The Honourable Sir George Rainy : But I think my Honourable friend must in the end make a choice. I know that under the Criminal Procedure Code you may have a conviction in the alternative, but in this case I really do not know whether this Government is to be convicted of asking for what is not necessary, or of asking for what we are certain to misuse ! We cannot be guilty of both crimes simultaneously. I think myself that, if I had to choose, the most probable contingency is that the powers, if given, will be very little used, because in the nature of the case the safeguard which Government propose to provide is the second line of defence and not the front line. The question of removing Communist agents from India does not arise unless they have in the first instance succeeded in evading the passport regulations. No doubt experience has shown that this is perfectly possible and will sometimes happen, and it is precisely for that reason that Government have found it necessary to put forward these proposals. But it is not likely at all that such cases will be numerous ; and if in future it is said that Government has made very little use of these powers it may be for the very excellent reason that the necessity for their use did not exist. Now, Sir, it would be useless for me to try to establish the fact, to the satisfaction of the Members opposite, that this Government is fit to be trusted with powers of this kind. They are not to my mind, it is true, anything like so serious or important as several powers which this Government already possesses. Still I quite recognize that they are powers which no Legislature willingly concedes to the Executive Government until the matter has been fully and maturely considered, and until the Legislature is satisfied that the necessity for these powers really exists. One of the lines of argument adopted by some Members on the other side I might perhaps sum up in this way. Their view is that, after all the Bolshevik is nothing like so black as he is painted.

[Sir George Rainy.]

On the whole he is perhaps a very decent person and we have nothing particular to fear from him. Some Honourable Members have been in Russia and they have told us what they themselves saw when they were there. My Honourable friend Mr. Suhrawardy suggested that perhaps what they saw was an example of the Russian genius for stage management, and that reference suggested to my mind a somewhat quaint historic parallel between my Honourable friend Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar and the Czarina, Catherine the Great. As the proceedings of that estimable lady were on some occasions somewhat questionable, I hasten to add that the point of the comparison is not in the character of the persons concerned, but merely in the treatment which they at various times are said to have received from the Russian authorities. No doubt Honourable Members are familiar with the story of how the Czarina announced that she proposed to make a tour of her dominions, and how the permanent officials, the sundried bureaucrats, were very much put out about it ; but proving equal to the occasion they organized a series of admirable villages peopled by happy villagers with all the latest comforts of civilization along the whole route through which the lady travelled. Now, while I am quite sure it was the desire of the authorities in Russia to extend a hospitable welcome to my Honourable friends, it is perhaps permissible to doubt whether it would be in their power to make such complete preparations as were made on the earlier occasion to which I have referred. Therefore, if my Honourable friend prefers to believe the evidence of what he himself saw and what he himself heard in Russia, I do not know that we should have any real right to complain of it. Indeed a good deal of what he said did not come to me with any shock of surprise, because it is no part of the case of Government, as I understand it, that the calamities which we apprehend might fall upon India if the Communist influence spread here, that such calamities are happening in Russia to-day. Russia has passed through her purification by blood and fire and has emerged for the moment on the other side, and a Communist Government will not, any more than any other Government, use weapons that are no longer required. If I went to Russia I should expect to find, subject of course to all the local peculiarities which are natural to the country—I should expect to find on a casual view under normal conditions very much the same sort of thing as might be going on in other countries. But although I should be most willing to believe that to my Honourable friend Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar, as was suggested yesterday, a single day is equal to a year, and that in 10 days he could acquire as much information as most of us could acquire in 10 years, still I do feel that as regards the actual internal conditions in Russia it is only those who have spent a considerable time there in close contact with the life of the people who are in a position to give valuable information on the subject. However, as I have said, it is not an essential part of the Government's case that the conditions existing in Russia to-day are in all respects deplorable ; what is an essential part of our case is that the Communist Party, the whole-hearted Communists—I quite agree that they may not be so numerous as they are often represented to be—but the section which constitute the driving power of the party, when they are attempting to carry their campaign to success in a country which has not hitherto been exposed to its influence, adopt methods utterly ruthless and unscrupulous and carry them out relentlessly, inflicting the most appalling calamities on the people of the countries concerned. That, Sir, is an essential part of the Government case. (Applause.)

(At this stage Mr. President vacated the Chair which was taken by Mr. Deputy President, Maulvi Muhammad Yakub.)

Now, Sir, we heard—I think it was on the first day of the debate—we heard from my Honourable friend Sir Victor Sassoon of what he had himself seen and heard in China. Indeed the calamities that the Bolshevik intrigue have inflicted on that country must by this time be well known to everyone. It will not do to say that the Bolshevik is entirely a white sheep and a grossly maligned person, or that there is no particular reason to apprehend that if he succeeded in getting a real grip in India, he would not attempt—and possibly with some measure of success—to carry out a similar programme. There is ample material to show what the declared policy of the Communist Party is and what their recognised methods of carrying out their intentions are. I do not believe that anyone who seriously studies the subject can be left in any serious doubt on that point. On the other hand, I admit, that although there is a very close connection between the headquarters of the Communist Party in Russia and the Russian Government, yet they are not identical ; and if Honourable Members who have been in Russia were to tell me that they met members of the Russian Government who did not go anything like the whole length, I should accept it. But what we have to deal with is not the Russian Government ; that does not come at all into the question. What we have to deal with is that very powerful and dangerous party, the Communist Party, whose headquarters are in fact situated in Russia.

Now, Mr. President, I will try to deal with what I believe to be the substance of the case presented from the opposite Benches. What I think is most deeply felt by a number of Members is this : " This Bill is of course repressive legislation for it gives exceptional powers to the executive, and it is not the kind of Bill we are very fond of in this House. Still we are ready to hear what Government has to tell us, but we should like to have before us, before we come to a decision, more facts than have yet been produced." I frankly recognise that that is a reasonable attitude, and that Government must, of course, do all in its power to meet the demand. But I should like the House to consider what the inherent difficulties of the position are. As several Members have pointed out, the purposes mentioned in the Bill, the advocacy of which, or combination to effect which involve deportation, these purposes are highly criminal. Now, if Government had full evidence on these points, naturally instead of coming to this House for special powers, what we should do would be to bring a case in the courts and ask the courts to convict. The mere fact that we ask for these special powers necessarily implies that, if we have to wait until we have acquired all the evidence which would justify a conviction, the mischief may be done before the remedy is applied. That is essentially implied in this Bill. But if the position is such that Government are not in a position to produce evidence which would secure conviction in court, for precisely the same reason they are not in possession of the kind of evidence which they could place before this House in detail, in order to ask this House to confirm the view they had taken about it. That is an inherent difficulty in the case. Apart from that, there is a special difficulty which must seriously hamper the speakers on this side in dealing fully with the case as it appears to them. Yesterday, Honourable Members will remember that when my Honourable colleague, Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra, was speaking, a point of order was raised by, I think, my Honourable friend, Mr. Neogy and some others, on the ground that reference was being made to matters that were sub judice ; a very natural objection to take. But obviously the case we are presenting to the House depends mainly on what has happened during the last eighteen months and more particularly during the last six months. It very seriously increases the difficulty if at every turn when we weep to refer to any particular incident, showing the kind of spirit that has entered into India within the last eighteen months, obviously it is very difficult if we cannot refer to any of them, I do ask the House to consider that. I feel that, as a Member of the Government, speaking in this place, I have to be particularly careful not to say one word that could prejudice the trial of anyone. For that reason I refrain from saying most of what I should like to say. But I would ask the House to consider this. There are a good many facts, well known events that have taken place in India during the last eighteen months, and I think they give the House reason for very serious thought as to whether there is not some new influence at work which it is as well should be checked.

Mr. President, some speakers have asked the question : why do you want these powers, why not intern these men under Regulation III ? I am told that in the western States of America, there was a time when every gentleman had a revolver in his pocket, it came out at the shortest notice ; and I think some Honourable Members conceive the Government of India to be in a similar position so that, whenever they feel like it, out comes Regulation III. I assure Honourable Members that we do not take our responsibilities so lightheartedly as that, and if the same end can effectively be achieved in the way of preventing the mischief which we apprehend, then unquestionably the Government of India would always choose the milder means. Now, in the case of Communists who are Indians, the milder means provided by this Bill are not available. Supposing—I should very much regret to see it—supposing the necessity arose, we are not at liberty to banish Indian Communists from the country. But in the case of those who are natives of other countries and who have come to India merely temporarily, that alternative does exist and it is in order to enable the Government of India to deal with the situation in the mildest manner possible that this Bill has been put forward. After all, I gather—and at any rate my Honourable friend Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta would agree with me—that none of us Europeans have a vested right to remain in this country at all. (Hear, hear.) Indeed he indicated that he would under certain circumstances support measures leading to our removal. Therefore I do not think that this Assembly would incur a responsibility anything like so heavy as it has assumed on other occasions, if it gave its support to the Government Bill.

Mr. President, this debate has now lasted for several days and I think the energies of some of us are beginning to flag. Certainly it is not for me to weary the House by talking endlessly on this subject. I will therefore bring my remarks to a close. All I should wish to do is to ask the House, as they have carried on this discussion in a spirit of temperance, tolerance and sober judgment, so they should give their votes when the time comes with a due sense of responsibility for all the issues which they have to face. (Applause.)

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla (Bombay Central Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I have listened with admiration to the speech of my Honourable colleague Mr. Jayakar, which was delivered on the floor of this House the other day. But, Sir, I failed to understand why he is asking this House to adopt the amendment for circulation. I think that a man coming from Bombay is sufficiently aware of the dangers which this movement is doing in India. Sir, the object of circulation, as I understand it, is to invite public opinion and the opinions of the Government. I do not know whether my Honourable friend Mr. Jayakar has taken care to enquire the opinion of the Government of the province from which he comes.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : He is not in the confidence of the Government of Bombay.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : He need not be in the confidence of the Government, but he is supposed to enquire what the matter is when a Bill of so important a nature is put forward by the Government. The Government of Bombay has been unequivocally telling us and it is known to everyone here that the Communist movement in Bombay is doing great harm. I suppose my Honourable friend Mr. Joshi had heard the speech of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas who has gone out of his way to tell the Government that they were weak, and that they ought to have taken action long before to-day. I suppose he was not sleeping then. He opposes the Bill on some other ground and I shall come to that. But I do not understand the attitude, Sir, of those who want circulation. What is the object of circulation and what is the advantage ? We have sufficient opinion created in India and I would like to have an opinion on the floor of this House. Is anybody here in favour of Communism ? That is the whole point. (Members of the Congress Party : "That is not the point.") Is there Communism, and how to deal with that Communism is the question. If you say, there is Communism and if you understand the object of those who are dealing with Communism, then I can understand it is necessary that we should adopt such methods as are necessary to get rid of it.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : But there is no Communism.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtullah : I am glad to hear that from you, Mr. Das. But I would like to draw the attention of the House to what is Communism. Communism is a special movement within Socialism with the same ultimate goal, namely, the abolition of social stratification by the destruction of private ownership ; and according to Marx how is it attainable ? It is attainable only by means of revolution. Why don't you say so clearly instead of driving India to revolution ? Say it clearly and we will understand it. As I understand it, Sir, it is no use hiding the main issue. According to the Russians the strength of the Communist movement outside Russia varies differently in different countries, being greatest wherever economic distress is most acutely felt. And here I agree with my Honourable friend Mr. Joshi that Government is to be blamed for it.

(At this stage Mr. Deputy President vacated the Chair, which was resumed by Mr. President.)

It seems to me that the continuance of the intensive propaganda of the Third International despite very prejudicial effects on the political relations between the Soviet States and other Governments is mainly attributable to the growing sense of the Russian Communists and to their belief that the Russian experiment depends for its lasting success upon the accomplishment of the World Revolution. Are you prepared to admit this or not ?

Lala Lajpat Rai (Jullundur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : We are.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : I am glad to hear you say so. My friend Lala Lajpat Rai made out two or three points. First he says that he does not understand why the English people are supporting this Bill because Englishmen are concerned. Secondly, he says that the strikes are due to money coming from Lancashire. The third point he made was that he does not want to isolate India from other foreign countries. Sir, as regards the first point, the very fact that the European Group is favouring this Bill shows that they do not wish to destroy Government and they do not wish to ruin India. As regards the second point, Lala Lajpat will clearly bear me out on this, that British people are here only for their trade interests.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Quite right. Well, if Lancashire is financing these trade strikes, no European would come forward to support this Bill. (An Honourable Member : "Why not ?") They will not, because it touches their pockets. With regard to the third point, I found, Sir, that the Swarajist Members, with whom I am in full agreement, when the other day Sir George Rainy moved the Textile Bill,—Mr. Jamnadas Mehta said we want the Cloth Bill. The effect of that would have been to spoil our relations with Japan.

Mr. B. Das : Why ?

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : Because that would kill the trade of Japan. Sir, our whole object is to see that India is prosperous, no matter what the relations with other countries may be. The primary object of this House, which is constituted with a majority of elected Indian Members, is to see that India is prosperous and not to ruin India for the purpose of not spoiling our relations with foreign powers. As regards my friend, Mr. Joshi, he has told this House—and I agree with him entirely—that he would like to see any money, coming from any source, being treated by any individual as untouchable. Perfectly true. But, Sir, he did not tell us the object why the money was sent. That is the whole point, not the money.....

4. P.M.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : To support the strikers.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : For what reason ?

Mr. N. M. Joshi : To feed the strikers in this country.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : The whole object to my mind is the motive of those people who sent him the money. That is the point.

(At this stage Mr. N. M. Joshi made an interruption which was inaudible at the Reporter's table.)

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : We know it very well from your movements in the Bombay Presidency.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : Is not the police sufficient in Bombay to watch my movements ?

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : Because your movements are not necessary to watch. You are nobody in Bombay nowadays and you know it.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member would be well advised not to take notice of interruptions.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : I am glad of your advice, Sir, and I shall try to follow it ; but when people interrupt I have got to reply to them. I think, Sir, the best speech that was made in this House on the subject was the speech of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas for whom I have got the greatest respect and his speech was that he was not against the Communist movement. He says that Government ought to have taken action earlier and immediately. The only difficulty he has is that he does not understand why Government did not take action under Regulation III. I think, Sir, the Government ought to have replied to that. But I find my friend, Mr. Munshi, has dealt with that subject in a very clear and cut and dried manner. His point was and he has told us that Government did not wish to apply Regulation III because there would be a great uproar in England. Suppose that argument is true. Then, do you mean to say that the Government should not find out any other means by which to get rid of this Communist movement in India and that they should merely look on and see, if they find that the British people are getting into uproar in England over the application of Regulation III to the British subjects ? That is why they have brought this measure before this House. My friend, Mr. Jayakar has all along told us—and I think very rightly too—that looking to the past experiences he cannot trust the Government. But what is his duty here ? His duty is clearly to go before the Select Committee, to accept the principle and find out such safeguards as he thinks necessary so that the question of trust will not exist in the future. The whole principle of the Bill, as I understand it, is to get rid of the Communist movement in India. That is the principle.....

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : The principle of the Bill is deportation by summary methods and without trial.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : Will you suggest some other methods ?

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : If the very essence of the Bill is trial by summary methods, then there is hardly anything to be done in the Select Committee by way of devising a procedure of safeguards.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : But you told us before this House that you were willing to give these powers to the responsible Government when it came into existence.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : How can you make this Government responsible by Select Committee ?

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : What I want to reply to Mr. Joshi, though, Sir, you have told me not to mind interruptions—I do not know whether I should disregard this one.....

Mr. President : I would ask the Honourable Member to accept my advice.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : Very well, Sir, I shall do so. One remark Mr. Munshi made, Sir, to which I take great exception. He told us : " Why does not Parliament legislate for India ? " I hope, Sir, he will not ask this House to adopt this pernicious principle that the Houses of Parliament should legislate for India. We know how to take care of ourselves and also of the British subjects residing in India. We are not here only legislating for British subjects but, we are also mentioning aliens. The whole point is, are you going to accept the principle or not ? (Cries of " No.") If you are not going to do that, then you say you are in favour of the Communist movement in India. My friend, Mr. Jayakar, comes from Bombay and I shall read to him a small paragraph from the Indian National Herald of the 25th April 1927—a speech delivered by Mr. Spratt. And what does he say ? He says :

" It was wrong to argue, that the country was not prepared for non-violent civil disobedience. Although revolution was not synonymous with bloodshed, yet a strictly non violent atmosphere was a far off cry. Every revolution in history was attended with bloodshed. The very idea that some blood would have to be shed ought not to deter India from launching the programme of civil disobedience.

In the end Mr. Spratt hoped that the right lead would soon be forthcoming, and India would witness one of the biggest revolutions recorded in history."

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Does the Honourable Member know that Mr. Spratt was tried in the Bombay High Court and found not guilty by an English Judge ?

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : Yes, but on some other grounds, and not because he was a Communist. Sir, the whole point that I want to make out is this, that there has been sufficient evidence available in India about the existence and spread of the Communist movement in this country, and especially in Bombay it is quite evident that the strikes are due to the Communist movement. I do not for a moment agree with all the clauses that are in the Bill. I only say that we accept the principle, and that we should get rid of the Communist movement in India.

Then, Sir, as regards our fear that the Government will misuse the law, we can go to the Select Committee, fight it out there, and provide the necessary safeguards for the purpose. If we cannot find an agreement with the Government as to the safeguards which we should like to provide, it would still be open to us to throw out the Bill at the third reading, and at that time I shall be with the other side of the House (pointing to the Congress Party Benches), for the very reason that Government have failed to co-operate with the House. I personally, Sir, do not know whether a reference should be made to the letter which my father has written in this connection. My father has clearly pointed out that the Communist movement cannot be got rid of by this Bill. (Hear, hear from the Congress Party Benches.) This is only a beginning. The root cause is the policy of the Government. (An Honourable Member : " Exactly so ".) Take the ratio question. That has ruined the cultivators. That has also brought about the strikes in Bombay and elsewhere. (Hear, hear from the Congress Party Benches.) Now, if Government come forward with a Bill of this character and wish to mend their ways, and if they want the co-operation of this side of the House, we should not refuse it, and this is the only reason, Sir, that I have for supporting the principle of this Bill. Government have now come forward, they have opened their eyes to see the folly of their past actions. (An Honourable Member : " They have not seen their folly yet ".) Government have now come forward with this measure, and it is up to us to accept its principle. That is the main reason why I am supporting this measure, and I hope, Sir, that the House will agree to send it to a Select Committee.

Mian Muhammad Shah Nawaz (West Central Punjab : Muhammadan) : Sir, I thank you for giving me an opportunity to speak on the Public Safety Bill. The object of this Bill is to ensure the safety of the public. While all civilised countries have long since taken measures to check the anarchical activities of the Communist International, the Government of India, who are in charge of teeming millions of the people of this country, cannot shut their eyes to the dangerous propaganda that is carried on by the Red agents and their foreign emissaries from overseas. Sir, having regard to the political and economic conditions of this country, the Red agents and their friends have made India their special butt, with a view to arouse a spirit of defiance of authority and lawlessness, with the ultimate object of overthrowing the existing political Government of the land and the present structure of society by rapids of anti-political and physical force revolution, which, in my opinion, is the negation of all true political life, and is meant to crush everything even all that is good in time-honoured institutions.

Sir, much has been talked in this House about Communism. But I am sure there are still some Honourable Members in this House who would like to know the exact scope and the extent of the principles of Communism.

I will only refer to the Russian constitution to show what is meant by this Communism. Its cardinal points are laid down within the fore corners of the Russian Constitution and do not require much elucidation. I will read to you, Sir, the Articles in the Russian Constitution dealing with the subject now under discussion. Sir, I invite the attention of the House to page 220 of the book called " The Select Constitution of the World ", Chapter II, Article 3. (Russian Constitution.)

It runs thus :

" With the fundamental aim of suppressing all exploitation of man by man, of abolishing for ever the division of society "

—mark these words—

" of abolishing for ever the division of society into classes, of ruthlessly suppressing all exploiters, of bringing about the Socialist organisation of society, and of establishing the triumph of socialism in all countries, the Third all-Russian Congress of Soviets further decrees:

(a) In order to establish the socialisation of land, private ownership of land is abolished; all land is declared national property, and is handed over to the workers, without compensation, on the basis of an equitable division, carrying with it the right of use only."

That is to say, no one else but the cultivators only have the right to occupy land and landlordism and the right to hold property in private ownership is abolished for ever.

Mr. M. S. Aney : Is it bad ?

Mian Muhammad Shah Nawaz : Quite bad, certainly bad ; there is no doubt that it is thoroughly bad.

Sir Hari Singh Gour : It would be a fine thing if they took possession of your house.

Mian Muhammad Shah Nawaz : Clause (c) of Article 3 says :

" As a first step towards the complete transfer to the Workers' and Peasants' Soviet Republic of all factories, workshops, mines, railways and other means of production and transport, and in order to ensure the supremacy of the workers over the exploiters, the Congress ratifies the Soviet law on workers' control of industry and that on the Supreme Economic Council."

Clause (g) says :

" In order to secure the supremacy of the labouring masses, and to guard against any possibility of the exploiters regaining power "

—mark these words—

" the Congress decrees the arming of the workers, the formation of a Socialist Red Army of workers and peasants, and the complete disarmament of the propertied classes."

That is to say, the workers and peasants are to be armed while the propertied men, the landlords, are to be disarmed, and forcibly dispossessed of their landed property.

Now, Sir, it has been said in this House that the Russian constitution has nothing to do with religion. I will read to you an Article from their constitution itself to show that the Russian Constitution is in favour of anti-religious propaganda. This is Article 13 :

" To ensure for the workers genuine liberty of conscience, the Church is separated from the State and the school from the Church ; and freedom of religious and anti religious propaganda is assured to every citizen."

That is to say, this Russian Constitution brings into conflict different forms of religion. Recently we passed a law to the effect that malicious attacks on the founder of a religion are punishable, and here, this constitution, on the face of it, allows anti-religious propaganda to be carried on. We know the serious consequences that will follow if we were to assure anti-religious propaganda to every citizen. There will be riotings everywhere.

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar : May I ask my Honourable friend whether a Communist who interferes with religion comes within the section as defined in clause 2 of this Bill ?

Mian Muhammad Shah Nawaz : Yes, it will create hatred between class and class.

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar : Kindly read clause 2.

Mian Muhammad Shah Nawaz : I am not bound to do so. See it for yourself.

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar : Thank you.

Mian Muhammad Shah Nawaz : Well, Sir, I submit that the activities of these Communists are increasing. Only last month the Congress of International Communist youths, called the Kim, met, of course, in Moscow to discuss the situation. This session of the Conference was opened by Gorkik and he drew the attention of all the members who had assembled there to the importance of recruiting young men for the purpose of spreading the Communist propaganda throughout the length and breadth of this world. Gorkik stated that new sections of the Congress were opened in 12 countries, including Australia, Palestine

South Africa and India. He also referred to the Peasants' and Workers' Society in Bengal. He further pointed out that the Congress was sending out pioneer units in twelve countries to spread Communism even among school children. Look at the activities of the Communists, how far they go. The first resolution at this Congress was tabled by Kusmin. He said that India was the country for the activities of the Communists. He advocated the concentration of revolutionary efforts in India, among the masses, where there is so much misery. The masses, he declared, should be taught to revolt against the British Government. " Our task ", he went on to say " was to withdraw the masses from the Indian nationalist bourgeoisie and to win them for our movement ". Surely, the Indian nationalist politicians are included in bourgeoisie. He further declared that the general strikes in India are half revolutionary symptoms of an intensifying crisis, and he went on to say that these half revolutionary methods will be transformed into wholly revolutionary. These strikes will paralyse the existing administration, the pending revolution that will strike at the root of the whole economic, social and political structure of the society. The danger, therefore, from Communism is a real one. We also know that in point of fact there are some Indians who are receiving money from Moscow. Mr. Jhabvalla, a resident of Bombay, admitted—I read it in to-day's newspapers—that he had received Rs. 14,000 from Moscow for the purpose of helping the strikers. (Mr. D. V. Belvi : " 14,001.") Again it is said that Russia is for peace. Russia is not for peace. I warn the House, and I say this most emphatically, that Russia is preparing herself for another war. You have only to read the article contributed by Mr. Herbert Sweeney to the Times of India. Will you permit me, Sir, to cite the following passage from this article :

" Every man or woman is being trained as a soldier in Russia. This means that in another war the Soviet will have no non-combatants. Millions are being spent in training young men and young women in the various phases of terrible modern warfare. In military strength she is second only to France. Russia is breeding a nation whose inhabitants regardless of sex will be a warrior nation who will be taking an increasing interest in poisonous gas warfare and military aviation. All things are being controlled by the Government from the birth of children up to the time of the burial of the dead."

Well, Sir, these are the hard facts of the situation. Are we going to have Communism in India or not ? I think that gentlemen living far from the Punjab and the North-West Frontier Province do not realise the situation. Those who are living in Bombay, Madras, Central Provinces and Bengal have not much to suffer. I know full well that if there is an attack on India from Russia or Central Asia, the Punjabis will have to fight every inch of the ground and to me it will be sweet and glorious to die for my Motherland. Gentlemen coming from Bombay and other provinces do not realise that the Punjabis have to bear the brunt of the Russian invasion if it were ever to come. We feel that our hands should be strengthened rather than weakened by internal disturbances.

It has been said that there is no evidence that Communism is spreading in India. The Honourable the Home Member has given you some evidence that Communists are present in this country. He has given you evidence to show that these Communists are carrying on a propaganda of lawlessness. I will supplement that evidence and give you certain facts. Much has been said about Philip Spratt. The House may like to know who this Spratt is. He came to India ostensibly on behalf of the Labour Research

[Mian Muhammad Shah Nawaz.]

Department, London, which, according to Earl Winterton's statement in the House of Commons this year, is under the direct control of the Red International Labour Union. The activities of the Bengal workers and peasants led by Philip Spratt resulted in the prolongation of the East Indian Railway strike at Lillooah which in turn led to the terrible train disaster at Belur where many Indian citizens lost their lives on account of this wanton crime. The activities of Communists like Singaraslu and Mukund Lal brought about the strike on the South Indian Railway and the resultant loss of life and property may be directly attributed to the influence of these Communists. Sir, when you take all these facts together, they afford a conclusive proof in favour of the motion that the Bill may be referred to the Select Committee.

Now, Sir, several objections have been raised against the provisions of this Bill and to the best of my ability I shall endeavour to deal with them. The first objection was raised by the Leader of the Nationalist Party and the Honourable Mr. Jayakar. I have listened carefully to the arguments of Mr. Jayakar because he really makes good speeches and it is a pleasure and a privilege to hear him. But with all due deference to him I do not agree with him when he mistrusts the Government in so far as this legislation is concerned. I do not agree with Lala Lajpat Rai when he says that this legislation is dishonest. We know full well that we have three Indian gentlemen, three distinguished gentlemen of great ability who are Members of the Cabinet of His Excellency the Governor General ; and I take it for granted that they were consulted, and that they have assented to the principles and details of the Bill which is now before the House. Of course several years ago there used to be only one Indian Member on the Viceroy's Executive Council, but now there are three out of a total number of seven, and we must, in the circumstances of the case, trust the honesty of the Government to proceed with this Bill. Sir, I beg to submit that it is the curse of this country that we cannot trust each other. (Hear, hear.) Hindus do not trust the Mussalmans, the Mussalmans do not trust the Hindus.

An Honourable Member : Yes.

Mian Muhammad Shah Nawaz : Do they ? Do the Mussalmans accept the Constitution recently framed at Lucknow to which my learned friend, Mr. Jayakar, and the Honourable Lala Lajpat Rai have signified their assent ? Surely, the majority of Muhammadans have not accepted it. (An Honourable Member : " Question.") They can not accept any Constitution which does not safeguard their interests. I say on the floor of this House that the vast majority of Muhammadans have nothing to do with it.

Mr. M. S. Aney : On a point of order, is all this relevant, Sir, to the Bill before us ?

Mian Muhammad Shah Nawaz : It is perfectly relevant if you have eyes to see and heads to understand. Well, Sir, this constitution, as I say, has given rise to grave misgivings. Yes, the Indians do not trust the Government, and the Government do not wish to take certain people into their confidence.

An Honourable Member : Do Government trust us ?

Mian Muhammad Shah Nawaz : They do not trust you, because you desire to obstruct administrative measures and wreck also the reforms. (Hear, hear.)

An Honourable Member : Do they trust you ?

Mian Muhammad Shah Nawaz : They do not trust you because you are men of obstructionist tactics. I will not listen, Sir, to those persons who make personal remarks. They exhibit bad breeding. Well, Sir, I repeat that it is the curse of this country that Communities do not trust each other. Indians do not trust the Government, and the Government do not want to take into confidence people whose business it is in this House to obstruct.....

Mr. U. Tok Kyi (Burma : Non-European) : On a point of order, Sir. Is the Honourable Member entitled to use the phrase " bad breeding " in relation to Members of this House ?

Mr. President : The Honourable Member against whom that language was used invited it. It is, of course, improper.

Mian Muhammad Shah Nawaz : Well, Sir, I say that trust begets trust and mistrust begets mistrust. I do not mean ill to the opposition. I am giving you the simple facts, that Hindus do not trust the Mussalmans and that Mussalmans do not trust the Hindus, and that the constitution framed by the Conference at Lucknow and based on the Nehru Report which was signed by my learned friends, Lala Lajpat Rai and Mr. Jayakar is not acceptable to the Mussalmans as it does not protect the rights and interests of the minorities. (An Honourable Member : " Question.") Well, Sir, my friend, Mr. Jayakar, ignores one fact, one simple fact, that this Bill does not apply to Indians, British subjects and the subjects of States in India.

Now, Sir, the European Group of the Assembly representing a section of Britishers in this House, unanimously say that this legislation will not do them harm. I therefore think that it was rather unkind on the part of Lala Lajpat Rai and Mr. Jayakar to say that the Government is guilty of dishonesty to proceed with this extremely important measure of legislation which affects only the foreigners. After all, Sir, we know that action can only be taken under the Bill by the Governor General in Council. You may take it that the Governor General will consult other Members of his Cabinet. Any way, an amendment can be made to this effect. The procedure laid down in the Bill is hedged with great precautions and it can fairly be assumed that the Government of India will take the greatest possible care in the application of the provisions of this Bill and they will be applied only to those persons who are " Comrades " of the Union of Soviet Russia and those who are working for the Moscow cause " of red ruin and the breaking up of law." I can trust the Government, and I am perfectly certain that the Governor General in Council will see that the Government is not brought into conflict with friendly countries, and Members of the British Empire outside India. Another objection raised by the Opposition is that it vests large powers in the Governor General in Council for the deportation of Red agents and other foreign emissaries without a trial in a competent court. I agree that ordinarily an offender should be tried in a court of justice. But, as in the present case, the Government has to face a choice between two evils and is compelled to arm themselves with additional powers in order to deal effectively with certain agents and enemies of law and order whose business is to incite the masses to violent revolt, which in my humble opinion will bring ruin on this country. As you know, Sir, the object of the Bill is to send back such agents to the place whence they came from. In short it is a preventive measure. The third objection raised by some members of the Opposition is that the present legislation is entirely unnecessary because offences described therein are punishable under the existing law. With all respect to the opinion of those Members who say so—including Mr. Jayakar—I am of opinion that some of the acts described in the Bill are not covered by any existing legislation. I admit that some of them are. For instance, the offences against the State and His Majesty's Government are undoubtedly punishable under the Penal Code or under some Regulation. But the present Bill deals also with a Communist who preaches that there is no ownership in private property and invites the masses to achieve this object by violent revolt. I submit that such an offence is not covered by any previous enactment of law that I know of. Further, the Bill prohibits general strikes and mass demonstrations with a view to foment industrial and agrarian dispute, involving a penalty of deportation. I submit that such an offence is not covered by any existing law. I will not quarrel with my friends who say that the Bill has a far-reaching effect. Probably it has. But there are some offences provided for in the Bill which undoubtedly are unkown to the existing law. Again it is said that this legislation is not urgent. I have given you the facts. The Communists of Russia want to Sovietise the whole world. This fact cannot be denied. They want to destroy ownership in property ; they want to abolish class distinctions or the division of society into classes. They are aiming at the destruction of the social, economic and political structure of society. I have shown that Russians are prepared for a war. If these facts are taken together, I think the case for the urgency of the Bill is made out

Sir, I feel that nationalism will be undermined if we will permit this demon of Communism to grow and shake the fabric of society. I honestly feel that this monster of Communism should be nipped in the bud in the interest of the peaceful progress and industrial development etc., of this vast land of ours. I feel Sir, that we must stop the activities of the Communists as soon as possible, because if we do not stop them they will retard the national progress of the country and inculcate a spirit of defiance of authority and lawlessness, which, I submit, is the negation of true democratic life and action. I feel, Sir, that action was long overdue and although the seed has been sown we must shut our doors against further contamination. I feel, Sir, that the general strikes in the country on a very large scale are ruining the industries. I am not against strikes when the object is to get higher wages. But the general strikes with a view to paralyse the industries, with a view to paralyse the administration of the country, are certainly harmful to our best interests. I believe, Sir, that the decision of the Government to proceed with this Bill will be received with a sense of relief by the public, and by every right-minded Indian citizen, and I do hope, Sir, that the sense of responsibility of the majority of the Members of this House will permit the Bill to go before the Select Committee and will eventually lead to its passage. Sir, I support the motion of my friend Sir Hari Singh Gour.

Mr. H. G. Cocke : I move that the question be now put. (Several other Honourable Members also moved that the question be put.)

Mr. K. Ahmed : Sir, reference has been made by my Honourable friend Mr. Jamnadas Mehta to the allegation that Mr. M. N. Roy did not write that letter and that there was no signature to support it as genuine. But the Honourable the Home Member has said this :

> "I know that the British Communist Party addressed a reproach to Mr. M. N. Roy on the assumption that he had given ground to Government to take action on a matter of this kind. The answer was that the letter was not written by Mr. M. N. Roy; there may be some measure of literal inaccuracy, but it is true that the letter was written."

Now, Sir, certain answer has been given by my Honourable friend Mr. Jamnadas Mehta who alleged to have received a telegram supposed to have been signed by Mr. M. N. Roy. But, Sir, the question is that of the facsimile of his writing and not, Sir, the signature, the real signature, which my friends are contesting for the last three days, on which a deplorable battle has been fought for the last three days without any end. But, Sir, might I not ask Mr. Jamnadas Mehta this, has he got the hand writing and signature in the telegraphic communication that repudiates the signature in the letter and writing on its body ? How can the argument lie therefore in the mouth of Mr. Jamnadas Mehta to say that he does not accept the letter that was written and circulated ? Since some reference has been made, why should not Mr. M. N. Roy come forward, why does he not write a letter in his own hand now and say that he did not write the body of the letter ?

Yesterday I questioned the genuineness of the letter when I interrupted my Honourable friend, Mr. Jamnadas Mehta, who said that it was not his signature. But what about the remaining part of the letter, the body of the letter ? Was it not in M. N. Roy's handwriting ? Government know of the existence of certain original letters written by M. N. Roy, which are in the possession of the Home Department, and the Government, after comparing the handwriting, found that this letter was written by M. N. Roy. There is a doubt still in the minds of the Opposition party that it was not written by Roy. There have been certain letters circulated, preaching the propaganda of the Bolshevists and Communists in this country. There is no doubt about it, and this is not the only one ground upon which the Government had reason to introduce this Bill. Mr. Jamnadas Mehta probably wants to give liberty and freedom to these Bolshevists and Communists coming to this country, because purses and purses of money have been given out in this country. Mr. Joshi admits that he got money, but do they render any account of how much money they get and how much they spent ? Will the Swaraj Party tell me from the beginning of 1919 up till now how much money they have collected in the way of subscriptions from the country and from the Bolshevists also ?

A Bill of this description is an every day essential in this country. It is absolutely necessary that the poor people in this country, the dumb millions, should be protected. My Honourable friend, Sir Hari Singh Gour, was saying the other day that there have been wreckages of trains, derailments, and only a few miles from Calcutta, somewhere near Belur. So many passengers were killed and injured ; an attempt was made the day before yesterday to wreck a train somewhere in Madras. Two or three months ago in the south of India people have been arrested. That matter is sub judice, so I shall not go into it at all.

[Mr. K. Ahmed.]

Some people have, in connection with the Trade Union and labour, been prosecuted and they have been coming and going from Calcutta to Madras to find lawyers. There has been an organisation in the town of Calcutta, and I have been approached and asked by the people (Cheers) to go and raise subscriptions. Haven't I experience for the last fifteen years ? Have I not seen how they have been carrying on for the last twenty years, how much money they have collected ? Have they rendered an account ?

Mr. President : Order, order, I will ask the Honourable Member to be relevant.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Now, Sir, let us consider about the liberty and freedom that Mr. Mehta wants to give to these foreigners and asks the Communists to come with their purses and distribute money, no account of which is rendered. Then he brought in certain cases of forgeries and so on. Perhaps he has forgotten history. Does he not know that just at the time when the East India Company came into the possession of a portion of Bengal and at the time when Clive had not come, there were forgerers in India like Omichand and Nankumar ? This is recorded in history. Who started the game ? Why do you find fault with the Government in such petty matters ? There is ample evidence that the Communists are trying to get a stronghold in this country. Have you not read the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the Bill ? The Honourable the Home Member has placed ample materials before the House to come to the conclusion that the Communists are very active in India. What does the Statement of Objects and Reasons say :

"Evidence has accumulated recently of the subversive intentions and activities of the Communist International generally, and in particular of the efforts it is directing against India. The general policy of the Communist movement is to rouse a spirit of discontent and lawlessness in the masses, whether industrial or agricultural, with the ultimate object of destroying by violence both the Government established by law and the present economic organisation of society and substituting what they describe as the dictatorship of the proletariat. For the promotion of this movement, in India, as in other countries, the Communists depend largely on the work of propagandists who are despatched to the country for the purpose of forming organisations intended to promote and spread Communistic ideas and doctrines, and of creating general unrest among the masses. It is not reasonable that these agents of Communism, if they happen to obtain entrance into India, should be allowed to stay in India with the object of undermining the whole structure of the life of the community. The Bill therefore is designed to provide a power of removing such persons provided that they are not Indian British subjects or subjects of a State in India."

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Where is the evidence ?

Mr. K. Ahmed : You find it in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. That is what has induced the Government to take action in this matter. My Honourable friend seems to forget the fact that Mr. M. N. Roy's letter was circulated to all the people. You have heard from the Honourable the Home Member and also from Sir Hari Singh Gour as well as from other Honourable Members that the Communist activities are spreading fast in this country and yet if you have any misgiving about this fact, I do not know whether there is any sense in the doubt. (Laughter.) No sensible man would raise any objection to this Bill. (Laughter.)

Now, Sir, I have heard a great deal about the philosophy of Mr. Belvi and another Member on the opposite side. They are all great lovers of politics to-day, but they seem to have forgotten their love of society and their love of orthodoxy. Nobody can believe when my Honourable friends say that in their love of politics, they should abandon all their love for social life and that they should discard all their orthodox habits. Now, Sir, they say that for the sake of politics, they want people from Moscow to come here. They want people from foreign countries to take part in this Communistic activity. Is not, Sir, their heart stronger than their head to-day ? Sir, I heard this morning, when my Honourable friend Mr. Gavin-Jones was speaking, a fight was going on between Indian capitalists and millowners and European capitalists and millowners : my Honourable friends, Mr. Birla and Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas on the one side, and Mr. Gavin-Jones and Sir Victor Sassoon on the other. I suspected them very much. Why is it that these Indian capitalists have been fighting against the European capitalists ? I ask my Honourable friend Mr. Gavin-Jones to pay adequately to the poor labourer. (Hear, hear.) I ask him to pay higher wages to his labourers but he did not respond. I put the same question to Mr. Birla and Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas. (Laughter.) Have they paid more salaries or do they agree to pay higher wages to their labourers ? I ask my Honourable friend Mr. Haji whether he would agree to pay to the Indian lascars and the seamen employed by the Scindia Steam Navigation Company higher wages than the British India Steam Navigation Company pay to their labourers ?

Well, Sir, what difference does it make to the masses, to the Indian seamen and the Indian lascars, whether they receive their wages from the hands of the British India Steam Navigation Company or from the hands of the Scindia Steam Navigation Company ? What we want to know is whether they will be able to maintain themselves and pay our labour at a higher rate of wages than what they receive from the European Company. Don't we know the story of the Bengal National Bank ? Don't we know that the Indian capitalists combine among themselves in a conspiracy ? Mr. Haji is either Manager or Secretary of the Scindia Steam Navigation Company. He is therefore an interested person ; but he should have been more interested in labour being a public man at the same time. He has an axe of self interest to grind. However, that is not the subject of the present debate.

Well, Sir, I come to Mr. Bharucha. I suppose he is a nominated Member. I congratulate him on his maiden speech delivered to-day in this Assembly. I take him to be a fine speaker, but unfortunately to my interjections I did not get a single answer from him when I said : "Why don't you go to these millowners and insist that the strikers should be paid at a higher rate than they are paid at present ". I hold that there is every justification for the opposite Benches to come to the rescue of these poor people and compel the millowners to pay them more. I challenge the Government to say why they should not compel these millowners to pay their men better. My friend the Honourable Mr. McWatters making a speech two days ago said that for the past four or five years the Government had been passing legislation to ameliorate the condition of labour, and what else could the Government do ? I ask the Government to bring forward as much legislation as is necessary in this Assembly for the purpose of improving the condition of the masses. Because, Sir, the Government now realise that the difference in the voting, whether the Bill is sent for circulation or referred to a Select Committee, will be probably one, two or three votes, not more. I ask the Government to understand that the opinion of the country is against you. If you are not careful, if you do not give a sufficient amount of satisfaction to those who ask for it on behalf of the masses, then they will run amok against you. Sir, Mr. Bharucha would not satisfy me on this point Of course he was not in a position to do so.

I turn now to Mr. Munshi. In a maiden speech the Honourable Member from Burma told us that under the Government of India Act, the Government is not entitled to launch a Bill of this description here. But the Indian Legislature has power under Section 65 to make laws for all persons, for all courts, for all places and for all things within British India. And he wanted to say that because there is a Parliament in England, this Bill should have been brought in there and passed ; he does not realise his position, Sir. He comes from a great distance no doubt. But does he want to degrade the status and position of this House ? We are in no way inferior (Hear, hear and Cheers.) to the House of Commons, because there is nothing to prevent us from putting a law on the Statute-book ; of course there is a provision in the Rules and Standing Orders that where the law prevents, you cannot do so. As for instance if the legislation would be against the British Statute.

Mr. President, I had great pleasure in listening to the speeches of distinguished Members of this Assembly ; many of them are leaders. This Bill provides for the removal from British India of persons not being Indian British subjects or subjects of States in India. No Indian is hurt ; only their friends or those who bring money. Are you going to tell us that for the sake of your bargain the masses should suffer ? Certainly not.

Sir, from the notice of amendments given in to-day's agenda by my friend, Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru, Mr. Jamnadas Mehta, Mr. M. K. Acharya, Mr. Joshi, Pandit Thakurdas Bhargava and my friend Mr. K. C. Neogy probably, it appears they approve of it going to Select Committee ; otherwise why should they have given notice of such amendments ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I never gave any such notice.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Here it is ; all of them want to refer it to Select Committee.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Not I.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Here it is : Mr. K. C. Neogy wants it to be referred to a Select Committee consisting of such and such Members ; they will be quite satisfied if the Bill is referred to Select Committee.....

Mr. K. C. Neogy : That is another Bill. (Laughter.)

Mr. K. Ahmed : Now, Sir, this shows that my friends are willing to refer it to Select Committee ; of course they may console themselves by clapping their hands now ; but so many leaders and deputy leaders have given notice of this amendment. There is Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar. He did not venture to withdraw his name when his name was mentioned for Select Committee ; he is agreeable now to serve on the Committee. I understand the object of his Party, Sir, in adding to the numbers from their own men on the Committee is not to make any progress with the Bill but to paralyse it. If that is the object, Sir, I am sorry for the treatment you are trying to give. When you have got a losing case, I am sorry that you should take advantage of the situation. Sir, it is not fair. Against the wishes of the people you have stood here and you are taking advantage of the Government and of the dumb millions.

If that is not the motive, then why have you got more persons put in there from your Party than is necessary ? I submit, Sir, that that amendment should not be moved because it will jumble it up with the other main proposition and amendments, that is to say, circulation and Select Committee and the Bill itself.

Now, Sir, this Bill provides for the removal of those persons,—nothing to do with the people of India or the Indian States.

Why should not these people be turned out of this country ? Why
5 P.M. should my friends on the opposite side welcome them here ? Because they want bags of money from Moscow ? These Communists, Sir, supply funds, they send money, to help labour in this country and to preach Communist doctrines to Mr. Joshi. (Laughter.) Has my friend Mr. Joshi asked his strike committee to render an account of the money they have received from Moscow recently ? Now, Sir, the object of the Communists is to rouse a spirit of discontent and lawlessness in the masses.....

Mr. President : I think this ought to be enough. May I suggest to the Honourable Member to bring his remarks to a close ?

Mr. K. Ahmed : Yes, Sir. Now, Sir, my friend Sir Hari Singh Gour has already quoted from books how dangerous it would be to allow the Communist agents to come and carry on their propaganda in this country. Then the Honourable the Home Member alluded to the Moplah outrages in Malabar. The House knows that Hindus were converted forcibly, and that Hindu temples were desecrated. (An Honourable Member : "Do you know it for a fact ?" That is what the Honourable the Home Member said then. We are also aware of the numerous revolutionary movements which have occurred in the country during the last few years. Now, Sir, I ask my friends on the opposite Benches, has Swaraj come out of all these revolutionary movements ? Would it come within a day or within a month or within a year by such means ? Well, Sir, promises were made that Swaraj would come within a year, and all those promises have proved utterly false. These promises have disappointed the people of this country.

Then, Sir, my friend Sir Victor Sassoon made a reference to China and the arrival of Bolshevik agents there, and he said that those agents were turned out of the country. I also gathered from the speech of my Honourable friend Nawab Sir Sahibzada Adbul Qaiyum that near about his place, on the borders of the Frontier, he found ample evidence about the existence of Communist agents and of their activities. He has got first hand information and the House must be very grateful to him for supplying that information to us. He said that these Communists are an awful lot, and if they are allowed to come to this country they will shoot, kill and cripple the people, they will destroy all and cut off the leaves of the trees, and eat them up like locusts ; they will plunder the country, and remove idols from the temples and so forth. All that is clear from the reports that we have heard about these Communists. What is the use of denying all that ? Then, Sir, My Honourable friend

[Mr. K. Ahmed.]

Sir Denys Bray rightly said in the course of his beautiful speech that it is absolutely necessary to protect Islam and Hinduism and to improve the condition of all, the middle classes as well as the labouring classes. No doubt, Sir, religion will be at stake, big buildings will be destroyed, money will be taken away, there will be destruction of the existing social structure and the historical beauty of the country will be lost. The whole fabric.....

Mr. President : Perhaps the Honourable Member has not understood me. There are other Honourable Members to follow, and I have decided to finish this debate to-night.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Yes, Sir, I will finish just now.

Mr. Birla has made a statement that 22 per cent. profit was made in connection with certain business the other day in the Indian coastal shipping trade by the European companies. Well, Sir, I do not know how far they will be out of pocket if the capitalists from Bombay, Ahmedabad, Calcutta, Cawnpore and other places come forward with the biggest capital and are able to start a business like this. That is the reason of the quarrel between these two capitalists.

Mr. President : Thank you.

(The Honourable Member was standing while Mr. President also was standing, and there were cries of " Order, order " from the House.)

Mr. K. Ahmed : Now, Sir, I will bring my remarks to a close.

Mr. President : One minute more, Mr. Kabeer-ud-Din Ahmed.

Mr. K. Ahmed : I will take Honourable Members of this Assembly for a minute to Bengal. What has been done there within the course of last month ? There, Sir, the great benefactors of the masses have been doing this. 97 per cent. of the population of Bengal are tenants and peasants, and, Sir, there was a Bengal Tenancy Bill in the Bengal Legislative Council passed only last week. Sir, almost all the amendments of the Bill which have been passed are in favour of the landlords and the rumour is they have taken a lakh of rupees from the Zamindars. They ground the country thus, and that is the position of our so-called friends and benefactors of the masses. Is there any Bengal M. L. A. here in this Assembly who can tell me that the fact is not correct ? (An Honourable Member : " Absolutely correct ".)

I shall now bring my remarks to a close. I submit, Sir, that the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee and not circulated. There may be some connection between the Safety Bill under discussion and the Muslim Outlook's glacier which burst with a shattering roar on Shyveok Distributory, Karrakoran Valley, on the border of Tibet and Kashmere. The glacier is blocking this tributory of the Indus. Millions and millions of gallons of water are supposed to have been pent up, 30 ft. deep and 9 miles broad. This will not burst and the Bill will run its smooth course. I urge, Sir, that the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee and passed.

(Several Honourable Members moved that the question be put.)

Mr. M. K. Acharya (South Arcot cum Chingleput : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I am very thankful to you for permitting me to say a few words before recording my vote. I may perhaps begin by moving the amendment that stands in my name.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member has not given notice of any amendment.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : There is one here in my name, Sir.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member wants to move a substantive motion that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consising of so-and-so. He is not entitled to do so. It is only the Member in charge of a Bill who can do it.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : Then, Sir, I will content myself with making my position clear. I am unfortunately unable to subscribe wholly to the contentions put forth whether on this side or on that. Of course, I have listened, as the House doubtless has listened, to some very excellent speeches. We have had the genial showers, interspersed with thunder and lightning as usual, of my genial friend Mr. Ranga Iyer. We have had the heavy downpour of Lala Lajpat Rai ; we have had the very fast airy flights from Moscow to Madras of Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar ; and we have had also from the opposite side the fiery indignant blaze of Sir Denys Bray. Despite the flood and fire, thunder and lightning and airy flights of these Honourable gentlemen, I did try my best to remain on solid earth, and tried rather hard to find out exactly on what side the more weighty arguments lay. I was very glad to hear the great champions of liberty and freedom coming out at least this week. I thought the Goddess of Liberty had gone to sleep last Saturday. I am glad she has woke up this week. The champions of liberty have been loud in claiming that not a single hair on the head of a single man of any country whatsoever shall be touched. They have been loud in championing the liberties of the people of other countries. How I wish, Sir, that a tithe of this same zeal for liberty, for freedom, had been evinced in dealing with the many unfortunate men like myself who have conscientious scruples and want to follow their religious tenets in their own way ! How I wish that these great champions of liberty would permit their own countrymen the liberty to perform their own religious rites as they understand them ! Lala Lajpat Rai was in great horror of this penal law. Against whom ? Against a few foreigners ! But he has no objection to invite this bureaucratic Government—I believe he said this dishonest Government—to invite them to pass a penal law not against foreigners, but against his own unhappy countrymen who think that their religion enjoins on them to marry their girls before a certain age. To that penal law against their own countrymen these champions of liberty have no objection ; while to this penal law against foreigners, to the Bill under discussion, which seeks to exclude from India a few foreigners of doubtful character, they have great objection ! I am sorry they are so palpably inconsistent. When they enthusiastically advocate a penal law against their own countrymen, and at the same time come out with strong denunciations against a measure which seeks to interfere with the freedom and liberty of a few foreigners—when these great intellectual giants do this, I must confess I am confused. I do not think they are serious. I do not believe that they are serious when they say that freedom of conscience, freedom of action, freedom of speech, freedom of association must be granted to all foreigners but not to poor, unfortunate Indians, especially if these happen to belong to the orthodox section. Sir, this faked-up championship of foreign liberties does not appeal to me It does not touch my heart.

On the other hand, I have got my difficulties with the other side. As I said, I am going to remain on solid earth ; I am not going to dally with heighty-flighty idealistic principles. My chief difficulty with the other side —of course, it has been said many times,—is that the Government have been accustomed to use these special powers in a manner which has lost them our confidence. They have abused their powers in the past ; and therefore we are naturally unwilling to entrust them with new powers. A very singular incident happened to myself just as I got out of the train at Simla a few days ago, and went up to the place which had been arranged for me by a friend of mine At that time some policeman in ordinary clothes or whoever else he was, was dogging my heels. My friend noticed it, and said that somebody was dogging my heels. I stopped in half a dozen places to see whether the man was really dogging me. The man halted every time too, and truly was coming behind me. I wondered whether some female champions of freedom—for I was told they were very busy at Simla to catch men, mean trying to catch votes for Mr. Sarda's Bill—whether these over-zealous ladies were trying to find out where I was going to stay ; or whether really some C. I. D. man was dogging my heels. He was, if a C..I. D. agent, probably looking out for some bearded man who was in the bad books of the C. I. D. and perhaps he took me to be the man he had been looking for. I hope he found out his mistake at last and went away. But if this had happened to me at Delhi or Calcutta or some other place where I was changing trains I do not know what would have happened to me. I might probably have been arrested. I might have had a blank order of internment or deportation served on me by the C. I. D man mistaking me all the time for somebody else. This shows how badly these powers have been used in the past. The Honourable the Home Member knows nothing of these matters ; it is all the work of underlings ; but unfortunately Government has to take the responsibility and justify everything done. There is one other tragic instance I my relate. It relates to a Bengali called Kiran Chunder Mukerjee. He had been externed for five years and was released only on the 1st of September. I met him on the 1st accidentally at Waltair, on the railway platform, as he was getting into the same train by which I was travelling. He was introduced to me by somebody as a Bengali externee. I asked him what he had been guilty of ; but he could not tell me. He said he was never told what exactly he was guilty of. I asked him, " Did you know the late Mr. Das ". He said he knew him only by name. I asked him whether he knew Subhas Chunder Bose. He said " Only by name." I asked him, " Do you know Bepin Chandra Pal ?" The answer again was " Only by name ". I asked him whether he had been engaged in any political work before he was externed. He said " No ". Then I asked for and he gave me his address : it was " Satyasram "—in some place in Bengal I looked at it and exclaimed : " I see now ; verily you are a dangerous man if you are in charge of a Satyasram ; for Satya —truth— is very dangerous in this world of ours. Nothing more dangerous than that ! How often have I come to grief for speaking the bare truth and for acting according to the dictates of truth." Now, my conclusion, Sir, is that he was probably externed from Bengal for five years having been mistaken for some other man who was perhaps the real culprit. All the same this poor man had to rot for five years. Judging from past experiences, therefore, we are right in saying that we cannot give these extraordinary powers to the Government ; and on this one ground I would reject the Bill summarily.

But there is one small difficulty which I would point out in this connection. Suppose, Sir, you were living, or rather our millionaire friend Mr. Birla were living in a big mansion with many doors and windows opening outside. He employs half a dozen watchmen to guard the house at night. One day the watchmen come and say, let us suppose, " We fear there are mischief-mongers busy about here. We want some more weapons. We want one more gun and some more ammunition to guard the house properly." Let us suppose that Mr. Birla says, " No. You must guard the house with the weapons you have got ". Then the watchmen say, " We shall do our best ; but if anything wrong happens, we shall not be responsible." Then what in all probability they will do is—if they are not very honest folk—if they are as dishonest as this Government is said to be—perhaps this : they will themselves leave a door half open that night, and let in the thieves ; and next morning they will come before Mr. Birla and say, " We told you yesterday, but you did not allow us any extra ammunition." Now let us apply this analogy to this Government demand ;—let them be as wicked as you like ; yet they are the present de facto guardians of the safety of this land. I have no particularly kind words to say about them ; but all the same, they are the de facto Government ; and until my friend, Mr. Jamnadas Mehta, becomes the Commerce Member of the Government of India, and my friend Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar becomes the Law Member, or Lala Lajpat Rai the Home Member, or my friend Mr. Joshi becomes the Industries and Labour Member,—until then these gentlemen happen to be the de facto Government who have to be held responsible, whether they like it or not, for the safety and the peace of this land.

An Honourable Member : To whom ?

Mr. M. K. Acharya : To us ! They are not yet responsible ; well, that is our quarrel. But that apart, I repeat, they are the de facto Government ; and until they are replaced—and I would be very glad when they are replaced, the sooner the better it would be of course—but until they are driven out, they are the guardians of this land. And so this difficulty comes up. Supposing they say "We apprehend danger from the Communists, we want some special powers "; and we throw out their demand. Then what will happen ? If they be really very dishonest people, as they are declared to be, they themselves will allow some Bolsheviks to come in, and great trouble will then arise, and great loss of property and life ; then if we ask them what be the cause of all this trouble, they will say : " We told you in Simla last September that trouble was brewing ; and we asked you to give us special powers ; but you said there was no such fear of trouble and you declined to give us any powers to prevent what we foresaw, what can we do ? Now there is the trouble." In other words, they will throw the whole blame on us. This, Sir, is the only consideration which makes me pause for a moment before I say emphatically, "We shall have nothing to do with this Bill". I would like to throw the whole responsibility on the Government. If I were asked, I would let them have this Bill for only one year ; tell them that they must come up again at the end of the year to give an account of how this law has been worked. Then if we found that they had not worked this Bill properly, we should decline to renew it. It is said that Government may use Regulation III of 1818 against these foreign Communists. It is strange that this suggestion comes from the people who have been persistently asking for the repeal of Regulation III. We have been and still are strongly opposed to using Regulation III against this man or that man, Indian or non-Indian. We should not ask Government to use it against any one at all ; if we do so ask, that would give the Government a handle to say, " Well, you yourself asked us to use the weapon !"

My view strongly is that that Regulation III must go immediately,—and this Bill must be passed for only one year. Meantime Government should take steps to bring a comprehensive Bill to deal with all exceptional cases. I hold that Regulation III is no proper piece of legislation ; it is ' a lawless law,' and no legislation enacted by any free legislature I repeat, this Bill must be passed for only one year and must further be hedged in by proper safeguards.

But these are matters which should be considered by the Select Committee ; whether this should be passed for one year ; whether before dealing with any man, the man's case should not be put up before two or three Judges or two or three Members of this House, and whether only upon their recommendation should not the man be declared to be a dangerous man,—things of that kind are for the Select Committee ; and I myself have given notice of amendments of this kind. These are matters however which ought to go to the Select Committee. Of course if we are really and unconditionally strongly against this measure, we must throw it out ; but if we think the Bill can be allowed for a year or so with certain amendments, it should be sent to the Select Committee. Either of these two courses I can understand ; but I cannot understand the amendment seeking to circulate the Bill for public opinion. Public opinion cannot tell us whether there is any Bolshevik plot being hatched against India or not. It can only say that some phrase or clause is too wide or inconsistent here or some impractical there and so on. But the Members of the Select Committee must be able to find out these things. Again, if Government are willing to take any non-official Members into their confidence, then from the papers which Government must show to them, they may be able to say whether there is really good reason to believe that there are any Communist plots actually being hatched against India. But if this House and the Government cannot come to any such understanding, I fail to perceive how public opinion will make us any the wiser on the need for this Bill. The Select Committee ought to be able to decide how this Bill should be mended in its details. Then we shall be able to say whether the Bill should be rejected ; and then we may finally say that this is either wanted or not wanted. Therefore, Sir, I am in this peculiar position. I am unable to agree completely with all that has been said on this side or with all that has been said on the other side. In that very unhappy position I thank you for permitting me to point out the difficulty in which I am placed. I hope that my good friends,—the good friends who have been trying to bring pressure to bear upon me—will, consistently with their principles of freedom of conscience and liberty of thought, allow me the freedom of voting as my humble judgment tells me with regard to this question.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya (Allahabad and Jhansi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I am entirely opposed to Communistic doctrines. I consider that the principles of Communism are opposed to truth : they are opposed to justice : they are opposed to religion. I consider that they will not succeed in the end, though they may win a momentary triumph, because they are opposed to the laws of nature.

Until Communists can discover some method by which they will distribute talent equally among all mankind : until they can find out some method by which they can invest every man with the same capacity for hard work, industry and skill which others possess, Communism is an absurdity. It may flourish for a time, but it is bound to die in the course of time. I recognize the evil that Communism will import into this country and I would use every legitimate endeavour to keep it out of the country. I think the sense of this House also, or at least of the bulk of the Assembly, has made it abundantly clear that they do not want to encourage Communistic ideas to spread or Communistic principles to be carried out in this country. I would be opposed to Communistic principles being preached in this country at any time ; but I am much more opposed to their being introduced at this juncture when we are on the eve of a great change. A Commission has been appointed in order to report to Parliament what changes shall be introduced. The Peoples' Party in the country have on their own side agreed to a constitution which, in spite of the evil prognostications and to some extent the misrepresentations of Mr. Shah Nawaz, has been accepted by the bulk of Muslim public opinion and by the bulk of the Hindu community. If my friend had said that there are some Mussalman gentlemen who have not accepted the constitution adopted at Lucknow, I would have had no quarrel with him. But he cannot overlook facts, the hard facts, that a number of very respectable and representative Mussalman gentlemen took part in the Conference at Lucknow and put their seals to the resolutions arrived at there.

(At this stage numerous interruptions were made by Mr. Shah Nawaz and other Members.)

Mr. President : Order, order.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : Sir, I hope to live to see the great bulk of the Muslim population of this country support the conclusions of the All-Parties Conference. But I will leave it at that here ; we shall discuss it at some other time. I have no quarrel with any Member who says that there is a body of Mussalman opinion which has not subscribed to those conclusions. But for my friend Mr. Shah Nawaz to say that the entire Mussalman opinion is opposed to it is not correct, as he will readily admit. Now, Sir, I submit that when the Nehru Committee has submitted a report and has prepared a constitution which, after the deliberations at the Lucknow Conference, has been accepted by the bulk of the Indian public opinion : when we are preparing to carry on a great nation-wide agitation to see that that Committee's report and that Conference's resolutions are accepted in toto by the Parliament of England : when we expect two years' hence to see the transference of power, not the overthrow of the Government, from persons now ruling in this country to the representatives of the people elected by them : when we are preparing to carry on an agitation all over the land to see that every man and woman expresses his or her adherence to those resolutions and makes his or her contribution to the result we desire ; when we want all that, I do not want that the difficult path of our work should be impeded by new obstacles created by men who come from outside to preach Communistic doctrines in India. The time has come when every iota of our energy, when every particle of our thought has to be devoted to establish to the satisfaction of every reasonable man that India shall not be happy if it does not get full responsible Government in 1930. We have got that great task before us. To some it may sound a wild proposition. I hope to live to see i realised. For that reason I am most anxious that no outsiders, n foreigners, possessed by those Communistic ideas should come into thi country and stand in the way of our work. Particularly for that reaso I want that every legitimate effort should be made to keep out these men We also know that our country is in a very unfortunate position. In dustrially it is in the most regrettable position and the fault of it doe not lie upon the people or upon the Bolsheviks or Communists who hav come here. We have heard of Communists coming only during the las two years ; we have heard how one of them was imprisoned because h travelled under a false passport and how two of them were unable t make any impression. We can afford to let them stand alone, we ca afford to leave them alone ; but we have to provide against these doctrine being preached among our people by our own men. What is the bes way to do it ? The Government say they want to shut out a few Britisher from coming into India. You have read the answer which the Moscov Conference has given. My friend Mr. Neogy read a portion of the repor of that Conference and somebody demanded that he should read the rest I will read the rest. The Communists have said :

"It was necessary to give up the idea of the European playing a direct part i any Indian Revolution or of any useful work by an Anglo-Indian Communist Party because Indians mistrusted whites even if Communists. The Communist Interna tional must therefore handle the new independent Indian Communist Party throug natives."

And they go on to say :

"The agents had apparently hitherto not realised that India is not an industria but primarily an agricultural country. Therefore it was possible to overthrow Britis dominion only by stirring up the Indian countryside; Indian revolution must be a agrarian revolution and one of the most immediate tasks is the 'mobilisation of th Indian peasants'."

That is the work which they have cut out for themselves. We may ignor the factory men that they might approach ; what is the number o factory men ? That does not count when compared to the vast mass o the agricultural community. The Communists will direct their efforts as they say, if they can do so, if we shall not be able to put our head together and to adopt the right means to stop those efforts, they wil work among Indian agriculturists through Indian brains, Indian tongue and Indian hands. That is the problem that is before us ; but let m say that the revolution that you are so much afraid of will be brough about not by the cleverness or the capacity of these Communists but b the failure of the Indian Government to rise to the occasion, to do wha the occasion demands. A great writer has said that 'a revolution i ultimately never the fault of the people, but of the injustice and incapacit of the government', and I say that if a revolution takes places in peacefu India, which follows the ancient religions which teach us not to shed a drop of blood where it can be prevented, if a revolution does take plac in India, it will be the fault of the British Government, of the injustic and incapacity of the British Government. How have these Communist been able to find any place in India to work in ? What is it that gav rise to these strikes ? Can anybody having any regard for truth say tha these strikes were started by these Communists ? Can anybody forge the action of this Government in passing that cursed Act by which the 18 ratio was established in India ? Can anybody forget the amount of misery that it has inflicted upon the people ? You talk of strikes. Did not Sir Basil Blackett appearing before the Currency Commission predict that there would be strikes in India if you depreciated the rupee, as they intended to do ? Did not Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas predict that there would be strikes in India, if you gave a 12½ per cent. advantage to the foreigners to compete with Indian industrialists ? Did not other people predict that that would be one of the results ? Whom can you blame for the present situation when you yourself gave an advantage of 12½ per cent. to foreigners to compete with the industrialists in this country ? You are surprised that there should be strikes ? It is very, very sad—it is incomprehensible—that you should really be so. The agriculturists are losing 30 to 40 crores every year as the result of that cursed legislation. Let anybody deny that if he dare to and if the agriculturists are put in that horrible position in which the value of all their silver possessions has been so unjustly lowered, so ruthlessly cut down, who is to blame if there is unrest among them, the Communists or the Government of India ? It is the Government of India who will be responsible before God and man for any revolution that will be brought about in this country. You talk about the strikes, about the unrest that has been going on. There have been some strikes, but they have not been as many as might have been expected. I do not love strikes, I hate them, I do not want any of these industrial matters to be fought out on that basis. I want them to be settled by arbitration and mutual fairness. Whenever there has been an opportunity for me to do so, I have always endeavoured to help to settle such disputes amicably. But I submit that it is wrong and unjust, it is unreasonable and unsound to say that these strikes have been the result, the appreciable result, of Communistic teachings. It is you, the Government, who created the situation and then they came in. They were out for it and seized the opportunity and tried to bamboozle some of our workers. I grant that they have helped to delay the settlement. I did not meet any of them—the British Communists—when I visited Bombay, although I was asked to do so because I wanted the trouble to be settled between our own industrialists and labourers. I admit that the presence of some of these Communists has had the result of prolonging the agony of the strikes. But the main reason is patent to any man who cares to see with his eyes. The main reason is that you passed legislation by which it has become impossible for the industrialist in this country to compete with the foreigner. What is the result ? So many Bombay mills have been closed down for so many months, and yet the mills that are working in India do not find a market for their goods. Ask Sir Victor Sassoon to deny that, ask Mr. Birla to deny that. They will not, they can not. The stocks are there, but there are no purchasers to be found. And how has that happened ? The Bombay mills are so large in number, I think they number 120 ? No. 86, and these 86 mills have been closed for about 5 months, and yet the few other mills that have been working have been unable to find purchasers. What is that due to ? It is due to the fact that the agriculturists constitute 80 per cent. of the purchasers. They have been deprived of the power to do so, they have been robbed of their money by you, and left starving and poor. That is the result of the legislation adopted by this Government by the miserable majority of 3. It was not right that Government should have created such a situation.

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.]

It is due to that that Communism will grow in India. Communistic doctrines have been in circulation for a long time. I am not given to swearing, but you can take my word for it that I have not the faintest sympathy with these doctrines. I do not like their spread in this country. But they will spread, they have spread and are spreading. They will spread even if this legislation is passed. The Government will not be able to stop their spreading. The only thing that will stop the spreading of Communistic doctrines in this country is the doing of justice to the people of India. Deal with the people of India as you deal with your fellowmen, of your own race. You have failed to do justice to Indians. You have had a long innings, you have been tried and found wanting. Transfer the power which you enjoy to the hands which can reasonably, naturally and rightly be expected to promote the interests both of the labourer and the capitalist. What is the evidence that we can give to support this demand? Look at the Nehru report. What does it say? It provides that the interest of the labourer and the peasant shall be duly safeguarded, that there shall be legislation to promote their interests, to see that they should get proper wages, that their welfare should be properly looked after. That is one of the cardinal points in the constitution adopted by us. The same clause says that the fixity and permanence of tenure shall be secured to them. At the same time there is a fourth clause which says that the rights and titles to private property are hereby guaranteed. That is the constitution which we have framed to safeguard and to promote the interests of all classes of the people. But the Government have failed to bring about happy relations between labourers and capitalists. They have failed to improve the condition of the agriculturists to the extent they should have done. I have told you what my attitude is towards Communism. But there is one aspect of Communism which is part of my religion and that is that I desire from the bottom of my heart to see the condition of the agriculturists improved. I think the condition of the agriculturists in the greater part of the country is a matter for shame to the Government which has ruled over this country for such a long time. I think the conditions of the labourers also should be much improved in most places in India. I have visited several industrial centres in India, I have visited several places where a large number of workers is daily working in mills or factories, and I regret to say that the condition of the workers is in many places pitiable and requires much improving. The Indian millowners are not such a bad lot as they have been represented to be. They are human, they are patriotic, some of them are shortsighted, but all of them are not. In several places much has been done to improve the condition of labour. I have seen the Tatas' works at Jamshedpur and I have also seen several other mills which I will not mention here. I have seen what good arrangements have been made in those mills for the welfare of the labourers. I do not say that I am quite satisfied with them. I want something more to be done. I want that every labourer should have the chance, should have the opportunity to rise to the full height of the stature which God has implanted in him. He should have his proper share of the amenities of life. That is the right way to improve the lot of labourers in this country. We have framed a constitution, we have pointed out the way in which we desire to improve the lot of our labourers and peasants. Let the Government tread along the path emphasised by us with a view satisfactorily to improve the lot of the poor people and thereby stop the growth of Communism in this country. This plant of Communism which you say has already been implanted in this country cannot be stopped by the proposed legislation. No, Sir, it cannot be. I therefore ask the Government to consider what is the right course for it to adopt. We are willing to help the Government in checking the spread of Communism. So far as this side of the House is concerned, I say that it has sufficiently indicated that it does not want to encourage the spread of Communism or Communistic doctrines in this country. The great objection to this Bill is, in the first place, that it is unnecessary and, in the second place, that it is objectionable. It is open to grave objection in the first place because its scope is very wide, more extensive than it should be, and in the second place because it violates the very first principle of justice, of the right of a man to defend himself, in that it refuses to a man the fundamental liberty of defending himself against any action that may be brought against him. Those are the two most important objections to the Bill, which require to be considered. My Honourable friend Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra was wrong when he said that he pleaded for the principle of the Bill and so also was my Honourable friend Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtullah. They both forget that the principle of the Bill is not that the Bolshevists or the Communists shall be kept out of India. That is its object. The principle of the Bill is that a man shall be told to remove himself from the country by a mere executive order, without trial, without being given an opportunity to defend himself against the charges brought against him. That is what has entered like steel in the hearts of those who sit on this side of the House. We are not friends of Communists, we are friends of liberty. We are defenders of the rights of all human beings. We plead that if any of our fellowmen is considered dangerous to this country and if the Government think that he should leave the country, let him at least have an opportunity to have his say on the matter. I do not say you are wicked. You are human. You are liable to err as all of us are. You have erred in the past and that is the justification why some of us, your critics, say that you should not be entrusted with this further extraordinary power. We recognise that so long as you are governing the country you must have some power to deal with a menacing situation. We are willing to give you the power to send such a man out of the country in a judicial way. But what is the power you want? You want power to ask a man who belongs to a Communistic body to leave the country by a mere executive order, without giving him an opportunity of saying a word in his defence. You want that power and we are unwilling to give you that power. Why should you insist that you should have the power to proceed against a man in the manner suggested in your Bill? Why will you not let that man have notice of the charges brought against him and give him an opportunity to defend himself? What will you lose by allowing him such an opportunity? According to your own statement, there has been Communistic propaganda going on in this country for the last two years. You have waited so long. You have not taken action against the Communists. Why can you not brook a little further delay in asking the man to remove himself from this country? What evil consequences would follow if you allow an opportunity to the man whom you want to quit the country, to put in his defence before a court of law? I have told you that they would not have had this Bombay strike if it were not for the very ugly legislation which you passed. I have told you that but for that the Communists would probably not have had any chance of coming and creating trouble in Bombay. But you want those men to be deported without giving them an opportunity to be heard. This is what we object to.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy who always makes the most conciliatory of speeches tried his best to put the best aspect he could upon your proposals ; and I do not think it was his fault that he failed to do so. Sir George Rainy urged that Communist doctrines are dangerous. I agree. I grant it. We are at once with him there He urged that the Government should be entrusted with power to keep out Communists or to send them out. I agree. But when he came to deal with the most vital issue of all, he said, " You want Government to place the evidence that it has before you ; Government cannot do so " He said that if the evidence were sufficient to justify a prosecution the Government would resort to prosecution. That is quite right. But he said there may be cases where though the evidence is not sufficient to justify prosecution in a court of law, yet the Government may be morally satisfied that the man is an undesirable man and should be removed Well, is there no legal way in which you can deal with such a man ? In 1908 the Government passed a special legislation ; we did not like it, but, it passed it as special legislation. That was Act XIV of 1908. In that Act it was provided that in certain cases which were mentioned in the Schedule, there should be a trial before three Judges of the High Court, constituting a special tribunal. Can you not sufficiently trust three Judges of the High Court to put your case before them and to give the accused an opportunity to be defended before them by his lawyer ? You took that course in 1908. This is 1928. During these 20 years have you grown wiser, or do you want to show that you have grown worse ? Why can you not resort to the procedure provided in that Act ? Why should not an opportunity be given to these men, the advocates of Communist ideas, to defend themselves ? We are not partisans of these men. We are not men who wish to encourage them but we want to deal fairly by them as we should hope to be dealt with fairly by others. We are all human. You are human, we are human they are human. We are likely to err sometimes. Therefore we want to give every accused person an opportunity to have himself defended. I want to know from the Honourable the Home Member, and I want to know from other Honourable Members on the Government Benches, what earthly objection they can have to the course I suggest ? Is it that it will cause delay ? The proceedings will be short. There will not be three trials but one trial. Is it that you do not want the proceedings to be made public ? Well, you can have the proceedings in camera if you like You can put all these matters before a Select Committee when the principle of the Bill has been agreed to ; but so long as we do not agree to the principle of the Bill, it is not right to ask us to support the motion for a Select Committee. A Select Committee is a Select Committee. This is the second reading stage in which the principle of the measure must be discussed and settled. That principle at present is that a man shall not be given an opportunity to defend himself and that he shall be deported without a trial. That is the principle of the Bill. Can anybody deny that it is so ? That is the principle of the Bill and you want this House to commit itself to that principle. Never can I commit myself to that principle. We have protested against the exercise of exceptional powers by the executive time and again. We recognise that there may be occasions, as my Honourable friend Pandit Motilal Nehru said, there may be occasions such as in a time of war or in other exceptional circumstances, when exceptional powers may be given to the executive Government for a short time. We admit that there may be such occasions, but we are not satisfied that this is such an occasion. We are not satisfied why is it necessary that the Government should not give these men a hearing, why should it not place these men before three High Court Judges and have the evidence against them sifted by them.

Much has been made of the letter of Mr. M. N. Roy. I cannot take it upon myself to say whether that was a genuine letter or not. But there is that telegram which was read out by Mr. Jamnadas Mehta to-day which has to be taken into account. In the face of that telegram it is not safe to say that Mr. Roy was the writer of that letter. He may or may not be. I do not say any more about it. My point is this : the Honourable the Home Member said that there were initials in the body of the letter and those initials were found to correspond with those which were in the handwriting of M. N. Roy. Do we not know of cases in which Judges have held that to convict a man upon a mere similarity of handwriting is a most dangerous procedure ? Do we not remember that notorious case in France in which a man was wrongly convicted on the ground of similarity of handwriting and was eventually acquitted ? Do we not remember the Parnell letters and all that sort of thing ? I submit that it is unsafe to convict a man merely on a comparison of some initials made on a piece of paper. I have said before that we are at one with the Government in desiring, and willing to give Government every assistance, legitimate and lawful assistance, to shut out the kind of Communistic activities indicated in clause 2 (a) of the Bill. I am not for penalising every expression of opinion, even in favour of Communism. The principle of Communism is very wide. You have had in your own history the Peasants' Revolt. You remember the cry then raised—" When Adam delved and Eve span, who was then a gentleman ? "

You have had these principles taught, inculcated and discussed in every country. Where there is suffering, where there is a great deal of oppression, these principles are bound to rise up in the hearts of people. Your wisdom lies in not fighting against them like fighting against a dead wall. You have to see what the justice of the situation demands and to meet the claims of the people, and thereby to prevent these obnoxious growths from spreading. My remarks are confined to what section 2 (a) of the Bill says :

> " Whoever directly or indirectly advocates the overthrow by force or violence of the government established by law in British India, or the abolition of all forms of law or organized government, whether in British India or elsewhere, or the assassination of public officials."

To this extent I am with the Government—that we should arm the Government with a reasonable power to shut out such men. The rest of the clause about the promotion of enmity or hatred between different classes of His Majesty's subjects ought to be deleted, and provision should be made to give a man an opportunity for defence.

I have said, Sir, that the proposed legislation was unnecessary. Let me explain. As my friend, Mr. Jayakar, and other speakers have pointed out, we have got the existing Penal Code to help you. Not only that. But there are the passport regulations to which the Honourable Sir George

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.]

Rainy referred. You can shut a man out by your passport regulations, and I suppose you do so whenever you can. It is only when you fail to do so, and when such a man comes into India, that you want power to deal with him. You have that power. Give him notice and an opportunity to defend himself and to put his case before three Judges ; and if the verdict goes against him, ask him to leave. You do not want to have a special law for that. The ordinary law permits you to try the man, to put him on his trial. If a case is proved against him, you may instead of keeping him in jail tell him that by the leave of the court, he has the option of leaving this country, and let him go out clean. The existing law does give you an opportunity of dealing with him in this manner.

Then I said the extent of the Bill is too wide. I have heard in this debate less said about the evils which are apprehended from the preaching of the doctrine of Communism, and of advocating the overthrow by force or violence of the government established by law in India, and more about the evil influence that these Communists have produced upon labourers. My friend, Mr. Gavin-Jones, talked of the unrest which he noticed in Cawnpore and of what he saw in Calcutta, Lillooah and other places. I submit that it is a wrong thing to connect the two in this manner. You surely do not want to shut out by this legislation discussions which are calculated to improve the conditions of labour. You have gone too far in the Bill. As it stands now it will prevent a great deal of agitation which is meant and directed to improve the welfare of the labouring classes or the agriculturists. The clause 2 (b) should certainly not find a place in this Bill. I cannot see any reason why it should. You have to deal with industrial and agrarian disputes by proper measures, by the right kind and type of measure ; a measure which would bring in arbitration and a spirit of fairness on both sides to help both capitalists and labourers. Sir, I deplore industrial strikes in this country. Unfortunately we have been made an infant nation in industry. Other people who are well established can well afford to compete with us and break us down. At this juncture to foment trouble or to create disputes between the labourers and capitalists would mean a great disservice to the country. There must be proper measures adopted to prevent this, and I submit that when the Government will think of adopting proper measures and will find time to do so, these strikes will become a thing of the past, and certainly even men from outside will not be able to do us much harm. I submit, therefore, that the Government should review their position. In the first place, this measure is extremely objectionable because its principle is obnoxious, and therefore if they cannot see their way to agree to the principle we have pleaded for, they ought to withdraw the measure. If they feel that there is necessity for a special measure to enable them to deal more swiftly and shortly with the kind of cases contemplated in 2 (a), let them draft a proper Bill with proper safeguards, limited to its proper scope, and bring it before the Assembly. If they say the matter cannot brook delay, and if they want to proceed with this Bill just now, let them agree to modify the principle of the Bill, here and now, and let them agree that an accused person shall be given an opportunity to have his case heard by a special Tribunal of three High Court Judges with the right to be defended by a lawyer. I venture to say that the House will agree to this principle. I make this offer to the Government. I am certain that if the Government will agree to the principle that there should be opportunity for defence given to a man, however humble he may be,—you give an opportunity for defence to a murderer, you give an opportunity for defence to a man who has set fire to a large mohalla, you give an opportunity for defence to every kind of criminal—why should you not give it to the persons you have in view ? If you will agree to this, the strongest objection to this measure will vanish. Why should you refuse an opportunity to a man to defend himself and to prove that he has not directly or indirectly advocated the overthrow by force of the government established in India ? He is after all a political criminal. Why will you not give him an opportunity to defend himself ? I ask the Government to answer. If they can make up their minds even now to agree to the principle that there shall be provision made in this Bill for defence, that will remove one of the great difficulties in our path, and if they will also agree to limit its scope, certainly our way to support the Bill will be clear. When I talked to my friend Sir Victor Sassoon and expressed my willingness to agree to the proposal that the Bill should go to a Select Committee, I mentioned to him some of the vital points I have stated now, and I particularly said that I could not agree to the Executive Government being given power to remove a man without giving him an opportunity to defend himself. I was told that in the Select Committee the question of a review being provided for might be considered. As I said then, I repeat it now. If you have a man condemned by an executive order, and then give him a chance of having his case reviewed, you have prejudiced his case, and you have not given him a fair chance to defend himself. Give him a chance in the first instance. You will then take greater care to see that you do not touch a wrong man. If you will take care to catch the right man, you will probably be able to succeed in every one of the cases that you will put forward, so that the danger of Communism will be shut out, and the injustice of dealing with a fellow-man without giving him an opportunity to defend himself will also be shut out.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar (Home Member) : Mr. President, this has been a very prolonged and exhaustive debate, and I have listened with the utmost interest to the speeches which have been made. But the debate has been so prolonged and so exhaustive that it is impossible for me at this late hour of the day to attempt to deal with it in any great detail. If I attempted to do so I should trespass too much upon the indulgence of the House. I therefore propose to limit myself to the most important of the points which have emerged during the course of the debate. In spite of the very close examination which has been given, both to the justification which I alleged for this Bill and to its provisions, and in spite also of the great eloquence of denunciation which has been expended upon it, I still contend that the essentials of my main position have not yet been controverted. Indeed, I frankly admit that in the speeches of many Honourable Members opposite, including the eloquent speech which we have just heard from Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, a great deal of the ground on which I base my case has been substantially admitted. (Applause.)

6 P. M.

Now, Sir, I venture to recapitulate very briefly what the fundamental basis of my case is. It is this. There is in being a very powerful propagandist organisation which proposes to itself certain aims and objects which are not only incompatible with, but destructive to, the continuance of the social organisation of India on its present, or on any healthy and salutary, basis. I say that organisation is in being. It has devised certain methods and expedients which I have already explained to the House and which I do not propose to recapitulate again in detail. Thirdly, that organisation and its agencies are at work in India preparing, practising and propagating the doctrines and pursuing the activities which are directed towards the end which I have explained. That position, I say, Sir, has not in any particular been shaken by the arguments of Honourable Members opposite, and so long as that position remains unshaken, I venture to say that the House should reflect very carefully before, on considerations of what in relation to the main proposition are comparatively subsidiary matters, they refuse to give their assent to this measure. Well, Sir, my contention is that if the conditions to which I referred more fully in my opening speech do exist and I contend that they do—the next question is, what measures should be taken to deal with them. Perhaps, the first question is whether any measure should be taken to deal with them, but I venture to say that the answer to the question must very obviously be in the affirmative. The question then is, what kind of measure should be taken to deal with these dangers and their graver potentialities. I have been told that the existing law should be employed. I have received suggestions—I might almost say encouragement—from Honourable Members opposite to resort to measures which have been for many years past exposed to vehement denunciation from Honourable Members sitting on those Benches. However that may be, my main answer to that argument is simply this, that those laws which are already on the Statute-book are inadequate to assist us in carrying out the object which is proposed in this Bill. The object proposed in the Bill is to remove from the Indian polity and society certain dangerous and disturbing elements and not retain them in its midst. And that is the most essential, the most important, and the most cogent argument in favour of this particular measure. (Cheers.)

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : Cannot they be removed after conviction ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : It has been argued that powers of summary removal do not exist in the legislation of other States or countries, and indeed, I think the Honourable and learned Leader of the Opposition in his exposition to the House of the powers exercisable by the Secretary of State in England conveyed the impression at least it conveyed to me the impression—that the Secretary of State in England has powers only to deport—I admit, of course, that it is only power to deport aliens. I understood the Honourable and learned Pandit to contend that the Secretary of State had only powers to deport in certain cases in which the persons concerned had been convicted either by an English or by a foreign court. Now, the Honourable and learned Pandit correctly recited two of the categories of persons against whom the Secretary of State can take action. He omitted a third category and it is this. The Secretary of State may make an expulsion order, firstly, and secondly, as correctly expounded by the Honourable and learned Pandit but thirdly, if he deems it to be conducive to the public good to make deportation order against an alien, the order may be made subject to any condition. As regards this particular category of persons against whom the Secretary of State is empowered to take action, the following has been held by a court of law, the Court of King's Bench :—

"As regards (3), in acting under the article, the Secretary of State is not a judicial but is an executive officer and is therefore not bound to hold an inquiry or give the person against whom he proposes to make a deportation order the opportunity of being heard. The matter is one for the judgment and discretion of the Secretary of State and not for the decision of the tribunals. It is however desirable that the order should state that the Home Secretary deems it to be conducive to the public good to make the order."

That, I think, puts a different interpretation upon the law, but I freely admit that it is by no means conclusive as far as my own contention is concerned. It no doubt relates to aliens, and the Bill whose consideration I have moved for undoubtedly deals with other categories of persons. The point I wish to establish is that the English law does provide for powers of a much more summary character than have so far been represented to this House. I may also add another parallel which is likely to be of value, namely, that by the law of the Australian Commonwealth similar powers are given to the executive to expel persons, who need not be aliens, engaged in activities of the same general character as those laid down in the present Bill.

It has further been objected that all the ingredients of the present Bill are already contained in the criminal law and that therefore the present Bill is superfluous. That entirely misses the whole point of my proposal. The object of this Bill is mainly of a preventive character. It is to prevent certain activities and to take measures against the evil results which those activities might produce. Now, the Indian Penal Code is a punitive measure. It can only be put in force after the crime has been committed. I want not only to prevent the commission of crimes but to raise obstacles against the activities which are likely to lead to the commission of crimes on a large scale and to general disorder. Secondly, I urge that that objection really indicates a misconception of the purposes and objects of the Bill. I regret very much that one Honourable Member charged us with dishonesty in promoting this measure. My reply to that is this. If Government after forming the appreciation of the position and of the condition of affairs which they have laid before the House as a justification for this measure had taken no action and had not sought the powers they now seek from this House, then they might more truly have been charged with dishonesty. The Honourable Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, in the speech which I have already described, and I have no doubt the House will agree with me in this, as an extremely able and eloquent one, seemed to me in a very candid and lucid way to admit most of the premises on which the justification for this Bill is based. Indeed I should have supposed that the arguments which the Honourable Pandit urged with his usual vehemence and warmth led him to support the motion for the reference of this Bill to a Select Committee. The distinction which he drew was in my opinion, if I may venture to say so, not a sound one. In order to establish the position that he was not in favour of a reference to the Select Committee he alleged that the real principle of this Bill was the absence of trial. Now, Sir, that is not so. The principle of this Bill is deportation for being engaged in certain classes of activities. That is the principle.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : That is the object of the Bill.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I shall be perfectly ready to consider in Select Committee some of the objections which have been raised against the Bill if a motion for reference to the Select Committee is passed by the House.

Well, Sir, I do not propose to detain the House at any length. I have only one or two comments to make on the general position.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : Do I understand the Honourable the Home Member to say that he agrees to the principle of giving accused persons an opportunity of being tried ? If the House does not agree to that, how can the Select Committee accept that principle ? it would be beyond its power.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I do not want to leave any misconception in the matter. What I said was that I was prepared to consider some of the objections that have been raised to the Bill in the Select Committee and I hope I may be able to accept proposals which are within the scope and objects of the Bill and which are compatible with its efficacy.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : I am sure that the Honourable Member will see that a vague statement like that cannot solve this problem which is before the House. Does the Honourable Member speaking on behalf of the Government agree that the Bill shall embody provisions to ensure the right of defence before a proper tribunal to the person who may be accused ? That is the question I ask.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : No, Sir, I am not prepared to admit that. The Honourable Member spoke of a trial by a tribunal of three High Court Judges. Sir, a trial of that kind would not be compatible with the object and purposes of this Bill, (Hear, hear) and I do not want to lay myself open to any charge of misconception on that point. I was about to observe that the Honourable and learned gentleman from Bombay, Mr. Jayakar, said that he would be prepared to grant these powers to a Swaraj Government. There is no doubt a very important reservation made in that statement ; but there are also inherent in it two or three important admissions. The first is that there is a justification for a measure of this kind, and the second is that the character of the expedients proposed in this Bill are such as, in the hypothesis stated, the Honourable Member would be prepared to concede. (Applause.) That is two-thirds at any rate of my case, Sir. (Applause.)

In conclusion, Mr. President.....

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : I do not want to interrupt the Honourable Member, but I should like the Honourable Member to make clear the intentions of Government regarding Indians engaged in the spread of Communism. That is one of the points which were raised by me.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : With regard to the point raised by Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, I can only say this that Government are observing the position very closely and that they will take such action as they consider necessary.

An Honourable Member : That is right. The cat is out of the bag.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : In conclusion, I have only this to say to the House. The Government in this country is made responsible for more things than I think any Government in any other country. It is made responsible for every evil that occurs it is expected to do a great deal more not merely in the generally accepted spheres of Government administration but in almost every department of the life of the people, than Governments in other countries are expected to do. But the position which I have attempted to place before the House is one in which it is manifest that Government, even if these powers be granted to them, cannot be successful alone : it is eminently a case in which, if we are to be successful in expelling from India and keeping out from India these dangerous and destructive elements, there ought to be collaboration and co-operation by every citizen of the country, and I strongly urge by this Legislature also. (Loud Applause.)

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar : May I ask the Honourable Member one simple question ? In his opening speech he made much about the first item in the programme of the Communists, being a demolition of religion and culture, and as he made much of it, may I ask the Honourable the Home Member whether in this Bill which he has placed before this House or in the Statement of Objects and Reasons there is a single provision made against those Communists who may come here and make the first item in their programme the demolition of religion and culture ? Are you going to leave them alone until they begin the assassination of public officials, or will you deport them the moment they begin the work of destruction of our religion and culture, Hindu and Islamic ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar: I understand the Honourable Member to suggest that the Bill is not sufficiently comprehensive. If that is his view, I should be perfectly prepared to consider any suggestions in the Select Committee. (Loud Applause. Ironical cheers from some Members on non-official Benches.)

Mr. President : The original motion was :

"That the Bill to provide for the removal from British India in certain cases of persons not being Indian British subjects or subjects of States in India be taken into consideration."

Since which the following two amendments have been moved :

1. "That the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla, Sir Victor Sassoon, Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan, Mr. S. Srinivasa Iyengar, the Honourable the Home Member and the Mover, with instructions to report within three days, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be four."

2. "That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinions thereon.

The question is :

"That that last amendment be made."

The Assembly divided :

(While the Division was proceeding.)

Mr. President : Order, order. Does the Honourable Member from Burma wish to vote ?

U. Hla Tun Pru (Burma : Non-European) : No, Sir.

Mr. President : No Honourable Member should go near and harass him.

Mr. President : Order, order. The Honourable Member from Burma should be left alone.

Mr. S. Srinivasa Iyengar (Madras City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Mr. President, I beg to withdraw my name from the proposed Select Committee. As the Government does not agree to the names of members of my party, as it is unrepresentative, I must respectfully decline to serve on an unrepresentative committee.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I also beg, Sir, to decline to serve on a Committee where they will not take men from our party.

Mr. President : The Chair is not concerned with the reasons why Honourable Members do not wish to serve on the Select Committee ; but it is very inconvenient to the Chair as well as to the House if Honourable Members allow their names to be put on the Select Committee and then withdraw at the last moment.

Mr. S. Srinivasa Iyengar : I am sorry, Sir ; but the circumstances of this case are very peculiar.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Have not Honourable Members the right to resign ?

Mr. President : The procedure adopted by them is very inconvenient to the Chair and the House. They should not have agreed to serve on the Committee.

Mr. S. Srinivasa Iyengar : I am sorry, Sir.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : I am really very sorry, Sir, that we have put the Chair in such a position ; but at the same time I may be permitted to observe that I never thought the Treasury Benches would be so unchivalrous as not to take men from our Party.

Mr. President : Kumar Ganganand Sinha, may I put your name ?

Kumar Ganganand Sinha (Bhagalpur, Purnea and the Sonthal Parganas : Non-Muhammadan) : No, Sir.

Mr. President : Mr. Nirmal Chunder Chunder.

Mr. Nirmal Chunder Chunder (Calcutta : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : No, Sir.

Mr. President : Mr. Rajivaranjan Prasad Sinha. Does the Honourable Member wish to serve ?

Mr. Rajivaranjan Prasad Sinha (Patna cum Shahabad : Non-Muhammadan) : I was never asked to serve on the Select Committee. I do not know how my name appears there.

Mr. President : The Chair regrets that Honourable Members put down names on the list of Select Committees without consulting the Honourable Members concerned. What explanation has Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta to give for including the name of this Honourable gentleman without consulting him ?

Mr. K. Ahmed : Because he is a Swarajist, Sir.

Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : I was given to understand, Sir, that he would be willing to serve on the Select Committee because other members of the Party were also there.

Mr. Rajivaranjan Prasad Sinha : I do not belong to any party group in the House.

Mr. President : Did the Honourable Member consult the Member concerned whether he would serve on the Select Committee ?

Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : I did not consult him directly, Sir.

Mr. C. Duraiswami Aiyangar : On a point of order, Sir. I wish to ask whether there is any rule or Standing Order which compels us to consult previously the Members whom we put on the Select Committee.

Mr. President : There have been several rulings from the Chair that no Honourable Members should be included in the list of the Select Committee who have not agreed to serve on the Select Committee.

The question I have to put is :

"That the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla, Sir Victor Sassoon, Nawab Sir Zulfikar Ali Khan, the Honourable the Home Member and the Mover with instructions to report within three days, and that the number of persons whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be four."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Moslems in the Clerical Staff employed in the Offices of the Port Commissioners, Chittagong.

552. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state what is the total clerical cadre in the office of the Chairman, Chittagong Port Trust, and how many of them are Moslems ? Do Government propose to direct that no future vacancy is offered to anybody else, till the Moslem representation reaches at least 45 per cent. of the whole cadre in that office ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The total clerical cadre of the offices of the Port Commissioners, Chittagong, is 23 of which 6 posts are held by Muslims. Government are informed that while the Port Commissioners consider that increased efficiency in the work of the port should be their first aim, they have already decided that, in order to bring the proportion of Muslims in their ministerial staff up to one-third of the total cadre, preference will, other things being equal, be given to qualified Muslim candidates for vacancies, except those filled by promotion from the permanent staff, until the above limit is reached. Government do not propose to take any action.

553. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the military despatch section of the Central Forms Store is located in a low, damp, dark and highly insanitary room formerly used as a stable by Messrs. Hurd Cook and Company and whether one record supplier (Nur Bakhsh) working in that section died of phthisis? If so, do Government propose to remove the section to a well ventilated sanitary room ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Government are informed that the room in queston is not dark, damp or insanitary. They have no information regarding the cause of Nur Bakhsh's death and there is no ground for supposing that it was in any way connected with his working in the Military despatch section of the Central Forms Store. The last part of the question does no arise.

APPOINTMENT OF AN OFFICER OF THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE AS CONTROLLER OF PRINTING AND STATIONERY.

554. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Do Government propose to appoint a member of the Indian Civil Service as the Controller of Printing and Stationery for the more efficient administration of the Department ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : There is no vacancy and Government are satisfied with the administration of the present Controller ; the question therefore does not arise.

†555*.

NUMBER OF ASSISTANT SECRETARIES IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA SECRETARIAT.

556. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state the total number of Assistant Secretaries employed in the Government of India Secretariat, and how many of them are Europeans, Hindus, Sikhs and Muslims, respectively ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The total number, including officers holding corresponding posts in the Railway Board and in the office of the Financial Adviser, Military Finance, is 26. Of these 6 are Europeans, 11 are Hindus, 1 is a Sikh and 2 are Muhammadans. In addition 3 Hindus are officiating.

APPOINTMENT OF MUSLIMS AS SUPERINTENDENTS AND ASSISTANTS IN THE COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

557. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub . Will Government be pleased to state :

(i) the total number of Superintendents and Assistants employed in the Department of Commerce and how many of them are Muslims ?

(ii) how many permanent and temporary appointments of Superintendents and Assistants have been made in the Commerce Department since 1st January 1926 and how many of them have been filled by Muslims ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (i) There are 3 Superintendents and 18 Assistants employed in the Commerce Department. One Assistant is a Muslim.

(ii) The following appointments have been made since 1st January 1926 : in the grade of Superintendent one permanent appointment and in the grade of Assistant two permanent appointments and one temporary appointment. None has been filled by a Muslim.

APPOINTMENT OF MUSLIMS AS SUPERINTENDENTS AND ASSISTANTS IN THE COMMERCE DEPARTMENT.

558. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the Muslim community has a poor representation in the Superintendents' and Assistants' grades in the Commerce Department ? If so, do Government propose to take steps to check the preponderance of other communities and appoint Muslims to the next vacancies ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Information regarding the number of Muslims in the Superintendents' and Assistants' grades in the Department of Commerce has been furnished in the reply just given by me to question No. 557. Of the permanent and temporary vacancies which have occured in these grades since 1st January 1926, all have been filled by the appointment of officers already in Government service. In the case of fresh recruitment, the claims of the Muhammadan community will be considered.

APPOINTMENT OF MUSLIMS AS SUPERINTENDENTS AND ASSISTANTS IN THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, HEALTH AND LANDS.

559. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state :

(i) the total number of Superintendents and Assistants employed in the Department of Education, Health and Lands, on 1st January 1928 ?

(ii) the number of Muslim Superintendents and Assistants as they stood on the 1st January 1926 and 1st January 1928, respectively ?

(iii) whether it is a fact that the number of Muslim Assistants has considerably decreased since 1926 ? If so, do Government propose to make up the deficiency by appointing qualified Muslims as Assistants in the vacancies falling vacant in the future ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I lay on the table, Sir, a statement giving the information asked for by the Honourable Member :

(i) 1st January 1928—

Superintendents	5
Assistants	31

(ii) 1st January 1926—

Muslim Superintendents	Nil.
" Assistants	9

1st January 1928—

Muslim Superintendents	Nil.

(iii) There has been a decrease of only two Muslim Assistants and two clerks since 1926 owing to the transfer of two Assistants to service under the Punjab Government and of two clerks to the Office of the Inspector General of Forests, Dehra Dun. Future vacancies will be filled either by departmental promotion which will continue to be regulated by merit, or by fresh recruitment in accordance with the policy of Government which already provides for the adoption of measures to ensure the representation in due proportion of the various communities.

REPRESENTATION OF MUSLIMS IN THE OFFICE OF THE RAILWAY BOARD.

560. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to place on the table a statement showing the number of Superintendents and Assistants employed in the Railway Board according to the various communities ? Is it a fact that the Muslim community has not been given proper representation in these grades ? If so, what steps do Government propose to take in the matter ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : A statement showing the position is laid on the table. Promotion to these grades is made by selection.

RETIREMENT OF THE RIGHT HONOURABLE SRINIVASA SASTRI, P.C., FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

561. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government kindly state when the Right Honourable Srinivasa Sastri is going to retire from South Africa ?

(b) In view of his conspicuous success, do Government propose to request him to stay on in South Africa for another term ?

(c) In case of his inability to do so, whom do Government propose to appoint as his successor ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Mr. Sastri has expressed a desire to be relieved of his duties in South Africa as early in 1929 as may be practicable.

(b) The Government of India asked him to prolong his stay in South Africa, but he has expressed his inability to do so.

(c) The matter is under consideration.

APPEALS OF GOVERNMENT SERVANTS.

562. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to say if under the present rules governing appeals, Government servants are debarred from submitting reminders to the officers to whom the appeals are addressed ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Postmaster-General, Bombay, has recently directed the appellants not to send in or address reminders to the appellate authority ?

(c) If so, do they propose to take steps to have such directions withdrawn ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) No.

(b) and (c). Government understand that such orders were in force for some time but have since been cancelled.

RECRUITMENT OF THE CLERICAL CADRE OF THE GENERAL POST OFFICE, BOMBAY.

563. Mr. N. M. Joshi : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) The number of clerks—men and women—recruited in the clerical cadre in Bombay General Post Office since January 1927, who had passed neither the Matriculation nor School Leaving Certificate examinations nor any higher examination ?

(b) Whether the Director-General has restricted the recruitment in the Post Office to the Revenue Divisions and the adjoining Revenue Divisions in the case of Bombay and Calcutta ?

(d) Whether a register of approved candidates is maintained in the Bombay General Post Office ?

(e) If the reply to (d) above is in the affirmative what is the number on the register and the number of graduates, undergraduates and matriculates on the register ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Four men and two women.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) No.

(e) Does not arise.

LOW RATES OF KIT CONVEYANCE ALLOWANCE SANCTIONED FOR POSTAL OFFICIALS WORKING ON TRANSFER AT BARODA.

564. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state :

(i) the present rates of kit conveyance allowance granted to the Post Office officials working at Baroda on transfer ;

(ii) similar rates that are sanctioned for Anand, Broach, Ahmedabad and Nadiad ?

(b) Whether it is a fact that the Bombay Presidency Postal and R. M. S. Association has protested against the low rates of kit conveyance allowance sanctioned for Baroda ?

(c) If so, do Government propose to revise them early ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) (i) and (ii). One anna per maund per mile, in both cases.

(b) No such representation is traceable though representations were received from other bodies at a time when the rates were different.

(c) Does not arise.

RESTRICTION OF RECRUITMENT IN THE POSTAL DEPARTMENT IN THE PRESIDENCY TOWN OF BOMBAY TO THE ADJOINING REVENUE DIVISIONS.

565. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Is it a fact that the Director-General Posts and Telegraphs, has issued instructions restricting recruitment in the Postal Department in the Presidency Town of Bombay to the adjoining Revenue Divisions ?

(b) Is it a fact as a result of this, inhabitants of the nearest Districts such as Poona, Nasik, Ahmednagar are ineligible, whereas those from far-off Districts such as Ahmedabad, Kaira, Belgaum, Dharwar and Karwar are eligible ?

(c) If so, do Government propose to modify the orders so as to allow recruitment in Bombay from any part of the Bombay Presidency ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) The matter is already under the consideration of the Director General.

NUMBER OF OFFICIALS IN THE GENERAL POST OFFICE, BOMBAY, ON THE SUPERANNUATION LIST.

566 Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of officials in the Bombay General Post Office on the superannuation list (i) in the selection grades (ii) in the time-scale ?

(b) Is it a fact that the extensions to officials in the selection grade is causing greater stagnation in the time-scale ?

(c) Is it a fact that the officials on extension of service have further been given acting or permanent promotions to higher non-gazetted or gazetted appointments ?

(d) How do Government propose to remedy this grievance of the staff ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) It is understood that by the term "superannuation list" the Honourable Member means list of officials between the ages of 55 and 60. There are 10 such officials in the selection grade and 3 in the time-scale. Such officials must not however be regarded as "superannuated" since the rule relating to ministerial servants is that they should ordinarily be retained in service up to the age of 60 years if they continue efficient.

(b) In view of the explanation just given, the expression "extensions" as applied to continuance in service after the age of 55 is misleading ; and the effect of retaining such officials in the service up to the age of 60, in accordance with the ordinary rule, cannot be regarded as causing stagnation.

(c) and (d). In view of the explanation given, these questions do not arise.

HOUSE-RENT ALLOWANCES SANCTIONED FOR SUB-POSTMASTERS OF OFFICES CONVERTED INTO SELECTION GRADE SUB-OFFICES.

567. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if the house-rent allowance normally sanctioned for a selection grade sub-postmaster in Bombay, who is not provided with free quarters, is Rs. 25 ?

(b) Is it a fact that house-rent allowances sanctioned for the sub-postmasters of offices recently converted into selection grade sub-offices still remain the same as when they were time-scale offices ?

(c) If so, do Government propose to revise the same ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) No. The allowances vary from Rs. 18 to Rs. 40.

(b) Chinch Bunder town sub-office in Bombay is the only office which has recently been converted into a selection grade office and in which the house rent allowance for the sub-postmaster has not yet been revised.

(c) The matter is under consideration.

INVESTIGATING INSPECTORS IN THE OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL, BOMBAY.

568. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that an appointment of Investigating Inspector to the Postmaster-General's office in Bombay has been filled up by an official of the Postmaster-General's office ?

(b) Is it a fact that the second appointment of Investigating Inspector has also been filled up in an officiating capacity, by an official of the Postmaster-General's office ?

(c) Is it not directly against the reply given by Mr. Sams to question No. 86 put by Mr. N. C. Kelkar in the last session ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Bombay Presidency Postal and R. M. S. Association has passed a resolution at the Satara Conference in June 1928, protesting against these appointments ?

(e) If so, will Government be pleased to state what action is being taken to set the matters right ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) No ; as no clerk who had passed the qualifying examination was available.

(d) Yes.

(e) In view of the reply to part (c) of this question, Government do not consider any action necessary.

DEPARTMENTAL TEST FOR CANDIDATES BEFORE EMPLOYMENT IN THE POST OFFICE IN BOMBAY.

569. Mr. N. M. Joshi : Will the Government be pleased to state :

(a) Whether it is a fact that until recently qualified men and even graduates were subjected to a departmental test in dictation, etc., before employment in the Post Office in Bombay ?

(b) Whether the non-qualified men, if any, entertained since January 1927, and confirmed as reserve clerks were subjected to the test mentioned above ?

(c) Whether any such recruits mentioned in (b) belong to the depressed or backward community ?

(d) If the answer to (c) above be in the negative, will Government be pleased to give reasons for such special treatment ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) No.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) Does not arise.

EMPLOYMENT OF A NON-QUALIFIED LADY CLERK IN THE GENERAL POST OFFICE, BOMBAY.

570. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Is it a fact that a non-qualified lady clerk employed in the Bombay General Post Office within the last three months is the daughter of an Assistant Postmaster who is in service ?

(b) Is it a fact that one Mr. Darase of Ahmednagar possessing the necessary educational qualifications and whose father died in harness with over 30 years of service, was refused employment ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) No. Mr. Darase has been enrolled as a candidate for employment.

MINIMUM EDUCATIONAL QUALIFICATIONS OF CLERKS IN THE POST OFFICE.

571. Mr. N. M. Joshi : Will the Government be pleased to state the minimum educational qualification necessary for recruitment as clerk in the Post Office,

(a) in the case of men candidates,

(b) in the case of women candidates ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : No minimum educational qualifications are definitely prescribed either for men or women candidates for recruitment to the Postal Service, though the former are ordinarily required to produce evidence of having passed the Matriculation examination or its equivalent.

LEAVE RULES ON RAILWAYS.

572. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : With reference to Mr. A. A. L. Parsons' reply to my motion for a cut in the Demand for the Railway Board moved in the last Session of the Legislative Assembly on the subject of Leave Rules, will the Honourable Member please state if the new Leave Rules have been framed and when he hopes to publish them ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : New leave rules for railway services as a whole have not yet been framed. But the Railway Board as a separate matter are going into the question of revising the leave rules for subordinates on the Great Indian Peninsula and the East Indian Railways, who were originally in the Companies' service. These employees remain at present under the rules of the old companies and are not, like the remaining subordinate employees on the State-managed Railways, under the Fundamental Rules.

SUBORDINATES OFFICIATING AS OFFICIALS ON RAILWAYS.

573. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : With reference to Mr. Parsons' reply to my motion for a cut in the Demand for grant for Railway Administration on the 28th February 1928, regarding subordinates officiating as officials, will the Honourable Member please state if he has given effect to his assurance, and, if so, the extent to which this has been done ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I have discussed the matter with the recent Agent of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, and propose to have a further discussion with him and the present Agent very shortly. I am hopeful that as a result we shall be able to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion.

OFFICIAL WHO SIGNED THE PEACE PACT IN PARIS FOR INDIA.

577. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government kindly state who signed the Peace Pact in Paris for India ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Sir Denys Bray has asked me to answer this question on his behalf. Owing to illness he is unable to be in his place to-day.

Lord Cushendun. On this point I would refer the Honourable Member to the answer the Foreign Secretary gave to Mr. Birla's question on the 13th September.

EMPLOYMENT OF STUDENT ENGINEERS ON RAILWAYS.

578. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : (a) Will Government please state what was the object of the Railway Board in employing student engineers in 1927 ?

(b) How many of these student engineers completed their training successfully and at what dates at the earliest and latest ?

(c) Was any attempt made to employ them as assistant engineers or temporary engineers ? If so, how many of them are employed as such ?

(d) How many temporary engineers have so far been employed since some of these student engineers had completed their training ?

(e) How is it that the Government did not employ people from amongst these student engineers as temporary engineers or assistant engineers, when they were given training for this purpose ?

†For this question, see at the end of starred questions for the day.

(f) How do the Government justify that they keep in view the welfare of these young engineers ?

(g) Were any Anglo-Indians or Europeans ever entertained as student engineers ?

(h) Do the Government propose to take any steps in near future for the employment of these qualified and trained engineers, whose career is being spoiled ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (f). The object was to meet the difficulty experienced by Indian youths who have qualified as civil engineers in obtaining practical training. Railway construction gives unrivalled opportunity for training civil engineers after their college course, and as the Railway Board have a considerable construction programme in hand, the opportunity has been taken of giving practical training to engineering graduates. This training is given for a period of one year only. There is no obligation on the part of Government to give these student engineers employment on Railways, either permanent or temporary on completion of their training, but Government naturally select the best of these young men for temporary employment whenever the demand arises.

(b) Of those appointed in 1927, seven have completed their training successfully.

(c), (e) and (h). The names of the students who complete their training successfully are placed on the Railway Board's registers of approved candidates and when the need arises for temporary engineers, their names are considered along with others. Of those who had completed their training in 1927, three are now employed as temporary Engineers.

(d) The three referred to in my reply to (c).

(g) No.

Mr. B. Das : Is it the practice for the Railway Board to take student engineers from every provincial Engineering College and do they take student engineers from the Bihar College of Engineering ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am afraid I must ask the Honourable Member to give me notice. I do not recollect the names of all colleges from whom we take student engineers.

APPOINTMENT OF PROBATIONARY UPPER SUBORDINATES IN THE SURVEY OF INDIA.

579. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : (a) Is it a fact that nine appointments of probationary upper subordinates in the Survey of India were made since 1926 and 4 were given to Muhammadans on a communal basis ?

(b) Were the appointments advertised in the Punjab newspapers ?

(c) If the reply to (a) is in the affirmative, were there any Sikh applicants ? If so, why was none taken ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) 16 probationary appointments to the Upper Subordinate Service in the Survey of India were made originally in 1926. These included a number of candidates of different minority communities. The number was, however, subsequently reduced to 9, owing to the weeding out of unsatisfactory candidates. The revised figure of 9 includes 4 Muhammadans.

(b) Yes.

(c) One Sikh was included in the original batch of 16 appointments, but he resigned a few days after he was appointed, as he was not satisfied with his prospects.

EMPLOYMENT OF SIKHS AS EXTRA ASSISTANT COMMISSIONERS IN THE SURVEY OF INDIA DEPARTMENT.

580. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : (a) Is it a fact that there is not a single Sikh as Extra Assistant Commissioner in the Survey of India Department ?

(b) Is it also a fact that some 14 probationary Extra Assistant Commissioners were recruited in 1926 and 1927 of whom 4 were Muhammadans who were taken on a communal basis ?

(c) If so, do Government propose to recruit Sikhs in future vacancies like Muhammadans ? If not, why ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes, but the appointments were made in 1925 and 1927, and not in 1926 and 1927, as stated in the question.

(c) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply to his question No. 422 on the 11th September 1928.

EMPLOYMENT OF SIKHS IN THE IMPERIAL SERVICE OF ENGINEERS IN THE IRRIGATION BRANCH, PUNJAB.

581. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : (a) Is it a fact that there are only 4 Sikhs out of 151 in the Imperial Service of Engineers in the Irrigation Department of the Punjab Province ?

(b) Is it also a fact that in spite of the great predominance of other communities in this service, the new recruitment is still open to them and no Sikhs are taken ?

(c) Is it a fact that nomination of the candidates from minority communities is made in almost all the Imperial Services, even where there is a competition ?

(d) Do the Government similarly reserve appointments for the members of the minority communities ? If not, why ?

(e) If the reply to (b) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to order the entertainment of Sikhs in all future vacancies in the Punjab until their fair representation is brought up ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes. But of 151 officers of the Indian Service of Engineers in the Irrigation Branch, Punjab, 77 belong to the Europe-recruited branch of the Service, and, as recruitment to that branch is confined to European British subjects, no question as to communal representation therein can arise.

(b) and (d). Direct appointments to the India-recruited branch of the Indian Service of Engineers having hitherto been guaranteed to students of certain engineering colleges in India, it has not so far been possible to reserve any posts in the Service for minority communities. The guarantees have, however, now expired, and the question of the procedure under which direct recruitment to the branch will be made in future is under consideration. Due provision will be made in the rules for the reservation of certain appointments for the redress of communal inequalities.

(c) Yes.

(e) Does not arise.

REFUSAL TO ALLOW INDIAN CLERKS OF THE ARMY HEADQUARTERS AND OF THE IMPERIAL SECRETARIAT TO JOIN THE INDIAN TERRITORIAL FORCE.

582. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : Is it a fact that the Indian clerks of the Army Headquarters and of the Imperial Secretariat are not allowed to join the Indian Territorial Force whereas the Anglo-Indians are permitted to join the Auxiliary Force ? If so, why ?

Mr. G. M. Young : The rule in force is that Government servants may not join the Auxiliary Force or the Territorial Force without the permission of the Head of the Department in which they are serving.

It is only possible for an Indian clerk at Army Headquarters or in the Imperial Secretariat to join a Provincial unit of the Indian Territorial Force, and a Provincial unit only trains by annual embodiment in camp for periods of one or two months, whereas members of the Auxiliary Force (India) can perform their obligations by intermittent drills. It follows, therefore, that it is easier for the Head of a Department to give permission to an Anglo-Indian than to an Indian.

EMPLOYMENT OF SIKHS IN THE CIVIL AVIATION OFFICE.

583. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : (a) Is it a fact that the ministerial establishment of the Civil Aviation Office (Department of Industries, Government of India) consists of the following :

(1) Anglo-Indians..... 4, (2) Hindus..... 4, (3) Muhammadans..... 3.

(b) If so, will the Government please state the reasons for the exclusion of Sikhs on its staff ?

(c) Do Government propose to take steps to safeguard the interests of Sikhs and order their recruitment in future vacancies ? If not, why ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The number of Muhammadans is two. The other particulars are correct.

(b) There has been no endeavour to exclude Sikhs. Only two applications were received from Sikhs and the post was filled by a member of another community who was considered more suitable.

(c) If qualified Sikhs apply for future vacancies, their claims will receive consideration, but Government are unable to adopt the suggestion made by the Honourable Member.

NUMBER OF SIKHS EMPLOYED AS TRAFFIC INSPECTORS (TRANSPORTATION BRANCH) ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

584. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the total number of posts of Traffic Inspectors (Transportation Branch) on the North Western Railway drawing more than Rs. 300 per mensem ?

(b) How many of them are Sikhs as against Hindus and Muhammadans ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The information asked for by the Honourable Member will be found in the Alphabetical List of Non-Gazetted Employees on the North Western Railway in receipt of Rs. 250 per mensem and over or on scales of pay rising to Rs. 250 per mensem and over. A copy is in the Library.

EMPLOYMENT OF SIKHS AS CONTROLLERS AND ASSISTANT CONTROLLERS OF STORES ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

585. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : (a) How many Controllers and Assistant Controllers of Stores are there on the North Western Railway and how many of them are Sikhs ?

(b) Is it a fact that the appointment of Controllers and Assistant Controllers are made by nomination ?

(c) If so, what steps have been taken by the Government to ensure that Sikhs get their proper share in this branch of service ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) There are one Controller and four Assistant Controllers of Stores on the North Western Railway. None of them are Sikhs.

(b) and (c). Direct recruitment to the Superior Stores Department has been discontinued, and recruits are now obtained by the transfer of suitable officers from the Civil and Mechanical Engineering Departments. Sikhs in these Departments have an equal chance of being transferred.

EMPLOYMENT OF SIKHS IN THE CLERICAL ESTABLISHMENTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES AT DELHI AND SIMLA.

586. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : (a) What is the total number of posts in the clerical establishments of the Government of India Press, at Delhi and Simla, respectively, and how many of them are held by Sikhs in each Press ?

(b) If none, why are the claims of Sikhs being ignored in this service ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The total number of posts in the clerical establishments of the Government of India Presses at Delhi and Simla is 38 and 28 respectively. There is no Sikh on the clerical establishment of either Press.

(b) The claims of a candidate belonging to a minority community are given due consideration if he is adequately qualified.

EMPLOYMENT OF SIKHS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR, WIRELESS TELEGRAPH, SIMLA.

587. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : Is it a fact that there is no Sikh on the staff of the office of Director, Wireless Telegraph, Simla ? If so, do Government propose to recruit Sikhs in future vacancies ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : There is one Sikh clerk employed in the Wireless Branch of the Director-General's office. I would add that the Wireless Branch forms part of the Director-General's office as a whole, in respect of which the general orders of Government relating to the adjustment of communal inequalities are in force.

EMPLOYMENT OF SIKHS IN GAZETTED POSTS IN THE INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT.

588. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : (a) Will Government please state whether any appointments have been made to the gazetted posts in the Indian Stores Department since January 1928 ? If so, has any Sikh been taken ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the negative, will the Government please say if the claims of Sikhs were duly considered at the time of recruitment in this Department ? If so, how ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) One appointment has been made to a gazetted appointment in the Indian Stores Department since January 1928. The officer selected is not a Sikh.

(b) The claims of minority communities to appointments in the Department are given due consideration at the time of recruitment.

PAUCITY OF SIKHS IN THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE, DELHI.

589. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : (a) Is it a fact that there is a great paucity of Sikhs in the Railway Clearing Accounts Office ?

(b) How many appointments were made in that office since January last ?

(c) How many Sikhs were taken ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Government regret, that, for reasons which have been previously explained, they do not consider it in the public interest to give figures of communal representation in individual offices.

(b) and (c). 120 appointments have been made in the Railway Clearing Accounts Office since last January of which a certain number went to Sikhs. And I can assure the Honourable Member that the Director of the Clearing Accounts Office is following the instructions of Government with regard to the representation of minority communities when vacancies arise in this office.

SIKH INSPECTORS OF COACHING AND GOODS.

590. Sardar Gulab Singh (on behalf of Sardar Kartar Singh) : What is the total number of Sikh Inspectors of Coaching and Goods as against Hindus and Muhammadans ? Do the Government propose to take necessary steps to safeguard the interests of this community in this line ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The information is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : May I ask, Sir, what is the proportion of Sikhs to the whole Indian population ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have no recollection, Sir, but the Honourable Member will be able to obtain it from the Census Reports.

NUMBER OF URBAN AND RURAL UNITS OF THE INDIAN TERRITORIAL FORCE.

591. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) What steps if any have been taken by the Government to give practical effect to the provisions of the Territorial Force Act after it was passed in March last ?

(b) How many recruits have joined the Territorial Forces in the different provinces from March 1928 to 1st September 1928 in

(1) urban units (per province) ?

(2) rural units (per province) ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the amount of expenditure incurred in respect of the Territorial Forces from 1st April 1928 to 1st September 1928 ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state the number of urban and rural units of the Territorial Forces per province and the strength of each unit ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) The Honourable Member is referred to the answer given on the 8th September to starred question No. 234.

(b) (1). None. As I have previously stated, the amending Act came into force on September the 1st.

(2) I am not aware how many recruits joined the Force between the dates mentioned, and I do not think that any useful purpose would be served by attempting to collect the figures, as the new Act only came into force on the 1st September. I trust my Honourable friend will agree with me.

(c) The figures will not be available in any case before December next. In view of what I have just stated, I presume that my Honourable friend would prefer to have figures relating to a similar period after September 1st. These will be available at the end of the financial year.

(d) A statement giving the information is laid on the table.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask whether any addition has been made to the University Training Corps anywhere except in Bombay ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Sir, there is a question on the paper about additions to the University Training Corps which I shall be answering shortly.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT IN THE PUBLIC SERVICES OF THE DEPRESSED CLASSES.

592. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : What action if any have Government taken in connection with the Resolution passed by the Assembly in its last Session in respect of the education and employment in the public services of the members of the depressed classes ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Resolution with an extract from the debates of the Assembly was communicated to Local Governments and certain minor Administrations and their attention invited to the main points raised in the course of discussion.

ACQUISITION OF LAND FROM MEMBERS OF AGRICULTURAL TRIBES BY THE DEPRESSED CLASSES RESIDING IN THE DELHI AND NORTH WEST FRONTIER PROVINCES.

593. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that members of the depressed classes residing in villages in the Delhi and the North West Frontier Provinces depend upon land and agricultural labour as their main source of livelihood ?

(b) Is it a fact that the depressed classes are not included in the list of agricultural tribes in the provinces of Delhi and the North West Frontier and the members of these classes are interdicted from acquiring land from members of agricultural tribes ?

(c) Do the Government propose to remove this caste disability of the depressed classes at an early date ? If so, by what time ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The information asked for is being collected from the Local Governments concerned and will be supplied to the Honourable Member.

CONTROL OF FIRING WITHOUT NOTICE ON CROWDS BY THE POLICE OR MILITARY.

594. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) How many cases of firing without notice by the police or military have taken place during the last year, i.e., from September 1st, 1927 to September 1st, 1928, and what is the total loss of life due to such firing ?

(b) Do Government propose to pass some legislative measure to control such firing with a view to minimise the enormity of the loss of life ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) There was no case within my knowledge of firing by any military force. As regards other instances the reports are not in all cases definite on the point whether the police were able to give warning or not. So far as I can judge there were only two or three cases in which no warning could be given resulting in three fatal casualties.

(b) The existing orders lay special stress on the importance of giving warning before opening fire. Where a definite attack is being made on the police, this may not always be practicable. But Government are satisfied that the orders are adequate and that no legislative measure is required.

PROCEDURE OF THE INDIAN STATUTORY COMMISSION.

595. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table the correspondence between Sir John Simon, the President of the Statutory Commission, and the Governor General in Council relating to the procedure announced on 6th February 1928 and its subsequent modification in response to the demand of the Punjab Committee ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The procedure of the Indian Statutory Commission is settled by the Commission itself and does not form the subject of correspondence with the Governor General in Council.

ALLEGED PREFERENCE SHOWN TO ANGLO-INDIANS IN THE MATTER OF RECRUITMENT TO THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR OF CIVIL AVIATION.

597. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the number of employees of the Director of Civil Aviation specifying their communities, the dates of their appointments and the salaries payable to them ?

(b) Are Government aware that there is a definite discontent against the manner in which preference has been shown to Anglo-Indians in the matter of recruitment of this staff and do Government propose to issue instructions to the Director to put a stop to this unfair practice ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The office staff consists at present of four Hindus, two Muslims and four Anglo-Indians. I am sending a statement giving details of their pay and dates of appointment to the Honourable Member.

(b) Government have received no complaints on the subject and they do not consider that there is any justification for the imputation made in the latter part of the Honourable Member's question. They understand that the Director intends to increase the relative numbers of the Hindu community in making appointments to a number of posts which have been recently created and are not yet filled.

Mr. D. V. Belvi : Will Government be pleased to state if they will lay a copy of the statement on the table of the House ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Yes, Sir, certainly.

DISMISSAL OF A HEAD CLERK IN AN OFFICE OF A SUPERINTENDENT OF POST OFFICES.

598. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) With reference to the reply given to Kumar Ganganand Sinha's questions No. 712 and Nos. 715 to 721 on 31st August, 1927, will the Government be pleased to state whether they are now in a position to give detailed answers to those questions ?

(b) If the answer is in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to give the information wanted in the questions 712, 715, 716, 717, 718 and 720 referred to above ?

(c) If the answer is in the negative will the Government be pleased to state their reason for the same ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The question relates to the case of a Head Clerk in an office of a Superintendent of Post Offices, who was dismissed from the service in 1923 in connection with charges of accepting bribes, misappropriation of Government property, etc. His dismissal was ordered, in the first instance, after a careful enquiry into the charges, by the Postmaster General of the Circle. Since then the case has been re-examined, on appeal, on numerous occasions by three different Directors-General of the Posts and Telegraphs Department and by two Members in charge of the Department of Industries and Labour.

2. The Government are satisfied that the clerk's dismissal was thoroughly justified : they do not see their way to considering it further, nor do they think that any useful purpose would be served by undertaking the labour necessary to extract from the large volume of papers which have accumulated regarding it detailed answers to the Honourable Member's numerous enquiries.

3. In these circumstances, the Government propose to take no further action in the matter.

ALLEGED PREFERENCE SHOWN TO ANGLO-INDIANS IN THE MATTER OF RECRUITMENT TO THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR OF CIVIL AVIATION.

599. Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the number of employees of the Director of Civil Aviation specifying their communities, the dates of their appointments and the salaries payable to them ? Are Government aware that there is a definite discontent against the manner in which preference has been shown to Anglo-Indians in the matter of recruitment of this staff and do Government propose to issue instructions to the Director to put a stop to this unfair practice ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The question is identical with question No. 597 asked by Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh which I have just answered, and I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given to that question.

TIME SPENT ON THE INSPECTION OF OUT-AGENCIES IN THE BILLS BY MR. WOOD, CHIEF AUDITOR OF THE NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY.

600. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Are the Government aware that the present Chief Auditor of the North-Western Railway, Mr. Wood, has during each of the last two years spent more than three months in summer in the hills on the inspection of railway out-agencies ?

(b) Are Government aware that he is accompanied on several of the inspections by the Travelling Auditor and throughout by a Travelling Inspector of Accounts ?

(c) What steps do Government propose to take to put a stop to this practice ?

(d) Is it a fact that no previous Chief Auditor has been absent for such a long time from his headquarters on this work ?

(e) Is it a fact that hitherto the usual procedure has been to divide the out-agencies among the officers and that very junior officers have conducted the inspection of out-agencies without any assistance ?

(f) If the answer to (c) be in the affirmative what action do Government propose to take to put a stop to the waste involved in this system adopted by the present Chief Auditor ?

(g) Do the Government propose to direct the Agent of the Railway to inquire into the matter ?

(h) Is it a fact that it is for actions like those referred to in the preceding questions that Mr. Wood has not been considered fit for promotion to a higher acting appointment ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Enquiry is being made and a reply will be sent to the Honourable Member in due course.

DEPRIVATION OF THE CANTONMENT BOARD AT BELGAUM OF A LARGE PORTION OF THEIR REVENUE.

601. Mr. D. V. Belvi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the Army Department has recently deprived the Cantonment Board at Belgaum of a large portion of their revenue under the plea that the lands are of military ?

(b) If so, is the money so obtained spent on the salaries of the officers of the Military Estates Department ?

(c) What is the total cost annually of these new appointments and what service is rendered by them to the public or to the Army ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) Before the Cantonment Reforms, Cantonment Authorities were entrusted with the management of all Government lands in the Cantonment and were allowed to take the profits from such management.

As part of the arrangements consequent on the Reforms, Cantonment Authorities have been relieved of the management of land in direct military use and a small proportion of the income from the remaining Government land, which is still managed by Cantonment Authorities, is paid to Government. On the other hand, Cantonment Authorities have also been relieved of certain expenditure, which was formerly met from the Cantonment Fund, such as expenditure on troops' conservancy, which is now paid by Government ; and on the whole there is no reason to believe that Cantonment Authorities are worse off now than they were before. In any case Government supplement the resources of Cantonment Authorities, where necessary, by grants-in-aid. No application for such assistance has been received from Belgaum.

(b) No, Sir. The income now received by Government from Government lands is utilised for the benefit of Cantonments as a whole.

(c) The appointment of Military Estates Officers entail no extra cost to Government. The appointments are made from the existing cadre of the Cantonments Department. The duties of Military Estates Officers are confined to the acquisition, custody and relinquishment of land on behalf of the military authorities.

TEMPORARY ENGINEERS ON STATE RAILWAYS.

602. Mr. M. S. Aney : Will the Government be pleased to state :

(a) How many persons have been placed on the register of approved candidates for appointment as temporary engineers on State-worked Railways ?

(b) How many of them have so far been offered employment ?

(c) And what prospects are there for the remaining ones to be taken in the near future ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) 65.

(b) 26.

(c) Government cannot give any definite information. The employment of temporary engineers is subject to the number of railway programme works and constructions which are taken in hand from time to time. The prospects of employment of further temporary engineers are poor at present.

EMPLOYMENT OF CANDIDATES QUALIFIED FOR SECOND DIVISION APPOINTMENTS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA SECRETARIAT.

603. Mr. Siddheswar Sinha : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of candidates who have qualified themselves for the second grade appointments in the ministerial service of the Imperial Secretariat in the examinations held by the Staff Selection Board and the Public Service Commission during the year 1925 and 1926, respectively ?

(b) How many of the candidates so qualified have been provided for in the appointments of that grade in the Imperial Secretariat since then ?

(c) Is it a fact that candidates qualified for the second grade of the Imperial Secretariat have been debarred for appointments in the third grade in the Imperial Secretariat ?

(d) Is it also a fact that a large number of such candidates have been offered posts and are actually employed in attached offices in the routine grade ?

(e) Is it a fact that the routine grade is lower than the third grade of the Imperial Secretariat ?

(f) Do Government propose to take steps that candidates who have passed for the second grade of the Imperial Secretariat be declared fit for appointments in the upper grade of attached offices, or else be given second grade appointments in the Imperial Secretariat ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) 42 candidates in 1925 and 58 in 1926.

(c) and (d). Candidates who are qualified for the second division are not ordinarily nominated for appointments in the routine grade of the Imperial Secretariat, as candidates for the latter grade are required to pass the typewriting test, which is an essential qualification in their case. Such candidates are, however, employed in the second division of attached offices, the reason being that only two divisions exist in attached offices and experience in typewriting is not necessarily demanded of all candidates for employment in the lower division of those offices.

(e) Yes.

(f) Every endeavour is made to provide candidates who are qualified for the second division of the Imperial Secretariat and whose names are still borne on the waiting list of candidates with appointments in that grade as vacancies occur. Government regret that they are unable to declare such candidates qualified for appointment to the upper division of attached offices unless they pass the examination for that division.

EMPLOYMENT OF MUHAMMADANS AS CLERKS IN THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF MEDICAL OFFICER, DELHI.

604 Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that for the last 30 years no Muhammadan clerk was engaged in the office of the Chief Medical Officer, Delhi, with the exception of a temporary chance being given to a Muhammadan for a few months ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state why no Muhammadan clerk was permanently appointed ?

(b) Is it a fact that Babu Nathan Lall, Head Clerk of the Chief Medical Office, has been granted an extension for the last five years and is now to retire ? If so, do Government propose to take an opportunity of redressing the Muhammadans' grievances ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : With your permission, Sir, I shall deal with questions 604, 605, 606, 607, 608, 609 and 611 together. The necessary information has been called for from the Chief Commissioner of Delhi and will be supplied to the Honourable Member when received.

EMPLOYMENT OF MUHAMMADANS AS DOCTORS IN THE HOSPITALS IN DELHI.

†605. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that for many years no Muhammadan doctor has been given a chance in the in-door Department of the Civil Hospital, Delhi ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state whether there is any rule not to appoint a Muhammadan doctor in the above post ? If not, will they be pleased to state what action they would take in exercising an equilibrium in the postings ?

(b) Is it a fact that in the New Delhi Hospital there are three doctors who are all non-Muhammadans ?

(c) Is it a fact that in Balak Ram's House Hospital both the doctors are Hindus ?

EMPLOYMENT OF MUHAMMADAN COMPOUNDERS IN THE DELHI PROVINCE.

†606. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that the number of Muhammadan compounders is very few in Delhi Province and particularly in the Civil Hospital at Delhi ?

DOCTORS EMPLOYED ON INSPECTION DUTIES IN THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

†607. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that all the doctors employed on inspection duties in the Education Department, Delhi, are Hindus ?

CHARGE OF BRANCH DISPENSARIES IN DELHI.

†608. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that Delhi branch dispensaries were always occupied by the senior incumbents up to the time when the transfers were in the hands of Inspector General, Civil Hospitals, Punjab ?

(b) Is it a fact that for the last five years the Chief Medical Officer is authorised to make local transfers in Delhi Province ?

(c) Is it a fact that during the last five years not a single senior Sub-Assistant Surgeon was asked for, from the Inspector General, Civil Hospitals, Punjab ?

(d) Is it a fact that Assistant Surgeon Doctor Mukand Lall is holding charge of Civil Hospital, Delhi, for more than five years ? Will the Government be pleased to state whether this contravenes any provision in the Punjab Medical Manual ?

(e) Is it a fact that in 1926 one Doctor Muniruddin, Assistant Surgeon, was ordered to be transferred in place of Doctor Mukand Lall, but the order of transfer was postponed for some months ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state why the above order has not been brought into force till now ? Is it a fact that that order has not yet been actually cancelled ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 604.

CHARGE OF MUFASSIL DISPENSARIES IN THE PUNJAB.

†609. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that in the Punjab most of the muffasil dispensaries are in the charge of senior grade Sub-Assistant Surgeons ?

(b) Is it a fact that in Delhi Province, there is no senior grade Sub-Assistant Surgeon ? If so, do Government propose to take the necessary steps in the matter ?

TRANSFER OF DR. MUKHERJI, SUB-ASSISTANT SURGEON IN-CHARGE OF THE RAILWAY DISPENSARY, DELHI.

610. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that the post of Railway Sub-Assistant Surgeon, Delhi, is under the Chief Medical Officer, Delhi ?

(b) Is it a fact that one Doctor Mukerji, Sub-Assistant Surgeon, is holding charge of the Railway Dispensary, Delhi, for the last some 12 years ? If so, do Government propose to consider the rights of others and to remove the officer who has been stationed for a long time in one place ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The North Western Railway Sub-Assistant Surgeon, Delhi, is under the Medical Officer of the North Western Railway, who is also the Civil Surgeon at Delhi, and Chief Medical Officer, Delhi Provinces.

(b) Mr. Mukerji has been stationed in Delhi for a considerable time—I am not sure of the exact period. Government have no intention of removing an officer whose work has been satisfactory.

STATEMENT SHOWING THE ALLOCATION OF THE CIVIL MEDICAL DEPARTMENT, DELHI PROVINCE.

†611. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement of the allocation of the Medical Department, Delhi Province, showing names and caste, religion, age, pay, date of appointment in Delhi Province, native place, length of service, present postings, with date and years ?

REORGANISATION BY THE AGENT OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY OF THE GENERAL WORKERS' UNION, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

612. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Are Government aware that a trade union of the North Western Railway employees was registered under Trade Unions Act on 31st March 1928 under the name " The General Workers Union, North Western Railway " ?

(b) Are Government also aware that Mr. M. A. Khan, General Secretary of the said Union, wrote to the Agent, North Western Railway, vide letter No. G.U./4, dated 25th April, 1928, for the recognition of the said Union ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Agent, North Western Railway, did not acknowledge receipt of the aforesaid letter ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 604.

(d) Are Government aware that the registered Trade Union is meant to regulate relations between the employers and the workmen ? Will Government be pleased to state how it will be possible to regulate these relations without recognition and co-operation ?

(e) Do Government propose to ask the Agent, North Western Railway, to negotiate with and grant recognition to the said Union ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) I understand that the Agent did not acknowledge receipt of this letter.

(d) The view of Government is that registration should predispose the Agent to deal with the Union as representing the interests of its members, but the question whether the Agent should deal with a particular Union, and if so, to what extent, is one which must be decided with regard to the facts of each case. The position on the North Western Railway is that there are two rival Unions covering the same ground which are in direct opposition to each other. The Agent of the North Western Railway has dealt with one of these Unions from its inception in 1920, and is not prepared to deal with the rival body, which has only been recently started.

(e) No ; for reasons which I have already explained.

EMPLOYMENT OF INDIANS AS CARRIAGE INSPECTORS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

613. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that no Indian is working on the North Western Railway as a Carriage Inspector ? If not, why not ? Do the Government propose to move the North Western Railway authorities to select a few senior and qualified head Carriage Examiners and promote them as Carriage Inspectors when vacancies occur next ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I understand that no Indian, as distinct from a statutory Indian is working as a Carriage Inspector on the North Western Railway. These posts are filled by selection from Carriage Examiners and there is no bar to Indians being appointed.

PAY OF WORKMEN IN THE POWER HOUSE AND LOCOMOTIVE AND CARRIAGE SHOPS, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

614. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that workmen in the Power House of the North Western Railway have a maximum grade of Rs. 3-8-0 per day, while in the Locomotive and Carriage Shops, the maximum grade is Rs. 2-8-0 a day ? Do the Government propose to move the Agent, North Western Railway, to equalise the rates of both the Workshops ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative. Rs. 2-8-0 a day is the maximum for mechanics in both the Power House and in the Locomotive and Carriage Shops.

AGREEMENTS WITH THE DAILY RATED STAFF ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

615. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that the daily rated staff on the North Western Railway has been made to sign an agreement of service with the Secretary of State for India like the ministerial and clerical staff who are monthly paid ? If so, do Government propose to consider the question of granting the daily rated labour casual, privilege, sick and furlough leave like the other above-mentioned staff ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative except that daily rated staff who subscribe to the Provident Fund are made to sign an agreement of service and become entitled to one month's notice before their services are dispensed with. The second part of the question does not arise.

NUMBER OF EMPLOYEES OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY DISMISSED, DISCHARGED, REDUCED IN PAY AND FINED IN THE YEAR 1927-28.

616. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will the Government be pleased to state how many employees of the North Western Railway have been dismissed, discharged, reduced in pay and fined in the year 1927-1928 and how many appeals were entertained and with what results ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am making enquiries from the North Western Railway how far the information desired by the Honourable Member can be procured and will communicate with him later.

TIME SCALE OF PAY FOR THE OUTDOOR CLERICAL STAFF ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

617. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Are Government aware that the outdoor clerical staff with 20 to 25 years' service on the North Western Railway is blocked on Rs. 60 per mensem, while the grades of the clerical staff in the Postal, Secretariat and other Government Departments have risen up to Rs. 140. Do Government propose to draw the attention of the Agent of the North Western Railway, to introduce a time-scale system on the same lines as in the other Departments under the Government of India ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I have called for information from the Agent of the North Western Railway, but it has not yet arrived. I will communicate with the Honourable Member when the reply is received.

POPULATION OF THE DEPRESSED CLASSES.

618. *Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) if the figures given in the schemes set out in Appendices I to VIII of the Report of the Franchise Committee dated 22nd February, 1919, regarding the population of the Depressed Classes (shown in the statistical summary as " Others " with an asterisk mark* under the heading " Hindus ") are correct ?

(b) if these figures indicate the untouchable castes ?

(c) if these figures include the criminal tribes also ?

(d) if these figures referred to territory outside British India as well as British India ?

(e) if the total population of the Depressed Classes according to the figures given on pages 19, 29, 37, 45, 53, 61, 69 and 75 of the Franchise Committee's Report, 1919, was more than 42 millions ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a), (b), (c) and (e). The Honourable Member will see from the footnotes to the Appendices that the population shown under the heading " others " referred to those castes which were generally described as " untouchables ". Their total number was over 42 millions. The references in the footnotes to the Census Reports suggest that the Committee obtained their figures from the Census Reports of 1901 and 1911, but a scrutiny of the Census tables shows that the figures given in them do not in all cases tally with the figures given in the Appendices referred to by the Honourable Member. The Government of India are not therefore in a position to check the figures. Precise details of criminal tribes are not available.

(d) The figures referred only to British India.

POPULATION OF THE DEPRESSED CLASSES.

619. *Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) if the population of the Depressed Classes according to the census of 1921 is as follows (approximately) ?

	Millions.
Madras Presidency	7.20
Bombay Presidency	3.06
Bengal Presidency	11.50
U. P. of Agra and Oudh	15.69
Punjab	3.55
Central Provinces and Berar	10.00

(b) if the answer to the above is in the negative, will the Government be pleased to lay on the table the correct figures for these provinces as well as for Bihar and Orissa and Assam ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I propose, with your permission, to answer questions Nos. 619 and 620 together. I would refer the Honourable Member to the Census Report of 1921.

UNTOUCHABLE POPULATION OF INDIA.

†620. *Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : Will Government be pleased to state if the total untouchable population of India according to the census of 1921 is more than 60 millions ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 619.

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar : May I know whether the term "depressed classes" is a term recognised by the Government ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : It is a term in common use, and Government do employ it in the various reports dealing with the matter.

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar : May I ask whether they are depressed by Government or by others ?

(No answer).

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar : May I ask one more question, whether during the last seven years, since 1921, many of those who were depressed have been elevated and those who were non-depressed then have become depressed ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I hope that it is certainly true that certain castes which were depressed in 1921 have since advanced, and that in the next census a different classification may be possible for them.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR PROMOTION TO THE GRADE OF HEAD LIGHT KEEPERS IN THE MADRAS PRESIDENCY.

621. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Is it a fact that the Head of the Madras Presidency Port authorities issued two circulars regarding the qualifications for promotion to the grade of Head Light Keepers?

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to lay them on the table ?

(c) Is it a fact that these circulars have been ignored by the authorities concerned in filling up recent vacancies?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Enquiries have been made from the Government of Madras, and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member on receipt of the Local Government's reply.

NUMBER OF PERSONS EMPLOYED IN THE LIGHT HOUSES SERVICES.

622. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Will Government be pleased to state the number of men of different communities in India employed in the different Presidencies in the various grades of the Light-houses Services?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : With your permission, Sir, I will answer questions 622 and 623 together. The coast light services, which are now administered by Local Governments, will in the course of the ensuing cold weather be reorganised under the direct control of the Government of India. The information for which the Honourable Member asks will then be available.

SEA AND COAST LIGHTS ESTABLISHMENTS IN INDIA.

†623. *Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the list of Sea and Coast Lights Establishments in India?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 622.

BANKING ENQUIRY COMMITTEE.

624. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Is it a fact that Government proposed to appoint at an early date a Banking Enquiry Committee in terms of the Resolution passed by the Legislative Assembly during the Simla Session of 1927?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Government have no present intention of appointing a Committee of the kind mentioned in the immediate future.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Is it a fact that Sir Basil Blackett stated in the course of his reply to the Resolution that, as soon as the Reserve Bank question was got out of the way and as soon as the Report of the Royal Agricultural Commission was available, the Government would consider the advisability of appointing this Committee ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That does not in any way affect the answer I have already given to the Honourable Member.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Will the facts I have stated induce the Honourable Member to expedite the matter ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have nothing to add to the answer I have already given, and I would advise my Honourable friend to read my answer a little more carefully.

COMPETITIVE EXAMINATION FOR THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE.

625. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the year in which the last competitive examination for the Indian Medical Service was held?

(b) When do Government propose to resume the competitive examination for entrance into the Indian Medical Service?

(c) Is it a fact that in the recruitment of men for the Indian Medical Service since the vacancies are filled by selection, the proportion of two Europeans to one Indian is being maintained?

(d) If so, why?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) 1915.

(b) It is proposed to wait and see what effect the reorganization of the Indian Medical Service will have on recruitment before taking up the question of reintroducing the competitive examination.

(c) The proportion aimed at is as stated by the Honourable Member. But the total number of Indians recruited by nomination up to date is in excess of this proportion.

(d) The ratio of two Europeans to one Indian represents roughly the proportions necessary in order to provide for attendance on European civil officers and their families and to allow for the reserve of British officers required by the Army in war. It represents a considerable increase over the number of Indians who succeeded in entering the service under the old system of open competition.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Why is a reserve of British officers needed by the Military Department in the Indian Medical Service ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Because in time of war there is no reserve for the Royal Army Medical Corps. The war reserve of British officers in the Indian Medical Service provides a reserve for the Royal Army Medical Corps.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is there any understanding between the War Office and the Government of India that the British troops would in time of war be attended on only by British officers ?

Mr. G. M. Young : British troops are attended to only by British officers and the reserve of British officers exists for attending to them in war.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Why is it so ?

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I know whether the Government of India or His Majesty's Government have laid down the policy that British officers and British troops should in time of war be looked after only by British officers of the Indian Medical Service ?

Mr. G. M. Young : The assumption is that British officers and British troops will be looked after by British medical officers in war.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Has that policy been laid down anywhere, or has the present practice been continued without any direct enunciation of principles by either the Government of India or His Majesty's Government ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I am not aware that the question has ever been raised. It is an assumption, rather. British troops are at present looked after by British medical officers, and it is naturally assumed that in time of war the reserve should also be British.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is the Honourable Member aware that the British medical officers attached to the British troops are part of the Royal Army ? When the officers of the Indian Medical Service in time of war attend on British troops, it does not necessarily follow that the officers who look after the British troops should also be British.

Mr. G. M. Young : I am afraid I have not entirely followed the argument just stated by the Honourable Member. If he wishes to obtain from me a statement about the policy that has been pursued or laid down in the past, I trust he will give me notice.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : In view of the very vicious principle just enunciated by the Honourable the Army Secretary.....

Mr. President : Will the Honourable Member put his question without any arguments ?

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Sir, may I enquire if it is a fact that Indian members of the Indian Medical Service attended on British officers and soldiers during the last war ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I have no detailed information on the subject, but I should think it quite probable.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : If it is quite probable, is it the reward for that service that the Indian officers of the Indian Medical Service are kept out now ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I think that that is more in the nature of an argument than a question.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Have the Government of India discovered any new principle in medical science that the curative qualifications of a medical man depend upon the similarity of complexion between him and his patient ? (Laughter.)

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I ask whether Mr. Haji's Bill for the reservation of coastal traffic is not based upon this reservation of British medical officers for Europeans ?

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : If, as the Honourable Member stated in answer to my Honourable friend, Mr. Haji, during the war Indian officers of the Medical Service attended upon British Army officers, may I ask what is the basis of his assumption that British officers and British troops will always be attended during war by British officers of the Indian Medical Service ? May I know what is the basis for his assumption ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I still think that these questions take the form of arguments, but there appears to be some slight misapprehension. Many of the officers of the Indian Medical Service are Indians, and I say it is quite probable, in fact, it is quite certain that they did attend on British officers in the war. But this is a question of a reserve of medical officers for British troops. British troops are not attended in peace time by Indian Medical Service officers, and in time of war it is natural that the reserve should be of the same composition as the main cadre.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Does the Honourable Member mean that the organisation of the Indian Army should depend upon the needs of the British troops during a time of war ?

Mr. G. M. Young : No. I do not think that is an inference that could possibly be drawn from anything I have said.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : If the needs of the British Army can be met even by Indian members of the Indian Medical Service, where is the necessity of reserving British medical officers for British officers and troops in the Indian Medical Service when the Royal Army Medical Corps is solely reserved for them ?

Mr. G. M. Young : The answer to that question lies in part (d) of my answer to the main question.

NUMBER OF CIVIL APPOINTMENTS TO WHICH INDIAN MEMBERS OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE WILL BE ADMITTED.

626. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Is it a fact that the provision of an adequate number of civil appointments has always been considered necessary to draw the European of the right calibre into the Indian Medical Service ?

(b) If so, has the same principle been borne in mind in arranging the number of civil appointments to which Indian members of the Indian Medical Service will be admitted under the new scheme referred to in the press communiqué, dated 10th May, 1928 ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) and (b). The reply to both parts is in the affirmative.

SURGEONS-GENERAL AND INSPECTORS-GENERAL OF CIVIL HOSPITALS.

627. *Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Is it a fact that under the new scheme Provincial Governments will have the right to appoint non-I.M.S. men to the posts of Surgeons-General or Inspectors-General of Civil Hospitals, when the present incumbents retire?

(b) Will it be open to the Provincial Governments to abolish these posts, if they choose to do so?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Local Governments will have the right to make appointments to these posts when the existing rights of Indian Medical Service officers in civil employ have been liquidated.

(b) Not under the present financial rules.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Does it follow that under present rules the Provincial Minister will not have the right to abolish these posts if he is so advised ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : That is so, Sir.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Is that going to be the nature of provincial autonomy ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : That is a question which is susceptible of debate and not of a short and direct answer.

RESERVATION OF POSTS FOR INDIAN AND EUROPEAN MEMBERS OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE.

628. *Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Is it a fact that under the new scheme while only two posts are definitely reserved for the Indian members of the Indian Medical Service more than 200 posts are definitely reserved for the European members of the Indian Medical Service ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Honourable Member is presumably referring to posts on the civil side. The number of such posts definitely reserved for European Indian Medical Service officers is 143 and although the number of posts specifically reserved for Indian I. M. S. officers is only 2, it is the intention of Government to give to Indians a sufficient number of posts on the civil side to bring the total number of Indian officers in civil employ up to 90.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Am I to understand that for all practical purposes 90 posts will be reserved for Indian officers of the Indian Medical Service ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I think my Honourable friend has not quite followed the basis of the reorganisation scheme. The aim is to take officers not merely for posts but also to allow for a leave and study reserve of 27½ per cent. Including this leave and study reserve we want 90 Indians on the civil side, but the number of posts which will be given to these officers will be the difference between 90 and the 27½ per cent. of 90 which represents the leave and study reserve.

TRAINING OF CADETS ON THE TRAINING SHIPS "CONWAY" AND " WORCESTER."

629. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) What is the duration of the course of training for English Cadets on the training ships " Conway " and " Worcester " ?

(b) Are there any restrictions in the way of Indian youths to their admission to the above training ships? If so, what are those?

(c) What is the average cost of training per annum for a Cadet on either of the above training ships?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The information, so far as it is available to the Government of India, is as follows :

(a) The minimum period on the " Worcester " is two years, but the length of training varies with the age and ability of the candidate. It is understood that the course on the " Conway " is similar.

(b) The " Conway " and the " Worcester " are private institutions. The managements were approached on the subject by the Committee on Indian Students in 1921, and their replies are summarised in paragraph 105 of the Committee's report. Subsequently, Captain Sayer, the Captain Superintendent of the " Worcester ", who came to India in 1925 to advise the Government of India on the scheme for the establishment of a training ship in India, recommended as an alternative that the management of the " Worcester " should be asked to accept Indian cadets. But in view of the decision of the Legislative Assembly on the 19th March, 1926, to establish a training ship in Indian waters, Captain Sayer's alternative proposal was not further pursued.

(c) The fees for the " Worcester " are £140 per annum, inclusive of one suit of uniform yearly, washing and medical attendance, and the fees for the " Conway " are £120 per annum without uniform.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : If the " Worcester " is a private ship, does it receive any subsidy from the Government ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I am quite certain that neither the " Worcester " nor the " Conway " receive any subsidy from the Government of India. Whether either receives a subsidy from the British Government I am not aware, and if the Honourable Member desires information, perhaps he will give me notice.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Supposing they received a subsidy from the British Government, have not British subjects a claim.....

Mr. President : That is a hypothetical question.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : With reference to part (a) of the question, and with reference to the mention of the report of the Indian Students Committee referred to by the Honourable Member, is it a fact that in reply to the queries of that Committee, both these British institutions definitely refused to take Indian candidates ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I have the papers here, but I cannot without a little delay give the answer to the Honourable Member's question. If that report is not already in the Library, I will see that a copy is placed in the Library, so that Members may satisfy themselves as to what exactly happened at that time.

SEA SERVICE NECESSARY FOR A SECOND MATE'S CERTIFICATE.

630. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that for those who come out of the "Conway" and "Worcester" the qualifying sea service is only three years, while the Indian Cadets of the I. M. M. T. S. "Dufferin" have to put in four years of sea service before they can appear for the Second Mate's Certificate ?

(b) If the answer to the above be in the affirmative, what is the reason for making this differentiation in the period of sea service to be put in by the Indian and English Cadets ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) The qualifying sea service required of a "Dufferin" cadet is exactly the same as is required of a "Conway" or "Worcester" cadets.

(b) Does not arise.

ADMISSION OF CADETS FOR THE "DUFFERIN" TO THE TRAINING SHIPS "CONWAY" AND "WORCESTER."

631. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Do Government propose to afford the necessary facilities regarding admission and other amenities of life to those Cadets of the I. M. M. T. S. "Dufferin" who are desirous of proceeding to England and receiving training on the "Conway" and "Worcester" ?

(b) If the answer to the above is in the affirmative, do Government propose to count the period of service put in by those Cadets of the "Dufferin" who are desirous of proceeding to England for training on the "Conway" and "Worcester" when calculating the total period of training to be put in on the English training ships ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) No, Sir.

(b) Does not arise.

THE INDIAN NAVY.

632. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government be pleased to state when the Indian Navy will be created ?

(b) Will posts in the Indian Navy be thrown open to Cadets of the "Dufferin" ?

(c) If not, why not ?

(d) If the answer to (c) is in the negative, will Government be pleased to state the special qualifications required of youths desirous of joining the Indian Navy ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) The designation and status of the Royal Indian Marine cannot be raised to those of a Dominion Navy until the Naval Discipline Act, applicable to such Navies and to the Royal Navy, has been passed by the Indian Legislature.

(b) Cadets from the "Dufferin" are already eligible to compete for posts in the reorganized Royal Indian Marine, and will be equally eligible to compete for posts in the Royal Indian Navy, if one is created.

(c) and (d). Do not arise.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Have Government fixed a proportion of Indian recruitment from the "Dufferin" in connection with the general recruitment for the Royal Indian Marine ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I am afraid I have not understood the question, but no proportion has been fixed with reference to the "Dufferin".

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : I shall explain the question. The question was this. Just as you have reserved a certain number of posts with regard to the engineering side, will you tell us the number of posts, the proportion of posts fixed for Indian candidates taken from the "Dufferin".

Mr. G. M. Young : I am afraid the identity of the second question with the first has altogether eluded me, so that I must ask him for notice of both.

THROWING OPEN OF THE BENGAL PILOT SERVICE TO CADETS OF THE "DUFFERIN."

633. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government be pleased to say if the Bengal Pilot Service will be thrown open to the Cadets of the "Dufferin" after they have completed the necessary qualifying sea service ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the Commerce Department Notification, No. 141-S. (12), dated the 9th June, 1928, published in the Gazette of India of the same date, containing the revised rules for the appointment of candidates to the Bengal Pilot Service. Under these rules, preference will be given to candidates who have passed through the Indian Mercantile Marine Training Ship "Dufferin".

COURSE OF TRAINING PRESCRIBED FOR CADETS OF THE "DUFFERIN."

634. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Are Government aware that the course prescribed for Cadets of the "Dufferin" is intended to prepare them more for the Bombay University Examination than for giving them a thorough theoretical and practical training so as to prepare them for a nautical career ?

(b) Do Government propose to consider the desirability of so revising the course of training on the "Dufferin" as to fit the Cadets to hold posts not merely in the Mercantile Marine, but also in the Indian Navy and the Royal Indian Marine, the Bengal Pilot Service, in the various Port Trusts, Docks, Harbours and Lighthouses, in case the Cadets after completion of their course find it inconvenient either for reasons of health or due to other causes to continue the actual nautical career ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) No, Sir.

(b) So far as Government are aware, the present course of training on the "Dufferin" is well suited to prepare cadets for any nautical employment.

QUESTIONS NOT PUT AT THE MEETING, OWING TO THE ABSENCE OF THE QUESTIONER, WITH ANSWERS TO THE SAME.

HIGH HOUSE RENTS IN DELHI.

551. Lala Rang Behari Lal : Will Government be pleased to state if they are aware of the fact that in Delhi house rent is high and that it is difficult to secure suitable houses at fairly high rents ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government understand that there is some difficulty in obtaining accommodation in Delhi, and proposals are being formulated for housing the large number of clerks who have recently come to the Clearing Accounts Office there.

SEPARATION OF AUDIT FROM ACCOUNTS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

574. Lala Rang Behari Lal : 1. Will the Government be pleased to state if it is proposed to separate " Audit " from " Accounts " on the North Western Railway ? If so, is this system more economical than the present one ?

2. (a) Are the Government aware of the fact that there exist at present in the Divisions under the supervision of qualified accountants, accounts branches in the office of Divisional Superintendents under the North-Western Railway ?

(b) Will the Government state what shall be the status of these qualified accountants, who are in most cases drawing salaries, drawn by the senior accountants in the Audit Department, under the new scheme ?

3. Will the Government be pleased to state if they are aware of the fact that the qualified accountants, sub-heads and clerks working in the existing accounts branches, are doing executive accounts work ; whereas the Audit staff likely to be transferred to a new Accounts Department, possess merely routine audit knowledge ?

4. Do Government propose to earmark some posts of Assistant Accounts Officers for the qualified accountants in the Divisional Superintendent's Office ?

5. Are Government prepared to keep in view at the time of the formation of the new accounts offices that the sub-heads and clerks in the existing accounts branches are not allowed to be superseded by audit sub-heads and clerks ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : 1. The Reply to both parts of the question is in the affirmative.

2 to 5. If separation is given effect to, the question of utilising the staff referred to in the accounts department if suitable will be considered, but Government cannot undertake to earmark any posts for them. The relative seniority of such as are taken will be carefully considered at the time of their appointment.

ALLEGED MISUSE OF A SECOND CLASS CARDPASS BY MR. ASHWOOD, OFFICE SUPERINTENDENT IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIVISIONAL SUPERINTENDENT, DELHI, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

575. Lala Rang Behari Lal : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. A. C. Ashwood, a guard on the North-Western Railway, in receipt of Rs. 110 as salary, was selected for the post of Office Superintendent, carrying a salary of Rs. 400—20—500 in the office of the Divisional Superintendent in Delhi ?

(b) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to a note in the Hindustan Times of the 25th August 1928, relating to the misuse of a second class card-pass by the same Mr. Ashwood ?

(c) If so, will the Government be pleased to state what action, if any, had been taken in the matter ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) This appointment rests with the Agent and is made by selection. Government are not aware whether any change has recently taken place in the incumbency.

(b) and (c). The copy of the newspaper mentioned by the Honourable Member has been examined, but contains no such allegation.

OUTFIT, MAINTENANCE AND TRAVELLING ALLOWANCES OF OFFICERS OF UNIVERSITY TRAINING CORPS.

576. Lala Rang Behari Lal : 1. Will the Government be pleased to state the steps that they contemplate taking for the organisation of the projected second company of the Delhi University Training Corps ?

2. Will the Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the University Training Corps officers get an outfit allowance of Rs. 100 only on first appointment, and an allowance of Rs. 200 subsequently on passing the retention examination ?

3. Are the Government aware that Rs. 100 is absolutely insufficient for the purchase of an officer's complete uniform and equipment ?

4. Is it a fact that the University Training Corps officers get no maintenance allowance ? If so, do Government propose to consider the advisability of introducing an allowance for the University Training Corps officers on the lines of the Army in India Reserve of Officers ?

5. Is it a fact that the University Training Corps officers were granted a travelling allowance for distances over 2 miles from the place of parade on a special consideration of the fact that they got no other allowances, and that the same travelling allowance has now been discontinued (by the Controller, Military Accounts, Meerut District) ?

6. In view of the above facts, do Government propose to reconsider the question of the granting of travelling allowance to University Training Corps officers at an early date ?

Mr. G. M. Young : 1. The unit has been constituted and orders for its formation have already been issued.

2. Yes.

3. Yes, but this sum is not intended to cover the cost of an officer's complete uniform and equipment. Government will consider the possibility of arranging that the whole amount of Rs. 300 should be paid on first appointment, subject to certain conditions as to refund if the officer relinquishes his commission within a certain time.

4. Presumably the Honourable Member is referring to the grant of a retaining fee. Government have no intention of introducing any such allowance for King's commissioned officers of either the Auxiliary Force or the Indian Territorial Force.

5. Travelling allowance for journeys to and from casual parades is not admissible to officers of the Auxiliary Force or the Indian Territorial Force.

6. This recommendation will be considered along with other minor recommendations of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee as soon as funds are available.

MESSAGE IN THE Pioneer OF THE 3RD SEPTEMBER, 1928, UNDER THE HEADING "AMARNATH PILGRIMS IN DISTRESS."

596. Mr. M. S. Aney : Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the message published in the Pioneer of the 3rd September 1928 under the heading "Amarnath pilgrims in distress" ?

2. Will the Government be pleased to publish the following information :

(a) Total number of pilgrims who died ?

(b) The number of pilgrims who stand in need of relief ?

(c) Steps, if any, taken by the Government of India for the relief of the surviving pilgrims who might have been rendered helpless to enable them to return to their native places ?

3. If the Government of India have not yet taken any steps, will the Government be pleased to state what steps they propose to take to give relief to the aforesaid suffering pilgrims ?

Sir Denys Bray : Information has been called for from the Resident in Kashmir and I will pass it on to the Honourable Member as soon as it is received.

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

PAY OF CLERKS OF THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF AUDITOR, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

350. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that there are two scales of pay for clerks in the Chief Auditor's Office, North Western Railway ?

(b) If the answer is in the affirmative will the Government kindly state the respective starting and ultimate pay of each class ?

(c) Is it a fact that the scales were revised in 1922 ?

(d) Is there any special distinction or difference in the work allotted to the clerks of class I and class II in the various sections of the office ?

(e) Is it a fact that the pay and prospects of the superior class are disproportionately better than the pay and prospects of the inferior class considering the distinction or difference if any in the work of the two classes ?

(f) Has any memorial or petition been received by the Auditor General, Bodyguard Lines, New Delhi, on behalf of clerks of the 2nd class ?

(g) If so, what reply if any has been given ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). The two scales of pay in the Chief Auditor's Office are :

Class I	..	Rs. 60—4—120—5—145. (efficiency bar at Rs. 100).
Class II	..	Rs. 39—3—69—6|5—75.

(c) These scales were sanctioned in 1922.

(d) and (f). The reply is in the affirmative.

(g) The Auditor General is considering the memorials and the recommendation of the Accountant General, Railways, and no reply has yet been given.

CONTINUANCE OF THE SYSTEM OF FORCED LABOUR FROM MEMBERS OF THE DEPRESSED CLASSES IN DELHI, AJMER-MERWARA, ETC.

351. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : Are the Government aware that the system of Begar (forced labour from members of the depressed classes) is still in vogue in Delhi, Ajmer-Merwara and other provinces of India ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Full information has already been furnished to one House or the other of the Central Legislature in respect of the system of begar or forced labour so far as it prevails in various provinces in India. I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to :

(a) the reply given in the Legislative Assembly on the 11th February, 1924, to the Honourable Mr. V. J. Patel's question No. 234 ;

(b) the reply given in the Council of State on 12th September, 1927, to the Honourable Sir Haroon Jaffer's question No. 116 ; and (c) my reply to Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan's question No. 156 in the Legislative Assembly on the 1st March, 1928.

REMOVAL OF INCOME-TAX OFFICERS FROM THEIR OFFICE BY THE COMMISSIONERS OF INCOME-TAX.

352. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : Is it a fact that the Income-tax Officers are removable from their office by the Commissioners of Income-tax ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Yes, subject to the officers' right of appeal to the Governor in Council of the Province concerned.

REVISION OF THE RULES RELATING TO THE REFUND OF MONEY IN RESPECT OF LOST OR TORN CURRENCY NOTES.

353. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Have the rules in regard to the refund of money in respect of lost or torn currency notes been lately changed ?

(b) Is it correct that according to the existing rules a person in possession of a half portion of the note is entitled to a refund of half the amount of the note and the Currency Office is under no obligation to give information to the claimant of the lost note in respect of any claim made by the person in possession of the other half portion of the note ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) If the half note is part of a note the denomination of which does not exceed Rs. 10, no claim is entertained. If it is part of a note the denomination of which exceeds Rs. 10, the position is regulated by rules 11, 13 and 14 of the Currency Notes (Refund) Rules, 1921 (published in the Gazette of India, dated the 26th November, 1921), as amended by the Finance Department Notification, dated the 19th May, 1927, (published in the Gazette of India of the 21st idem). In this latter case, the position is substantially as stated by the Honourable Member.

TRANSFER OF HIGH EXECUTIVE AND JUDICIAL OFFICERS IN AJMER-MERWARA.

354. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that high executive and judicial officers in Ajmer-Merwara are like permanent fixtures and hold their offices for a number of years without transfer and apprehension of such transfer ?

(b) Do the Government propose to take steps to arrange that the incumbents of high executive and judicial posts in Ajmer-Merwara may hold their posts for particular periods of time (as in other provinces of India) after the lapse of which transfer to some other area may be compulsory ?

Sir Denys Bray : Ajmer-Merwara is a small area with a self-contained local cadre. Transfers as between the posts within the Province are effected when necessary in the interests of public service. It is not considered that any particular advantage would accrue from prescribing a limited tenure for these posts.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST A GUARD OF HAVING ATTEMPTED TO OUTRAGE THE MODESTY OF A CHRISTIAN WOMAN.

(b) Is it a fact that one Superintendent wrote in the office order book that no member of the clerk's family except his wife and children must remain with him in the quarters ?

(b) Was it ever officially announced either by the Railway Board or by the Staff Selection Board or by the Home Department ? If so, when and where ?

(c) Is there any other department or attached office under the Government of India which has been similarly exempted ? If not, what are the reasons for exemption in the case of the Railway Board ?

(d) In what respect does the ordinary clerical work of the Railway Board differ from that of other offices ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) In March 1925.

(b) No.

(c) The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. The second part does not arise.

(d) The work is of a specialised and technical nature.

369. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that recruitment of unpassed men was allowed as a special concession to posts requiring technical or special qualifications subject to the previous approval of the Home Department ? If so, why were not the regulations of the Staff Selection Board made applicable in the case of recruitment of clerical staff for the office of the Railway Board ?

(b) In how many cases was the approval of the Home Department obtained ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. As to the second part, general exemption has been granted in view of the fact that recruitment of men with technical qualifications is not an exceptional feature in the case of the Railway Department as in other Departments.

(b) Does not arise.

RECRUITMENT OF THE CLERICAL STAFF FOR THE OFFICE OF THE RAILWAY BOARD.

370. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the Railway Board was not excluded from the operations of the Staff Selection Board in the notifications regarding their examinations issued by that body for the information of the public in 1920, 1921 and 1922 ?

(b) Is it also a fact that a number of permanent men in the second division and many temporary men of the Railway Board were sent in to qualify themselves for the upper division appointments of the Board's office, of whom a good number failed ?

(c) If the answers to (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state why this was done if the Railway Board is free to recruit its clerical staff independent of the Staff Selection Board ?

(d) Has the nature of the clerical duties in the Railway Board undergone a radical change since 1922 ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) A certain number of the Board's staff sat voluntarily for the examination and some were unsuccessful.

(c) Exemption had not been granted to the Railway Board at that time.

(d) No.

372. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that men are recruited in leave vacancies in the clerical establishment of the Railway Board ? If so, will Government please state the reason for continuing this practice in spite of the statement made in reply to starred question No. 634 on 2nd February 1925 ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative, and the second part does not arise.

(b) How many of them were required to fill in posts in which technical qualifications outside the scope of the Staff Selection Board were necessary ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) I am not sure what the Honourable Member means by recruitment from outside, but if he is referring to recruits who were not obtained from the Staff Selection Board, the number engaged from the 1st of September, 1926, to the 31st of March, 1928, to fill vacancies in permanent posts in the Board's office was 32.

(b) 14 of these men had special technical qualifications and of the remainder, a good many were appointed to fill short term vacancies.

374. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Has the attention of the Government been drawn to an article headed "Railway Board's mismanagement" which appeared in the Forward of 3rd February 1926 ? If so, will Government be pleased to state whether the allegations made in the last paragraph thereof are correct ? If so, what if any, action has been taken by the Government ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I have not been able to get hold of a copy of this back number of the periodical mentioned.

STAY IN SIMLA THROUGHOUT THE YEAR OF THE OFFICE OF THE MASTER GENERAL OF SUPPLY.

375. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the annual move of the Government of India offices including the Branches of Army Headquarters to and from Simla is determined primarily by climatic considerations ?

(b) Is it also a fact that since the allotment to the civil departments and their attached offices of the Secretariat Buildings at New Delhi, the old Secretariat Buildings at Old Delhi are allotted to the Branches of Army Headquarters and the Military Finance Department ?

(c) With reference to the reply given in this House on 13th September 1927 to clause (b) of starred question No. 927, will Government be pleased to state why except the Master General of Supply Branch all other Branches of Army Headquarters get the accommodation required at Old Delhi ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Master General of Supply never asked for accommodation in Delhi even for a portion of his staff ?

(e) If the reply to (a) above is in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state whether the staff of the Master General of Supply Branch are not affected by their stay in Simla all throughout the year ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) The annual move of the Government of India offices, including branches of Army Headquarters, to Simla, for the hot weather, is determined primarily by climatic considerations.

(b) A portion of the Secretariat Buildings at Old Delhi has been temporarily allotted to Branches of Army Headquarters and certain sections of the Military Finance Branch until they can be moved to New Delhi.

(c) The Master General of Supply Branch, like other Branches of Army Headquarters, has been given the accommodation it requires at Old Delhi.

(d) No, Sir.

(e) Not adversely affected. The climate of Simla in the winter is considered healthy and bracing.

REPORT OF MR. HESELTINE ON THE CLERICAL ESTABLISHMENTS OF THE ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

376. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the articles under the headlines, "Simla News—Army Retrenchment, Hardworked Indians"—which appeared in the Simla Edition of the Hindustan Times of the 17th April, 1928 ?

(b) Will Government please state whether in his Report on the clerical establishments of the Army Headquarters, Mr. Heseltine has, inter alia, remarked :

(i) That a large percentage of clerks employed at Army Headquarters is in excess of requirements ?

(ii) That the Indian clerks employed in Army Headquarters are made to work hard, and in fact they are the real workers ?

(iii) That the highly paid European clerks (technical, military soldier and ex-soldier clerks) are merely luxury clerks who have very little work ?

(c) Is it a fact that the heads of Branches and other European officers of the Army Headquarters have resented the above remarks ? If so, on what ground ?

(d) Is it also a fact that an ex-soldier officer of the Military Finance Department has been deputed to examine and report on the above remarks ?

(e) Is it a fact that the report submitted by Mr. Heseltine is still being treated by the Establishment Officer as a confidential document ? If so, why ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) Yes.

(b) to (d). The Report deals with questions of administrative economy within Branches of Army Headquarters : it is still under departmental consideration, and Government have no intention at present of submitting it to public discussion. I may add, however, that the information conveyed to the Honourable Member is far from accurate.

(e) For the reasons given above, the report is confidential, and is, or should be, treated as such by anyone who has official access to it.

CREATION OF A LEAVE RESERVE FOR THE BRANCHES OF ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

377. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) With reference to the reply to starred question No. 925 of the 13th September, 1927, will Government be pleased to state whether any decision has yet been arrived at in regard to the creation of a leave reserve for the Branches of Army Headquarters ?

(b) If not, will Government please say when the decision is likely to be arrived at ?

(c) Is it a fact that a large number of temporary and officiating clerks in Army Headquarters are awaiting confirmation on the creation of the leave reserve ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) No.

(b) When the report of the officer referred to in question No. 925 of 13th September, 1927, has been fully examined.

(c) The creation of a leave reserve would naturally increase the numbers of the permanent establishment, but no guarantee can be given as to the precise composition of the reserve.

DIRECT CABLE CONNECTION BETWEEN LONDON AND INDIA.

378. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the paragraph published in the issue of the Englishman of the 27th August 1928, page 9, under the heading " Direct Cable System—Features of new rapid service—Automatic working "?

(b) If so, will Government please state if it is a fact that London is now in direct touch with India without any retransmission of messages being required at intermediate points ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) and (b). Yes.

TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES IN CALCUTTA.

379. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : 1. (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the editorial comments in the issues of the Amrita Bazar Patrika dated the 15th and the 22nd May, 1928, and the 8th and the 23rd June 1928 regarding the cases of the Town Inspectors of Post Offices in Calcutta ?

(b) If so, what action has been taken by the Government to remedy the grievances complained of ?

2. Has the attention of the Government been drawn to page 308 of Labour, dated October 1927, regarding the endorsement of the Government Orders II P. T. E., dated the 16th September 1927, by the Postmaster-General, Bengal in his No. A.-94, dated the 17th October 1927, to the address of the Presidency Postmaster, Calcutta, and the First Class Head Postmasters in the Bengal Circle, calling for a report in the spirit of the aforesaid Government Orders regarding the suitability of their direct subordinates ?

3. Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the reports of the Presidency Postmaster, Calcutta, and the First Class Head Postmasters regarding the suitability of the then permanent Town Inspectors, as stated at page 7 of the General Letter No. 3, dated July 1928, from the Association of All-India Postal Town Inspectors, India and Burma ?

4. Is it a fact that the reports of the Presidency Postmaster and the First Class Postmasters were called for by the Postmaster General, Bengal ? If so, what action has been taken upon the reports ?

5. Is it a fact that the appeals from the Town Inspectors who had been made to revert to the clerical line have been recommended by their immediate superiors for their retention in their substantive posts of Postal Town Inspectors and is it also a fact that the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, has also recommended their case to the Government of India ? If so, what action, if any, has been taken on the same ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Government have seen some but not all of the papers mentioned by the Honourable Member. Representations from Town Inspectors and others regarding the operation of the orders relating to the appointments of Town Inspectors have been received and are at present under my consideration.

REMOVAL OF THE OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX, BIHAR AND ORISSA, FROM RANCHI TO PATNA.

380. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) With reference to my starred question No. 708 of the 31st August, 1927, regarding the desirability of removing the office of the Commissioner of Income-tax, Bihar and Orissa, from Ranchi to Patna, have the Government received any representation from the Bihar and Orissa Chamber of Commerce on the subject, in which the Committee point out that Ranchi is an out of the way, inaccessible place, while Patna is the most suitable centre, and the offices dealing with the heavier assessments as also the largest in number are situated in Bihar, and proper legal help is not available at Ranchi ?

(b) Is not the main function of the Commissioner of Income-tax the supervision of district offices, and the hearing of appeals and is it a fact that it can be more efficiently performed at Patna ?

(c) Do Government propose, both from the point of view of administrative efficiency, and public convenience, to remove the office of the Commissioner of Income-tax from Ranchi to Patna ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) The supervision of district offices and the hearing of appeals are among the main functions of the Commissioner of Income-tax. As to the headquarters of the officer who has to perform these functions in Bihar and Orissa, the Government are not satisfied that the selection of Patna instead of Ranchi would make any appreciable difference in efficiency for reasons stated in my predecessor's reply to the Honourable Member's previous question No. 708 of 31st August, 1927.

(c) No.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : A total quantity of 180 maunds of charcoal at an actual price of Rs. 461 was provided for hot water for baths in the Cart Road quarters last year.

DESPATCH RELATING TO THE CONSTITUTION OF A SEPARATE OFFICE FOR THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

[Mr. J. Crerar.]

office of the Legislative Assembly. Copies will be circulated to Honourable Members this afternoon.

No. 2 OF 1928.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

ASSEMBLY.

To

THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE EARL OF BIRKENHEAD,

His Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

Simla, the 26th July 1928.

SUBJECT.—Constitution of a separate self-contained office of the Legislative Assembly.

MY LORD,

WE have the honour to address you on the subject of the separation of the Legislative Assembly staff from the Legislative Department. Your Lordship is doubtless aware that, under the system which has been in force from the introduction of the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms the administrative and clerical work of both Chambers of the Indian Legislature has been carried on by the Legislative Department. The Secretary to the Government of India in the Legislative Department is, by order of the Governor General passed under rule 5 of the Indian Legislative Rules, Secretary of both Chambers; Joint and Deputy Secretaries in the Legislative Department are by a similar order Assistants to the Secretary of the Assembly and of the Council of State and the clerks at the table for both Chambers are supplied from among their number, while the whole of the clerical establishment is provided from the ministerial staff of the Legislative Department. From time to time the question of having a separate establishment for the Assembly has been raised in that Chamber and in Appendix A a detailed index of these references prior to the last session has been compiled. Questions were asked again in the last session and notice was given of a resolution in the following terms:

> "This Assembly recommends to the Governor General in Council that he be pleased to take immediate steps to give effect to the proposals submitted by the Honourable the President for the creation of a separate Secretariat for the Legislative Assembly with such modifications as may be deemed necessary having due regard to the dignity and importance of the House."

The notice was given by fifteen members of the Assembly, among whom were members of the Congress, Nationalist and Independent Parties. The resolution was not entered in the ballot and neither of the relevant grants was reached in the voting of demands. In fact no decision has ever been reached in the Assembly, but this may be attributed to the fact that the vote for the Legislative bodies is generally not reached in the discussion stage of the voting of demands. The view of Government was definitely stated on the 1st February 1924, in reply to a question by Mr. K. C. Neogy, in the following terms:

> "The question was exhaustively examined after the Incheape Committee submitted its Report; and it has been decided that for the present in the interests both of economy and efficiency it is desirable that the business of the Legislature should continue to be conducted by the Legislative Department of the Government of India."

That answer was given with the concurrence of Sir Frederick Whyte, the first President of the Legislative Assembly; but since it was given the position has to a certain extent been changed by the appointment of an elected President.

2. It appears to be held in certain sections of the House that the independence of the elected President is threatened by the close contact into which he is brought with the official view owing to the fact that the Secretary of the Assembly is also Secretary of the Legislative Department, and, as such, a member of the Legislative Assembly. This view is not shared by us but we do not wish to appear to be resisting the wishes of the President supported by any section of the Assembly in this matter. It is our wish not only that the President should be independent but also that there should be no room for the suggestion that the present constitution of the Assembly establishment is maintained with a view to curbing his independence. When, therefore, the President presented to Government in August 1927 a scheme for the separation of the Assembly establishment, which is attached to this despatch as Appendix B, we felt ourselves obliged, in examining it, to take into account the suggestion that the present system affected prejudicially the independence of the President, and we have reached the conclusion that the time has come for separating the Assembly establishment from the Legislative Department. In reaching this conclusion we have been influenced not only by the feeling that Government should not be subject to the charge however false of exercising an improper influence over the President but by other and more cogent reasons. In the first place, we may be said to have accepted publicly the principle of a separate establishment in the debates on the motions of Rao Bahadur Subrahmanayam in September 1922, and Mr. Ginwala on 15th March 1923, and though we might with reason continue to postpone the application of the principle for some time yet, we should certainly be met with a strong demand for a separate establishment when the new constitution comes into operation. It is in our view preferable to have the change made now at a time of comparative administrative ease than to await the introduction of the reformed constitution with all the administrative turmoil which must come with it. It is possible that the establishment now proposed by us will require enlargement to meet the needs of the new constitution but the addition to the existing organisation will be an easier matter than the setting up of a new organisaiton.

3. We have considered as an alternative the possibility of having an officer of the Legislative Department of lower rank than Secretary of the Department appointed to be Secretary of the Assembly by the Governor General. This would practically mean the separation within the Department for the period of the session of an establishment for the conduct of the business of the Assembly. We are satisfied, however, that such a procedure would not meet the wishes of the President and the Assembly and we think that it would be said, not without some justification, that a Secretary of the Assembly who was subordinate to the Secretary of the Legislative Department would be in a somewhat invidious position. So long as the Secretaries of the Departments of the Government of India are required to serve as members of either Chamber, the exercise by the Secretary of the Legislative Department of control over a Secretary of the Assembly who was in fact an officer subordinate to him in the Department would be apprehended and the cry would continue that the independence of the Chair was in danger.

4. Before we enter into the detailed examination of the scheme proposed by the President, we think it right to explain why we are not at the same time proposing to set up a separate establishment for the Council of State, or an establishment joint with that of the Legislative Assembly. In the first place, there has been no demand either from the President or from the members of the Council of State and so long as the President is appointed by the Governor General it is not expected that there will be any such demand. In the second place, owing to the feeling of jealousy which the Assembly entertains towards the Council of State, it would not be possible to have a joint establishment for the two Chambers. Lastly, the volume of work transacted by the Council of State is so much less than that transacted by the Assembly that it would in our opinion be an improper expenditure of the public funds to set up a separate establishment for the Council of State. With the separation of the Assembly staff according to our proposals it is possible to set against the new appointment of a Secretary to the Legislative Assembly the abolition of the appointment of Additional Joint Secretary in the Legislative Department, but it would not be possible to make any further reduction in the staff of the Legislative Department even though a separate Secretary were to be constituted for the Council of State.

5. We have accordingly reached the conclusion that for the present we should separate the staff of the Legislative Assembly only. The sanction of Your Lordship is required to the creation on a permanent basis of the new appointments of Secretary, Deputy Secretary and Assistant Secretary of the Legislative Assembly and to the abolition of the appointment of Additional Joint Secretary in the Legislative Department. As the last-mentioned post is borne on the cadre of the Indian Civil Service, its abolition will involve the reduction of the cadre of that Service by one superior and one inferior post.

6. The establishment which we propose for the new Assembly office is set out in Appendix C. It will be observed that the President in his scheme proposes a Secretary on Rs. 3,000 per month and a Deputy Secretary on Rs. 1,750 per month. We propose that the pay of the Secretary should be Rs. 2,500 rising to Rs. 3,250 by annual increments of Rs. 75, and that the pay of the Deputy Secretary should be Rs. 1,500 rising to Rs. 2,000 by annual increments of Rs. 50. The reason for putting these two posts on an incremental pay is that the incumbents cannot look to any promotion outside the Assembly Office and that each will in the ordinary course hold his appointment for a long term of years.

7. The Secretary, and his Assistants under the titles of Deputy Secretary and Assistant Secretary, will be appointed by the Governor General under Rule 5 of the Indian Legislative Rules. The appointment of Secretary should be included in the list of posts in the upper grade qualifying for superior pension under Article 475-A. of the Civil Service Regulations. We also propose that the appointment should be added to those specified in Rule 98 of the Fundamental Rules. The incumbent of the appointment will ordinarily be domiciled in Asia, and in the absence of special provision he would be governed by the ordinary leave rules contained in the Fundamental Rules. As he will usually not obtain leave save during intervals between sessions of the Assembly, he should, we think, receive the more favourable treatment in the matter of taking short leave on full pay which is accorded to the officers to whom Rule 98 applies. An additional reason for this proposal is that in future the appointment is likely to be filled either direct from the Bar or by the succession of the Deputy Secretary who will probably himself have been recruited from the Bar, so that in either case the holder of the appointment of Secretary will have entered service at a comparatively advanced age. Acceptance of his proposal would automatically attract the provisions of Rule 56 (c) (iii) of the fundamental Rules; but while we are of opinion that the office is pre-eminently one in which long service will conduce to efficiency, we are not prepared to give the incumbent the right of serving till he reaches the age of sixty. In the event, therefore, of Your Lordship approving the inclusion of the appointment in Rule 98, we request you to exclude it expressly from Rule 56 (c) (iii).

8. In view of the rates of pay suggested, the proposed appointments of Deputy Secretary and Assistant Secretary also require Your Lordship's sanction. The principal duties of the Deputy Secretary will be to dispose of such work as the Secretary delegates to him and to be available to assist the President when the Secretary is engaged at the table or otherwise preoccupied, and lastly to take the place of the Secretary when the Secretary is engaged on work on behalf of the President or for any other reason is not in a position to sit at the table. Either the Secretary or the Deputy Secretary will be continuously at the table while the House is in session. We are not proposing that the post of Deputy Secretary should be created on a temporary basis because we are of opinion that in the earlier years at any rate the necessity for the post is clear, and if it is created on a temporary basis it will be difficult to obtain a suitable person to fill it. When, however, a vacancy arises by reason of the resignation of the first Secretary appointed, we shall consider whether it is necessary to continue the appointment of Deputy Secretary. The principal duties of the Assistant Secretary will be to supervise the office establishment outside the House, and in the House to keep a check on the course of amendments to legislation in order to ensure that Bills passed by the Assembly are printed up in the form in which they are passed.

9. On the question of the status of the new office we are not in agreement with the President or, so far as we understand, with the members of the Assembly who are asking for a separate establishment. The demand of the members of the Assembly has generally been expressed in the form of a demand for an establishment of their own independent of Government control and responsible only to the Assembly. This demand is reflected in the scheme of the President in the following sentence:

> "Moreover the members of the Assembly hesitate at present to ask the Legislative Department to get their own work done but with a separate office the position will be quite different and it is apprehended that there will be a good deal of extra work thrown on the new office".

In other words, it is anticipated by the President that the services of the separate establishment will be at the disposal of members for the preparation of questions, resolutions, bills, and any other work which the members may require of them. Again, the President describes his demand as a demand for an office of his own. Our view is that the establishment is to serve the Assembly in its collective capacity and not the individual members of the Assembly. Equally, as Government furnishes a portion of the members of the Assembly and does its work through the Assembly, it is entitled to demand that the office of the Legislative Assembly shall not be the office of the President of the Legislative Assembly. Our proposal is that the office of the Legislative Assembly should, to all intents and purposes, be an independent office. The requirements of the constitution demand that it should be linked with the Imperial Secretariat and the natural status for it is that of an attached office, that is to say, an office attached to one of the Departments of the Government of India, at the head of which will be the Secretary of the Legislative Assembly. In reaching our conclusions as to the relations between the President and the Secretary of the Assembly we have been guided by what we understand to be the constitution of the establishment of the House of Commons. The Secretary of the Legislative Assembly will correspond to the Clerk of the House and the Deputy Secretary and the Assistant Secretary will correspond to the Clerks Assistant. The remaining members of the establishment will be appointed by the Secretary, in the first instance from the members of the Legislative Department who will be placed at his disposal for that purpose. Thereafter the establishment will be recruited by the Secretary of the Legislative Assembly in the manner in which the ministerial establishments of the Government of India Secretariat are recruited and will serve under precisely the same conditions in respect of pay, discipline and the like as those establishments. The Secretary of the Legislative Assembly will have the ordinary powers of the head of an attached office and the President of the Legislative Assembly will not have anything to do with the details of the administration of this office. The Secretary will be in close relations on the one hand with the President of the Legislative Assembly and on the other hand with the Leader of the House, but he will be subordinate to neither.

10. Our conclusion then is that the Office of the Legislative Assembly should be an Attached Office working under its own head, the Secretary, and administering itself. The Assembly Office will be attached to whichever Department of the Government of India it may be found most convenient to attach it, but in respect of matters involving expenditure and of all financial matters generally it will maintain direct relations with the Finance Department. It will be observed that in the President's scheme it is proposed that the President should frame the budget of the Assembly office and that the budget so framed should be accepted without question by the Department which presents it, and the position of the Chartered High Courts in this respect is cited as analogous. We are unable to accept this claim of the President either on behalf of himself or on behalf of the High Courts. A reference to paragraph 8 of the Letters Patent of the Calcutta High Court is sufficient for this purpose. The budgets of the High Courts are included under the provincial head "Administration of Justice" and in their preparation are liable to control in the case of the Calcutta High Court by the Governor General in Council and in the case of other High Courts by the Governor in Council. Naturally the views of the President of the Legislative Assembly on the financial provision required for the office as on all other important matters connected with the office will receive the closest attention but it would, in our opinion, be altogether inappropriate that the President of the Legislative Assembly, who is not an official, should be put in the position of official head of the Assembly Office. Paragraph 8 of the President's scheme sets out to deal with the position and status of the new office but it does not make it clear what degree of control over the office should be vested in the President. In conversation, however, it has been brought out that the intention of the President was that he should have control of the office, in fact that it should be his office and not the office of the Secretary. Failing that position being allotted to him he has claimed that he should have the same power of dismissal of members of the Assembly Office other than the Secretary, the Deputy Secretary and the Assistant Secretary, as is vested in the Speaker of the House of Commons over the staff of the Clerk of the House by Statute (52 Geo. III Cap. XI, Section 16). The view which the Government of India take is that the members of the Assembly office, both those now to be transferred from the Legislative Department and also those to be appointed later on to fill vacancies, must all be Government servants so long as there is a majority in the Assembly which may at any time be adverse to Government and, on the support of which the President must depend for his continuance in office. In the event at some future date of the Central Government being made responsible to the Legislature it may be possible, if the Assembly of that time thinks it desirable, either to exclude the members of the Assembly office from the civil service of the Crown subject, of course, to the maintenance of existing rights, or while retaining them in the civil service of the Crown, to subject them to different authorities for the purposes of disciplinary control. Over the Secretary, the Deputy and Assistant Secretaries of the new office the President has not proposed that he should personally exercise disciplinary control but he was of opinion that those three officers should be liable to be removed by the Governor General on an address voted by the Legislative Assembly. When informed that the Government of India could not agree in existing circumstances to expose the servants of the Crown to such a contingency, he modified his demand to the extent of proposing that the Assembly should be enabled to vote an address to the Governor General, and the President, independently of the Assembly, should also be enabled to present a request to the Governor General, and that the result of either of those proceedings should be that the Governor General would hold or cause to be held an inquiry into the conduct of the officer concerned. We have not found ourselves able to accept either of these proposals for two reasons. In the first place the salaries of these officers will, unless they should happen, and this is not to be expected, to be persons appointed by, or with the approval of His Majesty, or of Your Lordship in Council, be votable and consequently the Assembly will have such control as is reasonable over them. In the second place, we consider that the President has an adequate remedy in his right of direct access to the Governor General, in exercise of which he will always be in a position to make representations to him against the conduct of the Secretary or the Deputy or Assistant Secretary.

11. We have stated above that we are asking Your Lordship's sanction to the abolition of the post of Additional Joint Secretary in the Legislative Department on the creation of the post of Secretary of the Legislative Assembly, our intention being that Mr. S. C. Gupta, the present incumbent of the post of Additional Joint Secretary in the Legislative Department, should be appointed to the post of Secretary of the Legislative Assembly—his initial pay in the post being fixed by the operation of rule 22 of the Fundamental Rules at Rs. 3,025 per mensem. We trust that the abolition of the appointment of Additional Joint Secretary will be permanent, but we cannot, of course, anticipate what will be the requirements of the Department under the new constitution and we must utter the warning that it is not unlikely that an additional temporary appointment of Additional Joint Secretary will be necessary for some time when the Government of India are considering the Report of the Statutory Commission and thereafter when they are putting into operation the scheme of the reformed constitution.

12. It will be observed that the scheme, both as submitted by the President and as revised by us, does not provide separately and expressly for the personal staff of the President. In effect the Marshal, a retired Indian Army officer, is of that staff as also is one stenographer who has the title of Personal Assistant to the President and is really the private secretary of the President. There are also certain chaprasis who are attached to the President. We propose, and the President agrees, that he should select his Personal Assistant from the stenographers in the Assembly Office and that the Assembly Office should place at his disposal chaprasis in suitable numbers. The Marshal will continue to be appointed by the Governor General in Council. Neither our scheme nor that of the President provides for the appointment of a separate Legal Adviser for the President. The question of obtaining independent legal advice for the President is likely to come up, but the President has so far made no proposal, and as he has expressed a desire that the Assembly Office scheme should be settled without delay, we have not thought fit to await his proposals for the appointment of a Legal Adviser. At present it seems unlikely that the President would be in a position to secure the whole-time services of Counsel, and it is more probable that he will ask for a sum to be provided in the budget to meet the expenses of consulting Counsel from time to time.

We have the honour to be,

MY LORD,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble servants,

During the discussion of the demands for grants in March 1925 Sardar Gulab Singh gave notice of a "cut" under the head "Legislative Bodies" (Demand No. 29) in order to raise the subject of a separate office establishment for P. L. A. Again in March 1926 Diwan Bahadur T. Rangachariar gave notice of a "cut" under the head "Legislative Department" (Demand No. 33) with the same object in view. These motions were not, however, reached.

In March 1928 Mr. S. N. Haji gave notice of a "cut" under (Demand No. 29) "Legislative Bodies"—to discuss the provision of a separate Secretariat for the Legislative Assembly, and in connection with (Demand No. 33) "Legislative Department" notices of motions for reduction with a view to raising the same matter were received from Mr. N. C. Kelkar, Mr. M. S. Aney, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, and Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan. These motions also were not reached.

QUESTION AND ANSWER.

CONSTITUTION OF A SEPARATE SELF-CONTAINED OFFICE OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

251. Mr. B. Das: (a) With reference to starred question No. 37 of the 18th August, 1927, by Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, on the separation of the establishment of the Legislative Assembly, will Government be pleased to state if they have come to any decision on the scheme received by them from the Honourable the President of this House last August?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the decision arrived at on that proposition?

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the scheme of the Honourable the President?

Mr. L. Graham: (1) A copy of the scheme drawn up by the Honourable the President is laid on the table.

(2) Government have examined the scheme but have not yet reached a final conclusion.

Proposals submitted to the Government of India on the 17th August, 1927, by the Honourable Mr. V. J. Patel, President of the Legislative Assembly, regarding the constitution of a separate self-contained office of the Legislative Assembly, in fulfilment of a promise made in the House. (Vide page 2334 of the Legislative Assembly Debates of the 16th March, 1927.)

17th August, 1927.

Dear Mr. Wright,

I am now ready with my proposals for the constitution of a separate self-contained office of the Legislative Assembly, which I promised in reply to a question asked by Sir Hari Singh Gour in the Legislative Assembly on the 16th March, 1927.

I forward the scheme for the consideration of Government, and I hope you will take immediate steps to have it considered. As you are aware, Members of the Legislative Assembly are in earnest about the matter, and the question, therefore, needs immediate attention.

Yours sincerely,

(Sd.) V. J. PATEL.

W. T. M. Wright, Esq., C.I.E., I.C.S.

I submit the following proposals for the constitution of a separate self-contained office of the Legislative Assembly in pursuance of a promise made by me on the 16th March, 1927, in reply to a question asked by Sir Hari Singh Gour.

2. I have observed that the opinions expressed in the Assembly on various occasions are distinctly in favour of the proposal and unmistakeably show a keen desire on the part of the Members to have a separate office. In fact it has been asserted that the independence of the President and the House will not be complete until they are provided with separate staff for the due performance of their high office and duties. Mr. E. L. Price (Bombay: European) first raised the question in the Assembly on the 5th March, 1921, when he moved his Resolution on the subject of the holding of sessions and more frequent meetings of the Assembly. Inter alia he pleaded for a double staff or an independent staff for the Assembly on the ground of efficiency. Then on the 16th March, 1922, in the course of the Budget discussion an opportunity was taken by Mr. P. P. Ginwala (Burma: General), then the chief Whip of the Democratic Party, to bring the matter before the House. It was urged that the staff of the Assembly should be self-contained and under the direct control of the President. So far the question was treated more or less as a side issue, and it was not till the 22nd September, 1922, when Mr. C. S. Subrahmanyam (Madras) moved his Resolution, that the subject was debated fully and at great length. It was agreed in principle and in theory that it was the right thing to do but that the time had not arrived when the Assembly should bring into existence a separate staff. The question was also discussed more than once at the Presidents' Conference and Sir A. F. Whyte considered that it was most desirable that the Legislature should have its own body of officers to carry out its functions, and eventually in accordance with the decision arrived at the Conference held in January, 1926, the Legislative Department was addressed on the subject of the separation of the office of the Assembly from the Legislative Department of the Government of India.

3. Before dealing with the actual staff that will be required for the separate office I shall consider the duties and functions that will devolve on it. It is necessary in this connection to refer to the existing machinery for carrying out the work connected with the Assembly. Apart from the superior staff, the Legislative Department, which at present conducts the business of the Legislature, consists of the following Branches and staff:

1. Registrar.
2. Assembly Branch (one Superintendent, 6 Assistants and 4 clerks).
3. Printing Branch (one Assistant and 5 clerks).

4. Establishment Branch (one Cashier and 3 clerks).
5. Issue Branch (one Assistant and 11 clerks).
6. Librarians (one Assistant and one clerk).
7. Reporters (13).
8. Record (one clerk).
9. Translation Branch (Head Translator and his Assistant).
10. Stenographers (3).
11. Publication Branch (one Superintendent, 5 Assistants and 5 clerks).
12. General Branch (one Superintendent, 5 Assistants and 3 clerks).
13. Council Branch (one Superintendent, 5 Assistants and 1 clerk).
14. Assistant to Registrar (one Assistant).
15. P. A. to P. C. S. (one Assistant).

4. During the session and also at least a month before and after it the business of the Assembly, as will be seen from the classification of duties detailed in Appendix A, affects almost every one in the Department, and I understand the Publication, General and Council Branches are also more or less affected. The Registrar is the normal head of the office and is directly responsible for the superintendence, control, discipline and management of the office. He is in charge of all work connected with the establishment of the Department, accommodation for Members of the Legislature, sitting arrangement in the Chambers, issue of tickets to the visitors' galleries, and various other odd jobs.

5. The duties performed by the present staff cover practically the whole field of purely Assembly work as well as those pertaining to the Department as an integral unit of the Government of India (Appendix A). Broadly speaking, there are two separate matters, viz., (1) the duties of the Secretary, which are those laid down in the Rules and Standing Orders—Rules 5 and 41, S. O. 3, 7, 8, 11, 12, 22, 43, 46, 52, 65, 75, and Rule 2 of Schedule I of S. O., and (2) the duties performed by the Legislative Department as an administrative department of the Government of India. The Assembly Branch performs dual functions at present in certain respects while the work of the Publication and General Branches falls under the latter category. It is not at present possible, owing to the overlapping of duties in certain cases, to suggest any clear-cut division of functions between the Assembly office and the Legislative Department which can only be built up in process of development of the new scheme, but from the duties enumerated above a fairly accurate idea can be formed. It is therefore clear that almost the whole of the work with only a few exceptions will have to go over to the new office. The following items must necessarily remain with the Legislative Department :

1. The drafting of official Bills and unofficial references from Departments connected therewith.
2. Allotment of non-official days.
3. Programme of official business.
4. Memorandum of Legislative business in prospect.
5. Amendments to Indian Legislative Rules.
6. Nomination of Members and election petitions.
7. Amendments to Electoral Rules and Regulations.
8. Maintenance of the records of election expenses.
9. Dissolution of Assembly and elections.

6. The two strongest points of attack on the question of separation are, firstly, on the score of economy, and secondly, that the Assembly office, while not being entirely without work during the recess, would not have enough work to keep it fully occupied throughout the year. As to the first, consideration of economy must make way before so important and well-intentioned a step which the Assembly as a body is undoubtedly desirous of taking in furtherance of the constitution which has brought it into being. The demand for an office of his own by the first elected President of the Legislative Assembly was made officially in February 1926, as already stated, and bearing in mind the recognition accorded to similar demands in some provinces, I expect the Government of India in fairness to accede to that demand which I now repeat. Against the second point of attack, I would point out that the pressure of work when the Assembly is in session asserts itself fully a month or more before the session commences, that is to say, notices of Bills, Resolutions and Questions (each of which has to be examined and submitted at once separately for my orders) pour in. This pressure gradually reduces after the close of a session but a considerable amount of work still remains in the shape of the preparation not only of a summary of the proceedings of the whole session but of each resolution debated in the House and the indexing of the debates which requires great accuracy and care and the expenditure of a great deal of time and labour, while the Conference of Presidents is usually held at a convenient date during the recess, throwing upon the Assembly office the entire work connected therewith from the start to the finish. In the case of Bills which are circulated to Local Governments for opinion by the direction of the Assembly the opinions are received during the recess, printed and their precis is prepared by the office as soon as they are complete. Moreover Committees, such as the Joint Committee on the Gold Standard and Reserve Bank of India Bill, invariably hold their sittings during the off season and throw a considerable amount of work on the Assembly Branch. Other miscellaneous files which are not of an urgent nature are held over during the session and are disposed of when the session is over. The manuscript papers of Acts passed by the Indian Legislature are arranged for binding when the pressure of work decreases and also the recording of cases, which has to be kept aside during the session, is, I understand, undertaken at this time. Admitting that the work out of session is considerably lighter than that in the session, it would only be fair to allow the staff the well-earned respite after the strain of a full session's work (when they are not merely over-worked but grossly over-worked) as is the case with the House of Commons staff. I would here invite attention to the minutes of the Presidents' Conference held in January, 1926—pages 6 and 7.

7. Having thus cleared the ground about the scope and functions of the new office I shall now proceed to consider the question of the actual staff. It has to be borne in mind that for the new office, as in the case of the present Legislative Department, the numerical strength of the staff must be based on the actual requirements when the Assembly is in session. With this in view I propose the following scheme :

Apart from the appointment of a Secretary the Assembly office would require one Deputy Secretary and one Assistant Secretary. The appointment of an Assistant Secretary is I consider essential in the best interests of the office. The Deputy Secretary will be required to assist the Secretary in such duties as he is required to perform under the Rules and Standing Orders, e.g., dealing with notices of Bills, Resolutions and Questions and other departmental files. He will also have to attend the meetings of the Assembly and to interview Members and other persons. It will be almost impossible for him to superintend and supervise the work of the office and to attend to numerous and varied duties which should be done by the Assistant Secretary as at present done by the Registrar. The Deputy Secretary should not be burdened with any work in connection with the establishment, discipline, management, etc., which I am convinced is too heavy for one officer.

In addition to these officers the Assembly office would require at least :

I. One Marshal :

II. One Editor and eight Reporters ;

III. The present Assembly Branch en bloc ;

IV. Four men from the Printing Branch to deal with the debates and any other printing work there may be : as heretofore the Editor would be assisted by the men of this Branch in the preparation of the index to the debates, etc. ;

V. Three Cashiers : these would deal with the preparation of Members' T. A. Bills, etc., and all correspondence arising therefrom and also with all establishment questions ;

VI. For its Issue Branch, 10 men as detailed below :

(i) an Examiner, who would be in charge of the Branch ;

(ii) a Reader, who would do typing in his spare time ;

(iii) two despatchers, and

(iv) six typists, two of whom would work the multigraph ;

VII. Two Librarians ;

VIII. One Record Keeper ;

IX. Two Notice Office Clerks ;

X. P. A. to P. L. A. ; and

XI. One Stenographer.

In the case of the Assembly Branch at all events the staff will require to be augmented. It will require another Recorder, an Assistant to deal with miscellaneous receipts and especially with the sale and distribution of debates, the Manual and the corrections thereto, an Assistant for issuing admission tickets to the galleries, a second expert typist and one other Duftry. The need for the last three particularly has been very keenly felt and in fact the posts were sanctioned for the last Delhi session as an experimental measure and are likely to be sanctioned on a permanent footing. It would be a mistake to launch the new office under-staffed in any respect. Two Assistants will also be required to keep the officers' sets of books up-to-date, and at least two Assistants or clerks will be required to assist the Police during the session. This work at present is done with the help of other Branches of the Department. Past experience has shown the need of an Enquiry Office to be attached to the Notice Office. Members frequently make all sorts of inquiries every now and then and make requests to the Notice Office clerks to supply them with information on various matters. The Notice Office clerks have found it extremely difficult to cope with all this work in addition to their own duties, hence the need for an Assistant in an Enquiry Office is badly felt.

In basing these requirements I have assumed that the staff will ordinarily be granted leave only when the Assembly is not sitting and that no substitutes will be entertained in place of absentees, except in long leave vacancies which are likely to go into a session. This arrangement would, however, throw an undue strain on those remaining on duty after a session more especially if it becomes the practice in the future, as it very probably will, to hold three sessions (using the word in its non-technical sense) or three terms in the car. Therefore I feel very strongly that a leave reserve should be maintained which will be the best means to obtaining the maximum of efficiency. As far as I know there is at present in the Legislative Department no leave reserve, the Department containing its own leave reserve. This system, as past experience I believe has shown, has not worked very satisfactorily but somehow or other the Assembly side of the Department has been able to pull on. But this will not work in a separate office. In the Legislative Department at the time of a great rush of work during the session or owing to leave vacancies in the off season, permanent men are invariably requisitioned from other Branches but in the new office there will not be any staff of trained men to draw on and it must therefore have its own trained men for leave vacancies. There is no way of getting over this difficulty other than by a leave reserve. It may be argued in this connection that as some of the work now performed by the Assembly Branch will remain over with the Legislative Department the staff detailed above should be able to find its own leave reserve. The argument no doubt appears to have some force but the fact must be borne in mind that during the session or out of the session whenever the Assembly Branch is rushed with heavy work or understaffed owing to leave absentees the General and the Publication Branches of the Department which are least affected by the Assembly work always come to its rescue, while in the new office there will be no other source to draw on. Moreover the Members of the Assembly hesitate at present to ask the Legislative Department to get their own work done, but with a separate office the position will be quite different and it is apprehended that there will be a good deal of extra work thrown on the new office.

8. Then there is the important question of the position and status of the new office. It would certainly not satisfy the Assembly if the new office were attached to any Department. It will have to be determined at the outset what its position and status will be. Who will be responsible for the preparation and presentation of its Budget to the Legislative Assembly and who will deal with questions raised in the House affecting the office ? What will be the status of this office in relation to other Departments of the Government of India ; will the office be treated on an equal footing with those Departments or will it be regarded as one of the attached offices ? I may say at once that I am definitely opposed to any attempt to treat it as an attached office. The Secretary of the Assembly is under Rule 5 of the Legislative Rules appointed by the Governor General and it is important that the staff should be similarly appointed. I also feel very strongly that the staff should not be denied the privileges in the matter of leave enjoyed by the Secretariat staff ; nor should the present staff, which forms part of a Department of the Government of India, in any way suffer, by separation from the Legislative Department, in the matter of their pay and prospects. Any question of depriving them of the status, pay and privileges they enjoy now as members of the I. S. S. would certainly operate harshly against them. I must make this quite clear at the outset in order to avoid complications and difficulties later.

At the Presidents' Conference held in September 1921, under the Presidency of Sir A. F. Whyte it was agreed that, although constitutionally funds for Council work must be sanctioned and provided by the Government, the Presidents should be placed in the same position as High Courts, i.e., that they should be the sole judges as to whether the expenditure was necessary, the only power of criticism by the Government being on the point as to whether funds were available.

9. The following is the summary of the requirements referred to in the preceding paragraph :

1. Secretary.
2. Deputy Secretary.
3. Assistant Secretary.
4. One Marshall.
5. Eight Reporters.
6. Assembly Branch.—One Superintendent, 13 Assistants and clerks (including 2 Notice Office clerks).

10. In addition to the above translator will also be required to undertake translations referred to in Standing Orders 43 (2) and 46 (3) and also to translate, if any, the speeches delivered by members of the Assembly in vernacular.

11. These requirements are based on the actual existing state of work and I am not in a position at present to give the full details of the work which each assistant and clerk will be required to do. It will appear from Appendix B that in all 43 assistants and clerks are at present employed on the Assembly work during a Session and the same number is also proposed for the new office.

12. In basing these requirements the varying and peculiar nature of the work has been borne in mind. All work connected with the Assembly has to be submitted and got out against time. Provision must therefore be made to cope with the volume of work which pours in and which has to be dealt with immediately and passed out without delay. At present assistance is often sought from other Branches at the time of a very heavy rush, while the new office would have to be self-dependent. It would therefore be a mistake to start the new office under-staffed and the above establishment is the absolute minimum with which it could start.

Mr. B. Das : It may have gone back to the courts again.

Mr. President : In any case it is doubtful.

Mr. B. Das : In any case I did it in good faith and with the good intention of helping the Government in the proper collection of income-tax revenue and incidentally raising the department to a standard of high efficiency. I did not charge the income-tax officials with that amount of depravity which the Honourable the Finance Member has read into my speech. To support my point, I have in hand another cutting from the same paper, the Searchlight, which shows how Income-Tax Officers unnecessarily harass the ordinary income-tax payers. It was a case from Sambalpur which is in Orissa. The report says :

"In the application of Ram Pratap Thandu Mull the Commissioner of Income-tax refused to refer his case to the High Court on the ground that the application was one day too late, being beyond one month and one day after the judgment of the Assistant Commissioner of Purulia. Mr. Jayaswal, appearing for the petitioner, complained that there was a tendency on the part of the Commissioner to plead limitation where no limitation arose. The view of the Commissioner offended against the General Clauses Act and against common sense and practice that time must be counted from the day when the order is passed that is communicated to the Assessor and not from the day when an order is merely signed. The counsel for the Commissioner admitted that in view of the General Clauses Act he could not support the decision of the Commissioner on the point. Their Lordships (that is, Mr. Justice Ross and Mr. Justice Kulwant Sahay) decided the point against the Commissioner."

Their Lordships also wanted the Commissioner to submit certain further information in connection with the case. These things are happening every day, and my duty towards the people of this country impels me to ventilate the grievances of the public on the floor of this House.

The Honourable the Finance Member suggested that there should be a certain amount of cordiality between him and this side of the House and we should talk over things privately. There cannot be any cordiality between the Treasury Benches and this side of the House. If the Finance Member uses his influence with the Treasury Benches and they show on all occasions that spirit of cordiality which he wants us to shew on this occasion, then many of the things which we say on the floor of the House will be said in their chambers or we may speak to them in the lobbies, but we find that that atmosphere is entirely lacking in the Government at present.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : If the remarks of my Honourable friend, Mr. Das, like those of my Honourable friend, Mr. Ram Narayan Singh, were actuated by a general distrust of every Member on the Treasury Benches, then I have nothing more to say. But I can tell both of my Honourable friends that when they oust us from these Benches they will be up against the same difficulty. To carry on the Government they will have to obtain a certain amount of money by taxation. As I have already said, no tax-payer is in love with the tax collector. I do not think I ever used the word " unsympathetic " which was mentioned by my Honourable friend, Mr. Bhargava. We, as the Government, undoubtedly desire that there should be the fullest sympathy between the tax collector and the tax-payer. But, Sir, it is obviously an unnatural state of things. For when the operation of the former touch the pocket of the tax-payer, the latter will say that the tax collector is unsympathetic. I have no personal knowledge of the particular incident to which my friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, referred, but judging from his remarks it seems to me to be a somewhat similar case. The Income-tax Collector, being a servant of the State, wants to collect what according to his lights he is required to collect under the Act. If the tax-payer thinks that the amount collected from him is not payable under the provisions of the Act, he has his right of appeal under the Act. All the same I shall again repeat to my friend, Mr. B. Das, that if he will give up his distrust of the Members of these Benches and will bring before us specific grievances, I for one—and I am pretty sure that my friends Sir George Rainy and Mr. McWatters—will always be glad to give him a patient hearing. (An Honourable Member : " What about the other Members ? ") Mr. Crerar is not here and I cannot refer to him at the moment. (An Honourable Member : " Will you give us an assurance about your successor ? ") I cannot commit my successor. (An Honourable Member : " You are not sure of Mr. Crerar ?") I cannot refer to him because he is not here at the present moment, but I am sure he will be glad to follow the same procedure.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : But you have not answered my question.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am not aware of the specific grievances of Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh. As I understand the position, there was some circular which instructed the Income Tax Officers, that in making assessments they should pay more regard to the interests of the department which, as I understand it, are the same as the interests of the State, than to those of the assessee. If that is so, if my presumption is correct, I think that should be the natural tendency of the department. The Income-tax Collectors are there to collect as much money as they can for the State, consistently with the provisions of the Income-tax Act. If there is any assessee who feels himself aggrieved by that assessment, the Act itself provides him with the machinery for contesting the assessment of the Income-tax Officer.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Sir Basil Blackett disapproved of this notification on the floor of this House. In view of his disapproval, has that circular been withdrawn ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I don't know. If Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh had spoken to me about the matter before this debate, or asked a question, I would certainly have been able to give him an answer. I submit, further, that these are questions which might more appropriately be discussed when this House is voting the money for the Income-tax Department, and not on a small Bill like this.

If I understood my friends Mr. B. Das and Mr. Amar Nath Dutt correctly, they all welcome the Bill as it will have the effect of improving the efficiency of the Income-tax administration. Apparently my friend, Mr. Naidu, on the other hand, holds a somewhat different view. So far as we are concerned, the action we are taking is not being taken with reference to the particular point raised by Mr. B. Das, though I should be very happy if it has that effect ; but we are taking it for quite a different reason which is clearly brought out in the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for a certain purpose, be passed."

The motion was adopted.

THE MADRAS SALT (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Finance Member) : Sir, I move that the Bill further to amend the Madras Salt Act, 1889, for a certain purpose, be taken into consideration.

This again, Sir, is a simple Bill and the object is fully explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, and I have nothing to add to what is stated therein.

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2 and 3 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I move that the Bill be passed.

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN INSURANCE COMPANIES BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I move that the Bill further to amend the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1912, for certain purposes, and to provide for the collection of statistical information in respect of insurance business other than life assurance business, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration.

It will not be necessary that I should say more than a very few words in support of this motion. It will be seen from the Report of the Select Committee that the Bill as a whole commended itself to that body, and that they thought it was a useful measure in substance. Only one amendment has been made by the Select Committee, namely, the omission of the words " British " before " India ", I think in eight places in all. In case Members on the Benches besides me should apprehend that the omission of the word " British " has been made under any sinister inspiration, I hasten to add that the object of the omission is to meet the convenience of insurance companies, and also the convenience of the public, of Government and of the Legislature, all of whom will have to consider the statistics which will be prepared under this Bill. As the Bill was originally drafted, the insurance companies would have been required to submit figures as to the business transacted by them, arranged under two heads, one for British India and the other for business transacted in other parts of the world. As the Bill now stands after amendment, any business transacted in the Indian States or in the foreign settlements in India will be classed with Indian business, and not with the business transacted in other places. Since the Committee reported, Sir, I have had the matter carefully examined by the Insurance Branch of my office, and I have no doubt that the amendment made is an improvement, and I hope will be satisfactory to all concerned.

That, Sir, is all I need say in explanation of the Select Committee's Report. As for the Bill as a whole, I explained the idea underlying it, in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, and in the speech I made when I moved that the Bill should be referred to Select Committee. I do not think it necessary on this occasion that I should add anything to what I said then.

Sir, I move.

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2 to 20 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill, as amended, be passed.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber : Indian Commerce) : Sir, I rise to say a few words on this, the third reading of the Bill. While we welcome this Bill to amend the Life Assurance Act, I am sure the Honourable the Commerce Member is fully aware that the public in general and the Indian public in particular, are very anxious that the Government should now hasten the preparation of the measure which is to affect not only life assurance, but insurance generally in India. This was promised to us more than two years back. But the Government of India is in this connection being held up owing to the inordinate delay which has taken place regarding a similar measure in Great Britain. Sir, the interest in India in insurance business has been increasing at a very considerable pace and I have not the slightest doubt that, not only in life insurance but also in insurance generally, there is a wide scope in India. I am therefore very anxious that the regulation of this business should be taken in hand as early as possible by Government. I am anxious that no set back should be given in India to Indian enterprise in this direction by acts of omission and commission on the part of those who are getting on with work in connection with insurance companies. Barring the fact that the Government of India are awaiting the insurance legislation in Great Britain to give them a lead—a fact the necessity of which I appreciate to a certain extent although I myself think that if this legislation in Great Britain is put off sine die, the Government of India will not be justified in delaying any further—this fact should not be lost sight of, namely, that while we welcome this interim legislation, we hope the Government of India would be able to introduce their full Bill before another year expires. With these few words, I have very great pleasure in giving my support to this Bill which is now before the House for its final approval.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That the Bill, as amended, be passed."

The motion was adopted.

THE MATCH INDUSTRY (PROTECTION) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill to provide for the protection of the match industry, be taken into consideration.

Sir, as I explained at the time of its introduction, this Bill is a comparatively simple measure and all that it does is to transfer the existing duty on matches, and on veneers and splints from the revenue part of the Tariff Schedule to the protective part. I do not think, Sir, it will at all be necessary that I should speak at great length on this measure, although it is very far from being an unimportant one. When the Legislature is asked to pronounce that a certain industry shall be treated as a protected industry, that is a matter which cannot be lightly treated and deserves full consideration. I think, Sir, that the Tariff Board, in the Report which has been in the hands of Members for some little time now, have given us a very valuable and interesting document. They have examined the question referred to them with great care and thoroughness, and in the opinion of the Government of India they have amply justified their conclusions. It has been of course my duty to study the Report very closely, and not by any means an unpleasant duty. Whether all the Members of this House share what is perhaps my morbid taste for tariff literature I am not prepared to say, but of course having been responsible for a great deal of literature of that kind myself, it is at any rate my duty to give due attention to the reports which are provided for my reading by other people. What interested me most in the Report of the Tariff Board on the match industry was this, that in the case of this industry we are presented with a series of features which have not presented themselves in any of the earlier enquiries, and which mark off this case as being rather a special one. The ordinary case of an industry demanding protection occurrs when it can be treated as an infant industry supplying only a fraction of the country's demand for the commodity concerned, whereas in this case, as the Tariff Board have reported, the industry is already able to meet the whole of the country's demand for matches. That is an unusual feature. Again in ordinary cases the price of the article manufactured in India is regulated by the cost of importation. Thus, to-day, the cost of the steel manufactured by the Tata Iron and Steel Company is in the main regulated by the price at which steel can be imported from Europe or America. But in the case of the match industry, this is not so at all. The price of Indian matches is at present determined solely by internal competition, and the price of imported matches has ceased to affect the price of Indian matches directly. Now, one consequence of that is this, that it is not much use considering what would be a fair selling price for Indian matches because even if we prohibited the import of foreign matches, the Indian manufacturer would get no more for his matches than he can obtain in competition with other manufacturers. That again distinguishes this case from the common case. A third difference is this. In the previous cases, the protective duties have been imposed as new duties, and we had to consider what the effect of that duty was likely to be both on the industry and on the consumer. But in this case the protective duty has already been in force for six years and has ceased to impose any burden on the consumer, the reason being of course that the Indian industry has developed behind the tariff wall, and, as I have already said, the price of Indian matches is determined by internal competition. The consumer, as far as the Government of India can judge, already obtains his matches as cheaply as he is ever likely to get them. The fourth difference is this, that in no previous case has it been a vital factor in the whole enquiry that there is a very powerful and ably organised international trust in existence in a great many countries of the world, which controls the manufacture of the commodity proposed to be protected. That is a new factor in this enquiry and it has had to be given special weight. Finally, there is this very interesting feature, that we have to take into account the lowest unit in our currency system as a factor which directly affects the price that the manufacturer can charge and indirectly the amount of protection to be given. The Tariff Board have pointed out that matches are at present sold in India for one pice a box and if the manufacturer wishes to raise his price he will have to double it because the next unit is two pice a box.

Well, Sir, all these are to my mind very interesting points in the case and they have been given due weight by the Government of India in their consideration of the matter. The Tariff Board have found, Sir, that the match industry satisfies the three conditions laid down by the Fiscal Commission. The Government of India fully accept that view. I do not propose to trouble the House by going in detail into the reasons which led the Board, and have led the Government of India, to that conclusion, because I think after the very clear and lucid statement given by the Tariff Board it is not necessary that I should do so. I will refer therefore only to one point in that connection, namely, this, that there may be room for doubt as to whether at present matches can be made in India from Indian wood, equal in quality to the imported match. Now it might be argued on that ground that the industry does not possess a natural advantage which ordinarily protected industries ought to possess. I believe myself, Sir, that there is room for hope that the position in that matter will improve as time goes on, and I believe we can reasonably expect that a larger and larger proportion of Indian matches will be made from Indian wood. But what I think the Board have established is this, that even with the handicap of using imported wood, it can still be shown that the industry will eventually be able to resist world competition unaided and without assistance from Government. To my mind two of the conditions laid down by the Fiscal Commission hang closely together. These are, first, that the industry should possess natural advantages, and secondly, that eventually the industry should be able to resist competition unaided. Ordinarily we have no data from which we can certainly determine whether eventually the industry will be able to resist competition unaided or not, and we have therefore to be guided by the probabilities of the case and the best evidence we can get. Usually the best evidence is supplied by the natural advantages of the industry whatever they may happen to be; but in this case the position is different. From the very careful analysis of the cost of production given by the Board I think we are clearly entitled to draw the inference that eventually the industry will be able to dispense with protection when the preference for the imported match has gradually been dissipated, and when we can be certain that the industry will not be exposed to attack by a very powerful international trust.

Now, when these circumstances exist, when we have independent evidence showing that the industry will eventually be able to dispense with protection, then we are fairly entitled to assume the existence of natural advantages because, unless the industry had such advantages, it could not in fact dispense with protection. I do not for a moment say that the industry has not natural advantages, for I think it has. Two of them I might mention. It is quite clear from the Tariff Board's figures that the imported match has to bear very heavy charges between the factory in the countries from which it comes and its arrival at the port of destination. As nearly as I can make out these charges amount to something like 25 per cent. of what would be a fair selling price for the imported match. Clearly this gives a great natural advantage to the locally made match. There was a second point to which the Tariff Board drew special attention, namely, this. So far as the match industry is concerned, Indian labour is cheap labour. That does not necessarily mean low-paid labour, but it does mean that with the aid of the automatic machinery now in use in the match industry you can get a very effective return from Indian labour.

The next point I want to deal with, Sir, for a brief space is the question of the amount of the duty. There is no doubt of course that the rate of duty proposed is very high compared to the rates of duty we have applied in other cases. It is so high indeed that it approaches the point where it would become prohibitive. Now, I think the House are entitled to some explanation of why the Government of India consider a very high rate of duty justified. In the first place, there is the existence of this world-wide combine with immense financial resources which has obtained control of the industry in a great many countries of the world. Clearly, if the manufacture of matches in India is to be protected against that we must be quite sure that the duty is high enough to be effective. In the second place, the manufacture in India has grown up behind the shelter of the high revenue duty imposed in 1922. The Government of India feel that the industry has special claims upon Government and upon the Legislature and that its interests ought to be fully safeguarded. But finally, and this is really the vital point, although the duty is high yet we can be certain that it will not impose any burden or any appreciable burden upon the consumer, the reason of course being the one I have already given that the price of matches in India to-day is determined by the internal competition of the Indian match manufacturers. But at this point someone may raise the question: Suppose behind the shelter of your protective duty there were to be a combination of match manufacturers, or suppose that the Swedish Match Company were gradually to oust all its competitors so that in their case something in the nature of a monopoly should come into existence, is it not possible that then the consumer might be exploited? To that question, Sir, I think there are several answers. In the first place, it has been shown very clearly by the history of the last six years that it is not a difficult thing to start new match factories and that the amount of capital required is not very large. Now let us suppose the monopoly has come into existence and is going to try and exploit the consumer. What must its first step be? If it raises the price of matches to the consumer, it has got to raise the price to two pice a box, that is to say, it has got to double the price, and the moment it did that the profits to be made in match manufacture would be so large, that almost at once new factories would begin to compete, and the result would be that before very long the trust would have to bring down its price again. That is one natural way in which the consumer would be protected. But there are other ways on account of which we are entitled, I think, to regard any attempt to exploit the consumer by doubling the price of matches as most improbable. From what I have been able to learn of the management of the Swedish Match Trust, it seems to me that the management has displayed in many ways great wisdom and great sagacity; and as it would obviously be unwise from the point of view of that company to render itself very unpopular with the consumer in India, I think it is most unlikely that they would adopt the short-sighted policy of doubling the price. Finally, supposing they did so, the resources of civilisation are not yet exhausted. For, if any attempt were made to raise the price of matches to two pice a box, there would be a very strong temptation to the Finance Department of the Government of India to step in and to impose an excise duty. It was clearly stated in the Government Resolution that the Government of India had no present intention of imposing an excise duty, but quite clearly if the Trust were to set to work to act without regard to the interests of India or of Indian consumers, then the Government of India would certainly take the matter into consideration.

Before I sit down, Sir, I think there are only two other points to which I wish to refer.

Mr. President : If the Honourable Member is going to talk much longer I should like to adjourn.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I think about three minutes will suffice, Sir. One of them is that the Government of India, as has been said in the Resolution, do not contemplate that the duty should remain at this very high figure for any long period. We hope that the preference for the imported match will gradually pass away and also we hope that in other respects the necessity will disappear.

Finally, Sir, there is one particular point on which I know some Members of the House are anxious. It is this. What would the attitude of Government be if the Swedish Match Company proceeded on its present lines and by a policy of cutting prices and trying to freeze out all the other Indian factories, endeavoured to obtain something approaching a monopoly of the manufacture of matches in India ? We have stated very clearly in the Resolution that if that were to happen a new situation would arise, which Government would consider it necessary to examine very carefully. But my own hope is that that situation will not arise ; my own hope is that the Swedish Match Company will give great weight to the very sagacious advice, the very wise and sensible advice given by the Tariff Board in paragraph 161 of their Report at pages 94 and 95. I will not read the whole of the passage, Sir, because Members can read it for themselves. I will only read the last sentence :

"If then it is definitely declared that match manufacture in India is to be protected we believe that the Swedish Match Company would be short-sighted indeed if it did not bring its activities into closer contact with public opinion in the country."

The suggestion underlying that sentence is that the Swedish Match Company might give its enterprise an Indian character by transferring the manufacture to a company established and registered in India with rupee capital and with a proportion of Indian Directors and with a definite reservation of a certain amount of capital for Indians. That is the substance of it. I think, Sir, I have said what is necessary to explain to the House the object and scope of this Bill and therefore I sit down after moving it.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Ten Minutes to Three of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Ten Minutes to Three of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

Mr. President : Motion moved :

"That the Bill to provide for the protection of the match industry, be taken into consideration."

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar (Madura and Ramnad cum Tinnevelly : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, the Indian match industry will really feel grateful for the promptness with which the Government have brought forward this Bill. They will also feel thankful to the Honourable the Commerce Member for the rather candid speech that he made this morning on this Bill. He certainly took note of the fact that there is really a great combine as the Swedish Match Company ; but he said towards the concluding portion of his speech that the company will take into account the salutary advice given to them by the Tariff Board at the end of paragraph 161 of their Report as to how they must behave if they wanted to be popular in this country with their manufactures. But there are certain well-grounded fears entertained by those who are interested in the manufacture of matches in this country, that, after all, this combine may not accept the salutary advice given to them by the Tariff Board ; because, from what we see of their object as detailed in the Report itself, they will have their own way in regard to their methods of operation in this country and elsewhere. Our fears are really well-founded when we happen to think that they may not after all pay heed to the advice given to them by the Tariff Board. I will just refer to paragraph 149 of the Tariff Board Report. This is what is stated there :

"The object of the company is to secure a position in every possible market of the world which would enable it eventually to regulate prices. The acquisition even of the major part of the business in a market will not enable it to achieve this object. Either a complete monopoly must be obtained or a majority interest in every important unit constituting the industry."

Then as regards the company's methods, details are given in paragraph 150 of the Tariff Board Report. It is not very refreshing to go through them :

"Where circumstances are favourable, the company obtains a direct monopoly from the State. In some cases the monopoly is granted because the particular country conceives that to be in the best economic interests of their country. Where this is not possible, and especially where the industry is sheltered by a high tariff" —that is the prospect of what the company might eventually do in this country—

"the company acquires in the country by negotiation the existing factories or builds new ones".

Both of these they have done in the past in this country.

"An attempt is then made to obtain control of the industry amicably."

That is the first method.

"If this proves unsuccessful, an intensive price war is initiated until the local industry surrenders."

This is what they have been doing all this time, because the Tariff Board Report itself in another part says that the prices at which they have been selling imported matches were certainly uneconomical. For example, in Belgium very severe competition prevailed before the company obtained virtual control over the industry. And lower down, the Tariff Board quotes the statement made by the President of the Belgium Match Manufacturers :

"The cartel (meaning the Swedish Match Company) makes more money by the matches manufactured in Sweden and in other countries by it than on those manufactured in Belgium. It is therefore to its interest to close down in Belgium as many factories as possible. The price war which the cartel is capable of carrying on during years in all countries to which Belgium can hope to export matches is very formidable."

[Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar.]

Exactly the same thing might happen in India. They might import matches from elsewhere, sell them at uneconomical prices here and thus ruin the indigenous match industry in this country as they did in Belgium.

The Report then goes on to say :

"It is a matter of public notoriety that last year a Belgian factory was compelled to go into liquidation on account of this price war : the assets realised in the liquidation were not enough to pay 10 per cent. to the shareholders."

These are the insidious methods, Sir, which the Swedish Company adopted in Belgium and elsewhere. The same insidious methods, we are afraid, they will put into operation in this country as well. The question will then be whether the Bill that is now before the House will be enough to protect the indigenous match industry in India. The Honourable the Commerce Member was particularly alive to the existence of this company and also of their operations in India, but he thought that the present Bill would suffice for at least some time to come to protect the indigenous match industry. No doubt, the Bill seeks to protect the industry from matches imported from elsewhere, but what about the dangers within ? Unless some effective steps are adopted to protect the indigenous industry from the danger of the Swedish Company existing and operating from within, this Bill by itself cannot go very far towards really encouraging the indigenous match industry.

As I said, Sir, there are well-grounded fears that the present Bill would protect more the Swedish Match Company in India rather than the indigenous match industry. In this connection, I would refer to the opinions of two or three journals. First, I would read a short extract from the Bombay Chronicle :

"It is necessary, therefore, to see that the Company does not by using the very advantages afforded by protection in India or otherwise threaten the existence and progress of the indigenous industry."

There is another passage in the Indian Daily Mail, and this is what that paper says :

"As it is, however, the benefits of the protection granted will go to the Swedish company more than to the Indian companies."

Then I will read to the House another short extract from the Bombay Samachar :

"The import in 1926-27 in comparison with 1911-12 has been reduced to almost one-half, but we should not err into believing that the reduction in import means that so much quantity was manufactured in India and as these foreign factories are conducted on an extensive basis their manufactures also must have exerted more or less influence on the import of foreign matches. The Indian match industry requires protection against these foreign manufacturers and till that is not granted Indian owned factories will not prosper."

Now, I would ask the Honourable the Commerce Member to try and allay the fears which, I submit, are really well-founded. In this connection I would ask the Honourable the Commerce Member frankly to answer one or two points that I raise in this debate. It is said—an open accusation is made—by the weekly Praja Mitra that when this new Swedish Company first came into existence in India, the Bengal Government openly encouraged this company by certain methods which are detailed in this weekly. This is what it says :

"As regards the match industry Swedish capitalists under the patronage of the Bengal Government prospered in India and established rival match factories in Amarnath and other places..... Notwithstanding strong protests from the Indians, Government supplied these foreign capitalists with land, forests, etc., so that they were placed in a favourable position to compete with Indian factories."

Now I would ask the Honourable the Commerce Member to say whether there is any foundation for this open accusation that is made. If really the Bengal Government have moved in the matter on the lines indicated in this passage, it becomes a question of expatriation, so to say. We the Indian people of this soil stand expatriated by the Bengal Government adopting this method and planting securely this foreign enterprise in our soil and giving them land, forests, etc., so that their industry might prosper to the detriment of Indian interests. And in addition to this I would ask the Government also to say whether or not there is foundation for the suspicion that in this Swedish Company in India some rich merchants in England have got interests, and whether or not it is a fact, as it is said, that the merchants of England have some interests in this Swedish Match Company in India. And the second thing I would ask the Honourable Member to clear up is whether the British Government have any interests in this Swedish concern. Now if these things are cleared up by the Honourable the Commerce Member—and I dare say he will clear them up—then most of the fears entertained against the move of the Government by this side of the House would be removed. Some of us think that the protection given to the Indian match industry is half-hearted and halting ; because, in addition to the provisions made in the Bill, certain other lines of relief were asked for specifically by the indigenous match industry, such as Government levying an excise duty on these foreign made products and also Indianising these foreign companies : unless these measures also are given a provision in the Statute-book, this remedy by itself of simply converting a revenue duty into a protective duty at the rate provided in the Bill will not go far to really encourage the growth of Indian match manufactures, especially when that industry has to fight against very great odds in the shape of the Swedish companies existing in India. No doubt the Honourable the Commerce Member, in detailing the existence of the Swedish combine, has given a clear assurance to the House that, even though no doubt the Government does not choose at the present moment to make any provision in the Bill to operate against the Swedish combine, they may, if circumstances should show that this is taken advantage of by the Swedish combine to run down the indigenous match industry, take every step to see that something is done to relief the match industry against such methods. Certainly the House would thank him for the assurance ; but I really ask him whether it would be advisable to wait till the danger is completely demonstrated ; whether it is not necessary, regard being had to the insidious methods of the Swedish combine of securing the entire monopoly of the industry all over the world, and regard being had also to the unscrupulous methods they have adopted in the past, whether the Government should not see that some safeguards are provided even now to protect the Indian match industry against the operations of this combine. One other fact which the Honourable the Commerce Member did not mention in his opening speech which I would like to bring to his notice strongly is this : that, since the Report of the Tariff Board, prices have gone down by 20 per cent. I am told. Now that is a very serious factor which the Honourable the Commerce Member must take note of. That would also indicate the line of action which the Government should feel constrained to adopt to protect the indigenous match industry against the Swedish combine. No doubt the Tariff Board made some recommendations after an exhaustive survey of the whole thing and I would repeat that these recommendations were really halting. They were alive to the fact of the existence of this powerful combine with very large resources and to the methods they had been adopting in this country, but that they would not go to the length of recommending at once any prompt measures to be taken by the Government to encourage the Indian match industry. After all, Sir, I seriously ask : whom are you protecting ? Is it not the indigenous match industry which Government seeks to protect ? They are not really out to protect the Swedish combine. Their purpose is the protection of the Indian match industry not only against competition from the Swedish match combine outside but also against competition from within. What is it they have done to protect it ? That is why I say the recommendations made by the Report are halting. They say in paragraph 31 of " Findings and Proposals " :

" We do not think that in the present circumstances any action is called for against the Swedish Match Company on the ground of unfair competition."

In another paragraph they admit that they have been systematically selling their products from abroad at uneconomical prices ; I really fail to see what else the Tariff Board would take to be unfair competition. They also endorse the opinion in paragraph 143 of the Report as to the unfair propaganda that they have been doing :

" It has been alleged that by means of circulars, cartoons and other forms of propaganda carried on by the Company to develop the sale of its imported matches, it has made comparisons to the disadvantage of Indian matches and thus spoilt their reputation. There is evidence that such propaganda has been carried on by the Company or its agents and some harm must have resulted."

And then the Tariff Board go on to say :

" Where trade rivalry exists and competition is intense, it cannot be expected that manufacturers will be over-scrupulous in pushing the sale of their goods."

Not that the methods were not unscrupulous but they wanted to condone it by saying that where trade rivalry exists these things must also exist. They may exist, but we want protection against such hard methods. Then they go on :

" At the same time, we have seen advertisements of the Swedish Match Company which in some cases explicity, in others by implication, condemn the products of all Indian match factories without reserve. We must confess that it strikes us as curious that a foreign firm should repay the hospitality offered to it by India by belittling the quality of Indian manufactures as a class or indeed that the Swedish Match Company considered that its interests were best served by methods of advertisement which could not but stir up animosity."

Now, these are the methods adopted by this company. And in spite of the evidence of their frightful methods which was placed before the Tariff Board, the Tariff Board in the summary of their conclusions, do not recommend anything against this company. They say :

" We do not think that in the present circumstances any action is called for against them."

But they go to the length of saying (paragraph 31) :

" But taking into account the vast resources of the Company and the policy pursued by them in other countries, it is necessary that future developments of the Company in India should be watched. Should such developments indicate that the Company is acquiring undue control to the detriment of the Indian industry, we recommend that Government should take steps to safeguard the Indian industry."

The only point of difference between the Government view and mine is that I submit that such action as is desirable to protect the Indian industries against foreign competition from within must be taken at once and that the Government should not in pursuance of the recommendations of the Tariff Board wait a little longer to see if matters are pushed to more serious lengths. In paragraph 32 the Tariff Board say :

" We consider that, if the industry is declared protected, the Swedish Match Company should take steps at the earliest opportunity, to organise its business in India on the basis of an Indian company under the control of a local directorate with suitable Indian representation on it."

At least this could have been adopted by the Government in this Bill. If you Indianise the Swedish combine you make their operation less insidious ; and greater protection would be given thereby to the Indian match industry. Even that the Government have not chosen to adopt. And then, in paragraph 34, they say :

" In these circumstances, an excise duty may, if necessary, be imposed upon match factories in India. But we refrain from recommending any definite rate of duty as this must depend on Government's financial requirements."

I quite admit that. They certainly allude to the fact that an excise duty is necessary to protect the Indian match industry. They only refrain from giving us the rate of duty, which they have left to the Government to adopt according to their financial requirements. So that, even this question of levying an excise duty upon these foreign manufactures in India has not been considered by the Government. I submit that unless these two safeguards are provided, namely, that there must be a method of Indianising this combine, so to say, to make it less operative against the Indian indigenous manufacture and there should be an excise duty upon the manufactures made by this foreign combine in India—unless these two safeguards are provided for in the Bill, the protection that is given in the Bill would operate more towards the encouragement of the Swedish combine than towards the encouragement of Indian manufactures for whose protection solely the Bill is apparently intended. I would submit that with these reservations I am certainly in support of the Bill so far as it goes.

Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla (Benares and Gorakhpur Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I offer my hearty congratulations to Sir Pestonji Ginwala for placing a very valuable document before the country in the shape of this report for the protection of the match industry and I also congratulate the Government of India for accepting its recommendations in toto. Sir, when the policy of protection was inaugurated in this country about five years ago, there were critics who were not slow to criticise the action of the Government in accepting that policy. They maintained that the policy of protection calculated to increase the burden on the consumer for the benefit of the capitalist. But it has been proved by the Report of the Tariff Board, so far as the match industry is concerned, that if proper protection is given, the indigenous industry in course of time can not only compete with foreign imports but can also produce goods much cheaper for the consumer of its own country. As could be seen from the Report, Sir, in 1927, the price at which imported Swedish matches were

That would also indicate the line of action which the Government should feel constrained to adopt to protect the indigenous match industry against the Swedish combine. Sir, when the policy of protection was inaugurated in this country about five years ago, there were critics who were not slow to criticise the action of the Government in accepting that policy. They maintained that the policy of protection calculated to increase the burden on the consumer for the benefit of the capitalist. But it has been proved by the Report of the Tariff Board, so far as the match industry is concerned, that if proper protection is given, the indigenous industry in course of time can not only compete with foreign imports but can also produce goods much cheaper for the consumer of its own country. As could be seen from the Report, Sir, in 1927, the price at which imported Swedish matches were sold was Rs. 2-3-0 per gross while the lowest price at which the Indian manufacturer could sell his matches was Rs. 1-2-6, that is, about Rs. 1-0-6 lower than that of the imported matches. That, while conclusively proving the efficacy of protection, shows that protection helps not only the indigenous producer but eventually the consumer himself. Now, Sir, when we impose a burden on the consumer, we should do so with only one object, and that is, to help the indigenous industry. If it is found that by imposing a fresh burden on the consumer we are not helping our own industries but are helping the foreign industries, I think it would be quite appropriate for this legislature to say that we should not and would not help any foreign producer at the cost of the Indian consumer. As could be seen from the Report of the Tariff Board, the capital invested by the Swedish Match Company in India amounts to nearly one-third of the total capital invested in the industry. But at the same time it will be seen that the prices are determined by internal competition in the country, and therefore, even the imposition of this duty has not been a burden on the consumer and if the Swedish manufacturers are also making profit, it is not at the cost of the Indian consumer at present. It has been estimated by the Tariff Board that the fair selling price of half size matches ought to be about Rs. 1-3-0 per gross and the price at which the Indian manufacturer has been selling is about the same. Therefore it could not be said that the Swedish manufacturer here is being protected in any way at the cost of the Indian consumer. I hope the advice given by the Tariff Board to the Swedish interests that they should convert their concern into a rupee company, with a fair proportion of Indian directors would be duly taken up by them. At the same time I would ask the Government of India to have inquiries instituted departmentally every year to find out whether the Swedish company were carrying on any unfair competition to cut down the profit of the Indian manufacturers. If at any time it is found that the Swedish interests are abusing the hospitality extended to them by this country, I hope the Government of India would not be slow to take such actions as the circumstances might justify.

About the maintenance of the present duty I have one suggestion to make. I think in the present circumstances it is essential that the present rate of duty should be maintained for an indefinite period. As could be seen from the Report, the Swedish Company is a very powerful concern. If the present duty were abolished, the consequence might be that the Swedish importers would again start dumping, and thus ruin the Indian industry. I am quite sure that if such an occasion arose, the Government would not be slow to take action. But I think that prevention is better than cure, and therefore, I think that for the time being, the Government should maintain the present rate of duty without fixing any limit to the period of protection until it appeared that all danger from foreign importers was totally eliminated. With these words I support the motion before the House.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber : Indian Commerce) : Sir, I give my support to this Bill, but as the Honourable the Commerce Member knows, my constituency are not satisfied with the Bill as being a completely satisfactory measure. As they said in their telegram to the Commerce Department they " are sorry to note that both the Report of the Tariff Board and the Resolution of the Government of India have left unaffected operations of the Swedish Match Trust which is a danger to the indigenous industry ". The Committee of my Chamber urge that Government be pleased " to require the Swedish Match Trust to be under Indian control as required by paragraph 32 of the Tariff Board Report ". Sir, I have not given an amendment to this Bill necessitated by this opinion of my Chamber for reasons which I will explain in a very few words. The Tariff Board—and Sir Pestonji Ginwala, President of the Tariff Board, has the completest confidence of this Assembly, and if I may say so, of the Indian commercial community (Hear, hear)—have gone into this aspect and this danger which my Chamber have referred to. They rely on the hope that this Swedish Trust, which is one of the most powerful combines that we know of in the world, and which has extended its activities to many rich countries—richer than India—will learn by its experience till now and will try and follow on lines which will meet with the approval of the Indian public generally. The Government, I understand by inference, are disposed to endorse this hope of the Tariff Board. I however felt, I have taken that responsibility upon myself that when legislation suggested with the best of intentions is likely to be misunderstood as legislation on racial lines, I may not be justified in adding one more to the several which are before the House this Session. I have therefore preferred to rely upon the hope expressed by the Tariff Board and let the Government of India find out by experience whether the Swedish Trust are likely to carry on on the lines which they expect that they will. The Honourable the Commerce Member said that he is prepared to rely upon the wisdom and the sagacity of those who are in charge of this combine. I have a very high opinion of the commercial sagacity and of the business like acumen of the persons in charge of this combine. If they had not that, they could not have made inroads into the various countries referred to in the Tariff Board. But I take it that the Government of India are not likely to overlook the fact that even though the Indian match industry has come up to a certain point, it may have to pass through critical stages still before it is established firmly on the Indian soil. I only hope that the Commerce Department will watch the developments in this direction, and as far as the Indian public opinion is concerned, if the Tariff Board's hopes of the behaviour of the Swedish Trust are fulfilled, none else will be the first to acknowledge it than the representatives of the Indian trade and Indian industry.

There is one very significant lesson which the match industry in India has for us to note. I am sure my Honourable friend in charge of the Commerce Department will agree that his Department cannot take credit for the establishment of the match industry in India. If the credit can go to anybody either consciously or unconsciously for their action, it can only go to his colleague, the Honourable Member in charge of the Finance Department. (Laughter). The exigencies of finance in 1921 and later made the match industry a real industry worth speaking of to-day. An ill wind as a rule blows nobody any good ; but this ill wind of deficits in the Government of India finances did blow good to one and that was, Sir, to the consumer of matches in India. 100 and 200 per cent. duty ad valorem—something which would have horrified the Honourable the Commerce Member and his Department if even mentioned for anything else—was imposed irrespective of the considerations of the consumer,—the consumer who is trotted out with such great solicitude by my Honourable friend there and is many a time made a hardy excuse of—by my Honourable friends on my left (referring to the European group) ; but when the Finance Member found that he wanted money and offered to put a duty of 100 and 200 per cent., and at times it was a little higher too, the " poor " consumer was overlooked. But where the Treasury Benches and my Honourable friends on my left forgot the consumer, the laws of nature and of economy vindicated the best interests of the consumer. We have it in the Tariff Board's Report that during the last 7 years the price of matches has gone down, and India to-day produces two-thirds of her requirements. I am sure that although the Commerce Member and his Department played no part in this, he is proud of the achievement of those who trusted their enterprise in the match industry. I feel that the warning sounded by my Chamber is not purely imaginary. We have many members on the Committee who are directly interested in this match industry. There are many members who I know reconcile their business—shall I call it greed in order that nobody else may interrupt me—with the best nationalistic tendencies, but they apprehend that, should some bad advice prevail, this big Swedish combine with which we have nothing in India which can really cope, may crush out the Indian industry. I do hope that the Trust will not be as daring and short-sighted as that. I feel that where the Commerce Department played no part in bringing up the match industry to the point where it is, they may now make up for it by looking after it more carefully and with greater solicitude than they have done till now. I have great pleasure in supporting this measure and I only hope that we will have no cause for complaint that the Government of India did not consider the warning which my Chamber has put before them.

Mr. D. V. Belvi (Bombay Southern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : The only reason why I intervene in this debate is that I have been connected with a small match factory at Belgaum for the last 20 years or so. I wish to make one or two suggestions to the Honourable the Commerce Member in order to promote the match industry in this country. The first request I have to make to the Honourable the Commerce Member is to see that wood for making splints is supplied to Indian factories at a nominal price. This is a matter in which the Government can help us very well if they choose to do so. The wood out of which splints are made is generally of a kind which may be classed as fuel ; it is not timber. It does not fetch much of a price, and my request to Government is that so far as the Indian match factories are concerned, the wood required for making splints may be supplied even gratis for some years. Government will not sustain a heavy loss on that account. The second suggestion which I wish to make is that the rates charged by the Railways for sending matches from one place to another in India should be regulated a little more carefully. I shall give you, Sir, a personal instance. At Belgaum we find that we have to send our matches from Belgaum to Bangalore. For that purpose we have to pay more railway freight than we have to pay if we send our matches from Belgaum to a place beyond Bangalore. The object was, it seems, to handicap us. For smaller distances we are charged more, whereas for longer distances we are charged a smaller freight. This is not, I submit, fair to us. In that connection, the Railway Department may kindly help the indigenous industry. These are my two suggestions to the Government. They may do what they please. What has been said by my Honourable friend, Mr. Sesha Ayyangar on the strength of the Report recently made by the Tariff Board is perfectly true. The Swedish combine is a great menace to the Belgaum match factory. We have not been able to give any dividend to our shareholders for many years and we fear very much that so long as this Swedish combine in India is allowed a free hand there is hardly any chance for indigenous match industry to prosper. I make these suggestions to the Commerce Member with a request that he will do something to help the indigenous industry. What the Government have now done under this Bill is a mere eyewash. They have transferred, as the Commerce Member has said, the duty from one head to another. That does not help us at all. If Government are pleased to issue orders to the Forest Department and also make suggestions to the Railway Board to help the indigenous match industry, the industry is sure to thrive in this country. With these suggestions I heartily support the measure which is brought forward by Government.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I am not an admirer of the present Tariff Board. Since my Honourable friend Sir George Rainy translated himself from the Presidentship of the Tariff Board to membership of the Treasury Benches, which I appreciated very much at the time, I have lost all confidence in the Tariff Board as it is constituted at present. The Tariff Board as it exists at present dabbles too much in politics. If two years ago it introduced the policy of Imperial Preference, to-day it has introduced in the body of this report the policy that there should be uncontrolled foreign capital and foreign companies in India. The present members seem to believe that foreign companies with foreign capital are inevitable for the salvation of India. I submit, Sir, that the Swedish combines and the Swedish match factories ought not to be in India and they ought not to exist any longer in India. The Tariff Board, as it is constituted at present wants these Swedish combines to remain in India. On the floor of this House, I am constrained to say that the Tariff Board, as it is constituted at present, is a bureaucratic body and not a democratic body. It goes contrary to the wishes of all Indians and says that the Swedish combine is necessary for the development of the match industry in India. I am quite certain that India will never be a party to such a proposition and it will never consent to the existence of a foreign company to receive State concessions and protection in India to the detriment of Indian interests.

No doubt, Sir, I am in full sympathy with a protectionist policy, but I differ from the sort of protectionist policy which was advocated in the case of the cotton mills. Duty on cotton yarn was not really protection so far as Indian interests were concerned. It gave protection to my Honourable friend Sir Victor Sassoon, while at the same time it killed the hand-loom industry in the country. This Bill which the Government are introducing to-day may be a slight protection to the match industry, but there are suggestions from the Government to the Tariff Board in their Resolution and in the recommendations of the Tariff Board that go against the very principle of protection. I think unless we get Swaraj there can be no real system of protection in this country. In my opinion the days of protection are numbered and I think the days of the Tariff Board are also numbered, and I know there is no work for the Tariff Board now. I will suggest to the Honourable the Commerce Member that he should abolish the Tariff Board immediately.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Oh !

Mr. B. Das : I am sorry to differ from my esteemed friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas. I am a protectionist and a full-fledged one too. But the present Tariff Board is not a mere protectionist body but a body that supports Imperial Preference. It now wants foreign capitalist and foreign combines in India to flourish under systems of protection.

Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla : Why do you say its days are numbered

Mr. B. Das : Because it advocates the policy of Imperial Preference But its days will not be numbered so long as the present Government is constituted as they are at present. The Tariff Board is not giving much help in the direction of protection to Indian industries but it is giving Imperial Preference to foreign capitalists.

The Government in their Resolution say :

"If the Tariff Board decides that consideration must be paid to the industry brought into existence by the present rate of duty and that the duty should be maintained at the present figure, or approximately at the present figure, it will further report whether the loss of customs revenue can be made up in whole or in part by any other appropriate form of taxation of the industry."

This paragraph in the Resolution of the Government of India gave to my political friend, Sir P. Ginwala, a handle and this Resolution introduced the invidious suggestion that there should be an excise duty on Indian matches if Government want it for revenue purposes Sir, all excise duties are very hateful and obnoxious duties. We know the system of the cotton excise duty, that was levied at the instance of Lancashire on cotton cloth produced in Indian Cotton Mills and this excise duty actually crushed the cotton mill industry in India for a time. Thank God, it is abolished now. We know what the excise duties are doing in the provinces. We know what the duty on wines and drinks is doing for the country. I know that 40 per cent. of the Government revenue in my own province, Bihar and Orissa, is derived from the excise duty. The excise duty on salt, a central Government tax, is also doing a great deal of harm to the country. This tax on salt falls heavily on the poor people who cannot thereby get an adequate and proper amount of salt for their food and my suggestion is that this duty also should be abolished. The Tariff Board was not asked to go into and advise as to what are the revenue yielding taxes of the country, but the Board has thought fit to suggest an excise duty. The Board suggests in an insinuating way that Government should have an excise duty on matches. It would kill the match industry if this excise duty is levied. I do not doubt the good intentions of my Honourable friend Sir George Rainy in his desire to protect the match industry, but this suggestion of the Tariff Board is not going to protect the match industry and is a vicious suggestion It is nothing but a politically invidious suggestion that the Tariff Board is making to the Government. If there is to be this excise duty, the match industry will surely make no headway ; on the other hand the match industry will surely be killed by this excise duty. If for no other reason, at least for this mad suggestion the present Tariff Board must be abolished.

One of the recommendations of the Tariff Board to which I should like to draw the attention of the Honourable the Commerce Member appears on page 102, paragraph 21. It runs :

"The existing supply of Indian wood may be increased by a suitable system of plantation. It appears to us desirable that Local Government within whose territories match factories of any size or importance have been established should adopt a cautious programme of plantation with reference to the probable future requirements of the factories."

I do hope the Honourable the Commerce Member would circularise all the Local Governments and advise them to take an active part in this direction. In some provinces, forest, is a reserved subject and not a transferred subject. But in spite of this, all Local Governments ought to take a keen interest in the matter of plantation so that the match industry may be developed.

In paragraph 22, the Tariff Board recommend :

"We recommend that a definite research project into the match industry should be drawn up at the Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun. While the project should be under the immediate supervision of the Forest Economist, the appointment of a special officer might be considered to ensure contact with Local Governments and match manufacturers."

This recommendation concerns the Forest Department which is within the province of my Honourable friend Mr. Bajpai. I do hope that this recommendation of the Tariff Board will be taken in hand by the Forest Research Institute at Dehra Dun and that proper steps will be taken to give an impetus to the development of the match industry in India. When we have the proper supply of match wood, we can successfully compete with all the foreign combines that have taken shelter here and can drive them out of this country. We do not want any foreign companies or syndicates here which are solely financed by foreign capital. They ought not to be given any concessions in India for they stand in the way of the proper development of Indian industries. The Tariff Board ought to have taken into consideration in their recommendations the recommendation of the External Capital Committee and ought to have applied the principles enunciated therein to the case of the Swedish Match Company. It has not been done and that is one of the reasons why I condemn the present Tariff Board.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, perhaps it will be convenient to deal first with three or four specific suggestions that have been made in the course of the discussion. My Honourable friend Mr. Das wanted to know about two of the recommendations of the Tariff Board, the first of which was that Local Governments should undertake the planting of suitable trees for the manufacture of match splints. As regards that, I cannot remember at the moment whether we have already brought the proposal to the notice of Local Governments or whether we are about to do so ; but if we have not, we shall certainly draw their attention to it, and ask them to give it their best attention and, if possible, their concurrence. As regards the immediately succeeding recommendation, namely, that a definite scheme of research into the match industry should be drawn up at the Forest Research Institute at Dehra Dun, I understand that already the Institute has undertaken a certain amount of work in connection with research into the match industry. I will certainly look into the matter and satisfy myself that what is possible to be done is being done there.

Then there is my Honourable friend Mr. Belvi. One of his suggestions was that wood for splints should be supplied at a nominal rate to match factories—I presume from the Government forests.

Mr. D. V. Belvi : Yes, Sir.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I think, if I understood him correctly, the match factory in which he is principally interested is at Belgaum. I should have no objection whatever to bringing the matter to the notice of the Government of Bombay, but I think—I am speaking from memory—that in Bombay, Forests are a provincial transferred subject. Is it not ?

[Sir George Rainy.]

An Honourable Member : Yes.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : That being so, my function must end by bringing the matter to the notice of the Local Government, because I am not in a position to issue any orders to them. Then my Honourable friend drew attention to some anomaly which exists in the matter of railway freight on matches and which again affects this factory in Belgaum. If he will let me have the details of the matter in writing, I shall certainly see that it is brought to the notice of the Agents of the Railways concerned.

Then other specific suggestions were made at the opening of the discussion by my Honourable friend Mr. Sesha Ayyangar. He wanted definite replies to three questions. The first of them was whether direct assistance had been given to the Swedish match industry by Government. I gather from what he said that the Government chiefly concerned was the Government of Bengal.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : Yes.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I am afraid I have no information on the point. If he desires that information should be obtained, I think perhaps the easiest way to set the wheels moving would be to put a question on the paper. As regards the other two questions, namely, whether merchants in England or the British Government have an interest in the Swedish Match Company, the suggestions came as a surprise to me that there was any belief or suspicion of that kind, unless my Honourable friend is referring to the undoubted fact that Bryant and May, the very large match manufacturers in England, having entered into an agreement with the Swedish Match Company, are in some sense a member of the Match Combine. I do not think there is any secret about the fact so far as that is concerned ; but I have never heard that the British Government was interested in it in any way, and I cannot conceive any particular reason why it should be.

Now, Sir, to turn to rather broader points, my Honourable friend Mr. B. Das has a very low opinion of the Tariff Board, and thinks that the reason for their existence has disappeared. I am not going to argue that matter with him, but I do not agree with him and I do not believe that the House does. Then my Honourable friend Mr. Sesha Ayyangar drew attention to the fact, quite clearly brought out in the report of the Tariff Board, that the policy of the Swedish Match Company, in practically every country into which it has entered, has been directed towards obtaining as complete a control as possible over the manufacture and sale of matches. He also drew attention to the fact that it appeared from the Board's Report that the Swedish Company had been selling matches in India—that is, matches made in Sweden—at an uneconomic price. That also is perfectly true. He argued from these two facts that the danger from the operations of the Swedish Match Company was so great that immediate measures ought to be taken to prevent harm resulting to the Indian match industry. As regards the sale of imported matches at uneconomic prices I think it is only fair to point out this, that it is almost the direct consequence of the very high rate of duty, because if the Company are to sell matches at all subject to that very high rate of duty, they can hardly help cutting the price to the bone. But it is not in the least the attitude of Government that we can afford to stand on one side and hope for the best and not keep a close watch on what goes on. That is not the Government case at all. We do recognise that the existence of this very powerful combine does create a danger, and that it may be necessary—I hope it will not be, but it may be—necessary to take special measures to deal with it, if the combine were to endeavour to establish a monopoly behind the tariff wall. But agreeing with the Tariff Board, we think we are justified, in holding our hands for the present, in the belief that some arrangement can be arrived at which will be satisfactory both to the Swedish Match Company and to Indian manufacturers. Whether any attempt has been made to come to such an arrangement I am not fully informed. Indeed, until this Bill had been placed before the Assembly, it seemed to me it was much better that I should keep clear of anything that might be going on. All I wish to say is that, if an attempt should be made after the passage of this Bill to come to some arrangement mutually satisfactory, and it were thought that the Government of India could give any help we should be very glad to do so. But if we do intervene at that stage we can only usefully intervene if we intervene uncommitted. It is for that reason I do not want to make any very definite statement today as to what the Government might do or might not do in given circumstances. All I will say is that Government will not remain indifferent to any attempt that may be made to bring the complete and final control of the manufacture of matches in India into the hands of a foreign company.

What I have said, Sir, I think covers most of what was suggested by my Honourable friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas. I quite recognise that the Chamber he represents hold strongly the view that it would have been much better if Government had decided to take immediate action. I can assure him that due weight will be given to that opinion and that, as I have said, we shall keep our eyes open and that we shall be alive to any danger that may threaten. My Honourable friend was quite right in saying that the credit for this duty does not rest with the Commerce Department but entirely with the Finance Department ; but whether from a financial point of view the Finance Department would be entitled to take equal credit for this particular duty I am not quite sure, because the revenue has been falling away rather rapidly.

There is one other point I should like to mention which was taken by my Honourable friend Mr. Birla. He was anxious that the present rate of duty should continue for an indefinite period, and that there should be no attempt to remove it prematurely. As regards that, I may say that the Government have no idea of leaving it on for a year or two and then summarily removing it. There would be no sense in doing that ; and in any case, when the time comes, we shall undoubtedly put our proposals before this House. And I may point out that the final decision will rest with the House ; and unless we can persuade the House that we are right and that a lower duty will suffice, then the existing duty will continue. But what the Government of India feel is this. It is very uncertain how exactly the Indian match industry may develop in the next two or three years, and there are various possibilities. It is for that reason among others that we do not lay down any definite period for the retention of this duty, because we have not got sufficient data on which to fix any period.

I think, Sir, I have dealt with all the points of importance that were taken and that I need not delay the House any longer.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That the Bill to provide for the protection of the match industry, be taken into consideration.'

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That clause 2 do stand part of the Bill."

Mr. N. M. Joshi (Nominated : Labour Interests) : My amendment is an addition to clause 2.

Mr. President : Does the Honourable Member wish to move it ?

Mr. N. M. Joshi : Yes, I propose to move it, Sir.

Mr. President : I was given to understand that the Honourable Member was not moving it ?

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I never said so to any one, Sir. Sir, I move that after clause 2 of the Bill.....

Mr. President : It comes after clause 2; let clause be passed first. The question is :

"That clause 2 do stand part of the Bill."

Clause 2 was added to the Bill.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I move, Sir :

"That after clause 2 of the Bill the following new clauses be inserted :

'3. Undertakings engaged in the manufacture of matches shall submit to the Government of India not later than 1st of October, 1928, a declaration whereby they pledge themselves to keep prices of the articles during the period when such protective duties are in force at such figures as the Government of India may approve.

4. Notwithstanding the passing of this Act the protective duties shall not apply unless the condition laid down in section 3 and the following conditions are found by the Government of India to have been fulfilled :

(a) Joint stock companies and other limited liability companies engaged in the manufacture of matches shall submit to the Government of India not later than 1st October 1928 a declaration whereby they pledge themselves for the financial years during which the protective duties are in force.

(b) Not to pay any fee or equivalent sums to the Directors and management for the said financial years.

(c) Not to pay to shareholders and other participants with limited liability a greater sum by way of annual dividend than what they would get at 6 per cent. on the actual capital invested in the undertaking by the persons concerned.

(d) to employ any further surplus in consolidating the position of the undertaking in the manner approved by the Government of India.

(e) To employ only Indians in the undertaking.

(f) To produce a certificate that the labour conditions in the undertaking are satisfactory from a committee of three persons appointed by the Government of India for the purpose.

5. If an undertaking manufacturing matches fails to perform its duties under sub-sections (3) and (4) within a period fixed the Government of India may order those responsible to perform their duties on penalty of a daily fine not exceeding Rs. 1,000'."

Sir, the object of this Bill is to protect the match industry in India. I am anxious that in this country industries should develop and that they should develop very fast ; I have never been against that. But I am equally anxious that all interests should be protected and not only the interests of one particular class. For that purpose I have proposed my amendment. The first part of my amendment proposes that if by chance those people who are manufacturing matches make a combine and begin to raise prices unreasonably and without any justification, there should be some power with the Government of India to enforce a just and fair price. Manufacturers should declare that they will not raise prices beyond the limit which will be justified by the rise in the cost of production. I propose that the community which makes the sacrifice—and this nobody will deny—in giving this protection should not also suffer unreasonably. The principle of the second part of my amendment is that if there is to be a sacrifice on the part of the community as a whole in order that the industry should be developed, that sacrifice should also be accepted by those people who are managing that industry. This is a principle of sacrifice all round. I therefore propose, Sir, that in those undertakings which are going to get the benefit of the protective duties, the Directors should not receive any fee.....

Sir Victor Sassoon : Nor workmen their wages ?

Mr. N. M. Joshi : When there are some Directors in these concerns to represent labour, then I shall certainly say that they also should not get any fee ; but to-day we know that in our industrial organisations it is only the shareholders who have the right to elect Directors. The Directors are bound under the present circumstances to hold certain shares in that undertaking. I am not proposing that the shares of the Directors should not get any dividend. (An Honourable Member : "Thank you.") The Directors will get dividends on their shares, but they should be content with that. If the Directors of a match factory expect the community to make a sacrifice the Directors themselves must be ready to make a sacrifice for the sake of the industry. I am told, Sir, that if no fee is paid to the Directors, who is going to be the Director of a match factory? I have no fear on that score. I am quite sure the industrialists in our country are patriotic enough and those who believe that people will not come forward as Directors of match manufacturing companies without any fee have a very low opinion of the industrialists in this country.

Well, Sir, the next point is that as the community will make a sacrifice on account of levying this protective duty, the people who invest their money should also not expect unreasonable profit. I am suggesting that the dividend in these companies should be limited to 6 per cent. I am not suggesting further that any surplus profit should be taken away by the community or by the Government, although I would have been justified in doing it. What I am suggesting is this, that the surplus profit should be utilised by these companies in such a way that their financial position will be strengthened. We have got experience that there are industries which had made large profits on certain occasions. They wasted or spent the money as they liked in paying huge dividends which they ought not to have done. If an industry which makes 50 per cent. or 100 per cent. profit and spends it in giving dividends and if it suffers losses, it will come here and ask for protection, and naturally the protection will be given at the cost of the country. I want to avoid that contingency, Sir. I therefore suggest that when any company makes a profit beyond 6 per cent., the surplus profit should be utilised in such a manner as to strengthen its financial position.

Then, Sir, I also suggest that as the industry is going to be supported by import duties by Indians mainly, the employees of the match manufacturing companies should be also Indians only.

Sir Victor Sassoon : And the Directors.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : That is my proposal and there is very good reason for it. It is quite natural that Indians who consume the matches should feel that these matches should be made by Indians. That principle is accepted by the whole of that side, I mean the Treasury Benches. They insist that the superior services which are represented here should be treated, when they or their families are ill, by white doctors. This morning we had a question on this subject.

Now, Sir, if Indians insist that the matches which they use should also be made by Indians, there is certainly nothing to be surprised at. I therefore insist that every match manufacturing company which receives the benefit of these import duties should engage only Indians as its employees. I am not asking, Sir, that the rupees to be invested in these companies should be only those of Indians. I make no difference in the rupees, and money will be welcome from others as well.

Then, Sir, I have suggested another addition which is a very important one. Protection to an industry means not merely protection to those people who invest their capital but also protection to those people who invest their labour in the particular industry. I have therefore suggested in my amendment that the match manufacturing concerns should produce a certificate from a committee consisting of three persons appointed by the Government of India to the effect that the labour conditions in those concerns are quite satisfactory. Now, Sir, this condition is quite necessary. At the present time this protection is not given to the workers engaged in that industry. I have been making this suggestion for many years, Sir. Unfortunately the Government of India and the Legislative Assembly have been indifferent to the interests of those people who are working in the industry. The Tariff Board makes an inquiry, and I am told, a very close inquiry. They have also written a big Report, but I find that they do not inquire into the labour conditions—at least I have not read much in this Report about labour conditions—and where they make mention of labour they only talk of the efficiency of labour. I therefore insist, Sir, that when the Tariff Board makes an inquiry into any subject it should be their business to inquire into the labour conditions of that industry. Then only can they make recommendations as to the protection of all the elements engaged in that industry. Unfortunately the Tariff Board does not do it nor does the Government of India care to suggest to the Tariff Board that there should be an inquiry into the labour conditions engaged in a particular industry. Now, take the match industry. The work in this industry is very dangerous. Those people who have got some experience of working in match factories will tell you that if there is one accident in a textile factory, there are ten accidents in a match factory, and these poor people working in the match factories in India are not given the special protection to which they are entitled. For instance, in England the Factories Act provides some special regulations for those industries in which dangerous chemicals are used as in a match factory.

Sir Victor Sassoon : No, not now.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : Yes, even now there are special regulations in England under the Factories Act to give special protection to the workers who are engaged in those trades which are considered to be dangerous or unhealthy to human life....

Sir Victor Sassoon : Not in match factories, because dangerous chemicals are not used in match factories.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : The match industry, Sir, is an industry where dangerous chemicals are used.

Sir Victor Sassoon : No.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I know it for a fact that the number of accidents in a match factory is much larger than in any other industry.

Sir Victor Sassoon : Not because of dangerous chemicals.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : Yes, it is the case. Therefore, I feel, Sir, that it is necessary, when we are passing this Bill, that some provision should be made for the protection of workers in this industry.

Then, Sir, I have added another clause which imposes certain penalties on those people who do not satisfy these conditions. It used to be said by the predecessor of the Honourable the Commerce Member that these conditions could not be enforced. I therefore thought, Sir, that some method must be found by which these conditions may be enforced, and that method is that any one who breaks these conditions should be fined out thousand rupees a day. The fine cannot be put at a low figure, because the profits may be more than a thousand rupees a day, and the manufacturer may pay the fine and go on breaking the conditions. I therefore suggest that the manufacturer should be fined one thousand rupees a day if he does not fulfil the conditions laid down in these clauses.

I hope, Sir, that this House in the interests of India as a whole and in the interests of the workers engaged in this industry will accept my amendment.

Mr. Ram Narayan Singh (Chota Nagpur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I wholeheartedly support the amendment just moved by my Honourable friend Mr. Joshi and endorse every word of what he has said in support of his proposition. Sir, I admit that in the present backward industrial condition of the country, protection is absolutely necessary, and, as far as I know, almost every country in the world has given protection to all new industries. But, Sir, as the public is going to help this particular industry at some sacrifice to the consumers, they have a right to demand some sort of control over the management of it, and the method suggested by the Honourable Mr. Joshi is the only method by which the rights of the labourers as well as those of the consumers could be adequately protected. Further, Sir, it has been suggested that there is a suspicion in the minds of certain people that Government is not going to encourage the indigenous match industry of the country but they want to support and encourage the particular Swedish company in this country. I do not think that this suspicion is baseless, because from our past experience of the conduct of the Government we are inclined to suspect their actions and intentions every minute and at every stage. So I think that, if the Government of India are honest in their intentions to really encourage the indigenous match industry in this country, they should wholeheartedly accept the amendment just moved by Mr. Joshi. With these few words, Sir, I support the amendment moved by my friend, Mr. Joshi.

Mr. President : Sir Victor Sassoon.

Sir Victor Sassoon (Bombay Millowners' Association : Indian Commerce) : Sir, there are Members of this Assembly who complain that they have not the good fortune to catch your eye even when they desire to. I therefore, Sir, am in the unique position of not only having the honour of catching your eye when I desire but of being called on to speak even though I show no apparent desire to do so.

Mr. President : You must change your seat.

Sir Victor Sassoon : But, Sir, if in your wisdom you consider it advisable that I, as a representative of the capitalists, should reply to the remarks made by my friend Mr. Joshi, I am prepared to do so, although I admit I did think that the remarks of Mr. Joshi were so easy of refutation that it would have been wasting the time of this House to have attempted to controvert them. My friend, Mr. Joshi, has advanced the plea that where an industry is protected that industry should share the sufferings of the consumer. To start with, he did not make out a case that the consumer of matches in India had any. No doubt that was due to the fact that he was not in the House when my Honourable friend Mr. Birla so pertinently put forward the interesting point that the price of matches had gone down, not gone up.

(Mr. N. M. Joshi made a remark which was inaudible at the Reporter's table.)

Sir Victor Sassoon : The last remark of the Honourable Member is entirely unintelligible to me, Sir.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I, Sir, explain that it is quite possible that if the duty is removed, prices may go down still further, and there is a sacrifice on the part of the consumers when they agree to the retention of the duty.

Sir Victor Sassoon : On the other hand, it is equally possible that, if it had not been for the duty, the match industry would not have developed in India and therefore there would have been a monopoly for the foreign import. The point I wish to make is this that, if it is laid down that any industry which receives protection should be limited as to the dividends paid to shareholders, and that no Directors in such industries should have any fees for attending Directors' meetings, that would affect more industries than this match industry. I am quite prepared to consider the scheme of Mr. Joshi's if he would at the same time allow the work people for whom he is so interested to share in it. If Mr. Joshi was prepared to see that the work people of the industry receiving protection would not receive a higher wage than, shall we say, they would be receiving in the agricultural districts from which they came, but that the difference between the wages which the manufacturer was prepared to pay and this should be put into a special fund so that they would be enabled to receive wages where the industry was losing money, then I think I might be prepared to support my Honourable friend.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : But there is no application for protection yet from the workers.

Sir Victor Sassoon : It is not a question of the workers of the match industry making an application for protection. What is the case is that, owing to the existence of protection, the industry has been allowed to take root in this country, which has enabled these agriculturists to earn better wages than they otherwise would. I therefore oppose the amendment.

Mr. President : Does the Honourable Member wish to speak ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : For five minutes, Sir. I think we must all admire the consistency and doggedness with which my Honourable friend Mr. Joshi keeps the standard flying. My Honourable friend Sir Victor Sassoon has dealt with the merits of the proposal. The point on which I wish very briefly to ask the attention of the House is that, assuming the objects of the proposal to be such as the Assembly would approve, the machinery provided for bringing them into effect would break down hopelessly at every turn. This proposed clause 4 of the Bill applies only to companies engaged in the manufacture of matches prior to the 1st of October 1928, and would not be applicable to a company started after that date. That is obvious because they could not make the declaration before the 1st of October. Therefore, there is nothing to prevent anybody from starting a new company immediately after the 1st October and being entirely exempt from all these restrictions. In the second place there is nothing to prevent all the existing companies from going into liquidation and selling their concerns to new companies formed after the 1st October. Then again, the restriction would only apply to joint stock companies and other limited liability companies. Therefore, again, it would be possible to evade the restrictions by transferring the concerns to private companies or to private individuals. Finally, I would point out that there is a third and a very important point to remember, namely, that these restrictions would apply in British India and would not apply in the Indian States, and I do not think there would be any difficulty whatever in transferring the greater part of the match industry in British India to the States. For these reasons, Sir, I would ask the House not to approve of this amendment.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That after clause 2 of the Bill the following new clauses be inserted :

'3. Undertakings engaged in the manufacture of matches shall submit to the Government of India not later than 1st of October 1928, a declaration whereby they pledge themselves to keep prices of the articles during the period when such protective duties are in force at such figures as the Government of India may approve.

[Mr. President.]

4. Notwithstanding the passing of this Act the protective duties shall not apply unless the condition laid down in Section 3 and the following conditions are found by the Government of India to have been fulfilled :

(a) Joint stock companies and other limited liability companies engaged in the manufacture of matches shall submit to the Government of India not later than 1st October 1928 a declaration whereby they pledge themselves for the financial years during which the protective duties are in force.

(b) Not to pay any fee or equivalent sums to the Directors and management for the said financial years.

(c) Not to pay to shareholders and other participants with limited liability a greater sum by way of annual dividend than what they would get at 6 per cent. on the actual capital invested in the undertaking by the persons concerned.

(d) To employ any further surplus in consolidating the position of the undertaking in the manner approved by the Government of India.

(e) To employ only Indians in the undertaking.

(f) To produce a certificate that the labour conditions in the undertaking are satisfactory from a committee of three persons appointed by the Government of India for the purpose.

5. If an undertaking manufacturing matches fails to perform its duties under sub-sections 3 and 4 within a period fixed the Government of India may order those responsible to perform their duties on penalty of a daily fine not exceeding Rs. 1,000 '."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and Premable were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, I move that the Bill be passed.

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Tuesday, the 18th September, 1928.

SECRETARIAT LIBRARY 11 OCT 1928 MADRAS GOVT.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

Tuesday, 18th September, 1928.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

EXPORT DUTY ON RICE.

635. U. Tok Kyi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they have made a special investigation into the question of the export duty on rice as promised by Sir Basil Blackett on the 12th March 1928 ?

(b) If they have, when may the result of the investigation be expected to be known ?

(c) If they have not, will Government be pleased to state when they intend to start the investigation ?

(d) Are Government aware that the Burma Legislative Council during its last Session has passed a Resolution recommending the abolition of the export duty on rice ?

(e) Is it not a fact that the steamer freight for rice from Bangkok or Saigon is smaller than that from Rangoon to Bombay or any of the Indian ports that take rice from outside ?

(f) Is it not a fact that since the days of the "Rice Control", the Rangoon rice has not found its place in the London market ?

(g) Are Government aware that there is a large reduction in the quantity of Burma rice exported to foreign countries during this present year ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons why ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) to (d). Government have not yet made the investigation. They were awaiting the Report of the Royal Commission on Agriculture which, however, does not deal with the subject. They are aware of the fact that the subject was recently discussed by the Burma Legislative Council and have asked for a copy of the Proceedings. When they get it, they propose to take up the matter with the Local Government.

(e) No.

(f) Yes, though exports to the United Kingdom have latterly been improving.

(g) Yes. The reduction is partly due to the embargo placed by the Japanese Government on imports of rice into that country, which extends for the present up to the 31st December, 1928. Government also understand that increasing competition from the rice growing countries on the Mediterranean Seaboard, viz., Spain, Italy, and Egypt and reasonably big crops in Saigon, Siam and Japan have contributed to this result.

REGISTRATION OF THE MUSLIM ASSOCIATION, PESHAWAR CANTONMENT.

636. Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur : (a) Is it a fact that the Registrar, Joint Stock Companies, North-West Frontier Province, has refused to register the amalgamated two wings of the Muslim Association, Peshawar Cantonment, which submitted a formal memorandum of the Association and other documents required by Act XX of 1860 ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether the Registrar received the formal documents required by the Act from any other Society claiming to be the Muslim Association, Peshawar Cantonment, before or after the receipt of the documents mentioned in part (a) above ?

(c) If not, will the Government be pleased to state why the former Association was not registered ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The Government of India have no information on the subject. Inquiries are being made and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member.

CONVERSION OF LEAVE ALLOWANCES AT 2*s.* PER RUPEE.

637. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) As the rate of exchange has now been fixed at 1*s.* 6*d.* per rupee, will Government please state why the leave allowances mentioned in Fundamental Rules 89 and 90 are still converted at the rate of 2*s.* per rupee ?

(b) Are Government aware that this disparity between allowances drawn in and outside Asia prejudicially affects the interests mainly of Indian officers desiring to take leave in India and, in practice, draws an unnecessary and unrecognised distinction between the Indian and European officers of Government ?

(c) Will Government please state what steps they propose to take so as to equalise, at an early date, the rates of allowances, whether drawn in or outside Asia ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) to (c). With the exception of the year, viz., the year 1919, the ratio between the sterling and rupee rates of leave allowances in the case of the maxima and minima rates to which the Honourable Member refers, and in the case of these rates only, has been the same since about 1843. My Honourable friend will observe from this that the ratio was maintained in the cases specified even during the years 1894 to 1914 when the rate of exchange was in fact practically stable at 1*s.* 4*d.* to the rupee. Hitherto the situation which I have described and of which my Honourable friend complains has not in fact been the subject of widely expressed grievance on the part of Government servants, no doubt because inter alia maxima and minima rates only operate in a relatively small number of cases. For example, as a general rule, Indian officers are not entitled to take more than four months' leave on average pay at a time, and during the first four months' leave on average pay the average pay is not subject to the extraneous limits specified in Fundamental Rule 89.

I must point out that Indian and European officers alike are subject to the rupee maxima and minima if they take leave in India on average pay in excess of four months or in excess of the amount of privilege leave due to them if they are under the Civil Service Regulations. On the other hand, Indian officers, when they take leave outside Asia, benefit by the higher sterling maximum.

As my Honourable friend is aware, the question of the fixation of the rate of exchange between rupee and sterling has been the subject of considerable controversy in the past few years, and this circumstance combined with the other circumstances which I have mentioned has militated against the Government of India considering the question which the Honourable Member has now raised. The Government of India are, however, inclined to think that the time has now come or nearly come when the question should be re-examined, and I will take steps to see that this is done in the near future.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Why is it, Sir, that this fictitious rate of exchange at 2*s.* is observed in the case of leave allowances for certain officers ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Honourable Member could not have listened carefully to the lengthy answer which I read out on the floor of the House. That rate is not adopted in the case of all leave allowances. It comes into operation in the case of certain maxima and minima rates, and the circumstances which have led to the adoption of the 2*s.* rate of conversion in that particular case have been fully explained by me in the lengthy answer I have given.

PAYMENTS TO OFFICERS OF UNIVERSITY TRAINING CORPS FOR PERIODS SPENT IN CAMP OR AT ANY AUTHORISED COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

638. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : What steps are being taken by Government to carry out the recommendation of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee that officers of the University Training Corps should be paid for the period spent in camp or at any authorised course of instruction ?

Mr. G. M. Young : This recommendation will be carried out. I find that, by an error in drafting, the rules, as recently published, debar officers of the University Training Corps from receiving individual pay for periods spent in camp, etc. ; but I am having the rule corrected, and I am glad that the Honourable Member's question has drawn my attention to the point.

EXTRA MESSING ALLOWANCE TO NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE UNIVERSITY TRAINING CORPS.

639. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Are Government aware that the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee recommended the payment of an extra messing allowance to Viceroy's commissioned officers, non-commissioned officers and men of urban units and persons holding corresponding ranks in the Auxiliary Force ? Do Government propose to provide for the payment of the same allowance to the Non-Commissioned Officers and men of the University Training Corps ?

Mr. G. M. Young : The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. The answer to the second part is in the negative.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Would not Government be pleased to give the reasons for not giving any allowance to the non-commissioned officers and men of the University Training Corps ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Yes, Sir. The reason roughly is that the University Training Corps are not analogous to either the Auxiliary Force or the urban units of the Territorial Force in this respect. The latter force go into camp for very short periods of training. The University Training Corps, like the provincial battalions of the Territorial Force go into longer periods of training. Where the period of training is short there is greater justification for an extra messing allowance.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is not the status of the University Training Corps the same as that of the urban units considering the social classes from which the students come ?

Mr. G. M. Young : It all depends upon what my Honourable friend means by " status ". Their military status is entirely different.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Are Government aware that when the last training camp was held in the United Provinces there was a great deal of dissatisfaction among the men of the University Training Corps on account of the scanty allowance given to them ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I have no information on that point beyond what the Honourable Member has just stated. I should be very glad, however, if any discontent of that kind were officially brought to my notice.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is the Honourable Member aware that I brought this matter to his notice last year ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Forgotten.

An Honourable Member : Too long.

Mr. G. M. Young : I must confess I had forgotten that.

ABOLITION OF DUAL COMMISSIONS IN THE CASE OF OFFICERS OF THE UNIVERSITY TRAINING CORPS.

640. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : What progress has been made with the policy of abolishing the dual commission in the case of officers of the University Training Corps ?

Mr. G. M. Young : The policy has been adopted and no further dual commissions will be granted. Those who now hold the dual commissions will be eligible for the grant of the new commission in accordance with the regulations that will be published shortly.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is it proposed to make selections in future in regard to the abolition of the dual commission or will all the officers now in the University Training Corps be ipso facto treated as King's commissioned officers ?

Mr. G. M. Young : They have already the honorary King's commission also. I am afraid I have not got the details in my head, but all of them will be equally eligible for the new commission.

POWERS OF COMMAND OVER SUBORDINATE PERSONNEL OF EUROPEAN OFFICERS OF THE INDIAN AUXILIARY FORCE AND INDIAN OFFICERS ON THE SPECIAL INDIAN TERRITORIAL FORCE LIST.

641. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) Is there any distinction in the powers of command over subordinate personnel of European officers on the Indian Auxiliary Force list and Indian officers on the special Indian Territorial Force list seconded for duty with the University Training Corps in respect of powers of command over subordinate personnel ?

(b) If the reply to the above be in the affirmative when do Government propose to abolish this distinction ?

Mr. G. M. Young : There is no distinction, Sir, in the powers of command of Indian and European officers over subordinate personnel. I may take this opportunity to explain that the proposal to have special list of officers seconded from the Auxiliary Force and the Territorial Force for duty with the University Training Corps has been abandoned. All officers of the University Training Corps will be given commissions in the Indian Territorial Force and will be appointed directly to the various University Training Corps.

ISSUE OF SERVICE RIFLES TO THE UNIVERSITY TRAINING CORPS IN THE UNITED PROVINCES.

642. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) With reference to reply given to starred question No. 514, on the 29th August, 1927, will Government be pleased to state whether service rifles have been issued to the University Training Corps in the United Provinces ?

(b) If the answer be in the negative when do Government propose to fulfil the promise given by the Army Secretary during the budget debate on the 14th March, 1927 ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Arrangements have been made to supply all University Training Corps in the United Provinces with a number of rifles sufficient to enable them to fire their annual courses of musketry.

The question of replacing all the drill practice rifles with service rifles entails a good deal of expenditure and is still under reference to the local military authorities.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is it a fact that the Honourable Member said in March, 1927, that as soon as arrangements had been made for guarding the arms, there would be no objection on the part of the military authorities to replacing drill practice rifles with service rifles ?

Mr. G. M. Young : That is so.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Why is another reference now needed to the military authorities ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I am afraid it is not another reference. The provision of these rifles on a large scale is a matter of some difficulty. I think I might repeat what I have already explained before that it is purely a question of custody and that there is no question of withholding from the University Training Corps weapons which they should consider themselves entitled to have if arrangement can be made. That is proved by the fact that every other University Training Corps in India with the exception of the company at Lyallpur and the company at Patna, which are in the same situation as the United Provinces in this matter, has service rifles.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : How many rifles are going to be issued to the University Training Corps in the United Provinces ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I do not know the exact number, but it is a number which is sufficient, as I have said, to enable them to fire their annual course of musketry.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : What is the real difficulty in the matter of supplying army service rifles to the University Training Corps ? Is it a difficulty about providing for safe custody, or difficulty about firing ?

Mr. G. M. Young : It is the difficulty of safe custody. The various Universities in the United Provinces do happen to be situated at some distance from the place where the rifles can be stored under guard by the military. I may add that it might be deduced from the persistence of my Honourable friend's questions that there is some feeling of grievance in the United Provinces Universities in regard to this matter. The Government have no reason to suppose that there is any such feeling. It was only the other day that a high military officer told me that he went down to Allahabad and enquired into the state of the University Training Corps there. He found them extremely contented so far as he could make out, and he also said that they were exceedingly efficient. I cannot but think that the members of the University Training Corps take a practical point of view about this matter, that is, that if it is not easy or convenient to supply them with service rifles for drill practice purposes, they are content to do their drill practices with drill practice rifles.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Are Government aware that at the last training camp the officers of the University Corps represented to the officer commanding the Allahabad District, probably General Nightingale, their grievances in regard to the non-supply of service rifles ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I am not aware of that fact.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Are Government aware that the other University Training Corps have been granted service rifles although they have no better arrangements for guarding them than the University Training Corps in the United Provinces.

Mr. G. M. Young : No. I went into that matter very carefully and that is not my conclusion.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is the Honourable Member aware that at Poona, for instance, the armoury is situated at a distance from the military headquarters and the arms are guarded there by two or three retired military men ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Sir, I am exactly aware of the methods by which arms are guarded at Poona, but I am satisfied that there is no reason to apprehend there any loss of rifles from theft or from other causes. The same circumstances do not apply in the case, at any rate, of all of the University Training Corps in the United Provinces.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Are the armouries in the United Provinces badly constructed, and if so, have the Universities been asked to modify them ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Really it is a question of custody by the military.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : What is the real difficulty which the military authorities have not been able during the last 18 months to overcome in the United Provinces ?

Mr. G. M. Young : It was only in the United Provinces that the question arose. I have already explained the difficulty.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : The only difficulty, as we are given to understand, is the provision of safe custody. But we feel now, at least the impression created by the Honourable Member's answers is that there are other difficulties also. We would like to know definitely what those difficulties are in detail.

Mr. G. M. Young : There is no other difficulty except the difficulty of custody.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is it a matter simply of the employment of the necessary number of men ?

Mr. G. M. Young : It is a matter partly of the employment of the necessary number of men, which is an expense.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : When do you think arrangements will be made for safe custody if that is the only difficulty ? What amount of time and expenses will be required for providing safe custody arrangements, if that is the only difficulty ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I admit that the matter has taken a very long time and it is not settled yet.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Has the matter been under consideration for about a year and a half ?

Mr. G. M. Young : My Honourable friend knows when he first raised the question.

POPULATION OF THE DEPRESSED CLASSES.

643. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : With reference to the answer given to my supplementary question to starred question No. 1, regarding the population of the depressed classes, on 4th September, 1928, will Government be pleased to state approximately :

(a) how many of the 60 millions are from the territories outside British India ; and (b) how many of the 60 millions belong to the criminal tribes ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to paragraph 193 of the Census Report of 1921. Government have no information of the population of criminal tribes.

(Mr. Mukhtar Singh was not in his seat when question No. 644 was called.)

Mr. M. S. Aney : May I put the questions standing in the name of Mr. Mukhtar Singh ? He has authorised me to put his questions.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member has not taken the trouble to inform the Chair.

Mr. M. S. Aney : He has written to me that he has informed you also.

Mr. President : I am not sure, but I shall give the benefit of the doubt to the Honourable Member.

(Mr. M. S. Aney put questions Nos. 644 to 649, both inclusive, standing in the name of Mr. Mukhtar Singh.)

STOPPAGE OF THE RECRUITMENT OF NON-MUSLIMS AS COMPOSITORS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, DELHI.

644. Mr. M. S. Aney (on behalf of Mr. Mukhtar Singh) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of (i) Muhammadan, (ii) non Muhammadan compositors in the Government of India Press, Delhi ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the number of vacancies (a) permanent and (b) temporary filled in the composing staff of the Delhi Press since 1st November, 1927 ? Will the Government be further pleased to state the number of posts given to (a) Muslims and (b) non Muslims during the above period ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that orders have been issued stopping the recruitment of non-Muslims as compositors in the Government of India Press, Delhi ? If the answer be in the affirmative will the Government be pleased to state the reasons for issuing such an order ?

(d) Is it a fact that non-Muslim compositors applied for the posts of compositors during the period of 1st November, 1927, till date in the Government of India Press, Delhi and their applications were rejected simply because they were not Muhammadans ?

(e) Is it a fact that Muhammadan compositors aged from 50 to 70 years have been recently employed in preference to non-Muslim young compositors ? If the answer be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state why such a preferential treatment has been adopted ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The information is being obtained and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

PROHIBITION OF THE SALE OF VEGETABLE GHEE.

645. Mr. M. S. Aney (on behalf of Mr. Mukhtar Singh) : (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to page 234 of the Royal Agricultural Commission's Report ? If so, what action do Government propose to take to prohibit the sale of hydrogenated oils and other products under the name of vegetable ghee, Vanaspati ghee or the like ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to take necessary steps so that the vegetable oil be not adulterated with ghee or sold under any such name which may suggest that it is the same or a similar product as ghee ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The matter is engaging the attention of the Government of India who are in communication with Local Governments on the subject.

COST OF CARRYING A TON OF GOODS ONE MILE ON CERTAIN RAILWAYS.

646. Mr. M. S. Aney (on behalf of Mr. Mukhtar Singh) : Will the Government be pleased to state the cost of carrying a ton of goods on the following Railways to a distance of one mile in (a) open trucks (b) in closed wagons ?

(i) North Western Railway.

(ii) Great Indian Peninsula Railway.

(iii) East Indian Railway.

(iv) Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The fiugres are not compiled separately for open and closed wagons. For goods vehicles as a whole, on these and other Class I Railways, the Honourable Member will find the information in columns 15 and 16 of statement 15 in Volume II of the Report by the Railway Board on Indian Railways for 1926-27 and previous years.

IMPORT OF ARTIFICIAL FLOUR.

647. Mr. M. S. Aney (on behalf of Mr. Mukhtar Singh) : (a) Is it a fact that artificial flour synthetically made from wood is imported into this country and is mixed up with the grain flour and sold in the market ? If the answer be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state under what heads the article is entered at the Customs House ?

(b) Have Government analysed this product and do Government consider it fit for human consumption ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Government of India have no information, but have made enquiries.

SAVING OF THE SUGAR INDUSTRY FROM EXTINCTION IN INDIA.

648. Mr. M. S. Aney (on behalf of Mr. Mukhtar Singh) : Have Government decided to take any step to save the sugar industry of this country from extinction ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state the steps proposed to be taken in this behalf ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Government are still considering the matter.

RENTS OF DIFFERENT QUARTERS ALLOTTED TO MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

649. Mr. M. S. Aney (on behalf of Mr. Mukhtar Singh) : Will Government be pleased to state the basis upon which the rent is fixed for the different quarters allotted to the Members of the Assembly ? What percentage of the price of furniture is included in the calculation of rent of these quarters ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The rents in Simla were fixed by adding percentages of the capital cost of the land, buildings, sanitary, water and electric installations and furniture to charges on account of maintenance, taxes and certain services, an addition being made to allow for the fact that the quarters would only be occupied by the Members for short periods. The percentage on the price of the furniture included in the calculation is 20 per annum.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware that the prices of furniture have been put ridiculously high and this indicates the existence of fraud in the Department concerned ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : I am not aware of that. The furniture, I believe, was bought at a time when it was expensive.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Has the Honourable Member seen the furniture himself ? If he has not, will he kindly go round and see the sort of furniture that has been given in the Cart Road quarters ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : I have not seen it, but I shall be very glad to go round and see it for myself.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I shall be very glad if the Honourable Member will kindly do so, and look to the prices.

REVISION OF THE PAY OF THE CLERICAL STAFF OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

650. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) What were the recommendations of the then Director-General of Posts and Telegraphs, Sir (then Mr.) G. R. Clarke in connection with the revision of pay of the clerical staff of his office in 1920-21 ?

(b) What was the basis of his recommendations ?

(c) Were the recommendations of the Director-General accepted by the Government of India ?

(d) If the answer to (c) be in the negative, will Government please state the reasons ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Government are not prepared to disclose the nature of their departmental discussions.

651. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the scale of pay for the Assistant Directors-General of the Post Office is superior to that of the Assistant Secretaries in the Government of India Secretariat ?

(b) What is the reason for the difference between the two scales ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The scales rise by the same annual increment of Rs. 50 from the same minimum, Rs. 1,000 : to Rs. 1,250 in the case of Assistant Secretaries and to Rs. 1,500 in the case of Assistant Directors-General.

(b) The pay of each has been fixed with regard to the nature and conditions of the work.

Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Do not the Assistant Directors-General get an extra pay in addition ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : No.

REORGANISATIONS OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

652. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) How many reorganisations (major and minor) have taken place in the office of the Director-General Posts and Telegraphs since 1923 ?

(b) Will Government please briefly state them and the names of gentlemen who were entrusted with the work ?

(c) Did Government take any steps to give effect to their recommendations ?

(d) Will Government please state the reasons why it was considered necessary to have another re-organisation this year ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Four.

(b) and (c.) The reorganisation proposed by Mr. Hamilton in April, 1925, was not given effect to. On the recommendations made by the Posts and Telegraphs Department Committee, 1924-25, and by Rai Bahadur J. P. Ganguli in December 1925, separate Budget and Establishment Branches were formed in 1926 and 1927. After the transfer of the office from Calcutta to New Delhi, the different branches and sections were re-arranged in April 1928 by the officers of the Direction.

(d) In July last Government considered it necessary to employ Rai Bahadur J. P. Ganguli as special officer again to make a detailed review of the staff necessary to carry on the work under the arrangements made in April last. The report recently received from him reveals justification for the action taken by Government.

(e) No ; but the transfer of the office from Calcutta to Delhi rendered the latest reorganisation necessary.

CHIEF SUPERINTENDENT OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

653. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Do Government contemplate deputing an outsider from among the gazetted rank of Superintendents of Post Offices to the office of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs to work in place of the Chief Superintendent of the office now on leave ?

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to state why the claim of the existing senior fit officials in the office from the cadre of Superintendents downwards has been ignored ?

(c) Were any of the existing senior officials tried for the post ?

(d) If so, how many, and who were they ?

(e) Will Government please state the reasons for bringing in an outsider.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes, temporarily.

(b), (c), (d) and (e). A recent inspection of the office by an independent officer revealed such an unsatisfactory state of affairs that the Director-General considered it necessary to adopt special steps to improve matters. He selected, with the concurrence of Government, a gazetted officer of the rank of Superintendent of Post Offices for the duties of the Chief Superintendent as a temporary measure. This post is a selection post, and seniority gives no claim, either to be tried in or appointed to it.

Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Will the Honourable Member tell the House if the senior officers of the department will be given a chance ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The selection of an outside officer was made deliberately because of the results of the inquiry made by the special officer. It was not considered that any of the senior officers would be as good as the man we have selected for this particular and very difficult task of reorganisation.

MR. B. G. KUNDU, ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL, BURMA.

654. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : With reference to the reply of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs to my question in the last Session is Mr. B. G. Kundu still continuing to act as an Assistant Postmaster General, Burma ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : Yes.

655. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state on what basis promotions are given to the clerks and officers on the Assam Bengal Railway ? Do they make any distinction between Mussalmans and others in matter of promotion ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Definite grades and scales of pay are laid down for clerks and increments are given in these scales provided the work performed has been satisfactory. Officers are on time-scales and promotions from grade to grade are granted on occurrence of vacancies with selection for posts outside the ordinary grade. No distinction is made between Muslims and others in the matter of promotion.

656. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state how many clerks have been recruited by the Statistical Officer, Eastern Bengal Railway, Sealdah, from January up to 31st August 1928, and how many of them are Mussalmans ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : 38 clerks have been recruited by the Statistical Officer of the Eastern Bengal Railway during the period mentioned. Government regret that for reasons which had previously been explained, they do not consider it desirable to give figures of the communal composition of individual offices ; but I can informs the Honourable Member that applications from Muslims for these posts were only about 1 per cent. of the total applications and that the numbers of Muslims taken in were much in excess of this percentage even, though certain of the Muslim applicants who were offered posts did not accept them.

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Were the posts advertised in the newspapers ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : If the Honourable Member requires details of that description, he ought to have asked for them in the original question. He must give me notice.

PASSENGER SUPERINTENDENTS, EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

657. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state how many Passenger Superintendents have been recruited by the Traffic Manager, Eastern Bengal Railway, from January up to 31st August 1928, and what are their respective qualifications, and how many of them are Mussalmans ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : One passenger Superintendent, who had previous railway experience, was recruited. He was not a Muslim.

REPRESENTATION OF MUSLIMS ON THE ASSAM BENGAL RAILWAY.

658. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the Secretary of the Chittagong Islamia Association addressed a demi-official letter on the 17th July 1926, to Mr. Stevenson, the then Chief Engineer of the Assam Bengal Railway with regard to Muslim representation ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Chief Engineer by his letter No. 9738-9744, dated the 13th July, 1926, circulated all the offices under him to give effect to the request contained therein ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Agent of the Assam Bengal Railway has been asked to furnish this information, and it will be communicated to the Honourable Member as soon as his reply is received.

NUMBER OF MUSLIM AND HINDU CLERKS IN CERTAIN SPECIFIED OFFICES OF THE ASSAM-BENGAL RAILWAY.

659. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state what is the number of Muslim and Hindu clerks in the following offices under the administration of the Assam-Bengal Railway :

(1) Traffic Manager's Office.
(2) Agent's Office.
(3) Chief Engineer's Office.
(4) Chief Auditor's Office.
(5) Loco. and Carriage Superintendent, Paharlali, Chittagong Office.
(6) Offices of the District Traffic Superintendents.
(7) Offices of the District Engineers ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government regret that, for reasons which have previously been explained, they are not prepared to give the figures of communal representation in individual offices.

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Is it a fact that Government is refusing the information because very few Muhammadans are appointed to these posts ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir.

GAZETTED POSTMASTERS.

660. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state what is the total number of gazetted Postmasters all over India, and how many of them are Mussalmans ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The total number of gazetted Postmasters, including the Presidency Postmasters, is 48. Of these 3 are Mussalmans.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE CHITTAGONG-DUHAZARI AND THE CHITTAGONG-NAZIRHAT RAILWAYS.

661. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the works of construction of the proposed new Chittagong-Duhazari and the Chittagong-Nazirhat Railways have yet been started by the Assam-Bengal Railway ?

(b) When is it likely to be completed ?

(c) Is it a fact that there is no railway station to the northern side of the Chittagong town, where most of the passengers and traffic gather ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The work on the Chittagong-Nazirhat Railway has been started and the project of the Chittagong-Duhazari Railway is under the consideration of the Board.

(b) The Chittagong-Nazirhat Railway is expected to be completed in January 1930. No date can be given for the Chittagong-Duhazari Railway since it has not yet been decided when the project can be taken up.

(c) It is a fact that there is at present no railway station to the northern side of the Chittagong town.

(b) Were these ever advertised in any local newspapers ?

(c) Who is the authority responsible for the recruitment of the staff in connection with these new constructions ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply already given by me to his question No. 531 of the 13th September.

(c) The Administration of the Assam Bengal Railway Company.

664. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will the Honourable the Commerce Member be pleased to state, how far the case regarding the appointment of a Secretary to the Chittagong Port Commissioners has matured ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The Government of India have sanctioned the proposals of the Commissioners for the Port of Chittagong for the creation of a post of whole-time Secretary to the Commissioners with effect from the date on which the Indian Merchant Shipping (Amendment) Act, 1928, comes into force.

OPENING OF A TECHNICAL SCHOOL IN CONNECTION WITH THE ASSAM-BENGAL RAILWAY AT CHITTAGONG.

665. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state how far the proposal for the opening of a Technical School at Chittagong (Pahartali) in connection with the Assam Bengal Railway has progressed ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Railway Board understand that the Government of Bengal has raised the question of providing facilities for training apprentices at Pahartali with the Agent of the Assam Bengal Railway, and that the Director of Industries, Assam, is also interested in the project. They further understand that the Agent of the Railway has expressed his willingness to assist in providing such facilities. As the Honourable Member will realise, the matter is one primarily for the two Provincial Governments concerned.

REVERSION OF WIRELESS OPERATOR B. C. DEY, RANGOON, TO THE TRAFFIC BRANCH.

666. U. Tok Kyi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the reasons why Wireless Operator B. C. De, Rangoon, was reverted to the Traffic Branch ?

(b) Is there any proposal before the Government to recruit to the Wheatstone Wireless Branch at Rangoon only Anglo-Indians by nomination without calling for volunteers ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Telegraphist B. C. De, while under training in Wheatstone Wireless work, was found to be unsuitable for that particular work and was consequently reverted to the Traffic Branch.

(b) No.

U. Tok Kyi : Is the Honourable Member aware that Mr. B. C. De has incurred the displeasure of his superiors by serving on the Committee of the All-Indian Telegraphic Union ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : No, Sir. Even if he were on the Committee, he would not incure the displeasure of his official superiors on that account.

GRANT OF HOUSE RENT TO STATION SERVICE MEN OF THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

667. U. Tok Kyi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that in the Telegraph Department only general service men are granted house rent, and not the station service men ?

(b) If so, do Government propose to remove the grievance of the station service men ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) Government do not consider that the station service telegraphists have any reasonable grievance. Their pay was fixed on a consolidated basis and on the distinct understanding that no house rent allowance would be admissible. Unlike their confreres in the general service, the station service men are not liable to transfers throughout India.

OPENING OF A SCHOOL FOR TRAINING TELEGRAPHISTS IN BURMA.

668. U. Tok Kyi : Is there any school for training telegraphists in Burma ? If not, do Government propose to open such a school in Rangoon at an early date to enable Burmans to undergo training in telegraphy ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : If the Honourable Member refers to departmental classes for training in telegraphy, one already exists in Rangoon. If, however, his question relates to the telegraph classes established in certain educational institutions in India for providing trained recruits for the Telegraph Department, then no such training classes exist in any educational institutions in Burma. It is not proposed to open any, since all such classes are being closed in India, owing to the adoption of new rules for recruitment for the telegraph service.

DEPRESSED CONDITION OF THE SILK WEAVING INDUSTRY IN SOME PARTS OF BENGAL, ETC.

669. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the observations made in the report of the Royal Commission on Agriculture in India regarding the " competition which is already confronting the Indian silk industry from artificial silk ", and the risk that the demand for the natural article will weaken if the use of artificial silk continues to increase at its present rate ?

(b) Has the attention of Government also been drawn to a series of articles by Mr. J. N. Sarkar, M.A., which appeared in the Amrita Bazar Patrika during the last week of August, under the heading " Decline of Indian Silk Industry ", in which the writer has tried to show that the apprehension of the Royal Commission on Agriculture as indicated in part (a) above, has already come true, and particularly that the silk weaving industry in some parts of Bengal is in a very depressed condition ?

(c) Did Government at any time consult the Local Governments regarding the effect of increasing imports of artificial silk yarn and fabrics on the indigenous silk industry, either before or after effecting the reduction in the import duty on artificial silk yarn last autumn ? If so, when and with what result ?

(d) Do Government propose to take any action in the matter, particularly in view of the observations of the Royal Commission on Agriculture quoted above ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) No.

(d) The figures available do not show that the increasing imports into India of artificial silk yarn and manufactured goods have been accompanied by a decrease in the Indian demand for the natural article. The facts known to the Government of India do not disclose any grounds for action.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Do I take it that the Government have decided to take no notice of this particular observation of the Agricultural Commission ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I do not think the Honourable Member is entitled to draw that inference.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : What are the materials at the disposal of the Honourable Member, beyond the figures which he has mentioned, which have enabled him to come to the conclusion to which he has ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The figures available to the Government of India are the same as those available to Honourable Members of this House. They are those which are published in the trade returns.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : May we not expect the Government of India to address Local Governments on this question in view of the definite observations made by the Royal Commission on Agriculture ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : It is precisely in view of the nature of the observations made by the Royal Commission that I give the answer which I did give. They say :

" Unfortunately there are no figures available for the total production of natural silk in India, but it has been stated in evidence that at present the demand for natural silk has not declined. "

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Do not the Government think that the Provincial Governments might be in a position to assist them in this matter ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : If the position were such as the Honourable Member apprehends it to be, I should have expected that the Local Governments would have addressed the Government of India.

PRIVATE NOTICE QUESTION AND ANSWER.

ISSUE OF TREASURY BILLS WITHIN THREE WEEKS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA LOAN BEING FULLY SUBSCRIBED.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : (1) Will Government be pleased to state the reasons why they have been compelled to issue Treasury Bills in India within three weeks after getting their loan this year of Rs. 35 crores fully subscribed and within less than ten days after their borrowing £6 millions in London last month ?

(2) Do Government think that it will be necessary for them to borrow further in London this financial year ?

(3) Do Government expect to have to continue borrowing on Treasury Bills in India hereafter this year ?

(4) Are Government aware of the increasing want of credit in India during the last few months and do they intend to take any measures in this connection which will assure the public in India ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (1) The Revised Estimate for 1927-28 assumed that the outstandings of Treasury Bills with the public at the close of the year would be 9 crores. As a matter of fact, Government issued fewer Treasury Bills in March last, and the outstandings amounted to 7½ crores only. Further, Railway Capital Expenditure last year was about 2½ crores more than the Revised Estimate. The net result is, therefore, that the cash position at the beginning of the current year was 4 crores worse than assumed in the Budget. The Honourable Member is no doubt aware, firstly, that Government did contemplate the issue of Treasury Bills in the current year to an amount which would leave the outstandings at the close of the year at 9 crores, and secondly, that while large disbursements have to be made in September and October on account of discharges of War Bonds, 1928, and of maturing Treasury Bills, land revenue does not begin to flow in till late in January. It is accordingly necessary, in accordance with the Budget programme, that Treasury Bills should be issued in certain months of the year in order to tide over a period when there is a considerable gap between public receipts and outgoings. It is hardly necessary for me to point out, what will have been obvious to the Honourable Member from the Budget Statement, that Government have been doing everything in their power latterly to economise in the way of treasury balances.

(2) and (3). Whether Government will borrow further in London or continue to borrow on Treasury Bills in India are matters which must necessarily depend on circumstances from time to time. Clearly, Government cannot bind themselves beforehand to any particular course of action, but I can assure the Honourable Member that Government will do their best to direct their operations in such a way as to cause the minimum inconvenience to the Indian money market. As a matter of fact, the resumption of the issue of Treasury Bills has coincided with the resumption of the purchases of sterling, so that, in effect, what Government take from the market with the one hand they will give to it with the other.

(4) Government are not aware that there is an increasing lack of credit in India which justifies any special action on their part. They are, of course, aware that the cash balances at the Imperial Bank of India have recently been lower than in previous years—a circumstance which is probably accounted for to a large extent by the hold up of cotton. In any case, Government have received no special representations in the matter and have no present intention of taking any specific measures in the direction indicated by the Honourable Member who is probably aware that since the beginning of December last there has been a net expansion of currency to the extent of Rs. 3 1 3 crores.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Can the Honourable Member tell the House what was the outstanding amount of Indian Treasury Bills at the end of last month ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have not the precise figures with me, Sir, but I believe the amount outstanding with the public was in the neighbourhood of ten crores.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Which is higher than what the Government of India expected to close last year with ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That is probably so.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : And in spite of the Government having got all the 35 crores which they had asked for ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That is perfectly true. I have explained the position in my answer. The amount outstanding at the end of the year may be a particular figure. The amount outstanding at the end of any particular month may be a higher figure, however, for the reason that our receipts and outgoings from month to month do not tally.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : How will they compare on an average with the last year ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I do not quite understand that question.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : How do the Treasury Bills this year compare on an average with the last year ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I much regret I still fail to appreciate the Honourable Member's question. As a matter of fact this year the sale of Treasury Bills has been suspended for some months.

(Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya repeated the question.)

Sir Victor Sassoon : Is the amount for this month the same as for the similar month of the previous years or not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : If my Honourable friend wants to know what the total amount of sales this month is likely to be, I much regret I am unable to give him that information.

Sir Victor Sassoon : The question is this. The amount outstanding, as I understand from the answer, is ten crores. How does this amount compare with the amount outstanding this month last year and this month in the previous year ?

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : I hope the matter is now quite clear to the Honourable the Finance Member.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have not got the figures here, Sir, and I am not sure whether it would be possible for me to disclose the figures.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Sir, as regards the total amount of 35 crores which the Government of India asked for through the loan, did that include repayment of Treasury Bills outstanding ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : If my Honourable friend had read the Budget statement of this year, he would have found that it contemplated the raising of 32 crores by Treasury Bills this year and the repayment by Government during the year of an equal amount leaving the outstandings at the end of the year at 9 crores.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Does that include the Treasury Bills in the Paper Currency Reserve, Sir ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : No, Sir. I do not think that includes the Treasury Bills in the Paper Currency Reserve. I am sorry the figure I gave of 32 crores was not correct, it is 35 crores : those 35 crores are the Treasury Bills issued to the public.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Regarding the Honourable Member's reply to my question No. 4, do I take it that the Honourable Member wants this House to believe that the Government of India are not aware of the increasing want of credit in commercial circles in India ?

Mr. President : Order, order. The Honourable Member has already said so.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : I want the Honourable Member to repeat his reply so that I may not misunderstand it, Sir. I want to know whether the Honourable Member asks us to believe that the Government of India are not aware of the increasing want of credit in India during the last few months.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I can only repeat part of the answer which I have already given to the House. Government are not aware that there is an increasing lack of credit in India which justifies any special action on their part.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Are Government aware that the bank rate has all this slack season been at five per cent. ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Government are fully aware of that ; and if the Honourable Member had listened to my reply, he would have found out that a later portion of my answer to that particular part of his question refers to the fact that the cash balances of the Imperial Bank have recently been lower than in previous years.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Are Government also aware that call money rate has been ruling between 3½ per cent. and 4 per cent. all through the monsoon period ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : They are aware of that. Sir, but it does not follow that that justifies any special action on their part.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : May I know what conclusion the Government of India have drawn from the facts that the bank rate was 5 per cent. during the slack season and that the cash balances with the Imperial Bank have gone down ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Government of India have drawn the precise conclusion to which I have referred in my answer to the main question.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : My Honourable friend's answers are so long that it is impossible to make out what exactly the point of these answers is. Sir, I have listened to that answer very carefully and he has not indicated what conclusion the Government of India have drawn from these figures.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The conclusion which my Honourable friend wants the Government of India to draw is that credit is becoming increasingly difficult in India.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : If Government disagrees with that, what is the conclusion that they draw from these facts ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The conclusion they draw is that the circumstances are not such as to justify the Government of India to take any special action in the matter. I am sorry that the answer to the main question is a long one, but the question itself dealt with matters of some importance and it was not possible for me to confine my answer to a smaller compass. As a matter of fact, the result of the supplementary questions is that we are drifting into a regular discussion

ESTABLISHMENT OF AN ELECTED BOARD IN PESHAWAR CANTONMENT.

382. Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the civil population of Peshawar Cantonment is more than 25,000 ?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state why an elected Board should not be now given to the residents of that Cantonment as allowed by the Cantonment Act ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) I have no separate figures to show the number of the civil population in the Peshawar Cantonment. The Census Report of 1921 shows the total population of the Cantonment as 25,025.

(b) Under the provisions of clause (b) of the proviso to section 14 (1) of the Cantonments Act, 1924, the constitution of an elected board in a Cantonment in the North-West Frontier Province does not depend on the numbers of its civil population, but on the discretion of the Local Government.

GRIEVANCES OF TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

383. Mr. G. Sarvotham Rao : (a) (i) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the issue of the Tribune, dated the 13th June 1928 under the heading " Post Office Town Inspectors " ?

(ii) Are the facts stated therein substantially correct ?

(iii) If so, what action, if any, has been taken ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to say (1) whether the Postal Superintendents, the Postal Overseers, the Sorting Postmen, the Branch Postmasters and the Postal Muffasil Inspectors were removed from their permanent posts and transferred to the next subordinate lines when the scale of pay in respect of each of the above classes was raised by the Government and (2) whether the above-mentioned officials were replaced by men who rendered more years' service in the subordinate lines ?

(c) If not, why have the officials who were taken as recruits from clerks and appointed substantively as Town Inspectors long ago in preference to their clerks been replaced by clerks ? What action has been taken by the Government to redress the grievances of the aforesaid Town Inspectors ?

(d) Is it a fact that the postal Town Inspectors attached to the First Class Head Office stations have been supervising the work of the clerks—senior or junior ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Government have seen some papers containing articles regarding the Postal Town Inspectors. Representations from Service Associations, Town Inspectors and other postal officials regarding the operation of the orders relating to the appointments of Town Inspectors have been received and are at present under my consideration.

CREDITING TO THE GOVERNMENT AND NOT TO THE CANTONMENT FUND OF INCOME FROM FELLED TREES OF " A " CLASS LAND IN CANTONMENTS.

384. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that since the classification of Cantonment land into " A ", " B " and " C " classes and the putting of " A " class land entirely in charge of the military officers, the income from felled trees of " A " class land is credited to the Government and not to the Cantonment Fund ?

(b) Is it a fact that " A " class land was in the charge of the Cantonment Authority before 1924, and is it true that all the trees standing thereon were planted and nourished at the expense of the Cantonment Fund ?

(c) Will the Government state the grounds for appropriating to itself the ' receipts ' from the trees planted by the Cantonment Authority ?

(d) Is it a fact that the All-India Cantonments Association has taken strong objection to this diversion of Cantonment Fund receipts to the Government by executive instructions ?

(e) Do the Government propose to reconsider the matter and direct that the receipts from trees standing on " A " Class land be as before credited to the Cantonment Fund ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) Yes.

(b) Before 1924, all Government lands in Cantonments, except those in actual military occupation, were managed by the Cantonment Authority as the representative of the Secretary of State for India. Receipts and expenditure connected with these lands, including the planting and tending of trees thereon, passed through the accounts of the Cantonment Fund, but the Fund itself vested in His Majesty and the Cantonment Authority was not the owner of any property.

(c) The ownership of trees follows the ownership of the land on which they stand. Unless the land on which the trees stand is transferred to the Cantonment Authority under section 108 of the Cantonments Act, 1924, the trees do not vest in or belong to that authority.

(d) The Association has made a protest.

(e) The answer is in the negative, for the reasons stated above.

ELECTION OF THE VICE-PRESIDENT, CANTONMENT BOARD, ABBOTTABAD.

385. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that though the Cantonment Board, Abbottabad, was constituted in the beginning of the current year, yet no Vice-President has been elected in that Board so far ?

(b) Are Government aware that under section 20 (2) of the Cantonments Act it is obligatory for a Board to elect the Vice-President ?

(c) Is it a fact that the All-India Cantonments Association drew the attention of the Northern Command to the matter in their letter No. 764-A., dated the 1st July 1928 ?

(d) Will the Government state :

(i) why the provisions of section 20 (2) were ignored so long in Abbottabad ; and (ii) when the election of the Vice-President can be expected to be held ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I am making enquiries and will let the Honourable Member know the result.

ESTABLISHMENT OF AN ELECTED CANTONMENT BOARD IN CHAKRATA.

386. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that Chakrata had a civil population of 3,140 according to the last Government Census Report and the present population is about 4,000 ?

(b) Is it a fact that under section 14 of the Cantonments Act, it is the right of every Cantonment outside the North-West Frontier Province, having a civil population of 2,500 or over to have an elected Board there ?

(c) Is it a fact that Chakrata, though entitled to an elected Board under the Act, is still administered by a Corporation Sole ?

(d) Is it a fact that the All-India Cantonments Association protested against the constitution of a " Corporation Sole " in Chakrata but that the Army Department refused to change the constitution ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to state the reasons that have led the Government to establish a " Corporation Sole " in Chakrata in spite of its having a civil population of more than 2,500 ?

(f) Are Government aware that the people of Chakrata greatly resent their being deprived of their civic rights, and have many grievances due to their having no voice in the administration ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) The last Government Census Report shows the permanent population of the Chakrata Cantonment as 1,459, and the temporary population during the hot weather as 3,661. These figures apparently include both the civil and the military population. Government have no information as regards the present population, but the civil population during the cold weather is very small.

(b) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to section 11 of the Act. The discretion to constitute or not to constitute a Cantonment Board in any Cantonment rests with the Governor General in Council irrespective of the size of the civil population. Section 14 merely regulates the composition of a Cantonment Board if it has been decided to establish one.

(c) The Chakrata Cantonment is administered by a " Corporation Sole." It is not entitled to an elected board under the Act.

(d) Yes.

(e) The Cantonment has a floating civil population from April to October and for the rest of the year the bazaar remains practically closed. Government do not consider that in these circumstances the Cantonment would be suitably administered by a Board.

(f) The answer is in the negative.

TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

387. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the issues of :

(i) the Bengal, dated the 29th May, 1928, under the heading " Postal Town Inspectors " ;

(ii) the Englishman, dated the 30th May, 1928, under the heading " Postal Town Inspectors in Calcutta "; and (iii) the Forward, dated the 10th June 1928, under the heading "Vagaries of the Postal Department" ?

(b) If so, what steps have been taken ?

NUMBER OF TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES IN THE PUNJAB AND NORTH WEST FRONTIER CIRCLE, ETC.

†388. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the total number of postal Town Inspectors attached to the First Class Head Post Offices in the Punjab and North West Frontier Circle and how many of them have been removed from their substantive appointments of Town Inspectors, after 1st September, 1927 ?

(b) What is the total number of the postal Town Inspectors in the Bengal and Assam Circle First Class Head Post Offices and how many of them have been removed from their substantive appointments of Town Inspectors after the 1st September 1927 ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : I propose to answer questions Nos. 387 and 388 together. Government have seen some but not all of the papers mentioned by the Honourable Member. Representations from Town Inspectors, Service Associations and others regarding the operation of the orders relating to the appointments of Town Inspectors have been received and are at present under my consideration.

PROMOTIONS TO SELECTION GRADE APPOINTMENTS IN THE POST OFFICE AND THE RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE.

389. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that promotion, in future, to a post in the lowest selection grade in the Post Office and R. M. S. will not be allowed unless the candidate exhibits the requisite qualification necessary for the post by passing the departmental test ?

(b) If so, have the equal number of text books been prescribed for all the candidates who will have to get promotion after passing the departmental test ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes.

(b) The text books are the same, except as regards the Post Office Manual of which parts of two volumes have been prescribed for postal candidates and part of one for Railway Mail Service candidates—these covering the duties of the two branches.

ADOPTION OF A UNIFORM SYSTEM OF EXAMINATION FOR CANDIDATES FOR THE EXAMINATION FOR PROMOTION TO THE LOWEST SELECTION GRADE POSTS IN THE POST OFFICE AND RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE.

390. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that—

(i) the text books prescribed for the examination for the posts of postal Superintendents are the same for all candidates for such posts ;

(ii) the text books prescribed for the examination for promotion to the post of an Inspector in the Muffasil or Superintendents' head clerks in the Post Offices were also the same for all candidates who were allowed to sit for the examination ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 387.

(b) If so, what steps have been taken to adopt a uniform system of examination for all candidates who will be allowed to sit for the examination for promotion to the lowest selection grade posts in the Post Offices and the R. M. S. ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) (i). Yes.

(ii) The examination was conducted by Heads of Postal Circles, each of whom prescribed his own syllabus, and it is probable that the text books were not exactly the same in each Circle.

(b) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to Director-General's Circular No. 10, dated the 24th May 1928, which contains the conditions and syllabus of the examination. A copy will be supplied to the Honourable Member.

GRANT OF PASSAGE CONCESSIONS TO MEMBERS OF THE NON-SUPERIOR SERVICES WHO ARE OF NON-ASIATIC DOMICILE.

391. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the Government of India have had under consideration for the past few years the question of granting passage concessions to members of the non-superior services who are of non-Asiatic domicile ?

(b) If so, when do the Government propose to issue orders ?

(c) Is it a fact that similar concessions have been granted to members of the non-superior services in Army Headquarters ?

(d) If the answer to (c) is in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for the delay in the extension of the same concessions to members of the civil departments ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Yes, in the case of officers serving under the Central Government.

(b) Orders will issue as soon as possible.

(c) Yes, in the case of one class, viz., ex-military clerks.

(d) The delay is due to the larger number of persons involved and to the great variety in the nature and terms of their employment.

PROMOTION OF A SECOND DIVISION CLERK OF THE WIRELESS BRANCH TO THE FIRST DIVISION.

392. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Will the Honourable Member in charge of the Industries and Labour Department be pleased to state :

(i) whether a second division clerk of the Wireless Branch has been promoted to the first division from 1st January, 1928 ;

(ii) whether the clerk was promoted on the distinct understanding that he will be transferred from the Wireless Branch, Simla, to the D. G. P. and T.'s Office, Delhi, and will take up purely first division work ;

(iii) whether the clerk is still retained in the Wireless Branch and is given facilities for doing purely routine work in the branch ;

(iv) why he has not yet been transferred to Delhi in accordance with the orders passed by the Establishment Officer of the Department ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (i) Yes.

(ii) Yes.

(iii) He is retained in the Wireless Branch, but is employed as a 1st Division reserve clerk.

(iv) The matter is still under consideration pending final orders on the report of the Special Officer on the Director-General's office.

SUPERSESSION OF CERTAIN CLERKS OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

393. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Is it a fact that on the occasion of a sectional arrangement, a junior non-matric clerk in one of the branches of D. G. P. & T.'s Office, Simla, was allowed, under D. G.'s Memo. No. Staff-A.-0228|28, dated 3rd July 1928, to supersede his senior clerks (including one graduate and passed P. O. Superintendentship). If the reply to the above is in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state :

(i) whether the superseded senior clerks have ever officiated in the grade of Branch Superintendent (previously Head Assistant), if so why they have now been refused for the post ;

(ii) whether any representation or appeal from the affected clerks has since been received. If so, what action have Government taken or propose to take in the matter ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (i) Yes ; the vacancy was however a temporary one of short duration and the arrangement made to fill it was that which would least upset the work of the Branch as a whole, without reference to seniority or other qualifications.

(ii) Yes, one of the clerks appealed to the Director-General and to Government. His appeals were rejected.

REDUCTION OF RENTS OF GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL RESIDENCES IN SIMLA.

394. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will the Government be pleased to explain the circumstances under which all the rents of Government official residences in Simla have been reduced ? Will Government be pleased to state whether it is true that refunds have been given to tenants for excess rents paid in Simla and state the full amount of refunds so paid as well as the largest sum paid to an individual ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state how many houses of A, B and C Class exist and how their rents and allotment are decided ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the actual cost to Government of the houses now occupied by the Members of the Executive Council, the rents paid for them, the cost of annual repairs for the last three years, and the returns to Government on the capital outlay ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The Secretary of State for India sanctioned in August 1927 certain new rules (45, 45A and 45B) to take the place of the old Fundamental Rule 45, in order to give effect to the recommendations of the Royal Commission on the Superior Services in regard to house rent. Of these new rules, Fundamental Rule 45-A applies, inter alia, to all officers serving directly under the Government of India in Simla. The rents of Government residences in Simla have been re-assessed according to that rule with effect from the 1st April, 1924, and refunds have been given to the tenants accordingly. The total amount of refunds of rent up to date in respect of officers' houses is Rs. 1,65,461 and the largest amount refunded to an individual was Rs. 3,964.

(b) There are 7 " A " class houses,
8 " B " class houses, and 8 " C " class houses.

Their rents are assessed in accordance with the rule referred to in first portion of this question ; the allotments are made according to the rules prescribed for the purpose.

	Rs.
(c) (i) The book value of the houses (excluding the value of the sites) occupied by the ordinary Members of the Executive Council is	6,62,834
(ii) The rents paid for them per year amount to	33,000
(iii) The cost of annual repairs for the past three years is	47,178 or 15,726 on an average per year.
(iv) The return to Government was therefore on the average	17,274

RENTS OF GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL RESIDENCES IN SIMLA.

395. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (i) Will Government be pleased to state if it is true that officials drawing Rs. 4,000 to Rs. 5,000 are residing in furnished houses possessing tennis courts, kept in order at Government expense, and free of house and ground taxes for which they pay rents ranging from Rs. 1,150 to Rs. 1,430 per season of seven months ?

(ii) Is it a fact that an official drawing over Rs. 4,000 per mensem is living in a Government house at a rent of under Rs. 770 for the Simla season ?

(iii) Is it a fact that a number of well paid officers are residing in furnished houses at rates considerably below those which some of their subordinates have to pay for inferior unfurnished houses ?

(iv) Do Government intend to review the position which has been created by their recent action and to institute a more equitable state of affairs ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (i) In Class A houses which are intended for officers drawing Rs. 4,000 a month or over, the inclusive rents for furnished accommodation lie between Rs. 1,152 and Rs. 1,395 with the exception of one house which is rented at Rs. 1,429 without furniture.

(ii) Yes ; the house is unfurnished.

(iii) The operation of the rules governing house rent has resulted in the rents for certain houses in lower classes being higher than the rents for certain houses of a superior class.

(iv) Government will examine the question.

DEPUTATION OF THE CHIEF CONTROLLER OF STORES, INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT, TO CEYLON.

396. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the permanent Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department, has gone on deputation to Ceylon for nine months only ?

(b) Is it a fact that the acting Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department, has ordered that no members of the ministerial establishment should be allowed to go on deputation for any period less than eighteen months ?

(c) What are the reasons for the differential treatment ?

(d) Is it that officers can be more easily replaced than members of the ministerial establishment ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) No such orders have been issued by the Chief Controller of Stores.

(c) and (d). Do not therefore arise.

DISCONTENT AMONG THE MEMBERS OF THE STAFF OF THE INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT.

397. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that many members of the staff of the Indian Stores Department apply for posts elsewhere ?

(b) Is it a fact too that many of the men to whom offers are made by the Indian Stores Department decline to take them up ?

(c) Is there not a general discontent in the Indian Stores Department in this matter ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) There has been a number of instances in which the staff of the Indian Stores Department have applied for posts elsewhere to better their prospects.

(b) There have been a few such cases.

(c) I am not aware of any general discontent among the staff of the Indian Stores Department.

RECRUITMENT OF STENOGRAPHERS TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA SECRETARIAT AND ATTACHED OFFICES.

398. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that--

(i) the old Staff Selection Board and the present Public Service Commission hold different speed tests for recruitment of stenographers to the Government of India offices, but do not base their nominations to the Secretariat and to the attached offices on the result of such tests ?

(ii) there are as a result of this (a) men who have been exempted and (b) men who have passed only the 80 words speed test in the Secretariat, while there are men with higher speed test qualifications in attached offices ?

(iii) the results of a speed test or tests are not alone sufficient for the selection of stenographers, but that tests of ability to draft and summarise are also required ?

(iv) men who were already in the employ of the Government of India at the time of the appointment of the late Staff Selection Board were not required to pass any test even as permanent men in attached offices were not required to do so ?

(v) that the qualifications required by the Government of India of stenographers of their Secretariat and attached offices are one and the same ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (i) At the last examination for stenographers, held by the late Staff Selection Board in 1924, candidates were required to qualify in stenography at speeds of 100 and 140 words per minute. No examination for stenographers has so far been held by the Public Service Commission. The names of candidates who qualify as stenographers in open competition are placed on a waiting list according to the marks obtained by them in the written test and they are nominated for vacancies in the Secretariat and in the attached offices as they occur, in the order in which their names appear on the list.

(ii) Yes.

(iii) In addition to the technical test, candidates for the post of stenographer are required to qualify in a written examination consisting of papers in English, precis writing and drafting.

(iv) Yes.

(v) The initial qualifications are the same.

PROPORTION OF STENOGRAPHERS TO OFFICERS IN ATTACHED OFFICES OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

399. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the number of stenographers to officers is less in attached offices than in the Secretariats ?

(b) Is it also a fact that officers in attached offices have to do a lot of touring which most of the officers in the Secretariat have not to do ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) The number of stenographers is fixed with reference to the particular requirements of each office. There is no general principle such as the Honourable Member's question would suggest.

(b) No general statement is possible, as the position varies from post to post. Some officers holding posts in attached offices are required to make frequent tours ; others do less touring, and others again do none. Similarly in the Secretariat the position is different in different Departments ; but generally speaking the amount of touring that officers in the Secretariat are required to do is small.

INCREMENT OF A STENOGRAPHER IN THE FOREIGN AND POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.

400. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that in the Foreign and Political Department a Deputy Secretary noted on his stenographer's case for increment that he had not seen him for more than three months, and so could not make a recommendation ?

(b) Is it a fact that the recommendation for that stenographer was made by the Assistant Secretary of that Department, and that on such recommendation the increment was sanctioned ?

Sir Denys Bray : (a) and (b). The answer is in the negative.

MESSAGE FROM THE COUNCIL OF STATE.

Secretary of the Assembly : The following Message has been received from the Secretary of the Council of State :

" I am directed to inform you that the Council have at their meeting held on the 17th September, 1928, agreed without any amendment to the Bill to amend the Hindu law relating to exclusion from inheritance of certain classes of heirs and to remove certain doubts, which was passed by the Legislative Assembly on the 22nd March, 1928."

RESOLUTION RE EDUCATION OF GIRLS AND WOMEN IN THE TERRITORIES ADMINISTERED BY THE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT.

Mr. President: The House will now resume further discussion of the following Resolution moved by the Revd. J. C. Chatterjee on the 11th September, 1928 :

" This Assembly recommends to the Governor General in Council that he be pleased to sanction a substantial grant, capital as well as recurring, for the furtherance of girls' education in the centrally administered territories, and that as a first step towards this, a well-staffed and up-to-date college be established for the training of women teachers.

This Assembly further recommends that a competent Committee, including prominent women, be appointed to go into the subject and to make a report."

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub (Rohilkhund and Kumaon Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, the subject matter of this Resolution is so self-evident that it does not require very ingenious arguments or long speeches to convince the Government of India of the necessity of spending more money on female education than they have been doing up to this time. On the first day when this Resolution was being discussed, it was shown to the satisfaction of the House that the Government of India is not spending as much money on the education of girls, in territories directly under their administration, as the Provincial Governments are doing in the provinces, and, although education is now a transferred subject, in the territories centrally administered, the Government of India is as much responsible for the efficiency of education as it is responsible for the efficiency of the Army in India. It has been shown the other day that the number of female scholars and the number of girls' schools in these territories is hopelessly small and stands in need of an impetus as soon as possible.

Sir, this Resolution makes very moderate and sensible demands. The first demand or recommendation contained in it is for the establishment of a first-class training college for female teachers at Delhi. We know very well, Sir, that the chief difficulty in the way of female education in India is the want of trained female teachers. The number of girls' schools cannot be increased because we do not get trained female teachers. Also many of the existing girls' institutions are suffering for want of a sufficient number of teachers. The want of trained teachers is not felt for girls' schools only ; such lady teachers are especially needed by a large section of Mussulmans who still hesitate in sending their girls even to girls' schools. Therefore, we hope that the Government of India will take early steps to provide the money for training female teachers as soon as possible.

The other recommendation made in the Resolution is that a Committee of eminent men and women be appointed to go into the whole subject and make a report. Sir, the Government of India has recently been appointing a large number of Committees and Commissions, and it is indeed a pity that the attention of the Government of India has not yet been directed towards female education and that no committee has yet been appointed to go thoroughly into this very difficult and intricate subject. We have not yet got a suitable curriculum and course of studies for female education, and there are so many other subjects which greatly stand in need of being investigated. We therefore hope that no further delay will be made in meeting the request made in this Resolution, and that a Committee, as suggested by the Resolution, will soon be appointed by Government. I am afraid my Honourable friend, the holder of the portfolio of Education in this House, will say that the whole question of education in Delhi is under discussion and that the Government of India cannot give any undertaking until the report of the Delhi University Inquiry Committee is out. But, Sir, I hope that this very important question of female education will not be delayed until the report of that Committee is out. I do not know if the question of female education in the centrally administered territories has been referred to that Committee, but if it has not been, there is no reason why Government should not at once give us an undertaking that they will appoint a Committee to go into this question. Also the question of the establishment of a first-rate college for training female teachers should not be delayed any more. I think that this question also is not within the purview of the inquiry of the University Committee. The question of finance also, I think, ought not to come in the way of taking steps about this matter, because, as has already been shown, the Government of India is spending a very small sum of money on the education of girls. Therefore the question of finance should not come in the way of early steps being taken.

With these words, Sir, I lend my whole-hearted support to the Resolution.

Sardar Gulab Singh (West Punjab : Sikh) : Sir, I rise to support the Resolution of my Honourable friend Sardar Bahadur Jowahir Singh which has been so ably moved by my Honourable friend the Reverend Chatterjee, and to move the following amendments :

" That after the words ' up-to-date college ' the words ' and normal Schools ' be inserted ; and before the word ' women ' in the last line of the first paragraph the word ' Indian ' be inserted."

The Resolution as it stands does not in my opinion express our full demand ; for normal schools to train teachers for primary education are as essential as colleges to train teachers for secondary schools. I make these amendments, Sir, to this Resolution. Besides, Sir, I support the Resolution as it stands. The subject of female education, Sir, is an extremely important one.

Mr. President : No one has questioned that.

Sardar Gulab Singh : It has been fully discussed, Sir, by the Honourable Mover. When I first moved this Resolution on the first non-official day in the first Assembly in 1921, Sir Henry Sharp, then in charge of the Education portfolio, admitted it to be an important Resolution and called it pious and engaging and also expressed full sympathy, hearty sympathy, on behalf of the Government with the Resolution ; but so far no action has been taken in this matter. I say, Sir, it is a subject that is not receiving the attention which it deserves and necessary steps are not being taken to improve the deplorable state of female education, especially in the centrally administered territories under the direct charge of an Executive Councillor of the Government of India, who should make the minor administration a model for other provinces. The literacy of females, Sir, in India is of course about 1 per cent., but in the centrally administered territory it is far far lower. The expenditure, Sir, even in the advanced administrations, say, Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara, on female education, is about one-fifth of the expenditure on male education in these provinces. I am of opinion that the expenditure on female education should be greater at present ; in case the Government do not agree to give a special grant, of course we can then increase the grant already given for education of females. The experience, Sir, in other provinces shows that numbers of girl scholars are freely forthcoming when the number of schools is increased. Even strict purdah girls attend schools when the schools are near and can be approached. It is the lack of schools that has hindered the daughters of India to adorn themselves with the invaluable jewel ; therefore it is desirable that education should be free and a number of scholarships should be provided and liberal grants-in-aid given to private schools to stimulate female education. If we compare, Sir, even the literacy of females in two important cities, Lahore and Delhi, we find that the former is double that of the latter. To improve the state of female education, Sir, in the said territories funds are badly needed, and Government should make liberal grants, capital as well as recurring. It only needs more financial help than it gets now. Separate minor administrations cannot afford to have training schools of their own. So it is incumbent upon the Government to make special grants for such institutions. Of course, Sir, the right step to take up first is that a well-staffed and up-to-date college and normal schools should be established for the training of Indian women as efficient teachers. The need of trained teachers, Sir, is keenly felt all round, and the dearth of such teachers stands in the way of enlarging the number of schools. There are only a few training schools, Sir, with a small number of scholars in the said territories which cannot possibly supply trained teachers to all territories directly under the Central Government, having a female population of 18 lakhs. With the establishment of such institutions alone we can have cheap and competent Indian women teachers who will be able to work in rural areas and will be popular with Indian children. Sir Henry Sharp, during the debate on my Resolution referred to, remarked that :

"there is no branch of education of girls which is so important as the training of Indian women as efficient teachers in the girls' schools and colleges."

To solve this difficult problem, Sir, properly, the authorities should appoint a competent Committee including prominent women to make a report on the subject. Sometime back, Sir, we read in the papers that certain measures were being proposed to found a University for women ; but it all remained a mere talk. If the Government are really anxious to uplift India materially, the best and the fastest way to do so is by female education. By educating a girl, Sir, we educate the whole family, and it has been truly said, Sir, that "the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world". (Applause.) So, I move my amendments, Sir, as already stated.

Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda (Ajmer-Merwara : General) : Sir, I rise to support the Resolution moved by my Honourable friend Revd. Chatterjee. The education of girls is no less important than the education of boys, but in certain areas, considering the condition of things there, I think it is comparatively more important. A college for the education of girls with a suitable curriculum is a very desirable one and one such college should be established in a central place. But what is of far greater importance is that schools for training women teachers should be established in each of the areas under the direct administration of the Government of India.

My province of Ajmer-Merwara is under the direct administration of the Government of India, and we have therefore to look to this Government for the necessary educational facilities.

We are a small province and, according to the last census report of 1921, though in point of literacy, we were in the forefront amongst the provinces of India, in the matter of girls' education we are very much backward ; and were it not for the interest taken by non-Government agencies, by private bodies and individuals in the matter of female education, we should have been nowhere. There is only one Government school for secondary education in the whole of the province against nine private ones ; only six Government primary schools against 15 non-Government ones ; and there is not one Government training school for women teachers, though there is one such private institution at Ajmer. Thus, there are altogether only seven Government schools for primary and secondary education in the whole of the province against 25 non-Government ones. As for the number of girl pupils, out of 56,935 girls of school-going age in my province, only 2,033 are at present receiving education ; that is to say, 3.5 per cent. And if we take the entire women population of the province, 2,25,705, only .9 per cent. receive education, that is to say, not even 1 per cent. This deplorably low percentage is due to the neglect of girls' education on the part of Government. If we exclude the girls receiving education in non-Government institutions, we find that only 228 girls in the whole of the province are receiving education in Government institutions, that is to say, only .4 per cent. of girls of school-going age of my province.

If we consider the Government expenditure on education, we find that on secondary and primary education for girls Government spends only Rs. 20,608 per annum, against Rs. 74,687 spent by private individuals and institutions. Compared with the expenditure on boys' education, which in itself is very small in my province, this comes to only 9 per cent. of that on boys' education. Taking the entire population of Ajmer-Merwara, we find that Government spends only 8 pies per head on girls' education.

I would therefore earnestly invite the attention of Government to this state of affairs and request that an earnest effort should be made to put a stop to this deplorable condition of things. Government should establish secondary schools in all the towns of Ajmer-Merwara, and there are only five towns in my province. The first necessity, however, in my province is an up-to-date suitable training school for women teachers. Sir, Ajmer-Merwara is cut off from the rest of British India. The nearest British province to Ajmer-Merwara is more than 200 miles away from it. Considering this and the difference in language, manners, customs and conditions of society generally, it is not very easy to send young women far away from the province to receive education and be trained as women teachers. If a good suitable school for training women teachers is established in Ajmer-Merwara, the surrounding States of Rajputana will also be able to send women to be trained as teachers and will gladly contribute towards the maintenance of such an institution. This would be a great financial support to Government.

I would therefore urge and hope and trust that the present Chief Commissioner of Ajmer-Merwara, who is greatly interested in girls' education, will lose no time in establishing a good up-to-date training school at Ajmer and secondary schools in all the towns of Ajmer-Merwara, and good primary schools in the more important of the villages, and we trust Government will find funds for this purpose.

† Lala Lajpat Rai (Jullundur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : I rise to propose the amendment that stands in my name, and which runs as follows :

"That for the words 'be established for the training of women teachers' the words 'with departments for Arts, Science and training of teachers be established' be substituted."

The object of this amendment is to draw the attention of the Government of India to the importance of providing facilities for the higher education of girls in the centrally-administered areas.

Sir, the training of teachers cannot be carried on with much profit unless there is a sufficient number of highly educated girls who can be trained as teachers for high schools, middle schools and primary schools. If it were only intended to provide teachers for primary schools, perhaps the Resolution as originally moved might be good, but it is not intended to confine the activities of education only to primary schools. It is absolutely necessary that adequate provision should be made for the higher education of girls by means of high schools and colleges, and therefore the Resolution is not complete without this amendment which I beg to move. The amendment is in no way inconsistent with the original Resolution. It only adds to it and provides that unless a first rate, up-to-date college for the teaching of Arts and Science is added, the motion would be incomplete.

I do not want to take the time of the House in dilating on the importance of female education. That is a matter which is generally accepted on all sides, but I wish to point out to the Government of India that they cannot shirk their responsibility in the matter of education by saying that education in the provinces is a transferred subject. However, that will not be strictly relevant to this debate, and I therefore refrain from enlarging on it. I do not admit that there is anything in the Devolution Rules which make it impossible for the Government of India to make grants for general education in the provinces too. It is a real matter of great disappointment that in a big city like Delhi, which is of historical importance and second to none in the world, except perhaps Rome, that there should not be a single college for the education of girls which is properly fitted and equipped, and that provision for education in Delhi should be so inadequate and incomplete as it is at the present moment. Delhi is the capital of the British Indian Empire, and as such Delhi should give a moral lead to the other provinces in the matter of education of girls, and also in the matter of general education. In Delhi there is the only college for the medical training of women in Northern India, and that also makes it necessary that there should be a first grade college provided for the teaching of Arts and Science to which girls, not only from Delhi could attend, but also from other areas adjacent to Delhi. In Lahore, which is of less importance than Delhi, there are three colleges which cater for girls' education. One is a Government and the other two are missionary colleges. They have a very large number of girls on their rolls, and the girls who are being educated there pay very fair tuition fees. Therefore it cannot be said any longer that people do not care for the education of their girls, provided provision is made which is safe and adequate. Sectarian schools and colleges for the education of girls are not generally approved of by the public. They have some kind of suspicion of sectarian schools. Therefore, what is needed are up-to-date colleges, Government colleges, for the higher education of girls. I know that there is an intermediate college in Delhi called the Indraprastha College. I had a conversation very recently with the manager of that college, and he told me that a large number of applications are rejected every year for want of space. It is an aided institution. That also shows that there is real need for such a college in Delhi, but there is no provision for it and the existing arrangements are not adequate.

I therefore hope that the Government of India, both for the purpose of providing for the education of girls in centrally administered areas and also for giving a moral lead, will establish a well equipped and first rate college in Delhi for the education of girls. It is necessary that such colleges should be established, because teachers cannot be trained unless they have been properly educated. Therefore, first for the purpose of making adequate provision for teachers such colleges are necessary, and I hope Government will take the earliest opportunity of making provision for such a college in Delhi, both for the purpose of providing for the education of girls in centrally administered districts and for giving a moral lead to other provinces. I think it is the moral duty of Government to do so, if Government are serious in their profession of interest which they take in the matter of women's uplift in this country. It is absolutely necessary that this matter should not be neglected any more. In fact without making any reflection on the Delhi University, I should have thought that Government should have considered it more important and necessary to make adequate provision for the higher education of girls than establishing a University at Delhi for boys and men. Delhi, being the capital of the British Indian Empire, ought to have a first-class University providing for the education both of males and females in all the departments of human knowledge, and that should be the first charge upon the revenues of the Government of India. Considering the importance of education and the importance of the education of girls, I have reason to believe, Sir, that the Government is not unsympathetic towards this proposal, and therefore I do not want to take up the time of the House by dilating on this point at any length. I hope the Government will take early steps and will not do anything to postpone the consideration of this subject any longer. That is all I have to say, Sir, and I move my amendment and give my support to the Resolution.

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar (Madras ceded districts and Chittoor : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to support the Resolution, but in the first instance I wish to express my alarm at the remarks passed by my friend, Lala Lajpat Rai. My friend Lala Lajpat Rai says that the Central Government must give a lead to the Provincial Governments in matters like these. I have been glad that Provincial Governments have never looked to the Central Government for a lead in these matters. If they had taken this lead, educational advancement would have been in a worse condition than it is at present. Sir, I will be glad, therefore, if, until the Central Government begins to administer these departments thoroughly and satisfactorily, we do not call upon the Provincial Governments to take any kind of moral lead from the Central Government. It has also been said, Sir, that the area which the Central Government has to administer must present a model. My friend Sirdar Gulab Singh also expressed the same idea. I have often felt when the Budget came up for discussion on the floor of this House that the Central Government should be deprived altogether of the personal administration of even an inch of territory. The small portion of territory which has been entrusted for direct administration to the Central Government has involved that territory in a lot of difficulties and disadvantages. So far as the budget items are concerned, items proposing grants for the judicial administration or for education or for sanitation or for medical, public health, agriculture, industry, connected with the territory directly under the administration of the Government of India have all come under the guillotine and have never been discussed on the floor of this House. If they had a separate method of discussing these subjects, surely the meagreness of provision this House made year after year without the least discussion or without the least criticism on the part of this House or any other responsible body would have disappeared long ago from the Budget. Unfortunately, Sir, at the time of the Budget several important subjects are put first and even in these subjects certain rearrangement of order are made according to the political needs and desires of certain people, so much so all the allotted time is exhausted by the discussion of political subjects in some way or other, and we leave a large number of important subjects undiscussed on the floor of the House and a fortiori subjects which come at the tail end of the Budget are not included, not even attended to, and I would not have been surprised, if we had had less efficient President, if he had even forgotten to put some of these items under the guillotine. Therefore, Sir, I have often thought that these are items which must receive very careful discussion and very careful consideration at some time or other, and it is with that view of the matter that I have always considered that this territory directly under the administration of the Government of India has often been at a disadvantage.

Sir, I may be mistaken but I understand my Honourable friend Lala Lajpat Rai's amendment to mean that there will be no institution for the training of women teachers. As I understand the amendment, he wants the deletion of the words "be established for the training women teachers" and the substitution in their stead of the words "with departments for Arts, Science and training of teachers be established". If these words are inserted into the original Resolution in substitution, the Resolution will read :

"..... and that as a first step towards this, a well-staffed and up-todate college with departments for Arts, Science and training of teachers be established."

On the other hand, what has to be emphasised here is not the training in India of teachers but of women teachers. The training of women teachers is absolutely necessary in order that further advance in female education may be made even in places where there may be prejudices to sending girls for education beyond a particular age. I have always found, Sir, in my practical experience as a President of Local Boards and Chairman of a municipality, that there has been a considerable difficulty in getting female teachers to teach the girls in girls' schools ; so much so that I found several parents of these girls unwilling to send these girls to school for education after the 8th or 9th or at the most the 10th year. On the other hand, if a large supply of women teachers of advanced grade be supplied by colleges established in India for the training of women teachers, I have no doubt that the education of these girls would have gone on to a further age than that to which they have now taken their education. And in fact my friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda would find no difficulty in reforming marriages if female education had advanced in the manner in which it should have advanced if only the Government had been very particular about these matters.

Sir, in provincial administrations it cannot be denied that at present the attention that is paid to girls' education is much more than that which is paid in the Central Government and I have explained the reasons for which the Central Government's action in these matters has always gone unnoticed. I would even recommend by way of an amendment that the Central Government should not only attend to education in territories directly under their administration, but they should also contribute a large amount to Provincial Governments in order to have female education in a further advanced condition than it is at present in the provinces. Even there we find generally the provincial Budgets are for deficits even when they spend very little on the head of Education as they have to meet other expenses, and if such be the condition in respect of the Local Governments, it is but right that the Central Government should consider education as a most important subject and in that view of the matter, Sir, I would even put it before the Treasury Benches that they may see their way to improve education not only in the territories directly under them but also make contributions to the provinces in order to ensure that female education is considerably advanced. We cannot at present count lady graduates even on one's fingers' ends in some of the provinces, and I do not see, Sir, how it will be possible for us to maintain institutions to advance education for girls with the present number of female teachers. And I do consider that it is as essential to attend to girls' education as it is to the increasing number of women teachers well trained in colleges, well equipped in the manner in which my friend Lala Lajpat Rai suggests. In fact the production of a larger number of women teachers ought to be considered to be the highest duty of the State both in the Central as well as the Provincial Governments.

Sir, in this view of the matter, I would strongly urge that the Government should take prompt steps to see that education receives a larger grant. In the current Budget they have allowed only Rs. 3,24,000 under the head of education, under medical 8 lakhs, public health still less, agriculture still less. If that is the way in which they are administering the territory directly under their management, I certainly do not think they will ever become a model to the provinces. On the other hand, it is the absolute and primary duty of the Central Government to see, as my friend observed, that they are taken as the model and in order to entitle them to that position I dare say the Government will pay more attention to education as well as to sanitation and industries under the Central Government.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum (North-West Frontier Province : Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, I should like to add just a few words in support of the Resolution. I come from a province, which is under the direct management of the Government of India, and we look to the Government of India for advancement in all matters, which are called transferred subjects in the major provinces. Education is one of those transferred subjects, and I think it is for the Government of India to set up a model of education for the guidance of the Provincial Governments. It is not only in education, Sir, but in all the other transferred subjects that we see the backwardness of these minor administrations under the Government of India, as compared with the Provincial Governments. If, as is every now and then said, these small provinces cannot bear the expenses of education, and other improvements all that I can say is that these administrations are not the creation of their own will. They have been created for some Imperial purpose and as long as they serve that Imperial purpose, I think they should not suffer on account of their isolation or smallness in matters which directly concern the comforts and happiness of the people of those provinces. The transferred subjects directly concern the comforts of the population, and education is the foremost of all. I do not know whether the education of the female is more essential or the education of the male ! It is for the public to decide. Personally I should think that both are equally important and essential. I cannot make out whether it is the husband who ought to educate his wife and children, or whether it is the mother who should take charge of the education of the children. Whether the one or the other there is no doubt that the education of the female and of the male should go hand in hand and on parallel lines. If we go on with the education of the male, without paying much attention to the education of the female, we will be making the males uncomfortable in their subsequent life by not being able to find proper appointments for themselves, but we will be also making them uncomfortable in their home life, because they will not be able to find educated wives for themselves. That certainly is one consideration which we should bear in mind. If we go on with the education of the male, we should not lag behind in the education of the female, so that the home of the educated people may be happier. As regards the Government of India's attention to education, I do not see any extraordinary activity on their part in that direction. We have been asking for grants for higher education for the male, and if my Honourable friend Lala Lajpat Rai will only see the difficulties that lie in our way in getting help for the higher education of our males, I do not think he will be very much encouraged to ask for a full-fledged college for the higher education of the female.....

Lala Lajpat Rai : Not in Peshawar. I am asking for it in Delhi.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : Let there be one central college for higher education for the female at the capital of the Government of India. I have no objection to that ! !

Lala Lajpat Rai : That is what I want.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : Because, if we do not really need, under the present circumstances, any very high education for the female in their ordinary private life, we at least badly want female doctors for our society, and the higher medical education cannot be acquired without first giving higher education in sciences to the female. If not for anything else, at least for that purpose we want a well-equipped college in sciences at the seat of the Government of India !

With these words, Sir, I support the Resolution of my friend, the Revd. J. C. Chatterjee.

Mr. H. G. Cocke (Bombay : European) : Sir, lest by silence it should be thought that we, on these Benches, are not sympathetic to the cause of education in India, I desire to say that we are. Statistics show that considerably increasing sums have been spent on education in the last 20 years. But during that time we have had a war, and we have had the reaction following the war, and it has not always been possible to find as much money for education as we should all have liked. I believe that in the next 20 years, if there is no war, we shall find this country very greatly advancing in education. It is very much wanted, and particularly, in the direction of women's uplift, as my Honourable friend Lala Lajpat Rai has just described it ; it is most essential that this country should go forward. I think it is one of the good points about the transfer of the Central Government from Calcutta to Delhi that we have now, at the seat of the Government of India, a fine city with ample space to establish colleges for the training of men and women, doctors and so on. Therefore I hope that this Resolution will be acceptable to Government and that far greater sums in future will be available for all sorts of education than it has been possible to grant in the past.

Mr. M. S. Aney (Berar Representative) : Sir, the Resolution and also some of the amendments that have been moved will no doubt find general acceptance with the whole House. The question of girls' education in centrally administered areas is surely a matter which ought to be one of serious consideration for this House. The Central Legislature is generally occupied in considering important questions of policy affecting the whole of British India. But, at the same time, there is a special responsibility on the Central Legislature to look after those areas which are known as centrally administered areas, as these provinces have got no other representative institutions in which their provincial grievances and difficulties can be properly ventilated and considered. It is a special responsibility which is peculiar to the Central Legislature, but unfortunately, it is not sufficiently attended to and realised. Although it is a matter of some reflection on this House, the fact is there. Therefore, whenever a question like the present one is raised by any person coming from these centrally administered areas, it generally evokes the sympathy of the whole House.

This House is certainly glad that the question has been raised and an opportunity given to this House to express its active sympathy for the educational advance which the centrally governed areas want to make. In connection with this certain facts which have been brought to our notice in that small but interesting speech which my Honourable friend, Mr. Sarda, has delivered, also deserve to be considered. I find from his speech that whatever progress girls' education has really made in that little province of his which he represents here with so much credit to himself and to this House also—whatever progress has been made in the matter of girls' education—was mainly due to private enterprise and not to Government effort. It is a matter of peculiar importance that since the advent of the reforms, in the provinces where reformed Governments have come into existence, considerable progress in the matter of girls' education has been made. The provinces where the subject of education is a transferred subject have made serious efforts to give an impetus to the cause of girls' education. I wish to know from the Secretary to the Education Department, when he makes his speech, what efforts the Government of India have made since the beginning of the reforms to keep pace with the provinces in the matter of the progress of girls' education in centrally administered areas. If they are lagging behind, the centrally administered areas may legitimately say that they are being considered only as a charge for Imperial purposes and not for developing them, particularly in those subjects or departments which are known as transferred subjects, and the grievances of my Honourable friend, Nawab Sir Abdul Qaiyum, will have ample justification. So, that is a point on which the House would like to have some information from the Education Secretary.

Out of the 2,000 girls of school-going age who are at present having education in the schools in Ajmer-Merwara, only 200 are having their education in Government schools. If that is the position, there is undoubtedly great scope for the Central Government to develop girls' education in that province.

The second point which strikes me as being very peculiar is this. So far as the first part of the Resolution is concerned, I think there will be universal agreement in this House ; as regards the third part also there will be universal agreement here ; but as regards the second part of the Resolution in which the demand is being made for the establishment of a well-staffed and up-to-date college for the training of women teachers, there are some points which have to be considered. In the first place, what are the centrally administered areas ? Is it one contiguous area ? No. There is the North-West Frontier Province, there is Ajmer-Merwara, there is the Delhi Province, there is Coorg which is removed from these three provinces by thousands of miles. There are, besides, cantonment areas and also Residencies not to mention penal settlements like the Andamans and Nicobars. All these are centrally administered areas, and so far as the scope of the Resolution goes, it is intended to develop female education, primary and secondary, as far as possible. That appears to me to be the scope of the Resolution as it was originally moved by my Honourable friend, Mr. Chatterjee. If that be so, one well-staffed college for training women teachers will certainly not do to cater to the needs of these scattered areas, and that is a point which I wish the Education Secretary to take note of. Training colleges or training schools for women will have to be established in all these different areas. Otherwise you would not get women teachers who will be able to carry on the work of girls' education in all these different areas where probably different languages are being spoken and education will have to be given through the medium of different vernaculars. That particular point strikes me as of great importance and reference was made also to the same by my Honourable friend, Mr. Sarda. From that point of view, I think the Resolution will have to be made a little more comprehensive.

As regards the amendment which my leader, Lala Lajpat Rai, has moved, of course, everybody will be in sympathy with that amendment. But the point is this. There should be separate training colleges for women in all these centrally administered areas as far as possible, and besides that, there should be a well-staffed college of Arts and Science for those girls who will be in a position to take advantage of the higher education. The amendment seeks to have one college with faculties of Arts and Science in addition to the training of women. I would like to modify it to this extent, that so far as the training for women-teachers is concerned, it is a matter which should be distinctly left alone for different areas, with a view to start schools, and separately considered ; the central college which he wishes to have established should concern itself with education in Arts and Science only. If that sort of arrangement is made, then this amendment as well as the original Resolution can be considered together, and I think there should be no difficulty for the Government of India to accept the Resolution in the modified form. They should not try to find fault with the amendment but consider the spirit of the amendment as well as of the Resolution that is moved, and in that spirit they should try to give effect to the Resolution as a whole. I hope that Government will accept the Resolution as well as the amendment in the spirit in which they have been moved, especially seeing that they have expressed their sympathy in the cause of women in this House so often. I hope that there will be no reason for us to complain of lack of enthusiasm on the part of Government on translating their sympathies into action.

Mr. N. M. Joshi (Nominated : Labour Interests) : Sir, in the matter of education the Government of India have a special responsibility.

(At this stage Mr. President vacated the Chair which was taken by Mr. Deputy President, Maulvi Muhammad Yakub.)

We consider the Government of India as superior to the Provincial Governments. Not only that, but the very constitution of the Government of India shows that although the subject of education is a transferred subject, the Government of India have not yet divested themselves of their responsibility for education. They have a department called the Department of Education, Health and Lands, and in this phrase they have used the word " Education " at the very beginning. It shows that the Government of India have still got responsibility in the matter of education although that subject is a transferred subject. Not only that, but the Government of India have at their disposal a very highly paid officer for looking after education. Certainly that officer is not paid very highly in order that he should look after the small province of Delhi and other central territories ; that officer is appointed because the Government of India have got a certain responsibility for the education of the whole country. Sir, judging this matter from that point of view, I feel that the Government of India have not done their duty towards this subject. Compared with the Government of India, I feel that Local Governments have done something more, although I am not satisfied with what the Local Governments have done, and if the Local Governments are judged in this matter, I should pass a vote of censure against them. But as compared to the Government of India, the Provincial Governments have done more. Take the question of primary education. At least there are some Governments which have passed legislation for compulsory primary education, namely, the Government of Bombay and some other Governments also. There are also some Indian States which have introduced compulsory primary education. But the Government of India have not yet done anything. They are still thinking of introducing it in the Delhi city. As regards the other administered territories, I do not think they have done anything. The same is the case as regards secondary education. In the territories directly administered by the Government of India there are only a few secondary schools, and, my Honourable friend, Mr. Sarda, has stated most of the effort is private effort. Again, as regards higher education, the same thing may be said, namely, that more facilities are necessary for higher education. I therefore think that the Government of India have not done their duty towards the subject of education, and when we consider the claims of the different classes of education, such as, the education of boys and girls, the education of girls belonging to the higher classes, of girls belonging to the middle classes, and of girls belonging to the poorer classes, I feel that there also the Government of India have failed in their duty. The Government of India call themselves the trustees of the people of this country, and especially of the masses, of the poor classes in this country. Sir, if we go into the figures of expenditure on primary education, secondary and higher education for boys and girls, we shall find that this Government of India is not a trustee.....

Mr. Deputy President : I would ask the Honourable Member to confine himself to the Resolution which relates to the centrally administered territories.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : That is exactly my point. I am now discussing the education of the girls of the different classes in the central territories, and my point is that the Government of India, while giving education to the people in the central territories, have not done justice to the poorer classes. The Government calls itself the trustees of the poorer classes and the masses, but if we consider its conduct as regards the giving of education to the boys and girls of the different classes, it has shown partially to the higher and the middle classes.

Mr. Deputy President : The Resolution does not make any difference between the education of the girls of the poorer classes and the higher classes.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : We are now discussing the education of girls and my point is that the Government have been spending large sums on the education of the higher and middle classes and they have not spent sufficient money on the education of the poorer classes. Some time ago I asked for figures as to how much the Government of India spend on primary education, secondary and higher education. I was told that the Government of India could not give figures because they could not separate primary schools and secondary schools. They could not give the figures because it is a fact that they are spending more money on higher and secondary education as compared with primary education. They spend large sums of money on different universities. They give money to the Benares, Delhi and Aligarh Universities. I am not sure how much they spend on these universities. If the resources of the Government are unlimited, I would not object to the Government of India spending money on these universities. I should even suggest that they should double the grants now given. But if the resources of the Government are limited, I claim that they must spend more money on primary education and the education of the masses. They give so many lakhs to these three universities, where no university was wanted.

Mr. Deputy President : I would ask the Honourable Member to confine himself to the Resolution.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I want your indulgence to prove my case that the Government of India have neglected the education of the girls of the poorer classes.

Mr. Deputy President : Yes, please do.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : They have started a University in Delhi where there was no need for a university. That university was only intended to find a Vice-Chancellorship for my friend Sir Hari Singh Gour. At the first Convocation of the Delhi University, they gave degrees only to three persons. They were Sir Hari Singh Gour, Sir Muhammad Shafi and Lord Reading. I formed the impression at that time that the Delhi University was started not for the education of the students but for giving degrees to some of these people. The same may be said about secondary education. A complaint has been made by my friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda that Government leave more to private effort. If Government do that in the matter of higher and secondary education, I do not certainly blame them, but when Government spend money out of public revenues, they ought to spend more on the masses and the poorer classes. That is my view.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Are they not all bound up to some extent ?

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I am anxious to separate the education of the three classes.

Mr. Deputy President : That is not the point at issue.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I claim your indulgence in this matter, because the point of view I am placing before this House is somewhat new to this House, and I think that the Resolution of the Honourable Member is also faulty in that respect. I agree with him that the Government of India should spend adequate amounts for the education of the people in the central territories, but when they start a training college for women-teachers as the first step I certainly do not approve of the idea.

Mr. Deputy President : Do you oppose the Resolution ?

Mr. N. M. Joshi : My point is that the teachers must be trained later and the schools must be started first. According to the Resolution, teachers must be trained first. That is not my idea. Sir, there are people who believe in the quality of the education. I also care for quality but if I am given a choice, I would unhesitatingly go in for quantity and not for quality. I therefore feel that the starting of schools for girls is the first step to be taken and not the starting of a training college for women teachers. Certainly if you start a college for the training of women, there will be some provision for the women of the middle classes. That is perhaps the view which Members here take. I do not take that view. First start the schools and then improve the quality. I therefore do not agree with the Resolution as it is framed.

[Mr. N. M. Joshi.]

Then, Sir, the Resolution also asks for a Committee ; but before I go to that point I want to say a word or two about the education of the girls of the depressed classes and of Muhammadans. In this respect I want to give a warning to my Mussalman friends. Our Muhammadan friends always complain that Muhammadans do not get jobs in the public services in proportion to their numbers. It is perhaps due to the fact that they are backward in education. Now, in all public service, girls are going to get jobs. If more Hindu girls learn first and if Muhammadan girls do not, let my Mussalman friends remember that Muhammadan girls also will lag behind in the public services. I am therefore anxious that the Muhammadans should insist that there should be sufficient schools for the primary education of the girls amongst their classes, and also for secondary and higher education. I want to say something about the depressed classes. I see that my friend Rao Bahadur Rajah is not here. He must insist that the Government of India must make provision for the education of the girls of the depressed classes. Once they lag behind, they will lag behind for ever.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : What will you do if you educate all the girls of the depressed class ? They will not find husbands. You must educate their boys first.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : Well, Sir, that is not really my point.

There is one more point. It is not enough that the Government of India should start schools and make provision for the facilities for girls attending schools. It is now the experience of the whole world that you cannot provide education to the poorer classes unless you help them in their maintenance. You must give scholarships to boys (Laughter), I mean girls who cannot come to schools for want of money. The poorer classes do not go to school not because they do not like education. Everyone whether he is rich or poor wants his children to be educated ; but the poorer people do not send their girls to school simply because these girls are useful in working at home and, economically, they cannot afford, to send their girls to school. I am therefore anxious that the Government of India should not only start schools but should institute a large number of scholarships so that there should be no poor man in the country who cannot afford to send his daughters to school for want of money. The institution of scholarships is absolutely necessary if you want the poorer people to learn. Schools are said to be open to all classes of people, but you are not keeping your schools open to the poorer classes of people unless you provide also for their maintenance.

One more point, Sir, about education being made compulsory. This also is the experience of the whole world that education, at least so far as primary education is concerned, must be made compulsory, but the Government of India have not done that. Some Provincial Governments have done that, but the Government of India have failed in this duty. Well, Sir, as regards the education of girls, I want to make one or two remarks.....

Mr. Deputy President : Only about girls, not boys.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : There is a custom of educating girls separately from boys, and I do not approve of that practice. I feel that if our boys and girls are to grow morally sound, they must be educated together ; I think there must be co-education. Boys and girls must be educated in the same schools. (Hear, hear.)

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee (Nominated : Indian Christians) : What about the purdah ?

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I am coming to that. Experience throughout the world shows that it is by co-education that you raise the whole community morally, and by separating the boys and girls from their childhood up to the age when they grow old, you are really doing great harm to the moral condition of the community. Sir, we have got some experience in this matter in Bombay.....

Mr. Deputy President : We are not dealing with Bombay now.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : Sir, I am giving some experience for the benefit of the central territories (Laughter).

Mr. Deputy President : I hope the Honourable Member will confine himself to the Resolution, which he should please read once more.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I am only suggesting that the present practice of starting separate schools for boys and girls is a bad one.

Mr. Deputy President : But that is not the Resolution.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I want to tell you that our experience in Bombay is that it is better to have the same college for girls and boys than to have a separate college for girls.

An Honourable Member : Bombay is not Delhi.

Mr. M. S. Aney (Berar Representative) : Is it not that there is a university in Bombay Presidency solely for the education of girls ?

Mr. N. M. Joshi : Sir, the people in the Bombay Presidency hold sound views on education. I do not wish to speak on this subject very long because I am sure there are some Members who do not like my speaking on this subject. (Honourable Members : " No, no ".) My Honourable friend who moved this Resolution asked, " What about the purdah ? " Certainly, if you want to keep your purdah and all the evils that follow, you may have separate schools. That is certainly an evil, and if you want my advice, certainly I am going to tell you that you must remove the purdah. If Indians in Northern India want Swaraj and the proper use of that Swaraj, then certainly the purdah should be removed.....

Mr. Deputy President : I cannot allow the Honourable Member to ramble like that. He must confine himself to the Resolution and must not talk on anything else.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I will say a word about the North West Frontier Province. The Government of India grant large amounts of money to people in the North West Frontier Province to keep them quiet,—I think fifty lakhs or more. I suggest, Sir, that if five lakhs out of those 50 lakhs are spent on the education of the girls in the North West Frontier Province, I am quite sure in ten years' time it will not be necessary for them to spend these 50 lakhs of rupees to keep the people quiet. They have so far neglected the education of these tribal territories and they go on spending money on giving them some work ; I believe they are giving some tribes some allowances which are sometimes called pensions. (Laughter.) Sir, if they spend that money on civilizing these people, giving them education, giving them not only ordinary education but industrial education and provide them with industries, it will not be necessary for the Government of India to go on spending these fifty lakhs of rupees for many years.

[Mr. N. M. Joshi.]

I hope the Government of India will pay proper attention to the education of girls in the North West Frontier Province.

One word more, Sir, the Resolution asks for the appointment of a Committee. Sir, I am not against the appointment of Committees. These Committees sometimes do some work and also provide opportunities for some of the Members of the House to serve on them. I feel, Sir, that the subject of education has been too long neglected. This is not the time now to appoint a Committee. Let the Government of India begin to give education to the people instead of appointing a Committee to consider the question of giving education. The appointment of a Committee is now too late in the day. Let them now begin to spend money, let the next Budget show that they have provided adequate amounts of money for the education of girls in the central territories : and then only I think, Sir, this House will be satisfied.

Sir Hari Singh Gour (Central Provinces Hindi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I am not quite certain if the Honourable Mr. Joshi's provocative reference to me were intended to draw me out because I did not intend to make a speech on this subject, but as he has referred to me, Sir, I feel constrained to tell him that while I am not sure that the University of Delhi has gained anything from me, I am certain that I have acquired an amount of knowledge which I would not have possessed had I not been associated with that institution.

Mr. D. V. Belvi (Bombay Southern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : And also a Knighthood.

Sir Hari Singh Gour : Sir, the one great fact that has occurred to me is this. My Honourable friends on both sides of the House speak of the education of girls. But where are the girls ? I shall point out to you, Sir, what is the unfortunate position of girls so far as the Province of Delhi is concerned. I have been visiting all the girls' schools and the high schools and the intermediate colleges in Delhi which owe their inception to myself, Sir. And I found the headmistresses and principals of these colleges complaining that those little children of 5 and 6, intelligent, bright, with sparkling eyes and a great desire to absorb knowledge,—when they have been pupils for two, three or four years—a hoary-headed gentleman walks into the room and says, " I want to take away this girl." And when they ask, " Why do you want to take away this girl, she is getting on quite well ? " he says, " Oh, she is going to get married ". The result is that, half, if not three-fourths of the girls, just at the time when they are beginning to learn and imbibe knowledge, just at the time when education would be useful to them, are marched off from the class room and tied round the marriage post. That is the position of the girls.

An Honourable Member : Do they not come back ?

Sir Hari Singh Gour : I am asked whether they come back. Sir, they do come back ; they come back and they go to the Lady Hardinge Hospital for their confinement and early death.

Now, I wish to ask Honourable Members on the Opposition Benches, if they are really friends of women's education and if they really wish that the girls in the centrally administered area should get on and receive education, are they prepared to provide the necessary girls ?

Lala Lajpat Rai : Yes.

Sir Hari Singh Gour : My friend Lala Lajpat Rai says, " yes ". Well I shall put him to the test when my friend Mr. Harbilas Sarda's Child Marriage Bill comes up before this House and my own Age of Consent Bill comes up here for passing. That will be the acid test of the real desire of this House to advance the cause of female education. Unless you are able to raise the marriageable age and provide the girls who will fill the class room, it is idle to ask the Government of India to train up teachers. The teachers may be trained but they cannot lecture to empty class rooms. Let me give you, Sir, the instance of two colleges which were proposed to be started in Delhi. As regards one college the scheme was ready but they said we have no girls at all, and the result was that the college never came into existence.

Mr. B. Das : How is it that private colleges in Delhi are flourishing ?

Sir Hari Singh Gour : They are men's colleges. I am giving you the history of women's college. The Indraprastha High School was raised to the status of an intermediate college, in the hope that it would develop soon into a first-rate college. I found on my visit two years ago that while there were, I think, 11 girls, three of them had got married and there remained 8. We started the Arts College and I acknowledge on behalf of this struggling institution the assistance which the Government of India have given by placing Alipore House at the disposal of the Indraprastha College. I do not know if the Honourable Member who is to reply on behalf of Government knows of the self-sacrificing services of the Principal, Miss Gmeiner (Gmnier), and her associates (one of whom also a European died at her post), who have been trying to bring up these girls so that they may be educated and may in course of time become good housewives and schoolmistresses and, if possible, contribute also to the public services of this country.

(At this stage Mr. Deputy President vacated the Chair which was resumed by Mr. President.)

The self-sacrificing labour of this lady and her associates requires public acknowledgment. I wish you could have seen the position of this Indraprastha High School at the back of the market, in most crowded and insanitary surroundings, the headmistress living in a small cubicle on next to nothing, and imparting education to 300 or 400 girls who are all cooped up in a pigeon warren. You will immediately say that the Government of India deserve a hearty vote of censure for allowing this deserving institution to struggle on for existence in such insanitary surroundings. Sir, for the last four years we have been asking the Government to place a more sanitary building at the disposal of this growing and deserving institution, and it was only in the last few months that the Government of India made up their minds not to make a gift but to sell Alipore House to the Indraprastha College. The result is that the managing committee are now going about collecting money from friends, benefactors and sympathisers of that institution. That is not the way in which the Government of India should act. They should have made a gift of Alipore House to this institution. They should have said to themselves, here is a struggling institution and a selfless devoted woman trying to educate the people of this country, the girls of this country, and the least contribution that we can make is to make over to that institution this building, Alipore House, which belongs to Government and which will cost us nothing. If the Government would do that, the Indraprastha College could start science classes and arts classes and would draw from the four corners of India deserving girls and give them higher and better education. That is the way in which to help the centrally administered areas.

Sir, I am in perfect sympathy with my friend Mr. Chatterjee, but I say to him that in order to give education in the centrally administered territories you must begin at the beginning. You must see that the education of girls between the ages of 5 and 10 is subsidised by Government. You must give them free and liberal scholarships. And after the age of 10 it is for the public, of which the Members of this House are the accredited plenipotentiaries, to see that the marriageable age of girls is substantially raised, so that they may not be taken from the school classroom just at the time when they should begin to profit from the education they are receiving. If that is done I am sure the future of women's education in India will have been solved. We want that these girls should receive education up to the higher and collegiate standard, and then you will have bright young Indian girl graduates helping us in our public and private duties. That will, I submit, be the advent of new India, and the reconstruction of the future nation will be supported by the mothers of the nation, thirsting for more knowledge, better sanitation and better health. That will be achieved if she who rocks the cradle is educated, and the large problems of health, sanitation, infantile mortality and the early death of the mother and child will have been solved. Education of girls is not to be looked at with the microscopic vision of merely teaching them the A, B, C and to enable them to read elementary books. Education must be regarded as a national necessity and the cornerstone of the future of India. It is with that large heart and greater vision that you must look at the education of women in the centrally administered territories. That would be a model for the other provinces to follow. It is with that hope and with that desire that the struggling University of Delhi was started. It was not started for the purpose of finding gratuitous degrees for two or three persons, as my Honourable friend Mr. Joshi cynically remarked.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I ask the Honourable Member one question, whether the establishment of that University has added to the number of college students in Delhi even by one ?

Sir Hari Singh Gour : Sir, I can very easily answer that question. When that university was started, it was started with an alumni of 780, if I remember aright, and within two years the students in the Delhi University went up to 1,400. (Applause). That is the result of starting the Delhi University. But I am not here to advocate the cause of the Delhi University. I am speaking here on the question of female education in the centrally administered territory, and I shall focus my point by asking this House to remember that we are voting on this motion on the following understanding. We want first and foremost to tap the large source of supply for female education, namely, the lower middle classes and the labouring classes, to which Mr. Joshi has so pathetically referred.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I correct one statement ? Sir Hari Singh Gour said that the number of students went up from about 700 to 1,400. Is it not due to the fact that some colleges that were affiliated to the Punjab and the United Provinces Universities were brought back to the Delhi University ?

Sir Hari Singh Gour : The existing colleges of Delhi formed themselves into a University, and when I speak of the number having gone up, I am speaking of the number that went up on the rolls of the Delhi University.

Now, Sir, I say that we must begin at the beginning. Give the infants of the Kindergarten classes stimulus to interest them in education. That you can do by small prizes and free distribution of scholarships, and for that purpose you must set apart a certain sum of money. After primary education you must give them a further incentive to go into the secondary classes, because that is a crucial time in the life of the girl. With sufficient incentive she might be able to prosecute her studies in the secondary classes. A large number of parents have told me. "We cannot afford to keep these girls in secondary schools ; we have not got the money ; if they get married their husbands will keep them. Amongst the labouring classes a girl will begin to work whereas if she learns she earns nothing. She is trying to become a Babu and we do not want our girls to become Babus." That is the prevailing cry amongst the lower classes, and the labouring classes. Therefore you have now to make the class room attractive by suitable incentives given to the girls to stay on and postpone their marriage to which they are prematurely driven by their uneducated and old-fashioned parents. Having done that, you must have a well-equipped college with all the amenities of a modern college and try to give these girls education as cheaply as possible. It is a national insurance, Sir. The money that we spend upon women's education is money which is spent for the betterment of the whole nation, and I therefore think that you must try to make education as cheap as possible. Having done that, your duty ends ; and for the purpose of helping us on, we on this side of the House say—and I am certain that my orthodox friends in this House will concur with me—that the marriageable age of girls should be raised, substantially raised, so that they might receive education and profit much by that education before they are carried off by their husbands.

Sir, one more point and I have done. It has been said and said with a great deal of truth that if you are merely to start a training college for women teachers, that is not promoting women's education. Suppose you have a training college and you have got it—I do not know whether Mr. Chatterjee knows that teachers' training classes are attached to every university, there is what you call, the L. T. and B. T. classes, Licentiate of Teaching and Bachelor of Teaching. Those who do not pass the B. A. are given the L. T. just as they have a Diploma in Pedagogy in the English Universities. In all these universities you have got classes for training teachers. The University of Lucknow, especially the Isabella Thoburn College, turn out women teachers by dozens ; and it is the same case in all the other colleges. When I visited the four Colleges in Lahore I found that they have also got classes for training of teachers and they turn out teachers. Consequently, if you are to concentrate upon the selfless devoted woman trying to educate the people of this country, the girls of this country, and the least contribution that we can make is to make over to that institution this building, Alipore House, which belongs to Government and which will cost us nothing. If the Government would do that, the Indraprastha College could start science classes and arts classes and would draw from the four corners of India deserving girls and give them higher and better education. classes and the labouring classes, to which Mr. Joshi has so pathetically referred.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I correct one statement ? Sir Hari Singh Gour said that the number of students went up from about 700 to 1,400. Is it not due to the fact that some colleges that were affiliated to the Punjab and the United Provinces Universities were brought back to the Delhi University ?

Sir Hari Singh Gour : The existing colleges of Delhi formed themselves into a University, and when I speak of the number having gone up, I am speaking of the number that went up on the rolls of the Delhi University.

Now, Sir, I say that we must begin at the beginning. Give the infants of the Kindergarten classes stimulus to interest them in education. That you can do by small prizes and free distribution of scholarships, and for that purpose you must set apart a certain sum of money. After primary education you must give them a further incentive to go into the secondary classes, because that is a crucial time in the life of the girl. With sufficient incentive she might be able to prosecute her studies in the secondary classes. A large number of parents have told me. "We cannot afford to keep these girls in secondary schools ; we have not got the money ; if they get married their husbands will keep them. Amongst the labouring classes a girl will begin to work whereas if she learns she earns nothing. She is trying to become a Babu and we do not want our girls to become Babus." That is the prevailing cry amongst the lower classes, and the labouring classes. Therefore you have now to make the class room attractive by suitable incentives given to the girls to stay on and postpone their marriage to which they are prematurely driven by their uneducated and old-fashioned parents. Having done that, you must have a well-equipped college with all the amenities of a modern college and try to give these girls education as cheaply as possible. It is a national insurance, Sir. The money that we spend upon women's education is money which is spent for the betterment of the whole nation, and I therefore think that you must try to make education as cheap as possible. Having done that, your duty ends ; and for the purpose of helping us on, we on this side of the House say—and I am certain that my orthodox friends in this House will concur with me—that the marriageable age of girls should be raised, substantially raised, so that they might receive education and profit much by that education before they are carried off by their husbands.

Sir, one more point and I have done. It has been said and said with a great deal of truth that if you are merely to start a training college for women teachers, that is not promoting women's education. Suppose you have a training college and you have got it—I do not know whether Mr. Chatterjee knows that teachers' training classes are attached to every university, there is what you call, the L. T. and B. T. classes, Licentiate of Teaching and Bachelor of Teaching. Those who do not pass the B. A. are given the L. T. just as they have a Diploma in Pedagogy in the English Universities. In all these universities you have got classes for training teachers. The University of Lucknow, especially the Isabella Thoburn College, turn out women teachers by dozens ; and it is the same case in all the other colleges. When I visited the four Colleges in Lahore I found that they have also got classes for training of teachers and they turn out teachers. Consequently, if you are to concentrate upon the provision of teachers, you will be multiplying a commodity for which there may not be a ready market. I therefore suggest that a Committee should go into this question, but it should be remembered that the very production of teachers would not be conducive to the growth of female education in this country. What you require is not so much the training of teachers, as the stimulus given to primary, secondary and higher education to our girls in the centrally administered territory. That would be an example to be followed and copied by the provinces and in this way, at any rate, we shall be able to add one more brick to that grand arch of national reconstruction for which we are all striving and towards which we are steadily progressing.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I rise to lend my wholehearted support to the underlying principle of this Resolution as well as to the amendment moved by my Honourable friend Sardar Gulab Singh. The underlying principle of this Resolution I take it to be the spread of girls' education in the centrally administered areas, and the substance of my friend Sardar Gulab Singh's amendment is that, in order to carry out that object, a well-equipped college for the training of women teachers should be started, and along with it a normal school should be started in order to secure the production of a sufficiently large number of trained women teachers to train up the girls. Sir, it is very necessary that a college, well equipped college, for the training of female teachers should be started at a central place, and in order to.....

Mr. B. Das : Will the Honourable Member use the words "lady teachers" instead of "female teachers ?"

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I stand corrected. It is quite necessary to start a suitable college at a central place for the training of lady teachers ; and to act as a feeder to this institution normal schools should be opened at different centres in the centrally administered areas. It has been pointed out in the course of this debate that the centrally administered areas are not a compact territory ; they are scattered all over the country ; and if we confine ourselves to the terms of the Resolution, it would mean that only one college is to be started. It is asked : How is one college going to act as a training ground for the teachers of all the centrally administered areas ? My reply to that is that one college should be started at a central place, say in Delhi ; and normal schools to act as feeders to this institution may be started, say, one in Ajmer-Merwara, one in the North-West Frontier Province, and in other centres where necessary. I want, Sir, to refer this House very briefly to the present position of education in some of the centrally administered areas.

In Ajmer-Merwara I find that the total population is 4,95,271, and in 1926 there were 10,260 scholars in 176 recognised educational institutions for males ; and 1766 in 20 similar institutions for girls. I beg to submit that this is a very disappointing figure, and I hope that in course of time and with the arrangements which we are proposing to make, the number of girl scholars will considerably increase.

Then I shall turn for a minute to Coorg, which is of course a very small territory, with a population of about 1,63,838. There were in 1926, 871 boys in high schools ; 7,118 in primary schools ; and 174 girls in high schools, and 668 in primary schools.

The figure with regard to the North-West Frontier Province is as follows. The population of the province in 1921 was 22,51,340. In 1925-26 there were 601 recognised educational institutions for males, with 52,072 scholars ; and 85 similar institutions for girls with 6,344 scholars. The percentage of scholars to the total population is 2.9. This, I submit, is a very lamentable state of things in a centrally administered area, which should act as a model to other Provinces.

The condition of things in other provinces is no less unsatisfactory, but under the terms of this Resolution we are not to travel beyond centrally administered areas ; and therefore I will not refer to them.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : That does not include the tribal area, which has not yet been provided with facilities for education.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : That only strengthens my position. In the tribal area, to which my Honourable friend refers, no adequate provisions have been made for imparting education either to boys or to girls. I remember there was a proposal in the Standing Finance Committee very recently, asking funds for the purpose of establishing a jail in the North-West Frontier Province. Some of us were inclined to think that the money we were asked to spend for the establishment of the jail would have been better employed in imparting education in that area. In that case probably there would not have been very great necessity for a jail to be established there. If we opened schools it would follow that we would close up the jails in course of time.

My Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi, has said—if I followed him aright—that he wanted any sort of women teachers to act as teachers for the training of girl students. If that was his meaning, I certainly disagree with him. He went further and said that he wanted quantity and not quality of education among girls. I emphatically dissent from that view. The sort of education we want to be imparted to our girls should be not merely literary education, but it should include religious training as well as physical. We are certainly not expected to entrust our girls to the care of teachers whose antecedents we do not know and who have had no proper training in respect of character and attainments to take up the important and delicate art of teaching.

The next point which was taken up by Mr. Joshi was that he did not like that boys and girls should be educated in separate institutions, and he said that he would like to see them educated in the same school. We would like to record our dissent from this view. We want that the education which a girl requires should be somewhat different to the education which we would like to impart to our boys, and therefore the curriculum for girls as well as the curriculum for boys would naturally differ to a considerable extent. I do not think it would be a wise or a practical proposition to allow our boys and girls to be thrown together and to be trained in the same institution. It is rather difficult to speak on a proposition which is so obvious ; and I do not think that many words of mine are needed to commend this Resolution to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. Bajpai is sitting so leisurely, as if he had an unanswerable case against us in his pocket ; but I will ask him to deal with this question very fully and sympathetically in the course of his reply to what we have said in the House.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Ten Minutes to Three of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Ten Minutes to Three of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya (Madras : Indian Commerce) : I move that the question be now put.

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava (Ambala Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I rise to support the Resolution and the amendment of Chaudhri Mukhtar Singh.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : It has yet been moved.

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : The amendment was moved, Sir. Now, Sir, it is too late in the day to expound the advantages of female education, especially in this House. This is an admitted fact. The question then is, how this female education is to progress in this country and on what lines. Though it is admitted in theory that female education is very good, in practice the apathy shown by the Government of India and by the Provincial Governments is very great. There is some provision in villages for the education of boys, but so far as the education of girls is concerned, I think it can be safely said that it has been too sadly neglected. To-day, in all the civilised Governments of the globe, it is the right of the subject to expect that the Government shall provide free and compulsory primary education for the nationals of the country, whether the recipients of the education are boys or girls, and I must say that the Government of India must hang down its head in shame if all the figures which have been quoted to the House by the various speakers who have spoken before me are scrutinised. Those figures also are not safe because, if there is any female education, it is to be found in some of the big cities. If the rural areas are segregated and then the percentage of literacy is found out, it will go down still, and will come to almost a negligible figure. The Government meet this by saying that the special social customs of India and other factors are to blame. I do not agree. I want to repudiate the suggestion of Sir Hari Singh Gour and I want to say that girls in the country want education. There is no poor man in the country who does not want education. It is wrong to say that no girls are to be found who could be educated. I am rather surprised to hear this from the Chancellor of the Delhi University (An Honourable Member : "Ex-Vice-Chancellor.")—from the Ex-Vice-Chancellor of the Delhi University. The old argument is trotted out that as there is child marriage, it is impossible to have female education in India. May I know what arrangements there are in the whole country for the education of girls from the age of 6 to 10 or 11 ? Marriages do not take place within those ages.

Sir Hari Singh Gour : What is the good of such education ?

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : This is the first time I have heard in this House an argument of this sort from an Honourable Member—and specially from Sir Hari Singh Gour : "What is the use of female education ?" What is the use of any education at all I fail to see. If the benefits of free and compulsory primary education are not realised by Sir Hari Singh Gour, I have nothing but pity for him. I am very sorry to hear that. The Universities which only cater to the needs of those who live in the city are institutions which do not benefit the poorer people of the country, and when I am reminded of the fact that even such big people as Sir Hari Singh Gour think like this, then it means that there is no room in India for the poorer people, if the administration of Universities is to be handed over to gentlemen like our Ex-Vice-chancellor.

Now, Sir, there is such a thing as democratisation of education. I do not grudge Delhi or any other place having any college or any high school. I want them in much greater numbers than at present. But if these colleges and high schools are to be had at the expense of the education of the poorer classes of this country, I would rather not have them at all. Sir, I know that the Honourable the Secretary for Education, Health and Lands will rise up in his seat and say that there is no money. This free and compulsory primary education is a question of rupees, annas and pies. Much more so in this country, because, if any person goes to the villages and asks the village people to educate their girls, they say, "We are not even having our food ; we have not sufficient means for our necessary clothes and will we make Babus out of these girls ?" This is exactly what is said to every person who goes to a village and asks the villager to have his daughter educated. He says, "Even the boys are not educated ; what sense is there in asking me to send my girl to school ?" Sir, this is a very difficult question to solve, but this is the most urgent question of the day. If further reforms are to come, the future queens of India would be the women. They will be invested with sovereign powers. They will not be the queens of the homes alone. When the vote is given to them they will certainly exercise a great control over the destinies of India. Do we want that we should have ignorant masters or intelligent and educated masters ? Or do we want no progress at all ?

Now, Sir, I would submit that these two most difficult questions arise, viz., (1) the question of funds, and (2) whether this free and compulsory primary education is to be had at the expense of.....

Mr. President : There is no question of free and compulsory education in this Resolution. I hope the Honourable Member will read the Resolution.

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : May I humbly submit, Sir, that I am supporting the amendment of Chaudhri Mukhtar Singh which reads thus :

"That for the words from 'for the furtherance of' to the words 'training of women teachers' the following be substituted :

'for providing free and compulsory primary education of girls between the ages of 6 and 11 in the centrally administered territories as early as possible and as a first step to that end to establish at once sufficient number of women teachers' training schools in that area'."

Mr. President : Whose amendment ?

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : Chaudhri Mukhtar Singh's.

Mr. President : Has that amendment been moved ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai (Secretary, Department of Education, Health and Lands) : It was moved, Sir.

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : It was moved the other day, Sir. I would submit, Sir, that the problem is how the girls of the poorer classes are going to be educated. When western education was introduced in India people would gladly go to Maktabs and Pathshalas, but would not go to westernised schools and the Government gave scholarships to those whom they wanted to attract to those schools. I want to propose exactly the same thing, and the first suggestion that I wish to make is that every girl should be given a scholarship, be it eight annas or a rupee, every month so as not to deprive the parents of those girls of any earnings that the girls may have made. Sir, this solution may or may not be relished by many Members sitting here, but I have got some experience of the villages and the village people and my feeling is that unless this is done there is very little likelihood of any experiment being successful in the rural areas. The second suggestion that I wish to make is that some normal schools for training women teachers should be established in the various parts of the centrally administered territories. Sir, the Honourable Mr. Joshi just now pointed out that he was in favour of the co-education of boys and girls. The proposal was laughed at by some people. Now, I beg to propose the same thing though to a limited extent. I wish to suggest that so far as free and compulsory primary education is concerned, there is no other solution except this, that for the time being boys and girls up to a certain age should be educated together. Up to the age of 10 I do not think many people will have any serious objection to sending their girls to the same schools to which the boys go. Unless and until there are a sufficient number of women teachers this must be done. At the same time, I would submit that if there is any walk of life in which women can shoulder out men, it is this. If you study the systems of England and America you will find that every primary school has got girl teachers. Some time ago the Punjab Government sent two of its officers to England to study the rural conditions there and they reported on many matters. As regards the point pertinent to this Resolution they were of opinion that the presence of girl teachers was necessary to bring out the qualities that distinguish children from men. If we study the system in vogue in America, so far as rural education is concerned, you will find the same thing. Now, Sir, I want to suggest one more thing, and that is this. Literary education in the three R.'s is absolutely essential, but as was reported by those two officers of whom I have spoken, the rural side of education should not be neglected. Unless and until you make education attractive to those people to whom it is imparted, it is impossible that you can arouse any enthusiasm in those people. The rural part of education, agricultural and industrial, should not be lost sight of.

Now, Sir, I do not wish to tire the House by going into figures, but I will only point out that the poorer classes have got a better claim on the revenues of the country than the other classes, though I do not want to differentiate such claims on the score of classes as Mr. Joshi did. For me there is absolutely no class so far as compulsory primary education is concerned. The richer, the middle and the lower classes—they all have an equal claim to be educated and freely educated. This question only arises with regard to secondary and college education. It is a point of contest between the various schools of thought as to what should be the lines of education so far as secondary and college education is concerned—whether there should be co-education and girls and boys should attend the same colleges. I do not want to enter into those various questions so far as this Resolution is concerned, but at the same time the Government's duty does not end by providing merely for free and compulsory primary education. My voice may be a voice in the wilderness because the proposal contained in the amendment is by itself such that I do not think Government will make any good arrangement in the near future. But let it be understood, whether the Government make arrangements or not, that Government will be failing in their elementary duty towards their subjects if they do not arrange for this primary education as soon as possible. Now, Sir, Simon Commissions come and go, and there are various other Commissions. And then different cries arise from different parts of the House for improvement and progress in different directions. But I submit that no progress is possible, and you cannot improve in any way unless and until this difficult question is solved once for all, and the question cannot be treated in the lighthearted manner in which the Government of India have been treating it for so long a time. So far as the Provincial Governments are concerned, we are not discussing the progress they have made under this Resolution. But, as was pointed out by one of the previous speakers, the Government of India have a special responsibility also in this matter. It is but meet that the Government of India should, by precept and by example, show an example to the Provincial Governments and guide them in their duties towards the people of this country.

With these words I support the Resolution and the amendment.

Mr. D. V. Belvi (Bombay Southern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : It seems to me something like a cruel and painful irony of fate that we should be under the necessity of discussing a Resolution like this in the year of grace 1928, after being under British rule for more than 150 years. We are discussing now whether it is not necessary for us to train women teachers to impart primary education to little girls in this country. We are told that we are under an enlightened Government. I have no doubt that this assertion is in some respects true, but educationally we are in a very bad plight. After 150 years of British rule in this country, what is the condition of education here ? Even in the case of men the percentage of literacy does not go above 8 per cent., and in the case of women the percentage does not rise to even 2. That is the state of things in this country after the enlightened rule of Great Britain for more than 150 years ! My Honourable friend who preceded me said that the British Government should hang its head in shame. I submit that the British Government has neither a head nor a tail. It has not a body to be kicked nor a soul to be damned. It is a soulless machine and it has been rightly described as a steel frame. Had it consisted of human beings, it would have surely felt the shame to which my Honourable friend referred. It has been said that education should be free and that primary education should be compulsory. But my Honourable friends who spoke in support of this Resolution forgot one important fact, namely, that you cannot make bricks without straw. Where is the money to come from for the accomplishment of the object of this Resolution? What is our financial position? How do we stand financially? The total revenue of the country is about 140 crores of rupees a year and out of this amount nearly 45 per cent. is swallowed up by one department, namely, the Army. Can you find money to promote education in this country in this state of affairs? Now, let us compare the educational condition of India with the educational condition of the much maligned Soviet Russia. You will perhaps be agreeably surprised to hear that in Soviet Russia the percentage of literacy is 46 in the year 1928. In the Republic of Georgia the percentage is 46. The reason is obvious. Russia spends only 12 per cent. of her revenues on the Army whereas we spend in India not less than 45 per cent. That makes this world of difference between these two countries. The other ways in which we are spending our revenues are also very imprudent. Look at the huge pile of buildings that have been put up in the Imperial City of Delhi. We have already sunk not less than 17 crores of the hardearned revenues of India in that Serbonian bog—the Houses of Parliament, the Viceregal Lodge and the few bungalows that have been built at Delhi. The Government of India have got money enough to waste on these showy things. But they have no money to spend on education. The reason is that there is no will to promote education in India. Had there been a will to promote education, there would have been a way, but the Government of India do not want to promote education in this country. They know that their salvation lies in the ignorance of the people of this country. They may profess all sorts of things in this world but no sane man can believe the professions of the Government of India. Look at the way in which education is promoted in England. Boys are educated and girls are educated. Education is compulsory and universal there. Look at India with all its huge revenue. Is it not a pity that we should be asking the Government of India to finance at least one college in the Imperial City of Delhi for training women teachers, and this too in the enlightened 20th century? Is it not very strange that the part of the country which is administered by the Central Government should be treated in this way? Properly speaking the centrally administered provinces should be something like a model to be held up to the Provincial Governments. In my humble opinion the position of the Government of India with reference to the Provincial Governments ought to be like the position which is generally occupied in a high school by a headmaster with reference to his assistants. I submit that the Government of India stands in the position of a headmaster and the Provincial Governments should always look up to the Government of India for guidance and for the method in which they should promote education, but unfortunately we find that the Government of India neglects its duty. The provinces are better in some respects; but so far as the Government of India is concerned education stands in the position of a neglected Cinderella. My Honourable friend Mr. Bajpai may say something in defence of the position of Government and I am very curious to know how he is going to defend the position of Government. Now, I submit that there should be not one college in the Imperial City of Delhi alone but that there should be a college for training women teachers in every other part of the country which is administered by the Central Government. There should be at least one college in the North-West Frontier Province. Is it very difficult for the Government of India to maintain a college in each of the territories administered by it? They talk of social reform and orthodox people. My friend Sir Hari Singh Gour says that we orthodox people come in the way of the promotion of female education. But we orthodox people are always willing to have our sisters and daughters educated up to the time of their attaining puberty which may be in their 12th or 13th year. Till then if there is provision for their education they will pick up sufficient vernacular. My friend Sir Hari Singh Gour says there should be high schools for women, and colleges for women. Nobody will be more glad than myself to see a high school for the education of girls in every district and nobody will be more glad to see that there is a college for women's education in every province, but we have not yet reached that stage. We are now at the lowest rung of the educational ladder. We have not even got a school for girls in every big village. What is the use of all this tall talk of high schools for girls and colleges for girls? We need not discuss all these Utopian things just now. Let us be a little more practical. Let us persuade the Government of India at any rate to finance one college in the Imperial City of Delhi. The City of Delhi was compared by my Honourable friend Lala Lajpat Rai—and rightly too—with the city of Rome. What will the rest of the world say when it hears of this discussion in the Legislative Assembly and learns that there is not a single college for training women teachers for the education of girls even in the Imperial City of Delhi? Can there be anything more disgraceful than this state of affairs? How lamentable is it that the education of women is a matter in which nobody takes serious interest on behalf of the Government? They do something here and something there, simply for satisfying us a little. Sometimes they increase the educational expenditure by a lakh or two lakhs and so on, but they have no heart in the matter. They want to keep their army intact. They want to spend the major portion of the revenues of the country on the maintenance of the services and such other things. Educationally the country is very backward and, as I said, the state of things is very lamentable. Some of my friends are discussing the advisability of making primary education compulsory and free in British India. I believe that this is a very large order. It is largely a question of finance. Let us for the present persuade the Government of India to accede to the modest request of my Honourable friend the Revd. Chatterjee and to open a college in Delhi. When they have done it, we may apply next to the Government of India to make education free and compulsory at any rate in the part of the country administered by the Government of India. What is the use of asking them to do too many things all at once? I hope that Government will be pleased to accede to the request embodied in this Resolution. They can easily carry out the object of this Resolution if they have a will to do so. If they please, they can even persuade the Secretary of State to start a women's college in Delhi.

My friend Mr. Joshi urged that there should be mixed schools for boys and girls. The House knows that I am one of the orthodox Hindus in this House. I do take strong objection to the proposition of my Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi. Boys should be educated by all means and girls should be educated by all means, but I am dead against bringing boys and girls together under one roof. You know what is happening in America. The columns of newspapers in this country are very often flooded with quotations of the occurrences in America. I do not believe all that is said in the newspapers, but a part of it may be true. We do not want to have that state of affairs introduced in this country. Then it was said that it does not matter what kind of education is imparted to our girls. My friend Mr. Joshi said that education may be imparted even by untrained women. I am dead against it. It is not a sound proposition. We want lady teachers of good character, lady teachers properly trained, teachers in whom we can repose confidence. We cannot entrust our daughters and our sisters to any woman in the street. So I do not accept this suggestion that education may be imparted by anybody and anywhere and in any way. Let there be proper education, properly imparted, under proper supervision.

Mr. K. Ahmed (Rajshahi Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Your teachers must be trained in orthodox style ?

Mr. D. V. Belvi : They may or may not be orthodox ; we have nothing to do with the religion of the teachers. If we can secure orthodox teachers, so much the better. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. K. Ahmed : Suppose they support the Age of Consent Bill of Mr. Sarda contrary to the views of the orthodox section ?

Mr. D. V. Belvi : Well, Sir, I do not choose to reply to the irrelevant criticisms of my friend. I have here something to say about the Resolution, and it will be a mere surplusage of words to say that I support it. Every sensible man in this House is bound to support it. I do not believe that there is a single man in the House who will oppose such a good Resolution. Sir, I support the Resolution with all my heart.

(Several Honourable Members moved that the question be put.)

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir, there is a well known constitutional maxim in England that the King can do no wrong. My Honourable friends opposite, at least some of them, have amended that maxim to the effect that the Government of India can never do and never do anything but wrong.

Mr. D. V. Belvi : No, we do not say so. The Government have often done many things that are right.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : If Honourable Members do not insinuate or suggest that, then I do not understand why speaker after speaker has got up and charged us with a Machiavellian apathy towards the education of girls or, for that matter, boys' education. Sir, I do not wish to import into this discussion a spirit of controversy. The explanation of that is that the Government of India share the view of Honourable Members opposite, namely, that, to quote a rhetorical phrase, the women of any race or any nation are the custodians of its civilization and the torch-bearers of progress. Here in India if we wish the women of this country to play that exalted rôle in the national evolution of India, then we have some headway to make ; and I am quite prepared to admit that, perhaps, at any rate, in the past, progress in the sphere of the education of women has lagged behind the aspirations of the outside public or for that matter the aspirations of the Government of India. But that in itself is not by any means a justification for saying that the Government of India do not entertain any sympathy towards the demand for improving the facilities for the education of women, or that they are not prepared at any time, and in spite of any pressure, to give effect to the recommendations and to the wishes of the House. I do not, Sir, I think, stand in any need of traversing in detail the various figures which have been cited by Honourable Members opposite. One Honourable Member, who I regret to say is not in his place to-day, Chaudhri Mukhtar Singh, adopted the other day what I thought was a somewhat unfair criterion ; namely, comparing the progress of literacy among women or for that matter among children generally in proportion to the total population of the areas directly under the Government of India. I think it would have been a fairer comparison if the figures had related exclusively to what might be described as the population of school-going age : and if you adopt the figures of the population of school-going age, then undoubtedly you get a better perspective of the advance that has actually been made in the sphere of education. Now, Sir, it is rather tantalising and not merely tantalising but disheartening to anybody to be told, " Oh ! you have increased the percentage of the literate population in the directly administered areas from .6 to .7." May I, Sir, applying the criterion, which I enunciated just now, give other figures ? The percentage of the school-going age of the population which is now actually in school, shall we say, in the North-West Frontier Province, is 7 as against .6 which was the figure quoted the other day and which I say does not give us a true perspective of what is happening in these areas. Further, I do not think it is altogether fair to pick out an area like Ajmer-Merwara or even the North-West Frontier Province where, after all conditions are not so settled as they are in certain other parts of the country, and where there are numerous difficulties and say, " Here you are, this marks the nadir of your achievement but this is what we propose to regard as the climax of your achievement."

Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : Are conditions unsettled in Ajmer-Merwara ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I was speaking of the North-West Frontier Province, Sir.

Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : But the Honourable Member coupled Ajmer-Merwara and the North-West Frontier Province together when he spoke.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Now let me pursue my argument. As I say, that argument is not fair,—to single out a particular area and to say that the figures are not as satisfactory as Honourable Members opposite would wish them to be or as we would wish them to be, and to say that this is really characteristic of all that the Government of India have done. Why not mention Coorg ? What is the percentage of the population of school-going age there in School at the present moment ? Sixty-seven per cent., if that is of any interest to the House. However, Sir, as I say, I do not wish to traverse in detail the facts and figures because, after all, what they represent is the result of the effort made so far. I have myself stated in the opening part of my speech that there is no ground for full or complete satisfaction with the progress made so far. But what we have to do here to-day is to confine ourselves to the terms of the Resolution moved by my Honourable friend, Mr. Chatterjee. That Resolution falls into three parts. The first part asks the Government of India to spend more money, or, rather, to make substantial grants for the education of women. The second part is that the Government of India should found a training college for the training of women teachers ; and the third part is that they should appoint a Committee to explore the possibilities of how and to what extent progress can be made in what has been described as a neglected field. Then there are a series of amendments also. Two of them—one moved by Chaudhri Mukhtar Singh and the other by Sardar Gulab Singh—relate to primary education. Various suggestions have been made. Chaudhri Mukhtar Singh thinks that compulsory primary education provides the panacea for all ills, and that all the areas directly administered by the Government of India, regardless of social conditions, regardless of social differences, regardless of social and economic difficulties, are ripe for the immediate introduction of primary education. Then Sardar Gulab Singh's amendment also relates to primary education because what he suggested was the multiplication of normal schools. On the other hand, Lala Lajpat Rai, the Honourable Leader of the Nationalist Party, said, " It is not really sufficient to confine our attention to primary education ; we ought to embrace in the scope of the activities of the Government of India both primary education and collegiate education, and we should proceed to found a college which would be equipped with the various departments for giving instruction in the arts and sciences." We feel, Sir, that if we take the recommendations or the proposals made in Mr. Chatterjee's Resolution, the last proposal is in logical sequence ; I refer to the proposal to appoint a Committee of inquiry : and the reason for that is this. The other proposals included in this Resolution are proposals which indicate the ways and means of giving effect to the main object, which is the promotion of education among women. Now, in the course of the debate to-day on this Resolution, diversity of opinion has manifested itself as to the means and methods to be employed in securing this object, in advancing towards this goal. My friend, Mr. Joshi, vehemently asserted that co-education was the only way of getting there. My friend, the Honourable Mr. Belvi, got up and said, " No, no, no, that will be a most horrible thing, that will be subversive of the cherished traditions of society and of social customs in this country." Then, Sir, my Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi said : what you should concentrate on is primary education, and not merely primary education, but education for the poorer classes. Other Members got up and said, in this field of education there are no classes, all sections of the community really stand together ; their requirements, their needs are equal, and you have to treat them all as being on one level, and as deserving equally of the solicitude and attention of the State. That, Sir, being the position, in other words, there being diversity of opinion as to the best method which you can adopt for tackling this problem, it seems to me that Government would be going as far as it is desirable at this stage to go to consider the third proposition in my friend Mr. Chatterjee's Resolution, namely, the proposal for the appointment of a committee of inquiry. Mr. Joshi is sceptical of the value of committees. He says committees are a dilatory expedient. If you do not wish to get anything done : if you wish definitely to postpone a matter which may be inconvenient or embarrassing, all that you have to do is to say, we shall appoint a committee. Then the House is momentarily satisfied, the subject passes out of the public view, it is no longer in the popular focus ; years elapse nd, then, when an opportunity comes, the House jog the memory of lovernment and ask what exactly has Government been doing all these ears. Well, I do not think, Sir, that with my experience, which is very short, of this House, I should be prepared to substantiate the charge that the House is neglectful of matters of this character. Last Session we had a prolonged, an interesting and at times a heated debate over the provision of facilities for educating the depressed classes. That was one aspect of the question urged on that occasion. This Session I received notices of various Resolutions ; there was one about the foundation or establishment of a women's college at Delhi ; there was the Resolution which we are discussing to-day ; there was another Resolution for giving aid to the Anglo-Arabic College. I think, Sir, that the House is not doing itself justice and that Honourable Members on the opposite Benches are not doing themselves justice in suggesting that they have to leave these matters entirely to Government and that their solicitude itself is not vigilant and active on behalf of the backward communities which are directly under the control of the Government of India. So I feel, Sir, that this particular charge of Mr. Joshi's does not stand substantiated. We must concentrate, as I say, on the suggestion made in the concluding proposition of my friend Mr. J. C. Chatterjee's Resolution. And before I proceed further, Sir, I should like to make one remark. Mr. Joshi, Sir, aptly, I think, drew attention to this one fact, that it is not sufficient, if you are going to explore the question of educational facilities in the areas directly under the Government—it is not sufficient to confine your investigation or inquiry to one sex. You have really got to extend that inquiry to include all sections of the community and both the sexes. And that, Sir, is a position which the Government of India wholeheartedly accept.

Now, Sir, to come to the concrete proposal which I wish to place before the House ; the Government of India have carefully considered the whole question of primary education in the areas directly under their administration. That consideration, Sir, started, not after the receipt of the Resolution which we are discussing to-day, but after the debate which was initiated by my Honourable friend Mr. Jayakar last Session on the position of the depressed classes, particularly in regard to education. We have consulted the heads of the minor administration—and I should like to avail myself of this opportunity to pay a tribute to their keen enthusiasm for improving the education of the populations committed to their care—and with their concurrence the Government of India have decided to appoint a committee with the following terms of reference : To enquire into—

(a) the existing facilities for primary education for boys and girls ;

(b) the possibility of expansion whether on a voluntary or compulsory basis with special regard to the attitude and aptitude of the local population ; and

(c) the necessity for providing special facilities for the community generally known as " untouchables ", and to make recommendations.

And not merely, Sir, have we decided to appoint this committee as soon as the Standing Finance Committee would agree to give us the necessary, but we have also decided that in view of the keen and laudable interest shown by Honourable Members of this House in this problem the committee should include educational experts and also representatives of this House. We have not yet, Sir, considered what the personnel of the committee is to be, but I think that before I complete my explanation of the general intention and attitude of Government with regard to this matter, I should say that we have taken note of th erecommendations made in the Resolution of my friend Mr. J. C. Chatterjee that this committee, or rather the committee which he recommended, and which was to be confined only to the investigation of the problem of the education of women, should include prominent women. It is the intention of the Government of India that this Committee of Inquiry should have the benefit of the services and the experience of some lady who is interested in and conversant with the problem of the education of women. That, Sir, is what I have to say in regard to the recommendations contained in the Resolution which my friend Mr. J. C. Chatterjee has moved.

I now turn to the amendment of the Honourable Leader of the Nationalist Party, which relates to the establishment of a first-grade women's college at some central place, preferably Delhi. Sir, he made a reference to the historic importance of Delhi. I am glad, Sir, that occasion has been offered by this Resolution for Honourable Members opposite to say something in favour of the Government of India's New Capital. If only, Sir, the admission of a college into the fold is sufficient to satisfy Honourable Members opposite and to reconcile them to the location of the capital of the Government of India in Delhi, there ought to be a meed of satisfaction to be derived for what my Honourable friends on the other side have described as a waste of crores and crores on the creation of an Imperial Capital. The difficulty with regard to my Honourable friend Lala Lajpat Rai's Resolution is this. Although you may treat the education of women, whether it is primary education or secondary education or collegiate education, as part of one whole, yet as practical builders we have to confine our attention first to the ground work, the foundation—to lay the foundation right and true and deep, lay it so that it will endure—and then proceed to erect or build your superstructure thereon. To pursue the analogy a little further, Sir, I feel that the college which my Honourable friend wants is really of the nature of a superstructure—perhaps the second storey to be added to this edifice, and therefore a stage which would come perhaps later in the course of our activities. However, Sir, I know that a reply like that would be described not merely as unduly cautious but possibly also unsympathetic. And if there is one charge, Sir, which I am anxious, at least in a matter of this kind, to escape, not merely for myself but on behalf of the Government of India, it is the charge of lack of sympathy. So what we propose to-day in regard to this particular proposal is this. We shall consult the minor administrations immediately. We shall ascertain their views in regard to this proposal. The important thing to bear in mind is this. It is no use establishing a college in Delhi, or for that matter in any other central area, unless you are sure that from the areas which are directly administered by the Government of India and for which the Government of India are primarily responsible, that you will attract to this college a sufficient number of students. My Honourable friend, Lala Lajpat Rai, said that the colleges in Lahore are crowded ; that sectarian colleges make no appeal to certain sections of the community. They would much rather be in an institution where sectarianism of any sort or kind does not prevail—a perfectly legitimate aspiration, Sir—and it would be an equally legitimate activity on the part of the Government of India to meet the deficiency, the want of a non-sectarian institution, provided, as I say, there is sufficient material to justify them in the belief that the college when built would really attract a sufficient number of students. I will, Sir, give an instance to show why we are somewhat sceptical of really eliciting admissions sufficient to justify the construction of a first grade college. My Honourable friend referred in the course of this morning to the Lady Hardinge Medical College, the only medical institution of its kind in India, that is to say, an institution which is devoted exclusively to the education of women ; and I may, Sir, for his information at this stage say that this college does not merely confine itself to medical education, that we have as a matter of fact attached to it classes, first and second year science classes, in order to give the necessary scientific training to girls coming to the institution in order to fit them for the pursuit of the higher medical course. Now, Sir, this institution do not, if my information is correct, in the initial stages attract a sufficient number of pupils, although it is recognised, and recognised all over, that one of the primary requirements of this country is an adequate supply of trained women doctors. However, Sir, as I have said, we shall inquire from the heads of minor administrations as to what they think of this idea and if they are in favour of it ; then we propose to take up this question along with the general question which is now receiving the consideration of Government, namely, the future of the University of Delhi. I know, Sir, that by making that statement I am running the risk of incurring the wrath of my friend Mr. Joshi. He thinks we ought to scrap the University of Delhi forthwith ; but you cannot scrap the Delhi University and bring into being at Delhi a first grade college devoted to the instruction of women. I believe that the sense of the House is not to scrap the University of Delhi, but to see, if the University is to survive and endure and to be a model for the various universities of India, whether my friend Lala Lajpat Rai's idea cannot be fitted into the scheme of the future and the wider and the larger University of Delhi.

Then, Sir, there is just one point, a comparatively minor point, namely, the proposal to found a Normal College, a training college. That is a point that we put to the heads of minor administrations, as soon as we received notice of this Resolution, and we were informed by the Chief Commissioner, Delhi, by the Chief Commissioner of the North-West Frontier Province, and by the Chief Commissioner of Ajmer-Merwara that at the present moment they do not feel the want of a central college which would devote itself exclusively to the training of women teachers ; there are already normal schools and an Anglo-Vernacular class is to be added for the training of women teachers in the North-West Frontier Province There is a training school in Delhi. In Ajmer-Merwara, as my friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda pointed out, there is no Government institution imparting this special kind of training at the present moment, but there is a recognised private institution which, according to the information that the Chief Commissioner has furnished us, is at the present moment adequate to the requirements of this area. But the point which I wish to make is this. You are appointing a committee with wide terms of reference. It is being called upon to go into the whole question of existing facilities for education for boys as well as for girls, whether on a voluntary or compulsory basis, and you are also asking it to make recommendations. Now, I have no doubt that this committee will also go into the question of the adequacy or otherwise of the existing facilities for the provision of teachers for these institutions ; and if they in their wisdom consider that it is desirable either to have a central training college or to multiply the normal training schools, undoubtedly the Government of India will bestow upon that recommendation exactly the same attention as they will upon the other recommendations of the committee.

That practically brings my remarks to a close, Sir. I have perhaps detained the House longer than I had intended, but I thought it would be as well to make as full a statement on this interesting subject as the time at my disposal would permit. There is one thing that I would like to say, Sir. I hope that in view of the announcement that I have made and the assurances that I have given, my Honourable friend will see his way to withdraw his Resolution. It is not necessary now to push that Resolution, because, what is of value in the Resolution is the spirit and not the particular recommendations which he has made. I have made a full statement of what the intentions of Government in regard to this interesting problem, which is indeed a national problem, are. I have also given the assurance that we do not propose to postpone our initiative to the Greek Kalends but that on the contrary we wish to proceed with it as early as possible. Therefore, Sir, I would appeal to my friend and I would also appeal to the House not to press this Resolution, but to rest satisfied with the assurance that I have given, and, if I may crave such a thing from Honourable Members opposite, to give our initiative their benediction, for I feel, Sir, that they ought to accept the assurance from me that it is the hope, as it will be, the unfailing endeavour of Government, to the utmost of their ability and power, to open wider and yet wider the windows of the mind of those whose enlightenment is their responsibility.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : Sir, when the House resumed discussion on my Resolution this morning, I had a letter passed on to me by an Honourable friend in this House, who said that he was in entire sympathy with my Resolution and therefore did not consider it necessary to remain in the House and wished me good luck. When I looked round, it seemed to me that almost everybody seemed to be in sympathy with my Resolution and that most people seemed likely to follow the example of my Honourable friend, so that it seemed as if the subject was going to die a very speedy death. I am very glad that did not happen. But, Sir, in an otherwise valuable and instructive discussion, there has been just one source of regret to me and that has been the empty state of Benches opposite and also around me. It is said that if all men talk well of any person or of any subject one must be sorry for that person or that thing. It seemed to me that because everybody sympathised with this Resolution, my cause was in danger.

Sir, a great deal has been said about the apathy of Government to this question of the education of girls and women. I hold no brief for Government and in my opening speech, I pointed out that Government had not in my humble opinion done quite as much as they might have done for the cause of women's education. But, as I said then, Sir, I moved this Resolution not merely to get something out of Government and not merely, as it were, to ask them for specific favours, but I also hoped, that this House would, by the valuable suggestions that they threw out and by the enthusiasm they showed, give a lead, a moral lead, to the whole country ; and I still believe, Sir, that it is not the Government who alone can educate or help us to educate the women and girls of this country, but that a great deal must be done in this matter by private effort, and, therefore, I have refrained from putting all the blame on the Government. I believe, as my Honourable friend, Sardar Gulab Singh, has said, that " the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world ". If that is true, and I believe it is true, surely it is the duty of everyone, not only of Government but of the people of this land, to do their best to train that hand that is going to rule our country. It is specially necessary when we are trying to give the vote to women and to obtain self-government. I believe the best preparation for self-government is to train and educate our women, and I believe the assistance of the people of the country is necessary, and therefore I would have been much happier if the Benches opposite had supported this Resolution by their valuable suggestions, instead of so many Honourable gentlemen opposite absenting themselves simply because they sympathised with this Resolution.

Now, Sir, I shall take a very short time of the House in saying what I feel about the amendments that have been put forward and about what my Honourable friend the Education Secretary has said in his most eloquent and most sympathetic speech. (Loud cheers.) As regards the amendment of Chaudhri Mukhtar Singh, that I believe only seeks to describe in detail what is already contained in the first part of my Resolution. He says, make primary education for girls compulsory. I have asked Government to give us money or an increased grant for the furtherance of education of women and girls in centrally administered territories. If that money is forthcoming—and I hope it will be, after the Honourable Member's sympathetic speech—then what are we going to use that money for ? The first thing required is primary compulsory education. I agree with my Honourable friend, though I can not ask that from the next day, education must be made compulsory in all centrally administered territories. I do not maintain that ; but when we get the money, that will be one of the first things that we will do. No Resolution can embrace within its short scope all the details of a subject. Nothing would be gained by incorporating such amendments within the terms of this Resolution. With regard to normal schools I used the term " training college " in a very wide sense, not only as a training college for graduate teachers, but also as including teachers for village schools, or teachers trained in normal schools. That, I submit, is included within the scope of that Resolution.

As for the amendment moved by my Honourable friend, the Leader of the Nationalist Party, the suggestion that there should be a first grade women's college in centrally administered areas, preferably Delhi, and that the college should contain facilities for the teaching of Arts and Sciences as well as for training teachers, I am in complete sympathy with his suggestion. But I do not agree with my Honourable and gallant friend, Sir Hari Singh Gour.... (Several Honourable Members: "How is he gallant ?") He is a Knight (Loud laughter and cheers). I do not agree with my Honourable friend that students will not be forthcoming for the women's college, or for high and secondary schools. I do not entertain the same fear, but say that if a college were established in Delhi—and I do hope the Government of India will see the wisdom of establishing such a college—there will be no difficulty in filling it. I have been in educational work in Delhi for the past 20 years, and I can claim to know the state of things in the city and round about, so that I can assure you that if such a college were now established there will be enough girls from Delhi itself and places round about to fill it. In Delhi alone there are three high schools for girls. Of course not one of them is at present run by Government, but they themselves will supply a good many students for a college.

I believe it is the duty of the Central Government to give the lead to other administrations. If they establish a first grade girls' college it will attract women from all parts of the country, and especially if it has a teachers' training department, it will attract girls from all over the country to be trained there. I must say that I am rather surprised that my friend the Education Secretary stated that the Lady Hardinge College suffered from a lack of students. I am in fairly close touch with that college and find that girls are refused admission because it has been found that there is not enough room for them. I maintain that there are several girls who long and desire to go to that college and are prevented from doing so because an adequate number of scholarships are not provided. But if you will only give the money and provide adequate scholarships for students in the Lady Hardinge College, it will be absolutely crowded out and nobody will be able to complain that there are not a sufficient number of scholars forthcoming.

It has been said by various Members that what is required is that a special effort be made to encourage women's education. The reason why women teachers are not forthcoming is because Government will not make it easy for women to go to a training college. From my experience I endorse that opinion. I do not want to lay more blame on the Government, but I do say that women teachers must be encouraged. In fact there ought to be every facility given in the way of scholarships.

One more point is that we have various measures of social reform before this House. My Honourable friend, Sir Hari Singh Gour, has brought in several measures for social reform, but his mind at present is too full of marriage and divorce, and it is very difficult for him to give his attention to education pure and simple. He has maintained that, unless you pass these various social measures, you will not be able to get any progress in social affairs. He told us a little story, that whenever he has visited a high school some hoary-headed gentleman has walked in and said that he wanted to take his girl away as he had to marry her. Who sent that hoary-headed gentleman into that high school? Probably some hoary-headed lady behind the walls of the purdah, who, because she did not receive the benefits of education, had forced that hoary-headed gentleman to go to the school and take his daughter away. First educate our women and girls and then there will be no need for these Bills on marriage and divorce and other things, because our girls will take care of themselves, and that at any rate is the first thing. Let us have education first and then other things.

It seems that the House is very anxious to proceed to the next subject which undoubtedly will provide many more thrills than the tame subject of women's education. I therefore do not desire to deprive the House (Cries of " Go on. go on ") of enjoying those thrills. But, Sir, I would conclude my remarks by saying this—("Cries of " Go, go on ") I can go on till closing time if you really desire, but I shall spare you.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member is probably aware of the Standing Orders.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : May I have two minutes more, Sir ?

Mr. President : How can he ? He has taken more than 15 minutes.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : I only want two more minutes, Sir. My Honourable friend the Education Secretary has asked me to withdraw this Resolution.

Mr. President : Is the Honourable Member going to withdraw his Resolution after making a long speech ? If he wanted to withdraw, he should have begun by making the motion to that effect.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : From what my Honourable friend has stated, I have abundant belief in his good intentions and in the good intentions of the Government which he adorns, and he has agreed, Sir, to what I believe is the spirit of my Resolution. He has promised a Committee which will go into these matters, and as he has also promised to consider sympathetically the question of the establishment of a women's college, all I desire to ask him is if he is also prepared to give us another assurance, viz., if he will be prepared in territories like Delhi, where the Municipality is asking daily for compulsory education, to go a little further and promise that if this report is delayed—and I quite see, Sir, that Government move slowly and that reports take long in preparation—I want to ask him, Sir, whether he will be prepared, if definite proposals are put forward in the course of a few weeks or a few months for the introduction of free compulsory education for girls in the Delhi province and for a more suitable training school for women teachers, to act on those proposals before that report is ready for publication. I can testify from personal experience that Government have done their best to give effect to Mr. Jayakar's Resolution on the depressed classes, and I am quite prepared to withdraw my Resolution, with your permission, and with the permission of the House, if the Honourable the Education Secretary is prepared to give me that assurance.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : After wasting so much time ?

Mr. President : The question is :

" That for the words from ' for the furtherance of ' to the words ' training of women teachers ' the following be substituted :

' for providing free and compulsory primary education of girls between the ages of 6 and 11 in the centrally administered territories as early as possible and as a first step to that end to establish at once a sufficient number of women teachers' training schools in that area '."

(After the President had put the question and collected the " Ayes " and " Noes ".)

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : I would like to withdraw the Resolution, Sir.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : After two days' waste of time ?

Mr. President : The Honourable Member sought to get some further assurance from the Education Secretary and now at this stage he wanted to withdraw the Resolution.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : I asked permission to withdraw before the question was put, Sir.

Mr. President : Is it right ? He wanted an assurance from the Education Secretary which he failed to get and now, at this stage when the question was put, and " Ayes " and " Noes " had been received, the Honourable Member wished to withdraw his Resolution. But he also ought to know that he cannot withdraw the Resolution so long as amendments are in his way. No Resolution can be withdrawn unless the amendments are out of the way. They must either be withdrawn or defeated.

The Ayes have it.

The motion was adopted.

Lala Lajpat Rai : May I withdraw my amendment, Sir ?

Mr. President : As the first amendment is carried, all other amendments fall. I do not know how your amendment can now fit in with the amended Resolution. If the Honourable Member can satisfy me, I am prepared to allow him.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Mr. Chatterjee's Resolution is gone.

Mr. President : No. I am going to put the amended Resolution to the House. The question is :

" That the following Resolution, as amended, be adopted :

' This Assembly recommends to the Governor General in Council that he be pleased to sanction a substantial grant, capital as well as recurring, for providing free and compulsory primary education of girls between the ages of 6 and 11 in the centrally administered territories as early as possible and as a first step to that end to establish at once a sufficient number of women teachers' training schools in that area.

This Assembly further recommends that a competent Committee, including prominent women, be appointed to go into the subject and to make a report '."

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : I ask your permission now, Sir, to withdraw.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : It is not your Resolution.

An Honourable Member : That is a technical difficulty.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member was not fortunate enough to defeat the amendment.

The question is that that Resolution, as amended, be adopted.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : To-morrow I understand the Select Committee on the Public Safety Bill meets and therefore this House will not sit.

The House stands adjourned till Thursday morning at 11 o'clock.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Thursday the 20th September, 1928.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

PAYMENT OF COMPENSATION TO TELEGRAPHISTS AND TELEGRAPH DELIVERY PEONS FOR EXTRA WORK ON SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS.

670. Mr. N. M. Joshi : Are Government aware that during a period of 30 years service, telegraphists and delivery peons render almost 7 years more of service than employees in the administrative offices, by reason of the denial to them of all Government holidays, half holidays or even Sundays ? And if so, what compensation do these employees receive at the hands of the Government for the extra service rendered ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The condition of service in the case of telegraphists and telegraph delivery peons is such that they are required to perform a short duty on Sundays and holidays. This is a factor which has not been lost sight of in fixing their scale of pay. Moreover, these officials are treated liberally in the matter of casual leave. The question of paying them any compensation does not arise.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I know whether it is not a fact that they lose leave which others enjoy ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : I think, Sir, that I explained that in my answer. The conditions of telegraph work is such that some telegraphic work must be done on Sundays and holidays in the interests of the public. The men who perform this extra short duty are given extra casual leave and their pay is regulated in consideration of the total work they do.

MILITARY PENSIONERS IN CHITTAGONG.

671. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state how many military pensioners there are in Chittagong ? Do Government propose to take steps to send these pensions by money order when they are below Rs. 20 ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Military pensions at Chittagong are disbursed by the Treasury Officer. The Officer is under the Local Government to whom a copy of the Honourable Member's question and this answer will be communicated.

INCREASE IN THE PERCENTAGE OF MUSSALMANS EMPLOYED IN CERTAIN OFFICES.

672. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of Superintendents, Head clerks and clerks in the offices of the (i) Controller of Inspections, (ii) Controller of Purchase, Calcutta Circle, (iii) Controller of Patents, (iv) Chief Inspector of Explosives and

(v) Director General, Commercial Intelligence and Statistics, and state the number of Mussalmans in the above offices in each cadre ?

(b) If the percentage of Mussalmans falls below the number prescribed by the Home Department, what steps have been taken by Government to increase the percentage of Mussalmans ?

(c) Is it a fact that there is only one Moslem Inspector out of 25 Inspectors and Examiners in the office of the Controller of Purchase ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The information asked for is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member.

(b) There is no prescribed number of Mussalmans for these or other offices.

(c) As the Controller of Purchase, Calcutta Circle, has no Examiners under him, it is presumed that the question refers to the Office of the Controller of Inspection, Calcutta Circle. Out of 14 Examiners and 13 Inspectors at present employed in the latter Office, only one Examiner is a Moslem.

CLASS, NUMBER AND HORSE-POWER OF LOCOMOTIVES OWNED BY, ORDERED OR UNDER CONSTRUCTION IN RAILWAY WORKSHOPS FOR STATE AND COMPANY-MANAGED RAILWAYS.

673. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will Government be pleased to state the class, number and horse-power of locomotives :

(a) owned by,

(b) under order with manufacturers for,

(c) under construction by railway workshops or other State-owned factories and other engineering concerns in India for :

(i) State-managed Railways, and

(ii) Company-managed Railways ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to pages 77, 163 and 164 of the Report by the Railway Board on Indian Railways for 1926-27, which gives the information available including the tractive effort of locomotives on Class I Railways. Locomotives are rated by tractive effort and not by horse-power.

(b) The Honourable Member will find the number and types of locomotives which it was proposed to order for each Railway, either State-managed or Company-managed, in the pink books which were circulated with the Budget. I am unable to say whether in all cases orders have as yet actually been placed.

(c) Locomotives are only at present manufactured in India at the Ajmer workshops. The locomotives which it was proposed to manufacture there in the current year were 15.

PRESENT LENGTH OF RAILWAY LINES IN INDIA AND UNDER CONSTRUCTION IN STATE AND COMPANY-MANAGED RALWAYS.

674. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will Government be pleased to state the present length of railway lines in India and that under construction, broad gauge, metre gauge and narrow gauge in

(a) State-managed Railways, and

(b) Company-managed Railways ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am sending the Honourable Member a statement giving the information he requires.

ANNUAL CONSUMPTION OF COAL IN TONS BY STATE AND COMPANY-MANAGED RAILWAYS.

675. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will Government be pleased to state the annual coal consumption in tons by

(a) State-managed Railways, and

(b) Company-managed Railways,

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Sir Denys Bray who is still confined to bed has requested me to answer this and other questions relating to his Department in his place.

(a) The point is under examination and a reply will be sent to the Honourable Member in due course.

(b) and (c). The Government of India are not at present in a position to make any statement on these points.

†680*-685*.

INTRODUCTION OF THE CREW SYSTEM ON THE DIFFERENT STATE RAILWAYS.

686. Mr. Muhammad Rafique : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state when the Crew System was introduced on the different State-owned Railways ?

(b) Was this system meant to replace the ticket checking system previously in force ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Crew System is a preventive measure for illicit travelling while the Travelling Ticket Inspectors were for the purpose of detection only ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The Crew System was introduced on the Howrah-Asansol Section of the East Indian Railway in August 1926, and extended over the complete length of the Howrah Division including a small portion of the Asansol Division from 1st April 1927. It was then introduced on the Lucknow Division on 1st May 1927. It was further extended on the Asansol-Moghal Serai Section excluding branches from 1st April 1928. It was introduced on certain sections of the Eastern Bengal Railway on the 15th October 1927. On the Great Indian Peninsula Railway it was introduced on the Manmad Division from 1st April 1927.

(c) Is it a fact that a Travelling Ticket Inspector draws or used to draw mileage allowance before the Crew System was introduced ?

(d) Is it a fact that this mileage allowance forms a part of his pay as 25 per cent. of this mileage allowance is deducted for Provident Fund ?

(e) What is the difference between mileage allowance and travelling allowance ?

(f) Is 25 per cent. of the travelling allowance also deducted for Provident Fund ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The latest date for which figures are available is March 1928, when there were 96 Travelling Ticket Inspectors on the East Indian Railway.

The number of such Inspectors before the Crew System was introduced was 166.

(f) No.

Crewmen	1,132
Crewmen-in-Charge	176
Assistant Inspectors	50
Sub-Inspectors	3
Chief Inspectors	3

(b) Government are not aware of the exact numbers and doubt if any useful purpose would be served by calling for the information.

PROMOTION OF TRAVELLING TICKET INSPECTORS TO CREWMEN, CREWMEN-IN-CHARGE AND ASSISTANT CREW INSPECTORS.

689. Mr. Muhammad Rafique : (a) Is it a fact that some Travelling Ticket Inspectors of long service have been made Crewmen, Crewmen-in-charge and Assistant Crew Inspectors ?

(b) Is it a fact that some Travelling Ticket Inspectors, though drawing their usual salaries, have been put into a much lower grade and are subordinate to those who receive less pay ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) A few have been so treated.

RULES FRAMED IN CONNECTION WITH THE CREW SYSTAM ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

690. Mr. Muhammad Rafique : (a) Is it a fact that a meeting of officials of East Indian Railway which included the Chief Operating Superintendent, Director of Finance (Railway Board), Deputy Agent and others was held to consider some questions and to frame some rules in connection with the Crew System on the 3rd of May 1927 ?

(b) Were the rules framed and suggestions made by these officials approved by the Agent, East Indian Railway, and the Railway Board ?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the minutes of the meeting held on the 3rd May 1927 or lay on the table a copy of the rules framed at that meeting ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes ; a meeting of departmental officers was held to consider certain questions connected with the working of the Crew System.

(b) No rules were framed, but the orders of the Agent, East Indian Railway, and of the Railway Board were taken where necessary.

(c) The meeting was purely a departmental meeting, and Government do not propose to lay copies of minutes on the table. No rules were framed at the meeting.

PAY OF TRAVELLING TICKET INSPECTORS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

691. Mr. Muhammad Rafique : (a) Was it mentioned in the rules framed at the meeting of officials held on the 3rd May 1927, that the Travelling Ticket Inspectors and Deputy Inspectors of the Travelling Ticket Inspectors taken over by the Operating Department, will be placed in suitable appointments on the new scale recently sanctioned for the Operating Department by the Agent, and that they will draw the pay they used to draw in the Accounts Department plus average mileage ? Was it also stated that the average mileage would be calculated on the mileage actually drawn for a period of 12 months prior to transfer to the Crew System, and that the difference between the pay thus arrived at after taking average mileage into consideration and the maximum of the grade in the Operating Department in which they are placed, would be observed in future increments ?

(b) Will Government kindly state if effect has been given to these Resolutions, and if so, how many cases have been dealt with accordingly ?

(c) How many Travelling Ticket Inspectors are now under the Operating Department ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). The Honourable Member's question appears to be based on the record of a departmental meeting contained in a file in either the Railway Board's or the Agent's office, and I regret that I am unable to make any statement with regard to such a record which is a privileged document. I shall, however, be obliged if the Honourable Member will kindly let me know how the information came into his possession.

(c) I am making enquiries and will let the Honourable Member know the number later.

APPEAL MADE BY THE TRAVELLING TICKET INSPECTORS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY TO THE DIVISIONAL SUPERINTENDENT, CREWS, DINAPUR.

692. Mr. Muhammad Rafique : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if any appeal by the Travelling Ticket Inspectors was made to the Divisional Superintendent, Crews, Dinapur ?

(b) Is it a fact that a reply on the following lines was received by the Travelling Ticket Inspectors from the Operating Department in letter No. 40-O.D.|Crew, dated 7th August 1928 : " The memorialists do not in any way suffer any monetary loss by being in the Crew System. It is purely an act of grace that these men are being retained and paid high salary though utilised for appointments which are only worth between Rs. 50 and Rs. 60. Taking a strict view perhaps the correct procedure would have been to dispense with the services of these men or offer them posts on lower pay " ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the length of services of these Travelling Ticket Inspectors ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state the name of the officer who sent this letter, his grade, and the period he has been posted on the grade ?

(e) Is it the intention of the Government to dismiss the Travelling Ticket Inspectors who have served for a long period by utilising them for lower grade appointments ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a), (b), (c) and (d). Government have no knowledge of the facts and regret that they cannot undertake to enquire into cases of individual officials which are entirely within the competence of the Agent.

I would also point out to the Honourable Member with reference to part (e) of his question that a transfer of an employee to another post is not a dismissal.

EMPLOYMENT ON LOWER SALARIES IN THE CREW SYSTEM OF TRAVELLING TICKET INSPECTORS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

693. Mr. Muhammad Rafique : (a) Is it a fact that on page 42 of the Report on " Experimental Working of Crews System " by the Chief Operating Superintendent it is mentioned " There is no class of employees under the Crew System whose duties and responsibilities could be held as equivalent as those of Travelling Ticket Inspectors " ?

(b) If the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, what are the reasons that these Travelling Ticket Inspectors are employed for lower salaried work in the Crew System ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Travelling Ticket Inspectors have to pass some examinations before they are appointed ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes. Incidentally I wish to observe that the Honourable Member is quoting from a purely departmental document, the contents of which have not been published, and I shall be very grateful to him if he will let me know how it came into his possession.

(b) In order to provide other posts for men who would otherwise have to be discharged from the service.

(c) I believe this to be so.

PROMOTION OF SUBORDINATES TO SUPERIOR APPOINTMENTS ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

694. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) How many subordinates were acting as officers on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway when Mr. Parsons in reply to my question in the last Session gave the assurance that the confirmation of subordinates was dependent on permanent vacancies occurring ?

(b) How many vacancies occurred since and how were they filled up ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) 35.

(b) 13. Of these 2 were filled by the Secretary of State, 9 by direct recruitment in India, 1 by promotion from the subordinate grades, and 1 will shortly be filled by similar promotion.

(c) The total cadre of the superior officers on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway is 249, and 3 have been promoted from the subordinate grades.

TERM OF PROBATION FOR THE TRAINING COURSE OF PROBATIONERS APPOINTED TO THE TRANSPORTATION AND COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENTS OF THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

695. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) What is the term of probation fixed for the training course of probationers appointed to the transportation and commercial services of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway ?

(b) Are these probationers after their training is finished entitled to confirmation in permanent vacancies in preference to the subordinates with approved service who are fully qualified for confirmation and who have been awaiting confirmation for many years ?

(c) Are Government aware of these probationers having been confirmed in permanent vacancies much earlier than the period of their probation ?

(d) What will be the status and the pay of subordinates who have been acting for several years? Should they have to revert to their substantive posts either for proceeding on privilege leave or for a temporary leave vacancy not being available ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Three years.

(b) Probationers have no prescriptive right to confirmation in permanent vacancies and their existence in no way interferes with the rule that 20 per cent. of the vacancies open to persons of Asiatic domicile will be filled by the promotion of subordinates.

(c) No.

PRESENT SCALE OF PAY OF THE TICKET-PRINTING STAFF ATTACHED TO THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF AUDITOR, GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

696. Mr. N. M. Joshi : Will Government be pleased to state

(a) the present scale of pay of the ticket-printing staff attached to the Chief Auditor's Office :

(b) whether they are given leave, holiday and provident fund privileges on the lines of other clerical staff of the office :

(c) whether the staff on transfer from Victoria Terminus to Byculla have been allotted insanitary, dark and less amount of space in the office of the Head Printer, Byculla : and

(d) whether Government have received a representation from the members of the staff regarding (a), (b), and (c) and if so, what action Government have taken or propose to take ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : With your permission, Sir, I propose to answer questions 696, 698, 699 and 705 together.

Enquiries are being made and the information will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

GRANT OF LEAVE AND PROVIDENT FUND PRIVILEGES TO THE MENIAL STAFF EMPLOYED IN THE VARIOUS ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICES OF THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY IN BOMBAY.

697. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the menial staff on the permanent establishment, such as sepoys and hamals, employed in the various administrative offices of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway in Bombay are granted leave and provident fund privileges ? If not, why not ?

(b) Have Government received any representation regarding the inadequacy of their present scale of pay and, if so, what action have Government taken or propose to take in the matter ?

(c) If not, why not ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Menial Staff, who were previously in the service of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company, are required to subscribe to the Provident Fund if drawing Rs. 30 or over. Other menial staff are not entitled, or required, to subscribe to the Provident Fund. Fifteen days' leave a year is granted to all permanently employed menial staff who have completed one year's service.

(b) No.

(c) Does not arise.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I ask why the menials who receive less than Rs. 30 are not asked to contribute to the Provident Fund ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I believe, Sir, that Rs. 30 is the general limit at present, but the question of revising that limit is under consideration.

EMPLOYMENT OF RELIEVING STAFF ON THE PERMANENT ESTABLISHMENT OF THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF AUDITOR, GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

†698. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) What relieving staff, if any, is at present employed on the permanent establishment of the Chief Auditor's office, Great Indian Peninsula Railway ?

(b) If the answer to (a) be in the negative, do Government propose to sanction the employment of such staff to enable the employees in general to avail themselves of the leave privileges ? If not, why not ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 696.

PAY OF THE SUBORDINATE STAFF OF THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF AUDITOR, GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

†699. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the present scale of pay of the subordinate staff of the Chief Auditor's office, Great Indian Peninsula Railway ?

(b) Is it a fact that the starting salary of a clerk in the Government offices in Bombay other than those of the Railway, is Rs. 60, whereas in the Chief Auditor's office it is Rs. 40 ?

(c) Have Government received any representation from the staff of the Chief Auditor's office (Great Indian Peninsula Railway) for the introduction of a time scale of pay and what action have Government taken in the matter, or propose to take in the matter ? If not, why not ?

NEW LEAVE RULES FOR SUBORDINATES ON RAILWAYS.

700. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the Government in reply to starred question No. 863 of the 11th March 1927 stated "they hoped the new leave rules for railway subordinates will be got out before the end of 1927 " ?

(b) Is it a fact that they have not been introduced as yet ?

(c) Is it a fact that the question of revised rules has been under consideration of the Government since 1923 ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state when the new leave rules will be got out and introduced ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I regret there is nothing I can add at present to the reply I gave in February last to the same questions of the Honourable Member except that Government are endeavouring to find a solution in regard to the leave rules for subordinates on the East Indian and Great Indian Peninsula Railways apart from the general question of revising the leave rules of all Railways.

TRANSFER OF MEN FROM THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF AUDITOR, GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY TO THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE, DELHI.

701. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) How many men have been transferred from the Chief Auditor's Office, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, to the Railway Clearing Accounts Office, Delhi ?

(b) Is it a fact that the actual number of staff required for the transferred work was not taken over by the Clearing Accounts office and that some men were locally engaged by the Director ?

(c) If the answer to (b) be in the affirmative, what is the number of men locally engaged ?

(d) Is it a fact that on account of the staff referred to in (c) having been engaged by the Clearing Office, the permanent staff of the Chief Auditor's office is being reduced in proportion ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) 160.

(b) Steps had been taken by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway for some time past to keep temporary vacancies unfilled and so reduce the actual number of men to be transferred to Delhi, with the result that out of 224 vacancies, only 160 men were transferred. The rest were locally engaged by the Director.

(c) 64.

(d) A corresponding number of posts in the Great Indian Peninsula Railway have been brought under reduction, but, so far as I am aware, no permanent employee has been discharged on this account.

ESTABLISHMENT OF A BRANCH RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE IN MADRAS.

702. *Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that a branch of the Railway Clearing Accounts Office, Delhi, is proposed to be established shortly in Madras ?

(b) Do Government propose to open branches of that office in Bombay, Calcutta and Lucknow ? If not, why not ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The Railways in Southern India are considering the establishment of a branch Railway Clearing Accounts Office in Madras and I think it is probable that this will be done.

(b) No. In a speech which I made on the 27th of February 1928 on a motion made by Maulvi Muhammad Yakub during the course of the Railway Budget I explained that full advantage of a Clearing Accounts Office is not obtained until the work is concentrated in one central place but the length of time which it would take to send documents from the Railways in Southern India to Delhi makes it desirable to establish a branch of the office there.

CENTRALISATION OF THE LOCAL AUDIT OFFICES OF STATE RAILWAYS.

703. *Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that they propose to centralise the Local Audit Offices of the State Railways, and if so, when and at what place ?

(b) Are Government aware that the proposal involves the transfer of a large number of staff from the respective offices and consequent inconvenience and hardship to them ? Do Government propose to compensate such staff for the same and how ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) There are proposals to this effect, but it has been decided to postpone them for the time being until they can be further discussed in the Standing Finance Committee for Railways.

(b) The proposals will involve the transfer of a certain number of clerks from other offices, but the conditions on which such transfers will be made if the proposals are adopted will be carefully considered.

GRANT OF CONCESSIONS TO THE STAFF OF THE STATE RAILWAYS AUDIT OFFICES TRANSFERRED TO THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE, DELHI.

704. *Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that Government had granted a bonus of two months' pay, subject to a maximum of Rs. two hundred, among other concessions to the clerical staff of the offices transferred from Calcutta to Delhi, viz., the offices of the Accountant General, Central Revenues, the Accountant General, Posts and Telegraphs, and the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, in 1925 and 1926 ?

(b) Is it a fact that this concession was not granted to the staff of the State Railways Audit Offices transferred to the Clearing Accounts Office, Delhi, although prayed for ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) No. Government consider that the concessions already granted are adequate.

†705. *Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that one Mr. J. Methais, an Anglo-Indian, was appointed as an Audit Inspector in the Chief Auditor's Office in 1925 ?

(b) Is it a fact that as a result of serious complaints from the Divisional Officers of the Great Indian Peninsula and Madras and Southern Mahratta Railways against him and further on account of misconduct he was degraded and allowed to remain as a clerk in 1926 ?

(c) Is it a fact that after some time he was twice promoted to higher grades in supersession of several capable Indian subordinates despite his bad record ?

(d) If the answer to part (c) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to put a stop to this ?

DISMISSAL OR DISCHARGE OF EMPLOYEES OF THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

706 *Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that on the Bengal and North Western Railway when any railway servant is dismissed or discharged no reason for his dismissal or discharge is communicated to him ?

(b) If the answer to (a) be in the affirmative, will they be pleased to state the reason for it ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). No employee is dismissed or discharged on the Bengal and North Western Railway, without enquiry or the sanction of a senior official and without his being made aware of the reasons.

In certain cases in the interests of the men themselves the reasons are not entered on their certificates.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware that no definite rules are prescribed on the Bengal and North Western Railway for proper representation of individual grievances of railway servants ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 696.

SUPPLY TO EMPLOYEES OF THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY OF THEIR SERVICE AGREEMENTS.

707 Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the railway servants on the Bengal and North Western Railway are supplied with a copy of the service agreement bond they execute with the Railway ?

(b) If the answer to (a) be in the negative, will they be pleased to state if they propose to do so ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) No.

(b) There is no objection to an employee being supplied with a copy of his service agreement should he desire it.

ABOLITION OF THE EXISTING TRAINING SCHOOLS AT LOVEDALE AND COONOOR.

708 Mr. N. M. Joshi : Will Government be pleased to state whether they have issued orders to the Postmaster General, Madras Circle, abolishing the existing training schools at Lovedale and Coonoor ? If so, from what date ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : With your permission, Sir, I shall answer questions, 708 and 709 together. Orders have been issued terminating the existing agreements between these schools and the Posts and Telegraphs Department with effect from the 1st September 1929. On receipt of a representation from the Postmaster-General, Madras, that the special courses of training for recruits for the Telegraph Department terminated at these Schools in December and September respectively, an extension of time has been allowed in the case of the Coonoor School up to the middle of September 1929 and in the case of the Lovedale School up to the end of December 1929.

EXTENSION OF TIME FOR THE TERMINATION OF THE AGREEMENTS WITH THE TRAINING SCHOOLS AT LOVEDALE AND COONOOR.

†709. Mr. N. M. Joshi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have received any communication from the Postmaster General, Madras Circle, recommending to the Director General extension for the training schools at Lovedale and Coonoor ?

(b) If the answer to the above be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state on what grounds the Head of the Circle has recommended their extension ?

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE LEE COMMISSION RELATING TO APPOINTMENTS TO THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE BY PROMOTIONS FROM PROVINCIAL SERVICES.

710. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) With reference to the unanimous recommendation made by the Lee Commission that the rate of promotion from the Provincial Civil Services to the Superior Civil Service appointments should be increased, and that " 20 per cent. of the recruits should be obtained from that source in future ", will Government be pleased to state, on the basis of the latest figures available, as to how far this recommendation has been given effect to in each province, and to what extent the position of the Judicial and Executive branches, respectively, of the Provincial Civil Service in each province has improved in comparison with the position that obtained previous to the said recommendation ?

(b) If full effect has not yet been given to the said recommendation, will Government be pleased to state the reasons therefor, and their future intentions in the matter ?

(c) Have Government received any representations from members of the Provincial Civil Services on this matter ; and if so, what action has been taken thereon ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) I lay on the table a statement which gives the information required.

(b) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given by my predecessor to part (c) of his question of the 24th March 1926.

APPOINTMENT OF HIGH COURT JUDGES FROM THE RANKS OF THE PROVINCIAL CIVIL SERVICE.

711 Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Will Government be pleased to state their policy in regard to the appointment of High Court Judges from the ranks of the Provincial Civil Service, in the different provinces ?

(b) How many Judgeships in the Calcutta High Court have been conferred on members of the Provincial Civil Service so far, and for what period in each case ?

(c) Is it a fact that in some other High Courts the claims of the Provincial Civil Service to Judgeships have received better recognition ?

(d) Has the question of conferring at least one permanent Judgeship in the Calcutta High Court on members of the Provincial Civil Service, ever been considered by Government ? If so, when and with what result ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) The Honourable Member is referred to the answer given in this House to Mr. Goswami's question, printed on page 663 of Volume IV of the Assembly Debates of 18th February 1924.

(b) Four, so far as we have been able to ascertain from our records. One in 1883 for a short period ; one in 1913 for 5 months and 4 days ; one in 1920 for one month ; and one this year for 3 months and 24 days.

(c) There are Judges appointed from the Provincial Service in the Madras, Allahabad, Lahore and Rangoon High Courts.

(d) Permanent appointments to the High Court are made by His Majesty under section 101 of the Government of India Act. The main consideration is efficiency, as is stated in the reply I have quoted. Subject to this, the claims of members of the judicial branch of the Bengal Civil Service no less than those of members of other classes from which High Court Judges are recruited receive due consideration.

SHORTAGE OF OFFICERS IN THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE.

712 Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Will Government be pleased to inform this House if the I. M. S. cadre is under strength ?

(b) If the answer to (a) is in the affirmative—

(i) To what extent would this shortage of officers affect the medical needs of the Indian Army in the event of its mobilisation ?

(ii) What steps are Government taking to remedy the situation both in India and England ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) (i) The shortage has been made up by enlisting the services of temporary commissioned medical officers who would be available on mobilization.

(ii) Every endeavour is being made to stimulate recruitment and bring the service up to strength.

ADMISSION OF MEMBERS OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL DEPARTMENT TO THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE.

713 Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Is it a fact that suitable candidates are not procurable in England for the I. M. S. ?

(b) If this is so, do Government propose to consider, in addition to any other measures, the advisability of filling up a certain number of these vacancies by admitting British qualified members of the I. M. D., allowing certain war service concessions for those who are slightly over the maximum age ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) At the present moment suitable candidates are not forthcoming in sufficient numbers.

(b) The selection of candidates for permanent commissions in the Indian Medical Service is made by Selection Boards in England and India. For some years it has been open to members of the Indian Medical Department at any time before they reach the age limit to apply for appointment to the Indian Medical Service. Several of them have done so and have been appointed.

DIFFICULTY IN SUPPLYING THE CIVIL MEDICAL DEPARTMENT WITH OFFICERS FROM THE MILITARY BRANCH OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE.

714. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Is it a fact that owing to the cadre of the I. M. S. being under strength the Director, Medical Services, India, is unable to supply officers from the Military Branch of the I. M. S. to filll about 40 vacancies in the Civil Medical Department ?

(b) If so, what action do Government intend to take to remedy the position ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) It is true that the military authorities are finding it increasingly difficult to supply the full requirements of the Civil Department in the way of European I. M. S. officers, but I do not think that the shortage amounts to as many as 40.

(b) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply I have given to part (b) (ii) of his question No. 712.

SHORTAGE OF OFFICERS IN THE INDIAN MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

715. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Is it a fact that I. M. D. cadre is much under strength ? If so, to what extent and how would this affect the medical needs of the British Army in the event of its mobilisation ?

(b) If the answer to the first part of (a) is in the affirmative, what action do Government propose to take to remedy the situation ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) No, Sir. The Assistant Surgeons' Branch of the Indian Medical Department is at present up to full strength. The remaining part of the question does not arise.

(b) The question does not arise.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Does the full strength include the leave reserve ?

Mr. G. M. Young : The cadre is up to its full strength.

SHORTAGE OF OFFICERS IN THE INDIAN MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

716. *Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Is it a fact that owing to the Department being under strength the Director, Medical Services, India, has had to refuse the services of many Military Assistant Surgeons to supply the pressing civil needs of various Provinces, in the Railways, Civil Medical Services and the Jail Department ?

(b) If this is so, what steps do Government intend taking to remedy the position and, are they prepared again to advertise for the re-employment of suitable axed and ex-I. M. D. men ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) As I have just stated, the Department as a whole is not under strength. At the present moment the number of Assistant Surgeons in military employ is just short of requirements, and the Civil Departments therefore have rather more than their share.

(b) Does not arise. But I may add for the information of the Honourable Member that suitable ex-officers of the Indian Medical Department are being re-employed where necessary.

EDUCATIONAL QUALIFICATIONS FOR ADMISSION INTO THE INDIAN MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

717. *Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Is it a fact that in accepting the Senior Cambridge educational qualification for admission into the I. M. D., Government demand that such students must have obtained a credit pass in English, mathematics and a classical language ?

(b) If the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, will Government state if it is a fact that no such special knowledge, particularly in a classical language, is required from a candidate who has passed the I. A. or I. Sc. examination ?

(c) If this is so, do Government propose to reconsider the situation and accept Senior Cambridge passed candidates who have not obtained these credit passes ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) A credit pass in these subjects is demanded by the examining bodies.

(b) A pass with credit in any of the subjects mentioned in part (a) is not essential for candidates who possess Intermediate Science qualifications. A pass in the Intermediate Arts Examination is not sufficient for admission to the Indian Medical Department.

(c) The standard of preliminary educational qualifications is not fixed by Government but by the examining bodies, that is to say, the State Medical Faculty of Bengal and the Board of Examiners, Madras.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member kindly address the examining body or college and ask them to accept the Senior Cambridge pass, in view of the fact that credits in these subjects are not required for the higher Degrees, e.g., I. A. and I. Sc.

Mr. G. M. Young : I will convey this question and answer, as well as the Honourable Member's supplementary question, to the examining bodies.

EMPLOYMENT OF ASSISTANT SURGEONS WITH BRITISH MEDICAL QUALIFICATIONS AS MEDICAL OFFICERS OF BRITISH STATION HOSPITALS.

718. *Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will Government state whether in 1926-27, the Director, Medical Services, India, issued order to the various Commands, requesting Officers Commanding British Station Hospitals, to utilise the services of the British qualified Military Assistant Surgeons of the I. M. D. as Medical Officers of these Hospitals ? If so, has this order been carried out and to what extent ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. M. Young : There were no definite orders on the subject but a circular was issued in May 1926 suggesting that Assistant Surgeons with British medical qualifications should be employed on such duties as would permit of the fullest use of their professional attainments. There are at present 12 Assistant Surgeons with British qualifications in military employ and they are all employed in posts suitable to their qualifications.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : May I enquire what precisely those posts are ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I am informed that one of these Assistant Surgeons is in charge of the Military Hospital at Purandhar, four are attached to British Military Hospitals, and the others are in special appointments, e.g., factories, arsenals, etc.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Are those appointments usually held by medical officers of the R. A. M. C. ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I am afraid I must ask for notice of that question.

ADMISSION OF ASSISTANT SURGEONS WITH BRITISH MEDICAL QUALIFICATIONS INTO PROVINCIAL CIVIL MEDICAL SERVICES.

719. *Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) In view of the fact that certain Provinces have closed their doors to the employment of I. M. D. men in their Civil Medical Services, will Government inform this House whether this exclusion is a post-reform measure and is the result of Indianisation about which Resolutions were passed by Provincial Legislatures ?

(b) If so, do Government propose to address the Provincial Governments with a view to their consenting to receive British qualified Military Assistant Surgeons into their Civil Medical Services ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) The Government of India understand that only one Local Government has decided not to employ Indian Medical Department officers in its provincial medical service in future. Some Local Governments have decided to reduce the number of posts previously reserved for Indian Medical Department officers, but such reduction is to be effected gradually and the rights of officers already in provincial employ are, so far as possible, to be safeguarded.

(b) As the Honourable Member will gather from the answer to the first part of this question, the Government of India have been in correspondence with Local Governments on the subject. The matter is, however, entirely within the discretion of Local Governments.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : The Honourable Member has stated that there is only one Provincial Government which has closed its doors to the employment of Indian Medical Department for provincial medical employ, whereas I understand that two Provincial Governments have done so and more are to follow. Would the Honourable Member kindly enquire whether the Punjab Government and also the United Provinces Government have closed their doors to the employment of Indian Medical Department officers in their respective provincial medical services ?

Mr. G. M. Young : The two Governments mentioned by my Honourable friend have not reached a definite decision with regard to this matter. So far as the Government of India are aware, only one Provincial Government has decided not to employ Indian Medical Department officers in its provincial medical service in future.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : I understand that the United Provinces Government decided long ago not to recruit any more Indian Medical Department officers to their civil medical service.

Mr. G. M. Young : So far as I am aware that decision has not been conveyed to the Government of India.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Are Government aware that the Minister of Local Self-government announced in the United Provinces Council in 1922 or 1923 that the Government of India had agreed not to compel Local Governments to take in I. M. D. officers for appointment as Civil Surgeons and to posts of the same standard.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : With your permission, Sir, I shall answer that question. My Honourable friend is absolutely correct in stating that the Minister for Local Self-Government announced, I think it was in 1922, in the United Provinces Council that the Government of India agreed not to compel Local Governments to employ any more I. M. D. officers, but I understand that they have not decided not to take I. M. D. officers on their own initiative if they choose to do so in future.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Are Government aware that Pandit Jagat Narain said that while the rights of the existing I. M. D. men in the civil medical service would be respected in future, no more I. M. D. men would be recruited ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The position is that the Local Government do not accept the position that the Government of India should compel them not to employ any more I. M. D. officers. As far as Pandit Jagat Narain's statement is concerned, namely, committing the United Provinces Government not to employ any more I. M. D. officers in future I am not in a position to say anything about that.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : With reference to his reply, will the Honourable Member please state whether such inactivity on the part of the Government of India is or is not contrary to the Instrument of Instructions contained in the Government of India Act of 1919 and contrary to paragraph 346 of the Montford Report, i.e., the protection of minority communities, e.g., the employment of the I. M. D. in these two provinces, and if so, will the Government of India be so good as to address the Provincial Governments on this matter ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I have not followed the Honourable Member's question, but I do not see how the protection of minority communities interests arise in this case.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : With reference to the question of racial discrimination, are Government aware that Indians are not admitted into the Indian Medical Department ?

(No reply.)

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : The Honourable the Army Secretary stated that the Government of India were in correspondence with the Local Governments in regard to the employment of Indian Medical Department officers in civil employ. Is it intended to compel any Local Government to employ officers of the I. M. D. in higher civil medical posts ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I think I can state that the Government of India have no intention of compelling any Local Government to employ any I. M. D. officers if they do not wish to.

Mr. G. M. Young : I should like to answer that question, also. If the Honourable Member had listened to my previous answer he would not have put it. I did not say that the Government of India were in correspondence with Local Governments with regard to their employment of I. M. D. officers in civil posts. What I said was, " As the Honourable Member will gather from the answer to the first part of this question, the Government of India have been in correspondence with Local Governments on the subject. The matter is, however, entirely within the discretion of Local Governments."

PUBLICATION OF THE NEEDHAM REPORT ON THE RAILWAY MEDICAL SERVICE.

720. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will Government please state whether and when it proposes to publish the Needham Report on the Railway Medical Service ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Report is a purely departmental publication, and it is not intended to publish it.

Lieutenant-Col. H. A. J. Gidney : May I ask the Honourable Member why the report has not been published ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Because it is a purely departmental publication.

Lieutenant-Col. H. A. J. Gidney : May I ask the Honourable Member whether the Legislative Assembly has not voted the expenses in connection with that report ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I assume that is so, but it does not necessarily follow that the report should be published.

PRESENT STRENGTH OF THE INDIAN ARMY NURSING SERVICE.

721. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Will Government please inform this House of the present strength of the Indian Army Nursing Service and if it is adequate for the needs of the Army in the event of its mobilisation ?

(b) How many nurses were admitted into it during the years 1926-27 ?

(c) Is it the intention of Government to increase the cadre of this Service ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a). 55. This number represents the total strength of the peace establishment, and is not intended to meet the full needs of the Army on mobilization.

(b) 18.

INFORMATION RELATING TO DETAILS OF EXPENSES REQUIRED BY THE INCOME-TAX AUTHORITIES FROM ASSESSEES.

722. Mr. H. G. Cocke : (a) Are Government aware of the growing practice of the Income-tax authorities to require assessees, taxable under the head " Business ", to give details of their expenses, such as interest, brokerage, commission, etc., to the extent of requiring them to supply the names and addresses of the recipients of such interest, brokerage, etc., and the amounts paid to each, with the admitted object of enabling such third parties to be assessed for income which otherwise might escape assessment ?

(c) Do Government propose to issue instructions that where information as to names and addresses are refused by the assessee, the expense will still be allowed as a business deduction, if satisfied otherwise that it has been genuinely incurred ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) So far as relates to payments of commission, and the like, which fall within the definition of " Salaries ", the practice described is necessary in order to secure the observance of the provisions of section 21 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922. So far as relates to payments such as interest, which, when received by the payee, do not fall within the definition of " Salaries ", but which the Income-tax Officer has to examine in connection with the grant of business deductions in the assessment of the original assessees, the Government of India have no information as to the existence of the practice described, and whether, if it exists, it is a growing practice ; but they will call for reports upon the subject from the Commissioners of Income-tax.

(b) The Honourable Member is referred to sections 21, 22 (4), 23 (2) and 37 of the Indian Income-tax Act ; and

(c) The Government of India will consider whether it is necessary to issue any instructions when they have received the reports referred to in my answer to part (a).

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : I am sorry I have not been able to follow the answer to the first part. Will the Honourable Member kindly repeat his answer to the first part ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : My Honourable friend will be able to follow it when he sees it in print later on in the official debates.

ADMISSION OF INDIAN BOYS INTO THE RAILWAY ENGINEERING SERVICE.

723. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Have any complaints been received by Government regarding rules for admission of Indian boys into the Railway Engineering Service ?

(b) Is it a fact, that the Public Service Commission requires that the candidate should have passed in their Science examination before completing 20 years ?

(c) Is it a fact that the age of candidates is calculated from 1st January of any particular year ?

(d) Are Government aware that the results of University examinations in India are declared in the months of May and June ? If so, are Government aware of hardships to candidates caused by their passing examinations in May and their competitive age being calculated from January ?

(e) Do Government propose to take necessary step to remove the anomaly prevailing now ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) No.

(b) and (c). Under the rules candidates for the Mechanical Engineering, Transportation (Power) and Electrical Engineering Departments must be under 19 years of age on the 1st of January of the year in which the selection is to be made.

(d) and (e). Government are not aware that the present date for calculating the age for this purpose causes any hardship, but they will obtain the advice of the Public Service Commission.

DETENTION OF THE 19 UP AND 20 DOWN EXPRESS TRAINS AT PATUANDA MAHABIRA ROAD STATION.

724. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Are Government aware that Patuanda Mahabira Road railway station is a great pilgrimage centre for the Jains ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway authorities have up till now refused to stop the 19 Up and 20 Down Express trains at that station during the Mela Week about the month of April on the ground that these trains " are intended for people making long journeys who require quick transit " ?

(c) If the answers to part (b) are in the affirmative, do Government propose to take the necessary action to afford all conveniences to those pilgrims who proceed to the above station during the Mela period ?

(d) If the answer to (c) is in the affirmative, do Government propose to issue orders to the railway authorities to detain the 19 Up and 20 Down Express trains for three minutes to enable passengers destined for Patuanda to alight there, and to make that detention permanent ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Patuanda is a pilgrim centre. From the latest information in the possession of Government (which is not, however, very recent) it attracts between 5,000 and 6,000 pilgrims.

(b), (c) and (d). When this matter was last raised by a question in this House in 1924, it was ascertained that the railway administration had stopped 19 Up and 20 Down Express trains during the period of the annual gathering in order to enable passengers to alight. Government have not heard that this arrangement has been terminated, but have enquired from the Agent of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, and will let the Honourable Member know what the present position is. For the reason mentioned by the Honourable Member in part (b) of his question, they are not prepared to press the railway administration to stop these trains at Patuanda except during the Mela period.

EFFECT OF THE INDIAN TARIFF (COTTON YARN AMENDMENT) ACT ON THE HANDLOOM INDUSTRY.

725. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they addressed the Provincial Governments desiring them to have special inquiries instituted as to the actual effect of the increase that was made last autumn in the import duty on certain counts of cotton yarn, upon the handloom industry, in accordance with the recommendation of the Select Committee on the Indian Tariff (Cotton Yarn Amendment) Bill of 1927 ?

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to lay on the table the reports, which they may have received on the subject from the Provincial Governments ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) Yes.

(b) A copy of the replies so far received will be placed in the Library.

SCHEME FOR A PROVINCIAL HOSPITAL AT PESHAWAR.

726. Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) Are Government aware of a scheme for a provincial hospital at Peshawar for the North-West Frontier Province ?

(b) If so, how far has the scheme been completed and how much of it is yet incomplete ?

(c) So far what donations, if any, have been made for the scheme by the people and the Municipalities of the Province, the Provincial Government and the Government of India ?

(d) What amount has been so far spent on the buildings and what more is estimated to be required for the completion of the scheme ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) and (d). The total cost of the building scheme is Rs. 8 lakhs, of which work to the extent of Rs. 5,64,000 has been completed.

(c) The grants up to date are—

	Rs.
Peshawar Municipality	3,10,000
Central Revenues	2,50,000
Public subscriptions	1,31,646
Lord and Lady Reading	50,000
	7,41,646

GRANTS MADE BY THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA TOWARDS THE COMPLETION OF THE PROVINCIAL HOSPITAL AT PESHAWAR.

727. Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) What grant, if any, has been made by the Local Government and the Government of India towards the completion of the North-West Frontier provincial hospital building scheme during last year ?

(b) What grant, if any, do Government propose to make in the next year's Budget ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Rs. 2,50,000 up to date.

(b) Is under consideration.

ANNUAL AMOUNT REQUIRED FOR THE MAINTENANCE OF THE PROVINCIAL HOSPITAL AT PESHAWAR.

728. Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) What is the estimated annual amount required for the maintenance of the provincial hospital at Peshawar ?

(b) What portions of it are contributed annually by the Provincial Municipalities, the Provincial Government and the Government of India ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Rs. 63,000, of which the Peshawar Municipality pay Rs. 43,000 and Government pay the rest. Maintenance charges will be considerably more when the scheme is completed.

DONATION BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA TO THE PROVINCIAL HOSPITAL AT PESHAWAR.

729. Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) Are the Government of India prepared to make a fresh donation towards the completion of the provincial hospital buildings at Peshawar and also increase its yearly grant to make up a substantial portion of the deficit in the maintenance charges ?

(b) Are Government aware of the fact that this hospital is likely to be greatly taken advantage of by the trans-frontier border tribes and to serve as a great humanising institution ?

(c) Is it not true that there is no hospital accommodation in Peshawar for middle and upper class Indians ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Is under consideration.

(b) Government are fully aware.

(c) Yes, Sir. Hospital accommodation for middle and upper class Indians is however provided in the new hospital under construction.

CODIFICATION OF THE HINDU LAW.

730. Sir Hari Singh Gour : With reference to the recommendation of the Select Committee appointed to report on the Hindu Coparcener's Liability Bill, and a similar recommendation made in two Resolutions passed by the Legislative Assembly and the Council of State and embodied in the Report of the Civil Justice Committee, will Government be pleased to state what action they have taken or propose to take to give effect to these recommendations for the codification of the Hindu Law ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I regret that this information is not procurable. Instructions have been issued to all State-managed Railways that no indents for cotton and hair beltings are to be sent abroad unless tenders have first been invited in India.

FREIGHT RATES CHARGED ON REVENUE ACCOUNT FOR FUEL, STORES, ETC., ON STATE-MANAGED RAILWAYS.

735. *Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Are the freight rates charged on Revenue account for fuel, stores, etc., on the Government-managed Railways the same as charged from the public for similar articles ? If there is any difference, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons as to why the difference is maintained ?

(b) Do the special rates allowed in the days of scarcity of fodder cover the cost of the Railways or are the rates charged less than the cost incurred by the Railways ?

If it covers the cost, will there be any difficulty to reduce the railway rates for all times on fodder ?

(c) Is there any difference in the freight rates of oil cakes used for cattle food and oil cakes used for manure ? If both the sorts of cakes are charged the same rates, do Government propose to reduce the freight rates on castor, mhowa, sunflower and nim cakes ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative. Railway stores are carried at a rate which is intended to represent as nearly as possible the actual cost of transportation.

(b) I am afraid I am unable to give the Honourable Member an exact answer, but the ordinary charge for fodder is 3 annas 6 pies per mile per four-wheeler broad gauge wagon. In times of scarcity the concession rate paid by the consignor is 1 anna per four-wheeler broad gauge wagon, the difference of 2 annas and 6 pies is paid to railways by the Provincial Governments concerned.

(c) The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative. With regard to the second part I must point out to the Honourable Member that the rates for these articles are fixed by the Indian Railway Conference Association and not by Government, but if they are higher than those for oil cake I see no reason why the question of their reduction should not be considered, if and when we are in a position to undertake further reduction of rates, and I will bring the Honourable Member's question to the notice of the Conference Association.

REDUCTION OF THE RAILWAY FREIGHTS ON SUGAR, Bura, Jaggery AND Shakkar.

736. *Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state since when the present freight rates on Railways are fixed on sugar, shakkar and jaggery ? What were the rates charged before fixing the present rates ? Will the Government be pleased to state the reasons why the rates were increased ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state the reasons as to why the same rates are charged on sugar, bura, shakkar and jaggery ?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state the time since when the rates on sulphuric acid have been increased ? Will the Government be pleased to state the reasons as to why the increment in rates was made ?

(d) Do Government propose to take steps to decrease the rates on sugar, bura, jaggery and shakkar and further not to class all the four articles in one classification ?

(e) In view of the scarcity of fresh milk in cities, do Government propose to reduce the rates on milk carried by the State Railways ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) With effect from the 1st April 1922, the freight rate charged for sugar and shakkar was second class at railway risk, viz., .42 pie mer maund per mile. This rate represents an enhancement of 25 per cent. on the rates prior to the 1st of April 1922, when the enhancement was made to replace the surcharge imposed under the Finance Act of 1921.

Jagree was carried at the same rate until this year when the rate was lowered to the extent explained in this year's budget memorandum on the State-managed Railways and the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway and the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Companies.

(b) For the purposes of charge it is the practice to group articles of the same kind and use under one classification. It would be impracticable to grade off charges to suit every variation in the price of a commodity.

(c) With effect from the 1st of April 1922 the rates charged for sulphuric acid were raised from .666 pie per maund per mile at owner's risk to .83 pie per maund per mile at owner's risk, i.e., by about 25 per cent. in order to replace the surcharge imposed under the Finance Act of 1921.

(d) As explained, jagree is not now charged at the same rate as sugar, bura and shakkar on certain Railways. I am unable at present to say whether it will be possible to contemplate any reduction or further reduction in the freights of these commodities.

(e) Fresh milk carried by passenger trains is charged at half parcel rates. As was explained in the budget memorandum, a reduction in the rates for parcels is being undertaken.

FREIGHT CHARGES ON CERTAIN ARTICLES.

737. *Mr. Mukhtar Singh : Have Government taken any steps to examine the complaints about the freight charges of different articles mentioned in my speech in the Assembly on the 27th February 1927 ? If the answer be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state the result of their investigation ? If the answer be in the negative, will the Government be pleased to state the reason why they have not done so ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : An investigation into the complaints made by the Honourable Member regarding the freight rates on certain articles is being made. Government are not yet in a position to make a statement as to the result of these investigations.

†738*—744*.

CARRIAGE OF LUGGAGE OF OFFICERS AND CLERKS OF THE GOVERNMENT TELEGRAPH OFFICES, SIMLA AND DELHI.

745. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Is it a fact that the officers and clerks employed in the Government of India are allowed to carry their luggage through private contractors when they move to Delhi and vice versa ? If so, do the Government propose to allow officers and clerks employed in the Government Telegraph Offices, Simla and Delhi, to carry their luggage through private contractors and produce receipts from them ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The staff referred to in the first part of the question receive fixed sums as travelling allowance under the Simla Allowances Code and Government are not concerned with the arrangements they make for the carriage of their luggage, whether through the agency of contractors or otherwise. The staff of the Government Telegraph Office, on the other hand, are entitled to travelling allowance under rules which provide for payment by Government of the actual cost of transporting personal effects within certain prescribed maxima, and claims have ordinarily to be supported by railway receipts for the expenditure incurred. No complaints have been received, but the question of accepting transport contractors' receipts will be examined.

RECRUITMENT ON A COMMUNAL BASIS IN THE INDIAN POSTAL AND TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

746. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that a General Circular letter has been issued to all the heads of branches and offices in the Posts and Telegraph Department that further recruitment in the various offices should be made on a communal basis ?

(b) If the above is true, will the Government state the number of telephone supervisors, electrical supervisors and general scale telegraphists since the issue of the above circular and state to what community they belong ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) No. The orders of Government are to prevent the preponderance in Government service of any one community and for this purpose one-third of the vacancies are to be reserved for the adjustment of communal inequalities.

(b) Does not arise.

THE SIMLA ALLOWANCES CODE.

747. Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : 1. Will Government lay on the table of the House the correspondence leading to the enactment of the Simla Allowance Code Book.

2. Did Government grant the allowances mentioned in the Code Book to those officers and employees only who were transferred from Calcutta or also to officers who were recruited locally ?

3. Will Government state the number of Government employees who receive benefits under the Simla Allowance Code Book ? Also will the Government state how many of these were brought up from Calcutta and how many recruited locally ?

4. Will Government be pleased to state the grounds on which house rent allowance is granted to officials and clerks employed in the Government of India ?

5. Was it the ground for granting the allowance that the employees concerned were shifted from Calcutta ? If so, on what ground was this benefit extended to those recruited locally ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (1) The correspondence and orders on the subject, extending as they do for over half a century, are voluminous, and Government do not consider that any useful purpose would be served by laying them on the table.

(2) It is not clear how far there was any local recruitment when a special scale of allowances for Simla was first introduced but no distinction has ever been based on the place of recruitment.

(3) I would refer the Honourable Member to Rule 1 of the Code, copy of which is in the Library. I have not the figures of the exact number of men affected, nor details as to the place where each was recruited.

(4) The ground in the case of clerks is the high rate of house rent prevailing in Simla. Officers do not receive house allowances.

(5) The allowance had no exclusive reference to Calcutta, though naturally when it was first introduced the majority of the establishment were Calcutta men. The second part of the question does not arise.

TRAVELLING ALLOWANCE OF CAVALRY AND INFANTRY OFFICERS OF THE ARMY IN INDIA RESERVE OF OFFICERS.

748. Sardar Muhammad Nawaz Khan : (a) Are Government aware of the fact that cavalry and infantry officers of the Army in India Reserve of Officers are borne on cadres of certain units ?

(b) Are Government also aware of the fact that such units are not always stationed in the Command in which such officers generally reside ?

(c) Are Government also aware of the fact that if an officer elects to undergo training with his unit stationed in another Command than the one in which such officer generally resides then he is only entitled, under paragraph 49 of the Regulations for the Army in India Reserve of Officers, to draw travelling allowance up to the amount admissible had he elected to go to the most distant military station in the Command in which he generally resides ?

(d) If answers to (a), (b) and (c) are in the affirmative, do Government propose to remove this restriction and permit officers of the Army in India Reserve of Officers to draw travelling allowance at the temporary duty scale when proceeding to their units for annual training and when returning to their places of residence in India irrespective of the limits now imposed ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a), (b) and (c). Yes.

(d) This small restriction exists solely on the score of expense. I will have the question examined, but cannot hold out much hope of funds being available to remove it at present.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : With reference to the answer given to part (d) of the question, may I know whether Indians in the Indian Army Reserve of Officers are attached to the Indianised units only ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I must ask for notice of that question.

RESTRICTIONS RELATING TO THE PART TIME EMPLOYMENT OF OFFICERS OF THE ARMY IN INDIA RESERVE OF OFFICERS.

749. Sardar Muhammad Nawaz Khan : (a) Are Government aware of the restrictions imposed on General Officers Commanding-in-Chief by paragraph 26 (a) of Regulations for the Army in India Reserve of Officers, and Appendix F thereto, regarding part time employment of officers of the Army in India Reserve of Officers ?

(b) If the answer to (a) is in affirmative, do Government propose to remove these restrictions and leave it to the General Officers Commanding-in-Chief to determine the purposes for and occasions on which such officers may be employed ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) Yes.

(b) The matter is already under consideration.

INDIAN DELEGATES TO THE INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE.

750. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Are Government aware of the satisfaction expressed at the last sittings of the International Labour Conference by the Officers of the International Labour Office and the Delegates of the International Labour Conference at the fact that the whole of the Indian Delegation consisted, for the first time, of national delegates only ?

(b) If so, will Government please state if they propose to repeat, in making nominations for the next International Labour Conference, the course which has given complete satisfaction both in India and in Geneva ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) No. They have however seen some newspaper reports of conversations on the subject.

(b) Does not strictly arise, but in any case in selecting non-official delegates and advisers to the International Labour Conference, Government are bound by the provisions of Art. 389 of the Treaty of Verseilles.

ASSESSMENT OF NON-INDIAN SHIPPING COMPANIES TO SUPER-TAX.

751. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Will Government please state the amount of super-tax paid during the last five years by :

(i) Indian shipping companies ;

(ii) British shipping companies ;

(iii) other foreign Shipping Companies ?

(b) Is it a fact that the non-Indian Companies pay a very small super-tax as compared to the huge profits made by them in the coastal and the overseas trade ? If not, will Government please state the amount of super-tax realised together with the amount of the profits on which such super-tax was payable during the last five years ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b) The information asked for in part (a) of the question and in the second half of part (b) is not available as the requisite statistics have not been collected in the past. The method of assessing non-Indian shipping companies is laid down in paragraphs 84-A to 86 of the Income-Tax Manual, Part III. The Government have no reason to believe that this method leads to the under-assessment of that part of the companies' profits that is earned by their Indian business.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Is it a fact, Sir, that the non-Indian shipping companies trading on the Indian coast did not pay any income tax until the attention of the Government was drawn to that non-payment in the year 1922 ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have no information on that point, Sir. If the Honourable Member will kindly put down a question I shall see that it is answered.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Another supplementary question, Sir. With regard to the question of super-tax will the Honourable the Finance Member make enquiries which will give to the House an idea as to whether the non-Indian shipping companies pay any super-tax on their earnings in India, particularly in view of the fact that, following their previous practice in regard to income-tax, it is not improbable that they are also evading super-tax ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I will have that point looked into.

TRAINING OF INDIANS IN MARINE ENGINEERING.

752. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Will Government please state if they have made any arrangements for Indians being trained in Marine Engineering ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Government have formulated a provisional scheme in consultation with the High Commissioner for India. The proposals will now be placed before the Standing Advisory Committee of the Commerce Department and thereafter before the Standing Finance Committee.

APPOINTMENT OF INDIANS AS TRADE COMMISSIONERS ABROAD.

753. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Will Government please state if they have made any arrangements for the appointment of Indians as Trade Commissioners at different trade centres in the world ?

(b) Are any arrangements made for such Trade Commissioners to work as Indian Commercial Attachés to the British Embassies and Consulates at such centres ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The question of appointing Indian Trade Commissioners abroad is under consideration.

GRANT OF SPECIAL FACILITIES TO PASSENGERS BY THE P. AND O. STEAMERS REGARDING JOURNEYS ON INDIAN RAILWAYS.

754. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Is it a fact that Government have given special facilities to passengers by the P. & O. steamers regarding their travels on Indian Railways ? If so, have other shipping companies interested in the passenger trade between India and Europe been given the same facilities ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The only arrangement with the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company relates to the Imperial Indian Mail which connects with the incoming and outgoing weekly mail steamers. The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company carry out the reservation of berths for this train from Bombay to Calcutta in their London office. It is only with regard to the mail steamers that such arrangements have so far been made.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Will Government consider the advisability of making similar arrangements for other shipping companies in case they approach the Government ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : If we are approached, we shall certainly be prepared to consider any proposal in which we see a chance of profit.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Is it a fact that up to this moment the treatment meted out to the P. & O. Company is one of particular favouritism ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I do not know in what respect the Honourable Member alleges favouritism ; it is certainly not the case with regard to the department which I am representing.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Is it a fact, Sir, that the Government have not given similar facilities to other shipping companies ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : If the Honourable Member would explain more fully what facilities he refers to, I may be able to answer him ; but I cannot answer a vague question of that kind.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : I was referring naturally to the facilities to which I have referred in my question, namely, facilities of giving special train accommodation to passengers who arrive in India by steamers other than those belonging to the P. & O. Company.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Those facilities were not given for any reason connected with the Company itself ; but it happens that the mail steamers to India are run by the P. & O. Company ; also that those steamers carry more first class passengers destined for Calcutta than most other steamers ; and it is therefore possible to get a full train load of passengers ordinarily from Bombay to Calcutta. It is purely a matter of business.

CONVENIENCES FOR THIRD CLASS PASSENGERS AT THE PROPOSED CENTRAL RAILWAY STATION IN BOMBAY.

755. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Will Government please state the arrangements made for the conveniences of third class passengers at the proposed Central Railway Station in Bombay ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I propose with your permission, Sir, to answer questions Nos. 755 and 756 together. Government have no detailed information, but they understand that the suitability of the position assigned to the third class waiting hall has been challenged. They have written to the Agent of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway asking him to explain what the present position is, and will communicate with the Honourable Member on receipt of his reply.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I ask, Sir, in view of the fact that the Railways earn from third class passengers more than they earn from first and second class passengers, whether they will reserve all the rooms in the new Victoria Terminus for the third class passengers ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Sir, my Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi, in his enthusiasm for the third class passenger has taken me from the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway to the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. I must ask for notice of that question, if he wishes alterations to be made in the arrangements at Victoria Terminus.

SUITABILITY OF THE POSITION ASSIGNED TO THE THIRD CLASS WAITING HALL IN THE PROPOSED CENTRAL RAILWAY STATION IN BOMBAY.

†756. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Is it a fact that the Honorary Secretary of the Passengers' Traffic and Relief Association of Bombay has written a letter to the Agent of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company, Limited, regarding the grievances certain to arise in case the present plan of the station is adopted without modification ?

(b) Will Government please state what action they propose to take in the matter ?

TRAINING OF INDIANS IN MARINE WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

757. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Will Government please state the arrangements made by them for the training of Indians in Marine Wireless Telegraphy ?

(b) Are Government aware of any action taken by private individuals or companies to provide facilities for such training ?

(c) If so, will Government please state if they have made any concessions in that respect ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) The Honourable Member is referred to the information furnished in reply to Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan's unstarred questions No. 304 of the 7th March and No. 105 of the 4th September 1928.

(b) Government are aware that certain institutions offer to provide such training.

(c) No.

DEPUTATION OF THE CHIEF PUBLICITY OFFICER OF THE STATE RAILWAYS TO AMERICA.

758. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Is there any truth in the rumour that the Chief Publicity Officer of the State Railways is going to be sent on a world tour with the ultimate object of stimulating traffic in India by novel methods ?

(b) Do Government propose to make an effort towards securing the services of an Indian during the absence on world tour of the Chief Publicity Officer ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 755.

(c) Is it the intention of Government to nominate an European officer ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to place on the table the correspondence relating to the acting appointment and also disclose the special qualifications of their nominee to justify the exclusion of an Indian, if such exclusion is contemplated ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The gentleman who has recently been the Chief Publicity Officer is being sent on deputation to America to open a branch office of the Indian State Railways Publicity Department in New York. He has been temporarily replaced, during his absence, by an officer already in railway service, who has had wide traffic and commercial experience. There has been no correspondence with regard to the acting appointment.

PRINTING OF THE INDIAN STATES RAILWAY MAGAZINE.

759. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether open tenders were called for the printing of the Indian States Railway Magazine which is now edited at Delhi and printed in Bombay ?

(b) Were Indian Presses given an opportunity to quote competitive rates ?

(c) Are Government aware that there is a grievous complaint among Indian printing presses in connection with railway publicity ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b) I have not yet got definite information, but am obtaining it for the Honourable Member. My recollection is, however, that the Chief Publicity Officer found that no press in India had the type required for the printing of the Indian States Railway Magazine ; he therefore arranged with the Times of India Press to obtain the type from England.

(c) Government have received no such complaints.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Will the Honourable Member, when making inquiries, further inquire if the Chief Publicity Officer took any particular pains to find out if other Indian presses did not have the required type ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I have already said that the Chief Publicity Officer took steps to discover whether any press in India could provide the type for the printing of the magazine in the style which was desired.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Not even in Madras ?

NUMBER OF POSTERS AND PAMPHLETS ISSUED BY THE STATE RAILWAYS PUBLICITY DEPARTMENTS.

760. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many posters and pamphlets were issued by various State Railways Publicity Departments in the past year ? How many of these posters were designed by Indian artists ? What was the total value of the posters drawn and how much of it went to Indian artists ?

(b) How many of the hand-books printed were produced by Indian authors and how many by non-Indian authors ? Did any part of the amount spent under this head go to Indians ? If so, how much ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am obtaining the information for the Honourable Member from the Central Publicity Officer and from all State-managed Railways. I am aware that some posters have been designed by Indian artists, but I do not yet know the exact number. I can also give the Honourable Member the assurance that the Publicity Department will always be prepared to consider suitable designs for posters from Indian artists.

EXPENDITURE ON PUBLICITY FOR THE STATE RAILWAYS.

761. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what sum of money is annually spent in the name of publicity for the State Railways ?

(b) How many officers are there in the State Railways Publicity Services, who draw salaries above Rs. 1,000 per mensem ?

How many of them are Indians ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Between 3½ and 4 lakhs.

(b) Four. None of these is at present an Indian.

TOURS OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

762. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the comments in the leading Indian newspapers expressing their approval of the practice of the President of the Legislative Assembly making tours to the seats of provincial Legislatures ?

(b) Did the practice start with the first President of the Legislative Assembly ? If so, will Government please lay a statement showing year by year the places visited by the first President of the Legislative Assembly and the expenditure incurred in connection with each of the visits ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar (Leader of the House) : (a) The reply is in the affirmative.

(b) The practice existed during the time of the first President and the attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the statement which was laid on the table of the House on the 11th September 1928 in reply to a similar question by Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : May I know, Sir, if the statement gives the amount of money spent on tours by the first President of the Assembly ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Yes ; that is given in it.

PROLONGATION OF THE STAY OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA IN NEW DELHI.

763. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the newspaper report that the Secretary of State has addressed a despatch to the Government of India regarding the latter's stay in Delhi for a period of six months every year ?

(b) Have the Government considered the desirability of prolonging their stay in Delhi ; if so, will they be pleased to state the decision they have arrived at ?

(c) Is it a fact that the stay of the Government of India in Delhi last winter extended up to the middle of April, 1928 ? If so, in what way did the stay affect the efficiency of the Departments ?

on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. These have either been considered or are being considered by the Agent.

(b) No.

(c) Mr. C. T. Sheppard.

(d) Yes.

(e) Government have seen no indication in the columns of the newspaper to this effect.

(f) No.

(g) No.

REFUSAL OF PERMISSION BY THE AGENT OF THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY TO THE WORKERS' UNION TO AFFIX NOTICES ABOUT THE ORGANISATION OF THE UNION ON THE PREMISES OF THE STATION.

766. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it the fact, that the Agent of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway recently refused permission to the Workers' Union when they wanted to put up notices on the station about the organisation of the Union even when the Union offered to pay for their advertisement ?

By Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government understand that this is so. I may further explain that no objection is raised to the Unions putting up notices regarding meetings at railway stations, and I believe no charge is made for such notices. I am sure this concession is allowed in the terms of recognition of all Great Indian Peninsula Railway Unions, but the request to rent space in a similar way to other advertisers was refused, because it was understood that it would be used for propaganda work.

12 NOON.

AMOUNT OF MONEY PAID BY THE RAILWAY PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT TO THE Times of India IN RESPECT OF THE PRINTING OF THE INDIAN STATES RAILWAY MAGAZINE.

767. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Will Government please state what is the total amount of money paid up-to-date by the Railway Publicity Department to the Times of India in respect of the printing of the States Railway Magazine ?

(b) What is the total amount paid by the State Railways last year to the Times of India in respect of (i) the printing of pamphlets and posters ; (ii) other railway publications ?

(c) What is the total amount of money paid to the Times of India as ordinary advertising revenue by the State Railways last year ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state how many of the handbooks and posters produced by the various State Railways Departments were given for printing to the Times of India ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am seeing if I can collect the information for the Honourable Member from the various Railway Administrations ; it is not available in the Railway Board's office.

RECRUITMENT TO THE CENTRAL SERVICES.

768. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) Are Government aware that the Lee Commission recommended that as regards the Central Services not specified in para. 42 (a), (b), (c) and (d) " recruitment should be at the discretion of the Government of India " ?

(b) Has the power of making appointments in these services been delegated to the Government of India by the Secretary of State ?

(c) Has any proportion been fixed for the appointment of Indians and Europeans to these services ? If not, what is the proportion in which they are being recruited at present ?

The Honourawble Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b) No formal delegation has yet been made ; but in practice appointment to the majority of these Services is already made by the Government of India.

(c) The Government of India have not yet received power to make formal rules fixing proportions. I will furnish the Honourable Member with a statement showing the present position in the various Departments. Statements showing the progress of Indianization are placed annually in the Library of the House.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Have the Government of India asked for a formal delegation of powers from the Secretary of State ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : These questions regarding establishments and recruitment are of a complicated character, and I should not like to commit myself to a statement without consulting the records. Perhaps the Honourable Member will give me notice of this question.

DEPUTY AGENT, SOUTH INDIAN RAILWAY.

769. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) Are Government aware that the Standing Finance Committee for Railways agreed in November, 1927, to the creation of a temporary post of Deputy Agent for the South Indian Railway " subject to the appointment of an Indian to the post if a qualified man is available " ?

(b) When was this post filled up ? Was an Indian appointed to it ? If not, why not ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) The post was filled on the 1st of March 1928. The Agent reported that he had no qualified Indian officer available, but as a result of the creation of the post of Deputy Agent an Indian officer was promoted to be senior Assistant Secretary.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : Was any attempt made to find an Indian officer from the State Railways for this post ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : May I know, Sir, why in the face of the specific recommendation of the Standing Finance Committee no attempt was made to find an Indian for this post ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The particular post was required, as far as I remember, more particularly to deal with construction proposals on the South Indian Railway, and obviously a man with local knowledge was required. I may also suggest to the Honourable Member that it is extremely unlikely that any officer from a State Railway would be prepared to accept a transfer to a Company-managed Railway as Deputy Agent without any large increase in emoluments.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask the Honourable Member whether it is not a fact that the present Agent of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway was sent to that line from a State Railway as Deputy Agent ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir. The present Agent of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway has been, I think I am right in saying, throughout his service a servant of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Was it Mr. Brayshay ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I have answered the Honourable Member's question as put.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it true that things are so managed that even if there is a vacancy again an Indian cannot be appointed ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : It will depend entirely on what officers the Agent has got on his list of the requisite seniority, and I think we can trust the Agent of that Railway not to pass over persons whose claims to promotion are well deserved owing to their previous work, on any racial considerations.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it possible to trust him after this exhibition ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : There was certainly no racial discrimination in the appointment which he has made. I have personal knowledge of the officer appointed and of his work, and I think it can safely be said that he is the best officer they could have selected for the post.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Was not Mr. Brayshay, who acted as Agent of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway for some time, sent from a State Railway ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : He was certainly sent to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway to act as Deputy Agent either from the Railway Board Office or from a State Railway. The Honourable Member did not refer in his previous supplementary question to him. He asked about the present Agent of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is it a fact that Mr. Muirhead was sent from a State-worked Railway to the South Indian Railway ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : That is not within my knowledge.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : If in some instances officers have been sent from State-worked Railways to Company-worked Railways, why was not an attempt made in this particular instance to select a suitable man from a State-worked Railway to act as Deputy Agent of the South Indian Railway ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : For the reasons which I have already explained to the House.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Was not this fact brought to the notice of the Standing Finance Committee for Railways before the appointment was actually made ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : It is not my practice, Sir, to give away details of discussions that take place in the Standing Finance Committee, but I think I may say that at the time I told them that I thought it was very unlikely that there would be an Indian available for this particluar appointment.

Mr. M. S. Aney : Even after the appointment of a European was made to this post, was the matter brought to the notice of the Standing Finance Committee ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir, because, as I explained when the question of the appointment came before the Standing Finance Committee, it was not really within their functions to consider how a particular appointment would be filled. Their duty is to see whether there is necessity for a particular appointment, and that the expenditure is justified.

QUESTIONS NOT ASKED AT THE MEETING, OWING TO THE ABSENCE OF THE QUESTIONER, WITH ANSWERS TO THE SAME.

EMPLOYMENT OF SIKHS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF ARCHÆOLOGY IN INDIA.

680. Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) What is the total ministerial strength of the office of the Director-General of Archæology in India, Simla, and how many in that office are Hindus, Muhammadans and Sikhs ?

(b) Is it a fact that there is not a single Sikh in this office ?

(c) Is it also a fact that this fact has been brought to the notice of the Government on many occasions since 1924 through Assembly questions ?

(d) How many vacancies occurred in this office since 1924 and how many were given to Sikhs as against Hindus and Muhammadans ?

(e) Are Government aware of the advertisement in the Tribune, dated the 6th September, 1928, from the Director General of Archæology, inviting applications from Muhammadans only and not from Sikhs only, and what are the reasons therefor ?

(f) Did Government ever similarly invite application from Sikhs in previous vacancies ? If so, when, if not, why not ?

(g) Do Government propose to order the recruitment of a Sikh in the vacancy now advertised by the Director General or ask the Public Service Commission to give him a Sikh by supplementing the list of passed men as they did in the case of Army Headquarters ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) The sanctioned strength of the ministerial establishment of the office of the Director General of Archæology in India is 25, but the actual strength at present is only 23, of which 15 are Hindus and 8 Muhammadans.

(b) Yes.

(c) So far as I can trace, there have been no Assembly questions since 1924, dealing specifically with the case of Sikhs in the Director General of Archæology's office.

(d) 13, of which nine were filled by Hindus and four by Muhammadans. Applications received from Sikh candidates were duly considered, but none of them was found suitable for appointment.

(e) Yes. A Muhammadan clerk was asked for to replace a Muhammadan transferred to the Department of Agriculture, Punjab.

(f) No. It is not the general practice to ask for candidates of any particular community.

(g) No. I may add, however, that the Director General of Archæology in India has asked the Public Service Commission to recommend a Sikh candidate, if possible, for the other of the two posts now vacant in his office.

EMPLOYMENT OF SIKHS AS ASSISTANTS AND SUPERINTENDENTS IN THE INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT.

681. Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) What is the total number of Assistants and Superintendents in the Indian Stores Department and how many of them are Sikhs as against Muhammadans and Hindus ?

(b) Do Government propose to order the recruitment of Sikhs in that grade ? If not, why ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The total number of Assistants and Superintendents is 53, of whom 2 are Sikhs and 44 Hindus or Muslims.

(b) As regards recruitment to the grade of Assistant, the ordinary policy of Government in respect of communal representation is observed. Appointment to the grade of Superintendent, which is a selection grade, is by promotion and Government cannot agree to basing it on communal considerations.

EMPLOYMENT OF SIKHS IN THE OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER, NORTHERN INDIA SALT REVENUE, DELHI.

682. Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) How many vacancies occurred in the office of the Commissioner, Northern India Salt Revenue, Delhi, since 1927 and how many of them were given to Sikhs ?

(b) If none, why ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Three vacancies have occurred in the clerical establishment of the Commissioner's office at Delhi since the 1st January, 1927. None of them were given to Sikhs.

(b) The Commissioner, whose office is situated in Delhi, does not appear to have thought it necessary to take special measures to secure the recruitment of candidates from communities which belong mainly to other parts of the country.

EMPLOYMENT OF SIKHS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DEPUTY ACCOUNTANT GENERAL, POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

683. Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that there is no Sikh in the office of the Deputy Accountant-General, Posts and Telegraphs, Delhi ?

(b) If so, are Government prepared to take Sikhs in the present vacancies ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Enquiries are being made and a reply will be given to the Honourable Member in due course.

FITTING OF TRAINS RUNNING AT NIGHT WITH ELECTRIC SEARCH LIGHTS.

684. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Are Government aware that there is a rule that engines of all trains running at night should be fitted with electric search-lights, and that this rule is not observed by several Railways in India, especially the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway and the Bengal and North-Western Railway ?

(b) Are Government aware that the practice referred to in part (a) is dangerous, particularly in the monsoon months ?

(c) Is it a fact that brake vans of goods trains in several of these Railways are provided with kerosine lamps instead of electric lights ?

(d) Do Government propose to insist on the observance of this rule by all railways and also to provide electric lights in brake vans instead of kerosine lamps ?

(e) Is it a fact that the wagons in goods trains running on the Bengal and North Western Railway, the Rohilkund and Kamaon Railway and the U. C. Railway are not fitted with vacuum brakes ?

(f) Do Government propose to take steps to provide vacuum brakes in wagons in goods trains ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). There is no such rule. The Honourable Member is referred to the reply I gave to Mr. Joshi in reply to his question No. 272 on the 8th September, that all locomotives working mail, passenger and mixed trains are expected to be fitted with electric search-lights by the end of the year. We are also starting to equip locomotives employed in working goods trains with search-lights.

(c) and (d). There is no intention to fit the brake vans of all goods trains with electric light. This matter would be very costly both in respect to initial equipment and maintenance and the batteries are likely to discharge if they are not kept in constant use.

(e) Yes.

(f) This question has been taken up with all Railways.

(b) I am not aware of the exact numbers, but I am prepared to take it from the Honourable Member that the figures given by him are approximately correct.

(c) The Honourable Member has already given me some papers on this subject and the Railway Board propose to discuss the position at Kharagpur with the Agent, Bengal Nagpur Railway, when he arrives in Simla this month.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The exact date is not known, but it was some time before October 1927.

(b) No. Between certain selected stations only.

There is at present no fixed standard for determining when the pay of a Postmaster should be raised to the Rs. 250—350 or to the 350—650 grade. Decisions in such cases are taken in consideration of the importance of the offices, the numbers of staff supervised, and so forth.

The question of laying down definite standards for fixing the number of selection grade appointments in the Post Office generally is however receiving the Director-General's attention.

The cases of the Sub-Postmasters, Bow Bazar, Dharamtola and Park Street will be reviewed as soon as the revised standards are laid down. Information is being collected on the other points touched on by the Honourable Member and will be furnished to him in due course.

(e) If so, what is the reason for such delay ?

(b) Are Government aware that there are not more than 1,100 Muslim railway employees as against 13,000 Hindu employees in that area ?

(h) Is it not a fact that for the above reasons the clerks of the Savings Bank Branch, of all the Post Offices in Calcutta have to do some additional duties which are not covered by the time-test on the basis of which the staff is sanctioned ?

(i) Has the additional staff been sanctioned to cope with the increased work thus thrown on the Savings Bank Department of the Post Office ?

(j) Do the Government propose to compensate the staff who had to work 13 hours a day by giving them overtime allowance ?

(k) What action do the Government propose to take so that the staff of the Savings Bank Department may not be subjected to so much hardship ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Government have no information, but will enquire.

741. Rai Bahadur Tarit Bhusan Roy : (a) Is it a fact that 15 approved candidates of the old Calcutta Sorting Division have been discharged after the office was amalgamated with the Calcutta Head Post Office on the ground that they did not possess the requisite educational qualifications ?

(b) If the reply be in the affirmative, will the Government please intimate why those men were at first recruited, understanding being given that they would get permanent appointment ?

(c) Do Government propose to consider their case and take them back ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : The information is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

S. O. and that they had sustained heavy loss in business due to this illegal action of the Post Office staff ?

(b) Was the charge substantiated by the departmental enquiry and were the sub-postmaster and three clerks who were suspected of complicity in the matter transferred from the office ?

(c) Is it a fact that the complainants distinctly requested the authority not to entrust the investigation of the case to Mr. Phani Bhusan Mustaphi, Inspector of Post Offices of the Sub-Division concerned alleging that he had intimacy with the proprietors of the Minerva Nursery and that the investigation, if entrusted to him, was likely to be frustrated.

(d) Is it a fact that the authority acceded to the complainants' request and actually deputed the Inspector of another Sub-Division to enquire into the case ?

(e) If so, what action do Government propose to take ?

(f) If not, why not ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Government have no information. The Honourable Member's question has been forwarded to the Postmaster-General, Bengal and Assam, for report.

REVISED SCALE OF PAY FOR TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

411. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Is it a fact that Government gave effect from 1st September 1927 to the revised scale of pay to the Town Inspectors of Post Offices attached to the First Class Head Offices ?

(b) Are Government aware that some of the Postmasters-General postponed giving effect to the revision from the date notified in the Government orders, and that the officials actually holding the posts on the revised scale were not paid the actual pay of the posts ?

(c) If so, what action has been taken by the Government ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : I propose to deal together with questions numbers 411 to 413, 415 to 420 and 431 to 438, answering first question No. 411 by Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim to which the replies are ; (a) Yes ; (b) and (c) Government are not aware that officials actually holding the posts on the revised scale were not paid the actual pay of the posts. They will, however, make enquiries and, if necessary, issue orders on the point.

I observe that these are the first of a long series of questions by Members of the House, arising out of the operation of orders issued by the Government of India in August and September, 1927, and of an interpretation of these issued with the approval of the Government of India, by the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, in February 1928. These orders related to the revision of the pay and duties of Town Inspectors attached to first class Head Post Offices. They have resulted, in some cases, in the displacement of some of the officials who, on the date from which the orders originally took effect, namely, the 1st September, 1927, were the actual incumbents of the posts named. In other cases the existing incumbents have been retained in their appointments. The orders to which I have referred necessarily left to the heads of administrative Postal Circles the final decision as to the application in individual cases of general principles which had been laid down. The decisions reached have given rise to a number of representations addressed to the Director-General and to the Government of India from different Service Associations and individuals interested. These representations have received the most careful consideration of the Director-General whose recommendations are now before me and will receive my close attention together with the various points raised by Honourable Members in these questions.

†412. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to say whether there is a Departmental standing procedure to the effect that " promotions up to and including the former grade of Rs. 175—225 should be confined to the officials within the respective General Post Office cadre, and that the officials of the post office after attaining that grade permanently should be graded with the mufassil officials for the purposes of promotion to the next higher grade, viz., Rs. 250—350 ?

(b) Are Government aware that the above standing procedure has not been acted on by some Postmasters-General who have brought mufassil officials of the ordinary time-scale of pay to the lowest selection grade posts in the General Post Office cadre ?

(c) If so, what action, if any, has been taken by the Government to redress the grievances thus caused to the officials of the General Post Office cadre ?

REVISION OF PAY OF CERTAIN CLASSES OF POSTAL OFFICIALS.

†413. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Is it a fact that the Director-General's budget estimate for the year 1927-28 was based on the personal pay of the permanent holders of the posts in the four classes of officials specified in paragraph (1) of the Government Orders 11 P. T. E., dated the 5th August 1927 ? If not, will Government be pleased to state the basis of calculating the total amount Rs. 1,80,000 for the above budget estimate as sanctioned by the Standing Finance Committee in January 1927 ?

(b) Is it a fact that Government revised the pay of four classes of officials in paragraph 1 of their Orders, dated August 1927, issued by the Department of Industries and Labour ?

(c) If so, has the effect of the revised scale of pay been given to all the four classes with the same condition, viz., exemption from examination as appeared in the improvements passed by the Standing Finance Committee in January, 1927, as also in the Government Orders, dated August, 1927, appearing in the Labour ?

(d) If not, why not ?

REFUSAL TO CERTAIN CLERKS OF THE CONCESSIONS GRANTED IN CONNECTION WITH THE TRANSFER OF THE HEADQUARTERS OF THE NON-MIGRATORY PORTION OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS FROM CALCUTTA TO DELHI.

†414. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) With reference to my starred questions Nos. 482 and 488 answered on the 19th and 20th March, 1928, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the names of clerks who have been refused the concessions only because they were recruited in Simla and Delhi, showing their emoluments monthly and annually ?

(b) Are these clerks, since the date of their recruitment drawing the allowances admissible under the Simla Allowance Code throughout the year whether in Simla or Delhi ?

(c) Were these clerks given the Simla allowances against the pay which they were entitled to owing to their recruitment in Simla ?

(d) Were the Simla allowances consolidated in the case of the employees of other offices ? If so, why was it not done in the case of clerks of the Director-General's Simla Office ?

(e) Do Government propose to look into the case of these clerks sympathetically and give them an assurance that they will be a permanent unit for service in the Director-General's Simla office and if removed shall be duly compensated ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 411.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) A statement will be furnished to the Honourable Member.

(b) and (c). A portion of the Director-General's Office is required to move between Delhi and Simla and the Wireless Branch of the office is located at Simla. So long as any of these clerks is attached to the moving portion or to the Wireless Branch he draws compensatory allowance throughout the year under the Simla Allowances Code. The place of recruitment does not affect the question.

(d) Yes, in some cases. It would be administratively inconvenient however to consolidate the pay and allowances of the portions of the Director-General's office which I have just mentioned as they are only part of a larger office the bulk of which is non-migratory and stationed at Delhi.

(e) Government have already exhaustively examined the case of the clerks in question.

As regards what may be necessary if and when any portion of the staff is permanently removed from Simla, this is a hypothetical case which Government are not willing to discuss in anticipation.

DUTIES OF THE TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES IN MADRAS AND CALCUTTA, RESPECTIVELY, ETC.

†416. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table the following information :

(c) total number of postal Town Inspectors in Calcutta and how many of them were transferred to the clerical line, after 1st September 1927 ; and

(c) Will Government be pleased to state where the duties are laid down for the Town Inspectors of Post Offices attached to the Post Offices other than the First Class Head Post Offices ?

(d) Is there a provision in the Fundamental Rules issued under the authority of the Secretary of State in Council to the effect that "any two posts are said to be equal if the duties attached to the two posts are the same in character or degree of responsbility" ? If so, are Government aware that the postal Town Inspector attached to the First Class Head Offices had the authority both before and after 1st September, 1927, to certify the fitness or otherwise of clerks and Sub-Postmasters in the jurisdiction of the Town Inspector and to control and supervise the work of the Sub-Postmasters and the clerks whether the latter classes of officials were with more years' service than the Town Inspector ?

NOMINATIONS TO THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE.

422. Sardar Kartar Singh : Is it a fact (a) that, since 1922, in the majority of or in many of the cases of sections of Hindu, Muhammadan and Christian qualified candidates for nomination to the I. C. S. in India, similar candidates, higher in the pass list, were passed over ; (b) that considerations other than merit in the examination weighed in making these selections ; (c) that the principles observed in so doing are still in force equally for the Sikh community ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Since the establishment of the Public Service Commission the practice is for the Government of India to indicate the communities from which they desire to make nominations and for the Commission to recommend the particular individuals. It is probable that normally the Commission consider that the candidate who stands highest in the examination list is the most suitable and make their recommendations accordingly.

BOOK BY CAPTAIN R. E. PARRY, ENTITLED "THE SIKHS OF THE PUNJAB."

423. Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Have Government seen a book, called "The Sikhs of the Punjab" by Captain R. E. Parry, of the Indian Army, and what he describes to be "The Outward signs of Sikhism", such as wearing "Kes" or long hair, bearing the title of "Singh" as part of the name, initiation into "Pohl" or Sikh baptism, and abstinence from tobacco ?

(b) Is it a fact that only persons observing the essentials mentioned in (a) were recruited, as Sikhs, (i) in Sikh regiments and companies, and in the Indian Army Department, (ii) also in the Civil Departments before the year 1928 ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) No, Sir.

(b)-(i) Ordinarily only those Sikhs observing the essentials mentioned in part (a) of the question are accepted in units of the Indian Army. The acceptance or rejection of any Sikh recruit on religious grounds is decided by the Gurdwara Committee of the unit.

(ii) No principle has ever been laid down in the Civil Department.

NOMINATION OF MR. TARLOCHAN DAS BEDI TO THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE.

424. Sardar Kartar Singh : Is it a fact that by "One Sikh" "appointed by nomination" to the I. C. S. in India this year, mentioned in the Honourable the Home Member's answer to Dr. Moonje's question in this Session the other day regarding the I. C. S., is meant one Tarlochan Dass Bedi, son of Bawa Ishwar Dass, of Dera Baba Nanak, Punjab ?

425. Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Are Government aware of the fact that the selection of Tarlochan Dass as a Sikh has caused discontent and dissatisfaction among Sikhs ?

(b) Is it a fact that the feeling of the Sikh community to the effect that the I. C. S. post reserved for the community and given to Tarlochan Dass should be given to a qualified Sikh candidate and that the one given to the former be treated as an additional post, has been conveyed to the Government ?

(c) Do Government propose to take favourable action regarding (b) and thus remove the just cause for discontent and dissatisfaction ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to my reply to part (7) of Sardar Gulab Singh's question No. 32 on the 4th instant.

(b) The suggestion was made in some of the representations received.

(c) Government do not see their way to take any action in the matter.

MEMORIAL OF THE STAFF OF THE ACCOUNTS DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

(b) If so, are Government in a position to say whether or not the grievances mentioned therein are generally based on facts ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Financial Commissioner, Railways, withheld memorials addressed to the Governor General in Council by the East Indian Railway Accounts staff on this subject ? If so, on what grounds, and under what rules ?

(d) What enquiries were made by the Financial Commissioner into the grievances mentioned in the said memorials, and with what result ?

(e) Why is it that the East Indian Railway Accounts office staff have not been placed on a time-scale of pay, while similar staff on the Eastern Bengal, Oudh and Rohilkhand and North-Western Railways have been so placed ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes, by the Honourable Member's question.

(b) Some of the statements made are correct.

(c) Yes, the memorials were withheld under the ordinary rules governing the submission of memorials by railway subordinates.

FILLING UP OF VACANCIES IN THE HIGHER APPOINTMENTS OF THE ACCOUNTS DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

Neogy : (a) Is it a fact that most of the vacancies in the higher appointments of the subordinate staff of the East Indian Railway Accounts Department have been, and are being, filled up by outsiders on recommendations or personal requests emanating from the Railway Board office ; and that as a result qualified and experienced men of the East Indian Railway Accounts office fail to obtain promotion to these vacancies ?

(b) Do Government propose to enquire from the Chief Accounts Officer, East Indian Railway, as to how many of such vacancies have so far been filled by men recommended by an officer or officers of the Railway Board ?

(c) Is it the view of Government that the Chief Accounts Officer, East Indian Railway, is not competent to make his own selection from among his staff for promotion to these vacancies ?

(d) Is it a fact that about forty temporary posts have lately been created for the purpose of pulling up arrears of the Provident Fund and Stores Accounts branches of the East Indian Railway Accounts Department, resulting from the introduction of accounting machines ; and that all these temporary posts have been filled up by men selected by an officer or officers of the Railway Board ? If so, why ?

(e) Is it a fact that the East Indian Railway Central Construction Accounts Office is manned almost exclusively by a staff either imported from other railways by the Railway Board or recruited direct by or on behalf of the Railway Board ? If so, why ?

(f) Is it a fact that one Mr. Myers who had previously been discharged by the Eastern Bengal Railway on the score of inefficiency, has been made an Accounts Officer on the East Indian Railway, on the personal recommendation of an officer of the Railway Board to whom he is alleged to be related ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) No.

(b) and (c). The answer to (c) being in the negative, Government do not think there is any necessity to obtain the information asked for in (b).

(d) 24 temporary posts have been created for bringing up arrears which I should add are not the result of the introduction of accounting machines.

The selections for these temporary posts were made by the Chief Accounts Officer.

(e) The staff was intended for special work and included a training reserve. It was partly recruited from qualified men from other offices.

(f) Mr. Myers was taken as a senior accountant on the East India Railway when his post in the office of the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway was about to be brought under reduction. He has lately been appointe Crew Accounts Officer by the Financial Commissioner of Railways. The allegations that he was appointed on the recommendation of an officer of the Railway Board related to him and that he had been previously discharged on the score of inefficiency are untrue.

ALLEGED IRREGULARITIES AND CORRUPT PRACTICES IN THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE, DELHI.

428. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a publication named " The Survey of Railway Clearing Accounts Office (India) and Schemes and their pernicious effects ", printed and published by Ahmed Said, at the Army Press, Lahore ?

(d) Are Government in a position to make any definite statement regarding the correctness or otherwise of the different imputations, contained in the said publication and newspapers, against certain officers of the said office ? Will Government be pleased to lay on the table any report of any inquiry which may have been made in this matter ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) The Government did not think it worth while to undertake an enquiry into allegations of this nature.

(c) and (d). I would refer the Honourable Member to my reply to Haji Abdoolla Haroon's question No. 82 of 1st February, 1928.

WORKING COST OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY FOREIGN TRAFFIC IN THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE FOR THE YEAR 1927-28.

429 Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Is it a fact that the working cost of the East Indian Railway foreign traffic in the Clearing Accounts Office for the year 1927-28 has been about Rs. 5,00,000, against a budget estimate of Rs. 2,80,000 ? What was the average normal cost of this work in the East Indian Railway office prior to the creation of the Clearing Office ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to make a statement showing the total number of persons employed in the Clearing Accounts Office in different grades ; how many of them were taken from the staff of the different Railways, and how many were recruited direct ?

(c) Will Government be pleased also to make a comparative statement showing the actual number of men transferred from each Railway for the work transferred to the Clearing Office and the actual number of men employed on such work at present ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The two figures are not strictly comparable with each other. The estimate of Rs. 2,80,000 was an estimate of the cost of the establishment required in the Clearing Accounts Office for the work of the East Indian Railway transferred thereto. The actual amount debited to the East Indian Railway, which is approximately 5 lakhs, includes in addition its share of non-recurring expenditure such as travelling allowance and concessions to the staff transferred, the cost of a year's supply of cards as a working balance and leave salaries of certain senior officers who took leave shortly after joining the Clearing Accounts Office. The total grant allotted to the Clearing Accounts Office for 1927-28 was Rs. 10,91,000 and the expenditure was Rs. 48,000 less.

The average normal cost of this work previously on the East Indian Railway was 4½ lakhs.

(b) The total number of ministerial staff is 862, of whom 696 were taken from other railways.

(c) The information will be obtained and supplied to the Honourable Member.

(b) Has the Bengal Duars Railway, for instance, complained that it did not receive its apportionment of freight balance of through traffic transactions from April to November 1927 ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Clearing Accounts Office in its Coaching Division Sheets showed the East Indian Railway to be in debit to the North Western Railway for May and June 1927, while the case was actually the reverse of it ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state what enquiries have been made into these irregularities, by whom and with what result ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The answer to parts (a), (b) and (c) is in the negative and part (d) does not arise.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 411.

(c) Is it a fact that the permanent Town Inspectors who were originally taken as recruits from clerks for the Rs. 100 grade of Town Inspectors have been working without duty allowance which the Director-General decided to grant to them in his communication No. AX-106, dated 3rd October, 1921, for the arduous nature of their duties ?

Mr. G. M. Young : The matter is one for the Cantonment Authority to deal with, and the Government of India do not propose to interfere. A copy of the Honourable Member's question has however been conveyed to the Cantonment Authority.

REMOVAL OF LALA MAHABEER PERSHAD FROM THE FINANCE COMMITTEE OF THE CANTONMENT BOARD, LUCKNOW.

440. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : 1. Are Government aware that the Finance Committee, Lucknow Cantonment Board, passed the following Resolution on 18th May, 1928 :

5. Are Government aware that the notice under section 239 was subsequently withdrawn by the letter of the Executive Officer, Jubbulpore, No. 756, dated 22nd June 1928 ?

6. Are Government aware that section 239 of the Cantonments Act can be applied only when there is an actual or apprehended tampering with the loyalty of troops ?

7. Will Government be pleased to state how the causing of alleged obstruction to a public servant in the performance of his duty, even if true, could be a legitimate reason for the use of section 239 of the Cantonments Act ?

8. Are Government aware that the issuing of the above notice was regarded by the people of Jubbulpore as a palpable abuse of section 239 and caused great consternation among them ?

9. Do Government propose to take suitable action against Colonel Hay for attempting to misuse section 239 and take steps to prevent such an attempt in any Cantonment of India in future ?

10. Will Government be pleased to state why the notice served by Colonel Hay under section 239 was subsequently withdrawn and to lay upon the table the apology that may have been asked from Mr. Ganesh Pershad ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Government have no information about this matter. Enquiries are being made and the results will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

ISSUE OF A NOTICE UNDER SECTION 239 OF THE CANTONMENTS ACT TO MR. RAJA RAM OF JUBBULPORE CANTONMENT.

449. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : 1. Are Government aware that Colonel Commandant C. J. B. Hay of Jubbulpore Brigade issued a notice under section 239 of the Cantonments Act on Mr. Raja Ram of Jubbulpore in June 1928 ?

2. Is it a fact that the issuing of the notice was due to certain differences between Mr. Raja Ram and the Assistant Health Officer Captain Ram Mohan of Jubbulpore ?

3. Are Government aware that this notice was subsequently withdrawn ?

4. Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) Why and for what specific acts on the part of Mr. Raja Ram was this notice served upon him ?

(b) Why and under what circumstances was it withdrawn ?

5. Are Government aware that the people of Jubbulpore regard it as an act of highhandedness, on the part of the authorities to terrorise people into a silent submission to the alleged illegal acts of the Cantonment Authority of Jubbulpore ?

6. Do Government propose to take suitable steps to allay this feeling ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Government have no information about this matter.

I am making enquiries and will let the Honourable Member know the result as soon as possible.

LOAN TO THE MILITARY AUTHORITIES OF SOME LORRIES PURCHASED BY THE CANTONMENT BOARD, JUBBULPORE, FOR CONSERVANCY PURPOSES.

450. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : 1. Is it a fact that the Cantonment Board, Jubbulpore, purchased seven lorries in December 1927 for conservancy purposes ?

2. Is it a fact that on two occasions some of these lorries were lent to the local military authorities, for use in manœuvres or for some other military purposes ?

3. Will Government be pleased to state if the Cantonment Board, Jubbulpore, formally sanctioned the lending of these lorries to the military authorities and, if so, under what resolution and on what terms ?

4. Will Government be further pleased to state if it is advisable in the public interest, to lend lorries purchased for an important municipal service to the military authorities ?

5. Will Government be pleased to state the amount of hire the Cantonment Board received from the military authorities for the use of the lorries on each occasion and if the amounts so received were duly credited to the Cantonment Fund ?

6. Is it a fact that the amounts of hire for both the occasions were about Rs. 1,950 and Rs. 984, respectively, and the above amounts were paid to the Cantonment Board by the military authorities ?

7. If the reply to question No. 5 be in the negative, will Government be pleased to state why no " hire " was charged ?

8. If the hire was charged and received as stated in question No. 6, will Government please specify the date on which it was received by the Cantonment Board and the date on which the same was credited to the Cantonment Fund ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Government have no information. Enquiries are being made and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

CONSTRUCTION OF PLATFORMS FOR INGRESS TO AND EXIT FROM HOUSES IN CANTONMENT BAZARS.

451. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that the Government of India (Army Department) have been pleased to issue a letter No. 316-22|2-A.D. by virtue of which all platforms for ingress to and exit from houses in Cantonment bazars in existence prior to the date of the letter have been deemed to form part of the original grant and allowed to stand ?

(b) What have Government proposed to do in respect of future application for construction of platforms for ingress to and exit from houses in Cantonment bazars ; whether the sites adjoining freehold sites are to be given free of charge or they propose to charge rent in respect of such sites also ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) Yes.

(b) All future applications for the grant of sites for the construction of platforms in front of houses in Cantonments will be dealt with under the Cantonment Land Administration Rules, 1925.

NOMINATION OF A NON-OFFICIAL MEMBER TO THE CANTONMENT BOARD, PESHAWAR.

452. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) What are the considerations to which the Government pay regard while nominating non-official members to the Cantonment Boards ?

(b) Is dismissal from the Cantonment Committee for some misconduct a qualification or a disqualification for such nomination ?

(c) Is private service of British officials of the Cantonment a qualification or a disqualification ?

(d) Is it a fact that a person dismissed from the Cantonment Committee and a private teacher to some British officials has been nominated as a non-official member to the Peshawar Cantonment ?

(e) If the answer to the above question is in the affirmative will the Government kindly give reasons why such a man was selected for nomination ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a), (b) and (c). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to sections 14, 28, 34 and 35 of the Cantonments Act, 1924.

(d) and (e). I am making enquiries and will let the Honourable Member know the result.

HOUSE ACCOMMODATION FOR MILITARY OFFICERS IN THE PESHAWAR CANTONMENT.

453. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) With reference to the reply to question No. 536 asked by Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru on 26th March, 1928, when Government was pleased to inform the House that an officer was deputed to enquire into the conditions of house accommodation for military officers in Peshawar, has the report of that officer been received ? Will the Government lay a copy of the report and the orders if any passed on the same on the table ?

(b) Is it a fact that under the orders of the Army Department the old freehold site under bungalow No. 8, Fort Road, Peshawar, is being resumed ?

(c) If the reply is in the affirmative will the Government kindly state under which law or contract they are proceeding in the matter ?

(d) Is it a fact that the owner of the bungalow has recently made extensive alterations in the bungalow making the same suitable for Indian style of living and is himself occupying the bungalow ?

(e) Will the Government kindly state the military necessities, which force the Government to resume the site ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) The officer, who was the Deputy Secretary in the Army Department, conferred both with the military authorities and with the house-owners on the subject of accommodation for military officers in the Peshawar Cantonment. He made notes of the conferences, but submitted no report as on his return he was appointed officiating Secretary in the Army Department. Action has been initiated on these notes, but the Government of India do not propose to lay them on the table.

(b) Orders have been issued for the resumption of bungalow No. 8, Fort Road.

(c) The grant of sites for the purpose of building houses for military officers in cantonments is governed by rules issued from time to time. A copy of the Rules, Regulations and Orders in force before the publication of the Cantonment Code has been placed in the Library. The Cantonment Code itself was subsequently superseded by the Cantonment Land Administration Rules, 1925. It is under the above mentioned Rules and Regulations that Government are proceeding in the matter, as this particular site was granted before the publication of the Cantonment Code of 1899.

(d) I understand that the owner has very recently made some such alterations.

(e) The bungalow was until lately regularly occupied by military officers. Government were informed that the owner had allowed the bungalow to fall into such a state of disrepair that the military officer last in occupation was compelled to leave the bungalow, whereupon the owner instantly took steps to occupy the bungalow himself. The military necessity for resumption is the shortage of bungalow accommodation for officers in the Peshawar Cantonment, coupled with the fact that this bungalow, like others, was built for the accommodation of military officers on a site granted for the purpose. Government have no intention of interfering unnecessarily with the established and bona fide occupation of houses by civilians, even if such houses may have been built on sites granted for the specific purpose of accommodation of military officers. But they are obliged to make use of their legal powers when attempts such as the above are made to deprive military officers of their accommodation.

TRIAL OF CASES UNDER THE CANTONMENTS ACT IN HAZARA, BANNU AND DERA ISMAIL KHAN.

454. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that the ex-officio representatives such as District Magistrates on Cantonment Boards in Peshawar and Kohat are not allowed to try cases under the Cantonments Act and such cases are tried by magistrates unconcerned with the Board ?

(b) Will the Government state if the same rule obtains in Hazara, Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) and (b). Government have no information. The matter is at the discretion of the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor General, North-West Frontier Province.

RESIGNATION OF MR. NARSINGH DAS, AN ELECTED MEMBER OF THE CANTONMENT BOARD, JUBBULPORE.

455. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : Is it a fact that as a protest against the waste of public money involved in the purchase of seven lorries for conservancy services by the Cantonment Board, Jubbulpore, in the teeth of public opposition Mr. Narsingh Das, an elected member of the Cantonment Board, Jubbulpore, from Ward No. 5 resigned his seat on the Board on 13th December, 1927 ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I am making enquiries and will let the Honourable Member know the result in due course.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, two Messages have been received from the Secretary of the Council of State. The first Message runs as follows :

"I am directed to inform you that the Council of State have, at their meeting held on the 18th September, 1928, agreed without any amendments to the Bill further to amend the Indian Mines Act, 1923, for certain purposes, which was passed by the Legislative Assembly on the 27th March, 1928."

The second Message runs as follows :

THE PUBLIC SAFETY (REMOVAL FROM INDIA) BILL.

PRESENTATION OF THE REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar (Home Member) : Sir, I move that the instructions given to the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the removal from British India in certain cases of persons not being Indian British subjects or subjects of States in India to present its Report within three days be withdrawn and that the Select Committee be instructed to present its Report by the 20th September, 1928.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Sir, I present the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the removal from British India in certain cases of persons not being Indian British subjects or subjects of States in India.

THE RESERVATION OF THE COASTAL TRAFFIC OF INDIA BILL.

Mr. President : The House will now resume further consideration of the following motion moved by Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji on the 13th September, 1928 :

"That the Bill to reserve the Coastal Traffic of India to Indian vessels be referred to a Select Committee."

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty (Salem and Coimbatore cum North Arcot : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, my Honourable friend, Sir James Simpson, in the very admirable but unconvincing speech that he delivered the other day remarked that India's rights and British interests are interdependent. I submit that my Honourable friend would have been nearer the truth if he had varied that statement and said that India's rights have always been dependent on British interests. We have had innumerable examples in the political and economic history of this country when the rights of India came into conflict with the interests of Britain and in the struggle the interests of Britain had always triumphed. The Bill which has been introduced by my Honourable friend is a clear case in which India's rights have come into direct conflict with the British interests and India will once again watch with interest as to what will be the verdict of this House on this conflict. I do not think that it is necessary for me to take the time of the House in attempting to prove that India has the undoubted right of reserving the coastal trade of the country to her own nationals. The examples of many other countries in the world go to show that all these countries have exercised this undoubted right. My Honourable friend the Commerce Member referred to the international regime of maritime ports which was held in Geneva in 1923 and which was attended by 31 maritime countries of the world. The Convention and Statute on the international regime of maritime ports makes it perfectly clear that coastal reservation is not inconsistent with international law and usage. In fact, Article 9 of that Convention specifically excludes the coastal trade of any country and states that this Statute does not in any way apply to the maritime coasting trade. In fact, in applying and exercising the right of coastal reservation, some countries of the world have gone even beyond recognised international usage and have adopted a course of action which has caused alarm in British shipping circles. It is stated in the Survey of Overseas Markets that in contradistinction to the view that the coasting trade should be limited to voyages between ports in the same territory, the Governments of the United States and of Portugal have held that it should also cover voyages to Colonies and overseas Dominions ; and the United States Government reserved voyages between the United States of America and Alaska and the United States of America and Hawaii and the United States Merchant Marine Act of 1920 provided for the closing of the trade, as coasting trade, between the United States and the Virgin Islands and the Philipines when adequate American shipping services had been established ; and it is remarked in this book very pertinently that any serious extension of this principle would do considerable harm to British shipping and to international commerce. While the extension of this principle might undoubtedly do serious harm to British shipping and to international commerce it is not for a moment contended that the United States of America and Portugal have gone beyond their rights in exercising this right of reserving coastal trade. In face of the example of great countries like the United States of America in this direction I hope the House will agree with me that it is not necessary to go into the question whether we have got the right by international law to reserve the coastal trade of our country to our own nationals.

Let us, Sir, examine it from the point of view of how it affects the rights of the other countries of the British Empire ; whether India in exercising this right will in any way violate the rights of any of the dominions of the British Empire. Now, in dealing with this aspect of the question, I might consider it in two aspects ; whether we infringe the legal rights of either Britain or of any of the Dominions and whether we infringe the moral right of either Britain or any of the Dominions. The question whether we would infringe the legal rights of any part of the British Empire by enacting these laws will, I presume, be discussed at a later stage when the objection of the European Group of which they have given notice to you, Sir, is taken into consideration ; and at that stage we on this side of the House hope to convince you, and this House that in exercising this right we would be acting in conformity with the provisions of the British Merchant Shipping Act, which governs cases of this nature. I would, therefore, turn to the question whether we affect and infringe the moral right of Britain or any of the Dominions. In connection with this aspect of the questions, my Honourable friend the Commerce Member brought up the example of South Africa, and pointed out that the passage of any legislation of this nature by this House might seriously hamper the very delicate negotiations which the Government of India are always engaged in carrying on with the Government of the Union of South Africa. I am glad Sir, that my Honourable friend the Commerce Member took the example of South Africa rather than any other part of the British Empire. This Bill has been described in various quarters as a discriminatory measure, and if there is one part of the British Empire rather than another where discrimination has been practised as a fine art it is the Union of South Africa. Let us, examine whether in enacting the provisions of this Bill we would do anything to wound the susceptibilities of the South African people ; whether we would affect the rights that they have got as citizens of the British Empire and whether we would be doing anything in contravention of the agreement which the Government of India has recently arrived at with the Union of South Africa. Sir, it has been conceded by the Imperial Conference that every part of the British Empire has got the right to regulate the character of its own population and I ask : has not the Union of South Africa exercised this right against the whole Indian nation ? Have they not enacted a law that no Indian, even though he be a subject of His Majesty the King, can enter South Africa and reside there in future ? And I ask if South Africa thought it fit to exercise the right that has been conferred by the Resolution of the Imperial Conference, how in justice can South Africa complain if we exercise the undoubted right which has been given to us by the British Merchant Shipping Act when we say that the coastal trade of India shall be reserved to Indian nationals and none else ? (Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : "Has South Africa complained" ?) Well, I do not know whether South Africa has complained. I ask whether South Africa can have any justification for lodging a complaint of this nature. Sir, I do not think for a moment that the House will agree with the Honourable the Commerce Member that in enacting this measure we will be doing anything which will make their position with South Africa difficult. I maintain it is not inconsistent even with the agreement that we have arrived at with South Africa.

Having disposed of the point whether we have got in international law the right of reserving our coastal trade to our own nationals, and having endeavoured to show that in exercising that right we would not be violating the rights of any other part of the British Empire, I would now go on to show that we can effectively exercise this right of reservation of the coastal trade to our own nationals. It might be argued that we have got theoretically the right of reserving our coastal trade, but if it can be proved that in practice we cannot effectively exercise that right, there will be no point in our enacting this law and trying to exercise that right. A great portion of the speech of my Honourable friend, the Commerce Member, was devoted to a consideration of this aspect of the question. He devoted a considerable part of his speech to show that, on account of the peculiar position of the Indian Continent, the existence of foreign ports and ports belonging to Indian States, it may prove in practice that though we may enact this law we will fail to achieve our object. Sir, I would like to examine briefly this contention put forward by my Honourable friend. At first he said that there was some difficulty about the definition of common carrier, and very pertinently he asked the question whether a company like the British India Steam Navigation Company would come under the definition of common carrier as given in the Bill. I am glad my Honourable friend raised this point, because it certainly goes to the very root of the whole matter. I grant that when we look into the definition of common carrier, some doubt might be cast whether it will apply to a company like the British India Steam Navigation Company. But I would like to draw my Honourable friend's attention to a case which was decided in the Madras High Court on this very point. It was in a case reported in 38 Madras, 941, in which the British India Steam Navigation Company were the defendants. The definite question raised in that case was whether the British India Steam Navigation Company were common carriers or not, and the decision of the Madras High Court in that case was that the British India Steam Navigation Company were common carriers.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : May I have the reference again ? I did not catch it.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : 38, Madras, 941.

Mr. H. G. Cocke (Bombay : European) : What date ?

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : I am not certain about the year, but I think it must be somewhere about 1912 or 1913. Unless the legal position of the British India Steam Navigation Company has changed since the decision was given in this case, I contend that the definition of common carrier would cover the British India Steam Navigation Company. But even taking it for granted that the definition may not include the British India Steam Navigation Company, it is, as my Honourable friend remarked, a Select Committe point, and in the Select Committee we might try to find another phraseology or another definition which will achieve the object we have got in view.

My Honourable friend next referred to foreign ports, ports like Pondicherry and Mormugao. My Honourable friend's argument was this, that if we include these ports in our scheme for coastal reservation we would be directly coming into conflict with the international agreement that we have entered into with them, and if we omit those ports, we may fail to achieve the very object that we have in view. I agree that we cannot include these foreign ports in our scheme. But I contend that the existence of these foreign ports will not seriously affect the scheme of coastal reservation that we propose. For one thing the trade that emanates from and terminates in these foreign ports, as compared with the total volume of the coasting trade of India, is practically negligible. The total coastal trade (imports) of India is Rs. 114 crores of which the trade of these foreign ports is about 2 crores 83 lakhs. The total coastal trade (exports) of the whole of India is Rs. 109 crores of which the foreign ports take about Rs. 1.30 crores, so that in the total coastal trade of about Rs. 219 crores the foreign ports take only Rs. 4 crores. So that their percentage is absolutely negligible. But I can imagine some of my Honourable friends opposite advancing another argument, that if you enact this law your coastal trade might be diverted to these foreign ports.

Mr. H. G. Cocke : The whole lot.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : The whole lot ? I am glad that my Honourable friend puts it in that strong way, that the whole lot of the coastal trade might be diverted from the British Indian ports to the foreign ports.

Mr. H. G. Cocke : I did not say the whole lot. I said the whole argument.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : I never thought that my Honourable friend had such a weak case as that. Well, my Honourable friends are business men and I am sure they would certainly understand what I am going to say. If the coastal trade of a country is to be diverted effectively to any port, the argument presupposes the existence of a hinterland behind that port which will take the commodities diverted to it. Now, I ask, is there any hinterland worth the name behind these foreign ports in the continent of India ?

Sir Victor Sassoon (Bombay Millowners' Association : Indian Commerce) : The States.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : I am now talking of the foreign ports ; I will come to the States later. I am sure my Honourable friends do not imagine that the trade diverted to these foreign ports will be sent on to British India through the land frontier. If they attempted to do that, surely the frontier customs would come into operation which will make it absolutely difficult.

Sir Victor Sassoon : Land customs would be the same as the sea customs.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : If you attempted to divert cargo, say, to a foreign port like Pondicherry and then take it by train and import it into British India, bearing all these freight charges and paying land customs, does my Honourable friend mean to say that it would be an economical proposition ?

Sir Victor Sassoon : Land customs will be the same as the sea customs.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : I know that, but the operation of the land customs combined with the cost of the railway freight would make it uneconomical to adopt that course.

Sir Victor Sassoon : It depends upon where the goods are going.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber : Indian Commerce) : (to Mr. Shanmukham Chetty) : He admits that.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : I shall wait and see what my Honourable friends have to say on this point.

I will now take the case of the ports belonging to the Indian States. Here I maintain that so far as we have been able to understand the attitude of some of the Indian States, they would come into the scheme of coastal reservation. Representatives of the Government of Baroda and of Travancore appeared before the Indian Mercantile Marine Committee and in the evidence that they gave on behalf of their respective Governments they strongly advocated a policy of coastal reservation. So that I take it that it will be to the advantage of these Indian States to come into the scheme of coastal reservation, and if we pass the law, we can by agreement make it equally applicable to Indian States ports also. That is my answer. Even taking it for granted that the Indian States do not come into this scheme of coastal reservation, then I contend the same arguments that apply to the foreign ports would apply to the ports belonging to Indian States also. For one thing their trade also is negligible. Out of a total of 219 crores of coastal trade, while 4 crores as I said went to the foreign ports, only about 17 crores went to the Indian ports. The existence of the foreign ports and the ports belonging to the Indian States will not therefore come in the way of our making the scheme of coastal reservation really effective. (An Honourable Member : " What about Kathiawar ?") I understand that Jamnagar has already started a shipping concern and I have reason to think that most of the Indian States would readily come into the scheme of coastal reservation. It will be to their interests to do so. The existence of these obstacles on the Indian continent cannot therefore really stand in the way of our enacting a measure of this nature.

I now come to the third part of my speech. Is it to our economic and national interests to exercise the undoubted right that we have of reserving our coastal trade to our own nationals ? We have got a right in international law to do this and if we chose to do so we can effectively exercise that right. But if it can be proved that in exercising that right, we will not advance our economic and national interests, I will be the first to say that we should not exercise that right. Now, Sir, I shall come to the famous economic arguments of Sir Charles Innes. My Honourable friend the Commerce Member said that the economic arguments of Sir Charles Innes have not yet been answered in spite of the considerable lapse of time since those arguments were advanced. In the short compass of a speech you will agree with me, Sir, that it is not possible to give a detailed answer to the various arguments of Sir Charles Innes, but I will endeavour to give a brief outline of the answers that I have got to those arguments. My friend Sir Charles Innes began his economic arguments by stating an axiom. And what is that axiom ? It is this. He said :

" I take it as axiomatic and I think that nobody will disagree with me when I say that reservation of the coastal trade to your own nationals must involve your country in economic loss, even if such loss may be concealed."

His whole argument is based on what he calls this axiom. I may straightaway say that I emphatically repudiate this axiom. It is contrary to all economic principles and is against the lessons drawn from the experience of other countries of the world. This argument may be advanced against any protective measure. Is it contended that every protective measure will lead to economic loss ? I am sure my Honourable friends cannot substantiate a statement like that. I content that this axiomatic statement of Sir Charles Innes is against all economic laws and the experience of the world. His whole argument, being based on this fallacious axiom, falls to the ground. Anyway I will examine some parts of that argument. He said if you reserve the coastal trade for your own nationals, what will be the result. There will be a rise in freight for the coastal trade. He makes a very simple mathematical calculation. He takes the total volume of tonnage that is now carried on in the coastal trade of India, the average freight that is now charged, and then on the analogy of Algiers he presumes that soon after this Bill comes into operation freights will go up 20 per cent. and concludes that the country would be involved in a loss of 70 lakhs per year. This argument is fallacious. Firstly, the argument presumes that the existing freights on the coastal trade of India is economically at its minimum.

Sir James Simpson (Associated Chambers of Commerce : Nominated Non-Official) : You want to advance the rate ?

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : What I mean to say is that the present freight that obtains in the coastal trade of India is high and that the British India Steam Navigation Company in the coastal trade of India is really charging more than it ought to charge. My Honourable friend Mr. Birla gave some figures to show the profits of the British India Steam Navigation Company which proves my argument. If you once concede that the rates that exist are themselves considerably high, then there is not sufficient ground to presume that if you create what is called a monopoly the rates will go still higher. The presence of my Honourable friend Mr. Haji in this House has led very many of my Honourable friends to think that there is only the Scindia Steam Navigation Company plying in the coastal trade. There are already seven Indian companies including the Scindia Steam Navigation Company. If this Bill is passed and this protection is given to the Indian coastal shipping, more companies will come into existence and as a result of the competition freights will be at their proper economic level.

Sir Victor Sassoon : What is the percentage of the tonnage of the Scindia Steam Navigation Company to the total tonnage of all these companies ?

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : I cannot say that at the moment. What I mean to say is that even under existing conditions there are seven companies which are competing with one another and if you pass this measure, more companies will come into existence and freight will be at its proper level. That is my whole point and whether more companies will come into existence or not is another point on which my Honourable friends have a doubt and I will come to that later on. When I read the axiom of Sir Charles Innes, it took my breath away and when I read the example he gave I must confess I was really astounded. Sir Charles Innes gave the example of Chile. He said that as a result of the coastal reservation of Chile for its own nationals, freight went up about 50 per cent. Now, my Honourable friend does not give the authority for that statement. I hope my Honourable friend Sir George Rainy will give the authority for that statement. Sir, here is the report on the industrial and economic situation in Chile, dated September, 1924, and in that report it is stated that the tonnage required by the Chilean owners since the passing of this law resulted in a superabundance of vessels for that nation and then in the report for the next year, that is September, 1925, it is stated that the Chilean shipping companies have suffered from the general depression in the trade.

Sir James Simpson : Hear, hear.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : I do not exactly know what the Honourable Member means by saying " Hear, hear ". I suppose that is meant to expose the fallacy of Sir Charles Innes' argument. If there is superabundance of tonnage, if there is depression.....

Sir James Simpson : The shipping trade suffers.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : Then, that is very good for the consumers whose interests you have so much at heart. I hope my Honourable friend the Commerce Member will give authority for this statement of Sir Charles Innes. Sir Charles Innes then proceeds to point out that it costs 36*s*. a ton to ship wheat over a distance of 700 miles of coast and it costs 30*s*. a ton to ship for 7,900 miles from Chile to the United Kingdom and there is an interrogation mark—I suppose Sir Charles Innes must have put it in in the corrected copy (Laughter) : 36 shillings a ton for the coastal trade of 700 miles and 30 shillings a ton for 7,900 miles, and from this he wants us to draw the conclusion that coastal reservation has ruined Chile. Sir, even without coastal reservation, what is the state of affairs existing in India ? The figures given by Mr. Birla the other day showed that the average freight per ton to carry coal from Bombay to the United Kingdom, a distance of 6,000 miles, is 24 shillings per ton, whereas the average freight per ton for the coastal trade of India, which does not exceed 2,000 miles, is 30 shillings per ton. Is that, Sir, a result of coastal reservation, or is it the result of monopoly or the result of exploitation ? So the example given by Sir Charles Innes does not prove the argument that he wants us to accept.

My Honourable friends would say, " All this is well and good if you take it for granted that as a result of this Bill Indian capital will be forthcoming and new Indian companies will be started." Sir, I maintain that Indian companies will be started, and Indian capital will be forthcoming and in support of what I say I can only give an example of what has occurred in the past. In spite of the serious handicap of Indian shipping, from 1877 to 1927, 32 Indian companies were started with a capital of Rs. 12 crores. 12 crores of rupees were floated, and as a result of the monopoly that the British India Steam Navigation Company has got, as a result of the ruthless rate-war they waged, as a result of the unscrupulous methods of exploitation, what has happened ? 23 out of 32 of these Indian companies went into liquidation ! Twelve crores were floated, of which 8½ crores were sunk, so that 4¾ crores of Indian capital is still floating in spite of the existence of the British India Steam Navigation Company. Such a state of affairs is possible because of the existence of the strong monopoly. Sir, I maintain therefore that this measure, far from creating a monopoly, is an anti-monopolist measure. My Honourable friend referred to the fact that the Scindia Navigation Company has entered into this combine. I have seen the agreement that that company has entered into with the British India Steam Navigation Company. The very fact that an Indian company of that status was at the mercy of an English company like the British India Steam Navigation Company and forced to sign a one-sided agreement shows what protection Indian shipping needs and what monopoly is now being enjoyed by the British India Steam Navigation Company. Far from proving the case of my Honourable friends, the fact that the Scindia Company were forced into entering into that agreement with the British India Steam Navigation Company proves the necessity for this measure. As I said, in the short compass of a speech it is not possible to give any elaborate answer to all the various economic arguments advanced by Sir Charles Innes. But I have attempted to show that his whole argument is based upon a false maxim ; and the examples that he has given, so far as I have been able to verify their correctness, are absolutely wrong and prove the very opposite of what he wants us to believe. I hope Honourable Members who follow me will give more elaborate answers to these economic arguments of Sir Charles Innes. Sir, my Honourable friend, Sir James Simpson referred to the Navy and its relation to a mercantile marine, and I interrupted him by asking whether he could give us an example of any country in which the navy was first created and afterwards a mercantile marine. No. No country in the world would show such a state of affairs. If we are to have a navy to protect the Indian coasts, we must start with the development of a mercantile marine. Sir, there are very many points in the speech which Sir Charles Innes delivered in the House which, if one had time, one could refute. I have endeavoured to show that by international law we have got the undoubted right of reserving the coastal trade. I have endeavoured to show that in practice it is possible for us to effectively exercise that right, and I have also endeavoured to show that by exercising that right, we shall advance the economic and national interests of India. I hope the House will allow an important measure of this kind to go to Select Committee.

Mr. J. A. Stewart (Burma : Nominated Official) : Sir, as one of the few representatives of Burma in this Assembly I think it would not have been proper for me to listen quietly to all that has been said of the rights of India without endeavouring to clear the ground a little as regards Burma and to explain to the Assembly what I consider the rights of Burma are in respect of this coastal traffic Bill. In the first place, there is a preliminary point of some delicacy I have got to try to put and I cannot say how successful I shall be in doing it. I saw the other day in a constitutional document which emanated from the other side of the House that it was contemplated to establish Hindustani gradually as the international language of the Indian Empire. Taking that, by way of example, supposing a motion were to be brought in this House for the purpose of making Hindustani the universal language in India, including of course, Burma, it might even be that some of the Burma representatives in this Assembly would approve of the Bill ; and of course there would naturally be a large majority in the House who would tend to give their votes that way, but I think that in an extreme case like that the majority would certainly not attempt to force the pace. They would look at the evidence of the facts and figures in the census reports and would consider it an act of statesmanship to go slow. Well, the position with regard to the Coastal Trade Reservation Bill is somewhat similar. We have got a very small representation of Burma in this House ; I work it out to something like three per cent. of the total. The coastal trade with Burma amounts—if you include the coolie traffic—to something like 50 per cent. of the total coastal trade of India. That trade with Burma across the Bay of Bengal from Calcutta and Madras and also from Bombay, is much the most valuable part of the so-called coastal trade, and

[Mr. J. A. Stewart.]

Burma is the province in India that is most interested in any questions regarding it. Now with that 50 per cent. interest and three per cent. representation on this Assembly, I think that the majority, no matter how desirble they might think it to pass this Bill into law, should be very careful o consider the interests of Burma in the light of the information that it as got, and should be quite sure that this Assembly has really got a clear mandate from Burma, a clear expression of Burma's wish to be brought in s part of this scheme. But I would like to take the House through such vidence as there is for Burma opinion in the strict sense with regard to it. The evidence is very small in bulk and it will not take me more than a few minutes to summarise it. Go back a few years to the time when the Committee was sitting on the Indian Mercantile Marine. I am sorry that the volume of the record of the evidence taken by that Committee has been taken out of the Library and I cannot refer to it at the moment, but I quote from memory. I remember the Chairman in questioning one of the witnesses asked him, why is it that no Burmans have troubled to reply to our questionnaire ? The obvious answer of course is that Burmans as a whole were not sufficiently interested in the import and export shipping trade and did not think it was any business of theirs to reply. They were mistaken, but that must have been their attitude. Well, two Burman gentlemen gave evidence before that Committee. One was U. Tok Kyi, my Honourable friend sitting opposite. At that time he was Chairman of the Burmese Chamber of Commerce. U. Tok Kyi was strongly in favour of the reservation of the coastal trade and he spoke as representing the Burmese Chamber of Commerce. Another Burman gentleman, U. Ba Tun, if my recollection serves me, was not by any means such a whole-hogger. U. Ba Tun was in favour of the declared object of the Bill, the institution of an Indian mercantile marine or rather the institution of a Burman mercantile marine, but he was not by any means willing to hand over the trade across the Bay of Bengal to new companies. He preferred to stick by the devil he knew rather than hand that important trade over to a devil or several devils that he did not know. He was in fact a cautious man.

Now, to come to the opinions recently received in favour of the Bill, there was the opinion of the Indian Chamber of Commerce. That is a lengthy document. The Burmese Chamber disposed of the thing in two lines ; the Indian Chamber of Commerce took 14 paragraphs to dispose of it—you will find that in the printed opinions—and in the whole of that opinion of the Rangoon Indian Chamber of Commerce you will have to search very closely before you find a reference to Burma, the province in which these gentlemen live and make their fairly comfortable income ; and the single reference is contained not in an original part of the letter but in a quotation from the speech of Sir Charles Innes who at that time had nothing to do with Burma. Sir Charles stated that some parts of India might benefit by the reservation, but Burma and Bengal would pay. Now, what do these hard-headed business men of the Indian Chamber of Commerce say in refutation of this economic argument of Sir Charles ? They turn up their eyes and in a Pecksniffian attitude of horror they say, " how wicked of Sir Charles to attempt to play on inter-provincial jealousies." That, Sir, is the solitary reference to the interests of Burma in this lengthy document sent in by the Indian Chamber of Commerce. Now, the Honourable the Mover said that the Burma Chamber of Commerce and the Indian Chamber of Commerce were both strongly in support of his Bill. Well,

I have shown how far that statement was justified—the extremely brief, unreasoned letter from the Burma Chamber of Commerce and this lengthy rigmarole from the Indian Chamber of Commerce with practically no reference to Burma or the interests of Burma.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : What about the opinion of the Burma Chamber of Commerce before the Mercantile Marine Committee ?

Mr. J. A. Stewart : That was given by U. Tok Kyi.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : U. Tok Kyi is a Burman and you are not.

Mr. J. A. Stewart : I was only trying to help the House by showing what support you have got from Burma and what you have not got ; there is no good contending that. Burma has declared in favour of this Bill. Now, the interests of Burma, as I have said, are various and very important and I am not going to deal with the whole of them. But I would just like to point out that the export of rice and paddy from Burma to India is ¾ million or more tons. Well, the surplus rice produced in Burma is of no value to Burma unless it is got abroad to its market. Whatever you may say about freights, we have got an efficient service of ships that can get the produce abroad to India at the time when that is desired. These big companies have got their ships and the stuff is taken away promptly. Now, you are going to substitute new companies for the existing companies. They may do well. I should like to see an Indian mercantile marine and a Burma mercantile marine established. But I would point out that you are asking the cultivator to take the complete risk, the greatest part of the risk, of this scheme that you propose to introduce. It is the cultivator that will always be affected. The merchants will even use any difficulty in exporting produce as a reason for bringing their offer for rice lower than they ought to. It is perfectly well known that these pretexts are always being used. Then, it is the cultivator, that is to say, 90 per cent. or more of the population, that is going to be asked to take the risk. What is the cultivator of Burma going to get ? I do not see that he is going to get anything. Are there any sentimental reasons which would appeal to him ? I really do not think there are any. I do not think that the average up-country cultivator has ever heard of the Scindia Steam Navigation Company. I may be wrong. But I should think that if you talk to him about it, he will ask " Who is Scindia, what is she ? " And he will not be very curious to know.

There is just one more point I would touch on before sitting down. I have heard ever since I have been in Burma for the last 22 years a trickle of talk about the question of separation of Burma from India.

1 P.M.

I have no opinion to express on that whatsoever. I am a member of the Indian Civil Service and am proud of being a member of the Indian Civil Service, and that of course would incline me personally in favour of maintaining the connection. But Burma has taken some pretty hard knocks in recent times, as a result of its connection with India. There was the import duty on steel to protect an Indian industry that did not exist in Burma, the export duty on hides, which was discussed in this House. There is this export duty on rice, which one of my predecessors from Burma talked about, and now you are going to ask Burma to take this great new risk. I submit that the principle of he division of advantage and disadvantage between India and Burma is ıot right. It seems to me that Burma takes all the kicks and the rest of ndia gets all the half pence. That is not an equitable division, and no rgument will convince me that it is.

Now whatever you may think of this, separation is bound to come if hese handicaps are going to be continued. Separation may perhaps be aid to be inevitable, but it might also be said that Burma is not yet ready or it. But to pass this Bill will be to force separation on Burma before the ime has come for it.

For these reasons I oppose this motion.

U. Tok Kyi (Burma : Non-European) : Sir, during the debate on this Bill this day last week the Honourable the Commerce Member invited some of the Members who come from Burma to take part in the discussion. I for one am very glad to contribute my share to this debate, and my Honourable friend, who has just spoken, and who represents not the people of Burma (Opposition Cheers) but the Government of Burma, has had his say. Sir, I have listened to him with the attention he deserves. I wonder what the universal language for India has got to do with the Bill. He has imported another irrelevant matter, that is the question of the separation of Burma from India. I say that the question of the separation of India from Burma has nothing to do whatever with the measure now before the House. The Honourable the Commerce Member has tried to make out that the coastal trade between Burma and India should be excluded from this Bill, and he gave us some reasons for that and the reasons he gave are not new, because they have been advanced by his distinguished predecessor, Sir Charles Innes. Sir Charles Innes said that if reservation of the coastal traffic be given effect to, the freights would rise and the steamer service would become very expensive. Sir, this part of the question has been answered and very ably answered by my Honourable friend Mr. Shanmukham Chetty a little while ago. So, I need not go into this matter again. Sir, a little while ago my Honourable friend, Mr. Stewart, said that the Burmese Chamber of Commerce has given its opinion on the Bill only in two lines. I wonder on what he based his statement. I have got the opinion of that Chamber before me now, and with your permission, I should like to read it.

Mr. J. A. Stewart : May I ask the date of it ? (Honourable Members: " Order, order.")

U. Tok Kyi : It is a printed copy. It says :

" If the Indian mercantile marine is to be developed, it is essential that the coastal trade of India should be reserved to Indian shipping. (Hear, hear and Applause.) Harsh and high-handed treatment which Indian shippers are receiving at the hands of foreign ship-owners at present will vanish (Hear, hear), rates of freights will be more equitably fixed. (Hear, hear.) There will be no more conspiracy between ship-owners and railway authorities to smash Indian shipping (Hear, hear) and help European traders. Coastal trade and ports themselves will improve. New industries will thrive on account of favourable rates of freight. Last but not least, the wealth of the country will increase (Cheers) as crores of rupees of freight will remain in this country and new careers will be opened up for the youth of the country."

Well, Sir, the statement of opinion is no doubt very short, but I must say it is pregnant with arguments.

Mr. J. A. Stewart : May I explain, Sir..... (Honourable Members: " Order, order.")

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mr. J. A. Stewart : May I explain, Sir ?

Mr. President : The Honourable Member is not entitled to make any personal explanation while another Member is speaking. He must wait.

U. Tok Kyi : As I have said, the statement of opinion of the Burma Chamber of Commerce is no doubt very short, but it is pregnant with arguments to show that the Bill now before the House should be passed as early as possible. Sir, the Indian Mercantile Marine Committee recommended the reservation of coastal traffic and they recommended it in no uncertain terms. With your permission, Sir, I should like to read that recommendation :

" It is our considered opinion that the provision of facilities for the training of Indian officers and engineers alone is not sufficient to meet the requirements of the case and that some further steps are required to achieve the object in view. These further steps we recommend should be in the form of eventual reservation of the Indian coasting trade for ships the ownership and control being interests in which are predominantly Indian."

The recommendation is not ambiguous. It is quite definite and clear and yet as far as my knowledge goes none of these recommendations have been given effect to by the Government of India. The Committee made their report over four years ago ; more than four and a half years have since elapsed and yet we have not had the benefit of the opinion of Government on it up to this time.

Sir, it has been said and said by no less a man than the late President Woodrow Wilson of the United States of America that those who control the commerce of a country are the real rulers of the country. Sir, in this country the real rulers of the country are those who are sitting there and who represent a small European community outside the House. They are the real rulers of India and I am sorry to say that the Honourable the Commerce Member or any other Member of the Government of India is not among those who are the real rulers of the country. The real rulers, as I say, are sitting over there. Sir, the Government of India have so far ignored the recommendation of the Indian Mercantile Marine Committee, I think the reason is not far to seek. I think that those real rulers of the country are at the bottom of the affair. Sir, I thought that the policy of " divide and rule " was adopted only in the sphere of politics. I have since found that the same policy is being adopted even in the sphere of economics. Only a little while ago my Honourable friend Mr. Stewart made some statements which I am afraid will have the effect of setting Burmans against the Indians. I hope and trust that, this will be the first and the last time he speaks in that strain.

Sir, over four years ago I had the honour to represent the Burmese Chamber of Commerce and gave evidence before the Mercantile Marine Committee. One of the members of the Committee—I think it was Sir John Biles—put the following question to me : (I should like, Sir, with your permission, to read the actual wording of the question).

" Burmans will not take to a sea-faring life so long as they have no opportunities of learning work on ships owned by Burmans. The close association which life on board ship entails, combined with the Burmese dislike of working in subordination to or in company with Indians renders it probable that Burmans will take no advantage of facilities which are afforded by Government for the encouragement of an Indian mercantile marine."

Sir, I had no hesitation in answering that question in the negative and I said I did not think that that statement was made by a Burman. That was my answer to that gentleman. Another gentleman, Maung Ba Dun, who was then a member of the Burma Legislative Council, gave evidence before that Committee and a similar question was put to him and his answer was this :

" I do not think it is a correct representation of the Burman view. The Burman, as I have already said, is a very adaptable sort of man. He will take to any work provided he is treated kindly."

A further question was put to him :

" If such a statement is made by anybody, then you say that it is made in ignorance of the true feelings of the Burmans ? "

And his emphatic answer was :

" They never consulted us ; that statement might have been drawn purely from their own imagination."

Sir, from the manner in which the question is put, one can realise that even in such economic matters as this, the policy of divide and rule is being adopted by the Britisher. The Honourable the Commerce Member said the other day that it was very unlikely that for many years to come the Burmese people themselves would take much, if any, part in the coastal trade. Sir, under the present conditions, not only the Burmese people, but also the people of other provinces—Bengal or Bombay or Madras—can hardly take any part in the coastal trade. During the last decade we had in Moulmein a very enterprising Burman. He started an inland steam service ; he started with a small fleet of only a dozen steam launches. No sooner did he start the inland steam service than an attempt was made to crush it, and after three or four years it was completely driven out of existence. Now, when the Britisher, I mean the European community, could not bear to see even such a small concern doing some business, I am sure that they will not allow a big enterprise to get on even for a short time if they can help it. Sir, Sir James Simpson has said that the Bill is based on " the principle of confiscation of the deepest type ". I do not agree with him. I think the Bill is based on the principle of self-preservation of the most modern type. I think the Bill is based on the principle of restoration to India of what is her own. Mahatma Gandhi, Sir, used to leave the Assembly and the Councils in the provinces severely alone, but the Bill before the House is of such national importance that he himself has not refrained from giving his opinion on it. Sir, with your permission, I should like to quote from what the Mahatma has said in his paper Young India :

" I hold that every country, especially a poor country like India, has every right and is indeed bound to protect its interest, when it is threatened, by all lawful protective measures and to regain by such measures what has been wrongfully taken away from it. I have my doubts about anything substantial being done under the existing system through legislative effort. But I take up the same position that I have always maintained regarding organized industries such as mills. I should welcome and support all action that would protect them against foreign aggression or free them from foreign competition especially when the latter is grossly unfair as it is in the case of foreign shipping and foreign piece-goods."

Sir, Mahatma Gandhi is very clear on this point and no one in this House, I think, will disagree with the statement which I have just read out. Sir, as soon as this Bill was circulated for eliciting public opinion, a storm of protests broke out. Most Europeans in the country have characterised the Bill as an anti-European measure. As I said a little while ago, the measure is for the purpose of mere self-preservation. We have no intention of doing anything against the interests of the European community in the country. The Bill, as it is at present drafted, is, even the Honourable the Mover will admit, not perfect. There are many points which should be discussed in Select Committee and as far as I can see the provisions of the Bill do not in some respects comply with the recommendations of the Indian Mercantile Marine Committee.

Mr. President : I think the Honourable Member might resume after Lunch.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till a Quarter to Three of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at a Quarter to Three of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

U. Tok Kyi : Sir, I was saying this morning that the Bill, as at present drafted, has exceeded the conditions laid down by the Indian Mercantile Marine Committee. The conditions laid down are, (1) that the ship should be registered in India, (2) that it is owned and managed by individual Indians or by a joint-stock company (public or private) which is registered in India with rupee capital, with a majority of Indians on the directorate and a majority of shares held by Indians, and (3) that the management of such a company is predominantly in the hands of Indians. The Honourable Mover himself must admit that the provisions of the Bill have to some extent exceeded the conditions laid down in that Report, and I hope that he will see his way to complying with those conditions in the Select Committee. Only this morning I received a telegram from the Secretary of the Bengal Muhammadan Association, which runs as follows :

" To crush Indian and Burma launch owners running launch service in Burma rivers, Bulloch Brothers, Agents, British India Steam Navigation, started free service. Please fix minimum fare and freight to stop this unfair rate-war."

I brought to the notice of this House this morning how in Burma the Inland Steam Service started by Burmans was crushed out of existence. Here is another attempt on the part of the vested interests to crush out another indigenous enterprise. Sir, in regard to unfair European competition I should like to bring to the notice of the House the opinion of Mr. W. E. S. Holland, a man who knows India very well and who is competent to speak on things Indian with authority. This is what he says :

" So long as British policy in India is largely dictated by the requirements of British trade and capital, Indians cannot feel that the political determination of their country's economic future can safely be left in foreign hands.

I once asked Mr. Ramsay Macdonald how he reconciled the Labour Party's backing both of the White Australia party, and of the Indian National Congress.

He replied at once : ' Perfectly simple. Every nation with complete rights in its own country. A white Australia, and (if I may be pardoned the expression) a brown India '. The two policies surely stand or fall together. If it is right to protect the Australian against unfair Asiatic competition, it is surely equally right to protect the Indian merchant or industrialist from unfair European competition."

Sir, the Bill now before the House is a serious attempt to do away with unfair European competition. I heartily support the Bill.

Sir Victor Sassoon : Mr. President, I rise to-day as the representative of the Millowners' Association and not as representing the European group. After my friend Mr. Haji's reference to fellow members of my group and Sir James Simpson who has been 32 years in this country as birds of passage, I can only style myself who has only been in India on and off or about seven years, as a non-stop æroplane. Still, unworthy though I may be in the eyes of certain Members opposite to stand up here for the Millowners' Association, I hope to show the House that I am no faithless representative of a faithful constituency. I admit that I cannot hope to emulate the flights of oratory of my friend Mr. Haji whose stirring words on the theme of good-will must still be ringing in your ears. But there is one prosaic advantage in being a matter-of-fact man. That is that a common place speaker like myself can never hope to so intoxicate his hearers and himself with his own eloquence as to omit telling the House that good-will in the commercial sense, though it may be an intangible asset, still has a definite actuarial monetary value which can properly find its way in the ordinary commercial balance sheet. Though I cannot hope to have the same marvellous command of the English language as the Honourable Mover of the Bill, I do hope to be able to show to this House that the Millowners' Association was not unreasonable in attaching different meanings to the phrase " approving the principle of the Bill " and " sympathising with the principle underlying the Bill." Let me suggest that there might be an invalid with a chronic illness. The doctor came to him and said, " You have tried many medicines. You have not got cured. Take my medicine and it will cure you in two days. Medicines like this have cured many people with similar diseases, but this is even superior to those that have been tried. It has very powerful poisons in it but it will cure you." The patient felt nervous but the doctor said, " Do not argue with me. Either you want to get well or you do not. If you want to get well, take my medicine and pay me my fee. If you will admit the principle of taking my medicine and pay my fee, I will meet you on the details. If you do not like it in liquid form, I will give it in the form of a pill. I might even give you a sugar-coated pill." Would that patient be unreasonable if he said, ' I agree with the principle underlying your statement that I wish to be cured, but I do not agree with the principle of your contention that I must take your medicine and that I must pay for it whether I am cured or not." Sir, that illustrates the intentions of my Association and its opinion. We had a very elaborate and a very full discussion on this question when a member of our committee closely connected with the Company of whose organisation Mr. Haji is a shining member—if my friend Mr. Neogy will permit me to make the reference—was very anxious that the committee should commit itself to supporting Mr. Haji's Bill. My committee refused to do so.

So the suggestion was then made that it should commit itself at any rate to approving the principle of the Bill, and with one dissentient voice the Committee turned that down and merely said that it would approve the principle underlying the Bill.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : What is the principle underlying the Bill ?

Sir Victor Sassoon : My friend will find it stated in the millowners' own words, " to provide for the employment of Indian tonnage on the coastal traffic of India."

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : That is the object according to the millowners themselves.

Sir Victor Sassoon : That at any rate is what the millowners agreed to. What I am here to approve of on their behalf is that object, if you wish. You may call it a principle or you may call it an object: but unless we can find the safeguards which I shall ask for admitted and accepted by my Honourable friend and his supporters, then I shall be constrained to vote against the motion before the House in spite of the allegation that I shall betray my constituency, because as a matter of fact I shall be merely carrying out their instructions.

Mr. Haji in his opening oration stated that he would like to see the ships of the British India Steam Navigation Company confiscated, though what he was proposing was the much milder course of gradually diminishing their participation in the coastal trade of this country so that at the end of five years this participation would be reduced to nil ; and when Sir James Simpson foreshadowed the possibility of a jealous eye being cast on other industries, my Honourable friend, Mr. Neogy ejaculated, "Why not?". And when Sir James asked, " Where are you going to stop ? ", the same Honourable Member retorted, " Why stop ? ". Now my Association, composed of both Indian and European interests, is agreed on one thing. It is opposed to confiscation. If the national interests so demand, the Millowners' Association approves of acquisition with full and proper compensation, but disapproves of expropriation of assets, whether tangible as in the form of ships, or intangible as in the form of good-will ; and I shall require an assurance that this basic principle is approved of by the supporters of the Bill if I am to vote for Select Committee.

Then, Sir, there is another important point. I disapprove just as much as Honourable Members opposite of the present monopoly of the Inchcape group. I disapprove of it as regards the coastal traffic; I disapprove of it as regards the ocean traffic. (Hear, hear). I do not see why I and my fellow millowners should have to pay the same freight on goods going only as far as Aden as on goods going as far as England. But because I disapprove of it, I do not see why I should approve merely the transfer of the monopoly from one set of financial interests to another set. I want competition between the two sets ; I would like to see both sets working against each other, and I think there is much more chance of our rates being reduced if that happens than if we merely transferred the monopoly from one financial group to another. I want an assurance, too, that the coastal freight rates which my Honourable friend, Mr. Birla quoted as being Rs. 20 a ton should be reduced to at least Rs. 16 a ton which is the rate between the United Kingdom and India. Will this Bill achieve that ?

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Certainly.

Sir Victor Sassoon : It is all very well to say, as Mr. Birla did, that the average profit over a number of years of the British India Company represent 22 per cent.

Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla (Benares and Gorakhpur Divisions: Non-Muhammadan Rural) : What about the match industry ?

Sir Victor Sassoon : The question is whether those profits were paid for out of the profits made by the Company in the coastal trade o whether they were paid for out of past accumulated reserves. If thos profits have been paid for, or are being paid for, to-day out of the coastal trade profits, how is it....

An Honourable Member : How are your reserves made up ?

Sir Victor Sassoon : I am talking of the present time.

We are proposing to ship our goods by new concerns in the near future. I want to know whether there is any chance of them being able to reduce rates. If it is true that rates are now too high, as some speaker mentioned, and that 22 per cent. dividends can be paid out of the profits made in the coastal trade, why is not the Scindia Steam Navigation Company, which is enjoying the same rates, earning profits on the same scale ? It seems to me that here are practical questions which do require reasonable and reasoned answers.

3 P.M.

There is another consideration of the highest importance. I may illustrate this by referring to my own industry. If the textile industry in India took the same line of argument as Mr. Haji takes, we might come before this House and we might say, " We are in a bad way ; we originally thought of merely asking for an increased amount of protection, but we think it would be much better for us if you ration all the imports of foreign textile goods and so arrange it that at the end of 5 years there will be no imports of foreign textiles. And the prices of our textiles will not go up as there are hundreds of different people concerned in producing textiles on handlooms and powerlooms all over the country, and the production of the largest group of millowners in India is very small compared with the total production, which total production satisfies two-thirds of the needs of India. That is to say, we only require an increase of 50 per cent. on our present production. We can easily expand our production by 10 per cent. per annum for 5 years, and why should you be afraid therefore that prices will go up." Supposing I did make that request ; I think my friend Mr. B. Das would challenge me and say with a great deal of reason, " It may only appear a modest 10 per cent. increase per annum, but if you dislocate supply and demand you might find that the supply did not expand as quickly as the restrictive part of your measures and the price of the commodity may go up considerably for a period at any rate." And I should find very great difficulty in replying to the criticism of my friend Mr. B. Das. But that is what we are asked here to agree to. The Scindia Steam Navigation Company owns a very large percentage, probably more than 50 per cent., of the present Indian tonnage, and the total tonnage is only 13 per cent. not 66⅔ per cent. of the requirements. You are therefore suggesting that they should expand at the rate of over 125 per cent. per annum for 5 years, and we are asked to agree that this expansion will take place so very easily, that there will be plenty of competition and freight rates will not rise. I feel as a practical man I cannot accept such statements in that way. Now, you might have Mr. B. Das's suggestion that there should be maximum limits for the rates ; that by legislation we should provide that freights must not rise above a certain rate. I disapprove of such legislation. It never works out in practice, because suppose the limit you put is too low, what does it mean ? It means that you are not going to give a sufficient return to your investor on his money, and therefore he will not put any more money into the industry. It will therefore mean that you will have the amount of outside freight decreasing year by year and no increased national freight to take its place. It will be the same situation as we had in the war. The shipowners will only be allowed to charge a certain freight. Shippers in the absence of competition will pay more, but that will not go into the pockets of the shipowners, it will merely go into the pockets of the freight speculators, and that, Sir, is what I wish to avoid.

Now, Sir, I do not feel at all satisfied that this Bill is necessary merely to carry out the restriction of coastal traffic to Indian nationals. I think this might be done more satisfactorily in another way ; and, Sir, I do think that we must consider my friend Mr. Haji's remarks ; we must examine his statements with the greatest care. There was an objection taken to a reference made by my friend Sir James Simpson as to Mr. Haji being a paid servant of the Scindia Steam Navigation Company. I can see nothing derogatory in being a paid servant ; many Honourable gentlemen on these Benches here either are or have been paid servants ; and we do not consider it is at all derogatory to be a paid servant ; but Mr. Neogy appears to take exception to the term—perhaps I understand why my friend Mr. Neogy objected—Mr. Neogy is not a paid servant Mr. Neogy belongs to the legal profession. Mr. Neogy looks down on paid servants because he, like my friends on the Government Benches, might be called a paid master (Laughter) ; we pay and they are our masters. But that we, on these Benches, should object to the term is inconceivable. Now what my friend Sir James Simpson wanted to emphasize was that Mr. Haji represented the shipping interests and was an interested party. Now, Sir, when I get up and I ask for legislation on behalf of the textile industry, everybody knows that I am a member of the Millowners' Association, that I am an interested party and they therefore examine my remarks much more carefully than they would have if made by my friend Lala Lajpat Rai, for instance. It is only natural. Now, what my friend, Sir James Simpson, wanted to show was this : that we must not accept Mr. Haji's remarks without extra careful consideration, because Mr. Haji is in this case an interested party and he is not merely representing the views of the rural voters of the Non-Muhammadan Central Division of Bombay. That is the point ; and I will go further. Mr. Neogy has supported with much vehemence my friend Mr. Haji. Does Mr. Neogy expect us to think when he is supporting this very big maritime question that he is definitely voicing the considered rural opinion of the Non-Muhammadan Division of Dacca ? That is the whole point. Mr Haji must admit that he is an interested party and Mr. Haji therefore cannot resent the fact being brought out in this House or resent it if we examine his arguments more closely than we might otherwise do.

I do not wish to take up the time of the House ; I know there will be many other speakers. I will therefore sum up the requirements which I consider are reasonable, on behalf of my Association. These are the points that I should like to be satisfied on.

1. That there will be no acquisition of assets whether tangible such as ships or intangible such as good-will, without proper compensation.

2. That there will not be so many loopholes as to render the scheme impracticable or unworkable.

3. That the desired end can be achieved without raising freights appreciably, or, at any rate, unreasonably from the traders' point of view ; and

[Sir Victor Sassoon.]

4. That there will be sufficient tonnage at all stages for the needs of merchants.

It is no good saying to me—I quote Mr. Haji,—" It will not do with any honesty to say that you approve of the desire often expressed to develop Indian shipping, but you regret you cannot approve of this measure." I ask why should we use his method ? What about the Australian method ? Why should not we say that we will license ships and lay down that every ship that is going to serve the coastal trade should carry out certain conditions; that they should have an Indian personnel, that when the time comes when we can supply the higher personnel for the officers, that they should be entirely manned by Indians ? In other words, why should we not by license achieve the end in view, viz., that the ships should be manned by Indian personnel ? and that is what we really want. This is what I asked at the millowners' meeting, and I was told that the difference between the Indian Bill and the Australian Act was that the Australian method only dealt with labour and that this Bill was intended also to benefit the Indian capitalists. (Mr. N. M. Joshi : Hear, hear.) Here Mr. Joshi and I are at one. I am not in favour of special legislation, merely for the benefit of special capitalist interests any more than Mr. Joshi is. Sir James Simpson has shown that the result of this Bill will only result in the transfer of dividends from British shareholders to Indian shareholders. Are we therefore to be asked to approve of this new principle of expropriation, of financial racial discrimination merely to this end ? I should be surprised if this House considered that I was taking an extraordinary view if I suggest " No " as the reply. I say that it would be surprising if Members were not prepared to support the conditions and safeguards I have laid down. I sympathise with Mr. Shanmukham Chetty's views, but I cannot see that because I sympathise with his views that I should be prepared to accept this Bill. License your coastal trade if you like, to ensure that the personnel will be all Indian as soon as you can train your nationals. Lay down the principle that your mail contracts and Government support should go to ships owned by rupee companies, if you wish. Place a surtax on all goods and passengers taken from one port to another in an unlicensed ship, and so give preference to your licensed lines, if you so desire. In all this I will support you, but to a Bill like the one before us, unless it is so radically altered that it will not be the same Bill, I will offer the most strenuous resistance in my power.

Lala Lajpat Rai (Jullundur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I congratulate the Honourable the Commerce Member on the admirable spirit of his speech, but I am sorry I do not agree either with his argument or with his conclusions.

The Honourable the Commerce Member and the Honourable Members of the European Group made a reference to the observations made in the Nehru Committee Report relating to European commerce, in support of their contention that no discriminatory legislation should be undertaken. In my judgment, the use they have made of these observations was extremely unfair. I do not claim to be one of the authors of that Report, but I do claim to be one of its principal supporters. I have practically accepted that Report entirely, except on some minor points which do not matter much, and I was the mover of the resolution which purported to adopt that Report in the All-Parties Conference. I endorse the observations to which reference was made, both in their spirit and in their letter, wholeheartedly, and I say that it is not open to the Honourable the Commerce Member and the Members of the European Group to refer to those observations as a reply to this Bill, for the simple reason that we have made it absolutely clear in our resolutions and speeches that that Report stands or falls as a whole. You cannot take it piecemeal. It is extremely unfair on the part of Honourable Members on the other side to pick up one observation in that Report without accepting the rest of the Report. My friend, the Leader of the Opposition, made a sporting offer. Now I make another offer. Let Honourable Members accept that Report as a whole, and they will see that we will actually carry out in practice those observations in a faithful spirit. Then, if we do not do so, they can complain that we have not followed the spirit of the observations. At present they are all engaged in denying to us such political rights as will guarantee to us responsible government ; they are opposing very strenuously our right to Dominion Status. Yet they want to take advantage of an observation which can only apply if Dominion Status is granted or secured. I submit that the argument is hypocritical and unfair. Let them accept that Report in its entirety. Let them join with us in obtaining Dominion Status, and they will see that we will carry out the promise implied in those observations to the very letter and will not depart from it by an inch or an iota. But to deny us the political power and then to rely upon these observations is, I repeat, extremely unfair. It is not playing the game. It is hitting below the belt.

Now, Sir, I do not admit that this is a discriminatory piece of legislation. I am going to prove that it is not. But even if it were so, considering that at the present moment all the political power which the Government possess and which the European Members possess, is being used against the Indians, we shall be perfectly justified in passing this piece of legislation, if by this means we can protect our shipping industry, or we can rehabilitate ourselves in matters in which we have suffered loss by the wielding of political power by others. Then, Sir, before I come to the point that this is not a discriminatory piece of legislation, I want to dispose of one of the arguments of the Honourable the Commerce Member in which he referred to the struggle which the Government of India is carrying on with the Dominion Governments for the sake of India. Here again, I must say, Sir, that the argument of the Honourable the Commerce Member was absolutely fallacious and untenable. The argument comes to this. We have tried to get equal status for Indians in the Dominions, and here you come forward with this piece of legislation which denies equality to European merchants engaged in trade in India. I submit, Sir, that that is not the position at all. The Honourable Member has absolutely misread our position. In connection with the Dominions what we want is that the Dominion Governments should recognise our status as Dominion nationals. South Africa, Canada, Australia and all other Dominions deny to us the right of being their nationals and they deny us all political rights which follow therefrom. Here in this country, the Europeans, the members belonging to the European group of merchants, do not want to be Indian nationals at all. They look down upon that status ; they treat that status with contempt and rightly too. (Several Honourable Members of the European Group : " No, no ".) They want to rule over us, they want to exploit us. (Several Honourable Members of the European Group : " No, no ") They do not want to become Indian nationals. If they were to become Indian nationals there will be no question of racial discrimination at all. My Honourable friend Sir Victor Sassoon the other day, in the course of the debate on this subject, said " he was not an Indian, he had never pretended to be an Indian "; and so also the other Members of the European Group have never pretended to be Indian nationals. They do not want to be Indian nationals, and yet they want to control Indian legislation, Indian trade, Indian finance and rule over India eternally. The two positions are entirely different. We do not want our rights to be recognised in South Africa and other Dominions as Indians. We want to be recognised as citizens of the Dominion by virtue of our residence, by virtue of our trade and by all those qualifications which can make us nationals of those countries. The Europeans do not want to be recognised as Indian nationals ; what they want is exceptional treatment. (Several Honourable Members : " No, no ".) They want racial discrimination between Europeans and Indians. (Several Honourable Members : " No, no ".) Yes, Sir, I say, " yes ", ten times, twenty times and a hundred times " yes ". By denying this you are not going to alter facts. You have reduced yourselves to this anomalous position by refusing to become Indian nationals. You do not claim to be Indian nationals, and yet you claim to control our Legislature. Do you find that position in any other country on the face of the globe ? I can understand their right to come and trade in this country. Let them all come and do their business. Let them make any amount of money. But certainly it is extraordinary to claim that by virtue of their political power in this country, they have got the right to control the Legislature of this country. This they claim by virtue of the power which the British possess over India. But that is not what we want to claim in the Colonies. Therefore, there is no analogy between the two cases. Why, Sir ? I sometimes wish that Honourable Members do not talk of discriminatory legislation. This does no good to anybody. What do we see in practice ? The whole method and the structure of Indian government, fiscal, military and political, is one continued evidence of discriminatory legislation. There is discriminatory legislation even in the Reforms that were introduced in 1919. Take for example this Legislative Assembly where we are supposed to have a majority. Yet we are not sure of passing this measure through the Assembly, nor are we confident of placing it on the Statute-book. Even if the Assembly passes this Bill against the wishes of the Government, they have got the Council of State which is entirely in their pocket. Then they have got the vetoing power of the Governor General. Then they have the vetoing power of the Crown on the advice of the Secretary of State. We cannot be sure of carrying this measure through even if we pass it at this stage, i.e., of enacting it into law. Is this not racial discrimination, is this not discriminatory legislation ? For those gentlemen over there to accuse us of discriminating legislation against them is absurd. The whole of their activities, the whole of their trade in this country, is based on discrimination. One comes across discrimination on the railways, discrimination in ships, discrimination everywhere, all down the line. For the Europeans to complain of discriminating legislation by us is, I submit, entirely unreasonable and ridiculous. Sir, I submit that so far as this Bill is concerned there is no question of discriminatory legislation or of racial discrimination, and one evidence of that come from one of the Members of the European Group itself. In an article published on August 17th, the Editor of the Statesman in the course of a leading article says :

" Commenting yesterday on Mr. Haji's Bill for the reservation of the coastal trade to Indian shipping, we expressed the unequivocal opinion that it is a bad Bill, but at the same time we took the point that it was not in itself evidence of an Indian desire for racial discrimination, because in fact other countries have protected their coastwise trade, and the hundred per cent. Britisher in Australia does not hesitate to discriminate against the shipping of the Mother Country."

In another article which appeared on August 16th, the same writer said :

" There is however another class of measure such as Mr. Haji's Bill for the reservation of the coastal trade and Mr. Neogy's inland water traffic Bill. These are in our opinion bad Bills, but it must be conceded that they are in themselves no proof of racial discrimination. The Dominions not only have the right to pass similar measures but they do pass them, and the hundred per cent. Britisher in Australia does not hesitate to prohibit the shipping of the Mother Country from coastwise trade."

So, Sir, I submit that we are only trying to do—not doing ; we cannot do it because we have not the power—but we are trying to do what other countries in the world, what the greatest maritime countries have done in this matter to build up their shipping industry. It is a long tale, the tale of the exploitation of India by the British, and I have no time to repeat it here. Clive, Hastings, Macaulay and James Mill all have told that tale. Brooks Adams, the great American writer, has also referred to that fact. He along with some British writers have pointed out that in the seventeenth century England was devoid of money, it was on the verge of a great contraction of money and their currency had substantially depreciated so much so that they had no capital to put into practice the inventions of Watts and others. This was, however, made possible by the help of the treasures they took from India. They built up the whole of their industries—the Industrial Revolution itself was brought about by the loot from India with the help of the treasures they obtained from us. They destroyed our industries by the use of the political power they had obtained over us ; and for over a century by the use of the same political power they have prevented us from developing our industries. That is shown by the history of the textile industry. Shipbuilding has also been included in the same process. Therefore, for them now to come forward and say that our effort to reserve our coastal traffic for our own ships is a measure of racial discrimination is a statement unworthy of them. It really does not come well from men who claim to be honest, who have read the pages of history and know the actual conditions of things that have been going on in India.

Sir, there are other Members who want to speak, so I will not take up much more of the time of the House ; but I submit that this Bill is a perfectly legitimate attempt to rehabilitate our shipping industry. My Honourable friend Sir Victor Sassoon's speech delivered with his usual eloquence and oratory contained but very little about this Bill. Much of his speech was about pills and medicines. He spoke of the textile industry, but may I ask him honestly to say if the textile industry stands on the same footing as the shipping industry ? Shipping is not only a key industry essential to the economic prosperity of any country, but a key industry on which the safety and even the existence of a nation depends. We wish to establish an industry upon which actually our existence as a nation will depend. There is no comparison at all between the textile industry and the shipping industry. If we had the power in our hands—the power of the public purse and the political power—we would have established this industry long before to-day on a safe basis in the same way as Japan did, as Australia did, and as Chile did—to which country Sir Charles Innes had to go to support his arguments—and as other nations have done. What has Great Britain herself done? Look at the Encyclopœdia Brittanica and the article on the maritime shipping of Great Britain; you will see that at the time when they had no shipping or very little shipping of their own, they prohibited any goods or articles from being brought to England in any ships except British ships: That is how they protected their shipping at first. Now that they have grown fat on Indian riches, Indian trade and the exploitation of India, they say "No; your present Bill is discriminatory, we will not support you in any such legislation. We ask you to compete with us on equal terms." They taunt us and say "You build your ships in our shipyards; you get our men to run the ships and yet you want to introduce this racial discrimination." But, Sir, what is that due to? Is it not due to the fact that you have destroyed our old shipbuilding industry; you have made us helpless? And now that we want to help ourselves a bit you call it racial discrimination. You will not take one single Indian to be trained in your ships. Is that not racial discrimination? It is all very well for Sir Victor Sassoon to say "Oh, yes; let your men come; we will employ them, and we will employ other Indian labour also. But this Bill is designed to help the Indian capitalist as against the European capitalist. That is objectionable." But why do you, British capitalists, want to deprive the Indian capitalists of their chance? Sir, this is a very strange argument. I thought that both kinds of capitalists were in conspiracy to protect their interests; but here it seems that the British capitalist thinks his interests clash with the Indian capitalists and therefore he is prepared to strangle the Indian capitalist and keep the whole thing in his hands. Sir, like my friend, Mr. Joshi, I am not a friend of any capitalist—Indian or British—but I must submit that all this talk of personnel and labour is absurd because under the present condition of things no Indian ship can possibly train any Indians to run steamers and ships. Indian shipping capitalised by Indian capitalists is absolutely essential if India is to develop her shipping industry. This has been proved abundantly by the evidence given before the Mercantile Marine Committee. My Honourable friend Mr. Shanmukham Chetty has pointed out how many Indian shipping companies were started and ruined—not because they had no business—but because other companies killed them by the rate-war. I have just received a telegram this morning from the Bengal Muhammadan Association, Rangoon—a different wire from that received by U. Tok Kyi—which says:

"Bengal Steam Navigation Company Limited with ten lakhs opened steamship service between Rangoon and Chittagong in 1922, but owing to unfair competition of foreign steamship companies which reduced passages from 12 to 2, former failed after five years' hard struggle. Subsequently the latter companies raised the rate from 2 to 14."

reduced it first from 12 to 2 and then raised it from 2 to 14 after the other company had been killed.

"Now Bengal Burma Steam Navigation Company floated recently with 25 lakhs running regular service between various ports, foreign capitalists have begun rate-war reducing passage from 14 to 4 and freight rate from 17 to 4. Unless coastal traffic reserved for Indian capital, no chance for Indian enterprise. Entirely support and wish success Haji's Bill."

Now, Sir, these are the facts. This is the latest exhibition of fair-play on the part of European shippers. This telegram is sent not by a Hindu capitalist, but by a Muhammadan Association from Rangoon. They have the same complaint as the Hindu capitalist had at one time. They say they want protection and that this competition is extremely unfair. It is like a grown-up man of 30 asking a boy of 10 to stand up in open competition with him. These European shippers now talk of competition. They have taken away our capital; they have destroyed our industries, they have prevented us from developing our shipping, and to-day they say, "Enter into fair competition with us." How can we possibly do it? We want our Government therefore to give us the same powers and opportunities which the Governments of other countries have given to their people. We want our Government to use the same powers which the Governments of other countries have used, in building up the shipping industry in this country. Sir, the shipping industry is a key industry. It is absolutely necessary for the defence of the country; it is absolutely necessary in times to come for our existence as an independent and free nation. Therefore we are asking for protection to rehabilitate our shipping industry, and we are not asking for any racial legislation. That, Sir, is the real way in which this legislation should be looked at. It is not a question of interfering with the business of the Europeans. We do not want to interfere with their business. Let them come and do their business; by all means come and trade in this country; we do not object to it at all. We do not want to interfere in any way with their business. But this shipping industry stands on an entirely different footing. It is not like the tea industry; it is not like the indigo industry; it is not like the textile industry; it is an industry upon which practically the life of a nation depends, and therefore, I submit, that there is not racial discrimination implied or involved in this legislation at all. Nor is this a piece of discriminatory legislation. We are using the powers that are given to us by the constitution for the purpose of building up an industry and rehabilitating ourselves against the losses we have suffered in the last two centuries. We are perfectly justified and within our rights to ask for this legislation, and the arguments advanced by several Honourable Members on the opposite side that this would mean racial discrimination are absolutely beside the point.

I shall say one word more, Sir, before I sit down about what the Government have done so far for us in the Dominions. The Government of India take pride—and I think I should thank them for what they have done so far—they take pride for the struggle they have carried on in the Dominions on our behalf. But how could those Dominions respect the representative of the Government of India when they know that in India itself the Indians are nothing better than helots? When we need no political rights in our own country, when we were no better than helots in our own country, how could the Government of India help us in South Africa? Under these circumstances how could we with effect claim any political rights and equal citizenship in South Africa? They knew very well that the Government of India have not given us any political rights, and naturally the Government of India's efforts on our behalf could not achieve much in South Africa. No Dominion will listen to them, because they have the Government of India's own policy and practice before them; they know that the Government of India's own methods in this country are entirely opposed to the principle which they advocate for us in the Dominions. Therefore, the Dominions cannot give us equal status there unless we get some political rights in our own country. We cannot pass any law in this country except by the help of the European Merchants because the political power is entirely in their hands. Therefore, I submit, Sir, that these arguments are quite fallacious.

On the merits of the Bill, Sir, certain points were made by the Honourable the Commerce Member and others on the opposite side. My friends Messrs. Chetty and others have replied to them. But if any changes are to be made in the Bill so as to ensure fair treatment to all, they can be made in the Select Committee. We are at the present moment only in the consideration stage ; we are only asking that the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee, and therefore my friends opposite are not prevented from having any difficulties they may have, considered in the Select Committee. They are not insurmountable difficulties ; it is not so very difficult to overcome them. We have at present only to consider those objections which go to the root of the Bill and which cannot be improved upon and which cannot be considered in the Select Committee. I therefore support the motion.

An Honourable Member : I move that the question be now put.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai (Secretary, Department of Education, Health and Lands) : Sir, I claim the indulgence of the House for a very few minutes, and I do not desire Honourable Members opposite to buckle up their economic armour, because I do not intend either to seek out the weak spots in that armour or to break a lance against it. It is quite clear, Sir, that nothing is more difficult to contend against in a debate than that intangible but most formidable of all factors, an atmosphere. Honourable Members opposite very strongly favour the provisions of Mr. Haji's Bill. I should be the last person in the world, being an Indian myself, to say that there is not the force of nature and the force of patriotism behind the desire to see revived an Indian mercantile marine.

In fact, Sir, if I understood correctly the statement made by the Honourable the Commerce Member the other day, that is the position of the Government also, namely, that every effort should be made to bring into being an Indian mercantile marine. The question really is, whether the provisions of Mr. Haji's Bill constitute the right method, the right procedure, the right path for achieving this national end.

Now, Sir, as I have already said, I do not wish to break my lance, feeble as it is, against the economic armour of Honourable Members opposite. The Honourable the Commerce Member no doubt will take care of that. But, Sir, I think that it is only right and proper that one aspect of the case which was put by the Honourable the Commerce Member the other day, but perhaps not developed at length, should be explained to the House. I am referring, Sir, to the effect of the proposed legislation on the status and position of Indians in other parts of the British Empire. In the course of his admirable, his characteristically admirable and lucid and pointed speech, Mr. Shanmukham Chetty this morning referred to the Resolution of 1918. He said the Dominion Governments have taken power, and the representatives of the Government of India acquiesced in that, to regulate the composition of their own population. Quite right. That is not challenged. But what does that amount to ? That does not involve the right to send away either from South Africa or from Australia or from New Zealand the Indians who are already settled there. It does not involve the right to take away from the Indians who have settled in South Africa or Australia or New Zealand such economic rights or privileges as they enjoy to-day. (An Honourable Member : " What are they ?) I shall come to that, Sir. That is not the point in issue at the present moment. Now, Sir, I do not profess to have studied Mr. Haji's Bill very carefully. But judging from the speeches which were made this morning I should say that there was no provision in the Bill to safeguard European capital or the capital of the nationals of other British Dominions, including the United Kingdom which is already invested in the shipping trade in this country. I do not really think, Sir, that the Resolution of 1918 exactly helps my friend Mr. Chetty. For while that Resolution aims in protecting existing rights, Mr. Haji's Bill is silent on that point. Then, Sir, there is another point which was made by the Honourable the Leader of the Nationalist Party. It was this. What is the good of saying that there is an analogy or a parity between the struggle which the Government and the people of India are carrying on in order to secure equality of status for Indians who have settled in other parts of the Empire and the struggle which the representatives of the European group are carrying on to-day in order to safeguard what they consider to be their right ? There is according to my Honourable friends no parity between the two at all, because the Honourable Members of the European Group and the people whom they represent are entrenched in a position of political dominance and power in this country, whereas the Indians in South Africa are not in a position even of political equality. Now, if I may respectfully make a statement or a comment to this effect, that really misses the point. We are not at the present moment comparing the political status of the unofficial European community in this country with the status of the Indian community in South Africa. The question really is whether the underlying principle of the measure which is under consideration now will in any way weaken the struggle which the Government of India, in consultation with and with the co-operation of Honourable Members opposite and Indian opinion outside the House, are carrying on to secure equality of status for Indians who have settled beyond the seas.

Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty : If I may be permitted to interrupt the Honourable Member it will clear up the issue. Does my Honourable friend contend that there is any steamship company owned by any of the Dominion subjects which is now plying in the coastal trade of India and which will be expropriated by this Bill ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The point is not whether there is a Dominion company plying in Indian waters and whether it will be expropriated by this Bill. Does my Honourable friend opposite contend that the citizens of the United Kingdom who are settled in this country are not British subjects in exactly the same way as Dominion subjects are ?

Lala Lajpat Rai : They are not Indian nationals.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : They need not be Indian nationals, but the point is this. Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru at the Imperial Conference of 1923 and the Right Honourable Mr. Sastri before him at the Imperial Conference of 1921 pleaded for political and economic equality for Indians. What was the principle on which they based their plea for political equality, and for economic equality for Indians in the different parts of the British Empire ? The plea was that if you own a common allegiance, then you derive as an inevitable corollary from that common allegiance political and economic equality. What I say is, and I submit that in all humility and with all respect,—what I say is that if you place on the Statute-book in this country any measure which involves an infringement of that principle, the principle of common allegiance involving complete equality of rights— to that extent, to the extent of that infringement, you are weakening the arms of those who are trying to secure equality for Indians who are settled in other parts of the British Empire. I will try and illustrate this by an incident which came within my personal experience. As Honourable Members of the House are aware, the Union Assembly had before it early in 1926 a Bill known as the Areas Reservation, Immigration and Registration Further Provision Bill. It was commonly known as the Class Areas Bill, and one of the provisions in that Bill was that Indians should be allowed to have proprietary rights in land only in areas which were to be set apart for them. We naturally protested against this, and when we went to give evidence before the Select Committee of the Union Assembly on this point, two or three Honourable Members of the Union Assembly said, " But why do you come and say this ? What right have you to come here and say we should not restrict in some form or another the right of Indians to own property ? Are there not parts of India where European British subjects are prevented from acquiring property ?" I retorted, " So far as I am aware, there is no province in British India where any British citizen is prevented from acquiring landed property." Then one of the gentlemen asked me, " Yes, but what about Kashmir ? " Of course, that gentleman betrayed a profound ignorance of the political geography of this country, and I promptly corrected him. I said that Kashmir was not part of British India. Further, I went on to say that in Kashmir this restriction on the right of acquiring property was applicable not only to the Europeans who apply but to British Indian subjects also and therefore he could not possibly bring that up against us. I proceeded and mentioned that so far as our existing laws were concerned there was no such restriction on European British subjects. Well, Honourable Members are aware as to what the result of the negotiations which started then and were completed at Cape Town early in 1927 was. I merely wish to lay this before the House, that in so far as we embody in our legislation any principle which can be described or which can be construed as marking an infringement of or a subtraction from that principle of common allegiance carrying equal rights, for which we have invariably contended at successive Imperial Conferences, for which we are contending now, and for which we propose to continue to contend as long as Indians in the different parts of the British Empire do not achieve the full equality that we on this side of the House and on the opposite side desire—as soon, I say, as we place on our Statute-book any legislation of this character, we shall stand to lose. The moment we do depart or deviate from the principle on which we base our case, then I fear that there is a possibility, indeed, more than a possibility, there is a grave risk, that we shall be weakening, as I have said, the arms of those whose one endeavour is to secure equality for Indians who have settled in other parts of the Empire. I do not see how the argument which I have put forward does not meet the argument of my Honourable friend, Lala Lajpat Rai. Lala Lajpat Rai's argument, if I may say so, is a purely political argument. I am not pursuing a political argument. I am contending, as I say, to establish the sanctity, if you like, of the principle on which our case has so far been based.

[Mr. G. S. Bajpai.]

Lala Lajpat Rai : Who has accepted that principle ? Nobody has accepted that principle.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Which principle does the Honourable Member refer to ?

Lala Lajpat Rai : The principle of equality of British subjects in all parts of the British Empire.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : If that principle is not fully accepted, it does not follow that we are to sit with folded arms and say that it will never be accepted. I really do not admit that that in itself is an argument for our throwing away from our armoury such weapons as we happen to possess. As I have said, I do not pretend to have anything like the experience or ripe judgment of Honourable Members opposite, but I do submit that in a matter of this kind, we would do well to pause and reflect before we take a definite, and, it may be, decisive step on a path which promises prosperity but which, I fear, will lead to peril.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Does not the Honourable Member remember the news of the incident which was received only yesterday regarding the treatment of Mr. Sastri by the Deputy Mayor in a place in South Africa where he was being received ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I do, Sir, and I may mention to the House that the Governor General of South Africa as the head of the Government of the Union of South Africa promptly dissociated himself from what happened, apologised for what had happened and promised immediate action against the perpetrators of this delinquency.

Khan Bahadur Haji Abdullah Haji Kasim (West Coast and Nilgiris : Muhammadan) : Sir, I have great pleasure in supporting the motion moved by my Honourable friend Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji. In doing so, I should like to draw the attention of the House to one or two points in the Bill, which, I think, the author has apparently overlooked. In the first place, there is the case of shipping companies, whose capital is mainly Indian but whose managing agents are foreigners. For instance, take the case of the Bombay Steam Navigation, Co., Ltd., whose capital, as Honourable Members are probably aware, is preponderatingly Indian, but whose managing agents are Messrs. Killick Nixon and Company, of Bombay, which is a foreign agency. Now, such companies, according to sub-clause (3) of clause 2 of the Bill under consideration, will not be able to operate in this country with the result that they will cease to work. Consequently, not only will the share-holders be seriously affected, but also the trading classes and travelling public will be put to great hardship and trouble. The steamers owned by the Bombay Steam Navigation Company being small, having a carrying capacity below 1,000 tons, are catering to the needs of all classes of people on the west coast, and it is highly desirable that small steamers of this type should be encouraged, as far as possible, as they will be very useful in carrying cargo and passengers from large ports to small ports and vice versa. Sir, small steamers play a large and important part in the coastal trade of India. They require, as the House is probably aware, a small draught of water and hence can touch smaller ports, where they can anchor nearer the shore and facilitate the process of loading and unloading. These small steamers are really a great boon to merchants trading at small ports where harbours, docks and other modern conveniences do not exist. It is,therefore, necessary that some modification should be made in the Bill so as to bring the companies, constituted as the Bombay Steam Navigation Company is, within the purview of this Bill.

Then, Sir, in the second place, the author of this Bill has stipulated a a period of five years for complete reservation of the coastal traffic of India to Indian vessels : but, Sir, I fear that complete or even partial reservation may not be practicable by that time. It is doubtful whether Indian capital, which is proverbially shy, will come forward owing to the failure of shipping companies in the past. Sir, at a very modest estimate, I think that about 100 ships will be required to meet the demand of the coastal trade of India, and assuming that it would cost about ten lakhs of rupees per ship, something like ten crores of rupees would be required to purchase the full complement of steamers ; but, as I have already said, I have very grave doubts if the necessary Indian capital will be forthcoming due to its bitter experience in shipping enterprise in the past. Further, the existing foreign companies will naturally, if the Bill becomes law, raise their freights to the great disadvantage and detriment of the Indian consumer, and because of the absence of the full complement of Indian steamers, the coastal trade will, I fear, suffer immensely. Even taking for granted that there are 100 ships ready to take part in the coastal trade, the foreign companies, having been deprived of their legitimate right of participation in the coastal rade, will naturally raise their freight This will consequently mean a great drain on the purse of the Indian consumer as well as the Indian exporter. At the same time, Honourable Members are well aware that India exports a larger quantity of her raw materials than what she imports from foreign countries, and in this process the passing of the Ratio Bill last year has already severely hit the exporters of this country. If, therefore, the existing foreign shipping companies on whom we have to entirely depend at present for carrying our goods to foreign countries were to enhance their freights, the exporters will be doubly hit. It is therefore absolutely necessary that we should have a sufficient number of large ocean-going steamers to cope with our foreign trade as well as to keep the overseas freights within bounds Sir, I hope the Select Committee will consider all these points very carefully.

As I have said, I am entirely in favour of the principle of this Bill Before I resume my seat, I should like to thank Mr. Haji for bringing forward this measure which will go a great way in building up an Indian mercantile marine owned, controlled and managed by Indians.

Several Honourable Members : I move that the question be now put

Mr. President : The question is that the question be now put

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : Has the Honourable Member given a list of the Select Committee ?

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Yes, Sir, I gave a list of Honourable Members last time.

Mr. President : I was told by the Secretary that the Honourable Member had not given the list, though I was under the impression he had.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Sir, other Members should be mentioned, as additional Members ; otherwise the Committee will not be able to deal with this matter. Secondly, there is no mention of Members of the Select Committee in this motion. Under these circumstances, the motion should be postponed till the next Session.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : The names of the Select Committee were handed over by me the last time and you were good enough to read out the names.

Mr. President : I have an impression that I did read out the names of the members of the Select Committee, but the Secretary says no.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Sir, in making my reply to the speeches which have been delivered in this connection.....

Mr. President : Five minutes.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : I would just refer my Honourable friend who spoke last to the opinion of the Bombay Steam Navigation Company, Limited, on this Bill. It is to be found on page 72 of paper 2 of the Opinions on the Bill. This company, Sir, about whose welfare my friend is so solicitous, definitely approves not only of the principle of the Bill but of most of the details contained therein. Sir, with reference to my friend Mr. Bajpai who talked about discrimination, I would draw the attention of the Government Benches to the fact that they themselves have adopted the principle of a certain proportion of Indian capital being necessary for licensed Indian enterprises. And I want to know if when this principle was adopted by them did South Africa protest and have Indian interests in South Africa suffered thereby ? Again on the 5th September my Honourable friend the Industries Member said, in reply to a question whether the Government of India had insisted on arranging for 60 per cent. of the capital of the Indo-European Telegraph Company as part of a general policy, that this company had to receive a license from Government. They could not operate without a license and therefore in that case there was a special reason, apart from any general policy, why Government was perfectly entitled to lay down such a condition. My Bill, Sir, recommends that licenses be given for operating ships in the coasting trade of India, and on the analogy of the action of Government already taken, I ask where is there any discrimination here any more than when they insist that a certain percentage of the capital of a company shall be held by Indians ? The same thing is going to happen in the case of the civil aviation company. Why then all this talk about the evil effects of this Bill on the delicate negotiations in South Africa and elsewhere which, as is well known, always come to nothing ? So far as our countrymen in Africa are concerned, I am glad to say that the Bill has the support of all of them. The Indian Merchants' Chamber and the Indian Merchants' Association in Mombasa approve of the Bill. I have here a telegram from the Indian Merchant's Chamber, Mombasa. It reads :

"Cabled Government strongly supporting coastal traffic Bill. Wishing success."

That does not look as though the position of Indians in Africa is going to be worse after the passing of the Bill I have introduced and which is being discussed now. As you have given me only five minutes, Sir, I am afraid I cannot go into the details of all those arguments to which the Honourable the Commerce Member referred as appearing in the speech of Sir Charles Innes. I agree with him that most of them are points of fact and therefore points for the Select Committee. It would have been very easy for me to demolish all those arguments and to show from published blue-books that most of the statements in that speech are very open to challenge. Their general character can be judged by the House from the fact that Mr. Shanmukham Chetty so easily and effectively disposed of the Chilian example of Sir Charles.

What is true with regard to Chili is true of other arguments of Sir Charles Innes.

4 P.M.

Sir, it has been said—and I shall just mention one point—that the coasting trade of India is seasonal and we have been asked what will happen to the Indian ships during the slack season. I have worked out the details and the following is the result. The average sailings from the following important ports are given in this list for every month of the year. The coastal sailings from Rangoon are 48 per month, from Madras 29, from Alleppey 18, from Cochin 18, from Bombay 17 and from Karachi 5. It is quite possible that there may be months in which the sailings may be two or three more or less, but I want to have this average on record, in order that the whole argument about the seasonal character of the trade may be demolished completely. (An Honourable Member : "What about the month of July ?"). Similarly, Sir, I have got an answer not only with regard to the month of July but with regard to each one of the twelve months of the year, and I am prepared to satisfy the Select Committee with regard to the hollowness of this seasonal trade argument.

Now, Sir, as I have already exceeded the five minutes that you have allotted to me.....

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Sir, I therefore move the motion standing in my name.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I do not propose, Sir, after this long debate to address the House at any length ; indeed after the speech I inflicted upon the House last week, it would be unreasonable of me to take up much of the time of this House to-day. There are, however, certain points that have been taken by some of the speakers to-day to which I think I ought to refer, and I will begin with that very interesting speech delivered by my Honourable friend Mr. Chetty. In so far as he dealt with the question how far the passing of this Bill might affect the position of Indians in the Dominions, I do not propose to say anything more, because the point has been very fully and ably dealt with by my Honourable friend Mr. Bajpai. I will therefore pass on to the other points in Mr. Chetty's speech, and I may say I was glad that at any rate one speaker on the other side was prepared to deal with the economic arguments advanced by Sir Charles Innes some 2½ years ago. Mr. Chetty began by repudiating what Sir Charles Innes claimed as axiomatic, namely, that the reservation of the coastal trade would mean economic loss in some form or another. Of course it is not much use claiming as an axiom what other people do not accept, but it seems to me that there are far stronger reasons than Mr. Chetty was prepared to allow for the view that restrictions of this kind mean economic loss in one form or another, and my Honourable friend Sir Victor Sassoon gave good reasons for thinking so. But I should like to point out that, although it is quite true that Sir Charles Innes did make the claim that the view he expressed was axiomatic, he also did a great deal more, for he proceeded with his usual thoroughness to advance a number of arguments in support of his opinion. Now, one of the reasons he gave for thinking that the reservation of the coastal trade was probably contrary to the economic interests of India and would result in loss was the seasonal character of the coastal trade, and this is a point which, as far as I recollect, has not really been dealt with by any of the speakers on the other side. If in the slack season of the year you need only 60 per cent. of the number of ships which are required in the busy season, then in order to operate the ships economically, you must find some occupation for the odd 40 per cent. in the slack season. That is a very important point. Under present arrangements, when the ships are not required on the coastal trade, they go to other parts of the world and operate there. It is by no means certain that if the coastal trade were reserved, the Indian ships would be able to be take themselves to other regions (An Honourable Member : "Why not ?") and take part in the trade there, because it is probable they would find themselves in regions up against rather strenuous competition.

My Honourable friend, Mr. Chetty, said that the existing coastal freights were not at the economic minimum, and he drew the inference that, even though the operation of the coastal trade might be rather more expensive under the restrictions, still the Indian companies would be able to carry on at a profit. All I can say is that, from time to time, it has happened that Indian shipowners have come to me and drawn my attention to the fact that the British India company, or some other company, has been cutting freights on the coast. The impression I always get is that these shipowners at any rate regard the existing freights as about the economic minimum. That is the impression I always get from them. The largest of the Indian companies—it is the company which Mr. Haji represents—is engaged at present exclusively in the Indian coastal trade, and it no doubt paid for the goods it carries at the usual freight rates, but I have not observed that it has been making exorbitant profits. Unless I am to infer that the management of that line is very much inferior to that of the British India, and that is not what I personally believe. The natural inference is that the British India and other shipping lines are not at the present time making large profits out of the coastal trade. Therefore although what Mr. Chetty said was perfectly true that, compared with the freights between India and Europe, the coastal freights look very high, still I think the weight of evidence is in favour of the conclusion that at present the Indian coastal trade is not a source of high profit to any of those engaged in it. If so, I think it pretty clear that merchants cannot look forward to any considerable reduction of freights as a result of reservation. And personally I adhere to the conclusion that it is much more likely to lead to an increase.

Mr. Chetty asked me especially to ascertain and inform the House what was Sir Charles Innes's authority for the statements he made about Chili. I have endeavoured to find out his source but have not till now been successful. Knowing Sir Charles Innes and the great care and thoroughness with which he went into such matters, and in view of the very definite and specific nature of his statement, I feel confident that he must have had before him definite information when he spoke. I am not entitled, it is true, to ask the House to take anything for granted in a matter of this kind, and

[Sir George Rainy.]

Mr. Chetty is quite entitled to ask the House to consider that particular instance which Sir Charles Innes gave in the light of the evidence he adduced. The evidence furnished by the reports referred to by Mr. Chetty that the reservation of the coastal trade did not result in an increase of freight in Chili, but rather the contrary. What actually happened according to the report—I think I am quoting the same passage as Mr. Chetty quoted—the tonnage acquired by the Chilian owners since the passing of this law resulted in a superabundance of vessels for the trade, and presumably when there is a superabundance of vessels, it is likely that freights will go up and will not go down. Now let us suppose that the same result happened in India as a result of reservation ; suppose that is to say that as anticipated by my Honourable friends on the other side, soon after reservation, so many ships were purchased by Indian owners that there was a reduction in freights owing to superabundance of tonnage. But could that state of affairs be permanent ? I am quite sure that if my Honourable friend Mr. Haji thought it was likely to be permanent, or perhaps I had better say if the company which he represents thought so,—for I know very well that my Honourable friend Mr. Haji has the development of an Indian mercantile marine very much at heart—but if the Scindia Steam Navigation Company thought that low freights would follow reservation, I am not sure whether that company would be particularly keen on the Bill. I am very doubtful about that.

I think, Sir, the only other speech to which I need refer is the speech of my Honourable friend Lala Lajpat Rai. I was a little surprised when he characterised the reference which I made, and which my Honourable friend Sir James Simpson made, to the Report presented to the Lucknow Conference as an unfair reference. I thought it had been made plain in the discussion last week that both Sir James Simpson and I had misunderstood the exact meaning of the particular passage we quoted from that Report. I think our misunderstanding was natural, and indeed inevitable, for reasons I gave at the time. Believing as we did erroneously no doubt that the passage we quoted would apply to such things as this Bill for the reservation of the coastal trade, we naturally appealed to the Leader of the Opposition for his support and vote. I do not think there was anything unfair in that. It might have been unfair if we had understood what his real meaning was and in that case, I am very doubtful whether personally I should have referred to the point at all. But my Honourable friend Lala Lajpat Rai went on to say this that we must take the Report as a whole, and that the two things went together, namely, the passage about the apprehensions of European businessmen, and the grant of Dominion status. It was not fair he said, to take one part and put aside the other part. I think that in this connection some rather pertinent questions may arise. I understood from what was said on the last occasion that, if the European business community were to nationalise themselves after the grant of Dominion status, then the undertaking against discriminatory legislation would be fully applicable. But I should like to know, and I imagine the European community will want to know, how they stand at present for, as I have pointed out before, the language used in the passage quoted is very strong and particularly the words " It is inconceivable ". However, I will not dwell on that further. No doubt the matter will come up again, and when it does some Members of the European Group may have questions to ask.

Now, Sir, before I sit down I will very briefly sum up the objections which Government urge against the acceptance by this House of the Bill before us. In the first place, we urge that the proposal is economically unsound and is not in the interests of India. We urge that it is likely to be ineffective owing to the existence of a number of non-British Indian ports on the coast of India. We urge that it is unjust to Burma. And finally—and this with me is the most vital argument—the Bill is open to objection in principle as involving both expropriation and racial discrimination, and we apprehend that the latter feature will have most unfortunate repercussions in South Africa and in other British Dominions. For these reasons, Sir, Government ask the House not to accept this Bill.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the Bill to reserve the Coastal Traffic of India to Indian vessels be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Sir George Rainy, Pandit Moti Lal Nehru, Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta, Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty, Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra, Maulvi Muhammad Shafee, U. Tok Kyi, Lala Lajpat Rai, Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla, Mr. K. C. Neogy, Mr. M. S. Aney, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury, Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan, Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum, Sir James Simpson, Rai Bahadur Tarit Bhusan Roy, and the Mover, with instructions to report before the 10th February 1929 ; and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting shall be six."

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : Sir I beg leave to withdraw my name.

Mr. President : Did the Honourable Member agree to serve on the Committee before his name was put down ?

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : Yes, Sir, but I have changed my mind.

Mr. H. G. Cocke : I suggest the name of Mr. Lamb to represent the important commercial interests of Burma on the Committee.

Mr. Muhammad Rafique : Sir, I should like to add the names of Khan Bahadur Haji Abdoolah Kasim and Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi.

Mr. President : The Honourable Members are not entitled to suggest any more names at this stage.

Mr. H. G. Cocke : Mr. Lamb had no opportunity of speaking on the question to-day and he is very anxious to serve on the Committee. Mr. Lamb has special reasons for serving on the Committee as he is interested in the question as oil tankers.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the name of Mr. Lamb be added to the Committee."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the names of Mr. Haji Abdoolah Kasim and Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi be added to the Committee."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the Bill to reserve the Coastal Traffic of India to Indian vessels be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Sir George Rainy, Pandit Moti Lal Nehru, Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta, Mr. R. K. Shanmukham Chetty, Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra, Maulvi Muhammad Shafe, U. Tok Kyi, Lala Lajpat Rai, Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla, Mr. K. C. Neogy, Mr. M. S. Lamb, Khan Bahadur Abdoolah Haji Kasim, Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi, and the Mover with instructions to report before the 10th February 1929 ; and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting shall be six."

I have allowed the Leader of the European Group and Mr. Rafique to move for the addition of further names to the list of the Select Committee at this late stage. This I think is irregular and the procedure will not be treated as laying down any precedent.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Friday, 21st September, 1928.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Contract relating to the Supply of Wood Fuel to the Rohilkhand and Kumaon Railway.

770. Mr. N. M. Joshi : With reference to the reply to question No. 103 at page 4405 of the Legislative Assembly Debates, Volume III, will Government kindly lay on the table an extract from the contract relating to the supply of wood fuel to the Rohilkhand and Kumaon Railway Company ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The relevant clause is clause 9 of the contract of 1882 at page 57 of the reprint of the Rohilkhand and Kumaon Railway contract, a copy of which is available in the Library.

Surplus Locomotives on the North Western Railway.

771. Mr. N. M. Joshi : Is it not a fact that at one of his interviews with the Railway Board in 1924 or 1925, the Agent of the North Western Railway stated that he had on hand a surplus of about 300 locomotive engines ; if so, what is the exact date of the interview and which of the Members of the Board were present at the interview ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I have not been able to find in the minutes of meetings with the Agent, North-Western Railway, in 1924-25 a record of any such statement.

Treatment of Staff on the different Railways.

772. Mr. N. M. Joshi : Is it not a fact that at a meeting held in March 1923 between the Railway Board and the Agents for different Railways, the Chief Commissioner warned the latter " that care must be taken to treat the staff fairly, giving them leave and such allowance as were permissible and to avoid any appearance of racial discrimination in retrenchment " ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Honourable Member appears to be referring to a confidential discussion which took place with Agents of Railways on the date mentioned. I shall be much obliged if he will let me know how he obtained the information on which his question is based.

Number of Petitions received relating to the Hindu Child Marriage Bill.

773. Mr. D. V. Belvi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether any, and if so, how many, petitions have been received from each province against the Child Marriage Bill of Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda ?

(b) What is the number of signatories to the petitions from each province ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether any, and if so, how many, resolutions passed at public meetings have been received (i) for and (ii) against the Bill ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state if any petitions have been received, and if so, how many, from each province supporting the Bill ?

(e) What is the total number of signatories in each province supporting the Bill ?

Mr. L. Graham : (a) In all 1,158 petitions have been received against the Bill. Government do not think that an analysis by provinces would be productive of results worth the labour involved, but if the Honourable Member still desires it, I will have the analysis made and send it to him.

(b) The total number of signatories of these petitions is 74,802.

(c) Resolutions for the Bill 187 and against the Bill 382.

(d) The total number of petitions supporting the Bill is 215. For the reasons stated under (a) this analysis has not been made.

(e) The total number of signatories of these petitions is 1,962.

Mr. D. V. Belvi : Will Government be pleased to state if they have instructed Provincial Governments to consult the religious heads of the several castes and sub-castes of Hindus and different sects of Muhammadans ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : When the Bill was circulated to Local Governments they were asked to ascertain the opinions of all those concerned in the manner which is customarily done in respect of Bills dealing with matters of this nature.

Mr. D. V. Belvi : Do Government consider that the question involved in this Bill is of a quasi-religious character ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : It is well-known that it has been represented in very many quarters that it does impinge on questions of a religious character.

Mr. D. V. Belvi : Do not Government think it necessary to consult the Gurus of the several castes and sub-castes of Hindus on this point ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : It is highly desirable that the opinion of every interest should be fully consulted and ascertained.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Are there any signatories to the applications or petitions from Sind for or against that Bill ?

Mr. L. Graham : Petitions are received every day. I think I had four yesterday. It is really very difficult to keep track of them, but I should say that certain petitions have been received from Sind, though I would not like to be pinned down to that statement.

PREVENTION OF THE IMPORTATION AND SALE OF ADULTERATED DRUGS, AND CONTROL OF THE SALE OF POISONS.

774. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Will Government please state the action taken by them on the Resolution relating to drugs passed by the Council of State on 9th March 1927 ?

(b) Did Government consult Provincial Governments on the points raised ?

(c) If the answer to (b) be in the affirmative, will they kindly state what action they propose taking now in the matter ?

(d) Do they, in this connection, propose to consider the desirability of early legislation, i.e., introduce a suitable Bill, to prevent the importation and sale of adulterated drugs and to control the sale of poisons ?

(e) Do Government propose themselves to take immediate steps against, as also to draw the attention of Provincial Governments to, the alleged sale of adulterated quinine in India on a large scale and to enquire what action they propose taking to check such sales ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) to (d). The Resolution referred to by the Honourable Member and the debate thereon were sent to the Local Governments and Administrations for an expression of opinion and for such action as they considered to be desirable and practicable. The replies received show considerable diversity of opinion on the question whether legislation for the standardisation of the preparation and for the sale of medicinal drugs is feasible or necessary. These replies are now under consideration. The question is complicated by the fact that legislation without the machinery for enforcement would be useless.

(e) Government have no evidence in their possession to show that adulterated quinine is sold on a large scale but they propose to ask Local Governments for a considered report on the allegations which have recently been made on this subject in the Press.

Mr. President : The Honourable Colonel should have given the Chair notice that he had joined the Central Muslim Party.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Might I explain, Sir, that I have not joined the Central Muslim Party but if the Government had supplied loud speakers as requested by me in this House I should not be here. I cannot hear the Honourable Member from my seat at the other end of the room and I came nearer to hear his replies.

Mr. President : Colonel Gidney.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member inform the House whether Government propose to encourage or to ask Provincial Governments, or themselves move in the matter, (1) to control the sale of poisons ; and (2) whether they are prepared to suggest to Provincial Governments, or themselves move in the matter of drug legislation and standardisation ; and (3) whether they intend to stop at the ports by means of the Sea Customs Act the importation into India of this fradulent quinine ? So far Honourable Member has evaded the question.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I will deal with the last part of the Honourable Member's statement first. Far from evading the question I have definitely stated that Government have no information in their possession to show that there are masses of adulterated quinine being sold in this country but that they propose to make inquiries from Local Governments. As regards the first, second and third suggestions made by the Honourable Member, they do not, as far as I understand, all refer specifically to the question of drug adulteration. They relate to the question of the standardisation of the preparation and to control of the sale of drugs. As I have already told the Honourable Member, we have consulted Local Governments on this point and there is great diversity of opinion as to what is necessary and what is desirable. All that I can say is that the Honourable Member's suggestion will be borne in mind when we are coming to a decision.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member address the Local Governments again and point out to them the necessity and the urgency of controlling this promiscuous sale of poisons throughout the land ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I regret to say, Sir, that as I do not, in the light of the information available to me and to the Government, share the view that there is promiscuous sale of poisons in the country, I am not in a position to give the assurance which the Honourable Member wants.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member kindly find out from responsible authorities, such as the medical authorities ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Well, Sir, if the Honourable Member thinks that the only responsible authority in the country is the Honourable and gallant Member himself, then I confess that I have not got the benefit of the most responsible opinion. But, on the other hand, if my Honourable friend would concede, shall we say, some measure of authority to such officers as the Director General of the Indian Medical Service and the Deputy Director General of the Indian Medical Service, then I submit that we have had competent and considered opinion, and that the information which I have given is based on that considered and competent opinion. As regards the other part of the Honourable Member's question, Sir, or rather suggestion, I have already stated that the Government propose to ask Local Governments for a considered report on the allegations which have recently been made on this subject in the Press.

ARTICLE IN India REGARDING THE STATUTORY COMMISSION.

775. Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : Has the attention of the Government of India been drawn to an article in the magazine, called India of July 1928, Volume E, No. 1, bearing the title " Some aspects of the Simon Commission " ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The answer is in the negative.

LOAN TO THE LATE NAWAB SIR SALIMULLAH OF DACCA.

776. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) With reference to the question No. 525 by Mr. K. C. Neogy in the Legislative Assembly on August 29, 1927, regarding a loan to the late Nawab Sir Salimullah of Dacca and the answer thereto, will the Government be pleased to state if they have made an enquiry into the rate of interest at which the loan was advanced to the Nawab of Dacca by the Government of India ?

(b) If so, what is the rate of interest ? Is it higher or lower than the rate of interest at which the Government borrow money ?

(c) If the rate of interest is lower, how do the Government propose to meet the loss of revenue to the Central Government which the said loan involves ?

(d) What were the terms and conditions under which the loan was advanced especially in regard to the period during which it was stipulated that the money should be repaid ?

(e) Is it a fact that the income of the Nawab's estate has increased since the loan was advanced ?

(f) Is it a fact that the enhanced income of the estate is being spent on increasing the allowance to the members of the Nawab's family ?

(g) Is it not a fact that the administration of the Nawab's estate has become a costly affair ?

(h) What steps do Government intend to take to reduce the cost of administration of the estate ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) 3 per cent. per annum which is lower than Government's borrowing rate.

(c) The loss remains at debit of Interest on Ordinary Debt.

(d) The scheme of repayment contemplated that the loan should be extinguished in 1952 but as a matter of fact, repayments have proceeded in advance of the programme and it is expected that the loan will be extinguished in 1945.

(e), (f), (g) and (h). From enquiries made Government have no reason to be dissatisfied with the progress made in reducing the cost of administration. For the rest Government do not consider it proper that the private affairs of a great family should be discussed on the floor of the House.

TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES IN THE UNITED PROVINCES POSTAL CIRCLE.

777. Mr. Siddheswar Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that the permanent Town Inspectors of Post Offices attached to the first class head Post Offices in the United Provinces Postal Circle have been transferred from their substantive appointments of Town Inspector to that of a clerk ?

(b) If so, have Government received appeals from the officials so reverted and considered those appeals and with what result ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Sir, with your permission I shall deal together with the Honourable Member's three questions Nos. 777, 778 and 779. As these are all connected with a subject which has been dealt with in a reply given on the 20th instant to unstarred questions by Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim and others, which Honourable Members of the House have not yet had an opportunity of perusing, I ask your permission to read the explanatory portion of that reply ; it runs as follows :

I observe that these are the first of a long series of questions by Members of the House, arising out of the operation of orders issued by the Government of India in August and September 1927 and of an interpretation of these, issued with the approval of the Government of India, by the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, in February 1928. These orders related to the revision of the pay and duties of Town Inspectors attached to first class Head Post Offices. They have resulted, in some cases, in the displacement of some of the officials who, on the date from which the orders originally took effect, namely, the 1st September 1927, were the actual incumbents of the posts named. In other cases the existing incumbents have been retained in their appointments. The orders to which I have referred necessarily left to the heads of administrative Postal Circles the final decision as to the application in individual cases of general principles which had been laid down. The decisions reached have given rise to a number of representations addressed to the Director-General and to the Government of India from different Service Associations and individuals interested. These representations have received the most careful consideration of the Director General whose recommendations are now before me and will receive my close attention together with the various points raised by Honourable Members in these questions.

TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES IN THE UNITED PROVINCES AND BENGAL POSTAL CIRCLES.

†778. Mr. Siddheswar Sinha : (a) Are Government aware that the Postmasters-General of the United Provinces and the Bengal Postal Circles have changed their orders in respect of the appointments of postal Town Inspectors attached to the first class Head Post Offices in those Circles confirming some and again degrading those officials from the Town Inspectors' appointments ?

(b) If so, are Government aware that the aforesaid orders were issued by the aforesaid Postmasters-General without obtaining any report as to their work from the immediate superior officers of the aforesaid postal officials and that no reason was assigned for the respective order of reversion from the line of postal Inspector to the line of clerk ?

(c) Do the Government propose to issue any clear orders protecting the interests of the existing incumbents who were holding such appointments on the date of effect of the revision in accordance with the general conditions of service ?

(d) If so, when ? If not, why not ?

TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES IN THE BENGAL, BOMBAY AND UNITED PROVINCES POSTAL CIRCLES.

†779. Mr. Siddheswar Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that the officials who were removed from their substantive appointments of postal Town Inspectorship were not charge-sheeted as required under the rules of the department in respect of the Government officials and their defences duly obtained in respect of the postal Town Inspectors in the Bengal, Bombay and the United Provinces Circles ?

(b) If so, why ? What action, if any, has been taken by the Government ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 777.

DEPARTMENTAL EXAMINATION FOR PROMOTION TO THE LOWEST SELECTION GRADE POST IN THE POST OFFICE.

780. Mr. Siddheswar Sinha : (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the latest G. O. of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, relating to the departmental examination for promotion to the lowest selection grade post in the Post Office ?

(b) If so, was any report obtained as to the knowledge of the postal officials who attained the age of 40 regarding their knowledge of the Post Office Manual, Volumes 1 and 2, and the Fundamental and the Supplementary Rules (Accountant General's Compilation) before the issue of the aforesaid G. O. exempting them from appearing in the papers relating to those books ?

(c) Is it a fact that the knowledge of the officials of 40 years of age will not be tested in respect of the rules laid down in the aforesaid books ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) Yes, but only in the first examination held under the new rules.

INTRODUCTION OF THE EXAMINATION FOR THE LOWEST SELECTION GRADE POSTS IN THE POST OFFICE.

781. Mr. Siddheswar Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that the examination for the lowest selection grade posts is introduced for the first time in the Post Office ?

(b) Do the Government propose to abolish the examination for the lowest selection grade posts in the Post Office ?

(c) If so, when may orders be expected on the subject ?

(d) Is it a fact that the adoption of the same system of examination for all the candidates for examination for promotion to the lowest selection grade is under the consideration of the Government of India ?

(e) If so, when will the orders issue ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) If the Honourable Member refers to the Post and Telegraph Department as a whole, the reply is in the affirmative.

(e) Orders have already issued prescribing such an examination in the Engineering Branch, while as regards the Traffic Branch the matter is still under consideration.

RECOGNITION BY THE AGENT OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY UNION.

782. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Are the Government aware that the East Indian Railway Union was registered under the Trade Unions Act in March 1928, but that it has not been recognised by the Agent of the Railway up till now ? If so, do Government propose to instruct the Agent to recognise the Union officially and give it all facilities for representation of the grievances of the workers ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : If the Honourable Member will let me know to which particular union on the East Indian Railway he is referring I will see if I can obtain the information for him.

ISSUE OF PASSES TO THE OFFICERS AND WORKERS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY UNION.

783. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : In view of the announcement of Earl Winterton that the Government of India welcome the formation of Trade Unions on constitutional lines, do Government propose to instruct the Agent of the East Indian Railway to issue passes to the officers and workers of the Union for organising the Union thoroughly according to the Trade Unions Act ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government consider that officers and workers of trade unions should be allowed to utilise passes, to which they are entitled as railway employees, for the purpose of attending to the business of their unions, and have so instructed the Agents of State-managed Railways. They do not consider that railway authorities should give indirect financial assistance to the unions by the grant of extra passes to railway employees or by the grant of passes to persons who are not in railway service.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I ask whether the Government will issue similar instructions to the Company-managed Railways also in the matter?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Will the Honourable Member repeat his question ?

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I ask whether Government will be prepared to issue similar instructions to the Company-managed Railways ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : It is not a matter on which we can issue instructions to Company-managed Railways, Sir, but they are already aware of the views of Government.

ENGAGEMENT OF A CONTRACTOR TO PAY THE SALARIES TO THE STAFF EMPLOYED ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

784. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : (a) Is it a fact that the East Indian Railway authorities are contemplating to abolish the Pay Department of the East Indian Railway and to engage a contractor for payment of salaries to the staff all over the line ? If so, will Government please state reasons for the proposed arrangement ?

(b) Is it a fact that on the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway the contract system was abolished and the work was undertaken by the department for efficiency and with a view to remove the irregularities in payment by contractors, and that there was a saving of Rs. 16,000 last year ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state why the East Indian Railway authorities want to re-introduce the contract system ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state how the staff of the Pay Department will be provided for if the Pay Department is abolished ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The question is at present under consideration and it is proposed to call for tenders. If the contract system is found on the whole cheaper, it will be adopted.

(b) After the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway was amalgamated with the East Indian Railway the system of departmental working that obtained on the latter was introduced on the former. It is understood that this resulted in a saving of cost.

(c) The question will be carefully considered if it is decided to abolish the Pay Department. A good portion of the staff would no doubt continue to be employed on their present duties under any person or firm to whom the contract might be given.

Mr. President : Order, order. The rule of the House is that the Honourable Member must rise from his seat and put the question.

EJECTMENT FROM THEIR QUARTERS OF THE WORKERS OF THE ONDAL WORKSHOP, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

785. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : (a) Are Government aware that the Agent served the workers of Ondal Workshop who struck work in sympathy with the workmen of Lillooah with a notice to vacate their quarters within twenty-four hours ? Are Government aware that owners of dwelling houses are required to serve their tenants at least with a month's notice to vacate their houses, and no tenant can be ejected by force by the executive officers without the sanction of the civil court ? Will Government please state what action they propose to take against the Agent for issuing such illegal notices ?

(b) Are Government aware that twenty-four hours after the Ondal workers had been served with a notice to vacate the quarters, the District Magistrate of Burdwan came to Ondal in a special train with the police officers of Asansol and about one hundred armed police, and forcibly broke the padlocks attached to the doors of the quarters in the absence of most of the occupants and threw away all their properties on the street during heavy rains with the result that all their properties were drenched and spoiled ? Are Government aware that in some cases the workmen were forcibly turned out of their quarters with their wives and children during heavy rains at night ? If the Government have no information, will they be pleased to enquire into these matters and take necessary action against the Magistrate for his illegal actions ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state under whose instructions the Magistrate came to Ondal to compel the workers to vacate their quarters with the aid of the armed police ?

(d) Will Government please state who paid the expenses in connection with the running of the special train for taking the Magistrate and the police from Asansol to Ondal and back ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Three days' notice, and not 24 hours as stated in the Honourable Member's question, was given to the strikers to resume duty and of the fact that, if they did not do so, they will be made to vacate their quarters. The action of the Agent is in accordance with section 138 of the Indian Railways Act, and it was not illegal.

(b), (c) and (d). Government have not received any information which suggests that there is any truth in the allegations made by the Honourable Member.

Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Will Government be pleased to enquire whether the statements made in parts (b), (c) and (d) of the question are correct ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : If the Honourable Member will put me in possession of information justifying the allegations, which no doubt he himself possessed before putting the question, I shall be prepared to make enquiries.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I ask, Sir, whether the Government of India have consulted their legal adviser as to the legality of the Railway Act being applied to the workers in workshops as regards the vacation of their quarters ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : So far as I am aware, Sir, the Agent of the East Indian Railway made no enquiries, but the terms of that section of the Act are perfectly clear.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : What is the justification for applying the Railway Act to the workers in the railway workshops ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : It is, Sir, the law of the land ; and it is particularly for this type of case that that particular provision in the Act was enacted.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I ask whether Government cannot state what the justification for that law is ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Certainly not, Sir, in the course of question and answer on the floor of this House.

ALLEGED HARASSMENT BY THE DISTRICT MAGISTRATE OF BURDWAN AND THE POLICE OF THE STRIKERS AT ASANSOL, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

786. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : (a) Are the Government aware that when the workers of Asansol struck work and commenced peaceful picketing, the District Magistrate of Burdwan accompanied by the officials of the Railway stopped the picketing by force ? If not, will the Government be pleased to enquire and give an answer to this query ?

(b) Is it a fact that a worker was assaulted by a railway official during the picketing in the presence of the Magistrate, and that although the matter was brought to his notice he took no action ? If Government are not aware of this, will they find out and give an answer ?

(c) Are the Government aware that at dead of night the railway officials at Asansol accompanied by the District Magistrate of Burdwan and the police used to visit the bustee every night during the early stage of the strike and tried to force the strikers to return to work against their consent ?

(d) Will Government please state what action they propose to take against the Magistrate for his attempt to break the strike at Asansol with the aid of the railway officials by force ?

(e) Is it a fact that a telegram was sent by the General Secretary of the East Indian Railway Union to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal protesting against the highhandedness of the Magistrate and the police ? If so, will Government be pleased to state what action was taken by the Government of Bengal to stop the harassment of the strikers by the police and the magistrate ?

(f) Is it a fact that in spite of the assurance of the Agent that there would be no victimisation after the settlement of the strike a large number of workers at Lillooah, Howrah, Asansol and Ondal have not been allowed to resume duties by the subordinate officers ? If so, do Government propose to instruct the Agent to see that all workers are allowed to return to work at every station without further delay ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) to (e). Government have no information, but enquiries will be made.

(f) No. The Agent has agreed to re-engage men dismissed at Asansol and Ondal as vacancies occur, and nearly 400 out of about 650 have already been so re-engaged.

DISMISSAL OF 54 WORKMEN EMPLOYED IN THE WORKSHOPS AT LILLOOAH, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

787. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Is it a fact that 54 workmen at Lillooah have been dismissed from service on the report of a Foreman that they took a leading part in a disturbance in the workshop ? Is it a fact that one of these men was subsequently found to be absent from duty on the day of the occurrence but that an attempt was made to mark him present on that day ? Are Government aware that these men were disliked by the workshop officials because they gave evidence in a bribery case against some officers ? Do Government propose to instruct the Agent to cancel the dismissal of these men so that there may not be any cause for unrest in the workshops ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : 54 workmen, who were mainly responsible for the disturbance in the workshops which led to the closing of the shops on the 31st July 1928, were dismissed after the Deputy Chief Mechanical Engineer had personally satisfied himself that they were so responsible, and not on the report of a Foreman. Government have received no report that any of these men were found absent from duty, and the reason for their dismissal is that which I have given, and not that suggested in the Honourable Member's question.

LOSS SUSTAINED BY THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY ON ACCOUNT OF THE LOCK-OUT AT LILLOOAH, ETC.

788. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Will Government please state the amount of loss sustained by the railway authorities on account of the lock-out at Lillooah, and strikes at Howrah, Ondal and Asansol for (1) suspension of work and (2) payment of wages to temporary hands engaged during the strike ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply which I have already given to Mr. Joshi's question No. 270 on the 4th September 1928. I have no reason to believe that any appreciable loss was sustained.

PAY OF "A" CLASS TICKET COLLECTORS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

789. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Is it a fact that under Resolutions 412-13 of the official meeting of the East Indian Railway in 1926-27, the scale of pay of "A" class Ticket Collectors was raised from Rs. 90 to Rs. 120 ? If so, will Government please state if the pay of these Ticket Collectors in all the divisions of the Railway has been raised accordingly ?

If not, do Government propose to instruct the Agent to take necessary action at an early date ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : We have no information, but I will make enquiries and let the Honourable Member know what the position is.

REDUCTION OF A TICKET COLLECTOR EMPLOYED AT PATNA JUNCTION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

790. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the editorial note published in the Mazdoor dated the 29th February 1928, regarding the punishment inflicted on a ticket collector at Patna Junction who detected that a responsible railway employee was travelling without tickets ? If so, will Government please state what action has been taken to realise the tax-payer's money due from the said railway employee ?

(b) Is it a fact that under the existing rules of the East Indian Railway the ticket collectors are not authorised to hand over railway employees to the police for travelling without tickets, but they are required to report the matter to the higher auhorities for departmental action ? Are Government aware that in this case the ticket collector of Patna Junction duly reported the matter to the Divisional Superintendent, but it was dealt with by the Staff Superintendent who had no concern with this commercial case and, with a view to condone the said railway employee who worked directly under the Staff Superintendent, the ticket collector was reduced in pay ?

(c) Are the Government aware that the East Indian Railway Union represented the matter to the Divisional Superintendent as well as to the Agent through their own official organ Mazdoor as well as by letters fully explaining the impropriety of the punishment inflicted on a dutiful worker but no reply was given to the Union ? If the answer be in the affirmative, do Government propose to instruct the Agent to cancel the punishment wrongly inflicted on a man who did his duty as a loyal servant of the Railway ? If the Government are not aware of this, do they propose to enquire and accord justice to the ticket collector ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Government have not seen the note mentioned.

(b) and (c). Government have no knowledge of the facts and have no reason to believe that the Agent, to whom it appears the matter was referred, has not been able to deal with the matter adequately.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST MR. ABSELL, A JUNIOR OFFICER IN THE DINAPUR DIVISION OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

791. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : (a) Is it a fact that one Mr. Absell, a temporary junior officer in the Dinapur Division, punishes the staff with heavy fines for trifling mistakes ? If so, will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the amount of fines inflicted on the workers by this temporary officer during the year 1927-28 ? If the Government have no information, do they propose to find it out and give the information required ?

(b) Is it a fact that this junior officer has made very bad remarks on the personal files of the workers for trifling mistakes ? Is it also a fact that the treatment by this temporary officer of the office staff is ungentlemanly ?

(c) Is it a fact that in connection with the derailment at Pandarak Station this officer was sent by the Transportation Superintendent of Dinapur to make necessary arrangements, but he did not proceed to the place of accident ? Was the Punjab Mail detained at the station for about 12 hours ? Was it due to the fact that the officer did not proceed to the place of accident as directed by the Transportation Superintendent at Dinapur ? If so, will Government please state what action they propose to take against this officer for such neglect of duty which caused considerable inconvenience to the passengers of the Punjab Mail ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government have no information, and regret that they are not prepared to make enquiries in the matter with which the Agent is competent to deal. They will, however, send a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent for his information.

PROMOTION OF INDIAN WORKERS WHO HAVE PASSED EXAMINATIONS FROM THE TRAINING SCHOOL AT CHANDAUSI.

792. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Will Government please state if all the Indian workers who passed examinations from the Chandausi Training School have been appointed to suitable posts in the higher grade ? If not, do Government propose to take steps for the appointment of these qualified men to higher posts at an early date ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : There is, I think, a misapprehension as to the purposes of the Chandausi Training School. The completion of a course at this school and the passing of an examination at the close of the course gives no employee any claim to promotion to a higher post though he may be required to go through the course before becoming eligible for promotion. I am glad of the opportunity which the Honourable Member's question has afforded me of removing this misapprehension if it exists.

NUMBER OF INDIAN TRANSPORTATION INSPECTORS, COMMERCIAL INSPECTORS, ETC., ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

793. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Will Government please state the number of Indian Transportation Inspectors, Commercial Inspectors, Goods Inspectors, Audit Inspectors, P.-W. Inspectors, and Running Shed Foremen on the East Indian Railway ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government regret that for reasons which have previously been explained, they are not prepared to give the figures of communal representation in individual offices or branches of railway service.

Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : May I ask whether the figures are not given in every other Department ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : That is hardly a question that I can answer. But the reason why in the Railway Department we do not consider it desirable to give figures other than those we publish in our annual report have been made clear to the House. The position is that in our Depart ment we do give a large number of figures of communal representatio in the Administration Report.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : How does the Honourable Membe treat this as a question asking for communal representation in the variou services ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I understood that the Honourable Membe wished to know the number of Transportation Inspectors who wer Indians rather than Europeans and Anglo-Indians. If I am incorrect, shall be glad to supply the Honourable Member with the information h does want.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is it because there is a certain amount o communal monopoly in all these services ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir, I have already given the reason.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is it a fact that Anglo-Indians have mos of the posts ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Without calling for figures, which I have no done, I cannot say definitely whether this is a fact.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know why Government decline t give the figures ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I have explained that very often to the House and I do not think it necessary to make an explanation again. It i not desirable in the interests of the work of these branches.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I remind the Honourable Membe that every other Department answers questions of a similar nature ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : There are few if any other departments whic deal with so large a number of employees, and we have to be carefu that we do not create communal feeling among our employees by givin information of this kind in public. We have done our best to meet th wishes of the House by giving statistics in the form we do in the Adminis tration Report, and this we did after taking the advice of the Centra Advisory Council as to the details it was desirable to give.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are not Indian tax-payers entitled to kno how many of their countrymen are employed on the Railways ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir, not if it is not in the interests of th tax-payers.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Does the Honourable Member declin to give information, because there is much more racial discrimination i Railways than in other Departments ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir.

PROMOTION TO THE HIGHER GRADES OF INDIAN STATION MASTERS.

794. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Will Government be pleased t state if any Indian station master has been promoted to the higher grade i connection with the arrangements made for the appointment of the statio master of Patna Junction due to the untimely death of the permanen station master at the station ? If not, will Government please state reasons ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government have no information. The promotions of station masters rest with the local railway authorities and Government are not prepared to interfere in the matter.

STATION MASTER OF PATNA JUNCTION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

795. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Is it a fact that the man who has been selected for the post of station master at Patna Junction was removed from the station a few months ago for unsatisfactory working and was transferred to Mokameh where the merchants protested against his appointment ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government have no information. This is a matter which the Agent is fully competent to deal with.

CASE OF MR. NONITOSH MUKHERJI, LATE A RELIEVING STATION MASTER OF THE HOWRAH DIVISION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

796. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Is it a fact that the pay of one Mr. Nonitosh Mukherji, a relieving station master of the Howrah Division, was reduced from Rs. 55 to Rs. 51 on the report of a Transportation Inspector for alleged insubordinate behaviour without any enquiry ? Is it a fact that on appeal against such wrongful reduction of pay the Divisional Superintendent of Howrah held that Mukherji had been very leniently dealt with and that the orders passed should stand ? Is it a fact that shortly after the man was transferred to another station for the same alleged offence, but when he appealed against this double punishment and prayed for an enquiry, he was called by the Divisional Superintendent of Howrah and discharged from service ? Is it a fact that the East Indian Railway Union represented this case to the Agent but the latter did not give any reply ? If so, will Government please state why no enquiry was held about the alleged insubordinate behaviour of the man to another subordinate employee, and why no opportunity was given to him to submit his explanation ? In view of the severity of the punishment inflicted on the man, do Government propose to make an enquiry and reinstate the man ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government have no information, and are not prepared to interfere in a matter with which the Agent is competent to deal as the final authority, and to which his attention has apparently already been drawn.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know why this dense ignorance on the part of the Government of matters which relate to public interests ?

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mr. Ram Narayan Singh : Before I put my question, Sir, I wish to bring to your notice that some important portions of this question have been omitted without any intimation to me. I do not know, Sir, whether these portions have been disallowed by the President or omitted by some friend of Mr. Courtney Terrell in the office.

Mr. President (after calling upon Secretary) : Some parts have been disallowed, but intimation was not given to the Honourable Member. Do you wish to put your question ?

Mr. Ram Narayan Singh : I put my question, Sir, but I trust that the office will be taken to task for this. No. 797.

REMARKS MADE BY MR. JUSTICE COURTNEY TERRELL, CHIEF JUSTICE OF THE PATNA HIGH COURT, AGAINST BABU JAGAT NARAYAN LALL, M.A., LL.B., M.L.C.

797. Mr. Ram Narayan Singh : (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the following remarks made by Mr. Courtney Terrell, Chief Justice of the Patna High Court, against Babu Jagat Narayan Lall, M.A., LL.B., M.L.C., in his judgment in the case against the said Bihar leader under section 124-A I. P. C. and reproduced by the Searchlight of Patna on Friday, the 27th July 1928 :

(i) " The subject of the charge is a silly little article in an insignificant little paper written by a silly noisy little man
* * * * "

(ii) " It is, in short, a biological product and is not the result of political conditions. "

(iii) " .....and I have no doubt myself from the tone of the article that that was the intention of this foolish writer. "

(b) Are Government aware of the facts that strong and voluminous waves of public resentment and indignation at the above remarks of Mr. Courtney Terrell have been passing throughout the length and breadth of this country ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I have nothing to add to the replies which I gave to Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh's question on the 8th instant and the supplementary questions.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : May I know how long this silly little Judge has been on the Bench ?

Mr. President : Order, order. The Honourable Member is not entitled to use such language in this Chamber.

Mr. Ram Narayan Singh : May I know if the Government are prepared to provide us with any remedy against the tyranny of High Court Judges.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The Government of India cannot, as I have already explained, interfere with or condemn a Judge of the High Court in the discharge of his official duties.

Mr. Ram Narayan Singh : May I take it, Sir, that the people have got absolutely no remedy whatsoever against the tyranny of High Court Judges ?

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will the Honourable Member kindly inform me whether Mr. Justice Terrell had anything to do with the legal profession before he was appointed Chief Justice ?

Mr. B. Das : May I enquire if the Honourable Member is in agreement with these dialectical writings of Chief Justice Mr. Terrell and if he holds them as beautiful, charming and classical samples of English language and as models for other High Court Judges ?

ABOLITION OF SUPERIOR POSTS CONSEQUENT ON RETRENCHMENTS IN THE WORKSHOPS ON THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY, THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY, ETC.

801. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : Will the Government be pleased to state whether and, if so, how many, higher posts have been abolished consequent on the retretchment of the men in the workshops on the Bengal Nagpur Railway, East Indian Railway, Great Indian Peninsular Railway and South Indian Railway ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No superior posts have been abolished.

GRANT OF TECHNICAL PAY TO INDIAN OFFICERS OF THE MADRAS AND SOUTHERN MAHRATTA RAILWAY.

802. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) Is it a fact that the Home Board of the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway directed the grant of the technical pay of Rs. 75 to all Indian officers irrespective of European training ?

(b) Is it a fact that this technical pay has not been given to the Indian officers for the last three years ?

(c) If the answer to the above is in the affirmative, do Government propose to direct the Agent to award the same with retrospective effect ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am making enquiries from the Agent of the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway and will let the Honourable Member know the result.

ACCIDENT AT CHETPET ON THE SOUTH INDIAN RAILWAY.

803. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : Was the Chetpet accident which took place on the South Indian Railway in 1927 found to be the result of the wrong locking of points ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state if any compensation has been paid to the injured persons in that accident ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative ; to the second that so far as Government is aware, no compensation has been paid ; in fact, the Senior Government Inspector of Railways reported that only one passenger was slightly injured, and he absconded because he was travelling without a ticket.

ASSOCIATION OF THE PUBLIC WITH ENQUIRIES INTO RAILWAY DISASTERS.

804. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) In view of the frequency of railway disasters in this country, will the Government be pleased to state if they propose to revise the rules as to enquiries into such disasters so as to provide for the association of the public in such enquiries ?

†For these questions, see at the end of the list of starred questions for the day.

(b) Are Government aware that the departmental enquiries are very unsatisfactory and do not satisfy the public, and that an open magisterial enquiry or an enquiry by a Committee in which the public will be represented with power to make recommendations for the prevention of such accidents in future, is what is urgently required in cases of serious disasters ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the reply given by the Honourable the Railway Member to Mr. Ghuznavi's question No. 488 on the 11th of September.

REJECTION BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA OF CERTAIN PROPOSALS MADE BY THE AUDITOR GENERAL.

805. Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla : (i) Is it a fact that

(a) some of the proposals of the Auditor General have recently been rejected by the Government of India :

(b) that the Auditor General holds such rejection is bound to hamper the efficiency of audit : and

(c) that he has raised the issue in his letter to the Finance Department asking them to forward to the Secretary of State the Appropriation Accounts for the year 1926-27 with the reports of the Audit Officers thereon ?

(ii) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the representation, if any, made by the Auditor General to the Secretary of State for India in this connection ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (i) The reply is in the affirmative.

(ii) The letter is a very voluminous document which it would not be convenient to lay on the table of the House. Moreover, it would hardly be appropriate to do so, as the particular matter included in the letter, to which reference has been made by the Honourable Member, is under discussion between the Government of India and the Secretary of State. The letter has been seen by members of the Public Accounts Committee and if the Honourable Member also wishes to see it I will ask the Financial Secretary to show it to him.

MEMBERSHIP OF THE BENGAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY, THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY AND THE CALCUTTA PORT TRUST.

806. Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla : (a) Is it a fact that the East Indian Railway, the Eastern Bengal Railway and the Calcutta Port Trust are members of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce ?

(b) If the answer be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state if they see nothing wrong or improper in State Departments or concerns being members of a Chamber of private commercial interests ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) So far as the East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railways are concerned, the Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to

Mr. Neogy's question No. 508 in this House on the 12th September 1928. I would point out that the Calcutta Port Commissioners are not a State Department or concern but the question of their being a member of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce is under examination.

TAMPERING WITH THE TRAIN OF THE GOVERNOR OF MADRAS DURING HIS EXCELLENCY'S TOUR IN THE BELLARY DISTRICT.

807. Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla : (a) Has the attention of the Government of India in the Publicity Department been drawn to the prominence given under the headline "Lord and Lady Goschen's train fired" in the London Daily Mail on or about July 24th, 1928, to the following statement cabled by its Madras Correspondent :

> "A train conveying the Governor of Madras, Lord Goschen, Lady Goschen, and Government House Officials, while touring the Bellary District, last week, caught fire owing to the automatic greasing of the wheels failing. Officers consider that the system had been tampered with" ?

(b) Was a similar statement made in the Indian Press at the time and were the facts as alleged in the cable to the Daily Mail ?

(c) If the statement was unfounded, did the Director of Public Information take steps to have its contradiction published in the English papers and, if so, what ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) The report had not previously come to the notice of Government.

(b) Government have seen no similar statement in the Indian Press.

(c) No.

CESS PAID TO THE HAZARIBAGH DISTRICT BOARD BY RAILWAY COLLIERIES SITUATED IN THAT DISTRICT.

808. Mr. Ram Narayan Singh : Will the Government be pleased to state the following :

(a) The number and the names of all the Government railway collieries (coal mines) lying in the whole of the Hazaribagh District (Central India coal fields) :

(b) The amount of coal raised every year separately from each coal mine and for the past 10 years :

(c) The total amount of cess paid each year to the Hazaribagh District Board by these collieries for the past 10 years : and (d) Reasons, if any, for any variation in the amount of cess thus paid ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). The Honourable Member will find the information he requires in Volume II of the Reports by the Railway Board on Indian Railways.

(c) and (d). The Railway Board have no information but are seeing if they can obtain it for the Honourable Member.

METHOD OF CALCULATING THE NET PROFITS ON COAL RAISED IN GOVERNMENT COLLIERIES.

809. Mr. Ram Narayan Singh : Is it not a fact that the whole amount of coal raised from these Government collieries is consumed by the Government Railways ? If so, what is the method, or procedure of calculating the net profit in this coal raising business and by whom is this calculation done ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. The accounts are kept by the Auditor of Railway Colleries. I am affraid it is impossible for me to explain in detail on the floor of this House, the present method of calculating the profit, but I will explain it to the Honourable Member, if he will call at my office.

HALT OF THE BOMBAY MAIL AT KODARMA ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

810. Mr. Ram Narayan Singh : Are the Government aware of the fact that railway passengers from and to the Kodarma Station (East Indian Railway) have been greatly inconvenienced owing to a recent order preventing the Bombay mail from stopping at Kodarma and, if so, do they proposed to direct the authority concerned immediately to arrange the railway time-table so as to allow the said mail train to stop at Kodarma too ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given to his starred question No. 555 on the 29th of August 1927. As was then promised, the matter was referred to the Agent of the Railway, and it was decided that it was not desirable to stop the Bombay Mail at this particular station. From a perusal of the time-table it appears that the town is well served for journeys to and from Calcutta by the Dehra Dun and Agra Expresses.

CONSTRUCTION OF RAILWAY LINES FROM BARKAKHANA TO RANCHI, BARKAKHANA TO DALTONGANJ AND HAZARIBAGH ROAD STATION TO HAZARIBAGH TOWN.

811. Mr. Ram Narayan Singh : Will the Government be pleased to state the progress made with regard to their proposals to construct the following railway lines :

(a) Barkakhana to Ranchi ;

(b) Barkakhana to Daltonganj ;

(c) Hazaribagh Road station, to Hazaribagh Town ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The project from Barkakhana to Ranchi has been abandoned as unremunerative.

(b) 9|10ths of the line from Barkakhana to Daltonganj has now been completed and the probable date of opening is the 31st of December next.

(c) A traffic survey of the Hazaribagh Road station to Hazaribagh town has recently been sanctioned.

REVISION OF THE PAY OF TOWN INSPECTORS OF FIRST CLASS HEAD POST OFFICES IN INDIA.

812. Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur : Will the Government be pleased to say whether the Government Orders 11 P. T. E., dated the 5th August 1927, relate to,— or (b) the extra sanction of the 85 selection grade posts in the general line for clerks, or (c) the additional sanction of 85 posts in the line of sub-divisional inspectors and the Superintendents' head clerks ?

(a) the revision of the pay of the 85 Town Inspectors attached to the first class Head Post Offices in India,

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The Honourable Member is referred to the answer given by me just now to questions Nos. 777 to 779 asked by Mr. Siddheswar Sinha.

UTILISATION BY GOVERNMENT OF THE SERVICES OF MR. RICE, FORMERLY OF THE Pioneer.

813. Mr. B. Das : (a) Do Government utilise the services of Mr. Rice, formerly of the Pioneer and now the Editor of the Fauji Akhbar, in any capacity and, if so, what ?

(b) If the answer to (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the salary he draws for the services rendered by him ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) The gentleman referred to is not the Editor of the Fauji Akhbar, as stated by the Honourable Member, and there has never been any intention of appointing him to the post, which is always held by a military officer. Nor are his services utilised by Government in any other capacity.

(b) Does not arise.

PUBLICATION OF THE REPORT OF THE ROADS DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE.

814. Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state when they intend to publish the Report of the Roads Development Committee ?

(b) What are the reasons that have caused delay in the publication of this Report ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The Report has not yet been received by the Government of India.

(1) RECRUITMENT BY THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION FOR THE SERVICES OF PORT TRUSTS.

(2) INDIANISATION OF THE SERVICES OF PORT TRUSTS.

815. Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they intend to bring in the recruitment of superior and inferior staff of the different Port Trusts in India by a system of examination under the Public Service Commission ?

(b) Is it not a fact that European officers in the Port Trusts are allowed Lee concessions ?

(c) If the answer to (b) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state if these Port Trusts have agreed to accept the principle of Indianisation in the higher services ?

(d) If the reply to (c) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the percentage of Indianisation in the higher services that these Port Trusts have agreed to ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) No. Under the various Port Acts the Boards of Trustees have statutory powers to appoint their own staff.

(b) The recommendations of the Royal Commission on the Superior Civil Services in India did not extend to Port Trust Services, but Port Trusts have granted free passage concessions to their European servants, and the Rangoon Port Commissioners have granted overseas pay also.

(c) They have stated that they are in sympathy with the policy of Indianising the higher grades of their services.

(d) No percentage has been agreed to.

RECRUITMENT THROUGH THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION OF THE CLERICAL STAFF OF THE RAILWAY BOARD.

816. Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is not a fact that the recruitment to the Secretariat staff of the Railway Board is at present done by the Secretary of the Railway Board ?

(b) Is it not a fact that recruitment to subordinate and superior staff of all other Departments of the Secretariat is at present done by the Public Service Commission ?

(c) Is it not also a fact that all the subordinate staff of the Army Secretariat is at present recruited through the Public Service Commission ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state what are the reasons that have delayed so far the transfer of recruitment of the Secretariat staff of the Railway Board to the Public Service Commission ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) Recruitment to the subordinate staff of Secretariat Departments other than the Railway Department is with certain exceptions made through the Public Service Commission but not recruitment to the superior staff.

(c) Recruitment for all the subordinate staff employed in normal secretariat grades is made through the Public Service Commission.

(d) Owing to the specialised and technical nature of the clerical work in their office, the Railway Board have been authorised to recruit their clerks from railways and other suitable sources.

PERMANENT RETENTION IN CIVIL EMPLOY OF I. M. S. OFFICERS TRANSFERRED TEMPORARILY FROM THE MILITARY TO THE CIVIL SIDE, ETC.

817. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (i) (a) With reference to paragraph 8 of the Secretary of State for India's communiqué, dated Simla, the 10th May 1928, regarding the future of the I. M. S., will Government be pleased to state whether reservation of " existing rights " of the surplus of I. M. S. officers resulting from the operation of this scheme refers only to I. M. S. officers in permanent civil employment and excludes those temporarily employed in such civil capacity ?

(b) What is meant by and included in the words " existing rights " ?

(c) If the answer to the latter part of (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state whether these surplus officers will be reverted to military duty or not ?

(ii) How many years after the introduction of this scheme will the position be reviewed by Government with a view to increasing or decreasing these safeguards ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (i) With your permission, Sir, I shall answer part (b) of the question first. The words " existing rights " are used in the ordinary sense, that is to say, rights which the officers concerned enjoyed at the time of announcement of the reorganisation scheme. In particular the preservation of existing rights includes the retention of prospects equivalent to these afforded by the rules made by the Secretary of State in 1923.

(a) and (c) I. M. S. officers transferred temporarily from the military to the civil side have no right to permanent retention in civil employ. If they are not required to fill the posts reserved for officers of the I. M. S., the Government of India cannot compel Local Governments to find employment for them. They will be reverted to military duty unless they can be employed on the civil side elsewhere.

(ii) There is no intention to review the position periodically.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member kindly inform the House with reference to his reply to part (i) of the question whether in the case of a permanent Civil Surgeon officiating, say, as First Surgeon or Second Surgeon of a hospital when this reorganisation scheme of the Secretary of State was introduced, the permanent incumbent being on leave, it would be considered that he (the officiating Surgeon) had an existing right which should be protected ? In other words, whether the fact that he is officiating as First Surgeon or Second Surgeon would give him an existing right for not being replaced by an Indian non-I. M. S. man, e.g., a Provincial Service Surgeon ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : It is not possible, Sir, to give a definite ruling on that point, because everything depends upon whether the officiating First Surgeon or Second Surgeon has already been transferred permanently to civil employ or not. It is quite possible that a person who has been transferred permanently to civil employ was holding a permanent appointment in civil employ at the time when he was acting as First or Second Surgeon. In that case he would undoubtedly remain on the civil side. But if a person who has been transferred to civil employ since 1st April 1924, when the Lee Commission Report was published, and has been given definitely to understand that he is being sent to civil employ on the understanding that, if there is a reorganisation, he may have to revert to military employ, then in that case, I fear that he will not be considered as having an existing right to confirmation on the civil side.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I do not think the Honourable Member has understood my question. In the case of a British I. M. S. Civil Surgeon or Superintendent of another hospital officiating, say, as Second Surgeon in the Medical College Hospital, the permanent incumbent being away an leave, or there being a vacancy would he be considered to have any existing right to retention or permanency in that appointment, especially when the Secretary of State's communiqué states that that appointment is a non-I. M. S. one ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Would the Honourable Member kindly repeat his question ?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : In the case of an appointment of a British I. M. S. Civil Surgeon officiating as Second Surgeon of a hospital when this scheme came into force—I refer to the recent communiqué received from the Secretary of State—would that offer who is officiating as Second Surgeon be considered to have an existing right as Second Surgeon ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : No, Sir. Because the words "existing right" have relation to the permanent appointment held by that officer. He has an existing right to the permanent post from which he is promoted to act, but he has no existing right to be confirmed in the acting appointment, unless the appointment is reserved under the reorganisation scheme.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : That is to say, a permanent Civil Surgeon has an "existing right" as a Civil Surgeon only and not to any post in which he is acting ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Yes.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is not the Honourable Member wrong when he states that an officer transferred from the military to civil side has no claim to permanency in the civil side ? Let me put it this way. Is the Honourable Member right in saying that because a military officer is sent to civil, he has no claim to being made permanent in time ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Well, Sir, if the Honourable Member chooses to put his authoritative interpretation against that of the Secretary of State, I do not propose to contend with him. I merely stated the position as it has been put forward in the communiqué of the Secretary of State.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : There is no use the Honourable Member trying to be facetitious and so confuse the House. What I want to know is this : Is it or is it not a fact that an I. M. S. officer when he is sent from military to civil employ must necessarily at first be temporary before he becomes permanent ? That is a hard and fast rule.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : If the Honourable Member is inviting the attention of the House to the fact that ordinarily I. M. S. officers when they are transferred from military to civil are in temporary employ for the first two years, then he is stating the obvious. I thought every Honourable Member of the House knew that. What I wanted to state or point out to the Honourable Member was that officers who have, subsequent to 1st April 1924, been transferred to civil employ have been given to understand that they are not subject merely to this ordinary probationary period of two years, but that they are liable to reversion even after two years, if as a result of a reorganisation scheme it is held there is no reserve post in which they can be employed.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is the Government prepared or is it not prepared to review the situation from time to time as the Lee Commission proportion of appointments reaches that recommended by the Commission ? In other words.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member has already put his question. He need not paraphrase it.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I am enquiring about part (ii) which is a different question. The answer to that part is distinct from the question just answered. Part (ii) relates to reviewing periodically the position of the British I. M. S. and non-I. M. S. percentage of appointments. Will the Government state whether they intend to review periodically the position as hinted in the communiqué, say, within five years or so and as Indianisation progresses ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I do not really know, Sir, how that question arises out of the answer I have given. The first part of the Honourable Member's question relates to safeguards which the Secretary of State or the Government of India have prescribed for I. M. S. officers in civil employ. Those safeguards would apply to all I. M. S. officers in civil employ and I am not quite sure that the I. M. S. officers in civil employ would actually welcome a fluctuating or elastic safeguard which is liable to variation from time to time.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : That, Sir, does not answer the question at all.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I am sorry I have not satisfied my Honourable friend.

EMPLOYMENT OF OFFICERS OF THE I. M. D. IN THE 90 CIVIL MEDICAL POSTS TO BE RELEASED FOR THE PROVINCIAL MEDICAL SERVICES.

818. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) With reference to paragraph 7 of the Secretary of State's communiqué, dated Simla, the 10th May 1928, will Government be pleased to state, in regard to the 90 civil medical posts that will be released for the Provincial Medical Services, whether or not any of these will be reserved for I. M. D. officers at present employed and to be employed in the various Provincial Medical Services ?

(b) If so, how many of these 90 posts will be allotted to the I. M. D. ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (b). The matter is one for the decision of Local Governments.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : A supplementary question, Sir. Is the I. M. D. a Provincial Service or an All-India Service ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The I. M. D.—and I am speaking subject to correction from my friend the Army Secretary—is a service under the control of the Government of India, but when a man is employed in the provinces then his prospects, so far as appointment to civil posts is concerned, are controlled by the Local Government and not the Government of India.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is their retention in civil medical employment subject to the Government of India or the Local Government ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Well, Sir, it seems to me that my Honourable friend is not quite clear in his own mind as to the respective authority of the Government of India and the Local Government. If it were a case of an appointment directly under the Government of India undoubtedly the Government of India would regulate the conditions of service of I. M. D. officers, but ex hypothesi in the case of appointments which have been transferred to the control of Local Governments the conditions of service and the conditions regulating appointment are for the Local Government and not for the Government of India.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Sir, the Honourable Member has not understood my supplementary question at all. What I want is a definite answer from the Honourable Member as to whether this recent communiqué from the Secretary of State refers to an All-India or a Provincial Service and I ask the Honourable Member to tell me whether in these 90 appointments of civil surgeoncies which the Secretary of State's communiqué states are to be freed or given to the Provincial Medical Service, the I. M. D. are excluded or not ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I am very sorry, Sir, that although the Honourable Member himself by implication tells us that these 90 appointments have been transferred out of the category of an All-India Service into the category of a Provincial Service, nevertheless he requires the Government of India to state whether these I. M. D. officers are eligible for these appointments or not. The matter, as I say, is entirely one for the Local Governments.

GRANT OF STUDY LEAVE TO EUROPE TO UPPER SUBORDINATE EMPLOYEES IN THE INDIAN STATE RAILWAYS.

819. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney: Will Government be pleased to state if study leave to Europe with study leave allowance is permissible to upper subordinate employees in the Indian State Railways ? If not, why not ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Study Leave Rules do not ordinarily apply to non-gazetted officers. In exceptional cases proposals to extend these rules to such officers can be considered by the Government of India.

GRANT OF STUDY LEAVE TO EUROPE TO UPPER SUBORDINATE EMPLOYEES OF THE IMPERIAL CUSTOMS SERVICE.

820. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney: Will Government be pleased to state if study leave to Europe with study leave allowance is permissible to upper subordinate employees in the Imperial Customs Service ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Study Leave Rules do not ordinarily apply to officers of the Customs Department, and the Government of India have not as yet thought it necessary in the public interest to exercise the power that they possess of extending the rules to any officer of that Department.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member please tell me why the Customs Service is the only service that refuses to consider the grant of study leave to its non-gazetted officers ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have already stated, Sir, that the Government of India have not thought it necessary in the public interest to extend the Study Leave Rules to any officer of the Customs Department.

GRANT OF STUDY LEAVE TO EUROPE TO UPPER SUBORDINATES IN THE INDIAN TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

821. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney: Will Government be pleased to state if study leave to Europe with study leave allowance is permissible to upper subordinates in the Indian Telegraph Department ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : If by the term " upper subordinates " the Honourable Member is referring to gazetted officers of the Telegraph Department, the reply is in the affirmative. If, however, he refers to non-gazetted officers, study leave to Europe with study leave allowance is granted only in exceptional circumstances.

GRANT OF STUDY LEAVE TO EUROPE TO UPPER SUBORDINATES IN THE SURVEY OF INDIA.

822. Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney: Will Government be pleased to state if study leave to Europe with study leave allowance is permissible to upper subordinates in the Survey of India Department ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Study leave is not ordinarily admissible to officers of the upper subordinate service in the Survey of India.

INTRODUCTION OF THE ELECTIVE SYSTEM IN ALL THE MUNICIPALITIES AND LOCAL BOARDS OF THE NORTH WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

823. Maulvi Sayyid Murtaza Saheb Bahadur : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they propose introducing an elective system in all the Municipalities and Local Boards of the North West Frontier Province ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Government intend introducing the elective system only in a few municipalities, such as Peshawar ?

(c) Is it a fact that the citizens of the municipalities that have been denied the benefit are quite discontented ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Government intend putting off the introduction of the elective system in the District Boards ?

(e) Do Government propose to introduce the long-felt system in all the municipalities and District Boards throughout the Province ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) to (e). The question is under consideration but no conclusions have yet been reached.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : May I know, Sir, if it is the intention of the Local Administration to raise the standard of franchise in the urban areas in order to reduce the Mussalman majority in the municipalities ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : That, Sir, is not my information.

(1) INTRODUCTION OF THE REFORMS INTO THE NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

(2) PROPOSED RESORT TO CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE OF THE PEOPLE OF THE NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

824. Maulvi Sayyid Murtaza Saheb Bahadur : (a) Do the Government propose making any practical move in introducing Reforms into the North West Frontier Province ?

(b) Are the Government aware that the Peshawaris have passed a resolution in favour of civil disobedience, so that the Government may not go on procrastinating the introduction of the Reforms against the popular will and in spite of the Resolutions of the Assembly ?

(c) Are they aware that many volunteers have enlisted themselves for the purpose ?

(d) Are they aware that the Muslims of the Punjab have passed a resolution sympathising with the Peshawaris in their proposed constitutional fight and promising them every help ?

(e) Is it a fact that the Government have been informed that in case the movement develops itself into something undesirable, the responsibility will devolve on the Government and not on the resorters to civil disobedience ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) The question is under the consideration and examination of Government.

(b) A resolution to the effect was it is believed passed by a meeting held in July by the Peshawar Khilafat Committee.

(c) No.

(d) Government are aware that such a resolution was reported by the Press to have been passed by the Punjab Khilafat Committee.

(e) A hypothetic warning to this effect was contained in the resolution referred to in answer to question (b) above.

EXCLUSION OF INDIANS FROM THE CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION OF CEYLON.

825. Maulvi Sayyid Murtaza Saheb Bahadur : (a) Is it a fact that the Ceylonese can compete for the Indian Civil Service Examination but that Indians are not eligible for the Civil Service Examination of Ceylon ?

(b) Is it a fact that there was no such restriction on Indians until a few years ago ?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state what led to the restriction above referred to ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Ceylonese can compete at the Indian Civil Service examination in London, but not at the examination in Delhi.

(b) Yes.

(c) The restriction was imposad as a result of the reservation of a fixed proportion of vacancies to natives of Ceylon.

CONVICTION OF KANGANIES (COOLIE RECRUITERS) FOR FORGERY AND ENTRAPPING COOLIES.

826. Maulvi Sayyid Murtaza Saheb Bahadur : Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the fact that many Kanganies (recruiters of coolies) have been convicted for forging documents and entrapping coolies ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Yes, but I would draw the Honourable Member's attention to the fact that the number of Kanganies who have been found guilty of the irregular practices mentioned is infinitesimal.

PROPOSAL MADE BY THE AGENT OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA IN CEYLON FOR THE ABOLITION OF THE KANGANY SYSTEM OF RECRUITING LABOURERS.

827. Maulvi Sayyid Murtaza Saheb Bahadur : (a) Have the Government received any communication from their Agent in Ceylon recommending that the Kangany system should be done away with and that some other system should be introduced in its stead ?

(b) What is the system recommended by the Agent ?

(c) Have the Government favourably considered the recommendation ?

(d) If not, do they propose to do so now ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) By the term "Kangany system" Honourable Member no doubt refers to the system in force for the recruitment of labourers in India for employment on estates in Ceylon through licensed recruiters known as Kanganies. The Government of India have received no proposal from their Agent in Ceylon for the abolition of this system and the introduction in its place of some other method of recruitment.

Parts (b), (c) and (d) of the question do not arise.

QUESTIONS NOT PUT AT THE MEETING, OWING TO THE ABSENCE OF THE QUESTIONER, WITH ANSWERS TO THE SAME.

ROUTINE GRADE OF CLERKS IN THE OFFICE OF THE MASTER GENERAL OF SUPPLY.

798. Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Is it a fact that the late Ordnance Branch, Army Headquarters, the late office of the Director of Ordnance Factories, Calcutta, and the late temporary office of the Controller of Contracts were merged in the Master General of Supply Branch on its formation in 1924 ?

(b) Is it also a fact that with a view to absorbing the staff of these offices, a routine grade was introduced in the Master General of Supply Branch, with effect from the 16th October 1924 ?

(c) Is it a fact that some of the clerks who held substantive appointments in the late Ordnance Branch and in the late office of the Director of Ordnance Factories, Calcutta, were regraded to the routine grade while some clerks who were qualified only for the routine grade were promoted to the second division ? If so, will Government please state the reason for this ?

(d) Is it a fact that the routine grade has not yet been introduced in other branches of Army Headquarters, and that clerks in those branches who are qualified for the routine grade only are confirmed in the second division ?

(e) If so, will Government please state whether such confirmation in the second division is permissible under the rules ? If not, why is this being done ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) Yes.

(b) The routine grade was introduced as a measure of economy suitable to the conditions of a newly formed Branch of Army Headquarters.

(c) Only two clerks, who held second division appointments in the late Ordnance Branch, were regraded to the routine grade. They were fit only for routine work and would not have advanced beyond the efficiency bar of the second division. No clerk qualified only for the routine grade was promoted to the second division.

(d) Yes.

(e) Yes, but men suitable for the routine grade only in other Branches are not allowed to pass the efficiency bar of the second division.

RECRUITMENT OF THE CLERICAL STAFF FOR THE CONTRACTS DIRECTORATE.

799. Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Is it a fact that the staff belonging to the Contracts Directorate is shortly to be separated from the common roll of the Master General of Supply Branch ? If so, why ?

(b) Is it also a fact that henceforward recruitment of clerical staff for this Directorate will be made on a nomination basis ? If so, will Government please state whether the Public Service Commission has agreed to this procedure ?

(c) Is it a fact that the nature of the clerical work in the Contracts Directorate and in the Indian Stores Department is the same ?

(d) If so, will Government please state whether the Indian Stores Department is also being exempted from the operations of the Public Service Commission ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) The answer is in the affirmative. The reason is that the work required in the Contracts Directorate is of a special character.

(b) Recruitment is already being made on a basis of very careful selection. Candidates are interviewed in the first place by the Head of the Contracts Directorate with special reference to commercial aptitude, which is a more important requisite for the work that is demanded of them than the ordinary educational qualifications. The selections are then carefully scrutinised by the Master General of Supply and forwarded to the Army Department for its concurrence. The concurrence of the Public Service Commission to this procedure is not required.

(c) The work in the Contracts Directorate is in some respects similar to, but by no means identical with, the work in the Indian Stores Department. The principal difference lies in the fact that the Contracts Directorate conducts a large volume of sales. Since the inception of the Disposals Organization in the Directorate about two years ago, the volume of sales has already risen from 20 lakhs a year to over 45 lakhs a year.

(d) Does not strictly arise, but it is a fact that the Indian Stores Department recruits its clerical personnel through the Public Service Commission. The Indian Stores Department however does not conduct any sales.

RECRUITMENT OF A SUBORDINATE ACCOUNTS SERVICE CLERK FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT SECTION OF THE OFFICE OF THE MASTER GENERAL OF SUPPLY.

800. Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Is it a fact that the staff of the Establishment Section (Section M. G.-5), which deals with Headquarters establishment cases of the Master General of Supply Branch, consists of a whole-time Superintendent, one senior first division assistant, one cashier (senior clerk) and several other clerks and that the section is in charge of the Officer Supervisor ?

(b) Is it also a fact that to strengthen the staff of this section, a Subordinate Accounts Service clerk from the Military Accountant General's office is shortly being recruited as a permanent first division assistant ?

(c) If so, will Government please state whether the nature of the clerical duties in this Section (Section M. G.-5) has undergone any change as to necessitate the appointment of a Subordinate Accounts Service clerk ?

(d) If not, what is the justification to recruit an outsider ? Has the existing staff of this section proved a failure ?

(e) Do other branches of Army Headquarters propose to recruit Subordinate Accounts Service clerks for doing establishment cases ?

(f) If not, why is such recruitment necessary in the case of the Master General of Supply Branch ?

(g) Is it a fact that the recruitment of the Subordinate Accounts Service clerk will involve the supersession of several officiating first division clerks who have put in several years' satisfactory service in the Branch ? If so, will Government please state why these officiating clerks are being superseded ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) The staff of the Establishment Section is, 3 Assistants, 4 second division clerks and 2 routine grade clerks, but it has been found necessary to borrow temporarily the services of a Superintendent in place of an upper time scale Assistant.

(b) There is a proposal to fill a vacancy in the establishment by appointing a Subordinate Accounts Service clerk.

(c) There has been no alteration in the nature of the work, but the nature of the work itself is such that it would be done better by an accounts expert.

(d) The Honourable Member is referred to the answer to part (c). The existing staff has not proved itself efficient.

(e) The point has not yet arisen in other Branches.

(f) For the reason given at (c).

(g) The answer to the first part is in the affirmative. The answer to the second part is contained in (c) and (d).

456 Dr. A. Suhrawardy : (a) Is it a fact that the Government of India asked the Auditor General some time ago to safeguard the interests of the minority communities in Civil Audit and Accounts Offices ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Auditor General instructed the Accountants General accordingly and that the latter did not at first carry out his instructions ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Auditor General had to remind the Accountants General more than once in this behalf and to call for a report in this connection within a specified period ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Accountant General, Central Revenues, Delhi, persisted in disregarding the instructions of the Government of India and his attention to his duty towards the minority communities had to be drawn by telegram ?

(e) Is it a fact that the Accountant General, Central Revenues, Delhi, requisitioned the services of two suitable Muslim Accountants (one from the office of the Accountant General, Punjab, and the other from the office of the Accountant General, Posts and Telegraphs) in his office and confirmed them ?

(f) Is it a fact that these are the only two Muslim Accountants at present in the Office of the Accountant General, Central Revenues, Delhi ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : With your permission, Sir, I will reply to questions Nos. 456, 457, 460, 461 and 462 together. Enquiries are being made and the information will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

NUMBER OF MUSLIM AND NON-MUSLIM ASSISTANT ACCOUNTS OFFICERS, SENIOR ACCOUNTANTS AND ACCOUNTANTS, ETC., SERVING IN THE OFFICE OF THE ACCOUNTANT GENERAL, CENTRAL REVENUES, DELHI.

†457. Dr. A. Suhrawardy : Will the Government be pleased to state the respective number of non-Muslim and Muslim Assistant Accounts Officers, senior accountants and accountants, clerks, typists, stenographers and record clerks, serving in the office of the Accountant General, Central Revenues, Delhi ?

EDUCATIONAL QUALIFICATIONS NECESSARY FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF ASSISTANT ACCOUNTS OFFICER.

458. Dr. A. Suhrawardy : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state what educational qualifications are necessary for the post of Assistant Accounts Officer ?

(b) Is it a fact that some time ago the Auditor General in India did not accept the recommendation of the Accountant General, Central Revenues, Delhi, for admission of an Assistant Accounts Officer to the enrolled list on the ground of that official's educational qualifications being low ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 456.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Promotions to the grade of Assistant Accounts Officers are made by the Auditor General by selection from among accountants and senior accountants. No educational qualifications are, therefore, required other than those necessary for accountants.

(b) The reply is in the negative.

PREFERENTIAL TREATMENT TO CANDIDATES FOR CIVIL EMPLOY ON THE SCORE OF WAR SERVICES.

459. Dr. A. Suhrawardy : Is it a fact that according to the standing orders of the Government of India preferential treatment is to be accorded to candidates for civil employ on the score of war services and that the same also applies to special promotion for civil employees ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The answer to the first portion of the question is in the affirmative, and to the second part in the negative.

EXAMINATION FOR APPOINTMENTS AS CLERKS IN THE OFFICE OF THE ACCOUNTANT GENERAL, CENTRAL REVENUES, DELHI.

†460. Dr. A. Suhrawardy : (a) Is it a fact that an examination for appointment as a clerk in the office of the Accountant General, Central Revenues, Delhi, was held in August 1928, for Muslims, Sikhs and Christians only ?

(b) Is it a fact that Hindus were also allowed to sit for this examination ? If so, why ?

(c) Is it a fact that many approved candidates were absent from the examination ? If so, how many, and how many of them were Muslims ?

(d) Is it a fact that many intimations for the said examination were not really sent to the candidates ? If so, who is responsible for it ?

(e) Is it a fact that in the " Despatch Register " of the office of the Accountant General, Central Revenues, the entries regarding issue of intimations were not made by names but something like this—" 50 intimations sent " ?

(f) Is it a fact that no Muslim was appointed an examiner for the said examination ?

(g) Is it a fact that Rs. 3 per candidate were charged as an admission fee to the said examination ?

TOTAL NUMBER OF MEN ENTERTAINED BY THE ACCOUNTANT GENERAL, CENTRAL REVENUES, DURING THE LAST THREE YEARS AS PROBATIONERS AGAINST POSTS IN THE SUBORDINATE ACCOUNTS SERVICE.

†461. Dr. A. Suhrawardy : Will the Government be pleased to state the total number of men entertained by the Accountant General, Central Revenues, during the last three years, as probationers against Subordinate Accounts Service posts in his office, and how many of them were Muslims ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 456.

INADEQUATE REPRESENTATION OF MUSLIMS IN THE OFFICE OF THE ACCOUNTANT GENERAL, CENTRAL REVENUES, DELHI.

†462. Dr. A. Suhrawardy : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the total number of the following classes of officers employed in the Office of the Accountant General, Central Revenues, Delhi :

(1) Assistant Accounts Officers,

(2) accountants,

(3) clerks,

and also the number of Muhammadans belonging to each of the above classes ?

(b) Is it a fact that the representation of Muslims in the above classes of service is inadequate ? If so, do Government propose to make up the deficiency in the near future either by direct recruitment or by promotion as may be permissible under the departmental regulations ?

PERSONAL ASSISTANT TO THE ARMY SECRETARY.

463. Mr. Siddheswar Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that the appointment of Personal Assistant to the Army Secretary was as late as 1926 a non-gazetted one ?

(b) Is it a fact that until then he was employed as a shorthand writer though holding an assistant's appointment ?

(c) Is it a fact that in addition, the Army Secretary had and still has a lady shorthand writer to help him in shorthand duties ?

(d) Is it a fact that in addition to his Personal Assistant and this lady shorthand writer the Army Secretary has on his personal staff a second division clerk in receipt of a pay of about Rs. 180 a month ?

(e) What is the strength of the personal staff of the Secretaries in other Departments ?

(f) Was the Personal Assistant to the Army Secretary classified in 1927 as a gazetted Superintendent ?

(g) Is there any such instance in any other Department of the Government of India ?

(h) Is it a fact that having been classified as a gazetted Superintendent the Personal Assistant to the Army Secretary was subsequently given a special rate of increased pay corresponding approximately to that of a regular Superintendent ?

(i) Is it a fact that the Personal Assistant is in charge of the Army Department establishment which comprises men who are senior both in rank and pay to the Personal Assistant himself ?

(j) What are the educational qualifications of the Personal Assistant ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) Yes.

(b) No, Sir. He was then holding the appointment, and doing the work of a first division assistant. Since 1924, when the post of Registrar was abolished, as a measure of economy, certain of his responsible duties have been performed by the Personal Assistant. The present incumbent was selected for the purpose from among the assistants in the office.

(c) The Army Secretary is allotted one stenographer : the post is at present held by a lady.

(d) No, Sir.

(e) No Secretary has a personal staff in the usually accepted sense of he term. All Secretaries have stenographers. The Army Secretary has a Personal Assistant, who, as explained above, performs also many of the duties of Registrar.

(f) Yes.

(g) No, Sir. A Personal Assistant is a necessity to the Army Secretary because the bulk of his work lies not so much in the Department itself as with the very large organization at Army Headquarters, with all parts of which he has to maintain constant liaison.

(h) Yes, his pay was increased in 1927, because further duties and responsibilities were then assigned to him.

(i) The Personal Assistant is in charge of the non-gazetted portion of the Army Department establishment, which does not comprise anyone senior to him in rank or pay.

(j) He entered the Department after competing successfully in the prescribed examination for the Government of India Secretariat.

ASSISTANT COMPILER OF THE ARMY LIST.

464. Mr. Siddheswar Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that the post of Assistant Compiler of the Army List was recently created in the Army Department, and that for this reason its incumbent was exempted from passing the Public Service Commission's test ?

(b) Did the present incumbent hold any technical qualifications particularly suited to the post, thus qualifying his exemption from the Commission's test ?

(c) Is it a fact that in the Army Department there were permanent men with previous experience of Army List work who could be appointed to hold the appointment ? If so, why were their claims overlooked ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) The posts of Compiler and Assistant Compiler of the Army List are specialised posts, and the incumbents are not eligible for promotion to other appointments on the regular clerical establishment. The pay of Assistant Compiler is less than that of a 1st division assistant, but greater than that of a 2nd division clerk. A 1st division assistant would therefore not accept the appointment, while 2nd division clerks are not sufficiently qualified. For these reasons, the appointment was not made through the Public Service Commission : but there is no prescribed test from which he required exemption.

(b) A graduate (M.A.) was appointed. No technical qualifications are required ; but the post demands a relatively high standard of education. For the reasons explained in reply to part (a), the question of exemption from any test of the Public Service Commission did not arise.

(c) The reply to the first part is in the negative. The second part does not arise.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 456.

465. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if any memorial was received by the Director General of the Posts and Telegraph Department from the Chittagong Association, dated the 23rd May, 1928, regarding recruitment of Chittagong Hindus in the provincial cadre of the Postal Service ?

(b) If the answer to (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what action, if any, has been taken on the memorial ?

(b) The memorialists have been asked to explain what exactly they mean.

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to state what action they have taken on these petitions and particularly when the men concerned are likely to be provided with quarters ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(c) Is it a fact that the train staff have no limit to their working ?

(d) If the reply be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state whether they are prepared to direct the Bengal and North Western Railway administration to reduce the working hours of the staff in accordance with the terms of the Geneva Convention ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I propose with your permission, Sir, to reply to questions Nos. 469, 471, 473, 474, 475, 476, 478 and 479 together. Enquiries are being made from the Railway Administrations and I will communicate with the Honourable Member in due course.

(b) Is it a fact that they get a starting salary of Rs. 10 or 12 a month and there are only a few who get Rs. 16 a month ?

(c) Is it a fact that they are reckoned as menials and though their services are retained permanently they are kept on temporary scales and are deprived of all the privileges to which other servants of the same Railway are entitled ? If so, why ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 469.

472. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the assistant guards and shunters drawing salaries from Rs. 12 to 18, and 19 to 24 per mensem, whether qualified or not, are continuously made to work as guards and drivers respectively on the Bengal and North Western Railway ?

(b) Are they not paid an extra allowance for working as guards and drivers ?

(c) And are they held responsible and punished for any irregularity or error in the same manner as guards and drivers ?

(d) Do Government propose to intervene in the matter ? If not why not ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to Mr. Joshi's starred question number 274 on the 8th September.

(b) Is it a fact that most of the stations are classed as "C" ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 469.

(c) Is it a fact that station masters of "C" class stations receive a fixed salary of Rs. 50 while the salaries of the station masters of other classes are subject to increase ?

(d) If the reply to question (c) be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state the principle on which the salary of station masters of one class is fixed while that of others are subject to increase ?

(b) Are Government aware of any such contributions being made by the Bengal and North Western Railway for facilities to be afforded and concessions to be granted to its Indian employees in the Balrampur or any other hospital ? If so, how much and to which hospital ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : There is no information in the Railway Board's office, and I have therefore referred the Honourable Member's enquiries to the Agent of the Bengal and North Western Railway and will let him know what the position is on receipt of the Agent's reply.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 469.

In June last the Postmaster-General, Bihar and Orissa, reported that out of 7,000 postal articles handled by the Calcutta Dead Letter Office daily on an average, only about 1,300 relate to the Bihar and Orissa Circle. Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: [illegible]e line will probably be opened early in 1931.

PURCHASE OF CLOTH BY GOVERNMENT.

485. Kumar Rananjaya Singh : Will the Government be pleased to state what is the total amount it annually spends on buying cloth and what percentage of it is spent on Indian-made cloth ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The collection of the information required by the Honourable Member would involve an amount of time and labour disproportionate to the result. I am, however, in a position to give the Honourable Member figures of purchases of textile materials by the Indian Stores Department during the year 1927-28. The total value of the purchases amounted to Rs. 1,18,44,000 and 96.8 per cent. of this sum represented the value of textiles manufactured in India.

SUPPLY TO THE INDIAN STATUTORY COMMISSION OF THE NEHRU COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

486. Kumar Rananjaya Singh : Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that Sir John Simon, the President of the Indian Statutory Commission, asked the Government of India for copies of the Report of the Nehru Sub-Committee of the All-Parties Conference, and if it is a fact, how many copies of the report were sent ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : As soon as the Report was published the Statutory Commission asked the Government of India for copies, and 12 copies were accordingly obtained and sent to them.

GRANT OF CONVEYANCE ALLOWANCE TO THE CLERKS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

487. Maulvi Mohammad Shafee : (a) Will Government be pleased to say whether places near or about Roshanara Gardens, Safdarjung, Nizam-ud-din and Delhi Shahdara are within the notified area for the purposes of granting conveyance allowance to the clerks of the Government of India ?

(b) If the answer is in the negative, will Government be pleased to define the areas which come under the " Notified Area " ? Will Government be pleased to state whether conveyance allowance is granted to clerks living only in the Notified Area or even to those who live at a distance greater than the Notified Area ?

(c) Have Government fixed any limit of mileage for the purposes of granting conveyance allowance for those who are not provided with Government quarters and who live on any side of New Delhi except the Notified Area ? If not, why not ?

(d) With reference to the Honourable the Home Member's reply to Sir H. S. Gour's starred question No. 535, parts (c) and (d), dated the 26th March 1928, will Government be pleased to say whether distance or suitability of accommodation is the consideration for granting conveyance allowance to those clerks of the Government of India who are not provided with Government quarters in New Delhi and have to attend office after traversing a distance of five [illegible] miles ?

(e) If distance is the consideration for granting conveyance allowance, do Government know that clerks living near or about Roshanara Gardens, which are situated at a distance of about 5½ miles from the Secretariat buildings in New Delhi, are not granted it while those living near the Swiss Hotel (Alipore Road), which is about 4½ miles from the Secretariat, are entitled to such allowance ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state the reason for this ?

(f) In view of the paucity of accommodation for clerks who cannot afford to pay higher rents in the Notified Area, do Government propose to fix some limit of distance beyond which such allowance may be granted ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) No.

(b) The Honourable Member is referred to the notification issued by the Chief Commissioner, Delhi, dated the 16th January 1913, which was published on page 122 of Part II of the Gazette of India, dated the 18th January 1913.

(c) No.

(d) to (f). The whole question of the justification of these conveyance allowances will be re-examined.

EXPULSION OF HAKIM SAMI ULLAH KHAN FROM THE AMBALA CANTONMENT.

488. Mr. Abdul Haye : (a) Will Government please state if it is their policy that they would not allow the residents of a Cantonment area to take part in politics ?

(b) Is it a fact that one Hakim Sami Ullah Khan was expelled from the Ambala Cantonment in 1920 by the Cantonment authorities and since then he has not been allowed to return ?

(c) Is it a fact that this Hakim Sami Ullah Khan made several representations to the authorities requesting them to let him know the reasons for which the order of expulsion was made against him and that his requests were not granted ?

(d) Is that order of expulsion still in force and is Hakim Sami Ullah Khan still prohibited from entering the limits of Ambala Cantonment ?

(e) Will Government please state why this order was originally made and what justification the Cantonment authorities have for keeping that order alive for eight years ?

(f) Is it a fact that in 1924 on a representation made by Hakim Sami Ullah Khan the Cantonment authorities expressed their willingness to allow him to return to the Cantonment area provided he would execute a bond to the effect that he would abstain from taking part in politics ?

(g) Is it a fact that in reply to the above Hakim Sami Ullah Khan stated that he was prepared to give an undertaking that he would not commit any offence or otherwise break any law and that he was not prepared to surrender his precious right of taking part in political movements ?

(h) Is it a fact that now in 1928 the Executive Officer of Ambala has again reiterated that permission to live in Ambala Cantonment can only be granted to Hakim Sami Ullah Khan if he is prepared to execute a bond that he would abstain from " political activities of an aggressive nature " ?

(i) Will Government please explain what is meant by " political activities of an aggressive nature " ? Is it not enough that Hakim Sami Ullah Khan is prepared to give an undertaking that he will confine his activities within the bounds of law ?

(j) Are Government prepared to direct that the order passed against Hakim Sami Ullah Khan be cancelled forthwith ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) No, Sir.

(b), (c) and (d). Hakim Sami Ullah Khan was expelled from the Ambala Cantonment in 1921. The Government are not aware whether or not he has been allowed to return.

(e) The reason for the expulsion order was that the Officer Commanding considered that the presence of Hakim Sami Ullah Khan in the Ambala Cantonment was dangerous to good order.

(f) The answer is in the affirmative.

(g) The Government understand that in 1924 Hakim Sami Ullah Khan stated that he was prepared to undertake to abstain from political activities of an unlawful nature but refused to execute a bond to this effect.

(h) The Government have no information.

(i) and (j). The only grounds on which a person can be removed from the cantonment are " if he causes or attempts to cause or does any act which he knows is likely to cause disloyalty, disaffection or breaches of discipline amongst any portion of His Majesty's forces or is a person who, the Officer Commanding the Station has reason to believe, is likely to do any such act." If a reliable undertaking can be obtained from Hakim Sami Ullah Khan to the effect that he will refrain from such activities, there would appear to be no reason why the order passed against him should not be cancelled ; but under section 239 of the Cantonments Act the matter is primarily for the consideration of the Local Government or the Officer Commanding-in-Chief the Command to whom I will send a copy of this question and answer.

489. Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Will the Government be pleased to state the number of working days lost and number of men involved in each of the trade disputes that took place on each of the State Railways since 1925 ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I regret the information is not procurable.

RAILWAY INSTITUTES.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am collecting the information for the Honourable Member and will send it to him in due course.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons :

PETITIONS RELATING TO THE HINDU CHILD MARRIAGE BILL.

Mr. Deputy President (Maulvi Muhammad Yaqub) : I have the honour to present, on behalf of the Committee of Petitions, a petition relating to the Child Marriage Bill, which has been signed by 12,320 persons, who are all against the provisions of the Bill.

PRESENTATION OF THE REPORT OF THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE ON THE ACCOUNTS OF 1926-27.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to present the Report of the Public Accounts Committee on the accounts of 1926-27.

THE TRADE DISPUTES BILL.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, when I gave notice some days ago of a motion for the reference of the Trade Disputes Bill to Select Committee it was in the hope that it might have been possible, if the House so desired, that the Bill should be proceeded with in its further stages during this Session. Also my motion would have made it possible for any Member of the House to give notice of a more dilatory motion and therefore the House could have decided whether they wished the Bill passed quickly or referred for circulation. Owing however to the progress of official business in the House this Session, it is obvious now that even if my motion had been carried it would not have been possible during the present Session to complete all the stages of the Bill in both Houses. Therefore, Sir, with your permission I beg to move that the Bill to make provision for the investigation and settlement of trade disputes, and for certain other purposes, be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinions thereon. In view of the character of my motion I propose to be brief and I also hope to avoid anything of a controversial character.

The question of legislating on this subject was first taken up by the Government of India in the year 1919. That was the year in which the British Industrial Courts Act was passed and the Government of India addressed Local Governments enquiring whether legislation of this character would be useful in India. In the opinion of the majority of

*In one case the Head Shed Clerk receives an allowance of Rs. 4 for the work.

†In one case the Head Shed Clerk receives an allowance of Rs. 5 for the work, and in one other case a similar allowance of Rs. 5 is given.

[Mr. A. C. McWatters.]

Local Governments at that time legislation of that kind was likely to be ineffective. The Government of India took up the subject again in the year 1924 at the instance of the Government of Bombay and they circulated proposals to Local Governments, the substance of which was firstly a provision for boards of inquiry to be formed from standing panels of employers and workmen ; and secondly, as regards public utility services they proposed to borrow provisions from the Canadian Act of 1907 which made strikes and lock-outs in public utility services illegal until a board of inquiry had been appointed and reported. These proposals met with a somewhat mixed reception and the Government of India, who were at that time engaged in the preparation of the Trades Union Bill, preferred to wait for a short time because we held, and hold now, that the existence of strong and responsible trade unions is necessary for the effective carrying out of machinery such as we propose in the present Bill. In the summer of 1926 occurred the general strike in England, and in framing our present proposals we have taken into consideration the legislation which was passed in the summer of 1927 in England. So much for the past history.

Now, Sir, with regard to the principle of the Bill there is one principle which we have endeavoured to carry out throughout this Bill—a principle which gives the Bill such unity as it possesses—and that is that trade disputes between employers and workmen do not concern employers and workmen only, but they concern the public also and they involve an obligation on Government ; and therefore, Sir, in addition to providing machinery which may, we hope, tend to reduce trade disputes in the interests both of the employers and the workmen, we have endeavoured so to frame our proposals as to mobilise the force of public opinion so far as we can, and also in certain special circumstances to afford direct protection to the public.

The first portion of the Bill relates to the machinery for courts of inquiry and boards of conciliation. We have adopted two different types of machinery instead of one as was proposed in the original Bill, because we felt that in the differing circumstances of different industrial strikes and troubles it might be useful to have different types of machinery. We wish to leave ourselves as free a hand as we can and for that reason we have abandoned the panel system which was suggested in the earlier proposals. We have done so mainly because of the criticisms received on our proposals of 1924 ; it was felt that it would not always be easy to obtain the right kind of person from the standing panels and we wished to leave ourselves free to choose the best people possible in relation to the particular dispute. Secondly, it was pointed out to us that probably the men who would be most useful on these boards of inquiry would not be willing to have their names registered continuously as members of a panel, although they might be quite willing to serve on occasion if requested. Now with regard to these proposals regarding courts of inquiry and boards of conciliation there is only one other point I want to mention and that is that we have carefully avoided any suggestion of compulsory arbitration. Our earlier proposals were criticised, erroneously no doubt, on the ground that there was some suggestion of compulsory arbitration. Our present proposals are not open to any such criticism. Some people no doubt may prefer one kind of machinery ; some another ; some may put their trust in compulsory arbitration ; some in voluntary arbitration ; but I think no one will dispute the principle of compulsory inquiry and compulsory conciliation, and that is what our Bill aims at. We aim at bringing in the force of public opinion in order to prevent and shorten these industrial troubles. It is the public and the press who are to be our high court of appeal.

There is one word of caution which I should like to give expression to. I do not suppose—nobody supposes—that this Bill is going to put an end to industrial troubles ; no one supposes that it is going to create a new heaven and a new earth. When the British Industrial Courts Act of 1919 was passed, it was after ten years of very careful preparation, by employers and by workmen and by Government, in setting up with in the industries themselves machinery for conciliation and for settlement of trade disputes. I have seen figures for the year 1926, I think, relating to the cotton mill industry in Lancashire. In that year there were 700 disputes between employers and workmen ; of these only 20 reached the final council at Manchester and not a single one of them was referred to Government for action under the Industrial Courts Act. That, Sir, is what we want to aim at in this country. I regard it as most important that this machinery within the industries themselves should be set up with the aid of employers and workmen and Government, and if that can be done I regard it as a far more important step than anything that will be accomplished by this Bill.

I now turn, Sir, to the second part of the Bill which deals with public utility services. The principle there is a simple one ; it is that there should be some interval given before a strike is allowed in services which are essential to the health, safety and welfare of the community. It is a principle which is recognised so far as I know in almost every country. The principle, though not exactly in this form, was recognised as early as 1875 in Mr. Disraeli's Act in England. It was in relation to gas and water. It was extended to electricity in 1919 and the English Act of 1927 applied the principle in the exact form in which we have it in our present Bill to all services under public bodies. We do not go so far as that ; we propose to apply it only to what we consider to be essential public services. I should like to point out here that the principle is already recognised in some of our Indian Acts ; it exists in the Post Office Act ; it exists in every single municipal Act in India. Those Acts apply directly to men engaged in scavenging; and may in most cases be extended by the Local Governments to any employees in municipalities who are concerned with services affecting the health and safety of the community. So the principle is one which I think will be easily accepted. What we are aiming at is to give sufficient time for the machinery for conciliation and settlement to come into play before there can be a strike in a service which affects the health or welfare of the community.

Now, Sir, I come to the third part of the Bill which stands on quite a different footing. The proposals which relate to illegal strikes and illegal lock-outs are contained in this part. As I said the other day, these clauses have been more misunderstood than any other part of the Bill. In fact, when we first published the Bill and before its text could even have reached Bombay, I read the pronouncement of a responsible official of an important association, ascribing to the Bill—he was a friend of the Bill—results and qualities which I certainly do not claim for it, and I said to myself " Save us from our friends ". These clauses of the Bill render strikes and lock-outs illegal only if they fulfil two conditions. The first is that they must be strikes or lock-outs having an object other than or in addition to a trade dispute within the industry concerned ; and secondly, they must be designed or calculated to coerce the Government. Now, Sir, it is obvious that these clauses do not affect a sympathetic strike as such, because though it may come under condition one, it does not come under condition two, and if we apply it to the great mill strike which has been going on in Bombay we will see that that strike is a strike regarding terms of employment within the industry itself and therefore it is not even covered by condition 1—still less by condition 2. Therefore I am afraid my friend who made these comments in Bombay will be sadly disappointed if he thinks this Bill has anything to do with the strike he was thinking of at the moment.

What we are aiming at is something quite different. We are aiming at the general strike. It was clearly shown when the English legislation was under discussion that what they attempted to do was to put into legal language the conception of the general strike, and as we have copied our provisions practically verbatim from the English Act our object is the same. We feel very strongly that as a general strike is an attack upon society and upon Government, it must fail, and if it fails the people who will lose most by it will be labour, and therefore we contend that these provisions, so far from being hostile, are really in labour's interest. In England the result of the general strike was the dissipation of the resources of the unions and the loss of employment by thousands of men.

12 NOON.

In view of the character of my motion, I do not propose to say any more on the subject to-day except in reference to one point. We have not included in the Bill any provision regarding picketing, and we have done so deliberately. Picketing provisions occur in the English law of 1927, and as the House probably knows, the law in England regarding picketing has had a very chequered history. The pendulum at one time swung in one direction and then in another ; it swung in favour of labour in 1906, and it swung back again the other way in 1927, and, speaking as a layman I find the English law extremely difficult to understand. Now, in India the position is perfectly simple. Picketing as such is not illegal ; picketing which amounts to intimidation as defined in the Penal Code is illegal. I maintain that our law is much simpler and ought to be as effective as the law in England.

That, Sir, is all I wish to say. I only hope that this Bill will be considered dispassionately by every one who is interested in it, and if so, I feel confident that, when it comes back from the country, it will come back with a very large measure of support.

Mr. H. G. Cocke (Bombay : European) : Sir, I am sorry that it is not possible for this Bill to be proceeded with this Session. We in Bombay who have experienced a serious strike for the last six months, which is still raging, have felt the need for a Bill of this nature, and some two months ago the two Chambers of Commerce, the Bombay Chamber and the Indian Chamber, met together, and as a result of that conference, they decided to wire to the Government of India asking that the Trade Disputes Bill, which it was anticipated would be introduced in the September Session, should be published forthwith in order to make it possible for the Bill to become law this Session, if acceptable to the House. Well, owing to delays on account of other measures, it has not been possible to proceed with the Bill until to-day, and I hope it may not prove very unfortunate in the next four months that this Bill has been delayed.

With regard to the general principle, Sir, of this Bill, namely, the establishment of courts of inquiry and conciliation boards, there has long been a feeling, certainly in the Chamber with which I am connected, that it is a great mistake to force any tribunal upon the contesting parties unless they both ask for assistance in settling a dispute. But although these views have been held in the past they are now considered somewhat out of date, and it is thought to be necessary that Government should have the power and the right to step in in the case of trade disputes and set up a conciliation board or a court of inquiry. As the Honourable Mr. McWatters has pointed out, these conciliation boards or courts of inquiry are necessary in the interest of the public, and where the interests of the public are concerned, it is the duty of the Government to find out what the real trouble is. In many cases strikes start on quite petty matters of dispute, but within a week or two long lists of items of dispute are raised and the strike becomes a difficult matter to settle. We still strongly object to the principle of compulsory arbitration, and I am glad to see that no conditions of this kind appear in this Bill.

With regard to the question of picketing, the Honourable Member in charge has pointed out that the existing law is sufficient to deal with this ; that picketing itself is not illegal but picketing accompanied by intimidation is illegal. Well, Sir, there is no doubt whatever that in the Bombay strikes there has been any amount of picketing amounting to intimidation, but the great trouble is to bring the offenders to book. I do not know apart from this why the provisions of the existing law have not been brought into effect during the last few months, because there is no doubt whatever that strikes have been kept alive by intimidation. Strikers are told that if they go to work their women will be molested and their homes will be looted. The trouble is to prove that these things are done and said.

On the subject of public utility companies and the provisions of this Bill which make it illegal for workers to strike without a month's notice, the Honourable Member in charge has pointed out that we are merely copying a provision from Municipal Acts, the Post Office Act, and so on. I think that this is a provision which nobody in this House will complain of. It is perfectly obvious that the public should not be allowed to be inconvenienced by these sudden strikes, and where the workers have a grievance they should give some notice, there should be some interval, before they go on strike. I feel, Sir, that if this Bill had been in existence, the Bombay strike might have come to an end much earlier. I think that is all I have to say at this stage. I hope that when opinions have been received on this Bill, Government will take steps to push the Bill forward next Session with as much expedition as possible.

Mr. N. M. Joshi (Nominated : Labour Interests) : Sir, as the motion made by the Honourable Member in charge of Industries and Labour is for the circulation of the Bill, I do not wish to make a long speech ; but

[Mr. N. M. Joshi.]

I feel that it is necessary to explain to the House the real nature of some of the principles underlying this Bill. The Honourable Member in charge has admitted that the Government of India have been considering this subject for the last nine years, and considering the long time they have spent over this subject, I feel that the result of their thinking for the last nine years is indeed very poor, disappointing and mischievous.

Well, Sir, so far as the Bill is concerned, nobody can say that the Government of India are acting in a hurry. They have already taken a long time. Perhaps they might even say that they ought to have introduced some Bill to provide for a court of inquiry or a board of conciliation much earlier. But I do not agree with my friend Mr. Cocke that, even if this Bill had been in existence, the Bombay strikes would have come to an end earlier. The termination of a strike depends upon the attitude of the parties engaged in that strike, and so far as I can say, if the mill-owners of Bombay had been willing to place their case before a board of conciliation or a court of inquiry, the workers' side would have been ready at any time. Unfortunately, the mill-owners had not the courage to come before a board of conciliation or a court of inquiry for reasons best known to themselves.

Sir, as far as the first portion of the Bill is concerned, namely, that part of the Bill which provides for the appointment of a court of inquiry or a conciliation, I do not see much reason to object to the principle underlying those provisions. When we come to the discussion of details at a later stage, I may have something to say about the machinery which the Government of India have provided. I do not agree with the Honourable Member in charge of Industries and Labour that there is serious objection to the appointment of panels out of which the representatives of labour and the representatives of the employers should be appointed, on the court of inquiry, but I am quite sure the Honourable Member will consider this question when we come to the consideration of the details of this Bill.

Coming to the second part of this Bill which consists of clause 15 regarding public utility services, I feel, Sir, this House and the public outside will not support the Government in their proposals in this respect. It is true that when the Government of India framed their Bill in 1924 they had a provision regarding public utility services although not exactly in the same form which they have adopted in this Bill. I myself do not understand why workers who work in a public utility service should be treated as if they had committed a sin in taking employment in a public utility service. It is the natural right of every worker to withdraw his labour whenever he thinks that he should do so. I do not suggest that his civil liabilities should be taken away, but it is certainly a sign of slavery if you imprison a man for refusing to do work for a master for whom he does not want to serve. (An Honourable Member : " He can give a month's notice.") He has a right to leave without giving notice. (An Honourable Member : " Why ? ") Well, Sir, I am coming to that. Unfortunately, Sir, this Bill, as framed by the Government of India, is framed at least so far as this clause goes in the interests of the capitalists. It is for that reason that my Honourable friends on the other side are asking " Why ? " I will tell you why. This Bill provides that it is only the worker who must not cease doing his work without notice and, if he does leave his service without notice, he will be sent to jail. But it is not provided in the Bill that if the employer in a public utility service discharges a man without notice he shall also be sent to jail. (An Honourable Member : " That is not the point.") It is on account of that the Honourable Members on the other side are asking me " Why " ? If they once know that if they discharge one of their employees without notice, they will be sent to jail, I am quite sure, they will think twice before they accept this Bill. (An Honourable Member : " Hear, hear. ") Sir, in my judgment, in the first place this provision is superfluous. The Honourable Member in charge of the Department of Industries and Labour himself has stated that, so far as Post Office and Telegraphs are concerned, the employees cannot leave their service without notice.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Finance Member) : Not the Telegraphs.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : Well, then, the Post Office, according to the Post Office Act.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Only certain classes of postmen.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : But, Sir, the public utility service of the Post Office, so far as necessary, is protected, if protection is at all necessary, by the Indian Post Office Act. Then the Honourable Member also admitted that some of the municipal services are also protected. If that is so, I do not know why this Bill should have been introduced at all. (An Honourable Member : " The Railways. ") Well, Sir, so far as the Railways are concerned, I do not think even the Honourable Member has provided in this Bill that all railway work will become a public utility service. Moreover, the Honourable Member said that he wanted to deal with strikes without notice in public utility services. Unfortunately, the Bill is not restricted to a strike. Even if one single individual employee in a public utility service gives up his work without notice, he is liable under the Bill. So, it is not only a strike that is penalised. It is cessation of service by even one single individual employee without notice. And even in that sense the Bill goes too far.

Then, Sir, the Bill, as I had said before, is one-sided. It only penalises cessation of work on the part of the employee. It does not penalise the employer who discharges the employee without notice. It does not penalise an employer who dismisses his employee without notice. But, Sir, even if the Government of India agree to put such a provision regarding the employers in the Bill, I consider that it will not be enough to do justice to the workers. In such cases the workers must be given adequate compensation. It is very easy for the employer to get an employee but, in the case of the worker who loses his job without notice, it is a much greater hardship, especially in a country like India where there is no provision against unemployment. In a country like England things are different. They have got unemployment benefits. If an employee is discharged, for some days at least he will be provided with some benefits if he remains unemployed, but in India, if a man is discharged, it is great loss to him as he may not get another job for a long time. I therefore think that if the Government of India want to introduce such a provision in the Bill they must at least see that the Bill is not one-sided and the one-sidedness of the Bill will not be removed by merely making discharging without notice illegal and by penalising the employer, but some provision must be made to see that the workman is not put to loss. Sir, I can understand the principle that the workers in a public utility service may be treated somewhat differently, but the treatment should not be only to the disadvantage of the workers. If you want to put certain disadvantages on the workers in public utility services, why not give them some advantages also, namely, that they shall get sickness insurance benefits, unemployment benefits and old age pensions. But what the Government have done is to introduce legislation to the disadvantage of the workers without making any special provision by which the workers will be given any compensating advantage.

Well, Sir, the Honourable Member said that the Bill is based on English legislation, but it is not difficult to show that his Bill is much wider than the English law. In the first place the English law has not given power to the Government to declare any industry as a public utility service. If the Government of India take it into their head, under this Bill the textile industry may be declared to be a public utility service. There is nothing in the Bill to prevent that, because the provisions are so wide that any industry may be declared to be a public utility service. Then the Honourable Member said that in England gas-works, electric works and water-works are treated as public utility services, and workers employed in those works cannot leave their posts without notice. But he has not stated the whole position. Even in England, gas-works and water-works in order to get the benefit of section 4 of the Conspiracy and Protection of Property Act of 1875 must be for the public benefit and the gas-works and water-works must be necessary for the community and not for private purposes. But in the case of his Bill that provision is not made. He makes every gas-works and every water-works a public utility service. Then, Sir, the English Act also provides that a worker will be penalised if he ceases work out of malicious intent and with the knowledge that the consequences of his act would be to cause hardship to the community. The Honourable Member has not made any such provision in this Bill. I know, Sir, that section 5 of the English Act has provided that if a man maliciously and with knowledge ceases work in such a manner as to cause danger to life and to valuable property he may also be penalised, while the notorious Act of 1927 has also brought in hardship to the community as a justification for the application of section 5 of the Conspiracy and Protection of Property Act. But, Sir, the Honourable Member in charge of Industries and Labour ought to have told the House that section 6 of the Act of 1875 also imposes responsibility upon employers. If the employer does not provide food where he is bound to provide food and other necessaries for the worker's health, the employer also will be penalized. The English Act is not one-sided as this Bill is. I feel, Sir, he ought to have told this House that the English Act throws some responsibility on the employers also. In this connection I would like to suggest to Government that they ought to have taken into consideration, if they wanted to throw greater responsibility on the workers in public utility services, the legislation which exists in Canada. Not that I approve fully of the Canadian legislation of 1907 ; but certainly that legislation may be said to be fairer than the legislation which the Government of India have introduced. In Canada by the Act of 1907 no doubt a strike is compulsorily postponed. No worker can go on strike without notice or till an inquiry is made. But, on the other hand, by section 6 of that Act the Government also is bound, when an application is made that a dispute is threatened, to make an inquiry. That would give the workers in public utility services some advantage. Let the Government be bound to make an inquiry into the grievances of the workers or into the grievances of employers for that matter, if a strike or dispute is threatened. That is an advantage given to the workers by the Canadian legislation. Section 54 of the Canadian Act prevents an employer from reducing wages or making a change in the conditions of service, such as, hours of work, without notice. This Bill makes no such provision. I submit that if you want to put some disadvantage on the workers in public utility services, you must also give them some advantages. It is wrong, therefore, to introduce clause 15 of this Bill, which is one-sided, and throw the burden of maintaining the public utility services only on the workers. Sir, I do not wish to say anything more on this clause. In regard to clause.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member cannot take clause by clause of the Bill at this stage. He knows that the Honourable the Industries Member has not asked the House to accept the principle of the Bill, and at this stage speeches should be short and to the point.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : Sir, I am not taking clause by clause. Unfortunately the Bill has three or four important principles. The first.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member is not asked to accept the principle of the Bill. This is a motion for circulating the Bill for eliciting public opinion and no one commits himself to the principle of the Bill by accepting it.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : Well, Sir, I am not fond of making speeches. (Several Honourable Members : " Question ? ") I say, I am not. The Honourable Member in charge also made a speech. If he had restrained himself I would not have risen from my seat.

Lastly, Sir, the Government of India have followed the panicky legislation of 1927. The Honourable Member said that that legislation is intended to make general strikes illegal. In the first place, I do not understand why even a general strike should be made illegal. To strike is the natural right of every working man, and why should any human being be penalized for refusing to do work ? But leaving that question, Sir, the Bill, as framed by the Honourable Member, is not restricted to general strikes only. The first part of clause 16 says that if a strike has an object other than the furtherance of a dispute in one industry and also causes hardship to the community, it is an illegal strike. Now the Honourable Member has not defined what one industry means, whether, for instance, the transport industry includes railways, tramways, motor services, etc. Are all these to be taken to mean one industry ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : On a point of order, Sir, is not that a point for the Select Committee, whether you can define your industry ?

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I am just trying to show that your Bill does not apply only to general strikes. Nobody knows really what one industry is. Take the textile industry. Does the textile industry include jute as well as cotton and silk and wool ? It is very difficult to say. Therefore, the Honourable Member must admit that what he is penalising and making illegal is not a general strike, but an ordinary sympathetic strike. I therefore think that this Bill penalises sympathetic strikes. It says that the strike must have an object different from the furtherance of a trade dispute.....

Mr. President : Order, order. I do not wish to interrupt the Honourable Member ; but I hope he will co-operate with the Chair and make some distinction between a motion for Select Committee and a motion for eliciting public opinion.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I am not going to take more than five minute. He must admit that the clause as worded can be applied to strikes which are not general. Then he says " strikes which cause hardship to the community. " Almost every strike causes hardship to the community. Who is to decide whether the hardship is so great that the strike should be made illegal or not ? I do not know any strike which does not cause some hardship to the community. Therefore, this Bill gives power to Government practically to make any strike illegal ; this does not make only general strikes illegal ; but whenever Government please, they can make any big strike illegal. Then, Sir, Government have provided by certain clauses to protect people who are called " black legs ". If the whole body of workers sanctions a strike, some people who ought to join but who do not join are given protection by the Government against the action that may be taken by unions. In this connection I want to make only one remark and it is this. In the first place, what Government have provided by these clauses is unnecessary interference into the working of trades unions ; and secondly the Government of India are somewhat unfair upon unregistered trade unions. Some days ago we discussed the question of registered trade unions and unregistered trade unions and the Government of India and many Members here did not like to recognise the existence of unregistered trade unions and I want to know why the Government should in this Bill recognise the existence of unregistered trade unions. They are giving protection to black-legs, not only to those who are members of registered trade unions, but to those who are members of unregistered trade unions also. I therefore suggest to the Government of India that they should not take notice of unregistered trade unions for this purpose as they did not recognise their existence for giving immunities provided by the Indian Trade Unions Act to registered trade unions.

Sir, I do not wish to speak any more. I feel that the Government of India have done a wrong thing in mixing up a portion of the Bill which may become acceptable to the workers in this country and some portions which can never become acceptable. If they want some Act providing for conciliation and enquiry, they must introduce two Bills ; but if they try to secure the consent of the House by mixing up a part which may be acceptable with a part which is unacceptable, I think, Sir, the Government of India will be disappointed.

Mr. T. Gavin-Jones (United Provinces : European) : Sir, I am very glad to hear that the Honourable Member for Industries proposes to circulate this Bill, for undoubtedly it requires very careful consideration before being passed ; in fact I have received a telegram from the Upper India Chamber of Commerce protesting against the Bill being rushed through. No one, I think, will oppose the principle of a Trade Disputes Bill. Similar legislation has been put through in other countries, particularly in Canada, Australia and England, and has been most beneficial. But we must study these Acts very carefully before we apply them to India, and, as far as I can see in the present Bill, the English Acts have not been sufficiently carefully considered. It is essential that this Act should be framed so as to work smoothly and be effective, and I will refer the Government to one or two clauses in the Bill.

It is not clear in clause 2 (c) whether the interpretation of " employer " includes a private employer ; we think that it should do.

In clause 2 (f), the interpretation of " public utility service " does not include tramways and inland steamer services. These were included in the draft Bill which was circulated in 1924 and we do not know why they have been excluded from this Bill. We think they are important public utility services and should be included.

Clause 3 contains the kernel of the Bill and proposes to refer to Courts of Enquiry or Conciliation Boards. It says :

" If any trade dispute exists or is apprehended between an employer and any of his workmen, the Local Government, or where the employer is the head of a department under the control of the Governor General in Council or is a railway company ''....

The Local Government or the Governor General in Council shall take the initiative ; he may (a) refer the dispute to a Court of Enquiry or (b) refer the dispute to a Board of Conciliation. Then in clause 9 and subsequent clauses judicial powers are given to both the Board of Conciliation and the Court of Enquiry. There is here, Sir, a serious confusion between the functions of the Board of Conciliation and that of the Court of Enquiry. They are bodies appointed for two entirely different purposes. The Board of Conciliation cannot function without the consent of both parties and if both parties consent, all the evidence will naturally be forthcoming from both parties. The Court of Enquiry on the other hand is appointed for obtaining information about facts, and judicial powers are necessary. For the Government to intervene in a dispute on its own initiative and compel the parties to appear and produce witnesses before a Board of Conciliation is contrary to all the ideals and principles of conciliation. A Board of Conciliation must arrange matters by mutual consent. We think, Sir, that the Bill here should follow closely section 2 of the British Industrial Courts Act, 1919, whereunder a Minister can take action, first : On the report of one of the parties ; second : By the consent of both parties ; third : Refer the matter for settlement to the Industrial Court ; 4h : Refer the matter for settlement to the arbitration of one or more persons appointed by him ; or, 5th : Refer the matter for settlement to a Conciliation Board by the mutual consent of both parties. Sir, I think if this clause is entirely recast and the above section is closely followed, this Bill will work smoothly and be more effective. There are other points in the Bill, which require amendment, but I will not take up the time of the House with them now.

I appeal to the Government to consider these points carefully and to recast the whole Bill before bringing it before this House again.

Sir, I support the motion.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney (Nominated : Anglo-Indian) : Sir, representing as I do a class of people who are largely employed in the various utility services, I desire to offer a few remarks on this Bill before it is put in circulation. I am glad Government intends circulating it, for there is no doubt that a Bill of this nature cannot be rushed through without adequate and careful consideration.

While on the one hand I am not in favour of any law that makes for suppressing the rights of the labourer, I refuse to subscribe to any policy that gives unlimited scope or power to the employer. Sir, I am in agreement with this Bill from clauses 1 to 14. I consider that the institution of Conciliation Boards will have a very beneficial effect on all labour disputes, and I think that the Honourable Mr. Gavin-Jones brought forward some important points in connection with these Conciliation Boards. One is tempted to ask what is the necessity for this Bill ? It seems to me that, had Government, a few years ago, realised the importance of such Boards, Committees or Arbitration Councils as one finds in England, e.g., the Whitley Committee and other Committees of the like nature, such a Bill would never have been necessary in India to-day. I remember the time very well—I take my memory back to 1917, only 11 years ago—when an extensive strike took place on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. Matters reached a deadlock, the dispute was eventually referred to arbitration, and the arbitrators decided in favour of the strikers. In those days there was give and take between employees and employers, and trade disputes and strikes were, as a rule, settled by arbitration ; to-day it seems that Government find it necessary to introduce a Bill of this nature to settle them. Why ? Is Government entirely blameless ? As I said just now, I am in favour of clauses 1 to 14, but not of clauses 15 and 16, and here, to a certain extent, I take my stand with my friend Mr. Joshi. (Opposition Cheers.) As I read through clauses 15 and 16 and the following ones, two conundrums present themselves to me. One is : " When is a strike not a strike ? " The answer, according to this Bill, seems to be : " When the employer is affected." The other is : " When is a strike a strike ? " Answer : " When the employee is affected ". I do think that to put a Bill like this into operation, especially clauses 15 and 16, is not only to limit but to interfere with the freedom of the employee. As Mr. Joshi rightly pointed out, why should the employer only have the right of dismissing a servant, may be at the beginning or the middle of a month, giving him a month's pay in lieu of notice, and at the same time depriving the man of his overtime ? Surely the employee cannot be denied an equal right, if he is prepared to forfeit his month's pay. He cannot be denied this by ordinary law, but this is exceptional law, to serve a special purpose. The House spent four long days in trying to prevent India painting itself red. It seems to me that these clauses should more appropriately have been embodied in that Bill—The Public Safety Bill. (An Honourable Member : " Nonsense ".) It may seem so to you, but not to me because for almost similar offences in the one Bill you deport the European British subject while, in this Bill, you desire to fine or imprison the Indian British subject.

Now, Sir, I would like to read to the House, Sir John Simon's opinion on the right to strike. This is what he says :

" That the strike properly understood was perfectly lawful. It was an essential part of the right of the British wage-earner that he should have a right to strike and that right ought never to be taken away from him, nor would any of those who really appreciated the character of British traditions really wish to take it away. But the regulation by the Trade Union Executive to call out everybody, regardless of contracts which the workmen had made, was not a lawful act at all."

I am in agreement with the principle that in the case of a general strike, in which various utility services strike together, legislation of a special nature might be necessary and might be put into operation, but to include in this Bill individual utility services, e.g., Postal, Telegraph, Customs, Railway Services, etc., is to deprive a body of workmen of their right of defence of their economic rights, and for this reason I do think that Government will be ill advised to include these two objectionable clauses. I however certainly do agree that those agitators who go about the country with impunity, fomenting strikes, sowing seeds of disaffection or Communism among workmen, should be dealt with summarily, but why should illiterate, innocent, misled workmen be subject to such drastic action ? If a clause were put into this Bill that the ringleaders of strikes should be seized, tried and punished, it would be more deterrent and would receive my approval. There are certain people in all communities, well known to Government, who are ringleaders of strikes, who foment strikes for their personal ends. Well ! I say, keep an eye on them and punish them without fear or delay, but do not punish the employee who has every justification, should he resent an unjust punishment, to refuse to work. He should not be forced to work against his wishes or will. He should not be deprived of his citizenship rights or a legitimate weapon of economic defence.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : I should like to draw the Honourable Member's attention to clause 17 (1), second part, which reads :

" Provided that no person shall be deemed to have committed an offence under this section by reason only of his having ceased work or refused to continue to work or to accept employment."

The clause as drawn up does not apply to ordinary strikers, but only to the ringleaders and those who act in furtherance of a strike.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Clause 15 gives Government power to punish any individual who strikes in an utility service, with one month's imprisonment or with a fine of Rs. 50, and any one who aids and abets him in such an offence with three months' imprisonment or a fine of Rs. 500. This I absolutely disapprove of and speaking for my community we shall not agree to this section. I approve of the Bill as far as clauses 1 to 14 are concerned, but I certainly do not approve of the Bill as far as clauses 15 and 16 are concerned. I therefore strongly advise Government to amend these clauses or to add some provision which does not deprive any workman of his right to strike.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar (Madura and Ramnad cum Tinnevelly : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I agree with the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill that the public are equally interested in these strikes which are bound to exist so long as there is this eternal competition between capital and labour. I cannot, however, congratulate the Government on the provisions made in this Bill. It appears to me that the labour point of view has not been given that attention which it deserves ; and some of the provisions, especially part 3 of this Bill, are so much against the growth of labour organisations in this country that I would advise the complete deletion of part 3 of the Bill ; and in getting this Bill circulated I would offer the suggestion to the Honourable Member in charge that circulation should not in this case be confined to the stereotyped list of bodies and associations, to which Bills are usually circulated, but should also be circulated to all Trade Unions, all railway employees' unions, postal unions, and other similar organisations. It is then that we will have ideas of what they think of this Bill.

So far as the provisions are concerned, I have no doubt that there have been demands for arbitration boards for some time past. But the question is whether the courts of inquiry and the boards of conciliation which this Bill provides for are really the kind of arbitration boards which labour would have. For these boards to act successfully as arbitrators, the imperative necessity is to make them sufficiently impartial so that they might give satisfaction prima facie to both parties to the dispute, and especially in the case of State railways ; where the State happens to be the employer it will not enhance the impartial nature of these arbitration boards or these conciliation boards to make the Government the appointing agent of these boards. Labour must be given a chance as to the choice of some of those that might sit on these boards ; otherwise it would not give them satisfaction. The recent South Indian Railway strike seems to be in point as an illustration of what I say. I have been closely following the movement of the South Indian Railway employees' association. The South Indian Railway Agent wanted to give effect to a certain policy of retrenchment which he had in view. Certainly that necessitated some inconvenience to the employees concerned. The employees made known to the Agent their demands and asked for redress. There was not that quick and sympathetic response which was expected of the Agent in such a case. The Agent remained indifferent and then the employees applied to the Agent asking for the matters of difference between the employees and the employers to be referred to the arbitration of the Labour Commissioner. Sir, we have got such a functionary as the Labour Commissioner in Madras. They wanted that the matters in dispute should be referred to the Labour Commissioner. Then also there was no response and then they took the step of reporting the matter to the Labour Commissioner directly, asking him to intercede and to arbitrate. The Labour Commissioner remained indifferent. And as a last hope, the employees applied to the Government direct asking them to intereede in the matter and to see that their grievances were redressed. The Government was equally indifferent. What could they do in those circumstances ? They despaired of moving the South Indian Railway authorities to redress their grievances and consequently they had recourse to a strike. I ask the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill what provisions he has made in this Bill which would apply to the conditions that I have just enumerated. What are the provisions in the Bill which would have enabled the South Indian Railway employees in those circumstances to take the initiative of insisting that their matters of difference should be settled by an arbitration board ? So, I submit that clause 3 of the Bill ought to be so amended that the employees also are given a voice in the matter not only of the choice of arbitrators but also of the mode of reference to these boards.

One other matter which I seriously take objection to is this. I see in clause 13 that provision is made to keep secret the enquiries that these courts of inquiry and the conciliation boards have to undertake. Now, what is the secrecy in matters of dispute that are openly referred to these courts of inquiry ? Why should anything be kept confidential ? Why should an enquiry be held in secret ? Clause 5 says :

" A court shall, either in public or in private at its discretion, inquire into the matters referred to it and report thereon to the authority by which the court was appointed."

I submit that the secrecy provided for in clause 5 is entirely out of place. Again when certain documents are placed before conciliatory boards, it is also laid down that the documents referred to by those courts ought to be kept confidential. That certainly would not enhance the prestige of the enquiry that is sought to be made by these boards. As I have already said, part 3 deserves complete deletion for this reason ; because in the Statement of Objects and Reasons it is said that these provisions were copied out of the British Trade Disputes and Trade Unions Act, 1927. But the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill must remember that we are called upon to deal with a different stage of development in the industries of this country. In this country, industries are more or less in a stage of transition and labour organisations are not so well developed and equipped in India as they are in England. So, it is no use transplanting or incorporating the corresponding provisions in the Trade Unions Act of England into Indian legislation and making them applicable wholesale to the trade unions and labour organisations in this country.

One other anomalous provision that is made here is to give a premium to the black-legs of trade unions. Special provision is made to encourage black-legs. These black-legs are made immune from punishment for disobeying the orders of trade unions. Here I see the policy of divide and rule and this policy is made specially applicable to this category of employees. I submit that that is also a matter which has to be taken into consideration and this provision also must be deleted.

With these remarks, I submit that, if the Bill goes out for circulation, and public opinion is obtained on its provisions, I would reiterate my request that trade unions and labour organisations should be specially invited to give their opinions on this Bill.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half Past Two of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I welcome this Bill and I also welcome its circulation in the country. Sir, I do not like strikes. Strikes hold up the ordinary business of the country and bring in great suffering to the people. They do not bring any dividend to the investor who has invested his money to capitalise an undertaking. Nor do they bring labour any apparent profit or advantage. As we have found recently during the strikes in this country, labour has had to go without its wages for months at a stretch. Sir, I was very much surprised to hear the interpretation which my Honourable friend Colonel Gidney gave to the word " strike ". He quoted one eminent authority with whom I am also acquainted, and if Colonel Gidney had gone a little further and read one or two lines more from that authority he would have seen what the Right Hon'ble gentleman really thought of strikes. I will just quote those two lines from Sir John Simon's speech in the House of Commons in 1926. He said :

" Every workman who was bound by a contract to give notice before he left work and who, in view of that decision, has either chosen of his free will or felt compelled to come out by leaving his employment without proper notice, has broken the law."

[Mr. B. Das.]

When an employee or workman breaks a contract, I think, Sir, he has broken the strike law. Colonel Gidney was not right to say that anybody can bring off a strike.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : Why do you quote a Liberal ?

Mr. B. Das : I think I can quote a Liberal if he meets my point, but I will quote your own Labour leaders too by and by. I am coming to that. My Honourable friend Mr. Joshi, for whom I have the highest respect, is the advocate of labour in this House. I have every sympathy with labour's claims ; but when labour tries to hold up the trade of the country and paralyses industries I have no sympathy with it. My Honourable friend Mr. Joshi talked of two things and he advocated that there should be general strikes and sympathetic strikes in this country. If this Bill is passed into law, it will put a stop to general strikes and sympathetic strikes. With your permission, Sir, and with the permission of the House I shall quote two eminent Labour leaders' views about sympathetic strikes and general strikes, and I hope Mr. Joshi will agree with them. I now read a passage from a speech of Mr. Cramp, the Industrial Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen who expressed his view on the General Strikes. This is his view :

" There would not again be a general strike of that character. He did not believe that the general industrial strike could ever be carried out effectively, because if they carried it to its logical conclusion they starved and paralysed themselves as well as everybody else."

I hope my friend Mr. Joshi will accept the statement of Mr. Cramp. Then I have another authority on the sympathetic strike and that gentleman happens to be no less a man than the Leader of the Labour Party in England and a man who is held in very high esteem in the labour world of India—I mean Mr. Ramsay Macdonald. Mr. Ramsay Macdonald wrote in April 1924 :

" All my life I have been opposed to the sympathetic strike. It has no practical value. It is simply beating the air. It has one certain result—a bitter and blinding reaction."

Sir, India is not such a country of agitators that we can think of general strikes and sympathetic strikes.

Sir, as regards this Bill I wish to say that there should have been two Bills and not one Bill. Clauses 1 to 14 of this Bill are already long overdue and many of us on this side of the House expressed that view, that there should be conciliation boards to settle trade disputes specially when you, Sir, were a Member on the floor of the House you wanted such a measure to be introduced in connection with the first Steel Protection Bill whereby disputes between Tatas and their employees could be settled at Jamshedpur, I think the Government have taken a long time to bring this Bill about conciliation boards, etc., before us. My Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi, suggested that there should be panels from which the arbitrators should be chosen. I entirely agree with him and my views are that the trade unions should be allowed to nominate a certain panel and that the Chambers of Commerce and the employers should be allowed to choose a certain panel from which the Government of India in the Industries and Labour Department may choose a particular arbitration board. I wish the other clauses of the Bill which apply to the sympathetic strike could have been introduced in the form of another Bill.

What are the Government trying to do ? The Government are trying to embody legislation of Parliament which was embodied in three of four Acts in the House of Commons. One, to which my friend Mr. Joshi referred, was passed in 1875, one in 1906, and a third in 1926. If the Government in England took all that time to create the proper atmosphere, we cannot expect that India can have the same experience as the House of Commons or as the Labour Party in England, and England took a period of fifty years to acquire knowledge to frame her legislation. I suggest that Government should not introduce such penalising clauses as have been introduced in clause 15, 16 and 17, and I think after this Bill comes back from the country we shall have to see whether we cannot modify these provisions about the illegality of strikes and the penal clauses relating to those who promote strikes to suit the conditions of the people in this country.

Sir, I have to make one more reference to my friend Mr. Joshi. Strikes are not a pleasant thing. They are causing a lot of hardship and lots of people are starving on account of these strikes. The people who bring about these strikes always ask for more wages even though a particular industry cannot bear the extra charges on it. Let me make it clear. I do not desire the capitalist to profiteer nor the Labour to exploit. I would like an adequate share of the profits of an industry to go to all the employers, and the employees and also the section to which I belong—namely, brains. Surely those people who advocate strikes ought to consider how much an industry can stand in the way of wages to workers. I hope the workers before they go on strike will see that the particular industry can stand the wages which they demand. That is a thing often forgotten by the labour world and it is the cause of many of the strikes that the country has to face. I do not believe, Sir, that there are any Bolsheviks or Communists behind these strikes ; but at times I believe that there are unknown men who want to blossom forth into full-fledged leaders and they are responsible for these small and big strikes all over the country, and I say that those who are responsible for the condition of our labour in this country should see that such mushroom leaders do not thrive in the labour camp and that they are not allowed to bring about unnecessary strikes that cause so much harassment and trouble to, at times, millions of people and that incapacitate our industries and incidentally reduce the national wealth of the country.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla (Bombay Central Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to record my protest on the motion before the House. I thought Government were anxious to settle the strike at an early date ; but looking at the motion before the House I do not think the Government have at all considered the recommendations sent by the Bombay Government, nor the strikes that are going on now in the Bombay City. I do not know, Sir, what tangible reason Government have advanced for bringing in a dilatory motion and forcing this House to accept it ; because looking at the Standing Orders one finds that it is impossible for any non-official Member to bring in a motion for a Select Committee, if Government bring forward a motion for circulation. I wish, Sir, Government had brought forward the motion which they originally intended for a Select Committee and left it to the House to decide which motion they preferred. Sir, the only reason that the Honourable Member for Industry and Labour has advanced is that there is no time. Now, we wish to know who is to blame for it. Why should Government have decided to have such a short Session of three weeks when two important Bills were before the House ? Government know from their past experience that in a House of 144 Members, each party and men who wish to express their opinions on the Bills must speak, and necessarily therefore that involves time ; and I would like to know from the Honourable Member for Industries and Labour why he did not think it proper to request Government, in view of these two important Bills coming before the House, to have the Session prolonged. Sir, I consider this Bill to be more important than the Bill which will be debated on Monday next, the Public Safety Bill, for this reason that the commercial community, both European and Indian, in Bombay had sent a wire and requested the Government not only to publish the Bill but to take immediate action and bring up this Bill. The Honourable Member for Industries has told that the Government of Bombay made a representation to them as far back as 1924 ; and still the Government of India have not thought it proper to bring forward a motion for Select Committee. I think, Sir, Government should realise the responsibility which they are taking by prolonging a measure of this importance.

As regards the point made by my friend, Mr. Joshi, that the labour leaders were anxious for a conciliation board or for conciliation, but that the millowners did not come forward in the manner they liked, I would like to reply to him by the speech which I will just read of Mr. J. B. Petit, the Chairman of the Bombay Millowners Association, delivered recently in Bombay :

" For our part,"

he continued,

" we have done everything we could to end this deadlock. Those who have followed the long negotiations for the setting up of a conciliation board would testify to the sincere anxiety of the owners for a fair and just settlement. But on every occasion it is the strike leaders who, after securing the maximum concession, broke away by insisting upon impractical demands. We agreed to the conciliation board; we agreed to the terms of reference ; we agreed to the inclusion among them of the consideration of all the 17 demands. The essential preliminary of all efforts at conciliation is the suspension of all bellicose activities. This the strike leaders would not agree to, except on impossible conditions."

I hope my Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi, will realise that if he agrees to a conciliation board he cannot continue the strike for that period.....

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I put a question to my Honourable friend ? Is it provided in the present Bill that strikes must be suspended before the court of inquiry or a board of conciliation is to be appointed ?

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : It is provided here to make the strike impossible by giving notice to the owners that you are going to strike....

Mr. N. M. Joshi : I am afraid you have not read the Bill.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : So that those owners who know that there is going to be a strike can find other men to take their places.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : It is not laid down here that every strike is illegal.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : No ; but it is made penal.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : It is not.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : Of course it is. I hope Government will explain, apart from the reason that they have given, namely, that there is no time, the responsibility they have taken in asking this House to accept a dilatory motion.

Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah (Ganjam cum Vizagapatam : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, the Honourable the Mover of this Bill in speaking on the Public Safety Bill stated that Labour was in its infancy, that it wanted the protection of the Government and the Government would therefore not only protect it against outsiders, but also against itself. This shows that Government wants to treat Labour as an incapacitated person and to constitute itself as its trustee. This rôle of trustee is not new to us. Government constituted itself the trustee of India and Indians so long ago as 175 years back, and it still continues to consider Indians as perpetual minors. Government, Sir, now threatens to assume this rôle with respect to Labour. Indians, I must submit, can no longer be deceived by such assumptions and Labour might very well say, " Save me from such friends ". If, for this statement of mine, any justification were necessary, the Bill before the House affords ample proof.

The intention of this Bill is said to be to further the interests of Labour. But, Sir, I find that the Bill would help the Employer and not the Labourer at all. It places many impediments in the way of Labour, while creating facilities for the Employer. The Bill, I may characterise, Sir, without any exaggeration, as very reactionary and mischievous. In my opinion, no mending of this Bill will set matters right ; if, really, it is to be of any use to the public, it must be ended or it must be completely overhauled or another Bill with a better and more liberal spirit should be conceived and introduced in this House.

The object of this Bill is stated to be to prevent strikes and to settle trade disputes. To give effect to the objects of this Bill, certain tribunals are to be brought into existence.

The Bill makes provision for Government being the sole judges for determining if these tribunals should or should not come into existence ; and when these tribunals are brought into existence, the appointing authority is made the Government itself, and what are these judges to do, when they are appointed to these tribunals ? They are not to decide trade disputes finally between the parties, but they are merely to make recommendations or reports to Government on which the Government might or might not act, at its pleasure.

It is a well-known fact, Sir, that in this country the Government is the largest Employer of Labour. It owns almost all the Railways in this country, and the trade disputes are, generally, between the Government as Employer and the Labourers as Employees. In countries where the Government is not an Employer, there is at least some justification for Government taking upon itself the duty of appointing judges to these tribunals. In these circumstances, Sir, in a country like India, the decisions or the results of the inquiry by these tribunals will be suspected to be foregone conclusions. The chief drawback of Government appointing judges is that it is Government. As a rule, Sir, in almost all countries the Government commands the confidence of Employers more than that of Labourers, except in countries such as Australia where the Government is controlled by Labour. In spite of these disadvantages,

[Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah.]

Sir, I admit there can be no better agency than Government to bring into existence machinery to settle these trade disputes considering the resources, information and facilities it commands. In the circumstances, Sir, we cannot help accepting Government agency as an inevitable evil. The only thing to be done therefore is to try and minimise the evils that attend upon Government being the agency for bringing these tribunals into existence. This can only be done, Sir, by making these tribunals altogether free of Government control and making them not subordinate to but independent of Government. This can be done in several ways. One of the ways is.....

Mr. President : These are matters of detail. The Bill is going to the country. It is not going to the Select Committee.

Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Sir, I am making certain suggestions so that the public may give expression to their views on these suggestions.

Mr. President : You are a member of the public.

Mr. Varahagiri Venkata Jogiah : Then, Sir, as has been pointed out by my Honourable friend, Mr. Sesha Ayyangar, there are other provisions of this Bill which are very dangerous. For instance, the Bill makes provision for these tribunals to make inquiries in private, that is, confidential enquiries. This provision, Sir, especially in the present state of conflict between the Employer and the Employee will be considered very dangerous and it should be very strongly opposed.

There are also other powers, which this Bill gives to these tribunals, such as those of adjourning their proceedings with a view to effect compromises. This is a provision, Sir, which is detrimental to the interests of labour, because this makes the proceedings dilatory, and it would affect the Labourers more than the Employers, because it would starve the Labourers and they cannot stand the prolonging of these proceedings.

Then, with regard to the public utility service, provisions that have been incorporated in the Bill, I would like to say only one word. These are altogether one-sided. As has been pointed out by my Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi, while it provides penalties for giving up service without notice, or without permission, so far as the Employees are concerned, it provides no penalties for the Employers. There is not one word breathed, in any part of the Bill, about the right of Employees to be allowed to work, unless dismissed, after due inquiry or for proved misconduct.

The penal provisions, Sir, which are embodied in this Bill again are of a very dangerous character and give arbitrary powers to Government and leave a very wide door open to harass and punish disinterested public workers in the cause of labour. I wish to make only one other observation with respect to the provisions in the Bill. Sir, with regard to the provision of admitting " black-legs " into the Unions, the Bill provides, in fact insists, that persons failing to abide by the decisions arrived at by Unions should be admitted into the Unions. I submit, Sir, this will give free scope for Government spies and Employers' agents to swarm into these Unions and to sabotage their growth.

With regard to this Bill being copied from the Trade Disputes (Amendment) Bill that was lately passed in Great Britain, I may say, Sir, that Labour is in its very infant stages in this country, and therefore all the provisions that were passed in Great Britain should not be copied and introduced here. Further, there is a great difference between Great Britain and this country with regard to Labour. As I have already pointed out, Sir, in this country Government itself is, to a large extent, the Employer, whereas in Great Britain and other countries the case is different ; therefore there is no analogy between the conditions prevailing in Great Britain and this country in that matter.

I have, in these circumstances, no hesitation in saying that this Bill is a deliberate and unjustifiable attack on the elementary rights of Labour. In this connection I am glad to observe, Sir, that the Chamber of Commerce of Calcutta has lately passed resolutions condemning this Bill.

Sir Pushotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber : Indian Commerce) : Sir, I want to say a few words in connection with the remarks that fell from my Honourable friend Mr. Cocke this morning. It is quite true that the Indian Merchants' Chamber, Bombay, coupled with the Bombay Chamber of Commerce did send a wire to the Government of India hoping that this Bill would be published immediately and that it might be possible for Government to see the Bill through this Session. The point, however, to remark is—and that is why I claim the attention of the House for a few minutes—that at that time we did not know that the Bill had been drawn up in the manner in which it is before the House. My Chamber felt that this Bill would be on the lines of the Bill circulated by the Government of India in 1924, and the third part of the Bill against which we have heard so much from Mr. Joshi, Mr. Jogiah and others, my Committee were not aware, would form part of this Bill. Obviously, if the Government of India want to include in this Bill these clauses which are highly contentious, it is only right that the Government of India should circulate the Bill and not consider it in this Session.

3 P.M.

Sir, my Chamber are anxious that there should be devised some method of putting an end to these labour strikes and differences, but the Government of India have, if I may say so, a great knack of trying to close the stable door after the horse has flown. Strikes have been and are on and one does not know what may not happen during the next few months. I really wonder why the Government of India think it necessary to put in this Bill, some parts which make the Bill a highly contentious one. The position of my Chamber can be summarized as follows :—Legislation regulating industrial disputes is long overdue, but they were anxious that such legislation will help in the prevention of such disputes and not be the cause of either repression of or injustice to the working class. I hope that when the Bill comes back to this House after being circulated, the Government of India will be able to devise some method by which the non-contentious, or the least contentious part, of the Bill may pass through the Legislature and the rest may be discussed at leisure.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Sir, I have no intention to reply to the various points that have been raised by the earlier speakers, because most of them I think are points which can very well be discussed in Select Committee. Many of them are interesting and some of them are important, but I think the time for discussing them is not now. There is one point, however, which is directly relevant to the motion for circulation which was raised by my friend Mr. Sesha Ayyangar, and that is that we should take special steps to see that in the circulation of this Bill it should be brought prominently to the notice of the trade unions and other similar bodies who are directly interested, and my friend Colonel Gidney raised a similar point about the Anglo-Indian and Domiciled European Association. Well, Sir, I think I can say that while we employ the ordinary machinery of circulation, I shall certainly do my best to see that Honourable Members' wishes are followed in these matters by special instructions to Local Governments. That, Sir, is all I wish to say.

[Mr. A. C. McWatters.]

Mr. President : The question is :

"That the Bill to make provision for the investigation and settlement of trade disputes, and for certain other purposes, be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinions thereon."

The motion was adopted.

THE DANGEROUS DRUGS BILL.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill to centralise and vest in the Governor General in Council the control over certain operations relating to dangerous drugs and to increase and render uniform throughout British India the penalties for offences relating to such operations, be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinions thereon.

Sir, the Bill, though it looks bulky, is really a simple one. Its objects are two-fold, firstly to centralise and vest in the Governor General in Council the control over certain operations relating to dangerous drugs, and secondly to increase and render uniform throughout British India the penalties for offences relating to such operations. As mentioned in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, the measure is intended to implement certain obligations undertaken by the Government of India by ratifying the Geneva Dangerous Drugs Convention of 1925.

Sir, I move.

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar : Sir, I have no desire to interrupt the course of business in this House by any lengthy speech, but I wish to state a few points with reference to this matter. I find, Sir, that this Bill is already a highly belated Bill and still the Government indulge in making a dilatory motion also. It has been the unfortunate lot of this country that from the very beginning Government have been persisting in their policy relating to opium and dangerous drugs more actuated by considerations of revenue than by considerations of the health and morality of the country. Sir, I do not propose to go into the old history at this moment, because I have on several previous occasions discussed before this House the ancient history, and to bring it up to date it is beyond doubt that this Government have been so obstinate with reference to their policy relating to opium that they have never attempted to recede a step from it. Sir, the most unfortunate thing for this country was that, while some attempts were made by philanthropists in England to bring this Government of India into a state of morality and ethics towards their people and subjects, the unfortunate Commission of 1893, the Royal Commission, came with the object of settling matters and dictating certain principles to this Government. But then my Honourable friend's predecessor in office, Sir David Barbour, put a strong spoke in the wheel and pulled the Commission by the nose with his cry of 6 millions of revenue from opium, and therefore it was that the recommendations of the Commission, which were expected to be favourable to this country, became most unfavourable and most unfortunate. But, Sir, luckily for the world at large and for this country in particular, the League of Nations came in and began to agitate this question over and over again, and, while all the other nations represented in the League were in favour of bringing opium consumption to such a state that nothing but quantities needed for medical and scientific use should be allowed to be manufactured. This country represented by its British delegation which I once before remarked only plays second fiddle to the British delegation from England, put so many obstructions that until it was absolutely diluted they would not give their consent to it. In this course, Sir, they have on various occasions before the League of Nations never spared the leaders of this country and slandered them to the utmost. They have slandered Mahatma Gandhi ; they have slandered other political leaders of this country, by saying that they never once objected to the opium policy of the Government of India. Sir, Mr. Campbell dared to make some such statement which was cabled here by Mr. Andrews. And, Sir, the same slander was echoed by my Honourable friend who has now become our colleague, Mr. McWatters. Sir, the Honourable Mr. McWatters said in the Council of State in words which I quoted on a previous occasion :

"The Honourable Mr. McWatters, on behalf of Government, regretted that except for a few workers like Mr. Andrews, there had been very little public opinion expressed in this matter, and said that the Indian National Congress discovered this opium question only last year."

Then after making that statement :

"Even though he had declared this in such strong terms, we are told by the Honourable Mr. McWatters that there has been no public opinion in this country condemning the policy of Government in this matter."

Sir, he is evidently ignorant of the agitation that has been going on for a long time. In fact, the late Mr. Gokhale gave his life to this question and sacrificed his life without any effect. Sir, leader after leader in Congress after Congress from public platforms on many occasions have condemned the opium policy of the Government of India and still this Government would not yield an inch and yet they slander these very leaders behind their backs to their heart's content. But, Sir, we are glad that now at least the Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra has come up with a Bill of this kind. But I am perfectly certain that this Bill, even if it is passed into law as it stands, would not give any real benefit to this country, unless it is thoroughly changed. Sir, in 1923, in the League, the American delegate pressed strongly for two things which if this Government had any responsibility towards their own subjects should have been immediately accepted without any objection being raised.

"In May 1923 the American delegate asked that the following two propositions should be incorporated, namely :

1. If the purpose of the Hague Opium Convention is to be achieved according to its spirit and true intent it must be recognized that the use of opium products for other than medicinal and scientific purposes is an abuse and not legitimate.

2. In order to prevent the abuse of these drugs, it is necessary to exercise the control of the production of raw opium in such a manner that there will be no surplus available for non-medical and non-scientific purposes.

The representatives of the powers associated themselves with these sentiments except India which made an exception with regard to opium."

Sir, on many of these occasions when the League of Nations meets our representatives they give various versions about the necessity of opium in this country. They do not hesitate to say that opium was a social and religious necessity of this country, and when that observation was reiterated by Sir Basil Blackett on the floor of this House my friend Mr. Harbilas Sarda got up and objected to such a statement being made. But that is the way in which they manage the business outside the country, and within the country they were never tired of increasing their revenue, even by working up the internal consumption when the export to China was curtailed. I remember that the Honourable Sir Basil Blackett brought a Resolution on the floor of this House in 1926, when we of the Swaraj party were all out of this House, and even then he did not want to come to any understanding about the reduction of the internal consumption of opium in this country, but wanted to take steps with reference to export to other countries. The idea of protecting the subjects of this country has always been very far off from the Members on that side.

Now, Sir, I will refer to a few Articles of the Convention. Article 1 of the Convention was :

"Except as provided in paragraph 3 of this article with regard to retail sale, the importation, sale and distribution of opium shall be a monopoly of the Government and the right to import, sell or distribute opium shall not be leased, accorded or delegated to any persons whatever."

Article 2 is :

"The sale of opium to minors shall be prohibited. All possible steps shall be taken by the Contracting Powers to prevent the spread of the habit of opium smoking among minors."

Article 3 is :

"No minors shall be permitted to enter any smoking divan."

Article 4 is :

"The Contracting Powers shall limit as much as possible the number of retail shops and, where smoking divans are permitted, the number of divans."

Sir, these absolute prohibitions were required by the Convention. I may also read another Article of the Convention, Article 5, which reads :

"The Contracting Parties shall enact effective laws or regulations to limit exclusively to medical and scientific purpose the manufacture, import, sale, distribution, export and use of the substances to which this Chapter applies. They shall co-operate with one another to prevent the use of these substances for any other purposes."

Sir, these are the points upon which the League of Nations has always been very particular. I wish to ask the Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra whether he has made any provision for these total prohibitions in the Bill which he has placed before the House. Sir, from clauses 4 to 8 of the Bill before the House we find what are prohibited and what not. Clause 4 alone makes some provision for total abolition. All the other clauses provide loopholes by saying "He shall not do so and so..... save under rules framed by the Governor General in Council or by the Local Governments." In fact this Bill is not for total prohibition, nor for regulating consumption, but to cover all the operations by way of rules to be framed by the Governor General in Council and the Local Governments. In fact the Bill may be considered as an eye-wash ; the only principle underlying it is to throw dust into the eyes of the League of Nations. Next time they go to the League they will say, here you are, we have passed a big legislation about this matter ; we have done our duty to the world and to our subjects. I would ask the Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra whether all these things, which are required to be absolutely prohibited according to the Convention, will be prohibited by the rules to be framed under this Bill. Once we have passed this Bill and conferred this rule-making power on the Governor General in Council, the rules will never come before the House. All we shall have on the Statute-book is that rules may be framed and may be enforced and that licenses may be granted under certain conditions. But how those rules are framed and what the effect of those rules is never comes before this House for discussion on the floor of this House for modification or extension. Therefore, Sir, for my part at any rate, I do not entertain any hopes that by this Bill there will follow that ethical reform which is absolutely necessary for nation-building. Not if this Bill goes on the Statute-book as it stands now. I have found, Sir, that Government look upon revenue as the sole consideration in these matters. They would be ready to agree to the age of consent being raised to 15 because they do not lose any revenue by that. If, however, Sir, a fee were to be charged on all marriages below a certain age, the Government would surely support early marriages. That is the spirit in which they carry on. I am sure, Sir, that by this Bill nothing of any value to India will result ; it is merely a handsome presentation to the League of Nations, to show how much they have done in standing by the Convention which they have signed.

I do not propose to oppose this motion for circulation at this stage, because no purpose is served by doing it. It would only encourage the Government to carry on with the policy which they have hitherto followed. There is only one suggestion I wish to make in the matter of the circulation of this Bill for eliciting public opinion. Care must be taken as to whom they consult in a matter like this. A warning has already been given in the case of the previous Bill by my friends Mr Sesha Ayyangar and Mr. Jogiah, and I want to repeat that warning here. So far as I have been able to see from my experience in this House of four or five years the procedure which the Government follow in the matter of circulation is somewhat as follows. If the Bill relates, for instance, to the mercantile marine it will be sent to High Court Judges for opinion. If there is an amendment of the Succession Act, then it will be sent to Chambers of Commerce for opinion. If the matter relates to the marriage reform of the Hindus, it will be sent to Christian missionaries for opinion. If the Bill relates to divorce amongst Christians, Hindus will be consulted. This is the manner in which Bills are circulated for opinion.

[Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar.]

What is the good of getting opinions like that? Therefore, I would request my friend Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra to take the opinions of the leaders of the people on this question. Let them not be abused and slandered any longer for not giving their opinions against the policy of the Government of India. And I would suggest too that in making their suggestions they ought not to deal with minor matters of detail, such as the wording of clauses, but go into the substance of the Bill. I would request the public men who are consulted to think deeply over the matter of how best to make this Bill really effective and useful by making suggestions as to total prohibition to be enforced in certain matters; for instance, total prohibition of sale of opium to minors, to women, factory workers, etc. These are questions which they must take into consideration definitely and seriously. I hope opinions like that will be collected and I hope also that instead of shelving it again, the Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra will try to bring it up as early as possible in the Delhi session.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra: Sir, I have listened with great interest to the speech made by my friend Mr. Duraiswamy Aiyangar. He has, however, overlooked one thing, namely, that this Bill leaves the existing law about internal consumption of raw opium alone; that is, it does not propose to interfere with the Local Governments' authority in this particular matter. That being so, Sir, many of the remarks which fell from my Honourable friend are irrelevant for purposes of the present Bill. In regard to the other point, that is circulation, that, Sir, I believe, is a matter of procedure for the Legislative Assembly Secretariat, because the circulation will be arranged for not by the administrative department but by the Legislative Assembly Secretariat.

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar: May I ask the Honourable Member what he means in this Bill by "inter-provincial transport," "inter-provincial export" and "inter-provincial import" and with reference to the sale of opium whether he intends to do anything at all for the reduction of internal consumption? I entertained too much hope that he was going to reduce internal consumption also. Am I to be considered to be mistaken on that point?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra: The Bill has nothing to do with the internal consumption of raw opium. My recollection is that it was last year probably, or in 1926, that Sir Basil Blackett made in this House a full statement explaining the attitude of Government in regard to that matter.

Mr. President: So all the trouble of the Honourable Member is wasted?

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar: Yes, I am sorry. I had some hope.

Mr. President: The question is:

"That the Bill to centralise and vest in the Governor General in Council the control over certain operations relating to dangerous drugs and to increase and render uniform throughout British India the penalties for offences relating to such operations be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinions thereon."

The motion was adopted.

THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters (Member for Industries and Labour): Sir, I move that the Bill further to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923, for certain purposes, be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinions thereon. This Bill, Sir, as I explained on an earlier occasion, is merely an attempt to correct certain defects which we have discovered in the working of this Act during the four years in which it has been in operation. They are mainly suggestions made by the Commissioners of Workmen's Compensation, and for one of them, that relating to the extension of the Act to workmen employed by contractors on railways, we are indebted to a suggestion made by my Honourable friend Mr. Joshi in our Standing Advisory Committee. On the more general question of considering whether the Act as a whole needs revision in matters of wider principle we are simultaneously addressing Local Governments. Local Governments have not yet been consulted on these details, although, as I have said, the Commissioners for Workmen's Compensation in some of the provinces have been; but in a Bill of this kind it is desirable that the Local Governments and the public should be consulted.

Sir, I move.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President: I understand that the next two Bills* are not to be taken up to-day.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar (Leader of the House): That is correct, Mr. President. I regret that Sir Denys Bray is still obliged, by illness, to be absent from this House; the motion in his name will, if possible, be put down at a later date. As regards the motion standing in my name, I do not propose at this time to move the motion.

ELECTION OF A PANEL FOR THE STANDING COMMITTEE FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways): Sir, I move:

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect in the manner described in the Rules published in the Home Department Notification No. F.-49, dated the 22nd August, 1922, as amended by the Home Department Notification No. D.-794-C., dated the 30th January, 1924, a panel consisting of nine members from which three will be nominated to serve on the Standing Committee to advise on the subjects in the Department of Commerce."

Sir, I do not think it is necessary for me to say more than a couple of sentences in support of this motion. The period of one year for which the Advisory Committee of the Commerce Department was constituted in the autumn Session of last year is about to expire. It is therefore necessary to provide for its reconstitution and it is for this reason I have brought forward the motion.

Sir, I move.

The motion was adopted.

2. Bill further to amend the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, as passed by the Council of State.

ELECTION OF A COMMITTEE TO REVIEW THE SEPARATION OF RAILWAY FINANCES FROM GENERAL FINANCES.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I move :

"That this House do proceed to elect in such manner as may be prescribed by the Honourable the President fourteen members to serve with the Honourable the Railway Member, the Honourable the Finance Member and the Financial Commissioner of Railways, as a committee to review the separation of railway finances from the general finances of the country in accordance with the Resolution adopted by the Legislative Assembly on the 20th September, 1924."

I am moving this motion, Sir, in accordance with a promise which I made in my speech when I introduced the Railway Budget last cold weather. The terms of the motion have been framed in the widest possible terms so that the Committee may have the whole field open to them and may be able to make any recommendation that seems suitable to them as regards the separation of railway and general finances. I understand, Sir, that before I gave notice of it, the terms of the motion had been shown to the leaders of the various parties and groups in the House, and I understand that they found it acceptable. I do not think, Sir, that I need say more than that.

Sir, I move.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, I am glad that the Railway Member has been as good as his word and has implemented his promise given last Session. At the same time, Sir, I think, there is a serious flaw in the motion as moved. Three official Members are to be ex-officio members of this Committee and again, if I understand the motion correctly, the official Members are to vote in the election of 14 other Members ; this would mean that Government will have a double representation on this Committee. I know it is not their intention to have a packed committee, but a committee as widely representative of the House as it is possible to secure ; and therefore I should like to have a clear declaration from Government that they would ask their official colleagues not to vote when this election takes place on the day which you, Sir, will fix hereafter ; otherwise, Government having three Members already might have 3 or 4 more by their own official voting, which, I think, is highly undesirable and the House.....

Mr. President : What is the amendment of the Honourable Member ?

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I suggest to Government that Government should ask their official colleagues not to vote when the election of 14 members takes place, because they have three members ex-officio.....

Mr. President : That is not the proper way. The proper way for the Honourable Member is to move an amendment.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : In that case, I shall move it with your permission that the official members do not participate in the election of the 14 members. (An Honourable Member : "That the non-official Members of this House do proceed to elect, etc.".)

Mr. President : That the non-official Members of this House do proceed to elect, etc. Is that the amendment ?

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Yes, Sir, that is the amendment.

The second point which I wish to take is that the terms of reference to the Committee should be the widest ; they should include the question of Indianisation and racial discrimination in Railway services and the grievances of labour ; these matters widely touch railway finance. Railway finances improve or deteriorate by the absence or otherwise of strikes. Then a great deal of discontent arises on account of racial discrimination which affects the subordinate services particularly, in State Railways. I wish to be assured that no objection will be raised in the Committee when the discussion of all these questions arises.

With these words I move my amendment.

Mr. M. S. Aney (Berar Representative) : Sir, I support the amendment moved by my Honourable friend, Mr. Jamnadas Mehta. I had thought that it would probably be within your powers to prescribe that the election should be by non-official Members, but as my friend has moved this amendment I support it. This motion comes before the House in pursuance of a promise already given. I think it necessary that the question should be thoroughly and exhaustively discussed. So far as the official Members are concerned, the provision of three ex-officio members is sufficiently strong to put before the Committee the official view of the question, but it is really for the non-official Members of this House to decide whether the separation that has been made has been beneficial or not in the interests of the taxpayers, and it is for the non-officials to decide how far the conditions which were laid down have been strictly adhered to, and what modifications if any should be made in the existing arrangements. From that point of view the amendment is very important, and I do not think that the Honourable Sir George Rainy can have any objection to accept that amendment.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, I should like to rise on a point of order. I have had no notice of this amendment and was unaware that any amendment was likely to be moved. We have done all we could to take all the parties into our confidence, and it would be very difficult at this stage to ask Government to waive notice.

Mr. President : Will the Honourable Member quote his authority ? Under what Standing Order is notice of this amendment required ? This is neither a Resolution nor a Bill, and I would like to know under what Standing Order notice of this amendment is necessary.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I do not raise this point under any particular Standing Order, Sir. As I understand the case, it is within the discretion of the Chair to decide whether it is reasonable in the circumstances that the amendment should be made. The point I wished to make, was that it is hardly fair, when we have tried from our side of the House to take all parties into our confidence and get the motion into a form which all parties could accept, to have an amendment moved at the very last moment like this.

Mr. President : If the Honourable Member will satisfy me that the Chair has discretion, the Chair will exercise that discretion.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I am prepared to accept that position.

Mr. President : I think the best course is to take this matter up on Monday or some other day.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Might I suggest one point ? We do not know on what date the matter may be brought up, and as there will be further procedure in the way of electing the Committee after the motion has been passed, it might be inconvenient to the Members of the House who are anxious to take part in the election because they might be compelled to leave Simla before the election came on.

Mr. President : When was this circulated to Honourable Members ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons (Financial Commissioner, Railways) : I am afraid I do not know the exact date. It was circulated I think two or three days ago, possibly the day before yesterday.

As I have risen I would like to explain what occurred. The reason why three official Members were mentioned by their offices in the motion was because by the time this Committee meets, the Honourable the Finance Member will not be the Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra, and it is desirable that the Honourable the Finance Member should be on the Committee. For that reason I approached the leaders of all parties and showed them the form of motion as it has appeared on the paper and asked them whether the motion would meet with their approval.

Mr. President : But the followers are not always loyal ! The Honourable Member will see that he has not even allowed two days for Honourable Members to consider whether they should give notice of any amendment.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Honourable the Railway Member is prepared to accept an amendment, omitting his name and my own from the list of those persons to serve on the Committee, and raising at the same time the number of members from 14 to 16. In that case the only non-elected nominee of Government on the Committee would be Sir George Schuster who cannot for the moment be elected to the Committee for the reasons I have explained.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : My object in moving this amendment is not to delay the motion. Now that the justice of the amendment is obvious to the Government, and they have agreed that two of their nominees will contest the election, I would like to withdraw my amendment.

Mr. President : Is it the pleasure of the House that the amendment be withdrawn ?

The amendment was, by leave of the Assembly, withdrawn.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I move :

"That in the motion the words 'the Honourable the Railway Member' and the words 'and the Financial Commissioner of Railways' be omitted, and for the word 'fourteen' the word 'sixteen' be substituted."

The motion was adopted.

Mr Jamnadas M. Mehta : Sir, I would like to enquire whether the terms of reference will be those that I have suggested.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, it is not my intention to lay down any restrictions as to what this Committee may go into. It will rest on whoever acts as the Chairman of the Committee to decide that.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That the following motion, as amended, be adopted :

'That this House do proceed to elect in such manner as may be prescribed by the Honourable the President sixteen members to serve with the Honourable the Finance Member as a committee to review the separation of railway finances from the general finances of the country in accordance with the Resolution adopted by the Legislative Assembly on the 20th September, 1924'."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : I may inform the Assembly that for the purpose of election of members to both these Committees, the Assembly office will be open to receive nominations up to 12 Noon on Saturday, the 22nd September, 1928, and the elections, if necessary, will take place in this Chamber in accordance with the principle of proportional representation by means of the single transferrable vote on Tuesday, the 25th September, 1928.

DEMANDS FOR SUPPLEMENTARY GRANTS.

STAMPS.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 1,85,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges that will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1929, in respect of 'Stamps'."

The motion was adopted.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 50,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges that will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1929, in respect of 'Administration of Justice'."

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, this Supplementary Grant deals with one specific conspiracy trial in my own province of Bihar and Orissa. It is proposed to contribute from the Central Revenues a sum of Rs. 50,000 towards the expenditure incurred by the Government of my province in that criminal case. In the proceedings of the Standing Finance Committee, I find it stated :

"It was stated that the Government of Bihar and Orissa had represented that the Deoghar conspiracy case which was being prosecuted in that province, would involve the Local Government in heavy expenditure which was likely to exceed Rs. 2 lakhs and the Governor in Council had asked for a contribution from Central revenues towards the cost of the case in view of the facts : (i) that the trial had little or no direct interest for the province, (ii) that the accused in the case were not inhabitants of Bihar and Orissa, and (iii) that their trial in the province was only due to the fact that three of them were arrested while on a temporary visit to Deoghar."

Sir, accidentally—whether fortunately or unfortunately I cannot say—my province happens to be known as a very healthy province. Naturally everybody comes to my province for the purpose of a change of climate or for reasons of health. If any of the outsiders who happen to come to my province hatch any conspiracy, then a poor province like Bihar and Orissa ought not to be burdened with the whole extent of the expenditure involved in prosecuting such conspirators. I would have liked very much had the Government of India sanctioned the whole expenditure of two lakhs which the Bihar and Orissa Government asked for. The Bihar and Orissa Government incurred or are incurring this huge expenditure on behalf of other provinces and they must be reimbursed to that extent. It would have been better if the Government of India had established a Supreme Court or some sort of Central Court where questions affecting the various provinces should be taken into consideration and such cases to be tried at the cost of the Central Government. A poor province like mine should not be burdened to such an extent as 1½ lakhs and that for the reason that the alleged conspirators were arrested in my province.

Sir, I may say that my province is very poor. Recently, the Government of Bihar and Orissa appointed a flood inquiry committee for my tract of the country, Orissa, and the report has been submitted. It involves very heavy expenditure on any Government if that Government would like to give effect to all the recommendations there to eradicate the causes of floods in Orissa. If I can take it as a precedent that the Government of India could contribute part of the expenditure of Provincial Governments, I can ask the Honourable the Finance Member to sanction a few lakhs of rupees towards improving the condition of the people of Orissa as recommended by the flood enquiry committee and that report may soon come up before the Government of India. I hope this precedent of the Honourable the Finance Member will be utilised in other cases also. I think it is a dangerous principle that a poor province like mine should be burdened with the remaining part of the expenditure in this Deoghar conspiracy case which is more than 1½ lakhs of rupees and in which my province has no direct interest nor is any resident of my province implicated. It is either for the other provinces to share the expenses or for the Central Government to finance the whole cost.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, I do not want to waste the time of the House for any long period.

Mr. President : What is the suggestion ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, I believe it was the poverty of the province of my Honourable friend Mr. Das that operated as a consideration to the Standing Finance Committee in agreeing to this contribution. Otherwise, I believe they were very doubtful about establishing a precedent.

Mr. B. Das : Quite so. But I cannot understand from the argument of the Honourable the Finance Member why my province should bear the expenses of people of other provinces, whose people come to my province and commit alleged conspiracy or sedition.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The answer to that is that it is the usual arrangement. (Laughter.)

Mr. President : The question is :

" That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 50,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges that will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1929, in respect of ' Administration of Justice '."

The motion was adopted.

CIVIL WORKS CENTRAL.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

" That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 2,13,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges that will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1929, in respect of ' Civil Works Central '."

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru (Agra Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : May I ask, Sir, what is the sum for which the residence already constructed for His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief which cost about four lakhs has been sold ? The second question I would like to ask is whether any attempt was made to enlarge the existing house instead of selling the building and constructing a new one ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I think I can reply to that question. I do not know whether I would be in order in disclosing the exact figures, but I can assure the Honourable Member that the house was not sold at a loss and the Government did not lose a penny either over the cost of the house or over the cost of the land. Secondly, it was very carefully considered whether the house as it stood was capable of such extensions and improvements as would have made it suitable for the permanent residence of the Commander-in-Chief, and it was decided it was not. We had a favourable offer for the first house and we thought it was really an economical and satisfactory transaction.

Mr. K. C. Neogy (Dacca Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : How is it, these considerations did not strike the Government before ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : That is going back before my time and I can hardly answer that question.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 2,13,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges that will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1929, in respect of ' Civil Works Central.' "

The motion was adopted.

CAPITAL OUTLAY ON CURRENCY NOTE PRINTING PRESS.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

" That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 3,30,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges that will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1929, in respect of ' Capital Outlay on Currency Note Printing Press '."

The motion was adopted.

DEMAND FOR SUPPLEMENTARY GRANT IN RESPECT OF RAILWAYS.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons (Financial Commissioner, Railways) : Sir, I beg to move :

" That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 12,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges which will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1929, in respect of ' Audit '."

This money is required for initial outlay in the current year on making permanent the separation of Audit and Accounts on State-managed Railways where it has already been temporarily in force and on extending it to other State-managed Railways on which it is now proposed to inaugurate it. The details of the proposals which we are laying before the House have been fully explained in what is, I am afraid, a very lengthy memorandum, which has been in the hands of

[Mr. A. A. L. Parsons.]

Members now for some time. I regret that I should have had to trouble the House with so lengthy a document, but I thought it desirable that they should have full details of the results of the experiment that has been carried out with their approval on the East Indian Railway for the last three years. And those Members who have not had either the leisure or the inclination or both to read the whole of the memorandum will have found what is I hope a fair and succinct summary of it in the proceedings of the Standing Finance Committee for Railways, which examined our proposals very exhaustively. After their report and in view of the fact that the memorandum does go into such detail I do not think I need detain the House very long with preliminary remarks.

There are, however, one or two points which I should like to make. It may occur to some Honourable Members from the recital of our activities which we have given in this memorandum that we are making somewhat extravagant claims on behalf of the work of the Accounts Department which has been under me and my predecessor for the last 3 years. That was not our intention. Our intention was merely to show exactly what had been done while the accounts had been separated. I myself agree in fact entirely with the judgment which has been passed by the Auditor General on the results of this separation. He has pointed out quite rightly that theoretically the same results might have been obtained had Audit and Accounts not been separated ; but as he has also pointed out that is merely a theoretical point. What he says is :

"All this is in theory only. In practice it is really impossible to speculate how much of the work both on the side of accounts as well as of audit would actually have been effected without separation. The fact remains that anything like the same measure of improvement, reforms and economies have not been effected in the past by the combined Audit and Accounts Department and a very strong point in favour of the separation is that all this has been accomplished in a short space of time."

I think I can claim for the Accounts Department which has been under my predecessor and myself that it has taken very great pains to improve the accounting system on the East Indian Railway and I believe that claim would be substantiated by Members here who are on the Public Accounts Committee. A large number of cases came before them in which, owing to the efforts both of the Accounts and of the Audit people, irregularities had been traced out and remedied.

The proposals do not only include the extension of the separation of Accounts and Audit from the East Indian Railway to other State-managed Railways. They also include the making permanent of the present arrangements of the Clearing Accounts Office. When this question was discussed in the Standing Finance Committee for Railways we had before us certain complaints ; in the first place, that the apportionment of foreign traffic receipts during the time the Clearing Accounts Office had been in existence had become more inaccurate, and secondly with regard to the position of the clerks in that office. For these reasons there was some discussion in the Standing Finance Committee whether the right moment had come to make the present arrangements permanent. The Committee decided with one dissentient that the time had come to make the arrangements permanent ; but at the same time it was decided that there should be an investigation into these two matters. I am now in a position to lay information before the House which I did not previously possess with regard to one of these matters, that is to say, with regard to the accuracy of the accounts which have been prepared in the Clearing Accounts Office. In 1927-28 I find that that office dealt with transactions aggregating over 18 crores of rupees and that the finally admitted irregularities in apportionment of rating—were under Rs. 16,000. That is to say, it was considerably less than one eleven thousandth of the total amount accounted for or, to give decimal figures, 0.0087 per cent. I do not think anybody could describe that as inaccurate working.

With regard to the position of the clerks on which I myself have received many representations—and I know that Honourable Members in this House have also done so while there has been in addition some discussion in the Press,—it is particularly because of the position of these clerks that I am very anxious now to see the arrangements made permanent. These clerks have been transferred from a good many offices and their main complaint is I gather that at present they do not know their position on the list of the office, their position vis-a-vis each other. Until we know that the office is going to be permanent, it is impossible to settle down and arrange the lists of the office in such a way that each man will know he has been properly placed and will have no sense of grievance. It is also, I may say, impossible for me to take steps to provide accommodation for these clerks until I know if the office is to be made permanent. And the want of accommodation in Delhi is one of the main difficulties to which these clerks are at present subject. It is for these reasons that I am particularly anxious that the arrangement with regard to the Clearing Accounts Office should now be made permanent.

There are two further things I should like to add. First of all, in the memorandum it will be seen that there are proposals for transferring further work, the work of local traffic audit, from the State Railways to the Clearing Accounts Office. On the advice of the Standing Finance Committee for Railways I have decided to postpone those proposals for the present, particularly because they would involve bringing more clerks to Delhi from Calcutta and elsewhere before we have accommodation for them.

Lastly, I wish to refer to the methods which we propose to adopt for recruitment if this House accepts these proposals. The superior officers I think offer no difficulty at the moment. I am hopeful that the Auditor General will be able to produce for us a sufficient number of officers from the Indian Audit and Accounts Service to fill most of the posts that will be created in the Railway Accounts Service. For the future we propose to adopt exactly the same system of recruitment as obtains in the Indian Accounts and Audit Service, namely, by open examination through the Public Service Commission.

A point which is of greater difficulty is the recruitment of the subordinate staff. Now, I am extremely anxious myself to get rid of the present haphazard methods by which clerks and other subordinates are recruited. You can never say that you are getting the best men by our present methods, and if I may say so, it is an unmitigated nuisance to persons in my position to have to receive almost daily applications from various people to confer appointments on somebody whom they know. My idea at present is if possible to recruit for both the Clearing Accounts Office and for other accounts offices, for posts of clerks and other subordinates by examination. I should like to make it an open examination, that is to say, I should like to avoid having to select people to sit for the examination, but I am a little doubtful whether that is feasible. We might be so flooded with applications for the examination, that it would be almost impossible to get an examination held. I propose therefore to discuss this matter again with the Standing Finance Committee for Railways with whom I have already agreed to go through all the rules which I have suggested for the recruitment of the staff.

4 P.M.

[Mr. A. A. L. Parsons.]

I think, Sir, that is all I have to say. The genesis of these proposals can be found in the report of that distinguished Committee which was presided over by Sir William Acworth. This House helped in starting them when it agreed in 1925, that they should be tried out on a large scale on the East Indian Railway. They have since been approved by an eminent accountant of international reputation. In the judgment of the Auditor General they have been tried and not found wanting, and they have been approved, unanimously except in one minor respect, by the Standing Finance Committee for Railways. They are also expected to lead to a reduction of about Rs. 2 lakhs in the establishment costs of Railways and to further economies for which no exact figure can be given, but which may be about 10 lakhs. I know of no stronger arguments that I can use to commend them to the House.

Mr President : The question is :

" That a supplementary sum not exceeding.....

(Mr. Neogy stood up in his place.)

Does the Honourable Member wish to speak ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy (Dacca Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Yes, Sir. I shall try to imitate my Honourable friend, Mr. Parsons.....

Mr. President : And be equally long ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : No, Sir ; I will be very short. Well, Sir, my first quarrel with him is with regard to the procedure that he has chosen to adopt in bringing forward this important question of principle. I do not think that very many Members of this House—particularly those who were not in the Finance Committee—were aware exactly of the import of this Supplementary Demand. When on the last occasion, about three years back, there was a motion made in this House for agreeing to an experiment being carried on with regard to the separation of Accounts and Audit on the East Indian Railway, the Honourable Member's predecessor preferred to bring forward a regular Resolution giving the essential details of that scheme, and it was only after the House had accepted that Resolution that the supplementary estimate seeking to give financial effect to that scheme was brought up in this House. I do not know why my Honourable friend has not chosen to follow that excellent precedent that he had before him in this matter. Sir, apart from that, I do not think that this is the proper time, just at the fag end of a day, at the fag end of the Session, to bring up a question like this. However, Sir, on the last occasion the atmosphere of the House was rather different from what I find to-day ; and the credit for that belongs certainly to the persuasive powers of the Railway Department. When I went through my Honourable friend's memorandum, I was reminded of the usual type of advertisements of certain patent medicines. All kinds of merits are claimed by my Honourable friend for this scheme of separation. But when I turned to the Auditor General's note, I found that my Honourable friend the Financial Commissioner did not quite succeed in persuading that hardheaded old, as he had most of my colleagues on this side of the House. Sir, my Honourable friend has given a few lines from the observations of the Auditor General. If he had only given us a few more sentences from his note, the House would have seen that the Auditor General is not quite sure of the position. He uses very cautious language. In one place he says he would have wished to have had more time to consider the matter ; in another place he says :

" I have not been able to verify the figures."

Then again he says :

" The merits that have been claimed for this system could as well be claimed perhaps under the old system."

If any Honourable Member desires to read out the whole report here, he is welcome to do so, but I am not going to tire the patience of this House. Let us try to understand as briefly as possible what this proposal means. At the present moment there are two systems of accounts and audit which are in vogue side by side in the Railways. On the Company-managed lines there is a separation of audit from accounts ; the accounts are maintained by a staff which is under the administrative control of the Agent and the Directors in England. There is an independent audit carried on on behalf of the Auditor General by Government Inspectors. This is the system which is in vogue on Company-managed lines. The other system is in vogue on the State-managed lines, with the exception of the East Indian Railway. Under this State railway system, the staff which keeps the accounts is not under the administrative control of the Agent or the Railway Board, but of the Auditor General ; and that staff not merely keeps the accounts but simultaneously carries on audit. In the case of the Company system of audit, it is a post audit, that is, a post mortem examination of the accounts on behalf of the Auditor General. In the case of the State system, it is pre-audit—that is to say, before any expenditure is incurred, the auditor who is also the accounts officer must scrutinise the proposed expenditure. These were the two systems when the East Indian Railway was taken over by the State for direct management. Now, the proposal which the Acworth Committee had made for separating Audit from Accounts was then under consideration ; and the Government thought that the best opportunity of carrying out the experiment of that proposed measure had presented itself with the taking over of the management of the East Indian Railway by the Government of India ; and therefore it was that that new separated system was given a trial on the East Indian Railway. We are told now that that experiment has proved a very great success and therefore it ought to be extended to the other railway systems. Now, when we compare the merits of these two systems, I mean the two systems that were tried on the East Indian Railway, namely, the previous Company system and the present separated system, we must not forget that there is not any very essential difference in the principle of the two systems, because as in the days of the Company management there was an independent audit on behalf of the Auditor General and the accounting was done by a staff which was under the administrative control of the Agent. That is more or less the system which is now sought to be extended to the other Railways, and to which a trial has been given on the East Indian Railway. There may be some difference here and there in details, but the main principle must be admitted, and has been admitted, to be the same. Therefore, Sir, when it is claimed that the new separated system is a superior system, you are thinking of a system which does not materially differ from the system with which you had an opportunity of comparing it. I maintain that the Government have not got sufficient materials to place before this House which would justify them in saying that this experiment has demonstrated the superior merits of the new system as compared with the old orthodox system, namely, the combined system of audit and accounts that has prevailed for so many years on the State-managed lines.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Question ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Now, my Honourable friend Mr. Ranga Iyer says " Question ". My Honourable friend is a member of the Public Accounts Committee, but unfortunately he does not care to read the reports of the Committees of which he is a member. (An Honourable Member : " He never attended.") At least he did not read the Report of the Public Accounts Committee held last year.....

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : When you were a member.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I was, but my Honourable friend is expected to read the Report.....

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : I was a member last year.

An Honourable Member : He was a member last year.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Was he ? Then I maintain that he does not.....

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : I am afraid, Sir, that the Honourable Member is talking through his hat.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I have never worn a hat in my life.

Well, Sir, this question came up before the Public Accounts Committee last year, and certain results of the working of the new system as an experiment on the East Indian Railway were put forward in the Audit and Appropriation Accounts of the Railways, and the Auditor General had something very illuminating to say on that subject.....

Mr. President : Does the Honourable Member oppose this grant ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Yes, Sir ; I am opposing this grant. This is the question that was put to the Auditor General :

" Have you got sufficient experience of the system to say that this separation has resulted in an improvement not only upon the old company system as was obtaining on the East Indian Railway but also over the system of working on the State Railways ? ".

This is the reply which Sir Frederick Gauntlett gave :

" I think the answer is that it is very difficult to disentangle two causes which have been at work. There has been the taking over of the East Indian Railway by the State,—the scrutiny of the old system of accounts which differs, as Mr. Parsons has explained, in some respects from the State system of accounts, and there is also at the same time the independent audit. My own personal feeling is that we have discovered more in the first year of independent audit on the East Indian than we should have, say, on the North Western."

Then the next question was :

" Do I take it that if the State system of auditing were introduced on the East Indian Railway, then these irregularities might not have come to light ?

Sir F. Gauntlett : " I would not say that. But I quite agree with what I think is underlying your remarks that we cannot get a decisive answer to the question whether the separation is inherently beneficial until we apply it to a State Railway."

That was the position which he took up on that occasion, and read between the lines, the present memorandum of the Auditor General which has been placed before us in this connection also goes to support this view. He says that it is very difficult to say whether this beneficial result would or would not have resulted from the combined system.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Will the Honourable Member say where the Auditor General says that ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I have read out from his own evidence before the Public Accounts Committee.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : What page ?

Mr. President : Order, order. Does the Honourable Member desire to continue this debate on another day ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Yes, Sir ; I should prefer you to take it over to Monday. (An Honourable Member : " No, no.")

Mr. President : It is a very important debate, and I think there are a good many Members anxious to take part in it. I propose, therefore, to take it up on another day.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, this is really not a Demand for Supplementary Grant at all. It is a Demand for the sanction of this House to two important matters, namely, the Clearing House Office and the confirmation of the separation of audit from accounts.

Mr. President : To-morrow is Saturday, and the Leader of the House has agreed to allow the House to discuss the separation scheme. But as leaders of non-official parties have agreed to certain conclusions, I do not think that the debate will take long, and therefore I propose to sit at half-past two. Is there any suggestion which Honourable Members wish to make ?

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is this to be taken to-morrow, Sir ?

Mr. President : No, not this.

The Assembly then adjourned till Half Past Two of the Clock on Saturday, the 22nd September, 1928.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Saturday, 22nd September, 1928.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Half Past Two of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

---

(1) ALLEGATIONS IN CERTAIN NEWSPAPERS OF PARTIALITY AND BIAS AGAINST MR. PRESIDENT.

(2) ALLEGED PROPAGANDA BY THE HOME DEPARTMENT AGAINST MR. PRESIDENT.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar (Leader of the House) : Mr. President, I should like, with your permission, to make a further statement on a matter which recently occupied the attention of this House and which has since continued to be of the deepest concern to Government and the whole House. The discussion which took place on Friday, the 14th, on the question raised by the Honourable the Leader of the Opposition regarding comments made in the Press or elsewhere about the President of the Assembly has not, by common consent, resulted in clearing up a situation which we all deplore

In what I have to say, my earnest desire and the desire of the Government is to do what they can to place the relations between the Chair, the House and the Government on the basis of mutual confidence and understanding which all agree should subsist ; and with this object I find it my duty to restate the position of Government in the matter and myself as Leader of the House. The Government is not less jealous of the dignity of the Chair than any other section of the House, and regard themselves, along with all other Honourable Members, as bound to protect the Chair in the discharge of the duties imposed upon it. (Applause.) Government have never had any reason on any occasion to question the strict impartiality of the rulings that you, Sir, have given from time to time or of your conduct in the Chair and they have asked me to express their full confidence in the Chair. (Applause.) It follows that we must deplore and condemn, in common with Honourable Members sitting in all other parts of the House, all allegations and comments in the Press or elsewhere that may appear directly or indirectly to reflect adversely upon the impartiality of the Chair. It therefore also follows that in any action you, Sir, may think it right to take to vindicate the authority of the Chair in the matter of the reflections which were the subject of the recent discussion in the House or of any that may be made hereafter, you will have the full support of Government. I state this explicitly to remove any misunderstanding that may have been caused by my previous statement on this subject. I must frankly admit that, the question having been raised quite unexpectedly, I spoke in less considered terms than I would have wished and without due deliberation. I have now stated above the considered view of Government and express my regret that my previous statement did not correctly convey it.

[Mr. J. Crerar.]

The House has also had its attention drawn to allegations of a campaign, instigated by Government, against the Chair. I would ask the House to take it from me that there is no foundation for such a charge, which could hardly have been made except in an atmosphere clouded with suspicion. I have, also, been assured that certain official Members of the House have used expressions impugning the conduct of the President and for this I, as Leader of the House, express my full regret and theirs, and would assure both the President and the House that, so far as Government can, they will take steps to ensure that there will be no recurrence.

On the question of the relations between Government and the President of the Assembly, I would only ask leave to say one thing more. If at any time—and I make the supposition only to avoid any possible ambiguity—circumstances had arisen in which Government had been unable to feel that confidence in the impartiality of the Chair which is necessary for the due discharge in this House of the functions both of the Chair and of Government, Government would at once have adopted the only possible and straightforward course of informing the President, and bringing the matter before this House.

I desire in conclusion to repeat and to emphasise that Government is, on all grounds, certainly not less concerned, and in some respects perhaps even more deeply concerned, than any other interest, in the prestige, dignity, and authority of the Chair. (Applause.) I am grateful to you, Sir, for affording me this opportunity of making my own position and that of Government plain. It is the earnest desire of myself, as of those for whom I speak, that, whatever from time to time may be our political disagreements, we may all unite to invest this House with an honourable tradition in the conduct of its affairs, and see that by lending our assistance to the Chair, who is the natural guardian of all interests in the House, this tradition should be constantly maintained. (Applause.)

Pandit Motilal Nehru (Cities of the United Provinces : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Mr. President, I congratulate the Honourable the Home Member on the statement he has just made. It is conceived in a spirit of absolute fairness to all concerned. I take it to be a complete vindication of the honour and dignity of the Chair and of this House against unworthy attacks and reflections from whatever quarter such attacks and reflections have emanated. On behalf of this side of the House I fully associate myself with the Honourable the Home Member in his unqualified condemnation of the baseless aspersions cast upon the Chair and this House by the Press, for which we know the correspondents of the Times of India, the Daily Telegraph and the Morning Post are responsible. I have no doubt that you, Sir, will take such action against them as you consider proper.

As regards the allegations made by the Pioneer against the Government, I am sure the Chair and this House will unhesitatingly accept, as I do, the assurance of the Honourable the Home Member that there is no foundation for the charge. I am equally sure that the House will welcome the further assurance that the Government is not less jealous of the dignity of the Chair than any other section of this House and I hope and trust that all sections of the House, whatever their differences may be on other points, will always combine to uphold that dignity to the best of their ability.

The frank expression of regret by the Honourable the Home Member at the conduct of certain official Members of the House who permitted themselves to impugn the strict impartiality of the Chair will, I have no doubt, be deeply appreciated by the House. The assurances given by the Honourable the Home Member and the good sense of the official Members themselves will, I am confident, avoid a recurrence.

I hope, Sir, that after the statement made by the Honourable the Home Member to-day the misunderstanding caused by his previous statement will be removed and that you and the House will accept his regret for having made that statement. In these circumstances, so far as the Government and the official Members of the House are concerned, the matter will, I trust, be treated as a closed chapter.

In conclusion I desire to convey to you, Sir, our abiding faith in the strict integrity and impartiality of the Chair. Your rulings have as often been against us as in our favour, but I can confidently assert that there is not one Honourable Member on this side of the House who has ever doubted that they were prompted by anything other than strict fairness. It is indeed a matter of pride to us to find that in our first Indian elected President of the House we have one who by common consent would do honour to the Speaker's Chair in any Legislature in the world.

Permit me, Sir, to convey to you the assurance of this side of the House that we have the fullest confidence in the Chair and that it will always be our duty and privilege to protect its honour and dignity. (Applause.)

Lala Lajpat Rai (Jullundur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, on behalf of myself and the party which I have the honour to represent in this House, I fully and unreservedly associate myself with the remarks made by the Leader of the Opposition. I repeat the congratulations which he has given to the Government and the Honourable the Home Member for his very full and frank statement. I may add that that statement is calculated to enhance the reputation and dignity of the Government and the Chair. I am fully confident that it will be received with great pleasure throughout the country and that it will conduce to good understanding between the parties that are represented in this House.

I also share, Sir, the assurances that have been given by the Honourable the Leader of the Opposition with regard to the confidence of this part of the House in the impartiality, integrity and ability of the Chair. I believe that this unfortunate incident having been closed so happily, we shall all in future be jealous of the reputation of this House, the reputation of the Chair and also of the reputation of the Government. (Applause.) I think, Sir, the Government and the Honourable Member who have done this honourable thing deserve (thoroughly and heartily) to be congratulated. If we proceed in this manner, I am perfectly sure that in future the relations between the two parts of the House will be much more pleasant and much more agreeable than they have been in the past.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber : Indian Commerce) : Sir, with great pleasure I identify myself with all that has fallen from the Honourable the Pandit and Lala Lajpat Rai. I have not the least doubt, Sir, that the Government of India have on this occasion risen fully to the best traditions of any Government and have proved their earnest solicitude for the prestige of this House. The statement made by the Honourable the Home Member does, if I may say so, great credit to himself and to the Government that he represents on the Treasury Benches. It is a genuine pleasure indeed, Sir, to see that a Session, which many outside thought began with so much estrangement of feeling, as it was felt then, is happily now to end in complete understanding and cordiality in the House. Nothing better could have been expected and I wish to repeat the assurance of my Party of our great respect for, and complete confidence in, you, Sir, as the President of this House.

Mr. H. G. Cocke (Bombay : European) : Sir, I desire on behalf of this group to express our approval of the course which Government have taken this afternoon and to congratulate them upon having taken that course. As I said on a previous occasion, no Party has stood more in support of the dignity and detachment of the Chair than the group to which I have the honour to belong, and this Party will never allow itself to be detracted from this course. We realise, as I am sure, you, Sir, realise, that in order to retain the full confidence of the House at all times it is essential that a President should assume continuously a cloak of strict impartiality and detachment. It follows that however much any ruling or any action of the President may be the subject of comment on technical grounds, no Member of this House is justified in imputing partiality or wrong motives to the Chair unless he is prepared to bring the matter to the floor of the House.

Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan (East Central Punjab : Muhammadan): Sir, I desire to associate myself with the sentiments already expressed by the other Party leaders and I congratulate the Government on their decision to give ample and adequate expression to their views with regard to the controversy which has lately arisen. I am glad that the storm which threatened to involve us in some trouble has passed off and left us in perfect peace and calm in this House. Sir, on behalf of my group I wish to express the feeling that you, as the symbol of authority, dignity and honour in this House, deserve, and have always received the consideration and obedience which you deserve, and we shall in future maintain that tradition which has been maintained by this House. Sir, we have never questioned the legality of your rulings and I have no doubt that all fair-minded men will say that whatever decisions you have given have been accepted with disciplinary attitude and behaviour. Sir, on behalf of my group I wish to congratulate the Government and I congratulate the House on the manner in which they have received the announcement made by the Honourable the Home Member.

Mr. President : I should like to say a few words on this occasion, but I think you will allow me to consider the statement which I have just heard and the speeches made by the Honourable Members. I propose to say what I have to say on Monday. In the meantime I cannot help congratulating the Honourable Member (the Honourable the Home Member) and the Government he represents.

MESSAGES FROM THE COUNCIL OF STATE.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, I have received two Messages from the Secretary of the Council of State. The first Message runs as follows :

"I am directed to inform you that the Council of State have, at their meeting held on the 21st September, 1928, agreed without any amendments to the following Bills which were passed by the Legislative Assembly on the 17th September, 1928 :

1. A Bill to amend the Indian Trade Unions Act, 1926, for a certain purpose.
2. A Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for a certain purpose.
3. A Bill further to amend the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1912, for certain purposes, and to provide for the collection of statistical information in respect of insurance business other than life assurance business.
4. A Bill to amend certain enactments and to repeal certain other enactments.
5. A Bill further to amend the Madras Salt Act, 1889, for a certain purpose.
6. A Bill to provide for the protection of the match industry."

The second Message runs as follows :

"I am directed to inform you that the Bill further to amend the Indian Succession Act, 1925, for a certain purpose, which was passed by the Legislative Assembly on the 17th September, 1928, was passed by the Council of State at its meeting held on the 21st September, 1928, with the following amendment :

'In clause 1, for the brackets and word '(Amendment)' the brackets and words '(Second Amendment)' were substituted.'"

The Council of State requests the concurrence of the Legislative Assembly in the amendment."

Sir, I lay on the table the Bill as amended by the Council of State.

SEPARATE OFFICE FOR THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Pandit Motilal Nehru (Cities of the United Provinces : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, I beg to move the following motion :

"This House is strongly of opinion :

(a) that a separate Assembly Department should be constituted not later than 1st December, 1928 ;

(b) that the Government of India should take immediate steps to secure the sanction of the Secretary of State to that part of the scheme which requires his sanction ;

(c) that the scheme submitted by the President and amended by the Government of India should be modified so as to provide :

(1) that the Assembly Department should be included in the portfolio of the Governor General ;

(2) that the principal officers of the Department should be appointed by the Governor General in consultation with the President;

(3) (a) that these principal officers shall be liable to dismissal by the Governor General in consultation with the President;

(b) that other disciplinary action against these officers should be in the hands of the President subject to a right of appeal to the Governor General ;

(4) that other members of the establishment should be appointed by the President in consultation with the Secretary ;

[Pandit Motilal Nehru.]

(5) that these other members of the establishment shall be liable to be dismissed, or otherwise punished, by the President in consultation with the Secretary, subject to a right of appeal to the Governor General ;

(6) that questions of expenditure should be dealt with in the ordinary manner but in case of difference of opinion on any item of expenditure between the President and the Government of India there should be a reference to the Governor General, whose decision shall be final :

The House further requests the President to communicate this opinion to the Governor General for such action as he may be pleased to take."

As the House is aware, this motion has a history behind it. It was as far back as 1924 that in answer to a question by the Honourable Mr Neogy this information was elicited from the Government. They said

"The question was exhaustively examined after the Inchcape Committee submitted its report and it has been decided that for the present, in the interests both of economy and of efficiency, it is desirable that the business of the Legislature should continue to be conducted by the Legislative Department of the Government of India."

That was on the 1st February, 1924. Since then there has been some correspondence and conversations between the President and the Government on the subject and a scheme carefully worked out was laid by the President before the Governor General. After a great deal of delay due to one thing or another a despatch was sent to the Secretary of State by the Government of India giving the substance of the scheme of the President and their own scheme and pointing out the differences between the two. That despatch was unfortunately sent away before this House was afforded an opportunity to discuss it. Honourable Members will remember that it was only the other day that the President made a statement to the House and upon that statement a number of Honourable Members addressed the House and a statement in reply was made by the Honourable the Home Member the next day. The question whether things should be allowed to remain where they were was considered and it was suggested by you, Sir, that Party leaders might meet in your room and consider the question. We did meet and we did consider the matter, but we arrived at no decisions. There was only a general discussion. At your invitation we met again the day before yesterday and the motion that I have just read was the result of the deliberations of our conference. It represents the view of the Party leaders present. In some instances it does not represent the view of the President and in others it is the unanimous view of the Party leaders and the President. On behalf of Government no opinion was expressed at the conference, because they had already sent a despatch to the Secretary of State which was under his consideration. I forgot to say that, as a result of the first conference to which I have referred, the Honourable the Home Member very kindly undertook to inform the Secretary of State of the view of the conference and to request, on behalf of the conference, his permission to enable the House to discuss the despatch which had been sent to him. That permission having been received, the despatch was laid on the table of the House and has since been considered by Honourable Members.

The proposal which my motion contains is not identical with the one the Honourable the President made in the scheme which he drew up, but it was felt that, as a temporary measure, and as a beginning in the direction of fully separating the establishment of this Assembly from all Government Departments, the motion that I have laid before the House would be a satisfactory first step and it is only in that sense that I am moving it. Honourable Members will, I hope, be agreed that, in spite of the peculiar position of this Assembly, and its limited powers, it is in no sense subordinate to the Government and that it is an Assembly the Members of which have equal rights, no Member having any superior rights to another Member. It is therefore only proper and in the fitness of things that the establishment attached to the Assembly should also be independent of Government control. In fact, that is so in the House of Commons and I suppose—though I am not quite sure—in the other representative Legislatures. Therefore, the one thing that we have to ensure is independence of not only the Assembly but of everything appertaining to the Assembly—its office and establishment—from the control of Government. The motion that I have put before the House goes a long way to secure that independence, but of course not the whole way, and that is due to the peculiar conditions in which we find ourselves. If this were a House wholly elected and responsible to the electorates no difficulty would have arisen, because it would in the very nature of things have the fullest control of every Department. But the difficulty arises from the fact that the powers of this House are limited and it cannot exercise any control upon any Department or exert any influence on anything which is not specifically referred to it by Government. We heard the other day from the Honourable the Home Member that they have to this extent carried out the scheme of the Honourable the President—that they have given a whole-time Secretary to this Assembly who is not a Member of the House. But he still remains under the control of the Legislative Department.

Now, that is the first and foremost thing that has been dealt with in my motion. We do not wish that the principal officers of this Assembly should have any connection with the Government any more than with any other section of the House and therefore my first proposition is that the principal officers should be appointed by the Governor General in consultation with the President. The practice in England, as the House is aware, is that the clerk of the House is appointed under letters patent by His Majesty the King on the recommendation of course of the Prime Minister and the Assistant Clerks are appointed under Signs Manual on the recommendation of the Speaker or in consultation with the Speaker. But things are different in England to what they are here. There the Government is in a majority in the House. The Prime Minister has the same controlling voice and is in the same position in regard to all the Departments of the State. Here we have just the opposite state of things. The Government is an irremoveable Government. It is always in a minority ; of course except on such occasions as it can snatch the votes from one group or another (Laughter) and therefore the Government—that is one of the reasons in fact given in the despatch—want to keep a hold upon the office of the Assembly. Well, I do not see any reason why one Party in the Assembly—and I submit with due deference that the Government has no more importance than any other Party in the House—I should alone have a controlling voice in the office establishment of the Assembly, unless it be of course as Government and not as Members of the House. That is the strongest reason, I submit, why the Department should be entirely separated from the Government as such. The Government is a party in this House just as any other Party. Well, the objection to that I find at page 5 of the despatch, which says :

3 P.M.

[Pandit Motilal Nehru.]

" The view which the Government of India take is that Members of the Assembly Office, both those now to be transferred from the Legislative Department and also those to be appointed later on to fill vacancies, must all be Government servants."

I do not see any reason, Sir, why they must, but the reason given ' so long as there is a majority in the Assembly, which may at any time be adverse to the Government, and on the support of which the President must depend for his continuance in office,' the men appointed must be Government servants. Now I do hope that no insinuation is made here ; but it seems to me to be something which would strike any reader that the President who owes his office to the vote of the elected Members, was perhaps not considered a suitable person to be put in charge of the office ; but I hope no real insinuation is made here. At the same time I do not understand the logic of this. Why should it be that, because the Government is in a minority, and because the President owes his post to the vote of the majority, therefore the office of the Assembly should remain under the control of the Government, that is to say the minority ? I submit that there is no substantial reason given,—and on the contrary the reasons for entire separation from the Government are overwhelming. Now a difficulty has been created, or rather suggested, in the despatch that you cannot have an independent office ; that it must under the present constitution be linked to some existing Department or included under some portfolio of the Council of the Governor General. I am not aware of any definite rule saying that it must be so. But what is stated is :

" The requirements of the constitution demand that it should be linked with the Imperial Secretariat, and the natural status for it is that of an attached office, that is to say, an office attached to one of the Departments of the Government of India at the head of which will be the Secretary of the Legislative Assembly."

Now, that is an argument which goes to this extent, that the Government of India is a self-contained unit ; that everything pertaining to the Government must belong to some Department or other of the Government ; any Department that is to be established must necessarily, therefore, come within that self-contained thing which is called the Imperial Secretariat. I submit, Sir, that that begs the whole question. That is the very point upon which we differ from the Government. We say that it should be an entirely independent office and not included in the Departments which are under the control of the Government. But in order to obviate this difficulty, the House will be pleased to observe that we have suggested — and this is a result of the conference we had the other day—that the Assembly Department should be included in the portfolio of the Governor General. Now that is a device—I call it only a device, a conventional device—to get over this technical difficulty and will ensure practically complete separation from the Government Departments. Now we know that His Excellency holds other portfolios—for instance, the Foreign and Political Department—and that it is not as it were going out of one's way to ask His Excellency to hold this portfolio ; besides I find that this scheme to a very large extent is actually in vogue in the Punjab where this portfolio is held by the Governor in Council—I mean the Governor—and I do not see any difficulty in that ; so that the House will see that there can really be no substantial objection to the entire separation of this Department.

Then we come to the question of the appointment of the principal officers and of the subordinate officers. Now, so far as that goes, we have followed, as far as we could under the circumstances, the practice in the House of Commons and we have substituted the Governor General for the King and the President for the Prime Minister. I do not see that we could make any better choice in the matter. We have suggested that the principal officers of the Department should be appointed by the Governor General in consultation with the President. I think that is as near as we can get to the practice in England. Then as regards the other officers, they should be appointed by the President in consultation with the Secretary. There in England, the appointments are made by the Clerk of the House, who has the right to appoint, to suspend and to remove any of the subordinate hands in the office. Here the right is given also to the President, but in consultation with the Secretary. These other members of the establishment shall be liable to be dismissed or otherwise punished by the President in consultation with the Secretary, subject to a right of appeal to the Governor General. Now that is an additional right. The Governor General has the portfolio and in the case of the principal officers the Governor General is also the appointing authority, and it is but natural that the appointing authority should have the right to dismiss and suspend and take other action.

Then we come to the question of expenditure. I will only briefly give you these details In regard to expenditure, as the House is aware, the proposal of the Honourable the President was that the Budget of the establishment should be independent of the Finance Department. Now some technical difficulties were found in that and after a full consideration the conference, to which I have alluded, came to the conclusion that the present arrangement under the circumstances would be followed with a slight variation—that is, that the question of expenditure would be dealt with in the ordinary manner, that is through the Finance Department, but in case of a difference of opinion on any item of expenditure between the President and the Government of India there would be a reference to the Governor General whose decision shall be final.

I do not think I can add very much profitably to what I have already said. I hope the motion will commend itself to the whole House as a very desirable thing in the circumstances in which we are placed. Of course if I had my own way in framing this motion it would be framed in slightly wider terms. But as it is, it is only a beginning and I think it is a good beginning and I beg the House to adopt it.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar (Leader of the House) : Mr. President, it is not my intention, for what I think must be obvious reasons, to speak on this matter with anything but extreme brevity. When Government originally decided to accede to what was understood to be the wish of the House that a day should be appointed for a discussion of the general question of the Assembly establishment, the main significance which we attached to such a proposal was that we should have an opportunity of hearing the views expressed by the House on this important question. For that reason

[Mr. J. Crerar.]

I do not intend to enter into the merits either of the scheme which is contained in the Government despatch or of that which is outlined in the motion moved by the Honourable the Leader of the Opposition. I will only ask Honourable Members to take note of the fact that in the proposals which were formulated in the Government of India's despatch Government had quite fully accepted the principle of a separate establishment for the Assembly, and they proposed to give effect to it in such a manner as to them seemed most compatible with the present framework of the constitution and administration. The views of the Government of India in the matter are set forth fully in the despatch and I do not think it would conduce to any great advantage that I should elaborate or recapitulate them. I have only one observation to make and that is that in the passage which the Honourable the Leader of the Opposition quoted regarding the position of Government in this House no insinuation ever was intended or implied. Honourable Members will realize that the circumstances in which this despatch was laid before the House were entirely exceptional, and that course was taken in deference to a strongly expressed opinion. The despatch was of course not written with the intention at the time of its writing that it should be at this stage the subject of a discussion in the House. But I think Honourable Members will do Government the justice to recognize that in taking and in asking the Secretary of State to take this unusual course, they have evinced a genuine and sincere desire to give the House the earliest opportunity of considering the whole matter fully and without prejudice. Well, Sir, the position now is that the proposals of the Government of India are before the Secretary of State. As the House is aware, he has consented to postpone his conclusions till he is in possession of the results of this debate. But it will be recognized that, while the Secretary of State's financial sanction is required in any event to the creation of the proposed new appointments in either alternative, both schemes in their general aspect are matters of very great administrative importance. The Government will now be glad to have before them the opinions elicited in this debate. They will themselves take those opinions into the most careful consideration and will communicate them with as much despatch as possible to the Secretary of State.

Lala Lajpat Rai (Jullundur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I beg to support the motion made by my Honourable friend, Pandit Motilal Nehru. I do not think I need make a speech in support of that motion, because the necessary part of the correspondence has been given to the House by him. He has also stated the reasons for the difference between the views of the Government of India and that of the President. I would just say a few words as to how the decision embodied in the motion has been arrived at by the different parties represented in this House, because that will make the position clear. This motion is the result of two conferences held by the leaders of the different Parties in this House, with the President, the Deputy President and the Leader of the House. At the first conference we all requested the Government unanimously to let us see the despatch of the Government of India to the Secretary of State on this subject, so that we might be in a position to see the points of difference between the Government and the President about the scheme of separation. I congratulate the Government on their having placed that despatch before this House and thus having enabled us to see that despatch and to form our opinion on the points of difference that existed between the scheme of the President and the scheme adumbrated by the Government. Since then, Sir, we have had another conference between the same gentlemen in which we considered those points of difference. I presume that the documents relating to this subject have been in the possession of Honourable Members for the last three or four days and that they have gone through them. There is the President's scheme ; there is the despatch of the Government of India to the Secretary of State ; and there are the comments of the President on that despatch. These papers have been published in the form of a blue-book and the despatch to the Secretary of State has been supplied in a separate white paper. The points of difference between the two schemes have been briefly stated by the President on page 14 of the blue book. They are 6 in number. We took each point one by one in the conference we held and gave our opinion on each. The decisions arrived at were unanimous—all the leaders of the Parties agreeing to the recommendations they have made to this House as embodied in this motion. I will briefly state those different points, so that the conclusions which we arrived at may be absolutely clear to all Honourable Members, although they must have already heard those conclusions from their Leaders and I have reason to believe that the Parties have endorsed all that the Leaders' Conference decided.

The first point was, Sir, as to who should be in charge of this portfolio of the separate Assembly Department. The Government of India in their despatch had stated, though not clearly, that the Assembly Department should be attached to some portfolio. The President stated that, if it was necessary that it should be attached to any portfolio, it should be within the portfolio of the Governor General and the Leaders' Conference has adopted that suggestion. Therefore, clause (1) of part (c) of this motion disposes of that part of the points of difference.

The second part relates to the appointment of the principal officers of the Department. The only point of difference between the Leaders' Conference and the President on this point was that the President insisted—and he has not yet surrendered his judgment on that point—that the appointment should be made on his recommendation. We have substituted the word " consultation " in the place of " recommendation." That is the only change which we have submitted for the consideration of the Government in the matter.

The third clause stated that these officers could be dismissed or otherwise punished on an address by the Assembly to the Governor General to that effect. We have suggested a material change in that matter. We think that the authority appointing these officers should be the authority to dismiss or punish them. That clause, as it stands now, is divided into two parts : one part relates to the dismissal of these officers, which has been left to the discretion of the Governor General, and the other part relates to the disciplinary action which the President might choose to take in case he considers it necessary. The second part, namely, disciplinary action, has been left in the hands of the President according to this recommendation, while the appointing authority will have the right and the power to dismiss these officers if there is any occasion for that.

The fourth clause relates to the other members of the establishment. The President thought that they should be appointed by the President on the recommendation of the Secretary. That has been practically retained as it is. They can be dismissed or punished by the President in consultation with the Secretary. The only thing we have added to this is that there should be a right of appeal on the part of the members of the establishment dismissed or punished to the Governor General.

Then there is the sixth point. The dispute was that in case any recommendations for expenditure made by the President at the budget time were reduced by the Finance Department, this House could not increase the amount reduced by the Finance Department when the Budget came before us. Therefore practically the decision of the Finance Department in that matter would be final. We have come to the conclusion that that decision should not be entirely left in the hands of the Finance Department and therefore we have provided in this motion that questions of expenditure should be dealt with in the ordinary manner, but if the Finance Department after scrutinising the recommendation of the Assembly Department, makes a recommendation to reduce the expenditure, then the matter should be referred to the Governor General and his decision will be final.

We have, Sir, given our best consideration to these points and we think that the modified plan proposed in this motion is the best in the interests of this House as well as of public business and also of the Government, and therefore we hope that the united wish of the House, as expressed in this motion, will receive that consideration at the hands of the Government and the Secretary of State which it deserves and that the Government will be good enough to accept this recommendation made by this House. We hope the President also will accept it ; and that thereby this very important matter,—the subject of the separation of the Assembly Department from the Legislative Department—would be settled and settled in a way satisfactory to all parties concerned and in time to give effect to it before the next Session. In the first part of the motion we have said that the scheme should be sanctioned and put into force not later than the 1st December.

With these words, Sir, I support the motion that has been made by my friend, Pandit Motilal Nehru.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber : Indian Commerce) : Sir, I rise to support the motion moved by the Honourable Pandit Motilal Nehru. The reason why we have a definite motion of this nature is, of course, Sir, as you remember, your happy suggestion, when this subject was under discussion last time, that this question of separation should be considered by various party leaders in consultation with the Honourable the Home Member. We were then told that it was almost certain that the discussion to-day would be one-sided in view of the fact that the Government of India were not prepared on that day to consider the question of making this despatch available to us in the House. The Leaders' Conference requested the Home Member to make an effort, in the name of the Conference, to get the despatch made available to us, and I think it requires to be noted with due appreciation, and indeed our thankfulness to His Excellency the Viceroy that he did comply with this request of that small Conference. We may note with satisfaction the fact that the Secretary of State was also pleased to comply with our request to make the despatch available to us here to-day. I am sure, Sir, that such compliance on the part of the Government of India and the Secretary of State is bound to appeal to us and is bound to make us consider the Government proposals with all the weight that they deserve. If this despatch had ot been made available to us to-day, you, Sir, know—and I am sure the ouse could imagine—what could have been the use or the utility of the scussion to-day. Thanks to the courtesy extended to this House and to e Leaders by His Excellency the Viceroy and the Secretary of State, e are to-day in a position to know both sides of the case and hence the esolution now before the House.

I feel, Sir, that the Honourable Lala Lajpat Rai has so fully dealt ith each of the six items under (c) in the Resolution that I do not like dwell on them at further length. All that I would like to say is regarding No. (c) (1) of the Resolution. That appeared to me, at any rate, the Conference, to be the crux of the whole question. The question as, and I suppose still is, whether the Assembly want the Assembly ranch or the Assembly Department to continue under either the Legisative Department or any other Department of the Government of India ; r whether they want it to be taken away from all the portfolios and harges of the Honourable Members of the Executive Council. I think he solution that you, Mr. President, suggested, in your letter to the Governent of India, is the best and is certainly a feasible one under even the resent constitution, namely, to hand over that to the portfolio of His Excellency the Governor General. It is quite true that His Excellency he Governor General is not the least busy of the Members of the Cabinet, ut we have precedents for this, and in the Central Provinces and in the unjab, I understand, Sir, that the portfolio of His Excellency the Governor in each of these provinces has responsibility for the respective Legisative Council Departments. These are relevant precedents, and I hould be very much surprised if we were told that this could not be done nder the present constitution in the Central Government. I suggest it o the Government that this is the easiest and perhaps the most suitable anner of getting out of the present difficulty, and I am sure that this Department being under His Excellency the Governor General, there will e the greatest confidence and the utmost reliance by this House in the mpartiality of His Excellency the Governor General. We were told that his may bring His Excellency the Governor General into conflict with he Assembly. I will only say that I hope it will never so happen. His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General is not generally open to riticism by the Assembly and need not necessarily come into conflict with he Assembly owing to this arrangement. The Assembly realise their esponsibility—until now they have shown that they realise it very fully—nd the closer they are drawn in co-operation with the Government, they will realise it more and, I am rather inclined to think, will give in more to Government views. I am sure that there will be very little chance of His Excellency the Governor General ever clashing with the wishes of the Assembly. I therefore feel that part (c) (1) of the motion is the most important part and I hope that the Government of India and even the Secretary of State will accept this Resolution with the same grace with which they accepted our request that the despatch under discussion be made available to us.

I do not think I need labour any of the other points at length, and I hope that this motion will prove to be another solution made feasible by mutual good-will and confidence on both sides.

Mr. H. G. Cocke (Bombay : European) : Sir, it gives me a large measure of satisfaction to find myself in agreement with my Honourable friends, Pandit Motilal Nehru, Lala Lajpat Rai and Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas. It is not always that we find ourselves in the same Lobby, and we trust that in future there will be many such occasions.

Sir, I hope these meetings of party leaders will form a precedent for the future, as I have no doubt whatever that we can by their means get over very acute difficulties, which difficulties it would be impossible to surmount in this House.

Before I go on to support this motion, I should like to say that while I agree entirely in principle with the motion, I am very anxious to say that we should remember the past services of the Legislative Department in dealing with the affairs of this Assembly. Since I have been in this House, Sir Henry Moncrieff Smith, Mr. Graham and Mr. Wright have occupied the position of Secretary of the Legislative Department, and I feel sure that everybody in this House has received much assistance from those gentlemen from time to time. (Cheers), and, therefore, although it is with regret that I say good bye to them, at the same time I support this motion thoroughly in principle, and I am quite sure that the separation of the Assembly Office is a sound thing to accomplish.

I quite agree with what Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas has said with reference to (c) (1) of the motion. There is a possibility, if the Governor General is pleased to accept this portfolio, of criticisms of him in this House, but I think that that position should never arise. I certainly think it undesirable in principle that this office should be associated with any Department of the Government of India, whether the particular Member of Council sits in this House or in another place.

With regard to sub-clause (4) of (c), while, Sir, I do not disagree with this provision, I throw out the suggestion that it may be desirable that this sub-clause should be slightly altered, to the effect that the subordinate members of the establishment should be appointed by some body outside your office entirely and outside the Government of India, namely, by the Public Service Commission. That is a point well worthy of consideration. If I were in your Chair, Sir, I should certainly prefer that these appointments be made by some outside authority. I therefore suggest that that matter might well receive consideration between now and the 1st December next.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I also rise to support the Resolution which has been proposed by my Honourable friend, Pandit Motilal Nehru. Sir, generally speaking, separations are sad things, but when it comes to judicial separations, they are sometimes followed by great sensation and heart-burning. It may therefore be considered a supernatural phenomenon if the separation of the office of the Assembly and the Legislative Department is carried into effect with amicable settlement and without any heart-burning. It is now an admitted fact that the separation of the office of the Legislative Assembly and the Legislative Department is very essential and desirable, and therefore this fact need not be argued at all, but the manner and the extent to which the separation should be given effect to is not free from difficulties and debatable points. While it is extremely desirable that the office of the Assembly should be perfectly independent of outside influence, considering the limitations which are placed on the powers and responsibility of this House, and considering that the Legislative Department is still considered as a creation of the Government of India, it could not have been left entirely by itself and therefore the provision for including it in the portfolio of the Governor General is the only reasonable solution. The other provisions also aim at giving effect to the same fundamental principles, namely, independence from outside influence, it being undesirable to make the Governor General the subject matter of discussion by the Assembly ; the appointment of the principal officers is made subject to consultation with the President of the House.

As regards the appointment of the members of the establishment, it is suggested that they should be appointed by the President in consultation with the Secretary. The main object is that the President also should not be made the subject matter of discussion and questions in the Assembly. We want the Secretary to be the chief executive officer, and while the President will have full control over the officers of the Assembly, in matters of appointment his action should be above suspicion and criticism.

An alternative suggestion has been made by my Honourable friend, Mr. Cocke, that the appointment of other members of the establishment should be handed over to the Public Service Commission, being an independent body. It was also suggested that the President might be entitled to ask the Public Service Commission to recommend a certain number of candidates, out of whom the President may select the right number. These are matters of detail which may be left to be decided by the President and the Governor General.

The chief points for consideration by the Assembly are :

(1) that the Assembly should have a separate independent office ;

(2) that the President of the Assembly as the representative of the House should have full control over the office in order to secure efficiency in the work ;

(3) that having the two above-mentioned points in view, the working of the machinery should be regulated in such a way that both the Governor General and the President should not become subject-matter of discussion and criticism by the Assembly, and it is with a view to achieve this object that the Resolution before the House has been drafted in the form in which it now stands. The Leaders of all the Parties in the House have a strong desire, and rightly too, that nothing should be imported into the discussion of this Resolution of an undesirable nature, and the unanimous desire of the House, expressed in the Resolution, should be conveyed to the Governor General in a dignified manner and in a spirit of moderation and compromise, so that no obstacle may be created in the way of its acceptance.

[Maulvi Muhammad Yakub.]

I think, Sir, that the decision on this scheme, as it has now been laid before the House, should not be delayed for a very long time. The sanction of the Secretary of State, we all know, is not required to the scheme as a whole. The financial sanction of the Secretary of State is required only in the matter of new appointments and, therefore, the scheme, as it is now proposed, can be sanctioned by the Government of India without any delay.

With these remarks, I beg to lend my hearty support to the Resolution. But before I sit down, I wish to pay my humble tribute to you, Sir, for the earnestness, sincerity and ability with which you have tackled this thorny question and the manner in which you have steered it across the stormy waters. Fortunately in Lord Irwin we have a most sympathetic, genial and generous Governor General, always ready and anxious to come to an amicable settlement, and I am sure that no hindrance will be placed in the way of the acceptance of this Resolution so far as His Excellency is concerned. (Cheers.)

Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan (East Central Punjab : Muhammadan) : Sir, I have carefully studied the alternative schemes of the Government of India as embodied in their despatch to the Secretary of State and also the scheme submitted by yourself. This controversy which has been simmering for some time has been occupying the anxious attention and consideration of the Members of this House. I need not give the full history of its development, as some of the Party leaders have already given it to the fullest extent. I may say, Sir, that I had the honour of being present at the two conferences held for the purpose of arriving at some harmonious understanding between the Party leaders of this House. What transpired there, I need not recapitulate. There were certain points on which there was difference of opinion, and I think the Honourable the Home Member as a disinterested spectator noticed then that the decision taken at those conferences were taken by a majority. (An Honourable Member : "No, no.") You might remember that there was more than one point on which I differed. However, I do not want to import a spirit of controversy into this debate, but would like to emphasise only one or two points. The point now is whether this Department should be directly controlled by His Excellency the Viceroy or whether it should be attached to any Department of the Government of India. I think if His Excellency can afford the time, he may, by accepting this responsibility, provide a very good solution of the present difficulty. But supposing His Excellency does not agree to the proposals formulated by us, that is to say, with regard to his direct control of the Assembly Department, then I think this question remains undecided as to whether this Department should remain as an independent Department, independent of all the Departments of the Government of India, or whether it should remain attached to some Department of the Government of India, say the Legislative Department or the Finance Department. I think, Sir, whatever arrangement may be arrived at, one consideration should not be lost sight of and that is that the identity and the vitality of the different Departments may not be in any way impaired by any action which in deference to the views of the majority may be taken. Of course the country is aware and the House is also aware that the condition of the minorities in the country as well as in this House is one of helplessness.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Question ?

Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan : It is a thing not be questioned. It is a self-evident fact. Therefore, I would emphasise the fact that whatever attitude the Government may adopt with regard to this controversy, they will keep in view the sentiments of the minorities in this House, and I cannot understand how they can be forgetful of the sentiments of the people outside this House.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : What are those sentiments ?

Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan : I do not think I should import any spirit of heat or controversy into this House. But if the Honourable Member is anxious to enquire what those sentiments are, I shall not hesitate to mention them.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : I should like to know them.

Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan : The controversy is evoked by the Nehru Report.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Question ?

Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan : Now, Sir, I think that while giving my support to the general provisions embodied in this Resolution, I should say again and again that in the matter of recruitment to the subordinate establishment, care should be taken to consult the Public Service Commission. As the House is already aware, practically all the Departments of the Government of India resort to that body for filling up vacancies in their Departments, and I cannot understand why the Assembly Department which is going to be created anew should be an exception to this procedure.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : The Honourable Member is talking rubbish.

Mr. President : I hope Honourable Members will not introduce any heat into this controversy.

Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan : For your consideration, I will say very clearly that if this procedure—namely, having recourse to the Public Service Commission—is followed, it will redeem the scheme from those chances of friction and unpleasantness which are likely to spring up here later on.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : The Honourable Member is himself creating friction and unpleasantness here and now.

Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan : I am not creating friction, but I am visualising the situation.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : You are oppressed by vision.

Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan : I am only visualising the future situation.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member is entitled to express his own views.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : But, is this the occasion ?

Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan : Therefore, Sir, I think that if the scheme that I have outlined to the House, namely, resorting to the Public

[Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan.]

Service Commission for the recruitment of the subordinate establishment is followed, you remove those chances of friction and those chances of misunderstanding which are likely to arise ; and I hope the Government will keep it in view. I think this is the unanimous opinion of my Party on this side of the House.

Mr. K. C. Roy (Bengal : Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, as a member of the preliminary conferences which discussed these issues raised in the motion, I give my wholehearted support to the Resolution moved by my Honourable friend, Pandit Motilal Nehru. My speech in part has been already anticipated by my Honourable friend, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas and I have very little to say except that I support Mr. Cocke and Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan to the extent that the recruitment of the subordinate services may be left to the Public Service Commission. I shall be disclosing no secret if I give out that in informal conference I opposed this item, because the Public Service Commission is yet an infant body and does not command the respect and confidence of the country as much as it should. But, all the same, if the agency of the Public Service Commission would satisfy my Honourable friend, Mr. Cocke, and my old friend, Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan, I would most gladly support them.

To me the whole question of separation, Sir, is a mere constitutiona issue. It is not a question for a majority or minority. To me, Sir it is a very essential improvement in our existing constitutional sys tem. The one thing that worries me in the Resolution of the Honourabl the Leader of the Opposition is the use of the expression " principa officers ". My reading of English constitutional history has convince me that there can be only one principal officer and that that principa officer is the President of the House. The Secretary of the House o his deputies can only be mere clerks and executive officers of th House. The principal officer of the House is undoubtedly the President Here I am fortified by no less an authority than Sir John Marriott lately a conservative member for Oxford, the best of contemporar English historians. This is how he defines the position of the Speake of the House of Commons :

" The Speaker has from the very first been the pivot of the parliamentary machin The principal officer of the House is its representative on all ceremonial occasions, th regulator of its procedure, the guardian of its dignity and the President over it debates."

I wish the House to note that the Speaker is described as the princips officer of the House, and if there is going to be a principal officer, he mu be the President of this House and nobody else.

With these small alterations, Sir, in the Resolution which has bee moved by my Honourable friend, Pandit Motilal Nehru, the Resolutio is an ideal one representing the views both of the Honourable the Presider and the Members of Government.

There is another point also, Sir, which has given me food for thoug and that is the relationship of the President in respect of the Governo General. In our constitutional development, I consider it is of the highes importance that the President should be protected by the authority of th Governor General against the encroachments on his rights and the right of the House by the Executive Department of the Government of Indi

Here also I am fortified by the authority of Sir John Marriott. Perhaps, Sir, some of us who have been privileged to witness the election of the Speaker know that His Majesty the King sends a message to the Speaker through the Lord Chancellor and this is how the message runs :

" With respect to yourself, Sir, although His Majesty is sensible that you stand in no need of such assurance, His Majesty will ever put the most favourable construction upon your words and actions."

And occasions may well arise for our President to demand a similar indulgence from His Majesty's representative in this country. Professor Marriott sums up the whole position thus. He says :

" From the 17th century onwards the Speaker has at once been the servant and master of the House."

And if this Resolution is accepted by the House, your position, Sir, will be the same : you will be the servant and master of the House. I therefore commend the proposition to the House.

Mr. President : Do Honourable Members still desire to debate this question further ?

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : I should only like to know, Sir, whether this is an occasion to raise the contentious issues about minorities. I do think it was an unhappy statement that was made specially in this House where minorities have not been trampled under foot.

Mr. President : The question has now been sufficiently debated. The question is :

" This House is strongly of opinion :

(a) that a separate Assembly Department should be constituted not later than 1st December, 1928;

(b) that the Government of India should take immediate steps to secure the sanction of the Secretary of State to that part of the scheme which requires his sanction ;

(c) that the scheme submitted by the President and amended by the Government of India should be modified so as to provide:

(1) that the Assembly Department should be included in the portfolio of the Governor General;

(2) that the principal officers of the Department should be appointed by the Governor General in consultation with the President ;

(3) (a) that these principal officers shall be liable to dismissal by the Governor General in consultation with the President ;

(b) that other disciplinary action against these officers should be in the hands of the President subject to a right of appeal to the Governor General ;

(4) that other members of the establishment should be appointed by the President in consultation with the Secretary ;

(5) that these other members of the establishment shall be liable to be dismissed, or otherwise punished, by the President in consultation with the Secretary, subject to a right of appeal to the Governor General ;

(6) that questions of expenditure should be dealt with in the ordinary manner, but in case of difference of opinion on any item of expenditure between the President and the Government of India there should be a reference to the Governor General, whose decision shall be final.

The House further requests the President to communicate this opinion to the Governor General for such action as he may be pleased to take."

The motion was adopted.

STATEMENT OF BUSINESS.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar (Leader of the House) : With your permission, Sir, I desire to make the following statement as to the probable course of business during the next week. On Monday, the 24th, I shall ask you, Sir, to suspend Standing Order 44 in order to enable me to move that the Public Safety (Removal from India) Bill, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration. The business in connection with this Bill may be expected to run into Tuesday, the 25th. After questions on Tuesday, the 25th, elections for the Committee of the Department of Commerce and the Committee on the separation of railway finances from the general finances will be held. After the conclusion of the business in connection with the Public Safety (Removal from India) Bill we shall take up on Tuesday or on the following days the following business :

1. A motion to take into consideration the Bill further to amend the Indian Penal Code (Amendment of section 505).
2. A motion to circulate the Bill to amend the Indian Patents and Designs Act.
3. A motion to take into consideration the amendment made by the Council of State in the Bill further to amend the Indian Succession Act, 1925.
4. Resumption of the discussion of the Demand for Supplementary Grant in respect of Railways.

On the conclusion of Government business opportunity will be given to Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar to move his motion to take into consideration the Report of the Select Committee on the amendments of the Standing Orders.

Mr. President : The Honourable the Leader of the House has stated he will ask me on Monday to suspend the Standing Orders. The question of suspending the Standing Orders will only arise if any objection is taken.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Quite so, Sir. If objection is taken.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Monday, the 24th September, 1928.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Monday, 24th September, 1928.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

ADHERENCE OF INDIA TO THE KELLOGG Anti-WAR PACT.

828. Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : 1. Will the Government be pleased to state :

(a) If it is a fact that the United States Ambassador handed to the Foreign Office of His Majesty's Government in London a Note, dated 23rd May 1928, inviting amongst others the Government of India to become an original party and an original signatory to the Treaty for the renunciation of War ?

(b) If any correspondence has passed on the said subject (1) between the Government of India and His Majesty's Government, (2) between the Government of India and the Government of the United States ?

(c) If the Government will be pleased to lay on the table the entire correspondence on the subject ? If not, why not ?

2. (a) Will the Assembly be given an opportunity to discuss the subject ?

(b) If not, why not ?

3. Will a full official statement be made on the matter ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : 1. (a) Yes, Sir.

1. (b) and (c). 2 and 3. Correspondence has passed between the Government of India and His Majesty's Government and the views of the Government of India were communicated to the United States Government through His Majesty's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

Government do not propose to table the correspondence or to make a fresh official statement, since very full papers have already been published.

As regards discussion in the House, no resolution, so far as I am aware, has been tabled : if one were tabled, it would presumably be for the Honourable the President to decide whether discussion was not admissible under the Rules.

VICE-PRESIDENTS OF CANTONMENT BOARDS ACTING FOR PRESIDENTS, DURING THE ABSENCE OF THE LATTER.

829. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that the avowed object of the recent amendment to the Cantonments Act made in 1927 was to afford opportunities to the Vice-President to act as President when the latter was absent from the station ?

(b) Is it a fact that as a general rule Vice-Presidents are not afforded the opportunities which the Government policy and Statute intend to secure on account of Executive Officers sending papers to the President while he is out of the station and the President making it a point to be present at the meeting of the Board ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state in which Cantonments, and on how many occasions the Vice-President has acted in place of the President under the combined effect of the provisions contained in section 20 (1) and section 23 (6) of the Cantonments Act ?

(d) Are Government prepared to issue instructions and insist that in future the provisions of law and the policy of Government in respect of affording opportunities to Vice-Presidents to act as Presidents are not violated by resort to illegal practices such as sending the papers out to Presidents while they are out of the station ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) No, Sir. The objects of the amendment, as recorded in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, are to ensure continuity of administration by the President, and at the same time to make it possible for the Vice-President to preside over meetings of the Board from which the President is absent.

(b) and (d). The Honourable Member appears to be under a misapprehension. In Cantonment Boards, as in any municipal body, it is the duty of the President to attend and preside at meetings, and to carry out his other duties, to the maximum extent possible. The function of a Vice-President is to preside, or act for the President, when the latter is unavoidably absent. Under the Cantonments Act, as it stood before amendment, a Vice-President could never do this, because, in the absence of the real President, for however short a period, another military officer became technically the President.

(c) In view of what I have just stated, Government do not think that any object would be served by collecting the information asked for. No interest or significance appears to them to attach to the number of occasions on which the President of a Cantonment Board has been unavoidably prevented from attending a meeting.

RECORDING OF MINUTES OF DISSENT BY MEMBERS OF CANTONMENT BOARDS.

830. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (1) Is it a fact that the Army Department of the Government of India have issued a circular No. 36667-A.D., dated 30th May, 1928, by virtue of which a dissenting member of the Cantonment Board is required simultaneously with his expression of dissent verbally to make a short statement of his reasons for the same ?

(2) Are Government aware that while section 43 (3) of the Cantonments Act authorises a dissenting member to record his dissent with a short statement of grounds it does not make it obligatory on the dissenting member to verbally state his reasons of dissent on the spur of the moment ?

(3) Are Government aware that in practice the requisition contained in the circular referred to above constitutes a great hardship to the non-official members of the Cantonment Board and as dissents may have reference to files and quotations from them, it is next to impossible that dissents may be properly expressed on the spur of the moment ?

(4) Was it the practice before the issue of the circular that dissenting members used to send in the short statement of grounds of dissent within a few days of the expression of such dissent and the same was incorporated in the proceedings of the Board ?

(5) Has the All-India Cantonment Association strongly protested against the circular and characterized it as a move to undo the reform in the Cantonment administration ?

(6) Do Government propose to recall the circular or amend the law in this behalf so as to afford a genuine opportunity to a dissenting member to record his minute of dissent ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (1) No, Sir. The circular stated that what the law required to be entered in the minutes was not a minute of dissent, but the fact of a member's dissent, together with a short statement of the grounds for such dissent. It went on to say that the proper way of complying with this requirement was for the President, if so required by the dissenting member, to enter on the record at the meeting the fact that the member dissented and a short statement of his reasons as verbally stated by the member in opposing the majority decision.

(2) Yes, Sir. A member of a Cantonment Board has a right to have his dissent recorded together with a short statement of the grounds for such dissent, but under the existing procedure his views are voiced and recorded in precisely the same way as the views of the majority.

(3) Government cannot agree that the position is as stated by the Honourable Member. It may be necessary to read papers before a meeting in order to oppose a motion at a meeting. The Honourable Member appears to suggest that, after a resolution has been passed and entered in the minutes of the meeting, and the proceedings are complete, a dissenting member should be given the opportunity to consult papers at his leisure and prepare a subsequent minute of dissent for insertion in the proceedings. I am not aware that this procedure obtains in any municipal body.

(4) Government understand that this was the practice in Ambala, but, if so, it was not strictly legal.

(5) Government have received a representation from the Association.

(6) No, Sir. The existing procedure is the normal one, and in the opinion of Government affords due facilities for recording dissent.

GRANT OF JOINING TIME TO MEMBERS OF THE TELEGRAPH OFFICE, SIMLA, DURING THE MOVE BETWEEN SIMLA AND DELHI.

831. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it fact that the officials and clerks employed under the Government of India and moving between Simla and Delhi are given joining time under the Simla Allowance Code ? If not, under what code do they enjoy this privilege ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Honourable Member in charge of Industries promised to amend the joining time rules applicable to the Government Telegraph Office, Simla ? If so, what amendment has been made and what was the joining time allowed during the move 1927-28 ?

(c) If Government have not amended the rule already when do they propose to do so ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes, under the Simla Allowances Code.

(b) No such promise can be traced. The Honourable Member's attention is drawn to the reply given on the 13th September, 1927, to Mr. Joshi's unstarred question No. 113. Since that reply was given, the general rule regarding joining time in the Supplementary Rules has been added to by a provision allowing an authority ordering a transfer to reduce the period of joining time admissible, in special circumstances. In the exercise of this power the joining time of the staff in question was limited to 5 days for the move of 1927-28. This is the same as would be admissible if the Simla Allowances Code were applied to their case.

(c) Government do not propose to alter the rules further.

REPLACEMENT OF THE NALDI BRANCH POST OFFICE IN THE DISTRICT OF JESSORE BY A SUB-OFFICE.

832. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the inhabitants of some eight villages under the jurisdiction of the Naldi Branch Post Office in the District of Jessore, Bengal, sent petitions to the Post Master General through the Divisional Superintendent praying for the replacement of the said Branch Office by a Sub-Office respectively on 14th February 1927, 7th March 1927, 2nd April 1927, 25th June 1927, 29th December 1927, 1st February 1928, 21st February 1928, 7th May 1928, 25th June 1928, and 5th August 1928 ?

(b) Is it a fact that no notice has been taken of nor any reply vouchsafed to these repeated petitions ?

(c) If the replies to (a) and (b) are in the affirmative will the Honourable Member kindly explain the reasons therefor ?

(d) Will the Honourable Member be pleased to lay on the table copies of the said petitions ?

(e) Do Government intend taking any steps in the matter and if so, when ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The Government has no information in the matter. An enquiry has now been made and the decision arrived at will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

EARNINGS OF COMPOSITORS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES.

833. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the Government of India Resolution No. A.-31, dated the 15th July 1920, stated that the compositors of the Government of India Presses used to earn from Rs. 35 to Rs. 90 according to old class rates ?

(b) Is it a fact that by the said Resolution an increment of 40 per cent. was given to all the workers in the Government of India Presses ?

(c) Is it a fact that according to the rates of increment given by the Government, the earnings of the compositors work out at from Rs. 49 to Rs. 126 ?

(d) Is it a fact that the clerks in the Government of India Presses are getting regular and systematic increments while the earning of the compositors is diminishing day by day ?

(e) Will the Honourable Member in charge be pleased to lay on the table a comparative statement on the point showing therein the earnings of the :

(1) Head Assistants (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(2) Personal Assistants (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(3) Head Clerks and any other five clerks (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(4) Head Computor and any other five Computors (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(5) Any three Compositors of :

(i) Class 6 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(ii) Class 7 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(iii) Class 8 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(iv) Class 9 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(v) Class 10 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(vi) Class 11 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(vii) Class 12 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(viii) Class 13 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(ix) Class 14 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(x) Class 15 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(xi) Class 16 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(xii) Class 17 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(xiii) Class 18 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(xiv) Class 19 (Calcutta, Aligarh, Delhi, Simla, respectively),

(xv) Class 20 (Calcutta, Aligarh Delhi, Simla, respectively), giving the name of each employee, before 15th July, 1920 and from January to June, 1928 ?

(f) If the reply to (d) is in the affirmative, do Government propose to consider any scheme of revision for proper readjustment of the earnings of the two kinds of employees, (1) clerks, and (2) compositors ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a), (b) and (c). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given on the 23rd August, 1926, to parts (a), (b) and (c) of the Honourable Srijut Lokenath Mukherjee's question No. 69 in the Council of State.

(d) The clerks in the Government of India Presses are on time scales of pay. The compositors in the Government of India Presses, Simla and Aligarh, are on fixed monthly rates of pay, while the compositors in the Calcutta and Delhi Presses are paid on piece rates. So far as I am aware, the earnings of the compositors in these presses are not diminishing.

(e) Government regret that they cannot undertake to collect the information asked for in so far as it could be collected as it would entail an amount of time and trouble out of proportion to its value. I would add that a number of the men for whom particulars are required are non-existent.

(f) Does not arise.

MEMORIAL OF THE PIECE-WORKERS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, CALCUTTA.

834. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that all the piece employees of the Government of India Press, Calcutta, sent a memorial to the Honourable Member in charge on the 7th instant against the orders passed on the 21st June, 1928 ?

(b) Is it a fact that they have shown therein that the said orders have not benefited any of the workers concerned ?

(c) Will the Honourable Member be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the said memorial ?

(d) If the reply to (b) is in the affirmative, will the Honourable Member be pleased to state what the Government contemplate doing in this matter ?

(e) Is it a fact that Mr. C. T. Letton, late Manager of the Government of India Press, Calcutta, strongly recommended the salient points raised in the memorial submitted by the piece-workers of the Government of India Press, Calcutta on the 18th December, 1926 to the Honourable Sir B. N. Mitra, the then Member in charge of the Department of Industries and Labour ?

(f) If the reply to (d) is in the affirmative, will the Honourable Member lay on the table a statement of those recommendations showing therein how far they have been acted upon, and if not, why not ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) to (d). Government have received a copy of the memorial direct from the piece employees of the Government of India Press, Calcutta. The points raised therein will be duly considered after the memorial is received through the Controller of Printing and Stationery. Government do not propose to lay on the table a copy of the memorial.

(e) and (f). The memorial presented by the piece-workers of the Government of India Press, Calcutta, in 1926, was considered in consultation with the Controller of Printing and Stationery, but Government are unable to disclose the views expressed by the Controller on this memorial.

CLASSIFICATION OF PIECE-WORKERS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES.

835. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it not a fact that in his speech in reply to the Honourable Mr. G. S. Khaparde on the debate in the Imperial Council on the 14th September, 1920, in connection with the latter's Resolution for a committee to investigate and report on the causes of the troubles in Government Presses in Simla, Delhi, and Calcutta, the Honourable Sir Thomas Holland said that in the piece-rate system " an annual classification of workers is obtained automatically " ?

(b) Is it not a fact that this " automatic " classification has remained postponed since 1922 ?

(c) Is it not a fact that it is only in June last that the workers have got a two-class promotion when they should have got a six class promotion ?

(d) If the replies to (a), (b) and (c) are in the affirmative will the Honourable Member be pleased to give the reasons therefor ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) The annual classification has been kept in abeyance since 1922, as the time rates of piece-workers were inflated to an extravagant extent owing to the fact the piece-workers were able to do piece-work against which no hours were credited.

(c) and (d). The object of the old classification was to secure, as far as possible, correspondence between a worker's rate of earning on piece work and his rate of remuneration for time work. It did not necessarily involve the promotion of each individual by one class every year. The postponement of the classification had not, therefore, the effect of depriving the piece-workers of six class promotions as assumed by the Honourable Member. The new scheme for classification which was introduced with effect from the 1st July, 1928, is a system whereby most of the workers should be able to secure a rise in their classification every second year ; and piece-workers who were in employment on the date of the last classification got an immediate promotion of two classes.

PAYMENT FOR MEAL AND PRAYER INTERVALS TO THE PIECE-WORKERS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES.

836. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it not a fact that the piece-workers of the Government of India Presses were allowed meal, tiffin and prayer hours which were counted and paid for at time-scale rates previous to the orders, dated the 21st June, 1928 ?

(b) Is it not a fact that Mr. F. R. R. Rudman in his notice to press workers, dated Simla, the 30th July 1920, upheld the previous practice of allowing meal, tiffin and prayer hours (not exceeding a total of one hour per diem) to piece-workers, when employed on time work, and paying therefor at class rates ?

(c) Is it not a fact that the Honourable Sir Thomas Holland in his speech in the Imperial Council on 14th September 1920 said that the Government have allowed meal hours to be counted and to be paid for at time-scale rates ?

(d) If the reply to (b) and (c) is in the affirmative will the Honourable Member be pleased to lay on the table a copy each of the said orders and the speech adding the reasons for the recent withdrawal of the concessions so long enjoyed by the workers ?

(e) Will the Honourable Member be pleased to give a comprehensive statement of the loss to the workers of the Government of India Presses at Calcutta, Delhi, Simla and Aligarh and the consequent gain to the Government that the withdrawal of the aforesaid concessions would effect ?

(f) Will the Honourable Member be pleased to state to which account the sum thus obtained by the Government will be credited ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Prior to the issue of the orders dated the 21st June, 1928, payment for meal intervals was made at time rates only to piece-workers who were in employment before the 1st November, 1922, when they happened to be working on time. Payment for prayer intervals on Fridays was also allowed to Muhammadan piece-workers at time rates.

(b) The notice of the 30th July, 1920, referred to payment for meal and rest intervals and not to prayer intervals.

(c) Yes.

(d), (e) and (f). A copy of the orders referred to will be forwarded to the Honourable Member. The system of payment for the intervals referred to has never rested on any logical basis, and Government took the opportunity to abolish it at a time when they were giving concessions to the piece-workers which, in the aggregate, involved the disbursement of much larger sums than were formerly paid for meal and prayer intervals. The changes made thus involved increased expenditure to Government and not a saving.

AMOUNT SANCTIONED IN THE BUDGET OF 1928-29 FOR THE PIECE-WORKERS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, CALCUTTA.

837. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it not a fact that the Budget of 1928-29 sanctioned Rs. 38,900 for the piece employees only of the Government of India Press, Calcutta ?

(b) If so, will the Honourable Member in charge be pleased to state the amount spent for the compositors, distributors, and binders and impositors severally ?

(c) Is it not a fact that a fine fund (compassionate fund) in the Government of India Press was started in April 1922 ?

(d) If the reply to (c) is in the affirmative, will the Honourable Member be pleased to state how the fines collected before the starting of the fund in 1922 were spent and whether due accounts were kept of the same and the amount collected since 1875 to 1st April 1922 had been administered ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The total budget provision for the piece establishment of the Government of India Press, Calcutta, during 1928-29 is Rs. 3,45,204 and not Rs. 38,900 as stated by the Honourable Member.

(b) I am not sure for what period the information is required by the Honourable Member. If it is for the year 1928-29 the figures can only be supplied after the close of the financial year.

(c) Yes.

(d) Before the 1st April, 1922, fines were not collected separately, but were recovered by stoppages from pay and consequent short drawings from the treasury.

EMPLOYMENT OF IMPOSITORS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES ON THE PIECE-RATE SYSTEM.

838. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the orders of the Government of India, dated the 21st June, 1928, have often referred as precedents to the system followed in the Bengal Government Press ?

(b) Is it a fact that the impositors in the Bengal Government Press are salaried hands whereas the impositors in the Government of India Presses work on the piece-rate system ?

(c) If the replies to (a) and (b) are in the affirmative will the Honourable Member be pleased to state the reasons therefor ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters (a) Reference was made in the orders, dated the 21st June, 1928, only to the rates for hand composition in the Government of Bengal Press, which have been adopted by the Government of India.

(b) The impositors in the Bengal Government Press are salaried hands. The impositors in the Government of India Presses are piece-workers in Calcutta and Delhi.

(c) The Government of India consider that the piece-rate system is more suitable for impositors in their Calcutta and Delhi Presses. They are not aware of the reasons for the payment of impositors by salaries in the Bengal Press.

REVISION OF THE RATES FOR PIECE-WORKERS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES, ETC.

839. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Will the Honourable Member be pleased to state on how many occasions the rates for piece-workers in the Government of India Presses have been revised, and how many times the piece-workers have gone on strike since 1875 and by what percentage have their rates been increased at each revision ?

(b) Is it a fact that before the war the compositors in the Government of India Presses were getting 2|5th of the London rate and that after the war they are getting 1|5th of the London rate ?

(c) If the reply to (b) is in the affirmative, will the Honourable Member be pleased to state whether the earnings of the said employees have come down, and if so, to what extent ?

(d) If the replies to (b) and (c) are in the affirmative, will the Honourable Member be pleased to state the reasons therefor ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given on the 26th September, 1921, in the Council of State to question No. 160 by Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandy of Kasimbazar. No general revision of piece rates has been effected since 1921, but the rates for hand composition have recently been increased. There has been no strike since 1920.

(b) The Government of India have no definite information. The conditions of service in London and Calcutta are so different that a comparison of rates would be misleading.

(c) This does not strictly arise ; but if there has been any increase in the disparity between London and Calcutta rates, it is not due to reductions of rates in Calcutta.

(d) Does not arise.

DEDUCTIONS ON ACCOUNT OF BLANKS IN SOLID MATTER FROM THE WAGES PAID TO THE EMPLOYEES IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES.

840. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that deductions on account of blanks in solid matter obtain in the Government of India Presses whereas no such deductions take place in the Bengal Government Press ?

(b) If the reply to (a) is in the affirmative will the Honourable Member be pleased to give the reasons therefor ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) and (b). An enquiry is being made and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

EARNINGS OF BINDERS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES.

841. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the earning of the binders in the Government of India Presses is diminishing day by day ?

(b) Is it not a fact that since the introduction of the piece system in 1875 up to July, 1924, the binders were paid by the hour for preparing maps, plans and diagrams ?

(c) Will the Honourable Member be pleased to state the reasons why and the rules according to which, subsequently to July, 1924, payment by rates has been introduced ?

(d) Is it a fact that formerly leather was used in binding while now cloth is used in its stead ?

(e) Is it a fact that in consequence more labour as well as time have to be spent than before, while the rates have also been diminished ?

(f) Will the Honourable Member in charge be pleased to lay on the table a comparative statement showing therein what a worker previously got for binding 100 copies in leather and what he now gets for the same in cloth ?

(g) Is it a fact that the juniors alone are paid by the hour and never the seniors ?

(h) If the reply to (g) is in the affirmative, will the Honourable Member be pleased to state the reasons therefor ?

(i) Will the Honourable Member be pleased to lay on the table a comparative statement showing the earnings of any five binders of the Government of India Presses in Calcutta and at Delhi of class (ix) to (xviii) severally, and noting the name of each, from January to May, 1924, and from January to May, 1928, month by month ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) No. The binders in the Government of India Presses at Delhi, Simla and Aligarh are salaried hands, so that it is impossible for their earnings to diminish day by day. In Calcutta they are paid at the piece-rates, and there has been no reduction in the piece-rates.

(b) Yes.

(c) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given to the Honourable Mr. Khaparde's question No. 40 on 25th August, 1925, in the Council of State.

(d) to (h). Enquiries are being made and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

(i) The information asked for by the Honourable Member would require much time and trouble to collect, but I shall endeavour to have a comparison made of average earnings of a number of men in 1923-24 and 1927-28 and inform the Honourable Member of the result.

AMOUNT SPENT ON ACCOUNT OF AS WELL AS THE AMOUNT RECEIVED FROM THE SALE OF COMPOSING MATERIALS BY EACH OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES AT CALCUTTA, DELHI AND SIMLA.

842. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Will the Honourable Member-in-Charge be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the amount separately under each head, as far as practicable, year by year from 1922 to 1927 spent by the Government of India Presses at Calcutta, Delhi and Simla on account of as well as the amount received from the sale of :

(i) Composing materials like spirits, petrol, rope, terpentine, brush, molasses, flower, coal, composing racks, composing cases, and (ii) shooting brass ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The information desired by the Honourable Member is not readily available, but will, as far as it can be collected without an undue amount of labour and difficulty, be supplied to him.

NUMBER OF MACHINES PURCHASED AND SOLD BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES AT CALCUTTA, DELHI, SIMLA AND ALIGARH, FROM 1922 TO 1927.

843. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to state the number of machines such as printing, typefoundry, hand-press lino. and mono. machines purchased by the Government of India Presses at Calcutta, Delhi, Simla and Aligarh, from 1922 to 1927, year by year with dates and prices as well as the number of such machines sold during the said period with dates of purchase and sale, original prices and the sale prices ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Even if all the particulars required by the Honourable Member are now available, it would not be possible to supply them without an amount of research which would be incommensurate with the results. But if particulars can be readily secured of the number of machines of the kinds mentioned purchased and sold between 1922 and 1927 with the prices paid and realized they will be supplied to the Honourable Member.

CONSTRUCTION OF HIGH LEVEL PLATFORMS ON THE STATIONS ON THE LINE FROM CHANDPUR TO BIJNORE, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

844. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that on the railway line which is being constructed from Chandpur to Bijnore on the East Indian Railway, in Rohilkhand, all the platforms on the stations are being constructed very low ?

(b) Are Government aware that such platforms are highly inconvenient to the passengers, specially Indian ladies ?

(c) Are Government aware that a memorial signed by the public of the locality was submitted to the Agent, East Indian Railway, through the District Magistrate of Bijnore, but that the Agent paid no heed to the matter ?

(d) Do Government propose to move the Agent in the matter and direct the construction of raised platforms on the line mentioned above ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) to (d). It is a fact that rail level passenger platforms are being constructed on the Chandpur-Bijnore line. The usual practice on new lines is to provide such platforms at all stations other than those of considerable importance until the growth of traffic justifies the construction of high level platforms.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : Sir, I do not want to put questions Nos. 845 and 846. I put question No. 847.

†845* & 846*.

NUMBER OF STIPENDIARY SCHOLARS SELECTED AND TRAINED FOR ARCHÆOLOGICAL WORK DURING THE LAST TWO YEARS.

847. Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of stipendiary scholars selected and trained by them for Archæological work during the last two years ?

(b) What is the purpose and object in selecting and training such scholars at the public expense ?

(c) What is the procedure by which these scholars were selected ?

(d) What is the number of candidates who applied for selection ?

(e) When did this selection take place ?

(f) Were Government satisfied at the time the selection was made that those selected by them were the best available among those who offered themselves for selection ?

TRAINING OF INDIANS FOR ARCHÆOLOGICAL WORK.

848. Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the authority under whom stipendiary scholars selected for Archæological work are being trained, and the reports they have from time to time received of their progress ?

(b) Is it a fact that before they were appointed to scholarships, the selected scholars were required to produce certificates of medical fitness such as are produced by those entering Government service ?

(c) Were the selected scholars called by Government or their agency for a personal interview before their final selection was confirmed ?

(d) Do Government propose to provide their trained scholars with careers if and when any are available, in preference to those not trained by Government ?

(e) Are Government aware of any recognised non-official institution in India which offers equal facilities for practical training in Indian Archæology such as are available under their own auspices ?

(f) Is it a fact that several Indian States, Museum Committees and some Colonial Governments find it necessary from time to time to have their candidates trained and recommended by the Archæological Department under it, before appointing them to posts of responsibility ?

NUMBER OF INDIAN OFFICERS APPOINTED TO THE ARCHÆOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA WITHOUT FIRST UNDERGOING TRAINING IN SURVEY WORK.

849. Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of Indian officers in the Archæological Survey of India excluding the Epigraphic and Architectural Branches, who were appointed without being first required to undergo training in the Survey itself ?

(b) Do Government intend to select more scholars for training in Archæological methods in the near future ?

(c) If answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, will Government kindly state :

(i) the necessity for selecting more scholars when those already selected and under training have not been absorbed in the service of the Archæological Department : and (ii) the manner in which the new scholars will be selected, trained and ultimately employed by Government ?

VACANCIES IN THE ARCHÆOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA.

850. Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : (1) (a) Will Government kindly state the number of posts that remained vacant in the Archæological Survey during the last three years, giving the length of time for which each remained vacant ?

(b) What is the number of posts now lying vacant or likely to fall vacant during the next twelve months ?

(c) Have Government ready means of filling these posts as soon as they fall vacant ?

(2) (a) If the answer to (c) above be in the negative, will Government kindly state how they propose to remedy this defect in the organisation of its Archæological personnel ?

(b) Do long term vacancies in the Archæological Survey leave the efficiency and continuity of that Department's work unimpaired ?

(c) Have Government any objection to obtaining the consent and approval of the Public Service Commission, if that is at all necessary, to appoint the scholars whom they have already selected and trained to emergent or permanent vacancies that occur in the Archæological Survey subject always to the report of the expert authority which trains such scholars ?

(d) How long do Government propose to detain the present scholars in training and what is the understanding as to their future prospects ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : With your permission, Sir, I shall answer questions 847, 848, 849 and 850 together. Enquiries are being made and the information asked for will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

RECRUITMENT OF APPRENTICES AND SCHOLARS FOR TRAINING IN TECHNICAL AND SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENTS.

851. Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : Will Government kindly state the procedure they sanction for :

(a) recruiting apprentices and scholars for training in technical and scientific departments with a view to their ultimate employment in the superior posts of those departments : and

(b) appointing such apprentices and scholars to regular service after their training is favourably reported on by those technically competent and responsible for imparting such training ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : I am afraid it is not possible for me, in an answer to a question, to give any adequate description of the various apprenticeship schemes in force. If the Honourable Member is interested in a scheme applicable in any particular department, I shall endeavour to obtain particulars for him. Ordinarily apprentices do not receive a guarantee of an appointment under Government.

CONSTRUCTION OF OVERBRIDGES OR UNDERBRIDGES AT THE LEVEL CROSSINGS NEAR GUNTUR, TENALI AND NELLORE STATIONS ON THE MADRAS AND SOUTHERN MAHRATTA RAILWAY.

852. Mr. B. P. Naidu : (a) Are the Government aware that considerable public inconvenience is being caused by frequently keeping the gates shut at the level-crossings adjacent to and on the south of the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway stations of Guntur, Tenali and Nellore ?

(b) If so, when do the Government propose to obviate this inconvenience by putting up either over-bridges or under-bridges, whichever are feasible, at those level crossings ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). Government have received no complaints, nor apparently has the matter been raised by the Local Advisory Committee. They are sending a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent.

CONSTRUCTION OF WAITING SHEDS AT SINGARAYAKONDA, TETTU, TALAMANCHI AND KODAVALUR STATIONS ON THE MADRAS AND SOUTHERN MAHRATTA RAILWAY.

853. Mr. B. P. Naidu : (a) Are the Government aware that much suffering is caused to third class passengers for want of waiting sheds at Singarayakonda, Tettu, Talamanchi and Kodavalur stations on the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway ?

(b) Are there any proposals for the construction of these sheds in the immediate future at the above stations ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). Government have no information. As I have explained before, the provision of waiting rooms and sheds is a matter which we leave to the Agents. I am, however, sending a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent of the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway.

PROVIDENT FUND FOR GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES.

854. Mr. M. K. Acharya : With reference to starred question No. 91 and answer thereto, dated 3rd February 1927, on the subject of Provident Fund for Government employees, will Government be pleased to say :

(a) whether Government are aware that the matter has been before them since 18th February, 1924, when a Resolution on the subject was moved in the Council of State by the Honourable Mr. S. Vedamurti ;

(b) whether Government have come to any conclusions on the said matter ; and if not, will Government make a statement on the stage of consideration which the matter has reached ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) I would refer the Honourable Member to the latter part of the reply given to question No. 448 asked by Khan Bahadur Makhdum Syed Rajan Baksh Shah in this House on the 11th of this month. The scheme referred to therein is the outcome of the Resolution moved by the Honourable Mr. Vedamurti in the Council of State on the 18th February, 1924.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : When may we expect the Government to give us an early reply in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I did not quite catch the Honourable Member.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : When may we expect the Government to give us an early reply in the matter referred to in the question ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have already said, Sir, I think, in replying to a question by Khan Bahadur Makhdum Syed Rajan Baksh Shah, that a particular scheme is now engaging the consideration of the Government.

EDUCATION OF THE UNTOUCHABLES AND OTHER DEPRESSED CLASSES.

855. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state, if they have issued directions to all Local Governments to provide facilities for the education of the untouchables and other depressed classes in accordance with the Resolution passed on the 23rd February, 1928, by the Legislative Assembly ?

(b) if the answer to the above is in the negative, do they propose to issue instructions immediately ?

(c) If the answer to the above is in the affirmative, will they be pleased to state what reply they have received since then from the various Local Governments ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given to a similar question asked by Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava in the Legislative Assembly on the 17th September.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) Only two Local Governments have so far replied. It is the intention of Government when all the replies are in to place a summary on the table of the House for the information of Honourable Members.

AMELIORATION OF THE CONDITION OF THE DEPRESSED CLASSES.

856. Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state what is being done at present throughout India with regard to the amelioration of the condition of the depressed classes ?

(b) If Government are not in possession of the information, do they propose to call for the information and place it on the table ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) and (b). As the Honourable Member is aware the matter is one primarily for the Local Governments. The Government of India have every reason to believe that Local Governments are alive to the importance of the question of the amelioration of the condition of depressed classes and are taking steps in various directions to achieve this object.

OPENING OF A RAILWAY STATION TO THE WEST OF HALLA IN SIND.

857. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a contribution published in the Sind Observer, Karachi, dated 3rd September 1928 under the heading ' Sind Feeder Lines ' referring to the demand of the Halla citizens for a station on the western side and their petition signed by several Hindus and Muhammadans to the Commissioner in Sind asking for a railway station to be opened to the west of Halla ?

(b) Do Government propose to undertake enquiries into the matter and be pleased to see their way to take necessary action for the convenience of the western side of Halla ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Government have not seen the article referred to.

(b) I imagine the Commissioner in Sind will have referred the matter to the Agent, North-Western Railway, if he thought it desirable. In any case, I will send a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent in order to draw his attention to the matter.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I have a copy with me, and if the Honourable Member desires to see it I can give it to him now.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I should be very glad to see the article.

(A copy of the article was handed in.)

CONVERSION OF INDIA INTO A GREAT EASTERN MILITARY DEPÔT FOR THE BRITISH.

858. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is there any proposal of converting India into a great Eastern Military Depot for the British, analogous to the Singapore Naval Base, and of reducing the Indian Army into a mere territorial force ?

(b) Is there any proposal to organise a permanent force in India, available for use at any time in any part of the Far East, and that the control of such a force would vest in the War Office in London, and not in the Government of India ; and that the cost of such a force is to be borne by contributions from the Dominions, the Indian Government, and the Indian Princes ?

Mr. G. M. Young : The answer to both parts of the question is in the negative throughout.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware that statements to this effect appeared in the Press, and they were not contradicted at the time ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I was not aware until now that rumours of this kind had obtained currency in the Press. I must express my indebtedness to the Honourable Member for giving me an opportunity to contradict them now.

REDUCTION OF INDIAN REPRESENTATION IN THE MUNICIPALITY AT NAIROBI, ETC.

859. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government kindly state if one of the recommendations of the Feetham Report on Kenya is that Indian representation in the Municipality at Nairobi be reduced ? What are the other recommendations in the Report adversely affecting the Indian community, and what steps have Government taken in the matter ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the answers given by me to Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru's questions Nos. 124—126 asked on the 6th February, 1928.

APPOINTMENT OF AN INDIAN REPRESENTATIVE PERMANENTLY AT GENEVA.

860. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it not a fact that the Government of India delegates to the World Economic Conference at Geneva, had recommended the permanent appointment of an Indian representative at Geneva ?

(b) Have Government selected any such representative, and when is the appointment likely to be filled up ?

Mr. L. Graham : (a) Yes.

(b) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to the reply given on the 8th instant to starred question No. 260 by Mr. N. M. Joshi.

PROTECTION OF THE RAILWAY LINE AT RAMESWARAM FROM SAND DUNES, ETC.

861. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government kindly state what project has been finally adopted to protect the railway line at Rameswaram (South India) from sand dunes, without adding to the trouble and inconvenience of the pilgrim traffic ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Agent of the South Indian Railway submitted a proposal for the diversion of the present alignment between Pamban and Rameswaram towards the north, with a new Rameswaram station, which will be only within two furlongs of the famous temple, and of the main part of the town ? If so, when will this scheme be taken in hand ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). It has been decided to construct a branch line from Pamban to the north of Rameswaram where there will be a station within two furlongs of the temple. The scheme will be taken in hand shortly.

INDIA HOUSE, LONDON.

862. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the London County Council has accepted the offer of the High Commissioner for India to rent for £6,000 a year on a 999 years' lease a site in Aldwych at the junction with Montreal Place ?

(b) When will the construction of the new India House begin, at what total cost, and who is the author of the design ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) Yes.

(b) The work was commenced about the beginning of February last. The present estimated cost of the building is £3,24,220. It has been designed by Sir Herbert Baker.

PREVENTION OF INDIANS FROM COMPETING AT THE I. C. S. EXAMINATION HELD IN LONDON.

863. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware of any proposal to stop Indian youths from competing for the I. C. S. examination in London, in view of the fact that many Indians have come out successful in the London examination ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The question whether any steps could be taken whereby a larger number of the Indian vacancies would be available for the examination in India is being explored, but no proposal is under consideration that Indians should be prohibited from competing in London.

EXPENDITURE ON THE MAINTENANCE OF TEMPLES AND MOSQUES FOR INDIAN TROOPS AND CIVIL OFFICERS.

864. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that in 1926 a sum of about Rs. 41 lakhs had been expended from Indian revenues " for maintenance of chaplains and churches for troops and civil officers " in India ? If so, what sum was spent in that year out of Indian revenues for the maintenance of temples and mosques for Indian troops and civil officers in India ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The actual expenditure incurred in 1926-27 on the maintenance of churches and chaplains for British troops and civil officers in India was about 45 lakhs.

Government do not provide funds for the erection or maintenance of temples or mosques for the use of Indian troops. But a sum of Rs. 1,39,254 was expended during 1926-27 for the provision of religious teachers in units of the Indian Army. The Government of India are bound by the King's Regulations to provide religious ministration for British soldiers serving in India, and since 1698, it has been the practice, first of the East India Company and then of the Government of India, to provide, within reasonable limits, for the ministration of religion to British-born European servants of the Crown. It may also be pointed out that many temples and mosques in India receive indirect subsidies from the Government in the shape of remissions of land revenues on land owned by them. I would also invite the Honourable Member's attention to the answer given by the Honourable Mr. (now Sir) A. C. Chatterjee to Khan Bahadur Makhdum Syed Rajan Baksh Shah's starred question No. 1951 on the 15th September, 1924.

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar : May I know, Sir, whether the persons employed for religious teaching to the British officers are Indians or Europeans ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Chaplains ?

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar : Yes.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I imagine that practically all the chaplains are Europeans, but I have not actually verified the fact.

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar : May I know, Sir, whether there will be any difference made if Indian Christians are appointed for teaching religion to British officers ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I am afraid I must ask for notice of that question.

Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar : I want to know whether the Bible which Indian Christians will teach to British officers will be in any way different from the Bible which European chaplains teach to British officers ?

The Honourable Sir George Riny : I imagine the Honourable Member is in as good a position as myself to answer that question.

EXPENDITURE ON THE INDIAN STATES' COMMITTEE.

865. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government kindly state if the cost of the Committee which has been appointed to report upon the relationship between the Paramount Power and the Indian States, will be borne by the Indian revenues ; and if so, to what extent ? What would be the total cost ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Yes, Sir. It is of course impossible to state the total cost in advance, but the cost up to the end of July last was about Rs. 86,000.

COMPENSATION FOR THE SEQUESTRATION OF THE PROPERTIES OF THE BASEL MISSION COMPANY.

866. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that during the European War, the commercial properties, consisting of the factories, shops and stores, belonging to Swiss subjects, and known as the Basel Mission Company, trading in India, were sequestrated under the belief that those properties were largely enemy controlled ; but that this belief has now been proved to be groundless by a French court of enquiry ?

(b) Is it contemplated to give compensation out of Indian revenues to cover the loss incurred by the said Company for the sequestration of their properties ? If so, to what extent ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Properties belonging to the Basel Mission Trading Company were taken over and held under the Enemy Trading Act on the ground that it came within the terms of section 2 of the Act. Government are not aware of any enquiry by a French court of enquiry.

(b) I regret I am not in a position to make any statement at present

EMPLOYMENT OF MUSLIMS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR OF CIVIL AVIATION.

867. Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (on behalf of Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim) : (a) Will Government please state how many new appointments, both temporary and permanent, have been created in each Division in the office of the Director of Civil Aviation since 1st September, 1927, up till 31st August, 1928, and how many of these have been given to Muslims ?

(b) Is it a fact that there is no Muslim in the first division in this office ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The following permanent posts in the office of the Director of Civil Aviation were created between 1st September, 1927, and 31st August, 1928.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : There were three vacancies during the period referred to, namely, one permanent in the first division and two temporary in the third division. One of the temporary posts was given to a Muslim.

EMPLOYMENT OF MUSLIMS IN THE OFFICE OF THE RAILWAY BOARD.

869. Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (on behalf of Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim) : Will Government please state how many vacancies, both temporary and permanent, occurred in the office of the Railway Board from the 1st September, 1927, to the 31st August, 1928, and how many of these were given to Muslims ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : 19 vacanices occurred in the Railway Board's office from 1st September, 1927, to 31st August, 1928, against which seven Muslims were appointed.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member please state if there are any officers or subordinates in the offices of the Railway Board from Sind ? If not, do Government propose to appoint some of them ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I must ask for notice of this question, Sir.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask the Honourable Member how it is that he has been pleased to answer communal questions this time ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : It has always, I think, been the practice to give statistics with regard to our own office up here which is under our immediate supervision.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it the practice to give answers to communal questions so far as Hindus and Muhammadans are concerned, but so far as Indians and Europeans are concerned not to give such answers ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir.

STAFF OF THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE, DELHI.

870. Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (on behalf of Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim) : Will the Government be pleased to state whether the Railway Board are observing the canons of financial propriety in sanctioning the staff for the Railway Clearing Accounts Office ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The reply is in the affirmative.

OVERWORKED CLERKS IN THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE, DELHI.

871. Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (on behalf of Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim) : (a) Are the Government aware of the fact that the clerks of the Clearing Accounts Office attend office on gazetted holidays and Sundays and sit late hours in spite of the fact that the work is set after shifting the office from Lahore to Delhi ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state in what Civil Service Regulations or Fundamental Rules this daily extra attendance of the staff is provided for ?

(c) Do the Government propose to stop this practice of daily extra attendance and attendance on gazetted holidays and Sundays ? If so will the Government be pleased to state what measures they propose to take to redress the grievances of the staff ?

(d) Are the Government aware of the fact that owing to excessive work leave is not granted to clerks even in emergent cases ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the reply given by me to Haji Abdoola Haroon to a similar question (No. 83) in the last Delhi Session.

(b) The Civil Service Regulations and Fundamental Rules do not deal with questions of this sort.

(c) Government do not consider that action is necessary.

(d) The Director of the Clearing Accounts Office reports that leave is granted to the staff on a reasonable scale.

AGITATION IN THE PRESS ABOUT THE GRIEVANCES OF THE STAFF OF THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE, DELHI.

872. Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (on behalf of Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim) : (1) Are the Government aware of the fact that there is a great stir in the Press about the grievances of the staff. If so, has the attention of Government been invited to the series of articles printed in the Muslim Outlook and other leading papers, including an Anglo-Indian organ ?

(2) Are the Government aware of the fact that one officer of the department had been going to the houses of the Members of the Legislative Assembly, to the editors of newspapers and other people holding similar positions to win their favour and work for his cause ?

(b) Are Government aware of the fact that the same officer sent a man to the Editor of the Muslim Outlook to stop this agitation ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I propose, with your permission, Sir, to answer questions Nos. 872, 873, 877, 878, 880, 881, 882, 884, 885, 888, 889, 890, 891 and 892 together. The series of questions is in effect a repetition of allegations which have been made that Rai Bahadur Faqir Chand, Assistant Director of the Clearing Accounts Office, is using his official position to secure places in that office for relatives or other persons in whom he is interested to the exclusion of other candidates, more particularly Moslems. Government have satisfied themselves that these allegations against an honest and able officer are entirely without foundation, and they do not propose to make the enquiries which the Honourable Member's questions suggest. I may add that the appointments in this office are made by the Director and not by Rai Bahadur Faqir Chand.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know, Sir, what authority the Honourable Member has for making the insinuation contained in some of these questions ?

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Am I to reply to that question, Sir ?

Mr. President : If the Honourable Member pleases.

ARTICLES WRITTEN BY THE LATE MR. K. C. VIDIARTHI, MANAGER, BHARAT INSURANCE COMPANY, ON BEHALF OF THE ASSISTANT DIRECTOR, RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS.

†873. Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (on behalf of Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim) : Are Government aware of the fact that the late Mr. K. C. Vidiarthi, Manager, Bharat Insurance Company, wrote articles on behalf of the Assistant Director, Railway Clearing Accounts ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state what interest led an outsider to meddle in Government affairs ?

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS PUT ON THE 19TH MARCH, 1928, REGARDING THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE, DELHI.

874. Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (on behalf of Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim) : Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the answers given to questions Nos. 454 to 468 and 478 together put by Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim on the 19th March, 1928 ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am not aware that any other Member has evinced a desire for the information already sent to the Honourable Member : it is certainly not of sufficient importance to lay on the table.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 872.

EMPLOYMENT OF HINDUS AND MUSLIMS IN VACANCIES OCCURRING IN THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE, DELHI, SINCE MARCH 1928.

875. Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (on behalf of Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim) : (a) How many vacancies occurred in the Railway Clearing Accounts Office since March 1928 ?

(b) How many of them were filled by Muslims and how many by Hindus ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) 111.

(b) I regret that I am not prepared to give this information.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is the Railway Clearing Accounts Office under the Railway Board or not ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Yes, Sir, it is under the Railway Board, but it is not the Railway Board's own office.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is the office managed by the Railway Board ? The Honourable Member stated just now that he had no objection to giving the figures for appointments held at present by the various communities in offices under the Railway Board.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I made no such statement, Sir. I did not even say that I had no objection to giving these figures for appointments in the Railway Board's Office. But it has, I think, been the practice to give those figures for the Central Office of the Railway Board and for that reason I gave them. Personally, if it had not been the practice, I should have been very unwilling to give them.

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Will the Honourable Member state what is the reason for not giving this information ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Sir, I have explained that so frequently, not only in replies to questions but also I think during the course of the last Railway Budget debate, that it is not desirable that I should do so again ; or certainly not necessary.

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Why is it not desirable, Sir ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : To furnish information of this kind with regard to communal representation in individual offices and branches of the Railways merely accentuates communal feeling in those offices, and is bad for the work of those offices.

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Is it a fact that the Government is withholding that information to hide the racial and communal bias of their subordinates ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Nothing of the sort, Sir. It is well known, Sir, to the House that we do give details of communal representation on all Railways, though not of individual offices on Railways, in our annual reports. We there give it in a form which does not accentuate feeling in individual offices and branches.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Is not this contrary to the undertaking given by Lord Reading, Sir ? If the answer is in the negative, do Government propose to state the reasons why we should not give effect to the terms of appointment for the Muhammadan community and other communities in India ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am sure, Sir, that nothing I have said is opposed to any undertaking given by His Excellency Lord Reading. As a matter of fact, in several of the offices, with regard to which I have been refusing to give figures, I happen to know that the Muslim appointments have in recent years been, if anything, in excess of the quota which they would get under any strict proportional representation.

Mr. K. Ahmed : In view of the fact, Sir, that the Honourable Member has told us that he is not going to give the figures, is there any other way for the benefit of the country to test the accuracy and veracity of the Honourable Member's answer in this Assembly, whether they are acting in accordance with the circular of the Home Department of 1925 and the solemn declarations made in that time of distress in Calcutta by Lord Reading ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Sir, I am not accustomed to have my veracity challenged in this House and I must refuse to answer the Honourable Member's question.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Do I understand by concealment of figures the Government betrays the purpose for which Lord Reading made a solemn declaration specifically ? The Honourable Member in charge of Railways now tells us that he will not give the accurate figures and it is for their own benefit that they tell us it is a communal matter and they will not divulge the secret.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I am afraid, Sir, I cannot accept the implications of the Honourable Member's question or admit that the motives he attributes to the Government of India can fairly be attributed to them. I am sure that on reflection he will see that what he has suggested is less than fair to the Government.

Mr. K. Ahmed : What is the reason then, Sir, for the Honourable Member refusing to give accurate figures of these appointments and debarring the representatives of the people from knowing what the actual position is ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : My Honourable friend, Mr. Parsons, has attempted repeatedly to convey that information to the Honourable Member and, as he has apparently been unsuccessful, I have little hope that I shall have better success.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Will the Honourable Member himself take the responsibility of his Department and give the figures that are asked for ? May I say, Sir, that it is both for the benefit of the country and for the benefit of the Government to show to the people that the Government is acting in accordance with the directions given to them by the Home Department circular and the solemn declarations made by Lord Reading in 1925 ? If they will not state the reasons, as the Honourable Mr. Parsons has told us, will they state the circumstnces which justify their refusal ? I am entitled to an answer, Sir.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I am afraid I have nothing to add to the answers already given by my friend Mr. Parsons.

Mr. K. Ahmed : In view of the fact that the Honourable Member can see that he has hopelessly failed to satisfy the Members of this Assembly, who are representatives of the people of this country, will he, as head of the Department, explain the reason or reasons why he should not state the circumstances which prevent him from giving the accurate figures asked for to this House ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Sir, is it not a fact that such questions are sometimes prompted by persons who consider themselves aggrieved for some reason or other ?

Mr. K. Ahmed : That is all the more reason, Sir, why the Honourable Member should answer the question. May I have an answer ?

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Do the Government realise that communal feeling is accentuated because of the injustice that is done to Muhammadans and not by the publication of the figures ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Is it the fact, Sir, that Muhammadans are not given posts because the Government does not want to give them posts and want to favour the Hindus ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir.

876. Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (on behalf of Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim) : What are the regulations for preparing the gradation list in the Railway Clearing Accounts Office ?

NUMBER OF INDIANS APPOINTED AS GUARDS IN GRADE A ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

903. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) With reference to the replies given to the supplementary questions to Mr. Joshi's starred question No. 464, will Government be pleased to state the number of Indians appointed as guards in grade A on the East Indian Railway (1) directly and (2) by promotion during the last twelve months ?

(b) What is the number of Europeans and Anglo-Indians appointed as guards in grade B. during the same period ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : In the supplementary questions to which the Honourable Member refers, the Honourable the Railway Member promised to look into the matter and consider whether it would be desirable to give these statistics for the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. The question whether figures can be given for the East Indian Railway will also be considered.

NUMBER OF INDIAN OFFICERS HOLDING KING'S COMMISSIONS IN THE INDIAN UNITS OF ARTILLERY, ENGINEERS, SIGNALS AND THE AIR FORCE.

904. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) What will be the number of officers holding the King's commission in the Indian units of (1) Artillery, (2) Engineers, (3) Signals and (4) Air Force which Government propose to create ?

(b) What will be the number of officers recruited annually for these units after the commissioned ranks in them have been completely Indianised ?

(c) Will the creation of these units lead to any reduction in the strength of the corresponding sections of the British Army in India ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 895.

‡For these questions, see at the end of starred questions for the day.

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) (1), (2) and (3). The strength of the officer establishments of the Artillery, Sapper and Miner and Signal units will be largely determined by the number of candidates who succeed in qualifying for those services. In addition to these units, Indian Engineer officers will be eligible for service in the Military Engineering Services. (4) The officer establishments of an Air Squadron varies from 19 to 22. As previously explained, Government wish to recruit 6 Indian officers forthwith to constitute a Flight, which is a sub-unit of a squadron.

(b) I am afraid it is impossible to calculate so far ahead. It will be nearly 20 years from now, for instance, before an Indian can reach the rank of Battery Commander in the ordinary course. I cannot foretell what the number and strength of the Indianizing units, or the rate of recruitment will be at that time.

(c) In the Artillery, Sappers and Miners and Signals the officer establishment of existing units will be Indianized and no new units will be raised. There is therefore no question of a reduction of corresponding units, as existing British officers establishments will be Indianized. The new Indian Air Unit will be additional to the strength of the Royal Air Force in India, which it is not proposed to reduce.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask whether the Indian units of Artillery, Sappers and Miners and Signals that Government propose to create have any fixed establishment of officers ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Of course, Sir, they have a fixed establishment of officers.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : How is it, then, that the Honourable Member said that the number of officers would depend on the number of candidates that Government could get ? I thought that he said something like that.

Mr. G. M. Young : I said so, because we must know exactly how many officers are going into these respective units.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : What will be the strength of the establishment of officers in these units ? Would that depend on the number of men who are willing to enter these units ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Until we know how many officers are going into these units, we shall not know the size of the units that we are going to Indianise.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is it a fact that the sizes of the units themselves have not been determined ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Provisionally certain units have been earmarked for Indianisation. Whether those particular units and their officer establishments will be exactly as they are now will depend upon the number of Indian candidates who succeed in qualifying for those arms.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Do we understand that there is a deficiency in the number of Indian candidates qualifying for officership as required for these units ?

Mr. G. M. Young : The first examination for these services has not yet been held. I cannot possibly say whether there will be a deficiency or not.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : If you know the number of officers required, may I know if we are not getting a sufficient number of Indian students for those posts'?

Mr. G. M. Young : We have not yet got any Indians for these posts. The first examination is going to be held next November.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : That is not my point. If a number of officers are required for these units, are not a sufficient number of Indians coming forward for qualifying for those posts ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I am afraid I have not understood the Honourable Member's question.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know how many officers are required for these units ?

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Taking the strength as it is, will the Honourable Member tell us how many officers are needed for those units ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I can tell the House what is required for a Mountain Battery which is the first unit of Artillery that we propose to Indianize. It contains 4 British officers and 4 Indian officers. I cannot say exactly what would be the officer establishment of the Signal unit or the Sapper and Miner unit.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Why cannot you say for the Sappers and Miners ?

Dr. B. S. Moonje : If you know the number of officers required, I want to know whether there is any deficiency of Indian students coming forward for qualifying for those posts for being sent for training to England.

Mr. G. M. Young : I cannot say whether there will be a deficiency or not. I shall not know until the examination has been held,—in fact, we shall not know until the men pass out of Woolwich.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Will the Honourable Member say whether all the Mountain Batteries will be Indianised, or only one of them ?

Mr. G. M. Young : The strength of units to be Indianized will depend, as I have said, very largely on the number of candidates who come forward and qualify.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : What is the number of units which you have already decided to Indianize, leaving future progress apart ?

Mr. G. M. Young : We have already decided to Indianize whatever will be necessary to accommodate the officers who succeed in passing out of Woolwich. In making that calculation, which is purely a provisional one, we have to remember that there are three services which are to be supplied by Woolwich—the Engineers, the Artillery and the Signals. It is conceivable, to take an extreme case, that all six candidates in one year will qualify for Engineers. In that case we should not be able to accommodate them in the scheme that we have at present for the Engineer services, because it is too large a number for the Engineers. We should then have to reconsider the position. It is conceivable similarly that all six cadets might qualify for Artillery. It is conceivable also that all six cadets might fail for Engineers, fail for Artillery, but just succeed in qualifying for Signals. We should then have to reconsider what we propose to have in the way of Signal units. The allotments are purely provisional. They depend on what we think the average is likely to work out between the three arms.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Are we to take it that the number of annual recruits sent annually to Woolwich will not go down ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I think I have sufficiently explained already what would happen if there was a plethora of candidates in one arm and a deficiency in another.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : The Honourable Member has just explained that the number of units will depend on the number of candidates that would qualify every year. Am I to deduce from it that while the number of recruits may increase as the number of units increase, that number will not in any case go down ?

Mr. G. M. Young : No, Sir. I cannot see what reason my Honourable friend has for making that deduction.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is there then a possibility that the number of places now thrown to recruits from India may be decreased ?

Mr. G. M. Young : That possibility is contained in the statement of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief which my Honourable friend may possibly have read that the maximum number of vacancies which the British Government are prepared to allot at Woolwich is six.

APPROPRIATION TOWARDS MILITARY EXPENDITURE OF THE SAVINGS DUE TO THE RECENT REVISION IN THE PAY OF OFFICERS AND BRITISH SOLDIERS.

905. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) With reference to the replies given by the Army Secretary to starred questions Nos. 120 and 158, are Government aware that the Finance Member stated in his speech in 1926 that the reduction in the established military charges owing to the recent revision in the pay of officers and British soldiers " should amount to 12 lakhs in 1927-28 increasing annually to about 80 lakhs in 1930-31 and about 1¼ crores in 1933-34 " ?

(b) Has the Army Department been allowed to appropriate these savings towards military expenditure, or has it been allowed to retain only the savings due to the special economy campaign referred to by the Army Secretary ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) Yes.

(b) It is the intention of the Government of India, for the present, to utilise these savings as well as those effected by the economy campaign, towards meeting other military expenditure.

PROMOTION OF LOCAL TRAFFIC SERVICE OFFICERS TO THE SUPERIOR GRADES ON THE STATE RAILWAYS.

906. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : With reference to the statement made by Mr. Parsons during the Railway Budget debate on the 25th February 1928 that until the question of the organisation of the officers' grades as a whole on the State-managed Railways is settled, "it is not possible to say that anything more can be done for the Local Traffic Service Officers than is done at present, by giving them an opportunity of being promoted to officers' grades under the 20 per cent. regulation" will Government be pleased to state whether they are now in a position to announce what steps they propose to take to promote the Local Traffic Service Officers to the superior grades ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The opportunity has been taken this year of allocating 33 1/3 per cent of the appointments available for Indian recruitment to the promotion of suitable officers from the Local Traffic Service.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Has this question been finally decided, or is the translation of the men from the local to the superior Traffic Service still under consideration ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The position remains as it did when I dealt with the matter in a budget speech, except that for this year we have decided to give a third of the Indian recruitment to the Local Traffic Service men instead of leaving the Local Traffic Service men to come in with other subordinates in twenty per cent. of the Indian recruitment.

NUMBER OF INDIAN AND EUROPEAN OFFICERS OF THE I. M. S. ENGAGED IN MILITARY AND CIVIL DUTIES.

907. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Will Government be pleased to state the number of Indian and European I. M. S. officers engaged in (a) military and (b) civil duties ?

Mr. G. M. Young : 207 Indian officers and 184 European officers are engaged in military duties and 85 Indian and 246 European officers are serving on the civil side.

AMALGAMATION OF THE SYLHET AND CACHAR DISTRICTS WITH BENGAL.

908. Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : (a) With reference to the press communiqué, dated the 16th June, 1926, issued by the Home Department of the Government of India on the subject of transfer of the District of Sylhet to Bengal, will Government be pleased to state if any report on the subject has been received from the Assam Government for submission to the Statutory Commission ?

If so, will Government be pleased to lay a copy thereof on the table ?

(b) Are Government aware that public opinion is strongly in favour of the amalgamation of the District of Sylhet and Cachar with Bengal and the last Surma Valley Political Conference held in July last unanimously adopted resolutions for the amalgamation and that the All Parties Conference held at Lucknow also recommended the inclusion of the Bengali-speaking Districts in the Province of Bengal ?

(c) In view of the fact that the whole matter will be considered by the Statutory Commission as stated by the Government in the press communiqué referred to above, do Government propose to order a plebiscite to be taken in order to ascertain the true and correct public opinion on the matter of amalgamation of the Sylhet and Cachar Districts with Bengal instead of relying on individual evidence in an important matter like this ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) The memorandum prepared by the Government of Assam was submitted direct to the Commission and copies were supplied to the Government of India. The Governmen of India are not at liberty to lay upon the table a copy of a documen addressed, not to themselves, but to the Statutory Commission.

(b) The Government of India are not in possession of the resolutions passed by the Surma Valley Political Conference last July ; but they are aware that a resolution was adopted at the conference recently held at Lucknow in favour of revising the boundaries of Bengal, Assam and other provinces according to certain principles. The Governmen of India do not understand that public opinion strongly favours the amalgamation of Sylhet and Cachar with Bengal, and a Resolution was recently passed by the Assam Legislative Council recommending that the authorities be informed that the people of Sylhet and Cachar desire to remain in Assam and not be transferred to Bengal.

(c) The answer is in the negative.

Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Is it not a fact that the Assam Legislative Council last month decided to recommend to the authorities that Sylhet and Cachar should not be transferred to Bengal ?

Mr. President : Will the Honourable Member repeat his question

Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Is it not a fact, Sir, that the Assam Legislative Council as late as last month in a Resolution decided to recommend to the authorities that Sylhet and Cachar be not transferred to Bengal

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I have already referred to that Sir, in my reply.

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Is it not also a fact that on two previous occasions the Assam Legislative Council had passed a Resolution in favour of the transfer of Sylhet to Bengal ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I think, Sir, that the Honourable Member is correct, but the Legislative Council of Assam, as I said, recently passed a Resolution reversing the Resolution adopted by the same Council in January 1926 to the effect which I have stated.

ASSISTANT COMPILER, INDIAN ARMY LIST.

909. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (1) (a) Is there a post of Assistant Compiler in the Army Department ? If so, when was it created ?

(b) If the answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative, will Government kindly say whether the son-in-law of the Personal Assistant to the Army Secretary was appointed to hold it from the very beginning ? If so, what period of probation did he undergo before confirmation ?

(2) (a) What is the normal period of probation prescribed by Government for members of the clerical staff of the Secretary ? Did the son-in-law of the Personal Assistant to the Army Secretary complete the prescribed period of probation ? If not, for what special reasons ?

(b) Is it a fact that under rules no one is appointed to a post in the clerical staff of the Secretariat unless he has passed the clerical test ?

(c) Was the son-in-law of the Personal Assistant to the Army Secretary a qualified candidate of the Public Service Commission ? If not, why was an exemption made in his case ?

(d) Have such exceptions been made by Government during the last three years ?

(3) (a) Is the post of Compiler, Indian Army List, considered to be a technical one ? If so, did the son-in-law of the Personal Assistant to the Secretary, Army Department, possess any technical qualifications required for the post and if so, what ?

(b) Is it a fact that the son-in-law of the Personal Assistant to the Army Secretary was reading in a school or college when he was appointed to his present post ?

(c) Is it a fact that the appointment of the son-in-law of the Personal Assistant to the Secretary, Army Department, involved the supersession of a large number of men possessing previous experience of Army List work ?

(d) Is it a fact that there are clerks in the Indian Army List Section who are senior in pay to the son-in-law but junior to him in rank ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (1) (a) The post of Assistant Compiler, Indian Army List, was created in the Army Department in May, 1928.

(b) The reply to the first part is in the affirmative. The period of probation was about two months.

(2) (a) In cadres which have probationary grades the probationary period is generally one year. This was a special post in which there was a permanent vacancy.

(b) and (c). The posts of Compiler and Assistant Compiler are specialised posts ; and the incumbents are not eligible for promotion to other appointments on the regular clerical establishment, and the scale of emoluments of the Assistant Compiler is less than that of first division men. For these reasons, the appointment was not made through the Public Service Commission : and it was not necessary to exempt the candidate from any prescribed test.

(d) Does not arise.

(3) (a) No technical qualifications are required : but the post demands a relatively high standard of education.

(b) No, Sir. I am informed that he had taken the degree of M. A. a year before his appointment.

(c) No, Sir. There was no clerk with experience of Army List work sufficiently qualified to hold the appointment.

(d) There is one clerk in the section who draws more pay than the Assistant Compiler at present, but he is not sufficiently qualified to hold the appointment of Assistant Compiler.

CONNECTION OF THE SRIMANGAL-MAULVI BAZAR RAILWAY WITH KULAURA JUNCTION ON THE ASSAM BENGAL RAILWAY.

910. Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : (a) Are the Government aware that a large section of the public in the Maulvi Bazar Sub-division of the Sylhet District want the proposed Srimangal-Maulvi Bazar Railway line to be connected with Kulaura Junction on the Assam Bengal Railway ?

(b) Is it a fact that out of deference to their wishes, the Assam Bengal Railway Advisory Committee have also approved a loop line from Kulaura Junction to Srimangal via Maulavi Bazar ?

(c) Do Government propose to consider the proposal favourably and state what decision, if any, has been arrived at on the matter ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government are aware that the Assam Communication Board have recommended the construction of a loop line from Srimangal via Maulvi Bazar to Kulaura. The former section has already been investigated and an estimate of the cost of investigating the latter section is under the consideration of the Railway Board.

Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : Will Government be pleased to state whether the Srimangal Kulaura construction line via Maulvi Bazar will be started next winter, so that the land acquisition staff and the construction staff now employed on Habiganj-Shaisthaganj Railway line may be transferred to the new railway construction line ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am afraid I cannot make any statement as to when and if the construction of this line is likely to be taken up. We must wait till we have finished the investigation.

EXTENSION OF THE SHAISTHAGANJ AND HABIGANJ RAILWAY TO NABIGANJ.

911. Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : (a) Is it a fact that a memorial has been submitted to the Railway Board by a large number of people in the Habiganj Sub-division of the District of Sylhet, praying for the extension of the newly constructed Shaisthaganj and Habiganj Railway line to Nabiganj in the same Sub-division ?

(b) Was the proposal submitted to the Assam Bengal Railway Advisory Committee for their consideration and opinion ? If so, what is their decision on the matter ? Do Government propose to consider the proposal favourably and thus remove a very keenly-felt want of communication suffered by a large section of the public ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) I cannot discover from the minutes of their proceedings that the proposal has been before the Assam Bengal Railway Advisory Committee, but the Railway Board do not favour the proposed extension. The country up to Sherpur is liable to heavy flooding and the railway embankment would cross the drainage of the Bibiana which is large at all times and formidable during heavy flood. The line would therefore be costly both to construct and maintain. Moreover the terminus at Sherpur would be only about 4 miles from Manumukh station on the Maulvi Bazar-Manumukh branch of the Srimangal-Maulvi Bazar-Kulaura chord project which has been proposed and has received the approval of the Assam Board of Communication.

CONTROL AND REGULATION OF THE SALE OF TEA SWEEPINGS.

912. Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : Are the Government aware that the tea sweepings and waste are largely used by small retail dealers for human consumption to the detriment of public health ? Do Government propose to consider the desirability of appointing a Committee to enquire into the whole matter so as to devise measures for the control and regulation of the sale of tea sweepings and other bad teas which are not fit for human consumption ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Government of India are not aware that the evil is widespread. The matter primarily concerns local Governments, whose attention was drawn to it recently with reference to a question asked by Sir Darcy Lindsay in the Legislative Assembly on the 25th March, 1927. Action has already been taken or is being taken by Local Governments to prescribe under their Food Adulteration Acts a standard quality of tea for sale for human consumption. Government do not consider that any further action is necessary at present.

†913*.

APPOINTMENT OF RATE CLASSIFICATION COMMITTEES ON THE INDIAN RAILWAYS.

914. Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (1) (a) Are there any Rate Classification Committees on the State Railways in India ?

(b) If the answer be in the affirmative will the Government be pleased to state their constitution ?

(c) If the answer be in the negative will the Government be pleased to state why such committees are not appointed ?

(d) How are the rates fixed on the Indian Railways ; how are the interests of Indian commercial people consulted and safeguarded ?

(e) Is there any arrangement to receive the complaints of Indian interests and to enquire into their truth or otherwise besides the Rates Advisory Committee ?

(2) Is there any Industrial Department attached to the Indian Railways ?

(3) Is there any arrangement to know the views of the commercial people, their convenience, difficulties and complaints in connection with the Indian Railways ?

(4) (a) Do Government keep any detailed account as to whether a certain commodity has paid its way at the existing rates on the Indian Railways and if so, how much ?

†For this question, see at the end of the starred questions for the day.

(b) If not, how does the Railway Board calculate and find out whether the existing rates are reasonable ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (1) (a) Yes.

(b) The Commercial Committee for Interchange is appointed by the Indian Railway Conference Association. The Committee consists of the Chief Commercial Managers of the following Railways :

Eastern Bengal Railway.
Bengal and North Western and Rohilkund and Kumaon Railways
Bengal Nagpur Railway
East Indian Railway
Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway
North Western Railway
H. E. H. the Nizam's Guaranteed State Railways
Great Indian Peninsula Railway
Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway and the General Secretary, Indian Railway Conference Association.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) The Government lay down certain fixed maxima and minima rates between which Railways adjust individual rates to the extent which the traffic can bear. It is to the interest of the Commercial Departments of the Railways to see that rates are adjusted to obtain the maximum traffic offering and further the reasonableness of any rate can be entered for discussion at a meeting of the Advisory Committee of Railways.

(e) Yes, complaints regarding rates can be made to the Agent of a Railway and any representations regarding rates are given the most careful consideration by the Commercial Branches. As a general rule, it is not until there has been a failure to reach an agreement between a Railway Administration and an individual trader that a reference is made to the Rates Advisory Committee.

(2) No.

(3) Yes, through the Local Advisory Committees, the various Chambers of Commerce and other representative bodies.

(4) (a) No. It is found in practice that this is not feasible for a given commodity.

(b) The rates on Indian Railways have been fixed after years of experience and if the rate for any particular commodity is unreasonable the traffic would not move and the matter would therefore immediately come to the notice of the Railway Administration.

PERIOD SPENT IN THE HILLS IN SUMMER ON INSPECTION OF RAILWAY OUT-AGENCIES BY MR. WOOD, CHIEF AUDITOR OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

915. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Are the Government aware that the present Chief Auditor of the North-Western Railway, Mr. Wood, has during each of the last two years spent more than three months during the summer in the hills on the inspection of railway out-agencies ?

(b) Is it a fact that he is accompanied on several of the inspections by the Travelling Auditor and throughout by a Travelling Inspector of Accounts ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I propose to reply to questions Nos. 915 and 916 together.

Enquiry is being made, and a reply will be sent to the Honourable Member in due course.

INSPECTION OF OUT-AGENCIES BY MR. WOOD, CHIEF AUDITOR OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

†916. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that the inspection of small out-agencies is an important part of the Chief Auditor's duties ? Is it a fact that for the discharge of that duty it is necessary for him to absent himself from headquarters for a long time ?

(b) If the answer to (a) be in the negative what steps do Government propose to take to put a stop to such a practice ?

(c) Is it a fact that no previous Chief Auditor on the North Western Railway has been absent for such a long time as Mr. Wood from his headquarters on this work ?

(d) Is it a fact that hitherto the usual procedure has been to divide the out-agencies among the officers and that very junior officers have conducted the inspection of out-agencies without any assistance ?

(e) If the answer to (d) be in the affirmative what action do Government propose to take to put a stop to the waste involved in this system adopted by the present Chief Auditor ?

(f) Do the Government propose to direct the Agent of the Railway to inquire into the matter ?

ALLOWANCES GRANTED TO GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES UNDER THE SIMLA ALLOWANCE CODE.

917. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (1) Will the Government lay on the table of the House the correspondence leading to the enactment of the Simla Allowance Code ?

(2) Did the Government grant the allowances mentioned in the Code Book to those officers and employees only who were transferred from Calcutta or also to officers who were recruited locally ?

(3) Will the Government state the number of Government employees who receive benefits under the Simla Allowance Code ? Also will the Government state how many of these were brought up from Calcutta and how many recruited locally ?

(4) (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the grounds on which house rent allowance is granted to officials and clerks employed in the Government of India ?

(b) Was it the ground for granting the allowance that the employees concerned were shifted from Calcutta ? If so, on what ground was this benefit extended to those recruited locally ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply that I gave on the 20th instant to Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury's question No. 747 on the same subject.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 915.

CONDUCT OF THE POLICE IN INVESTIGATING THE MURDER OF SAYED MOHAMMED SADIQ, FATHER-IN-LAW OF KHAWAJA HASAN NIZAMI.

918. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Are Government aware that there is a strong feeling in Delhi as regards the conduct of the Police in investigating the murder case of Sayed Mohammed Sadiq, father-in-law of Khawaja Hasan Nizami ?

(b) Are Government aware that investigation of the case was suspended for a week soon after the crime was committed ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state what, if any, efforts were made by the Police to trace the person who purchased the revolver by which the crime was committed ?

(d) Are Government aware that a mass meeting of the Mussalmans of Delhi was held, under the presidentship of Maulana Ahmed Saeed, the Secretary of the Jamiat-ul-Ulma-i-Hind, to place on record the sense of the Mussalmans of Delhi about the defective investigation of the case and demanding a fresh enquiry ?

(e) Is it a fact that Laila Khawaja Banu, the wife of Khawaja Hasan Nizami, has addressed a letter to some Government officers of high position, praying for a fresh enquiry into the murder case of her father ?

(f) Do Government, under the circumstances, propose to order a fresh investigation of the case by the C. I. D. and make an effort to find out the conspiracy which resulted in the murder of Sayed Mohd. Sadiq in broad daylight, and bring about the punishment of the real accused ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I have called for information and will send the Honourable Member a reply to his question as soon as I am in a position to do so.

PROPOSED SEPARATION OF AUDIT FROM ACCOUNTS IN THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

919. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Will the Government please say if the proposal for the separation of Audit from Accounts be given effect to in the Eastern Bengal and North-Western Railways, the number of accountants in the Subordinate Railway Accounts Service Staff as sanctioned will remain unchanged ? If not, will the Government please state what steps they propose to take to safeguard the interests of those accountants who have passed the Railway Subordinate Accounts Service Examination and will be left surplus by the adoption of this proposal ?

(b) Will the Government please state whether the Railway Accounts Branch thus formed will recruit their accountants from the passed men who will be thus left surplus ? If not, will the Government be pleased to state why the vested interests of those passed accountants should be overlooked ?

(c) Is it a fact that a move has been made to start a school for training accountants for filling up posts of accountants in the Railway Accounts side ? If so, will the Government please state why new recruits would be taken as accountants in the Accounts side in preference to the passed men who have been working as accountants in the offices of the Chief Auditors, Eastern Bengal and North Western Railways ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The total number of accountants in the Accounts and the Audit Offices together will, under the separation proposals, be larger than the present number.

(b) and (c). The question of the terms and conditions under which existing subordinate establishments will be transferred to the Accounts Department has been dealt with in Annexure D of my Memorandum on the system of separation of Accounts from Audit. The final rules will be promulgated after further discussion with the Standing Finance Committee for Railways. It is proposed with the concurrence of the Auditor General to start a school temporarily to train men chiefly from the existing staff, to fill the additional posts of accountants required.

MILITARY TRAINING OF INDIAN YOUTHS.

920. Dr. B. S. Moonje : (1) What do Government propose to do towards accelerating and broadcasting the system of military training for Indian youths ?

(2) Do Government propose to take any steps for the establishment of an Indian manufacturing firm for the supply of up-to-date rifles to meet the requirements of the Indian Army ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (1) The policy in regard to the military training of youths, other than those who intend to adopt the army as a profession, is contained in the proposals of the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces Committee relating to the University Training Corps. These proposals have been accepted and are being carried out by Government.

(2) No, Sir. The requirements of the Indian Army in the matter of rifles are fully met by the existing Ordnance establishments.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Is there any likelihood of a Central Advisory Committee being formed in connection with this Department ?

Mr. G. M. Young : Sir, I hardly think that question arises, but Government did decide to form a Central Advisory Committee and in fact a provision to that effect was inserted in the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces (Amendment) Bill, which became law on the 1st September.

†921*.

EMPLOYMENT OF TWO CANDIDATES NOT BELONGING TO THE NORTH WEST FRONTIER REVENUE AREA IN CLERICAL APPOINTMENTS IN THE PUNJAB AND NORTH WEST FRONTIER POSTAL CIRCLE.

922. Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (on behalf of Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim) : (a) Is it a fact that Salig Ram one of the two candidates recommended by the Postmaster, Peshawar, to the Postmaster-General, Punjab and North-West Frontier Circle for clerical appointments belongs to Thatta (Rawalpindi District) ?

(b) Is it a fact that Salig Ram, one of the two candidates, was a temporary clerk in the office of Controller of Military Accounts, Peshawar where he gave his residence as stated in question (a) above ?

†For this question, see at the end of the starred questions for the day.

(c) Is it a fact that the second candidate recommended by the Postmaster, Peshawar, in August 1928, was Krishan Chandra, son of Jodha Ram, Accountant, Post Office, Peshawar ?

(d) Is it a fact that Jodha Ram, Accountant, is resident of Jhelum District ?

(e) Is it a fact that according to the orders of Government only those candidates who belong to North-West Frontier Province Revenue Area can be taken in the North-West Frontier Province ?

(f) If replies to the above be in the affirmative, do Government propose to take suitable action against the Postmaster, Peshawar, who employed these candidates deliberately and to remove the candidates so taken ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Government have no information.

EMPLOYMENT OF TWO BROTHERS AS CLERKS IN THE PESHAWAR HEAD POST OFFICE.

923. Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (on behalf of Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim) : (a) Is it a fact that according to the orders of the Postal Department no two relatives can be employed in one and the same office ?

(b) Is it a fact that Sham Singh and Kartar Singh two real brothers are employed as clerks in the Peshawar Head Post Office ?

(c) Is it a fact that the father of Krishan Chandra, nominated clerk of Peshawar, is employed as Accountant in the Peshawar Head Post Office ?

The other parts do not arise.

REVERSION OF TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES IN BOMBAY TO THE RANK FROM WHICH THEY WERE ORIGINALLY RECRUITED.

†899. Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : Will the Government be pleased to say :

(a) whether it is a fact that, prior to the introduction of the time scale of pay, the grade of Rs. 100 was reserved for the postal Town Inspectorship in Bombay Presidency Town ?

(b) whether it is a fact that the Town Inspectors in the Bombay Town were recruited from the clerks by means of the Presidency Postmaster's selection, irrespective of the seniority of the official so selected, or of the pay drawn by the selected official or of his passing the departmental examination ?

(c) whether the overseer postmen and the sorting postmen were also similarly appointed by means of selection from amongst suitable postmen ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 895.

(d) whether it is a fact that for the recent revision of pay, the permanent overseer postmen and the sorting postmen were not replaced by the postmen on the ground of seniority or suitability ? If the reply to the above 4 items are in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to say why the Town Inspectors of the Bombay town who were recruited from the clerks and appointed substantively in the appointment of Town Inspector should be reverted to the rank from which they were originally recruited ?

REVISED SCALES OF PAY FOR SORTING POSTMEN IN THE PUNJAB CIRCLE.

900. Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : Is it a fact that the sorting postmen of the Punjab Circle were on the same scale of pay as the postmen of that Circle ? If so, did the postmen who rendered more years' service than the sorting postmen claim the posts of sorting postmen in the revised scale on the ground of seniority or suitability or the junior postmen with better qualifications ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Prior to the introduction of the revised scales of pay, sorting postmen in the Punjab Circle were in the same time-scale of pay as ordinary postmen, but in addition they received special pay of Rs. 7-8-0 per mensem. (a) a list showing the names of the reverted officials showing against each the length of his permanent service as a Town Inspector prior to the date of his reversion to the clerical line and the period of work, in the revised post, and (b) a list of the newly appointed officials who have replaced the permanent Town Inspectors showing against each the length of his permanent service as Town Inspector prior to his new appointment in May 1928 ?

921. Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : (a) What are the total costs incurred in the investigation by the Tariff Board of the question of the grant of protection to the oil industry of India ?

(b) In view of the fact that the applicant companies who were members of the Kerosine Pool suppressed a very important fact in their representation to the Government of India that the Royal Dutch Shell Group had recognised their claim to compensation for losses suffered as a result of the price war, which, as admitted by the Government of India in their Resolution dated the 12th September 1928, [No. 141-T. (48) Government of India, Department of Commerce], was material to the issue whether there was a prima facie case for an enquiry or not, do Government propose to take steps to recover the entire costs of the enquiry by the Tariff Board from those companies ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to the second part of question No. 369 asked by Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh on the 11th September last.

(b) No.

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

IGNORING BY THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY AUTHORITIES OF REPRESENTATIONS MADE BY THE UNION ABOUT THE GRIEVANCES OF THE STAFF.

493. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that the authorities of the East Indian Railway do not give any reply to the representations about the grievances of the staff made by the Union from time to time ? If so, what are the reasons for not giving any reply to such representation ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Honourable Member has not mentioned the name of the particular Union to which he refers, but the question, whether replies would be sent to representations, depends on whether the Agent has accepted it as representing the interests of its members and their views.

494. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : With reference to my question No. 183 (a) and (b) in the last Session of the Assembly, will Government be pleased to state what steps have been taken to remove the difference in scales of pay and allowances prevailing on the Oudh and Rohilkhand section and East Indian section of the East Indian Railway ? 495. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : With reference to my question No. 182 (a) and (b) in the last Session of the Assembly, will Government be pleased to state what steps have been taken to grant a day's rest in a week to the railway staff or an allowance in lieu thereof ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to the unstarred question No. 55 of Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan on 4th September, 1928.

PROMOTION OF INDIANS TO "A" GRADE GUARDS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

497. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that, in view of the assurance given by the Government in the last Session of the Assembly to the effect that racial discrimination had been eliminated from the East Indian Railway, the 'B' grade Indian guards of Dinapur Division applied to the Agent for promotion to 'A' grade, and that the Agent replied that promotion from 'B' grade to 'A' grade would be made by selection only ?

(b) If the answer be in the affirmative, will Government please state the reasons why Europeans and Anglo-Indians are appointed direct to 'A' grade ? Will Government please state the educational qualifications of these Europeans and Anglo-Indians ?

(c) Is it a fact that some Indian graduates have been appointed as guards in 'B' grade ? If so, will Government be pleased to state why these graduates have not been appointed in 'A' grade ?

(d) With reference to my question No. 179 (a) and (b) in the last Session of the Assembly, will Government please state what steps have been taken to stop the appointment of outsiders as 'A' grade guards unless and until the 'B' grade guards who have completed the grade are promoted to 'A' grade ?

(e) Is it a fact that a large number of qualified employees of the East Indian Railway who have passed the guards duties and other departmental examinations applied for appointment as guards, but their applications were not considered and unpassed outsiders were appointed as guards ? If so, will Government please state the reasons why unpassed outsiders are given preference over passed hands ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Honourable Member's questions have been referred to the Agent of the East Indian Railway, and I will communicate with the Honourable Member on the receipt of the Agent's reply.

ABSORPTION IN THE PERMANENT ESTABLISHMENT OF SUPERNUMERARY HANDS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

498. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that a large number of employees of the East Indian Railway are in the supernumerary list, and that outsiders are being permanently appointed in supersession of the claims of supernumerary hands ? If so, do Government propose to stop the appointment of outsiders permanently until the supernumerary hands have been absorbed in the permanent establishment ? If not, why not ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Enquiries are being made, and I will let the Honourable Member know the result.

CURTAILMENT OF HOLIDAYS IN THE DINAPUR DIVISION OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

499. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that in the Dinapur Division of the East Indian Railway the number of gazetted holidays has been curtailed ? If so, was there any representation by the staff against such curtailment of holidays and what action was taken on the same ? Do the Government propose to issue instructions to the Agent to grant all holidays sanctioned by the Government of India ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government have no information. It rests with the Agent of the Railway to decide what number of holidays should be given, and the Government of India do not propose to interfere in the matter.

REFUSAL OF CASUAL LEAVE TO THE STAFF OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

(c) Is it a fact that no relief is sent in time for employees at roadside stations reporting sick and the staff have to perform double duties for want of relief ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government have no information, but have sent a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent of the East Indian Railway in order that he may consider whether any action is necessary.

NUMBER OF USUAL WORKING HOURS OF CERTAIN CLASSES OF EMPLOYEES ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

501. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will Government please state the number of usual working hours of (1) Station Masters, (2) Assistant Station Masters, (3) Booking Clerks, (4) Parcel Clerks, (5) Goods Clerks, (6) Checking Clerks, (7) Train Clerks, (8) Number Takers, (9) Transhipment Clerks, (10) Station Masters Clerks, and (11) Signallers, on the East Indian Railway ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The working hours of these classes of employees varies at different stations, and Government are not prepared to undertake the detailed investigation which would be required to answer the Honourable Member's question.

SERVICE AGREEMENTS WITH THE STAFF OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

502. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that there is a clause in the agreement of the staff of the East Indian Railway that their services can be dispensed with without assigning any reasons ? If so, do Government propose to issue instructions to the Agent that no permanent employee should be discharged from service unless the reasons are clearly stated ? If not, will Government be pleased to state reasons ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The service agreement contains a provision that an employee's services can be terminated at any time after one month's notice on either side, or on payment by Government of one month's pay in lieu of notice. It is not usual to give reasons in cases of discharge, and it is for the railway authorities to decide whether reasons should be given or not. Government do not propose to issue instructions fettering the discretion of railway administrations in this matter, for the nature of railway service makes it necessary to engage employees on terms which will allow of their discharge, if their services are no longer needed.

NUMBER OF INDIAN, ANGLO-INDIAN AND EUROPEAN EMPLOYEES OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY DISCHARGED DURING THE YEAR 1927.

503. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the number of Indian, Anglo-Indian and European employees of the East Indian Railway discharged from service during the year 1927 giving reasons for discharge ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government regret that they are not willing to undertake the preparation of such a statement.

CLASSES OF EMPLOYEES OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY ENTITLED TO RENT-FREE QUARTERS.

504. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will Government please state which classes of workers of East Indian Railway are entitled to rent-free quarters ?

(b) Are all employees who are entitled to rent-free quarters provided with quarters ? If the answer be in the negative, will Government please state the number of employees who have not been provided with quarters ?

(c) Is it a fact that the employees who have not been provided with rent-free quarters are given a house allowance in lieu of quarters ? If so, what is the rate of such allowance ?

(d) Is it a fact that some employees who are not entitled to rent-free quarters under the existing rules, but have been provided with quarters have to pay rent at the rate of one-ninth of their pay ?

(e) Is there any difference between the rate of house allowance paid to the staff who are entitled to rent-free quarters and the house rent deducted from those who are not entitled to rent-free quarters but have been provided with quarters ? If so, will Government please state the reasons for such difference ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government regret that they are not prepared to undertake the enquiries in the detail which an answer to the Honourable Member's question will entail.

APPOINTMENT OF ANGLO-INDIAN GUARDS TO OFFICIATE AS STATION MASTERS AT CERTAIN STATIONS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

505. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that at Patna Junction, Jha Jha, Mokameh, Kiul and other important stations whenever the station masters have gone on leave Anglo-Indian guards from outside have been sent to work as station masters there in supersession of the claims of the senior assistant station masters of the station ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons for not complying with the statement contained in their letter No. 6164, dated the 22nd May 1928 ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government are not aware of the detailed arrangements which may have been made at these particular stations in the past. I must point out that senior assistant station masters at these or other stations have no claim to officiate. There is nothing in the letter mentioned by the Honourable Member suggesting that they have any such claim.

PAY OF STATION MASTERS AND ASSISTANT STATION MASTERS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

506. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: (a) Will Government please state the maximum pay of Indian station masters and assistant station masters, and the minimum pay of European and Anglo-Indian station masters and assistant station masters on the East Indian Railway ? If there be any difference, will Government be pleased to state the reasons ?

(b) In view of the assurance of the Government that racial discrimination has been eliminated from the East Indian Railway, do Government propose to raise the pay of Indian station masters and assistant station masters to the level of the European and Anglo-Indian station masters and assistant station masters ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: (a) A statement showing the rates of pay of station masters and assistant station masters on the East Indian Railway is being sent to the Honourable Member. These apply equally to all employees of whatever race.

(b) Does not arise.

PAY OF JUNIOR CLERKS OF THE INSPECTORS' OFFICES OF THE ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

507. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: Is it a fact that the junior clerks of the Inspectors' offices of the Engineering Department who are all in grade V, are blocked at Rs. 60 ? Is it a fact that the maximum of grade V is Rs. 80 ? If so, will the Government state the reasons for withholding the maximum pay of the grade from these junior clerks of the Engineering Department ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: Government have no information, but have sent a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent of the East Indian Railway in order that he may consider whether any action is necessary.

(c) Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the amount realised by the (1) Crew Department and (2) Travelling Ticket Inspectors as fares from passengers travelling without tickets during the year 1927-28 in each Division ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: Information is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

TRANSFER OF TRAVELLING TICKET INSPECTORS TO INFERIOR POSITIONS IN THE CREW DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

509. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: Is it a fact that the old Travelling Ticket Inspectors and station Ticket Collectors have been temporarily transferred to the Crew Department where they hold inferior positions and that outsiders have been appointed as Crew Inspectors and Crew-in-charges on higher pay ? If so, why ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: The position was, and is, that the old employees to whom the Honourable Member refers were not qualified to discharge the duties of the higher grade posts, and that in preference to discharging them they were transferred to lower posts the duties of which it was considered they could perform satisfactorily.

REPRESENTATION OF THE TRAVELLING TICKET INSPECTORS OF THE DINAPUR DIVISION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

510. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: Is it a fact that the Travelling Ticket Inspectors of the Dinapur Division submitted a representation to the railway authorities protesting against the unfair treatment accorded to them ? If so, what action has been taken on the same ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: Government have no information and regret that they cannot undertake to enquire into cases which are entirely within the competence of the Agent of the Railway.

APPOINTMENT OF CREW OFFICERS IN EACH DIVISION OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

511. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: (a) Is it a fact that high-salaried Crew officers have been appointed in each Division ? Is it a fact that there are a sufficient number of officers in all the Divisions since the introduction of divisional system of work ? What objection, if any, have Government to entrust these officers with the work of the Crew Department instead of appointing additional officers for the purpose ?

(b) Is it a fact that the work of the Crew Department can be managed by the Divisional Officers, Ticket Inspectors and station masters more efficiently and economically than by the newly appointed officers and station inspectors and Night men-in-charge of the Crew Department ?

(c) Is it a fact that since the introduction of the Crew Department it has been a close preserve for outsiders and the old Travelling Ticket Inspectors and Ticket Collectors are rigidly excluded from higher posts of the Department ?

(d) Is it a fact that the new Crew-in-Charges and Inspectors are allowed to issue excess fare tickets although they have not furnished any cash security ? If so, what security have Government in cases of misappropriation ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: (a) An additional junior scale officer has been appointed in charge of the crew organisation on those divisions of the East Indian Railway on which the crew system operates. The crew system was a new activity over which supervision is necessary, but that supervision could not be carried out by officers who already had their time fully occupied with other duties.

(b) Certainly not.

(c) No.

(d) The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. The sums in the hands of the crew-in-charges and the Inspectors at any one time are not so large as to require a security deposit.

TRANSFER OF TRAVELLING TICKET INSPECTORS TO THE CREW DEPARTMENT ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

512. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will the Government please lay on the table a copy of the minutes of a meeting of the officers of the East Indian Railway held on 3rd May, 1927, in connection with the transfer of the Travelling Ticket Inspectors to the Crew Department, a copy of the representation submitted by the Travelling Ticket Inspectors to the Divisional Superintendent of Howrah on the subject and the reply thereto, dated 22nd November, 1927 ?

Mr. L. Graham : (a) The reply is in the negative.

(b) Does not arise.

514. Kumar Rananjaya Singh : Will Government be pleased to state when the general elections of the Legislative Assembly and the Council of State are going to be held ? Is it a fact that these elections are going to be held after the report of the Simon Commission and the passing of the new Government of India Act ?

Mr. L. Graham : Power to extend the life of the Assembly and the Council of State is vested in the Governor General under section 63D of the Government of India Act. Government have no information on either part of the question.

TOTAL NUMBER OF POLITICAL PRISONERS IN INDIA

515. Kumar Rananjaya Singh : What is the total number of political prisoners all over India and how many of them are Hindus and how many Muhammadans ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : If the Honourable Member will explain precisely what he means by political prisoners, I will see whether the information can be supplied.

TOTAL NUMBER OF DAFTARIES, PEONS, FARASHES AND OTHER MENIALS EMPLOYED IN THE INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT, ETC.

516. Haji Chaudhury Mohammad Ismail Khan : (a) What is the total number of daftaries, peons, farashes and other menials working in the Indian Stores Department, and how many of them are Muslims ? What procedure is adopted by this Department in recruiting suitable men for these posts ?

(b) Are the Government aware that a considerable section of the ministerial staff of this Department are dissatified with this office and prefer to be transferred to other Departments of the Government of India, including attached offices, and that of late difficulties are being put in their way to get jobs in other offices for one reason or another ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The total number of daftaries, peons and farashes employed in the office of the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department, is 58, of whom 3 are Muslims. Candidates are selected from among those applying for appointments.

(b) No. I understand that one typist was recently prevented from transferring his services temporarily to another office, but I am not aware of any general discontent.

TOTAL STRENGTH OF THE CLERICAL AND MENIAL ESTABLISHMENTS OF THE BOMBAY PURCHASE CIRCLE.

517. Haji Chaudhury Mohammad Ismail Khan : Will the Government kindly state the total number of clerical and menial staff employed in the Bombay Purchase Circle of this Department, and the number of Muslims in each class ? What steps have been taken in the past by this Circle to secure communal adjustment of the staff ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The total strengths of the clerical and menial establishments of the Bombay Purchase Circle are 1 and 9, respectively. Of these one, a menial, is a Muslim. The necessity for securing adequate communal representation in his staff has been impressed on the Officer in charge of the Circle, who reports that this consideration is kept in view when effecting recruitment.

INADEQUACY OF THE SCALES OF PAY OF THE SUBORDINATE STAFF EMPLOYED ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

518. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will the Government be pleased to state if of late there was any correspondence between the Railway Board at Simla and the Agent, Bengal and North-Western Railway, regarding the scale of pay of the Indian subordinate staff working on this Railway and whether the Railway Board pointed out to the Agent, Bengal and North Western Railway, the inadequacy of its scales and their vast difference from those prevailing on other Indian Railways ?

(i) If the answer is in the affirmative will the Government be pleased to place the correspondence before the House ?

(ii) If the answer is in the negative do the Government propose to ask the Bengal and North-Western Railway to increase its scales ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : There has been no such correspondence and Government do not propose to take up the matter with the Agent.

OVERWORKED STAFF IN THE TRAFFIC AND LOCOMOTIVE DEPARTMENTS ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

519. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (i) Is it a fact that the staff employed in the Traffic and Locomotive Departments on the Bengal and North-Western Railway are overworked ?

(ii) Do some of them work for 12 hours a day and some for 24 hours ?

(iii) Is it a fact that the train staff have no limit to their working ?

(iv) If the reply be in affirmative do the Government propose to ask the Bengal and North-Western Railway to reduce the working hours ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I propose with your permission, Sir, to reply to questions Nos. 519, 521, 524, 525, 526 and 527 together. Enquiries are being made from the Railway Administration and I will communicate with the Honourable Member in due course.

(2) (a) Is it a fact that the driver and other crew of the above-mentioned wrecked train were continuously on duty for about 19 hours when the accident took place ?

(b) Was she running without a vacuum brake ?

(c) Is it a fact that most of the trains on this Railway do run without vacuum brakes ?

(d) Was an enquiry held into this accident ? (i) If so, by whom, and (ii) was the fact of over-work of the Engine crew taken into consideration by the enquiring officer in submitting his report to the higher authorities ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (1) (a) 8 persons were killed and 15 were injured.

(b) In the opinion of the Senior Government Inspector who made an enquiry, the cause of the accident was the derailment of an empty road van attached next to the engine.

(c) and (d). No one is responsible ; the occurrence was purely accidental.

(2) (a) There is nothing to show that this was so, but I am enquiring from the Agent of the Railway.

(b) Yes.

(c) No. Over 63 per cent. of the coaching vehicles (including brake vans used exclusively on passenger trains) on the Bengal and North Western Railway are vacuum braked.

(d) An enquiry was held by the Senior Government Inspector of Railways and by the District Magistrate, Darbhanga, but neither of their reports suggests that the engine crew had been over-worked.

EMPLOYMENT OF MARKERS OF THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY AS CLERKS, ASSISTANT GOODS CLERKS AND GOODS CLERKS AT SOME OF THE ROADSIDE AND JUNCTION STATIONS.

†521. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that on the Bengal and North-Western Railway, markers are appointed at some of the roadside and junction stations for the purpose of working as clerks, assistant goods clerks or goods clerks ?

(b) Is it a fact that they get a starting salary of Rs. 10 or 12 per mensem and there are only a few who get Rs. 16 per mensem ?

(c) Is it a fact that they are reckoned as menials and though their services are retained permanently they are kept in temporary scales and are deprived of all the privileges to which other servants of the same Railway are entitled ?

(d) If the reply be in the affirmative do the Government propose to take action to have this undesirable practice discontinued ?

(e) If not, why ?

EMPLOYMENT WITHOUT EXTRA REMUNERATION OF ASSISTANT GUARDS AND SHUNTERS AS GUARDS AND DRIVERS, RESPECTIVELY, ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

522. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that (i) the assistant guards and shunters drawing salaries from Rs. 12 to 18 and Rs. 19 to 24 per mensem, whether qualified or not, are continuously made to work as guards and drivers respectively on the Bengal and North-Western Railway ?

(ii) Are they paid an extra allowance for working as guards and drivers ?

(iii) Are they held responsible and punished for any irregularity or error the same as guards and drivers ?

(b) Do the Government propose to take steps, so that such a practice may cease ?

(c) If not, why ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to Mr. Joshi's starred question No. 274 on the 8th September.

A copy of the Honourable Member's question has been sent to the Agent.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 519.

PAY OF SIGNALLERS EMPLOYED AT STATIONS ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

523. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the difference of responsibilities and duties between signallers employed in the Government telegraph offices and at stations on the Bengal and North-Western Railway ?

(b) Is it a fact that the responsibility of signallers on this Railway is much more than the signallers in the Government telegraph offices and concerns the safety of the travelling public ?

(c) Is it a fact that the signallers in this Railway at wayside stations get salaries between Rs. 20 and Rs. 30 only and at junction stations between Rs. 30 and 50 ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). It is not practicable to make a fair comparison between the responsibilities and duties of signallers employed in Government telegraph offices and of signallers employed on the Bengal and North Western or any other Railway. The technical and general educational qualifications required of a Government telegraph signaller are higher than those of a railway signaller, as the methods adopted for sending and receiving messages in Government telegraph offices are complicated while those required in railway working are simple. And further the signalling work in a Government telegraph office is of a far more concentrated and arduous nature than it is in an ordinary wayside or junction station.

(c) Enquiries are being made from the Railway Administration and I will communicate with the Honourable Member in due course.

PAY OF INDIAN GUARDS ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

†524. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the Indian guards on the Bengal and North-Western Railway receive the minimum remuneration of Rs. 20 per mensem and there are only four or five who receive at most Rs. 60 per mensem ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Indian guards used to get Rs. 21 as their minimum remuneration up to year 1923, but that in the revision of scales of their salary and allowance their minimum salary was reduced to Rs. 20 per month ?

(c) Is it a fact that there are several classes of guards on this Railway ?

(d) What are the differences of duties of guards in the various classes ?

(e) Is it a fact that the scales of pay and allowance of guards on this Railway provide that promotion from one class to another cannot be claimed as a right but will be made according to vacancies and qualifications ?

(f) Is it a fact that guards on this Railway in any class are qualified and actually work all description of trains ?

(g) Is the remuneration of guards adequate on the Bengal and North-Western Railway ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 519.

(h) If not, what action do Government propose to take to ensure an adequate salary to the guards on the Bengal and North-Western Railway ?

PAY OF STATION MASTERS OF THE FIVE CLASSES OF STATIONS ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

†525. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that there are five classes of stations on the Bengal and North-Western Railway ?

(b) Is it a fact that most of the stations are classed as " C " ?

(c) Is it a fact that station masters of " C " class stations receive a fixed salary of Rs. 50 while the salaries of the station masters of other classes are increased gradually ?

(d) If reply to question (c) be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state the principle on which the salary of the various classes of station masters is fixed ?

PAY OF CERTAIN SPECIFIED CLASSES OF EMPLOYEES ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

†526. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the following salaries are provided in the current budget and establishment roll of the Bengal and North-Western Railway for :

	Indian	30	70

(b) If reply be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for observance of distinction in payment of remuneration to public servants of equal responsibilities and between Indians and Europeans ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 519.

GRANT OF CONCESSIONS AND OTHER FACILITIES BY THE AUTHORITIES OF THE BALRAMPUR HOSPITAL, LUCKNOW, TO THE INDIAN EMPLOYEES OF THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

527. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the Bengal and North-Western Railway annually contributes a sum of Rs. 600 to the funds of the Balrampur Hospital at Lucknow and in lieu of this the hospital authorities grant concessions and afford other facilities to European and Anglo-Indian employees of the said Railway ?

(b) Are any such contributions made by the Bengal and North-Western Railway for facilities to be afforded and concessions to be granted to its Indian employees in the Balarampur or any efficient hospital ? If so, how much and to which hospital ? If not, why ?

NUMBER OF INDIAN OFFICERS EMPLOYED ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

528. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state :

(i) The number of officers on the Bengal and North-Western Railway ?

(ii) How many out of them are Indians ?

(iii) Amount of salaries paid to them per mensem for the last three years ?

(iv) How much to Indian officers ?

(v) Number of upper subordinates ?

(vi) How many out of them are Europeans, Anglo-Indians and how many Indians ?

(vii) Amount of salaries paid to them ?

(viii) How much to Indian upper subordinates ?

(b) (i) Is it a fact that none of the District Officers and Heads of Department, and even of the Foremen of Running Sheds and Workshops is an Indian ?

(ii) If not, why ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) (i), (ii), (v) and (vi). The Honourable Member is referred to Appendix F of the Report by the Railway Board on Indian Railways, copies of which are in the Library.

(a) (iii), (iv), (vii) and (viii). Government have no information and they do not think that the labour involved in collecting it will serve any useful purpose.

(b) (i) and (ii). A communication on these points will be sent to the Honourable Member in due course.

INADEQUATE PAY OF THE STAFF OF THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

529 Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) (i) Is it a fact that the employees on the Bengal and North-Western Railway are generally low paid ?†

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 519.

(ii) Is it a fact that the Agent, Bengal and North-Western Railway, wrote to the President of Bengal and North-Western Railwaymen's Association saying that his Railway is unable to maintain a staff of the same qualifications as in the Oudh and Rohilkund Railway and the East Indian Railway ?

(iii) What qualifications do railway servants possess ?

(iv) Does the Agent, Bengal and North-Western Railway, mean to say that the staff of his Railway are not qualified or efficient as the railway servants must be ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state :

(i) The effects and results of services of semi-qualified staff on Railways ?

(ii) Whether the meagre profit of the said Railway is one of the causes of inadequate salaries paid to its staff ?

(iii) The percentage of declared dividend to its shareholders during the year ending 30th September 1927 ?

(iv) Whether it was 18 per cent.

(v) Is it not sufficient to maintain sufficiently a qualified staff or to pay them adequately ?

(c) (i) Do Government propose to direct the administration of the said Railway to pay its staff sufficiently ?

(ii) If not, why ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) (i) It is not understood what the Honourable Member means by " low paid ". Government understand that the cost of living is lower in the areas served by the Bengal and North-Western Railway than in other parts of India, and it is not, therefore, necessary to pay as high salaries to certain classes of railway employees there as elsewhere.

(ii) Government have no information.

(iii) Such qualifications as are required for the performance of the various classes of duties required of them.

(iv) Government feel sure that the Agent of the Railway has never committed himself to any statement of this kind.

(b) A dividend of 18 per cent. was declared for the year ending 30th September, 1927. Government do not agree with the assumptions underlying the remaining parts of the Honourable Member's question.

(c) (i). Government do not propose to do so.

(ii) Because Government do not accept the assumption on which the Honourable Member asks for such instructions to be issued.

CHARGES FOR LOADING AND UNLOADING OF GOODS ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

530. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) (i) Is it a fact that the Bengal and North Western Railway does not pay for the charges of loading and unloading of goods in and out of wagons but engages the services of an insufficient number of porters for the purpose and compels the station masters to have loading and unloading done with the labour of merchants despatching and receiving goods through it ?

(ii) How much did this Railway pay on this account and at what rate last year and how much for the 10 years before last ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (i) A complaint received about a year ago by the Railway Board suggests that there is some dissatisfaction on this score.

(ii) I am afraid the figures are not procurable, but I am sending a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent of the Railway in order that he may see whether action still requires to be taken.

DETECTION OF BASE COINS AND FORGED CURRENCY NOTES ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

531. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will the Government be pleased to state :

(i) whether station masters or other responsible clerks of stations on the Bengal and North Western Railway are made to pay for all base coins and forged Government currency notes received in the treasury of the said Railway along with the cash remittance of stations ?

(ii) what is the procedure for detecting base coins and forged notes in the said treasury ?

(iii) what training is imparted to the staff at stations on the said Railway to make them capable of detecting base coins and forged notes while they receive an unlimited number of coins and notes from the public in a very short time in lieu of freights and fares ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am not aware of the exact procedure on the Bengal and North-Western Railway, but will make enquiries and inform the Honourable Member of the result.

REFUSAL OF THE AGENT TO RECOGNISE THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAYMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

532. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state :

(i) Is there an Association of employees of the Bengal and North Western Railway entitled the " Bengal and North Western Railwaymen's Association " ?

(ii) Is it a registered union under the Trade Unions Act, XVI of 1926 ?

(iii) If so is the Agent of said Railway not prepared to recognize the registered association of his employees ?

(iv) If not, why not ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Agent of the Bengal and North Western Railway wrote to the General Secretary of the Association of employees of that Railway as follows :

" As you are aware this Railway does not recognize the Bengal and North Western Railwaymen's Association and I now beg to inform you that in future any communication received by me or any of the officers of this Railway from you or from members of the Association will not be read, but will be immediately torn up and put in the waste paper basket."

(c) Is it a fact that since then the said Agent does not reply to any communications of that Association ?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state what are the reasons for taking such drastic action, seriously offending the entire Association and its honorary and paid office-bearers ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) to (d). Enquiries are being made from the Railway administration and I will communicate with the Honourable Member in due course.

COMMUNICATION IN WRITING OF THE REASONS FOR DISMISSAL OR DISCHARGE OF AN EMPLOYEE ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

533. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (i) Is it a fact that reasons for dismissal and discharge of an employee on the Bengal and North-Western Railway are not communicated to him in writing ?

(ii) Is it a fact that no mention is made of such reasons in the service certificates granted to the employees and sometimes no remark is even made regarding character although space is provided for the purpose but that such space is either left blank or dashed ?

(iii) Is it also a fact that only one copy of the agreement bond of employment is filled in and signed by the executing employee but that a copy of it signed by the employers is not given to the executors ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (i) and (ii). The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to Mr. Joshi's question No. 706 of 20th September, 1928.

(iii) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given to Mr. Joshi's starred question No. 707 on the 20th September, 1928.

TIME TAKEN BY FIRST DIVISION CLERKS OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS TO REACH THE MAXIMUM OF THEIR TIME SCALE OF PAY.

534. Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Is it a fact that, in the clerical time-scales of pay introduced in the Postal Department throughout India and Burma the maximum of the scale can ordinarily be reached in 21 years or so ?

(b) Is it a fact that the same time is taken in reaching the maximum in the time-scale of pay sanctioned for the upper division assistants in the Government of India Secretariat ?

(c) Is it a fact that the same time-limit is not observed in respect of the first division clerks of the office of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, and that they have to take 25 years or so in reaching the maximum of their scale ?

(d) If so, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons for this anomaly and do Government propose to take steps to remove the same ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) The scale of pay for the first division clerks of the Director-General's office has been fixed with reference to that sanctioned for clerks of similar status in the attached offices of the Government of India where the maximum is attainable in the 25th year.

REDUCTION IN THE RATE OF INCREMENTS OF FIRST DIVISION CLERKS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

535. Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Is it a fact that, prior to 1st March 1921, the rate of increment in the then grades of Rs. 100—150 and Rs. 150—200 for the first division (then A class) clerks in the office of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, was Rs. 10 per annum ?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons for decreasing the rate of increment

(1) between the Rs. 100—150 stage from Rs. 10 to Rs. 5 in the time-scale of Rs. 80—80—100—5—150—10—250 introduced for the first division (then A class) clerks of the office from 1st March, 1921, and again

(2) between the Rs. 150—160 stage from Rs. 10 to Rs. 6 in the revised time-scale of Rs. 100—6—160—10—300 introduced from the 1st August 1927 ?

(c) If the reduction in the rate of increment is due to an increase in the minimum pay, will the Government be pleased to state why any similar reduction has not been made in case of the Superintendents (then Head Assistants) of the Office of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, the minimum of whose pay has been raised by Rs. 100 and the maximum by Rs. 200 since 1921 ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) (1) because a separate Departmental Committee recommended that the three former grades of Rs. 50—5—100, Rs. 100—10—150 and Rs. 150—10—200 should be replaced by a single time-scale of Rs. 80—80—100—5—150—10—250.

(2) because on the 1st August, 1927, the transfer of the office from Calcutta to New Delhi was completed, and from that date the above time-scale of pay was raised to Rs. 100—6—160—10—300 as against Rs. 120—8—160—10—350 sanctioned for the first division clerks in the attached offices of the Government of India.

(c) In view of the reply to part (b) above, this part of the question does not arise.

SUPERSESSION BY TWO SOLDIER CLERKS OF SEVERAL OFFICIATING FIRST DIVISION ASSISTANTS IN THE OFFICE OF THE MASTER GENERAL OF SUPPLY.

536. Pandit Nilakantha Das : 1. With reference to the reply given in this House on 27th March 1928 to parts (a) and (b) of unstarred question No. 481, will Government please state :

(a) the criterion by which the " greater merit and suitability " of the two soldier clerks was determined compared to the civilian officiating first division clerks ?

(b) how, when and by whom were their relative merits tested ?

2. Will Government please state the academic qualifications and the length of service in the clerical line of the two soldier clerks in question and the other civilian clerks superseded by them ?

Mr. G. M. Young : 1. (a) The question is not understood. The selection of the two soldier clerks was, no doubt, the result of a comparison of the work of all the clerks concerned.

(b) The tests rested on reports made by their superior officers. The tests were applied at the time of confirmation and by the head of the office.

2.	Soldier clerks.	Civilian clerks.
Academic qualifications ..	1st Class Army School Certificate of Eduction.	1 M.A. 2 B.As. 2 Intermediates.
Length of service at Army Headquarters at date.	Between 1 and 2 years (excluding their Army service).	Between 3 and 6 years.

ARTICLE IN THE Mazdoor OF THE 21ST JULY, 1928, ENTITLED " GUARDS' REST IN DINAPUR DIVISION " (EAST INDIAN RAILWAY).

537. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to an article headed " Guards' rest in Dinapur Division " in the Mazdoor of the 21st July, 1928 ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state what action, if any, has been taken against insufficient rest of the guards of the East Indian Railway ?

(b) Is it a fact that there are many vacancies in the guards' list which have not yet been filled up ? If so, will Government please state why the appointment of guards has not been made in spite of ' under rest ' and shortage of guards ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Government have not seen the article mentioned by the Honourable Member.

(b) They have no information as to the number of vacancies in the guards' list on the East Indian Railway, which is in any case purely a matter for the local authorities to deal with.

WAGES OF SKILLED AND UNSKILLED WORKMEN OF THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOPS, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

538. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the rates of wages of skilled and unskilled workmen of the Lillooah workshops are much less than those of the workmen of the Jamalpur and Lucknow workshops ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for such difference in wages of the employees of one and the same Railway ?

(b) Is it a fact that the workmen of Lillooah are given daily wages unlike the workmen of Jamalpur and Lucknow ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for such differential treatment ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) No comparison has been made of the rates of wages of workmen at Lillooah and Jamalpur, but in connection with the demands of the men at Lillooah the Agent made an investigation of the rates at Lillooah and at Lucknow, and he found that, though there were naturally some differences in the rates prevailing in places so far apart owing to the entirely different conditions ruling at the two places, the general level of the rates of pay at Lillooah did not compare unfavourably with the general level of the rates at Lucknow, particularly when it is borne in mind that at Lillooah the staff only work for 42½ hours a week, whereas at Lucknow they work for 48 hours a week.

(b) They are making enquiries from the Agent whether there is any difference in this respect between Lillooah, Jamalpur, and Lucknow, and will let the Honourable Member know in due course.

PROVISION OF QUARTERS FOR THE WORKMEN OF LILLOOAH, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

539. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that there is no arrangement for house accommodation for the workmen of Lillooah ? If so, will Government please state what steps have been taken to provide the workmen with quarters ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : It is proposed shortly to carry out an investigation into the housing conditions of the workshop staff at Lillooah.

SECURITY OF SERVICE FOR THE WORKMEN EMPLOYED AT LILLOOAH, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

540. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that there is no security of service for the workmen of Lillooah, and that their services are dispensed with by the foremen without any enquiry by the higher officers of the workshops ?

(b) Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the number of workmen dismissed and discharged from service and the number of new men engaged in their place during the year 1927 ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) This is not so. Where the services of a workman at Lillooah are dispensed with, a full enquiry is made by a Special Establishment Officer. In no case can services of a workman be dispensed with by the foreman.

(b) Government regret they are not prepared to undertake the enquiry which the answer to the Honourable Member's question will entail.

CHARGES OF BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION AGAINST THE FOREMEN EMPLOYED IN THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOPS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

541. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the workmen of Lillooah constantly reported to the authorities about bribery and corruption amongst the foremen ? If so, what action has been taken to enquire into the truth or otherwise of the reports ?

(b) Is it a fact that the workmen of Lillooah produced documentary evidence of bribery against some of the subordinate officers of the workshops and that some of the officers complained against were granted leave to go out of India ? If so, will Government please state if any enquiry was made before granting leave and whether any prosecution was ordered in cases where bribery was proved ? If not, why not ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government are not aware that any such complaints were made by the Lillooah workmen. They are asking the Agent for his remarks on the allegations contained in the Honourable Member's question, and for that purpose I shall be obliged if the Honourable Member will put me in possession of the documentary evidence on which the allegations are based.

ALLEGED BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION AMONGST THE SUBORDINATE OFFICERS EMPLOYED IN RAILWAY WORKSHOPS.

542. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to an article in the Mazdoor, dated 25th January 1928, under the heading " An open challenge " ? If so, what action has been taken on it ?

(b) Is it a fact that the prevalence of corrupt practices in the workshops is due to lack of supervision of the higher officers of the Railway ? If so, will Government please state what action they propose to take against these officers ?

(c) Are the Government aware that on several occasions attempts were made to penalise the workmen who produced documents to prove bribery and corruption amongst the subordinate officers ? Do the Government propose to put a stop to such attempts ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government have not seen the article mentioned by the Honourable Member, and do not admit there is a prevalence of corrupt practices in railway workshops or lack of adequate supervision by the higher officers of the Railway. They are not aware of any such attempts to penalise workmen as are suggested in the last part of the Honourable Member's question.

DISCONTENT AMONG THE WORKMEN EMPLOYED IN THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOPS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

543. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that there is grave discontent amongst the workmen of Lillooah on account of (1) low wages, (2) want of house accommodation, (3) heavy fines, (4) dismissal, and (5) bribery ? Do the Government propose to institute an enquiry into the causes of discontent ?

(b) Is it a fact that the authorities of the Lillooah workshops tried to obtain the thumb impressions of the workmen on blank paper through a habitual criminal, named Fazil Mistry ? Is it a fact that the General Secretary of the East Indian Railway Union which has been organized and registered under the Trade Unions Act sent a wire to the Agent of the East Indian Railway as well as to the Railway Board on the subject ? If so, will Government please state what action was taken in the matter ? Is it a fact that there was a short-lived strike in this connection which was settled by Mr. Strachey, Deputy Agent, in the absence of the Agent, Mr. Colvin, and the workers were also assured that their other grievances would be favourably considered ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Representations were received from the workmen of Lillooah complaining of low wages and want of accommodation, but not of heavy fines, dismissal or bribery. Their complaints have already been investigated by the Agent of the East Indian Railway and action has been taken where they were considered to be well founded.

(b) A telegram to the effect mentioned in the Honourable Member's question was sent by the General Secretary of the East Indian Railway Union (Khagaul) to the Secretary of the Railway Board on the 23rd January, 1928. Owing to complaints which were made against mistry. Fazil, the men had stopped work for half a day on the 23rd January, but came back to work the next day. No general assurances were made by the Deputy Agent, nor is it correct that the authorities of the Lillooah workshops tried to obtain the thumb impressions of the workmen on blank paper through the mistry mentioned.

REDRESS OF THE GRIEVANCES OF THE WORKMEN EMPLOYED IN THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOPS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

544. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that the workmen of Lillooah submitted a representation to the Agent in February last for redressing their grievances, and the Agent promised to make enquiries ? Will the Government be pleased to state the result of such enquiries ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : A representation was submitted to the Agent last March. The Agent has made enquiries into the matters brought to notice in the representation, and as a result, the pay of certain of the lower classes of workmen has been increased, and an enquiry is being made into the housing conditions at Lillooah.

CAUSE OF THE STRIKE AT LILLOOAH ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

545. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that two workmen were suspended and two were discharged from service in February last on the report of a gate-keeper to the effect that they were fighting amongst themselves outside the workshops ? Is it a fact that such charges were denied and no enquiry was made ? Is it a fact that owing to the dismissal of the men and refusal to hold an enquiry the workmen downed their tools on the 5th March last and a telegram was sent by the General Secretary of the Union to the Honourable the Commerce Member for information and settlement of the dispute ? If so, will Government please state what action was taken by the Government to settle the dispute in its early stage ?

(b) Was any reply given to the telegram sent by the Secretary of the Union ? Is it a fact that the strike was prolonged for five months on account of prompt steps not being taken ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Agent of the East Indian Railway abruptly closed the workshops and declared a lock-out without making any attempt at an amicable settlement ? If so, what were the reasons for declaring the lock-out without notice and what attempt, if any, was made to arrive at an amicable settlement ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) After an enquiry, two men were discharged on the 16th of February for fighting with each other inside the workshops about some private matter, and four men were suspended for two days for idling on 2nd March, 1928. As regards the causes of the strike the Honourable Member's attention is invited to the reply given to part (b) of the Honourable Mr. Ghuznavi's question No. 197 on the 4th September, 1928.

(b) The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative. Government do not agree that the strike was prolonged for this reason.

(c) This is not a fact. In a communiqué of the 6th March, 1928, the Agent reviewed the men's demands and gave his reasons for rejecting those which he could not accept. At the same time he informed the men that an investigation was being made whether the wages earned by any class or classes of the staff at Lillooah were lower than those that could be earned under similar conditions in other workshops in Calcutta or its immediate vicinity, and undertook to make the necessary enhancement in such rates, if it was found that the Lillooah rates of pay in any particular instances were lower than those obtaining elsewhere in Calcutta or its vicinity. The Agent closed the shops on the 7th March and again on the 31st July after he was clearly convinced that the men had no intention of doing any work.

MEMORIALS TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA BY THE CLERICAL STAFF OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

546. Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : (a) Is it a fact that the clerical staff of the office of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, have submitted a memorial to His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, London, in July 1928 or so ?

(b) Is it not required by the memorial rules that the transmission to England of a memorial duly forwarded through the proper channel should not be delayed by the transmitting authority, (i.e., the Government of India) beyond a month after the receipt of the memorial ?

(c) Have the memorials been transmitted to the Secretary of State by this time ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Government understand that memorials addressed to His Majesty's Secretary of State for India have lately been submitted by the clerical staff of the office of the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, and that these are under examination by the Director General.

(b) Not exactly. There is a rule under which ordinarily the transmission to England of a memorial duly forwarded through the proper channel should not be delayed by the transmitting Government in India beyond a month after receipt of the memorial. The Honourable Member is doubtless aware that transmission of memorials may be withheld in various circumstances, or may be unavoidably delayed.

(c) No.

FILLING UP OF POSTS OF ASSISTANT DIRECTORS-GENERAL OF THE POST OFFICE.

547. Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : Is it a fact that the posts of Assistant Secretaries in the Government of India Secretariat are generally filled up by promotion from the ranks ? If so, why is not at least a certain percentage of Assistant Directors-General of the Post Office also filled up from the office staff ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative.

Assistant Directors-General of the Post Office must, for the adequate performance of their duties, be officers of technical knowledge and practical experience of Post Office work. For this reason they are selected from the cadre of Superintendents of Post Offices.

REVISED SCALES OF PAY RECOMMENDED BY THE BOOTH COMMITTEE FOR THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

548. Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the revised scales of pay recommended by the Booth Committee of 1920-21, for the Office of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs ?

(b) What were their recommendations about benefit of length of service and date of effect ?

(c) Were the recommendations of the Booth Committee supported by the then Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, Sir (then Mr.) G. R. Clarke ? If not what were his recommendations as regards scales of pay, service benefit and date of effect ?

(d) What office did he take as a suitable parallel in respect of work and status ?

(e) Were the recommendations of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, accepted by the Government of India ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a)

	Rs.
Office Superintendent	500—25—700
Assistant Superintendent and Chief Clerk..	400—20—500
Head Assistant	300—20—400
'A' Class clerks	80—80—100—5—150—10—250
'B' Class clerks	50—50—60—3—120—4—140—5—150
with 2 selection posts on ..	150—10—200

(b) The recommendations generally were that the revision should take effect from the 1st December, 1919, and that in bringing the staff on to the revised scales of pay full benefit of length of service in the particular cadre to which they belonged should be allowed, subject to a maximum of 50 per cent. above the pay and allowances drawn on the date of revision.

(c), (d) and (e). Government are not prepared to disclose the particulars of their departmental discussions. After considering carefully the recommendations of the Committee, Government issued final orders in September, 1921, introducing revised scales of pay from the 1st March, 1921, and specifying the methods for bringing the staff on to those scales.

MINOR REVISIONS MADE IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS IN 1918 AND 1919.

549. Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : (a) Is it a fact that some minor revisions in the shape of revised grading were sanctioned in the Office of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, in 1918 and 1919 ?

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to state what were those revisions, how many men benefited by each revision and what was the cost involved in each case ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) Government do not consider that any useful purpose will now be served by collecting information regarding minor changes made ten years ago.

PRESENT STRENGTH OF THE CLERICAL STAFF AND OF OFFICERS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

550. Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : (a) What was the clerical staff in the Office of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, including probationers in January, 1921 ?

(b) What was the number of officers on that date in the office ?

(c) What is the present clerical staff of the office and what is the number of officers ?

(d) If there be any increase or decrease, will Government please state the reasons in each case ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) 239 permanent clerks and 49 probationers.

(b) 25.

(c) 226 permanent clerks and 23 officers.

(d) The decrease of 2 posts in the cadre of officers and of 13 in the permanent clerical cadre is due to various re-organisations carried out since 1921.

DEPUTATION OF MR. A. J. GONET, A SUPERINTENDENT OF POST OFFICES, TO WORK IN THE PLACE OF THE CHIEF SUPERINTENDENT OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

551. Mr. Srish Chandra Dutta : (a) Is it a fact that the Chief Superintendent of the Office of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, has taken leave since the last week of June or so ?

(b) Is it a fact that no arrangement has been made in his place as yet and the post is being held in abeyance ?

(c) Is it a fact that an outsider from the gazetted rank of Superintendent of Post Offices is being deputed to the Office of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, to work in place of the Chief Superintendent ? If so, who is he and was he not refused the post once before ?

(d) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the reply given by the Director-General on the 4th March, 1925, in the Legislative Assembly in which he stated that the posts of Superintendent in the Director-General's Office and Postal Circle Offices are, ordinarily, filled by promotion of the senior fit officials in the offices, a practice which Government did not propose to change ?

(e) Will the Government be pleased to state what extraordinary circumstances happened leading them to bring in an outsider superseding the legitimate claims of senior fit officials and without giving them a trial ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) No ; one of the senior Superintendents is officiating as Chief Superintendent.

(c) Yes, as a temporary measure for one year. The officer deputed is Mr. A. J. Gonet, Superintendent of Post Offices, North Calcutta Division. He was once refused the post some years ago.

(d) Yes.

(e) The attention of the Honourable Member is drawn to the reply given to Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra's starred question No. 653 in the current session of the Legislative Assembly.

REORGANISATION OF THE OFFICE OF THE CONTROLLER OF PRINTING AND STATIONERY.

552. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) With reference to the answer to clauses (d) and (e) of starred question No. 72 of the 1st February 1928, will Government be pleased to state whether any decision has been arrived at in the matter ; and if so, to what effect ?

(b) Is it a fact that a scheme for the reorganisation of the office of the Controller of Printing, Stationery and Stamps, has been submitted by the Controller ; if so, what is likely to be the financial effect thereof, and to what extent is the subject matter of the memorial submitted in February 1927, referred to in starred question mentioned above, covered by this reorganisation scheme ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The memorial has been received from the Controller and is under consideration.

(b) No scheme for the reorganisation of the office of the Controller of Printing and Stationery has been received by Government. The Controller has submitted proposals for the reorganisation of the Central Stationery Office, Calcutta, but his proposals are not directly related to the subject matter of the memorial referred to in (a) above.

PROMOTION OF SUB-ASSISTANTS TO OFFICIATE AS ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENTS IN THE GEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA.

553. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) What are the considerations that determine the number and salary of Assistant Superintendents and Sub-Assistants, respectively, in the Geological Survey of India ?

(b) Is the difference between the initial salary of these two grades more or less than such difference between corresponding grades in the sister Scientific Departments under the Government of India ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Sub-Assistants in the Geological Survey of India are not generally permitted to officiate for Assistant Superintendents in temporary vacancies ? If so, why ?

(d) Who carry on the work of Assistant Superintendents, when they proceed on leave or during their absence ; and what is the average number of such absentees in the officers' list in the Geological Survey of India, during each of the last five years ?

(e) Is it a fact that the Sub-Assistants who have been promoted to the grade of Assistant Superintendents have been discharging their duties successfully without having any previous opportunity for officiating as Assistant Superintendents in leave vacancies ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The needs of the public service.

(b) Grades in the various Scientific Departments do not correspond exactly and it is not possible to give a precise answer to the question.

(c) Yes, because the cadre of Assistant Superintendents includes provision for a leave reserve.

(d) The existence of the leave reserve enables a number of Assistant Superintendents to be on leave at any one time without officiating arrangements being necessary. The average number of Assistant Superintendents absent on leave during the last 5 years is 3.

(e) Yes.

EMPLOYMENT OF OORIYAS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA OFFICES.

554. Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether there are any men from Orissa, a Division of the Province of Bihar and Orissa, serving either as clerks or as officers in the Central Government's offices, recruited through the Public Service Commission ? If so, what is their proportion as compared with the men from Bihar, the other Division of the Province, and also with those from the other Divisions of India ? If not, what action, if any, are Government going to take to remedy the same ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state how many candidates from Orissa have applied in the last year as well as in the current year for service in the Central Government's offices, not recruited for by the Public Service Commission ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state what action has been taken about it ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) None as clerks. Officers have not hitherto generally been appointed on the advice of the Public Service Commission. The second part of the question does not arise. As regards the last part, candidates from Orissa have equal opportunities with those of other provinces of securing these posts and it is not proposed to take any special action in the matter.

(b) Three. The applications were received in certain subordinate offices, clerical appointments to which are made by the heads of the offices concerned, and Government have no detailed information on the subject.

EMPLOYMENT OF OORIYAS IN THE OFFICE OF THE AUDITOR GENERAL.

555. Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Is it a fact that there is a rule in the Auditor General's office that no one from the Province of Bihar and Orissa is to be taken into service in that office ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons therefor ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state how many men from Orissa are serving at present in the Auditor General's office and what is their proportion to the total number of employees in that office from other parts of India ? If not, what action, if any, are Government going to take to remedy the same ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the replies, which will be found in the Library of the House, to starred question No. 367 and unstarred question No. 373 asked on the 7th and 12th March, 1928, respectively, on the same subject.

EMPLOYMENT OF OORIYAS IN THE OFFICES OF THE ACCOUNTANT GENERAL, RAILWAYS, RAILWAY BOARD, ETC.

556. Pandit Nilakantha Das : 1. Is it a fact that there is not a single Oriya in any of the Central Government's offices which are outside the scope of the Public Service Commission, viz. :—(a) Accountant General, Railways. (b) Railway Board. (c) Director General, Posts and Telegraphs. (d) Audit Officer, Indian Stores Department ? If so, what action do Government propose to take to remedy the same ?

2. Will the Government be pleased to state what should be a candidate's minimum qualifications, to secure a job in the Departments named in (1) above ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The information required by the Honourable Member is being collected and will be furnished to him in due course.

EMPLOYMENT OF OORIYAS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA OFFICES.

557. Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) If it is a fact that there is no Oriya in any of the offices of the Central Government, and will Government be pleased to state whether this is the case on policy, or whether it is for any other reason that Oriyas have not so long been employed in the services of the Central Government ?

(b) If it is on policy, will the Government be pleased to state what are the grounds for such a policy ?

(c) If for any other reasons, will the Government be pleased to state what they are ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : There is no policy having that intention. Oriyas have the same opportunities of securing appointments as inhabitants of the other provinces, and the facts suggest either that they are not anxious for such employment or that they have so far been unable to compete successfully.

EMPLOYMENT OF OORIYAS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA OFFICES.

558. Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state how many vacancies occurred in the various Departments of the Central Government in the last year as well as in the current year which are outside the scope of the Public Service Commission and what were their proportions of allotment to the different Provinces of India ?

(b) Was the question of appointing Oriyas in the services of the Central Government considered ? If not, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons therefor ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The Honourable Member's question shows some misunderstanding of the position. Vacancies are not allotted by provinces, but are given to those candidates, irrespective of their province of origin, who appear to be best qualified. The question of appointing Oriyas as such does not therefore arise. I have not the figures asked for, but from what is stated above, the Honourable Member will see that they would serve no useful purpose.

FILLING UP OF VACANCIES IN THE OFFICE OF THE ACCOUNTANT GENERAL, CENTRAL REVENUES.

559. Pandit Nilakantha Das : With reference to the unstarred question No. 375 put by Mr. Amar Nath Dutt, in the Delhi Session (1928) of the Assembly, are the Government in a position now to give a satisfactory reply to the same ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I presume that the Honourable Member is referring to the complete reply to Mr. Amar Nath Dutt's unstarred question No. 375 which was sent to him demi-officially and copies of which are available in the Library of the House. I am afraid it is not clear to me in what respects that reply was not satisfactory. If the Honourable Member will kindly make his question more explicit, I shall be glad to examine the matter further, if necessary.

NUMBER AND PAY OF GAZETTED OFFICERS IN THE PRINTING AND STATIONERY DEPARTMENT.

560. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing how many gazetted officers were employed in the Printing and Stationery Department before the findings of the Retrenchment Committee (1922) and how many there are at present, and what are their pays including allowances now as compared with that in 1914 ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The Inchcape Committee's findings were announced in 1923. A statement will be sent to the Honourable Member giving the required information for the end of 1922 and the present time.

INCREASE IN THE CLERICAL ESTABLISHMENT OF THE CENTRAL PUBLICATION BRANCH, CALCUTTA.

561. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Will Government be pleased to place on the table a statement of additional men sanctioned temporarily for the Calcutta offices for increased work since 1926-27 ? Is it a fact that the Central Publication Branch, working as a commercial concern from April last, has additional work thrown on it, but the question of additional staff has not been settled as yet ? How many times did the Controller inspect the office to find out the actual requirements and for how many days, and why has no relief, even temporary, been given as yet ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The Honourable Member presumably desires to have information regarding the additional clerical staff temporarily sanctioned from time to time in the Branches of the Stationery and Printing Department located at Calcutta. The details are as given below :

Government of India Press, Calcutta ..	Nil.
Central Publication Branch	6
Central Stationery Office	53
Central Forms Store	15

During the period from March 1927 to August 1928 the Controller of Printing inspected the Central Publication Branch thrice and spent 19 days on the inspection. As a result of the last inspection, the Controller has submitted a proposal for an increase in the clerical establishment of the Central Publication Branch ; this is under the consideration of Government.

MEMORIAL OF THE CLERICAL STAFF OF THE STATIONERY AND PRINTING DEPARTMENT FOR INCREASED PAY.

562. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what action has been taken on the memorial of the clerical staff of the Calcutta offices under the Stationery and Printing Department submitted in February, 1927, for increased pay ? Is it a fact that the Government of Bengal has lately accepted a grade of Rs. 50—175—300 for the clerical grade, almost similar to that adopted by the Postal Department ?

(b) Do Government propose to enquire if the Controller is issuing circulars not to send memorials or advance copies to Government ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay a statement on the table showing the number of petitions and memorials withheld by the present Controller, and how many he has yet under consideration with the dates of their receipt in his office ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The memorial is under the consideration of the Government of India. They have no information with regard to the scale of pay accepted by the Government of Bengal for their clerical staff.

(b) In accordance with the instructions of Government the Controller has merely drawn attention to the irregular practice of submitting memorials direct to Government and not through the proper channel.

(c) The information is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

DISMISSAL AND SUBSEQUENT RE-INSTATEMENT OF TWO ASSISTANTS OF THE STATIONERY OFFICE.

563. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Are Government prepared to enquire if Mr. Coombs dismissed in writing two Assistants of the Stationery Office—one an M.Sc. and another a B.A.—without obtaining their explanation and drawing up charges against them and reinstated them after a time ?

(b) Will Government please state if the men were allowed to count the period they were off duty towards leave and pension and granted pay ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) and (b). Enquiries are being made and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

NUMBER OF CLERKS DISMISSED BY MR. GOLDER, WHILE MANAGER OF THE CENTRAL PUBLICATION BRANCH.

564. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : How many clerks, did Mr. Golder dismiss, and how many died of pthisis due to overwork, during the time Mr. Golder was Manager, Central Publication Branch ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Government have received no intimation of any clerk having died of pthisis on account of overwork. They are ascertaining the number of clerks dismissed by Mr. Golder and will furnish the number to the Honourable Member.

MEMORIAL OF NAGENDRA NATH GHOSH.

565. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Will Government be pleased to state the result of the memorial to Government of one Nagendra Nath Ghosh, a clerk of over 10 years' service, dismissed for alleged loss of an unofficial file, which was found later on mixed up with other papers, in the Central Publication Branch ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The memorial was submitted more than 6 months after the orders passed by the Controller and was accordingly withheld by the latter under the memorial rules.

PAY OF MR. J. H. GOLDER.

566. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Will Government be pleased to state when and on what pay Mr. Golder was appointed to Government service ? What is he drawing now ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Mr. J. H. Golder was appointed to Government service in March, 1923, on a pay of Rs. 550 per mensem. He is at present drawing Rs. 900 per mensem.

DISCHARGE OF BABU BATTA KRISHNA DUTTA, A CLERK IN THE CENTRAL FORMS STORE.

567. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : Will Government be pleased to state how a clerk Babu Batta Krishna Dutta recruited in the Central Forms Store in 1925 has been discharged in August 1928 as unfit for Government service for having myopia ? Why was he not sent for medical examination on recruitment, as is usual and as ordered by Mr. Ascoli as Controller ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : An enquiry is being made and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

TEMPORARY CLERKS IN THE CENTRAL PRINTING AND STATIONERY OFFICE, CALCUTTA.

568. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if there are some clerks recruited in 1925, who, having approved service, are yet on the temporary grade, while others coming after them have been confirmed in permanent service ? How does the Headquarters office of the Controller deal with establishment cases when all the Calcutta offices have a common roster with no published gradation list ?

(b) Do Government propose to enquire if certain officers recruited as expert accounts clerks have been posted as Head Assistants in administrative posts ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) and (b). An enquiry is being made and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member.

STATEMENT BY MR. PRESIDENT RE RECENT ATMOSPHERE OF SUSPICION AND DISTRUST IN THE HOUSE.

Mr. President : The House will at this stage permit me to make the statement which I promised when we met last. I frankly confess that I was not prepared for the speeches that I heard on Saturday last from the Leaders of Parties and they came upon me as an agreeable surprise. I was indeed so touched by those speeches that for the moment I found myself unable to find words to express my thanks. (Applause.) For this human weakness in your President I make a humble apology to the House. When I was hearing those speeches I was reminded of the scene on the 20th January 1927 on the occasion of my unanimous re-election to this Chair. I am sincerely grateful to the House, to every section and to every Member thereof, for the generosity and large-heartedness in overloking my many shortcomings and for once again expressing their unanimous confidence in me. I am conscious of my weakness and my failings, and I desire to assure you that I shall make every endeavour to justify to some extent the confidence you have been pleased to repose in me. I know that it is very difficult for the President to appear impartial on all occasions and to all sections of the House. I have often roused feelings of resentment of soreness among Members whose conduct I sometimes felt it my duty strongly to disapprove of and who were placed at times at a disadvantage in carrying out their Party engagements on account of my rulings. But it is a matter of sincere gratification to me to find that the feeling has been but brief and transient, and when those speeches were being delivered on Saturday last I was wondering within myself whether I had really impressed the House generally with a belief in the impartiality of my rulings and with a conviction that my one concern was to discharge my duties as guardian of the House and that I had not intentionally lent myself to be an instrument in the hands of official or non-official Leaders in this House. I now come to the statement of the Honourable the Home Member. His previous statement adopting on behalf of the Government an attitude of complete detachment in regard to the attacks in the Press and elsewhere on the President of the Assembly had come as a painful surprise from one in his responsible position and was the subject of strong comment by several Members. But the readiness with which on Saturday last he hastened to put matters right must raise the Honourable Member in the estimation of every one who heard his statement. (Applause.) I congratulate him and also the Government on whose behalf that statement was made. (Applause.)

May I be allowed at this stage to say a word in reference to the attitude of certain official Members which has recently been the subject-matter of a good deal of comment ? In the heat of party feeling when men's passions are aroused, I can understand words escaping Honourable gentlemen, or their doing something which, in their cooler moments, they themselves would regret. I take it that the words of the Honourable Members referred to in the statement of the Leader of the House were not premeditated or deliberate. I desire to assure Honourable Members that it has been, and will be, my constant endeavour in this Chair to allay feelings of party bitterness as much as I can and to prevent undue excitement and passion in this House. (Applause.) I shall say no more on this occasion, because it is my earnest wish to eradicate all personal feeling that has unfortunately found its way recently into this Chamber. I will only add that I shall always be content to leave my conduct in the Chair to the judgment of this House and of every fair, impartial and honourable man outside it. With that end in view, I accept without any reservation the unqualified expression of regret made by the Leader of the House on behalf of himself and the officials concerned in the same generous spirit in which it has been made (Applause), and I appeal to every Member of this House to forget the incidents which have been responsible for the atmosphere of distrust and suspicion calculated to lower the dignity and prestige of this House, which must be the primary concern of every Honourable Member. In these circumstances and in accordance with the general wish of the House expressed in no uncertain terms on Saturday last, I propose to say nothing more.

This statement thus disposes of that part of the case in which I promised to make an enquiry and give my conclusions, leaving the other part regarding the conduct of the two press correspondents untouched.

I once again thank the Honourable Members for their confidence in me. (Applause.)

THE PUBLIC SAFETY (REMOVAL FROM INDIA) BILL.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar (Home Member) : Mr. President, I move.....

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya (Madras : Indian Commerce) : On a point of order, Sir. I rise to a point of order and to lodge a protest against the procedure of the House in certain matters recently. I object to the motion that the Honourable the Home Member is going to make. The Leader of the House is going to move that the Bill to provide for the removal from British India in certain cases of persons not being Indian British subjects or subjects of States in India, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration. I beg to submit that the motion cannot be taken up under Standing Order 44, if any Member of the Assembly objects to its being so taken up, if a copy of the Report has not been made available to Members for seven days, and such objection shall prevail, unless, I note, the President in exercise of his powers suspends the Standing Order and allows the Report to be taken into consideration. As such I would raise the point that the House can take up the Bill at the earliest on the 28th instant only ; and if you will kindly permit me, Sir, I have to protest against certain action of a certain part of the House in depriving Members who represent special constituencies.....

Mr. President : Order, order. This is not the occasion to raise that question. The Honourable Member has taken objection to the Home Member moving this particular motion and he must confine himself to it.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Mr. President, I proposed to move this motion, because I was under the impression that, in view of the fact that the Report of the Select Committee was laid on the table on Thursday and that Honourable Members have since had ample opportunity of studying the document, which, though important is brief and concise, it would meet the general wish of the House if the debate should proceed to-day. I trust that my impression on that point was correct, and in view of it I would ask you, Sir, to suspend the Standing Order.

Mr. President : Which Standing Order ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : 44 (1) (a).

Mr. President : Order, order. I do not know if there is a large section of the House in support of the objection raised by the Honourable Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya. I should like those who are in favour of his objection to rise in their seats. (Two or three Honourable Members rose in their places). I am afraid I must suspend the Standing Orders and allow the Honourable Member to make the motion. (Applause).

Mr. T. Prakasam (East Godavari and West Godavari cum Kistna : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : May I say a word with regard to the ruling that you have just now given ? If the Standing Order says that on the objection of any one Member the point of order should prevail, I must point out to you, Sir, that your ruling is not correct.

Mr. President : The Standing Order also provides that the Chair has the discretion to suspend or not to suspend the Standing Orders. In view of the fact that only two or three Members are in support of the objection raised, I exercise my discretion in favour of the majority.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : On a point of information, Sir, if Members simply desire that the Standing Order should be suspended without giving any adequate reasons, can it be suspended ?

Mr. President : Is not that questioning the ruling of the Chair ?

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : No, Sir. (Laughter). I desire to have the information for our future guidance.

Mr. President : Order, order.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Mr. President, I move that the Bill to provide for the removal from British India in certain cases of persons not being Indian British subjects or subjects of States in India, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration.

When I moved the first motion in respect of this measure, I endeavoured to the best of my ability to lay before the House the circumstances, events and the developments which had resulted, as the Government of India came to the conclusion, in a state of affairs which required their prompt attention and the attention of the Legislature. I indicated the nature of the measures which the Government of India considered necessary to deal with one aspect of the problem, the principle of which is embodied in the Bill. By their vote on the 15th instant, the House has accepted the justification for, and approved of the principle of, the Bill. It is therefore not my present purpose to retraverse ground which has already been so exhaustively explored, nor shall I set out to reaffirm propositions which the House has already generally endorsed. My present purpose will be to explain the changes which have taken place in the Bill on its return from the Select Committee. It will be manifest to the House that the Select Committee have subjected the Bill to a very strict and severe scrutiny. Though the essential principle of the Bill, as approved by the House, remains, some very important provisions for safeguarding its operation have been inserted by the Select Committee. I submit that these go very far towards meeting such of the objections originally advanced against the Bill as were not fundamentally inconsistent with its essential purpose, and which would not tend either to weaken seriously or to destroy its efficacy with regard to the object in view. The operation of the Bill, in consequence, undoubtedly becomes more restricted and complicated, but I am prepared to acquiesce in these consequences if the House will recognise the great importance of the changes made, and will accept the Bill in its revised form.

Honourable Members will see that the more important of the alterations made are as follows. The category of persons, in the first instance, who are exempted entirely from the operations of the Bill, has been very materially extended. In the Bill as originally introduced in the House, the intention was to exclude Indian British subjects and subjects of any State in India. That was inherent in the very principle of the Bill, because it was apparent that it would be an impossible proposition that in a measure of this kind we should endeavour to persuade this Legislature to adopt the principle that the Executive Government should be empowered to expel Indians from India. That was obviously an impossible proposition, and the Bill as originally drawn was directed to make that perfectly clear. But in the course of discussion, both in this House and in the Select Committee, it appeared desirable to extend the exemption in certain material directions. The case which first came to notice was based on the suggestion of an Honourable Member who spoke on behalf of the European Group. It was represented that European British subjects, who have been for a considerable time regularly resident in India, ought not in any circumstances to come within the purview of this Bill, and that objection found an echo in the speech of some Honourable Members opposite. These suggestions received their due weight in the consideration of the Bill by the Select Committee, who have gone even further than the particular objections I have referred to would extend. For any British subject who has acquired a domicile or a definite stake in the country, or who has been for a period of five years continuously resident in India, Subject to certain explanations, the Bill now provides total exclusion the new category would include, for example, a non-Indian Asiatic subject of His Majesty who had so acquired a domicile or stake or interest in India of a durable character. The House will admit that that is a very important modification of the Bill and meets the objections which have been taken in several parts of the House.

Then we come to clause 2 of the Bill which prescribes the nature of the activities against which the Bill is directed. These, Honourable Members will observe, have been very considerably restricted. In the original Bill in sub-clause (a) of clause 2 there appear the words " or the promotion of enmity or hatred between different classes of His Majesty's subjects." The Select Committee in their Report made the following observations on that clause :

" In clause (a) of the definition of a person to whom the Act applies, we propose the omission of the words ' or the promotion of enmity or hatred between different asses of His Majesty's subjects' and the insertion of the word 'unlawful' before the ords 'destruction of property.' As regards the first of these amendments, although e realise that it is an essential feature of Communist propaganda to set class against ass, we consider that a person preaching that doctrine would almost inevitably bring mself under some other provision of this clause whilst the retention of the words might sult in action being taken against persons other than those against whom the Bill is imarily directed."

I am myself of opinion that this passage in the clause might be xtremely valuable in circumstances which might very probably arise, but was prepared to defer to the views expressed by the members of the elect Committee, and I therefore agreed to the excision of that phrase. Similarly, in clause (b), the Select Committee criticise the words "the authority of law" as being words of a somewhat vague character and possibly difficult, in certain circumstances, of sufficiently precise interpretation. At any rate the members of the Select Committee considered that the essential purpose of the Bill could be retained and that no serious detriment would be sustained by the omission of those words. In that view, also, I was prepared to concur. Lastly, so far as this clause is concerned, the Select Committee consider that the words "or is associated with", after the words "is a member of" might possibly be difficult to interpret, and might give a wider extension to the clause than was consistent with its definite and precise application. On that point also, after some careful examination—not, I admit, without some misgivings—I was prepared to agree, and the Bill now stands with those words omitted.

However, the most important change in the Bill made by the Select Committee was that which is embodied in clause 7 which provides for an appeal to a Bench of three Judges against the removal order. I think the House will generally agree that that is a very important new feature of the Bill, and that in agreeing to it Government shows a very sincere desire to meet the objections to the Bill which were based on the ground that it gave too untrammelled a discretion to the Executive Government. Any person against whom a removal order has been made is to be given an opportunity to show cause why the order should not be made. He will be allowed to show cause before a Bench of three Judges, and what is of very great importance is this, that in the event of the three Judges reporting against the removal, the Executive Government will not be permitted to make that order. That, I venture to say, is a very important and a very substantial safeguard. The same clause provides that the Judges dealing with this matter shall be required to keep confidential the information communicated to them by the Executive Government. Now, Sir, I must frankly express to the House that I regard that provision as absolutely necessary. It must be evident that in many such cases, the information on which the Government proceed must be drawn from very secret sources which could not be divulged without very grave detriment to the public interest. That really is in the nature of the case, and I must emphasise once more that the action contemplated by the Bill is essentially an executive action. Though we have gone as far as we can in providing safeguards to ensure that the power conferred upon the Government by the Bill as it now stands shall not be improperly or arbitrarily exercised, nevertheless the essential facts of the situation remain. I make no attempt to disguise that position. It is in the very nature of the powers which the Bill confers on the Executive Government that the public interest must in that respect be protected. It has been suggested that the tribunal before whom the person affected should be allowed to appear should onsist of Judges of the High Courts. Let me explain quite candidly hy I consider such an expedient to be undesirable. The High Courts re the highest judicial tribunals in the land. I think that Honourable lembers will admit that it is of the utmost importance that their comlete impartiality, their complete detachment, in all matters which may ave a political complexion should be rigorously and sedulously preerved. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : What about other Judges ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The High Courts have a very special osition. We have therefore gone as far as we possibly can in providing his safeguard that any person against whom action is proposed to be taken nder the Bill shall have ample opportunity either in person or by pleader o show cause against the order being made against him.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhamadan) : Without knowing the allegations against him ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Further provision has been made to nsure that any person who claims to be an excepted person shall be permitted to appear on that point before the High Court, and, in the event f the High Court finding his claim to be a true one, no further action can f course be taken against him.

Lastly, provision has been made for the limitation of the Bill to a term f five years. I am not myself satisfied that such a provision is desirable r expedient. I cannot contemplate that the dangers against which the ill is intended to safeguard the country are likely to be at an end in the eriod of five years. Nevertheless the period of five years is a substantial eriod, and I hope that either we shall have made progress in the efforts hich Government propose to take and which we invite the House to assist iem in taking against the dangers which I have indicated, either that will e so, or if it is not so, then I trust that the Legislature will be prepared to evive in this or in some similar form the powers which this Bill proposes to nfer. Those, Sir, are the principal features of the changes made by the elect Committee in the Bill. I venture to repeat once more that Honourble Members who are prepared to regard the Bill as it has emerged in a rictly impartial spirit, having due regard to the grounds which induced e majority of this House to send the Bill to the Select Committee, will gree that the measure is now one which the House ought to pass.

In conclusion, Sir, I wish to say that, when I last addressed this House this measure, I asked Honourable Members to recognise that though e primary responsibility rests directly and immediately on Government, ey are entitled to require, in a position like the present, the active support id assistance of every element and interest in the country, not only from e point of view of self-interest, but also from the point of view of public ity. The obligations and the responsibilities of a Legislature far transnd those of private citizens. I submit that Government are entitled to ok to this House in this matter not only for legislative sanction, but also r moral support. The majority of the House has already recorded its nclusion that there is a good justification for this Bill and that its princie should be accepted. More than that, the speeches of more than one onourable Member opposite indicated, and indeed expressed, an opinion favour of its justification, though they demurred on grounds which I ould urge are of subsidiary importance in relation to this vital and central ct. With the assistance, and indeed I may say on the insistence of the have been investing lots of money over his crimi[nal] law. At every cycl[e] of three or four years he has been attracting m[oney] from every lega[l] practitioner, and we are quoting his authority, and [this] is the authorita[tive] position he holds to-day in the framing of this B[ill].

Now, Sir, I am convinced without going into furth[er] details of thi[s] amended Bill, that it is not a Bill upon which the Honou[rable] Member can congratulate himself or invite Members of this [House] to co-operate with him in making it a Statute.

Then, Sir, on general principles. What is the justificatio[n] for measure of this kind at a time when the country is peaceful ? I[t] is no[t] in a state of rebellion : it is not in a state of war. The truth [is] unfortunately this Government have been running amok. This Go[vern]ment have always had a nightmare sitting over them, that the Gov[ern]ment can be overthrown at any time. If a single action of a single m[an] with a single stick can overthrow this Government, may God help us [in] getting rid of this Government at once. Is it to be such a timid Gover[n]ment as this ? I, Sir, will at once say that a tyrannical but courageo[us] Government is much better than a timid and benevolent Government. I say, Sir, that this is not a measure which they should introduce at a tim[e] when the country is peaceful and quiet, when the ordinary courts ar[e] open, and when the ordinary procedure can be adopted. Now, Sir, in this connection with your permission I should like to read to the House a short passage from the judgment in the famous ex-parte. Milligan case in the United States. Sir, I quote only a short passage from the judgment of Justice Davis :

"No graver question was ever considered by this Court nor one which more nearly concerns the rights of the whole people; for it is the birthright of every American citizen when charged with crime to be tried and punished according to law.

In all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation ; to be confronted with the witnesses against him ; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favour and to have the assistance of counsel for his defence.

No doctrine, involving more pernicious consequences was ever invented by the wit of man than that any of its provisions can be suspended during any of the great exigencies of Government. Such a doctrine leads directly to anarchy or despotism, but the theory of necessity on which it is based is false ; for the government, within the constitution, has all the powers granted to it which are necessary to preserve its existence.

If, in foreign invasion or civil war, the courts are actually closed, and it is impossible to administer criminal justice according to law, then, on the theatre of active military operations, where war really prevails, there is a necessity to furnish a substitute for the civil authority thus overthrown, to preserve the safety of the Army and the society....Martial rule can never exist where the courts are open and in the proper and unobstructed exercise of their jurisdiction. It is also confined to the locality of the actual war."

Now, I ask the Government Benches to say in what state of rebellion are we ? How many Communists have come across to this country in order to spread their propaganda ? For my part, Sir, I have never so far come across any Communist, nor did I really understand the Communist propaganda so well as when it was explained to us by the Honourable the Home Member the other day. Only then I came to know what were the items of the Communist propaganda. Now, Sir, I ask, is it really the case that a large number of Communists have come to this country and to deport whom this Bill is brought in with all its emergency, with all its plea of urgency ? I must ask the Honourable the Home Member that question now. With a view to ascertain the bonâ fides of the Government in this matter, I sent a few short notice questions to the Honourable the Home Member seven days ago. I never asked him to disclose any details. I never asked him to disclose any confidential matter. I never even wanted to know the name or names of the Communists who in their view deserve to be deported. Sir, my questions were :

"(a) Will the Government be pleased to state how many Bolshevists or Communists (non-Indian) are to the best of their knowledge carrying on their propaganda in this country ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state what control they have been exercising over such activities pending the passage of the Public Safety Bill into a Statute ?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state what violent speeches or writings have been discovered in which violence has been advocated by the non-Indian Communists for the overthrow of the Government ?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state when they discovered that one of the main objects of the Communists is to destroy ancient religions and culture ?

(e) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of persons they have in view for deportation the moment the Public Safety Bill is passed into law ?"

Sir, these are questions which ought to be answered at a moment's notice by the Honourable the Home Member who is for the time thinking of these Communists, who in fact must have brought these Communists in his own Chamber if by that their activities could be stopped, and yet, Sir, he expresses his inability to answer these questions at short notice, and I got this reply from his office :

"I am directed to forward the enclosed copy of your question and to state that the Honourable the Home Member is not prepared to accept short notice of the question.

I am to add, however, that the question is in time for the meeting of the 27th and will be set down for reply on that date if there be any meeting on that date."

Now, Sir, I ask him once again,—at any rate, after I put him these questions he must have come prepared to answer them to-day. I ask him now, Sir, how many Communists are there in this country or is it a fact that there is not one in their contemplation at present ? Now, the difficulty of answering this question, I know, will lead him to another difficulty. Supposing he admits that there are some Communists—one, two, three or four—my next question is, what steps have Government taken in order to place their propaganda under control, under arrest, until this Bill is passed into a Statute. The other day the Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra took up an analogy which he did not use properly. I use it now, Sir. Supposing this House is on fire, and supposing there are 300 tubs of water here and the Honourable the Home Member sends for a fire engine from Chota Simla. Will he sit quiet until the fire engine arrives or will he go on suppressing the fire by the tubs of water available here ? If the latter be the course which he would adopt, I ask you, what steps have you taken to arrest, to control the propaganda of these Communists until this Bill becomes a Statute ? If he does not answer this question, Sir, I can positively say that there is not a single Communist to be deported immediately. In fact, the title of the Bill is very modest. The title Anti-Bolshevist Bill is given more by newspaper posters for advertising purposes rather than by Government. Government evidently have some other persons in view and not Communists or Bolshevists in bringing forward this measure. Some

[Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar.]

Honourable Members on that side of the House observed the other day—"Oh, what does it matter ; if there are no Communists, it is all well an good ; but if there are, then this Bill will be useful. Why not allow thi Bill to go into the Statute-book ? ". I ask, Sir, are we here assemble as legislators to pass any law for the time being whether or not there i any necessity for it ? Are we not, as responsible men, to see the emer gency of the occasion before making laws ? Supposing the Governmen brings forward a Bill to-morrow saying whoever attempts to overthrov this Government by removing its strongest barrier and attempts to leve the Himalayas to the ground shall be punished with imprisonment fo seven years. Now, are we to pass such a measure when we know tha it is an impossible task ? Though there is absolutely no meaning what ever in such a statement, are we to give our support to such a measure I ask, Sir, is there any apprehension of the Communists gaining groun in this country ? If there is any, if there are any Communists who ar carrying on their nefarious propaganda, then I am prepared to vote witl the Honourable the Home Member. He does not answer my questions he cannot give the number of the Communists in this country, not t mention the names or details of those persons. Therefore, Sir, it is quit clear that the Government have not convinced this House of the necessity of a measure like this being passed in such undue haste, nor have th Government shown any urgency for the measure. The Government hav not also accepted the motion for circulation of the Bill for eliciting publi opinion thereon. It was asked what purpose would it serve by sending up the Bill for circulation ? Certainly it will serve a very useful purpose If the public are apprised of the contents of this Bill, the first thing they will state is that they are surprised that there should be a Bill like this because nobody has so far come across a Communist.

Now, Sir, ever since this bogey of Communism or Bolshevism has been set afloat, every possible strike, every violence in the strike, is attributed to it. So far as I am personally aware,—I have been watching the railway strikes on the South Indian Railway and I have myself condemned the violent actions taken by the railway employees, and I have even con demned the action of some of the leaders in not regulating the strik into the path of non-violence—I have never even heard whispers that thes strikes had anything to do with Communism or Bolshevism. All thes strikes are hunger strikes. They are not due to Communist or Swarajis influences ; but they are all hunger strikes. Therefore, I have no hesi tation in saying that this Bill is absolutely unnecessary. And what is it that the Government do ? It is a strange coincidence. Every time a repressive measure is brought here, it is preceded by a letter from Mr. M. N. Roy. He seems to be a reservoir for them to draw upon every time they wish to bring a measure of this kind. When the Bengal Ordi nance was passed the same story was afloat ; there was a letter from Mr. M. N. Roy. This Bill is brought here, and there is the same story. Mr. M. N. Roy, who wanted to conceal the authorship, typed the letter and in order that there might be a possibility of finding out the author made one or two interlineations here and there, and probably also he sent his admitted signatures in order that the letter might be sent to a hand writing expert ! What about the mentality of a man who wanted to conceal his authorship, putting in one or two interlineations ; he might as well have retyped the whole thing which is not a matter of difficulty.

Sir, I do not want to go into all these details. As I have said, on a former occasion, at the time of the Bengal Ordinance the same story was set afloat and my Honourable friend, Colonel Crawford, made the best of that story on that occasion. Then my reply was :

> "Then he says that there is Bolshevik influence here and mentioned the name of Manabendra Nath Roy. About this I only wish to point out that in the memorial submitted by two State prisoners, a portion of which was already read out to the House by my Honourable friend, Pandit Motilal Nehru, it is stated thus :
> 'We are not yet certain if this Manabendra Nath Roy is not the man from the moon and we have even less knowledge about his Indian agents. We have always differed from the views appearing in the press of this so-called Bolshevik. As for letters and papers supposed to be coming from this man, if there is really a man of that description and if the whole thing is not the creation of some interested party as in the case of more serious things related hereafter in course of this statement, then we can say so much that this man has not spared a single address he has come across, not even the English Premier's excepted and no one can be responsible for coming into contact with an accidental addressee of such a correspondent'."

Now, Sir, it is nothing more than this. The Government Benches are seized with a mania that the overthrow of Government is always contemplated in every nook and corner of this country. I wish to tell my Honourable friend that this soil is not so fertile for Communist movements as he imagines. Eight years ago we heard of this Communist movement. During these years we have not heard of its growth—not a root, not the trunk, not a branch is traced. Once again we have got the same seed attempted to be sown here by Mr. M. N. Roy : I submit that Government are unhappily running amok. How many repressive measures have they been thinking of forging from day to day ? The Bengal Ordinance, the Criminal Law Amendment Act, the Public Safety Bill, amendment of section 505 of the Indian Penal Code—day after day they are thinking of something or other to suppress the Press, suppress the people, and suppress everything so that they may feel happy. Sir, it is nothing more than this kind of mania that is always troubling them. There is section 491 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and section 491-A. also which extends to the High Courts some powers over territories outside their ordinary original jurisdiction. In this Bill we see only section 491 is contemplated, and it is said that that section does not apply to persons who are deported by an act of the Governor General. Now, Sir, it seems to me highly doubtful—but I do not go into that question at length—whether it is possible to deprive the High Courts of the privilege which they enjoy of issuing a writ of habeas corpus by any legislation of this kind. It is a similar doubt which on a previous occasion I raised, but my Honourable friend, Mr. Jinnah, then said, "Let them go to court, and test it. Why bother ourselves with jurisdiction at present ?" I leave it at the same stage once again, but I am surprised that a valuable right which the citizen must enjoy, a valuable power which every High Court must enjoy, is sought to be taken away on any reasonable ground save presumably that, I should say, of absolute distrust in their own High Courts. Sir, they are not prepared to refer the matter to their own High Courts to consider the matter and say whether a writ of habeas corpus should be issued or not : It is not complimentary to the Government that they should distrust their own Judges of the High Courts. I should have been glad, as I said, if instead of this Bench of three Sessions Judges the matter was entrusted to at least one permanent High Court Judge. That is what I said in my notice of amendment. Sir, persons depending upon the Government for their promotion and favour, persons who think that their whole future is in the hands of this Government, are the least fitted to act as Judges ; and after all I am only stating the case a little over much because the Bill as amended by the Select Committee does not give the Sessions Judges the position of a Judge. It converts them into some thing like a Commission, to make a report to His Excellency the Governor General. There the matter ends. That is their position. Sir, I do feel that the Bill as amended by the Select Committee has made the Bill much worse than the Bill as it originally stood, and both the Bills deserve to be rejected on the floor of the House. Sir, I may inform you that I am not moving the amendment of which I gave notice for the circulation of this Bill for eliciting public opinion as advised by my Party leader.

Mr. T. Prakasam : Sir, I rise (applause) to oppose the motion. I see some slight change—(Honourable Members : "Speak up.") I am sorry, you complain that I have a weak voice ; you will soon find that I have a very big voice.—I see some change, Sir, in the Government represented by the Honourable the Home Member inasmuch as it has evinced some anxiety to meet the criticisms that were offered on the floor of this House to the original Bill ; and I also feel that the Honourable Mr. Crerar possibly would have been ready to agree to something more if my Honourable friend, Sir Hari Singh Gour, had been courageous enough to give his advice a little more frankly to the Select Committee. Sir, the only lawyer on the Select Committee was my friend, Sir Hari Singh Gour, an author of a big volume of criminal law that is intended to be read throughout the country and digested by all the lawyers, and the principles of which are to be applied in the courts of law ; but, Sir, I am sorry that this friend of mine has become the victim of the Government and been led to give advice like this with regard to the recommendations made in the Select Committee's Report. I am unable to understand, Sir, that Sir Hari Singh Gour could have made bold to advise the Select Committee to dispense with the publication of every piece of evidence that might be placed by the Government, and that such evidence should be kept secret even from the arrested person. It is unthinkable that one in his position should have thought of giving advice like that in a case of this nature. However he has done it.

Now, what is the position so far as this Bill is concerned ? Against whom is it directed ? Take sub-clause (ii) (b) of clause 2,—the definition section. It says :

"who seeks to foment or utilise industrial or agrarian disputes or other disputes of a like nature with the direct object of subverting organized government in British India or with any object the attainment of which is intended to conduce to that result;"

Note those words, "seeks to foment or utilise industrial or agrarian disputes or disputes of a like nature." What are the disputes which are contemplated by this definition ? The agricultural population in India is suffering the worst, at present, in the whole world. The agriculturists of India have a debt of over 1,000 crores of rupees according to the Government books, and the Government has got its own debt of over 1,000 crores of rupees on which the people of India have to pay interest. The agriculturists of India have to borrow money even for cultivation purposes at a high rate of interest, in some provinces at as high a rate as 75 per cent. The least rate is that which they are able to get from a few co-operative banks which are in existence. While the agricultural population of India has been borrowing at such a heavy rate, this Government has been keeping its reserves in London, lending money at 3½ and 4½ per cent. to the people of England in the London market. Now, if the dispute relates to a matter like this between the Government and the agriculturists of India, and if there are foreigners—good foreigners—here who advocate the cause of the cultivators and carry on a propaganda here, are they to be deported ? The Soviet Government has recently published their loan manifesto. They have stated in that communiqué that the loan was being raised by that Government for the redemption of the agricultural population of their own country. You have floated a loan recently here, Sir. Have you stated for what purpose you are raising the loan ? Have you stated what you are going to do with that loan ? Have you stated how the agriculturists and labourers will be benefited by that loan ? Or how they have been benefited by all the loans you have been raising in this country from time to time ? Is the agitation on these lines of the Soviet Government or even of Communism a bad one.? My friend Mr. Duraiswamy Aiyangar has been talking in an apologetic tone, as if Communism were a crime on this earth. Communism has never advocated murder ; Communism has never advocated the overthrowing of other Governments with violence. (An Honourable Member : "Of course it has.") An interruption comes from there. I give you a challenge. I shall show you that there are murderers in every community ; I shall show you that there are murderers in every society ; there are murderers among lawyers ; there are murderers among the biggest merchants ; there are murderers among the best of people. And, Sir, would you say that because there are some murderers in all grades and classes of society that all classes of society should be dealt with in this particular manner ? Will those who have dared to challenge me point out any instance of a Communistic organization which has publicly advocated violence and murder and the overthrowing of other Governments with violence and murder ? Surely not.

Sir Hari Singh Gour (Central Provinces Hindi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan) : Point out one Communist who has not.

Mr. T. Prakasam . Sir Hari Singh Gour's knowledge, I am very sorry to see, is limited. Here, I say, I challenge you and say that I am a Communist. I tell you that. (Laughter and applause.)

Is there anything wrong in being a Communist ? Certainly not.

Sir Victor Sassoon (Bombay Millowners' Association : Indian Commerce) : A Red Communist ? Third International ?

Mr. T. Prakasam : Red Communist, redder than Sir Victor Sassoon. So, Sir, I say that so far as Bolshevism and Communism are concerned they are not crimes by themselves. You have seen, Sir, in China how certain Communists or certain people who are said to have been Bolsheviks committed murders and the Soviet Government was called upon to explain. The Soviet Government disowned them ; they said that they were not sent by them for committing such crimes. What is the good of ignoring facts. You have to take good where it is, and you have to reject the bad. If the Soviet Government or the Bolsheviks advocate murder, advocate violence, with a view to overthrow the organised government in India, I will be the first and everyone in this House and everyone outside also will be the first to attack them.

Sir Hari Singh Gour : That is just what they do.

Mr. T. Prakasam : I am sorry for the ignorance of my friend. (Laughter.) There is something wrong with him. (Laughter.) Let us take clause 2 (b). It is stated here " with the direct object of subverting organised government in British India." This is a very large claim that is made in 1928, September 24th by the Government of India that this is an organised government here. Is it an organised government, Sir ? I shall show that it is not by quoting to you an instance, a recent instance, in which they never wanted any Regulation to deport a person in this country. My friend Duraiswamy Aiyangar was referring to the Bengal Regulation, Madras Regulation and Bombay Regulation and so on. There are at least Regulations which they pretended to apply in those cases ; but I shall show you a case in which no Regulation was needed to deport and it was not in the case of an ordinary man in the street. They laid their hand upon the Maharaja of Nabha and under no Regulation. (An Honourable Member: " Nabha ? ") I know the prejudice that is in the minds of several people when the word " Nabha " is mentioned. I take it that he is one of the worst criminals. Is he not entitled to the protection of law ? Is he not entitled to the ordinary relief which ordinary men are entitled to ? I take it that the Maharaja of Nabha is a murderer of the worst kind.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Who says that ?

Mr. T. Prakasam : The Maharaja of Nabha has been deported under no Regulation. The question could not be raised here in this House. There was your ruling with regard to the matter on a point raised by the Government. I had had the audacity to go straight to the Maharaja of Nabha who was confined at Kodaikanal and had an interview with him. I asked him for the order under which he was taken away. There was no Regulation, no rule, no section, under which he was taken and could have been taken. But Regulation III of 1818, which could never apply to him, was quoted in the order as the one under which he was arrested. From there I came over here and a question was raised with reference to the same matter and you were good enough to ask Sir Denys Bray whether it was true that he was deported under Regulation III of 1818 and he replied " Yes." Does the Regulation of 1818 apply to the Maharaja of Nabha ? Admittedly it cannot ; it can never be applied to the Maharaja of Nabha. Yet he was taken away. Where is the organised government in this land ? How many people have been taken away without trial and how many have been imprisoned ? Here is one of those friends of mine who has just come after being detained for three years, Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra, the Whip of our Party. Where is any honest Government in this land ? Who is to hear and who is to decide justice ? There is no honest organised government in the land. As regards the agrarian disputes, I am telling you, Sir, and every Member in this House that the freedom of this country can be secured only through agriculturists and labourers. The independence of India that is advocated by Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar, the Deputy Leader of our Party, can only be secured through the help of the agricultural population and the labouring population of India. Now the aim of this Government has been somehow or other to do everything that lies in their power to prevent the growth of nationalism in the labour and agricultural movements. I can understand the real anxiety of this Government to give protection to India. This Government cannot always protect India with machine guns and aeroplanes alone. They will have to protect and govern the people of this country with their consent. By attempting to prevent the spreading of nationalism and ideas and ideals through such legislation, the Government is only working against itself.

Now, Sir, coming to the new clauses 7 and 8, introduced in the Bill by the Select Committee, the Honourable the Home Member was telling us that the High Court also had been brought into this Bill with a view to give relief to the accused. The High Court is introduced in clause 8 and that only for the purpose of setting aside the order on the ground that the aggrieved person is an excepted person and not on other grounds. The first definition in clause 2 is about excepted persons, and in sub-clause (2) the definition is about the person to whom the Bill applies. All those clauses (a), (b) and (c) which define the particular offence cannot be brought before the High Courts, and Sir Hari Singh Gour satisfied himself that that was a great relief given to the deported persons. Omit clause 7, if you are a consistent lawyer, and if you claim to be an authority in law by writing books. Remove clause 7 and alter clause 8 in such a way that the High Court is invested with the power to go into the whole matter and deal with the man, judicially.

Sir Hari Singh Gour : Make an amendment. Why do you criticise ?

Mr. T. Prakasam : Amendments, there are ; I hope you will have the good sense to agree to them when they come up. Appointing a Bench of three Judges ! Who are they ? Sessions Judges. And how are they appointed ? They are appointed by the Governor General in Council for this particular purpose. Not in their ordinary course of business while they are sitting as Sessions Judges to hear cases that come before them, but they will be taken out of their ordinary duties and be specially appointed by the Governor General in Council with the direction that they should hear this case on certain information that will be placed before them by the Government and dispose of it without telling the accused what the information was. Why this sham, this farce ? It is more honourable and straightforward to say, " We do not care for the law, we do not care for reason or judgment. We shall simply deport the man because it pleases us." That is the more straightforward thing to do than this sham and this fraud.

Why are Sessions Judges appointed ? May I know from the Honourable the Home Member, who is in charge of the Bill, whether the High Court Judges have been approached in regard to this matter, whether they had been asked if they were willing to become tools in the hands of Government and hear cases like these in camera with evidence placed before them only on one side and without giving an opportunity to the man concerned to rebut that evidence. Have those Judges declined to give their support to a Bill like this ? I would like to know whether the Government made any attempt, before they omitted to include the names of judges of High Courts in clause 7, to ascertain the views of the various High Court Judges. Why have the Government taken a fancy for Sessions Judges, when there are the High Courts ? The High Court is the one court which has got power to release persons when they have been arrested without any notice and without any enquiry. Habeas corpus is granted by them. What is the special reason for your choosing Sessions Judges ? The Honourable the Home Member has given the reason that the High Court is the highest court in the land and that they, as impartial tribunals, should not be drawn into party politics. If that is really so, that is one reason which should have prompted the Government to fix only the High Court as the most competent court before which any trial of this nature could be had. The Select Committee in dealing with clause 2 says :

"As regards the first of these amendments, although we realise that it is an essential feature of Communist propaganda to set class against class, we consider that a person preaching that doctrine would almost inevitably bring himself under some other provision of this clause whilst the retention of the words might result in action being taken against persons other than those against whom the Bill is primarily directed."

Well, Sir, the words, "essential feature of Communist propaganda", are very wide. Anything done in India by anybody can be brought under that clause for which we have already got provision in the criminal law. Anything done by any community in regard to any special claim might be brought under the existing criminal law of the land. But all those sections have been dead letters until now when during the last seven or eight years actual communal riots have been going on in this country.

Sir, I wish to say only one thing before I sit down. This attempt on the part of the Government to prevent the spread of nationalism, to prevent the spread of real genuine Communist ideas, or even Bolshevik ideas or ideas of Soviet Government—the good and virtuous parts of those ideas—will be a disastrous failure. Ideas can never be prevented from germinating. That was once tried by the ancestors of the British when they were losing ground every inch, day after day in the great American War of Independence. For every inch of ground that they lost in that great war, they fortified themselves here in India by building up the so-called Indian Empire, by annexation or some other so-called conquests. But for that consolidation of your power by annexation or so-called conquest of India during that period, there would have been no Indian Empire, there would have been no British Empire in India or anywhere. It is only India which you can call to-day as the British Empire upon which the British people are prospering. What did the ancestors of the British people do in America when they were defeated there ? What did they do when the Americans chased them from post to post and from ground to ground. After losing ground everywhere and meeting with disastrous defeats in that great war, the British had had recourse to the checking of the spread of nationalism to the neighbouring colonies. At that time, there was a big belt of wild forests that separated the different colonies from America. By preventing the removal of these forests, and the colonisation of these lands even by their own countrymen and by allowing these forests to grow thicker the British thereby thought that they would be able to stem the tide of nationalism and prevent its spreading all over the Colonies. Did they succeed in their attempt ? They failed miserably. Probably that method of trying to check the spread of nationalism would have been all right at that time, but to-day after so much experience and after so much knowledge that we have gained, the Government cannot entertain the idea that with the Trade Disputes Bill on the one side and the Bolshevik Bill on the other, with arrests on one side and with deportations on the other, and with everything that they can possibly do they could kill the spirit of the people and then march the Simon Commission throughout the land and have their report.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Ten Minutes to Three of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Ten Minutes to Three of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

Mr. S. Srinivasa Iyengar (Madras City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Mr. President, the claim has been made by the Honourable the Home Member that very material improvements have been effected in Select Committee in the Bill that was originally introduced by the Government and therefore that the Bill is entitled to the support of the House.

Now, Sir, I propose in the first instance to examine the improvements which are alleged to have been made before dealing with any general aspect of the Bill. In the first place, the provision which is made in clause 8 of the Bill enabling the High Court on the application of an "excepted person" to set aside the order on the ground that such person is an excepted person is really not an improvement for the very simple reason that even if you strike out the whole of that, the High Court would have the jurisdiction to do it. The Bill applies only to certain classes of persons and persons to whom the Bill does not apply will, whether this Bill says so or not, have a right to apply to the High Court for a writ of certiori, on the ground that the Governor General, in a case beyond his jurisdiction, usurped it. It is therefore not a concession. There are numerous authorities in the courts that decide that without any such provision an aggrieved person can move High Courts where action which is ultra vires of legislation of similar descriptions is taken.

In the second place, I want to examine the provisions of clause 7. Sir, I do not know whether the Honourable the Home Member made a slip—probably he did—when he contended that the impartiality of Judges of the High Court should be beyond cavil in political matters and that therefore they were not made the Judges at this review which has been given to three Sessions Judges. I do not take advantage of what I consider really an argument of despair. I would not press that into my service. I think the real reason why the Sessions Judges have been preferred to the High Court Judges is that which was maintained by Mr. Duraiswamy Aiyangar. For, Sessions Judges in political matters must be quite as impartial as High Court Judges, if anything they should appear to be still more impartial. I do not lay too much stress upon whether they should be High Court Judges or Sessions Judges, though personally I should prefer that the High Court should have jurisdiction over this matter. But it must be a judicial enquiry. Now that is the whole gist of any amendment which should have been made in the Select Committee if the view was that the Bill should be improved in Select Committee. Is there a judicial enquiry ? The primary condition of a judicial enquiry is that charges should be framed and the accused person should have notice of those charges and should hear the evidence upon which those charges have been framed. Now it is perfectly obvious that clause 5 does neither. The clause says :

"Neither he (that is, the appellant) nor any pleader appearing on his behalf shall be entitled to be made acquainted with any details or particulars of the facts or circumstances laid before the Bench by the Governor General in Council."

[Mr. S. Srinivasa Iyengar.]

If it had stopped at that it would have been objectionable enough. But it might be said even though the appellant or his pleader may not have the right to ask the court to give him information, the court in its discretion might have had the power to give him that information. But that is also prohibited by the second part of the sub-clause which says :

"The Bench shall treat all such facts and circumstances as absolutely confidential in every particular."

Now, if it had been confined only to this, that the names of the persons who gave evidence or information to the Governor General in Council must be kept secret, which is the usual excuse put forward in legislation of this description, there would be something to be said in favour of that ; but that is not the only protection Government get ; the protection that they get is that no details or particulars of facts or circumstances shall be disclosed. It means excluding all evidence. At what meeting did the appellant speak ? At what place did he speak ? On what day did the person directly or indirectly advocate by force or violence the overthrow of the British Government or of all forms of government ? At what hour did he do so ? And who were the persons present ? What was the speech that he made ? Or, if it was not a speech, was it a mere conversation ? Nothing of the kind can be divulged to him. If this is going to be the case, I really cannot understand how the appellant or his pleader is to meet anything of the charges upon which the Governor General in the first instance came to the conclusion that he was an undesirable person whose removal was proper, and how in the second place, these three judicial advisers or assessors are to arrive at a similar conclusion. Therefore, I submit that this making every fact connected with this review by the three Judges absolutely confidential makes it a perfectly futile proceeding. Nor can it be contended that there is any very serious difficulty in disclosing that information. The Honourable Mr. Crerar said that the facts could not be divulged without grave detriment to the public interest. Again he made the remark that public interest must be protected. Now, Sir, the expression public interest is a very convenient phrase to use. Of course public interest simply means "my opinion"; it means nothing more than that ; everybody uses this expression without really understanding what it involves. Public interest does involve that there should be a judicial inquiry, if a person is charged with some serious offence of this description, if the man's reputation is to be taken away and his freedom of movement is to be restricted. And what public interest is it that requires that a man who is accused of committing an offence should not have the information ? Public interest, Sir, requires that it should also be made public to other persons, for it is only by example, and the example set by open inquiry, that other persons and members of the public can at all be deterred from doing similar acts, assuming of course that the things which are complained of are offences of a very serious description which the Government claims them to be. Therefore, Sir, whatever view is taken, one of the foundations of all justice, whether it is justice of the full dress order or justice of the summary expeditious order, whether it conforms to all forms of judicial procedure or whether it has only the minimum forms of judicial procedure, it is quite obvious that the person who is put upon an inquiry for a certain offence must be plainly told what are the offences which he has committed, what is the evidence upon which the prosecution or what is equivalent to the prosecution relies, what were the place, time and other circumstances.

He must be told or hear all that ; if he is not given all that, what the appellant or his pleader is going to do, except to throw themselves on the mercy of these three Judges, I cannot really understand. Is it contended that though these are made absolutely confidential, still the three Judges will hold a sort of conversation, a teatable talk with the appellant and his pleader and just give him a hint as to what the things alleged against him are and therefore that ought to be enough ? Really I cannot understand this attempt at eye-wash, which is really what this so called improvement is. The Select Committee and the Government say they are bound to give some sort of inquiry ; they are bound to have some revising authority after the order of the Governor General in Council. It is usually contended that the appellant should be heard. It is usually contended that a pleader should be allowed to represent him. All right, let him have some Judges and be represented by a pleader. But the gist of my complaint consists in whether he can represent his case, whether he will take the course which he can, because he will not have the information given to him upon which he alone can act. Therefore, Sir, I say this is really not an honest procedure ; it is not a fair procedure. I do not suppose my Honourable friend Sir Hari Singh Gour will really defend this and if he does defend this I should be surprised and I can only permit myself some condolences after that. It is quite obvious that nobody as a lawyer, nobody having any idea of the difficulties which an appellant or his pleader will have in explaining his case to a court will at all agree that if all the circumstances and facts are not disclosed to him he will still be in a position to defend himself somehow and show that there was no just and lawful cause upon which the Governor General in Council made the order. Therefore, Sir, I submit on that short ground that this Bill has to be opposed purely from the aspect of ordinary justice, and from the point of view of every constitutional and other propriety.

Then, Sir, it is said that the duration of this Bill has been fixed for a period of five years. Now, I do not know, when the objection is to the principle of the measure itself, when the objection is to the repressive machinery and the unusual machinery which is set up by this Bill, if you can get over that by saying "Oh, it is only for five years." No difference between a bad law and a good law can be maintained by saying that a bad law is for a period of five years and a good law is for a period of two years. A bad law is a bad law whether it is for two years or five years or fifty years. And the Honourable the Home Member did not leave it very much in doubt when he told us frankly—and I would ask the attention of the Honourable Members through you, Sir, to that admission which he made—that he does not expect that in five years the trouble will be over and that he would have to come to this Assembly or its successor, whichever it may be, for a renewal of powers of the same or of a similar nature in order to tackle this very grave problem with which the administration of this country is confronted at the present moment. Now, Sir, I submit that this is really an idle excuse which is given on the other side. Five years should not delude any of my non-official friends. Every one has got to make up his mind on this independently of any Government obligations. They should see that five years is no concession whatever. Whether it is five years or 50 years, it is a bad law and he should sternly set his face against it. I really have no sympathy with amendments of the description which say it should be reduced to two or three years and should not be for five years. Nor do I see that very material changes have been made in the principal clauses of the Bill. Clause 2 of the Bill keeps the old vague and hazy language in defining the action, which is sought to be remedied by recourse to this new procedure for which legislative sanction is asked. Now, Sir, you will find it says that the person to whom this Act applies,

"means any person who directly or indirectly advocates the overthrow by force or violence of the government established by law in British India, or the abolition of all forms of law or organised government...."

Now, it is not in an ordinary court of law. What will the Governor General and the three assessors do without any arguments? How they can make up their minds without hearing the other side, how they can say that it is an indirect advocacy, or is not an indirect advocacy, I am unable to understand. This expression "indirect advocacy" lets in a whole mass of prejudice by which any man can be easily deported. Then, Sir, "abolition of all forms of law or organised government"—these are rhetorical phrases. I can understand the Government established by law in British India, but "the abolition of all forms of law or organised government" will be very difficult indeed to interpret. It will be hard to say how all forms of government are destroyed or attempted to be destroyed by an indirect advocacy of this description. Therefore, the speeches which are made or the writings which are published by a person who is charged with such advocacy will have to be carefully examined by the counsel and Judges before you can show that all forms of law are set at nought or organised government brought into peril. Then again, we have got sub-clause (b) of that clause which says—

"seeks to foment or utilise industrial or agrarian disputes or other disputes of a like nature with the direct object of subverting organised government in British India or with any object the attainment of which is intended to conduce to that result."

The latter part of that sub-clause is very wide indeed and it is impossible to understand what cannot be "an object the attainment of which is intended to conduce to that result", viz., subverting organised government. If the clause had stated merely "with the direct object of subverting organised government in British India" it would be intelligible, but this padding which has been put in, which has no sense whatever and under which any kind of thing can be brought in, will make this Bill, if it is not worked by a court of law and by an ordinary court of justice, an instrument of monstrous oppression in the hands of a secret authority, because it all means that a man, without any arguments or any right of reply, being told that his object is indirectly to subvert the organised government of British India. The object may be far removed from the object of subverting the organised system of government, but, Sir, any object can be brought in. And I am in entire agreement with my Honourable friend Mr. Prakasam who pointed out that sub-clause (b) is very dangerous because it really, under the guise of preventing agrarian disputes or industrial disputes or other disputes of a like nature, prevents the orderly progress of agrarian reform and progress and the industrial welfare of this country. I submit, Sir, that it is inevitable that many movements, agrarian and industrial, must take place in this country and people must be tolerant enough of these things unless they are attended with violence. Unless people feel that their present condition is very unsatisfactory they are not likely to undertake any movement. But if the present position is unsatisfactory, movements of this description, agrarian or industrial, cannot be put down in this way. For it is repressive not only of the European British subject and the Asiatic British subject, of the Asiatic foreigner and the European foreigner, but, Mr. President, it is really an attempt made by the Government, by means of this Bill, to suppress all wholesome and orderly movements which will necessarily involve some industrial unrest, some industrial disputes, some agrarian disputes. For instance, supposing the untouchable classes, who are represented by my friend from Madras, are not given lands to cultivate, surely there will be some agrarian disputes between the untouchable classes and others. And is it to be said that the untouchables are to be put down because there is agrarian discontent on the part of these labourers or coolies in certain agricultural districts? Anything can be an industrial dispute: wages, hours, maternity benefits, the failure to recognise a union, any dispute between a capitalist and a labour union or even between different labour unions can be called an industrial dispute.

The object of this Bill, I say most advisedly, is not really to deport Bolsheviks or Communists or anything of that kind. The object of this Bill is really to put down all kinds of movements in this country, agrarian or industrial, which are intended for the purpose of relieving poverty and unemployment and for the purpose of getting an advance in wages and material conditions of labouring classes. I say this is the real object of this Bill; otherwise, it would have been perfectly made clear in this Bill that it is only against Communists that it is intended. I do not see why the expression "Communist" itself should not be used in this Bill. Everybody knows what a Communist is in international literature; everybody knows what Communism is, what Socialism is. There are numbers of books, good, bad and indifferent, written upon it. One would use the expression "Communism or Communist" if that were the object of this Bill. I say it is not the object The plain object of this Bill is to remove Englishmen and other persons coming to the help of the Swaraj Party, or the Nationalist Party, or any Party in India which fights for the freedom of this country and which fights for reforms—that is, under clause (a). (Cheers.) The object of clause (b) is not to fight Communists but to put down agrarian and other disputes. It is not really intended in favour of Indian capitalists. They may vote now with Government, but they should know perfectly well how the Bill will be worked. I therefore submit that the whole of this mischievous clause remains intact. Generosity is exhibited by saying that a certain provision is omitted, viz., the clause which repeated section 153-A of the Indian Penal Code. But the thing which remains is really the more offending thing. I do not know that I have any objection to the retention of those clauses if the Bill is otherwise good. The retention of that clause would mean that communal riots and disturbances would also be put down. Therefore that clause which relates to communal and class quarrels is alone omitted; at any rate, that is a fair comment on my part when you omit only that portion of it without omitting the rest of the section.

My main objection is to arming the Governor General in Council with this authority. I have already stated on the last occasion my detailed objections to that proposal, how the Governor General in Council means merely that administrative link which makes itself felt and which tightens up the chain throughout its length. But whatever they may be, I submit that it is not right that the Governor General in Council should be brought into this arena of international politics. For what will be the result? If the Governor General in Council is to be made responsible for the purpose of deporting a Frenchman, a German, a Russian, an Italian or a Chinaman, surely the Governor General in Council will have a feeling against him in the countries from which those people come, and my anxiety is, and the anxiety of the Treasury Benches should be, to remove the Governor General in Council from the arena of controversy and leave them in a safe dignified isolation. The only way in which this should be dealt with is by leaving it to an impartial court of justice. Whether he be a German, a Frenchman, a Russian or anybody else, he understands that he has had his case tried by a court of law and therefore his Government will not be upset, his newspapers will not be upset, unfriendly relations between the Indian people and foreign peoples will not be created, and hostile feeling between this Government and the Governments of their respective countries will not be generated. Therefore, if I were in charge of the Government—of course, I will not be, I am sure—if I were in charge of the Government I would certainly leave it to a fully trained judicial tribunal and avoid the executive responsibility for thereby I bring upon myself the odium of all the foreign countries and of their Press. I really cannot understand how public interest is served by bringing in the Governor General in Council again and again into this arena, as I said, of a very violent and bitter controversy. Therefore, Sir, that is a point of view which ought to commend itself to experienced administrators on the other side ; but of course they are past talking to.

Then there is one other matter which I have got to mention. It is said that this anti-Communist legislation is necessary. We have, however, explained on this side in a variety of ways how it is not necessary. That argument has not been met at all: and to the extent to which it is now conceded that some inquiry is necessary, it is quite clear that the Government agree with us that the ordinary law will suffice. Therefore, Sir, what is really the point is that they do not want the ordinary tribunal to interfere: they want an extraordinary tribunal constituted by the Governor General in Council. It was perfectly true in the days of the East Indian Company, long before the Government of India came into the hands of the Crown, that the Governor General in Council was the legislature, he was the judge and he was everything, but those were the old primitive methods of administration: and I am astonished that this Bill could have been sanctioned at all—I suppose it must have been to some extent administratively or departmentally sanctioned by the Secretary of State—I really cannot understand how that was done at all: but any way my complaint remains that no advance has been made by the Select Committee on the question of judicial inquiry. Sir, there is no judicial inquiry provided, and let every Member be aware of it. It is not a matter of rhetoric; it is a matter of plain, honest truth when I say that there is no judicial inquiry: and if you give your adhesion to this Bill, why, then, any man who gives it must realize that there is no judicial inquiry, and therefore let him really search his conscience and let him give his vote with a very full realization of that fact.

So far as the High Court is concerned, I have dealt with the matter and I do not propose to deal with other aspects. Mr. President, I will conclude by saying that all the parties in the country met at Lucknow ; they have drawn up a constitution and made a very generous gesture and offered to co-operate in the way in which that constitution is meant to work—for to some extent that means co-operation. I may not agree to all parts of the constitution, but there is not the slightest doubt that it is a very generous gesture ; and now for the Government to persist in this line of action, takes my breath away. I cannot understand where a generous response to this generous gesture is to be found. Of course I understand perfectly well what the Government is after—I do not blame them for the time they take, because they know perfectly well that so long as this Assembly is not wholly elected, they can carry some of the measures in the way in which they have done ; but that is all the more reason when they themselves want the co-operation of Indians in various ways, Government should permit every Member in this Assembly to regard himself as an elected Member and not as a nominated Member, and why, the Members of the Government should also regard themselves as really elected Members holding their seats only by the confidence of the Indian leaders if they can. That is the only proper way because we have been told that conventions were going to be established: and I know that for ten years the convention is being established that we are not to take anything into account except declared necessity,—because to-day we are not told what is the necessity for this Bill,—how many Communists there are, how many speeches have been made, what acts of violence have been carried on, did they set the Ganges or the Hooghly or the Cooum on fire ? And what is it that they have set on fire that nobody knows anything about it ? But in that secretive way, characteristic of British administration in India, we are told that if we are responsible men, we ought to take whatever they say for granted and to vote whatever powers they want. We are at liberty to criticise them occasionally and say a thing here and a thing there But they say, when Sir Hari Singh Gour is on the Select Committee, how can any responsible man and lawyer get up in this Assembly and oppose this Bill ? I, Sir, with all the temerity that I am capable of, I do oppose it, and most strongly: notwithstanding all the legal and other talent that was upon this Select Committee, and notwithstanding this production of theirs. It reminds me, Sir, of that classic quotation about the labouring mountains producing a ridiculous mouse. I think that this Bill is one which deserves the severest condemnation from every section of the House, not only from my side of the House but also from the nominated Members. I cannot understand how the nominated Members can claim to vote with the Government on such a measure as this which affects vitally international relations. I can understand nominated Members differing from the elected Members on the question of political reforms in this country. But it is the duty of every nominated Member, whatever community he represents or does not represent, to look at this Bill in the only way in which such a Bill as this should be looked at. It is a Bill aimed at the suppression of ideals and ideas; it is a Bill aimed at the suppression of movements which are perfectly legitimate, movements which have enabled other countries to reach their full stature and to reach a state of material and moral prosperity which they had never reached before. The whole object of this Bill is to suppress those movements, to suppress the empire of ideas. Whether this Assembly passes this Bill or not, I give you this warning, that no ideas of the description against which it is supposed that this Bill is aimed can be prevented from travelling all over the country and from taking root in India or in any other country if the ideas themselves are sound. It is a question of the soundness of the ideas. If the Communist ideas are unsound then the best remedy that you can adopt is to allow those ideas to blow away like a wind, leaving no harm behind. But if the Communist ideas are wrong I am perfectly certain that they will be suppressed by the people themselves and it is not necessary therefore for this Assembly to arm the Government with these extraordinary powers which it claims that it should have. Therefore, Sir, I oppose this Bill.

Sir Victor Sassoon: Mr. President, I do not propose to take up the time of the House as long as I did on the previous occasion of the second reading. I do not propose to attempt to convert those Members, like my Honourable friend Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar, who have decided to vote against the Government on principle whenever it is proposed to give that Government summary powers, irrespective of the merits of any measure that may be placed before the House. I do not even propose to attempt to convert those Members who, in spite of the detailed account I gave of the situation in China, still rock themselves in the sweet belief that Bolshevism and Red Communism can never take root in India. I shall confine my remarks to those Members of this House who have not given their consciences and their judgments to their Party Whips and who are prepared to use their intelligence and their intelleets to the best of their ability and are also prepared to give their vote according to their own considered judgment.

Mr. President, however, defective, however lacking in safeguards, this Bill was in its first stage of appearance before the House, I venture to affirm that as it now comes to the House it is a Bill that is by no means a bad Bill, that it is a reasonable Bill and it does provide sufficient safeguards to render it innocuous to those to whom it is not intended to apply. (Applause). I should like, Sir, here to offer a word of appreciation to the Honourable the Home Member for the accommodating spirit in which he met the criticisms of the non-official members of the Select Committee (Applause) and in spite of the fact that he was very doubtful as to whether the Government was not giving too much away he certainly did, wherever he could, allow us to put in the safeguards which we thought were necessary. I do not say that this Bill is a perfect Bill or that it cannot be improved by amendment. I think my Honourable friend Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar did make a point on the procedure before the three Sessions Judges, and I have this morning tabled an amendment, which will no doubt come before the House in due course, on clause 7, which is intended to temper the wind to the shorn lamb. But, Sir, I do ask this House to approve the Bill as a whole, that is to say, to throw out any wrecking amendments that may be brought forward. After all, let us examine the Bill from the opposite point of view, let us assume that this so-called Satanic Government misuses these summary powers. What form of monstrous oppression could it afford the individual? Let us take an individual who has got a stake in the country, who has by remaining in this country for many years, by carrying on his business interwoven his own economic interests with the economic fabric of this country. To him a sentence of deportation will be a very serious hardship. But this individual under the safeguards of this Bill is exempt and he may, if he wishes, like my friends on the Benches here, become as ardent a Bolshevik or arch-Communist as even Mr. Prakasam without coming within the scope of this Bill. The only person who is dealt with by this Bill is the casual visitor and even to him it would only mean the inconvenience of not being able to go over India and see its sights. In fact, the only monstrous oppression that could take place with such an individual is that he would be debarred seeing the Taj Mahal by moon-light, but on the other hand there is nothing to prevent him from going further afield and visiting the ruins of Ankor in Cambodia, then to China to see the Temple of Heaven in Pekin and so on to that most picturesque country, Japan. That, Sir, is the monstrous oppression which is going to affect anybody who comes within the purview of this Bill.

Now, let us take the case of India. What is India going to lose if a man is deported under this clause? We will still assume that the Government is misusing its powers and that the individual who has been deported by the so-called Satanic Government is one who has merely come to India to help the Swaraj Party to gain Swaraj, the Nationalist Party to gain nationalism and the Independent Party to gain independence. (Applause). Sir, do Honourable Members here consider that Swaraj is unattainable without outside help? Looking as we do on the brilliant intellects on the Benches opposite, do their own followers under-estimate the abilities of their leaders that they feel that there is no hope of the speedy attainment of Swaraj without the help of foreign advisers? Is that really what Honourable Members think? (Feeble cries of "No.") I hear cries of "No", but they are not very strong cries, in fact they seem rather attenuated cries. I am glad my Honourable friend, Mr. Prakasam, does not believe that we must rely on foreign help if we are going to get Swaraj. Well, if so, then if this House believes that Government will misuse its powers, there will be only one cook the less to spoil the broth, so that the loss to India even in that event will be nil.

So much for the debit side. Now let us take the credit side. Admittedly the Red elements in this country are uneducated, disorganised and have not the benefit of the intelligentsia of India to help them. As far as I understand, at any rate in this House, there is no one here who is willing to help Bolshevism or Red Communism, with the honourable exception of Mr. Prakasam. Therefore if the counsel and advice of trained propagandists and organisers from outside is taken away, we shall at any rate be delaying the development of Bolshevism and Red Communism in India. That is the main point, that is what this Bill is trying to do. It is trying to delay the development of the Red menace in India. If these Red organisers get in, in spite of the Bill, we are not worse off than we would be if there were no Bill. Once they come in, however, and are given time, it does not matter to them whether you send them away or not. Their work is done. It is no use sending them away once they have organised the destructive forces of the country and after they have worked up a revolution, not only against the present Government but against the majority of the Members of this House, or at any rate the classes which they represent. That is the reason of the urgency of this Bill. It presents the same sort of difficulty that this House was in when the first brick fell down near the Commander-in-Chief. The House did not say, "Let a few more bricks fall down," but they took action at once to prevent more bricks falling down.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar (Bombay City: Non-Muhammadan Urban): We saw the brick fall, and were not asked to take it on trust.

Sir Victor Sassoon: I am surprised at Mr. Jayakar. He is one of those who will believe nothing in this world unless they see it for themselves. If that is so, may I ask Mr. Jayakar why he believes in Swaraj in India because he certainly has not seen it here. (Laughter).

[Sir Victor Sassoon.]

So it boils down to this. We are enabled by this Bill to delay the development of Red Communism, not ordinary Communism, peaceful Communism, but Red Communism. We are getting something and losing nothing. If in spite of this Bill Red Communism gets into the country, we are no worse off than if this Bill was not on the Statute-book. Something to nothing. Surely that appeals to the sporting instincts of my friends opposite.

But there is one other point. It is said by some that if this Bill were passed, it would create a precedent. I think that is true. Mr. President, the precedent that the passing of this Bill would create is the precedent that the elected legislators of this country are prepared for the sake of their country to sink all party feelings. (Cheers.) They are prepared even to support an irresponsible Government and so prove to the world at large that they can be statesmen as well as politicians. (Cheers.) But if this Bill is thrown out, what will the world's opinion be ? That the elected legislators of this country are so wrapt up with their small, petty political party considerations, that they are not only prepared to cut their noses to spite their faces, but that they are prepared even to risk doing damage to their country, merely to enable them to use the slogan, "We have defeated the Government once more."

Sir, I commend this Bill to the Members of this House, who boast a little commonsense and who are prepared to use it.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I am glad that I have been able to take part at least in the final stages of the discussion of this Bill, and I say so because I really think, in all conscience, that it is a bad Bill and I do want to turn it down if I can do so by my vote if not by my argument. At one time I had hoped that the Bill would come back from the Select Committee improved materially. But that hope has been frustrated. I find the Bill comes back absolutely untempered in its absurdity and unshorn of its evil features. I have a double quarrel, one with the Bill itself and the other with the Government who have introduced this Bill. I have a quarrel with the Bill for a number of reasons. In the first place it gives arbitrary powers to Government and in the second place it condemns the accused person unheard. Then the procedure, even as it is amended in the Select Committee, is simply funny because the Governor General comes at the wrong end instead of at the right end. The proceedings should really have commenced with a notice to the accused person to show cause why he should not be proceeded with under this Bill. But here the Governor General begins the operation by his actually issuing an order, so that all further hope of his prerogative being used in favour of the accused, if necessary, is lost. Then, we see that the materials of the charge are to be kept secret, and absolutely no opportunity is to be given either to the accused or to his pleader to rebut the charges brought against him. The scope of the offence is absolutely vague and uncertain. Lastly, I quarrel with the Bill because it penalises even tendencies and doctrines and dogmas instead of actual action. Now, on that point, I would just like to draw the attention of the House to a passage in Viscount Morley's Book on "Compromise." He says that even for a Member of Parliament who has taken actually the oath of allegiance, it is not illegal or treasonable to actually preach that the Crown should be put into the melting pot. That is allowed because it is only a doctrine ; but Government would step in and take action against him only when he begins action, that is, only when he tries to bring his ideas into actual operation, either by taking up arms or fighting against the Crown. I have therefore a quarrel with this Bill on all these grounds.

Next, I will place before this House my ground for quarrel with the Government who have introduced this Bill. First of all they have shown in this Bill an absolutely morbid craving for new powers. I compare them in my own mind to the chivalrous knight of the fable of old who, as I have read in the book, wanted to so complete his armour of defence that he ultimately covered his own eyes so that he could not see where he was hitting or against whom he was hitting. Like Don Quixote, the Government are going at full speed and tilting at a wind mill, but just as Don Quixote suffered in that battle, I am absolutely certain that whatever laws may be passed by this Assembly, they will all come to ruin, if the Government do not take Communism seriously and deal with it as it deserves really and not in the present fashion. Then, Sir, I want to make this point that no satisfactory reply has been given to the charge that Government have been unnecessarily taking new powers to themselves when they have ample powers already under the existing law. There is the Penal Code, and apart from punishing the offender in any manner you like and awarding any term of imprisonment—apart from that—it gives the man into your own power without letting him loose over other parts of the world. Then you have got the Regulations, and under those Regulations you can confine a man for as long a period as you like. And, lastly, I see no reply has been given to the point made by the Honourable the Burma Member. I think he stressed very rightly the fact that the practical purposes of Government in this matter would be satisfied by the Foreigners' Act. I have not seen any reply to that argument that action taken under the Foreigners' Act would absolutely serve the purpose of Government in this respect. It can be said, I think, that a trial under the Penal Code is a better method of dealing with these people. It is more efficacious. But it has been said that our jails are not commodious enough to accommodate these people. But after all how many such people are in question ? At any time only a few persons of this kind can come into India and be in India to be dealt with ; and certainly our jails are spacious enough to accommodate these people. Why, I go further than that and I say our jails are spacious enough to accommodate even certain Members of the Government on the Benches opposite, only we have not the right to impeach them for maladministration.

My next point is that the Indian Legislature is being unnecessarily asked to take upon itself a responsibility which is really due to Parliament. Now, who is the sort of man who will come under this Bill in India ? I take it that he is a propagandist ; but nobody will be sent to India for this object unless he is a tried and experienced hand. That assumes that he must have made up his mind, he must have learnt his doctrines and he must have made speeches and learnt to organise in this matter in England itself in the first place or in other countries. It is not as if he becomes a full-blown Communist only after he comes to India. Now let us assume that this propagandist has declared his views when in England. Then the next question is, why should not England herself deal with this man rather than leave him to be dealt with by this Bill here ? It was said by a philosopher that the best furnace is that which consumes its own smoke ; and if this Communist propaganda is a nuisance like smoke, why should not the furnace of England consume its own smoke rather than pass it on to India to deal with here ? Why is the British Parliament asking the Indian Legislature to do this ? There is an adage in Marathi, my own language, which says that the wily host often tries to kill the serpent by the hand of his guest. The meaning and the significance of that is obvious. If the serpent is killed by that means, you get rid of the serpent ; but if instead of the serpent the guest is killed, an unwelcome guest is by that means also got rid of !

I will now turn to certain special objections which I have got to urge against this Bill. Now this Bill I suppose aims at one of three things. First of all, it is aimed against the Soviet. Then it is aimed against the doctrines of Communism, and thirdly, it is aimed against the propagandists of Communism. First let us take the Soviet. I suppose we are not at war with the Soviet. I do not know whether actual diplomatic relations exist between the British Empire and the Soviet, but I do know that something which is better than diplomatic relations does exist, namely, exchange of commercial goods. They may have broken off diplomatic relations, but they have not broken off commercial relations. My friend, Mr. Belvi, has very clearly proved to this House by a number of quotations—he might have read further—that the Soviet is not the monster that it is depicted to be by interested parties. (An Honourable Member : "Question.").

Now, Sir, with regard to the theory of Communism, it is after all only a theory, only a doctrine, a dogma at best. All new theories and all new ideas are like children. We know what a child is ; it is full of animalism ; it has got abundance of energy and a little tendency towards mischief at times. So this new idea of Communism has got all these three attributes : it is full of animal spirits ; it has got abundant energy because it is concentrated on one point ; and also it has a little mischief. But what I wish to say is this : there is nothing unusual with this particular doctrine of Communism. It has been the case with all doctrines and theories, and therefore we should be able to treat this dogma or doctrine as we have treated other doctrines in politics or economics. Take the case of the French Revolution. The original doctrine of Equality, Liberty and Fraternity must have been looked upon as very dangerous at one time ; and with some plausible reason because, as we know, the French Revolution began its career with red ruin. But after a time this mischievous tendency, this energy, this animalism spent itself and ultimately we see a peaceful and well organised republic was established in France and indeed in many other countries in the world. Therefore what looked at one time monstrous and very dangerous was ultimately found to be very useful and serviceable to society and is now acclaimed and welcomed by all the world.....

Sir Victor Sassoon : In their own country.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Even outside. What is Communism again ? It is only an advanced doctrine, slightly advanced upon Socialism. In the previous stages of the debate Mr. Gavin-Jones pointed out that there was a difference between Socialism and Communism and I admit that there is a difference ; but it is very slight. In England, for instance, we see Socialists and Communists fairly mixed up together. (An Honourable Member : "No".) No one knows who is a Socialist and who is a Communist because there is a very thin line of difference between the two.

An Honourable Member : There is a world of difference.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Therefore, if Socialism which has been accepted thoroughly by England is not dangerous, I do not see why it should be pretended that Communism which is only the next advanced step should be debarred as dangerous. As Mr. Aney says, it is after all a question of time ; and howsoever rudely you may deal with new ideas and doctrines, ultimately they assert themselves and triumph, and I am absolutely certain that this doctrine of Communism also, of course, so far as my wish goes, in its best elements only, will ultimately triumph and prevail in the world.....

Mr. T. Gavin-Jones (United Provinces : European) : Does the Honourable Member support the Third International ?

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : That has nothing to do with this.

I wish to advert to another point, Sir. It has been represented to us in the first speech of the Honourable the Home Member that Communism is something which is entirely against the Indian religion and Indian culture. Now, let us see how far that is true. He says :

"The other items included in this programme are the overthrow of the feudal relations of the nationalisation of large enterprises, the confiscation from landlords of church and monastrial lands, and nationalisation of all lands."

In the first place, I do not think that the Honourable the Home Member has fairly represented the doctrine of Communism. It does not go as far as that. But taking things bit by bit, let us first come to the feudal relations. Now, Communism, it is said, deals very badly with feudal relations. But what about capitalism itself ? I will just quote to the House a passage to show how Capitalism dealt with feudal relations. I am quoting from "Religion and the Rise of Capitalism" by Tawney. This is what he says :

"In a famous passage of the Communist Manifesto, Marx observes that the bourgeoisie, wherever it got the upper hand, put an end to all feudal, patriarchal, idyllic relations, pitilessly tore asunder the motley feudal ties that bound man to his 'natural superiors', and left remaining no other bond between man and man than naked self-interest and callous cash payment."

That is the verdict of this author upon Capitalism. Now, what reason is there for the Honourable the Home Member to say that Communism will come into India and deal injuriously with feudal relations ? Capitalism has already done that in other countries, and it has done the same thing in this country also.....

Sir Victor Sassoon : By what methods ?

An Honourable Member : By money.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : With regard to the other point raised in the Honourable Mr. Crerar's speech, I mean the nationalisation of large enterprises, I ask in all earnestness, what is wrong about it ? Are we not already talking of nationalisation of large enterprises ? Take the Railways, for instance. Why did you go in for taking the Railways into your own hands and running them as your own industrial enterprise ? Why were you not content to leave the administration to the railway companies ? That is nationalisation of one of the biggest industries in the country, and once you have begun with that, I do not see why you should stop at other things within reasonable limits.

Then with regard to the question of the confiscation of lands from landlords, I do not think that Communism preaches confiscation of lands from landlords.....

Mr. T. Gavin-Jones : Of course, it does.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : It does not. It only provides for common administration for particular pieces of land under a particular system, for tilling by different tenants grouped together. It does nothing beyond that. Then come the church and monastrial lands. Don't we see that already there is a tendency, an accepted tendency, an acknowledged tendency, and an accomplished tendency also, to establish, if I may say so, disestablishment between the Church and the State, a tendency to make the State and politics secular instead of being mixed up with religion ? And if we have to make politics and the State secular instead of mixing them up with religion, we have actually to bring into operation the separation of the churches and monasteries from politics and achieve disestablishment of their property, the church and the monastrial lands.

Then with regard to charity, even in India, which is of course a conservative country so far as public charity is concerned, don't we see that the face of charity is actually turned by this time, and instead of endowing monasteries and temples, charities have taken a new course providing for only social service rather than those old methods of practical religion ? Therefore, I say that the points made against Communism by the Honourable Mr. Crerar do not hold any water at all. Government have simply been hypocritical in putting forward those points, and in telling us, " Oh, Communism is such a bad thing that we are going to give you protection against yourself so far as Communism is concerned ". We have never asked for this protection. Why should protection be thrust upon us ? Sir, Communism we all know is not exactly a new theory but it is as old as the hills. It is to be found in a form in Plato's Republic, in Sir Thomas More's Utopia, and later on coming to the Corn Law League days, we find many rhymes about these Communists :

" What is a Communist ? One that hath yearnings
For equal division of unequal earnings.
Idler or burglar, or both, he is willing
To fork out his penny and pocket your shilling."
(The Corn-law Rhymer's lines.)

That was the idea held about a Communist at that time. But in course of time, by the march of time, Communism has triumphed and it has ultimately commended itself to the world at large. Communism is now coming into its own and is an accomplished fact. Now, Communism, we know, the Communists in Russia, for instance, show a new feature. They show discipline, they show self-restraint. They show self-denying ordinances. In my mind I can compare them with the Puritans under Cromwell of old, who would impose self-denying ordinances upon his followers. Now, take the case of these Communists. I have read in a book that Lenin, the President of the Russian Soviet, actually lived upon £22 a month. Now, if that be a fact, does it not prove that these Communist people have got a lining of spiritualism and religiousness in their minds and that they are not as sordid as they are represented to be ? (An Honourable Member : " Anti all other religions.") Then, again, the Communists are not "irreligious " in their intentions, and in regard to that I will just read out a passage to you from another book :

" Thus, while the Communist Party opposes religion and inculcates its own philosophy of Historical Materialism, it preaches the religion of Social Service, and lives up to it with a more than religious fervour, and with a discipline which is higher than that imposed by any Church in the world upon its members."

Now if that be a fact, would you call Communism irreligious as it is said to be ? Then, with regard to its political tendencies, it is always represented that, like the French Republic of old, the Soviet is going to make war upon the whole world. In that respect, I shall read a passage from a book about Russia :

" All over Russia I found a great apprehension of war, and a passionate wish for peace which the Russians think will be denied them."

You will see from this that it is the other nations that are forcing war upon Russia, not Russia which is forcing war upon other countries, and that the intentions of the Soviet are therefore peaceful. After all, what is Communism ? It is only aimed against Capitalism and not against capital. You can easily make the distinction between capital itself and Capitalism. Even in Russia I thing Lenin or his companions were not so foolish as to suppose that nations could live without wealth and economic goods, or that economic goods and wealth could be produced without capital. Therefore, you cannot suppose that in Russia they do not want capital : what they do not want is this vicious system of Capitalism. And with regard to the viciousness of Capitalism as a system I will just quote to you a very high authority, than whom there is no greater,—Professor Keynes. This is what he says about the capitalist system :

" Modern capitalism is absolutely irreligious, without internal union, without much public spirit, often, though not always, a mere congeries of possessors and pursuers."

Look at that description of Capitalism and let us see why it is wrong to preach against Capitalism, why it is wrong for Communists to preach their doctrines against Capitalism as such and not capital.

Then there is one last point which I wish to make and then I will sit down. That is a special point. That point is that apart from other evils this Bill offends against the Indian sense of hospitality ! I tell you why. I have good reasons for it. What does this Bill want to do ? It wants to penalise at our own hands visitors coming to India and teaching us new ideas. May I ask the House whether India has definitely and finally for ever set its face against the learning of new ideas, and why should we not show hospitality to those people who, with a broader outlook than ourselves, with a broader vision and ampler knowledge than ourselves, come to India and teach new ideas ? This Bill wants to penalise such people at our own hands. Therefore it offends against our sense of hospitality. But what is the tradition of England itself in this respect ? Go to the history of the 19th century and what do you find there ? England has given not only asylum but a hospitable home to republicans and revolutionaires of the word (An Honourable Member : " To anarchists ".)— Mazzini, Garibaldi, Louis Kossuth, Karl Marx, and Prince Kropotkin ! These people were avowed republicans and revolutionaries who had achieved something in their own countries and then they went to seek protection and asylum in England. England was a monarchical country then, and if it did not want to spoil its monarchical ideas it should certainly have closed its doors against those people. But far from doing so, England received those people, welcomed those people, and even lionised those people. And here by this Bill you want to shut our gates against preachers of new ideas and thrust protection upon us when we are not asking it ourselves. Now, take the case of even the present day England. Do not Communists live and flourish there ? Is there any law passed in England even now against Communists as such ? Who is Mr. Saklatvala who is a Member of Parliament ? I do not know whether he is called a brown, yellow, red or green Communist, but he is a Communist all the same, though he may be called by any of the colours of the rainbow.

Now, we have been told by the Honourable the Home Member that trade unions are trying to purge themselves of Communism. It may be true, but by what method—that is the question. Trade unions are perfectly at liberty to discuss the merits and demerits of Communism and reject Communism if they like, but the method is not by the passing of a Bill like this. Therefore, my objection is, leave us to our own common sense, and if we find anything that is good in Communism we will accept it ; if we find that Communism is objectionable, of course, we will let it down ; we will not accept it. But here you are thrusting protection upon us and that we resent as an insult to the intelligence of the custodians of national common sense and discretion. You must leave that to us. Let the visitors come, let them teach us any doctrines or dogmas that they like. It is for us and not for the Government to sift and see which is to our good and which is not. So long as we are not asking for protection ourselves, it is an insult to our intelligence that this protection should be thrust upon us, as if we were children who had no discerning intellect to see what was wrong and what was right. But what is really at the bottom of all this is that Communism runs counter to Imperialism. And with regard to Imperialism I will ask the House, are we in favour of Imperialism ? (Cries of "No, no" from the Swarajist and Nationalist benches.") We may hold allegiance to the Crown in a way—I say in a way ; but are we really "Imperial", and enthusiastic about holding up Imperialism ? (Some Honourable Members : "No, no.") We are for breaking up that sort of Empire because the latest word in world politics to-day is "Commonwealth", not "Imperialism". Therefore, let that commonwealth be established in this country, let us be friends with England and the Colonies and.....

Mr. President : Order, order. If the Honourable Member is going to be long, he might continue to-morrow.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : I will just finish, Sir, by drawing your attention to one small quotation : that is a kind of warning which Government must hold before their eyes.

An Honourable Member : How many quotations will you give us ?

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Any scheme of Communism is regarded as devilish and Satanic, but here is what this author says :

"The Prince of Darkness has a right to a courteous hearing and a fair trial,"

—even a Prince of Darkness, I say—

"and those who will not give him his due are wont to find that, in the long run, he turns the tables by taking his due and something over. Common sense and a respect for realities are not less graces of the spirit than moral zeal. The paroxysms of virtuous fury, with which the children of light denounced each new victory of economic enterprise as yet another stratagem of Mammon, disabled them for the staff-work of their campaign, which needs a cool head as well as a stout heart. Their obstinate refusal to revise old formulae in the light of new facts exposed them helpless to a counter-attack, in which the whole fabric of their philosophy, truth and fantasy alike, was overwhelmed together. They despised knowledge, and knowledge destroyed them."

This is from "Religion and the Rise of Capitalism", by Tawney. I would draw attention to the concluding words, "They despised knowledge, and knowledge destroyed them".

Several Honourable Members : I move that the question be now put.

Colonel J. D. Crawford (Bengal : European) : Sir, it is with some diffidence that I rise after listening to the arguments of my old friend, the Honourable Mr. Kelkar, whose lecture made me feel I was back in his little room at Poona discussing and arguing on military problems. My Honourable friend has been loud in his praise of Communism. I asked my Honourable friend, Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar, the other day how long he had been in Russia in order to enable me to judge how long he had had to make up his mind regarding the benefits of Communism. It may interest the House to know that I myself actually held at one time a temporary commission in the Red Caucasian Army and I also filled the role of Food Controller to the Russian Government at Baku along with my friend, Monsieur Roklin, who had been in Siberia for 20 years. Now these Communist leaders are admirable men but idealists; but, exactly as my Honourable friend Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya said the other day, their theories are impracticable. Sir, it is not possible to make every man equal in health, culture and physical strength. These are matters that are beyond the reach of mere legislation. I remember, Sir, as an example of how unpractical their ideals were, that one of the points raised was that the physical beauty of Russian ladies should not be entirely at the disposal of the upper privileged classes but that it should equally be placed at the disposal of the proletarait ; the necessary law was passed. However, there was a feminist movement which said that what was sauce for the gander was sauce for the goose ; and they said, why should not we, old and perhaps not pleasant looking ladies, be entitled to have our selection of the men ? Needless to say, the law was immediately rescinded. But really the crux of the matter is, how do these men hope to arrive at their ideal goal of Communism ? And they told me. Time and time again they said, "Colonel Crawford, the only way to build up a new world is to destroy the old, to destroy all the civilizations that exist in the world and restart again." And that is what they did in Russia. They destroyed their religious institutions and they destroyed many thousands of lives. And that is what they would do in every country before they started to build up again. And after all that horror my Honourable friend Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar comes back from Russia and tells us, they have at last possibly arrived at a measure of political and religious freedom very far behind what we have in this country to-day. (An Honourable Member : "What year were you in Russia ?") In 1918. But the point is that their idea of getting to their goal is to destroy all that exists. They are fanatics and idealists. You may go and talk to them and find them very pleasant men. But they are not practical men ; they are dangerous fanatics who would destroy the existing system of society. There are many people in this House who cannot read the writing on the wall ; yet for the last six months I think any man with intellect and a knowledge of India would have said to himself, "What is at the bottom of all this trouble going on?" It is unlike Indians. You are all non-violent, and yet there has been violence, a great deal of violence and unrest amongst the labouring classes. What is underneath all that? Men who have been in touch with it say that there are behind this movement Red Communists in India, men whose sole desire is to prolong strikes, to create and develop unrest wherever they can, and those are the men you have to watch.

Another argument brought forward by the Opposition Benches is one that appeals to me—it is that Government have already powers to deal with this menace. Now I suggest that the very nature of the Bill shows that the powers that exist, with the exception of Regulation III, are not adequate to deal with the problem.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi (Burma : Non-European) : What about the Foreigners' Act?

Colonel J. D. Crawford : The Foreigners' Act equally does not meet the actual position. What does Government come to you and say? They say, "If we had the evidence that we could lay before a court, that would be the natural course for us to adopt". We have had this argument out on the floor of this House before. If you have any knowledge of the sources of information which rest in your hands—information as to what is going on in the secret world—everybody must, I think, realize that if you handle that information badly you expose your sources of information.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : Have you read the Foreigners' Act?

Colonel J. D. Crawford : I heard the Honourable Member expound the Foreigners' Act the other day. The point is that you are not in a position to place your evidence before a court of law. If you do so, you expose your sources of information. But the answer always comes from that side that the sources of information which the Government have are tainted and unreliable. Now, Sir, if any gentleman in this House had had any experience of intelligence work he would know that an intelligence officer gets a bit of information from one source but he does not immediately accept that as fact. He places it on record as an interesting item, and it is not until that particular item has been confirmed from other sources entirely unconnected is he prepared to say that that is a fact. And surely the Judges that you are now providing for in the Bill will be able to tell whether those sources of information which Government has are such as to confirm the fact or whether they are tainted and therefore unreliable. Surely you cannot expect that those sources of information should be disclosed to Members here. My friend Mr. Joshi appears to have no particular reason for voting against this Bill ; his real reason appears to me to be one.....

Mr. N. M. Joshi (Nominated : Labour Interests) : Where did you learn this?

Colonel J. D. Crawford : I am giving you my appreciation of your position. It appears to me to be considered mainly with the funds coming to India from Russia and he would very much like to have those funds available to him for the very excellent work which he is doing on behalf of labour. Were he to declare himself on the floor of this House that he is definitely frightened of the Red agents now working with him, naturally the funds from Russia would dry up ; and I quite appreciate his position. Unfortunately that is so. But there is the point. You have to-day a menace in India which, from what Sir Victor Sassoon has told us of China, is an insidious disease. There you had the old system of ancestor worship which many believed could resist this menace of Bolshevism. China used the Communists for their own ends but have found that they have destroyed a good deal of their country and that they had to destroy very many lives to check the movement ; and even to-day the movement has not stopped. The same may happen in India and I think will happen unless we take the necessary steps to remove those whose sole idea is to create unrest and to destroy the existing structure in order to build a new world out of the ruins.

There is only one point and that is one made by Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas with which I am in sympathy. He said that the European British Communists are only a portion of the menace. You have already Indian Communists in India. He asked what Government was going to do with them. That is a reasonable argument. Don't deal with it half-heartedly ; deal with the whole of it ; and I would like very much to know what Government are proposing to do with the Indian section of Communists. But because Government are not bringing their detailed scheme of that portion in front of us, it appears to me no reason why we should turn down the half that is there which is not oppressive. It will go a long way to save India from very real trouble in the future. If these men come here from England let us tell them to go and conduct their propaganda in countries where it is more acceptable and let us then deal with Indian Communists inside India.

I therefore trust, now that adequate safeguards have been added to the Bill, that the House will accept the Bill.

(Some Honourable Members moved that the question be put.)

Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim (Chittagong Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I confess that it is not possible for me at this late stage to reply seriatim to the speeches of my Honourable friends opposite ; and I feel, Sir, however right and logical they might appear to me from a certain standpoint they perhaps will not fit in with the ideas and ideals of my friends, and as such I shall not quarrel with them on that account. It seems to me, Sir, that what has been troubling my friends opposite is sheer zid. I personally have great respect for many gentlemen sitting on the opposite side and I feel at times that they must have some soft corner for the good of their country in their heart. The Honourable the Leader of the Swaraj Party opined that they are fighting this Bill on principle. But the Honourable Pandit very conveniently forgets that when the question of "Moslem and other minority representation" comes in, his principles fly out by the back-door. He is not fighting for any principle but for paving the way for revolution in this country with "outside" help. I am certain any responsible Government will take notice of this threat. He at times behaves like a child, and we feel absolutely bewildered at it. Perhaps this might be due to my young age that I feel so. I find him talking like a child on very vital and important matters at times.

[Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim.]

Some of us who have followed the debates here calmly and dispassionately feel that the passage of this Bill by the Legislative Assembly will not in any way injure our prestige or complicate our relations with anybody in this world. An Honourable gentleman on the opposite side has just said that if we stop this sort of hospitality by legislation, perhaps our friendly relations with others in this world might be jeopardised. Of course I am not a believer in that kind of thing. If, as you say, Sir, that we are the inheritors of great traditions, if the time comes, perhaps as the result of peaceful evolution, we shall be able to come to our own. But to bring arguments in a childish manner as is being done by some of our friends opposite passes my comprehension, and my respect for them diminishes in that proportion.

Mr. Duraiswamy Aiyangar calls this measure a very repressive one. Whom does it repress ? I do not know what love, what ideas he has of other places beyond the frontiers of India. I am certain he has not taken the trouble, on account of his caste prejudice, to cross the kala pani. If he had an idea of the things prevailing after the European war all over the Continent of Europe and other parts of Asia he would not have called this measure repressive. Pray may I ask him, whom does it affect ? Here we have been listening ad nauseam to the speeches on this Bill, which provides that it will stop the coming into this country of people who are not the inhabitants of this land and are hostile to its peaceful evolution. Evidently the Government of India have in their possession information which they, for reasons of State, cannot bring forward for the public gaze—cogent reasons which have caused them to bring in a measure of this nature.

Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar has very great objection with regard to clause 8, or some other clause, in which the offender has the privilege of being tried before three Sessions Judges, and later on on questions of law and fact before the High Court. Of course I do not know if he, as an eminent lawyer, had taken this plea before a trying court, what would have been the result of it. He is of opinion that the District Judges are recruited by the Government of India and being a subordinate agency will not be in a position to give impartial verdicts on a question of this dimension. I would refer him to the " Lost Dominion " where the author opines that Indianisation of the higher services " have run mad " and as such politically minded Indian agitators should not fear for the decisions of political cases by them in the future.

One Honourable Member has called the Government timid. I think I agree with him there absolutely. To my mind these measures are overdue. (Ironical Cheers from the Opposition Benches). If this Bill had been on the Statute-book six or seven months before, I can assure you Sir, there would not have been any instance of the sabotage that is going on in Southern India and in my part of the country. Thousands have lost their lives, and Mr. Joshi brags that he had money from Moscow in connection with these labour troubles. Sir, certainly any sensible man would blame the Government of India on this score. It does not pay, Sir, to have hunger and strikes at one and the same time.

Mr. Kelkar in the last part of his speech said that it will violate the canons of Indian hospitality if some of the undesirable foreigners are kept off from their mischievous activities in this country. Of course, as one who has seen a little bit of this world, I can assure you, Sir, that really Mr. Kelkar did not have that idea in his mind at all. On the whole what seems to me is this, that my Honourable friends have not got the courage of their convictions to stand on their feet and say we defy you. It is simply camouflage all round. They bring in all sorts of absurdities by way of arguments which would carry no conviction to any unbiassed mind. They have no courage to say that they can do without the British.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Do not teach courage to these Benches ; learn it yourself.

Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : The Honourable gentleman, Mr. Kelkar, tried his best to give us a nice picture of that demon which is known as Communism. Though it is a nice picture, it will not deceive anybody in the House ; perhaps it has deceived Mr. Kelkar himself. We here, fortunately or unfortunately, have got to live. If most illogically and in season and out of season you go on quarrelling with the Government established by law, I do not know what will be our position in the years to come.

Some gentlemen have also questioned the necessity of this Bill in the public interest. They do not know even from their own standpoint what the public interest is. May I not ask the Opposition whether it is not the duty of a Government to see that life and property are saved, to see that property is not looted and burnt and that there is no danger to life.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Can property be legally burnt and lives taken away ?

Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : If this is the mentality which my Honourable friends opposite are obsessed with and if they continue in this obsession, then this country of ours will go to rack and ruin, and I wish them luck.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I move that the question be now put.

Mr. President : I had allowed Honourable Members to discuss this Bill for four days on the motion for reference to the Select Committee and the House has discussed this motion for the whole day. It is time now that the House should come to a decision. The question is :

" That the question be now put."

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Mr. President, as you, Sir, pointed out, the debate has already been very prolonged and at this stage it is not my intention to prolong it further to a very considerable extent. I have a very few observations to make, which before the House proceeds to vote, I would ask it to take into very grave consideration.

It appears to me that the criticisms which have been made upon the motion which I moved to-day fall, broadly speaking, into two categories. First of all there is the category of criticisms which, in my humble judgment, is unwilling to face the facts. The other category of criticism is that which attacks the Bill because it is not what it does not purport to be. With regard to the first of these two categories of objections I have the following observations to make. The Honourable and learned gentleman from Madras alleged that the Bill had the effect of penalising ideas and ideals which are perfectly legitimate. Well, Sir, in the first instance, I have to point out that the Bill does not penalise ideas or ideals at all. There are certain ideas underlying the activities defined in clause 2 of the Bill. There are no doubt ideas underlying those movements and those activities ; but if the definition which is attached to each of these clauses is carefully considered I venture to say there is no Honourable Member in the House who can return a fair verdict that those ideas are legitimate. Moreover, what the Bill is intended to check is not mere propagation of doctrines but also the attempt to put them into active operation. It is idle to say, as I think was the burden of Mr. Kelkar's argument, that Communism is all a matter of theory. On the contrary it has been over and over again avowed by its advocates that it sets out on perfectly definite lines to produce perfectly definite results commonly expressed in the phrase : " The destruction of the bourgeois State and the dictatorship of the Proletariat ". Those, Sir, are perfectly definite designs. They are accompanied by perfectly definite activities and they are intended to arrive at a perfectly definite end which is by no means compatible with the rosy views expressed by some of the Honourable Members opposite.

Now, Sir, as regards the nature of the measure itself I have been criticised on the ground that I represent that this simple and restrictive measure is going to have consequences out of all proportion to its provisions, that this simple and restricted measure is going to be a complete panacea for all the dangers which I pointed out at greater length in my opening speech. It is not intended to be a panacea. It sets out to deal with a certain limited aspect of the question. That aspect of the question is one of immediate and pressing importance. It has been objected to the Bill that it does not set out a regular judicial procedure. As I have already pointed out, and as has been pointed out by several Honourable Members who have spoken very ably in support of my motion, the Bill relates quite definitely, quite avowedly, to a form of executive action and although the Select Committee imported certain safeguards against the summary or misguided exercise of those powers, the Bill in its essence is a measure giving the Executive Government certain executive powers ; and the criticism that it does not follow all the regular methods of judicial procedure really is an entirely irrelevant criticism.

Sir, I will not detain the House any further. I ask all Honourable Members to look at this question in a strictly and severely practical spirit. I ask them to weigh the arguments and evidence I have laid before them to prove the existence of a state of affairs which is dangerous in itself and which contains even graver potentialities for the future. That part of my position, I submit, has not really been effectively controverted. Nor indeed do I consider that the criticism which, as I said, has been to a large extent irrelevant, is such as to disturb the views which the Government after the greatest deliberation have ventured to lay before the House in regard to the nature of the powers which are essential to deal with the position. I ask Honourable Members to give the greatest weight to those practical considerations and to vote for the motion which I have moved.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the Bill to provide for the removal from British India in certain cases of persons not being Indian British subjects or subjects of States in India, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration."

The Assembly divided :

(After the division papers had been handed in to the Secretary of the Assembly and while they were being scrutinised by him, Sir James Simpson came into the Chamber through the ante-door behind the President's Chair and approached the Secretary's table.)

Mr. President : It is very wrong for the Honourable Member to come into this Chamber in this way. I think the Government should see to this. It is entirely wrong for Honourable Members to come through another door after the lobby doors have been closed.

Mr. President : There is an equality of votes : 61 against 61. My n opinion is that, if any Party or any individual Member seeks to put ch an extraordinary measure on the Statute-book, he must persuade e House and get a majority in his own favour. The Honourable the Home ember has failed to secure a clear majority in his favour and cannot pect the Chair to give its casting vote in favour of the motion. I there- re give my casting vote for the " Noes " and declare :

(d) Is it a fact that the District Loco. Superintendent, Dacca, while writing to the Loco. Superintendent, Kanchrapara, for granting retiring gratuity to Babu Bankim Chandra Mukerjee certified that his service was good, efficient, faithful and continuous ?

(e) Is it a fact that the following remarks were given by the District Loco. Superintendent, Dacca, and countersigned by the Loco. and Carriage Superintendent, Kanchrapara, in the service certificate No. 54 which was granted to Babu Bankim Chandra Mukerjee after his discharge :

" Effieiency—Fair,

General Conduct—Good. "?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government have no information beyond that contained in the appeals submitted to them direct by Babu Bankim

†For these questions, see at the end of the list of starred questions for the day.

Chandra Mukerjee. They regret that they are not prepared to make enquiries into this matter which is within the competence of the Agent. If it is correct that the gentleman named was discharged under the terms of his agreement, no appeal lay to the Railway Board.

†928*-929*.

QUESTIONS NOT PUT AT THE MEETING, OWING TO THE ABSENCE OF THE QUESTIONER, WITH ANSWERS TO THE SAME.

HOLIDAYS, LEAVE, ETC., OF THE PIECE-WORKERS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS AT CALCUTTA.

924. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Have the Government arrived at any final decision in regard to questions of holidays, leave, etc., of the piece-workers of the Government of India Press at Calcutta ? If so, what is that decision ?

(b) Is it a fact that the binders in the Government of India Press, Simla, are salaried hands, whereas their brethren in the Government of India Presses, Calcutta and Delhi, work on the piece-rate system ?

(c) If the reply to (b) is in the affirmative, will the Honourable Member be pleased to state the reasons therefor ?

(d) Is it a fact that in the Simla Monotype Press the compositors are salaried hands ? If so, what is the reason for maintaining the Calcutta section still on the piece-rate system ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes. The orders regarding the grant of leave to piece-workers are contained in the Finance Department Resolution No. F.-119-R.I./28, dated the 6th September 1928, which was published in the Gazette of India of the 8th September. A copy of the orders regarding holidays in the Government of India Presses is being forwarded to the Honourable Member for his information.

(b) and (c). Binders in the Government of India Presses at Simla and Delhi are salaried hands, whereas the binders in the Calcutta Press are paid at piece-rates. The difference in the system of payment is due to the fact that the nature of the work in the two former Presses does not admit of payment at piece-rates.

(d) The Simla Monotype Press has been merged in the Government of India Press, Simla. The compositors in the Simla Press are salaried hands and are employed chiefly on correction work though they are also, if necessary, required to do hand composition. In Calcutta, the hand composition is the main work of the compositor in the hand composing section.

(c) Will Government please state how many of these Royal Engineer officers are employed at the Head Office and how many on frontier duty ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Royal Engineer officers predominate in the Head Office ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) 18.

(b) No.

(c) There are 5 Royal Engineer officers at the headquarters of the Railway and 4 on the frontier.

(d) No.

EMPLOYMENT OF ROYAL ENGINEER OFFICERS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

926. Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : (a) Is it a fact that all the important posts on the North-Western Railway, such as, the Agent, Chief Operating Superintendent, Chief Engineer, Deputy Chief Engineer, Statistical Officer, etc., in the Head Office are filled by Royal Engineer officers ?

(b) Will Government please state whether non-Royal Engineer officers were available for these and other posts occupied by Royal Engineer officers at the Head Office ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The posts mentioned by the Honourable Member happen at present to be filled by Royal Engineer Officers.

(b) These are selection posts and the most suitable officers are appointed to fill them, irrespective of whether they belong to the Corps of Royal Engineers or not.

NUMBER OF APPLICATIONS RECEIVED FROM STUDENTS IN AJMER-MERWARA DURING THE LAST THREE YEARS FOR SCHOLARSHIPS TO STUDY AGRICULTURE, MINING, ENGINEERING, ETC.

928. Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of applications which were received in the office of the Superintendent of Education, Ajmer-Merwara, from students in Ajmer-Merwara, during the last three years for the grant of scholarships to study Agriculture, Mining, Engineering, etc., the number in which replies were sent from that office and the number in which no replies were sent in spite of reminders ?

(b) Is it a fact that in some cases the students who applied for scholarships have either completed their education or joined the institutions for attending which they applied for scholarships and no replies have yet been sent to them ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Superintendent of Education, Ajmer-Merwara, acted as the Adviser of that province for students going to England during the absence on leave of the permanent Adviser ? Is it a fact that no replies were sent from his office to students who asked for advice this year, and one of the students has actually left for England and the advice which he sought did not reach him till the day of his embarkation from Bombay ? If so, do Government propose to make proper arrangements to give necessary advice to the students promptly ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Enquiries have been made and the information will be supplied to the Honourable Member later.

PERMANENT LOCATION OF THE HEADQUARTERS OF THE INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT.

929. *Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Will Government please state whether any decision has been arrived at regarding the permanent location of the headquarters of the Indian Stores Department ? If so, where is it proposed to be ? If no decision has yet been arrived at, when is the question likely to be settled ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Indian Stores Department will move to Simla next year ? If so, will Government please state why it is found necessary for this Department to move between Simla and Delhi and what is the extra expense involved in such moves ?

(c) Do Government propose to fix the headquarters of the Indian Stores Department at a place of commercial importance like Calcutta or Bombay ?

(i) Is it a fact that the Audit Office of the Indian Stores Department has been located at Delhi while the Indian Stores Department is likely to continue its move between Simla and Delhi ?

(ii) Is it a fact that the Stores Purchase Committee strongly recommended that the Indian Stores Department and its Audit Office should work side by side ? If so, do Government propose to keep the Indian Stores Department also in Delhi, pending the final decision on the question of the location of its permanent headquarters ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) No. I am unable to say definitely when the question will be settled.

(b) Yes, for reasons of administrative convenience. The direct saving on travelling allowances, Delhi Camp allowances, the carriage of records and rent in Simla would probably be in the neighbourhood of Rs. 70,000 annually, and Government would receive some additional rent in Delhi. But there would be additional expenditure in some other directions and it is not possible to give an exact figure.

(c) In deciding the question of the permanent location of the Indian Stores Department, the relative merits of places of commercial importance will be taken into consideration.

(i) It has been decided to locate the office of the Audit Officer, Indian Stores Department, permanently at Delhi. As stated in reply to part (a), the question of the permanent location of the Indian Stores Department has not yet been decided.

(ii) The Stores Purchase Committee contemplated the establishment of an "Accounts section" as an integral part of the Headquarters' establishment of the Indian Stores Department. The Government of India, however, decided that there should be a separate organisation for the accounting and auditing of receipts and expenditure of the Department under the control of the Auditor General. The same office acts as the Audit Office of the Northern India Salt Revenue Department which is located at Delhi. The reply to the latter part of this question is in the negative.

APOLOGY TO THE CHAIR AND THE HOUSE BY SIR JAMES SIMPSON.

Sir James Simpson (Associated Chambers of Commerce : Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, I should like, with your permission, to say a word in personal explanation of the episode of yesterday. As the House is aware, I am a new Member not fully conversant with its etiquette and rules, and I have since learnt that it is a serious breach of Parliamentary etiquette to enter the Chamber through the ante-door behind the President's Chair after the division is called and the lobby doors are closed. I express my sincere regrets and apology to the Chair and the House, and I trust that the Chair will accept this apology.

Mr. M. Webb (Bombay : Nominated Official) : Sir, on a point of personal explanation in connection with the same incident of which my Honourable friend, Sir James Simpson, has spoken. I understand that it is being stated, or that a rumour is going round that I opened the ante-door behind the President's Chair for Sir James Simpson. I should like to say that it is absolutely incorrect. When Sir James Simpson entered the House I was in my seat. Another point that I wish to submit is that in asking Sir James Simpson to vote I made a mistake. I was thinking of a previous incident, and as the results of the division had not been announced, I asked Sir James Simpson to vote. I did not realise at the moment, though I realised it two or three moments afterwards, that the situation was different. Sir James Simpson had not been in the House when the vote was being recorded, and as soon as I realised that, I asked him not to vote and referred the matter to you, Sir, who perfectly correctly decided that Sir James Simpson was not entitled to vote. I am quite sure that my Honourable friends on the other side know me well enough to know that in trying to collect votes for this side I desire to use none but the cleanest methods, and I hope, Sir, that you will be satisfied with this explanation of mine.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar (Leader of the House) : I should like on behalf of Government to express regret at the incidents which occurred yesterday evening and which are not less deplored, I am sure, by the Honourable Members concerned than by anybody else.

Mr. President : This Session, somehow or other, is full of series of deplorable incidents. I fully sympathise with the Honourable Member from Madras. Not only must he be feeling because he was unable to vote, but also he incurred the displeasure of the Chair and the House. But considering that the Honourable Member is quite new to this House, and, as he says, is not fully conversant with the Parliamentary etiquette and rules, I hope the House will allow me to accept the apology that he has given. I cannot help feeling that the Honourable Member's position is really such that every one in this House must sympathise with. He came to me this morning and told me that he was very, very sorry that he entered by the ante-door after the lobby doors were closed, and I hope Honourable Members will say nothing more about the incident. (Applause.)

Sir James Simpson : Thank you, Sir.

PRESENTATION OF THE REPORTS OF THREE COMMITTEES ON PETITIONS.

Mr. Deputy President (Maulvi Muhammad Yakub) : Sir, I beg to present the Reports of three Committees on Petitions relating to the following Bills. The first Report relates to petitions on the Bill to regulate and improve the Law Reports. These petitions are in opposition to the Bill and are in conformity with the Standing Orders, and they have been directed to be published in extenso as a paper to the Bill. The second Report relates to a petition on the Transfer of Property Act. This petition is not in the form prescribed in Schedule II to the Standing Orders, and we are of opinion that there is no necessity to circulate this petition as a paper to the Bill. The third Report relates to petitions on the Child Marriage Bill. They are 2,700 in number. They are not addressed to the Legislative Assembly nor are they in the form prescribed by the Standing Orders. We do not therefore direct that they should be circulated as papers to the Bill.

I present these three Reports.

ELECTION OF THE PANEL FOR THE STANDING COMMITTEE FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE.

Mr. President : The Assembly will now proceed to elect a panel of nine members from which the members of the Standing Committee to advise on subjects in the Department of Commerce will be nominated. There are eleven candidates whose names are printed on the ballot paper which will now be supplied to Honourable Members in the order in which I call them.

(The ballot was then taken.)

ELECTION OF A COMMITTEE TO REVIEW THE SEPARATION OF RAILWAY FINANCES FROM GENERAL FINANCES.

Mr. President : The House will now proceed to elect sixteen members to serve with the Honourable the Finance Member as a Committee to review the separation of railway finances from the general finances. There were 25 candidates whose names are printed on the ballot paper which will now be supplied to Honourable Members in the order in which I call them. Sardar Gulab Singh has withdrawn his name and there are now 24 candidates left.

(The ballot was then taken.)

Mr. President : Order, order. I take it that no Honourable Member who desires to vote has been left out.

THE INDIAN PATENTS AND DESIGNS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill further to amend the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, for certain purposes, be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinions thereon.

I need only say a very few words in connection with this motion. The Bill represents a complete revision of the Indian patents law based to a large extent upon revisions of the English law undertaken in 1917 and on the recommendations of the British Empire Patents Conference of 1922. We have not, however, in all cases followed the English law. We have adopted the general principle of following that law wherever we thought it suitable and applicable to British India. In other cases, where suitable, the provisions of our existing law have been retained. The Bill contains a number of matters of considerable importance in principle, such as the extension of the period of patents from 14 to 16 years and the introduction of the new procedure called " patents of addition " and various matters of that kind. It also contains a large amount of detail, and, as the matter intimately concerns the public, it is clearly necessary that the Bill should be circulated.

Sir, I move.

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN PENAL CODE (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar (Home Member) : I very much regret, Mr. President, that Sir Denys Bray is still ill, and the motion standing in his name will not therefore be moved.

Mr. President : What do the Government propose to do with regard to the Bill ? What are the intentions of Government ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The intentions of the Government are that the Bill should stand over for the next Session.

THE INDIAN SUCCESSION (SECOND AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. J. A. Shillidy (Home Department : Nominated Official) : Sir, I move that the amendment made by the Council of State in the Bill further to amend the Indian Succession Act, 1925, for a certain purpose, be taken into consideration.

The first clause of the Bill as passed by this House was " This Act may be called the Indian Succession (Amendment) Act." The Council of State have inserted the word " Second " before the word " Amendment ", and I think the amendment may be accepted by the House.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the amendment made by the Council of State in the Bill further to amend the Indian Succession Act, 1925, for a certain purpose, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the following amendment made by the Council of State be passed :

' In clause 1, for the brackets and word ' (Amendment) ' the brackets and words ' (Second Amendment) ' were substituted '."

The motion was adopted.

DEMAND FOR SUPPLEMENTARY GRANT (RAILWAYS).

AUDIT.

Mr. President : The House will now resume further consideration of the following motion moved by Mr. Parsons on the 21st September 1928 :

"That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 12,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges which will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1929, in respect of 'Audit'."

Mr. K. C. Neogy (Dacca Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, on the last occasion I pointed out that it was not quite fair on the part of the Government to have brought up this important question at the fag end of a Session, and I was promptly corrected by my Honourable friend Mr. Cocke saying that we had yet a few days more, and I must congratulate Government on their sense of humour in having placed this motion about the end of to-day's agenda.

Sir, I was dealing with the Auditor General's opinion on the last occasion with regard to the question of the inherent merits of separation. It will be remembered that the Auditor General was not quite prepared to accept the merits of the new system as compared with the system that obtains on the State Railways until and unless it had been given a trial on the State Railways. Now, Sir, so far as the question of experiment goes, I am ready to concede that it has proved a success with regard to the East Indian Railway, but that does not certainly establish the case of the Government, because it is not merely that the Government want to continue this new system on the East Indian Railway on the strength of the successful experiment, but they want this new system to be extended to the other lines also where the old combined system obtains.

I am aware of the fact that both the Acworth Committee and Sir Arthur Dickinson recommended the adoption of this new system all over the Railways in India, but I may remind the House that when three years back we agreed to this experiment being made on the East Indian Railway, Government themselves laid very great stress on the results that might be obtained from this experiment. They did not lay so much stress on the recommendation either of the Acworth Committee or Sir Arthur Dickinson on that occasion. I will just read out one or two sentences from the speech which was delivered on that occasion by Sir Basil Blackett. This is what he said :

"We are not finally committing ourselves at the present moment to separation of accounts from audit. I have been very anxious in this matter that we should proceed by experiment, because there is a great deal to be learnt by experiment before we can arrive at definite conclusions."

But unfortunately that experiment was confined to a line where the Company system of accounts obtained, with which there can be no comparison of the system that obtains on a State-managed railway.

Now let us turn to the claim which Government make about the improvements that have been effected on the East Indian Railway. We are told that under the new system there has been less of irregularities, less of arrears, and less of delays ; but you must not forget the circumstances in which this experiment was made, and the circumstances in which the State took over the management of the East Indian Railway. There was admittedly a laxity in the administration of this Railway towards the end of the contract period. The authorities of the East Indian Railway would have been more than human if they were quite as strict towards the end of their career as they were before. And it is not therefore surprising that there should have been this large volume of irregularities and arrears with which the new experimental system had to cope. Therefore, I say that it is not quite right to claim all the credit for this new system having made wonderful discoveries with regard to these irregularities and arrears, the very nature of which were of an abnormal character, having regard to the abnormal circumstances prevailing in the East Indian Railway when it was taken over by the State.

I will now turn to what Mr. Parsons himself thinks about these arrears and irregularities. If Honourable Members will turn to page 324 of Volume II of the Report of the Public Accounts Committee for 1925-26, they will find what he stated with reference to the large arrears which were brought to light under the new system :

"There were difficulties in the accounts office of the East Indian Railway, chiefly owing to the introduction of the divisional system and also to the amalgamation of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway with the East Indian Railway. That is the main reason I think for the large amount of arrears to which the Auditor General called attention."

So far as the arrears are concerned, Mr. Parsons is at one with me in saying that they were not inherent in the system that was in vogue on the East Indian Railway, but that they were due to these factors which he himself has mentioned, and he cannot claim any special credit for the new system as having cleared up those arrears.

Now, Sir, reference has been made in my Honourable friend's note to the activities that have recently prevailed on the accounts side of this Railway which are described as being unparalleled in the previous system of railway accounts. In so far as it was an experiment on which the Government were very keen, and in so far as the very jobs of those men who were temporarily engaged in this work were dependent upon the result of the experiment, we can easily understand the reason of this unparalleled activity to a certain extent. But this unparalleled activity was also due to the arrears to which I have made reference. It therefore remains to be seen whether, if this system is made permanent, the same unparalleled activity will continue.

Reference has been made to the analogy of commercial practice in support of the separation of Accounts and Audit. On a previous occasion, while presenting the railway accounts, Sir Charles Innes compared the Members of this House to shareholders in a big concern, who owned the Indian Railways, and compared himself to the Director of that concern. Sir, one need not take any pains to point out the utter absence of any real comparison between a real commercial firm and the Railways in India. We who are compared to the shareholders of a big commercial undertaking have absolutely no voice or control in the management of railways. The Directors can very well defy the shareholders, and they have been defying us every day that we have been sitting in this House. Then again, supposing the Directors make a mistake which results in any loss to the shareholders, are they accountable to the shareholders at all ? They are not. Supposing this particular scheme miscarries, and something goes wrong, by the time that it is discovered my Honourable friend, Mr. Parsons, will perhaps be occupying a provincial gadi as His Excellency the Governor, or if the results of this scheme are not apparent by that time, he will perhaps have gone home to enjoy a well-earned rest and pension. Nothing that we would be then able to do here would touch him or affect him in the least. Therefore, this commercial analogy is absolutely out of place.

Now, Sir, it is not unnatural, having regard to the circumstances in which Railways are administered in India, that the non-official public opinion attaches very great importance to the independence of the authorities who carry out the audit and accounting of these Railways. We exercise no control over the department, but we have this satisfaction that there is an officer who is independent of the administrative authorities of the Railways who keeps the accounts and carries on the audit simultaneously, and whose previous sanction is necessary before any expenditure can be incurred. Under the new scheme the status and powers of that officer are being reduced. I know my Honourable friend will reply by saying that the whole accounts staff is to be placed under him and not under the railway agent. Well, my Honourable friend has all along tried to draw a distinction between his capacity as Financial Commissioner and his capacity as a Member of the Railway Board. This, I maintain, is a distinction without a difference. The Honourable Member is absolutely identified with the railway policy of this country. He is the official apologist of the Railways in this House, and, like Louis XIV, he could rightly say "I am the Railway Board." That would be the correct description of my Honourable friend. Yet he says, "Oh, I am an independent authority, I have nothing to do with the Railway Board."

Now I turn to the estimates of the new scheme. It is claimed that this will result in very large economies, but the Auditor General seems to be rather sceptical about this. He says :

"I have not had the time to examine the figures."

Now, if we turn to page 46 of the memorandum supplied by my Honourable friend, we find that some of the items of savings shown there are very, very speculative. For instance, there is a lump reduction in establishment cost ; a lump sum is given as reduction in the rent, and for contingent charges so many lakhs are shown as reduction ; so many lakhs as reduction in establishment costs, this reduction being based on what has been shown as possible on the East Indian Railway. The Honourable Member has not given this House any definite figures with reference to the other Railways to which this system is proposed to be extended. The figures are absolutely speculative, and we are not expected to accept them as axiomatic. I should like to know from my Honourable friend, Mr. Parsons, as to what guarantees he is prepared to give us that these estimates will not be exceeded.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : None whatever.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : My Honourable friend answers on behalf of Mr. Parsons and says, "none whatever." Looking through the various detailed estimates of the cost of officers and clerks that will be maintained under the new system, it seems to me that a deliberate attempt has been made to keep down the cost as much as possible, and the time may not be very distant when the Government will have to come up before this House for revision of the whole thing. I find that the scales of salary proposed to be given for the subordinate establishment are not quite the same as are enjoyed now by the combined audit and account staff. I do not know whether I am correct in that statement. I see my Honourable friend nods assent. I think it is one of the claims of my Honourable friend that the efficiency of accounts will not suffer in the least by the adoption of the new method, and that persons of practically the same calibre who have been doing the work in the past will also continue to do it in future so far as the accounts side is concerned. How does my Honourable friend expect to have men of the same calibre for a salary which is admittedly on a lower scale ?

Sir, I have no desire to take up any more time of the House. In conclusion, I will say that I am perfectly willing to see this experiment tried on a State Railway where the combined system is at present in vogue, in order to be able to find out how far the comparative merits of the two systems will justify us in extending the separation scheme to all the State Railways. For instance, the system might be tried as an experiment on the Eastern Bengal Railway or the North Western Railway, and we might wait for three years more, when we would be in a better position to express our opinion in this matter. I submit, Sir, that there is no occasion for any great hurry in this matter. After all the Railways have survived the combined system of audit and accounts during all these years, and nothing very serious will happen if the present system is tried as an experiment on one more State Railway before it is extended to all the railway systems.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : Sir, the Honourable gentleman who has just concluded his speech is chiefly responsible for my intervention in this debate. I think, Sir, I owe the Honourable gentleman an apology for having stated that he talks through his hat. I said so because he indulged in the uncalled for animadversion that I was not reading and reading, I should say, I was not wasting my time pouring over the undigested and immature observations of an overwrought Member of the Public Accounts Committee. I thought I had much better things to do than pore over the sort of things that the Honourable gentleman has been indulging in when he had no better work to do. Fortunately this year the Honourable Member had some better work to do in Bengal, and therefore he had not performed his duty as a Member of the Public Accounts Committee.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : You had better work to do in England when you were absent last year.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : I was just then doing a book, (An Honourable Member "Father India "), and therefore I did not attend the Public Accounts Committee, and the Honourable gentleman who was accusing me of my not doing what he wanted me to do was only following my very good example and I must congratulate him on becoming a follower of mine once in a way (Laughter). As for the observations that he made that he never wore a hat in his life, I should not say that he was talking through his cap, for he was not wearing one at the time he was speaking. Should I have said that he was talking through the hair of his head or that he was talking through a hole in his head ? (Laughter.) It was most impertinent on the part of the Honourable Member to say that, if I had not gone through his observations, I had not studied the Auditor

[Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer.]

General's remarks either, in regard to the separation of Audit and Accounts. Any one who is a Member of the Public Accounts Committee or who is a Member of this House who takes an intelligent interest in the proceedings of this House is expected to know the Auditor General's opinion. But the observations which the Honourable gentleman quoted I believe, Sir, are 18 months' stale. If the Honourable gentleman were a little more up to date, he would have read the recent observations of the Auditor General. (Hear, hear.) What has the Auditor General to say on this matter ? I would ask him to read page 23 of the Auditor General's minutes in regard to the separation of Audit and Accounts. The Auditor General says :

"I watched independently and through the activities of the Chief Auditor, East Indian Railway, and the Auditor of the Clearing Accounts House the working of the experimental system and before the receipt of the memorandum from the Financial Commissioner, Railways, had already come to the conclusion that the experiment had proved a success, (Hear, hear) a fact which the Honourable gentleman denies :

"that the time had arrived for making it permanent and for extending it to all railway administrations."

The Honourable gentleman who quotes the Auditor General as his authority only wants that there should be delay and that there should be no hurry, and that the experiment should be still in its experimental stage when the experiment has actually succeeded, but I do not want the experimental stage to continue either in the economic, railway or political sphere. (Hear, hear.) (An Honourable Member : "You have not the capacity to understand this.") The Honourable gentleman says that I have not got "the capacity to understand this." I never thought that the Honourable gentleman had so much conceit, such overweening vanity.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Nothing to match yours.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : Should I congratulate the Honourable Member on his colossal ignorance of things which ought to be done ! (Laughter.) I would now quote for the Honourable gentleman's benefit the Auditor General's observations of 7th August 1928, not 17th August 1926 which he quoted.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : It is 1927.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : Well, 1927. The Honourable gentleman corrects me and I stand corrected. I admit the Honourable gentleman is not two years behind but only one year out of date, whereas I want him to be up to date and I want him to read the latest observations of....

Mr. K. C Neogy : You refer to your own speech.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : I would ask the Honourable gentleman to read the observations of the 7th August 1928 of the Auditor General.

Mr. K C. Neogy : What about your own observations against the separation ?

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : The Honourable gentleman asks, what about my own observations ? I am just coming to that. For his benefit, I would ask him to read paragraph 5 of the Auditor General's minutes, page 25, in the memorandum which the Honourable gentleman on the other side (the Railway Commissioner) has submitted to us. It says :

"In the above circumstances,"

I need not read to this House all about the circumstances because I presume that the Honourable Members have read these circumstances :

"I feel no hesitation," it is the Auditor General who says so and not my authority :

"I feel no hesitation in recommending that the experiment of the separation of audit from accounts on the East Indian Railway be accepted as a success and that it be adopted as a permanent measure and extended to other railways."

(Hear. hear) I would therefore recommend to the Government to accept the authority of the Honourable gentleman's teacher and authority on these subjects and not the lesser and the amateurish authority on the matter. (Laughter.)

Mr. K. C. Neogy : What about your own observations ?

Mr. C. S Ranga Iyer : He is asking me what about my own observations. I am coming to that. When I met the Honourable gentleman some time before this debate a day or two ago, I invited him to my authority. (Laughter.) I told him he would be on a much better footing if he made the criticism that I was myself once against the separation of Audit and Accounts instead of saying that I had not read his undigested observations as a Member of the Public Accounts Committee. It was four or five years ago that I made the observation.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Were you in the House five years ago ?

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : Yes I was in the House. I made that observation five years ago outside this House and three years ago inside this House about the separation of Audit and Accounts. Like my Honourable friend when my education was a little less than it is to-day, I once believed that the separation of Audit and Accounts was not necessary, and my opposition was based more or less on the same identical grounds as the Honourable Member's. The Honourable Member's attitude is that of the "sweet girl of seventeen" of whom the poet speaks. I forget the exact lines, but when she was in her seventeenth year, she truly said she was "sweet seventeen"; in her thirtieth year also she said "I am sweet seventeen." When she was fair, fat and forty, she still said "I am sweet seventeen !" She was no doubt consistent and the Honourable gentleman is also very consistent. (Laughter.) But consistency, according to the dictum of a famous English politician, is the virtue of an ass. I do not think that the Honourable gentleman, because he is hugging the views which I held perhaps four or five years ago—I do not suppose that the Honourable gentleman, because he is so backward and so out of date—can be described as a supreme ass ! (Laughter.)

Mr. K. C Neogy : What has brought about your transformation ?

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : The Honourable gentlemen is asking me what has brought about my transformation. My transformation has been brought about by the success of the experiment. (Hear, hear.) I am not, Sir, like the Honourable gentleman "a stick-in-the-mud." That is a famous expression of Mr. Lloyd George. I admit. I am not like the Honourable gentleman, one of those very consistent people. Consistency, as Emerson said, is " the hobgoblin of little minds ". I would therefore ask the Honourable gentleman to approach the experiment with a large mind when he will understand it has succeeded not only in a Company-managed Railway but also on a State-managed Railway, and, as the experiment has succeeded, I would ask the Honourable the Member for Railways to apply it everywhere and anywhere he can. (Hear, hear.)

[Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer.]

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Was the combined system in operation on that State Railway at any time ?

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : I say in one sense the combined system is a successful system.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : The combined system is a successful system ?

Mr C. S. Ranga Iyer : No, I beg your pardon. I did not mean that.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : You are going beyond your depth.

Mr C. S. Ranga Iyer : When the Honourable gentleman talked of a combined system I was thinking of the combined system of Railways, namely, the combination of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway and the East Indian Railway, and I was not thinking of the technical expression of which he was thinking ; and in this combined railway system this particular measure which we are discussing has proved a success (Cheers).

I want that the Honourable gentleman should apply his knowledge of the Corporation of Calcutta also to Railway Administration. Sir, in the Corporation of Calcutta, if the Honourable gentleman has any information about it, he will know that audit is separated from accounts. In every commercial, in every important office, the two systems, the two offices, must be separated ; and ordinarily I would not have even cared to quote the Auditor General on a matter of this kind ; but I quoted the Auditor General only to show that the Honourable gentleman is very backward even in regard to his own authority. My own way however, is to look at the matter not from the point of view even of the Auditor General, but of a man who is neither an auditor nor an accountant but a man of common sense who wants to approach the subject from a purely common sense point of view. (Hear, hear.) If the Auditor General was at one time opposed to the system, I think he was perfectly justified in that opposition as the Head of a Department, because his own power and his own prestige were going to be impaired by this innovation. Again, I would ask the Honourable gentleman just to see how things are done in his own Calcutta Corporation. He may say that the Calcutta Corporation is under popular control, while the Railway Administration is not under the control of this House. Had he made that intelligent interruption I might have credited him with some intelligence ; but anyhow I will just answer that question. I hope I am not so pessimistic as some Honourable gentlemen here, and I do hope that the public will have control of the Railways, that this House will have control of the Railways sooner than many faint-hearted people on that side of the House imagine (pointing to the Nationalist benches) ; and therefore it is in that hope that I approve of an experiment which has succeeded and of trying that experiment on a wider and vaster scale ; not in the way the Honourable Member wanted it to be tried, that is to say, with great slowness, with great hesitation, with great trepidation but with courage and satisfaction that comes from a successful experiment because nothing succeeds like success. (Cheers.)

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury (Assam : Muhammadan) : I want to oppose this motion, Sir, not on its merits, but on entirely different grounds. My opposition is based on the well-known principle of grievances before supply. Of all Departments of Government, the Railway Department, and more particularly the Audit and Accounts section, is the worst offender in refusing appointments to Mussalmans. I would refuse to vote and also ask those who are interested in seeing that justice is done to Muhammadans, that they should refuse to vote any money to the Railway Department until they are assured that in future effective steps will be taken to remedy the present deplorable state of affairs. We would like, Sir, to have a very clear, definite and unambiguous assurance from the Government that of all the appointments which are going to be made under the separation scheme, at least one-third should be reserved for removing communal inequality so far as Mussalmans are concerned. I would particularly like to draw the attention of my friends of the Central Muslim Party to this matter. Sir, simply whining in the lobbies about Government's injustice to the Mussalmans and then obeying the official Whip in a most docile fashion will not advance the Muhammedan cause. I would ask my Honourable friends to throw out any scheme good, bad or indifferent that the Railway Department brings forward until we are assured of justice from the Railway Department. Similarly, I would also like to address one word to the Leader of the European group also. (Sir Victor Sassoon : " Why don't you join us ?") I am perfectly willing to join anybody who will undertake to throw out any scheme that the Railway Department.....

Mr. President : Order, order The Honourable Member is not at all relevant in referring to this particular question on this motion.

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Sir, am I not in order in giving reasons for my opposition to the motion ?

Mr. President : The Honourable Member must oppose the motion on merits.

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : I am just giving the reasons why I oppose this grant. I am not prepared to go into the merits of the question at all, until I am assured that in future Muslim claims to railway appointments will not be ignored.

Mr. President : In that case the Honourable Member is not in order.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar (Madura and Ramnad cum Tinnevelly : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, to be candid, I will say at the outset that I neither support the Demand nor oppose it. I do not support it because my grievance is that it is not quite in the form in which it ought to have come up before this House, and I do not oppose it because I am not wholly dissatisfied with the merits of the separation scheme. I submit, Sir, in the first place that this ought not to have been presented to the House in the shape of a Demand for an insignificant sum of Rs. 12,000. The details of it are given on page 86 of this memorandum. It is proposed under this Demand that sanction is to be obtained from the House for Rs. 12,000 supplementary for the purpose of putting into operation the separation scheme when the Burma Railways will have been taken up by State management. The amount is very small, but the passing of this motion by this House really involves the fact that the House will once for all be committed to the question of permanent separation of Accounts from Audit on all Railways. That is seen fully from what occurs on page 20 of the memorandum. On page 20 a fuller scheme is detailed, of which the present scheme forms No. 2. It is proposed that the arrangements as detailed on page 20 will come into force when the House will have considered this question and passed the Demand and thereby committed themselves once for all to the permanent separation on all Railways of Accounts from Audit ; so that, this small item coming as it does as one of the four items detailed on page 20, I submit, ought not to have been presented to the House in the shape of a Supplementary Demand. If a Resolution had been tabled, as was done in 1925, when for the first time this experiment was thought of, it would have been more commendable ; and that for obvious reasons ; because I see on page 2 of the memorandum the full history of the scheme of 1925 is given. A Resolution was brought forward in the Assembly, and then after discussion of that Resolution, a Resolution was passed by the House in a modified form. Now, Sir, that presupposes that on a Resolution discussed in this House there was ample scope for Members of this House to suggest amendments to the original Resolution. But in the matter of this Demand that has been put before us now, we are not entitled to move amendments to this motion, so that the option that would otherwise lie with the House to move amendments to the Resolution is certainly lost by the presentation of this Demand. If on a previous occasion it was thought desirable to table a Resolution and accept amendments and modifications that were brought forward in this House, I do not see any reason why that straight course was deviated from in this particular instance now. That, Sir, is my first grievance.

My Honourable friend, Mr. Neogy, quoted two sentences from the observations of Sir Basil Blackett. I shall quote the next two sentences for an obvious purpose because it emphasises the point much more in detail than the first two sentences. I may first point out that when this separation scheme was originally started Sir Basil Blackett was not quite sure that it might eventually succeed, probably because he had seen apprehensions expressed ; that is why he spoke not in unqualified terms, but with this qualification :

" In this case this is also an experimental measure but the Resolution is brought forward because it does certainly commit the Government to go ahead with experiments in this particular direction and if successful "

it is a very big ' if '

" no doubt continuing in that direction."

In this connection, Sir, I find that my friend, Mr. Ranga Iyer, was a bit hard on my friend Mr. Neogy. He quoted for the elucidation of this House from paragraph 5 of the Auditor General's Report of the 7th August 1928. I would commend to the attention of my friend Mr. Ranga Iyer the observations of the Auditor General on the previous page—page 24. That is a distinct answer by the Auditor General to the details given in Annexure G of the Honourable the Financial Commissioner's letter where he detailed all the economies that he was able to effect and all the advantages which accrued from the working of the separation scheme. The Auditor General found it rather difficult to say that those advantages which accrued and the economies that were effected were solely attributable to the separation scheme. He says :

" The question then arises, how much the improvements, reforms and economies effected both by Accounts and by Audit may be said to be due to separation. This question seems to be both hypothetical and speculative, and it is extremely difficult, if not impossible, to answer it with any degree of accuracy."

Then, taking categorically the various improvements which the Financial Commissioner for Railways claims for the separation scheme, he observes as follows :

" Undoubtedly, the arrears could have been worked off without any separation of Audit from Accounts ; but possibly the closer association of accounts with the Administration under the separation scheme has enabled the former to obtain more readily from the executive information necessary to clear the arrears. Similarly, some of the other reforms, e.g., the earlier knowledge of, and better control over, expenditure could have been effected under the Divisional Scheme, even with a combined Divisional Audit and Accounts Office..... Reforms in the Stores Accounts and in the system of purchases did not necessarily require the Accounts Office to be under the Financial Commissioner."

Therefore, Sir, the very broad claims which the Financial Commissioner for Railways has made as being the result of the separation scheme have been doubted by the Auditor General ; and it is not an unqualified support as my friend, Mr. Ranga Iyer, thinks that the Auditor General gave to this scheme. Lower down, in paragraph 7 of his Report, the Auditor General mentions certain suggestions by way of modifying the proposed separation scheme and he concludes by saying that, if the separation scheme came to be a matter of fact and approved by this House eventually, he would make certain proposals by way of modifying the existing system :

" The scheme of audit obtaining on the East Indian Railway thus modified has been accepted as adequate for the other Railways in working out the staff required for the audit of their transactions."

Then he concludes in paragraph 16 as follows :

" It is unnecessary for me to elaborate my view on the subject at the present moment because it is obviously not a matter which can be settled before a decision should be arrived at on this important question of separation. If separation of Audit and Accounts is accepted as the policy for the Railways, it will then be in existence at least with regard both to the Railway and to the Army and these two branches combined may be regarded as of sufficient importance to justify the introduction now of a model scale of pay which may eventually be suitable for an Indian Audit Service if complete separation be effected throughout India."

So, Sir, the support given by the Auditor General to the separation scheme was not unqualified ; he suggested certain modifications in the light of which alone he thought the separation would be a success.

In passing I would refer to Annexure G in which my Honourable friend, the Financial Commissioner for Railways gives the details of several economies effected under the separation scheme. The last three paragraphs, Annexure G, I submit, afford amusing reading. Paragraph 20 reads thus :

" The Chief Electrical Engineer proposed to transfer his office together with the Workshop Accounts Staff (Electrical) from Jamalpur to Calcutta on the ground that at Jamalpur he was not in contact with the Agent and Heads of Departments. The Chief Accounts Officer pointed out that the transfer was not a matter of necessity, as the greater part of the work of the Chief Electrical Engineer related to the Divisions and that he was within easy reach of Calcutta, should he require to consult the Agents or Heads of Departments. The transfer was negatived by the Agent and heavy expenditure which the proposed transfer to Calcutta would have involved was avoided."

Now, this, Sir, is an instance of avoidance of expenditure because of the vigilance of the Accounting officers concerned.

[Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar.]

Then paragraph 21 relates to the proposed revision in scales of pay. This is how this paragraph reads :

" The Chief Operating Superintendent recommended that the scale of pay of the Train Examiner, Moghalsarai, should be altered from Rs. 300—20—400 to Rs. 500—25—550, stating that Moghalsarai was as important as Howrah."

The Chief Accounts Officer thought that that was not expedient, and the proposal of the Chief Operating Superintendent was accordingly not sanctioned, thus giving us a saving of about Rs. 1,800 per annum.

Then paragraph 22 relates to the proposed alteration in the scales of pay. That proposal again would have involved an expenditure of Rs. 2,500 per annum, and it has been avoided by the criticism offered by the Chief Accounts Officer.

Now, even if the claims made on behalf of the accounting staff that they are vigilant because of the pay they were receiving and if these also had to be detailed as part of the several advantages accruing from the separation scheme, I submit, as I said already, that these three items form only amusing reading. So that, my submission to the House is, that the objection is to the nature of the demand as it is made and that the Financial Commissioner did not prefer a Resolution to be tabled on this matter as was done previously. That he should have brought forward this matter in the shape of a Supplementary Demand is something which does not appeal to me, and I dare say it will not appeal to the House as a whole either. So far as the experiment is concerned, unless the matter is brought here in the shape of a Resolution, it is not possible to express our opinions on it as to the success or otherwise of the separation scheme, and if the Auditor General had so many reservations to be placed in his memorandum towards the adoption eventually of this scheme, I submit that through the making of this motion that this House should be committed to the broader and fuller separation scheme seems to be rather curious. As I said, for the reasons I have just stated I cannot make up my mind either to vote for or against the scheme.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru (Agra Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, before the Financial Commissioner replies, I should like to ask for information on a definite point. One of the main questions that this Assembly must consider in regard to the separation of Railway Accounts and Audit is the manner in which the men for the Railway Accounts Service are to be recruited. Now, the Standing Finance Committee for Railways went into this matter at its last meeting, and decided that the rules for the organization of the Railway Accounts Service and for the recruitment and promotion of the subordinate establishment including that portion of it employed in the Clearing House Accounts Office and their terms and conditions of services should be considered by them at a later meeting before they were promulgated. I have no doubt that these rules will be placed before the Standing Finance Committee, but I should like to know what the Government propose to do in the meanwhile. Do they propose to postpone the appointment of men to the new service till the rules for recruitment have been approved by the Standing Finance Committee ? It may be that there are some men already in Government service who can be employed in the new Accounts Service, but it is possible that after the appointment of these surplus men there may still remain a number of vacancies. Now, will these vacancies be filled up before the rules for the recruitment of the service have been framed, or will the appointments of new men be postponed till the rules have been approved by the Standing Finance Committee ? This, Sir, is an important point, and I believe on the proper reply to this question would depend the attitude of many of us in regard to the scheme placed before us by Government. The matter is one of considerable importance, as we know that the Accounts Service in the East Indian Railway has been manned in such a way as to cause considerable dissatisfaction. Now, the East Indian Railway was of course managed by a company and was taken over by Government only about three or four years ago, but Government themselves appointed a large number of men to the Account Service, and we want that the manner in which those men have been appointed should not be repeated this time. We have frequently had to point out that in regard to railway services the claims of pure Indians as a rule have been ignored. We should like to have an assurance that in recruiting the new service proper attention will be paid to the claims of Indians and that posts will not be filled up as they have been filled up, in connection with the Accounts Service on the East Indian Railway.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, this question has been the subject-matter of discussion on the floor of this House on previous occasions, but I will not imitate my friend Mr. Ranga Iyer who rather made a diversion to-day from the field of politics to finance and accounting, which I call a digression on his part. Sir, I would only ask my friend Mr. Ranga Iyer to read a chapter from the book which my leader has written " Unhappy India ". (Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : " What has that book to do with this ") , because therein he will find sufficient matter on Railways and how they drain the country which should convince him of the truth of what Mr. Neogy advocated.

Sir, this was an occasion promised to us by the Honourable Mr. Parsons during the last budget discussions when we could take up the discussion of the Report of Sir Arthur Dickinson. Sir, I do not want to state my views whether I accept the separation of Accounts from Audit. I find in this House opinions have changed as my friend Mr. Neogy has already said, and if on former occasions I always got up after Mr. Neogy to tilt my lance with those redoubtable champions of separation, like my friends Mr. Jamnadas Mehta and Mr. Shanmukham Chetty, on this subject, this time I am not going to do it. Even if there is any opposition from Mr. Neogy, or support from me to him, it will not help the matter, because I find that the general consensus of opinion in the House is to accept the Resolution that has been brought forward by my Honourable friend, Mr. Parsons.

Sir, I will not go in detail into the Report of Sir Arthur Dickinson in which various recommendations have been made to improve the management of the Railways, but whether those will improve the financial administration of the Railways is a point of which I am not yet convinced ; but it is going to serve an important purpose ; it is going to stop the promotion of Indian officers in the higher departments of accounting and engineering in the different Railways, and in that respect I want certain assurances in reply from the Honourable Member in charge of the Department.

Sir, during the last budget Session we discussed the question of the stores purchase policy of the Government of India, and we were assured by the Honourable the Commerce Member that he had no intention to centralise the stores purchase policy of the Railways, and that he was not going to carry out the recommendation of Sir Arthur Dickinson in that matter which was to the effect that the Railway Board should try to centralise the stores purchases of the Railways. I said at the time that I was dissatisfied with that particular recommendation and that policy should not be pursued. And in fact in this matter we are only helping the Honourable Mr. McWatters in the scope of his policy to give the Indian Stores Department a bigger share of purchase in India, and if he cannot get more orders from the Honourable Mr. Parsons or from the Honourable Sir George Rainy then it is his look out ; but he has our entire sympathy and support in this matter. The stores purchase policy of all Government departments should be to purchase through the Indian Stores Department in India. If that be the case, then orders which are passing through the Indian Stores Department, London, should come eventually through the Indian Stores Department situated at Delhi or Simla. But it is not only the stores purchase policy of the Railways but also the recruitment to posts like Controllers of Stores and Deputy Controllers of Stores about which I expressed my doubts last Session at Delhi. If the Department over which my Honourable friend, Mr. McWatters, has control has given us the understanding that they will try to Indianise that Department as much as possible, the Department of Stores Purchase over which my Honourable friend Mr. Parsons has full control has not yet done anything to Indianise the control, and when I read between the lines of Sir Arthur Dickinson's Report, I felt that there were certain underlying recommendations that those officers should be Europeans, and I think nobody on this side of the House would accept that implication.

Sir, then I come to the recommendations of the Dickinson Report on the recruitment of the higher accounting officers. In one of the paragraphs it has been recommended that every railway should have a Chief Accountant and there should be a Deputy Accountant who should be there to relieve him while he is away from India on leave. That very passage suggests that it was in Sir Arthur Dickinson's mind that the Chief Accountants on Railways should be always Europeans. I brought up the subject before the House last Session and my Honourable friend Mr. Parsons paid at the time the highest compliment to the Indian complement of Accounting Officers by saying that they are doing such magnificent work both in the Audit Department and the Finance Department. I did feel happy that that compliment was paid by my Honourable friend Mr. Parsons, but I find in paragraphs 358 and 359 certain recommendations that appear suspicious. It is said that four chartered accountants should be recruited from England for 5 years. And it further says that these four chartered Accountants will have the Director of Audit of the Railway Board as the Chairman and they shall form the Executive Officers of the Committee, the other members being called upon from time to time in a consultative capacity for control of Railway Accounts. Later on in paragraph 359 it says :

"At the end of the term of five years they should be entitled to six months' leave and should then be considered for selection to vacant posts of Chief or Deputy Chief Accountants."

Sir, that was my submission when I pointed out this fact to the House last Delhi Session. I again wish to emphasise the fact that if Sir Arthur

Dickinson wants chartered accountants who come from England he would naturally like them to get preference over Indian Accountant Officers as Chief Accountants and Chief Auditors of Railways and these Indian Accountant officers happen to be 75 per cent. or 80 per cent. of the present cadre. On the sly it is intended that there shall be chartered accountants recruited from England who will be eventually turned into Deputy Chief Accountants and Chief Accountants on the Railways. I do not know how the Standing Finance Committee, where we have got resolute champions like Mr. Jamnadas Mehta and Mr. Aney, gave their consent to this part of the Dickinson Report. (Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : "No, no.") While I accept this policy of separation—I have no other alternative but to accept the separation of Accounts from Audit—I will be no party to accepting this principle of fresh Europeanisation which I consider to be a vicious principle ; that European chartered accountants should be brought out and paid higher salaries at the commencement with a guarantee that they will be eventually turned into Chief Accountants and Deputy Chief Accountants is very hard on the present Indian Officers. When the present European Chief Accountants, if any, go on leave, they ought to be replaced by Indian officers. In the Public Accounts Committee in one of the memoranda I saw a certain recommendation from the Auditor General which may not have been accepted.....

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : On a point of order, Sir. Is the Honourable Member relevant in raising the question of Indianisation ?

Mr. B. Das : Sir, as I was mentioning, in the Public Accounts Committee in the report of the Auditor General which was submitted to us there were certain recommendations by the Auditor General to pay Rs. 250 extra salary to the chartered accountants from England. These are heaven-born accountants ! They are different from the very specialised accountant officers which we have got in the Audit Department of the Government of India and the very specialised Finance Department we have got under the Government of India. I believe that those recommedations have been accepted by the Government of India. (Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : "No.") But this makes me feel that there is always in the minds of the Auditor General or of my friend Mr. Parsons an idea that European recruited chartered accountants have got some kind of divine knowledge. I find in paragraph 359 :

"The four chartered accountants to be appointed should have at least five years' experience in actual accounting work after passing their final examinations; should be experienced in the installation of new systems; should be familiar with mechanised accounting methods...."

It does not say that they should have previous training in railway accounting in England. Had Sir Arthur Dickinson said that, I should have accepted it as a brilliant suggestion. But he simply says that a training in an office of a chartered Accountant in Glasgow or London would suit his purpose. I say this with all the emphasis at my command that Indian accountants and auditors that are now occupying high positions in Government Departments are more efficient than these young chartered accountants that may be recruited in England. I do hope no more Europeanisation will be done in the higher Accounts Services. We find that is the only department where the Indians can hold their heads high and the work they are doing is of exceptional merit, and where they have established a high reputation and a high standard because there have been no racial discriminations in the past.

[Mr. B. Das.]

Sir, I come to the next paragraph 360. It says that there should be two sections—a Planning and Progressing Section as well as a detailed system of Cost Accounts. For the former section they want engineer accountants.....

Mr. President : Order, order. I cannot allow the Honourable Member to go on with these details. I think Maulvi Matin Chaudhury was quite right in raising a point of order. The Honourable Member was irrelevant. I did not stop him in the hope that the Honourable Member would himself realise that he was not talking to the point.

Mr. B. Das : May I point out, Sir, that an assurance was given to us that we could discuss this Report of Sir Arthur Dickinson when Government brought up a Supplementary demand before the House on the separation of Audit and Accounts ?

Mr. President : Honourable Members should have asked for a day.

Mr. B. Das : I cannot ask for a day now....

Mr. President : The Chair is very sorry.

Mr. B. Das : I bow to your ruling, Sir. There is my suspicion on the point of further Europeanisation. It applies to all the Departments whether it be the Accounts Department, or the Stores Department, or the Engineering Department. I want Indians to get their full share in every Department. My Honourable friend, Mr. Parsons, said that if this House sanctions the separation of Audit and Accounts he will introduce a system of recruitment by examination for the higher and lower services of accountants. I quite welcome that, because somehow or other there is a suspicion in our minds that the accountants in the lower grades will be too much oppressed by the departmental officials who occasionally happen to belong to the same profession as myself. They are engineers, they are transportation officers and the poor accountants drawing Rs. 60 or 100 will have to obey them ; and at times accounts are falsified or records destroyed. My Honourable friend Mr. Parsons assured us that they will be completely separated from executive control and will be under the Chief Accountant of a Railway who will be directly under the Financial Commissioner. I feel quite happy over that assurance, and I feel happy that the recruitment will be by means of a system of examination where every body will be recruited on his own merit. I do hope that when that recruitment takes place, every province will have a chance to supply its own quota of staff, because the Railways happen to run in every province and recruitment of the staff that is engaged in a particular province ought to be from that province.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, there is a good deal of force in the complaint of my Honourable friend, Mr. Sesha Ayyangar, that this very important question should have been brought in the form of a Supplementary Demand for Grant instead of in the form of a proper Resolution for adoption or rejection by this House. The Demand presumes that the proposed reform itself has been accepted by the House and that only the necessary money remains to be voted. During the four days that we discussed this question in the Railway Standing Finance Committee, I was under the impression that a Resolution would be brought forward before the House and that if that was adopted, a Demand for Grant would follow. And I remained under that impression till the meeting dissolved. It was later pointed out to me that it was not intended to bring forward a Resolution and that the question could be discussed by a cut. I do feel, Sir, that this is somewhat irregular ; the reform which is now sought to be made permanent and extended was an experiment and it had to be confirmed by the House before money for its extension could be demanded ; what is more, Sir, the part of it, relating to the Clearing House has never been brought before this House in a formal manner and has never been accepted by the House after a regular debate. I therefore submit, Sir, that the method adopted for bringing this question before the Assembly in the form of a Supplementary Demand for a Grant is, to say the least, somewhat irregular. But I am afraid, Sir, that we are helpless in the matter and the only remedy available to us is the drastic one of refusing this grant ; this, Sir, I am not willing to do, because I have identified myself with the principle of the reform that is proposed.

Having made this protest, I must come to the main point, namely, the question that is before the House. There was in 1925 a great deal of difference of opinion as to whether the separation of Audit from Accounts was an administrative change in the right direction. Although I myself was fully convinced of the necessity and the desirability of the reform, I was a good deal disappointed to find that a very important section in the House was not convinced of its wisdom. Ever since then I have thought long and thought deeply over this question and I find, Sir, that the real reason for the difference of opinion arises from the point of view from which you look at the function of accounting in railway business. You do not want in the Railways a mere continuation of a system based on the rigid principle of audit and accounts that prevails in the other departments of Government where accounts and audit are merely concerned with budgeting, but the Railways are a business proposition first and only secondarily concerned with the budget ; and like every other business proposition must keep accounts. Also the Railways must have audit, but the function of auditing in a department of Government is mostly, if not, exclusively financial rectitude and financial propriety. These are the only two important aspects of accounting and auditing in a Government department, but in a business concern, though you start with financial rectitude and financial propriety, you do not stop there. You are not satisfied simply because all the receipts that should have come in have come in. You do not feel that your business is going on well simply because the expenditure has been properly checked. That is all right and necessary, but that is not all. When you are conducting a business, your main object should be to see day after day how the business is going on. Your accounts should not merely be correct, but through the accounts you should be able to chase every single rupee that you spend to its ultimate destination and see what purpose it has served. That is not possible in the combined system of railway audit and accounts. This has been again and again pointed out by Sir William Acworth and Sir Arthur Dickinson in a cogent and convincing manner. I think, Sir, that no one who has ever had any connection with a commercial concern will doubt for a single moment that it is the function of the accountant to be the handmaid of the head of that business. He must be available on every occasion to the head or the manager to point out to him how the business runs, whether the expenditure that has been sanctioned is paying its way, whether if more expenditure is incurred better results will follow, whether in a certain direction economy can be accomplished or whether it cannot be and so on. This can only be done if the accountant works with the manager of the business in close and constant association. Under the old system, as has been pointed out, that was an impossibility. The old system had a definite purpose and indeed served that purpose very well, namely, the checking of expenditure and the seeing that all the receipts were accounted for. But as I have said, that should not be the whole function of Accounts in the Railways. However efficient the combined system may be, it cannot prevent the insolvency of the business, because it is designed more as a brake and not as a motive power. It is only the proposed reform which can tell you at any given moment whether your business is flourishing or otherwise and what its prospects are and how they can be improved. Therefore, Sir, the separation of Audit from Accounts must now be taken as having been finally decided by the very convincing reports of two great experts and by the ordinary experience of all business houses. And I hope that in other commercial departments of Government also the separation of Audit from Accounts will be undertaken. We should confirm this experiment on the East Indian Railway and extend it to all other State Railways.

Now, Sir, a great deal has been said to-day about the opinion of the Auditor General on this question. I find that every one has quoted what suited him most. My Honourable friend Mr. Neogy quoted those portions which suited his side of the argument. My Honourable friend Mr. Ranga Iyer quoted that portion which really was opposed to Mr. Neogy. The Honourable the Financial Commissioner satisfied himself by quoting a certain passage relative only to one aspect of the case. But the report of the Auditor General on this matter has to be read as a whole, and any one who fully reads the report of Sir Frederic Guantlett on this question must rise with the sure conviction that that very able and conscientious officer is whole-heartedly identified with the proposal for separation. Sir Frederic Gauntlett in reviewing the memorandum of the Financial Commissioner has stated in what circumstances he received the report, in what circumstances he had to check it ; and when he says that he has not verified particular figures he only means, as I have an assurance from the Financial Commissioner and an assurance from Mr. Jukes, that where there is a figure of say 10,28,000, for instance, he is not clear whether it should be 10,27,000 or 10,29,000, but that on the whole the figure is approximately correct. We have been assured by Mr. Jukes that that is the point of view from which the Auditor General has criticised the memorandum. Then, Sir, the Auditor General also deals with the question whether certain reforms and economies which are claimed in this memorandum could or could not have been effected without the separation. He says that they could have been accomplished in many cases ; but after making allowance for that and for the shortness of the notice under which he had to consider this memorandum, and after stating that he had not sufficient opportunity to verify some figures, Sir Frederic Gauntlett says :

"All that is however in theory only. In practice it is really impossible to speculate how much of the work, both on the side of accounts as well as audit, would actually have been effected without the separation. The fact remains that nothing like the same measure of improvements, reforms and economies have been effected in the past by the combined audit and accounts system."

That is a most important statement. Again, Sir, he says that "a strong point in favour of the separation is all that has been accomplished in a short space of time". Sir, both as regards the volume and the extent of reform and economies and the time within which the reforms and economies have been accomplished the Auditor General is in favour of the separation. Finally, he comes to the conclusion which has been quoted by my Honourable friend Mr. Ranga Iyer. He says :

"I feel no hesitation in recommending that the experiment on the separation of audit from accounts on the East Indian Railway be accepted as a success and that it be adopted as a permanent measure and extended to other railways."

That is the final advice which Sir Frederic Gauntlett gives after reviewing the memorandum of the Financial Commissioner.

Then, Sir, the House will be interested to know that we had the benefit of the presence in the meeting of the Railway Finance Committee, where we discussed the matter for four days even including a Sunday, of Mr. Jukes and Mr. M. K. Mitra, and Mr. B. N. Mitra. I asked them again and again and I was given to understand by all these experienced officers that whatever their apprehensions, whatever their hesitation three years ago, whatever their misgivings when the reform was first adopted, they have been convinced by the experience of the last three years that it is superior to the method of the combined Accounts and Audit. This opinion is important, because it comes from people who have worked the old combined system. In 1925 when we were first considering the separation in the East Indian Railway, Mr. M. K. Mitra had submitted a report in which he asked himself two questions, one was whether with the combined Audit and Accounts the same reforms could not be accomplished ; at that time he stated that they could be accomplished. Now, this time after three years, I asked Mr. Mitra :

"In view of the observations that you made in 1925, will you kindly give us your frank view in the matter? Will you still maintain what you said in 1925?"

And the House will be glad to know that Mr. M. K. Mitra told me that he was prepared to modify his statement made in 1925, namely, that the same reforms could be accomplished under the combined system as under the separate system. The very people from whom we are taking over this business are all combined in favour of the reform and therefore whether on the question of principle as a business proposition, whether in the matter of opinion of people who are qualified to speak on it, and, lastly, as to results, on all these three tests, the experiment stands vindicated and we are all unanimous for continuing and extending it. (Applause.) There is, Sir, in one of the Schedules attached to the memorandum a whole list of economies that have been accomplished, effected and achieved. Some of them are not of a character which could be accepted by me without reservation. Some contractors, for instance, have been compelled to make some reduction in their bills. A contractor gives up Rs. 500 here, and another Rs. 700 there, but probably in consideration of the contractors giving up small amounts, they got some Rs. 3,000 elsewhere. Therefore, I am afraid, some of these economies are perhaps for the purpose of stage management and not real economies of the kind that we would accept. But making allowance for all that, if one reads the whole Schedule G from beginning to end, it is so varied that it touches every Department on the East Indian Railway ; it touches every railway activity that it can possibly do. It cannot be that all these economies would be faked up in all departments for the purpose of dressing this report. Therefore with ordinary common sense I think we will have to accept these economies as properly accomplished.

[Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta.]

Sir, while I feel that the memorandum of the Financial Commissioner is somewhat too optimistic in tone, it is a very able and exhaustive document and does credit to its author : we are greatly indebted to the writer of this memorandum—Mr. Hayman—for the insight that we got into the working of the experiment on the East Indian Railway. (Applause.) Three years ago Mr. Hayman's appointment to the Railway Board was sanctioned by us and I am sorry.....

Mr. President : Order, order. That is hardly relevant.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Sir, I am regretting that Mr. Hayman should, since the separation, have been the subject of a good deal of criticism with regard to appointments and disappointments ; I think, Sir, that three-fourths of the opposition, I was inclined to say, the whole of the opposition to separation is the result of the bitterness and disappointment caused by supersession, favouritism and jobbery, real or imaginary. There is a great deal of complaint on the East Indian Railway, since this experiment was inaugurated, in regard to the supersession of people, preferments to incompetent people, and injustice to competent people. I am not therefore surprised that this experiment was viewed with suspicion by a large number of people. I have had a little experience of making appointments in the Bombay Corporation and I know that for one man who is appointed there are dozens who are disappointed. The same may be the case in regard to Mr. Hayman's critics, but I wish him to avoid Colonel Gidney, if he wants to make himself a success and wishes to be trusted.

Mr. President : Order, order. These observations are not at all relevant.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : If you refer to the Schedule.....

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : With great respect I would draw your attention to the Schedule, which makes my observations relevant and even necessary.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member may table a separate Resolution if he wishes to have a discussion regarding the appointments and disappointments of Mr. Hayman.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : The Chair has given this ruling twice or thrice.

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Very well, I will not dwell upon it. Sir, the Standing Finance Committee for Railways, as will be seen from its report, has taken care that in future there will be the least occasion for the play of the personal factor in making appointments and that the system of recruitment shall be as automatic as the Railway Finance Committee can make it. Honourable Members who might be inclined to mistrust the separation on account of the complaints of the last three years will kindly read this part of the Standing Finance Committee's observations on the memorandum. If they have anything to say by way of criticism or suggestion that will make the new system as automatic and as little liable to the play of the personal factor as possible, the Committee will be only too glad to incorporate in the rules whatever suggestions are found practicable. The Railway Standing Finance Committee has not sanctioned the schedule of recruitment for the superior and subordinate services, as the department wanted it to do. It has taken care that all the rules shall be considered by it before they are promulgated. There is no likelihood, as my Honourable friend Mr. Das is afraid, of foreigners being imported from abroad in the Railway Accounts Service. Qualified Indians who pass the test of the Public Service Commission will be entitled to reach practically the highest ladder in the Railway Accounts Service as is stated in the Schedules.

Sir, there is one thing in connection with this question which the House has perhaps not noticed, and that is the question of the Clearing House. That was not in the original Resolution of 1925. The Clearing House Office, for settling the accounts of foreign traffic of State Railways, was started in April 1926, or was put into force in April 1926, though sanctioned in December 1925, and if the House passes this Demand, the House will thereby also give its sanction not merely to the separation of Audit and Accounts of all State Railways, but also to the confirmation of the Railway Clearing House at Delhi for foreign traffic of State Railways. Now, Sir, happily so far as the local traffic of these Railways is concerned, it is not included in this demand. Sir, as I told you, this reform was not sanctioned by the Assembly. I therefore pleaded before the Standing Finance Committee that the Clearing House office should not be made permanent along with the separation of Audit and Accounts. Secondly, we have had only brief experience of its working and, thirdly, that a host of complaints against the Clearing House has been received during the last eighteen months or more from various classes of people. Some of them at any rate have not a good word to say about the Clearing House. In view of these things, I pleaded before the Standing Finance Committee that this reform should not be made permanent side by side with the separation of Audit and Accounts ; that it should for the present be allowed to go on for some time until mature consideration enables us to make up our mind one way or the other. But happily or unhappily, I was the only dissentient and after reconsidering my position I resolved not to give any cut on that account but to conduct myself with warning the House that they are taking grave risks in accepting it. The complaints received are not merely from disgruntled employees, but one at any rate is from a very responsible gentleman, a member of the Bombay Legislative Council, a Labour leader of, shall I say, not too advanced a type, an advocate of the Bombay High Court, Mr. S. C. Joshi, M.A., LL.B. He wrote a letter to me on the eve of the discussion on the Railway Clearing House in which he gave a very grave warning to the Committee. I read out that letter to the Committee, and I think it is my duty to tell the House of the risks that they are taking if they will agree also to the confirmation of the Clearing Office. Mr. S. C. Joshi says that the work of the Clearing House Office is inaccurate. He says :

> "We know it full well that the apportionment made by the Clearing House Office is inaccurate and generally against the conference association rules."

Now, Sir, it is a grave charge, secondly, in spite of all bandobust, says Mr. Joshi, there is a good deal of work left in arrears in the Clearing Accounts Office. The different Railways who have to do something with the Clearing House have complained that they do not get the dues which are rightly theirs sometimes for six months. Then, the third complaint of Mr. Joshi is that there is no real economy in the Clearing Office as was claimed on its behalf when it was formulated; and, finally, Mr. Joshi warns the Finance Committee that the case in favour of the Clearing House is onesided and that, those who are opposed to it have had no opportunity to put the other side of the question before it, and therefore, according to Mr. Joshi before a regular and independent enquiry into the success or otherwise of the Clearing House is made, the Assembly would be taking grave risks in confirming it. Sir, that letter I read out before the Committee and the Committee also seriously considered it. The Committee thought it was not right to delay the reform simply for the sake of Mr. Joshi's complaints and Mr. Jukes, on behalf of the Auditor-General, entered a severe protest against the vagueness of the serious charges of Mr. Joshi. The Committee gave patient attention to Mr. Joshi's letter, but they finally decided that the reform should not be delayed while agreeing that Mr. Joshi's complaints should be inquired into. As it happened Mr. Joshi was in Simla the same day, only we didn't know that; but now, Sir, Mr. Joshi has written to me that he is prepared to substantiate every charge he has made against the Clearing House Office. I trust that the Financial Commissioner will give Mr. Joshi ample opportunity to substantiate his complaints and if they are well-founded to set them right.

[Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta.]

Lastly, in commending this demand to the House I will read a few lines from the report of Sir A. Dickinson where he makes the following observations regarding the present combined system:

"Nothing can be so deadening to the initiative and enterprise of a competent officer as a stiff code outside the limitations of which he cannot proceed in the minutest particular. One accounts officer has reported to me that on taking up his duties on a certain Railway he was confronted with 35 volumes of codes and manuals all of which he was expected to absorb."

Now, Sir, this statement of Sir A. Dickinson is a sufficient agreement against the combined system; it shows that under the present system before an accounts officer can become efficient in the discharge of his duties he has got to master 35 codes and manuals. I think, Sir, even if Aristotle were brought to life again, he could not do that; much less can an accounts officer on Indian Railways. Separation is therefore the right remedy.

Sir, I commend this reform to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons (Financial Commissioner, Railways): Sir, the support which I have been lucky enough to get for these proposals in their general aspects from the other side of the House makes it unnecessary for me to detain Honourable Members long in reply. And I am particularly glad of it, because I understand that there are a good many Members who would like to gain experience of the exploits of the East Indian Railway in another and more exciting field than that of accounts.

There are however one or two points with which I think I had better deal. First of all, a complaint has been made by several Members—Mr. Jamnadas Mehta, Mr. Sesha Ayyangar and I think Mr. Neogy—that these proposals have been brought before the House in the form of a Demand for a Supplementary grant instead of by a Resolution. I admit, Sir, that that objection did not occur to me until it was mentioned by Mr. Jamnadas Mehta to me after our meetings in the Standing Finance Committee. When I discovered that though these proposals are likely to lead to a considerable saving eventually we should want Rs. 12,000 more this year, I looked up the rules about Supplementary Grants and I discovered that it is definitely laid down in Rule 49, Standing Order 72, that an estimate shall be presented to the Assembly for a supplementary or additional grant when the need arises in the current year for expenditure for which the vote of the Assembly is necessary upon some new service not provided in the Budget. The course I took was, therefore, that prescribed by the Standing Orders and I also think it is fairly clear from the discussion which we have had that the procedure which I have adopted has not in any way prejudiced Honourable Members in making their comments on these proposals. I should however have been quite prepared to put forward a Resolution, had I thought earlier that there would be any desire for that course to be adopted.

I will now turn to my Honourable friend Mr. Neogy. His first complaint against me was that it was inconvenient that this motion was not brought forward earlier in the Session. I confess that I have a suspicion that there would never come an occasion on which Mr. Neogy would feel that such a motion was convenient. Nor of course did it rest with me that the Session has not lasted longer, though I have an idea that by his vote yesterday he could have obtained the prolongation of it which he apparently desires. Anyhow I tabled the motion as early as possible.

I think, Sir, that Mr. Jamnadas Mehta has sufficiently answered the point about what the Auditor General's view of these proposals actually is. My own view is that which has been recorded by the Standing Finance Committee, who have, I think, given a reasoned exposition of what has been done under the separation of accounts and audit on the East Indian Railway and what remains, as I admit much remains, to be done. Mr. Neogy mentioned that he feared that under the proposed system audit would be less independent than it is now. I should like quite definitely to rebut that suggestion, because the Auditor General and the Railway Board are extremely anxious that audit should be independent and it is very largely because we consider that if audit is separated from accounts it will be more independent that we have put forward these proposals to the House. Mr. Neogy also challenged the reliability of the estimates of savings that we have given: they amount to Rs. 1,97,000 on establishment alone. When the Auditor General wrote his minute, he was not in a position to state definitely that he had accepted this estimate. His minute was dated the 7th August, 1928. Since that time, this estimate has been exhaustively examined by the Auditor General and his officers and I understand that it is now accepted by him as being as reasonable an estimate of what the savings are likely to be as any one can at present give. Mr. Neogy also expressed a fear that the scales of pay which we have proposed may prove to be too low and that even though at the moment we may be able to get these savings, in the future we shall have to raise the scales of pay. I should like to refer him to a remark in the Auditor General's minute from which it may be surmised that in his opinion it is more likely that he will be able to reduce the scales of pay in the Indian Audit Service than that it will be necessary to raise the scales of pay for the Railway Accounts Service. In paragraph 16 of his minute he says :

" I think a point which requires mature consideration is whether it is desirable to retain for the Indian Audit Service of the future the existing scales of pay of the Indian Audit and Accounts Service."

I should like to turn now, Sir, to the quite definite questions that were put to me by Mr. Kunzru and also to the points raised by Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury and Mr. Das. Mr. Kunzru asked me what we were going to do with regard to vacancies which may occur before the rules for recruitment have been framed. I had better perhaps take the staff of the new Railway Accounts Service in three parts, officers, higher subordinates—accountants and so on—and clerks. With regard to officers, I am not anticipating that we shall have any vacancies to fill by outside recruitment, at any rate at present and until the rules have been framed and settled with the Standing Finance Committee for Railways, because I think we shall be able to obtain all the men we want either by loan from the Indian Audit and Accounts Service or by the promotion of suitable subordinates in that service or in the existing Railway Accounts Service. I see no reason to anticipate that any vacancies will occur before these rules have been settled with regard to officers, especially as we shall have to bring in the separation gradually, and until next April probably we shall only have to deal with the Burma Railways.

I will now go to the other end of the scale. With regard to clerks, I cannot say definitely that no appointments will be made until these rules have been passed, though I do not think it very likely that more than a few in any case will be so made. What we propose to do is to make temporary promotions from the existing establishments in our accounting offices and only to recruit on a temporary basis in the vacancies that may occur until the new rules have been passed. When the rules have been passed, our idea is to have a competitive examination for all clerks entering the various offices. In that way, I think we should get rid of any complaints, whether justified or unjustified, that favouritism has been shown in making these appointments. And it is here that the point made by my friend Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury comes in. When we hold those examinations it is our intention to reserve one-third of the vacancies for the redress of communal inequalities in these offices ; and if, as is the case at present, certain communities are not well represented in these offices, because they were not well represented in those offices from which our staff has been obtained, then the redress of these communal inequalities will be carried out through this one-third of the vacancies being reserved for them, irrespective of the fact that certain members of those communities may succeed in obtaining a certain number of the places in the remaining two-thirds which will be filled by competition. That is to say, in deciding how to fill one-third of the vacancies we shall look at the composition of the office as a whole—it may be the Clearing Accounts Office or the East Indian Railway Accounts Office—and not merely at the numbers of the various communities who happen to get in at an individual examination. I hope I have made myself clear.....

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum (North West Frontier Province : Nominated Non-Official) : What about recruitment in the other offices ? There the deficiency caused by the transfers might have been made good by this one-third.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Sir, so far as the offices at present under me are concerned, since they have come under me—I am referring of course particularly to the Clearing Accounts Office at the moment—there has been quite considerable Muhammadan recruitment.

The Revd. J. C. Chaterjee (Nominated : Indian Christians) : May I ask the Honourable Member to say whether the term " Minority Community " will only refer to the Muhammadan community or to others as well ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I have used the pharases I have used advisedly, and the term " minority community " does not refer to one community only.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Do we want accountants or religions in the Railway Accounts Service ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I have so far dealt with clerks ; I will now deal with accountants. These will ordinarily be taken from clerks who have passed the accountants' examination which will, I expect, be exactly the same as the examination for which clerks under the Auditor General now sit. The actual details have not been worked out.

I hope I have now explained exactly how we propose to man these offices and I should like to make one point clear. We have no idea of bringing in recruits from outside India to fill any of these posts, and the particular recommendation of Sir Arthur Dickinson to which, I think, Mr. B. Das referred, is one which has not been accepted by Government.

There is only one more matter to which I want to allude, and that is in connection with what my friend Mr. Jamnadas Mehta said about whether we should make the Clearing Accounts Office permanent now. We have always been very glad to receive the support we have got from Mr. Jamnadas over these separation proposals, and though I cannot admit that the working of the Clearing Accounts Office has been bad,—in fact, I gave figures the other day to show that it has been extremely good,—I am quite prepared to investigate complaints made by a responsible person if they are substantiated by definite facts and figures. The real thing in regard to the Clearing Accounts Office is that it is impossible to remove the various grievances of the clerks there until the office is made permanent and we can decide how they should be placed, until we know how many there are going to be permanently and for how many we should build accommodation. That is the point I made in my opening speech, and that is really the reason at the back of my mind for wanting the House to agree now to making the Clearing Accounts Office a permanent institution.

Sir, I have done. I trust the House will accept this motion.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 12,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges which will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1929, in respect of ' Audit '."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Ten Minutes to Three of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Ten Minutes to Three of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

AMENDMENTS TO THE STANDING ORDERS.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar (Tangore cum Trichinopoly : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I beg to move that the amendments to the Standing Orders, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration.

Honourable Members are aware that at the beginning of last year I brought forward a certain number of amendments to the Standing Orders and moved for leave to introduce, which was unopposed. Thereupon, according to the procedure of the House, a Select Committee was elected by proportional votes, which sat in February and March last year and produced a Report which was submitted to the House in March last. Since that time, these amendments to the Standing Orders have been coming on the agenda of both official and non-official business, but apparently, by some unknown convention of this House, amendments to Standing Orders are always put last on the list and usually on the last of the days that are available for the House to consider them. I do not know why it should be so, why the House should be so indifferent to the improvement of its practice and procedure, but apparently that is the system which is in vogue. I hope, Sir, that, as a result of the amendments which I now propose, it will be possible for us to improve our practice and procedure.

I do not want to take up the time of the House at this fag end of the Session by making any detailed speech upon the actual amendments which have been recommended by the Select Committee. I may say at once that the object of all these amendments is not merely to improve the present procedure, not merely to rectify some of the defects which were noticed, but also to increase the Assembly's usefulness as a legislative assembly which desires to assist the Government in carrying on the government of this country in a manner responsible to the representatives of the people. So far as that is concerned, I consider that, even within the very serious limitations which have been imposed upon us by the Act and by the Indian Legislative Rules, by which the Governor General in Council has such a great voice in controlling the practice and procedure of this House, it is possible within the limits imposed upon us to improve our practice and procedure, so that this House may do very much more useful work on behalf of the people as their representatives in this House than we have been able to do so far. The main improvement which I want to suggest is that, so far as this House is concerned, it has not sufficient time or opportunity to bring forward matters of public interest for discussion in this House, and in that respect we are at a serious disadvantage as compared with other Parliamentary assemblies in the world. So far as the parallel of British Parliamentary procedure is concerned, it may be technically right that in England the Ministry has much control over the business of the House. But as the Ministry represents the House, as the representatives of the people have a voice in the making of the Ministry, that Ministry is controlled by the Legislature in a manner very much more thorough than it can ever be in this House. Therefore, that parallel will not hold good. But even otherwise, even from the point of view of the fact that in England naturally on account of the responsible character of the Ministry the business of the House there is more controlled by the Ministry than here, even then, I say that in this House we do not get the facilities which are given in Parliament to Honourable Members who are private Members as well as Members belonging to the different parties. The manner in which the House of Commons gives facilities to the House to discuss the administration, to criticise the Government and to bring votes of censure on or votes of no-confidence in the Government in the House is by four or five very definitely ascertained ways by means of conventions. First of all, they have got a debate on the Address. The King's Speech gives an indication of the policy of His Majesty's Government, and upon that immediately a debate is initiated over the whole policy of the Government and that is carried on for days on end in Parliament.

That is one step. The other step is the debate on the several adjournments of the House that take place from time to time, on the adjournment for Easter, on the adjournment for Christmas and on the adjournment for Whitsuntide. On every motion for the adjournment of the House, general debates are instituted which give an opportunity to the House to discuss various questions dealing with the executive government of the country. But the most important motions on which the House of Commons is able to get every matter of importance in the administration of the country discussed in the House is by means of motions in the Committee of Supply and the Committee of Ways and Means. In England these Committees are more or less perpetually in Session during the whole of the Sessions of Parliament throughout the year and as they are Committees various motions are brought forward under the various votes which come up for discussion in the House of Commons. Then there is of course the opportunity by way of moving the adjournment of the House on matters of urgent public importance. If you compare with that what we have in this country, I say that the power that has been conferred upon us is extremely limited. Under the rules the Governor General has got the power to allot certain specific days for the transaction of non-official business, that is, Resolutions and Bills. As a matter of fact motions which can be brought forward other than by way of Resolutions were completely ignored until recently. They discovered it apparently after I gave notice of motions to amend the Standing Orders. In 1926, the Government published certain amendments to the Indian Legislative Rules by means of which motions other than Resolutions have been allowed to be brought forward under very serious limitations. Then we have no debate on the Address. The number of days allotted for non-official business is generally not more than 6 from January to March, in any case not more than 8 at the maximum, and not more than 3 or 6 in the Simla Session. Therefore we have very little opportunity as non-officials to bring forward questions of importance.

* Speech not corrected by the Honourable Member.

[Mr. A. Rangaswamy Iyengar.]

So far as Government business is concerned, Government business here is not carried on in the same way as it is carried on in England by means of the Committee of Supply and the Committee of Ways and Means It is carried on by means of Bills and Supplementary Grants and things like that. I admit that so far as the power of discussing the administration is concerned, we have been given the power by means of the procedure adopted since 1921 to discuss questions of administration during the time of the budget grants and also to some extent during the discussion of the Finance Bill. The total number of days that have so far been allotted for the discussion of these grants is six days and if you take the two days that are allotted for the discussion of the Railway Grants, not more than 8 days are allotted to non-official Members for discussing the administration ; and taking these days in addition to the days allotted for Resolutions, there is in comparison to the state of things in England very little time within which we are in a position to discuss the administration of the Government of this country. Therefore, my object in bringing this motion is to improve matters in this respect. In the first place, as Honourable Members will recollect, on some days official business takes only five minutes. We come here most ceremoniously, sit for five minutes, move that the Bills be circulated and then the rest of the day is wasted so far as we are concerned.

Mr. President : You can say all these things when speaking on the amendments.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : I do not want to detain the House at this stage. The object of my proposing these amendments is to allow this House to use the full time at its disposal when all of us are here for the transaction of the business of the country ; to allow also that on days which are not appropriated to Government business we should be in a position to appropriate those days through your discretion, Sir, to discuss business brought forward by non-officials when official business is not brought forward. We also desire, Sir, that we should have the right to move an address upon the speeches with which His Excellency the Viceroy usually opens this House, when he takes occasion to comment on various administrative measures or to lay down various lines of policy.

There are sundry other amendments, Sir, on which I do not want to take up the time of the House now. If and when they are put forward I shall have occasion to explain why those amendments are sought to be made. I am sure the whole House will agree with me that the object of the amendments is one which should commend itself to every one in this House. I am glad to say that the official Members agreed with me that more facilities should be given, although they differed as to the detailed processes by which it should be done. I do not want to take up more time of the House and I move that the amendment of the Standing Orders be taken into consideration.

*Mr. C. Duraiswamy Aiyangar (Madras ceded districts and Chittoor : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to make a motion which I am sure will please every one in this House though it is perhaps contrary to the general practice. It is rarely that we come to a unanimous agreement about anything, but I am certain that the motion I am now going to make will be so pleasing that every one will give his vote for it. I have also had as a co-sharer something to do with the motion about the amendment of the Standing Orders and therefore would like to subtract a little of the ego of Mr. Rangaswami Iyengar and put in my own ego. I move, Sir :

"That the further consideration of this motion be adjourned to the Delhi Session."

I am sure Members will feel considerably relieved after the great tension of the work we have been doing if this debate is taken over to the Delhi Session.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That the further consideration of this motion be adjourned to the Delhi Session."

The motion was adopted.

STATEMENT BY MR. PRESIDENT REGARDING HIS VISITS TO PROVINCIAL COUNCILS.

Mr. President : There is no other business before the House this Session. There are two outstanding matters which the Chair has got to dispose of. One is in regard to certain questions addressed by Honourable Members to the Chair. I make my statement as promised.

In pursuance of a promise I made the other day, I propose to make a statement in connection with a large number of interpellations from some Honourable Members questioning the propriety of certain criticisms and attacks against the President of the Assembly which had appeared in a certain newspaper some days back in commenting upon his recent visits to some of the Provincial Councils. I had also received a notice of motion from Mr. B. Das asking this House to place on record its severest condemnation of those attacks. I have recently expressed the view that it is the inherent right of the Assembly to condemn by a specific motion any attack made against itself or its President. At the same time I am clearly of opinion that such a procedure should not be resorted to except in very exceptional circumstances, and I would appeal to the House particularly in the light of what has happened since these notices to leave the matter there, and not to pursue it any further. The House will also permit me in this connection to draw its attention to a matter of procedure in regard to notices and interpellations addressed to the President. It is a well established rule of practice in the House of Commons that questions may be publicly addressed to the Speaker regarding matters of procedure and privileges of the House, but it is not permissible to give notices of such enquiries and have them printed on the Notice Paper in the same manner as questions addressed to Ministers. My predecessor had followed that rule, and I propose to do the same. It goes into a controversy is wholly incompatible with the decorum of the proceedings of this House, and derogatory to the dignity of the Chair ; such a procedure must, therefore, be discouraged and deprecated.

[Mr. President.]

May I take this opportunity of explaining to the House the actual ts and the exact position in regard to the visits of the President of Assembly to the Provincial Councils ? This practice has not been ed by me. The House is fully aware that it has been in vogue since the inception of the present Reforms and that it was not initiated at the instance or on the suggestion of the President himself. In recommending the appointment of the first President, the Joint Parliamentary Committee which dealt with the Reform Bill of 1919 observed :

" He should be the guide and adviser of the Presidents of the Provincial Councils, and he should be chosen with a view to the influence which it is hoped he would have on the whole history of the Parliamentary procedure in India."

To attain this end, very soon after his appointment as the President of the Assembly, my distinguished predecessor, Sir Frederick Whyte, undertook a tour visiting several provinces in July and August 1921. It will interest the House to know in his own words the reason why he undertook that tour. In reply to a question tabled by Mr. S. C. Ghose regarding the annual Conferences of the Presidents of the Legislative Bodies, Sir Frederick Whyte replied on 3rd February, 1925, as follows :

" After His Excellency the Viceroy (then Lord Chelmsford) appointed me to be President of the Legislative Assembly, the then Secretary of State (Mr. Montagu) discussed informally with me the scope of my work as President. In the course of our conversation, he said that he thought it would be advisable for the President of the Legislative Assembly to establish friendly relations with his brother Presidents in the Provinces. A few months later, after resuming charge of my present office, I went on tour, visiting three Provinces in July and August, 1921. I am glad to be able to inform the Assembly that I met with a most cordial reception; and partly as a result of conversations which I then had with my colleagues in those three Provinces and partly as the result of correspondence with the Presidents in other Provinces, I was encouraged to issue an invitation to all the Presidents to assemble in conference at Simla in September 1921."

It will thus be seen that, apart from the recommendation of the Joint Committee, to which I have already made reference, the practice inaugurated by Sir Frederick Whyte, my predecessor, of visiting the Provincial Councils had the sanction of no less an authority than that of Mr. Montagu, who initiated and carried through the Reform Act under which the present Central and Provincial Legislatures of India have been constituted. The necessity of close co-operation between the President of the Assembly and the Presidents of the Provincial Councils, and of co-ordination in the methods of work and in the practice and procedure of the Legislatures has been repeatedly emphasised at the annual conferences held not only during the time of Sir Frederick Whyte, but also during my term of office.

In 1925, after my election to this Chair, I enquired of His Excellency Lord Reading (the then Viceroy) whether the practice followed by Sir Frederick Whyte of visiting the Provincial Councils and having annual conferences with the Presidents of their Councils should be continued by me, who was an elected President and not an appointed President with Parliamentary experience. In reply I was informed that :

" His Excellency is of opinion that the change from appointed to elected President has not affected the position and that it is desirable that the elected President of the Legislative Assembly should maintain the same relations with the elected Presidents of the local Legislative Councils as were maintained by his predecessor with the appointed Presidents of their Councils." (Applause).

When the annual conference of Presidents was held in January 1926, the Provincial Presidents who attended it placed on record their unanimous opinion in the following terms :

" All the Provincial Presidents asked the President of the Legislative Assembly to place on record their unanimous opinion that the purpose of these conferences could be more effectively carried out if the President of the Legislative Assembly visited the Provinces from time to time for discussing with each Provincial President the difficulties and intricacies arising in the procedure and for attending the meetings of the Provincial Councils."

I think I have said enough to enable the House to know why the practice of the visits of the President of the Legislative Assembly to Provincial Councils was started and has been continued, and to realise that these visits of the President of the Assembly to the Provinces are wholly in the public interest, and have been undertaken in the discharge of his public duties. (Applause.) I may also assure the House that the expectations entertained by those who originated the proposal and practice have been fully realised and these visits have proved of the utmost benefit in the discharge of our duties both to me personally and, I should presume, to the Presidents and the Members of Provincial Councils with whom I came in contact. In a vast country like India with a Central and several Provincial Legislatures, it seems to be [illegible] necessary that there should be a co-ordination of practice and a great uniformity of procedure to the utmost extent possible.

These visits are undertaken when the Councils are sitting in Provinces. They enable the Assembly President to come in contact only with the heads of their Councils but also with the leading Members comprising them. They facilitate a free exchange of views on various technical and other matters relating to the procedure of the Legislatures. In my opinion, therefore, the present practice ought to be welcomed by all who are anxious to see that Parliamentary institutions develop in this country on right lines. I may add that, so far as my last tour to the Provinces was concerned, it had an additional and special interest. It was only last year that I returned from a visit to Europe which I had undertaken on my own. During that visit, I had the advantage of attending the Sessions of the Legislatures of Great Britain and Ireland and of prolonged consultations and conversations with their Speakers. As the present constitution of our Provincial and Legislative Bodies have followed the lines of representative institutions in Europe, I was enabled with the knowledge thus acquired more clearly to appreciate and discuss the difficulties felt in Provincial Legislatures during my visits to them.

I have made these observations to enable the House fully to appreciate the purpose of my visits to the Provincial Councils.

STATEMENT BY MR. PRESIDENT REGARDING ALLEGATIONS MADE AGAINST HIM IN CERTAIN NEWSPAPERS.

Mr. President : At a meeting of the 14th September, Pandit Motilal Nehru, the leader of the Opposition, had drawn my attention to certain criticisms against the President of the Assembly contained in the report of the Correspondent of the Times of India in its issue of the 8th September, and also in the message of the Simla Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph published in that paper and telegraphed to this country by the Free Press and reported in the Indian Daily Mail of the 10th September.

[Mr. President.]

It was contended by the Leader of the Opposition that criticisms in the report of the Times Correspondent contained a suggestion that the President of this Assembly had done a good deal of publicity in preparation for the discussion of the question of the institution of a separate Assembly Secretariat, and with a view to prejudice the Government position. They also contained a charge of partiality against the President in giving his ruling against the Government in connection with the Public Safety Bill on 6th September, 1928.

I have carefully examined these criticisms, and I am satisfied that the contention of the Leader of the Opposition is substantially correct. The writer has cleverly avoided making a direct suggestion or charge, but failed in his attempt to conceal his real motive. Such veiled insinuations and suggestions are, in my opinion, more reprehensible than direct charges.

The message of the Simla Correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph speaks for itself and needs no comment. It contains a direct charge of [illegible] against the President, and the writer has made no attempt [illegible] the debate no Member had a word to [illegible] or defence of these criticisms, and the fresh statement [illegible] Home Member on the 7th September left no room for doubt [illegible] whole House strongly disapproved and condemned those criticisms [illegible] assured the President that he will have its support in any action that he might think fit to take against the Correspondents concerned.

Speaking for myself I am always unwilling to take any disciplinary measure against the Press men and, therefore, have delayed passing any orders in this case so long in the hope that the Correspondents concerned might see their way to tender to the Chair and the House their unqualified apology. Not only no apology came, but one of the Correspondents added insult to injury by writing to me that his comments were based on the remarks made by Members of several Parties in the House, as if that was any justification for the comments he made, even if true. I fully appreciate and recognise the general support I have received from the Press in India in the discharge of my difficult duties, and if I take any action in this case it is because I am driven to it by the Correspondents themselves. I wish they had taken note of the universal condemnation in the House of their conduct and had made amends.

In these circumstances I hereby direct that with effect from the date of the adjournment of the House sine die the Press passes granted to Messrs. Byrt and Rice shall stand cancelled, and no notice papers [illegible] etc., shall be sent to them until further directions from the [illegible] I would add that the Correspondents concerned or [illegible] to renew their applications and they would be considered by the [illegible] if in the meanwhile a full, frank and unqualified apology to the [illegible] and the House is forthcoming in terms approved by the President and published in such newspapers and in such manner as he might approve.

The Assembly then adjourned sine die.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPH

Question re employment of Sikhs in the office of the Director, —, Simla 886.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I confess, Sir, that the sequence, logical or otherwise, of that involved question I have been unable to follow. One thing stood out from that statement, and that was the name of the School of Tropical Medicine in Calcutta ; and I would inform the Honourable Member that the School of Tropical Medicine in Calcutta is under the control of the Government of Bengal, and, therefore, the proper forum for addressing the question is the Legislative Council of Bengal and not this House.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Is it not a fact, Sir, that the most senior medical officer of that school is drawing a salary from the Government of India and is their expert on tuberculosis and also on kala-azar ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : My Honourable friend's information is rather confused. There are undoubtedly two Professors belonging to the School of Tropical Medicine in Calcutta who are paid by the Indian Research Fund Association ; but the Association is not a part of Government and therefore the fact of their being maintained by that Association does not make them servants of the Government of India.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : If the Government absolves itself from responsibility in the matter and relegates it to the Provincial Governments, will the Honourable Member kindly explain the necessity for a Public Health Commissioner and a Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India and the issues of their annual reports ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : It is undoubtedly the function of Government to co-ordinate and collect for the information of the outside world the activities of the various provincial medical departments.

Lala Lajpat Rai : For the outside world only ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I beg pardon ; for India also. That is one of the reasons to justify the maintenance by the Government of India of a Public Health Commissioner. In addition to that the Government of India have other activities such as central agencies for research and international responsibilities. For that reason also it is necessary to maintain a Public Health Commissioner.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is it not the duty of the Government of India to supply information not only to the outside world but also to inside India ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I have already stated in answer to my Honourable friend, Lala Lajpat Rai, that I stood corrected, and I qualified my original statement, by saying not merely the outside world but also inside India.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : Sir, will the Honourable Member inform the House what provision for registration of tuberculosis exists in Delhi, to which he has just referred ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I merely base my information, Sir, on the report published by the Public Health Officer of Delhi. I presume that unless he had a machinery for registration he would not be able to produce the figures which are embodied in the report to which I have referred.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : Will the Government take steps to let the public know what those means are, because hitherto they do not seem to know very much about these provisions ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I am sorry, Sir, that my Honourable friend, although he resides in Delhi, is not aware of the affairs of his own city, but I shall undertake to make the inquiry to which he refers.

Lala Lajpat Rai : The Government of India also resides in Delhi.

APPOINTMENT OF INDIANS AS CONSULAR OFFICERS.

3. Lala Lajpat Rai : (a) Will the Government of India inform the House what steps are being taken, if any, by His Majesty's Government to enrol Indians in the Consular Services of the Empire ?

(b) Have the Government of India made any representation to His Majesty's Government with regard to the appointment of Indians in the Consular Services of the Empire ?

(c) If the answer be in the negative, have the Government of India any intention of making such recommendations ?

(d) Are the Government of India aware that Indian tourists and traders are subjected to a great deal of annoyance and humiliations throughout the world for lack of Indian Consular Officers ?

Sir Denys Bray : (a), (b) and (c). No, Sir. But the questions seem based on the misapprehension that there are no Indian Consular representatives at present, whereas there are actually four.

(d) No, Sir. On the contrary, I constantly receive expressions of appreciation from Indian tourists and traders of the assistance afforded them by His Majesty's Consular Officers in all parts of the world.

RECRUITMENT TO THE CLERICAL AND SUBORDINATE SERVICES UNDER THE FINANCIAL COMMISSIONER OF RAILWAYS.

4. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they are considering the question of placing on a proper footing the recruitment to the clerical and subordinate services in the Accounts Offices under the control of the Financial Commissioner of Railways ?

(b) If the answer to (a) be in the negative, are they aware that the Auditor General has prescribed definite rules on the subject of clerical recruitment in the offices under him and that there is also a competitive examination for accounts to regulate recruitment to the Subordinate Accounts Services ?

(c) Are Government prepared to consider the desirability of adopting the practice outlined in (b) with a view to putting a stop to the present system ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c). Do not arise.

RECRUITMENT TO GAZETTED POSTS UNDER THE FINANCIAL COMMISSIONER OF RAILWAYS.

5. Mr. K. C. Neogy : Will Government be pleased to state whether they are considering the question of entrusting to the Public Service Commission the recruitment to all the gazetted posts in the Accounts Offices under the Financial Commissioner of Railways ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The method of recruiting superior officers for the Accounts Departments of Railways, should these Departments come permanently under the control of the Financial Commissioner of Railways, is under consideration. I think it probable that recruitment will be by means of an examination which the Public Service Commission will conduct for us.

IMPORT OF FOREIGN LIQUOR.

6. Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Will Government be pleased to lay a statement on the table giving :

(a) The quantity of foreign liquor imported into India during the last five years, giving figures for each year separately,

(b) the amount of customs revenue derived from the importation of foreign liquor during the last five years, giving figures for each year separately,

(c) the names of countries from which the spirits referred to in (a) above were imported ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : A statement furnishing the information required is laid on the table.

CASE OF K. C. BANERJI, AN ALLEGED C. I. D. INFORMER.

7. Sardar Kartar Singh : 1. (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to an article in the Tribune of Lahore dated 6th May 1928, headed " Spider caught in its own web. Mysterious visitor to Lahore with pistol under his shirt, conspirator or C. I. D. informer. Amazing story of Bengali youth's arrest and release. " ?

(b) Are the facts stated therein correct ?

2. Is it a fact that K. C. Banerji was a C. I. D. informer and that the pistol found in his possession was supplied to him by the C. I. D. and that he was instructed to give the arm to any one of the revolutionary party ?

3. Was the said K. C. Banerji convicted and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for five years by a Magistrate at Lahore under section 20 of the Arms Act ?

4. Is it a fact that K. C. Banerji filed an appeal in the High Court of Judicature at Lahore against the said conviction and that the 21st of October 1927 was fixed for the hearing of the appeal ?

5. Is it a fact that K. C. Banerji was released before the appeal came up for hearing before the High Court ? If so, under whose orders was he released, and what were the grounds for his release ?

6. Did K. C. Banerji apply for any clemency to the Government under section 401 of the Criminal Procedure Code ? If not, on whose application, initiation, or recommendation did the Government take the action which resulted in his release ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I have seen the article. For the remainder of his questions I must refer the Honourable Member to the discussion on the motion for adjournment in the Punjab Legislative Council on the 10th May last, in which the matter was exhaustively discussed.

SUICIDE OF VISHNUDAS BAGAI, A HINDU ART DEALER OF SAN FRANCISCO.

8. Mr. M. R. Jayakar : (a) Has the attention of the Government of India been drawn to the case reported in the Bombay Chronicle of the 7th of May, 1928, of one Vishnudas Bagai, a Hindu art dealer of San Francisco, who committed suicide by gas as a protest against the refusal of the United States Government to recognize the American citizenship which he claimed ?

(b) Are the Government prepared to make inquiries into the matter and ascertain whether the facts stated in that newspaper are true ?

Sir Denys Bray : (a) Yes.

(b) Enquiries have already been instituted.

DEPORTATION OF MR. MEHAR SINGH RAIT, AN INDIAN STUDENT, FROM THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

9. Mr. M. R. Jayakar : (a) Has the attention of the Government of India been drawn to the case reported in the Bombay Chronicle of the 4th of May, 1928, of one Mr. Mehar Singh Rait, an Indian student, who was deported by the American Government before he has had time to complete his education ?

(b) Is it a fact that Mr. Rait had served with the Mesopotamian Force "D" as a Hospital Storekeeper for four years during the Great War and had earned medals in that connection ?

(c) Are the Government prepared to make inquiries into this matter and ascertain whether the facts stated in that newspaper are true ?

(d) Do Government propose to take steps in the matter of Mr. Rait's grievance and obtain redress for him from the American Government in such manner as may be possible ?

Sir Denys Bray : (a) Yes.

(b) I have not been able to verify the account of Mr. Rait's war services given in the article, but see no reason to doubt it. Those war services however did not constitute him an alien veteran of the United States forces.

(c) There seems no need to go beyond the article itself. On the facts therein given, the situation is as follows :

> According to the United States' Immigration Act of 1917, which was in force when Mr. Rait entered America, he was within the geographical prohibition on immigration set up by section 3 and could thus only secure entry by proving that he was within one of the exempted categories. The only exceptions susceptible of applications to Mr. Rait were those in favour of "students" and of "travellers for curiosity or pleasure". Granted that Mr. Rait came within one or other of these exceptions at the time of entry he failed to remain within either, in that he earned his living as a clerk and thus became subject to the provision which lays down that persons "who fail to maintain in the United States a status or occupation placing them within the excepted classes shall be deemed to be in the United States contrary to law and shall be subject to deportation".

(d) However much therefore I may sympathise with Mr. Rait, the Honourable Member will, I trust, appreciate Government's inability, in view of Mr. Rait's self-confessed contravention of the American immigration laws, to attempt to obtain any redress from the United States Government for his deportation.

FIRING ON RAILWAY STRIKERS AT BAMANGACHI.

10. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the strictures passed by the Magistrate of Howrah, in his order dated the 9th May, on the Officer Commanding the Eastern Frontier Rifles who opened fire on a crowd of railway strikers on March 28 last near Howrah ?

(b) Is it a fact that firing was resorted to on the orders of the Police Superintendent ; that no warning was given to the crowd before this was done ; that before the arrival of the Police Superintendent, Captain Christie proceeded to act on his own responsibility in placing pickets and regulating and stopping traffic on the road ; that there was no order to aim low, with the result that at least one man was shot through the head and that the shots were fired not at the crowd as a body but at selected persons in the crowd who were specially picked out each time by Captain Christie, who himself and not the Police Superintendent selected the direction in which to fire ?

(c) What inquiries, if any, have the Army authorities made in the matter, and with what result ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b) All the circumstances connected with this case have been thoroughly investigated by the Government of Bengal, but they have been advised that no conclusions should be published until the completion of the trial in which one of the leaders of the strikers is being charged with perjury and bringing a false case against Mr. Mould, Deputy Chief Mechanical Engineer. In the circumstances the Honourable Member will understand that I am not able to deal with the points raised on this question.

(c) No inquiry has been made by the Army authorities, as the matter concerns the civil authorities. The Eastern Frontier Rifles is not a battalion of the Army, but of the Military Police.

SUPPRESSION OF A RADIO MESSAGE SENT BY MR. BERNARD HOUGHTON, A RETIRED I. C. S. OFFICER, TO THE FREE PRESS OF INDIA.

11 Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Are Government aware that the following radio message sent by Mr. Bernard Houghton, I.C.S., (Retired) on or about the 11th February 1928, addressed to the Free Press of India, Bombay, was withheld by the authorities :

> "Look at the past of those who sponsor the Commission. Birkenhead was the bitter enemy of Irish National Freedom. Simon supported the illegal imprisonment o Irish in London, and last year fought the British Miners. Remember Macdonald's notorious record in India, China, and Egypt. Is it credible that these men, in their united front, intend the liberties of India? Is it not clear that they wish Indians to again co-operate in forging their own chains? Whatever their words, they have but one mind, and it is set on British domination."

(b) If so, do Government propose to make an enquiry as to the suppression of this message?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b) The message was withheld under the authority of the Bombay Government.

SUPPLY BY THE LOCAL GOVERNMENTS OF CERTAIN INFORMATION TO THE SIMON COMMISSION.

12. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that the Government of India have asked Local Governments to supply certain information to the Simon Commission? If so, will Government be pleased to lay a copy of their communication on the table?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The invitation to submit memoranda issued by the Indian Statutory Commission on the 6th March, 1928, was addressed equally to the Government of India, the Local Governments and the general public. The Commission suggested to the Government of India that the most convenient procedure would be that the Local Governments should submit their memoranda direct to the Commission. Accordingly the Local Governments were requested by the Government of India to send the memoranda prepared by them direct to the Commission, copies being sent simultaneously to the Government of India for their information. They were further informed that it would be for each Provincial Government to decide for itself the nature of the reply which it would make to the Commission, selecting the particular matters on which it proposed to lay its views before the Commission. The Government do not propose to lay on the table a copy of their communication to the Local Governments.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware that the Government of Bihar and Orissa have prepared a paper on the subject which is at variance with facts, and with official records in many respects?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I am not aware of it.

PROSCRIPTION OF BOOKS PUBLISHED IN ENGLAND.

13. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government be pleased to state for the guidance of booksellers and other members of the public the names of books and their authors, published in England, but which have been proscribed by the Government?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The Honourable Member is presumably referring to books published in England, the bringing of which into British India has been prohibited under section 19 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878. The number of such books is small, and Government see no necessity to publish a list. The prohibition of any book under the Act is always notified in the Gazette of India, and Government are prepared to furnish information to any bookseller or private individual as to whether a particular book about which such bookseller or individual may be in doubt has been proscribed. Such information will also be furnished by the India Office or the High Commissioner for India in answer to any inquiries which may be addressed to them in England.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Are the Government aware that in the absence of any list of proscribed books, sometimes people are taken by surprise, when they arrive in Bombay or Karachi, and when they are told that certain books are proscribed? Are such lists available in the office of the High Commissioner or in any other office in England or in India or anywhere else which will show to people coming back to India whether certain books are proscribed or not?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : As I pointed out in my main reply, the Government of India, the India Office and the Office of the High Commissioner are always ready to reply to any inquiries which may be addressed to them.

Lala Lajpat Rai : How is a person to know that a certain book is proscribed? If you keep a list of proscribed books, certainly he will be able to know whether a particular book is proscribed or not?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I think that if any one is in doubt whether a certain book is proscribed or not, he can easily solve it by making inquiries in the matter as I have suggested.

Mr. K. Ahmed : In view of the fact that a large majority of young students, innocent as they are, who return to this country from England after completing their education abroad, fall victims, in the absence of any list of proscribed books, when their boxes are searched by customs officers, do Government propose for the benefit of the country as well as of the student population and others returning to India to supply a list of proscribed books, so that they may not purchase such objectionable books?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I am not aware that any inconvenience to the extent mentioned by the Honourable Member has been experienced.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : What is the objection to publishing a list of books which are proscribed in this country so that people interested might know beforehand that those books are proscribed?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The Government of India consider that the publication in the Gazette of India, and their readiness to supply information which I have already alluded to, adequately meets the case.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is a complete list of proscribed books published in the Gazette of India beforehand?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : All books which are dealt with under this section of the law are duly notified in the Gazette of India.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Is the Honourable Member aware that there are certain books which are put in the list of proscribed books and afterwards removed? Before anybody comes to India, how is he to know whether certain books still continue to remain in the list of proscribed books or not? There are certain books originally put on the list of Government and afterwards they are removed. Will the Honourable Member kindly explain to us what difficulty is there if the Government of India will undertake to publish only a list of books which are proscribed ?

Mr. K. Ahmed : Do you mean a list of books proscribed before a student is born, who has gone to England and is to return to India ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I regret I cannot add anything more to what I have said already on the subject.

OPENING BY THE POST OFFICE OF LETTERS ADDRESSED TO MRS. BESANT.

14. Lala Lajpat Rai : (i) Has the attention of the Government of India been drawn to Mrs. Besant's complaint about her letters being opened in the Post Office ?

(ii) Are the Government of India responsible for the order under which action was taken or did the Government of India give that order ?

(iii) If so, will the Government of India give the reasons for such action ?

(iv) Are there lists prepared under the orders of the Government of India of persons whose letters are opened ?

(v) If so, what are the general or special principles which are applied in selecting names for such list or lists ?

(vi) Is there any All-India list of persons whose letters are subjected to the process complained of by Mrs. Besant ? If so, are there any Provincial lists besides ?

(vii) Has the Home Department of the Government of India any control over the process of opening letters, examining their contents and disposing of them ? If so, what kind of control has the Home Department, and who performs that function ?

(viii) What kind of officers open these letters ?

(ix) What kind of officers read them ? Are all the letters addressed to the gentlemen whose names are on the list, opened or only some ? If the latter, how is the selection made ?

(x) What kind of letters are detained and not delivered ?

(xi) Why is not the fact of the letters having been opened stated on the cover ?

(xii) Do the Government of India propose to make a statement of general policy about this matter and do they propose to take steps to prevent the annoyance that is caused to people engaged in constitutional agitation by this process ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (i) to (iii). I invite the Honourable Member's attention to my answer to Mr. Ranga Iyer's unstarred question No. 2 of to-day's date on the subject.

(iv) to (vi). I invite the Honourable Member's attention to my answer to Mr. Ranga Iyer's unstarred question No. 3 of to-day's date, which explains the discretion of the various Governments and the principles by which they are bound.

(vii) to (xii). The Government of India in the Home or any other Department or any Local Government are empowered to issue orders under section 26 (1) of the Indian Post Office Act. No general orders have been issued as to procedure, which will depend on the instructions given in any particular case to the postal officials and on the nature of the case.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask whether the Honourable Member is in order in replying to a starred question by referring to the answer given to an unstarred question put on the same day ? Is he not bound to give full information in reply to a starred question ?

Mr. President : I think Honourable Members have an advantage in having with them previously replies to unstarred questions.

Several Honourable Members: No, Sir ; we have not got replies to unstarred questions as yet.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Is the Honourable Member aware that there is a great deal of excitement over this question ? Is he aware that in almost every important post office in India there is a censor put up who opens letters and then reposts them ? Is that within the authority of the Government of India ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : As I pointed out, it is impossible to lay down any general procedure in the matter. Individual cases or classes of cases must be dealt with according to their nature. We constantly lay down a general policy or general procedure, because obviously this is not a matter in which a routine procedure could be adopted.

Lala Lajpat Rai : I am asking for information; it is not a question of policy at all. Is it a fact or not that in Lahore and Delhi Post Offices there is a postal censor who opens letters, reads them and replaces them and re-addresses them ? Is it a fact or not ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I have no information.

Lala Lajpat Rai : The Government of India ought to have information on such an important subject as this.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask, Sir for your decision on the point of order I raised ?

Mr. President : I think the Honourable Member is quite right. The Government should take care that in their replies to starred questions they make no reference to replies given on the same day to unstarred questions.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : May I say one word, Sir ? I do feel that I owe an apology to the Honourable Member. It escaped my notice that there was a reference to an unstarred question in my reply. I quite see the inconvenience to Honourable Members. In future I shall see that references to unstarred questions which are not already in possession of Honourable Members will not be included in replies to starred questions.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : May I request the Honourable Member to put us in possession of answers to unstarred questions every day before we come to the House ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I shall take note of the Honourable Member's suggestion.

DISMISSAL OF MR. B. L. DEROZARIO, LATE DEPÔT STOREKEEPER, ALAMBAGH.

15. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) With reference to the replies to parts (a), (b) and (c) by Mr. A. A. L. Parsons to my starred question No. 286 in the Legislative Assembly on the 23rd February 1928, will the Government be pleased to furnish :

(i) instances of Mr. B. L. deRozario, late Depôt Storekeeper, Alambagh, having given delivery of any brass material to the auction purchasers of March 1922 ;

(ii) of his being in league with other employees in committing the alleged fraud ; and

(iii) of any wilful intent on his part to defraud ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Railway authorities made no joint departmental enquiry of their own as is done in all such cases ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to furnish, in addition to extract of Controller of Stores, Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway's office order No. G. 90, dated 6th December 1921 (already received on 3rd May 1928), appointing Mr. deRozario as Depôt Storekeeper, Charbagh, on Rs. 250 per mensem, a copy of the office order issued by the Controller of Stores, Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway Office, detailing the duties of a Depôt Storekeeper, by which Mr. deRozario was directly responsible, as Depôt Storekeeper, for the loss of the brass material said to have occurred in March 1922 ?

RESPONSIBILITY OF GAZETTED OFFICERS IN DIRECT CHARGE OF EACH STORES DEPÔT OF THE LATE OUDH AND ROHILKHAND RAILWAY.

16. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that after the retirement from railway service of Mr. G. A. Roach, Depôt Storekeeper, Charbagh Depôt, on Rs. 400 per mensem and Lala Nathoo Ram, Depôt Storekeeper, Alambagh Depôt, on Rs. 300 per mensem—both upper subordinates of the Stores Department, Lucknow,—in the year 1914, each Stores Depôt of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway, Lucknow was placed in direct charge of a gazetted officer by Mr. D. E. Keatinge, the then Chief Storekeeper, and that this system was strictly adhered to by Mr. Keatinge and his six successors as well, right up to July 1925, the date of amalgamation of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway with the East Indian Railway ?

(b) If so, what share of responsibility devolved on the gazetted officer, for the deliveries of valuable auction material such as brass, copper, zinc and lead ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I propose, with your permission, to answer questions Nos. 15 and 16 together. Government regret that they cannot undertake to collect the further information required. I would remind the Honourable Member that he has been given very full information with regard to this case in the replies to his questions No. 237 of 24th August 1927 and No. 286, dated 23rd February 1928, in which he was informed that though the Special Police Investigating Officer secured proof that Mr. deRozario had been implicated in certain fraudulent transactions it was decided to deal with him departmentally ; a charge sheet was given to him and his services were dispensed with by the railway authorities because he was unable to give satisfactory replies to the charges brought against him. The Honourable Member was also informed of the disciplinary action taken against the gazetted officer who, at the time of the fraud, held charge over the Charbagh Stores Department.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE SINGHAJANI-TANGAIL-PINGNA RAILWAY.

17. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Has the traffic survey with regard to the proposed Singhajani-Tangail-Pingna Railway which the Government stated on September 1, 1927, would be undertaken been completed ? (Vide Assembly Debates of September 1927, Volume IV, No. 54, page 3812.)

(b) Will the Government please make a statement as to the nature of the results of the survey ?

(c) If the results of the survey are satisfactory, do Government propose to expedite the construction of the line ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: I understand that the traffic survey and a revised engineering estimate have been completed and that they show estimated net earnings of Rs. 3,53,000 and capital cost of rather over 70 lakhs. But the estimate of net earnings does not take into account the effect of the Dacca-Aricha Railway, if that railway is constructed ; and in fact the whole position as regards railway development in Eastern Bengal will in that event be considerably modified. I am unable therefore to say at present whether, and, if so, at what approximate date, this line will be taken up.

THE DACCA-ARICHA RAILWAY.

18. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement in regard to the Dacca-Aricha Railway project with reference to their reply to my question on the subject on February 1, 1928 (vide Assembly Debates, Volume I, page 87) ?

(b) Have the Railway Board considered the report and the estimates submitted by the Agent of the Eastern Bengal Railway and with what results ?

(c) If the Railway Board have approved of the scheme, when do the Government propose to take the matter in hand ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Railway Board have considered the report and estimates of the Dacca-Aricha Railway project, and the Government of India have addressed the Secretary of State on the subject.

20. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Are the Government aware that at Serajgunj Ghat station on the Eastern Bengal Railway there is no waiting room for the travelling public ?

(b) Are the Government aware that Serajgunj Ghat Road station has no shelter for passengers in bad weather ?

(c) If so, do Government propose to take steps to provide a waiting room at Serajgunj Ghat station at an early date ?

† Withdrawn.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: Government are not aware of the detailed arrangements at Serajganj Ghat station, but have sent a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent of the Eastern Bengal Railway in order that he may consider whether any alterations are desirable.

RESERVATION OF COMPARTMENTS ON STATE RAILWAYS.

21. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi: (a) Are the Government aware that different railways have different rules in regard to the reservation of compartments ?

(b) Do Government propose to take steps to remedy this and introduce uniform rules for all State Railways ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: (a) Yes.

(b) Government do not consider it necessary to have a uniform practice on all railways in a matter of this kind. The practice on each railway must be determined by local conditions.

Mr. K. Ahmed: Do Government propose to have a uniform rule for reservation of compartments as far as State Railways are concerned ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: No, Sir. As I explained in my answer, it is not a matter in which Government consider uniformity either necessary or desirable.

Mr. K. Ahmed: Are the Government aware that the public will have a very bad opinion of the Government, because in the case of the train that goes from Delhi to Calcutta you can reserve your berth without any cost, while if you book from Calcutta to Delhi you have to pay a reservation fee of eight annas and purchase the ticket in advance ? Does the Honourable Member realise it ?

APPOINTMENT OF SEPARATE BOOKING CLERKS AT DELHI FOR THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA AND BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAYS.

22. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi: (a) Are the Government aware that at the Delhi station there is only one booking clerk for both the Great Indian Peninsula and the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railways to the great inconvenience of the travelling public ?

(b) Are Government prepared to take steps to provide a booking clerk for each of the railways ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: (a) and (b). Government do not receive information as to the number of booking clerks employed at individual stations, but they have sent a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent of the North-Western Railway—the arrangements at Delhi Main station are under the control of the North-Western Railway Administration—and have asked him to see that such action as may be found to be required is taken.

Mr. M. S. Aney: Will the Government be pleased to submit whatever reply may be received by the railway authorities from the Agent concerned to the Members of this House ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: I am quite prepared to let Mr. Ghuznavi know what the reply is, if the Agent sends us a reply.

PROVISION OF FANS IN SECOND CLASS CARRIAGES ON THE BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.

23. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi: (a) Are the Government aware that in some of the second class carriages on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway no fans are provided ?

(b) In view of the fact that in the heat of the summer months the absence of fans in these carriages is a great inconvenience to the travelling public, are Government prepared to take steps to remedy this ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: (a) Yes.

(b) Government understand that the Agent of the Railway is taking steps to provide fans where they are not at present provided.

PROVISION OF LATRINES IN SERVANTS' COMPARTMENTS ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA AND EAST INDIAN RAILWAYS.

24. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi: (a) Are the Government aware that both in the Great Indian Peninsula and the East Indian Railway trains no privies are provided in the servants' compartments ?

(b) Are the Government aware that this is a great hardship for the servants especially when they have to travel over long distances at a stretch ?

(c) Do Government propose to take steps to remedy this ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: (a), (b) and (c). Government are aware that a good many of the present servants' compartments on the Great Indian Peninsula and East Indian Railways have no privies, but privies are being provided in the servants' compartments of all the new standard carriages.

RETIRING ROOMS AT STATIONS ON THE DIFFERENT STATE RAILWAYS.

25. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi: (a) Will the Government be pleased to make a statement as to the number of stations in which retiring rooms are provided under the different State Railways in India ?

(b) Are Government prepared to take steps to provide more such rooms at an early date ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: The Railway Board understand that there are at present retiring rooms at two stations on the North-Western Railway, and at one on the East Indian Railway. They have asked the Agents of the State-managed Railways to consider the question of providing such rooms at other stations where it appears probable that the expense will be justified by the use made of the rooms.

UNSUITABLE RETIRING ROOMS AT AJMER.

26. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi: (a) Are the Government aware that the retiring rooms at Ajmer are not comfortable owing to their large size ?

(b) Are Government prepared to take steps to improve these rooms by remodelling and altering them, by cutting up the existing rooms into smaller compartments suited to the convenience of the public ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). Government are not aware of the detailed arrangements at Ajmer, but have sent a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway for any action which he may think necessary.

Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : Have the Government received any information or any complaint from any body at Ajmer that the rooms are large ? I do not think the rooms are too large and nobody has ever complained that the rooms are in any way unsuitable.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am not aware that any complaint has been received, Sir. On the other hand, as I am sending him a copy of the question, the Agent will no doubt be able to decide the matter.

PROVISION OF COMPLAINT BOOKS IN FIRST AND SECOND CLASS CARRIAGES ON ALL TRAINS.

27. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : Do Government propose to provide a complaint book on all trains (in the first and second class carriages) in order that passengers might note in them any defects with regard to the supply of water, lights and fans with instructions that in all terminus stations these books should be inspected by proper authorities and action should be taken on them ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Railway Board are consulting Railway Administrations on the Honourable Member's suggestion.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I ask, Sir, whether the Government will consider the desirability of keeping complaint books in the third class compartments also ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I very much doubt if they would utilise them, Sir.

ELECTRIFICATION OF THE CALCUTTA RAILWAYS.

28. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Will the Government make a statement as to the present position of the scheme for the electrification of the Calcutta Railways ?

(b) Are the Government aware that the electrification of the Bombay Railways has not only been financially profitable but has also been a great advantage to the travelling public and has removed the serious congestion from which the people of the town of Bombay were suffering ?

(c) Are the Government aware that there is a congestion in Calcutta in regard to its population and that house-rents for ordinary people are prohibitive ?

(d) In view of the facts referred to in parts (b) and (c) above, do Government propose to take steps to introduce electrification of the railways in Calcutta and its suburbs and thus remove the congestion of this city as well ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The Railway Board have recently received from their Consulting Electrical Engineers their observations on the electrical side of the scheme and also a revised estimate of the cost of the civil engineering side of the scheme from an officer whom they placed on special duty for this purpose. They are at present considering these reports.

(b) Government believe that the electric services in Bombay have been appreciated by the public and have tended to remove congestion. They anticipate that they will prove a financial success.

(c) Government are not prepared to express an opinion on these matters which are more within the province of the Provincial Government.

(d) As the Honourable Member will have learnt from my answer to part (a) of his question, the question of electrifying the lines in the neighbourhood of Calcutta is actively under the consideration of the Railway Board.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE PRESS BY GOVERNMENT SERVANTS.

29. Lala Lajpat Rai : (a) Will the Government of India state if they have made any rules by which writing for the Press by Government servants is regulated ?

(b) Are Government aware that large amounts of money are earned by Government servants, by writing for the Anglo-Indian papers, based on knowledge obtained from Government records ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to rules 17, 18 and 19 of the Government Servants' Conduct Rules a copy of which is available in the Library of the House.

(b) Government have no reason to believe that large sums of money are earned in the way suggested. The question of remuneration in such cases is a private matter for arrangement between the contributor and the newspaper.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO JOURNALS IN INDIA OF ARTICLES REGARDING THE DISCOVERIES MADE BY THE ARCHÆOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT DURING 1927.

30. Lala Lajpat Rai : (a) Will the Government state what they mean by reserving the copyright of a pamphlet known as " Exhibition of Antiquities discovered by the Archæological Department during the year 1926-27 " ?

(b) Are Government aware that articles based on these discoveries have been contributed to different journals in India and outside, illustrated by pictures taken of the things discovered and unearthed, by the highly paid officers of the Archæological Department ? Were these officers paid for the articles ? Will the Government give their names and the amounts earned by them ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) The pamphlet referred to by the Honourable Member was made copyright only to prevent its publication before its contents had been discussed at a conference of archæological experts. As soon as the conference had finally settled its terms, the " copyright " was withdrawn.

(b) Officers of the Archæological Department are allowed at present to contribute illustrated as well as unillustrated articles to the Press on payment. The question of revising the existing orders on the subject is under consideration.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Was the fact of the withdrawal of the copyright announced in the papers ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The fact that the contents of this copyright book were communicated to the newspapers was tantamount to the withdrawal of the copyright reservation.

RESTORATION AND PRESERVATION OF THE BUILDINGS CONNECTED WITH THE MEMORIES OF RANI LAXMI BAI OF JHANSI.

31. Lala Lajpat Rai : (a) Will the Government of India state if the places and buildings of the Hindu rulers of Jhansi are protected monuments within the Protected Monuments Acts ?

(b) Is it a fact that the port of Calcutta was open to pilgrim traffic in the year 1927 and that it was closed down in 1928 ?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state why the port of Calcutta was closed to such traffic ?

(d) Are the Government aware that the pilgrims are hard hit by having to travel to Bombay for sailing for Mecca ?

(e) Do Government propose to open the different ports of India like Calcutta, Madras, Karachi, Chittagong and Bombay to such traffic ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Bombay, Karachi and Calcutta.

(b) and (c). The port of Calcutta was open to pilgrim traffic in 1927 and also in 1928.

(d) Bombay not being the only port open to pilgrim traffic, pilgrims may embark at Calcutta or Karachi, if they do not wish to travel to Bombay.

(e) As I have already replied, Bombay, Karachi and Calcutta are already open to pilgrim traffic. The question of opening Chittagong and Madras has been considered by the Government of India on several occasions, but they have not been convinced of the necessity of adopting this course.

HARASSMENT OF PILGRIMS BY MOALLEMS.

33. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Are Government aware that the Moallems by their activities harass the pilgrims especially financially by taking them to Bombay ?

(b) Do Government propose to make a law for restricting the activities of Moallems, making it obligatory for them to take out a proper licence from a committee to be constituted for this purpose ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (b). Reports on the subject referred to by the Honourable Member and suggestions for dealing with it have been received from the Government of Bengal and are under consideration by the Government of India.

(b) Are Government aware that most of the third class passengers are not conversant with the railway rules ?

(c) Do Government propose to revise the rules in regard to the charging of freight from passengers with unbooked luggage ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government are aware of the existence of some dissatisfaction with the existing rule under which the free allowance of luggage is forfeited when a passenger is found with excess luggage for which no payment is made at the starting station ; and the question whether the rule should be altered is at present being considered by the Indian Railway Conference Association.

(d) and (e). Six Hindus were appointed on the result of the competitive examination. Seven others, viz., 4 Muhammadans, 2 Burmans and one Sikh, whose names have already been announced, were subsequently appointed by nomination. The table which I am sending the Honourable Member will show him the number of marks secured by each. No Christian was appointed.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : May I know, Sir, who are the examiners who set the papers and who correct and mark the answer papers, and whether there are any Indians on the Board, and, if so, how many of them are Moslems and how many Hindus ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The general arrangements for the examination are in charge of the Public Service Commission.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : I am asking about the examiners who set the papers and correct and mark the answer papers.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I am afraid I cannot answer that question without a very great deal of research.

37. Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) Will Government be pleased to state in connection with the granting of first and second class Mining Manager's Certificates by the Board of Examiners appointed by the Governor General in Council, the number of Indian students who appeared each year during the last 5 years for the prescribed examination for such certificates ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the answers given by me in this House on the 20th September 1927 to the questions asked on the subject.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : That was only an advice given at that time. Will the Government take any steps to express its own approval or disapproval ? That was only an advice given to local agencies to pronounce condemnation of the book. But my further question is, whether Government is prepared to take upon itself to express its condemnation or disapproval of this scurrilous book.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : On the occasion to which I have referred I answered a very large number of questions at very great length and I defined the position of the Government on that occasion. I regret that I have nothing further to add on the present occasion.

Mr. K. Ahmed : I take it that it is not the duty of the Government of India to express disapproval.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : My supplementary question, Sir. Does the Government approve of that book ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The Honourable Member is asking for an opinion. I am not prepared to express any opinion.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : You are not prepared to express disapproval also ?

(ii) whether the Government have found in those letters anything objectionable ? If yes, will the Government be pleased to place those letters on the table ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c). The correspondence of Rash Behari Bose is being intercepted under the orders of Government. (c) Do the Government propose to have the rest of the mounds in the area of Mohenjo-daro excavated ? If so, when and what would be the probable cost thereof ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) About Rs. 160,000 up to the end of May 1928.

(b) No.

(c) Yes, from now onwards. The cost of the work will be about half a lakh a year, but the total amount, which will depend on the complete period for which excavation goes on, cannot be estimated with any approach to accuracy at this stage.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government establish a museum at Mohenjo-daro ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I would like to have notice of that question. I cannot answer off hand whether Government will consider the suggestion or not.

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state when they propose to provide such waiting rooms on stations which do not possess the same ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). Waiting rooms are not generally provided on this section at present. There is one for ladies at Shikarpur.

(c) The Railway Administration alone can judge whether the traffic justifies provision of a waiting room at any particular station and I have sent a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent, North-Western Railway.

(b) Do Government propose to construct waiting rooms for first and second class passengers on these stations ?

(c) Which stations on the North-Western Railway (Sind section) are provided with rest rooms only and no first and second class waiting rooms ?

(d) Are the Government aware that rest rooms are generally refused to first and second class passengers which causes great inconvenience to them ?

(e) Are Government prepared to issue general orders that where no waiting rooms exist, the rest rooms should be thrown open to first and second class passengers ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (c). I am sending the Honourable Member the list of the stations.

(b) No.

(d) and (e). The rest rooms provided at certain stations are for the use of railway officials on duty. Government are not aware of any inconvenience caused to first and second class passengers on this account and are not prepared to issue the general orders suggested.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to provide waiting rooms positively where there are no waiting rooms or rest rooms ? Is Government going to do that ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : As I have explained, Sir, the provision of waiting rooms or rest rooms is a matter which we leave to the Agents. I am prepared to send a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent of the North-Western Railway together with a copy of the question which he has just put to me, but the decision must be left to the Agent.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Will the Honourable Member convey the reply which he will receive from the Agent to the Honourable Member (the questioner) ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I was careful to word my reply so as not to impose upon the Agent the necessity of giving me an answer.

For the views of Government on this question I would refer the Honourable Member to the replies given to Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan's questions Nos. 1160 and 1161 on the 25th of March 1927.

(b) Do Government propose to provide that station with a shed at an early date in view of its importance ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) No.

(b) Small matters of this kind are left to the Agent, to whom a copy of the Honourable Member's question has been sent.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Government ask the Agent to expedite the putting up of the shed ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir. I think it is a matter which can very well be left to the Agent's discretion.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I propose with your permission, Sir, to answer questions Nos. 49—55 together.

A statement giving the information asked for in part (a) of these questions is being sent to the Honourable Member.

With regard to (b), the number of men officiating varies so frequently that it is not practicable to give figures.

With regard to (c), the information in possession of Government in connection with communal representation on the North-Western Railway will be found in Volume I (Appendix F) and Volume II (Appendix C) of the Report on Indian Railways for 1926-27, a copy of which is in the Library. The statistics were formulated in the form there given after consultation with, and acceptance by, the Central Advisory Council for Railways and Government do not consider it desirable to supplement them by details regarding individual offices or posts.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government undertake an enquiry as to the causes of disproportion of the appointments in the different communities and will Government direct a suitable revision thereof ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : Have the Government recognised the Goanese as a separate community ?

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : What is the reason for the refusal of Government to supply the detailed statistics asked for by the Honourable Member, particularly with regard to Traffic Inspectors ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am supplying the Honourable Member with the statistics asked for in part (a) of his question with regard to Traffic Inspectors. The reasons for not supplying figures of communal representation apply just as much to Traffic Inspectors as to any other branch or office.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I know whether the information asked for in part (b) of the question is confidential ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : My answer with regard to part (b) was that the number of men who officiate vary so frequently that it is not practicable to give figures. It varies almost from [illegible] appointments become vacant by people going on leave and so on.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : It is part (c) which refers to permanent and officiating men. I am asking what objection there is to replying to part (b) of question No. 49.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I must apologise to the Honourable Member. I overlooked that part (b) of question No. 49 is part (c) in the remaining questions. I have already explained to the House on many occasions the reasons why Government do not consider it desirable to give this information with regard to individuals offices or posts.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask the Honourable Member whether in regard to information which is not of a confidential character it is open to Government to say that they will not supply it or that they will not take the trouble of collecting it and placing it on the table of the House ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : It is always open to Government to refuse information when it thinks it is in the public interests to do so.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Do Government realise that these questions have to be asked because they have taken no action in the past on the recommendations of this House with regard to the appointment of Indians in these posts, and particularly to the posts of Traffic Inspectors on the North-Western Railway ? The reply of the Government amounts to an evasion of the question altogether and I ask whether it is permissible for Government to do so in regard to questions which do not ask for confidential information ?

LOSS OF LIFE AND OTHER CASUALTIES OCCASIONED BY COMMUNAL RIOTS SINCE THE 22ND JULY 1926.

56. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will the Government be pleased to give statistics as to the loss of life and other casualties occasioned by communal riots in India since the 22nd July 1926 ?

(b) What steps have Government taken to stop the communal tension in India ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to the statement laid on the table in connection with the reply which I gave in this House on the 14th September 1927 to Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava's question on this subject. I now lay on the table a further statement giving particulars in respect of riots since reported. The numbers of persons killed and persons wounded during the period referred to in the Honourable Member's question as reported to the Government of India are 149 and 1,345 respectively.

(b) I would refer the Honourable Member to the answer given in this House to the late Mr. Harchandrai Vishindas' question of the 18th August 1926.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I have seen Mr. Harchandrai Vishindas's question. Will Government be pleased to say what reconciliatory methods they have taken to bridge the gulf between the communities ? They only gave advice to non-official leaders to do so. What I ask is, what steps Government have taken to bridge the gulf between the different communities ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The reply, which I quoted, of my late predecessor gives a concise but comprehensive account of the attitude of Government in the matter.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : That information is not, in my opinion, definite. I want to know whether Government are going to do anything definite in order to bridge the gulf or not ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I must repeat that I consider the reply to that question is contained in the answer to which I have referred. If the Honourable Member desires a more specific reply he will perhaps give me notice of a question.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to direct the District Officers to make earnest and honest efforts by forming committees of the leaders of the communities to bring about a rapprochement ?

Mr. K. Ahmed : May I ask one supplementary question ?

Mr. President : Order, order. Question No. 57. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai.

REVISED PENSION RULES FOR THE INFERIOR SERVICES OF THE GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY.

57. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Are Government aware that the Bombay Government have sanctioned the revised pension rules in respect of inferior services ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Yes.

REVISED PENSION RULES FOR THE SUBORDINATE SERVICES.

58. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to state when the final orders regarding revised pension rules in respect of the subordinate services are expected to be passed ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to part (b) of the reply given in this House by Sir Basil Blackett, on the 15th February last, to Mr. Kelkar's question No. 92. The position is unchanged.

PRINTING OF RAILWAY RULES AND REGULATIONS IN THE VERNACULARS.

59. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Are Government aware that third class passengers suffer inconvenience owing to their ignorance of railway rules and regulations ?

(b) Are Government prepared to take steps to have the rules printed in the vernacular languages and circulate them free among the public or sell them at a nominal price ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government certainly consider that a wider acquaintance on the part of third class passengers with the ordinary rules and regulations governing railway travelling would be of advantage to all parties concerned, and the Railway Board have considered the Honourable Member's suggestion. But they incline to the view that at present at any rate it would do little good to make printed vernacular translations of the principal rules available, and that a more promising method of tackling the problem is to appoint enquiry clerks in the larger waiting sheds.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government prepared to have the substance of these rules printed in the vernacular and put up at the railway stations and in the third class carriages ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I believe I am correct in saying that we are already considering that expedient, but I am a little doubtful myself whether we shall get the third class passengers to read them.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : No. Many of them do read.

PROVISION OF THIRD CLASS TOURIST CARS FOR PILGRIMS AND MARRIAGE PARTIES ON ALL RAILWAYS.

60. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Are Government aware that for the special convenience of pilgrim and marriage parties a third class tourist car has been provided on the South Indian Railway at a reasonable fare ?

(b) Are Government prepared to take steps to provide similar cars on all other railways in India ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes, as an experiment.

(b) Also as an experiment, the East Indian Railway Administration are already building similar cars and the North-Western Railway Administration have been asked to do so. The question of extending the use of such cars will be considered when the results of the experiment on these railways are known.

CRIMINAL CASE INSTITUTED IN CALCUTTA AGAINST DR. J. A. DUNN OF THE GEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA.

61. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a criminal case in Calcutta in which Dr. J. A. Dunn of the Geological Survey of India was prosecuted on a charge of having on July 11, 1927, at the New Market Post Office, thrown a parcel at Mr. H. K. Roy, parcels clerk, and injured him ?

(b) Are Government aware that the Chief Presidency Magistrate in passing judgment passed strictures on Dr. Dunn ?

(c) Do Government propose to cause an enquiry into the matter and take such steps as they think fit ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) In the opinion of the Government the remarks made by the Chief Presidency Magistrate in pronouncing judgment can hardly be construed as strictures on Dr. Dunn.

(c) No.

OMISSION BY THE CALCUTTA INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT TO FURNISH INFORMATION TO ASSESSEES IN THE NOTICE ISSUED UNDER SECTION 34 OF THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX ACT, 1922.

62. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : Will the Government be pleased to state why no information is given to an assessee in the notice under section 34 issued by the Calcutta Income-tax Department as to what income had escaped assessment in the particular accounting year or as to what further information is required upon either a source of income or rate of assessment of the assessee ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Indian Income-tax Act does not require that the notice issued under section 34 should contain the information mentioned. In October 1926, however, the Central Board of Revenue prescribed a form in which spaces are provided for entering this information, and the Commissioner of Income-tax, Bengal, reports that this form is in use in Calcutta and that these spaces are filled up before it is issued.

ADMISSION TO THE READING ROOM OF THE IMPERIAL LIBRARY, CALCUTTA.

63. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Is it a fact that some new rules have been introduced into the Imperial Library at Calcutta regarding the admission of readers into the reading room ?

(b) Is it a fact that only permanent ticket holders are now admitted into the reading room ?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state why tickets are no longer issued temporarily to daily readers ?

(d) Is it a fact that permanent tickets are now issued only to people who are recommended by gazetted officers ?

(e) Do Government propose to revise this rule for the benefit of the general public, especially poor students, and make it possible for them to enter the Library under easier conditions ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) No, an old rule which was in abeyance for sometime has been revived.

(b) No.

(c) Temporary tickets are issued to daily readers.

(d) No.

(e) Students whose applications are endorsed by the Professor of any College in Calcutta or by some respectable gentleman can always gain admission to the reading room of the Library by application to the Librarian ; so can members of the general public. The need for revising the rules does not therefore arise.

TRANSFER OF THE RECORDS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA FROM CALCUTTA TO DELHI.

64. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Is it a fact that the buildings for housing the Imperial records of the Government of India have been completed at New Delhi ?

(b) Is it a fact that some of the records of the Government of India have already been transferred to Delhi ?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state why there is delay in transferring the other records from Calcutta to Delhi ?

(d) Do Government propose to expedite the transfer of the records from Calcutta to Delhi ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) and (d). The condition of the records of the " Company " period, i.e., the period prior to 1860, renders it necessary that they should be classified, flattened and cased and such of them as are damaged repaired in Calcutta before they are transferred to Delhi. This work is now in progress.

TOTAL NUMBER OF APPLICATIONS AND APPEALS TO THE ASSISTANT COMMISSIONERS OR THE COMMISSIONER OF CALCUTTA UNDER SECTIONS 27 AND 30 OF THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX ACT, 1922.

65. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the total number of applications and appeals respectively, under sections 27 and 30 of the Indian Income-tax Act of 1922, preferred to the Assistant Commissioners or to the Commissioner of Calcutta, as the case may be, during the period of six months from May 1926 to October 1926, and how many of these applications and appeals were either allowed (including modifications of assessments) or rejected ?

(b) Will the Government be further pleased to lay a statement on the table shewing how many applications and appeals under sections 27 and 30, respectively, were preferred to the Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax, Calcutta, and how many of them were either allowed (including modifications of assessments) or rejected during a period of six months from November 1926 to April 1927 ?

(c) Who were the Assistant Commissioners of Calcutta during May 1926 to October 1926 and from November 1926 and after ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a), (b) and (c). A statement giving the information asked for is laid on the table. In the question the words " preferred to the Assistant Commissioners or to the Commissioner of Calcutta, as the case may be " should presumably read " preferred to the Income-tax Officers or to the Assistant Commissioners, as the case may be ". Such applications and appeals do not lie to the Commissioners of Income-tax except when an Assistant Commissioner is exercising the powers of an Income-tax Officer. It may be noted that as the bulk of assessments are made during the last two quarters of the year, the number of applications under section 27 and of appeals under section 30 is larger in the second than in the first half year.

		Allowed.	Rejected.	Total.
(a) Applications under Section 27.	May 1926 to October 1926	107	177	284

1. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table recent correspondence, if any, relating to the prolonged stay of the Government of India in New Delhi ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Government are not prepared to place the correspondence on the table.

INTERCEPTION OF MRS. BESANT'S LETTERS.

2. Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a signed article in New India of May 16th by Mrs. Besant complaining against interception of her letters by the Government ?

(b) Is it a fact that Mrs. Besant's letters have been intercepted ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) and (b). Government have seen the article referred to. The allegation made by Mrs. Besant is that for some months past her letters have been intercepted and intefered with by Government. The allegation is entirely without foundation.

INTERCEPTION OF LETTERS WRITTEN TO OR BY DANGEROUS CHARACTERS.

3. Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : (a) Is it a fact that the letters written to or by dangerous characters are intercepted by the orders of Government ?

(b) If the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for such orders ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) and (b). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the provisions of the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (Act VI of 1898), which empowers Governments in India to intercept correspondence on the occurrence of a public emergency or in the interest of the public safety or tranquillity.

PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT'S SHARE OF THE INCOME-TAX COLLECTED IN BIHAR AND ORISSA.

4. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that the net total of the Income-tax collected in Bihar and Orissa in 1926-27 was Rs. 39,47,179 of which the share of the Provincial Government was Rs. 3,23,581 only ? If so, will Government be pleased to say if they propose to bring about a more equitable adjustment of the shares between the Provincial and the Central Governments in this matter ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The correct figures of the net total of income-tax collected in Bihar and Orissa in 1926-27 and of the share of the Provincial Government are Rs. 38,61,792 and Rs. 3,24,361, respectively. As regard the second part of the question, the Honourable Member is referred to the reply given on the 7th March 1928 to the unstarred question by Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan, No. 325.

LOCATION OF THE INDIAN REFRESHMENT ROOM AT PATNA JUNCTION.

5. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Are Government aware that the building of the Patna Junction railway station (East Indian Railway) has become insufficient for the growing needs of the Railway, as well as of the travelling public, in view of Patna being the capital of the Province of Bihar and Orissa, and requires remodelling and expansion ?

(b) What arrangements, if any, are contemplated in this direction ?

(c) Are Government aware that the European refreshment room at Patna Junction is situated on the station platform, while the Indian refreshment room has been located outside the main station building, and at some distance from it, and that it is thereby causing considerable inconvenience to passengers ? Do Government propose to arrange for the location of the Indian refreshment room on the main platform of the station ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). There is no scheme for the remodelling of the Patna Junction railway station at present before Government.

(c) Government are not aware of the exact location of the Indian refreshment room, but are sending a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent of the East Indian Railway with a request that he will consider whether the arrangements at this station require improvement.

REDUCTION OF INTERMEDIATE CLASS FARES ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

6. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh: Is it a fact that the fares of first, second and third classes have been reduced on the East Indian Railway, and that the fares of the intermediate class have not at all been reduced ? If so, why ? Do Government propose to reduce intermediate class fares as well ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Intermediate class fares by ordinary trains on the East Indian Railway were reduced on the 1st of January 1926 and by mail trains on the 1st of March, 1928. No further reduction is at present in contemplation.

EMPLOYMENT OF ADDITIONAL BOOKING CLERKS TO COPE WITH THE HEAVY THIRD CLASS BOOKING AT PATNA JUNCTION.

7. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that at Patna Junction railway station (East Indian Railway) there is only one booking clerk for the third class to issue tickets for the Up, Down and other trains, much delay and inconvenience being caused thereby to passengers ? Do Government propose to provide additional hands to cope with the heavy third class booking at that station ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government do not receive information as to the number of booking clerks at individual stations, but have sent a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent of the East Indian Railway for such action as may be found to be required.

SEPARATION OF THE OFFICE OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY FROM THE LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

8. Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if they have consulted the Secretary of State regarding the separation of the office of the Legislative Assembly from the Legislative Department ?

(b) When do they propose to put the scheme into operation ?

Mr. L. Graham : (a) The reply is in the affirmative.

(b) As soon as possible after the sanction of the Secretary of State is received.

WANT OF A DEAD LETTER OFFICE IN THE BIHAR AND ORISSA POSTAL CIRCLE.

9. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that there was a Dead Letter Office at Dinapore till 1905 and it was amalgamated with the Calcutta Dead Letter Office by reason of the partition of Bengal in that year ?

(b) Is it a fact that after the creation of the province of Bihar and Orissa, the Post and Telegraph Department created at Patna a separate postal circle, known as the Bihar and Orissa Postal Circle, without any Dead Letter Office ?

(c) Is it a fact that the original intention of the Post and Telegraph Department was to open a Dead Letter Office at Patna and that not only was room allotted for the Dead Letter Office in the original plan of the new postal building at Patna but Mr. Sullivan, the then Personal Assistant to the Postmaster General, Bihar and Orissa, was sent to Calcutta in connection with the establishment of the office at Patna ?

(d) If the answer to part (c) is in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state in detail the reason for abandoning the intention of establishing a Dead Letter Office at Patna and place on the table of this House the correspondence substantiating those details ?

(e) Is there any Postal circle other than the Bihar and Orissa Circle which has no Dead Letter Office under it ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state their names ?

(f) Is it a fact that the Postmaster General of Bihar and Orissa has no hand in the matter of supervision or administration of the Calcutta Dead Letter Office notwithstanding the fact that it is the Dead Letter Office of Bengal and Bihar and Orissa ?

(g) Are Government aware of the fact that the testing of the efficiency of post offices in Bihar and Orissa suffers much for want of a Dead Letter Office in the circle ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) No.

(d) Does not arise.

(b) What steps have Government taken, or propose to take, to remedy this racial differentiation ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (b). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the answers given by Mr. Bhore to his starred question No. 252 and the connected supplementaries on the same subject on the 2nd February 1927. No suitable opportunity has since occurred of suggesting an increase in the representation of the Indian community on the Fiji Legislative Council.

ABOLITION OF THE POL-TAX LEVIED ON INDIANS IN FIJI.

23. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that Mr. Badri Maharaj, who was the only Indian—a nominated member—on the Fiji Legislative Council, resigned his seat as a protest against the imposition of the poll-tax in Fiji ? Is this tax levied only on Indians ? If so, why ? Have Government taken any steps to bring about its abolition ?

25. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government kindly state how far the project of constructing a railway line from Rishikesh to Karnprayag, in Garhwal (United Provinces) has progressed ?

(b) Is it a fact that the programme of railway construction and projects for 1929-30 which was placed before the twenty-second meeting of the Board of Communications, United Provinces, held at Lucknow, on the 4th April 1928, included the Rishikesh-Karnprayag Railway ? (b) Is there any proposal for constructing such a line ? If not, why not ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) The answer to the first part of this question is, no, and to the second, that there is no hope of any such line being at present remunerative.

Western Railway, are entitled to the same furlough rules as European officers on those Railways are entitled to ?

(b) What is the position of Indian officers appointed in India, and in England, regarding leave rules on State Railways, compared with those on Company Railways ? Are the status of Indian officers in this matter the same on these Company Railways as on State Railways ? If not, why not ?

(c) Do Government propose to take necessary steps to equalise their status, so that Indian officers may not be worse off in this respect as compared with English officers ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) No.

(b) The grant of furlough to officers of Asiatic domicile on State-managed Railways is regulated by the Fundamental Rules of which there is a copy in the Library. The Fundamental Rules are not in force on Company-managed Railways ; but the Companies can frame leave rules for their employees, whether European or Indian, within the limits of certain general rules which were laid down in 1901, and a copy of which is in the Library. As a result, the leave rules, of both European and Indian Officers, on Company-managed Railways are not the same as those of officers on State-managed Railways.

(c) Government do not propose to take any action. The officers concerned are the servants of the Companies, and it rests with the Companies to determine what their leave rules should be within the limits laid down in 1901.

28. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : With reference to starred question No. 453 of the 19th March 1928, and the reply of Government that there is a separate waiting room for first and second class European passengers at Hardwar railway station, will the Government be pleased to state why this racial discrimination is being maintained ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Agent has instructed the Divisional Superintendent that the upper class waiting rooms are to be available for all passengers with upper class tickets and are not to be reserved solely for European passengers.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The answer to the first question is in the affirmative. The report was submitted to the Government of India on the 28th December 1927 ; it is now under consideration, but no final conclusion have yet been reached by Government. Six copies of the report have been placed in the Library of the House.

31. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : With reference to my unstarred question No. 382 of the 13th March 1928, regarding the smuggling of opium from Nepal into the Province of Bihar and Orissa, and the reply of the Government that "measures for checking smuggling from Nepal are being considered", will Government kindly state the measures which have been taken, or are proposed to be taken, to check this evil ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The matter is still under consideration.

NOMINATION OF A QUALIFIED SIKH TO THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE IN 1928.

32. Sardar Gulab Singh : (1) Is it true that a certain number of selections of qualified candidates are made every year by the Government of India for nomination to the Indian Civil Service with the object of adjusting communal inequalities arising out of the results of the yearly examination ?

(2) Is it true that matters other than position of the candidate in the examination, such as family services to the Government, are also taken into consideration in making the above-mentioned selections ?

(3) Is it a fact (a) that, in view of the principle mentioned in (1), no Hindu candidate could have been selected this year ; (b) that Mr. Tarlochan Dass Bedi, S/o Ishar Dass Bedi, of Dera Baba Nanak, Punjab, has been selected this year ?

(4) Are Government aware of the fact that the Sikh community has been, for some years past, ventilating its grievance that a due share is not given to it in the said selections ?

(5) Is it a fact (a) that the Government of India this year allotted one post to the Sikh community for selection ; and asked for the recommendation of a Sikh candidate ; (b) that the Punjab Government recommended the aforesaid Mr Tarlochan Dass Bedi for selection as a Sikh candidate ?

(6) Is it a fact (a) that the Sikh community, through its various agencies, conveyed, to the Government, its protest against the recommendation and selection of Mr. Tarlochan Dass Bedi as a Sikh as he is not a Sikh but is a Hindu ; (b) that the Government of India were favourable to the above Sikh view ?

(7) Are Government aware of the strong feeling prevalent among the Sikh community to the effect that the said post reserved for it this year has not been given to it ?

(8) Will the Government be pleased to state (a) why the said post has not been given to a qualified Sikh candidate ; (b) whether it has been withdrawn ? If so, why ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (1) Selections are made by the Government of India on the advice of the Public Service Commission.

(2) No. The only question taken into consideration is the individual candidate's personal fitness for appointment.

(3) (a) It was not found necessary to reserve for Hindus any of the vacancies set aside for adjusting communal inequalities.

(b) Yes.

(4) The Sikh community, like other communities, has no doubt pressed its claims.

(5), (6), (7) and (8). The Government of India asked the Public Service Commission to recommend a Sikh candidate. They recommended Mr. Bedi. The Government of India asked the Punjab Government whether they accepted Mr. Bedi as a Sikh, and on the Punjab Government replying in the affirmative the appointment was recommended to the Secretary of State, and Mr. Bedi was appointed. The Government of India received a number of representations to the effect that Mr. Bedi should not be regarded as a Sikh. These were communicated to the Government of the Punjab, whose opinion remained unchanged.

PREVENTION OF FLOODS.

33. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Have Government taken any step to check floods ?

(b) If so, will they please state what those steps are ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) and (b). I would remind the Honourable Member that flood prevention is primarily a provincial concern. But in view of the importance of the subject, the Government of India in 1924 and again in 1927 drew the attention of all Local Governments to the matter and offered to assist them in investigating the causes of and remedies for recurring floods. An expert Committee, of which the Consulting Engineer to the Government of India was a member, has recently been investigating the problem in Orissa.

35. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Are Government willing to allow conveyance allowance to Members during the Simla Session of the Assembly and Members living in New Delhi during the Delhi Session as they allow to Members living in Delhi during the Delhi Session ?

(b) If not, will they please state the reasons ?

Mr. L. Graham : (a) Non-official Members who reside in New Delhi and do not draw free haulage of a motor car or a carriage and horses may draw a conveyance allowance of Rs. 50 per mensem for the period for which they are entitled to daily allowance.

(b) The Government of India can see no justification for granting a special allowance, over and above the daily allowance of Rs. 20, to Honourable Members in Simla, where conditions are different from those prevailing in New Delhi.

COST OF THE KABUL LEGATION.

36. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the cost of the Kabul Legation is paid wholly from the Indian Exchequer ?

(b) If so, do they propose to represent to the Secretary of State to consider the desirability of having the cost of the Kabul Legation shared equally by India and Great Britain ?

(c) If the answer to (b) be in the negative, will Government please state reasons ?

Sir Denys Bray : I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the answer given by me to questions Nos. 42, 87, 101 and 389 on the 25th August 1925.

LIBERATION OF SLAVES IN INDIA AND ITS OUTLYING TRACTS.

37. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : Will Government please state what further progress, if any, has been made in the attempt for the liberation of slaves in India and its outlying tracts ?

Sir Denys Bray : I propose for convenience sake to give a single answer to the Honourable Member's four questions* on the subject of slavery.

2. The newspaper reports referred to are generally correct.

3. In the course of the anti-slavery operations on the North East border of Burma last cold weather, 1,398 were released in the Triangle and adjoining area. With the exception of 20 slaves who live in a remote area beyond the scope of those operations, abolition of slavery in the Kachin Hills is believed to be complete.

4. A full account of the Triangle expedition is contained in Mr. Barnard's report, a copy of which has been placed in the Library.

5. Further measures to cope with the difficult problem of suppressing human sacrifice in the more inaccessible parts of the Naga Hills and Hukawng Valley are under consideration.

*Nos. 37, 108, 134 and 150.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : In Assam, opium smoking has been totally prohibited by legislation. A system of registration and rationing is in force in Burma. No new names can be added to the register, and with the gradual disappearance of the persons now on the register, opium smoking will cease to exist in Burma. Smoking in company has been prohibited by legislation in the Punjab, Delhi, the North-West Frontier Province, Baluchistan and the United Provinces. An Act prohibiting opium smoking in Bihar and Orissa, except by registered smokers, was passed by the local Legislative Council in January 1928. It will come into force from the 1st January 1929. A Bill aiming at the ultimate prohibition of opium smoking in the Central Provinces is being discussed by the local Legislative Council. The Government of Madras propose to undertake legislation prohibiting opium smoking altogether. The Government of Bombay are also considering measures to bring about the ultimate suppression of opium smoking in the Presidency. A Bill to penalise opium smoking by other than registered smokers is being drafted by the Government of Bengal.

(Vide question No. 4 in the meeting of the Council of State on 6th February 1928) ?

(b) If so, will they please communicate its decision to the House ?

Mr. A. A. L. THE POST OFFICE GUARANTEE FUND.

45. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : With reference to Government reply to question No. 8 (e) and (f) in the meeting of the Council of State on 6th February 1928, stating that Rs. 10,75,651 were credited to the Capital Account of the Posts and Telegraphs Department, will Government please state for what purpose this fund has or will be utilized ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : As the purposes for which this fund was instituted, and its disposal, have been the subject of repeated questions in the Assembly, I will give a brief statement about it which I hope will make the position clear to the Honourable Member.

The Post Office Guarantee Fund came into existence in 1873 with, as its object, the making good within certain limits at the collective cost of the Post Office staff losses caused by the negligence or misconduct by postal employees. Subscriptions were taken at fixed rates of Rs. 2 and Re. 1 per annum according to pay, which rates of subscription were subsequently reduced, and finally, in 1905, ceased altogether to be levied. As the balance of the Fund grew, objects such as the grant of compassionate gratuities to the staff were included in the scope of the Fund, with the result that by 1925 expenditure of the following kinds was being met from it :

(a) losses caused by the negligence or misconduct of postal staff which would otherwise be irrecoverable,

(b) rewards for specially honest and courageous service of postal officials in the discharge of their duties,

(c) compensation to postal officials for loss of private property, due to accidents, e.g., fire, floods, suffered by them while on duty,

(d) cost of journeys undertaken by certain low paid postal staff in connection with medical examination for the Post Office Insurance Fund ; and (e) compassionate gratuities to postal staff and their dependants.

Of recent years the interest, amounting to a little over half a lakh of rupees annually, accruing on the existing investments of the fund proved no longer sufficient to meet all these charges. Government were not prepared to resume the former practice of levying subscriptions from the staff, and was decided to abolish the fund by crediting to the Post and Telegraph Capital Account the sale proceeds of the securities in which it was invested (amounting with interest to about Rs. 11 lakhs) and that, in future, expenditure under the various heads enumerated above should be budgeted for in full in the working expenses budget of the Department in the ordinary way. The total of these items of expenditure is considerably in excess of the interest which was formerly obtained from the fund investments, and it is obvious therefore that those who are interested in the disposal of the benefit by the decision taken in the matter.

SAFETY OF MAIL RUNNERS, ETC.

46. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : Will Government please state :

(a) What safeguards they have provided for the safety of the mail runners when they have to pass through dangerous places, namely, places where they may be liable to attacks from beasts or robbers ?

(b) Whether they propose to give one day's holiday in a week to postmen ; and, if not, what relief they propose to give to the postmen in this regard ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given on the 26th January 1926 by the Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra to his starred question No. 250 in the Legislative Assembly. The measures described in that reply have been introduced and are being extended as far as funds permit ; but the Honourable Member will realise that to set on foot these measures to the maximum possible extent would be a very expensive business. The question of their extension is receiving the further attention of Government particularly with reference to the decision that, where cash or insured articles of over a specified value are carried, the runners should ordinarily be doubled, since it is doubtful whether in this case the precaution may not defeat its own object by advertising the value of the mail bags and may thus merely result in exposing two persons instead of one to danger. The Honourable Member may be assured that Government are doing their best to ensure the safety of mail runners where they are exposed to danger.

(b) The matter is under examination.

ELECTRIFICATION OF RAILWAYS FOR THE CALCUTTA SUBARBAN TRAFFIC SERVICE.

47. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : Will Government please state what further progress has been made regarding the electrification of railways for the Calcutta suburban traffic service (vide Government reply to question No. 90 in the meeting of the Council of State on the 13th March 1928) ?

49. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if any further releases of the persons detained under Regulation III of 1818 and the Bengal Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1925, have been made since the question No. 106 was put in the meeting of the Council of State on 13th March 1928 ?

(b) If so, what is the number of the persons so released ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The number of releases at the end of February was 118. On the 15th August the number of releases totalled 170. On the latter date there were only 13 persons under any form of restraint under the Bengal Criminal Law Amendment Act, and none of these were detained in jail.

50. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : Will the Government please state the names of the High Courts which have framed rules under the Indian Bar Councils Act, 1926 ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Rules under the Indian Bar Councils Act, 1926, have been framed by the Madras, Calcutta, and Allahabad High Courts, and the Chief Court of Oudh. Government have been informed that the rules in respect of the Bombay, Rangoon and Patna High Courts will be ready by the 1st January 1929.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) No.

(b) The report and estimates are expected shortly.

(a) If they have arrived at any decision on the Resolution received by the Railway Board from the Indian Railway Conference Association ?

WANT OF A RAILWAY IN THE SATKHIRA SUB-DIVISION, BENGAL.

56. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to Government reply to question No. 67 (b) in the meeting of the Council of State on the 20th February 1928, will Government please state if the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, who was asked to look into the matter, has submitted any report ?

(b) If so, do Government propose to communicate the gist of the report to the House ?

(c) If the answer to part (a) above is in the negative, do Government propose to ask the Agent to expedite the matter ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a), (b) and (c). The Agent of the Eastern Bengal Railway has pointed out that in any case the Satkhira Navaran Railway could not, in view of the other projects on the Programme, be taken up for several years, and that, as it was undesirable to proceed with traffic and engineering surveys considerably in advance of the time at which construction was likely to be possible, he did not think it desirable to reinvestigate this particular project immediately, and the Railway Board have accepted his views.

GRANT OF SCHOLARSHIPS TO INDIAN STUDENTS FOR ARCHAEOLOGICAL TRAINING IN EUROPE.

57. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : With reference to Government reply to question No. 70 (a) (b) in the meeting of the Council of State on the 27th February 1928, regarding grant of scholarships to Indian students for archæological training in Europe, do Government propose to grant scholarships to Indian students for archæological training in Europe ? (b) If so, do they propose to communicate its decision to the House ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I would refer the Honourable Member to the answer given to his question No. 53 of date.

USE OF "CERTIFIED" FLAME-PROOF APPARATUS IN INDIAN MINES.

60. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state why no steps have so far been taken to enforce by regulation the use of "certified" flame-proof apparatus in Indian mines [vide Government reply to starred question No. 46 (b) given in the meeting of the Legislative Assembly on 1st February 1928] ?

(b) Will Government also please state if they propose to take any steps in the matter in the near future ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) and (b). Rule 99 of the Indian Electricity Rules lays down the precautions which must be taken in the use of electrical apparatus in any part of a mine where inflammable gas or vapour is likely to occur. There has so far been no instance in Indian mines where ignition has been caused by sparking from electrical machines. An increasing proportion of "certified" electrical apparatus is being used in Indian mines, and the Government of India do not at present propose to enforce by regulation the use of "certified" flame-proof apparatus.

(b) If so, will they please lay a copy of the report on the table of the House ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) The Agent's suggestion that food be served out to emigrants by making them sit in rows was not considered feasible by the Shipping Agents. His suggestion regarding the supply of eating dishes to emigrants has also not been accepted owing to—

(i) the preference of some emigrants to receive food on leaves ;

(ii) the refusal of several emigrants to use dishes used in previous voyages ; and

(iii) the difficulty of properly washing and disinfecting a large number of these dishes.

The suggestion regarding the supply of tin cups for drinking water or for ablution purposes has been accepted and is being given effect to.

PROHIBITION OF THE EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN UNDERGROUND.

64. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have arrived at any decision on the views of the Mining Boards, regarding prohibition of the employment of women underground in mines (vide the latter portion of Government reply to starred question No. 33 in the meeting of the Legislative Assembly on 1st February 1928) ?

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) and (b). The provisional conclusions of the Government of India on the matter are set out in their Notification No. M.-1055, dated the 14th June 1928, publishing draft regulations for criticism in accordance with the provisions of section 31 (1) of the Indian Mines Act, 1923. The attention of the Honourable Member is also invited to the press communiqué, dated the 22nd June 1927, and the circular letters inviting the views of the Local Governments, copies of which are available in the Library of the House.

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Government have come to the following conclusions :

(1) The fact that a Union has been registered under the Indian Trade Unions Act should predispose an Agent to accept it as representing the interests of its members and their views.

(2) The decision whether, and if so to what extent, a claim of any particular Union to represent matters affecting the staff of the railway may be admitted must be dependent on the extent to which the Union in question is actually representative, in its numbers, influence and standing, of the staff as a whole or of a particular class or particular classes of the staff.

(b) If so, will Government please communicate the result of the enquiries to the House ?

Sir Denys Bray : (a) Yes, and the result was duly communicated to the Honourable Member who asked the question.

(c) No. The deceased had obtained only a share in the joint property. The superintendence of the property remained with the Court of Wards in accordance with the provisions of Punjab Act II of 1903 (see sections 8, 10 and 46).

(d) Her mother so applied on her behalf. But it had been decided by Government fourteen years previously that a female could not be recognised as head of the family, and that in default of a suitable male member the Court of Wards must be regarded as head of the family pro tem.

(e) No. A daughter of Mirza Suraiya Jah and her son and daughters are also living.

(f) See (e) above. The question of her mother's dower debt is under consideration together with other heavy liabilities of her deceased father, whose property has come under the Court of Wards.

With reference to (h) above, the Officiating Chief Commissioner, Delhi, has submitted a report of the arrangements which have been approved by him in connection with the affairs of the late Mirza Salim Mohammad Shah.

A summary of that report is attached herewith for the Honourable Member's information; a copy has been sent to the Honourable Mr. Muhammad Ismail Khan.

Summary.

1. After investigation under section 26 of the Punjab Court of Wards Act, II of 1903, of the outstanding claims against the deceased Mirza Salim Mohammad Shah, son of the late Mirza Suraiya Jah, it was found that the deceased's share in the joint property was heavily involved in debt to the extent of Rs. 75,628, as detailed below :—

	Rs.
(a) Court of Wards	47,028
(b) Dower of widow Nawab Qaisar Jehan Begum	20,000
(c) Messrs. Alopi Pershad Ram Sarup	8,500
(d) M. Saiduddin	100
	75,628

As regards (b), Nawab Qaisar Jehan Begum claimed as her dower allowance the sum of Rs. 50,000, but as the dower promised was considered exorbitant, she was allowed a maximum of Rs. 20,000.

As regards (c), Messrs. Alopi Pershad Ram Sarup put in a claim of Rs. 19,500 for subsidizing the civil suit of the late Mirza Salim Mohammad Shah, but the amount allowed them was Rs. 8,500 only, without interest.

As regards (d), M. Saiduddin holds a promissory note for Rs. 100 which has been submitted for payment.

2. The total value of the share of the late Mirza Salim Mohammad Shah is Rs. 88,753-14-0, and after deducting the amount of the debts mentioned above, the divisible value of the property remains at Rs. 13,125 which devolves on the reversioners in the shares to which each is entitled under the Muhammadan Law, as shown below :

Names of creditors and reversioners.	Share of each reversioner under Muhammedan Law.	Value of share.	Debts payable by deceased.	Total share of reversioner.
	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.
1. M. Saiduddin	..	..	100 0 0	..
2. Messrs. Alopi Pershad Ram Sarup.	..	..	8,500 0 0	..
3. Nawab Qaisar Jehan Begum (widow).	1 8 0	1,640 11 9	20,000 0 0	21,640 11 9
4. Mussammat Taimur Jehan Begum (daughter).	4 8 0	6,562 15 0	..	6,562 15 0
5. Nawab Badshah Jehan Begum (sister).	3 8 0	4,922 3 3	47,028 0 0	51,950 3 3
Total ..	..	13,125 14 0	75,628 0 0	80,153 14 0

3. Of the creditors, Messrs. Alopi Pershad Ram Sarup and Saiduddin will be paid in cash. As no surplus money is available and as the deceased's share is under the superintendence of the Court of Wards and no charge can be created on its (this ?) share, under section 8 of the Punjab Court of Wards Act, the claims of these creditors are therefore to be met from the income which will accrue hereafter, i.e.,

(a) Rs. 100 to M. Saiduddin in December 1928.

(b) Rs. 1,000 per annum without interest at the end of each month of March to Messrs. Alopi Pershad Ram Sarup.

4. As regards the reversioners in the case, in the first place it will not be possible within the next few years to pay them in cash, and in the second, such a course is not considered desirable. It has therefore been decided to raise the share of their joint property to the extent of their debts as indicated below :

	Present share of each reversioner under Muhammadan Law, vide paragraph 2 above.	Rate of share under the new arrangement.
	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.
Nawab Qaisar Jehan Begum ..	1 8 0	1 4 0
Musammat Timur Jehan Begum ..	4 8 0	1 12 0
Nawab Badshah Jehan Begum ..	3 8 0	2 3 0

Mir Dard. The claim was rejected on the 18th April 1919 by the District Judge, by the following order—

(ii) The Anjuman Muhafiz Auqaf, Delhi, filed an application in the Court of the District Judge, Delhi, requesting that the compensation for certain lands be made over to the Anjuman for expenditure in connection with mosques and grave yards on behalf of the Muslim community of Delhi. The question of the establishment of a trust for the purpose was thereupon considered by Government ; but the legal and other difficulties were found to be great. The local Administration, however, proposed to look into the matter again and see if there is any possible alternative.

(d) there are now seven women legislative councillors in India including those in the Indian States ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c). I would refer the Honourable Member to sections 366, 366A, 366B, 372 and 373 of the Indian Penal Code. In addition to the provisions contained in these sections, there are local enactments on the subject in force in Bombay, Calcutta and Rangoon dealing with the special problems that arise in these cities ; namely, Bombay Act XI of 1923, Bengal Act XIII of 1923 and Burma Act II of 1921. The Government of India consider that, so far as the general problems arising out of traffic in women are concerned, the provisions contained in the Indian Penal Code are sufficiently comprehensive. It is obviously for the Local Governments to consider whether the special conditions existing in any area within their jurisdiction call for any special measures on the lines of the enactments referred to.

But the Honourable Member is no doubt aware that His Majesty's Government have since omitted from the Administration of Justice Bill that part which related to the Judicial Committee which was opposed in order to secure the passage through the House of Commons of the rest of the Bill in view of the state of Parliamentary business. It is however the intention of His Majesty's Government to proceed with the Bill at the earliest opportunity.

Indian Police and the Indian Forest Service (vide Government reply to the second supplementary question to starred question No. 249 on the 20th February, 1928) ?

Mr. G. M. Young : I am unable to trace any statement by the late Lord Rawlinson, or by any other Government spokesman, to the effect suggested by the Honourable Member. The Honourable Member is possibly thinking of a passage in a speech made by Lord Rawlinson in the Assembly on the 5th March, 1924. He will find it on page 1165 of the Legislative Assembly debates of that year.

EVIDENCE OF GOVERNMENT SERVANTS BEFORE THE STATUTORY COMMISSION.

(b) If so, will they please furnish it to the House ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) I hardly think that the matter is of sufficient general interest. But if the Honourable Member desires a copy of the papers, I shall be glad to furnish him with one.

(b) If so, will they please lay a copy of it on the table ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) I have had a copy placed in the Library of the House.

137. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if they have received information regarding the question of hardships of pilgrims at Kamaran [vide Government reply to starred question No. 170 (a) and (b) on the 10th February 1928] ?

(b) If so, will they please furnish information to the House ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : A note containing the information furnished by the Government of Bombay has been placed in the Library.

ARRANGEMENT FOR LODGING FOR PILGRIMS AT KAMARAN.

138. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if the accommodation that was under construction has been completed [vide Government reply to starred question No. 172 (c) on the 10th February, 1928], regarding the arrangements for lodging, etc., for the pilgrims who leave the ship for quarantine purposes at Kamaran ?

(b) If so, what is the cost of the construction and how many persons are expected to be accommodated in it ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) The cost of construction of the more substantial accommodation was Rs. 3,858. Nine private dressing rooms have been provided of which six are for males and three for females. One stone building in each pilgrim camp has been provided with better accommodation for 6 families. A kiosklike hut has been constructed with 2 cabinets, each containing 72 drawers fitted with locks, for storing the valuables of pilgrims.

CONSTRUCTION OF QUARTERS FOR THE CLERKS OF THE HEAD POST OFFICE AT MOTIHARI.

139. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the Motihari Head Post Office in Bihar and Orissa Circle is situated at a distance of more than a mile from the town ?

(b) Is it a fact that the said post office is managed by nine clerks, six of whom have got split duties, and that consequently they have to walk four times from their houses to the post office say about 6 miles a day ?

(c) Is it a fact that rented houses near the post office are none, and that even in the town they are not available even at a prohibitive rental ?

(d) Is it a fact that the clerks of the said post office petitioned the Postmaster General, Bihar and Orissa Circle, on the 19th July, 1926, and the 13th January, 1927, for construction of quarters ?

(e) Is it a fact that the Bihar and Orissa Provincial Postal and R. M. S. Conferences of 1926 and 1927 passed resolutions Nos. 21 and 37 (a) respectively for construction of quarters for the clerks of the said office ?

(f) Is it a fact that Mr. J. Kumar (Assistant Postmaster General, Bihar and Orissa) investigated the clerks' grievances for quarters in June 1927 ?

(g) Is it a fact that the Superintendent of Post Offices, Gandak Division, has recommended six sets of family quarters for the clerks of the Motihari Head Office to the Postmaster General, Bihar and Orissa ?

(h) Is it a fact that with orders of the Postmaster General a site selection committee consisting of the Sub-divisional Officer, Sadar (Motihari, Presiding Officer), Civil Surgeon, Champaran, Sub-divisional Officer, P. W. D., and the Superintendent of Post Offices, Gandak Division was formed and that the said committee has selected the site for quarters and approved the site plan ?

(i) Is it a fact that the Executive Engineer, Muzaffarpore Division, has prepared the estimate and has forwarded the same to the Postmaster General for sanction ?

(j) Is it a fact that the District Magistrate, Champaran, has approved the proceedings of the site selection committee and has forwarded the same to the Executive Engineer, Muzaffarpore Division, for preparing the estimate ?

(k) If the answers (a) to (j) above be in affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state how far the Government has proceeded in removing this hard-felt grievance of the clerks of the said office for quarters ?

(l) Do Government propose to sanction split duties allowance for the clerks concerned till the construction of quarters near the post Office ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) to (h) and (j) Yes.

(i) The estimate and plan have not reached the Postmaster-General.

(k) The construction of quarters will be undertaken as soon as possible after the estimate referred to in (i) has been received and approved by the proper authorities and funds have been provided.

(l) Government are not prepared to take the action suggested.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE ISHURDI-PABNA-SHADHUGANJ RAILWAY.

140. Mr. K. C. Neogy : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether the recent investigation into the Ishurdi-Pabna-Shadhuganj railway project by the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, has shown that it is capable of yielding an annual return of over 6 per cent. on the capital outlay, which has been estimated at about Rs. 42 lakhs against 53 lakhs of a previous estimate ?

(b) whether this project originated in 1904, and its active consideration has been pending since 1916 ?

(c) whether this line would provide the only railway communication to an important District headquarters town in Bengal ? and (d) whether it is proposed to include the line in the construction programme for 1929-30 ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The Railway Board have not yet received the report of the Agent on this project which was recently investigated by him, and until they have seen the report they cannot state what the annual return is likely to be.

(b) A project for a railway between Pabna and Sara was investigated in 1904 and rejected. A survey for a railway from Ishurdi to Sadhuganj via Pabna was made in 1916. Since that date various means of making a rail connection with Pabna have been under consideration.

(c) The Honourable Member is correct in supposing that there is at present no railway communication to the town of Pabna.

(d) A decision can only be reached when the report of the Agent has been received.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE FARIDPUR-CHARMUGURIA-BARISAL RAILWAY.

141. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Will Government be pleased to state when the Faridpur-Charmuguria-Barisal project will come up for active consideration ?

(b) For how many years has the question of connecting Faridpur with Bhanga been under consideration, apart from the larger project mentioned above ? Does the question of this short extension to Bhanga depend entirely on the said larger project, or is it under separate consideration also ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The Railway Board are awaiting the results of the reconnaissance survey sanctioned in 1926.

(b) I believe that a project which included a connection between Faridpur and Bhanga was mooted in 1888. The survey report of which the receipt is now awaited by the Railway Board will indicate separately the prospects of

(i) a connection between Faridpur and Barisal,

(ii) a connection between Faridpur and Bhanga, and these will be considered in due course.

PROVISION OF A PLATFORM AND WAITING ROOMS AT FARIDPUR, EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

142. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) When was the railway station at Faridpur (Eastern Bengal Railway) first opened ?

(b) Are Government aware that Faridpur is the headquarters town of an important District in Bengal ?

(c) Are Government aware (or if not, will they make inquiries in the matter ?) that the Eastern Bengal Railway authorities have refused to provide a platform at the Faridpur railway station all these years, in spite of representations from officials and the non-official public and repeated criticisms in the Press ?

(d) Are Government aware of any railway station or any other District headquarters town which has not been provided with a platform ?

(e) Are Government aware that there are no proper waiting room accommodation nor other amenities at the Faridpur railway station ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons: (a) April 1899.

(b) Government are aware that Faridpur is the head-quarters of a District in Bengal.

(c) and (e). There have been representations on the subject and the Agent is considering the complete reconstruction of the station at Faridpur and will no doubt consider to what extent the facilities mentioned in these two parts of the Honourable Member's question should be provided in the reconstructed station.

(d) Government are unable to make any categorical answer on this point without enquiries which they do not think it worth while to undertake.

CASH CERTIFICATES.

143. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the paragraph published in the issue of the Statesman of the 8th May, 1928, page 10, under the heading " National Savings Movement " ?

(b) If so, will they please state if the figures stated in the sub-heading " Cash Certificates " are correct ?

(c) If not, will Government please state the correct figures in the years referred to ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) Does not arise.

VISIT OF THE MALARIA COMMISSION OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO INDIA.

144. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : With reference to the extract " It referred also to the hope of the Government of India that the League's Malaria Commission might be able to visit India during the latter part of 1928 ", from the Final Report of the Delegates of India to the Eighth (Ordinary) Session of the Assembly of the League of Nations 1927, page 25, under the heading " Work of the health organisation ", will Government please state if they can give any further information on the matter, namely, whether the League's Malaria Commission will visit India during the latter part of 1928 ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Council of the League of Nations have accepted the invitation of the Government of India asking the Malaria Commission to visit this country, but the time of the visit has not yet been fixed.

FORMATION OF AN ADVISORY COMMITTEE OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY AT PATNA.

145. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Have Government received letter No. 411, dated the 9th May 1928 from the Secretary, Bihar and Orissa Chamber of Commerce, Patna, addressed to the Secretary, Railway Board ?

(b) Is it a fact that there is an Advisory Committee for the East Indian Railway at Calcutta and another at Cawnpore but none for the Province of Bihar and Orissa in Patna ?

(c) Is it a fact that the East Indian Railway has a mileage of about 540 miles in Bengal and of about 1,053 miles in Bihar ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Railway Board has appointed an Advisory Body for the Bengal Nagpur Railway at Cuttack although the Bengal Nagpur Railway has one at Calcutta ?

(e) Is it a fact that the Bengal and North Western Railway has also an Advisory Committee for the Province of Bihar and Orissa which meets at Muzaffarpur ?

(f) If the answer to the above questions be in the affirmative do Government propose to sanction the formation of an Advisory Committee of the East Indian Railway at Patna ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) There is one Committee at Calcutta and one for the United Provinces whose meetings are held alternately at Cawnpore and Lucknow every two months.

(c) This is approximately correct

(d) There is a branch Committee at Cuttack which is appointed by the Bengal Nagpur Railway Administration and not by the Railway Board.

(e) Yes.

(f) The matter is being considered. But I must point out to the Honourable Member that there are considerable practical difficulties in adding to the number of Advisory Committees on any particular railway system owing to the tax which they make on the time of the Agent, and that the Bihar and Orissa Province is represented on the East Indian Railway Calcutta Advisory Committee by two members, one nominated by the Government of Bihar and Orissa and the other by the Bihar and Orissa Legislative Council.

REPRESENTATION OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE AND THE DOMINIONS AND INDIA IN THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

146. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (1) Is it not a fact that (a) Australia, (b) British Empire, (c) Canada, (d) India, (e) New Zealand and (f) South Africa form as different States as shown in the List of States in Appendix I, page 73 of the Final Report of the Delegates of India to the Eighth (Ordinary) Session of the Assembly of the League of Nations 1927 ?

(2) Is it not a fact that (a) Australia, (b) Canada, (c) India, (d) New Zealand and (e) South Africa are parts of the British Empire ?

(3) Will Government please give reasons for the representation of the British Empire as well as of (a) Australia, (b) Canada, (c) India, (d) New Zealand and (e) South Africa as separate States ?

Mr. L. Graham : (1) and (2). The statements of fact herein contained are correct so far as they go, but reference should have been made to the Irish Free State.

(3) The expression "British Empire" in this context has been construed as meaning "Great Britain and Northern Ireland and all parts of the British Empire which are not separate Members of the League".

ALLEGED INTERCEPTION OF MONEY SENT TO MRS. BESANT TO PAY THE FEES OF POOR STUDENTS.

147. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the paragraph published on page 9 of the Statesman of 26th May 1928, under the heading "Money for Mrs. Besant—Labour question in Commons"?

(b) If so, will Government please state if they are in a position to give information to the House as to whether the Madras Government had held up and reclaimed money sent to Mrs. Besant to be used to pay the fees of poor students?

(c) If so, will they please furnish the information to the House?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) I have seen the paragraph.

(b) and (c). The allegation is entirely without foundation.

STATE MANAGEMENT OF THE BURMA RAILWAYS.

148. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the paragraph published on page 6 of the Statesman of the 19th June 1928, under the heading "State Railways in Burma"?

(b) If so, will they please state if the statement made therein, viz., that the Government of India have decided to take over the Burma Railways as a State-managed concern from the commencement of next year is correct?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) and (b). Yes.

REPORT OF THE CINEMA ENQUIRY COMMITTEE.

149. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if they have received the Report of the Cinema Enquiry Committee?

(b) If so, when is it expected to be published?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b) The report was published on the 7th August.

HUMAN SACRIFICE IN BURMA.

†150. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the paragraph published on page 7 of the Englishman of the 28th May, 1928, under the heading "Human Sacrifice"?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 37

(b) Does the custom of human sacrifice still exist in Burma?

(c) If so, in what part or parts of it?

(d) Will Government please state if they propose to take steps to stamp out this barbarous and inhuman custom referred to?

(e) If so, when?

TRAFFIC IN WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

151. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : With reference to the extract "only the first part of the report has been published, the second part having been communicated confidentially to the Governments concerned—of which the Government of India is not one—for such observations as they wish to make", published in the Final Report of the Delegates of India to the Eighth (Ordinary) Session of the Assembly of the League of Nations, page 59, under the heading "Traffic in Women and Children", will Government please give any special reason why the Government of India has been excluded as appears from the last portion of the extract?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The report of the Body of Experts on Traffic in Women and Children was in two parts. Part one gave an account of the facts disclosed by the enquiry and a statement of the conclusions based on them. Part two contained a more detailed statement of the evidence derived from various sources arranged according to countries. When the report was presented to the Council of the League, it was decided to publish Part one immediately and a copy was communicated to the Government of India. In regard to Part two, it was decided in the first instance to send it confidentially to the Governments of the various countries with which it dealt for their observations. India was not one of the countries dealt with in this Part, and a copy was not therefore communicated to the Government of India at the time. A copy of Part two, together with the observations of the Governments referred to above, has since been received.

LANGUAGE IN WHICH THE PROCEEDINGS OF MEETINGS OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS ARE RECORDED.

152. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : Will Government please state :

(a) In what language the proceedings of meetings of the League of Nations are recorded?

(b) If it is a fact that the delegates of the different States speak in the languages of their respective nationalities?

(c) If the answer to (b) be in the affirmative or in other words the delegates speak in other languages than English is there any procedure by which Indian delegates can follow the debates of the Assembly?

Mr. L. Graham : (a) French and English.

(b) Delegates are permitted to speak in the languages of their respective nationalities.

(c) All speeches delivered in English are interpreted in French and vice versa. All speeches delivered neither in English nor in French are interpreted in both English and French.

AGE OF HINDU MARRIED WOMEN.

153 Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that out of every 1,000 Hindu married women, (a) 14 are under 5 years of age, (b) 111 under 10 years of age, (c) 437 under 15 years of age, vide page 244, lines 8 to 10 of the Journal of the Parliaments of the Empire Vol. IX, No. 1, January 1928 ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The statement in the Journal purports to reproduce the gist of a speech made by Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda in this House on the 15th September, 1927, and the figures quoted in the statement were given in that speech. If the Honourable Member wishes to check their accuracy his attention is invited to Table VII in Part II of Volume I of the Census of India, 1921, which he will find in the Library.

TRANSFER OF THE OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX, BIHAR AND ORISSA, FROM RANCHI TO PATNA.

154. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if the Central Board of Revenue has received a communication from the Bihar and Orissa Chamber of Commerce regarding the transfer of the office of the Commissioner of Income-tax, Bihar and Orissa, from Ranchi to Patna vide paragraph published in the issue of the Statesman of 30th June, 1928, under the heading "Claims of Patna—Transfer of Income-tax Office urged" ?

(b) If so, will they please state if any order has been passed thereon ?

(c) If passed, will they please lay a copy of the order on the table ?

(d) If not, by what time do they expect to pass the order ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b), (c) and (d). Government have nothing to add to the answer given by Sir Basil Blackett to Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh's starred question No. 708 in the Legislative Assembly on the 31st August, 1927.

AIR SERVICE TO INDIA.

155. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : Will Government please state if it is correct that the air service to India will begin about April next vide statement published in the issue of the Statesman of 13th July, 1928, page 9, under the heading "Air Service to India") ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : That is the present expectation.

CONSTITUTION OF PROVINCIAL PUBLIC SERVICES COMMISSION.

156. Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state what are the rule-making powers delegated to the Central and Provincial Governments respectively by the Secretary of State in Council under section 96 (B) of the Government of India Act ?

(b) Whether the Secretary of State has authorised the Central or any of the Provincial legislatures to make laws regulating the Public Services to any extent or in any respect or manner ?

(c) If not, whether there is any proposal under consideration to do so ?

(d) Have the Government of India received any proposal of legislation from any Province or Provinces for the constitution of Provincial Public Services Commission ?

(e) Has such legislation been authorised by the Secretary of State in Council under section 96 (B) of the Government of India Act ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) Besides the rule-making powers delegated to the Central and Provincial Governments under certain rules of the Fundamental Rules promulgated in 1922, the Local Governments of Governors' Provinces have been authorised under the Civil Services (Governors' Provinces) Delegation Rules of 1926 to make, subject to certain reservations, rules regulating the method of recruitment, the conditions of service, pay, allowances and pensions of provincial and subordinate services and of officers holding special posts. Draft rules delegating similar powers to the Governor General in Council in respect of officers employed under the Central Government are under the consideration of the Secretary of State in Council.

(b) and (c). The Secretary of State in Council has not given any general authorisation to the Central or Provincial Legislatures, under section 96B (2) of the Government of India Act, to make laws regulating the public services ; but he considers particular proposals for legislation on their merits.

(d) Yes, from Madras.

(e) The question of making a general rule authorising Local Governments to legislate on this matter is at present under consideration.

LAND REVENUE LEGISLATION.

157. Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : (a) With reference to the reply of Government to my questions Nos. 627 and 630, dated 30th August 1927, will the Government be pleased to make any statement whether if any and if so what progress has been made by Provincial Governments in carrying out the recommendations of the Joint Committee of Parliament in 1919 regarding land revenue legislation ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state what administrative action it took or what instructions it conveyed to Provincial Governments in respect of draft land revenue legislation proposed by them and submitted for statutory or administrative sanction ?

(c) Is it a fact that in more than one Province projected legislation in this behalf had been held up or delayed by reason of the difficulties experienced in the Legislature in carrying out the directions of the Government of India ?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state under what provision of law or rules it exercises powers of controlling provincial legislation on a provincial subject like land revenue ?

(e) Will the Government be pleased to state whether in this matter it is subject to any general or specific instructions from the Secretary of State in Council ?

(f) Is the Government of India going to make a report to the Statutory Commission communicating its failure to carry out the recommendations made by the Joint Parliamentary Committee during the last 5 years and the cause thereof ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) The Punjab Government introduced in 1926 a Bill to amend the Punjab Land Revenue Act. This Bill is reported to have been passed by the Legislative Council in May last. In the Central Provinces, the Select Committee of the Legislative Council appointed to consider the Settlement Bill, which was introduced in 1927, has submitted its report. Land Revenue Bills have also been prepared in the United Provinces and Bombay.

(b) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to the answers given to parts (b) and (c) of his question No. 627 on 30th August, 1927.

(c) No.

(d) The action of Local Governments with reference to such legislation is subject to the superintendence, direction and control of the Government of India under section 45 of the Government of India Act.

(e) They are subject to the general instruction that the concurrence of the Secretary of State is to be obtained before executive orders are issued forbidding the introduction of a Bill which a Local Government proposes to introduce in the Provincial Legislative Council.

(f) As the Honourable Member's assumption that the alleged failure to carry out the recommendation of the Joint Parliamentary Committee is due to the Government of India is not correct, the question does not arise.

DEPOSITS HELD BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA UNDER THE CIVIL ACCOUNT CODE WITH THE ACCOUNTANTS GENERAL IN THE VARIOUS PROVINCES.

158. Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : (a) Will the Government of India be pleased to call for and place on the table a statement of the various deposits held by them under the Civil Account Code with the Accountants General in the various Provinces on the 1st of January, 1928, and the periods during which they have been so held ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to call for and lay on the table a statement of deposits lapsed to Provincial Governments in each year commencing from 1923 ?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they propose to amend the Civil Account Code so as to make it obligatory on the Treasury Officers to issue notice to the depositors by registered post before ordering them to lapse to Government ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The compilation of the figures required by the Honourable Member would involve an expenditure of time and labour which could not be justified by the results obtainable, while to prepare a statement of the periods during which the deposits have been held is practically impossible. The figures of outstandings on the 31st March, 1926, which are the latest available, can however be shown to the Honourable Member by arrangement with the Financial Secretary if the Honourable Member will write to him on the subject.

(b) The total amounts of deposits treated as lapsed to Government are shown in the Finance and Revenue Accounts—vide, for example, Accounts 74 and 74A of these accounts for 1926-27.

(c) The Honourable Member is perhaps under the impression that, once a deposit is treated as lapsed, it can never be claimed, by the party concerned. I would invite his attention to Article 207 of the Civil Account Code, Volume I, from which it will be seen that amounts of lapsed deposits can always be refunded with the sanction of the Accountant-General. In the circumstances, Government do not propose to make any amendments of the nature suggested.

TOTAL AMOUNT OF DEPOSITS HELD BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA TO THE CREDIT OF PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENTS.

159. Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the total amount of deposits held by the Government of India to the credit of Provincial Governments under various heads from 1921 ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether any interest on the said deposits held by them has been credited to the Local Governments concerned ?

(c) If not, whether any proposals for the payment of interest to the Local Governments on the deposits held by them have been made and considered ?

(d) Whether they have arrived at any decision in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : It is impossible within a reasonable compass to give the detailed information which my Honourable friend desires. But it will perhaps sufficiently meet his point if I state briefly the general position which is as follows. Under present constitutional arrangements the Central Government act as the banker of all the Provincial Governments and are responsible to furnish them with cash for provincial transactions when and where required. In return the Central Government have the use, free of interest, of all deposits of the kind which I think the Honourable Member has in mind. The Central Government, on the other hand, pay interest to Provincial Governments on the balances accumulated in the Famine Insurance Fund under the provisions of Schedule IV to the Devolution Rules. They also pay to Provincial Governments interest on such portion of the credit balances of the latter as may be placed with the Central Government on fixed deposit in accordance with the Rules contained in Article 298B of the Account Code. The proposition that interest should be paid on other categories of deposits is not at present a live issue. The question is however one which may probably arise in connection with any general revision of the Meston Settlement.

THE CAUVERY-METTUR PROJECT.

160. Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : Will the Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether they have received from the Government of Madras revised estimates for the Cauvery-Mettur project for sanction ?

(b) whether they are aware that a committee appointed by the Madras Government examined the whole matter and submitted a report to the Government ?

(c) whether that Committee has recommended the cutting down of the expenditure under various heads and the substitution of surki mortar concrete for cement concrete and various other economies and improvements ?

(d) whether the experts of the Government of India have given no definite opinion as to the preferability of cement concrete to surki mortar concrete ?

(e) whether in the circumstances the Government of India will re-examine the question before submitting the revised estimates for the approval of the Secretary of State ?

(f) whether they will examine also the other suggestions made by the Committee on the question of reducing expenditure under various other heads ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a), (b) and (c). Yes.

(d) The question was examined on behalf of the Government of India by Chief Engineers of four different provinces. The balance of opinion was in favour of the use of cement concrete.

(e) and (f). The Government of India will consider what questions require re-examination when they receive the proceedings of the Government of Madras on the report.

PROVISION OF AN OVERBRIDGE AT THE CROSSING TO THE EAST OF MOGHALPURA ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

161. Lala Lajpat Rai : (a) Are Government aware that the railway crossing to the east of Moghalpura station on the North Western Railway crosses a very frequented road which leads from Mianmir to Shalamar-Bagh and Amritsar ?

(b) Are Government aware that people wishing to cross that crossing have to wait there as long as half an hour before the gates are opened ?

(c) Are Government prepared to consider the advisability of providing an overbridge at that crossing ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government have no detailed information, but they understand that the provision of an overbridge is under consideration. They are sending a copy of the Honourable Member's question to the Agent of the North-Western Railway to draw his attention to the subject.

DELIVERY OF POSTAL ARTICLES IN THE TOWN OF PATNA.

162. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the paragraph published on page 7 of the Searchlight of the 18th July, 1928, under the heading "A Postal Grievance" ?

(b) Is it a fact that prior to the centralization of the delivery system in the Patna Town the postal articles used to be delivered from all the Post Offices in the town in the same afternoon ?

(c) Is it a fact that this new system of delivery was introduced in the town of Patna in spite of great opposition from the general public ?

(d) Is it a fact that owing to the introduction of this new system the Postal Department has to pay an extra allowance of Rs. 200 a month to the motor contractor and that some additional hands have been also sanctioned and even then the grievances of the public remain unredressed ?

(e) If the answer to (a), (b), (c) and (d) be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state if they are prepared to revert to the old arrangements ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes, but only from the delivery offices.

(c) No.

(d) No. The only additional expense was the increase of Rs. 200 in the mail contractors' subsidy.

(e) The arrangements have since been further improved in certain sectors. It is not proposed to revert to the old arrangements.

MAKING OF APPOINTMENTS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA OFFICES ON A COMMUNAL BASIS.

163. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that in the offices of the Government of India appointments are being made on a communal basis and appointments of members of certain communities have been stopped in some offices ? If so, will the Government state the reasons for such a policy ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I will send the Honourable Member a copy of the orders which provide for the redress of communal inequalities which may arise in the ordinary process of recruitment. These orders do not contemplate that the appointment of members of certain communities should be stopped, and I am not aware of any foundation for such a suggestion.

COMMUNAL PREFERENCE IN APPOINTMENTS TO THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

164. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Are the Government aware that communal preference in appointments is retarding the growth of Indian nationalism by accentuating bitterness among members of the different communities ? If so, what safeguards do the Government propose to provide against the evil ? Is communal preference dependent upon the votes of the Members of the community in the Legislatures ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative. The second part does not arise. The suggestion in the third part that the Government policy in regard to recruitment to the services bears any relation to the way in which members of particular communities cast their votes is entirely without foundation. On the contrary the policy rests on the plain consideration that it is not in the public interest that any particular community should obtain an undue preponderance in the Government services.

EMPLOYMENT OF BENGALEES IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA SECRETARIAT.

165. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that Bengalees are not given the same facilities as other communities for service in the Government of India Secretariat ? Are the Government aware that there is a widespread belief that a Bengalee graduate, however brilliant he may be, will not get an appointment, so long as others are available, however inferior their qualifications may be ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The answer to both parts of the question is in the negative.

FAILURE OF BENGALEE GRADUATES IN THE SECRETARIAT SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

166. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will the Government be pleased to enquire into the causes of the failures if any of the Bengalee graduates in the Secretariat service examinations ? Are the Government aware that there is a widespread belief that they do not get equally fair treatment with others ? If so, is there any truth in such a belief ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Bengalees compete on equal terms with candidates from other Provinces, and if it is a fact that they fail to secure appointments it can only be concluded that they are less well qualified. No special enquiry is called for. As regards the second part of his question I must refer the Honourable Member to the answer that I have just given on the same subject. If such a belief exists, it is unfounded.

DISCHARGE OF A. K. MITRA, RELIEVING CLERK, BURDWAN, BY THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

167. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the reasons for the discharge of A. K. Mitra, relieving clerk, Burdwan, East Indian Railway, as intimated by the Divisional Superintendent, Howrah, in his office No. E. G. 102 28, dated 10th April 1928 ? Are such cases entirely in the disposal of the officer and has the discharged person no remedy from the higher authorities ?

(b) Is it a fact that A. K. Mitra was appointed in consideration of the services of his father, the late P. C. Mitra, who was killed in the war and whose sacrifice received recognition from His Majesty the King ? Is it also a fact that his father and grandfather served the East Indian Railway for more than half a century ? Was such sacrifice and service considered before ordering his discharge without any reason ? Will the Government be pleased to state their general policy in the case of such discharge ?

(c) Is it a fact that A. K. Mitra was discharged without reason ? Will the Government be pleased to state whether they propose to re-instate A. K. Mitra under the circumstances ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government have no information with regard to the individual case mentioned by the Honourable Member and since its disposal is entirely within the competence of the authorities of the East Indian Railway they do not propose to take any action. In accordance with the ordinary rule a non-pensionable railway employee in the event of being discharged from the service has the right of appeal to the Agent if the order of discharge is issued by the Head of his department and to the Head of the appellant's department in all other cases.

ACCIDENT BETWEEN HAIYA GHAT AND KISHANPUR RAILWAY STATIONS ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

168. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that a serious railway accident took place between Haiya Ghat and Kishanpur railway stations (Bengal and North Western Railway), on or about the 22nd January 1928 ?

(b) What was the cause of the accident, and the number of casualties ?

(c) Is it a fact that in view of the serious allegations made regarding the number of casualties, and the treatment of the injured in the hospital, the District Magistrate of Durbhanga was instructed to hold a public enquiry ? Will Government be pleased to procure and lay on the table a copy of the report of the District Magistrate, together with the communication received from the Government of Bihar and Orissa, on the subject ?

(d) Was any one prosecuted, or any departmental action taken against any one in connection with this accident ? And, if so, with what result ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) The cause of the accident in the opinion of the Senior Government Inspector was the derailment of an empty road-van attached next to the engine. The casualties were 8 killed and 15 injured.

(c) Yes, an enquiry was held by the District Magistrate and a copy of his report is laid on the table. Government regret that they cannot agree to publish the correspondence between the Local Government and the Government of India.

(d) The Station Master, Kishanpur, and the Assistant Medical Officer, Samastipur, have been dealt with departmentally by the Agent, Bengal and North-Western Railway.

FROM M. J. DIXON, ESQ., I.C.S., DISTRICT MAGISTRATE, DARBHANGA, TO THE COMMISSIONER OF THE TIRHUT DIVISION, MUZAFFARPUR, LETTER NO. 47, DATED LAHERIASARAI, THE 9TH FEBRUARY 1928.

SUBJECT.—Final Report on the railway accident between Kishanpur and Haiya Ghat railway stations.

In continuation of my previous report No. 33-C., dated the 3rd February 1928, I have the honour to state that I held enquiry at Kishanpur railway station on the 6th February, and at Samastipur railway station and the Civil Hospital, Samastipur, on the 7th February.

The accident took place beyond the southern end of bridge No. 11 A at mile 8|8 which is about 2 miles north of Kishanpur railway station. The line in this part is on a long straight level piece, running over three miles over a low bank which continues beyond the bridge. The bridge itself consists of 20 spans of 20 ft. girders, and is practically a viaduct over a water course there being no parapet and no foot way. There is a large depression at this place in which water remains throughout the year. At about 8-30 P.M. on the night of 22nd January, the 30 Down mixed train from Darbhanga was passing over this bridge. An empty road van attached next to the engine was derailed on the bridge, and striking the parapet wall of the abutment was thrown against the superstructure of a third class bogie carriage following immediately behind, and completely wrecked this coach. The whole superstructure was torn off the under carriage and completely wrecked and thrown down the eastern bank about 100 feet beyond the end of the bridge. The under carriage was derailed about 50 feet further on, and the road van was derailed on the western side. All the passengers of this bogie carriage were hurled out with wreckage and many were killed and injured. The coupling between the road van and the engine was broken and the engine ran on ahead and was pulled up some eighty feet beyond the wreck. The remainder of the train remained on the track and was practically undamaged, there being no casualty to any other passengers except those on the smashed bogie coach.

The composition of the train was as follows :

Engine " F " class 0-6-0 type.
One four-wheeled road-van.
Four bogie 3rd class carriages.
One six-wheeled inter and 3rd class carriage.
One six-wheeled inter class carriage.
One six-wheeled 2nd class carriage.
One six-wheeled 1st class carriage.
One six-wheeled brake van.

The train was non-vacuum.

At first it was generally believed that the cause of the accident was due to the engine parting with the rest of the train and instead of running ahead was stopped with a view to attach itself to the rake which was still moving with momentum, and this caused the collision resulting in the derailment of the road van and the passenger carriage. This was the account given in the first accident report, submitted by the Station Master of Kishanpur on 24th January, and which was accepted by the police in the enquiry held by the Deputy Superintendent of Police, under Rule 20 (c) of the Revised rules made under section 84 of the Indian Railways Act (Act IX of 1890). An exaggerated version of this cause of the accident was given by a gateman at the enquiry held on the 27th January 1928. His version which is a popular one current was that the driver having lost his train reversed his engine and backed it to the oncoming train. This is the version given by two witnesses who were in the smashed coach, one Muhammad Mustafa, a compounder, and one Abdul Moid, a teacher in a Middle Vernacular School, who were examined before me on the 6th February 1928 at Kishanpur.

Mr. R. R. Byron, Senior Government Inspector of Railways, held a technical enquiry on the 27th January at Kishanpur. He found that the van which was in front next to the engine had become derailed about 50 feet from the southern end of the bridge as was evident from the damage caused from the derailed wheels to the sleepers, the marks of the derailed wheels on the sleepers ran for some distance parallel to the rail with a slight inclination to the right, and the van must have been on the point of falling over when it struck the abutment, one wheel having travelled beyond the end of the sleepers. This apparently caused the derailed van to mount upon the superstructure of the following bogie coach which was also derailed. Mr. Byron does not in his report consider that the accident was caused by the broken tender drawbar, on the contrary he considers that the leading end of the road van was still being held straight by the tender coupling although he found that the drawbar of the tender was flawed for about 40 per cent. of the cross sectional area at the point of fracture. He has held that the wheels when running over the sleepers threw a sudden additional strain on the weakened drawbar of the tender which broke under the strain and caused the accident, had the van not been held in front by the tender coupling at the moment of derailment the tendency of the whole train pushing it forward, would have been for the van to incline to the right, the side on which was derailed, and it would have gone over the side of the bridge before reaching the abutment which was 50 feet from the point of derailment.

It may be noted that this report does not deal with the cause as to how the road van completely sheared off the superstructure of the following coach which was thrown down the bank on the opposite side, approximately the same distance from the bridge ; the under structure being derailed about 50 feet further south.

At the enquiry the Senior Government Inspector of Railways examined the Guard, the Assistant Guard, the driver and the fireman who were on the train, and also the gate keeper of mile 8|3. Also he has taken the statement of the Permanent Way Inspector, Mr. G. C. Disney of Darbhanga, who arrived from Darbhanga at the scene of occurrence at 3-45 A.M., also the Assistant Medical Officer, Mr. Twidle, who came by the break down train at Kishanpur at about 11-30, and there is the report of the Assistant Engineer, Samastipur, who arrived shortly after 1 A.M. and copies of the inquest report of the Sub-Inspector, Government Railway Police, who arrived at 2 A.M. and the personal diaries of the Senior and the Junior Sub-Inspector of Warisnagar police.

The Deputy Agent of the B. and N. W. Railway has accepted the finding of the Senior Government Inspector of Railways regarding the cause of the accident.

The Government Inspector has held that the cause of the derailment was due to the fact that the light road van was empty, its tare weight being only 4 tons 14 cwts., and it was sandwiched in between the engine and heavy bogie stock, the tare weight of each of the bogie 3rd class being 18 tons 10 cwts., with the result that there was a constant tendency for this light van to be lifted up whenever the following coaches bunched up upon it. In the case of a non-vacuum braked train any slacking of the engine speed would immediately result in the bunching together of the coaching stock. The Government Inspector is of opinion that the speed was constantly varying within a few miles per hour sufficient to cause the causing vehicles to bunch up together with enough force to raise the road van so that it mounted the rails and was derailed. The wheels then running on the sleepers threw a sudden additional strain on the already weakened draw bar of the tender which broke under the strain and caused the accident.

He has recommended that ordinarily empty goods wagons should not be attached to these trains, but that if for traffic reasons it is necessary to move empty wagons by these trains such wagons must be placed in the rear of the passenger coaches. That road vans which from the nature of the work they perform are seldom fully loaded and are usually attached to a train throughout its journey should be attached in the rear of the train. He has also recommended that as a rule mixed train should consist of passenger stock and fully loaded wagons which may be marshalled in front of the passenger coaches to facilitate shunting by the train engine at way-side stations.

With respect to the actual occurrence, I again examined the Guard, the Assistant Guard, the Driver, the Fireman and the Jack, and nine passengers who were in the damaged coach including Babu Jamuna Karji, a District Board member, and one inter class passenger Babu Ram Senahi Rai, a teacher of the local Saraswati School. The three occupants of the engine all stated that the engine had crossed the bridge half way when they felt a sudden jerk backwards, and immediately afterwards, they heard a crash and the engine shot ahead. The driver then shut off the steam and brought the engine to stop. The Guard and the Assistant Guard who were both in the Guard's van in the rear of the train felt what the Guard describes as ' bump ' and the Assistant Guard as a ' Jerk ' and the train came to a stand still. The passengers in the derailed coach could not give any coherent account of the actual occurrence except that they felt the carriage going down the bank rapidly.

The Driver got down from the engine and proceeded towards the wreckage with the aid of a lantern. The Guard and the Assistant Guard also arrived at the scene of the accident in 15 or 20 minutes. The Guard and the Driver then left the train in charge of the Assistant Guard and took the engine to Kishanpur railway station, arriving there at about 9-15 P.M. and the station master sent information by wire. In the accident message which was not despatched before 9-50, there is a no mention of any person being killed on the spot. The report merely stated " many injured ". The station master sent back the engine with the Guard. The Guard and the Assistant Guard then made arrangements for the safety of the standing train by placing lights at the end and placing detonators on the track. The up train from Samastipur arrived at Kishanpur at 9-42 P.M. By this time there was a general rumour of the accident, some of the injured persons had arrived at Kishanpur by foot, and through the insistence of the Senior Sub-Inspector of Police of Warisnagar who was present at the station, and a Mr. Fitz Gerald, an employee of the Burma Oil Company who was a passenger of the up train, a relief party went out with the engine and a third class coach of 41 up, to the scene of the accident. There was some delay in getting necessary permission from Samastipur and also recalling the light engine to Kishanpur. This relief party which consisted of the Senior Sub-Inspector of Police, Warisnagar, Mr. Fitz Gerald, Babu Baijnath Pande, Sub-Registrar of Kishanpur, his clerk, Brijbans Sahay, a District Board Supervisor, Babu Chet Narain Lal, and the station master of Kishanpur, left Kishanpur at about 10-30 and arrived at the scene of accident about 11 P.M. Two boys Mathur Chand Ghose and Sunil Chandra Sen who had been in the wrecked bogie and had already arrived at Kishanpur returned with this party. During this time the injured had been helped out of the wreckage by the Assistant Guard and other passengers, prominent among whom was a District Board member Babu Jamuna Karji. A fire had been lit with some straw and nothing further was done till help arrived. The relief party remained there for nearly two hours, and were joined half an hour after their arrival by the Junior Sub-Inspector and the Writer Head Constable of Warisnagar thana. Fifteen injured men were taken to the relief train. Before leaving, some of the party headed by Babu Jamuna Karji counted the dead bodies. According to Babu Jamuna Karji the number was about thirty in all, according to Mr. Fitz Gerald the number was not more than twelve and not less than eight, and according to the Sub-Registrar of Kishanpur Babu Baijnath Pande the number was about twenty, there being fourteen separate bodies. When the party left the place, the Head Constable of Warisnagar left incharge to watch these dead bodies and the properties of the passengers.

Meanwhile a break down train incharge of the District Traffic Superintendent, B. and N. W. Railway, Mr. Brown, arrived at Kishanpur railway station with necessary first aid, bandages, blankets, stretchers, etc., in the charge of the railway doctor, Mr. Twidale, with a Sub-Assistant Surgeon and a dresser. Mr. Brown did not think it necessary to take the train up as there was a relief train ahead and so he walked up to the place accompanied by the doctor and met the relief train returning about a mile and a half further north. They stopped the train and came back with it travelling on the engine. The Railway doctor did not enter the bogie carriage and examine the injured. Apparently he and Mr. Brown were under the impression that first aid had already been rendered by a doctor on the spot and therefore considered it best to get back to Kishanpur as quickly as possible. The relief train arrived back at Kishanpur at 0-55 A.M., where it was met by the Sub-Assistant Surgeon of Warisnagar. Warisnagar is at a distance of only two miles from Kishanpur railway station. This dispensary doctor stated in evidence that he was the first to treat these patients. The railway doctors also attended these patients at Kishanpur. The bogie with the injured was attached to the waiting 41 up train which returned to Samastipur as 30 down leaving Kishanpur at 1-55 A.M. The three doctors also returned to Samastipur, the dispensary doctor and the Sub-Assistant Surgeon of the railway remained in the bogie with the patients. No information was sent to Samastipur by the railway authorities or by the railway police, although Mr. Brown stated in his evidence that he saw a wire at Kishanpur by the side of the telegraph instrument which was to have been sent by the Sub-Inspector, Government Railway Police, to the address of his Writer Head Constable and therefore he did not think that it was necessary to send any separate information. This wire was not sent. When the train reached Samastipur there was no arrangement for evacuating the injured. The assistant station master on being requested supplied a stretcher and some coolies, and two patients were taken into the hospital, one of whom was in a very precarious condition and died that afternoon. Mr. Fitz Gerald's camp cot had to be used as a stretcher. There were four cases which were considered by the doctors present to be serious.

The assistant station master offered to send the rest of the injured to the Samastipur dispensary hospital by hiring taxis which were at the station. This was refused by Babu Jamuna Karji after consulting the Warisnagar dispensary doctor. The bogie with the injured passengers was then moved to the siding from where the injured were carried in stretcher to the Samastipur dispensary hospital by the coolies supplied by railway. The railway doctors did not accompany the carriage to the siding. One Mewa Lal, a District Board Sub-Overseer who lives close to the siding, was called up by Babu Jamuna Karji and was placed in charge of the coolies who took these injured persons on stretchers to the hospital. He stated in evidence that he arrived at 3-30, again 4 A.M. and again after 5 A.M. at the Samastipur dispensary. That when he came first at 3-30 A.M. he awoke the dresser and on his first and second arrival he told the dresser to inform the doctor, but there was no sign of the doctor. The doctor Rai Bahadur Bakim Chandra Ghose stated in evidence that he was not informed till 5-30 A.M. The first injured case must have reached the hospital by 3-30 A.M.

At about 6 A.M. the doctor came to the hospital and all the injured were given stimulant mixture. He also dressed four of the injured whom he considered to be suffering from slight injuries. Two of the patients whom he considered to be seriously injured, and who had been left on the verandah of the male ward were then given a second stimulant mixture and the compounder was told to prepare hot water for dressing these patients. The doctor then left the hospital, changed his clothes, went to the Sub-Jail and returned at about 7 A.M. On his return he found Babu Jamuna Karji, the Chairman of the Local Board and Municipality, and a pleader in the male ward. Babu Jamuna Karji strongly remonstrated with the doctor over the delay in dressing the seriously injured patients. The doctor ordered him out of the hospital and proceeded to dress these patients. These patients had already received first aid dressing and apparently the doctor did not consider that they were in very urgent need of being redressed and therefore he thought it better to have them dressed with warm water instead of cold lotion. One of these cases was subsequently found by the Civil Surgeon to have been very septic and in a very dirty state, when he visited the hospital on the 29th January, 1928. One other patient whose case was not considered serious by any one of these doctors was considered by the Civil Surgeon to be suffering from a damaged thigh bone. This was Dasain Thatheri who has been since discharged from Samastipur hospital and was examined as a witness in this enquiry. I consider however that in this hospital there was some delay in the treatment of these cases and that they were not considered at first very serious and this is borne out by the first report submitted by Dr. Ghose, the Deputy Superintendent of the Banwarilal Hospital, who made an enquiry on the evening of the same day, and reported that only one injured man had slight lacerated thigh muscle wound and the others had bruises only and none seriously wounded.

I examined one Sarju Singh, Rajput by caste, a patient in the Sadr hospital, Laheriasarai, suffering from lacerated thigh wound. He said he was in the bogie coach and was flung out among the wreck. He twice lost consciousness but remembers to have been given some stimulant mixture in the relief train. He says he arrived at Samastipur dispensary at 4 A.M. and was lying on the verandah, and received no attention till day break.

It is a fact however that the cases admitted were not serious if properly treated at first. The serious cases consisted of two patients with lacerated thigh muscles and one case diagnosed later by the Civil Surgeon as suffering from partial hip fracture.

The responsibility for this delay at Samastipur dispensary is however a part of the large responsibility which the railway staff has incurred by its failure to have made proper arrangements for the evacuation and treatment of the injured. The care and supervision of the injured did not receive the attention required on the part of the railway administration, and the responsibility for this should not have been left with one of the passengers Babu Jamuna Karji who himself must have been hurt, having been in the wrecked coach.

The station master at Kishanpur appears to have been very incompetent. Had it not been for the presence of the Senior Sub-Inspector of Police, Warisnagar, and a Mr. Fitz Gerald, an employee of the Burma Oil Company, who was a passenger of the up train, at the station, it is very doubtful if any relief train would have been sent out. The break down train arrived after considerable delay. Kishanpur is only at a distance of 8 miles from Samastipur. No medical officer had visited the scene of the accident, and the blankets which were in the break down train were apparently forgotten and not distributed among the injured. No information was sent in to Samastipur and no arrangements were made for receiving the injured.

The break down train arrived at the scene of the accident at about 2 A.M. A guard of police and chaukidars was posted on the wreckage during the night time. The following morning the dead bodies were collected and an inquest was held. A translation of the inquest report is given with the evidence of the Government Railway Police Sub-Inspector. Seven bodies were recovered of which two were subsequently identified and handed over to their relations. The five bodies unidentified were buried at the spot. The number of dead bodies actually found by the police on the following morning is much less than that which is said to have been counted by the members of the first relief party and Babu Jamuna Karji. At the time the account of the dead was made by these people they had been working for nearly two hours in evacuating the injured, and in view of the different number stated by Babu Jamuna Karji, Mr. Fitz Gerald, and the Sub-Registrar of Kishanpur, none of whose figures are exact, no great reliance can be placed on their estimates, which are much larger than the number actually recovered by the police. From the departure of the relief train up to the morning there was a guard of police and chaukidars over the wreckage. The members of the relief party admit that no bodies were removed while they were present, and there is no evidence that any bodies were removed subsequently.

During the night the Assistant Engineer Mr. Livingston and the District Traffic Superintendent Mr. Brown searched among the wreckage and after a careful search could discover only six bodies. The number of dead bodies therefore found by the police on whom inquest report was held is in my opinion the correct number of people killed at the scene of the accident. The inquest held by the Government Railway Police Sub-Inspector is signed by one Parduman Lal, Law Superintendent of the Sursand estate, the Writer Head Constable Jamuna Prashad and the Junior Sub-Inspector of Warisnagar.

Of the 15 persons removed, one who was admitted to the railway hospital died on the 23rd, and two cases are still under treatment for lacerated thighs, one at the Banwari Lal Hospital, Laheria sarai, and one at the Samastipur dispensary.

I would recommend that there should be more effective organisation by the railway administration of their medical department for rendering first aid and evacuation of the injured. I also wish to bring to your notice the commendable public spirit displayed by Babu Jamuna Karji, Mr. Fitz Gerald and Muhammad Sherrif, Senior Sub-Inspector of Warisnagar.

ALLOCATION OF COSTS BETWEEN THE DIFFERENT LOCAL GOVERNMENTS IN CONNECTION WITH THE DEOGHAR CONSPIRACY CASE.

169. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Have Government received any representation from the Government of Bihar and Orissa on the subject of the allocation of cost in conducting the Deoghar conspiracy case, in which the accused came from Bengal, the United Provinces, and the Punjab ? If so, what decision, if any, has been arrived at regarding the allocation of cost between the different Local Governments concerned ?

The Honourable J. Crerar : A representation has been received from the Government of Bihar and Orissa on this subject asking for a contribution from central revenues towards the expenses of the case. The Standing Finance Committee of the Assembly has agreed to a supplementary demand of Rs. 50,000 being moved for this purpose, and this will be done in due course.

PREVENTION OF THE IMPORT INTO INDIA OF IMITATION TEAS.

170. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that "imitation teas" in which weeds and other ingredients are mixed, are imported into India for consumption, and that they are injurious to health ?

(b) Where are these "imitation teas" produced ; and do Government propose to take necessary steps to prevent their import into India ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (b). The Government of India understand that imitation tea is manufactured at Virudhunagar in the Ramnad District of the Madras Presidency from the leaves of certain trees and that this stuff is imported coastwise from Tuticorin to Bombay, etc., probably under other descriptions such as "Soap Nut Powder". It is also reported that there is some traffic in artificially coloured teas in Amritsar, but no information is available as to whether these are imported from outside and if so whence. I regret I am not in a position to express any definite opinion as to whether the imitation teas are injurious to health, as such opinion can be expressed only after a careful scientific analysis of the ingredients. With regard to the question of the prevention of the importation of such teas I may state that action has already been taken or is being taken by Local Governments to prescribe under their Food Adulteration Acts a standard quality of tea for sale for human consumption. In view of this the Government of India do not propose to take any further action in the matter.

RAILWAY SURVEY FROM RUTLAM-BANSWARA TO GALIAKOT IN CENTRAL INDIA.

171. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) It is proposed to have a railway survey made from Rutlam-Banswara to Galiakot (Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway) in Central India ?

(b) Will this railway line, if constructed, pass through Sailana, which is a populous and growing centre ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) A traffic survey for a railway from Rutlam via Banswara to Galiakot has been sanctioned.

(b) Until an engineering survey has been made the exact alignment of the Railway cannot be stated.

to about a dozen probationers who were taken in, in February 1927 by Mr. P. N. Biswas, the then Divisional Engineer, Telegraphs, Patna Division, to work as telephone operators ?

(b) Is it a fact that one Mr. E. A. Daranjo was appointed as a telephone operator in September 1927, without sitting for any examination and without having any superior qualification in preference to all others who came out successful in a competitive examination held in February 1927, who were given hopes of employment by the department ?

(c) Are Government aware that much injustice is done by the subordinate employees and that it reflects badly upon the management of the authorities of the Department ?

(d) Do Government propose to do justice to the disappointed probationers in the best manner possible ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) In the absence of any other suitable candidate, Mr. D'Aranjo was appointed as a telephone operator on passing the educational test, as at that time, of the 20 candidates who had been examined in February 1927, 8 had been provided for, one had refused an appointment, one had joined the East Indian Railway and the remaining 10 had been found to be unsuitable.

(c) Government do not consider that there was any injustice in rejecting candidates who had proved unfit.

REPRESENTATION OF SIKHS IN THE MILITARY ACCOUNTS DEPARTMENT.

215. Sardar Gulab Singh : (a) Will the Government please state the number of Sikhs, Muhammadans, Hindus and Christians (accountants and clerks) employed in the Military Accountant General's Office ?

(b) Is it a fact that employment in the above office is by selection from among the men in the Controllers' Offices ?

(c) Is it a fact that there is no Sikh in the above office at present ? If so, is it a fact that no Sikh is fit to be selected ? If this is not the case, do Government propose to take steps to bring in Sikhs ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The number of Sikhs, Muhammadans, Hindus and Christians (accountants and clerks) employed in the Military Accountant General's office is as shewn below :

	Sikhs.	Muhammadans.	Hindus.	Christians.
Acountants		1	18	3
Clerks—permanent and temporary (including copyists and stenographers)		3	80	2

(b) Yes.

(c) There is no Sikh in the Military Accountant General's Office at present. Selections for appointments in that office are made from amongst men serving in Controllers' Offices who are specially recommended by their respective Controllers for a particular class of work. There is, therefore, no reason why a Sikh should not be so selected if he possessed the necessary qualifications.

216. Sardar Gulab Singh : What is the number of Sikhs, Hindus, Muhammadans in—

(a) The Army Headquarters (civilians only),

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I understand that the Honourable Member wants information in regard to the clerical staff. The figures as they stood on the 31st December, 1927, were :

(c) When do Government propose to bring the new office into existence ? Have Government made any recommendation to the Secretary of State to this effect ?

(d) Do Government propose to take the sanction of the Standing Finance Committee in anticipation of the Secretary of State's orders ? If not, why not ?

(e) What are the reasons for the delay in coming to a decision ? Do Government propose to take necessary action so that the new office may be brought into force at the earliest possible date ?

(f) Is it a fact that the Members of the Assembly are anxious to have a separate office ? If so, do Government propose to set up a temporary office with a separate Secretary, etc., for the Assembly, pending the Secretary of State's sanction ?

Mr. L. Graham : (a) A despatch on the subject was sent to His Majesty's Secretary of State for India on the 26th July last.

(b) The Secretary of State has not been asked to accord his sanction by wire, because there would appear to be ample time before the Delhi Session in which to receive his reply.

(c) The necessary action will be taken as soon as possible after the Secretary of State's sanction is received. No recommendation has been made as to the date from which the new office is to be brought into existence.

(d) Government are not prepared to take any action in anticipation of the sanction of the Secretary of State because until they know what has been sanctioned they will not know what to lay before the Standing Finance Committee.

(e) Having regard to the importance of the matter Government do not consider that an unduly long time has been expended on it. The Honourable Member is referred to the reply above to part (c).

(f) Government have not observed any great keenness on the part of Members to bring this matter up for discussion in this House. Government do not propose to take the action suggested.

DECREASE OF BENGALIS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA SECRETARIAT.

219. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will the Government be pleased to state whether the proportion of the Bengalis employed in the Government of India Secretariat has considerably decreased since 1913 ? If so will the Government be pleased to state the reasons ?

Is it a fact that brilliant Bengali graduates' claims for service under the Government of India are often overlooked compared with members of the other communities ?

Are Government aware that there is a general feeling amongst the Bengali candidates for service under the Government of India, that they are not wanted by the Government ? If so, do Government propose to allay the general feeling and order recruitment on the basis of merit ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Government have not complete information on the subject, but I am prepared to accept the Honourable Member's statement that this is so. As indicated in the replies given by Sir Alexander Muddiman on the 23rd March, 1925, and the 26th January, 1926, to Haji S. A. K. Jeelani and Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan, one reason may possibly be that the removal of the seat of the Government of India from Calcutta has reduced the number of suitable Bengali candidates.

With reference to the remaining parts of the Honourable Member's question I can assure him that recruitment is made strictly on the basis of merit.

POLICY OF RECRUITMENT FOR THE SERVICES UNDER THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

220. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether their policy of recruitment for the Services under the Government of India is based upon efficiency or community or religious persuasion ?

Will the Government be pleased to state whether they accept the principle laid down in the Queen's Proclamation about appointments under the Government ? If the answer be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state whether orders have been issued in some offices to recruit on a communal and provincial basis ? If the answer be in the negative, are Government aware that such a policy is detrimental to the growth of Indian nationalism ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Efficiency is the basis of all recruitment to Government service, but subject to the satisfaction of this primary condition the policy of Government is to regulate recruitment so as to prevent the preponderance of any one class or community. I have already undertaken to furnish the Honourable Member with a copy of the relevant instructions.

Her late Majesty's proclamation is binding on all servants of the Crown.

(ii) a statement showing the acting, temporary and permanent vacancies that occurred in these services since 20th August 1926 and how many of these were given to the Muhammadans ?

(b) Will the Honourable Member be pleased to say if it is a fact that the previous number of two Muhammadan clerks has been reduced to only one, viz., the clerk in charge of the Arabic Department ?

(c) Is it a fact that during the period referred to above there were about seven permanent vacancies and no Muhammadans were taken in any of these ?

(d) Were all these vacancies advertised in the papers ? If not, why not ?

(e) Is it a fact in filling up two of these posts, it was advertised in the papers that men, having five years' experience in Library work would be taken ? And were men with such qualifications actually taken ?

(f) Is it a fact that for working in the temporary vacancies in the Imperial Library, no Muhammadans are taken, so as to give them an opportunity for acquiring experience in Library work and ultimately securing permanent posts, while raw Hindu outsiders are invariably taken with a view to provide them with permanent posts when vacancies occur ?

(g) In view of what is going on in the Imperial Library will the Honourable Member be pleased to say if any steps will be taken for securing to the Muhammadans their share of appointments in the Library as early as possible ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Information is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

(b) Is it a fact that the sorter and other menial staff of the Library are employed in the work of this restaurant during office hours ?

(c) If so, will the Honourable Member be pleased to say if any steps will be taken to stop this ?

(d) When the restaurant was opened did the authorities concerned call for any tender from refreshment vendors for running it ? Or was it a clerk who got the business started solely for his benefit, without such steps being taken first ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Government have made enquiries and will communicate the result to the Honourable Member in due course.

SALE OF BOOKS AND PERIODICALS WEEDED OUT OF THE IMPERIAL LIBRARY, CALCUTTA.

(b) Is any list maintained of the so-called weeded out books and magazines and are proper records kept of their disposal ?

(c) Are any steps taken for checking from time to time the books and periodicals received in the Imperial Library with reference to the list of those weeded out ?

(d) Are the back numbers of important magazines like the Lancet and Blackwood Magazine also included in the weeded out list ? If so, how are they disposed of ?

(e) Is it a fact that the purchase and disposal of furniture for the Imperial Library is privately arranged by the clerk in charge, without any auction being held in the case of sale, or any tender being invited in the case of purchase, which causes financial loss to Government ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) No.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) Important magazines are kept. The Lancet is not subscribed for. Blackwood's Magazine is kept.

(b) Has the suggestion made by Mr. Lansbury that the Government of India should issue a statement of their policy with regard to suspensions and remissions of land revenue been brought to the notice of the Government of India by the Secretary of State for India ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai: (a) and (b). Yes.

HEAVY RAINFALL IN BIHAR ON THE 4TH AND 5TH AUGUST.

227. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that in the Meteorological weather report, dated Poona, the 3rd August 1928, we find the forecast : " Decrease of rain in Bihar "; and in the same report, dated the 4th August, we read : " Further decrease in Bihar " ?

(b) Are Government aware that on August 3rd and 4th, Bihar had the heaviest rainfall within living memory, i.e., 16.80 on the 3rd, and 15.40 on the 4th August ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) No such figures were recorded at any of the eleven representative observatories of the Meteorological Department in Bihar ; and the figures are entirely inaccurate if they are intended to denote the average rainfall over Bihar as a whole. Even if recorded at individual district stations, they would not constitute the heaviest rainfall in Bihar within living memory.

MOTOR SERVICE MAINTAINED IN DELHI FOR THE CONVEYANCE OF FILES FROM NEW DELHI TO VICEREGAL LODGE.

228. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that a motor car service is always maintained during the winter season by the Home Department of the Government of India at Delhi for carrying files from New Delhi Secretariat to Viceregal Lodge ?

(b) What is the cost of maintaining such a service of cars and for how long has the system been in existence ?

(c) To whom has the contract been given for these years for the maintenance of such cars ?

(d) Have tenders ever been called for before the contract was entered into ? If not what are the reasons for such action ? If tenders were called for, how many people tendered ? Was the lowest tender accepted ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) and (b). It is a fact that a motor service was maintained during the last two winter seasons for the carriage of files, letters, etc., between the Secretariat, New Delhi, and Viceregal Lodge or places within one mile thereof. The distribution was made from a central depôt and several Departments participated in the arrangement, the cost being Rs. 700 a month in 1926-27 and Rs. 650 a month in 1927-28.

(c) Mr. J. Carbery, retired Deputy Controller, Central Printing Office.

(d) Tenders were invited when the arrangement was first initiated, but for obvious reasons were confined to selected firms and individuals. The lowest tender was accepted.

CONSTRUCTION OF A RAILWAY FROM SAINTHIA TO BHERAMARA via BERHAMPORE.

229. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the construction of a railway line from Sainthia to Bheramara, viâ Berhampore was included in the approved projects of 1927-1928 ?

(b) What is the cause of the delay in the construction of the proposed line ?

(c) Is it a fact that the tracts through which the line is to pass have been declared a famine infected area ?

(d) Would it tend to ameliorate the conditions of the famine-stricken people if the construction of the line were taken in hand immediately ?

(e) Has the construction of the line been pressed for by the Eastern Bengal Railway and by their Advisory Committee ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) As the result of local petitions the eastern half of the alignment for the proposed line is under reconsideration by the Agent in consultation with the Local Government.

(c) The line would traverse certain tracts in which the Local Government have declared the existence of distress owing to scarcity, but not famine, this year.

(d) No representation to this effect has been received from the Local Government.

(e) The Local Advisory Committee pressed for construction last year, but the Eastern Bengal Railway Administration, though they were at one time anxious to start work on this line, had to postpone its commencement for the reason given in (b).

PROMOTION OF MR. WOOD TO OFFICIATE AS AN ASSISTANT TRAFFIC SUPERINTENDENT, KATIHAR, ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

230. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that Mr. Wood, Transportation Inspector of the Eastern Bengal Railway, has been promoted to officiate as an Assistant Traffic Superintendent, Katihar ? Has he passed the examinations necessary to qualify for appointment as Assistant Traffic Superintendent ? If not, will the Government be pleased to state on what ground Mr. Wood was promoted and whether other fully qualified subordinates were not awaiting promotion ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state what academical qualifications Mr. Wood has got and the departmental examinations for which he has qualified ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Mr. Wood has been promoted to officiate as Assistant Traffic Superintendent, Katihar. There is no examination for the appointment of a qualified subordinate to officiate as an officer, and Mr. Wood was selected as the subordinate technically most suited to officiate in the post.

(b) He was selected for his technical, and not academical, qualifications.

PROMOTION OF MR. HOLDER TO THE POST OF TRANSPORTATION INSPECTOR ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

231. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will the Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the District Traffic Superintendent, Lalmanirhat, Eastern Bengal Railway, promoted Mr. Holder a guard, to the post of Transportation Inspector ? Has he fully qualified in an assistant station master's duties ? Was there any senior duly qualified permanent assistant station master of Lalmanirhat District, who several times acted in place of Transportation Inspectors ? If so, why was not such duly qualified subordinate appointed ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government have no information. A matter of this kind is within the competence of the Agent of the Railway, and it may be presumed that he selected the man considered best qualified for the post.

232. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that Mr. Kureshi, District Traffic Superintendent, Katihar, has refused to consider the question of rendering facilities to the staff for educating their children ? If so, why ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state their policy about rendering facilities to the staff for educating their children ?

233. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the Eastern Bengal Railway Administration discharges men from active service on attaining the age of 55 years or invalids them on medical grounds ?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state how many men of this type have been re-appointed by the said Administration in their construction work ?

(c) Will the Government be also pleased to state why such are re-employed in active service when they were compelled to retire ?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state if any of these men are employed to work trains in the construction carrying coolies and other staff ?

(e) If so, will the Government be pleased to state who is responsible for accidents resulting in loss of life or serious injury to persons or heavy loss to property and whether precaution has been taken to prevent accidents ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) This is the ordinary rule.

(b) and (c). Government do not know the numbers of men over the age of 55 years, or previously discharged on medical grounds, who have been re-engaged temporarily on construction work, but it is not uncommon to fill temporary posts of this kind with experienced men of this kind when available.

(d) and (e). Government have no knowledge whether at the present time there are any men of the classes mentioned by the Honourable Member employed on working construction trains, and do not think it worth while to make enquiries on the point. They have no reason to believe that any such men would be employed unless the Railway Administration is satisfied that they can carry out their duties in accordance with the rules to which they may be required to work and without risk to safety of persons travelling in these trains.

GRANT OF LOCAL ALLOWANCES TO OFFICERS AND MINISTERIAL STAFF OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY STATIONED IN CALCUTTA.

234. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the Eastern Bengal Railway Administration has sanctioned local allowances to officers and ministerial staff attached to the Calcutta offices on the ground that the cost of living in Calcutta is higher than that of other stations of the Eastern Bengal Railway system ?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state if any officer or staff other than those mentioned in question (a), are stationed in Calcutta ?

(c) If the answer to (b) be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state what are the classes of staff stationed there and whether they have been granted such local allowances ? If not, why ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Ministerial staff on scales of pay general on the Eastern Bengal Railway system who may be employed in offices of the Railway which are located in Calcutta are given a compensatory allowance.

Officers whose headquarters are at Calcutta also receive a compensatory allowance when certain conditions are fulfilled.

(b) and (c). I am collecting information and will communicate with the Honourable Member on receipt.

PROVISION OF QUARTERS FOR THE INDIAN GUARDS OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY STATIONED IN CALCUTTA.

235. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will the Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the Eastern Bengal Railway Administration has provided a number of quarters for officers, ministerial staff, station staff, Anglo-Indian and European guards and drivers, Indian drivers and shunters stationed in Calcutta ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state whether quarters have been provided for Indian guards stationed at Calcutta and whether there were any representations from them for such quarters and what action, if any, has been taken on the same ? Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) The duties of Indian guards are the same as those of Anglo-Indian and European guards, though not the same as those of Indian drivers.

(b) Government are not aware that Indian guards are not given the same facilities for performing their duties as Anglo-Indian and European guards.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 235.

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state if the Eastern Bengal Railway authorities received any representation on the subject ?

(c) If so, will the Government be pleased to state what action has been taken on the representation ?

(d) If not, why ?

ISSUE OF A CIRCULAR BY THE DISTRICT TRAFFIC SUPERINTENDENT OF LALMANIRHAT REGARDING WORKING OF TRAINS BY SICK GUARDS.

239. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the District Traffic Superintendent of Lalmanirhat of the Eastern Bengal Railway has issued a circular to the guards working there that their interests must give way to the interests of the service and that they must not report sick at the last moment to avoid going out with a train ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state if they require a train to be worked by a guard who has actually got high fever or attacked with diseases which are beyond one's control and which makes a man quite unfit to leave his bed through sickness ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Government have no information.

(b) No.

240. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the clerks of the District Offices of the Eastern Bengal Railway are made to work on Sundays and holidays ?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state, whether they are paid any extra allowances for working on Sundays and holidays ?

(c) If not, do Government propose to close the offices according to the Negotiable Instruments Act ?

(d) If not, why ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Clerks, whose duties are specifically connected with the running of trains, are required to work on Sundays and holidays, and other clerks may be required to do so when a breakdown occurs, or when shops are working on Sundays or holidays. Clerks may also be required to work on these days when there are arrears of work.

(b) In Calcutta gharry hire is allowed when overtime is worked.

(c) and (d). No. This would involve stopping train services.

HEAD PASSENGER SUPERINTENDENTS ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

(f) If so, will the Government be pleased to state whether there were deserving candidates with requisite qualifications for such posts ?

(g) Will the Government be pleased to state if it is a fact, that the Traffic Manager received appeals from candidates who applied for such posts against the decision of the District Officers ? If so, what action, if any, was taken on these appeals ?

(h) Is it a fact that the District Officers were requested to nominate candidates from Anglo-Indians to fill up such vacancies ? If so, why ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Enquiries are being made from the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, and I will communicate with the Honourable Member when I have received his reply.

GRANT OF LEAVE WITH PAY TO COOKS AND SERVANTS EMPLOYED IN THE GUARDS' RUNNING ROOMS ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

242. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that cooks and servants employed in the guards' running rooms on the Eastern Bengal Railway are not allowed any leave with pay ? If so, why ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : At present running room cooks and servants are allowed sick leave on half average pay for sixty days in a year. Government understand that the rules are under revision.

ALLEGED TRESPASS INTO THE HOUSE OF ONE ROY, A TRAINS CLERK AT FULCHARI, ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

243. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that there was a trespass into the house of trains clerk Roy while he was away on duty leaving his wife alone in the house at Fulchari, Eastern Bengal Railway, and on the raising of a hue and cry by the wife, the trespasser left and was noticed by the neighbours ? If so, was the trespasser an employee of the Eastern Bengal Railway and what action has been taken in the matter ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government have no information. The trains clerk can presumably take any legal remedy open to him.

RAISING OF THE PAY AND RETIRING GRATUITY OF MINISTERIAL OFFICERS OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

244. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : With reference to the reply given to question No. 564 in the last Session of the Assembly, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons for not raising the pay and retiring gratuity of the ministerial officers of the Eastern Bengal Railway, as also the reasons for not taking any action on the report of the Committee of the Eastern Bengal Railway Indian Employees' Association as stated in the reply ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : It is for the Agent of the Railway to initiate such proposals and to deal with the report of the Committee. It is for this reason that the Railway Board did not take up the question.

GRANT OF INCREASED PAY TO THE SUBORDINATE STAFF OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

245. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that the Railway Board has sanctioned the increase of pay of a class of staff of the Traffic Department of the Eastern Bengal Railway, on the recommendation of the Traffic Manager of the Eastern Bengal Railway, on the ground of economic distress ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state why the same increment has not been granted to the other classes of the subordinate staff of the Eastern Bengal Railway ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Railway Board have sanctioned proposals which were put before them last June by the Agent of the Eastern Bengal Railway for raising the pay of certain classes of the subordinate staff on his railway where, after investigation, he came to the conclusion that the previous scales of pay were not sufficiently attractive to secure the proper type of recruit. They gave their sanction to the proposals which the Agent put before them, because they consider that in these cases the Agent had shown that the existing rates of pay were not sufficiently attractive to procure suitable recruits, and in certain cases did not allow sufficient improvement on promotion to definitely more responsible positions.

GRANT OF MILEAGE ALLOWANCE TO THE TRAVELLING TICKET INSPECTORS OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

246. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the Travelling Ticket Inspectors employed in the Eastern Bengal Railway were receiving mileage allowance like that of other running staff employed in the Traffic Department of the same Railway ?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state if they are at present performing the same nature of duty as before ?

(c) If so, will the Government be pleased to state, whether they are similarly treated in the matter of mileage allowance as before ?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the Travelling Ticket Inspectors employed in the State Railways are considered as running staff in all respects.

(e) If so, will the Government be pleased to state why the Travelling Ticket Inspectors employed in the Eastern Bengal Railway are not equally treated and granted mileage allowance ?

(f) Is it a fact that the Travelling Ticket Inspectors of the Eastern Bengal Railway submitted representations to the Chief Auditor of the same Railway regarding granting mileage allowance to them ? If so, what action has been taken on the representations ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am collecting the information and will communicate with the Honourable Member when it is received.

PROVISION OF QUARTERS FOR THE TRAVELLING TICKET INSPECTORS OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

†247. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: (a) Is it a fact that the Travelling Ticket Inspectors employed in the Eastern Bengal Railway have been suffering for want of quarters for a long time and that they made several representations to the authorities ? If so, what action, if any, has been taken on the representations ?

PROVISION OF TWO SWIMMING BATHS FOR THE EUROPEAN AND ANGLO-INDIAN EMPLOYEES OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY AT PAKSEY AND SAIDPUR.

248. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the Eastern Bengal Railway Administration has recently provided two swimming baths, one at Paksey and the other at Saidpur, at a considerable cost to provide amenities for a few European and Anglo-Indian employees stationed at these two stations ?

(b) Is it also a fact that due to paucity of funds adequate arrangements could not be made for the supply of pure drinking water to the staff posted at many road stations of the Eastern Bengal Railway ?

(c) If the replies to items (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to say why money was spent in providing swimming baths for the benefit of a few in preference to a vast number of the Indian employees who are in difficulty for want of or for inadequate arrangements for the supply of pure drinking water ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) No. The swimming bath at Paksey was built from the funds of the Officers' Club, and that at Saidpur from the funds of the Institute.

(b) No. For the past three years a programme of tube well sinking has been in operation. But in a number of instances these tube wells have failed to produce water of satisfactory quality.

(c) Does not arise.

INDEBTEDNESS OF THE SUBORDINATE STAFF OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

249. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the subordinates of the Eastern Bengal Railway are constantly borrowing money from the Eastern Bengal Railway Co-operative Credit Society and most of them are also having recourse to temporary withdrawals of Provident Fund money ? If so, are these due to economic distress and sickness of the subordinate staff of the Eastern Bengal Railway ?

(b) If the reply be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state, what action, if any, they propose to take to relieve the distress ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am collecting information and will communicate with the Honourable Member when it is received.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 235.

INSECURITY OF SERVICE OF THE SUBORDINATE STAFF OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

250. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the reasons which led them to amend the words " on reduction of establishment " in Annexure "A" in paragraph 298, Note No. 1, Chap. IV of State Railway Open Line Code, Vol. II, by the substitution of the words " in accordance with the terms of his agreement ", as also to restrict the scope of appeals from subordinate railway employees, by Standing Order No. 610, dated 4th August, 1919 ?

(b) Will the Government be also pleased to state if it is a fact that the agreement which each subordinate railway employee is required to sign in token of his acceptance on first appointment contains a clause, that his services are liable to be dispensed with at any time on a month's notice or on a month's pay in lieu thereof ?

(c) Is it a fact that under the amendment of the code rule, vide (a) above and under the clause in service agreement, vide (b) above, the Eastern Bengal Railway Administration has of late discharged some employees against whom no dereliction of duties were brought home and that due to the operation of the amended code rule some employees, having less than 15 years' service at their credit have been deprived of the gratuity in terms of Annexure B, Rule 3 (II) (d) of gratuity rules, thus causing extra hardships to these employees ?

(d) Is it also a fact that Annexure A, Rule 5 of paragraph 298 of State Railway Open Line Code, Vol. II, very seldom, if ever, is applied by the Eastern Bengal Railway Administration when considering cases of discharge ?

(e) If the replies to items (b) to (d) be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to say what steps, if any, the Government propose to take in this matter to safeguard the interests of the railway employees against insecurity of service ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) As originally drafted, the paragraph of the State Railway Open Line Code, to which the Honourable Member refers, was based on a decision reached by the Government of India in 1888, but did not correctly interpret that decision, for it was not even then the intention that non-pensionable railway servants, who, under the terms of their service, were liable to discharge at one month's notice, should have any right of appeal unless dismissed summarily and without one month's pay. The matter was reviewed in 1919 as the practice of appealing to one authority after another against discharge in cases in which there was no violation of the terms of service had grown to such an extent, owing to the incorrect drafting of the paragraph, as to re-act seriously on the efficiency of railway working. It was then decided that, in order to prevent the power to discharge being exercised unfairly, a railway servant, discharged in accordance with the terms of his service, should be permitted to appeal to the authority immediately superior to the authority issuing the order of discharge.

(b) Yes.

(c) Government are not aware whether the Eastern Bengal Railway Administration has recently found it necessary to discharge any employés, not for any fault but because of a reduction in establishment. But, if so, under rule 3 (II) (d) of the gratuity rules they would be eligible for gratuity on abolition of appointment provided their service has been continuous, good, efficient, and faithful.

(d) The general rule to which the Honourable Member refers applied to the Eastern Bengal Railway Administration, and Government have no reason to suppose that it is not followed.

(e) Does not arise.

PROVISION OF A REST HOUSE AT KURSEONG FOR THE INDIAN SUBORDINATE STAFF OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

251. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that two villas at Kurseong were purchased for the use of officers and subordinates of the Eastern Bengal Railway ?

(b) Is it a fact that the villa intended for the subordinate staff has been converted in such a manner that it can be used by Anglo-Indians only and the same is not fit for Indian subordinates ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state if the Indian subordinates have any such rest house ? If not why ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Yes.

(b) No alterations have been made in the villa used by the subordinate staff since purchase to adapt it for the use of Anglo-Indians or any other community. There is no rest house in the hills specially adapted to the Indian style of living, and hitherto very few requests for such a rest house have been received by the Agent.

RESERVATION FOR ANGLO-INDIANS OF THE POSTS OF CREW INSPECTORS ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

252. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that recently there were some vacancies in the post of Crew Inspectors under the Traffic Department of the Eastern Bengal Railway and some Indians applied for these vacancies ? Is it a fact that the Deputy Traffic Manager, Eastern Bengal Railway, passed an order on the file to the effect " These posts are intended for Anglo-Indians only " ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether there was such order for reserving Crew Inspectorships for Anglo-Indians only on the Eastern Bengal Railway ? If so, why ?

(c) If the answer to (b) be in the negative will the Government be pleased to state, what action has been taken on the order of the Deputy Traffic Manager, Eastern Bengal Railway, referred to in (a) ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Enquiries are being made from the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, and I will communicate with the Honourable Member when I have received his reply.

GRANT OF INCREASED PAY TO THE INDIAN SUBORDINATES OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

253. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that Indian subordinate employees of the Eastern Bengal Railway of all ranks and grades have, of late, submitted memorials to the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, for increase of pay on account of economic distress ?

(b) What action, if any, has been taken by the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, on the majority of the memorials ?

(c) If no action has as yet been taken, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) Memorials have been submitted by certain classes.

(b) As explained in the reply to the Honourable Member's unstarred question No. 245. The Agent has already submitted proposals, which have been sanctioned, with regard to certain classes of the subordinate staff, and Government understand that he is investigating the position with regard to certain other classes.

(c) Does not arise.

SUPPLY TO THE LIBRARY OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF THE RAILWAY ACCOUNT AND AUDIT CODE.

254. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that there is no copy of the Railway Account and Audit Code in the Legislative Assembly Library ?

(b) Is it a fact that the same Code has been referred to in interpellations in the Assembly ?

(c) If the answer to (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for not placing the book in the Library ?

(d) Is there any objection to place the book in the Library ? If so, what are the reasons ?

Mr. L. Graham : (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) and (d). Arrangements are being made to place the book in the Library.

PROVISION OF A LIGHT ON THE VERANDAH OF COTTAGE NO. 28 IN LONGWOOD.

255. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that there is no light on the verandah of cottage No. 28 in Longwood ?

(b) Was there any complaint from Members of the Assembly occupying cottage No. 28 regarding want of light last year and this year ?

(c) Has any step been taken to have a light on the verandah of cottage No. 28 ? If not, why ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) There is no electric light in the covered passage leading to the entrance.

(b) The tenant made a complaint last year and a complaint was made this year by the Honourable Member who has put this question.

(c) No, mainly because it is not possible to secure municipal sanction to more than a limited number of new electric light points.

NUMBER OF INDIAN TRAFFIC INSPECTORS RECRUITED SINCE 1924 BY THE VARIOUS STATE RAILWAYS.

256. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the mode of recruitment of Traffic Inspectors on State Railways ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of Indian Traffic Inspectors recruited since 1924 in the various State Railways and the number of Anglo-Indians ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given to his starred question No. 572 on the 2nd September, 1926.

(b) Government are not in possession of information as to the number of Traffic Inspectors recruited since 1924, and they regret they are not prepared to supplement the statistics of communal representation given in the annual reports of the Railway Board on Indian Railways by figures for particular branches or offices.

LOSS SUSTAINED BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ON THE WORKING OF THE ARMY CANTEEN BOARD.

258. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the paragraph published in the issue of the Statesman of the 19th August, 1928, page 12, under the heading " Rs. 37 lakhs loss to Government—Army Canteen " ?

(b) If so, will Government please state if the statement made therein that " a net loss of Rs. 37 lakhs has been sustained by the Government of India on the transactions of the Army Canteen Board " is correct ?

(c) If correct, will they please state what are the causes of this great loss ?

(e) If so, will they please state what action has been taken ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) and (b). The answer is in the affirmative.

(c) The causes of the failure of the Army Canteen Board are examined in paragraphs 7 (b) and (c) and 8—13 of the report submitted by the Currie-Sethna Committee in February 1926. A copy of the report will be found in the Library of the Assembly. The main cause of the failure, in the opinion of the Government of India, was the inefficiency of the Controller of the Board.

(d) and (e). The Honourable Member is referred to the statements laid on the table in answer to unstarred question No. 31 and starred question No. 715, dated the 22nd January, and 7th September, 1925, respectively.

CONTINUANCE OF THE REMISSION OF TERMS ALLOWED BY THE INNS OF COURT TO VAKILS OF INDIAN HIGH COURTS TO QUALIFY AS BARRISTERS.

259. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the remission of terms allowed to vakils of Indian High Courts by the Inns of Court in England to qualify as Barristers-at-Law is proposed to be withdrawn from 1929 ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state if they protested against the proposal ?

(c) Do the Government propose to take steps so that the remission of terms may be continued as before or at least for three years more ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) The Government of India have no information.

(b) The regulations are entirely within the competence of the Inns of Court and the Government of India are not consulted before they are framed.

(c) On the information conveyed in these questions, which is all I have, the question appears to be one more for the Bar Associations in this country to consider than for Government.

VARIOUS GRADES OF CLERKS EMPLOYED UNDER THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

260. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will the Government be pleased to state what are the various grades of clerks employed under the Director-General of Posts and Telegraphs and the mode of recruitment ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : It is presumed that the Honourable Member refers to the office of the Director-General of Posts and Telegraphs only. The following are the grades of clerks :

Designations.	Scales.
Chief Superintendent ..	Rs. 550—40—750.
Budget Superintendent ..	Rs. 500—25—700.
Superintendents ..	Rs. 300—20—500.
Personal Clerk to D. G. ..	Rs. 300—20—500.
2 Budget Assistants ..	Rs. 300—20—500.
1st Division Clerks ..	Rs. 100—6—160—10—300 with efficiency bars at Rs. 150 and Rs. 180.
2nd Division Clerks ..	Rs. 55—5—155 with efficiency bars at Rs. 80 and Rs. 117.
2 Selection grade posts in the 2nd Division	Rs. 150—10—200.

Recruitment for the 1st Division and the 2nd Division clerks is usually made from persons who have passed the Staff Selection Board Examination. The other appointments are selection appointments and are made by promotion.

PAY AND PROSPECTS OF THE SUBORDINATE STAFF EMPLOYED UNDER THE DIRECTOR OF ARMY AUDIT.

261. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will the Government be pleased to state how the subordinate staff under the Director of Army Audit is recruited and their pay and prospects ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I place on the table a statement showing the rates of pay of the subordinate staff under the Director of Army Audit. Clerks are eligible for promotion to the grade of Accountants after passing the Subordinate Account's Service Examination and selected Accountants are appointed as Assistant Accounts Officers.

Clerks are generally recruited by selection from outside. At times, however, to meet the requirements of a newly created Department experienced clerks are taken from other accounts offices.

Statement showing the rates of pay of the subordinate staff under the Director of Army Audit :

Assistant Accounts Officers.—Rs. 660—40—900.

Accountants.—Rs. 240—20—360—30—600—50/2—650. (Bar at Rs. 420).

Clerks.—Rs. 70—7—140—6—230. (Bars at Rs. 140 and Rs. 170).

For Assistant Accounts Officers and Accountants joining after the 1st July, 1928, the following rates have been sanctioned :

Assistant Accounts Officers.—Rs. 500—35—850, plus special pay of Rs. 50 to the Assistant Accounts Officer employed at the headquarters of the office of the Director.

Accountants.—Rs. 200—20—360—30—600. (Bar at Rs. 360).

PUBLICATION OF A HAND-BOOK SHOWING THE MODE OF RECRUITMENT TO THE VARIOUS SUBORDINATE SERVICES UNDER THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

262. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Has the Government published any handbook for public information of the mode of recruitment to the various subordinate services under the Government of India ? If not, do the Government propose to do so ? If not, why ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I would refer the Honourable Member to the answer given by my predecessor on the 7th February, 1927, to a question put by Kumar Ganganand Sinha on the same subject.

GRANT OF INCREMENTS TO CERTAIN 2ND DIVISION CLERKS IN THE ARMY DEPARTMENT.

263. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that in 1924 some clerks in the Army Department who were qualified for the 2nd Division were confirmed in the 3rd Division for want of vacancies in the 2nd Division ?

(b) Is it a fact that these men were given increments at the rate of 3rd Division for their temporary service of 4 or 5 years in the 2nd Division which they had put in before confirmation ? If so, why ?

(c) Is it a fact that these men have always been doing 2nd Division work and have been promoted to the 2nd Division with effect from the 1st April 1928 ?

(d) Will the Government please state why increments at the rate of 2nd Division for their temporary service in that Division before confirmation were not given ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) Up to the 1st June, 1924, there were only two divisions in the Secretariats and all clerks not in the First Division were classed as members of the Second Division, including those engaged on, and fit for nothing else but, routine duties. The latter were placed below the efficiency bar of the Second Division. After the 1st June, 1924, a Third Division was constituted for those performing routine duties. The Army Department had a temporary establishment of men qualified under the old conditions for the Second Division and these included the men now in question. Two of the posts held by these men were made permanent in the Second Division in October, 1924, but the remainder had to go into the new Third Division and continued to do the routine work on which they had previously been employed. There they remained until they were fit to be promoted and vacancies occurred.

(b) Yes, but as I have explained, the duties of the present Third Division were previously those of the Second Division below the efficiency bar. The men placed in the Third Division had, before confirmation, held temporary posts on fixed non-progressive rates well below the efficiency bar of the Second Division. They were performing work of no higher character than that performed by men who had not qualified for the Second Division. Therefore, on confirmation, they received the increments prescribed for the lowest Division.

(c) The answer to the first part of the question, if it refers to the Second Division as now constituted, is in the negative. The answer to the second part is in the affirmative.

(d) For the reasons given at (b).

CROSSING OF THE EFFICIENCY BAR IN THE 2ND DIVISION BY DESPATCHERS AND TYPISTS IN THE ARMY DEPARTMENT.

264. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that under existing rules despatchers and typists are not allowed to cross the efficiency bar at Rs. 172 in the 2nd Division ? Is this rule observed in the Army Department Secretariat ? If not, why ?

(b) Is it a fact that there are certain clerks in the Army Department Secretariat who have passed the Staff Selection Board's test as typists only, but who have been allowed to cross the efficiency bar ? If so, why ?

(c) Is it a fact that some permanent clerks in the Home and other Departments who were working as typists or despatchers were fixed in the 3rd Division on the introduction of that Division ? If so, why has this not been done in the Army Department ?

(d) Do the Government propose to bring down to the 3rd Division those clerks in the Army and other Departments who are ineligible to cross the efficiency bar in the 2nd Division under the rule alluded to and to reduce their pay to Rs. 170 plus a personal allowance of Rs. 2 a month ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) Yes, but clerks already in permanent service before June, 1924, who were recruited for the 2nd Division, are allowed under the same rule to cross the efficiency bar, if they are found capable of performing duties not merely of a routine nature. The rule is observed in the Army Department Secretariat.

(b) There is one such clerk, who has been allowed to cross the efficiency bar under the proviso to the rule referred to in part (a) of this question.

(c) As regards the Home Department, 6 clerks who were made permanent in the 2nd Division with effect from 1st April, 1924, were transferred to the 3rd Division ; but they were warned at the time of their confirmation that they might be relegated to the 3rd Division on its formation. In the Army Department, there were no clerks who were similarly circumstanced. Enquiry is being made from other Departments, and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

(d) No, Sir. There are no clerks in the Army and the Home Departments who have crossed the efficiency bar of the 2nd Division other than those eligible and deemed fit to do so. As regards other Departments, enquiry is being made, and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

INTRODUCTION OF A LEAVE RESERVE IN THE ARMY DEPARTMENT.

265. Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra : (a) Are the Government aware that a "Leave Reserve" has not yet been introduced in the Army Department Secretariat ? If not, why ?

(b) Is it a fact that there are several officiating clerks in the Army Department who are awaiting confirmation on the introduction of the leave reserve in that Department ?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state when it is likely to introduce the leave reserve in the Army Department ?

Mr. G. M. Young : (a) Yes, because the permanent strength of the clerical establishment is still subject to review.

(b) No, Sir, officiating clerks are employed in leave vacancies and their services are liable to be terminated at any moment. This is made plain to them on engagement, and there is no undertaking that they will be made permanent.

(c) I am afraid I am not in a position to say.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT.

ATTACK ON THE PRESIDENT OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY BY THE "TIMES OF INDIA".

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran: Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I beg to move an adjournment of the House.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member cannot move the adjournment of the House unless he obtains leave to do so

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I beg your pardon, Sir. I ask for leave to move an adjournment of the House to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, an unjust, unworthy and undignified and deliberately malicious attack on the President of the House by the Times of India, regardless of all sense of decency and decorum, and containing aspersions and sneers reflecting on the conduct of the President, and calculated to lower the dignity and honour of the Chair and of the House.

Sir, Honourable Members must have read with pain and surprise the undignified attack made upon you, Sir, as the President of the House, and which reflects upon the dignity of this House as well.

Mr. K. Ahmed (Rajshahi Division: Muhammadan Rural): What are you for ? It is your public duty.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Under rule 11, Sir, a motion for an adjournment of the business of the Assembly for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance may be made with the consent of the President. I beg to submit that this is a matter of public importance, and of sufficient public importance to justify an adjournment of the House; and it is also a definite matter, as it arises out of the scurrilous attack made by the Times of India in its issue of the 24th August. It is also a matter of urgency because the longer this matter is delayed, I feel, Sir, that the dignity of the Chair as well as the honour of this House is being compromised: and I therefore under the circumstances feel that this is a case in which you should permit leave to move an adjournment of the House. I can quite realize the delicacy of your position, Sir, in this matter, because you have yourself been the subject of the attack: but we feel, Sir, that apart from your position as the Honourable President of this House and the custodian of our rights and privileges, our position and dignity as Members of the House have been compromised by this cowardly and unworthy attack.

Munshi Iswar Saran (Lucknow Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, in order to obtain your consent has to satisfy you that this matter to which reference has been made is a definite matter. Then he has to satisfy you that it is a matter of public importance; and the third condition is that it is a matter of urgent public importance. If he succeeds in satisfying all these three conditions, I submit with great respect that you may be pleased to grant him the permission that he prays for.

Sir, I do not agree with my Honourable friend that you will feel any delicacy in this matter because I believe that in deciding this matter you will forget that you are occupying the Chair at the present moment. You will only consider the impersonal aspect of the case. What you will consider is,—here is the Legislative Assembly and here is the President of that Assembly who has been attacked in this particular manner by a certain paper which I shall not honour by naming in this House.

Now, that the matter is definite no one could object to. Here is the article itself which contains most objectionable statements. What does the article say? I am not reading it, it is not necessary to read it, but you cannot satisfy the Chair unless you bring to the notice of the Chair the allegations, the very serious allegations that have been made. Now, the President has been accused of gadding about. English is not my mother tongue and I, therefore, Sir, took the trouble of consulting Webster's Dictionary, and I find there "gadding" means going about much needlessly or without purpose.

Mr. K. Ahmed: What dictionary?

Munshi Iswar Saran: Webster's Dictionary. Do me, Sir, the honour of listening to me. What I submit, Sir, is this. Here a paper has the impudence to suggest that the President of the Legislative Assembly in his capacity, pray remember, as the President goes about much needlessly or without purpose. I say, Sir, it has not only insulted the President but also the House of which he is the President.

Sir, after this point, the next point is, is the matter of public importance? Well, Sir, this Assembly in some perorations has been called India's Parliament. Well, let us take it as India's Parliament. Then, what does it come to? India's Parliament and the President of India's Parliament have been insulted and abused and attacked in a wholly unfair and malicious manner. Is this or is this not then a matter of public importance?

Then the third question would arise, is it urgent? I say, Sir, it is most urgent, for the reason that this House owes it to itself and owes it to its President not to allow this insult to remain without a challenge. It is up to us to resent, to repudiate the insult that has been offered to this House and I shall go the length of suggesting that we should take such steps and we should expect you, Sir, to take such steps as may be necessary in order to stop such attacks in the future. Of course it is hardly necessary to observe that I do not complain against just and legitimate criticism. I therefore submit that leave to make this motion should be granted.

There is one other matter to which I shall refer. I wish to warn my friends that I do not wish to go into the merits of the question at all. I wish only to say that the matter would not have been urgent if Government had taken advantage of their Publicity Department and had at once repudiated the statements and insinuations that were made in this article. (Cries of "Hear, hear".) If they had ata once said: "We resent such criticism, we repudiate the suggestions, we do not, cannot and will not countenance articles such as the one in question," then it might perhaps have been open to some one to say that this was not a matter of urgent public importance. On the very first day that we meet after this attack, if Government have not taken that step it is up to us to take that step.

The House will be pleased to remember that in the year 1926 certain statements were made by a certain newspaper as regards your ruling in a certain matter. I do not wish to rake up that controversy; but this is what the late lamented Sir Alexander Muddiman in his capacity as the Leader of the House said at once:

"I may tell the House that I have read certain observations which might be construed as a reflection against the Chair. I dissociate myself entirely from that view. May I assure you that we are fully satisfied that the rulings of the Chair are based on the principles that have always been, and I trust will always be, the basis of the rulings of the Chair."

The reason why I have invited the attention of the House to this statement made by the Leader of the House is that the moment it came to the knowledge of the Leader of the House, the Leader of the House rose in his place in this House and repudiated the suggestion that was contained in that article. If that course had been followed in this case, Sir, I repeat that this motion might perhaps have been open to the argument that there was no urgency about it.

Sir, let me make it perfectly clear. The personality of the President of the Legislative Assembly does not matter. If Mr. Patel had been attacked it would have been the concern of Mr. Patel and his friends and co-workers. But if the President of the Legislative Assembly has been insulted it becomes the concern not only of the non-official Members of this House but also of the official Members, because the Assembly is made up of official and non-official Members, and it is up to both of them with one voice to repudiate publicly and emphatically the most objectionable statements that are contained in the article.

A word more, Sir, and I have done. The writer has drawn a comparison between the present President and the past President: with that I am not concerned—but what he says is:

"But that he should presume to go about advising them in reference to their duties is another matter; and if it is not such presumption which takes him on tour for what purpose does he go? Is it politics?"

Now, Sir, what is the insinuation? The insinuation is that the President of the Legislative Assembly abuses his position, abuses his rights and abuses his privileges and goes about discussing politics or preaching politics.

"If it one of those conventions he pretends to make?"

Now, Sir, comes the last suggestion and it is the most disgraceful of all.

"Is it merely a way of getting rid of that money with which he likes to be ostentatiously magnificent?"

I submit, Sir, irrespective of the personality of the President, such vile and vicious attacks would have been resented by the whole House. But in this case the resentment is greater, the indignation is deeper, because the present occupant of the Chair happens to have our respect, our admiration, our esteem and our confidence. (Applause.)

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions: Muhammadan Rural): Sir, after the speeches of my friend the Mover of this motion and my friend Munshi Iswar Saran there is hardly anything for me to add about this motion being in order. It has been clearly shown that the matter is urgent, that it is a definite matter and that it is of public importance. We all know that the high esteem and confidence which our President enjoys throughout the whole country needs no demonstration. At the close of the last Session the eloquent encomiums which were showered upon him both by the official and non-official Members of this House, and the manner in which he was re-elected a Member and also as President of this House, fully demonstrate the confidence which the country reposes in him. The mischievous and cowardly attack of an Anglo-Indian paper, which very often takes a prominent part in widening the gulf between Indians and Englishmen, has certainly wounded the feelings of not only the Members of this House but of the people of the country at large. Therefore, I say it is a matter of general interest that the conduct of such a paper should be condemned by this House. I hope, Sir, that your sense of modesty will not overcome your sense of duty as the custodian of the honour of this House. I can only add, Sir, that I wish that your Deputy President could have been in the Chair on this occasion.

Mr. President : I take it that the Government have nothing to say on this?

The Honourable Mr J. Crerar (Leader of the House) : I have only one word to say. I understand that the purpose of a motion for the adjournment of this House is ordinarily to discuss a matter of policy for which the Government is responsible. Government must of course repudiate any responsibility whatever for this article. If I might hazard a suggestion, I venture to think that you, Sir, are perfectly able to maintain and preserve the dignity of your office. I have no further remarks to make and I leave the matter entirely in your hands.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : It is not clear whether the Government is identified with this article.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I expressly said that the Government entirely disavowed any responsibility for it whatsoever.

Mr. President : This is one of those matters in which the President and the House are apt to go wrong if they permit themselves to be moved by indignation at the nature and character of the attack. I am grateful to the Honourable Member for giving me 24 hours' notice. That has enabled me to look into the Parliamentary procedure and precedents and give my considered decision. I have no doubt whatever that the matter proposed to be discussed is a definite matter : I have also no doubt that the matter is urgent, and it is quite clear that the matter is of public importance. But that is not all. Because the matter proposed to be discussed is a definite matter of urgent public importance the President is not bound as a matter of course to rule the motion in order. Honourable Members will find that the Standing Order 11 gives wide discretionary power to the President to admit or disallow a motion for adjournment. A matter may be urgent, it may be definite, it may be of public importance, and yet the President may in a proper case disallow such a motion.

Now, in this particular case, I have, as I have already pointed out to the House, looked up Parliamentary procedure and precedents and I have come to this conclusion. Generally speaking, motions for adjournment under Standing Order 11 must have relation, directly or indirectly, to the conduct or default on the part of Government and must be in the nature of criticism of the action of Government. I am quite clear about that, and I am supported by the Parliamentary precedents in that respect. It is not necessary for me to quote those precedents at all, but just for the information of the House I should like to mention one case in which a Member obtained leave in the House of Commons to move an adjournment of the House for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, " the articles of a scandalous nature which have appeared in the Daily Mail and other papers relating to the conduct of certain Members of this House." We are dealing with a case in which there is an attack against the President ; that was a case in which there was an attack against Members of the House. Now, when the business under discussion at a quarter past eight was postponed, the Speaker said :

" The House is aware that we have fixed 8-15 for discussion of the motion, that the Honourable and gallant Member for Finsbury has been given leave to move. The leave was given. But on reflection I think I ought to inform the House that I have come to the opinion that I was wrong in accepting that motion. When the Honourable and gallant Member rose to ask for leave to move the adjournment, I considered in my mind the points which were involved in Standing Order 10, namely, whether the motion was for the purpose of expressing a definite matter. I thought the matter was definite ; whether it was urgent. I thought it was urgent. I thought it was a public matter and I thought it was an important matter. Thereupon I accepted it. Perhaps also I was moved with some indignation at the character of the attack and the nature of the attack which has been made upon certain Members of the House, but I confess that I had not in my mind at the moment the rulings which had been given on former occasions that motions for adjournment under Standing Order 10 must have some relation to the conduct or default of Government and must be in the nature of criticism of the Government either for having done some action or for having omitted to do some action which was urgently necessary at the moment. The motion of which the Honourable and gallant Member gave notice, namely, to call attention to the articles of a scandalous nature which have appeared in the Daily Mail and other papers relating to the conduct and character of certain Members of this House does not affect the Government and whatever may be the decision of the House either in adjourning or refusing to adjourn the action of the Government is not in issue at all. Therefore, I do not think that the motion can properly be made. It raises a false issue. Honourable Members when asked to vote aye or nay on the motion for adjournment would be asked to pronounce an opinion that would leave the Government intact. Indeed the Government would not necessarily take any part in the discussion of that question. To that extent the motion raises a false issue."

The Speaker of the House of Commons then asked the Honourable Member if he could not see his way to drop the motion. Leave having been given it was not in the power of the Chair to prevent the Honourable Member from making the motion. The Honourable Member accepted the suggestion of the Chair and did not make the motion. This case is analogous to the case I have just read to the House. I go further and say that if it is the intention of the Honourable Member from Bihar to raise the question of privilege—and I do not know how far the question of privilege does arise in this case—I should say at once that no discussion on a question of privilege can take place on a motion for adjournment. I lay it down definitely and unambiguously. Under these circumstances, I regret I must disallow the motion for adjournment.

There is one word more which I would like to say. Let not this ruling be understood to mean that the House has no remedy whatever in such cases. I hold that it is the inherent right of any Assembly to defend itself against outside attacks and it is perfectly open in a proper case for the House to table a substantive motion and pass a vote of censure or condemnation on the attacker. But that is a different matter. On a motion for adjournment this can not be done. I therefore disallow this motion for adjournment.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : On a point of information Sir, may I know what action the Government is going to take in this matter ? Judges of High Courts have their remedy. They can bring before them any man they choose and punish him, while the Speaker of this House seems to be without any remedy in such matters. So I would like to know what action the Government proposes to take to protect the Speaker of the House against such a libel.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT.

QUININE FRAUD.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney (Nominated : Anglo-Indians) : Sir, I rise to ask your permission that this House do adjourn with a view to consider certain facts relating to the gigantic quinine fraud that is to-day being perpetrated throughout the length and breadth of India and to which the people of India are being subjected. I shall prove to you the importance of this matter. It will not be difficult to convince this House how important this matter is to the country when I refer to the mortality from malaria, which totals 4 millions a year, in other words 1.1 per cent. of the population, and if I were to indent on my imagination and place the corpses of these 4 million victims side by side they would cover 2,700 miles and extend from the north to the south of India. Such is the appalling malarial mortality in this country which I would call, for want of a better name, the malarial longitude of India. Sir, this quinine fraud is being done by the wholesale importation into India of certain spurious quinine preparations especially quinine bisulphate, a specimen of which I have in my hand. I do not include in this fraud quinine prepared by such well known firms as Burroughs and Wellcome, Park Davies, Howard and Company and other reputable firms. It is the most terrible fraud that has ever been perpetrated on this country and the unrestricted sale of this spurious drug has, I submit, been largely responsible for the steady high mortality from malaria. The label on this bottle exposes the whole fraud. It states here "Quinine Bisulphate" and beneath this in small letters there is printed, the word "Co." which means "compound". Against this is printed the quantity, i.e., 5 grains, meaning that there are 5 grains of quinine bisulphate in each tabloid. This quinine has been examined by the Chemical Examiner to the Punjab Government who certifies it to consist of one grain or less of quinine, 3½ grains of chalk and half a grain of alum or other insoluable matter, to make it a little tasty. The wholesale price this quinine is being sold at in Bombay is Rs. 5 a lb. as against the wholesale cost price of pure Government quinine of Rs. 19 a lb. How is this possible unless it be a spurious preparation ? Now, Sir, this is the fraud that is being perpetrated upon the peoples of India and absolutely no steps whatever are being taken either by the Central or Provincial Governments. And why ?

Because there is no Drugs Adulteration Act in India, an Act which even Egypt, Palestine and Mesopotamia possess. (An Honourable Member : "Who makes that quinine ? "). This spurious preparation of quinine is manufactured in England and Germany and other places of Europe. The label on the bottle states "Made in London, England", but imported and compressed in India by D. Rai and Company. This imposition on the ignorant and suffering public, as I have just said, is being perpetrated with what almost looks like the connivance of Government. There are many other drugs besides quinine, e.g., ergot, bismuth, cinchona, etc., that are adulterated and imported into India and imposed on the ignorant public by dishonest and unqualified chemists and druggists. The supply of quinine in India comes from two sources, one from the Government and the other as sold by public chemists, etc. This House will be interested to know that Government holds a stock of quinine which is 21 years in excess of its annual requirements.

Most of the quinine offered in the bazaars for sale to the public by so-called small Indian chemists (of course excluding the reputable chemists of India) is not quinine at all but chalk. India is "par excellence" the dumping ground for every variety of quack medicine and adulterated drug manufactured in all parts of the world ; its markets are glutted with useless and deleterious drugs sold by unqualified chemists who are themselves a public danger ; and yet the Government looks on with complacency. I don't say that it does so deliberately, but that it has done so for many years there is no doubt. Otherwise it would have awakened to its responsibility years ago and introduced a Food and Drugs Act—a Pharmacy and Poisons Bill—and insisted on all chemists being suitably qualified. The next point is the urgency of the matter. This will not be a difficult matter to prove.

Mr. President : How long has this been going on ?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I cannot tell you how long the quinine fraud has been going on, but with regard to the adulteration of other drugs, I believe the fraud has been going on for a good many years.

Mr. President : How long has the Honourable Member known it ?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I have known about the quinine fraud quite recently, indeed I knew of it from the exposure in the Civil and Military Gazette. We are on the eve of the malaria season in India. We are entering on the period when millions of our malaria stricken people will be tramping to our District Board and Municipal hospitals expecting to be given quinine but receiving chalk instead.

An Honourable Member : Did the Honourable Member receive a report from the Government Analyst ?

Lieut.-Col. H. A. J. Gidney : I have got with me the report of the Chemical Examiner to the Punjab Government as reported in the Civil and Military Gazette of 31st August 1928. Public opinion has been aroused to a very large extent and India owes a debt of gratitude to the public spirited men who have exposed this fraud and to the Civil and Military Gazette for opening its columns to the exposure of this fraud. My point is, what are we going to do ? I know Government is too busy readjusting political situations and so I have asked for an adjournment of the House because I believe that Honourable Members who are the custodians of the country will do their utmost to stop this gigantic fraud on the health of our people. Government will probably try to evade responsibility on the score that medicine is a transferred and provincial subject. I know that medicine is a transferred subject and that the Devolution Rules state that food adulteration is also a provincial matter, but Government cannot evade direct responsibility in this quinine fraud because this spurious drug is imported into India at its various sea ports which are under the Central Government. This quinine enters India via all Indian seaports where it is assessed by the Customs and Government derives customs revenue from it for all such importation is subject to the Sea Customs Act which is entirely a Government of India matter. Indeed, if I were uncharitably inclined, I might say the Government of India in receiving import revenues from bogus drugs, of which fraud it is fully aware, is, in a manner, aiding and abetting the fraud. I therefore submit that Government cannot get behind its responsibility. It may say it knows nothing about it. I submit that it certainly does know and it should know, for Government has already been warned of these frauds, malpractices and dangers. On the 19th March 1921 I introduced a motion in this House in which I asked Government to impose a 20 per cent. extra taxation on the importation of certain dishonest quack drugs. Government refused to do so on principle. On the 9th March 1927 this matter was brought to the notice of the Council of State. I have before me that debate in which the Director General of the Indian Medical Service assured the Mover of the motion that he would represent to the various Provincial Governments with regard to the necessity of a Food and Drugs Act being introduced, as also that the training of pharmaceutists be placed on a proper footing. I understand that the various Governments have been consulted about this matter, but nothing material has been done for the past eighteen months and the millions of India are still dying of malaria. The Tropical School of Medicine in Calcutta has also pronounced its opinion about the danger of this drug adulteration, and pressed for legislation. The Senior Trades Commissioner has also exposed these dangers and advised a Food and Drugs Act. Mr. J. C. Ghosh of Calcutta has also exposed these dangers and pressed for legislation. The Indian Chamber of Commerce in Bombay have also written to the Government of India, Education, Health and Lands Department, and asked for a Food and Drugs Act and standardisation of all drugs manufactured or imported into India. Representatives of well known drug manufacturers and the public Press have also widely ventilated the fraud and dangers. I ask the Government, what has it done? Nothing! when it was clearly its duty to act at once and so save India. Why has it failed to do its duty? Why has it not introduced a Food and Drugs Act—a Pharmacy and Poisons Bill and other remedial measures? I therefore ask the Government to give the House the following assurance, failing which I ask your permission to adjourn the House for further consideration of the matter. I ask the Government of India to give the House an assurance that, after adequate enquiry, it will take early steps.....

Mr. President : Order, order. This procedure is not to be utilised for the purpose of soliciting assurances from Government. If the Honourable Member wishes to ask leave for an adjournment of the House he can do so.

Lieut.-Col. H. A. J. Gidney : I ask the House to join me in demanding from the Government the immediate suppression of this drug fraud. That it is of great and grave national importance to the millions of our people no one can gainsay. I therefore ask you, Sir, to be so good as to grant an adjournment of this House.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai (Secretary, Department of Education, Health and Lands) : Sir, I do not think it necessary for me to discuss at length the imaginatively lurid picture which my Honourable and gallant friend has painted of the evils of the quinine pill peril. There are only two questions which I would like to submit for the consideration of the House, viz., whether this is a definite matter of public importance, and further whether it is a matter of urgent public importance. First, as to its definiteness. So far as I am aware, my Honourable and gallant friend's indictment is based upon the communication of the travelling representative of a chemical firm, unsubstantiated, as far as I can see, by any testimony of which I am in possession, or for that matter anybody else. Most of his arguments are culled from the columns of the Civil and Military Gazette. It is difficult, Sir, in the circumstances, to judge of this matter merely by the correspondence in the Press.

The second question is whether this is a matter of urgent public importance. My Honourable and gallant friend has by his own speech played completely into my hands, because he says that in 1921 he made a motion to suggest to Government that a duty should be imposed on the importation of this drug. Further, he says that in 1926 or 1927 the matter was discussed by the Council of State. Again he refers to a letter addressed to the Government of India some time in May 1928. If that is so, where is the urgency of this matter? The Government of India have been considering it for years. (An Honourable Member : "And done nothing!") I will come to that. We are not discussing the merits of the question or the action taken by the Government of India, but only whether this is a matter of urgent and definite public importance. He says there is the imminence of malaria and millions of people will die. There again the question arises, has he established that the bulk of the people who use quinine use this adulterated quinine? I am not aware of the national extent of the so-called evil. So far as I can gather from the documents on which my friend bases his case, the evil is confined to the Punjab.

The third point to which I should like to draw your attention, Sir, is that under Rule 12, clause 2, of the Standing Orders of this House, a matter has not merely to be a specific matter for discussion, but also a specific matter of recent occurrence. How is this of recent occurrence? According to this document, the sale of the alleged adulterated drug has gone on for a long time.

Mr. President : Order, order. The Honourable Member has failed to satisfy me that the matter is urgent. On the contrary he has satisfied me that the matter is several years old. I therefore regard his motion as one which does not satisfy the requirements of Standing Order 11, and I therefore disallow it.

BILLS ASSENTED TO BY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL.

Mr. President : I have received a letter from Mr. G. Cunningham, Private Secretary to His Excellency the Viceroy, reading as follows :

Secretary of Assembly : Sir, under Standing Order 78 I have to report that a petition signed by M. R. Ry. K. R. Venkataraz, Pleader, Chittoor, has been received relating to the Bill further to amend the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, for certain purposes and the Bill to supplement the Transfer of Property Amendment Act, 192 , which were introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 11th September 1927.

DEATHS OF SIR ALEXANDER MUDDIMAN AND CAPTAIN KABUL SINGH.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar (Leader of the House) : Sir, before the list of business for the day is entered on, with your permission, Sir, I should like to say a few words on what must be to us all a very melancholy subject. Since the House last met, there has passed away in the late Sir Alexander Muddiman, a personality once familiar and highly respected, not only within these walls but beyond them—more than that, because if I rightly remember, an Honourable Member opposite once referred to him with general applause as "our beloved House Member". Though at the time of his unexpected and lamented death, he was no longer a Member, I am confident that the whole House and every individual Member of it will be acutely sensible of a great and irreparable loss. On Sir Alexander's record and achievements in the office, to which I have unworthily succeeded, it would not become me to dwell. I was not a Member of the House during his Leadership and the great majority of Members now present have a direct and intimate experience to which I can lay no claim. But the great capacity and resource, the geniality of temperament, the essential equity of mind which he displayed as Leader, and the confidence he inspired in every quarter of the House, are matters of common knowledge.

I knew him as the best of Chiefs—sagacious, imperturbable, always ready to assist, to advise or to support. I think I may say that I also knew him, as indeed did all with whom he was brought into any close relation, as a personal friend. I cannot find adequate words to express the sorrow and dismay which the news of Sir Alexander Muddiman's tragically sudden decease brought to his large circle of friends, and I shall leave them unsaid. Those who so knew him must, I think, have been especially impressed by what in the experience of most of us, is a rare, as it is an inestimable, combination of qualities—a shrewd and penetrating insight into human motives and conduct, and a great charity and good humour in passing judgment upon them. And this happily balanced habit of mind he carried into the more impersonal issues of politics and administration. No one had a keener intellectual appreciation of the logical value of the issues that there arise: no one could assess with more sympathy and wisdom their practical value in human affairs. Few men, I believe, in recent times have left so many to deplore their death. To this House he has bequeathed a memory which will always be preserved, and a tradition as Leader, which it must be my best ambition to endeavour humbly to follow.

I also think, Mr. President, that I would be failing in my duty if I did not make a reference to the loss this House has sustained in the recent death of Captain Kabul Singh. Captain Kabul Singh was modest and retiring by temperament, but I think he had earned the respect and esteem of the House and I feel that the House will desire to record an expression of its deep regret.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I also join in mourning the loss of that great Englishman, the late Sir Alexander Muddiman. By his sympathy with the aspirations of the Indians, by his unfailing courtesy and by his straightforward manner in dealing with the people of this country, he had earned the love and respect of all those who had the privilege of knowing him. We the Members of this House know very well that differences of opinion as regards political matters never interfered with the social relations of the late Sir Alexander Muddiman with the Members of this House, and even during the most contentious debates he never lost his temper or his sense of humour, and he extended his hospitality and courtesy equally to the Swarajists as well as to the Members on the other side of the House. When he was elevated as Governor of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh it was expected that a new era of broadminded policy and improvement in the administration of the province had begun, and in fact during the very brief and short period of about five months when he was Governor of the United Provinces, the whole prospect was changed and the people of the province thought that the regime of Sir Alexander Muddiman would be a regime of sympathy and good will, but alas, it was not going to be fulfilled. The iron hands of untimely death have snatched him away from the scene of his action. The general character of the mourning which was displayed by the people of the United Provinces on his death shows his popularity and the love of the people of the Province which he had earned during that short period. Our hearts go forth in sympathy to that old lady in England, his mother, who in her old age has lost all that man could possess in this world; and we sincerely sympathise and condole with her in her irreparable loss and bereavement. With these words I wish to associate myself with the Resolution that has been moved.

I wish also to associate myself with what the Leader of the House, the Honourable Mr. Crerar, said about that gentleman the late Captain Kabul Singh. We, who knew him as a Member of this House, know that he was a genuine friend and a thorough gentleman, and we wish also to extend our sympathy to the bereaved members of his family.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, on behalf of the Congress Party in this House I wish to associate myself with the observations made by the Leader of the House on this very melancholy and sad occasion. Those of us who had the privilege of coming into contact with the late Sir Alexander Muddiman remember with pleasure and gratitude his many qualities of head and heart, and while this is not

DEATHS OF SIR ALEXANDER MUDDIMAN AND CAPTAIN KABUL SINGH.

[Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta.]

the occasion for judging of the political value of the various measures which were passed or not passed in his time, everybody will admit that he was the least impatient and the least bitter of all the opponents that we had had to meet on the floor of this House. He was never buried under the weight of his great office or of the many responsibilities which he carried on his shoulders, but always rose above them ; and there was a sort of bonhomie about him, an easy, cheerful, pleasant way which disarmed all opposition and suspicion and which was a great instrument in turning doubtful friends into cordial companions. That was the great merit of Sir Alexander Muddiman. If I may so say without digressing, Sir Alexander Muddiman, along with several other officers of Government, was a better man than the system he and they have to work. It is the misfortune of some members of the Government that they are called upon to administer a system which they themselves do not like and it is this fact to which many of the difficulties of the present situation can be traced. But about Sir Alexander Muddiman it may be truly said that he tried to rise above the system to the best of his ability. We remember he looked so strong and healthy—the very picture of health—and it is really a great wrench that so soon after his leaving this House he should have been suddenly removed from our midst. We are all of us deeply shocked and I request you to communicate to the members of his family our sympathy and condolence in their great loss.

I would also like to associate myself with the observations made by the Leader of the House about the late Captain Kabul Singh.

Nawab Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan (East Central Punjab : Muhammadan) : Sir, I rise in obedience to the call of a melancholy duty, and I desire to pay my homage to the memory of the late Sir Alexander Muddiman. It is not long since he was with us in this House, but we all remember his genial ways and the great tact which he displayed in his dealings with us, non-official Members. I associate myself entirely with the remarks which have fallen from the previous speakers. I may add a few more remarks and say that when he joined the Government of India as Deputy Secretary he displayed those sterling qualities which helped him to attain to one of the highest positions in India. As President of the Council of State I was in those days an elected Member of the Council of State - he displayed great tact and showed that he was perfectly impartial and scrupulously just. I never heard any whisper against his treatment of either officials or non-officials. It was a great quality in him that he had the ability to please everybody. I remember his work in the Home Department and as Leader of the House. It is an ineffaceable memory with me that whenever I came in personal contact with him I carried away the most pleasant impression of his personality, and I think this was the impression created on others also. Sir, we are grateful to him for the example which he gave us in behaviour. No man so harassed and so severely criticised faced the Assembly with greater calm and with such an irrepressible and genial smile. Sir, I would request you to convey to his relatives at Home the sense of loss which we have suffered in his death, and I think all the Members present here will agree with me in this request.

Lala Lajpat Rai (Jullundur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, on behalf of myself and of the Party which I have the honour to represent in this House, I would like to associate myself with the remarks that have been made by the Honourbale Leader of the House, about the tragic death of Sir Alexander Muddiman. Sir Alexander Muddiman was one of those men whom we consider to be rare—he was frank and sincere. It is a great thing in these days to have men amongst British statesmen who, in spite of conflict of interests and views that may exist between the Government and the opposition, will reduce the amount of bitterness and unpleasantness which results therefrom to its lowest possible extent. I think that is a great quality which Sir Alexander Muddiman possessed in abundance and which we all fully appreciated on this side of the House. We are very sorry that he should have been cut off from the great career which he had before him.

I also wish to associate myself with the regret of the House in regard to the death of Captain Kabul Singh.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber : Indian Commerce) : Sir, on behalf of the Independent Party it is my painful duty to associate myself with the remarks which have fallen from the Leader of the House. I do not wish to say much, but there is one incident which impressed me about Sir Alexander Muddiman very early after I joined the Central Legislature and I think it is only right that I should take this opportunity of getting it on record. It was in the Council of State when Sir Alexander Muddiman was President in July 1923, when the Council of State was in Session and the Kenya White Paper was published in London. The Council was to adjourn on the 27th July, the last working day, and the Kenya White Paper was available to us on the 24th of that month. I was working to get a sufficient number of votes to get an adjournment of the House, and 15 people were required to stand up in their seats before an adjournment motion could be accepted. Unfortunately, the Government wished to oppose the motion, and Sir Narasimha Sarma, who was then Member in charge, told me that he would stoutly oppose the motion. When this was brought to the notice of Sir Alexander Muddiman, he said to me that the motion which was going to be moved was perfectly in order, but I must get 15 people to stand up. It was five minutes to eleven on the 27th, and Sir Alexander Muddiman inquired whether there was the requisite number of Members present in the House. It was then mentioned to him that the fifteen required to support the adjournment motion were not secured. Sir Alexander Muddiman sent for Sir Muhammad Shafi, the Leader of the House, and told him, " Will you inform Sir Purshotamdas that if he can get 14, I will stand up and be the 15th member ". This served its purpose wonderfully and we got more than 15 to stand up. Since that incident, Sir, I felt that in Sir Alexander Muddiman we had a man who could be relied upon to stand by India even under trammels of office. I think, Sir, this incident is sufficient to show that in Muddiman the man, India had much to appreciate and even to praise.

Mr. H. G. Cocke (Bombay : European) : Sir, I wish to say a very few words to join in this tribute both on behalf of myself and those who sit on these benches to the memory of the late Sir Alexander Muddiman. My recollection of him goes back to the second Assembly in 1924. He was not here then, but he was in the Council of State, and shortly after he came to this House as Home Member. Reference has been made to his geniality and good spirits by several speakers to-day, and those qualities were undoubtedly amongst his greatest attributes. Another instance which perhaps I might be permitted to recall, though of a somewhat different nature to that just referred to, was on the occasion when Government were likely to be deprived of their travelling allowance. On that occasion Sir Alexander Muddiman with his usual geniality said : " Nothing would please me more than to have six weeks in which to walk up the hill to Simla ". That incident shows the character of the man but he also possessed other very excellent characteristics. He was very sincere, he was always easy to approach, and he was very responsive to any request made to him by Members of the House.

I also desire to associated myself with the words of tribute paid to the memory of Captain Kabul Singh, and trust the expressions of condolence by the Members of this House may be conveyed to the relatives of the deceased.

Mr. President : I am sure the House will permit me to add my quota of tribute to the memories of the late Captain Kabul Singh and Sir Alexander Muddiman. Captain Kabul Singh was a very quiet and unassuming Member of this House, and, as was just observed by my Deputy, a thorough gentleman.

As regards Sir Alexander Muddiman, he was associated with the Central Legislature since 1910 in various capacities. Steadily he rose to be the Secretary of the old Imperial Legislative Council, of which I had the honour to be a Member, and in that capacity I came in direct touch, and, if I may say so, in intimate touch with Sir Alexander Muddiman. He was then promoted to the office of the President of the Council of State, in which capacity, as the House is aware, he showed conspicuous ability and impartiality in the discharge of his duties. With his experience as President of the Council of State he came to this place as the Leader of the House and in that capacity displayed unusual knowledge of Parliamentary traditions, and I can say from personal experience he was thoroughly conversant with Parliamentary manners, Parliamentary etiquette and Parliamentary methods in conducting the business of this House. I watched his career with the keenest interest and, as you are all aware, the relations between the Chair and the Leader of the House were then of an extraordinarily cordial nature. He always stood up for the dignity of the Chair and the dignity of this House. We all miss him very much, and it will be my duty to convey an expression of the regret and condolence of this House to the family of the deceased.

THE PUBLIC SAFETY (REMOVAL FROM INDIA) BILL.

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar (Home Member) : Sir, I introduce the Bill to provide for the removal from British India in certain cases of persons not being Indian British subjects or subjects of States in India.

THE INDIAN INSURANCE COMPANIES BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I introduce the Bill further to amend the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1912, for certain purposes, and to provide for the collection of statistical information in respect of insurance business other than life assurance business.

THE DANGEROUS DRUGS BILL.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Finance Member) : Sir, I introduce the Bill to centralise and vest in the Governor General in Council the control over certain operations relating to dangerous drugs and to increase and render uniform throughout British India the penalties for offences relating to such operations.

THE INDIAN TRADE UNIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Indian Trade Unions Act, 1926, for a certain purpose.

The object of this Bill is to remove certain obscurities which have crept into one section of the Indian Trade Unions Act. That section, section 11, deals with the procedure in appeal from the orders of the Registrar either refusing to register a Trade Union or issuing orders for the withdrawal or cancellation of a certificate of registration. The section, as it stands, is defective because in the first place it does not make clear where the appellate Court is situated ; whether it is to be the Court which has jurisdiction in the place where the head office of the Union is situated or whether it is to be the Court which has jurisdiction where the office of the Registrar is situated. It was clearly the intention of the House when the Trade Unions Bill was under discussion that the appellate Court should be the Court where the head office of the Trade Union was situated and the first amendment made in this Bill is to make that point clear. The second point is that in the existing section it is not clear which the appellate Court is in the Presidency towns and in Rangoon, and the second amendment made in this Bill is to make it clear that the appellate Court in these cases is the High Court and that there shall be one appeal in all cases to the High Court.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE TRADE DISPUTES BILL.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to make provision for the investigation and settlement of trade disputes, and for certain other purposes.

This Bill, as the House will realise, is an important measure. It has been published for some weeks and as the time at my disposal in making this motion is obviously short, it would be quite impossible for me to do more than make a very few remarks on this occasion. I shall content myself with giving the merest summary of the provisions of the Bill. The first provision is to provide machinery by which Government shall be enabled to intervene as early as possible in cases of trade disputes. The machinery may take the form of the appointment of either Courts of Inquiry or Boards of Conciliation. In both cases what we propose to do in the main is to have publicity and the force of public opinion in shortening trade disputes which have been, I am sorry to say, so prevalent recently, and I think the House will agree with me that it was perhaps a pity that such machinery was not available during the last few months.

[Mr. A. C. McWatters.]

The subsidiary provisions of the Bill are two-fold. The first is a provision which requires some interval to elapse before a strike can take place in a Public Utility Service. The object of this is the protection of the public, because strikes in these services are very often serious both to life and to property and also because this interval of a month, which the Bill requires, will give us the opportunity of bringing into play the conciliation machinery which I have just described.

The third part of the Bill, which is based, as the House will have observed, on recent legislation in England proposes to render illegal strikes and lock-outs in certain circumstances. The definition given in the Bill is a definition, so far as it can be defined in law, of a general strike, and the illegality occurs only if the strike or lock-out fulfils both of two criteria. First of all, the strike or lock-out must have objects other than, or in addition to, a trade dispute within the trade or industry concerned, and in the second place, it must be designed to coerce Government either directly or by its effect upon the public. These, as I have said, are very important provisions on which the House will certainly expect me to make a full explanation on a later date. On the present occasion I think the explanation I have given is perhaps sufficient to explain the Bill briefly to the House.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923, for certain purposes.

The Bill which I ask for leave to introduce is limited to the removal of certain defects which have come to light in the working of the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1923. The Act came into force on the 1st of July, 1924, and during the interval a certain number of points, some of detail, some of fair importance, have been brought to our notice principally by the Commissioners for Workmen's Compensation, and the present Bill is intended to deal solely with these points of detail. But I should like to take this opportunity of saying that we propose at the same time to address Local Governments with regard to the more general principles of the Bill. On the present occasion I do not think I need go into further detail as regards this Bill which is very fully explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE INDIAN SUCCESSION (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. J. A. Shillidy (Home Department : Nominated Official) : Sir, I ask for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Succession Act, 1925, for a certain purpose.

The Bill is a very short one. It could hardly have been shorter. Its object is simply to give effect to what was the original intention of the Indian Succession (Amendment) Act, 1926. It was not the intention of that Act that the wills of Hindus, Buddhists, Sikhs and Jains beyond those mentioned in section 57 of the Act of 1925 should be subjected to the requirements of probate or letters of administration. It was not perceived at the time that an amendment of section 213 of the Act was necessary, and all that this Bill seeks to do is to confine those requirements of probate or letters of administration to the wills of Hindus, Buddhists, Sikhs and Jains mentioned in sub-section (1) of section 57.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. J. A. Shillidy : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE REPEALING AND AMENDING BILL.

Mr. L. Graham (Secretary, Legislative Department) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to amend certain enactments and to repeal certain other enactments.

The object of the Bill, as stated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, is to make a few necessary amendments of a formal nature in certain enactments and to repeal certain spent or useless matter in the Statute-book.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. L. Graham : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE INDIAN PENAL CODE (AMENDMENT) BILL.

(AMENDMENT OF SECTION 505.)

Sir Denys Bray (Foreign Secretary) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Penal Code for a certain purpose.

There is nothing controversial (Some Honourable Members : "Oh !") in the spirit in which this Bill has been designed and I greatly hope that I shall persuade the House to receive it in no controversial spirit. The fundamental object of the Bill in as simple and plain language as I can find is the better preservation of India's interests abroad. Of late, those interests have been jeopardised, I had almost said impaired, by certain statements in certain quarters which tended to promote, in the language of the Bill, unfriendly relations between India and foreign countries. It is only recently that Government has realised that there is no provision in the law to cover cases of this kind. Hence the Bill which I now ask the leave of the House to introduce.

The motion was adopted.

Sir Denys Bray : I introduce the Bill.

THE MATCH INDUSTRY (PROTECTION) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the protection of the match industry.

[Sir George Rainy.]

This Bill is a very short and a very simple one. It is based, as Members will no doubt realise, on the report recently published of the Indian Tariff Board regarding the protection of the match industry. The Government of India have accepted the recommendation of the Board and this Bill proposes to give effect to that recommendation. The rate of duty on matches will be left unchanged, but the duty which at present occurs in the revenue part of the Tariff Schedule will be transferred to the protective part of the Schedule. The object of that of course is to give the House an opportunity of expressing a definite opinion regarding the protection of the industry. Sir, I move.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for a certain purpose.

The purpose, Sir, is a very simple one and is a corollary of the formation of a Central Income-tax Department.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE MADRAS SALT (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Madras Salt Act, 1889, for a certain purpose.

This again, Sir, is a very simple Bill and its sole object is to remove a lacuna in the existing Act.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Wednesday, the 5th September 1928.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Wednesday, 5th September, 1928.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

MEMBERS SWORN :

Mr. Edward Henry Mitchell Bower, M.L.A. (Madras : Nominated Official) ; and

Mr. John Alexander Stewart, M.L.A. (Burma : Nominated Official).

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

ISSUE OF INSTRUCTIONS TO THE INCOME-TAX OFFICERS OF CALCUTTA, REGARDING APPLICATIONS UNDER SECTION 27 OF THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX ACT, 1922.

66. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Is it a fact that the present Assistant Commissioners of Calcutta have issued general instructions to the Income-tax Officers within their respective jurisdiction, not to entertain applications under section 27 of the Income-tax Act at all ?

(b) Do Government propose to enquire into the matter and lay before the House the result of such enquiry ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) No such instructions have been issued by the Assistant Commissioners referred to.

(b) Does not arise.

ISSUE BY THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT OF NOTICES TO WEALTHY ASSESSEES UNDER SECTION 34 OF THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX ACT, 1922.

67. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Is it a fact that the practice of the Income-tax Department in Calcutta is to issue indiscriminately notices under section 34 in cases of wealthy assessees specially Indians, immediately or soon after their assessment has been made by the Income-tax Officer ? If so, do Government propose to enquire into the matter and inform the House of the result of such enquiry ?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the number of such notices under section 34, issued to assessees in Calcutta during March 1925 to October 1926 and November 1926 to March 1928 and also state the respective dates on which the original assessment in each case had been made ? And will the Government be further pleased to state the number of such notices issued during the next previous six months with the respective dates of original assessment in each case ?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state whether there is a special Income-tax Officer in Calcutta charged with the duty of issuing notices under section 34 of the Act? If so, who is he?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra: (a) The practice is not as stated. Notices under section 34 are not issued indiscriminately.

(b) A statement is laid on the table giving the information required.

(c) There is no such officer. An officer was appointed to deal with certain assessments under section 34 in the year 1926 but the Central Board of Revenue considered the arrangement unsatisfactory and ordered its discontinuance in April 1927. The remainder of the question therefore does not arise.

Statement showing number of notices under section 34 issued, during September, 1924 to February, 1925, in Calcutta.

No. of notices issued under Section 34.	Dates of original assessment in cases other than new cases.
67. (Including 28 new cases in which the Section 34 assessments were the 1st assessments.)	25th Sep. 1924, 26th Sep. 1924, 22nd Nov. 1924, 9th Dec. 1924, 25th Oct. 1924, Dec. 1924, 11th Nov. 1924, 20th Nov. 1924, 30th Dec. 1924, 30th Sep. 1924, 29th Feb. 1924, 17th Feb. 1925, 26th Nov. 1924, 26th July 1923, 11th July 1923, 18th Nov. 1924, 13th Jan. 1925, 17th Jan. 1925, 27th Feb. 1925, 29th Sep. 1924, 7th Nov. 1924, 22nd Nov. 1924, 10th Dec. 1924, 11th March 1925, 20th Jan. 1925, March 1924, 10th Sep. 1924, 17th Nov. 1924, 14th Nov. 1924, 5th March 1924, 19th Nov. 1923, 25th Jan. 1924, 8th March 1924, 8th Jan. 1924, 23rd Oct. 1924, 3rd Dec. 1924, 13th Jan. 1925, 23rd Feb. 1925, 27th Feb. 1925.

GIVING OF REASONS FOR A DECISION OR AN ASSESSMENT MADE BY THE INCOME-TAX OFFICER.

68. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi: (a) Do Government propose to restart the practice which had prevailed till recently in the Income-tax Department in Calcutta of giving reasons for a decision or for an assessment made by the Income-tax Officers in the copies of such orders or assessments supplied by that Department to the assessees ?

(b) Are Government aware that copies of assessment orders as are at present given contain certain figures only and not the reasons for arriving at such figures of income ? If not, do Government propose to enquire if it is a fact ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). The Honourable Member is presumably referring to assessments made under section 23 (4) of the Indian Income-tax Act, against which no appeal lies on the merits. In such cases the law does not require the Income-tax Officer, as it does in cases falling under section 23 (3), to record a written assessment order, and the Government understand that for the last two years—approximately—such orders have not been recorded in Calcutta. The Government are not prepared to impose on the Income-tax Officers an obligation that the Legislature have not thought it necessary to impose on them. In cases under section 23 (3) detailed assessment orders are recorded.

APPOINTMENT OF PERSONS WITH JUDICIAL EXPERIENCE AS ASSISTANT COMMISSIONERS OF INCOME-TAX.

69. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : Do Government propose to appoint persons with sufficient judicial experience to the posts of Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax, as these officers are required to decide questions judicially ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the speech made by the Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters on this subject in the Council of State on March 10th, 1926, which represents the views of the Government. He will there see that as a matter of fact at that time about 3/4ths of the Assistant Commissioners were officers with judicial experience.

PAY OF THE POSTMASTER, SILCHAR.

70. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (1) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table the following information regarding the (1) Silchar Telegraph Office, (2) Silchar Record Office, and (3) Silchar Post Office, separately :

(a) the pay of the Telegraph Master, Head Record Clerk and Postmaster at Silchar on the 1st April, 1928 ;

(b) the total number of employees who are subordinate to the Telegraph Master, the Head Record Clerk and the Head Postmaster on the 1st April, 1928 ;

(c) the monthly average cash handled at the Telegraph Office, Head Record Office and the Head Post Office during 1927-28 ;

(d) the monthly average receipt and expenditure of the cash account for which the (1) Telegraph Master, (2) Head Record Clerk, and (3) Postmaster are responsible ; and

(e) the total value of insured articles and V. P. articles dealt with by the Head Record Office and Post Office at Silchar separately during 1927-28 ?

(2) Is it a fact that the duties of the Postmaster at Silchar are more responsible than those of the Telegraph Master and Head Record Clerk at Silchar ?

(3) If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons why the pay of the Postmaster, Silchar, is less than that of the Telegraph Master or the Head Record Clerk at Silchar ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (1) A statement giving the information asked for will be furnished to the Honourable Member.

(2) No.

(3) Does not arise.

GRADING OF POSTAL ACCOUNTANTS.

71. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Are the Government aware of the fact that the Accountants attached to the Divisional offices of the Public Works Department in Assam are graded with those of the office of the Comptroller of Assam and that their posts are exchangeable ? If so, will Government be pleased to state whether they intend to introduce a similar procedure with regard to the Accountants of the Post Offices ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : The facts are as stated by the Honourable Member. Government do not propose to introduce a similar procedure in the Post Office.

APPOINTMENT OF A MUSSALMAN AS ASSISTANT POSTMSATER GENERAL IN THE BENGAL AND ASSAM CIRCLE.

72. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Is it a fact that the post of a Superintendent of Post Offices has fallen vacant by the premature death of Moulvi Abdur Rohim, Assistant Postmaster General in the Bengal and Assam Circle ? If so, do Government propose to issue instructions to fill up the vacancy by a member of the Mussalman community ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Sir, as questions numbers 72, 73, 75, 78 and 201, all turn on the same point, I propose with your permission to deal with them together. Each question contains the suggestion that in connection with promotions within the Posts and Telegraphs Department a certain reservation should be made in favour of members of the Muslim community. As has already been stated on behalf of Government on more than one occasion, in making promotions from a lower to a higher grade of the department the guiding principle is efficiency. The representation of minority communities is secured by the reservation of vacancies for direct recruitment and Government are not prepared to give weight to communal considerations when it is a question of making promotions. In these circumstances it does not appear that any useful purpose would be served by the collection of all the particulars asked for by the Honourable Member in connection with some of these questions.

RECRUITMENT OF MUSSALMAN GRADUATES IN THE CLERICAL CADRE OF THE POST OFFICE.

† 73. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (i) With reference to my starred question No. 291 put on the 24th February, 1928, will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the officials who had passed the Inspectors and Head Clerks' examination are exempted from the Selection Grade examination ?

(ii) If so, do Government propose to furnish a statement showing the number of graduates and non-graduates separately under (a) Hindus, (b) Mussalmans, and (c) others separately Circle by Circle who will be eligible for appointment in the newly created Selection Grade and also the number of graduates and I. A.'s in each community ?

(iii) Do Government propose to take any special action to have a greater number of Mussalman candidates for the Selection Grade appointments ?

(iv) If so, will Government please state the nature of the action proposed to be taken ? Will the Government be pleased to state the number of graduates and non-graduates of departmental officials separately who have passed the examination for the appointment of Superintendent of Post Offices [(a) Hindus, (b) Mussalmans, and (c) others should be shown separately] ?

(v) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the number of graduate clerks, (a) Hindus, (b) Mussalmans, and (c) others Circle by Circle in the Department on the 1st June, 1928 ?

(vi) If the number of Mussalman graduates is found less than that of the other communities, do Government propose to take any special action for the recruitment of Mussalman graduates in the clerical cadre ? If so, what ?

NUMBER OF APPOINTMENTS FILLED UP BY MUSSALMANS IN THE POSTS AND TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENTS IN 1927-28.

74. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : With reference to my starred question No. 292 asked on the 24th February, 1928, will Government be pleased to furnish a statement showing the number of fresh appointments made during 1927-28 by each of the officers who are empowered to fill up appointments and the number of appointments filled up by Mussalmans in the Posts and Telegraph Departments separately (the number of graduates and non-graduates, Mussalmans and Hindus, should be shown separately) ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : The information asked for by the Honourable Member is being collected and will be supplied to him.

APPOINTMENT OF MUSSALMANS AS PROBATIONARY SUPERINTENDENTS OF POST OFFICES.

†75. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : With reference to my starred questions Nos. 358 and 359 asked on the 7th March, 1928, do Government propose to take any special action to bring the number of Mussalmans to the required number on the waiting list ? If so, what ? Will the Government be pleased to state why the required number of Mussalmans were not selected to appear at the examination ? Is there any order as to what portion of Superintendents posts should go to Mussalmans ? If not, do Government propose to fix it now in order to prevent the preponderance of any one community or class in these appointments ? Do Government propose to issue orders to hold future examinations exclusively for Mussalmans or to reserve the future vacancies of Probationary Superintendents for Mussalmans in order to give the community their proper share in these services ? If not, why ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 72.

ORDERS ISSUED BY THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS REGARDING MINORITY COMMUNITIES.

76. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : With reference to unstarred question No. 281 asked by Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan on the 7th March, 1928, will Government be pleased to state why other services such as telegraphists, overseers, postmen and menials, etc., of the Posts and Telegraph Departments were not mentioned in the orders of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs, G. I. No. A. M.-516|12|27, dated the 22nd November 1927, referred to in the reply ? Do the Government consider it necessary to instruct the Director General to issue immediate similar orders in respect of other services under him ? If not, why ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : Other grades are being dealt with by the issue of separate orders. The orders of the Director-General referred to by the Honourable Member, dealt with the clerical staff only.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Sir, I wanted to put my supplementary question to the previous reply, and I suppose under the standing Rules and Orders I am entitled to do so.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member is entitled to put a supplementary question to the last reply.

Mr. K. Ahmed : I stood up before that.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member was a little too late. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub.

Mr. K. Ahmed : I rise on a point of order, Sir. I submit that the Chair must allow me the privilege of a Member of this House of putting a question when I am entitled to do so.

Mr President : Does the Honourable Member desire to ask any supplementary question on the last reply ?

Mr. K. Ahmed : The previous questions were answered at one stretch without being put by the questioner. Does that mean that supplementaries are to be shut out.

Mr. President : Maulvi Muhammad Yakub.

†77.

GRANT TO THE MUSLIMS OF THEIR PROPER SHARE OF POSTS OF GAZETTED POSTMASTERS.

‡78. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of (1) Muslim, (2) Hindu, and (3) others gazetted Postmasters, Circle by Circle ?

(b) Is it a fact that the posts of gazetted Postmasters are filled up by selection ? If so, why was the proper share not given to the Muslim community ?

(c) Is it a fact that 17 posts are going to be raised to the rank of gazetted Postmasters ? If so, do the Government propose to reserve at least half of these posts for the members of the Muslim community ? If not, why ?

†80.

PROMOTION OF GUARDS IN THE MORADABAD CIRCLE.

81. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that certain Muslim and Anglo-Indian railway guards, in C. and D. grades, will shortly be retiring from Moradabad Circle ?

(b) Is it also a fact that certain outsiders have been imported by the Moradabad D. S. and they have been temporarily appointed in order to deprive the local guards of their promotion when the vacancies actually occur ?

(c) Do Government propose to make an immediate enquiry into the matter and see that local guards are not deprived of their well earned promotion ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : (a) No.

(b) 11 temporary guards have been appointed by the Divisional Superintendent, Moradabad, since 8th December 1927. These men have not been appointed to deprive any guard of promotion.

(c) No.

EMPLOYMENT OF RAILWAY MENIAL STAFF BY THE ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT, POWER HOUSE, MORADABAD, ON HIS PRIVATE WORK.

82. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Are Government aware that there is a general complaint against the Assistant Superintendent, Power House, Moradabad, of taking private service from the railway menial staff of the Locomotive Shed, Moradabad ? What action, if any, was taken against the officer concerned ?

---

†For this question and its answer, see the end of questions.
‡For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 72.

ALLEGED MISUSE OF GOVERNMENT STORES BY THE CHARGEMEN, ELECTRIC POWER HOUSE, CHANDAUSI, AND THE RUNNING SHED FOREMAN, SHAHJAHANPORE.

83. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Are Government aware that cases of the misuse of Government stores were reported against the Chargeman, Electric Power House, Chandausi, and the Running Shed Foreman, Shahjahanpore ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state what action, if any, was taken against the officers concerned ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : With your permission, Sir, I propose to answer questions Nos. 82 and 83 together. The Railway Board understand that certain representations on these matters have been made to the Agent, East Indian Railway, and as he is quite competent to deal with them, the Railway Board do not propose to take any action.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : If the Agents do not take any action in these matters, what is the remedy of the persons who suffer ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The Agent is the final authority in these matters.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : What is the Railway Board then constituted for ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : To be the final authority in those matters which are not delegated to Agents.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is it or is it not a fact that when such matters come to the notice of the Railway Board from the Agents that it is the duty of the Railway Board to make enquiries and adjudicate ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I ask again what is the use of the Railway Board, Sir.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Have not the Railway Board reserved any authority for themselves ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The position is that in certain matters appeal or review lies to or with the authority next above either the appointing authority or the authority who took a particular action. If that authority is, say, the Divisional Superintendent at Moradabad, the appeal would ordinarily lie only to the Agent and not to the Railway Board, and as a matter of administration the Railway Board do not ordinarily interfere with the decision of Agents in matters of this kind.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Then are we to understand that the Agents are not subordinate to the Railway Board ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir. You are not to understand that.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I ask whether it is permitted by the Railway Board that railway servants can utilise menials for their private purposes ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons ; No, Sir : it is not the opinion of the Railway Board that subordinate or other officers should be permitted to utilise menials paid from Railway revenues for their private service, but it is a matter which the Agent of the Railway is perfectly competent to deal with and to stop.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : It is one of the matters of principle that subordinates and officers should not utilise menials for their private work. Is it not more a matter of principle than a small matter of procedure ?

Mr. President : It is a question of opinion.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Is the Honourable Member aware that he is representing the Railway Department here and that he has to answer any question put by a Member, and be responsible.

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I appear to have been answering a good many questions.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Does the Railway Board consider Railway Agents to be infallible ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : No, Sir. The Railway Board consider no one, not even themselves, infallible.

ABOLITION OF THE POST OF SECOND GUARD ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

84. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Are Government aware that the East Indian Railway has abolished the post of second guards on all trains as a result of which the safety of the travelling public is in danger and several cases of accidents to passengers have occurred ?

(b) Do Government propose to direct the revival of the post of second guards as they are employed on other Railways ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government are aware that the posts of second guards have been abolished on the East Indian Railway ; they do not agree that the abolition has had the effect suggested by the Honourable Member. I may inform him that one of the duties imposed upon the Crew staff is to see that passengers are comfortably accommodated and the Agent reports that as a result the position is quite satisfactory. Government do not therefore propose to direct the revival of the posts of second guards.

NUMBER OF HINDUS AND MUSSALMANS IN THE DIVISIONAL SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE, MORADABAD, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

85. Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will the Government be pleased to state how many Brahmins, how many other Hindus and how many Mussalmans there are in the Divisional Superintendent's Office, East Indian Railway, Moradabad, and how many Brahmins, how many Hindus and how many Mussalmans got promotions and allowances and of what amount during the last two years ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : Government regret that, as has previously been explained in this House, they are not prepared to supplement the figures with regard to communal representation given in Appendix F in Volume I and Appendix C in Volume II of the Report on Indian Railways for 1926-27 by details for individual offices or appointments. Their objection applies equally to the supply of information as to promotions and allowances by communities in individual offices.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : May I know, Sir, whether Brahmins are or are not classed under Hindus ?

Mr. President : Mr. Belvi.

Kelkar) : Will Government kindly lay on the table a statement for the year 1926-27 showing the branch lines built under Government of India, Railway Department Resolution No. 2131-F. of February 19, 1925, with their gross earnings, working expenses, net earnings or deficits, and the amounts received against the deficits from Local Governments or local authorities ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I lay on the table a statement giving the information required.

Kelkar) : Will Government kindly lay on the table a statement showing for the quinquennium ending March 31, 1927, the total amount of reduction in Stores balance ; amount due to scrapping, or sale as scrap, of stores, machinery, etc. ; amount due to sale of old stores, machinery, etc., as secondhand ; and amount due to mere adjustment in Stores accounts ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : I am sending the Honourable Member a statement giving whatever information it has been possible to collect. It has not been possible to obtain figures for five years from all railways.

89. *Mr. D. V. Belvi (on behalf of Mr. N. C. Kelkar) : Have Government considered the question of adoption on Indian Railways of the Laycock type of automatic coupler (central) in use on the South African Railways ; and if so, in what respects has it been found unsuitable for adoption in India ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative. In fact Government are not aware of the existence of an automatic coupler of this name, and will be very glad if the Honourable Member can put them in the way of obtaining designs of it.

OMISSION FROM VOLUME II OF THE RAILWAY ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE TRANSACTIONS OF THE FINE FUNDS.

90. *Mr. D. V. Belvi (on behalf of Mr. N. C. Kelkar) : Are Government aware that a statement showing the transactions of the Fine Funds used to be incorporated in Volume II of the Railway Administration Report up to 1921-22 and that it has been omitted from subsequent reports ; if so, will Government kindly state the reasons which led to its omission ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The statement showing the transaction of the Fine Funds was omitted on the recommendation of the Committee for the revision of statistics on Indian Railways. The reasons which they gave for proposing the omission were that these statistics have no direct bearing upon the working of railways.

Mr. N. M. Joshi : May I ask whether the Fines Fund is administered by the railway authorities, and if anyone wants to know how the fund is being administered, where is he to get that information from ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : If I am right, Sir, the Honourable Member will succeed in extracting that information from me in reply to a question which he has on the paper later on.

93. *Mr. D. V. Belvi (on behalf of Mr. N. C. Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : It has not been necessary to consider the question since, in spite of heavy payments from the Depreciation Fund in the last four years, a balance of about nine crores has been built up in the Fund.

CREDITING TO THE RAILWAY REVENUE RECEIPTS OF THE INTEREST ON THE RESERVE FUND OF INDIAN RAILWAYS.

95. *Mr. D. V. Belvi (on behalf of Mr. N. C. Kelkar) : Will Government kindly state why interest on the Reserve Fund of Indian Railways is credited to the Railway revenue receipts instead of to the Reserve Fund itself as is done in the Belgian State Railways—vide paragraph 5 at page 18 of Annexure 1 to the Proceedings of the Standing Finance Committee for Railways, Volume II, No. 1 ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The course at present adopted is in accordance with the terms of the convention under which the Assembly agreed to the separation of railway from general finances, and it is for this reason that it has been adopted.

NUMBER AND COST OF LOCOMOTIVES DEBITED TO THE DEPRECIATION FUND, ETC.

96. *Mr. D. V. Belvi (on behalf of Mr. N. C. Kelkar) : With reference to the answer given on 28th March 1927 to starred question No. 1276, will Government kindly state the number and cost of locomotives debited to the Depreciation Fund and the amount of the sale proceeds credited to Revenue and quote reference to the specific Rules in Annexure B, Volume I, No. 1, of the Proceedings of the Standing Finance Committee for Railways ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The number debited to the Depreciation Fund was 101, and the cost sixty lakhs thirty-one thousand rupees, and the sale proceeds credited to Revenue thirty-four lakhs seventy-nine thousand rupees. The relevant rules are 3 (a) and 6.

AMOUNT OF THE DEPRECIATION FUND THAT SHOULD HAVE BEEN BUILT UP FROM THE REVENUES OF PAST YEARS, ETC.

97. *Mr. D. V. Belvi (on behalf of Mr. N. C. Kelkar) : With reference to the answer given on 28th March 1927 to starred question No. 1269, do Government propose to ascertain the amount of the Depreciation Reserve that should have been built up from the revenues of past years but is not at present accumulating in the Depreciation Fund ; and if not, why not ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative, and to the second, that Government do not consider that any practical benefit would be obtained from the lengthy and laborious investigation suggested.

98. *Mr. D. V. Belvi (on behalf of Mr. N. C. Kelkar) : With reference to the answer given on 28th March 1927, to starred question No. 1272, will Government kindly state when they propose to relieve the capital account of the amount of Rs. 32,86,316 spent on abandoned projects ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : There is no immediate proposal to this effect.

NUMBER OF VEHICLES CONDEMNED BUT NOT YET REPLACED ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

99. *Mr. D. V. Belvi (on behalf of Mr. N. C. Kelkar) : With reference to the remarks " Excludes vehicles condemned but not yet replaced " occurring at the foot of page 82 of the Railway Administration Report for 1925-26, Volume II, will Government kindly state what is the number of such wagons on the North Western Railway and whether their cost is still standing at the debit of the capital account, and if so, why ?

Mr. A. A. L. Parsons : The number at the close of the financial year 1925-26 was 1,147. 1,004 have since been replaced, and it is proposed to replace the balance of 143 in 1929-30. The cost on account of these 143 vehicles still remaining at debit to capital is, in round figures, Rs. 3,90,000. It will be written back when they are replaced.

(a) the duties and qualifications required of the Financial Commissioner of Railways.

(b) his position vis a vis the Finance Department on the one hand and the Railway Department on the other,

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

DEPRESSED AND UNTOUCHABLE CLASSES IN INDIA.

1. Lala Lajpat Rai : Will Government be pleased :

(a) to lay on the table a list of the classes or castes or sub-castes which are considered " untouchable " ?

to inform the House what classes are considered " depressed " besides or in addition to the untouchables ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : (a) I place on the table a list of castes which are generally, according to local usage and custom, regarded as untouchable, and which have been classified as such in previous census and educational reports. I wish to make it clear that the Government of India do not regard this list as final, exhaustive or authoritative. Whether a caste is regarded as touchable or untouchable must depend on local custom which is variable and, we may reasonably hope, will prove to be a progressive factor. I also understand that the degrees of untouchability are not the same throughout India but vary from place to place.

(b) The classes generally considered as depressed beside or in addition to the untouchables are hill tribes, aboriginals and criminal tribes.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Why are the criminal tribes classed as depressed classes ? Is there any particular reason for that ? Is it because they are criminal ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : I think the reason is that criminal tribes are mostly also in a depressed condition.

Lala Lajpat Rai : There are many other classes besides the depressed classes which are in a depressed condition—particularly the women of this country. Would you class them among the depressed classes ?

Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : Will the Government be pleased to state why they are called the depressed classes ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : It is very difficult to find an alternative term to describe what is intended to be described.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to state whether a poor fakir or a beggar living on charity not belonging to the depressed classes is classed as belonging to the depressed classes ? What about the famine stricken people ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : No, Sir ; I think the answer to that is in the negative.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will the Honourable Member say whether the Government consider Indians, who are under foreign domination, as members of the depressed class ?

Mr. President : Order, order.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Will the Honourable Member say whether any local inquiry is made in regard to any local custom before any class is described as depressed and whether that local inquiry is embodied in the local report ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : Yes, Sir. In connection with census proceedings very careful local inquiries are made in regard to what the local custom is.

Lala Lajpat Rai : I wonder if the Honourable Member has ever seen the census reports and satisfied himself whether there is any reference to any local inquiry about the custom.

Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah : May I ask, Sir, whether the figure of 60 millions given in " India 1926-27 ", page 45, comprises the untouchable classes ?

The Honourable Mr. J. Crerar : The figure referred to by the Honourable Member referred to territory outside British India as well as British India.

INCREASE OF TUBERCULOSIS IN INDIA.

2. Lala Lajpat Rai : (a) Are Government aware that tubercular diseases are increasing at a frightful speed and that mortality from the same is increasing at a tremendous rate ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table figures relating to tubercular diseases and mortality from the same in all provinces of India ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have taken any steps to check and control the ravages of this disease in India in general, and in the areas directly under the Government of India in particular ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Statistics of deaths from tubercular diseases are not available for the whole of India. For the areas for which statistics are available, figures for the last five years have been tabulated and placed in the Library. These show that there has been a slight rise in the death-rate from pulmonary tuberculosis ; but it is not possible to say definitely whether the increase represents a rise in the incidence of the disease or is due to improved methods of registration.

(b) Deaths from tuberculosis are recorded separately only in three provinces, viz., the United Provinces, Bengal and Bombay. In 1926, the death-rate per mille from tuberculosis was .14 in the United Provinces ; .15 in Bengal and 1.14 in Bombay.

(c) An account of the action taken by the Government of India as well as by Local Governments to combat tuberculosis will be found in the annual Reports of the Public Health Commissioner with the Government of India for 1924 and 1925. Copies of these reports will be found in the Library. As regards areas administered directly by the Central Government it may be mentioned that a proposal for the establishment of a tuberculosis hospital is being considered by the Delhi City Municipality. In Baluchistan six wards for tubercular patients were added to the Civil Hospital, Quetta, during 1926. In Rajputana there are two private sanatoria and a large number of tuberculosis patients are treated at the Civil Hospital, Ajmer. Proposals for a tuberculosis hospital and sanatorium for the North-West Frontier Province are also under consideration. Research work on problems of tuberculosis such as accurate surveys of the disease in particular localities and its transmission is also being carried out under the auspices of the Indian Research Fund Association, which is financed by the Government of India.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Do the Government recognise the importance of this subject so as to make it the subject of an inquiry in each province to find out the figures of mortality from tuberculosis there ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I have already stated that the provincial machinery for the registration of tuberculosis is confined to three provinces. Medical administration under the reforms, as the Honourable Member is aware, is a transferred provincial subject, so that the initiative for perfecting or improving machinery for registration rests with Local Governments. As regards the areas directly under the Government of India, as I have already stated, registration machinery exists, I understand, in Delhi, and we shall try and extend it to other cities like Peshawar.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Am I to understand that the Government of India do not consider this question of sufficient national importance to take special steps besides those adopted by Provincial Governments to check the disease ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Government of India, Sir, have taken such steps as are constitutionally within their orbit and within their power ; that is to say, they have made suggestions to Local Governments from time to time as to how they might co-operate with one another in combating this disease. It is not really the function of the Government of India to tell them that they must perfect their machinery for registration.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Do the Government of India consider it sufficient that the Delhi Municipality should establish a consumptive hospital and the Government should do nothing in the matter ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I do not think that it follows from my reply that the Government of India have adopted an attitude of malevolent neutrality towards the proposal of the Delhi Municipality. Before the Government of India can come to a decision in regard to the establishment of a hospital in Delhi, the Delhi Municipality must submit a proposal to the Government of India through the proper channels.

Lala Lajpat Rai : Does the Honourable Member consider that this is merely a question of should or should not ? The question is whether the Government of India do attach sufficient importance to take the question in hand.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : If my Honourable friend will be satisfied by a statement of the obvious, I will say that the Government of India take very great interest in combating tuberculosis.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to satisfy this House by showing that he is always intelligent to see that the research work is going on smoothly under the Government of India ? In view of that fact, Sir, will the Honourable Member now state with regard to the School of Tropical Medicine in Calcutta how much research is carried on and what are the steps that are taken for improving the conditions of the poor people suffering from tuberculosis ?

the circumstances the postal staff, to whom the rule applies in common with the staff of other departments, have no reasonable grievance, and Government do not propose to take any further action.

RECRUITMENT OF MUHAMMADANS IN THE BIHAR AND ORISSA POSTAL CIRCLE.

123. Raja Raghunandan Prasad Singh : (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to an article headed " Communalism in the Bhagalpur Division Post Office ", published in the Searchlight, (Patna) of the 10th June 1928 ?

(b) Is it a fact that :

(i) from 1914 to 1927 there was an unbroken succession of Muhammadan Superintendents of Post Offices posted to the Bhagalpur Division of the Bihar and Orissa Postal Circle ;

(ii) from 1st August 1921 to 13th February 1923 all the eleven appointments made in the rank of clerks went to Muhammadans ;

(iii) from 13th January 1924 to 1st May 1927 the number of Hindu clerks taken in was 13 and that of Muhammadan clerks was 11 ?

(c) What is the proportion of Muhammadan clerks to Hindu clerks recruited during the period from 1st August 1921 to 1st May 1927 ?

(d) What is the principle or principles guiding the recruitment of clerks ? Are such recruitments made on the population basis ? If so, is it ascertained that the said basis is adhered to ?

(e) What is the proportion of the Muhammadan to the Hindu population in the Bhagalpur Division of the Bihar and Orissa Postal Circle ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters : (a) Yes.

(b) (i) No.

(b) (ii) There were seven and not eleven appointments made during this period. All these went to Muhammadans.

(b) (iii) No. The correct numbers are 12 and 9.

(c) The proportion is 19 Muhammadans to 15 Hindus.

(d) The recruitment of clerks is made on an educational and not on a population basis subject to certain reservations for the purpose of adjusting communal inequalities.

(e) 1 to 3.

PROMOTION OF MUHAMMADAN POSTMEN AS OVERSEERS IN THE BIHAR AND ORISSA POSTAL CIRCLE.

124. Raja Raghunandan Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that Shaikh Sobrati and Abdul Hossain, Overseers of Post Offices, Bhagalpur Division (Bihar and Orissa Postal Circle) were promoted as such from the rank of postmen in supersession of a large number of senior and deserving Hindu postmen ? If so, do the Government propose to enquire into the matter ? Was the rule that a postman must put in at least 10 years' service before appointment as overseer observed in the above two cases ? If not, why not ?

(b) Is it a fact that, amongst the postmen and menials in the Bhagalpur Division Post Offices the number of Muhammadans is much larger than that of the Hindus ? If so, what do they propose to do to remedy this state of things ?

(c) Is it a fact that one M. Syed Eba Bilgrami, a clerk of the Gaya Postal Division, was promoted to the selection grade in supersession of his seniors in the gradation list ? If so, what action was taken to undo the wrong done ? If not, do the Government propose to take such remedial action ? Is it a fact that out of the officials superseded as stated above some have been promoted subsequently ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Shaikh Shobrati and Abdul Hossain were appointed overseers in 1922. As such appointments are made by selection, the question of supersession does not arise.

There is no rule that a postman must put in at least 10 years' service before appointment as an overseer.

(b) No.

(c) Yes. As the appointment was filled by selection, there was no irregularity in passing over men senior to M. Syed Eba Bilgrami but considered unfit for the appointment. It is a fact that some of these men have subsequently shown their fitness for the selection grade and have received promotion.

NUMBER OF HINDU AND MUHAMMADAN NON-MATRICULATES EMPLOYED AS RESERVE CLERKS OR AS CANDIDATES FOR RESERVE CLERKSHIPS IN THE BIHAR AND ORISSA POSTAL CIRCLE.

125. Raja Raghunandan Prasad Singh : Will the Government be pleased to state the number of non-matriculates. Hindu and Muhammadan, separately, taken in as reserve clerks or candidates for reserve clerkships in the Post Offices during the last three years in each division of the Bihar and Orissa Postal Circle ? What is the rule for recruitment of non-matriculates ? Is the proportion of the Hindu to the Muhammadan population taken into consideration in making such recruitment ?

The Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters: A statement showing the number of non-matriculates, Hindu and Muhammadan, separately employed as reserve clerks or as candidates for reserve clerkships in the Post Office during the last three years in each division of the Bihar and Orissa Postal Circle will be supplied to the Honourable Member. Non-matriculates are occasionally recruited with the approval of the Postmaster-General in special cases. The general orders of Government for the regulation of recruitment to adjust communal inequalities are taken into consideration in making such recruitment.

NUMBER OF APPOINTMENTS OF RESERVE CLERKS IN THE MONGHYR DIVISION OF THE BIHAR AND ORISSA POSTAL CIRCLE, ETC.

126. Raja Raghunandan Prasad Singh : (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the number of appointments of reserve clerks and of candidates reserved for the same in the Post Offices in the Monghyr Division of the Bihar and Orissa Circle from August 1927 to June 1928 ? How many of these appointments and enrolments went to Hindus and how many to Muhammadans ?
