Sir, this measure, as I have said on a previous occasion, is a very useful one, and I, according to my belief and intelligence, do not consider it against the tenets of Islam. (Applause.) I, however, do look upon it as the curtailment of our social liberties and the taking away of certain rights and privileges that we have been enjoying for some generations, or in other words it interferes with our personal laws, but if those rights and liberties are misused, I do not see why we should not put a stop to such misuse. (Applause.)

Sir, it is not enjoined on us, according to our law, to contract early marriages. It is only permissible, and permissible under certain very strict conditions, just like the permission to marry four wives instead of one. But if one will only go into the text of the Holy Book where this permission is granted, I am sure that you will not find a single man in one lakh of people who could fulfil the conditions laid down therein for marrying more than one wife. In practice, Sir, that permission is availed of by luxurious people only. The permission for marrying more than one wife is, as I have said, very limited, and the word used in the Koran for it is "taa'dilu".

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Sir, is the Honourable Member relevant in talking of four marriages in connection with this Bill?

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : I will not enter into a discussion with my friend Maulvi Muhammad Yakub on this or any other point. I know that there are honest differences of opinion on this question, and I will not blame any person if he holds a different view from the view that I hold. All that I crave for is the indulgence of my Mussulman friends to give me an opportunity to express my personal views on the subject.

But, Sir, there is one thing which I cannot really understand or follow, and that is the extraordinary hurry and the great zeal and enthusiasm in certain quarters to push the Bill through. Perhaps they have found a favourable opportunity to support a piece of useful legislation and they are anxious and really earnest to see it through. (Answer: "That is so".) But I thought there ought to be no great hurry about it. As a matter of fact, the Bill as originally introduced has altogether changed in its shape, aspects and application. The large number of amendments brought in by Members of this House and the very long discussions we have had on them show that the Bill is not yet as perfect as it ought to be. One would have, in the ordinary course, expected some additions or alterations to or omissions from the Bill after the receipt of the Report of the Age of Consent Committee, but I do not see that a single word from the Bill has been expunged or added to as the result of the laborious work of the Committee and the voluminous Report which has been submitted by that Committee. When I was listening to the various arguments brought in support of the numerous amendments by the Members of the House, some of them appealed to me as suggesting a great improvement, and I wondered why they did not receive sufficient consideration. I will particularly refer to the very eloquent speech made by my friend Pandit Malaviya Sahib. He thought that a greater unanimity could be obtained on a lower age of 12, but that was not acceptable to the majority of this House. But what I fail to understand is that an amendment brought in by my Honourable friend over there, in favour of raising the age to 16, was also similarly ignored. If we are trying to raise the age for some useful purpose and if we are prepared to go against the wishes of the orthodox sections in this House, however insignificant these may be, then why not go straight for the higher age of 16 and bring in a real improvement in the situation? Similarly, an amendment was introduced by my Honourable friend Mr. B. Das confining the marriage of elderly people to widows only. But some of the Honourable Members in the House only laughed at it and ridiculed the amendment, while I should have thought that it was a very useful measure for finding husbands for the poor child widows who were condemned under the present system. That amendment also deserved a much better consideration than the House gave it. My Honourable friend Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava said that the very object of the Bill would be frustrated if the security condition was allowed to remain in the Bill. No notice was taken of that either. So it looks as if the Bill, as it has emerged from the Select Committee, is something like gospel truth and that it should not be touched in any way, not even as the result of the Age of Consent Committee's Report!

Pandit Nilakantha Das : On a point of order, Sir. Is this not criticising the decision of the House?

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : These were some of the observations that I wanted to make, not that I did not look upon the Bill as a necessary or useful measure, but if we had been given another three or four months it would have given us an opportunity of considering the Bill more thoroughly in the light not only of the Report of the Age of Consent Committee, but also of the evidence if made available to us. In that case, as Pandit Malaviya Sahib said, there might have been a greater unanimity of opinion about this reform. However, that stage has now passed and I hope that this measure, however defective it may at present be, will be passed. My worthy friend Mr. Jayakar said that whatever defects there might be in the Bill or whatever defects might come to light as the result of its working could well be removed by the introduction of amending Bills. I hope that that will be the case.

Now, Sir, as I have said before, I do not consider this Bill against the tenets of Islam, but I certainly consider it a violation of our personal rights and also of the rights of other minorities. We thought that the rights of minorities were safe by some unwritten law or custom in this House and we believed that nothing in the personal law of a minority community would be changed without the consent of three-fourths of the Members of that community. But if this joint voting becomes the rule of the day, one does not know where one's private rights will be. Perhaps, the orthodox Hindus, the Mussalmans and other minority communities will be nowhere if a coalition like the one that is at present working behind this Bill were to be formed and interfere with their personal laws. It is this which makes me a little suspicious and frightens me of the consequences of this procedure, because somebody may take it into his head and it may be that next time my Honourable friend Maulvi Muhammad Yakub might bring in a measure prohibiting polygamy! Though I shall be supporting him on that occasion, still the Members of my minority community may not like it and that is my fear about the procedure that has been adopted in hurrying this measure through this House. I do not want to take up the time of the House any more, but I hope that the Bill will receive the support of the majority of the Members, if not, of the whole of this House.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : I should like to make a few observations before this Bill becomes law, but I shall try to be as brief as I can be.

The first question that is sometimes asked is whether this Legislature is competent to enact a law of this nature, as it is said that legislation of this nature impinges upon the social and domestic life of the people. With regard to that, I will say that legislation like the Bill which we have under consideration exists on the Statute-books of almost all civilized countries in the world, including, I understand, Turkey and Egypt. There are other laws, Sir, like the Prevention of Juvenile Smoking, Temperance, and so on. These are also laws which affect the domestic and social life of the people; but they find a place on the Statute-books of some of the provinces in the country, and outside it. On our own Statute-book we have such legislation as the Suttee Abolition Act, the Hindu Widows Remarriage Act, the Freedom of Religion Act, the Age of Consent Act, and so forth. From all these considerations it appears to me that there is certainly no objection to legislation like the Bill which we have under consideration being discussed and passed by a body such as this House. Apart from politics the greatest practical achievement of the League of Nations lies in the social and moral work which it has been able to accomplish. It has passed resolutions raising the age of consent, preventing traffic in girls, suppressing disease, limiting the use of intoxicants to medicinal purposes, regulating child labour, limiting hours of work, preventing dissemination of obscene publications, and on many other details affecting health, hygiene and morals. In this connection, I shall read to the House just one quotation from the American Professor, Scott Nearing, in his book, "Social Adjustment". This is what he says :

"In a large community, maladjustment, (i.e., social maladjustment) can be removed only by concentrating public opinion in the form of legislation. Among large groups, public opinion may relieve maladjustment temporarily; but permanent reform can be effected only through legislative expression."

In some of the Indian States, such as, Mysore, Baroda, Rajkote, Kashmir, Gondal, Indore, Limbdi, Mandi and others, such legislation exists, and it is therefore no valid criticism to say that this House, constituted as it is, is not competent to pass legislation like this.

Coming to the Bill itself, I may say that it can be looked at from three points of view—from the point of view of the girl herself who is the party most vitally interested, from what has been called the religious point of view, and from the medical point of view. With regard to the first point, I am sorry to see that the Government of India, with a singular lack of chivalry and imaginations, have not thought it fit to nominate a lady Member to this House, who should have been able to give the House an expression of opinion of the sex most vitally concerned in this matter. I asked a question in the Delhi Session, and I repeated my question here; but the reply was the usual legal quibble indulged in by my Honourable friend the Law Member, who said that the Government of India have no power to make a nomination like that. The other day, when the Bill known as the Hunger Strike Bill was under discussion, they brought out

[Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh.]

Mr. Emerson with the express object of assisting the passage of that legislation. When that legislation was out of the way, Mr. Emerson also disappeared. What was the difficulty in nominating a qualified lady Member to assist us?

Mr. K. Ahmed : Why do you not vacate?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : If a qualified lady Member was available, she ought to have taken her place in this House.

Now, Sir, I must at the outset clear my position by saying that this Bill, if it is passed into law, will not affect my community very greatly, because in my community, the Kshatriya or the Rajput community, early marriages are not common. In times of old, the Kshatriyas had an institution called the Swayamvar ceremony. As its name implies, that was a ceremony in which the girl used to choose her own bridegroom. A number of eligible bridegrooms were collected together, and the girl had to choose her own husband. In my community early marriages are not common, and the Report of the Age of Consent Committee, so far as Bihar and Orissa is concerned, will bear me out. I am very pleased to see in the Hindustan Times of the 23rd instant that in this city of Simla the Rajput Sabha passed a resolution strongly supporting the principle of the Child Marriage Bill and favouring the fixation of the minimum age for the marriage of girls at 14 and for boys at 18. It is well known that infantile mortality is greater in India than in other countries. It is double that of the United Kingdom, Denmark and Germany, three times that of Norway and Sweden, about five times that of America, and nine times that of Switzerland. I will here make one remark. Some of our ardent social reformers, in their anxiety to support the Bill, have gone out of the way and depicted the evil as being very deep-rooted and widespread. I deny that accusation. Child marriage exists in India and I am here to lend whatever support I can to the eradication of that evil; but it is not quite correct to say that consummation immediately follows marriage in all parts of the country and to the same extent. I will give you an instance, Sir, of how a girl of tender age was subjected to cruel treatment at the hands of her husband. This case came up before the Allahabad High Court last year, and I will give one quotation from the judgment. The husband was 34 years of age, and the child wife was only 11 years of age. His Lordship in the course of the judgment said :

" This appeal exposes in a marked degree the evil effect of the pernicious custom of early marriages which unfortunately prevails among the lower classes in this country. A man aged 34 years was married to a child of 11 years about a year ago. Her parents, who cannot under the existing law be touched at all, have exhibited an almost incredible callousness in not only getting the marriage performed, but in sending the girl to her husband's house to live with him. One cannot use too strong a language to condemn such reprehensible conduct. The result has been what might well have been feared by any man of sense. On a night when the other inmates happened to be away from the house, the child wife was raped by her husband. The medical evidence to sexual intercourse."

Further on the judgment says :

" Partly due to modesty and partly to her being under the control of her husband's relations, the girl does not admit what was done to her, and has been tutored to put forward the defence that she got hurt by falling on a peg on which a goat used to be

Whether instances of this kind are common or not, we as Members of this Legislature have a responsibility cast upon us to see that such things do not occur. My Honourable friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda complimented the Honourable the Home Member on the brilliant speech which he made the other day. While I give my own praise to the Honourable the Home Member for the speech which he delivered on that occasion, I must qualify it by saying that we should like to hear this sort of speech from him on occasions when political questions are also under discussion. I do not want that the speech of the Honourable the Home Member, or for the matter of that the speech of any other Honourable Member who supports the Bill, should go out into the world as a confirmation of the exaggerated accounts depicted by globe-trotters like Miss Mayo in her book. Having said so, I shall now come to what is called the religious aspect of the question. Sir, to my mind, religion leads to the moral, physical and material progress of the community or race, and anything which militates against this object should not be supported on the score of religion. I can hardly believe that this ancient religion of Aryavarta, emanating as it does in the dim distant, pre-historic past, from the pure fountain of the Vedas, could be so callous, so indifferent to the welfare of children that it would have prescribed a rule of law which would be so injurious to them both physically, mentally and in other respects. I shall give a quotation to show that child marriage, which is followed by early consummation, was unknown in Vedic times. In this connection I am going to give a quotation from the "Atharva Veda" which is an authority of the highest standing :

" Brahmacharyena Kanya Yuvanam bindyatay patim "

The meaning is that after preserving Brahmacharya, when a girl attains youth, she should desire marriage.

Then, Sir, Shusruta who is a great medical authority in "Yayur Veda", says :

" Chatasro bastha sharirasya bridhir yaubanam, sampurnta, Kinchit parihanishchete, tatra shorashat bridhi, apanch bing shater, yauvanam ; achatwaringshat sampurnata ; tatah kinchit parihanishchate. "

The meaning is there are four stages of the body. Up to 16 years it is the stage of development, up to 25 years is youth, up to 40 is the stage of completion of the organs, and after that the stage of decay. Further on he says :

" Panch binsket tato barshe, puman nari tu shorashe, Smatwa gat virjan tan janiyat kushalobhi shak. "

A boy of 25 years of age and a girl of 16 years have their semen equally developed, and then conception is for the good of both. There is only one quotation which I should like to give because it is said to be a matter of religion and medicine mixed up together.

" Un shorash barshayam apraptah panch binshteem ; yadya dhate puman garbha Kukshitha sa bipadyate ; yato wa n-chiranjiwe yawet durwalendriyah, tasmait atyant balayam garbhadhanam n-Karayet. "

It means that if a girl of less than 16 years of age conceives by a man of less than 25 years of age the pregnancy results in abortion. If a child is born, it would not live long. If it lives, it shall be a weakling all its life. Therefore conception should not be allowed in early ages.

[Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh.]

Sir, I now come to what has been spoken of as the medical point of view. My Honourable friend Mr. Neogy quoted the opinions of a few doctors in support of early marriage. (An Honourable Member : "But he has been disowned by the Ladies' Association at Dacca.") Now, Sir, I refuse to believe that the enlightened medical opinion of Bengal or elsewhere is not convinced that child marriage, followed by early consummation, is pernicious to the health of the girl. I refuse to believe that a proposition like the one advanced by my friend could come from the medical authorities of Bengal. I have got in my hand a book which shows what certain eminent doctors consider fit to be the minimum marriageable age for girls ; and in this I find that Dr. Chandra Coomar Dey fixes the minimum marriage age for girls at fourteen years, Dr. Charles at fourteen years, Babu Nobin Krishna Bose, at fifteen years, Dr. A. V. White of Bombay at fifteen or sixteen years. Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar at sixteen years, Dr. Norman Chevers at sixteen years, Dr. D. B. Smith at sixteen years, Dr. Ewart at sixteen years, Dr. J. Fayter at sixteen years, Dr. S. C. G. Chakravarty, at 16 years.

Dr. Chevers says :

"For the sake of safe child-bearing and healthy offspring marriage ought to be seldom allowed till the 18th year, the 16th being minimum in exceptional cases."

Dr. Nobin Krishna Bose says :

"Our girls should not be married before they have attained at least the eighteenth year of their age. Before this period their system would not bear with impunity the drain which maternity must establish on it."

Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar, a name which is very well-known in Bengal, if not the whole of India, says :

"It is a grievous mistake to suppose that the female who has just begun to menstruate is capable of giving birth to healthy children."

The late lamented Mr. Kheshab Chunder Sen in his Town Hall speech once said :

"The medical authorities in Calcutta unanimously declare that sixteen is the minimum marriageable age of girls in this country."

So late as July last, the Fourth Imperial Social Hygiene Congress was held in London under the Presidency of Dr. Drummond Shields, Under Secretary of State for India. Some papers were read on the occasion, and medical opinions were elicited on some of these points under discussion. Now Dr. A. S. Parks, of University College, London said :

"From the physiological point of view the most suitable age for marriage for a female was during early maturity which, hospital statistics seemed to show, occurred between the ages of fifteen and twenty."

There are other medical authorities also on this point, but I am not going to tire the House by reading them. Sir, when a girl is married very early in her life, her education suffers ; and it must be recognised that not only on grounds of health and physical development, but also on grounds of mental and moral development of the girl, the marriageable age should be deferred to a somewhat later period. There are just one or two further observations I wish to make. While supporting the Bill to this extent, I am constrained to say that there are one or two points left with regard to the Bill which, I was sorry, were not agreed to by Government. Clause 3 says that :

"Whoever being a male above eighteen years of age, and below 21, contracts a child marriage shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees."

Now, in our social system the custom generally prevails that the boy who is very often in school or college does not see the girl before marriage ; and if the father or mother arranges that marriage for him, and afterwards it turns out that the age of the girl was a little bit below fourteen, the prescribed age, I could quite understand the father being punished, but the punishment extends to the son. This is hardly just and fair. I wanted to insert some reservation in the Bill that the knowledge must be brought home, the knowledge that he married the girl knowing her to be below fourteen years of age must be proved before the boy could be punished. But the Government did not think it proper to accept this amendment. To that extent, Sir, I feel that this Bill is defective. The other point is this, that no exception has been made in cases of real hardship. I will not use the word "hardship" because if I do so I will draw upon myself the wrath of my Honourable and esteemed friend, Mr. Jayakar.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Why are you afraid of him ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : But he seemed to agree that a clause must be inserted in the Bill which would give power to marry a girl between the ages of 12 and 14, in exceptional circumstances, under the written authority of the District Judge. I hope Government will give their consideration to this point ; and, when the Bill goes to the other House, they might probably think it worth their while to introduce some such clause to meet exceptional cases.

With these words, Sir, I support this Bill. (Applause.)

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz (West Central Punjab : Muhammadan) : Sir, I rise to support the motion of my noble and esteemed friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda, who has earned his laurels from the Indian people as a whole. I support the passage of this Bill with the fullest responsibility and without any fear of doubt, despite the orthodox criticism, despite the unfair attack on me and on the honesty of the other Members of the Age of Consent Committee, and despite the threat to create agitation in the country which need not frighten us. I presume that it is but natural that there should be some opposition to a change in the long established custom of the country. I am afraid some of the Honourable Members can be placed in that groove of social customs from which it is not easy to get out. They are accustomed to a practice which has been in existence for a long time, and, although the evil may be sapping the framework of the society from generation to generation, they do not feel it because their feelings have become blunt. If it is true, and it is true, that the early marriage, early consummation and early maternity are harmful to the framework of the society and that the early maternity leads to the degeneracy of the race, then I see nothing either in the Hindu religious text or in Muslim religious laws which stands in the way of the present legislation. The orthodox people and these followers have no right whatsoever, divine, religious or personal, to treat their women as they please ; they have no right to keep them in their present miserable state ; and they have no right to sacrifice them at the altar of social custom. I do not under-estimate the sincerity and the zeal with which they have put forward their views but there need be neither invention nor exaggeration. Some of these learned and holy men are wondering whether the present legislation would not be in their own interest. There is so much diversity of opinion amongst the Pandits and the Maulvis that no definite conclusion can be drawn from the orthodox opinion.

Now, Sir, my learned friend the Honourable Mr. Ghuznavi, who has now walked out, made an attack upon me. As he is not in the House, I will not make a counter attack; but he did say that, so far as Bengal was concerned, the story of early marriage and early maternity was a cock and bull story. Sir, such an irresponsible statement I have seldom heard on the floor of this House. As doubt has, however, been expressed whether the evil custom of early marriage and early maternity does exist among the Mussalmans, I shall read to the House very briefly some of the evidence which was placed before the Age of Consent Committee. First of all, I would invite the attention of the Honourable Members to the percentages of early marriage which prevailed throughout India among the Hindus and the Muhammadans. Those percentages are given on page 95 of the Report of the Age of Consent Committee. They run as follows:

| Province.                            | Percentage of girls under 15 affected or likely to be affected by early marriage. | Percentage of Hindus. | Percentage of Musalmans. |

| Assam .. .. .                        | 26.3                                                                              | 27.6                  | 34.1                     |
| Bihar and Orissa .. .. .             | 52.4                                                                              | 62.4                  | 49.9                     |

Sir Darcy Lindsay (Bengal : European) : We have read all this.

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz : Many Honourable Members have not read them. Please have patience with me. These figures conclusively show that the evil of early marriage prevails more in Bengal than anywhere else among all the people of the province. I am very anxious to prove this fact because the matter is very important and I desire to show Committee to prove that the evil of early marriage and early consummation with the consequential result of early maternity does prevail amongst the Mussalmans. On page 67, the Report of the Age of Consent Committee, dealing with the Province of Bengal, runs as follows :

"The evidence before the Committee confirms the inference which may be drawn from the census figures. It is admitted on all hands that the practice of early marriage is widely prevalent throughout Bengal. Witnesses may praise or condemn the system and may refer to the advantages or disadvantages accruing from it, but the fundamental fact is undeniable, nor is it questioned, that early consummation almost inevitably follows early marriage amongst both Hindus and Muslims. Nor are the deleterious consequences of such early consummation seriously challenged except by a few witnesses, among whom are, surprisingly enough, some medical men. It is also established from the evidence that pre-puberty consummation are common and that violations of the Law of Consent occur in many cases."

Again, Sir, on page 65 the Report says :

"The evidence leaves no doubt that the evil of early consummation is very widely prevalent in the Province and among large classes who are following it according to custom and tradition and that the predominance of public opinion, both Hindu and Muslim, is distinctly in favour of an advance by a Law of Marriage and an increase in the age of Consent. It has only to be added that the birth rate in Bengal is the lowest of all Provinces in India being 27.4 per mille, that infantile death rate is 21.4 of the total deaths and that 52.1 per cent. of these infants die within one month of their birth."

Mark these words—52 per cent. of the infants die within one month of their birth.

The Muslim evidence is summarised on pages 68-69. I deem it my duty to place all that evidence before the House, as briefly as I can, because doubt has been raised that the evils of early marriage and consummation do exist amongst the Mussalmans of Bengal. The point is very important and, in spite of the desire of some Honourable Members that I should finish soon, I shall not do so. This is what they say :

"All other witnesses are strongly in favour of an advance. Mr. Nur Ahmed, Chairman of the Chittagong Municipality, suggests 15 or 16 as the age of Consent, would favour marriage at 14 and feels that the fixation of a minimum age of marriage will more suit public opinion. Khan Bahadur Muhammad Ismail, M.L.C., is strongly of opinion that consummation of marriage would be safe only after the completion of the 16th year and urges the need for propaganda explaining the evils of early consummation. Witness was in a position to cite any number of cases that had come to his notice where the girls had broken their health by cohabitation before or immediately after attainment of puberty. Mr. Azizul Haq, M.L.C., is personally in favour of a Bill like that of Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda, and feels that every well-wisher of the country will welcome it. He is of opinion that nothing in the Muslim scriptures is against a law of marriage and that Muslims will not be affected at all, because public opinion amongst them is confined to the opinion of the few who can be persuaded. Mr. M. Kazimuddin Ahmad would have the age of consent raised to 16. Maulvi Mohammad Quassim would have the age of Consent beyond 16, would like to strengthen the penal law and thinks that marriage ought not to be performed before the girl has reached her 14th year. According to the witness cohabitation before and soon after puberty occurs in many instances. He is clearly of opinion that a law of marriage would not be against Muslim scriptures. Mr. Jalaluddin Hasimi, M.L.C., states that would not be against Muslim scriptures exist though only among Muslims of lower social order, would have girls married after 16, and thinks marriage legislation would be more effective. The minimum age of consent according to him should be 15 years. When asked if the Maulvis and Mullas will consider the enactment of such a law as an interference with their religion, witness stated that he did not think so and that in all the papers conducted by Muslims, except one, they have raised no objection. The arguments of the paper which objected were met with. Khan Bahadur Maulvi Wasimuddin Ahmed, Chairman, District Board, Pabna, states that cohabitation before puberty is to be found among the low classes, and that cohabitation before 13 is not infrequent. During his experience, professional and otherwise, he came across many cases of cohabitation before puberty with the consequences of permanent injury to the health of the girl. The witness was of opinion that there should be legislation fixing the minimum age of marriage at 13 with exemptions in hard cases. According to the minimum age of marriage, Deputy Magistrate, cohabitation often takes place. Maulvi Abdul Sabhan Muhammad, Deputy Magistrate, cohabitation often takes place. He thinks a law of marriage would be more effective. Mr. A. F. M. Rahman, I.C.S., proposes prohibition of marriage of girls below 13. The witness thinks that fixing a minimum age for girls would be more acceptable. Public opinion would revolt against this also in the beginning but it will subside soon, and the law would help to educate public opinion in the long run. All things taken together the witness preferred

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

[Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz.]

This is the evidence of Mussalmans of Bengal. Can any reasonable man say that the Committee have not arrived at the correct conclusion? It is all nonsense to say that it is a story of cock and bull. It is a story of a province where cocks and bulls exist. It is a province where cruelty and pre-puberty consummation have been very common, and that province should be ashamed of it. The evidence reveals the terrible and black state of affairs. It was necessary to consider the evidence in detail as the province contains the largest percentage (42.14 per cent.) of Muslim population in India and as there was some misapprehension as regards the extent of the evil and the state of opinion on the subject. From this evidence it is clear that the Muslim opinion in Bengal is generally in favour of a law of marriage and an increase in the age of consent, and according to that opinion neither of the laws is against the Muslim scriptures. Again I desire to prove from the evidence that was placed before the Committee that the evil custom of early marriage and early maternity does prevail amongst Muslims of other provinces. Coming to the province of the Punjab, the Age of Consent Committee finds that the evil of early marriage and early maternity is not decreasing but increasing in that province. The notable witnesses are Mr. Justice Agha Haider, Judge of Lahore High Court, the Honourable Malik Firoz Khan Noon, Minister for Local Self-Government, Nawab Muhammad Hayat Khan, Deputy Commissioner, Lyallpur, Sheikh Sirajuddin, Deputy Commissioner, Jhang, Malik Zaman Mehdi, Deputy Commissioner, Mianwali, Mian Abdul Aziz, Deputy Commissioner, Hissar and Khan Bahadur Khavaja Ghulam Sadiq, Chairman of Amritsar Municipality. All these witnesses say that the only remedy is to penalise marriages, and that there is no other effective remedy. They are clearly of opinion that the present legislation is not against the tenets of Islam. The only orthodox witnesses who appeared before the Age of Consent Committee were Mr. Din Muhammad and Dr. Mufti Mohd. Sadiq, both of whom said that penalising marriages and fixing the minimum age of marriage both for boys and girls were not against the religious laws of Islam. They were however in favour of raising the age of consent to 14 years.

The two witnesses who were really against the law of marriage were Nawab Sir Umar Hyat Khan and Mr. Din Muhammad, M. L. C. In face of this evidence some Honourable Members have got the audacity to say

Coming to the North West Frontier Province, the evidence is unanimous that such a marriage law is necessary and there is no dissenting voice except one. The Judicial Commissioner, Maulvi Saiduddin, Khan Bahadar Mohammad Akbar Khan, District Judge, Bannu, Nawabzada Muhammad Nazir, District Judge, D. I. Khan, Khan Sahib Mir Ahmad Khan, Vice-President, Peshawar Municipality, Khan Bahadar Sadullah Khan, Assistant Commissioner, almost all the Muslim judicial and executive officers of the Province are unanimous in their opinion about fixing the minimum age of marriage which they think as the only effective remedy to remove the evil and such legislation is not against the tenets of Islam.

I now come to Sind. Out of 23 Muslim witnesses who had placed their views before the Age of Consent Committee, there was only one witness who was against this legislation. I am sorry he is absent now. He is the Honourable Haji Abdoola Haroon, M. L. A. He said that legislation was not advisable. He, however, admitted that there was nothing in the Islamic law which will prohibit the penalising of marriages, though he said that Maulvis and others would say that it was an interference with the religious law of Muslims.

I now come to the Muslim evidence from Madras. I see that Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb is not here. I wish he were present here to hear the very words of the ladies of India who are subjected to this evil and unhealthy custom and who are sacrificed at the altar of this pernicious custom of early marriage and early consummation. Indian women are victimised and tyrannised, and they seek redress and justice at the bar of this House. Can any one who has any sense of responsibility in him deny justice to them? Will not the same words which Sayyid Murtuza Saheb said be repeated to him? Will not those noble women, sitting in the galleries and outside in the public, who are watching the proceedings in this House, say to Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb and to his friends of his way of thinking: "Oh! you tyrants you have been tyrannising over us, we shall not hear you any more, we shall not have anything to do with your nonsense hereafter"? I will not attack the Honourable Member who is absent. I am not going to take any mean advantage of his absence. I may tell him that the evidence from Madras is in favour of this legislation penalising the marriage below a certain age. Mr. Bazlullah Khan, the Director of Industries, and Mr. Zynuddin, the District and Sessions Judge, are all in favour of the fixing of the age for marriage.

It remains only to be added that the Madras Legislative Council unanimously passed a Resolution in 1928 recommending 16 as the minimum age of marriage. There was not a single dissenting voice. No Muslim Member of the Madras Council raised his voice against this Bill. Even the orthodox Muslim opinion, though against the present evil, clearly said that a Muslim ruler is not prevented to enact a law of marriage in the interest of Mussalmans. They failed to give any argument why the existing Government could not do so. The Muslim evidence from the United Provinces is somewhat conflicting, but the weight of the opinion is in favour of the Bill (See page 83 of the Report). Men like the Honourable

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

[Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz.]

Mr Justice Vazir Hasan and Sir Syed Sadullah Khan, although against the present legislation on other grounds, are clearly of opinion that Islamic religious laws are not against a law of marriage. I have already told you, Sir, that when I joined this Committee I started with a bias in my mind against the Bill and I thought the evil did not exist among the Muhammadans. But I have heard most shocking and most deplorable evidence. I have seen with my own eyes mothers aged 11 and 12, and I do not wish to see that misery again. And here on the floor of this House there are some orthodox Members or some who are ready to follow the opinion of some of these orthodox people, who say that the evil does not exist. Can any man challenge the findings of the Committee with facts and figures? Sir, I come now to the religious aspect of the question. I am dealing with the Mussulmans only. I am not dealing with the Hindus, because the bulk of the Hindus are in favour of the Bill.

Now, the religious point of view of the Mussulmans is this. We know that the Koran does not enjoin any age for marriage; we know that the Hadis say that a Moslem girl should be married after the age of discretion. I have already referred to the law in Egypt, where by a law passed in 1923 the marriage of boy below the age of 18 or a girl below the age of 16 was made absolutely unlawful, and the same was the case in Turkey, where a contract of marriage between boys and girls below the age of 15 was made unlawful. But my Honourable friend Maulvi Muhammad Yakub says that those are Muslim countries; a Mussulman king can make the law but this foreign Government has no business to interfere with the Muhammadan law at all. The point, Sir, has no force; it is a deliberate absurdity. We have the customary law of inheritance, laws regulating adoption and many other laws being enforced in the Punjab. The Oudh laws Act 1876, the Oudh Estates Act 1869 have altered the Muslim law.

Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan: What about the rights of women in the Punjab?

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz: The people of the Punjab have erroneously deprived their daughters of the right of inheritance in the presence of sons. I do not defend them at all.

Sir, I am going to give you an instance which is directly in point to which I think even Maulvi Muhammad Yakub cannot give a cogent reply, and it is this. In China the Mussulman population amounted on the 11th November 1925, prohibits the marriage of boys and girls below 16. That law is applicable to four or five crores of Mussulmans and there is no Moslem ruler in China. The Mussulmans of China have accepted this law without dissent. Sir, I do appeal to the Members of this House to pass this Bill without dissent. The Bill is before India; it is now fortified by the Report of the Age of Consent Committee and favoured by the blessings of the Government of India and the Leader of the House and the Leader of the Opposition. Sir, I have given expression to these views because I have felt deeply and because I have found that the misery of women was very great. I have found that they have been tyrannised and victimised by an evil and unhealthy custom, and I do hope that this House will do them justice and pass this Bill by an overwhelming majority. Sir, I support the motion of my Honourable friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda.

Sir Darcy Lindsay: Sir, I desire to join with my Honourable friend Sir Abdul Qaiyum in giving my whole-hearted support to this Bill, and I am echoing the sentiments of the Members of my Group,—many of whom, I regret to see, are not here now (Laughter),—in saying that we regard this measure as of extreme national importance to India and as saving the lives of thousands of children and saving hundreds of thousands of children from great suffering. It has been said, Sir, on the floor of the House that the eyes of the world are on India in regard to this measure, and I am very proud to think that India through the action of this Assembly is likely to rise to the occasion and pass this great measure into law. Sir, the success of the measure will very largely depend on the whole-hearted support that is given to it by its well-wishers and the country at large in explaining to the people who are affected by the Bill the beneficial effects of its various clauses. Opposition and even indifference to it will largely nullify the good that we hope to achieve. Where there is a genuine desire to help the people to understand the lasting benefits of the measure, I am perfectly satisfied, the people of the country will bless the action of the Assembly in bringing it into law. We all hope that thereby will be created a happier India. It is a great feature, to my mind, that this Bill is passing through the Assembly without any amendment. Numerous amendments on all the clauses have been before the House, and it is most illuminating to find that very small support that has been accorded to any of them. Even the very last amendment, the very last ditch, was an effort made by my Honourable friend Mr. Kelkar and two or three others to postpone the date on which the Bill shall become law. My Honourable friend Sir Abdul Qaiyum referred to this matter. He seemed to be inclined to the view that the period might be extended. I, Sir, hold very strong views the other way because I see, in my humble opinion, the great dangers that any such postponement would have brought about.

In the first place it might be regarded by the opponents of this Bill as a weakening of our position. Secondly, had the measure been postponed until the 1st January 1931, it would have very possibly created a great many marriages that would otherwise not have happened below the age of fourteen at which age the Bill aims. It is well known that the cold weather is the period when most marriages are effected in India, and if we are to go through another cold weather, that is, the cold weather of 1930, there will be—as was said to me in Delhi when I voted for the postponement of the consideration of this Bill to the Simla Session, that I was responsible for creating—another one hundred thousand widows. If there is any truth in that statement, I say that, had we agreed to this amendment of my Honourable friend, Mr. Kelkar, we would have been responsible for creating possibly two hundred thousand widows.

In conclusion, Sir, I would like to pay my tribute to Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda for his noble-hearted efforts and those of his many helpers in bringing this Bill before the House and carrying it to a successful issue. (Hear, hear.) The names of Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda and his helpers, including many ladies, will go down to history as great reformers.

Mr. N. C. Chunder (Calcutta: Non-Muhammadan Urban): Mr. President, I have no desire to intervene in this debate with a view to criticise the critics of this Bill. I have no desire to waste the time of the House in flogging a dead horse. But, if I want to take my share in the debate, it is because I want to remove a misapprehension and a misunderstanding which has been created all over the House, and that is, that Bengal is opposed to Rai Sahib Sarda's Bill. Nothing could be more false than that. (Hear, hear.) I challenge anybody to come and hold a meeting in the capital of Bengal, in the city of Calcutta, against this Bill. An attempt was made to hold a meeting; nobody knew that the meeting was going to be held as a public meeting or that the organisers of that meeting were going to publish it broadcast to the world at large that at a public meeting in Calcutta it was decided that Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda's Bill ought to be thrown out or something of that kind. Somehow or other two hours before the meeting was held, information leaked out, and the meeting, which was summoned to condemn the Bill, unanimously passed a resolution in support of that Bill, and that happened only the other day. I read it in the paper which was received at Simla only yesterday.

[Mr. N. C. Chunder.]

Not only that, Sir, Mr. K. C. Neogy said that some doctors of Calcutta had given their evidence which went against the Bill. Well, Sir, a Medical Conference sat in December and at the All-India Medical Conference a certain resolution was passed by an overwhelming majority supporting the principles of Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda's Bill. Mr. K. C. Neogy quoted some unknown medical journal—at any rate it was unknown to me till I found it in the report of his speech and presumably it was also unknown to Colonel Gidney a doctor in Calcutta—well, he quoted a medical journal where it was said that that meeting was not rightly held, there was some irregularity of procedure and things of that kind. But I hope, Sir, that Mr. K. C. Neogy will accept this statement of Acharya Praphulla Chandra Roy as to what happened at that meeting, and I shall read out to him what Acharya Roy said about the meeting. It can be found at pages 225 to 228 of Vol. VI—the Evidence before the Age of Consent Committee. He said :

"I attended the Doctors' Conference : Dr. Deshmukh presided and there were about three hundred to four hundred doctors present and there was discussion. One or two doctors said that the age of puberty should be the test for consummation. But almost all the other doctors were of the other opinion. Dr. Deshmukh said that simply because you have learned to write, do you think you will be able to write anything? Simply because puberty has been attained, do you think a girl is fit for consummation : that is not the case. Puberty does not show that a girl is fit for maternity. That Conference decided the age of consummation at sixteen."

So, Sir, whatever the editor of the Medical Review of Reviews might say, I doubt whether even Mr. K. C. Neogy will have the courage to say that Acharya Praphulla Chandra Roy's statement is not to be accepted and that the statement of an unknown editor of an unknown paper should carry any weight with this Assembly or any other body of reasonable men.

Then, Sir, I am asked about Babu Amar Nath Dutt. The less said about him the better. (Laughter.) He is not here and so I am not going to refer to anything that he said in this House : I am not going to reply to a word of what he said about myself personally, because I am not on my defence. But let me read out to you, Sir, and through you to the House what Babu Amar Nath Dutt said when he was giving evidence before the Age of Consent Committee at Delhi, on the 11th October, 1928.

His written statement appears on page 1. Question No. 11 that was put to him was as follows :

"During your experience, professional or otherwise, have you come across cases in which cohabitation before puberty or after puberty but before full physical development of a girl resulted in injury to her health or body or prejudicially affected her progeny, if any? Give details of age and injury sustained."

In answer to that question Mr. Amar Nath Dutt, B.A., B.L., M.L.A., Advocate, Calcutta High Court, on the 13th August wrote :

"The general weak health and various female disorders which is so common among the Bengali women is due to cohabitation before full physical development and there is hardly a Bengali home which is free from it. The instances are too numerous for a detailed description."

Then, Sir, in answer to question No. 20, this is what he said. Let me read question No. 20 first :

"Do you consider that penal legislation fixing a higher age of consent for marital cases is likely to be more effective than legislation fixing the minimum age of marriage? Which of the two alternatives would be in consonance with public opinion in your part of the country?"

This is what Babu Amar Nath Dutt, B.A., B.L., M.L.A., Advocate, said :

"No, there is really no public opinion in the matter. I would prefer the latter alternative, fixing the age of marriage."

Then, Sir, in answer to question No. 21, which ran as follows :

"Would you prefer to rely on the strengthening of the penal law to secure the object in view, or on the progress of social reform by means of education and social propaganda?"

Babu Amar Nath Dutt, B.A., B.L., M.L.A., Advocate said this :

"I prefer the latter, that is to say, education and social propaganda, but considering the indifference of the general public in the matter, the strengthening of the penal law is desirable."

There is more of it.

Our friend Mr. Satyendra Chandra Mitra, who unfortunately is not in his place here just now,—he came here in the morning, fell ill and went back,—put to Mr. Amar Nath Dutt this question in cross-examination :

"You are opposed to any legislation in social matters, but in reply to question No. 21 you say that the strengthening of the penal law is desirable."

This is what Mr. Amar Nath Dutt said in his reply :

"I am for prevention by some method. I would prefer penal laws in the circumstances."

Mr. S. C. Mitra asked him then :

"In one or two answers you state that you do not want any State legislation in social matters, and you state that you do not want it in any stage."

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt's answer was :

"Considering that we are bound to remain under this alien rule for some time due to a class of our countrymen, till they undergo a change, I think we must accept this evil of social legislation."

He talked in another strain here. Why he did so, I leave it to the House to imagine. It certainly was not because there was any change of public opinion in the meantime. Not a single well advertised meeting has ever been held, even in the small town of Burdwan where Mr. Amar Nath Dutt resides, where Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda's Bill has been condemned.

[Mr. N. C. Chunder.]

I challenge him to produce any telegram from any Member of the Legislative Council of Bengal, barring of course a few gentlemen in North Bengal like Babu Jogendra Chandra Chakrabutty and one or two others who are well known Members of the Brahman Sabha,—I challenge him to produce a single letter from any representative Bengalee in Burdwan showing me that he or she condemns this Bill. Sir, I represent here a city,—unfortunately only one section of the people of that city I represent, the Non-Muhammadans, but I represent here, Sir, the Non-Muhammadans of a city which is the biggest city in India, and there is not a single district in India whose people are not represented in that city. I received, Sir, only one telephonic communication from a gentleman of the name of Babu Manmohan Bhattacharjee, who was at one time tutor of Babu Brajendra Kishore Acharya Choudhury, informing me that he wanted to see me in connection with the Sarda Bill. I know, Sir, that he is one of the great leaders of the Brahman Sabha. I told him that if he thought he would be able to persuade me against it he was mistaken, because, Sir, I realise every day of my life the evils of early marriage and it was not possible for anybody, not even Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, for whom I have the highest respect, probably higher than I have for any living person in India, to persuade me to his view. Even Pandit Malaviya, I can assure you, will fail to convince me that the system of early marriage ought to be allowed to continue a day longer than it can be helped.

Mr. K. C. Neogy (Dacca Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I had no desire to take part in the debate at this stage, because I have been sufficiently long in this House to realise the utter futility of anything that may be said on his particular occasion, I mean the Third Reading stage. Members have already made up their minds ; amendments have been debated upon, and it is a useless waste of time to engage in a lengthy debate on this particular occasion.

But, Sir, after hearing some of the Honourable Members who have preceded me, I have to join in this debate. I have no desire to assume to myself the oracular authority to speak on behalf of Bengal which my friend, Mr. Chunder, has done. It is a pity that his great interest in this measure did not induce him to be present at the earlier stages of this Bill. If he were present on the day that the first motion was under discussion, I mean the Second Reading, he would have followed what exactly was said by me. I never attempted to create any impression that entire Bengal was opposed to this measure. I do not pretend to know or to speak anything about places about which I am not competent to speak. What I did on that occasion was to seek to interpret, as truly as I could, the opinion in my constituency. And after all that has been said on previous occasions and on the present, I maintain that my withers are absolutely unwrung.

Sir, my Honourable friend Mr. Chunder has referred to meetings in Calcutta. He has particularly referred to a recent meeting in Calcutta. We have received conflicting reports about it. This at least is clear that the protagonists of the two opposing sections could not express their views in an absolutely non-violent manner. The police had to be called in, and I have also seen a rather philosophical defence of the use of force on such occasions attempted in a particular newspaper in Bengal.

My Honourable friend, Mr. Nirmal Chunder Chunder, has assumed that no representative Bengali has ever spoken or expressed his opinion otherwise against this Bill. I am going to draw his attention to the opinion of a body with which he is more familiar than I am, a body to whose opinion I think he would attach some importance. I am referring to the opinion of the Bar Library Club of the Calcutta High Court. It is a body sacred to the Barristers ; it is a body which is worthily represented in this House by two Members, the Honourable the Law Member and my Honourable friend Mr. Kabeer-ud-Din Ahmed. (Laughter.)

Mr. N. C. Chunder : There is Mr. Stewart-Smith. Why do you omit him ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I am sorry I did not know that there was a third. Expressing their opinion on the original Bill, this is what the Bar Library Club stated :

“ The Bar has carefully considered..... ”

Mind you, it is the English Bar, or at least what is called in Calcutta the English Bar, consisting of Europeans and Indians,—Indians, all of whom had been to England and some of whom hold very cosmopolitan ideas about marriage.

(An Honourable Member : “ It is about the original Bill.”) Yes, I will ask my Honourable friends to be a little patient. It is for them to say how much of it applies to any Bill which seeks to effect social legislation.

“ The Bar has carefully considered them and I am now directed to forward the opinion thereof as follows. While fully conscious of the evils which the present Bill aims at and appreciating the object with which it has been introduced, the Bar is of opinion that legislation should not be undertaken as it is sure to raise a storm of protest throughout the land as interference with the religious tenets and deep-rooted sentiments of the vast majority of the orthodox Hindu population.”

It does not at all take away from the importance of this statement.....

Mr. K. Ahmed : What is the date ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : The date is December, 1927. The Honourable the Law Member was the President of this Bar at that time.

Mr. N. C. Chunder : Mr. S. K. Sen gave evidence, do you know ?

Sir Darcy Lindsay : Is it the Bar or the Club ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : It is the Bar Library Club. My Honourable friend will pardon me. He does not know the organisation of the Calcutta Bar and I do not think even my Honourable friend Mr. Nirmal Chunder Chunder will contest the proposition that the Bar Association, which is confined to the members of the English Bar in Calcutta, is known as the Bar Library Club and it is in that name that they are consulted by the Government and it is in that name that they give their opinions to Government on all important measures. I will not encroach upon the constituency which is represented by my Honourable friend Mr. Nirmal Chunder Chunder beyond mentioning this particular fact. I would only refer to what a prominent member of the Calcutta Bar stated. I do not know whether my Honourable friend Mr. Nirmal Chunder Chunder would consider him to be a representative Bengali ; he holds a high judicial position ; I mean Mr. Justice P. R. Das, between whom and orthodox Hinduism there is absolutely nothing in common. This is what he stated, not upon the original Bill, but upon the Bill as it at present stands, and as it is going to be enacted into law. He said :

L16CPB(LA)

"I am wholly opposed to the Bill. It is my deliberate conviction that social legislation may serve as eye-wash ; but it has no effect whatever on the people. If the legislation be in advance of the social and moral consciousness of the people, then it will be disobeyed in practice, without any one being the wiser for it. If it be the other way, then legislation is not needed."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I take it you are not personally against it.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I will tell my Honourable friend what my exact position is and he need not be so impatient. I will now come to my own constituency. I take it that one is entitled to speak on behalf of one's constituency in this House and that one's authority will not be challenged unless any Honourable Member can show that what one has stated the facts to be are absolutely incorrect upon definitely ascertained evidence. Now, Sir, when I spoke on the first occasion, some of my Honourable friends were disposed to question the genuineness of the letters that I had received in response to my appeal to my constituency to let me know what they thought about the matter. My Honourable friend Mr. K. C. Roy wanted to see the correspondence.

Mr. K. C. Roy (Bengal : Nominated Non-Official) : I did not want to see the correspondence.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : But you wanted to know who wrote those letters. I would have been very glad to send the whole mass of the letters that I had received to my Honourable friend. If I was sure that he knew the vernacular of his ancestors sufficiently well for the purpose of understanding the correspondence. But, Sir, I would leave it there. I would refer to another test, and here I am going to refer to certain bodies, whose opinions I take it are entitled to some amount of respect in this House, and whose opinions particularly members of the legal profession would not make light of. There are seventeen district and sub-divisional Bar Associations in my constituency. Mind you, the Bar Associations are the places where anybody who wants to hold a conference or a congress would first go to for the purpose of interesting people in any good cause. They are the centres of all kinds of beneficent public activities and serve as barometers of public opinion. There are, as I have said, seventeen district and sub-divisional Bar Associations in my constituency. Of these 16 have so far expressed their opinions on this Bill. Of this number, 11 are opposed to the very idea of legislation in this matter ; 3 are equally opposed, but are prepared to accept 12 as the minimum marriageable age for girls if legislation be inevitable ; 2 have not specifically protested but say they are prepared to accept 12 as the age for girls. Apart from these Bar Associations there are several influential bodies known as the Mukhtears' Associations representing a great body of legal practitioners in the mofussil. Nine Associations of Mukhtears in my constituency, very important bodies, have expressed their views. (An Honourable Member : "What about indigenous Kavirajes ?") Out of these, 7 are entirely opposed to this measure, one is prepared to agree to 12 as the age for girls if legislation is inevitable, protesting all the same against this measure, and one says that the age of 12 can be agreed to for girls. Here are the original papers and I should be pleased to place them at the disposal of any Honourable Member who wants to scrutinise them and satisfy himself as to the genuineness of these messages.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Personally you are not opposing the Bill, are you ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : My Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, referred to the medical opinion in Bengal. What he was reading from was a publication about half a century old. I myself had a copy of it, but I have thought it safer to rely upon more modern medical opinion. He was also referring to certain opinions given expression to at the Empire Social Hygienic Conference. If my Honourable friend would do me the honour of reading out the entire extract from the Pioneer, which I am sure he had in his mind, he would have seen that those very experts whom he has quoted confess that the questions about puberty are baffling, that the facts and circumstances relating to one country cannot be applied to another, and that climate and various other factors have a good deal of influence on questions affecting puberty, marriage and motherhood.

Coming now to the Bengal medical opinion. My Honourable friend Mr. Chunder has contemptuously referred to a medical journal as being absolutely obscure. I am not a medical man myself and I do not think it incumbent upon me to take up the cudgels on behalf of any medical journal, but here is a statement which has been published in the papers, and which I understand has been signed by over 60 medical men in Calcutta, and two of the signatories, I dare say, would not be regarded by my friend Mr. Chunder as obscure. One is Dr. J. N. Maitra, Chairman of the Health Committee of the Calcutta Corporation who was also the Secretary of the All-India Medical Conference in 1928. The other is Dr. Bamandas Mukherjee, Examiner in Midwifery and Gynaecology to the Calcutta University and Visiting Surgeon to the Chitta Ranjan Seva Sadan, which is a very well-known women's hospital. I am not going to go through the whole of this statement, but the view which they put forward is certainly worthy of some amount of consideration at the hands of this House. I am really sorry to see my friend Mr. Chunder seeking to ridicule the medical opinion which is opposed to this measure. This section of medical opinion does not favour child marriage. What they say is that we should ascertain facts on which a scientific inquiry can proceed, we have not got those facts ; no scientific inquiry has yet been made ; for Heaven's sake stay your hands ; let us have an expert inquiry in preference to an inquiry of the type that we have had in the Age of Consent Committee. This is the main purport of this opinion. They refer to other factors also. It may be that the doctors differ in this particular case.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney (Nominated : Anglo-Indians) : They are only 60 out of 6,000.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Are you authorised to speak on behalf of the rest ? My Honourable friend, Sir Darcy Lindsay, expressed his gratification that no amendment to this Bill had been accepted. Sir, my Honourable friend is not in touch with the mofussil of the country. If he were, he would have been the first man to say that some of the amendments that were tabled were of a very essential character and the non-acceptance of them would make the task of those who would be called upon to administer this measure very, very difficult. It is all very well that the protagonists of this measure have a very large majority in this House and this measure is going to be passed into law in a few days. But is it necessary for them also to assert that the whole country is behind them? Would it not be right on their part to be a little more charitable to those who differ from them on this particular occasion? I appeal to them to be more tolerant when the deepest sentiments of the people are involved in a delicate matter of this kind. There is a good deal of room for honest differences of opinion, and this will be apparent from some of the opinions, which I have already read out. They are from men who would not ordinarily support orthodoxy in this country. I would mention to you one more view, and that is the opinion of the organ of the Adi Brahma Samaj of Calcutta which was established by Raja Ram Mohun Roy. An editorial comment which appeared in this paper has been sent to me with a personal letter from the Editor. I may tell this House that the joint Editors of this paper are well-known members of the Brahma community in Calcutta. One is Dr. B. L. Chaudhury and the other is K. N. Tagore. In an editorial note, this journal says that it is opposed to the idea of social reform by legislation. So I say it ought to satisfy the supporters of this measure that they are passing this measure into law. Is it necessary for them to suppress, to ridicule the opinion that may be held in opposition to them? Sir, as I said on the last occasion I have my sympathy certainly with the underlying object of this measure; but the issue before me is this—Am I entitled to impose my opinion on an unwilling people by legislative coercion with the help of the vote which I exercise in their name in this House?

Mr. R. S. Sarma (Bengal : Nominated Non-Official) : Mr. President, I have been unfortunately forestalled by my friend, the Honourable Mr. Chunder, who cleared a misapprehension which I myself wanted to remove. The speeches of my Honourable friends, Mr. M. K. Acharya and Mr. Sessa Ayyangar, on the one hand and the speeches of Mr. Ghuznavi and Mr. Amar Nath Dutt on the other, have unfortunately created the impression in this House that the strongest opposition to this progressive legislation has emanated from the provinces of Madras and Bengal. Madras is the province of my birth, and Bengal the province of my adoption, and though I shall not be rash enough to incur the displeasure of my friend, Mr. Neogy, by claiming to speak on behalf of Bengal as Mr. Neogy did.....

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I never did that. A nominated Member has probably greater authority to speak in the name of Bengal than anybody else.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : I say that I do not want to incur Mr. Neogy's displeasure, because I found him questioning the representative character of Mr. Chunder who represents Calcutta in this Assembly.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I never did that.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : You did.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Never.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : However that may be, I have been sufficiently in touch with the trend of public opinion in Bengal and Madras to be able to understand exactly the views and opinions of the majority of the people in those two provinces. Public opinion in a matter of this character and in all important matters is ascertained by two well-defined means, the Press and the platform. (Hear, hear.) As regards the Press, the entire Press of Madras and Bengal.....

Mr. K. C. Neogy : No, no, not in Bengal.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : Except for a small weekly paper which my friends flourished before the House!

Mr. K. C. Neogy : There are scores of papers in the mofussil which the Honourable Member is not in a position to understand because he does not know the vernacular.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : I am only concerned with papers of importance known to every Member of the House; I cannot take into account every small paper in the mofussil. With regard to Madras, there is no other organ of public opinion which can claim to speak with greater authority or can claim to be a better spokesman of the views and wishes of Southern India than the Hindu of Madras. (An Honourable Member : "Question.") The lead that that paper has given to this measure and the ample support given by the editor of that paper, who is also a distinguished Member of this House, is I think the last word on the subject as to what may be taken to be the views of Southern India on this important question. (An Honourable Member : "Certainly not.") Dogmatic assertion is no argument, Sir. Then, with regard to Bengal, there has not been a single question for the last 20 years in which papers like the Statesman and the Liberty, having such divergent views on all other questions, are unanimously agreed as on this particular question, viz., the necessity of legislation of this character. I believe the Liberty is a paper to which my friend, Mr. Amar Nath Dutt and occasionally my friend, Mr. Neogy, owe allegiance.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : What? Nothing of the kind.

Mr. R. S. Sarma : With regard to public opinion, my friend, Mr. Chunder has told you just now as to what Hindu Bengal thinks about this measure. With regard to what Muhammadan Bengal thinks, I will just read only one sentence from a leader of Muhammadan public opinion who has written to the Statesman what Moslem Bengal think of the attitude which Mr. Ghuznavi, representative of Bengal Muslims, has taken in this connection. He says :

"Whatever the Fatwawallas may say, Islam does not and cannot sanction the diabolical practice of child marriage. Mr. Ghuznavi's having changed into a true Muslim is a vote-catching move, and it is hoped that nobody will mistake it for the enlightened opinion of Muslim Bengal."

I am very sorry to quote this, and to refer to this in the absence of Mr. Ghuznavi, but the House knows that he is absent by his own voluntary act. (An Honourable Member : "He is on hunger strike.") Of course, clever as they are, Mr. Ghuznavi and Mr. Amar Nath Dutt have combined business and pleasure with patriotism, and by a dramatic show of walk out, have kept the afternoon free to attend the football match. No patriotic Bengali can afford to be away, Sir, when Mohan Bagan are playing. (An Honourable Member : "Mr. Amar Nath Dutt is here.") With regard to general public opinion in Bengal two meetings held in Bengal, one in the Albert Hall in Calcutta, and the other last week in Dacca, give the lie direct to the libellous insinuation that the people of Bengal are against this progressive legislation being put upon the Statute-book; and I think, Sir, Bengal would be judged in this House more by the part played by the two illustrious Members on the Treasury Benches, Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra and Sir Brojendra Mitter and by the attitude taken by the two non-official Bengalis, Mr. K. C. Roy and Mr. N. C. Chunder. One word more and I shall finish. The Deputy President, in his speech last week, warned this House of the evil consequences of this measure, and he went on to say that this particular legislation would land Government in a catastrophe and that the historian of the future would have something drastic to say about the Viceroy who put his seal of approval to this measure. I think, Sir, it is going to be the other way about. When in consequence of this great progressive legislation, the social disgrace and evil of child-marriage and child-widows in this country has been eradicated root and branch from the soil, and when India, thus made strong and virile, takes her place among the free nations comprising the British Commonwealth, when we will have in effect self-government and Dominion Status, as a result of the improvement in the moral and physique of the manhood and womanhood of the race as a result of this legislation, I think, Sir, that not only the name of His Excellency the Viceroy who put his seal of approval on this measure will be remembered by millions of men and women who may have benefited by this legislation, but generations of my grateful countrymen will cherish with loving gratitude the name of a Home Member who shewed great courage and vision in initiating a bold and vigorous policy ensuring that no longer shall the dearest children of the soil of India be crucified on the matrimonial cross.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : The Government will also be remembered for nominating you to this Assembly ?

Several Members : The question may now be put.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : Sir, to lament their lot is a privilege that is always cheerfully accorded by the victors in every fight to the vanquished ; and that is the only privilege that I today, looking ahead as carefully as I can to the woes that are ahead of us, seek at your hands. I admit, Sir, that we have been defeated on the floor of the House not by the superiority of argument but by the superiority of numbers (Hear, hear),—not by the logic that has been brought to bear upon the subject but by the very lack of logic, by the very fact that scientific data, on which our conclusions should be based, have been ignored. The logic, Sir, that has won today is the logic of the Government bloc, the logic that is winning today is the logic of the European Group. We bow to the logic of numbers ; but, Sir, may we not be spared the humiliation, in this land of sages where there have always been noble souls who said :

“ They are slaves who dare not be,
In the right with two or three.”

may we not be spared the humiliation of being told by the many that have erred, that the error of the many is going to be the law for all time to come ?

Mr. K. Ahmed : Follow the majority.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : No, Sir. It is humiliating to be told that this is the last word on this subject. We have been told that from Bengal, from the United Provinces, from the whole of Madras, opinions have come which are entirely in favour of this legislation. Sir, it is not self-respectful to any Member of this House to indulge in such hyperbole. It might be very well for some newspaper scribblers to say that this or that is the last word on any subject ; but, Sir, responsible people ought to be careful in making such statements. I just got a telegram from some place in the Cuddappah or Kurnool district, I suppose, which was put into my hand just when Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda was talking. Does that telegram, Sir, congratulate the Home Member, does it congratulate Government ?

“ Government morality and honour at stake ”—that is what this telegram says, and from every corner (An Honourable Member : “ Is the telegram from a man or woman ? ”) the same story comes. Sir, what a childish question. I should ask my talented friend, Mr. Jayakar, to study the principle of what is called the law of the bipolarity of sexes carefully.

I should ask him to learn that :

“ For Woman's Cause is man's ; they rise or fall Together, dwarfed or godlike, bond or free.”

It is childish to talk of man's tyranny over woman, or woman's tyranny over man. Such talk is unworthy of any cultured society. My own impression is that very often it is woman who tyrannises over man, and not man who tyrannises over woman. (Laughter.) Mr. Jayakar probably himself has experienced it at some time. Sir, the Bill is going, I know, to be passed ; I know that it will be as easy to bid the Himalayas move away further north as to ask this House not to vote for this Bill : and so I bow to the inevitable. Let Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda congratulate himself ; by all means I shall congratulate him too—not on his sound arguments but on his strong numbers. Let him remember that the Bill that is being passed today is very different from the Bill which he originally drafted. His original Bill was a veritable lamb compared to the tiger that is now being sprung upon the country. Let the honour or dishonour be divided between the Honourable Rai Sahib and the Honourable Sir James Crerar ; for, but for the solid bloc of the Government's forty or fifty votes, and but for the solid bloc of the European Group comprising ten votes, this Bill would not have so much as progressed to the stage of being taken into consideration. Let us not therefore talk in an impractical manner. Opinions in favour of the Bill may have come from here and there. Opinions will come when the Government want them. They will come in abundance when a mighty Government on which the sun never sets wants them. Sir, opinions can be got by thousands without any difficulty. But if you are honest, you must admit that Sir Sivaswamy Aiyar and Diwan Bahadur T. Rangachariar, though very great and good citizens of Madras, are not religious heads. They are no more competent to speak on religious matters than I am competent to speak about what is happening in Iceland. Therefore let us not allow our prejudices to override the truth. I am prepared to admit that, among the English educated people of India, 90 per cent. are perhaps in favour of the Bill ; and I put the blame at the door of the Government which has enslaved our intellects. We, the English educated Indians, merely cram second-hand knowledge which is thrust down our throats ; and we repeat parrot-like what others say. We have lost all independent inquiry, original thinking, original philosophy and original thought, which could stir the whole world. Some of my friends have been talking cheaply of education for girls. Are they not satisfied with the education that we men have had and which has made machines and slaves of us ? I do not know where my friend the Revd. J. C. Chatterjee has had his education ; I do not know if he has any educational ideals. I believe in his education ; I do not know if he has any educational ideals. I believe in that education which gives us the nerve to fight, and the heart to aspire to the highest ideals, which gives us that higher culture by means of which even in a minority of one man will dare to fight against overwhelming odds. This Government, by imparting its present education to us, has enslaved our mentality ; and you want to give this dirty education to my sisters and daughters. Sir, I will not give them this dirty and stupid education. (Voices : “ Question.”) I will not give them this beastly education. Sir, even in England great scientists, great educationists, have raised huge protests against the education that is being given in England. They say that education in England is most mechanical ; that it is responsible for a lot of economic and moral evils all over England. The same is the case in America. And these gentlemen here still talk about giving the present machine-making English education to our girls.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : What education did you receive ?

Mr. M. K. Acharya : I also received the same machine-making education of which I am ashamed, honestly ashamed ; but, in spite of that education, because I still happen to have one little drop of my ancient sires' blood which says that one should even die for truth, so I am speaking against the Bill.

I am ready, Sir, to admit that we have been defeated. We have been condemned without a fair trial. We wanted calm consideration. But the great Leader of the Congress Party, who is going to be the Premier of the Commonwealth of India after the 31st December, said that this question was the silliest possible question to be talked about, and we should not bother ourselves about it ! Another mighty scion of the law declared : " We are the highest tribunal and we should deliver judgment without looking into any evidence." He would not condemn the worst criminal, he would not have the most unreasonable hunger-striker tried in his absence, but he is prepared to convict thousands and thousands of his countrymen who have been following an excellent ancient custom without looking into the evidence against them ; and the House agreed to his dictum ! (To Mr. M. R. Jayakar.) Yes, you will not allow one single to convict thousands and thousands of people as being guilty of the most damnable tyranny and wickedness against the whole womankind of India without having full evidence before you. Some of us, Sir, were not satisfied with the inquiry and Report of the Age of Consent Committee. The House has agreed to it. But the Honourable the Home Member, in the name of his mighty Government, spoke of the Committee as an ideal Committee and of their Report as an ideal report, and then the majority in the House, like the Roman citizens of Shakespeare, cried, " We will be satisfied ; let us be satisfied " ! When the Government, instead of holding the scales impartially, decided to throw their whole strength on one side, what could we do ? I had received protests from every part of the country, from all Hindu religious heads of any importance. Government had received them too ; but Government chose to ignore them completely. Against such obstinate opposition we felt : " Ours not to reason why ! ours but to do and die " ! Yes, Sir, we are ready to die before the tyranny of the majority, but our cause will not die. Truth does not die ; conscience does not die, and the spirit of India will never, never be killed.

Sir, I was bombarded by some of Mr. Sarda's heroes and heroines at the doorway, and in my room ; and though by Dr. Hyder I was told that I had no eyes to see what he saw, no ears to hear what he heard and no heart to feel what he felt, I too felt the persuasive logic of their lips and eyes. But I knew that they were in the wrong and I was in the right, and that is the reason why I did not agree to their request to support the Bill. Now, I will make bold to say that ours is the highest ideal of marriage on earth, and I wish the whole of Europe and the whole of America would copy it. Our marriage system seeks that a girl of 11 or 12 and a boy of 17 or 18, should be brought together in a healthy environment in which they may be helped to grow together in age and in love till their hearts are twined into one indivisible whole, and remain so till death itself parts them only here on earth, not in heaven above. That is our ideal ; I claim it is the highest ideal of marriage. It has been followed in India in spite of all apparent drawbacks. That ideal you are penalising today. That ideal you are killing, trampling under foot today. It does not matter to me whether there are going to be 3,000 widows or 3,00,000 widows when this sacred ideal is going to be trampled under foot. You may perhaps prevent three lakhs of child-widows by this legislation ; but you will also, by this legislation, give room within the next ten years, to three million unmarried women wandering about the streets, who will be either the victims of abductions and seductions or aggressive parties thereof. I am glad that the Leader of the Congress Party and the Deputy Leader of the Nationalist Party have both admitted that cases will arise when, in the interests of the girl herself, we shall have to relax this age limit of 14. Cases of sexual misbehaviour of girls and boys are sure to arise ; because as love laughs at locksmiths, so does lust laugh at legislators.

Now I will put this question to the European Members of this House. Have you studied the vital statistics of England ? What is the present morality of European society, of English society ? I will give some facts and figures. The numbers of illegitimate children, of those who are openly labelled as illegitimate, were as follows :

|      |         |        |

and so on for every succeeding year, out of a total of some 700,000 to 600,000 births. That is to say, one child out of every 23 or 24 born is openly labelled as illegitimate. That is the morality of England. What steps have you taken to prevent this state of affairs in your own country ? Sir, virgin widowhood is no danger to society as compared to what these huge armies of " unmarried " women are perpetrating. The scientists of England and America deplore the growing degradation. It has come to England and America that women want sexual intercourse without marriage ; this in the West that women want marriage without maternity. Such a calamity has never at best they want marriage without maternity. Such a calamity has never happened in India ; but by passing this legislation you are paving the way for it. What is happening in the " civilised " countries of the West will also happen in India, through these " civilising " legislation of yours. You cannot kill nature, which is the same everywhere. You cannot destroy human nature ; you cannot prevent sex instinct. Penalising sex-craving has never worked in any country of the world, and it will never work. Therefore, you are only undermining the old moral foundations of Indian society.

It is not that I do not want reform. I want sane reform. I want strong Indians, and more than physically strong Indians ; I want Indians who are morally, and spiritually, not only intellectually even, the greatest in the world. I do not care for physical strength alone. I want it by all means, but only as a complement to high thought and noble culture. I want highly cultured Indians in large numbers. Are they going to be produced by this Bill, when the whole of our society is going to be corrupted by this evil legislation ? Do you think you can evolve a highly cultured race out of this Bill ? Look at the degradation rampant in America and

[Mr. M. K. Acharya.]

France. Are we going to get through this Bill anything like the race of which we can well feel proud? Here is a great trust of the noblest human culture handed to us; but we are trampling it under foot. This House is destroying that culture, and I only hope that posterity will not hold us all equally responsible for it. I hope they will excuse us. This House has declared that they would penalise the highest ideal of marriage. They would put their heel upon that ideal. They would not allow any father to say, "My daughter will be married when she is 12 or 13 to a boy who is 16 or 17; and if need be I take full responsibility for seeing that there is no consummation before she attains 15 years of age." Well, Sir, this ideal the House would not allow to be followed. The ideal that the House has before it is only one of carnal pleasure. The House knows only the carnal side of marriage, not its higher, spiritual side. The House would allow a girl only after a particular age to be married to a boy after a particular age? But can any legislation say that a woman shall become a mother at any particular age. This is the insane legislation which is sought to be imposed upon the country. My friends talk cheaply of female education. But what is their ideal? Here is a book written by Dr. Mayrick Booth, one of the latest writers upon sex problems; and there are suggestions in it as to the kind of education which should be given to girls so as to qualify them for their great sex duty, for their great biological duty, for their duty to society. What is that duty? A girl's most sacred duty is to become wife and mother. The proper work of a woman is maternity. That is the great duty of a woman. The best scientific opinions of both Europe and America agree in the view that the education of a girl should be such as to qualify her for motherhood, for the great duty of motherhood. That is the true ideal of female education. The learned author of that book bemoans that the present education in England is not conducive to it; he bemoans that there are hundreds and thousands of unmarried girls who go into offices and sell their labour cheap in competition with the boys, and force the boys to be thrown out of work, and to remain bachelors. He bemoans the unmarried state of these girls. The result, as he says, is this vicious circle of young men without work and young women without marriage. This is going on from day to day. The result is that the whole Anglo-Saxon society is in a chaos. He tells us what is happening there. He gives innumerable statistics to show that maternity is going down in England. Maternity is going down in America among the sport-loving adolescent women. Everywhere in Europe it is going down. Even 10 per cent. of adolescent women in the West are not fit for maternity; they do not bear children; all this on account of the pernicious ideals that are now prevalent all over Europe. He comes to the conclusion that, unless great endeavour is made to inculcate saner, more scientifically sound ideals of sex-relations, the Anglo-Saxon race will soon come to an end. I will commend the following pitiful remark to the notice particularly of Mr. Price and Sir Darcy Lindsay:

"What is happening to the domestic life of the Anglo-Saxon race? It is the same tale wherever the English tongue is spoken: more hotels, fewer homes, more divorces, fewer children."

That is what is going to happen to the English educated people of India also. Among us also will be more hotels, fewer homes, more divorces and more loose sexual connections, more unholy sexual alliances and unions, and lesser and fewer children. That is what we are paving the way for by enacting this measure. We are the guilty persons who are parties to such a crime. The false, unwholesome ideal of my friends seems to be that a girl should be old enough and free enough to say whether she will marry, and if so, when and whom she will marry. This is utterly unscientific, unbiological. In Europe, this false ideal, which was based on the superficial utilitarianism of the Victorian period is resulting in the gradual extinction of femininity. And in Europe and America thoughtful writers of both sexes have begun to declare that a girl has no right to say that she will marry only when she likes and whom she likes, and as she likes. That is not in conformity with the higher organic view of society, with the real basic principle of society, which says that a girl should become a mother of the race. The race demands that every girl should become a mother. That is the highest principle of sociology, that is the highest principle of inter-sex moral law, that is the highest principle on which is based the foundation of all civilised human society. Every woman, every man, is an organic limb of the race. No man, no woman has a right to live for himself or for herself. This is the organic theory of society, based on what is called the philosophy of the unity of all life. This is the teleological view of human society that all are parts of one organic whole, each having a function of his or her own, all functions tending towards the growth and consummation of the whole. According to this view of life and society, every boy and girl, as far as possible, should become married, for the perpetuation of the race. This is what the latest western scientists say. But in India, in modern India, we hear the diabolical philosophy that a girl must be old and mature enough to make her decision after examination and trials as to who would best suit her as a husband; that she must be free to say when, how and whom she will take as her husband. This same wicked creed has produced most baneful results in America. The same pernicious results are happening in Europe, and unfortunately both these Continents are getting into a state of terrible degradation. The thoughtful writers of England, of Austria, of Germany, all have begun to deplore the present conditions of society there. Yet we "educated" people in India have become the intellectual dustbins of Europe and America, and want to pick up the crumbs and the refuse that are thrown out by the West.

Mr. K. Ahmed: Then, why do you ask for Home Rule?

Mr. M. K. Acharya: Life is more serious than can be wasted upon the Honourable Member—Sir, I am sorry to have to speak about this measure. I do certainly want legislation, but legislation on sane lines. I want reform on sane lines; that is why I say that we must not allow consummation before 15 years of age. But we must allow, if possible we must help and give facilities for a girl of 11 or 12 or 13 to enter into the sacrament of matrimony with a boy of 17 or 18. That is the high ideal of Hindu culture, but we are penalising that today. I am not going to waste the time of the House now at this late stage by reading out the innumerable telegrams that I have received against the Bill. How many telegrams have I got? How many telegrams has the Honourable the Home Member got? He must know it. He has got innumerable telegrams from respectable leaders of religion all over India. He has got telegrams from every man who has at least half a dozen as his following. The Honourable Member himself admitted on the floor of this House, how many telegrams, how many representations, and how many memorials were received for and against this measure. Let us not therefore, in a fit of frenzy, magnify either the one side or the other. I have come to this conclusion after great deliberation, that the bulk of the English educated people are not independent thinkers; unfortunately they are only second-rate parrot-like repetitioners of what is being loosely said in other countries. They want legislation, not on rational lines, nor on lines suited to the genius of the Indian nation. But the bulk of the country is going to decide the fate of every Member who is voting in favour of this measure. The bulk of the country will decide as to who should be returned to the next Assembly. The bulk of the country will follow their long-recognised leaders, whether Hindu or Muhammadan. A large proportion of them will not admit the false ideal that every girl has the right to say that she will marry when she likes, whom she likes. The large bulk of the people in this country would not like their girls to defy parental authority and home discipline. The bulk of the people in this land are still fortunately wedded to the old ideal that their girls shall not fall into degradation, that a girl when she is 16 or 17, when sex passions are dominant in her, is not the fittest and best person to choose her partner in life, and qualify herself for motherhood. She is not the fittest to say whether she will marry, whom she will marry and when she will marry. Our ideal has been of discipline, of control, of subordinating youthful whims to the experience of elderly people. Every girl must take the advice of her parents. Every boy and girl must obey the wishes of his or her parents. Every such discipline has been prevailing in India that we have been spared the degrading spectacle found in the West. America is now on the stepping stone of ruin and peril. In England great thinkers are despairing as to what is going to happen to Anglo-Saxon society if the present conditions were to continue any longer. In India we have come to the same stage. We with our high ideals and noble culture have withstood the onslaughts of countless invading creeds, and God willing we shall stand the onslaughts inroad into our ideals by the enactment of this measure. I have no doubt that sooner, much sooner than most of us think of, this legislation will be amended so as to be made more sane and more fitting with the highest national ideals and the culture of India. For :

“ The One remains, the many change and pass,
Heaven's light for ever shines, earth's shadows fly.”

Amidst all the numerous changes that are being wrought in our midst, the one eternal culture of India, the one eternal supremely universal religion of India which has linked the Siva and Sakti together—the Apollonian and the Dionysian as western scientists would call the two aspects today—that supreme religion which has linked Sri and Narayana into the One Holiest Existence—the religion that has welded indivisibly the father and the mother, the wife and the husband for all time, through all earthly births and deaths—the Culture of that indissoluble Unity which is the stepping stone to the higher Unity that pervades all this Universe—that will remain, and this legislation is bound to pass away.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Sir, I had no mind to take part in this debate, but I must make it clear at the outset that I was very vehemently in support of the principle of this Bill and so I am now. My constituency is also generally in favour of the principle of the Bill and one of the reasons is that my constituency particularly is not much affected by this Bill. Except Brahmins and two or three small castes, no other caste marries early, and even when there is early marriage, there is no consummation before the girl attains her 14th or 15th year. But when I found that the Bill was proceeded with from stage to stage I was considering whether I should subscribe to the scope of the Bill without thinking twice. It was said by the author of the Bill, when he first introduced it in this House, that his main object was to eradicate the evils of child widowhood and early or pre-puberty marriage or consummation. These two things are really social evils. Anything else that is aimed at in this Bill is not exactly against any particular social evil but with a view to enforcing something which we may call social reform among the people, a substantial section of which I now find is unwilling to accept it.

But I must say that I am not like many of my friends on this side of the House against social legislation. Shastras have been quoted on both sides, but as I have stated, my humble study of the Shastras tells me that they appear contending to the uninitiated. When we speak of Hindu religion, I say it is a misnomer. I never believe that there is anything like Hindu religion. By religion we understand a preached religion, which has got a book which is revealed, and practically it is the word of one man who preached that religion. Hindu religion therefore is a misnomer. I believe in Hindu culture. It is a culture where all stages of the development of the human soul are comprehended. Even the pantheistic teachings of the Vedanta are as much Hinduism as the worship of stocks and stones by the savage. So this culture you may find in our Shastras and you cannot find any hard and fast rules for all time to come and for all climes and all people. It is an interpretation according to adhi-kara as it is called, the capacity of the man interpreting that will give you the true interpretation of the Shastras; and in fact I find that there has been legislation from time to time and marriage has been regulated. It was I believe about the 12th century that, for some reasons, our Smritikaras forbade post-puberty marriage. I do not know whether those conditions have so vanished today that we can go even two or three years after puberty in marrying our girls.

I did not understand my friends congratulating the Honourable the Home Member for his support and some of them characterising that support as the advent of a national government. I do not know that on any national measure, on any measure which we consider national, Government was ever so very enthusiastic, and I cannot understand, even on the present occasion, what can be at the back of all this enthusiasm. In this Bill we actually go forward to a measure of social reform, and we look forward to a time, as some of my friends have said, when girls will choose their own husbands and boys will choose their own wives. But so long as that stage does not come by education of our villagers or by any other means planned by our national Government, I do not understand how we can raise the age two or three years beyond the age of puberty and still make the parents and the families responsible for the marriage of young men and young girls. I do not know what is the actual age of puberty in Northern India, in the Punjab or in up-country. But I know that in the torrid heat of the south as well as in temperate and delicate Bengal, twelve is the age of puberty.

(At this stage Mr. President vacated the Chair, which was taken by Mr. Deputy President.)

I can understand that in towns and cities from where most of my Honourable friends come to this House and where there are educational institutions and other things, a father can give his daughter in marriage after 14, but I do not understand how in the villages where there is no education, the father or the family can be responsible for the girl after she attains the age of puberty. Of course the time may come when measures of social reform may advance to that extent and we may look upon that age, or even after that, as the marriageable age, but at present I do not understand how we can make the parents responsible, and not only responsible, but make it a criminal offence and send them to jail for marrying their children before 14.

Do you not understand the life in the villages? Do you not realise how there will be many cases where rightly or wrongly the father will be compelled to give his daughter in marriage at once? I do not know—the main idea of the 12th century as I understand it was that the marriageable age should be so fixed and the marriage so performed before the girl had any sex impulse. Now, you are making it two or three years after she gets the sex impulse; and I am sure human nature is human nature, and you know the conditions in the villages; there is no education, nothing of the kind; and sex impulse always goes hand in hand with sex experience in some cases at least in this land as it is so common in the West, and this will result in many cases in marriage after sex experience. Do you not feel that, in such cases, the fathers will be compelled to marry their daughters? In cities conditions of society may be different, but in villages, generally people will not risk this, whereby families and not girls alone may be ruined. The result will be that there will be the strictest of purdah in your villages after this Bill is passed into law and after it is promulgated. I know in my society, Karans who are just below the Brahmins, marry their girls after puberty, and I know, at the same time, that their purdah system in Orissa is the strictest of all. You must either have purdah under the present conditions in villages, or you must marry just when a girl is on the verge of attaining puberty. Which do you choose?

I do not understand how, in the scope of the Bill, nothing was provided as a safeguard: everything—every bit of reasonable amendment—was thrown out in a measure like this by which we expect social reform. If you are to pass legislation, legislative measures like this must go hand in hand with the stage to which the people have attained, perhaps a little in advance if possible. You cannot introduce a measure like this, a penal measure: in your frenzy of what you call social reform. This is not a social conference. This is a Legislative Assembly. Make real crimes like forced widowhood of the child or pre-puberty consummation of marriage penal by all means. I cannot subscribe to introducing measures of what you call reform at the point of the bayonet like this.

My friends have quoted measures of social legislation. But as I understand them, none but the measure regarding suttee was a penal measure; they were civil measures, and you could have made this a civil measure like the others. But by the present provision, the father will have to go to jail and the mother will have to go to jail (An Honourable Member: “Certainly not.”) or be subjected to fine, I beg your pardon. As regards suttee, if you were to compare this with that measure, it would be like saying that milk is beef. If milk be beef, then this measure can be compared with the measure against suttee.

So, Sir, I say that, when we were going to fight against social evils such as widow marriage and pre-puberty consummation, we have perhaps unwarily come to something which I am sure will not only be unpalatable in our villages among the vast population there, but will also create something which, if realised in effect, perhaps none of my friends on this side of the House will like. It is a cultural setback as I may call it, measures of reform in this subject land are yet of doubtful genuineness, so long as our mentality is one of slavish and unassimilated imitation. Moreover forcing measures like this with the help of an alien bureaucracy is nothing less than a crime—a heinous offence, I may say, against our hoary and liberal culture. For it is evident even in this House itself, not to speak of penalties of courts later on, that with forty or fifty votes on those Benches, this measure is being forced down our unwilling throats. (Cries of “No.”) I repeat it and I say that we could not get even a comma or a semi-colon altered. It is a very dangerous thing. I cannot conceive of it. I could understand the Government approving of the principles of the Bill for fear of public opinion. If they did that, it was perhaps a part of their duty and I do not deny that much; but when they force this measure on us and compel us to swallow it, root, trunk, branch, leaf, twig and stem—nothing left out—nothing changed—I cannot follow the attitude of Government. When we were considering the measure, we did not give them an undertaking that, whatever emerged from the Select Committee, we would swallow the whole thing as it was. But we are now forced to swallow it. If we analyse the votes, we find that, besides those fifty votes, perhaps on very small occasions you have got a majority of non-official elected Members—representatives of those that are concerned, those that are affected.

An Honourable Member: You never exceeded twenty!

Pandit Nilakantha Das: 20 or 24 I do not mind; but from 61 if 50 is deducted it means 11. Whatever that may be, it should have been considered thoroughly and the scope of the Bill should have been modified so that the people could swallow it even if it still would have been like a bitter pill in some instances. I would not mind that much of bitterness, but I am sorry this Bill is going to be passed into law as it is; and I should have been very glad to support the Bill as I am in favour of the principles of the Bill, but under the circumstances I am sorry to have to say that I shall not be able to give my support to it, which would mean not supporting the principle now, but supporting the entire Bill as it is.

Mr. Deputy President: I think the Honourable Member will realise that this is a time when we should give every Member a chance to say a few words. I do not want that any Member should think that he had not got a chance and I hope that the Honourable Member will finish soon.

Pandit Nilakantha Das: I have finished, Sir.

Honourable Members: The question may now be put.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber: Indian Commerce): Sir, I rise to join the chorus of congratulations to the Honourable Member from Ajmer-Merwara on his having succeeded in piloting this Bill through the House. If I remember it correctly, this is the first non-official Bill, of a contentious character, which has successfully gone through this House in its various stages, and I believe that the Honourable Member in charge himself will agree that he could have done little, but for the very whole-hearted support which the Government promised him and which they have accorded so usefully. The best wish that I can now extend to this Bill is that it may be introduced in the Council of State this very Session at Simla and that, before many weeks are over after the end of this month, it may receive the assent of His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General.

None, Sir, is more conscious of the many defects of this Bill ; I do not think any one of the supporters of this Bill will be so rash as to claim that it is a perfect measure in any sense. There are many omissions which will require attention, and there are many other restrictions which may have to be put on in course of time as experience teaches us what is Wanting in the Bill, but there is no doubt about this, that as the foundation, this Bill is good enough to enable the Indian Legislature to lay a true and lasting foundation.

A good deal, Sir, has been said indicating suspicion of the Government support to this Bill. I can understand the mentality of those colleagues of mine who will suspect Government support, whether it be for a good cause or for a bad cause ; but I have no hesitation in this case in saying,—and I say it with all conviction—that Government could not have withheld their support to this Bill at this very late hour. The fact that the Government did not give support to this Bill of the Honourable Member in charge a year ago, we all deplore. The Government were over cautious. In the last Delhi Session they almost tried our patience, and whilst we are grateful to the Government for the support that they have given now, I do not think there is the slightest room for any suspicion. On the other hand, Government deserve from this side of the House cordial appreciation, and it is our sincere wish that they may extend their support with equal cordiality for equally good causes, hereafter.

The Third Reading, Sir, of a Bill is generally looked upon as an occasion for Members, if they choose to do so, to take a short review of the debate on the earlier readings of the Bill. I do not propose to take much time of the House in this connection. I know that many of us perhaps would like to leave the Chamber as early as possible, but I cannot help referring to a few remarks made by some Honourable Members in the course of the debate today. In this connection, turning first to my Honourable friend Mr. Neogy, I can assure him that there is not one of the supporters of the Bill who really rejoices at what some call their victory in this matter, and I feel that there are many who will agree with me that we regret, and feel it is a misfortune of the country, that there must be differences of opinion on this important measure. To me, personally, Sir, it is a matter of great regret that I have on this occasion to differ from some of my esteemed friends with whom I generally agree and for whose opinions I have the very highest respect. To name only a few, I will name my Honourable friend Mr. K. C. Neogy from Bengal, Messrs. Kelkar and Aney, and my esteemed friend Mr. Belvi, with whom I have been in the Legislature, either Provincial or Central, ever since 1916. There is not the slightest question of doubting the bona fides or the honesty of purpose of any of these esteemed friends. It is perhaps, as my friend Mr. Acharya said, my misfortune, that receiving as I have done English education, I cannot see with the same glasses as Mr. Acharya would like to put on, but if my Honourable friends will extend to us, who support this Bill, the same bona fides and honesty of purpose which we credit them with, we need not have the bickerings over what one side or the other said, bickerings as to who has the country behind him and who has not. Sir, now that the Bill is going to be passed, let all put their strength together and see that the measure goes through with general goodwill. I do not claim, Sir, that I have the country behind me in what I am saying. I will not even claim that I have the whole of Bombay city behind me in what I am saying ; I do not even suggest that I have the whole of my community behind me. I dare say those who oppose this Bill may be reflecting the opinions of the masses, according to their lights, more accurately than I can do : but the fact is, the constitution is there, the House is there, and the procedure is laid down. The House did its best to call for opinions, once, twice. It referred the Bill to a Select Committee.

(At this stage Mr. President resumed the Chair.)

The divisions on this Bill having been what they have been what is the good now of saying that we still have not the country behind us in this matter ? What is the good of minimising the effect of this Bill ? I ask what is the good of doing that when you, and the most leading of you, all admit that you do not consider that child marriage does any good to the young girl ? Even my Honourable friend Dr. Moonje, President of the Hindu Maha Sabha, said that, for all purposes, of the physical welfare of a girl, the age of 12 is not the right age for marriage but other considerations made him plead for 12 and oppose 14. Now when this Bill is, as it is likely to be within a few hours, a fait accompli as far as this House is concerned, may I appeal to my friends, from whom it was my misfortune to differ, to sink all differences of opinion and try and help Government to see that, should this Bill bring about any hardship on any member of the society, such handicaps shall be as few as possible, and should this Bill be the right measure, then it will have Godspeed and all the benefits which some of us look forward to flow from it.

Nobody can say, Sir, that the discussion on this Bill has been any but the most exhaustive. Both sides have expressed their opinions freely and frankly, so why should we not give our whole-hearted support to this measure at this stage so that it may have a fair trial ? If, after all, the apprehensions of some Honourable Members prove to be correct, there is always room for an amendment, an amendment which, I am sure, the Honourable the Home Member will consider very sympathetically. But in the meantime, please do not put spokes in the wheel of this Bill, especially when you know that there is in this House a very substantial majority in favour of it. You will at least concede that, though some of you may differ from us, there are in the country, shall I say lakhs or may I be allowed to say, millions, who hold the same opinion on this subject as some of us hold. I appeal, therefore, Sir, to both sides of the House not to wail or weep, nor to run away with the idea of victory. Let us both feel a little diffident, but now that this Bill is going to be passed, let us do our best to see that it will be as great a success as it deserves to be.

Sir, my Honourable friend from Madras, Mr. Acharya, took me to the land of the Rishis. Not being conversant with that part of Indian history, I do not propose to disturb him in the dreamland which he painted before us. But I am very much reminded of what the Honourable Member from the Central Provinces, Dr. Moonje, said that even Chanakya, if I followed his authority, says that idealism is to be tempered with practicalism. May I venture to ask Mr. Acharya from Madras whether his idealism is being tempered by practicalism when he pleads what he did plead ? But that,

[Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas.]

Sir, was not the most serious part of what he said. What I am afraid rather irritated me was this. He said that those who happen to differ from him and support the Bill were suffering from, what Mr. Acharya chose to call, effects of enslavement. I am sorry I have to criticise the Honourable Member in his absence—he does not happen to be here now. I strongly protest against this allegation of “enslavement” hurled at us who vote for the Bill. Are we voting for this Bill in order to support the Government? No, we claim we have the support of Government because of the strength of our convictions. It is the other way round, Sir, in this case, and it is because that public opinion has been so clear and strong on this question that the Government have for once decided to follow public opinion. What is the good of saying that we are suffering from the effects of enslavement in this matter? May I venture to ask, Sir, if it is not Mahatma Gandhi who has pronounced himself in favour of something better and a stricter measure than this, as far as the age is concerned? Is he suffering from the effects of enslavement? Sir, is Mr. Vallabhai Patel, whom we affectionately call Sirdar Vallabhai Patel, suffering from that enslavement? Is Dr. Rabindranath Tagore, who has this morning given his opinion in the public Press and who has strongly supported the Bill,—is he suffering from enslavement? No, Sir. The word has been wrongly used, and I present it back to the Honourable Member from Madras. It is his enslavement of what he believes to be a Shastraic doctrine which prevents him from seeing independence amongst us who vote for this Bill.

Sir, one word more about Mr. Acharya and I will leave him. Mr. Acharya said, if I followed him correctly, that his ideal of society is that every girl should marry and bear children. I need not go to America and Europe; I need not think of the alleged vices there. There is enough in our own homes and in our own country to engage our fullest attention. An Indian father compelling an Indian girl to marry—what for? Not a Shastraic injunction. Selling of girls for monetary consideration, giving of girls aged 13 or 14 not to young men, but to grown up old men of 55 and 60—if Shastras say anything of that sort, I am not afraid to say that the India of today won't have any more to do with these Shastras; that they do not serve us adequately in our contemporary times. If Mr. Acharya thinks that, to allow a girl to select a husband of her own choice is outside the Shastras, I only wish to ask him why was there a Swayamvara for Sita? Perhaps, the Shastra that Mr. Acharya had in view and the Shastra of which I have a little knowledge are two different Shastras. I propose to stick to mine, and I can in all conscience say that this measure is the right measure for India today. It is not a day too early; on the other hand, any one day's delay deliberately made in putting this measure on the Statute-book would be a crime against the people of India. (Applause.)

Several Honourable Members : Let the question be now put.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : Sir, I am not amongst those who suspect the motives of any Member of this House. I recognise that every Member who has supported the Bill has done so with the best of motives, with the most honest of convictions. I do not blame the Members on the Government Benches for voting for the Bill merely under the command of the Honourable the Home Member. I believe that, if not all, most of them have got convictions that way. Nor do I blame Members on this side of the House who have supported the Bill, or accuse them of anything but the best and the most disinterested of motives in adopting the attitude that they have adopted. But I do deplore that, in dealing with a measure of this delicacy, in dealing with a measure which very seriously affects the tenderest interests of a large section of the people—that in dealing with such a measure the House should not have shown greater considerateness towards those who are to be affected by the Bill. I do not agree with my Honourable friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas in the description he has given of the supporters of this Bill. Those who have received the benefit of western education, or modern education, those who have understood the benefits of social reform, are already marrying their daughters and grand-daughters at late ages, not merely at 14, but beyond 14, at 15, 16, 17, 18, 20 and sometimes even beyond that. Not a single one of them will be led by the passing of this measure to change his attitude and to marry his or her daughters and grand-daughters early. There is therefore no reason to say that the passing of this measure with a lower age will be a disaster to the cause of social reform. What you have to think of, and what I submit is the most important thing to be thought of in this connection, is how the proposed measure will be received by those who have hitherto married, of the masses of men, particularly the most backward classes of our countrymen who have hitherto married their daughters at very tender ages, at ages much below 12, and by those who believe that they should marry their daughters and grand-daughters about the period that they attain puberty. It is these people whose cases have to be considered, and I submit with great regret that, in considering how the measure will affect these people, Members who have supported the Bill have, in my humble judgment—I say it with regret, I say it with respect, but I do feel it my duty to say it—that my Honourable friends who have supported this measure as it is, have not shown that considerateness towards those humble individuals who have for ages lived under the customs that obtain among them. They will be told tomorrow or the day after, or a week hence by publication in the Gazette of India, which will not reach them, which they will not hear about, that the marriages which they have performed for ages, for all the time that they can think of,—that those marriages are banned now, that if they marry their daughters and grand-daughters as they have been marrying them till now, they shall be handed over to the policeman and they will be prosecuted—those who marry and those who help to marry under the present law. I submit that is an aspect of the question which deserved more consideration.

I need not remind the House that I have from the beginning recognised the necessity of legislation on this matter. I have from the very beginning urged that the age should be fixed at 12. I am not going to argue the point over again; I have already submitted to the House all that occurred to me for consideration. I had not the good fortune of having been able to persuade Members of this House either on that side or on this that there was abundant reason for fixing the marriageable age at 12. But I do feel, in view of all the speeches that have been made today, and in view of the fact that the Bill is going shortly to be passed. I do feel it my duty not only to my countrymen outside who have no voice here, but also to my friends on either side of the House, to tell them to think yet, to pause yet for a moment, to think what the measure means to the bulk of those who will be affected by it. I am not advocating that the matter should be left where it is. I have only urged from the beginning that in a matter of this delicacy, which touches the most vital interests of the community, which touches the humblest of our people, we should proceed cautiously, we should hasten slowly. We should recognise the need of carrying the people with us. We are living in an age of democracy. We are anxious to have democratic institutions. This is a democratic institution. At this moment when a big change is going to be effected, when we are looking forward to a very big change in the constitution of the Government of the country, where the franchise will be exercised by millions more of people, as some of us hope, than it is exercised today, what is the principle upon which legislation should proceed? Should it be a disregard of the wishes of the people, an utter contempt for the wishes and the opinions of those who may be affected by a measure, or should it be a reasonable regard for them? Some of us may hold very advanced views. We are perfectly justified in advocating those views before our humbler countrymen in whom we are interested. But I ask any Member of this House to say whether he is justified in forcing by law his own ideas of social reform, of the age at which marriages should take place, down the throats of a large section of the people who do not yet believe in it as some of us do? To them it will not be a matter for arguing whether the Government and the Legislature was competent to force the change upon them. They know and believe that their marriage law is a personal law which has come down from ages, from generation to generation. They have lived under these laws and have both prospered and suffered under them. I grant that there has been much evil under the system of child marriages. I am as anxious as my friends on either side of the House that these evils should be done away with, but I am anxious that, in removing one evil, I should not be perpetuating another evil, and I feel that the Legislature, in exercising its authority in the matter of social reform, should carry the general consent of the community with it. The way in which this Bill has been pushed through, the way in which the various amendments intended to soften the rigour of the proposed law have been dealt with, the way in which the amendment to fix the marriageable age at 12 instead of at 14 was dealt with, the way in which even the amendment for prolonging by eight months the period at the end of which the Bill should come into force was rejected,—all this has filled me with sadness and I regret to say that in passing the Bill in the form in which it stands, this House is abusing the power of legislation which it possesses at this moment. I do not wish to say more. Though I am in favour of raising the marriageable age and am anxious to eradicate the evils of early marriages as much as any other man, it will be my duty to oppose the Bill as it stands.

Mr. V. V. Jogiah (Ganjam cum Vizagapatam : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I thank you, for the opportunity you have given me to express my views on a legislative measure of this importance, as I am very anxious not to give a silent vote but to make my position clear.

I have long felt that there are innumerable advantages, in a substantial rise in the marriageable age of girls. But I do not propose to dwell at any length on them as these are well known. I would say only one thing as that would bear any amount of repetition, and that is, it has the advantage of saving about 3 lakhs of Hindu girls from virgin widowhood.

From a health point of view also, there is a good deal to be said in favour of the Bill. On this subject also, I do not like to take up the time of the House as this aspect also has been often discussed and that time of the House as this aspect also has been often discussed and that threadbare. There is overwhelming medical opinion on the deleterious effects of early maternity below the age of 16 years. The figures collected by the Age of Consent Committee from hospitals and maternity and child welfare leagues support this opinion.

I know it is stated as the view of some people that the evil effects of early maternity and the large maternal death rate in this country are due to economic causes. On a matter like this we may consult our own experience. My experience is that early marriage and consequent early maternity have proved, even in many well-to-do families, a bane to society, and made child mothers fall a prey to diseases such as tuberculosis and nervous debility and the like.

The subject of child marriages mostly concerns women. I understand that the orthodox deputation from Southern India stated to His Excellency the Viceroy that the Age of Consent Committee made no genuine attempt to ascertain the opinion of Indian ladies and that 99 per cent. of them would shudder at the thought of post-puberty marriages. I am surprised to read this statement. I have a high regard for some of the members of the deputation, and with great deference. I say the deputation was under a great delusion in this matter. With due deference, I may assure the members thereof that most of our women who can lay any claim to any education or intelligence, are strongly in favour of the principle of this Bill. The members are probably not aware of the fact, that women's associations, all over the country, All-India-Women's Conference, with 22 constituent conferences, have, with one voice, denounced child marriages. It is a pity that there are no women representatives in this House, and I am sure, if there were women, in our places to-day, in this Assembly, instead of men, the principle of the Bill would have been supported by an overwhelming majority.

Coming next to the orthodox opinion about religion being in danger, Sir, I cannot agree with it. I am one of those who have a high regard for my religion and its injunctions, and I cannot believe that the Hindu religion which is one of the most liberal, tolerant and catholic of the religions of the world, can ever prohibit late marriages for our children.

The orthodox deputation, I am told, Sir, stated that Hindu Law was based on Dharma Shastras which in turn conformed with the Vedas, and hence, they were binding on all Hindus. I agree with them, and I say that Vedas are the bedrock of Hindu Shashtra and Hindu religion.

Let us therefore see what the Vedas, the authority of which is accepted by all Hindus, say on the subject of Hindu marriages with regard to age. Vedas consist of two parts : one is "Vidhis" or injunctions and the other is Veda Lingas or Vedic incidents.

What are stated in Veda Vidhis, or injunctions, are mandatory and we should invariably follow them. The injunctions, say, for instance,

[Mr. V. V. Jogiah.]

“ commit no adultery ”, “ don’t drink wine ”, and “ do your sandhya daily ” and the like.

“ Na para daraan gacchaith
Na suraan pibarth
Aharaha sandhyam wupaseeta. ”

What are referred to in Veda Lingas are that from which inferences can be drawn on certain matters, such as, ritual at marriages and recital of marriage mantras, from which inferences can be drawn. These Veda Lingas are next in importance only to Veda Vidhis or injunctions as authorities, and next to these Veda Lingas are Smriti texts which are Rishi Vakyaamsa, i.e., the sayings of Rishis. With respect to the marriageable age of girls, we have mention made in all the authorities, viz., Veda Vidhis, Veda Lingas and Smriti texts. The Rig Veda is considered the foremost of the Vedas. Let us therefore take Rig Veda first. The fourth mantra, of the 35th Sutra, in the second Mandala, of this Veda—which is the Vidhi portion, says :

“ Thasmeraa yuvati yo yuvanum
Murmujyamanaha Pariyenti apaha. ”

It means a “ Yuvati ” shall take as her husband a “ Yuva ” just as rivers take to the ocean, and “ Yuvati ” is defined in dictionaries and Shastras as : meaning a female under 16 years is called a “ Baalaa ” and one under 30 years a “ Yuvati ”.

“ Aashoda saath Baalaa

There is another injunction or Vidhi, in the same Veda which is the 3rd Mantra, 37th Sutra, and 55th Mandala, and reads as follows :

“ Vadhuriyam pathimichchyanthe yate. ”

It means this woman goes desiring a husband. This lends support to what is previously stated, because no female goes desiring a husband unless amorous desires spring in her, i.e., after puberty.

In Atharvana Veda it is said :

“ Brahmacharyena Kanyaa

meaning a Kanya who is celibate shall take a young man as her husband, and Vyasa Smriti defines ‘ Kanyaa ’ as,— “ Rutusaataa thu ya suddhaa

meaning one who attained puberty and is pure is called Kanyaa.

The fact that ‘ Brahmacharyena ’ qualifies “ Kanyaa ” must necessarily mean a woman who has attained puberty—otherwise, there is no meaning in saying, a Kanya who has been observing “ Brahmacharya ”, or celibacy.

There is, thus mention—nay sanction—if not a mandate—in favour of post-puberty marriages in the Vidhis or injunctions-portion of the Vedas which are mandatory.

In the Report of the Age of Consent Committee, I find that several other mantras are quoted from Rig Veda and Atharvana Veda, and I therefore content myself with those I have already referred to. One thing is certain so far as I was able to ascertain, and that is, that there is nothing in the Vedas advocating child-marriages.

Coming next to the marriage mantras, we find ample proof in favour of pre-puberty marriages. The word, “ Kanya Dana ” itself shews that the female given in marriage, is a Kanya, meaning, a woman who has attained puberty, as per the definition given in Vyasa Sutras already referred to. In the second part of the marriage ceremonies, Panigrahana, which includes Saptapathi, the most important part of the marriage ceremony, refers to solemn promises made by the bride and bridegroom, one to the other. These shew that they must have attained the age of discretion. In the Grahaprevasa Mantras, i.e., the third part of marriage, the bridegroom introduces to the bride, his parents, brothers, sisters, and other near relatives, and puts her in possession of the house and cattle which were the wealth in those days, and says : meaning, I give you the mastery over the house. In the last ceremony of marriage, Garbhadana, the mantras recited leave no doubt that the couple are entering on the phase of “ Samavesa ”, or sexual intercourse.

Coming to the Smriti texts, Yajur Veda says that Manu Smriti, is the best authority in Kaliyuga :

“ Ya dwai kiuchena Manuravatu

It seems whatever little Manu says, it is medicine, i.e., it is very important.

There is no question that its paramount authority is admitted on all hands.

And then Manu says to the father that a Kanya may remain at home all her life if necessary, but she should not be given away to a “ Gunaheena ”, a person devoid of virtues :

“ Kamaa maranaanthum thishtaith,
Gruhy Kanya Arthumapi
Na cha yenaam prayachchyaith

and he says to the daughter, if her father does not give her away for three years after puberty, she may choose a suitable husband, and to add force to what he said, he further stated that she or her husband could not incur any sin by reason of the absence of Kanyaa Dana by the father, one of the essential ceremonies of marriage.

There are other Smritis which favour post-puberty marriages. Vriddha Gautama says :

Kanyaacha akshatha yoni syaath,
Kuleena pitru mathruthaha
Braahmaa the shu vivahaishu
Parineethaa yadhaa vidhi
Sa prasisthaa vararohaa
Suddha yonchi visishyathai

That woman is the best for Brahma marriage who is a Kanyaa, and Akshatayoni (meaning one not having had sexual intercourse). This also shews that the best marriage is that of a Kanya, i.e., a woman who attained puberty.

[Mr. V. V. Jogiah.]

Another Smirti is "Jaimini Sutra", which says :

"Vindaitha Anagnikaam".

i.e., "A female who attained puberty should be married."

Gobhila Gruhyaparisista says :

"Rutumathi thu Anagnikaa

Thaam prayechchath Anagnikaam meaning 'Anagnikaa' is one who attained puberty ; that 'Anagnikaa' should be given in marriage."

Bruhat Parasara says :

"Sthriyaascha Purushasyaapi yatra

Wubhayaha bhavath Vruthihi

Thatra Dharmarthha Kaamaa syuhu

Tha dadheena paraspara yatcha thwami

Prasvaida subhagaam dhaa tha

Subham ichchen

Samudwahath."

Wherever a man and a woman love and woo each other, there is Dharma, Artha, and Kam.

One should marry a girl who had attained puberty.

Bodhayena Smriti also shews that pre-puberty marriage is admissible.

I do not wish to multiply quotations from other authorities.

I do not mean to say that there are no authorities in the Shastras against post-puberty marriages, but I submit that these are not so authoritative as those quoted by me from Vedas, Marriage Mantras, Manusmirti and the like.

I would ask this House, Sir, is it not meaningless in these circumstances to perform pre-pubescent marriages, chanting the same Vedic Mantras which contemplate post-puberty marriages ?

In this connection, I may state that I have long supported the late marriages and advocated the same both in the Press and on the platforms. I have encouraged post-puberty marriages both among my friends and in my family circle and my kith and kin. I and my family suffered on this account by reason of excommunication from society. So that, all my predilections, inclinations, and religious beliefs about the Shastric doctrines and advantages from it are in favour of the principle of the raising of the marriageable age.

Having given all my reasons why I am whole-heartedly in favour of the principle of raising the age advocated by the Bill, I must own that there are some features of the Bill which make me waver. One of the chief reasons is, the appeal made to me by the orthodox people. They say this. There is a large section of Hindus who sincerely believe that Shastras are against post-puberty marriage,—a view, Sir, which I am unable to accept. They feel that they would be committing a heinous sin by the performance of such marriages. They ask, where is any moral or other right, for a secular legislature to impose its will on them and tell them that they should disobey what they believe to be the injunctions of Dharma Shashtra and abjure their traditional religious belief or they would be treated as criminals and sent to jail. They say that they believe in the utility, nay sanctity, of early marriages as earnestly and with as much as, if not with more sincerity than the supporters of the Bill, and ask, is it right, is it just to punish them for their honest convictions and opinions. It is this aspect of the case and a few provisions of a reactionary character that made me waver and hesitate, in respect to the support which I had intended to give to this measure.

I hoped that the Mover and framer of the Bill and the Government which has been supporting the Bill, would bring to bear on their judgment greater statesmanship than they have exhibited on the present occasion, and try their best to proceed not only with great caution, but also on lines of least possible resistance in entering on this necessary and important but drastic and unpopular social legislation. Instead of doing this, they introduced into the Bill certain objectionable provisions, and thereby incensed and exasperated the people and alienated the sympathy and support of some at least of those who ardently desired to support a measure of this useful character. There are mainly three kinds of provisions to which I take objection. One is, the provisions introduced into clauses 5 and 6, and the like. For instance, clause 5 makes all those who perform, conduct, or direct child-marriages punishable with imprisonment or fine or both. This means the purohit, or the priest, who officiates at the marriage, is also included in the clause. The inclusion of the priest, who comes merely at the bidding of the master of the house to perform the marriage and earn thereby his daily bread, is to say the least, cruel. If he attempts to inquire into the age of the parties especially of the girl, he will be considered to be impertinent and stands a chance of losing his job. Next, to throw the burden on him to prove that he had no reason to believe that the marriage was not a child-marriage, looks to me as a piece of legislation which is altogether reprehensible. Again, in clause 6 (2), the presumption inserted with reference to negligent failure of parents or guardians of a minor to prevent a child-marriage, is equally objectionable. In effect, these clauses, threw the burden of proving innocence on the accused—a thing, which is unknown to any principles of criminal law and altogether subversive of the fundamental principles of criminal jurisprudence.

Sir, I appeal to the experience of my lawyer friends here and ask whether the placing of the burden on the accused does not mean practically a foregone conclusion of his guilt and conviction. I have some experience of criminal cases both in the Sessions Court and subordinate criminal courts, having been at the bar for over 35 years, conducting, among others, criminal cases, both as Public Prosecutor and as defence vakil. In my experience I never found an accused being acquitted on the strength of defence evidence except perhaps in 3 or 4 per cent. of the cases. It is taken by the judge almost in all cases that the defence evidence is of no consequence however reprehensible may be that practice. In this state of things the provisions referred to virtually mean conviction of the accused.

The second objection of mine relates to the penal clauses, especially those providing imprisonment. The punishment for violation of the offences is simple imprisonment for one month, fine of Rs. 1,000, or both in certain cases, and fine only of Rs. 1,000 or 500 in certain other cases. I am unable to subscribe to such heavy penalties at any rate at this stage of the country where this law will come to the villagers, even to most of the townsmen, as a great surprise. Most of the laws passed by us here, as a fact, are unknown to the vast majority of the people except to lawyers and a few others. In penalising marriages under a certain age what the Legislature has been doing, is to penalise, what the people in general consider, a legitimate right. In this state of the country great responsibility rests on the Government and the leaders of public opinion to bring home to the people a knowledge of the law and the consequences of its violation. India is a vast country consisting of innumerable towns and villages inhabited by persons full of illiteracy. Most people have not realised the gravity of the evils of early marriages and they believe in their sacred character. In my opinion it will take five years or more to give wide publicity to this change in the law.

Sir, the Age of Consent Act was passed about 40 years ago and yet the Report of the Age of Consent Committee says that the law is still unknown to most people. If in the present state of affairs, when people do not look upon early marriages as anything criminal or reprehensible, drastic and severe punishment, such as imprisonment and heavy fines be provided and imposed, I fear that instead of making the remedy effective, it may result in great harassment. The object can be obtained best by raising more the moral sense of the people than by nominal punishment for at least a few years until the law is made widely known, and thereby, illiterate people are to some extent at least educated, by means of prosecutions, which do not work great hardship if punishment by way of small fines be imposed and by propaganda such as the one suggested by the Age of Consent Committee in paragraphs 330 to 332 of their Report. In the meanwhile the mere payment of a nominal fine even will serve as a piece of education and a preliminary broadcasting of the knowledge of this measure. I know, Sir, this nominal punishment which I advocate will not check effectively the performance of early marriages. But it cannot be said that the prosecutions and small fines under the law will have no great moral and educative effect and will not reduce the number of early marriages to some extent.

Further there are a number of people who are in favour of post-puberty marriages and there are some who perform these marriages on the sly, i.e., without disclosing that puberty was attained. This legislation would help them. One other advantage is that, by reducing the punishment and making it nominal for some time, the chance of bringing offences under the law to justice will considerably improve. If even after all this propaganda the evil continues or the measure threatens to be a dead letter, then the Legislature may have recourse to severer punishment as in the contemplated legislation with respect to the Age of Consent.

These reasons apply not only against punishment provided in the Bill, but also with respect to sub-clause (3) of clause 1 in respect to the Act coming into force on the 1st day of April 1930. In order to give a wide publication to the Act it should be made to come into force after a sufficiently long time has elapsed so as to enable Government to broadcast the provisions of the Bill among the people by extending the period of bringing the Act into force by at least two years.

For these reasons and on account of certain mischievous provisions in the Bill, I am constrained to oppose the Bill as it is though I quite support the principle of the Bill. I know this attitude of mine will displease some of my best friends and disappoint those near and dear to me at home. But I am sorry I cannot support the Bill in its present form.

Several Honourable Members : The question may now be put.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : Sir, rising as I do at this late hour, I shall be very brief. The time has come for congratulations. I congratulate the Honourable Mover of this Bill in having got his Bill passed almost. He will excuse me—because I do not mean any disrespect to him—when I say that he, being a dissenter from the traditional religion, has really wreaked his vengeance upon the traditional religion by getting this Bill passed. I congratulate the Treasury Benches and the Honourable the Home Member and the European Section of this House for this reason that they have, by supporting this Bill, successfully deflected our activities towards the attainment of Swaraj by creating a civil war amongst all the communities and amongst several political parties of this country. I congratulate my politically-minded friends also in that they have, by their support of this Bill, really forced the Government to incur the odium of the masses, for I am sure they will certainly, in working out this Bill, necessarily incur the odium of the Indian masses. To that extent, I congratulate the politically-minded section of this House. Sir, the House may remember that the Honourable Mover wanted to make this a civil Bill and also to make the marriage invalid under certain circumstances. The Select Committee thrust upon him this unenviable position that this Bill must be a penalising Bill and that it must not only apply to Hindus and other sections for whom he demanded that the Bill ought to come into force, but also to my Muslim friends. And, Sir, it was the turn of the Government to add to the stringent nature of this Bill by voting down, as they did, every one of the amendments that we on this side of the House thought fit to move on this Bill either as necessary or reasonable. So, Sir, I am in the circumstances forced to remind the House of what occurred exactly 230 years ago in England. I am reminded, Sir, of that obnoxious Statute of 1699 which disfigured the English Statute-book. Edmund Burke in his Bristol address makes an excellent reference to this. Burke says that this legislation was enacted in 1699 by which the saying mass was forged into a crime (exactly the same thing that is happening here today), punishable with perpetual imprisonment. Burke goes on and describing the manner in which that Bill was passed says :

“ The party resolved to make the king either violate his principles of toleration, or incur the odium of protecting Papists. They therefore brought in this Bill and made it purposely wicked and absurd that it might be rejected. The then court party discovering their game, turned the tables on them and returned their bill to them stuffed with still greater absurdities, that its loss might lie upon its original authors. They, finding their own ball thrown back to them, kicked it back again to their adversaries. And thus this act, loaded with the double injustice of two parties, neither of whom intended to pass, what they hoped the other would be persuaded to reject.

went through the legislature, contrary to the real wish of all parts of it, and of all parties that composed it. In this manner these insolent and profligate factions, as if they were playing with balls and counters, made a sport of the fortunes and the liberties of their fellow creatures."

Sir, that exactly is the situation that is happening in this House now. Sir, I might also say that this Bill, as Burke said, really places a premium upon blackmailers, upon the real pests of human society who would voluntarily and willingly disturb household peace. There in England also, in the working out of that Act for sometime, all these ugly features were found to exist, and I rely on the extent of similarity for this reason because just as that ugly wicked Act of 1699 was repealed very soon after, I hope that this Bill also, when it becomes law will be repealed very soon.

Sir, in this connection my Honourable friend Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh said that, by raising the marriage ages of our children, our posterity would grow intellectually greater, morally greater and physically greater. I would reply to his remarks by reading a few sentences from the pamphlet which I hold in my hand :

"Early marriage, as we have it today, was in the recent centuries prevalent throughout the West, even England. It was prevalent in the ancient world. It has been in vogue in this country from time immemorial. If they talk of it as the cause of physical degeneracy and intellectual downfall, the following queries arise naturally : Are the modern peoples of Europe physically stronger than their ancestors of the 16th century ? Draw to your aid the findings of the 'The Royal Commission on Physical deterioration'. Are they morally better ? Take help from the Report of 'The Royal Commission on Venereal diseases'. Are they intellectually better—we mean, the average man of today, in spite of all advancement in science and art which is due to the endeavours of a few, not of the people at large ? Arthur Russel Wallace's 'social environment' will give a fair answer to this."

Sir, I might also say in this connection that it pains me very much to see that the Government, with all their might and weight, have supported this Bill. It really comes to this, that the Government are voluntarily wounding the religious susceptibilities of a vast section of people of this vast country. Can the Government afford, Sir, to trample under their feet the religious susceptibilities of a vast section of people of this vast country ? Let ex-King Amanulla of Afghanistan answer that question. (Laughter.) Sir, I might also be permitted to bring to the notice of this House that, soon after the speech made by the Honourable the Home Member, saying that there is a corroding evil and that the Government have set their faces against it by supporting this measure, already I see evidence, at least in my part of the country, of huge mass meetings held—because I speak from the telegrams and other communications that I have received—from the pundits, from the high priests of religion and from the Swamiji of the Ahobilam Mutt to which I have the privilege to belong. From His Holiness downwards, there have been mass meetings held at least in my constituency and elsewhere ; and they have already made known their determination to repel this lawless law and face the consequences of this pernicious religion-killing law. Sir, I oppose this motion.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Sir, I do not wish to take much of the time of the House during the Third Reading of this Bill, for whatever was necessary for me to say I tried to clear up at the time when I spoke when the Bill was being considered by this House. I feel it my bounden duty to submit before this House my observations about the Bill as it has emerged after the various clauses have been voted upon and when it is about to become the law of the land. My Honourable friend Mr. Jogiah has been pleased to show to you, one by one, the absurdities of all the clauses of the Bill that is going to be passed. I have observed before that this Bill does not indicate either much intelligence or good legislative draftsmanship. In fact the veriest junior would have drafted a better Bill, making safeguards and provisions better than what is contained in the Bill. I only wonder how the Honourable the Leader of the House could see his way to support a Bill like this. I am also sorry that the Honourable the Law Member too has not raised his voice of protest against the draftsmanship of this Bill. If this Bill is not repealed sooner or later, it will go down to after generations, and the Honourable the Law Member of the time would be deemed to be the author of this Bill. Who would care to remember Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda or the Honourable Sir James Crerar ? People will take it that the Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter was the author of the Bill.

Mr. President : He is a Member coming from Bengal. He is a Bengal man.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Yes, Sir. I feel a legitimate pride that Bengal intellect has to be requisitioned for higher intellectual work. (Interruption.) I am accustomed to interruptions from my Honourable friends. I do not care because my young friends have been carried away by their zeal for reforms. Let them have that pleasure. Sir, I listened to the speech of my Honourable friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas—he is not here at the present moment—I listened to his impassioned appeal very carefully, and I find that there was a genuineness in his conviction which led him to support this piece of legislation, which we on this side do not believe to be necessary. I quite sympathise with him, but I could not agree with him when he asked us to co-operate with the Government or co-operate in carrying out the intentions of this measure. My reasons are these, and I must make my own standpoint clear. I hear some of my young friends have alluded to my personal views. I do stick to those opinions. I am against early marriage, but I am opposed to any interference by the Legislature in social and domestic affairs. I believe we have no right to thrust our own view-point upon others, because one need not be so cocksure that he is infallible and the others are wrong. The mentality which leads one to flout others' opinions is intellectual slavery and nothing less than that.

Sir, I am also sorry that a book has been read before this House and upon which many of the supporters of this Bill have relied as their textbook, namely, the Age of Consent Committee's Report. But in every page of it, if you go through it, you will find misstatements, misreports. For one thing I can tell this House that it is mentioned there that I said that I was in favour of legislation. I say that I never said that, and it is a falsehood. (Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : "You wrote it.") Can you show the written memorandum to me ? I challenge anybody to show me from my evidence that I supported legislation. I know this evidence has been edited by interested individuals and the less said about them the better. But I do not think I deserve the treatment which has been meted out to me by Honourable Members of this House by attempting to misreport me and misinterpret my views. (A Voice : "You are hit because you hit others.") I do not know whether I have hit anybody save and except when my Honourable friend Mr. Nilakantha Das tried to elucidate what compulsion is, I tried to explain that compulsion by the example of a gentleman. If that has enraged him, let him have his say.

Sir, I have already said that my Honourable friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas has given us credit for our bona-fides, and we on our part do not deny them the credit for their bona-fides. But there is difference between us and it is this. You believe that when people want to reform society it is necessary that we should avail of all the powers that we have in order to make society accept what we believe ought to be social reform. I submit that, with this view of social reform we entirely differ; and if our hot-headed social reformer friends were a little patient, they would feel the same to be their moral defeat.

I have only observation to make about Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas's impassioned appeal when he introduced the words "land of the Rishis" not very seriously in his speech. We should not speak of our own motherland in that way and should not speak lightly of it. This ancient Aryavarta is the sacred land of the Rishis. People may say that they do not believe in it; but even my friend Mr. Jogiah, who is an out and out social reformer, quoted from Vedic texts. I do not also go with Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas when he quoted the opinion of three great men of this country at the present moment who are in the limelight. But he also might have seen that there are other great men who are against this measure. At least we have one of them on this side of the House, a patriot who has been serving his country from before we joined the political movement, whose name is honoured throughout the length and breadth of this vast continent, I mean our revered colleague, Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.

Sir, my friend Mr. Jogiah was pleased to observe that three lakhs of girl widows will be saved by this. Then why not introduce widow-remarriage? Why do you fight shy of that? These are matters of social reform, not of legislation. This Assembly is a political institution where we have come for political service and nothing else. My friend has been pleased to quote some opinion of the All-India Women's Association. Will it surprise my friend if I say that since some ladies convened some meetings sending their representations supporting this Bill, it has aroused also the orthodox masses and we have been receiving letter after letter from various associations and various meetings in Bengal led by ladies who ask us to oppose the Bill till the last. (A voice: "Where are those letters?") Do you want to see them? I received some of them only yesterday. (Laughter.) In one of those letters which I received yesterday there are certain observations about our educated ladies which I will not quote here, but I hope my friends will not be misled by those siren voices.

Then, Sir, somebody was saying that a cry has been raised of religion in danger and that that is a false cry. I do not know whether it lies in our mouth to say that religion is not in danger. We who have not studied the Vedas properly as we ought to do, and those who have not the same burning faith in the ancient religion of our forefathers, have no right to say when religion is in danger and when it is not. I beg to submit that we must do away with that issue. It cannot however be denied that there is a volume of opinion against this legislation: A handful of us who have taken to western methods of living do not represent either the masses or the best intellects among the orthodox classes. Let us not be deluded by that sense of overweening self-esteem. I was pained Sir, when my friend, the Honourable Mr. Jogiah, referred to people whom he characterised as the lower section of the community.....

Mr. V. V. Jogiah: I never said that.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: I hope I am wrong, but if I heard him correctly.....

Mr. V. V. Jogiah: I may assure you that you are wrong.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: I will take that assurance and shall say no more about it. I would ask practical-minded Members, as idealism and practicalism have been differentiated by Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, I appeal to them, is it possible to work this legislation when we have no birth register or marriage register? I hope I may be permitted here to refer to one instance. I had occasion to go to a friend of mine yesterday evening and I saw his daughter, and when her age was inquired into, I was surprised to hear she was sixteen, although she looked like an urchin of ten or eleven. (Laughter.) This is the difficulty in cases like these. It is all very well for you to laugh; I have been bearing all this, and I shall continue to do so, and you may laugh to your heart's content....

Mr. Jumnadas M. Mehta: You called the girl an urchin! (Renewed Laughter.)

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: I thank you for your correction. I admit I have very little knowledge of English literature and I bow to every one who has got deeper knowledge of that literature than I have, though I know what it is worth.

Let us now look at clause 2 of the Bill which defines a child. I do not know if here my knowledge of English will be challenged. Probably they are masters of English, but we know that, after 15 or 16, a boy is not called a child at all, at least in India. But here a child has been defined to be any one below 18 years, which is the age of majority. (Laughter.) Child marriage has been defined to be such a marriage. Then "minor" has been defined to be a person of either sex who is under 18 years of age. What was the necessity for this definition when we have a definition in the Indian Majority Act?

As regards clauses 3 and 4, you will see a definition of offence which is hardly needed.

In clause 6 we have punishment about which amendments were proposed but which of course were not accepted. After that we have matters of procedure. This is the law which you are going to enact.

Before I conclude, let me quote the words of a great saint from a letter, a copy of which has been sent to me and which I received in the hall this morning.

Mr. T. A. K. Shervani (Cities of the United Provinces: Muhammadan Urban): Is it a genuine copy?

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: Yes, it is.

"Hindu community following Varnashrama order possesses unique features of its own and which is extremely original from all civilised countries. They sincerely believe on strong philosophical grounds that the social and religious originality aims at the preservation of a particular spiritual race of humanity, the preservation of a particular helping factor in critical times when spirituality is in danger through social or political revolution and preservation of purity of blood and the mental structure of an original character. Never in the past a legislation was demanded to effect social reforms seriously affecting the religious sacrament of a particular faith. All such reforms were introduced without aid and interference of the rulers by social reformers and religious heads. Never was an attempt made for us to be controlled by an interference on the part of the Government. We are already fettered from all sides and this new fetter to the orthodox Hindus who are numbering more than two-thirds of the entire population, this fetter of the Child Marriage Bill, will make the country too hot to live in. If you have the slightest sense of responsibility, as I am sure you have, if you do not wish to act beyond the sphere of your legitimate activities then it is high time that you withhold your support to the Bill and try to get it rejected."

With these words, Sir, I once more appeal to the Members of this House to reject this Bill.

Mr. K. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar (Madras : Landholders) : Sir, you will perhaps remember the day when Lord Chelmsford held our Council meeting till one o'clock at midnight when the Rowlett Bills were passed. You and I were there together. Now you are presiding and if I solicit you to adjourn the House to another day in order to have a leisurely discussion on this subject, I do not know if you will listen to me. At that time, Sir, you and I took Lord Chelmsford to task for sitting late till one o'clock at midnight. If I should seek a favour at your hands now to adjourn the meeting for another day in order to have a fuller discussion on the subject and allow more speakers to have their say, I do not know whether you will concede this request. If you cannot do so I shall have my brief say on the subject now. Perhaps it is not your wish too to adjourn the sitting.

Sir, I was pained to read from the proceedings of the Assembly the other day that the Leader of the Opposition made a remark that he was so impatient with the opposition to the Bill that he would not even condescend to look into the papers and petitions of the people and the proceedings of public meetings that had been sent to him. Sir, I am very sorry that leaders should be so impatient as not even to care to look into the petitions and prayers submitted by the people who naturally thought that, if they appealed to the Honourable the Leader of the Opposition their grievances would be redressed. I am really pained, Sir, to see the impatience displayed by the Leader of the Opposition in this important matter, a matter which affects large classes of people, when he is at least expected to look into all the papers, prayers and petitions submitted to him by the people. Here are people who are impatient of those who have strong belief in their Shastraic texts and in their commandments. I have heard the other side also very patiently, and if at all I rise at this late hour, it is because of the deep sense of duty which has impelled me to say a few words on this matter of momentous importance, both in the interests of the Government as well as of the people. Sir, I can understand the Arya Samajists and others of their way of thinking who say that there is no such commandment in our Shastras and that the interpretation of the text is different, but I cannot have patience with those who hold that the texts and commandments in our Shastras are to be rigidly followed and that this Bill should be supported against the injunctions of the Shastras. Sir, I may tell the House what the law at present is

When the Right Honourable Mr. Srinivasa Sastri, about fifteen years ago, introduced an enabling measure in the Madras Legislative Council, it was understood that, if a South Indian Brahman performed a post-puberty marriage, that marriage would become invalid and that his progeny would not inherit the patrimony. It was in order to validate such post-puberty marriages that the Right Honourable Mr. Srinivasa Sastri sought to enact an enabling measure in the Madras Legislative Council. As the law stands at present, you will not admit a post-puberty marriage in a South Indian family, and the heirs of the parties contracting such a marriage will be denied patrimony. But now, what is the present measure before the House, Sir? It is not an enabling measure at all. Now, instead of having an enabling measure, our friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda is imposing on us a penal measure. This is reform with a vengeance!

Sir, as the House is aware, England offers a place to every school of thought. Even a revolutionary, even Mazzini sought asylum in England, but according to this Bill, one who sincerely believes that post-puberty marriage is against his religion has no place under the British Government; he is to be sent up to prison for obeying the commands of his religion, which he sincerely believes is the only right thing to do and disobeying it is sinful—Sir, apart from the merits or demerits of the Bill, is this the kind of law that you propose to enact? Should not such a man, who conscientiously believes that post-puberty marriage is against his religion, get protection at the hands of the British Government? Is he to be penalised by being sent to prison for obeying the commands of his religion, for believing in his religion? Sir, I do not propose to speak on the merits or demerits of post-puberty marriages. We Tamilians in the South have got a custom of betrothal in the first instance; it is not a nuptial ceremony. Betrothal does not mean the living together of the husband and the wife; it is only a sort of contract between the parent or guardian of the bride and that of the bridegroom. After the betrothal is over, when the girl attains puberty, she is sent to her husband to live as his wife. Now, Sir, I cannot see any logic so far in the present measure before the House. The other day our friend Mr. Shah Nawaz said that the contract becomes illegal if it is contracted between minors. It is not contracted between minors, because it is the father or guardian of the boy or girl that contracts a settlement. As between the ripe experience of my friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda (with his 70 years experience) and of his grand-daughter of 14 years, I think I should place greater reliance and confidence in the ripe experience of Mr. Harbilas Sarda in the selection of a husband for his grand-daughter than on that of a child of 14 years.

Then, again, Sir, Mr. Shah Nawaz spoke the other day of the illegality of the contract. Where is the illegality?...

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz : I never said that....

Mr. K. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar : It is the parent that enters into the contract. If a 14 years girl enters into a contract, can that become

7 P.M. legal? A parent can give a boy in adoption legally. Do you suggest that a parent of ripe experience, knowing men and things, knowing worldly affairs, is likely to make an undesirable contract, a contract which is likely to mar the welfare of his son or daughter? He certainly

[Mr. K. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar.]

Twelve years is the minimum age of marriage in England, and I cannot see how you can impose an age of more than 12 in India. India is a tropical country, and girls attain puberty two years at least before they attain puberty in England, and yet 12 is the minimum age fixed in England. That is not penalised in England and yet you are going to penalise the age of 12 in India. I beg of you not to do so in this country. As I have said, England could not give asylum to one who feels it his duty to marry his daughter before puberty! They are already building pavilions in the free French and Dutch territories where they can give effect to their honest convictions much better than in the British territories. If British India cannot harbour such conscientious and honest people, then it is far better that they colonise in foreign States and marry their girls there as their Shastras dictate. We have no Defenders of Faith. Pay don't be destroyers of it. It is said that Suttee was abolished and nobody raised a voice of protest against it. I do not pretend to defend Suttee. Now suicide is only another name for Suttee. I do not pretend to defend it, but what I say is this, that in one form or another human misery asserts itself and the ways of Dharma only lead to happiness ultimately. Please allow us to keep our customs in our hands. Dharma was not dictated by a malicious or vicious saint bereft of humane feelings. The test of a custom lies in the product. We have seen the products of post-puberty marriages and they are in no way better than a Srinivasa Iyengar of Madras or Seshiah Sastri of Pudukotta who were born of the girls wed as per the prevailing marriage customs. Apply the test to a custom and find out the result of the product thereof. I am yet to find any caste, following post-puberty marriages, more intelligent, more courageous or with better moral instincts than people belonging to castes of pre-puberty customs.

I must conclude my speech by reading some portions of an appeal addressed to the Government:

"You are incurring a great responsibility by lending your sympathy and support to this Bill, which is part of a movement for assimilating all Indian institutions, customs and manners to those of your own—which is all that reform amounts to in India today, be it social or political—but all under the force of blind imitation and without any calm consideration of how your institutions work among your own people. In doing so, you are also violating your solemn pledge of religious neutrality.

May I respectfully call upon you to accept my humble challenge that the system of late marriages is not at all a desirable system and that the one you now propose to penalise is not only scientific sociology, but is alone helpful to the Highest Purpose of Religion? Because, it first stabilises the family compact at an age when alone the seeds of sweet stability could be sown, and thereby enables the social, inter-social and universal compacts to be reared in logical and harmonious succession.

No doubt every custom requires suitable working conditions. The custom of pre-puberty marital settlement can be no exception. But the duty and responsibility of maintaining these conditions is with Government and if that Government should, in the first instance, let these conditions go into disrepair, and then set about to abolish the custom itself and even to penalise it, instead of repenting and making amends for its neglect—is it not a ridiculous phenomenon of which every decent Government should be ashamed? And if an unmothered woman is only half a woman and if that is the curse of the West today, is not the discouragement of that "husbanding" by the penalisation of a custom which alone ensures the universality of wife-ship for women, not yet exist.

Further, have you no responsibility in the matter? Is not the Government the physician to the body-politic? And does the doctor exist merely to make up and administer whatever medicine the majority, rather the most clamorous, of his patients prescribe? Or, has he the duty to diagnose the disease himself and prescribe the remedy on his own undivided and sacred responsibility? And to repeat, will you condescend to prove before an unprepossessed tribunal, acting according to judicial procedure:

- (a) that the system you are being urged so heartlessly and even heedlessly to penalise, is wrong and,
- (b) that the policy you have already announced with reference to it is either wise or courageous?"

With reference to the Members of the Assembly the appeal says:

"We granted you that suffrage, and we did so without even getting a pledge from you, as we might have done, namely, that you will not initiate or support any important measure without consulting those who put you in power and convincing the meanest among them of their need. Some of us now stand before you as candidates for a patient hearing, and you deny even that. Do not treat us lightly or reject us summarily. Whatever be our strength or status, give our representation your calm, leisurely and unbiased consideration.

Do you want the Indian woman to be a copy of the Western woman today? Are you not particular that the marriage state should be normal, and, if possible, the universal, institution for girls? The various forces at work, economic, intellectual, educational and political, are tending in that direction. Do you want to hasten that tendency and bring it to a culmination? And are you prepared, as you must be when marriage becomes an optional institution, to give girls the same rights of inheritance to ancestral property as the boys? This would mean encouraging girls to seek marriages less, which again would mean the greater need for treating girls in the same way as boys in respect of all matters, personal and public—thus constituting a vicious circle. Are you prepared for all that? Else, take note that the abolition of the puberty barrier for marriage, that is, the final marital settlement, not the consummation, will have that effect, whether you intend it or not.

Are you not aware that among people in the West, who do not insist upon marital settlement long before puberty or upon consummation immediately after it, and who, by dint of economic and political power, are the veritable lords of the creation today, the experiences of sex life have been such that a whole literature has grown up, which is most shocking to contemplate—but a literature based, unfortunately, on hard facts and stern logic—no fancy, no emotion.

To make a small extract out of many choice and apposite ones—Judge Ben Lindsey estimates that at least 45 per cent. of high school girls have had intercourse with men before they leave school.

If that is so among people who are now the master nations of the world, what should it be among us whose bodies are at their mercy and whose intellects are under their monitorship, if their system are introduced into our midst?

And if the author of the aforesaid literature and the deeper thinkers among those nations recommend the very systems of early marriage and early consummation, now in force among us, at least among some communities, and that on grounds of actual or a posteriori experience as well as of a priori sociological and scientific reasoning, is it up to us to ignore their hard earned lessons, to legalise the infraction of such a system having the force of law in the country, which we once attempted to do, and now to penalise its practice?"

As for the pre-puberty marrying communities already in India, there are the Hindus and non-Hindus whose physical and material condition in no way differs from that of the communities who contract post-puberty marriages—thus proving that the marriage system has nothing to do with whatever unsatisfactory conditions may exist in India today. I would ask you to note, Sir, that though the practice of the former is to make the marriage settlement only along with the marriage consummation, i.e., after puberty, their ideal is not of optional but of universal marriage for their girls, for which the parents and guardians are to bear the initial and the final responsibility. Further, the anxiety of the parents and guardians in those communities to get their girls married as early as they can, and the eternal fear they groan under that no danger to purity or reputation may occur to their unmarried grown-up girls is known to them, and is too obvious to need any special stressing. In concluding I have to repeat what I said before if you only permit me to do so.

An Honourable Member : Go on.

Mr. K. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar : If you are impatient, Sir.....

Mr. President : Order, order. Why did the Honourable Member use that expression? Has the Chair given any occasion for it?

Some Honourable Members : No.

Mr. President : Why did the Honourable Member use that expression?

Mr. K. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar : I have got only one sentence. (Laughter.)

Mr. President : The Honourable Member must withdraw that expression.

Mr. K. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar : I withdraw that word, Sir. Now I have only to add by way of conclusion that in a matter such as early marriage and early consummation regarding which well-informed and scientific opinion, even in the West, is tending towards a more and more favourable verdict, a Government that stands for the expression of the enlightened conscience of the day should hesitate to bring to bear the physical force of penal legislation. If, Sir, the familiar Shakespearean couplet may be quoted more by way of a reverent reminder than anything else :

" Oh, it is excellent

To have a giant's strength ; but tyrannous
To use it like a giant."

Several Honourable Members : The question may now be put.

Mr. President : I take it no other Honourable Member wants to speak now?

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : I move, Sir, that the question be now put. (Laughter.)

Mr. President : Mr. Sarda.

Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : Sir, I rise to say only a few words before the debate closes. I wish to tender my heartfelt thanks to all the Honourable Members of this House who have supported the Bill as well as to those who have opposed it—to the supporters because they have given me great help in seeing this measure pass into law, and to the opponents for the great courtesy they have shown to me. I fully believe, Sir, that those who have opposed the Bill are actuated by the same honesty of purpose and high sense of duty as those who have supported the Bill. I give them the credit for good intentions in the same way as I do to those who have supported the Bill. I must also, Sir, take this opportunity to thank the Honourable Mr. Shervani and Mian Shah awaz for the great support that they have accorded to this measure on behalf of the community which they, along with other Members, represent in this House. Sir, I thank Honourable Members once more. With these few words I commend this measure to the favourable decision of the House.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the Bill, as amended, be passed."

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Tuesday, 24th September, 1929.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

GRIEVANCES OF THE POSTAL STAFF EMPLOYED IN CUTCH STATE.

749. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have received representations from the postal staff employed in the Cutch State limits, on the subject of their grievances regarding the present policy of the Government, reducing substantially the compensatory allowance which was granted to these officials since 1914, and raised periodically since with a view to save them from heavy loss caused by the difference between the exchange rate for Cutch coins, as stabilised by Government and that actually prevailing in the market ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) is in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what action has been taken in the matter ?

(c) If the answer to part (a) be in the negative, do Government propose to consult the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, on this question ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). I understand that representations addressed to Government from the postal staff employed in Cutch have recently been received by the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs. They will be considered by Government on their receipt from that officer.

(c) The representations, together with such recommendation as the Director General may make when forwarding them to Government, will receive due consideration.

COMPENSATORY ALLOWANCE TO EMPLOYEES OF BRITISH DEPARTMENTS IN CUTCH.

750. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it a fact that all the British Departments in Cutch, such as the Political Agent's office, Ecclesiastical Department and the Post Office used to get a compensatory allowance until lately or are still getting it (with the exception of the Post Office), solely on the basis of Kories 380 for 100 rupees—the rate fixed permanently by the British Government in 1870, and that, the Postal Department is the only one now singled out for a departure from the established policy ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Political Agent's Office in Cutch was abolished in 1925. The officials employed in that office, when it was in existence, were not given compensatory allowance on the basis of kories 380 = Rs. 100. They were paid in kories obtained through the Cutch Durbar as a special concession. Of the Ecclesiastical Department, there is only one official employed in Cutch at present, namely, the caretaker of an old cemetery. The compensatory allowance for post office officials was formerly fixed on the basis of 380 kories = Rs. 100. This basis has now been abandoned.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : What is the present basis ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : It is a varying scale.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Varying on what ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : On the comparative cost of living.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the observations of the employees on the question of exchange ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I think, Sir, I have already said that the representations of the employees when they reach Government will receive due consideration.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Do Government realise that the allowance is based on exchange and that there is no fixed salary for these officers ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have no desire to pursue the discussion on the floor of this House. I have already said that I understand certain representations have been made by the employees and that when these representations reach me they will receive due consideration.

COMPENSATORY ALLOWANCE TO EMPLOYEES OF THE POST AND TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT IN CUTCH.

751. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Are Government aware that the basic principles on which the Cutch compensatory allowance was originally sanctioned in 1914, and was deliberately raised year after year, till 1928, have always rested on the " difference between the standard rate of exchange, viz., Kories 380 for 100 rupees and the prevailing exchange rate " ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state whether any expert inquiries on the spot were made into this matter before launching the present policy of suddenly reducing the Cutch allowance by 65 per cent., and setting aside the fundamental rule invariably pursued so far ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether the list of commodities the prices of which as they prevail in Bhuj are ascertained by the Government comprises all the items of expenditure which an officer or employee is always called upon to meet ?

(d) If the list does not include inevitable items of expenditure such as medical aid, educational facilities for children, domestic labour, transport, travelling, recreation, etc., etc., will Government be pleased to state whether they have considered the question of restoring immediately the said allowance to its former level, to the officials of the Post and Telegraph Department ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) An enquiry was made by one of the Assistant Postmasters General, Bombay. The result of the enquiry was carefully examined by the Government of India, who decided that the allowance should be fixed at 33 per cent. of pay and travelling allowance, with effect from the 1st January, 1928. As a matter of fact, this answers more fully the supplementary question which the Honourable Member asked me a little time ago. A further examination of the position was made by Government during 1928, and the allowance has been fixed at 25 per cent. with effect from the 1st January, 1929.

(c) The commodities, the prices of which were examined, were those staple commodities which ordinarily enter into the average domestic budget of the class to which the officials concerned belong.

(d) It was unnecessary to include the items of expenditure mentioned by the Honourable Member. All that was needed was a comparative basis and this was ensured by the enquiries made with regard to certain essential commodities. Government do not consider that the formula adopted by them is defective. But, as I have already said, any representations made by the employees affected will receive due consideration when these representations reach Government.

COMPENSATORY ALLOWANCE OF POSTAL OFFICIALS IN CUTCH.

752. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Are Government aware of the speech made by His Excellency the Viceroy, Lord Irwin, on the occasion of his last visit to Cutch State, in November, 1927, wherein His Excellency stated in unequivocal terms the devastating effects of a high exchange ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, were any expert inquiries made by Government to prove that the depreciation of rupees owing to the high exchange value of the Kories in Cutch has no genuine bearing on the economic life and prosperity of persons resident in Cutch, who earn their livelihood in rupees ? If so, what ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state how, and with what change of circumstances, very soon after the said authoritative statement by His Excellency the Viceroy, the Government of India found justification for sanctioning a cut of 65 per cent. at a stroke, in the Cutch compensatory allowance, granted to Postal officials in Cutch ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) & (c). The Honourable Member is referred to the answers given to parts (b) to (d) of his question No. 751 to which I have just replied.

RULES REGARDING THE INTERPRETATION OF NON-ASIATIC DOMICILE.

753. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) What were the rules regarding the interpretation of " non-Asiatic domicile " for purposes of determining the eligibility of officers for certain benefits under the Lee Commission recommendations on the date when these recommendations were first given effect to ?

(b) Has any alteration been made in the said rules since ? If so, when, why, and to what effect ?

(c) Is it a fact that officers who were not eligible for the aforesaid benefits under the original rules, have been made eligible under the later rules ?

(d) If the answer to part (c) be in the affirmative, what is the number of officers in the different services belonging to this category?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) A copy of the rules as they originally stood has been placed in the Library of the House.

(b) Yes. In October, 1927, rule 10 of these Rules was amended by the Secretary of State as the original rule was defective. The amended rule will be found in the reprint of the Rules issued in 1928, a copy of which is in the Library.

(c) Yes, some officers who were ineligible for the concessions under the original rules became eligible for them under the amended rules.

(d) Full information is not available and will have to be collected. This will be done and the information supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

SCALES OF SIMLA HOUSE RENT ALLOWANCE.

754. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) What necessitated the creation of two scales in the Simla House Rent Allowance?

(b) Do all the new entrants in the Government of India get the new rate of allowance which is much higher than the old rate?

(c) Have the private landlords fixed their rates of rents according to the grant of allowance to individuals?

(d) Are those clerks who are under the old rules of the Simla House Rent Allowance getting private houses cheaper than the newly appointed men? If not, what is the reason for such discrimination?

(e) Do Government intend to do away with this and let only one scale prevail?

(f) If the reply to part (e) be in the negative, what are the reasons?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) & (b). The necessity for the creation of an alternative scale is explained in the Home Department Memorandum No. F. 887-22-Ests. of the 11th March, 1924, of which I shall be glad to send the Honourable Member a copy if he so desires.

(c) & (d). Government have no precise information in the matter.

(e) & (f). Government do not at present propose to take the action suggested; but the Memorandum, already referred to, contains a provision regarding the review of the orders at intervals and the desirability of such a review will be considered in due course.

OLD AND NEW RULES OF SIMLA HOUSE RENT ALLOWANCE.

755. *Sardar Kartar Singh : Is it a fact that if a clerk, who is under the old rules of Simla House Rent Allowance, is allotted a Government quarter, he has to pay something from his own pocket? If so, what is the justification for that?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : It may happen that a clerk who elected to remain under the old rules of the Simla Allowances Code might have to pay in rent something over and above the allowance received. On the other hand it also happens that sometimes the rent paid is less than the allowance received. In any case it was open to all concerned to elect the new rules if they so desired. Under these rules they would receive either quarters free of rent or an allowance which would in no case exceed the rent actually paid for their quarters.

The allowances under the old rules was a fixed sum irrespective of the rent actually paid.

* HOLIDAYS FOR CLERKS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA OFFICES.

756. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Will Government please place on the table all the correspondence in respect of grant of more holidays in the Government of India?

(b) Is it a fact that this question has been under consideration for long?

(c) Why do Government not let the Government of India clerks enjoy as many holidays as the Local Government's clerks do?

(d) What are the difficulties that stand in the way of Government in removing this inequality?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Government do not think that this is necessary.

(b) The question has been raised from time to time.

(c) and (d). The matter is under consideration and Government hope to arrive at a decision after the present Session is over.

DELAY IN THE ALLOTMENT OF QUARTERS IN NEW DELHI.

757. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the requirements of the Departments of the Government of India for Delhi and Simla quarters are called for by the 1st of July at the latest?

(b) Is it a fact that in Simla allotment of quarters for the following year is received in the beginning of August while that of Delhi quarters is received in the end of September?

(c) Is it a fact that the Estate Officer, Delhi, intentionally delays so much to avoid any sort of representations over this point?

(d) Are Government aware that those who fail to get Government quarters do not get sufficient time to arrange for their accommodation at such a late hour?

(e) Are Government aware that in certain cases they have to leave their families behind in Simla and take them down when they have made their arrangements and thus have to incur double expenses?

(f) In case it is not feasible to send allotment early, do Government propose to consider the advisability of calling for the requirements earlier than hitherto and send the allotment by the first week of August? If not, why not?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The Departments of the Government of India have to intimate their requirements of quarters for officers at Delhi by the 1st July, and at Simla by the 1st September; and in the case of clerks by the 1st July in both cases.

(b) The allotment of quarters in both places is made as soon as possible after the above dates.

(c) Government have no reason to believe that there is any deliberate delay.

(d) and (f). Government have received complaints about the late allotment of quarters in Delhi and are now considering the question of altering the date for the submission of applications from 1st July to 1st June or earlier. This will give unsuccessful applicants more time to make arrangements for private accommodation.

(e) Government have no information.

HOURS OF WORK OF RUNNING STAFF ON RAILWAYS.

758. *Mr. V. V. Jogiah : (a) Is it a fact that Government propose to exclude from the contemplated legislation to introduce a 60 hour-week and weekly rest-day, the entire running staff on Railways who are paid on an overtime and mileage basis on the ground that any restriction on their working hours would curtail their emoluments ?

(b) Are Government aware that this caused widespread discontent in the running staff ?

(c) Do Government propose to see in connection with this legislation that overtime is not made obligatory on the running staff and that it is left to them to choose whether they will have rest or money ?

(d) Is it a fact that it is proposed to exempt the staff, whose work is essentially intermittent, from the benefits of this scheme ?

(e) Is it a fact that station masters are considered for this purpose as officers doing duties of an intermittent character ? Is it a fact that station masters are required to be on duty always at the station ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) Yes, at the commencement and pending further examination of the question.

(b) On the contrary Government understand that their decision is welcomed by the majority of the running staff.

(c) There are serious practical difficulties in bringing only a part of the running staff under the proposed rules ; but the point raised by the Honourable Member will be considered.

(d) Yes.

(e) The work of station masters at some stations is essentially intermittent and it is proposed to exclude such staff from the rules relating to the 60 hours a week duty and the weekly day of rest. Station masters whose work is not essentially intermittent will come under the rules.

FREE RAILWAY PASSES GRANTED TO THE TEA CESS COMMITTEE.

759. *Mr. V. V. Jogiah : (a) Is it a fact that free 1st and 2nd class passes are granted to the representatives of the Tea Cess Committee who go about on the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway lines ? If so, what is the object in granting these free passes ?

(b) Are these free passes granted with the object of promoting the sale of any particular brand of tea, or is it with the object of popularising tea-drinking on the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway line ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) & (b). 10 representatives of the Tea Cess Committee are granted passes over sections of the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway. The Agent, Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway, reports that the reason for the grant of the passes was to improve the supply, preparation and serving of tea for the benefit of passengers.

ABSENCE OF RETURN TICKETS ON CERTAIN RAILWAYS.

760. *Mr. V. V. Jogiah : (a) Are Government aware that no return tickets are issued on the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway ?

(b) Are Government aware that no six or eight-monthly return tickets are issued on the Bengal Nagpur Railway ?

(c) Is it a fact that no week-end return tickets are issued on the Bengal Nagpur Railway, the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway and the South Indian Railway ?

(d) If the answer to parts (a), (b) and (c) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to direct the issue of return tickets, ordinary, six or eight-monthly, and week-end on the above railways ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Certain return tickets at reduced fares are issued on the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway, the details of which are given in the Time Table of that Railway.

(b) Yes.

(c) Week-end return tickets are issued on all these railways (the Bengal-Nagpur, Madras and Southern Mahratta and South Indian Railways) between certain stations.

(d) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given by Mr. Parsons to a similar question No. 758, asked by Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha on the 25th February, 1929, in the Legislative Assembly.

REMODELLING OF ANARA STATION AND CONSTRUCTING STAFF QUARTERS ON THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY.

761. *Mr. V. V. Jogiah : (a) Is it a fact that the remodelling of the Anara Station yard and constructing staff quarters on the Bengal Nagpur Railway was undertaken at a cost of Rs. 40 lakhs ?

(b) Is it a fact that the work was entrusted to contractors, but no good and valid agreements were drawn up between the contractors and the Railway Company ?

(c) Were there any disputes between the contractors and the Railway authorities as to the rates fixed for the work or the satisfactory progress of the work or both ?

(d) Did the Railway Company thereupon pay the contractors Rs. 67,000 more than the agreed rates and ask them to go ahead with the work ?

(e) Did the contractors not accept this sum and claim heavier compensation ?

(f) Was a retired railway engineer appointed as an arbitrator by mutual consent to settle the disputes between the parties ? If so, was the appointment made with or without the knowledge or sanction of the Railway Board ?

(g) Is it a fact that the arbitrator gave an award for Rs. 4,64,000 and that the Bengal Nagpur Railway Administration filed a suit disputing the award and ultimately entered into a compromise by paying Rs. 3,80,000 to the contractors?

(h) Is it a fact that the arbitrator was of opinion that the delay in the execution of the work and all the trouble was due to faulty planning, organisation and control of the Railway?

(i) Has the Administration inquired into the matter as to whether the arbitrator's opinion is correct? If it is correct, what steps were taken or are proposed to be taken to prevent a recurrence of similar mistakes in the future?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The cost of the works was Rs. 34½ lakhs.

(b) The work was entrusted to a contractor on a schedule of rates agreement which is understood to be a proper legal document.

(c) Yes.

(f) Yes. The sanction of the Railway Board to put the case to arbitration was not applied for.

(g) Yes. The Railway Administration took legal opinion and were advised that there were errors of law apparent on the face of the award and that it ought to be set aside, but no suit was filed, as meanwhile a compromise was arrived at.

(h) Yes.

(i) Yes. The Administration did not accept the opinion of the arbitrator as correct, but Government are not quite satisfied that the delay in carrying on the work referred to by the arbitrator was not a cause of part at least of the final payment that had to be made to the contractor. Government have asked the Administration to take active steps to tighten up control and prevent a similar occurrence in future.

BLOCKAGE IN PROMOTION OF RAILWAY EMPLOYEES.

771. *Mr. V. V. The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Government of India publish annual statistics and notes on the working of the Indian Factories Act and the Workmen's Compensation Act. Copies of these publications will be found in the Library of the House. The Government of India do not receive any reports on the working of the Employers' and Workmen's Disputes Act or the Apprentices' Act. In the case of the Indian Trade Unions Act, which came into force on the 1st June, 1927, reports were received from the Local Governments for 1927-28, but owing to the scanty material available from these reports, it was considered that there would not be any advantage in publishing a consolidating report. The Trade Disputes Act came into force only on the 8th May, 1929, and the question of a report on its working does not yet arise. The Employers' Liability Act, 1880, is a British Statute which does not apply to India.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Commission's schedule of subjects and covering letter have been forwarded to all Departments concerned with State industrial establishments. They have been asked to submit their replies direct to the Commission by the 25th September, 1929. It is not the intention of the Government of India to prepare a consolidated statement dealing with item No. 123 of the schedule of subjects. The latter part of the question does not arise.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR REPLYING TO QUESTIONS CONCERNING THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DEPARTMENT.

776. *Mr. Muhammad Rafique : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if any arrangements have been made for replying to the questions concerning the Legislative Assembly Department ? If so, what arrangements have been made ?

(b) Is it a fact that questions concerning the Legislative Assembly Department have been asked ? If so, will Government be pleased to state who will reply to the questions ?

(c) If no arrangements have been made, do Government propose to consider the desirability of making some arrangements at an early date ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a), (b) and (c). Such questions concerning the Legislative Assembly Department as could be answered only by the Secretary of the Assembly have been ruled out by the Honourable the President ; but the Secretary has been directed that any Member desiring to have any information on any matter concerning the administration of the Department will be entitled to get such information on his writing to the Secretary. As regards questions which could be answered by the Leader of the House or any other Member of Government, necessary arrangement has been made, and such questions have been admitted by the President and answered on the floor of the House.

PAY OF LOWER DIVISION CLERICAL APPOINTMENTS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA SECRETARIAT AND ATTACHED OFFICES.

777. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : (a) Is it a fact that lower division clerical appointments in the Government of India Secretariat and attached offices carry respectively a scale of pay Rs. 100—8—300—25—350 and Rs. 75—4—115—4—155 ?

(b) Is it a fact that some of the candidates who were declared by the late Staff Selection Board qualified for lower division clerical appointments in the Secretariat were provided for in the lower division of the attached offices instead of the Secretariat ? If so, why ?

(c) How many such candidates are still working in the lower division of the attached offices, and since when have they been there ? Why have they not so far been provided for in the Secretariat ? Is it a fact that persons, who similarly qualified themselves long after such candidates did, have all been provided ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Public Service Commission have refused to keep the names of such candidates who have attained the age of thirty on the list of candidates still to be provided for in the lower division of the Secretariat ? If so, who else then will provide such candidates with the appointments for which they are duly qualified ?

(e) Do Government realize the financial loss to which such candidates have so far been put and will be put so long as they continue to remain in their present places ? Are Government going to compensate them for this loss ? If not, why not ?

(f) What steps do Government propose to take in the cases of such candidates and when ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Yes, except that the scale in most attached offices rises to Rs. 175 per mensem.

(b) Yes. There have not been enough vacancies in the Secretariat, and consequently candidates have been offered the opportunity to accept vacancies in attached offices instead.

(c) About 22. I am not able to say how long they have been employed in attached offices. The reason why they have not been provided for in the Secretariat has been stated in answer to part (b).

The reply to the concluding portion is in the negative.

(d) Yes. There is no bar to such candidates obtaining appointments in the Government of India Departments provided the sanction of the Head of the Department is obtained; but on the other hand they have no claim to appointments.

(e) Candidates who fail to secure appointments in divisions for which they are qualified are no doubt worse off than if they had secured them. In view of the fact, however, that all candidates were definitely given to understand, before they entered for the examination, that no guarantee of ultimate appointment could be given, no claim to compensation arises.

(f) Does not arise.

Are Government aware that these books contain attacks on Islam?

(b) Is it a fact that the book No. (1) in part (a) was purchased from the Prakash Pustakalaya, Ajmer, named after Mr. Prakash Chandra, son of Lala Kanahiyya Lal, the then Headmaster of the Normal School, Ajmer?

(c) Is it a fact that the book No. (2) in part (a) was purchased from the Arya Sahitya Mandal?

(d) Does the responsibility for the purchase of the books mentioned in part (a) rest with Lala Kanahiyya Lal, the then Headmaster of the Government Normal School, Ajmer, now a Government pensioner? If not, who is responsible for the said purchase?

(e) Do Government propose to take any action against the officer responsible for the purchase of the books mentioned in part (a)?

(c) Was the book purchased from the Arya Sahitya Mandal?

(e) Do Government propose to take any action against the officer responsible for the purchase of the book?

(f) Do Government propose to order the removal of the book from the library of the said school?

CONDITIONS FOR NATURALISATION IN THE CASE OF DR. SUDHINDRA BOSE.

780. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) With reference to my starred question No. 164 of the 5th September, 1928, regarding the ban placed upon Dr. Sudhindra Bose, is it a fact that the Home Department (Political) of the Government of India wrote to Dr. Bose on the 15th August, 1928, that one year's continuous residence in India before the date of application for a certificate of naturalisation is necessary?

(b) Is it a fact that, last year, when Dr. Bose visited India, he was not allowed to stay in this country for more than six months, although he applied to stay here for a longer period? If so, will Government please state how it is possible for Dr. Bose to comply with the condition laid down in the letter of the Home Department referred to in part (a) above?

(c) Is it a fact that another condition laid down in the letter under reference was "residence in His Majesty's Dominions for a period of four years within the last eight years before the application (for naturalisation) is made"? If so, are Government aware that Dr. Bose is a Professor in the State University of Iowa (United States of America), and it is not possible for him to comply with this condition without throwing up his appointment?

(d) Is it a fact that the last condition laid down in the Home Department letter to Dr. Bose was that the Government of India must satisfy themselves that the applicant "is of good character", before a certificate of naturalisation can be granted to him?

(e) Are Government prepared to grant facilities to Dr. Bose to come and stay in India for a period long enough to satisfy the conditions laid down in the Home Department's letter referred to in (a) above?

† For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 778.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a), (c) and (d). A letter was addressed to Dr. Bose on the 13th August, 1928, in answer to a request for information as to how he could be naturalized as an Indian citizen. The conditions stated are those required under the law as contained in the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, 1914.

(b) It is not a fact that Dr. Bose applied for permission to remain in India for more than six months. He made a request that, when he next came to India, he should be allowed to do so without restriction. The second part of this question does not arise.

(e) The question will receive careful consideration if and when Dr. Bose applies for the facilities referred to and he has been informed accordingly.

(d) Is it a fact that, since then, Government have further reduced the number of nominated Moslems by one?

(e) If the answer to part (d) is in the affirmative, will Government please state to what community that seat has been allotted and whether that community was not already represented on the Court?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) 108.

(b) None, but the Governor General in his capacity as Chancellor of the University nominates fifteen members of the Court.

(c) Yes.

(d) and (e). Government have no power of nomination.

CHARGES OF BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION AGAINST CERTAIN OFFICERS OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

783. *Mr. Abdul Haye : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. R. K. Sidhva, a member of the Local Railway Advisory Committee, Karachi, addressed a circular letter some time ago to certain officers of the Railway Board, the Agent and certain other officers of the North Western Railway charging certain officers of the Karachi Division, including the Divisional Superintendent, with corruption and bribery, and stating that he was prepared to substantiate his allegations?

(b) Was any action taken on Mr. Sidhva's letter and was he afforded any opportunity to state the definite charges and prove them? If so, with what result? If not, why not?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Government have not seen the letter referred to, but have seen a letter from Mr. Sidhva which appeared in the Daily Gazette, Karachi, of December 4th, 1928. This contained only general allegations and Government were advised that it was not actionable.

Sir Denys Bray : (a) and (b). The only news agencies that I have been able to trace as having been given and having been refused advance copies of the Honours List are the Indian News Agency and the Free Press of India, respectively.

(c) and (d). The collation of similar information regarding newspapers would involve research wholly disproportionate to the value of the result, but no newspaper as such receives an advance copy at present.

(e) Ordinarily yes; but in this very special case of the Honours List, which is of course not the sole property of the Government of India, it has been thought advisable to restrict the advance copy system to the narrowest limits compatible with due publicity.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know why the application from the Free Press of India has been refused?

Sir Denys Bray : I think my Honourable friend will find the answer in my reply under (e).

(b) How many more Government orders have been issued since then for filling up those appointments?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state why so many different orders were issued—one superseding or modifying the other?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) With effect from the 1st September, 1927, the pay of the lowest selection grade of the clerical service in the Post Office was raised to Rs. 160—10—250 and from the same date the same rate of pay was sanctioned for posts of Town Inspectors in First Class Head Offices.

(b) Two, viz., 11-P.T.E., dated 15th September, 1927, and 14-P.T.E., dated 2nd October, 1928. (c) The reasons for issuing these orders are stated in the letters, and I do not propose to take up the time of the House by reading out the relevant extracts from them.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The only Government orders issued are the two which I have mentioned.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Does the Honourable Member contend that what I have mentioned above are not Government orders?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have no knowledge of them. I have already said that there are two Government orders issued in the case.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it not true that there was an order issued on the 11th February from the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs in addition to the orders mentioned by the Honourable Member?

Mr. President : The Honourable Member has already said that he does not know of any other orders.

DUTIES OF TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES IN FIRST CLASS HEAD OFFICES

793. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Is it a fact that Town Inspectors' appointments on selection grade pay in First Class Head Offices are really new appointments with additional duties and responsibilities?

(b) Is it a fact that the duties of Town Inspectors in First Class Head Offices, before the new selection grade appointments were created and the pay was raised, were not identical with the duties of Town Inspectors now and that it was only after the pay was raised that the duties were made identical with those of Sub-Divisional Inspectors? Will Government state in detail the difference between the two sets of duties before the creation of the new appointments?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Technically they are new appointments with additional duties and responsibilities. But, really they are old appointments with certain duties added and pay increased.

(b) When the pay of the appointments of Town Inspectors was raised, it was intended that they should be required to perform all the duties allotted in the rules to Inspectors of Post Offices. Owing to the discretionary power allowed to Heads of Circles under the Post Office Manual in the case of the Town Inspectors of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay and Rangoon, it is possible that some of these at any rate used to exercise larger powers than those specified in the chapter of the Manual dealing with Town Inspectors. The Director General has for some time been in correspondence with Heads of Circles in regard to a clear definition of the powers of Town Inspectors, and as soon as a settlement has been arrived at in the matter, a statement detailing the duties of Town Inspectors in future and in the past will be supplied to the Honourable Member.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Why does the Honourable Member say that they are technically new appointments?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Because they are technically new appointments. I am afraid I cannot paraphrase that expression.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : May I draw the attention of the Honourable Member to the order of the 15th September, 1927, in which it is said "and the fact that they are in effect newly created posts"—not technically : in effect means substantially?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : No, Sir. In fact the words "in effect" there have the same sense as the word technically, used by me in the course of my reply.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Words have apparently changed their meaning in the Industries and Labour Department. But what I wanted was a reply as regards the two sets of duties before the creation of the new appointments—not what Government subsequently might do by manipulation. The Honourable Member has not replied to that question.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I refuse, with your permission, Sir, to answer a question which contains an insinuation of manipulation.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : There is no insinuation in the question itself ; there is an insinuation deducible from the reply that the Honourable Member gives ; the Honourable Member has not replied to my question.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member would be well advised to move a Resolution on the subject. I have been noticing for some time past that the Honourable Members have been debating this question. They are not entitled to do so by means of questions and answers. There should be a Resolution for that purpose.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : But that is the fault of the Department, not mine, if they cannot give a proper reply. Sir, it is no use asking questions if replies are not given.

HOLIDAYS FOR POSTAL SIGNALLERS.

801. *Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the postal signallers are not allowed to enjoy the postal holidays ?

(b) Is it a fact that they work exactly like departmental telegraphists on postal holidays, but that they are not remunerated like the departmental telegraphists ?

(c) Is it a fact that their non-signal fellow workers of the same office enjoy postal holidays while the signallers do not ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Not exactly. Postal signallers enjoy all post office holidays which are also telegraph holidays. As regards the additional post office holidays referred to in clause 2 of the Post and Telegraph Guide, only some postal signallers do not enjoy them.

(b) The answer to the first part is in the negative and to the second part in the affirmative.

(c) No ; even on post office holidays there are some non-signaller postal clerks who have to be on duty.

HOLIDAYS IN THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

802. *Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the Telegraph Branch is closed on all Christian holidays but not on Hindu and Muhammadan holidays ? If so, why ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the reasons why only Christian holidays are being allowed to be availed of by both the combined and departmental hands whereas Hindu and Muhammadan religious holidays are not so allowed to be availed of ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) No, the Telegraph Branch is not closed on all Christian holidays.

(b) Does not arise.

†These questions were not put by the questioner.

PAY AND ALLOWANCES OF POSTAL SIGNALLERS.

803. *Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that postal signallers are not specially remunerated for postal holidays ?

(b) Is it a fact that the pay and allowances of the telegraphists are much higher for their special technical qualifications than that of the Telegraph Departmental clerks ?

(c) Is it a fact that the pay of postal signallers and postal clerks are the same, although the signallers have some special technical qualifications ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for such differential treatment between the postal signallers and the departmental telegraphists ?

(d) Do Government propose to grant suitable allowances to the postal signallers for work on holidays and special technical qualifications ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes.

(b) The pay and allowances of telegraphists are higher than those of Telegraph Department clerks not only on account of their special technical qualifications but also for other reasons.

(c) The reply to the first part is in the affirmative. With regard to the latter part, attention is invited to part (b) of the reply given in this House on the 26th September, 1921, by Colonel Sir Sidney Crookshank to Mr. Jatkar's unstarred question No. 41.

(d) As regards allowances for work on holidays, the Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to unstarred question No. 120 by Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan on the 2nd September, 1929, in this House. Government do not consider that the technical qualifications of postal signallers are such as to justify the grant of any special allowance.

GRANT OF FACILITIES TO POSTAL SIGNALLERS TO QUALIFY FOR OTHER POSTS.

804. *Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that postal signallers are not spared to be attached to the Accounts Branch and the Correspondence Branches of the Head Post Office and the office of the Superintendent of Post Offices so that they cannot get any training in those Branches to qualify like clerks to pass the Account's Examination and Inspector's Examinations ? Do Government propose to offer necessary facilities to postal signallers to enable them to qualify for the Accounts examination and Inspector's examinations ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : There is nothing in the rules to prevent a postal signaller from being attached to work in the Accounts Branch or the Correspondence Branch of a Head Post Office or the office of the Superintendent of Post Office, nor have I any reason to suppose that the facts are as stated by the Honourable Member. I am not therefore convinced of any necessity for offering to postal signallers special facilities to enable them to pass the examinations referred to by the Honourable Member, and do not propose to take any steps in the matter.

the Administrative Officer, Vizagapatam Harbour, and will communicate it to the Honourable Member on receipt of it.

PURCHASE OF SECOND-HAND MACHINERY FOR THE VIZAGAPATAM HARBOUR SCHEME.

810. *Mr. V. V. Jogiah : Is it a fact that, in connection with the Vizagapatam Harbour Scheme, the Engineer-in-Chief purchased second hand machinery of considerable value ? If so, did he receive sanction from the administrative officer prior to purchase, or from the Railway Board ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : According to the information in possession of the Railway Board, second-hand machinery has been purchased by the Engineer-in-Chief, but the value is not known. The fact that the machinery was second-hand is not in itself a reason why higher sanction should be obtained.

FERRY PURCHASED IN CONNECTION WITH THE VIZAGAPATAM HARBOUR SCHEME.

†811. *Mr. V. V. Jogiah : Is it a fact that, in connection with the Vizagapatam Harbour Scheme, the Harbour authorities purchased a ferry for passenger and vehicular traffic ? What is its cost ? When was it purchased ? What were its earnings up to the 1st September, 1929 ? How long has it been running ? Did the old one become unserviceable ? If so, was it because it became useless or superfluous ? What is the cost of the landing stage ?

WORK DONE BY THE SUCTION DREDGER "VIZAGAPATAM".

812. *Mr. V. V. Jogiah : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing :

- Number of hours of actual dredging done by suction dredger, "Vizagapatam" from 4th August, 1928, to 4th August, 1929 ;
- Number of hours of stoppage due to breakdown, overhauls, and other causes, with remarks on continuous stoppage, if any ;
- Quantity actually dredged between 4th August, 1928, and 4th August, 1929, and the quantity required to be dredged ;
- Actual expenditure as compared with output per cubic yard ; and
- Any large fluctuation in outturn between month and month suitably explained ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am laying on the table a statement giving the required information.

BONUS EARNED BY THE DREDGING STAFF AT VIZAGAPATAM.

813. *Mr. V. V. Jogiah : What is the amount of bonus earned by the dredging staff and what is the reason for not fixing a monthly bonus rate ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am making inquiries from the Administrative Officer, Vizagapatam Harbour, and will communicate the information later to the Honourable Member.

REMOVAL FROM THE TRAIN AT HARDA OF PASSENGERS TRAVELLING WITHOUT TICKETS.

814. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a report from Nagpur and published in the Hindustan Times, dated the 12th September, 1929, (page 5), in which it is stated that six passengers were taken down at Harda Railway Station, on the ground that they were travelling without tickets ; and consequently they had to walk along the railway line, with the result that a tragedy occurred near Khirkiya Railway Station, resulting in the death of four or five persons ?

(b) Do Government propose to make an inquiry, and find out if the above account is substantially correct ?

(c) Under what section of the Railways Act were the passengers dealt with, and removed from the compartment in which they were travelling ? And why were the provisions of section 113 or section 132 not applied to them ? Has any action been taken in the matter ? If so, what ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) and (b). Government have seen the extract referred to and have obtained a report from the Agent of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway in this matter. I must state, in the first instance, that the inference in the newspaper report that this deplorable tragedy was the result of any blameworthy action on the part of the railway officials is incorrect ; it was a pure accident. The facts are as follows : six passengers were removed from 12 Up train at Khirkiya station on the 27th August as they had no tickets and no money to purchase tickets. They proceeded to walk to Khandwa along the railway line and were overtaken by a train while on a bridge. The driver had whistled when approaching the bridge, but unfortunately they could not get across and the driver could not stop in time to prevent an accident. One man was killed and three of the party were seriously injured, one of whom has since died. It is reported that there is hope that the others will survive.

(c) The question whether it is lawful for a railway officer to remove from a railway carriage a person who has no ticket and is unable or unwilling to pay the fare and penalty has, as the Honourable Member is aware, been raised in a recent decision in an Allahabad Court, and as soon as a copy of the judgment is received, the question what further action is necessary will be considered.

COST OF THE ROYAL COMMISSION ON LABOUR.

815. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government be pleased to state what the approximate estimated expenditure of the Royal Commission on Labour is ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : A provision of Rs. 2,25,000 has been included in the budget estimates for 1929-30 on account of the expenditure on the Royal Commission on Labour. It is too early yet to form an estimate of the total expenditure that will be incurred on account of the Commission.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do Government desire to keep in view the recommendation of the Standing Finance Committee and the generally expressed desire of this House with regard to the emoluments paid to the Members of Committees and Commissions ?

Mr. President : What is the generally expressed view of this House ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : An application or Resolution signed by many Members of this House has, I understand, been submitted.....

An Honourable Member : No.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : So far as the Royal Commission is concerned, the emoluments of the Members have already been fixed by the Secretary of State.

"UNIVERSAL" STEEL SLEEPERS SUPPLIED TO THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY BY MESSRS. HENRY WILLIAMS, LTD.

816. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : With reference to the statement promised by the Honourable Sir George Rainy in reply to my starred questions Nos. 357 to 360 this Session, will Government please state :

(a) What is the quantity of the so-called condemned steel sleepers supplied to Henry Williams (India), Ltd., up to date by the Bengal Nagpur Railway ?

(b) What is the quantity of the universal steel sleepers (i.e., steel sleepers referred to in the patents quoted in question No. 357) received by the Bengal Nagpur Railway from Henry Williams (India), Ltd., in return up to date after making the alterations referred to in my starred question No. 358 ?

(c) What is the quantity of those patented steel sleepers purchased from Henry Williams (India), Ltd., by the Bengal Nagpur Railway up to date besides the quantity referred to in part (b) ? What is the price of these sleepers ?

(d) Were the above patented sleepers used by the Bengal Nagpur Railway before Henry Williams (India), Ltd., came into existence ? If so, from where were they got, and which were the firms who supplied them and how were they purchased, by public tender or by private arrangement ?

(e) Are any other railways using these sleepers ? If so, which are they, and what quantity (and at how much cost) have they used up to date ? Were they purchased by means of public tender or not ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : With your permission, Sir, I will reply to questions Nos. 816, 818, 819 and 821 together. The information asked for will be included in the statement I have promised.

INSPECTION OF UNIVERSAL CAST IRON SLEEPERS MANUFACTURED BY THE BENGAL IRON COMPANY AND MESSRS. BURN AND CO.

817. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : Will Government be pleased to state whether the universal cast iron sleepers manufactured by the Bengal Iron Co., and Burn & Co., are inspected by the Controller of Inspection of the Indian Stores Department, who inspects all other sleepers ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The Agent, Bengal Nagpur Railway, reports that universal cast iron sleepers are inspected by the Controller of Inspection, Indian Stores Department. I would add that the statement in the last part of the question is incorrect. Only metal sleepers manufactured by commercial firms in India are inspected by the Indian Stores Department.

LEASE OF LAND AND A RAILWAY SIDING TO MESSRS. HENRY WILLIAMS (INDIA), LIMITED.

†818. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : With reference to the statement promised by the Honourable Sir George Rainy in reply to my starred questions Nos. 357 to 360 this Session will Government please give the following information ?

- (a) Do the extracts quoted by me in my supplementary question from the Report of the Accountant General, Railways (page 31, para. 65) refer to Henry Williams (India), Limited ?
- (b) Is it a fact that the land referred to in part (a) was enclosed with a boundary wall and provided with a railway siding just after the formation of Henry Williams (India), Ltd., and was rented out to them on a nominal rent ?
- (c) What was the cost of the boundary wall and the railway siding, and with the cost and interest thereon added to the loss on rent already calculated by the Accountant General, Railways, [referred to in part (a)] what is the total loss to the Bengal Nagpur Railway ?
- (d) Were any siding charges realised from Henry Williams (India), Ltd. ? Is the lease on land a long lease ? If so, for how many years, and with whose sanction was it entered into ?

LARGE CONTRACTS PLACED WITH MESSRS. HENRY WILLIAMS (INDIA), LTD., BY THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY.

†819. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : Is it a fact, (i) that the firm of Messrs. Henry Williams (India), Ltd., is a private limited liability company of which the total paid-up capital (preference and ordinary shares together) is only Rs. 3,16,500 ; .

(ii) that the firm has issued other ordinary shares valued at Rs. 5,38,000 as fully paid-up for considerations otherwise than in cash ;

(iii) that Messrs. L. Greenham, Agent (now retired), Bengal Nagpur Railway, Henry William Joyce, Charles Williams Anderson, F. N. Slane, R. M. Hughes—all engineers of the Bengal Nagpur Railway—together with other members of their family (namely, Miss Enid Joyce, Mr. Eric Joyce—Minors—and Jane Elizabeth Anderson) have been connected with the firm ; and

(iv) that big contracts worth crores of rupees have been and are being placed with them by the Bengal Nagpur Railway from the date of the formation of the firm, by private arrangement without calling for tenders ?

VALUE OF RAILWAY ORDERS PLACED WITH MESSRS. HENRY WILLIAMS, LTD., IN INDIA AND IN ENGLAND.

820. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) What are the quantities and the value of the railway orders placed by the Bengal Nagpur Railway and other railways, if any, up to date for various articles with, (1) Henry Williams (India), Ltd., and (2) Henry Williams (Darlington), Ltd., with details as to how much in value was on tenders and how much was by private arrangement ?

(b) What, if any, is the connection between Henry Williams (India), Ltd., and Henry Williams (Darlington), Ltd. ?

(c) What, if any, is the connection between officers of the Bengal Nagpur Railway and Henry Williams (Darlington), Ltd., as well as Henry Williams (India), Ltd. ?

(d) What has been the loss, if any, to the Bengal Nagpur Railway on account of the private orders referred to in part (a) ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) The information asked for, so far as the Bengal Nagpur Railway is concerned, will be included in the statement I have promised. I do not find sufficient reason to ask for information from other Railway Administrations.

(b) I will see whether the information can be obtained, but the Government of India are not in a position to insist on the disclosure of the relations between two private firms.

(c) I will ascertain whether any officer now serving on the Bengal Nagpur Railway is interested in either firm.

(d) I cannot assume at this stage that there has been any loss.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : With reference to part (b) of this question, if it is found out that the suggestion contained in my question is correct, will Government kindly take the trouble to inquire into the relation between the two private firms ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Is this with reference to clause (b) ?

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Yes. If my suggestion proves correct, will Government kindly inquire.....

Mr. President : That is a hypothetical question.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Sir, in question No. 819 there is the suggestion that it is not, what may be called, a private firm for our present purposes, I mean the firm of Messrs. Henry Williams (India), Ltd. Will the Honourable Member kindly take the trouble to include this also, i.e., Henry Williams (Darlington), Ltd., in the statement which the Honourable Member in charge has promised ? I refer to answer to part (b) ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The only point I am anxious to guard is this. I am quite willing to make all the inquiries on the point that I can, but in the last resort I cannot compel the two firms to tell me what their relations are, but the information may be obtainable otherwise.

LOSSES ENTAILED IN CONNECTION WITH MESSRS. HENRY WILLIAMS, LTD.

†821. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Who will be responsible for the losses in rent, boundary wall, railway siding and purchases referred to in my previous questions ?

(b) Will the loss be recoverable ? If so, how and to what extent ?

REFUSAL TO PAY THE GRATUITY OF A DECEASED LOCO. CHARGEMAN ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

822. *Mr. V. V. Jogiah : (a) Is it a fact that one Mr. Arnold Duckett, a loco. chargeman on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway died after having put in about 22 years' service, bequeathing the amount of gratuity due to him to his brother ?

(b) Is it a fact that the brother of the deceased applied to the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, for payment of the said gratuity on the strength of Letters of Administration obtained from a court of law, but the Agent refused payment of the same to him ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to ascertain and state on what grounds the payment was refused ?

(d) Are there any rules justifying the action of the Agent ? If so, do Government propose to amend the rules and pay the brother of the deceased man ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a), (b) and (c). Under the Railway Gratuity Rules the amount payable on account of gratuity is not deemed to be included in the estate of an employee and cannot therefore be bequeathed. As an act of grace, it is paid, if an employee dies during service, to his widow and, failing the widow, to his dependent children.

(d) The amendment of the rules will be considered.

SUPPLY OF MILK IN DELHI CITY.

823. *Lala Rang Behari Lal : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if their attention has been drawn to the resolution of the Delhi Medical Association regarding the supply of milk to the Delhi City, passed in the beginning of this month and published in the papers ? If so, what action do Government propose to take in the matter ?

(b) Do Government propose to consider the advisability of extending the Punjab Food Adulteration Act to the Delhi Province ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Government have seen in the Press the resolutions passed by the Association on the 29th August, 1929. It is understood they are under the consideration of the Medical Officer of Health, Delhi. I may state, for the Honourable Member's information, that, with the object of improving the milk supply of the city, the Municipal Committee of Delhi has recently framed certain bye-laws regarding the stabling of milch cattle and has also sanctioned the appointment of a qualified analyst. The Committee is also equipping a laboratory for the purpose of the examination of milk and other food-stuffs and has under its consideration draft bye-laws for the control of milk shops.

(b) The matter is under the consideration of the Local Administration.

DEATHS FROM CONSUMPTION IN DELHI.

824. *Lala Rang Behari Lal : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that out of the total number of female deaths recorded in Delhi during the past year a very large percentage was due to consumption ?

(b) What steps, if any, do Government propose to take in the matter ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Of the 4,315 deaths of females in the Municipality of Delhi in 1928, 419 were from phthisis. The percentage of deaths from this cause was thus 9.7.

(b) The matter is primarily one for the consideration of the Municipal Committee, which is alive to the situation. A slum clearance scheme, for which a grant has been given by the Government of India, is in progress. Considerable efforts are also being made through the medium of health centres and health visitors to educate the people in elementary principles of hygiene and public health. An application for a grant-in-aid towards the opening of a tuberculosis dispensary at Hauz Kazi has been received by Government and will be considered in connection with the budget estimates for 1930-31.

SCHEME FOR NEW ROADS FROM NEW DELHI TO DELHI CITY AND CIVIL LINES.

825. *Lala Rang Behari Lal : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if at the time of the planning of the Capital at Delhi there was a scheme for laying out four roads passing through the Delhi City and connecting New Delhi with the City and the Civil Lines ? If so, will Government be pleased to state if that scheme has been abandoned ?

(b) In view of the insanitary condition of the city of Delhi and the high rate of mortality, do Government propose to consider schemes for opening out the city ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The Delhi Town Planning Committee in 1913 suggested two roads to serve as through routes of communication between the New City and Civil Lines. Of these one has already been constructed, namely, the Burn Bastion Road. The other has not been considered in detail owing to want of funds.

(b) Government are fully alive to the importance of the subject, and various schemes to improve the sanitation of the city and to remove congestion are under consideration. The Government of India have already sanctioned a grant of Rs. 17,29,000 to acquire certain slums in Saddar Bazar, to build model houses for the poor and to improve the water supply of the city. A five years' programme of sanitary improvements has been drawn up and will be carried out as funds permit. New areas outside the city, especially towards the west, are being developed.

EXTENSION OF DELHI CITY.

826. *Lala Rang Behari Lal : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if there was a proposal to extend the city of Delhi towards the South and utilise the land lying between New and old Delhi for the purpose ? If so, will Government be pleased to state how long it will take for the scheme to mature ?

(b) If there is no such proposal, will Government be pleased to state, what, if any, are their proposals for the extension of the Delhi city ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) In the original layout of New Delhi a large area of land south of the city in Delhi was allocated for city extension, but the city has actually extended itself in a westerly rather than in a southerly direction. The new hospital will, however, be erected on a large site in this area, while another portion will be occupied by the Government of India Press and Press quarters. The greater part of the remaining land available will probably be required for residences for clerks. All these schemes will, however, to some extent serve the purpose of city extension by relieving pressure within the city or otherwise.

It has recently been proposed that the wall between the Delhi Gate and the Ajmer Gate should be pulled down and the land lying between the city wall and the Circular Road utilised for the purpose of open clearance. The view taken by the Local Administration, however, is that it would be better to lay out this area as a park.

(b) Proposals are under consideration for utilising, for extension purposes, a considerable area in Paharganj and Multani Dhandra which is at present undeveloped and somewhat insanitary.

The Western Extension (Karaul Bagh) where there is still much room is also receiving attention and development in that direction will probably be rapid as soon as funds are available for water supply and drainage. Plans for extension are in progress in Shidipura, where model dwellings will shortly be erected for the relief of pressure in the crowded suburbs.

"A" GRADE APPRENTICES CONFIRMED IN THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY WORKSHOPS AT KHARAGPUR.

827. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government please state whether the "A" Grade apprentices in the Bengal Nagpur Railway Workshops at Kharagpur, who have so far been confirmed to date and enrolled as regular apprentices, and their parents or guardians were allowed to fill in the forms A and B, referred to in para. 4 of the enclosure (Annexure A) to Government's answer to my starred question No. 819, in the Legislative Assembly on the 26th February, 1929 ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am obtaining the information required from the Agent, Bengal Nagpur Railway, and will communicate it to the Honourable Member on receipt.

APPOINTMENT OF SIKHS TO THE MILITARY ACCOUNTS DEPARTMENT AND THE IMPERIAL CUSTOMS SERVICE.

828. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (1) Will Government be pleased to state what is the total number of posts in (a) Military Accounts

Department, (b) Imperial Customs Service, and the number of posts held by Hindus, Muhammadans and the Sikh community, respectively, in them ?

(2) Is it a fact that a number of posts in the above services are reserved every year in order to adjust communal inequalities, arising out of the result of the competitive examination ? If so, are any posts thus reserved for the Sikh community ?

(3) Are Government aware that a number of Sikh candidates have been qualifying themselves in the examination for the services ?

(4) Will Government be pleased to state why no Sikh has been selected for the above services, and what steps they now intend to take to safeguard the rights of the Sikhs in future ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (1) The total number of posts in the Military Accounts Department is 59. Of these, 15 are held by Hindus, 4 by Muhammadans and 1 by a Sikh. The total number of posts in the Imperial Customs Service is 36. Of these, 8 are held by Hindus, 2 by Muhammadans and none by Sikhs.

(2) The Military Accounts Department and the Imperial Customs Service are two of the services to which recruitment is made on the results of a combined competitive examination : the other services being the Indian Audit and Accounts Service and, with effect from the current year, a new service called the Indian Railway Accounts Service. The announced policy of Government would require that two-thirds of the vacancies filled by direct appointment in each of these services in any year should be filled by open competition and that the remaining third should be reserved for the redress of communal inequality, if any, among those appointed to the posts filled by open competition. It is not the policy to earmark any of the reserved proportion of posts as reserved for a particular community ; nor is there any mathematical ratio which Government has undertaken to maintain between the various communities. No posts therefore are definitely reserved for the Sikh community as such.

(3) In the four combined examinations to which I have referred, the total number of appointments made each year to the Indian Audit and Accounts Service, the Military Accounts Department and the Imperial Customs Service, whether by open competition or by nomination, has varied from 9 to 12 ; and the total number of candidates who appeared at the examination has varied from 70 in 1925 to 213 in 1928. The number of Sikhs who appeared at the examination was 2 in 1925, 3 in 1926, 3 in 1927 and 6 in 1928. The highest place secured by a Sikh examinee was 49th in 1925, 36th in 1926, 52nd in 1927 and 46th in 1928.

(4) No Sikh has secured appointment to the Military Accounts Department or the Imperial Customs Service by open competition ; and none has secured appointment on the communal basis, because candidates of other communities were considered to have a superior claim to the only vacancies that have been reserved for communal appointments in these services, namely, one in the Military Accounts Department in 1925 and another in the same service in 1928. The appointment of Sikhs in future to these services will depend :

(a) upon their success in securing vacancies by open competition ;

c2

- (b) upon the application to candidates, who at any rate reach the qualifying standard, of the policy which I have outlined in the answer to part (2) of the Honourable Member's question.

My Honourable friend is probably aware that two Sikhs have been appointed by nomination to the Indian Audit and Accounts Service in accordance with the policy laid down; one in 1926 and one in 1928.

PAY OF STAFF OF ATTACHED AND SUBORDINATE OFFICES OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

829. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : (a) Will Government please state why in 1920, the scales of pay sanctioned for the Superintendents, assistants and clerks employed in the attached and subordinate offices of the Government of India were not uniform?

(b) Is it a fact that the attached and subordinate offices have since memorialised for the revision of their pay on a uniform basis?

(c) Is it a fact that in some of the attached offices a certain number of assistants on the Army Headquarters scale has been added, and if so, will Government please state why the same class of appointments have not been sanctioned for other offices?

(d) Will Government please state in which of the attached and subordinate offices the benefits of the revision sanctioned in 1920 were given to the members of the office establishment, and why, to those, who were not in the office on the date from which the revision was sanctioned or were holding temporary posts or were on probation on that date?

(e) Do Government propose to consider the desirability of sanctioning a uniform scale of pay for all the attached and subordinate offices?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The reason is that the importance, duties and responsibilities of the various attached offices are not similar.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes. The reason for the differentiation has already been given in reply to part (a).

(d) I am afraid I have been unable to follow the question, but I shall be glad to have the matter examined if the Honourable Member will elucidate it.

(e) The answer is in the negative.

DIFFERENCE IN PAY OF ASSISTANTS AND CLERKS IN THE SECRETARIAT AND IN ATTACHED AND SUBORDINATE OFFICES.

830. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : Will Government please state why the pay of the assistants and clerks in the attached and subordinate offices is lower than or equal to the pay of second division and routine clerks in the Secretariat, respectively, and what steps do Government propose to take to remove this anomaly?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given by the late Sir Alexander Muddiman to question No. 943 on the 15th September, 1925. In view of the nature of that reply, Government do not consider that any action is necessary.

NUMBER OF MUSLIMS APPOINTED AS CLERKS TO ROYAL AIR FORCE UNITS.

831. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : Is it a fact that several vacancies for Indian clerks were created in all Royal Air Force units in India in 1926, and were filled by the Headquarters, Royal Air Force? If so, will Government please state how many out of them were offered to Muslims and how many to non-Muslims?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. 15 appointments were offered to Muslims and 26 to non-Muslims.

NUMBER OF MUSLIM CLERKS APPOINTED IN UPPER DIVISION VACANCIES OF CERTAIN AIRCRAFT DEPÔTS.

832. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : Is it a fact that five upper division vacancies were sanctioned by the Government of India for Indian clerks in the Aircraft Part, Lahore, Aircraft Depot, Karachi, Nos. I, II and III wings, Peshawar, Risalpur and Quetta, respectively, and were filled by the departmental candidates by the Headquarters, Royal Air Force? If so, will Government please state how many departmental Muslim clerks were appointed to these vacancies?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Yes. One was a Muslim clerk.

NUMBER OF MUSLIM CLERKS AT THE HEADQUARTERS OF THE ROYAL AIR FORCE.

833. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : Will Government please state :

- (1) the number of Indian clerks in the Headquarters, Royal Air Force and the number of Muslims amongst them ;
- (2) the number of menials in the Headquarters, Royal Air Force, and the number of Muslims in them ; and
- (3) the number of clerks in the Royal Air Force formation in India and that of Muslims amongst them?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (1) 35 and 7, respectively.
(2) 35 and 6, respectively.
(3) 92 and 30, respectively.

RULES GOVERNING LEAVE, PROMOTION, ETC., FOR THE STAFF OF THE ANGLO-ARABIC COLLEGE, DELHI.

834. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that there are no rules governing leave, promotion, etc., for the staff employed in the Government Anglo-Arabic College, Delhi?

(b) If the reply to part (a) is in the affirmative, do Government propose to take immediate steps and instruct the authorities concerned to frame rules to that effect?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The Anglo-Arabic College in Delhi is not a Government institution. It is under private control. Government understand that there are rules governing leave. They have no information regarding the promotion of the staff.

(b) Does not arise.

Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : Will Government get the information regarding the College ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Government could do so, but this is a private institution, and unless Government have reason to believe that the administration of the institution is unsatisfactory, they see no reason to call for information.

Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : Do Government believe that the management is satisfactory ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Government are satisfied that the management of the institution is satisfactory and that it is in a flourishing condition.

Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : The Honourable Member just now said that he has no information, and how are Government satisfied without information ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I said Government had no information in regard to particular points. I did not say that they had no general information in regard to the condition of the College.

RULES FOR THE MANAGEMENT OF THE ANGLO-ARABIC COLLEGE, DELHI.

835. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : Is it a fact that the Principal of the Anglo-Arabic College, Delhi, obtains the formal sanction of the official president of the Managing Committee of that College before any question is discussed by the Committee ? If so, do Government propose to take action to change this rule ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Government are informed that the answer to the first part of the question is in the negative ; the second part does not arise.

DUTIES AND FUNCTIONS OF THE MANAGING COMMITTEE OF THE ANGLO-ARABIC COLLEGE, DELHI.

836. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : What are the duties and functions of the Managing Committee of the Government Anglo-Arabic College, Delhi ?

Sir Frank Noyce : The Anglo-Arabic College in Delhi is under private control, and Government are not directly concerned with the duties and functions of its Managing Committee.

COMPLAINTS AGAINST MR. WALKER, PRINCIPAL OF THE ANGLO-ARABIC COLLEGE, DELHI.

837. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : (a) Are Government aware that Mr. Walker, the Principal of the Anglo-Arabic College, is discourteous in dealing with his subordinates ?

(b) Is it a fact that, since his appointment, practically the whole staff of the school and college has been changed and there is great discontent among the staff ?

(c) Are Government aware that Mr. Walker is against the retention or employment of any of his teachers or professors who belong to Delhi ? If so, why ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (c). No.

(b) Government are informed that the answer is in the negative.

REJECTION BY THE PUNJAB AND THE UNITED PROVINCES OF APPLICATIONS FROM TRAINED TEACHERS FROM DELHI.

838. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : Will Government be pleased to state whether, if trained teachers or professors employed in aided schools or colleges in Delhi apply for appointments in the Punjab or United Provinces, their applications are rejected on the ground that they belong to Delhi ? If so, what do Government propose to do in order to remedy this hardship ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Government have no information. This question might more properly be asked in the Legislative Councils of the provinces concerned.

APPOINTMENT AND DISMISSAL OF STAFF OF THE ANGLO-ARABIC COLLEGE, DELHI.

839. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the total number of teachers and professors who were on the staff of the Anglo-Arabic College, Delhi, before the appointment of Mr. Walker and who are still in service in the same institution ? How many were removed from service and for what reasons ? How many resigned and for what reasons ?

(b) Does the Principal of the Government Anglo-Arabic High School take orders of appointment or dismissal of the staff of the college or school from the Managing Committee ? In how many cases has he acted of his own accord and ignored the Committee and why ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Government have no detailed information regarding the appointment and removal of teachers in schools under private control, of which the Anglo-Arabic College, Delhi, is one.

(b) Government are informed that the appointment and dismissal of teachers in the Anglo-Arabic High School, Delhi, rests with the Committee of Management. They have no further information.

PAY OF THE PRINCIPAL OF THE ANGLO-ARABIC COLLEGE, DELHI.

840. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : Is it a fact that the previous Principal of the Anglo-Arabic College, Delhi, used to get a smaller pay than the present Principal ? If so, for what reasons was a higher paid man appointed in a poor Muslim institution ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Government are informed that the pay of the present Principal is higher than the pay of the former principal. Appointments vest in the Managing Committee and not in Government.

EXPENSES OF THE ANGLO-ARABIC COLLEGE, DELHI.

841. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : Is it a fact that the Anglo-Arabic College, Delhi, was unable to meet the monthly expenses from the grant-in-aid when a less-paid Principal was working? How are the expenses of the College now met?

Sir Frank Noyce : Government are informed that the answer to the first part of the question is in the negative; they understand that the expenses of the College are met by fees, subscriptions including interest on endowments, and Government grant.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE ANGLO-ARABIC COLLEGE, DELHI.

842. *Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi : Do Government propose to consider the desirability of helping the Anglo-Arabic College, Delhi, to become a full-fledged College in near future? If not, why not?

Sir Frank Noyce : The Delhi University has already granted to the Institution recognition as a Degree College, teaching up to the B.A. pass standard. 3rd and 4th year classes have already been opened.

REMOVAL OF THE FORT FROM SHWE DAGON PAGODA HILL.

843. *U. Tok Kyi : (a) Is it a fact that the Shwe Dagon Pagoda Hill will remain as a fort?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state why the arsenal has been removed to Mingaladon since December last?

(c) Is it a fact that the late Lord Rawlinson stated in the Council of State that the cessation of the Shwe Dagon Pagoda to be in military occupation was contemplated?

(d) Is it a fact that the utilization of religious edifices for military purposes goes against the International Convention?

(e) If the answer to part (d) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons which led them to the decision that the Shwe Dagon Hill should remain as a fort?

(f) Are Government aware that the Shwe Dagon Pagoda is regarded by the Buddhist public as the holiest of all religious buildings in Burma and that the said decision has provoked intense resentment throughout the country?

(g) If the answer to part (f) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to remove the fort to Mingaladon as they have done in the case of the arsenal?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) to (g). No part of the Shwe Dagon Pagoda Hill is in military occupation. The land on which the Pagoda stands was made over in 1908 to the Pagoda Trustees by a deed of grant, subject to certain conditions. The Trustees have held the land on these terms ever since without complaint and it is not proposed to alter the existing position nor to make any change in the conditions.

The Arsenal was moved to Mingaladon to remove it from the vicinity of the Pagoda.

PROMOTION TO COMMISSIONED RANKS OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

844. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Is it a fact that promotions in the Commissioned ranks of the Indian Medical Department are regulated by vacancies?

(b) Is it a fact that in August 1917, the Government of India in the Army Department by their letter No. 11789, dated the 9th August, temporarily increased the cadre of Commissioned Officers?

(c) Is it a fact that according to the letter referred to in part (b) the cadre of Captains in the Bombay establishment of the Indian Medical Department was increased to seven?

(d) Will Government please state whether the Government of India order granting this temporary increase was in force on the 2nd November, 1917? If not, will Government please place on the table a copy of the Government of India Order or Army Instructions, India, cancelling their letter No. 11479, dated the 9th August, 1917, before the 2nd November, 1917?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Promotion to the ranks of Lieutenant and Captain is regulated by vacancies, but promotion to the rank of Major is made after three years' satisfactory service in the rank of Captain.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) Yes, but this temporary increase was originally granted in order to relieve a block in promotion in the Bombay establishment. This object was achieved by filling a vacancy that occurred in that establishment on the 25th August, 1917, and thereafter the orders were held in abeyance until the issue of Army Instruction No. 176 of 1918, which enabled the temporary increase in the number of commissions to be utilised in any of the three Residential Establishments.

REFUSAL OF PROMOTION TO CAPTAIN ALMEIDA OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

845. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) If the answers to parts (a) and (d) of the previous question be in the affirmative, was Lieutenant Almeida promoted to the vacancy created by Captain Roderigues becoming supernumerary? If not, why not?

(b) Will Government please state if there is anything in Captain Almeida's record of service of such a nature as could deprive him of a due promotion?

(c) Is it a fact that as a result of this omission on the part of the authorities concerned, Captain Almeida did not attain his Majority before he retired on the 31st January, 1921, and thereby incurred financial losses in the matter of his pension?

(d) Do Government propose to remedy this injustice?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : In view of the answer I have given to the previous question, the Honourable Member will realise that Captain Almeida had no claim to promotion in the vacancy that arose on November 2nd, 1917. It is a fact that Captain Almeida did not eventually qualify for a Major's pension, but I can assure the Honourable Member that Government have already considered his case very fully, and they regret that the rules preclude them from granting him any special concession.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member inform this House whether the Government of India in the Army Department have submitted Captain Almeida's case to the Secretary of State for consideration and when they did this, did they recommend his case to the Secretary of State?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The answer to the first part is that the Government of India have submitted his case to the Secretary of State. I did not catch the second part of the Honourable Member's question.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Did they recommend his case to the Secretary of State?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : They made certain recommendations, yes.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member be good enough to resubmit his case to the Secretary of State for further consideration?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The Secretary of State has already passed orders on this case and I do not think it would be proper for us to make any further recommendation. The most I could do to meet the Honourable Member's wishes would be to send a copy of his question and of this reply to the India Office and draw their attention to the facts of the case. I am prepared to do that.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member recommend his case?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I am afraid the Government of India cannot add to the recommendations they have already made.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member reiterate the recommendations?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I will draw attention to the previous recommendations.

VERIFICATION OF THE RECEIPT AND ISSUE OF STORES AT LILLOOAH, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

846. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Will Government please state whether the receipt, issue and accounting for stores at Lillooah, East Indian Railway, was verified during the years 1923-24 and 1924-25? If so, on what dates?

(b) Were such verifications posted to the audit ledgers of the respective years? If not, why not? If so, on what dates?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am endeavouring to obtain the information required by the Honourable Member.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member state whether he is really in a position to obtain true and correct information on this point and in this Department?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I hope so, Sir.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member state whether the Stores Accounts in the E. I. R. have for years been and are in a chaotic condition and that no reliable records have been available for years?

Mr. P. R. Rau : They have been in a condition approximating to chaos.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is there any improvement today in that chaotic condition?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Steps are being taken to improve it and I believe it has improved since last year.

PAY OF TELEGRAPH MASTERS.

847. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (1) Is it a fact :

(a) that the pay of a Telegraph Master starts from Rs. 275—10—325 ;

(b) that the emoluments of a Baudot (Telegraphist) Supervisor invariably come up to Rs. 290 including his allowances as recently revised ;

(c) that the duties of a Baudot Supervisor consist mainly of attention to the apparatus ;

(d) that the pay of Class I Clerks is Rs. 250—20—350 ;

(e) that many Baudot Supervisors and Class I Clerks receive greater emoluments than a Telegraph Master in the Telegraph Department ;

(f) that no revision of the pay of the Telegraph Masters has been made ever since 1920 ; and

(g) that the question of this revision has been under the consideration of the Government of India ever since 1923 ?

(2) Are Government aware that Telegraph Masters do not even reach the maximum pay granted to clerks, and do Government propose to take immediate steps to remedy this defect and revise their scale of pay?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (1) (a) Yes, but in the case of General Service Telegraph Masters only.

(b) No ; only when the Baudot Supervisor is a General Service telegraphist drawing the maximum pay of his scale.

(c) Yes.

(d) Except for four posts, the pay of Class I clerks is not Rs. 250—20—350.

(e) The fact is not as stated by the Honourable Member. I would refer him to the replies to parts (b) and (d) above.

(f) No revision of the pay of Telegraph Masters has been made since May, 1921.

(g) No.

(2) The answer to the first part is in the affirmative so far only as the four clerical posts referred to in my reply to part (d) above are concerned. Government do not, however, consider that this is any defect in the relative scales of pay of clerks and Telegraph Masters, as a number of Telegraph Masters can rise to much higher rates of pay on promotion to posts of Deputy Superintendents, etc., and they do not, therefore, propose to take the steps suggested by the Honourable Member.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I thank the Honourable Member for his reply, but I did not hear half of it. May I ask the Honourable Member to repeat the latter part ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Will the Honourable Member kindly speak up ? (Laughter).

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member reply to parts (f) and (g) of question No. 847.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (f) No revision of the pay of Telegraph Masters has been made since May, 1921. (g) No.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is it a fact that the duties and responsibilities of a Telegraph Master are greater than those of a Baudot supervisor or a class I clerk ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, the duties of the various classes of officials are different and it would be impossible for me to gauge the precise volume and extent of the responsibilities and duties of these different classes. (Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : "Will the Honourable Member kindly speak up ?") (Loud Laughter.) But the position is this. The class I clerk does not ordinarily get up 250—20—350, but there are four appointments on that rate of pay to allow for promotion to deserving clerks towards the end of their service. The Telegraph Master ordinarily rises to a maximum pay of Rs. 325, but if he is considered to be efficient he has prospects of promotion to the grade of Deputy Superintendents and to the second and first division of the superior service and he can end with a pay of Rs. 1,500.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Supplementary question, Sir. Is the revision of the pay of Telegraph Masters under the consideration of the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am afraid the Honourable Member did not listen. I have again to repeat the answer which I have already given to part (g) of his question. The answer is in the negative.

PAY OF OFFICERS OF THE RAILWAY SIGNALS DEPARTMENT, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY RECRUITED IN ENGLAND AND IN INDIA.

848. Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (1) Is it a fact :

(a) that the Superior Railway Signals Department, East Indian Railway, is a cadred service and consists of both Europeans and Indians and that promotion is effected by annual increments of pay ;

(b) that recruitment into this Service is effected both in England and India ;

(c) that officers recruited in England are engaged on a much higher initial salary than those recruited in India ;

(d) that owing to the fact that such officers receive a higher salary they are ipso facto placed in a higher position on the cadre than officers recruited in India, even if the latter have more years of service to their credit ; and

(e) that as a result of this practice officers who are recruited in India find themselves superseded by junior officers recruited in England on a higher scale of pay ?

(2) If the answers to part (1) are in the affirmative, do Government propose to put an immediate stop to this practice ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : 1. (a) The cadre of the Signal Department, East Indian Railway, consists of a Deputy Chief Engineer, Signals, Assistant Signal Engineers, Senior scale, and Assistant Signal Engineers, Junior scale ; and of both European and Indian Officers. The scales of pay for each class of post are incremental, increments being given annually for approved service, up to the maximum of the scales.

(b) Yes.

(c) No. The initial salary of officers, whether engaged in England or in India, is fixed according to age and qualifications.

(d) No. I understand there are no officers at present who have been placed in a higher position than the date of entry into the service justifies.

(e) Does not arise.

2. Does not arise.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is the Honourable Member aware that, on the East Indian Railway quite recently, some officers were appointed to the Railway Signals Service and placed on the cadre higher than those recruited locally ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : My information does not bear out that, Sir.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Then your information, Sir, is not correct. Is it a fact that similar conditions obtain in the State Railway Medical Service ?

Mr. President : What similar conditions ?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Conditions under which men are recruited in England and come out on a higher pay and are placed higher up in the cadre.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member has already said that he does not bear him out.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is it a fact that the Government of India in the Railway Department subscribe to the policy adopted of placing officers recruited in England in a higher place on the cadre than officers recruited in India ?

Mr. President : Order, order. Mr. Munshi.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT.

TREATMENT OF BUDDHIST MONKS IN JAILS IN BURMA.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi (Burma : Non-European) : Sir, I ask for leave to move the adjournment of the House to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely :

"The situation arising out of the action and policy of the Government refusing the use of the yellow robe to Burman Buddhist Monks, who are imprisoned in the jails of Burma—and more particularly Burman Buddhist Monks convicted of political offences in Burma—which has already resulted in the death of U. Wazaya in consequence of prolonged hunger-strike and which is likely to involve further loss of life."

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Home Member) : Sir, I have no objection.

Mr. President : The motion is in order and as no objection is taken I intimate that leave is granted and that the motion will be taken up for discussion at 4 o'clock.

RESOLUTION RE WITHDRAWAL OF PROTECTION FROM THE TIN-PLATE INDUSTRY.

Pandit Nilakantha Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I move that :

"This Assembly recommends to the Governor General in Council that he may be pleased to undertake an amendment of the Steel Protection Act, 1927, with a view to withdraw the protection granted thereunder to the tin-plate industry in India."

My Resolution is very simple and my reasons also will be simple. The issue is that the protection which is continuing in the case of the tinplate industry in India, that is, particularly the Tinsplate Company at Golmuri, Jamshedpur, which is the only tinplate industry in India should be withdrawn. This Tinsplate Company was started in 1920 and began work in 1922. By 1924 all the six mills that are now working were in perfect working order. Then they wanted protection at the hands of the State and the Tariff Board held an inquiry. It was found that there were various objections for which any protection to the industry should not be given, but as it was also found that especially in war-time tinplate cannot be imported from America or Wales, where this is generally manufactured, it was contemplated that the Golmuri Tinsplate concern should be turned into a national industry, and therefore there was a proposal for protection. At first the protection was Rs. 60 per ton, and then it was raised somehow to Rs. 85. Now from 1926 it has stood at Rs. 48 per ton. But this is not all. The taxpayer loses much more on account of this industry ; because our duty on the metallic tin was Rs. 555 per ton and only because of protecting this tinplate industry in India it stands now at Rs. 250 per ton. This is the protection now accorded to the tinplate industry.

But when we come to consider the character of the industry, we find that this is owned by external capital. This is the first thing that attracts notice. At first Rs. 75 lakhs was the capital. Out of this sum two-thirds were issued in the name of the Burma Oil Company and one-third in the name of the Tata Iron and Steel Company. With both these Companies the Tinsplate Company entered into contracts. The Burma

Oil Company under the contract agreed to purchase all the production of this tinplate concern, for they wanted it for their tins and canisters for their petrol and oil. The Tata Iron and Steel Company under their contract have to sell them, i.e., find customers in the Tinsplate Company, for their own production. It was said that this Golmuri Tinsplate Company was a subsidiary concern of the Tatas on account perhaps of this customership as well as the one-third shares. With the Tatas the contract was that the Tatas would sell off iron ingots, or bars, out of which the plates for the tinplates are made, at a certain fixed price, perhaps the cost price, and when the accounts were adjusted, if there was any loss, Tatas would bear half the loss,—and if there was a profit, of course, Tatas would take half of that profit. But this has not yet come about. This profit has been taken away by other means.

It is interesting to know how and by what means the profit is absorbed. The Tinsplate Company was originally started on account of some exchange difficulty, or because of high post-war prices, with machinery and other things purchased from foreign countries at an abnormally high capital investment. The original share capital authorised and issued was Rs. 75,00,000. Normally this would have been approximately the sum required for the concern. But on account of the high prices of machinery, etc., all these Rs. 75 lakhs, were not considered enough, and at once Rs. 125 lakhs of debentures were authorised at ten per cent. This is very abnormal. The debentures are for Rs. 125 lakhs, but we do not yet know—it is confidential still—actually to what extent they were issued or utilised in the concern. But in the accounts I understand the whole sum of Rs. 125 lakhs appears. In fact much less has come to use. Somehow, roughly, it may be estimated that about 150 lakhs is the amount that is spent on the concern. Out of this, 125 lakhs, or whatever was issued actually, was purchased by the Burma Oil Company. The Burma Oil Company was assured of 10 per cent. profit, which is called interest on the capital of 125 lakhs year after year, whereas the share capital was either starved for want of profit or bore actual loss. Thus the Burma Oil Company is practically the owner of the concern and they are in receipt of all the profits, which practically come to 8 or 8½ per cent. on their capital investment. It is 10 per cent. on the debentures, but actually it comes up to 8 or 8½ per cent. on the capital actually issued by the Burma Oil Company. And, Sir, according to a statement of the Tata's, they have thought it better to write off the one-third of the shares which they purchased in the beginning, and one of their members who is on the Directorate of the Tinsplate Company practically takes no interest in it. This is the position.

Then, Sir, when protection was granted to this Company, it was stipulated or at least clearly understood, among other things, that they would employ Indian labour. The recommendation of the External Committee in this connection is also clear, of which you, Sir, for some time were a member. They said that, according to the Fiscal Commission's Report and the recommendation of this Assembly, facilities for the technical training of apprentices should be stipulated in every case, especially where external capital is invested in this country. I submit, Sir, that in the case of the Tin Company, it is de facto, though not completely de jure, external capital. Besides, Sir, in several of their statements to the Tariff Board, this Tinsplate Company have themselves practically given the undertaking that they would gradually replace the Welsh labour by Indian labour. It will be difficult to understand this bit of difference, which appears to be so simple. Sir, a labourer who is recruited from Wales or other foreign countries gets Rs. 750 a month. Apparently, they were not satisfied with this amount and therefore in 1923 they struck work and demanded bonus and leave for going home. Both these concessions were at once granted. The bonus comes to Rs. 500 or Rs. 600 a month per man. Therefore their emoluments now come up to Rs. 1,300 per head. The Indian labourer, for doing the same sort of work, used to get, until the time of the strike, that is till April last, Rs. 212 per day, or Rs. 80 to Rs. 85 per month. Sir, we pay a foreign labourer Rs. 1,300 a month, and the Indian labourer, for doing the same sort of work, is paid only Rs. 85 a month. Sir, the Company was expected to be self-supporting, and it was also expected that our labourers would be able to take charge of the technical work in about five or seven years' time, after which no protection will be necessary. The Tinplate Company themselves admit that the period of three years may be said to be the period for the training of labour (vide page 66, Evidence before Tariff Board, Volume VII). They also speak of other things, such as, the reduction of imported staff and so on in that connection, evidently as grounds for claiming protection from the State. Then, it may well be said that a period of three years is at least necessary for the training of a man, and for that training we are looking forward every day so that we may employ Indians in place of Welshmen. Our protection will then have achieved the task of making the industry national. When the second inquiry was made, it was said that, to some extent, they reduced their foreign staff. In 1924 it was something like 85 and now the figure stands at 58.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham (Associated Chambers of Commerce : Nominated Non-Official) : That is a wrong figure ; it now stands at 42.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : It may be 42 now ; I am thankful to my friend for correcting me. But whatever may be the number, it was not perhaps thought advisable to go on with this process of reducing the imported staff and recruiting Indian labour. We may or may not entirely blame the capital here. For foreign as it is, it is not to its interest to look to temporary profit alone. To continue productive investment must be its outlook. But in our industries, it must be admitted, capital is not directly responsible for dealing with labour. The thing which is mostly responsible is the management, which is between the capital, on the one hand, and the labour on the other. They are practically the irresponsible masters of the situation in big concerns. In the present case, the management has to draw upon the vast resources of the Burma Oil Company, from whom they have obtained a carte blanche and to whom they can explain anything they like and that in any manner. When the Company was approached by some gentleman of note during the last strike, he was told that there were men on the spot, meaning the management, and that the management were to deal with the case as they liked. Sir, for reasons obvious, this management is not there to see that the Indian labour should thrive. All this much vaunted solicitude for training Indian labour, and replacing Welshmen by trained Indians was, it appears, only a means for securing the protection for a good number of years.

When this was the state of things, and when the protection was recommended by the Tariff Board and was actually given in 1927, discontent began to manifest itself among the labourers, who felt they had a right to better wages and better conditions of service and living. But the management, as usual, did not like that discontent or that any demand should come from the side of labour. The labourers gradually formed themselves into a Union and that was perhaps a red rag to a bull.

I do not like to enter into details of this labour trouble, for it has been well discussed in the Bihar Council, which was perhaps the appropriate place for it. We have to deal here only with principles, not details. What were those troubles, and what were those grievances that were not actually satisfied ? I will not deal here with any close details. But it is a fact that, after the Union was formed, the hitch came and before the Union was registered, there was a strike. I do not like to enter into personalities, but I know it for certain that there are men, and it is also reasonably apprehended that there are officers, of the Government in league with those men who are, to a great extent, responsible for various labour troubles and for demoralising and crushing labour for all times to come. This is the case in Jamshedpur, if not anywhere else. But I do not like to enter into these details. The fact is, as I have said, that, before the Union was registered, there was a strike.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : The fact was that the Union was recognised by the Company before it was registered.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : It was recognised by the Company, but it was apprehended that, in their dealings, the Union perhaps did not behave like proper school children and that they wanted to get registered and put forward their demands. It was recognised only in name, and as the course of events will show, leaders of the Union and officers themselves wanted interviews, but those interviews have been persistently refused.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhamadan) : Even their letters were left unanswered.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Yes, even their letters remained unanswered. Whatever that be, soon after the nominal recognition and before the strike, the Union wanted to put forward certain demands and then the real trouble came. That was a red rag to the bull, as I said. What happened ? They said : "Yes, we shall think of it, we shall meet your President, we shall do this and we shall do that". Meantime, it was found that Gurkhas were recruited and they were instructed to serve as black legs in case a strike came. This exasperated the people, and as far as my information goes, the people were so suspicious of the attitude of the management that, in spite of their own leaders, they began to strike work. Then, naturally and justifiably the leaders also joined them. That was the position, and after that there was a strike. We have read of many gentlemen, Mr. Daoood and Mr. Giri and many other gentlemen wanted to approach the management for a settlement, but the management proved obdurate. My Honourable friend Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra also met some of the labour leaders unofficially. But I do not know what transpired in that interview. I know it full well that no attempt till now has been successful to bring the management to any conciliation. I wish to give out one of my personal experiences in this case which has not yet been published. Even before the leaders approached the management, just when Mr. Homi was out of manipulating everything, as it has been given out in the Bihar Council, and as I know as a matter of fact—Mr. Homi was the real instrument in the hands of the authorities as well as the management to manipulate labour, to demoralise them—just after Homi was thrown out of the Presidentship—in fact he was compelled to resign—I was the first man to approach the management. I approached Mr. Layshon, the General Manager, and there was also another man, Mr. Price, Mr. Russel, or some one whose name I forget. I approached them personally, privately and unofficially. I told them that the situation was very dangerous. I reminded them that the steel protection was given on the undertaking that they would train and pay Indian labour adequately, and that they would replace the highly paid technical and overhead staff by trained Indian labour. That was the only thing which would make the concern self-supporting and profitable. That could only justify the protection granted by the State. What were they doing now? They could crush the labour for the present. But the discontent would remain. Were they alive to the effects of such a situation? These people out of some grievances had gone on strike. They were entitled to a sympathetic hearing and careful consideration. But the management proved obdurate. I found they were vindictively out for victimisation. I should have much liked, as I actually told them, that the management took the labourers back into their works at once, and then, I told them, I would stand surety for bringing about a conciliation board of inquiry even to punish those who would be found guilty, if any. I said, "You should not victimise them; you should not dismiss them or turn them away without notice". That was a time when 300 or 400 new men were recruited. I pointed out to them how useless would be these new men for the promotion of the industry. I knew what the Tariff Board thought about this industry. I knew that it was a technical industry requiring technical knowledge in which the training was not easy. I realised how the management had trained men at the cost of the taxpayer, and how any show of new recruits would not meet the situation. I suggested in my conversation that they might employ even 5,000 or 6,000 new men in place of 3,000 old hands. What would it matter? What would it mean? It is not the number, but the training that matters to the industry, as well as to the taxpayer. The taxpayers are the men who would any day stand up and say, "Why should this Company be provided money at our expense? Why should this Company be given protection?" I indicated that they did not look forward to this danger. This labour unrest, I told them, was a very grave situation and they ought not to handle it and deal with it in the shabby manner in which they were attempting a solution. But I came back from the interview with the impression that the Company wanted to put down the unrest with the aid of the vast resources of Burma Oil Company, which were all at the back of this Tin-plate Company, and thus the management wanted to crush and demoralise labour by everything in their power. That was my experience.

Since then, Pathans or Afghans have been recruited ostensibly to guard the company's interests, but in fact to terrorise the strikers. Here is a photograph, Sir, printed in the Liberty of Calcutta, dated the 27th of last month. (The Honourable Member showed the group photograph). The name of this group photograph is here, "Messrs. Price and Henderson of the Tinplate Company fraternising with the Pathans". Here you may see, Sir, how these European members of the management appear in Pagri, the head-dress of the Pathans, with whom they are making merry. Many of us read in the papers what these Pathans are doing to keep up what you may call the prestige, or the interested Zid of the management.

On the side of the labour everything is peaceful. Even in the last week of August, when on the picketing of the strikers, the new recruits came out in sympathy, and practically the works were again empty, I know it for certain that even that picketing was absolutely peaceful. I challenge any man to deny it. Then the Pathans and the police had their way, and what is the state of things now? As I read in one of the statements of my esteemed friend Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, things are not only much worse, but savage brutality is being practised upon the labourers by the management. They have been driven out of their houses,—their hovels,—the water supply is cut off, and there are various other savageries which I hope will be read in this House in the course of this debate. No, I think, I should myself read the whole thing out, and I crave your indulgence, Sir, for a few minutes more, for the document is important. This is what he writes on the 20th September :

"I returned from Jamshedpur this morning. It is evident there that the Government is helping the management of the Tinplate Company in every possible way. Armed police go up and down the bustee partly to terrorise the strikers and partly to help in recruiting new men. Police lorries with policemen in cars before and behind carry these new men to the works. There is absolutely no question of force being offered to these workers by the strikers, yet there is always this imposing array of police. Several cases have been instituted against the strikers, I am told, on trumped-up charges. The Chief Cashier who joined the strikers last month is being prosecuted by the Company on a charge of embezzlement of a small sum. Many strikers have been ejected from their quarters....."

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, is the Honourable Member referring to cases which are now sub-judice?

Diwan Chaman Lall (West Punjab : Non-Muhammadan) : He is only mentioning the fact that there are cases.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : He has expressed an opinion as to the nature of the cases, and I submit that if these cases are sub-judice it is improper to refer to them in that way.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : I was only saying that this case has been instituted for embezzlement of a small sum. There is no reflection. Continuing, he says :

"Many strikers have been ejected from their quarters. Most amazing of all, the Company have stopped the water-supply from some of the strikers' quarters. As there are no wells, the suffering caused by cutting off the water can well be imagined. The whole thing is a most shameful exhibition of how employers and Government combined to crush the poor workers. Some of the workers who joined the strike have been forced to rejoin by starvation. Over two thousand are still holding out, and this is happening because the employers and the Government will not agree even to an inquiry or to a discussion. The Trade Disputes Act, which contains a multitude of most objectionable clauses, also contains clauses relating to the settlement of labour disputes by Government intervention; yet Government refused to intervene or apply the Act. It is obvious that both the employers and Government are afraid of any inquiry and hence they avoid it."

This is the whole letter, but I shall read out a telegram which I received today as to how the position stands at the present moment. This telegram is dated the 24th :

"656 old hands resume. 1940 new hands working, of which 1540 appointed by Company after 23rd August. Total strikers 3940 including new hands going strike on 23rd."

On the 23rd all the new and old hands came out and there was a cry for conciliation, but still the Company did not agree to it. The management proved as obdurate as before, and I do not understand what reason there was for taking new recruits and raw hands even after the adjournment motion was passed and the Local Government censured in the Council.....

Mr. President : Order, order. The Honourable Member must know that he is allowed to speak for 30 minutes only.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Yes, Sir, I will finish in a minute. They are always recruiting new men and there are, I apprehend, very cogent and immediate reasons for such an activity. Meals, lunch, tiffin, and sweetmeats are being freely provided in the company's premises to the new recruits to keep them back from picketers. People are being sent to distant parts of the country, even to the Punjab and Assam to recruit men. All this is being done at the expense of the Company, pampered as it is, by the protection of the poor taxpayer. Thus the interested members of the management have got to handle, not thousands, but good lakhs of money under what you may call emergency account. This much of suggestion, I hope, is enough to convince the House, why the members of the management should immediately feel interested to continue these troubled conditions as long as they can.

With these words, Sir, I move that this protection be withdrawn as in all ways it is going to prove a dead loss to the taxpayer.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : Sir, in effect this Resolution asks the House to condemn the Tinsplate Company of India, firstly for its treatment of its workers and its failure to make progress in the process of Indianisation of its workers, and secondly for its conduct of the strike which most unfortunately broke out in the earlier months of this year. Now, Sir, I am at one with the Honourable Mover of this Resolution in not desiring to enter into the merits of this strike. My reason for that is that I do not consider that any individual or any assembly of persons,—not even this Assembly of persons,—is in a position to discuss the merits of a strike until those merits have been determined by a proper tribunal; and I hold that the only proper tribunal to establish the merits of any strike is a Court of Inquiry appointed under the Trade Disputes Act. (Cries of "Why did not they agree to it?") If Honourable Members will have patience to hear me, they will then understand my point of view. For this reason, Sir, which I have given, I entirely fail to understand the attitude of the Bihar and Orissa Government in this matter. (Hear, hear.) The relevant portion of the Honourable Mr. Whitty's speech in the Bihar and Orissa Council on the motion of adjournment moved the other day reads as follows :

"The situation up to the middle of May had offered no opportunity for the intervention of Government and neither party wanted it. From the 12th May up to the 23rd when it became evident that the number of workers was increasing and that the Company might be able to carry on without the old labour, applications for intervention became numerous. Those from the side of labour in Golmuri itself were generally vague in terms,—but from the recognised labour leaders requests were made for the appointment of a Conciliation Board under the Trade Disputes Act. Government being aware of all the facts, did not consider that there could be any benefit either from a Conciliation Board or from a Court of Inquiry."

Now, Sir, it is not for me to criticise the action of the Bihar and Orissa Government, and I fully realise that they are the responsible Government on the spot who have the handling of this matter. But it is open to me to record my opinion that any person or any Government who takes up the attitude that no good can result from a Court of Inquiry under the Trade Disputes Act is ignoring the benefit to the parties concerned and the benefit to public opinion of having the merits of the strike determined by an impartial tribunal. (Hear, hear.) And I make no secret of my view,—and I speak with a full knowledge of my responsibility as representing a large number of employers in this country,—that the Bihar and Orissa Government have done a great disservice both to employers and to employees and to the general public in not taking advantage of the machinery which has been set up by this House for dealing with trade disputes. (Hear, hear.) The danger to employers and to employees is only too obvious, and I do not want to emphasise it. Those are my views, and I believe that they are the views of a very large portion of the non-official Members of this House. Take the case of the recent strike in Bombay. We had there a strike which affected not three thousand workers, but a lakh and fifty thousand. We had there a strike affecting the oldest Indian national industry and the peace, happiness and prosperity of a big city. What was the position? The labour leaders—so called—were adamant—they wanted nobody's interference. The Millowners' Association were so certain of their case that they did not think that any good could result from a Court of Inquiry. Public opinion in effect forced the Government of Bombay to set up a Court of Inquiry under the Trade Disputes Act and perhaps the Honourable Member who represents the Bombay Millowners Association will at a later stage tell the House whether he considers that any good has come out of that Court of Inquiry. The point, Sir, is that it is vitally necessary to satisfy public opinion when a serious trade dispute exists, and in order to satisfy that public opinion, the proper way is to make use of the machinery provided by the Legislature.

But, Sir, although I do not propose to discuss the merits of this strike, that does not mean that the case of the Tinsplate Company must go by default; and if, in spite of what I have said, the House still desires to discuss the merits of the strike, I trust that you will give an opportunity to Honourable Members behind me, who are fully conversant with the facts.

Now, Sir, on the question of the treatment of its labour by the Company. I am largely dependent on information provided to me, in which I can only say I have the fullest confidence. Following the example of the Tata Iron and Steel Company, the Tinsplate Company has done its share towards making Jamshedpur a model industrial settlement and has provided quarters for its employees on the most modern lines....

Diwan Chaman Lall : How many ?

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : If the Honourable Member will kindly have patience we will come to that.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member is not entitled to interrupt unless the Honourable Member speaking gives way.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member give way to me ?

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : I shall give way to any Honourable Member if what I am going to say does not cover what they are asking.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I say it is incorrect to make that statement that they have provided quarters for all the workers.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : I did not say that they have provided quarters for all the workers.

Diwan Chaman Lall : They have provided only three hundred quarters.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : The Company has provided quarters for its employees on the most modern lines, laid out according to up-to-date town-planning ideas. A total of 326 Indian quarters has so far been built, each of them being self-contained inside a walled compound, and all but a few equipped with water-borne sanitation. In addition, 724 houses have been erected by employees themselves on land provided by the Company, and under a scheme whereby the Company lends money to help in their construction. The growing desire amongst the employees to bring their wives and families to the station has resulted in an increased demand for more quarters. To meet this, the Company decided last year to put up a further 80 quarters during 1929-30, but the construction of these has been held up owing to the strike. A pure filtered water supply is provided for all residents, and the neighbourhood is kept scrupulously clean by adequate sanitation staffs. I will not detail at length all the arrangements in connection with sanitation and education. Inside the factory, working conditions are as good as it has been possible to make them. The most difficult condition to meet was of course the heat, which in Jamshedpur frequently reaches a shade temperature of 120 degrees during the hot weather. To overcome this, the Company spent a great deal of money in providing lofty buildings, water-cooled floors and a water-cooled air system, with such success that no days have ever been lost owing to excessive heat, despite the fact that shut-downs through this cause are quite common even in the much more temperate climate of America. Hours of work in the factory are in accordance with the most advanced ideas. I do not think I need deal with this point in detail, because I want to reach what I consider to be even more important points. Wage rates have always been at a high level, comparing favourably with other industries. At the Annual General Meeting of the shareholders of the Tata Iron and Steel Co., held on 27th September, 1928, Mr. N. B. Saklatvala claimed that the average wages for the whole of the staff of the Steel works, which was about Rs. 40 per head per month, was higher than that paid in any industry in India. It is interesting to record that, in March, 1929, which was the month preceding the strike, the average pay of all uncovenanted employees at the Tin-Plate Works, excluding coolies, was Rs. 40-6-0, and including coolies, who number about 300, the average was Rs. 37-13-0. All except the monthly-rated hands are paid weekly in accordance with approved welfare principles, and each man gets his full wages paid into his own hand, and not through a contractor or third party. The factory has been operated practically without a break since the start, so that regular wages have been the rule, and at times when it has been closed down temporarily through shortage of steel or for repairs, or at Christmas, the labour has always been paid half wages. In 1928, when the steel works were on strike, and the factory had to work half time for four months, the labour was paid full wages, as it was felt that they ought not to suffer from so prolonged a stoppage through no fault of their own.

Now, Sir, I think that is sufficient to show that there can be no indictment against the Company for their treatment of the staff in normal times. We then come to the question of Indianisation. The actual figures which I have in my hand are that there were in 1923, 88 covenant-ed men : that figure has been reduced successively in the intervening years to 42 at the present stage. The Honourable Member made a great point of the wages of a Welsh tinplate worker at Golmuri being Rs. 1,300 as against Rs. 80 for an Indian doing the same work. Is not that in itself the greatest inducement to any Company to substitute Indian for Welsh workers ? If it is not in the eyes of the Honourable Mover of the Resolution, all I can say is that he has not much experience in the running of companies. We are all of us anxious to reduce our overhead charges and it seems to me that the figures which I have quoted show that there has been a substantial measure of Indianisation during the years in which this Company has been in operation.

Sir, I know that my time is limited, but I do hope that I shall be allowed to say a few words on the progress of the Company under the protection afforded to it. After an exhaustive inquiry by the Tariff Board, a protective tariff was introduced in 1924, the customs duty on imported tinplates being raised from Rs. 40 to Rs. 60 per ton. Two years later it was increased to Rs. 85 per ton, but was reduced again, as from the 1st April 1927, by the Steel Industry Protection Act, 1927, which this Resolution seeks to amend, which fixed the duty at Rs. 48 per ton, that is, Rs. 8 per ton over the ordinary revenue duty of Rs. 40 per ton which existed before protection was introduced. In their 1926 Report.....

Pandit Nilakantha Das : What about metallic tin ?

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : I am not an expert in metallic tin : I leave that to the Honourable the Commerce Member to deal with. The Tariff Board discussed fully in their Report for 1926 the prospects of the tin-plate industry, and it is instructive to see how actuals have compared with estimates, and how far the Tin-plate Company has deserved the protection granted to it by the Legislature.

The Tariff Board estimated that the future price of tinplates would be Rs. 369 per ton and based their recommendations accordingly. Actually the price in 1927 averaged only Rs. 350, and in 1928 only Rs. 340 per ton. This fall in prices might have been disastrous had not the production of the factory outstripped all estimates. Designed originally to produce 28,000 tons per annum, nearly 30,000 tons were produced in 1925, and no less than 41,521 tons in 1927. Even this figure would in all likelihood have been exceeded in 1928, had not the prolonged strike in the Steelworks occasioned a loss of almost two months' production. As it was, over 36,800 tons of finished tinplate were produced in 1928.

This phenomenal increase in production was made possible by the provision of additional equipment, and the adoption of the latest methods of manufacture, following on a visit made by the General Manager of the Company in 1926 to America.

Now, Sir, on the question of the finances of the Company, it is perfectly true that the financial results have not so far been good, but last year a profit would probably have been earned had it not been for the strike already referred to. The Honourable the Mover of the Resolution referred to the Company making profits at the expense of the tax-payer. Sir, not one pie of profit has been made. (An Honourable Member : "What about debentures?") On the contrary, very large losses have been incurred, and it might equally well be argued that the Company has been in existence so far solely for the benefit of labour. The references which the Honourable the Mover of the Resolution made in his statement to the Burma Oil Company regarding the initiation of the Company was substantially correct, but he does not draw correct inferences. He draws a picture before the House of the Company taking 125 lakhs worth of debentures at 10 per cent., and he adds the debentures and the shareholders' capital together and says that the Company is making good on the money invested. Does the Honourable Member know.....

Mr. President : I am sorry to interrupt the Honourable Member. He must now conclude his observations.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : Sir, may I have one minute? Actually, in addition to having to write off 57 lakhs of the capital cost, the Burma Oil Company have given up 30 lakhs of debenture interest. If the Honourable Member will make a small calculation he will find what that represents.

Now, Sir, about the danger in discussing the question of withdrawal of protection before the House. Protection is given to encourage a national industry. Only recently, just yesterday, I saw a telegram from the Managing Director of the Burma Oil Company saying that, at the cost which they have paid, they will be quite ready to hand over to any national body their share in the Tin-plate Company. Here lies the danger in the Resolution before the House. The House gives protection for one cause and takes it away for another, and the danger is, that if the present Tin-plate Company is succeeded by Indian nationals in the management of the concern, you will be depriving them, by this Resolution, of the protection which has enabled the present Company to create a national industry and to save crores of rupees from going out of the country in purchasing Welsh tinplates, and you will also deprive future companies of getting the same benefits. I say, Sir, that the Resolution is unhappily worded. It is a danger to one of India's national industries to pass this Resolution, and I think that the House will be well advised to express their views on the unfortunate affair of the strike in some other amended Resolution which will not contain the danger which this one does.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla (Bombay Central Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I beg to move that for the original Resolution the following be substituted :

"This Assembly recommends to the Governor General in Council to convey to the Government of Bihar and Orissa the opinion of this House that it is desirable to appoint a Court of Inquiry under the Trade Disputes Bill in regard to the dispute in the tin-plate industry."

*Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar, (Tanjore cum Trichinopoly : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : On a point of order, Sir. We had the text of the amendment which Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla wishes to move only last night. I object to this amendment on the ground, in the first place, of want of due notice under Standing Order 65. I also object to it on the ground that it goes beyond the scope of the original Resolution. So far as the want of notice is concerned, the Standing Order is there, and I need not trouble the House by reading it. It rests with you, Sir, to say whether the circumstances are such that you should suspend the Standing Order. I see no reason why notice of this amendment should not have been sent in earlier. Then, Sir, it throws a surprise upon us, because with proper notice we would have been in a better position to discuss the whole question.

In the next place, as rightly pointed out by one of the speakers who preceded me, the scope of the Resolution is that it seeks to ask the Government to withdraw protection to the tin-plate industry on the ground of misfeasance and malfeasance on the part of the Tin-plate Company, first of all in the treatment of labour, secondly in regard to its failure to take proper steps for the Indianization of its expert workers, and also on the ground of mismanagement by which it has brought great distress on account of the strike which has gone on for months resulting in great hardship to labour. Therefore, Sir, I submit, on both these grounds, this amendment is out of order.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : On a point of order, Sir.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : As regards the first point, I would leave it to you, Sir, to decide because it is a question of time, and whether, looking to the fact that I was ill and I was not in the House, and looking also to the importance of the question involved, you would suspend the Standing Order and allow us to discuss this amendment.....

Mr. President : I cannot lightly take the step suggested. If the Honourable Member leaves it to me, I see no reason why I should suspend the Standing Order. Therefore, the second point does not arise.

Mr. H. P. Mody (Bombay Millowners' Association : Indian Commerce) : Sir, as one who has had some experience of labour troubles both recently and in the past, I desire to offer a few observations on the motion before the House. I am sorry, Sir, that I am unable to support the Resolution as it stands, and it is a thousand pities that it should have been placed before the House in the way in which it has been, and that it should not have been brought forward in some more acceptable form. Sir, the Resolution does not state any reasons why the protection which was given by this House to the tin-plate industry should be withdrawn.....

* Speech not revised by the Honourable Member.

Mr. President : There can be no reasons in the text of the Resolution.

Mr. H. P. Mody : Very well, Sir. I did not suggest that that was the fault of the Resolution or that the Honourable Mover was to be blamed for it. What I was trying to say was that the reasons which are to be deduced are to be found in the speech of the Honourable the Mover.

The Honourable the Mover started by talking about the financial position of the Company, their policy with regard to Indianisation, and also as to what they have done with their capital, how they acquired debentures, and he suggested more or less that the Company had ceased to be a national concern and was foreign in its composition. Now, Sir, I do not attach very great importance to that part of the Honourable Member's speech for the reason that the real reason underlying this proposition was brought out in the course of his remarks on the troubles that had taken place in the tin-plate industry. I am entitled to state that the real reason for which this proposition has been brought before this House is that certain labour troubles have overtaken the tin-plate industry, and my Honourable friend and those who agree with him are of the opinion that the tin-plate industry is at fault and therefore the protection granted to it should be withdrawn. Now, Sir, my submission is that it is a most dangerous principle to hold that the moment there is a dispute between an industry and the labour it employs, any protection which has been given to that industry should on that account be withdrawn. I regard it as a pernicious principle.

My next objection to the course proposed by the Honourable Mover is that this is not the place to decide whether capital is right or labour is right in the dispute in question. A regular machinery for the investigation and settlement of trade disputes has been provided by the legislation passed by this very House, and this certainly is not the forum for the ventilation or adjudication of labour grievances. (An Honourable Member : "The Bihar and Orissa Government does not appoint a Committee.") I am sorry that my Honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham should have allowed himself to be drawn by the line of argument adopted by the Honourable Mover of this Resolution into a discussion of the rights and wrongs of this dispute. I say, Sir, that that aspect of the question does not trouble me at all, and I do not propose to deal for a single moment with the question as to who is in the right and who is in the wrong for the simple reason that I am not in a position to decide it, and even if I was, in my opinion this is not the place for a discussion of that character.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : That is precisely my point.

Mr. H. P. Mody : If it was precisely his point, I wish my Honourable friend had not allowed himself to be led into an enumeration of what the Tin-plate Company have done for their employees or have failed to do for them, because the danger of that would be that some other Honourable Mover will get up and immediately controvert such statements. I venture to submit, with great respect to you and to the House, that a discussion of the rights and wrongs of the question here is entirely beside the point.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : On a point of personal explanation, Sir. The information I gave regarding the treatment by the Tin-plate Company of its workers was in order to meet the point made by the Honourable Mover of the Resolution and it referred to normal times. I never said a word about the strike or the merits thereof, and I still do not intend to do so.

Mr. H. P. Mody : Whatever the reason my Honourable friend had for entering into that aspect of the question, I do not propose to be drawn into it. I say, whether the treatment meted out by the Tin-plate Company to its workers was excellent or execrable, I am not concerned with that aspect of the question at all. The point, so far as this particular Resolution is concerned, is that protection was given on the ground of national interests, and those who want to withhold that protection must come forward and establish that it is in the national interests that that protection should no longer be continued. I submit that that is the only relevant question so far as this particular Resolution is concerned.

Now, Sir, I do not want to go into the merits of that question at any length. All I want to submit is this. Here is an industry which employs 3,000 and odd workers ; which prevents to a considerable extent the imports of tin-plates ; and which keeps the wealth earned by the joint efforts of capital and labour in the country itself to a considerable extent ; and it is up to the House to consider whether, on a consideration of all those factors, it is prepared to say that it is in the national interests that this protection should be withheld.

That is one aspect of the question. The next aspect is the one which has been referred to by the Honourable the Mover and by my Honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham, and that is the part played by the Bihar and Orissa Government in this business. My Honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham said that he had no intention of criticising that Government. Sir, I have every intention of criticising that Government, and I deliberately state that that Government showed an absolute ineptitude in dealing with the situation. (An Honourable Member : "Use a stronger word.") You will permit me a minute or two to refer to what took place in precisely similar circumstances in Bombay only very recently. Lest my own part in that affair might be misunderstood, let me tell this House quite frankly that I was not at all in favour of the appointment of a Court of Inquiry—I confess that at once,—my reason being, Sir, that I thought—and I am glad to find that the Court of Inquiry has vindicated the position I took up—I thought we were dealing not with trade unionists but with people who were out for trouble and who were living on trouble. That was my reason. But what did the Bombay Government do ? The Government were not worried about what I thought or what my Association thought about the appointment of a Court of Inquiry. The Bombay Government did not pause to take into consideration the objections advanced by the labour leaders as well with regard to such appointment. They appointed a Court of Inquiry partly in response to public opinion, expressed emphatically in many quarters, and partly because the Trade Disputes Act exists for that very purpose. But what do the Bihar and Orissa Government do ? They sit in their arm-chairs and say, "After taking all the facts into consideration, we are of the opinion that no good will come out of a Court of Inquiry or a Board of Conciliation." I say this is not their business. If it was their business, why is the Trade Disputes Act there ? The Trade Disputes Act is there for the purpose of investigating the claims of conflicting parties with regard to the rights and wrongs of the situation, and for the Bihar and Orissa Government to take up the position that, because on investigation they find that a solution is not in sight, therefore they should not appoint a Court of Inquiry or a Board of Conciliation, seems to me to be the very limit of ineptitude. The consequences of that attitude have been somewhat serious, and I do not mind giving expression to my views on that matter. In the middle of May, representations went up from the spokesmen of labour to the Bihar and Orissa Government for intervention in the dispute. At that time, from the little study that I have given to this question, I find that less than a thousand new men had been taken into the tin-plate works. If the appointment had been made and the Court of Inquiry had expeditiously conducted an investigation into the labour dispute, then, in all probability, the present situation by which some 3,000 men are now out of work would not have arisen. Therefore, I say that the responsibility of the Bihar and Orissa Government in this business is very serious indeed. If the Court of Inquiry had been appointed, the present position would not have arisen. It would merely have been a case of reinstatement of perhaps a thousand men, but they allowed time to elapse. As I have said, they sat in their arm-chairs deciding which party was in the right, and the result of it was that, within a certain period it came about that most of the 3,000 men who are now employed on the works happened to be new men, and that is how this present difficult situation has arisen.

As I have said at the beginning of my remarks, it is a very great pity that this Resolution should not have been brought in a form which would have compelled the Bihar and Orissa Government to agree to a Court of Inquiry. I am afraid I cannot understand their obstinacy in the face of a Resolution moved in their own Council. The effect of a Resolution brought forward in this House would have been, I submit, very considerable, and therefore I say that it is a matter of very great regret that the present Resolution is of such an extreme character that I for one at any rate cannot support it, and it is possible that other Members who are also of the same opinion will not support it. By all means criticise the Bihar and Orissa Government, bring pressure to bear upon them and have a Court of Inquiry. The function of the Trade Disputes Act is precisely to ascertain which party is in the right and then to try and bring about a settlement. My Honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham asked me to state publicly whether I thought, in spite of my opposition, that the Court of Inquiry appointed in Bombay had done any good. So far as my Association is concerned, I may say that it has not done any good to us for the simple reason that the strike had been brought to a finish before the Court of Inquiry had concluded its deliberations: but so far as public opinion is concerned, and I include the Bombay Government in that category,—so far as public opinion is concerned, it certainly has done a certain amount of good in that it has clearly established which party was in the right. To that extent it is essential that even now, whatever the fate of this Resolution may be, the Government of Bihar and Orissa should immediately appoint a Court of Inquiry, and whatever the attitude my friends on the Treasury Benches may take up on the Resolution before the House, I ask them to see to it that they bring to bear upon the Bihar and Orissa Government all the influence they have over Provincial Governments and compel them to adopt the course which the Legislature has laid down as the only possible course under the circumstances. (Applause.)

Diwan Chaman Lall : I think we have been getting away from the real subject of the debate. (An Honourable Member : "Speak up.") I am certain that my Honourable friend over there will be able to hear me in a minute. What is the subject of the motion moved by my friend Mr. Nilakantha Das ? Mr. Winterbotham says, "Do not let us discuss the strike". Mr. Mody says, (I took down his words) "This is not the forum for discussion of the rights and wrongs between capital and labour". He further goes on to say, "Let us by all means bring pressure upon the Government and upon the Company but let us not debate this question on the floor of this House". Mr. Winterbotham says, "Do not let us discuss the strike". I say, "Why not" ? Is it or is it not a fact that the consumers of this country and the taxpayers of this country have had to put their hands in their pockets and dole out money to a Company which is a foreign Company. I will prove it to Honourable Members. We have subsidised a foreign Company under the false and fictitious plea that it is a national concern, working in the interests of this country. Now, if it is proved that that Company has been guilty of the grossest violence to all standards of decency existing as between employer and worker, if it can be proved that that particular Company has so mismanaged its own finances that, according to the Tariff Board's Report, it has lost over 50 lakhs, and according to their own statement 87 lakhs out of the 125 lakhs capital which they raised originally, and if it can be proved that, in the course of their behaviour towards the workers, several thousands of the latter are starving, have been threatened with ejection from their quarters, have been even denied the ordinary necessities of human life such as water for drinking purposes, there being no wells there, (cries of "Shame") ; if a company can treat Indian workers like this while it treats its Welsh imported employees on a different scale, is it or is it not a ground for Members of this Assembly to discuss the merits or the demerits of the strike ?

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : The Honourable Member is asking the House to make an ex parte statement. He has not got with him the facts of the case. He is asking the House to accept the facts as stated by him. I say that I want the facts established by an impartial tribunal.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I am amazed at Mr. Winterbotham's audacity. He charges me with possessing no facts whatsoever in regard to this matter. He takes up a document and reads it to the House, a document containing facts as he alleges them to be, in regard to the treatment of the employees. He himself does not wait until the report of an impartial tribunal is given to the world before he puts his signature to the interments contained in that document. (Mr. Winterbotham rose to inter- rupt.) I will not give way to the Honourable Member any more. He had not the courtesy to give way to me. Now, as for my friend Mr. Mody, I could well imagine his perturbation in a matter like this. He said—and I was amazed that an Indian should say a thing like that—that this is a national concern and that because it was a national concern, therefore protection was given to this concern. He said, "Prove to me that it is not in the national interest, and I am prepared to vote with you to withdraw the protection". That is what Mr. Mody said. Now, I want Mr. Mody to sit down calmly and quietly at the luncheon table at the Cecil Hotel, when he goes back to lunch, and ask himself what particular national concern is being served by the protection that is being given to this Tin-plate Company. Will he tell me?

Is it or is it not a fact that the Burma Oil Company—a foreign company—owns this Tin-plate Company? Is it or is it not a fact that two-thirds of the capital invested in this Company is owned by that Company? Is it or is it not a fact that 125 lakhs worth of debentures at 10 per cent. were invested in this Company by the Burma Oil Company? And is it or is it not a fact that the Tatas held one-third of the shares, and that this sum has practically been written off by them? So this is a concern which serves the purposes of the Burma Oil Company, and according to the statement of the Welsh manufacturers which they placed before the Tariff Board, this Company is utilising this protection in order to down its rivals in the oil trade, and Members of this Assembly have been misled under the false plea of protecting national interests into giving protection to a foreign concern of this nature.

Mr. H. P. Mody : Were not these considerations before the House when it recently sanctioned a measure of protection to this industry? Has the position altered in the least since, on the last occasion, this House endorsed a measure of protection to this industry?

Diwan Chaman Lall : If the Honourable Member had read the debates on that occasion, he would have remembered that there were certain Members here who were against this policy of "indiscriminate" protection. I did not vote for it myself, and I think that every Member who voted for it was wrong in doing so, and he must realise it now after the events of the last few months—that he has done a great injury to his own country by voting for protection for this industry. The actual facts of the situation are that the tin-plate workers at Golmuri demanded decent terms and decent conditions of work. The conditions were as follows:

"The daily rated staff here are not entitled to any holidays, sick or privilege leave pay, and the monthly rated men get 14 days privilege and 5 days sick leave during the year, whereas the European staff are entitled to one month's leave with pay and also full pay for sick period and six months leave for every three years service for going home. The Covenanted staff get Bonus on the outturn of production whereas the same privilege is denied to Indian workers. Though the Company has been in existence for the last seven years, it has made no provisions of Provident Fund and other benefit service rules that exist in all other organised industries in India."

Mr. Winterbotham said that these workers get the same conditions as the workers at Tatanagar. He is mistaken.

"The neighbouring industry here, that is the Tata Iron and Steel Company, have introduced Provident Fund, Bonus, leave and service rules in their Works for workers engaged in sheet mills doing similar works and they have better rates of wages than that of the Tin-plate Company."

Here is a statement which has been published to the wide world. Has anybody contradicted that statement? My friend said "The Tin-plate Company provides houses for its employees". I say it is a false statement, and I challenge him to deny me. There are 5,000 workers and they have provided only 330 houses. I hold a photograph in my hand of these houses. If any Honourable Member wants to have a look at it he is welcome. He can see for himself the type of house provided. Let Mr. Winterbotham have a look at this photograph and say whether he would like to live in the kind of house provided for these workers. He said: "Oh, look at the treatment that is meted out". I hold in my hand another photograph. A man called Syed Ali Munshi was actually murdered as he was picketing under the orders of the Union. He was murdered because of a false cry that had been set up that he had been kidnapping people. He was set upon and murdered on a false cry, set going by the Pathans, who had been engaged by the Tin-plate Company to break the strike, and this is the Company which has a tender heart for its employees, according to Mr. Winterbotham. Here is a statement by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, whose sincerity and selfless work for the workers in this country there is no man in this country who can challenge. Can my country turn round and say that, if a statement is made by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and his signature is put upon it, that that statement is not to be treated as gospel truth by the people of this country? I have never seen a statement made by that man to this day which has not on it the impress of utter truth and sincerity.

And what does he say? He went down himself. He has been down there twice as far as I know. He says:

"The chief cashier of the Company who joined the strike last month is being proceeded against by the Company on a charge of embezzlement of a small sum. Many strikers have been ejected from their quarters and, most amazing of all, the Company has cut off the water-supply from some of the strikers' quarters." (Cries of "Shame, shame.") "As there are no wells, the suffering caused by cutting off the water can well be imagined. The whole thing is a most shameful exhibition of how employers and Government combine to crush the poor worker. Some workers, who had been on strike, have been forced to rejoin by starvation. Over 2,000 are still holding out. And all this is happening because the employers and the Government will not agree even to an inquiry or to a discussion."

Now, Sir, that is the testimony than which no better testimony is available for the people of India, from Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, and yet my Honourable friend would have us believe that the tin-plate employers are treating their employees in a perfectly justifiable manner. I myself was approached by the workers of the Tin-plate Company in the month of May. They asked me to intervene and approach the Bihar Government and they sent me a wire, and they asked me to obtain from the Bihar Government a decision as to the setting up of a Conciliation Board or a Court of Inquiry. I wired down to the Bihar Government, it was a long telegram. I got no reply. I sent a second telegram, a long telegram, and yet I got no reply. I had kept on pressing them with reply-prepaid telegrams, which have never been acknowledged to this day by the Bihar Government—and I hope their revenues are richer for the reply-paid telegram I sent. But eventually they woke up to the necessity of doing something and they wrote to me to say that they were going to appoint a Commissioner who was going down there himself in order to find out the necessity of setting up a Board of Conciliation or a Court of Inquiry. What was the result? Before the Government of Bihar sent him down—the gentleman was one Mr. Dane I think—they said, "We do not know who wants a Court of Inquiry, we do not know who wants a Board of Conciliation", and so on, until I was forced to expose them and to send a statement to the Press that, on behalf of the workers, I had approached them several times and that they had absolutely ignored my communications. And what was the result? The result was this:

"Sir, in reply to your letter (No. so and so), and in continuation of my telegram (No. so and so) informing you that the Divisional Commissioner was proceeding to Jamshedpur to inquire whether the strike at the Golmuri Tin-plate Works is a proper case for Government intervention, I am directed to say that, after careful consideration of the Commissioner's report, His Excellency in Council is fully satisfied that the appointment of a Conciliation Board in this dispute, under the Trade Disputes Act, 1929, would be infructuous, and that in the circumstances of the present case, a Court of Inquiry under the Act would equally serve no useful purpose."

I want to ask the Members of the Government, why? Do they recall how, when the debate was going on on the Trade Disputes Bill, time and again we, from this side of the House, and I particularly, got up and suggested to them not to put in a provision making it possible for the workers to ask for a Court of Inquiry or a Board of Conciliation only when two parties combine to ask for it? We said, "Leave it to the choice of either party", and yet Government did not agree with me. My Honourable friend, Sir Darcy Lindsay, and others of his way of thinking also did not agree with me. Here was a case in which a dispute was apprehended and had been apprehended for weeks, and grievances after grievances had arisen and brought to the notice of the management, and they paid absolutely no heed to the grievances, and yet when a case for a Court of Inquiry or a Board of Conciliation was made out, why was it not appointed? I see my Honourable friend, Mr. Winterbotham, nods and agrees with me. Well, if the Honourable Member agrees with me, let him also agree with me that a Company of this kind, which treats its workers in this manner, has no right to any sort of assistance given out of the public funds. I cannot see the morality of assisting a Company of this nature. Now there were thirteen cases that arose before the strike was declared. There was first of all the reduction of the days of work per week to three. Tata's employees are given five days' pay for three days' work. Here they were only given three days' pay. Six of the active workers of the Union were dismissed summarily when Mr. Homi intervened and an agreement was reached, but that was broken. Then another executive councillor of the name of Mr. Samad was also dismissed because he was an active worker. Then came the strike of Mr. Samad's shift and certain negotiations were carried on. Mr. Homi, on behalf of the employers, promised that Mr. Samad would be got back to work. Mr. Samad was never got back to work, and that was another term broken.

Mr. President: Order, order. The Honourable Member has no time left to go through that catalogue.

Diwan Chaman Lall: With your permission I will just take one or two minutes more. Most of these instances happened before this strike was declared. Why did not the Bihar Government set up a Board of Conciliation or a Court of Inquiry? I want a reply from the Government. No doubt the Honourable Member over there, Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra, went down to this particular place, Golmuri, and had informal conferences. But what was the result? The Bihar Government remained adamant even when a vote of censure was passed in the Bihar Council against them. In view of all these circumstances, what is the clear duty of Honourable Members of this House? Their clear duty, Sir, is to do something tangible in order to assist the workers at Golmuri, and the only thing that they can do is to declare to the wide world that they are not going to allow the consumers and taxpayers of India to be mulcted, to have to pay large sums of money for the benefit of a concern which has no more decency than to treat its workers, thousands of them, in the manner in which it has treated them. All that the Legislative Assembly can do is to make its declaration felt by passing this Resolution and withdrawing the protection given to the Tin-plate Company, because I consider that that Company does not deserve the assistance of any Indian, of any honest man, and because I consider that that Company has obtained its protection under false pretences, by stating that it is a national concern when it is not a national concern. Further, Sir, I hold that that Company does not need protection because it has so mismanaged its internal affairs, both financial and labour affairs, that we should be very chary of proceeding to give it the assistance it has demanded. We should declare that, unless and until that Company is prepared to treat its workers in a decent manner and behave towards the workers as they demand that the employers should behave towards them, no protection or assistance should be given by the Central Government. Sir, it is a matter of grave regret to me that any Member of this House should be found opposing a Resolution of this nature in view of the fact that a grave situation has arisen in Golmuri and the only thing we can do is to declare to the wide world what we mean, namely that we stand by the workers, by passing a vote of censure by means of this Resolution. I hope, Sir, that every Member will look upon it from this point of view, namely, that the only attempt that we can make now is to pass this Resolution and bring it to the notice of the Government that, as far as this concern is concerned, it has forfeited the confidence of the Members of this Legislative Assembly. (Cheers.)

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Twenty-five minutes to Three of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Twenty-five Minutes to Three of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

Mr. President: I saw Mr. Price rising two or three times. He has got an amendment on paper, but that amendment, I am afraid, is outside the scope of this Resolution.

Mr. E. L. Price (Bombay : European): Sir, with all respect, the Resolution raises the fiscal question and I only want to put it in its proper place.

Mr. President: I am afraid the scope of the Resolution is very limited. The Honourable Member wants to raise the whole fiscal policy of this country, which I cannot allow.

(Several Honourable Members rose to speak.)

Mr. President: Are Government going to speak?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Member for Industries and Labour): Do you want me to speak, Sir?

Mr. President: Yes.

L17CPB(LA)

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I should, Sir, at the outset like to say a few words about the attitude of the Government of India towards labour generally. I have on several occasions mentioned in this House that the Government of India have full sympathy with the real interests and legitimate aspirations of labour. This sympathy is not what may be called lip-deep. In the last 10 years the Government of India have passed, with the help of this House, a number of enactments intended to foster the welfare of labour, and quite recently they have persuaded His Majesty's Government to appoint a Royal Commission to investigate the conditions of labour in all its aspects. Those who have seen the list of various items into which that Commission will investigate must have realised that the investigation is going to be a very thorough one. Further, Sir, I have said on several occasions in this House that the Government of India welcome the growth of genuine trade unions in this country and their development on wholesome lines. And here, again, the fact that the Labour Commission will have on it three trade unionists, two of whom are well known in this country—I am referring to Mr. Joshi and Diwan Chaman Lall—as well as a trade unionist from England, shows that, so far as they are concerned, they welcome the development of trade unions in this country on wholesome lines.

Mr. President : What about Mr. K. Ahmed ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am very sorry, Sir, I forgot to mention the name of my friend Mr. K. Ahmed, who though he is not an active trade unionist at the present moment, has been the founder of the Seamen's Union in Calcutta.

Now, Sir, unfortunately the trouble in this country has been that trade unions have been dragged into the whirlpool of politics, (A voice : "Question ?") and there is a danger of labour being exploited by political parties. I have, for making that statement, the support of no less a person than Mahatma Gandhi. However, I have no desire to dilate on the point. Now, Sir, the position at Golmuri has unfortunately been complicated by that political feature. Here, again, I do not want to say more on the point than I must say, because I went to Jamshedpur about the end of June and I had an informal discussion with several labour leaders there. I see that they are treating this informal conference as more or less confidential and in the note on the Golmuri Tin-plate workers strike by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru which has been circulated among the Members of this House, I see that the incident is referred to very briefly. It is stated :

"I saw unofficially Giri, Doud and Mitra. Commissioner Dain and Homi were also present. Homi at this interview opposed the labour case."

That being so, I have no desire to dilate on what was discussed or what I heard at that particular informal conference. But, Sir, these facts are well-known. At the early stages of the strike of the Tin-plate workers, when it was undoubtedly of the nature of a trade dispute, an attempt was made by the President of the Labour Union, who was then Mr. Homi, to bring about a settlement. He managed to persuade the representatives of the employers to concede substantial concessions to the employees ; and, in spite of this and against his advice, the workers went on strike, and there is reason to believe that one of the causes which led to that unhappy result was political influence.

Several Honourable Members : Question ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Well, Sir, several Members have interjected "Question". As I have said, unfortunately it is not possible for me to disclose everything that I know, but I shall say this, that in a statement which was published in a bulletin of the Tin-plate Workers Union shortly after I left Jamshedpur, the following statement was ascribed to Mr. Homi :

"There is no strike in the Tin-plate Works and the Company is running the works as usual."

Well, if that statement is correct, and according to my personal information that statement is correct, then the strike had ceased to be an economic or trade dispute. The employees or the ex-employees had at the time, when they went on strike, managed to secure a substantial amount of concessions, and that is admitted in this note by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru also, which has been circulated among the Members of this House.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : But the Company failed to make good their promise.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I do not think that is correct in regard to all matters. I cannot find anything to that effect in this document. I know that in regard to certain matters like the re-employment of one or two dismissed persons, the allegation has been made that the Company failed to give effect to whatever assurances had been given. But there is no question, at least I have not seen it, stated anywhere in this document, that the Company withdrew the concessions they had promised to make to the workmen in regard to pay, bonus or Provident Fund. The position in the Tin-plate Works sometime after the middle of April was this : A large number of the old employees refused to come back to work. But at that time there was at Jamshedpur a large body of workmen not wholly unskilled but who had previously worked in the Tata Works, and who had been thrown out of employment by the retrenchment which took place in those works last year. As soon as the Tin-plate Works opened again sometime about the end of April, only a small portion of the old workers returned to work and a large number of these unemployed men sought employment in the works and were taken in. The Company, therefore, in a short time managed to secure its full complement of something like 3,000 workmen.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Were all of them employed in tin-plate work ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : As I have said, they were not wholly unskilled labourers because they had been employed for some time in the Tata Works. The fact that they possessed sufficient skill to pick up the ordinary work of a workman in the Tin-plate Works is established by the fact that, by the end of July, the outturn at the Tin-plate Works had reached the normal outturn before the strike, that is about 3,500 tons a month. The average output in the year 1927 was 3,500 tons a month against an estimated outturn of 3,000 tons. The outturn in February and March, 1929 was over 3,500. I went down to as low as 925 in April owing to the strike, but in August it had gone up to 3,670 tons. Then, Sir, the strike started again about the end of August. Here again my personal impression is that this was due more to political influences than to actual economic causes.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : What is all this political influence ? I want to know exactly what it means. This is referred to again and again.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have already said, Sir, that I do not want to be offensive to any of my Honourable friends on the other side.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Why does the Honourable Member make a statement which he cannot substantiate on the floor of this House ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : But the present position is that there are something like 3,200 men working in the Tin-plate Works; of these, 847 are old hands, and these old hands include a considerable number of Sylheti Mussalmans who have rejoined during the last few days. The outturn has again gone up to the pre-strike standard. These are the facts which I can give in connection with the so-called strike with reference to the information in my possession.

I shall now say a few words in regard to the action of the Bihar and Orissa Government in not appointing a Court of Inquiry under the Trade Disputes Act.

Mr. Ram Narayan Singh (Chota Nagpur Division: Non-Muhammadan) : Then you support that Government.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : It is not for me to make any apology on behalf of the Government of Bihar and Orissa. They have already given their reasons in full in the debate which took place in the Bihar and Orissa Legislative Council quite recently.

Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha (Gaya cum Monghyr : Non-Muhammadan) : It was carried in the Council.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I shall simply mention certain facts. I think some of the Honourable Members raised the question : "Why did not the Local Government appoint a Court of Inquiry when the strike took place in April ?" My Honourable friends apparently overlooked the fact that the Trade Disputes Act did not come into force till the 8th May, 1929. The further question has been asked : "Why the Government of Bihar and Orissa did not appoint a Court of Inquiry after the strike, even several months after the strike ?" In this connection my Honourable friends from Bombay, Mr. Winterbotham and Mr. Mody, have referred to the happenings in Bombay. Mr. Mody was good enough to admit that, at the outset, he was not in favour of the Court of Inquiry, but now that the Court of Inquiry has been appointed and has given its verdict, he is fully pleased with it. That is Mr. Mody's view. But I saw the other day an Indian News Agency telegram from Bombay of the 19th of this month that gives the views of the other party to the dispute. The telegram runs as follows :

"The Girmi Kamgar Union has opined that the Strike Enquiry Committee's report was intended to be utilised as a sinister campaign to discredit the Union."

However that does not matter. The point perhaps is that the Court of Inquiry would have satisfied public opinion. I think that is the point on which stress was laid by my Honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham. I have already referred the House to the reasons given by the Bihar and Orissa Government in their Legislative Council, and I think one of those reasons is that there was no public opinion in the province which demanded this Court of Inquiry. It must also be remembered that the number of employees involved was only 3,000 against a number of over a lakh involved in the trade dispute in Bombay. I can quite appreciate the attitude of Local Government when they feel that no useful purpose would be served by ordering a Court of Inquiry in every case, in a case where the number of workmen involved is only 3,000.

Mr. H. P. Mody : Is that what the Trade Disputes Act says ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I shall come to the Trade Disputes Act pretty soon.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Does that Act mention any number ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : It does not, but I shall come to the point soon.

I was dealing with the other argument given by the Local Government,—in the Honourable Mr. Whitty's speech in the Bihar and Orissa Council,—namely that no useful purpose would have been served by invoking the aid of the Act ; and that is also supported by reference to the fact that if a Court of Inquiry had been appointed, and if, on the basis of its findings, the new employees had to be got rid of, that would not have led to any solution of the problem. The further point they make is that no representative of the workmen at the earlier stages asked for a Court of Inquiry. My friend Diwan Chaman Lall said a little while ago that he had written to the Bihar and Orissa Government, but I really do not know what his status in the matter was. So far as I know he was not a recognised official of that particular Trade Union at Golmuri.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Sir, on a point of personal explanation, may I inform the Honourable Member that I was authorised by the Executive Committee of the Union to communicate with the Bihar and Orissa Government and ask them to appoint a Board of Conciliation.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That may be so, but why did not the Executive Committee of the Union at Golmuri communicate direct with the Government of Bihar and Orissa ? I have a good deal of information about my Honourable friend's activities, but unfortunately the trouble at present is the same everywhere in the labour world in India. It is difficult to find out who is the leader today and where he is tomorrow. My Honourable friend's interjection reminds me of a demonstration made at a particular place against him the other day.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Member supporting the Communists now ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am not supporting anybody now ; I am simply referring to facts.

Now, Sir, I think some of the Honourable Members have said that the Government of India must compel,—I think that was the word used,—the Bihar and Orissa Government to appoint this Court of Inquiry even now. My Honourable friends have overlooked the provisions of the Trade Disputes Act. That Act leaves absolute discretion in the matter with the Local Government,—I am referring to section 3 of the Act,—and the Government of India have no power under the provisions of that Act to compel a Local Government to take any particular line of action.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : What about the Government of India Act ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have referred to the provisions of the Government of India Act on a previous occasion. Under the Government of India Act the Government of India have the powers of superintendence, direction and control, but it is at any rate open to doubt whether they can use those powers to override the clear provisions of a particular Act. Moreover those powers in my opinion are not to be lightly used, and I am pretty sure that my Honourable friend over there, with his ideas of provincial autonomy, will not support an use of those powers on every conceivable occasion. In fact that is probably the reason why Mr. Nilkantha Das, in moving his Resolution, did not at all touch on that aspect of the case. It is, if I may say so, a very debatable point.

My friend Diwan Chaman Lall said, in the course of his speech, that he wanted some provision to be inserted in the Trade Disputes Act which would compel a Local Government to utilise the provisions of the Act relating to the formation of Courts of Inquiry and Boards of Conciliation on application from either party. Well, Sir, during the lunch interval 3 P.M. I turned up the proceedings of this House on that particular occasion and I found that my Honourable friend had neither the courage nor the patience to move any such amendment on the floor of the House.

Diwan Chaman Lall : The Honourable Member, Sir, is perfectly well aware of the fight that went on in the Select Committee on this particular point. That fight was conducted by me, and it was the Honourable Member over there who would not concede this point which was raised by me.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am not sure that the Honourable Member is correct in disclosing what happened in the Select Committee, particularly as it does not appear in the proceedings of the Select Committee. In any case, if the Honourable Member did press this point in the Select Committee, I did not constitute the only other member of that Committee. If, in spite of his protestations, the Select Committee did not accept the amendment proposed by him, I am not responsible for that. The Select Committee was a Committee of this House. Later on if the House passed the Act without the amendment for which my Honourable friend seems to have a certain amount of preference, there again the blame does not rest with me but with this House.

Now, Sir, apart from what I have said I have nothing more to say on behalf of the Government of Bihar and Orissa. As I have said, they have already dealt with the matter more fully in their own Legislative Council.

Mr. J. Y. Philip (Bengal: European): Mr. President, Sir, I had intended to speak at some length on the history and merits of the strike, but as I gather that it is not the desire of the House that the debate should proceed on those lines, I have decided to confine myself to a few items raised by Diwan Chaman Lall. The first point that I wish to deal with is the question of the eviction of the strikers from their houses. It has been stated that the Company started evicting the strikers from their quarters. The position is as follows. No man holding a regular permit has been evicted although hundreds have been occupying the quarters without paying the due rent since the strike started. Four cases have been instituted but no result is expected for some weeks. The only persons evicted have been men found occupying the houses without permits and who are therefore trespassers.

The next point related to dismissals. I may say, Sir, that I have taken considerable trouble both in Calcutta, and since I came to Simla, to get accurate statistics relating to the strike. With regard to dismissals the position is as follows. In January the number was 4, in February 3 and in March 7. Now, Sir, I do not think that any one will consider that, in view of the number of employees at Golmuri, the number of dismissals was excessive.

The next point related to the Pathan watchmen. Criticism has been levelled at the Company for employing these men. They were recruited to protect loyal workers from the so-called "peaceful picketers". The duty of these Pathan watchmen has been simply to watch and report, and since their appointment practically all the assaults have ceased.

Now, Sir, the only other point regarding which I wish to speak is the amazing statement referred to by Diwan Chaman Lall and contained in the paper circulated to us this morning.

I refer to the statement that the Company cut off the strikers' supply of water. Last evening, through my revered leader, Sir Darcy Lindsay, a rumour reached me that Pandit Motilal Nehru had received news to the effect that the strikers' water supply had been cut off. I could not believe that the statement was correct and last evening I wired the managing agents of the Tin-plate Company to ascertain the truth. With your permission, Sir, I shall read out their reply:

"Statement that strikers water supply cut off by company incorrect. Facts are that on Thursday evening the inhabitants of village near factory found water supply off and without reporting to company complained to Deputy Commissioner in Jamshedpur, three miles away. He informed company who early Friday morning found a valve shut by persons unknown and opened it again, thus remedying trouble. Company has had greatest difficulty in maintaining water supply to villagers as strikers have recently prevented all town water staff from working."

I am aware, Sir, that my statements, like those of Mr. Chaman Lall, will be regarded as ex parte; and until such time as his statements and the statements made on this side of the House can be examined by a Court of Inquiry or other similar body, I fear that neither side will agree as to the correctness of the other's statements. With these few remarks, Sir, I oppose the Resolution.

Pandit Motilal Nehru (Cities of the United Provinces: Non-Muhammadan Urban): Sir, I think all the facts bearing upon this Resolution have been brought out from this side of the House and also the opposite side. It would not have been necessary for me to intervene in this debate at all as all the materials are practically now before the House, and if I rise to say a few words, it is simply to emphasise the fact that this is not merely a party Resolution, that it is not engineered by Bihar politicians, but that the great Indian National Congress is behind it and fully supports it. Honourable Members might have noticed from the papers that I have circulated among them, that it was under the orders of the Working Committee of the Indian National Congress that its General Secretary took the trouble to go to the spot and conduct personal inquiries. The result of those inquiries he has embodied in a report which I have made available to all the Honourable Members of this House.

[Pandit Motilal Nehru.]

Now, Sir, on the one side, certain allegations have been made of gross ill-treatment of the workers at the hands of the Agents of the Tin-plate Company. On the other side there has been a very faint denial of those allegations. What I wish the House to confine its attention to for the present is the object of the Resolution and its scope. I must, however, before I enter into that, congratulate the non-official Benches on both sides on the unanimous and unqualified condemnation of the policy of the Bihar and Orissa Government. (Hear, hear.) It was, however, left to the Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra to defend that Government. Of course gentlemen on the Official Benches in this House must, in the very nature of things, be the official apologists for all officials, and specially those of the Local Governments; and therefore it was his duty to say that he at least could appreciate the ways and doings of the Bihar Government. He said that the Bihar Government had to deal with only three thousand men and that it was nothing like Bombay, where there was a very large number of men concerned. He was asked whether the Act attached any importance to numbers and whether it laid down any particular number to be the standard under which Government must not act. The reply was that he was coming directly to the provisions of the Trade Disputes Act, but when he did come to those provisions, all he said was that it was a matter entirely for the Local Governments. Well, Sir, we might pass over the justification and the defence put forward by the Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra on behalf of the Bihar Government. I am quite content to take the opinion of the non-official Members of this House on the question.

Now, Sir, I come to the scope of the Resolution. The Resolution asks for the necessary action to be taken by the Government of India to withdraw the protection that has been accorded to the Tin-plate Company under special circumstances; and in the course of the debate on that Resolution it has become necessary to deal with the treatment which the Tin-plate Company has been according to its workers. The Resolution does not, in terms, ask for any action to be taken under the Trade Disputes Act for the simple reason that it is not for the Government of India or for this House to initiate the proceedings under that Act. But on the facts disclosed in the course of the debate I say that it is the duty of the Government of India to ask the Government of Bihar and Orissa to do their duty, which they have so far neglected to do. But that is not all. That is only a side question which comes up in the debate, although it is a most material question for the sufferers, who have been out for more than five months on strike. Now, coming to the withdrawal of the protection, I submit that no stronger case could possibly have been made out for the withdrawal of any protection granted to any industry. Honourable Members will remember that the protection granted to this particular industry was not solely on the merits of this particular industry. It so happened that it was in the nature of an offshoot of the Tata Iron and Steel Works; it fulfilled a double purpose: the first was that a new industry was introduced into the country in which the labour of the country could find employment and which would supply in course of time the wants of the country.

The second purpose was that, by giving protection to the Tin-plate Company, the purchasers of at least a part of the production of the Tata

Steel and Iron Works were brought to their very door. If the Tata Steel and Iron Company made silly contracts with them and in the result stood to lose, that is neither here nor there. But the fact remains that the one-third of the capital which the Tatas had subscribed is now absolutely worthless,—it has no value whatever,—and the Tatas have assured the General Secretary of the Congress that they have actually written off that capital in their books. Well now, what remains? The one element which could be considered to have rendered this industry a national industry was its connection with the Tatas. The remaining two-third subscribers are all foreigners, and the only title to protection is the employment of Indian labour. The Tatas' share in the capital of the Company is now practically extinct—they are of course technically shareholders and they have technical rights to nominate Directors and so on, under the regulations,—but in the circumstances they would hardly feel called upon to exercise those rights, because they can bring them no good at all. Therefore, the only thing that remains is the question how national labour is benefited.

Now, Sir, my Honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham entered a very strong defence for the Tin-plate Company and denied the charge that they were inflicting sufferings upon the poor Indian workers and paying extravagant wages to the Welsh workers to earn profits. He showed by facts and figures that no profits had been made up to this day, and then he said,—I have got his very words here,—“The Company is in existence not for its own profit but for the benefit of labour”. Well, I must say that there the Honourable gentleman has laid it on too thick for this House. To say that the Burma Oil Company has not acquired shares in the Tin-plate Company for its own profit, but simply for the good of Indian labour is an astounding assertion to make. Is it a charitable association or a philanthropic association? Do you expect us to believe that the sole object of their travelling far afield from America to India and acquiring shares in this industry is to benefit Indian labour? That cannot deceive anybody.....

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : Sir, I am afraid the Honourable and learned Pandit is slightly misquoting me. What I said was that as up-to-date no profits had been made, it might be said that the company has been in existence, so far, solely for the benefit of Indian labour.....

Pandit Motilal Nehru : That is to say they do not claim it, but you give them credit for it.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : Yes.

Pandit Motilal Nehru : That will do. Now, throughout the debate I have not heard,—even from Mr. Philip who made a special reference, to ascertain the various facts brought out in the debate, to the Tin-plate Company,—we have not heard one word of contradiction of the state of things described in the note which I have circulated to the Members. There is no contradiction of the fact that, ever since the beginning of the strike, numerous attempts were made on behalf of the men to approach the management through different channels, but they invariably turned a deaf ear to all such representations.

Now, as to the Pathans, it is said, “Oh, well, they are there for the protection of the loyal workers”. What are the police doing? Are the police not at the entire disposal, as is alleged by personal observation in that note, of the Company? We know the significance of employing men whose business is to subvert law and order for the ostensible purpose of assisting the police or protecting private individuals. We have had enough experience of the employment of Pathans in Bombay and in other parts of India, and it is now too late in the day to convince even a child that a strong Company like the Tin-plate Company would go out of its way to import Pathans, to hobnob with them, to encourage them in various other ways, for the innocent purpose of keeping order in their factories. Is there any answer to the charge that the police are actually helping the Company, that the police go out taking lorries with them to recruit new workers, guarded by a police car in front and a police car behind the lorry? Is there any answer to the allegation made in that Report that when there was a free fight between the Pathans and the strikers with the usual weapons of war that are used in these cases, namely brickbats and stones, these strikers were charged by the Police, followed to their very homes, and some of them beaten inside their homes? There were numerous other cases of brutal treatment. I am not going into the history of the strike. I quite admit and agree that it is immaterial to do so for the purposes of the present Resolution but the treatment of the strikers is a most essential consideration bearing on the Resolution. If the strikers are treated in the manner alleged, I ask what answer is there to the demand of the withdrawal of protection?

My Honourable friend Mr. Mody said, it was a very dangerous principle, whenever there was any strike or labour trouble to come to this House and say that protection should be withdrawn from the industry concerned. I say if we are not to come to this House which granted protection and ask for its withdrawal, where else are we to go? It is this House which gives protection, and it is this House alone which can withdraw protection.....

Mr. H. P. Mody : Because there is a strike, therefore you must withdraw protection?

Pandit Motilal Nehru : I thought that even a millionaire, and a mill-owner had some human feeling. Was the strike in the Tin-plate Company, on the facts disclosed, just a mere strike? When you go to a Tribunal to get justice, you lay your facts before it. By this Resolution the Congress Party has come to this Tribunal, and it has laid the facts before the House, and if these facts which are uncontradicted mean anything, they afford eloquently testimony to the extreme lengths the employers have gone in ill-treating their employees. It is said that it is a mere strike. This is a strike, Honourable Members will bear in mind, which embraces Hindus, Mussalmans, Christians, Sikhs and others; it includes the whole staff not merely the manual labourer, but also clerks, accountants, and others.

Mr. President : Will the Honourable Member now conclude his observations?

Pandit Motilal Nehru : I will conclude at once. I have no desire to detain the House at any length, and I will not ask the grace of the Chair for even a minute. I will simply sit down with this remark, that I hope and expect that every Member of this House, at least every non-official Member, will vote in favour of this Resolution.

WITHDRAWAL OF PROTECTION FROM TIN-PLATE INDUSTRY.

An Honourable Member : Let the question be now put.

(The Honourable Sir George Rainy rose in his place.)

Pandit Nilakantha Das : May I ask, Sir, whether I have a right of reply before or after?

Mr. President : The Honourable Sir George Rainy.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I can assure my Honourable friend that I do not think having regard to considerations of time that you will permit me two speeches before 4 O'clock. I think, Sir, that the debate to which we have listened to-day has been one of more than the usual interest, and that for different reasons. All of us on the Government Benches quite clearly must have been impressed by what fell from two or three speakers on the Benches to my right. But my Honourable friend Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra has already dealt with that aspect of the case and what I propose to do in the few remarks that I shall make is to deal with the other side of the question, that is not the labour side but what perhaps I may call the tariff side of the question.

Now, several reasons have been placed before the House by speakers sitting opposite to me in order to justify their proposal that the protection given to the tinplate industry should now be withdrawn. Let me take first the argument that the Tinplate Company is a foreign company. That was dwelt upon both by the Honourable Pandit and by my Honourable friend Diwan Chaman Lall, and it seemed to me that perhaps the argument came more appropriately from the former than from the latter. The impression which some of the utterances to which I have listened in this House of my Honourable friend Diwan Chaman Lall is very much this, that capitalists of any nation are all equally to be condemned, and therefore when I heard him making the question of the nationality of a company depend upon the nationality of its shareholders, I half exclaimed to myself, "Is Saul also among the Prophets?" and I am not sure how "Prophets" should be spelt in that connection. (Laughter.) My Honourable friend Pandit Motilal, if he will allow me so to call him, and indeed he has never given me any reason to call him anything else—my Honourable friend put this point before the House, namely, that since Rs. 25 lakhs which the Tata Iron and Steel Company invested in the Tinplate Company is now practically worthless and has been written down by that Company to nil in its balance sheet, and therefore, so far as capital was concerned, it could not be said that there was any Indian national element in the Company. It is quite true, I believe, that since 1927, when the Steel Industry Protection Bill became law, the capital has been written down. But I think, and I speak from a pretty full knowledge of the circumstances, that in 1927, at the time the Tariff Board reported and before the Act became law, it would have been clear to anyone who was at all acquainted with the circumstances that there was very little prospect of either the Tata Iron and Steel Company or the Burma Oil Company, the only two shareholders, receiving any appreciable dividend on their ordinary capital. Certainly, the protective duty that was then imposed by the Act was not large enough to hold out much prospect of a high return to either of them. But I think my Honourable friend the Pandit overlooked another point in connection with this tinplate industry. I presume that what he contemplates is that, if the protection is withdrawn, the Tinplate Company will have to shut down and the effect on the Tata Iron and Steel Company would be that they would have to find a market for 40,000 or 50,000 tons of steel per annum which at present is taken over and manufactured by the Tin plate Company. I do not think that that is a matter which the Tata Iron and Steel Company would regard as at all negligible.

I will pass on, Sir, to one other argument, sometimes explicitly stated and sometimes implied in what the speakers said. It was implied that owing to the protective duty the consumers and the tax-payers of this country were contributing large sums to the profits of this foreign company. Now, the point made by my Honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham was just this, that whatever may happen in the future, the tax-payers and the consumers have not contributed to profits because there have been no profits. All that they have been asked to do so far is to contribute towards the reduction of losses, and had there been no protective duty, the losses would have been even higher than they have actually been.

These are the arguments put forward to-day, which might have been put forward—some of them were put forward—in 1924 and 1927, and again in 1926 when the question of supplementary protection came before the House. On these three several occasions the House, knowing the facts, approved the grant of protection to the tin plate industry and on no single occasion in those three years was a division challenged. Therefore, in so far as the case for the withdrawal of protection is based upon the arguments which I have been criticising, Honourable Members are criticising the action taken by this House and by the Legislature as a whole on three different occasions. I will come therefore to what is new in the case put forward today.

I think reference has been made by one speaker to questions connected with oil, but apart from that, the case against the Tin plate Company has been based entirely on its relations with its labour. Now, Sir, I want on that point to read one passage from the Report of the Tariff Board in 1926. I was not a member of the Board at that time, the Report was submitted by Sir Padamji Ginwala and his colleagues on the statutory inquiry. This is what they said :

“ We have made a careful examination of the general conditions of Indian labour at Golmuri. The average scale of wages compares favourably with that paid to similar classes of labour in other industrial centres. In addition to this, excellent housing arrangements have been made by the Company at its own expense. About half the labour is accommodated in well built houses, most of which are provided with water-borne sanitation and the rents charged are moderate.

The remainder of the workmen live in houses built by themselves partly with their own money and partly with money advanced by the company. There is ample supply of filtered water for the whole population, free medical treatment which is provided not only for the workmen and their families but for all applicants ; arrangements for the education of the children have been made in conjunction with the Tata Iron and Steel Company.”

Now, Sir, nobody will say that Sir Padamji Ginwala and his colleagues were likely to be prejudiced in favour of the Tin plate Company. No one has ever attempted to impugn their impartiality, and I claim emphatically that the record of the Company in relation to its labour is a good record. Therefore, it comes back to this that all that can be alleged against the Company dates back only to January last and to the strike which broke out in April. That is really what it comes to. I can divide what has been said on that point under three heads. In the first place, particular actions or alleged actions of the Tin-plate Company have been condemned. The Honourable Pandit said that only a very faint denial had been offered from this side of the House to the many statements of fact contained in the pamphlet which he so courteously circulated to us yesterday. Now, Sir, I received that pamphlet when I got home from this Assembly at a quarter to nine last night and it is not quite reasonable to expect me to verify, and either confirm or contradict, every statement of fact contained in that pamphlet. It strikes me, indeed, as a new way of conducting debate in this House to circulate all your statements of fact the night before and, unless people are in a position to challenge them on the opposite side the following day, to claim that the House should accept them as gospel truth. Surely, that is not quite reasonable.

Pandit Motilal Nehru : My point was that this subject was before the House for a number of days and that these were the points which would naturally arise.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I quite admit that the Resolution has been before the House for a number of days and Members have no doubt done their best to acquaint themselves with the facts, but I think my Honourable friend put his claim a little too high. My Honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham, and other speakers also, drew attention to the undesirability of deciding this important matter on one-sided statements. Now, clearly the narrative in the pamphlet is a one-sided statement. I do not deny that some of the statements it contains appear to be perfectly correct, but in the nature of the case it must be in the main and on the whole an one-sided statement. Now, I think that if the House on the strength of statements of that character were to come to a definite decision that the protection formally given by an Act of the Legislature should be withdrawn, it would be setting a most undesirable and unfortunate precedent. Another point was this that as a result of the action of the Company, the training of Indians, to which Members of this House attach very great importance, would be very seriously retarded. Admittedly that must be the result. There must be some retardation. But my Honourable friend Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra pointed out that, in spite of the fact that some of the new labourers were not as efficient as the old, nevertheless in the month of August the output of the works had gone up to over 3,600 tons, which is a higher average rate of production than the company has yet attained in any one complete year. That, I think, shows that the retardation is by no means so serious as my friend the Honourable the Mover would have us believe. Finally, the point taken was that the whole attitude of the company since the outbreak of the strike towards its labour was unreasonable. Now, assuming it to be so for purposes of argument, still I maintain that it is not a reason why the protection afforded by the Steel Industry Protection Act of 1927 should be withdrawn from this industry. That argument implies a conception of what a protective tariff means and the way in which it is possible to work—a conception which I believe to be fundamentally mistaken. The point was considered by the Select Committee in 1927 as appears from their report. On the question whether special conditions should be imposed on firms enjoying the benefit of protection, they say :

"We considered but were unable to accept a suggestion for the amendment of the Bill so as to include provisions for securing the welfare of labour, for the limitation of dividends and so on. We think that the difficulties in the way of incorporating provisions of this kind in this Bill are insuperable."

Subsequently, my Honourable friend Diwan Chaman Lall moved an amendment for the introduction into the Bill of provisions of that kind, relating to provident fund, maternity and housing. That provision was negatived without a division. Now, Sir, that meant and must mean that the House did not attach conditions to the grant of protection, for if the Legislature desired that firms enjoying protection should comply with certain conditions, in common fairness those conditions should have been laid down beforehand ; you cannot turn round subsequently and say, "You have not been behaving nicely, and you shall not get protection any more". It is utterly impossible to attract capital to industries under any system of that sort. That, Sir, is the point that I wish to bring to the notice of the House. Naturally, I am deeply interested in the success of the policy of discriminating protection because I have been associated with it personally from the start and I do warn the House that it is a most dangerous thing, if you mean business, to create an impression that protection may be granted or withheld according to what people will feel to be caprice and not a reasoned policy steadfastly adhered to. For that reason, Sir, I would appeal to the House not to commit itself to the approval of a principle which I am convinced is thoroughly unsound. In particular, I would appeal to those who feel, as some speakers have felt, that the action of the Bihar and Orissa Government in not appointing a Court of Inquiry was very difficult to justify. I should be very sorry if a single vote was influenced by the feeling that because the Bihar and Orissa Government have been wicked, therefore it was right to punish the Tin-plate Company for the question, however you may condemn the attitude.

Mr. President : Order, order. The Honourable Member is exceeding his time-limit.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I shall only complete the sentence, Sir. The result would be that the vote of any Member who is influenced by considerations of that kind would have been influenced by a minor and trivial matter and not by any solid ground of principle.

Several Honourable Members : The question may be now put.

Mr. President : The question is that the question be now put. The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : The question is that the following Resolution be adopted. (Pandit Nilakantha Das rose in his place.) Does the Honourable Member wish to reply ?

Pandit Nilakantha Das : I shall finish in two minutes, Sir.

Sir, though in course of the debate there have arisen so many points for reply, for want of time, I wish to make only one point clear. The issue that the protection should be withdrawn rests upon one reason amongst other reasons which is purely economic in its character and that is that the Tariff Board recommended protection on the express understanding that this technical industry should, in course of time, be manned by trained Indians who would replace very high paid foreigners. The Company, in their statement, say that it took three years to train the first batch of technical men. If, then, by freaks or zid like this from time to time they disband all trained labour and take new labour at their will, and keep out the trained men at the point of the bayonet, we do not see how we can continue this protection which we are giving. This is the main point at issue for which I propose that this assistance should be withdrawn. This is the only issue, that they should either give an undertaking to take in all the workers whom they have trained ; otherwise the protection is unnecessary and it is a loss to the tax-payer. My friend, the Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra, gave some figures which show that, even after the strike in August, the outturn came to 3,650 tons that month. But I think the figures which were supplied to him are misleading, for they perhaps include, as far as I can say, scrap as well as good articles which are all put together ; together, they might come to this figure, but the output, as it should be calculated, has never reached the normal production since the day of the strike and there is no likelihood of its reaching that figure. Therefore I propose for this amongst other reasons to withdraw this protection.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That is the outturn of tin plate.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : That ? the scrap ?

Mr. President : The question is that the following Resolution be adopted :

"This Assembly recommends to the Governor General in Council that he may be pleased to undertake an amendment of the Steel Protection Act, 1927, with a view to withdraw the protection granted thereunder to the tin-plate industry in India."

The Assembly divided :

RESOLUTION RE STIPENDS OF THE MEMBERS OF THE CARNATIC FAMILY.

Mr. President : Mr. Kabeer-ud-Din Ahmed will take half a minute to move his Resolution and I call upon him to do so.

Mr. K. Ahmed (Rajshahi Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I beg to move :

“ This Assembly recommends to the Governor General in Council that the stipends of the members of the Carnatic Family which were discontinued on account of their participation in the Khilafat movement be restored to them with retrospective effect.”

Sir, in moving this Resolution.....

Mr. President : Order, order : The Honourable Member will not have to ballot again. That is the advantage in moving his Resolution.
 Mr. Munshi.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT.

TREATMENT OF BUDDHIST MONKS IN JAILS IN BURMA.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi (Burma : Non-European) : Sir, I move :

“ That the House do now adjourn to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation arising out of the action and policy of the Government refusing the use of the yellow robe to Burman Buddhist monks, who are imprisoned in the jails of Burma—and more particularly Burman Buddhist monks convicted of political offences in Burma—which has already resulted in the death of U Wizaya in consequence of prolonged hunger-strike and which is likely to involve further loss of life.”

Sir, I do not propose to detain the House at any great length on this motion. The facts which have necessitated this motion are well known to this House. I shall only refer to a few facts to explain the situation which led to the hunger-strike. Al Wizaya, Sir, was a great Burman patriot. He was a Buddhist priest. In Burma the fight for liberty and progress, which is characterised by officials as political agitation, is carried on mostly not by laymen, not by lawyer politicians, who are so obnoxious to the Government of India, but by Buddhist monks and priests who are called Pongyis. As the House probably knows, a Buddhist monk or priest cannot own property, he cannot have any earthly possession ; and all that this body of selfless patriots have fought for is the progress and freedom of their motherland.

TREATMENT OF BUDDHIST MONKS IN JAILS IN BURMA.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Why do they take to politics ?

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : Because they wish to free their country from the present conditions.

Sir, Al Wizaya was charged more than once under section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code for delivering “ seditious ” speeches. We all know what the phrase “ seditious speeches ” means. The political history of India of the past 20 years shows the ever-changing interpretation to which courts have placed on this particular section when applying it to “ seditious ” speeches. What now meets with approval would not have been tolerated a few years ago and would then have resulted in certain prosecution and conviction. I will cite one instance. Only the other day my Honourable friend Sir James Crerar stated on the floor of this House that he admired the “ studied moderation ” of the speeches delivered by Mr. Jinnah and Mr. Jayakar. Sir, the able and forceful speeches delivered by these two Honourable Members are still fresh in our minds. One sentence in Mr. Jinnah’s speech stands out in my memory. He referred to “ this damned system of Government ” being responsible for violent political crime in this country. We have now reached a stage when these sentiments are regarded as “ studied moderation ”. Two years hence there will be a further change in the official angle of political vision, and two years hence the “ seditious ” utterances, for which this great humble patriot went to jail and laid down his life, will also be characterised as statements of “ studied moderation ”. Now, Sir, after Al Wizaya had been convicted of one offence under section 124-A, he was once again charged with another offence under the same section ; and when he was undergoing his trial for this second offence he was denied the use of the yellow robe ; and after he had tried every constitutional means of having his grievances redressed, he went on hunger-strike. He did not do it in a hurry. He did not do it as a political gesture. He did it because there was no other way open to him to enforce his religious rights. (Hear, hear.) To enforce his religious rights this unfortunate man put himself to untold suffering and torture day after day gradually losing mental and bodily strength. When he was in this condition, he was tried and convicted for another offence under section 124-A. When he was being tried for the second offence he was not in a fit condition to be removed from his cell. He was not in a fit condition to attend the court, but the learned Sessions Judge, resourceful judicial officer that he was, did not wait for the Hunger-Strike Bill. He removed himself and his court to the prison and he held his court in the prison. That, Sir, was one of the greatest mockeries ever perpetrated in India. The mockery of a trial took place in the Rangoon

L17CPB(LA)

[Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi.]

Central Jail. This unfortunate man, who was not in a fit condition to stand, who could not understand what was being said to him, who could not answer any question, who could not possibly cross-examine the evidence which was led against him, this unfortunate man had to undergo this mockery of a trial in the jail. A sentence of six years transportation was given to this monk. Six years transportation given to a man tried when he was practically on the verge of death. (Cries of "Shame, shame".)

Now, Sir, what was the demand, that this Burman Buddhist monk made? He was not raising questions which were raised in the Lahore conspiracy case. He reduced his demand to one straight, simple and basic issue, his religion and his God. A Burman Buddhist monk must wear his yellow robes on certain days. All that he asked was that he and other Burman Buddhist monks imprisoned in the jails of Burma should be allowed to wear the yellow robes, not even every day, but during those two days in the month when it is incumbent on them to fast and offer certain prayers.

Sir, there is at present in Burma, fortunately for the people of Burma, an Indian Inspector General of Prisons, Colonel P. K. Tarapore, I.M.S., a very able prison administrator and an enthusiastic jail reformer, a most sympathetic man who combines a robust sense of justice and humanity with a strict sense of jail discipline. I believe, Sir, that this Indian Inspector General of Prisons backed up the demand of Al Wizaya that he should be allowed the use of the yellow robe in prison in order to comply with the dictates of his religion and his duty to God. But the Government of Burma turned a deaf ear to all appeals. The Government of Burma turned down the recommendation made by this Indian Inspector General of Prisons, with the result that Al Wizaya continued his hunger-strike—all for his religion, mark you, Sir, I ask the House to make a careful note of this, all for his religion, and for no other issue. Then when he had practically lost consciousness, when he had practically lost all his senses, when one after another his limbs refused to function, when the man, although not dead, did not yet know that he was alive, then and then alone the august Government of Burma came down from their high pedestal and restored to him his yellow robe, restored the yellow robe to this man, Sir, who was lying almost as a corpse on his bed. When the Government of Burma restored the yellow robe to this unfortunate man, they realised that no human remedy, no human endeavour could make the man come to life once again.

I wish to give to the House another aspect of the suffering of this unfortunate man. We have all read that he observed hunger-strike for 162 days. The House can very well realise that no human being can be alive after a prolonged hunger-strike for 162 days. He was forcibly fed. Here also, Sir, I have to make a statement, for which although I have no official authority, I challenge the Government of India to deny that the Indian Inspector General of Prisons expressed himself strongly against this brutal and most inhuman method of forcible feeding. By this method of forcible feeding, he was kept alive till the very organs which were tortured in the process of this forcible feeding refused to function. (Cries of "Shame, shame".)

Before I proceed further I wish to make it perfectly clear that I have no official authority or information with regard to the statements made about the Inspector-General of Prisons; these statements are based on general information available to the public from various un-official sources.

Now, Sir, what is the demand that I lay before the Government of India? It is not an extravagant demand, it is not an unfair demand, it is not an unreasonable demand; it is a simple request to respect the religious wishes, the religious dictates of a particular class of His Majesty's subjects ("Hear, hear" and Applause.) I stand to-day for no spectacular glory, I stand to-day for no political triumph, I want to appeal to the House with all the earnestness on my part that House should grant the right to Buddhist monks to wear the yellow robes in consonance with the dictates of their religion. All that I want from the Government of India is an assurance on two points (1) that all Burman Buddhist monks imprisoned in the jails of Burma will be allowed to wear the yellow robes, and (2) that the conditions of treatment in the jails of Burma will be investigated along with the conditions prevailing in the jails of other provinces, an investigation which, I understand, is already proceeding. The Government of India are ready to concede the second point; but I understand that they refuse to concede the first point without consulting their masters, the Government of Burma. Well, Sir, Burma has not yet been separated from India. Although the administration of jails is a provincial reserved subject, the Government of India cannot wholly divest themselves of their responsibility for the administration of jails in British India. The Government of India claim that they are responsible for the maintenance of Law and Order in the whole of British India. I am equally their duty and their responsibility to see that the jails in every province in British India are administered properly and humanely and that the treatment given to prisoners in jails meets with the approval of this House and not merely the approval of the Burma Government. ("Hear, hear" and Applause.)

Now, Sir, what is the position of the Government of Burma? The Government of Burma seem to think that because the Bay of Bengal separates them from this House they can do as they like. They think that nobody can question their action; they feel that nobody can interfere with their despotic autocracy. Sir, it is up to this House now to give the Government of Burma an answer in no unmistakable terms that, so long as this House is in existence and so long as Burma forms part of British India, this House will always stand as the bulwark of defence and protection between the people of Burma and the despotic autocracy of the Government of Burma. ("Hear, hear" and Applause.)

Now, Sir, what are the issues involved in this motion? Not only the narrow, although very important, issue of censure but a much bigger constitutional issue is involved. This House will today tell the Government of Burma how it proposes to deal with the Province of Burma so long as she remains a part of British India. In this connection I shall read to the House a few short extracts from the Memorandum presented by the Government of Burma to the Simon Commission urging the separation of Burma from India. The Burma Government's motive is obvious. After separation such questions cannot be raised in this House.

the people of Burma must be left for ever to the tender mercies of the Government of Burma. This is what the Memorandum says :

" Most of the important questions affecting the Indian Empire are discussed in the Indian Legislature, particularly in the Indian Legislative Assembly. This Assembly is composed of 143 Members, and Burma is represented by one official and four elected Members. Thus the representation of Burma is too weak to exercise any influence in the Assembly."

Well, Sir, it is for this House now either to say that this remark is justified, or to give the lie direct to it. Is this House going to neglect the interests of Burma because the Bay of Bengal separates it from India? Is this House going to neglect the interests of Burma because she is represented in this House only by four Members?

Some Honourable Members : No, no.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : My Honourable Muslim friends, who are always fighting for the rights of minorities and for the redress of the grievances of minorities, how are they going to treat today this question relating to the Burman minority in this House? Sir, the Government of Burma go on to state :

" The Assembly quite properly devotes much time to such questions as infant marriage, age of consent and the Devadasi problem, but none of these questions affect Burma."

" It is difficult therefore, to get representative Burmans to stand for the Assembly and those who are elected often have not sufficient inducement to make the long and tiresome journey to Simla and Delhi. The present Governor of Burma,"

I particularly want to draw the attention of the House to these remarks :

" The present Governor of Burma knows from personal experience that usually the greater part of a Session and sometimes the whole Session will go by without the appearance of the characteristic Burmese dress in the Assembly. From the nature of things Burma has not, and never can have, any effective voice in shaping policy in the Indian Legislature."

These, Sir, are the words of His Excellency Sir Charles Innes. Sir, the House today will record by its vote whether these words, uttered by the Government of Burma and adopted by His Excellency Sir Charles Innes as being his own conviction and opinion, are well deserved, or whether they are a libel on this House. Sir, I remind my friends in this House that there is a population of one million Indians in Burma, and that the future of these one million Indians depends on the friendly relations between Indians and Burmans. Their future depends on how this House and the Indian elected Members of this House treat Burma and the Burmans. This vote today is not merely going to determine the question of censure on Government for the inhuman treatment of this particular prisoner or the unreasonable refusal of the yellow robe. It goes further. This House will today tell Burma how it will deal with Burmese questions when they come up before this House in spite of Burma's inadequate representation here. Sir, I move the adjournment of the House. (Loud and prolonged applause.)

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Home Member) : Sir, I must confess that, when I first received notice of the Honourable Member from Burma's intention to move the adjournment of the House, I speculated on the precise issues which I should be called upon to meet. It appeared to me that the wider issue relating to the treatment of jail prisoners which has already been fully discussed at great length would not presumably be brought in and I should not be called upon to deal with that matter. From the revised terms of the Honourable Member's motion I anticipated that I should be called upon to deal with the particular causes which led to the hunger-strike and the unfortunate decease of the prisoner in question. I did not anticipate that I should be called upon to deal with a very large constitutional question, and I doubt whether in the time at my disposal it will be possible for me to follow that Honourable gentleman into that constitutional ground.

The real issue before the House as set out in the motion is I think the particular causes which led to the hunger-strike and to the decease of the prisoner. Now, Sir, that matter is one which has very direct reference to local circumstances and local conditions; and I doubt very much myself whether, without intimate local experience of those special circumstances and conditions, it is possible for us to arrive at an informed judgment in the matter. However, Sir, as my time is limited I shall deal as briefly as possible with the actual facts of the case.

There is one point on which I touch with the utmost reluctance, and I do so because the Honourable Member has raised the point, and if I did not deal with it myself, it would leave the House with a wrong idea as to the actual facts. The prisoner in question had several convictions against him, and in the carrying out of the last sentence he was treated with exceptional consideration, the original sentence of rigorous imprisonment being commuted to one of simple imprisonment. He was then charged once more with an offence, as the Honourable Member has explained, under section 124A. It was not a technical offence under that section. It was an offence which, I think everyone will agree, was a grave one. In point of fact it was an incitement to the assassination of Government officials and to the use of the bomb. He was tried and convicted, with the concurrence of all the Burman assessors, and when the Honourable Member adverted to the fact that he was sentenced to a term of six years he did not mention the fact that the Local Government commuted it to half that period.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : Almost the whole of it was commuted; he will not serve the remaining five years now.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I was saying that the Local Government commuted it to three years.

Now, Sir, the terms of the Honourable Member's motion would undoubtedly convey an impression to this House that the sole demand which has been made, and which the Local Government found themselves unable to comply with, was the wearing of the yellow robe. That, Sir, is not the case. The hunger-strike was started on a complaint as regards diet, and that complaint was promptly remedied. The Superintendent of the jail was authorised to give whatever diet was necessary on medical grounds. It was then that two demands were made, only one of which the Honourable Member has referred to. The first related to the wearing of the yellow robe and the second related to a fast.

Mr. President : Order, order. All that the Honourable the Mover wants is an assurance from Government that the Buddhist monks would be allowed to wear the yellow robe. If the Honourable Member restricts himself to that alone the matter will be much simplified.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : My point, Sir, was this. I think the motion calls attention to the actual causes of the hunger-strike, and I cannot, without leaving the case incomplete, omit any reference to one of the two demands made with which the Local Government were unable to comply. I shall deal briefly with it and it is this, that all monks convicted of offences should be allowed, in addition to wearing the yellow robes, to fast in a particular shrine, which I understand is known in Burmese as a thein.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya (Allahabad and Jhansi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, will the Honourable Member give us the date when that demand about the yellow robe was first made ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I believe, Sir, it was made somewhere about the middle of April, but I cannot give the exact date. But my point is, and I think the House will agree that it is a practical point and one which I ought to make clear, that the second demand which was equally insisted upon, was that all convicted Burmese monks should be allowed to fast in theins. Now the Government of Burma, having taken the advice of persons conversant with the principles of the Burmese religion, found,—they were considering the possibility of erecting temporary shrines of this character,—that it is prescribed that such shrines must be of a permanent character, they must be endowed by a layman and must be, as I understand, under ecclesiastical jurisdiction. In other words, these were conditions which were practically impossible of fulfilment.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : Sir, is the Honourable Member suggesting that the Government of Burma were prepared to provide a thein if a founder could be had and if a Burman Buddhist layman could be found to endow it ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : My information is that the Burmese Government did examine the possibility of providing temporary theins and found it impossible to provide them.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : They rejected the proposal summarily and contemptuously.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : That is not my information. Sir, I hope the House will understand the impracticability of the second demand, because it was quite impossible for the Burmese Government to provide shrines of that character and satisfy the essentially necessary religious conditions in every jail in Burma or indeed in any jail in Burma. Now, Sir, I will deal more specifically with the question of the yellow robe. The point, I submit, is really not political question ; it is a religious and administrative question, and the question is this ; whether clerics who have offended against the law are to be treated in any manner differently from laymen. That is not a contention, which, on the various occasions on which prison conditions in India have been rigorously scrutinised, has ever to my knowledge been advanced. There is no such pressure in India, and I think Honourable Members will agree that, if a claim could be advanced to be treated in a special manner on the ground of a special sacerdotal position or character by any one who said he was a Sadhu or Fakir, it would be a practical impossibility. Nor indeed in England is there any provision for the treatment of a clerical offender in any way different from a lay offender. I cannot see in what manner that course could be justified. The issue that present itself to us is really that. It is really a question whether special rules of treatment can properly be applied to persons who claim a clerical character as distinct from the ordinary layman ; and there are special reasons peculiar to Burma—I confess I do not speak as one thoroughly conversant with Burmese conditions—and I regret very much that the Honourable Member who used to sit opposite is unfortunately absent from us to-day because he could speak with far greater authority than I can—I understand that, having regard to the rules of the Buddhist monkhood, the nature of the obligations, moral and religious, which a Buddhist monk takes on himself when he enters the monastic order, is of a character which is quite impossible to be carried out in jail. For example, I understand that a Buddhist monk must beg his food, “ by the labour of his feet ”. Now, I say it is a very regrettable circumstance that any member of a monastic order should be an offender against the law and be confined in jail, but I think it is clear to the House that if those are, as I am assured they are, the absolutely inevitable and unavoidable conditions of complying with the rules of the order, any one who becomes an offender against the law and is confined in a prison cannot possibly, under any conceivable system of jail administration, be allowed to fulfil them. And I am told further that there is nothing in the tradition of the country which would support such a claim. I am told on the best authority that, during the regime of the Burmese Kings, a monk who became an offender was deprived of his priestly robes and was treated as an ordinary offender. There are no means.....

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : Will the Honourable Member state his authority for that proposition ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Yes ; the authority is a memorandum which was prepared many years ago, in 1890, by a learned Burmese who was then, I understand, the Oriental Translator to the Burmese Government, and I have no doubt that he wrote his memorandum after a very careful scrutiny of the records of the Burmese Kingdom. But, Sir, I do not want to urge that point too far. There are now provisions, which I understand in that regime did not exist at all, by which if a monk satisfies the conditions of eligibility as a special class prisoner, he is and can be allowed to wear his yellow robes ; but as a general proposition the distinction between a clerical offender and a lay offender is one to which I confess I can find no precedent either in England or anywhere else.

I cannot, Sir, at this stage, as I have already occupied the time at my disposal, embark upon the constitutional question raised by the Honourable Member. Indeed, I venture to think that it is really irrelevant to the implications of this motion, and I trust that, because I pass it over in silence, it will not be concluded that I was not prepared to give a reply. But I do not wish to trespass either upon the rules of relevance or upon the patience of this House.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : Sir, I rise to support the motion of adjournment and I do so with great regret. I have heard the speech of the Honourable the Home Member with full attention, and I am sorry to find that he has not seen his way to accept the recommendation contained in the motion. He said that the offence of sedition was a grave offence. Yes, it is. But I wish that he and every member of the Civil Service serving in India should revise his idea of what is sedition now in view of the declaration which has been made that India is on the way to responsible government. Much of what was sedition a few years ago ceased to be sedition when that announcement was made. When India is crying out against the existing system of Government and is asking for the establishment of full Dominion Status at the earliest period possible, it is time that members of the Civil Service and all foreigners serving in India should revise their opinion as to what constitutes sedition.....

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I regret very much to interrupt the Honourable and learned Pandit, but I do not think he quite correctly represents what I said. I was not speaking in general terms, but I explained that the particular offence in point, for the reasons which I gave to the House, was a specially grave offence.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : What was the offence ? Was it not under 124A ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : It took the form of an incitement to murder Government officials and the employment of the bomb.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : I do not know that that would come in under 124A, that would be a different offence. But I have not got before me the speech upon which this deceased patriot of Burma was convicted, and I am therefore not in a position to reply to my Honourable friend fully. But I take it that Mr. Wizaya was tried under section 124A, and I submit that every Burman, every Indian is entitled to condemn in the strongest possible terms the existing system of administration (Hear, hear) which is a foreign bureaucratic system of administration, and I am not surprised that, in Burma, which was taken possession of only recently, there should be more patriots found to denounce the existing system than there are to be found in India. I submit all honour should be paid by every Englishman, by every Britisher, by every lover of liberty, to the man who stands up and has the courage to denounce this foreign administration and who desires that this country should once more become a self-governing country. In that view, every man who is convicted of a political offence like that which falls under section 124A, namely that of condemning the existing system and advocating the establishment of self-government, ought to be treated by our British fellow subjects with respect and sympathy. If a man has actually been guilty of murder or any other violent crime of that character, I can understand that his treatment as a prisoner should be of a somewhat different character ; but for entertaining and expressing the opinion that his country should once more be free, as it was before the British entered it, no Indian and no Burman should be condemned, and certainly ought not to be treated like an ordinary felon. If this religious monk felt the impulse within him—I am told he was a patriot of burning patriotism, and all honour to his memory for having been such a patriot—if this patriot felt that, though he was sent to jail under the law which was administered in that country by Britishers who had no right to enter his country, if he felt that he should speak against the existing system, and if he was convicted for it, let him bear the punishment which the law of the land as it is now administered there inflicts upon him ; but for God's sake, for the sake of everything fair and just, let him be treated like a man who ought to be respected because the manhood in him has not been entirely destroyed by living under this system. And, what did this monk ask for ? Special diet ? My Honourable friend mentioned that that was the first demand, and he said that that was complied with. I hope it was complied with without a hunger-strike. The second demand was that he should be allowed to wear the yellow robes which the Burman monks wear,—on two special days in the month. He evidently felt, and he had reason to feel, that though he had spoken against the existing system of administration, he had not, in doing so, offended his God or injured his country, and he did feel that he should not for that reason be deprived of his right to follow the particular method and form of worshipping his God on two specially sacred days in the month, and to feel that though a prisoner he was still a devotee and a worshipper of God in the manner that was traditional in his country. The yellow robes were dear to him, not because they brought him any bodily comfort, but because they were the insignia of his having dedicated himself absolutely selflessly to the service of his motherland and his people, and I submit, Sir, that the moment the demand to wear his yellow robes was made, it should have been complied with. Political prisoners, prisoners who have been condemned for having spoken against the existing systems of Government, have been treated better in all civilized countries, and political prisoners are being certainly treated much better in England than they are in India. It is right that they should be so treated, and I submit that, whoever it may be, whether a monk or a non-monk, who ever has been convicted under section 124A for having expressed opinions against the existing system of Government, and has not been found guilty of murder or any other similar violent crime,—such a man should never be treated as this Burman patriot was treated. I submit Government would have lost nothing if they had acceded to the request made by the said monk, because he would still have been under the jail discipline, but he would have felt the satisfaction that, though he had offended against the law enacted by foreigners who had no right to enter his country, he was none the less a thoroughly honourable man, as honourable as any man ever born anywhere.

Sir, the Honourable the Home Member made much of the second demand made by this patriot that he should be allowed to fast for two days in the month in a temple. I submit, Sir, a political prisoner like the deceased patriot should have been allowed that privilege. In England you allow prisoners to go out occasionally on parole for several days at a time for humane considerations. Why did you not make the very limited special concession that the monk asked for ? If the man wanted to go out of the jail to enjoy any pleasure, if he wanted to go out for any ordinary selfish or personal purpose, such a request might well have been refused. But what did he want to do ? He merely wanted to go for a short time to a place which he regarded as holiest on earth, he wanted to go to a temple to pray on two days in a month. I submit, Sir, nothing wrong would have happened, no grave consequences would have followed if his prayer was granted. You allow a prisoner who has been convicted and is undergoing imprisonment to go out of the jail, to go to a court of justice, in order to stand a second charge if one is brought against him. Why did you not allow this monk, who was a man devoted to worship, why did you not allow him to go out under proper guard to one of the temples twice a month to enable him to have the inspiration and solace of religion in his imprisonment.....

Mr. President : I do not want to interrupt the Honourable Member, but so far as I have been able to understand the Honourable the Mover, he wants merely that his demand, that the religious monks be allowed yellow robes, should be complied with, and that the Government should give an assurance in that behalf.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : And that demand the Burma Government refused.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : Quite true, Sir, but I refer to the other demand also because the Honourable the Home Member dwelt on it. That is my justification for referring to it here. I submit, Sir, that the second demand also could and should have been dealt with and disposed of satisfactorily. Sir, I appeal to all my friends, Englishmen, Scotchmen, Irishmen, whatever country they may belong to, who are in the service of the Government of India, to look at this question in a more sympathetic spirit, to begin to feel a respect for the Indian or the Burman, or whoever it may be in India, who has a patriotic instinct, who feels a patriotic impulse to speak out against the existing system of Government, to honour him as a patriot, to respect him for his views as a freeman, and not to try to condemn him to imprisonment, and then when he has been so condemned, refuse to him the right to use his symbols, or his dress, which are connected with his religion. In this part of the country also unfortunately we had a similar case—the case of Sardar Kharak Singh. You remember, Sir, Sardar Kharak Singh was sentenced to imprisonment on a charge of sedition, and he was required to put aside his Akali Sikh turban. He refused to do so and when he was compelled to do so, he declined to wear any cloth except his kach. The authorities then permitted him to wear his turban. But his fellow prisoners were not allowed to wear Gandhi caps. The Sardar protested, but the Government did not accede to his request. He then again gave up wearing any clothes and remained naked in the coldest winter of the Punjab for over three years; he underwent all this suffering as a protest against the attitude of the then Punjab Government. (Cries of "Shame, shame".) We have had such cases before, we have had enough of such cases. So I ask my friends on the Government Benches to change their view, to change their angle of vision, to begin to think that India is going to be a free country next year, that Indians are going to be a self-governing people, and to prepare for that day by taking a broad attitude, and win our applause instead of our condemnation by the action that they take in cases like the one we are now considering.

Mr. D. C. Stewart-Smith (Bengal : European) : Sir, one of the Members from Burma has drawn our reluctant attention to the death of a Burmese convict after a prolonged hunger-strike. I say reluctant attention, for I believe that many of us had hoped that the question of hunger-striking would not arise again to disturb the equanimity of the present Session.....

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : Why not ?

Mr. D. C. Stewart-Smith : Some few days ago the House carried a motion for adjournment against the Government and registered its protest against certain forms of jail treatment. We are now asked to do almost the same thing over again. I am not at all satisfied that constant repetition adds to the value of these protests, neither am I convinced that they are a satisfactory substitute for the ordinary business of the House.

realise that they are meant to demonstrate a principle and they achieve their purpose, but they risk their value when they become too frequent.

It appears, Sir, that this monk was convicted in 1926 and again in 1929 for making seditious speeches and for incitement to violence. Now, I am not really concerned with the nature of his offence for Mr. Munshi has told us that this is not a political gesture but solely a religious one. That makes my task very much easier and pleasanter. Now, Sir, this man made three demands, and you have asked us to confine our attention to one, namely, the demand that he should have been allowed to wear the yellow robes. I understand, Sir, that the privileges in regard to dress are only allowed to special class prisoners. Can it clearly be said that a man who incites to violence should be treated as a special class prisoner ? (An Honourable Member : "Yes, certainly.") I can hardly believe it. An under-trial prisoner is allowed to wear his yellow robe, but as a convict he is not. In the present case I understand that the Government allowed him to wear his yellow robes while he was in hospital.....

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : They put it down on his death bed.

Mr. D. C. Stewart-Smith : Is it right that men who have been convicted of serious offences should be allowed to wear in jail the dress of men dedicated to a life of holiness ? It will bring religion into contempt. I feel that, if they are allowed to wear the robes of a monk, religion will be in danger of disrespect which we must guard against.

Now, Sir, I do not think that Government should make a special provision for priests as opposed to laity. I believe that Government do make provision in jails for adequate religious observances and I am told that in Burma there are pagodas in the jails and that monks are allowed to perform religious offices there for those prisoners who profess that faith.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : Does the Honourable Member approve of that after the "serious" offence committed by that convict ? Should he be allowed to worship or offer prayers at all ? (Laughter.) (An Honourable Member : "There is more reason.")

Mr. D. C. Stewart-Smith : I feel that it is almost impossible for Government to decide who were priests and who were not. If they gave to Burmese monks certain privileges in jail, then they would have in honour bound to extend those privileges to all other castes and creeds in India, and the difficulties which would arise would be so many as to become insuperable.

If this motion raises the general question of treatment in jails, I would submit that that has already been done some days ago very exhaustively. As I have said before, I do not think that any such repetition would be either useful or desirable. But if it is said that it does not raise the question of the general treatment of prisoners in jails, then is not this a matter for the Local Government ? The members of the Burma Legislative Council have that knowledge of local conditions which we lack, and are they not much better qualified than we are to deal with the difficulties of the situation and others like it ?

Mr. President : Is the Burma Legislative Council in session ?

Mr. D. C. Stewart-Smith : I am sorry I cannot say. The case of this monk is based purely on religious grounds and not on political grounds, and it is mainly a question of dress. I feel, Sir, that the question of dress must be uniform throughout all prisons. (An Honourable Member : "Why ?") Because, if every man is allowed to dress as he pleased, surely that would create a position of impossibility. (An Honourable Member : "You have a uniform dress for Europeans as well ?") To comply with such demands as are made now would become a precedent which would in future become so binding that Government would never be free from future embarrassment. It is because I feel that there must be some finality to the concessions which Government make to prisoners who have been convicted of serious or any other offences that I feel bound to oppose the motion before the House. (Applause.)

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla (Bombay Central Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to support the motion of adjournment so ably moved by my Honourable friend Mr. Munshi, and I am glad to inform the House that my Party has unanimously decided to support that motion. I was waiting to hear the speech of the Honourable the Home Member on the motion of adjournment moved by my Honourable friend. Mr. Munshi's motion was divided, as I understood, into two parts. The first part was a request to Government for an assurance that the Burmese monks would be allowed to wear the yellow robes, and the second part was—it was not meant for Government but an appeal to Members to vote with him because in case the Government's policy is of this character, what will happen when the constitutional reforms are granted. The Home Member, instead of giving a straight answer, first of all, pleaded want of time, and secondly, he said that owing to want of time he could not possibly discuss the question of constitutional reforms. I had thought that one minute would be sufficient for the Government Member to give us an answer, and he had fifteen minutes before him. And what do we find ? We find that his answer is neither here nor there. Now, my Honourable friend Mr. Stewart-Smith, who spoke on this issue, has also misunderstood it. We are not discussing the question of hunger-strike at all. We are discussing the policy of Government in interfering with religious questions. That is the question, and I cannot understand how it can possibly be confined to the Local Government only even if the Local Council was sitting. It is a question for the British Government. Are they pledged to neutrality in British India or not ? or are they going to have religious interference ? I say, with all the authority at my command, that Government must think twice before making any sort of religious interference with the people in India, and I think the Honourable the Home Member should have come forward on the floor of this House and said that they adhered to the policy of neutrality. He has not told us what objection there is on the part of the Government to acceding to this simple request. Mr. Stewart-Smith, though he tried to defend the Government on a wrong cause, has also not solved this difficulty, except the long harangue that we were repeating the same argument and that we are wasting the time of the House. I say that we are not wasting the time of the House. Let us understand, once for all on the floor of the House, what is the policy of Government. Government must clearly give us to understand that they will not interfere with the religious susceptibilities or religious questions in this House or outside. This is the only question on which my friend Mr. Munshi has moved his adjournment motion, and if the Home Member had replied on that there would have been no debate and I think the matter would have been sufficiently and satisfactorily settled. Mr. Munshi has repeatedly mentioned it to the Home

Member on the floor of this House that he wants nothing more and nothing less than an assurance that they will accede to the request. Instead of that, we find the Home Member quoting a memorandum of 1890. We are not concerned with memorandums of so early a date. We want to put this question. Are you going to interfere with the religious rites and matters connected with the people living in India ? Let us have an answer to that, and then we will decide. Otherwise it will be very difficult for the Government to carry on the administration. I assure you that if you are going to change your policy, then the result will be very disastrous, and I hope, Sir, that Government will be well advised, even now, to ask some officer of theirs to make a statement that they will comply with the request, the very modest and reasonable request of my friend Mr. Munshi.

Mr. T. A. K. Shervani (Cities of the United Provinces : Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, I support the motion which has been proposed by my friend Mr. Munshi. I listened with great attention to the speech of the Honourable the Home Member. The Honourable the Home Member would not give any definite reply to the straight question put by Mr. Munshi, the real question involved in the motion. The only reason which I could make out from the speech of the Honourable the Home Member was that the demand was unreasonable. My chief grievance against this Government is that Government's reasonableness differs with different individuals and with different communities. I have got some experience of jail life, and although I am a back number, I may tell the Honourable the Home Member that the same sorts of demands are quite reasonable in one case and they are stigmatised as unreasonable in other cases. While I was in jail I first asked the jail authorities to allow me to offer my Friday prayers together with certain Muslim fellow prisoners. My request was refused. Then I asked them to allow me to offer congregational prayers on the last Friday of Ramzan. That request was refused. I asked the Superintendent of the Jail to allow those Muhammadans who keep fast to work only for half a day. My request and the requests of my Mussalman fellow prisoners was refused. I asked the Superintendent why he allowed the priest to come to the jail every Sunday and allowed the European prisoners to congregate for prayers. The answer of the Superintendent was, and it was a very straightforward answer, "Well, when you say that you forget that you have not attained swaraj yet". Although the words were different, I regret to say that after nine years the mentality of the Honourable the Home Member is the same, Sir.

The simple question before us is whether a person who belongs to a religious order ought to be allowed to wear certain robes, the insignia of that order, or particular fast days, and whether this request is reasonable. Sir, go to any jail in India and you will find that the European prisoners wear hats and suits, a particular kind of clothes different in shape and cut from those of other prisoners. While I see that it is reasonable for a European to demand clothes in jails which ought to be cut after the pattern he is used to and get them simply because he is used to wear those clothes, if a monk in a jail makes a similar request to wear his yellow robes to which he is used, with an additional reason that it is an insignia of his order and that too only on particular feast days, it is called unreasonable. As I said before, the only reason is that we cannot enforce our will. I am sorry to say that all these things would have been settled if, in 1921, Mahatma Gandhi had not ordered us to conform to the jail discipline and rules strictly. We did observe the discipline and the result is that in 1929 a Pongyi has to die for his robes because a collous Government considers his request unreasonable.

5 P.M.

The second question raised is why should there be such a difference between an ordinary criminal and a political offender. My answer is that political offences are offences simply because certain individuals hold ideals different from the ideals of the present day Government. It is only a difference in ideal and a question of time. It is a matter of history that the Government of today are seditionists of tomorrow, and that seditionists of today are the Government of tomorrow; and I ask the Government, in their own interest, to differentiate between political offences and other offences; you do not know what may happen tomorrow. I leave the question there. It is said that the offences which involve violence must not be treated leniently. But for that purpose provisions are made in the Indian Penal Code, which inflict more severe punishments on persons convicted of crimes involving violence. That distinction has been already made. Why should the Government over and above that punish persons more severely by treating them as ordinary criminals? The matter is quite clear. If you give a man five years' imprisonment and treat him like a man with a much lower standard of life, then you are punishing him not with five years' imprisonment but with ten years or still more, you punish him both extensively and intensively. Where is the justification for that? If a man commits violence, sentence him by all means for any term you consider just, but if a man belongs to a particular status, if he has lived in greater comforts than his fellow prisoners, by treating him just like other prisoners, the Government inflict a severer punishment upon him than he deserves—and therein lies my objection. Sir, here was a case, a man was on hunger-strike for 162 days, but this wooden Government would not move. They put the demanded robes on him when he was on the point of death. If they had done the same thing a month before, that would have saved the life of a fellow being. But the Government will never do a thing with good grace. The incidents are coming in quick succession. Two deaths have already occurred, and many cases are to follow. I ask the Government, in the interests of the country, in their own interests, in the interests of the peace of India, to open their eyes as well as heart more quickly in the matter. Otherwise, if Government will not do it willingly, we will force the Government to do it. The matters cannot be left where they are. The sooner Government realize it the better for all concerned.

Mr. S. N. Roy (Home Department : Nominated Official) : Sir, I am very grateful to you for giving me an opportunity of speaking on this motion. On an occasion like this when the sympathies of Members are very naturally aroused over the death of a prisoner by reason of his self-imposed privation, it is always difficult even for experienced speakers to address this House. Much more difficult then is it for me who am addressing it for the first time. But I am fortified by the thought that this House has always been indulgent to beginners and by the hope that they will extend the same indulgence to me. (An Honourable Member : "Speak like an Indian".) It was said a little while ago that the question before us is not one of hunger-striking but merely of allowing Pongyis to wear their yellow robes. Well, Sir, if that had been the only question, I do not think it could have come up here in the form of a motion for adjournment. It is because a hunger-striker has died by reason of the fact that his yellow robes were not given to him, that it has been possible for the Honourable Member to bring this motion up before this House at all. Otherwise he would have had to bring it up as a Resolution—and he knows very well that that Resolution would not have been admitted. Therefore, it is necessary for me to correlate this debate to the actual facts of the situation; and with regard to those facts I am afraid, from what I have heard during this debate from the Members who have preceded me, that there is a considerable amount of misapprehension. It is necessary for me therefore to traverse the old ground to a certain extent. Now, Sir, it is not a fact that this Pongyi whose name I find it somewhat difficult to pronounce was tried for a second time while he was already serving out his sentence for another crime. The facts are that in 1926 he was convicted for sedition. (An Honourable Member : "For how many years"?) For 1 year and 9 months. Then he went on hunger-strike, on the ground, it is perfectly true, that he had not been allowed to wear his yellow robes. We was then sent—and this is important because it shows to what extent the attempt was made to meet his wishes—to the central jail in Midnapore in Bengal and there he was allowed to wear his yellow robes. He served out most of his sentence there, and was then sent back to Burma and was released on the 28th of February after he had served out his full term. (An Honourable Member : "What year"?) This year. Then, fifteen days later, on the 15th March, he addressed a meeting—and this is not the doing of a person who was on his death-bed—of 3,000 people, of whom the majority were I gather Pongyis. At that meeting he made a highly seditious speech, inciting, as the Honourable Sir James Crerar mentioned, people to murder officials and to overthrow the existing Government by means of bombs and the use of daos. Well, he was again run in for sedition for that speech. He was tried and he was convicted some time, I believe, in July.....

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : How and where was he tried? In what condition was he tried?

Mr. S. N. Roy : So far as my information goes, when the trial began his condition was not bad.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : And when it ended, what was his condition?

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Does the Honourable Member suggest that he had served out his first sentence and had got out of jail when he made that speech?

Mr. S. N. Roy : Yes, Sir. He could only have made a speech to 3,000 people under those conditions. He was released on the 28th February and he made his speech on the 15th March. Well, after this speech he was, as I said, charged again for sedition under section 124-A. He was tried by a Judge and four assessors, and the assessors unanimously found him guilty. The Judge sentenced him to six years' rigorous imprisonment, which the Local Government commuted to three years.

Mr. N. C. Chunder : He was tried inside the jail?

Mr. S. N. Roy : For a part of the time.

Mr. M. S. Aney (Berar Representative) : Is it a fact that the jail was turned into a court ?

Mr. S. N. Roy : I have no full information on that point, but I believe that it is a fact that, for part of the time, the trial was conducted in the jail. In the early stages of the trial, while he was an under-trial, he did not go on hunger-strike on the ground that he had not been allowed to wear saffron-coloured robes.

An Honourable Member : Why was the trial held in jail if he was at liberty to come out ?

Mr. S. N. Roy : I am not quite sure as to at what stage this was so.

An Honourable Member : That is the most important point.

Mr. S. N. Roy : The trial was held in jail at some stage, but I have not got full information as to exactly when and where the trial took place. In the early stages, when he was an under-trial prisoner, I presume he did not get bail, but when he was an under-trial prisoner he was allowed his yellow robes ; and he went on hunger-strike because he had not been given special diet. That special diet was sanctioned for him.

(An Honourable Member was going to interrupt Mr. Roy.)

Mr. President : Order, order. It is very unfortunate that the Honourable Member has chosen this particular subject for his maiden speech, but I must ask Honourable Members not to interrupt him.

Mr. S. N. Roy : I will try and give Honourable Members as much information as I can.

An Honourable Member : Please be definite in your statements.

Mr. S. N. Roy : While he was an under-trial prisoner, he went on hunger-strike because he was not given special diet. Then, when that diet was sanctioned for him, he made two demands which were that, whatever the offence with which Pongyis are charged, they should be allowed to wear their yellow robes while in prison on certain festival days and they should be allowed to fast twice a month. Those were the two demands that were made, but the Government of Burma were unable to accede to them.

Several Honourable Members : Why ?

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mr. S. N. Roy : I am coming to that. I want to make it perfectly clear that these demands had nothing to do with political motives or political offenders. As the Honourable the Mover of the adjournment motion said, the demands were based purely on religious grounds. When the Honourable Pandit referred to it, he talked about sedition as not being a great offence and said that people charged with sedition should not be treated like other jail prisoners. The question does not arise in this case because this Pongyi was not claiming these concessions as a political prisoner. His ground was quite different ; he wanted that all Pongyis irrespective of the offence for which they were convicted should be allowed to wear the yellow robe. Therefore, the political issue does not arise at all. It was purely a demand made on religious grounds.

As far as the second demand is concerned, namely, that they should be allowed to fast twice a month, as the Honourable Sir James Crerar has said, the Burma Government felt that they could not accede to this demand for the reason that the fast must be kept in a special place called theins. The fast must be observed in a thein and that thein must be permanent ; it must be on a site exempt from revenue and perpetuity ; it must be on a site granted by a layman and there must be a formal grant of this site and it must be under ecclesiastical jurisdiction. These are the conditions under which a thein can be built and without a thein this fast cannot be kept. Now, Sir, I do feel that it was not very unreasonable for the Burma Government to have said that these were demands which they could not possibly agree to because it meant that, either they would have to build these theins.....

An Honourable Member : What did they actually say ?

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mr. S. N. Roy : It meant either that these theins should be built in every jail, or that these prisoners should be released twice a month in order to be able to keep their fast in this particular kind of shrine. The Burma Government refused to agree to it. With regard to the other question, namely, of wearing the yellow robes, the Burma Government also felt that they could not agree to it because it meant agreeing to a principle which would be capable of wider application and which would be very difficult to apply because.....

Mr. President : I am constrained to ask the Honourable Member to conclude his observations. He has already taken 20 minutes.

Mr. S. N. Roy : I shall conclude my remarks soon, Sir, but I just want to say one thing. What is the demand which the House is being asked to agree to ? Is it a demand that reasonable religious facilities should be given to all prisoners ? If that is the demand, then these facilities are already given. As a matter of fact, in all the Burmese jails, pagodas exist and Pongyis are allowed to go to these pagodas to give religious instruction. It was a recommendation of the Jail Committee of 1919 that such religious facilities should be allowed and as far as we know they are allowed, and that is a principle which Government have accepted. If, however, the demand is that spiritual leaders, people who are priests or belong to a religious order, should as such get all the facilities they want, then it is a principle which I think the House would want to consider very carefully before it agrees to it and I doubt if the House would accept it without much fuller consideration than is possible on an inadequate debate on a motion of adjournment. It involves a very large principle. It means that you have got to extend these facilities to all communities, to Fakirs, to Sadhus, to Maulvis, to Mullas, to Pirs. It would be impossible to say really who should not be allowed these facilities when they claim them. If, on the other hand, as I gather from my Honourable friend, the demand is merely that all Pongyis should get this concession of wearing yellow robes, then I submit to this House, with all respect, that this is a matter entirely for the Burma Government to decide. I should just.....

Mr. President : Order, order. I am afraid I cannot allow the Honourable Member to proceed further. He has far exceeded his time limit.

Pandit Motilal Nehru (Cities of the United Provinces : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, I crave your indulgence and the indulgence of the House to address it for a few minutes only. The observations read out by the Honourable the Mover of this motion from the speech made by His Excellency the Governor of Burma in regard to the treatment which subjects and matters arising in Burma receive at the hands of this House are observations which I am sure will not be accepted by any Member of this House. I stand here, Sir, to dissociate myself and my party, and not only my party in this House but the whole of the Congress organisation, from those observations, and I am sure that it is not true in regard to the other parties also. The affairs of Burma are just as near and as dear to us as the affairs of any other part of India, and I do not want it to be understood for a moment that the affairs of Burma, whenever they come up before this House, will not receive exactly the same treatment as the affairs of any other part of India would.

As to merits of this motion, I submit that this is a much worse case than the case of Jatindra Nath Das, which was the subject of the other adjournment motion. The facts have been dealt with and I do not want to repeat them. I congratulate my Honourable friend Mr. S. N. Roy on his maiden speech and I can only express my regret that he was not able to finish his observations within the time at his disposal. I do not wish to criticise what he has said, but I think it was rather hard on him to be entrusted with the part of the case assigned to him. It was for some senior Member of Government to have taken it up. We are still in doubt as to how it came about that this gentleman, who was tried and sentenced, had served out his sentence and been then released from the jail, is tried in the jail for a new offence of sedition committed after his release. He finds himself somehow or other in the jail not as an under-trial prisoner, because he had evidently been long enough on hunger-strike in the jail to be reduced to the condition in which he was found when he was actually brought before the court. We are not informed whether all this happened in the jail or partly in the jail and partly outside the jail. These are matters which, I submit, the Treasury Benches ought to have explained more fully. But, as I have said, the case is a very simple one. There was the man who for 163 days was allowed to die by inches. To say that it was the special concern of the Burma Government is no defence or justification of the Government of India. If simply on account of the distance of Burma or on account of the division of subjects into provincial and imperial they did not take sufficient interest in it it was their fault and their action is not justifiable. I would, in this connection, remind the House of the story of the old woman who went to Tamur Lane with a complaint. Tamur Lane was king to her and talked to her and said : " Now, good old woman, how do you expect me to look after my kingdom which extends over such a vast expanse of the world ". The old woman said, " Then hand over your Government to some one else who will know how to do it. If you are not fit for it, you have no business to call it your domain or your kingdom ". What is the explanation given here ? We find complete ignorance as to what has happened in the case of this man. I submit, Sir, that if for nothing else it is for this absence of information, which is tantamount to neglect of duty, and for that alone the Government is liable to a vote of censure.

Some Honourable Members : The question may be now put.

Mr. E. L. Price (Bombay European) : Sir, I do not want to indulge in any criticism of the matter that has been put before this House. But I would like to try and keep one issue clear. I am confused by what has been put forward by Honourable Members, Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla, Mr. Shervani and again by the Honourable Member Mr. Roy. Sir, in the world, in India there are very many religions, and among those religions there are essentially two classes, the layman and the religious, the man who is making a vocational profession of his faith and leading a religious life. Now, Sir,.....

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : Not receiving a salary.

Mr. E. L. Price : No, Sir. I am trying to get very clear the issue as you will presently know. We have heard from Mr. Shervani how in certain people, certain Christians, get ghostly comfort every Sunday in the jails. I have no doubt, and I think we have been told, that there are adequate jail arrangements for ghostly comfort in all religions for those who are laymen. But the professed religious man is in a different position. For him it is not matter of ghostly comfort ; he leads a religious life and he means to lead that life all the time, as I understand it. For him it is not a thing for Friday or Saturday or Sunday, it is for every day and all day. Now, Sir, to my mind, this is the problem, and it is the more important in that the Honourable Member, Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, intimates that he will be responsible for the solution of this problem next year. The problem is this. Can you evolve a jail administration which will allow prisoners to lead the religious life ? That, Sir, is the problem.

An Honourable Member : Why not ?

Mr. E. L. Price : It absolutely puzzles me, because from what I know and have seen of the every day administration of jails, I cannot conceive any jail administration that can possibly be compatible with all the forms of religious life performed and lived by members of a monastic or other such society. If the recommendation is that there has to be such a jail system evolved, I suggest that it should be left to the Honourable Pandit to take charge of the problem.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, I wish to address a few words on this important question to the House, having regard to what my Honourable friend Mr. Price has said. This time I happen to be partially in agreement with his views. I shall begin by congratulating my Honourable friend, Mr. Roy, on his maiden speech in this House, although I do wish that he had reserved his maiden speech for a more felicitous occasion than the present one. Sir, the issue has been somewhat confused. The issue which is really involved in this motion is a very simple one, and that issue is, are jail rules and discipline to be administered and enforced with sympathy, imagination and intelligence or with callousness. That is the real issue. (Hear, hear.) I do, think, Sir, that the issue, as stated by my Honourable friend Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla, is a little too wide of the mark. It is nobody's contention that all religious privileges should be allowed to people who, in the words of my Honourable friend Mr. Price, have made religion their profession or their lives' business. The real issue is as I have stated ; it is no use dignifying it into a principle ; it is a simple plain issue, and it will appear so when the facts are understood in their true light. Here was a little concession wanted by this poor Buddhist monk to wear robes not on all days in the month but on certain fast days which I understand from my Honourable friend were just a few days during the month.

An Honourable Member : Two days.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Only two days. It is always very easy to dignify a simple matter into a principle. Sir, I am here reminded of a friend with whom I was once dining. His child was used to have four spoonfuls of rice at night but on that particular evening the poor child felt more hungry than usual and wanted six spoonfuls. The father refused, saying a principle was involved. Thus a painful chastisement ensued in which the guests had to intervene. What is this principle that is really so much made of? My Honourable friend Sir James Crerar, if he will permit me to say so, used very big expressions. He said, if a religious man wants a "special treatment"—I am using his very expression—are we to allow it? It is very easy, Sir, to dignify a small request into a question of principle especially when one does not want to grant it. Look at the facts, Sir. I will not go further into controversial question, but the fact remains, of which no explanation has been given by Mr. S. N. Roy, that if the monk was set at liberty having served out his sentence for the first offence, how came he to be tried in jail for his second offence? No explanation has been offered and the matter looks to me very suspicious. But we will for the present leave that matter alone and turn to the other question, namely, that for obtaining this little concession of wearing the yellow robes for two days in the month, this poor Buddhist monk had to go without food for five and half months and ultimately die. Let my Honourable friends view this fact in the proper perspective. What was he asking for? A trifle. A little more intelligent, sympathetic and tactful interpretation of jail rules, without callousness, would have allowed him the concession he asked for without making all this fuss. It is indeed unthinkable that a man should have to remain without food for 5½ months and ultimately die for the purpose of getting this small indulgence. Government may call it a privilege, but it is a really a deprivation, and not a privilege. He was not asking for a luxury, it is a deprivation that he wanted to give up the thick and ample clothing which the present jail rules allowed him and don the somewhat scanty and sparing clothes of his order. He was not asking for any luxury or comfort. I ask, Sir, why should jail rules be so callously interpreted as to require 5½ months' torture and eventual death as the price of a small concession. This is the real issue as I have presented it and not as my Honourable friend Mr. Fazal presented it. We want to make sure that the Government will bring more sympathy, imagination and intelligence into the working of jail rules, and not cause loss of human life so light-heartedly. That is the principle involved in this issue, not the large principle stated by Mr. Fazal which may be somewhat difficult of acceptance. Supposing, Sir, a Christian prisoner wants to retain his crucifix on his person and is he to be driven to five or six months' hunger-strike for obtaining that little indulgence? Another man wants to keep his rosary. Has he to die for it? Are Indian jail rules to be administered in so hard and iron handed a manner, that there is no scope for a little mercy, charity and indulgence, except at the price of death by self-torture? Is this the spirit in which a wise Government treats its prisoners? Supposing a Muhammadan wants to keep with him a copy of the Koran or a Hindu wants to retain a pocket edition of the Bhagvat Gita, are our jail rules to be made so inflexible that the poor man has to sacrifice his life by the slow torture of hunger before he can obtain a merciful indulgence? Let Government not lose their sense of proportion. The heavens would not have fallen if the little concession which the poor monk asked for had been granted. Therefore, I want my Honourable friends to vote on the basis of the only real issue involved in this question, namely, whether we are going to allow Government to administer jail rules with humanity, sympathy, imagination and intelligence or with blind callousness and cruelty, which sets little value on human life.

Several Honourable Members : The question may be now put.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : Sir, I do not propose to detain the House for more than five minutes.

Sir, during the six years that I sat as a Member of the Burma Legislative Council and during the last two years that I have been a Member of this House, I have listened to and witnessed many feeble efforts from the Official Benches, but I have never listened to or witnessed a feebler performance than the one to which my Hon'ble friend Sir James Crerar has treated this House to-day. He knows very little of what is happening in Burma; he knows very little of what happened when this man was dying inch by inch during the past five months; and the few facts which he has got from the Government of Burma are incomplete and inaccurate.

Sir, the Honourable the Home Member has tried to divert the debate into channels which were not embraced by my motion. Since he has done so, I may be permitted to refer to two other matters. I may tell the House that the refusal of the Government of Burma to give this little concession which was demanded purely on religious grounds is not due to any difficulty presented by the jail regulations or jail policy, but it is part of a deliberate policy of repression. The Government of Burma want to break what they consider to be the political agitation of the Burman Buddhist monks; and in doing so they have adopted the most unworthy means of hitting the Buddhist monks in their dearest spot,—their religion. And I assert here that this and this alone is the reason which has actuated the Government of Burma in adhering to its policy of refusing the use of the yellow robe to Buddhist monks in order to crush all political movements in Burma.

Sir, I wish to tell the House, and more particularly my Moslem friends sitting on my left, that at the present moment there is another Burman Buddhist monk convicted of a political offence who has also been hunger-striking for more than 20 days on the same grounds. He has been asking for the yellow robe to satisfy his religious demands. The Government of Burma have refused him that yellow robe. He is not dead yet; 20 days of hunger-strike have elapsed and the Government of Burma still persists in their refusal of the yellow robe to this monk....

Mr. President : This is a new matter which the Honourable Member is introducing at this stage.

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : Very well, Sir. I bow to your ruling; but wish that the yellow robe may be restored to this monk who is on hunger-strike before it is too late.

Sir, I do appeal to my friends of the Central Muslim Party sitting on my left to note that the demand of the Burman Buddhist monks is based purely on religion. Burmans form a minority community in the Indian Empire. (Turning to the Central Muslim group) Are you going to vote against them? Are you going to tell the Burman Buddhists that you have no respect for their religious sentiments? Are you going to tell the Burmans that because they are a minority community they are going to be trampled upon in this House?

Sir, I appeal to every section of the House to express their support and sympathy for Burmese aspirations by supporting this motion for adjournment of the House. (Applause.)

(The Honourable Sir James Crerar rose to speak.)

Mr. Jehangir K. Munshi : On a point of order, Sir, has the Honourable Member any right of reply?

Mr. President : Yes, with the permission of the Chair, he can speak a second time.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Sir, I only want to make two points very briefly because I feel that there has been a great deal of misapprehension in the matter, and I wish to make them in the briefest terms and the smallest possible compass. The first is this that, although the debate has to a large extent turned upon the question of the treatment of persons convicted of offences with political motives, that in point of fact never arose on the demands made. The demand of this prisoner was solely that this concession should be granted to convicted monks and for no other reason. That raises the second point which was made by Mr. Price and which I do not think has been fully appreciated by the House and it is this. Mr. Jayakar appealed for an intelligent application of the jail rules, and with that appeal I myself have every sympathy. But there is a difficulty inherent in any proposal by which you should attempt,—as Mr. Price has pointed out,—to enable any one who has offended against the law to carry out the precepts and the injunctions of an ascetic religious life while he is undergoing imprisonment for an offence against the law. That, Sir, is a real practical difficulty, and it is one which I think no amount of sympathy can possibly surmount.

Mr. President : The question is :

“That the House do now adjourn.”

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
Wednesday, 25th September, 1929.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock,
Mr. President in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

COVENANTED SUBORDINATES RECRUITED FOR RAILWAYS.

849. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : How many covenanted subordinates have been recruited into (i) State Railways and (ii) Company-managed railways during the last three years in the grades of (a) Foremen in Railway Workshops, and (b) other classes ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The information has been called for from the railways and will be communicated to the Honourable Member.

LEAVE RULES FOR STATE RAILWAYS.

850. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will Government please state if they have arrived at any decision regarding the new leave rules pertaining to the State Railways ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The drafting is practically complete now and Government hope to be able to issue the rules shortly.

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMISSIONER OF INDIAN MEDICAL QUALIFICATIONS AND STANDARDS.

851. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) Will Government please state if any decision has been arrived at in the matter of creating a new appointment of Commissioner of Indian Medical qualifications and standards ?

(b) Is it a fact that under section 4, clause 1, of the British Medical Act, 1886, the General Medical Council has no authority on its own accord to refuse to continue recognition of Indian medical degrees ?

(c) Is it a fact that the General Medical Council has made a suggestion for the appointment of a Commissioner of Indian Medical qualifications and has threatened to refuse to accord recognition to Indian Medical degrees unless their suggestion is complied with ?

(d) Are Government aware that the General Medical Council cannot of itself refuse to recognise Indian Medical degrees but can only move the Privy Council to adopt such a course ?

(e) Are Government aware that the Privy Council cannot authorise the General Medical Council to refuse to recognise the Indian Medical degrees unless occasion is given to the Indian Universities concerned to show cause why the General Medical Council should not refuse to recognise their medical degrees ?

(f) Has any of the Universities of India thus been called upon to show cause as mentioned above ? If so, which are the Universities ?

(g) Are Government aware that inspection of Indian Medical examinations has been made this year on behalf of the General Medical Council? If so, will Government please state if the report of the inspection bears out the alleged unsatisfactory standard of Indian Medical examinations?

(h) If the standard of the Indian Medical examinations is not unsatisfactory, do Government intend to yield to the demand of the General Medical Council for the creation of a new post of a Commissioner of Indian Medical qualifications and standards? If so, why?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The Government of India propose to create the appointment of a whole-time Commissioner of Medical Qualifications and Standards on a temporary footing for a period of one year in the first instance.

(b), (d), (e) and (f). The Honourable Member appears to be under the misapprehension that clause 4 of the Medical Act, 1886, applies to Indian Medical degrees. The registration of practitioners with Indian degrees is regulated by Part II of the Act. Under section 13 of the Act, if the General Medical Council refuses to recognise an Indian degree, an application may be made by the aggrieved party to the Privy Council, who may, if they think fit, after considering the application and after communication with the General Council, order the Council to recognise the degree.

(c) It is for the applicant to satisfy the General Medical Council that a medical degree, granted by an Indian University, furnishes a sufficient guarantee of the possession of the requisite knowledge and skill for the efficient practice of medicine, surgery and midwifery in the United Kingdom. In the opinion of the General Medical Council, the only satisfactory solution of the difficulties of inspection of medical colleges and qualifying examinations of Indian Universities, until an all-India Medical Council is constituted, is the appointment by the Government of India of a whole-time Commissioner of Medical Qualifications and Standards.

(g) The medical examinations of the Universities of Madras, Bombay, Patna, Rangoon and the Punjab were supervised this year by Inspectors appointed on behalf of the General Medical Council. The Government of India have not seen the inspection reports as they are not submitted through them.

(h) Does not arise.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Had the Government of India reason to believe before this proposal for the appointment of a Commissioner of Indian Medical Qualifications and Standards was made that the medical education and medical examinations conducted in India were not satisfactory?

Sir Frank Noyce : It is difficult to answer that question, Sir. As I shall probably have a fuller opportunity of explaining the position later on this morning, all I can say now is that the General Medical Council wish to satisfy themselves that the standard of examinations is satisfactory.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : I did not quite follow what the Honourable Member said. Will he kindly repeat what he said?

Sir Frank Noyce : The Government of India are aware that the General Medical Council wish to satisfy themselves that the standard of examinations is satisfactory.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Were the Government of India themselves satisfied that the medical education and medical examinations conducted in India were not satisfactory?

Sir Frank Noyce : The Government of India have had no opportunity of arriving at an opinion on such a technical matter as that.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : So the Government of India did not know that the medical education and medical examinations in India were satisfactory or not, or that they were being properly conducted or not. Were they so ignorant as all that?

Sir Frank Noyce : I am certainly not in a position to answer that question, Sir. I can only repeat that the inspection of medical education and medical examinations in India is undertaken at the instance of the General Medical Council.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Supposing the Government of India came to know that the result of the inspection of medical education and medical examinations in India by the Inspectors appointed by the General Medical Council was satisfactory, would the Government still be prepared to accept the threat or ultimatum?

Mr. President : That is a hypothetical question.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : I am just quoting from the Inspection Reports, Sir, that the examinations are quite satisfactory, and it is upon that I based my supplementary question, and not on hypothesis.

Sir Frank Noyce : Neither the Medical Council nor the Government of India are in a position without inspection to guarantee that the examinations will continue to be satisfactory.

Mr. President : Is not this question coming up today?

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Yes, Sir.

Mr. President : Then why ask supplementary questions now?

UNEMPLOYMENT IN INDIA.

852. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) Are Government aware that there is acute unemployment both among educated and uneducated classes in several provinces in India?

(b) What steps have Provincial Governments taken to ascertain the extent and intensity of the unemployment in their respective Provinces, and also to find work or employment for the unemployed?

(c) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the report and recommendations of a Departmental Committee, appointed to suggest a solution for the unemployment prevalent among the middle classes in the United Provinces, a report of which has been published in newspapers?

(d) Will Government please state whether similar attempts, if any, have been made in any other province and if so, with what result?

(e) Do Government propose to ascertain the real extent of unemployment in India, through their own Departments, or do they propose to instruct the Provincial Governments to take steps to find out the number of the unemployed, both educated and uneducated, in their respective provinces, and to start unemployment bureau on the lines suggested by the United Provinces Committee?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The Government of India are aware that there is unemployment among the educated classes in several provinces, but they have no reason to believe that either at the present time or normally, unemployment, as it is known in Europe, is a feature of the Indian industrial system.

(b) Certain Local Governments appointed Unemployment Committees, namely, Bengal, Madras, the Punjab and the United Provinces. The reports of these Committees have been published. A report on Middle Class Unemployment has also been published by the Labour Office, Bombay.

(c) Yes.

(d) As stated in my reply to part (b) of the question, Committees were appointed in Bengal, Madras and the Punjab. In the case of the last two provinces and the United Provinces, the Government of India have not received any information regarding the action taken by the Local Governments concerned on the recommendations made in the Committees' reports. As regards Bengal, it is understood that some of the recommendations made by the Committee have been accepted by the Local Government.

(e) The Government of India have already addressed Local Governments on the subject in their letter dated the 26th May, 1926, which has been published, asking them that the matter should receive their most careful consideration.

CASE AGAINST SETH POPATLAL SHAH OF BANOSA.

853. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) Are Government aware of a criminal case against Seth Popatlal Shah of Banosa (Berar) decided by the 1st Class Magistrate of Bhusaval on the 3rd July, 1927?

(b) Does the Magistrate say in the judgment that some of the railway servants have admitted that the compartment of the accused was overcrowded?

(c) Has not the Magistrate taken this admission to be true?

(d) If the Court has found it to be true what action have Government taken against the Great Indian Peninsula Railway under section 93 of the Railway Act?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Presumably the year 1927 is a mistake for 1929. On seeing newspaper reports of this case last month, Government called for a report from the Agent of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. I shall address the Honourable Member later on the result of further investigations into the matter.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : May I know whether Seth Popatlal Shah of Banosa was convicted or acquitted?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I cannot say, Sir, till I receive the Report.

DISCONNECTED ALARM SYSTEM IN A COMPARTMENT OF A TRAIN ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

854. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : Are Government aware of the fact that, on the 2nd May, 1929, the 2 Up Nagpur Mail was running between Nandura and Bhusaval with one of its compartments having its automatic alarm system disconnected? If so, do Government propose to take action against the Great Indian Peninsula Railway for the infringement of the Railway Act by running a passenger carriage when the alarm in it was not in working order? If not, why not?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have received no report on this matter. The Agent of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway has been asked to submit a report and I shall communicate later with the Honourable Member.

OVERCROWDING OF RAILWAY COMPARTMENTS.

855. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) Will Government please inquire and state at how many places railway trains, on account of their being overcrowded, were stopped by passengers by pulling the alarm chain, since last March?

(b) Are Government aware that a train was stopped between Bombay and Poona on 1st April, 1929, one between Wathar and Sangli on 22nd April, 1929, and one at Godhra on 29th May, 1929? Is it a fact that, on all these occasions, the railway authorities had to reduce overcrowding in the compartments?

(c) Are Government aware that the railway authorities had not paid any attention to complaints regarding overcrowding till the passengers pulled the alarm chain? Have Government taken any action against companies concerned under section 93 of the Railway Act?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Information is being obtained and communicated to the Honourable Member.

PROVISION OF AN ALARM SYSTEM IN CENTRAL PROVINCES RAILWAYS.

856. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) Are Government aware that alarm chains are not provided in the trains on the Yeotmal, Murtizapur and Murtizapur-Elichpur lines of the Central Provinces Railways?

(b) Do Government propose to bring the matter to the notice of the Administration of the Central Provinces Railways and to see that provision is made at an early date for such means of communications, as are required under section 62 of the Indian Railway Act?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) The provision of such means of communication on these narrow gauge railways is not considered necessary, the speed of trains being low and the stations near each other.

COLLECTION OF A MINIMUM AMOUNT OF EXCESS FARES BY TICKET COLLECTORS.

857. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) How many ticket collectors on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway line from Bhusaval to Nagpur were fined for poor collection of excess fares in the month of July?

(b) Is it laid down anywhere that the efficiency of ticket collectors will be judged on their collecting excess fares every month, which must not be less than a fixed minimum? If so, are Government aware that it leads to all sorts of corrupt practices and offers an inducement to ticket collectors to harass, and also practice blackmailing on, poor ignorant passengers ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) I am sending a copy of the question to the Agent of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway and, on receipt of his reply, will communicate with the Honourable Member.

(b) The Railway Board are not aware that any railway has laid down a fixed minimum of excess fares that every ticket collector should collect, and consider it most improbable that any railway should have done so.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Does the Honourable Member know that there is an impression among the ticket collectors that, if they do not show good collections, they are considered inefficient ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : That impression must be incorrect.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : That impression is absolutely correct, Sir. Are Government aware that on the Bengal and North Western Railway an order has been issued by the railway authorities saying that, if the travelling ticket examiners do not collect a specified sum of money every day, their wages for that day will be forfeited, and that they are liable to be dismissed ? I brought this matter to the notice of the Agent, Bengal and North Western Railway.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I am indebted to the Honourable Member for drawing my attention to this, and we will certainly make inquiries.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Thank you, Sir.

GRANT OF BONUSES AND LOANS ON THE POST OFFICE INSURANCE FUND.

858. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) Are Government aware that private Insurance Companies offer bonuses to their policy-holders and, if need be, even grant them loans on the security of their policies ?

(b) Do Government offer such facilities to the policy-holders of the Post Office Insurance Fund ? If not, do Government propose to consider the advisability of making such provisions ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) Government declare periodically, when the working of the Postal Life Insurance Fund justifies it, simple reversionary bonuses on policies taken out in the Fund. They do not grant loans on the security of policies.

It is not proposed to make any change of the nature suggested in the rules of the Fund.

QUALIFYING EXAMINATION FOR SECOND AND THIRD DIVISIONS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA SECRETARIAT.

859. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the Public Service Commission will shortly hold a qualifying examination for men holding substantive appointments in the 2nd and 3rd divisions in the Government of India Secretariat and attached offices ? If so, when ?

(b) What are the conditions laid down by the Public Service Commission for the said examination ?

(c) If any clerk employed in the Railway Board's office or in the Contracts Directorate, Army Headquarters, fulfils the conditions prescribed by the Commission, can he appear at the examination ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The Public Service Commission will hold a qualifying examination in November, 1929, for men holding permanent appointments in the offices for which the Commission recruit, and for men holding temporary appointments in those offices, if they have already qualified for the divisions in which they are working temporarily.

(b) Candidates are required to be under 35 years of age and must not have appeared and failed twice already for the division for which they are competing.

The conditions admit to the examination 2nd division clerks and 3rd division clerks who have passed the Intermediate or equivalent examination, with the exception that, in attached offices, where there are only two divisions, no 2nd division clerk who has not already qualified for the 2nd division Secretariat or has not passed the Intermediate, or equivalent examination, will be admitted without the special recommendation of his Department.

(c) The Public Service Commission do not at present recruit for the Railway Board's office nor for the Contracts Directorate, Army Headquarters. Clerks employed in those offices do not, therefore, fulfil the conditions prescribed for the examination. The Railway Board desire, however, to recruit in future for purely clerical posts through the Public Service Commission and this matter is under consideration.

PROMOTION TO SECOND DIVISION OF QUALIFIED CLERKS IN ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

860. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that a number of men employed in the Branches of the Army Headquarters, including the Contracts Directorate, are qualified for 2nd division appointments but have been confirmed in the 3rd division owing to paucity of vacancies in the 2nd division ? If so, what is their number and when are they likely to be promoted to the 2nd division ?

(b) Will Government please state whether the men employed in the Contracts Directorate who are already qualified for the 2nd and 3rd division appointments are likely to be promoted to the next higher division in the near future ? If so, when ? If not, do Government propose to allow these men to sit for the next qualifying examination ? If not, why not ?

(c) Is there any bar to these men qualifying for the next higher division ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Yes. Ten. Their promotion to the second division depends upon the occurrence of vacancies and their fitness for the work required of 2nd division clerks.

(b) They will be promoted to the next higher division when vacancies occur for which they are considered suitable. It is impossible to say when this will be.

(c) They cannot sit for the departmental qualifying examinations, because the establishment of the Contracts Directorate is recruited independently of the Public Service Commission.

There is nothing, however, to prevent them from sitting for the competitive examinations of the Public Service Commission provided that they are qualified to do so.

PREPARATION OF SPECIAL APPRENTICES AT KHARAGPUR WORKSHOPS FOR TRAINING IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.

861. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. H. L. Cole, O.B.E., Chief Mechanical Engineer, Bengal Nagpur Railway at Kharagpur (now on leave), recruited some Indians as Special Apprentices in the Kharagpur Railway Workshops, with a view to prepare them for training in the United Kingdom and thereafter to appoint them in the superior posts of the Loco. and Carriage Departments of the Bengal Nagpur Railway ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) is in the affirmative, will Government please state whether it is a fact that those Indian Special Apprentices were subsequently discharged, no sooner had Mr. H. L. Cole, gone on leave, and if so, what were the reasons for their discharge ?

(c) Will Government please state their (1) names, (2) qualifications, (3) age and (4) addresses (at the time of recruitment) ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I propose to answer questions 861, 862 and 863 together. The required information is being obtained from the Bengal Nagpur Railway, and will be communicated to the Honourable Member later.

TRAINING IN THE UNITED KINGDOM OF THE KHARAGPUR RAILWAY WORKSHOPS.

†862. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government please state if there is any chance for any one being sent to the United Kingdom for training from amongst the existing "Grade A" Apprentices in the Kharagpur Railway Workshops ? If not, why not ?

(b) Has any "Grade A" Apprentice, or any other kind of apprentice, or any one outside these categories been sent to the United Kingdom for training by the Bengal Nagpur Railway ? If so, what are the names of these men and what were their qualifications, previous to their selection for training in the United Kingdom ?

TRAINING OF "GRADE A" APPRENTICES AT THE KHARAGPUR RAILWAY WORKSHOPS.

†863. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that European and Anglo-Indian apprentices of the Kharagpur Railway Workshops have to sit for the Board of Control Examinations, held under the supervision of the Bengal Engineering College, Sibpur ? If so, why are the "Grade A" (Indian) apprentices at the workshop not given training to enable them to sit for these examinations ?

(b) Do Government propose to instruct the Railway to make the training of the "Grade A" and European and Anglo-Indian apprentices uniform in all respects, i.e., both practical and theoretical ? If not, why not ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 861.

APPOINTMENT OF A JUNIOR ASSISTANT TO HOLD CHARGE OF A NEW BRANCH IN THE FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

864. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that a junior Assistant has been appointed to hold charge of a new Branch in the Finance Department ?

(b) Will Government please state the reasons why a junior Assistant was selected in preference to his seniors ?

(c) What is the name of the Assistant and does he possess any special qualifications which led to his superseding his seniors ?

(d) Will Government please state his religion, educational qualifications and the number of years' service he has had, and also what posts he has held during that period ?

(e) Do Government propose to consider the claims of senior men when the question of permanent appointment to the post arises ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I presume that the case to which the Honourable Member refers is one in which an Assistant half-way up the cadre of the Finance Department has been placed in charge of a new temporary sub-branch in the Finance Department called the "Schedule Branch" on his time scale pay plus a special pay Rs. 25 per month. If so, I can inform the Honourable Member that all the implications contained in his question as indeed is apparent from what I have already said, are misleading, and I can also inform him that I have personally satisfied myself that the appointment is in all respects in order. Beyond this I do not propose to furnish any detailed information, for I submit, Sir, that to seek information of a personal kind relating to subordinate officials is a use of the right of interpellation which is not in the public interest.

EMPLOYMENT OF SIKHS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR OF CONTRACTS.

865. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Will Government please state the number of Sikhs employed in the office of the Director of Contracts, Army Headquarters ?

(b) Has any of them been transferred to another office during the past year ? If so, was the vacancy thus caused filled in by a Sikh ? If not, why not ?

(c) What steps do Government propose to take to maintain the proper share of Sikhs in this Office ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Two.

(b) Yes, temporarily for three months. He was not replaced by a Sikh.

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the negative, will Government please say why ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Yes.

871. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) With reference to my starred question No. 1326, dated the 28th March, 1929, will Government please state why the number of "B" class quarters in Phagli (Simla) is so small as 60 while the required number is 300 ?

(b) Is it a fact that the demand for the quarters is increasing every year and the supply is far short of the required number ?

(c) Do Government propose to consider the question either of providing more quarters at Simla, or locating more offices at New Delhi throughout the year ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a), (b) and (c). It is admitted that there is a shortage of "B" class quarters in Phagli and that the demand for quarters of this class increases almost yearly. (d) Do Government propose to expedite the question of the permanent location of the Stores Department and other attached and subordinate offices at New Delhi?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The question of the permanent location of the Indian Stores Department at one place has been considered since the Department was created. For administrative convenience it has been thought necessary that the Indian Stores Department should be in close touch with the Department of Industries and Labour, with the Railway Department (Railway Board) and Army Headquarters until some time after the revised Stores Purchase Rules have been introduced and are in operation.

(b) and (c). The reply is in the affirmative.

(d) The question of the permanent location of the Indian Stores Department will be settled in due course as explained in the reply to part (a) of the question. As regards other attached and subordinate offices, the position is that 12 such offices were located permanently in New Delhi prior to 1928 and since then four additional offices have been so located. The permanent location of no other attached or subordinate office in New Delhi is under consideration.

(f) Are Government aware that there is a general feeling among the clerks that the education of their children is suffering on account of the move?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b) The death rate in New Delhi for the period October, 1928—March, 1929 was 9.53 per mille and that for the period April, 1928—September, 1928 was 10.10 per mille.

(c) and (d). The information asked for is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member.

(e) No.

(f) Government received certain representations, pointing out that a longer stay than five months in New Delhi would mean that the education of the children of the Secretariat staff would suffer.

Mr. K. Ahmed : May I know what was the highest temperature at Delhi last summer when people had sunstroke?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I must ask the Honourable Member to give me notice of that question.

Mr. P. R. Rau : The extension of the Kalka-Simla Railway to Narkanda has been under examination, but the survey report has not yet been received. It is probable, however, that it will not be a remunerative line and the prospects of its construction are very remote.

CONNECTION OF THE KALKA SIMLA RAILWAY WITH THE NEW KANGRA VALLEY RAILWAY.

(c) Do Government propose to sell land in New Delhi to clerks and private persons on an instalment basis for encouraging the construction of private houses to supply the demand ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The total number of Indian clerks' quarters in New Delhi is 1,278 married quarters and 104 single quarters. The total applications for married quarters is 2,129. Applications for single quarters are sent to the Secretariat Association who lease these quarters.

(b) 150 quarters are under construction now, and the whole question of the further construction of clerks quarters is under the consideration of the Government of India.

(c) No proposal for selling land in New Delhi to clerks and private persons on an instalment basis is being considered by the Government of India. Government are inclined to think that such an arrangement is not likely to encourage the construction of private houses. In approved cases clerks can, however, obtain building advances from Government which they repay by instalments.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : Are there any quarters for clerks working in the Railway Clearing Office at Delhi ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No. The question is under consideration at present.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : Is it a fact that Government promised to supply quarters for them at Kingsway by this cold weather ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The site originally selected at Kingsway was not considered quite healthy by our medical advisers. The difficulty, as I explained to the House the other day, is that of selecting a suitable site.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : When is it likely to select a suitable site ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I wish I could say.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : Are Government aware that the delay in selecting a site for quarters for these large numbers of Indian clerks is causing them very great hardship ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I quite agree with the Honourable Member that it is important that a decision should be arrived at in this matter as soon as possible. I know the matter is engaging the special attention of the Railway Board and I will give my personal attention to it also, so that it may be settled as soon as possible.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : Can Government give me any assurance as to when they are likely to take action in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I am afraid I cannot be more definite than I have been. I cannot indicate a definite date.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it merely a question of site, or also of money ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : No. I should think it is mainly a question of site.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : If it is so difficult to find a suitable site in Delhi, why do not Government consider the question of transferring the Clearing House from Delhi to Lucknow ? (Laughter.)

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Which is so near to Moradabad ?

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : We will provide a suitable site there.

879. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that all important cities in India have got a museum, a zoological garden and public gardens ?

(b) What steps do Government propose to take to provide these things in New Delhi ? If not, why not ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Most cities of importance in India possess public gardens, and some of them have a museum and zoological gardens as well.

(b) New Delhi already possesses public gardens. A small museum has already been established, and a project for the building of a large museum is under consideration. There is no proposal at present for the establishment of a zoological garden.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : Is this museum open to the public ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Yes.

An Honourable Member : May I know where it is located ?

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : Are any steps taken to popularize it ? So far as I know, no one in the city knows about it.

Mr. E. L. Price : May I ask a supplementary question ? Is not a museum rather superfluous when the whole city is a museum ? (Laughter.)

PROVISION OF A TRAMWAY FROM NEW DELHI TO DELHI CITY.

880. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : Will Government be pleased to state if the proposal to connect New Delhi by tramway with Delhi City has been dropped ? If not, how does the matter stand at present ?

(b) How many cases were instituted against the residents of New Delhi by the Municipal Committee during the last year, and how many of them were dismissed ?

(b) Is it a fact that the rent of the Diaz Square shops realised in 1927, was about Rs. 5,000 and in 1928, Rs. 10,000 ?

(c) Is it a fact that since the construction of the shops, their rental value has always been rising at the time of every change in the lease ?

(d) Do Government propose to construct more shops in New Delhi to meet the demand and to increase their revenue ? If not, why not ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The total number of shops was 80 and the total number of tenders received (including those of the old tenants) was 214. All the old lessees were given the option of remaining on, with the exception of one shopkeeper who had contravened the terms of his previous lease.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) Government do not propose to construct more shops in New Delhi, but it is understood that the New Delhi Municipal Committee propose to do so as early as possible.

883. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that general merchandise shops in New Delhi are not permitted to sell atta, etc., in them which is meant for bania shops and that the latter are not allowed to sell tinned provisions, etc., which are meant for the former ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Diaz Square shops in New Delhi are classed as bania shops ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Diaz Square shops sell tinned provisions also ? If so, why ?

(d) Do Government propose either to remove the distinction or to enforce the restriction on bania shops also, just as they do in the case of general merchandise shops ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) No.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes. There is now no distinction and both general merchandise shops and bania shops can sell the same commodities if they so wish.

(d) Does not arise.

884. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : Have Government under consideration the question of constructing unorthodox quarters for those employees of the Government of India in New Delhi and Simla, whose pay is less than Rs. 225 ? If so, how does the matter stand at present ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : 50 unorthodox quarters for clerks whose pay is less than Rs. 225 have just been commenced in Delhi. The Government of India are not at present considering the question of building more quarters for European clerks in Simla. L18CPB(LA)

(b) Is it a fact that the general merchandise shops can sell tinned butter, tinned cheese, Cocogem, etc., but are not allowed to sell pure ghee?

(c) Will Government please state why they impose this restriction in respect of ghee and not in respect of Cocogem?

(d) Do Government propose to consider the desirability of removing this restriction? If not, why not?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) There is no distinction between the bania shops and the shops for general merchandise as regards the articles that may be sold.

(b) Is it a fact that the New Delhi Municipality does not publish its bye-laws in a consolidated form? If not, why not?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) The New Delhi bye-laws relating to building, drainage and water supply have been published in book form. It has not been thought worth while to bring out a complete edition of all the bye-laws in a consolidated form as any such edition would be out of date before it was published. It must be remembered that the New Delhi Municipal Committee is still in its infancy and that new bye-laws are continually being framed.

IMPOSITION OF A TERMINAL TAX ON GOODS ENTERING NEW DELHI.

887. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that the New Delhi Municipal Committee is considering the question of imposing a Terminal Tax on all goods entering its area? If so, when?

(b) Is it a fact that a double tax will be levied on goods that have to pass through Delhi city before entering New Delhi—one for Delhi city and one for New Delhi?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). The position is that it is intended that the Civil Lines, Delhi City and New Delhi shall be considered as one unit for the purposes of collection of Terminal Tax. The necessary preliminaries are now under consideration.

SUPERSESSION OF CERTAIN CLERKS IN THE MEDAL SECTION OF THE ARMY DEPARTMENT.

888. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. W. C. Debenham, now Assistant Secretary, Army Department, on resuming charge as Officer-in-Charge, Medal Distribution, appointed the following persons as Assistants on Rs. 140 per mensem:

- (1) Mr. A. C. Swarries, a cousin of Mr. Debenham, then a routine clerk on Rs. 50 in the office of the Director General, Indian Medical Service.

(2) Mr. T. J. Baptist, nephew to Mr. P. P. Hypher, then Superintendent, Army Department.

(3) Mr. Moti Lal De, then Retired Cashier, Army Department.

(b) Is it a fact that Mr. H. S. Massih was senior to both Mr. Swarries and Baptist? If so, why were not his claims considered on making the appointments and why was a retired cashier given an appointment for the second time to the detriment of the interests of the persons already in service?

(c) Is it a fact that, after the revised establishment of the Medal Section of the Army Department was sanctioned, Mr. A. C. Swarries was promoted from Rs. 140 per mensem to Rs. 250 per mensem in supersession of (i) Mr. T. J. Baptist who was senior to him in service and grade, (ii) Mr. C. A. Roy Chowdhry, M.A., (iii) Mr. B. B. Sur, B.A., B.L., (iv) Mr. G. C. Banerjee, B.A., (v) Mr. J. N. Ghosh, B.A., and (vi) Mr. P. Nath, B.A.? If so, will Government please state the reason?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) The reply is in the affirmative.

(b) and (c). The Honourable Member is asking for information regarding decisions taken about 12 years ago and Government are not prepared after so long an interval to discuss the details of the action then taken. I can assure him, however, that all the appointments were made on the basis of the respective merits of the individuals concerned.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST MR. P. K. SETT OF THE MEDAL SECTION, ARMY DEPARTMENT.

889. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that a representation was made by the Muslim Association, Calcutta, in 1925, to the Army Secretary, in respect of injustice to and maltreatment of Mr. P. K. Sett then Assistant-in-charge, Medal Section? Was an inquiry made into the matter? If not, why not?

(b) Is it also a fact that one Mr. Shyama Charan Chatterjee, an employee in the Medal Section, submitted a memorial to His Excellency the Viceroy, regarding the injustice to, and maltreatment of, the said Mr. P. K. Sett? Was that memorial forwarded to His Excellency the Viceroy or was any inquiry made into the complaints contained in the memorial? If not, why not?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) The Honourable Member appears to have been misinformed. I have been unable to trace any such representation.

(b) A lengthy memorial complaining of injustice and maltreatment by Mr. Sett—and not the injustice to, and maltreatment of Mr. Sett—was received and fully inquired into in 1925. The allegations made in it were found to be baseless.

DISCHARGE OF MR. A. K. GHOSE FROM THE MEDAL SECTION, ARMY DEPARTMENT.

890. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that one Mr. A. K. Ghose, who had put in six years' service in the Medal Section, was discharged because he failed to pass the examination of the Public Service Commission, held in 1926, while other employees much junior to Mr. Ghose, who had also failed in that examination, retained their posts?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : No, Sir. Mr. A. K. Ghose was discharged on reduction of establishment, because he had shown himself to be less efficient than those who were retained.

EMPLOYMENT OF UNPAID CANDIDATES IN THE MEDAL SECTION, ARMY DEPARTMENT.

891. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Can Government retain unpaid candidates in the Secretariat? If so, under what rules?

(b) Is it a fact that certain candidates were retained unpaid by the Medal Section of the Army Department in 1919-20 and were afterwards discharged without any remuneration?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given by the Honourable the Home Member to Mr. S. C. Mitra's starred question No. 216 on September 5th.

(b) Certain men were employed without pay in the Medal Section in Calcutta in 1919-20 under a misapprehension of the Officer-in-Charge and without authority, but they were not discharged without remuneration. As soon as the matter was reported, all of them were paid for the full period of their employment.

PRIVATE BUSINESS RUN BY MR. N. C. DAS, ASSISTANT-IN CHARGE, ARMY DEPARTMENT RECORDS, CALCUTTA.

892. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Are Government servants permitted to carry on private business or trade while in service?

(b) Is it a fact that one Mr. N. C. Das, Assistant-in-Charge, Army Department records, Calcutta, has got a stationery shop and runs a hotel under bogus names? Do Government propose to hold an inquiry into the matter and take necessary steps? If not, why not?

(c) Are there any rules permitting the grant of rewards in the form of cash to persons already in Government service?

(d) Is it a fact that Mr. N. C. Das was awarded Rs. 500 as a reward in 1926? What were the special meritorious services for which this grant was made to him?

(e) Does Mr. Das submit a report of his daily work as required in the case of other men of the Department? If not, why not?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Not without the sanction of the competent authority.

(b) The Government of India have no information, but inquiries will be made. It would facilitate the inquiry if the Honourable Member would be so good as to supply me with the details of the information on which his question is based.

(c) Yes. Fundamental Rule 46.

(d) In 1928 (not 1926) Mr. Das was granted an honorarium of Rs. 500 for the continuous assistance he had given to the Mint in connection with the inscription of names and other details on medals from 1923 to 1926. The work was done in addition to his own duties, and made it necessary for him to work beyond office hours as well as on Sunday and holidays. The honorarium was given on account of the laborious rather than the meritorious nature of the work.

(e) No clerk in the Army Department is required to submit a report of his daily work.

EXEMPTION OF SENIOR CLERKS OF THE MEDAL SECTION FROM THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION EXAMINATION.

893. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that the Home Department exempted senior clerks of the Medal Section from the Public Service Commission examination? If so, why was this concession not given effect to and why are these clerks forced to appear for the next departmental examination?

(b) Is it a fact that certain clerks of the Medal Section of the Army Department have been allowed to appear for the Public Service Commission examination in different divisions while others have been refused this privilege?

(c) Have all the retrenched clerks of the Medal Section and of the Army Canteen Board been granted permission to appear for the examination? If not, why not?

* Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) No, Sir, the Home Department ruled that the clerks might remain in their existing appointments without examination, if the Army Department recommended such a course. The Army Department did not recommend this course, firstly because they were satisfied that justice would be done by giving the clerks special facilities to appear at a qualifying examination, and secondly because they did not wish to take on their permanent establishment several unqualified clerks who would be ineligible for employment in any other part of the office.

(b) Those clerks who are educationally qualified are being allowed to sit for the 1st and 2nd divisions, the remainder for the 3rd division.

(c) The only retrenched clerks of the Medal Section who are being allowed to appear at the qualifying examination are those who have been retrenched since the concession was sanctioned. As regards the retrenched clerks of the late Army Canteen Board, I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given by Mr. Mackworth Young to starred question No. 191 on the 14th February, 1928.

DISCRIMINATION SHOWN IN REGARD TO CERTAIN CLERKS IN THE MEDAL SECTION, ARMY DEPARTMENT.

894. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that one Mr. M. L. Bhatnagar, routine clerk, Army Department, was exempted from the Public Service Commission examination and retained in service after having failed in the examination, while Mr. Habit Khan, who was in the service for the last ten years, was discharged because he failed in the examination? Why was this discrimination made between Mr. Bhatnagar and Mr. Habit Khan?

establishment, made in the Institute since 1928, and by whom they were filled ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The percentages mentioned by the Honourable Member are roughly speaking correct in the case of the clerical and subordinate (technical) establishments of the Forest Research Institute.

(b) and (c). A statement giving the information required by the Honourable Member is laid on the table of the House. It shows that 79, out of a total of 150 technical establishment posts, were held by men without academic qualification ; but all the men in question are thoroughly efficient manual workers, and have now been in Government service for many years.

(d) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given to part (d) of question No. 272 asked in this House on the 20th February, 1928.

(e) 44 appointments have been made to the clerical and subordinate technical establishments since 1928 ; of the persons appointed, 35 were Hindus, 6 were Muhammadans, 2 were Christians, and 1 was a Sikh.

The following table shows the qualifications of the technical and clerical establishment :

| Examinations.                                                        | Hindus.    | Muham-madans. | Christians. | Sikhs.   | Total.     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|-------------------|-------------|----------|------------|
| I.—Technical Establishment.                                   |            |                   |             |          |            |

CLERKS' QUARTERS IN NEW DELHI.

900. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government be pleased to state :

- what is the total number of each type of clerks' quarters in New Delhi, viz., A, B, C and D, at the disposal of the Estate Office on 1st September, 1929 ;
- the names of the offices (migratory or non-migratory) which are entitled to these quarters ;
- the total number of clerks in each of the offices (migratory or non-migratory) who are entitled to the 'A', 'B', 'C' and 'D' types of quarters for clerks in New Delhi ;
- how many quarters of each description the respective offices (migratory or non-migratory) are entitled to on the pro rata basis ;
- the total demand of the clerks' quarters for each type, office by office, both migratory and non-migratory, for the coming winter ; and
- how far has this demand been met by the Estate Office ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Three statements giving the information required will be furnished to the Honourable Member.

GRANT OF A SEPARATION ALLOWANCE TO CLERKS NOT PROVIDED WITH QUARTERS IN NEW DELHI.

901. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the clerks of the Government of India Secretariat who are required to move between Delhi and Simla are given a separation allowance if they are forced to keep their family away on account of their not being provided with Government quarters at Delhi ?

TIFFIN ROOM IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, SIMLA.

905. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the tiffin room intended for the use of Christians employed in the Government of India Press, Simla, has been utilised as a mosque by the Assistant Manager and the Head Clerk, and great discontent prevails among the Christian employees on this account ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) is in affirmative, do Government propose to issue instructions to the Manager to take immediate steps to make the room available for the use of the Christian employees ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : It has been ascertained that there were originally four tiffin rooms in the Government of India Press, Simla, but that, by mutual arrangement, two of these were made into a prayer room leaving two tiffin rooms, one for the joint use of Muhammadans and Christians and one for Hindus. No discontent has ever been expressed by the Christian employees on this account.

OFFICE HOURS DURING THE WINTER OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, SIMLA.

906. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Are Government aware that the working hours of the Offices of the Government of India at Simla are from 10-30 A.M., to 4 P.M., during the winter months, but in the case of the employees in the Government of India Press, Simla, the hours of attendance are fixed from 9 A.M. to 6 P.M. ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) is in affirmative, do Government propose to take into consideration the trouble and the inconvenience experienced by the poor employees during the winter months and make a reduction in the number of hours as a special case ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). I believe that the office hours are generally as stated by the Honourable Member ; and the hours of work of the industrial hands of the Government of India Press, Simla, on week days, excepting Saturdays, are also as stated. Government do not propose to make any reduction in them at present.

FILLING PERMANENT AND OFFICIATING APPOINTMENTS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, SIMLA.

907. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that, at the time of filling up the vacant posts and making officiating arrangements in leave vacancies, no consideration is given to the attendance, conduct, pay and service, etc., and that a number of senior claimants have been superseded by junior hands in the Printing and Office clerical staff in the Government of India Press, Simla, during the last three years ?

(b) Do Government propose to make a full inquiry into the matter and issue instructions to the Manager, Government of India Press, Simla, to maintain a proper list arranged in order of seniority for the purpose of making permanent or officiating appointments in future ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). Government have no information. If the Honourable Member will bring to my personal notice any specific case or cases, I shall be glad to inquire into the matter.

APPOINTMENT OF MEN UNDER TRAINING IN PRINTING IN ENGLAND.

908. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government be pleased to state as to how many men now under training in England in the printing line are likely to return to India after the completion of their studies and to which presses of the Government of India they are proposed to be allotted and on what appointments ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Altogether four State scholarships have been awarded by the Government of India for training in England for the study of printing and allied arts. One of the scholars has recently returned to India, and a proposal to appoint him to a suitable post in one of the Government of India Presses is under consideration. The other three will also doubtless return to India at the end of their training, but it is too early to consider what particular appointments, if any, should be offered to them.

MEDICAL INSPECTION OF EMPLOYEES OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, SIMLA.

909. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that a Sub-Assistant Surgeon is supposed to call at the Press thrice a week to attend on and report the general health of each and every employee of the Government of India Press, Simla, for which he receives an extra allowance from Government ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) is in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to furnish a copy of the Inspection Report of each individual ? If no such record has been kept, do Government propose to ask the Manager to explain the reason ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) With a view to afford medical facilities to such employees of the Simla Press as are in need of medical aid, Government have arranged that a Sub-Assistant Surgeon should visit the Press on alternate days. The doctor is not required to attend and report on the general health of each and every employee of the Press.

(b) Does not arise.

PROVISION OF QUARTERS OR ALLOWANCES TO EMPLOYEES OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, SIMLA.

910. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Are Government aware that the present building of the Government of India Press, Simla, is situated at a distance of two miles from the city, on account of which great inconvenience is experienced by the employees, more particularly during the rains and snow and on occasions when they are required to work till late in the night ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) is in the affirmative, do Government propose to consider the advisability of:

- (1) constructing quarters, as in the case of the employees of the Delhi Press, somewhere near the Press building,

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The reply to the first part of the question is in the negative. As a result of the Staff Selection Board's examination held in 1922, Mr. M. L. Bhatnagar was declared qualified for employment as a routine clerk in the Army Department Secretariat. The other clerk referred to in the question failed three times in the examination, and was therefore declared unfit for permanent employment in any Department.

EXEMPTION FROM EXAMINATION OF CERTAIN CLERKS OF THE MEDAL SECTION, ARMY DEPARTMENT.

895. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Do Government propose to exempt those clerks of the Medal Section who were appointed before the introduction of the Staff Selection Board from the Public Service Commission examination ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : No, Sir, for the reasons given in my reply to question No. 893.

REDUCTION OF PAY OF CERTAIN CLERKS IN THE MEDAL SECTION, ARMY DEPARTMENT.

896. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the reasons why the pay of certain clerks of the Medal Section of the Army Department was substantially reduced when they were removed from Calcutta to Delhi without any fault on their part ?

(b) Is it not a fact that in their letter No. 99-C.S.R. of 1923, addressed to the Accountant General, Punjab, the Finance Department, intimated that the pay of the clerks who hold continuous temporary or permanent appointments could not, under any circumstances be reduced ? If so, why was the pay of the clerks in the Medal Section reduced ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Certain appointments in the Medal Section were converted from a temporary to a permanent basis with effect from the 24th September, 1926. The holders of the temporary appointments had not passed the Public Service Commission examination and consequently could not be confirmed in these permanent appointments. In consequence of their long connection with the Medal Section, they were, however, allowed to officiate in the permanent appointments with a view to confirmation if they passed the next examination. As they were only officiating, their pay had to be restricted to the rates prescribed by rule for that class.

(b) The Honourable Member probably refers to Finance Department letter No. 99-C.S.R. of 1926 (not 1923), which rules that a Government servant who, on the abolition of a temporary post held substantively by him, is appointed to another post, either temporary or permanent, is entitled to have his initial pay regulated with reference to the pay drawn in respect of the post which was abolished. This is not quite the same as the interpretation placed upon the letter by the Honourable Member.

EMPLOYMENT OF RETRENCHED CLERKS OF THE MEDAL SECTION, ARMY DEPARTMENT.

897. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Do Government propose to employ the retrenched clerks of the Medal Section of the Army Department preference to those who have been holding temporary appointments in various Branches of the Army Headquarters since November, 1928 ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Four of the retrenched clerks of the Medal Section are at present employed temporarily in various Branch of Army Headquarters. Applications from the others will be considered and dealt with on their merits, but the recent introduction of a leave reserve in all the main Branches of Army Headquarters has greatly reduced the chances of temporary employment in future.

NUMBER OF MUSSALMANS IN THE MEDAL SECTION OF THE ARMY DEPARTMENT.

898. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) What was the total number of Mussalmans in the Medal Section of the Army Department and how many of them were retrenched ?

(b) What is the total number of clerks in the Medal Section of the Army Department and how many of them are the relations of P. K. Sett Assistant in charge, Medal Section ?

(c) Is it not a fact that Messrs. R. R. Sett and S. C. Sett, relations of Mr. P. K. Sett, were retained in service while others who were senior to them were discharged under the retrenchment process ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) When the Medal Section was at its greatest strength in 1923, there were four Mussalman clerks, three of whom have since been retrenched.

(b) The present strength of the Medal Section is 12, none of whom are relations of Mr. P. K. Sett.

(c) Yes, but not because of their relationship to Mr. P. K. Sett. Neither of them is now in the Medal Section.

PERCENTAGE OF HINDUS AND MUHAMMADANS EMPLOYED IN THE FOREST RESEARCH INSTITUTE.

899. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that the percentage of Hindu and Muhammadan employees in the Forest Research Institute is over 90 and below 10, respectively ?

(b) Will Government please state the qualifications of the present employees, both clerical and subordinate (technical) at the Institute ?

(c) Is it a fact that the majority of the subordinate technical staff possesses no qualifications while some have only read up to the middle standard ? If so, how do Government justify on grounds of efficiency the present disproportionate representation of minority communities ?

(d) Will Government please state if they propose to take some immediate and efficacious steps to set these matters right, and if so, what steps ?

(e) Will Government please state the number of clerical and subordinate technical appointments, both on the temporary and permanent

- (2) allotting to them the quarters previously occupied by the employees of the Foreign and Political Press, Simla, for so long as the construction is not completed, and

- (3) allowing house-rent allowance and conveyance charge if quarters cannot be provided ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Government are aware that some inconvenience is caused to the employees by reason of the fact that the Press is situated at some distance from the town.

(b) (1) and (3) Not at present.

(b) (2) No.

COMPARATIVE COST OF MECHANICAL AND HAND COMPOSITION AND SCALE OF CHARGES FOR THE FORMER.

911. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the present system of mechanical composition by means of linotype and monotype machines is much more expensive than the old system of hand composition ? If not will Government be pleased to furnish a statement showing the cost per page by hand composition during the financial year 1915 to 1920, and by Linotype and Monotype machines separately, for the financial years 1922 to 1927, in the Government of India Presses at Simla, Calcutta, Delhi and Aligarh ?

(b) Is it a fact that the cost of the mechanical composition on linotype and monotype machines is charged at the rates of hand composition which has no comparison with the mechanical composition and thus the figures given by the Simla Press in the Annual Reports cannot be taken as accurate ? Will Government be pleased to state what procedure is adopted in all the other Presses of the Government of India for charging the mechanical composition on linotype and monotype machines and under what scale, as the rates given in the Printing Office Hand Book are only for hand composition and cannot possibly be applied to mechanical composition ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). Inquiries are being made and the results will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

PROMOTION OF ASSISTANT SECTION HOLDERS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESSES.

912. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that, after the Report of the Piece Workers Enquiry Committee, 1922, presided over by the late Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersay, orders were passed by Government to the effect that vacancies of section-holders in the Government of India Presses would be filled alternately from compositors and assistant section-holders ?

(b) Is it a fact that at present in the Delhi Press one operator and two compositors are officiating as section-holders ? If so, why has no chance been given to assistant section-holders who are entitled to alternate vacancies under the orders of Government ?

(c) Is it a fact that the assistant section-holders before accepting their present appointments in the Rs. 40—4—80 scale held posts of compositors on class pay of Rs. 60—65 and Rs. 80—85 and they were made to start from Rs. 40 per mensem ?

(d) Is it a fact that assistant section-holders accepted low pay after great sacrifice to better their prospects held out to them by Government ? If so, what steps do Government propose to take to safeguard the rights of the present incumbents ?

(e) Has there been any change in the Government orders referred to above ? If not, do Government propose to inquire why the Manager of the Delhi Press has not carried out the orders of Government ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a), (b) and (e). According to the orders of Government, vacancies in the grade of section-holders are to be filled alternately from assistant section-holders and duly qualified senior compositors. It has, however, been brought to the notice of Government that it is not always practicable to adhere strictly to these orders, and the question whether these orders require any modification is engaging the attention of the Controller of Printing and Stationery.

(c) and (d). Government have no information, but they are inquiring into the matter.

WORKS COMMITTEE OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, DELHI.

913. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that elections to the Works Committee in the Delhi Press are not held according to rules ?

(b) Is it a fact that sufficient notice is not given to the workers to elect their representatives ?

(c) Is it a fact that in the last election intimation that an election would be held was given to the workers only a few minutes before the election ?

(d) Is it a fact that a wrong date was printed in the notice ?

(e) Is it a fact that other irregularities are committed ? Do Government propose to inquire and state the reason for these irregularities ?

(f) Is it a fact that authority to inflict punishment has been delegated by the Manager to the members of the Works Committee ? If so, is it a fact that a large number of men have been punished ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : An inquiry is being made, and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

DISTRIBUTION OF WORK BY SECTION-HOLDERS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, DELHI.

14. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Are Government aware that favouritism and petty oppression is practised by the section-holders in the Delhi Press in the distribution of work to piece-workers ?

(b) Are Government aware that serious discontent prevails amongst the piece-workers on account of unfair distribution of work by section-holders ?

(c) Is it a fact that a large number of compositors have made repeated representations to the Manager of the Press against the unfair distribution of work by section-holders, but no action has been taken by him against the section-holders concerned ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Piece-workers' Enquiry Committee, 1922, brought this matter of unfair distribution prominently to the notice of Government ? If so, is it a fact that strict orders were passed by Government to prevent favouritism and petty oppression by Foremen and section-holders ?

(e) Is it a fact that the piece-work system, except in the case of the favoured few, causes extreme trouble and allows starvation wages only owing to unfair distribution of work ? If so, do Government propose to abolish the system and introduce fixed pay for compositors, distributors, impositors and pressmen in the Government of India Press, Delhi ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) No.

(b) Government are not aware of any such discontent.

(c) Government have no information.

(d) The answer to both parts of this question is in the affirmative.

(e) The reply to the first part of the question is in the negative. The second part of the question does not arise.

SUPERSESSION OF CLERKS IN THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE.

915. *Mr. Abdul Qadir Siddiqi : (a) Is it a fact that some clerks were newly appointed in the Railway Clearing Accounts Office on a pay higher than that of the men who were already in service in the office ? If so, why ?

(b) Is seniority in this branch of service determined by the pay of the official or the period of service ? If the former, why are the claims of the old servants overlooked ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The pay of the new recruits in the Railway Clearing Accounts Office is fixed under the rules of recruitment of subordinate establishment in the Railway Accounts Department approved by the Standing Finance Committee for Railways. A copy of these rules is available in the Library of the House. Under these rules, candidates who obtain more than a fixed percentage of marks in the competitive examination get a higher starting salary.

(b) The question of determining the seniority of the staff of the Railway Clearing Accounts Office is still under the consideration of the Committee which has been appointed for the purpose.

GRIEVANCES OF EMPLOYEES IN THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE.

916. *Mr. Abdul Qadir Siddiqi : (a) Is it a fact that one Mr. Smith has been placed on special duty to inquire into the grievances of the men serving in the Railway Clearing Accounts Office and to prepare a seniority list ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government please state why the men have been asked to appear before Rai Bahadur Fakeerchand in that connection ?

(c) Did some men of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway object to submitting their grievances in the presence of Rai Bahadur Fakeerchand ? If so, what was the reply to their objection ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No.

(b) I understand no men have been asked to appear before the officer named.

(c) The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative and the second part does not arise.

CIRCULATION OF OFFICE ORDERS IN THE RAILWAY CLEARING ACCOUNTS OFFICE.

917. *Mr. Abdul Qadir Siddiqi : Is it a fact that in the Railway Clearing Accounts Office, office orders are circulated only to the sub-heads and not to the clerks who are generally affected by them ? Do Government propose to inquire and remove this complaint ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I understand the circulation of Office Orders referred to by the Honourable Member is not limited to sub-heads.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : With your permission, Sir, I shall put the questions standing in the name of Mr. B. Das.

EXTENSION OF CONTRACTS OF COMPANY-MANAGED RAILWAYS.

918. *Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether any of the Company-managed railways have had their terminations of the contract, and the provisions to come into effect thereon, renewed and revised ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to name these railways and specifically mention in each case the period of extension of termination in each case ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) Yes.

(b) A statement giving the information in regard to the five State-owned Company-managed railways is laid on the table.

Statement showing periods of extension of terms of contract already granted to the State-owned Company-managed Railways.

| Name of Railway.                    | Period of extension of term of Contract.                  |

PENAL PROVISIONS AND THE CONTRACT WITH THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY.

919. *Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Is it a fact that in paragraph 89 of the original Contract of the Bengal Nagpur Railway (main contract dated the 9th March, 1887), the following penal provision occurred :

"The Secretary of State may also, if default be made by the Company in duly paying any sum or sums payable by the Company under the 36th or 38th section of this Contract or in the construction and completion in conformity with this Contract or in the construction and completion in conformity with this Contract of the undertaking or any of the Stations or other works thereof or in due equipment pursuant to this Contract of the undertaking or any part thereof with rolling stock machinery or plant or in case there shall be any breach on the part of the Company (whether by act, omission or default) of any of the stipulations or provisions of this Contract or in case the undertaking or any part thereof at any time in the opinion of the Secretary of State be in course of gross mismanagement by the Company or be worked at a loss as shewn by the revenue account and have been so worked for not less than three half-years continuously down to the time at which the Secretary of State shall give to the Company the stipulated notice of termination under this present power terminate this Contract by giving to the Company in England six calendar months' previous notice in writing of the termination of this Contract."

(b) Will Government be pleased to state what were the reasons that led the Secretary of State in 1912 to cancel this penal provision for terminating the Contract by six calendar months' notice for gross mismanagement (Contract dated the 5th November, 1912—No. 7, page 58) ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) Yes.

(b) There is nothing on record showing the reasons for the change.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Do I take it that the Government of India were not consulted before this change was made ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : They were not consulted about this particular change.

REMOVAL OF THE PENAL CLAUSE FROM THE CONTRACT OF THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY.

920. *Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the Government of India in 1911-12 advised the Secretary of State to remove the penal clause from the Contract of the Bengal Nagpur Railway ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the opinion held by the then Railway Board (1910-12) on this point ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table all correspondence that passed between the Railway Board (Government of India) and the Secretary of State at the time ?

(d) Was the Finance Member of the Government of India during 1910-12 consulted on the removal of this penal clause and if so, will Government be pleased to state his opinion on the subject ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) No.

(b) The question was not before the Railway Board and consequently no opinion could be expressed by them.

(c) & (d). This point was not a subject of discussion between the Secretary of State and the Government of India.

CONTRACT WITH THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY.

921. Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Is it a fact that under the Contract of 1887 the Bengal Nagpur Railway system could have been acquired by Government in 1913 or every succeeding tenth year by giving to the Company a notice of 12 calendar months ?

(b) Is it a fact that the revised Contract of 5th November of 1912 which deleted the passage on penal acquisition specified that the Contract with the Bengal Nagpur Railway can be terminated in 1950 or every fifth year thereafter on a notice of 12 calendar months ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the comprehensive grounds that led them to hand over unconditionally the management of this Company-managed railway system for another 38 years ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) & (b). Yes.

(c) It was apparently considered at the time that it was desirable in the interests of the State to continue the existing system of management on terms less favourable to the Company. Among the terms was the reduction of the guaranteed interest from 4 to 3½ per cent., and of the share of the surplus profits of the Company from ¼ to the proportion their capital bore to the Secretary of State's capital. These were taken as £3 million and as £15½ million, respectively, on the 31st December, 1910.

Mr. E. L. Price : Is it not a fact that the more railways already in being you buy up, the fewer new railways you can build ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I think I must ask for notice of that question.

PENAL PROVISIONS IN CONTRACTS WITH COMPANY-MANAGED RAILWAYS.

922. Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if there were penal provisions in the original contracts of other Company-managed railways, e.g., the Bombay, Baroda and Central India, the Madras and Southern Mahratta and the South Indian Railways whereby the Contract of management could be terminated by six months' notice for gross mismanagement as in the main Contract of the Bengal Nagpur Railway in 1887 ?

(b) How many such penal provisions still operate and how many have been deleted as was done in the case of the Bengal Nagpur Railway ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the reasons that led them to make these alterations in the main contracts ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : There was no penal clause in the original contract of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, but there were such clauses in the contracts of the Assam Bengal, Madras and Southern Mahratta and South Indian Railways. The penal clause in the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway contract was deleted in a supplemental contract, dated the 26th June, 1908. The correspondence relating to this supplemental contract does not throw any light on the reasons that led to the deletion of the penal clause.

DIRECTORS OF THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY.

923. Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the present Managing Director of the Bengal Nagpur Railway was a former Member of the Railway Board ?

(b) How many former Members of the Railway Board have so far served as Directors on the Bengal Nagpur Railway and what are their names?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) Yes.

(b) Two. Sir T. R. Wynne and Sir Ernest Bell.

Mr. M. S. Aney : Was the Managing Director of the Bengal Nagpur Railway a member of the Railway Board during the time when this alteration in the contract was brought about?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I could not answer that without notice, I am afraid.

ACCEPTANCE OF DIRECTORSHIPS OF COMPANIES BY RETIRED HIGH OFFICIALS.

924. Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if retired high officials—such as Governors of Provinces and Members of the Railway Board—are permitted to be Directors of companies working in India?

(b) Will Government be pleased to make a statement on the principles that are laid down by the Secretary of State for India and the Government of India to guide high officials of State in this matter?

(c) Is it a fact that a few years ago Sir Reginald Craddock, a former Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, was working as a Director of a few manganese companies in the Central Provinces that were taken over from the Germans during the War?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) and (b). I would refer the Honourable Member to the Home Department Resolution No. 1140, dated the 21st April, 1920, published in Part I of the Gazette of India of 24th April, 1920.

(c) Yes.

LOSS ON PIG IRON ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

925. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : With reference to para. 115 (page 60) of the Report of the Accountant General, Railways, on the Railway Appropriation Account, will Government please state whether the difference of Rs. 50 per ton on 34,000 tons of pig-iron was borne by the East Indian Railway Company or by Government? If it was borne by Government, why?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Before the termination of the contract with the East Indian Railway Company, an investigation into the stores balances of that Railway was undertaken, and it was proposed by Government that the book value of stores found surplus to current requirements, among which the pig iron referred to by the Honourable Member was included, should be written down to current market rate by a charge to revenue before the termination of the contract. The Company demurred to this proposal, basing their objection on a different interpretation of the relevant clause of the contract, and it was clear that the dispute would have to be referred to arbitration. Under the contract the share of the surplus profits accruing to the Company was only  $\frac{1}{100}$ , and even if the proposal had been accepted, and the difference debited to the revenues of the undertaking, the difference in the Company's surplus profits would have been negligible—about Rs. 12,000. The sum at stake being so very small, and no time remaining for arbitration proceedings in view of the imminent winding up of the Company, Government decided not to press their claim on the point.

COST OF CAST-IRON SLEEPERS MANUFACTURED AT JAMALPUR.

926. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) What is the manufacturing cost of cast-iron sleepers made at Jamalpur? Is it Rs. 55-7-4 per ton, excluding the cost of pig iron? If not, what is it? How does it compare with the market price?

(b) Are the sleepers manufactured by the Railway at the Jamalpur Workshop inspected by the Indian Stores Department? If not, why not?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The manufacturing cost of cast-iron sleepers at Jamalpur in 1928 was reported to be about Rs. 17-12-0 per ton, excluding the cost of pig and scrap iron. The total cost, including materials, was about Rs. 79-8-0 per ton. This is somewhat above the present market price, on account of the price charged by firms for pig iron.

(b) No. As the Jamalpur shops are under the control of the East Indian Railway Administration, it has not been considered necessary to have such an inspection.

SALE OF WROUGHT IRON AND STEEL SCRAP ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

927. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. Bailey, the Controller of Stores, North Western Railway, sold 11,000 tons of wrought iron and steel scrap at Rs. 6-11-0 per ton last year?

(b) Is it a fact that this price of Rs. 6-11-0 per ton was about one-fourth of the market price?

(c) Is it a fact that the quantity of 11,000 tons was not in stock at the time when the sale was made, and the Railway delivered the materials long after the sale was made?

(d) Is it a fact that the man in whose name the sale was made was not the man who took delivery, but some other firm paid for and took delivery of the materials?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) 10,000 tons of heavy iron and steel scrap was sold in 1928, at Rs. 5-11-0 per ton f.o.r. Lahore. This scrap consisted of large pieces, such as boilers and underframes, which would have to be cut up by the user at heavy expense. The scrap was sold by tender and the highest offer was accepted. Ten offers were received.

(b) No. The highest tender was accepted.

(c) It was estimated that approximately 11,000 tons were available, but on delivery being made by weighment, the quantity delivered was 10,000 tons. Delivery took several months to effect. The conditions of tender stated that the quantity 11,000 tons was approximate.

(d) No.

CONTRACT FOR RAILS WITH THE TATA IRON AND STEEL COMPANY.

928. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) In continuation of my starred question No. 362, this Session, will Government be pleased to state when the contract with the Tata Iron and Steel Company, Ltd., for rails was made ?

(b) What are the minimum and maximum quantities ?

(c) Will Government please supply a copy of the contract ?

(d) What was the price of rails which Government were paying to foreign manufacturers at the time when the contract was made with Tatas for rails ?

(e) What was the price paid by Company-managed railways for the same at that time ?

(f) Have Government ever purchased rails at Rs. 110 per ton or under from foreign countries before or after the contract made with Tatas ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) to (c). A copy of the contract, which gives all the information required by the Honourable Member, is laid on the table.

(d) & (e). Before the contract with the Tata Iron and Steel Company was made, the orders for rails purchased abroad were placed by each Railway Administration separately, and not by the Railway Board. The information asked for is not therefore on record in the Railway Board's office. But my Honourable friend will find full information as to the prices paid by the Railway Administrations for imported rails during the years 1921-22 to 1925-26 on pages 101 to 124 of Volume V of the Evidence recorded by the Tariff Board in the course of the statutory inquiry into the steel industry in 1926. The Tariff Board came to the conclusions, after considering not only the prices for rails then ruling, but also the probable trend of prices in the next few years, that for the purpose of estimating the protection required by the Indian steel industry, the landed prices, without duty, of imported rails, should be taken on Rs. 105 a ton. With the addition of the ordinary 10 per cent. duty, this would mean a price of Rs. 115 a ton.

(f) Not since the War so far as I am aware.

THIS INDENTURE made the sixteenth day of October one thousand nine hundred and twenty-eight BETWEEN THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL (which expression shall be taken to mean and include the said Secretary of State for India in Council and his successors in office and assigns) of the one part and THE TATA IRON AND STEEL COMPANY, LIMITED, a Company duly registered under the Indian Companies' Act, 1882, and having its Registered Office at Bombay House, 24, Bruce Street, Fort, Bombay, hereinafter called "the Company" which expression shall be taken to mean and include the said Tata Iron and Steel Company, Limited,—their representatives and permitted assigns except where the context requires another or different meaning of the other part : WHEREBY it is agreed as follows :—

1. The Company shall for a period of seven years commencing from the First Day of April one thousand nine hundred and twenty seven supply to the Railway Board of the Government of India (hereinafter called the Board), upon the terms and subject to the conditions hereinafter contained, rails and fishplates rolled at the Steel Works of the Company at Jamshedpur in India and of such sections not being lighter than 40 lbs. nor heavier than 100 lbs. per yard as may from time to time be required by the Board. The quantity of fishplates to be supplied shall not exceed the full quantity necessary for use with the rails supplied, namely, one pair of fishplates for each rail, plus an additional 5 per cent. of such full quantity.

2. Subject to Force Majeure as hereinafter defined the Company shall supply to the Board in each Government financial year during the continuance of this agreement such rails and fishplates as the Board shall require them to supply up to a maximum of 200,000 tons of rails with fishplates in the proportion as specified in clause 1 thereof.

3. The Board shall purchase from the Company during the continuance of this agreement not less than 90 per cent. of the total requirements of the railways mentioned in the Schedule hereto of rails and fishplates in each Government financial year, subject to clause 7 hereof, and subject to the maximum mentioned in clause 2 hereof.

4. The Board shall notify to the Company not less than 4 months before the beginning of each Government financial year, during the continuance of this agreement, the estimated requirements of rails and the corresponding fishplates in the proportion specified in clause 1 during such financial year.

5. The Board shall make monthly indent on the Company for their actual requirements giving at least three months' notice of each month's requirements. Such indents shall be limited to not more than 1/10th or less than 1/14th of the annual requirements.

6. If on account of Force Majeure the Company is unable in any month or year to deliver the quantity required, the Company shall give notice in writing to the Board as soon as possible, specifying the quantity which the Company will be unable to deliver and the Board shall thereupon have the option of ordering elsewhere such quantity as the Company is unable to deliver as aforesaid or of granting to the Company an extension of the time to deliver such quantity.

7. If for any reason other than those mentioned in clause 18 hereof, the Company shall fail to deliver in any month the quantity of rails or fishplates in accordance with the provisions of clause 5 hereof, then and in any such case, the Board shall be at liberty to purchase from other sources and at the risk and on the account of the Company rails or fishplates equivalent to such quantity which may be short delivered and the Company shall pay to the Board the difference between the price payable hereunder and the price paid by the Board after making due allowance for any variation in the cost of transport arising by reason of the fact that such rails or fishplates will not have been delivered free on rail at Tatanagar.

8. Such quantity of rails and fishplates as the Board may order from elsewhere under the provisions of clause 7 shall pro tanto reduce the maximum tonnage deliverable under this agreement unless the agreement is terminated on account of default, when no further supplies will be taken from the Company.

9. All rails and fishplates shall be delivered by the Company to the Board free on rail at Tatanagar.

10. Subject to the provisions of clause 14 hereof the Board shall pay the Company for the rails and fishplates duly passed, accepted and delivered free on rails at Tatanagar, at the following rates per ton :—

| 2. (b) For rails of 40 feet length in excess of 20 per cent. of the total tonnage ordered during any year, and                                                                                 |     |   |   |

11. All rails and fishplates supplied under this agreement shall be manufactured and supplied in all respects in strict accordance with the Board's specifications for steel rails and fishplates for State-worked lines hereunto annexed subject to such modifications in the said specifications as may be introduced during the period of this agreement by the mutual consent of the parties hereto.

The said rails and fishplates shall be marked with the initials of the Company, the month and year in which they are rolled and the section of rails. Each rail and fishplate shall be marked with the number of the cast from which it is produced.

12. The process of manufacture shall be either that known as the Basic Open Hearth or the Duplex Basic Open Hearth. The rails shall be not less than 50 lbs. nor more than 100 lbs. per yard and shall be supplied in standard lengths varying from 36 feet and upwards not exceeding 45 feet, but the Company shall be at liberty to supply 10 per cent. of rails shorter than these standards lengths by length which shall be multiples of 3 feet subject to no rails being shorter than 27 feet.

13. All rails and fishplates shall prior to delivery on rail trucks be inspected and passed by the Government Metallurgical Inspector at Jamshedpur or any other Inspector appointed by him in accordance with the provisions of the specifications hereunto annexed. The Company shall provide free of charge all tools and labour required by the said Inspector for the inspection of the said rails and fishplates, but subject as aforesaid the charges of the said Inspector for the inspection and passing of the rails and fishplates shall be borne by the Board.

14. Notwithstanding anything contained in this agreement it is hereby expressly agreed that provided the terms and conditions of supply offered by the Company (in the opinion of the Board whose decision shall be final) are as good as those obtainable elsewhere and the Company have not made any default under this agreement the Board shall during the continuance of this agreement give the option to the Company for the supply during the period of this agreement of their requirements of rails and fishplates of the specifications detailed in clause 11 hereof for the Railways specified in the Schedule hereto over and above the 90 per cent. of their actual requirements specified in clause 3 hereof. In the event of any such additional rails and fishplates being purchased as aforesaid the provisions of this agreement so far as the same are applicable (and have not been varied by the terms and conditions of supply offered by the Company as aforesaid) shall apply to the supply of such rails and fishplates.

15. Orders from the Board for rails and fishplates shall receive priority over all orders received by the Company from its other customers for rails and fishplates.

16. The Board shall pay to the Company 90 per cent. of the invoice value of rails and fishplates supplied and passed under this agreement against delivery of railway receipts and the balance of 10 per cent. within one month after receipt of the material at the destination specified by the Board.

17. The Company shall not be liable to for any shortage, loss or damage which may be incurred during the transit of the said rails and fishplates, it being expressly agreed that the responsibility of the Company shall cease on its delivering in rail trucks at Tatanagar the said rails and fishplates in good condition after being passed as aforesaid and the weight given in the Company's invoice shall be conclusive evidence of the amount delivered if it does not vary by more than 1 per cent. from the weight shown in the relative Railway Receipt.

18. If by reason of any strike, lockout, failure on the part of any Railway Company to supply sufficient wagons to carry essential raw materials to and finished products from the works, fire, breakdown or accident to machinery (not due to the Company's neglect), riots, war, insurrection or restraints imposed by Government, Act of Legislature or other authority or by reason of any other cause of whatsoever nature beyond the control of the Company (all of which were hereinbefore referred to as Force Majeure) the Company shall be unable to deliver to the Board its requirements, either wholly or in part, the Board shall be entitled to proceed under clause 6 hereof, but shall have no claim against the Company in damages or otherwise by reason of such non-delivery.

19. If by reason of the failure of the Company to supply any rails under this contract for a period of not less than four consecutive months it shall become evident to the Board that the Company will be unable satisfactorily to fulfil its obligations during the remaining period of the contract, whether the inability be due to insolvency of the Company or to arrangements with its creditors, not being in respect of shares or debentures, or to the winding up of the Company not merely for the purpose of reconstruction or to any other cause, the Board shall be entitled to terminate the agreement and recover on demand any loss suffered in consequence from the Company provided that failure due to Force Majeure shall not be regarded as failure for the purposes of this clause.

20. The Company shall not assign or sublet all or any part of this contract without the written sanction of the Board.

21. Any dispute between the parties to this agreement regarding either the interpretation of the agreement or any dispute arising in connection with this agreement, the settlement of which is not hereinbefore provided for, shall be submitted to the arbitration of two persons, one to be appointed by each party and arbitration proceedings shall be conducted according to the provisions of the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899.

CAST STEEL CROSSINGS.

929. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) In continuation of my starred question No. 363 of this Session, will Government be pleased to state why the use of cast steel crossings has been given up in India ?

(b) Will Government please furnish a copy of the specification for cast steel crossings suitable on Indian Railways ?

(c) How does the price of each set of points and crossings made out of steel rails of the same type vary in cases of different Railways (i.e., if different Railways pay different prices for the same type of points and crossings, then what is exactly that difference in case of each type) ? And how is that difference in prices explained considering that prices of rails out of which they are made remain stationary ?

(d) Are the purchases of points and crossings made from Richardson and Cruddas, Henry Williams, and Burn and Co., by private arrangement or by tender ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) Cast-steel crossings were not found to be so satisfactory as the ordinary built-up crossings.

(b) No specification for cast-steel crossings for use in India has been prepared.

(c) The price quoted by a firm for points and crossings will depend on many factors, such as the size of the order, the date of required delivery, the amount of work already in hand or on order from the firm's works, and so on. The manufacture of points and crossings requires special expensive machines, and the output will depend on the number of such machines which the firm has available. Obviously if the machines are short of work, the firm will tender a low price, while if there is plenty of work on hand the price will be high, or the period of delivery quoted will be long. For these reasons it would serve no purpose to state the difference in price charged for points and crossings to different railways as requested by the Honourable Member.

(d) Government have no information, but inquiries will be made and I will communicate the result to the Honourable Member later.

NUMBER OF POSTS ALLOTTED TO MUSLIMS IN THE OFFICE OF THE IMPERIAL COUNCIL OF AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH.

930. *Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that the present sanctioned strength of the ministerial staff of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research is twelve ? If so, is it a fact that out of these twelve posts five have been reserved for the Muslim community ?

(b) Is it a fact that according to the orders of the Home Department only 33 per cent. of the total establishment should be reserved for the Muslim community ? If so, will Government be pleased to say why a higher percentage than that laid down by the Home Department has been reserved for the Muslim community in the office of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research ?

(c) Is it a fact that a deputation on behalf of the Anjuman-i-Islamia, Simla, waited on the Honourable Sir Muhammad Habibullah in connection with communal representation on the staff of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research ? If so, will Government be pleased to state whether four posts, instead of three due to them under the orders of the Home Department, were reserved for Muhammadans in the office of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research as a result of this deputation ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative and to the second part in the negative.

(b) All that the Home Department Memorandum referred to by the Honourable Member seeks to ensure is that a minimum of 33 per cent. of the total establishment should be reserved for the redress of communal inequalities. It is not meant that, if qualified candidates are forthcoming, a larger percentage of members of minority communities should not be employed. In the present case, the number of vacancies which should be reserved and which has, in fact, been reserved, is four.

(c) Government have no information as regards the first part of this question. The second part does not therefore arise.

RECRUITMENT OF A MUHAMMADAN STENOGRAPHER IN THE OFFICE OF THE IMPERIAL COUNCIL OF AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH.

931. *Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : Is it a fact that the Muhammadan stenographer appointed to the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research has resigned his appointment, and that every effort is now being made to recruit another Muhammadan stenographer for this vacancy who has not passed the required examination of the Public Service Commission ? If so, will Government be pleased to state why a passed stenographer of any other community should not be appointed to this post ?

Sir Frank Noyce : The Muhammadan stenographer on the staff of the Secretariat of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research was, at his own request, reverted to his permanent post. In accordance with the policy enunciated in the Home Department memorandum mentioned in the answer just given, it has been decided to offer this vacancy to a Muhammadan and there is every prospect that a suitable Muhammadan will be obtained for the post.

GATE SERGEANTS IN WORKSHOPS OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

932. *Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : Is it a fact that the posts of Gate Sergeants in the Workshops of the North Western Railway have always been filled by Europeans ? If so, why ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The post of Gate Sergeant on the North Western Railway has in the past been filled by a European, but it is not reserved for Europeans. The Agent, North Western Railway, has explained that it was considered desirable, in making past appointments, to have an ex-service man of good education for the post. The Railway Board are instructing him that, at the next vacancy, the most suitably qualified person, irrespective of race, should be appointed.

ORDER BY THE CHIEF MEDICAL OFFICER OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

933. *Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Have Government seen the North Western Railway Chief Medical Officer's Medical Order M. D. O. No. 53, dated 21st June 1928 ?

(b) What is the justification for such a stringent order in respect of such men ?

(c) Does the same or similar rule apply to officers falling sick at outstations ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given by Mr. Parsons on the 20th February, 1929, to starred question No. 678, asked by Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh.

(c) Yes.

COMPENSATION AWARDED TO HEIRS OF SOLDIERS KILLED IN THE ACCIDENT AT PESHAWAR.

934. *Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Has any compensation been awarded to the heirs of the soldiers and officers of the 17th Poona House who died as a result of the accident of the Aeroplane shooting at Peshawar on the 23rd January 1929 ? If so, what is the amount ?

(b) How many persons out of the injured were disabled and what compensation has been granted to them ?

(c) Is it a fact that these soldiers and officers were on duty when the accident happened ?

(d) Was Risaldar Tulsiram of Gudha Tehsil, Jhajjar District, Rohtak, killed in the same accident ?

(e) Have Government given any lands to the heirs of the said Risaldar Tulsiram ? If not, do Government propose to grant lands to his heirs by way of compensation ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Yes. They have been given the family pensions and special gratuities mentioned by Mr. Mackworth Young in reply to starred question No. 470, dated the 11th February, 1929.

(b) Nine men were injured, but I do not know how many of them have actually been invalided. Government sanctioned special disability pensions at field service rates for those who might be invalided, and I will inform the Honourable Member separately of the actual amounts that have been paid.

(c) Yes.

(d) Yes.

(e) No, Sir. The heirs have already received a gratuity of Rs. 1,200 in addition to family pension, and there is no land available for distribution.

ATTITUDE OF GOVERNMENT ON THE EAST AFRICAN QUESTION.

935. *Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : With reference to the Government communiqué, issued on the 11th September, regarding the Indian Delegation from East Africa and their interview with the Honourable Sir Fazl-i-Husain, will Government be pleased to state if the promised conference of the leading Members of the Indian Legislature, and the Standing Emigration Committee and also the Indian delegates of East Africa took place ? If so, will Government be pleased to make a statement as to the attitude of Government on the whole of the East African question ?

Sir Frank Noyce : The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. As regards the second part of the question, the telegram of the 19th March, 1929, laid on the Council table shows that Government have already, in conformity with the views pressed upon it by the Emigration Committee and the leaders of parties, formed its own views. The Government have now again had the benefit of a similar meeting, but I regret that I am not at present in a position to make the statement asked for by the Honourable Member, as the question is under correspondence with the Secretary of State.

NOMINATION OF A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA TO THE EAST AFRICAN DELEGATION.

936. *Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : Have Government accepted the suggestion put forward by the East African Delegation for the nomination of a representative of the Government of India to accompany the East African Delegation to England ?

Sir Frank Noyce : The Honourable Member perhaps knows more about the East African Delegation than I have been able to gather from the Delegation itself. As soon as the personnel and plans of the proposed East African Delegation are finally settled and intimated to Government by the Delegation, Government will duly arrive at a decision.

EAST AFRICAN MANDATED TERRITORIES.

937. Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Are Government aware that at the League of Nations meeting at Geneva the Right Honourable Mr. Henderson made a statement that, whatever action the British Government would take on the East African Mandated Territories would be first placed before the Mandate Commission of the League of Nations, and only when approval of that Commission had been secured that decision would be promulgated ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state what statement the representative of the Government of India did make on that occasion as regards safeguarding of the rights and privileges of Indian residents settled in Tanganyika Territory ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether the delegate of the Government of India at Geneva and the Government of India themselves have nothing to say in regard to the position of Indians in the East African Mandated Territory and if it was under the instructions of the Government of India that Sir Muhammad Habibullah took to the vow of silence at the League of Nations sitting ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) & (b). Government have no information beyond what is in the possession of the Honourable Member. The proceedings of the Assembly of the League, when received, are placed in the Library and it will be open to the Honourable Member to find the answers to these parts of his question.

(c) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply I have given to his question No. 935.

CONCESSION RATES ON RAILWAYS ALLOWED TO THE MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

938. *Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the railways allow special "military rates" to the Military Department?

(b) Is this concession mutual? Do the railways receive any special concession from the Army Department?

(c) Are Company-managed railways bound to give these concession rates to the Military Department?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state the loss of revenue per annum (i) to the State Railways, and (ii) to the Company-managed Railways on account of these special concessions in rates and freights to the Military Department?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) Company-managed railways are bound to give the same special rates to the Military Department as State-managed railways.

(d) The arrangements by which military traffic is carried at special uniform rates have been in existence for a long time. These arrangements provide for the payment by Government at vehicle rates for the movement of troops and military stores, the primary object of the arrangement being (i) simplification, so as to dispense with the necessity for counting large bodies of men and weighing baggage and stores, and to provide a system suitable for application to the special conditions that would obtain in the event of mobilisation, when a sudden change of procedure would lead to confusion and delay, and (ii) to secure to railways a reasonable return on the traffic by fixing an average rate. In 1908 an enhancement of the rates was made on representation from railways that the then existing rates were too low, the enhanced rates being framed to give a reasonable return on the traffic to railways. In 1923, a further enhancement was made on account of the increased working expenses on railways. To ascertain the difference in revenue involved in consequence of the special rates allowed for military traffic would be a very lengthy and costly undertaking.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Is the Honourable Member in a position to give a rough idea of the financial value of these concessions?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No, Sir.

CONCESSION RATES ON RAILWAYS.

939. *Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether Departments of the Government of India other than the Military Department or any of the Provincial Governments receive any concession in rates and freights on railways and, if so, what are they?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state if any concession in return is received by the railways?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Special rates are charged to the Postal Department for the carriage of mails. Certain railways quote special rates for Local Governments for stone for road-making and canal works.

(b) I am not aware of any general concessions received in return by all railways, but to give a complete answer to the question, I would have to consult each Railway Administration.

RATES CHARGED BY RAILWAYS FOR TOURS OF HIGH OFFICIALS.

940. *Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the railways charge any concession rates

(i) for Viceregal tours;

(ii) for the tours of Provincial Governors; and

(iii) for the tours of the Commander-in-Chief when he travels in trains over their railway lines?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the loss in revenue to the State per annum in each case?

(c) Do the Honourable the Railway Member and Members of the Railway Board receive any concession rates when they travel over these Railways?

(d) When railway officers travel in their saloons over the Railways, is the cost of such travels computed and debited to the respective heads on administration or operation?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The rates charged for the tours mentioned are detailed in paras. 98 and 104 of Indian Railways Coaching Tariff No. 6, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House. The rates chargeable to the public are detailed in paras. 96 and 103 of the same book.

(b) The basis on which these rates have been fixed is different from the basis on which public tariff rates have been fixed. Most of the stock used in these tours is not the property of the railway but owned and maintained by the Departments concerned. The rates are not therefore strictly comparable, and it cannot be said that there is necessarily any loss involved.

(c) Journeys of the Honourable the Railway Member are charged at rates shown in para. 98 of the Coaching Tariff referred to in part (a) above. The Members of the Railway Board travel, as other railway officers do, on free passes.

(d) No.

LOSS OF LIFE, ETC., CAUSED BY FLOODS IN THE NORTH WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE AND BALUCHISTAN.

941. *Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what is the total loss (i) in human lives, (ii) in cattle, (iii) in crops, and (iv) in property, during the recent floods in the North West Frontier Province and Baluchistan?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state what precautionary steps—both preventive and palliative—were taken by the Government in the flood-affected areas directly under the Government of India immediately after the floods?

(c) Did any of the officers of the Government of India—the Consulting Engineer or any of the other expert engineers—visit these flood-affected areas and, if so, did they submit any reports on the causes of floods and their remedies?

(d) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table all such reports and also make a statement on the causes of these floods and the remedial measures they propose to adopt to prevent a recurrence of such floods in the North West Frontier Province?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). As regards the North West Frontier Province, I would refer the Honourable Member to the statement laid by me on the table on the 23rd September in reply to starred question No. 689. Later reports confirm that there was no loss of life in the administered districts, but over a hundred lives, I regret to say, were lost in the tribal country, mostly in the Swat State. Detailed reports from Baluchistan are still awaited, but we know that the kharif crops have been seriously damaged by floods.

(c) The Chief Engineer of the North West Frontier Province accompanied by the local engineers visited the affected areas, and the Chief Commissioner's review of their reports is awaited.

(d) Government propose to lay on the table any reports or information likely to be of interest to the House.

EMBANKMENTS AND DRAINAGE OF RIVERS IN THE NORTH WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

942. *Mr. K. C. Neogy (on behalf of Mr. B. Das) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they have in the North West Frontier Province any special division of engineers to look after the embankments and drainage of rivers?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the negative, will Government be pleased to describe the present system of administration of the Irrigation, Embankment and Drainage Department in the North West Frontier Province?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) No.

(b) The officers of the Irrigation Department in the North West Frontier Province deal with questions relating to embankments and drainage.

PROPORTION OF DIFFERENT COMMUNITIES IN THE IMPERIAL SECRETARIAT CLERICAL ESTABLISHMENT.

943. *Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the rules under which the proportion of different communities in the Imperial Secretariat clerical establishment is regulated?

(b) Is it a fact that Anglo-Indians are not counted, for this purpose, as belonging to a minority community?

(c) If the reply to part (b) be in the affirmative, why and under what orders?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given to starred question No. 523 on the 16th instant, in which it was explained that no such proportions are fixed by the Government of India.

(b) No. Anglo-Indians are treated as a minority community for the purposes of recruitment to the Secretariat.

(c) Does not arise.

PERCENTAGE OF HINDU CLERKS IN THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

944. *Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the total strength and the proportion of the minority and non-minority communities in the clerical establishment of the Education Department?

(b) Do Government propose to consider the advisability of raising the Hindu percentage to 66 per cent. of the total strength?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) A statement giving the information desired by the Honourable Member up to the 31st December, 1928, will be found in the Library of the House.

(b) Departmental promotion is regulated by seniority and merit; fresh recruitment is made in accordance with the policy of Government which provides for the adoption of measures to ensure the representation in due proportion of the various communities and the Hindu community may rest assured of being adequately represented in the clerical staff of the Government of India.

EXTRA PAYMENT FOR WORKING OUT OF OFFICE HOURS IN THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

945. *Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Will Government please state the amounts which are paid to their staff in the Finance Department when they have to work out of office hours up to a late hour, and the circumstances under which they are paid?

(b) Do Government propose to consider the advisability of extending the same concessions to the members of the Education Department?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) There are two classes of payments which might be covered by the Honourable Member's question. First, small bonuses are given at the conclusion of the budget season to the men of the Budget, Expenditure and Issue Branches in the Finance Department, who have to pass through exceptionally strenuous times during that season. This class of work is entirely exceptional and is confined to the Finance Department. All night work is often involved. Secondly, it has recently been found necessary to make small payments to men required to work up to exceptionally late hours in connection with the work of the Standing Finance Committee, on nights following the meetings of the Committee as a result of the Committee's own request that a summary of their proceedings should be communicated to the Press daily. These payments merely represent reimbursements for certain out of pocket expenses in the way of rickshaw hire, etc.

(b) If similar circumstances were to arise in the Education Department, consideration would be given to the establishment of a similar practice. I must, however, point out that circumstances in the Finance Department are of a special nature and that the conditions applying to the payments of the first class to which I have referred in the previous part of my answer can hardly arise in the case of other Departments.

RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING APPOINTMENTS BY MR. E. W. GRINDAL IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

946. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that Mr. E. W. Grindal in his 12 years' service as Chief Superintendent and Personal Assistant to the Chief Engineer, Public Works Department, Delhi, dealt with the cases of subordinates and Sub-Divisional Officers and made his proposals for their appointments in the Delhi Public Works Department ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : No. As Chief Superintendent and Personal Assistant to the Chief Engineer, his duties were to note on proposals, but it was no part of his duties to initiate proposals for the appointment of subordinates and Sub-Divisional Officers.

NUMBERS OF QUALIFIED SUBORDINATES AND SUB-DIVISIONAL OFFICERS APPOINTED IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

947. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub (a) Will Government be pleased to state the respective numbers of qualified subordinates who have passed the sub-overseer's or overseer's examination from a recognised college or University and S. D. Os. (who are engineers by recognised examination) appointed from 1917 to 1924 in the Delhi P. W. D. ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the number of subordinates and S. D. Os. appointed during the Chief Superintendentship and Personal Assistantship of Mr. E. W. Grindal from 1917 to 1924 ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The number of qualified subordinates appointed from 1917 to 1924 and now in the service, who passed the sub-overseer's or overseer's examination, or the equivalent of these, of a recognised college or University is 33. The number of Sub-Divisional Officers who are members of the regular establishment, appointed as such from 1917 to 1924, is 10.

(b) The total number of subordinates and Sub-Divisional Officers appointed from 1917 to 1924 was 69 and 10, respectively.

APPOINTMENT BY MR. GRINDAL OF SUBORDINATES AS SUB-DIVISIONAL OFFICERS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

948. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : With reference to replies to questions Nos. 24 and 25 in the Council of State on 8th February, 1928 (Vol. I, No. 4), regarding removing of Assistant Engineers and posting subordinates in their places in the Delhi P. W. D., will Government be pleased to state (a) whether it is a fact that Mr. E. W. Grindal, late Chief Superintendent and P. A. to the Chief Engineer, Delhi, was the first P. A. who introduced this system of posting subordinates as S. D. Os. in the Delhi P. W. D., and (b) if Mr. E. W. Grindal is an Engineer ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The reply is in the negative. The reply to question No. 25 of the 8th February, 1928, to which the Honourable Member has referred, clearly states the reason for the practice in Delhi, which was the usual practice in the Public Works Department throughout India prior to the formation of the Provincial Engineering Services which were composed, in the first instance, largely of subordinates.

(b) No.

QUALIFICATIONS OF CERTAIN SUBORDINATES APPOINTED IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

949. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table the copies of proposals made by the P. W. D. authorities for the appointments of B. Raghbir Singh, subordinate, Dehra Dun Division and B. Ramchand, subordinate, 8th Division, B. Nand Lall, S. D. O., 9th Division, B. Ram Chand, S. D. O., Sanitary Circle, and B. Udho Ram, S. D. O. (under suspension) in the Delhi P. W. D. ? What are their qualifications ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Honourable Member's meaning is not clear. The persons named were appointed in the ordinary way many years ago. The 3rd and 5th of those named were Roorkee trained Lower Subordinates. The others were qualified by practical experience.

EMPLOYMENT OF SUBORDINATES AS SUB-DIVISIONAL OFFICERS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

950. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Are Government aware that the engineers who are in charge of sub-divisions in the Delhi P. W. D. felt it derogatory to deal with subordinates (working as S. D. Os.) and the P. W. D. authorities did not listen to them ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Government have no knowledge of any such feeling.

TREATMENT OF ENGINEERS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

951. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that the Engineers (S. D. Os.) in the Delhi P. W. D. are compelled to stand like subordinates (S. D. Os.) before the Executive Engineer and other authorities of the Delhi P. W. D. ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The reply is in the negative.

EMPLOYEES GIVEN SPECIAL PAY IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

952. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state the number of Muslim clerks, draftsmen, subordinates and engineers in the Delhi P. W. D. who have been given special pay in the year 1929 ?

L18CPB(LA)

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : It is understood that the Honourable Member refers to posts in the Public Works Department, Delhi. The numbers are :

|              |       | Muslims. | Hindus. |
|--------------|-------|----------|---------|
| Clerks       | .. .. | 4        | 15      |
| Draftsmen    | .. .. | -        | -       |
| Subordinates | .. .. | 1        | 1       |
| Engineers    | .. .. | 1        | 1       |

QUALIFICATIONS OF CERTAIN ENGINEERS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

953. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub (a) Will Government be pleased to state the technical and educational qualifications of Mr. Uttam Singh, Officiating Executive Engineer and B. Gurdit Singh, S.D. O., upper subordinate of Dehra Dun Division, P. W. D., Delhi ?

(b) On what pay was Mr. Uttam Singh, Offg. Executive Engineer, appointed in the Delhi P. W. D. ?

(c) Has Mr. Uttam Singh served elsewhere before joining the Delhi P. W. D. and how long ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Mr. Uttam Singh was a matriculate and completed the course of civil and mechanical engineering at the City and Guilds Institute, London, in 1915. Mr. Gurdit Singh has passed the IX Class and is a practical engineer.

(b) Rs. 600 per mensem.

(c) Yes, for many years from 1915 onwards.

REDUCTION OF MUSLIM DRAFTSMEN IN THE RAILWAY BOARD.

954. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : With reference to reply to question No. 162 in the Council of State on 19th March, 1929 (Vol. I, No. 13) will Government be pleased to lay on the table the proposal made by the Railway Board authorities for the reduction of three Muslim draftsmen Mr. Ahmed Ali, Mr. Amir Husain and another after questions Nos. 162 and 163, dated the 19th March, 1929, in the Council of State ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The position is that certain posts of temporary draftsman in the Standardization Drawing Office were brought under reduction, and four of the temporary employees were discharged as the least efficient. These included one Hindu, and the three Mussalmans named by the Honourable Member.

REDUCTION OF MUSLIM DRAFTSMEN IN THE RAILWAY BOARD.

955. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of Sikh Draftsmen, Hindus and Muslims in the Railway Board (Drawing Branch) ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Sikh Superintendent of the Drawing Branch Railway Board, does not allow Hindus and Muslims in his branches and has reduced three Muslim Draftsmen ? If so, will Government kindly state what action has been taken in the Railway Board to remove the class monopoly ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Sikhs 6.

Hindus 2.

(b) The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative. There has been no reduction in the Railway Board Drawing Branch. The Honourable Member apparently refers to the Central Standards Drawing Office (formerly known as Standardisation Drawing Office) in which the services of 1 Hindu, 3 Muslims, and 1 Sikh have been dispensed with since February last. The present relative strength of these three communities in that drawing office is Hindus 7, Muslims 6, Sikhs 4. The last portion of the question does not arise.

SIKH SUPERINTENDENTS IN THE RAILWAY BOARD.

956. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that the Superintendents of Standardisation Branch and Drawing Branch, in the Railway Board, are Sikhs ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : There are no Superintendents in the Standardisation and Drawing branches of the Railway Board's office. The Head Draftsmen in these branches are Sikhs.

ARCHITECTURAL ASSISTANTS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

957. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state (a) on which date the creation of posts of two Architectural Assistants in the Delhi P. W. D. was sanctioned by the Government of India ; (b) on which date Mr. Kasurwala and Mr. Yajnik, Draftsmen of the Delhi P. W. D., were appointed to these posts ; (c) from which date they have drawn their pay as Architectural Assistants, and (d) whether they have drawn any arrears, if so, why ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) On the 25th February, 1929, with effect from 1st March, 1929.

(b) and (c). 1st March, 1929.

(d) They have drawn pay as Architectural Assistants only from the date of appointment.

RANK AND ALLOWANCE OF MR. KESURWALA, ARCHITECTURAL ASSISTANT, PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

958. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. Kesurwala, Architectural Assistant, P. W. D., Delhi, is considered as a Gazetted Officer ?

(b) Is it a fact that Mr. Kesurwala, the Architectural Assistant, P. W. D., Delhi, is still getting the allowance of the post of the Draftsman, Mr. Dana Singh ? If so, why ? Is he eligible to get this allowance ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) He is eligible for, and draws, a special pay for doing certain work, in addition to his regular duties, which was formerly performed by Mr. Dana Singh.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : What is that 'certain work' ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I regret I have not got that information at present. But I shall supply it to the Honourable Member.

SUPERSESSION OF SUBORDINATES BY MR. CHOPRA IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

959. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that one Mr. Chopra was appointed as a subordinate in the 9th Division of the Delhi P. W. D. on Rs. 200 per mensem ? If so, when ?

(b) Is it a fact that Mr. Chopra, Subordinate, 9th Division, P. W. D., Delhi, has superseded many subordinates of the Delhi P. W. D. ? If so, will Government be pleased to state how many subordinates were superseded by his appointment on such a high pay ? What are his qualifications (both educational and technical) ?

(c) Is it a fact that Mr. Chopra was recommended in 1924 and before this by the Executive Engineer, 9th Division, to take him as temporary regular subordinate but the Chief Engineer, Delhi P. W. D., refused ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Mr. Chopra was appointed as a subordinate in June, 1929, on Rs. 185.

(b) He is getting more pay than 36 other subordinates. In addition to having practical experience, he is a matriculate and has passed the first examination in civil engineering of the Punjab University in the Upper Division.

(c) Yes.

Mr. E. L. Price : Does the Honourable Member understand that, if ever he appoints or promotes a Hindu, he has always got to answer for it to the Deputy President of this House ? (Hear, hear and Laughter.)

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : If Honourable Members who belong to the European community in India will leave our country, then these questions will go away. If the European exploiters of this country will leave India, these questions will not be put. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : The Deputy President of this House should not put such communal questions.

Mr. E. L. Price : Will the Honourable Member give an answer to my question ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am sorry it is not possible for me to answer that question.

Mr. President : Mr. Price.

Mr. E. L. Price : I beg your pardon, Sir.

Mr. President : Any more supplementary questions ? (Laughter.)

Mr. E. L. Price : No, Sir.

APPOINTMENT OF ESTATE OFFICERS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

960. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. E. W. Grindal, Central Accounts Officer, P. W. D., Delhi, is getting Rs. 300 per mensem as allowance for the duties of Estate Officer ?

(b) Is it a fact that Mr. Ellis, temporary Engineer, P. W. D., Delhi, is an Assistant Estate Officer under Mr. E. W. Grindal ? If so, will Government be pleased to state why Mr. E. W. Grindal, Accounts Officer, has been given the duties of Estate Officer ? Why has not Mr. Ellis, temporary Engineer, P. W. D., Delhi, been given the direct charge of the duties of Estate Officer ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) The reply to the first part is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, the combination of the post of the Estate Officer with that of the Accounts Officer was introduced as an experimental measure, as a large portion of the work of the Estate Officer in connection with the rents and allotment of quarters is intimately connected with the accounts work. The experiment has been a success and has facilitated the disposal of the work. With regard to the third part, the existing arrangement was considered to be the most suitable and the question of appointing Mr. Ellis to the post did not arise.

WAR CASUALTIES AMONG COMBATANT TRIBES.

961. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the names of the combatant tribes in British India ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the casualties amongst combatant tribes of India in the Great War from 1914 to 1919 and in Afghan troubles from 1919 to 1920 ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given in this House on the 6th September, 1927, to starred question No. 888.

(b) The records of casualties were not maintained in the form desired by the Honourable Member. I can only refer him to pages 176 and 177 of the book entitled "India's Contribution to the Great War", a copy of which is in the Library.

SHORT NOTICE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

DISMISSAL OF MR. N. B. PURANDARE, FROM THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

Mr. M. S. Aney : (1) Are Government aware that one N. B. Purandare Honorary General Secretary, Great Indian Peninsula Railwaymen's Union, applied for one day's leave without pay to attend to Union work to his immediate superior officer and the said officer refused to grant the same ?

(2) Are Government aware that the said applicant preferred an appeal to the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, and left to attend to the work of the Union for one day, anticipating that his leave for one day would be sanctioned by the Agent to whom the appeal was already preferred ?

(3) Is it a fact that Mr. Purandare was on return to his work, immediately served with notice of suspension ?

(4) Is it a fact that he was summarily dismissed from service on the 17th of September without being given an opportunity to explain his conduct?

(5) Are Government aware that this summary dismissal of Mr. Purandare from service by the Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, has caused great discontent among the members of the Great Indian Peninsula Railwaymen's Union, and is being treated by them as an act of victimisation by the railway authorities concerned?

(6) Will Government be pleased to state whether they propose to issue instructions to the Agent to stay execution of the order of dismissal and institute an immediate inquiry into the case through some independent responsible officer of the Railway Board, with a view to allay the prevailing discontent among the members of the Union, and secure justice to Mr. Purandare who seems to have been victimised?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (1) Yes. On the 31st August Mr. Purandare applied for one day's leave without pay for the 5th September in order to visit certain Union centres. The Divisional Superintendent replied on the 3rd September refusing sanction as Mr. Purandare had resumed duty on the 28th August after two months and 12 days' leave.

(2) The applicant telegraphed to the Agent on the 5th September in the following terms :

"Leave without pay for the 5th not sanctioned by Divisional Superintendent. Leaving in anticipation. Solicit favour."

(3) Yes. At the same time he was informed that it was proposed to dismiss him summarily for absence without leave and disobedience of orders, and he was instructed to give in writing as early as possible any reasons he might have to put forward why he should not be summarily dismissed.

(4) No. Mr. Purandare sent his reply arguing against his summary dismissal on the 12th September. His reply was considered by the Agent and he was dismissed on the 17th.

(5) No.

(6) The serious point in this case is that Mr. Purandare after his leave had been refused left his work without leave. Deliberate disobedience of the orders of a superior officer is a grave offence and cannot be treated lightly. The only question is whether the punishment of dismissal is too severe, and in awarding punishment regard must be had to the length of the offender's service and the nature of his record. I have called for information on these points and when I receive it I will consider whether the Agent's order should be confirmed.

Mr. M. S. Aney : May I ask whether the order of dismissal passed by the Agent is not, in spirit at any rate, in contravention of the conditions under which the Unions are recognised by Government?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I do not think so. I am quite willing to look into the point, but to the best of my belief there has been no breach of those conditions.

Mr. M. S. Aney : May I further draw the attention of the Honourable Member to the statement made by Mr. A. A. L. Parsons here in February, 1928, to the effect that no railway will refuse leave to servants for attending Union work?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I cannot answer that without referring to the reply given by Mr. Parsons, but I cannot remember any such unqualified statement being made. I quite recognise that the facilities which ought to be given to Union officials to attend to the work of the Union is a perfectly fair subject for discussion, but the serious point in this case is, as I have said, that he simply left his work and went away in defiance of the orders of his superior officer.

Mr. M. S. Aney : Does the order of the Agent show that the absence of Mr. Purandare from the duty for one day prejudiced the work in any way?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : No, Sir. The report we have received from the Agent does not deal with the point as to whether his absence without leave resulted in actual inconvenience and embarrassment to the Department in which he was working.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Will the Honourable Member tell this House, if he is in a position to do so, what is the nature of the record of service of this gentleman?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : That is precisely the point on which I have called for further information. I have not got it at present.

Mr. Jannadas M. Mehta : Will the Honourable Member also examine the nature of the work which took Mr. Purandare from his duty?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Yes, Sir. I am quite prepared to consider that point.

ADDITIONAL GRANT TO THE ALIGARH MUSLIM UNIVERSITY.

Manvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) With reference to the statement made by the Honourable the Finance Member in the course of the budget speech on the 5th March, 1929, have Government received any application from the authorities of the Aligarh Muslim University requesting additional grants?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what decision, if any, has been reached on that application?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) The Government are prepared, subject to the acceptance by the authorities of the Aligarh Muslim University of such safeguards as may be considered necessary to ensure the efficient financial and general administration of the University, and subject, also to the approval of the Standing Finance Committee, and to the amount not already voted by this House being voted by it in future years, to sanction the same grants as have recently been sanctioned to the Benares Hindu University, namely :

(i) a non-recurring grant of Rs. 15 lakhs, spread over a number of years, dependent on the ability of the University to spend the amount on approved schemes; and

- (ii) the enhancement of the existing recurring grant from Rs. 1½ lakhs to Rs. 3 lakhs a year with effect from such year as may be fixed by the Governor General in Council.

The Government are further willing to endeavour to make some grant during the current financial year should the University authorities be in a position to satisfy them that money is immediately required for any of the approved purposes mentioned in their application.

BILL PASSED BY THE COUNCIL OF STATE LAID ON THE TABLE.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, in accordance with rule 25 of the Indian Legislative Rules, I lay on the table a Bill further to amend the Provident Funds Act, 1925, for certain purposes which was passed by the Council of State on the 24th September, 1929.

MESSAGE FROM THE COUNCIL OF STATE.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, a Message has been received from the Secretary of the Council of State which runs as follows :

"I am directed to inform you that the Council of State have, at their meeting held on the 24th day of September, 1929, agreed without any amendments to the following Bills which were passed by the Legislative Assembly at their meeting held on the 9th September, 1929 :

1. A Bill to provide for the levy of a cess on soft coke despatched by rail from collieries in the provinces of Bengal and Bihar and Orissa ;
2. A Bill further to amend the Indian Boilers Act, 1923, for certain purposes ;
3. A Bill to provide for certain matters in connection with the taking of the Census ; and
4. A Bill further to amend the Calcutta Pilots Act, 1859, and the Indian Ports Act, 1908, in order to vest the control of the Bengal Pilot Service in the Governor General in Council."

THE INDIAN PATENTS AND DESIGNS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

PRESENTATION OF THE REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I beg to present the Report of the Select Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, for certain purposes, was referred.

DEMANDS FOR SUPPLEMENTARY GRANTS.

SALT.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 100 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges which will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1930, in respect of 'Salt'."

Sir, I think it is necessary for me to give a short explanation of the reason for putting in this supplementary demand. I informed the House on Monday, in answer to a short notice question put by my Honourable friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, of the state of affairs which had made it necessary for Government to take certain emergency measures in order to ensure that there should be no shortage of salt in certain markets. I explained then that, owing to the destruction by flood of about 10 lakhs of maunds at Sambhur, Government had to consider means for making salt produced in other centres available for the area usually supplied from Sambhur.

The salt to which I refer will come from Kharagoda, Khuda and Khewra. I also explained to this House that we had been able to make arrangements with the railway companies concerned to offer special reductions in freight so as to enable that salt to be put into the markets generally supplied from Sambhur at competitive prices. I hope that these railway freight concessions will achieve our object without any further assistance on the part of Government ; but it is possible that the Government may find it necessary to give some further assistance in the form of special reductions in the price of salt to be sold in the particular area concerned. In that case it will be necessary to make a grant for their purpose and charge it as expenditure against the Salt Grant. It is impossible to estimate what the amount would be, but it will certainly not exceed one lakh—I am told that probably it would not be more than Rs. 50,000 ; and it may be nothing ; but in view of these circumstances I thought it right to make this token demand in order that the Assembly might be informed of the circumstances. Sir, I move.

The motion was adopted.

MEDICAL SERVICES.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I beg to move :

"That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 100 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges that will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1930, in respect of 'Medical Services'."

In moving this demand, I feel it my duty to inform this House that I am taking a somewhat unusual course. As appears from the notes which have been already circulated to Honourable Members, this particular demand was considered by the Standing Finance Committee and that Committee by a majority of votes—I think the voting was 5 to 4—voted against this proposal. It is unusual in such circumstances for the Government to come forward with the demand. But in this case the circumstances are exceptional. The financial significance of the proposal is negligible. The question of policy involved is very important. We discussed the matter very fully on the Standing Finance Committee, and I think the Members of that Committee will bear me out in saying that they quite appreciated the point of view which I put forward that the question of policy involved in this case was one which ought to be debated on the floor of this House ; but, as they themselves were opposed to the policy, and as the proposal had come before them, they felt themselves unable to refrain from recording an adverse vote. I wish to make this explanation, because I should be the last person who would wish to do anything to weaken the authority of the Standing Finance Committee. Sir, I move.

Dr. B. S. Moonje (Nagpur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I move :

“ That the demand for a supplementary grant of a sum not exceeding Rs. 100 to defray the charges that will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1930, in respect of ‘ Medical Services ’ be omitted.”

In view of the questions and answers asked and given this morning I have been confirmed in my view that no case has been made out by the Government for the creation of this new post of a Commissioner of Indian Medical Standards and Qualifications. It seems that the General Medical Council of England made a demand and gave a threat to the Government of India that, if either a medical council is not established in India or this post is not created, they will refuse recognition to the medical degrees of Indian Universities. I am surprised that the Government of India should have fallen an easy victim to this kind of threat. I should have expected that the Government of India would have made inquiries as to the condition of medical education in India and the methods of medical examinations before submitting to the threat. I am positive, by the proofs that I shall immediately quote just now, that if the Government of India had made that kind of inquiry, they would have been quite sure that the system of medical education and the method in which medical examinations are carried out are quite satisfactory ; matters have been proved to be quite satisfactory even to the General Medical Council of England. That is one point. Before accepting what cannot be but a kind of slight on the condition of medical education in India, they did not make this preliminary inquiry to satisfy themselves that the slight was least deserved ; nor, having satisfied themselves after making inquiry afterwards that the medical education in India was satisfactory, have they taken any action yet to appeal to the Privy Council.

(At this stage Mr. President vacated the Chair which was taken by Sir Darcy Lindsay.)

The General Medical Council in England is acting under authority given to it under the Medical Act of England. They have been given authority to refuse recognition to medical degrees where they find that the degrees do not indicate a sufficient standard of medical education, and the Privy Council is acting as appellate authority. Those bodies which conduct these medical examinations have been given a right to appeal to the Privy Council. I should have expected that the Government of India, before yielding to this threat, would have approached the Privy Council, bringing the facts of the sufficiency of our system of medical education and examinations to their notice and stated that the threat of the General Medical Council in England was absolutely baseless and had no foundation in fact. I say the General Medical Council had no reason to doubt the insufficiency of the system of our medical education and, in spite of that, they gave that threat. The whole thing has assumed the simple appearance that one party gives an ultimatum and another party quite submissively accepts that ultimatum and submits to it. I cannot understand when we, in this House, who are the guardians of the Government of India today, aspiring to be the makers of the Government of India tomorrow, are prepared to stand firmly by their side why they should have accepted this ultimatum so submissively and been ready to carry out the bidding, the insolent bidding, of the General Medical Council of England. (An Honourable Member : “ They are their servants.”) From that point of view I am inclined to look at the affair—and it is right that the Indian Universities also have taken it in that light—I cannot but say that this ultimatum is nothing less than a national insult and gratuitous slight to the whole system of medical education in India. India is not a country undeveloped intellectually and scientifically like some other countries of the world. It is known in the world for high intelligence and had developed its own system of medical education, which is said to be the mother of the western system of medical education. India has produced best intellects even in modern times, intellects which can compare with the best intellects of other countries of the world. India has at present a Sir Jagadish Bose and a Sir C. V. Raman, who have made names in the western world. India has got at the present moment practising surgeons and doctors who can stand the test of competition with most people of the Indian Medical Service. I can say from my own personal experience that in a place like Nagpur, where I come from, if there is a difficult operation in ophthalmology, people prefer to come to me rather than go to the high officers of the Indian Medical Service there. (Hear, hear.)

I say this, not because of my personal qualifications, but because there are other medical practitioners in Nagpur to whom people generally go in difficult cases in preference to going to men belonging to the Indian Medical Service and occupying high places in the Service. I might, for the edification of my friend Colonel Gidney, mention an instance that I personally know. About 32 years ago, or a little more than 32 years ago, I was a student in the Grant Medical College in Bombay. I had passed all my examinations at the first shot. There was a friend of mine who could not pass his examination unless he went through it twice or thrice. So he had already spent about 9 years in the Medical College. For the final examination he was preparing to appear along with me. (An Honourable Member : “ Is that friend here ? ”) and my Principal, a Colonel, a very experienced surgeon, was so disgusted with my friend that one day he told him, “ Get away from this College ; you are not fit for this profession ; you cannot be of any use in this profession ; you better get away and take to some other profession.” But my friend was not disheartened or discouraged. He had a big purse, and he said that he was not going to leave the medical degree of the Bombay University, and that he would go to England and get an L.R.C.P., L.R.C.S. degree. A gentleman who was not considered fit for the medical profession and could not hope to pass the final examination of the Bombay University at the first shot, a gentleman who had already passed 8 or 9 years in the Medical College attempting unsuccessfully to get through the examination, a gentleman who has had no chance of passing the final examination along with me, went to England and returned to India, in six months before I could take my degree, with an L.R.C.P., L.R.C.S., which is regarded as a higher degree than the degree of the Bombay University or that of any other University in India. When I asked him afterwards how it was that he, who could not hope to pass the L.M.S. examination of the Bombay University, could get the L.R.C.P., L.R.C.S. degrees in six months’ time, he said, “ Oh what is there ? Here the examiners try to know what a student does not know and ask questions on such points but in England the general standard is this : The examiners in England for these degrees only want to know if a boy, if allowed to pass out, would likely be dangerous, and leave the rest to his intelligence and study. That is the test there. (Laughter.) They thought that I would not be a dangerous man in this line and granted me the degrees." (Laughter.)

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum (North West Frontier Province : Nominated Non-Official) : The Indian system is wrong and bad and requires improvement.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : The British Examiners belonging to the Indian Medical Service are certainly not so considerate and reasonable, I thoroughly agree, but the education and the training imparted in the Indian Medical Colleges cannot be said to be in any way inferior generally to that imparted in England. So, my first complaint is that the Government of India, which represent the Indian nation, which represent the Indian intelligence. (An Honourable Member : "Question ?") or shall I say, which is taken to represent in the outer world the self-respect incarnate of India, accepted that threat or ultimatum and admitted that the system of medical education and methods of examinations as conducted in India are inferior, and therefore they require to be examined by the Inspectors who have been sent out from England. That, Sir, I say is an insult to our national honour, and we feel that the Government of India has forfeited our confidence to that extent, and we cannot entrust our national self-respect in the keeping of the Government of India. Sir, I am speaking from a larger aspect, and I wish the Government of India would keep this fact in mind before resolving to give effect to the proposal which they have brought forward today.

As regards the actual results of the inspection of our system of medical education and methods of examinations by the Inspectors sent out by the General Medical Council of England, I am surprised at the reply given by my Honourable friend this morning. Government did not seem to have taken even the least care to know the results of the inspection of the examinations held in India before admitting the charge that the examinations and the system of medical education in India are deficient. I will just quote the results of the inspection of the final medical examinations held in India. Take for instance the Bombay University. It is not an inspection held by an Indian but it is an inspection held by a British Officer of the rank of a Lieutenant-Colonel known as Lieutenant-Colonel Dutton, belonging to the Indian Medical Service.....

Sir Frank Noyce (Secretary, Department of Education, Health and Lands) : On behalf of the General Medical Council.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : That is the point I am making here that an examination was made of the Medical Faculties of the Universities of India by the General Medical Council of England, and the Government of India has been so negligent as not to have made themselves aware of the results of such inspection before accepting the threat or ultimatum. That is the point I am making here.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham (Associated Chambers of Commerce : Nominated Non-Official) : Will you give us the Officer's name again ?

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Lieutenant-Colonel Dutton belonging to the Indian Medical Service.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney (Nominated : Anglo-Indians) : He does not belong to the Indian Medical Service.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : He does belong to the Indian Medical Service, but evidently my friend has forgotten that he also belongs to that service.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I tell you again that he does not belong to the Indian Medical Service ; I am telling you a fact.

An Honourable Member : He belongs to R. A. M. C.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : I do not want to take the time of the House unnecessarily, but for the edification of my friend Colonel Gidney, I will read out his name which is printed here, H. R. Dutton, M.R.C.P., Lieut.-Colonel, I. M. S. General Medical Council, etc., etc. I would request my friend to be careful in contradicting me in future.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I am not contradicting.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : I can understand differences of opinion, but I cannot understand un-warranted contradiction of facts. The result of the inspection, as reported by Lieut.-Colonel Dutton is like this.

Bombay University.

1. Hygiene :

"The standard of questions was good and practical and questions on preventive medicines were asked".

2. Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology :

"The questions asked were good and practical and a fair standard of knowledge was demanded".

3. Materia Medica and Pharmacology :

"The examination was thorough and satisfactory and the standard of knowledge shown was good".

4. Pathology and Bacteriology :

"The standard of knowledge shown was generally good, especially in Bacteriology".

5. Medicine :

"The whole examination was nicely conducted and a good standard of knowledge expected".

6. Midwifery and Gynæcology :

"The whole examination was well planned and conducted and a good standard of knowledge demanded".

7. Surgery :

"The whole examination was thoroughly practical and well conducted".

Eventually Lieut.-Colonel Dutton, I.M.S., if my friend Colonel Gidney will allow me to proceed without contradiction, says as follows:

"I am of opinion that the final examination for the M.B., B.S., of the Bombay University held under the revised regulations (1923) is 'sufficient' and the recognition of the General Medical Council may be continued".

Lieut.-Colonel Dutton further remarks :

"A general desire was evinced that the examination of this University should be of a high standard".

[Dr. B. S. Moonje.]

So much about the Bombay University. Now, let us see what another Inspector on behalf of the General Medical Council says about the examinations held by the Madras University. These are the remarks of Colonel Megaw. (An Honourable Member : "Is he also an I. M. S. ?") I could not say that, perhaps our friend Colonel Gidney will be able to tell that.

Sir Frank Noyce : I can assure the Honourable Member that he is a member of the Indian Medical Service.

An Honourable Member : Colonel Gidney confirmed.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Thanks for the timely assistance, but I am concerned more with his opinion because he is an officer who was deputed as an Inspector by the General Medical Council of England itself which has given us this threat. Colonel Megaw says as regards the Madras University :

"Taking the examination, as a whole, it was conducted on sound practical lines and a high standard of answering was maintained, so that I have no hesitation in recommending the continued recognition of the M.B., B.S., Examination of the Madras University." ("Hear, hear.")

I do not want to tire the House by quoting the reports about the medical examinations of the other Universities in India. They are more or less on the same lines. This ought to give food for thought to my Honourable friend acting on behalf of the Government of India. This ought to warn him that, before accepting that threat, it is his duty to inquire and know as to how things actually stand ; before pocketing the humiliation of the condemnation of the Indian System of Medical Education and methods of examination by the General Medical Council of England it is the duty of the Government of India, as the custodian of the national honour of India, to warn the General Medical Council of England to be sure of their facts, which ought to make the General Medical Council to be respectful towards the Medical Faculties of the Universities of India. I hope my quotations and the information that I have placed before this House will make an impression upon the Government.

(At this stage Mr. President resumed the Chair.)

Now, as regards the question of the creation of the new post, taking for granted, for the sake of argument, that the system of medical examination in India is deficient, is the proposal of the General Medical Council, England, for the appointment of a Commissioner of Medical Standards feasible for the purposes for which the proposal is made ? Is it a practicable and useful proposition ? Will it conduce to the attainment of a high standard of medical education in India ? People using their common sense can understand what an amount of bad blood will be created when an officer who is imported over the heads of all the Universities in India against their wishes comes here and acts almost like a dictator and says to the Universities in India like those in Bombay, Calcutta or Madras, "Your examinations will not do, your system of medical education is bad",—perhaps that University may have a professor, may have a teacher, may have a demonstrator, who is far superior in intelligence, experience and skill to the Inspector sent out from England ! Can you expect that University to submit to the dictatorship of that person, even though he comes clothed with the authority as Inspector from the British Medical Council ? It is impossible, human nature being as it is ; just as individuals have got their sense of self-respect, so the institutions have got their sense of self-respect, and nobody, and much less a University of long standing, would be able to put up with the insult involved in the affair. If this kind of reasoning is correct, if human nature is as I have described above, do you think that the appointment of this Commissioner would make for efficiency, would make for the attainment of a higher standard in the system of medical examinations in India ? On the other hand it will create friction, it will create bitterness, it will create jealousy, in fact the whole system of medical examination will be upset, and instead of obtaining any advantage we will have to go through a period, if the Government were still to insist upon this appointment, during which the whole medical education in India will be at the lowest ebb possible. That is my opinion, and I am supported in that by the opinion of a responsible body, the opinion of the Bombay University. The Bombay University has considered this proposal and has come practically to the same conclusion to which I have come. I may quote the opinion of the Faculty of Medicine of the Bombay University ; it is as follows in regard to this proposal :

"It is agreed that it will take some time to set up such a machinery and Sir Norman Walker suggests the appointment of a Commissioner of Medical Qualifications and standards as a temporary measure, and observes that the General Medical Council would willingly accept such an official as their visitor and that his regular reports will be of much assistance in determining whether recognition to Indian Degrees could be accorded. The Faculty is strongly opposed to the suggestion of Sir Norman Walker and is of opinion that the appointment of a Central Officer is neither conducive to the dignity nor to the independence of the Universities....."

Bravo Bombay University. They have maintained the dignity, the independence and the sense of self-respect of the Indians represented by that Faculty :

".....and would create difficulties and lead to friction, for the Commissioner will occupy a position similar to that of a Dictator to the Universities."

Further, as pointed out by Sir Norman Walker, the General Medical Council appoints three Inspectors,—three different persons proficient in three different departments of medical knowledge. They come here, they examine, and inspect the systems of examinations throughout the several Universities in India. In place of those three Inspectors that are at present being sent out by the General Medical Council, the proposal of the Government of India is to appoint one officer, and that one officer is supposed to be or is expected to be an expert in all the different departments of medical knowledge. He is supposed to be an expert in surgery ; at the same time he is supposed to be an expert in medicine ; in toxicology ; in gynaecology ; in children's diseases ; in so many other departments. At one time when I was a student in the Medical College 35 years ago, it was a common saying in joke that a member of the Indian Medical Service was omnipotent, was omniscient, and, like an amphibious animal, expert both in medicine as well as in surgery, was a person who expected to be regarded as efficient and expert in all the different departments of medical knowledge wherever he might be put. A member of the Indian Medical Service can be today a professor of medicine, tomorrow he can be transferred to toxicology and he becomes a great toxicologist. The third day he is appointed professor of anatomy, and he becomes a great anatomist ; on the fourth day he is appointed a teacher of chemistry and he becomes an expert on chemistry. (An Honourable Member : "Subjantewala".) That was thirty-two years ago, when perhaps the medical conscience of Indians on the western pattern had not been sufficiently developed. It could have been said so then, but to say the same thing today on the floor of this House with the knowledge that there are Indian practitioners, both as surgeons and medical men, many times superior to many of the officers of the Indian Medical Service is nothing short of arrogant hypocrisy ; it is only people, who are in authority, who are in political domination, that alone can say so and others like us who are in political subordination are expected to submit to it even without a protest. Supposing that we agree to the proposal of the Government of India for the appointment of one person as Commissioner, we have to take it that he must be an expert in all the departments of medical knowledge, and could he be expected to be so ?

It should not be said that I am purely a destructive critic. I am not in the habit of making purely destructive criticism. I have also a constructive suggestion to make. Do you think that the Government of India is at present in a mood to listen to constructive criticism from our side or are they already too much committed ? (An Honourable Member : "No".) Will they keep their mind open ? Will they divest themselves of their previous prejudices, of their previous commitments and keep an open mind ? Will they stand before this House with an open mind, absolutely blind to their previous prejudices and previous commitments and take this constructive suggestion of mine ?—And I am sure they will find that there is some merit in that and that it should not be thrown into the waste paper basket. My constructive suggestion is that, instead of appointing one individual as a Commissioner of Medical Examinations,—however high-placed officer he may be, however capable he may be, however skilful he may be,—he could not be supposed to be proficient in all the different departments of medical knowledge—let the medical faculties of all the different Universities in India be asked to appoint one representative each so as to form a Central Board, for the time being before any permanent arrangements could be decided upon, the Central Board representing the medical faculties of the different Universities, so that the Universities may feel that their self-respect has been consulted, that they take a hand in the determination of the system of medical education in the country and the manner of conducting their medical examinations. Instead of one person, you will thus have about 5 or 10 experts in different departments of medical knowledge conducting the examinations and carrying on the duties which this one man is expected to discharge.

I hope the Government of India will give due consideration to this proposal of mine, made with the best of intentions, with the idea of providing for continuous supervision of the system of medical education in India, so that it should be maintained on a level of sufficiency and efficiency.

From all these points of view I have not been able to convince myself that the Government have been able to make out a case for the creation of a new post, and I appeal to Government that, instead of bringing forward such an important proposal at the fag end of the Assembly, when most of our people have left, they should defer this question till the next Session if theirs be the desire to ascertain what the true opinion of the people is on this question. I hope my appeal will not go in vain and I therefore oppose this motion of the Honourable the Finance Member.

Mr. President : I think Dr. Moonje has made an appeal to the Government that this motion involving as it does such an important question of policy should not be taken up for discussion at this fag end of the Session and asked them to postpone its further consideration to the next Sessions.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Particularly as it is not a very urgent matter, Sir.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain (Member for Education, Health and Lands) : The appeal that has been made to Government by the Honourable Member who has made such an eloquent speech on this rather dry subject has not fallen on deaf ears. If he imagines that the proposal before the House is one to make a permanent appointment, I am here at once to tell him that, had such a proposal been contemplated by the Department, it would certainly not have obtained my support. I cannot conceive the Government of India embarking upon a proposal to engage a permanent Inspector of Medical Education to go all over India in order to make his reports in due course to the British Medical Council. The position is perhaps not made quite clear to the House on account of this supplementary demand having come by way of a supplementary demand and not as the main theme of discussion enunciating the policy of Government. You will permit me to mention how this little business has come before the House in this way. Almost all the Local Governments, which means Ministers in charge of Medicine and Public Health, have asked the Government of India, as a temporary measure, to appoint this Commissioner for the current year, so that they may have time to consider some constructive scheme under which they could organise provincial medical institutions, in order to so conduct themselves as to maintain the prestige of India and of their provinces, and then be in a position to negotiate with the British Medical Council. It is their desire, when they are trying to do so, that the Government of India may not intervene, and take the position of the British Medical Council, lest they, instead of getting rid of one master, be in the difficult position of having two masters. I trust that this Assembly will not, by any action of its own, create this impression, which I have no doubt would be a wrong impression, on the mind of Provincial Governments that the Government of India or the Assembly in any way are attempting to work out a position in which the Local Governments have to serve, not only the British Medical Council, but also the Government of India and the Assembly. I assure the Honourable Member that the subject that he has mentioned is already under the consideration not only of the Government of India but of all the Ministries of Public Health and Medicine throughout India, and will not be decided without the Assembly having a full opportunity of considering the whole problem on its own merits.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : On a point of information. Is it a fact that, before all the Local Governments could give their consent to the proposal to the Government of India, the Government of India itself was committed to the proposal of creating this post.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : I feel doubtful about these points of information and etiquette, and so on, for the present. The position is this, that the Government of India desired to have an institution of the sort just indicated by the Honourable Member on the floor of this House, namely, an all-India organisation on which the Universities would be represented and the profession would be represented. After all the Government of India under the reformed constitution, is not as supreme as it used to be ten years ago. It has to mind the public opinion of India and also the public opinion as expressed by the Ministers who have elected Legislative Councils behind them. I trust I am not committing any breach of the Government of India etiquette in disclosing these facts. The Government of India did not have their way because the Ministers insisted that they would not have an All-India Medical Council till they were satisfied that it was in the best interests of the country, and on that the Honourable Member in charge in the Government of India had no option but to say, "I hold my hand. I will not decide this matter till I have gone again through the matter with my officers, and possibly after consulting the Assembly and the public opinion. I may be in a position to agree with your request and meet you again to confer with you, in order to arrive at a further stage of this difficult problem."

Therefore, this unfortunate temporary post really is not the creation of the Government of India, but is the creation of circumstances.....

Dr. B. S. Moonje: Is it as the result of a threat of the British Medical Council?

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain: Oh! No; not in the least. It is not the threat of the British Council as much as it is the suspicion, the grave suspicion, of Ministers of the fact that this All-India Medical Council may not be as good a thing as it appears to be on the face of it. Therefore, they said, "We are going to contribute funds (Rs. 3,000 or so a year from each Local Government) in order to employ a man who will be able to certify that everything that is taught in our colleges is good, that our method of conducting examinations is above all suspicion", and therefore they said, "We are going to club together, organise ourselves into a sort of co-operative society", and does the Honourable Member oppose site desire to prevent them from doing so? This grant, I understand, is nothing more than a temporary loan to this co-operative venture of Ministers in India, and will be recouped from contributions from various Provincial Governments. And mind you, they have agreed to do so for only one year. Therefore there is no question of a general policy having been started by the Government of India to the prejudice of the prestige of India or anybody. I can assure the Honourable Member, Sir, that, although I may not have his eloquence to express my regard for the prestige of India, still, in feeling, in sentiment I do not give place to him in this matter. I trust, Sir, I have made it absolutely clear that this little matter of a supplementary grant, which is a temporary loan to various Local Governments' Ministers for the time being, is essentially of a transitory and temporary nature, and that it does not involve any expression of policy in a way that might prejudice the decision of this matter in the future. It is a matter which I trust the Assembly will recognise is as much the concern of Local Governments and their Ministers as either of the Government of India or of this Assembly. We must not show that, in this matter, we dictate to them; we must try to show that, in spite of the fact that medical education is a transferred subject and the setting of the standard is a reserved subject, still we could pull together and pay sufficient regard to the wishes of Ministers even when we do not see entirely eye to eye with them. (Cheers.)

Dr. B. S. Moonje: I rise, Sir, on a point of further information, from the Honourable Member. Of course being accustomed for long to what is called the thin end of the wedge, we are not prepared to accept in full what the Honourable Member has said; so I want information on this point. The question as I understand that was placed before the Provincial Ministers was either to have a General Medical Council or to agree to the creation of this post. This third alternative, which I have suggested and which means that the co-operation of all the Universities in India has to be requisitioned in the matter of supervising the medical examinations and medical education in India, was not before them. Is the Honourable Member therefore prepared now to say that no action will be taken until he has brought this suggestion to the notice of all the Ministers, or until another conference of the Ministers is held, and that, before this suggestion is considered by the Ministers, no further action will be taken?

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain: I should like, Sir, to be quite clear as to what the Honourable Member means by "further action". As for drawing the attention of Local Governments to the Honourable Member's suggestion for requesting each University to elect a representative of its own in order to serve on an all-India institution of the sort contemplated by the Honourable Member, I have not the slightest hesitation in bringing that to the notice of the Local Governments' Ministers in charge of the subject. As for taking no further action, I assure you, Sir, that the Government of India will take no further action than that which I have already outlined, viz., to engage one person temporarily for this year in order to do the work. (An Honourable Member: "That is the only proposal before the House".) That is undoubtedly the only proposal before the House, but as the Honourable Member wanted that information, I have supplied it. So far as this interruption is concerned, if you, Sir, say that the debate should proceed, then I shall be prepared to show to the House on the merits, that this temporary arrangement is in no way intended or likely to affect the dignity or prestige either of this House or of the country.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar (Bombay City: Non-Muhammadan Urban): Sir, I may be permitted to enter my protest on a question which is, in a way, outside my usual region of knowledge. Sir, I have risen to enter my strongest protest against the proposal which is before the House. I congratulate the Honourable Member who spoke just a few minutes ago on the speech which he has made. I see the Honourable Member leaving the House. I wish that he had remained here to listen to my comments. It is a courtesy which he owes to this House that having made a controversial speech, he should remain to listen to the reply which is based upon his comments. His is a very seductive speech, Sir, and I hope to draw the attention of the House to its seductive character. The Honourable Member who spoke last wanted to justify this proposal on the ground that it was only a temporary measure. But that is no concession to our sentiments and it is not as if in consideration of the feeling of the House he was reducing a permanent proposal to a temporary one. If the Honourable Member will turn to the proceedings of the Standing Finance Committee, it will be more than clear that when the Standing Finance Committee turned down this proposal by a majority as the Honourable Sir George Schuster made clear in his speech, it was only the proposal for a temporary post. There is no question before this House of appointing a permanent individual at all. It is not therefore a fact that the Honourable Member was making a concession to this House in treating his proposal as tentative. But even the temporary proposal is a vicious proposal. I must say, Sir, that I admire the effrontery of that proposal. (Hear, hear.) It is nothing more than an apotheosis of the I. M. S., I do not propose to go into the question of the racial distinction involved in appointing a European I. M. S. officer. I shall only examine the policy underlying the proposal in the dry light of reason and argument. What is the proposal, Sir?

Mr. President : Order, order. I should like to know from the Honourable Member for Government whether he really considers it proper that this question of policy, on which the Opposition feel so strongly, should be discussed at this fag end of the Session when the opposition Benches are so thin and whether he would not agree to take this matter up next Session.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : Had I known, Sir, that a discussion on an important question like that would be raised, I can assure you that I would have liked nothing better than a discussion at any stage that the House might have considered more favourable than the present one. But my trouble is this. This is a supplementary demand which has come in the ordinary course (An Honourable Member : "It is a token demand.") and not by design.....

Mr. President : It could have come earlier?

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : Had we known that this subject would be taken advantage of to discuss the question of general policy.....

Mr. President : When was it placed before the Standing Finance Committee?

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : A meeting of that Committee was held only a few days ago.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : May I make an explanation, Sir? The proposal came up before the Standing Finance Committee, I think, at their second meeting. It was just at the beginning of this month. It was then represented to me by various Members that it was a question which they felt involved an important matter of principle, and they asked that it should stand over in order that they might consult various bodies about it. For that reason, it was delayed. As far as the Standing Finance Committee is concerned, the Government and my Honourable friend's Department brought this proposal up at the earliest possible moment, and it was really in deference to the wishes of the Members that it was held over so long. That, I think, explains one part of the discussion.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : (Dacca Division: Non-Muhammadan Rural): May I ask, Sir, what dire results would follow if this officer, instead of being appointed today, were to be appointed in January next?

Mr. President : How can he be appointed in January?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : In February, Sir.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : How can it be February either? Does the Honourable Member think that a supplementary demand or a token demand made in the month of February and accepted by the House will result in the immediate appointment of the person concerned?

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban): If the individual is waiting, yes.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : Is he waiting? The Honourable Member knows more than I do.

An Honourable Member : This House knows more than that.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Why do you not accept my constructive proposal in the meantime?

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : I should like you to be a little clearer as to what you would like us to do, because here is a....

Mr. President : Order, order: The Chair has only made a suggestion to the Government whether they could not conveniently postpone the consideration of so important a question of policy till the House was more full, that is, till the next Session?

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : If, Sir, that is the wish of the House, there will be nothing for me but to bow to it. (Hear, hear.)

Several Honourable Members : That is the wish of the House.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : But may I, Sir, through you remind the House that the matter is not quite between me and that part of the House which desires a fuller meeting of the House? It seems to me that we are having a fairly full meeting now, so far as I can see. It is a matter in which the parties vitally concerned are Ministers in charge of the Medical Department, including the medical colleges which are imparting medical education. They are directly concerned in the matter.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : We the parents are directly concerned.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : No doubt the Honourable Member may be directly concerned, as he belongs to the medical profession, but the persons directly concerned are those who are responsible for the administration of those colleges and who are responsible to the elected representatives of the people for their due administration. Sir, I may inform the House that members of local Legislatures have as much regard for the privileges of their Houses as the Honourable Members sitting opposite, and they can also act in the same way as the Honourable Members opposite act. If the Minister went wrong in any way, is there any reason to believe that the Members of the Local Council will not take him to task as the Honourable Members are trying to do now? The Honourable Members must remember that the reformed Government is a Government conducted on party lines. Is there any Member present here who can say that the Minister in charge, who is not having the confidence of his party, can have any proposal passed in the Council?

Several Honourable Members : Yes; by Government block.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : That would never do. The issue is plain one. I am placing before the Assembly a matter in which the Local Governments, that is, the Ministers on behalf of their Legislatures are vitally concerned. They have come to a unanimous decision—I believe it is almost unanimous, probably it is quite unanimous—to the effect that they would like to appoint a man for a year in order to settle their differences with the British Medical Council. The Government of India comes into the picture only as an intermediary, as a person collecting these contributions from Provincial Governments. Mind you, Sir, the responsibility of the Assembly by standing in the way of that being done is a very serious one, is an extremely serious one, and, before the House decides either in favour of proceeding with this question or throwing out the demand, it will have to be determined whether the Ministers cannot of their own accord carry on this act. Is there anything to prevent them from agreeing amongst themselves to have an Inspector who would co-ordinate the expenditure on education? Can the Assembly for a moment assume the position that, even in the case of a transferred subject which these Ministers are administering, with the full concurrence of their Legislatures,.....

Several Honourable Members : No, no.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : You may say “No, no,” but I do say “Yes” in the case of many provinces from personal experience. The question is, do you think that it is a matter with which you are directly and primarily concerned to the extent of obstructing the Government of India from trying to carry out the wishes of all the Local Governments put together? This House has nothing to do with medical education. I mean no disrespect to the Honourable Members when I say this, but I am relying on the constitution as it is, and it never does any harm for a higher institution like the Assembly, vis-a-vis the local Legislatures, to know that, just as this House not unoften resents what may look like interference from a higher Legislature, say, the mother of Parliaments, the younger sisters of this Legislature may also resent and call this an interference with their business. I wish to impress this point on the House most emphatically in the hope that this matter will not be allowed to develop into a question of the highest constitutional importance between the Provincial Legislatures and the Assembly in which it will be extremely difficult for the Government to.....

Mr. President : Order, order. The Chair is not at all concerned with the constitutional aspect of the question so vividly described by the Honourable Member. All that the Chair wants to know is whether the Government are prepared to meet the Opposition in the suggestion that they have made, that the consideration of this question of policy should not be taken up this Session. That is all that the Chair is concerned with.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : I extremely regret my inability to agree to that suggestion, Sir.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : Will some Honourable Member intimate to the House whether there is not a third party interested in this question? Whether the students who want to get their degrees recognised are not involved in this question and whether, if the appointment of this officer is delayed, there will not be a large number of medical students....

Mr. President : Order, order. The discussion would proceed, because the Government do not agree to the suggestion for postponement.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Sir, the question raised by my Honourable friend Mr. Neogy has not been answered by the Honourable Member in charge of the Department. What dire results would follow if this appointment were deferred till February or March next? That was the question. No answer has been given to it. The Honourable Member has drawn a very lurid picture before this House as if there was a mandate given to the Government of India and to this House by the Local Governments and their Ministers. But may I ask the Honourable Member, is he in a position to state to this House whether the Local Legislative Councils have been consulted on this question? (Voices : “Not a bit.”) If they have been so consulted, is there any vote in favour of this proposal? Is there even any vote in favour of the proposal that this question should be referred to the Government of India? My information is that the Local Provincial Councils, of which so much has been made by the Honourable Member in charge, have never been consulted on this point at all. Speaking of the Ministers, to whom the Honourable Member has referred more than once, this House is aware that they turned down the proposal of an All-India Medical Council. That was apparently on the ground that such a Council would interfere with the autonomy of the transferred departments; and yet curiously enough the same body of Ministers gave its consent to the proposal of having an all-India dictator and his autocratic interference. I do not wish to say anything about the Ministers; they are all estimable and honourable men. But, Sir, I cannot understand a body of responsible men who turn down the idea of an all-India Council of Indian medical men on the ground that it would cause an interference with provincial autonomy submitting to an all-India dictator in the person of an I. M. S. European officer. The less we talk of such Ministers the better for this House, and if I may give a tip to the Honourable Member, the less he mentions such Ministers and their views the better for his proposal and its favourable reception in this House. Sir, the point is this, that this money is going to be voted from the Central Legislature in the first instance. A sum of Rs. 39,000 is going to be voted for this officer. My Honourable friend opposite said that the men most directly concerned are the Ministers. I absolutely repudiate that suggestion. The man most directly concerned is the taxpayer out of whose pockets Rs. 39,000 are going to be paid towards the salary and the establishment of this officer. (Hear, hear.) I warn this House not to be drawn out of its usual way of scrupulously examining such proposals on the mere ground which the Honourable Member repeated nearly twenty times, “Oh! the Honourable Ministers of the Provincial Governments all have agreed—so this House must agree and not obstruct”. May I ask if this House is here simply to record the decrees of Local Governments and their Ministers? This House has the right to examine every proposal on its merits, and I propose to do that. I do hope that the Honourable Member will not again frighten us with the mumbo jumbo of Provincial Governments and their decisions.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : He will, if he is permitted.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : This House has got to examine the proposal on its merits. The proposal, Sir, is practically to establish a medical dictator for India. At present, owing to India's dependent condition, the Indian Universities are in this unfortunate position, that whatever the qualifications of their students, the nature of their studies and the depth of their knowledge, their alumni have to go England and qualify for an English medical degree to obtain high employment. It is the vicious policy of the Government to give preference to English qualifications. I take it to be a necessary consequence of the dependent position of India. The desire therefore is that the acquisition of British medical degrees should be made more easy by reason of concessions in studies or terms being granted to Indian medical degrees. I entirely agree with what my Honourable friend Dr. Moonje said about the undeserved inferiority attached to Indian degrees, but I will not labour that point. The present arrangement is this, that the British General Medical Council has appointed three Inspectors to test the worth of Indian degrees conferred after proper qualifications. These three Inspectors are, one in midwifery, one in medicine and one in surgery. They examine and report on the worth of the Indian degree. The British Medical Council was up to now satisfied with this arrangement. These three medical Inspectors—autocrats in a way—inspected, examined and pronounced on the efficiency of the medical degrees granted by Indian Universities. Now, the British Medical Council says, "Oh! this arrangement of three medical Inspectors does not suit us. We want to have these three medical Inspectors replaced by one autocrat". And as if to make the proposal more obnoxious to Indians, the British Medical Council wants that autocrat to be a member of the I. M. S.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : It is not there.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : It is stated in the proposal before the Standing Finance Committee that the officer was to be an I. M. S. Officer. May I read it for the benefit of the Honourable Member? Possibly he is not well informed on this point. It is stated that "the intended officer is to be an I. M. S. officer of sufficient seniority and experience." Is the Honourable Member willing to go back on this and state whether he is prepared to appoint a qualified Indian of medical experience? If so, I shall modify, to some extent, my opposition to this proposal in so far as it arises on racial grounds. This is the entire proposal, Sir, and we cannot take away the I. M. S. part of that proposal when we have to judge it on its merits. The proposal, therefore, is that an officer of the I. M. S. should be appointed as the sole authority in India, like Caesar, to control, examine, supervise and pronounce upon the merits of Indian medical degrees. As my Honourable friend Dr. Moonje stated when this proposal went before the Bombay University Senate which happens to be a body consisting of educational experts, professional and businessmen—a very important body of responsible men, they turned it down. The Senate as well as the Syndicate both expressed themselves strongly against the proposal in the following terms :

"The Faculty is strongly opposed to the suggestion of Sir Norman Walker and is of opinion that the appointment of a Central Officer is neither conducive to the dignity....."

Honourable Members will mark these words :

"is neither conducive to the dignity nor to the independence of the Universities and would create difficulties and lead to friction, as the Commissioner will occupy a position similar to that of a Dictator to the Universities. Further, as pointed out by Sir Norman Walker, the General Medical Council appoints three Inspectors—presumably all of them specialists in their own subjects—one in medicine, one in surgery and one in midwifery. It takes these Inspectors about two years to complete their cycle of inspection. If the suggestion of Sir Norman Walker is adopted in India, all this work will fall on one Commissioner who will have to complete his inspection of all the Indian Universities within an extraordinarily short time to be able to present an annual report. Moreover, such a Commissioner will have to be a specialist in all the three subjects. The task is too great for one individual."

Well, Sir, this is the opinion, the well reasoned opinion, not of political agitators, but of a sedate body of specialists, including the Vice-Chancellor, who is a very important official in Bombay, the leading business and professional men and a number of educational experts. The Honourable Member has not said a word about this expression of opinion. Further I am surprised that this proposal has come up, although it was turned down by the Standing Finance Committee, as the Honourable Sir George Schuster frankly stated. Sir I congratulate him on the frankness of his speech and I am sure if the matter had rested solely with him and if the vested interests which are behind this proposal had not compelled him to bring it before the House we would have seen the last of this proposal long ago. But now that it has come before this House, I submit that it should be unceremoniously turned down. There is no other alternative. The grounds made out are unconvincing. My Honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham stated that students' interests were involved in the question. May I know from the Honourable Sir Fazl-i-Hussain, if the British Medical Council were informed that, having regard to the debate in this House and the strong feeling which the proposal has evoked, and having special regard to the point that you suggested, Sir, from the Chair that a question of this importance ought not to be put before the House when it is nearly completing its Session, that having regard to all these considerations, this proposal cannot be proceeded with until the next Session. The Honourable Member thinks that, if this wish of the House were communicated to the British General Medical Council, that Body would be so unreasonable as peremptorily to say, "No, we hold the pistol at the head of the Indian Universities. Sanction this proposal today. If you postpone it till February, we would cancel all recognition." Is that likely? My answer to the Honourable Member Mr. Winterbotham is this: "the Heavens are not going to fall if we waited till next March." I am quite agreeable to this, Sir, and I wish the Honourable Member once more to consider the suggestion of my Honourable friend Dr. Moonje, namely, that this matter should come before the House when it has more time, larger attendance, and more information. I myself may go back to the University and the medical men of Bombay and ask for more details and I will be better prepared to accept or reject the proposal if it is brought before us in the month of March. But if my Honourable friend will take the risk of rushing the proposal in the present depleted state of the House, my answer will be, we will unceremoniously turn it down so far as we can do so. Sir, as my Honourable friend Dr. Moonje has pointed out, the system of having three Medical Inspectors has gone on for some time. The reports made by these Inspectors have been very favourable. We have no grounds to believe, except the ipse dixit of the British General Medical Council in England, that the system has not worked well. I certainly feel the humiliation of a foreign Inspector going over Indian Universities and examining the mental calibre of the students and the quality of the examinations, but as long as India is a dependency, we have to submit to the humiliation. But what is there to show, beyond the mere obiter dictum of the British Medical Council, that this system has not worked well. I do not wish to tire the House by reading out the reports made by these Inspectors which are very favourable to Indian Universities. Honourable Members must not take it that Indian education has been found wanting by these Inspectors. On the contrary the reports of these Inspectors are a very good testimonial. There is no reason why the system should not be continued for some time more until we evolve an All-India Medical Council. No grounds have been stated to us explaining why this system cannot go on for a short time more, except the peremptory "No" of the British Council. If this system does not work, how will the scheme of having one medical autocrat for the whole of India will work? I want Honourable Members to closely apply their minds to that main question; is it a desirable thing that one officer should sit in Simla or Delhi with a stenographer and control the whole of Indian medical education? His establishment will consist of one stenographer and two peons. His office will be in Delhi and Simla. He will be an I. M. S. officer, not a man drawn from among the people sympathising with and having contact with the people. He will be an isolated individual, a member of the Indian Medical Service, and I am stating nothing derogatory when I say that he will be an isolated individual wrapped up in his own ignorance and superior ideas. He will be working through files and red tape. Do the Honourable Members think that this autocrat will work in harmony with the several Universities of India, each growing up in its infancy and requiring delicate handling? The task is well nigh impossible. I am surprised Sir, that the Department over which an Indian like my Honourable friend presides should not have seen the national aspect of this question, the question of Indian self-respect and the independence of the Universities. This preposterous proposal is before the House and we are asked to sanction Rs. 39,000 a year for it. Honourable Members will not fail to remember that nothing has been shown to prove that so far the progress of Indian Universities has been bad. All University degrees have been recognised by the British Medical Council except those of two, Patna and Rangoon.

Sir Frank Noyce : The recognition of the degrees of the Calcutta University was withdrawn for three years.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : My statement was that it was recognised at one time. The only two Universities which have not been recognised are Patna and Rangoon. That statement is correct.

Sir Frank Noyce : The new ones.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : That is so. Therefore it is not a case where we can say that the whole system of medical education in India has been proved to be inferior and therefore a drastic remedy is needed. The onus is very heavy on the other side to prove that a proposal, which is prima facie obnoxious and impossible to work, should be accepted by this House specially if it costs Rs. 39,000 of the tax-payers' money. I submit, Sir, that the proposal should be rejected.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Before I commence to make any comments on the motion that is before the House I desire to tell Dr. Moonje that when he in his speech mentioned the name of Colonel Dutton, I misheard him and thought he said Colonel Duggan, a name more familiar in Bombay than Colonel Dutton. No doubt, Sir, this was due to either my defective hearing or to the indistinct speech of the Honourable Member which was delivered at some distance. I am sorry that I confused these names and that is the explanation for my intervention, but, here I must ask my friend Dr. Moonje not to misconstrue this error of mine and look upon me in any way as an obstructionist or to think that I have no sympathy with the motion that he moved. I hope Dr. Moonje will accept this as my explanation of my interruption of his speech.

Sir, I have a motion against my name....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member knows that it is the same as Dr. Moonje's. The Honourable Member now wants to amend that motion. He should have given separate notice for that purpose, but, I think for the convenience of this debate he had better confine himself to the motion now before the House.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Sir, for reasons already communicated to you, I will not move my motion and will speak on the motion of Dr. Moonje. At the outset I wish to assure the House that I yield to no one here, even those on the opposite Benches in their desire to maintain the dignity of the medical profession in India and the prestige of its various medical colleges and Universities. I submit that too much value—too much market—is made of medical education in England and English degrees. I submit that India should not be singled out as the only part of the British Empire from whom it is demanded that she should send her sons to another country for education to qualify for employment in our own country. This is not demanded from any other Dominion; and, therefore, what I have to say on this motion is the outcome of deep conviction and deep thought as a son of India and as a medical man with some administrative experience. Sir, what are the facts of the case? In September, 1921, Mr. Subrahmanayam moved a Resolution in this House protesting against a similar action on the part of the British General Medical Council. That Resolution was discussed at great length in this House and I took part in it. The House in no uncertain terms expressed its disapproval of the distinct discourtesy of the Medical Council conveyed in a curt letter, and it was considered that a revolver was being held at our heads. I have no desire to minimise the position today, for, I consider that a revolver is again being held at our heads and I object to being threatened by anyone even that all powerful body, the British Medical Council; but, when that Resolution was discussed in 1921, what was the standard of medical education in this country? My friend Mr. Jayakar must not think he has a monopoly of intelligence in this House or in this matter. As a barrister, I am willing to accept his opinion on legal matters, but, when he talks on medical questions, I am sorry I cannot accept his opinion, and it seems as if barristers dare to step where doctors fear to tread. Sir, when this Resolution was moved in 1921, the training of midwifery in Indian colleges was the following: Bombay was not up to the standard required by the British General Medical Council, because each student performed only 7 cases of labour and on this he received his degree to practice. In Calcutta each graduate had only done 10 cases of labour. Madras was well up to the standard. Now we come to the Punjab, where 50 students had 23 labour cases divided among themselves to attend, which works out at the appalling rate of less than half a labour case per student, and yet, he was given his degree to practice midwifery. Could anything be more lamentable, more dangerous, more defective? Such was the disgraceful and appalling condition of our midwifery training in 1921, and that was the reason, Sir, why Sir Norman Walker on behalf of the British Medical Council visited this country to investigate our medical standards. Sir Norman Walker, I may tell this House, is an eminent dermatologist and when I heard that he was coming to India to improve our training in midwifery, I was surprised and hoped he was coming here to eradicate our cursed colour prejudice and to kill our pigmentary handicap as a dermatologist, and as such, I should have welcomed him. But, being an expert on medical standards also, he was eminently fitted for his inquiry.

Sir, in 1922 I had the honour of moving a resolution in this House which, for want of a better term, I called my medical Swaraj resolution. The resolution ran thus :

"This Assembly recommends to the Governor General in Council that he be pleased to appoint a Committee of professional experts half to be obtained from the United Kingdom in consultation with the General Medical Council, and the other half from India, to tour India and to inquire into the training that is obtained in the various medical and surgical institutions, both official and non-official, and to submit recommendations with a view to bringing the Indian institutions, in all respects, on a level with those of the United Kingdom and thereby creating in India a suitable field of recruitment for its entire medical services."

This Resolution, Sir, was discussed at great length and it was this House, especially the opposite Benches, that turned it down. In the course of my speech I said :

"I want to inculcate some national medical pride ; I want to put our house in order, to raise the standard of medical training and make it equal to the very best in Europe ; to demand equal recognition by deserving before desiring ; to improve our training and to get the best staff possible ; to kill the European hall mark and all these distinctions that stand in our way ; to supply our own medical men for the entire medical services, including the Army and civil ; to make the service more popular ; to have it a first class service and open to the best men in the world ; to recruit freely in India, instead of depending on other countries for our medical men ; and to be independent like other Dominion States, to let others come to us, not we to them. To shake off the control of the General Medical Council ; and to have our own General Medical Council. Such is the Nirvana that I am trying to portray ; such is the medical Swaraj that I am trying to put before you to obtain for India and which, I submit, will be obtained by accepting my Resolution."

"There is no use saying with one breath 'we want Swaraj' and in the next 'borrow our medical needs from other countries.' Can we obtain this Nirvana with the present system which is in force in India ? I say emphatically no. It is impossible with the present type of medical men who are coming to India. It merely results in inferior training at the hospitals when compared with the European Schools."

"We must, therefore, look for our future men from and in India, and now is the time to put our schools in order so that within a few years they will be able to supply our medical needs. If I had the choice, I would say that I would rather have best men from India than the mediocres from Europe. India today demands of the very best. She must have that. She cannot supply it herself today, but, I want her to supply it within a few years. She must do so. My Resolution asks and seeks for this, nothing more and nothing less."

Such was the atmosphere in which the discussion took place then. What has happened since ? Since then Sir Norman Walker and a distinguished Officer of the I. M. S., Colonel Dutton, toured India and visited our institutions. They made certain reports on certain institutions and it was brought to the notice of the General Medical Council that the standard of education at some of our Universities was not quite up to the mark as demanded by the British Medical Council. Now, Sir, I have not seen the reports that were sent to the General Medical Council, but one of the Universities—Bengal—refused to be inspected by Sir Norman Walker and what was the result ? The British General Medical Council, acting under its Parliamentary Statutory rights, declined to recognise Bengal, with the dire result that for over three years medical graduates from Bengal were refused recognition. Recently at a session of the All-India Medical Congress, which I attended, and of which Council I am an executive member, this matter was discussed and it was felt that Bengal had acted unwisely and that steps should be taken to secure recognition. This I understand was acted upon by the University and accordingly, the British Medical Council had consented to recognise all these graduates. That, Sir, was the penalty these graduates paid for the indiscretion of their University, and this is what I fear will result if this House today refuses to recognise the inherent—the Parliamentary—rights the British Medical Council possesses and which action it can repeat if it chuses to do. Does this House consisting of laymen, of politicians, desire to prejudice the future prospects of those of India's medical graduates who want to proceed to England ? Surely this is not the desire of the opposite Benches. Surely we cannot dispute the rights of the British General Medical Council to insist on its standards being maintained. The General Medical Council is anxious that India should have an All-India Medical Council ; the Government of India is also anxious to have an All-India Medical Council ; but the Provincial Governments, in the shape of their Ministers of Health, who assembled in Simla this year, unanimously rejected it. Why ? To my mind for two reasons among others. I may be wrong, but, I think one of these reasons was that they were zealous of their own transferred subject, medicine ; and stoutly resented any interference from the Government of India. The second reason was, I believe, they did not trust the Government of India and no doubt they have reasons for this mistrust. I mean no disrespect, and I have no desire to discredit the Government of India, but I think that in such matters the Government of India have to be very careful before they interfere with a transferred subject like medicine. The All-India Medical Congress and the entire profession in India want an All-India Medical Council. Yet, the Provincial Governments have turned it down. Why ? Surely, it is the duty of Honourable Members to persuade their Provincial Councils to insist on such an organisation. Now, Sir, since we are not going to have an All-India Medical Council what is the next best thing ? The General Medical Council says that till an All-India Medical Council is formed, we must appoint an experienced Commissioner or Inspector of Medical Standards and Qualifications, who will inspect our institutions and report to them on the standards maintained. My friend, Dr. Moonje, for whom I have great respect because he is a constructive politician and not an aerial one, said that because Bombay and Madras were up to the standard required by the General Medical Council, therefore such an Inspector was not necessary. But, he was remarkably silent as regards the standard of medical training that obtains today in the Punjab, Burma, Bihar, United Provinces, Central Provinces and other provinces. He was not in a position to say anything about those places. We do know that Bombay and Madras are well up to standard. But, the British General Medical Council, I understand, feels that Rangoon and Patna and some other provinces are below the standard required and so do not recognise these Universities. They are anxious to do so, but demand an adequate standard which can only be ascertained by the appointment of an Inspector as they suggest.

[Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney.]

Sir, I talk as a medical man, and I talk with some considerable feeling of sympathy with Dr. Moonje. I do not talk merely from the point of view of the blood-letting operation which Mr. Jayakar was prepared to indulge in as proof of his injured national feelings. I would be the last man to allow India to be insulted and to be denied an equal place with the rest of the British Empire. But, I am bound to admit that the medical training in some of the provinces of India is not as it should be and is not up to the standard required by the British General Medical Council. Some of the Honourable Members see no reason why Indians should go to England for further degrees and think that our own degrees are good enough. I should have every sympathy with such views if our training were better, and it was to obtain this that I moved my medical Swaraj Resolution in 1922. But, it is our own medical men who want to go to England and it is they who help to develop that pseudo-superiority complex which may attach to an European medical degree, who themselves place a high premium on these degrees and a discount on Indian-obtained degrees, and so, place our Universities under the authority and demands of the British General Medical Council. It is our own Indian doctors and the public who look up to the England-trained man and look down on the man trained in their own country, and this is a reason why we to-day find ourselves under the supervision of the British General Medical Council and whose standard we are bound to comply with.

Now what is the remedy? The General Medical Council has the power and right to say, "I will not recognise nor will I permit students or graduates from India to take their degrees in England till I am satisfied that their training is up to the standards I demand." To take a parallel case, say, I invite my friend Mr. Jayakar to dinner, and in my invitation I demand that he should wear "shorts". Well, if he disregards my demand and comes dressed in long trousers, I have every right to refuse him admission to my house. Similarly, you want the General Medical Council to recognise your training and degrees, but when they exercise their right and say, "Well, if you want that, you must furnish us with evidence that your training is up to our standard and till you do this, be it by an All-Indian Medical Union or Inspectors, I regret I cannot recognise your University". This is exactly the position to-day, and you object to this demand of the British Medical Council. If our training were adequate, I should gladly join you, but, the difference between you and me is that you talk as laymen and legislators defending a political matter as you call it, whereas I, as a medical man, look at it from the medical students' point of view. You may puff up and satisfy your political dignity and refuse the demand of the British General Medical Council, and call it an insult to your national pride; but, of what help is this to the student or the graduate who desires to go to England? These are the sufferers—200 to 300 annually. Do you want them to suffer as they did for three years in Bengal, the result of the Calcutta University refusing to recognise these very demands of the British General Medical Council. Of course, you yourselves as legislators will not suffer. But the students will, and it is therefore in the name, interests and future of the students, I ask you carefully to consider this question before rejecting the supplementary grant wanted by Government—not as indignant politicians and legislators, but as sensible laymen.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : May I know whether the aggrieved party has not the remedy under the Act of going to the Privy Council and whether the Government of India have exhausted those remedies?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : The Medical Act of 1886 has two parts; one refers to medical institutions in England and the other to institutions abroad—as India. It is not the duty of the Government of India but of the Provincial Government or the aggrieved University to appeal to the Privy Council for redress, but it must not be forgotten that till such time as the appeal has been settled, the British General Medical Council can continue to refuse to recognise students and graduates from that University, thereby penalising a number of students. But let us come down to practical politics. What chance of success would Patna or Rangoon have if they appealed to the Privy Council? Dr. Moonje was rather silent on this point. I say the General Medical Council would not recognise any students or graduates.....

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Is that a reasonable position for the British Council to take?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I agree with the Honourable Member that it is not, and I join with him in resenting the revolver that is pointed at our heads. I agree it is not desirable nor is it fair that students trained in Madras or Bombay, where the standard is adequate, should have a pistol held at their heads and be refused recognition by the British General Medical Council simply because the training at Patna is inadequate and it refuses to be inspected by the British General Medical Council. Of course, the British General Medical Council can refuse one province and admit another, but such discriminatory legislation is undesirable, and so it makes this demand of inspection on all provinces alike, and we must accept or reject it. Though a retired officer of the I. M. S., I am not one who thinks that I. M. S. men should have everything, for we have just as good men outside the Service—men of international repute, and I therefore appeal to Honourable Members opposite to realise that there is no desire to make this appointment an I. M. S. monopoly, nor is this a threat. The General Medical Council says, "Your students and graduates come to England for their degree, but before we confer those degrees, we want to make sure that they have undergone certain standards of training in India". If our Universities do not and cannot satisfy that standard, we are at fault, and we cannot object to the demand of the British General Medical Council and charge it of threatening India at muzzle end of a revolver and we have no cause for complaint, nor are we right in confusing this simple plain issue with high politics as a grave constitutional issue. Nor is there any racial discrimination involved in the issue before the House, nor any I. M. S. monopoly. I cannot understand the mentality of some Members who, whenever they disagree with Government, promptly cloak the issue with the garb of a "grave constitutional matter". The issue before the House is a simple one. If we want to secure English degrees we must conform to the standard demanded by the British General Medical Council. If we refuse this, then the British General Medical Council is right when it declines to accept our graduates and there the matter ends.

Then, Sir, a few words about my friend Dr. Moonje's alternative proposal. I look on it as a camouflaged All-India Medical Union. I think, Sir, no time should be lost in coming to a decision because those students who will pass out next year must be protected and we, as representatives of the country in this House.....

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Why not let the present arrangements continue ?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Why not protect those students who will pass out next year and till an All-India Medical Union is a fait accompli. It is in the name of those students that I appeal to all sides of the House to accept this supplementary demand for an Inspector of Qualifications and Standards and which is a purely temporary appointment. In making this appeal, I desire to make it clear that if I felt the profession in India was being insulted by the demand of the British General Medical Council, I would join you whole-heartedly in opposing it, for I am as zealous of India's pride as you are, but as a medical man I can see no such motive in the demand, nor is this a political issue. To my mind it is an issue of dire necessity. You must either take or leave it on the terms of the British General Medical Council.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Is the appointment of an I. M. S. a dire necessity ?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : The I. M. S. is as little a dire necessity in India as is the barrister qualified in England. What I want to impress upon the House is this.

If we are to sanction the appointment of this Inspector some one must be found with the requisite medical and administrative experience, and I really doubt if my friend Mr. Jayakar will be able to suggest any one else who has had as much experience, both administrative and professional, as Colonel Needham, I. M. S. Moreover, he is very familiar with this subject, having devoted many years to a close study of it.

Now, Sir, the alternative suggested by Dr. Moonje is that we should have a Board or Committee representing the various Medical Faculties in the various provinces. As I have already said, this is nothing but a camouflaged All-India Medical Union already turned down. I am, of course, in entire agreement with my friend Dr. Moonje that we must have an All-India Medical Council, and if the provinces refuse this, the Government of India Act empowers the Central Government to create such a Council. But until that is constituted, something must be done to protect our students who will be passing out next March, as also those graduates who desire to proceed to England for study.

I desire to exercise my vote, and before I do so, I desire certain assurances, and in this connection I would ask the Government Member to please listen to me for a minute. I want two assurances from Government. One is that the proposed appointment of Commissioner of Medical Qualifications and Standards in India will be purely a temporary measure, and for one year only, and the other is that Government will assure this House that within a year an All-India Medical Council will be constituted.

Then, Sir, there was another suggestion made by my friend Mr. Neogy from Bengal. He asked that the matter should be postponed till February next, and Mr. Jayakar supported this suggestion. The suggestion is undoubtedly worthy of sympathetic consideration and I should advise the Government Member to do so. But, what will happen to our students and graduates in case the British General Medical Council refuses to extend the period beyond next February or March ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : How many of them go to England ?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I should say at least three to four hundred.

Sir Frank Noyce : I have ascertained from the High Commissioner that there are 450 Indian students studying medicine.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : How many of them are actually medical graduates of Indian Universities ? We are concerned with them and not with all the Indian students studying medicine in England, because several go to England after passing the Intermediate Examination for Medicine.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : The majority who go to England have already graduated or qualified in this country. Now, Mr. Neogy's proposal is certainly both reasonable and attractive to me. Is it difficult, I ask the Government Member, for him to communicate with the General Medical Council in England and say : " This House stoutly resents the ultimatum it has presented to the medical profession and the Universities in this country ; (I do not admit it is a question of high policy or of grave constitutional importance) ; that the Government of India is anxious to form an All-India Medical Council and that this House also desires it, but, that in view of the strong protests expressed in this House on this important matter, the British General Medical Council should postpone its demand for the appointment of a Commissioner for another year or six months or until such time as an All-India Medical Council is constituted ? " If Government is willing to do this, I whole-heartedly join Mr. Neogy in his request and would urge that it be done rather than refuse this supplementary demand. Sir, this is a matter of practical importance, and I ask every Member of this House to forget politics for the moment. This question has nothing to do with politics. It is a matter of dire necessity, and I urge on all to look solely to the future prospects of the students who will graduate from our colleges before an All-India Medical Council is constituted. What will become of them if we arrive at a hasty conclusion ? I, therefore, appeal to all sides of this House to consider seriously the interests of the students, and in their name I hope the House will pursue a reasonable course, i.e., ask for a postponement of the demand of the British General Medical Council for a year, and failing such an assurance from the Government, to pass this supplementary grant for the appointment of a Commissioner, provided the two assurances I demand from Government are granted.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Five Minutes to Three of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Five Minutes to Three of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

Mr. Amār Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I am grateful to you, Sir, for kindly calling on me to place my views on the subject that is under discussion before the House. Dr. Moonje's grievance is against the proposed creation of a new post of Commissioner of Medical Qualifications and Standards, and he has therefore moved this token cut of Rs. 100 to show our disapproval of such a proposal.

[Mr. Amar Nath Dutt.]

Sir, the education of medical men here has been said to be not inferior in any way to that on the Continent or anywhere else. I may go further and say that medical education in India is superior to medical education of other countries generally. There may be one or two exceptions of medical men who, having qualified themselves in Great Britain or on the Continent, are superior, but it must be remembered that ordinarily graduates passing out of the medical colleges in India are more efficient and skilful than those who come out from the United Kingdom, and consequently people have less faith in the latter than in those who have taken their diplomas in India. That is the case in the town of Calcutta, and as regards the mofussil, I may tell this House that people have ordinarily got more faith in those medical men who have been educated in the Medical College of Calcutta than in those who were educated in London or Edinburgh. Of course, there are some degrees of the United Kingdom which are prized. But that is in order to enter the Indian Medical Service. The first batch of students who went out for the Indian Medical Service when that service was first open to the Indians were all brilliant men, and there was not one in India or elsewhere who could rival them in their knowledge of the science of medicine or surgery. That was not due to their education abroad; it was due to their education here. Though it will not be proper to mention names here, still one can recall to memory the names of students who were ornaments of the Indian Medical Service. The names of Surja Kumar Chuckerbutty and Major Bholanath Bose, are household words in Bengal, and they were educated in the Calcutta Medical College. In this connection the name of another brilliant medical graduate occurs to me, and that is Lieut.-Colonel R. L. Dutt. I can tell Honourable Members on the opposite Benches, who still are not convinced by the cogent reasons advanced by my Honourable friend, Dr.

3 P.M.

Moonje, the reason why Colonel R. L. Dutt went to England. In former days there were no Sub-Assistant Surgeons of the present type; those who graduated from the Calcutta Medical College used to be made Assistant Surgeons and Sub-Assistant Surgeons. From the result of the Medical College examination Assistant Surgeons and Sub-Assistant Surgeons were recruited. Ultimately that distinction vanished, and the Sub-Assistant Surgeons' appointments came to be given to the students of medical schools as now-a-days. In the early sixties, there was that grade of Sub-Assistant Surgeons which was only open to Indians passing out of the Medical College, and Colonel R. L. Dutt, after taking his degree from the Medical College, was offered the post of Sub-Assistant Surgeon and not an Assistant Surgeon. He said he was not going to submit to that, and therefore he went to England and came out, and what a brilliant practice he had in regard to malarial and other diseases! Every one in Bengal knows that, and I do not think there is any name on the rolls of the Indian Medical Service that can compare with Colonel R. L. Dutt. Assuming for argument's sake that education here is not up to the mark which is necessary for the preservation of life in India, I fail to understand why this system has been kept up for such a length of time. Since a Hindu first took up the knife and dissected the body of a dead man in violation of the prescribed rules of his caste with the booming of canons from Fort William in the year 1835, nearly a century has elapsed, and if the Government have not done anything to improve medical education in India during all this time it is their fault. It must not be forgotten that India had a science of medicine which was far superior to that of any other country in the world and a succession of foreign rulers and foreign occupation of this land has killed that science to a great extent. Slowly the foreigners replaced the Ayurvedic system of medicine during the past century and brought in their own system. If we have been able to hold our own still, it is a great achievement for Indians, and no other nation could have achieved that. Sir, if after a lapse of one hundred years, they say that the medical education in India is not up to the British standard, Government stand self-condemned. Either it is the studied policy of Government not to impart to us all the knowledge that is available according to modern advancement in science, or they are bringing in teachers here who are not qualified to teach the subjects. In either case the Government are to blame. Sir, from whatever standpoint you look at this subject, you cannot but condemn the Government. I am very sorry to do it no doubt, but when necessary we must give expression to our feelings. You have replaced our indigenous system and brought in your own system.

Mr. President: On this motion, it is not relevant.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: Well, Sir, they want to create a new post of medical Commissioner.

Mr. President: That is the important point.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: When did they discover that such a post was necessary? Was it when they found that some one had to be provided with a post? In this connection, without being irrelevant, you will permit me to tell you a story. There was a favourite wife of a Nawab who insisted on her brother being provided with some appointment. The Nawab could not find any and he asked his ministers to find out some employment for his brother-in-law.

Mr. T. A. K. Shervani (Cities of the United Provinces: Muhammadan Urban): Why a Nawab?

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: Say a king or a raja. Then the King said to his ministers, "You must find out some employment for my favourite wife's brother". Then he gave the job of counting the waves of the ocean. That was a very comfortable appointment. I do not know whether the Department has in its mind to provide for some near or dear relation of theirs, or anybody who may be in the good books of Government. We as taxpayers of this country have a duty towards our constituents. We cannot take this lying down. You want to provide for some favourite of yours and you ask us to accept the proposal. Why should we, unless you convince us of the necessity of such an appointment? We have told you that it is wholly unnecessary. It will be graceful on the part of Government if they do not thrust this appointment on us. In the Standing Finance Committee we put forward many cogent arguments. Has any one of these arguments been met by the Government? No. They are unanswerable arguments, and they stand on the solid basis of reason and logic. Sir, the Government want to appoint a Commissioner of Medical Standards and Qualifications. What medical standard? I suppose they mean the European system of medicine. I see the Honourable Member in charge of the Department is there. May I know what standard is meant? Probably he knows as much of medicine as I do.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain: A little less!

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Be that as it may, why should he ask for a post like this. I know that the Honourable Member who holds this portfolio is an Indian, and I sympathise with his position. We are asked to find jobs for members of the ruling race who will come and sit on judgment over our Universities. Without being irrelevant, I may tell you that, when Dr. Sadler came on the University Commission, he found in India a master mind which compelled him to observe, when he found that gentleman, that there was no necessity for bringing him out. His name is well known throughout the length and breadth of this country.

No self-respecting Indian, who has got any respect for his alma mater will submit to such scrutinisation of the qualifications of those who graduated from the medical colleges in India. They are as self-respecting as members of the professions of law and engineering. If Government do not realise what we say to them in unmistakable terms, then I can only pity them. We have seen a change to some extent in the attitude of the Honourable Members on the Treasury Benches in the past few days, and I hope they will also consider this in a sympathetic spirit. I hope that that change will grow daily, so that we may be able to meet and discuss together. I ask you not to treat us in the way in which you have been treating us. I appeal to the Honourable the Home Member, because he is the Leader of the House and is the guiding voice. I hope the change of spirit which he has shown will be shared by other Honourable Members holding portfolios, and that they will not inflict this insult upon educated Indians who have taken to the profession of medicine. Of course everything is evident on the face of the objection, which has been made by my Honourable friend Dr. Moonje, to the creation of a new post of Commissioner of Medical Standards and Qualifications. No doubt Dr. Moonje will feel it very keenly, because it means an insult to his profession, as in other professions too people feel this and to remedy which they are obliged or compelled to bring in Bills for introduction. Sir, I hope the time has come when the Government will see the reasonableness of giving us Indians the respect (An Honourable Member: "You expect too much.") to which we are entitled, as they also expect the respect which we ought to show to them, and which we have been showing. I congratulate Government on their change of heart, and I hope that will grow more and more.

Diwan Chaman Lall (West Punjab : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, first of all let me state that I am not a medical man. I nearly became one, and now when I see my friend, Colonel Gidney, I am almost constrained to exclaim, "But for the grace of God, there goes Chaman Lall." (Laughter.) This question that is now before the House is a question which affects chiefly not a layman like myself but the medical profession in this country. But it does affect the layman to a certain extent, as we consider that the dignity of the people of this country is involved in the proposition that has been placed before us by the Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain. What is the proposition? First of all, I would like to ask the Honourable Member—to whom I extend my congratulations for the most excellent and lucid speech which he delivered on this subject (An Honourable Member : "Question?")—I repeat again, for the most excellent and lucid speech (An Honourable Member : "Question?") which he delivered—the first thing I would like to ask him is this. What is the position of the Government of India in regard to this matter? Is it or is it not a fact that the Government of India themselves are against the principle which is involved in the appointment of this supervisor or dictator or director as the case may be to look into medical qualifications and standards in this country? If it is not a fact that they are themselves against any such appointment, and if I am challenged by any Member on the opposite side who denies this fact, all that I have to say is to remind Honourable Members opposite of the fact that they were willing to bring in a Bill for the constitution of an All-India Medical Council. I take it that that is a fact.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : It is better to answer that point in a speech, rather than by way of interruption.

Diwan Chaman Lall : If that is the position, then why did they resile from that position? The answer that the Honourable Member gave was that they called a conference of Ministers together and that this Conference decided that they would not look at the proposition for the setting up of an All-India Medical Council; and because they would not look at that proposition, therefore they suggested that, until they could themselves provide some sort of machinery, this appointment must be sanctioned. Now I want to ask Honourable Members opposite as to whether there is any urgency for this appointment. If that is the position taken up by the Ministers, why cannot the present state of affairs continue without an appointment of this nature being made? Is there any urgency? The Honourable Member himself, in his speech, stated that this matter would eventually, indeed very soon, be brought before the Legislative Assembly, and that Ministers of various provinces, whose department it is to consider this matter, will again revise their opinion and put forward certain suggestions.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : They may.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Now if that is the position, that they are really thinking of revising their opinions, and if it is the case that this matter has got to come before the House—it must be so because the Honourable Member himself stated that this is a temporary measure—well, if it is a temporary measure, then some other measure has to come in its place, sooner or later. This measure is only for one year, therefore after a year, something has got to be done. As to what that is, the Honourable Member will tell us, but if this is the position, where is the urgency for it? Is it or is it not a fact that the Medical Council in Great Britain have decided that, until January or February 1930, they are not going to take any action in regard to medical standards and qualifications in this country? Is that a fact? Then I take it that, until the month of February, 1930, they are not going to take any action. Now if they are not going to take action until February, 1930, I ask the Honourable Member, what urgency is there? Why cannot he wait until the next Session of the Legislative Assembly in Delhi? Why, at the far end of this Session, bring in a proposition which has elicited a great deal of opposition from these Benches? And if there is no urgency, it is possible that the Honourable Member might plead that there is no certainty as to what the Legislative Assembly may do. Well, let us grant that there is no certainty, but that proposition will arise only after February, 1930. I go further than that. I say that the Medical Council in Great Britain cannot take the action which is contemplated by the Honourable Member; and I want to remind the Honourable Member of the provisions of the Medical Act of 1886. Section 13 (2) says :

"If at any time it appears to the General Council that the standard of proficiency in medicine, surgery and midwifery or in any of those subjects or any branch thereof required from candidates at the qualifying examinations held by any of the bodies for the time being holding such examination is insufficient, the General Medical Council shall make a representation to that effect to the Privy Council, and the Privy Council, if they think fit, after considering such representation and also any objections thereto made by any body or bodies to which such representations relate, may by order declare that the examinations of any such body or bodies shall not be deemed to be qualifying examinations for the purpose of registration under the Medical Acts and Her Majesty, with the advice of Her Privy Council, if upon further representation from the General Council or from any body or bodies to which such order relates it seems to Her expedient so to do, shall have power at any time to revoke any such order."

Sir Frank Noyce : That, Sir, does not apply to India.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Does section 4 of the Act apply to India? Of course it does. I am only giving you exactly what the provisions are in regard to the action to be taken by the Medical Council in Great Britain and elsewhere in the Colonies, as well as in India. Now this is what they have to do as far as Great Britain is concerned.

Section 4 (1) says :

"Where the General Council have refused to recognize as aforesaid any colonial or foreign medical diploma, the Privy Council, on application being made to them, may, if they think fit after considering such application and after communication with the General Council, order the General Council to recognise the said diploma, and such order shall be duly obeyed."

Now if that is the position, that the matter has got to come before the Privy Council,—suppose the Medical Council take the action that is contemplated by Honourable Members opposite and representations are made from India, from medical authorities and medical councils in India, to the effect that the action that is being taken by the Medical Council in Great Britain is detrimental to the interests of the medical profession in this country? Is it not a fact that those representations will be duly considered by the Privy Council? And is it not a fact that the Privy Council has the right summarily to order the General Medical Council in Great Britain, preventing them from taking the action that is being contemplated by Honourable Members on the other side of the House?

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : That will still need a supplementary demand for engaging counsel there.

Diwan Chaman Lall : The Honourable Member need not be afraid of the passing of such a supplementary grant, and I can assure him from this side of the House that, when the matter comes to that stage—it is not likely to come to that stage—there will not be a single Member in this House who will oppose such a supplementary grant. (Hear, hear.) This matter concerns a constitutional right, and the dignity of the medical profession, and the Honourable Member may rest assured that, where the right and the dignity of the medical profession in this country are involved, there will be nobody on this side of the House who will oppose any amount of necessary expenditure in order to vindicate that right and dignity. (Hear, hear.) (There was an interruption.) I did not hear what the Honourable Member said.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : I said this is what is called the litigious spirit.

Diwan Chaman Lall : The Honourable Member has had several years' experience of the litigious spirit, and I submit that the spirit with which this proposition is being mooted on the floor of this House shows a spirit very much akin to the litigious spirit. It shows this—and I am coming to the second point now—that the Honourable Member has not really gone to the merits of this question properly. For, Sir, I urge, first of all, that I have established that there is no urgency in regard to this matter, and that the other side have not shown that there is any such urgency. It is not established that any qualifications that are still being held, or any qualifications that are going to be held until the 30th February, are ever likely to be affected if this measure is not passed by this House. But it might be urged quite conceivably, as it was urged by the Honourable Member in a side issue, which personally, I submit had absolutely nothing whatever to do with the merits of the case—I see that the Honourable Member is not paying attention to what I am saying.....

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : I am listening to every word you are saying.

Diwan Chaman Lall : The Honourable Member in a side issue, raised a constitutional point. He said that, under the Reforms scheme, there are these transferred departments, and they feel that this House is interfering with the dignity, the liberty and the freedom of the transferred departments, or some words to that effect. Now, I want to ask the Honourable Member whether it is not a fact that, by the appointment of a Director of this nature, there would still be that interference in the liberty and freedom of the transferred subjects? Colonel Gidney says "No".

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I did not say "No" to you.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I thought my friend Colonel Gidney had a great deal more courage than that. (Laughter.) (Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : "Courage for what?") Now, Sir, if it is a fact that the liberty and hard-won freedom of the transferred departments under the Montagu-Chelmsford scheme would still be interfered with if a Director were appointed, then I want to ask the Honourable Member what strength does his argument possess, namely, the constitutional argument that he has raised?

In fact, the proposition that the medical profession has raised, and which proposition this side of the House would be prepared to support, is that an All-India Medical Council should be instituted. We are prepared to support a proposition like that. That would not interfere with the liberty, the freedom and the constitution of the transferred departments. That proposition would be, not the one that the Government of India have raised, namely, that the transferred departments in the provinces should not be adequately and properly represented on the All-India Medical Council, nor that they should not control it, but the proposition from our side of the House would be that each province would be given adequate representation on the All-India Medical Council in order that the money they spend and the work they do should be supervised or controlled by each province. Now, that is the proposition that we would be prepared to listen to. But what is the proposition of the Government? This Director who will be in charge of this business, shall not be responsible to us nor even to the provinces, but he shall be responsible to a body sitting 6,000 miles away. And as to the self-respecting Ministers in the provinces, may I ask, Sir, what do they mean by submitting themselves and their dignity and their self-respect to the dictates of a man who is responsible to a body 6,000 miles away, and why are they not prepared to listen to a proposition of a different nature whereby they themselves would be controlling the destiny of an organisation set up by themselves? (Hear, hear.)

Now, Sir, I consider that the constitutional argument raised by the Honourable Member has no force whatsoever, nor has the argument that there was any urgency in regard to this matter. Let me for a minute look at the constitutional position. The Medical Act, as I have said already, was passed in 1886, and from the constitutional position it is perfectly clear that there can be no difficulty whatsoever in continuing without a representative of the Medical Council in charge of the destiny of the medical profession in this country. The history of this question is a very simple one. Every medical man knows the history of this question. The practice in England was that every important branch of the medical profession was responsible for the handing in of a report to the Medical Council. The experts attached to each important institution, in their various branches, were responsible for sending in their reports. What was the system here? The system here was this, that recognition was given by the Medical Council of Great Britain and Ireland, first in 1892, and for a period of 30 years—from 1892 to 1922—that recognition continued. Were there any Visitors and Inspectors appointed in those days? There was not a single Visitor nor a single Inspector on behalf of the Medical Council in those days to look into the working of the medical institutions in this country. And yet the recognition was granted by the Medical Council. Why has the Medical Council suddenly realised the necessity of appointing Visitors and Inspectors? What was the real reason behind it? The real reason, which my friend Mr. Jayakar in a very excellent speech wanted to mention, but said he would not mention, is this, that until the Reforms scheme it was considered by the Medical Council in Great Britain that the control was vested in the European I. M. S. staff in this country, and therefore they were safe in ignoring the necessity of having Visitors or Inspectors in this country. Has the medical profession, or have the medical institutions in this country deteriorated to this extent since 1920, that suddenly the Medical Council has realised the necessity of appointing Inspectors and Visitors? If it is admitted that the reason was purely racial, or that the reason was merely this, that the control had passed from the hands of the European I. M. S. into the hands of the popularly elected Ministers.....

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : The reason was the transfer of control from Parliament to the local Legislatures.

Diwan Chaman Lall : How that improves matters, I do not know. In fact, it ought to improve matters the other way. If the control has passed from Parliament to local Legislatures, which are on the spot and capable of looking after their own institutions, so much the better. Why should there be a necessity for the appointment of a Visitor or an Inspector? If you grant this proposition that the local institutions, that the Local Governments, are better able to look after their own institutions than an organisation 6,000 miles away, then what is the necessity of the Visitor and the Inspector? You can only prove the necessity of the Visitor and the Inspector if you can show that there has been any deterioration in the standards. If there has been any deterioration, what is the basis of it? What is the Inspector for and what is the Visitor for? Sir, I submit most humbly that the business of the gentleman who is going to be appointed will be to look into the standards of qualifications, that is to say, the efficiency, or the lack of efficiency, of the medical institutions here. That will be his business. If that is his business, then, unless you can prove that there is today more lack of efficiency than there was before, or that the standards have deteriorated, you cannot justify the appointment of a Visitor or an Inspector. But if you cannot prove any deterioration in the standards, then what is the idea of appointing an Inspector, whose sole object will be to look into the standards of efficiency or the standards of qualifications of the medical institutions in this country? My Honourable friend objected to this. He said that it was due to the passing of the control from Parliament right down to the local Legislatures. May I remind him of the report that was submitted by Sir Norman Walker in 1927, on the 11th July I believe, in which he admitted that the real reason was the passing of the control from the European I. M. S.? (Hear, hear.) May I read it to the Honourable Member?

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : It is hardly necessary.

Diwan Chaman Lall : The Honourable Member knows it perfectly well, that the report of Sir Norman Walker actually said so. Now Sir Norman Walker was specially deputed to make the report on this very point. Does he or does he not substantiate the charge that I am making? He does substantiate the charge that the necessity arose not merely because of the transfer of the control from Parliament to local bodies.

Now, Sir, I should like to know what this gentleman is going to do. Until this proposition was mooted that this gentleman would be appointed for a short period, for a temporary period, we had the arrangement that three men were in charge of this, one in charge of midwifery, one in charge of surgery and one in charge of medicine, and the reports themselves show that the work was so difficult, so important according to them, that they actually took two years in inspecting the institutions of this country. If three men took two years to inspect the institutions of this country, and were able to report only after two years' inspection as to the standard of efficiency and qualification of the medical institutions, in the name of all that is sensible and all that is decent, I would like to know whether one man is going to do the work of three men and do that in the period of a few months and submit a report that would be worth reading? (Hear, hear.) If this man is going to be appointed for a period of a few months in order to do the work that was being done by three men, who took two years to do that work, if this man is going to be appointed for such a short period, what sort of report can he furnish? Will that report be worth the paper that it is written upon, and if it is not worth the paper on which it is written, I want to ask the Honourable Member opposite what necessity is there for appointing him? He will not be able to visit any one of these institutions and submit a proper report upon the working of the various institutions in this country. It is impossible for any one man to do that throughout the length and breadth of the country within the period of a few months that he will be in charge of this job. If that is the proposition, then again, I ask the Honourable Member opposite, what is the necessity? Is the necessity simply to do what the British General Medical Council says, or is the necessity simply to find a job for one gentleman,.....

Mr. Jannadag M. Mehta : Who is migrating from one department to another.

Diwan Chaman Lall : . . . . . for one gentleman, who, according to my Honourable friend, is migrating from one department to another ?

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : Who is that man ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : Well, Sir, we have had the name of Colonel Needham mentioned on the floor of this House a hundred times. It is not the first time that we are hearing his name. We have heard his name from 1924 and onwards. I would like to know, firstly, if there is no urgency, secondly, if the necessity is not shown, and thirdly if it is conceded that he will not be able to do the work, then what remains of the arguments advanced by my Honourable friend ? The constitutional argument has gone by the board, the necessity is not proved, urgency is not proved, expediency is not proved, then what remains ? Why can't my Honourable friend then wait until the next Session of the Legislative Assembly and bring this proposition up then ? Let us take this proposition. The Honourable Member, Sir Fazl-i-Hussain, actually let the cat out of the bag when he was speaking on this subject. He said, "We have no guarantee that this man will be available next year." If he will not be available next year, are there no men who can be made available next year ? Can you not fill his place with equally capable men ?

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : I never said this man or that man.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Some man.

Diwan Chaman Lall : All right, some man, if he likes. But if the Honourable Member will read the report of his speech, he will find what he actually said. He will find that he said, "There is no guarantee that this man will be available," or "a man will be available."

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : It is a case of now or never.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Do I take it that the medical profession is so bankrupt of first class men in this country that you cannot find a single man of the required efficiency and calibre to look after what is, after all, a post of inspection ? I would not be so uncharitable as to suggest that the I. M. S. profession is bereft of a single capable man who can fill this post.

* Maulvi Muhammad Yakub (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Probably the House will agree to make a present of the Honourable Colonel Gidney in order to fill the post.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I do consider that it is a very honourable profession. I consider that this profession has done a great deal of good to this country. I consider that some of the best medical men to be found in this country belong to this service, the I. M. S. I will not be uncharitable to this service.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Thank you.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I merely ask my Honourable friend in his turn not to be uncharitable to this country when he postulates a proposition of this nature, that this man and nobody else, that now and now only and not at any other time, can fill in this office. He is asking us to swallow something that we cannot accept from him.

Now, Sir, I ask my Honourable friends opposite, when they realise the volume of opposition on this side of the House, when they realise that it is a matter of grave principle involved, when they see that the entire Indian medical profession in this country is up in arms against a proposition of such a nature, which is being mooted on the floor of the House, when they realise also that there is no argument of any kind which has been expressed which is capable of carrying any weight with us, and considering that there is neither urgency, nor expediency nor any constitutional issue involved in the rejection of this proposition, when they look upon this matter in this light, then I submit it is for them to take the step and say to us, "Well, we realise that there is a strong feeling on your side of the House ; we realise that there is strong reason on your side of the House, and we are quite prepared to wait for a few months and place the matter before the Legislative Assembly when it meets in Delhi next winter".

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber : Indian Commerce) : Sir, if I rise to speak on this motion it is more with a view to ask for, and, gather some further information before I make up my mind, than to give the House any useful information myself on the subject matter before the House. I have followed with very close attention the two speeches in support of this motion, and especially the one delivered by the Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain. If I have understood him correctly, he particularly emphasised the fact that this arrangement of one all-India Commissioner on behalf of the British General Medical Council is only a temporary device. He has emphasised it so much, that I would venture to ask the Honourable Member why, when this question was put before the Standing Finance Committee for the first time, the following sentence occurred. I am reading from page 69 :

"It was accordingly proposed to ask the Legislative Assembly for a supplementary grant of Rs. 2,400 for the current year and to include a provision of Rs. 39,000 in the budget estimates of 1930-31."

It is not a question of bridging over the gap of the next six months. It appears to me that the temporary period indicated by the Honourable Member in charge is at least going to be eighteen months from today. If that is so, it ceases to be as temporary a post as was given to understand at least to me, before I read this latter portion of the Standing Finance Committee proceedings. I venture to ask the Honourable Member—and before I ask him that, I wish to assure him that as far as I am concerned, I give him the fullest bona fides for being as keen on India's prestige and self-respect being preserved in this question as any one in this House,—whether it is not a fact that the Government of India are not satisfied with the control which the British General Medical Council exercises at present, and are not satisfied with the orders which they give regarding what are to be the qualifications of and handicaps on medical students in India. The present arrangement of three Inspectors for all the Universities and medical colleges, it is agreed, is not adequate. I take it that my understanding is correct, and the Government of India themselves feel that that is not a satisfactory arrangement. It is now suggested by the Government of India that, as a temporary measure, we should agree to one man to control the whole arrangement, until when ? Until, as I have read out, at least the next eighteen months. May I ask, for my own information, whether the

[Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas.]

Honourable Member expects that the various Provincial Governments, Ministers, and educational bodies, are likely to be unanimous on any scheme before that period has expired? I have heard a good deal about the provincial efficiency, as one Member put it, of Bombay and Madras in regard to medical education. I have also heard something about the comparative backwardness, as somebody said, of Patna and Rangoon regarding medical education. What guarantee is there that all these various bodies and medical experts, etc., in these various Presidencies will agree upon one scheme, by which the Government of India can substitute or replace this one-man control which we are now asked to sanction as a temporary measure? And if these various Provincial Governments and provincial Universities should differ, am I incorrect in inferring that this one-man control may continue for ever? That, Sir, is the reason for the attitude of the opposition, of my Honourable friends to my right, so far as I have been able to understand it. It is not necessary to go into, or to over-emphasise, what is called the racial jealousy in this question. I am one of those who feel that the I. M. S. has had control of the Indian medical education long enough, and I would like non-I. M. S. personnel to be utilised now. But let that not be the main question in this debate. The main question is that Government now ask this House to replace the three Inspectors by a one-man control. They tell us that it is temporary; and Government at the moment ask us to sanction it for a period of six months. But the intention of the Department in the Finance Committee was not six months, but a year and a half at least.

The Honourable Member has told us that there are differences of opinion between the various provincial Ministers; whether the Ministers have or have not consulted their local Councils is a matter which we may leave to them to decide. Prominent Universities, well-conducted Universities, have expressed views strongly against this motion. Government want this House to sanction this temporarily: I am quite prepared to give the fullest weight to their suggestion, but I want to understand whether the Government of India have reason to expect that the various provincial interests will agree upon a common scheme; and if not, do the Government of India propose to force them to come to a common agreement? That may not be feasible, because I heard the Honourable Member speaking quite a great deal about the independence which must be left to Provincial Governments. And should that happen, I venture to ask the Honourable Member, in all earnestness, whether he would not be exposing the whole medical education of this country to the continued control, for a long period, of one man. I therefore feel that, unless and until I know what reply the Government of India have to give to this apprehension of mine, it would be my duty strongly to oppose the motion.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Sir, I am very sorry to find the Honourable the Finance Member associated with this proposal. The Honourable Member himself has said that he realises the seriousness of the step he has taken. He said that it is an unusual step that he has taken. May I tell him that he is asking this House to break a very valuable convention that has been established? May I tell him that, although decisions of this Assembly in financial matters have been over-ruled in the past by virtue of the special provisions of the Government of India Act, this is the first time that the Honourable Member has asked this House to over-rule the decision of the Standing Finance Committee?

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : This is the second time.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Is this the second time?

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : In the matter of the appointment of the fifth Member of the Railway Board the decision of the Finance Committee was over-ruled.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I am talking of the Standing Finance Committee for the General Revenues, and I am talking of the convention that has been in operation all these nine years. Sir, even if I were not convinced about the merits of the case against this proposal, I would have voted against it simply because of this particular aspect of the question.

Sir, Colonel Gidney questioned the authority of a barrister from Bombay to deal with this question. Now, Sir, may I tell him that lawyers are sometimes drawn into these controversies even by doctors themselves, and against their own wishes?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : And vice-versa.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : The Honourable and gallant gentleman gave us several of his credentials, and one of those was that he was a member of the Executive Committee of the All-India Medical Conference. I may tell him that on one recent occasion this Executive Committee of the All-India Medical Conference sent me, among others, an invitation to attend its meeting.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : At my request.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I am very thankful to the Honourable Member, but that shows that the Honourable gentleman himself recognises the value of the advice which lawyers can sometimes give. However, Sir, the Honourable Member, although he induced his friends to give me the invitation, was himself absent from this meeting; and I may tell the House that it was at this very meeting that this particular question was discussed. I may also tell the House that the decision taken at that meeting by the Executive Committee of the All-India Medical Conference was against this particular proposal. I have the advantage of speaking in the presence of one other Honourable Member who was present there. I mean Mr. S. C. Mitra. He also attended that particular meeting on invitation. That was a meeting attended by some very distinguished medical men in Calcutta and it was presided over by no less a man than Sir Nilratan Sarcar.

Sir, the question that has been raised very prominently by the Honourable and gallant Colonel is this: why, when we are discussing this particular problem, should we not bear in mind the interest of the students? He has also told this House that, for a number of years the recognition of the Calcutta University, so far as the British Medical Council was concerned, was withdrawn. May I know from him as to what results followed the withdrawal of that recognition? I am a resident of Calcutta as much as he is. I did not see the doors of the University shut down during these years: I did not see the medical students turned out by the Universities and roaming about the street simply because they could not claim recognition at the hands of the British Medical Council of Registration. As a matter of fact, I may tell my Honourable friend that, at that very meeting of the Executive Committee of the All-India Medical Conference, the view that prevailed was that it does not matter whether this recognition is there or not. There are very few people indeed who are affected by the withdrawal of the recognition. The Honourable Secretary of the Education Department gave us a figure of the total number of students that are at the present moment taking their medical education in Great Britain. That is absolutely beside the point. The number that we want to know is of the medical graduates of Indian Universities who go to England for post-graduate studies and who are the people who are really going to be affected; we are not concerned with those students that go straight away from the Intermediate classes here to England and get their admission into some University or other there, for the first time to study medicine. We have absolutely nothing to do with that class.

[Mr. K. C. Neogy.]

Now, Sir, what would be the practical effect, supposing this proposal of Government were to stand over till Delhi Session? Let us come to concrete facts. How many Universities would be affected? How many students would be affected if the decision were not taken today but in February? That is the practical point before the House. I do not know whether my Honourable friend, Sir Fazl-i-Hussain is in a position to give me definite information on these points. It is no use talking in a general way about the trouble which is likely to befall the Indian student of medicine. Sir, the great inducement for the Indian students for going to England for prosecuting higher studies in medicine no longer exists at the present moment, because for all practical purposes the door of the Indian Medical Service is shut against them: I do not know when it is going to be opened. But if it is a mere question of acquiring proficiency in medicine, surely there are institutions, which are not inferior, on the Continent where the students can easily go. For instance there are famous medical institutions in Vienna, Paris, Berlin and other places; and besides, we know that, as far as the treatment of Indian students in the British Universities goes, it is not of a very inviting character at the present moment. I for myself would not be sorry to see the number of Indian students going to England diminished.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham: Is it not rather a question of what the students themselves want?

Mr. K. C. Neogy: I leave it to my Honourable friend, Mr. Winterbotham, to enter into the minds of the Indian students if he wants to; but I want to remind him of this, that the only authorities who can say that they have got the interests of the students at heart are the Universities. We have got here an opinion that the University of Bombay holds in this matter. I challenge the authority of anybody in this House to support the Government proposal in the name of the students, when particularly we find that a distinguished University like that of Bombay has expressed itself definitely against this proposal. Can it be said that the University of Bombay was absolutely ignoring the interests of its own students? Well, it has been said that, so far as the Calcutta University is concerned, they would not tolerate these visitations. I know the treatment that the Calcutta University accorded to one of the visitors when he went to inspect the University institutions; they simply refused him permission to inspect their colleges. (Hear, hear.) That is the attitude which has been taken up by the Calcutta University, and can it be said by anybody here that he has got the interests of the Calcutta students better at heart than the University itself?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney: What did they do three years afterwards? They ate their own words and capitulated to the British Medical Council terms.

Mr. K. C. Neogy: Three years afterwards they got what they wanted on their own terms.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney: Not on their own terms, and during this period over three hundred graduates were refused recognition in England.

Mr. K. C. Neogy: Where?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney: In England.

Mr. K. C. Neogy: Nothing of the kind at all; I was told at that very meeting, which the Honourable and gallant Colonel did not attend, in Calcutta, that only a handful of students were affected and that they themselves did not complain. One or two doctors who had secured employment on some coasting vessels found that this question of British registrable qualifications was raised when they touched ports like Singapore; that is, when they went beyond the limits of British India.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney: Shipping companies accept Indian degrees freely. The refusal applied only to members of the I. M. Department, which has since been rectified.

Mr. K. C. Neogy: I am stating what I heard at the meeting of the Medical Conference which the Honourable Member himself did not attend. The Honourable gentleman says 300 were refused degrees. Nothing of the kind. The Honourable Member ought to make sure of his facts and he ought to make it a point to attend meetings of the Executive Committee of the Medical Conference of which he is a member.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney: You know why I did not attend: I was ill that day.

Mr. K. C. Neogy: Another fact which I was told at that meeting was that, whereas this Medical Council of Registration is so very punctilious about the Indian standards, they are very charitable so far as certain medical institutions in Great Britain are concerned. I was given the names of certain minor medical institutions in Great Britain—the names of certain minor medical institutions in Great Britain—where the number of midwifery cases that fall to the lot of a student is far less than the number of such cases that a student gets in any Indian University, including the Punjab and Calcutta and other Universities; and yet the General Medical Council in England has never raised any objection so far as recognition of the degrees of these institutions is concerned. I expect some information from the Honourable and gallant Colonel on this head.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney: I am not the Registrar, so you had better seek this information elsewhere.

L18CPB(LA)

Mr. K. C. Neogy : He accepts my statement, I take it.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I certainly do not accept any of your statements.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Now, talking of standards reminds me of another fact, that here are members of the Indian Medical Service who come out to India and none of whom, I think, possesses sufficient experience of tropical diseases ; and yet no objection is taken on behalf of Government to their being allowed to practise in India. If I had my way, I would make it compulsory for them to undergo a sufficient course in tropical medicine before they were permitted to practise in this country ; but that is only by the way. I think we have to get our Central Medical Council set up before we can take any action on these lines.

Now, a good deal has been made of the fact that the Ministers favour this proposal. The Honourable Sir Fazl-i-Husain, in his most persuasive manner, says, " Oh, we are only acting as the bankers of the Provincial Governments ; why are you so much perturbed about it ? " Well, Sir, I do hope that the credit of the provincial Ministers is not so low as not to enable them to obtain a loan from the Imperial Bank of India ; if they choose to do it, let them come together and meet at some central place : I do not mind if you, Sir, permit them the use of the hall downstairs : I do not mind even that. Let them meet and let them come to a general conclusion, and let them appoint the Imperial Bank of India as their bankers—I do not at all mind. But if you come up before us for money—it may be as a short accommodation—even then, I think we are entitled to discuss the merits of this proposal : we cannot merely be registering decrees, as my Honourable friend, Mr. Jayakar, said, of the provincial Ministers. Then again, Sir, reference has been made to the Conference of Ministers. What information about it have we before us at the present moment beyond the statement made by the Honourable Member in charge—and I fully accept that statement ? What detailed information have we at the present moment before us regarding that particular Conference ? The Honourable Member himself has said this is merely a temporary proposal, and the necessity has arisen because of the fact that the Ministers did not support the other alternative that was put before them. Now, we want to know what that other alternative was : it may be that we would be prepared to consider that very favourably ; it may be that there was sufficient ground for the Ministers for not accepting the alternative scheme ; we have absolutely no information on these points. I do not know if there is any insuperable objection to placing the proceedings of that Conference before this House before we are asked to agree to this particular proposal. I feel, Sir, that I would not be conscientiously discharging my duty till I have seen those papers. I have no intention of belittling the Ministers. I am prepared to help them if they deserve our assistance, but before that, I must satisfy myself as to the exact position which they have taken up at this Conference. For all these reasons, Sir, I think that an adjournment is well justified till the Delhi Session.

Sir, the Honourable Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas has pointed out a very important fact, that the Finance Committee were asked to endorse the scheme not for the temporary period of a few months in the current year, as the Honourable Member in charge gave us to understand, but for a year more. Now, Sir, if the total period contemplated by the Government for which this officer will be appointed amounts to 18 months, would very much be lost if we were to defer the decision of this question, say, for four months from now ? I do appeal to the Government to accede to the very modest proposal which we have made, namely for the adjournment of this debate till the Delhi Session.

Several Honourable Members : Sir, the question may now be put.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : I hope, Sir, you will realise that Honourable Members have been sitting very late in the evenings for the past few days, and I would, therefore, request you kindly to adjourn the House early today.

Several Honourable Members : The question may now be put, Sir.

Mr. M. K. Acharya (South Arcot cum Chingleput : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, it seems to me the temper of the House is impatient and wants to get through this business as quickly as possible. I will therefore make a very few remarks only. I have been watching with interest and amusement the battle that has been raging today between the bureaucracy on that side and the bureaucracy on this side,—between those who have been accustomed to have their will implicitly obeyed by the people of India up to this day and those who want to have their will implicitly obeyed by the people of India after the 31st of December 1929. I myself being a representative of those whose lot is only to obey the bureaucracy there or the bureaucracy here,—very often I am unable to say which is the better bureaucracy I am to obey, the white bureaucracy over there or the brown bureaucracy on this side,—I have been trying to make out if really the arguments that have been put forward on either side will help me in coming to any decision ; and I feel only very much perplexed by the arguments.

Sir, if I were asked to state my honest opinion, I believe the whole thing has come out as a result of our slave mentality. We have been anxious to get some recognition from some people far, far away, and the whole trouble has been that we want that our Indian graduates should secure some recognition from Great Britain for the purpose of registration in Great Britain. I do not know why we should have gone into this muddle, why we should have gone on our knees to ask for recognition from Great Britain by some body which probably is composed of all kinds of people, good, bad and indifferent. I know, Sir, that in Madras we have very capable Indian doctors who can beat any doctor from England or from America. I may speak from my personal experience that some very able doctors who have gone to or are from England have told me that there is no one in Madras, or for the matter of that in the whole of India, that can come up to Dr. S. Rangachari in the matter of surgery ; and, mind you, Sir, he is a graduate of the Madras University. Whenever there is a very hard or difficult case in the General Hospital in Madras, which the big European doctors cannot properly handle, they beg of Dr. Rangachari to go and help them. (Hear, hear.) That is, Sir, from my own personal experience. Therefore, I say that all this trouble has arisen from the fact that we wanted recognition for our Indian medical graduates from some body of white men far, far away. There ought to have been established some kind of All-India Medical Council in India itself, which is probably going to be done in course of time ; but this desire to go and plead before somebody else to acknowledge or recognise our medical graduates as worthy of being called doctors, of being enabled to be qualified to practise, to get recognition from a foreign country, all this is the result of our woeful slave mentality. I cannot at all understand the logic of some of my friends in this matter who generally take pride in such slave mentality. My friends only last week pleaded that, because in England hundreds of girls become mothers before or without marriage, that because in America companionate marriages take place by thousands, therefore we must have a Marriage Law in order to have similar things in India. Therefore, I ask leaders with such slave mentality, "Why should you object to have an Inspector or Commissioner of Medical Education in India in order to please the medical gods in England or America?" I do not at all understand the logic of some of my friends when they say that, in this matter alone, their national self-respect has been hurt. Self-respect demands that we should not, in all the larger ideals of life, meekly submit to or lightly follow the whims of other countries. I am very much surprised, Sir, that these people should now object when the Honourable Member in charge comes forward and says practically, "You who have been for a long time meekly submitting to us as slaves, meekly as slaves ought to submit to whatever we have been decreeing, so you should submit for a little while more to what we say". The people who are most concerned are the medical men who not only deal with the Western system of medicine, but adopt Western ideals and Western standards. Why they should rebel now I cannot understand. But anyway, I am very glad that my friends do rebel at least in small matters. They, the bureaucracy on this side (Interruption by Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas.)—I am only a humble servant or slave of the bureaucracy on this side or on the other side,—want to impose something about the arrangements for registration; they want the appointment of an Inspector or Commissioner on Rs. 1,000 or Rs. 2,000 and things of that kind; but these are really matters of detail into which I for one would not condescend to enter. All that I can say is that I am really very sorry that the Honourable Member in charge should have brought this subject on this day, a subject which seems to raise very many issues of very large import. It does not seem to be a simple question of voting a few hundreds of rupees, but involves very many issues of momentous importance, of very large import; and on that account, without going into the merits of the case at all, if we are to solve this question satisfactorily, I would appeal to the Honourable Member in charge to consider whether he could not adjourn the discussion of this subject till next February or March, as was suggested by some speakers who preceded me. But as he has pointed out that the Government cannot put off this question till February or March and that we must have a decision today, I really do not know which way I should vote. Probably my old habit will lead me to obey the bureaucracy that is in power; probably my national self-respect, if I have still any left in this House, may lead me to vote on this side. I am really very much perplexed. I would very much like that the Government should not proceed with this motion today. After all, it is this Government which is responsible for all this muddle. Having created the muddle, they cannot now shirk their responsibility. This is not the first time that the Government of India has got into a muddle; and having created the muddle I think they should themselves get out of it; they cannot expect me or people like me to go and assist them to get out of a muddle which they themselves have created, and if their reformer friends on this side are ungrateful enough to beat them, I would ask the Government to take the beating cheerfully.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya (Allahabad and Jhansi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I am strongly in favour of an All-India Medical Council being instituted to advance, where necessary, and to maintain the standard of medical examinations in this country. I say that, not because I have any suspicion that the existing universities do not perform their duties satisfactorily, but because I am anxious that, in all departments of education and science, India should aim at and achieve the highest standard; particularly in the matter of medical education which deals with life and health is it essential that we should not fall below the standard which obtains in other civilized countries. I am, therefore, strongly in favour of the institution of a General Medical Council for the whole of India. I can quite understand the reasons which are urged in favour of it. India stands to the outside world, both to the political and the scientific world, as one unit. The outside world does not recognise Bombay, Bengal, Madras or the United Provinces as different units. It recognises the whole of India as one unit, and it is necessary that the standard of knowledge which our Universities insist upon should, as far as possible, subject to such variations as may be essential, be of a uniform standard; or to put it in another way, that the minimum standard prescribed by any of our Universities should not fall below the minimum standard prescribed by other Universities in the world. I am most anxious that advance in this direction should be rapid and great, and I regret to learn that some of the Ministers who were called to the Conference referred to in this debate objected to the creation of such a Council on the ground that that would take away from them some of the power that belongs to their own provincial spheres. I think that, if some of the Members of this Assembly had been honoured by being invited to that Conference, they might have persuaded the Ministers who objected to this proposal, to look at it in a broader way and possibly to waive their objections and unanimously support the proposal for an All-India Medical Council. I still venture to throw out the suggestion that if such a conference should again be invited I think those Ministers who objected to the creation of such a Council may yet be persuaded to look at the question from a broader standpoint and to accept the proposal which I personally believe is a very sound one and which will make for a satisfactory advance in the direction of our medical education.

But after having said that, I feel that I must oppose the proposal to appoint an I. M. S. officer temporarily as an Inspector of Medical Education to inspect the courses of medical studies and to report on the medical examinations of the Universities in India. I consider that no proposal involving a greater disrespect to the Universities of India could have been put forward. I am sorry that some of our University graduates have to go out to obtain foreign degrees. Personally I have always been of the opinion that we should so raise the standard of our degrees that they shall count as good as any that are conferred by outside Universities. I am happy to be able to say that the first Doctor of Science of the Benares Hindu University—I beg your pardon, the Benares Hindu

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.]

University has the honour of having His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as its first Doctor of Science—but the second Doctor of Science is Dr. Mata Prasad. He was appointed by the Bombay Government in competition with persons who had foreign degrees and he was sent out to England for further advanced research. He did a great deal of research there under the most distinguished Professors of chemistry in England. But I am glad to say that he did not supplicate for a degree of the University of London. He was proud of the degree of the Benares Hindu University and I am proud of him. (Hear, hear.)

I feel, Sir, that we should encourage our students to honour the degrees of their own Alma mater in India. But I do not blame them for hankering after foreign degrees. It is the system of administration that obtains in this country which gives preference to foreign degrees, that compels our students, after having completed their education here, to go to Edinburgh or London or some other place for obtaining an English degree. I submit that this is the reason why several students desire to go to England. I know of a very promising young man, a distinguished Doctor of Medicine of the Lucknow University, who is regarded as a very competent man—he had to go to Edinburgh to obtain an M. R. C. P. degree in order that he might improve the chances of his rise in his service. I submit, therefore, that the governments here, both in the provinces and in the Centre, ought to honour the degrees conferred by Indian Universities and thereby encourage students not to go out to other countries for obtaining a second foreign degree, merely to better their chances in service. I am most anxious that they should go out to all corners of the world to obtain the highest knowledge that is available, to obtain the highest skill that they can acquire; but I am opposed to their going out of India to obtain a second degree merely because, being a British degree, it will ensure to them a better prospect of rising in their profession.

I also think it a misfortune that the British Medical Association should have a voice in regulating the qualifications of our medical practitioners. I cannot understand why it should be necessary to have degrees recognised by the British Medical Association. I do not want British registration for the Indian graduates whom we send out of our Universities. If the University education we provide is not of a sufficiently high standard, I think the sooner our Universities are closed the better will it be for the students and for the country. I do not want British registration of our degrees, but if we want it, and so long as we want it, we will have to submit to their dictation. I submit, therefore, that the right course to pursue is that we should cease to regard British registration as of any value to the medical profession in India.

I submit, Sir, that those who have favoured the proposal of the appointment of an Inspector by an outside body to go about and inspect our University courses and examinations, and to pronounce an opinion on their efficiency or otherwise, have not realised what an insult it means to our Universities. The Universities in India are constituted under Acts of the Legislatures. The Universities have got their Senates and Syndicates. They prescribe the courses of studies and examinations. They prescribe the courses after studying those which obtain in other Universities in the world. Those courses can be altered by them; they are regularly considered and improved upon or modified according to the knowledge that is growing in the rest of the civilised world. When a University has prescribed its own courses, has offered those courses to its students, has appointed examiners among whom you will find at least one external examiner in every subject—in Benares we have under the Act to appoint an external examiner for every subject which the student is permitted to offer for examination, and we choose for our highest examinations the very best examiners we can,—eminent men like Dr. Donnan from England and Dr. Ostwald from Germany, men who stand at the very top in their departments in the scientific world. After having prescribed the courses, after having given the students all the help for study that we can, after we have had them examined, we confer the degrees on the recommendation of the Senate in an open convocation, and proclaim to the world that the student has satisfied the standard laid down by the University, and I consider it an insult to the University that, after all that, any man from outside our constitution should come and tell us that our standard is not up to the mark. I would close down the University rather than submit the University to such an examination. If the Indian Universities are not discharging their functions properly, it is better that the Government of India should use its influence to close them down rather than allow them to go on conferring degrees which are suspected to be below the standard which obtains in other parts of the civilised world.

Now, Sir, I feel that the moment the gravity of this proposition is realised it will be dropped; I strongly hope that in fairness to the Universities it will be so dropped. I think there is no man in this House who does not recognise that the standard of education obtaining in Berlin, London, Paris and other places in America is higher than it is in India. Every fibre of my soul is anxious that we should raise our standards to the highest pitch. If money were available, there is no standard to which the Indian intellect cannot attain. It is the want of money that stands in our way, and if Universities are to be improved, Provincial Governments and the Central Government ought to find money to enable them to rise to a higher standard. But we must not forget that the standards which have been prescribed have been prescribed after a great deal of care and consideration. The Universities at Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Lahore and other places have been doing their work for decades. Indian medical men used to be treated as untouchables so far as appointments to medical colleges were concerned. No Indian could be appointed a professor in these medical colleges until a few years ago. Now, happily they are being appointed. For the largest period of the existence of these Universities, the members of the I. M. S. presided over and guided the educational activities of these medical colleges. Did they deliberately prescribe a low standard? That would be a most unjust charge to lay on their heads. I submit that there is no reason to suspect that the medical degrees of India are so very inferior to the medical degrees that obtain in other countries as the correspondence before us suggests. Every University will be happy to invite scientific men—men of eminence—from abroad to inspect its laboratories and equipment, to lecture to its students, to point out to it its deficiencies. Help of that kind would be gratefully welcome. But such men should come to us at our invitation. Here you are bringing in an authority outside the University body to impose its opinion upon us. He may be the most distinguished man of science, but if you bring him in against the University's wish, I can not welcome him to the University while I am in charge of it.

Mr. President : The Honourable the Deputy President has made a request that I should adjourn the House today at the usual time. If the Honourable Member is going to be long, I should like to adjourn now.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : I shall be very short. I submit that the Government of India must strive to establish a General Medical Council, which will do all it can to promote medical education to a high degree, and I hope that every Member of this House, on this side as well as on the other side, will agree in desiring that the Department of Education will convene another conference of Ministers and others to discuss this question. But I earnestly submit that the proposal before the House to appoint temporarily an Inspector of Medical Education should be rejected and that this dictation of the British Medical Association should be thankfully declined.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Thursday, the 26th September, 1929.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Thursday, 26th September, 1929.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

PAY OF INDIAN SOLDIERS.

962. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state what is the pay of an Indian soldier in the regiments in India ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The Honourable Member is referred to paragraphs 49 to 53 of Pay and Allowance Regulations, Part I, a copy of which is in the Library.

CIVIL EMPLOYMENT UNDER GOVERNMENT FOR COMBATANT TRIBES.

963. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of persons belonging to combatant and non-combatant tribes, province by province, in civil employment under Government ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Government of India have no concession for combatant tribes for obtaining civil employment (superior and inferior both) under Government ? If so, why ? If there is any concession, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the rules concerned ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) I am not aware of any distinction between combatant and non-combatant tribes in regard to civil employment under Government. If the Honourable Member is referring to classes now recruited to the Indian Army, it will involve a disproportionate amount of labour to ascertain from each province the number of such men in civil employment, and it is open to doubt whether the information will serve a useful purpose.

(b) Concessions in respect of civil employment have been granted in respect of actual service in the Army during the Great War. These are detailed in Home Department Resolution No. 1099, dated the 8th August, 1919, a copy of which has been placed in the Library.

MUSLIM ENGINEERS.

964. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : With reference to reply to question No. 96, dated 12th March, 1929, in the Council of State regarding paucity of Muslim engineers in each province in India, will Government be pleased to state what action has been taken towards increasing the number of Muslim engineers, province by province ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given by Sir Cecil McWatters to the Honourable Mr. Mahmood Suhrawardy's question No. 167 in the Council of State on the 19th March, 1929. The rules alluded to in the last sentence of that reply will be issued shortly.

EMPLOYMENT OF MUSLIM ENGINEERS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

D. Os. occurred in the Delhi P. W. D. since 1st March, 1929 ? How many were given to Muslims ? If none, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Two vacancies have been filled, to neither of which have Muslims been appointed. One case was that of a temporary promotion in a leave vacancy ; in the other the most suitable candidate was appointed.

EMPLOYMENT OF MUSLIM ENGINEERS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

966. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : With reference to the reply to question No. 107, dated 12th March, 1929, in the Council of State, will Government be pleased to state what steps have been taken by the Delhi P. W. D. to safeguard the claims of Muslims in the case of temporary engineers or Assistant Engineers or S. D. Os. appointed in 1929 ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The claims of all communities are considered when vacancies are being filled.

EMPLOYMENT OF MUSLIM ENGINEERS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

967. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : With reference to the reply to question No. 101, dated 17th September 1929, in the Council of State regarding Muslim candidates or apprentices for the post of Engineers in the Delhi P. W. D. since 1921, will Government kindly state whether all of them were considered unfit for the post of temporary or Assistant Engineers appointed in the Delhi P. W. D. in 1929 ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The answer is in the negative.

EMPLOYMENT OF MUSLIMS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

968. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that the higher authorities of the Delhi P. W. D. intentionally debar Muslim candidates from their rights considering them the brethren of a Muslim member (questioner) ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The reply is in the negative.

EMPLOYMENT OF MUSLIMS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

969. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that class monopoly is at its climax in the Delhi P. W. D. and Officers are compelled to crush the rights of Muslim candidates for the superior service ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The reply is in the negative.

REVERSION TO THEIR OWN PROVINCES OF ENGINEERS ON DEPUTATION.

970. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : With reference to reply to question No. 155, dated 19th March, 1929, in the Council of State, regarding more than 10 years' deputation from other provinces, do Government propose to revert these engineers to their provinces ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The reply is in the negative.

SERVICE OF INDIANS IN KENYA COLONY.

971. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : With reference to the reply to question No. 166, dated 19th March, 1929, in the Council of State regarding service of Indians in Kenya Colony recruited from India in 1919 by the military authorities of India, will Government be pleased to state whether the services of men recruited by the military authorities in 1919 for the German East Africa, Civil Administration, under agreement, were permanent ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The men served on agreements for various periods and their services were regulated by the terms of their contracts.

SERVICE OF APPRENTICES.

972. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that services of paid or unpaid apprentices are reckoned towards leave and pension under Fundamental Rules ? If so, will Government be pleased to lay on the table the copy of that paragraph of the Fundamental Rules ?

(b) Is it a fact that apprentices are given a lift or promotion upon their confirmation ? If so, under which rule ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) It is not the policy of the Government of India to employ unpaid apprentices ; and for the meaning of the word " apprentice " in Government parlance I would refer the Honourable Member to the definition given in rule 2 (2) of the Supplementary Rules framed by the Government of India under the Fundamental Rules. Service as apprentice qualifies for leave as prescribed in Supplementary Rule 292. Pension is not regulated by the Fundamental Rules but by the Civil Service Regulations. Service as apprentice does not qualify for pension except in the cases mentioned in Article 372 of those Regulations.

A copy of the Fundamental Rules, of the Government of India's Supplementary Rules and of the Civil Service Regulations will be found in the Library of the Legislature.

(b) There is no general rule on the subject. Each case or class of cases is dealt with according to the circumstances of the establishment affected.

EMPLOYMENT OF MUSLIM CLERKS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

973. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many clerks have been appointed in the P. W. D., Delhi, in 1929 and how many of them are Muslims ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the names and qualifications of the clerks appointed in the Delhi P. W. D. in 1929 ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). The information is being obtained and will be furnished to the Honourable Member.

EMPLOYMENT OF MUSLIMS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

974. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that the Chief Engineer, Delhi, asked the Secretary, Muslim Association, Delhi, to forward the applications of Muslim clerks ? If so, will Government kindly state how many applications were sent by the Secretary of the Muslim Association, Delhi, and what action has been taken on them ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Secretary of the Muslim Association, Delhi, asked the Chief Engineer in June-July, 1929, "How many gazetted posts have been given to the Muslims from 1st April, 1929" ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Chief Superintendent, P. W. D., Delhi, wrote to the P. A. to the Chief Engineer, Delhi, why they should give the information to the Muslim Association Secretary, Delhi, and the P. A. to the Chief Engineer urged him to do so ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Chief Engineer, Delhi, replied to the Muslim Association Secretary, Delhi, that three gazetted posts occurred in the Delhi P. W. D. from 1st April, 1929, to 1st July, 1929, and all were given to non-Muslims ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes, in reply to a representation by the Association. 38 applications were forwarded. These have been recorded for consideration when vacancies occur, none having occurred since they were received.

(b) Yes.

(c) Government cannot disclose the contents of notes in their offices.

(d) Yes.

NUMBER OF GAZETTED POSTS IN THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI, GIVEN TO MUSLIMS.

975. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state the number of gazetted posts which occurred in the Delhi P. W. D. from 1st April, 1929, up to now and how many of them were given to Muslims ?

(b) Is it a fact that B. Durga Das was a subordinate in the Viceregal Lodge, Delhi ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reason of his transfer to P. W. D., Delhi ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). The matter is under inquiry and the Honourable Member will be informed in due course.

GRAZING OF SHEEP IN THE CENTRAL VISTA, NEW DELHI.

978. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state the name of the contractor whose sheep graze in Central Vista (P. W. D.), Delhi ? How many sheep are allowed to graze ? Is the contractor paid Re. 1 per sheep per month ? How long has this practice been going on and why ? Has this contract been given on tender ? If not, why not ? When will this contract terminate ? Where is the sheep pen of this contractor in New Delhi ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sheep grazing on the Central Vista was necessary as the soil was poor and continuous mowing without occasional manuring would exhaust the land in time. Sheep do no damage to the trees and nourish the grass. Tenders were called for in December, 1926 and opened in January, 1927. The only tender received was that of Sardar Sahib Sardar Sobha Singh which was accepted. Under it 3,000 sheep are allowed to graze on a rent of Re. 1 per annum, but only 800 are grazing at present. The agreement commenced from 1st February, 1927 and is current for a period of five years. The contractor has been allowed to pen the sheep in Block No. 1.

979. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of clerks appointed in the Central Accounts Office (P. W. D.), Delhi, in the year 1929 ?

(b) How many of them are Muslims ?

(c) How many applications have been received from Muslim clerks for service in the office of the Central Accounts Officer, Delhi, in the month of August 1929 ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : With your permission, Sir, I will deal with questions Nos. 979 and 985 together.

The information has been called for and will be supplied to the Honourable Member as soon as possible.

APPOINTMENT TO THE CENTRAL ACCOUNTS OFFICE, DELHI, OF A HINDU CLERK FROM THE PUNJAB.

(b) Is it a fact that the Officer on Special Duty (Finance Department) gave sanction stating "As the Central Accounts Officer, Delhi, could not get a man of minority community I sanction his proposal" ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state if the Officer on Special Duty made inquiries on this ?

(d) Did the Central Accounts Officer inform him on the subject ?

(e) How many Muslim candidates are on the register in the Central Accounts Office ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Yes.

(b) The Officer on Special Duty approved the proposal "on the understanding that a suitable candidate of a minority community was not available to fill the post".

(c) and (d). A trained clerk with some actual experience in a Public Works Divisional Office was required for the post and the Central Accounts Officer, Delhi, reported that no suitable candidate of a minority community was available.

(e) The number of approved candidates on the Register in the Central Accounts Office is 64, out of whom 9 are Muslims. None of these candidates has experience in Public Works Accounts.

PUBLICATION OF NAMES OF ENGINEERING INSTITUTES IN THE DISTRIBUTION RETURN, PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

981. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state the purport of publishing the names of the engineering institutes on page i to iii (abbreviation) of the Distribution Return corrected up to 30th June, 1928, in the P. W. D., Delhi ? Are these institutions chartered or recognised by the governing bodies ? Are the members of these institutions called qualified engineers ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Some of the officers employed in the Public Works Department are members, associates or fellows of the various engineering institutions. This is indicated in the body of the publication in which their names appear by means of abbreviations to save time and labour. It is necessary to show in the beginning of the publication what the abbreviations stand for, and this is what the list on pages i to iii of the Distribution Return referred to by the Honourable Member purports to do. Certain of the institutions are chartered, while all are recognised in some shape or form by Government. The fact that an officer is a member, an associate or a fellow of one of the institutions included in the Return does not necessarily mean that he is a qualified engineer.

DOCTORS IN THE CIVIL HOSPITAL, NEW DELHI.

982. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that there has been no Muslim doctor in the Civil Hospital of New Delhi for many years ? If so, will Government kindly state the length of service of each doctor of the New Delhi Civil Hospital, in Delhi Province ?

Sir Frank Noyce : There was a Muhammadan sub-assistant surgeon in 1923, and a Muhammadan assistant surgeon in 1922. At present the three medical assistants are Hindus. The present assistant surgeon has held his appointment since 18th April, 1926. Of the two sub-assistant surgeons, one joined the hospital in March, 1921 and the other in December, 1923.

ALLEGED ILL-TREATMENT OF MUSLIM PATIENTS BY HINDU DOCTORS AT THE CIVIL HOSPITAL, NEW DELHI.

983. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that Muslim outdoor and indoor patients are ill-treated by the Hindu doctors of the New Delhi Civil Hospital ?

(b) Is it a fact that a Muslim indoor patient (bearer of Gymkhana Club) died in the hospital of New Delhi in June or July, 1929, and that his body was left to fester for more than 30 hours ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Muslim clerks of New Delhi complained and brought the Civil Surgeon, New Delhi, to see the festered body of a Muslim patient ? If so, will Government be pleased to state what action has been taken against these doctors of New Delhi ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) No.

(b) A Muslim water carrier in the service of the Imperial Delhi Gymkhana Club died on the morning of the 4th June, 1929, in the New Delhi Hospital. The body was buried at Government expense within 28 hours of death as neither the Club, nor certain co-religionists who had asked to be allowed to make arrangements for burial, did so in time.

(c) The answer to the first part is in the negative. The second part does not arise.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know on what authority the Honourable the Deputy President has made the serious charge against a body of Government officers in part (a) of his question ?

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : The authority on which my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, puts questions in this Assembly. (Laughter.)

PERMANENT CADRE OF THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, DELHI.

984. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that the permanent cadre of the Delhi P. W. D. is prepared and submitted for sanction ? If so, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of it ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : No. Proposals in respect of a permanent cadre for the Delhi Public Works Department are at present under consideration.

†985. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state the number, qualifications and length of service of the clerks sent from the Office of the Accountant General, Delhi and other Offices, to the Pay and Accounts Office, Peshawar, in 1929, and how many of them are Muslims ? What increment has been given to each clerk ? Are these clerks chosen by the Officer on Special Duty himself ?

CLERKS PROMOTED IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS NEW DELHI.

986. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state how many clerks have been appointed or promoted in the Government of India Press, Delhi, in 1929 and how many of them are Muslims ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Inquiries are being made and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

EMPLOYMENT OF MUSLIMS IN THE OFFICE OF THE CONTROLLER OF PRINTING AND STATIONERY.

987. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Are Government aware that the Personal Assistant to the Controller of Stationery and Printing, Government of India, says to Muslims "No Muslim can enter this Department in a suitable position so long as I am Personal Assistant to the Controller" ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : There is no post of Personal Assistant to the Controller of Printing and Stationery.

REPAIRS TO THE MINAL TANK OF DHOLKA.

988. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Has Government's attention been drawn to the unsatisfactory state of repairs of the Minal tank of Dholka in Ahmedabad District which is a protected monument ?

(b) Have Government taken any steps towards repairing it ?

(c) Is it true that the attention of Government had been drawn to this question by the public and Municipality of Dholka for nearly 10 years ?

(d) Will Government please state why nothing has been done so far in spite of the passage of so many years ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) The Archaeological Superintendent concerned was asked, in July last, to submit a report with a view to necessary conservation measures being put in hand.

(c) So far as the Government of India are concerned, the answer is in the negative. Their attention was drawn to this matter only in 1924.

(d) It has not been possible up to now to carry out any repairs, as certain questions relating to the ownership and the responsibility for the maintenance of the tank were under investigation. The Superintendent, Archaeological Survey, Western Circle, has recently, however, been directed to draw up a conservation note for submission to the Director General of Archaeology in India to enable the latter to judge what is necessary in the way of repairs to the monument.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Does the Honourable Member realise that the same reply was given in 1924 ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I can assure the Honourable Member that we are much indebted to him for bringing the matter to our notice and that I will take personal steps to see that something is done as soon as possible.

REPORTED THREATENING BEHAVIOUR OF CERTAIN SOLDIERS AT VICTORIA TERMINUS STATION.

989. *Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the incident which took place on the 8th of June last at the Victoria Terminus in the Poona passenger train leaving that Station at 10.45 P.M., in which certain soldiers of the Royal Warwickshire Regiment, 2nd Battalion, were reported to have behaved threateningly towards some Indian fellow passengers of theirs, chucking away the luggage of one of the passengers, taking up the seat that he had occupied previously and threatening to throw another out of the window if he dared to take up any further the cause of the injured passengers ? If so, has any complaint been made to the authorities concerned by the aggrieved parties, and what steps have been taken in connection with the same ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to make a statement on the subject, particularly indicating the steps they propose to adopt in future to avoid the repetition of such outrageous incidents to the Indian travelling public ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Government have received a report of the incident which differs in many material respects from the account given by the Honourable Member. They understand, that a criminal complaint has been preferred by one of the Indian gentlemen against one of the soldiers concerned ; and it would be improper to make any statement on the subject while this case is sub judice.

APPOINTMENT AS CHIEF ACCOUNTANT, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY OF A RETIRED ACCOUNTANT GENERAL OF RAILWAYS.

990. *Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the former Accountant General of Railways, Mr. Hartley, is now working as the Chief Accountant of the North Western Railway ?

(b) Can a Government officer after his retirement, accept again a subordinate position in the very Department of which he was working as the head ?

(c) What salary is Mr. Hartley drawing as the Chief Accountant of the North Western Railway ?

(d) Is Mr. Hartley also drawing his pension since his retirement ?

(e) Do the Service Regulations provide that a State official can retire and occupy a subordinate position under Government after retiring from a high position ?

(f) Has not this action of Government blocked the promotions of junior officers of the Audit and Finance Departments?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Mr. Hartley, formerly Accountant General, Railways, is at present Chief Accounts Officer on the North Western Railway and was selected as specially suitable to start the separation of Accounts from Audit on that Railway on account of his vast and varied experience.

(b) Mr. Hartley is now working in a different department from the one from which he retired.

(c) and (d). As Chief Accounts Officer, North Western Railway, Mr. Hartley's pay has been fixed at an amount which, together with his pension, is equal to the pay (viz., Rs. 3,000) which he was drawing immediately before retirement.

(e) I am not aware of any rule which this appointment has contravened.

(f) Mr. Hartley is not holding a post reserved for the Indian Audit and Accounts Service under the present arrangements.

IMPORTATION OF VEGETABLE GHEE.

991. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Have Government seen the article on "Importation of Vegetable Ghee" by Dr. S. N. De in the Indian Medical Record of Calcutta, for June, 1929 (page 161)? If so, do they propose to prohibit the importation of the product?

(b) Are Government aware that the so-called banaspati ghee is only a mixture of crude animal fat and vegetable oil?

(c) Do Government propose to issue orders that vegetable ghee will not be allowed to come to India, unless "red", "blue" or any other colour is given to it, so that its adulteration with ghee may not be possible?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) and (c). Government have seen the article to which the Honourable Member alludes. They have consulted Local Governments on the subject of the policy to be adopted in regard to the importation, local manufacture and sale of vegetable ghee and have received, through Local Governments, the opinions of health officers, municipalities, Chambers of Commerce and trade associations. The replies are not yet complete.

(b) The answer is in the negative.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : When was this matter referred to the Local Governments for opinion?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Several months ago. I am afraid I do not accurately remember the precise date.

Mr. Mukhtar Singh : Has the Government taken any action on the Resolution passed by the Council of State on this point last Session?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : We have not yet received all the replies from Local Governments. Until we receive them, we cannot determine what our course of action is to be.

Sardar Kartar Singh : When was the Resolution passed in the Council of State?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I must ask for notice of that question.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : Do the Government realise the necessity of asking the Local Governments to expedite their replies?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I will certainly do so.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : Is it not a fact that the so-called adulteration takes place after importation of vegetable ghee and not before?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I have no information at present on the point.

Sardar Kartar Singh : Is it not a fact that this vegetable ghee is injurious for human consumption?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The object of consulting the Local Governments was to ascertain the views of those who were qualified to speak on that point as well as on others. Until our replies are complete, I am afraid I cannot make a further statement.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Is it not a fact that my Honourable friend's Department has received a copy of the Resolution unanimously passed by the Calcutta Corporation asking the Government to prohibit the import of this vegetable ghee because it is injurious to health?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I have seen in the newspapers a Resolution passed by the Calcutta Corporation on the point.

Mr. E. L. Price : Is the Honourable Member aware that it is forbidden by law to call margarine or any such vegetable product in England by the name of butter or any imitation thereof, and will he not agree that it would be a good thing in India if the name of ghee were especially reserved by law for what is ghee?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : That is a point that will undoubtedly have to be considered very carefully.

Sardar Kartar Singh : How long will the Government take to arrive at a decision?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I have not yet started the consideration of the matter as I have not got all the replies.

INVESTIGATION OF COMPLAINTS BY TOWN INSPECTORS OF HEAD POST OFFICES.

992. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether rule 315 of Chapter 4 of P. O. Manual, Volume VIII enjoins on the postal Town Inspectors of First Class Head Offices that the complaints received by them (Town Inspectors) direct from the public or communicated by the sub or branch postmasters directly subordinate to them, or sent to them by the Superintendents or the Postmasters, should be gone into with the determination to get to the bottom?

(b) Do the Town Inspectors get, for inquiry, complaints relating to the irregularities committed by the clerks, postmen, lower grade staff and the sub and branch postmasters?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). Yes.

ARTICLES PURCHASED THROUGH THE INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT.

998. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the particular articles which the various Departments, etc., under the Central Government have been instructed to purchase through the Indian Stores Department ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I invite the Honourable Member's attention to pages 5-10 of a pamphlet describing the organisation and functions of the Indian Stores Department (a copy of which is available in the Library of the House) where he will find a description of the classes of stores dealt with by that Department. A list of articles which the Railway Department have enjoined should be bought by State Railways through the Indian Stores Department is being sent to the Honourable Member.

The Army Department purchases all textiles supplies for general use and engineering plant for the Military Engineering Service through the Indian Stores Department. The Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, purchases all articles which can be purchased in India through the Indian Stores Department. Other lesser buyers, such as the Northern India Salt Revenue Department, the Andamans Administration and the Public Works Department, Delhi, also make the bulk of their purchases through the Indian Stores Department. The labour involved in detailing all the articles purchased for these authorities would be very great and it is hoped that the information given will meet the purpose of the Honourable Member.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : Is it a fact that a sum of six million pounds worth of stores is at present bought through the Director General of Stores, England ? Is it also a fact that all these stores will, when the rupee tender system comes into force, be bought in India under that system ? Will Government consider the advisability of making a definite pronouncement as to their policy with a view to centralise all the purchase of stores wherever possible by the Indian Stores Department ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, it is obviously not possible for me to answer large issues like those raised by my Honourable friend in reply to a supplementary question. I should be obliged if he will give me proper notice of that question.

PUBLICATION IN THE Indian Trade Journal OF CONTRACTS FOR STORES PURCHASED.

999. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government please state if it is a fact that the Indian Stores Department publishes every week particulars of all contracts placed by it in the Indian Trade Journal which is published by the Director General of Commercial Statistics ? Do the Posts and Telegraphs Department, the Director of Contracts and the State Railways do the same ? If so, to what extent ? If not, do Government propose to consider the desirability of doing so ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I presume that the Honourable Member has in mind contracts for the purchase of stores, and the reply to the first part of his question is in the affirmative.

As regards the other Departments, the position is as follows :—

Posts and Telegraphs Department.—No separate contracts are entered into by this Department for the supply of materials and equipment as, with unimportant exceptions, all such supplies are obtained through the agency of the Indian Stores Department and are therefore included in the contracts placed by that Department.

Director of Contracts.—All awards of contract to the value of Rs. 100 and over placed by him are notified monthly in the Indian Trade Journal, because the number of such contracts does not justify weekly notification.

State Railways.—The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given by my Honourable friend Mr. P. R. Rau on the 4th September, 1929, to Mr. Lalchand Navalrai's starred question No. 132.

PLATFORMS AT GUDUR JUNCTION RAILWAY STATION.

1000. *Mr. B. P. Naidu : Is it a fact that the construction of a new building for the railway station at Gudur Junction (Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway) is under contemplation ? If so, do Government propose to avoid the mistake of having low and uncovered platforms at least in the new construction ? If not, do they propose to consider the desirability of immediately raising and covering the platforms at that station, in view of the considerable inconvenience and discomfort the passengers are undergoing day in and day out ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am obtaining information on the point from the Agent, Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway and shall communicate it to the Honourable Member in due course.

TRAINS TO SINGARAYAKONDA RAILWAY STATION.

1001. *Mr. B. P. Naidu : (a) Is it a fact that, since the Madras-Calcutta mail train, the only up train that passes Singarayakonda Railway Station in the night, is not stopping at that station, up-passengers from there to Guntur, Bezwada and other important places in the North, are kept waiting at that station till the next morning ?

(b) Is it a fact that a special mail peon is taking all the mails from interior places like Kandukur and Kanigiri by the previous evening train from Singarayakonda to Bitragunta for exchanging them at the latter station ?

(c) Is it a fact that when the Calcutta-Madras Mail runs late, the mail peon is prevented from exchanging mails with that train, since he has to come back to Singarayakonda by the early morning passenger train with such mails as he has received, thereby delaying the delivery of mails by one day at Kandukur and Kanigiri ?

(d) Is it a fact that the mail motor bus from Singarayakonda, which reaches Kanigiri at about 10 A.M., is obliged to leave the same immediately afterwards at 12 noon ? Is it a fact that a day's delay thereby occurs to the business and other correspondence of the people at Kanigiri ?

(e) In view of all these difficulties, do Government propose to consider the advisability of stopping both the mail trains at Singarayakonda and spare the public a lot of inconvenience ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes.

(b), (c), (d) and (e). I have no information, but a copy of the Honourable Member's question will be forwarded to the Postmaster General, Madras, who will, if necessary, take the matter up with the Agent, Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway.

REPAIRS TO HOUSES IN PESHAWAR APPROPRIATED FOR MILITARY OFFICERS.

1002. *Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (1) Has the attention of Government been drawn to an article published in the Cantonment Advocate of August, 1929, under the heading "Appropriation of Houses in Peshawar and Extravagant Demands of repairs" ?

(2) Is it a fact that as a preliminary to the appropriation of houses Nos. 9 and 21 in Peshawar Cantonment, the owners have been asked to execute repairs estimated to cost about Rs. 38,000 ?

(3) Is it a fact that even now these houses are occupied by military officers and are in a thoroughly habitable condition ?

(4) Are Government aware that the amount which the owner is asked to spend on the repairs of the two houses will ordinarily be sufficient to entirely re-build the houses with ample accommodation for a military officer ?

(5) Is it a fact that this extravagant demand for repairs has caused great discontent among the house-owners of Peshawar ?

(6) Do Government propose to issue instructions that ordinary repairs should not exceed 6 per cent. of the rental in a year ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (1) The Government have seen the article referred to.

(2) to (5). The Government have no information but they have called for a report and I will supply the Honourable Member with answers to his question in due course.

(6) Government see no necessity at present to issue any such instruction.

HOUSE-TAX IN CANTONMENTS.

1003. *Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (1) Is it a fact that under the Cantonments Act of 1924, house-tax on property is charged on its gross rental value ?

(2) Is it a fact that in municipalities such a tax is charged on the "net rental" after deducting from the "gross rental" the amount spent on repairs ?

(3) Is it a fact that the principle laid down by Government is that in the matter of taxation, the cantonments should follow the system prevalent in adjoining municipalities ?

(4) If the reply to part (2) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to issue instructions that house-tax in cantonments be charged on the net rental ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (1) Yes.

(2) Only in some provinces.

(3) Yes, as far as possible.

(4) The question of providing discretionary powers in the matter is under consideration.

ISSUE OF NOTICES IN BAREILLY CANTONMENT BY THE EXECUTIVE OFFICER.

1004. *Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (1) Is it a fact that in Bareilly Cantonment "notices" requiring the sanction of the Board under the Act are generally issued by the Executive Officer with the sanction of the President under section 25 of the Cantonment Act, without any reference to the Board ?

(2) Is it a fact that section 25 is intended to be used only in case of an emergency when an immediate action is necessary for public safety and convenience ?

(3) Will Government be pleased to state why such a general use is being made of section 25 in that Cantonment ?

(4) Do Government propose to issue orders to stop this practice ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The Government of India understand that the facts were as stated by the Honourable Member, but the practice has since been stopped.

CONTRACT FOR THE SUPPLY OF AERATED WATERS AND ICE ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

1005. *Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (1) Is it a fact that the contract for the sale of ice and aerated water on the branch of the North Western Railway from Lahore to Delhi via Ambala, was given last year to a contractor without auction ?

(2) Is it a fact that, as a result of this arrangement, the travelling public have made several complaints about the inferior supply of aerated water in bottles of old pattern ?

(3) Will Government be pleased to state why such contracts are given without public auction with due notice beforehand ?

(4) Who is the present contractor, since when is he doing this contract, and what are the terms of his contract ?

(5) Are Government aware that "ice men" in railway compartments, are not generally in clean sanitary clothes ? Do Government propose to impose a condition about this in future contracts ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have called for a report on the point from the Agent of the North Western Railway and will address him later on the subject.

ORDERS OF EXPULSION FROM CANTONMENTS UNDER THE OLD CANTONMENT CODE.

1006. *Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (1) Will Government be pleased to state how many persons are still under orders of expulsion from L19CPB(LA) the cantonments of India under section 216 (1) of the old Cantonment Code ?

(2) Has the All-India Cantonments Association approached Government for a general amnesty to all those persons and for the general cancellation of the orders of expulsion made under the old repealed code ? If so, what action have Government taken on this request ?

(3) Is it a fact that one Th. Amar Singh Laxman Singh of Mhow was expelled from Mhow Cantonment in 1922 and has not been permitted to return so far ?

(4) Will Government state the nature of the charge against this man ?

(5) If the charge against him be not of the nature under which expulsion can be ordered under the New Cantonments Act, do Government propose to consider the desirability of cancelling the order of expulsion in the case of this man ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (1) and (2). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the replies given to the Honourable Sir Ebrahim Haroon Jaffer's question No. 122 in the Council of State on the 12th September, 1927, and to unstarred question No. 488 in this House on the 21st September, 1928. A similar reply was given to the All-India Cantonments Association when they approached the Government of India on the subject in May, 1928 ; but no further specific cases have been brought to their notice.

(3) (5). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the answer given by Sir Godfrey Fell to question No. 66 on the 10th January, 1922. Government have no information to show that this man was again expelled from the Cantonment in 1922, but I will make inquiries.

NOMINATED SEATS ON THE LAHORE CANTONMENT BOARD.

1007. *Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (1) Has the attention of Government been drawn to an article headed " Abuse of section 14 in Lahore Cantonment " in the July issue of the Cantonment Advocate ?

(2) Will Government state why a nominated seat was given to a Muhammadan, when the Muhammadan community of Lahore had already more than their due share of representation on the Cantonment Board through election ?

(3) Is it a fact that in filling nominated seats the claims of the Sikh community, an important minority community, were ignored ?

(4) Did the Sikhs represent their claims to the Officer Commanding the Station ? If so, how was their representation disposed of ?

(5) Do Government propose to reconsider their distribution of nominated seats with a view to provide a seat for the Sikh community ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (1) Yes.

(2) to (5). The information asked for is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

REVISION OF THE ASSAM LABOUR RECRUITING LAW.

1008. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Have Government under their contemplation a revision of the Assam Labour Recruiting Law ?

(b) Is it a fact that the opinion of tea interests has been obtained on a proposed Bill in this behalf ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the present position of the proposals, and their future intentions in the matter ?

(c) What are the lines which these legislative proposals generally follow ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) The answer to the first part is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, the matter is still under the consideration of the Government of India, but they do not anticipate that they will be in a position to introduce a Bill on this subject until the Royal Commission on Labour has reported.

(c) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given by me in the Legislative Assembly on the 8th April, 1929, to part (c) of starred question No. 1453 by Pandit Nilakantha Das.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask whether any other interests, barring the tea interests were consulted in regard to the proposed amendment of the Assam Labour Recruiting Law ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have said, Sir, the matter is still receiving the consideration of the Government of India, and in all probability the Bill on this subject will not be introduced until the Royal Commission on Labour has reported. I am pretty sure that, as my Honourable friend is a Member of that Commission, all interests will receive due consideration in connection with any recommendation that that Commission may make.

Diwan Chaman Lall : My question was a simple one. May I ask him whether, in addition to eliciting the opinions of the tea interests, he has taken any steps to elicit the opinion from any other interest so far ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Local Governments also have been consulted, and before answering us they must have consulted other interests.

SPECIAL SUPPLY OF WAGONS FOR COAL TRAFFIC BY THE EAST INDIAN AND BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAYS.

1009. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) With reference to the Report of the Committee of Inquiry to investigate the question of special supply of wagons for coal traffic by the East Indian Railway and the Bengal Nagpur Railway during January to March last, will Government be pleased to state whether any attempt was made by the Railway Board, subsequent to the submission of the Report by the Committee of Inquiry, to fix the responsibility among the various officers of the East Indian Railway in regard to the defects in working brought to light by the Committee of Inquiry ? If so, will Government state what action, if any, was taken on such an examination? Will Government also state if they are satisfied that there was no lack of proper supervision on the part of the Coal Manager of the East Indian Railway?

(b) Is it a fact that the officer now serving as Coal Manager was granted several extensions of his term of office? Is it a fact that a further extension of term in respect of this officer is under the consideration of the Railway Board?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy: (a) Yes. The officer held solely responsible for the irregularities admitted the same. He resigned the service, and, there being no proof of any malafides, his resignation was accepted.

From the report received from the Agent, East Indian Railway, Government see no reason to hold the Coal Manager responsible for lack of supervision.

(b) The answer to both parts is in the negative.

Mr. K. C. Neogy: Did this matter receive the consideration of the Central Railway Advisory Council?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy: The Central Advisory Council? No, Sir, it has not been brought before the Council.

Mr. K. C. Neogy: Is it intended to bring the matter before them?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy: I must apologise to my Honourable friend. The Report of the Committee was laid before the Central Advisory Council at its last meeting. But no particular question as regards the officers concerned was specifically put before them.

Mr. K. C. Neogy: Is it intended to invite the opinion of the Central Advisory Council on the action that is proposed to be taken on this Report?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy: Yes, Sir. The action that has been taken and is about to be taken on the Report was placed before the Council.

Mr. M. S. Aney: Do the Government propose to bring to the notice of the Central Advisory Council any action which they want to take against the officer concerned?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy: No, Sir. I think the question of disciplinary action as regards officers is a matter for Government itself, and I know no precedent for placing a matter of that kind before the Council.

Mr. M. S. Aney: Do not the Government think that the advice of the Central Advisory Council on that point may be of some use to the Railway Board?

Mr. K. Ahmed: It is a matter of opinion.

Mr. K. C. Neogy: Does the Honourable Member realise that, apart from the fact of disciplinary action, there is a question about the prevalence of abuse in a particular department of the Railway?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy: Certainly, Sir. It was to examine that question that the Committee was appointed and as I have said the Report of the Committee was placed before the Central Advisory Council.

Mr. K. C. Neogy: Is it intended to invite their opinion on this aspect of the Report?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy: The only object with which we put questions before the Central Advisory Council is to elicit their opinion.

RAILWAY SIDINGS FOR THE COAL TRADE.

1010. *Mr. K. C. Neogy: (a) Are Government aware that there is a considerable volume of grievance in the coal trade with regard to the allotment of siding space and the grant of siding projects for collieries by the East Indian Railway?

(b) Are Government aware that the Coal Manager, East Indian Railway, refused to make available on a railway siding wagon-space for a working colliery in the interest of another colliery which has suspended working for a couple of years?

(c) Is it a fact that a suggestion was made by the Trade in 1921 for appointment of a permanent committee, including representatives of the coal trade, to deal with all siding questions? If so, do Government propose to revive their consideration of such a proposal?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy: (a) Government are not aware of any grievances during recent years with regard to the allotment of space on existing sidings or in connection with requests for the construction of new sidings.

(b) Government have no information.

(c) A suggestion to the effect was made in 1921. At that time, mainly owing to lack of permanent way, there was difficulty in meeting the demands for siding accommodation, but the proposed Committee was not deemed necessary or advisable. It is not intended to revive the consideration of such a Committee.

THE INDIAN SUGAR COMMITTEE.

1011. *Mr. B. Das: (a) Will Government be pleased to state the constitution and personnel of the Indian Sugar Committee?

(b) Is it a fact that no action was taken on the Report of the Indian Sugar Committee of 1921?

(c) What special points have arisen since then for this new Committee of Inquiry?

(d) Were the various Provincial Governments consulted as regards provincial representation on this Indian Sugar Committee?

(e) Will Government be pleased to state if the Government of Bihar and Orissa were consulted and if that Government recommended any non-official representatives to sit on this Indian Sugar Committee?

(f) Will Government be pleased to state if they, in every case, accepted the recommendations of the Ministers of Agriculture of Provincial Governments?

(g) Will Government be pleased to state the cases where such recommendations have not been accepted and will Government be pleased to give reasons in each case ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to the Press Communique issued by the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research on the 23rd September, 1929, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House.

(b) No. The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the answer given by Mr. Bhore in the Legislative Assembly to Chaudhry Mukhtar Singh's question No. 1178 on the 25th March, 1927. A copy of the statement referred to in that answer, which was subsequently supplied to Mr. Mukhtar Singh, has been placed in the Library of the House.

(c) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the Government of India's circular to Local Governments No. 398-A., dated the 8th March, 1929, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House.

(d) and (e). No : but the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research, by whom the Committee has been appointed, includes representatives of Provincial Governments.

(f) and (g). As it is not the Government of India but the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research which has appointed the Sugar Committee, these questions do not arise ; but I am in a position to assure the Honourable Member that the views of Ministers of Agriculture of Provincial Governments, who are ex-officio members of the governing body of the Council, have received every consideration.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware that the Government of Bihar and Orissa, in the Ministry of Education, have recommended the name of a particular non-official gentleman to sit on this Committee ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I believe that is so.

Sardar Kartar Singh : Have the Government of India got anything to do with the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Yes, Sir.

Mr. B. Das : May I inquire why Government went against the recommendation of the Ministry of Agriculture in Bihar and Orissa, and instead of appointing an independent expert like Mr. Sarangdhar Das to the Indian Sugar Committee, appointed the Director of Agriculture of Bihar and Orissa as an expert on the Indian Sugar Committee, thus making it a packed European Committee ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I have already pointed out that this is a matter for the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research, which has gone into the question most carefully, and which has power, under its rules and regulations, to appoint any Committee it thinks fit. The Committee was not appointed by the Government of India but was appointed by the Indian Council of Agricultural Research after taking into consideration all the names submitted to them.

Mr. B. Das : Will the Honourable Member convey to the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research that this House will not tolerate any packed Committee of so-called departmental experts ?

Mr. President : Order, order.

RENEWAL OF CONTRACTS OF ROYAL AIR FORCE METEOROLOGISTS.

1012. *Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have come to any decision regarding renewal of contracts with the Royal Air Force Meteorologists at present employed separately under the Army Department ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if it is not a fact that the Royal Air Force Meteorologists are doing almost similar work as the Meteorological Department is doing ?

(c) What are the reasons for this duplication of work of the Meteorological Department ?

(d) Is it a fact that most of the work done by the Meteorological Department is utilised by the Royal Air Force ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to state if they intend to abolish the posts of the Royal Air Force Meteorologists in the near future ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) No, Sir. The matter is still under consideration.

(b) Both services perform meteorological functions, but the officers of the Royal Air Force are employed on the investigation of phenomena and the collection of data in direct relation to aviation with which the officers of the Meteorological Department are not concerned.

(c) There is no duplication of work.

(d) Certainly, Sir.

(e) No.

INDIAN REPRESENTATION ON THE COUNCIL OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

1013. *Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the Government of India or their delegates to the League of Nations have at any time demanded permanent representation on the Council of the League of Nations ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Indian Delegation to the League of Nations is always taken as part of the British Delegation, and are Government aware that European Powers are often suspicious of the Indian Delegations ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state if there were ever occasions when the Indian Delegation went contrary to the British Delegation ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) No.

(b) The Government of India have no information, but they are not disposed to believe that the allegations of the Honourable Member have any substance.

(c) The answer to this part of the question would involve the examination of every debate not only in the Assembly of the League but also in each of the six committees of the League, a task which Government do not propose to undertake on behalf of the Honourable Member, who has access to the proceedings of the Assembly.

Mr. B. Das : Sir, may I point out to the Honourable Member that I did not make any allegation but only stated what the impression of the European Powers is ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I do not think that there was any intention to imply that the Honourable Member had made himself responsible for the allegation ; but I am quite prepared to substitute the word " suggestion ".

Diwan Chaman Lall : Why is it that the Government of India have never demanded a permanent seat on the Council ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I am afraid I must ask for notice of that question.

RULES FOR THE INSPECTION OF SUB AND BRANCH POST OFFICES.

1014. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether, under Rule 231 of Inspection Report, Questions, an Inspecting Officer (Superintendent or postal Inspector—moffusil or town) is required, in course of inspection of a sub or branch post office, to ask the sub or the branch postmaster and each of his clerks a few questions on the rules in the Post Office Guide and the Post Office Manual and the Inspecting Officer, under the above rule, is required to be satisfied that the aforesaid officials understand rules ?

(b) Does any rule of the Postal Department authorise the sub or branch postmasters or clerks to ask similar questions to the postal Superintendent or Inspector—town or moffusil ?

(c) If the reply to part (b) above is in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to cite the specific rule and supply a copy of the rule for information of the House ?

(d) Under rule 234 of Inspection, is an Inspecting Officer, in course of his inspection, required to certify the fitness or otherwise of the sub or branch postmaster irrespective of the fact of length of service of the sub or branch postmaster or clerks under sub or branch postmaster ? If so, will Government be pleased to state whether the Inspecting Officer (postal Superintendent or Inspector—of moffusil or town) is also superior in rank and qualification to the sub or branch postmasters or clerks whose work and conduct is so certified by the Inspecting Officer ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c). No.

(d) The first part of the question is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, the deduction which the Honourable Member wants to draw does not necessarily follow from the first part. But as I have already stated in replies to other questions, Government have no doubt that, generally speaking, the duties of Town Inspectors have been, and are, of a more responsible character than those of officials on the ordinary time-scale rates of pay.

RULES FOR POSTAL INSPECTIONS.

1015. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the Superintendents of Post Offices who have rendered more years service in the Department are allowed to inspect the Offices of the Postmaster General or that of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs if it so happens that the Postmaster General or the Director General has put in less service in the Department than the Superintendents of Post Office and Railway Mail Service ? If not, why not ?

(b) Had the clerks who rendered more years service in the Department any authority, before or after the year 1920, to certify the fitness and knowledge of the Post Office Rules of the Inspector (moffusil and town) ? If so, will Government be pleased to cite a specific instance in any postal Circle in which this system was followed ? If not, is it not a fact that, by virtue of superior position and qualifications, the Inspecting Officers including the Postal Town Inspectors of the First Class Head Offices, are vested with the power ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Superintendents of Post Offices do not inspect the offices of the Postmaster General or the Director General, because the duties allotted to them do not provide for this work.

(b) The answer to the first two parts of the question is in the negative. In regard to the third part of the question, I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given to part (d) of his question No. 1014.

INSPECTION OF TOWN, BRANCH AND SUB-POST OFFICES.

1016. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government be pleased to state whether the Postal Town Inspectors of the First Class Head Offices have been inspecting the town, sub and branch offices (both before and after 1920 and September, 1927), in charge of men with longer service ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The answer is in the affirmative.

RULES FOR INSPECTIONS BY TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

1017. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether under rule 306 of the Post Office Manual, Volume VIII (chapter 4) (rule 348, chapter 4 of the old Manual, volume 2), postal Town Inspectors of the First Class Head Offices are required to acquaint themselves with the character of all officials, clerks—senior or junior, sub and branch postmasters and postmen and menials in their jurisdiction of the Town Inspector ?

(b) Is it a fact that they (Town Inspectors) are so required to acquaint themselves with the character of clerks in order to control them effectively ?

(c) If the reply to parts (a) and (b) are in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state (1) whether the postal Town Inspectors, irrespective of their length of service, have been acting in accordance with the Government rule cited above from the time the rule was in force and prior to 1st September, 1927, whether the postal Town Inspectors who so controlled clerks and the branch and sub postmasters on the same scale of pay are in rank and status superior to clerks under the control of the postal Inspectors?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). I understand that Town Inspectors are not required to acquaint themselves with the character of all clerks in their jurisdiction, but only of such officials as are their subordinates. This will also be apparent if the rule quoted by the Honourable Member is read as a whole.

(c) Does not arise.

RULES FOR INSPECTIONS BY TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

1018. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state, with reference to rule 307, chapter 4, Post Office Manual, volume VIII (corresponding to rule 349, chapter 4 of the old Post Office Manual, volume 2) whether it is essential that a postal Town Inspector must possess a practical knowledge of the post office work, as well as a thorough knowledge of the rules in the Manuals and in the Guide?

(b) Is it a fact that his knowledge is so required in order to instruct his subordinates in their duties and also to be able to take charge of a sub or branch post office, if required, as laid down in the aforesaid rule?

(c) If the reply to parts (a) and (b) are in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state whether the Town Inspectors who are so required to instruct the clerks, old or young, are in status and position regarded as superior to clerks irrespective of length of service of the latter?

(d) Is it a fact that the postal Town Inspectors have been discharging these supervisory duties over the clerks and the postmen and menials for a long time prior to 1st September, 1927, as well as prior to 1920?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) The rule lays down that "he should be qualified to instruct his subordinates in their duties", and also that he "should be qualified to take charge of and work a sub or branch office if required".

(c) As the rule stands, the Town Inspector is not required to instruct clerks or other officials. But he should be qualified to instruct his subordinates in their duties, and like any other official who has others serving under him in a subordinate capacity, he is expected to instruct his subordinates in the proper performance of their duties. An official selected for appointment as Town Inspector, must however possess certain special qualifications.

(d) The duties of Town Inspectors are laid down in chapter 4 of the Post Office Manual quoted by the Honourable Member, though there is a qualification at the head of the chapter giving Heads of Circles discretionary powers in regard to the duties of Town Inspectors of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay and Rangoon. I have no reason to suppose that Town Inspectors have not in the past discharged the duties allotted to them in the Manual subject to any subsidiary orders issued by Heads of Circles in the cases specified.

RULES FOR INSPECTIONS BY TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

1019. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that under rule 311, chapter 4 of the Post Office Manual, Volume VIII (rule 353 of chapter 4 of old volume 2), Town Inspectors are required to test the efficiency and honesty of the sub and the branch postmasters?

(b) Is it a fact that they have been so testing the efficiency and honesty of the sub and branch postmasters and the clerks, irrespective of the greater length of service of the latter and also irrespective of age limit of the clerks or sub or branch postmasters from even 1920 and earlier?

(c) Is it not a fact that an officer who is appointed to supervise and control the work of another is regarded by Government as superior in status and rank to the officials whose work and conduct is supervised, irrespective of age and service of the two classes of officials, i.e., supervisory and subordinate?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) Presumably so; but it is not possible for me to give an exact reply without undertaking an investigation into the work done by every Town Inspector during the past ten years, particularly as the "N. B." at the head of chapter 4 of the Post Office Manuals referred to clearly stipulates that the rules contained therein "may be modified in such way as the Head of the Circle may consider necessary, in the case of Town Inspectors of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay and Rangoon".

(c) All I am prepared to say is that, generally, the duties of the former are of a more responsible character than those of the latter.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Does the Honourable Member realise that he is loading the record of the Assembly by incorrect and misleading replies that have been given this morning?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I absolutely refute that suggestion.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Let him realise it all the same.

RULES FOR MEMORIALS FROM MEMBERS OF PROVINCIAL SERVICES.

1020. *Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if under section 96-B, sub-section 12 of the Government of India Act, the Government of India issued comprehensive rules with the approval of the Secretary of State for India, for the guidance of Provincial Governments in the Gazette of India of 21st and 28th June, 1924 (No. F. 472-II-1-23-Circular, Home Department) Rules of Memorials for a dismissed member of the provincial services?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state, if when a memorial is not dealt under these rules by a Provincial Government, or when a memorial is withheld from transmission to the Governor General in Council or the Secretary of State for India or to His Majesty the King Emperor, what definite machinery Government have under them to exercise a check over Provincial Governments to see that no injustice is done to members of the provincial services?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The rules contained in the Home Department notification No. F.472/II-1-23, dated the 21st June, 1924, were not issued under section 96B (2) of the Government of India Act.

(b) As provided in Instruction XIII of the Memorial rules, lists of memorials withheld by Local Governments are forwarded quarterly to the Government of India.

RULES re DISMISSAL OF A MEMBER OF THE PROVINCIAL CIVIL SERVICE.

1021. *Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if rule XIV of the Civil Services (Governors' Provinces) Rules lays down the procedure in cases of dismissal, removal or reduction of a member of the Provincial Civil Service ?

(b) What supervision or machinery of control do the Secretary of State and the Government of India exercise to see that specific enquiry under definite charges was made by a Provincial Government ?

(c) Is it a fact that rule XIV requires that all evidences against the accused officer and his own evidence contradicting the same should be recorded in his presence ?

(d) Do the Government of India scrutinise every such case when an appeal is laid before the Governor General in Council to see that a proper inquiry was made in the particular case as laid down in rule XIV ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b) and (d). The Government of India exercise no supervision over inquiries conducted by a Local Government under rule XIV of the Civil Services (Governors' Provinces) Classification Rules, but they have no reason to doubt that such inquiries are conducted in accordance with the requirements of the rule. In the event of an appeal lying to the Governor General in Council, and of such an appeal being submitted, the question whether the inquiry was conducted in accordance with rule XIV of the Classification Rules would be examined by the Governor General in Council.

(c) No.

APPEALS UNDER THE CIVIL SERVICES (GOVERNORS' PROVINCES) CLASSIFICATION RULES.

1022. *Mr. B. Das : (a) Is it a fact that rule 18 of the Civil Services (Governors' Provinces) Classification Rules lays down that, when a public servant drawing a salary above Rs. 500, is dismissed or suspended there is an appeal to the Governor General in Council and thereafter to the Secretary of State ?

(b) How many such appeals have been received by the Governor General in Council ? Will Government be pleased to state the number of appeals they received from affected persons in different provinces and the decisions, favourable or contrary to the petitions, province by province ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Rule XVIII of the Civil Services (Governors' Provinces) Classification Rules, lays down inter alia that a member of a Provincial Service or an officer holding a special post, who was appointed by the Secretary of State in Council before the commencement of the Government of India Act, 1919, and who is in receipt of a salary of not less than Rs. 500 per mensem, may appeal to the Governor General in Council, and thereafter to the Secretary of State in Council.

(b) Government do not think that any useful purpose will be served by collecting the information asked for in respect of the class of officers referred to above.

LETTER FROM THE SECRETARY OF STATE re APPEALS FROM PROVINCIAL CIVIL SERVANTS.

1023. *Mr. B. Das : (a) Is it a fact that the Secretary of State addressed a letter (letter No. S. & G. 1672/24) to the Provincial Governments drawing special attention that appeals from provincial civil servants should not be withheld ?

(b) Is it a fact that the following lines occur in that letter :

"We have had a good deal of trouble with case of.....a provincial civil officer.....who was dismissed for various causes and has since got the ear of various people in Parliament and elsewhere at Home. The point that has given us most trouble is that some of those who have had to deal with the case have not been able to satisfy their consciences that the inquiry that preceded the termination of.....'s service really squared with the orders of the Government of India in respect of the judicial form and requirements of a personal hearing by the inquiry officer laid down in those orders.....'s case is at present, at any rate quiescent, and the reason I am now writing to you about is that the Rules under 96-B-2 of Act which have recently been published in India contain (in Rule 14) a reproduction of the nature of a properly constituted court before an officer can be dismissed."

"It, therefore, seems a matter of some importance that the rule should be strictly followed. No doubt it will come to the notice of Local Governments in due course but in view of the difficulty that any error in procedure in dismissal cases makes for us here (and for you too probably), I have thought it worth while to draw your attention to the matter"

(c) Did the Government of India issue any special circulars to the Provincial Governments on this letter ?

(d) Did the Government of India devise any special measures of check to see that proper inquiry in each case is made by a Provincial Government under the rule 14 referred to ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) No.

(b) The passage referred to was contained in a demi-official letter from the India Office addressed to the Secretary in the Home Department.

(c) A copy of the India Office letter in question was forwarded to Local Governments, also under cover of a demi-official letter.

(d) No ; but rule XIV has been revised to make the position clear, and was published in Home Department Notification No. F.1/3/28, dated the 25th April, 1929.

APPOINTMENT OF A PERMANENT INDIAN DELEGATE TO THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS OF GENEVA.

1024. *Mr. B. Das : (a) Is it a fact that at Geneva there are permanent offices of constituent nations to watch the interests of their particular countries at the League of Nations ?

(b) Is it a fact that several British Dominions have their permanent offices at Geneva ?

(c) Have Government considered the advisability of sending a permanent delegate to the League of Nations to watch the interests of India ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) The Government of India are aware that certain countries have permanent representatives at Geneva, but with the exception of Canada, they have no information whether these countries also maintain permanent offices there. The purpose of maintaining such representatives is understood to be to keep the country informed of what is going on at Geneva and to be of use to delegates, rather than to watch the interests of the country concerned.

(b) Of the British Dominions, Canada and the Irish Free State are known to have permanent representatives at Geneva. Canada also maintains a separate office there but it is not known whether the Irish Free State does so.

(c) The expression "permanent delegate" is not understood. Government have, in consultation with the India Office and the High Commissioner, examined the question of maintaining a representative at Geneva for the purpose of rendering service to Indian delegations, and have reached the conclusion that, for the present, there would be no advantage in doing so.

REDUCTION OF PASSENGER TRAINS BETWEEN MOGHALSARAI AND MOKAMEH.

1025. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the action of the East Indian Railway authorities in reducing the number of passenger trains running between Moghalsarai and Mokameh from 2 to 1 each way ?

(b) Are Government aware that Dinapore has been chosen to be a suitable place for trains to start and terminate ?

(c) Has Dinapore any other importance except that it is the divisional headquarters of the East Indian Railway ?

(d) Will Government state reasons for giving Dinapore preference over Patna, the seat of the Local Government ?

(e) Will Government state the action they have taken or propose to take to stop such action of the Railway ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The matter is one which is within the competence of the Agent, but a report will be called for and the result communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

EXPENDITURE ON THE ECCLESIASTICAL ESTABLISHMENT.

1026. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that expenditure on the Ecclesiastical establishment of the Government in the year 1911-12 was 19.15 lakhs ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Incheape Committee unanimously recommended a reduction of 2 lakhs a year in the expenses of the Department ?

(c) Is it also a fact that Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, a member of the said Committee, recommended a further reduction of 11.09 lakhs ?

(d) Is it a fact that, in the year 1927-28, the expenditure of the said Department was 33.94 lakhs ?

(e) If any of the facts or figures given in parts (a) to (d) be incorrect, will Government kindly correct them ?

(f) Will Government please state if the recommendations of the Incheape Committee in respect of the Ecclesiastical Department were given effect to ? If so, to what extent and if not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) I presume the Honourable Member is referring to the year 1913-14. The expenditure in that year was 19.15 lakhs.

(b) The Committee recommended that the provision for 1923-24 should be limited to 31.83 lakhs, 2 lakhs less than the budget estimate for 1922-23.

(c) Yes.

(d) In 1927-28 Ecclesiastical expenditure charged to Civil Estimates was Rs. 32.29 lakhs, but this amount included an expenditure of Rs. 40,000 on Ecclesiastical works in the United Provinces, which, prior to 1924-25, was debited to the Major Head "Civil Works".

(e) The Honourable Member is referred to the replies to parts (a) and (d) above.

(f) Yes, Sir. The Ecclesiastical expenditure in 1927-28, exclusive of the expenditure on Ecclesiastical works in the United Provinces which in 1923-24 was debited to "Civil Works", was Rs. 31.89 lakhs as against a figure of Rs. 31.83 lakhs recommended by the Indian Retrenchment Committee. The Committee recommended a reduction of 21 in the number of Chaplains. The number actually reduced was 28.

PARTICULARS OF ECCLESIASTICAL ESTABLISHMENT AND OF GRANTS GIVEN TO CHURCHES.

1027. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Will Government please state the number of Bishops, Chaplains, and other officers of the Ecclesiastical Department maintained by them separately for each year during the last three years ?

(b) Will Government please state the amount of grants given to different Christian churches during the last three years, stating (i) the names of the churches, (ii) the amount paid to each of them, and (iii) the purpose of the grant ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) The figures are as follows :

(i) Bishops, three throughout the period in question.

(ii) Chaplains of the Church of England,

139 in 1926,

140 in 1927,

140 in 1928,

(iii) Chaplains of the Church of Scotland,

18 in 1926,

17 in 1927,

17 in 1928,

(b) The information is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

MISSION WORK BY OFFICERS OF THE ECCLESIASTICAL ESTABLISHMENT.

1028. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Are officers of the Ecclesiastical Department allowed to do mission work ?

(b) Is it a fact that servants of the Government of India are not allowed to be members of the Hindu Sabha ? If so, will Government please state reasons for it ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Chaplains of the Indian Ecclesiastical establishment do not engage in mission work.

(b) The Government of India have not issued any such orders. On the general question of the relations of public servants to political and communal organization, Government consider that it is in the interest of the public service that the activities of Government servants should not expose them to the charge of partisanship, or be the cause of any reasonable suspicion in the minds of any section of the community that their impartiality is impaired thereby.

PUBLIC SERVICE EXAMINATION FOR "DEPARTMENTAL CANDIDATES".

1029. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that the Public Service Commission examination for departmental candidates going to be held in November next ? If so, will Government please define the term "departmental candidates" ?

(b) Is there any likelihood of a competitive examination being held simultaneously with the aforesaid examination in order to enable outsiders to qualify themselves for the ministerial services in the Government of India Secretariat ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The answer is in the affirmative. The term "departmental candidates" applies to qualified persons who are already employed in the Government of India Secretariat and attached offices, recruitment for which is made through the agency of the Public Service Commission.

(b) No.

ADMISSION OF CERTAIN ANGLO-INDIANS TO THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION EXAMINATION.

1030. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that employees of the late Army Canteen Board and some other Anglo-Indians who are working temporarily and have not passed the examination of the Public Service Commission have been allowed to appear at the next examination ?

(b) Is it a fact that other temporary unpassed hands who have been working in the same way as the Anglo-Indians have not been allowed to sit at the aforesaid examinations in spite of their applications ? If so, what is the reason for allowing Anglo-Indians and not others ?

(c) Do Government propose to reconsider their cases ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Employees of the late Army Canteen Board and a few employees of certain other offices have been admitted because they were given a guarantee in the past that they would be allowed to appear at the next qualifying examination. This exception is not confined to Anglo-Indians nor to any other community.

(b) Where no guarantee has been given in the past, applications from temporary unpassed clerks have been refused.

(c) No.

CANDIDATES PASSED BY THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

1031. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. Abdul Ghani, a second division clerk in the Army Headquarters, was recently declared fit for employment in the first division of the Secretariat by the Public Service Commission ?

(b) Is it a fact that Mr. Shamoon Ahmad was also declared passed for the first division of the Secretariat ?

(c) Is it a fact that both of them appeared at the last competitive examination of the Public Service Commission held in 1926 ?

(d) How many marks did they obtain ? Were there any other candidates who had obtained more marks but were not declared successful ? If so, will Government state their number, names, and marks ?

(e) If none had obtained more marks than the aforesaid two gentlemen will Government be pleased to lay on the table of the House the marks of all the candidates who appeared at the last examination of the Public Service Commission ?

(f) If the aforesaid two gentlemen were given preference over others, will Government state the reasons for it ?

(g) Is it a fact that others, though obtaining higher marks were not given preference in appointment simply because they belonged to a particular community ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) to (c). Yes.

(d) to (g). I would refer the Honourable Member to the Home Department Notification No. F. 160/27-Public, dated the 22nd March, 1927. The name of Mr. M. A. Ghani was later added to the list of Muslim candidates qualified for employment in the Upper Division as he was next in order of merit.

COMMUNAL DISCRIMINATION IN THE POSTAL SERVICE IN BIHAR AND ORISSA.

1032. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : Is it a fact that a circular letter has been issued to the effect that a certain percentage of services in the post offices of Bihar and Orissa should be reserved for members of a particular community ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons or this communal discrimination in the services ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : The reply to the first part of the question is in the negative, and the second part therefore does not arise.

GRANT OF NON-ENTITLED PASSAGES TO INDIANS UNDER ARMY REGULATIONS.

1033. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that under Army Regulations, India, Volume X, European clerks of the Army Headquarters are granted non-entitled or indulgence passages to the United Kingdom and back to India ?

(b) Is it a fact that there is nothing in the rules to prevent the concession from being granted to Indians ?

(c) If the reply to part (b) be in the affirmative, will Government please state whether passages under the rules have ever been granted to Indians ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Yes, provided that spare accommodation is available on transports during the trooping season.

(b) Yes.

(c) No applications for such passages have been received from Indians. In actual practice the concession is now a dead letter because spare accommodation is now practically never available on transports.

TRANSFER TO DELHI OF THE OFFICES OF THE DEPUTY CONTROLLER OF PRINTING AND STATIONERY AND THE IMPERIAL LIBRARY.

1034. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that the offices of the Deputy Controller of Printing and Stationery and the Imperial Library were located at Calcutta when the Headquarters of the Government of India offices were in Calcutta ?

(b) Is it a fact that most of the other Central Offices have since been transferred from Calcutta to New Delhi ?

(c) When do Government propose to consider the question of transferring these two offices also to New Delhi ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The answer is in the affirmative. As regards the office of the Deputy Controller of Printing and Stationery, I may explain that, though there was, at the time when Calcutta was the headquarters of the Government of India, an officer called the Deputy Controller of Printing and Stationery, he had no separate office but worked in the office of the Controller of Printing and Stationery, which has since 1924 been transferred from Calcutta to Delhi. There is now no longer a Deputy Controller of Printing and Stationery, but there is a Deputy Controller of Stationery in charge of the Central Stationery Office at Calcutta.

(b) A certain number of offices of the Government of India have been removed from Calcutta to Delhi.

(c) Government have considered the question of removing the Central Stationery Office and the Imperial Library to Delhi and have decided not to do so.

SCALE OF PAY OF ARMY HEADQUARTERS CLERKS.

1035. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : Is it a fact that the Government of India have under their consideration the question of revising the scale of pay of the Army headquarters clerks ? If so, when is a decision likely to be arrived at ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Yes ; but it is not possible to say when a decision will be arrived at.

LATE HOURS OF WORK IN THE INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT AND FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

1036. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : Is it a fact that on account of an insufficient number of hands, the ministerial staff is compelled to work beyond office hours in the Indian Stores and the Finance Departments ? If so, why is not the staff increased nor an extra allowance paid to the clerks working beyond office hours ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : As regards the Indian Stores Department, I have ascertained that it is not a fact that the ministerial staff is required to work extra hours on account of their strength being inadequate. As regards the Finance Department, the Honourable Member is correct in his surmise that work in the Finance Department is very heavy indeed ; and there are times in the year, notably during the budget season and the sessions of the Legislature, when to many of the officials of the Department, including the Finance Member himself, it is a physical impossibility for the necessary work to be accomplished between the official hours of 10-30 A.M. to 4-30 P.M. In the last year or so, the Standing Finance Committee and the Legislative Assembly have approved certain increases of staff which the Finance Department, in putting forward the proposals, considered to be fully justified, and on certain occasions, as I explained in my answer to starred question No. 945 yesterday, bonuses or other payments are made to members of the ministerial establishment for overtime work. But in general I can say, and it is with pleasure and pride in the Department that I can say it, the situation is met by a devotion to duty on the part of the staff which has more than once met with recognition from members of this Assembly. The hard work is not only done, but is done willingly and uncomplainingly, and while the point of view which the Honourable Member has put forward must always receive attention, I am afraid it is not practicable to secure that office hours shall always be rigidly observed, or, to prescribe precise and strict conditions as regards overtime work in the circumstances with which we have to deal.

QUALIFICATIONS OF CERTAIN CLERKS EXAMINED BY THE STAFF SELECTION BOARD IN 1922.

1037. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that some of the men who qualified themselves as clerks, attached offices, in the examination held by the late Staff Selection Board in 1922 have since been declared qualified for higher grades, (e.g., second division Secretariat, 1st division attached offices, etc.), without passing any further examination ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government please state the names of such clerks together with their educational qualifications and the reasons for their being so treated ?

The Honourable Sir James Ormerod : (a) Yes ; in three cases.

(b) I am not prepared to disclose the names. The candidates in question appeared in the 1922 examination as outsiders and had entered their names only for examination as clerks in an attached office. As, however, they had the educational qualifications required for higher categories, and had obtained the requisite number of marks, they were declared qualified for those categories.

HEAVY RAILWAY TRAFFIC FROM SIMLA ON THE 15TH OF OCTOBER.

1038. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that the Assistant Operating Officer, North Western Railway, Simla, has informed the Government of India that it will not be possible for the Railway Administration to cope with the heavy rush on the 15th of October and on the following days on account of almost all the offices of the Government of India moving on or about the 15th October ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to issue instructions to the various offices so that some of them may fix an earlier date to avoid rush on one particular date ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The railway authorities have informed Departments of the Government of India that an extra strain will be placed on the Kalka Simla section of the line from the 7th to 19th October this year, and have asked the Departments to assist the Railway by forwarding their advance records and office equipment at an earlier date if it is possible to do so.

(b) No. The present orders admit of some latitude in the matter of dates.

POSTPONEMENT OF THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION DEPARTMENTAL EXAMINATION.

1039. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that the public Service Commission proposed to hold in November, 1929, an examination confined to departmental candidates for promotion to 1st and 2nd divisions ?

(b) Is it also a fact that, owing to retrenchments in Army Headquarters offices, several permanent 1st and 2nd division clerks have become surplus and are shown as supernumerary ?

(c) Is it a fact that these supernumerary men are not actually required in the grades in which they are shown as supernumerary but are kept only till such time as they can be absorbed in their own or other offices ?

(d) Is it a fact that 1st division supernumerary men, when absorbed elsewhere are to be replaced by 2nd division men and 2nd division supernumerary men by 3rd division men, and that so long as this is not done Government are being put to extra expense ?

(e) Is it a fact that so far there have not been sufficient vacancies in which these men could be absorbed ?

(f) In view of the above, do Government propose to postpone the Public Service Commission examination referred to in part (a) in order that the supernumerary men in the Army Headquarters offices might be absorbed as early as possible and the Government relieved of the extra expenditure on their account ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) to (e). Yes.

(f) No. No examination has been held since 1926, and postponement would be unfair to the men concerned in other Departments.

POSTPONEMENT OF THE FORTHCOMING PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION EXAMINATION.

1040. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that the Government of India offices will open in full in New Delhi not earlier than the last week of October ?

(b) Is it a fact that the move involves a considerable dislocation of work and there is usually accumulation of work after the move ?

(c) If the replies to parts (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, do Government propose, in the interests of office work, that the forthcoming examination of the Public Service Commission for the Government of India offices should be postponed to a later date so that the candidates may have sufficient time after settling in New Delhi to prepare themselves for the examination without interference with their office duties ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The date fixed for the opening of the Government of India offices at Delhi is the 21st October, 1929.

(b) Some temporary dislocation and accumulation of work at the time of the move is I am afraid unavoidable.

(c) Government see no reason to think that the work of the Government of India offices will suffer. In the interests of some of the candidates themselves postponement of the examination is impossible.

POSTPONEMENT OF THE FORTHCOMING PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION EXAMINATION.

1041. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) What is the number of candidates likely to appear at the forthcoming Public Service Commission examination for ministerial establishments of the Government of India ?

(b) Is it a fact that there is already a large number of supernumerary men in Army Headquarters offices who have to be provided in permanent vacancies ?

(c) If the reply to part (b) is in the affirmative, do Government propose to consider the desirability of postponing the proposed examination till all or most of the supernumerary men in the Army Headquarters have been absorbed ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) It is expected that about 500 departmental candidates will appear at the forthcoming Ministerial Selection Branch qualifying examination of the Public Service Commission.

(b) Yes, they will be treated as supernumeraries until absorbed in vacancies.

(c) No, for the reason already given by me in reply to question No. 1040.

NUMBERS OF OFFICERS, CLERKS, ETC., IN ATTACHED OFFICES.

1042. *Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : (a) Will Government please lay on the table a statement showing the total number of officers, clerks, assistants, stenographers, and Superintendents (including Chief Superintendents) in each of the attached offices of the Government of India ?

(b) Will Government please state the number of men in each of the attached offices employed (i) in Cash Branch (ii) in General Section ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) I regret that the information is not readily available and could not be collected without an undue amount of labour.

(b) I understand there are one or more Cashiers in each attached office, according to the amount of work involved. There are General Sections in some, but not in all such offices, as the nature of the work varies. If the Honourable Member wishes to obtain information showing the comparative staffing of these branches, I am afraid the information for which he asks will not help him, since a mere statement of persons employed will be of no value for this purpose without a statement of the work to be done. If he will be good enough to state the object of his question, I will be glad to consider whether the collection of the information will assist him.

APPOINTMENT OF SIKHS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF ARCHÆOLOGY.

1043. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) With reference to the reply given to my question on the 5th September, 1929, will Government please state the qualifications of the best Sikh applicants for appointment in the office of the Director General of Archæology ?

(b) How many of them were graduates ?

(c) What are the educational qualifications of men actually appointed in that office during the past three years ?

(d) In what respect were the qualifications of Sikh applicants considered unsuitable ?

(e) Will Government please state the reasons for their decision to appoint a Muslim in the Muslim vacancy in July last ?

(f) Is this principle followed in all offices under Government or was it specifically framed for filling this particular vacancy ?

(g) Will Government please quote an instance in which a Sikh was appointed in a Sikh vacancy ?

(h) In what sort of vacancy do Government propose to appoint a Sikh and when is it likely to occur ?

(i) What steps do Government propose to take to invite applications from suitable Sikhs for this office ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The best of the Sikh applicants were graduates, but none of them had any office experience.

(b) Two.

(c) A statement showing the qualifications of the men appointed during the past three years is laid on the table.

(d) Because they had had no office experience.

(e) Not to let their representation in the Department fall lower, and as a suitable Muhammadan candidate was available, he was appointed.

(f) It is not contrary to the principle of keeping adequacy of representation of communities in mind when filling fresh vacancies.

(g) That would need issuing a circular to collect information on the subject.

(h) & (i). The representation of Sikhs in the Department of Education, Health and Lands is 5.62 per cent., and cannot be said to be inadequate in any way, though in the office of the Archæological Department there is no Sikh.

Statement showing the qualifications of the men appointed in the office of the Director General of Archæology in India during the past three years

- (1) Shastri, M.A., M.O.L., Trained Librarian.
- (2) Matriculate. Passed the examination held by the Public Service Commission. Knows shorthand and typewriting. Had one year's office experience.
- (3) Matriculate. Passed the examination held by the Public Service Commission. Knows shorthand, typewriting and accounts. Had six years' office experience.
- (4) Matriculate. Knows shorthand, typewriting and accounts. Had five years' office experience.
- (5) Transferred from another Government office where he had three years' permanent service.
- (6) Read up to the Intermediate. Passed the Berlin Standard Examination, which is believed to be equivalent to the B.A. Degree of an Indian University. Knows shorthand, typewriting and German. Had four years' office experience.
- (7) Was appointed in a three months' temporary vacancy in view of his previous experience of work in the office of the Director General of Archæology.

PROPORTION OF MUHAMMADANS APPOINTED IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF ARCHÆOLOGY.

1044. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the assistant in charge of establishment cases in the office of the Director General of Archæology is a Muhammadan ?

(b) When was he appointed ?

(c) Since then how many vacancies have occurred in that office and how many of them have been filled by Muhammadans ?

(d) What was the proportion of Muhammadans in this office prior to his appointment and what is it now ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) No.

(b), (c) and (d). Do not arise.

SHORT NOTICE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

SHORTAGE OF QUARTERS IN NEW DELHI.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : Sir, I beg to ask the short notice question of which I have given notice (a) Is it a fact that the move dates of the Government of India have been fixed earlier this year than last year ?

(b) Is it a fact that more offices are moving to New Delhi this year than last year ?

(c) Is it a fact that, owing to this cause, there is a great dearth of quarters for allotment to assistants and clerks and officers in Departments which have been moving down to New Delhi all along ?

(d) How is it proposed to provide quarters for clerks and others for whom it may be decided at the last moment that no quarters can be allotted ?

(e) Do Government propose to consider the desirability of giving at least three months' notice to clerks and assistants who cannot be given any Government quarters, so that they may be able to make their own arrangements ?

(f) Is it a fact that allotments for the coming Delhi season have not yet been received in Simla in all the Departments though less than a month remains for the move ?

(g) Is it a fact that, last year, the allotments were received very late and thereby great hardship was caused to clerks and others who were not provided with quarters ?

(h) Do Government propose to consider the advisability of allotting quarters in full to those offices which must move down to Delhi of necessity, giving to the other offices the remainder, if any ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) It is a fact that date fixed for the move from Simla to New Delhi will be earlier this year than it was last year.

(b) Yes.

(c) There is a great dearth of quarters for allotment to staff of all grades, and the shortage is of course increased when a larger number of staff move to New Delhi.

(d) Staff to whom quarters cannot be allotted make private arrangements. The question of building additional quarters is engaging the attention of Government.

(e) and (h). Government intend to recast the house accommodation rules and will do all that is possible to ensure that allotments are made in the manner which will cause the least general inconvenience, with due regard to the requirements of the offices whose staff have to be provided for.

(f) I understand that most of the allotments have been made. I have caused instructions to be issued to the Estate Officer to expedite the issue of any allotments still to be made.

(g) I understand that the allotment orders were issued about the 20th September last year. As I have stated, special attention will be paid in recasting the rules to making such provision as is possible to prevent the recurrence of inconvenience of this kind.

REPORTERS APPOINTED FROM ENGLAND FOR THE ROYAL COMMISSION ON LABOUR.

*Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Sir, with your permission I beg to ask the short notice question of which I gave notice : (a) With reference to the reply to starred question No. 543 in the Legislative Assembly on the 1st March, 1924, will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the Royal Commission on Labour proposes to bring two reporters all the way from England at a cost of nearly Rs. 2,000 each per mensem ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state why, in spite of the representations made to the India Office, as promised in the reply to part (7) of the question referred to in part (a), English reporters are engaged to report the proceedings of the Commission ?

(c) Do Government propose to protest against the employment of reporters from England at such a heavy cost to the Indian taxpayer and to utilise the service of Indian reporters ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes. The cost will be about Rs. 1,900 per mensem for each Reporter while in India.

(b) As the practice in the selection of reporting staff for Royal Commissions is to consult the Chairman's views and to follow them wherever practicable, the Secretary of State was unable to give any undertaking which would limit the choice of the reporting staff. Sanction to the entertainment of the English reporters in the present instance was given by the Secretary of State at the request of the Chairman of the Royal Commission on Labour.

(c) The Government of India have already made a representation to the Secretary of State in this connection, and the latter has agreed to reconsider the question in time before the 1930-31 tour of the Commission, it being too late now to reconsider the terms sanctioned for the English reporters for the 1929-30 tour.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do Government realise that this Legislature is put in a somewhat awkward position if this matter has to be voted upon ?

12 Noon.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I believe the expenditure is non-votable.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Does not that imply some reflection upon the Indian reporters whose efficiency is so well-known to every Member of this House ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That is a question of opinion, but I do not think that any such reflection is intended.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware that Sir Malcolm Hailey, in reply to the question referred to by my Honourable friend Mr. Jamnadas Mehta, said, "We believe that the work can be satisfactorily done in India without importing reporters from England" ? Further on, he said, "We have always held ourselves that adequate reporting can be obtained in India".

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have no reason to disbelieve that. I have already explained the reasons which led to the engagement of these particular reporters.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : What are the special qualifications of those reporters which are not to be found in the reporters in this country ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have never suggested that any special qualifications are possessed by these people.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : They are being engaged because they are Europeans, that is the only reason.

Diwan Chaman Lal : Is it the intention of the Government of India to make a strong protest to the Secretary of State against the action taken by him in this matter ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have already stated that we have made representations to the Secretary of State on the subject.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it not a fact that reporters from England were brought out on the occasion when the Simon Commission came out ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have no knowledge of that fact, Sir.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : The Honourable the Home Member may be able to enlighten us. He is here.

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

INCONVENIENT TIMINGS OF CERTAIN TRAINS.

221. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that previously there used to be three trains from Delhi and the Rewari Fazilka section of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway and that since the revision of the time table last year, the connection between the Delhi Express leaving Delhi at 8-25, and the passenger train No. 24 between Rewari and Bhatinda has been discontinued, resulting in great inconvenience to the passengers destined for stations between Rewari and Bhatinda ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) is in the affirmative, will Government kindly state why this connection was discontinued ?

(c) Do Government propose to restore the connection in the near future ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am afraid it is not possible for Government to take part in the preparation of time tables, but I will send a copy of the Honourable Member's question and of my answer to the Agent of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway for such action as he may consider necessary.

BOOKING OFFICES AT DELHI JUNCTION STATION.

222. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Are Government aware that there is a general complaint that booking offices are not kept open for issue of tickets at the times fixed by the Railway Administrations ?

(b) Were any instructions issued by any of the Railway Administrations in this behalf during the last two years ?

(c) Have Government taken any action in this behalf against the booking clerks of Delhi Junction during the last two years ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) This question has been receiving special attention from the Railway Board, the Central Advisory Council and Railway Administrations during the last year or two. Special instructions have been issued to railways, and in May last they were asked to submit a report by November next as to what practical steps have been taken to ensure that booking office windows are opened at the times fixed by the Railway Administration.

(b) Yes.

(c) Government are not aware of any special complaints having been made with regard to the arrangements for booking at Delhi Junction.

PROVISION OF INTERMEDIATE CLASS ACCOMMODATION ON CERTAIN SECTIONS OF THE BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.

223. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Are Government aware that, except in one train, there is no intermediate class accommodation provided on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway on the Delhi-Colaba (metre gauge) section as well as the Rewari to Fazilka section ?

(b) Do Government propose to arrange that intermediate class accommodation be provided in every train running between the above mentioned sections ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the reply given by Mr. Parsons to Rai Bahadur Tarit Bhusan Roy's question No. 233 on the 30th of January, 1929.

THIRD CLASS FARES ON THE BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.

224. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) When were the third class fares last reduced on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, for distances below 300 miles ?

(b) Is it a fact that the incidence of fare per mile on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway is greater than on the North Western, East Indian, and Great Indian Peninsula Railways in regard to all the classes, for distances below 300 miles ? If so, by what amount ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) On the 1st of August, 1928.

(b) I would refer the Honourable Member to the statement laid on the table by me in connection with Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh's question No. 1440 on the 3rd April, 1929, which contains the information which he desires to know.

THIRD CLASS FARES ON EXPRESS TRAINS ON THE BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.

225. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that 3rd class passengers travelling by Express trains on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway have to pay the fares fixed for mail trains ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) is in the affirmative, will Government kindly state if the rule is the same on North Western, East Indian and Great Indian Peninsula Railways ?

(c) What is the ground of distinction, if any ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) The fares are not entirely uniform on all railways, owing to the diversity of financial and other conditions.

INTRODUCTION OF RETURN TICKET CONCESSION ON THE BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.

226. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that no ordinary or week-end return tickets are issued by the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway to intermediate and third class passengers?

(b) Are such tickets issued to intermediate and third class passengers on any State Railways?

(c) Have Government ever insisted on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Administration bringing the concessions to passengers of the various classes into line with those of the State Railways?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) I presume by ordinary tickets the Honourable Member refers to return tickets at a reduced rate, and the reply is in the affirmative.

(b) Yes.

(c) It is for the Agent to decide whether the issue of such tickets is likely to be profitable. A copy of the Honourable Member's question and of this reply will be sent to him.

RECRUITMENT OF ENGINEERS FROM ENGLAND FOR THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

227. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : Is it a fact that short-term covenanted engineers were recruited from England and posted to the open section of the North Western Railway, and that their terms of covenant were extended, and is it also a fact that qualified Indian engineers holding Indian and English University degrees could be found in sufficient numbers? If so, will Government please state the reasons and circumstances why the former were recruited and their terms extended?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Thirteen short-term engineers from England and nine Indian short-term engineers were recruited mainly for the period from the end of 1925 to the early months of 1927 to enable the railways to cope with the increased programme of new open line works and new construction. Temporary engineers are frequently posted for open line new works and maintenance work to replace temporarily officers in the permanent cadre who are posted to new construction, in order that the latter may obtain experience of this class of work.

Covenants of short-term engineers are occasionally extended when there are vacant posts for which they possess special qualifications.

REDUCTION OF MR. BRIJ LAL FROM THE POST OF TICKET COLLECTOR, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

228. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (a) Is it a fact that Brij Lal, ticket collector at Lahore Railway Station, was at first transferred to Amritsar as a consequence of his having helped a passenger by asking a coolie to charge proper dues from him and then he was reduced to the post of a train clerk?

(b) What was the length of service of Brij Lal, ticket collector?

(c) Was the case of the said Brij Lal commented upon in The Hindu Herald and if so, was the amount of punishment influenced by the fact of such comment?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have seen the article which appeared in the Hindu Herald. The matter is one with which the Agent of the Railway is fully competent to deal and I am sending a copy of the question to him.

ARTICLE IN THE Hindu Herald.

229. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : Has the attention of Government been called to the piece of news contained under the heading "Through the Window" in The Hindu Herald, dated 31st August, 1929? Have the Railway authorities taken any action in the matter? If so, what?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. Regarding the second part of the question, Government have no information, but think it very unlikely that any useful inquiry could have been made by the Railway Administration unless the writer of the newspaper article wrote to the Railway giving his name and was prepared to identify the ticket collector in question.

FREE ALLOWANCE OF LUGGAGE FOR INTERMEDIATE AND THIRD CLASS RAILWAY PASSENGERS.

230. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (1) Are Government aware that there is a very widespread dissatisfaction about the weight of luggage allowed free for passengers of the third and intermediate classes (15 and 20 seers, respectively) as well as in respect of the rates charged for such luggage?

(2) Have Government seen the comment in this connection appearing in The Hindu Herald, dated 31st August, 1929?

(3) Do Government realise that these high freight rates cause great loss to the earnings of the railways and corruption in the subordinate staff of the railways?

(4) Do Government propose to consider this question at an early date?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (1) Government are aware that there is a widespread demand for an enhancement in the free allowance of luggage, but it has not been represented to Government that the existing rates charged are unduly high.

(2) Yes.

(3) No.

(4) The question of free allowance is already under consideration. The luggage rates were reduced by 15 per cent. in January last and further reduction is not contemplated at present.

STAFF OF THE OFFICE OF THE ROYAL COMMISSION ON LABOUR.

231. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (1) Is it a fact that the selection of staff for the Office of the Royal Commission on Labour has recently been made ? If so, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement giving the names of Superintendents, assistants, clerks, etc., appointed and the different communities to which they belong ?

(2) Is it a fact that the selection of men has been made by the Assistant Secretary of the Commission ?

(3) Is it a fact that Mr. Harbans Lal, a clerk of the Central Board of Revenue on Rs. 120 p. m., has been appointed as Cashier of the Commission on Rs. 300 per mensem ? If so, on what considerations ?

(4) Will Government be pleased to state the names of the Committees and Commissions in which Mr. Green and Mr. Harbans Lal have worked together ? Is Mr. Green entirely responsible for the appointment of Mr. Harbans Lal on the Commission ?

(5) Is it a fact that while Messrs. Green and Harbans Lal were employed on the Hartog Committee, each had a peon employed at his house in Delhi and they continued to draw the usual travelling and daily allowances admissible to them as on tour ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (1) The selection of the staff has almost been completed, but only a small proportion of the men have been appointed. A statement giving the names of the men appointed or selected and showing the communities to which they belong is being sent to the Honourable Member, and a copy will be placed in the Library of the House.

(2) No. The selection is made in every case by the Joint Secretary to the Royal Commission on Labour.

(3) No selection has yet been made for the post of Cashier. Mr. Harbans Lal is one of the candidates for the post.

(4) Mr. Green and Mr. Harbans Lal have worked together on the following Committees :

The Indian Mercantile Marine Committee,

The Education Committee of the Indian Statutory Commission, and

The Primary Education Committee for Centrally Administered Areas.

The second part of the question does not arise.

(5) The answer is in the negative.

CONTRIBUTIONS BY INDIAN SOLDIERS TO THE KSHATTRIYA SAMITY.

232. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that some eight or ten years ago, the Commanding Officers of some Royal Garhwal Regiments asked the soldiers and Indian commissioned officers to contribute one month's pay towards the funds of the Kshattriya Samity ? If so, how much money was collected, and to whom was it paid ?

(b) How much of that money is already spent ; and what is the balance left ; and where it is kept ?

(c) What sum out of it has been awarded to sons of soldiers in the shape of scholarships ? And how much is spent in the publication of a newspaper ?

(d) Is the account audited, and made available to soldiers for their information ?

(e) How is the balance of the money, if any, to be utilized ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The information is being collected and will be furnished to the Honourable Member in due course.

TRANSFERS IN THE POSTAL DEPARTMENT.

233. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the Government of India have issued orders under No. 77/Pte., dated the 20th October, 1927, that transfers in the Postal Department from a higher to a lower scale of pay should be made only at the request of the official, it being clearly understood that no pressure should in such a case be brought to bear upon the individual concerned who is free to accept or decline the transfer ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, in his letter No. E.A.O.-251/28, dated the 23rd June, 1928, has ordered that an official who has passed the Postal Accountant's Examination should not be transferred from a higher to a lower time-scale of pay except with his consent and request ?

(c) Is it a fact that Mr. G. N. Ghose, Accountant, Benares City Post Office, in the scale of Rs. 40—140 was transferred on a lower scale by the Postmaster General, United Provinces Circle, as Accountant, Gazipore Post Office, in the scale of Rs. 35—135 without the official's consent and request, and that even his appeal to re-transfer him back to his original scale was rejected ?

(d) If the reply to points (a), (b) and (c) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state why in contravention of their orders transfers from a higher to a lower scale of pay have been effected in the United Provinces Circle ? Do Government propose to cancel such transfers, restoring the officials to their original scales ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes, the gist of the orders referred to is substantially as stated by the Honourable Member.

(c) and (d). The matter is being inquired into and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

L19CPB(LA)

GRANT OF COMPENSATORY ALLOWANCE TO NON-GAZETTED OFFICERS OF THE POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS DEPARTMENT.

242. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that compensatory allowance was granted to the gazetted officers of the Posts and Telegraphs Department about six years ago ?

(b) Is it a fact that the case of compensatory allowance for the non-gazetted officers has been under consideration of Government for the last six years, and has not yet been settled ?

(c) If reply to (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for delay in the case of non-gazetted officials, and when it is likely to be finally settled ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to name the places for which compensatory allowance will be sanctioned ?

(e) Is it a fact that no compensatory allowance has been sanctioned for the Rangoon Telegraph Office ?

(f) Are Government aware that high cost of living prevails at Rangoon ?

(g) If reply to (b) and (c) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to grant compensatory allowance at Rangoon ? If not, why not ?

(h) With reference to the reply given to the starred question No. 478 (c) of Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi on 11th February, 1929, regarding compensatory allowance, will Government be pleased to state if all the subordinate staff of Traffic and Engineering Branches in the Burma Circle of the Telegraph Department have been included in the scheme for compensatory allowance that has been sanctioned ? If not, which of the staff has been excluded ?

(i) Do Government propose to include the names of those thus excluded in any further scheme of compensatory allowance ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes, in 1924, at Bombay, Calcutta, Karachi, Madras and Rangoon only.

(b) No. A general review of existing compensatory allowances granted to low paid subordinates of the Posts and Telegraphs Department was initiated by the Director General in 1926.

(c) I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to part (c) of the reply given in this House to Mr. Abdul Latif Sahib Farookhi's starred question No. 478 on the 11th February, 1929.

(d) Until the general review now in progress is completed, it is not possible to specify the places for which compensatory allowance will be sanctioned.

(e) No, except in the case of classes of officials whose pay has been fixed with reference to local conditions.

(f) Yes.

(g) It is presumed that the Honourable Member refers to parts (e) and (f), not to (b) and (c). In view of the reply to part (e), this part does not arise. Compensatory allowances have actually been sanctioned for certain classes of officials at Rangoon where necessary.

(h) and (i). The compensatory allowance scheme sanctioned for Burma applies only to ordinary time-scale clerks and other lower paid subordinates. In this connection I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to paragraph 5 of the Memorandum, dated the 24th January, 1928, discussed at the meeting of the Standing Finance Committee dated the 31st January, 1928. The cases of other officials will be reviewed later on.

RECRUITMENT OF CANDIDATES TO THE SIGNALLING BRANCH OF THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

243. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that the Director General has issued a circular for recruitment of candidates in the Signalling Branch of the Telegraph Department ?

(b) Is it a fact that in working the new rules, a candidate getting a higher place in order of merit in the competitive examination will be superseded by a candidate of another community getting a lower place in the same competitive examination to adjust communal inequalities ?

(c) If reply to (b) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what will be the proportion or percentage of such communal recruitment, and what will be the basis for the same ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state if direct recruitment in General and Station services has been started according to the new rules ?

(e) If reply to part (d) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state whether recruitment through schools and homes will be still continued ? If so, how long ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) This may possibly occur.

(c) To the extent of one-third of the vacancies to be filled by direct recruitment from outside the Department. With regard to the basis, the attention of the Honourable Member is invited to part (a) of the reply given on the 3rd September, 1929, to Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim's starred question No. 85.

(d) Recruitment according to the new rules has not yet commenced.

(e) Recruitment through approved schools will definitely cease from the 31st December, 1929.

RE-EXAMINATION FOR GENERAL SERVICE OF STATION SERVICE TELEGRAPHISTS.

244. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. Sams, the then Director General, in an interview granted to the Station Service Telegraphists at Calcutta, in January, 1929, admitted that there was no necessity for re-examination in signalling and medical tests of the candidates for General Service from amongst those Station Service Telegraphists who had already appeared and been declared fit on the last occasion ?

L19CPB(LA)

(b) Is it a fact that he, on return to New Delhi, intimated that the rules could not be relaxed, and all those telegraphists would have to re-appear for those tests ?

(c) If the reply to part (b) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what is the rule referred to above ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : The matter is being inquired into and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

NUMBER OF STATION SERVICE TELEGRAPHISTS TRANSFERRED TO THE GENERAL SERVICE.

245. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : With reference to the Director General's communication calling for volunteers from Station to the General Service, will Government be pleased to state :

(a) how many vacancies there were at the time ;

(b) how many Station Service Telegraphists were examined ;

(c) how many have since been transferred to the General Service : and

(d) if reply to (c) be in the negative, the reasons for delay ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : The information is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

ABSORPTION OF LOCAL AND STATION SERVICE TELEGRAPHISTS IN THE GENERAL SERVICE.

246. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : With reference to the Director General's communication calling for volunteers from Station to the General Service, will Government be pleased to state whether it was under contemplation of the Government to absorb all Local and Station Service men in the General Service ? If not, will Government please state why all the candidates were examined by the Medical Board ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : No. Previous examination by a Medical Board as to the physical fitness of the volunteers for General Service is a condition which is necessary to enable selection to be made.

EXAMINATION OF DEPARTMENTAL CANDIDATES FOR GENERAL TELEGRAPH SERVICE.

247. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that departmental candidates volunteering for General Service were examined in January, 1929 ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if travelling expenses and medical fees of these candidates were borne by the Government ?

(c) If reply to part (b) be in the affirmative, what was the total expenditure under those two heads ?

(d) Is it a fact that the candidates in some places were examined in August, 1929 ? If so, do Government propose to allow those candidates, who were temporarily disqualified at the time of their first examination, to sit again for re-examination ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) and (d). The examination of Station and Local Service telegraphists, who volunteered for General Service, was conducted at different times to obviate any dislocation of work. There is therefore no question of a re-examination.

(b) Yes.

(c) The information asked for is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

RECRUITMENT OF GENERAL SERVICE TELEGRAPHISTS.

248. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that advertisements have been issued through newspapers calling for candidates for recruitment in General Service from outside the Department ?

(b) If so, do Government contemplate to absorb all the willing Local and Station Service telegraphists in General Service before any outsider is recruited direct as General Service probationer ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) No. Because in the opinion of Government the arrangement contemplated in the first part of the question will be prejudicial to the efficiency of the Department.

APPOINTMENT OF STATION SERVICE TELEGRAPHISTS TO GENERAL SERVICE.

249. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that there are many Station Service telegraphists who accepted that service because there was no opportunity for them to enter the General Service direct ? If so, do Government propose to give them a chance to exercise their option for General Service, before any outsider is recruited as probationer in General Service ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : Government have no information on the point raised in the first part of the question. In any case the men never had any claim of exercising an option for General Service.

RULES FOR RECRUITMENT OF GENERAL SERVICE TELEGRAPHISTS.

250. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that, according to the new rules of recruitment, departmental clerks are not eligible for appointment in General Service ? If so, do Government propose to modify the rules ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. The question of allowing departmental clerks below the age of 20 to compete for the examination for the recruitment of General Service telegraphists is under consideration.

RULES FOR RECRUITMENT TO THE SIGNALLING BRANCH OF THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

251. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that only 10 per cent. of appointments in the Signalling Branch has been reserved for the sons and relatives of the employees of the Telegraph Department according to the new rules of recruitment ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if any such percentage was observed at the time of recruitment through homes and schools ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state if any such reservation is observed in the clerical vacancies of the Telegraph Department ?

(d) Do Government propose to increase the percentage of such reservation in signalling and clerical vacancies ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) No.

(d) Government do not propose to increase the percentage of such reservations in signalling vacancies. As regards clerical vacancies the question as to whether there shall be any similar reservation, and if so, to what extent, is under consideration.

SCALES OF PAY FOR FUTURE STATION SERVICE TELEGRAPHISTS.

252. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that the scales of pay for future entrants in the Station Service at Cuttack, Muzaffarpur, Ajmer, Indore, Bellary, Coconada, Cochin, Calicut, Mangalore, Nagapatam, Bezwada, Ootacamund, Trichinopoly, Tuticorin and Vizagapatam, have been reduced ? If so, why ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative but the reduced scale of pay is not applicable to the existing incumbents. With respect to the second part, the attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the second sentence of part (a) of the reply given in this House to his unstarred question No. 362 on the 22nd March, 1929.

TESTS FOR GENERAL SERVICE TELEGRAPHISTS.

253. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Is it a fact that in the case of transfer of Station Service telegraphists to General Service, they are subjected to signalling and medical tests ? If so, will Government be pleased to state why the same procedure is not observed in case of promotion of D. S. II to D. S. I., D. S. to S. T. T., T. M. to D. S. or S. T. T., General Service to Station service, and T. L. to T. M. (medical only) ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Posts and Telegraphs Manual provides for exemption of Local Service telegraphists from type-writing tests ? If so, why was this rule of exemption not observed in the last examination for recruitment of telegraphists to General Service ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : Yes. In the case of the promotions referred to by the Honourable Member, a medical certificate is unnecessary as there is no change in the conditions of service.

The reply to the first portion of the second part of the question is in the affirmative. As regards the second portion, orders are under issue to exempt volunteers from the Local Service from the typing test in their qualifying signalling examination for transfer to the General Service.

RULES FOR RECRUITMENT TO THE SIGNALLING BRANCH OF THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

254. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that clauses 12 (f) and (h) of the memorandum for recruitment in the Signalling Branch require medical certificates twice from a candidate for service in India and Burma ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for requiring such certificates twice ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : Yes. A preliminary medical certificate is asked for so as to eliminate the obviously unfit. The final examination by a Medical Board is considered necessary in order that the Department may satisfy itself that the probationers selected are really fit for service anywhere in India and Burma.

EXAMINATIONS FOR THE SIGNALLING BRANCH OF THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

255. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) With reference to the memorandum for recruitment in the Signalling Branch of the Telegraph Department, will Government be pleased to state whether they propose to have the viva voce examination before the candidates are allowed to sit for the preliminary examination, as was done in the recent examination for recruitment of Engineering Supervisors, to safeguard the candidates from incurring heavy loss ? If not, why not ?

(b) Do Government propose to reduce the fees in all to Rs. 5 ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) No, because the number of candidates for this examination is expected to be far in excess of the number that appeared for the Engineering Supervisors' Examination, and it would not be possible to examine viva voce all the candidates who present themselves.

(b) No. Rs. 5 is considered too low a fee to cover the cost of the examination.

RECRUITMENT IN THE POSTAL DEPARTMENT OF THE SONS AND RELATIVES OF EMPLOYEES IN THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

256. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Are Government aware that the sons and relatives of the employees of the Telegraph Department are not given the same preference in the Postal Department as the sons and relatives of the Postal employees are given in the Telegraphs ? If so, what are the reasons for such differential treatment ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : If by "preference" the Honourable Member means preference for employment in the Department, the reply to the first part of the question is in the negative and the second part does not arise.

RE-INTRODUCTION OF THE POINT-TO-POINT SYSTEM.

257. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : With regard to the reply to unstarred question No. 367 of 22nd March, 1929, will Government be pleased to state whether they propose to take any steps to re-introduce the point-to-point system ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Government of India do not propose to re-introduce the point-to-point system which, as pointed out in the answers to previous questions on this subject, is opposed to the statutory rules regulating pay and allowances. It is considered that the operation of those rules in the matter of fixation of pay on transfer from one scale to another is on the whole fair and reasonable, while provision exists in the rules themselves for rectifying cases in which they would otherwise cause hardship.

HOURS OF DUTY OF TELEGRAPHISTS IN GREAT BRITAIN AND IN THE EASTERN TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

258. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Will Government be pleased to state the comparative duty hours in the Posts and Telegraphs in the United Kingdom of Great Britain as well as in the Eastern Telegraph Company ?

259. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that the clerks in classes III and IV in the Telegraph Department are not granted any officiating allowance when they are asked to do work of a higher class ? If so, why ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : An inquiry is being made and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

PAY OF STATION SERVICE TELEGRAPHISTS.

260. Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it a fact that the qualification, nature and hours of duties of Station Service telegraphists are the same as that of the General Service ? If so, will Government be pleased to state whether they propose to improve the scales of pay of the Station service ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Part I. Yes.

Parts II and III. No, because the conditions of service of Station Service telegraphists are different in essential from those of General Service telegraphists, and Government do not consider that there is any case for increasing the scales of pay of the former.

APPOINTMENT OF AN ANGLO-INDIAN AS JUNIOR READER IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, SIMLA.

261. Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that a departmental test examination was held by the Manager, Government of India Press, Simla, for the post of a junior reader, and as a result an Anglo-Indian, who was earmarked, has been promoted to the said post ignoring the claims of all others in the office ?

(b) Is it a fact that this vacant post was not advertised in any of the newspapers, thus debarring qualified candidates from outside the office to appear in this test examination ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Manager subsequently issued orders that all the other candidates who passed this examination would have no claims for any future vacancies occurring in that Press ?

(d) If the answer to the above is in affirmative, will Government be pleased to state why the other passed candidates have been deprived of their rights for promotion to vacancies occurring in future ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I propose to deal with questions Nos. 261 to 263 and 274 together. The Controller of Printing and Stationery is responsible to Government generally for the efficient administration of the Government of India Presses and Government do not propose to call for information regarding these administrative details, which are matters for his discretion.

(b) Was any test examination held by the Manager for filling up the post of senior reader as it was done in the case of a junior reader's post ? If not, why not ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether the post of this senior reader was ever advertised in the newspapers ? If not, why not ?

SELECTION OF A CANDIDATE FOR THE POST OF SENIOR READER IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, SIMLA.

†263. Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the Manager, Government of India Press, Simla, has advertised in the newspapers for the post of a senior reader in the Press and that numerous applications have been received by him ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) is in affirmative, do Government propose to select a candidate possessing the highest educational and practical qualifications ?

APPOINTMENT OF MANAGER OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, SIMLA,

(c) Is it a fact that the post of Manager has thus fallen vacant in the Simla Press ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state if this post has been advertised in the newspapers ? If not, why not, and whom do they intend to appoint as Manager of the Simla Press and when ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 261.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a), (b) and (c). The substantive appointment of Mr. Bruce, Officiating Manager of the Government of India Press, Simla, was that of Assistant Manager in the same Press. He received, from last February, substantive promotion from Assistant Manager of the Simla Press to Deputy Controller of Forms, Calcutta, but was permitted to continue to officiate as Manager of the Simla Press. His substantive appointment as Deputy Controller of Forms does not therefore create any vacancy, substantive or officiating, in the post of Manager of the Government of India Press at Simla.

(d) Does not arise.

265. Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the post of Assistant Manager in the Government of India Press, Simla, is vacant at present ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

EMPLOYMENT OF MR. JAWAHIR KHAN AS ASSISTANT MANAGER, GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, SIMLA.

(d) Is it a fact that the Controller, after taking everything into consideration, did not see his way to confirm him in the post of Assistant Manager ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to state if they have received a petition from this man appealing against the decision of the Controller which was submitted by him about a month ago, and if so, do Government propose appointing a well-qualified graduate worthy for the post of Assistant Manager in the Simla Press instead of confirming Mr. Jawahir Khan in that post ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Mr. Jawahir Khan is at present officiating as Assistant Manager.

(b) Government have no information.

(c) and (d). Yes.

(e) Government have received a representation submitted by Mr. Jawahir Khan, which is at present under their consideration.

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether they propose to issue instructions to the Manager to distribute copies of all the orders issued during the last three years to each and every employee for their information and guidance and follow the same practice in future ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). Government have no information, but the Honourable Member's question will be brought to the notice of the Controller of Printing and Stationery for such action as he may consider necessary.

QUARTERS FOR PEONS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, SIMLA.

268. Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that some of the peons quarters are being used for some other purposes and some have been allotted to those employees who are not entitled to free quarters ?

(b) Is it a fact that, in one small room, two peons are forced to stay and some have no quarters at all to live in and thus they are put to a lot of inconvenience ?

(c) Do Government propose to issue necessary instructions immediately to the Manager to redress the hardship of these peons ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Government have no information but are making an inquiry into the matter.

(c) If the answer to the above is in affirmative, do Government propose to inquire into the matter and put a stop to this business in the office and during office hours ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a), (b) and (c). A "B. B. Fund" and a "Monotype Co-operative Thrift and Aid Society" were established in 1879 and 1906 respectively by the employees of the Simla Press. The latter fund is registered under the Co-operative Credit Societies Act. The B. B. Fund was established on voluntary contributions from certain senior assistants of the late Government Central Branch Press, Simla. Subscriptions for this fund are not taken at present from the Press employees, but loans are given to them on interest. The interest realised is distributed among destitute widows and children of deceased employees. Government have already issued instructions that the business of the funds should not be conducted during office hours.

271. Mr. Mukhtar Singh : Is it a fact that strict orders were issued by Government to the effect that the post of time-checker should not be filled up except by a technically experienced man, and, if so, are Government aware that a man who does not possess technical qualifications in the least has been appointed to officiate in this post by the Manager, Government of India Press, quite contrary to Government orders ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The selection of persons for appointment as time-checker is a matter of administrative detail which is left to the discretion of the Controller of Printing and Stationery.

PIECE-WORK EMPLOYEES IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, SIMLA.

272. Mr. Mukhtar Singh : Will Government be pleased to state as to why the pressmen and inkers are employed on piece rates in the Government of India Press, Simla, whereas the whole of the establishment is employed on time-scale of pay ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am having the point looked into and will communicate the result to the Honourable Member in due course.

273. Mr. Mukhtar Singh : Will Government be pleased to state what arrangements they propose for installing wall chimneys and providing sufficient fuel for heating purposes in the Government of India Press, Simla, during the months of November to March ? Is it a fact that the present system of heating the work-rooms with hot water boiler has proved a useless plant ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Government do not propose to replace the hot water heating plant by wall chimneys as the plant is giving satisfactory results.

APPOINTMENT OF GRADUATES IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, SIMLA.

†274. Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that there is not a single graduate in the whole of the Accounts Branch and the clerical establishments of the Government of India Press, Simla ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) is in the affirmative, do Government propose to transfer some graduates from other Presses or Departments of the Government of India to the Simla Press ?

275. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (1) Is it a fact that the scales of pay of the supervising staff of the Currency Offices have not been revised in the last revision of 1924 ? If so, when do Government propose to revise their scales of pay ?

(2) Is it a fact that the Controller of Currency had promised in 1924 that the scales of pay of the Superintendents would be revised when the scales of the Superintendents' pay in the Accountant General's would be revised ? If so, has the scale of pay of the Superintendents in Currency Offices been revised and if not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the final replies to questions Nos. 88, 89 and 90 asked by Mr. N. M. Joshi in the Legislative Assembly on the 1st February, 1929, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House. These will give him full information on the subject.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : As regards the first portion of the Honourable Member's question, I would invite his attention to the final reply to part (a) of starred question No. 700 asked by Mr. M. The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I propose to reply to questions Nos. 278 and 279 together.

It is a fact that the rates of pay of clerks in the office of the Deputy Controller of the Currency, Bombay, are higher than those in the Currency Office, the reason being that the work required in the former is of a superior character.

PAY OF CLERKS IN CURRENCY OFFICES IN BOMBAY.

†279. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Is it a fact that the annual increments given to the Currency Office clerks are only Rs. 5 and Rs. 4 while the Deputy Controller of Currency's clerks are given Rs. 8 and Rs. 6, respectively ? If so, will Government please give their grounds for maintaining this divergence in increments ?

(b) Is it a fact that some men formerly working in the Currency Office, Bombay, are now working in the office of the Deputy Controller of Currency, Bombay ? If so, why should they not get the same scale as that of the Deputy Controller of Currency's Office ?

PENSION RULES FOR MENIAL SERVICES IN BOMBAY.

280. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Is it a fact that the Bombay Government have revised their pension rules for the menial services and accordingly the menials are to get their pay as pension ? Will this rule be applied to the peons and menials in the Currency Office in Bombay ; if so, from what date ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The Bombay Government have made a rule under which their menial servants will be entitled to pensions equal to half their average emoluments during the last three years of their service. The rule has not been applied to similar servants of the Government of India. They will continue, until further orders, to draw the temporary increases of pension which were originally sanctioned in 1921, and which, with the approval of the Standing Finance Committee, it has been decided to continue for another two years.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 278.

PROVIDENT FUND AND BONUS SCHEME FOR CURRENCY OFFICES.

282. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the Honourable the Finance Member had promised to expedite the consideration of the Provident Fund and Bonus scheme ? If so, have Government come to any final decision on the subject ? If not, will they be pleased to state what action they have taken during the last six months to expedite the matter ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The Government of India have obtained the approval of the Standing Finance Committee to a proposal that a contributory Provident Fund, on the usual terms, should be instituted for the non-pensionable employees in the Treasurers' departments of the Currency Offices. The proposal will now be placed before the Currency Association, and it is hoped that final orders will be issued before the beginning of the next financial year.

GRANT OF GRATUITIES ON RETIREMENT TO EMPLOYEES OF CURRENCY OFFICES.

283. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the employees of the State Railways and Port Trusts are given gratuities at the time of retirement ?

(b) Do Government propose to consider the desirability of setting up a similar system of gratuities in the Currency Office ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Under the rules of the Railway Department, employees of State Railways may be given a gratuity on retirement as a reward for faithful service. The rules of the Port Trusts of Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Rangoon, Karachi and Chittagong also allow discretion to the Port Trust Boards to grant, subject to certain conditions, gratuities on retirement to their employees as a reward for good, efficient and faithful service.

(b) Government have recently considered the question and have decided that no such system of gratuities should be set up in Currency Offices.

SUBSTITUTION OF PROVIDENT FUND FOR PENSION IN GOVERNMENT SERVICE.

284. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have consulted Local Governments and Service Associations in regard to certain definite proposals regarding the substitution of Provident Fund for pension as stated in answer to starred question No. 132 of Mr. Lalchand Navalrai on the 29th January, 1929 ?

(b) Have they gathered any opinions from any Service Association and Local Governments, and if so, will they please state or lay on the table their views on the subject ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) A letter was addressed to Local Governments on the subject in July last. The letter contained, inter alia, a proposal that, subject to the concurrence of the Local Governments, Service Associations should be consulted.

(b) No opinion on the proposals to which the Honourable Member refers has yet been obtained from any Local Government : I hope to be in a position to give the Honourable Member full information before very long and suggest that after a month or two he should communicate with the Financial Secretary on the subject.

GRANT OF EXTENSIONS OF SERVICE IN THE BOMBAY CURRENCY OFFICE.

285. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many persons from the higher grades were due to retire in the year 1928-29 for having completed the age of fifty-five years or above in the Bombay Currency Office and how many out of these had applied for extension and how many were granted ? If so, will Government be pleased to state whether they have given any consideration to the prospects of immediate juniors when they granted extension to all ?

(b) Will Government please state if it is a fact that extensions are refused especially to persons of higher grades in the offices of the Accountant General and the Commissioner of Income-tax, Bombay, on the ground that the prospects of juniors are thus barred ? If so, do Government propose to issue orders to stop the practice of granting extensions in the Bombay Currency Office ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : As regards the first portion of part (a) of the question, I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply I gave on the 9th instant to part (a) (iii) of Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta's starred question No. 264.

As regards the remainder of the question, inquiries are being made and a final reply will be sent to the Honourable Member in due course.

286. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (1) Is there any proposal to place Kirkee Cantonment under the subordination of Poona with regard to cantonment administration ?

(2) If so, what is the nature of the proposal, and what has necessitated it ?

(3) Have the elected members of Kirkee Cantonment Board and other prominent residents of Kirkee protested against the proposal ?

(4) What action have Government taken on the protest ? What are the reasons for the new proposal ?

(5) Do Government propose to keep the proposal in abeyance till the residents of Kirkee have an opportunity to express their views thereon ?

(2) to (5). Do not arise.

ORDER OF THE DEOLALI CANTONMENT BOARD CLOSING CERTAIN WELLS.

287. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (1) Is it a fact that in 1918-19, the areas round the Rahgoor Road, Dhondy Road, and Nasik Road were included in the Cantonment, without their being acquired on payment under the law governing land acquisition ?

(2) Are Government aware that these areas have large gardens all irrigated by wells, which also form the source of drinking water to the population of those areas ?

(3) Is it a fact that the Cantonment Board, Deolali, has ordered the closing-down of these wells, on the ground that they are the breeding places of mosquitos ?

(4) Are Government aware that these localities are considered to be the sanitariums of Bombay ?

(5) Are Government aware that there is great discontent and commotion among the population of these areas owing to this order of the Cantonment Board ?

(6) Have Government obtained the expert opinion of health officers that these wells are mosquito-breeding places ? If so, whom have they consulted and with what result ?

(7) Have Government collected statistics of malaria cases in these localities and, if so, how do they compare with the rest of the Cantonment ?

(8) Do Government still require these areas within the Cantonment limits ? If so, for what military purpose ?

(9) Do Government propose to restore these areas to the position they had before the inclusion in the Cantonment ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I am making inquiries and will let the Honourable Member know the result in due course.

LACK OF SUITABLE DRAINS AND OTHER AMENITIES IN CAWNPORE CANTONMENT.

288. Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : (1) Are Government aware that in most parts of Cawnpore Cantonment there are no pucca drains ?

(2) What is the malaria-mortality in the Cantonment ?

(3) Is it a fact that in a part of the Cantonment near Kola Ghat, having a population of more than 200 people, there is no street-lighting and no sanitary arrangements and no road, kachha or pucca, to connect the area with the rest of the Cantonment ?

(4) Will Government be pleased to state why the people of this area are deprived of ordinary civic amenities ?

(5) Do Government propose to draw the urgent attention of the Cantonment Authority to the absence of pucca drains in the Cantonment and of all municipal amenities in the area specified above ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham: The matter is one for the Cantonment Authority to deal with, and I am communicating a copy of the question, and of my reply, to them.

PROMOTION OF CERTAIN TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

289. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (1) Is it a fact that a part sanction of two posts only on the scale of Rs. 100—5—175 was given by the Director General on the recommendation dated June, 1923, made by the Postmaster General, Bombay, for conversion of all the posts of Town Inspectors on the scale of Rs. 100—5—175 ?

(2) Is it a fact that one of these two newly created posts was given to the then-existing seniormost Town Inspector and the other to another then-existing Town Inspector ?

(3) Is it a fact that Mr. J. R. Mehta was the then existing seniormost Town Inspector and that Mr. V. A. De Souza was also the existing Town Inspector at that time and that the latter did not pass the Town Inspector's examination ?

(4) Is it a fact that Messrs. V. H. Karandhikar and M. N. Phatterfold were existing Town Inspectors available at that time with qualification of having passed the Inspector's examination ?

(5) Is it a fact that (i) at that time many officials of the clerical cadre who had rendered greater length of service than the then existing Town Inspectors were available, and (ii) that the two newly created posts were not given to men in the clerical line irrespective of greater length of service rendered by them or to any passed official ?

(6) Is it a fact that the officials mentioned in part (4) who passed the Inspector's examination also did not get these posts ?

(7) Is it a fact that Mr. J. R. Mehta, mentioned in part (3) was subsequently transferred to the other Town Sub-division under P. P. M.'s letter ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I propose to deal with questions Nos. 289, 290 and 296 together. Complete information on the various questions asked by the Honourable Member is not available at headquarters. Necessary inquiries have been made and complete information, so far as available, will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

APPOINTMENTS AND DUTIES OF CERTAIN TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

†290. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (1) Is it a fact that the Postal Town Inspectors of Bombay in the time scale of pay had to carry on the investigation work ?

(2) If the reply to part (1) is in the negative, will Government be pleased to state whether under P. P. M.'s letter, Mr. J. R. Mehta, mentioned in the previous question (on the scale of Rs. 100—5—175), was transferred to the other sub-division and Mr. P. B. Parek drawing time scale of pay at that time was appointed in the Investigation branch as Inspector and had to make investigation into cases ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 289.

(3) Under P. P. M.'s memo. was Mr. D. J. Panday, Town Inspector on the time-scale of pay at that time, appointed as Inspector Sadar Sub-division from his post as Investigating Inspector and Mr. G. V. Pradhan, Town Inspector, Dadan Sub-division, transferred to the post of Investigating Inspector in place of the former ?

EMPLOYMENT OF CERTAIN OFFICERS ON SPECIAL DUTY WITH THE RAILWAY BOARD.

291. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the following officers are meant for perpetual Special Duty with the Railway Board : (i) Rai Bahadur B. D. Puri, (ii) Mr. Jones, and (iii) Mr. Ghulam Muhammad ?

(b) What total period has each of them been employed on Special Duty ?

(c) What work has each of them done ?

(d) Is it a fact that they are often asked to report on the same matter and that they often disagree with each others conclusions ?

(e) How do Government come to a decision on such subjects ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No, Sir.

(b) Rai Bahadur Puri and Mr. Ghulam Muhammad were each on special duty with the Railway Board for about a year in 1926 and 1927. For other periods on which they were employed on special duty I would refer the Honourable Member to the History of Services of Indian State Railways, a copy of which is in the Library. I am not aware which Mr. Jones the Honourable Member is referring to—there are eight of them in the History of Services. Mr. C. E. W. Jones was on special duty with the Railway Board in connection with the investigation into the expenditure by railways on the education of the children of their employees for about a year from November 1926.

(c) I am afraid it is impossible for me to give details of the work done by each of these officers in the space of an answer to a question in this House.

(d) Not that I am aware of.

(e) Does not arise.

INTRODUCTION OF THE SYSTEM OF MECHANISED ACCOUNTING ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

292. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : During the sitting of the Public Accounts Committee did Mr. Scott point out that the "muddle" in the East Indian Railway Stores Accounts Branch would be remedied by introducing the mechanised system on the lines of that followed on the North Western Railway ? Is it a fact that the "muddle" so admitted accumulated there rather quickly since the introduction of tabulators ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The introduction of the system of mechanised accounting is under contemplation as suggested in the question. No Tabulators have been used on accounts work on the East Indian Railway so far.

HOLLERITH AND POWER ACCOUNTING MACHINES.

293. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Is there any truth in the rumour that Mr. Scott is personally interested in the Hollerith and Power machines and that they are getting preference by turns?

(b) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the comparative cost of work done by machine and the cost incurred when the work was done by clerks?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The suggestion in this question is entirely without foundation.

(b) It is too early to prepare a statement of the sort, as it is still in an experimental stage.

PROMOTION IN THE RAILWAY BOARD OF CERTAIN OFFICERS RELATED TO MR. HAYMAN.

294. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the reasons for the promotion of Messrs. Myers, Morgan and Hayman?

(b) How many senior and qualified Indians were superseded by the promotions given to the officers mentioned in part (a)?

(c) Is it a fact that all of the officers mentioned in part (a) are related to Mr. Hayman, a Member of the Railway Board?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) I do not know what promotion the Honourable Member refers to. The officers referred to were selected for appointment to their present posts in view of their suitability for the work which they are now required to perform.

(b) So far as I know, no supersessions were involved.

(c) No. Only the last named officer is.

APPOINTMENTS AND PROMOTIONS OF ANGLO-INDIANS IN CERTAIN RAILWAY OFFICES.

295. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Is it a fact that there has been increasing recruitment of Anglo-Indian officers in the Railway Accounts Service?

(b) Is it a fact that by the promotions of Messrs. Brewster Browne, Jones, Bion, Dewes, Freitas and Cunningham, the claims of several qualified Indian seniors were overlooked?

(c) Is it a fact that the post of an Accounts Officer on State Railways was filled by a man in the Telephone Department, and that a hotel keeper in Simla was appointed as a Cash and Pay Officer of the Railway Clearing Office, both belonging to the Anglo-Indian community?

(d) If the answers to parts (a), (b) and (c) are in the negative, do Government propose to examine and state on what principle promotions and appointments are made in the Departments under Mr. Hayman, Member of the Railway Board?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) In addition to the officers of the Indian Audit and Accounts Service lent by the Auditor General, the recruitment in the Railway Accounts Service was made from two sources, (1) officers who already held an appointment of a corresponding rank in the Audit and Accounts Department of the East Indian Railway and Burma Railways, and (2) other officers with railway accounts experience, including those promoted from subordinate grades. The number of the latter was 10, of whom only 3 were Anglo-Indians.

(b) The Officers mentioned in the question held the rank of temporary or officiating Assistant Accounts Officers and have not been appointed to the Railway Accounts Service. Their promotion to the rank stated above did not, so far as I am aware, involve any supersession.

(c) The answer to the question is in the negative. An Accounts Officer of the Telephone Revenue Accounting Office, who is an Anglo-Indian, has been appointed as an Assistant Accounts Officer in the office of the Chief Accounts Officer, North Western Railway, but not because he was an Anglo-Indian. The Cash and Pay Officer of the Clearing Accounts Office is not an Anglo-Indian.

(d) The Railway Accounts Department is under the Financial Commissioner of Railways and not under Mr. Hayman. The rules under which recruitment in this Department is made are in the Library of the House.

TRAFFIC AND INVESTIGATION WORK IN THE POSTAL DEPARTMENT IN BOMBAY.

†296. Kumar Ganganand Sinha : Is it a fact that:

(a) There were two postal City Superintendents in the Town of Bombay?

(b) Whether in 1924-25, the Traffic was placed under the control of one Superintendent and the Investigation in charge of another Superintendent?

(c) Whether five Town Inspectors were under the control of the Superintendent in charge of Investigation irrespective of the pay of the Town Inspectors and six Town Inspectors were placed under the control of the Superintendent in charge of the Traffic?

(d) There were only two posts of Inspectors for Investigation work and that five Town Inspectors were appointed for such work?

REPORT OF THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : I beg to lay on the table the Report of the Public Accounts Committee on the Accounts for the year 1927-28.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 289.

6. The following table compares the percentage of savings under voted grants with that of the savings in non-voted appropriations :

|                                      | Savings + Excess -- |            |
|--------------------------------------|---------------------|------------|
|                                      | Voted.              | Non-voted. |
| 1927-28.                             |                     |            |
| Expenditure charged to Revenue .. .. | +·58                | +·69       |
| Expenditure charged to Capital .. .. | -3·64               | +66·94     |
| Total Expenditure .. ..              | -40                 | +2·75      |
| 1926-27.                             |                     |            |
| Total Expenditure .. ..              | +5·2                | +1·0       |

7. The most important feature here is that, unlike previous years, there is an excess of ·4 per cent. under voted grants against savings of 5·2 per cent. in 1926-27 and 7·8 per cent. in 1925-26. This result shows that the tendency deliberately to over-estimate voted expenditure as to which previous committees expressed apprehensions has become much less marked.

The increase in the saving under non-voted expenditure was mainly due to the fact that while the budget provided for railway debentures to be renewed as well as those to be discharged, the actuals show only the debentures discharged. This accounts for a saving of over Rs. 2½ crores. We are informed that the question of altering the method of budgeting for these items is under the consideration of the Railway Board.

8. The improvement noticed above is partly due to the system of lump sums introduced in 1925-26 but the persistent over-budgeting which still exists under a number of items which have been brought to our notice in the Appropriation Reports indicate that even more severe pruning is required. As regards provision for pay of establishment and leave salary, we consider that the only way of arriving at more accurate results is to make lump deductions for probable savings on the basis of previous actuals. We are informed that certain provisional orders were issued by the Finance Department to the accounts officers in September 1928 and that that Department propose to issue further orders when the actuals of a few years are available.

9. In view of the large number of cases of defective budgeting which have been brought to our notice by the Auditor General, we consider that there is still scope for improvement in the methods of budgeting. The arrangements made in the Finance Department to have a whole time Budget Officer (who is also Secretary to the Public Accounts Committee) to watch the operation of the budget throughout the year and test its accuracy have been explained to us. This is a step in the right direction; but what is required now is a special effort to work up to a higher standard of accuracy in budgeting in all Departments, and we share the doubts referred to by the Financial Secretary as to whether a mere scrutiny of results within the Finance Department will be sufficient for this purpose. We think that, at least until higher standard all round has been attained, a more intensive effort may be necessary and that it would be most advantageous if a specially experienced officer from the Finance Department could personally visit all the estimating offices, look into and co-ordinate their work and have occasional conferences with the estimating officers. We are also informed by the Auditor General that his experience of the past few years had been that the Finance Department was under-staffed and that it was absolutely necessary to increase the staff in order to work up to a high standard of efficiency. We agree with the Auditor General and recommend that the Finance Department should be adequately staffed and consider that it is justifiable to err on the side of being over-staffed in the initial stages in order to work up to a high standard of efficiency. We wish also to emphasise the great importance during the initial stages of securing continuity in the staff of the Finance Department which is to be employed on this special work.

10. In the following cases the actual expenditure exceeds the voted grants and an excess vote of the Assembly is accordingly required :

| Item No. | Number of grant. | Grant.                                                                     | Amount voted by the Assembly. | Actual expenditure. | Excess.     |
|----------|------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------|---------------------|-------------|
|          |                  |                                                                            | Rs.                           | Rs.                 | Rs.         |
| 1        | 41A              | Civil.General Administration—Miscellaneous ..               | ..                            | 231                 | 231         |
| 2        | 43               | Administration of Justice                                                  | 68,000                        | 68,009              | 9           |
| 3        | 72A              | Miscellaneous Adjustmentsbetween Central andProvincial Governments | 3,47,000                      | 3,50,431            | 3,431       |

al The following table compares the total grants voted by the Legislative Assembly with the total expenditure against those grants :

(In lakhs of rupees.)

|                                        | Original grant. | Supple-mentary grant. | Final grant. | Actual expenditure. |
|----------------------------------------|-----------------|---------------------------|--------------|---------------------|
| Expenditure charged to Revenue ..      | 1,02,44         | 5,65                      | 1,08,09      | 1,07,46             |

2. The following table compares the non-voted appropriations sanctioned by the Government of India with the total expenditure against such appropriations :

(In lakhs of rupees.)

|                                   | Original Appropriation. | Supple-mentary Appropriation. | Final Appropriation. | Actual Expenditure. |
|-----------------------------------|-------------------------|-----------------------------------|----------------------|---------------------|
| Expenditure charged to Revenue .. | 1,12,01                 | 21                                | 1,12,22              | 1,11,44             |
| Expenditure charged to Capital .. | 3,59                    | 1                                 | 3,60                 | 1,19                |
| Total Expenditure ..              | 1,15,60                 | 22                                | 1,15,82              | 1,12,63             |

3. If the total voted and non-voted expenditure is taken, the position is as follows :

(In lakhs of rupees.)

|                                        | Original grant. | Final grant. | Actual Expenditure. |
|----------------------------------------|-----------------|--------------|---------------------|
| Expenditure charged to Revenue ..      | 2,14,45         | 2,20,31      | 2,18,90             |
| Expenditure charged to Capital ..      | 30,52           | 36,28        | 35,06               |
| Total Expenditure ..                   | 2,44,97         | 2,56,59      | 2,53,96             |
| Disbursements of Loans and Advances .. | 4,82            | 9,75         | 9,74                |
| Grand Total ..                         | 2,49,79         | 2,66,34      | 2,63,70             |

4. It will be seen that against grants aggregating 266·34 crores the actual expenditure was 263·70 crores—a saving of 2·64 crores or 1 per cent. against a saving of 10·17 crores or 3·8 per cent. in 1926-27. The savings are made up as follows :

(In crores of rupees.)

|                                           |      |
|-------------------------------------------|------|
| Railway expenditure charged to Capital .. | ·67  |
| Military expenditure ..                   | ·52  |
| Disbursements of Loans and Advances ..    | ·01  |
| Other items ..                            | 1·44 |
| Total ..                                  | 2·64 |

5. The percentage of savings in the final grants for 1927-28 and in the two preceding years are given below for purposes of comparison :

|                                              | 1925-26. | 1926-27. | 1927-28. |
|----------------------------------------------|----------|----------|----------|
|                                              | Rs.      | Rs.      | Rs.      |
| Expenditure charged to Revenue ..            | 3·0      | 2·9      | ·6       |
| Expenditure charged to Capital ..            | 15·5     | 5·8      | 3·4      |
| Total Expenditure ..                         | 4·6      | 3·3      | 1·0      |
| Grand total, including Loans and Advances .. | 6·7      | 3·8      | 1·0      |

These figures show that the improvement in the estimating under the various heads taken as a whole noticed last year has been maintained during the year under report.

11. A brief explanation of each excess is given below :

Items 1 and 2.—The excesses are negligible. In the first case the excess was due to the adjustment after the close of the year of the leave salary of an officer on foreign service in Iraq.

Item 3.—The excess was due to the adjustment after the close of the year on account of the refund to the Government of Bombay of customs duty paid in cash on stores imported by them during the year 1926-27. The adjustment should have been made in the accounts of 1928-29.

Item 4.—The expenditure under this head is of an inevitable nature and the excess was due to certain unforeseen items which had to be incurred towards the close of the year.

Item 5.—This was the second year in which commutations were charged to capital and the estimate had to be framed practically in the absence of actuals which are the only guide in framing an estimate under this head.

Item 6.—The excess was due to larger expenditure on the Sutlej Valley Project during the closing months of the year. We understand that the question of obtaining more accurate estimates is being considered by the Finance Department.

Item 7.—A supplementary grant for Rs. 20,11,000 was obtained from the Assembly in March 1928 but in applying for this grant the Department had to make certain assumptions regarding the extent of the effect of the numerous concessions granted to the staff during the year. The results show that these assumptions were not accurate.

Item 8.—The excess was due to the fact that certain economies in administration, which the Railway Board anticipated, were not fully realised and a larger amount was also required for new items of expenditure.

Items 9, 11, 12 and 13.—It is admitted by the Railway Department that these excesses signify the breakdown of the system of over-allotment introduced in 1925-26. We are glad to note that the amount over-allotted has been drastically reduced in the budget estimates for 1929-30, the amount over-allotted in that year being only a little over a crore as against 18 crores in 1926-27. We also note with approval the statement made by the Finance Department that the Finance Member has assumed much closer control over capital expenditure than hitherto, and that, as a further measure to prevent over expenditure, the powers of re-appropriation of Railway Agents have been considerably curtailed. We are of opinion that the results of these changes must be carefully watched and that the control of the Finance Department must be rigidly maintained. It is a matter for serious consideration whether the present system according to which the Railway capital expenditure programme for any year is settled during the preceding autumn and also according to which the Railway budget is presented to the Legislative Assembly before the General Budget, is conducive to the general interests or to the proper information of the Legislative Assembly as to the factors affecting the situation and the issues involved.

Item 10.—The total excess under the grant, taking voted and non-voted together, is just under 1 per cent.

12. The total number of voted grants in which there has been an excess is 13 and the total amount requiring the vote of the Assembly is Rs. 3,13,06,420, of which Rs. 2,73,86,000 is due to the system of over-allotment in the Railway Budget. We recommend that the Assembly assent to the excess grants for 1927-28 which the Governor General in Council will place before them for the following sums in respect of the heads referred to in paragraph 10 :

|                                      | Rs.         |
|--------------------------------------|-------------|
| Expenditure charged to Revenue .. .. | 1,14,31,420 |
| Expenditure charged to Capital .. .. | 1,98,75,000 |
| Total .. ..                          | 3,13,06,420 |

13. Rule 52 (2) of the Indian Legislative Rules requires that we should bring to the notice of the Assembly every re-appropriation from one grant to another grant; every re-appropriation within a grant, which is not made in accordance with such rules as may be prescribed by the Finance Department; and all expenditure which the Finance Department have requested should be brought to the notice of the Assembly. We are glad to be able to report that there have been no re-appropriations falling under these categories during the year; nor have the Finance Department requested us to bring to the notice of the Assembly any particular item of expenditure.

II.—Comments on matters outstanding from previous Reports.

14. We are glad to note that the Auditor General has prepared an Epitome of the Reports of our predecessors from 1923—27 and of the Government orders thereon. We are informed that copies of the Epitome will be supplied to the Members of the Committee and to such other Members of the Assembly as ask for it.

15. We are gratified to learn that the Government of India have issued orders on the following questions which have been outstanding for a long time :

- (a) introduction of the system of token votes,
- (b) formulation of rules to regulate the placing and control of contracts, and
- (c) formulation of general principles to regulate the enforcement of responsibility for losses sustained by Government through fraud or negligence of individuals.

16. The following items included in Appendices II and III may be considered as settled :

Appendix II.—Items 7, 8, 10, 11, 14, 15, 16, 23, 25, 29, 34, 35, 39 and 40.

Appendix III.—Item 7.

Our observations on some of the outstanding items are contained in the following paragraphs.

17. Supplementary Demands.—The Resolution issued by the Government of India on the Report of last year says that steps will be taken to present belated supplementary demands to the Assembly provided that on each occasion the programme of work in the Legislature permits. We consider that it should be accepted as an obligation by the Government that opportunities should be found during the session for the presentation of such demands and that, inasmuch as the voting of grants is the primary function of the Assembly, the excuse that time is not available ought in no circumstances to be accepted.

18. Reserve at the disposal of the Finance Department.—Under the arrangement in force at present, when a new item of expenditure is sanctioned and it is not possible to meet it by re-appropriation, funds to cover it are sanctioned from the small reserve at the disposal of the Finance Department and a supplementary grant is obtained from the Legislative Assembly later on. There are thus two grants to cover one item of expenditure and one of them has to be surrendered. Hitherto the practice was to surrender the grant sanctioned by the Legislative Assembly. The Finance Secretary has now agreed with the Auditor General that the correct procedure would be to surrender the appropriation from the reserve ; this procedure will accordingly be followed in future.

We are also informed that the real reason for providing a reserve is that, if there were no reserve and if in any individual case the expenditure could not be met by re-appropriation then a supplementary grant sanctioned by the Assembly for meeting that expenditure would cause an excess over the total budget provision for expenditure during the year. The reserve provides a margin within the limits of which variations are possible without producing an excess over the total Budget vote. The Financial Secretary has agreed to discuss this question further with the Auditor General.

19. Internal check on Customs Receipts.—We are informed that with a view to improving the immediate check on appraisements, a large number of superior officers described as Principal Appraisers have been appointed at Calcutta and Bombay from the 1st April 1929 to ensure that every appraisement is scrutinised by a superior officer immediately after the original appraisement and that the results of this experiment are being watched before introducing the scheme in other ports. We are also informed that a scheme drawn up by the officer on special duty in the Finance Department to improve the audit checks and costing about Rs. 3½ lakhs for all the Departments under the control of the Central Board of Revenue is now under the consideration of that Department. We consider that, as a matter of principle, it is desirable that the most effective form of audit should be applied but that the cost must be taken into account. In this particular case, we think it right that the Finance Department should have an opportunity to study the details of the scheme more thoroughly before making a final recommendation. It is, however, desirable that that Department should arrive at an early decision.

20. Concessions to firms.—In connection with a case in which the representative of an important business concern having large business transactions with the Posts and Telegraphs Department had been allowed for some years a free use of the trunk telephone line between two important places as an act of courtesy, our predecessors recommended that such concessions should be given in future only by the Government of India, who should scrutinise the cases jealously and communicate their sanctions to audit. This raises the further question whether Government have any power to waive revenue which it is authorised to levy under a statute. We recommend that the Government of India should consider this question and obtain authoritative opinion on the legal position.

21. Inventory of Government property.—We are prepared to accept the general conclusion arising from the Memorandum on the subject furnished to us by the Finance Department and printed as Appendix VI to this Report.

22. Expenditure relating to Moplah Settlement.—We are informed that, although it is not feasible to prepare a complete account of expenditure in connection with all the Moplah settlers in the Andaman Islands, it ought nevertheless to be quite possible for the additional expenditure on the 12 villages occupied by Moplah settlers to be shown separately. As this would cover the bulk of such settlers, we recommend that this should be done, as the cost of this settlement is a matter of considerable public interest.

23. Remedying defects in the machinery for executing repairs to buildings in the Posts and Telegraphs Department.—We are informed that the decision to transfer the maintenance of these buildings to the Posts and Telegraphs Department was the result of a recommendation of the Public Works Reorganisation Committee that mere maintenance work should not be one of the main functions of the Public Works Department. We shall be glad to have a thorough report next year showing how the new system of making Departments responsible for the maintenance of their own buildings has worked so far as the Posts and Telegraphs Department is concerned.

24. Contributions to the Posts and Telegraphs Depreciation Fund.—The Financial Adviser has furnished us with a Memorandum on this subject, which has been printed as Annexure I to the proceedings of our second meeting, in which it has been suggested that, judging from the expenditure hitherto incurred on renewals and replacements, the present contribution to the Depreciation Fund is unduly high. It appears to us that it is incorrect in principle to compare the contribution in any one year with the amount actually spent in that year, as the contribution is intended to meet renewals and replacements at the end of their effective life. Nor can a series of two or three years even provide a decisive test. It is also incorrect to consider the accuracy of the rules regarding depreciation without considering at the same time the accuracy of the other bases of the commercial settlement. For example, if, as is possible, the capital on which the Department is now paying interest is smaller than what it would be if the whole undertaking had been commercialised from the very beginning and as it will increase as the old assets are replaced by new ones, it might not unreasonably be argued that the contribution to the Depreciation Fund now being paid, even if it were on the high side, which is at least doubtful, might be taken as a set-off against the low amount of interest now paid by the Department on its capital. Further, in considering the commercial position of the undertaking, it is not entirely safe to be guided by present results, for, account must be taken of the inevitable future increase of expenditure due to the numerous concessions as regards pay and allowances, which have recently been sanctioned for the staff. It is questionable whether this increase will be offset by the normal growth of revenue of the Department. A further point, of which account must be taken, is that the basis on which the contribution to the Depreciation Fund has been fixed may produce misleading results. For, when the life which has been assumed for any particular asset is completed, all contributions to the Depreciation Fund in respect of that asset cease although it may actually continue in use; and further when it is actually replaced, the expenditure on its replacement will in practically every case amount to several times the amount available in the Depreciation Fund. As we have not got sufficient information at present to deal with the question as a whole, we suggest that a small committee be set up to consider how far the system of accounting at present in force really provides a true picture of the commercial results of the Department's working, and, as the chief part of this enquiry, to investigate the actual results of the present provision for depreciation and to consider in particular its adequacy having regard to replacements which are likely to be necessary, and to the foundation on which the capital account as it stands at present has been built up.

25. Credit due to the Posts and Telegraphs Department for railway telegraphs and enhancement of rent due from canal administrations.—The settlement of these items should be expedited, as the commercial results of the working of the Department can not be ascertained accurately till this and the other outstanding questions regarding adjustments are settled.

26. Special Officer's report on the system of preparing budget estimates by Railways.—We are informed that the report has just been received and is under the consideration of the Railway Board. We desire to record, however, that it is very regrettable that the presentation of this report, which was asked for by our predecessors in 1926 and called for ever since, should have been delayed so long. We must also note that it is a somewhat depressing fact that, although we are now informed that most of the recommendations that the special officer has made after three years' study have in the meanwhile actually been introduced, nevertheless it is not possible to observe any substantial improvement. We understand, however, that in the case of certain railways some of the recommendations of the special officer still remain to be introduced and that this is likely to lead to improvements. In view of the long delay that has already occurred, we suggest that such action as remains to be taken on the report should be expedited, so that the improvements may be given effect to in the next budget.

27. Crew system.—As the report required by our predecessors comparing the expenditure on the crew system on the lines where it is in force with the recoveries made from passengers travelling without tickets is not yet ready, it is difficult for us to make any final recommendations on the subject, and we therefore desire to have a full report next year on the above and also on the question of the efficiency with which the system is being applied and administered. We also suggest that the Railway Board should consider whether it will not be more appropriate to place the crew system under the control of the accounts department instead of under the traffic department.

28. Audit on company lines.—We are informed by the Auditor General that he is not at all satisfied with the present scale of audit on company lines, and that his recommendation to introduce on company lines the same system of audit as is now in force on State lines is now under the consideration of the Finance Department. In view of the serious irregularities which have been brought to our notice in the Appropriation Accounts, we consider that the system of audit on company lines should be strengthened, the actual details being settled by the Finance Department and the Railway Board in consultation with the Auditor General. We are very strongly of opinion that the decision on the question should be expedited.

We find that the explanations given to us by the Railway administration in a number of cases are substantially different from the facts mentioned in the Accountant General's Report, which indicates a lack of co-operation between the Government Examiner and the Company's auditor.

In this connection, we note with great appreciation that as an immediate sequel to our examination of the Railway Department this year, the Railway Board have decided to appoint an officer on special duty to investigate the causes of the irregularities to which our attention has been called, and to devote particular attention to cases which indicate a lack of proper co-operation between the Railway accounts staff and the Government Examiners. Although the audit staff must always preserve an independent position, there is much to be gained by a mutual spirit of helpfulness on both sides and discrepancies in the evidence as to particular cases such as we have noted in our recent examination ought to be avoided. The existence of such discrepancies makes it extremely difficult for this Committee to exercise its function of conducting an impartial examination into all cases. The special enquiry which is now to be conducted will, it is hoped, point the way for improving the present position in this respect and we shall be glad to have a report on the question next year.

29. Supply of Administration Reports to members of the Public Accounts Committee.—We accept the suggestion of the Financial Secretary that in future a list of all the Administration Reports available should be circulated to the Members of the Committee simultaneously with the Appropriation Reports, on the understanding that if any member returns the list to the Finance Department marking on it such reports as he requires, the marked reports will be sent to him.

30. We have again devoted our careful consideration to the question of what procedure should be adopted for the discussion of the Annual Report of the Public Accounts Committee in the Legislative Assembly (cf., paragraphs 11 and 16 of Reports for 1925-26 and 1926-27, respectively).

We desire at the outset to state what we conceive to be the position of this Committee in respect of the preparation of its report and of the procedure to be adopted for its discussion in the Assembly. The Public Accounts Committee is a body created by statutory rule and appointed by the Assembly itself, and its report once made must remain in existence and cannot be unmade. The question as to the procedure which should be adopted for the consideration of the Report in and by the Assembly is a question which must ultimately be decided by the Legislative Assembly. We conceive it to be our duty, however, to consider the various alternative proposals which have been suggested and we have taken the memorandum prepared by the Finance Department (annexed as Appendix V to this report) as a basis for our discussion.

The proposals which have come forward in the course of this discussion fall under three main heads :

- (a) That on a motion that "the report be taken into consideration", there should be a general discussion on the report as a whole analogous to that which takes place at the general discussion stage of the budget.
- (b) That in addition, or possibly as an alternative to a motion that "the report be taken into consideration", there should be afforded to the Assembly an opportunity to discuss, on definite resolutions moved, special topics referred to, or recommendations made, in the report.
- (c) That after the motion that "the report be taken into consideration", there should be a further motion that "the report be adopted", and that it should be open to the Assembly to discuss the vote upon amendments moved to the report.

We have in the first place given our very careful consideration to the course outlined in (c), which, according to the report of the last conference of the Presidents and Deputy Presidents of Provincial Legislative Councils, was the line of procedure favoured by that conference. We must of course attach considerable weight to such a recommendation but, nevertheless, we venture to express the view that there are serious objections to this course if it follows the exact form suggested above. It seems to us that it would in practice mean that the Legislative Assembly must commit itself either to accepting or rejecting en masse every one of the recommendations made in a long report embodying opinions and recommendations on perhaps a hundred points of varying nature, or that the Legislative Assembly should have power to amend the report, in which case it would cease to be the report of the Public Accounts Committee.

As to the latter alternative, we think that the function which the Legislative Assembly would wish and indeed ought to exercise is that of calling the attention of the Executive Government to the matters arising out of the report to which it attaches special importance, and to the action which it considers ought to be taken on the Committee's recommendations, rather than that of making actual amendments in the text of the report, which, as indicated above, when once made, must remain in existence and cannot be unmade. It must of course be open to the Legislative Assembly to criticise the recommendations of the Committee, but for this purpose it is not necessary that amendments should be moved to the report itself, nor does it seem to us that such action would be appropriate.

For these reasons we have felt that the choice should lie rather between courses (a) and (b).

There is much to be said on both sides. It must be remembered in the first place that the time available for discussion will inevitably be limited (probably to one day), and the question of practical importance is how this limited time can be employed to the best advantage. On the one hand, it may be argued that a general discussion would probably make it possible to cover more ground and bring to light practically all the points to which the Members of the Assembly attach importance; while on the other hand, it may be said that a discussion focussed on certain specific recommendations would be more effective, particularly if this took the form of debate on definite resolutions on which members could express their opinion by voting.

The opinion of our Committee on the choice between these two alternatives has been divided; but we are all agreed that it is desirable to avoid fixing any procedure without ascertaining the views of the Assembly. We further consider that whatever form of procedure may be adopted at the outset it should not be regarded as rigid and unalterable, but rather as experimental, so that it can be varied in the light of practical experience.

Subject to these reservations we put forward the following proposal, viz., that as a practical step it would be best at the outset to establish a convention analogous to that which is observed in settling the order of priority for the discussion of Demands for Grants during the consideration of the Budget. We think it might be possible for each party to consider the procedure which they wish to have adopted as a matter for special decision annually in connection with each individual report. If, for example, the general view in connection with a particular year's report is that it contains recommendations which deserve special and individual discussion, the procedure contained in alternative (b) could be adopted for the year, and the choice of the subjects taken and the order of priority as between them could be settled in the same way as is done in the case of Demands for Grants. On the other hand, if, as is quite possible, on another occasion the balance of opinion is in favour of no more than a general discussion, the procedure provided for in alternative (a) would suffice. We think indeed that the form of the discussion which is desirable is likely to vary according to the nature of each report, but, in any case, if the recommendation which we have made above is accepted, it will provide an elastic method of procedure which, after a few years, is likely to crystallise into a regular and accepted form which has been proved by experience to be appropriate to actual requirements.

We believe that this procedure would secure substantially the same object as that aimed at by those who have advocated alternative (c). We wish to record, however, that we have also considered a further suggestion which approximates more closely in form to that alternative, and which, if a suitable working convention could be established, might be adopted without involving the objections to which we have called attention above. We think, therefore, that this further proposal should also be considered by the Legislative Assembly. This further proposal is that the report might be treated on the lines on which the King's Speech is dealt with in the House of Commons. The motion for the Address to the King is not touched, but the criticism or suggestion as to Government policy is always added as an addendum thus: "but this House regrets that His Majesty's Ministers have not.....(or urges that steps be taken, etc.....)". The motion in the case of the Public Accounts Committee report might be "That this House adopts the report of the Public Accounts Committee (and recommends to the Governor General in Council to give effect to its proposals) in particular to the following (or with the following modifications), (or conveys to the Governor General in Council its regret that.....)". If this procedure is followed, the objections to which we called attention above in discussing alternative (c) would not arise, provided that it is established as a regular working convention that the "adoption" of the report is automatic, and that the recommendations made by the Assembly take the form of an addendum. In fact, subject to this convention, the procedure would not differ very materially from the other suggestion which we have made, and we suggest that it could be worked on the same plan so far as concerns the settling of the special points which would be selected each year for consideration.

III.—Comments on general matters arising out of the present Report.

31. Our predecessors last year agreed with the Auditor General that, as experience has shown in England, it is not possible to frame any rigid rule for the interpretation of the term "New Service", but that the application of the term to concrete cases can best be governed by the evolution of a body of case law. In order to help the future committees to evolve such a body of case law, we suggest that the Auditor General should in future years furnish a Memorandum to the Committee giving a collection of all doubtful cases with full details. This year we have had to deal with the specific cases mentioned in paragraphs 31—36.

32. Erection of a boiler and an electric generating plant at the Ghazipur Opium Factory.—As it was explained to us that this was only a replacement and not even a new instrument of service, we agree that this need not be treated as a "New Service".

33. Expenditure of Rs. 4,35,785 on the conversion of the R.I.M.S. "Dufferin" into a training ship against a budget provision of Rs. 1,40,973.—As the intention from the beginning was to acquire the ship and refit it as a training ship, we consider that this is a case of defective budgeting rather than one of undertaking a "New Service".

34. Purchase of the Anand Creamery at a cost of Rs. 60,000.—It has been argued on two grounds that this should not be treated as a "New Service"; first, that as funds were voted by the Assembly for running the Creamery in 1925-26 and 1926-27, no further payment in connection therewith need be regarded as a "New Service"; secondly, that it had merely been taken over by one Department from another, the Creamery having been purchased by the Agricultural Department from the Army Department. As regards the second argument, though theoretically the whole budget (including both voted and non-voted grants) should be considered as a single unit so that an item provided under the vote for one Department need not on strict technical grounds be treated as a "New Service" when it is transferred to another Department, nevertheless, if the transfer is (as in the present case) from a non-voted to a voted Departmental grant, this circumstance does in practice import a new factor which, in fairness to the Legislative Assembly, ought to be taken into account. Moreover, although the transfer of cash was only from one Department to another, it did in fact put the Department receiving the payment into the possession of funds provided for in another budget, which funds, as a result of the transfer, might have been disposed of on a non-voted service without reference to the Legislature. Turning to the first argument, the Standing Finance Committee and the Legislative Assembly had only approved expenditure for running the Creamery, and not for its purchase; the practical result is that while under the arrangement originally contemplated by the Standing Finance Committee and the Legislative Assembly, the Government could have terminated it at any time without loss except the loss incurred on the working during the period approved by them, now that the Creamery has been purchased, it is necessary to consider not only the working loss but also the possibility of a loss on disposal of the undertaking. We therefore consider on both the grounds that this item should be treated as a "New Service".

35. Installation of an electrolytic silver refinery at the Bombay Mint.—We are informed that prior to the installation of this refinery, the only means of refining silver at the Mint was by cupelling furnaces which were mainly used for refining silver recovered from drosses and were quite unsuitable for refining large quantities of fairly high touch silver as the losses would be excessive and the cost high and the quality of refined silver would not be good. The new refinery not only refines Government silver but also undertakes work for the bullion merchants and the public. The installation is therefore not a replacement but represents a new manufacturing unit and implies a definite policy on the part of the Government. There is thus a double reason for regarding this as a "New Service". Not only was the plant a new plant and not an extension of the existing plant, but the installation of this new plant involved the adoption of a new policy on the part of the Government. We consider this latter feature to be an important determining factor when considering whether any particular expenditure amounts to a "New Service". We therefore agree with the Auditor General that this ought to have been treated as a "New Service".

36. Re-armament of the Quetta-Peshin Police.—We are informed that funds for this purpose were voted by the Assembly in 1926-27 and that the stores were actually supplied in that year, but owing to some delay the debit was raised by the Military Department in the following year. We are of opinion that an item for which money had been voted by the Legislature in a previous year should not be treated as a "New Service" merely because the expenditure was incurred in another year.

37. Construction of new Railway lines.—We are glad to note that there is no difference of opinion between us and the Railway Board that a new construction should be regarded as a “New Service” and that a supplementary grant ought normally in every case to be applied for. The Financial Commissioner, however, has represented to us that in some cases it may be legitimate and desirable for the Railway Board to start a new construction without actually obtaining a supplementary grant from the Assembly provided always that the Standing Finance Committee for Railways has approved of the construction. The point made by the Financial Commissioner was that sometimes, owing to special unforeseen circumstances, it may be found impossible to start work on a particular project included in the budget, but that there may be another project equally desirable on which work could be begun immediately, and that if the latter project could not be started till the vote of the Assembly is obtained, a whole working season might be lost and a substantial part of the construction staff left idle. The main question involved is what latitude is to be allowed to the executive to start a new service with the approval of the Standing Finance Committee in anticipation of the approval of the Legislature. We consider that whatever latitude is allowed, the executive should not be allowed to substitute for a project approved by the Legislature another project the full cost of which will be considerably more, although in the particular year in which it is started the expenditure might not exceed the amount already provided for in the budget. We also urge that in all such cases of substituting one project for another, the control of the Finance Member should be rigidly exercised.

Further, when alternative projects are under consideration, particulars of all of these might be given to the Legislative Assembly when the Railway budget is presented, and it might be possible by adding token votes to get approval in advance from the Assembly for power to select one out of the various projects mentioned. We think that the procedure for this purpose ought to be carefully considered and then formulated in definite terms.

38. In the course of our discussions a question was raised whether in the case of construction of quarters and other amenities for government servants the money limit for determining whether the expenditure relates to a “new service”, should not be lower than in other cases. We could not however pursue the point as sufficient information was not available about the particular item of expenditure on which the question was raised. We hope that the report to be furnished by the Auditor General in future years (vide paragraph 31 ante) will enable succeeding committees to deal with the question.

39. We also suggest that in future the Standing Finance Committee and also the Standing Finance Committee for Railways, when asked to approve of any scheme placed before them, should consider, in the light of the case law promulgated by this Committee, whether the scheme constitutes a “New Service”. In order to enable that Committee to perform this function, the Department of the Government of India responsible for presenting the demand to that Committee should call attention to all the relevant facts and considerations.

40. The Auditor General has suggested, and we entirely agree with him, Supplementary grants. that the amount of a supplementary grant should be distributed between the various sub-heads and demand units like that of the original grant.

41. On paragraph 59 of the report of the Accountant General, Posts and Telegraphs, the Auditor General has raised the important point whether Re-appropriation re-appropriations should be made in the course of the year as soon as necessity for the expenditure is foreseen or whether lump sum re-appropriations made at the end of the year would suffice. We consider that in order to enable the departmental officers to watch the progress of expenditure with the help of the accounts officers, it is necessary that re-appropriations should be sanctioned as soon as necessity for additional expenditure is foreseen.

42. In the course of our discussions a few cases were brought to our notice Tele. an. ph. ra. in which there was a great disparity between the charges levied for telegrams and those levied for the use of trunk telephone lines. In view of the increasing competition between the telegraphs and telephones, we suggest that the Government should consider whether the relative rates of the two should not be revised so as to secure the best possible economic results.

43. The Chief Controller of Stores in evidence before us stated that until In. St. pa. the Government departments placed a larger share of their orders through the Indian Stores Department, that department cannot be self-supporting; and that while several departments and especially the Army would be of great importance, the really decisive factor in the situation must always be the Railways. He said in fact that without the bulk of the Railway business, the department could not become self-supporting. In view of these statements we think that the time has come for the Government to adopt a definite and decisive policy in relation to the Indian Stores Department. We wish therefore to record a recommendation that if the Government are satisfied that the department is so organised that it is capable of purchasing stores with efficiency (as regards testing quality, etc.), and economy, on a standard comparable to that attained by the departments when purchasing on their own account, then the Government should issue orders that all stores (other than stores of a special technical nature) required by any Government Department should in future be purchased through the Indian Stores Department; and that if the Government are not so satisfied then they should appoint a committee of the Legislative Assembly to enquire into the present position and working of the Indian Stores Department. We are prepared to recognise that there may be reasons against the immediate universal application of orders such as are envisaged in the first part of our recommendation stated above, and that time may be required for the development of the Stores Department in certain directions, but this admission is not inconsistent with a declaration of policy by the Government such as we have recommended. Moreover, if the Government were to adopt a definite policy, the development of the Department might be greatly accelerated. We received, for example, a very valuable suggestion from the Chief Commissioner of Railways in this matter. He informed us that, except for certain big items the purchase of which has been centralised with the Railway Board, the Railways were prepared to effect purchases through the Indian Stores Department in every case where it was to their advantage to do so—subject always to the reservation that they could not hand over to any outside agency their responsibilities regarding rolling stock—an exception which we accept as coming under the heading of special technical stores. The Chief Commissioner went on to say that a year ago the Railway Board had agreed to purchase through the Indian Stores Department a number of additional items of stores and that he would be prepared to consider at intervals of six months or a year further additions to the list. The criterion he would apply would be that it must be to the advantage of the Railways to do so, and if there was any doubt about the advantage to be obtained in regard to certain items, he would suggest that for a year or two the Railways should purchase half the quantity of such stores departmentally and half through the Indian Stores Department. He hoped that he would thus obtain a reliable test of the practical efficiency of the latter. If such a practice is applied on a sufficiently large scale and with a genuine and whole-hearted desire to assist the development of the Indian Stores Department, not only by the Railways but by all other Government departments, it might be reasonable to defer further orders until this practical experiment had been completed. But we maintain that the Government should definitely announce their policy to this effect. We further wish to emphasise that, in considering whether the Indian Stores Department operates economically, all the factors which affect the Government of India as a whole should be taken into account. For example, while it may happen that the Army Department purchasing oil on their own account could get oil cheaper than if they were to buy it through the Indian Stores Department, after allowing for the addition of the 2 per cent. commission which the latter charges, nevertheless the financial results to the Government of India as a whole might be better if the purchases were made through the latter Department.

44. Profit and loss accounts and balance sheets of commercial undertakings are at present incorporated in the Appropriation Accounts, but owing to the form in which the accounts are presented, and to the fact that in all cases we are dealing with accounts which are two years old, we can carry out no useful or practical review of the commercial results and efficiency. As it is very material to our task to be able to form an opinion on these points, we recommend that in the case of commercial undertakings, including the Railways, there should be an annexe to the Appropriation Accounts reviewing the general results of the working of the undertakings on the basis of the latest figures available and giving a general account of the business, containing the sort of information which is given in the annual report of a commercial company and in the speech made by the chairman of a public company to the shareholders at the annual meeting. Such reports would in any case be of general interest to the public.

45. The Accountant General, Railways, has brought to our notice a case in which a Railway suffered some loss by the departmental manufacture of bricks. Although we realise that in commercial undertakings mistakes like this in calculating probable savings by departmental manufacture are liable to occur, and although the loss in the particular case was of a relatively small amount, nevertheless an important lesson can be learnt from the incident under review, viz., that when Railways desire to undertake a manufacturing business of this kind, which, is outside their ordinary business, special care should be devoted to checking the estimates. As there is some danger of the Railway undertakings in India growing to an unmanageable size, any tendency to expand outside their own special task, should be checked. Such expansion is justifiable only on conditions are such that a particular article required by the Railways cannot be obtained on any sort of reasonable terms unless they manufacture it themselves; and the mere prospect of making an ordinary commercial profit should be no inducement for the undertaking of such business. It must always moreover be remembered that it is difficult enough to provide adequate capital for meeting the needs of actual railways, without locking up money in side shows.

46. At present the Railway budget is presented in the Assembly by the Railway Member. Under the Indian Legislative Rules, however, the Budget has to be presented by the Finance Member, and we are informed that the definition of the term 'Finance Member' as given in Rule 2 of the Indian Legislative Rules permits the Governor General to appoint any Member of the Assembly other than the regular Finance Member for a special purpose to exercise the functions prescribed by the rules for the Finance Member. We desire to recommend that when the Governor General exercises this power of appointing any Member as the Finance Member for the purpose of any particular rule in the Indian Legislative Rules, the order of such appointment should be laid on the table of the House. We also suggest that the Railway Board should obtain the opinion of the Legislative Department as to the interpretation of the definition referred to above.

47. A question of great importance which has been raised on several occasions at our meetings is whether the existing convention as regards Railway Finance was intended to exclude the Public Accounts Committee from being consulted or giving advice about the form of the Demands for Railway Grants.

Rule 44 (3) of the Indian Legislative Rules lays down that the Budget shall be presented in such a form as the Finance Member may consider best fitted for its consideration by the Assembly; and it would be in accordance with English constitutional theory and practice that in deciding such matters the Finance Member, if he desired advice or suggestion from outside the Finance Department, should consult the Public Accounts Committee rather than any other body connected with the Legislature. On the other hand, under the Resolution regarding the separation of Railway from General finances adopted by the Legislative Assembly on the 20th September, 1924, the form which the Railway Budget shall take after the separation, the details it shall give and the number of demands for grants into which the total vote shall be divided has to be considered by the Railway Board in consultation with the Standing Finance Committee for Railways. While this Resolution clearly gives to the Standing Finance Committee for Railways a definite function in the matter, there is no evidence to show that the Legislative Assembly, in adopting this proposition, took into consideration the further implication of an intention altogether to exclude the form of Railway accounts from the purview of the Public Accounts Committee. In any case, it appears to us that the decision, however strictly interpreted, does not necessarily mean that the constitutional powers of the Finance Member and his right to act, if so desired, in consultation with the Public Accounts Committee are abrogated, and we submit that it would require very definite and explicit decisions based on due constitutional authority to abrogate such powers and rights. We therefore record the view that even now, that is to say, without any further affirmation from the Legislative Assembly being required, the position is that all changes in the form of Demands for Railway Grants initiated by the Railway Board in consultation with the Standing Finance Committee for Railways may be subject to further consideration by the Finance Member who, before arriving at a final decision, will be entitled to consult the Public Accounts Committee. In expressing this view, we do not at all wish to suggest trenching on the powers or limiting the scope of the Standing Finance Committee for Railways. The main work will still be theirs, and normally, in view of the Assembly Resolution and the convention thereby adopted, the initiation and preliminary consideration of all proposals for changes in the form of Railway Accounts will rest with them. On the other hand, it may on occasions happen that the Public Accounts Committee, while examining the Appropriation Accounts of the Railways, may consider that some change is required in the form of the Demands for Railway Grants.* In such a case it would be proper for the Finance Member, in deference to the arrangement authorised by the Legislative Assembly in 1924, to ask that the Standing Finance Committee for Railways should consider the suggestions of the Public Accounts Committee, leaving himself the liberty thereafter if he thought it necessary, to make a further reference to the Public Accounts Committee before he came to his own final conclusion.

We believe that in practice the interpretation of the position which we have set out above will provide a satisfactory working arrangement which will be the best in the public interest and will ensure that both the Standing Finance Committee for Railways and the Public Accounts Committee can render to the Government the very valuable services of which they are capable.

L.M.S.
Dufferin."

48. An estimate amounting to Rs. 2,27,645 was prepared by the Director of the Royal Indian Marine for the conversion of the "Dufferin" as a training ship. The appropriation in the budget for 1927-28 for this work was Rs. 1,40,973. The actual cost of the conversion amounted, however, to Rs. 3,56,373, i.e., an excess of Rs. 1,28,728 or 56.5 per cent. over the estimate, and of Rs. 2,94,812 over the appropriation. The reasons for the excess as given in paragraph 6 of Appendix XIII may be valid, but we must call attention to a very unsatisfactory feature in this case, namely, that the expenditure was actually incurred by the Marine Department in 1927-28 without their giving any intimation of the fact to the Commerce Department. The first notice that the Commerce Department received was in February 1928 through a proof copy of the Demands for Grants for the year 1928-29 sent to them by the Finance Department. This case clearly proves that it is necessary that when one Department of Government employs another to do work for it, there ought to be a proper business arrangement made in order to insure that the Department undertaking the work does not exceed the estimate without the authority of the employing Department. We also suggest that the Auditor General should investigate what precise procedure could be adopted in a case like this to keep the Department responsible for providing the funds informed of the progress of expenditure on the work.

* A case actually occurred which we quote as an illustration. The Public Accounts Committee in 1926-27 and 1927-28 urged that the Railway Demands for Grants, as presented to the Assembly at the time of the Budget, should conform to the form of accounts presented before the Public Accounts Committee—the latter shewing under each Grant expenses charged to respective Railways. The Financial Commissioner of Railways accepted this suggestion and the demands of 1928-29 were presented accordingly.

49. A case was brought to our notice in which an officer was placed on special duty for work which was estimated in the first place to last only six months, but actually continued to eighteen months. We consider that it should be possible in the case of temporary employment of an officer on special duty to frame a more accurate estimate of the period required for the special work.

REPORT OF THE ACCOUNTANT GENERAL, CENTRAL REVENUES.

Grant 18—Salt.

50. We desire to record that an examination of the accounts of the Northern India Salt Revenue Department for 1927-28 reinforces the recommendation made by our predecessors in paragraph 18 of their report of last year. We reserve further recommendations until we have had an opportunity of examining the special full report on the commercial results which will be placed before the Committee next year.

51. We understand that at present no commercial system of accounts is maintained for the Government salt producing sources in Bombay, Madras and Burma. We are of opinion that the commercial system of accounts should be introduced in all Government salt producing undertakings.

Grant 47—Meteorology.

52. We desire to have a report next year analysing the services which are rendered by the Meteorological Department to the Royal Air Force and the reciprocal services rendered by the latter in the study of Meteorology, new routes for civil aviation or otherwise. The report should mention specifically those activities which the Department would not have undertaken but for the Royal Air Force. While asking for this report we recognise that meticulous accuracy as regards claims and counter claims during the present experimental period is neither practicable nor desirable.

Grant 49—Botanical Survey.

53. In considering the position as regards the large stocks of quinine held by the Government and the policy to be adopted by the Government as regards the production of quinine, it has been suggested to us, first, that the supply and consumption of quinine in the malarial districts of India may not have been developed on a scale desirable having regard to the well-being of the people, secondly, that spurious quinine is being sold in substantial quantities. Further, from our own examination of the position, we have formed the conclusion that, having regard not only to their own financial interests but also to the proper development of medical benefits for the people, it is desirable that the Government of India should formulate a definite policy as regards the production and distribution of quinine, secondly, that as no such policy can be effectively introduced without some action for encouraging the consumption of quinine, and as this latter side of the matter lies in the hands of the Provincial Governments, the Central Government cannot initiate any effective and businesslike policy without the co-operation of the Provincial Governments. We therefore recommend that the Government of India should investigate this whole question, in consultation with Provincial Governments, without delay.

Grant 66—Indian Stores Department.

54. We find that the figures of net loss in the working of the Indian Stores Department, as given in the Administration Report, differ considerably from the figures in the Appropriation Accounts. A memorandum has been circulated to us by the Audit Officer, Indian Stores Department, explaining the differences (Appendix XII). We desire to record that in future the two sets of figures should be prepared on the same lines or at least on a reconcilable basis.

Grant 73—Refunds.

55. We suggest that the Finance Department should consider whether, in the case of the non-voted refunds, which represent inevitable items of expenditure, there should be no time limit for the acceptance and sanctioning of re-appropriations and additional appropriations, provided, of course, that the orders are actually passed within the financial year.

Grant 76—Delhi.

56. We are informed that at present the Chief Commissioner is solely and entirely responsible for the preparation of the initial local estimates of all fluctuating charges in his budget and does not obtain any assistance or advice on the subject from his Pay and Accounts Officer. It appears to us that the special knowledge and experience of the Pay and Accounts Officer would be of the greatest value to the Chief Commissioner and that without the aid of these the Chief Commissioner can hardly be expected to frame really accurate budgets. We suggest therefore that the Finance Department should enquire into the possibility of improving the present procedure for the preparation of budgets in areas like Delhi where there is a separate Pay and Accounts Officer.

57. We were informed that the expenditure shown under the head 'Agriculture' under this grant relates to the maintenance of gardens in the Delhi city and not to the improvement of agriculture in rural areas. We suggest that this should be made clear in future Demands for Grants and Appropriation Accounts, if possible, by the exhibition of the expenditure under the sub-head 'Horticulture'.

Grant 78—Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

58. We suggest that when considering the preparation of accounts of the dairy farm and the slaughter house on a commercial basis, the Auditor General should consider whether any portion of the loss on the working of these undertakings can properly be charged against Army estimates.

Grants 82 and 83—Expenditure in England under the control of the Secretary of State and the High Commissioner.

59. We recommend that the persistent over-budgeting under these two grants should be brought to the special notice of the Secretary of State and the High Commissioner.

Report of the Accountant General, Posts and Telegraphs.

60. Paragraph 33 of the Report.—We consider that the fraud referred to in this paragraph should be taken as an occasion to issue circular instructions drawing attention to the rules requiring the verification of signatures.

Report of the Accountant General, Railways.

61. Paragraph 2 of the Annexure.—We suggest that a further enquiry should be made regarding this case to fix the responsibility for the loss of measurement sheets. We are also of opinion that an entry should be made in the record of service of the Assistant Engineer concerned, though we recognise that his good conduct since then will naturally diminish the effect of such an entry.

62. Paragraph 6 ibid.—We desire that legal opinion should be obtained whether criminal proceedings could have been taken in this case.

63. Paragraph 9 ibid.—We are not quite satisfied with the explanation given and we endorse the suggestion of the Financial Secretary that the Railway Board should study the elaborate set of rules drawn up by the Army Department regulating the acquisition, custody and relinquishment of State lands and buildings by Military authorities, and consider whether similar rules could not be introduced for the Railways.

64. Paragraph 12 ibid.—We are glad to be assured that, since the separation of Railway Finance, considerations of the budgetary position of the Government of India have not been allowed to govern allocation of expenditure between capital and revenue. As regards the relative responsibility of the Railway Board and the Government Examiner for the allocation of the expenditure between capital and revenue, we think that at the time of the preparation of the budget estimates, the Railway Board should make an attempt to bring up-to-date the allocation between capital and revenue, but that the responsibility for checking the actual allocation when the expenditure is actually incurred should lie on the Government Examiner, to whom all the material necessary for making a correct allocation must be made available.

65. Paragraph 13 ibid.—As the explanation furnished by the Manager is not quite satisfactory the attention of the Manager should again be invited to the Accountant General's remarks and a more instructive report should be furnished to the Committee next year.

66. Paragraphs 11 and 93 of the Report.—We are informed that though, according to the Government of India Resolution regarding the construction of unremunerative lines on the guarantee of a local Government or other local body, the actual loss in the working of such lines ought to be borne by the local Government or other local body, in practice it is generally necessary to limit the liability of these bodies to a definite maximum figure of loss based on such estimates as the Railway Board can frame. We understand that in cases of this kind it has not been the practice to prepare detailed estimates of capital expenditure before arriving at an agreement with the local body, as the cost of preparing such estimates would be wasted if such body were subsequently to decline the terms offered to it. We recommend that before entering into any such agreement with a local Government or other local body, especially in cases involving difficult construction, detailed estimates should be prepared on the understanding that if the local Government or the local body did not accept the terms offered by the Railway Board, the cost of preparing such detailed estimates would have to be borne by the local Government or the local body concerned.

As regards the Kangra Valley Railway, we refrain from detailed comment first, because it is acknowledged that the case was exceptional and that the procedure followed in that case ought certainly not to be repeated and, secondly, because the matter is now under investigation by the Railway Board.

67. Paragraph 12 ibid.—We are very much concerned to hear from the Controller of Railway Accounts that the state of affairs regarding Stores Accounts on the East Indian Railway is a very bad one and that it has been so for a long time. We hope a radical alteration of the present procedure and the introduction of machines proposed by the Controller will enable him to evolve order out of the present chaos. We shall be glad to have a report on the situation next year.

68. Paragraph 30 ibid.—We are informed that the difference in the figures of capital at charge as given in the Administration Report and those given in the Appropriation Accounts is due to the difference in the rate of exchange at which sterling figures have been converted into rupees. We understand that certain proposals of the Auditor General in this connection are still under the consideration of the Railway Board and we recommend that in future an attempt should be made to present the two sets of figures on a uniform basis.

69. Paragraphs 38 to 40 ibid.—We recommend that the Railway Board should follow a definite policy of adjusting rates on Company-managed lines to rates on State lines, unless in any special case there are definite economic reasons against such a course.

70. Paragraph 45 ibid.—Our attention has been called to the fact that the increase in expenditure on fuel on the Bengal Nagpur Railway is not due to increased consumption but to higher cost of coal. As there was no general rise in coal prices throughout India, this higher cost has been explained to us as being the result of the fact that the coal (which is supplied from the company's own collieries) consumed in 1927-28 was taken from collieries at a greater distance, the increase therefore being due to higher freight charges. This seems to indicate that the prices of coal charged to the railways are dependent on the cost of production and delivery rather than on the fair market price of the coal. We think that the collieries of the company should be treated as an independent commercial undertaking and that the price charged to the Railways should be a competitive commercial price. This means that a system of proper commercial accounts should be introduced on all collieries worked by Railways and that the loss or profit in working such collieries should be shown separately.

71. Paragraphs 103 and 104 ibid.—See paragraph 28 ante.

72. We concur in the conclusions and recommendations (vide Appendix XX) of the Sub-Committee appointed by us to investigate such of the items in the Report of the Accountant General, Railways, as were not dealt with in detail by the main Committee.

As regards the sub-paragraph to paragraph 8 of the Report of the Sub-Committee we are satisfied that the points raised by us have for the present been adequately dealt with in the letter addressed by the Railway Board to the Agent, B. N. Railway, but we desire to have a full report next year, on the action taken as a result of this letter.

• Report of the Military Accounts Committee.

73. We cordially approve of the change made in the current year in the constitution of the Military Accounts Committee, namely, the substitution of the Controller of Civil Accounts as a member of the Committee in the place of the Army Secretary. We also record our appreciation of the efficient and thorough manner in which the Military Accounts Committee has dealt with the Appropriation Accounts. We concur in the conclusions and recommendations of that Committee.

74. We desire to receive a memorandum from the Army Department on their policy as regards purchases of stores through the Indian Stores Department and whether the Army could increase their purchases through that Department.

75. We consider that the result of the examination of the Financial Adviser mentioned in paragraph 54 of the Military Accounts Committee's report should be communicated to us.

76. In the course of our examination this year we have noticed one or two cases where, owing to oversight, there has been a failure to take action on some of the recommendations of our predecessors. In order to avoid such delays in future, we recommend that as soon as the report of this Committee appears, the Finance Department should prepare lists enumerating the points and recommendations, including those in the proceedings attached to the Report, which concern each Department and circulate them to the Departments concerned for immediate action. The Departments concerned should then report by a fixed date what action they have taken as regards each item and further render supplementary returns at regular periods until all the recommendations have been disposed of to the satisfaction of the Finance Department.

77. We have to note that in some cases the representatives of the departments, who appeared before us, have not always been able to answer our questions with full responsibility. We wish to emphasise our view that the officer responsible for the control of any department must always include the control of expenditure and accounts as an important part of his own direct responsibility and should be ready, if necessary, to appear before the Public Accounts Committee.

78. We are glad to note the inauguration this year of the practice of the Financial Secretary being present at all our meetings. This is of great value and we consider that it should be adopted as a regular practice.

79. In view of Sir Frederic Gauntlett's impending retirement and of the fact that this is the last session of the Public Accounts Committee that he will attend in his capacity as Auditor General in India, we desire to place on record our great and genuine appreciation of the very valuable service which he has consistently rendered ever since the Public Accounts Committee was instituted—service not only to the Public Accounts Committee but also to the Legislature and the Executive Government. Sir Frederic Gauntlett by his devotion to his duties and by his able maintenance of the efficiency and independence of audit has done much to strengthen the financial control of public expenditure and by the advice and guidance which he has at all times generously given, he has greatly assisted the Public Accounts Committee in developing the exercise of its functions and in fulfilling the important part assigned to it under the constitution.

80. In conclusion we desire to acknowledge the services of our Secretary, Mr. K. Sanjiva Row.

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT.

REPRESENTATIONS MADE BY THE EAST AFRICAN DELEGATION re THE SITUATION IN EAST AFRICA.

Diwan Chaman Lall (West Punjab: Non-Muhammadan): Sir, I beg to ask for leave to move the adjournment of this House, notice of which I have already given, to discuss a matter of urgent public importance, namely, the failure of the Government of India to give a full and satisfactory reply to the recent representations made to it by the East African Delegation.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Home Member): Sir, the subject is, no doubt, a matter of public importance, but I submit that it is not a matter of urgency and I shall endeavour to explain very briefly why I am of that opinion. The views of the Delegation and of the Standing Emigration Committee have been fully communicated to the Secretary of State for India and are now under his consideration. I submit, therefore, that at this juncture, a motion of this kind, so far from being urgent, would have a prejudicial effect upon the negotiations upon which Sir Muhammad Habibullah is engaged, and it would embarrass not only him but the Secretary of State in their endeavour to secure a favourable consideration of the Indian case. I am authorised to state that the Secretary of State intends to do his utmost to secure that favourable consideration. I submit further that the House would be in a much better position to discuss the whole matter after the publication of Sir Samuel Wilson's Report which, as the House is aware, is shortly to be published. Finally, I am in a position to assure the House that a final decision by Parliament will be postponed until after the Assembly has had an opportunity of debating the matter. I am also in a position to assure the House that every opportunity will be given for a full representation of the Indian case. That, Sir, being the state of affairs, I submit once more that a motion for adjournment at this stage, so far from being urgent, would be calculated to prejudice discussions and negotiations, in the happy result of which Government are at least not less concerned than Honourable Members in any part of the House. (Applause.)

Mr. K. C. Roy (Bengal: Nominated Non-Official): I wish to call your attention to page 17 of the Manual of Business and Procedure of this House, paragraph 44 (iv), which reads thus:

"The motion must not anticipate a matter which has been previously appointed for consideration, or with reference to which a notice of motion has been previously given."

There is a notice standing in my name on today's Order Paper, and should you decide that Diwan Chaman Lall's motion is in order, I shall ask your permission to withdraw mine.

As regards urgency, I am not convinced by the advocacy of the Leader of the House. The whole question on which the Delegation from East Africa have made representations to the Government has been discussed by all interested legislative bodies in the British Empire. The British Parliament has discussed it in both its Houses; the Kenya Legislative Council has discussed it; the matter has been mentioned to the Mandates Commission at Geneva; and the only Houses which have been precluded from discussing the matter are the Central Legislature of India. And the Central Legislature of India is vitally interested in the matter.

Mr. President: Whose fault is it? Is it Government's fault?

Mr. K. C. Roy: It is absolutely Government's fault. They ought to have given us a day. Request was made more than once to the Leader of the House last cold weather, and it was systematically denied, and the Report was taken by backstairs to a Committee, or Conference which is not responsible to this House. The Leader of the House has told us that Sir Muhammad Habibullah is in delicate negotiations with the Colonial Office.

[Mr. K. C. Roy.]

May I ask, what is the brief on which he is negotiating? Is it the brief of the Government of India; is it the brief which was placed before this House the other day by my Honourable friend Sir Frank Noyce? In my opinion, there is not a thing which is more urgent at the present moment than a discussion of the situation in East Africa as raised by the Deputation. I hope, Sir, that you will permit the motion.

*Diwan Chaman Lall : I do not agree with the remarks made by the Leader of the House when he said that he opposed this adjournment motion on the ground that there was no urgency disclosed in the motion which I have placed before the House. The only argument that he advanced in regard to the question of urgency was not based upon the matter of urgency at all, but on the embarrassment that it might cause to the representatives of the Government of India. The whole tenor of his remarks is this, that if this question is debated on the floor of this House, not that there is not an urgency for the debate, but if it is debated upon, then the hands of the representatives of the Government of India, who are now engaged on this matter with the Secretary of State and with the Government in Great Britain, would be tied, and they would be embarrassed in the negotiations they are carrying on. I submit there is nothing in the Standing Orders or the Rules governing the procedure of this House which prevents a motion for adjournment being tabled on the ground that it might cause embarrassment to the representatives of the Government of India. The question is the question of urgency. Is that denied? I submit most humbly that the Leader of the House has not proved his case that there is no urgency with regard to this matter.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member has not proved that it is urgent. The burden of proof lies on him, not on the Leader of the House.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Objection is taken by the Leader of the House. His objection is that there is no urgency. My Honourable friend Mr. K. C. Roy has definitely stated, and I take it that there can be no reply to the statement that he has made—the urgency is that these negotiations that are being conducted in Great Britain should be conducted in the spirit in which this House wants them to be conducted, and unless and until an opportunity is given to this House to place its views before the representatives of the Government, there will be no possibility of the correct views of the House being taken into consideration by the representatives of the Government who are negotiating....

Mr. President : The Leader of the House gives an assurance that no decision will be taken before this House has had a full opportunity of discussing the question.

Diwan Chaman Lall : An assurance has been given by the Leader of the House that the views of this House will be consulted before a final decision is taken. But what is going to happen in the interval? What is going to happen in regard to the negotiations now being conducted? What guarantee has the Honourable Member given that the views the Government of India are placing before their representatives in Great Britain are the views which find favour in this House? They have given no guarantee whatever. My Honourable friend Mr. K. C. Roy put a pertinent question, what are the representations that you are making? What are the views that you are placing before your representatives? Are they the views of the East African Indian Delegation, of the Indians settled in East Africa? Are they the views of public bodies in India, or are they the views of your Department? What are the views that you are going to place before the Secretary of State for India? What is going to happen in the meanwhile? What is the sort of lead that you are going to give your representatives? We have seen the sort of lead which the Government of India gave in the past in regard to this matter. It was a perfectly hopeless lead, which satisfied nobody in this country and nobody in East Africa. If the Honourable Member gives me an assurance that the views which are placed before them by public men in this country and by the deputation which met him in regard to this matter will be pressed by the Government of India on the authorities in Great Britain, I am perfectly willing to withdraw this Resolution and await the decision of the House next Session. Until that assurance is given, I submit that it is our right to debate this question in order that the views of this House should be placed before the authorities in Great Britain.

Sir Darcy Lindsay (Bengal : European) : I must say that I cannot see how my Honourable friend Diwan Chaman Lall has made out a case of urgency in this matter. I also contend that he has entirely ignored the work of a Committee of this House, that is the Emigration Committee. The Emigration Committee had the assistance of some of the leaders of the House when they met the delegation from East Africa to hear their views. The Committee have expressed their opinions to the Department, and so far as I am aware, the Government of India are in accord and have forwarded those views to the Secretary of State for India. To discuss this question now would in my opinion take away a great deal of the good work that has already been done. I hold the view that it would be most impolitic at this juncture to discuss in any way the matters that are likely to be reported on by Sir Samuel Wilson. We hope that at the next winter Session we shall have full opportunity to discuss the Report in this House. On these grounds I ask you not to allow the adjournment motion.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber : Indian Commerce) : Sir, I think the House has reason to be grateful to my friend Diwan Chaman Lall for bringing up this motion for adjournment. I may say that I was taken by surprise when I heard about half an hour back that this motion was coming up. But in view of what I have heard just now, and especially from my friend Sir Darcy Lindsay, I do think that this motion will at least clear up the atmosphere. There can be no more urgent reason for discussing this subject today than this. This is the last day, as far as I know, of this Session. After this Sir Samuel Wilson's Report is going to be published about the fifth of next month, and the British Cabinet is likely to take a decision in this important matter about 16th October next. It is perfectly true that the Standing Emigration Committee has submitted to Government their very elaborate opinions on this question. Being a member of that Committee, and being committed to keep things confidential as a member of that Committee, I am not in a position to say anything more, but the House is aware that that Committee worked on the last two Sundays for the best part of four or five hours at a stretch in consultation with the deputation from East Africa, in connection with what should be the opinion of that Committee, as far as the position of Indians in those colonies is concerned. Supposing, Sir, that the motion which is last today on the paper and I see that there is a rather longish agenda today in the name of my Honourable friend Sir George Schuster, to which my friend Mr. K. C. Roy has given notice of an amendment, is not reached today and does not come up for discussion, then what happens? The country has been in a condition of suspense....

Mr. President : Since when has the country been in suspense?

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Ever since the beginning of this question. They do not know what the Government of India has said on this Report.

Mr. President : Then you should have brought forward this motion on the opening day of the Assembly.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : A motion would have been tabled much earlier but for the fact that the members of the Standing Emigration Committee came to know only at a later stage that the Government of India had not completely endorsed the opinions expressed by the Standing Emigration Committee in March last.

Mr. President : When did they come to know of it?

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : About ten days ago.

Mr. President : Then why was not the motion brought earlier?

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : The Government of India were to revise it.

Mr. President : And you knew only this morning that they did not revise?

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : What we were told was that the Government of India had wired to the Secretary of State in accordance with the latest decision of the Standing Emigration Committee. Every moment I was told, they were expecting to be able to inform us about it. What is more important is this. The Members of this House know nothing at all about it. Whether the Government are in a position to put that information at the disposal of this House or not is a different thing, but the House should have an opportunity of saying what they want to say.

Mr. President : Then why did you come up today?

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Because it is the last day. There is no subsequent day.

Mr. President : Every motion for adjournment must come up on the last day?

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Because there is no other opportunity.

Mr. President : Why did you not move it yesterday or the day before yesterday?

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : We saw this item in the name of Mr. K. C. Roy and we thought we would have an opportunity to raise the discussion on that. It was not reached yesterday. Some Members of this House, including myself, make mistakes at times. I submit, for your information, that we thought at least the whole question would be raised on Mr. K. C. Roy's amendment. We wanted an opportunity of ventilating our views. It is not a question of this House taking a definite decision, but as was said by one of the Honourable Members in the course of the discussion, it is significant that, while every other part of the British Empire interested in this matter of the Hilton Young Report....

Mr. President : I quite see the importance of the question, but what I do not understand is why Honourable Members did not raise it earlier.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : We knew that the whole question could be raised on Mr. Roy's amendment in connection with the tour of the Right Honourable Sastri to Kenya.

Mr. President : Honourable Members did nothing during the whole Session, and come up with this matter on the last day.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : The matter is absolutely in your hands. I am not challenging your decision. I am only explaining my point.

Mr. President : I should have been perfectly willing to consider this motion if it had come up some days earlier.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : It was felt that we should not avoidably burden the already overburdened business of the House. All I can say is that Diwan Chaman Lall has brought up this point and it is for you to decide. I wish to submit one thing finally. If you feel that it is likely that we shall reach the end of the agenda today, I would suggest that it may not be necessary to have this motion for adjournment discussed at all. We can have our say on Mr. K. C. Roy's cut. If, however, we do not get that opportunity, I feel that, at any rate as far as the non-official Members are concerned, they will have performed their duty by bringing it to your knowledge and suggesting to you that there is an opportunity which may be made available to us before the House adjourns sine die, namely, by a motion for adjournment.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, the Honourable the Leader has asked me to reply, as I was the Member of Government who was present with my Honourable colleague, Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain at the last meeting of the Emigration Committee, and I think that some reference to that last meeting and what has happened since then is pertinent to this discussion. My Honourable friend, Diwan Chaman Lall, has asked, on what brief are Sir Muhammad Habibullah, or any other representatives of the Government of India, who are now in England, speaking? Have they any knowledge of what is the opinion of this House? Now, Sir, I think it is fair to assume that the views which were expressed by the Standing Emigration Committee do represent the views of this House. (An Honourable Member : "Not necessarily.") That is an assumption which I would say that it is fair to make, and I would put it to the House that it is a fair assumption. It is not possible for the Government of India, at the present stage, for reasons which I am sure all Honourable Members will appreciate, to make public, the actual telegram which they sent to the Secretary of State. We can state very definitely that every single point, which was made by the representatives of this Assembly on the Standing Emigration Committee, has been communicated to the Secretary of State, so that I think we may take it that the views of, at any rate a very representative Committee of this Assembly, are fully known in London.

[Sir George Schuster.]

Then, Sir, there is one other point to which I would refer. My Honourable colleague has put it to the House that it might prejudice the case if violent statements were made now. Speaking on behalf of Government, Sir, I wish to make it clear that Government do not in any sense want to burke discussion on this subject. They fully recognise the interest which is felt on this subject in the Assembly and indeed they would be anxious that the Secretary of State's hands should be strengthened by an expression of opinion from this House. But, Sir, at the present stage—and I speak with direct knowledge of the issues that are involved and the interests that are involved—we do feel that it might prejudice the handling of the case by our advocates in London if very extreme statements were made. The position of the Indians in Kenya is admittedly an extremely difficult problem. It is a problem which can hardly be solved without goodwill on all sides; and it is very important that, at the present stage, every thing should be done to avoid creating a bitter atmosphere. That, Sir, is our position; and we think it fair to put that position to this Assembly, speaking with one object and one object only in our mind, which is to secure the best practical result, to maintain the best possible chance of obtaining a favourable result for the Indian case. Having said that, Sir, and having reiterated that it is not the desire of Government in any case to burke discussion on this subject, I would leave it to you, Sir, to decide what course of action should be taken. (Applause.)

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, as regards the Standing Emigration Committee, it is well-known that it is a purely nominated Committee of this House, and particularly the Congress Benches take no place in nominated Committees.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : May I inform the Honourable Member that Pandit Motilal Nehru and Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar were present at the meeting?

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I am referring to the Standing Emigration Committee.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : My Honourable friend may know that these two meetings where the final decision was taken were attended by Pandit Motilal Nehru and Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar for no less than a period of three to four hours each time.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I am simply stating that the Congress Party takes no part in nominated Committees. It struck me from the beginning when this Report was published that Government.....

Mr. President : I would like to know from the Honourable Member when the final decision was taken.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Speaking from memory, Sir, but I think it is fairly accurate, last Sunday. The Honourable the Secretary of the Department will correct me if I am wrong.

Sir Frank Noyce (Secretary, Department of Education, Health and Lands) : Last Sunday, Sir, and Sunday fortnight previously.

Mr. President : The decisions were taken in the presence of the Leader of the Opposition and other Members?

Sir Frank Noyce : The Leader of the Opposition and Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar, to the best of my recollection, were present throughout the most important parts of both meetings.

Mr. President : Then why was this motion not brought up before?

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : No motion was brought up earlier, because the decision taken on last Sunday was merely the decision of an Advisory Committee : we do not know what the Government of India have done with that advice. We were able to know on last Tuesday or so that they had sent a wire to the Secretary of State, and I am very glad that they had sent a wire to the Secretary of State, and I am very glad to know from the statement of the Honourable Sir George Schuster that the Government of India have wired in full accordance with the recommendations of the Emigration Committee. Do I understand that correctly, Sir?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : No, Sir. (Laughter.) I must re-refer to my own statement. I informed my Honourable friend that we could not, at this stage, make public what the Government of India itself had said; and my Honourable friend, I think, expressed his appreciation that it was impossible for us, at the present stage, to make public what we had said. What I did say was that we had communicated to the Secretary of State every single point and every single recommendation that was made at that meeting.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : The difficulty, Sir, is this. The Emigration Committee made a recommendation. The Government of India have sent a message to the Secretary of State. The House now feels that it ought to be able to say what it wants to, irrespective of what the Government of India have said. That is the whole point. We do hope that the Government of India have said all that we wanted them to say, but we have no information on that point for obvious reasons.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I think it is rather unfair of my Honourable friend to press the matter any further.

Mr. President : Are the Government of India prepared to disclose what they have stated to the Secretary of State?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Member for Industries and Labour) : They cannot say....

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : We are precluded from doing so, Sir, under Standing Orders relating to correspondence.

Mr. President : How then can I prevent Honourable Members from expressing their opinion on this question?

Mr. K. C. Roy : This, Sir, really arises out of the reply of my Honourable friend Sir Frank Noyce to a question by Mr. B. Das yesterday, saying that he could not give full information regarding the outcome of the representation of the East African Deputation. Really that is the point. It is, I think, based upon the reply given by Sir Frank Noyce to Mr. B. Das only yesterday.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I would, Sir, with your permission, say one word in regard to the urgency of the matter, as to why it is that we want today to move this motion. Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas has given you, Sir, the history of the whole affair. The reason why we are moving this adjournment motion today is plain from the terms of the motion itself, namely, the failure of the Government to give a full and satisfactory reply. Sir, what was the reply? The reply was given yesterday by Sir Frank Noyce. He gave the reply yesterday which we considered to be absolutely unsatisfactory. That reply was that the Government of India was not in a position to inform the House as to what they are going to do in regard to the deputation that waited on the Viceroy. I realise the difficulty of the Government as to why they are not in a position to inform the House. They say that there are certain Standing Orders that stand in their way. If that is so, we on this side of the House are completely in the dark. We therefore want, in view of the fact that this matter arose only yesterday, to express our opinions in regard to this matter by moving this motion for adjournment.

[Diwan Chaman Lall.]

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I had not yet completed my remarks, Sir, when this discussion began.

Mr. President : Will the Honourable Member be able to throw any light on the question?

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : My point is that the question of urgency still remains. The Congress Party is not committed to anything that the Standing Emigration Committee might have done, and it is altogether unjustifiable to mention the names of Pandit Motilal Nehru and Mr. Rangaswami Iyengar because they were simply interested spectators. They have expressed their opinion on the floor of this House and it is not right that they should be mentioned as having participated in the discussion.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : From the point of the Congress Party the urgency then arose before last Sunday.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : It arose after the reply given by Sir Frank Noyce. We are not concerned with what happened in the Standing Emigration Committee.

Sir Frank Noyce : I can assure the Honourable Member that neither Pandit Motilal Nehru nor Mr. Rangaswami Iyengar was an interested spectator.

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Are they members of the Advisory Committee on Emigration?

Sir Frank Noyce : They were invited to the meeting.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Not to participate in the discussion, but only to watch it.

Mr. President : After listening to the Honourable Members I have come to the conclusion that the matter is really urgent and the House should have an opportunity to discuss it. But my difficulty is that pointed out by Mr. Keshab Chandra Roy, namely, that the motion must not anticipate a matter which has previously been fixed for consideration.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : He has withdrawn it.

Mr. President : That won't solve the difficulty. The motion was on the paper yesterday and if the House did not reach it, it was not due to any fault of Government. If the Honourable Members had put some restraint on themselves yesterday, they could have reached it. But even today I am willing, on a consideration of all the circumstances, to permit discussion of this question. And for that purpose I am prepared to sit as long as possible to enable Mr. K. C. Roy's motion to be reached. In these circumstances, I propose to withhold my consent to the moving of this motion of adjournment.

I hope, in view of what I have said, Honourable Members will help me to get through other business as quickly as possible.

THE RESERVATION OF THE COASTAL TRAFFIC OF INDIA BILL.

Mr. President : The first business on the agenda is the motion in the name of Mr. Sarabhai N. Haji. With regard to that motion, I just want to make a few observations. The motion is for the consideration of the Coastal Traffic Bill. The Report of the Select Committee has made a unanimous recommendation that the Bill be republished. It has been the practice of this House extending over nine years, that, when a Bill has been reported upon by the Select Committee and that Committee has made a recommendation that the Bill be republished, the only motion that follows is that the Bill be recirculated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion thereon. That has been the practice of this House all these years, so far as I have been able to ascertain. I shall be grateful if Honourable Members can cite any instance in which a Bill, which has been recommended to be republished, has been taken up straight away for consideration. That is a question on which I find some difficulty; but I do not wish to hear the arguments of the Honourable Members today on that point of order. Today I only wish to ask the Member in whose name this motion stands to consider whether he should not take this motion up next Session in view of the statement which, I understand, was made the other day with the approval or, at any rate, with the concurrence of the Member in charge of this Bill—by Sir George Rainy to the effect that, when Lord Irwin returns to India, immediate steps will be taken by Government to convene a conference of all interests concerned to see if some way could not be found out of the difficulty. Unless the Honourable Member wants to prejudice that conference, he should agree to take this matter up next Session.

I know that the preliminary point which has been raised by me will take more than an hour to discuss in this House before I could give any decision. It is a very important point and I do not want to give any decision offhand. I should rather prefer that that question be taken up at the next Session. In view of these observations, I ask Mr. Haji whether he would not really agree to take this matter up next Session?

Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, in view of the remarks that have just now fallen from you in connection with my motion,* which I understood to be that, because of the various reasons which you mentioned, I should take over this motion to the Delhi Session, I have, Sir, very great pleasure in accepting that suggestion of the Chair.

Mr. President : Thank you.

* "That the Bill to reserve the Coastal Traffic of India to Indian Vessels, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration."

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber : Indian Commerce) : May I say one word, Sir ?

Mr. President : There is no motion before the House.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : If you will give me an opportunity, I have only one thing to say. I understood the Chair to say that the statement of the Honourable the Commerce Member was made with the concurrence of Mr. Haji. As I had something to do in the matter....

Mr. President : I should say that it was made with the concurrence of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : No, Sir. There is a misunderstanding on the point which I think it is due both to Mr. Haji and myself that I should explain here.

Mr. President : I act only on the written information. Sir George Rainy handed over to me two documents which clearly go to show that there was some understanding between Mr. Haji and Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas on the one hand and the Government on the other.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : I should like to say merely this that the responsibility for the statement I made rests entirely on the Government, but I showed it to the Honourable Members whom the Chair has named, and on one or two small points slight changes were made in the wording. In that sense only it was an agreed statement, but for the substance of it the responsibility rests entirely with the Government.

Mr. President : That must satisfy the Honourable Member (Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas).

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : If it satisfies the Chair, it also satisfies me.

Mr. President : It does not satisfy me at all.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Then I hope you will let me make a statement at once.

Mr. President : I understand Pandit Thakurdas Bhargava does not wish to move his motions*. Mr. Neogy.

THE INDIAN MERCHANDISE MARKS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. K. C. Neogy (Dacca Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I beg to move that the Bill further to amend the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889....

Mr. President : Would not the Honourable Member take it up next Session ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : If you so desire, I have no objection.

* "That the Bill further to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (amendment of section 552), be referred to a Select Committee (the names of the Members to be mentioned at the time of making the motion) and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be....," and "That the Bill further to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (amendment of sections 205 and 540-A), be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinions thereon."

THE INDIAN MERCHANDISE MARKS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. President : I am anxious to reach Sir George Schuster's motion, and therefore I would ask the Honourable Member to take up his motion the next Session.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : May I make one submission ? I understand that this motion is not going to be opposed by the Government.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : The Government are prepared to accept the motion.

Mr. President : Then the Honourable Member might, in a short speech, move his motion.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Sir George Rainy, Mr. G. L. Winterbotham, Kumar Ganganand Sinha, Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar, Mr. B. Das, Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla, Mr. Muhammad Rafique, and the Mover, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Sir, according to the present law, importation of goods into India is permitted without the application of any trade mark or the indication of the place of origin of the goods. This enables foreign manufactured goods to be palmed off as Indian manufacture. This Bill seeks to arm the Government of India with authority to make it compulsory that imported goods shall be stamped with an indication of the place of origin in the case of particular classes of goods in regard to which they may publish a notification.

Sir, I move.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham (Associated Chambers of Commerce : Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, in view of the fact that the Honourable the Commerce Member has not stated the Government's position in this matter, and as I understood that he would speak, it falls to me to take up one minute and explain that it is only on the distinct understanding that the principle of this Bill applies to goods on importation only, that I am not opposing reference to Select Committee. I understand that the Honourable the Mover agrees to that, that is to say that reference to Select Committee is made on the understanding that the Bill will not be made to apply to goods at the time of sale.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : That is hardly a matter of principle. I take it that it is a question of detail which can very well be dealt with in the Select Committee.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : I take it to be a matter of principle and must make my position plain on the subject.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, in deference to your appeal that we should be brief in dealing with this matter, I will merely indicate the changes which, if the House accepts the motion for reference to Select Committee, the Government will ask the Select Committee to make. In the first place, Government feel that, if the marking of goods were made compulsory at the time of sale, the legislation would be altogether ineffective. We have not got the necessary machinery to enforce it. Therefore Government will, in Select Committee, move that the marking should only be at the time of importation. In the second place, there is an alternative suggestion which might be considered by the Select Committee. It has been made by the United Provinces Government, namely, that, instead of making the marking of foreign goods compulsory at the time of sale, a particular mark might be introduced and protected by legislation, which any Indian manufacturer could apply to his goods. I think that that is a suggestion that is very well worth considering, because I believe that it would be far more easy to prevent foreign manufacturers from using the Indian mark than to compel them to mark their goods with indications of origin at the time of sale. Finally, Sir, in the Select Committee, Government will be quite ready to consider and discuss by what method inquiries should be made before any order for compulsory marking is made. The Government have quite an open mind on that subject and will be ready to discuss it fully in the Select Committee.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable Sir George Rainy, Mr. G. L. Winterbotham, Kumar Ganganand Sinha, Mr. M. S. Sessa Ayyangar, Mr. B. Das, Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla, Mr. Muhammad Rafique, and the Mover, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

THE SPECIAL LAWS REPEAL BILL.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) :

Sir, I beg leave to introduce a Bill to repeal certain special enactments supplementing the ordinary criminal law.

Sir, in asking for leave to introduce this Bill, I have very few words to submit before the House. Considering that most of these enactments are not at all necessary, as you, Sir, observed—in fact it is the same Bill without any alteration whatsoever—if it was not necessary at that time when you, Sir, introduced the Bill, it is still more unnecessary at the present moment. Probably at that time, Sir, you had some handicap, but at the present moment we have got in the present Home Member a generous, warm-hearted gentleman full of sympathy with our aspirations and struggle for liberty and I hope that this Bill will have a better chance than the Bill which was formerly introduced.

Mr. President : Is the motion for circulation of the Bill ?

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : No, Sir, I am only asking for leave to introduce.

Mr. President : No speech is necessary.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : All right, Sir. I move for leave to introduce the Bill.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That leave be given to introduce a Bill to repeal certain special enactments supplementing the ordinary criminal law."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

Mr. President : Honourable Members do not seem to be fully conversant with the conventions of this House in this matter. One convention is that no motion for leave to introduce a Bill shall be opposed. That convention carries with it a further convention, that no Member shall, on that very day, make any further motion, namely, that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee, or that it be taken into consideration, or that it be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion. I mention this fact because the Honourable Member, Mr. Mukhtar Singh, has put down a motion that the Bill which he seeks to introduce today should be referred to a Select Committee. That motion, I may point out to him, is against the convention which has been established and I hope he will not move it.

Mr. Mukhtar Singh (Meerut Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I shall not move it, Sir.

THE HINDU WIDOWS' RIGHT OF INHERITANCE BILL.

Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda (Ajmer-Merwara : General) : Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to secure a share for Hindu widows in their husbands' family property.

The object of the Bill has been clearly stated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons and I do not wish to add anything. Sir, I move.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha (Bhagalpur, Purnea and the Santhal Parganas : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I rise to move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Majority Act, 1875. Sir, this Bill proposes to repeal those provisions of the Indian Majority Act, 1875, which make it possible for a minor to attain majority even at the age of 18 years, and to fix the age of majority uniformly at 21 years. Sir, I move.

The motion was adopted.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Imperial Bank of India Act, 1920, for certain purposes.

Sir, I have clearly set down the objects of this Bill in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. I would only point out that, under the Imperial Bank Act, the contract is to be renewed very shortly, and no contract should be renewed without the permission of this House. Also the Imperial Bank entered into certain definite agreements which they have not fulfilled about Indianisation and so forth. Sir, I move.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. B. Das : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE ADOPTION VALIDATING BILL.

THE HINDU LAW (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. V. V. Jogiah (Ganjam cum Vizagapatam : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to make better provision for certain heirs, under Hindu Law, especially with respect to women regarding their rights of inheritance. My reasons have been given in the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. V. V. Jogiah : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE MUSSALMAN WAKF VALIDATING (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi (Dacca Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Mussalman Wakf Validating Act, 1913. As Honourable Members are aware, my little

[Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi.]

Bill is a grandchild of the Honourable Mr. Jinnah. The Mussalman Wakf (Validating) Bill was introduced in the late Imperial Legislative Council to restore the Mussalman Wakf law as it had been understood and was applied by the courts before their decisions were overruled by their Lordships of the Privy Council, who denounced all such wakfs in favour of " Aul Aulad " as illusory and obnoxious to the doctrine against perpetuation. The cases in which it was so held will be found quoted in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, to which I would invite the Honourable Members' attention.

As the Validating Act has restored the pre-existing law and removed the cloud of doubt which had been cast upon it for a few years by the Privy Council, it is clear that the Validating Act was never intended to be merely prospective, but being a declaratory Act,—an Act declaratory of the existing personal law of the Mussalmans,—it was necessarily retrospective. But in a series of cases, to which reference is made in my Statement of Objects and Reasons, the High Courts of India have held that this Bill is merely prospective and not retrospective. The wakfs and endowments prior to its enactment are thus practically excluded from its operation, which almost defeats the object for which the Wakf Validating Act was enacted. It is to clarify a doubt which has again been cast upon the position and extent of the Validating Bill and thus to give retrospective effect to the aforesaid Act of 1913 and save wakfs and endowments of considerable value and historic importance from destruction that this Bill has become necessary.

I do hope the Honourable Members will give me the support which my Bill deserves.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE INDIAN PENAL CODE (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Penal Code.

Sir, man-made law has always been harsh on the women-folk. The mother of an unwanted child always gets punished for doing away with the child, but the alleged father always escapes. I want him also to be punished.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. B. Das : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE SPECIAL MARRIAGE (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Special Marriage Act, 1872.

The motion was adopted.

I have given my reasons in the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. B. Das : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

STATEMENT RE THE PROPOSED AIR SERVICE FROM KARACHI TO DELHI.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I propose, with your permission, to fulfil a promise which I made on the 4th of this month, in reply to questions asked by my Honourable friends Mr. K. C. Neogy and Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, when I said that I hoped to make a statement during this Session on the subject of the proposed air service from Karachi to Delhi and future extensions. The revised proposals of the Government of India in regard to the air service between Karachi and Delhi, and their present ideas in regard to the extension of the service from Delhi to Calcutta, and ultimately to Rangoon, were placed before, and explained fully to, the Standing Finance Committee at its meeting of the 20th September, 1929, and full details on the subject will be found in the published proceedings of that Committee, which are now in the possession of Members of this House. That being the position, it is not necessary for me to take up the time of the House by making a lengthy statement on the subject, repeating for this purpose the information placed before the Standing Finance Committee and summarised in their proceedings. Government will now proceed with the particular proposal which has been approved by the Standing Finance Committee for the establishment of a Karachi-Delhi service.

RESOLUTION RE RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE ROAD DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I beg to move the first of the

1 P.M.

Resolutions which stand in my name in the supplementary List of Business for today, and which runs as follows :

"This Assembly, after taking into consideration paragraphs 70 to 79 of the Report of the Indian Road Development Committee, recommends to the Governor General in Council that :

- (1) The increase in the import and excise duties on motor spirit from 4 to 6 annas per gallon, introduced by the Indian Finance Act for the current year, shall be maintained for a period of five years in the first instance ;

[Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra.]

- (2) The proceeds of the additional duty during the same period shall be allotted as a block grant for expenditure on road development to be credited to a separate road development account, the unexpended balances of which shall not lapse at the end of the financial year ;
- (3) The annual grant shall be divided as follows :
  - (a) A certain proportion shall be retained by the Government of India as a reserve, and such proportion will be 10 per cent. for the two years ending March, 1931, and the position shall be reviewed thereafter and the balance, if any, on 31st March, 1931, or any subsequent date of review, which is not required for the purposes approved in paragraph 75 of the Report, will be distributed among the provinces in the manner indicated in clause (b) ;
  - (b) Out of the remainder :
    - (i) An apportionment shall be made among the provinces in the ratio which the consumption of petrol in each province bears to the total consumption in India in the preceding calendar year ;
    - (ii) The balance, representing the consumption of petrol in minor provinces and administrations and Indian States, shall be allotted as a lump sum to the Government of India.
- (4) If any part of the amount apportioned to a province in any financial year remains unexpended at the end of that year, it shall be carried over for expenditure in that province in the following year.
- (5) Grants shall be made to each province, up to the amount available for it in each year, for expenditure on schemes approved by the Governor General in Council with the advice of the Standing Committee for Roads. As an exception to this rule, the amount available for Burma, may, for the present, be spent on any scheme of road development that is approved by the Local Government with the concurrence of the local Legislature ; but if at any future time the question of road connection with India becomes a live issue, the position shall be reconsidered.
- (6) A Standing Committee for Roads shall be constituted every year after the financial year 1929-30 consisting of one nominated official Member of the Legislative Assembly, a second nominated official Member, three Members elected by the Council of State from their body, and six Members elected by the Legislative Assembly from their body. The Member of the Governor General's Executive Council in charge of the Department that deals with roads shall be the Chairman of the Committee ; and the members of the Committee who are Members of the Legislative Assembly shall form its Finance Sub-Committee, which will be presided over by the Chairman of the Committee if he is a Member of the Legislative Assembly, and otherwise by the official member of the Committee who is a Member of the Legislative Assembly.
- (7) The functions of the Standing Committee for Roads shall be :
  - (i) To consider the annual budget and accounts of the separate road development account of the Government of India ;
  - (ii) To consider all proposals submitted by Local Governments to the Government of India, for which grants from the road development account are requested ; provided that the function of the Standing Committee will be confined to determining whether the scheme is one for which an allotment from the Central Road Development Account should be made.
  - (iii) To advise the Government of India generally on all questions relating to roads and traffic on roads and, in particular, on :
    - (a) any action to be taken by the Government of India on the proceedings of periodical Road Conferences ;
    - (b) central research in all matters connected with roads, road construction and maintenance ;
    - (c) statistics and intelligence, the preparation and publication of maps, and the collection and dissemination of information relating to road development, administration and finance in India and in other countries.

All proposals for expenditure from the annual grant, or its accumulated balance, shall be submitted for approval to the Finance Sub-Committee."

The Resolution seeks to obtain the approval of the House to the acceptance by the Government of India of certain recommendations of the Indian Road Development Committee, subject to one modification to which I shall refer presently. The recommendations are those contained in paragraphs 70 to 79 of the Report of the Committee, and they deal with the question of financing of road development from the proceeds of the additional duty on petrol which was imposed in the Indian Finance Act of the current year, and with the procedure to be adopted in that connection.

Clauses (1) and (2) of the Resolution follow the recommendation in para. 71 of the Report. Clause (3) is based on the recommendation in paras. 74 and 75. Sub-clause (b) of that clause follows the recommendation of the Committee. It will be seen from Appendix II to the Committee's Report that the Touring Sub-Committee of the Committee suggested various formulae for the division among provinces, etc., of the proceeds of the additional taxation. The Committee, after considering these various formulae, recommended, in para. 74 of the Report, that the division should be on the basis of the consumption of petrol in the various provinces, etc. As was anticipated by the Committee, the matter is one in which it is not possible to secure unanimity of opinion among the Provincial Governments. Subject to the approval of the House, the Government of India are willing to accept the recommendation of the Committee.

In regard to sub-clause (a) of clause (3) the Committee recommended that one-sixth of the proceeds of the additional taxation should be retained by the Government of India for the purposes mentioned in paragraph 75 of the Report. After discussion with the representatives of Provincial Governments, the Government of India are willing to agree to retain only ten per cent. in the first two years, and to reconsider the position thereafter. The necessary provision has been made in sub-clause (a) of clause (3).

Clause (4) of the Resolution follows the recommendation in the last sentence of paragraph 75 of the Committee's Report.

Clause (5) follows the recommendations in paragraphs 76 to 78 of the Report.

I have already dealt with the provisions incorporated in clause (6) on a previous occasion and do not propose to take up the time of the House further with the matter.

Clause (7) follows the recommendations in the latter part of paragraph 79 of the Committee's Report, except that sub-clause (ii) has been amplified to bring out what appears from paragraphs 76 and 77 of the Report to have been the intentions of the Committee. I may mention in this connection that Provincial Governments are generally opposed to any form of control by the Central Government, or the Central Legislature through its Standing Committee, on expenditure by the Provincial Governments from sums allotted to them from the proceeds of the additional taxation ; and they hold generally that their respective shares should be handed over to them from year to year, leaving them complete freedom to spend the monies in any way they may like on road development. Indeed, one of the Provincial Governments wants to have freedom to spend a portion of its share on general purposes. The Government of India are inclined to think that, as the taxation was voted by this House for a particular purpose, this House would be perfectly justified in assuring itself, through its Standing Committee, that the money is being spent for that purpose. Sub-clause (ii) of clause (7) merely provides for this safeguard, while it protects the Provincial Governments from any interference by the Central Legislature in matters of detail.

In conclusion I should like to mention that the terms of the draft Resolution were discussed with the Standing Committee of the Legislature last week and certain amendments were agreed to unanimously. These are being submitted for the acceptance of the House by my Honourable friend Mr. Jayakar and they will be supported by Government. Sir, I move.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, I beg to move the amendments which stand in my name. As the Honourable Member has just stated, they represent the unanimous opinion of the Standing Committee on Roads, which was consulted last week. The first amendment runs as follows :

"In clause (2), after the words 'during the same period' the following be inserted :

'after deducting such amounts as may be required for grants-in-aid to users of petrol for aviation purposes according to rules issued by Government, on a scale not exceeding the additional duty on petrol actually consumed for such purposes'."

This carries out the suggestion contained in the Report of the Indian Roads Development Committee that petrol, if consumed for aviation purposes—aviation purposes, not being connected immediately with roads,—should for the present be excluded from the tax levied for road purposes. This amendment carries out that recommendation.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham (Associated Chambers of Commerce : Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, if it is the desire of the House that no remarks should be made on this Resolution, I shall resume my seat. In the circumstances I feel a certain amount of diffidence in rising, but the interests which I happen to represent feel that this is really a very important all-India subject and I would myself, with reluctance, give up an opportunity of stating my views on this occasion.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member is a bit too late.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : What I have to say deals with the amendment.

Mr. President : If that is so, the Honourable Member is entitled to speak.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : On the question of Mr. Jayakar's amendments, I should like to say that in this matter I and those interests which I represent strongly support the attitude of the Government of India and are inclined to deplore the attitude which we understand has been taken up by the Honourable Ministers from the provinces. This might be said to be a constitutional point of interference with the provinces ; but I would like to let my opinion go on record that that is not a correct way for the provinces to look at the matter. They should, I think, take the view that this is a very large question of all-India importance in which the best results could only be obtained by the willing co-operation of the Provincial Governments with the Central Legislature ; and I very much hope that, in due course, the representatives of the provinces will come to that view themselves.

Mr. K. C. Roy (Bengal : Nominated Non-Official) : What about the Ministers ?

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : I am not advocating, as my Honourable friend behind me suggests, the knuckling down of the Provincial Governments to the Central Legislature. Very far from it. What I am advocating is a spirit of co-operation between the provinces and the Central Legislature on a very large and very important all-India question. I maintain that there is no reason why common agreement on these lines should not be reached ; and I very much hope that, in due course, it will be. To take only one instance how can it be said that the provinces should take this money and spend it exactly as they like without any control from the Central Legislature, when the question of competition between roads and railways immediately comes up ? Can it be said that the provinces can fairly claim to receive a grant from this Legislature, which they may proceed to use in the construction of roads in their provinces, which will directly compete with the State Railways ? I put that consideration before the House, as there are other considerations which I want to mention, but I particularly put that consideration before the House, and I hope that, in due course, the attention of the Local Governments will be drawn to this particular aspect and that they will come to see that this Legislature is not seeking to impose its will on the provinces, but is anxious to co-operate with them in a scheme, the benefits of which for India it would be almost impossible to exaggerate.

Sir, I should have liked to make some remarks on the question of financing schemes of road development, but possibly they are not relevant at the present moment, and I will not weary the House at this stage as I know Honourable Members want to get on to the next business. But there is one point which I should like to make, and that is that as we see the problem, that is to say, I and those whom I have the honour to represent, what is wanted in the first stage is a survey of all really important roads in India, so that some really useful programmes can be drawn up by the provinces with a view to co-ordinating the work of road construction throughout India. I very much hope, Sir, that the Roads Committee will bear this very important desideratum in mind and will, at the first favourable opportunity, turn their attention to this particular matter.

Sir, the other points of large importance I would pass over, but I should like to put two or three questions to the Honourable Member who moved the Resolution. Those points are really of minor importance, but they require an answer so that we may know what is the intention of Government. Sir, take the case of Burma. Burma is exempted from any control of the Central Legislature, quite properly, in my opinion, under Part V of the Resolution. But, Sir, if that is conceded, should it not also be conceded that Burma's share of the one-tenth of the whole, which Government propose to keep to themselves, should also be excluded ? The matter may seem a small one, but on the basis of the actual revenue produced by this 2 annas per gallon amounting to one crore of rupees a year—that may be looking ahead two or three years, but I take the figure for the sake of convenient calculation—the amount involved in any one year is Rs. 75,000. Well, Sir, that is a large amount from the point of view of Burma, and I submit that if Burma is excluded from the control of the Central Legislature, Burma's proportion of the 10 per cent. which Government propose to retain should also be given back to Burma.

There is another point, Sir, in connection with Native States about which I am not quite clear. Under section 3 (b) (ii), it is stated that, "The balance representing the consumption of petrol in minor provinces and administrations in Indian States will be allotted in a lump sum...."

Mr. E. L. Price (Bombay : European) : Not for "keeps".

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : As my Honourable friend very succinctly puts it, not for keeps, and I trust that that is not the intention, Sir, and that Native States and minor administrations will be given their allotment from this extra taxation on the basis of the consumption of petrol in their particular States. I should be very grateful if the Honourable Member would make that point clear.

Finally, Sir, there is the question of an expert adviser on this very important question of all-India roads. I do not know what the intention of Government is, but I trust that, out of the 10 per cent. which they are reserving from this additional taxation, they will provide for some really competent technical expert adviser, so that in this all important question they will not be proceeding on the advice possibly of men with merely departmental experience. Sir, this is a fringe of a very large subject, and I should have liked to enlarge on the question at very much greater length, but I think possibly that the points that I particularly desired to make have already been made, and I will not proceed any further.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha (Bhagalpur, Purnea and the Santhal Parganas : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I should like.....

Mr. President : Does the Honourable Member wish to speak on the amendment ?

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : I should like to say a few words on this.....

Mr. E. L. Price : Shall I not be in order, Sir, if I make a few general observations on the amendment ?

Mr. President : Certainly.

Mr. E. L. Price : Sir, I shall be very brief. I have seen all this Session, a series of attacks on Provincial Governments, and now Mr. Winterbotham has joined in the game.....

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : That is an entirely unjustified remark. I protest against it.

Mr. E. L. Price : So I understood him. I will take one instance. I understand that the Punjab spends a crore of rupees a year on roads ; they stand to get 5 lakhs out of this dole, and they are expected by Mr. Winterbotham to sell their birth-right for a mess of pottage, to part with their provincial autonomy in that matter for 5 lakhs a year....

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : Nonsense.

Mr. E. L. Price : I will not give way, Sir. All I can say, Sir, is that I respect the various Provincial Ministers for their objections. And if they are to have it put across them by this Assembly or by the Government of India acting in the name of this Assembly, and their rights thus infringed, I at least will not stand by in silence.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : Then vote against the Resolution.

Mr. M. S. Aney (Berar Representative) : Sir, I have no desire to detain this House very long, but this is a Resolution which it is difficult for me at least to reply to without being in a position to know what the attitude of the Ministers of the various Provinces is towards the proposals which are now before us for consideration. It cannot be said that this Resolution does not entrench upon the province of transferred subjects, and that being the case, before this Assembly comes to any decision, it is necessary that the Honourable Member should have enlightened this House about the detailed opinions which he might have received from the various Provincial Governments on these points. As my Honourable friend Mr. Price has it, possibly it may be that the Provincial Governments are called upon to sell their liberty for a mere mess of pottage. It is rather a strong term, but those who care for provincial autonomy are perfectly justified in putting the thing as high as my friend has done....

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : You sang a different tune yesterday.

Mr. M. S. Aney : I did not speak at all yesterday. Somebody else might have spoken, and my Honourable friend is under misconception. We know perfectly well that this subject deals to a large extent with matters that have been transferred under the constitution, and it is necessary that, on the Committee which is going to control this road development affair in this country, there should be some representatives from the provinces, so that their views may be given due weight before it comes to any decision. I do not want a conference where the resolutions of the conference will be matters of advice and this Committee may accept them or reject them. I want a definite right given to them that their views will be given due weight. There was an amendment to that effect given notice of by my Honourable friend Mr. Kelkar, which could have been of great use in elucidating the point at issue, but unfortunately Mr. Kelkar is not present and it would be difficult for anybody else to move it. So I think this is a matter which it would be better for the Government of India not to press for consideration at this time, but to defer it for further consideration till the next Session. This will also solve another difficulty, in that the discussion will not be unnecessarily handicapped, because it requires to be debated fully in this House before the House can be called upon to come to a final decision, and the advice which you have given to some Members and which they have accepted may properly be given to the Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra so far as this Resolution is concerned.

Mr. President : I was told that the Resolution was non-controversial.

Mr. M. S. Aney : This is controversial, thought the Honourable Member wants it to be taken as non-controversial.

Mr. E. L. Price : I want to make no controversy if only those remarks about Provincial Governments and Ministers are withdrawn.

Mr. M. S. Aney : I therefore make a suggestion which the Honourable Member may consider for what it is worth, that this question should be held over for further consideration till the next Session. I move that amendment, Sir, with your permission.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, in the course of my speech introducing this Resolution, I think I have mentioned what is the attitude of the Provincial Governments in the matter. I also said that, as the taxation has been voted by this House for a particular purpose, this House would be justified in retaining control only to the extent necessary to watch that the money is spent for the purpose for which it has specifically been raised. Beyond that, it is not intended by this Resolution to impose further control. I doubt very much whether the question is really one of controversy. We have discussed it for quite a long time, not in this House, but in the Standing Committee and with the Ministers. A Committee of the Legislature has examined the matter in its various aspects, and there is a whole paragraph in its Report which deals with this question of control. Further, I do not think there is anything in the existing constitution which stands in the way of this particular form of control being imposed. If the constitution is changed, say, in the next two or three years time, well, this Resolution may also be modified.

Mr. President : I was clearly given to understand that this was not controversial. I am sorry to find that it has turned out to be otherwise. Kumar Ganganand Sinha.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : Sir, I also did not think that this motion would raise a controversy. I would, in view of your observation this morning that you would like the business on today's agenda paper gone through rather expeditiously, be as brief as possible. I shall make only one or two observations on this Resolution. During the course of its inquiry, the Indian Road Development Committee found that roads in India were passing beyond the financial capacity of the Local Governments and local bodies and were becoming a matter of national interest which might to some extent be a proper charge on Central revenues. Well, Sir, this state of things in this country was quite in keeping with the state of things prevailing in other countries. If Honourable Members would refer to chapter V of the Report, they would find that the Committee has summarised the position of road development in some of the countries of the world. Formerly, in all those countries, roads were merely a matter of local concern. But with the advance of time it has become a matter of national concern, and Governments are alive to the fact that this new adjustment so far as roads are concerned must be made. In Great Britain, in the United States of America, in Canada, in New Zealand, and even in China, efforts are being made to make roads a national concern. But I quite see that there is some misapprehension in the minds of Honourable Members in this House with regard to the action proposed by the Central Government. Road is a provincial transferred subject. The Ministers are very jealous of their rights. But the whole question is, when the grant is made by the Central Legislature with a view to the road development of India as a whole and the petrol duty from which the grant is going to be made is a source of Central taxation, whether the Central Government should or should not divest itself of the right of suggesting to the Provincial Governments, who are going to spend the grant, how they should spend it. My Honourable friend Mr. Aney wanted to know what the Provincial Ministers wanted. As a member of the Indian Road Development Committee, I had the opportunity of knowing the provincial opinions, and I may tell the House that, wherever we went, each province wanted the matter to be decided in a way which would be more favourable to itself. If you go to Bengal, there is one formula suggested ; if you go to Bombay, there is another formula suggested ; if you go to Bihar, there is a third formula suggested ; and it was this delicate problem which required the closest attention of the members of the Committee. If you look at the recommendations, you will find that the provinces are given the fullest opportunity of making their needs known to the Central Legislature and to the Central Government, and the power which rests in the Standing Committee of the Central Legislature is simply to see whether the particular object for which the grant is asked by the Provincial Government is or is not one for which a grant can suitably be made. So, this Resolution has restricted the power of the Finance Committee of the Central Legislature and of the Standing Committee on Roads of the Central Legislature to a very limited sphere. I think, Sir, that should satisfy the various provinces. If that does not satisfy them, the only alternative would be to raise the revenue and distribute it among the various provinces. What would that mean ? That would mean that the provinces, irrespective of the consideration whether a particular project is a project which could be called an all-India project, will spend the money according to their provincial programme and there will be no co-ordination in the matter of road development throughout India. That is not the object with which the Committee was appointed. That is not the object underlying the whole scheme which the Committee has recommended. If it is considered by this House that the road system in India should be developed on the lines of an all-India concern, then that can only be done by accepting the proposal that has been put forward. But if it be the intention of the House to dole out to provinces the revenue which they have raised and let them spend it in whatsoever manner they like, that is a different matter, and the House should, in that case, reject the Resolution. That is the whole question which faces us to-day. If this scheme is adopted, it will prevent the different provinces from utilising the newly created Road Development Fund for purely provincial objects, and they will develop the all-India roads within their territory with money which they will get from the Central Government. Sir, in the course of giving evidence, as a matter of fact, no representative of the Local Government seriously contested before the Committee the view that grants from Central Revenues should only be spent on projects approved by the Governor General in Council, on the advice of the Standing Committee on Roads.

Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim (Chittagong Division : Muhammadan Rural) : On a point of information, Sir. May I ask whether the Honourable Member was not agreeable to the amendments of Mr. Jayakar when they were discussed in the Committee ?

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : I am coming to that. I may tell now that I fully agree with all the amendments.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member might continue after Lunch.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half Past Two of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : Sir, when the House adjourned for lunch I was dealing with the point that the principle which will guide the central authority will be to confine the expenditure from central revenues to projects which may be fairly regarded as benefiting India as a whole ; of course with the co-operation of the Provincial Governments. The money allotted, it should be noted, will be spent through the agencies of the Provincial Governments and the Central Government will not look into the details. So the House will see that the Central Legislature has got very limited control over the finances that it votes, and the latitude given to the provinces is to the maximum limit to which it could be given. I venture to submit that, if such a provision would not have been made, it would have been very difficult to co-ordinate the road development policy. The inter-provincial roads would not have received the attention which is due to them. The main principle guiding the recommendations of the Committee is co-ordination of road development policy in India with the co-operation of the Provincial Governments. Sir, if by alluding to other countries I have left any impression in the minds of any Honourable Member that, in effect, the proposal is going to create a centralised Department of the Government which is going to boss over all the Ministers and the Provincial Legislatures, I say at once : ' remove it '. It is exactly the thing we fought against. We recommended road Conferences of Provincial Ministers, and we held that much weight should be attached to the decisions of those road conferences.

There is only one point, Sir, which I want to mention before I resume my seat. I am somewhat apprehensive of the fact that the ten per cent. which has been set apart for the reserve will not be sufficient for the purpose for which the reserve is being created. If Honourable Members will look at paragraph 75 of the Report, they will find what the Committee says on the point :

" Apportionment according to the petrol consumption means that the larger share will go to the provinces in which there are large towns. But the terms of reference to the Committee required consideration of the road system of India as a whole, and it is desirable therefore that there should be a reserve available for special grants where, for some reason, there is need for special aid. Such cases will include projects which are beyond the resources of the Local Government immediately concerned and are of sufficient all-India importance to justify a special grant, or, again, projects which concern more than one province or State, as for instance a bridge over a river on a provincial or State boundary."

But I have submitted to the decision of my colleagues on the Standing Committee because, in the first place, the whole thing is in the nature of an experiment and time alone will show how far our conclusions with regard to details are justified, and secondly because the matter is going to be revised only after two years. So I thought that not much harm would be done by letting things remain as they are for the present. I trust the Provincial Governments will do their best to make the experiment a success and help to complete the development of the road system in India as a whole. This Resolution, I submit, marks the beginning of a new era in the matter of road development—a subject which has received scant attention during many years in the past. Sir, I support the Resolution with the amendments of Mr. Jayakar.

(Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh rose in his place.)

Mr. President : Does the Honourable Member wish to speak ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Yes, Sir.

Mr. President : In that case, I would suggest that the Government should agree to take this matter up next Session, as proposed by Mr. Aney.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am quite willing to do so, Sir.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That further consideration of this Resolution be postponed to the Delhi Session."

The motion was adopted.

RESOLUTION RE DRAFT CONVENTION AND RECOMMENDATION OF THE ELEVENTH INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE FOR FIXING MINIMUM WAGES.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I beg to move that :

" This Assembly, having considered the Draft Convention and Recommendation regarding the machinery for fixing minimum wages in certain trades adopted at the Eleventh International Labour Conference, recommends to the Governor General in Council that he should not ratify the Draft Convention nor accept the Recommendation."

Diwan Chaman Lall (West Punjab : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, before the Honourable Member proceeds with his speech, may I make a similar suggestion to him that this matter may also be held over until the next Session, as it is much more controversial than the previous subject ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, it is my duty to place the Resolution before the House and therefore I will have to make a speech placing the Resolution before the House. Thereafter I shall leave it to the House, Sir, to decide whether action should be taken on this Resolution also on the lines which the House has decided in regard to my previous Resolution.

At the Eleventh Session of the International Labour Conference, a draft Convention and a Recommendation were adopted on the subject of the creation of minimum wage-fixing machinery for certain trades. The text of the Convention and of the Recommendation will be found in Bulletin No. 421 of the Indian Industries and Labour which was circulated among Members of this House last Delhi Session. Under Article 405 of the Treaty of Versailles the draft Conventions and Recommendations adopted at a Session of the International Labour Conference have to be brought before the authority or authorities within whose competence the matter lies, for the enactment of legislation or other action, within a year of the closing of the Conference, or in exceptional circumstances within 18 months. The Eleventh Session of the Conference terminated on the 16th June, 1928. Normally, the Government of India would have placed the matter before the Legislature during the Winter Session of 1929, after having previously consulted Local Governments and public bodies. Shortly after the close of the Eleventh Session of the International Labour Conference, it was, however, decided to appoint a Royal Commission to investigate the conditions of labour in India. The Government of India considered it desirable to await the settlement of the scope of the inquiry of the Royal Commission before taking any action in connection with this particular draft Convention and Recommendation of the International Labour Conference ; for, if the particular matter came within the scope of that inquiry, no advantage would be gained by consulting Local Governments, etc., in regard to the particular matter in advance of the general inquiry. The Government of India, accordingly, decided to take advantage of the period of 18 months provided for exceptional circumstances in the Treaty of Versailles before bringing the particular matter before this House. The scope of the inquiry of the Royal Commission has since been announced, and one of the items which they will specifically investigate is the advisability and possibility of a statutory establishment for the minimum wages. Obviously, therefore, the proper course for the Government of India to take in the particular matter is not to ratify the draft Convention or accept the Recommendation for the present, but to await the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Labour.

Now, Sir, those are the reasons which have led me to move this particular Resolution in the House, and so far as I am concerned, I fail to see why the matter should be one of controversy. If the Government of India were at this particular moment to ratify the Convention or to accept the Recommendation, it would be incumbent on them to undertake legislation to give effect to the Recommendation of the Convention forthwith. That the Government of India are not in a position to do, because of the appointment of a Royal Commission on Labour on which my friend Diwan Chaman Lall will sit, and also my friend Mr. K. Ahmed, and that Commission will examine whether it is possible to establish a statutory machinery in India to fix minimum wages. If that Commission, after making its investigations, makes certain recommendations, then will be the time for the Government of India to come to a conclusion whether those recommendations should be given effect to or not, and this House will have ample opportunity of expressing its views on the question. That, Sir, is the simple position and, that being so, I find it rather difficult to understand why the matter should be one of controversy at all. Sir, I move.

Mr. President : Resolution moved :

" This Assembly, having considered the Draft Convention and Recommendation regarding the machinery for fixing minimum wages in certain trades adopted at the Eleventh International Labour Conference, recommends to the Governor General in Council that he should not ratify the Draft Convention nor accept the Recommendation."

I understand it is the unanimous wish of the House that further consideration of this Resolution should also be postponed till the next Session of this House.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya (Allahabad and Jhansi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : May I, Sir, ask a question from the Honourable Member, who has moved this Resolution, before you put it to the House? May I know if the Honourable Member is prepared to modify this Resolution to postpone the ratifying of the Draft Convention and the acceptance of the Recommendation till the report of the Labour Commission?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : There is no such thing as postponement. Under the procedure of the International Labour Conference we either ratify the Convention within the prescribed period, or we do not ratify it. If we do not ratify it within the prescribed period, it does not mean that we are not going at any time thereafter to take action on the lines of the particular Convention or Recommendation. It is really what I may call a technical point. We either ratify it within the period or we do not ratify it at all. If we were to ratify it within the period, then it would mean that we must undertake legislation immediately, but, as I have pointed out, it is not feasible to do so. As a matter of fact, even the postponement of the debate to the January Session would mean nothing from the practical point of view, because we should have failed to ratify the Convention within the prescribed time. But, as I have said, if it is the general opinion of the House that the matter is one of any controversy, although I do not agree with that view, and therefore should be left over for discussion in January, Government will have no objection. They have done their duty in the matter.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I say one word, Sir?

Mr. President : Does the Honourable Member wish to move that the further consideration of the motion be postponed?

Diwan Chaman Lall : Yes, Sir. I move that the further consideration of the Resolution be postponed till the Delhi Session.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That further consideration of the Resolution be postponed till the Delhi Session."

The Assembly divided :

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : With your permission, Sir, I should like to make the position of the Government clear in this connection.....

Mr. President : Order, order. During the division time the Honourable Member cannot make a statement.

THE INDIAN TERRITORIAL FORCE (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham (Army Secretary) : Sir, I beg to move :

" That the Bill further to amend the Indian Territorial Force Act, 1920, for a certain purpose, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration."

Sir, this is a very small and simple Bill and I hope that it will prove entirely non-controversial. A territorial force, as its name implies, is a force, the units of which are constituted for, and associated with, particular territories or local areas ; and the local areas for which units of the Indian

[Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham.]

Territorial Force are constituted must necessarily be local areas in British India. The subjects of Indian States are entitled to enrol themselves in the Indian Territorial Force, but they cannot enrol themselves in a unit which is constituted for an area in which they do not reside. That is to say, if they reside in their own States, they are technically ineligible for enrolment in the Indian Territorial Force. Some months ago it came to the notice of the Government that a certain number of men who were living in Indian States had been enrolled in certain units of the Indian Territorial Force under a misapprehension of the law. Two alternatives were then open to deal with the situation—either to discharge the men on the ground that they had been illegally enrolled, or so to amend the law as to regularise their enrolment. After due consideration Government decided that the second course would be preferable, but before coming to that decision, they placed the whole matter both before the Central Advisory Committee of the Indian Territorial Force and also before the Standing Committee of the Chamber of Princes. Both those bodies were unanimously in favour of the proposal, and the result is the Bill now before the House. Sir, I move.

The motion was adopted.

Clause 2 was added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Sir, I move that the Bill, as passed by the Council of State, be passed.

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN COTTON CESS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Sir Frank Noyce (Secretary, Department of Education, Health and Lands) : Sir, I move :

“ That the Bill further to amend the Indian Cotton Cess Act, 1923, for certain purposes, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration.”

This very brief Bill has been necessitated by the fact that, as a result of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Agriculture in India, the duties of the Agricultural Adviser to the Government of India are being taken over by the Vice-Chairman of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research. As the Agricultural Adviser is the ex-officio President of the Indian Central Cotton Committee, it is necessary that the Vice-Chairman of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research should now become President of that Cotton Committee. Opportunity has also been taken to add the Agricultural Expert Adviser to the Council of Agricultural Research to the Indian Central Cotton Committee. I may say that these changes have been welcomed by the Central Cotton Committee which is the body that is solely concerned. Sir, I move.

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2 and 3 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and Preamble were added to the Bill.

Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I move that the Bill, as passed by the Council of State, be passed.

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN REGISTRATION (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Home Member) : Sir, I move :

“ That the Bill further to amend the Indian Registration Act, 1908, for a certain purpose, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration.”

The short point of this Bill is that section 56 of the Registration Act provides that a Sub-Registrar shall forward to the District Registrar duplicate copies of certain indexes. It has been represented that this duplication involves a great deal of time and trouble and serves no useful purpose. All the Local Governments have agreed in that and it is proposed to amend the Act in the sense proposed by this Bill.

The motion was adopted.

Clause 2 was added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Sir, I move that the Bill, as passed by the Council of State, be passed.

The motion was adopted.

THE BURMA SALT (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I move :

“ That the Bill further to amend the Burma Salt Act, 1917, for certain purposes, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration.”

This is a very simple measure the object of which is sufficiently explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, and I propose to take no more time in dealing with it.

The motion was adopted.

Clause 2 was added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I move that the Bill, as passed by the Council of State, be passed.

The motion was adopted.

THE GUARDIANS AND WARDS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Home Member) : Sir, I move :

“ That the Bill further to amend the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, for a certain purpose, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration.”

[Sir James Crerar.]

This is merely to provide a legal basis which does not at present exist for the proper auditing of accounts of estates under the Guardians and Wards Act. It has been accepted by all the Local Governments and I hope it will be accepted by this House.

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2 and 3 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Sir, I move that the Bill, as passed by the Council of State, be passed.

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN SUCCESSION (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Home Member) : Sir, I move :

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Succession Act, 1925, for certain purposes, as passed by the Council of State, be taken into consideration."

I do not think I need add to what is stated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. Briefly, the present Bill is intended to rectify certain drafting oversights in the Consolidating Act of 1925 and the amending Act of 1926, which had consequences which were not then intended. The object of this Bill is to rectify omissions which, I regret to say, escaped the notice of the Government and the Legislative Assembly at the time.

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2 to 5 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Schedule was added to the Bill.

The Title and Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Sir, I move that the Bill, as passed by the Council of State, be passed.

The motion was adopted.

DEMAND FOR SUPPLEMENTARY GRANT.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 17,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges which will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1930, in respect of 'Miscellaneous'."

Mr. President : There are two amendments on paper, one by Dr. Moonje and the other by Mr. K. C. Roy. Dr. Moonje wants to raise a debate on the Banking Inquiry Committee, which has nothing to do with the Demand which the Honourable the Finance Member has made, and therefore his amendment is entirely out of order. I shall therefore call upon Mr. K. C. Roy to move his amendment.

The Right Honourable Sastri's visit to East Africa and the Hilton Young Report.

Mr. K. C. Roy (Bengal : Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the demand for a supplementary grant of a sum not exceeding Rs. 17,000 to defray the charges which will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March, 1930, in respect of 'Miscellaneous', be reduced by Re. 1."

My object in moving this amendment, as I have given in the notice paper, is to call attention to the visit of the Right Honourable Srinivasa Sastri to East Africa and also to call attention to the recommendations of the Hilton Young Commission's Report. Sir, the House is aware that the Hilton Young Commission's Report has been before the country for several months and we understood from Sir Frank Noyce yesterday that no final decision has yet been arrived at. I therefore make no apology in bringing the matter to the notice of the House. The attitude of the Members of the House, as shown this morning, has fully convinced me of the deep and abiding interest which they take in the Indians overseas problem as well as in the welfare of the 70 thousand Indians, mainly Muhammadans, who reside in the East African territories. Sir, the importance of the subject has been fully appreciated by the Hilton Young Commission's Report. In page 17 onwards of that Report there are references to the importance of the Indian community to the British Protectorates, the British Dominions and the Crown Colonies in East Africa. In page 26 of the Report, reference is made to the Indian community from the earliest times. This is what the Report says :

"The connection of India with the east coast of Africa is of a very long standing. Several references in the Puranas show that the ancient Hindus had a fairly accurate idea of the locality and its peoples."

It then goes on to describe how the connection between East Africa and India arose from time immemorial. Therefore, Sir, in that part of His Majesty's Dominions our interest is not only ancient but abiding, and will be of a far-reaching character as we progress as free citizens in the British Commonwealth of Nations. I therefore make no apology to the House for bringing it to its notice. My complaint is that this document, which is of the utmost importance to the future progress of the Indian nation in and out of India, has been withheld from discussion by this House or by the Council of State. This valuable document has been discussed in the British House of Commons, not once but twice, the last occasion being on the Colonial Office estimates. It was discussed by the Kenya Legislative Assembly ; it was discussed in the House of Lords ; it was discussed by the Mandatory Commission at Geneva ; but it has been systematically withheld from the purview of this House. The House will remember that, in the inaugural address which Lord Irwin delivered to this House last cold weather, he sketched out the policy which was to be followed in treating this Report, that this Report was to be taken to the Emigration Committee ; and you know the position of that Committee. It was indeed taken to that Committee and the Committee discussed and deliberated over the matter and produced recommendations which were never placed before this House. Such, Sir, is the position so far as the Government of India are concerned. I feel that the Government of India have failed in their duty to take this House into their full confidence, and the House is fully entitled to an explanation from the Treasury Benches over this matter of the Hilton Young Report.

[Mr. K. C. Roy.]

Sir, there has been a misrepresentation. The misrepresentation has been about the mission of the Right Honourable Srinivasa Sastri to East Africa. We were given to understand that Mr. Srinivasa Sastri was sent in a sort of an ambassadorial capacity, that he was a free agent of the Government of India to negotiate not only with Sir Samuel Wilson and the European community, but also with the Indian community. But, Sir, what do we find? What is the statement made before the Standing Finance Committee? We find that the Department of Education, Health and Lands comes to the Standing Finance Committee for a supplementary grant for Rs. 17,000. What for? Because they say that Mr. Srinivasa Sastri went at the invitation of His Majesty's Government. We should like to see that invitation. The second point mentioned was that he was a representative to help the Indian communities. Did the Indian communities want him there? I have the authority of the East African Delegation to inform the House that the Indian Community did not want him to be there. The third point—and this is the most humiliating—was that Mr. Sastri should be at the disposal of Sir Samuel Wilson if he wished to make any use of him in dealing with the Indian problem. I cannot conceive that a man of Mr. Sastri's standing, of his great services not only to India but to the British Empire, should have been sent on a fool's errand. We should like to know what Mr. Sastri has done in East Africa; we should like to see Mr. Sastri's report placed on the table of this House. I should not like to say a word against Mr. Sastri; he is one who has rendered unique service and has increased our self-respect and prestige throughout the world. (Hear, hear.) I should be the last person to say a word against him; but he was sent on a wrong mission, and I make myself bold to say so. I shall not be doing any injustice to Mr. Srinivasa Sastri if I mention that the Nairobi correspondent of the London Times described his mission as a dismal failure, and stated that the mission of Sir Samuel Wilson was a great success. If newspaper testimony is to be of any value, the matter is of the highest importance to this House. I shall leave Mr. Srinivasa Sastri at that.

I shall now take up the Hilton Young Report. Sir Hilton Young took slightly over a year to write that very momentous Report. It is a very valuable contribution to the development of Crown Colony Government and we are proud that one of the authors of that memorable document is sitting now on the Treasury Benches here. (Hear, hear.) It is a strange coincidence that he should be here to-day, and it is a strange coincidence also that I should be making this motion to-day as I did in 1926. Sir, what has the Government of India done? As I said, Sir Hilton Young took more than a year to write his Report; and the Government of India has taken over seven months but still has not been able to arrive at a final conclusion. On this, we are entitled to an explanation. But, Sir Frank Noyce placed the tentative conclusion of the Government of India before the House on the 19th instant. It is a very strange document, and I fail to appreciate how a man of such commendable experience as Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, who has had considerable experience of the East African problem, and who has given a good deal of time to the subject, could have been a party, as a member of the Conference, to such recommendations. I will go over the recommendations one by one. This is how it begins—a most strange beginning for the Government of India:

“The Hilton Young Report has been examined, and we now submit our main points. This is an eminently fair document.”

This is a most unwarranted testimony. Such a testimony has not been borne even by the British House of Lords. Whom did the Government of India speak for? Did they speak for the Members of this House? I deny that it is an eminently fair document. (Hear, hear.) I have carefully scanned the Indian papers, and I have not been able to find any Indian paper praising the Hilton Young Report in the way that the Government of India have done. The utmost tribute that was paid to the Report was by the Hindu of Madras, which described it, like the curate's egg, only good in parts. May I ask my friend Sir Frank Noyce to tell me when he wrote that it was an eminently fair document, what he had in mind—the Majority Report or the Minority Report?

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber : Indian Commerce) : Does the Honourable Member think that Sir Frank Noyce could have written those words? He was not in his present office then.

Mr. K. C. Roy : I stand corrected; but he is the responsible officer to-day here.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Say, the Secretary of the Department, and I shall have no quarrel.

Mr. K. C. Roy : Would you like, Sir, now to hear what the British Parliament thought of this Report? As I said, it was discussed by the House of Lords. Lord Buckmaster described the Report as full of valuable suggestions, and the Archbishop of Canterbury, who also spoke, said that it gave a new orientation to the whole of their Colonial policy. But, Sir, I shall quote textually the words of a very distinguished authority in the colonial world—Sir Francis Lugard, who is now Lord Lugard. He said :

“The chief merit of the Report was that it boldly faced the issue now when they stood on the threshold of new developments in Africa.”

These are the maximum encomiums which were passed on the Report in the House of Lords, and yet the Government of India had the cool courage to describe it as an eminently fair document! I suppose the Government will give an explanation which will satisfy the House on this Report.

The next point that I take is that the Government of India say that they accept the basic principles. May I know what the basic principles are that they have accepted? If the basic principles are the development of the native races or trusteeship, or what is known as the dual policy, or the principle of federation of East African States—then which are the basic principles that they have accepted? I am very sorry that the Government should have committed themselves so far as to say that they have accepted the basic principles of the Report. Even the British statesmen did not do it. I shall presently tell the House what the House of Lords thought of the basic principles. I shall begin with the Under

[Mr. K. C. Roy.]

Secretary (Lord Plymouth). This is what he says, that some of the Commissioners went beyond their terms of reference and that the British Government was not in a position to accept certain of the conclusions of the Hilton Young Committee on the basic principles. These are his words :

“ To the extent that those principles are merely an amplification of the principles set out in those White Papers (that is, the Devonshire papers) they are, of course, acceptable to His Majesty's Government, but I think I should say that there are certain points in regard to which it may be thought that the Commissioners—not all, but some of the Commissioners—have travelled beyond the principles laid down in those Papers.”

This is how His Majesty's Government accepted the basic principles ! And, Sir, the Government of India go out of their way to say that they accept the basic principles of the Report.

Now, I will come to what Lord Olivier said ; he is a very responsible member of the Labour Party which is now in power. Talking of the native trusteeship, Lord Olivier referred to forced labour and this is what he told Lord Lugard. “ He asked Lord Lugard, when he was at Geneva, to take care that the Committee of Experts set up under the International Labour Organisation went very carefully into the concrete question of whether onerous taxes were placed upon natives and had the effect of forcing them to labour.”

This is how Lord Olivier accepted the basic principles which the Government of India have accepted. So much for the first few lines of the Government of India's views. At all events, whatever may be the view of the Government of India or the Governor General in Council, I must say the Government of India have misrepresented the views of the people of India and of their representatives in this House.

Mr. K. Ahmed (Rajshahi Division : Muhammadan Rural) : But you represent the Government of India. You are a nominated Member.

Mr. K. C. Roy : There are honest and honourable men among the nominated Members of this House.

Then, Sir, the most important part with which Sir Edward Hilton Young's Commission was charged was to consider the question of federation. Now, what does the Government of India do ? They say this :

“ But we are not opposed to the appointment of a Governor General to co-ordinate that policy ”— because they had already accepted the basic principles,—

“ and the administration of the services like customs, transport, etc., on the understanding that it is recognised that such a step is not to preclude full fledged political federation ”, etc., etc.

This is the statement of the Governor General in Council here. But, Sir, it is conditional, and everybody knows that the condition which the Government of India propose to impose upon His Majesty's Government is absolutely illusory, and everybody knows the political status and the position of the Government of India vis-a-vis Downing Street.

Now, Sir, what is the view of the East African Delegation ? They clearly say that they have opposed this federation on principle, and state that it would be the thin end of the wedges, and would ultimately result in political federation. Everybody, Sir, who knows the history of British expansion all over the world, also knows that the apprehensions expressed by the East African Delegation are perfectly well-founded and correct. Sir, I am proud to be a citizen of the British Empire, and I believe that, if the solution of race problem is to be found, it is to be found within the confines of the British Commonwealth. I believe in this theory ; I have held that view for many years, and I am very anxious that the clash of colour should be settled as quickly as possible by the Government of India and His Majesty's Government. But, Sir, what will be the net effect of this federation ? If our case is not settled, the moment you permit the federation, it will result in squeezing the people of India out of East Africa. I know, Sir, that systematic efforts have been made and are being made to-day for this purpose. To-day there are strict emigration examinations with a view to the ultimate object of undertaking legislation to prevent Indian immigrants to migrate into East Africa on the ground that they will unduly interfere with the economic development of the native races, which I think, is a clear myth. So much for the closer union, Sir, and if the Government of India have represented, or if the Government think that they have represented Indian public opinion, they are very much mistaken.

Then, Sir, the next point is the native policy. We who are the subjects of a great Government welcome the Devonshire policy, and there will be nothing done either by the Members of this House or by the Indian community outside the House which will in any way deter the growth and progress of the native races in East Africa. Sir, we stand by them in their struggle. We are prepared to support them in their struggle, because there are two laws in East Africa which make them almost slaves of the white races.

Then, Sir, comes the question of land settlement. This is a very old standing problem. I have known it since 1924. When we came back as Members of the Indian Colonies Committee of 1924, we made the proposal ourselves to the Government of India, that they must send an officer of ability to explore the possibilities of Indian colonization in East African territories. What did the Government of India do ? 1924 to 1929 is indeed a very long time, so far as the Colonial Governments go, and to-day what are we going to do ? We are still seriously thinking of doing something so that the Indian settlers may be free to share on equal terms with East Africans in any scheme of land settlement that may be arrived at, after setting apart the necessary land to meet the requirements of the native communities. This is an old problem which has been sadly neglected. If the Government of India had said that they were going to formulate an Indian colonization scheme, and that they were going to provide money to facilitate the emigration of Indian emigrants to East Africa, I could understand it, but this is only an expression of a pious hope which I am not prepared to accept.

Then, Sir, comes the question of the association of immigrant communities in the trusteeship for natives. Pious hopes were expressed by the Government of India that without any recognition of the local conditions in Kenya, Indians would be associated in the discharge of the duties of trusteeship.

[Mr. K. C. Roy.]

Then, Sir, comes the question of Indian representation in the Kenya Legislative Council. Here comes the knotty question of the problem. Everybody knows the history of the Common Roll.

Mr. E. L. Price (Bombay : European) : Please speak up.

Mr. K. C. Roy : If my friend Mr. Price does not know anything about Common Roll, I am really very sorry. Kenya supplies the key to the whole East African problem, and it was my friend Mr. Srinivasa Sastri who, many years ago, warned us that, "if Kenya is lost everything is lost." Now, what have the Government of India done in this matter? They say that they accept the majority recommendation on the question of a common roll. That means that a common roll is feasible or possible only with the consent of the white community. I fully appreciate the motive of the Government of India there. They are in a very difficult position, and without some degree of consent of the whites, the inauguration of a common roll is not at all possible.....

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain (Member for "Education, Health and Lands) : Hear, hear.

Mr. K. C. Roy : What hear, hear? You will hear a little more. Sir, the lessons of Ceylon cannot be forgotten. You cannot overlook the recommendation of the Donoughmore Commission which has once for all brushed aside the possibility of development of a communal roll in Crown Colonies, and I fear that the Government of India have not taken full notice of the problem, as dealt with by the Ceylon Reforms Commission. They ought to have stood up for the 70,000 Indians in the British territories in East Africa. They have not done so.....

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : How can they stand up against their master?

Mr. K. C. Roy : Then, Sir, the Government of India also welcome the appointment of a High Commissioner, as if Sir Samuel Wilson was not enough. What will the High Commissioner do after all? Well, I will leave the Government of India there.

All I can say is that the Government of India have faced the problem in a most half-hearted way. They have not discharged their responsibilities to the Indian people, from whose purse they receive their salaries. They have failed miserably in their attempt to deal with the Hilton Young Report. It is a time that further representations by the Government of India should cease, it is time that Sir Muhammad Habibullah and Mr. Bajpai should come back and that they should be replaced by a non-official Indian Committee, who could represent the grievances of the Indians much better, than by the representatives of the Government of India. I welcome the intervention of His Excellency Lord Irwin. I know he will do his best though the Government of India deputation will fail. Sir, I commend my motion to the consideration of the House.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Sir, before I speak on the motion before the House, I wish to express, on my personal behalf and on behalf of the Imperial Citizenship Association, our very grateful thanks for your permitting the discussion of this subject and for making it possible for this House to express their opinion on this very momentous question. Sir, I been requested by Mr. Pandya, the leader of the East African Indian deputation also to convey their grateful thanks to you in particular, and to this House generally, for the opportunity that is being afforded to the House to express its views on the floor of the House.

Sir, the deputation has been here for nearly 20 days. And one can easily understand their extreme disappointment that, in the course of the twenty days they have been here, the Honourable Member in charge has not been in a position to give them any definite assurance, or, indeed, any definite information at all. From the statement made by the Honourable Sir George Schuster it appears that the Government of India feel that they have certain handicaps which prevent them from taking into their confidence either the Assembly or even the Deputation which has come from East Africa to seek the assistance of the Government of India. I do not wish, Sir, to criticise the understanding of the Government of India regarding their responsibilities in the matter. It is for them to carry out those responsibilities and to face them vis-a-vis the public here. But I cannot help feeling that, but for your timely intervention today on Diwan Chaman Lal's motion, the Deputation would have left India under the impression that nobody in India, neither the Government nor the Assembly, cared for their cause. You, Sir, have prevented the formation of that impression, and I personally think that our grateful thanks are due to you for that. Further, I am convinced that, in serving our cause in this manner by your decision this morning, you have done a great service to the Government of India. If I may say so, with all deference to the Honourable Members on the Treasury Benches, I am afraid they do not realise what a grave responsibility the Government are undertaking by carrying on negotiations and expressing opinions, all on their own, without telling us, in spite of pressure from us, as to what they are putting forward before the Secretary of State for India, and through him, before the Colonial Office. Should things go wrong, the present personnel of the Government of India would never be excused either by the Indian public or by the Indians in Kenya, whose fate is intimately bound up with the decision of His Majesty's Government at this juncture. I therefore feel that the ventilation of our views today will be appreciated by Honourable Members on the Treasury Benches as being of help to them too. (At this stage Mr. K. Ahmed tried to interrupt the Honourable Member.) I do hope that Mr. Kabeer-ud-Din Ahmed will go and stay in Kenya before he tries to interrupt in this debate, which ought to be taken very seriously.

The Hilton Young Commission's Report was signed some time in 1928, and as far as I recollect, it was issued to the public here in India some time in January 1929. Immediately after the Report was available to the Indian public, there was considerable feeling, almost one of exasperation, against that part of the Report which is called the Minority Report,—I mean the Chairman's recommendations in that Report. I think it is extremely fortunate that, in that recommendation, which the Chairman made, he was alone, and whether we like the Report as a whole or not, this House and the Indians in Kenya cannot withhold their sincere appreciation of the stand taken by Mr. Oldham, Sir George Schuster and Sir Reginald Mant in the Majority recommendations. Whether these recommendations go far enough for our purposes or not is a different matter; but if these three were not there, and I particularly want to mention two, namely, Mr. Oldham and Sir George Schuster, because Sir Reginald Mant was supposed to represent Indian interests on that Commission and he could not have gone against these two—Mr. Oldham and Sir George Schuster—the latter then had no connection with India—deserve particularly well of Indians both here and in Kenya for the stand they took up against the Chairman, Sir Edward Hilton Young. Mr. President, Sir Edward's recommendations, in one word, are reactionary, and I will leave his part of the Report with that one qualification.

The Standing Emigration Committee was asked to consider, or rather to advise the Department, regarding this Report in February 1929. That Committee appointed a Sub-Committee. We were lucky in getting the services of the Right Honourable Sastri at Delhi to help us in our deliberations. I will not take the House through the various stages through which the Emigration Committee passed before they made their final recommendations to the Government. It is not necessary to go into these in detail for the purpose of the motion today before the House. But what was felt, Sir, then was that we, that is, the non-official section on the Emigration Committee, should help the Department in what the Department considered to be the common opinion both of the non-official Members in the Assembly and of the Government of India themselves. Many were the demands from Members like Mr. K. C. Roy and Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru that the question should be discussed in Delhi on the floor of the House in last February or March. The Department gave us assurances that they were,—as indeed till then they had been,—that they were looking at the whole question from the point of view of the non-official Indian, and we felt, and I take the fullest responsibility for it myself as a member of the Emigration Committee, that we should stand by the Department in what they were trying to do in the best interests both of the Indians in Kenya and of India herself. Certain decisions were arrived at. Those were treated as recommendations to the Governor General in Council. This was about the 20th March, and the non-official Members thereafter either got busy with some more important and more exciting things which happened in the Assembly, or they left Delhi—Members like me left Delhi very soon after that. And it was not until after what happened after the Right Honourable Sastri was deputed by the Government of India to meet Sir Samuel Wilson in Kenya and until we heard from Kenya regarding the failure of that mission of Mr. Sastri, that we really began to wonder as to what attitude the Government of India—the Governor General in Council—could have taken up regarding this question.

I have indicated in short this morning, in the course of the discussion which you very kindly permitted across the floor of the House, as to what happened here when we met in the Standing Emigration Committee this month. I will for the moment, Sir, leave the Government of India and the Standing Emigration Committee with only one remark, that I do hope that the telegram, which the Government of India sent out this week as the opinion of the Governor General in Council, gives a more correct and a more live idea to the Secretary of State regarding what the Emigration Committee and the leaders who were brought together there this time think, than the telegram of last March. None regrets more than I do what Mr. K. C. Roy referred to, that the telegram of last March does not reflect the opinion of the Emigration Committee as it expressed it then.

Now, regarding the fundamental questions involved in this problem, Sir Samuel Wilson was sent to Kenya last May, I presume, in accordance with the recommendation of the Majority Commission that a High Commissioner should be sent there for the purpose of making inquiries on the spot and of conferring with the various conflicting interests there as to how a common electoral roll would affect or benefit either side.....

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Just an explanation, Sir. I would like to tell my Honourable friend that Sir Samuel Wilson was certainly not sent there as the High Commissioner recommended in the Report. It was quite a different role. The British Government have not yet accepted the recommendations of the Report sufficiently to admit the appointment of a High Commissioner.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : I am glad that the Honourable Member has corrected me. What I really meant was that Sir Samuel Wilson was sent, if not actually as High Commissioner, practically to make the inquiries indicated in the Majority Commission's Report. Any way that is what we were told from quarters the responsibility of which I cannot doubt.

Sir, Sir Samuel Wilson was sent on an important mission. So important was the mission that the Government of India thought it necessary to persuade the Right Honourable Srinivasa Sastri, who was not then in the best of health, to go out to East Africa in order to confer with Sir Samuel Wilson. The subject matter before the House today is the Rs. 17,000 expenditure involved in this visit of the Right Honourable Srinivasa Sastri. We have had it definitely from Kenya that within a few days of Sir Samuel Wilson's arrival there he had, to all intents and purposes, given the European settlers to understand that the common roll there was rejected, and that it was not an open question. We have had statements to this effect from representative Indians in Kenya which I must ask the House to accept as authentic. That section of the Europeans there, which is not called the settler—the man who has settled on the land, but the white section engaged in trade and commerce, I mean the commercial European there, had his sense of fairness and justice awakened up by the Majority Report. He was inclined to take a more detached and a more impartial view than the European settler. But soon after Sir Samuel Wilson got to Kenya, the commercial European completely swerved to the other side and joined the settler on the assurance which has done the worst harm to the Indian cause in Kenya, that the British Government is to reject the Majority Report. Naturally, in proportion to the assurance which the white population in Kenya got from this visit of Sir Samuel Wilson was the despondency and the desperation of the Indians increased. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru, who was particularly requested to go to Kenya and preside over the Indian National Congress in East Africa, was on the spot during those two or three momentous months. He was actually there when Sir Samuel Wilson was there and, I have it from Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru that Sir Samuel Wilson gave every possible reason for the inference of the Indian population that the British Government had made up their minds against the common electoral roll. I am sure the Government of India must have got information about all this officially from the Right Honourable Srinivasa Sastri. Am I not entitled to ask the Government of India : "Why still wait and bicker after the sweet atmosphere in which the British Government may see reason, and why insist upon preventing a free discussion of this problem on the floor of this House here ?"

[Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas.]

Official etiquette is very useful, and I always like to observe it up to a reasonable point. But when official etiquette is a mere sham and when Government keep back officially what we all know to be practically true, I, Sir, am very much inclined to discount the value of official etiquette, and I feel that the Government of India have done a disservice to themselves by preventing till now an open discussion on the floor of this House of this very vital question. Now, Sir, the Majority of the Commission recommended—and their recommendation was a most modest one—and put before the people of Kenya, a common roll as an ideal. They also said that, while they do not expect anything very substantial immediately, after inquiries were made and notes compared and conferences held, they felt that the way to a better understanding and ultimate co-operation between the people interested in Kenya would be very greatly paved. No one can take exception to this. I deliberately called it a modest recommendation. We feel, I personally feel, that what India should insist upon is a common roll now and without delay. We cannot reconcile ourselves to anything else, and the Government of India would be selling away the birthright of Indians in Kenya if they bargained for anything less. A beginning has to be made and as a beginning, I felt that the Majority Report at least gave a ray of hope. Sir Samuel Wilson, instead of making any inquiries, instead of even keeping quiet, is reported to have given the white settlers to understand: "Hold your souls in peace. You may rest assured that the British bayonets will protect your rights. Not only will we help you to preserve your rights, but even to encroach upon the just rights of the Indian settler." That is what it comes to. Now, Sir, this question of a common roll is known in that colony as the communal roll. It is a thoroughly misleading name, by which to call it. It is a racial and not a communal question by any means. It is a question of Europeans versus Asiatics, white versus black. (An Honourable Member: "Brown.") Yes, white versus brown. That is more accurate. Now, I venture to ask a question of those who would have waxed eloquent this morning, if a certain Bill had come up for discussion. They would have mentioned the question of expropriation of the rights of British merchants here and the confiscation of their rights by the Legislature in connection with that Bill. I venture to ask whether this effort at keeping back from the Indian in Kenya what he is entitled to by reason and as a matter of bare justice, and no favour, is not a question of rude and barefaced expropriation of the rights of Indians in that part. It cannot be challenged now that, if East Africa was made accessible and available for civilisation, it was owing to the pioneering done by the Indian. I can, Mr. President, quote passages after passages, not from an Indian politician or Indian business man, but from British administrators of the highest standing, admitting this unequivocally, and today, because the British settler has found that certain parts of Kenya are suitable to him, he now proposes, under some guise or other, to deny the Indians their birthright. If any European in India talks of any measure which may come up before the Legislature hereafter as a measure of confiscation, I shall say out to him: "What the white population is trying to do in Kenya is the worst form of confiscation of which any thinking person ought to feel ashamed." I have before now spoken with considerable feeling on this subject of stifling the Indians and overriding their just rights in Africa. I do not propose to labour the point further today, but I do wish, Sir, to say this, that, as far as the rights of Indians as citizens are concerned, be it in Kenya, Uganda or any other part, as far as the Government of India and this House are concerned, there is no halfway house at all. We ought to stand up for what is our just right, and what is due to us. Whether we get it or not, whether the atmosphere in London is suitable or not, the fault, the loss, and if I may say so, the disgrace, will be theirs, not ours. But we cannot possibly make any compromise in this matter. We cannot but stand out for what is the just due of a self-respecting person in the civilised world.

Sir, the second question in this Report is the question of a federation. In fact, Sir, the full title of the Commission is a Commission on Closer Union of the Dependencies in Eastern and Central Africa. The question of a federation of Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika is discussed there. I will, Sir, put in a few words the reasons why India cannot approve of any idea of federation. The future of East Africa cannot be separated from its past. The changes proposed in the Report must therefore be considered with due regard to the feeling which engendered amongst Indians past events in East Africa, particularly in Kenya. This feeling is one of alarm at the probable effect of political developments which contemplate closer union among the three territories of Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika. The size and influence of the European settlers in Kenya lend colour to the apprehension that, in any scheme of closer union, their political influence will profoundly affect the policy of any central authority that may be established to co-ordinate administration and policy in matters of common interest to all the three territories. It is extremely doubtful whether any mechanical safeguards can prevent the play of psychological forces. The ideal of the majority of European settlers in Kenya is nothing less than the political domination of their class, and the Indian community have grave fears that such domination will be dangerous to their interests. The Government of India should object to any plan of political coalescence, immediate or future, which would reduce the three territories of Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika to provinces of a unified State, exercising both executive and legislative powers. Sir, the past policy of Great Britain in connection with Indians in this part of the world does not inspire any confidence in us that we should consider the question of a federation, except in a spirit of the gravest suspicion, that it is one more effort at tightening the hold not of the Britisher, but of the whites over the brown—and in the whites are included not only the British white but the Italian, the French, the German and the American.

An Honourable Member: And the Armenian.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas: I say that the Government of India should be very cautious regarding any question of support to this idea of a federation.

The next question, Sir, is the question of replacing Government officials in the Kenya Council by non-officials for the purpose of better representation of native interests. The tragedy, Sir, is that, whenever the British settler in that part wants a greater hold on the administration or wants to do more harm to the Indian, it is always under the excuse of better protection for the natives; what is now suggested is that, in order that the natives' interests be better represented in the Council, in addition to the one representative that they have in a Christian missionary to look after the native interests, they now propose that four Government officials members should be reduced and that these should be replaced by four non-officials. I believe, Sir, that the Majority Report did not intend to say "European non-officials". (An Honourable Member : "Yes.") I was told that the word "European" crept in by some error. All credit to the Majority members of the Commission if this information of mine is correct. But that does not enable me to look at the proposal with any approval. I have not the least doubt that this will be used, whatever may be the high motive of the three Majority members, for the purpose of increasing the voting power of the non-official Britisher in the Kenya Council. What the Kenya Indians want and what I think the Government of India should press for, is that, in order to represent native interests, natives should be nominated. (Hear, hear.) I hear it said that there are not natives who can be trusted to satisfactorily represent native interests. The Deputation from Kenya informed the Emigration Committee that there would be available not only four, but eight suitable natives if the Local Government want to give them the opportunity. It is, Sir, a repetition of the same old story : "No suitable Indian". Even in India we used to be told some years back that there were no suitable Indians to represent Indian interests, and Indian interests had to be represented by non-Indians. The very fact, Sir, that, on this Commission, India was represented, not by an Indian but by Sir Reginald Mant, is sufficient to show what the mentality of the India Office is in this matter, and therefore I am not surprised when I am told that suitable natives cannot be found in Kenya. The Kenya Deputation desire, and this House should say, and the Government of India should say, that to represent natives and their interests, non-natives should not be appointed but natives themselves. If however, in their wisdom and in their foresight, the Colonial Office find that they still cannot get suitable natives, then restrict this representation to Government officials as heretofore. India cannot agree to non-official Britishers for this purpose. It is no use saying "non-officials" under the pretence that an Indian may be so nominated. An Indian will never be nominated, as long as the mentality of the Britisher is what it is, and it will want a considerable change in the outlook of the local Government in Kenya before Indians are so nominated. Therefore the safest thing to do is, "If it does not suit you to nominate natives to safeguard native interests, maintain the status quo namely, the Government official". The Indian cannot trust the non-official Britisher because, after all, there is no guarantee, Sir, that on questions other than those which affect the native, they will not exercise their vote against the Indian and thus increase the irresponsible non-official European vote in the Kenya Council.

Sir, I have one small point to refer to ; that is the question of the employment of Indians in the higher services in Kenya. The proportion of Indians in Kenya, perhaps the House may remember, but on this I should like to refresh their memory. At the last census the immigrant population of Kenya was classified as under :

|             |    |    |       |    |               |
|-------------|----|----|-------|----|---------------|
| Europeans   | .. | .. | ..    | .. | 12,529        |
| Arabs       | .. | .. | ..    | .. | 10,557        |
| Indians     | .. | .. | ..    | .. | 26,759        |
| Other Races | .. | .. | ..    | .. | 3,824         |
|             |    |    | Total | .. | 53,669 |

Out of a total immigrant population of 53,669, 26,759 are Indians and 37,000 are Asiatics—Arabs and Indians. Still in the superior services in Kenya there is not a single Indian. They say they cannot find Indians, or is it not the case that they do not wish to find Indians ? Indeed, Sir, their policy is to keep out Indians. In that connection I should like to read to the House a very short extract from a newspaper called The Uganda News which I got by the last mail. The heading is : "Uganda Asiatic Staff : Replacement by Natives : A Government Circular." And, mind you, Sir, in Uganda the feelings between Indians and Europeans are not as strained as they are in Kenya. They might develop to that extent by infection, but, at the moment, in Uganda the feelings are better than in Kenya. Still, this is a copy of the latest Circular of the Government of Uganda.

4 P.M.

"We understand from reliable sources that the Uganda Government has issued a circular to all departments laying down its future policy in regard to the engagement of Asiatics in the Civil Services. (Says the Kenya Daily Mail.) It states that in future all available vacancies which may occur in the present Asiatic staff will be filled by Natives."

Permanent appointments of Asiatics are to be stopped entirely. The circular recommends : "They should be engaged when absolutely necessary and on a temporary basis only".

Government can dispense with these services by giving seven days' notice in writing and without offering any specific reasons."

Mr. M. S. Aney (Berar Representative) : Not 24 hours' notice !

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Now, Sir, I do not object to this. I say that if they really substitute the son of the soil for the Indian, it would have my approval. But under this pretext what do they do ? The whole idea is to see that the Indian is cleared out of that land, and it is made as difficult as possible for him to stay there. It is therefore with the utmost approval that one can view the request of the Kenya Indian that Indians should have their fair share in the higher services of the Kenya Government. I know that, with the mentality which is now working, this is a bit of a distant cry, but no representation on the subject can be complete unless this is included now. The Government of India may very well endorse this request also of the Kenya Indians.

I have, Sir, finished as far as my comments on the Report are concerned. I will only repeat that, whilst I do not press for any more information regarding what the Government of India has said to the Secretary of State, I do hope that they have put their opinion in unmistakable and unequivocal language, and in a manner which will make us believe, whatever the decision of the British Cabinet may be, that at least our Government stood by us in what we thought was our birthright. Irrespective of the personnel, India will not excuse any Member of the Government of India who may put forward India's case in a lukewarm spirit, or shall I say, feebly. From the statement which we heard on the floor of this House, I have reason to believe that the Government of India have done as well as any Member on the Opposition Benches, would have done if he had an opportunity of expressing his opinion to the Secretary of State.

I will only say one word more, Sir, regarding the importance which Indians in Kenya attach to this matter. It was only yesterday afternoon that the Deputation from Kenya almost compelled Pandit Hriday Nath Kunzru to catch the last train from here in order to sail from Bombay on ext Saturday to represent the cause of Indians in Kenya before the Secretary of State for India and the Colonial Office. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru presided over the deliberations of the Indian National Congress in Kenya only a few months ago, and he was very unwilling to go because he has not been well. But a keen sense of duty and a keen sense of what he owed to the people who had trusted him by putting him in the Presidential Chair compelled him to leave India with less than ten hours' notice. (Hear, hear.) I do hope that the Government of India will do everything in their power to back Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru, a person highly respected in his House and a man of very sober views.

The Deputation from Kenya have requested the Government of India to depute somebody on their behalf at this juncture in order that the Secretary of State for India and the Colonial Office may see that it is not only the Indians of Kenya and the non-officials in this House who are fighting for this, but it is also the Government of India. Only a few days back I had occasion to discuss this question at a social function with an Indian chief of very high standing, and I will tell you, without giving out his name, what he said. He said that, if only the Government of India would allow the Ruling Princes to identify themselves and take part in this movement, they would perhaps go further than we non-officials do go. He felt the humiliation so much and, no wonder, Sir, that the Indian Ruling Princes should feel it so much, because almost 40 per cent.—and I am putting it at a low figure—of the people of Kenya and Africa are persons from Indian States in India, most of them subjects of Kathiawar, Cutch and Indian States in the Punjab. None of these has thrived on any favour shown by the British Government. Every one who has prospered there has prospered because he has worked hard and has stood all sorts of vicissitudes and is perhaps slowly reaping the fruits of all the difficulties that his forefathers had to undergo.

Sir, I have very great pleasure in seconding the motion of my friend Mr. K. C. Roy. I wish that it be not pressed to a division because I expect from the Honourable Members on the Treasury Benches a reply which will satisfy us and will enable the Honourable Mover of the amendment to withdraw it.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : Sir, I have to acknowledge with gratitude the help that has been given to Government by the speech which the Honourable Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas has made on this cut. He has very fully and forcibly put before the House the views which, with his permission I might say, he equally forcibly placed before the Emigration Committee and the leaders of the Assembly, who, at my request, had attended the meeting of the Emigration Committee. I also congratulate him, not only on the forcible and clear speech that he has made, but also, in more or less avoiding to join issues with certain observations which fell from the lips of the Honourable Mr. K. C. Roy, more or less reflecting on the capacity or the ability of the Emigration Committee and the leaders who have been so very kindly helping Government in arriving at decisions on points which are of extreme difficulty as well as delicacy.

I assure you, Sir, that I am not one of those who favour the hush-hush policy even in matters regarding the Indians overseas. As a matter of fact, this hush-hush policy does no good to anybody. It creates an impression that there is something mysterious, or something that Government is ashamed of disclosing, or that there is something taking place which everybody suspects is going to injure him or is prejudicial to the interests of those most vitally concerned in these matters. Well, Sir, I wish the House to remember the attitude of the Government of India in matters regarding Indians overseas in 1920 and since then, not to go very far back, and I claim that it should be a guarantee of the fact that, unless the Government of India starts upon an absolutely reactionary policy in the year 1929, there is no reason for the Assembly to entertain the least bit of a suspicion or fear that the Government of India will give away the Indian cause in any way. In 1920 the views of the Government of India were published in a despatch and they were made public, and I do not think there is any one in the House who would like a better and a clearer and a more forcible statement of the Indian point of view, and the principles that the Indian Government and India stood for then. I am here, Sir, to state that that declaration has not since been either revoked or modified. In 1923, the Honourable Members will remember, an equally clear and forcible announcement of those rights was made. Let me not tire the House by going in detail, into the various pronouncements of the Government of India, wherein they adhere to those principles and those declarations which have had the approval of leading Indians of all schools of thought.

Then, Sir, may I proceed at once to the Hilton Young Report, because I do not wish to detain the House longer than I can help. In January, 1929, the Hilton Young Report came out. The Department lost no time in studying the Report carefully and in associating, not only Members of the Emigration Committee, but also leaders of various parties of this House, with itself. The Honourable Members requested them, begged them to help, with complete success, and the response was most generous from leaders of all parties of the House. They generously gave up their time to us, and we all know that in Delhi their time is by no means easy to spare. Where the leaders of parties were not able to study the question thoroughly and attend the meeting and advise, they were good enough to depute one of their party, who had studied the question thoroughly, in order to assist Government in the matter. If, Sir, in any Government a happy joint family picture can be painted, it was the picture of the Emigration Committee, leaders of parties of Assembly and the Government of India during the months of February and March, toiling together, working together, and co-operating, as nowhere in political life of any country can be improved upon or surpassed, and why? Because the Indian policy relating to Indians overseas concerns a problem, which cannot be permitted to figure in party politics. In India there are no parties on this question. The Government of India have no views other than the views which the leaders of Indian thought have. Therefore, I trust, and I have no doubt the speech made by Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas is a good augury for the acceptance of the view, that this matter should be kept entirely outside party politics, and this House should not recognise that there are any parties on this question. A healthy convention like this started by the House, I assure the House, will bear very good fruit indeed for thereby we will be able to help the cause which is nearest to the heart of all of us.

It has been said that perhaps the telegram which Sir Frank Noyce had the pleasure of placing on the table of the Assembly recently does not truly reflect the opinion expressed by the Emigration Committee and the leaders who attended the meetings of the Emigration Committee. It is a bulky volume that I have in my possession which, if carefully perused, might enable one to show that, as a matter of fact, the various telegrams received by those Honourable gentlemen, who were helping the Department in securing information from East Africa on the questions under discussion, really amounted to no more than has been put into the telegram. One may be able to show that perhaps, with a difference of a word here or a difference of a phrase there, very substantially the telegram does represent the view expressed by the Honourable Member. But need I, here, Sir, detain the House in deciding whether the telegram does accurately describe those news or not, whether it is too mild or it has gone wrong, for it is a matter which, in a debate like this, it is extremely difficult to determine. What is the position today? And that is the point that Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas very wisely stressed. Personally, I think the word "tentative" was wisely chosen and since I was not in charge of the Department at the time, I trust that Honourable Members will not consider that I am indulging in self-praise. When I say, "wisely," "chosen," I mean this. By using this word, the Department allowed itself the right to modify those opinions, if necessary after obtaining more facts and other views. It must be remembered that the time at the disposal of the Government of India up to the 19th March was barely a few weeks, and had it not been for the good offices of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas and the Right Honourable Sastri, the Government of India might not have been able even to obtain the material that it actually succeeded in obtaining. Therefore, I say, treat that telegram as fairly well representing the views which the Emigration Committee and the Leaders of this House were able to formulate on the material then available to them. Many months have passed and not only many months have passed, but the reception given to the Hilton Young Report—thereby I mean not Sir Hilton Young's Report, but the Report of the Majority which goes under his name—that Report received a very unfavourable reception at the hands of the non-Indian immigrant community in Kenya. Well, Sir, the Emigration Committee and the leaders of the Assembly acted most wisely in advising the Government to adopt the attitude that they are in support in general terms of the Majority Report of the Hilton Young Commission, because otherwise, when the non-Indian immigrant community of Kenya violently opposed the Majority Report, if the Government of India had also opposed that Report, there would have been no difficulty in throwing it into the waste paper basket. Consider for a moment, what is the position of Indians in Kenya today or was in the year 1927 when this Commission was appointed. Their position was so hopeless, as felt by them, that they did not go to serve on the Councils. They successfully boycotted the Councils. The Government of India naturally, from the nature of things, and I have no doubt that even the Honourable Members on the opposite Benches would agree, the Government of India could not possibly encourage that attitude. But at the same time it was felt that that position could not continue for any length of time, and therefore every effort should be made to bring about a settlement. Sir, we all stand for our principles; members of all sections of humanity, unfortunately, have a tendency from times immemorial, to come into clash with each other. Not that I am not prepared to stand by my principles if my opponent will stand by his, but unless both sides are prepared to give in a little here and a little there, to arrive at a solution of the problem is impossible.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : I hope the Honourable Member means in details and not principles.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : Yes, in details, no doubt. But those who have to decide these matters are not the Government of India, mind you, because presently I will show you what the position of the Government of India in this matter is; but those on whom devolves the responsibility of arriving at a decision cannot sometimes arrive at a decision.....

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Not the Government of India, of course?

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : ..... cannot sometimes arrive at a decision with which either party is satisfied.

Now, Sir, for a moment permit me to say what I conceive to be the position of the Government of India in matters relating to Indians overseas. The position of the Government of India and of the Secretary of State for India is, according to my way of looking at it, one of advocates. They are there to advocate the cause of the Indians overseas. I would further,—if the Honourable Members would permit me,—associate them in this task of advocating the cause of their brethren overseas. Now what is it that we ought to do? It would be perhaps not in quite good taste for me to say that I have some experience in the art of advocacy. We hear a great deal from our clients, and no advocate can ever succeed in his profession if he does not hear everything that his clients have to say. No advocate can ever make a success of his profession if he does not listen to his clients, and then with the knowledge that he possesses proceed to place his client's case before the judge and the jury. Only the young advocate might proceed to brow-beat the jury or the judge and try to gain some success that way; but no advocate of any experience would try the same art on every jury or on every judge. Therefore if the Honourable Members at times feel that a sentence here or a phrase there is not quite to their liking, I would beg them to remember that perhaps the gentleman who drafted that particular paragraph or that particular letter, with the best of intentions really, wanted to produce a good effect in the interest of the cause he had at heart at the time, not because he intended thereby to give away any principle. The Honourable Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas stated his points and as he said they are all good points. They are points with which I know the whole of thinking India is in agreement. Therefore it is up to us, knowing what the opinion of India is, knowing what the demands of the Deputation are, to do our best, remembering always that, in doing our best, we have the best interests of the people at heart and have nothing whatsoever to gain by,—I am using a phrase of which I am not at all fond,—in any way trying to sell the birthright of India. Have the Government of India to gain anything? Have they not, on the other hand, to gain everything not only in the matter of their own policy, but also in the matter of their reputation and the good opinion of the public, which no Government can afford to lose? I am, Sir, really most grateful to the Honourable Members who have taken part in the debate and also for the commendable self-restraint which they have shown during the course of this debate.

[Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain.]

One word now with reference to the sentiments expressed by Mr. K. C. Roy. I have many a time, from more than one platform, spoken even more strongly than Mr. Roy has done as to the rights of Indians and as to how this clash of colour exists in different parts of the Empire and in different parts of the world. At one time or other in our public lives, all Indians in public life have felt most strongly and most acutely on this subject. Some of us, coming in contact with the harsh realities of this life, begin to moderate our views, not because we feel that those views are wrong, but because of the inevitable clash of various forces over which none of us has any control ; and some of us feel that it is up to us to find a way of settlement and not a way to subjugate our opposite, especially as we Indians have very little with which to subjugate anybody. Therefore I wish that our efforts should be directed not so much to taking up an uncompromising attitude, but in exploring all possible avenues of bringing conflicting interests together with a view to solve them. That is our wish, Sir, and in this wish,—so far as I have been able to appreciate the excellent work that the Standing Emigration Committee has been doing,—we have the assistance of all races, including the white member. As a matter of fact, our European member is no less strong than any Indian in doing his best for the Indians overseas.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya (Allahabad and Jhansi Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, it is a matter of real thankfulness that this House has been given an opportunity of expressing its opinion on this very important question. I agree with the Honourable speakers who have preceded me that we ought to approach this question calmly and discuss it dispassionately. I do not wish that any one should utter one word which will prejudice a settlement which we all desire. I do not wish to lay any blame on any party in this connection, and I am willing to acknowledge that everybody who has been concerned in this matter has been looking into the problem sympathetically. But I feel that it is still the duty of this Legislature and of the Government of India that they should express the opinions which are entertained in this country by representative Indians, most unequivocally to the Government in England. Sir, if the Indians had not gone to Kenya, if the Indians had not been there in enormous numbers, this matter would not have engaged our attention ; and if the Government of India were not in a position to intervene in this matter, if the matter were to be settled only by the British Government and the Indians in Kenya, the matter would still have stood in a different position. But the Government of India are intervening, they are required to intervene and they have intervened in this matter. They are expected to represent the views of Indians and to protect the interests of Indians. Therefore while we recognise that their position is a delicate and difficult one, I am sure every Member of the Government of India will agree that they owe it as a supreme duty to Indians that they should stand up unflinchingly for the rights of Indians in Kenya. We wish the Government of India to represent the opinions and wishes of Indians in this respect. We do not wish the Government of India to adopt an attitude which will make a solution of the problem difficult. But we certainly expect the Government of India, and I beg them, to adopt a thoroughly firm attitude in this matter.

Now, what does that attitude demand ? We are aware that the position of Indians in Kenya has been most unsatisfactory. I do not wish to dilate upon that, but now what is the change suggested. There is the Report of the Majority of the Hilton Young Commission and there is the Report of the Minority. We Indians are not satisfied even with the Report of the Majority ; but we recognise that there is in it an element of liberality and a large outlook in dealing with several questions which affect the natives of Kenya. I gratefully recognise it. I recognise that the desire that the interests of the natives of that country should be protected, and that they should be helped to receive education and to rise in every way to be qualified to govern their own country, has been embodied in that Report to the credit of those who took part in framing it. At the same time we feel that though even the Majority have done their best, the best that commended itself to them, we Indians have reasons not to be satisfied with all their recommendations. But on the top of that, when we find that even the recommendations of the Majority of that Commission have been practically cast to the winds in most important matters, our suspicions begin to strengthen. One vital point in the consideration of the whole problem was the election of non-official members to the Kenya Legislative Council by means of a common roll. Another was the question of the federation of the three territories which are at present administered independently of each other into one empire. On the question of the elections to the Kenya Legislative Council the main issue is the question of a common roll. The principle underlying it is clear and simple. The man who is going to have a voice and vote in deciding my fate for good or for evil, must be a man in whose election I have had a voice. If I have no voice in the election of a man who is going to be a legislator over me, I cannot recognise him as one. Therefore the establishment of a common roll was the most vital issue in the discussion of the question of non-official representation in this Legislature in Kenya ; and the Majority of the Hilton Young Commission have earned the gratitude of Indians and of the natives of Kenya by having recommended that there should be a common roll. That is a point on which however sweetly, however reasonably one may put forward his views and arguments, there can be no compromise in principle ; the question of a common roll is of the most vital importance in that connection ; and I acknowledge with gratitude that the Government of India from 1920 onwards, as the Honourable Member in charge has just now reminded the House, have stood out for a common roll. That was their attitude in 1920 and that was their attitude in 1923 ; and that I understand has been their attitude throughout, except perhaps in March last, to which I will come later. We Indians here felt that by adopting that attitude the Government of India was standing by Indians in Kenya, and we were very grateful to them for it. When some of us were invited in March last to discuss this question, we repeated our opinion that a common roll must be insisted on. I am not in a position to disclose, nor have I any desire to disclose the actual wording of the communications of the Government of India to the Secretary of State in 1920 and 1923. But I believe nobody who is in the know will disagree with me when I say that the Government of India in perfectly unequivocal terms stood out for a common roll in those years. Now, Sir, it is not the Government of India alone and we Indians who were anxious that such a common roll should be established. The Majority of the Committee consisted of Englishmen, of Britishers ; and they came independently to that conclusion ; and I venture to say that every Englishman, every Britisher who will approach the problem from a detached and dispassionate point of view, with a desire to do justice to the Indians and the natives of Kenya, would come to the same conclusion. In support of this view I may mention that when the matter was under discussion in the House of Commons in May last, Mr. Johnston speaking on behalf of the Labour Party said :

“ The Secretary of State said that Sir Samuel Wilson went on a perfectly open mission of inquiry ; and Mr. Johnston pointed out that in Kenya there was one European man, woman or child for every two hundred natives. The Labour Party wanted an assurance that there would be no presentation to the House of Commons later on as an accomplished fact of arrangements whereby they were committed to that which was called responsible government but which meant in effect the government of the two hundred by one. The test for the franchise, if it was to be an educational one, should apply to the immigrant settler, Indian and the African native alike, (a common roll). The Labour Party held itself absolutely free to push forward a civilisation franchise on an equality basis, that is to say, that no bar of colour or of caste should be set up in the East African colonies.”

That, Sir, was how an Englishman spoke on this question when the debate came on in the House of Commons ; and I submit that there will be many Englishmen who will echo the same sentiments. Therefore, when we ask the Government of India to adopt an unbending attitude, however courteously, however politely it might be expressed, but when we request the Government of India to adopt an unbending attitude in the matter of this principle of a common roll, I hope we shall not be regarded as unreasonable.

Mr. K. C. Roy : With consent or without consent ?

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : My friend Mr. Roy asks whether it is to be with consent or without consent. I submit a common roll, if it is to be established, can be established only by legislation in Parliament. Towards that legislation the support of every community in Kenya it is the duty of those concerned to try to enlist. I do not suggest that they should disregard the views of the Europeans there. I do suggest that every possible effort should yet be made to get them to take a larger view, a just view, and to persuade them to agree to a common roll, such as we recommend. I do not despair that success is yet possible in this direction. When the majority of the members of the Commission, which was a British Commission, have reported in favour of a common roll, when other Englishmen have spoken in favour of a common roll, I do not despair that the European settler in Kenya may yet be persuaded to regard a common roll as an essential part of the programme of reform in Kenya. But I submit that, while such an effort to persuade the European settler to take the right view should be made, if it is found that the European settler cannot be persuaded to agree to a common roll, there is only one other alternative which should be placed before him. If he does not agree to a common roll, let the present system of administration continue until the European in Kenya recognises the utility and importance of agreeing to the Indian and the native of Kenya having a share in the franchise which he wants to exercise. I submit that to yield this principle, to weaken the position of the Government of India in the matter of this principle of a common roll would be deplorable on the part of the Indian Government ; and if the Government of India have shown any weakness in representing the views which were expressed to them by us on this question in March last, the Government of India should pull themselves up, recognise that they owe a duty to this House and to the country to correct their position and to press the demand for a common roll in the strongest and most unequivocal manner. From the very cautious and careful manner in which the Honourable Sir Fazl-i-Hussain proceeded to describe that there may be a sentence here or a sentence there in the despatch of March last in which the Government of India may not have exactly represented the views which were expressed to them by leaders of parties on the Standing Emigration Committee, I suspect there has been something wrong.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : I was not there : but there was nothing wrong in it.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : I shall be glad to know that my suspicion is not well-founded, but I suspect that there has been something wrong, and until the telegram is made available.....

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : But the telegram has been published.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : I say that until the cablegram which has been recently sent to the Secretary of State is made available to us, that suspicion will not be entirely removed. The telegram published shows that there has been a weakening in the position taken up by the Government of India. If I am wrong I shall most gladly apologise to the Government of India for entertaining this suspicion. But if I am not, I wish the Government of India even now to adopt an attitude consistent with their previous attitude of past years, and let the British Government know that this Assembly, as representing the people of India, and as being concerned most deeply in the interests of Indians in Kenya, is firmly of opinion that a common roll is a sine qua non in any legislative reform in Kenya. I hope, Sir, that the Government of India will take up such a position. This is the first thing which this Assembly desires the Government of India to do. I do not think, Sir, that if there is a little delay in getting the European settlers in Kenya to accept this view, that the matter should be given up as hopeless. I do not think so. I think, in all such matters, compromises take time, settlements require discussion, and I think no Member of this House would want the Government of India to proceed in a hurry so that the compromise might be prejudiced. But the compromise can only be, as my friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas pointed out, in matters of detail. It cannot be in a matter of principle, and this question of a common roll is one of principle which I hope the Government of India will firmly stand up for.

Now, Sir, the second point to which I would invite attention is the question of native interests, because that affects the question of the interests of Indians in Kenya. As almost every speaker has said, I think, Sir, I can in this matter represent the views of all Indians when I say that not one of us desires that we should get any advantage over the natives of Kenya. I think we all desire that the natives of Kenya should have their rights recognised to the fullest extent. (Hear, hear.) We know the pain and the humiliation of living under a foreign Government as a subject people. None of us desires that any mortal man should be placed in that position. We certainly do not want the natives of Kenya to be placed in that position, or that we Indians should enjoy any advantage over them. Therefore, Sir, when it is recommended that to represent the interests of the natives of Africa in the Legislative Council, four officials who occupy seats in it, should be replaced by missionaries or other European settlers in Kenya, we feel that it is a wrong move. Even the suggestion that the additional seats which are to be thrown open to non-officials should be divided half and half between Europeans and Indians is one which I do not approve. I do not know of any class of people living as the natives of the country are living in Kenya, so far as I have gathered from friends who have come here, who, on a matter of their interest, being properly stated to them, even though they are illiterate, even though they do not know how to write, would be incapable of forming and expressing an opinion as to whether a certain proposal is beneficial to them or not. I therefore think that their representation should be through themselves. In this country the Government are anxious that those of my Indian brethren who are called the depressed classes should be represented in the future constitution of the country. We on our side shall be delighted to have representatives of the depressed classes sitting along with us on these Benches, but while we desire that, we know that many of them have not received that high degree of education which we have. And yet we do not want to shut them out for that reason; nor do we wish that the natives of Kenya should be shut out from the Legislature of their country simply because they have not received the benefits of education. Sir, God has been most generous and merciful in dealing with mankind. Literacy is a gift which may be given by man, which may be promoted by our fellowmen, but common sense and reason are the great gifts which God in His mercy has given to humble men as well as to high men, and I believe, Sir, that the Natives of Kenya do possess common sense and can reason, and therefore they ought to be asked to represent themselves.

I say, Sir, this will be to the interest of the Indians also. If the number of non-official European settlers in the Council is increased, we have no assurance that they will be men of large sympathies and broad views. I do not mean to condemn all non-official European settlers or business men because we have in this very House, some fine examples of large-hearted business men working along with us, particularly on this question of East Africa, as the Honourable Member reminded the House, expressing the largest measure of sympathy with Indians and the natives of Kenya. But, Sir, it is always safe to go by the right route, and therefore, I suggest that if the number of official Europeans is to be reduced and the representation of the natives of Kenya is to be increased, it should be through the medium primarily of the Natives, and only if it is found absolutely necessary, through the medium of Indians and that too for a short time.

Now, Sir, I will finish in a minute. Only a few words do I wish to say about the federation question. Indians in Kenya do not like this idea, and I submit that this matter also should be represented by the Government of India, as I believe they have already represented it, firmly in the interests of Indians in that country. A federation is a very tempting picture. When I read the Hilton Young Commission's Report, I admired the ability, the outlook, the imagination and statesmanship which was disclosed in the recommendations for a federation which would create another Empire like the British Empire in India. I admired it. The British Empire in India has grown by fits and starts, it has grown from small beginnings, but here was a picture painted on a large canvas and by a large hand which told you how each brick was to be laid and how the various edifices were to grow, and how power and prosperity were to be developed. I admired it, but, Sir, that picture does not appeal to those who may have to live under the changed constitution in the same manner in which it appealed to the majority of the Committee. I wish, Sir, that we should remember that even a humble man wants to live in his own cottage as a free man and not to live as a slave in a palace. Therefore, these territories should be allowed to continue to be independent units, and the question of a federation should not be decided upon until the Africans and the Indians in those territories agree to such a federation.

I will not detain the House any more, Sir. I hope that the matter will be considered in all its various aspects which have been pointed out in the very able and comprehensive speech of my Honourable friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, and that the Government of India will do their duty in this important matter by the Indians in Kenya.

Sir Darcy Lindsay (Bengal : European) : Sir, at this late hour I do not propose to go into the merits or demerits of the Hilton Young Report. This is a matter of grave interest to India, and I would like that a great deal more time should be given to the House to discuss a question of such importance. ....

Mr. President : There is plenty of time.

Sir Darcy Lindsay : I hope, Sir, that we will have an opportunity to discuss this question at the Winter Session, and that we shall also have before us Sir Samuel Wilson's Report. I therefore do not propose to go into some of the questions which my friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas has put before the House today. I would at this stage like to congratulate my Honourable friend Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya on the very able speech which he has made. Some of the views he has expressed I am in accord with and I congratulate him.

There is one matter which I should like to refer to in connection with what fell from my Honourable friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas. He appeared to think that the telegram of March last did not entirely convey the views as expressed by the Emigration Committee and those who helped the Emigration Committee in arriving at certain decisions. I was a member of that Committee and the Sub-Committee. I have very carefully perused the telegram that was sent by the Government of India as the outcome of our recommendations, and honestly it does appear to me that the telegram conveyed what the Sub-Committee wished the Government of India to put before the Secretary of State. The Honourable Member in charge has said that it may not be word for word, but we were not there to word the telegram. It was only to give the views that we held, and because the Government of India did not press these home with a sledge hammer I do not think there is any reason for the thought that they did not carry out our views. I would also refer to the present telegram. Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas mentioned that the Delegation who have been here for a number of days have been hanging on tenterhooks as it were as to what the Government of India were going to do, and that the uncertainty has placed them in an awkward position. When a deputation comes before the Government as it came before our Committee, we cannot right off give them yes or no, but I can assure the House that, what the Deputation has put before the Committee was received with the utmost sympathy and a very large measure of support. I personally assured the members of the Deputation that they were going to receive the most sympathetic treatment. I have not seen the telegram that has been despatched and I should prefer not to see it. If the telegram were published, it would give, I won't say our enemies, but those on the other side, a handle to work upon. We have had the assurance of the Honourable Sir George Schuster that the telegram that has been sent conveys the views of the Emigration Committee, and I would suggest to the House that we leave it at that. Sir, I, as you know, have very great sympathy with the Indian community in East Africa and anything that I can do to assist them will be gladly done. (Applause.)

*Diwan Chaman Lall (West Punjab : Non-Muhammadan) : I merely rise on behalf of my Party to say a few words in regard to this momentous question. I congratulate the Honourable Members who have spoken on this question for the views which they have expressed and the manner in which they have expressed them. On behalf of the Party I thank you also for having been good enough to give the country an opportunity to place its views and the views of the Assembly before the British Government and the Government of India.

The question raised by my Honourable friend Mr. K. C. Roy is indeed a very important one, and if there is any heat imported into this question, it is not because any one of us feels that we must walk warily in a matter of this nature, but because this matter has been pending for a very long time and the wrongs from which the Indians in East Africa suffer are of a most grievous nature. If a hard word is said here on the floor of this House, Honourable Members will remember that it is because there are wrongs that have not been righted and that it is time that those wrongs were righted of our fellow countrymen in East Africa.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain said that any arrangement that is arrived at must be arrived at by consent. I have seen very little of consent during the last few years in the treatment of Indians in East Africa. I want to know whether it was by consent that the Wood-Winterton agreement was arrived at. I want to know what happened after the Wood-Winterton agreement. Was that given effect to? Far from being given effect to, was a mild, meek and reasonable attitude adopted by the white settlers in Kenya? There was a threat of revolution on their part and the arrangement arrived at was not given effect to. That was not evidence of consent on their part. Then we come to the Hilton Young Report. It has recommended that there should be a common roll, but it has also recommended that there should be a common roll by consent, and I shall deal with that matter in a minute. What is the effect of that Report? Immediately Sir Samuel Wilson went there, I am told by people who were there and with whom he came into contact, that he said that the door was closed as far as the question of a common roll was concerned. That was the opinion of the Colonial Office, and he was apparently voicing the opinion of the Colonial Office when he visited East Africa. Does that mean consent? Is there any evidence of consent with regard to this matter on the part of the white settlers, or even of the Colonial Office? Then we get to the visit of the Right Honourable Srinivasa Sastri. I entirely agree with my Honourable friend Mr. K. C. Roy in paying a high tribute to the work that has been so far done by the Right Honourable Sastri. But here was a man, a great diplomat, a man very highly respected by our countrymen, sent out to East Africa, and what was he faced with? Almost before he went to East Africa, the Colonial Office had informed, I believe, the Government of India that the door regarding a common roll was closed, barred and bolted. What was the good of the Right Honourable Sastri going there under the conditions? He could achieve nothing because all the good work that he might have achieved in regard to bringing about a settlement in East Africa was nullified by the attitude of the Colonial Office. Does that show consent on the part of the Colonial Office or on the part of the white settlers in East Africa? No. The question is not a question of consent; the question is a question of the Government of India demanding, as a matter of right, that the rights and privileges of the Indians must be recognised, at all costs must be recognised. As Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, in his very eloquent speech, stated quite rightly, there are alternatives open to the British Government in regard to this matter. They can turn round and say to the white settlers, "If you do not grant the demands of the Indians for a common roll, then we shall not take a single step towards the advancement of your territories constitutionally". They can take that step, and it is up to the Government of India, and I hope,—I will not say I have not the slightest doubt,—but I hope that the Government of India will take this step reminding the Colonial Office that this demand has got to be conceded which is a matter of principle, of vital principle to the Indian community in East Africa, and that, unless the white settlers in Kenya concede this demand of a common roll, they must not proceed with any constitutional changes that have been contemplated in the Report.

Now, what is the demand of the Indians? A most reasonable demand that any body of men could have put forward. They said, "We give up our demand for an adult franchise and we accept the demand for a civilisation franchise" whatever that might mean. They said, "We are even prepared to accept the proportion of allotment of seats. We are prepared to accept the present proportion"; and they said, "We are prepared to agree to any other reasonable demands that you place before us, but we will not budge an inch from the bedrock of the whole question, namely, a common roll". Are those demands unreasonable I ask? The real substance of the matter is this, that the white settlers do not wish to concede a common roll because they feel that their superiority, their present position of privilege, will be menaced if they have to go round visiting various centres and asking the Indians to support them for election to the Legislative Council. That is the real basis of it. The Indians also realise that, if the common roll is conceded, that will open up the road for them to travel towards complete freedom in that territory. Now, Sir, the next thing that the Indians demand there is the calling of a round table conference. I hope the Government of India will take note of the Indian demand. I hope they will press upon the Colonial Office that, before they come to any decision, they will call a round table conference of representative Indians in East Africa. In fact, I consider that the Labour Government, according to their own statement, are really pledged to do the right thing by the Indians in East Africa. As Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya read out the statement made by Mr. Johnston, I want to read it out again. Mr. Johnston said that he was the official Labour spokesman, and he spoke in the absence of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald just a few days before the Labour Government came into power. He said :

"Labour would not be bound directly or indirectly by any arrangement which may shortly be made. We hold ourselves free in every direction to push forward a civilisation franchise on a basis of equality. No colour bar or caste should be created."

Now, apparently Mr. Johnston is visualising a common roll; otherwise he would not have referred to equality and the removal of all colour great many loose phrases used on this question, such as "the paramountcy of native interests" and the "dual policy". We felt that those phrases had been used often to shelve or shirk difficulties, and that those difficulties must be faced. Therefore we endeavoured to lay down, not only principles of native policy, but practical rules by which they might be applied; and I am sure, from what I have heard in this debate, that Honourable Members will be at one with us in the principles which we sought to set up and defend. I think I may say that the Report was inspired by an ideal, looking forward to the day when the British Empire would be a commonwealth of free nations, where there could be no question of a small minority dominating the natives of the country. We felt that everything must be done with that end in view. I want to bring this point out, because, of course taking that point of view, the Indian problem in these countries, although an important problem, is not the main problem. I would ask Honourable Members to take that into account if they should feel, on reading certain sections of the Report, that we have not pressed and dealt with this issue sufficiently thoroughly, or shown sufficient interest in the question; and I would ask Honourable Members to realise that—that it is the native problem which is the big problem and the Indian problem is in a sense only an additional complication in what is already a very complicated question. The complication in the question is this, that you have, in these territories—or perhaps I should say you have it fully developed in Kenya and to a smaller extent in Tanganyika—you have in these territories the great difficulty created by what we have in our Report described as a "mixed state". You have a small community of 20th century civilisation settled down in the midst of a vast population whom you must put back at the middle ages as regards their civilisation. That, Sir, creates a terribly difficult problem. The small community, with its ideas of representative government, demands representative government, demands the introduction of those political institutions with which it is familiar. How can you meet that demand, which it is very difficult to refuse, without doing injustice to the vast numbers of the native population? That really, Sir, is the problem; and the other side of the question is this, that of course the small immigrant community demands the sort of institutions with which it is familiar, whereas it by no means follows that those institutions will be exactly suitable for the big native population. The Honourable Pandit said, "No responsible government unless you introduce the principle of a common roll". We, as a matter of fact, went much further than that; we said, "no responsible government until the natives themselves can share in that responsibility". I think that that is a principle which we must stand up for, and speaking for myself, I particularly welcome this debate, because I feel that, if you in India give your thought to these problems, you may create a public opinion throughout the Empire which will greatly help towards their solution on the right lines.

I feel, Sir, that this debate has been of great value, and that the statement of policy that has been put forward by this Assembly is going to strengthen the hands of the Government of India in advocating the cause of Indians. I should like just to pick up one thought arising out of the word "advocating", which has already been referred to in the debate. We, on these Benches must definitely accept it as our task to fill the role. We are in a very definite sense in the position of advocates, advocating one side of the case. It so happens that I myself have also been in the position of a judge in this case; and I am sure Honourable Members will realise how difficult that position was because, although I had no connection with India, I knew that I was coming to India and I had to be very careful that my judgment should not be biased by the knowledge that I might have to sit here and listen to criticisms of our Report in this Assembly. Perhaps indeed one was a little more cautious,—perhaps even deflected in the other direction—than one otherwise might have been by the desire to avoid being influenced by this consideration. As advocates, we can accept the position which has been put forward by my Honourable friend, Diwan Chaman Lal: "You must press for a common roll without qualifications; you must stand out for the principle". But, if Honourable Members put themselves for a moment in the position of the Judge, they would, I think, admit that there are difficulties, seen from this point of view. My Honourable friend Sir Abdul Qaiyum made a reference to difficulties which exist out here. Now, Sir, I would never wish to refer to those difficulties in any argumentative way or with a desire to show that Members on the opposite Benches were in the wrong. But I do think that we should turn our eyes to this country and consider the communal question here just for the purpose of appreciating the difficulties. My Honourable friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas said that, in Kenya, it is really not a communal question but it is a racial one. I admit the distinction, but surely it makes the problem almost worse; it does not make it easier, it makes it harder. Now if we think of the communal conditions here and consider the situation which would be created if an outside authority were to come here and say "You have got to get on to a common roll. Whether the minority community agrees to it or not, you have got to have it", I think Honourable Members will realise that that is hardly a practical way for dealing with the situation. And it is a practical way for dealing with the situation which we want, for I have always tried to look at it from the point of view of how can we find the path which is most likely to lead us to the goal that we desire. And I still feel that, as My Honourable friend Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya said, we must try to advance, to begin with, by agreement. That at least must be our first endeavour. I do not say that we must weaken our case at all, but we do not want to say anything which would make it impossible to advance along that path of agreement.

And perhaps that might bring me back to the subject of the motion which we are discussing. The motion, after all, merely it seeks to provide Rs. 17,000 for the expenses of Mr. Sastri's visit. Now, in the effort to reach an agreement, I do not think the Government of India could possibly have taken a step which held more promise of hope than to send out a man like Mr. Sastri to East Africa. It has been said in this debate that he went on a fool's errand. It has been asked, "what were the conditions on which he went?" As to this I cannot say for I was not concerned myself with settling those conditions. But I was concerned with very many most interesting talks with Mr. Sastri on the question before he went, and this I can say, that whatever may have been the conditions on which he went, the mere presence of a man like Mr. Sastri in East Africa was likely, and we were justified in so thinking, to improve the situation. I do not think I personally have ever had a greater disappointment than the result of Mr. Sastri's mission. I do not know that it would be right to say that it was a failure, but at any rate, it was not the success that was hoped for. I must admit that Honourable Members opposite are quite justified in taking the line that, having regard to the complete refusal to consider the reasonable proposals made by our Commission, and having regard to the failure of Mr. Sastri's mission, there is not much hope of a reasonable attitude on the other side. As I say, the Honourable Members have justification for drawing that conclusion. But I would say, let us not give up hope. We may get a different inspiration from London now ; let us still make an effort to reach agreement, for that, after all, is the only way along which we can actually see the path open before us for an advance.

Mr. K. C. Roy : May I say a word, Sir, on a point of explanation ?

Mr. President : The Honourable Member has no right of reply.

Mr. K. C. Roy : I know, Sir, I have no right of reply. The only thing I want to mention is that both Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain and Sir George Schuster have put a new construction on the present constitutional position of the Government of India. They say they are only in the position of advocates, but I have always looked upon India as a high contracting party in a transaction of the sort that is going on over Kenya. This is a very important position. The House must take note of the fact that both Sir Fazl-i-Hussain and Sir George Schuster are mere advocates for Indians and are not representatives of a great Indian Empire, which is a high contracting party, in affairs relating to Crown Colony Government. Sir Denys Bray told this House the other day that the Government of India had been asked about the new Egyptian Treaty, and was a signatory to the Kellog Pact ; but a new doctrine has today been enunciated by two responsible Members of the Government of India.....

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mr. K. C. Roy : Sir, I ask your permission to withdraw my motion.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : Sir, I never meant to say anything to give up any way the position that India has or may aspire to. I at once withdraw any such remark that may be liable to such interpretation.

Mr. President : Order, order : The question is :

“ That leave be given to Mr. K. C. Roy to withdraw his motion.”

The motion was adopted.

The amendment was, by leave of the Assembly, withdrawn.

Mr. President : Order, order : The question is :

“ That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 17,000 be granted to the Governor General in Council to defray the charges that will come in course of payment during the year ending the 31st day of March 1930 in respect of ‘ Miscellaneous ’.”

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned sine die.

bars, and it is now up to the Government of India to tie Mr. Johnston, and through him Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, to the statement made on the 5th May in the House of Commons by Mr. Johnston on behalf of his leader, and to press this point upon the Labour Government, that this is not only according to their principles, but according to their declared policy on the floor of the House of Commons.

Now, Sir, I have only one word to say about the question of consent. No Indian in East Africa, as far as I can make out, is ever likely to agree to the proposition that the common roll should not be put into force except by the agreement of the white settlers in Kenya. There is no possibility, as far as I can make out at the present moment, of the white settlers agreeing to the common roll, unless and until it is brought home to them that the British Government are anxious to stand up and do justice to the Indians in East Africa, and I hope that this point will be adequately pressed by the Government of India upon the British Government and the Colonial Office, namely, that there can be no peace in East Africa and no settlement of this problem, unless and until the common roll is conceded by the white settlers in Kenya.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum (North-West Frontier Province : Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, I am glad you have given me this opportunity of speaking on this subject. I shall try to be brief and to the point. I simply want to associate myself with the sentiments and ideas expressed by the Members of this House and say that we are in full sympathy with the Indians in East Africa. We want them to be treated on terms of equality with all other settlers in that country. Sir, my experience of the Emigration Committee, of which I have been a member for the past few years, has assured me of the fact that the Government of India is always ready to support our views and advocate our cause as vehemently as is possible for them under the official etiquette, with the Government at home. As a matter of fact, on many occasions, I have found them more enthusiastic in advocating that cause than some of the members of the Emigration Committee, who, for want of knowledge of local conditions, are unable to advocate the cause fully and satisfactorily. In this particular case, during the past few meetings, which we had of the Emigration Committee, every side of the question was fully discussed by the members of the Emigration Committee as well as by the leaders of the various parties, and especially the Leader of the Opposition and his learned Secretary, who were present there, and I thought that the Government of India's views, as explained by the member in charge, were in all essentials in entire accord with our views on this subject. There was of course this question of common roll, and about that some doubts and suspicions were expressed by some Members of the Emigration Committee, but I thought that, even that point had been fully explained by the Government of India to the Colonial Office. I understand, Sir, that it is not for want of support from the Government of India that the question of a common roll has not been finally settled, but that perhaps the Government in England find the same difficulty about this common roll as the Government of India find in India, in the matter of joint and separate electorates. Some such difficulties are perhaps in the way of the common roll, and it is just possible that the matter may be settled by compromise though our own experience of matters like this is that it is very difficult to settle these things by compromise. There can be no question of enforcing these things by law even if the constitutional advance of the country is retarded, as there are always fears in the minds of minorities about the safety of their rights and the white settler in East Africa may be feeling the same nervousness or fear. But I still trust that there will be the possibility of coming to some sort of settlement about this, and that even this question will be settled satisfactorily. I entirely and fully join with my Honourable colleagues in this House in advocating the cause of Indians in East Africa.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, as I am technically responsible for the motion on which this debate has arisen, I feel that perhaps it is appropriate that I should say a few words in reply—and when I say my words will be very few I am sure all Honourable Members will wish the same. I have many times looked forward to the possibility of this Report being debated in this House ; and I could have wished, speaking for myself, that it could have been debated at a time when we had a fuller House, and not as the last item at the end of the Session, when we have been sitting very late for several days running. I think, Sir, from the course of the discussion today, that it is extremely likely that we shall be debating this question again, and therefore I do not propose to deal at all exhaustively with the questions that have been raised.

There have been two kinds of questions raised, first, the attitude of the Government of India, and secondly, the principles recommended in the Report. I should only consider myself at present qualified, or in a position, to deal with the latter question, the principles of the Report. But to do that in any way fully, would take me much longer than would be proper just now, and I would only like to say two things. First, I would ask Honourable Members who are interested in this matter to go very carefully through the Commission's Report, to read it and to study it for themselves in case we are going to debate this question again. I have indeed been greatly flattered by the obvious evidence that both my Honourable friend, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas and my Honourable friend, Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya have read the Report very carefully, and I should like to express my particular thanks to the learned Pandit for what he said about the principles which it embodied.

The second thing that I want to say is this, that the main problem of course with which that Report deals is the native problem ; and I think I may claim that, by taking that line in the Report, by treating our tasks as one which concerned mainly the native problem, merely by doing that, we took a very decisive step. For we had been asked to report on this question of closer union, and that with particular reference to the joint management of railways—economic interests of that kind. We said that all those questions were important, but that they were of entirely minor significance compared to the question of native policy, and we said that the main thing that we had to consider was to provide for some proper co-ordination of native policy in those territories which lie side by side in Africa. We said it would be fatal if Kenya went one way, Uganda went another and Tanganyika another. We said there must be common principles of native policy, and having said this we did make an effort to face the problem. There have been a
