. Probably the balance shown includes various heads such as charitable endowments and it appears as there is a balance. The letter explains the matter fully and I dare say the Honourable Member in charge will see that it has been after considerable hesitation they have put forth this request. I think the matter deserves to be considered sympathetically."

The resolution was put and lost.

RESOLUTION RE ADDITIONAL ALLOTMENT FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF THE RAMNAD HEADQUARTER HOSPITAL.

The next resolution which stood in the name of the Hon'ble the Raja of Ramnad was as follows:—

'LX. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 50,000 be added to 45-B for the improvement of the Ramnad headquarter hospital, and a corresponding reduction be made under 32-E. Miscellaneous (Miscellaneous and unforeseen charges).'

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"After this resolution was sent up the Finance Committee's report shows that it was promised to be provided for under 45. CIVIL WORKS."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW:—"No plans and estimates have come; when they do come, we will find funds."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

RESOLUTION RE PROVISION FOR THE RELIEF OF DISTRESS IN THE GODAVARI DISTRICT.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO moved the following resolution:—

'LXI. This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a sum of Rs. 2,00,000 be provided in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 under 45. CIVIL WORKS to the Godavari District Board on works for the relief of distress in the upland taluks of the Godavari district and that a corresponding reduction be made under 45. CIVIL WORKS—CIVIL BUILDINGS.'

In doing so he said:—"The President of the district board Mr. Seshagiri Rao has, I believe, informed the Government about the state of things in the uplands of the Godavari district."

(Mr. Siva Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

13 lakhs in the coming year is not to be given to municipalities, up to a limit of 3 miles from the municipality the district board will repair these roads out of this grant of 13 lakhs or 26 lakhs, and when it comes to municipal limits this road will not be repaired. Is there any reason why these roads should not be repaired within the municipal limits as well? I know some of the roads within municipal limits are in a hopeless condition. I do not think the principle enunciated by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao will ever apply in a case like this, because the Government have decided upon a policy of keeping trunk roads in an efficient condition. Whether they are within the limits of taluk boards or district boards or municipal limits it matters very little. The Finance Committee have unanimously recommended that the claims of municipalities in this matter should be considered. I leave it to your Excellency's consideration. A reference might be sent to the municipalities to make any proposals in the matter, how many important trunk roads or causeways they have within their limits and if so how much will be required and the distribution may be kept in abeyance until such information is forthcoming."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao told us that it was far from his wish that any general question of principle should be raised on this matter. But that is what he has raised. His resolution says 'that a sum of 2 lakhs be provided for grants to municipalities for the improvement of important roads.'"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Out of that grant."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg your pardon. It says 'that a sum of 2 lakhs be provided for grants to municipalities for the improvement of important roads and that corresponding reduction be made under 45. Civil Works—Civil Buildings.' So the question does arise what our policy in regard to grants should be and whether grants could be made to municipalities for the maintenance of roads. I do not want to raise that question, but all that I can say is we cannot give the 2 lakhs. I feel bound to say that our policy is against our giving any grant for this particular purpose. The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao has anticipated much of what I had to say in his speech on a previous resolution. I may at once tell him that after a careful examination of all the points I find that while the Government have been giving money to municipalities for minor sanitary works, medical buildings, water-supply and drainage schemes, all sums come under the head of 'aid to municipalities.' It is a matter for consideration whether we should now make a deliberate departure and commit the Government to this new course. The Council is already aware that I always as far as possible deprecate the earmarking of grants for specific purposes. If you want to give money to municipalities I would rather give it in aid of the general balances. I do not say that there have never been any grants to municipalities for roads; but in the grants made for a series of years we find that on the whole grants were not made for roads to municipalities unless they are hopelessly impassable, or there is a special calamity such as recently happened in Kurnool. The only exception is in the case of hill municipalities where we have been subsidising them substantially for the maintenance of roads. I would deprecate an extension of that principle to mufassal municipalities. While I know that some of these roads passing through municipalities have suffered heavily and while it is open to the Government to take that into consideration in distributing that grant, I wish it to be distinctly understood that it does not commit us to any policy. In any case I am not prepared to agree to a sum of 2 lakhs being set apart for this specific purpose. I therefore feel bound to oppose this resolution."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I should just like to say a few words. Apparently my remarks on the previous resolution have caused some misapprehension. From the wording of the resolution I might perhaps draw the attention of the Honourable Member to the description of this grant given on page 63 of the Amended Draft Financial Statement. It is described there 'distribution of the grant of 20 lakhs in 1918-19 to local boards for the improvement of the condition of important roads on which the traffic has increased in recent years as a consequence of the restrictions on railway traffic.' My Honourable Friend has practically adopted this description in his resolution, because he says it is required 'for grants to municipalities for the improvement of important roads.' I do not think it was my Honourable Friend's intention that independently of this grant you should make a discrimination between important and unimportant roads. What was really meant was that trunk roads passing through municipalities have equally suffered with trunk roads within the limits of district boards. I may perhaps draw attention to the proceedings of the Finance Committee of where it was agreed that in the distribution of this 20 lakhs grant the question of giving a part of it for the repair of trunk roads in municipalities should be considered. The Honourable Member is perfectly aware that in framing resolutions we have also the Amended Draft Financial Statement before us and we have regard to what has transpired in the Finance Committee. My Honourable Friend has not raised in this resolution the question of a general grant to municipalities but only to such trunk roads in municipal limits as have suffered in consequence of heavy traffic. Therefore there should be no misunderstanding that we are raising any large issue in the present case. What is wanted really is that a portion of this grant should be set apart for municipalities for the repair of trunk roads which have suffered equally with district board roads and that the municipalities should share it along with the district boards. We are not raising on the present occasion any question of setting apart any portion of the public revenue for the maintenance of roads. Both of my Honourable Friends have disclaimed that suggestion. The Honourable Member cannot oppose it on a ground which has been disclaimed. He must proceed on the basis on which the Finance Committee proceeded in the discussion of this item. Therefore, my Lord, I can assure the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar that neither of my Honourable Friends who have spoken before me have any intention of raising the larger issue at this part of the year though they may do so later on."

7TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Krishna Rao;
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Sadasiva Bhat.)

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I may recall the attention of the Council to the compendious way in which these grants have been described in paragraph 138-A of the Amended Draft Financial Statement. The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao drew the attention of the Council to the description given on page 63. The compendious way in which it is described in paragraph 138 is 'grants to district boards for improvement of important roads'—Rs. 20 lakhs in the revised estimate, 6 lakhs in the budget estimate! Adopting the same compendious method I have framed this resolution; and I have made my intention perfectly clear that we need not discuss the general question. We can confine ourselves to the question whether in the case of trunk roads and through communications in municipalities some relief may not be given. Notwithstanding the fact that the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar has opposed this resolution, I find there is something in his remarks which, if I am not mistaken, raises some hope that so far as municipalities are concerned, he will give more consideration to the question before finally disposing of it. He has assured this Council that he is himself aware that there are several main trunk roads passing through municipalities and that they have suffered largely on account of the restrictions on railway traffic."

"Secondly he said that though he objected to deviating from the principle of giving grants to municipalities for roads, he would rather think of giving relief to them in aid of their balances. That is another important fact which he stated. I believe he also said that in any case, he could not consent to a sum of 2 lakhs being provided. I do not wish to commit the Government to any further step before the final decision is arrived at; but I draw the attention of this Council that these three statements make it clear that in accordance with the statement of this Council that these three statements make the question as to whether relief should be given in the proceedings of the Finance Committee the question as to whether relief should be given to municipalities in this important respect is still under consideration. I believe—I do not say that he expressly stated it, but I believe—that we can reasonably expect him to be in a position to find if not the full 2 lakhs at least 1 or 1½ lakhs to relieve the municipalities, though not technically for the improvement of important roads, at any rate to help them in their general balances. I do not want to fight about words. I only want the Government to give relief to these municipalities which are handicapped in carrying on their administration, owing to this restriction on railway traffic. What name the Government may adopt I am not concerned with; but I want that some substantial relief may be given to them. I, therefore, hope that the Government would still see their way to help these municipalities for the purpose which I have stated. If not 2 lakhs, let it be 1 or 1½ lakhs. I do not know if the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar can throw any more light."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"All the light I have I have shed. I have really nothing to add. So we may proceed to divide upon the thing."

The resolution was put and lost.

RESOLUTION RE GRANT TO THE SOUTH KANARA DISTRICT BOARD FOR CONSTRUCTING BRIDGES OVER THE GURPUR AND THE PAVANGI.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"I beg to move:—

'LVI. This Council recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that a provision of Rs. 1,00,000 under 45-A be made as a grant to the South Kanara District Board in this budget for constructing the Gurpur and the Pavangi bridges in South Kanara and the said amount may be met by a corresponding reduction under 45-B.'

"While each district through its representatives has been calling attention to its needs and setting forth its claims for a share in the distribution of the available funds, I am anxious that the claims of South Kanara should not go by default. I wish to say that in regard to bridges and culverts, South Kanara is in greater need of them than any other district. It was said that several lakhs were required for bridges and culverts in the deltaic tracts of Godavari, Kistna and some other districts. As a matter of fact many more bridges than those that are now in South Kanara are very badly required in that district. Honourable Members know that our district is in a part of the Presidency where for four months in the year there is very heavy rain—the heaviest in the Presidency. Owing to this heavy rainfall and the broken nature of the country, rivers and streams are innumerable, which on account of their rapid current in the monsoon and shallow breadth in the rest of the year are, instead of being easy means of communication, themselves impede travelling even by roads by intercepting them at every interval of a few miles, and conveyances have to be ferried across these by means of jangars or wooden platforms on boards involving much expense and delay. One result of this is that the cost of transport of all necessaries and material for the main industries in Mangalore and other large towns in the district is very heavy. The principal industry in Mangalore is the manufacture of tiles. The supplies of clay and fuel in the vicinity of Mangalore are being fast exhausted."

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Sir Alexander Cardew ; [7TH FEBRUARY 1919.
the President.)

My Lord, he has written to me to say that the condition of things is not at all satisfactory. The season has failed and there is considerable distress and a grant may be made to the district board to start some works, such as the laying of roads, and to provide employment for those who cannot get any. This is a question of famine relief and as the request has come from the President of the district board, if any money can be passed to the district board, it can only be by way of a grant. If Your Excellency's Government have any other mode of relieving distress it will be equally satisfactory. All that is required is that some relief should be afforded in these uplands which are suffering on account of the failure of the season."

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—"The question of relief in these taluks is under the consideration of the Collector, the Board of Revenue and the Government, and whatever funds are required to provide measures of relief will be found under 33. FAMINE RELIEF. It will not be done through the district board. We hope that the circumstances are not really quite so alarming as Mr. Seshagiri Rao has said. I have had demi-official letters from the Collector forwarding reports from the Tahsildars, and the general upshot of it is this that the view of the President of the district board is somewhat unnecessarily pessimistic. If any money were required, relief work will certainly be done and the money will be provided under 33. FAMINE RELIEF."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"I do not wish to press it."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the resolution was withdrawn.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"I assume the Council will meet at 11 a.m. to-morrow for the Agricultural Pests Bill. That will take till 1 or 2 p.m. and then we will adjourn till Monday and take up the City Municipal Bill, if that meets the convenience of the Council."

The Council then adjourned till 11 a.m. on Saturday, the 8th February 1919.

H. G. STOKES,

Acting Secretary to Government, L. & M. (Legislative) Dept.

ANNEXURE.

572 (1).

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS
FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT FOR 1919-1920

CONTENTS

	PAGE
PART I
BALANCE STATEMENT OF PROPOSED RECEIPTS AND CHARGES FOR 1919-1920, EMBODYING ALSO THE REVISED AND BUDGET ESTIMATES FOR 1918-1919 AND THE ACCOUNTS FOR 1917-1918	(2)-(3)
PART II
MEMORANDUM BY THE FINANCE MEMBER EXPLAINING THE GENERAL FINANCIAL POSITION OF THE PRESIDENCY FOR 1919-1920	(4)-(13)
PART III
MEMORANDUM BY THE CHIEF SECRETARY EXPLANATORY OF THE FIGURES UNDER EACH MAJOR REVENUE HEAD AND UNDER EACH MAJOR EXPENDITURE HEAD OF ACCOUNT.
INTRODUCTORY	(14)-(15)
I. & 3. LAND REVENUE	(15)-(17)
IV. & 6. STAMPS	(17)-(18)
V. & 7. EXCISE	(18)-(20)
VIII. & 10. INCOME-TAX	(20)-(21)
IX. & 11. FOREST	(21)-(22)
X. & 12. REGISTRATION	(22)-(23)
1. REFUNDS AND DRAWBACKS	(24)
2. ASSIGNMENTS AND COMPENSATIONS	(24)
XII. & 13. INTEREST	(25)
18. GENERAL ADMINISTRATION	(26)
XVI-A. & 19-A. LAW AND JUSTICE—COURTS OF LAW	(26)-(28)
XVI-B. & 19-B. LAW AND JUSTICE—JAILS	(28)-(29)
XVII. & 20. POLICE	(29)-(31)
XVIII. & 21. PORTS AND PILOTAGE	(31)
XIX. & 22. EDUCATION	(31)-(36)
XX-A. & 24-A. MEDICAL	(37)-(39)
XX-B. & 24-B. SANITATION	(39)-(41)
25. POLITICAL	(41)
XXI-A. & 26-A. AGRICULTURE	(41)-(43)
XXI-B. & 26-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS	(43)-(45)
XXII. & 29. SUPERANNUATIONS	(45)
XXIII. & 30. STATIONERY AND PRINTING	(46)
XXV. & 32. MISCELLANEOUS	(47)-(49)
33. FAMINE RELIEF	(49)
XXIX. & 42. IRRIGATION—MAJOR WORKS	(49)-(51)
XXX. & 43. MINOR WORKS AND NAVIGATION	(51)-(52)
XXXI. & 45. CIVIL WORKS	(52)-(55)
TRANSFERS BETWEEN IMPERIAL AND PROVINCIAL REVENUES	(56)-(58)
PROVINCIAL ADVANCE AND LOAN ACCOUNT	(58)-(62)
ANNEXURE I SHOWING DISTRIBUTION OF THE GRANT OF 17.28 LAKHS IN 1919-1920 TO DISTRICT BOARDS IN AID OF THEIR RESOURCES	(63)
ANNEXURE II SHOWING THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE GRANT OF 20 LAKHS IN 1918-1919 TO LOCAL BOARDS FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF IMPORTANT ROADS	(63)
PART IV
MEMORANDUM DETAILING THE VARIATIONS BETWEEN THE FIGURES IN THE DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT AND THOSE IN THE PRESENT AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT	(64)-(68)

PART

Balance Statement of proposed Receipts and Charges for 1919-1920, and the Accounts

Heads of Revenue.	Accounts, 1917-1918.	Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
1	2	3	4	5
LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.
I. LAND REVENUE	297.45	305.69	291.54	305.17
IV. STAMPS	77.12	79.75	78.37	80.00
V. EXCISE	201.76	208.14	226.16	229.08
VIII. INCOME-TAX	38.30	37.50	40.50	45.00
IX. FOREST	54.58	48.45	42.63	49.36
X. REGISTRATION	24.72	25.50	25.60	26.50
XII. INTEREST	4.57	5.00	4.78	5.28
XVI. LAW AND JUSTICE—
A. Courts of Law	11.34	10.79	10.10	10.91
B. Jails	7.70	6.10	9.92	7.08
XVII. POLICE	5.40	5.32	5.33	5.46
XVIII. PORTS AND PILOTAGE			.01	.01
XIX. EDUCATION	3.55	4.28	3.79	5.20
XX-A. MEDICAL	1.57	2.35	2.90	2.71
XX-B. SANITATION	.16	.14	.47	.15
XXI-A. AGRICULTURE	1.89	1.99	2.31	3.74
XXI-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS.	18.72	17.21	17.88	19.56
XXII. RECEIPTS IN AID OF SUPERANNUATION.	1.26	1.20	2.04	1.47
XXIII. STATIONERY AND PRINTING	1.68	1.25	1.55	1.42
XXV. MISCELLANEOUS	2.02	3.12	2.56	2.64
XXIX. IRRIGATION—MAJOR WORKS—
Direct Receipts	1.60	1.60	1.63	1.61
Portion of Land Revenue due to Irrigation.	54.16	51.83	53.23	53.61
XXX. MINOR WORKS AND NAVIGATION—
In charge of Civil Officers	.25	.23	.22	.25
" of Public Works Officers.	2.92	2.50	2.75	2.90
XXXI. CIVIL WORKS—
In charge of Civil Officers	.42	.10	.84	.10
" of Public Works Officers	4.41	4.29	4.33	4.25
Total Receipts	817.55	824.33	831.44	863.46
Transfers between Imperial and Provincial Revenues.	+ 16.75	+ 21.11	+ 26.33	+ 21.12
Total	834.30	845.44	857.77	884.58
Opening Balance	152.38	193.57	201.08	203.19
Grand Total	986.68	1,039.01	1,058.85	1,087.77

I.
embodying also the Revised and Budget Estimates for 1918-1919 for 1917-1918.

Heads of Expenditure.	Accounts, 1917-1918.	Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
1	2	3	4	5
LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.
1. REFUNDS AND DRAWBACKS	2.71	2.80	3.70	3.10
2. ASSIGNMENTS AND COMPENSATIONS	2.78	3.05	3.12	3.10
3. LAND REVENUE	124.81	127.63	129.50	134.24
6. STAMPS	2.44	2.26	2.33	2.31
7. EXCISE	9.03	9.21	10.40	11.23
10. INCOME-TAX	.34	.34	.46	.55
11. FOREST	30.20	30.17	31.30	37.25
12. REGISTRATION	13.40	13.53	15.07	16.20
13. INTEREST ON ORDINARY DEBT	3.50	3.86	3.84	4.20
18. GENERAL ADMINISTRATION	15.85	15.86	16.35	17.09
19. LAW AND JUSTICE—
A. Courts of Law	85.13	89.13	89.70	98.76
B. Jails	16.70	16.03	20.56	18.23
20. POLICE	117.33	120.73	120.46	136.51
21. PORTS AND PILOTAGE	.51	.43	.49	.49
22. EDUCATION	94.05	112.98	106.77	128.98
24-A. MEDICAL	21.73	26.34	25.95	36.57
24-B. SANITATION	16.43	14.38	14.70	22.35
25. POLITICAL	.89	.89	.91	.92
26-A. AGRICULTURE	12.87	15.68	15.65	20.97
26-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS.	13.78	17.77	17.09	22.93
29. SUPERANNUATION ALLOWANCES AND PENSIONS.	33.33	35.65	35.98	37.00
30. STATIONERY AND PRINTING	14.43	14.63	14.16	14.84
32. MISCELLANEOUS	5.53	13.81	5.25	16.00
33. FAMINE RELIEF			.19	.25
42. IRRIGATION—MAJOR WORKS—
Working Expenses	11.07	11.50	9.95	8.62
Interest on Debt	15.41	14.79	15.56	15.69
43. MINOR WORKS AND NAVIGATION—
In charge of Civil Officers	7.69	8.75	7.28	8.69
" of Public Works Officers	32.95	33.50	37.50	36.30
45. CIVIL WORKS—
In charge of Civil Officers	28.83	27.05	48.19	36.34
" of Public Works Officers	51.88	59.35	53.25	68.87
Total Expenditure	785.60	842.10	855.66	958.58
Closing Balance	201.08	196.91	203.19	129.19
Grand Total	986.68	1,039.01	1,058.85	1,087.77
Surplus	48.70	3.34	2.11	..
Deficit	..	..	..	74.00

C. G. TODHUNTER,
Acting Chief Secretary

3rd February 1919.

(4) AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

PART II

Memorandum by the Finance Member.

General Financial Situation.

Before referring to the financial situation of the Province, as exhibited in the budget figures for the current and the ensuing years, I desire to draw the attention of Honourable Members to the change in the Financial Rules which, with the sanction of the Government of India, has lately been introduced. Under Rule 10 of the Financial Rules, as it formerly ran, three preliminary versions or issues of the Financial Statement were prepared and were usually supplied to the Council before it became merged in the budget. The first was called the Draft Financial Statement and was circulated to Honourable Members early in February. The second was called the Amended Draft Financial Statement and was supplied to Honourable Members in the first week of March. Finally, there was a third edition known as the Revised Financial Statement which was issued to Honourable Members in the second week in March and which was discussed at a meeting of the Council not later than the 13th of March. By that date the orders of the Government of India upon the second edition of the budget had been received, the Government of India's own budget was complete and had generally been presented to the Imperial Legislative Council, and it was already too late, except at the cost of great inconvenience, to make any changes in the budget estimates for the ensuing year. The result of this was that except on one occasion no such changes have been carried out during recent years, and the Legislative Council, although it was intended to discuss the Financial Statement with a view to making any amendments deemed desirable, was practically presented with the final figures which could only be altered with great inconvenience. With a view to remove this anomaly in the Financial Rules, this Government addressed the Government of India last year and proposed that, instead of the latest preliminary issue of the Financial Statement being presented to the Legislative Council on a date not later than the 13th of March, it should in future be presented on a date not later than the 5th of February. This latest preliminary edition of the Financial Statement is now to be called the Amended Draft Financial Statement. The Revised Financial Statement is thus no longer necessary and there will in future be only two preliminary editions or issues of the Financial Statement, viz., the Draft Financial Statement, which is circulated to the Council in the last week of January, and the Amended Draft Financial Statement, which is presented to the Council on the 5th of February, copies being supplied to Honourable Members on the preceding day. The Government hope that these amendments of the rules will be welcomed by the Council as affording it a better opportunity for discussing the figures of the budget estimates before they have taken such final shape as to render it very difficult to alter them.

2. I now turn to the general financial position of the Presidency in the current and coming financial years so far as it is at present ascertained. The following figures give a general view of the position:—

	Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.
Opening balance	193.57	201.08	203.19
Receipts	845.44	857.77	844.58
Expenditure	842.10	855.66	958.58
Surplus or deficit	3.34	2.11	74.00
Closing balance	196.91	203.19	129.19

Two features presented by these figures are likely to attract attention. In the first place, the growth of revenue, which has been so marked a feature of recent years, has continued during the current year in spite of the facts that the south-west rains which are due in this Presidency in June were markedly deficient over a very large area and that the north-east monsoon was more than a month behind time and was excessive in some areas and deficient in others. The unfavourable season has resulted in diminished receipts under Land Revenue of 25½ lakhs of which the Provincial share is 12½ lakhs. But this loss has been more than made good by increases under other heads, notably Excise and Income-tax. The great rise in grain prices which has marked recent years in India has given the agriculturist a larger price for his crop and has enabled him to pay higher wages to his labourers. While those persons whose incomes are fixed and who have been unable to add to their resources are greatly prejudiced by the rise of prices, the agricultural producer has often benefited and the wage-earning classes have secured higher wages, without which indeed they could not have borne the high prices of foodstuffs which have prevailed. It may well be assumed that both these causes have contributed to swell the receipts from various sources of revenue, especially Excise which, as we shall see below, has yielded a much larger sum than in previous years although the actual consumption of liquor has remained practically stationary or has decreased.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

(5)

3. The other main feature which will strike the observer of the figures given in paragraph 2 relates to the opening and closing balances of the year. Honourable Members will observe that at the end of the year 1917-1918 the closing balance amounted to 201.08 lakhs. In the year 1918-1919, in spite of the fact that the Provincial expenditure has increased by 13½ lakhs over and above the budget estimate of the year, the closing balance is expected to be still higher than that of the year 1917-1918 and to reach the very high figure of 203.19 lakhs. Under the orders of the Government of India Local Governments were hitherto precluded from budgeting for expenditure within the year in excess of the revenues of that year, but in view of the cessation of hostilities and of the very large Provincial balances which have accumulated, this Government applied to the Government of India to permit a draft on balances to be made in the year which will now shortly commence and it will be seen that, according to the estimates which are now presented to the Council, no less than 74 lakhs are proposed to be spent in the year 1919-1920 in excess of the receipts of that year. This large excess expenditure over receipts will be met from balances and will reduce the balance at credit of this Presidency from 203.19 lakhs to 129.19 lakhs. The manner in which this extra expenditure is going to be employed will appear later in the statement, but it may be stated in passing that it is to be used for three main objects—first the grant of more liberal war allowances to Government servants on pay of Rs. 50 and under in order to relieve them to some extent from the hardship caused by the increased price of the necessaries of life. This accounts for an additional expenditure of 37 lakhs. Secondly, it is proposed to make a special grant of 20 lakhs to local bodies in the current year and 6 lakhs in the coming year in order to enable them to execute special repairs to the trunk roads upon which the restriction of railway traffic due to the war has thrown an exceptional burden. In the third place, a large additional provision has been made for expenditure on education, the budget for the coming year for this object being 16 lakhs more than that for the current year.

4. In Part III of this Financial Statement will be found the usual memorandum prepared by the Chief Secretary explaining in detail the estimates of revenue and expenditure under each major head. I shall therefore confine myself to the more important variations in the figures, dealing first with the revised estimate of the current year and next with the budget for the ensuing year.

Revised Estimate, 1918-1919.

5. The broad results of the figures in the revised estimate for the current year as compared with the budget are as follows:—

	Actuals, 1917-1918.	Budget, 1918-1919.	Revised, 1918-1919.	Difference.
	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.
Opening balance	152.38	193.57	201.08	+ 7.51
Receipts	834.30	845.44	857.77	+ 12.33
Expenditure	785.60	842.10	855.66	+ 13.56
Surplus	48.70	3.34	2.11	— 1.23
Closing balance	201.08	196.91	203.19	+ 6.28
				2

(6)

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

6. Revised Estimate—Receipts.—The table below exhibits the figures for receipts relating to the budget and revised estimates for the current year:—

Heads of Revenue.	Actuals. 1917- 1918.	Budget estimate, 1918- 1919.	Revised estimate, 1918- 1919.	Variation of revised from budget [column (4) (3) - (2)]
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)
	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.
I. LAND REVENUE (PROPER) AND XXIX. PORTION OF LAND REVENUE DUE TO IRRIGATION	351.61	377.52	344.77	- 12.75
IV. STAMPS	77.12	79.75	78.37	- 1.38
V. EXCISE	201.76	208.14	226.16	+ 18.02
VIII. INCOME-TAX	38.30	37.50	40.50	+ 3.00
IX. FOREST	54.58	48.45	42.63	- 5.82
X. REGISTRATION	24.72	25.50	27.60	+ 2.10
XVI-B. LAW AND JUSTICE—JAILS	7.70	6.10	9.92	+ 3.82
XXI-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS	18.72	17.21	17.88	+ .67
OTHER HEADS	43.04	44.16	45.61	+ 1.45
TOTAL ..	817.55	824.33	831.44	+ 7.11
TRANSFERS BETWEEN IMPERIAL AND PROVINCIAL ..	16.75	21.11	26.33	+ 5.22
TOTAL RECEIPTS ..	834.30	845.44	857.77	+ 12.33

7. It will be seen that the main increases of revenue occur under Excise, Income-tax and Jails. The increase under Jails has resulted from the large demands by the Military Department for jail manufactures, while that under Income-tax is due to the collection of large outstanding arrears of the past year. But it is the Excise revenue which has added most to the resources of the year. While the budget estimate of 1918-1919 was under consideration, it was decided to introduce some considerable enhancements of the duties on liquor, details of which are given in paragraph 15 of the Chief Secretary's memorandum. These enhancements followed on previous drastic increases in taxation and the results of this policy will be seen in the following table:—

	Foreign liquor.			Country spirits. Gallons.	Toddy. Gallons.	Total excise revenue. RS.
	Wines. Gallons.	Spirits. Gallons.	Beer. Gallons.
1912-1913	Not available.			1,773,673	111,787,131	3,31,86,831
1913-1914	29,520	162,164	662,784	1,782,032	112,845,489	3,05,11,075
1914-1915	49,354	228,095	1,140,630	1,646,649	107,280,834	3,66,18,734
1915-1916	24,924	173,781	845,051	1,491,470	103,932,557	3,51,18,758
1916-1917	28,340	145,083	792,413	1,644,466	105,936,414	3,72,02,608
1917-1918	25,933	124,380	815,917	1,648,150	111,258,719	4,03,52,100
1918-1919 (estimated) ..	Not available.			1,682,000	105,895,000	4,52,32,000

It will be seen that, while consumption has been reduced since 1913-1914 by 100,000 proof-gallons of country spirits and by 6,950,000 gallons of toddy, the revenue has increased in the same period by 87½ lakhs. Thus for a period of six or, if 1912-1913 is taken into account, of seven years, the abkārī administration has succeeded in arresting and to some extent reducing the consumption of country spirits and toddy while adding greatly to the revenues of the Presidency. The extent to which the taxation of alcoholic liquor and drugs has been enhanced of late years will be clear from the statement given below. No reasonable person will believe that if these enhancements of taxation had not been imposed the consumption would not have enormously increased instead of being kept stationary.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

(7)

Country spirits.		Tree tax (Coconuts).		Ganja.		Opium.
Per proof gallon for an average district. RS. A.		For an average district. RS. A.		Per seer. RS. A.		Per seer. RS. A.
1894-95 ...	4 6	1896-97 ...	2 4	1899-00 ...	4 0	1908-09 ...	12 8
1906-07 ...	5 0	1906-07 ...	3 0	1906-07 ...	5 0	1909-10 ...	15 8
				1911-12 ...	7 8	1910-11 ...	20 8
1909-10 ...	5 10	1909-10 ...	3 6	1914-15 ...	10 0	1912-13 ...	25 8
1911-12 ...	6 4	1913-14 ...	3 12	1915-16 ...	12 8	1913-14 ...	30 8
1913-14 ...	6 14	1918-19 ...	4 8	1918-19 ...	15 0	1918-19 ...	32 0
1918-19 ...	7 8			1919-20 ...	17 8	1919-20 ...	37 0

8. The increases thus contributed by Excise, Income-tax, Jails and other heads have been a good deal cut down by decreases under Land Revenue, Forest and Stamps. The receipts from Land Revenue must always be dependent on the character of the season, and defective or untimely or even excess rains may at any time upset the forecast. The only course open is to budget on the assumption of a normal season as was done for 1918-1919. The short collection of nearly 12.75 lakhs is due to the remissions and suspensions caused by the bad season which we are at present suffering from. Under Forest, the failure to realize the revenue expected is due mainly to an arrangement entered into with the Munitions Board by which they have assumed complete control over tan-stuffs in return for an annual payment of an amount equal to the average of the pre-war receipts from the lease of such materials. This arrangement was not entered into until after the budget of the year had been framed. Its effect is to deprive Provincial revenues of some of the benefit they had previously derived from the enhanced prices due to the war. The Government did not feel justified in claiming to continue to profit from the inflated rates due to this cause. The fluctuations under Stamps and other heads hardly call for remark here.

9. Revised Estimate—Expenditure.—The statement below gives the details for the more important heads of expenditure in the current year:—

Heads of Expenditure.	Actuals. 1917-1918.	Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Variations between budget and revised [column (4) - column (3).]
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)
	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.
3. LAND REVENUE	124.81	127.63	129.50	+ 1.87
11. FOREST	30.20	30.17	31.30	+ 1.13
12. REGISTRATION	13.40	13.53	15.07	+ 1.54
18. GENERAL ADMINISTRATION	15.85	15.86	16.35	+ .49
19-A. LAW AND JUSTICE—COURTS OF LAW ..	85.13	89.13	89.70	+ .57
19-B. LAW AND JUSTICE—JAILS	16.70	16.03	20.56	+ 4.53
20. POLICE	117.33	120.73	120.46	- .27
22. EDUCATION	94.05	112.98	106.77	- 6.21
24-A. MEDICAL	21.73	26.34	25.95	- .39
24-B. SANITATION	16.43	14.38	14.70	+ .32
26-A. AGRICULTURE	12.87	15.68	15.65	- .03
26-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS	13.78	17.77	17.09	- .68
29. SUPPLEMENTARY ALLOWANCES, ETC. ..	33.33	35.65	35.98	+ .33
30. STATIONERY AND PRINTING	14.43	14.63	14.16	- .47
32. MISCELLANEOUS	5.53	13.81	5.25	- 8.56
42. IRRIGATION—MAJOR WORKS—WORKING EXPENSES	11.07	11.50	9.95	- 1.55
42. IRRIGATION—MAJOR WORKS—INTEREST ON DEBT	15.41	14.79	15.56	+ .77
43. MINOR WORKS AND NAVIGATION—CIVIL OFFICERS	7.69	8.75	7.28	- 1.47
43. MINOR WORKS AND NAVIGATION—PUBLIC WORKS OFFICERS	32.95	33.50	37.50	+ 4.00
45. CIVIL WORKS—CIVIL OFFICERS	28.53	27.05	48.19	+ 21.14
45. CIVIL WORKS—PUBLIC WORKS OFFICERS ..	51.88	59.35	53.25	- 6.10
OTHER HEADS	22.20	22.84	25.44	+ 2.60
TOTAL EXPENDITURE ..	785.60	842.10	855.66	+ 13.56

(8) AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

10. These figures show that we expect to spend in the year 1918-1919 some 13½ lakhs more than was budgeted for. Two main causes contribute to this result. One is the grant of the war allowances to Government servants on pay of Rs. 50 and under. This is expected to cost about 15 lakhs in the current year, and as already stated 37 lakhs next year, but I do not think that any Member of the Council will grudge this assistance to the poorer servants of Government whose incomes are fixed and who have therefore suffered severely from the high prices of the necessities of life. It is distributed under practically all heads. The other main cause is the distribution among district boards of a special contribution of 20 lakhs to enable them to carry out special repairs to certain trunk roads which were burdened with heavy traffic as a result of the restrictions on railway traffic and also for the construction of bridges and causeways on some of the more important roads. The Government of India were asked to make a special contribution from Imperial funds for this purpose, but were unable to give a reply more favourable than that we were at liberty to draw on our balances, if necessary, which has been done.

The reduction under Miscellaneous is of course due to the provision made under this head for unforeseen expenditure having been reappropriated during the course of the year. I do not think it is necessary to give further explanation of the changes under other heads, as they are dealt with in the Chief Secretary's Memorandum.

Budget Estimate, 1919-1920.

11. Budget Estimate—Receipts.—I turn now to the estimates for the coming year, the main outline of which has already been given in paragraph 2. The chief features of the budget proposals under receipts are summarized in the following table:—

Heads of Revenue.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.	Difference.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)
	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.
I. LAND REVENUE and XXIX. PORTION OF LAND REVENUE DUE TO IRRIGATION	344.77	358.78	+ 14.01
IV. STAMPS	78.37	80.00	+ 1.63
V. EXCISE	226.16	229.08	+ 2.92
VIII. INCOME-TAX	40.50	45.00	+ 4.50
IX. FOREST	42.63	49.36	+ 6.73
X. REGISTRATION	25.60	26.50	+ .90
XXI-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS.	17.88	19.56	+ 1.68
OTHER HEADS	55.53	53.18	— .35
TOTAL	831.44	863.46	+ 32.02
TRANSFERS BETWEEN IMPERIAL AND PROVINCIAL	26.33	21.12	— 5.21
TOTAL RECEIPTS	857.77	884.58	+ 26.81

12. Assuming, as we must do, that the seasonal conditions of the coming year will be normal, we take credit for the normal revenue, including the recovery of suspended items and the introduction of resettlement rates in certain portions of South Arcot and Madura. The estimates under Excise have been framed on a conservative basis. It may be argued that with both wages and the prices of agricultural produce as high as they are now we ought to have assumed a larger growth of revenue under this head and the point is certainly arguable. But in view of the very large expansion during the current year it seemed safer to adopt an attitude of caution. Other variations are explained in the Chief Secretary's Memorandum.

13. Budget estimate—Expenditure.—The budgeted expenditure under the main heads is compared in the following table with that of 1918-1919:—

Heads of expenditure.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.	Difference.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)
	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.
3. LAND REVENUE	129.50	134.24	+ 4.74
11. FOREST	31.30	37.25	+ 5.95
12. REGISTRATION	15.07	16.20	+ 1.13
18. GENERAL ADMINISTRATION	16.35	17.09	+ .74
19-A. LAW AND JUSTICE—COURTS OF LAW	89.70	98.76	+ 9.06
19-B. LAW AND JUSTICE—JAILS	20.56	18.23	— 2.33
20. POLICE	120.46	136.51	+ 16.05
22. EDUCATION	106.77	128.98	+ 22.21
24-A. MEDICAL	25.95	36.57	+ 10.62
24-B. SANITATION	14.70	22.35	+ 7.65
26-A. AGRICULTURE	15.65	20.97	+ 5.32
26-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS	17.09	22.93	+ 5.84
29. SUPERANNUATION ALLOWANCES, ETC.	35.98	37.00	+ 1.02
30. STATIONERY AND PRINTING	14.16	14.84	+ .68
32. MISCELLANEOUS	5.25	16.00	+ 10.75
42. IRRIGATION—MAJOR WORKS—
WORKING EXPENSES	9.95	8.62	— 1.33
INTEREST ON DEBT	15.56	15.69	+ .13
43. MINOR WORKS AND NAVIGATION—
CIVIL OFFICERS	7.28	8.69	+ 1.41
PUBLIC WORKS OFFICERS	37.50	36.30	— 1.20
45. CIVIL WORKS—
CIVIL OFFICERS	48.19	36.34	— 11.85
PUBLIC WORKS OFFICERS	53.25	68.87	+ 15.62
OTHER HEADS	25.44	26.15	+ .71
TOTAL EXPENDITURE	855.66	958.58	+ 102.92

14. A glance at the statement above will show that the budget provides for a considerable increase in expenditure under almost all heads. The only substantial decrease shown—that appearing under CIVIL WORKS—CIVIL OFFICERS—is apparent rather than real, since the figure of the revised estimate is swelled by the grant of 20 lakhs referred to in paragraph 3.

As already explained, one of the main causes contributing to the increase is the grant of war allowances to lower paid subordinates.

I will touch briefly upon the main heads of interest below.

15. The most important item is Education which shows an increase of 22.21 lakhs over the revised estimate for the current year, while as compared with the budget estimate for 1918-1919 the increase is 16 lakhs. The chief items contributing to the latter sum are—

	LAKHS.
(i) Grant for University buildings	1.00
(ii) Government Schools—General—Subsidies to local bodies, mainly for opening new elementary schools	4.00
(iii) Government Schools—General—Subsidies to local bodies—Elementary and Secondary schools (buildings and equipment)	4.48
(iv) Government Schools—Special—Institute of Commerce, Madras, (32), agricultural middle schools (25), opening three additional elementary training schools (66)	1.23
(v) Grants-in-aid	3.33

16. The following statement shows the expenditure on education including industries, incurred in recent years from all public sources, i.e., Imperial, Provincial, Local and Municipal funds. It includes both recurring and non-recurring charges

(12) AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE Balances.

21. The non-recurring grants given by the Government of India for specific objects of expenditure since the year 1910-1911 amount to about 180 lakhs. At the end of the current year 1918-1919 the unexpended balance of these special grants will be 16.43 lakhs. The amount which will be spent in 1919-1920 and the balance expected to remain at the end of that year are given below :—

Object of grant.	Balance on 31st March 1919.	Expenditure in 1919-1920.	Balance on 31st March 1920.
	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.
Education	10.30	4.54	5.76
Technical education	.75	.50	.25
Agricultural education	3.50	1.50	2.00
Buildings required under the district reorganization	1.88	.09	1.79
Total ..	16.43	6.63	9.80

Our total balance at the end of 1919-1920 will be 129.19 lakhs, but 9.80 lakhs of this will consist of the balances of special Imperial grants as shown above so that our Provincial balance proper on the 31st March 1920 will be 119.39 lakhs as against the minimum obligatory balance of 20 lakhs.

It may be contended that a budget which has the effect of reducing the Provincial balance from 203 lakhs to 129 lakhs and which involves a Provincial expenditure of 958½ lakhs, by far the highest on record, is open to the charge of extravagance. It should, however, be remembered that with the restoration of peace conditions and with a normal rainfall, such as we hope the next seasons will enjoy, the present high prices of the necessities of life may be expected to fall and the temporary war allowances to low-paid Government servants can then be withdrawn, while the special grant of 6 lakhs to District Boards for trunk roads as well as the whole of the 22 lakhs of grants to local bodies for other purposes are not necessarily recurring and could be omitted in future years. Thus a sum almost equal to the whole of the draft on balances is proposed to be devoted to objects which will not commit future framers of the budget to permanent outlay. On the other hand the large Provincial balance which had accumulated during the war has been paid for by the taxpayer in this Presidency and it seemed better to disburse some of it for his benefit than to hoard it for an uncertain future.

Recommendations of the Finance Committee.

22. Following the usual practice, I append a list of the recommendations made by the Finance Committee and accepted. The discussions of the Committee covered a very wide field and were, it may be hoped, of advantage to the non-official members of the Committee in furnishing them with information as to the progress of schemes in which they were interested and in enabling them to bring forward points to which they attached importance. Even where the suggestions of individual members of the Committee could not from one cause or another be at once adopted they were often of use in drawing attention to the subjects dealt with.

Service head.	Nature of item.	Amount.
		LAKHS.
(1) 22-E. Education—Gov- ernment Schools, General—Payments in support of local board and municipal schools.	Grants to local bodies for elementary school buildings.	3.85
(2) Do.	Grants to local bodies for secondary school build- ings, including buildings in connexion with the programme for increasing the number of secondary schools.	2.50
(3) Do.	Grants for the equipment of secondary schools under public management.	1.00

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

(13)

Service head.	Nature of item.	Amount. LAKHS.
(4) 22-G. Education— Grants-in-aid.	Grants for the equipment of aided secondary schools.	1.00
Do.	For playgrounds	.50
(5) 22. Education	Medical inspection of schools (.08 already entered, raised to .14).	.06
(6) 24-A. Medical	Grants to local bodies for medical buildings ..	3.00
(7) 24-B. Sanitation	Do. minor sanitary works.	5.00
(8) Do.	Grant to the Madras Corporation for minor sanitary works.	1.00
(9) 26-B. Scientific and Miscellaneous Depart- ments.	Scholarships in industrial and technical schools to provide for industrial scholarships for students to be sent to Europe or America. (Rs. 9,260 already entered, raised to Rs. 18,260).	.09
(10) 32-D. Miscellaneous ..	Contributions in aid of municipal balances ..	.50
(11) 45. Civil Works—in charge of Civil Officers.	Grants to local bodies for bridges and cause- ways.	3.00
(12) Do.	Grants to poorer district boards for village or other roads.	5.00
(13) Do.	Works in the Ganjam Agency	.09
(14) Do.	Grant to the Vizagapatam District Board ..	.47
(15) Do.	Grant to the Koraput District Board	.79
(16) Do.	Works in the Vizagapatam Agency	.01
(17) Do.	Grant to the Gōdāvari District Board	.72
(18) Do. —Public Works Department— Works in charge of Civil Officers acting as Public Works Disbur- sers.	Works in the Vizagapatam Agency	.30
Total ..		28.88

3rd February 1919.

A. G. CARDEW.

PART III.

Memorandum explanatory of the figures under each Major Revenue head and under each Major Expenditure head of account.

Introductory.

The conditions of Provincial finance are determined by the terms of an administrative arrangement subsisting between the Government of India and the Local Government and known as the Provincial Settlement. The revenue and expenditure of the province as classified in the public accounts are divided between the two Governments in accordance with the terms of this settlement.

With effect from the 1st April 1911 this Provincial Settlement, which had hitherto been subject to change, was made permanent subject to the following conditions:—

- (1) It shall not be subject to revision in the future, except by way of commuting fixed assignments into growing revenue;
- (2) in case of serious famine the question of assistance from Imperial revenues will be duly considered by the Government of India;
- (3) in special cases where the Local Government are unable to meet their requirements from their current revenues or by drawing on their balances, they should take the necessary amount as a short interest-bearing loan from the Government of India repayable in suitable instalments; and
- (4) the Government of India reserve the right to call for assistance from Provincial revenues in case of serious embarrassment in their own finances.

At the same time Forest revenue and expenditure, which had hitherto been divided, were made wholly Provincial.

2. The present statement does not deal with the heads which are wholly Imperial. The following table shows the several heads of revenue and expenditure which are divided between Imperial and Provincial:—

Revenue.			Expenditure.
Major heads.	Imperial share.	Provincial share.	Major heads.	Imperial share.	Provincial share.
1	2	3	4	5	6
I. LAND REVENUE ..	One-half	One-half	1. REFUNDS AND DRAWBACKS.	The share in the minor heads under this major head follows that of the corresponding major heads of receipts.
IV. STAMPS ..	One-half	One-half	2. ASSIGNMENTS AND COMPENSATIONS.
V. EXCISE ..	One-half	One-half	6. STAMPS ..	One-half	One-half.
VIII. INCOME-TAX ..	One-half	One-half	7. EXCISE ..	One-half	One-half.
XXIX. MAJOR IRRIGATION WORKS.	One-half	One-half	10. INCOME-TAX ..	One-half	One-half.
			33. FAMINE RELIEF ..	Three-fourths.	One-fourth.
			42. MAJOR IRRIGATION WORKS.	One-half	One-half.

The remaining heads dealt with in this statement are wholly Provincial.

Preliminary.

3. Before proceeding to a detailed explanation of the figures for the current and ensuing years under the various major heads, it may be pointed out that, on the expenditure side, both the revised estimate for 1918-1919 and the budget for 1919-1920 include charges on account of the grant of temporary allowances to lower paid Government servants in order to enable them to meet the existing high prices of food-stuffs and other necessities due to the war and other causes. These allowances, which were sanctioned for a period of one year from the 1st March 1918, were at first confined to inferior servants in the public offices in Madras City. They were subsequently extended to all public servants under the control of the Local Government (with the exception of village service establishments and members of the executive police staff) drawing a monthly salary of Rs. 50 and under. The extra cost involved on Provincial funds was about 8.00 per annum. Later on, however, it was found necessary to afford a more substantial measure of relief to subordinates whose salaries did not exceed Rs. 20 per mensem and with this object, additional allowances, involving a total extra cost of about 7.00 per annum to Provincial, were sanctioned with effect from the 1st September 1918.

The question of the adequacy of these allowances again came up for consideration in December last, and on a careful examination of the existing conditions, it was decided to enhance the rates of allowances and to sanction a revised scale with effect from the 1st January 1919. Besides affording a more adequate measure of relief to the subordinates already enjoying the concession, this scheme has been made applicable to members of the executive police staff including police talaiyaris who were hitherto excluded from its scope. This last decision involved a further additional expenditure of about 22.00 per annum, of which about two months' charges are included in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 and a full year's provision appears in the budget for 1919-1920 in the summary under the various major heads.

The revised estimate for 1918-1919 and the budget for 1919-1920 thus include a total extra expenditure of about 15.00 and 37.00, respectively, on account of the grant of these allowances.

I. & 3. Land Revenue.

Revenue.
	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Ordinary revenue	692.47	693.18	694.51	708.86	682.64	710.47
Sale-proceeds of waste lands and redemption of land-tax	2.00	2.56	3.78	2.00	1.90	2.50
Miscellaneous	3.47	4.43	4.94	4.18	5.00	4.59
Total shared ..	697.94	700.17	703.23	715.04	689.54	717.56
Deduct—Portion of Land Revenue due to Irrigation	106.97	102.08	108.33	103.66	106.47	107.22
Net total shared ..	590.97	598.09	594.90	611.38	583.07	610.34
Provincial share ..	295.48	299.04	297.45	305.69	291.54	305.17

5

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

26-43

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Charges of District Administration.	47.12	47.86	48.11	48.58	50.78	51.67
Survey and Settlement	12.20	10.83	13.18	13.38	14.66	14.76
Land Records	29.48	29.33	29.01	29.81	29.61	30.38
Inam Commissioner	20	12	07	17	07	17
Allowances to District and Village officers.	34.55	34.62	34.44	35.09	34.38	35.36
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances.	..	..	..	..	..	1.30
Total ..	123.55	122.76	124.81	127.63	129.50	134.24

Revenue.

4. Ordinary Revenue.—The budget estimate for the current year was framed on the basis of normal conditions. The large decrease in the revised estimate is due to a fall in collections of water-rate and miscellaneous revenue and an increase in remissions on account of the unfavourable conditions in the districts of Ganjam, Vizagapatam, Gōdāvari, Kistna, Kurnool, Cuddapah, Anantapur, Bellary, Chingleput, North Arcot, Chittoor, Tanjore, Madura, Salem and South Kanara. It is also anticipated that the collection of revenue will have to be suspended till the next official year in five districts, the largest amounts being 1.95 in South Kanara and .50 in Salem. The budget estimate for 1919-1920 has been fixed on the assumption that the seasonal conditions in the ensuing year will be better. The budget also takes credit for the introduction of resettlement rates in certain taluks of the South Arcot and Madura districts, and for the collection of the suspended revenue.

5. Sale-proceeds of waste lands and redemption of land-tax and Miscellaneous.—The figures under these two minor heads are fluctuating and are based on actuals. One of the items under the minor head Miscellaneous is "Fees charged for the time and labour of the Land Records staff." The receipts under this item amounted to 1.25 in 1916-1917 and are estimated at 1.12 for 1919-1920.

Expenditure.

6. Charges of district administration.—The increase in the revised estimate is caused mainly by the grant of war allowances to subordinates drawing Rs. 50 and under, and by heavy charges on account of payments for land taken up by the Revenue Department. The lump provision aggregating .60 for the revision of the pay of taluk shroffs and peons will be utilized in the current year. The budget estimate for next year includes a similar provision. It also provides for larger expenditure on temporary establishments for the revision of adangals prior to re-settlement, and war allowances, and includes lump provisions of

(a) .03 for the creation of a leave reserve, as an experimental measure, for the revenue establishments in the North Arcot district; and

(b) .06 for the appointment of accountants in some of the independent Deputy Tahsildars' offices.

No provision has been made for allowances to officers of the Indian Civil Service on account of the stoppage of promotion due to the war as the embargo on leave has been withdrawn. There will be a small reduction in the charges on account of the pay of Collectors owing to the issue of orders that three district charges are to be held by officers of the Provincial Civil Service in addition to the post of Home Secretary now held by an officer of that service.

7. Survey and Settlement.—As in 1917-1918 the budget for the current year provided for one party for estate surveys the cost of which is recoverable from the estates concerned. The increase in the revised estimate is due mainly to the grant of war allowances and to increased expenditure on temporary establishments attached to survey parties, partly counterbalanced by larger recoveries from estates.

8. Land Records.—The budget for 1919-1920 includes provision for proceeding with the revision of village establishments in ryotwari and proprietary areas.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

42-43

9. Allowances to District and Village officers.—To this minor head is debited the expenditure on account of village establishments other than karnams and assistant karnams. The decrease in the revised estimate for 1918-1919, as compared with the budget for that year, occurs under payments on account of Ryotwari Village Service Establishments. The budget estimate for 1919-1920 contains enhanced provision for charges on account of village establishments both in ryotwari tracts and proprietary estates, besides a lump provision of .51 to give effect to revisions of establishments in ryotwari tracts, which have already been sanctioned, but have not yet been introduced owing to the financial stringency caused by the war.

IV. & 6. Stamps.

* Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Sale of general stamps	49.31	52.79	52.68	54.50	55.20	55.80
Sale of court-fee stamps	99.85	101.14	99.90	102.98	99.93	102.70
Duty on impressing documents ..	.98	1.08	.83	1.12	.78	1.12
Fines and penalties	.79	.81	.77	.82	.75	.80
Miscellaneous	.09	.07	.05	.08	.07	.08
Total ..	151.02	155.89	154.23	159.50	156.73	160.00
Provincial share (one-half) ..	75.51	77.95	77.12	79.75	78.37	80.00

* This head is not open to discussion.

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Superintendence	.31	.29	.51	.29	.52	.31
Charges for the sale of general stamps	2.10	2.21	2.22	2.23	2.31	2.29
Charges on sale of court-fee stamps ..	.94	.93	.91	.94	.89	.92
Stamp paper supplied from Central Stores	.79	1.03	1.24	1.06	.95	1.06
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances	..	..	..	..	..	.04
Total ..	4.14	4.46	4.88	4.52	4.67	4.62
Provincial share (one-half) ..	2.07	2.23	2.44	2.26	2.33	2.31

Revenue.

10. The receipts represent the share, credited to this major head, of the sale-proceeds of the unified postal and revenue stamps, the sale-proceeds of bills of exchange and other general stamps, of court-fee stamps, and of stamped papers for copies of documents, the duty for embossing one-anna receipt and cheque stamps, the duty levied under the Indian Stamp Act, 1899, on documents brought for adjudication and on documents unstamped or insufficiently stamped, and fines and penalties levied by Judicial and Revenue officers under the Stamp Act on insufficiently stamped instruments.

11. The revenue from the unified postal and revenue stamps is credited to the Imperial head Post Office. Out of this revenue, the Government of India have sanctioned the credit to the head STAMPS of a sum of 3.50 per annum, the amount being included under the minor head Sale of general stamps.

12. The budget estimate for 1918-1919 allowed for a small expansion in receipts, but the latest actuals on which the revised estimate is framed do not indicate that this will be realized. The increase in the budget estimate for the coming year represents the ordinary growth of revenue which may be expected in a normal year.

Expenditure.

13. The expenditure under this major head relates to the Central Stamp Office, and to charges connected with the sale of general and court-fee stamps, and to the cost of stamp paper.

14. Superintendence.—The clerical establishments of the Stationery and Stamp offices at Madras are placed on a single list, and the total cost of the combined establishment was distributed between the heads 6. STAMPS and 30. STATIONERY AND PRINTING in the proportion of 10 to 17 up to the 1st March 1915. Since then, owing to the revision of the establishment, the proportion has been altered to 13 to 25.

The revised estimate for 1918-1919 includes freight charges on large supplies of post-cards manufactured by the Controller of Stamps, Calcutta.

V. & 7. Excise.

Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1916-1917.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Licence and distillery fees and duties for the sale of liquors and drugs.	329.67	351.00	381.23	393.72	427.94	432.71
Gain on sale-proceeds of excise opium	14.03	13.32	14.08	14.48	14.20	16.00
Duty on ganja	5.36	5.44	5.70	5.70	7.05	6.70
Fines, confiscations and miscellaneous	2.13	2.27	2.51	2.38	3.13	2.76
Total ..	351.19	372.03	403.52	416.28	452.32	458.17
Provincial share (one-half) ..	175.59	186.01	201.76	208.14	226.16	229.08

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1916-1917.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
District Executive establishment ..	.03	.06	.02	.05	.02	.03
Portion of the combined Salt and Excise establishments ..	18.49	18.10	18.03	18.37	20.78	21.89
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances	..	..	..	..	..	.54
Total ..	18.52	18.16	18.05	18.42	20.80	22.46
Provincial share (one-half) ..	9.26	9.08	9.03	9.21	10.40	11.23

Revenue.

15. Licence and distillery fees, etc.—Previous to the year 1914-1915 there was a steady increase in the revenue under this minor head consequent upon successive enhancements of the rates of excise duty on country spirits, larger collections under tree-tax, an increase in consumption of country spirits—notwithstanding successive reductions in the number of shops sold—and increased rentals from toddy, arrack and opium shops. This increase received a check in the year 1914-1915 from the disturbance of economic conditions caused by the war, and the actuals for that year showed a small decline of .74. The year 1915-1916 witnessed a further decline of 15.30. Since 1916-1917, however, there has been a marked recovery and the actuals for that year and the year following show an advance of 21.33 and 30.23, respectively, over those of the previous years. The budget estimate for the current year was on a conservative basis. The progress of actuals however indicates that the revenue will exceed budget anticipations, the increase occurring especially under country spirits and toddy as a result of enhanced rates of taxation on both, and to some extent of high wages. The rates of excise duty on country spirits were raised from 1st April 1918 by 10 annas per proof gallon in most of the districts, by Re. 1-4-0 in the Ceded Districts, Kurnool, Ganjam, Vizagapatam, Madras and South Kanara and by Rs. 2-8-0 in Malabar. The rates of tree-tax were enhanced from 1st October 1918 by 25 per cent in the districts of Ganjam, Vizagapatam, South Kanara and Malabar, by 33½ per cent in the Ceded Districts and Kurnool and by 20 per cent in the rest of the Presidency except Rannad and Tinnevely. The budget estimate for 1919-1920 has been framed after taking into account the present unfavourable agricultural situation in certain districts of this Presidency.

The consumption of country spirits was actually smaller in 1916-1917 than in 1914-1915 and much lower than in 1913-1914 and 1912-1913. There was a trifling increase in consumption in 1917-1918, as compared with the previous year, but it still remained far below that of 1913-1914 and 1912-1913. The figures of consumption of country spirits in the current year, 1918-1919, so far as they are available, indicate that, though there will be a large increase in revenue, there will be a comparatively small increase in consumption as compared with 1917-1918.

16. Gain on sale-proceeds of excise opium.—This Presidency is supplied with Ghazipur opium, free of cost in the first instance. Of the gross sale-proceeds, an amount calculated on the quantity actually sold at a fixed rate representing the estimated cost of production is credited to the Imperial head II. OPIUM, and the balance to the shared head V. EXCISE—Gain on sale-proceeds of excise opium. The rentals derived from opium shops are, however, shown under the minor head Licence and distillery fees, etc. The cost price of opium was raised from Rs. 11 to Rs. 13 per seer with effect from the 1st April 1918. The issue price of opium, which now stands at Rs. 45 per seer will, with effect from the 1st April 1919, be raised to Rs. 50 per seer.

The revised estimate for the current year is based on the latest actuals available, and the budget estimate for the coming year takes account of the increase in the issue price of opium referred to above.

17. The duty on ganja which then stood at Rs. 5 per seer was raised to Rs. 7½ from 1st April 1911, to Rs. 10 from the 1st April 1914, to Rs. 12½ from the 1st April 1915 and to Rs. 15 from the 1st April 1918. There will be a still further increase to Rs. 17½ per seer from the 1st April 1919.

The receipts from this source are credited to the third minor head, viz., Duty on ganja, while the rents from retail shops are shown, as in the case of opium shops, under the minor head Licence and distillery fees, etc.

Expenditure.

18. Under the head District Executive establishment are recorded the charges for registration of agreements of renters of vend areas, and of holders of independent shops, the annual rental of which exceeds Rs. 1,000, and expenditure on rewards and contingencies.

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

Expenditure.

25. To the minor head Conservancy and Works are debited (a) the outlay on the improvement, extension and protection of forests generally, (b) the outlay on communications and buildings under charge of the Forest department, (c) the cost of the extraction and transport to sale depots of timber and other forest produce exploited departmentally, (d) the cost of supervision of the removal of similar produce by private agency, (e) charges for the survey and demarcation of forests and (f) the cost of cattle, stores, tools and plant. The actuals for 1915-1916 include a special expenditure of 1.72 for the acquisition of certain leased forests. The absence of this special item of expenditure accounts for the fall in the actuals for 1916-1917. The increase in the actuals for 1917-1918 and the revised estimate for 1918-1919 is chiefly on account of charges for the preparation of hay for the Munitions Board. Timber operations also contribute to the increase in the revised estimate. The excess in this estimate is however counterbalanced to a certain extent by smaller expenditure on "Communications and buildings" and fire protection and other works in connexion with the organization, improvement and extension of forests.

The budget estimate for 1919-1920 contains enhanced provision for the following items:—

Roads and bridges	+	1.21
Buildings	+	.71
Construction of a tramway in the leased forests at Tekkadi	+	.40
Fire protection	+	.24
Other works in connexion with the organization, improvement and extension of forests	+	.40
	+	2.96

26. Establishment.—The decrease in the revised estimate for the current year as compared with the budget is chiefly under salaries due to the deputation of officers for military duty and under contingencies, counterbalanced by increase under 'Establishments' due mainly to the grant of war allowances. The increase in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 as compared with the revised estimate for the current year is chiefly due to increments payable to officers under the time scale of pay, to the provision made for the continuance during the whole of the coming year of the additional temporary forest staff sanctioned in the course of the current year and to a full year's provision being made for the grant of war allowances and for contract contingencies.

27. The budget estimate for 1919-1920 also provides for the reorganization of (1) the controlling staff of the Forest Department (.25) and (2) the subordinate forest establishment (1.00). The provision of .25 for item (1) represents the pay of a Chief Conservator for nine months in the coming year (.19) and of two Provincial Service officers (.06). The main features of the scheme for the reorganization of the subordinate forest establishment are an increase in the number of Rangers, Deputy Rangers, Foresters and Forest guards and an improvement in their scales of pay. The scheme involves a net extra cost of 3.74 per annum after taking into account savings under temporary establishments, and is to be introduced gradually. The Secretary of State's sanction has not yet been received and the lump provision of 1.00 covers the expenditure likely to be involved in the portion of the scheme that, it is anticipated, will be introduced in the ensuing year.

X. & 12. Registration.

Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Fees for registering documents	19.46	20.51	20.39	21.00	21.20	21.86
Fees for copies of registered documents	.58	.63	.63	.68	.64	.66
Miscellaneous	3.34	3.56	3.70	3.82	3.76	3.98
Total	23.38	24.70	24.72	25.50	25.60	26.50

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Superintendence	.51	.54	.50	.51	.52	.55
District charges	12.05	12.58	12.90	13.02	14.55	15.35
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances	..	..	..	..	..	.30
Total	12.56	13.12	13.40	13.53	15.07	16.20

Revenue.

28. The budget estimate for 1919-1920 has been framed with due regard to the growth of revenue which may be expected under this head on a return to normal conditions.

Expenditure.

29. The minor head Superintendence comprises charges on account of the Inspector-General of Registration, his office establishment and contingencies, while District charges represent the salary of district registrars and sub-registrars and their establishments, and contingent charges.

30. District charges.—The actuals of 1917-1918 included expenditure on account of (1) the reopening of the District Registrars' offices at Nellore and Vizagapatam, (2) the raising of the remuneration of section-writers from Rs. 12 to Rs. 15 per mensem and (3) the formation of a separate Registration district for Ramnad.

The budget estimate for 1918-1919 contained, in addition to the expenditure for a full year on the three schemes mentioned above, a provision of .09 for opening District Registrars' offices in the Kurnool and North Arcot districts, which were sanctioned with effect from the 1st April 1918 and 1st July 1918, respectively. The increase in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 as compared with the budget is accounted for by (a) the grant of war allowances and (b) the introduction from the 1st April 1918, of a scheme for the reorganization of the clerical establishments in Registration offices. The main features of the latter scheme, which involves a net extra cost of .92 per annum, are:—

- (1) a permanent addition of 379 clerks, and
- (2) the introduction of a new scale of pay comprising five grades on Rs. 30, Rs. 27½, Rs. 25, Rs. 22½ and Rs. 20 in lieu of the previous scale of Rs. 25 and Rs. 20.

The budget estimate for 1919-1920, besides providing for enhanced war allowances, includes provision for the following items:—

					LAKHS.
(a) Opening a District Registrar's office at Anantapur	..	..	..	.07		55
(b) Constitution of a Registration district of Palghat	..	..	..	.07		55
(c) Revision of pay of District Registrars	..	..	..	.12		55
(d) Opening new Sub-Registry offices	..	..	..	.15		55

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

* 1. Refunds and Drawbacks.†

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Land Revenue	·80	·80	·89	·75	1·21	·80
Stamps	·81	·86	·87	·88	·80	·88
Excise	·30	·26	·27	·28	·26	·28
Income-tax	·13	·16	·27	·50	1·00	·75
Forest	·31	·57	·36	·34	·37	·34
Registration	·05	·04	·05	·05	·06	·05
Total	2·40	2·69	2·71	2·80	3·70	3·10

* Purely Imperial minor heads which are not under the financial control of the Government of Madras are not shown here.

† Drawbacks occur under Customs only and are wholly Imperial.

31. The amounts shown above represent the debits to Provincial funds of the expenditure under Refunds in proportion to the Provincial shares of the revenues under the respective heads in connexion with which refunds are made. The charges under the head are of a fluctuating character and are not subject to any departmental control. The revised estimate for 1918-1919 and the budget for 1919-1920 provide for increased refunds anticipated under Income-tax with reference to the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1918.

* 2. Assignments and Compensations.†

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Landlords and other grantees ..	·05	·05	·05	·06	·05	·05
Pensions in lieu of resumed lands ..	2·06	2·00	1·87	2·00	2·04	1·98
Malikhana	3·14	2·97	2·91	2·97	3·01	2·97
Miscellaneous Land Revenue com- pensations	·94	·93	·73	1·07	1·14	1·20
Excise compensations	·94	·93	·73	1·07	1·14	1·20
Total	6·19	5·95	5·56	6·10	6·24	6·20
Provincial share (one-half) ..	3·10	2·98	2·78	3·05	3·12	3·10

* Purely Imperial minor heads which are not under the financial control of the Government of Madras are not shown here.

† This head is not open to discussion.

32. The minor heads here are treated as wholly Imperial, wholly Provincial, or divided between Imperial and Provincial, according to the classification of the corresponding heads of revenue. The charges consist chiefly of pensions paid to landholders as compensation for lands resumed by Government, malikhana allowances and other special compensations. Excise compensations represent mainly the compensation paid by Government in lieu of abkārī and opium privileges which have been either leased or resumed in Native States. The main items under this head are an annual payment to the Nawab of Bangauapalle for the lease to Government of the abkārī and opium revenue of that State, a compensation to the Travancore State for the suppression of ganja cultivation, and an annual refund to the French Government of the duty on opium and ganja supplied to French renters.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

XII. & 13. Interest.

* Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
REVENUE	4·43	4·83	4·57	5·00	4·78	5·28

* Purely Imperial minor heads which are not under the financial control of this Government have been left out.

† Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
EXPENDITURE	3·28	3·28	3·50	3·86	3·84	4·20

† This head is not open to discussion.

Revenue.

33. The revenue represents mainly the interest received by the Local Government on advances and loans made from the Provincial advance and loan account. This account, the capital transactions of which are outside the current budget figures, provides for the grant of loans to agriculturists, local bodies, etc. The moneys required for the loans are furnished by the Government of India. The Local Government pay interest thereon and bear losses on account of bad debts. In order to cover risks and cost of management, the Local Government charge a higher rate of interest than that which they have to pay to India.

The revenue under this head also includes interest on Government securities belonging to institutions taken over by Government, along with the endowments for the upkeep of such institutions. In spite of the enhancements which are noticed below of the rate of interest charged by the Government of India to this Government no change has at present been made in the rate charged by this Government for loans to agriculturists. The rate of interest charged on loans to local bodies made after the enhanced rates charged by the Government of India came into force has, however, been raised to 6 per cent.

Expenditure.

34. The interest which is paid to the Government of India by the Local Government on sums placed at the disposal of the latter for advances and loans to local bodies, agriculturists, etc., is shown as expenditure under this head, this interest being calculated on the mean between the outstanding balance of the Provincial advance and loan account at the beginning and at the end of each year. The rate of interest charged to the Local Government was, until recently, $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent per annum, but with effect from the 1st October 1916 this rate was raised to $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent in respect of loans sanctioned by them on or after that date, and again to $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent in respect of loans sanctioned on or after 1st April 1917, while loans sanctioned prior to those dates are charged at the old rate of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

* 18. General Administration. + Expenditure.

59-71

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Salary of the Governor	1.20	1.20	1.20	1.20	1.20	1.20
Staff and household of the Governor	1.12	1.08	1.03	1.34	1.15	1.90
Expenditure from contract allowance	.69	.59	.59	.59	.59	.59
Sumptuary allowance	.07	.07	.07	.07	.07	.07
Tour expenses	.37	.39	.38	.55	.39	.55
Executive Council	2.26	2.26	2.25	2.27	2.30	2.30
Legislative Council	.18	.20	.22	.20	.23	.21
Civil Secretariats	6.45	6.27	6.96	6.55	7.19	7.01
Board of Revenue, Financial Commissioner and Establishments ..	2.00	1.91	1.95	1.88	1.99	1.89
Civil Offices of Account and Audit.	1.17	1.18	1.20	1.21	1.24	1.27
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances	..	..	..	..	..	.10
Total ..	15.51	15.15	15.85	15.86	16.35	17.09

* Purely Imperial minor heads which are not under the financial control of this Government are not shown here.
† Statutory charges under this head are not open to discussion.

62-63 35. Staff and household of the Governor.—The expenditure on the purchase and maintenance of furniture, carpets, and other equipment for Government houses, is shown under this minor head. The increased provision in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 over the revised estimate for the current year represents mainly the non-recurring allowances for renewal of furniture and carpets for the incoming Governor.

62 36. Civil Secretariats.—The increase in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 over the current year's budget estimate is chiefly due to the formation of the Revenue (Special) Department for dealing with matters connected with the war and the developmental departments such as Industries. It has not yet been found possible to abolish this additional Secretariat because there is much work still continuing in connexion with demobilization, winding up enemy concerns, and the like. Meanwhile the question of converting it into a development Secretariat to deal with the branches of administration concerned with the development of the industries, agriculture, fisheries, forests and other resources of the Presidency is under consideration.

The provision under the Home Secretaryship has been increased by .03 with reference to the decision of the Government of India to grant any officer of the Provincial Civil Service who may hold this appointment a local allowance of Rs. 250 in addition to the duty allowance of Rs. 160.

XVI-A. and 19-A. Law and Justice—Courts of Law.

* Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Sale-proceeds of unclaimed and escheated property	.23	.34	.79	.24	.23	.24
Court-fees realized in cash	.32	.36	.38	.37	.36	.39
General fees, fines and forfeitures ..	10.89	9.88	9.58	9.70	8.99	9.67
Pleadership examination fees	.12	.14	.14	.18	.12	.14
Miscellaneous fees and fines	.16	.16	.16	.17	.16	.17
Miscellaneous	.28	.51	.29	.13	.24	.30
Total ..	12.00	11.39	11.34	10.79	10.10	10.91

* This head is not open to discussion.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

72-88

* Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
High Court	12.45	11.89	11.16	12.16	11.19	12.02
Law Officers	2.57	2.79	2.62	2.81	2.71	2.82
Administrator-General	.26	.23	.23	.26	.20	.27
Presidency Magistrates' Courts	.69	.72	.74	.70	.75	.76
Civil and Sessions Courts	38.72	39.55	40.08	42.09	43.29	47.02
Court of Small Causes	1.05	1.31	1.33	1.31	1.34	1.35
Criminal Courts	27.43	27.63	27.62	28.38	29.04	29.82
Pleadership Examination charges ..	.05	.06	.10	.10	.09	.10
Refunds	1.26	1.29	1.25	1.32	1.09	1.35
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances.	..	..	..	..	..	3.25
Total ..	84.48	85.47	85.13	89.13	89.70	98.76

* Statutory charges under this head are not open to discussion.

Revenue.

37. The principal source of revenue is General fees, fines and forfeitures. The revenue under this minor head is, however, liable to fluctuations as it depends largely on the amount of judicial fines inflicted. The receipts under the minor head Pleadership Examination Fees are also liable to fluctuations, as they depend upon the number of candidates appearing.

Expenditure.

38. High Court.—Under this minor head are shown the salaries of the Judges and officers and establishments of the High Court, and the connected contingent expenditure. The high actuals in 1915-1916 were due chiefly to expenditure on printing and translation work executed on behalf of suitors. The charge is covered by receipts credited to the same account.

The decrease in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 as compared with the budget is due mainly to savings in establishment charges and to smaller expenditure on printing and translation work. The budget estimate for 1919-1920 has been framed on the basis of the continuance of the twelve Judges throughout the year.

39. Law Officers.—This minor head comprises the charges on account of the Advocate-General, the Government Solicitor, the Government Pleaders at Madras and in the mufassal, and the appointment of a separate Public Prosecutor in Madras to discharge duties formerly devolving on the Government Pleader. It also includes the fees paid by Government to pleaders in civil and criminal cases.

40. Civil and Sessions Courts.—To this minor head are debited the charges in connexion with the City Civil Court, the Courts of District and Sessions Judges, Subordinate Judges and Munsifs, the judicial establishments of the Government Agents in Ganjam, Vizagapatam and Godavari, and process-serving and copyist establishments. The gradual increase in expenditure is due mainly to the additional temporary courts which it has been found necessary to open in various districts.

The grant of war allowances to establishments drawing Rs. 50 and under accounts for the increase in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 over the budget. The increase is, however, partly counterbalanced by the lapse of the lump provision of .40 for the creation of a District and Sessions Court at Anantapur and savings under copyists' establishments and in the contract contingent expenditure of mufassal courts.

The budget estimate for 1919-1920 includes .20 representing 6 months' charges on account of the creation of a District and Sessions Court at Anantapur and provides for the continuance throughout the year of 22 temporary Sub-Courts and

(28) AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

27 District Munsifs' Courts; it also contains an enhanced provision of .70 on account of war allowances in addition to the enhanced allowances included in the sum of 3.25 entered in the summary. The following lump provisions have also been entered in the budget:—

.30, anticipated increase for additional process-serving establishment.

.82, to pay for a permanent increase in the number of civil courts and the consequent permanent appointment and regrading of Sub-Judges and District Munsifs and

.73, to pay for revision of the pay of clerical establishments in mufassal courts.

41. Criminal Courts.—Under this minor head, the variations in the figures follow the corresponding alterations under the minor head 3-A. LAND REVENUE—Charges of District Administration, a portion of which is transferred to this head. A larger provision under 'supplies and services' and 'contingencies' contributes to the increase in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 over the revised estimate for 1918-1919.

XVI-B. & 19-B. Law and Justice—Jails.

Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1916-1918.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Jails	.08	.07	.09	.07	.12	.08
Jail manufactures	5.03	5.62	7.61	6.03	9.80	7.00
Total	5.11	5.69	7.70	6.10	9.92	7.08

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1916-1918.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Jails	11.36	11.41	11.10	11.58	12.72	12.78
Jail manufactures	3.92	4.22	5.60	4.45	7.84	5.31
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances.	..	..	..	..	..	.14
Total	15.28	15.63	16.70	16.03	20.56	18.23

Revenue.

42. The main source of receipts under the major head LAW AND JUSTICE—JAILS is the sale-proceeds of articles manufactured in jails and supplied to public departments.

43. Jail manufactures.—Large supplies to the Military Department contribute to the increase in the revised estimate for 1918-1919.

Expenditure.

44. Under this head are shown (a) the expenditure connected with the staff employed in the supervision of jails, (b) the charges for the maintenance of convicts, and (c) the cost of the purchase of raw materials for jail manufactures. Items (b) and (c) are fluctuating, being dependent on the strength of the jail population and on demands for jail industries. Variations in the prices of food-grains, and outbreaks of epidemic diseases in jails, also affect the charges for maintenance of prisoners.

45. Jails.—The increase in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 as compared with the budget for that year occurs mainly under "Dietary Charges". Against the current year's budget estimate of 4.95 for this item, the revised estimate for 1918-

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

1919 and the budget for 1919-1920 are placed at 5.72 and 5.50, respectively. The budget for 1919-1920 contains additional provision for the salaries of officers and war allowances.

46. Jail manufactures.—The estimates have, as usual, been framed with reference to the probable demands for jail manufactures next year. The increase in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 as compared with the budget for that year is due to heavy demands for jail-made goods, chiefly from the Military Department. The budget for 1919-1920 does not anticipate a continuance of such demands.

XVII. & 20. Police.

Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1916-1918.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Police supplied to Municipal, Cantonment and Town funds ..	.01	..	..	..	..	..
Police supplied to public departments, private companies and persons	.49	.56	.63	.58	.64	.72
Presidency Police	.61	.67	.66	.69	.65	.65
Fees, fines and forfeitures	3.70	3.70	3.87	3.76	3.79	3.82
Superannuation receipts	.04	.03	.04	.04	.04	.04
Miscellaneous	.22	.24	.20	.25	.21	.23
Total	5.07	5.20	5.40	5.32	5.33	5.46

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1916-1918.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Presidency Police	5.65	5.88	5.86	6.11	6.12	6.60
Superintendence	2.20	2.28	2.24	2.23	2.31	2.23
District Executive Force	79.96	84.50	86.79	89.00	89.07	90.42
Village Police	15.40	15.40	15.45	15.77	15.48	15.94
Criminal Investigation Department	1.68	1.63	1.61	1.69	1.65	1.68
Railway Police	1.46	1.38	1.40	1.50	1.43	1.49
Cattle Pounds	2.33	2.37	2.30	2.36	2.27	2.39
Miscellaneous	1.41	1.30	1.67	2.06	2.11	2.25
Refunds	.01	.01	.01	.01	.02	.01
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances	..	..	..	..	..	13.50
Total	110.10	114.75	117.33	120.73	120.46	136.51

Revenue.

47. The receipts under this head consist mainly of (a) fees and fines levied under the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, (b) the recovery of the cost of the police supplied to public departments, private companies and persons, and (c) fees levied under the Madras Hackney Carriage Act, 1911, and the Indian Motor Vehicles Act, 1914.

Expenditure.

48. The cost of the establishments maintained in connexion with cattle pounds is debited to this head, but the bulk of the expenditure relates to the Police department. The charges relating to the establishment and maintenance of settlements for the reclamation of criminal tribes and for the reception of prisoners are also recorded under the minor head Miscellaneous. The settlements for the reception of prisoners have however been abolished as such since July 1917 and have been constituted as reformatory settlements under the Criminal Tribes Act.

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

94-98 49. Presidency Police.—The budget estimate for 1919-1920 allows for a full year's provision for a second Assistant Commissioner of Police in the Madras City, an increase in the number of city sub-inspectors and sergeants and better recruitment in the town and suburban police force. It also includes the usual lump grant of .22 for the renting of quarters for subordinate police officers in the Madras City. All subordinate officers of the City Police are entitled to free quarters, and residences are being constructed for them as funds are available. In the meanwhile the Inspector-General of Police has been empowered to rent houses for such of these officers as have not yet been provided with Government quarters.

99-107 50. Superintendence.—The salaries of the Inspector-General and of the Deputy Inspectors-General and of their establishments are accounted for under this minor head.

51. District Executive Force.—The salaries of District Superintendents, Assistant and Deputy Superintendents and of their establishments, and the cost of the District Police force, the Provincial Training School at Vellore and the recruit schools for constables are included under this minor head.

52. The scheme for the revision of the pay of the mufassal constabulary was brought into effect during 1916-1917 and it has contributed to increased expenditure from and after that year. The budget for 1918-1919 provided for the full sanctioned strength of the District Police force less probable savings representing the cost of so much of the force as was not likely to be recruited in 1918-1919. Savings are anticipated under 'Salaries' owing to several Assistant Superintendents having joined the Indian Army Reserve of Officers. There is also a saving under Police Force—General and Rewards. These savings are more than counterbalanced by the increases due to the grant of war allowances to the Police executive staff from the 1st January 1919 and by larger expenditure on the police entertained in consequence of plague. The budget estimate for 1919-1920 provides for the return of officers now on military duty and better recruitment. Larger provision has been made under travelling allowances as police constables have now been granted increased daily allowances and the concession of drawing family travelling allowance for journeys on transfer exceeding 200 miles. Larger provision has also been made under 'Supplies and services', chiefly in connexion with clothing, uniforms, arms and accoutrements and rewards. The lump provision of .73 entered in the budget for 1918-1919 for the renting of quarters for the mufassal constabulary has been repeated in the ensuing year's budget.

53. The expenditure in connexion with police talaiyaris appears under the minor head Village Police. Savings anticipated in the provision for talaiyaris in proprietary tracts account for the decrease in the revised estimate under this minor head.

54. The charges of the Criminal Investigation Department including the finger-print establishment, which forms part of this branch, are shown under the fifth minor head. The department is controlled by a Deputy Inspector-General who also supervises the Railway Police.

55. The minor head Railway Police includes the cost of the police staff employed on railways, and one-fourth of the salary of the Deputy Inspector-General for Criminal Investigation and Railways, and of his office establishment. The cost of supervision and of the police executive staff is distributed among the railway companies concerned in proportion to mileage. Seven-tenths of the aggregate cost is recoverable from the companies, the recoveries being shown as deductions from charges.

56. Under the next minor head is shown the expenditure on account of cattle pounds in the mufassal, the charges on account of the pounds in Madras being debited to the minor head Presidency Police.

57. Miscellaneous.—The budget estimate for 1918-1919 included a lump provision of .50 for the construction of school buildings in connexion with the industrial home for the children of criminals at Perambūr. A sum of .20 only is expected to be spent in the current year and a provision of .40 has been included in the budget estimate for 1919-1920. The budget for 1919-1920 also includes provision for non-recurring expenditure in the settlement at Bhumannagadda, Chittoor district, on various objects, such as the construction of a boarding school and an inspection bungalow.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

XVIII. & 21. Ports and Pilotage.

Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Revenue	..	.01	.004	..	.01	.01

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Marine establishments	.47	.37	.51	.43	.49	.49

Revenue.

58. The actuals for 1917-1918 (Rs. 410) represent chiefly the value of unserviceable stores taken over by the Public Works Stores from the Agent for Government Consignments.

Expenditure.

59. The charges under this head relate to the office of the Agent for Government Consignments.

XIX. & 22. Education.

Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Fees—Government Colleges—General.	1.20	1.27	1.33	1.30	1.40	1.63
Fees—Government Colleges—Professional.	1.09	1.23	1.29	1.19	1.48	1.49
Fees—Schools—General	.40	.42	.43	1.32	.40	1.46
Fees—Schools—Special	.13	.14	.14	.15	.17	.23
Income from Endowments	.01	.01	..	..	..	..
Contributions	..	..	.04	..	.07	.05
Miscellaneous	.27	.47	.32	.32	.27	.34
Total	3.10	3.54	3.55	4.28	3.79	5.20

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

122-140.

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
University	85	103	85	99	99	205
Direction	91	92	94	91	102	87
Inspection	847	847	871	926	906	994
Government Colleges—General ..	406	461	448	492	459	547
Government Colleges—Profes- sional.	254	280	329	357	338	368
Government Schools—General ..	2115	2234	3151	3183	3849	4667
Government Schools—Special ..	761	819	873	1019	957	1244
Grants-in-aid	2950	3291	3352	3874	3763	4316
Scholarships	144	158	167	171	168	193
Miscellaneous	43	30	33	36	33	36
Refunds	01	02	02	02	03	02
Lump allotment for the development of primary education.	..	..	..	550	..	..
Lump allotment for taking over the management of four secondary schools.	..	..	..	111	..	132
Lump allotment for opening three Government secondary schools for girls.	..	..	..	..	..	23
Lump allotment for Medical inspec- tion of schools.	..	..	..	08	..	14
Other lump allotments	..	..	..	379	..	..
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances.	..	..	..	..	..	70
Total ..	7697	8317	9405	11298	10677	12898

Revenue.

60. Fees—Government Colleges—General and Professional.—The figures under these two minor heads depend upon the strength of the Government Arts Colleges and of the Law College. The budget estimate for 1919-1920 under "Government Colleges—General," takes credit for 23 being the anticipated fee-income from the Victoria College, Palghat, to be taken under Government management.

61. Fees—Schools—General.—The budget for 1918-1919 took credit for 89, being the estimated fee-income from secondary schools to be taken under Government management. The scheme will, however, not be introduced in 1918-1919. The budget for 1919-1920 includes (a) 89, being the fee-income from the schools referred to above, and (b) 14 being the fee-income from the school department of the Palghat College which is also to be taken under Government management.

Expenditure.

62. University.—The budget estimate of 205 for 1919-1920 is made up of (a) 65 being the recurring Imperial grant, (b) 20 for expenses in connexion with travelling allowances to Fellows, (c) 20 (against 13 in 1918-1919) as a grant towards the cost of publishing a Tamil lexicon, making a total of 87 out of 1 lakh promised, and (d) 100 for a further instalment for expenditure on the construction of the University library buildings, thus completing the promised grant of 300.

63. Inspection.—Of the 75 posts of additional Sub-Assistant Inspectors of Schools which have been sanctioned temporarily from time to time in order to cope with the increased work resulting from the advance of primary education, 54 posts have since been added to the permanent cadre. The variations between the figures relating to the budget and revised estimate for 1918-1919 occur mainly under "Salaries" and "Allowances." The budget for 1919-1920 includes a total provision of 60 (which comes out of the recurring imperial grant of 550 for the development of primary education—vide paragraph 73 infra), for (i) appointment of an additional inspectress of schools (13), (ii) addition of four Inspectors' circles (23), and (iii) appointment of twelve additional Sub-Assistant Inspectors (24).

* The expenditure in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 is included under "Government Schools—General—Second-ary schools for boys—Supplies and Services" (page 132, Civil Budget Estimate).

64. Government Colleges—General.—The decrease in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 as compared with the budget for that year occurs chiefly under "Supplies and Services—European Stores". The revised estimate for the current year includes expenditure on account of (1) the Ceded Districts College at Anantapur which has been raised to the status of a first-grade College, (2) additional Assistant Lecturers in the Presidency, Kumbakonam, Rajahmundry and Mangalore Colleges, and (3) the College for Muhammadans which has been opened in the Government Madrasa-i-Azam, Madras.

The budget for 1919-1920 contains provision for the Palghat College which it is proposed to take under Government management, and for larger allotments under "Supplies and Services."

65. Government Schools—General.—The details of the figures under this minor head are :—

	Accounts, 1917-1918.	Budget, 1918-1919.	Revised, 1918-1919.	Budget, 1919-1920.
(a) Government Schools, proper (secondary and elementary schools for boys and girls) ..	421	482	480	567
(b) Payments in support of local board and municipal schools (secondary, elementary and sessional).	2730	2701 + 220 *	3369	4100
Total ..	3151	3183 + 220 *	3849	4667

* For opening new board high and middle schools (209) and night schools (11).

66. Government Schools—Proper.—The budget for 1919-1920 contains larger provision for "Allowances," "Supplies and Services" and "Contingencies" and includes allotments of (i) 13 for Muhammadan secondary schools recently opened at Kurnool and Guntur, (ii) 05 for a Muhammadan secondary school to be opened at Trichinopoly, (iii) 14 for the opening of three secondary schools for girls (Masulipatam, Cuddalore and Mangalore), (iv) 06 for the reorganization of the girls' schools at Vizianagram, Suryaraopet and Guntur, and (v) 09 for improvement of Muhammadan education.

67. Payments in support of local board and municipal schools.—It is under this sub-head and under the minor head "Grants-in-aid" that the bulk of the expenditure in connexion with the expansion and improvement of elementary education occurs. The following statement shows the details of the charges under this sub-head :—

	Actuals, 1917-1918.	Budget, 1918-1919.	Revised, 1918-1919.	Budget, 1919-1920.
Recurring.
(i) Elementary schools	1901	1628 (a) + 450 (b) + 123	2194 + 01	2194 + 01
(ii) For opening new elementary schools and strengthening existing elementary schools..	..	..	160	407 + 200
(iii) For raising the minimum pay of teachers in elementary schools	..	..	..	127 12
(iv) Night schools	..	..	11	..
(v) Secondary and sessional schools	169	192 + 11	205	205
(vi) New Board high and middle schools ..	..	..	209	209
Total ..	2070	2404 [(c) + 220]	2619 + 161	3027 + 328

NOTE.—The figures in italics represent expenditure from the recurring Imperial grant of 550—vide paragraph 73 infra.

- (a) For opening new elementary schools, proposals in regard to which were sanctioned in 1917-1918.
(b) For raising the minimum pay of teachers proposals in regard to which were sanctioned in 1917-1918.
(c) These were entered as lump allotments in the summary under the major head in the budget for 1918-1919.

126-128

128

131-134

131-134

132

133

134

131

131

122-140

132

123-126

124

124-125

125

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

	Actuals, 1917-1918.	Budget 1918-1919.	Revised 1918-1919.	Budget 1919-1920.
Non-recurring.
(vii) Elementary schools	3.41	1.00	{ 2.00 + 1.94 (a) 1.95	3.85 (a) 3.60
(viii) Secondary schools	3.19	(a) 1.97	{ 3.95 + 1.94	7.45
Total ..	6.60	2.97
Grand Total ..	27.30	27.01 [+2.20]	30.14 + 3.55	37.72 + 3.28

NOTE.—The figures in italics represent expenditure from the recurring Imperial grant of 5.50—vide paragraph 73 infra.

(a) Includes 10 for equipment.

68. Item (ii).—Proposals costing 6.07 per annum have been sanctioned recently. They are made up of—

- 4.48 for opening 1,170 new elementary schools (1,023 under local boards and 147 in municipalities);
- .87 for strengthening the staff of 562 schools; and
- .72 for opening higher standards in 300 existing schools.

6.07

69. Item (vi).—With the object of providing additional facilities for secondary education and of relieving congestion in the existing secondary schools in the Presidency, 18 of the incomplete secondary schools managed by local bodies have been raised to the grade of complete secondary schools and 49 new middle schools have been opened in the course of the current year under the management of local bodies.

70. Items (vii) and (viii).—The budget for 1919-1920 includes the following allotments which have been entered in accordance with the recommendation of the Finance Committee of January 1919:—

- Grants to local bodies for elementary school buildings 3.85
- Grants to local bodies for secondary school buildings 2.50
- Grants to local bodies for the equipment of secondary schools 1.00

Total .. 7.35

71. Government Schools—Special.—The decrease in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 as compared with the budget for that year occurs chiefly under the provision for training schools for masters and mistresses and in the allotment of .62 for opening manual training centres. Of this latter amount, a sum of .06 will be spent on equipment, while .21, representing expenditure on buildings, will appear under the head “45. CIVIL WORKS—Public Works Department.” The balance of .35 has been resumed and provided for in the budget for 1919-1920 under “45. CIVIL WORKS—Public Works Department.”

The revised estimate for 1918-1919 includes expenditure on account of (1) the Civil Engineering School, Vizagapatam (a provision of .31 was entered in the budget in the summary under the major head); and (2) the Institute of Commerce, Madras.

The budget for 1919-1920, besides providing for a full year's charge on account of these two institutions, contains enhanced provision for training schools for masters and mistresses and allotments for the following purposes:—

- .20 for manual training centres (in addition to .35 entered for buildings under 45. Civil Works—Public Works Department).
- .25 for opening two agricultural middle schools (in addition to .25 entered for buildings under 45. Civil Works—Public Works Department); and
- .66 for opening three elementary training schools

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

It also includes .53 from the recurring Imperial grant of 5.50—vide paragraph 73 infra—for opening (1) a higher elementary training school at Amalapur (.23), (2) a training school for Muhammadan women at Trichinopoly (.12), (3) a secondary training class at Ranipet (.04) and (4) an additional elementary training school (.14).

72. Grants-in-aid.—The total figures under this minor head may be broadly classified as follows:—

classified as follows:—

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
A—Recurring.
(1) Teaching grants—elementary schools	16.07	17.50	19.25	19.89	20.89	21.39 + 1.00*
(2) Teaching grants—training schools, including stipendiary grants	1.44	1.36	1.60	2.27	2.36	2.45 + .09*
(3) Teaching and other grants to colleges, secondary schools, and schools other than elementary	7.85	7.92	8.71	9.32	9.47	9.97
Total (recurring) ..	25.36	26.78	29.56	31.48	32.72	33.81 + 1.09*
B—Special.
(4) Grants for buildings, furniture, apparatus, hostels, etc. ..	4.14	6.13	3.96	7.26	4.91	8.26
Grand total ..	29.50	32.91	33.52	38.74	37.63	42.07

* From the Imperial recurring grant of 5.50.

Item (4).—The decrease in the revised estimate occurs under building grants.

In accordance with the recommendation of the Finance Committee of January 1919, the budget for 1919-1920 includes a total provision of 1.50 for (i) grants to aided secondary schools for equipment (1.00) and (ii) grants for playgrounds (.50).

73. Lump allotment for the development of primary education.—With effect from 1918-1919 the Government of India have sanctioned a recurring assignment of 5.50 from Imperial revenues for the development of primary education. This sum, which was entered as a lump allotment in the budget for 1918-1919 in the summary under the major head has been distributed among the several minor heads both in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 and in the budget for 1919-1920 as shown below:—

REVISED ESTIMATE FOR 1918-1919.

22-E. Government Schools—General—
(1) Subsidies to local bodies for opening elementary schools ..	1.60
(2) Subsidies to local bodies for elementary school buildings ..	1.94
(3) Subsidy to Gudiyattam municipality	.01
22-F. Government Schools—Special—
(4) Schools for boys of fishermen under the Fisheries department ..	.22
	3.77

BUDGET FOR 1919-1920.

(a) 22-B. Inspection—
(i) Appointment of an additional Inspectress of Schools (including allowances, supplies and services) ..	.13
(ii) Addition of four Inspectors' circles	.23
(iii) Appointment of twelve additional Sub-Assistant Inspectors	.24
	.60

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

(b) 22-E. Government Schools—General—
(iv) Opening of new elementary schools	2.00
(v) Raising the minimum pay of teachers in elementary schools	1.27
(vi) Subsidy to Gudiyattam municipality	.01
		3.28
(c) 22-F. Government Schools—Special—
(vii) Opening of a higher elementary training school at Amalapur	.23
(viii) Opening of a training school for Muhammadan women at Trichinopoly	.12
(ix) Opening of a secondary training class at Ranipet	.04
(x) Opening an additional elementary training school	.14
		.53
(d) 22-G. Grants-in-aid—
(xi) Raising the teaching grant of teachers in aided elementary schools	1.00
(xii) Subsidy to aided secondary schools for training teachers	.09
		1.09
		5.50

73a. Lump allotment for medical inspection of schools.—In accordance with the recommendation of the Finance Committee, the provision of .08 originally entered in the budget for 1919-1920 has been raised to .14.

74. Other lump allotments.—The following items which appeared as lump allotments in the budget estimate for 1918-1919 have, in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 and budget estimate for 1919-1920, been entered under the minor heads specified against each:—

(a) Opening new Board high and middle schools. 2.09	Government Schools—General.
(b) Improvement of Muhammadan education. .75	{ Government Colleges—General. Government Schools—General— Scholarships.
(c) Civil Engineering school, Vizagapatam. .31	Government Schools—Special.
(d) Female education53	{ Government Schools—General. Government Schools—Special.
(e) Night schools11	Government Schools—General.
	3.79

75. The budget figure under the major head which stood at 94.79 in 1917-1918 given by the 12.98 in 1918-1919 after including the recurring Imperial grant of 5.50 for improvement of elementary education. The budget for 1919-1920 is placed at 125.98 which exceeds the current year's budget by 16.00. Of this excess, a sum of 6.34 represents recurring charges for the improvement and expansion of elementary education. This sum of 6.34 is made up of 4.00 for subsidies to local bodies for teaching grants to aid the opening of three elementary training schools, and 1.68 for elementary and training schools.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

XX-A. & 24-A. Medical.

Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Medical School and College fees	.41	.43	.49	.50	.61	.60
Hospital receipts	.37	.40	.44	.45	.54	.48
Lunatic Asylum receipts	.23	.23	.25	.25	.24	.25
Contributions	.20	.29	.30	1.04	1.40	1.26
Miscellaneous	.07	.07	.09	.11	.11	.12
Total	1.28	1.42	1.57	2.35	2.90	2.71

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Medical establishment	4.21	4.55	4.43	4.63	4.61	5.33
Hospitals and dispensaries	7.63	8.29	11.75	14.35	14.42	22.39
Grants for medical purposes	.17	.01	.02	.02	.15	.15
Medical Schools and College	2.78	3.21	3.53	4.86	4.64	5.32
Lunatic Asylums	1.68	1.60	1.63	1.89	1.60	2.10
Chemical Examiner	.27	.32	.32	.33	.30	.33
Refunds	.03	.01	.02	.02	.03	.02
Revision of pay of Sub-Assistant Surgeons.	..	..	..	.24	..	..
Constitution of a women's subordinate medical service.	..	..	..	..	..	.15
Post-graduate course for Civil Assistant Surgeons.	..	..	..	..	..	.25
Medical School for Women at Madras.	..	..	..	..	..	.50
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances.	..	..	..	..	..	.03
Total	16.77	17.99	21.73	26.34	25.95	36.57

76. The receipts and charges on account of sanitation were prior to the year 1916-1917 exhibited under the major head 'Medical.' In view of the increased interest now taken in sanitation, it was decided in 1916-1917 to create a separate major head for this purpose in order to bring out more prominently the provision made and the expenditure incurred on this object. The former heads XX. & 24. MEDICAL were accordingly subdivided into XX-A. & 24-A. MEDICAL and XX-B. & 24-B. SANITATION.

Revenue.

77. Medical school and college fees.—The increase from 1917-1918 is due to the increased rate of fees levied from private pupils and students coming from other provinces and Native States, to the opening of an additional medical school at Calicut and to increases in the number of pupils.

78. The minor head Lunatic Asylum receipts comprises payments by private persons for the maintenance of lunatics, and the sale-proceeds of work executed by patients in lunatic asylums.

79. Contributions.—The figures for 1918-1919 and 1919-1920 under this minor head include (i) the contributions from local bodies in consequence of the transfer of headquarter hospitals to Government, and (ii) the contribution of .29 from the Madras Corporation, towards the maintenance of Government hospitals and dispensaries in the city (.20) and of the Georgetown dispensary (.09).

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

Expenditure.

141-177

141

80. Medical establishment.—Since 1914-1915, there has been a decrease under this head, owing mainly to savings in the salaries of Indian Medical Service officers transferred to military duty in connexion with the war. The figures from 1916-1917 include additional expenditure on account of the revision of the pay of civil assistant surgeons, under which they were placed on a time-scale of pay rising from Rs. 100 to Rs. 300 with two senior grades on Rs. 325 and Rs. 350.

142

The increase in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 allows for the return of officers from military duty on demobilization being ordered.

143-169

143

81. Hospitals and dispensaries.—With effect from the year 1915-1916, grants to local and private bodies in aid of medical buildings have been shown under this minor head instead of under CIVIL WORKS.

145-146

The figures from 1916-1917 include expenditure on account of the maintenance of the new Rayapuram Hospital.

143

The increase in the actuals for 1917-1918 as compared with the previous year represents mainly large non-recurring grants given to local bodies for medical buildings. The revised estimate for the current year, besides including provision for similar grants to local and private bodies, takes account of the charges in connexion with the transfer of the management of headquarter hospitals to Government for which a lump provision of 2.50 was entered in the budget estimate for 1918-1919.

82. The large increase in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 is due to the following causes:—

144-150

(a) Increased provision for salaries and supplies and services under Presidency Hospitals and dispensaries.

143

(b) Provision for the taking over of the Royapetta Hospital by Government.

(c) Increase under mufassal hospitals and dispensaries on account of additional provision for headquarter hospitals taken over by Government from local bodies.

143

(d) Reorganization of certain hospital establishments

168

(e) Larger provision on account of half grants for new hospitals opened by local bodies.

168

(f) Lump provision of .50 on account of grants to private hospitals.

143

Item (b).—The taking over of the Royapetta Hospital by Government is under consideration and a provision of 3.25 has been entered for this purpose.

151

Item (c).—The hospital at Bellary was taken under Government management from the 1st December 1917 and the headquarter hospitals at Coimbatore, Anantapur, Berhampur, Chingleput, Chittoor, Cocanada, Cuddapah, Guntur, Madras, Masulipatam, Ramnad, Tanjore and Vellore were taken under Government management with effect from the 1st April 1918. The hospitals at Cuddalore and Vizagapatam were taken over by Government with effect from 1st July 1918 and the hospitals at Kurnool and Mangalore will be transferred to Government from the 1st April 1919.

143

Item (d).—Provision has been made for the reorganization of the establishment of mufassal headquarter hospitals (.20), Presidency medical institutions (.06) and the X-ray department in the Government General Hospital, Madras (.06).

168

Item (e).—A provision of .55 (.18 for municipalities and .37 for district boards) has been made, as against .45 in the current year, to meet half the initial and recurring charges of new hospitals and dispensaries opened by local bodies under the undertaking given by Government in March 1915. This amount is intended to meet recurring grants in respect of institutions opened up to the end of 1918-1919 and the initial charges for institutions to be opened in 1919-1920. The recurring grants for the latter are payable only with effect from 1920-1921.

83. On the recommendation of the Finance Committee a total provision of 3.00 has been entered in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 for grants to local bodies for medical buildings.

84. Grants for medical purposes.—With reference to the revised classification referred to in paragraph 76 ante, charges incurred on preventive measures in connexion with bubonic plague and the contribution of Government to the Pasteur Institute at Coonoor are now shown under the major head 24-B. SANITATION.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

The grant hitherto paid to the Provincial Committee of the Countess of Dufferin's Fund to enable them to give stipends to women desirous of studying medicine has, with effect from the 1st September 1916, been disbursed direct from Provincial funds without the intervention of the committee. The expenditure is accordingly now debited to the more appropriate minor heads, Medical Schools and College, and 22-H. EDUCATION—Scholarships.

The increase in the revised estimate for the current year over the budget estimate is due to the inclusion of provision for the training of sub-assistant surgeons in Ankylostomiasis (.03) and for investigation of indigenous drugs (.10). The budget estimate for 1919-1920 contains a provision of .13 for the latter purpose.

169

169

85. Medical College and Schools.—The increase in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 over the revised estimate for the current year occurs mainly under "Salaries" and is due to the increase in the number of instructors employed in the various medical schools and to the grant to them of teaching and hospital allowances at enhanced rates. This is counterbalanced to a small extent by a decrease under "Allowances."

169-173

86. Lunatic Asylums.—The increase in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 as compared with the revised estimate for 1918-1919 occurs mainly under 'Supplies and Services' and allows for a larger number of inmates and also for the rise in prices of provisions, bedding and clothing.

174-176

XX-B. & 24-B. Sanitation.

Revenue.

16

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Sanitation and Vaccination receipts.	.11	.18	.16	.14	.47	.15

Expenditure.

177-185

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Sanitation and Vaccination establishment.	2.09	1.94	1.94	2.35	2.33	2.79
Grants for sanitary purposes	29.88	13.56	12.00	9.53	9.69	16.43
Expenses in connexion with Bubonic Plague, Malaria and Epidemics.	1.31	1.28	1.50	1.62	1.51	1.80
Bacteriological Laboratories and Pasteur Vaccine Institutes.	.23	.26	.98	.87	1.16	1.27
Refunds	..	.01	.01	.01	.01	.01
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances	..	..	..	..	..	.05
Total	33.51	17.05	16.43	14.38	14.70	22.35

Revenue.

16

87. Fees for chemical analyses at the King Institute, and the sale-proceeds of calves, are credited to this major head.

88. The revised estimate for 1918-1919 includes a special credit of .30 being unspent balances of Provincial contributions to the Kurnool Municipality for water works, which were refunded.

16

Expenditure.

177-185

178-180

89. Sanitation and Vaccination establishment.—The expenditure shown under this minor head relates mainly to the staff of deputy inspectors of vaccination and the Sanitary and Deputy Sanitary Commissioners and their establishments.

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

The increase in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 as compared with the revised estimate for the current year is due mainly to the inclusion of a full year's provision for three Deputy Sanitary Commissioners instead of two only as in the current year and the grant to deputy inspectors of vaccination of fixed travelling allowance at increased rates.

90. Grants for sanitary purposes.—From and after 1915-1916 grants to local bodies for minor sanitary works and for water-supply and drainage schemes appear under this minor head instead of under 'Civil Works.'

The main item of expenditure under this minor head is 'Contributions for sanitary purposes.' The details are—

	Actuals.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
(1) Grants to local bodies for minor sanitary works.	8.02	6.13	6.38	6.00	6.67	6.00
(2) Grants to district boards and municipalities for water-supply and drainage schemes.	13.95	7.27	3.95	3.24	2.68	5.09
(3) Grant to the Madras Corporation for water-supply and drainage works.	7.10	..	1.50	..	..	5.00
(4) Grants to municipalities on account of health officers.	..	..	.02	.14	.14	.21
(5) Miscellaneous	.23	.05	.02	.02	.02	.03
Total ..	29.30	13.45	11.87	9.40	9.51	16.33

Item (1).—In accordance with the recommendation of the Finance Committee, a special grant of 6.00 has been entered for grants to local bodies for minor sanitary works in 1919-1920. This includes 1.00 for the Madras Corporation.

Item (2).—The smaller provision in recent years is due to the heavy rise in the price of iron pipes and other materials obtained from Great Britain and to the extreme difficulty of getting supplies shipped to this country under war conditions.

The statement below shows approximately the distribution of the allotments of 2.68 in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 and of 5.09 in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 :—

	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
Vizagapatam water-works improvements	.13	.02
Narasaraopet water-supply	.04	.25
Anantapur water-supply	.02	.25
Cuddapah water-works improvements	.02	.08
Chingleput water-supply improvements	.15	1.00
Conjeeveram water-works improvements	.29	..
Tuticorin water-supply (full power test)	.27	.50
Do. (from the Tambraparni)	.08	..
Do. (partial scheme)	..	1.00
Tanjore water-works improvements	..	.20
Madura drainage	.75	.62
Madura water-works improvements	.17	.15
Negapatam (extension of water-supply to Puduman street and Madasapalli)	.09	..
Tirupati water-supply	.13	..
Erode water-supply	.08	..
Coonoor water-works improvements	..	.56
Vellore drainage	..	.21
Ramnad (Rameswaram water-supply)	.36	.25
Other minor schemes	.10	..
	2.68	5.09

Item (3).—Towards the cost of water-supply and drainage works in the Madras Corporation estimated at 124.00, grants to the extent of 75.00 have been made by Government in the past. The amount required to complete the restricted programme of works in 1919-1920 and 1920-1921 is 19.00. The Corporation have undertaken to meet 7.00 out of this amount and it is proposed to make a Provincial grant of 12.00. The sum of 5.00 entered in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 represents the first instalment of the grant of 12.00 referred to above.

91. Expenses in connexion with bubonic plague, etc.—The increase in the budget estimate for 1919-1920 over the revised estimate for the current year is due to a full year's provision having been made for six cholera reserve parties as against five in the current year. There is an increase anticipated under 'Plague charges' also.

92. Bacteriological Laboratories and Pasteur Vaccine Institutes.—The expenditure on the vaccine and the serum and bacteriological sections of the King Institute of Preventive Medicine, and the contribution of Government to the Pasteur Institute at Coonoor, are shown under this minor head.

25. Political.

* Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Political Agents	.86	.92	.89	.89	.91	.91
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances	..	..	..	..	..	.01
Total ..	.86	.92	.89	.89	.91	.92

* Purely Imperial minor heads which are not under the financial control of the Government of Madras are not shown here.

This head is not open to discussion.

93. To this head is debited the expenditure on account of Political Officers serving under the Madras Government and their establishments, and also a moiety of the cost of the Consul at Pondicherry. The charges in connexion with the Resident in Travancore and Cochin, the Paymaster of Carnatic Stipends, the Government Agent, Tanjore, the Stipend Pay offices, Kurnool and Vellore, and the Special Agent, South Arcot, are shown in full, but the expenditure connected with the Political establishments in Pudukkottai and Sándur is recovered together with pensionary contributions from the Native States concerned, the recoveries being taken in abatement of charges.

XXI-A. and 26-A. Agriculture.

Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Agricultural receipts	1.53	1.79	1.69	1.79	2.14	3.53
Veterinary receipts	.18	.19	.20	.20	.17	.21
Total ..	1.71	1.98	1.89	1.99	2.31	3.74

(42) AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

Reference to page in the Civil Budget Estimate.
189-202

Expenditure.
—	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Agriculture	7.12	7.73	8.67	10.59	10.87	14.77
Veterinary charges	2.62	2.66	2.32	3.05	2.59	3.52
Co-operative credit	1.46	1.59	1.85	2.01	2.14	2.41
Refunds	.01	.03	.03	.03	.05	.05
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances	..	..	..	..	..	.21
Total ..	11.21	12.01	12.87	15.68	15.65	20.87

Revenue.

94. Agricultural receipts are made up mainly of sale-proceeds of farm produce at the Central Farm at Coimbatore and at district farms and of cotton seed distributed by the Agricultural Department.

The increase in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 over the budget for the year occurs mainly under 'fees' and 'farm and other receipts' in connexion with the 'Central Teaching and Research Institute.' The budget estimate for 1919-1920 takes credit for sale-proceeds of manure in the Tanjore district (.75) and of fish manure from the depot opened on the West Coast (.65).

95. The Veterinary receipts consist mainly of the fees levied for the treatment of horses and cattle at veterinary hospitals under Government management.

Expenditure.

96. The department is one which is being largely expanded and at the same time reorganized under a scheme sanctioned by the Secretary of State in 1915. At present the senior staff consists of the following principal officers:—(a) a Director of Agriculture, (b) a Superintendent of the Central Farm and Principal of the Agricultural College, (c) an Assistant Principal, (d) an Agricultural Chemist, (e) an Economic Botanist, (f) a Lecturing and Systematic Botanist, (g) a Sugarcane Expert, (h) six Deputy Directors of Agriculture (excluding the officer appointed to take charge of the cattle-breeding and dairy operations in the Presidency) and four Assistant Directors, (i) a Deputy Director of Agriculture, Planting districts, (j) a Mycologist, (k) an Entomologist, (l) an Agricultural Engineer and two Assistant Agricultural Engineers.

The appointment of the Deputy Director, Planting districts, was originally sanctioned for five years, and then extended for a second term of five years, which will expire in April 1919. A scheme for the development of the planting industries involving the establishment of four—to be raised ultimately to six—experimental stations, the appointment of a Mycologist and the continued employment of the Deputy Director, Planting districts, has been submitted to the Secretary of State. Pending his sanction, the Government of India have authorized the Local Government to proceed with the opening of the planting stations. Fixed annual contributions towards the cost of the scheme have been promised by the Mysore, Travancore and Cochin Darbars, the Administration of Coorg and the United Planters' Association of Southern India. The appointment of Sugarcane Expert was originally sanctioned for a period of five years, and has been continued for a further period of five years, from October 1917. In order to meet the cost of the sugarcane-breeding station, the Secretary of State has sanctioned the payment from Imperial funds of a recurring assignment of .54 lakh per annum with effect from the 26th October 1917, instead of a non-recurring grant for the total expenditure as formerly.

97. The budget estimate for 1918-1919 contained lump provision for the following schemes:—

(a) Cattle-breeding farm	..	..	..	..	..	.70
(b) Opening of a new farm in North Arcot	..	..	..	..	..	.08
(c) Cambodia farm at Coimbatore	..	..	..	..	..	.15
(d) Schools for boys employed on the farms	..	..	..	..	..	.04

The expenditure on item (c) is being increased to .39, while allotments have been made in the course of the year for a fish manure depot on the West Coast (.57) and for an experimental scheme of distribution of concentrated manure mixture in the Tanjore district (.10). On the other hand, there are nominal savings amounting to about .50 under the Pumping and Boring Department, owing to a change in the classification of the charges relating to the Industrial Branch which are being shown under the head 26-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS—Development of Industries, with effect from the 1st April 1918.

98. The budget estimate for next year provides for the appointment of an additional Deputy Director, and fifteen assistant managers, representing a further instalment of the scheme of reorganization sanctioned by the Secretary of State in 1915; it also contains increased provision for the scheme of distribution of manure in the Tanjore district, improvement of cotton cultivation and for expenditure on tools and plant in the Pumping and Boring Department. The following lump provision has been entered in the budget:—

	LAKHS.
(1) Cotton seed farm at Nandyal	.82
(2) Fish manure depot on the West Coast	.70
(3) Development of silk industry	.10
(4) Kangayam cattle farm	.10
(5) Improvement of milk supply—Madras breeding scheme (.14), experiments at the Military dairy farms in Bangalore (.10) and milk transport experiments (.01).	.25
(6) Development of the planting industries of Southern India	.27
	2.24

99. Veterinary charges.—The decrease in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 as compared with the budget occurs mainly under salaries of subordinate establishment and in the charges on account of veterinary hospitals. The budget estimate for 1919-1920 provides for two additional Deputy Superintendents entertained in 1918 and for an additional Superintendent and a second officer for the Veterinary College. It also includes enhanced provision under 'Supplies and Services' and 'Contingencies.' A lump provision of .12 has been entered for contributions by Government towards seven new veterinary institutions.

100. Co-operative Credit.—The gradual increase of expenditure under this head is due to the growth of the operations of the department which has necessitated the addition of three Assistant Registrars and 14 inspectors to the staff.

XXI-B. & 26-B. Scientific and Miscellaneous Departments.

Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Cinchona plantations	6.85	8.92	11.85	9.25	9.49	7.85
Emigration fees	(a) .09	(a) .06	..	(a) .01	..	..
Receipts from industrial operations. (b) 1.37	(b) 1.91	(b) 3.95	5.23	5.71	8.96	..
Examination fees	2.11	2.12	2.17	2.06	2.15	..
Fees for inspection of boilers	.36	.39	.42	.40	.44	.44
Miscellaneous	.36	.45	.38	.15	.18	.16
Total	11.14	13.85	18.72	17.2	17.88	19.56

(a) Includes receipts from "Fees—Emigration Internal".

(b) These figures represent receipts under "Fishery receipts" prior to April 1918.

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Archaeological department	·39	·40	·41	·43	·44	·48
Provincial museums	·46	·45	·46	·49	·48	·48
Imperial Institute	·01	..	·01	·01	·01	·01
Steam-boiler inspection establish- ment	·29	·31	·36	·42	·42	·43
Donations to scientific societies ..	·03	·03	·03	·03	·03	·03
Cinchona plantations	2·61	3·80	4·16	4·66	4·16	4·77
Emigration	·09	·10	·15	·16	·16	·16
Inspector of Factories	·27	·31	·31	·33	·26	·42
Provincial statistics	·30	·30	·31	·35	·32	·41
Examinations	1·66	1·73	1·84	1·93	1··6	2·03
Registrar of Joint Stock Companies.	·13	·12	·12	·12	·12	·12
Development of industries	1·89	2·41	5·57	8·83	8·16	12·62
Miscellaneous	2·13	2·30	..	..	·51	·79
Refunds	·01	·02	·05	·01	·16	·01
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances	..	..	..	..	..	·17
Total ..	16·27	12·28	13·78	17·77	17·09	22·43

Revenue.

101. Under Cinchona plantations appear the sale-proceeds of febrifuge, quinine bark, seeds, plants and jalap whether obtained from the Government plantations on the Nilgiris or (in the case of quinine) manufactured from purchased cinchona bark. The increase in the actuals for 1916-1917 and 1917-1918 was due partly to the large demand for quinine from the Medical Stores but mainly to the greatly enhanced rates adopted in the valuation of stock issued consequent upon the rise in the market price of quinine. The fall in the current year, as compared with the actuals for 1917-1918, is due to a decrease in the supply of quinine, while the further decrease in 1919-1920 is attributed to a large anticipated fall in the factory output owing to the comparatively poorer quality of the barks left to be worked in the factory.

102. Receipts from industrial operations.—This is a new minor head which has been opened with effect from 1st April 1918 to show the receipts of the Fisheries department, which were till then recorded under 'Fishery receipts,' and of other industrial concerns which were hitherto exhibited under the minor head 'Miscellaneous.' The increase since 1917-1918 is due mainly to receipts from the manufacture of soap. The revised estimate for 1918-1919 includes ·40 on account of the sale-proceeds of the Government pencil factory. The budget estimate for 1919-1920 anticipates a further increase in the sale of soap and additional revenue under chank fisheries.

103. Miscellaneous.—The actuals for 1917-1918 included a special contribution of ·16 paid by the Indian Research Fund towards expenditure to be incurred in this Presidency for a period of five years on the experimental registration of vital statistics in selected typical areas. The corresponding charges have been provided for under the head "26-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS—Provincial Statistics."

Expenditure.

104. The charges of the Government cinchona plantations on the Nilgiris are recorded under the minor head Cinchona plantations. The bulk of the charges under this head relate to the purchase of cinchona bark. The budget for next year provides a sum of 2·00 for the purchase of bark; it also includes enhanced provision for the purchase of European stores, and lump grants aggregating 19 for the extension of plantations, rejuvenating old estates and afforestation of grass lands.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

105. Examinations.—The rise in the expenditure is mainly under 'Special Tests' and 'Secondary School-Leaving certificates' due to the larger number of candidates appearing and the consequent increase in the expenses connected with the examinations.

106. Development of industries.—Under this minor head are recorded the charges relating to the Department of Fisheries, to pearl and chank fisheries, experiments in soap-making and industrial operations. The revised estimate for the current year provides for larger expenditure on soap-making and miscellaneous experiments and takes account of the revised classification introduced from 1918-1919 under which the "district industrial staff" is shown under this head instead of under 26-A. AGRICULTURE as previously. These items of increase are however counterbalanced by a lapse in the provision made for the Cocanada school and for the equipment of the mechanical engineering section of the Madura Technical Institute.

The budget for next year contains enhanced provision for soap-making experiments (5·00), piscicultural works (·37), development of the Fisheries Department (·20), the weaving, dyeing and leather trade branches of the Madura Technical Institute and grants-in-aid for industrial schools. With reference to the recommendation of the Finance Committee of January 1919, the provision for scholarships has been raised by ·09 to provide for two industrial scholarships to Europe or America.

107. Miscellaneous.—Under this minor head are recorded the charges relating to the Director of Civil Supplies. The expenditure on this account is covered by an assignment from Imperial revenues.

XXII. & 29. Superannuations.

* Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
REVENUE	1·21	1·27	1·26	1·20	2·04	1·47

* Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
EXPENDITURE	33·08	33·23	33·33	35·65	35·98	37·00

* Purely Imperial minor heads which are not under the financial control of the Government of Madras are not shown here.

Revenue.

108. The receipts under this head consist chiefly of contributions for pensions and gratuities on account of officers of Government lent to foreign service for employment under the Court of Wards, municipalities and other local bodies, Native States and landholders.

109. The increase in the revised estimate for 1918-1919, as compared with the budget for that year, is due chiefly to the recovery in the current year from local bodies of contributions for leave allowances and pensions of civil assistant surgeons in their employ with effect from the 1st March 1916.

Expenditure.

110. This head comprises charges for pensions, gratuities and compassionate allowances, and for the commuted value of pensions to Government servants.

The budget estimate for 1919-1920 provides for the normal expansion of the pension list.

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

XXIII. & 30. Stationery and Printing.

19-20

* Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Stationery receipts	·10	·11	·21	·12	·20	·12
Sales of gazettes and other publications	·59	·59	·63	·59	·63	·61
Other press receipts	·55	·53	·84	·54	·72	·69
Total ..	1·24	1·23	1·68	1·25	1·55	1·42

220-225

* Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Stationery office at the Presidency ..	·65	·61	·61	·69	·68	·65
Stationery purchased in the country ..	·07	·04	·04	·05	·04	·05
Government Presses	5·76	5·39	4·75	5·33	4·43	4·94
Printing at Private Presses	·44	·34	·34	·38	·30	·40
Stationery supplied from Central Stores	7·93	6·54	8·68	8·18	8·70	8·70
Refunds	..	..	·01	..	0!	..
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances	..	..	..	..	..	·10
Total ..	14·85	12·92	14·43	14·63	14·16	14·84

* Purely Imperial minor heads which are not under the financial control of this Government are not shown here.

Revenue.

111. Other Press Receipts.—The actuals for 1917-1918 and the revised estimate for 1913-1919 include special credits.

Expenditure.

112. Government Presses.—The decrease in the revised estimate for 1918-1919, as compared with the budget estimate for the current year, is due to—

(1) the gradual abolition of Collectorate presses and the transfer of the work done by them to the Government Press, Madras;

(2) the lapse of the provision of 19 under "Secretariat Presses" on account of the transfer of work referred to above, owing to economies in establishments in other directions; and

(3) a saving of 44 under piece-work—day-extra establishment.

The budget estimate for 1919-1920 provides for an increase under piece-work—day-extra establishment.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

XXV. & 32. Miscellaneous.

* Revenue.

20-21

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Percentage on capital cost of furniture supplied to high officers ..	·01	·01	·01	·01	·01	·01
Unclaimed deposits	2·40	1·65	·80	2·00	1·40	1·59
Treasure trove	·09	·01	·05	·01	·05	·01
Sale of old stores and materials ..	·03	·02	·05	·02	·04	·03
Fees for Government audits	·35	·31	·31	·32	·33	·36
Contributions	·32	1·06	·32	·27	·28	·17
Miscellaneous fees, fines and forfeitures	·22	·24	·36	·37	·31	·37
Miscellaneous	·13	·13	·12	·12	·14	·10
Sale of lands, houses, etc.	·03	..	..	..	..	..
Extraordinary items	·01	..	..	..	..	..
Total ..	3·59	3·43	2·02	3·12	2·56	2·64

* Purely Imperial minor heads which are not under the financial control of the Government of Madras are not shown here.

† Expenditure.

225-9

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Rewards for proficiency in oriental languages, etc.	·03	·07	·04	·05	·03	·05
Annual stipends to holders of literary titles	·02	·01	·01	·01	·01	·01
Subscriptions to periodicals	·37	·42	·34	·42	·38	·38
Cost of books and publications	·12	·05	·01	·05	·02	·03
Donations for charitable purposes ..	·79	1·01	1·26	1·13	1·16	1·38
Charges on account of European vagrants	·01	·01	·01	·01	·01	·01
Rewards for destruction of wild animals	·22	·18	·18	·20	·18	·18
Petty establishments	·21	·21	·21	·22	·24	·27
Special commissions of inquiry	·18	·17	·07	..	..	..
Irrecoverable temporary loans written off	·03	·02	·02	·03	·01	·03
Rents, rates and taxes	·06	·07	·06	·08	·07	·07
Contributions	2·61	1·98	3·24	2·33	2·61	2·37
Miscellaneous and unforeseen charges	·05	·05	·03	9·25	·03	11·11
Miscellaneous refunds	·01	·03	·03	·01	·04	·03
Charges for the treatment of patients at the Pasteur Institute at Coonoor	·02	·01	·02	·02	·02	·03
War boards	..	..	..	..	·44	..
Additional provision for enhanced war allowances	..	..	..	..	..	·05
Total ..	4·73	4·29	5·53	13·81	5·25	16·00

† Purely Imperial minor heads which are not under the financial control of the Government of Madras are not shown here.

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE 20-21

Revenue.

113. The receipts recorded under the first minor head Percentage on capital cost of furniture supplied to high officers represent a 5 per cent charge recovered as rent from the Resident and the Assistant Resident in Travancore and Cochin on the capital value of furniture supplied at the cost of Government. The other minor heads are for the most part self-explanatory.

225-229

Expenditure.

114. The minor heads under this major head are for the most part self-explanatory.

115. Donations for charitable purposes.—The actuals for 1916-1917 include a special grant of .22 paid to the Lawrence Memorial School, Ootacamund, out of a non-recurring assignment from Imperial revenues sanctioned by the Government of India for the purpose. Similar non-recurring assignments of .25 for each of the years 1917-1918 and 1918-1919 and a recurring assignment of .50 from 1919-1920 onwards have also been sanctioned towards the opening of a training college for the members of the domiciled community and the corresponding charges appear under this head.

116. Special Commissions of Inquiry.—The figures entered in the accounts for 1916-1917 and 1917-1918 under this minor head relate to the commission appointed to inquire into the conditions under which Indian labour is employed in Ceylon and the Federated Malay States.

117. Contributions.—The chief items of expenditure under this minor head are (i) contributions to municipalities which are given for general purposes, as for instance, to cover deficits and (ii) contributions to local funds. The grants in aid of municipalities for general purposes amounted to .13 in 1915-1916, .19 in 1916-1917 and .30 in 1917-1918. In the budget estimate for 1918-1919 a provision of .50 was entered for this purpose on the recommendation of the Finance Committee and it is expected that it will be utilized. A similar provision of .50 has been entered in the budget estimate for 1919-1920.

Under contributions to local funds the chief items are the usual annual grants to the District Boards of the Nilgiris and Koraput. The grant to the Nilgiri District Board, which now stands at 1.08, is made in consideration of the small income which it derives from general sources. The grant to Koraput, which now stands at .24, is given because the revenue of that district board falls short of the expenditure on the services to be maintained by it. A contribution of .49 is also paid to other district boards as compensation for the resumption by Government of certain fishery rentals formerly credited to those local bodies, the chief item being .36 per annum given to the district boards of South Arcot, Trichinopoly and Tanjore. The high actuals under contributions to local funds in 1917-1918 are due to the non-recurring grant of 1.25 to district boards for aid to informal panchayats, while the revised estimate for 1918-1919 includes a temporary grant of .23 to the district boards of Trichinopoly and South Arcot to meet the contribution payable by them towards the construction of a roadway across the Vellar.

118. Miscellaneous and unforeseen charges.—Collectors of districts have been empowered, with reference to the recommendations of the Decentralization Commission, to make discretionary grants for general purposes of a public nature calculated to be of benefit to their districts up to Rs. 200 per annum for recurring charges and Rs. 1,000 for non-recurring charges in each individual case. The total grant to be distributed among the Collectors of the several districts has been fixed at 1.25 per annum. The expenditure so incurred is budgeted for under this head in the first instance and the actual charges incurred are subsequently adjusted to the appropriate heads of account. A provision of 1.25 has accordingly been entered for this purpose in the budget estimate for 1919-1920. The budget estimate for 1918-1919 included a reserve provision of 9.01 for unforeseen expenditure. The amount has been reappropriated to other heads. The budget estimate for 1919-1920 includes a similar provision of 9.82.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

229

119. War boards.—The charges on account of the local Publicity Board and Labour and Employment Bureau established in connexion with the war are shown under this minor head. No provision has been made in the budget estimate for 1919-1920, as these boards are not likely to be continued after the current year.

33. Famine Relief.

230

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
EXPENDITURE	..	(a) .07	.008	..	.75	1.00
Provincial share	..	..	(b) .002	(b) ..	(b) .19	(b) .25
(a) Wholly Imperial. (b) One-fourth.

XXIX. & 42. Irrigation—Major Works.

22

Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Direct receipts	2.94	3.12	3.19	3.20	3.26	3.22
Provincial share (one-half) ..	1.47	1.56	1.60	1.60	1.63	1.61
Portion of Land Revenue due to Irrigation	106.97	102.08	108.33	103.66	106.47	107.22
Provincial share (one-half) ..	53.48	51.04	54.16	51.83	53.23	53.61

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Working expenses	22.36	19.69	22.13	23.00	19.90	17.24
Provincial share (one-half) ..	11.18	9.85	11.07	11.50	9.95	8.62
Interest on Debt (Provincial share only, viz., one-half)	15.07	14.48	15.41	14.79	15.56	15.69

Interest on Debt is not open to discussion.

120. For purposes of classification in the accounts, irrigation works are divided into (a) Productive works, (b) Protective works, and (c) Minor works and navigation.

121. Productive works are works of a remunerative character undertaken for the improvement of the country, the capital expenditure on which is usually met from borrowed money; the interest and the cost of maintenance and working are provided out of current revenues, the income being credited thereto. Capital outlay on such irrigation works is recorded under the major head 49. IRRIGATION WORKS—a wholly Imperial head. The revenue is credited under XXIX. IRRIGATION—MAJOR WORKS and the interest and working expenses are debited to the head 42. IRRIGATION—MAJOR WORKS.

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

122. Protective works are those which are calculated to diminish future expenditure on famine relief. The cost of the construction of protective irrigation projects is paid out of the annual grants under famine relief and insurance, and is chargeable to the major head 35. CONSTRUCTION OF PROTECTIVE IRRIGATION WORKS—a wholly Imperial head. The receipts and the interest and working expenses are, as in the case of productive works, classed under the heads XXIX. & 42. IRRIGATION—MAJOR WORKS.

123. The head Minor Works and Navigation includes all classes of irrigation works other than the above, and is subdivided into

- (a) works for which capital and revenue accounts are kept;
- (b) works for which neither capital nor revenue accounts are kept; and
- (c) agricultural works, consisting of the conservancy of rivers or training of river-beds, and the maintenance of their embankments.

Revenue.

124. The receipts from Major Irrigation works are classified into Direct Receipts and Indirect Receipts.

125. The Direct Receipts are realized in the Public Works Department and are derived from the following sources: (a) sale-proceeds of water supplied for purposes other than irrigation or town consumption, (b) sale-proceeds of water supplied to towns, (c) sale-proceeds of produce from canal plantations, (d) sale-proceeds of wood and grass from canal banks other than regular plantations, (e) charges for water supplied to mills, etc., (f) receipts from navigation and (g) rent of buildings, etc.

The revised estimate for 1918–1919 is based on the latest actuals available, and the budget estimate for 1919–1920 mainly follows the revised estimate.

126. The Indirect Receipts consist of land revenue due to, or dependent on, major productive and protective works for which capital and revenue accounts are maintained.

The increase in the revised estimate for 1918–1919, as compared with the budget for that year, occurs mainly under the Gōdāvari, the Kistna and the Cauvery delta systems.

Expenditure.

127. Working expenses.—The working expenses of each system are classified under the four sub-heads—(a) Extensions and improvements, (b) Maintenance and repairs, (c) Establishment charges, and (d) Tools and plant.

The expenditure under 'Extensions and improvements' relates mainly to minor works costing less than Rs. 1,000, such as the construction of dams across channels and excavation of small distributaries, while the sub-head 'Maintenance and repairs' relates to head works, main canals and branches, distributaries and drainage, and includes works of the nature of repairing and strengthening canal banks, clearing silt in canals, repairing locks, lock weirs and masonry works.

128. The fall in the expenditure for 1916–1917 occurs chiefly under the Gōdāvari and Kistna delta systems. The decrease under the Gōdāvari delta system was due to abnormal rains in the early part of the year, and the lapse under the Kistna delta system was caused mainly by savings effected on canal maintenance and repair estimates.

The decrease in the revised estimate for 1918–1919 as compared with the budget for that year is due chiefly to a change introduced by the Government of India with effect from the current year in the system of distributing the charges for Public Works establishment among the several Public Works major heads.

The budget for 1919–1920 is based on ascertained demands.

129. Interest on Debt.—Interest on the irrigation debt is calculated at the average rate of interest paid during the year on the total public debt of the Government of India, and the capital outlay upon which interest is calculated in 1919–1920 is that incurred up to the end of 1918–1919 plus half the estimated outlay in 1919–1920.

The rate of interest which is the average rate paid on the total public debt of the Government of India has risen from 3·29 to 3·47 per cent.

XXX. & 43. Minor Works and Navigation.

Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918–1919.	Revised estimate, 1918–1919.	Budget estimate, 1919–1920.
	1915–1916.	1916–1917.	1917–1918.
Civil officers	·24	·26	·25	·23	·22	·25
Public Works officers	2·35	2·53	2·92	2·50	2·75	2·90
Total	2·59	2·79	3·17	2·73	2·97	3·15

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918–1919.	Revised estimate, 1918–1919.	Budget estimate, 1919–1920.
	1915–1916.	1916–1917.	1917–1918.
Civil officers	5·94	6·18	7·69	8·75	7·28	8·69
Public Works officers—
Minor Works, Revenue Department	·37	·51	·52	·47	·53	·52
Works in charge of Civil officers acting as Public Works disbursers	·39	·38	·24	·50	·66	·65
Works in charge of the Public Works Department	31·47	28·64	32·19	32·53	36·31	35·13
	32·23	29·53	32·95	33·50	37·50	36·30
Total	38·17	35·71	40·64	42·25	44·78	44·99

Revenue.

130. Civil officers.—The receipts, which consist chiefly of fines under section 6 of the Madras Compulsory Labour Act, 1858, are fluctuating in character.

131. Public Works officers.—The revenue comprises receipts from sale of water, canal produce, navigation, and rent of buildings, and is derived mainly from the Madras water-supply and irrigation system and the Buckingham Canal, and from ordinary and agricultural works.

The revised estimate is based on the latest actuals available and the budget for 1919–1920 follows the revised estimate in the main.

Expenditure.

132. Civil officers.—The expenditure represents the cost of minor irrigation works, chiefly repairs to tanks, costing not more than Rs. 2,500 each, which are executed under the supervision of the Revenue Department. Voluntary contributions towards repairs received from private persons and bodies are taken in abatement of the charges. The outlay depends to a large extent on the character of the season, since it is impossible to carry out repairs when heavy rains cause the tanks to be full for longer periods than usual.

The revised estimate for 1918–1919 is based on the latest actuals. The budget for 1919–1920 is 1·41 more than the current year's revised estimate and provides fully for the demands made by Collectors.

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

133. Public Works officers.—Expenditure on minor irrigation works other than those mentioned under Civil officers is shown under this head under the following subdivisions:—

(a) 'Minor Works, Revenue Department' relating to works of the Revenue Department, the execution of which requires technical skill and which are entrusted to the Public Works Department;

(b) 'Works in charge of Civil officers acting as Public Works disbursers' under which is recorded the expenditure on works costing more than Rs. 2,500 each executed by the officers of the Revenue Department; and

(c) 'Works in charge of the Public Works Department.'

134. The decrease in the actuals for 1916-1917 is due to the fact that progress on a number of works was retarded by untimely rains and the presence of water in tanks and channels.

The increase in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 and in the budget for 1919-1920, as compared with the budget for the current year, is due mainly to a change introduced by the Government of India with effect from the current year in the system of distributing the charges for Public Works establishment among the Public Works major heads of account. The revised estimate for 1918-1919 covers also additional expenditure on account of repairs to certain flood banks.

For Tank Restoration scheme works the budget for 1919-1920 provides a sum of 7.10 (including establishment charges) against a grant of 5.50 in the current year's budget. The only important work in the course of construction is the Panjapatti reservoir project for which a grant of .18 has been provided for next year. The probable outlay on this work up to the end of 1918-1919 is 3.18 against an estimate of 3.36.

XXXI. & 45. Civil Works.

Revenue.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Civil officers	1.70	1.11	.42	.10	.84	.10
Public Works officers	4.32	4.03	4.41	4.29	4.33	4.25
Total	6.02	5.14	4.83	4.39	5.17	4.35

Expenditure.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Civil officers	23.42	20.07	28.83	27.05	48.19	36.34
Public Works officers—
(i) Works in charge of Civil officers acting as Public Works disbursers	1.60	.78	1.15	1.65	1.68	2.06
(ii) Works in charge of the Public Works Department.	61.98	58.91	50.73	57.70	51.45	66.10
(iii) Additional provision for enhanced war allowances.	..	..	..	..	.12	.72
	63.58	59.69	51.88	59.35	53.25	68.87
Total	87.00	79.76	80.71	86.40	101.44	105.21

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

Revenue.

135. Civil officers.—The receipts represent the sale-proceeds of grass and fruit in Government cemeteries, and tolls levied under the Indian Tolls Act, 1861, in the Agency tracts of Ganjam.

The actuals from 1915-1916 to 1917-1918 and the revised estimate for 1918-1919 include special credits mostly on account of refunds by local bodies of unspent balances of Provincial contributions. The budget for 1919-1920 follows the revised estimate for the current year after excluding the special items provided for in the latter.

136. Public Works officers.—The receipts are derived mainly from rents of buildings in charge of the Public Works Department, sale-proceeds of buildings and materials, tolls on roads, the net profits in the Public Works Workshops, and fines levied from contractors for failure in the execution of works.

The revised estimate for 1918-1919 is based on the latest actuals available, and the budget for 1919-1920 mainly follows the revised estimate.

Expenditure.

137. Civil officers.—The expenditure under this minor head relates chiefly to (i) grants to local bodies in aid of roads and bridges and other miscellaneous public improvements, and (ii) public works in the Agency tracts of Ganjam, Vizagapatam and Gōdāvari costing not more than Rs. 2,500 each, and executed by officers other than those of the Public Works Department.

138. The following are the principal items of expenditure during the three years 1917-1918 to 1919-1920:—

Number.	Particulars.	Accounts, 1917-1918.	Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
(a)	Grants to district boards to supplement their resources, of which a sum of 14 lakhs has been specially provided by the Government of India.	17.13	17.13	17.28	17.28
(b)	Grants to poorer district boards	5.00	5.00	5.00	5.00
(c)	Grants to district boards for improvement of important roads	..	..	20.00	6.00
(d)	Special grants to local bodies for roads and bridges	5.63	3.57	4.47	6.20
	Total	27.76	25.70	46.75	34.48

Item (a).—In order to enable district boards to frame their budgets on a permanent basis, it was decided to stereotype this grant on the basis of the grants made to them in 1917-1918 and to give additional subsidies, as funds permitted, to the poorer district boards. The increase in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 and the budget for 1919-1920 is due to the raising of the grant to the Malabar District Board by .15. The details are furnished in Annexure I.

Item (b).—A special grant of 5.00 for the improvement of village and other roads was distributed, both in 1917-1918 and 1918-1919, among the district boards of Anantapur (1.00), Bellary (.80), Kurnool (.80), Cuddapah (.80), Chittoor (.40), Salem (.40), Nellore (.40) and Chingleput (.40).

In accordance with the recommendation of the Finance Committee of January 1919, a similar grant of 5.00 has been entered in the budget for 1919-1920 for distribution among the district boards of Anantapur (.80), Bellary (.90), Chingleput (.40), Chittoor (.40), Cuddapah (.80), Kurnool (.90), Nellore (.40) and Salem (.40).

Item (c).—With a view to special repairs to certain trunk roads in the Presidency which have been burdened with increased traffic as a result of the restrictions on railway traffic and also to the construction of bridges and causeways on some of the more important roads, a special grant of 20.00 for this purpose, as detailed in Annexure II, has been made in the revised estimate for 1918-1919 while the budget for 1919-1920 contains a provision of 6.00.

AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

238

139. Item (d).—The budget estimate for 1919-1920 contains the following allotments which have been entered in accordance with the recommendation of the Finance Committee of January 1919 :—

- (i) Grants to local bodies for bridges and causeways 3.00
(ii) Grants to the district boards of Vizagapatam (47), Koraput (79) and
Gōdāvari (72). 1.98

The Finance Committee also recommended an allotment of 40 for outlay on works in the Agency tracts. Of this amount a sum of 10 for works in the Ganjam and Vizagapatam Agencies costing not more than Rs. 2,500 appears under this minor head, while the balance, viz., 30 for works in the Vizagapatam Agency costing more than Rs. 2,500 appears under the next minor head "Works in charge of Civil officers acting as Public Works disbursers."

140. Public Works officers.—This minor head comprises two sub-heads—

- (i) Works in charge of Civil officers acting as Public Works disbursers ;
and
(ii) Works in charge of the Public Works Department.

141. Works in charge of Civil officers acting as Public Works disbursers.—Under this sub-head is recorded the expenditure on works costing more than Rs. 2,500 each carried out by officers of the Civil department acting in the capacity of Public Works disbursers. Works costing not more than Rs. 2,500 each which are executed by officers of the Civil department are debited as contingent charges of the department concerned. In the case, however, of the Salt, Excise and Forest departments all works executed by Civil officers, irrespective of their cost, are adjusted not to the Public Works Department head but to the contingencies of the department concerned.

The main items under this sub-head relate to works in the Jail department executed by Superintendents of Jails as Public Works disbursers and to works in the Agency tracts.

142. Works in charge of the Public Works Department.—The decrease in the revised estimate for 1918-1919, as compared with the budget for that year, occurs mainly under 'Original works--Civil Buildings', 'Tools and Plant' and 'Stock and Suspense'. The budget for 1919-1920 provides for an increased expenditure of 14.65 over the current year's revised estimate due chiefly to the inclusion of provision for a larger number of urgent works. There is also an increase under 'Establishment' owing mainly to anticipated shorter recoveries on this account from other Public Works major heads.

The scheme for redistribution of district, subdivisional and other charges which was drawn up by Sir William Meyer involved a total outlay of about 42.00 on new buildings, towards which the Government of India sanctioned assignments aggregating 25.00 from Imperial revenues. The total expenditure up to the end of 1917-1918 amounted to 22.91, and the probable outlay in 1918-1919 is about 21 and in 1919-1920 about 10.

143. The following is a list of important works (a) which were completed in 1917-1918, (b) which are in progress in the current year, and (c) which are to be commenced in 1919-1920 :—

(a) Works completed in 1917-1918.

	Actual cost.
(1) Police huts and quarters at Palamcottah and Sindupundurai	1.89
(2) Agricultural College and Research Institute at Coimbatore	9.94
(3) Salem hospital buildings	1.73

(b) Works in progress in 1918-1919.

Number.	Name of work.	Total estimated cost.	Actuals to end of 1917-1918.	Probable outlay, 1918-1919.	Provision in the budget for 1919-1920.
1	Quarters for 1 inspector and 3 sergeants and huts for 17 head constables and 125 constables of the Armed Reserve Police, Vellore	1.00	.58	.36	.05
2	Police Recruits' school, Anantapur	2.46	2.29	.14	..
3	The remaining blocks of hostel accommodation for the Rayapuram Medical School pupils	3.00	..	.15	.50
4	New Rayapuram hospital and subsidiary buildings	7.03	4.94	1.25	.84
5	New Engineering College buildings at Guindy	15.55	7.77	2.50	1.60
6	New court-house for the District Judge, Trichinopoly	1.99	.81	.83	.34
7	Quarters for 4 sub-inspectors and huts for 16 head constables and 84 constables of the C ₁ and C ₂ police stations, Madras	1.49	.50	.37	.50
8	Kalinghia Ghat road	1.86	1.41	.37	.06
9	Technical Institute buildings at Madura	2.55	2.00	.25	.29
10	New Chemistry block for the Presidency College, Madras	3.41	..	.30	1.50
11	New medical school at Coimbatore	2.16	..	.10	.50
12	Regulator with a road way across the Vellar	2.69	.94	.16	.24
13	Huts for 18 head constables and 97 constables of the B ₁ and B ₂ police stations, Madras	3.19	2.22	.55	.24
14	New Civil Hospital, Vizagapatam	4.98	.62	1.50	1.50
15	New buildings for the Medical School at Tanjore	2.47	..	.30	1.00

(c) Works to be commenced in 1919-1920.

Name of work.	Total estimated cost.	Provision in the budget for 1919-1920.
1. Improvements to the Collector's office at Saidapet	1.20	.30
2. Construction of a building for the high school department of the Government Secondary and Training school for mistresses	2.65	.50
3. Constructing buildings for the Engineering school at Vizagapatam	1.50	.70
4. Improvements to the General Hospital	1.00	.50
5. New General Hospital at Cocanada	1.63	.30
6. Construction of hostel blocks for Sub-Assistant Surgeon pupils at Royapetta	1.30	.40
7. Extensions and improvements to the Rayapuram New Hospital	..	1.00
8. Construction of a Photo-Zincographic office for the Survey office, Madras	2.10	1.00
9. Additions to the Coimbatore Agricultural College	3.00	1.00

15

(56) AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

Transfers between Imperial and Provincial Revenues.

	Accounts.			Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1916-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Net assignment to Provincial revenues ..	+ 22.65	+ 16.53	+ 16.75	+ 21.11	+ 25.72	+ 21.12

144. All adjustments between Imperial and Provincial funds are recorded on the revenue side of the accounts under the above head.

145. The details of the adjustments for the current and coming years are shown in the following statement:—

	Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
IMPERIAL TO PROVINCIAL.
(1) Assignment on account of the sugarcane breeding station for five years from 26th October 1917 ..	·44	·44	·44
(2) Contribution towards the cost of the appointment of a Scientific Officer to assist the planting industries in Southern India by the Administration of Coorg ..	·02	·02	·02
(3) Assignment for recurring charges in connexion with the constitution of additional district and other charges given in addition to the sum of 7.10 per annum which has merged in the Provincial Settlement ..	·75	·75	·75
(4) Assignment to meet the expenditure thrown on Provincial funds by the abolition of the Proprietary Estates Village Service funds ..	12.17	11.52	12.02
(5) Assignment on account of stipends to Mahamahopadhyaya and Shams-ul-ulama title-holders ..	·02	·02	·02
(6) Assignment for improvement of sanitary services ..	·35	·35	·35
(7) Assignment for expenditure on urban sanitation given from 1913-1914 ..	6.00	6.00	6.00
(8) Assignment for expenditure on education (made up of 8.25 given out of the coronation grant in 1912-1913 and increases of 6.80 sanctioned in 1913-1914 and 1.25 sanctioned in 1914-1915) ..	16.30	16.30	16.30
(9) Assignment for development of the Madras University (given from 1912-1913) ..	·65	·65	·65
(10) Assignment for improvement of education in Aided English Secondary schools (given from 1912-1913) ..	·80	·80	·80
(11) Assignment for the extension of education among the poorer classes of the Domiciled Community in the City of Madras (given from 1912-1913) ..	·30	·30	·30
(12) Assignment for the improvement of Muhammadan education (given from 1914-1915) ..	·30	·30	·30
(13) Assignment for grant to the Lawrence Memorial School, Ootacamund ..	·15	·15	·15
(14) Assignment towards the expenditure in connexion with the audit of the Hyderabad and Secunderabad local funds ..	03	·03	·03

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

	Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
IMPERIAL TO PROVINCIAL—cont.
(15) Assignment on account of the transfer of Nugur, Albaka and Cherla taluks from the Central Provinces to the Madras Presidency.	·24	·24	·24
(16) Assignment for meeting the transfer from Imperial to Provincial funds of the cost of maintenance of Government cemeteries not attached to Government churches ..	·09	·09	·09
(17) Assignment for remission of certain recoveries from local bodies ..	1.71	1.71	1.71
(18) Assignment on account of the provincialization with effect from 1914-1915 of the salaries of officers of the Indian Civil Veterinary Department ..	·29	·29	·29
(19) Assignment on account of the compensation for interest charged to Provincial funds for five Minor Irrigation works transferred to the class of Major Irrigation works ..	·50	·50	·50
(20) Assignment for improvement of pay and training of teachers ..	4.00	4.00	4.00
(21) Assignment for primary education ..	5.50	5.50	5.50
(22) Assignment towards a Training College at Ootacamund for male teachers of the domiciled community ..	·25	·25	·50
(23) Assignment in consequence of the crediting of receipts from mica-mining in the Nellore district under I. LAND REVENUE (Provincial share = one-half) instead of under IX. FOREST (wholly Provincial) ..	..	·12	·12
(24) Assignment for technical education (construction of a building for Madras Trades' school) ..	..	·75	..
(25) Assignment for agricultural education ..	..	3.50	..
(26) Assignment for improving the health conditions of pilgrim centres ..	..	1.00	..
(27) Assignment towards the cost of Provincial Director of Civil Supplies ..	..	·50	·79
Total ..	50.86	56.08	51.87
PROVINCIAL TO IMPERIAL.
(28) Fixed assignment under the Provincial Settlement ..	18.09	18.09	18.09
(29) Assignment on account of the reduction from 18 to 8 of the percentage charged against Provincial revenues on the value of imported stationery stores ..	·29	·29	·29
(30) Assignment on account of the imperialization of the Public Works Department Account staff ..	·94	·94	·94
(31) Compensation payment on account of the Provincial share of the extra Excise and Income-tax revenues accruing from additional taxation imposed by the Government of India ..	10.43	10.43	11.43
Total, Provincial to Imperial ..	29.75	29.75	30.75
Net addition to Provincial ..	21.11	26.33	21.12

PROVINCIAL ADVANCES AND LOANS—cont.

II.—LOANS SANCTIONED ON OR AFTER 1st OCTOBER 1916 AND BEFORE 1st APRIL 1917.

		Accounts, 1916-1917.	Accounts, 1917-1918.	Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget, estimate, 1919-1920.
		LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.
Class I (a)—Loans to Cultivators.	Balance ..	..	3.35	3.18	3.54	3.13
	Advances ..	3.35	.48	..	..	..
	Recoveries ..	..	.29	.20	.41	.46
	Balance ..	3.35	3.54	2.98	3.13	2.67
Class I (b)—Loans to Co-operative Credit Societies.	Balance ..	..	..	..	..	..
	Advances ..	..	..	..	..	..
	Recoveries ..	..	..	..	..	..
	Balance ..	..	..	..	..	..
Class III—Loans to Landholders and Notabilities.	Balance ..	..	.13	.18	.18	.18
	Advances ..	.13	.05	..	.001	..
	Recoveries ..	..	..	..	..	.18
	Balance ..	.13	.18	.18	.18	..
Class IV (a)—Loans to Mufassal Municipalities.	Balance ..	..	.99	1.36	1.36	1.27
	Advances ..	.99	.43	..	..	..
	Recoveries ..	..	.06	.09	.09	.08
	Balance ..	.99	1.36	1.27	1.27	1.19
Class IV (b)—Loans to District Boards.	Balance ..	..	.05	.42	.18	.14
	Advances ..	.05	.37	..	..	..
	Recoveries ..	..	.24	.10	.04	.04
	Balance ..	.05	.18	.32	.14	.10
Class V—Miscellaneous Loans.	Balance ..	..	.012	.009	.01	.006
	Advances ..	.012	..	..	..	..
	Recoveries ..	..	.003	.003	.004	.003
	Balance ..	.012	.01	.006	.006	.003
Grand total ..	Balance ..	..	4.53	5.15	5.28	4.73
	Advances ..	4.53	1.34	..	.001	..
	Recoveries ..	..	.59	.39	.55	.77
	Balance ..	4.53	5.28	4.76	4.73	3.96

PROVINCIAL ADVANCES AND LOANS—cont.

III.—LOANS SANCTIONED ON OR AFTER 1st APRIL 1917.

		Accounts, 1917-1918.	Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
		LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.
Class I (a)—Loans to Cultivators.	Balance ..	..	8.64	8.05	16.39
	Advances ..	8.10	8.50	8.69	8.50
	Recoveries ..	.05	.26	.35	.85
	Balance ..	8.05	16.88	16.39	24.04
Class I (b)—Loans to Co-operative Credit Societies.	Balance ..	..	..	..	..
	Advances ..	..	..	..	..
	Recoveries ..	..	..	..	..
	Balance ..	..	..	..	..
Class III—Loans to Landholders and Notabilities.	Balance ..	..	..	..	..
	Advances ..	..	..	..	..
	Recoveries ..	..	..	..	..
	Balance ..	..	..	..	..
Class IV (a)—Loans to Mufassal Municipalities.	Balance ..	..	2.78	1.83	6.59
	Advances ..	1.83	4.27	4.85	6.00
	Recoveries ..	..	.02	.09	.13
	Balance ..	1.83	7.03	6.59	12.46
Class IV (b)—Loans to District Boards.	Balance ..	..	1.42	1.30	2.03
	Advances ..	1.30	.98	.75	..
	Recoveries ..	..	.02	.02	.04
	Balance ..	1.30	2.38	2.03	1.99
Class V—Miscellaneous Loans ..	Balance ..	..	.002	.002	.012
	Advances ..	.002	.005	.01	.025
	Recoveries ..	..	.003	..	.003
	Balance ..	.002	.004	.012	.034
Grand total ..	Balance ..	..	12.84	11.18	25.02
	Advances ..	11.23	13.75	14.30	14.53
	Recoveries ..	.05	.30	.46	1.02
	Balance ..	11.18	26.29	25.02	38.53

Item (31).—The Government of India imposed additional taxation with effect from 1916-1917 solely to meet Imperial needs, and the heads under which the proceeds of the additional taxation accrue are III. SALT, VII. CUSTOMS, V. EXCISE and VIII. INCOME-TAX. The heads SALT and CUSTOMS are purely Imperial, while the heads EXCISE and INCOME-TAX are shared equally between Imperial and Provincial. To enable Imperial resources to receive the full increment due to the new taxation, it is necessary to pay from Provincial revenues a recurring compensatory assignment equivalent to the estimated amount accruing as the Provincial share of the new taxation. The Provincial share of the additional taxation was provisionally fixed at 6.43; being made up of 13 under V. EXCISE and 6.25 under VIII. INCOME-TAX. The original forecast of 6.25 under Income-tax will be exceeded by 4.00 in 1913-1919 and by 5.00 in 1919-1920.

The remaining items are self-explanatory.

Provincial Advance and Loan Account.

146. Four statements are annexed showing the transactions under Provincial loans and advances. As explained in paragraphs 33 and 34 ante, the interest on loans advanced by this Government is credited to XII. INTEREST, while the payment by this Government to the Government of India of the interest on the loan between the outstanding balance at the beginning and at the end of each year is debited to 13. INTEREST. The rate of interest charged to the local Government was raised from $3\frac{1}{2}$ to $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent per annum in respect of loans sanctioned from the 1st October 1916, and to $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent per annum in respect of loans sanctioned from the 1st April 1917. Statement I annexed exhibits the transactions relating to loans sanctioned prior to the 1st October 1916, statement II those relating to loans sanctioned subsequent to that date but before 1st April 1917, statement III those relating to loans sanctioned on or after the 1st April 1917 and statement IV exhibits in one view, the total transactions under each class of loans.

147. Class I. Loans include advances to cultivators made under the Land Improvement Loans Act and the Agriculturists' Loans Act and advances to co-operative credit societies. The advances to cultivators in the current year are estimated at 8.69 as against the budget estimate of 8.50. The budget estimate for 1919-1920 has been fixed at 8.50.

148. Class IV. Loans. These represent loans to district boards and municipalities in connexion with drainage and water-supply schemes, the construction of markets and other public works, and plague preventive measures.

The allotment for 1919-1920 is intended for works which are actually in progress, or which will be taken up for execution at an early date, and represents the minimum necessary to meet actual requirements.

149. Class V. Loans. A provision of Rs. 1,100 in the current year and Rs. 2,500 in the coming year has been entered under "Miscellaneous advances" for the purpose of granting advances to divers for the purchase of canoes and to Chenchus for the purchase of bulls and agricultural implements.

PROVINCIAL ADVANCES AND LOANS.
I.—LOANS SANCTIONED PRIOR TO 1ST OCTOBER 1916.

	Accounts.							Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
	1911-1912.	1912-1913.	1913-1914.	1914-1915.	1915-1916.	1916-1917.	1917-1918.
Class I (a)—Loans to Cultivators.	Balance .. 48.80	48.83	49.68	50.03	52.25	52.84	49.10	40.58	42.06	84.80
	Advances .. 7.38	8.20	7.37	8.58	7.70	8.81	.05
	Recoveries .. 7.35	6.65	7.22	6.36	7.11	7.55		7.40	7.26	6.83
	Balance .. 48.33	49.88	50.03	52.25	52.84	49.10	42.06	33.18	34.80	27.97
	Balance .. 41	.37	.31	.25	.21	.16	.11	.06	.07	.022
Class I (b)—Loans to Co-operative Credit Societies.	Advances .. .04	.06	.06	.04	.05	.05	.04	.05	.05	.020
	Recoveries .. .37	.31	.25	.21	.16	.11	.07	.01	.02	.002
	Balance .. .	. .	. .	. .	.75	.12	1.37	1.85	1.858	1.346
Class III—Loans to Landholders and Notabilities.	Advances .. .	. .	. .	. .	. .	. .	.02	.01	.007	.107
	Recoveries .. .	. .	. .	. .	.75	.12	1.35	1.34	1.346	1.24
	Balance .. 24.79	25.56	25.63	28.17	27.45	27.04	26.41	24.20	24.34	22.39
Class IV (a)—Loans to Municipalities.	Advances .. 2.27	1.69	4.09	.92	1.35	1.18	.207	.182	.195	1.84
	Recoveries .. 1.50	1.62	1.55	1.64	1.76	1.81	2.07	2.38	2.39	20.55
	Balance .. 25.56	25.63	28.17	27.45	27.04	26.41	24.34	22.38	22.39	.87
	Balance .. .09	.08	.07	.06	.25	.67	1.07	.97	.97
Class IV (b)—Loans to District Boards.	Advances .. .01	.01	.01	.20	.02	.10	.10	.10	.10	.11
	Recoveries .. .08	.07	.06	.25	.67	1.07	.97	.87	.87	.76
	Balance .. .	. .	. .	. .	. .	. .	.017	.001	.002	. .
Class V—Miscellaneous Loans.	Advances .. .	. .	. .	. .	. .	.019	.015	.001	.002	. .
	Recoveries .. .	. .	. .	. .	. .	.002	.002	.001	.002	. .
	Balance .. 73.56	74.34	75.89	78.51	80.91	81.96	78.08	67.16	68.79	59.42
Total, Classes I to V.	Advances .. 9.65	9.89	11.46	10.45	9.99	5.63	.05	.36	.37	8.91
	Recoveries .. 8.90	8.34	8.84	8.05	8.94	9.51	9.34	9.38	9.42	50.51
	Balance .. 74.34	75.89	78.51	80.91	81.96	78.08	68.79	57.78	59.42	10.16
Loans to Local Boards for Railway Construction — Kinnaird District Board.	Balance .. 16.59	15.89	15.17	14.42	13.63	12.81	11.96	11.08	11.08	.96
	Advances .. .70	.72	.75	.79	.82	.85	.88	.92	.92	9.20
	Recoveries .. 15.89	15.17	14.42	13.63	12.81	11.96	11.08	10.16	10.16	69.58
	Balance .. 90.18	90.23	91.06	92.93	94.54	94.77	90.04	78.24	79.87	9.87
Grand Total	Advances .. 9.65	9.89	11.46	10.45	9.99	5.63	.05	.36	.37	9.87
	Recoveries .. 9.60	9.06	9.59	8.84	9.76	10.36	10.22	10.30	10.29	59.71
	Balance .. 90.23	91.06	92.93	94.54	94.77	90.04	79.87	67.94	69.58

(62) AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE

PROVINCIAL ADVANCES AND LOANS—cont.

IV.—CONSOLIDATED STATEMENT SHOWING THE TRANSACTIONS UNDER EACH CLASS OF LOANS.

		Accounts, 1917-1918.	Budget estimate, 1918-1919.	Revised estimate, 1918-1919.	Budget estimate, 1919-1920.
		LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.	LAKHS.
Class I (a)—Loans to cultivators	Balance	52.45	52.40	53.65	54.32
	Advances	8.63	8.50	8.69	8.50
	Recoveries	7.43	7.86	8.02	8.14
Class I (b)—Loans to Co-operative Credit Societies.	Balance	53.65	53.04	54.32	54.68
	Advances	11	06	07	022
	Recoveries	04	05	05	020
Class III—Loans to Landholders and Notabilities.	Balance	07	01	02	002
	Advances	1.502	1.53	1.532	1.526
	Recoveries	05	01	001	007
Class IV (a)—Loans to Mufassal Municipalities.	Balance	02	01	007	287
	Advances	1.532	1.52	1.526	1.24
	Recoveries	27.40	28.34	27.53	30.25
Class IV (b)—Loans to District Boards.	Balance	2.26	4.27	4.85	6.00
	Advances	2.13	1.93	2.13	2.05
	Recoveries	27.53	30.68	30.25	34.20
Class V—Miscellaneous Loans	Balance	1.12	2.81	2.45	3.04
	Advances	1.67	98	75	..
	Recoveries	34	22	16	19
Loans to Local Boards for Railway construction—Kistna District Board.	Balance	2.45	3.57	3.04	2.85
	Advances	0.029	0.012	0.014	0.018
	Recoveries	0.002	0.005	0.01	0.025
Grand total	Balance	0.018	0.007	0.006	0.006
	Advances	0.014	0.01	0.018	0.037
	Recoveries	11.96	11.08	11.08	10.16
	Balance	..	..	..	..
	Advances	88	92	92	96
	Recoveries	11.08	10.16	10.16	9.20
	Balance	94.57	96.23	96.33	99.34
	Advances	12.62	13.76	14.301	14.53
	Recoveries	10.86	11.00	11.29	11.66
	Balance	96.33	98.99	99.54	102.21

3rd February 1919.

C. G. TODHUNTER,
Acting Chief Secretary.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920

(63)

ANNEXURE I (vide paragraph 138 ante).

Distribution of the grant of 17.28 lakhs in 1919-1920 to district boards in aid of their resources.

[G.Os. No. 1856 L., dated 8th December 1917, and No. 918 L., dated 11th July 1918.]

Name of district board.	Amount of grant. RS.	Name of district board.	Amount of grant. RS.
Anantapur	26,219	Kurnool	41,689
Arcot, North	61,416	Madura	55,239
Arcot, South	72,098	Malabar	1,73,639
Beliary	35,100	Nellore	62,642
Chingleput	50,275	Nilgiris, The	4,004
Chittoor	46,767	Ramnad	74,487
Coimbatore	55,953	Salem	45,471
Cuddapah	37,780	Tanjore	1,21,437
Ganjām	89,268	Tinnevely	57,110
Gōdāvari	1,01,419	Trichinopoly	57,480
Guntūr	1,09,357	Vizagapatam	72,046
Kanara, South	1,14,306
Kistna	1,52,828	Total	17,28,332
Koraput	10,302

ANNEXURE II (vide paragraph 138 ante).

Distribution of the grant of 20 lakhs in 1918-1919 to local boards for the improvement of the condition of important roads on which the traffic has increased in recent years as a consequence of the restrictions on railway traffic.

Name of district board.	Bridges and causeways.	Dams and culverts.	Special repairs.	Total.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)
	RS.	RS.	RS.	RS.
1. Anantapur	30,000	5,000	5,000	40,000
2. Arcot, North	..	..	70,000	70,000
3. Arcot, South	..	..	1,00,000	1,00,000
4. Bellary	..	30,000	70,000	1,00,000
5. Chingleput	6,000	7,000	27,000	40,000
6. Chittoor	20,000	20,000	15,000	55,000
7. Coimbatore	..	..	15,000	15,000
8. Cuddapah	..	10,000	4,000	14,000
9. Ganjām	..	7,000	24,000	31,000
10. Gōdāvari	8,000	2,000	24,000	34,000
11. Guntūr	3,900	3,600	39,000	46,500
12. Kanara, South	..	..	45,000	45,000
13. Kistna	20,000	55,000	2,15,000	2,90,000
14. Kurnool	..	11,500	11,500	23,000
15. Madura	..	20,000	1,00,000	1,20,000
16. Malabar	20,000	15,000	15,000	50,000
17. Nellore	..	..	6,000	6,000
18. The Nilgiris	4,000	4,000	10,000	18,000
19. Ramnad	..	..	30,000	30,000
20. Salem	5,000	2,000	60,000	67,000
21. Tinnevely	30,000	3,000	50,000	83,000
22. Trichinopoly	2,500	4,000	6,000	12,500
23. Vizagapatam	..	..	..	7,00,000
24. Under distribution	..	..	..	..
Total	1,49,400	1,99,100	9,51,500	20,00,000

3rd February 1919.

C. G. TODHUNTER,
Acting Chief Secretary.

PART IV

Memorandum showing the variations between the figures in the Draft Financial Statement and those in the present Amended Draft Financial Statement.

Revised Estimate, 1918-1919.

Receipts.

Heads of revenue.	According to the Draft Financial Statement.			According to the Amended Draft Financial Statement.			Difference in Provincial figures (column 7—column 4).
	Total.	Imperial.	Provincial.	Total.	Imperial.	Provincial.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
I. LAND REVENUE (INCLUDING PORTION OF LAND REVENUE DUE TO IRRIGATION).	690.26	345.13	345.13	689.54	344.77	344.77	— .36
IV. STAMPS
V. EXCISE
VIII. INCOME-TAX ..
IX. FOREST
X. REGISTRATION ..	25.40	..	25.40	25.60	..	25.60	+ .20
XVI-B. LAW AND JUSTICE—JAILS.	9.50	..	9.50	9.92	..	9.92	+ .42
XXI-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS.	18.28	..	18.28	17.88	..	17.88	— .40
TRANSFERS BETWEEN IMPERIAL AND PROVINCIAL.	..	— 25.72	+ 25.72	..	— 26.33	+ 26.33	+ .61
OTHER HEADS	56.94	11.50	45.44	57.06	11.45	45.61	+ .17
							+ .64

The above alterations are based on later information.

Expenditure.

Heads of expenditure.	According to the Draft Financial Statement.			According to the Amended Draft Financial Statement.			Difference in Provincial figures (column 7—column 4).
	Total.	Imperial.	Provincial.	Total.	Imperial.	Provincial.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
3. LAND REVENUE ..	129.61	..	129.61	129.50	..	129.50	— .11
11. FOREST	31.50	..	31.50	31.30	..	31.30	— .20
12. REGISTRATION ..	15.24	..	15.24	15.07	..	15.07	— .17
18. GENERAL ADMINISTRATION.	22.39	6.09	16.30	22.47	6.12	16.35	+ .05
19-A. LAW AND JUSTICE—COURTS OF LAW.	90.10	..	90.10	89.70	..	89.70	— .40
19-B. LAW AND JUSTICE—JAILS.	19.91	..	19.91	20.56	..	20.56	+ .65
20. POLICE	120.01	..	120.01	120.46	..	120.46	+ .45
22. EDUCATION	106.77	..	106.77	106.77	..	106.77	..
24-A. MEDICAL	25.78	..	25.78	25.95	..	25.95	+ .17
24-B. SANITATION ..	14.57	..	14.57	14.70	..	14.70	+ .13
26-A. AGRICULTURE ..	15.52	..	15.52	15.65	..	15.65	+ .13
26-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS.	17.37	..	17.37	17.09	..	17.09	— .28
29. SUPERANNUATION ALLOWANCES AND PENSIONS.	36.12	.37	35.75	36.35	.37	35.98	+ .23
30. STATIONERY AND PRINTING.	21.26	7.00	14.26	21.16	7.00	14.16	— .10
32. MISCELLANEOUS ..	7.06	1.90	5.16	7.10	1.85	5.25	+ .09
42. IRRIGATION MAJOR WORKS—
WORKING EXPENSES.	19.75	9.88	9.87	19.90	9.95	9.95	+ .08
INTEREST ON DEBT.	31.11	15.55	15.56	31.11	15.55	15.56	..
43. MINOR WORKS AND NAVIGATION—
CIVIL OFFICERS ..	7.28	..	7.28	7.28	..	7.28	..
PUBLIC WORKS OFFICERS.	36.50	..	36.50	37.50	..	37.50	+ 1.00
45. CIVIL WORKS—
CIVIL OFFICERS ..	40.72	..	40.72	48.19	..	48.19	+ 7.47
PUBLIC WORKS OFFICERS.	55.25	..	55.25	53.25	..	53.25	— 2.00
OTHER HEADS	57.70	32.39	25.31	57.53	32.09	25.44	+ .13
							+ 7.32

19-B. JAILS (+ .65).—The increase is expected chiefly under "Dietary charges."

43. MINOR WORKS AND NAVIGATION—PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT (+ 1.00).—The increase is due to expenditure on certain unforeseen urgent works.

45. CIVIL WORKS—CIVIL (+ 7.47).—The increase is mainly due to grants to local bodies for the improvement of important roads having been raised from 13.00 to 20.00.

45. CIVIL WORKS—PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT (— 2.00).—The decrease is based on later actuals and occurs mainly under Tools and Plant and Stock and Suspense.

Budget Estimate,

Receipts.

Heads of revenue.	According to the Draft Financial Statement.			According to the Amended Draft Financial Statement.			Difference in Provincial figures (column 7—column 4).
	Total.	Imperial.	Provincial.	Total.	Imperial.	Provincial.
	2	3	4	5	6	7
1							8
I. LAND REVENUE INCLUDING PORTION OF LAND REVENUE DUE TO IRRIGATION.	715.71	357.85	357.86	717.56	358.78	358.78	+ .92
IV. STAMPS
V. EXCISE
VIII. { INCOME-TAX ..				No change.
SUPER-TAX ..
IX. FOREST
X. REGISTRATION ..
XVI-B. LAW AND JUSTICE—JAILS.	9.08	..	9.08	7.08	..	7.08	— 2.00
XXI-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS.				No change.
TRANSFERS BETWEEN IMPERIAL AND PROVINCIAL.
OTHER HEADS	59.48	11.46	48.02	59.49	11.39	48.10	+ .08
							— 1.00

I. LAND REVENUE INCLUDING PORTION OF LAND REVENUE DUE TO IRRIGATION (+ .92).—The increase is based on later information.

XVI-B. LAW AND JUSTICE—JAILS (—2.00).—The reduction has been made under 'Jail Manufactures' in view of the fact that in consequence of the cessation of hostilities, the demands from the Military Department for jail-manufactured goods will, it is anticipated, be reduced in the coming year.

1919-1920.

Expenditure.

Heads of expenditure.	According to the Draft Financial Statement.			According to the Amended Draft Financial Statement.			Difference in Provincial figure (column 7—column 4).
	Total.	Imperial.	Provincial.	Total.	Imperial.	Provincial.
	2	3	4	5	6	7
1							8
3. LAND REVENUE ..
11. FOREST				No change.
12. REGISTRATION ..
18. GENERAL ADMINISTRATION.
19-A. LAW AND JUSTICE—COURTS OF LAW.	17.73	..	17.73	18.23	..	18.23	+ .50
19-B. LAW AND JUSTICE—JAILS.				No change.
20. POLICE	120.07	..	120.07	128.98	..	128.98	+ 8.91
22. EDUCATION	33.44	..	33.44	36.57	..	36.57	+ 3.13
24-A. MEDICAL	16.35	..	16.35	22.35	..	22.35	+ 6.00
24-B. SANITATION ..				No change.
26-A. AGRICULTURE ..	22.84	..	22.84	22.93	..	22.93	+ .09
26-B. SCIENTIFIC AND MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENTS.
29. SUPERANNUATION ALLOWANCES AND PENSIONS.				No change.
30. STATIONERY AND PRINTING.	12.13	1.45	10.68	17.45	1.45	16.00	+ 5.32
32. MISCELLANEOUS ..	16.74	8.37	8.37	17.24	8.62	8.62	+ .25
42. IRRIGATION—WORKING EXPENSES.				No change.
MAJOR INTEREST ON DEBT.
43. MINOR CIVIL WORKS AND NAVIGATION.	36.00	..	36.00	36.30	..	36.30	+ .30
PUBLIC WORKS OFFICERS.	33.26	..	33.26	36.34	..	36.34	+ 3.08
CIVIL OFFICERS.	68.57	..	68.57	68.87	..	68.87	+ .30
45. CIVIL WORKS—PUBLIC WORKS OFFICERS	28.88	..	28.88		..		— 28.88
UNALLOTTED				No change.
OTHER HEADS
							— 1.00

(68) AMENDED DRAFT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE
GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS FOR 1919-1920.

573

19-B. JAILS (+50).—Under “Dietary charges”.

22. EDUCATION (+8.91).—The increase is due to the following allotments entered in accordance with the recommendation of the Finance Committee:—

(1) Grants to local bodies for elementary school buildings	3.85
(2) Grants to local bodies for secondary school buildings	2.50
(3) Grants for the equipment of secondary schools under public management.	1.00
(4) Grants for the equipment of aided secondary schools	1.00
(5) For play-grounds	.50
(6) Medical inspection of schools	.06
Total	8.91

24-A. MEDICAL (+3.13).—The increase is mainly due to grants to local bodies for medical buildings entered in accordance with the recommendation of the Finance Committee (3.00).

24-B. SANITATION (+6.00).—The increase is due to the following grants entered in accordance with the recommendation of the Finance Committee:—

(1) Grant to local bodies for minor sanitary works	5.00
(2) Grant to the Madras Corporation for minor sanitary works	1.00

32. MISCELLANEOUS (+5.32).—The increase is due to (1) contributions in aid of municipal balances (5.00) entered in accordance with the recommendation of the Finance Committee and (2) an addition of 4.82 to the provision (5.00) for reserve.

45. CIVIL WORKS—CIVIL (+3.08).—The increase under this head is due to the following variations:—

Entered on the recommendation of the Finance Committee.	(1) Grants to local bodies for bridges and causeways.	3.00
	(2) Grants to poorer district boards	5.00
	(3) Special works in the Agency tracts	2.08
	(4) Reduction of the grant to local bodies for improvement of important roads from 13.00 to 6.00	7.00
	Total	3.08

UNALLOTTED (—28.89).—The former provisional head ‘Unallotted’ now disappears, the sums previously shown under it having been distributed among the appropriate service heads in accordance with the recommendation of the Finance Committee.

3rd February 1919.

C. G. TODHUNTER,
Acting Chief Secretary.

Proceedings of an Adjourned Meeting of the Council of the Governor of Fort St. George assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.

The Council re-assembled at the Council Chamber, Fort St. George, at 11 a.m. on Saturday, the 8th day of February 1919.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Right Hon'ble JOHN, Baron PENTLAND of Lyth, P.C., G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., Governor of Madras—Presiding.

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW, K.C.S.I.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR Avargal, C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON, C.S.I.

The Hon'ble MUHAMMAD AZIZ-UD-DIN HUSAIN SAHIB Bahadur, Khan Bahadur, C.I.E., I.S.O., O.B.E.

The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. BUCKLEY, C.S.I.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. Y. G. CAMPBELL, C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Mr. W. J. J. HOWLEY.

The Hon'ble Mr. W. HUTTON.

The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES.

The Hon'ble Mr. N. E. MARJORIBANKS.

The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur R. RAMACHANDRA RAO Avargal.

The Hon'ble Mr. S. SRINIVASA AYYANGAR (Advocate-General).

The Hon'ble Mr. H. G. STOKES, C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Mr. C. G. TODHUNTER.

The Hon'ble Mr. M. YOUNG.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR Avargal.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO PANTULU.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO PANTULU Garu.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO PANTULU.

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur A. SUBBARAYALU REDDIYAR Avargal.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. S. SADASIVA BHAT.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR Avargal.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR.

The Hon'ble Sri Raja Rao VENKATA KUMARA MAHIPATI SURYA RAO Bahadur, Raja of Pithapuram.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. KUMARAN RAMAN KAVALAPPARA MUPPIL NAYAR.

The Hon'ble YAKUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBI MARAKKAYAR SAHIB Bahadur.

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER, Kt.

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER.

The Hon'ble Sir FAIRLESS BARBER, Kt.

The Hon'ble the Most Rev. JOHN ABLEN, D.D.

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RICHMOND.

The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING, K.C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur K. R. SURYANARAYANAMURTI NAYUDU Garu.

The Hon'ble Raja, RAJA SRI RAVU VENKATA KUMARA KRISHNA RANGA RAO Bahadur, of Bobbili.

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR.

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; the President; Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; the Advocate-General; Mr. Siva Rao.) [8TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Council assembled at 11 a.m.

THE MADRAS AGRICULTURAL PESTS AND DISEASES BILL, 1918.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill for the prevention of the spread of insect pests, plant diseases and noxious weeds, and moved that the Bill and report be taken into consideration at once.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. Y. G. Campbell seconded the motion.

The motion was put to the Council and agreed to.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We will now proceed to consider the amendments. Honourable gentlemen will please observe that in addition to the amendments on the agenda paper there is a supplemental list of amendments and we have got to take both together. The first amendment is in regard to clause 3. I will call upon the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar to move it, but before that I will first go through the previous clauses."

Preamble.

It was agreed that the consideration of the preamble be postponed.

Clause 1.

Clause 1 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 2.

Clause 2 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 3.

Clause 3 (a) was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I beg to move the following amendment:—

Clause 3, sub-clause (b).—Omit the words 'prohibit or restrict the removal of any plant from one place to another or'; and for the words 'such other preventive or remedial measures' read 'such remedial or preventive measures.'

"My object in moving this amendment is this. I understand clause (b) to mean that if any plant is already infected or is exposed to infection, it is liable to be destroyed under clause 9. The portion relating to removal refers therefore to cases in which there is neither infection nor exposure to infection. But to interfere with plants not infected or exposed to infection will be an arbitrary interference with the rights of private property. I think these plants should be left alone. Interference is permissible when they are infected or exposed to infection. I therefore propose this amendment. The remedial measures should come first in order of time and then preventive."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"The Government are unable to accept the amendment. The reasons for opposing the amendment are obvious. In the first place prohibiting or restricting the removal of a plant is a less drastic measure than the destruction of the plant. I do not know that the occupier will welcome the Honourable Member's suggestion. In the second place in many cases restricting the removal will be the only effective means of checking the spread of the insect pests. In most cases it may have to be adopted concurrently with other measures, preventive or remedial, that may be prescribed. I do not think that, without further experience in the matter, prohibition or restriction of the removal of the plant can be ruled out as a preventive measure. Lastly the Honourable Members will remember that in the definition of plant just now passed power is taken to include seed and in the case of seed exposed to infection it will be a pity to destroy or burn it altogether before it clearly develops infection, but it may be a desirable thing to prohibit or restrict the removal of it from one area to another. That is the only means that can be availed of in the case of seed.

"Then again I do not know if any object is really gained by the proposed amendment. Apparently the Honourable Member's proposal is to allow the other words to remain in the clause:—'such other preventive or remedial measures as may be necessary in respect of such pests, etc.' The Government have full power to prescribe remedial or preventive measures. One of the measures wherever they are advised by experts will be to prohibit or restrict the removal of the plants from one place to another so that no object is gained by the Honourable Member's amendment. I would suggest to the Honourable Member to withdraw the amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I oppose this amendment for the simple reason that the very object of the Bill will be defeated if this amendment is carried into effect. The object of the Bill was explained by the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill at the time of the introduction of the Bill. It was stated then—

'Honourable Members will see from the Statement of Objects and Reasons that while India Act II of 1914 gives power to the Government to issue orders and frame rules with the object of preventing the introduction into British India of any insect, fungus or other pest which is or is believed to be harmful to crops, it gives no power to prevent or control the transport of insect pests, plant diseases or noxious weeds from one part of British India to another. The prevention of the spread of infection or of insects and vegetable pests within the country is quite as necessary as the prevention of the importation of such evils from outside, and it is to achieve this object that the present Bill is framed."

8TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Siva Rao; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; the President; Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.)

"That was the primary object with which this Bill was framed, and it is a far less harmful provision than other provisions."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I should say a few words against this amendment."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"That is unnecessary."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"The Honourable the Advocate-General suggested that even if these words were omitted they would come under preventive or remedial measures. If so, these words may be omitted. What I say is that the plants, the removal of which would be prohibited or restricted, would be plants not exposed to infection."

The amendment was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I have the honour to move the following amendment:—

Add the following proviso at the end of the clause:—

'Provided that, before issuing any such notification, the Governor in Council shall consult the local authority having jurisdiction over the local area and hear the objections, if any, urged by such local authority.'

"As the Council is aware, the object of this Bill is to prevent the spread of insect pests, plant diseases and noxious weeds injurious to health or to crops, plants, trees or water-supply or obstructive to waterways within the Presidency of Madras. This amendment raises an important question of policy as to whether it is or is not desirable to utilize the local bodies in various parts of the Presidency for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Bill. This is a new Bill which confers wide powers upon the local Government and upon inspecting officers or other officers appointed by Government to check the spread of these diseases, and it contains penal provisions for enforcing its provisions. However good the intentions of the officers entrusted with the carrying out of these provisions may be, and in whatever careful manner they may work out these provisions to consult public opinion and to ascertain exactly what the their disposal adequate machinery to consult public opinion and to ascertain exactly what the people in various local areas are likely to say on the subject. It must be conceded that local bodies which represent the people in the remotest parts of the Presidency will be in a position to do useful work in working the provisions of this Act. At any rate they will be in a better position to offer valuable opinion and advice regarding the questions that arise for solution. This aspect of the question, the Honourable Members will see from the report of the Select Committee, was considered by the Select Committee. I will draw the attention of the Council to paragraph 3—

'We have carefully considered an important question of policy, viz., the question whether either the initiation or execution of measures under the Bill or both should be placed in the hands of local bodies instead of in those of the Government and their officers. We have decided that, so far as the initiation of action is concerned, it is desirable that such action should proceed on uniform lines for the whole Presidency and therefore that the responsibility should rest, as proposed in the Bill, with the Government. As regards the execution of the law, while we consider that it must ordinarily be placed in the hands of a regular expert staff, we recognize the advantage, wherever such a course is possible of leaving the detailed administration of the law to local bodies or local officers. We have therefore added a clause to the Bill as clause 18 giving to the Government authority to delegate all or any of their powers.'

"This is what we gather from the report of the Select Committee, who dealt with this important question. They suggest, and I would say for very good reasons, that in the initial stages it is difficult to entrust the initiation of these measures to local bodies, because they cannot secure uniformity throughout the Presidency, and that the Governor in Council may retain that power. But at the same time I would suggest that it would help the Government and the special officers appointed by the Governor in Council, if they are furnished with the best opinion available, through these local bodies. What I suggest in this proviso is that before initiating measures under section 3 of the Bill the local body concerned may be consulted and the objections if any urged by it may be duly considered before action is taken.

"I cannot myself see any reasonable objection to this course being adopted. Even if we stretch our imagination to some extent and try to anticipate some of the objections, the only objection that could be raised would probably be that it would lead to some delay in the initiation of these measures or their execution. The local bodies would be in a better position to know of these measures and the desirability or otherwise of initiating the measures, and it is possible for the local Government to prescribe the period within which the local body should send their opinions in all urgent matters. When the Government cannot give such time as the local bodies might require, the Government might prescribe a certain period within which the reply should be received; and if the local bodies do not choose to reply within that time the Government can proceed to take action. No danger would accrue by these bodies being given this power.

"I shall now remind the Council that in the Madras Act III of 1918, the Madras Prevention of Adulteration Act, which we passed last year, we have a similar provision. It will be found that in section I, sub-section (2), of that Act the local Government is given power to extend the provisions of the Act by notification in the Fort St. George Gazette and a proviso is added at the end of the sub-section in these terms: 'Provided that such notification shall be made only after the local authority or authorities have had an opportunity of expressing an opinion as to the necessity for such extension.' Honourable Members will please remember that even when such consultation was prescribed in the case of Madras Act III of 1918 it was found that the scheme could be worked. I am not myself in a position to imagine why a similar provision should not be inserted in this Bill. I am strengthened in my opinion when I notice that there are on the agenda for our consideration two amendments which affect even the provisions contained in the Bill as amended by the Select Committee. In the Bill as amended by the Select Committee provision has been made for the delegation of powers either to the Director of Agriculture or to the local bodies concerned. We are called upon to consider two amendments, one by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar who proposes the deletion of this clause and another in the name of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General."

576 THE MADRAS AGRICULTURAL PESTS AND DISEASES BILL, 1918.

(Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; [8TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Siva Rao.]

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR (interrupting):—"The Honourable Member is dealing with the amendment to clause 18. The question is whether he cannot reserve his argument for that clause."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I am not dealing with that amendment. I am giving an additional reason for this amendment. I therefore wish that this Council will concentrate its attention upon this important amendment. It is for that reason that I refer to it. It will be dealt with when it is taken up. I wish to point out that even the question of delegation provided by the Select Committee is attacked. Let the Council concentrate its attention upon the desirability of having a provision for consulting local bodies. I therefore think it necessary to place this amendment before the Council and I trust that there will be no difficulty in accepting it."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I second this amendment. It looks to me, it is a very harmless amendment. It only asks that the local authority should be consulted and its views should be ascertained and considered before extending this Bill to any particular area. I am aware that in the Select Committee a discussion arose as to which authority should initiate the working of this Act and it was decided that initiation should be left to Government themselves. But it will be trying a medium course if the local authority is consulted and heard in the matter. The amendment only says that it should be asked, it should be given an opportunity of being heard in the matter. I do not see any reason why such a harmless amendment should not be carried out. There is a parallel for such a provision in the other Act which has been referred to."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the Government are unable to accept the amendment, not that we do not see the importance of carrying the local bodies with us in this matter, but in the case of many pests the delay involved in following the procedure which the amendment indicates would be fatal. The amendment is, before issuing any notification the Governor in Council shall consult the local authority having jurisdiction over the local area and hear the objections, if any, urged by such local authority. There is no discretion left in the matter. In other words, when the Government get information that there is a pest disease or a noxious weed in a local area dangerous to health or injurious to crops, instead of our being able to initiate action and nip it in the bud, we have to start an elaborate procedure of communication with the local body, the taluk board or the district board, tell them that the Government are in possession of information that there is such and such a pest affecting crops, and ask what the board has to say. What will the board do? The members are in different places, and the board will have to convene a meeting which can take place only after seven days' notice and probably some of the taluk boards may desire to have further information and in the result there may be—I do not say it will be so in every case—there may be many cases in which the injury will be completed and the crops of carrying with us local opinion. If the thing can be done promptly, by all means, we shall do so. But to impose this restriction upon the Government that they shall not issue a notification till the local body has had the facts placed before it and has had an opportunity to say what it has to say about it, means really that the whole thing will get paralysed."

"The Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao has referred to the amendment which is likely to be made in clause 18 as a reason why this amendment should be carried into effect. I would say that is the reason why this amendment should not be carried, because if the other amendment is not carried and if we delegate power to the local authority then it will be easy for the local authority to deal with the matter. But if that amendment is carried, the whole thing will have to be concentrated in the hands of the Government and we will not be able to delegate any of our powers under section 3 to a local authority. No notification can issue except under the orders of the local Government and, as the local bodies are spread all over the Presidency, the resulting delay will in several cases be fatal. That is my main objection. Notwithstanding the proposed amendment to clause 18, though we may not be able to delegate our power to issue the preliminary notification, section 18 provides for the executive machinery being placed in the hands of the President or Chairman of the local authority. That goes to some extent to enlist local public opinion in favour of action."

8TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar ;
the President ; Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar.)

"The Honourable Member has given the analogy of the Prevention of Adulteration Act. It is true that before the local Government extend to any area the provisions of that Act we have to give an opportunity to the local body concerned for expressing an opinion, but is there any real parallel? Assuming that a complaint comes to us, say that ghee is sold in Chianjam very impure and we are asked to take action, surely it is not a matter of such great urgency. The prevention of adulteration of foods and drugs is not a matter so very urgent that we cannot wait for a couple of weeks. But these pests have a way of doing their work in a very short period of time, and I do not think that that analogy could apply in this case. For these reasons I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I should like to know from the Honourable Member in charge whether the power under section 3 under which the Governor in Council has to declare the area is intended to be delegated under section 18."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"We are not coming to that amendment now. The Bill as it stands, provides for that delegation. The amendment the Hon'ble the Advocate-General will move will exclude notifications under section 3 from the list of delegations."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I have only one word to say, your Excellency. I quite appreciate the situation described by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar, viz., the consequences of delay in this matter. But I do not know how the Honourable Member proposes to dispense with the delay when the Governor in Council deals with it. The Director of Agriculture reports to the Board of Revenue and so on."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"That is really not notification."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I oppose the amendment, because the local authority is not the authority which should give an opinion in this matter. Suppose the local body says 'do not issue the notification' and the Government act in opposition to the wishes of the local body, the matter will become more difficult. I therefore oppose the amendment."

The amendment was put and lost.

Clause 3 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 4.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I take it that your proviso comes in after the words 'prescribed in such notification'."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"May it please your Excellency, clause 4 requires on the issue of a notification under section 3 that every occupier should be bound to carry out the remedial and preventive measures prescribed in such notification. My amendment is this which I move—

'Add as proviso—

'Provided that in no case shall a person be bound to carry out the remedial or preventive measures prescribed, if the materials required for the same cannot be had within five miles of the residence of such person or the cost of carrying out the same exceeds twice the assessment imposed on the land or half the value of the annual yield from the land as estimated by the Collector.'

"I submit this is necessary to safeguard the working of the Act which is in its infant stage so that it may be popular among the ryots. I know personally I was advised if not directed to carry out certain remedial measures in connexion with mangoes in my garden in the Red Hills. For the last six months I was trying to get a spraying machine, but it was only the other day that I was able to borrow one from the Department. So also there may be various chemical substances which may be prescribed as insecticides, and knowing as we do the village parts where this Act will come into force, it may not be possible for the occupier to carry out the remedial measures, without much difficulty. Therefore I suggest that unless the materials are available within five miles distance."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"May I interrupt the Honourable gentleman? I am sorry to interrupt him. Clause 8 deals with the recovery of the cost of the preventive or remedial measures. Would it not be proper to discuss this after that clause?"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"That would not do. Under section 7 he would have committed an offence."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Please read clause 8."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"That is only with reference to the recovery of the cost; it may not be recovered in certain cases. But without this proviso the man would have committed an offence all the same by not carrying out the measures. It is therefore necessary that this should come here. I submit if a man cannot get the material within five miles of his residence he should not be compelled to carry out the measure, nor should he be deemed to have committed an offence."

"The other part of the proviso is if the cost of carrying out the measures exceeds twice the annual assessment of the land or half the value of the annual yield the occupier shall not

578 THE MADRAS AGRICULTURAL PESTS AND DISEASES BILL, 1918.

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [8TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Sir Fairless Barber.)

be bound to carry them out. I leave it to the Collector to estimate it. He will make a fair estimate even if the cost should exceed half the annual value of the yield. This is a necessary safeguard. The man should not be improved out of his land by carrying out the measure. I want this Act to be worked in such a way that the people may take to adopting these remedial measures as far as possible, otherwise it would cause irritation, and become unpopular. I therefore propose this amendment."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur A. Subbarayalu Reddiyar seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the Government are unable to accept the amendment. We feel that if this is put in, it would really make the Bill unworkable. I have already indicated that action under this Bill will have to be taken promptly; when notice is given to a man to do this or that act and when he does not do it, if there is no certainty that he will be punished or action will be taken and he will be made to pay for it, the chances are that he will not do it. This amendment gives him a loophole. The man may refuse to take action. He will set up defences that he made careful inquiries and that he could not get the materials within five miles of his residence. I do not know on what basis five miles is fixed. Or he may say the price of the material is more than twice the assessment. I think if our staff who are to root out the pests are to start an inquiry like this as to whether the materials are available within such a distance or the cost will be less than twice the assessment, it will be extremely difficult in practice to work the provisions though theoretically they may seem all right. I object to the amendment solely on the ground that if accepted it would make the working of the Act extremely difficult."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"My Lord, in section 7 we have got the last two sentences which say that the prescribed remedial measures may be carried out by the inspecting officer or under his supervision. So far as the work has to be done by the ryot or the party concerned, the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar moves this amendment. Even when this Bill was introduced, at the commencement I made a reference to this position. We are just trying to see that the pests are tackled with, and that attempt should not be made to go against the very grain of the Indian ryot. We mean to benefit the ryot. It is not meant to cause any kind of disturbance to the ryot one way or the other. It may be that the ryot is willing that the crop should be destroyed if the department thinks it necessary. But he may not be prepared to carry that out himself. He may not be able to engage the servants to destroy the crop that he has raised. It is very difficult to say that in enacting this legislation we must forget the sentiments of the people and we are here only to see that the pests are removed and that infection is avoided. If it is meant to make all the people join with the Government in the scientific view that the pests should be immediately rooted out, it would be very difficult to convert the illiterate population to the grain of the expert officers advising the Government in matters like this. The amendment as has been proposed is even insufficient for the purpose. The department has got an establishment. It has got officers on the spot, and immediately the declaration is made they go there and examine and they have been given power to enter upon the land and destroy the crop if necessary. The whole Bill proceeds on that basis. The ignorance of the masses, specially the agriculturists in the country, should not fail to be taken note of when a Bill like this is passed. We are not passing the Bill for expert agriculturists. When he goes to destroy a crop, the ryot will probably fall at the feet of the officer and say 'do not pluck out the plants more than is absolutely necessary; save me, Sir,' and all that. The department has got theoretical opinions and will carry out its own proposals. These opinions may be right or wrong. Whatever that may be, let the department go and do the needful; let it not be said that the ryot should do it and if he does not he has committed an offence. It will be too much to enact like that. I implore that the Government shall take this into consideration and shall not make the Act a more or less oppressive Act. It must be an aiding Act enabling people. No man who has raised a crop—he will oftentimes be the poorest man—will be willing to destroy the whole crop. If it is destroying one or two seedlings it does not matter much, but oftentimes the whole crop may have to be destroyed. In such cases he may not think of the compensation he is going to be given because he is often quite ignorant of what you may give. He will rather throw his wife and children at your feet and say 'cut us rather than cut the crops'. I do not want that in an Act which is intended to improve the condition of the agriculturists in this country any provision should be introduced which will make it a hardship to them. This is a matter which should be borne in mind and given the best consideration. I request your Excellency to see that the amendment is accepted and also the penal provisions which are proposed to be omitted are omitted."

The Hon'ble Sir FAIRLESS BARBER:—"I am glad that the Government are opposing the amendment. It would be a most dangerous thing to accept it. I do not know if it would be out of place if I should tell the Council that we are considering this Bill for the benefit of the community at large, and therefore any hardships that may fall on individuals can scarcely be considered. We have had three amendments and all have been treated by the movers on this crop are very serious and amendments like this proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar machinery and the materials for destroying the disease, but I think that the Agricultural Department will help the people, and with the assistance of co-operative societies which I know are supplying sprayers and things like that to the ryots, it may not be difficult to get the appliances."

8TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Ranga Achariyar; the President.)

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I am not at all satisfied, Your Excellency, with the reason urged why the amendment should not be accepted. It must be remembered that we are enacting a penal provision, we are imposing an obligation upon individuals. Nobody denies that for the benefit of the community you can impose obligations upon individuals, but at the same time you should not impose obligations which the individuals cannot bear. The benefit of the community does not require that individuals should be killed, or that individuals should be improved out of their property. What is the meaning of asking a ryot to carry out improvements costing a hundred rupees on a land worth ten rupees? Surely the benefit of the community does not require such a thing. You cannot ask him to leave his home and leave his field and cultivation and go 20 or 30 miles to buy materials. Does the benefit of the community require that men should be put to such difficulties? After all, what benefit of the community but a bundle of individuals? It is very well for the Hon'ble Sir Fairless Barber who would not be subjected to such hardships to say all that; I am quite sure that nobody would dare to approach him; but what is the fate of the poor ryot for whose benefit we are enacting this legislation? The Honourable Member in charge says, the chances are that the department would not enforce, but are you going to leave it to chance? Do we not know how the revenue department behave towards the poor ryots? Do we not know how the village munsif and the karnam will report whether this man has done this or not—we all know how liable to corruption these people are. You are simply handing them over to their tender mercies."

"The Honourable Member in charge is afraid of the defence which may be set up. It is either a true defence or a false defence. Is it a crime to set up a true defence? He will have to prove it. Who will be frightened by such bogeys? The people are there to defend themselves against a crime and they will defend themselves by pleading the truth. If he has a true case, certainly the man is entitled to defend himself. He may say the cost exceeds a certain amount and you will have to face it. I do appeal to the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill that it would be a great hardship. In fact the suggestion made by the Hon'ble Sir Fairless Barber is that it is for the benefit of the community that it should be worked. I dare say the department will work the Act with great rigour. We must remember that the villagers live in far away places and even taluk centres have not got proper medical shops and the villagers will not be able to carry out the necessary remedial measures. The object of the Bill should be that the officer should be forced to carry out those measures. If not they would simply issue the notification and expect the occupier to carry out the measures. Without this proviso the people will be put to a great deal of difficulty. I strongly appeal to the Government that they will accept this provision."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Member would excuse me if I say that in his eloquence he has drawn a lurid picture that the Government will use the Bill so as to cause hardship to the ordinary ryot. It is obviously not in the interests of the department of agriculture to administer this Act in that way. It is obviously absurd for them to impose such hardships as the Honourable gentleman suggests. He suggests that the whole country side is to be vacated and the poor ryots are to be turned out of their holdings and that the whole place would go back into a desert and plain because this power is given to the agricultural department. Surely the agricultural department may be trusted to administer it with some due regard to the interests not only of the ryot but the interests of the community. I hope that his eloquence would not carry away the Council."

The amendment was put to the Council and lost.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar demanded a poll which was taken with the result that 15 voted for and 22 against the amendment.

The following is the result of the division:—

For		Against
The Hon'ble	Mr. P. Siva Rao.	The Hon'ble	Sir Alexander Cardew.
"	Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar.	"	Mr. L. Davidson.
"	Mr. T. Richmond.	"	Mr. C. G. Todhunter.
"	Mr. K. Sadasiva Bhat.	"	Mr. A. Y. G. Campbell.
"	Mr. K. Suryanarayana-murti	"	Mr. R. Ramachandra Rao.
"	Nayudu.	"	Mr. W. J. J. Howley.
"	Mr. B. Venkatapati Raja.	"	Mr. M. Young.
"	the Raja of Pithapuram.	"	Mr. L. E. Buckley.
"	the Raja of Bobbili.	"	Mr. N. E. Marjoribanks.
"	Mr. A. Subbarayalu Reddiyar.	"	Mr. Aziz-ud-din.
"	Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar.	"	Mr. Kavalappara Muppil Nayar.
"	Mr. Yaqub Hasan Sahib.	"	Sir Francis Spring.
"	Mr. A. T. G. M. Ahmad Tambi	"	Mr. R. Littlehales.
"	Marakkayar.	"	Sir Fairless Barber.
"	Chidambaranatha	"	Sir Gordon Fraser.
"	Mudaliyar.	"	Mr. J. H. Thonger.
"	Mr. A. Suryanarayana Rao.	"	the Most Reverend Archbishop
"	Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.	"	Aelen.
"		"	Mr. J. C. Molony.
"		"	Mr. W. Hutton.
"		"	the Advocate-General.
"		"	Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
"		"	Mr. H. G. Stokes.

(The President; the Advocate-General;
Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar). [8TH FEBRUARY 1919.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I will call upon the Hon'ble the Advocate-General to move a purely verbal amendment."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"Your Excellency, I beg to move—

In the explanation, for the words 'for the purpose of this section only' read 'for the purpose only of this section.'

"It is a purely verbal amendment. It does not affect the sense of the section."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. Y. G. Campbell seconded the amendment.

The amendment was put to the Council and agreed to.

Clause 4 as amended was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 5.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg to move the following amendment:—

For the words 'duly empowered' in the first line read 'appointed'; and omit the words 'in this behalf' in the second line."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"I accept it."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"It is merely a change of words."

The amendment was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"Your Excellency, I beg to move the following amendment:—

Between the words 'the notified area' and the words 'in order to ascertain' insert the words 'and take such action as may be necessary.'

"That portion of the clause as altered by the amendment will read thus:—

'Any officer appointed under section 17 may enter on any land or water within the notified area and take such action as may be necessary in order to ascertain, etc.'

"The object of this amendment is quite simple. The clause as worded gives power to the inspecting officer to enter upon the land in the possession of the occupier, only to do two things, first to ascertain whether the pest or disease exists there, and secondly whether the prescribed measures have been taken by the occupier. He would not be able, as the clause stands, to remove a leaf or the bark of a tree or to remove a fruit or a tree or anything of the kind. He would not be able to touch the tree at all. Nor would he be able to pull out a plant in order to examine whether there is a stem-borer or some other kind of insect. In order to legalise such action as may be necessary on the part of the inspecting officer, to enable him fully to ascertain whether the pest or disease is present and in order to enable him to ascertain whether the measures have been taken, it is necessary not only to authorise him to enter upon the land but to arm him with such powers as may be necessary in order to ascertain these two facts. I think the amendment which I have moved explains itself."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"May I ask for information if such action entails any loss to the owner would compensation be provided?"

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"Any action taken under clause 5 is only for ascertaining the facts. It would not involve ordinarily wholesale destruction. Compensation is provided for only action taken under clause 9 of the Bill."

The amendment was put and agreed to.

Clause 5 as amended was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 6.

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"I beg to move a purely verbal amendment to clause 6 (1). It is as follows:—

For the word 'action' in line 3, read 'measures' and omit the words 'or both'.

The Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar has given notice of a similar amendment."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I second the amendment."

The amendment was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg to move that in line 8 of clause 6 (1) for the word 'action' the word 'measures' be substituted."

The Hon'ble the Advocate-General seconded the amendment.

The amendment was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I do not move amendment No. 7.

The amendment was as follows:—

Clause 6 (2)—Omit the words 'who may make such order as he thinks fit. The' and substitute the word 'whose'."

With the permission of His Excellency the President the amendment was withdrawn.

[8TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Siva Rao; the Advocate-General;
Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; the President.)

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I beg to move the following amendment to clause 6 (2).

Substitute '30 days' for 'seven days.'

"This amendment relates to the limitation which is prescribed in the Bill for preferring an appeal against the order made by the inspecting officer calling upon the occupier to carry out certain remedial or preventive measures. The time prescribed is seven days. The amendment that I propose is to extend the time to one month. One month's time is prescribed under section 8 of the Bill. In cases in which the preventive or remedial measures are carried out by the inspecting officer and the cost of those measures is sought to be recovered from the occupier as if it were an arrear of land revenue, it is open to the occupier to prefer an appeal within 30 days. As regards this period of seven days I submit it is too short a period for the purpose. Honourable Members of Council will have to consider whom these orders will affect in the first instance. They affect the ryots who live in the interior, miles and miles away from the taluk and district headquarters. The ryot is generally illiterate and it takes sometime before this order is read out to him; he has to go to the nearest village karnam or headman who may not be readily available and by the time the contents of this order are read out to him and he becomes aware of them it necessarily takes sometime. Then he has to consider how this order would affect him financially, and then choose some draftsman or somebody to prepare his appeal formulating his grievance. It may be that the prescribed officer to whom this appeal lies may be living in the taluk headquarters or the district headquarters, and the ryot has to undertake this journey. All this will take time, the communication, the necessary advice and the drafting. He cannot be expected to complete all this within seven days. I do not know, Your Excellency, where this period was copied from. I am aware that in the case of prisoners sentenced to the gallows seven days' time is prescribed. I do not know why that period is copied in a case like this. In any view I think this period must be extended to one month, as it is an order which affects the well-being of the ryot and it may affect him financially. It is but just that he should have ample time at his disposal."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Sadasiva Bhat seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"Your Excellency, the measures that have to be taken are, as pointed out more than once, of extreme urgency. Seven days would be ample time for the occupier to prefer an appeal. What are going to be his grounds of appeal? The only grounds that will be available to him will be that the disease or pest does not exist or that the measures have been already taken by him and that the inspecting officer's decision that the disease did exist or that the measures have not been taken is wrong or that the time allowed by the inspecting officer in the notice to carry out the measures is not sufficient. These are the only grounds, and these are matters on which there is no necessity for expert advice. These are matters within the knowledge of the occupier. If the time allowed is not sufficient the appellate court will be able to extend the time; sub-clause (3) empowers the appellate court to extend the time. There is really no hardship in the matter. It is really a case of extreme urgency and I appeal to the Honourable Member not to press the amendment. It is really not necessary to give the ryot under this special Act the same time as an ordinary litigant gets who appeals from the Munsif's Court or Sub-Court to the District Court."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I am very much surprised at the attitude taken by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General. He began by saying that the grounds of appeal are very limited, but I am afraid he is seeking to import into the words of this Bill a new provision as to what shall be the grounds of appeal. I think it is open to the occupier to urge any ground in appeal under this section. For instance, he may urge that the cost is disproportionate, or it is impracticable to carry out the measures. It is open to him to bring it to the notice of the Collector and ask him not to call upon him to carry out these measures. There is nothing to limit the grounds of appeal, and it is not desirable to do so at all. This section gives a wide margin to the Collector. The appellate officer has every latitude in the matter. He can consider the circumstances of the case and hear the ryot as to why he should not be called upon to carry out the measures suggested. The grounds have been nowhere defined. Then it is said it is an urgent matter. It may be an urgent matter, but the conveniences of the ryot must also be consulted. There is not even a provision in the Bill as there is in the Limitation Act to enable the appellate officer to excuse the delay. Under the Bill the appellate officer can only extend the time within which the measures can be carried out. I press the amendment for the consideration of the Council."

The amendment was put to the Council and lost.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg to move the following amendment to clause 6 (3):—

Omit the words 'as he may think necessary.'"

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"I agree to that."

The amendment was put and agreed to.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"There is an amendment which refers to sub-clause (1) of clause 6. It is wrong to go back, but as an exceptional case I do it."

The Hon'ble the Advocate-General moved the following amendment:—

In clause 6 (1) for the word 'shall' substitute the word 'may.'

The amendment was put and agreed to.

Clause 6 as amended was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

582 THE MADRAS AGRICULTURAL PESTS AND DISEASES BILL, 1918.

(The President; Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; 5TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Siva Rao; Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao; Mr. Sadasiva Bhat.)

Clause 7.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Both the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao and the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar are moving the same amendment."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I propose that in clause 7 the following amendment be made:—

Omit the words 'he shall be deemed to have committed an offence under this Act and.' My object in moving this amendment is that mere disobedience under this Act should not be treated as a criminal offence. Criminal offences should be confined to cases where a person does a thing or omits to do a thing in order to injure other persons. Here the punishment for disobedience is a fine under clause 14, and that fine may be levied in addition to the cost of the destruction of the plant. All that the Bill intends to carry out will be carried out by levying the penalty and the cost of the destruction of the plant. I therefore propose that this Bill should not add to the list of criminal offences. A broad distinction must be drawn between offences in which there is moral delinquency and technical offences. There is an analogy in the case of kudimaramat. There is a penalty for not removing the silt. I have got such an amendment to clause 8. I therefore propose that these words should be omitted."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I may be allowed to second this amendment. I do not see any reason why a new offence should be created in a matter like this and find a permanent place in the statute book. The only object of the Bill is to ensure the carrying out of certain remedial or preventive measures in respect of certain pests. That object is amply fulfilled by other provisions. The inspecting officer calls upon the occupier to carry out these measures in the first instance, and if he does not carry them out, he is empowered to carry them out himself and recover the cost from the individual. So long as the object is secured and there is also a provision that this cost shall be recoverable from the defaulting occupier as if it were an arrear of land revenue, what need is there for this to be made an offence? There may be a thousand and one circumstances in which the occupier may not be able to obey the order, some of which have been already set forth by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar. It may be that he is in such an impoverished condition that he has not got the means to carry out these measures. It may be he cannot get the necessary materials. There is absolutely no discretion in the matter, no preliminary sanctioning authority, and no provision is made that if lawful excuse is made out the prosecution may be dropped. It is a very drastic provision. There is absolutely no reason why the occupier should be punished criminally. As has been explained at the outset, these provisions go far to benefit the particular area rather than the individual, and if the individual does not take care and does not develop that higher sense of helping the community, why punish him? There is a provision already that he should be mulcted with the cost. That ought to be enough. I strongly object to the creation of a new offence under this Act."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I support the amendment. There is enough provision made in the Bill for collecting the cost of labour incurred by the inspecting officer. There is no need for a penal provision."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT:—"I wish to say only one word with regard to this amendment. I may inform the Council that there is a fairly large community of Jains, who are numerous in our side of the Presidency and all of them own lands. Suppose a notice is served upon Jain landholders in our district. By their religion they are prohibited from taking the life even of any insect. For example, they would not drink water in any form unless it is strained through a cloth. They would not take meals after sunset. They are the principal landowning class in the district. Supposing there is an insect pest and a notice is served on them that the insects should be destroyed by a certain day, they will not destroy the insects, and then they are liable to be dragged into court, it will be treated as an offence and they may be sent to jail. That provision of the Bill will work extreme hardship and will be received with great misgivings in our parts. I submit, therefore, that a provision should be made to enable the department to have these things carried out; the department may do it and recover the cost, and the failure of the occupier should not be made an offence. "And the failure of the occupier should not be made an offence. "Neither circumstance I want to mention is that in our parts the holdings are large and have no effect. Tenants often occupy ten or twelve acres of land and there are large areas which their patta land is occupied. Big landlords who have got several tenants have a large portion of the lands are cultivated only by their tenants and there is no effective occupation although ally in the hilly portions of our district. Under these circumstances it may not be possible especially to carry out these remedial ryots. It would be rather hard if it is made an offence if one is unable of the villages at the fountains. Some three or four years ago there was a pest that visited some certain villages of Upot of the ghaut in our district called Bamba. This affected the crop But although all the ryots spinangadi. Some attempt was made by the ryots to meet the pest. agricultural inspector there were willing to carry out the instructions given to them by the a failure and nothing could be done. Even now in certain villages we have this pest. The suggestion was that every ryot should procure two long bamboos and have a big sack or bag made out of net. Only some of the poorer ryots could provide themselves with it and the poorer ryots and tenants could not do so. These net bags and it was not possible to put those 8TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Sadasiva Bhat; Mr. Suryanarayana Rao;

the Advocate-General.)

measures into operation to any effective extent. I submit, therefore, that the present provision will be regarded with the gravest misgivings, if even the Jains could be required to destroy the insects on their fields by a certain time on pain of their being sent to jail for ten days. This class are met with in smaller numbers in other districts. I know in South Arcot and Tanjore there are some Jains but they are very numerous in our district."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO:—"Your Excellency will pardon me if I make a few observations. I find some difficulty. In section 7 it is provided 'if any occupier upon whom notice has been served under section 6 fails to comply with the notice within the time specified by the inspecting officer, he shall be deemed to have committed an offence under this Act.' Therefore the person who is deemed to have committed an offence is only the person upon whom notice has been served under section 6. But in section 6 Your Lordship amended the word 'shall' into 'may.' Therefore it is not compulsory upon the inspecting officer to serve a notice upon the occupier. The removal of the word 'shall' causes some difficulty, because if there is no notice there will be no offence at all. He may call upon the occupier but he is not bound to do so. If there is no notice he does not fail to comply, because under section 6 it is only the occupier upon whom notice is served who can be said to have committed an offence. It is therefore an anomaly because there may be persons upon whom notice may be served and there may be persons upon whom it may not be served and it is only persons upon whom notice is served that have the right of appeal or are bound to appeal, but if there is no notice the person need not appeal. I do not know if there is not some anomaly between sections 6 and 7, and considering that the word 'shall' has been altered into 'may,' may we not altogether take away the penal provisions, because nobody can be said to have committed an offence if no notice has been served? I therefore submit that the penal provision in clause 7 may be altogether removed. The inspecting officer may be authorized to take remedial measures and recover the costs; otherwise the section has to be re-worded so that all should be compelled to obey the notification of the inspecting officer, and every person must be served with a notice by the inspecting officer. Otherwise the section will not be workable according to my humble opinion."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"Your Excellency, the amendment will certainly render the Act absolutely unworkable. The penal provision to which objection has been taken is, I think, a most necessary provision in the Act, if you only look at the scheme of the Act. There is a good deal of misconception, I am afraid, as to what exactly is the liability upon the occupier. Clause 4 merely lays upon the occupier the obligation to carry out certain measures. It does not make failure to carry them out a penal offence. In clause 5 the inspecting officer enters upon the land and finds out whether the measures have been carried out or not. If they are not carried out, he may tell the occupier orally or in any other manner and he may leave it to his discretion to carry out these measures. The object is to make it less drastic than it would be if the word 'shall' was there. The inspecting officer is not called upon in every case in which he finds that the measures are not carried out to serve a written notice upon the occupier calling upon him within a specified time to carry out the measure. On the other hand discretion is left to him. He may tell the occupier to carry out the measures and trust to his good sense to do it or he may consider that the occupier's omission is not serious enough to demand further action. The amendment 'may' for 'shall,' is in the direction of benefiting the occupier and does not impose any further obligation upon the occupier or make any invidious distinction between one occupier and another."

"Coming to clause 7 it is only the occupier upon whom the notice in writing is served and who fails to carry out the measures who will be prosecuted, and nobody else. There is no anomaly and there is no inconsistency between clause 6 and clause 7. Clause 6 says the inspecting officer may call upon the occupier by notice in writing. Clause 7 says that 'if any occupier upon whom notice has been served under section 6 fails to comply with the notice . . . he shall be deemed to have committed an offence.' It is perfectly consistent with clause 6. The necessity for this penal provision becomes clear when you look at the compensation provision. Clause 8 says 'if any prescribed preventive or remedial measures are carried out by the inspecting officer under section 7, the cost of such measure shall be recoverable from the occupier as if it were an arrear of land revenue.' Clause 9 says, 'when any trees or plants are destroyed under sub-section (1) the occupier shall be entitled to compensation.' The result is that by the way in which the Bill has been revised by the Select Committee the occupier will certainly not carry out the measures unless there is this penal provision, because he will get compensation only if the inspecting officer destroys, and therefore he will simply keep quiet and will not take further action in the matter at all. The inspecting officer will have to go and carry out the measures himself. It is only when he destroys the plants that the occupier will get compensation. In order to persuade the occupier to carry out the measures and in order to enable the provision as to giving compensation where the inspecting officer destroys the plant to be given effect to, we must have this penal provision. If it is not made penal, how could we enforce the measures? There must be some penal sanction or some inducement. The inducement is compensation. The compensation is provided only when the inspecting officer destroys, but when the man himself carries out the measures he will not get compensation. Therefore his failure to carry out the measures should be made penal. In order to compel him to carry out the measures, we make failure to carry them out penal. To some it may look like an inadequate remedy, but to strike that out also would make the Act absolutely unworkable, in which

(The Advocate-General; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; [8TH FEBRUARY 1919.
the President; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

case you do not want any Bill like this. You will be merely expressing a hope that the occupier will carry out the remedial measures and you will be merely laying down in other cases the inspecting officer may carry out the measures. The object of the provision is to educate the occupiers to carry out the measures and not to force the inspecting officer to carry out every measure. It is a very much milder course than the Hon'ble Mr. Suryanarayana Rao or other members imagine. This section is a sine qua non; otherwise the whole Bill will fail of its effect."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I am afraid the Hon'ble Mr. Suryanarayana Rao's diversion has diverted us from the true question at issue. It is quite true that it is only when notice is served and the man is called upon to comply with the notice that section 7 will come into operation. There are two ways in which the thing can be enforced. The official way, and that has been the customary one in this country, is, to make everything an offence. You prescribe everything for the good of the people and if they do not do it you make it an offence. That is adopted almost in every legislative enactment whether by the Local Government or the Government of India. The other way is to take power for the authority to do the thing which the man has failed to do. Section 7 provides for both these things. The question is whether both are necessary or one will do. My Hon'ble friend the Advocate-General is rather trying to whittle away the importance of the question by saying that it is impossible to carry out the Act unless we make it an offence. We have a provision to enable the authorities to enter upon the land, which otherwise would be trespass, to take preventive and remedial measures. The question is whether it is not a sufficient remedy for the evil. We tell the man: 'it is good for you and good for your neighbours; take these steps.' He fails to take those steps. What is the next thing to be done? The authority will enter upon the land and do the things for his good and also for the good of his neighbours and recover the cost of doing them from him. Is it not sufficient? Why call it an offence as if he committed an offence? Everything is an offence in this country. If you do not obey a sanitary law it is an offence. Here also the same thing is done. If an agriculturist is asked to do a thing for his own improvement and he does not do it, it is made an offence. I think it is highly unnecessary to make this thing an offence. I do not know why the Hon'ble the Advocate-General introduced the question of compensation under section 9 here. Under section 8 it is open to the Government to levy whatever charges they may have incurred for carrying out these remedial or preventive measures. I think that is sufficient. I earnestly appeal to them to altogether drop this idea of making it an offence. The failure may be due to various causes. It may be due to the impossibility of carrying out the measure or its impracticability or to his being laid up with influenza. It may be due to various causes. Here it is simply 'if he fails to carry out' it is an offence. In which country is such a thing created an offence? The failure need not be even wilful, mere failure is made an offence."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"May I answer the Honourable gentlemen on the last question he put? I happen to have an official document which enables me to give a reply. The two Acts in the United Kingdom providing for the investigation of disease and the destruction of pests provide for notification of the pests and carrying out the destruction or treatment and for a fine—exactly the same procedure."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Is it an offence?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The climax of this Bill is in clause 15 where a person is liable to a fine."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"What I object to is not the fine but its being treated as an offence. He may be liable to a penalty, that is going away from the point. As I pointed out, the failure may be due to various causes, but is to be made an offence? I think whereas you can take remedial measures yourself wherever he fails to do it, it is not right to call it an offence simply because he may fail for reasons beyond his control."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, I should like to say a few words on this subject. In the first place, I would invite the attention of the Honourable Members to the parallel legislation in Great Britain. There are also Acts in almost all the British Colonies. I may say that I went into this matter somewhat fully at the time when this provision was discussed. If it is necessary, I may point out that this kind of legislation is found in every British Colony, namely, Antigua, Barbados, Bermuda, British Columbia, British Guiana, Canada, Ceylon, Dominica, East Africa, Grenada, Montserrat, Natal, New South Wales, Orange River Colony, St. Christopher and Nevis, St. Vincent, South Australia, Southern Rhodesia, Transvaal, Trinidad and Tobago, the United Kingdom, Victoria."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Are you answering me?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I wish to inform the Council of this. I have also a small note as regards the provision in the British Act. There is nothing very unusual at all about such a provision. I may say that plants are forfeited or destroyed in cases—"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR (interrupting):—"I am afraid my Honourable friend has completely misunderstood me. My position is, I ask whether this word 'offence' is used, and not whether goods are forfeited."

8TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; the President;
Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao; Mr. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar;
Mr. Venkatapati Raju.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I say that in several British Colonies it is an offence. It is an offence under the Ceylon Ordinance which I have in hand. It is an offence in every Act. There is no doubt about it. In consenting to a provision such as this we have to be guided by the parallel legislation in other countries and at the same time to see that the provisions are not oppressive. That is the standpoint from which as members of the legislature we have to look at this matter. I quite recognize that many of these Acts are worked inconsiderately, and are sometimes put into operation without sufficient inquiry. All that I can say is that we have provided safeguards. On this matter my Hon'ble friend Mr. Ranga Achariyar has given notice of an amendment that prosecutions under this Act should not be instituted without the permission of the District Magistrate. It seems to me it is quite a sound line to take. I trust that when that comes to be discussed, such a provision will be accepted by the Government, in view of the strong feeling expressed on this matter."

"There is only one other observation I should like to make, and that is with reference to the alternative course suggested by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar. He says that instead of a prosecution before a magistrate, he would like to allow the occupier to pay a penalty of the same amount as the costs of the operation."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"That comes in the next amendment."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I deal with it now to show its bearing upon this amendment. If that view is accepted, perhaps in many cases the cost will be much more than the penalty provided in clause 14, which is Rs. 50. Another reason why I am against the penalty is that these penalties are worked in a most automatic way. My Honourable friend does not provide for any inquiry and perhaps the inspecting officer or the officers of the Agricultural department would levy these penalties irrespective of inquiry, whereas if it is a magisterial inquiry, the man will have a right to defend himself. All these considerations are in my mind in meeting my Honourable friends' objections, the force of which I quite recognize, more especially the one which was mentioned by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sadasiva Bhat, namely, the case of Jains. It seems to me that this Act should be worked considerably, and although I do not vote for the deletion of this clause, I do so on the express understanding that the other alternative proposed by my Honourable friends would receive consideration at the hands of the Government."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"The question now before the Council is as to whether it is desirable to make it an offence for the occupier not to comply with a notice under section 6 of the Act. So much has been said as to the undesirability of having drastic provisions in a new Act of this description and of making it penal not to comply with the notice. We have at the same time to bear in mind the objections urged by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General that there must be some satisfactory means of enforcing the provisions of this Act, if it is to be of any practical value. It is not the object of the Government or of any one else to make the provisions unnecessarily drastic or to cause hardship to the agriculturists in this country. May I make a suggestion to the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, if he cannot see his way to modify the provisions of this section, to make it possible for persons to be prosecuted only if they fail to comply with the notice, in the absence of lawful excuse? I believe it would meet all objections if words to this effect, viz., 'without lawful excuse,' are inserted in an appropriate place in this section. That would avoid the possibility of persons who are innocent and who are not responsible for these acts, who have taken the necessary precautions, but have for reasons beyond their control failed to comply with the notice, being prosecuted. It will be very hard, if not cruel, if persons who have very proper excuse are prosecuted under this section and fined eventually. I think, my Lord, that if these words are introduced, it would be satisfactory and it would cause satisfaction to all persons concerned. If Your Excellency would permit me, I would move an amendment for the insertion of the words 'without lawful excuse.' The amendment before this Council is that the provision making it an offence should be omitted altogether. I find that there are difficulties in doing that. As an alternative, I would request the Council to allow me to move this amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"I strongly support the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar as it stands, and if that is not accepted I support the addition of the words 'without lawful excuse' proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Your Excellency, the speech of the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao has given a different turn. I do not accept his suggestion that because such a provision is enacted in other place we should enact it in this country. The execution of provisions in one country is different from that in another country. Moreover one of the objections taken by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General to the removal of this clause of the objections is that there is no way of enforcing it. The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar has clearly pointed out that under section 8 you could recover every pie spent in putting an end to the pest. The objection raised by the Hon'ble Mr. Sadasiva Bhat is fatal to the continuance of this clause, because no adequate or satisfactory reply is given why you want to prosecute a person for not doing the thing against his conscience. It is a religious matter, and how could this Government interfere with that? That aspect of the question was evidently not before the Select Committee. Therefore, the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao said it might be considered in execution. Are we to take that view, when we are enacting a measure? Are we to leave it

(Mr. Venkatapati Raju; Mr. Rama Ayyangar; the President; [8TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; the Advocate-General.]

to the discretion of the executive officer? The Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao is right in suggesting that some such words as 'without lawful or proper excuse' should be inserted in order to protect such persons who have conscientious scruples to do the thing. I strongly support the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"My Lord, the challenge thrown out by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar seems to have brought us to a position of confusion. I never doubted that with the present Advocate-General and the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao in the Select Committee they would have failed to depend upon comparative legislation in other places but I have to urge, my Lord, that even when they introduced the new Bill we represented that the conditions in India were different from the conditions prevailing elsewhere. The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao read out a long series of colonies where similar Acts are prevalent. They are colonies in which the planters have established themselves and are taking away most of our agriculturists and are utilizing their services for the benefit of the places there and most of them are people who quite understand the regulations of this kind and who would rather resist scientifically any orders that might be passed by the Government. For example, if in a planting district an inspector who may ordinarily be an Indian under the present establishment, an agricultural inspector, has to decide this question, or even the Director of Agriculture, it is just possible that immediately the man is taken there to one of the plantations of the colonies the planter gets another expert from America who contradicts the opinion of the persons that come there and probably explains to them that the question is one in which expert opinions differ. It is in these circumstances when colonies enact laws for purposes of this kind they do want to introduce the question of penalty, otherwise the provisions will be nullified and become absolutely worthless. In India what are the kind of people who are going to be interfered with by this legislation? Are they people who can stand before these officers? Probably they will rather run away from their houses with their kith and kin than think of attending a place where the inspector enters the field and begins to cut off the crop. In a place like that when the Bill was introduced it was said by the Honourable Member in charge that with a view to ensure that pests did not really spoil the whole crops, with a view to see that agriculture thrived properly, it was proposed here for the benefit of the masses to thrust in this legislation. And now what is the position of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General? His point is that we must get it executed not by the department but by the person himself; otherwise it becomes useless to destroy the whole of the crops. He has to do it; the department must not do it; they ought not to get coolies. If you immediately make it an offence you will make the man do it. A man may have two acres of land paying one rupee assessment. That class will form 55 per cent of the population or 85 per cent of the agriculturists. These persons with one rupee pattas are to be asked to root out with twenty labourers a crop for which he has borrowed money from a sowcar at so many kalams per rupee and he is liable to have his cattle distrained and taken away by that money-lender. If he finds his crops affected with pests you ask him to destroy the whole of the crops, otherwise you prosecute him. That is the enactment which is sought to be introduced in the Madras Presidency in its present state. We all know what the educational condition of this country is and what the agriculturists are. Lawyers may be condemned, educated men may be condemned but the poor ignorant masses who are to be dealt with in this matter—they are going to be judged by laws passed in Ceylon. The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao quoted an ordinance. We know what the planters of Ceylon do in the matter of carrying away our coolies. Those people who do not find a living here go away there and these people are to be dealt with under that enactment. It is impossible to conceal that it will be a very hard matter if we are to join in passing legislation of this kind. Of course, twice the cost was proposed in one of the amendments by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar. I do not think that would be reasonable either. Any penalty that might be reasonably charged by the department within a certain proportion of the actual cost will be a proper provision to make. That is a matter we can consider in the next amendment. Whatever that may be, for people in the position of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General and the Honourable Member in charge to plead that it should be made an offence, I can understand it only if they are afraid of one position. If these people collect armies and prevent the officer from entering the land and make a big riot, the ordinary law is there to protect him but to make a particular act of not complying with the orders of this department maintained at a cost of Rs. 30,00,000 by these poor ryots with one rupee pattas an offence will be simply amusing to think of. It is a matter which requires deep consideration. If we really want to help the people—we are not called the representatives of the people, the future Legislative Council will be representative—I submit this cannot be made an offence in this country; and in the Madras Presidency in particular we cannot think of adding in the statute-book offences of this kind."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"It is time that the opinion of this Council should be taken. It has been very carefully considered by the Select Committee. It is not a new matter."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"May I ask Your Excellency to put the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao?"

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"The insertion of the words 'without lawful excuse' would make the provision unintelligible. What does the expression mean? The chapter on general exceptions under the Indian Penal Code is always available as regards any offence created under any special or local Act. The Honourable Members are aware that section 40 of 8TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (The Advocate-General; the President;

Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao; Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar.)

the Indian Penal Code defines that any offence under a special Act is an offence for the purpose of the general exceptions. The result of that is all those exceptions are always available. May I point out both to the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar and others who represent municipalities they must be aware of many similar provisions in the City Municipal Act which provide that failure to obey certain requisitions is punishable as an offence with a fine of Rs. 50; failure to obey a requisition to remove an obstruction is an offence punishable with Rs. 200 fine and failure to provide latrines is also an offence punishable with fine; similarly there are other provisions. You can run through the whole of Indian Legislation and find parallels in it and the legislation of foreign countries for this purpose. Failure to obey a lawful order duly promulgated by a public servant is a general offence. We have, for example, section 188 of the Penal Code under which if an occupier fails to take order with his property it is an offence.

"I would suggest to the Council that this is really not a departure from the usual kind of legislation attempted in this country or in other countries on similar matters. We should not be frightened by the word 'offence'. We know it is an offence punishable only with a fine not exceeding Rs. 50. The magistrate will take into consideration the means of the person who has failed to obey the order."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I put the amendment for the insertion of the words 'without lawful excuse.'"

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"That will have to come in later."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I asked about it before."

The amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar was put to the Council and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar demanded a poll which was taken with the result that 15 voted for 21 against the amendment:—

For	Against
The Hon'ble Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar.	The Hon'ble Mr. L. Davidson.
" " P. Siva Rao.	" " C. G. Todhunter.
" " V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar.	" " W. J. J. Howley.
" " T. Richmond.	" " A. Y. G. Campbell.
" " K. Suryanarayanamurti	" " R. Ramachandra Rao.
" " Nayudu.	" " M. Young.
" " B. Venkatapati Raju.	" " L. E. Buckley.
" " K. Sadasiva Bhat.	" " N. E. Marjoribanks.
" " the Raja of Pittapur.	" " Aziz-ud-din.
" " the Raja of Bobbili.	" " Kavalappara Muppil Nayar.
" " Mr. A. Suryanarayana Rao.	" " M. Ramachandra Rao.
" " T. Ranga Achariyar.	" " Sir Francis Spring.
" " Yaqub Hasan Sahib.	" " Mr. R. Littlehales.
" " Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.	" " J. C. Molloy.
" " K. Ohidambaranatha Mudaliyar.	" " J. H. Thonger.
" " A. S. Krishna Rao.	" " Sir Fairless Barber.
	" " Sir Gordon Fraser.
	" " Mr. W. Hutton.
	" " the Advocate-General.
	" " Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
	" " H. G. Stokes.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"As we have opposed this amendment we cannot put in the other amendment. I do not think there is any chance for it."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"May I explain one point Your Excellency? My Hon'ble friend Mr. Rama Ayyangar suggested that the main question of prosecution might be taken up first."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We cannot carry amendments to the Bill in that way. We cannot go back. I do not think the Honourable gentleman will feel any grievance."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"May I suggest Your Excellency, that these words 'provided that he has no lawful excuse' may come in at the end after the words 'under this Act.'"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I put that amendment."

The amendment was put and lost.

Clause 7 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 8.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I move the following amendment to clause 8 (1):—

For the words 'preventive or remedial measures' read 'remedial or preventive measures.'"

The Hon'ble the Advocate-General seconded the amendment.

The amendment was put and agreed to.

(Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao; Mr. Siva Rao; the Advocate-General.) [8TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I do not propose to move the other amendment to clause 8 (1)."

The amendment which was not moved ran as follows:—

After the words 'an arrear of land revenue' insert the words 'and a penalty of the same amount as the cost'.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I beg to move the following amendment to clause 8 (1) (a):—

Omit the word 'wrongly.'

The word 'wrongly' would introduce unnecessary complications."

The Hon'ble the Advocate-General seconded the amendment.

The amendment was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I beg to move the following amendment to clause 8 (1) (b):—

Substitute the word 'charges' for the words 'rates charged' and add the word 'or' at the end of the sub-clause

If the word 'rate' is used, it will take away the discretion of the officer concerned."

The Hon'ble the Advocate-General seconded the amendment.

The amendment was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"As the two other amendments have been agreed to, I do not move the next amendment."

The amendment which was not moved was as follows:—

After clause 8 (1) (b), add the following as 8 (1) (c): 'or that the cost of such measures is otherwise excessive'.

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, the amendment which I wish to move runs thus:—

Add the following proviso at the end of clause 8:—

'Provided the Collector shall have full power to remit the cost in toto or in part on the ground of the poverty of the occupier or such other cause'.

"Your Excellency, clause 8 provides for an appeal against the levy of the cost of carrying out these measures. It provides that it shall be recoverable as if it were an arrear of land revenue. That means that all the coercive processes which are incidental to the non-payment of land revenue will follow the non-payment of these charges; that is, the moveable property may be attached, the crops may be distrained and may be put up for sale. As the clause now stands, the Collector will have power only to enter into the question of the rates charged, the sufficiency or the excessive nature of them. That is all that is provided for in this clause; under this clause it is not competent to look into other matters. He is only entitled to look into the excessive nature of the charges, whether the charges are excessive and whether the man has been mulcted in more than the proper amount. If this proviso is agreed to, in the case of a poor occupier it will be open to him to plead that the charges are no doubt legitimate and properly incurred, but he has not got the means to incur them, and it shall be open to him to plead that he should be exempted from these charges or they may be remitted in his case. This proviso will enable him to raise such a plea. I have also added the words 'or such other cause' to cover cases of this kind. The holdings may be so small, say about 5 or 6 cents and the expenses to be incurred in connexion therewith may be far too disproportionate to the value of the holdings. In such cases it shall be open to the occupier to say that he should be exempted from paying or that a portion of the expenditure should be remitted in his case. Anyhow, Your Excellency, this matter must be considered by the appellate authority and he must specify one of the causes, poverty, and I think there will be no difficulty in carrying this amendment. If it is carried, I think it would go far towards palliating the stringency of most of the other provisions in the Bill. I am quite hopeful that this will find acceptance in the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"Your Excellency, there is great force in the plea of poverty, but it can be easily remedied by executive action. The Honourable Member has not considered what the clause says. 'The cost shall be recoverable from the occupier as if it were an arrear of land revenue.' It does not say 'recovered.' There is no statutory exemption of land revenue by executive order. There is no necessity for a statutory provision for remission. I do not suppose that the executive officer charged with the carrying out of the provisions of the Act will try to recover from the poor ryot charges which he cannot afford and grant a remission. Just as the power of the Government to remit arrears of land revenue in any case exists as a matter of course, similarly this right exists in this case. Apparently the Honourable Member thinks that as the section stands it is made obligatory on the Government to recover this amount. It is not so. I may assure him on the language of the section it is certainly not obligatory on the part of the revenue authorities to recover the cost of these measures. It is open to them to recover it or not. They can remit it just as they can remit land revenue. It is quite usual in cases of this kind to make the various sums which agriculturists are liable to pay, recoverable as arrears of land revenue.

8TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (The Advocate-General; Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; the President; Mr. Richmond; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

"You cannot make an exception in this Act, while you do not make statutory provision for remission in other Acts."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"The analogy drawn by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General between arrears of land revenue and the cost of destruction does not hold good. Arrears of land revenue are written off when all the land of the defaulter has been sold. Here he will have some land on which the plants or crops are infected.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I have not been able to follow the Hon'ble the Advocate-General. He will not be there when this Act is administered and cases come before the magistrates. There are rulings that even the statement of objects and reasons and the statements made in the course of the discussion ought not to be taken into consideration by the courts. What the Hon'ble the Advocate-General gives as his opinion now will not be taken into consideration. It is better that the clause is self-contained. Clause 19 gives the Governor in Council power by a notification to make rules in regard to certain matters mentioned there. If he means to say that the Government may make rule to make it not recoverable in some cases and the discretion of the Government is not taken away by the Act, I can quite understand him. But as the Act stands what the rules will be it does not say. The rules will not say anything as to what the compensation or cost is to be; you will see that from clauses (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f) and (g), except the general clause (g) which says 'generally to carry out the purposes of this Act' which cannot take away what is provided for in this Act.

"It does not say that the Government may make rules as to whether in particular cases the cost may or may not be recovered. When that is the case, I cannot understand why the Advocate-General says that the phrase 'shall be recoverable' implies that it shall not be recoverable if the Collector thinks so. There is no provision in the Act to make it not recoverable. There is a provision that it shall be levied. I do not see how the Advocate-General gives the opinion that 'shall be recoverable' means that there is a discretion vested in any authority. The clause says that the cost shall be paid by him and the method prescribed for the recovery is 'as if it were an arrear of land revenue.' The cost is payable by the man and the Collector is not authorized under the Act to say that it may not be paid, nor do the rules under clause 19 provide for the Government reserving power to make remission. The Collector would not entertain the application whatever the Advocate-General's opinion may be in this Council. If he agrees that the provision must be there, it is better to say 'may be recovered, and such recovery shall be as if it were an arrear of land revenue.' The Act as it is does not make a provision to enable any one to remit. Therefore the opinion deserves to be reconsidered."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I second the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar for the substitution of the words 'may be recovered as if it were an arrear of land revenue.' That brings out what the Hon'ble the Advocate-General has in mind. If the intention of the Government is not to make him compulsorily liable, the language unhappily lends itself to that construction. But I quite admit that eminent counsel arguing before the Collector may convince him that it is not so. As it is not the intention of the Government to make it compulsorily liable, I think the proposal made by the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar may be agreed to, as it would bring out the idea without injury to the substance."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I must draw the attention of the Honourable member to the fact that we are discussing the proviso to clause 8. We have passed the clause and we cannot go back."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Only with Your Excellency's permission."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We cannot do that."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RICHMOND:—"Once the Bill is passed into law, in construing the section we must take the ordinary grammatical construction and meaning of the words. Any debate in this Council or expression of opinion by any Member of the Government will not be taken into consideration when this section comes to be construed. I think there is a great deal of force in what the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar says in favour of his contention, and I would suggest that in view of the fact that the section has to be construed in its ordinary grammatical sense, there is no harm in putting in this proviso which would give discretion to the district officers in proper cases to make remission."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I would call the attention of the Council to this particular proviso. It says 'provided the Collector shall have full power to remit the cost in toto or in part on the ground of the poverty of the occupier or such other cause'. We have heard a great deal of poverty of the occupier. Nobody has said anything about 'such other cause'. It really means giving a wide power to the Collector who is really an officer of the Government entrusted with the execution of the Act. Nobody

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Krishna Rao; [8TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Suryanarayana Rao.]

denies there may be cases in which it will not be possible to recover the cost. The only point of difference between the Hon'ble the Advocate-General and the Honourable Members is, are you going to say, in a law, in a statutory enactment, that every Collector who is administering the Act shall have power to remit the cost either on the ground of poverty or any other cause similar to poverty? What will it mean? It will introduce a considerable diversity of practice. We have Collectors and Collectors; some will construe it in one way and some in another way. It will be impossible to work the Act with any reasonable uniformity. My honourable friend's proposal is to leave it as it is. Or would you leave it to every Collector to do as he likes? That would lead to any amount of diversity in practice over which we would have no control. Or would you leave it to the Government to introduce uniformity of practice? I do not see what it is that Honourable Members are striving for. It is not that the Honourable Members want to stand for the poor people and we want to screw them or oppress them. With all respect to Honourable Members I would associate myself with what the Advocate-General has said. He advises us in regard to the draft and he says that our object will be best achieved in the manner we have proposed. In these circumstances I would advise the Council to defer to the opinion expressed by him."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I do not know if the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar wishes to suggest that this might be reserved to the rules to be made under section 19 of the Act or if it is not proposed to do even that. So far as this proviso is concerned, he has asked us to defer to the opinion of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General who suggested that this might be left to rules to be framed by the Local Government. It has given considerable relief to us to hear the interpretation put upon the word 'recoverable' by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General. But he will agree with us that it is dangerous to leave the words in that form, leaving it to individual Collectors to construe them according to their opinions. It is therefore necessary that when we are passing this Bill we should make it quite clear and definite that it should not be recovered in each and every case, and that the officer has some discretion or power to remit it whenever a proper case arises. It must not be recovered as a matter of course. By what means is it proposed to be done? If in section 19 the Hon'ble the Advocate-General is good enough to introduce another amendment to make provision for rules in order to determine when and how it shall be recovered and when remission shall be granted, that would satisfy the purpose. There must be something in the Act itself which would make it clear without any doubt whatever that the officers concerned have a discretion to remit the cost either in whole or in part as suggested by the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao. If such a provision is not made in section 19 under the rules, we have no other alternative but to support the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao."

"The object is quite clear, viz., that the Collector should have power to remit the whole or part of the cost. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar is too technical when he refers to the words 'such other cause—'"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"That is what you want to put in."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Not that I welcome it. There must be sufficient provision in the Act itself to show that he has a discretion. Your Excellency suggested some difficulty in accepting the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar. It would have been more satisfactory if that could have been taken up. That not being possible, I would request the Government to accept the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao or at least to agree to make a provision in section 19 giving such discretion to the Collector."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, I do not see what difficulty there is in accepting the amendment. It gives discretion to the Collector to remit or not remit the dues in any case where poverty is established. It is entirely within the discretion of the Collector, and the amendment proposed is to give the Collector an opportunity of acting in cases where poverty exists. After all where the destruction of pests is undertaken, where a large number of pattadars are absolutely poor, it is necessary to give a wide discretion to the Collector in the application of the Act. It is not unusual to give such power. The Honourable Member is aware of the remissions on account of poverty in the Municipal Act with which we are perfectly familiar. There is a statutory ground upon which remission is admissible. I do not see what the difficulty is that the Honourable Member feels in accepting such a provision. On the other hand to stereotype and standardise all methods of remission in the Presidency under rules seems to me somewhat undesirable. It is far better to give discretion to the Collectors. I strongly support the proposal of my Honourable friend. If that is not possible, then the only other way will be to expressly state in the rule-making section that the Collector would be given a discretion to give remission. Otherwise it seems to me, my Lord, this provision would cause unnecessary hardship."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO:—"Clause 19 does not seem to contemplate any framing of rules on this subject. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar was saying that some rules would be framed. I do not see that section 19 contemplates the framing of any rules so far as this subject is concerned. With regard to the proviso that is suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao I submit that it is absolutely necessary, even after hearing the interpretation of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General as regards the meaning of the words 'shall be recoverable.' There will be confusion as regards the meaning of that expression. There are Collectors and Collectors and the very same objections which have been urged by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala 8TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Suryanarayana Rao;

Mr. Kavalappara Muppil Nayar; Mr. Siva Rao; Mr. Thonger.)

Achariyar with regard to this proviso can be urged with regard to the words 'shall be recoverable.' These debates will be no evidence whatever in Courts as to the meaning to be put upon these words. It is absolutely necessary that this proviso should be inserted so that the Collectors may know what their powers are and whether they can show any concession."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. K. R. KAVALAPPARA MUPPIL NAYAR:—"I support the amendment. I do not see any objection to leaving the question of remission to the discretion of the Collectors."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I am sorry I must join issue with the Hon'ble the Advocate-General. I regret very much I cannot accept his opinion. With due deference to his legal acumen, I do not think that these words 'shall be recoverable as if it were an arrear of land revenue' can ever be construed as a reservation of power in the Collector or the appellate officer to grant remission as in the case of land revenue. It only means that it prescribes the mode of recovery, whether it should be by way of a civil suit or distraint or compulsory sale of holding. That is all that is meant by saying 'as if it were an arrear of land revenue.' I would draw the attention of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General to the grounds of appeal. What are the legitimate grounds of appeal as stated in clause 8 as it stands grounds of appeal. They are (1) charges for items other than cost of labour, material or use of implements have been wrongly included, or (2) the rates charged for labour, material or use of implements are unduly high. These grounds are exhaustive of the right of appeal which is given only on these specific grounds. The ground that I am seeking to put forward is the ground of poverty, or such other suitable cause. The only ground on which the decision is liable to be attacked is that the charges are not reasonable and the rates are unduly excessive. From a mere narration of the grounds of appeal to my mind it is clear that it is not open under clause 8 for the occupier to plead that he is poor and can ill-afford the cost and therefore that he wants a remission. I would respectfully ask the Hon'ble the Advocate-General whether any speech he makes here would be relevant when the matter is allowed to be decided by Collectors in the interior. They would not even allow the reading of it. If it is there, what is the objection to our making it clear? Grounds of suspension or remission of land revenue on the failure of crops or of the monsoon and the fraction in which the remission is to be granted are laid down in the Standing Orders. Is it not necessary that some such rules should be framed for this purpose? If rules have to be framed, is it not necessary that in section 19 some power must be reserved to the Governor in Council to frame such rules under that section? Is it not necessary also to empower the Collector to admit all such grounds in an appeal under clause 8? Then the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar said it would vest a very large discretion in the Collector. There is absolutely no danger. As pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao, poverty is a ground for remission in the Municipal Act. The whole scheme of the Bill is to vest the discretion in the inspecting officer and the appellate officer. Absolutely nothing untoward will happen if this discretion is given. I strongly plead that a provision such as 'provided the Collector shall have full power to remit the cost in toto or in part on the ground of the poverty of the occupier or such other cause' should be inserted, or you may have the words in other suitable cases."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—"I have not the slightest hesitation in accepting the assurance of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General that the interests of the occupiers are protected, but not being a legally minded man I must confess I do not understand the section. I would suggest that the section should be redrafted in order to make clear the present hidden meaning, or the amendment should be accepted."

The amendment was put to the Council and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao demanded a poll which was taken with the result that 19 voted for and 19 against the amendment.

The following was the division:

For		Against
The Hon'ble	Mr. V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar.	The Hon'ble	Sir Alexander Cardew.
"	Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.	"	Mr. L. Davidson.
"	Mr. P. Siva Rao.	"	Mr. C. G. Todhunter.
"	Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar.	"	Mr. W. J. J. Howley.
"	Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju.	"	Mr. A. Y. G. Campbell.
"	Mr. Richmond.	"	Mr. B. Ramachandra Rao.
"	Mr. K. Sadasiva Bhat.	"	Mr. M. Young.
"	Mr. K. Suryanarayanamurti	"	Mr. L. E. Buckley.
"	Nayudu.	"	Mr. N. E. Marjoribanks.
"	Mr. Kavalappara Muppil Nayar.	"	Mr. Aziz-ud-din Sahib.
"	the Raja of Pittapuram.	"	Sir Francis Spring.
"	the Raja of Bobbili.	"	Mr. B. Littlehales.
"	Mr. A. Subbarayalu Reddiyar.	"	Sir Fairless Barber.
"	Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar.	"	the Most Reverend Archbishop
"	Mr. Yaqub Hasan Sahib.	"	Aelen.
"	Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.	"	Mr. J. C. Molony.
"	Mr. K. Ohidambaranatha	"	Mr. W. Hutton.
"	Mudaliyar.	"	the Advocate-General.
"	Mr. A. Suryanarayana Rao.	"	Mr. P. Rajagopala Achari.
"	Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.	"	Mr. H. G. Stokes.
"	Mr. J. H. Thonger.

(The President; Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; the Advocate-General.) [8TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The numbers are even, 19 each way. I should give my vote against the amendment."

The amendment was declared lost.

Clause 8 as amended was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 9.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I do not move my amendment as it is merged in the Hon'ble the Advocate-General's amendment. The amendment which was not moved was as follows:—

Clause 9 (2).—Omit the words "cut and destroyed."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"That is what I was going to suggest. I will put to the Council whether that clause should be substituted for the clause as it now stands, unless the Council has any objection to the alternative clause now proposed."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Your Excellency will put the clause after ascertaining the sense of the Council."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Let the Hon'ble the Advocate-General explain his clause. That will show how to treat the other amendments on paper."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"The clause that I propose to substitute for clause 9 is this:

"9. (1) If in carrying out any prescribed remedial or preventive measures under section 7 the inspecting officer destroys or causes to be destroyed

(a) any tree which is infected with the insect pest or plant disease, or

(b) any plants, not being trees, some or all of which are affected by the insect pest or plant disease but which are grown so closely together that it is not ordinarily practicable to treat each plant individually, or

(c) any plants including trees which, though not so infected, have in his opinion become liable to such infection, he shall serve a notice in writing on the occupier stating particulars of the trees and plants destroyed and his estimate of their value.

(2) When any trees or plants are destroyed as aforesaid, the occupier shall be entitled to compensation as follows:—

for a tree destroyed under sub-section 1 (a)—not exceeding one-half the value thereof; for plants destroyed under sub-section 1 (b)—not exceeding two-thirds of the value thereof; for plants destroyed under sub-section 1 (c)—their full value.

Provided that when the prescribed remedial or preventive measures require that any cotton-plants shall be removed before some specified date subsequent to the ordinary date of harvest of those plants, no compensation shall be payable for the removal thereof, although some more produce might have been obtained by leaving the plants standing beyond the date specified.

(3) For the purpose of this section 'value' shall mean the value of the tree or plant at the time of its destruction."

Clause (1) which I propose condenses sub-sections (1) and (2) of the existing clause 9 as settled by the Select Committee.

Incidentally one change has been made. The clause as settled by the Select Committee runs thus: "In carrying out any prescribed remedial or preventive measures under section 7 the inspecting officer may destroy or cause to be destroyed any tree", etc., whereas the clause that I beg to move runs thus: "If in carrying out any prescribed remedial or preventive measures under section 7 the inspecting officer destroys or causes to be destroyed" etc. That is a change of language made for the purpose of making it clear that it is only when destruction is a prescribed measure that the inspecting officer is to destroy. It is not all destruction of a tree or a plant which will enable the occupier to get compensation. The inspecting officer is not to do that unless destruction is one of the prescribed measures. In order to make that clear the language has been changed. Instead of saying he may destroy, what I say is 'if the inspecting officer destroys.'

"The real change which is now sought to be made is in the proviso to the new clause. Every other part of clause 9 as settled by the Select Committee is left wholly unaffected except that sub-clauses (1) and (2) are condensed into one sub-section. This proviso raises a question of some substance. It runs as follows:—'Provided that when the prescribed remedial or preventive measures require that any cotton plants shall be removed before some specified date subsequent to the ordinary date of harvest of those plants, no compensation shall be payable for the removal thereof, although some more produce might have been obtained by leaving the plants standing beyond the date specified'.

"The Honourable Members will, by comparing the Bill as introduced with the Bill as settled by the Select Committee, see that it is simply a restoration of the clause which existed in the Bill as introduced, but confines it to cotton plants instead of leaving that clause to apply to all plants. The necessity for this proviso has been pointed out by the Director of Agriculture. The necessity arises in the case of the Cambodia variety of cotton. In the case of Cambodia cotton the Director states that unless the fields containing Cambodia cotton are left bare for a period of two months after the ordinary harvest before the next cotton crop, the cotton is sure to become infested with pests. The valuable Cambodia variety of cotton was introduced by the Agricultural Department in the south some ten years ago and it has now spread very widely and last year's crops amounted to two lakhs of bales, and sold for nearly ten crores of rupees. When this crop was first cultivated, the ryots treated it as an annual crop, just as country cotton is treated. But after some years it was discovered that Cambodia cotton can be left on the same field for two or even three years and will continue to yield pickings of cotton. The yield of cotton in the second and third year is however very poor when compared with that given in the first year, and such cotton is always badly stained and damaged by the attacks of insect pests. The stem-borer which has been mentioned above is now found in almost the whole of the Cambodia crop in the Coimbatore district and has begun to spread in the Tinnevely and Madura districts. It must cause a very large reduction in yield of the crop each year. It is not possible to deal with this pest once the crop is infected. The insect is a small beetle which lays its egg under the tender bark of the stalk just above the ground. From this egg develops the grub which bores through the stalk and either kills or severely damages the plant. The grub then develops into a beetle which flies off and lays its egg in other plants.

8TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (The Advocate-General; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Siva Rao.)

"The Director points out if this Cambodia variety is to be dealt with on a proper footing, if you propose to give compensation to occupiers of land on which Cambodia cotton is grown, it is impossible to deal with the pest. It will be too large a proposition to pay compensation for all this. As a matter of fact if this insect pest is allowed to continue on Cambodia cotton, it appears this cotton crop is badly stained and the yield becomes comparatively small. I think from a business point of view as well as from the point of view of dealing effectively with the pests, a clause like that suggested by the Director of Agriculture is necessary. This amendment is brought in to make it clear that in the case of Cambodia cotton after the first year's crop the plants are not left by the cultivator untouched, he should not allow the plants to remain on the ground notwithstanding an order by the officer of the department concerned requiring him to pull them out and leave the fields bare before the next sowing. I have nothing to add except to suggest that if you want to provide for compensation for large fields containing these crops, it will be a further inducement to the ryot to go on keeping on these fields with infected cotton. If you provide compensation and deal too tenderly with individual tenants, you will be unjust to other cotton growers who will require far more compensation by this pest continuing to infect their fields. You should not encourage an unsound agricultural practice like this which has been condemned. I therefore appeal to Honourable Members to accept this proviso. The rest of it is mere matter of drafting. This is the only matter of substance."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. Y. G. Campbell seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"The clause as redrafted by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General is in substantial agreement with the draft as settled by the Select Committee with the exception of the proviso, and it is to this proviso that I take strong exception. My Lord, the general principle of this Bill was that if any remedial action is necessary the parties concerned should be fully compensated, and the principle of compensation was greatly discussed in the Select Committee and it was ultimately resolved that the original Bill should be departed from and that compensation as stated in clause 9 (3) should be given, viz., 'for a tree destroyed under sub-section (1) (a)—not exceeding one-half the value thereof, for plants destroyed under sub-section 1 (b)—not exceeding two-thirds of the value thereof, for plants destroyed under sub-section 1 (c)—their full value.'

"This was done after considerable discussion and after looking up the parallel legislation elsewhere which provided in all cases for a certain amount of compensation either for trees which are in an inchoate state of infection, and the scale of compensation has been fixed with a view to see that no party is injured. Now it is seriously proposed that Cambodia cotton should be uprooted at the instance of the agricultural officers without payment of compensation. We are thankful to them for their efforts, but there is something like excessive zeal. If there is no such restriction as there is, such as the payment of compensation, whole tracts may be denuded, it may be with the perfectly bona fide motive of keeping all plants clear of pests. I think the only thing to moderate this zeal is the payment of compensation which means that the questions will be asked by the Collectors and by the Board of Revenue and the Government as to why compensation should be paid and why public funds should bear the charge. Therefore, on that one ground I submit there is no reason whatever why it is necessary in the interests of Cambodia cotton that after the first year the crop should be uprooted and the parties concerned who derive valuable crop should not be compensated as proposed in other cases in sub-clause (3). I strongly object to this proviso. The rule laid down in sub-clause (3) must be followed in this case also."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I am equally strongly opposed to this proviso. There is absolutely no reason why exception should be made in the case of this cotton plant, when the Select Committee decided to award compensation in varying proportion in the case of all other plants.

"The only reason that was given us was that the field must not be allowed to continue with the pest, and it was also stated that it is quite desirable that power should be taken to destroy or remove or call upon the owner to cut these plants or remove them after the first harvest and before the time for the next harvest arrives. What I fail to see is why compensation should be refused in a case like that. It is as fit a case as the others."

594 THE MADRAS AGRICULTURAL PESTS AND DISEASES BILL, 1918.

(Sir Fairless Barber; Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar; [8TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao; M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.]

The Hon'ble Sir FAIRLESS BARBER:—"It seems to me that the only alternative to accepting the amendment would be to introduce another clause making it penal to grow cotton for more than one season."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I am sorry I am not able to understand why the alternative is to make it penal to keep the cotton for more than one season. Is the object of this provision to prevent the keeping of cotton in the second year or to prevent insect pests?"

The Hon'ble Sir FAIRLESS BARBER:—"It is a source of danger to the whole country if the cotton is allowed to grow each year, the crop being infected the whole time by pest. It can only be destroyed if they are uprooted."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, though there is a case, as the Hon'ble Sir Fairless Barber has pointed out for growing cotton in particular seasons, there is, so far as the amendment of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General is concerned no justification for not giving compensation, when a man grows the crop. The proviso is likely to create hardship. It was not considered or accepted by the Select Committee. It is now introduced by the Director of Agriculture. It is likely to create hardship; and why compensation should not be given is not clear, from what the Hon'ble the Advocate-General has said."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"May I say a word? The Hon'ble the Advocate-General has pointed out that in the original Bill we had this proviso in a very wide form. It ran thus: 'provided that when the prescribed remedial or preventive measures require that the plants, not being trees, shall be removed before some specified date subsequent to the ordinary date of harvest of those plants, no compensation shall be payable for the removal thereof although some more produce might have been obtained by leaving the plants standing beyond the date specified.' When this came up before the Select Committee, I think the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao will bear me out in this—none of us understood what it referred to. It was one of those enigmatically worded things which was open to the criticisms just now made by the Honourable Member: why do you choose these particular things and say you will not give compensation? We all agreed. Subsequently the Government examined the whole thing and it was found that this provision which was left out in the Select Committee was a provision of considerable importance. It is not the case, as one would imagine, of ryots wanting to keep the crop growing and the Government wanting them to pull it out. But it is a question of 90 per cent of the ryots realizing that the maintenance of that crop is injurious and being prepared to pull it out, but 10 per cent not doing so and keeping it there—thereby ruining not only themselves but the other 90 per cent. That is the problem. The best cultivators always treat Cambodia strictly as an annual crop. I do not know if it is grown in the Northern Circars."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I have heard a great deal about it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"It is grown greatly in the Tinnevely district. One of the few things which I know with regard to Cambodia cotton is that it is treated as an annual crop. The best cultivators treat it strictly as an annual crop. That is to say they pull up the old crop at the end of the season in July or so, and plant a new crop either on the same field or on some other field in September. A good cultivator realizes that although he would save the trouble and expense of ploughing and sowing the field by leaving the old crop on the ground, yet the yield which the old crop would give him in the second year would be a poor one. On the other hand a newly-planted crop would give him a much better yield which would more than pay for the cost of reploughing and sowing. It is only the lazy and slovenly cultivators who leave Cambodia cotton on the ground for two or three years. Now in July and August in Coimbatore, while the majority of fields will be cleared of cotton, there will be a certain percentage of fields left standing by these lazy cultivators. These fields form a refuge for all the cotton insect pests of the neighbourhood which would otherwise die for want of food. As soon as the new crop is planted in September, the insects fly from the old crop and infest the new crops. There have been continued complaints from cotton traders that the quality of Cambodia cotton has been steadily deteriorating. There is no doubt that this is the case, and the reason is to be sought in the great increase of insect pests which has taken place. The remedy for this state of things is simple. If all fields are bare of cotton for two months in each year, the great majority of insect pests must die for lack of food. The new crop will get a clear start and will have time to sufficiently and attack it. The principle of this method of dealing with cotton pests has been recognized in other countries. In Egypt it is compulsory to clear cotton plants from the field direct a ryot to pull up his crop while it is still yielding may seem at first sight to be an arbitrary proceeding, as my Honourable friend characterised it. But I hope the matter will bear a different aspect when one realizes that if he is allowed to leave his crop to remain on the ground, it will act as a direct source of infection to the new crop of his neighbours in the next season. It is really to the ryot's own pecuniary interest to make him adopt the practice of planting a new cotton crop every year. Leaving aside the question of damage by insect pests, his total gain will be greater. I called for figures and I find that the whole thing is a struggle not so much between the Agricultural Department and the cultivators but a struggle between 90 per cent of the cultivators who are adopting the correct practice and the 10 per cent of people who are not doing so. If this 10 per cent alone would suffer for their wrong practices, probably it is worth while to let them suffer provided they do not make other people suffer. It will have an educative value. But unfortunately these insect pests instead of confining themselves to their breeders have a way of spreading and extending their operations. We have 90 per cent of people who have a habit of pulling out the old crop and starting a new crop, but 10 per cent allow it to remain on the ground. At present the Agricultural Department is proceeding by persuasion and constant preaching. It is by persuasion they have induced 90 per cent to follow the correct method. In all these matters we do always have an irreducible minimum of obstinate people who will persist in doing something wrong which injures not only themselves but other people. You may take my word that nowhere in the world have you hundred per cent of the people reasonable. The Agricultural Department is face to face with the coercion of 10 per cent and we are putting forward this Bill to coerce the 10 per cent into reasonableness. The Honourable Member says 'give him compensation' which means that the 90 per cent would be tempted to follow the course of the 10 per cent. They will say, why should we pull it out voluntarily without compensation? This Cambodia cotton has been giving a lot of money in the Tinnevely district. I find the valuable Cambodia variety of cotton was introduced by the Agricultural Department in the south—it was not introduced in the north, if it were I should have larger support—some ten years ago. It has now spread very widely and last year's crop amounted to over 2 lakhs of bales and sold for nearly ten crores of rupees. This ten crores of rupees which is going into the pockets of the people is now in danger. Are you going to sacrifice this ten crores by allowing these insects to breed, by allowing the 10 per cent of refractory people to stand upon the sacred right that every person should do as he likes? Or are you going to make them conform to the right agricultural practice so that not only they but 90 per cent of the population will benefit? That is the question before the Council and I have no hesitation in asking you to adopt this particular safeguard. We have taken care to restrict the proviso because a general proviso would be open to the criticism that it is too vague; you may pull out the whole of a big paddy field. So I asked the Hon'ble the Advocate-General to frame this thing with reference to the specific issue of Cambodia cotton. If you apply the principle of compensation, the ryot will not harvest the crop and he will oblige us to pull out these crops and that would have a most deleterious effect; whereas the correct agricultural practice in his own interests as well as in the interest of others would be to require him to do that. This being a new thing put in by the Government, I have felt bound to give a somewhat full explanation."

8TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar;
Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; the President; Mr. Siva Rao.)

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"May I ask whether this state of things is referred to in the Agricultural Report?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I have got the information supplied to me by the Agricultural Department. It is difficult to answer the question."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"I respond to the appeal of the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar and give him my support. It has been tried in the south and I think I should support this amendment."

The amendment was put and agreed to.
Clause 9 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We said we would sit till 2 o'clock to-day. I imagine you would like to adjourn according to that understanding. We will meet at 11 o'clock on Monday and finish this Bill and then go to the Corporation Bill."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"There is one amendment of mine to clause 9."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"There is very little to say on that except that the Honourable Member proposes to give full compensation in a case for which only a portion of the value has been provided. The Government would oppose it and stick to the clause as it stands."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We have really passed that point."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"This was on the agenda paper. It was not noticed by Your Excellency."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"It is my fault. Let us settle it now."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"If Your Excellency likes we can have it on Monday."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We cannot. I have already given orders that this clause should be added to this Bill. I gave full opportunity and he did not come up."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I move my amendment which runs thus:—

For clause 9 (3), substitute the following:—
'When any trees or plants are destroyed under sub-section (1) the occupier shall be entitled to full compensation in all cases.'
'Your Excellency, compensation is awarded in three cases. The first is the case of a tree destroyed under sub-section (1) (a), i.e., if in carrying out any prescribed remedial or preventive measures the inspecting officer destroys any tree which is infected with insect pests or plant disease. In that case the compensation is 'not exceeding one-half the value.' The second case is 'plants, not being trees, some or all of which are affected by the insect pests or plant disease but which are grown so closely together that it is not ordinarily practicable to treat each plant individually.' In such cases the compensation is two-thirds of the value. The third case is 'any plants including trees which though not infected have in his opinion become liable to such infection' and the compensation is 'their full value.' To my mind the whole of this sliding scale is thoroughly unintelligible. There is no reasonable principle on which the classification is made. The compensation is awarded on the principle that most of these measures are taken not for the benefit of the individual occupier but of the whole area, or the cultivating community.

(Mr. Siva Rao; the Advocate-General; [8TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.]

"If compensation is awarded on that principle, I do not see any reason why full compensation must not be awarded. They stand on the same footing. It may be in some cases the individual occupier is benefited ultimately, but when these measures are taken he will be injuriously affected, though he may ultimately benefit, and it may be that the other members of the community, the other cultivators in that area will be benefited as well. In any view it is a case for awarding full compensation. Clause (4) says 'for the purpose of sub-section (3) value shall mean the value of the tree or plant at the time of its destruction.' If it is already infected, its value will be very much less. It all depends upon the assessing of the value in any such cases. There should not be any such varying scale."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"Your Excellency, no change has been made with regard to this matter in the proviso which I introduced. This clause stands as it was settled by the Select Committee. Really I do not know that any very great justification has been advanced for this amendment. It is obvious why this differentiation was made. If Honourable Members would look at section 9, sub-clause (1), there are three classes of plants or trees. The first class is 'when any tree which is infected with the insect pest or plant disease is destroyed.' The second class is 'any plants, not being trees, some or all of which are affected by the insect pests or plant disease but which are grown so closely together that it is not ordinarily practicable to treat each plant individually.' The third class is 'any plants including trees which though not infected have become liable to infection.' It is impossible to award the same rate of compensation as regards all the classes. If the tree or the plant affected is destroyed, the occupier should get compensation different from that got by a man whose tree has become liable to infection. That is not covered merely by the words 'value at the time of destruction.' Different conditions exist, and different methods of valuation may have to be adopted."

"You cannot adopt one method for valuing a plant and a tree alike. The method of valuation will have to be settled by rules and also the method of compensation. It is impossible to go into the rules now. In the case where a tree is infected with insect pests or plant disease, the practice in the United Kingdom appears to be the same as the practice which the Bill follows. There the compensation is not to exceed half the value thereof. It is difficult merely to rely on sub-section (4) and say that value means value at the time of destruction. You cannot say, give the full value of the tree at the time of destruction. There is a danger of the valuation becoming arbitrary. Therefore it is necessary to say that when it has become infected the compensation should not be more than half. It follows the English legislation. The Government oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"The Bill as originally drafted did not provide for compensation in the way that the Select Committee has proposed. It is in the Select Committee that this question of paying compensation in cases where crops or trees or bushes on which the destructive pests are found in any stage of existence was introduced, and it was stated that compensation should be paid in such cases, and ultimately it was decided that we must follow the legislation in Great Britain, where the rule is as follows:—"In the case of crops, trees or bushes on which the destructive pests are found in any stage of existence, compensation is not to exceed one-half, and in other cases is not to exceed three-fourths of the value of the crops, trees, bushes, which in each case is to be taken to be the value which in ordinary circumstances they would have had at the time of their removal or destruction." On these grounds I think the proposals made in the Select Committee as drafted here provide for compensation in all cases, but they vary the compensation in proportion to the degree of infection. Assuming that a plant is wholly infected, the compensation would be very little."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"After all it reduces itself to the question of valuing the tree. If the tree is infected its value will be very little. If a tree is liable to be infected, he will get more value. In all cases it is a question of assessing. When you have to assess, why do you say he should get only one-third, half or two-thirds?"

The amendment was put and lost.

Clause 9 as substituted was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

At this stage the Council adjourned till 11 a.m. on Monday, the 10th February 1919.

H. G. STOKES,
Acting Secretary to Govt., L. & M. (Legislative) Dept.

Proceedings of an Adjourned Meeting of the Council of the Governor of Fort
St. George assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.

The Council re-assembled at the Council Chamber, Fort St. George, at 11 a.m. on Monday, the 10th day of February 1919.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Right Hon'ble JOHN, Baron PENTLAND of Lyth, P.C., G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E.,
Governor of Madras—Presiding.
The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW, K.C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR Avargal, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble MUHAMMAD AZIZ-UD-DIN HUSAIN SAHIB Bahadur, Khan Bahadur, C.I.E.,
I.S.O., O.S.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. BUCKLEY, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. Y. G. CAMPBELL, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. W. J. J. HOWLEY.
The Hon'ble Mr. W. HUTTON.
The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES.
The Hon'ble Mr. N. E. MARJORIBANKS.
The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY.

600

THE MADRAS CITY MUNICIPAL BILL, 1918.

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Venkatapati Raju; [10TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Ranga Achariyar.]

Corporation and his position will become very difficult. If I were in the Honourable Member's position, I would ask that the appointment should be made by the Corporation. I would not provide a thing like this proposal of his which really goes to produce friction. Also, I think it will be better, at any rate for some years, in choosing this chief executive officer for the Corporation, that the Government should have an absolutely free hand. Already the appointment of a President to the Madras municipality is a difficult job to choose a man for, and I expect with this Bill the officer chosen to fill up the appointment of Commissioner will have to be very carefully selected. I think it would be in the best interests of the city municipal administration that the hands of the Government in this matter are left wholly free. I think, Sir, that this amendment, while it does not give any substantial power to the Corporation, will produce friction and it will weaken our hands. It will probably compel us sometimes to agree to the appointment of an officer whom we consider to be not quite suitable and on the whole it is best to leave the Bill as it stands. May I draw the attention of the Council to the fact that there is no provision like this in Bombay? The chief executive officer is wholly appointed by the Government. I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Your Excellency, the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar has pointed out that the modesty of the request is in itself a disqualification for the acceptance of it. In the ordinary course of things, it would have been well for the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar to have moved that all executive officers paid from municipal funds should be appointed by the municipality as it is in all civilized countries. But as we are proceeding step by step, he has suggested only a small instalment. That ought not to be taken as an objection but to be taken as giving occasion to exercise discretion. Next time when this Bill is considered, we will move that the appointment of the Commissioner should be by the Corporation itself. But at present, to meet the exigencies of the situation, this proposal has been made; otherwise the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar would have been the first to ask for the appointment by the Council itself."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, this panel system is not unknown to the Government. Even without a statutory requisition, Government adopt it in the case of judicial appointments and I have not heard of any friction being produced. It is done every day in the matter of the appointment of Sub-Judges, and of other responsible judicial posts in the city. The High Court consisting of twelve Judges nominate three persons for the purpose from whom the selection is made. We are yet to hear of any friction between the High Court and the Government in that matter. I quite agree that a careful selection has to be made. Careful, from what point of view?—I say not only from the point of view of the Government, but from the point of view of the Corporation also. We are now entrusting the municipal government of the city to this Corporation. If we entrust under this Bill the safety of five lakhs of people to the Council, could you not trust to their judgment in making a suitable nomination in regard to their own executive officer? Nowhere in England do you find the county council or any borough authority leaving the nomination of its executive officer to an outside body. As it is, we want to make a modest beginning and that is the reason why I have made my proposal in the least objectionable manner. The Honourable Member in charge of the Bill says that, in Bombay, they do not appoint him. May I remind him that they gave it in the year 1887 and even then when this was brought before the Council the late Mr. Telang, who gave his support to the Governor in Council having the power of appointment, observed: 'I am in favour of the preservation of the Municipal Commissioner, though I can quite see that the time may come when we shall take a further step in the direction of local self-government, and the Municipal Corporation will have to ask the Council of the day to concede the power to the Corporation to appoint its own Municipal Commissioner.'

"They began with that with the hope to have this power, to make the appointment themselves when the Municipal Bill came up for consideration next time. I do not see any friction at all. The Honourable Member referred to the renewal of the period. Supposing it is a case where the Commissioner satisfies the Governor in Council—there are several ways of satisfying the Governor in Council—and supposing the Corporation are dissatisfied with the way in which he does their work, and supposing the Governor in Council renews the appointment in the face of opposition from the Council, is that to be accepted? Therefore I say that in such a matter as that, the Corporation will exercise the best judgment and, if necessary, we will go into committee to deal with this matter; and I have perfect confidence in the wisdom and good sense of the Council to whom we are entrusting the municipal government of the city. Far from producing any friction, it will tend to give an impetus to the good working of the Act. This system account of the exigencies of official considerations, to find a place for an Indian Civil Service man, whether he be Sub-Assistant Collector or Head Assistant Collector; he is thrust over the heads of the other men. Now he presides, but I think he would not preside hereafter; but at the same time, we are going to have good business people on the Council. The Chamber of Commerce is represented there, the Trades Association is represented there and there are various other interests which will be represented there. The flower of the intellect of the Presidency is like this, I cannot see what reason they can have in rejecting this amendment. I would therefore strongly press this amendment for acceptance."

The amendment was then put and lost.

10TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (The President; Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar demanded a poll, which was taken with the following result:—

For		Against
The Hon'ble Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.		The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.
" " P. Siva Rao.		" " Mr. L. Davidson.
" " K. Rama Ayyangar.		" " C. G. Todhunter.
" " B. Venkatapati Raju.		" " A. Y. G. Campbell.
" " K. R. Suryanarayanamurti		" " R. Ramachandra Rao.
" " Nayudu.		" " M. Young.
" " Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur.		" " L. E. Buckley.
" " Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.		" " N. E. Marjoribanks.
" " T. Ranga Achariyar.		" " R. B. Wood.
" " A. Suryanarayana Rao.		" " Aziz-ud-din Sahib Bahadur.
" " A. S. Krishna Rao.		" " Dr. T. M. Nayar.
" " B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.		" " Sir Fairless Barber.
		" " Mr. J. H. Thonger.
		" " the Most Rev. John Aelen.
		" " Sir Francis Spring.
		" " Mr. R. Littlehales.
		" " J. C. Molony.
		" " W. J. J. Howley.
		" " W. Hutton.
		" " the Advocate-General.
		" " Diwan Bahadur P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
		" " Mr. H. G. Stokes.

The amendment was lost, 11 voting for and 22 against.
Clause 7 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 5.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I will call upon the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan to move his amendment to clause 5."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"Your Excellency, I beg to move that for sub-clause (a) the following be substituted:—(a) Thirty elected by thirty divisions of the city and six elected off Moslem divisions."

"It is practically acknowledged on all hands that no public body can be said to be a popular assembly unless Mussalmans as one of the two principal peoples of India are adequately represented on it. The Government has constantly kept this in view and has always nominated Mussalmans to a few seats on all Municipal, Local and Legislative bodies. As long as these bodies were partly elected and partly nominated Mussalmans were content for a long time to have their representation by means of nomination by Government. There have, however, been for some time past manifestations of discontent and dissatisfaction throughout the Presidency as to the persons Government chose to nominate. The Collectors of districts almost always showed partiality for persons who sided with officials and there was very little chance of nomination for those who took independent views of things. The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur Rajagopala Achari will remember that I had brought to his notice some of these complaints and in spite of the reliable information placed before him as to the popularity or otherwise and merits and demerits of the various aspirants to the municipal councillorships the official choice invariably fell on those who did not command the confidence of the Mussalman public of those places. The Mussalmans of one town presented a mahzar bearing the signatures of a large majority of the prominent Mussalmans of the place denouncing the candidate favoured by the officials and supporting another candidate of their own. This was as good as a popular election and yet Government appointed the wrong man. The Honourable Diwan Bahadur had not even the courtesy to vouchsafe me a reply to the representations I made to him. In one case my friend and colleague Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar had also supported the candidate about whom I had made representation, but even his recommendation was not heeded by Government. I must, however, gratefully acknowledge that the predecessors of the Honourable Indian Member, the late Hon'ble Mr. Krishnaswami Ayyar and Sir Sivaswami Ayyar paid more attention to the Moslem representations in the matter of their nomination to the municipal and local bodies. The former gentleman had told me that he had issued orders that the first vacancies in the local bodies should be given to Mussalmans till they had secured an adequate representation in every union, council or board and that local Mussalmans should be consulted in the matter of selection."

"Sir Sivaswami Ayyar had once of his own accord sent me a message asking me to name a few Mussalmans who would be eligible for the commissionership of the Madras Corporation. He made independent inquiries about them all and selected one with whom he also subsequently had an interview. He was so sure of his recommendation being given effect to that he mentioned the fact to the nominee himself, but to his and my great chagrin one European gentleman was nominated to the vacancy."

"I am myself a nominated Commissioner of the Corporation since February 1911. I very nearly lost my seat in February 1914. The then President had the audacity to tell me that the

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [10TH FEBRUARY 1919.
the President.)

Government expected the nominated Commissioners to support the President and as I had more often opposed him than supported him he did not see why I should be recommended for renomination.

"Such are the ways of the advisers and Members of the Government in the matter of nomination of members of municipal and local bodies."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"May I know what these things have to do with this question? The Honourable Member has told us how the recommendations which he has made in regard to mufassal municipalities had been dealt with by individual members of Government and he now proceeds with the way in which his own case is treated. I have not much objection to his having his say, but I want to know the bearing of these things."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"It is rather undesirable that the Honourable Member should refer to private transactions which are not fully before this Council."

The Hon'ble Yaqub HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I wanted to show the evils of nomination."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I am aware of it. It is rather undesirable to bring into public view details of private transactions, full particulars of which cannot be before the Council."

The Hon'ble Yaqub HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"How else can I show that nomination is undesirable?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"It is quite open to the Honourable gentleman to say that nomination is undesirable, but at the same time in my view it is undesirable in doing so that he should bring into public debate in the Council details of private transactions full particulars of which cannot be before Members of Council, because it is not possible for Members of Council to enter into that matter."

The Hon'ble Yaqub HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I bow to your Excellency's ruling. I only wanted to illustrate by my own personal example how the nomination is being exercised by the Government, to show that I would not have Muhammadans nominated and to make my point strong that the candidates should be elected. Having shown how the right of nomination is sometimes exercised by the officials, I ask my Hindu and European friends in this Council whether they still want Mussalmans to depend entirely on the sweet will and pleasure of the officials and the Government for their representation on the Corporation of Madras."

"Some of my friends would say that if a really capable Mussalman offers himself for election he is likely to be elected by the general body of electors. They may even point out that some Brahmans in spite of being in a minority as a caste manage to get returned by the majority of non-Brahmans. It is true that till now Hindus as a body did not discriminate between Brahmans and non-Brahmans in the matter of election, but they did draw a line more often than not where a Mussalman was concerned. At any rate the uncertainty of commanding the goodwill and suffrage of the majority of the electors if not the absolute certainty of failure prevented many a candidate from coming in the field. Some Brahman friends by way of compliment, I suppose, told me that if I offered myself at this moment as a candidate Hindus will gladly vote for me. I really envy these friends their simplicity. Do they realize that the non-Brahman agitation that is so influentially backed now will leave a chance even for those Brahmans to be elected? Then there is the division between the Nationalists and Moderates? I do not know which party will be in the ascendancy in the electorate I may stand for. I do not wish to make a weathercock of my political views to turn it in the direction of either the whims and fancies of the majority in a general electorate or those of the officials who have the appointment in their gift. I would prefer to throw myself only on the suffrage of my own co-religionists and let them elect or reject me on the ground of my own honest political or social tendencies."

"I am sure two points will be conceded to me by my colleagues. Firstly that there should be an adequate number of Mussalmans on the Corporation of Madras, secondly the nomination by Government is not a desirable form of providing that representation. Some artificial means are suggested to attain the end I have in view. One suggestion is that the divisions of the city be so formed that the number of Mussalman electors may in some divisions be sufficiently large to enable them to elect members of their community to the Corporation. It is also conjectured that a Mussalman may come in through the Indian Chamber of Commerce or some other corporate body. And nomination should be resorted to make up the imaginary deficiency. A Persian proverb says 'what you do not like for yourself do not like it for others.' Why all these multifarious makeshift contrivances when one direct and certain method of securing our representation is available?"

"These devices may serve for small communities like Europeans, Anglo-Indians or Indian Christians, but a large community like the Moslem that has a population of over 59,000 in this city and whose municipal voters are about 1,400 at present out of the total of about 11,000 voters deserves a better provision for their representation on the Corporation. Instead of so arranging the divisions that Mussalmans may form bare majority in some divisions why not arrange separate divisions of Mussalman voters themselves? Instead of trying to secure some of the 30 divisional seats to Mussalmans why not add to the strength of the elected members by giving additional seats to Mussalmans?"

10TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

"The second suggestion is the one made by the Select Committee. It has placed on record its opinion that 'in practice it will be desirable that four of the seven seats [under clause (e) of clause 5 (i)] be reserved for Muhammadans.' The Committee did not choose to reserve the four seats for Muhammadans in the Bill itself but left it to the Governor in Council for the time being to decide their election or appointment in the manner he chose to notify. The clause 65 (i) gives power to the Governor in Council to make rules for the conduct of elections by institutional and other electorates as well as of divisional elections. The only satisfactory feature of this recommendation of the Committee is that it has suggested the filling of the reserved seats for Mussalmans by election or appointment under clause (e) and not by nomination under clause (f)."

"Even this modest recommendation of the Committee is not accepted by the Government and I see from item 6-A on the Agenda that the Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur Rajagopala Achariyar who himself made the suggestion incorporated in this recommendation now seeks to nullify it by reducing the number of seats from seven to three under the clause (e) and increasing the seats in the gift of the Governor from five to nine under sub-clause (f). There was a hot discussion in the Select Committee over the question of Moslem representation and the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Aziz-ud-din and myself fought hard for separate Moslem electorates so much so that Mr. Aziz-ud-din said he would write a minute of dissent on the question. In order to pacify us and the large Moslem public who had made persistent representation to the Committee, the Honourable Member of the Government got the above recommendation incorporated in the report. I regret the necessity, but I am constrained to call his subsequent manoeuvre a gross breach of faith with the Moslem community. Allow me to warn the Government that it is not wise to trifle with the Moslem community in such offhand manner."

"As for the number of seats to be reserved for Mussalmans I base my demand on the population and importance of the community in the city of Madras. We form 11.4 per cent of the population, our number being 59,169 out of 518,665. I ask for six seats which is about 15 per cent of the total minus the institutional seats. This is the percentage which the National Congress and the All-India Moslem League had jointly fixed for Madras in respect of the Legislative Council. I may mention that Mussalmans are very keenly interested in this question. There was a public meeting of Mussalmans the other day in which a letter from the Hon'ble the Prince of Arcot was read sympathising with the object of the meeting for securing a separate electorate for Mussalmans."

"I omitted to mention in connexion with the general electorate that now that votes are being given to women also, we Mussalmans will be handicapped in the general electorates. We form a minority in the general electorate and when women are also allowed to take part Hindus, Christians and Anglo-Indians will bring their ladies to vote, whereas Muhammadans cannot bring out their ladies on account of the parda. In that way we will be further handicapped in the general electorates. If there is a separate electorate for Mussalmans, there will be no harm done as far as female vote is concerned, because the candidates in the Moslem electorate being Muhammadans, none will be handicapped because the Muhammadan women on either side would not take part in the voting. I may also point out that in the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh there is a division of Moslem and non-Moslem voters and Moslem councillors are elected by Moslem voters. That is the general principle followed throughout the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, and I do not see why that principle should not be followed in the case of Madras also. With these words, I commend this amendment to Your Excellency's acceptance."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I do not propose to take up the time of the Council by replying in detail to the Honourable Member's observations which have covered a very wide ground. At present we are concerned with the Madras City; we are not concerned with the several mufassal municipalities in regard to Moslem representation on which the Honourable Member has chosen from time to time to make recommendations privately to Members of Government in charge of the department and the way in which the Honourable Members in charge had dealt with those recommendations of his from time to time. That is absolutely irrelevant, nor do I even propose to go into what took place in the Select Committee. What took place in the Select Committee may be gathered from the report of the Select Committee which has been signed by everybody including the Honourable mover of this amendment; and the Honourable mover has not questioned any of the facts stated in the report of the Select Committee which we have all signed and I do not think we need take note of that report of that Committee which has been signed by everybody including the Honourable mover of this amendment. If that question becomes relevant, many of my colleagues could discuss that took place there. What we have to deal with now is what the Honourable Member proposes, namely, to constitute six Moslem divisions which would elect six Moslem members. I take it that the Honourable Member has moved only the first amendment of the three in his name. He has moved only the first to have six Moslem divisions. His apprehension is that without some such precaution the Mussalmans would have very poor chance of being returned to the Corporation. I am not prepared to say that that apprehension is wholly groundless. The Honourable Member has told us that he has been asked by a lot of his Hindu friends to stand up and been assured of their support. I quite see that he does not represent the average Madras Mussalman; he occupies a position of a pretty high character in which he is in a position to attract the confidence and influence of his Hindu townsmen to an extent to which it may not be given to the average Mussalman to do. So also he has condemned Government nominations. As a matter of fact, the Honourable Member sits on the Corporation by Government nomination. He has not been elected by any constituency. Therefore, I say that the Government may well claim to be judged of their capacity to nominate the right man by the ease of the Honourable Member himself because the Government put the Honourable Member into the Corporation."

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Yuqub Hasan ; [10TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I was just referring to that when I was interrupted. I was going to say that I very nearly came to lose my seat, because the President said that I more often opposed him than sided with him in the Council and therefore he could not see his way to support my renomination."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"That did not weigh with the Government and that shows that the Government are wise in choosing the correct people. I believe it will be a mistake to allow ourselves to discuss just now the whole question of communal electorates. We have nothing to do with it. We are now considering the question of communal representation, so far as the Moslem community in the Municipal Corporation is concerned. I would earnestly advise all Members of Council to confine themselves to that point and not to travel beyond that issue. So far as that issue is concerned, the latest pronouncement of the Government of India which has been issued to all the Provincial Governments, binds us. This is what the Government of India have said in their despatch of May 1915 as regards the special representation of minorities; they say: 'As regards the special representation of minorities where this is necessary, the Government of India would prefer that this should be effected by retaining the practice of nomination rather than by introducing some system of communal or proportional representation.'

"That is the order issued by the Government of India. It is in accordance with that policy that this Bill was framed by the Government and put before this Council and the Select Committee felt bound to abide by that policy. Your Excellency's Government and the official members are bound by that policy. Honourable non-official members are not similarly bound. They may say they are not bound by that. That being so, I do not think we could agree to an amendment which absolutely flouts the principle laid down for us by an authority superior to us, for our guidance. Suppose this Council now put in territorial representation for Muhammadans by wards, it is open to the Government of India to say: 'we will not accept it, you have sent a Bill contravening a fundamental point; therefore we will throw it out.' It is open to them to throw it out, and the whole trouble we have taken would be lost. Whatever may be our general views on the question, so far as this Bill is concerned, I would earnestly advise Honourable non-official members of the Council to accept what the Government of India have said and I may assure the Honourable Member that it will certainly be the duty of the Government, when elections are over, to take note of the fact that so many Muhammadans have been returned and to see that, by nomination, the adequate complement of seats which Muhammadans should, according to population, fill up, is provided. I think the Honourable Member is making a mistake in imagining that Muhammadans have very little chance of getting returned by a predominantly Hindu electorate. Here, for instance, is a Muhammadan gentleman sitting in the Council, Muhammad Osman Sahib, who has been returned by a constituency where Hindus number over 9,000 and Muhammadans number less than 5,000."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"We have not got such a large electorate."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"That is the total population. That gives you roughly how the ward stands. I also see from the census figures that the percentage of the Muhammadan population to the total population is 11.4. According to that, you should have about four Muhammadans on the Corporation, but you have three. One of them, as I have already said, is the Honourable Member himself who is a nominee of the Government. Then there is Mr. Kuddus Badshah Sahib who has been appointed by the Harbour Trust Board, and there is Muhammad Osman Sahib who is elected; nothing would give us greater pleasure than to see Muhammadans elected. It is possible that, with the lowering of the franchise, more Muhammadans may be elected; but whatever that may be, in filling up the seats by nomination, it will be our duty to take note of all minorities which have failed to secure adequate representation in other ways and to see that they get their due share. That is what is laid down for us by the Government of India and that is what we must do. I feel bound to oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"Your Excellency, will Your Excellency allow me to say a word?"

"The Honourable Member in charge drew our attention to the resolution of the Government of India about local self-government. It is admitted that the resolution of the Government of India about local self-government is not a comprehensive one, that it falls short in many directions, and it was simply issued just to keep pace with the reforms that are to be introduced in the Legislative Council. The question of the representation of minorities was not gone into in as thorough a manner as it was done in the report of the Right Honourable the Secretary of State and His Excellency the Viceroy. There it has been said that separate representation has been given to Mussalmans, and if that separate representation is taken away from the nominated seats. If you agree to this reduction, you will have to agree to the addition to the nominated seats. That I very much object to. Any class of persons who deserve representation, should come in by way of election and not by nomination. Let the nomination be only of officials, like the inspector of schools or the doctor or somebody else, who the Government think should be on it. Let five seats be reserved for the nomination of officials and other experts. If associations and corporate bodies deserve representation, let it be by election. I therefore strongly oppose this amendment."

10TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar; the President; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

The amendment was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBİ MARAKKAYAR:—"Your Excellency, I have an amendment to move to sub-clause (e)—No. 8 on the agenda."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I think that goes out, because we have now reduced the number to three, and therefore you cannot get four out of it. That amendment is destroyed by the alteration we have made in the body of the clause."

The amendment standing in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao, namely that in sub-clause (e) the word 'five' be substituted for 'seven' was not moved.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"In sub-clause (f) of clause 5 (1), I beg to move that for the word 'five' the word 'nine' be substituted."

"I would call the attention of the Council to the fact that under the existing law, the number of seats filled by nomination is nine—eight plus one (the President) out of 37. If my amendment is accepted, the number will be the same, nine out of fifty. It cannot be said that the Government's nominated strength is increased. I would also venture to point out that out of these nine, we have to provide for communities which fail to secure representation by ward elections and interests which do not come in in other ways and also for expert Government officers whom it may be necessary from time to time to put in. Taking all these various demands, I do not think that the number nine is at all excessive in the hands of the Government. I therefore move my amendment to clause 5 (1), sub-clause (f)."

The Hon'ble Mr. H. G. Stokes seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBİ MARAKKAYAR:—"May I move my amendment under clause (e) as an amendment under clause (f)."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"He proposes his amendment on (e) as an amendment on (f)."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Yes, we will first take the sub-clause."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I am opposed to this amendment. I do not want nominated seats to be increased. It was I who proposed in the Corporation that that number should be reduced. I insisted upon the number being reduced in the Select Committee and now I insist here again that that number should remain as it is, that is, five, and should not be raised to nine. We are trying to make our bodies wholly elected. The nomination should be very small. It is no inducement to me to vote for this increase, because it is said that for communities which do not get adequate representation, Government would make it up by nomination. I would say: let those communities go without representation; if they do not secure it in the general electorate, they need not be provided for in this way by the Government. The nominated seats should be only for experts and other officials that the Government may think it desirable to nominate and that is kept in the gift of the Government and that number should be reduced and should not be increased. I am therefore against it. If this is not carried, the result will be that the number fifty will be reduced to forty-six. It does not matter. A corporation consisting of forty-six councillors, the major portion of which to be elected and only five to be nominated, will be much better than a corporation of fifty councillors with nine of them nominated, that is, nearly 20 per cent nominated."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"May I be permitted to make a suggestion, because it would facilitate the guidance of my vote? The proposal is to increase the number of nominated seats to nine, and if the Hon'ble Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar's proposal as to clause (e) is accepted as to clause (f), I would not oppose it."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We cannot discuss it now. We must take both. We must take the Hon'ble Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar's amendment as an amendment proposing an addition. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar's amendment is now before the Council to increase the number five to nine."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"If the proviso is accepted, I would accept it; without the proviso I would not accept it. I would oppose 'nine' without the proviso. Therefore the proviso must be first put to vote."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"No. The Honourable gentleman will have full liberty of taking such action as he likes. The Hon'ble Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar will now move."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBİ MARAKKAYAR:—"Your Excellency, I have given notice of an amendment clause 5 (1), sub-clause (e), to give four seats to Muhammadans by appointment by Government, but I see from the subsequent amendment that has been passed that 'seven' seats are converted into 'three' and so there is hardly

(Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar; the President;
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Yaqub Hasan;
Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar;
Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.)

[10TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

room for four seats available for Muhammadans to claim their representation. I beg to move my amendment to clause (e) as an amendment to clause (f) and I propose to add the following to clause (f)—

“Of which four seats will be given to Muhammadans by appointment by the Governor in Council.”

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“That will come later. We cannot consider whether four is a proper proportion to be given to Muhammadans unless we know the total number that would be available under clause (f). Therefore, I propose the Council should decide whether or not the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar's amendment to increase number 'five' to 'nine' should be accepted. Having done that, it will then be open to Honourable Members of Council to consider the Honourable gentleman's amendment. I now take vote as to whether or not the Council agree with the second portion of amendment No. 6 A on the supplemental agenda, that is to say, that in sub-clause (f) the word 'nine' be substituted for the word 'five'.”

The amendment was put and agreed to.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“My Honourable Colleague has been considering the Honourable Member's proposal.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—“In view of what has taken place, and to make it quite clear to Muhammadans and other minorities that the object of our putting the nominated strength at nine is to provide for them if they could not get in in other ways, I propose to add the following words after the words 'Governor in Council' 'who in making such appointments shall have regard to the representation of Muhammadans and other minorities'.”

“We cannot confine it to Muhammadans; there may be other minorities; nor is it advisable that we should stereotype a certain number of seats for Muhammadans, because that will depend upon the number that come in by territorial divisions. It is wise that the Legislature should say what it contemplates when it fixes the nominated strength at nine.”

The Hon'ble Mr. H. G. Stokes seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—“May I suggest one or two words after the word 'Muhammadan' in the addition suggested?—so that their total representation on the Council may not be less than four. That is in keeping with the first speech made by the Honourable member.”

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“Will the Honourable gentleman send up his words so that we will know where we are. The words here are that after the word 'Governor-in-Council', these words should run on like this 'who in making such appointments shall have regard to the representation of Muhammadans and other minorities'.”

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—“May I add a word to bring out the meaning of the amendment clearly? I would add 'due representation'.”

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“That is unnecessary. We have the words 'have regard'.”

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—“You will be introducing uncertainty by adding the word 'due'.”

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—“Will you kindly insert the word 'adequate' instead of 'due'.”

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“It is the duty of the Government to look to it. The Governor in Council must have regard to this due or adequate representation. I put this amendment to the Council.”

The amendment was put and agreed to.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“Nothing remains in regard to clause 5.”

Clause 5 as amended was then allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 8.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—“Your Excellency, I have the honour to move that in clause 8 (2), the word 'thirty' be substituted for the word 'thirty-three'—this is amendment No. 10 on the agenda. The present provision in the Bill is: 'the Governor in Council may at any time remove the Commissioner from office and shall do so if at a special meeting of the Council called for the purpose not less than thirty-three councillors vote for such removal'. So far as this clause is concerned, the reason which induced me to press this upon the attention of the Council is that the fixing of the number at thirty-three irrespective of the strength of the corporation at the time of the meeting, or irrespective of the number of persons present at the meeting, will create real difficulties and will be detrimental to the proper working of this provision. It will be remembered that so far as the Calcutta Municipal Act is concerned, though they have not what is exactly known as a Commissioner, they provide for the appointment of a chairman. Section 11 of the Calcutta Municipal Act of 1899 states:—

“The Local Government shall from time to time appoint a proper person to be chairman of the corporation.”

10TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

“The Chairman may be removed from his office by the Local Government at its discretion, and shall be removed from his office if his removal be recommended by a resolution which has been passed at a special meeting and in favour of which not less than two-thirds of the commissioners present at the meeting have voted.”

“I am only drawing an example from the Calcutta Act of 1899 wherefrom it will be found that the object would be properly served if two-thirds of the number of persons present at the meeting vote for the removal of the Commissioner. I shall now draw attention to the provisions of the Bombay Act from which this provision is taken. So far as the Bombay Act of 1888 is concerned, section 54 says:—

“(1) The Municipal Commissioner for the City of Bombay shall be from time to time appointed by the Governor in Council for a renewable period of three years.”

“(2) But he shall be forthwith removed by Government from office, if at a meeting of the corporation not less than forty-five councillors shall vote in favour of a proposition in this behalf; and he may be removed by the Governor in Council at any time, if it shall appear to the Governor in Council that he is incapable of performing the duties of his office or has been guilty of any misconduct or neglect which renders his removal expedient.”

“This is the Act of 1888, and it is true that so far as that Act is concerned, a specific number was fixed irrespective of the strength of the Council or the number of persons present at the meeting. When forty-five was prescribed as the limit out of the total strength of 72, the proportion worked out to about five-eighths of the total strength. So far as number 33 is concerned, which is the provision that we are making, 30 years after the provisions of the Act of 1888, we are insisting on a much higher percentage than was provided in the Bombay Act of 1888. This certainly works at a higher proportion than the Bombay Act. This Bill as amended by the Select Committee provided for 30 elected commissioners. The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur Rajagopala Achariyar has told us that after full discussion, they thought that three-fifths of the total strength was enough for election by the various divisions. That is the figure which has also induced me to suggest that 30 may be taken as the number of persons at whose vote, the Commissioner shall be compulsorily removed. I therefore suggest that the proportion of 33 is too much and that the number 33 should be modified the very reason suggested for reducing the number of elected commissioners to 30, will, I hope, induce the Government to accept my amendment.”

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar supported the amendment.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—“I must oppose this amendment. I must call attention to the wording of the clause which is proposed to be amended. Clause 8 (2) says:—‘The Governor in Council may at any time remove the Commissioner from office’—that is one thing—and shall do so if at a special meeting of the Council called for the purpose not less than 33 councillors vote for such removal.’ The idea is that if the Commissioner misbehaves or if the corporation have anything definite to say against him, which we consider justifiable, we will remove the man, but that has nothing to do with the question of adverse voting. Adverse voting is in the case where the corporation need not give any reasons. They may simply say: ‘we do not want the Commissioner,’ and the man goes. The principle of that is not that there is anything wrong specifically but that when two-thirds of the corporation feel and say that they could not get on with him, we say ‘in the best interests of the administration, let him go.’ That is the principle on which it stands. Honourable Members say ‘let us reduce the number from 33 to 30. Let him go on a vote of 30 commissioners.’ Let me call attention to the existing law. Under the existing law, Act III of 1904, section 9 which is the section that bears on this subject, says:—‘The President may be removed from office by the Local Government, and shall be so removed if his removal is recommended by a resolution in favour of which not less than twenty-eight commissioners have voted at a special meeting.’ It is the same thing. Twenty-eight out of thirty-six or seven-ninths is needed to ask for a removal. Under the new law, as put by the Select Committee, it will be thirty-three out of fifty or six-ninths. We have really brought it down to two-thirds. The Honourable Member says ‘I would replace the figure at 30’. Some members may be absent. That is just the kind of thing which we anticipate. If the question is really serious and if the members feel strongly, it is essentially a matter in which we may expect all the councillors to come, but if you find that you have not got 33, give up voting for the removal. I have merely given the reasons which induced us to put it at that figure. The Honourable Member has given no particular reason why the number should be reduced. I oppose the amendment.”

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—“I wish to support the amendment, Your Excellency. I do not really see what difficulty there is in the Government accepting this amendment. After all, the difference is only three.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—“Why press it then?”

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—“I ask the Government to look at it from this point of view. The policy that we are now pursuing in this legislation is to place trust in this Council and we give them enlarged powers and the whole scheme of this Bill is to extend the policy of trust in local bodies. What is the charm about the figure 33, that you should say that if 33 commissioners say that he should be removed, you are bound to remove him? Does not the same charm extend to the figure 30? If it is 20 out of 50, surely I can understand. Surely 30 is a large majority. It is a substantial majority of the

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. Rama Ayyangar ;
Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; the President ;
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.) [10TH FEBRUARY 1919.

Corporation. If a substantial majority of the corporation do not want the commissioner, I think the Government even without a statutory obligation will remove him but so long as we are imposing a statutory obligation, why not we have 30? Even though I was in favour of 33 in the Select Committee, on further consideration, I have changed my view since then and I consider that this amendment is reasonable and may be accepted."

The amendment was put and lost.

Clause 8 was then allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 9.

Clause 9 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 10.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"Your Excellency, I do not propose to move amendment No. 11 standing in my name."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the following amendment was then withdrawn:—

After the words 'the proceedings of the Council' insert 'except those pending disposal with the standing committee or the President.'

Clause 10 was allowed to be added to the Bill.

Clauses 11 and 12.

Clauses 11 and 12 were allowed to be added to the Bill.

Clause 13.

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"Your Excellency, the Hon'ble Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar has given notice of an amendment similar to mine and it is more comprehensive than my amendment, namely, that for 'Rs. 2,500' Rs. 2,000 be substituted. I would rather second his amendment."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Then I will call on the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar to move his amendment."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the amendment which I move to clause 13 is this. The clause now provides that the salary to be given to the Commissioner should not exceed Rs. 2,500 per mensem. I propose to substitute 'Rs. 2,000' for 'Rs. 2,500' in the clause and I also propose to add the following proviso:—

"Provided also that with the approval of the Council the monthly salary of the Commissioner who has held the appointment for a period of not less than three years may be raised by the Governor in Council to a sum not exceeding Rs. 2,500 per mensem."

"I might mention that the Madras Corporation is not flush of funds. Our revenue is only about Rs. 30 or 35 lakhs, whereas the revenue of the Bombay Corporation is one crore and the revenue of the Calcutta Corporation is over one crore. Even in the Bombay Corporation, the maximum under the Act is Rs. 2,500 subject to its being raised to Rs. 3,000 after three years; in Calcutta the maximum is also Rs. 3,000. With over one crore of revenue, that they should be content with such a Commissioner and that the Madras Corporation should be called upon to pay Rs. 2,500 to the Commissioner is to put a burden upon it which it cannot bear. That is one reason.

"The second reason is that my amendment will have the result that instead of shifting the President as it now happens owing to the exigencies of service—he is put in for some time, put on other duty and then other people come—if we have a scale by which after approved service of three years, he will rise to a further maximum, it will be a further inducement for him to remain and the experience that he gained will be useful to the city and will not be lost to the city. I might also mention that so far as the previous history goes, it is a great jump indeed to make the maximum salary Rs. 2,500. We were content with Rs. 1,000 per mensem originally and now under the present Act, even though there is no maximum he starts on Rs. 1,800 and as we are fixing a statutory maximum following the other City Corporation Acts and as we are not leaving it to the discretion of the Council, but to the Governor in Council, I submit that this figure of Rs. 2,500 is too much. It is beyond the means of the corporation and it is too much for our city. I therefore propose that Rs. 2,000 be substituted for Rs. 2,500 and that the proviso be added."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hassan Sahib Bahadur seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I rise to oppose the amendment. I would first call the attention of the Council to the present law. Section 10 says:—The President shall receive out of the municipal fund such salary and allowances as may be fixed by the Local Government, and shall be entitled to pension or gratuity in accordance with such rules as the Local Government may prescribe. In other words, there is now no maximum for the salary of the President. On the other hand, the Legislature under the law as it now stands, has trusted the Government completely to fix the salary and allowances as the Government may consider suitable. This proposed fixing of the maximum is really a curtailment of the powers which the Government now possess. Personally I may be permitted to say 10TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ;

Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

that I doubt the wisdom of it. But the Bill has been introduced as modified by the Select Committee and the latter has committed itself to the view that some maximum should be fixed. Pray, remember that it is not proposed to give Rs. 2,500 in every case. That is the maximum. In fixing the maximum, which represents the highest limit, you must remember that unless you fix the limit fairly high, you will be confronted with the difficulty or the impossibility of finding suitable men. Either have no maximum or give the maximum such as will allow a fairly reasonable latitude. It seems to me that the sum of Rs. 2,500 is not an excessive maximum. I do not know the class of people who will hereafter fill the office of commissioner; but judging from the past, if you choose from the Indian Civil Service, it would be wise to give a wide limit so that the same man may continue there for some time. To this proviso of my Honourable friend, I have another particular objection. Now the proviso says that he may start on Rs. 2,000 and at the end of three years his salary may be raised to Rs. 2,500; if the corporation recommend it, the Governor in Council may sanction it. I do not think it desirable in any case. In a previous debate, I have already referred to the fact how necessary it is, taking the frame-work of the Bill, to keep the appointment of commissioner as far as possible in the hands of somebody who will feel independent, who will be trusted to do his duty. If we put in such a thing as this, human nature being what it is, that man will be very much tempted during the first three years to neglect the stern duties which the law imposes upon him for the purpose of placating the Council. In the best interests of municipal administration and efficiency, if we are to work the Act in the spirit in which it is framed, it is not only necessary that the appointment of the commissioner shall rest in the hands of the Government, but that the fixing of the salary also should be wholly in the hands of the Government. By all means, fix a maximum; but the maximum must be fairly high to give the Government a fair latitude of action in regard to selecting proper men. I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Some important facts have not been mentioned by the Honourable mover or by the Honourable Member who opposed the amendment. The Honourable Member has put forward grounds which are very unsatisfactory. His argument comes to this: under the present Act, we have certain powers; under the new Act, we are giving up those powers and why do you ask for anything more? No reasonable man will say he will take up only just what you throw out. The main question is: what is the total salary with allowances that has been paid to the President during the last five or six years. Neither the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar nor the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar gave any figures. I should like to know from any Honourable Member of Council if there are any such figures."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, I think the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar's amendment commits the Council not only to a maximum but also to a minimum salary of Rs. 2,000, because his proviso states that the Governor in Council may raise the salary to Rs. 2,500 in three years. He wants the commissioner to start on Rs. 2,000 and in the discretion of the Government, the salary may go up to Rs. 2,500 at the end of the three years, so that it commits us to fix the starting salary at Rs. 2,000."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"No."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"You say 'not exceeding Rupees 2,000' and you say that Rs. 2,500 may be given in three years."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I say a sum not exceeding Rs. 2,500."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I see."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I have got one word to say. 'Human nature being what it is'—that is what the Honourable Member says; he has no objection to human nature being what it is so far as the Government are concerned, but he has objection to human nature being what it is so far as the Council is concerned. So far as the commissioner is concerned, I suppose he has to obey certain orders which emanate from Fort St. George and human nature being what it is, he tries to please the Government or the Member in charge or the Secretary; and the Honourable Member has no objection to this. But where he has to deal every day with 50 human beings who have to administer the affairs of the Council, human nature comes into play there. For that very reason, I press my amendment. The Honourable Member says that this commissioner is going to be an independent autocrat. That is not the intention of the Act, that is not the language of the Act. The municipal government of the city vests in the corporation. That, the Honourable Member in charge forgets. The Honourable Member has not given one word of reply about the finances of the corporation. The Government of Madras have been encouraging extravagance on the part of the municipality so that they have landed us in bankruptcy as it were. I plead for economy. May I ask if Rupees 2,500 is too little? Are not Collectors in charge of big districts with only Rs. 2,500? Is this commissionership in the corporation of greater importance than collectorships of districts? Assisted as he is here, by a Health Officer, by a Revenue Officer and various other officers, of high grade, I think that Rs. 2,500 as a maximum is a very large sum indeed. Very few civilians in the ranks get that amount. From any non-civilian class you will be able to get the best man at Rs. 2,500. Any expert will be able to take up the appointment. I do not think that Rs. 2,500 is a large sum indeed by itself and it is a large sum when we consider the finance of the corporation. The Honourable Member has not vouchsafed one argument with reference to that. He has not said that we are going to increase the resources of the corporation in other ways, and therefore we need not be grieved. If he had said 'we are going to give you other sources of taxation, don't bother about it', I would never object. But there he brings in his official hand to bear upon us and says 'no, you cannot suggest sources of revenue; but at the same time be liberal in paying your officers.' This is an amendment which is very necessary in the interests of good municipal government in the city."

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ; [10TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.]

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"May I ask for information as to what the salary has been during the last five or six years?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"It will take some time to get the information."

The amendment was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur Ranga Achariyar claimed a poll which was taken with the following result:—

For	Against
The Hon'ble Mr. T. Richmond.	The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.
" Mr. K. Sadasiva Bhat.	" Mr. L. Davidson.
" Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju.	" Mr. C. G. Todhunter.
" Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar.	" Mr. A. Y. G. Campbell.
" Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur.	" Mr. R. Ramachandra Rao.
" Mr. K. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar.	" Mr. M. Young.
" Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.	" Mr. L. E. Buckley.
" Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.	" Mr. N. E. Marjoribanks.
	" Mr. R. B. Wood.
	" Mr. Aziz-ud-din Sahib Bahadur.
	" Dr. T. M. Nayar.
	" Mr. V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar.
	" Sir Francis Spring.
	" Mr. Littlehales.
	" Sir Gordon Fraser.
	" Mr. J. H. Thonger.
	" Mr. J. C. Molony.
	" Mr. W. Hutton.
	" Mr. W. J. J. Howley.
	" The Advocate-General.
	" Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
	" Mr. H. G. Stokes.

The amendment was lost, 8 voting for and 22 against.
Clause 13 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clauses 14 to 17.

Clauses 14, 15, 16 and 17 were allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 18.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"My amendment is that we shall omit this clause. I would ask Honourable Members to return to section 11 in order to understand the effect of the amendment. Section 11 is what is called an emergency provision. It says: 'The commissioner may, in cases of emergency, direct the execution of any work or the doing of any act which would ordinarily require the sanction of one of the other municipal authorities and the immediate execution or doing of which is, in his opinion, necessary for the service or safety of the public and may direct that the expense of executing the work or of doing the act shall be paid from the municipal fund.'

"That itself is an objectionable provision in principle. The Act proceeds to say that such and such are the municipal authorities and those municipal authorities shall be invested with certain powers, and those authorities are to go to a certain point, the commissioner to go to a certain point, the Standing Committee to a particular point, the Council to a particular point, and the Governor in Council beyond that; luckily section 11 does not enact that the commissioner may do what the Governor in Council can do. The powers of the Governor in Council cannot be encroached upon by the commissioner but he could encroach upon the powers of the Standing Committee and the powers of the council. However, as an emergency clause I did not object, although it is unnecessary in my opinion, because I could not conceive that things could be so emergent in this city, with the facilities that we have, with the motor-car, with the telephone and various other facilities which we have it is impossible to conceive that there is anything so emergent which would authorize the commissioner to encroach upon the powers of the Council or the Standing Committee unless the Red Hills tank bursts suddenly in which case he may order a number of coolies to go at once and work there. But I hope such an emergency is not going to happen every day or even once in a generation. However, that is the object of section 11. Section 18 is a curious section. Section 11 trusts to the judgment of the commissioner. It says that if, in his opinion, a certain thing is emergent, he need not wait for the Standing Committee, but he may exercise his judgment. Therefore he has to exercise his judgment. Section 18 curiously enough says that he may delegate that judgment to somebody else. Section 11 requires that in his opinion, a certain action should be necessary and he is to take the risk and responsibility of doing it. Section 18 provides for a devolution or a delegation of that judgment and of that responsibility to somebody else. Being an emergency section, to depend upon one officer's judgment, we can understand. We can hold him liable, but we cannot understand this action. To allow such an emergency provision to be delegated to a subordinate officer, like the Health Officer, the Engineer or the Revenue Officer is quite uncalled for. An emergency upon an emergency is contemplated. I am told that if the President happens to be in Octacumund and something happens here, what is to happen? as if Octacumund is not accessible in a few hours telegraphic communication. Another argument suggested is that it is there in the existing provision. Section 24 of the existing Act allows that. What are we sitting here for? If the existing provisions are all right, why should we amend this Act and why should we meet here? We are all of us met to pass the amending Act and we are here to improve the existing law. I submit it is objectionable in principle, when we should fix the thing upon the judgment of one officer, to allow that to be delegated to some other officer. What is the power that we are giving to the commissioner? And what is it that we are giving to the Council? The Council can impose taxation to any limit on real property. The Revenue Officer may say some day that 30 per cent should be imposed as an emergency measure. Whether he does it or not is another thing, but when we are legislating, we should not allow these provisions to be enacted. It is quite uncalled for, unnecessary and it is quite obnoxious to all principles of legislation. I therefore strongly urge this for your acceptance."

10TH FEBRUARY 1919. (Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. Siva Rao ; Mr. Molony ; Doctor Nayar ; Sir Francis Spring ; Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.)

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I second this amendment. It is a power that has been vested in the commissioner and no delegation should, in my opinion, be allowed."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY:—"I oppose this proposal of the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar:—He is first wrong in assuming a perfectly impossible case that a commissioner might direct the levy of taxation by imposing the maximum as a case of emergency. He must assume that the commissioner will be a person of ordinary intelligence and will be rational.

"In the second place, he has not allowed sufficient weight to the fact that real cases of emergency do arise and do require such powers. They are not such things as the bursting of the Red Hills tank or dramatic occurrence of that sort. They very largely relate to the spending of money. Recently for a commodity which we required for the corporation, orders had to go by telegram. It was far in excess of the President's ordinary powers of sanction and I took action under section 21. I submit it is necessary that the President should have power to do those things which are really necessary, and should not have always to fear that when he has acted so in cases of necessity, his action may be repudiated absolutely by those in whose interests he has bona fide acted. As regards the delegation of responsibility, it cannot be called a delegation of judgment. It is said that the commissioner delegates responsibility; but he is responsible for that delegation. The useful point in this section is that if he delegates certain powers to his subordinate that subordinate is protected against the commissioner going back subsequently. Secondly, there are some officials who are averse to taking responsibility on themselves without a certain delegation. There is the Health Officer who may have to take drastic measures sometimes. It is not a case that this is unnecessary."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR:—"I support this amendment, my Lord. I fully recognize that the President should have full power to act under emergencies; but what I do not see is that he should have the power of delegating that authority to somebody else. It is quite true that the President may have to get his Engineer or the Health Officer or the Revenue Officer to execute certain works, but what is required is that the responsibility should be with the President. The President should take the entire responsibility for such work being done and should not delegate it. The Hon'ble Mr. Molony says that one advantage of that will be that the Engineer or the Health Officer or the Revenue Officer will be protected against the commissioner. Do they require such protection? If they require such protection, there must be something wrong with the commissioner. I do not think seriously that such a contingency will ever arise. The attempt to have this section deleted is an attempt to fix responsibility on the commissioner. I do not think that he ought to shirk responsibility and if he shows a tendency to shirk responsibility, I am inclined to withdraw the other powers granted to the commissioner."

The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING:—"As a practical administrator of affairs, somewhat similar to the affairs conducted by the Corporation, I entirely support the view of the Hon'ble Mr. Molony that a responsible executive officer like the commissioner must be able not only to exercise his powers on emergencies, but must be able also, if necessary, to delegate his powers to one or more of his subordinates."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar, while dealing with the previous amendments, informed us that it was proposed to make the commissioner a responsible person who was not to be swayed by this consideration or that consideration, that he must not placate according to the wishes of the councillors; but should act on his own initiative in all emergencies. It would be carrying that point too far if we allow him to

(Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ;
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar ;
Doctor Nayar ; the President.) [10TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

retain that responsibility even in matters of special emergency provided for in section 11. There is absolutely no doubt that he requires such emergency powers, wide though they are and extraordinary though they look. But as a matter of principle, what one ought to object to is that such extraordinary powers which require to be exercised on extraordinary occasions should be delegated to persons who cannot be expected to have the same status or the same position. Even in connection with the proposal made to reduce the pay of the commissioner, the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill was very particular that nothing should be done to lower the pay. It is only on account of the confidence that is to be reposed in the individual that this Council had no hesitation in giving such extraordinary powers as proposed in section 11. A reading of section 11 would show that it is not possible to define exactly what the cases of emergency are, and to what extent he can direct the execution of a work or the doing of an act which would ordinarily require the sanction of one of the municipal authorities, the immediate execution or doing of which is in his opinion necessary for the service or safety of the public. We may leave it to his sound sense and good judgment to decide this; but are we to allow him to delegate that power to other officers like the Health Officer or the Engineer? This delegation is an extraordinary remedy which ought not to find acceptance. Once we allow this policy, we cannot say where it will end. We have the fullest confidence in the commissioner and we expect him to do this reasonably; but at the same time to say that we must empower him also to delegate this power is not right. When the section says that the commissioner may delegate to his own officers, he will naturally support his subordinates to whom he delegates his powers. A municipal chairman is expected to be responsible for so many things, and if he gets it done by the subordinates, he naturally supports them."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—"I wish to add only one word to what my Honourable friend has just now said. The instance given by the Hon'ble Mr. Molony appeared to be a singularly clear instance to show that the power should not be delegated. For what have we now in the section as proposed by the Select Committee? It is not merely to retain the words which we find in the existing section 22 of the existing Act, but to extend it to those who are in temporary charge of duties like the Health Officer or the Engineer or the Revenue Officer. The instance he took was a contract for a very large amount and it had to be negotiated and executed. Suppose he had to ask somebody to execute it. Under this section, it may be a contract for four lakhs and the emergency powers may be exercised by any acting Revenue Officer or acting Health Officer. Is it the purpose for which he will willingly sanction the emergency powers and sanction also the delegation? The instance given is itself sufficient to set us thinking and doubt the wisdom of handing over such a power."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"May I point out to the Council in the first place that this is not new? Under the existing law, section 22 enacts—'The President may, on his own responsibility and by an order, authorize any commissioner, or the Revenue Officer, or the Health Officer, or the Engineer, to exercise any of the powers specified in the last preceding section.' The change made is that he shall not hereafter delegate it to a councillor, but to the three chief heads of departments. It is a matter for consideration if there have been any instances at all till now when the existing section was worked wrongly."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"Was it worked at all?"

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—"No."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"Never, to my knowledge."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"You should have asked for that information. I am perfectly entitled to urge that no Honourable Member who urged this has yet given an instance of that having been worked wrongly. The Honourable Member should have said 'give me an instance in which it was worked.' He has not said that."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"I say it now and I ask for it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"There seems to be some amount of misapprehension. It has been urged by one Honourable Member that the commissioner should not throw his responsibility upon somebody else. If a man does that, he is entirely unfit. The Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao said 'why pay a high salary to a man who does not accept responsibility.' The merit of this section is that it keeps the responsibility. It says: 'the commissioner may, on his own responsibility and by an order in writing, authorize the Health Officer or the Engineer or the Revenue Officer, etc.' The commissioner's responsibility remains. It is not a case of delegation at all. The commissioner is given certain extraordinary powers and the framers of the Bill, as it stands, contemplate the contingency that may arise when it may be necessary to delegate. When there is a severe epidemic or plague, the commissioner may have to act and use his extraordinary powers under section 11; but as he cannot protect the public and the Corporation and to fix the responsibility upon him, the proposal is made: 'If you do so, do so on your responsibility; do not divest yourself of responsibility by allowing the Health Officer or somebody else to do this or that.' Further, to protect the chief heads from trouble, it is said that the commissioner shall put this in writing. The great merit and it gives adequate protection to the persons who are asked to act for him and it also provides for contingencies which may arise at any time. It is therefore, in my opinion, necessary. I oppose this amendment."

10TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; the President ;
Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar ; the Advocate-General.)

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"I have a few words to say."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"The Honourable gentleman must remember that the Bill has got 400 clauses."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"It is an important Bill. The Bombay Municipal Act took three weeks. I must do my duty here and I cannot have another opportunity to do it. I cannot allow anything to be passed without a remark. It is said that the commissioner should have extraordinary powers. I do admit it. Another question was also raised and that was whether there should be delegation. That also is not disputed. Section 16 provides for this delegation of his ordinary powers. The question is whether he should delegate his extraordinary judgment. That is the issue before the Council. Let us not confuse ourselves with those side issues which have been raised as a sort of argument. Section 11 requires that if 'in his opinion a certain thing is necessary' he may do it. It is an absurdity to suggest that he keeps his responsibility and asks somebody else to form his opinion. It is absurd to conceive of such a case. When one man has to form an opinion, how can he say 'I am responsible, you form the opinion.' The proposition has only to be put forward in that way to show its absurdity. People accustomed to executive administration will not see the absurdity. But we, who are accustomed to judicial modes, look at things and see the absurdity. Section 22 is in existence under the existing law. I am thankful to the Honourable Member in charge for putting me in mind of section 22. It has been there from 1904. From 1904 to 1918 not a single occasion arose, so far as my memory goes, in the last ten years of my municipal experience, for the subordinate to exercise any judgment under section 22. No such case ever came up for consideration. I therefore think that it is an absolutely unnecessary provision and it would be mischievous. As we are enacting the law, it would not be proper to retain such a provision."

The amendment was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar demanded a poll which was taken with the following result :—

For		Against
The Hon'ble Mr. V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar.	The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.
" " M. Ramachandra Rao.	" " Mr. L. Davidson.
" " P. Siva Rao.	" " C. G. Todhunter.
" " K. Rama Ayyangar.	" " R. Ramachandra Rao.
" " K. Sadasiva Bhat.	" " M. Young.
" " K. R. Suryanarayana-murti	" " L. E. Buckley.
" " Nayudu.	" " R. B. Wood.
" " Dr. T. M. Nayar.	" " Aziz-ud-din Sahib Bahadur.
" " Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju.	" " Mr. T. Richmond.
" " the Raja of Pittapur.	" " the Rev. G. Pittendrigh.
" " Mr. Yaqub Hasan.	" " Sir Francis Spring.
" " T. Ranga Achariyar.	" " Mr. R. Littlehales.
" " K. Chidambaranatha Mada-	" " Sir Gordon Fraser.
" " liyar.	" " Fairless Barber.
" " A. Suryanarayana Rao.	" " Mr. J. H. Thonger.
" " A. S. Krishna Rao.	" " J. C. Molony.
" " B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.	" " W. Hutton.
	" " W. J. J. Howley.
	" " the Advocate-General.
	" " Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
	" " N. E. Marjoribanks.
	" " A. Y. G. Campbell.
	" " H. G. Stokes.

The amendment was lost, 15 voting for and 23 voting against.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR :—"Before I move my amendment, I should like to know whether the amendment No. 108 to clause 369, standing in my name, is likely to be accepted. If that amendment is accepted, I move this. If that amendment is not accepted, I will not move it."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL :—"That is not likely to be accepted."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR :—"Then I do not move it."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, amendment No. 14 which was :—"Omit the words 'in writing' in line 1" was withdrawn.

Clause 18 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 19.

Clause 19 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.
At this stage the Council adjourned for a short interval.
The Council re-assembled at 3 p.m.

(The Advocate-General; Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.)

[10TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

Clause 20.

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"Your Excellency, I move amendment No. 15-A on the agenda, which is

'Add the following at the end of clause 20 (1): "and may by such regulations provide for a conference of two or more standing committees or for the appointment out of such committees of a joint committee for any purpose in respect of which they may be jointly interested. Such conference or joint committee shall have all the powers of the standing committees concerned."

"Honourable Members are aware that under this Bill, as different from the existing law, four standing committees are established respectively dealing with taxation, finance, health and education. The Council has power under sub-clause (1) of the Bill by regulations to assign the various functions imposed upon the standing committee under the Bill to the respective standing committees. It has got full powers of distribution; and the regulations may be so framed as to prevent any kind of deadlock. But in order to make the point perfectly clear, what is proposed is to add the words which I have just now read enabling the Council expressly, if it so chooses, to provide for a conference or the appointment of a joint committee out of the standing committees whenever matters arise in respect of which more than one standing committee happened to be interested. In regard to regulations dealing with finance, if they are framed with due regard to the functions of the standing committee, it may be that this device of a conference or of a joint committee may be unnecessary. As the Bill now stands the only provision made to co-ordinate all these four standing committees whenever there is necessity for co-ordination is in rule 15 of schedule II printed at page 75 of the Bill. That says: 'The commissioner shall, in any case in which two standing committees may have passed conflicting decisions, submit a report to the President who shall place the subject before a meeting of the Council and pending the resolution of the Council, the commissioner shall withhold all action in regard to the matter in issue.' That is a more dilatory procedure than the one proposed. That, first of all, necessitates that there should be conflicting decisions which must have been arrived at. By a joint committee conflicting decisions may be prevented altogether, and there may be no necessity for it. Whenever there is a likelihood of that, if they come together, they can come to a conclusion which will be binding on both the bodies. That is the object with which these words are sought to be introduced at the end of sub-clause (1). As for the joint committee procedure, there is analogy for that to be found in English legislation where the county council and the borough council can co-operate. Again in Bombay, in the Bombay Act it is found that where more than one committee can be appointed by the Corporation, and where one municipality may have to co-operate with another municipality, the two municipalities may appoint a joint committee. The form of the words in this amendment was adopted from those two enactments. It is only giving power to the Council which they may or may not exercise, which they may find it necessary to exercise or not. The Council is not compelled to appoint a joint committee unless they choose to do so. If they find that a conference will be unwieldy and that a smaller joint committee will be a more suitable machinery to sit, they may do so. They may exercise the power just as they choose. Honourable Members will see that there are four standing committees each consisting of seven members. It may be that a conference of two standing committees may be quite feasible, but where four standing committees have to confer, a joint committee will be a better plan than a conference of all the four standing committees consisting of twenty-eight members. The last words are added: 'such conference or joint committee shall have all the powers of the standing committees concerned.' It is necessary to provide for that in order to enable such action as may be taken in cases where there may be difference of opinion—in order to make the decision binding on the municipal authorities established under the Act. It is for that purpose that this is put in."

The Hon'ble Mr. H. G. Stokes seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"So far as the proposed addition is concerned, it is absolutely necessary to avoid certain difficulties which are likely to arise owing to the absence of a conference of these standing committees. While I welcome this addition, I would suggest that it is quite sufficient if a conference of two or more standing committees is provided for purposes in which they may be jointly interested and that such conference as has been pointed out by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General may have the powers of the standing committees concerned. I object, my Lord, to that portion of the addition which suggests the appointment of a joint committee out of these committees. I formally move as an amendment 'mittee' in lines 2 and 3 of the proposed amendment and the words 'or joint committee' in line 4 of this amendment. These are the words that I propose to have deleted from the clause will be as follows: 'The Council shall, by regulations framed for the purpose, determine the powers and duties of each standing committee and may, by such regulations, provide for a jointly interested. Such conference shall have all the powers of the standing committees concerned.' Honourable Members of Council will see that according to schedule II, relating to rules quorum for a meeting of the standing committee is only three. Instead of an unwieldy provided in the Bill is only three. It will be quite sufficient if conferences of these standing committees are arranged for all purposes in which they are interested; but if with these small committees with a prescribed quorum of three, if it is further provided that they may have a committee selected out of these standing committees and if they are given the power of the standing committees themselves, the result not be as satisfactory as it should be. Already in the present Bill wide powers have been given to the standing committees and as this conference will have the powers of both the standing committees, it is sufficient. There is no necessity to have a joint committee of these standing committees. I move this amendment."

10TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; the Advocate-General; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; the President.)

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I support the deletion of these words as proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Krishna Rao. As has been observed by the Honourable mover of this amendment, Honourable Members will see that under this Bill, four standing committees are set up and each of them will have seven members. I recognise the necessity for a joint conference, because one of the committees deals with finance, another deals with public health, another with another subject, and another with education. It would be necessary for us to arrange for a joint conference of each of these standing committees for the purpose of settling business and financial questions because, after all, each of these committees will have to deal with the finance committee. It would be necessary to promote better understanding between each of the four committees to arrange a joint conference. If there is to be a joint conference, it may not be all the members of one standing committee conferring with all the members of another standing committee, but I take it that they will make a further selection of some of their members to confer with the members of the other committee, not the whole of the committee but another committee. The result is if you supersede both the committees and entrust this power to a joint committee of both the committees, we will land ourselves in a rather anomalous position. It may be possible by regulations to provide what effect should be given to the proceedings of the joint committee. That would be a better way than to supersede the two committees by the constitution of a joint committee composed of some members of each of the two committees. It seems to me it would simplify matters and the same object will be attained by a regulation providing that the proceedings of the joint committee should be communicated to each of the standing committees, so that necessary action may be taken by co-ordination of each of these two committees."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"What is your proposal?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I propose the deletion of the last sentence, namely, 'such conference or joint committee shall have all the powers of the standing committees concerned'. I will have the rest."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"We will accept it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I accept it."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I do not understand it."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable gentleman took exception to the last sentence on the ground generally that it interferes with the structure of the Bill and appears to give the standing committee new power. The Honourable Member in charge is willing to accept the deletion of that last sentence. That is the position which has been arrived at so far."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I want to understand the object of this deletion."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The object is to leave the powers of the standing committee as they are in the Bill. This amendment expressly suggests a joint committee and a conference in subjects in which two or more standing committees may be jointly interested and they will be left with their own statutory powers unimpaired."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I am afraid it will not do for this reason. Suppose a conference of two joint committees takes place, supposing the works committee take one view and the health committee take another view, what will be the position?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"You cannot prevent the committees conferring and you must allow for such a conference. If they cannot agree the Corporation can settle it under the powers of the Bill."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Is any regulation necessary for a conference?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Advocate-General put it that this might be a useful suggestion and it is therefore expressly included in the Bill. It is obviously better to give the committees power of meeting jointly in conference. It is quite harmless."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"So long as you do not give them statutory powers, there is nothing to prevent them from having a conference. Does it need a statutory provision?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"The idea is to put it there. I agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar that even if it is not there, there is nothing to prevent the Corporation from having a regulation, providing for a joint conference. It is there, but it is better to indicate it, so that the object may be obvious in actual working. That is

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; [10TH FEBRUARY 1919.
the President; Mr. Rama Ayyangar.]

why we considered it necessary to have these words as proposed by my Honourable friend:—
'And may by such regulations provide for a conference of two or more standing committees or for the appointment out of such committees, of a joint committee for any purpose in respect of which they may be jointly interested.' I agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar that even without those words, under the Bill as it stands, the Corporation will have power to confer. But if you put it there, it will suggest itself more easily in case there is any friction. It is idle to deny when you are putting four committees instead of one, that there is a contingency of friction, and so let us provide for it. The deletion of the last sentence that we agreed to is because it will interfere with the powers of the standing committee. In the last resort, the Corporation will be supreme; they may override any committee or all committees. It is reasonable that we should not go any further, and appoint a joint committee with powers in supersession of those of the standing committee."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"The only danger that I feel is, when you enumerate one power, some of us will argue that it will exclude the rest. What is the necessity for enumerating the thing?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"It is only empowering the Corporation to frame regulations. This amendment consists of two sentences and the proposal to amend the amendment is in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao. He proposes to omit the last sentence of the amendment."

The amendment was put and agreed to.

The Advocate-General's amendment as amended was put and agreed to.

Clause 20, as amended, was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clauses 21 and 22.

Clauses 21 and 22 were allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 23.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"In view of the opinion of some of my Madras friends, I do not propose to press my next amendment."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the following amendment was withdrawn:—

In clause 23 (1) add at the end after the words 'or the commissioner', 'except by way of revision on requisition provided hereunder.'

Clause 23 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clauses 24 and 25.

Clauses 24 and 25 were allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 26.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I do not propose to move the amendment which stands in my name."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the following amendment was withdrawn:—

In clause 26 (2) add at the end 'subject to a revision by the council on a requisition by at least ten commissioners of the council.'

Clause 26 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clauses 27 to 41.

Clauses 27 to 41 were allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 42.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I propose amendment No. 18 on the agenda, which is:—Omit the words 'or the commissioner' in line 8 of clause 42."

"This is a reserve power in the controlling authority, namely, the Governor in Council, to direct the local authority to perform certain acts which, in their opinion, should be performed. It will also be noticed that the object is, before the Governor in Council take action under the proviso, to give the council an opportunity of showing cause why such an order should not be made. The council may take one view and the Governor in Council may think that the council has neglected to do a certain thing and they may direct it to perform it. The Governor in Council was overlooked in drafting section 42. It is not intended that the Governor in Council should direct the commissioner over the head of the council. Whatever they wish to get done, they must direct the council to do and not the commissioner. The commissioner is the authority appointed by the Governor in Council and he will feel bound to carry it out. He may not even wait for the council, but the council must take the responsibility and the Governor in Council must direct the council. That is the object of this amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao seconded the amendment.

10TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (The Advocate-General; Mr. Rama Ayyangar;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar)

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"The Government oppose the amendment which is proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar. The commissioner has got independent statutory powers apart from the council. When he commits default in the discharge of his duties, which are imposed upon him by various sections of the Act, then certainly the requisition by the Government should be against him. My honourable friend is apparently under the impression that the communication is to the commissioner. That is not so. So far as all official correspondence is concerned, that passes between the Government and the president whether it is the commissioner that is directed or the council that is directed to perform the duty, the correspondence is with the president of the corporation. We are not dealing with the question of correspondence, but the question of the incidents of duty. Whoso is the duty? Is it the duty of the commissioner or of the council? Who is the person who is to be called upon to discharge the duty? If it is the council that has to do the duty, the council should be asked. If it is the commissioner, it is the commissioner that should be asked to do it. There are various chapters of the Bill under which the commissioner alone has duties, for instance, the prevention of infectious diseases and looking to insanitary buildings, dangerous wells and tanks, etc., in regard to which he has got various duties to perform. If an emergency arises, and the Government think that the commissioner has neglected to discharge his duty, and that duty should be forthwith discharged, it is the appropriate municipal authority upon which this requisition made by the Government should be imposed."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"Your Excellency, I submit that this goes to the very root of the principle of this legislation. Section 23 to which I proposed to move an amendment says: 'subject to the provisions of this Act, the municipal government shall vest in the corporation'. As pointed out by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General, no doubt the council is asked to delegate its authority in certain matters to other particular authorities and in such cases, it shall not exercise the functions so delegated. There is a provision in section 24 which says 'the standing committee and the commissioner shall be bound to give effect to every resolution of the council unless such resolution is cancelled in whole or in part by the Governor in Council.' So far as the Government are concerned, certain powers are vested in the Government to interfere in certain cases, to ask that a certain expenditure should be incurred, to sanction certain expenditure when the estimate is above a certain figure. These are the main provisions under which the Government can interfere. Government can interfere when the council exceeds its powers under section 44 and it can cancel wholly or in part any by-law. That is the power that has been given to the Government. Whatever it is, subject to these powers of interference, Government have nothing to do with the municipal administration of the city. While that is so, I submit, my Lord, this communication or this direction to the commissioner, though the communication passes through the president, directly from the Government would mean that a delegated authority of the council shall also become the direct authority for certain purposes. I do not think that that can be the spirit of the Act as it is now framed. In fact, the whole matter in the case of important cities is governed by the resolution of the Government of India dated 16th May 1918 in which it is said 'in order that the large amount of every day administration necessary should be efficiently carried on, this administration is, in Bombay, placed under a special nominated Commissioner, who is, however, subject to the general control of the corporation and of its standing committee. This proposal was commended in the resolution of 1915, and it appears to the Government of India to be worthy of consideration. So long as the executive officer of a city is protected from the possible caprices of a board by provisos requiring that, though his nomination may be by the Board, his appointment should be approved by Government and that he should not be removed without the sanction of the Government unless by the vote of a substantial majority of the board, it is not necessary to require that the executive officer should be a Government official, and competent men can be appointed to the post who have not been or no longer are in Government service.' The spirit of this paragraph has been adopted in the present legislation and as I said section 23 expressly says 'subject to the provisions of this Act, the municipal government of the city shall vest in the council'; and the president is the authority who is to correspond with any outside body. That being so, it is only proper that there should be no order to the commissioner direct though it may be through the president as if he were a post office. There is the power vested in the Local Government to immediately appoint an officer to do certain acts, get them done and collect the charges from the corporation. Such an authority may be necessary, but once the act is to be done, though it may be by any portion of the corporation, the other portions are only authorities who have been given particular powers which under ordinary circumstances will not be interfered with and I submit we will be going against the spirit of the Bill if there is a provision that the commissioner can be communicated with directly by an executive order of the Government. The council is entitled to see that he does the act which he has neglected to do. However, where they have not also taken notice, Government may communicate the order. In that case, the order should be to the governing body and not to the executive officer, who is supposed to be under the governing body for all purposes, though for purposes of convenience certain powers within certain limits are given to him, the council agreeing not to exercise them. That being the scope and principle of the Act, I submit the amendment has to be accepted."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"This opposition, in my opinion, seems to be an opposition for opposition's sake. If the Hon'ble the Advocate-General's argument is to be accepted, he should have provided also on his own argument, to direct the

THE MADRAS CITY MUNICIPAL BILL, 1918.

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar; the Advocate-General;
Mr. Rama Ayyangar; the President.)

[10TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

council or the standing committee or the commissioner within a specific period of time. He forgot altogether that under the scheme of the Act, the council, the standing committee and the commissioner have respective functions assigned to them. It must be beneath the dignity of the Government to deal directly with an executive officer when they have entrusted the municipal government to the council, and when the Governor in Council feel that certain duties have not been discharged by a certain officer, they must deal with the council direct and not with the executive officer of that council. Therefore, saying that it is the appropriate duty of the commissioner, does not seem to be a sound reason, because, as I said already, the Hon'ble the Advocate-General should have taken care to introduce the words 'standing committee' also there which he has not done. That shows that he is merely inventing an argument at the time of arguing the question. It is improper in principle on the part of the Government to deal direct with the commissioner even though, as the Hon'ble the Advocate-General said, it may be that all correspondence should be through the president. Is the president a post office to transmit the tapals to the commissioner? Is that the idea? On the other hand, you want to treat the corporation as a respectable body and the Governor in Council represent outside control, the principle being that they exercise the control over the council from outside; and that principle is respected by saying that you shall not have direct correspondence with the commissioner. You make the president merely a post office to send communications to the commissioner. What is the poor commissioner to do when he gets such a direction from the Governor in Council? If such a direction were to come to the council, they would be prepared to obey it or to disobey it at their risk. But to give him directions is mischievous in principle and cannot be supported; and it can only be justified by executive notions."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"I am afraid this small amendment which is more or less verbal does not deserve the vehemence and the eloquence which my honourable friend brought to it. It is more or less verbal. If Honourable Members would look at sub-clause (a) of clause 42, it says: 'If, on receipt of any information or report obtained under section 40 or 41, the Governor in Council is of opinion that any duty imposed upon any municipal authority by or under this Act has not been performed or has been performed in an imperfect, inefficient, or unsuitable manner' the Governor in Council may direct the council or the commissioner to make arrangements for doing it. The reason why the standing committee was omitted is that it has not got executive powers. It is not the executive; but the commissioner is the executive. The supreme regulating body is the council in which the whole municipal government is vested. There is no reason to include the standing committee which is neither the executive nor the governing authority."

"So far as the other point is concerned, clause 37 makes it perfectly plain that no official correspondence between the corporation and the Governor in Council shall be conducted except through the president. The president shall be bound to transmit communication addressed through him by the commissioner to the Governor in Council or by the Governor in Council to the commissioner. Clause 37 which has been passed by the Council clearly contemplates the president acting, as my honourable friend suggested, as a post office. He is merely to transmit the correspondence between the commissioner and the Government. This is necessary, because the authority which has to discharge certain duties is different from the council which has not got all the duties. It follows the existing law. Under the existing law, section 25 of the Act of 1904 says: 'If the Local Government are of opinion that any of the duties imposed on any municipal authority by or under this Act has not been performed or has been performed in an imperfect, inefficient or unsuitable manner, the Local Government may, by an order, direct the municipal authorities, or any of them, within a period to be specified in the order, to make arrangements to their satisfaction for the proper performance of the duties, etc.'"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"The President is head of the corporation. You forget that."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"The President will certainly be a municipal authority under the existing Act. It simply follows the existing phraseology."

The amendment was put and lost.

Clause 42 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 43.

Clause 43 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 44.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I do not press amendment No. 19 in my name."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the following amendment was withdrawn:—"Delete sub-clause (d) of clause 44 (2)."

Clause 44 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 45.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Amendment No. 20 in the name of the Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur falls as also No. 21 in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao."

10TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(The President; Mr. Ranga Achariyar;
the Advocate-General.)

The following were the two amendments, in the name of the two honourable gentlemen:—

The Hon'ble Mr. YAQUB HASAN:—

20. After the words 'divisional councillors' insert the words 'and Muslim councillors' and after the words 'thirty divisions' insert the words 'and six Muslim divisions'.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—

21. Substitute 'thirty-two' for 'thirty'.

Clause 45 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 46.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Amendment No. 22 in the name of the Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib falls."

The amendment was:—22. Omit the word 'divisional' and insert the words 'and Muslim division' after the words 'each division'.

Clause 46 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 47.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Amendment No. 23 also falls consequentially."

The amendment was:—23. After the words 'each division' insert the following:—

'and Muslim division, provided that the names of Mussalmans qualified to vote shall alone be entered in the lists for the Muslim divisions and they shall be omitted from the lists for the other divisions.'

Clause 47 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 48.

Clause 48 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 49.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I am in a little difficulty which amendment we may take."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"May I suggest a procedure?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"If you please."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"My amendment brings out many of the points brought out in the amendments proposed by the Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib and others, so that if it is taken as the basis, they may move their amendments. The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib's amendment comes earlier and the Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao's amendment also comes earlier, but mine comprises both."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We shall first take the first four lines of the clause in the Bill settling the question of residence. I shall put to the Council sub-clause (1) of clause 49 until the words 'and either' shall stand part of the Bill."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"It is affected by my amendment."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"It is affected by the other amendment. If the Council decides that that clause stand part of the Bill, it decides on the amendment that deals with that part."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"I move that first four lines of clause 49 (1) stand part of the Bill."

The Hon'ble Mr. H. G. Stokes seconded the motion.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Now, Honourable gentleman will be free to speak against it in the sense of their amendments."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I move, Your Excellency, my amendment. The substance of clause 49 (1) is that residence in the division is to be made a necessary qualification for the person to be entered as a voter in the division. My first amendment is that residence in the division need not be a necessary qualification, where the person pays a property tax. I shall explain my position. Under the present law as it is, residence is not a qualification for being a voter in any particular division. That is to say, if he pays the property tax, he is entitled to be registered as a voter. He may live out of Madras; he may live in any other division, but if he pays the property tax in the division where the property is situate, for that property, he gets the vote. Now, the proposed section as amended by the Select Committee introduces this innovation and deprives the people who have votes already of

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [10TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Siva Rao; the President.)

the votes that they possess. That is one objection to the proposed provision by the Select Committee. Apparently the principle they have in view is the question of the plurality of votes. My suggestion is not open to that objection at all. In fact, the franchise is not personal. It is based upon property qualification. I can understand the objection to give one man more than one vote may apply to the case where it is purely manhood suffrage based upon the persons; but where the franchise depends upon paying municipal rates, the qualification attaches to the person who is the owner of the property, or rather the person who pays municipal rates. It depends upon the law of the place—as to who pays the rates. It is the owner that is made responsible for the municipal rate. Even if the occupier pays it, he can recover it from the owner. The scheme of the Act is to make the rate recoverable from the owner, the franchise depending upon the property qualification. That is a real qualification and that depends upon the locality where the property is situated. That is why the law has all along been that it follows the owner wherever he may be situated. Being immovable property the rate depends upon the property where it may be situated. It has all along been recognised in all franchises that where it is based on the property, residence is not made a condition precedent to qualify him for a vote. Till the recent Act of 1917 in England where the franchise depended upon the possession of real property, residence was not a condition precedent."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"How is it now?"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Give us everything that England has; we are not fit enough to take English things in all other matters, but whenever it suits the Government, they say 'take what is the provision in England'; but whenever it does not suit them, they say 'this is not suited to this country.' So recently as 1906 when the House of Commons passed a Bill making residence a compulsory qualification the House of Lords rejected it. That is only very recently. Where the existing law provides that where a man pays the rate in a particular division, he shall be entitled to vote in that division, there is no reason in principle why that vote should be taken away. I want to satisfy some of my non-official friends. I have to satisfy not only my official friends, but sometimes my non-official friends also. Suppose the city is divided into thirty wards, the whole city having thirty elected commissioners, you will be entitled to record your vote for thirty persons. Instead of recording it at one booth, you record it at thirty different places. It is one vote for each candidate in each district. I being a resident in Madras, have property in Tanjore, and I pay the property tax in respect of that property. The qualification exists. Why could I not go and exercise the franchise there? Madras is divided into so many districts, in each district there are so many candidates and I have property paying the rate. The procedure is, I am served with thirty bills if I have thirty houses. The franchise being dependent upon the possession of property for which I pay taxes, there is really no reason why I should not have a vote. Further, in Madras it is not doing anything obnoxious in principle. It is the principle which exists under the present Act. The Honourable Member in charge has appealed to existing provisions whenever he wanted to oppose my amendments. I hope he will follow existing provisions and I hope he would not blow hot and cold. I hope he will say that there is no need for a change. If existing provisions are good in order to oppose my amendments, I invoke the aid of those existing provisions to support my amendment. I ask the Honourable Member to be consistent in this matter. There is nothing objectionable. I can take you through the numerous statutes where residence, so far as municipal franchise is concerned, is not made compulsory, where franchise is dependent upon the payment of rates. I therefore move my first amendment that residence need not be a condition precedent in the case of a person paying the property tax.

"My amendment is No. 26:—"In clause 49 (1), after the words "unless he" in the second line add as sub-clause (a)—"

"Has paid in the year preceding that in which the electoral roll is published a tax mentioned in clause (a) of section 98 in respect of property in that division or," omitting all the words from "has" to "either."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I sent up a similar amendment, amendment No. 24-A in the supplemental agenda and I wish to say a few words."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Yes, pray do. If the Honourable Member wishes to address himself to the residence for 120 days in the division, this is the time for him."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Only that point, Your Excellency. The first clauses of my amendment relate to other things. The gist of the proposed amendment is to dispense with the residential qualification in the case of those who become entitled to vote by reason of the payment of property tax. In other words, I may be a resident of Bellary and I may happen to own a house in Madras within the limits of the corporation; there is absolutely no reason why I should not have a vote by reason of my having a house within the limits of the corporation. By reason of owning the house, the owner has a material stake in the municipality. He has as much interest in municipal affairs as anybody else and he is certainly entitled to have a voice in its concerns. Looking to the present Act of 1904 which is known as the City Municipal Act, this residential qualification is not insisted upon in the case of those who pay the property tax and I do not see why it should be insisted upon in this proposed Bill. One difference will arise between my amendment and probably the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar's amendment. If

10TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Siva Rao; the Advocate-General;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Suryanarayana Rao.)

our amendments are carried into effect, they may probably mean an alteration in the wording of explanation (3). The wording of it may have to be modified by saying that a person shall not have more than one vote, he shall not be entitled to vote in more than one division by reason of his having a house in more than one ward. So far as this amendment is concerned, the amendment refers to voting at ward elections."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"My honourable friend Mr. Ranga Achariyar was not right in saying that residence was not a qualification under the existing law. It is a necessary qualification in two cases. There are four qualifications."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I distinctly said that so far as the property tax is concerned, residence is not a qualification. I confined it to property tax. There is no use of misunderstanding me."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"It is clear that the present Bill follows different rules as regards this question of franchise. Residence is the essential test under the present Act. The idea is that those only will be enabled to select their representatives to the corporation, those only will be enabled to take a real interest in the corporation who are actually residing. If they are non-resident gentlemen receiving rents probably through their agents, I do not understand what is the kind of interest which they can evince in municipal affairs. How are they qualified to choose the persons who are to represent them in the corporation? How are they to represent their grievances in the corporation? Beyond the fact that they own property and that some agent or a relative or a tenant occupies and pays the rent, what is their interest? What is sought to be provided really is, as the franchise is considerably widened, and as women are also entitled to vote, it is necessary to avoid plural voting. People who own houses in Madras cannot be given a predominant voice in the affairs of the city, simply because they possess houses in more than one division or simply because they are non-resident gentlemen in the mufassal, who own houses in Madras and may well be taxed. Are they to be regarded as persons who can have houses in Madras and may well be taxed. Are they to be regarded as persons who can effectively exercise the right of voting? What is intended in the Bill is to lay down residence as the first test by which the qualifications must be ascertained. This follows English legislation. The Municipal Corporations Act, which must be the model for the Madras City Municipal Act, expressly provides for it in section 9.

"The Municipal Corporations Act of 1882, not the County Council Act, that expressly lays down that a person must have either been occupying the house or must have been residing for twelve months in the borough or within seven miles from it and he must have been qualified with respect to the rates and he must have paid the rates up to a certain date. It is quite evident that this is not an innovation which is sought to be made. We make the councillors disqualified if they cease to reside in the city and we make the qualifications of voters the same as those for candidates. If we say that voters need not reside in the city and if at the same time we say that councillors would be disqualified if they do not reside in the city, this will make the position anomalous. So far as this particular amendment to omit the reference to residence in clause 49 is concerned, Government strongly oppose it, as all personal qualifications are abolished by the present clause. What is proposed is residence plus the payment of the tax or the occupancy of the house. That is a perfectly intelligible test and when women have been enfranchised and the electorate will be fairly unwieldy, to allow every house-owner who lives in the mufassal to vote, or a house-owner who resides in one division to have a vote in other divisions where he does not reside, but owns a house, would be to go against the elementary democratic principle that plural voting should be provided against."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO:—"Under section 37 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, residence is not a compulsory qualification to become a voter. Under section 37 of the Calcutta Act, 'A person shall not be entitled to vote at an election unless he . . . is enrolled in the municipal election roll as a voter of the ward for which such election is held. (2) A person shall not be entitled to be enrolled in the municipal election roll as a voter of any ward unless such person . . . resides or pays rates or other taxes, etc.' It does not say 'and', but only 'or'. When I refer to the Bombay Act, section 11, I see a similar provision there. There also the residential qualification is not insisted on. It says: 'A person shall not be entitled to the residential qualification unless he is enrolled in the municipal election roll as a voter of the ward for which such election is held. (2) A person shall not be entitled to be enrolled in the municipal election roll as a voter of any ward unless such person either . . . has been assessed to the qualifying tax, . . . or resides . . . in that ward.' So we see both in the Bombay and the Calcutta Acts mere ownership is considered sufficient to entitle a man to become a voter. I do not see any necessity for any improvement under the present Act and to insist on residence as a qualification before he can become a voter. Under section 49 of this Bill, I invite your Excellency's attention to explanation (3), sub-clause (2). It says: 'Any company has paid the tax mentioned in clause (a) of sub-section (1), shall be entitled to roll is published in the division, etc.' Now in regard to the company, what is the residential qualification that is insisted upon. Any company that pays the tax is entitled to one vote. It is payment of the tax that is considered sufficient to entitle it to vote. At least in the case of companies, personal qualification has been dispensed with and tax qualification has been considered sufficient. Again, when Your Lordship considers the definition of residence, is not the whole thing illusory? I invite attention to the definition of residence:

(Doctor Nayar ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

[10TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

this reason that within the municipal localities, all the real property owned is merely house. Very few lands are owned in municipal areas and so far as a house is concerned, if there is a tax on the house, it is at once shifted on to the occupier and therefore the real man who pays the house-tax in the municipal area is the occupier and not the owner. As long as the occupier has the municipal franchise, I do not see any reason for a further claim for the owner to have a franchise. The only person who is disfranchised is the absentee landlord, the landlord who owns property and lives far away. Far from having any claim to franchise, I think he should pay something to the municipality, because the absentee landlord when he comes back finds the value of the house tremendously increased without any trouble on his part. Where the property owners require to be protected, I fail to see. I think, My Lord, that for future municipal purposes, we ought to definitely lay down that none but those who have resided for a certain time, should have the franchise, whether they are graduates, or whether they are property owners or anything else, that residence ought to be the essential qualification because unless you reside within the city, you do not know what the discomforts of the municipal administration are and what the comforts of the municipal administration are. Therefore the men who have to suffer and the men who are to be benefitted by the municipal administration—they are the proper authorities to decide how the municipal administration should be conducted. I strongly support the principle that rate-paying and residence should be the necessary qualification."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"My Lord, I am glad that theories, at least in this instance, find acceptance within the walls of this chamber. If we went on theories, we should have absolute democracy at once in this country; but we are not to have it. If theories are to find acceptance, why not introduce the occupancy rates? Why does the Act take the trouble to make the owner the person ultimately liable to pay the rate? Impose the occupancy rate; if the municipal government exists for the occupier, make the occupier pay. That is not what the Act does. The Act now says that the owner is the person liable for the municipal rate. So, the municipal government wants the owner to pay the rate and wants somebody else to have a voice in imposing that rate. That is evidently what it comes to. Is it consonant with reason, justice or with common sense to make one man pay and another man impose that tax."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—"It is the other man that pays really."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"If I am deprived of my vote, I am deprived of membership in the Council; if the owner is deprived of the vote, he is not entitled to be a councillor. The Hon'ble the Advocate-General made so much of residence in these divisions. If I live on the northern side of the Poonamallee road and own a house on the southern side of the Poonamallee road, I am not entitled to vote in the division in which my property is owned. This is a purely artificial division for the purpose of convenience to divide the city into thirty divisions. Simply because I live on one side of the road, and the property is on the other side, to say that I should have no vote is absurd. I know what the defects are and what the conditions are, of municipal government on the other side; but still I am deprived of my right, because I do not live across that road and do not sleep for 120 days across that road. That is what it comes to—this beautiful provision about residence! Therefore I say the main principle on which I stand is this 'So long as you make the owner liable for the rate, you must not deprive him of the vote that he has under the law. Even on theory, I am prepared to defend my proposition; but apart from theory, I put it, practically. In Calcutta, residence is not a qualification. In that big city, which was till recently the capital of all India, residence is not a qualification. On the other hand, Calcutta goes further and it gives the rich man up to ten votes. If he pays Rs. 200, he has two votes, if he pays Rs. 500, he has five votes, if he pays Rs. 2,000, he has ten votes. In Bombay, as I have already pointed out, residence is not a condition but residence is made a condition only with reference to other qualifications. It is only in this Bill we have got this residence made a condition precedent so far as the owners are concerned. The Hon'ble the Advocate-General asks what kind of interest the house-owner would have who does not reside. It is the goose which lays the egg on which the administration is carried on. The golden eggs are to be drawn from the house-owners and if unlimited burden is to be imposed on the owners of houses, the owners of that goose are not to have a vote, but everybody else is to have a vote, then everybody else has the right to grumble that the streets are bad and are not sanitary,—everybody else can grumble but the owner who pays the rate should not have a voice in imposing that rate. That is what it comes to. He has every substantial interest. Unfortunately he is the man from whom you wring all the money from which you enjoy all the municipal amenities in the city. Therefore, I do not think there is any use of my wasting my breath and eloquence here. I have realized it sufficiently and I am learning it to-day. But as this is an important matter in which owners of houses in this city will be put to great loss by taking away the right which they have under the law, I had to say so much. You are asked to change the law; I ask you what reason there is for changing the law. Is it simply on abstract principles as the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar would have it? If so, let us have everything on abstract principles. It is not proper to deprive the owner of the right that he has. Residence in a division is meaningless. I therefore strongly appeal to the Council to accept the amendment."

The motion that the first four lines of clause 49, sub-section (1), be added to the Bill was put and agreed to.

10TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; the President ;
the Advocate-General ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

The Hon'ble Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar claimed a poll which was taken with the following result:—

For	Against
The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.	The Hon'ble Mr. P. Siva Rao.
" Mr. L. Davidson.	" Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar.
" Mr. C. G. Todhunter.	" Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju.
" Mr. R. Ramachandra Rao.	" Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar.
" Mr. M. Young.	" Mr. K. Suryanarayanamurti
" Mr. L. E. Buckley.	" Nayudu.
" Mr. N. E. Marjoribanks.	" Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur.
" Mr. R. B. Wood.	" Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.
" Aziz-ud-din Sahib Bahadur.	" Mr. K. Chidambaranatha
" the Rev. G. Pittendrigh.	" Mudaliyar.
" Sir Francis Spring.
" Mr. Littlehales.
" Sir Gordon Fraser.
" Mr. J. H. Thonger.
" Mr. J. C. Molony.
" the Most Reverend John Aelen.
" Mr. W. Hutton.
" Mr. W. J. J. Howley.
" Mr. A. Y. G. Campbell.
" the Advocate-General.
" Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
" Mr. H. G. Stokes.
" Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.
" Dr. T. M. Nayar.
" Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.
" Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.

The motion was agreed to, 26 for the addition of the four lines to section 49 (1) and eight voting against the addition.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"The next point that we have to decide is about sub-clause (1) (a) :—The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib has an amendment dealing with it and so has the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar. But they fall to the ground. I will put the next two lines."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL :—"I would suggest that 'or' be put before (b)."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Yes."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"What is to become of my amendment?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Your amendment has been really rejected by the decision of the Council on the other amendment. I will add it to the Bill."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"It is usual to put the amendment."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"There was a multiplicity of amendments. Gentlemen, instead of proposing amendments to the section, re-drafted the clause."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"My amendment is not that. I propose amendments to the existing section."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"I had alternative amendments."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Clause (b) has been settled by the previous debate."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"I wish to substitute 'Rs. 120' for 'Rs. 60'."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"As the clause stood, you propose to omit the residential qualification of 120 days, but you want to move an amendment which will make it more rigorous. Is there any amendment to sub-clause (b)?"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"My amendment is to substitute 'Rs. 120'. It is not days, it is the amount."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"The Honourable gentleman proposed to raise the occupancy qualification from 60 to 120 on the supposition that we would follow his advice and out of the Bill the residential qualification of 120 days."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"That is independent."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"We will move clause (b) as in the Bill and the Honourable gentleman will move his amendment to raise the figure from '60' to '120'."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"I will also add 'or a graduate of the University'."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"We will take that separately."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL :—"I will move clause (b) of section 49 (1): 'Has for not less than six months in such preceding year occupied a house in the city of an annual value of not less than sixty rupees'."

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Suryanarayana Rao; [10TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao; the Advocate-General;
Mr. Yaqub Hasan; the President.)

The Hon'ble Mr. H. G. Stokes seconded the motion.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I move that the word '120' be substituted for the word '60'. That is, the occupier gets a vote under this Act in addition to the owner. Under the existing law, the occupier is entitled to vote only if he has a house of the annual value of Rs. 240. The proposal here is to reduce it to Rs. 60 or Rs. 5 per mensem. I propose that it should be Rs. 120. I borrow the argument of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General that we are now adding to the unwieldy nature of the constituency by adding all sorts of voters of both sexes and therefore we shall be introducing complications by taking occupiers of houses paying only Rs. 5 per mensem. The other reason is that it will be merely the occupant voting. So long as there is no occupation rate, is it sound in principle? To go and reduce it to Rs. 5 per mensem is, I think, objectionable in principle. Payment of Rs. 5 per mensem means that the house will be a very small house indeed and it is unnecessary that such people should have a vote. On the other hand, the payment of Rs. 10 will satisfy the requirements of the case, and therefore I submit that '120' may be substituted for '60'.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO:—"I second this amendment. I think that Rs. 60 is too low a qualification and that Rs. 120 should be fixed as the minimum."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I regret I have to oppose this, Your Excellency. When we are all making very serious attempts to make these local institutions popular and representative of the people, when we have been making attempts to extend the franchise as wide as possible, it will be a retrograde step to go back on this proposal and to increase the property qualification. The Council has already decided that to ensure local knowledge, residential qualification is essential. Occupiers of houses are in a position to know the shortcomings of municipal administration and they will have personal knowledge of the various questions which can be used to the best possible extent. It is unfortunate that there lurks in the minds of some persons a suspicion that the occupier may not be in a position to safeguard the interests of the owners and that the absentee owners might suffer at the hands of the occupiers. I trust that occupiers will be as much interested in safeguarding the interests of the city as any house-owner. Let not any suspicion be responsible for increasing the qualification of the occupier. I strongly oppose the amendment. I would have come forward with a proposal to lower the qualifications; but as the matter stands at present, the Select Committee has taken various circumstances into consideration. It will probably become an unwieldy electorate if the qualification is made lower than Rs. 60. When they have come to that decision, I think we ought not to increase that figure."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"Your Excellency, to raise the annual value of houses necessary for a voter from Rs. 60 to Rs. 120 would just deprive those occupiers who should have a right to vote and who, but for this qualification, would not have a right to vote. If you raise it to Rs. 120, you will be, to some extent, duplicating the property tax-payers. If occupiers of houses of the annual value of Rs. 120 were about 4,000 and occupiers of houses of the annual value of Rs. 60 would be 6,000, the result is that 2,000 persons must be paying the property tax, if you want to confer that benefit."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg to withdraw the amendment."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the amendment was withdrawn.

Sub-clause (b) of section 49 (1) was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"When that proposition was put by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General and immediately after that, the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar took up the question of residence, we concentrated our attention on the question of residence, so far as property tax was concerned. The other aspect of the question whether in the case of those who pay taxes in respect of their professions, residence is essential or not, was not taken, up at all. That was part of my amendment."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Member has not been injured because, as I understand it, we have settled in a sense that he wished to have it settled under sub-clause (a) of section 98."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"Sub-clause (b) is professional tax."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"No. Sub-clause (b) is company tax and sub-clause (c) is profession tax."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"Your Excellency, residence is insisted in both these cases. Your Excellency will allow me to move this small amendment that the question of residence should not be taken so far as profession tax is concerned."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"That is settled, I am sorry if I have deprived the Honourable Member of the right of moving his amendment."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"I hope Your Excellency will allow me to move my amendment."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I am afraid I cannot go back. I must rule the Honourable gentleman out of order. We are now settled down to the word '60'."

10TH FEB. 1919.] (Mr. Ranga Achariyar; the President; Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao;
Mr. Siva Rao; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.)

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"There is a sub-clause about graduate."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I must be fair to the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan. He has clause (c) and that is the point raised in sub-clause (2) of section 49 of the Bill. It is the question of company votes that is raised in section 49 (2). Thus the whole of his amendments are covered. Coming to the graduate vote, I call upon the Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao to move his amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I have the honour to move:—In clause 49 (1), add the following after the words 'sixty rupees' occurring in sub-clause (b):—

'or (c) he is a graduate of some University in His Majesty's dominions.'

"When the Bill was referred to the Select Committee, the Government laid down this qualification. Let us consider and see what possible objections can be urged against a graduate being a qualified voter at elections to the Corporation. It is true that by the extension of the franchise in the manner suggested, a very large number of graduates will have the necessary qualification and will be in a position to vote. A further question will arise whether it is necessary to enable the graduates who do not pay any of these taxes to vote at municipal elections. That is the only point for consideration. When we remember that this is a qualification which has been exercised and very properly exercised during the last so many years, there must be sufficient reasons for taking away that qualification. Is it suggested that these graduates not paying taxes will outnumber other people who pay taxes and who are qualified to vote? Is it suggested that it will prejudice those elections? That is the only standpoint which can be urged against it. Is it apprehended that graduates who do not pay any taxes will not be in a position to properly safeguard the interest of the rate-payers in the Corporation? I do not think that such a position can be reasonably taken. When we remember that the number of such graduates as do not pay taxes will be very few compared with the large number of tax-payers, such a contingency is not likely to arise and there need not be any apprehension whatever on that ground. I submit that these graduates who have been exercising the privilege for so many years, should be allowed to exercise that franchise; and they will be in a position to help the municipal administration rather than cause any sort of difficulty."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I second it, Your Excellency, and withdraw my amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I support it and I may also withdraw my amendment, which is to the same effect."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"I must state that Government are unable to accept the amendment. The Bill as introduced provided for three personal qualifications: 'Is a graduate of some University in His Majesty's dominions or is a pensioned officer of the Indian Army or is a holder of any title or decoration prescribed by the Governor in Council, to be a qualification for inclusion.' These were the three personal qualifications in addition to the real qualifications that we mentioned in the Bill that was before the Select Committee. The Select Committee after carefully considering the matter, decided to omit all the three personal qualifications. The test which was adopted for laying down the franchise is residence of the rate-payer."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Only by a majority."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE GENERAL:—"Yes, by a majority."

"Therefore, I do not understand any necessity for the restoration of the graduate qualification. It will not be consistent with the rest of the clause. Rate-paying and residence being qualifications that have been introduced, these personal qualifications had to be ruled out. The old Act proceeded upon principles, altogether different from the principles upon which the present franchise is based in the present Bill. There is no question of graduates having a vote or not. If they fulfil the qualifications laid down in the Act, they will have a vote; otherwise not. There is no question of disfranchising the graduates. I do not know if it is a serious matter. Neither of the two Honourable Members who spoke on the subject, mentioned the number of graduates that would not pay the tax under clause (a) or would not be occupiers of houses of the value of Rs. 60 per annum. Most graduates would be occupiers of houses of not less than Rs. 60. I do not think there is any business behind this amendment. Because it is in the existing Act, Honourable Members want to restore it. But the existing Act has been deliberately departed from, so far as this clause is concerned. This amendment is intended to tack on to a new provision some antiquated provision in the existing clause. There is no harm by leaving it out."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Your Excellency, I have been carefully following the Hon'ble Advocate-General to see what reasons he would give for the exclusion of graduates in the qualification clause. His first position is that we had in the original Bill three qualifications of which the graduate qualification was one. Nobody has suggested that titles and pensions should still be qualifications. Why then insist upon the graduate qualification? My short answer to this is: while saying that graduates should be qualified we are in no sense, upholders of the position that pensioners and title-holders should not be given the franchise."

(Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.)

[10TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

Therefore, the first objection is hardly an objection. The second objection taken by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General is that it would not be consistent with the rest of the clause. What he means is that the general tenor of the qualifications suggested is property or income. And here comes something educational. My answer to it is: we have heard so much about literacy being so closely connected with the privileges of self-government. In order that any local self-government or provincial self-government should be conceded, a degree of literacy has been put forward as an important factor and it is rather astonishing to be told at the same time that the fact of one being a graduate should not have anything to do with the franchise. I wish to point out the basic reason underlying the present motion. The Hon'ble the Advocate-General said that there was an attempt to put an antiquated provision of the Act of 1904 and that there was really no grievance and therefore there was no necessity to refer to the graduate qualification. I am going to show that some antiquated things are excellent and we are apt to lose sight of the merit of such antiquated things. The list of electors will be the list of candidates also. In framing both we are trying to put forward a list of men who have a knowledge of local affairs and who are competent to advise. The possession of a diploma is prima facie proof of the possession of the qualification for advising people what to do. I think it has been so long acted upon that it is hardly necessary for me to take up the time of the Council in demonstrating the wisdom of that course.

"I shall proceed to the third ground put forward by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General. He says that every graduate will get in and no Honourable Member has put forward the number of graduates that will be excluded. That is really very important. I consider that as the only point made and I shall proceed to deal with that point. I was anxious to get this qualification of graduates brought in for two or three reasons all of which will affect the question put by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General as to what is exactly our grievance. I shall point out where the harm is. At present, a large number of graduates are exercising the franchise and it has not been made out by any one that the fact that the graduates have been exercising the franchise has caused any harm to municipal institutions. On the other hand, it has been realized that Madras is the premier municipality and it is setting an excellent example of how to conduct elections and take interest in elections. I think no small part of the glory of municipal success here is due to the fact that a very large number of graduates are exercising the franchise. So far from the possession of the franchise by graduates being proved to be wrong, we have every reason to believe that the possession of the franchise by graduates has added a great deal to the reputation of Madras municipal elections. Therefore, the more natural question for the public to consider and the more important point for the Hon'ble the Advocate-General to press is, which of these people are going to be kept out. I will give you the answer. I shall point out which of these graduates will be excluded. Our graduates, a good number of them belong to the floating population. They come and stay here for three or five years and during that period they do take as intelligent men interest in their own neighbourhood. If there is anything insanitary, they are the most active people to put things right. The resident population are thankful to the graduates for the assistance they give. I have myself lived for over eight or nine years in this town, of which I spent five years as a graduate. I know full well the ways in which the graduates spend their time here and what sort of qualification they possess. Very few of them possess the qualification of ownership of property or payment of taxes. Next comes the question of occupation. We have allowed people paying a rent of Rs. 5 to vote. I will show you how you exclude them. Explanation 2 says that, in respect of one house, only one person will be deemed to occupy the house and shall be the rate-payer. I know how many graduates live together for various purposes. They establish hostels and live together instead of taking wretched houses in a street like the Hanumanthalala Street, Triplicane, and subjecting themselves to plague; they take up a big house or a big flat and six of them live together, and if there are six of them, five will be debarred from voting. If our object is to exclude these people, if we want to penalise the people who want to have fine houses by acting on the principle of co-operation, we can tell the graduates as we do in this clause: 'you have no separate house, you will not be given a vote and you are not entitled to become voters by your education.' Are we not taking up a position which is condemned by the past history of the Madras municipality? It is quite clear that graduates have deserved the franchise that they have been enjoying and the first effect of the present Bill will be that several of these graduates who very often live together, will be excluded.

"I shall refer to the next class that we shall be very unfortunately excluding. On that matter, I am sure I will have the sympathy of the Government. We have given the franchise to women. With reference to women, what happens? Women themselves as owners of the property are very rare here. The reference to occupiers shows that only one can be a voter. Let us take the lady graduates. We have about two dozen in Madras of lady graduates, I suppose; is it the object of any gentleman to exclude the lady graduates and, if so, for what reason are we to exclude them? Their less-cultured sisters having possession of some property will be allowed to vote and yet, with reference to these people, we will be keeping them out; especially in the case of ladies for whom we have permitted the franchise, it appears to be a special case and it is a mistake to strike off graduates from exercising this privilege of being voters. It is absolutely unwise; I think it is a retrograde step to remove the qualification. It has been working very well. I know that in some cases this exclusion of the graduates is based upon a fear that graduates will swamp the election, that they will have their own way, they are men of ideas, and they will boom up their own candidates and cry down

10TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Mr. Molony;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar; the President.)

other candidates. I do not know if that is the idea of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General. If persons with ideas and with energy come forward to carry on elections in well-recognized ways, it is not proper to say that they should be kept out, because they have not got property or because they do not keep a separate house paying Rs. 60 per annum. It is a wrong policy to exclude graduates. You are keeping the ladies out and you are also keeping the graduates out, both of whom deserve the franchise."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY:—"I merely propose to give some figures. It is not proposed to penalize the graduates. The mere fact of being a graduate without being a taxpayer is a somewhat artificial action. Under the present existing law, sub-section (d), number of graduates registered as voters is 931 and it is impossible to say whether with the reduction in the tax-paying qualification a great many of them would not come in otherwise. It is extremely probable because the present electorate is 11,848, and the number of persons assessed to house-tax who will come in is 30,100, the number of persons assessed to professional tax is 7,000 and the number of persons coming in under the occupancy clause will be 6,500. I may also point out that the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar is not quite correct in considering that the women's only chance of getting a vote is the graduateship."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I did not say that."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY:—"There are 7,173 women paying taxes to the municipality who will be qualified to vote under the law as now proposed and I may also add that, so far as my experience goes, a woman graduate in Madras would never be qualified simply because she is a graduate. A woman who has taken a degree will almost certainly be either in the medical or teaching profession and her professional tax will be very high and therefore she will have a qualification quite distinct from that of a degree."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Only one information I wish to give to the Hon'ble the Advocate-General if this is going to change his view. He wanted to know what class of people will be thrown out in case this is rejected. The graduates who are pursuing their career in the professional colleges will be thrown out. The other class that will be thrown out is the members of joint Hindu families, which the Hon'ble the Advocate-General is anxious to introduce. These junior members who are graduates will be thrown out."

The amendment was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar claimed a poll which was taken with the following result:—

For	Against
The Hon'ble Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.	The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.
" " P. Siva Rao.	" Mr. L. Davidson.
" " K. Rama Ayyangar.	" " C. G. Toddhunter.
" " K. Sadasiva Bhat.	" " A. Y. G. Campbell.
" " B. Venkatapati Raju.	" " R. Ramachandra Rao.
" " T. Ranga Achariyar.	" " L. E. Buckley.
" " Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur.	" " M. Young.
" " Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.	" " R. B. Wood.
" " K. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar.	" " N. E. Marjoribanks.
" " A. Suryanarayana Rao.	" " Aziz-ud-din Sahib Bahadur.
" " A. S. Krishna Rao.	" " Dr. Nayar.
" " B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.	" " Mr. T. Richmond.
	" " Littlehales.
	" " Sir Fairless Barber.
	" " Gordon Fraser.
	" " Mr. J. H. Thonger.
	" " The Most Reverend John Aalen.
	" " Mr. J. C. Molony.
	" " W. Hutton.
	" " W. J. J. Howley.
	" " The Advocate-General.
	" " Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
	" " H. G. Stokes.

The amendment was lost, 12 voting for and 23 voting against.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I wish to oppose the latter part of explanation 2 which says: 'Nor shall more than one person be deemed to occupy the same house.' Will Your Excellency allow me to propose that?"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"He is not in order in proposing any omission."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"He is at liberty to propose the amendment. I have already put clause 49 down to the words in explanation 2."

[10TH FEBRUARY 1919.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :- "I can understand it."

Clause 49 down to those words was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao seconded the amendment.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I do not wish to exercise any powers which I have not got."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—“ We shall apply the same rule. If the Council objects to the Honourable Member moving this amendment, the Honourable gentleman cannot move it. With the consent of the Council, I may allow the Honourable gentleman to be heard.”

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—“ It will apply to all people. It is better to allow the chairman a discretion.”

The remaining words of explanation 2 were allowed to be added to the Bill.

The whole clause 49 was allowed to be added to the Bill.

Clause 50 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—“ Why not we take up clause 51 to-morrow, Your Excellency ? ”

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"It will take a lot of time."

'27. Omit sub-clause (b) and make consequential alterations by omitting the lettering of sub-clause (a) and the word "and" at its end.'

"By this Bill, we have allowed women to come in as voters. I propose that we should go further and enable them to become councillors. It will take a long time when they will come forward, but there is no reason why we should object to any lady coming forward. I propose the amendment."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—“ Will the Hon'ble Mr. Siva Rao second that as he has sent up a similar amendment ? ”

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I second the amendment. It has been decided that all voters should be eligible to be candidates. If one is qualified to be a voter and if he is of the

(Mr. Siva Rao ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, this is a matter upon which a great deal can be said. But as we are all familiar with the arguments for and against allowing the franchise to women, I do not propose to take up the time of the Council by reciting them all, but I will simply indicate what the attitude of the Government is. At present, under the law as it now stands, women are not qualified either to vote at municipal elections or to come in as councillors. The Bill, if passed, will allow them to participate in municipal elections. The Hon'ble Mr. Molony has told us a few minutes ago that there are about 7,000 women who will now get the franchise in that way and participate in elections. The attitude of the Government is: while we recognize that a time will come when women will have to be returned to the Council, we consider that this particular change we have made is sufficient for the present. We do not at all deny that there may be women here and there who could well act as councillors and would probably do better than some of the men who are sitting as councillors. A similar argument might apply to us. I dare say there are women who will do much better than either I or my Hon'ble friend Mr. Narasimha Ayyar, but you have also to consider exactly what public opinion is ripe for. Whatever you may feel about the election of women to the local bodies, I do not think the country is quite fit for that. It is only now that we are emancipating them by giving them votes. Let us stop there for some time and let the public familiarise itself to this spectacle of women going along with men and recording their votes at the polling stations. I dare say the time will come when we can take the next step. I oppose this resolution solely on the ground that it is premature. Also please note what are the kind of women that you contemplate. A good lady doctor or an inspectress of schools—they are the kind of people who are needed and they might ordinarily come in by nomination. While section 51 says: 'No person shall be qualified for election as a councillor unless . . . such person is of the male sex', section 52 does not give the fact of the female sex as one of the reasons for disqualification for appointment. It is still open to us under the Bill, if passed, it is still open to us, I mean to His Excellency, to appoint women to the municipal council if he is so minded. But I do not think we are now called upon to take this last step also, namely, to declare that they should stand as candidates also for election. I think the thing is premature and on that ground I oppose it."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"I am in this unfortunate position so far as this amendment is concerned. The Corporation when I was not present, passed a unanimous vote that the amendment should be accepted. But, speaking as a practical man I am inclined to agree with the Honourable Member in charge at least in this instance although not in any other instance from this morning. I want to take rather a responsible view of the situation. Let us conceive what we are doing to-day by section 49. We are enlarging the electorate to a very large extent indeed by reducing the qualification and by giving votes to a larger number of people. I want to wait and see how it works. Having had some experience in elections, having contested a seat in two or three elections, I am inclined to give this warning : let us not proceed too fast. It will introduce complications. Therefore my own inclination is to give a vote against the amendment but the corporation vote is against me ; and so I propose to be neutral in this matter."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"If the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar had taken up the view that it was too early for women to be allowed to be voters in municipal elections even when we are extending the electorate, I can understand his position. He has not raised any objection to women being allowed to participate in municipal elections. The franchise has been broadened to that extent. The question for consideration resolves itself into this: according to the information which the Hon'ble Mr. Molony was kind enough to furnish us, we have 8,000 women who will participate in elections. When we realize that there are women intelligent and capable enough to take part in affairs concerning municipal administration, why should we refuse them the privilege of allowing one of their own sex to represent them? I cannot myself imagine why when we had agreed to give them the right to vote at municipal elections, they should not be given the right to represent the ratepayers on the corporation.

“ My second reason is this : Honourable Members of Council will see that various respectable women in the Madras city convened meetings and expressed their desire that they should be allowed to participate in municipal elections and be allowed to stand as candidates. They held meetings and sent up copies of their resolutions. We find among the papers placed on the table, before the Council, proceedings of a meeting of women held on the 14th of December 1918 at Mylapore. It is to this effect : ‘ This meeting of the women of Mylapore, Madras, is of opinion that the municipal vote should at once be given to all women tax-payers, and also that women should be allowed to stand as candidates for the municipal council. This meeting calls upon the Legislative Council to include these two measures of justice in the Madras City Municipal Bill now under consideration.’ You will have noticed that it is only the proceedings of one meeting that are before us ; but from what was published in the various papers, it will be seen that in various parts of the city, they asked for it. When there is that demand

Proceedings of an Adjourned Meeting of the Council of the Governor of Fort St. George assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 5 and 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.

The Council re-assembled at the Council Chamber, Fort St. George, at 11 a.m. on Tuesday the 11th day of February 1919.

P R E S E N T :

His Excellency the Right Hon'ble JOHN, Baron PENTLAND of Lyth, P.C., G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., Governor of Madras—Presiding.
The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW, K.C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR Avargal, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble MUHAMMAD AZIZ-UD-DIN HUSAIN SAHIB Bahadur, Khan Bahadur C.I.E., I.S.O., O.B.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. BUCKLEY, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. Y. G. CAMPBELL, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. W. J. J. HOWLEY.
The Hon'ble Mr. W. HUTTON.
The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILS.
The Hon'ble Mr. N. E. MAJORIRANKS.
The Hon'ble Mr. J. O. MOLONY.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur R. RAMACHANDRA RAO Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. S. SRINIVASA AYYANGAR (Advocate-General).
The Hon'ble Mr. H. G. STOKES, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. C. G. TODHUNTER.
The Hon'ble Mr. M. YOUNG.
The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble the Rev. G. PITTENDRIGH.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO PANTULU.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO PANTULU Garu.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO PANTULU.
The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur A. SUBBARAYALU REDDIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. SADASIVA BHAT.
The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR.
The Hon'ble Sri RAJA RAO VENKATA KUMARA MAHIPATI SURYA RAO Bahadur, Raja of Pithapuram.
The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. KUMARAN RAMAN KAVALAPPARA MUPPIL NAYAR.
The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBI MARAKKYAR SAHIB Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER, Kt.
The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER.
The Hon'ble Sir FAIRLESS BARBER, Kt.
The Hon'ble the Most Rev. JOHN AELLEN, D.D.
The Hon'ble Mr. T. RICHMOND.
The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPEING, K.C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur K. R. SURYANARAYANAMURTI NAYUDU Garu.
The Hon'ble Raja, RAJA SRI RAVU VENKATA KUMARA KRISHNA RANGA RAO Bahadur of Bobbili.
The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR.

(Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ;
Mr. Ramachandra Rao ; the President.) [10TH FEBRUARY 1919.

—let it be from a small section, let it be that the number of people who take part in these meetings is very small—when even a small number express a desire to take part in municipal affairs—on what rational grounds, can we refuse them that privilege? The next point which arises for consideration is this—let it not be supposed that simply because we allow this amendment to be passed, there will be a sudden rush and that some thing revolutionary will happen. Let us recall what took place at the elections to Parliament in the United Kingdom. Though the privilege was given to women, the number of women voters that took part was limited, the person returned being only one. Even in an advanced country like England, where the privilege has been given, it is only by a gradual process of development that it can really produce any substantial change. In this country, it must take a much longer time. When we are amending the Act, why should we retain this disqualification when we remove that disqualification for voters? If they succeed in securing votes let them take part in elections. I think we must take a liberal and broad view in these things."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Your Excellency may allow me to make mention of one point. I am glad that the opposition to the present proposal has frankly rested itself not on logical grounds, but on the sole ground that it is premature to allow ladies to become candidates. The opposition recognize that their argument is illogical. What is meant by saying that it is premature? At present, it has to be recognized that we are allowing 7,000 women to exercise the franchise. Is it not premature to allow 7,000 women to exercise the franchise? but is it premature to allow five or six of these ladies who are more highly cultured to stand as candidates? What is the use of saying that for one purpose it is premature and for the other it is not? If for one purpose, the introduction of women in elections is premature, it is the faculty of the general women to judge. The vast majority of women will not know who the public men are. There may be women intelligent to take part in municipal affairs, who may be able to beat either me or the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar. I do not go back upon the position that 7,000 women should be permitted, but when you give them votes, to deny them this is not sound. When a man goes and asks for food, you say 'I will give you rice, but I will not give you salt, or dhol or butter milk.' With reference to the position that women cannot be candidates, I will point out that there is one absurdity. We introduce the sex as a disqualification in this place only. It is not a disqualification for anything else. We are really putting forward a principle when the principle is indefensible. Its imperative necessity must be clearly made out before it can be accepted. The Honourable Member pointed out that lady doctors and trained nurses and ladies of high position might come in. As for their utility, I may point out that they will be useful in a way in which gentlemen in this Council would not be useful. They will serve on the Education Board, on the Charity Board and I think it would be really handicapping the corporation. We will be preventing useful people from coming into the council. I will make an appeal to all women (laughter) I mean I appeal strongly to all Honourable Members to agree to this position that all women voters should also have a right to be elected. Government retain the power under the law to nominate if they are competent ladies. So far as Government are concerned, they have the privilege. But so far as electors are concerned, they are not competent to elect proper women. Evidently the trained intellects on the Government side may come to proper decision and not those who are to elect. That is not a proper implication. If women can come in, it is good for the country and for all concerned that they should come in by way of election."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I do not share the feeling of the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar that women candidates would be of tremendous use to the corporation."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Not all."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"There will be nobody at present candidates. My main reason for voting for it is, that a general revision of the Act will not be undertaken for a long time and especially, I have not heard the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar suggesting that a tremendous revolution will come about if women are allowed to be candidates and therefore, I am prepared to vote for it. I quite recognize that it will take a considerable time. Even in Parliament, even when women have been enfranchised, there were very few candidates. It will continue to be so in this country for some considerable time. In the meantime, if comes forward, why should she be prevented. It is admitted that 7,000 women would be voters. But we would not allow them to be candidates. If they are fit enough to be voters, there is no reason why they should not be fit enough to be candidates. Perhaps there may be women engaged in the educational and medical services who may come forward to serve as commissioner. I am rather against having a statutory bar on the ground of sex."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I will put the amendment which is in clause 51, to omit the words 'and such person is of the male sex.'"

The amendment was put and lost; and the retention of the words was agreed.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar demanded a poll which was taken with the following result:—

10TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(The President; Sir Gordon Fraser.)

For		Against
The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.		The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar.
" Mr. L. Davidson.		" Mr. Ramachandra Rao.
" C. G. Todhunter.		" P. Siva Rao.
" A. Y. G. Campbell.		" B. Venkatapati Raju.
" R. Ramachandra Rao.		" K. Sadasiva Bhat.
" M. Young.		" K. Suryanarayanamurti
" L. E. Buckley.		" Nayudu.
" N. E. Marjoribanks.		" the Raja of Pittapur.
" R. B. Wood.		" Mr. A. Suryanarayana Rao.
" Aziz-ud-din Sahib Bahadur.		" A. S. Krishna Rao.
" Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar.		" B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.
" Dr. T. M. Nayar.
" Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar.
" Sir Francis Spring.
" Mr. Littlehales.
" J. H. Thonger.
" J. C. Molony.
" Sir Gordon Fraser.
" Fairless Barber.
" Mr. W. Hutton.
" W. J. J. Howley.
" the Advocate-General.
" Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
" H. G. Stokes.

The motion for the retention of the words was agreed to, 24 voting for and 10 against it.

Clause 51 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I would ask what would be the most convenient course to take in the amendments to clause 52—which is the best amendment to be taken up—to meet the general critics of the Bill. Have we to take the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger's amendment or the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser's amendment? The Hon'ble Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar's amendment is different. I may take clause 52 (1)(b) and the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger, which is a direct negative which settles the point. I will put that at our meeting to-morrow."

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER:—"My amendment does not go quite so far as the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger's. Will I be prevented from moving it?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Yours is an addition. You can move it as an addition. We will take up clause 52 to-morrow."

The Council adjourned till 11 a.m. on Tuesday the 11th February 1919.

H. G. STOKES,

Acting Secretary to Government, L. & M. (Legislative) Dept.

(Sir Gordon Fraser; the President; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; the Advocate-General; Mr. Thonger.) [11TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

know, because it is a routine matter in the office which does not come before me; but that one particular matter is sufficient to debar me from doing what little I can to help the Corporation work. The same objection would apply to the other senior men in my office; but on the other hand there is no objection whatever to my juniors who have not had my experience or the experience of other senior men sitting on that Corporation. I have further arguments to bring forward and I will bring them forward when I move my amendment."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"No sir, the Hon'ble the Advocate-General."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE GENERAL:—"Your Excellency, Government oppose the motion for the deletion of this clause on very sound business principles and not on legal principles. I do not wish to be drawn into the relative merits of the lawyer and the business man because I myself belong to the legal profession and I will certainly not attempt to do that. But English lawyers are as keen as the business men that we have and this law which we have inherited today as embodied is the law which is derived from Englishmen and I do not understand Mr. Lloyd George to have repealed the provisions like this in all the Corporation Acts in England and allowed business men to come in."

"Passing from this reference of the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger, I must point out first to Honourable Members of Council that we are enacting no new law. The Hon'ble Mr. Thonger has himself fairly admitted and he has also said that he does not contest the principle. He says the principle is a wholesome principle but he only says that it should not be made applicable to Madras. It might be made applicable to other parts of India and other parts of the Empire."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—"I did not say that."

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE GENERAL:—"It should not be made applicable to Madras. This provision found place in Act I of 1884. It is to be found in section 7 (g) and section 27 of Act I of 1884. When the Act was re-examined and passed in 1904, the Council re-affirmed the principle and as far as I am aware, no complaints were made at the time and no one suggested that business men would be kept out. I welcome that all the more, because the present Chief Justice who was then the Advocate-General was responsible for the re-examination of the Bill and he had considerable English experience to guide him in retaining that provision."

"Then, going to other parts of India, this finds a place both in the Bombay and the Calcutta Acts in all its rigidity and this finds a place in the District Municipalities Acts,—the District Municipalities Act of Bombay and the District Municipalities Act of Bengal and the District Municipalities Act of Madras—and it finds a place everywhere. It finds a place in the English Municipal Corporation Act, section 12, which says:—'A person shall be disqualified for being elected and for being a Councillor, if and while he—

(a) is an elective auditor or a revising assessor, or holds any office or place of profit other than that of mayor or sheriff, in the gift or disposal of the Council, or
(b) is in holy orders, or the regular minister of a dissenting congregation, or
(c) has directly or indirectly, by himself or his partner any share or interest in any contract or employment with, by or on behalf of the Council.' It remains on the statute book to-day. I submit to the Council therefore, that really no weighty reasons have been urged why this provision which on principle is admitted to be absolutely right and which has been in force in all the Indian enactments dealing with municipal affairs and also all the principal English statutes dealing with Corporations—why this should be deleted in a Bill passed in 1919 for the City of Madras. The principle itself is a fairly clear principle. It is a principle which applies in the Law of Trusts and other laws. Members of the Corporation are in a sense trustees for the public. You cannot have a trustee who has some interest inconsistent with the interest of the beneficiary. That is the main principle and the policy of this provision has been stated most authoritatively by the Court of Appeal in a case in 22 Queen's Bench, to which I will briefly refer. There the Master of the Rolls said: 'They (such provisions) are intended to prevent the members of local boards, which may have occasion to enter into contracts, from being exposed to temptation or even to the semblance of temptation.' Another Justice, Justice Lindley said: 'The object (of such provisions) is to prevent the conflict between interest and duty that might otherwise inevitably arise.' Another Judge says: 'It seems to me that if we held the contrary, it would be letting in the very mischief the Act intended to prevent, and subjecting the Members of Local Boards to the class of temptations which it was intended to remove.' In 1906, 2 King's Bench, it was stated: 'The mischief aimed at is to prevent persons in the position of guardians from deriving benefit from contracts which they have to control.' This principle is a business principle. If a man is really a keen business man, he cannot avoid his business interests and business habits in dealing with the Corporation. It is a business principle that it is necessary to restrain him from keenly pursuing his business when he is in the Corporation. The object of the rule is not to keep out business men as the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger seems to imagine from the municipal council; but on the other hand, just like the other Acts, this will enable business men to come into the Corporation and certainly I for one, and I am certain that everybody else also, would welcome business men on the Corporation; but it only says to business men: 'If you want to enter the Corporation,

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (The Advocate General; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Sir Gordon Fraser.)

do not do business with the Corporation. Have other customers, but do not have the Corporation as your customer. If you are too keen a business man to omit one good customer like the Corporation, keep out of the Corporation.' It does not keep out the business men from the Corporation; very few business men will be prevented from entering into the Corporation; it is only business men that want to enter into contracts with the Corporation that will be prevented. Again it must be noticed that this is an improvement upon the existing Act. The words in this section are: 'Interested in a subsisting contract.' If the interest in the contract is one that has expired, it does not matter; if he is interested only in a contract subsisting at the time of the election, he is disqualified. Again, it does not prohibit shareholders from coming in at all, but it only prohibits contractors or managers from coming in. There are many business men who are shareholders who can come in and there are many directors who may not desire to do business with the Corporation and who can easily get in and equally add strength to the business capacity of the Council. I would submit to the Council that this is really going back upon a very well-established principle. Members of municipalities more experienced than myself, I dare say, may be able, if they wish, to speak on it. So far as I am concerned, I can only limit myself to matters raised in the amendment and it is impossible to deal with cases put by the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger and the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser. If men like them are kept out, it would be a misfortune; but it would be a more serious misfortune if business men are to be in the Council and do business with the Corporation. They need not do business with the Corporation. I need not refer to particular cases, in which all the facts are not known, whether really business men will be kept out of the Council. If they do not want to do business, I do not think any of them will be kept out at all."

"Then it was suggested that clause 34 of the Bill is quite a sufficient safeguard and the only object of putting in that clause was to prohibit business men from voting. Clause 34 is quite general. If a councillor cannot vote, in a discussion as to his own assessment, we will not be able to sit on appeal or revision in connexion with his own assessment; that is quite of a general nature. It is not confined to persons who are interested in a contract or employment. It is perfectly plain that a councillor interested in a contract will be in an awkward position in many ways in respect of the contract even though debarred from voting on it. For one thing, he would get prior information which would not be open to outside competitors and clause 34 will hardly be a sufficient safeguard. He may not be challenged by the other councillors; the councillors may be similarly situated and may be on the Standing Committee and it may consist of a quorum of three. In order to claim the same indulgence, the member who seeks to vote on a contract in which he is interested will not raise an objection and even if the others raise the objection, there is no guarantee that the execution of the contracts and the rates of the contracts will be scrutinised by the Corporation authorities. So long as a Member of the Corporation is interested in a contract, it is somewhat difficult; it may be a difficult and delicate task for the executive of the Corporation and the other councillors to supervise the execution of the contract and the terms of the contract. Naturally, it would be a bad example if you allow business men with contracts to get in, because others will claim the same privilege. Section 34 exists; clause 34 finds a place in the existing Act, and also the other existing enactments. It finds a place in the English Corporations Act and nevertheless, section 12 of the English Corporation Act is enacted. There too, there is a clause like this preventing persons having pecuniary interest from voting, but that does not affect the general question. I have therefore very little to add except to inform the House that this is an amendment which from the business point of view and not merely from the legal point of view, ought to be opposed. I must say Government oppose it."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I also oppose the amendment. I may say at the start that law is no respecter of persons, and here in the Legislative Assembly we are no respecter of persons. This observation, I am called upon to make in view of the fact that the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger introduced his own name and also that of the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser in supporting his amendment. We ought not to be guided by such personal appeals in legislating on a question of principle."

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER:—"There is no personal appeal at all. It was simply put forward as an example."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"This principle is not only as old as 1884 but it is as old as 1782. In England your Excellency will remember the provision relating to Members of Parliament which came into actual question in the year 1917 in the case of Sir Samuel Stuart. He was interested as a partner in that firm of Montague & Co. who had contracts with the Secretary of State for India and the committee of the House of Commons over which the Prime Minister presided, differed over the question whether Sir Samuel Stuart could be deemed to be disqualified or not and they referred the matter to the Privy Council for decision. That is the Statute of 1782. The same argument was advanced then and that case is reported in the 1917 volume. The Lord Chancellor said: 'The mischief guarded against by the Act is the sapping of that freedom and independence by members being admitted to profitable contracts'. Although he attributed no corrupt motives, Sir Samuel was declared to have forfeited his seat in Parliament. 'Law is law and we must administer it', they said. It is a very sound principle and therefore Sir Samuel was declared to have forfeited his seat. In this country the law is even milder in the case of business men than the law in England, and here we may point out, your Excellency, that in the case of

(The President; Mr. Thonger; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.) [11TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Council met at 11 a.m. when the discussion on the Madras City Municipal Bill, 1918 was resumed.

Clause 52.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I now put: clause 52 down to the end of sub-section (1) (b) (ii) be part of the Bill."

Clause 52 down to the end of sub-section (1) (b) (ii) was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Then comes the next sub-clause (iii) and I call upon the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger to move his amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—"Your Excellency, the amendment which I have the pleasure to propose in connexion with section 52 (1) (b) (iii) is that it should be deleted, viz., 'interested in a subsisting contract made with, or any work being done for the corporation except as a shareholder (other than a director) in an incorporated company.' In order to get the correct sense of that clause, I must refer to the first part of section 52 which reads as follows:— 'A person shall be disqualified for election or appointment as a councillor if such a person is at the date of nomination, election or appointment interested in a subsisting contract made with or any work being done for the corporation except as a shareholder (other than a director) in an incorporated company.' May I also draw the attention of the Council to the next clause 53 which says:— 'Subject to the provisions of section 54, the councillors shall cease to be a councillor if he, subject to the proviso to section 52, sub-section (1), acquires any interest in any contract made with or work being done or to be done for the corporation except as a shareholder (other than a director) in an incorporated company.' In order to complete the case, may I refer back for a moment to clause 34 which says:— 'No councillor shall vote on or take part in the discussion of any question coming up for consideration at a meeting of the council or of any standing committee or any committee, if the question is one in which, apart from its general application to the public, he has any direct or indirect pecuniary interest by himself or his partner'. It further goes on to say that the councillor may be prohibited from voting in any matter in which he is believed to be interested. Taking these three sections together, we see first that according to section 52 a person is disqualified if he has any interest in a contract, or under section 53, if he acquires any interest he would cease to be a councillor and in order to further safeguard any risk of a person who, despite these safeguards, still manages to become a councillor, he is debarred from voting on any subject in which he is interested. This clause 34, in the circumstances, seems to me to be of little value, because if a man cannot enter the corporation or cannot stay there by virtue of a contract, he certainly cannot have any opportunity of voting. But I welcome this clause 34 as its presence in the act makes it all the easier for me to propose my amendment. There is a very important principle implied in the clause which I now wish to amend and that principle is that no person shall be permitted to be a councillor for his own peculiar benefit or for the benefit of any firm or company which he represents. This is a principle which no one contests; in fact we all most heartily support it. The only difference is in the application of the principle. It has been argued that one of the reasons for the retention of this clause is that it appears in the old Act and that is perfectly true. But I may mention that it has been honoured in the breach for many years past, because it was felt by the corporation that the presence of leading business men on the corporation was essential and I believe the president of the corporation is prepared to testify to the fact that he never knew of any breach by any business man in connexion with this clause. They have never attempted as far as is known to take personal advantage of their position. It is also observed that we must retain it in the present Municipal Act, but what is suitable to a place like Bombay or Calcutta need not be suitable to Madras. Both Bombay and Calcutta are infinitely larger places than Madras and the firms have contracts, and are thereby debarred from councillorship, it is not going to affect the representation of business men on the council. But the position in Madras is different. Here we have a comparatively small community and if we are going to debar the men who have going to depend upon the smaller men who are very good in themselves, but who are not accused in charge deprecated all references to what took place in the Select Committee, though he himself made a reference; I presume, however, that the proceedings of the Select Committee are not secret and I may adduce an argument from what transferred there in support of my amendment. As Honourable Members are aware, there have been a good many alterations we came to this particular clause which is the real crux of the whole situation. If this clause statute. The business representatives on the Select Committee made a very great stand in connexion with the deletion of this particular clause and I am very pleased to say that we managed in the first instance to persuade the Select Committee that this omission would be a most distinct advantage to the Bill."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"By a majority."

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Thonger; the President; Sir Gordon Fraser.)

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—"Yes, by a majority. It could not be by a minority. We considered that as a victory, not a personal victory, but a victory in the interests of the city of Madras and in connexion with the Corporation Bill. I need hardly say that the fact that we had attained this particular object added zest and interest to the remaining portions of this Bill which, so far as business men are concerned, were of no interest. If this had been turned down, I should have considered the whole Bill in the light of a needless attempt to flog a dead horse; and I should have thought that I should have been better occupied in my own personal affairs than in attending the meetings of the Select Committee. It was on almost the last day of the Select Committee meetings that we were told the legal mind had become perturbed. In the earlier meetings, we had eliminated the principle, but now it was urged that the principle must be stated. Arguments at that stage were unfortunately of no avail and our majority turned into a lamentable minority and the clause was re-inserted. It was useless for the business men to say that we agreed with the principle; instead of wrecking the Bill, we safeguarded it and the safeguard is contained in the section to which I referred. The manner in which this particular question was approached shows very strongly the different points of view of the legal and the business mind. The legal point of view was that the principle must be stated; never mind the result. The business man said, 'no, we need not have the principle stated, we have safeguarded your principle'. The legal man looks at the Tables of Stone 'thou shalt, and thou shalt not'; but the business man says, they are the emblems of principles. He says 'I will regard the principles but I do not want the stones'. It is a struggle between the letter of the law and the spirit of the law and we are told in a certain book: 'the letter killeth but the Spirit giveth life'. The letter of the law will kill this Bill unless my amendment is accepted."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Member will please address the chair."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—"To illustrate my point, might I refer to my own case. There are many persons like myself. Representing, as I do, Messrs. Spencer & Co., we are interested in a contract, whether it is a small or a big contract is of no particular moment, but as a matter of fact it is a contract which runs to some hundred rupees per month only, signed, sealed and delivered. By virtue of this rigid rule, not only I, but every other member of Messrs. Spencer & Co., is debarred from councillorship. Our advice in a thousand and one subjects might be of the utmost importance to the Corporation and yet because we are interested in Rs. 100 per month, the city of Madras cannot be benefited by our advice. Your Excellency, to carry it a little further, suppose my amendment is struck off, leading business men are not eligible for the Corporation and then who is left? I believe the class from which the Corporation is principally recruited is the legal profession. Are we going to leave the business interests of the city in the hands of the law, pure and simple? I have the greatest admiration for the lawyer as a lawyer; but I am of opinion that in business matters the business man is the better man. It has been said that the absence of business man in the Corporation will be no calamity. The person who made that statement can know very little of business men. We admit we occupy an inferior position because we do not advertise ourselves. The biggest business man is probably occupied in business affairs in a small back office in a business house. His name may be unknown though his firm's name will be known. But he himself may probably have the finest brain that ever existed; but still he will be unknown. Take the lawyer. He may be in the first flight or he may be of the very lowest rung; but it is essential to his business that he should create publicity. Therefore the feeling is that the lawyer is the better man of the two. It is very true, Your Excellency, that in times of peace and that kind of thing, the business man does not come before the public eye, but it is in times of economic stress, or the stress of nations that the business man comes to the front. What is the position now in England? Every Government Department of any importance whatever is controlled by business men—munitions, food, railways, shipping, and all these different departments are co-ordinated by that wonderful man, the lawyer, Lloyd George. Mr. Lloyd George is a wonderful man, not because he is a lawyer but because he had the strength of his convictions to break away from the red tape of legal methods because he had the strength of mind to break his tables of stone, because he had the common sense to allow himself to be inspired by business methods and business ideals and surround himself with business men. What is the reward that Madras gives to the business men of the Empire? It says, we have no use for you, we can carry on our Corporation Bill without you. It is implied that business men are a soundly lot and that even safeguards cannot control them and therefore we must debar them from the Corporation altogether."

"Your Excellency, it is a very important question which the Council has to decide to-day and it is put in a few words: are we going to follow the fine example set for us by the British Premier and in approaching a business subject, do it from a business point of view, or are we, on the contrary, in order to state a principle which might just as well be safeguarded, going to ruin our Corporation Bill as a sound business measure."

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER:—"Your Excellency, as I have an amendment on the same clause, which I shall bring up later on, I simply second this amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger in a very few words. He referred to his own personal position. This is the only point at present to which I will refer. Under the clause as it stands, no senior member of my firm would be in a position to do service to the corporation by accepting a seat on the council of the corporation, because we happen to be the agents of a large oil company and we supply oil to the corporation. What the particulars of that contract are, I personally do not

(Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar ; Sir Francis Spring ;
Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Doctor Nayar ;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; the President.) [11TH FEBRUARY 1919.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR :—"Your Excellency, I oppose the amendment though I am not a lawyer."

The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING :—"Your Excellency, I strongly oppose the amendment. I certainly consider that the legislation enunciated by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General is absolutely sound. It prevails, I think, throughout the British Empire and I do not see why in Madras we should make an exception. Much as I should regret to see the Corporation of Madras deprived of the assistance of men of the calibre of some of our leading mercantile and businessmen whose names we are familiar with, yet I think it would be like 'the letting out of water' to surrender the principle that men likely to be interested, that men who are interested, I should say rather, in contracts with the Corporation, or a Board like my own, should not sit at the Board's table."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"My Lord, I was surprised at the warmth with which both the Honourable Members who have proposed and seconded this amendment have stated their case in support of it. My Lord, the principle enunciated in this section which debar members of municipalities from being interested in contracts is a very sound one and I may say I will ask the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger to picture to himself what will happen if a contract is given, say, for the supply of metal and gravel in the Madras Municipality to one of the commissioners. First of all, there are so many conditions as regards the quality of the material. Every one of them will have to be enforced by the Corporation officers—the size of the metal, the places where they should be stored, and its quality. Does the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger seriously suggest that in the discharge of their duties, the Corporation officers will not be influenced by the fact that the contractor is a member of the Corporation? If any proposal like Mr. Thonger's is made, in any municipality in the mufassal or in any district board, I think the members will feel scandalized. It goes to the very root of municipal morality and will seriously jeopardize the purity of the administration. Take again the case of lighting. Assuming that one of the commissioners is interested in street lighting and gets a contract for the supply of the necessary power in the case, say, of electric lighting or in the case of lighting by ordinary kerosene, does the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger say that if the contractor is a member of the Corporation it will be easy for the inspecting staff to perform their duty? Would it be easy for the President to withhold payment of bills for work not done or work indifferently done? or to provide against all other sins of commission and omission for which the contractor may be liable?"

"Considering it from any aspect, I am surprised at the way in which this question is put before this Council. The Hon'ble Mr. Thonger said that this rule was rather observed in the breach than in the observance. I am very sorry to hear of it."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—"No. That is not correct."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"Here is the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar connected with the Corporation for a long number of years who says he does not know of any such thing."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"I was not aware of it myself."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"My Lord, there are two gentlemen who deny that that is the existing state of affairs. I should be surprised if the existing state of things has been correctly stated. It would show that notwithstanding the provision in the statute, it is possible for officers of the Corporation to forget the sound principle of law and it makes it all the more necessary that it should be there in the Act, and not only should it be there, but anybody who is responsible for the violation of this sound rule of conduct should be brought to book. I think, my Lord, that any violation of this rule would land the members of the Corporation in a very serious position and I think on these grounds I must oppose the amendment."

"The Hon'ble Mr. Thonger also stated that he had a contract for Rs. 100 with the Madras Corporation. If he thinks that as between serving in the Corporation and giving his valued services to the people of Madras, Rs. 100 is much more valuable to him, it seems to me that the only alternative is to keep out of the Corporation and have his Rs. 100. Otherwise, I should respectfully point out that the conflict between duty and interest is so well established that even members of the Madras Corporation belonging to business firms should be protected against themselves."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"If I may advise the Council, we can come to an agreement. The position of the Government is quite plain and the case has been clearly and forcibly stated in transparent good faith that the object is the genuine desire to further public interests and for my part I will go further on behalf of the Government and say that nothing is done in order to prevent or even discourage the eligibility of businessmen serving on the Corporation or in any public body; it would not only be unjust, but it would be against public interests. The question on this occasion is a much more limited one. It is whether or not this portion of this clause should stand part of the Bill—whether we should accept the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger. In the first place, we have no representation from the Corporation

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (The President ; Mr. Nurasimha Ayyar ; Mr. Molony ;
Doctor Nayar ; Mr. Runga Achariyar ; Mr. Rajagopala
Achariyar ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; Mr. Thonger ;
Sir Gordon Fraser.)

in favour of such an alteration and really the case rests on the peculiar conditions of Madras. No doubt the conditions of Madras may be less favourable from the standpoint of the Honourable Mover of this proposition than those existing in larger cities like Calcutta and Bombay. But the policy of this provision is universal, it is not confined to larger cities. It is absolutely universal and not only is it universal, but it is ancient and it has the support of all modern authorities. It represents a high standard, a standard, shall I say, of public life to which Madras no less than other cities should conform and I think it would be regrettable if this Council were to come to any other decision on the point."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—"May I offer a word of personal explanation in voting? From what the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger said, an outsider would suppose that such lawyers as vote against this amendment are actuated by selfish motives. The members of the legal profession are as anxious as others about this principle."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY :—"The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar and the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar stated that they were never aware of a case where a commissioner would be disqualified. There has been a case in which a commissioner may be disqualified as in the Bill and the case has been dinned into their ears. It is a case in which we buy oil from the large oil companies, the Standard Oil Company, the Asiatic Petroleum Company and the Burma Oil Company. We began purchasing from all these companies, we began with Best & Co. In one other case, there was a tender for a certain article and that gentleman has been purchasing articles."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—"A word of personal explanation. This instance which the Hon'ble Mr. Molony refers to did not take place when I was a member of the Corporation or a member of the Standing Committee. If I had been, I should have most strongly protested."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"As regards the purchase, is it the purchase for an existing contract or . . ."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"We had better proceed."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Let us go on. The Honourable Member can get the information from the President."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"I should like to know if it is true. The President has stated it as a fact. It did not come up before the Corporation."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—"I simply want to say that the Indian businessmen, not only the lawyers, are opposed to it."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER :—"Your Excellency, you have very kindly put the position so very clearly before the Council that I think I must withdraw my amendment."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the amendment was withdrawn.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"I do not know if the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser wishes to move his amendment No. 33. If it is to be moved at all, it would appropriately be moved here."

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER :—"I would like to move it if only to give me an opportunity of replying to the several remarks which have been made in the previous debate. I recognize there is no chance of this amendment being carried, but two or three remarks have been put forward to which I would like to reply, if Your Excellency would allow me to say a few words of explanation."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Pray go on. The Council will hear you."

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER :—"Remarks have been made both by the Hon'ble the Advocate-General and the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar that this clause affords absolutely no ground for the suggestion that any business people will be kept out. I am afraid that does not hold good, because in Madras a great many business people of the bigger firms represent not hold good. They have certain duties to perform. It would be quite impossible for me to say that I would remain on the Corporation at the present moment and refuse to allow my firm to sell oil on behalf of a company I represent to the Corporation. There is a misunderstanding there. My position is perfectly plain. Under this clause as it stands, I have no right to sit on the Corporation. I have been on the Corporation for three or four years. There again actual facts contradict the remarks of the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar and the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar. This rule has been more honoured in the breach than in the observance not only in my own case, but in the case of other members of Madras firms who have gone on the Corporation. For the last 15 or 20 years simply on the assurance that this clause was a dead letter businessmen have been accepting seats on the Corporation."

The amendment was not put to the Council.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Next is the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger which is similar to the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—"I particularly said that it would be wrecked as a business measure and not as a Bill."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—"My Lord, the Council has heard two businessmen and two lawyers on the subject. I am afraid I am not much of a lawyer and whatever business capacity I might have originally started with has not survived my experience of the Madras Corporation. I am afraid that the expediency on which the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger pleads for this amendment will not survive a close analysis of the conditions existing in the Madras Corporation for the consideration of contracts. Everybody has admitted that on principle the amendment cannot be accepted. It has been accepted in England, it has been accepted in India, it has been accepted everywhere and the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger has himself admitted that on principle the rule, as it stands, is unexceptionable. The expediency which he pleads for is that Madras being an exceedingly small commercial place, there would not be sufficient commercial men to serve on the Corporation if such restrictions are imposed upon them. But, Sir, how many commercial men of standing have in the past cared to tender for the Corporation contracts? My experience has been, for a long number of years, that we could not get any firm of high standing to tender. I have on more than one occasion spoken to many commercial people in the city and asked them why they did not tender and they told me that under the conditions existing in the Madras Corporation they did not care to tender. This rule was one of those things intended. I do not say it has effectively done so, but this is one of those one of those things intended. I do not say it has effectively done so, but this is one of those rules intended to check some of those abuses against which commercial men complain. Safeguards and rules like this are not intended to apply to very respectable persons. The criminal law is not intended for law-abiding persons; it is intended for criminals. The safeguards are intended for the many tenderers who are not very strict in the methods they adopt. Now, if the honourable commercial gentlemen who moved this amendment were to get this safeguard done away with, they will have to compete against unscrupulous contractors who will come into the Corporation and use the advantage which they derive by getting rid of this law. The Hon'ble Mr. Thonger and even the Hon'ble Mr. Fraser think that by keeping the contractor from voting on a particular contract, all the mischief that is likely to be done is prevented and that that is sufficient. But if he knows the inner working of the Corporation as much as I do, that is the least of the mischiefs. A commissioner who is there who is interested in a contract will set up a subterranean machinery for working in his interests and we do not know where it will end. No one has yet been able to fathom the exact nature of this subterranean machinery and he will enlist other commissioners to work on his behalf and it is settled that this influence which he will bring to bear on other commissioners and on the executive officers in the Corporation, in that way corrupting them in the discharge of their functions—it is that mischief which has to be prevented even more than the voting. One vote does not matter after all and an energetic contractor can get half a dozen votes in one afternoon. It is the influence which he will be able to exercise when he is actually on the Corporation that has to be counted. Therefore, Sir, I am afraid that if this safeguard is not taken away, the flood-gates of secret machinations inside the Corporation house will be let loose and innumerable contractors will come and I am afraid that then the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger and the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser will come here and ask for protection against them by the introduction of some rule or clause because these honourable gentlemen will not descend to the methods which others may stoop to and they will find themselves handicapped and it is therefore in the very interests of the respectable commercial men that we want this rule to be retained. I want something more than this rule. If I had been in time here to send notice of my amendments, I would have sent notice of an amendment to make it more stringent. If I cannot do it, all that I can do is to most emphatically object to this amendment. I am quite sure that the Honourable Members who moved this amendment have not exactly understood the nature of the results which might follow; if they want to understand it, they must remove this rule and come in as contractors along with several others and then in a fortnight's time they will understand it. I am afraid that under no condition can we afford to relax the rule. I hope the Council will reject this amendment."

(Mr. Thonger; the President; Mr. Krishna Rao; [11TH FEBRUARY
Mr. Yaqub Hasan; the Advocate-General;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—"The amendment which I wish to propose is that before the word 'presidency' the word 'stipendiary' be inserted. It is amendment No. 31—
'31. In sub-clause (iv) of clause 52 (1) (b) insert before "presidency" the word "stipendiary."'

"It is suggested that if I substitute the word 'salaried' for the word 'stipendiary' the Hon'ble the Advocate-General is prepared to accept it. I move it in that form."

The Hon'ble Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar seconded the amendment.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The word 'salaried' is to be substituted for the word 'stipendiary'."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I think that the provision already inserted is satisfactory and that there is no necessity for the amendment. The effect of this amendment is that honorary presidency magistrates who are nominated for that place will also be eligible to have a seat on the municipal corporation. I am inclined to think that the alternative amendment suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger is more satisfactory than the one now moved. Instead of saying that all honorary presidency magistrates shall be eligible to continue as commissioners, he suggests the following proviso, if amendment No. 31 is lost:—
'provided that an honorary magistrate may offer himself for election, but on appointment or election as councillor shall forthwith resign his position as honorary magistrate, failing which his appointment or election as councillor shall be void.'

"I think that provision is satisfactory. We know that Corporation cases are likely to go up before honorary magistrates and it is not desirable that they should have seats on the Corporation. But when once he is elected, it is open to him to resign his position as honorary magistrate and continue as member of the Corporation. So far as I am concerned, I oppose the amendment notwithstanding the fact that there is no opposition by the Government."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I am opposed to this amendment. This amendment is brought under the impression that, at present, honorary presidency magistrates do not try municipal cases and so there may be no harm if they sit in the Corporation as councillors. But it is to be remembered that honorary magistrates have first-class powers, the same powers as salaried magistrates have. It is only the Chief Presidency Magistrate who sends them certain class of cases; but there is no rule that cases which are tried by stipendiary magistrates should not be sent to honorary magistrates. Some day they may be sent. For example, the number of cases that are tried by the stipendiary magistrates are too many, they are not able to deal with them; suppose some of those cases are sent before honorary presidency magistrates. There is no rule that only certain cases should come before honorary magistrates and questions in which the municipality is interested may also come before the honorary magistrates. So, there is no necessity for qualifying the magistrate with the word 'stipendiary' or 'salaried'. Let all magistrates be excluded from becoming members of the Corporation. There is however one disability. A person who is an honorary magistrate may be willing to be appointed commissioner, but he cannot offer himself for election; if the proposal of the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger is accepted, he may offer himself for election and as soon as he is elected, he shall have to resign his post of honorary magistrate."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Since he began his speech, I had an opportunity of ascertaining that the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger is quite willing to substitute the second amendment for the first amendment. That will meet the view of the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan. The Hon'ble Mr. Thonger may withdraw his first amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—"With your kind permission, I withdraw my amendment No. 31."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the amendment was withdrawn.

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—"I beg to propose the following proviso be added at the end of clause 52 (1): 'provided that an honorary magistrate may offer himself for election, but on appointment or election as councillor shall forthwith resign his position as honorary magistrate, failing which his appointment or election as councillor shall be void.'"

The Hon'ble Mr. A. T. G. M. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"I accept it."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"The mischief is not avoided. The same principle underlies the disqualification with reference to clause (5) of section 52 (1). It says that a person shall be disqualified if at the date of election he is 'already a councillor whose term of office as such will not expire before his fresh election or appointment can take effect.' Not only the fact that he may have to try municipal cases is the underlying objection, but the more serious underlying objection is that as magistrate in the city he will have to decide questions and voters may have to go before these magistrates and also, as a presidency magistrate in the city, he will have influence in the city. It is to avoid that influence that a sitting councillor is prevented from seeking the suffrage. I think the same influence will be there in 11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar;

Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Mr. Siva Rao.)

the case of a person who is a magistrate of the city. Ratepayers have to appear before them in other matters. There are various other minor offences and they will have to come before these magistrates and therefore the influence will be there and the mischief is not avoided by accepting the proposal."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. T. G. M. AHMAD TAMBI MARAKKAYAR:—"Your Excellency, a similar provision is in the Municipal Act in the mufassal. Many municipal councillors are being appointed as honorary magistrates, but they have been exempted from taking up any part in municipal cases. As a matter of fact, for seven years I served both as a municipal councillor and as a honorary magistrate. In the interests of the Corporation itself, if the member of the Corporation is a magistrate, it will be interesting, though he cannot take part in municipal cases, he can at least watch the cases. Here is the existing provision of the District Municipalities Act:—

'In order to be qualified to be appointed a municipal councillor, a person must . . .
(d) not be a municipal councillor or an officer or servant holding office under this Act or an honorary magistrate for the municipal town, unless, in the case of his being an honorary magistrate, the Governor in Council exempts him from the disqualification.'

"This power of exemption is delegated to the Collector and he is exempting councillors in becoming honorary magistrates. I do not see how the interests of the Corporation or the public would suffer by a man having both these appointments. As the case stands at present, I do not see any reason why an honorary presidency magistrate should not stand for election and if elected, he might be called upon to resign his magistrateship."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Your Excellency, I wish to add a few words to what the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar said. We are now trying to improve the law, to amend the law and to put a proper complete code as the City Municipal Act. At present as the law stands, an honorary presidency magistrate cannot be a municipal councillor. That is the existing state of affairs and now an amendment is brought in, the effect of which will be to introduce honorary presidency magistrates into the list of persons eligible for election as councillors. The question naturally arises: what is the need for this move and is it a move in the proper direction? I do not remember having heard at any time that the list of persons eligible to be commissioners is restricted and that we do not find sufficient number of suitable men to be commissioners presidency magistrates are kept out. If anyone has heard any such objection because honorary presidency magistrates are kept out, I will mention something on the contrary to show that the objection, I shall be glad to hear of it. I will mention something on the contrary to show that the move is in a wrong direction. With reference to the provision which my Honourable Friend Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar has brought to the notice of the Council, it has been repeatedly brought to the notice of the public that the combination of these two, the honorary magistrate and the municipal councillor in the mufassal is very undesirable, and that exemption is to be specially sought for. In some cases, with reference to these exemptions I have put so many interpellations about the total number of exemptions showing that the combination of these two officers is not quite desirable. I found out that there were only 18 or 19 exemptions, of which 3 were unfortunately in Salem town and at present there are 4 or 5 of such combinations in Salem town, the rest being distributed all over. Because there is a provision and because people beg at your doors, you have to yield to their importunity and let them hold the two offices. There is no complaint on the score of want of persons. So, in the case of mufassal municipalities it is increasingly recognized that the combination is undesirable and the proper move is to amend the District Municipalities Act to bring it into line with the existing City Municipal Act and not in the opposite direction. This amendment is a move in the wrong direction and I have to oppose this amendment. I am sorry that the Bill is sought to be disfigured by the introduction of a provision of which the public has expressed its unmistakable condemnation."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I strongly oppose this amendment; and before I do so, let me make myself perfectly clear. The issue before us is whether an honorary magistrate shall be eligible for membership of the Corporation. You decide one way or the other, you try to introduce the provision in the District Municipalities Act which says that before he becomes qualified, he ought to get the exemption of the Governor in Council or the Council may decide that he shall be qualified. I am aware that this disqualification is based on the wellknown principle that no person shall combine in himself both the office of prosecutor and judge and as an honorary magistrate of the town, he is called upon to try municipal cases and if he figures as a member of the Corporation, he has to initiate some prosecutions, and is responsible for the prosecutions also and so the disqualification itself rests on some excellent grounds. So far as the merit of this proviso is concerned, it does not make him disqualified, but it says that he shall be an eligible candidate; but it gives him the option if he is appointed to make up his mind to resign the office of magistrate and hold the office of municipal councillor or to continue as an honorary magistrate. What is to become of the poor electorate which has been driven to elect him if he makes up his mind not to resign his office of magistrate? There is no binding obligation on him to resign. The proviso merely says that his election would be void. That means that the ward will be subject to the worries of a fresh election. What is the harm in asking an honorary magistrate to make up his mind to have a full survey of the situation, gauge his position well and make up his mind before he stands whether he shall have

(Mr. Siva Rao ; Doctor Nayar ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; [11TH FEBRUARY 1919.
the President ; Mr. Thonger ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan.]

this or that. If he is defeated as a municipal councillor, he can seek reappointment at the hands of Government. I object to this amendment on the ground that it is unnecessarily vague. It says:—

‘Provided that an honorary magistrate may offer himself for election, but on appointment or election as councillor shall forthwith resign his position as honorary magistrate, failing which his appointment or election as councillor shall be void.’

“If it is unchallenged now, there is the danger of this provision running into the District Municipalities Act and we have to determine what is the stage at which he has to make up his mind,—is it after the chairman of the municipality declares him elected or is it after the Government approve of his election or is it after all the objections are heard and finally disposed of one way or the other? It will lead to endless complications and there will be applications for extension and the applicant may ask for further time to make up his mind. For these reasons, I strongly oppose this amendment. The electorate should not be treated lightly for the convenience simply of this honorary magistrate candidate, but he ought to make up his mind which is better, either the magistrature or the membership of the Corporation.”

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR:—“My Lord, I support the amendment. The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar and the other lawyers who have followed, have curiously enough not quoted any English law. They have at an earlier stage in the discussion quoted profusely what the English practice is. If they had looked up the English law on this point, they would have found that most honorary magistrates in England are members of local bodies as, and it is a common practice there to appoint members of local bodies honorary magistrates. Therefore the English practice is in support of this amendment. The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar made out that an honorary presidency magistrate in the city of Madras will have to deal with election disputes and things like that.”

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—“I did not say election disputes.”

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR:—“If he will read the rules in connexion with honorary magistrates, he will find that none of these cases come anywhere near the honorary presidency magistrate. They are not allowed to sit alone, but in benches. They are allowed to try only such cases as the Chief Presidency Magistrate sends them and the Chief Presidency Magistrate exercises due discretion in the matter. I can tell you as one who was an honorary magistrate for a long time that I never got any municipal cases near me; the only cases that I got were cases of cruelty to animals, committing of nuisance and drunken disorderliness; probably some municipal subordinates may have been implicated in case of drunken disorderliness. Otherwise, there is nothing connected with municipal cases before an honorary magistrate. To penalize a man because he is an honorary magistrate, I do not see what advantage we have from that except that about 30 to 40 gentlemen who are presidency magistrates might be kept out of the list of eligible candidates. The list of eligible candidates will now be a few thousands and to have 30 or 40 men kept out of it, will not be any great advantage. I do not think there will be any grave miscarriage of justice by allowing an honorary magistrate to sit on the Corporation, because he has absolutely nothing to do with municipal cases unless Government are going to alter the existing law.”

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“My Honourable Friend has asked me to say a word as to the position. He was endeavouring to meet the opinion of Honourable Members and to reconcile differences on this point. There was a good deal in what the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar has said. This is a provision which is in the old Act sub-section 4—it says Presidency Magistrate without a qualification.”

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—“Your Excellency, you are perfectly correct in saying that a Presidency Magistrate cannot come up for election, but there is nothing to prevent a councillor from becoming an honorary presidency magistrate.”

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“That is very likely the case. The position of the Government on this amendment is to stick to the Bill as we put it down. My Honourable Colleague who is in charge of the Bill proposes to adhere to the Bill as it stands in this respect. He was anxious to meet and endeavour to reconcile differences; but on the whole, the balance of matter.”

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—“Does it mean that the proposition of the Hon'ble Mr. Thonger is not to be accepted?”

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“No. The attitude of the Government is that they are against adding this proviso.”

The amendment to add the proviso was put and lost.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“That would take us down to the words ‘presidency magistrate’ in clause (4) of section 52. I do not think that there is any further amendment on this clause or on any other clause of this section. If I am correct no amendment is to be moved in regard to this clause.”

Clause 52 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; Mr. Thonger ;
Sir Gordon Fraser ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar ;
the President ; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

Clause 53.

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—“I withdraw amendment No. 34 standing in my name.”

With the permission of His Excellency the following amendment was withdrawn:—“Omit sub-clause (i).”

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER:—“My amendment No. 35 ‘Omit sub-clause (d) of clause 53 (1)’ goes out.”

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the amendment was withdrawn.

The Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser:—“I withdraw amendment No. 36.”

With the permission of His Excellency the President the following amendment was withdrawn:—

“36. For sub-clause (d) of clause 53 (1) substitute the following:—
‘subject to the proviso to section 52, sub-section (1) acquires any interest in any contract made with or work being done or to be done for the Corporation except as a shareholder (other than a director) in an incorporated company, unless such interest is declared at the time of acquisition, and such councillor shall not speak or vote on any question relating to any contract or work in which he is so interested.’”

Clause 53 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clauses 54 to 62.

Clauses 54 to 62 were allowed to stand part of the Bill.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—“Section 55 may be reserved till the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser's amendment on section 413 is settled. That section may have to be remodelled if the amendment of the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser is accepted.”

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“We must go clause by clause. The Bill will have to be redrafted if earlier provisions are affected by any later alterations by the Council.”

Clauses 54 to 62 were allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 63.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—“I do not propose amendment No. 37 in my name.”

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the following amendment was withdrawn:—

“Explanation, line 2.—Substitute the word ‘regulations’ for the word ‘rules’ and omit the words ‘Governor in’.”

Clause 63 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 64.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—“I wish to say a word with regard to clause 64.”

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“There is no notice of an amendment.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—“Then I wish to oppose it. I object to this clause. This defines undue influence. It says: ‘Every person who threatens any voter or candidate with injury to his person, reputation or property, or to the person or reputation or any one in whom he is interested with intent . . . publishes statements which he knows to be false and which materially affect the candidate or his election . . . shall be punished with imprisonment of either description which may extend to six months or with fine or with both.’ The portion of it to which I raise objection is the one which refers to publishing statements which he knows to be false and which materially affect the candidate or his election. This clause is the one to which I raise strong objection. It is very vague. It says that if any statement is published, which is false and which materially affects the candidate or his election, it is an offence; it may be that many statements may be made at any date or his election, it may refer to his politics, to his caste, to his private character; it may refer to anything. We do not know what statements materially influence elections. It seems to me that we shall be letting in the investigating officer to undertake a roving inquiry into all the statements made at an election. I was looking up the corresponding provision in the Corrupt Practices Act which relates to parliamentary elections which probably afforded the foundation for this amendment. The section there raises a definite issue and says: ‘Any person who before or during an election knowingly publishes a false statement of the withdrawal of a candidate at such election for the purpose of promoting or procuring the election of another candidate, shall be guilty of an illegal practice.’ The corresponding provision of the English Act relates to false statements that a particular candidate has withdrawn from the contest thereby influencing the election of another candidate.”

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [11th FEBRUARY 1919. the President; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.]

That is an entirely different matter. But this section says: 'Any person who publishes statements which he knows to be false and which materially affect the candidate or his election.' It is very wide and certainly much wider than is warranted by the language of the English Act. It is likely to produce a great deal of acerbity even after the elections if defeated candidates are permitted at elections to bring up points on the statements made, which might be alleged to have materially affected the election. I would therefore suggest, my Lord, that this should be omitted."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"You are suggesting that the whole section should be omitted?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"No, only a portion."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I have to inquire whether the Honourable Member is suggesting the deletion of the whole clause or an amendment to omit a portion of the clause. If he is suggesting an amendment, no notice has been given of it, but if he is opposed to the whole clause, I can understand it."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"It is rather late in the day. There is no notice of an amendment. It goes to the root of the provisions of this clause and it is rather late to raise it. I should say that the Honourable Member should vote against the passing of the whole provision."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"That is what I am doing. I think I am within my rights in objecting to a particular portion of a clause. I would request Your Excellency to put that clause separately."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I have nothing to say except that at present the motion before the Council is whether clause 64 is to stand or not."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"He opposes clause 64 (b) (ii)."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"That may be his intention, but the motion before the Council is whether clause 64 stand part of the Bill or not."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"Your Excellency may be pleased, as your Excellency has got the power, to take clause (a) and clause (b) separately."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"That is in fact permitting an amendment of which no notice has been given. I am quite willing to give expression to the views of the Council, but it is rather a late stage to have an amendment of this character and I do not see any provision in these rules to accept that. It is best for the Honourable Member and those who agree with him to vote against the whole clause."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"We are not against the whole clause but only against clause (b) (ii)."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I raised the whole question yesterday and Your Excellency suggested that such a rule should not be rigidly observed."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I do not wish to be understood to say that we have nothing to say on the merits. But I feel bound to point out that if we are going to put this sub-clause by sub-clause separately thereby getting rid of the obligation that notice should be given of amendments, the chances are with a Bill of 418 sections that even the three weeks which the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar expressed as a reasonable period will be far exceeded. I put it on general grounds: Is the Council prepared to say that, if any Honourable Member who has not given notice of an amendment discovers a material mistake and now asks for his idea being given effect to, it could put a particular clause, sub-clause by sub-clause or put it line by line so that the particular thing which he objects to might come out separately. I venture to submit for the consideration of the Council, of all Honourable Members, that this Bill has been before the public for a sufficient length of time, for the statutory period, and it was open to the Honourable Member to have read it and given notice of an amendment. He might have given notice of it yesterday and asked His Excellency's special permission for moving it to-day. Now when this clause is proposed to be put, we are asked to discuss the merits of a particular bit of it."

"Proceeding to the merits, I may say that this thing was discussed in the Select Committee. Originally, clause (b) stated 'spreads rumours which he knows to be false.' The Hon'ble Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar will bear me out that we considered this was far too elastic and likely to give trouble and we considered that the expression 'publishes statements which he knows to be false' would be a better thing. It is a definite thing. If he knows his statement to be false and if it would materially affect the candidate and thereby prevent the free exercise of the discretion of the voter, then the man is guilty. I venture to say that there is nothing very harmful in this. Why is there this anxiety to protect persons who publish false statements which materially affect candidates and which thereby prevent voters from exercising their discretion correctly in the matter of voting? On the merits, thing, of the wider issues: are we going to use this particular device of putting a clause, sub-clause by sub-clause or adopt the additional device of putting it line by line so as to obviate notice being given of amendments. Unless notice is given, there is no opportunity for Government to consider them and Honourable Members would have no opportunity of considering them. I object to any change and on behalf of Government I press for clause 64, as it is, standing part of the Bill."

11th FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Krishna Rao; the President; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.)

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"With regard to the point of order raised by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar, may I draw Your Excellency's attention to Rule 23 of the Council Rules at page 90. It is in accordance with rule 23 that we have to give notice of amendments."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"That is on motions generally."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Rule 48 at page 94 expressly states: 'Any member wishing to propose an amendment affecting the substance of a Bill shall send a copy of the proposed amendment to the Secretary in accordance with rule 23.' It expressly refers to rule 23 and that is why I now refer Your Excellency to rule 23. Rule 23 says: 'Members who wish to make any motion at any meeting must give notice of their intention at the next preceding meeting or must send such notice in writing to the Secretary at least six clear days before the day fixed for the meeting at which they intend to make the motion. Provided that the President may, at his discretion, permit a motion to be made of which such notice has not been given.'

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Will the Honourable gentleman finish reading rule 48?"

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Rule 48 says: 'and the Secretary shall enter the same in the printed statement of business prepared under rule 7; but it shall not be necessary to give previous notice of amendments of a purely verbal character or of amendments consequential upon, or moved in respect of, amendments which have been carried.' That points out only the rights of members to move amendments without notice so long as they are of verbal character or consequential upon amendments which are carried. I respectfully submit that rule 23, which applies to this motion and others, permits the President at his discretion to allow an amendment to be made without notice. There is a general discretion given to the President."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I never questioned Your Excellency's discretion in the last resort."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman who moved this was quite content to vote against that clause. The question does not arise."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"The question that the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao mooted was whether clause 64 (b) (ii) is not too wide and too dangerous. At first I also thought that it was very wide and might really render elections difficult because printers will be afraid of printing circulars issued by candidates, because they might be thought dangerous or affecting elections. On subsequent thought, it strikes me that there are points for and against, and I think if it is sufficiently important, I would point out to the Council one easy method by which the amendment can be put. I would refer to rule 70."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Member need not refer to that."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"At the present stage, the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao's point has been sufficiently brought before the House to rouse the attention of Government. If in the meanwhile Government think that the evils are so great, we might get an amendment from the Government side."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The motion before the Council is that clause 64 be added to the Bill."

Clause 64 was then allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clauses 65 to 68.

Clauses 65 to 68 were allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 69.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I do not move amendment No. 38."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the following amendment was withdrawn:—

"In sub-clause (b) substitute 'fifteen' for 'seven'."

Clause 69 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clauses 70 to 77.

Clauses 70 to 77 were allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 78.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar is not here. I take it he is not prepared to move his amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I shall move it on his behalf."

[11TH FEBRUARY 1919.

"It will be seen that what is proposed to be done by the present clause is to give power to the commissioner to sanction any estimate the amount of which does not exceed Rs. 10,000 and then, when the amount exceeds Rs. 10,000 but does not exceed Rs. 50,000, the sanction of the standing committee is required. My first amendment relates to the commissioner's jurisdiction. The present section in the existing Act, the section corresponding to this appears as section 86 of the Act: what it says is: 'With respect to the making of contracts under or for the purposes of this Act, the following provisions shall have effect namely, (c) no contract (other than an agreement for the acquisition of immovable property) which will involve an expenditure exceeding two thousand rupees and not exceeding ten thousand rupees shall be made by the President unless the same has been previously approved by the standing committee'; so that while the present power of the President who is practically all-in-all in the corporation, only extends up to Rs. 2,500, the power that is sought to be given by the present provision extends it up to Rs. 10,000. What is the spirit of this amendment I cannot really understand. In fact it is proposed to adopt the principle of extending the principles of local self-government in the present Act. The body that is generally in charge of the administration of the municipality is the corporation. There is need for delegating its functions in some cases and therefore it has been provided in clause 23 that whenever those functions are exercised by the bodies to whom those powers are delegated, it shall not be exercised by the corporation, except by means of clause 24 which provides for resolutions being passed. There is an express prohibition to the council exercising the powers which are delegated; once they are delegated, there is an end of it and it is mostly delegated by the Act itself. Under these circumstances, the question is whether the power of the new commissioner appointed under the new Bill should be considerably enhanced or should be enhanced at all. There may be very good grounds for arguing that under the new Act his powers ought not to be extended further. But however, I do not myself press it to that extent. I only want to fix the limit at Rs. 2,500 instead of Rs. 10,000. One has only to go through the expenditure side of the budget of the Madras Corporation to be satisfied that my amendment is absolutely essential and necessary. I find that in the main works which have been sanctioned as special works by the Madras under-ground drainage and other similar works when these are taken out, we find that generally almost all the works relating to the several branches of administration of the Madras Municipality come within the limit of Rs. 10,000. In fact, I made a calculation of the several schedules given in Appendix II (A) to the Administration Report for the year 1917-18. Appendix II (A) gives us the expenditure on each of these. There are about 13 schedules and the various schedules are given according as the expenditure relates to one branch of administration or another. We find that except in the case of materials supplied, the supply of kerosene oil and other substances, it is found that very few cases exist in which the work is to be done by the municipality for over Rs. 10,000. Very few there are; it came to—as I calculated it—about 10 or 15 instances in the year. The total expenditure of the municipality is about 40 and odd lakhs. When money to be disbursed towards sinking funds is taken away out of this, the establishment takes away a lot of money and the rest is distributed for a lot of works, it is found that there are very few works which cost more than Rs. 10,000 for which contracts will have to be entered into. As I said, the principle of this Bill is not to question the power of the delegated authority once it is delegated. That is a peculiar provision. Ordinarily the person that delegates power is entitled to revoke the power, but the provision made here in the interests of the corporation is, the powers entrusted to the standing committee and the commissioner, once there is a delegation made up to a certain limit, it shall not be ordinarily interfered with. Under these circumstances, we must keep the limit of the extent to which the commissioner or the standing committee may go within reasonable limits, reasonable compared with the items of expenditure of the municipality. If by one stroke of the pen almost the whole works relating to the corporation are taken away out of the hands of the council and the standing committee, I do not think my Lord, that it is a proper provision. I come from the mufassal and I am not acquainted with all the details of municipal administration in Madras. Whatever it be, on the main principles of the Bill, seeing that once delegation is made, it is not to be interfered with, it is absolutely necessary that the delegation is kept within limits proportionate to the works to be ordinarily undertaken by the corporation; and I think Rs. 2,500 is a fair limit which will show that most of the routine work as well as the ordinary minor work will have to be undertaken by the commissioner only. Extraordinary powers are given by the Government to the commissioner on emergency occasions and even there a limit ought to have been put. In emergency cases, the commissioner may incur any expenditure. We discussed his delegation powers yesterday. It is only very proper that a limit should be placed at Rs. 2,500. There is no reason given by the Select Committee for having gone from Rs. 2,500 to Rs. 10,000 by this amendment. It is absolutely essential to limit it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—“ Your Excellency, all that I can say is that the Select Committee gave a great deal of thought to this particular matter and as I hope to show, if the Honourable Member would take the whole framework of this particular thing, he would see why exactly it was put like this. Under the law as it now stands, there is really no restriction on the powers of the President to sanction estimates, entering into contracts and incurring any expenditure. In the framework of this Bill the Select Committee drew that distinction. I am explaining what the Select Committee did. I want the council to know the whole thing, because several other amendments are coming up and it would be an advantage to have the whole thing presented clearly. What the Select Committee did was; it drew a distinction between estimates being sanctioned and subsequent stages. When an estimate for a work is prepared, whether that expenditure is to be sanctioned or not, to whom the work is to be given—those things do not arise. There are three stages; according to the value of the work; we say that if the estimate is up to Rs. 10,000 the commissioner may sanction it, which means not that the commissioner will go straight on and spend that amount, but he has to satisfy himself that it is suitable, that the rates are reasonable; it is in fact a thing which has to be considered as a reasonable item of expenditure provided funds can be found for it. That is the first thing. We divided it into three stages. We gave power to the commissioner up to Rs. 10,000 and then from Rs. 10,000 to Rs. 50,000 we gave power to the standing committee; if the estimate exceeds Rs. 10,000 but is under half a lakh, that will go to the standing committee. It does not mean that the standing committee will forthwith embark on the work or incur any expenditure. If it exceeds Rs. 50,000, up to 2½ lakhs, it goes to the council, and if it exceeds 2½ lakhs, it goes to the Local Government—the idea being that for very large works exceeding 2½ lakhs, it is advisable that the expert advisers of the Government Public Works Department should scrutinize the estimates. That is why there are these stages so far as estimates are concerned. Similarly we have provided three stages in regard to contracts; up to Rs. 10,000 we say that the commissioner may enter into contracts and above Rs. 10,000 up to Rs. 50,000 the standing committee may enter into contracts and above Rs. 50,000 the council may enter into contracts. The Local Government do not come into play because they have nothing to do with entering into contracts. The provision in regard to incurring actual expenditure is contained in clauses 154 and 155. Clause 154 says: 'The Commissioner shall, on or before the tenth day of December each year, prepare and submit to the standing committee a budget containing a detailed estimate of income and of expenditure for the ensuing year, and if it is in his opinion necessary or expedient to vary taxation or to raise loans, shall submit his proposals in regard thereto.' Clause 155 says:—

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—“ The section says having regard to all the requirements of the Act.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—"Yes. I am quite prepared to concede that the final incurring of expenditure is in the hands of the council, to lay down on what lines expenditure should be incurred. Probably there is no difference of opinion between the Honourable Member and ourselves but I fear the Honourable Member has some idea that the commissioner sanctioning an estimate somehow or other commits the corporation to that extent. I submit he does not."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Why, may I ask?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARYA:—"How does the standing committee by sanctioning an estimate between Rs. 10,000 and Rs. 50,000 commit the corporation to that expenditure? The thing should be provided in the budget. Any work may come up for consideration during the year. Estimates are prepared from time to time as the need arises and section 157 says: 'The council may refer the budget estimate back to the standing committee for further consideration and re-submission within a specified time, or adopt the budget estimate or any revised budget estimate submitted to it, either as it stands, or subject to such alteration as it deems expedient: provided that the budget estimate finally adopted by the council shall make adequate and suitable provision for each of the matters referred to in clauses (a) and (b) of section 155, sub-section (2)'. During the course of the year, works come up from time to time and estimates are prepared and then the powers of sanction of the different classes of officers are regulated by that section—up to Rs. 10,000 by the commissioner, from Rs. 10,000 to Rs. 50,000 by the standing committee, above 50,000 and up to 2½ lakhs by the council and above 2½ lakhs by the Local Government. It is however perfectly open for the council to decide on the advice of the standing committee what expenditure shall be incurred in the ensuing year and to choose those works; what the sanctioned estimates are and they may take up those estimates. It may be that they take up the estimate of a work or expenditure as sanctioned by the commissioner, or as sanctioned by the standing committee or a third work for which the council has sanctioned the estimate. My point is that the sanctioning of the estimate by the commissioner or the standing committee or the council or the Local Government does not commit the corporation to any financial liability on account of that work unless that thing is provided in the budget. And in regard to the budget, we have a specific provision: there is a section under which it is open to the council to frame regulations to regulate its course of action. There are a number of other sections which come under the schedules that payment of any sum out of municipal funds can be made only when it is covered by a budget grant.

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—" My Lord, there seems to be a certain amount of misapprehension as regards the exact scope of the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar's amendment. Honourable Members will notice that in section 77, there is the word 'contracts', the heading above section 77 is 'contracts'. The first section 78 says: 'The commissioner may sanction any estimate, the amount of which does not exceed Rs. 10,000.' The substantial point raised by this amendment and the amendment to section 80 which is in terms an amendment to section 78 is this: what are the financial powers of the president, spending is tired."

6 60

THE MADRAS CITY MUNICIPAL BILL, 1918.

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Molony ; the President ; [11TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Venkatapati Raju ; Doctor Nayar.)

what are the financial powers of the standing committee and what are the financial powers of the council? In the earlier sections it was laid down that these powers are exclusive, that the statutory powers given to the president cannot be over-riden by the standing committee and similarly that whatever financial powers are given to the standing committee cannot be interfered with by the Council. It therefore comes to this: if a contract is entered into by the president, he can do so under the scheme of this Act where the estimate is less than Rs. 10,000. We are not dealing with the technical sanction or the estimate; we are dealing with the substantial question of the financial powers up to which the president can exercise authority. That limit has been fixed by section 78 and section 80 which deal with the substantial question of contracts and the financial power of the president is fixed at Rs. 10,000. Similarly with reference to the standing committee, the limit is Rs. 50,000 and any estimate which exceeds Rs. 50,000 and in reference to which a contract has to be entered into, will have to come before the council. The substantial question which Honourable Members have to consider is whether these limits are proper whether it is necessary to surrender to the standing committee these large powers of entering into contracts and sanctioning estimates. The Hon'ble Mr. Molony was dealing with the question of sanctioning and looking into estimates. That is merely technical sanction and I am not much concerned with it."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY:—"As a point of order, might I suggest that the Honourable Member is going into the question of contracts? This is dealing with the estimates for spending money and sanctioning details of what the corporation has sanctioned."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I have not criticised the scope of the Honourable Member's observations. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar placed the whole point and pointed out that the point upon which the council should vote is whether Rs. 2,500 is to be substituted for Rs. 10,000 in relation to estimates and not contracts."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I do not understand the position taken up by the Hon'ble Mr. Molony; I do not know whether he says that the mere sanctioning of the estimates up to Rs. 10,000 should be left to the president independently of the question of entering into contracts for the same amount. Under the scheme of the Act, both are dealt with together in sections 78 and 80 and if the Hon'ble Mr. Molony says that he would be prepared to concede this power to the commissioner merely for sanctioning, leaving the question of contracts for the same amount to be considered by the standing committee, that would be a different question. As I understand the scheme, and the provisions of sections 78 and 80, it seems to me that it is identically the same thing. If the president has the power of sanctioning estimates he has the power to carry this out by entering into contracts."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"So far as this amendment is concerned, it deals with estimates; and the council has no power to go beyond it. This clause deals with estimates and estimates alone."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU:—"Your Excellency, we are under the impression that we are liberalising the Act. This is one of the provisions which I say is a retrograde step. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar told us more than once that a commissioner is an independent or a semi-independent person. If he is an independent person, he is not under our control. The Honourable Member in charge is perfectly right in saying that after all, we are making sanction of an estimate; that has nothing to do with actual expenditure. But I respectfully submit to the council that it is only the thin end of the wedge, because if we read the latter provision, we will understand that when the amount exceeds Rs. 10,000 but does not exceed Rs. 50,000 the sanction of the standing committee shall be required. If it is merely sanctioning estimates why is anybody's sanction necessary? In section 80 it is specially provided 'you will obtain the sanction of the estimate where you have the power to do it.' No one would undergo the trouble of securing the sanction unless the person has the power to provide for it. That is the reason why they state, you can pass the estimate where you have a right to enter into contracts under section 80. Therefore the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar gave notice of amendments to both sections 78 and 80. Unless you consider all these before you pass it, it will be meaningless and it will be anomalous to say that we must obtain the sanction of the standing committee with reference to Rs. 50,000 whereas we need not do it in regard to Rs. 10,000. In considering this provision, we will have to consider the whole thing, section 78 and section 80."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR:—"There has been a great deal of confusion, my Lord, in this amendment which is unfortunate; but I will confine myself to the actual amendment under discussion. That is purely so far as estimates are concerned. I entirely agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Molony that there is no object in reserving sanctioning of estimates to the corporation or the standing committee. In the past, estimates have all come up before the standing committee meeting, they were sanctioned en bloc. Checking estimates is a thing which only a member with some training and experience of the Public Works Department can do. Actual passing of the estimates is a matter of very small importance. Personally, the only thing I looked into when any estimates came before me, was to see whether it was covered by the budget grant, whether there was a sum of money to meet that expenditure. I certainly have no objection to the passing of estimates not only up to Rs. 10,000 but estimates up to one lakh by the commissioner and relieving the other bodies entirely of the purely technical task of checking the figures. Other financial powers are quite different and I will come to them when we deal with section 80."

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Sir Francis Spring ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; the President ; Mr. Krishna Rao ; Mr. Rama Ayyangar.)

The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING:—"Many non-official members have spoken and I may be allowed to say a few words, as a practical man familiar with matters of this kind, budgets and and so on, estimates for the last thirty or forty years. The point that has been missed, the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar tried to make it clear—but I do not know if he has succeeded in making it clear—to the lawyer members is that the real fundamental control of the Council is exercised through the budget. Unless and until any expenditure has been embodied in the budget, neither the commissioner nor the standing committee has power to do anything practical in regard to it. He may sanction the estimate, but that does not mean sanctioning the expenditure. It ought to be thoroughly understood and made clear in the Act that this is what really is intended. Clause 78 should have begun as the corresponding clause, if I am not mistaken, in my own Act begins; 'subject to provision in the budget made therefor, the commissioner may sanction any estimate up to Rs. 10,000.' Had these words been inserted they would have made the whole thing quite clear."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"If that is in order, I second it."

The Hon'ble Yaqub HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I am opposed to this amendment. I think it is misunderstood. We have to see what the present practice is. I have served on the standing committee for several years, but the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar has not served and so he does not know what the routine is. The routine is this; that estimates are taken round to members in several boxes. We never look at them, no one looks at them and in the standing committee meeting when the estimates come up, the president says 'here are the estimates, please pass them' and everything is passed. There used to be one member of the standing committee, a contractor who is dead now who used to take interest in some of these estimates and used to ask 'why is the cost of stock brick given here at Rs. 20 a thousand, while it is sold in the bazaar for Rs. 18 a thousand?' He used to higggle with the president but the other members used to consider it a waste of time. The thing is this: nobody is competent to enter into the question of estimates. The president is competent and we have to take his opinion and we have to leave it to his discretion. This section 78 is a vast improvement on the existing law. It says that above Rs. 10,000 the standing committee must sanction. There will be discrimination made; all estimates up to Rs. 10,000 will be passed by the commissioner and above Rs. 10,000 will be passed by the standing committee and then the standing committee will give more attention to it. At present, an estimate comes for Rs. 100 and another comes for a lakh and both are treated alike. When estimates which are really important will be placed before the standing committee, then they will give more attention to it. Only I think this provision is a vast improvement and the standing committee will give attention to estimates which require attention. Considering what amount of business is done in the corporation, if you take all the estimates above Rs. 2,500 to the standing committee, you will be wasting the time of the standing committee and in practice the standing committee will not give any attention to them. Small details up to Rs. 10,000 might be left to the commissioner."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"May I take vote?"

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"May I move an amendment suggesting Rs. 5,000."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I withdraw my support to the amendment so far as section 78 is concerned."

The Hon'ble Mr. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I wish to say a few words."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I think really we must close the discussion; we have had a lot said."

The Hon'ble Mr. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I have no objection to the discussion being closed, but I have a right of reply. The Hon'ble Dr. Nayar, the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan and the Honourable Member in charge have raised questions which are not quite relevant and the Hon'ble Mr. Molony has raised a particular point to which I shall refer later on. So far as sections 154 and 155 go, it is better to see the wording of those sections. They refer to detailed estimates of the budget, of receipts and expenditure. There is really no necessity at that stage when the budget is ordinarily brought before the council of estimating in detail for every work there. I have no doubt there may be cases in which estimates or rather complete estimates, are completely drawn up and placed before the council and in such cases re-consideration may not arise. In the case of general expenditure, out of 33 lakhs, except in a few cases, about 23 or 25 lakhs will have to be left entirely for tentative proposals; for example metalling and gravelling can be approximately estimated; but it cannot be that an estimate which is to be prepared later could be made complete at that stage. However, a provisional estimate of expenditure and receipts is totally made and I have no doubt there may be some specific detailed estimates which require no further sanction. But as it happens in the local boards and municipalities, and I think it would be so in the case of the Madras corporation, in the case of such estimates as are provisionally made and which could not be detailed, the matter is not taken to be sanctioned as a complete estimate at that stage, so much so that when the work is taken on hand the district board engineers, the municipal engineers and other engineers elsewhere prepare them in detail and they are sent for further consideration by the council. These are again passed at a later time. If in the case of these estimates which are prepared in detail at the time of the budget 11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] *(The President; Mr. Ranga Achariyar;

Mr. Rama Ayyangar.)*

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"That the Honourable Member has not to address his remarks to. We have had a considerable discussion on the question already in the opening remarks earlier. I am not contesting the right of the Honourable Member. He will be allowed, but I want to remind the Council that we have already devoted considerable amount of time to this subject. We will now adjourn."

The Council then adjourned for a short interval.

The Council 're-assembled at 3 p.m.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I wish to move under rule 70 of the Business Rules for a temporary suspension of the rules, so that we may go back to sections 78 and 79. There is a real difficulty which has occurred to many of us, and it will not do for us when we are now legislating to leave it in that undefined condition. Therefore, I feel it necessary that we should go back to sections 78 and 79. I formally move for this purpose that the rules be suspended."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—“ Which rules does the Honourable Member refer to? We must have a definite reason. We have now passed those sections. If we find that the judgment of the Council conflicts with what we have already done, that would be a reason for doing so. The Honourable Gentleman's reason is purely hypothetical.”

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—" May I explain ? It has been explained to the Council that section 78 means merely technical sanction—sanctioning merely a pile of papers— and does not mean anything else. There is no other section which gives power to sanction even one rupee expenditure. If section 78 is not the section which gives the Commissioner power to spend any money, there is no other section which gives him that power. There is a schedule which gives him power to pay certain sums, but this will not come under any of these scheduled items. I therefore think that if section 78 is to mean what is now attributed to it by the Honourable Member in charge, the Commissioner will be left without power to incur any expenditure. That is not a state of things which we should encourage. Therefore we have to consider the matter carefully. If section 78 is to mean what the Hon'ble Mr. Molony and the Honourable Member say it means there will be no power for the Commissioner to spend one rupee."

The amendment was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar demanded a poll which was taken with the following result:—

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"That does not arise on clause 78 wherever else it arises. There is really nothing for the Council to consider. If the Honourable Gentleman wants any point to be seriously considered, he may communicate privately with the Honourable Member responsible for this Bill. Let us go on with our consideration of the Bill. My Honourable Friends and the Government and everybody wish to co-operate in making the Bill workable. Let us go on with our consideration of the Bill. If the decision of the Council creates any deadlock, my Honourable Friend will not hesitate to bring it to the notice of the Council. I think we will just go on with the consideration of clause 80. I call upon the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar to move amendment No. 42."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—" I beg to move the following amendment :—

‘In sub-clause (c) of clause 80 (2) substitute “ Rs. 2,500 and 10,000 ” for “ Rs. 10,000 and 50,000 ” respectively.’

“ Your Excellency, at this stage it is necessary to briefly mention the position that we have come to. Clause 77 says ‘ The Council may determine either generally for any class of cases or specially for any particular case, whether the Commissioner shall execute works by contract or otherwise.’ There is, as far as I know, section 80 which says ‘ The Council may enter into and perform all such contracts as they may consider necessary or expedient for carrying into effect the provisions of this Act.’ So that, entering into contracts is a stage which comes in after the estimates and sanction. This entering into contracts alone is covered by section 80. The preparation of estimates and the giving of sanction will have to come in in the budget. There is no other provision for it as far as I see the scope of the present Bill. But in the budget, though some grants may be specifically made, others are not made as grants; they are only lump provisions made. In respect of them, except where the Council proposes to give them on contracts, it looks as if there is no provision for sanctioning any expenditure by the Commissioner or the Standing Committee otherwise than by contracts. In the case of contracts, this comes in and limits are fixed. I want that even in such cases the limits must be modified as I propose in my amendment. The effect of it will be that in a case in which the contract is entered into if the expenditure to be incurred exceeds Rs. 2,500, I want the Select Committee to look into it, and I want the Council to look into it when it is over Rs. 10,000. This means, as I have already pointed out, their attention will be drawn only to very few cases. Between Rs. 2,500 and Rs. 10,000, there will be 50 or 60 instances. Above Rs. 10,000 and up to Rs. 50,000 there may be about 6 or 7. These must be within the competence of the Council. The Corporation must have the right to judge of all cases where the value is above Rs. 10,000. Practically, according to the present scheme, this is the only section as construed by the Honourable Member in charge which substantially enables the Council or the Commissioner or

The amendment was lost, 10 voting for and 25 against.
 Clause 79 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 80.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARYAR :—“I propose to move amendment No. 41. In clause 80 (1) for the word ‘they’ in the second line read ‘it.’”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIAR:—"The Government accept it."
The amendment was put and agreed to.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Does the Honourable Gentleman move amendment No. 42?"

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—“That refers to contracts.”

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar; the President; Doctor Nayar; [11TH FEBRUARY 1919
Mr. Ranga Achariyar.]

and passed by the municipal corporation, it is sought to be said that the estimates can be sanctioned by the president to any extent on the scale laid down by the corporation, I have no objection. It is not stated in any section of the whole Bill that the budget shall finally conclude the officers of the department and it cannot actually conclude; something of it has to be revised and removed. As regards the other point that was raised by the Hon'ble Mr. Molony that in fact he found it necessary to take it over and over again either to the Council or to the standing committee for sanction, I quite agree with him that it ought to be avoided. Therefore it is that I want to place the limit within which he need not go before them. I have no objection to raise the limit in regard to estimates already sanctioned unless there is an extraordinary revision of estimates, so that in the opinion of the commissioner or the standing committee, their sanction has to be obtained. But where there is only a general estimate, I think the first time the estimate is sanctioned it will have to go before the body which will have the financial power to sanction it. They propose separate limits to the various bodies. In the case of estimates completely sanctioned by the Council, it need not have to go before the Council but in other cases they will have to go. I want that in case of estimates below Rs. 2,500 the commissioner should be entitled to pass even new ones. The position is absolutely clear to everybody. The present provision will commit the corporation to expenditure on the items sanctioned by the commissioner, though it is not sanctioned in the budget. I submit I cannot understand the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar withdrawing his support of the amendment or the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar saying that he would fight the case out in another section. I submit the amendment should be accepted."

The amendment was put and lost.

Clause 78 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 79.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"I have the honour to move amendment No. 40— in clause 79 (1) substitute Rs. 10,000 for Rs. 50,000. All my arguments to amendment No. 39 which, I urged, will be applicable to this case. I want that the power of the standing committee in these matters must be limited to Rs. 10,000 and therefore anything that has to be placed before the council must be of the value of Rs. 10,000. As I have shown, there are very few works over Rs. 10,000 that have to be undertaken."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Sub-clause (2) of section 78 has already decided the point which in effect decides that the sanction of the standing committee shall be required. It seems to me that it is rather inconsistent with that clause which has been passed that the standing committee should sanction estimates between Rs. 10,000 and Rs. 50,000. The report shall be laid by the standing committee to the Council and the Council shall reject or approve of it."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"Section 79 refers to new projects which are framed."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"I think not. The question regarding the contract comes under section 80."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"Where the entire estimated cost exceeds Rs. 50,000, it is not a mere estimate that the section refers to."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—"The question whether work is to be undertaken or not comes in here."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"If the Honourable Member will refer to section 80, clause (3), then will come the question of contracts. Then we have the second stage of the proceedings. I do not know, I may be wrong."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"May I draw your Excellency's attention to clause (6)? You may either reject a project or consider a project. Sanctioning estimates is one stage, sanctioning a project is another stage and sanctioning contracts is a third stage."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"If you will allow me to say in clause 79 (1) we are dealing with estimates."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"We are dealing with projects."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—"Suppose there is a locality that has to be drained in order to get rid of malaria. That is a project and that may have to be put before the corporation and the corporation may accept it or reject it. If they accept it, then the details and estimates will come in. The question is whether we should undertake it or not."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"One specific amendment before us is that Rs. 10,000 be substituted for Rs. 50,000. We shall go on."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR :—"The effect of this clause will be not to place before the Council all the projects which cost below Rs. 50,000. Unless they are sanctioned by other means, there will be no opportunity for the Council to consider. Therefore in a case in which the Council has to be committed, I submit, my Lord, where the entire estimated cost is Rs. 10,000, it must be for the Council to decide whether that commitment should be made or not. I think this alteration of Rs. 50,000 to Rs. 10,000 may be accepted. It includes the sanctioning of the expenditure for that work and therefore there must be that limitation."

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Krishna Rao; the President; Doctor Nayar;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO :—"I second the amendment; may I say a few words?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"May I point out this: what is the amendment? Section 79 (1) proposes that 'when a project is framed for the execution of any work the estimated cost of which . . .'"

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—"Rough estimates."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Exceeds Rs. 50,000, the commissioner shall cause a detailed report to be prepared' including the estimates and drawings and the standing committee shall lay that report before the Council. That report is the report of estimates and the Council shall consider that report of estimates or reject that report of estimates; so that the effect of the Honourable Gentleman's amendment in this clause which relates entirely to estimates is simply to insist that in all projects, the entire estimated cost of which exceeds Rs. 10,000, the standing committee is obliged to lay those estimates before the Council and power is taken away by his amendment from the standing committee and given to the Council in all estimates between Rs. 10,000 and Rs. 50,000. He is taking the powers away from the standing committee and insisting upon the corporation considering not contracts but estimates."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—"The section says 'may reject or approve of the project.'"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Let it be a project. Let me refer to the earlier wording 'the project the estimated cost of which, etc.' The report is on the cost of the project."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—"May I explain, my Lord?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"Does the Honourable Gentleman contest my interpretation?"

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—"I do. In the ordinary way, general sanction has been already given in the budget, for the estimate which is framed and a work which is included under the budget head. But here is something which is not included under the budget. Suppose the proposal comes from the Health Officer or the drainage officer for certain improvements to be done, which may have beneficial effects; the corporation may order detailed estimates. In one case, it is all the general sanction which is already made but in this case the general sanction has not been made. Therefore the real issue which the corporation has to decide is the question whether the work is to be carried out or not. That is the point which my Honourable Friend wants a decision on to be left to the corporation."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO :—"As has been pointed out by the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar section 79 has nothing to do with the sanction of estimates under section 78; though the words 'the estimated cost of which' is used in sub-clause (1) of section 79, this clause essentially deals with the sanctioning of projects. Even if a project is to be sanctioned, the scheme has to be approved as also the estimates which have to be sanctioned later on. If the project is to be undertaken, it is for the Council to decide whether this work is to be undertaken or not. Is it to be undertaken in the case of new works or projects for the expansion of water-works costing over Rs. 10,000 the discretion of the Council is to be taken away and that the standing committee alone is to decide whether a new work is to be undertaken or not? Notwithstanding the interpretation suggested I would draw your Excellency's attention to what is essentially contained in sub-clause (6) of clause 79 (1). At the end of that sub-clause it is stated: 'The Council shall consider the report and may reject the project, or may approve it either in its entirety or subject to modifications.' It does not deal with the approval or disapproval of estimates. Similar words are used in sub-clause (2) where it is stated also that the Governor in Council may reject the project or may sanction it either in its entirety or subject to modifications. Therefore it is essentially different from what is contained in the previous clause; and the only point for consideration is whether this Council will allow the standing committee to exercise the discretion of sanctioning or approving of new projects up to Rs. 50,000. I think Rs. 10,000 is high enough. If there were a proposal to limit it to less than that amount, I would have gladly supported it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"I have not heard the Honourable Member in charge in explanation of this clause 79. If clause 78 is the same as clause 79, I do not understand why section 79 comes in into the Bill. Section 78, as has been pointed out by my Honourable friend Dr. Nayar, is intended to provide for cases of technical sanction of estimates, the works having been already approved either by the budget sanction or otherwise, so that the general wish of the Council having been ascertained, the technical sanction required is given by the President under section 78. Whereas, under section 79 it seems to me it is intended to commit the Council to a new project, in regard to which the wishes of the Council have not been ascertained section 79 says that the project should be prepared and that the estimates should also be prepared and placed before the Council. The financial limit up to which this can be done is mentioned in section 79. I am averse to any construction of sections 78, 79 and 80 independent of each other. I raise the question that sections 78, 79 and 80 substantially settle the financial powers of sanction of the commissioner, the standing committee and the Council either in regard to expenditure already included in the budget or in regard to new projects. Therefore, that is the substantial question raised by these three amendments. There are three stages; there is a stage where the work is generally sanctioned by the Council and the estimate is prepared. Then there is a stage where there is a new work which is not already considered by the Council in regard to which the wishes of the Council have to be ascertained and

(Mr. Rama Ayyangar ; Mr. Siva Rao ;
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Suryanarayana Rao ;
the President)

[11TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

the Standing Committee to exercise the power to sanction expenditure only on contracts. In any event, so far as this question goes, we may make it perfect. I submit that the limits to the power of the Commissioner should be Rs. 2,500 instead of Rs. 10,000 and of the Standing Committee Rs. 10,000 instead of Rs. 50,000. The total expenditure of the Corporation is about Rs. 33 lakhs, as shown by the Administration Report for 1917-18. As I said in regard to expenditure of over Rs. 10,000 we have only very few cases and between Rs. 2,500 and Rs. 10,000 we have again only very few cases, 20 or 25. Building contracts are specifically sanctioned by budget grants and in these cases the question will not come. But in the case of lump allotments where estimates are subsequently prepared, even where contracts are entered into, the matter will have to go before the Council. This is a matter, as I said, which should be considered by the Government. But whatever it is, in the case of things to be carried out by contract, I want the limits should be Rs. 2,500 and Rs. 10,000. For a municipality of this income that will be a fair limit. I find in Bombay the limit is Rs. 5,000 but the income of Bombay is much larger than that of Madras. It is more than double. Looking to the present Act and the power under it, it ought not to be much over Rs. 2,500 ; it must be below Rs. 2,500 properly speaking. But the conditions of Madras are peculiar and the Select Committee has sought to increase it. I shall give proper weight to that consideration, but my Lord, even then it is necessary to fix it at Rs. 2,500 and Rs. 10,000 and not at Rs. 10,000 and Rs. 50,000."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I am one of those who think that sections 78, 79 and 80 are simply continuations and if the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar in respect of section 78 had been carried, this would have been a consequential amendment. But as that has not been carried, and as the view has prevailed that section 78 applies only to technical sanction and does not refer to any power of sanctioning expenditure, we have had another opportunity of urging the same position when the Council has to consider clause 80. There cannot be any doubt that under clause 80 the Commissioner has power to enter into contracts in case of works which do not exceed Rs. 10,000 in value. That means, in the case of such works it is not necessary for him to obtain any other sanction, either the sanction of the Standing Committee or of the Council. He is supreme in a matter like this and he can sanction the expenditure himself on a work the value of which does not exceed Rs. 10,000. He can sanction it himself and he can enter into the agreement. That means he can sanction the expenditure himself. It is also equally plain that if the expenditure exceeds Rs. 10,000 and does not exceed Rs. 50,000, the Standing Committee has power to sanction it and incur the expenditure binding the Council and commit it in respect of this expenditure and also enter into the contract. When once such estimate exceeds Rs. 10,000 it has to be sanctioned by the Standing Committee and the Commissioner can enter into the contract ; and if it exceeds Rs. 50,000 he has to obtain the sanction of the Council. So it is clear from clause 80, if it is not plain from clauses 78 and 79, that the Commissioner has got power to sanction expenditure on works, the value of which does not exceed Rs. 10,000. The Honourable Mover proposes that these powers are excessive and the powers of sanctioning expenditure may be reduced to Rs. 2,500. I have mentioned various reasons why the Commissioner's powers should not be raised, especially when he is not appointed by the Council and not responsible to the Council and not removable by the Council. There is very little popular control in the Corporation. It is not desirable that his powers should be increased. The effect of this clause 80 means that he is supreme so far as works the value of which does not exceed Rs. 10,000 are concerned. The Council has not got power to interfere with him. In the case of works which do not exceed Rs. 50,000 the Standing Committee is supreme. The Honourable Mover proposes that it should be reduced to Rs. 10,000. I also strongly appeal to your Excellency's Government to consider the effect of sections 78, 79 and 80 together. We have been at variance. There is one view that section 78 means technical sanction ; there is the other view that it means committing the Council to expenditure. Then there is the word 'project'."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Are we going back to section 78?"

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO:—"I am appealing to your Excellency to consider it. This word 'project' is most unfortunate and has given rise to the impression that it means new works. Section 78 prescribes something ; section 79 says something in the case of estimates which exceed Rs. 50,000. If instead of 'projects' we had substituted 'estimates', it would have been more fully in consonance with the provisions of the Bill."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO (interrupting):—"Your Excellency, before the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar replies, I have one doubt which I wish to have cleared. In clause 80 (2) (b) I see 'No contract for any purpose which, in accordance with any provision of this Act, the Commissioner may not carry out without the sanction of one of the other municipal authorities, shall be made by him unless such sanction has been given'. What are these authorities?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"That is another matter. There are certain contracts which can be carried out only if they are approved by the higher authorities—some by the Standing Committee and some by the Corporation. I think the Honourable Gentleman may allow the Honourable Member to proceed. Perhaps the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar may clear up the point."

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Krishna Rao.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I have very little to add to what I have said on the previous occasion. With the indulgence of this Council and Your Excellency I went considerably out of my way when we dealt with clause 78 and explained the framework of this Bill in regard to estimates, in regard to contracts and in regard to expenditure. I did that, so that the Council might have the advantage of having in one view what exactly is in our minds when we put in these provisions in that particular way, and it may not be committed to isolated decisions upon isolated things. I believe with Your Excellency's permission the discussion on clause 78 did cover a very wide ground, in fact the whole thing. I have very little to add to what I then said."

"So far as this clause is concerned I will simply say what I have already said. Under the present law the Commissioner has power to enter into contracts below Rs. 2,000 and we consider he may have power to enter into contracts up to Rs. 10,000. Secondly the Honourable Member says that in Bombay it is Rs. 5,000. That Act was thirty years ago. I submit after an interval of thirty years we may put it in Madras at Rs. 10,000. It does not carry us very far one way or the other. Whatever control the Corporation as a body has over the Commissioner should, as pointed out by the Hon'ble Sir Francis Spring, be through the budget. It is the budget which has to be controlled. The Honourable the Advocate-General will later on if necessary read some of the provisions of the present Bill in regard to the budget, from which entering into reckless expenditure or committing the Corporation to things to which he should not commit it. The budget is the mechanism by which the control of the general body should be exercised ; and it is not by simply reducing Rs. 10,000 to Rs. 2,500. If under the present procedure the budget has not sufficient details such as would enable the Corporation to exercise adequate and detailed control, make it more strict. The Hon'ble the Advocate-General will point out that we have provided a certain number of rules ; there are provisions to frame regulations and by-laws so that the grip of what we call the Finance Committee may be made as strong as possible over the Commissioner. I would very much deprecate simply knocking down isolated figures here and there. I am speaking as one of those who framed this law. The whole thing has been framed according to definite principles and if you go and alter one figure in one place you may unconsciously be setting the whole Bill out of gear. I am strongly against any change such as is proposed by the Honourable Member in clause 80 (2) (c)."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, when the amendment of clause 78 was being discussed, the main ground upon which the opposition proceeded from the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar and the Hon'ble Mr. Molony was that it was no use fighting against a provision regarding the sanctioning of estimates when even now the President is sanctioning estimates and the Standing Committee is passing the same en bloc. It was suggested that we were fighting against a shadow when we objected to the provision regarding the sanctioning of estimates. It was then suggested that the more important power was about the giving of power to various officers in the making of contracts."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I did not say that."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I am summing up what was said by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar and the Hon'ble Mr. Molony in opposition."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"You are summing it up wrongly so far as I am concerned."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I am not in a position to reproduce the exact words. In mentioning the two members who opposed it, I mentioned the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar and the Hon'ble Mr. Molony ; I believe I have correctly reproduced the substance of what they said. I did not say what was said by each of them separately."

"Coming now to the present proposal, the only point for consideration is whether it is desirable to extend the power of the Commissioner in the making of contracts up to the limit suggested. It is pointed out that the Bombay Act of 1888 which gave power up to Rs. 5,000 was passed thirty years ago and that Madras may increase the powers up to Rs. 10,000. It will be remembered that when the City Municipal Act of 1904 was passed sixteen years ago by the local Legislative Council, they deliberately thought it wise to restrict the power of the President to Rs. 2,000 and of the Standing Committee to Rs. 10,000. The question for consideration now is whether under the scheme of the Bill now under consideration and taken up fifteen years after the passing of that Act it is necessary to increase the power of the Commissioner from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 10,000 and that of the Standing Committee from Rs. 10,000 to Rs. 50,000. That is the effect of the provision inserted in the Bill by the Select Committee. The effect of the proposal of the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar would be that the power of the Standing Committee would be as it was under the Act of 1904 and the power of the Commissioner would be increased from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 2,500. I would suggest, My Lord, that to increase the powers to the extent suggested in the Bill in the present stage of development is unreasonable. I venture to place before this Council the views of the Madras Corporation on this important question. If there is any body whose views have to be respected, it is that body. At the meeting held on February 4th, they deliberately came to the conclusion that the financial powers of the Commissioner should be restricted. It appears from the papers which must have been communicated to the Legislative Department that it was first suggested that the President

(Mr. Krishna Rao ; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ; Doctor Nayar.)

[11TH FEBRUARY 1919

should have power up to Rs. 2,500 and they finally raised it to Rs. 5,000. In view of that particular fact it is not desirable to increase it to Rs. 10,000. But it may be reduced to Rs. 5,000. If Your Excellency will permit it, I am prepared to move an amendment to that portion to substitute Rs. 5,000 for Rs. 2,500 to bring it into consonance with the view of the Madras Corporation. Your Excellency may take the sense of the whole Council as to whether they would have Rs. 2,500 or Rs. 5,000. The power of the Standing Committee may remain up to Rs. 10,000."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—"I support this proposal."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—"I expected to hear from the Honourable Member in charge some satisfactory reason for increasing the powers of the Commissioner so far as entering into contracts was concerned. All that I heard from the Honourable Member was, as he pointed out, what the present power of the president is—that he can enter into contracts up to Rs. 2,000—and he thought there was no reason why it should not be extended to Rs. 10,000. That is an excellent example of mathematical deduction, but it is not quite satisfactory when applied to municipal bodies. There are two or three reasons which he could adduce, if he were in a position to adduce them, which would justify him in making this increase from Rs. 2,500 to Rs. 10,000. If he could prove that in the past there has been any delay in placing contracts for works on account of this restriction on the powers of the president, he will be justified in saying that to avoid delay 'we will now raise the power of the president to Rs. 10,000.' There is no such suggestion, and I am quite sure he cannot prove that any such delay has occurred. Another reason which could reasonably be brought forward would be if he could show that the standing committee of the future will be so much overloaded with work that they ought to be relieved of a part of their duty and this part should be transferred to the commissioner. Instead of the standing committee of the future being overloaded with work, they will have considerably less work than before, because one standing committee has been split up into four committees, and they will have greater time to devote to their respective works than they had in the past. These two would have been satisfactory reasons for the increase."

"Now I can give satisfactory reasons for not increasing the powers. This Bill to amend the Madras Municipal Act has been undertaken in order to make the Madras Corporation more of a self-governing body and to give the representatives of the people greater control over income and expenditure. If that is the reason, it will be out of place in that Bill to take away the power of controlling the expenditure from the council and putting it more into the hands of the commissioner who as compared with the president of the corporation at the present time will be less a part of the corporation than he is now. So looked at from whichever point of view, the change from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 10,000 is unjustifiable."

"The Honourable Member in charge is suffering under a delusion, and this delusion is shared by several other Honourable Members, that in the budget the corporation has complete control over all the expenditure. It is a general sort of control in the budget, but beyond that there is no control. The control that you can exercise through the budget is control of policy and is not complete control. When you come to details to check expenditure you must have recourse to other sources of control. I can give an instance: For example under the budget head 'education' you may put in a sum of Rs. 1,00,000 with the remark 'for providing ten elementary schools.' In sanctioning that entry in the budget you have control over the policy, your policy being that you should build ten elementary schools in the coming year. To that extent you have control. But there that control stops. If you want to go any further with regard to the details, you must have control at some subsequent stage, otherwise you lose all control subsequently. Take this present instance. After this entry is put in the budget, the commissioner can proceed to complete all these ten schools without the corporation or the standing committee having any control whatever. According to your proposal, he can have ten different estimates prepared in the office and provided they are all under Rs. 10,000, he sanctions them; and according to your proposal he straight away enters into ten different contracts. The contracts are let and all that the corporation will know is when the ten schools have been built. I ask the Council: is that all the control which you mean to give to the representatives of the rate-payers in a question of that sort? They have decided to build ten schools. Is that control to stop there? If it is not to stop there, you should not give these exceedingly wide powers to the commissioner."

"I entirely fail to see any reason for this change. Under the existing Act the president can enter into contracts up to Rs. 2,000 and the standing committee up to Rs. 10,000 and salary. There must be some reason for the departure. If it is proposed to give the corporation power to enter into contracts above one lakh you can give a reason for it. You may say, our policy is to give more power to the corporation, and we will make it a really self-governing body and we will give it greater power. That is a valid reason. If you give greater power to the standing committee, you can also give a valid reason, because the work in municipal bodies is coming to be carried on more and more by standing committees. The general body being too large a body to go into details, it has become customary to delegate to the standing committee the control over details. But so far as transferring power to the commissioner is concerned, I cannot see any justification, because it is agreed on all hands that the commissioner is as such a transitional institution; during the time when you are training these local bodies to assume full responsibility the commissioner is put in as a sort of check by the Government."

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Doctor Nayar ; Mr. Richmond ; the President ;
Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

Therefore the less you exercise it the better for the development of the self-governing body and for the general advancement of the country. Therefore, when you put that check at the beginning of this new institution, you should not invest the commissioner with more power than the present president of the corporation has, because the municipal corporation of the future which will come into existence under this Bill is supposed to be a body with greater powers controlled less by the Government than the old municipal council which is to expire. If that is the theory, this Bill does not carry it into effect. My Lord, I do not see any substantial reason for this proposal except the arbitrary one which the Honourable Member has given, viz., the mathematical reason. I cannot help thinking that if the Government adhere to this proposal and carry this Bill into law as it is, the Bill will be a reactionary one and not an improvement."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RICHMOND :—"My Lord, I regret I am unable to agree with the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill when he says that the provisions regarding the budget contain adequate safeguards against the misuse of power by the commissioner or afford adequate opportunity for the council to exercise its check. If so, I am not able to see why any pecuniary limit should be laid down. There is absolutely no reason for fixing any pecuniary limit if this view is correct. The very fact that you fix a limit shows the necessity for this amendment. The only question is, are you going to fix the limit at Rs. 10,000 or lower? We are introducing an entirely new method or system in the corporation. We are for the first time introducing an official under the designation of commissioner. Who will be the commissioner we do not know. Now we know the executive action is in the hands of the president. Supposing later on you find that the pecuniary limit which you now impose is a high limit, it will be necessary to introduce an amending Act to reduce the limit. When once after fixing the limit you lower it, it is practically moving a sort of vote of censure on the administration. If you give power up to Rs. 10,000 and then you take it away, it is a censure, because it means he is not using it properly. On the other hand if you give him power up to Rs. 2,500 and if experience shows that you can safely raise that limit, you can raise it and you will be paying a compliment to him by raising it from Rs. 2,500 to Rs. 10,000. You are bringing in this new scheme for the first time and I would ask you to accept the amendment and start with a limit of Rs. 2,500. I agree with the observations made by my Honourable Friend Doctor Nayar and I think his long experience should count in our accepting the amendment."

"Before I sit down I may mention another matter closely allied to this. In considering an amendment of this nature and others, would it not be far better if the official members are allowed to vote as they like? There are members who have large experience of municipal municipalities and administrative experience, and if they are allowed to freely give their opinions, we may arrive at a decision which will be much more satisfactory than one obtained by a solid phalanx of official votes. If official members could vote according to what their experience dictates it would I think improve matters."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"I do not see how that question arises on this matter."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"My Lord, a great deal has been said about the control of the budget; but before I deal with that point, I may perhaps say generally that the effect of sections 78, 79 and 80 which the Honourable Member now wishes to be considered together would be to shift unduly the financial control of the corporation, first to the commissioner and then to the standing committee. My Lord, in discussing section 78 I expressly pointed out that the whole framework of sections 78, 79 and 80 was to settle the financial powers of each of these three authorities. It was at one time stated that section 78 merely referred to technical sanction. Now we are landed in this difficulty that in regard to section 80 we have either to reduce the powers of the commissioner and the standing committee or to pass the section as it is. I feel very strongly that by enacting section 80 as it is we shall be reducing the powers of financial control of the corporation to a very undesirable extent. In fact, any contract may be entered into finally without the intervention of the council by the standing committee up to Rs. 50,000. Similarly any contract may be entered into by the commissioner without the intervention of either the standing committee or the council up to Rs. 10,000. As to whether this policy of delegating financial control up to Rs. 50,000 to the standing committee and up to Rs. 10,000 to the commissioner is right is a point which deserves very careful consideration. I entirely associate myself with the Hon'ble Doctor Nayar who has pointed out that no adequate reasons have been assigned as to why this limit should have been fixed at Rs. 10,000 and 50,000. Instead of Rs. 10,000 the Honourable Member might have put it as Rs. 20,000 and as regards the standing committee he might as well have put it at Rupees 1,00,000 instead of Rs. 50,000. It seems to me, My Lord, this arbitrary, high limit of the financial control of the standing committee and the commissioner is unreasonable, if we are to be guided by what has been done in Calcutta and Bombay. My Honourable Friends have referred to these provisions."

"Now coming to the budget, so far as the Codes under the Municipal Acts are concerned, each work requires not only budget sanction but individual sanction of the corporation. Each contract has to be brought up before the council. It has to be sanctioned and the contract has to be entered into and the work carried out. That individual sanction is the opportunity for the council to exercise its financial control. Therefore, My Lord, the fact that a particular work is provided for in the budget does not at present do away with the individual sanction for the work after the scrutiny of the estimate and for its subsequent carrying out, on the year he exceeds the pecuniary limits laid down such contract shall not be deemed to be invalid. That is, I submit, giving a loophole of escape which ought not to be given. I therefore propose to reintroduce the safeguard that was already in the original Bill, viz., 'unless at the time of entering into the contract the parties had sufficient cause to believe that such limits would be exceeded.' That is what the original Bill proposed in 1916. When this section was re-drafted in 1918 I do not know whether it was there or whether it was not there; I forget it. I only want to restore what the Government themselves proposed when they introduced this section, and have now dropped. This would fix a limit upon their entering into such contracts at unit rates. The Commissioner will think twice before he enters into such contracts and so also the Select Committee would think twice before entering into such contracts. That will be some protection, if not sufficient protection. You will take away even that protection, and you can evade sections 80, 81 and 82 by entering into contracts on the unit basis. I therefore propose this amendment."

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; [11TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Rama Ayyangar.]

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I have very little to say except that we omitted it, because we apprehended that in practice it would be difficult to work this proviso 'unless at the time of entering into the contract the parties had sufficient cause to believe that such limits would be exceeded.' I would also draw attention to the fact of the use of the words 'not precisely determinable, in clause 83. In view of those words we thought that section 83 as it left the hands of the Select Committee was the best way in which we could put it. I therefore oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"One word, Your Excellency. I do not understand the practical difficulty at all. I suppose the office is a working office having records of the previous years and I suppose they know what quantities of straw or metal are required for a year. Can we not work on that basis? The language is 'not precisely determinable.' It is not 'not approximately determinable.' It leaves it in the hands of the office. It does not afford protection at all. On the other hand it makes it even worse. Unless it is precisely determinable you can enter into a contract on the unit basis, and such excuses will be always available. I therefore submit it is a most mischievous provision."

The amendment was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I do not propose to move amendment No. 44." Amendment No. 44 which was not moved was as follows:—

After the words 'when work' insert 'duly sanctioned'.

Clause 83 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 84.

Clause 84 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 85

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg to move amendment No. 45—

In clause (b) of the proviso insert the words 'Revenue Officer' after the words the 'Health Officer' and substitute the words 'twelve hundred' for the words 'fifteen hundred'.

Omit all the words after the word 'Rupees' and substitute the following words:—

'Provided that in the case of any of these officers who have held the appointment for not less than five years the monthly salary may be raised by the Council to a sum not exceeding Rupees fifteen hundred.'

"There are some instances in which the Government by legislation propose to lay down to the corporation certain injunctions as to what salary they ought to pay to the Health Officer, the Revenue Officer and the Engineer. Why when we are entrusting the affairs of the City to the corporation we should not leave it to the corporation to determine from time to time what salaries they should pay and why we should fix it passes my comprehension. Not only that; the Bill provides that we must pay a certain salary to the Health Officer, Revenue Officer and Engineer, and then it says the minimum is so much and the maximum is so much. That is to say we have no knowledge of the inner finance of the corporation and here is the legislative authority which seeks to impose the maximum limit and minimum limit on the corporation without due regard to the financial condition of the corporation. That is what I object to. I say that the maximum has been too largely fixed at Rs. 1,500 in the case of the Health Officer and the Engineer. When we consider persons in a similar position in the Government departments we find that the salary proposed to be given to the Health Officer and the Engineer is very extravagant indeed. For instance the District Medical and Sanitary Officer, first class, only gets Rs. 1,300, second class Rs. 950. When we take Engineers, the Executive Engineer, first grade gets Rs. 800—50—1,250 in the Imperial Service, and in the Provincial Service Rs. 535—35—850. I do not think the position of either the Health Officer or the Engineer can be said to be above the position of these people. Even the Superintending Engineer, third class, gets only Rs. 1,500, second class Rs. 1,750 and first class Rs. 2,000. That is, so far as the Engineer and the Health Officer are concerned, I do think that Rs. 1,500 is an excessive maximum to fix. At the same time the minimum is all right, i.e., Rs. 600 in each case. I do not think we can get people below that sum. I object to the maximum. I propose that the maximum in each case should not exceed Rs. 1,200."

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ;
Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; the President.)

"The second thing I propose is similar to what I did in the case of the Commissioner. One frequent cause of complaint in the Corporation is that we take trouble to bring out an Engineer, he gets experience in our works and he stays two or three years and then he goes away elsewhere. Therefore I propose there should be some inducement for these people to stay on here, and I propose that in the case of any of these officers who have held appointments for not less than five years the monthly salary may be raised to Rs. 1,500 so that eventually the maximum may be reached after certain approved service. But in fixing the initial salary it shall not exceed Rs. 1,200. That is the object of the amendment. I am sure we can get good officers on these salaries. Very many eminent people have held the post of Health Officer, such as Captain Cornwall and Captain Ross. It is now only Rs. 1,000 under the existing Act, and I now propose to make it Rs. 1,200. We are already saddled with a costly commissioner and we should not be saddled with these costly officers. As it is, our establishment in the Engineering Department not only comprises engineers in charge of roads and other things but we have a mechanical engineer, a water works engineer, a drainage engineer and we are going to have various people in charge of pumping stations and so we shall require other engineers. We are not going to be content with one engineer. The City was content with one engineer a few years ago, but during the last seven or eight years we have been burdened with a lot of engineering staff. I do not think that it is necessary that we should have this costly establishment. I therefore commend my amendment for your acceptance."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar began his case by saying that at a time when we are giving wider powers to local bodies we are putting in a rule fixing the maximum and minimum limits to the pay of the officers, and he says it is wrong and contrary to principle; and that we should give a free hand to the Corporation to fix the pay. On that argument may I venture to point out that what the Honourable Member should have done was that he should have proposed to delete the whole thing."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Hopeless, as I am, even in this modest proposal?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"When was that hopelessness discovered?"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"After two days' experience."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"The hopelessness was discovered only now. The Honourable Member proposes to reduce the maximum. It means he would restrict the discretion of the Corporation. The Corporation is an important local body which may need a very superior man as Engineer, Health Officer or Revenue Officer. Leave the local body alone; if he had said that, I would have taken it. It is a reasonable view. But he says inasmuch as the Council should be left alone I would put forward an amendment which will tie its hands. The Bill as approved by the Select Committee says that the Council can appoint a man up to Rs. 1,500. We are now told, in the interest of giving a wider discretion to the Council, we shall not give more than Rs. 1,200. I shall pass from that point."

"The next point is, knowing as we do the rates of salary for the kind of men that we want for the office of Engineer and Health officer, I submit to the Council for consideration that the limit of Rs. 1,500 is by no means excessive. It is because you are not in a position to pay these men adequately you lose their services, and the Corporation will be well advised to provide adequate pay for these men. In the long run it may be more economical for the Corporation to get a man not exactly on high pay but a reasonable starting pay so that he can rise to a reasonable maximum. We give complete discretion to the Corporation to pay the maximum gained experience. That would be more economical. My own impression is that Rs. 1,500 is not high enough, but it is the very lowest that we should provide as the maximum. It is not proposed that a man who comes in should be given Rs. 1,500 straight away. What the section says is 'The Council shall appoint a Health Officer, an Engineer and a Revenue Officer . . . provided that the monthly salary of the Health Officer and the Engineer shall be not less than six hundred rupees and shall not exceed fifteen hundred rupees and the monthly salary of the Revenue Officer shall not be less than six hundred rupees and shall not exceed twelve hundred rupees.' As it is, the Council has got a pretty wide discretion in fixing the starting pay and a wide discretion in allowing the men to go on to a particular pay thereby ensuring their remaining with them. I think in the interests of efficiency that the liberty should not be restricted. I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"If I am in order I should like to move that the proviso be omitted. This is an amendment to the amendment. I propose that the proviso itself be omitted altogether."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Has the Honourable Member given notice of it?"

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. Nayar rose to speak.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"If the Honourable Gentleman wishes to speak against the proviso, let him do so now."

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; [11TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Molony.]

a contract entered into by the commissioner or the standing committee. I do not know whether it is seriously contended that simply because the work is mentioned in the budget all further financial control by the council or the standing committee is not necessary or desirable.

"My Lord, in this Council where there are several officials who have served as presidents of district boards and as municipal chairmen there should be no difficulty in ascertaining the practice. My Honourable Friend Mr. Richmond's suggestion that in this matter there shall be no official block is one which eminently deserves the favourable consideration of the Government. It is a question as to what safe limits may be placed for the commissioner, the standing committee and the council. That is the only point we have for consideration and in a matter like this I submit every member of this Council may be allowed a free expression of views. I do not know why on an occasion like this such a course should not be adopted. Therefore, My Lord, I am really unable to support this proposal because it shifts the financial responsibility of the council and it reduces its powers of control and unnecessarily increases the powers of the standing committee and the commissioner."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"My Lord, I do not wish to make any general observation. I am quite content to take the skilful surgical operation performed by the Hon'ble Doctor Nayar on the attitude taken by this Government. I wish to give my practical experience as to how the thing works in the corporation. If anything attracts the attention of the council it is these contracts, which come up. Then the attendance is full and more attention and more time is paid. Then it is that the councillors take an interest. The evil arising out of allowing these large powers to the commissioner is it would land us in great difficulties. We have had recent bitter experience how a contract was entered into and we were landed in litigation in the Court and but for the skilful advocacy of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General we would have been mulcted in costs. However that may be, if you entrust these large powers of entering into contracts to the standing committee or the commissioner who always work inside their chamber without public notice and public scrutiny, without their being exposed to the public gaze, things are not likely to take a fair turn. Oftentimes contracts have come up before us where the standing committee had accepted not the lowest tender but the highest tender for some reason the Engineer or the Health Officer puts on paper and the standing committee is given some story, but when it comes to public discussion those reasons disappear. The standing committee's proposals when they came up before the corporation have been overruled in not less than 50 per cent of cases. That being the case instead of there being any reason to raise the limit, past experience dictates to us that there is no reason for increasing the powers. If you call for returns for the last three or five years of cases where the corporation had to over-rule the decisions of the standing committee in regard to the acceptance of contracts, you will find that a much stronger case is made out for reducing the limit rather than enhancing it."

"What really is the reason given? The suggestion made was that the Bombay Act was passed 30 years ago. Has human nature improved in 30 years? What argument is derived by merely stating that fact? It would be a mere sham and pretence to say that you are creating a corporation with full powers when you are really taking away the real powers and putting them in the hands of the commissioner who is an outside man and whom we cannot remove except by a high majority. I strongly appeal to the Council that the powers of the corporation should not be surrendered like this."

"This is the only way in which we can put a check on the expenditure. Let us observe the growth of expenditure. It has been complained time in and time out that we are landed in bankruptcy and unless you give the rate-payers' representatives full financial powers the corporation will be landed in much greater difficulty. Instead of giving a beneficial measure you will land them in further difficulties."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY:—"I shall merely make a very few remarks. The first is a general one. I would submit that the budget thus does give the corporation control over the general disposition of its finance, but, as the Hon'ble Doctor Nayar has suggested, that when the corporation has resolved on spending one lakh for building ten schools the corporation has finished with the matter. Financial control does not mean the choice of particular contractors. The commissioner has over him Your Excellency's Government and the Council. If in a matter like this he shows himself unfit to be trusted, I dare say Your Excellency's Government will remove him, or failing that the corporation can remove him."

"As regards the case mentioned by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar, I am afraid it is scarcely a happy one. He said we went to law and would have been mulcted in costs but for the skilful advocacy of the Hon'ble the Advocate-General."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"On a technical point."

The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY:—"The contract in that case was entered into by the decision of the corporation. I venture to think that his statement that the main occasion on which the corporation took an interest in public affairs was in giving contracts is not complimentary to the corporation. I would not have mentioned this point, but for the fact that I have been protesting at meetings of the corporation and meetings of the standing committee time and again against the unvarying rule of giving the contract in every case to the lowest tenderer. We give contracts to do things always to the lowest tenderer. If it were left to me personally, probably I would give them to the person who will do them properly. I can give instance after instance which resulted in the contractors doing nothing. I have argued this question with the standing committee and the corporation and they always said 'we are bound by principle, and people will speak ill of us otherwise'. Let people speak ill of me in any way they like—I am used to it. If I can get the work done, I do not mind it. That is the only broad way of looking at things. I strongly support the proposal to extend the Commissioner's powers."

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Molony; the President; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Before I ask the Council to vote I should like to point out that after all it comes down to a question of figures. We have had a discussion ranging over the whole financial principles of the Bill, the question of the policy of having a Commissioner, and have been asked whether the proposal will not deprive the Council of its powers. It is merely a question of figures. If the figures were what the Honourable Member wanted we should not have had all this unimportant discussion. It centres round the figures and I must really draw the attention of this Council to this fact that at this stage, when every opportunity has been given for the discussion both in the Council and the Select Committee according to the provisions made in our rules, it is essentially too late to upset the whole scheme of the Bill. That is really what this discussion comes to. It comes down to a question of figures, which is after all the point on which we have to vote. I now put the amendment."

The amendment was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar demanded a poll which was taken with the result that 16 voted for and 21 against it.

The following was the division:—

For	Against
The Hon'ble Mr. V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar.	The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.
" Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.	" Mr. L. Davidson.
" Mr. P. Siva Rao.	" Mr. C. G. Todhunter.
" Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar.	" Mr. A. Y. G. Campbell.
" Mr. T. Richmond.	" Mr. B. Ramachandra Rao.
" Mr. K. Suryanarayanamurti	" Mr. M. Young.
" Nayudu.	" Mr. L. E. Buckley.
" Dr. T. M. Nayar.	" Mr. N. E. Marjoribanks.
" Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju.	" Mr. Aziz-ud-din Sahib.
" Rev. G. Pittendrigh.	" Mr. A. Subbarayalu Reddiyar.
" Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar.	" Sir Francis Spring.
" Mr. A. Suryanarayana Rao.	" Mr. R. Littlehales.
" Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.	" Sir Gordon Fraser.
" Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.	" Mr. J. H. Thongeri.
" Mr. Yaqub Hasan Sahib.	" the Most Rev. John Aalen.
" Mr. Ahmed Tambi Marakkayar.	" Mr. J. C. Molony.
" Mr. K. Chidambaranatha	" Mr. W. Hutton.
" Mudaliyar.	" Mr. W. J. J. Howley.
	" Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
	" the Advocate-General.
	" Mr. H. G. Stokes.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The next amendment is consequential and it falls."

The amendment referred to ran as follows:—

In sub-clause (e) of clause 80 (2) substitute the words 'Rs. 2,500' for 'Rs. 10,000'.

Clause 80 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 81.

Clause 81 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 82.

Clause 82 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 83.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"My amendment to clause 83 is as follows:—

"43 After the full stop into a comma at the end of the clause and add the following:—
'unless at the time of entering into the contract the parties had sufficient cause to believe that such limits would be exceeded'."

"This is another enhancement of the power of these bodies to break the rule. The rule itself is very wide and this is a provision to enable them to evade even that restriction by quoting at unit rates. Supposing it is a supply of hardware or metal which takes away large sum in the shape of stores or any other material like straw or gram or various other things—when such a contract is entered into, you simply enter into the contract giving the unit rates and the contractor has to supply the articles for the year. The section says that simply by reason of the fact that by the close of the year he exceeds the pecuniary limits laid down such contract shall not be deemed to be invalid. That is, I submit, giving a loophole of escape which ought not to be given. I therefore propose to reintroduce the safeguard that was already in the original Bill, viz., 'unless at the time of entering into the contract the parties had sufficient cause to believe that such limits would be exceeded.' That is what the original Bill proposed in 1916. When this section was re-drafted in 1918 I do not know whether it was there or whether it was not there; I forget it. I only want to restore what the Government themselves proposed when they introduced this section, and have now dropped. This would fix a limit upon their entering into such contracts at unit rates. The Commissioner will think twice before he enters into such contracts and so also the Select Committee would think twice before entering into such contracts. That will be some protection, if not sufficient protection. You will take away even that protection, and you can evade sections 80, 81 and 82 by entering into contracts on the unit basis. I therefore propose this amendment."

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; [11TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Rama Ayyangar.]

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"I have very little to say except that we omitted it, because we apprehended that in practice it would be difficult to work this proviso 'unless at the time of entering into the contract the parties had sufficient cause to believe that such limits would be exceeded.' I would also draw attention to the fact of the use of the words 'not precisely determinable' in clause 83. In view of those words we thought that section 83 as it left the hands of the Select Committee was the best way in which we could put it. I therefore oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"One word, Your Excellency. I do not understand the practical difficulty at all. I suppose the office is a working office having records of the previous years and I suppose they know what quantities of straw or metal are required for a year. Can we not work on that basis? The language is 'not precisely determinable.' It is not 'not approximately determinable.' It leaves it in the hands of the office. It does not afford protection at all. On the other hand it makes it even worse. Unless it is precisely determinable you can enter into a contract on the unit basis, and such excuses will be always available. I therefore submit it is a most mischievous provision."

The amendment was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"I do not propose to move amendment No. 44." Amendment No. 44 which was not moved was as follows:—

After the words 'when work' insert 'duly sanctioned'.

Clause 83 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 84.

Clause 84 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 85

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I beg to move amendment No. 45—

In clause (b) of the proviso insert the words 'Revenue Officer' after the words the 'Health Officer' and substitute the words 'twelve hundred' for the words 'fifteen hundred'.

Omit all the words after the word 'Rupees' and substitute the following words:—

'Provided that in the case of any of these officers who have held the appointment for not less than five years the monthly salary may be raised by the Council to a sum not exceeding Rupees fifteen hundred.'

"There are some instances in which the Government by legislation propose to lay down to the corporation certain injunctions as to what salary they ought to pay to the Health Officer, the Revenue Officer and the Engineer. Why when we are entrusting the affairs of the City to the corporation we should not leave it to the corporation to determine from time to time what salaries they should pay and why we should fix it passes my comprehension. Not only that; the Bill provides that we must pay a certain salary to the Health Officer, Revenue Officer and Engineer, and then it says the minimum is so much and the maximum is so much. That is to say we have no knowledge of the inner finance of the corporation and here is the legislative authority which seeks to impose the maximum limit and minimum limit on the corporation without due regard to the financial condition of the corporation. That is what I object to. I say that the maximum has been too largely fixed at Rs. 1,500 in the case of the Health Officer and the Engineer. When we consider persons in a similar position in the Government departments we find that the salary proposed to be given to the Health Officer and the Engineer is very extravagant indeed. For instance the District Medical and Sanitary Officer, first class, only gets Rs. 1,300, second class Rs. 950. When we take Engineers, the Executive Engineer, first grade gets Rs. 800—50—1,250 in the Imperial Service, and in the Provincial Service Rs. 535—35—850. I do not think the position of either the Health Officer or the Engineer can be said to be above the position of these people. Even the Superintending Engineer, third class, gets only Rs. 1,500, second class Rs. 1,750 and first class Rs. 2,000. That is, so far as the Engineer and the Health Officer are concerned, I do think that Rs. 1,500 is an excessive maximum to fix. At the same time the minimum is all right, i.e., Rs. 600 in each case. I do not think we can get people below that sum. I object to the maximum. I propose that the maximum in each case should not exceed Rs. 1,200."

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar;
Mr. Yaqub Hasan; the President.)

"The second thing I propose is similar to what I did in the case of the Commissioner. One frequent cause of complaint in the Corporation is that we take trouble to bring out an Engineer, he gets experience in our works and he stays two or three years and then he goes away elsewhere. Therefore I propose there should be some inducement for these people to stay on here, and I propose that in the case of any of these officers who have held appointments for not less than five years the monthly salary may be raised to Rs. 1,500 so that eventually the maximum may be reached after certain approved service. But in fixing the initial salary it shall not exceed Rs. 1,200. That is the object of the amendment. I am sure we can get good officers on these salaries. Very many eminent people have held the post of Health Officer, such as Captain Cornwall and Captain Ross. It is now only Rs. 1,000 under the existing Act, and I now propose to make it Rs. 1,200. We are already saddled with a costly commissioner and we should not be saddled with these costly officers. As it is, our establishment in the Engineering Department not only comprises engineers in charge of roads and other things but we have a mechanical engineer, a water works engineer, a drainage engineer and we are going to have various people in charge of pumping stations and so we shall require other engineers. We are not going to be content with one engineer. The City was content with one engineer a few years ago, but during the last seven or eight years we have been burdened with a lot of engineering staff. I do not think that it is necessary that we should have this costly establishment. I therefore commend my amendment for your acceptance."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar began his case by saying that at a time when we are giving wider powers to local bodies we are putting in a rule fixing the maximum and minimum limits to the pay of the officers, and he says it is wrong and contrary to principle; and that we should give a free hand to the Corporation to fix the pay. On that argument may I venture to point out that what the Honourable Member should have done was that he should have proposed to delete the whole thing."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Hopeless, as I am, even in this modest proposal?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"When was that hopelessness discovered?"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"After two days' experience."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"The hopelessness was discovered only now. The Honourable Member proposes to reduce the maximum. It means he would restrict the discretion of the Corporation. The Corporation is an important local body which may need a very superior man as Engineer, Health Officer or Revenue Officer. Leave the local body alone; if he had said that, I would have taken it. It is a reasonable view. But he says inasmuch as the Council should be left alone I would put forward an amendment which will tie its hands. The Bill as approved by the Select Committee says that the Council can appoint a man up to Rs. 1,500. We are now told, in the interest of giving a wider discretion to the Council, we shall not give more than Rs. 1,200. I shall pass from that point."

"The next point is, knowing as we do the rates of salary for the kind of men that we want for the office of Engineer and Health officer, I submit to the Council for consideration that the limit of Rs. 1,500 is by no means excessive. It is because you are not in a position to pay these men adequately you lose their services, and the Corporation will be well advised to provide adequate pay for these men. In the long run it may be more economical for the Corporation to get a man not exactly on high pay but a reasonable starting pay so that he can rise to a reasonable maximum. We give complete discretion to the Corporation to pay the maximum gained experience. That would be more economical. My own impression is that Rs. 1,500 is not high enough, but it is the very lowest that we should provide as the maximum. It is not proposed that a man who comes in should be given Rs. 1,500 straight away. What the section says is 'The Council shall appoint a Health Officer, an Engineer and a Revenue Officer provided that the monthly salary of the Health Officer and the Engineer shall be not less than six hundred rupees and shall not exceed fifteen hundred rupees and the monthly salary of the Revenue Officer shall not be less than six hundred rupees and shall not exceed twelve hundred rupees.' As it is, the Council has got a pretty wide discretion in fixing the starting pay and a wide discretion in allowing the men to go on to a particular pay thereby ensuring their remaining with them. I think in the interests of efficiency that the liberty should not be restricted. I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur:—"If I am in order I should like to move that the proviso be omitted. This is an amendment to the amendment. I propose that the proviso itself be omitted altogether."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Has the Honourable Member given notice of it?"

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. Nayar rose to speak.

His Excellency the President:—"If the Honourable Gentleman wishes to speak against the proviso, let him do so now."

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan; the President; Doctor Nayar.) [11TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"Yes. I am now speaking on the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar's amendment."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I wish to indicate the position to the Honourable Gentleman. The motion will be that clause (b) of section 85 which is part of the proviso will stand part of the Bill. The Honourable Gentleman will not be able to move the omission of the proviso after that."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I am moving that the whole proviso should be omitted."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We have already taken the discussion on clause (b) of the proviso. It is not open to the Honourable Member to move that amendment. He will now make his remarks on that."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I am opposed to this proviso. In my opinion it is not necessary that the appointment of these officers should be confirmed by the Governor in Council. The Corporation is quite competent to deal with the question. We may have confidence in the Corporation that its appointments will be made after careful consideration and the appointment would be suitable. So I oppose this proviso (a) and in my opinion it should be omitted."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Does not the Honourable Gentleman mean (b)?"

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I am for its omission."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I have listened to the Honourable Gentleman's remarks as well as I could. What is the Honourable Gentlemen's position? Does he wish the first part of the proviso to be omitted or the second part?"

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I want the whole proviso to be omitted. I may proceed to deal with (b). In the case of salary the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar said that he could understand the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar if he moved that there would be no maximum to the salary in which case the Council will have a free hand to raise the salaries of the officers to any amount it liked. It need not go even to Rs. 1,200 as proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar. I would go further, I will not even fix any minimum salary and leave that also to the Council. I would say 'the Council shall appoint under the Commissioner'. That is all that you have to lay down. Do not fix the salary, either the maximum or the minimum. Conditions will always vary. If a person is available for less than Rs. 600, why should he not be appointed? If a person is considered to be fit to receive more than Rs. 1,500, why should not the Council have a discretion to give it? So my proposition is that the whole proviso should be left out altogether. There is a proviso (a) re-fixes the maximum and the minimum."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR:—"My Lord, I do not want to deal with the hypothetical or uncertain state of affairs suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan where the Health Officer and the Engineer may be left in a position where they cannot get any salary at all. But I will go to the little more substantial resolution of the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar. It is Achariyar and others. They have always accused me of desiring to pay high salaries to the corporation officials. I plead guilty to that charge. I have always believed that you cannot get good men and get them to do good work unless you pay well. If it is worth while to get out for special expert officers, Engineers and Health Officers. Especially when you are looking The Corporation has been misled by the fact that they have been fortunate in getting Engineers and Health Officers at cheap rates, because they borrowed them from the Government. They borrowed fairly junior men from the Government and they got them at a cheap rate. But when the officers grew in our service, they claimed higher pay and the Corporation objected, with the result that these men returned to the Government and the Corporation lost their services and the experience they gained. It is like the case of a London cabman whom you cannot get below 6d. per mile. My Lord, if you want an unduly low salary, you will get very inferior men whom it is not worth while having. The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar very often draws a comparison between the salary given to the Health Officer and Engineer by the Corporation and similar officers in the Government, but he forgets that under the Government they are under superior officers. The Executive Engineer has got the Chief Engineer and the Superintending Engineer, and the District Medical and Sanitary Officer has got the Sanitary Commissioner and the Surgeon-General, whereas in the case of our Health Officer and Engineer, they are the whole supervising and other work. I maintain that they should be paid as well as any higher grade officers of the Government. If you want them, you will have to pay them handsomely. Rupees 1,500 or hundred pounds a month, the maximum proposed, I do not think should be grudged to any medical man or Engineer who comes to serve the Corporation. The Bombay example is very often brought before us. The Bombay income is one crore of rupees and there the Health Officer gets Rs. 2,000. How much should we pay? That sum in arithmetic would not answer, because the problem which the Health Officer has to face is just as complicated here as in Bombay, and unless we have good men here, I do not think a man paid a salary calculated like this will be able to be of much service to us here. If you go and ask the Bombay Corporation whether they have been wise in paying handsomely to their Health Officer, the unanimous verdict will be that they never made a better investment. That is one of the best investments of the Bombay Corporation and they are reaping the reward, and I hope my Honourable Friend Mr. Ranga Achariyar—it is not too late for him to learn even now; I assure him the investment in the shape of a good Health Officer and a good Engineer will be a very remunerative one."

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Doctor Nayar; Sir Gordon Fraser; the President; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Yaqub Hasan; Mr. Krishna Rao.)

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER:—"I strongly approve of the remarks made by the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar. I think the limit of Rs. 1,500 is an unduly low one. I am not quite sure which point we are discussing whether it is the amendment brought forward by the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan Sahib or that of the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Amendment No. 45 is before the Council."

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER:—"The section says: 'The Council shall appoint a Health Officer, an Engineer and a Revenue Officer, who shall be heads of departments working under the Commissioner: provided that (a) every such appointment shall be subject to confirmation by the Governor in Council; and (b) the monthly salary of the Health Officer and Engineer shall not be less than six hundred rupees and shall not exceed fifteen hundred rupees, and the monthly salary of the Revenue Officer shall not be less than six hundred rupees and shall not exceed twelve hundred rupees.' I should like to see the proviso (a) and (b) deleted. I think the fixing of a maximum of Rs. 1,500 for experts like the Health Officer and the Engineer would be a mistake."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I have only one word to say. I quite appreciate, being a professional man myself paying a good price for professional men; otherwise we will be landing ourselves in difficulties. But there is an old saying—the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar has quoted one saying, I may quote another 'you must cut your cloth to suit your body; you cannot cut your body to suit your cloth.' We have to consider the financial resources of the Corporation. Our revenue is Rs. 35,00,000 and there is no use of our aspiring to imitate Bombay and Calcutta in paying high salaries. If somebody else will find the money, I am quite prepared to sanction the pay, but unfortunately the Corporation has to find the money and its resources are limited. That is the only reason why I press this amendment."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I will now put amendment No. 45."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"Will your Excellency put mine?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I have already informed the Honourable Gentleman that it is not possible. I do not know how many days the Honourable Member has had for putting down his amendment on paper."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"If not the whole proviso, at least proviso (b) may be deleted."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman must take it from me that we have already dealt with clause (b) the amendment to it on the paper."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"The question whether (b) should be omitted or amended."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"No, we are going to take a vote whether the clause should stand part of the Bill or not. That is after our refusing to amend the amendment."

The first portion of the amendment and not proviso was put and lost.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The honourable gentleman can only now vote against the whole clause."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"The proviso goes. I withdraw it."

Clause 85 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 86.

Clause 86 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 87.

Clause 87 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 88.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I do not propose to move my amendment."

The amendment which was not moved was as follows:—

Substitute 'thirty' for 'thirty-three'.

Clause 88 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 89.

Clause 89 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar ;
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; the President ;
Mr. Venkatapati Raju.)

[11TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

Clause 90

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—" I move amendment No. 47—

Substitute 'two hundred and fifty' for 'five hundred'.

" Clause 90 is this 'Subject to the provisions of sections 85, 86, 87 and 89, appointments to the Corporation establishment shall be made—

(a) by the Council if the maximum monthly salary of the office exceeds five hundred rupees ;

(b) by the Commissioner in other cases.

" I propose to make it Rs. 250. The effect of my amendment will be that the Commissioner can make all appointments of officers drawing salaries up to Rs. 250 and the Council will make all appointments above that salary. This amendment does not require many words to commend it to Your Excellency's Government."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar :—" My amendment to this clause is this :

" 48. Insert the following as sub-clause (b) :—

'by the Standing Committee, if the maximum monthly salary of the officer exceeds Rs. 250 but does not exceed Rs. 500.'

Alter the existing sub-clause (b) to (c).

" There I propose to give power to the Standing Committee to make appointments between Rs. 250 and 500. Under section 90 no power is given to the Standing Committee to make appointments at all. All appointments are to be made by the Commissioner or the Council and the Standing Committee has no voice in making any appointment. I think they are the people who do most of the work and I therefore propose that all appointments above Rs. 250 and below Rs. 500 should be made by the Standing Committee. I think it will be a workable plan. It will give power to all the authorities to appoint officers."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. Rajagopala Achariyar :—" I have already told the Council on a previous occasion that at present under the existing law the Council has no power of appointment in regard to the Health Officer, Revenue Officer and Engineer and that we are now giving these powers. I will now add that under the existing section 58 (1) : 'The President may appoint permanently or temporarily such subordinate officers and servants as the Corporation, subject to the control of the local Government, consider necessary for the purposes of this Act.' There is no money limit. At present the patronage runs thus : As regards the President, the Revenue Officer, the Health Officer and the Engineer, the Government appoint them and the whole of the other staff is appointed by the President. Under section 58 the President can appoint officers on salaries up to Rs. 1,000. Under the new law the Government appoint the Commissioner and the Corporation appoints the chief heads, and all other appointments are vested in the Commissioner who is the chief executive officer. I think it is a very fair distribution, and I think it is very wise on the part of the Select Committee not to have given any power of appointment to the Standing Committee and to restrict their activities to other matters and leave the minor appointments to the executive head. I therefore oppose the amendment."

His Excellency the President :—" This is a small matter, I shall put it to the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju :—" This is an important resolution, Your Excellency, and therefore I want to say a few words."

His Excellency the President :—" Yes."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju :—" Though the question of appointment looks small, it is an important provision in the Bill. We are embarking on this Bill because the Government of India said that there should be less of outside control in the matter of local self-government. Now in the matter of contracts our powers are restricted ; in the matter of appointments also there is practically outside control with reference to three officers whose appointment must be confirmed by the Government. With regard to the rest it has to be done by the thumb of the Government. That is not what we want in local self-government. Even in this matter the Government may give up their mantle theory and accept the amendment."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar :—" I withdraw my amendment in favour of the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan's amendment. I do not want to introduce complications by introducing the Standing Committee."

With the permission of His Excellency the President, the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar withdrew his amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan's amendment was put and lost.

Clause 90 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 91.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar :—" I beg to move amendment No. 49 which runs thus : In clause 91 (3), after the words 'at the instance of' insert the words 'the President.'

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; the Advocate-General ;
the President ; Mr. Rama Ayyangar ;
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

" Section 91 deals with the schedule of appointments. It says :

(1) The commissioner shall from time to time lay before the standing committee a schedule setting forth the designations and grades of the officers and servants who should in his opinion constitute the corporation establishment and embodying his proposals with regard to the salaries, fees and allowances payable to them.

(2) The standing committee may either approve or amend such schedule as it thinks fit and shall lay it before the council with its remarks, if any.

(3) The council shall sanction such schedule with or without modifications as it thinks fit and may from time to time amend it at the instance of the commissioner and the standing committee."

" I think it is an omission to leave the president out of account and therefore I say it should be at the instance of the president, the commissioner and the standing committee. I think it will be fitting with the responsible position that is allowed to the president under the new Act that he should also have the power to introduce variations in the schedule of appointments, because he will be in touch with it. He will be an ex officio member of the standing committees and he will come to know the details and if the council can vary the schedule at the instance of the commissioner and the standing committee, why should it not be also at the instance of the president? I therefore move this amendment."

The Hon'ble the Advocate-General :—" Your Excellency, this is a matter of establishment. The president has nothing to do with the establishment. He is on every standing committee as an ex officio member. Power is given to the standing committee to move the council to amend the schedule. The president has no control over the establishment, and it would seem unnecessary to put in this needless thing."

His Excellency the President :—" Does the Honourable Gentleman press the amendment?"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar :—" Yes."

The amendment was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar :—" I beg to move amendment 50 which is this :—

'In clause 91 (3), add at the end "or on the requisition of not less than ten commissioners."

" This is a matter which I only want to be brought to the notice of the Government. My point is that if the standing committee of four persons reject a resolution there is an end of the matter. In that case unless they report, the council cannot consider the matter under the section. If the president also were allowed a voice in the matter as suggested in the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar's amendment I could have put off my amendment. I want that the council also may move in the matter. Suppose four persons in the standing committee reject the necessity for an appointment ; the council may move it if ten members make a requisition. That will enable the council to consider the question of this additional establishment. I think it is only necessary that we should have this when we frame a scheme for the advancement of local self-government."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. Rajagopala Achariyar :—" I confess I have listened carefully to the Honourable Member, but I do not quite understand what it is that he wants to secure. Clause 91 (3) as it stands is as follows : 'The council shall sanction such schedule with or without modifications as it thinks fit and may from time to time amend it at the instance of the commissioner and the standing committee.' The commissioner is the executive head and the standing committee is one of the committees of the council. The Honourable Member is introducing a third element, what he calls ten councillors. I venture to think there is no case for adding to the number of authorities which we already have. This last addition I would deprecate. I therefore oppose the proposal."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar :—" I would only explain."

His Excellency the President :—" Oh no. The Honourable Member has understood what has been said."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar :—" He appeared as if he did not understand it. The standing committee may reject a proposal if four vote against the appointment. If four out of seven can reject it, I want liberty to be given for ten members of the council to move it. If the standing committee recommends, the council considers, and if the commissioner recommends the council considers. I want when there is a difference in the standing committee ten councillors may move the Council."

The amendment was put and lost.

Clause 91 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 92.

Clause 92 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 93.

Clause 93 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

(Mr. Krishna Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar; the Advocate-General.)

[11TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

Clause 94.

Clause 94 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 95.

Clause 95 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 96.

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"I have the honour to move amendment No. 51:—

'In clause 96 (1) proviso substitute "fifty rupees" for "one hundred rupees," and omit the following words at the end of the proviso:—

"for a period of more than three months."

"Clause 96 (1) as amended by the Select Committee runs as follows: 'any officer or servant other than an officer appointed under section 85, section 86 or sub-section (3) of section 87 may be fined, reduced, suspended, removed or dismissed by the authority competent to appoint him; and the order of such authority shall be final; provided that any officer or servant in receipt of a salary of not less than Rs. 100 may appeal to the standing committee against any order of the commissioner removing or dismissing him or suspending him for a period of more than three months'. If the amendment suggested by me is accepted, the effect will be that in the appeal provided against suspension the restriction as to the period being over three months will be omitted and that officers on Rs. 50 and upwards will have the right of appeal. I quite realize that in the Select Committee an attempt was made to improve the provision contained in the Bill of 1918; and the original limit of Rs. 200 and some other provisions were modified. I will now read to the Council the provisions in the existing Municipal Act. Though in the Select Committee some improvement was effected in that direction, it is a matter for consideration whether it is necessary to create more limitations than you find in the old Act when we are trying the experiment of a new commissioner. Section 59 (1) of the existing Act says that 'any municipal servant in receipt of a salary of not less than Rs. 50 per mensem may appeal to the standing committee against an order of dismissal by the president, and any such servant in receipt of a salary of not less than Rs. 200 per mensem may further appeal from the order of the standing committee to the corporation.' It provides an appeal against orders of dismissal in the case of servants drawing above Rs. 50 and a second appeal in the case of officers drawing not less than Rs. 200. I am not suggesting a second appeal. I am suggesting that we may put the limit at Rs. 50, because we are trying a new experiment of the commissioner. If after working it for some time it is found that the limit should be increased, there will be time enough to increase it. But for the time being, I would suggest that the existing limit of Rs. 50 need not be increased. An appeal has been provided to the standing committee. Human nature being what it is, if only a man makes up his mind to suspend a man, he may suspend him for two months and fifteen days so as to make it impossible for him to appeal. If you once provide a right of appeal, but put any such limitation there will be that danger. I think it is better that you do not provide such limitation."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar seconded the amendment.

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I have very little to say about this except that this provision as to the right of appeal has been put in after very careful consideration, and I see no reason to modify it as proposed by the Honourable Member, and therefore I oppose the amendment."

The amendment was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I do not move amendment No. 52. It falls with the previous motion."

The amendment ran thus:—

"In clause 96 (2) after the words 'the council' insert 'or the standing committee as the case may be' and substitute the word 'either' for the word 'that' before the word 'authority'."

"And in the proviso after the word 'council' insert the words 'or the standing committee as the case may be'."

Clause 96 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 97.

Clause 97 was allowed to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 98.

The Hon'ble the ADVOCATE-GENERAL:—"I beg to move amendment No. 52-A which is as follows:—

'In sub-clause (f) omit the words "and firewood."'

"In the Bill as introduced there was no tax on timber or firewood. Under the existing law a licence fee can be levied on timber and firewood brought into the city. The Select Committee has restored power to the corporation to levy a licence duty in the shape of a tax on timber and 11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (The Advocate-General; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Sir Gordon Fraser; the President.)

firewood. Since the report of the Select Committee was made, I am instructed to state that the Government have come to the decision that while the tax on timber may stand, the tax on firewood must be omitted as it will fall very hardly on the poorer members of the community and it is necessary as far as possible to facilitate the price of firewood being controlled. The rates in the market should not be made higher by a tax on firewood. Firewood contractors may take advantage of it. It is with that view that this amendment is brought forward—for the benefit of the poorer consumers of firewood."

The Hon'ble Mr. H. G. Stokes seconded the motion.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I oppose this amendment. Under the existing law we have power to impose a licence fee on timber and firewood and we realize about Rs. 50,000 per annum from firewood. After notice was given of this amendment the corporation considered it at the last meeting and they considered this aspect of the question about this alleged benefit to the poorer classes. It is really no benefit at all. It is so trifling indeed. I do not think the price of firewood has anything whatever to do with this small licence fee which the corporation levies on firewood brought into the city. We are not going to benefit the poorer classes, but we are going to benefit the merchants. I think it is a false policy to suggest that the poorer classes are going to benefit by the abolition of the licence fee. The only person whom you are going to benefit is the profiteering man who wants to put up the price. I submit this is an ill-advised amendment. Nobody has complained about the existing law. I use the argument often repeated in this chamber that nobody has complained of the duty and said that they were groaning under the licence fee. May I use that argument in support of the position taken by the corporation? As it is, our resources are very limited. We should like to introduce other duties on goods brought into the city. In fact, the Hon'ble Mr. Rama Ayyangar—I am sorry he is not here—has given notice of amendment No. 70 which necessitates also the introduction of the words 'coal' and 'charcoal.' I do not know why my Honourable Friend has not thought fit to introduce those words here. We are only keeping up a thing which has been working without any complaint for a long time. I do not see why the Government have thought fit to omit the word 'firewood.' It is with considerable difficulty in the Select Committee that we got it restored. Now you go back on it and say it is for the benefit of the poorer classes. That is an argument put forward here. We do think the poorer classes are not going to be benefited."

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER:—"I also oppose the amendment. Under clause 129 the rate is fixed. It is provided that the rate shall not exceed six annas per ton. That cannot possibly affect the selling price to the small poorer consumer and the amount of revenue we are now enjoying from this source is quite sufficient to make the corporation loath to give up this form of taxation."

The amendment was put and agreed to.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We shall take a poll."

A poll was taken with the result that 18 voted for and 15 against the amendment.

The following was the division:—

For	Against
The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.	The Hon'ble Mr. V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar.
" Mr. L. Davidson.	" Mr. T. Richmond.
" Mr. C. G. Todhunter.	" Dr. T. M. Nayar.
" Mr. R. Ramachandra Rao.	" Mr. K. R. Suryanarayanamurti
" Mr. M. Young.	" Nayudu.
" Mr. L. E. Buckley.	" Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju.
" Mr. Aziz-ud-din Sahib.	" the Rev. G. Pittendrigh.
" Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.	" Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar.
" Mr. P. Siva Rao.	" Yaqub Hasan Sahib.
" Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.	" Mr. K. Chidambaramatha Mudali-
" Mr. R. Littlehales.	" yar.
" Mr. J. C. Molony.	" Mr. A. Suryanarayana Rao.
" Mr. W. Hutton.	" Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.
" Mr. W. J. J. Howley.	" Sir Francis Spring.
" Mr. A. Y. G. Campbell.	" Sir Gordon Fraser.
" Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.	" Mr. J. H. Thonger.
" the Advocate-General.	" the Most Rev. Archbishop Aelen.
" Mr. H. G. Stokes.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I may point out that the next amendment is an entire encroachment upon the revenue of the Government of India and it will require the special sanction of the Government of India. Therefore it is a question whether it is worth the while of my Honourable Friend to move it."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I hope to get the sanction."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"You are a sanguine man."

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan.) [11TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—“ My amendment is this—Insert as sub-clause (h) after sub-clause (g) the words ‘ a duty not exceeding half a per cent on the value of all goods brought within the city by sea ’ and alter sub-clause (h) into (i).”

“This is a very old prerogative which the Corporation had enjoyed long ago. Under Act IX of 1857 which was really the first consolidating Act so far as the Madras Corporation is concerned, sections 63 to 67 enabled the Corporation of Madras to levy a duty on goods brought into the city by sea at the rate of four annas per ton. That Act was in operation till the Act of 1871 was passed and this power was afterwards taken away. It is eminently desirable that we should have some additional sources of taxation. We are giving new responsibilities to the corporation, and, as it is, the health of the city is in a very poor condition, a deplorable condition indeed, and it will require lakhs and lakhs of rupees before we can improve the condition of Madras. By carrying the previous amendment we have deprived the corporation of an existing source of revenue. Our revenue, as I have already stated in the corporation, is not equal to the expenditure which we are likely to incur in the near future—the legitimate necessary expenditure which we are likely to incur in the near future. This duty has this advantage in that it will not be felt by any one. It is such a trifling sum ‘not exceeding half a per cent on the value of all goods brought within the city by sea.’ I believe I may be corrected, but so far as the figures show, I believe the value of goods imported by sea is about Rs. 1,400 lakhs every year. That is what I remember. If that is so, it will give us a substantial sum and it will fall upon the importing merchants and spread from the importing merchants to the retail traders and from the traders to the consumers. Nobody will feel it because it is such a small addition. On the other hand, it will give such a substantial addition to our revenue. I expect we would realize six or seven lakhs. Having regard to our resources which are crippled indeed, this will be a very welcome addition. I submit that the Corporation has been recommending it for some time and if I am not mistaken the Trades Association supported the proposal and the Chamber of Commerce also supported it; but I am not sure. The Hon’ble Sir Gordon Fraser shakes his head, but I believe the Trades Association did support it and the Corporation has been insisting on it.

“Your Excellency, in this I make a strong appeal to Your Excellency’s Government to treat the amendment which we have brought forward to this taxation section in a different spirit from the way in which you have been dealing with our other amendments. In fact, I was about to give up in despair any attempt on our part to introduce any improvements in the City Bill having regard to the way in which suggestions made by non-official Members are received by the official Member and, also on account of the official mandate, by all the other official members who vote against us. We are powerless to carry any amendments here, and unless the Government come to our rescue, matters will stand still. The Honourable Member in charge of the Bill is the Honourable Member in charge of the affairs of the corporation, and he knows perfectly well what our resources are and what our expenditure is. He knows also the insistent appeals which the corporation has been sending to him from time to time for financial aid. I hope to see a day when the corporation may stand on its own legs without looking to the Government for subventions and grants, which is not reasonable for a premier corporation like the Madras Corporation. It should be able to stand on its own legs. I can understand a poor municipality in a remote district having to depend upon subventions from the Government. I am sorry representing the premier corporation in the Presidency having to plead for financial assistance. I therefore ask for the corporation being placed on sound financial legs. Unless such assistance is given, it is not likely to stand on its own legs. Your Excellency and your successors will be pestered by the corporation in the years to come for grants. This is a growing asset; I am sure that the commerce of Madras must improve tremendously and this will be a growing item of revenue. The small tax I proposed in my amendment will be unperceived by anybody; it will not be felt by the poor or the rich. It has all the advantages. The only objection is that it trenches upon the Government of India’s resources. I ask Your Excellency’s Government to put in a strong plea with the Government of India, and I am sure an appeal from Your Excellency’s Government supported by the vote of this Council will carry weight with the Government of India and perhaps make them see their way to grant this request to have this duty imposed. I therefore strongly recommend this amendment for your acceptance, subject to that sanction, which I hope to get because the whole Bill will go before them, and if Your Excellency’s Government will accept it and appeal to the Government of India to give that necessary sanction, it will be given.”

The Hon'ble YACUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I beg to second this proposition. One of the arguments that might be urged against it was that a large part of the goods imported into the City of Madras goes out of Madras into the interior of the country and this imposition on that part of the goods which goes away from the City of Madras will not be justified. My submission is that if such goods are imported by any merchants up-country they will only pass through the City of Madras, and will be carried away by rail and so will not be subject to this charge. Still there will be some goods which will be taken delivery of by merchants which will be stored here and sold to up-country merchants afterwards and carried away outside the city. If such goods are bought wholesale and carried away in unbroken packages, some refund may be made on such goods. Some device could very easily be made for it. Even if that device is not made, and this tax is not refunded on the goods that are received in the city and afterwards exported out of the city, the hardship will not be felt because it is only half a per cent of the value of goods. That will be the contribution by the population of the Presidency of Madras to this municipality which is the capital town of the Presidency, and I should say that contribution will be very cheerfully paid by the population when it is felt that it is so very little that it will not affect the prices of the goods sold in the market. It will be practically borne by the merchants and not by the consumers.

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

12. Mr. Banea Achariyar has made a strong appeal to Your Excellency to

“The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar has made a strong appeal to Your Excellency to support this amendment because we do want money and it must come from some source or other, and if some such source of income is denied to us, it will not improve our financial condition and we will not be able to carry out the undertaking which this Bill imposes on us. It is not an encroachment upon the Government of India's resources. The Government of India get their duty. This is an additional thing. We are not asking the Government of India to give away a portion of the amount they are collecting. This is an additional amount which we want to secure with the assistance and approval of the Government of India. If Your Excellency should allow this to be carried in this Council and then support it by a personal appeal, it will have very great weight with the Government of India. Out of 130 amendments every one is being defeated; let this at least be carried. In this instance we are not shirking our duty. On the other hand we are adding to our income and not reducing the expenditure in any way. We are trying to make the work of the corporation more efficient. We appeal to Your Excellency's Government to give us this source of income.”

The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING :—“ Your Excellency, I see many difficulties in practically carrying out this proposal to charge half a per cent on the value of all goods brought into the city by sea. That excludes exports, no doubt, it concerns only imports. Technically, all imports are brought into the city by sea because the port is within the city area. Therefore, it will be necessary to have some machinery whereby rebates shall be given to all goods which pass into the city but pass out again, as the Honourable Member has said, in unbroken packages.”

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :— "We are now giving rebate in the case of timber."

The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING :—“ It will be more difficult to do it in the case of many kinds of merchandise. First of all I would like to say what is the amount they are likely to get from this proposal. The value of the whole import trade is roughly Rs. 21 crores a year and half per cent of that would be Rs. 10½ lakhs. They do not propose to levy the half per cent on the whole of the imports but only on part, and that would bring about 7½ or 8 lakhs, a very substantial sum. The only machinery that can correctly collect it, without harassing the importer, is the Port Trust. We can do that quite easily, but we cannot do the rebate part of it. The tax itself may have much to recommend it; but I would like to point out one or two facts which the Honourable Member's proposal has not noticed. Later on they are proposing to tax the Port Trust. I shall have a later opportunity of speaking about that. But for the moment I will not speak about that, except to say that the Port Trust has no means of livelihood, has indeed no source of revenue, except the goods which pass through its hands. What is proposed is half a per cent on goods, and there will be separately again such dues as the Port Trust may find it necessary to levy in order to recoup itself for the taxation which it will be obliged to pay. That will be perhaps another lakh. So it is not merely half a per cent but a little more. I do not think I need say anything more than that; it is not half per cent; it would be more than half a per cent.”

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—" May I point out in answer to the Hon'ble Sir Francis Spring that if this is carried this may be provided for by my amendment No. 71 ? "

No. 719

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER :—“ Your Excellency, I oppose this amendment, which I am afraid must only be classified as unbusinesslike. The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar referred to the old tax of As. 4 per ton. As against that old tax of As. 4 per ton, he now suggests half per cent. Our largest imports are in cotton piece-goods and yarns. Four annas per ton on these goods is roughly equal to about one hundredth per cent, so you see that the Hon'ble Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar suggests one-half per cent now, as against one hundredth per cent, the latter being the old tax he refers to. So that the two cases cannot in any way be compared. Then again the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar points out that this tax would not be felt by anybody, but I am sorry to say that it will be a very heavy tax on trade. There is a certain limit beyond which the tax on imports into Madras cannot go. The imports will come into competition with goods coming from Bombay, and taking yarn and piece-goods again, if you work out the rate of tax, it works out to a sum of Rs. 10 per ton. It means that for all practical purposes the importation of such goods through Madras would cease; it would be impossible to import goods into Madras in competition with Bombay. It might be arranged that when goods leave the city and are re-exported out of the city a refund may be paid. I have not considered that point, but so far as this proposal to levy a tax on imports is concerned, I strongly oppose the proposal.”

Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—“ I would ask the indulgence

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—“ I would ask the indulgence of the Council to permit me to deal with this question at some length, because the idea underlying the Honourable Member's proposal is so plausible and it looks as if he has struck some remedy which will end all our troubles ; and I fear unless it is brought home to the Council, as cost to pay? He will say 'stop all municipal advance'; he will be quite content with Madras as it is or as it was thirty years ago, instead of piling up the burden on the house-owners. We will see the danger thirty years hence, we will be in a bad plight then and we will be sorry that we did not give this source of revenue. The rate-payers of that day will feel helpless. That is the ground on which I ask Your Excellency's Government to take a more sober view of the financial situation of the corporation and not merely advance arguments for arguments' sake.

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

[11TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"Now it is said it handicaps Madras trade. How does it handicap it? It depends upon the value of the goods brought. The Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser referred to cotton goods which are very valuable and he said that the duty may come up to Rs. 10 per ton, even then it will not come too much. I do not see how Madras people will prefer other ports to Madras. The duty in Bombay and other places may be higher. I do not know exactly how it is, but I understand that the charge by rail from Bombay to Madras will be greater than this duty which will be imposed if the goods came by sea to Madras. If the person taxed takes it to Bombay and thence sends it to Madras, he will have to pay more than what he could have to pay if it came to Madras by sea. Even by paying half a per cent, he will be saving Rs. 10 per ton, even in the case of cotton goods. Therefore I do not think it will be a real handicap.

"Then as regards the question of rebate, the Honourable Member in charge pictured what establishment will be required. The Corporation have not felt any difficulty in giving a rebate on timber brought into the city. They have not required a costly establishment. Nobody has complained that the Corporation has been loose or lax in granting rebate. This is a matter which may be easily provided for. Rebate will only be given in the case of goods with unbroken packages which go in bulk. Then only there will be rebate. There is no difficulty in giving rebate.

"Let us not draw a lurid picture about other places and other matters. The Honourable Member said that every other town may demand it. What is the harm if they do? Every town in the United Provinces has got it and every town in Bombay has got it. Here they have not asked for it yet and when they ask for it let us deal with it. Every other town may be flush of funds. It will depend upon local circumstances. I do not think it is right to adduce that argument. The Honourable Member has asked why any inland town should not have an octroi duty. If it is necessary to finance the local body, why should it not have it? It is prevalent everywhere. I am indebted to the Honourable Member for the information which he has given to this Council from his wide experience, his wide travel. That shows how wise those people are and how unwise we are in not imposing a duty on these goods. In this country the idea is, there is the land and the house; tax them, everything else no. It trenches upon other people's properties. This is an easy thing; and let us have it. We are unable to resist it; we are such a helpless lot. Tax the house and tax the land. That is the chief burden in this country, whereas there is an easy and indirect source of taxation which nobody will feel, and when I suggest it, the Honourable Member in charge chooses to oppose it. I therefore strongly urge this amendment on this Council."

The amendment was put and lost.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar demanded a poll which was taken with the result that 11 voted for and 21 against the amendment.

The following was the division:—

For	Against
The Hon'ble Mr. P. Siva Rao.	The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew.
" Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar.	" Mr. L. Davidson.
" Dr. T. M. Nayar.	" Mr. C. G. Todhunter.
" Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju.	" Mr. A. Y. G. Campbell.
" the Raja of Pithapuram.	" Mr. R. Ramachandra Rao.
" Mr. A. Subbarayalu Reddiyar.	" Mr. M. Young.
" Mr. T. Ranga Achariyar.	" Mr. L. E. Buckley.
" Mr. A. Suryanarayana Rao.	" Mr. Aziz-ud-din Sahib.
" Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.	" Mr. Marjoribanks.
" Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.	" Mr. V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar.
" the Most Reverend John Aelen.	" Mr. K. R. Suryanarayanamurti
	" Nayudu.
	" Sir Francis Spring.
	" Mr. R. Littlehales.
	" Sir Fairless Barber.
	" Sir Gordon Fraser.
	" Mr. J. C. Molony.
	" Mr. W. Hutton.
	" Mr. W. J. J. Howley.
	" the Advocate-General.
	" Mr. P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
	" Mr. H. G. Stokes.

11TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Ranga Achariyar; the President.)

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"May I ask whether the Hon'ble Mr. Molony is not entitled to vote according to his views?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman has no reason to raise that question."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Does the Honourable Gentleman move the next amendment?"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"It will take some time."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We will take it up at 11 o'clock to-morrow, and the Insect Pests Bill will be taken on the next day. I say this just to release those members who are interested in it."

The Council then adjourned till 11 a.m. on Wednesday, the 12th February 1919.

H. G. STOKES,

Acting Secretary to Government, L. & M. (Legislative) Dept.

682

THE MADRAS CITY MUNICIPAL BILL, 1918.

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.) [11th FEBRUARY 1919.]

I hope to do, that it is utterly impracticable, there would be an uneasy feeling that we have neglected a very profitable source of revenue which would have relieved the Government from the obligation of paying subsidies to relieve the finances of the corporation. Your Excellency has already pointed out that this would require the special sanction of the Government of India, and I would add to that that the special sanction of the Government of India will not in any case be given, because the Government of India have already told us in another connexion that, while they know that this tax which is really octroi does exist in some places, they will not allow this thing to be extended. They say they will allow no extension of the system. That is why we put in the timber duty, because it is already there and there is nothing new. But this new proposal will extend to all things coming by sea, and the Government of India will say, as they are entitled to say, that we are trespassing on their customs revenue and they would not allow a provincial legislature to interfere with that revenue by imposing a duty which is really an octroi on goods coming by sea.

"Let me now proceed to explain why we are unable to make that strong recommendation for this duty which the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar has appealed to us to do. The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar's proposal is a duty 'not exceeding half a per cent on the value of all the goods brought into the city by sea.' It really means it will handicap imports by sea into Madras as against imports by sea into any other town. Suppose a man brings the goods by sea to Cuddalore and it is brought into Chingleput or Villupuram, he would not have to pay the half a per cent duty. If he brings them here, he will have to pay half a per cent. How the half a per cent duty will work I am not in a position at present to say, but I would be surprised very much if it does not work hardship to the profits of the importing merchants which are often such that they will seriously consider whether with this half a per cent duty it would be worth while to import or not. Why it is proposed to impose a duty on goods coming by sea and not on those coming by land I have not been able to understand, unless it be that the Honourable Member now finds that a great deal of the goods come in by sea and therefore says 'let us deal with them'. I would also point out there will be a large volume of refunds. The idea being that only those things that are consumed in Madras City will be taxed, equity will require rebate on all those goods which simply go through the city. That will require an elaborate set of rules.

"There is one main consideration which influenced the Government in setting our face against this new departure. What does it lead to? The Honourable Member says in regard to Madras City it has reached the maximum taxation and the people are unable to pay any more. 'We have got to do a lot of work. Let us impose half a per cent.' Once you admit the principle of taxing goods coming into the city for municipal purposes—I do not say it does not exist elsewhere, but I say it does not exist here—there is really no reason why it should stop at half a per cent. The time may come when you may say, 'raise it by another half a per cent; then we can wholly abolish the house-tax.' This is really a sliding scale and I do not know where we would end. Would it stop with Madras City? The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar proposes to relieve the rate-payers of Madras by this half a per cent duty. Similarly every other town will naturally follow. The people in Negapatam, my Honourable Friend Mr. Ahmad Tambi Marakkayar is not here, I am sure he will endorse this statement—the moment this is passed—would press for a similar impost in regard to Negapatam. The same is the case with other ports. We will have a number of ring fences in a number of ports and later on nothing could come free into any port and a time will come when it will be one per cent, and even more and the people would aspire to get themselves free from local taxation imagining very erroneously that they are not paying anything, not knowing that the whole thing will really fall upon them. Why do you say that the sea port of Madras should levy an octroi duty? Why do you stop at Madras? An inland town may say we must put barriers all round; we will see that nothing shall get into our town unless it pays half a per cent duty. Once you admit this principle in regard to one city, it will extend to all other ports and to all municipalities, and you will find that an ordinary traveller would be doing nothing but being searched for octroi, and it will be an unpleasant experience. When I passed along the Mediterranean Coast, I passed a number of places which had octroi, and in six places I was searched for a thing which I never carried, but they would not believe me when I told them I never carried tobacco."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Local areas?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Those places had adopted the suggestion of the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar and carried it to its logical conclusion. As a matter of fact I had to come back and the same people again searched me in the six places. I told them that I never carried tobacco, but they said they must search."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR (interrupting):—"Does the Honourable Member think that all this lurid picture arises out of my proposal?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"All this lurid picture arises out of your seemingly modest proposal. This amendment, which appears so plausible and likely to end all our troubles and from which you are going to realize all sorts of benefit, please remember, will end in your getting nothing. After everything is said and done the burden of local taxation must fall on the local people. You can never work miracles."

11th FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Doctor Nayar; Mr. Siva Rao; the President; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

"I object to the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar's proposal because it involves a reference to the Government of India which in view of the orders already issued they are not likely to sanction; secondly because it will handicap the sea-port trade of Madras; thirdly we are unable to accede to it, because it would lead to disastrous results all over the Presidency and we are unable to make a recommendation to the Government of India on this behalf."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"I wish to explain in a very few words why I would vote for octroi. Those who advocate the cause of local self-government are told that they are not willing to tax themselves and that they propose 'not to tax the rich but tax the poor.' I think the present proposal is free from these defects. The desire of those city people to tax themselves is a laudable desire. If the Government should reject that, it is open to us to point out on later occasions when the Government complain that people are not willing to tax themselves that we offered on this occasion to tax ourselves and the Government would not accept it."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR:—"My Lord, I do not for a moment say that octroi is an ideal tax for municipal purposes. The graphic manner in which the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar depicted the inconvenience of octroi and the Government of India's horror for octroi reminded me of the fact that the Government of India were themselves maintaining an octroi duty especially in the Punjab frontier where 98 per cent of the municipal revenues were derived from octroi. If they have such horror, I fail to see why they tolerate that system there. They could have easily replaced that by a reasonable system of taxation of property. If there is no objection on principle to octroi, it is merely a question of convenience; wherever you can have recourse to octroi in order to replenish your municipal treasury you can do so. That is the manner in which I would approach this question, purely as a question of convenience. I do not say for one moment that it is an ideal method of taxation. If it is at all convenient and if you can properly carry it out if imposed, I would support."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVARAO:—"I strongly support the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar. There is an impression that the Government of India have expressed themselves strongly against the imposition of octroi. I may throw some light on this matter by referring Honourable Members of this Council to the Government of India resolution dated 10th August 1915. In paragraph 13 they deal with this mode of taxation, I am not quoting the whole paragraph but only one or two passages. They say 'the octroi system in the existing circumstances of the country has certain obvious advantages. As a tax octroi is productive and grows with the prosperity of the town. . . . On the recommendation of a strong representative committee and the Local Government, the Government of India have sanctioned an experiment in the United Provinces which involves (a) the substitution of direct taxation for octroi in the smaller towns, and (b) the application to a large number of other towns in which conditions are suitable of the system of a terminal tax or light transit dues on imports or exports, subject to no refund.' They wind up by saying 'while adhering to the principle that municipal taxation should not operate, so far as can be avoided, as a transit duty on through trade, the Government of India are prepared to concede that a light terminal tax with no refunds may in practice prove less burdensome to through trade than the octroi system as hitherto administered, provided that the following conditions are observed.' Some conditions are then prescribed. They sanctioned a scheme in the United Provinces and they also observe that they are about to negotiate with the railway company. They thought that the railway-borne goods should be taxed. They were about to negotiate with the railway company; and they have also said that the Government of Bombay have assented to the temporary levy of octroi. By whatever name you may call this, light terminal tax on imports or some other name, what the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar proposes to levy is tantamount to a transit duty on imports and he proposes refunds."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I will now put the amendment to the Council."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"The matter is too important for me to let it go without a reply. We are all accustomed to the Honourable Member's way of dealing with the subjects when he makes up his mind to oppose it; he does so adducing all the arguments good, bad and indifferent. In this case the arguments are bad and indifferent."

"As regards the objection of the Government of India let the odium of refusing it be theirs. Let us not confuse ourselves with what the Government of India would do. I am sure that the Government of India having regard to the particular conditions and practical politics will endorse the view which the Local Government may take."

"I may also point out that it has been a well recognized source of revenue of local bodies. In the United Provinces nearly sixty per cent of their revenue comes from octroi, and in Bombay nearly that percentage comes from octroi. That is why the people there are able to carry on improvements which the city so much requires. Here I may mention that we are hampered in our attempt to better the city. We have only one source of revenue, i.e., the property tax. How much burden can you inflict on property? If you look only to one source of revenue, if you go to the rate-payer and say we give you twenty per cent tax and to-morrow thirty per cent, what interest will he have in the improvement of the city if it is to be at his

Proceedings of an Adjourned Meeting of the Council of the Governor of Fort St. George assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.

The Council re-assembled at the Council Chamber, Fort St. George, at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, the 12th day of February 1919.

P R E S E N T :

His Excellency the Right Hon'ble JOHN, Baron PENTLAND of Lyth, P.C., G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., Governor of Madras—Presiding.
The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW, K.C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR Avargal, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. L. DAVIDSON, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble MUHAMMAD AZIZ-UD-DIN HUSAIN SAHIB Bahadur, Khan Bahadur, C.I.E., I.S.O., O.B.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. L. E. BUCKLEY, C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. Y. G. CAMPBELL, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. W. J. J. HOWLEY.
The Hon'ble Mr. W. HUTTON.
The Hon'ble Mr. R. LITTLEHAILES.
The Hon'ble Mr. N. E. MARJORIBANKS.
The Hon'ble Mr. J. C. MOLONY.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur R. RAMACHANDRA RAO Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. S. SRINIVASA AYYANGAR (Advocate-General).
The Hon'ble Mr. H. G. STOKES, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Mr. C. G. TODKUNTER.
The Hon'ble Mr. M. YOUNG.
The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble the Rev. G. PITTENDERIGH.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. SURYANARAYANA RAO PANTULU.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO PANTULU Garu.
The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO PANTULU.
The Hon'ble Mr. P. SIVA RAO.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur A. SUBBARAYALU REDDIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR.
The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR Avargal.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR.
The Hon'ble Sri RAJA RAO VENKATA KUMARA MAHIPATI SURYA RAO Bahadur, Raja of Pithapuram.
The Hon'ble Mr. B. VENKATAPATI RAJU.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. KUMARAN RAMAN KAVALAPPARA MUPPIL NAYAR.
The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER, Kt.
The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. THONGER.
The Hon'ble Sir FAIRLESS BARBER, Kt.
The Hon'ble the Most Rev. JOHN ALEN, D.D.
The Hon'ble Mr. T. RICHMOND.
The Hon'ble Sir FRANCIS SPRING, K.C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur K. R. SURYANARAYANAMURTI NAYUDU Garu.
The Hon'ble Raja, RAJA SRI RAVU VENKATA KUMARA KRISHNA RANGA RAO Bahadur, of Bobbili.
The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR.

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

[12TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

liquors, the Governor in Council may by notification withhold sanction to the levy of such tax or any portion thereof and in that case assign to the Corporation in lieu thereof a sum equal to the average sum realized during the last three years in which it was levied prior to the notification withholding such sanction to the levy of the tax or part thereof. That was the law so long ago as 1884. The legislature, while it gave power to the Corporation to levy a tax on places used for the retail sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors, also gave power to the executive Government by notification to withhold sanction to the levy of such tax and to assign to the Corporation in lieu thereof a sum equal to the average sum realized by such tax or part thereof during the last three years in which it was levied prior to the issue of the notification withholding such sanction. Later on, three years later, when the Government introduced a change in the abkari administration of the Presidency, they used the power vested in them by the legislature, and, while taking away from the Corporation the right to levy any tax on these places, they assigned to the Corporation an annual payment of Rs. 13,607 in respect of arrack and toddy shops, that being the average of the preceding three years. The Council will thus see that this particular law against which the Honourable Member is protesting was passed in the year 1884, and this particular compensation which he now wants to revise was fixed in 1887, and it was fixed in 1887 in accordance with the principles laid down in the law of 1884. So that, practically the Corporation ceased from 1887 onwards to get any revenue from this source direct, but it has been receiving an annual payment of Rs. 13,607 in lieu thereof. Then came the Madras City Municipal Act of 1904 which amended the Act of 1884. In that Act the provision which occurred in section 98 in regard to the levy of a tax on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors was omitted together with the latter part of section 99 for the reason that that provision had become obsolete. That provision in the Act of 1884 had been determined—the phraseology used in law—by the action of the Government in 1887. So in 1904 the legislature said that it saw no reason for keeping on the statute book an obsolete provision; and so the legislature deleted this provision which had occurred in the previous law, which provided for the levy of a tax on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors. The Act of 1904 came into force on the 16th December 1904, and from that date no power existed under which the Corporation could levy such a tax. With the passing of the law of 1904 the Corporation's power, statutory power to levy a tax on the places used for the sale of spirituous liquors, which had been determined by executive order in 1887, ceased. The Government on a careful consideration of the whole case felt that while the Corporation's legal right to this levy had ended, they would not be morally justified in stopping the payment of the contribution which the Corporation had been receiving for a considerable length of time and so by executive order they said the annual grant of Rs. 13,607 which the Corporation had been getting from 1887 would be continued, and that is continuing till to-day. The Honourable Member now proposes to go back. He proposes to restore this privilege which the Corporation had at one time enjoyed to levy the tax on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors, and he proposes to restore it without the restriction under which it was enjoyed. Whereas in 1884 the law said that the Corporation should enjoy this privilege subject to the control of the Local Government—

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR (interrupting):—"The original Act gave it unrestricted power from 1863 to 1887. It was only by the amending Act the restriction was imposed."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"The amending Act is as much law as the original Act. I fail to see the distinction between the two. I do not see how the original Act acquires greater sanctity by being the original Act than the amending Act. The amending Act means that the original Act has been amended. From 1884 the exercise by the Corporation of the right to levy a duty on the places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors was subject to the right of the Government to stop it on paying an amount equivalent to what the Corporation had been receiving on an average during the last three years. That privilege has been exercised by the Government from the year 1887. The average of the preceding three years was struck and that amount was fixed. What the Honourable Member now proposes is: let us go back. He says, he does not say it in so many words, but when he says 'compensation for tax on places used for sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors,' I assume he means: 'we are entitled to levy the tax on places used for the sale of these liquors, but we are prepared to forego that right, provided the Government pay us a certain amount of money.' The whole thing is this: this amount would have been much larger if the Government had not then exercised this right. If the Government had then kept quiet, had abstained from exercising that right till now, they would have taken the average of the latest three years. But I venture to point out that, at that time, when the settlement was made, presumably the Corporation was satisfied. It was very unwise on the part of the Corporation to have kept quiet all the time from 1887, for a considerable time—"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR (interrupting):—"We complained to the Government in 1887 that we were groaning under it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"If it took ten years for the Corporation to discover and complain of the injustice under which it was groaning, the injustice could not have been so very great. It appears to me that the iniquity which it takes ten years to be discovered by the particular local body cannot after all be a great thing. Are we now to go back, are we now to admit in favour of the local body of Madras the right to levy a duty on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors? If we admit it in Madras, we will

12TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Dr. Nayar ;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ;
the President.)

have to admit it all over the Presidency. We cannot say that we recognize this right on the part of the Madras municipality, but refuse to recognize it in the case of Negapatam or Ellore. If we admit it in the case of municipalities, we cannot refuse to recognize it in the case of local boards. Although this amendment raises a small question, it really raises a broad question of the abkari revenue. That is a wide question which we are now hardly fit to deal with for the reason that this is a source of revenue which is divided between this Government and the Government of India. Much as we should like to put this on a satisfactory basis, we cannot do so as matters stand, and any division that we take will be of no value. For these reasons I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR:—"May I be permitted to move a slight verbal amendment to the amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar? I would move that the words 'contribution from the local Government as compensation for tax' be omitted and the words 'licence fee' be substituted. It would then read 'a licence fee on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors,'"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I accept it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I beg to second it."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Does the Honourable Gentleman understand the amendment?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"It struck me that it should have been in that way."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The amendment of the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar will now be discussed."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"May I take it that this is the amendment that we have now to meet?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Yes, that is the object with which I put it now."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR:—"My object in moving this verbal amendment is to make the question a perfectly straight one as the Honourable Member in charge in replying to the observations of the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar said that Mr. Ranga Achariyar's amendment was coming in a round about way to claim a compensation. My position is that I am going to claim the old position which the Madras municipality had in 1884 and which was taken away from that municipality by a series of acts or orders which are in my opinion absolutely unjust. I go back to the position that the Madras Corporation is entitled to levy the licence fee on premises used for the sale of intoxicating liquors and they have got a right to the whole of the licence fee. In the earlier discussion on this subject in the Corporation unfortunately the licence fee on such places was mixed up loosely with the excise duty and it naturally provoked the reply that excise duty was not a municipal right. The first thing that I want to make clear to the Council is that I dissociate this from all excise. I am not dealing with the excise revenue at all, which item is an imperial source of revenue; municipal bodies have no claim either in whole or in part to any excise revenue. But municipal bodies all over the world exercise the right to levy a licence fee; it may be for a theatre, pandal or a cowshed or a liquor shop or for anything else. Certain places within municipal limits used for certain purposes are licensed by municipalities and are charged a certain licence fee for that purpose. It is under that head that the Madras municipality enjoyed that right and it is under that condition that I claim that right back again for the Corporation. I beg the Honourable Members of this Council not to confound the excise revenue with this particular licence fee which the Madras Corporation claims to levy."

"My Lord, the fact that the Madras municipality enjoyed the right up to a certain time and it was only taken away by the executive Government after promising to pay compensation conclusively proves the right of the Madras Corporation to this. I need not go further and elaborate on that. The reasons which actuated the Government in taking over this right of collecting the licence fees and compensating the Madras municipality may have been of an administrative nature, connected with the Excise department. They might have found it more convenient to administer the excise revenue in connexion with this licence duty. It would be more convenient for the Government to collect that duty. If that was the case, I think in faithfully dealing with the Madras Corporation they ought to have arranged with them to hand over the whole duty to the municipality only deducting from it a certain amount for collection expenses which the Government officials might have incurred. The fact that they did not do so ought not to stand in the way of our now claiming it. The Government were then in a stronger position than the municipality. For that matter even now they are. They took advantage of that strong position in driving a hard bargain. There is no evidence on record that the Madras municipality was then consulted or that the Madras municipality agreed to surrender it. The Honourable Member in charge made much of it, and said, 'why did they surrender it?' You may just as well ask a man who is robbed on the highway, why he surrendered his property to highway robber. There is no question of surrender, I maintain that this has been unjustly taken away from the Madras municipality."

"The Honourable Member has again raised the question why the Madras Corporation took such a long time to protest against it. The reason why they did not protest earlier was that

(The President ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.)

[12TH FEBRUARY 1919.

Clause 98.

The Council re-assembled at 11 a.m. when the discussion of amendments to clause 98 of the Madras City Municipal Bill, 1918, was resumed.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We resume the discussion of clause 98. I call upon the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar to move his amendment for adding an additional sub-clause (j)."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"The amendment which I have the honour to move runs as follows:—

'Add as clause (j) the following:—

"A contribution from the Local Government as compensation for tax on places used for sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors."

"The object of this amendment is to put on a legal footing, and on a revised footing, a source of revenue which the Corporation has been enjoying from the year 1867 onwards. By section 58 of Act IX of 1867 the Corporation was enabled to levy a duty on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors and that was continued. The Corporation itself was levying that amount and it was re-enacted in the consolidating Act I of 1884. Section 9, clause 10, of that Act, gave that power. In 1884-85 the revenue that was derived by the Corporation was about Rs. 16,000 from this tax levied on places used for the sale of liquors. Then Act VII of 1884 was passed, and by section 15 of that Act power was given to the Local Government to withhold sanction to the Corporation levying this duty on such places but made it incumbent upon the Government to compensate the Corporation for the loss of that revenue. Under that section the Government withheld their sanction to the levy of that duty; by G.O. No. 688 M., dated the 21st July 1886, the Government said 'we will pay you Rs. 7,452' and prevented us from levying this duty. Then again by G.O. No. 1167, Revenue, dated the 17th December 1887, the Government raised the sum to Rs. 13,607 on the basis of three years' average, that is, the three years preceding the stoppage of the levying of this duty by the Corporation. That was in December 1887. But since then this licence duty on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors has been growing by leaps and bounds. In 1897 the Corporation approached the Government to enhance this contribution on account of this excess collection by the Government. Whereas if the Corporation had been allowed to continue to levy this duty it would have been in receipt of more than Rs. 1 lakh. By Government Order of 11th September 1898, the Government refused that reasonable request of the Corporation. When the Act came up for revision in 1904, the power to levy this duty was not renewed in that Act. Till then it was competent to the Corporation to levy the duty; only the Government could prevent it from doing so by compensating the Corporation. Therefore when the Act of 1904 was passed, it was pointed out to the Government that it would not be proper to leave that without a legislative provision and by G.O. No. 1908 M., dated the 13th September 1905, the Government assured the Corporation that it was not their intention to take away this source of revenue and by G.O. No. 2188 M., dated the 29th October 1907, the Government passed an order to the Accountant-General, by Order No. 373, Finance, dated the 4th June 1906, passing a permanent slip to the Accountant-General to pay this sum of Rs. 13,607 for all time to come. It is under that order that the Government are now contributing to the Corporation that sum of Rs. 13,607 as compensation for this tax on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors. So that, this item of revenue the Corporation have been enjoying from 1867; only they have not been allowed to enjoy the full limits thereof, by means of this Government Order. They prohibited that, by this arrangement to pay to the Corporation this contribution. I notice from last year's figures from licence fees alone in the City of Madras the Government are realizing a sum of Rs. 10,30,982 out of a total abkari revenue of Rs. 30,45,418. The licence fees are levied under three heads—licence fees for the sale of distillery spirits, licence fees for sale of beer manufactured in India and licence fees for sale of foreign liquors. I notice there is another head of receipts from tax on persons using places for the sale of spirituous liquors. Even if we exclude that, these three heads for sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors will give us nearly Rs. 8 lakhs. This levy of a licence duty on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors is regarded everywhere as an eminently legitimate source of revenue for local taxation purposes. It will be remembered that in 1888, when finding revenue for local taxation was undertaken by Mr. Goschen and Mr. Glaistone, instead of continuing these grants-in-aid or subventions as they were called, they proposed that the central Government should collect the revenues and assign them to the local bodies, and that was how the local bodies there came to acquire the right to the licence duties as they are called, the central Government collecting them and appropriating them for purpose of local taxation. Therefore it is eminently one suited for local taxation purposes, legitimately belonging, and recognized to belong, to the local authorities and recognized also by our legislature from 1867 onwards. I therefore submit that instead of leaving it to this arrangement, namely, that the Government should continue to pay this—I do not fear that the Government notwithstanding the absence of a statutory provision will discontinue the payment of this sum—my object in bringing this forward is not that I am afraid that the Government would discontinue it, but I want to give it a statutory footing, so that we may also enjoy a share in the growth of this revenue which the Government are having. At that time, 1887, this sum of Rs. 13,607 was fixed. It is so long ago, and it is a growing item of revenue, and, as I pointed out, our legitimate share in that revenue is—we are entitled to it—the whole of these licence fees on places used for the sale of

12TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan ;
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar.)

spirituous liquors and the Government are taking away that amount. It is an item of revenue which legitimately belongs to us.

"I sent in my amendment in haste and the wording is not quite happy. I should have put it merely 'a tax on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors' omitting the words before, namely, 'a contribution from the Local Government as compensation for tax.' My other consequential amendment No. 73 might also be amended if your Excellency will permit it as follows. 'The Local Government may make rules for determining the rate of licence fees and for the collection thereof.' That is merely a verbal change. The idea is there; even if it is not open to me to move it I dare say some other Honourable Member may take it up and I therefore move that this amendment be accepted."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I beg to second this amendment, and in doing so I wish to say only a few words. It would have been much better if the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar had also fixed the percentage of the contribution calculated at the rate at which the Corporation was receiving it in the year 1886. Though the Government continued to pay the sum of Rs. 13,607, the percentage is now much less than the percentage that was being paid in 1884 or 1886. The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar has said that he has every confidence in the Government continuing to pay it; still he wants this to be incorporated in the statute book, so that there may be no departure from it. I also support this proposition, but at the same time I must say that I have not got that confidence in the Government which my Honourable Friend has. There is nothing so certain about the Government as their tendency to unsettle things. I am afraid that one day this contribution will be taken away from the Corporation by the Government on some pretext or other. With these words I second this amendment."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, in moving this amendment the Honourable Mover has referred to the desirability of giving the Corporation a definite share in the abkari revenue which is a growing revenue, and that is a line of argument which would naturally appeal to almost all non-official members. I wish in the first place to draw attention to the fact that this particular amendment does not necessarily raise that general question. The general question whether the policy of doles that we have been pursuing in regard to local bodies all over the Presidency is satisfactory and whether it would not be better in their own interests as well as our own to assign to them a definite share of some growing branch of revenue and whether excise would not be after all most suited for the purpose, that is a big question, a very wide question with which we cannot now deal. Certainly it does not arise upon this amendment, because at present, as matters stand, Honourable Members are aware that excise is a divided head of revenue and it is not open to this Government to admit any liability on that branch of revenue in favour of any local body. A time may come when the relations—financial relations between the Provincial and the Imperial Governments—would be so organized that we would have a comparatively free hand in dealing with the excise revenue, and it may be that when that time comes, if any branch of revenue is chosen for being shared with local bodies all over the Presidency, it may be excise. That is a big question, a question applicable not only to the City of Madras, but to local bodies all over the Presidency. I say all these things, because I am anxious that whatever conclusion we may come to on this particular thing should not be taken to prejudice that main question, because in regard to that main question I know there is a very strong volume of opinion in favour of giving a share to the local bodies in the excise revenue. That question will have to be dealt with on its own merits, probably at a time when the Local Government are having more independence than they now have."

"The particular amendment which the Honourable Member has proposed has reference to the past correspondence so far as the Madras Corporation is concerned upon which he bases the claim he has put forward. In other words he wants to add a clause to 98 'a contribution from the Local Government as compensation for tax on places used for sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors.' That is to say, the Corporation may levy a number of things, a property tax, tax on companies, professional tax, tax on carts, and it may levy a contribution from the Government as compensation for the tax on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors. This amendment, if carried, would give the Corporation a right to levy that contribution. It is true that later on a consequential amendment has been tabled by the Honourable Member that the Government may frame rules on the subject. I should think that, when that amendment comes on, the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan will object to that amendment, because he cannot trust the Government with this discretion. I hope when that amendment is taken up, I shall have the support of the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan in opposing the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar. But at present the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar's motion has to be taken along with the consequential amendment. Here he takes power to the Corporation to levy a contribution. Later on he says the Governor in Council may frame rules in regard to the levy of the contribution. It comes to this, you may levy a contribution, but the Government will have to fix what contribution to give."

"I will now go into the previous history of this question. I do not propose to take the Council quite so far back as the Honourable Member; I think it is sufficient, so far as we are concerned, to go back 34 years, when Act I of 1884 was passed. Clause 10 of section 98 of that Act authorized the levy of a tax on places used for the retail sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors. Section 99 of the Act, as amended by Act VII of 1884, laid down that if the commissioners determined to levy a tax on places used for the retail sale of spirituous and intoxicating they did not feel the financial pinch till they began to groan. Till they began to spend money for public improvements they did not feel the necessity for finding resources; and about the time the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar mentioned that they raised a protest, the Corporation had received several reminders from the Madras Government asking them what they proposed to do to increase their resources. They had then started the water-works and the drainage works for which they could not pay and I remember that at least three or four reminders came from the Government, asking the Corporation to make proposals as to how they intended to finance the schemes in future. It was when they were trying to find out resources that they struck upon this, and hence the lateness of the protest. The Corporation do not want even now to protest against it. All that they want is they want to have ample financial resources. It came as a request that since they could not find other sources, this source should be added on to them. The Honourable Member made something of the fact that they took ten years to find out their financial deficiency. Such delays in connexion with the Madras Corporation are not inexcusable. The Madras Government took seven years to find out that the drainage works were proceeding on wrong plans, and that there were no plans or estimates. It took them seven years and by that time something like Rs. 40 lakhs had been wasted. Such delays and such waste are incidental to imperfectly developed local self-governing institutions. These are the penalties which we had to pay in the earlier days of the development of local self-government. I hope the Honourable Member in charge will not mind the Madras Corporation having taken a little time in finding out that they were being mulcted in a certain source of income to which they were legitimately entitled.

(Dr. Nayar.)

[12TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"My Lord, strictly speaking, the Madras Corporation ought not to complain, because till now the Madras Government have given help to the Madras Corporation financially whenever they were in need. Therefore it may be said, 'what does it matter if the Madras Government have taken away some source of revenue? Have they not financed you, have they not tided you over financial difficulties? That is perfectly true; if the proposal is that the old system is to continue for ever, there is no alteration necessary and I would advise the Madras Corporation not to press for any particular source of revenue, but to go on as they are doing, have their budget and go on with their expenditure and whenever they run short come to the Madras Government and say 'we cannot go any further, we have come to the end of our resources. Will you give us money, or shall we stop?' That is the sort of local self-government which we are carrying on. I understood there was a sort of desire on the part of the Government and the people to end that and to develop what we have heard a great deal of lately, 'sense of responsibility in the people and their representatives.' If this system of finance is to go on, no sense of responsibility can ever arise. I speak from experience because we know in the Madras Corporation in the past discussion of our financial resources we have often been advised, 'what does it matter, you go on, drive yourself to bankruptcy and the Madras Government will come to your rescue.' There was no sense of responsibility as we were confident that the Madras Government would come to our rescue and so we went on without a sense of responsibility; and you cannot blame us. But if you want to restore a sense of responsibility, the only way in which you can do that is to give them ample financial resources of their own and ask them to carry on the municipal administration. Decline to give them any financial help after they have been set on their own feet, except for very strong reasons and then you will have a chance of developing a sense of responsibility in them.

"I beg to point out, my Lord, that this is the only source of municipal revenue the restoration of which will set the Madras municipality on its own legs. It has several advantages; it is an elastic revenue; it is a source of revenue the increase of which will not lead to very much public agitation. Hardly any one feels it except the drunkard and with the drunkard no one has any sympathy. An increasing revenue a highly elastic source of revenue is just the one which the Madras Corporation wants, to regain a position of financial responsibility and independence. If the Government say 'we will not restore it, we would still stand by the amending Act of 1884, we have got power to withhold this from you and give you compensation calculated on the average of the three years preceding the notice, which was in pre-historic days,' you have only to consider the terms of that order to see that the Madras Corporation has been unfairly dealt with. Once you admit that the Madras Corporation is entitled to compensation, the compensation ought to bear some reasonable proportion to the loss which the Corporation has sustained and the amount derived. The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar has stated the Madras Government is something like 8 lakhs. To take refuge under the old order and say that the then average income was Rs. 13,000 and therefore the compensation is Rs. 12,000 a year and coolly pocket Rs. 8 lakhs is not a very fair bargain. Therefore on that ground it cannot stand.

"My Lord, the whole question is one as to whether you intend to set the Madras Corporation on their own legs—whether you intend to let them have their own financial responsibility and you intend to develop in the members of the Corporation a sense of responsibility. Unless you accept this amendment you cannot gain that object. There is no other source of income; I have carefully gone into it not only now but in several committees before; there is no other individual source of income or combination of sources of income which would any way come near it. The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar has said that the Government are now getting 8 lakhs. Give that revenue to the Corporation, and under proper administration it will go up to Rs. 15 lakhs. No one has any compunction for the liquor traffic. It would pay all the reasonable requirements of the Madras Corporation. What the Government should do is to restore it and

12TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Dr. Nayar; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao;
the President.)

then say 'do not come to us for grant and loans, we will not give them to you. Here are your duties and resources, let us see how you discharge your duties with those resources'. If you take that attitude, then you are carrying out your policy of setting up the Madras Corporation and developing a sense of responsibility. If you do not and if you are going on in the old way, all this trouble about the new Bill is wasted. There are alterations here and there, but as long as the old spirit remains and a new spirit does not come in, there is no object in bringing in the new Act. I complain, my Lord, that as long as the old spirit remains there is great danger to this country. I have always maintained that it is because reforms were not allowed to develop at their natural source and in their natural way, dissatisfaction arose in the country and I also maintain that the proper place for reforms to develop is in these local bodies. Devise a general devolution beginning with the local bodies gradually proceeding upwards and there will be natural evolution of reforms but if you do not permit it at the very bottom and do not develop local bodies in any way there according to the old socialistic cry that 'reform delayed is revolution begun,' you will have trouble here, there and everywhere. Therefore I maintain that it is the obstacle placed in the way of local self-government in the country that has led to the demand of cataclysmic changes. Even now it is not too late, and I hope the Government will see their way to carry out proper reforms in this sphere and the way in which you can make a beginning is by granting revenues like this."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"My Lord, the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar suggested that if this request of the Madras Corporation were conceded, the other municipalities would set up a similar claim. My Lord, the Honourable Member could not have been unaware of the great volume of opinion which has been sent up to the Government from every municipality and district board in regard to increasing their resources and one of those suggestions which have been very insistently put forward during the last two or three years is either a share of the excise revenue or the power to charge a licensing fee on places used for the sale of intoxicating liquors should be granted to local bodies. I may refer him to the orders of the Government in which they gathered together all these opinions and published them recently, two or three years ago. Therefore, my Lord, in regard to this matter the request has been universal from local bodies that they must share in this growing excise revenue either as in a definite proportion or in the shape of a liquor taxation licence. Therefore, if the Honourable Member wishes to improve the financial resources of the local bodies and of the Madras Corporation, the only sound line to take is to concede this request, I wish to assure him that he need have no compunction whatever in this matter. This concession to the Madras Corporation would be hailed by every municipality and local board as probably a precursor of what may be coming to them."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I do not want to interrupt the Honourable Gentleman, but I want to draw the attention of the Council to this rule. I did not like to interrupt the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar as he was proposing an amendment. It is really worth our while to consider page 121 of the book, rule 8, sub-clause 2 under 'instructions to local Governments regarding legislation in local Councils'. If Honourable Gentlemen would look at sub-clause 2 at the bottom of page 121 in the correction pamphlet inserted on page 116, here is an amendment which exactly falls under this category. This amendment which we are discussing is purely and simply outside the principle of this Bill and it is impossible for the local Government to accept it without a reference to the Government of India. Is it really worth the while of the Council to continue to discuss it? It is really quite outside the Bill. I just put it to the Council: is it really worth while pursuing the discussion of this amendment with the knowledge that it is really outside the principle of the Bill? We cannot proceed with it one yard further without a reference to the Government of India."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"This is one of those matters in which if it is necessary I believe my Honourable colleagues and myself are perfectly willing to have a postponement of the measure if Your Excellency's Government are willing to accept the making of a reference to the Government of India. The position is this. Here we are trying to augment the resources of the Madras Corporation. The proposal of my Honourable Friend is an essential one which goes in that direction. My Lord, I have been able to go through the new proposals for taxation, taxation of property, taxation of companies and tax on professions, but nothing will go so far as this. I respectfully submit that in this matter Your Excellency's Government will be doing the right thing to accept the amendment and if necessary to make a reference to the Government of India. This is my opinion and I am certain that most of my Honourable colleagues will not grudge the postponement of this measure if it is necessary for that purpose."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"May I ask the Honourable Member to consider the attitude of the local Government in the first place and in the second place the attitude of the Government of India?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"So far as the Legislative Council is concerned, if this amendment is accepted by the Council, though it cannot be by Your Excellency's Government, Your Excellency's Government has an opportunity to back up this proposal and get the necessary legislative sanction to put this on our statute-book in the way suggested in that rule. I do not see, my Lord, why Your Excellency's Government or the Government of

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; [12TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Sir Alexander Cardew ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar ;
Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

India should feel any compunction in this matter. This identical proposal was in the Act of 1884, and if I may cite precedents from English enactments this is one of those recourses which are essentially fit for local taxation. I may refer Your Excellency to the local Government Act of 1888 which contains a schedule of local taxation, licences which are levied on behalf of local body—what is known as local taxation account—and distributed automatically year after year to all the local bodies in the country.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—“That is collected by the Imperial Government and distributed to the local bodies.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—“If the Government are willing to collect it and hand it over to the Madras Corporation they will be glad to have the Government do it. It does not matter whether you collect it or the Corporation collect it. They must have the money. That is the attitude of the Corporation. Whether judged by precedents in the English corporations or the previous history of the subject, looking specially to the fact that this exact form of taxation was already in vogue up to 1904, I submit this is one of those cases in which Your Excellency's Government ought to consider the proposal sympathetically.

“There is no doubt, my Lord, that when there is a conflict between the local bodies and the local Government, the local bodies are always in a disadvantage. The Honourable Member made a good deal of the fact that the Madras Corporation was receiving only Rs. 13,000. I must say that the transaction was an improvident one considering it from the point of view of the Madras Corporation. But the fact that in the past the Madras Corporation were driven to the wall and were constrained to accept this 13,000 Rupees is no argument why, when this particular source is now suggested to augment the resources of the corporation, Your Excellency's Government should feel any hesitation in supporting the proposal of my Honourable Friend. I sincerely trust that this proposal will be considered by Your Excellency's Government and to give effective consideration to this measure we shall be willing to adopt any course which may be indicated by the Honourable Member in charge. What we are keen about is why when this tax falls on the local inhabitants, and this is essentially one of those taxes which will fall on the local inhabitants—why should there be any hesitation in accepting this proposal. I therefore very heartily support this proposal put forward by the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar. Though I am one of those who have felt year after year in the Finance Committee that for the Madras Corporation to come forward and ask for Rs. 8 lakhs, 9 lakhs and 10 lakhs to keep the water-works and drainage works going was not fair to the large body of local bodies in the mufassal who have their own requirements, we have always been feeling delicate to object to the request of the Madras municipality because it appeared to us that they had no financial resources and it would have ended, as the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar pointed out in the stoppage of their work unless the Madras Corporation were assisted. It is certainly a case of developing irresponsibility not to give them adequate resources and to continually ask them to come to the Government for help for these large schemes which are now pending execution. Therefore, looking at it from every aspect, I think the proposal is very sound and there should be no hesitation in accepting it.”

The Hon'ble Sir ALEXANDER CARDEW :—“The Legislative Council has devoted an hour to the consideration of this proposition. I should just like to say a few words in the hope that further waste of time may be obviated. The proposal is to impose a licence fee on shops where liquor is sold. The Hon'ble Dr. Nayar who moved this amendment said that this was not intended at all to trench on excise revenue. Whatever may be the intention of the mover of the amendment, there is no doubt that the Government of India would regard this as trenching upon their excise revenue, and if they regard it in that light, to send up a proposal to them at a moment when the whole scheme of Imperial and Provincial finance is under consideration is certainly embarking upon a hopeless enterprise. The Council is aware of the Montagu-Chelmsford proposals, which entail all kinds of redistribution of the revenues between the Provincial and the Imperial Governments ; and that the matter is now under the consideration of the Government of India. If this proposal is sent up, the whole matter will be hung up until the Government of India have formulated the Reform scheme and until the Bill dealing with it passes through the House of Commons and until the reforms are brought into effect. Is it a practical proposal to suspend legislation here for this purpose? Is it not turning this Council into little more than a debating society to discuss abstract questions as to whether the Corporation should have the advantage of taxing places used for licensing liquor? There is nothing to prevent the Council from amending this Act if an amendment is necessary after the Government of India have decided the larger questions to which I have referred. The passing of this Bill will not prevent the Council from doing so. To pass the amendment now will prevent the Bill from being passed into law at a time when the Corporation is badly in need of funds. I merely suggest to the Council that it would be stultifying this House if it were to pass this amendment which, as Your Excellency has pointed out, is beyond the scope of the Bill ; and it will mean the suspension of the whole legislation.”

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—“This is only the third day of the Bill.”

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sabir Bahadur :—“I propose an adjournment of the consideration of the Bill.”

12TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(The President ; Sir Gordon Fraser ;
Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Dr. Nayar ;
Mr. Narasimha Ayyar.)

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—“If the Honourable Gentleman will resume his seat, I will call upon him later. There are six members who have risen to speak. I call upon the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser to make his observations.”

The Hon'ble Sir GORDEN FRASER :—“Your Excellency, I support the altered amendment as proposed by the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew has referred to the fact that this may encroach upon the excise revenue, and the Imperial Government will not accept it. But I personally do not see the difference between the amendment as put forward and the tax in force in Bombay. If the Bombay municipality is empowered by the Imperial Government to levy what they call town duties on wines and spirits and beer, surely the Government of India have already allowed that municipality to encroach upon their revenue from excise. I objected yesterday to the imposition of a half per cent import duty on goods imported into Madras. I objected to it on the ground that it was quite impossible to confine that charge to goods consumed in Madras only. That objection does not hold good in this case because the tax would fall entirely on places in Madras. The sum of Rs. 13,607 which was fixed in 1887 may have been a reasonable figure in those days, thirty-two years ago, but I cannot for a moment think that it is a reasonable figure now. I do think that the Corporation is entitled by right to a very much larger share of the revenue from these places and I hope Your Excellency's Government will accept the amendment as it stands and impose licence fees on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—“Your Excellency and the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew have already dwelt upon the fact that this would involve a reference to the Government of India, and that if this is carried it will mean practically that all the work that we have till now done would be put by. If we make a reference to the Government of India, the chances are that the reference would not be disposed of in the immediate future.

“I would like to offer a few remarks from a somewhat different aspect, namely, what exactly is the system that is contemplated as the result of this new departure. I will assume for the time being that there is no Government of India and that we are having quite a free hand in this matter. The Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao has told us that he quite accepted the logical sequence of this proposal, that it would have to be extended to the other local bodies. I assume if this thing is passed, that is the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar's amendment, the Corporation may levy a tax on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors.”

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—“A license fee and not a tax.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—“I thought tax.”

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—“Licence fee.”

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—“Licence fee for places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors. I would assume if that is done for this Corporation, other local bodies will follow the lead, and you will have every municipality and every taluk board over the Presidency levying licence fees on places used for the sale of spirituous liquors. That is what we contemplate. How does that fit in with the abkari law at present? Under the Abkari Act, section 15, no liquor or intoxicating drink shall be sold without a licence from the Collector, that is the Revenue Department. In other words the sale of intoxicating liquors would then come under two authorities independent of one another, without any co-ordination. You will have on the one hand the Revenue Department working the Madras abkari law and licensing people to sell intoxicating liquors and on the other hand you will have the local bodies all over the Presidency licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors. In other words you contemplate an administration of abkari revenue which would give power practically to two independent authorities to control it. The Collector may say ‘I give a licence to A who appears to me to be a suitable man.’ A could not start the thing, he will have to go to the local body. The local body says ‘No ; B promises to pay me a larger amount. I will give it to B.’ B will have to go to the Collector, the Collector says ‘I prefer A.’ Whatever you do, by all means transfer the whole abkari revenue to the local body or leave it with the Collector or make any system by which you can divide the revenue. This amendment, if I may venture to say so, is none of these things. What it does is, it creates another authority for the sale of intoxicating liquors in addition to the authority which the Madras Abkari Act contemplates. I simply mention this to show where we are going to. I have already said that I for one very much sympathise with the point of view put forward by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao that local bodies must have a share of the abkari revenue. That is a quite legitimate thing, but this is not the way of getting it. It is not the way of getting a share of the abkari revenue to devise a system to make the administration of that revenue extremely difficult, if not impossible. I am putting this fact, namely, that you cannot work it satisfactorily with two unco-ordinated authorities at the top to do the same thing and the licensees having to depend upon two authorities to ply their vocation.”

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR :—“May I request information how it works in Bombay?”

(Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar ;
Dr. Nayar ; Sir Gordon Fraser ; [12TH FEBRUARY 1919
Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—" I do not know how it works. If the Honourable Member had told me earlier I might have found it out. As the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser has referred to it, I would suggest to the Honourable Gentleman that he is the proper person whom he should ask for the information."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR :—" In schedule H in Bombay Act III of 1888 they have certain rates on wines, spirits and beer; they have certain rates under which they collect it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—" That is not a licence fee but octroi."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—" I can explain the point to the Honourable Member. Wherever it is recognized that the municipal authority has a right to levy licence fees, the Government does not step in. What happened here was that the Government collared that right. The Government authority would go out when the municipal authority comes in."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—" I fear that the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser has gone upon a somewhat different track. Is that what the Honourable Member referred to?"

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER :—" Schedule H."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—" That schedule is with reference to the Bombay town duty just as we have here a town duty on timber and firewood. In Bombay there are these duties on grains and flour and wines and spirits. Wines and spirits pay As. 4 per gallon."

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER :—" I referred to the principle of taxation in one way or another upon intoxicating liquor."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—" At present I am referring not to the principle but to the working of the particular scheme which has been put forward, namely, having two authorities for licensing places. This would have been of great use to the Hon'ble Sir Gordon Fraser when he voted on the octroi yesterday. He should have used this and voted in favour of the half per cent duty—'Here is the Bombay Government imposing a duty of octroi on grains, flour, sugar, mulls, ghee, timber exclusively used for railway sleepers, etc.' That really refers to what we did yesterday. I venture to point out that that is perfectly workable. I do not say that octroi is unworkable, but it will make the administration of the whole country difficult. This is a duty not on places, not licences for selling articles, but a charge at a specific rate on articles which would involve the question of rebate, so that this Bombay precedent does not apply though it may be taken as showing in a general way that the local body must have some share in the revenue derived from the consumption of liquor. But it has nothing to do with the particular proposal that the Corporation shall levy a licence fee on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors, at the same time leaving the Collector—"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO (interrupting) :—" May I invite your attention to schedule M of the Bombay Act where the purposes for which places might not be used without a licence are mentioned?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—" It will be very difficult for me, Sir, to undertake suddenly a strict examination of the Bombay Municipal Act. It would have been more convenient if Honourable Members had given me notice when the whole thing would have been considered. The Hon'ble Dr. Nayar's amendment could not be examined. He put it in answer to what I said in reply to the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar. If without your knowing clearly how this thing would work or how it is working in other places, you are going at once to commit yourselves by passing a resolution."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR (interrupting) :—" I do not know how it worked from 1867 to 1884. This Government were working it. How did it work?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—" The real abkari system with its uniformity came in only in 1884. The whole thing before that year was piecemeal administration. Every place was working in its own way. As a matter of fact my memory goes back to 1864, because I entered service soon after, and the correspondence regularising the whole thing started about that time."

"Let me also point out if I may venture to say so another implication. I assume this particular difficulty of having two authorities running the thing disappears: what is the next thing? The next thing will be every local board will be entitled to license its own abkari shops and every municipality will do the same. The first tendency will be, 'it is a source of revenue' the taluk board will feel. 'let us have a number of abkari shops which will give us a certain amount of money and we will reduce a certain amount of the road cess.' The municipalities will also do so. We will have exactly the same state of affairs that we had in regard to toll-gates. The municipalities put up toll-gates and the district boards put up toll-gates. Abkari is one of those things where you want a very strong co-ordinating authority at the top. Once you surrender that and start a system in which a large number of local bodies are coming in with independent powers to license liquor shops, you commit yourself to a state of affairs which will probably soon produce disastrous results. Even on a small scale when you go to French India the Hon'ble Mr. Todhunter will be in a position to tell you how it works. The French put a large number of abkari shops to tempt people from British India. If you allow every local body to start liquor shops and raise licence fees you will produce undesirable results."

12TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; Mr. Ranga Achariyar ;
the President ; Dr. Nayar ; Mr. Yaqub Hasan.)

"There is another thing. All of us, the Government and Honourable Members, are strong upon reducing the consumption of liquor and upon reducing the number of shops. The Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar will no doubt say how the thing has been working in the municipality of Salem where they have greatly reduced, practically abolished, the shops. If that municipality was deriving a substantial revenue from these liquor shops, I would ask the Hon'ble Mr. Narasimha Ayyar to get up and say whether they would have done that. We are now deriving a great deal of help from local bodies in the way of enforcing temperance."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR (interrupting) :—" May I rise to a point of order? We are discussing the Madras City Municipal Bill and not the Local Boards Bill."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" I do not think the Honourable Gentleman is going wider than other speakers."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—" I am bound to point out that this is the proposal not of the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar but of the Hon'ble Dr. Nayar which has been seconded by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao, and in regard to which the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao has been so good as to accept my challenge that it would be introduced into other places; and that perfectly justifies me in saying that if this step is taken in any one of these places it will be taken in other places. It is my duty to point out not only what is under your nose but what is a little further ahead. I believe if this policy of allowing every local body to start licensing liquor shops is accepted by this Government, I foresee it will be a serious set back to the progress of temperance. It will by one stroke convert a number of authorities which are now engaged in diminishing the consumption of liquor and make them take an active interest in promoting it. For all these reasons I very much deprecate this motion. I can quite understand the feelings of the Corporation and the feelings of several Honourable Members that the Corporation has made a bad bargain and that therefore there is now—"

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR (interrupting) :—" We never made a bargain."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—" Surely the Honourable Gentleman may allow the Honourable Member to continue."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—" The Corporation accepted a bad bargain and they are now smarting under it."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR :—" Forced to accept."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR :—" I can quite understand that feeling, but let us not for the sake of rectifying, I will say, that injustice, come to the Council with a big departure the implications of which are not I believe fully realized and which will carry you very much further than you now imagine. If this sum of Rs. 13,000 is considered inadequate, there will be nothing to prevent the Corporation from definitely saying 'we consider it inadequate and we would ask you to go into the question and put it at a more reasonable figure.' That is a quite different matter. That is not what we are asked to do. What you propose is to give to the Corporation power to license shops which is a much bigger thing than is contemplated even by the Honourable Members who supported this resolution."

The Hon'ble Yaqub Hasan Sahib Bahadur :—" Under rule 4 of the business rules I propose that the business before the meeting be postponed to the meeting of the Council in the month of March. I am compelled to take this step for very good reasons. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar has confessed that he is not able to deal with the question of allowing the municipality to raise some revenue in some form or other from liquor and spirits. It was pointed out to him that in Bombay, under the same head, revenue was being collected on spirits and liquors. He said 'no, that is only in the form of octroi and that argument could not be brought forward here.' Then it was pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao that there is another Schedule M in which are mentioned 'licensing places for liquor.' That is exactly the thing which is the subject of this amendment, and yet instead of meeting that he has brushed it aside by saying that he is not prepared to meet it. We know that the Government are not prepared to meet us in many other things. This Bill has been hurried. It was published in the Fort St. George Gazette and within about 15 or 16 or 17 days of that date it was brought before this Legislative Council. So they have kept just to the letter of the law; that is, they have given 15 days which must elapse between the publication of a revised Bill and bringing it here in this Council. That period of time was given to us; the public was not given any more time than that. I ask Your Excellency, are fifteen days or twenty days enough to consider the Bill? The Corporation of Madras had to take it up at a time when there was no time to give notice of any amendments, and the public had to consider certain aspects of it, the taxation aspects, at a time when there was no time for anybody to be wiser by the discussion and to give notice of any amendment. We are told that if we want a licence fee instead of a contribution, we ought to have given notice. The Hon'ble Dr. Nayar said that if he was in this Council a little earlier and if he had time he would have given notice of several amendments. So it shows that this thing is being pressed unnecessarily. Nothing will be lost if the consideration of this Bill is postponed for another month. In the meantime, Your Excellency's Government may consult the Government of India according to rule 8 of the instructions to local Governments which says that whenever there is a point raised in which it is necessary that the Government of India should be consulted, they should be consulted. Now this is not a minor matter. If it was only a technical or minor matter, Your Excellency could have said that you see no reason to postpone the consideration of this Bill on that account, but this is a matter on which the very life and death of the Corporation depends, and it is a matter of its revenue."

(Mr. Yaqub Hasan; the President; Mr. Narasimha Ayyar; Mr. Rama Ayyangar; Mr. Krishna Rao.) [12TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman is proceeding to a discussion on the merits of the Bill which is not necessary on his motion. If he wishes to press the motion that the Council do postpone this business, I will put it if he is seconded by another Honourable gentleman. It is not germane to his motion to go and discuss the merits of the particular proposal in the Bill."

The Hon'ble YAQUB HASAN SAHIB Bahadur:—"I was mentioning it to show that we have arrived at a point where the reason for postponement is very strong. Just to show that the reason is very strong I had to mention this fact about the revenue, but I need not labour that point. I think I have convinced at least such of the members of this Council as are open to conviction. I know that the Government are not open to conviction. They have made up their minds to get through this Bill, they will go through it mechanically and they will not admit any amendment that is brought forward in this Council, whether that amendment is important or not. They have stuck to the Select Committee's recommendation in every thing but they have made a departure only in one case and that case affected the Mussalman community. When the Government saw that they could not carry out the recommendation of the Select Committee, they have departed from it. In every other case they stuck to the Select Committee's report and they do not want any amendment to be brought in. That is another very good reason why the consideration of this Bill should be delayed so that the public may have more time to consider the changed circumstances so that they may be better prepared to come and discuss this question and to bring in other amendments and other sources of revenue if this source of revenue is not allowed to the Corporation. For these reasons I ask the Council to adjourn the business before this meeting to the meeting in March."

The Hon'ble Mr. B. V. NARASIMHA AYYAR:—"May I know what the motion is? If it is for the postponement of this amendment I second it."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The motion is that the whole Bill might be adjourned."

The motion fell through for want of a seconder.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"With regard to the position that page 121, rule 8 (2) prevents this Council from considering this I want to say a word. It is not a case in which a measure dealt with under rule 5."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT (interrupting):—"I do not think the Honourable Gentleman need argue that point. He will address himself to the amendment before the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. RAMA AYYANGAR:—"Yes; I would only say in respect of the collection of this duty it need not necessarily be left to the municipal body. Rules may be framed for the collection of this licence fee and for payment of the collections to the Madras Municipality. We have power to frame by-laws to confer various powers on Government, and we may make one for the collection of this fee by the Government and for handing it over to the municipality. That will meet the case. I do not think there is any difficulty on that score. The only question is whether the licence fee can be levied. That is within the scope of the Corporation and this Bill. This is one of the financial resources; it has been one of the sources already and it has been taken away. We are now only trying to revive it. There is no reason why there should be any difficulty in reviving it."

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO:—"Your Excellency, I consider it somewhat unfortunate that there should have been a difference of opinion in this Council on this matter. The Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar was good enough to tell us that he considered it a legitimate demand made on behalf of local bodies to ask for a growing share of the excise revenue though that question would have to be determined after considering various other circumstances. It will be within the recollection of this Council that when a resolution was moved by me on a former occasion asking that the Government will be pleased to grant a share of the excise revenue to local bodies, it was pointed that the readjustment of the financial relations between the Government of India and the Local Government was under consideration and that it was somewhat premature to take up that question and that question might be considered some time later. May I point out that, so far as this question is concerned, there has not been any difference of opinion regarding the main principles involved therein. It was pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar that the acceptance of this principle would necessitate extending it to other local bodies—naturally and reasonably it will have to be extended—that the machinery would be somewhat duplicated and that it would be difficult to devise means whereby the local bodies would collect licence fees on the one hand and the

12TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (Mr. Krishna Rao; Mr. Chidambaramatha Mudaliyar; the President; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

Government would collect the duty on the other. May I point out that according to the scheme of the present Bill there are sufficient safeguards to avoid such contingencies? My Hon'ble friend Mr. Ranga Achariyar has proposed to put this after sub-clause (h) of the Bill as clause (j); and if it is inserted as clause (j) it only states that the corporation 'may with the previous sanction of the Governor in Council and the Governor-General in Council levy a licence fee on places used for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors.' It is thus clear that it is to consider all these circumstances that the previous sanction of the Governor in Council and the Governor-General in Council has been prescribed for this purpose.

"Let us consider another aspect of the question. According to the scheme of this Act section 98 only lays down certain general principles. It says certain duties may be levied. From section 99 we enter into a detailed consideration of the extent to which and the circumstances under which the various taxes and duties can be levied. At this stage when we are considering the amendment to section 98, we are considering the bare question of principle as to the desirability or otherwise of enabling the corporation to levy licence fees. Following the scheme of the Act, it will be necessary to incorporate a provision at the end of the chapter as to the manner in which these licence fees are to be levied by the corporation. It is quite possible, if only the principle is accepted, to devise means by which any conflict between the work of these local bodies and that of the Government can be avoided and to safeguard the interests of the corporation without detriment to the interests of the Government in the administration of the excise revenue."

"My Lord, it has been suggested by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew that in view of the statement made in the report on Constitutional Reforms that the whole financial policy is under consideration the discussion is unnecessary. I stated in the beginning of these remarks that the division is unfortunate; but I wish to press upon this Council this consideration that we attach utmost importance to the financial provisions in the City Municipal Bill. There are certain provisions which have already been passed in regard to the constitution. Honourable Members of this Council may or may not be satisfied with those provisions as to electorates, the elective strength and the powers of the commissioner and so forth. But what is more important than the provisions relating to the constitution of the corporation is that it must have adequate financial resources to carry on its work. Can it be said that the financial provisions made in section 98 and the sections following are quite adequate to enable the corporation to discharge its duties in a satisfactory manner? Can it be said that it will be in the interests of good government so far as the corporation is concerned, that it should depend upon the pleasure of the Government to make or not to make grants and that it should not stand on its own legs to carry on its administration? That is why utmost importance is attached to the provisions in this chapter as regards taxation and finance. If these provisions are satisfactory, then any consequential amendments that may be necessary may be made in regard to the powers of the various municipal authorities; and these are of secondary importance, as compared with the provisions regarding taxation. I believe I am expressing the views not only of myself but also of other Honourable Members when I say that if the provisions regarding taxation and finance are not placed in a better position, whatever other amendments are made, it will not give satisfaction. If these provisions are not made by the Legislative Council when the corporation's resources are crippled, I do not think Honourable Members will grudge any delay involved by a further reference to the Government of India. With these remarks I support the amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. K. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIYAR:—"I just wish to say a word in regard to this matter. Much has been made by the Honourable Member in charge about the struggle that might come in between the municipal authorities on the one hand and the Government on the other. It appears to me after all there is very little in support of that view of the question. There is the biggest tax on the land; a land tax is levied and also a local cess levied; both are collected by the Government themselves, and whereas the land tax goes to the Government, the road-cess goes to the local bodies. In that way if this licence fee is imposed by this Act upon every place in which these spirituous and intoxicating liquors are sold, that might well be collected by the abkari department and handed over to the municipal body. In that way I think the conflict between the two governing bodies can be very easily avoided. Further he thought that this might lead to other municipalities following the example of the City municipality. Every municipality is within the ultimate control of the Government; if the Government do really see the necessity for additional finance as in the case of the City of Madras such a provision may be made, and if they do not see the necessity for it, it might be disallowed. The local bodies have no free choice in the matter. So long as it is admitted that the finances of the local bodies in the whole Presidency require, and sadly require, improvement, I believe it is highly necessary that the Government should see the justice and the absolute convenience of the amendment that is proposed and do all it can to back up such a position."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I call upon the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar to reply."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"Yes. All points have been brought out in the debate."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"Before my Honourable Friend replies, I should like to make a personal explanation with reference to the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew's remarks about our stultifying ourselves by passing this proposal."

(The President; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar; Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar; Mr. Ranga Achariyar.) [12TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"If it is only a personal explanation you can make it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I proposed, when the Bill was introduced, that this question about excise duty was one of the moot points of the Bill and one of the grounds put forward for an adjournment of the consideration of this Bill was that the financial relations between the Government of India and the Provincial Governments had to be first settled: we should like to put that first, and that matter having been settled we could settle the financial position of the Madras Corporation. We have no intention whatever of going on with the Bill for a number of days and afterwards undoing all that we did. All that I say is that at the very beginning myself and my Honourable Friends were very anxious that a portion of the excise revenue should be set apart for the municipality and specifically raised this question when the Bill was introduced. That being the case, the question is whether we are not in order in bringing forward this amendment. All that I wish to say, Your Excellency, is that we are not for going on for a number of days and bringing forward proposals which will place us back again in the position where we started. I do not think we can be accused of dilatory proceedings in this Council when from the very beginning this question was one of the questions of which we gave notice."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"On what date?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"The 14th day of August 1918 when the Bill was introduced. If necessary I can read portions."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I do not want it, I merely asked the date."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"The remarks made by the Honourable Member left the impression that we have now started the consideration of this question, that we have suddenly sprung this proposal on the Government and are undoing the work which has been done in the Council all these days."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"That is not what the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Cardew said. He said, if you really do this, it will stop all work; I do not think he found fault with the Honourable Member."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"I did not say with me or any member of this Council. All that he did say was this:—here we are considering this Bill, and there is this question of setting apart a portion of the excise revenue, is it open to any Honourable Member to bring forward such a proposal without the sanction of the Government of India? That was exactly the position when the Bill was introduced; on that ground I was for a postponement of the consideration of the Bill. If it is now pointed out to us that this would exactly lead us to the same position, I can only say that you were perfectly aware from the beginning that this was one of those matters on which the Council felt very keenly and if any steps had been taken to ascertain the wishes of the Government of India it would have met our wishes."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, I consider the amendment proposed to be unnecessary, because this Bill does provide for the levy of a licence fee for the storage of spirits, section 287 and schedule VI."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"That is only for storage."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"It cannot be sold without being stored."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman should not understand that it is identical with this amendment."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"For the permission granted fees may be charged. This Bill does authorize the levy of licence fees on places for the storage of spirituous liquors."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Not for selling."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. K. RAMANUJA ACHARIYAR:—"You cannot sell it without storing."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I did not hear the last observation of my Hon'ble Friend Mr. Ramanuja Achariyar as he was inaudible. I was about to say, when my Hon'ble Friend Mr. Ramachandra Rao interrupted me, that this is not a new thing at all sprung upon the Government. As early as the time when this Bill was first placed before the corporation, in their proceedings in considering the City Municipal Bill of 1916, the first item they put forward was this. If you refer to page 7 of the minutes of the proceedings of the Commissioners on the Madras City Municipal Bill in 1916, you will find that I urged the corporation to press this upon the Government. It is stated there 'He—that is myself—asked the Council to consider first the general question of taxation, what should be the taxes and what were the taxes that would add to the revenue. Supposing they agreed to tap some other fresh source of income, for example, the excise revenue which he wanted to propose, they would get a substantial sum from Government, then there would be legitimate reason for exempting Government properties. It was recognized throughout the world that excise revenue was a legitimate source of income for a corporation. So a fixed proportion of the excise revenue derived from the City should be handed over to the corporation. Mr. Natesan agreed that a fixed proportion of the excise revenue derived from the City should be handed over to the corporation. The President explained that the excise revenue derived from the City last year amounted to about Rs. 26½ lakhs, of that one-half, he believed, went to the Government of India. The Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar suggested that one-fourth of the revenue raised in the City should go to the corporation as it legitimately belonged to the corporation. It was unanimously agreed that one-fourth of the revenue derived from the City from excise should be handed over to the corporation and the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar was asked to voice this opinion in the Legislative Council. It was in pursuance of this mandate that I have been pressing this matter. In fact when the Bill was introduced I supported the motion for adjournment mainly on that ground, that the financial position was most unsatisfactory and that we should be given further powers of taxation and this was one of the items then mentioned. The matter is not sprung upon the Government. It has been before the Government from 1916 and therefore the Honourable Member cannot take umbrage that it is now sprung upon the Government.

12TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Ranga Achariyar; the President.)

"As regards the other objections of the Government they have been replied to by other Honourable Members and the matter has been sufficiently discussed, but I wish to say this, Your Excellency, that unless some such elastic source of revenue is given to the corporation, we may as well drop this Bill."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Before I put this amendment may I say a word or two? I did not understand that my Honourable Friend objected to this amendment on behalf of the Government on the ground that it was sprung upon the Government. That is not the point. The point is this. Whereas this suggestion in regard to the share of the excise revenue was mentioned both by the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao and the Hon'ble Mr. Ranga Achariyar in August, nothing has been heard of it since, as far as I can ascertain from the records. I was not a member of the select committee."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"I urged it in the select committee."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman signed the report."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"May I explain? I was in Bangalore, I was asked to give my signature to the report and I gave my consent by telegram because they wanted to issue it by the 31st."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"In a matter of this sort the Council is more or less in the hands of the select committee. We have not followed any special procedure in this matter. We studied the report of the select committee and we found that no further action was taken in regard to this particular proposal. Therefore I do not see why any discrimination should be made in regard to this particular proposal any more than in the case of any other proposal."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"In the letter of the Secretary asking me to sign that report I was asked not to write any minute of dissent, because anything that we wanted could be made by amendment. Otherwise I would have written a long minute of dissent."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"So far as the Council is concerned, there is nothing to show that the select committee attached more importance to this than any other question. Now we come to the last stage of the Bill and the Council is confronted with this proposal. My suggestion is—I think it will be acceptable—so far as the information placed before this Council formally goes, there is no reason why the Council should attach more importance to this amendment than any other amendment. The debate on the question is another matter."

"Let me deal with the motion of the Hon'ble Mr. Yaqub Hasan for adjournment. The Honourable Member complained that the notice given by the Government was not sufficient for the consideration of this stage of the Bill. So far as I am aware, the notice required has been complied with. Let me suggest further that if objection was to be taken properly on such a ground as that, it ought to have been taken before we commenced our proceedings. This is an objection which should have been taken properly at the beginning and not when we come to an amendment on which there is some difference of opinion. It would have had more force if it had been taken at the beginning of the consideration of this stage of the Bill."

"May I say one further word? I sympathise most heartily with the desire of the Madras Corporation to augment its sources of revenue. I have the warmest sympathy with their difficulties. I know how anxious and responsible their work is and how essential it is that there shall be for the due execution of their duties sufficient reliable income. I feel sure I am speaking for the Government when I assure them on that point."

"Having disposed of that what position do we find ourselves in? This Bill has been under consideration for years. We have had the advantage in its consideration of the help of the present Honourable Member of the Council Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar and we had a very great deal of time given to it by his predecessor, the former Indian Member, Sir P. S. Sivaswami Ayyar. I know from personal experience how devoted and ungrudging was the expenditure of time on their part to the formulation of this measure which has gone through most careful stages. The suggestion that it has been hurried cannot be supported from any point of view. It has been considered by officials and non-officials and every effort has been made to obtain full information and advice. Now until this very last stage when really I may claim that substantial progress has been made, no protest indicating to the Government the difficulties of this question really reached us, and now we are asked to take a step which will postpone the whole work. It is not postponing it for a month, because if I understand him the Honourable Gentleman wishes to postpone it until a settlement is come to on the disposal of the abkari revenue under the Montagu-Chelmsford Report. It is obvious to those who have studied the situation that no settlement of that kind can possibly be expected for a period much longer than a month; it will more likely be a year or two. You have not only the consideration of the report on the main lines but you have the carrying out of all the recommendations about the Central Government and the relations between the Government of India and between the Provincial Governments. It is only then you can begin an arrangement between the Provincial Government and the local municipal authorities. Is this matter so important that you must throw away all the labour of the past two years? Is it so important? I would ask the Council to consider how far their own reputation and responsibility is concerned in this matter. It is quite true that we have to show the utmost consideration to the Corporation's representatives who are on the Council and speak as representing the views of the Corporation. On the other hand, the Legislative Council stands for the Presidency as a whole; and if you throw away all the time and trouble that has been spent on this Bill, it will seriously affect the opportunity and time which will be available for attending to other parts of the Presidency. I would, therefore, ask the Council really to take a wider view of this question and to believe that the Government of the Presidency are interested in the welfare of the Council and will not lose any opportunity of advancing its welfare and that it is unwise on this one point to arrest the usefulness of all the work that has been done.

(The President; Sir Gordon Fraser.)

[12TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

"I would not say much about the merits of the question, but I would put this one point. We are apt here to forget—I feel it myself, I hope I am not contributing to it unduly, but other members are apt to forget the wider bearings of a question such as this. Repeatedly in the debate the interests of the district authorities have been involved on one side or the other. You are a little apt to forget the real interests of the Corporation as compared with the wider interests and bearings of this question. There is a great deal to be said on the question on its merits, whether it is wise, whether it is in the real interests of the local authorities that they should depend upon the licence fees for their revenue. There is a good deal which can be said and which has not been said on the other question. The interest of the corporation is, I take it, confined and limited to the necessity for having sufficient and reliable income. It is not so important to the corporation from what source that income is derived so long as the income is there and can be relied upon and is sufficient for it to carry on its duties. That is the main essential. If you hook so to speak, if you attach the welfare and the fate of your revenues to other interests, you may find them prejudiced in the end. That point has been alluded to already. There are disadvantages in getting a share of any revenue. Whenever that revenue is interfered with, your interests are interfered with. Whenever the corporation gets a share of any particular revenue, whenever any attempt is made to touch that revenue, the Corporation's interests are at once affected and possibly prejudiced. On the other hand, from the point of view of the Central Government the fact that the local authorities have a share in certain earmarked heads of revenue hampers the freedom of the Central Government in dealing with these revenues. None of these considerations have really been thoroughly debated upon in this Council, because the matter is not before us. Only one incidental point was alluded to, the interests of temperance. It is not at all clear that the interests of those who wish to advance temperance will be met by giving the local authorities a direct share in the welfare of licence revenue. It is a very serious responsibility to take for this Council to decide this matter. In my judgment, on this occasion I would put it to the Corporation, if I may, while I have every sympathy with the difficulties of the Corporation, I would venture to urge "let us pass this Bill in whatever form the Council approves, and it will not be difficult to amend the financial provisions once the big question of Imperial and provincial finance in India is settled." To wait for that will, I think, mean delaying unjustifiably most useful provisions for the extension of local self-government, the genuine extension of Local Government which this Bill provides, the extension of the franchise, the wider constitution of the Corporation, in fact a step in that education in Local Government which is so much desired at the present time. I shall now put it to the Council."

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER:—"May I ask one question? If the Local Government undertake to refer this matter to the Government of India and bring in an amending Bill, it will alter the question very much. I would consent to allow the Bill to go through without the amendment, if an amending Bill will be brought up. But on the other hand, I should be prepared to support this amendment unless the Local Government gives that assurance."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I can assure him that the Local Government would be quite prepared to address the Government of India and lay before them the feeling of this Council on this matter and ask them to give their attention to it, so soon as the conditions of Imperial and Provincial finance are settled."

The Hon'ble Sir GORDON FRASER:—"May I press this particular point? I think Your Excellency put it rather too wide. May I know if this particular point is to be put, so that we may get a prompt reply and then we can bring in an amending Bill? We cannot wait."

[12TH FEBRUARY 1919.] (The President; Mr. Ranga Achariyar; Mr. Richmond; Dr. Nayar; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao.)

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I do not want to wait."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur T. RANGA ACHARIYAR:—"May I supplement it by another question? Your Excellency, this Bill cannot be passed into law now: it will have to come at another meeting. By that time you may get a reply."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"I do not think it would be honest on my part to say that we will get the reply or hold out any hope that on this particular matter we shall get a decision from the Government of India in time to incorporate it in the present Bill. The Government are perfectly prepared to lay before the Government of India the expression of feeling in this Council in this matter and urge them to deal with it at the earliest possible moment."

The Hon'ble Mr. T. RICHMOND:—"May I make a personal explanation as a member of the Select Committee? I fully intended to write a minute of dissent, but it was suggested by the Honourable Member in charge—and the suggestion is embodied in paragraph 5 of the Select Committee's report—that separate minutes of dissent were unnecessary and that the members might sign the report and bring up any matter on which they disagreed at the discussion in the Council. Taking this view I did not record any dissenting minute on this and several other points."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR:—"May I clear up one point? Did I understand Your Excellency to say that, as soon as the financial arrangements between the Local Government and the Imperial Government are settled, the Local Government would undertake the revision?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Government are quite prepared to address the Government of India pointing out to them the feeling on this particular point which they have heard at this discussion and urge the Government of India to do their best to deal with it at the earliest possible moment."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. NAYAR:—"When the financial relations between the two Governments have been settled, it will be no longer for the Government of India, but it will be for the Local Government to settle this matter."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"The Honourable Gentleman is contemplating a time when it will be within the power of the Provincial Government to decide it; then it is always possible for the Honourable Gentlemen of this Council to bring up this matter."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"May I suggest that the further consideration of this clause be put off till to-morrow morning?"

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"Let us take a decision on this point. The words proposed to be added are 'a licence fee on places used for sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors.'"

The amendment was put and lost.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT:—"We will take the names if the Honourable Member wishes it."

The Hon'ble Dr. T. M. Nayar demanded a poll which was taken with the result that 17 voted for and 23 against the amendment. The following was the division:—

For	Against
The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. Ramachandra Rao.	The Hon'ble the Advocate-General.
" Mr. P. Siva Rao.	" Sir Alexander Cardew.
" Mr. K. Rama Ayyangar.	" Mr. J. Davidson.
" Dr. T. M. Nayar.	" Mr. C. G. Todhunter.
" Mr. B. Venkatapati Raju.	" Mr. A. Y. G. Campbell.
" Mr. T. Richmond.	" Diwan Bahadur R. Ramachandra Rao.
" Diwan Bahadur K. R. Suryanarayana-murti Nayudu.	" Mr. M. Young.
" Mr. K. K. R. Kavalappara Muppil Nayar.	" Mr. L. E. Buckley.
" the Raja of Pithapuram.	" Mr. N. E. Marjoribanks.
" the Raja of Bobbili.	" Khan Bahadur M. Aziz-ud-din.
" Diwan Bahadur A. Subbarayulu Reddiyar.	" Rao Bahadur V. K. Ramanuja Achariyar.
" Rao Bahadur T. Ranga Achariyar.	" the Rev. G. Pittendrigh.
" Yaqub Hasan Sabib Bahadur.	" Sir Fairless Barber.
" Mr. K. Chidambaranatha Mudaliyar.	" Sir Gordon Fraser.
" Mr. A. Suryanarayana Rao.	" Sir Francis Spring.
" Mr. A. S. Krishna Rao.	" Mr. J. H. Thonger.
" Mr. B. V. Narasimha Ayyar.	" the Most Rev. J. Aelen.
	" Mr. J. C. Molony.
	" Mr. R. Littlehales.
	" Mr. W. Hutton.
	" Mr. W. J. J. Howlay.
	" Diwan Bahadur P. Rajagopala Achariyar.
	" Mr. H. G. Stokes.

(Mr. Krishna Rao.)

[12TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

The Hon'ble Mr. A. S. KRISHNA RAO :—"I have the honour to move amendment No. 54 which is as follows :—

'Add the following at the end of the clause :—

"and (i) a terminal tax on railway passengers."

"The Council has so far discussed some of the financial provisions in the present Bill and excepting the amendment of my Honourable Friend the Advocate-General suggesting that the duty on firewood be taken away involving the corporation in a loss of revenue of about Rs. 50,000 on that account, other amendments asking for an increase of the financial resources have all been rejected. Though with considerable hesitation as to the success of the attempt I now venture to move that a terminal tax be introduced. If it were possible to manage any corporation or any local body without any form of taxation, the people concerned would have immense satisfaction. But so long as we realize that it is to the interest of any body to manage its own finance and as best as possible raise its own revenues and regulate its own expenditure, it is quite necessary that means should be devised for improving those resources. Having rejected the various financial suggestions made, I would now ask the Council whether they would not consent to the imposition of this terminal tax on railway passengers, which will not cause any unnecessary hardship to any person. It should be remembered that even if these mild and modest measures are disapproved or rejected by this Council, the result will be that attention will have to be paid to the property tax as the main source of revenue apart from other small sources, even though it might unnecessarily and harshly affect the owners of houses or the occupiers of houses. And what is the scope of this terminal tax on railway passengers? At this stage when we are considering clause 98, it is unnecessary to consider the details of this provision. As for the details, according to the scheme of the Act other amendments follow which are Nos. 72 and 119. With some slight modification the Hon'ble Mr. Ramachandra Rao has given notice of a similar amendment. But at this stage we have only to consider the desirability or otherwise of imposing a terminal tax on railway passengers.

"From the mere theoretical point of view, persons might consider that it may not be necessary or proper to impose a tax on passengers coming into the city. But I would ask whether it is not desirable for those who come and stay here even temporarily and enjoy the amenities of life provided by the corporation to pay some tax whatever it be. The chief merit of this tax is that it is a very moderate one—about six pies for third-class passengers, a little more in the case of second and first class passengers; and it is ordinarily collected along with the railway tickets by the Railway authorities. They will generally charge a small commission for collecting it. The whole of the collection work is done by them and the benefit goes to the corporation. In the original Bill which was published in 1916, we find that provision was made for the imposition of a terminal tax. It will be found that in the Bill of 1916 clause 114 provides for a terminal tax on railway passengers. I have just taken the wording of my amendment from that Bill. It contains elaborate provisions as to how the tax should be levied, in clause 160 and later on in the schedules. When the tax is so light as not to unnecessarily cause any hardship to any particular individual and when it can be so easily collected as not to increase the work of the corporation to any unnecessary extent, I would ask whether there is any reasonable justification for not allowing at least this additional resource to the corporation.

"Honourable Members will also see that it is proposed to add this as an addition to clause 98 after (h), the effect of which will be that 'the corporation may levy a terminal tax with the previous sanction of the Governor in Council and the Governor-General in Council.' If it is suggested that the Government of India have to give their sanction or may raise objections and so forth, there is the necessary safeguard in the section itself which suggests that before it is actually levied the sanction of the Governor in Council and the Governor-General in Council will have to be obtained. Therefore what the Council has to do now is to give their sanction to the imposition of the tax on railway passengers subject to the provision that the sanction of the Governor in Council and the Governor-General in Council will have to be obtained. With these safeguards I cannot myself imagine how there can be any reasonable objection to the imposition of this tax.

"I may bring to the notice of this Council that when opinions were invited from the various district municipalities on a former occasion as to how they would improve their financial resources, they considered this question at considerable length; various sub-committees were appointed by the municipal councils; those opinions were submitted to the Government through the Collectors of the districts; those opinions are published in G.O. No. 2196, dated the 23rd December 1916. An analysis of these opinions will show that various municipal councils which considered the incidence of taxation in their respective municipalities suggested as an additional financial resource the imposition of a terminal tax like the one suggested by me for the City of Madras. I only mention it as an instance to show that this tax has been thought of and approved even in the case of mufassal municipalities. When that is the case, we need not hesitate, so far as the City of Madras is concerned, to give sanction to the imposition of this tax. Under the Calcutta Improvement Trust Act of 1911, they have actually been collecting this terminal tax and they have been utilizing it for the improvement of the city. We find also in various other provinces where there has been octroi—we discussed it yesterday—they are attempting to have it replaced by a terminal tax, a terminal tax on goods as well as on passengers. I have not thought it necessary on this occasion to suggest a terminal tax on goods

12TH FEBRUARY 1919.]

(Mr. Krishna Rao ; Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ;
the President.)

because it might in a way partake of the nature of octroi. I have confined my amendment to a terminal tax on railway passengers because it is easy to collect it from passengers without any inconvenience. This principle of terminal tax is well known in some places and a pilgrim tax has been suggested in other places. So far as the City of Madras is concerned, a terminal tax is a most desirable tax, as it will add to the revenue to a substantial extent and no objection can be urged against it."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"I have a similar amendment on this subject and I would like to say a few words in support of this proposal. Having heard the Honourable Member's previous speech on a new tax, I take it that objections similar to those urged then will again be urged, that the Government of India will have to consent to this tax and difficulties would be pointed out in the working of this particular tax. I shall therefore apply myself to these two matters.

"In regard to this tax, my Lord, I may point out that the proposal is that this should be imposed with the previous sanction of the Governor in Council and the Governor-General in Council so that if the Corporation does not succeed in persuading Your Excellency's Government and the Governor-General in Council, it will not be in a position to levy this tax. Therefore even assuming for the sake of argument that the Government of India are not at present disposed to sanction the imposition of such a tax, they have a further opportunity of examining this question when it is actually placed before them by the Corporation, and then if they still have reasons for withholding their sanction they will have an opportunity of doing so under this section. Therefore assuming for the sake of argument that Your Excellency's Government propose the imposition of this tax and the Government of India are not prepared to sanction its introduction, I respectfully submit that the provision of the tax in this Bill will not in any way jeopardise the power of the Governor in Council and the Governor-General in Council to withhold their sanction. Therefore the addition of this safeguard is perfectly legitimate."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"I do not follow the Honourable Member's argument."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"If this amendment is carried, this section will read 'and may, with the previous sanction of the Governor in Council and the Governor-General in Council, levy a duty on certain transfers of property in the shape of an additional stamp duty and a terminal tax on railway passengers'. So that it contains sufficient safeguards even assuming it is introduced after clause (h)."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"I am only trying to follow his argument. We should introduce it because we could veto it? Is it because we need not carry it out that we should introduce it?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"We can provide for it. It is exactly the same thing with reference to the duty on transfers of property. The Corporation cannot straightaway impose it unless it receives the sanction of the Governor in Council and the Governor-General in Council."

His Excellency the PRESIDENT :—"The Honourable Gentleman has assumed that the Government of India object to it. If that is so, what is the good of inserting it?"

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO :—"I do not say so, but even on the assumption that at present Your Excellency's Government or even the Government of India are not in a position to immediately sanction its application the mere provision of it in this Bill will not in any way take away their power to reconsider the matter of sanctioning its imposition or withholding sanction. I am suggesting that even if it is there there will be no difficulty in making proviso for it here and it will not lead to any difficulty in any manner whatsoever.

"The second point is the question whether the tax on railway passengers is one which will work in practice. I can only point out, my Lord, that in Calcutta under Act V of 1911 the Calcutta Improvement Trust is collecting this tax already. I may perhaps invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the Resolution of the Government of India on local self-government, dated the 10th August 1915, where this subject is dealt with. It says as follows :—

"In Benares there is a form of terminal tax which is imposed, with certain exceptions, on passengers coming to or leaving that station by rail. There is a radius of exemption beyond which the tax is levied and it is collected by the railway companies as a surcharge on railway fares. A similar tax is also in force in Calcutta which is levied by the Calcutta Improvement Trust and is collected from passengers entering or leaving that city by rail or steamer. In Hardwar, Ajudhia and Thaneswar, there is a tax on pilgrims and other persons who enter the limits of those municipalities. The tax at Hardwar is levied on railway passengers throughout the year, while that at the other two municipalities is imposed only on the occasion of certain special fairs. In Bombay a pilgrim tax may be levied under section 59 (b) (x) of the District Municipal Act, III of 1901."

"I wish to point out to Honourable Members that this tax is already levied in Calcutta and no one who goes to Calcutta knows that he is paying this tax; if he is a third-class passenger 6 pies on the outward journey and 6 pies on the inward journey. It is one of those taxes which are very easily collected by the railway company. In connexion with the Pilgrim Committee we made inquiries as to its practical working and its applicability to various pilgrim centres. We came to the conclusion that it is perfectly easy to work it in some places. So far

(Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao ; Mr. Rajagopala Achariyar ; [12TH FEBRUARY 1919.
Mr. Narasimha Ayyar ; Sir Francis Spring ;
Mr. Ranga Achariyar.]

as the City of Madras is concerned if it is possible in Calcutta I do not know how its imposition in Madras would be difficult. Another reason I would suggest is this form of taxation is the only one which you can call upon temporary residents of Madras to pay for the amenities of life in Madras. They have a wholesome water-supply and I expect they have other conveniences of life, and these temporary inhabitants do not contribute anything. This is the only way in which we can call upon the temporary inhabitants to pay. When we were making this investigation about pilgrim centres we called for papers from the Madras Corporation and in those papers I found they themselves proposed it and their calculation showed that they would realize about Rs. 1½ lakhs.

"Finally, my Lord, this is not a new tax. The Honourable Member will remember that this was in the draft Bill of 1916. That is a point which has to be remembered, because this is not at all a new one. I quite recognize that it is not in the Bill as introduced, but the Government seem to have contemplated the imposition of such a tax when they incorporated it in the Bill of 1916. I trust in these circumstances with the safeguards that exist there would be no difficulty in putting in such a clause as this."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur P. RAJAGOPALA ACHARIYAR:—"Your Excellency, the Honourable Member has said that this was one of the taxes which the Government contemplated. What we sent up to the Government of India was the particular form of clause 110 'may with the previous sanction of the Governor in Council and the Governor-General in Council levy a terminal tax on railway passengers'. The Government of India have sent their orders vetoing it. In vetoing it they say that a surcharge on railway fares must operate as a tax upon railways by reducing either the traffic or the fares they can charge; such a proposal can be justified only in towns which are pilgrim centres."

The Hon'ble Diwan Bahadur M. RAMACHANDRA RAO:—"May I ask whether Calcutta is a place of pilgrimage?"

