THE
LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DEBATES

(Official Report)

VOLUME IV

FIFTH SESSION 1-12

OF THE

THIRD LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

1929

SIMLA
1929

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if the complaint about overcrowding, insufficient carriage supply to carry the pilgrims, and pilgrims having to travel in coal wagons, is correct?

(c) Have Government considered the question whether the Barsi Light Railway can do away with transport of pilgrim passengers in goods wagons?

(d) Are Government aware that the dividend paid by this Railway works out to about 12 per cent. per annum, including bonus, and if so, will Government be pleased to state how they reconcile the inability of the Railway to provide passenger carriages for transport of pilgrims with the dividends earned by the Railway?

(e) What steps do Government propose to take in view of the complaint of the correspondent referred to in part (a) above?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) Yes.

(b) Government are informed that on certain occasions, more particularly in connection with the four annual festivals in Pandharpur, passengers are carried in goods wagons on the Barsi Light Railway.

(c) & (d). Government are not satisfied that the Barsi Light Railway have taken all the steps that they should to avoid unreasonable use of goods wagons for the carriage of passengers and are having an examination made into this question. I understand that the dividend and bonus paid by the Company works out to 12 per cent. as stated by the Honourable Member, who is no doubt aware that, besides their ordinary share capital, the Barsi Light Railway have a large amount of 6½ per cent. preference shares and 4 per cent. debenture stock.

(e) Government lately instructed the Government Inspector of Railways to make a special investigation as to overcrowding of passengers on the Barsi Light Railway during the recent Ashadi fair and submit his recommendations as to the steps that should be taken in order to avoid to all reasonable extent the use of goods wagons for the carriage of passengers. His report was received recently and is at present under the consideration of the Railway Board.

SYSTEM OF RECRUITMENT OF OFFICERS TO THE POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.

2. *Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : (a) Will Government be pleased to state :

(i) if it is a fact that at present Political Officers are recruited into one Department for Foreign work and for Political work from the Indian Civil Service and the Army?

(ii) if the said system of recruitment has not worked satisfactorily?

(iii) if any change is contemplated in the said system of recruitment and training of Political Officers and if so, why?

(iv) if the answer to part (iii) is in the affirmative, what is the nature of the contemplated change?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if they propose to give an opportunity to the Assembly to discuss any contemplated change in recruitment to the Political Department? If so, when? If not, why not?

Sir Denys Bray : (a) (i). Yes, and also in cases of exceptional merit from the Provincial Civil Service.

(ii) Yes, on the whole.

(iii) and (iv). No change has been suggested in that part of the Department with which British India is concerned.

(b) Does not arise.

AMENDMENT OF SECTION 53 OF THE PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT, AND SECTION 55 OF THE PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT.

3. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the diversity of judicial opinion on the interpretation of section 53 of the Provincial Insolvency Act and section 55 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act as to the commencement of the period of two years?

(b) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the decision of Chief Justice Sir Shadilal, reported in the Indian Law Reports, 10 Lahore, page 106, where he has shown the urgency of immediate legislative interference in the matter?

(c) In view of the above, do Government propose to amend section 53 of the Provincial Insolvency Act and section 55 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act to bring these sections into line with section 54 of the former Act and section 56 of the latter?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) The question of amending these two sections is now under their consideration.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is the Honourable Member aware that dishonest debtors have been taking advantage of this diversity of opinion since 1920?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I understand that there is some doubt as to whether the existing law is in a satisfactory condition. As I have stated, Government have now under their consideration the question of amending these two sections.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I understand, then, Sir, that the amendment of these two sections will be taken up at this Session, or will they be taken up at the next Session?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I am afraid I cannot give any undertaking as to when legislation will be introduced.

NUMBER AND NAMES OF PERSONS DEALT WITH UNDER THE PUBLIC SAFETY ORDINANCE.

4. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government be pleased to state how many persons (with their names and nationalities) have been dealt with up to date under the provisions of the Public Safety Ordinance since its promulgation?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : No case has so far occurred in which it has been necessary to employ the powers conferred by the Ordinance.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Then what was the urgency in promulgating the Public Safety Ordinance ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I think, Sir, that the fact that no action has yet been taken under the Ordinance is no proof of any absence of necessity for it. The existence of precautionary legislation of this kind on the Statute Book very frequently goes a long way to fulfil its object.

NAMES OF ORGANISATIONS IN AND OUTSIDE OF INDIA DECLARED TO BE UNLAWFUL.

5. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government be pleased to give the names of organisations in India and outside India which have been declared to be unlawful, and the membership of which makes a person liable to criminal prosecution ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Certain associations under the name of Wunthanu Athin and similar designations in six districts in Burma have been declared unlawful at various dates between 1923 and 1929. No other associations have been declared unlawful since January 1st, 1923, in regard to which the notification is still effective.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know, Sir, if the Government of India have at their disposal a list of these organisations which have been declared unlawful ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I shall be glad to furnish the Honourable gentleman with a list of the organisations in Burma which have been declared unlawful.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : And in the rest of India ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : As I have explained, there are none regarding which the notifications are effectual.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to have a copy of the list placed on the table of the House instead of furnishing it to me ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The Associations referred to are almost entirely very small village associations scattered throughout six districts in Burma. The list therefore is a somewhat long one, but I shall be glad to furnish the Honourable Member with it if he so desires.

Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : What objection is there to placing the list of these associations on the table of the House ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I shall be prepared to place a copy in the Library.

NATURE OF HELP AND CO-OPERATION ACCORDED TO COLONEL ALEXANDER POWELL, AUTHOR OF A BOOK ENTITLED "INDIA THE LAST HOME OF MYSTERY."

6. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Are Government aware that one Colonel E. Alexander Powell of the United States has published a book called "The Last Home of Mystery", in which he libels some of the religious practices of the Indians ?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(b) Are Government aware that the author admits in his book that he received "help and co-operation" from "the British Government of London, and British officials in India" ?

(c) What kind of "help and co-operation" was given to this writer by the authorities ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state if they issued a passport to this man to come to India ; and if so, on what credentials was the passport issued, and for what period ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) & (b) The Government of India understand that such a book has been published, but they have not yet seen it and they have not succeeded so far in obtaining a copy.

(c) I am not aware of any official help having been given to the writer in India or in England.

(d) No. The second part does not, therefore, arise.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is the Honourable Member aware that this book contains statements which are not only defamatory and libellous to the Anglo-Indian community, but constitute a distinct calumny ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : As I have stated, I have not yet been able to obtain a copy of the book, and I cannot therefore verify whether the Honourable Member's suggestions are correct or not.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member get a copy and if after reading the book he finds that what I have stated is correct, will he place a ban on its sale in this country ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I think, Sir, that that is a hypothetical question.

CONFIDENTIAL CIRCULAR ISSUED BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA TO LOCAL GOVERNMENTS re THE POLICY AND PROGRAMME OF THE INDIAN NATIONAL CONGRESS.

7. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the Government of India have issued a circular marked "Confidential", No. D.4181, dated 26th April 1929, to all Local Governments and Administrations, instructing them that, "in view of the declarations of policy recently made by the Congress, and the extreme political programme which it has adopted, the Government of India consider that it is undesirable that exhibitions or fairs organised by or under the auspices of the Indian National Congress, should receive the support or co-operation of Departments or officials of Government in any way" ?

(b) What is meant by the "declaration of policy" and "the extreme political programme" of the Congress ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The Honourable Member will, I think, appreciate that an answer to his question would amount to a condonation of the unauthorized communication of confidential documents. This is prohibited and the Honourable Member will doubtless join with me in condemning it.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware that these so-called confidential documents were published extensively in the newspapers ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : They have not been published by authority.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it a fact that a confidential circular has been sent round to various Departments ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I think, Sir, the Honourable Member will recognise that it would not be proper for me to answer questions which are based upon an unauthorised publication of confidential documents. I cannot, therefore, reply to his question either in the affirmative or in the negative, on the point of principle.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member to say what objection he can possibly have when the matter is public knowledge, and the newspapers have already published such a circular ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : My reason is that, as a matter of principle, it would be improper for me to reply to questions which arise from an unauthorised publication of confidential documents.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it open to Government to issue confidential circulars which are objectionable in themselves ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : That, I think, Sir, is a question of opinion depending upon hypothesis.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether any action has been taken by the Government of India in regard to placing of a ban on any exhibitions or organisations organised by the Indian National Congress ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I must adhere to my original position, which is one of principle, and I cannot undertake to answer questions based upon confidential documents published without authority.

NOMINATION OF A LADY MEMBER TO THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

8. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do Government propose to recommend the nomination of a lady member to this House in view of certain pending legislations affecting women ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : The recommendation of persons for nomination to this House does not lie with the Government of India.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Was it open, Sir, to the Government of India to make recommendations on this point ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : It is not the function of the Government of India to recommend anybody.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do they propose to recommend anybody when important Bills affecting the rights of women are pending before this House ?

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it not a fact that certain gentlemen were selected temporarily to assist in carrying through this measure by the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : I presume, Sir, the Honourable Member means nominated.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Yes.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : That is so.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Do Government propose to nominate a lady member to this Assembly for certain Bills which are pending before the House ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Nomination is made by the Governor General, and any person can recommend anybody to the Governor General for nomination. All I said was that it is not the function of the Government of India to make any recommendation.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I take it, then, that all those gentlemen who have been nominated have not been recommended by the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : They were not recommended by the Government of India.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Did the Honourable the Law Member recommend any lady to the Governor General for being nominated to the Assembly ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : No. Sir, I did not know her.

Mr. Abdul Haye : Is not a lady member available to sit on the Government Benches ?

WITHDRAWAL OF THE INDIAN HIGH COURTS BILL.

9. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that the Indian High Courts Bill, throwing open the office of Chief Justice of Indian High Courts to members of the Civil Service, has been dropped ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Yes, at all events for the present.

FUNCTIONS OF THE ARMY DEPARTMENT SECRETARIAT.

10. *Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the functions of the Army Department Secretariat ?

(b) Is it a fact that all proposals involving fresh expenditure are submitted by Branches of Army Headquarters concerned to the Deputy Financial Adviser attached to it, and when agreed to by the latter, the draft orders are put up by the Branch and the Army Department simply issues such orders ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Army List Section, which was originally under the Military Secretary's Branch, was transferred to the Army Department a few years back ? If so, will Government please give reasons for this change ?

(d) Is it a fact that each Branch of Army Headquarters has an Establishment Section of its own, which deals with all questions relating to the pay, promotion, leave, pensions, etc., of its personnel ?

(e) Is it a fact that such sections have got sufficient staff and each one is allowed a duty allowance of Rs. 50 per mensem for the cashier ?

(f) Is it a fact that each Branch has a separate roster of its own for the ministerial and menial staff ?

(g) If the replies to the above are in affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the necessity for having a separate post of an Establishment Officer with a staff in the Army Department Secretariat to deal with Army Headquarters personnel ?

(h) Is it a fact that the post of Establishment Officer involves duplication of work and avoidable delay and inconvenience to Branches concerned ?

(i) Is it a fact that there is no such appointment as an Establishment Officer in the Civil Secretariat and the attached offices ?

(j) Will Government be pleased to state the objections in allowing each Branch of Army Headquarters to deal with their own establishment independently of the Establishment Officer and in direct communication with the Public Service Commission in the matter of recruitment, as is done by all other offices, Secretariat or otherwise ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) The function of the Army Department Secretariat is to deal with the subjects allotted to the Army Department by the Governor General under the Rules of Business, that is to say business connected with the Army, Cantonments, the Indian Medical Service, the Royal Indian Marine and Marine Surveys, and the Royal Air Force. It would be impossible, within the limits of a verbal answer, to give a detailed account of the functions that are comprised under these headings ; but I will furnish the Honourable Member separately with a further statement if he wishes.

(b) No, Sir. It is the responsibility of the Army Department and not of the Military Finance Branch, to decide on the administrative necessity of all proposals emanating from Army Headquarters that require the sanction of the Government of India, whether those proposals entail fresh expenditure or not.

(c) The work connected with the Indian Army List was previously performed partly in the Military Secretary's Branch and partly in the Adjutant General's Branch. Its transfer to the Army Department was carried out some 9 years ago as a matter of administrative convenience.

(d) Yes, within certain limits. But all general questions connected with these matters are dealt with by a central co-ordinating authority, namely, the Army Secretary.

(e) Yes.

(f) Yes.

(g) The Establishment Officer, on behalf of the Army Secretary, supplies the co-ordinating element referred to above. He has many other duties to perform besides recruiting and posting clerks.

(h) No, Sir. On the contrary, the post of Establishment Officer saves a good deal of inconvenience and overlapping which would be unavoidable if the Branches of Army Headquarters were to deal with these matters separately.

(i) Yes ; but no Civil Secretariat with its attached offices is of the same size as Army Headquarters.

(j) The present arrangement works satisfactorily and the change proposed would not only throw a great deal of additional work on the Public Service Commission, but would result in delay and inconvenience.

LOCATION OF A RAILWAY STATION TO SERVE HALANI AND BELANI VILLAGES ON THE NEW SIND FEEDER RAILWAY.

11. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Are Government aware that there is difference of opinion as to the location of a railway station to serve Halani and Belani villages on the New Sind Feeder Railway, which is being constructed from Mehrabpur to Thafushah ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if it has been settled where to locate the same ?

(c) Are Government aware that the people of Belani wanted the station to be located between miles 6 and 7 and not at mile 7 ?

(d) Did the railway authorities receive a representation making out the aforesaid case from the people of Belani ? If so, what reply was made to them ?

(e) Is it a fact that the location of the railway station between miles 6 and 7 will serve more suitably both the villages of Halani and Belani ?

(f) Is it not a fact that it will be more suitable to catch traffic, besides affording convenience to both the villages, if the station is located between miles 6 and 7, it being centrally situated ?

(g) If the answer to part (f) be in the negative, will Government be pleased to place on the table all details, giving reasons in support of their view ?

(h) Is it a fact that Government will not have to incur any extra expenditure by locating the station centrally between the villages ? If the answer be that there will be more expense, will Government be pleased to state how much that will be ?

Mr. P. E. Rau : Differences of opinion as to the location of railway stations are, I am afraid, inevitable, as there are various and conflicting interests concerned. In this particular case it was after careful consideration of all alternative suggestions that the Agent of the North Western Railway decided to have the station at a point just over seven miles from Mehrabpur, which I understand is only a third of a mile nearer Halani than the point midway between the two villages. It is reported that of the two, Halani is a place of greater importance and the site selected is more suitable to catch traffic as the arterial road from Rohri to Hyderabad passes very near it and several village roads also converge on it. Government are not prepared to interfere with the action of the Agent in this matter.

(OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE FIFTH SESSION OF THE THIRD LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.)

VOLUME IV—1929.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Monday, 2nd September, 1929.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

INSUFFICIENT ACCOMMODATION FOR PILGRIMS ON THE BARSÌ LIGHT RAILWAY.

1. *Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a letter in the Bombay Chronicle regarding the Barsi Light Railway, describing the sufferings of passengers travelling on that Railway, which appeared in the issue of that paper, dated the 13th May 1929 (page 8) ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member say whether any public opinion was consulted in this matter and also whether the head of the Province, the Commissioner, was consulted ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to say why neither the head of the Province nor public opinion was consulted ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I said I am not aware whether they were consulted in this case. Usually it is the practice, I understand, for the Local Administration to consult local authorities in these matters.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : The Honourable Member should have gone through all the papers to consider for himself whether this is a right decision.

(Mr. President called on Mr. Kelkar to put question No. 12.)

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE FLETCHER COMMITTEE ON THE ORGANISATION OF MEDICAL RESEARCH IN INDIA.

12. { *Mr. N. C. Kelkar :
*Mr. K. C. Neogy :
*Dr. B. S. Moonje :
*Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : } (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they have considered the Report and recommendations of the Fletcher Committee on the organisation of medical research under the Government of India ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have taken any decision in relation to the said Report on the question of policy, or with regard to administrative and financial matters connected with it ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay all the papers in connection with the Medical Research Institute on the table of the House, and also state what decisions, if any, have been already taken ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The recommendations of the Fletcher Committee are under the consideration of Government.

(b) and (c). The Honourable Member's attention is invited to paragraph 27 of the proceedings of the meeting of the Standing Finance Committee held on the 29th August, 1928, and to the appendix referred to in that note. Copies of these proceedings and of the Fletcher Committee's Report will be found in the Library of the House. If the Honourable Member will kindly specify what other papers he wishes to be placed on the table of the House, Government will be glad to consider his suggestion.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member inform this House whether or not the opinion of the medical profession in India was taken into consideration before the matter was put before the Standing Finance Committee ; also whether the Report of the Fletcher Committee was placed in the Library before the Government of India took the opinion of the Standing Finance Committee ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I am not certain, but I think the reply to the Honourable Member's question is that the medical opinion was not consulted before the papers were placed before the Standing Finance Committee or before the Report of the Fletcher Committee was placed in the Library of the House. I would refer my Honourable friend to my answer to the next question, which gives further information on the point.

Mr. E. L. Price : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to say whether there are means of consulting the medical profession in this country ?

Sir Frank Noyce : There are certain recognised medical associations.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : In view of the reply just given, will the Honourable Member inform the House why the medical opinion in India was ignored before action was taken by the Government in this matter ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply to question No. 1054, which was asked on the 14th March, 1929, on this subject.

Mr. M. S. Aney : May I ask the Honourable Member whether that reply gives any reasons against the points to which reference has been made by Colonel Gidney ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I must refer the Honourable Member to the answer itself.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Considering the all-India importance of this subject, I desire to press this question for an answer. Will the Honourable Member please inform this House whether he is prepared to give an assurance on behalf of the Government to consult medical opinion in India before he takes any further steps in the construction of the Central Research Institute at Dehra Dun ?

Sir Frank Noyce : The question will be considered.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it not a fact that the papers available to the Standing Finance Committee did comprise some of the other papers which have become available since then ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I should like to know which papers the Honourable Member is referring to.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : The volume of opinion which has grown in opposition to that scheme.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Was the Report of the Fletcher Committee itself placed before the Standing Finance Committee ?

(Mr. President called on Mr. Kelkar to put the next question.)

OPINIONS RECEIVED ON THE RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE FLETCHER COMMITTEE ON THE ORGANISATION OF MEDICAL RESEARCH.

13. { *Mr. N. C. Kelkar :
*Mr. K. C. Neogy :
*Dr. B. S. Moonje :
*Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : } (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the Report of the Fletcher Committee has been circulated for opinion among the several Provincial Governments, Universities and the medical profession in the country ?

(b) If so, have such opinions been received, and will Government be pleased to lay on the table of the House a copy of any such opinions received ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The Report has been published and copies have been supplied to all Local Governments, who will be consulted with reference to the recommendations that concern them. For the reasons given in answer to Mr. Aney's question No. 1054, asked in this House on the 14th March, 1929, it was not considered necessary to circulate the Report in order to elicit further professional or academic opinion.

(b) The question does not arise.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Will the Honourable Member state whether the Report of the Fletcher Committee was made available to the members of the Standing Finance Committee when the question was placed before them for consideration?

Sir Frank Noyce : I cannot answer that question offhand, but I should be glad to find out and communicate with the Honourable Member.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Has the Honourable Member received a communication from Bengal enclosing certain resolutions passed at an executive committee meeting of the All-India Medical Association held in Calcutta in July last, relating to this matter, and what action has the Honourable Member taken on that communication?

Sir Frank Noyce : The communication was received at the end of July and the matter is still under consideration.

Mr. B. Das : May I ask the Secretary for Education whether it is not brought to his knowledge by his Department what papers are placed before the Standing Finance Committee?

Sir Frank Noyce : I have little doubt that the Report of the Fletcher Committee was placed before the Standing Finance Committee, but, as I have said before, I would prefer not to answer the question definitely without making further inquiries.

Mr. B. Das : My question was whether the papers placed before the Standing Finance Committee by his Department are not perused by the Secretary of the Department?

Sir Frank Noyce : That is so, but unfortunately I was not then Secretary.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : May I ask the Honourable Member to give an assurance to this House that, before the Government of India take any further action, they will carefully consider the resolutions passed by the All-India Medical Congress on this subject?

Sir Frank Noyce : I have no doubt that the matter will be considered, but I am not in a position to give a definite undertaking on the subject.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : But, Sir, may I ask how can the matter be considered when the Government of India have already taken steps in regard to the construction of the Research Institute?

(No answer was given.)

LOCATION OF THE CENTRAL MEDICAL RESEARCH INSTITUTE.

| 14. | {*Mr. N. C. Kelkar :*Mr. K. C. Neogy :*Dr. B. S. Moonje :*Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla :         } | (a) Will Government bepleased to state whether it isa fact that work has actuallybeen started for locatingthe Central Medical Research Institute at Dehra Dun? |

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to state the full details of any such work already started or to be started?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the progress already made in the establishment of the Public Health Institute, out of the Rockefeller Endowment, at Calcutta?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state whether, in any case, they will not consider the advisability of watching the progress of the Public Health Institute to be established at Calcutta, for a sufficiently reasonable time, before undertaking the launching of any Central Medical Institute at Dehra Dun?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) No.

(b) The first part of the question does not arise. As regards the second part, the Honourable Member's attention is invited to paragraph 27 of the proceedings of the meeting of the Standing Finance Committee, held on the 29th August 1928, and to the appendix referred to in that note. Copies of these proceedings will be found in the Library of the House. No further details as to the actual work to be started have yet been settled.

(c) Intimation of credit for the first instalment of the proposed grant has been received from the Rockefeller Foundation. The question of purchasing a site and construction of buildings will now be taken up.

(d) Government do not see any advantage in adopting the Honourable Member's suggestion. The two Institutes, although a part of one organic plan, are designed to serve entirely different purposes. The Medical Research Institute will devote itself mainly to pure research, while the Public Health Institute will provide instruction in the methods of preventive medicine. The research that will be carried on at the latter institute will mainly take the form of investigating the best ways of applying the results of pure research to the requirements of large units of population, both rural and urban.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : What about the monies that have so far been expended on the location of the Institute at Dehra Dun?

Sir Frank Noyce : Nothing has so far been expended on the location of the Institute.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member state whether one of the reasons why Dehra Dun was selected was because it possessed an intellectual atmosphere?

Sir Frank Noyce : That is so. There are a number of scientific institutions already located there.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member give the name of the distinguished scientist who discovered this wonderful property in the atmosphere of Dehra Dun? Was he a member of the Fletcher Committee?

(No answer was given.)

RESULT OF REPRESENTATIONS RECEIVED FROM VARIOUS BODIES ON THE FLETCHER COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

15. { *Mr. N. C. Kelkar :
*Mr. K. C. Neogy :
*Dr. B. S. Moonje :
*Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : } (a) Have Government received detailed representations from the President of the Bombay Medical Union, the Secretary of the Central Provinces and Berar Medical Association, the Secretary of the Delhi Medical Association, the Andhra Medical Conference, and from other medical associations in the country, with regard to the recommendations of the Fletcher Report ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state what effect, if any, has been given to these representations ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Representations have been received from the Associations named in the question and from some other medical associations.

(b) The representations have been carefully considered, and Government hope to be able to announce their decision shortly.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : May I ask whether these representations were sent to Government by these expert bodies of their own accord or whether reference was specifically made to them for their opinion ?

Sir Frank Noyce : They have sent them of their own initiative.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Did not Government think it necessary to refer the matter to them for expert opinion ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I have already pointed out the reasons why Government did not refer the Report of the Fletcher Committee for professional opinion.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : In view of the answer given by the Honourable Member, is it the intention of the Government of India to act contrary to the medical opinion of this country ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I cannot accept that view.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Then what is your view ?

PROGRESS OF WORK ON THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE MIDDLE SIND RAILWAY.

16. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Is it a fact that the work on the Middle Sind Railway, which was commenced, has been stopped ?

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons why the work has been stopped ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether the work will be resumed, and if so, when ?

(d) Is the work to be carried on in sections ? If so, will Government be pleased to state when the work of the Tando Adam-Sakrand section will be taken in hand and completed ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I presume the Honourable Member is referring to the Sind Left Bank Feeder Railways. It is not a fact that work thereon has been stopped. The intention is to carry it on in sections. Work on the first section from Mehrabpur to Padidan is now in progress, and work on the Tando Adam-Sakrand section will probably be taken up in 1930 and completed in 1932.

EMPLOYMENT OF INDIAN ENGINEERS AND ARTISTS ON THE CONSTRUCTION AND DECORATION OF THE PROPOSED INDIA HOUSE TO BE BUILT IN LONDON.

17. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (1) Will Government please state if it is a fact that a building called the India House is to be built in London, and if so, what is its estimated cost and which treasury, the Indian or the British, will pay the cost ?

(2) Will Government please supply information on the following points :

(a) who were the architects, Indian or British, who drew out a plan and architectural form of the building and what remuneration has been paid to them ;

(b) who is the engineer, Indian or British, in charge of the construction of the building, and what remuneration is estimated to be paid to him ?

(3) Do Government propose to engage Indian engineers and artists for the construction and for the decoration and fittings of the building, and if so, will they be paid at the rates prevailing in the British market in this respect ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (1) "India House" is already under construction in London. The present estimated cost of the building is £324,220, which will be borne by Indian revenues.

(2) (a) The building has been designed by Sir Herbert Baker. The fee of the architect is fixed by the Royal Institute of British Architects as a percentage on the cost of construction. The percentage is six, and on this basis the architect's fee will be £17,653.

(b) Dr. Oscar Faber, Consulting Engineer to His Majesty's Office of Works, has been appointed Consulting Engineer for India House on a fee of 2 per cent. on the cost of the structure. On this basis his remuneration will amount to £5,884.

(3) State scholarships have recently been awarded by the Government of India to 4 Indian artists to undergo a course of 18 months' training in art in Europe. If these scholars make satisfactory progress in their studies and are otherwise found competent, they will be employed on the decoration of India House. The remuneration to be paid to them for their work on the decoration of India House has not yet been settled. No Indian engineers have been engaged.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : When the money is paid from the Indian Treasury, and there are engineering colleges in India, is it to be taken for granted that there are no competent Indian engineers to be put in charge of the construction of the building ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : When an important building is being erected in London, it is clearly advisable to employ highly qualified men who have had experience of building in London. As far as I am aware the High Commissioner did not draw our attention to the existence in London of Indian engineers of the requisite standing and experience.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Are there no engineers in India, if not in England ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : It is a question of local conditions. When a very important building is being erected in London, I think it is advisable, in view of all the interests concerned, that the engineer selected should have local experience.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Then, the money should have been paid from the British Treasury and not from the Indian Treasury.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I have said in my answer that the whole cost of the building will fall upon Indian revenues.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Why was not the same principle adopted in the case of engineers selected for the buildings in Delhi ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : There are many Indian engineers employed on that work.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : I mean at the head.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : They are not employed in subordinate capacities alone. All the officers were taken from the Indian services and the Indians employed are not employed in a subordinate capacity alone.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : May I know whether the engineers were Indians ? It is a misnomer to call it by the name of Indian service which applies to all Europeans who come here as members of the Indian service.

(No answer was given.)

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask whether, before beginning the construction of the new "India House", the Secretary of State was asked to make over the India Office to the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Speaking from memory, I think not.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Why was not such a request made to the Secretary of State before spending £300,000 on a new building ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : One reason given by the High Commissioner was that the India Office, even if it were available, would be entirely unsuitable for the work of his office and that of the Trade Commissioner.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Was not the point gone into before the question of having a new building was decided ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I cannot reply to that with sufficient accuracy without notice.

Diwan Chaman Lall : In what way would the India Office be unsuitable ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : In my opinion, one of the reasons is that it is very desirable that the Trade Commissioner should be a great deal nearer the City than the India Office is.

Diwan Chaman Lall : It only takes about 3½ minutes to the Strand from the India Office.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I bow to my Honourable friend's superior experience.

Mr. Abdul Hays : May I know whether suitable Indians will be employed for the work of decoration and fittings ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : In my answer to the last clause of the question I said that four Indians had been sent to England to undergo a course of training, and if they made satisfactory progress in their studies and were otherwise found competent, they would be employed in the decoration of the India House.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know whether any inquiries were made to find competent Indian engineers conversant with local conditions in England ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : We were guided in that matter entirely by the advice of the High Commissioner, and I am quite certain that if he had been aware of an Indian engineer in London, who would have been suitable for the appointment, he would have been the first to recommend him.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Has the Honourable Member any specific information on the point ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I did not say that I had any specific information. I said that, so far as I was aware, there were no such Indian engineers in London.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : What is the requisite qualification referred to ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I do not recollect having referred to any special qualifications.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : The Honourable Member referred to the high standard of qualification for the engineers which the Indians did not possess.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I used the word 'standing', not 'standard'. Of the requisite standing and experience.

REASON FOR THE GRANT OF SPECIAL CONCESSIONS TO THE SWEDISH MATCH COMPANY.

18. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many registered match companies there are in India and how many of them are Indian and how many non-Indian ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Swedish Match Company is not registered in India, and yet special concessions have been given to the Company by the Railway Companies and the Forest Departments, and if so, will Government please state in detail the nature of the concessions given ?

(c) Is it also a fact that a further concession has been made to the Swedish Match Company in that the revenue duty of Re. 1-8-0 for matches has been converted into a protective duty ?

(d) If the replies to parts (b) and (c) are in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for making such concessions to a foreign non-Indian non-British Company ?

LUCPB(LA)

(e) Have similar concessions been given to the Indian Companies, and if not, do Government propose to give similar concessions to them in the interests of the promotion of Indian industries ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) There are thirty match companies in India and all are registered Indian Companies.

(b) and (e). Since the Honourable Member gave notice of his question, the Swedish Match Company has been registered in India as the Western India Match Company, with rupee capital and Indian Directors. No distinction is drawn between the Western Indian Match Company and other Indian Companies in regard to the grant of special rates by the Railways or of forest concessions by Local Governments.

(c) The revenue duty previously levied on imported matches has been converted into a protective duty. The benefit of this duty is enjoyed by all match manufacturers in India without distinction.

(d) Does not arise.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Were any special concessions given to the Swedish Company before it was registered in India ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : No, Sir.

RECRUITMENT OF ARCHITECTURAL ENGINEERS FROM ENGLAND FOR SERVICE IN INDIA.

19. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many architectural engineers have been recruited in England for service in India every year during the last five years ?

(b) What recruiting agency has been employed, and which is the authority that finally selects the candidates for appointment as architectural engineers for service in India ?

(c) What are the qualifications fixed for such candidates ?

(d) How many of these are Indians and how many Europeans ?

(e) Are Government aware that there is serious discontent amongst Indian students in connection with the selection of candidates in England for service in India as architectural engineers ?

(f) Do Government propose to entrust the selection of such candidates to the Public Service Commission in India ? If not, why not ?

(g) Do Government propose so to modify or add to the courses of studies in the Indian Civil Engineering Colleges as to ensure a sufficient number of fully qualified Indian students being turned out to fill these posts, so that there may be no need to import candidates from outside India ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : As Government architects serving in the provinces are employed in Departments under the control of Ministers, the decision on all questions relating to their recruitment and qualifications rests wholly with the Governor of the province concerned, acting with his Ministers. Consequently, the Government of India have no information such as would enable them to reply to the question in so far as it relates to officers serving under Provincial Governments, nor do they consider it desirable to make inquiries in the matter. A few architects have, however, been engaged for service under the Central Government in the past, and the replies below relate to such officers :

(a) Two in 1928 and none in any other year.

(b) The recruiting agent is the High Commissioner for India, which authority also finally selects the candidates.

(c) No special qualifications are laid down, but the candidates are required to possess sound practical experience of their profession.

(d) Both officers are Europeans.

(e) No.

(f) If it is found necessary in future to recruit architects for employment under the Central Government, the suggestion will be considered.

(g) The Government of India have no control over the courses in the Indian Civil Engineering Colleges, which are controlled by the Governors of the provinces concerned, acting with their Ministers.

OUTFIT ALLOWANCES GRANTED TO OFFICERS OF THE INDIAN TERRITORIAL FORCE AND THE AUXILIARY FORCE.

20. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what outfit allowances are granted, and under what rules, to the different officers of the Indian Territorial Force and the Auxiliary Force ?

(b) Are there different sets of rules in the matter of outfit allowances for the Indian Territorial Force and the Auxiliary Force, and if so, what are the reasons for differentiation, and will Government be pleased to lay these rules on the table of the Assembly for the information of the House ?

(c) Is it a fact that the officers of the Indian Territorial Force are entitled to only Rs. 300 for outfit allowance, while officers of the Auxiliary Force receive Rs. 700 to Rs. 800 per head for the same ? If so, what are the reasons for such differentiation ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Under paragraph 166 of the Regulations for the Auxiliary Force, a King's Commissioned Officer of the Auxiliary Force (India) is eligible for an outfit allowance of Rs. 300. A Senior Grade Officer of the Indian Territorial Force also receives an outfit allowance of Rs. 300. A Junior Grade Officer, who requires a far less expensive outfit, receives an allowance of Rs. 160 plus a maintenance allowance of Rs. 5 per month.

(b) The rules applicable to the two forces are different, but their effect, as I have shown, is precisely the same. I will supply the Honourable Member separately with copies of the Government letters sanctioning outfit allowances to Indian Territorial Force Officers.

(c) No, Sir. The Honourable Member is possibly thinking of the additional outfit allowance of Rs. 400, which was formerly, but is no longer, admissible to an officer of the Auxiliary Force, who subsequently joined the Army in India-Reserve of Officers. This additional allowance has now been reduced to Rs. 100 and is admissible to officers of both the Auxiliary Force and the Territorial Force if they join the Army in India Reserve of Officers.

TRAINING OF INDIANS AT SANDHURST IN DEPARTMENTS OTHER THAN CAVALRY AND INFANTRY.

21. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) In what departments of military training other than that of cavalry and infantry are British students trained for commissions in the Royal Military College, Sandhurst ?

(b) Are Indian students eligible for training for commissions in those departments also ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) and (b). The Honourable Member appears to be under the impression that different types of training are provided at Sandhurst according to the branch of the service that the cadet wishes to join. This is not the case. The training at Sandhurst is uniform for all branches of the service, and is precisely the same for all cadets, both British and Indian. Thus a British cadet may go into the cavalry, the infantry, the Royal Tank Corps, or, eventually, into other branches of the British Army, such as the Royal Army Service Corps. Similarly, an Indian cadet may go into the cavalry or infantry or, eventually, into other branches of the Indian Army, such as the Indian Army Service Corps. There is no Indian Tank Corps at present, but the formation of Indian Armoured Car companies, for which Indians will be eligible, is now under consideration with the Secretary of State.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Is an Indian cadet allowed to go into the Tank Corps ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : An Indian cannot join the Royal Tank Corps, because the Royal Tank Corps is a British unit. An Indian cannot join a British Tank unit any more than an Indian can join the Royal Artillery.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Are means of education provided for training in Tank Corps for admission into Indian Tank Corps, for which an Indian is supposed to be eligible ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Yes, but an Indian is not eligible for the Royal Tank Corps.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is the Honourable Member aware that the Skeen Committee recommended that Indians should be admitted into the Royal Tank Corps ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : No, Sir.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is not the Honourable Member aware of it ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : No, Sir.

FORMATION OF AN INDIAN AIR SQUADRON AND TRAINING OF INDIANS THEREFOR.

22. *Dr. B. S. Moonje : (a) How many commissioned and non-commissioned officers and other ranks are required for the formation of one Indian Air Squadron ?

(b) How many Indians are yearly recruited for commissioned and non-commissioned officers and other ranks for an Indian Air Squadron and what facilities have been provided for the proper and adequate training of non-commissioned officers and other ranks ?

(c) What is the estimate of the number of years required for complete Indianisation of an Indian Air Squadron at the present rate of recruitment ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) The details of the organisation of an Indian Air Squadron have not been settled. Presuming, however, that it would have the same organisation and establishment as a squadron of the Royal Air Force, its strength would be as follows :

20 Officers,

30 Non-commissioned officers, and 171 Other ranks.

(b) As the Honourable Member is aware, six vacancies at the Royal Air Force Cadet College at Cranwell were allotted for competition among Indians at the examination held in November 1928 and again at the examination held in June last. The results of the last examination have not yet been received, but no Indian has yet passed into Cranwell ; and therefore no non-commissioned officers or other ranks have yet been recruited. As soon as the number of Indians required to form the nucleus of the officer ranks enter Cranwell, arrangements will be made at the Aircraft Depot at Karachi to train the requisite number of artisans to complete the personnel of the first Indian Flight, and as soon as the Indian cadets have completed their two years training at Cranwell the Flight will be formed.

(c) The Honourable Member will realise that I am in no better position than he is himself to answer this question. I may say, however, that, in the Royal Air Force, it has been found that it takes an officer at least 15 years from the date of his commission to acquire the training, efficiency and experience required to justify his promotion to command an Air Squadron.

PROVISION OF FANS FOR GUARDS IN THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

23. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim (on behalf of Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi) : (a) Are the guards on the East Indian Railway, who have to travel long distances at a stretch in the trains, provided with fans in their vans ?

(b) If not, do Government contemplate considering the question of providing such fans ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No.

(b) Government are not satisfied that there is any necessity for this.

HOURS OF DUTY OF, AND ACCOMMODATION PROVIDED FOR, CONDUCTOR GUARDS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

24. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim (on behalf of Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi) : (a) What are the hours of duty of conductor guards on the East Indian Railway, who generally travel in night trains ?

(b) If there is no provision for specific accommodation, do Government propose to consider the desirability of providing such accommodation?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) From 6 to 8½ hours.

(b) Government consider it impracticable to provide special compartments for Conductor Guards in trains composed of non-corridor carriages.

DEFECTIVE LAVATORY ARRANGEMENTS PROVIDED FOR GUARDS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

25. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim (on behalf of Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi) : (a) Are the commodos provided for railway guards sufficiently protected from public gaze? If not, do Government propose to take steps to rectify the defect?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The answer to the first part of the question is, I understand, in the affirmative. The second does not arise.

INCOME AND EXPENDITURE OF THE TRUNK TELEPHONE SYSTEM.

26. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim (on behalf of Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi) : (a) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the income and the expenditure on the trunk telephone system?

(b) Is it a fact that in some cases it is cheaper to use the telephone than to send an inland telegraphic message?

(c) What is the minimum charge for a call on the trunk telephone system?

(d) Should the expenditure on the trunk telephone system be more than the income? Are Government prepared to take steps to make the telephone system pay its own way by fixing the minimum charge for a telephone call at annas 12, the minimum charge for sending an ordinary telegram?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) The income derived from trunk call fees during 1927-28 was Rs. 10,50,771. The expenditure on the trunk telephone system cannot be furnished separately, as the lines are used for other purposes also.

(b) Yes.

(c) Three annas for a radial distance of 12½ miles.

(d) No. The existing system is similar to the systems in force in other countries.

PROVISION OF WIRE NETTING FOR WINDOWS OF THE WESTERN HOSTEL, NEW DELHI.

27. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim (on behalf of Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi) : (a) Are Government aware that the windows of the Western Hostel, New Delhi, are dangerously situated, being much too low and practically on the same level as the bedsteads in the different rooms?

(b) Do Government propose to wirenet these windows to prevent accidents happening?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). Government are aware that there are some bed-rooms in the Western Hostel which have sills which are 24½ inches from the floor level, but they do not consider them dangerous. A bar will, however, be put across the windows at a height of 3 feet for the benefit of residents who may experience a feeling of vertigo when looking out of the windows. (Laughter.)

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is the Honourable Member aware of the fact that most of the rooms on the ground floor of Western Hostel have no windows and are in consequence very unhealthy? In other words, it is a question of pure air in the rooms versus thefts of Members' property?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I submit, Sir, that that question does not arise out of the main question. If the Honourable Member will kindly put down that question on paper, I shall give it the most serious consideration possible. (Hear, hear.)

NUMBER OF THEFTS COMMITTED IN NEW DELHI DURING THE LAST ASSEMBLY SESSION.

28. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim (on behalf of Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi) : (a) Are Government aware that thefts and burglaries are very common in New Delhi, especially in the latter part of the Assembly Session?

(b) Will Government be pleased to lay a statement on the table showing the number of thefts committed in New Delhi during the last Session, making it clear at the same time as to how many of such thefts have been detected?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) There has been a regrettable number of thefts and burglaries in New Delhi, and this year, certainly, they were specially numerous during the latter part of the Assembly Session.

(b) During the last Session there were 41 true cases of theft within the New Delhi Police Station. Of these, 15 cases have been sent for trial; in 7 cases convictions were obtained; in one the accused was acquitted; and 7 cases were still pending on the 9th of August.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are these burglaries in any way connected with the presence of Honourable Members of this House there? (Laughter.)

APPOINTMENT OF WHOLE-TIME LAWYERS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

29. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim (on behalf of Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi) : (a) Will Government be pleased to lay a statement on the table showing the number of counsels, solicitors and vakils retained by the East Indian Railway, specifying at the same time the stations at which these gentlemen work?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if any of these lawyers are whole-time men?

(c) If the lawyers are not whole-time men, are Government prepared to consider the desirability of maintaining whole-time men ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). The East Indian Railway retain three Counsel at Calcutta.

As solicitors the Railway Administration employ a firm established in Calcutta, but no retainer is paid.

No vakils are retained either in the Calcutta or in the mofussil courts. Where legal proceedings are not conducted by Government advocates or Government pleaders, the Railway Administration selects other pleaders or vakils. These are not specially retained by the Administration. The staff of the Agent's office includes one vakil, who is a whole-time servant of the railway.

(c) The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that the existing arrangements are satisfactory. Government see no reason to alter them.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : What is the average annual amount of money paid by the East Indian Railway to its legal advisers ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am afraid I did not catch the question, Sir.

Mr. President : Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim.

PROVISION OF SAFER DOORS TO CARRIAGES ON THE BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA AND EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAYS.

30. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim (on behalf of Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi) : (a) Are Government aware that the doors of railway carriages on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India and Eastern Bengal Railways open outwards and are most dangerous from the point of view of public safety ?

(b) Do Government propose to take steps to rectify this ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government are aware that the doors of many of the carriages on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India and Eastern Bengal Railways open outwards ; but they are informed that, on most of the railways on the Continent of Europe and Great Britain, the arrangement is the same ; and they cannot therefore agree that such doors are dangerous from the point of view of public safety.

PROVISION OF FANS IN INTERMEDIATE AND THIRD CLASS COMPARTMENTS OF STATE RAILWAYS.

31. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim (on behalf of Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi) : (a) Are Government aware that passengers travelling in intermediate and third class carriages are subjected to great hardships owing to the want of fans ?

(b) Do Government propose to take steps to provide fans in the intermediate and third class compartments in all the State Railways ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I would refer the Honourable Member to the replies given by Mr. Parsons to Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan's questions Nos. 1160 and 1161 on the 25th March 1927.

ACTION OF CERTAIN RAILWAY SERVANTS, CAUSING DISCOMFORT TO THE WIFE AND FAMILY OF KHWAJA HASAN NIZAMI SAHIB AT THE DELHI RAILWAY STATION.

32. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to an editorial note published in the Himmat of Lucknow, dated the 23rd June 1929 (page 3), relating to the misbehaviour of one Hindu and two Anglo-Indian railway servants towards the famous religious leader and distinguished author of the day, namely, Khwaja Hasan Nizami Sahib, at the Delhi Railway Station ?

(b) Is it a fact that the wife and children of the Khwaja Sahib were removed from a second class compartment in order to make room for some Anglo-Indian ladies ?

(c) Is it also a fact that one of the children, who was removed from the compartment, was ill and that it caused him great trouble to be removed from one compartment to another ?

(d) Is it also a fact that the Khwaja Sahib had a five-seated second class compartment reserved three days before he started on his journey ?

(e) What steps were taken by the railway authorities against the servants concerned and if none, why not ?

(f) Are Government prepared to inquire into the matter and furnish a satisfactory answer ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) to (d). The information furnished by the Agent of the North Western Railway shows that Khwaja Hasan Nizami Sahib wrote to the Station Superintendent, Delhi, on the 5th June for six second class berths to be reserved for him on 7th June from Delhi to Hyderabad (Deccan), and that a reply was sent to him the same day saying that the accommodation would be reserved if available, but could not be guaranteed.

On arrival of the train at Delhi 12 second class berths were available, eight in one compartment and four in another. Reservations had been booked at Delhi for 16 berths in all. The compartment with 8 berths was labelled as reserved for a party of 9 who had applied for reservation prior to Khwaja Hasan Nizami Sahib, but it was occupied by the Khwaja Sahib's party before the arrival of the passengers for whom it had been reserved, the Khwaja Sahib apparently not having noticed that the reservation label bore another person's name.

The Station Master was sent for and explained that the compartment had been reserved for another party, and that those for whom second class accommodation was not available could be accommodated in the first class on payment of the difference of fares.

The station staff state that it was not brought to their notice that one of the children was ill.

(e) The Divisional Superintendent, North Western Railway, Delhi, investigated the matter and found that the Khwaja Sahib's party were accommodated to the best advantage in the circumstances, and that there was no irregularity committed by the station staff, and an explanatory reply was sent on 18th July to a letter of complaint which had been received by the Divisional Superintendent.

(f) It does not appear that any further inquiry by Government is necessary.

(c) If the lawyers are not whole-time men, are Government prepared to consider the desirability of maintaining whole-time men ?

NUMBER OF NOTICES ISSUED TO REGISTERED FIRMS FOR RENEWALS IN SIND
IN THE YEARS 1927-28 AND 1928-29.

36. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to state the number of cases in the years 1927-28 and 1928-29, in all Income-tax offices in Sind in which, in pursuance of the instructions given to them by the Central Board of Revenue (as stated in answer to paragraph 1 of my question No. 139 put on 5th September 1928), they issued notices to the registered firms for renewals ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : In order that I may be able to answer this question clearly it is necessary for me to explain the present position which is as follows :

With the object of saving firms from losing the privilege of registration through oversight, the Central Board of Revenue issued orders in 1926 incorporating, in the form of notice calling for the return of income, an additional paragraph which runs :

" If you wish your firm registered or re-registered under section 2 (14) of the Act and rules 2 to 6, an application signed by one or more of the partners, in the form and with the accompaniments prescribed in the rules, may be submitted at any time before the assessment is made. It is desirable, however, that it should accompany your return of income."

This notice is, therefore, issued in all cases.

The Board also issued instructions to the effect that, where a firm which had been registered in the previous year did not submit an application with its return of income for renewal of registration, the Income-tax Officer should ascertain whether the omission was intentional. No special procedure was prescribed for doing this, it being left to the discretion of the Income-tax Officer how he should satisfy himself that the omission to apply for registration was intentional.

It will be observed that this additional instruction to the Department was not to the effect that a second notice should be issued asking whether the firm desired to be registered, but to the effect that the Income-tax Officer should ascertain and satisfy himself that firms which had not applied for renewal of registration did in fact not wish to be re-registered. The Government have, as a result of inquiries made since this question was put, ascertained that the orders of the Board were misconstrued in Sind and that the amendment of the notice calling for a return of income was interpreted as cancelling the orders (issued a few days earlier) that the Income-tax Officer should personally ascertain from the assessee whether the omission to apply for registration was intentional. The Government regret that this error was not previously brought to light and suitable instructions for its correction have now been issued.

Mr. E. L. Price : I want to ask a supplementary question, Sir. I understood Sir George Schuster to say that the firms have to supply the Income-tax Officer merely with a statement. May I inform Sir George Schuster that the Income-tax Department in Karachi always insist on the actual stamped partnership deed, which is a sort of document that people are unwilling to part with for long periods. I have known.....

Mr. President : Order, order. The Honourable Member must put a supplementary question and not make a statement.

NUMBER OF FIRMS IN SIND NOT GIVEN THE BENEFIT OF REGISTRATION FOR WANT OF APPLICATIONS IN THE YEARS 1927-28 AND 1928-29.

37. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing separately, for the years 1927-28 and 1928-29, for the "A" and "B" Divisions of Karachi City and the other charges of the respective Income-tax offices in Sind, the number of "registered firms" which were not given the benefit of registration in these years for want of applications for "renewals" ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : A statement is laid on the table.

Statement showing number of registered firms which were not given the benefit of registration for want of applications for renewals in Sind during 1927-28 and 1928-29.

| Name of Circle.       | 1927-28. | 1928-29. |
|-----------------------|----------|----------|
| Karachi . . . . .     | 14       | 15       |

RETENTION FOR LONG PERIODS BY INCOME-TAX OFFICERS OF PARTNERSHIP DEEDS SENT TO THEM FOR REGISTRATION.

38. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what instructions have been issued to the Income-tax Officers regarding the custody of deeds of partnership forwarded by firms for registration under section 2 (14) of the Act and rules framed under section 59 ?

(b) Are Government aware that the partnership deeds are retained by Income-tax Officers for long periods even after the assessment matters of "registered firms" have been decided ?

(c) Do Government propose to issue instructions that they should be returned early ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) It is not clear what the Honourable Member means by the word "custody", that is, whether "safe-keeping" or "retention", a matter referred to in parts (b) and (c) of the question. If the word is used in the former sense, no rules have been issued nor, so far as the Government are aware, are any necessary. If in the latter sense, the Honourable Member is referred to rules 3 and 4 of the Indian Income-tax Rules which lay down that when an application for registration is made the assessee must present either the original deed of partnership, together with a copy, or a certified copy of the deed, together with a copy. After entering on the original deed or the certified copy a certificate in a prescribed form, and after signing and dating such certificate, the original deed or the certified copy must be returned to the assessee, the copy or duplicate copy, as the case may be, being retained by the Income-tax Officer.

(b) and (c). The Government of India are not aware that the rules on the subject are not being followed, and they have therefore no reason for issuing any instructions in the matter. But, if the Honourable Member knows of any definite case in which an Income-tax Officer has not observed the rules, they would be glad if he would bring it to the notice of the Commissioner of Income-tax concerned.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : What I meant by the word "custody" was keeping back in their possession. The partnership deeds are kept for a long time in possession of the Income-tax Officers and that causes.....

Mr. President : Order, Order. What is the question ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : The question is why they should be allowed to be kept. In any case, is the Honourable Member prepared to give instructions to the Income-tax Officers to return them as soon as they possibly can ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I think I may say that, in my answer, I dealt with every conceivable alternative interpretation of the Honourable Member's question, and I have already told him that if he knows of any definite case in which deeds have been kept longer than they should have been kept, I should be very glad if he would bring it to my notice so that suitable instructions could be issued.

NUMBER OF APPLICATIONS UNDER SECTION 27 OF THE INCOME-TAX ACT RECEIVED IN EACH OF THE INCOME-TAX OFFICES IN SIND IN 1927-28 AND 1928-29.

39. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to state for each of the Income-tax offices in Sind how many applications under section 27 of the Act were received during the years 1927-28 and 1928-29 and how many of these were rejected ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : A statement is laid on the table.

NUMBER OF NOTICES, ASSESSMENTS AND APPEALS IN CERTAIN CASES IN EACH OF THE INCOME-TAX OFFICES IN SIND IN 1927-28 AND 1928-29.

40. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to obtain and lay on the table a statement for each of the Income-tax offices in Sind the following information for each of the two years, 1927-28 and 1928-29 :

- Number of assesseees to whom notices under section 22 (2) were issued—Hindus, Mahomedans, Christians and others ;
- Number of cases in which assessments were made by Income-tax Officers under section 23 (4)—Hindus, Mahomedans, Christians and others ; and
- Number of cases in which appeals were filed—Hindus, Mahomedans and Christians—and how many were decided in favour of the appellants ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I regret that I cannot comply with the Honourable Member's request. The compilation of the statistics asked for would involve a very considerable waste of time for the officials concerned and would not be justified in the public interest. I am unable, therefore, to direct that it be undertaken.

SHORT NOTICE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

ALLEGED UNDERTAKING GIVEN BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE, REGARDING THE PUBLIC SAFETY BILL.

Diwan Chaman Lall : (1) Will Government state whether any undertaking was given to the Secretary of State for India on behalf of the Government of India in regard to the Public Safety Bill as stated in the Press ?

(2) Will Government state whether it is a fact that the Secretary of State for India sanctioned the change in the rules governing the conduct of business of the Legislative Assembly relating to the power of the President to prevent or delay the making or discussion of a motion relating to a Bill, on the express understanding that the Public Safety Bill would not be proceeded with ?

(3) Will Government state whether it is their intention to proceed with the Public Safety Bill ? If the reply to this question is in the negative, will Government state whether the situation in India has so altered as to make it unnecessary for the Government to proceed with the Public Safety Bill, and whether, and if so what, circumstances have arisen under which the Government have been compelled to alter their decision to proceed with the Public Safety Bill ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (1) and (2). I am not aware of the statement in the Press to which the Honourable Member refers ; but if the alleged undertaking is that mentioned in part 2 of the question, the reply is that no such condition was suggested or imposed.

(3) Government are advised that the ruling of the Honourable the President, given on 11th of April 1929, is still operative and precludes the resumption of the discussion of the motion that the present Bill, at present book through to Ootacamund and travel first class on the Mountain Railway without extra charge.

(d) to (g). Lavatory accommodation is not provided on any of the rolling stock on the Nilgiri Railway owing to the limited number of coaches and passenger accommodation rendered necessary by the steep grades on this line, but lavatories are provided at Mettupalaiyam, Hillgrove, Coonoor and Ootacamund stations, the run between these stations being 1½ hours, 1 hour and 1¼ hours, respectively. I am informed that the question of providing lavatory accommodation both in first and third class carriages was again considered recently; but owing to the resulting reduction in seating accommodation, which in the busy season is barely sufficient, and to the fact that lavatories are provided at the above mentioned stations, such provision in the coaches was not considered necessary.

PROVISION OF SUITABLE WAITING ROOMS FOR PILGRIMS AND FOR FIRST AND SECOND CLASS PASSENGERS AT PALNI STATION ON THE SOUTH INDIAN RAILWAY.

3. Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : (1) Are Government aware :

(a) that during the festivals at Palni station on the South Indian Railway low thatched sheds are erected to accommodate passengers ?

(b) that the said sheds are not cleaned or swept ?

(c) that the ordinary waiting room for third class passengers does not accommodate the pilgrims even on ordinary days ?

(2) Are Government prepared to take steps to construct a large waiting room for the pilgrims who go to Palni by train ? If not, why not ?

(3) Are Government aware that there is no waiting room for 1st and 2nd class passengers in Palni station ? Do Government propose to construct one ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. B. Rau : 1. (a) From information furnished by the Agent of the South Indian Railway, it has been ascertained that during festival times thatched sheds are erected for the accommodation of the pilgrims and that these sheds are sufficiently high for the convenience of the occupants.

(b) Special sweepers are appointed to keep these sheds clean and they are swept out each time the pilgrims vacate them.

(c) A new station building is to be built at Palni and will include a 3rd class waiting hall large enough for ordinary requirements.

2. In addition a large permanent waiting hall for use during festival times is being provided.

3. The arrangements in the new station which is to be constructed, include a waiting room for 1st and 2nd class passengers.

NUMBER OF STOCK RAISED, AND COST OF ADMINISTRATION OF THE ARMY REMOUNT DEPÔT AT SARGODHA.

4. Sardar Gulab Singh : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing year by year, since 1906, in the Sargodha Colony of the Circle Army Remount :

- (1) what number of young stock had been produced by the Ghoripal zamindars yearly ;
- (2) what number of young stock had been purchased by the Government and what number refused and for what reasons ;
- (3) what was the amount of fines imposed yearly on Ghoripals on account of negligence in their duties ;
- (4) what amount of land was resumed temporarily on remount complaints yearly ;
- (5) what amount of land was resumed due to the remount complaint and given on lease and what amount of this lease money is credited to the Government and what amount paid to the tenants ;
- (6) what amount of land was given yearly on lease to minors and were all such minors paid their lease money at the time of their attaining their majority ;
- (7) what amount of money has the Circle Army Remount, Sargodha, been spending yearly since 1906 ;
- (8) what amount of canal land has been given to the Army Remount, Sargodha, to support and what is the annual income therefrom ;
- (9) is there one, Malik Alam Sher, an Indian Officer, who has been working for the last four or five years in the Circle Army Remount Depôt, Sargodha, and are Government aware of the fact that the zamindars are discontented with his behaviour ? If so, why has he not been transferred as yet under the three years' rule of transfer ;
- (10) is there one, Ilam Din, an Inspector, who has been working in the Sargodha Colony for the last 20 years ? If so, why has he not been transferred as yet ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (1) to (7). The collection of the information required would involve a minute search into voluminous records extending over a period of 23 years and would entail an amount of time and labour which, in the opinion of Government, would not be commensurate with the result.

(8) Unless the Honourable Member can specify the land he refers to with more precision, I am afraid I cannot give him the information he requires.

(9) The answer to the first portion is in the affirmative. Government have received no complaints from the zamindars regarding this officer's behaviour. The concluding portion of the question does not arise, but I may inform the Honourable Member that there is no rule under which Indian officers of the Army Remount Department must be transferred after they have completed 3 years in one appointment.

(10) Yes. He has been retained in his present appointment for administrative reasons.

AMOUNT OF MONEY EXACTED FOR LAND BY THE MILITARY AUTHORITIES FROM THE GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY.

5. Mr. E. L. Price : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) whether before the Government of India Act (1919) the Military Department ever received money for lands from the Civil Department ;
- (b) what moneys the Military Department has exacted for lands from the Government of Bombay since the Government of India Act (1919) came into operation ; and
- (c) how such moneys have been accounted for in the Budget, i.e., whether they have been shown as actual receipts or only utilised to reduce the gross military expenditure published ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) When transfers of land took place before 1919, the rules provided for payments to be made from Imperial to Provincial revenues, and vice versa, with due regard to the circumstances in which the occupation of the property originated and to the expense which the transferring Government had to incur as a direct consequence of the transfer. Under these rules I have no doubt that instances occurred in which the Military Department received payment for lands transferred to local Governments.

(b) Since 1919, and the separation of Central and Provincial revenues that then took place, the rules regulating the transfer of land between the Central and Provincial Governments have necessarily taken a more commercial complexion. There have been many transactions since 1919 both in lands, and also in lands and buildings, between the Government of India and the Government of Bombay. I have attempted to ascertain the amount received by each party as a result of these transactions, but I find that it would be impossible to give figures without a very great deal of labour. I may, however, assure the Honourable Member that there has never been any question of exacting money from the Government of Bombay. No Local Government can be compelled to assume possession of land against its will, and if the Government of India have received considerable sums from the Government of Bombay for surrendered land, it is equally true that the Government of Bombay have received large amounts from the Government of India for land acquired by them.

(c) When money is received by the Government of India in return for the surrender of military land and buildings, it is either credited to a special account, which is drawn upon as required to provide funds for expenditure on new buildings elsewhere, or in some cases, with the concurrence of the Local Government, a Special Land Exchange Scheme is agreed upon, under which the proceeds of a particular surrender are devoted to the provision of a particular new site and the erection of the necessary buildings thereon. The special account referred to is maintained outside the Army Estimates, but any withdrawals from it are displayed on the receipt side of the Budget. In the same way, expenditure under any special Land Exchange Scheme is shewn on the expenditure side of the Budget and is counterbalanced by equivalent payments shewn either on the receipt side, or by deduction from expenditure. In other words, the gross military expenditure and receipts are increased, while the net grant remains unaffected.

UTILISATION OF PROFITS EARNED BY CANTONMENTS.

6. Mr. E. L. Price : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) whether cantonments are administered as profit-earning concerns generally or only in Karachi ; and
- (b) how such profits are accounted for in the Budget, i.e., whether they are shown as actual receipts or only utilised to reduce the gross military expenditure published ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) No cantonment is administered as a profit-earning concern, but every cantonment like every other municipal administration, is expected to be self-supporting so far as possible.

(b) Cantonment Funds are local funds administered by local self-governing bodies known as Cantonment Authorities. They are not Government funds and do not therefore appear in any shape or form in the Military Budget. Any surplus in the Cantonment Fund is available for expenditure on the needs of the cantonment ; while Government are under an obligation, in certain circumstances, to make good any deficit by giving the cantonment a grant-in-aid.

LEVY OF TERMINAL TAXES.

7. Mr. E. L. Price : Will Government be pleased to state whether any final conclusions have been reached by Government on the recommendations of the Taxation Inquiry Committee in regard to the levy of terminal taxes ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The position with regard to the levy of terminal tax by a Municipal Committee has recently been dealt with in letter No. 133-L.S.G., dated 2nd August 1929, from the Government of India, Department of Education, Health and Lands, to the Government of the Punjab, which has presumably been seen by the Honourable Member by now. As explained therein, previous sanction of the Governor General in Council to the imposition of terminal tax by a municipality is only necessary when the tax is first imposed in a local area in which octroi was not levied on or before the 6th July 1917. In other cases, the Local Governments are themselves competent to sanction or refuse to sanction the proposed tax. The Government of India cannot interfere in the matter under Devolution Rule 49, as, under this rule, they can exercise their powers of superintendence, direction and control only for certain limited purposes. The question whether any, and if so, what, changes are required in the present constitutional position in regard to the levy of octroi and terminal taxation by local bodies has been referred by the Government of India to the Indian Statutory Commission (vide paragraphs 10 to 24 of Part B of the Memorandum presented by the Government of India to the Statutory Commission, on the subject of the financial relations between the Government of India and the Provincial Governments). The Government of India do not propose to take any further action in the matter at present. They must wait until the Statutory Commission have made their recommendations as to the future financial relations between the Central Government and the Provincial Governments and until the outlines of the future constitution have been settled.

APPOINTMENT OF SIKHS TO THE INDIAN FOREST SERVICE.

8. Sardar Gulab Singh : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many Sikhs were qualified in the Indian Forest Service examinations held by the Public Service Commission during the last two years ?

(b) If it is true that one or more Sikhs were qualified, is it a fact that none was selected as a probationer by nomination for the purpose of adjusting communal inequality ?

(c) If no Sikh was in fact selected as such, will Government be pleased to state to which community the selected candidates belonged ?

(d) Is it a fact that the qualified Sikh was equally entitled to be selected by nomination last year ?

(e) Do Government propose to see that the rights of the Sikhs are not in future overlooked by the Government in the Indian Forest Service, and will Government be pleased to state if any qualified Sikh is likely to be selected by nomination in the said service this year ?

(f) Is it a fact that no Sikh is a member of the Public Service Commission, and if so, will Government be pleased to state how the interests of the Sikhs are being safeguarded in that body ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) None in 1927 and one in 1928.

(b) Yes.

(c) The candidate selected in 1927 was a Muslim and the one selected in 1928 an Anglo-Indian.

(d) The mere fact that a candidate has attained the qualifying standard does not confer on him a right to be selected. In this connection the Honourable Member's attention is invited to part IV of the Indian Forest Service (Recruitment) Rules, 1928, published with Government of India notification No. 592, dated the 2nd May 1928.

(e) The rights of all minor communities are carefully considered before nomination is made. As regards the second part of the question, Government are unable to make a statement, as the result of the competitive examination held in July last is an important factor and is not yet known.

(f) Yes. The Commission is an impartial body which may be relied upon to pay the fullest regard to all interests entrusted to it.

NUMBER OF MUHAMMADANS APPOINTED AS ASSISTANT SURGEONS ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

9. Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many appointments of Assistant Surgeons have been made by the Eastern Bengal Railway this year ?

(b) How many of them are Muhammadans ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Six.

(b) One.

PAY OF CLERKS IN DEPARTMENTS UNDER THE CENTRAL BOARD OF REVENUE, BOMBAY.

10. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware :

(a) that the clerical time-scales of pay in all the Imperial Government Departments in Bombay, except those under the Central Board of Revenue, have been revised since 1923 ;

(b) that the representation from the clerical staff of the Departments in Bombay under the Central Board of Revenue for a revision of their time-scale of pay has recently been refused by the Central Board of Revenue ; and

(c) that the conditions of service and locality are the same for all the clerical staffs whether under the Central Board of Revenue or in other Departments of the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) If by conditions of service and locality the Honourable Member means the places in which the staff reside and the method of travel to and from their work, the answer is in the affirmative. On the other hand the Government are not prepared to accept the further implication that the nature of the duties to be performed or the qualifications required are the same as in other Central Departments.

PAY OF CLERKS IN DEPARTMENTS UNDER THE CENTRAL BOARD OF REVENUE, BOMBAY.

11. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware :

(a) that the only reason for refusing to revise the time-scale of pay of the clerical staff in Bombay under the Central Board of Revenue was the ground of comparison with the offices of the Bombay Government ;

(b) that the Local Government have sanctioned a revised scale to the members of the clerical staff in their Secretariat ; and

(c) that similar conditions exist for their clerical staff in their Secretariat as well as in the other Departments in Bombay under the Local Government ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) The reason for refusing to revise the time-scale was that the Government held the existing scale to be adequate. In reaching this conclusion, they were largely influenced by the comparison to which the question refers.

(b) Even if the fact is as stated, as to which the Government of India have no precise information, it is not relevant to the case of clerks in departments under the Central Board of Revenue. In determining the pay of these clerks comparison was made with other offices under the Bombay Government and not with the Secretariat. According to the latest information of the Government of India, there has been no revision of pay in the non-Secretariat offices under the Local Government.

(c) As the establishments mentioned in this part of the question belong to the Local Government, that Government has been asked what reply can be given to it. The Honourable Member will be informed of the result as soon as the Local Government has answered the reference.

PAY OF CLERKS IN DEPARTMENTS UNDER THE CENTRAL BOARD OF REVENUE, BOMBAY.

12. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (1) Are Government aware :

- (a) that the Rules governing the services of the clerical employees of the Local Government in Bombay are somewhat different from those of members under the Government of India ; and
- (b) that the scales of pay of clerks in other Imperial Government Departments (except under the Central Board of Revenue) in Bombay, have been revised since 1923, while the request for the revision of pay of the clerical staff in Bombay under the Central Board of Revenue has been negatived for a number of years ?

(2) If the answers to parts (a) and (b) above be in the affirmative, are Government now prepared to take steps to revise the pay of the clerical establishments in Bombay under the control of the Central Board of Revenue ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (1) (a) The meaning of the question is not understood, and the Government of India regret to be unable to reply.

(b) Yes.

(2) The Departments under the Central Board of Revenue were administered through the Agency of the Local Government until taken over directly in recent years (from 1922 with the Income-tax Department to 1926 with the Salt Department) ; and the pay of establishments was naturally fixed with reference to that of other similar establishments under the Local Government. The change in control did not appear to the Government of India to be in itself a justification for a revision of pay. In these circumstances the Government do not consider it desirable to undertake a revision of the rates of pay for the clerical establishments referred to, unless this could be done as a result of a general survey of the rates of pay of clerks in all Departments subordinate to the Central Government to be undertaken in co-operation, with similar surveys by the Provincial Governments.

PAY OF THE MINISTERIAL STAFF OF THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT, BOMBAY.

13. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) Whether it is a fact that they have undertaken to keep the income-tax records strictly confidential ;

- (b) whether it is a fact that such records mostly pass or are being dealt with and are even in charge of the low paid members of the clerical staff ;
- (c) whether it is a fact that, while sanctioning a higher scale of pay to (i) Income-tax Officers, (ii) Examiners of Accounts and (iii) Inspectors in the Bombay City, Government thought that an incumbent adequately paid will not ordinarily be tempted to illicit practices ;
- (d) if the answers to parts (a), (b) and (c) above be in the affirmative, whether Government considered the question that the members of the ministerial staff too should be adequately paid to avoid any prevailing discontent or any consequent malpractice or corruption ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Section 54 (1) of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, provides that income-tax records shall be treated as confidential.

(b) All members of the clerical staff have to deal with assessment records in the ordinary course of their duties.

(c) Special qualifications are required for the assessing staff and their salary is arranged accordingly.

(d) It is the view of the Government of India that the ministerial staff are adequately paid. It is therefore unnecessary to deal with the implication contained in this question, except to state that it casts an unmerited slur on the clerical staff employed in the Income-tax Department.

NUMBER OF ASSESSMENT CASES DEALT WITH IN DIFFERENT PROVINCES, AND PAY OF THE MINISTERIAL STAFF OF THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT.

14. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) the number of assessment cases dealt with by an Income-tax Officer in a year in the several provinces in British India ;
- (b) whether it is a fact that the number of cases decided by an Income-tax Officer in Bombay is far greater than that in other provinces ;
- (c) if the answer to (b) above be in the affirmative, if it is not a fact that this annual turnover is due to the help the Income-tax Officer gets at the hands of his subordinate ministerial staff ; and
- (d) whether Government propose to take steps to remove the injustice by granting the revision of pay applied for by them from time to time ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) The number of assessment cases dealt with by each assessing officer in the year 1928-29 in the several provinces was as follows :

|        |    |    |    |       |
|--------|----|----|----|-------|
| Madras | .. | .. | .. | 1,165 |
| Bombay | .. | .. | .. | 1,563 |

|                   |    |    |    |       |
|-------------------|----|----|----|-------|
| Bengal            | .. | .. | .. | 956   |
| United Provinces  | .. | .. | .. | 741   |
| Punjab            | .. | .. | .. | 1,050 |
| Burma (1927-28)   | .. | .. | .. | 779   |
| Bihar and Orissa  | .. | .. | .. | 735   |
| Central Provinces | .. | .. | .. | 839   |

(b) The figures given above supply the answer to this question.

(c) Income-tax Officers in Bombay are able to deal with a large number of cases because they receive help from Examiners and Inspectors to a greater degree than in other provinces. The clerical staff is not employed to scrutinise the cases or put up notes, other than routine notes relating to such matters as the amount of the tax paid in previous year, the question whether the return of income was punctually received, etc., etc. In some cases they also do the arithmetical calculations in connection with refunds. These duties are of a clerical nature.

(d) The Government are not satisfied that there is any injustice to remove.

INCREASE OF LEAVE RESERVES FOR THE CLERICAL STAFF OF THE CUSTOMS AND INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENTS, BOMBAY.

15. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will Government be pleased to state :

- whether they are aware that the sanctioned strength of leave reserve for the clerical staff in the Customs and Income-tax Departments in Bombay is only about 10 per cent. and 8 per cent. respectively, while that in the Office of the Accountant General, Bombay, and the Bombay Posts and Telegraphs is 18 per cent. of the total staff ;
- whether they are aware that the refusal of leave has been a grievance of the clerical staff of the Bombay Customs Department due to inadequacy of leave reserve ; and
- whether Government intend to take steps to increase the leave reserves at an early date ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) The leave reserve for the clerical staff in the Customs Department in Bombay is over 12 per cent. and in the Income-tax Department about 8 per cent. The leave reserve in the Office of the Accountant General, Bombay, is 12 per cent. ; there is also a training reserve of 5 per cent. The leave reserve in the Posts and Telegraphs Department, Bombay, is 10 per cent. in administrative offices, 17 per cent. in post and telegraph offices and 20 per cent. in the Railway Mail Service sections and offices.

(b) The average number of absentees among the clerical staff of the Bombay Customs Department is about equal to the leave reserve. No case has been reported in which leave has been entirely refused, but owing to a tendency for a number of clerks to apply for leave at the same season of the year, a season in which work is particularly heavy, cases occur in which applicants are, at times, required to postpone their leave pending the return of others to duty. The maximum period of such postponement has been three months, but a more normal figure when leave is not granted immediately is about one month. The fact that such postponements have to occur does not mean that the leave reserve is inadequate, and it must be borne in mind that it is a condition of service as laid down in Fundamental Rule 67 that leave of absence cannot be claimed as of right but must depend upon the exigencies of the public service.

(c) The Government have no present intention of increasing the leave reserves in the Departments named.

GRANT OF EXTRA PAY TO THE CLERICAL STAFF OF THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENTS, BOMBAY, DEALING WITH SPECIAL CASES.

16. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will Government be pleased to state :

- Whether it is a fact that the post of the Senior Income-tax Officer, Bombay City, was created with a special grade of pay to deal with, among other duties, all the companies' assessments and some assessments in which the income exceeded a lakh of rupees ;
- Whether the remaining cases of incomes over a lakh were being dealt with by an Income-tax Officer for the last so many years without any special allowances ;
- Whether the post of the Senior Income-tax Officer (though formally abolished) still continues to exist and will so continue till its vacation by the present incumbent (who has so far completed only 15 years pensionable service) ;
- If the answers to parts (a), (b) and (c) above be in the affirmative, the circumstances in which special pay of Rs. 150 per mensem each came to be sanctioned for these two posts of the Income-tax Officers dealing with the companies' assessments and assessments of incomes over a lakh of rupees, thus causing extra expense to the public revenue ;
- Whether when Government have been pleased to sanction special remuneration for the two posts of Income-tax Officers, they have granted or intend to grant any extra remuneration to the staff who deal with these important cases ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) At the time of the organisation of the present Income-tax Department in Bombay in 1922 the post of Senior Income-tax Officer, with a special rate of pay, was created with the intention that that officer should deal with all the important assessments in Bombay City.

(b) The work involved in the assessments mentioned in the foregoing paragraph was beyond the capacity of a single officer and a second officer with special qualifications was appointed in 1922 on the maximum pay of the post of Income-tax Officer, namely, Rs. 900 per mensem.

(c) Yes.

(d) Experience has shown that there is no justification for the retention of a special appointment like that of Senior Income-tax Officer on a high rate of pay. But there is ample justification for the grant to two

Income-tax Officers in charge of the important assessment work in Bombay City of special pay of Rs. 150 per mensem each on account of the responsible nature of their work. The circumstances were fully explained to the Standing Finance Committee at the time when the special pay was sanctioned. The re-arrangement was proposed as a measure of economy, although its full effect will not be realised until the present Senior Income-tax Officer has vacated his post.

(e) The burden of assessment work falls entirely on the Income-tax Officer and, because it has been thought proper to give higher pay to two Income-tax Officers, there is no reason to give extra remuneration to the staff which is employed under them.

RECRUITMENT OF INCOME-TAX OFFICERS IN BOMBAY.

17. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) Whether it is a fact that some of the Inspectors of Income-tax and Examiners of Accounts in the Bombay Income-tax Office are being taken up to officiate as Income-tax Officers on probation before passing the prescribed examination, and if so the number of those so taken up from (1) Inspectors and (2) Examiners, since 1922 ; and

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government state the reasons for not selecting an equal number of candidates from the Superintendents' cadre ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. The number of Inspectors and Examiners promoted to be Income-tax Officers since 1922 is 11 and 19, respectively, of whom eight men were originally clerks.

(b) Appointments to the post of Income-tax Officer are made at the present time either from a number of officers of the Income-tax Department, whose selection was approved by the Local Government up to the year 1927 but who have not in all cases yet passed the Departmental examination, or from Examiners and Inspectors who have passed that Examination. The qualifications of Superintendents of offices are generally inferior to those of Examiners and Inspectors and they are not now appointed direct to be Income-tax Officers. But they are eligible for promotion as Examiners or Inspectors.

FAILURE OF CERTAIN INCOME-TAX OFFICERS IN THE BOMBAY PRESIDENCY TO PASS THE DEPARTMENTAL EXAMINATION.

18. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) Whether it is a fact that some of the probationary Income-tax Officers in the Income-tax Department, Bombay Presidency, have failed to pass their departmental examination, and if so, whether Government will be pleased to place on the table the names of those who have so failed to pass the test with the number of chances so far given to each ?

(b) Whether it is a fact that these candidates who have failed to pass the test are allowed to officiate as Income-tax Officers, and if so, whether they will be pleased to state why they have not been reverted, as laid down in the Office Manual ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Yes. A statement is laid on the table.

(b) The officers in question are officiating as Income-tax Officers. Such officers are expected to pass the departmental examination within a reasonable time and failure to do so involves their reversion. The time for passing the examination by the higher standard has been extended until the next examination in October or November in the case of the first and second officers on the list, and till April in the case of the third officer. The Office Manual referred to has been prepared for departmental use only. In fact it contains no provision which is necessarily inconsistent with the course being followed in these cases.

REPRESENTATION FOR AN INCREASE OF PAY BY THE SUPERINTENDENTS IN THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT, BOMBAY.

19. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the scales of pay of the Superintendents and Assistant Superintendents in the various Government Departments (both of the Local and Imperial Governments) stationed in Bombay ?

(b) Are Government aware that the maximum of the grade of a Superintendent in the Income-tax Department is much less than in other Departments ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the grounds for granting higher maximum of the grade of pay to an Income-tax Inspector or the Examiner of Accounts than to a Superintendent ?

(d) Are Government aware that the representation from the Superintendents has been recently turned down by the Board ?

(e) If the answer to part (d) above be affirmative, do Government propose to take steps to remove the long-standing grievance of the Superintendents ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) and (b). A statement is laid on the table.

(c) The Superintendent's duties in the Income-tax Department are confined to the supervision of the clerical staff in regard to the observance of the routine work of arranging and maintaining records and registers properly. On the other hand Inspectors and Examiners assist the Income-tax Officer in making assessments. The responsibilities of Examiners and Inspectors are thus greater than those of a Superintendent, and their pay has accordingly been fixed higher than that of a Superintendent.

(d) Yes.

(e) Government believe that the standard of the pay of Income-tax Superintendents represents a fair and just remuneration for their services and do not propose to take any action in the matter.

INCREASE OF PAY OF GOVERNMENT CLERKS IN BOMBAY, OR GRANT OF AN ALLOWANCE TO MEET ENHANCED RENTS.

20. Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) Whether they are aware of the termination of the Rent Act in Bombay since December 1928 ?

(b) Whether they are aware that the revisions of clerical pay in Bombay City in the years 1920-22 were based on the rents prevailing in Bombay at that time ?

(c) Whether they are aware that the rents in Bombay have since increased by 50 per cent. under the amendments of the Rent Act itself ?

(d) Whether they are aware that the middle class servants in Bombay are already contributing about 30 per cent. of their monthly income towards rent when the sanctioned Government percentage is only 10 ?

(e) Whether they are aware that the tendency to further increase in rents owing to the law of supply and demand in the City of Bombay is manifest ?

(f) Whether they are aware that they have sanctioned no increase to enable their middle class servants to meet the enhancements described in parts (c) and (e) above ?

(g) Whether Government had received from the clerical staffs of the Bombay Customs and Income-tax and Salt Departments a resolution urging an increase in pay or grant of an allowance due to abnormal increase in rents ?

(h) Whether Government refused to consider the above request on the ground that the Local Government of Bombay had taken no steps in the matter ?

(i) Whether Government have ascertained the rent particulars from the local heads of offices in Bombay as well as the Local Government ?

(j) If the reply to part (i) be affirmative, then whether Government will be pleased to place the correspondence on the table of the House ?

(k) Whether Government propose to take steps to sanction the necessary increase ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The information asked for is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

PAY OF TEACHERS OF THE GOVERNMENT HIGH SCHOOL, DELHI, AND NAME AND QUALIFICATIONS OF THE HEAD MASTER.

21. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the reason why only 5 out of 21 men have reached the maximum of their scale of pay ? [Vide Government reply to starred question No. 3 (c) in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, regarding "the Pay of the Teachers of the Government High School, Delhi".]

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the name and qualifications of the Head Master of the Government High School, Delhi, and what his pay in September 1922 was when he was appointed, and what his pay now is ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The 16 teachers, other than the five who have reached the maximum, have not reached the maximum of their scale of pay, as none of them has put in the five years' service in their grades which is necessary to reach the maximum.

(b) It is presumed that the Honourable Member asks for information about Rai Sahib L. Ratan Lal who was Headmaster of the Government High School, Delhi, from the 1st September 1922 to the 26th April 1929, on which date he was transferred to the Punjab as Officiating Inspector of Schools, Rawalpindi Division. A statement giving the information is laid on the table.

REPORT ON THE RIKHIKESH-KARANPRAYAG RAILWAY EXTENSION.

22. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the report on the Rikhikesh-Karanprayag extension has been received from the Agent of the East Indian Railway ? (Vide Government reply to starred question No. 14 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, regarding "Provision of a Railway for Convenience of Pilgrims to Badri Narayan".)

(b) If so, will Government please lay a copy of the report on the table ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The report has not yet been received.

SALE OF FRAUDULENT QUININE IN INDIA.

23. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to Government reply to starred question No. 33 (b) in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, regarding "Sale of Fraudulent Quinine in India", will Government be pleased to state if replies from Local Governments have since been received ?

(b) If so, will they please state, for the information of the House, what action has been taken thereon ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given on the 2nd April 1929 to Lieutenant-Colonel Gidney's starred question No. 1350. Replies are still awaited from some local Governments to the letter of the 8th March 1929 from the Government of India in the Department of Education, Health and Lands, in which they were asked if they would agree to the appointment of a small expert committee to inquire into the general problem of the preparation and sale of medicines and drugs. It is intended that the committee, if appointed, should also inquire into the allegations regarding the sale of adulterated quinine.

CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGES MAINTAINED BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

24. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they have collected the information regarding "Christian Orphanages maintained by the Government of India" ? NOTE (1).—In the Central Provinces a scheme has been introduced from the 1st April 1929, subject to the vote of the Legislative Council, for capitation grants of Rs. 18 a year for every orphan above 5, but below 12 years of age who attends a recognised school and is admitted into an Indian orphanage which has been registered for 3 years and which has not got proselytizing as one of its objects.

NOTE (2).—The schools marked * are not orphanages, but orphans of Indian soldiers belonging to the Punjab and the North-West Frontier Province are admitted to them.

REPORT OF THE INDIAN CINEMATOGRAH COMMITTEE.

25. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan: (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they have considered the Report of the Indian Cinematograph Committee and come to a decision?

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar: With your permission, Sir, I propose to reply to this question and also the Honourable Member's question No. 59 together:

(a) The views of Local Governments have been received on some of the recommendations and the Report is under the consideration of Government, who have not yet come to a decision.

(b) Does not arise.

EXPENDITURE INCURRED ON COMMITTEES APPOINTED BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA AND THE EFFECT OF THEIR RECOMMENDATIONS.

26. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the total expenditure incurred on the 34 committees appointed by the Government of India, as referred to in the statement laid on the table in reply to question No. 68 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929 ?

(b) Will Government please lay a statement on the table showing :

- (i) the names of those of the 34 committees referred to in part (a) whose recommendations have been fully given effect to ;
- (ii) the names of those committees whose recommendations have been given effect to only partially ; and
- (iii) the names of those committees, if any, whose recommendations have not been given effect to ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The total cost of the committees referred to was Rs. 38,64,056 approximately.

(b) The information asked for is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

CONSTRUCTION OF A RAILWAY BETWEEN NASIRABAD AND DEOLI.

27. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the results of the survey referred to in their reply to starred question No. 75 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, have been received by the Railway Board ?

(b) If so, will they please state what progress in the matter has been made since then ?

(c) If not, do Government propose to ask the authorities concerned to expedite the matter ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : In view of the heavy construction programme which the Board have in hand at present, it has been decided to postpone for a time the carrying out of the survey for the Nasirabad-Deoli line. This survey is unlikely to be made till the cold weather of 1930-31.

PREVENTION OF SOLIDIFIED VEGETABLE OIL FROM BEING SOLD AS GHEE.

28. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have received replies from the Local Governments, whom they had consulted on the question of " Prevention of Solidified Vegetable Oil from being sold as Ghee " ? [Vide Government reply to starred question No. 113 (c) in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.]

(b) If so, will they please state what steps they propose to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Replies have now been received from all Local Governments. The last reply was received as recently as the 22nd August 1929, but this promises a further communication forwarding the views of an important municipality, which are still awaited by the Local Government.

HIGH RAILWAY FARES ON THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY.

29. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to Government reply to starred question No. 114 (b) and (c) in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, regarding " High Railway Fares on the Bengal Nagpur Railway ", will Government be pleased to state if the Agent, Bengal Nagpur Railway, has arrived at a decision in the matter ?

(b) If so, will Government please communicate the decision to the House ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) Although no general reduction in the basis of passenger fares has been made over the Bengal Nagpur Railway, intermediate and third class week-end return tickets are now issued over the whole line instead of only between selected stations. Third class bazaar-day reduced fares as well as third class special two-day return tickets on certain sections of the line have also been introduced.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO INVESTIGATE CAUSES OF FLOODS.

30. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the report of the expert committee formed for investigating the causes of and remedies for recurring floods has also been submitted to the Government of India ? [Vide Government reply to unstarred question No. 3 (b) in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.]

(b) If so, will copies of the report be made available to the members of the Assembly ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) Copies of the report have been placed in the Library.

SUPPRESSION OF OPIUM-SMOKING IN THE CENTRAL PROVINCES AND BENGAL.

31. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : Will Government please state if the Bill aiming at the ultimate prohibition of opium-smoking has been passed in the Legislative Council, Central Provinces and if the Bengal Government have come to any decision with regard to the suppression of opium-smoking ? [Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 6 (b) and (d) in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.]

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The Central Provinces Opium-Smoking Bill has since been passed into law. The Act came into force in the Central Provinces with effect from the 1st June and in Berar from the 1st July 1929. The legislation proposed by the Bengal Government is still under their consideration.

EXTRA PAY TO POSTAL OFFICIALS FOR WORKING ON SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS.

32. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have now come to any decision on the question of "Extra Pay to Postal Officials for working on Sundays and Holidays" ? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 12 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate to the House the decision arrived at ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : No decision has yet been arrived at.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE ISHURDI-PABNA-SHADHUGANJ RAILWAY.

33. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the report regarding "Construction of the Ishurdi-Pabna-Shadhuganj Railway" which was received from the Railway Board in December 1928 has since been examined ? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 13 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate the result to the House ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Some references have had to be made to the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway. The project is still under consideration.

DACCA-ARICHA RAILWAY.

34. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : With reference to their reply to my unstarred question No. 18 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, will Government be pleased to state when the construction of the line is likely to be taken up ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I would refer the Honourable Member to the answer given to Mr. K. C. Neogy's starred question No. 61 on the same subject.

VISIT OF THE MALARIA COMMISSION OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO INDIA.

35. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have heard anything about the visit of the Malaria Commission of the League of Nations to India since I put my unstarred question No. 14 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929 ?

(b) If so, will they please enlighten the House on the subject ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). The Malaria Commission of the League of Nations has already arrived in India. A copy of its tour programme and a list of members of the Commission have been placed in the Library.

CLOSING OF THE PORT OF CALCUTTA TO HAJ PILGRIMS.

36. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the Port of Calcutta was closed to Haj Pilgrims for some period ?

(b) If so, from which to which year and on what grounds ?

(c) Is it a fact that Haj Pilgrims do not like to sail to Calcutta from Jeddah ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). The port of Calcutta was closed to pilgrim traffic in 1897, when Haj pilgrimage was suspended in order to avert the danger of plague being communicated to Europe. The question of re-opening it was considered by Government from time to time, but had to be dropped in view of the uncertainty as to whether a sufficient number of pilgrims would actually avail themselves of this facility. The port was re-opened to pilgrim traffic in 1926.

(c) Since the port was re-opened in 1926, no ship has returned to Calcutta with pilgrims from the Hedjaz. Government are not aware whether this is due to the disinclination of pilgrims to sail to Calcutta, to a sufficient number of pilgrims not being available at Jeddah at any one time to make it feasible to despatch a direct steamer to Calcutta, or to any other cause. The point is one which will doubtless be investigated by the Haj Enquiry Committee.

UNBOOKED LUGGAGE OF THIRD CLASS PASSENGERS.

37. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the question of unbooked luggage of third class passengers has been discussed with the Central Advisory Council for Railways ? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 22 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House ?

(c) If not, when is the matter expected to come up for discussion ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) This question is on the agenda for the next meeting of the Central Advisory Council, which will be held probably during this month.

CONSTRUCTION OF A RAILWAY BRIDGE OVER THE RIVER GANDAK.

38. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the Railway Board has completed the examination of the project report of the "Construction of the Railway Bridge over the River Gandak" ? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 24 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate the result to the House ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The project has been under reference with the Agent of the Bengal and North Western Railway, and a revised report has now been received and is under examination.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO INQUIRE INTO THE AFFAIRS OF THE DELHI UNIVERSITY.

39. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they have since reached a final decision in the matter of the "Report of the Committee appointed to inquire into the Affairs of the Delhi University" ? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 27 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). The Report has been brought under careful consideration, but as the provisional decisions so far reached involve financial assistance, the inquiries suggested in paragraph 34 of the Report are being instituted. Further action is contingent upon the result of the inquiries and the financial considerations involved.

PARTICULARS OF HAJ COMMITTEES IN INDIA.

40. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) how many Haj Committees there are in British India ;
- (b) whether the Haj Committees are officially recognised bodies ;
- (c) whether they have any powers of control and supervision over the Protectors of pilgrims in the Ports of Calcutta, Karachi and Bombay ;
- (d) the names of the Protectors with their salaries and qualifications, and the number of the subordinate staff of each Protector or with their designations ; and
- (e) whether any of the office-bearers of the Haj Committees are paid ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Information is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

GRANT OF HELP TO THE WIDOW AND FAMILY OF GANPATI AYER, LATE HEAD SORTER IN THE RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE.

41. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have considered and come to a decision in the matter of "Grant of Help to the Widow and Family of Mr. Ganpati Ayer, late Head Sorter, No. 8 Section, Railway Mail Service, Bangalore City" ? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 33 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House ?

(c) If not, how much more time are they likely to take in the decision of the matter ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) to (c). Yes, the case was placed before the Post and Telegraph Compassionate Fund Committee, who decided that no gratuity could be granted. It transpired in the course of inquiry that the person who claimed to be the widow of the deceased official had never been his lawful wife.

ACTION TAKEN IN REGARD TO THE COLLISION ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

42. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : Will Government please state the result of the prosecution of the Station Jamadar in the case of the collision on the Bengal and North Western Railway ? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 34 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

Mr. P. B. Rau : An inquiry has been made and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

APPOINTMENT OF CERTAIN PROBATIONARY SUPERINTENDENTS OF POST OFFICES IN THE BIHAR AND ORISSA POSTAL CIRCLES.

43. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the probationary Superintendents of Post Offices in the Bihar and Orissa Postal Circles, whose names are shown in the statement reproduced in reply to my unstarred question No. 42 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, have been given permanent posts ?

(b) If so, will Government please state where they are posted now and what are their respective salaries ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Of the ten probationary Superintendents referred to in the statement, Nos. 1, 3, 8 and 9 are no longer in the Department. The others have been given permanent posts.

(b) The information asked for is given in the statement below :

| Name and designation.                                                                  | Salary. | Station where posted. |

| (5) Mr. T. P. Scott O'Connor, Superintendent of Post Offices, Mysore Division .. .. .  | 380     | Mysore.               |
| (6) Mr. N. C. Das, Superintendent of Post Offices, Godavari Division .. .. .           | 320     | Rajahmundry.          |

OPENING OF A CITY BOOKING OFFICE AT PATNA.

44. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the Agent of the East Indian Railway has taken any action in the matter of "Opening of a City Booking Office at Patna" ? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 44 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate the result to the House ?

LLOPB(LA)

E

Mr. P. R. Rau : It has been ascertained from the Agent, East Indian Railway, that the matter has been investigated and it is considered that the existing facilities for booking are adequate.

ELECTRIFICATION OF THE KALKA-SIMLA RAILWAY.

45. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the Railway Board have received the report regarding "The Electrification of the Kalka-Simla Railway" from their Consulting Electrical Engineers? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 48 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate the result to the House?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have decided to postpone the investigation of this scheme for the present. The present programme of construction, either sanctioned or awaiting sanction, is so heavy that it is not possible to find room for this electrification scheme, which is probably unlikely to be remunerative.

INCREASE IN THE PAY AND PENSIONS OF GOVERNMENT PEONS AND MENIAL STAFF.

46. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have since considered the question of "Increase in the Pay and Pensions of Government Peons and Menial Staff"? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 56 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) and (b). The matter is still under consideration.

HOUSING CONDITIONS OF WORKMEN IN LILLOOAH.

47. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to Government reply to my unstarred question No. 67 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, regarding "Housing Conditions of Workmen in Lillooah", will Government please state if the inquiry has since been completed and if the Agent of the East Indian Railway and the Railway Board have arrived at a decision in the matter?

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). The question is still under consideration.

INCREASE IN THE SUBSISTENCE ALLOWANCE OF PEONS IN THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

48. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have since reached a final decision in the matter of "Increase in the subsistence allowance of peons in the Telegraph Department"? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 71 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). No final decision has yet been reached.

DISCONTENT AMONG SUBORDINATES OF THE ELECTRICAL BRANCH OF THE POSTAL AND TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

49. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have since reached a final decision in the matter of "Discontent among Subordinates of the Electrical Branch of the Postal and Telegraph Department"? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 73 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : In the original starred question No. 470, asked in the Legislative Assembly on the 11th September 1928, Mr. Joshi referred to the pay and prospects of the subordinate ranks of the Electrical Branch and the conditions of their service under the dual control of the Traffic and Engineering Branches.

It is understood that the Director General has considered the representations and has come to the conclusion that it is not possible for him to make any special recommendations to Government in regard to the men.

Government are satisfied that in the organisation of a large telegraph office a certain amount of dual control is inevitable and they do not consider that such dual control constitutes a disability affecting the efficiency of the Branch.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE ROYAL COMMISSION ON AGRICULTURE.

50. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have come to any decision on all or some of the recommendations of the "Report of the Royal Commission on Agriculture"? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 84 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). Local Governments have been asked to report the action taken by them on the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Agriculture with which they are concerned. When their reports are complete, a consolidated statement showing the action taken both by them and by the Government of India will be laid upon the table of the House. Meanwhile, as regards the important recommendations made by the Royal Commission on Agriculture regarding the establishment of an Imperial Council of Agricultural Research, the Honourable Member is referred to the Resolution issued by the Government of India, Department of Education, Health and Lands, No. 826-Agri., dated May 23rd, 1929, and to the Resolution issued by that Department No. 1316-Agri., dated August 6th, 1929.

AMELIORATION OF LEAVE AND PENSION TERMS OF THE INFERIOR SERVANTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

51. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to Government reply to my unstarred question No. 86 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, will Government please state if they have since considered the question of "Amelioration of Leave and Pension Terms of Inferior Servants of the Government of India" and come to a decision in the matter?

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : In my reply to the question to which the Honourable Member refers I stated that the cost of certain proposals regarding the leave terms of inferior servants was being investigated with a view to ascertaining whether financial considerations would permit of any new expenditure on this account being admitted. I should like now to explain briefly what those proposals were. They were proposals that inferior servants should be given one or other of the following terms :

- (a) One month's leave on full pay per annum, and six months' leave on half-pay during the whole service.
- (b) Fifteen days' leave on full pay per annum, and six months' leave on half-pay during the whole service.
- (c) One month's leave on full pay per annum, and nine months' leave on half-pay during the whole service.
- (d) Fifteen days' leave on full pay per annum, and nine months' leave on half-pay during the whole service.

The Honourable Member is no doubt aware that, even now, inferior servants can get leave, but that it is often difficult to grant them leave because it is not permissible to employ a substitute at extra expense.

In regard to the new proposals which I have mentioned, the extra cost that had to be estimated in each case was the cost of the leave reserve that would have to be created in order to enable that amount of leave to be taken. On a very conservative estimate, it is calculated that the extra cost per annum would be as follows :

- (1) in case (a), Rs. 16 lakhs.
- (2) in case (b), Rs. 9½ lakhs.
- (3) in case (c), Rs. 17 lakhs, and
- (4) in case (d), Rs. 10 lakhs.

I fear that these figures are so large as to make it very difficult to finance any of the alternative schemes in the present state of finances of the Government of India. The matter will, in any case, have to be postponed until an additional financial margin can be created.

2. As regards pensions, I stated in that reply that the Government of India were inquiring of Local Governments what action they have taken, or propose to take, since it was important that in a matter of this kind the practice should be uniform. The replies of the Local Governments were only recently received, and show that most Local Governments are still considering the matter. The question is therefore still pending so far as the Government of India are concerned. Meantime, however, it is proposed that the temporary increases of small pensions, the term of sanction of which expires on the 31st October 1929, should be continued for a further two years. The Secretary of State has accorded his sanction, and the proposal is now awaiting the approval of the Standing Finance Committee.

FURTHERANCE OF MEDICAL RESEARCH AND PUBLIC HEALTH IN INDIA.

52. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have come to any decision in the matter of "Furtherance of Medical Research and Public Health in India"? [Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 88 (c) and (d) in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.]

(b) If so, will they please communicate to the House the decision arrived at?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to parts (b) and (c) of the starred question No. 14 asked to-day by Messrs. Kelkar and Neogy, Dr. Moonje and Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla.

RAISING THE RESERVE OF NURSES IN INDIA.

53. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have since reached any decision in the matter of "Raising the Reserve of Nurses in India"? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 91 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) No, Sir.

(b) Does not arise.

RECRUITMENT TO THE CENTRAL SERVICES.

54. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the Secretary of State and the Government of India have since considered the rules regarding "Recruitment to the Central Services"? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 94 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please state when the same may be expected to be issued?

The Honourable Sir James Ormerod : Rules making a formal delegation of powers are still under the consideration of the Government of India and the Secretary of State and it is not possible yet to say when they will be issued.

WORKING HOURS OF OFFICIALS OF THE SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT OF THE GENERAL POST OFFICE, CALCUTTA.

55. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to Government reply to my unstarred question No. 96 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, on the subject of "Working Hours of the Officials of the Savings Bank Department of the General Post Office, Calcutta", will the Government be pleased to state if their inquiry in the matter has since been completed?

(b) If so, will they please communicate the result of their inquiry to the House?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) The result of the inquiry was communicated to Rai Bahadur Tarit Bhusan Roy in March 1929 and a copy of the communication has been placed in the Library of the House.

INDIAN TRADE COMMISSIONERS ABROAD.

56. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the question of appointing "Indian Trade Commissioners abroad" has since been decided? (Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 100 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The question of appointing Indian Trade Commissioners abroad is still under consideration.

OPENING OF A BROAD GAUGE RAILWAY BETWEEN JAKHAL AND SIRSA.

57. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to the Government reply to my unstarred question No. 106 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, regarding "Opening of a Broad Gauge Railway between Jakhal and Sirsa, via Fatehabad", will Government please state if the results of the survey are ready now?

(b) If so, will they please state when the construction of the line is likely to be taken up?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The survey report has not yet been received.

GRIEVANCES OF PILGRIMS TO HEDJAZ.

58. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to Government reply to my unstarred question No. 113 (2), (8) and (5) in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, on the subject of "Grievances of Pilgrims to Hedjaz", will Government be pleased to state if they have completed their inquiries into the matter?

(b) If so, will they please communicate the result of their inquiries to the House?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) Part 2 of unstarred question No. 113 : Complaints have been received that the firewood supplied by shipping companies is either cut into pieces of unsuitable size or not cut at all. The matter is being investigated by the Haj Inquiry Committee.

Part 3 : Complaints were received in the past by the authorities at Bombay regarding the bad latrine arrangements on the S.S. "Shuja".

and the S.S. "Inataba". These boats are, however, no longer employed in pilgrim traffic.

The allegation that latrines are exposed to the view of those outside is not correct.

As regards the scavenging arrangements, a complaint was received in 1927 that latrines on the S.S. "Zayani" and the S.S. "Akbar" were not clean. On inquiry, however, it was found that the use by pilgrims of mud and stones for toilet purposes was largely responsible for choking the outlets.

Part 5 : No complaints have been received that the doctor on any pilgrim ship has refused to give medicines. The question whether it is necessary to prescribe a rule requiring the doctor to attend to urgent cases at all hours will be considered by the Haj Inquiry Committee.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE CINEMATOGRAH COMMITTEE.

59. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to Government reply to my unstarred question No. 120 (b) in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, on the subject of "Recommendations of the Cinematograph Committee", will Government be pleased to state if they have since secured the views of the Local Governments and arrived at a final decision in the matter?

(b) If so, will they please communicate their decision to the House?

SUICIDE OF MR. LALKHAN, AN AGENT OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA IN THE NORTH WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

60. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have completed their inquiry in the matter of "Suicide of Mr. Lalkhan, an Agent of the Government of India in the North West Frontier Province"? (Vide Government reply to unstarred question No. 128 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate the result of their inquiry to the House?

Sir Denys Bray : The inquiry which has been completed, has failed to trace Mr. Lal Khan, and nothing is known of his reported suicide.

COMFORT OF THIRD CLASS PASSENGERS ON INDIAN RAILWAYS.

61. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the Central Advisory Council has since discussed the question of "Comfort of Third Class Passengers on Indian Railways"? [Vide Government reply to my unstarred question No. 129 (b) in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929.]

(b) If so, will they please communicate to the House the decision arrived at?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The following matters more particularly appertaining to the comfort of third class passengers were discussed at the last meeting of the Central Advisory Council on the 16th February 1929. As a result of the discussion, the following action has been taken by the Railway Board :

For answer to this question, see answer to unstarred question No. 25.

- (a) Supply of drinking water for passengers : Agents of railways have been advised that, if possible, arrangements should be made to carry water on trains in special compartments, and that it is desirable to locate water taps at stations under shelter, preferably in 3rd class waiting halls.
- (b) Lack of waiting sheds and high level platforms at certain roadside stations : Railways have been asked to work to a definite programme for the construction of more waiting sheds and high level platforms and to report progress annually.
- (c) Lack of benches for passengers : Railway Administrations have been advised not to relax their attention in the matter and to continue to increase the number of benches wherever it is necessary.
- (d) Confusion and overcrowding at booking office windows and difficulty in purchasing tickets : Railway Administrations have been advised that the best means to improve the arrangements at booking offices lies in the provision of additional booking clerks, in opening more booking offices in cities and extra booking offices at stations, and in the provision of extra windows at existing booking offices ; also that it is very desirable to improve the efficiency of booking clerks. The Agents of railways have again been requested to see that the orders regarding the timely opening of booking offices are strictly enforced, and that surprise checks are frequently made by inspecting officers.

INTRODUCTION OF A BILL FOR THE INSTITUTION OF AN ALL-INDIA ACCOUNTANCY BOARD.

62. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to Government reply to my unstarred question No. 131 in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, will Government please state if replies have been received from Local Governments on the subject of "Introduction of a Bill for the Institution of an All-India Accountancy Board" ?

(b) If so, will they please state if they propose to introduce legislation in the present Simla Session ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) All replies have now been received and are under consideration. A printed copy of the replies has been placed in the Library.

(b) It will not be possible to introduce legislation during the present Simla Session.

INTRODUCTION OF AN EXAMINATION FOR THE TRAFFIC BRANCH OF THE POST OFFICE.

APPOINTMENT OF INDIAN LADIES TO THE WOMEN'S MEDICAL SERVICE.

123. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have completed their inquiries regarding "Appointment of Indian Ladies to the Women's Medical Service" ? [Vide Government reply to starred question No. 1070 (b) and (c) in the Legislative Assembly on the 15th March, 1929.]

(b) If so, will they please communicate the result of their inquiry to the House ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) It is not a fact that several Indian ladies possessing the degree of M.D. or F.R.C.S. of London or Edinburgh were refused appointments in the Women's Medical Service on the ground of insufficient clinical experience. In 1927, an Indian lady possessing the degree of M.D. (London) applied for admission to the Women's Medical Service, but as she had not held any hospital post or been in charge of patients in a recognised Women's Hospital, she was offered a post in the training reserve with a view to her subsequent admission to the Service proper. She refused this offer. The clinical experience required for admission to the Women's Medical Service is the tenure, for at least one year, of a resident post in a recognised women's hospital. All the non-Indian members of the Women's Medical Service had this experience before they were appointed to the Service.

ALLEGED INTIMIDATION OF EMPLOYEES OF THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY FOR JOINING THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAYMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

128. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to Government reply to unstarred question No. 335 in the Legislative Assembly on the 18th March, 1929, on the subject of "Alleged Intimidation of Employees of the Bengal and North Western Railway for joining the Bengal and North Western Railwaymen's Association", will Government please state if they have since obtained information on the subject ?

(b) If so, will they please give the information to the House ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : A copy of the reply sent to the Honourable Member who put the question referred to, is, I understand, in the Library of the House.

EMPLOYMENT OF ASSISTANT GUARDS AS GUARDS ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

129. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have since been able to obtain a cutting of the letter published in the Forward of the 17th October, 1928, under the heading "Employment of Assistant Guards as Guards on the Bengal and North Western Railway" ? (Vide Government reply to unstarred question No. 343 in the Legislative Assembly on the 18th March, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please state if they have considered and arrived at a conclusion in the matter ?

(c) If the reply to part (b) be in the affirmative, will they please communicate their conclusions to the House ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c): The question is under consideration.

GRANT OF BENEFITS OF THE PROVIDENT FUND TO EMPLOYEES IN RAILWAY WORKSHOPS.

130. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have collected information regarding "Grant of Benefits of the Provident Fund to Employees in Railway Workshops" ? [Vide Government reply to starred question No. 1205 (b) in the Legislative Assembly on the 22nd March, 1929.]

(b) If so, will they please lay the information on the table ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : A copy of the reply sent to the Honourable Member who put the question referred to, is, I understand, in the Library of the House.

PAYMENT OF RENT FOR QUARTERS BY WORKMEN ON THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

131. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to Government reply to starred question No. 1206 in the Legislative Assembly on the 22nd March, 1929, on the subject of "Payment of Rent for Quarters by Workmen on the Bengal and North Western Railway", will Government please state if the information required therein has been collected?

(b) If so, will they please lay the information on the table?

(Vide Government reply to starred question No. 1437 in the Legislative Assembly on the 2nd April, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate their conclusions to the House?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The question of appointing Indian Trade Commissioners in Europe is still under consideration.

†For answer to this question, see answer to unstarred question No. 73.

NON-ADMISSION OF INDIAN APPRENTICES INTO THE LOCO. DEPARTMENT OF THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

138. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if they have completed their inquiry in the matter of "Non-admission of Indian Apprentices into the Loco. Department of the Bengal and North Western Railway" ? (Vide Government reply to question No. 76 in the Council of State on the 4th March, 1929.)

(b) If so, will they please communicate the result of their inquiry to the House ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : A copy of the reply sent to the Honourable Member who put the question referred to, is, I understand, in the Library of the House.

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMISSIONER OF MEDICAL EDUCATION FOR INDIA.

139. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the paragraph published in the issue of the Statesman of the 17th July, 1929 (page 10), under the heading "Medical Education—Proposed Appointment of Commissioner for India" ?

(b) If so, will they please state if it is contemplated that the Government of India will appoint a whole-time Commissioner of Medical Education for India ?

(c) If so, when is the appointment expected to be announced ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) The Government of India propose to create a whole-time post of Commissioner of Medical Qualifications and Standards for India on behalf of the General Medical Council, on a temporary footing for a period of one year in the first instance.

(c) It is hoped shortly to announce the appointment.

GRIEVANCES IN CONNECTION WITH THE BANKIPORE POST OFFICE.

140. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the letter published in the issue of the Searchlight of the 14th July, 1929 (page 12), under the heading "Bankipore Post Office" ?

(b) If so, will they please state if the complaints made therein are correct ?

(c) If correct, do they propose to see that the grievances complained of are redressed ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes.

(b) The complaint relating to the absence of screens in the western verandah of the Bankipore post office is correct. With respect to the suggestion to extend the telegraph counter, this is not considered necessary, as the counter is of a size adapted to public transactions.

(c) Steps have been taken to provide the screens.

DEPLORABLE CONDITION OF THE SUBORDINATE STAFF OF THE BENGAL AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

141. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) With reference to Government reply to my unstarred question No. 218 (b) in the Legislative Assembly on the 6th February, 1929, regarding "Deplorable Condition of the Subordinate Staff of the Bengal and North Western Railway", will Government please state if they have obtained necessary information from the Agent, Bengal and North Western Railway, on the subject ?

(b) If so, will they please communicate the information received to the House ?

(c) If no information has been received, will they please see that the matter is expedited ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Agent, Bengal and North Western Railway, who was communicated with, as promised by Mr. Parsons, is of the opinion that the allegation that the condition of the subordinate staff in that Railway is deplorable is unfounded. Unless the Honourable Member is able to give me particulars substantiating the allegation, I am afraid there is nothing that I can do in the matter.

ROYAL INDIAN MARINE EXAMINATION.

142. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the paragraph published in the issue of the Statesman of the 25th July, 1929 (page 9), under the heading "Royal Indian Marine Examination to be held in November" ?

(b) If so, will Government please state if the facts stated therein are correct ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) and (b). The reply to both parts of the question is in the affirmative. The notice in the Statesman is an abbreviation of a communiqué issued to the Press by Government. The Honourable Member will find the full text of the communiqué in Marine Department Notification No. 33 in the Gazette of India dated the 27th July, 1929.

INCLUSION OF INDIAN REPRESENTATIVES IN THE INQUIRY FOR THE SUPPRESSION OF THE WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC.

143. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the paragraph published in the issue of the Statesman of the 26th July, 1929 (page 9), under the heading "White Slave Traffic, Eastern Countries asked to co-operate" ?

(b) If so, will Government please state if the statements made therein, namely, "In the House of Commons to-day replying to questions, Mr. Arthur Henderson, Foreign Secretary, said that if replies of the Governments of Eastern Countries to the query of the Council of the League of Nations whether they were prepared to co-operate in the continuation of the inquiry as regards the traffic in women and children were favourable, the Council would consider the composition of a special body of experts and he would confer with Mr. Wedgwood Benn as regards the desirability of including Indian representatives" are correct ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b) The Government of India have received information that the matter is now under consideration by the League of Nations.

AMOUNT RECEIVED BY INDIA AS REPARATIONS FROM GERMANY.

144. Mr. E. L. Price : Will Government be pleased to state the amounts received as reparations from Germany by India since the Treaty of Versailles ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The total amount received as reparations from Germany up to the 30th June, 1929, is £844,051—2—3.

COMPLAINT BY THE COIMBATORE MILLS REGARDING FREIGHT ON COTTON YARN.

145. Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (1) what is the time taken in each case between the filing of a complaint before the Railway Rates Advisory Committee and the passing of orders by Government ;
- (2) whether they are aware of the great delay in the settlement of complaints regarding undue preferences, and whether they are prepared to consider the feasibility of a thorough inquiry into the Indian Railway Tariff policy ;
- (3) how long the mills in Madura under the management of Messrs. A. F. Harvey have, in booking yarn to Calcutta, been paying 25 per cent. less freight for a longer distance when compared to the Coimbatore Mills under the management of Messrs. P. S. Govindasamy Naidu and Sons and others ;
- (4) whether the Railway Companies concerned have, after the filing of a complaint by Messrs. P. S. Govindasamy Naidu and Sons before the Railway Rates Advisory Committee, actually increased the freight for yarn from Coimbatore to Calcutta, and whether they have demanded from them an undertaking not to book their goods by the sea ; and
- (5) whether the Railway Board ever received an intimation of such lightning changes in rates of freight, and, if so, whether the Board ever examines the need and fairness of such alterations ?

Mr. P. E. Rau : (1) The average time taken, taking into consideration all cases in which final orders have been passed, is about 10 months.

(2) Although considerable time is taken in the settlement of complaints referred to the Railway Rates Advisory Committee, it has to be borne in mind that various interests are involved, and that all the issues connected with the subject under examination require investigation before a final decision can be arrived at. I cannot see how a general inquiry into the Indian Railway Tariff policy would expedite the disposal of such cases.

(3), (4) and (5). The information is being obtained and will be furnished to the Honourable Member on receipt.

TOTAL OF IMPORTS AND EXPORTS TO AND FROM INDIA, AND AMOUNT OF CUSTOMS DUTIES COLLECTED THEREON.

146. Mr. E. L. Price : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (1) The total foreign trade of India, (a) Import, and (b) Export, for the year ending the 31st March, 1913, and the amount of customs duties collected thereon, (a) and (b) separately ;
- (2) The total foreign trade of India, (a) Import, and (b) Export, for the year ending the 31st March, 1929, and the amount of customs duties collected thereon, (a) and (b) separately ;
- (3) What estimate can be made of the incidence of this increased taxation, (a) as between agriculturists and townfolk, and (b) as between the peoples of British India and those of the Native States ;
- (4) What proportion of this increased taxation has been imposed, (a) for protective purposes, and (b) for revenue purposes ; and
- (5) What hope there is of reducing the burden of customs taxation on imports and/or exports in the near future ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (1), (2) and (4). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the "Accounts relating to the Sea-borne Trade and Navigation of British India" for the years 1912-13 and 1928-29.

(3) It is not possible to make an estimate which could claim to be either accurate or useful.

(5) Government can make no statement in regard to this. For reasons of public policy and the public interest it is generally undesirable to canvass possible changes in taxation until such have been actually decided upon by the Executive Government, and as a rule it is convenient to deal with proposals relating to taxation only in connection with the annual Budget.

POLITICAL STATUS OF TRIBES LIVING IN UNSETTLED DISTRICTS ON THE NORTH WEST FRONTIER.

147. Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan : (a) Will Government please state if there are no tribes on the Frontier which owe suzerainty to either the British Government or the Afghan Government ?

(b) If so, will Government please state the political status of the tribes living in the unsettled districts ?

Sir Denys Bray : I am not quite sure of the precise meaning of the question, but all tribes on the Indian side of the Indo-Afghan boundary (commonly known as the Durand Line) are under the suzerainty of His Majesty the King-Emperor.

IMPROVEMENT OF POSTAL FACILITIES BETWEEN KARACHI AND THE REST OF INDIA.

148. Mr. E. L. Price : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is realised that postal facilities between Karachi and the rest of India are poor in the extreme, and that letters by the existing services from Karachi take practically two days to reach Bombay and four days to reach Calcutta ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Considering the distances to be covered, Government do not subscribe to the Honourable Member's description of the postal facilities between Karachi and the rest of India. Under present arrangements, mails from Karachi are conveyed to the principal towns of Northern India in from 24 to 36 hours ; to the manufacturing centres of the United Provinces in 48 hours ; to Bombay within 48 hours and to Calcutta within 64 hours.

POWERS OF THE TRUSTEES OF THE INDIAN MUSEUM IN REGARD TO THE PAY AND PENSIONS OF OFFICERS EMPLOYED THERE.

149. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) What are the powers of the Trustees of the Indian Museum in relation to officers and servants who are paid out of the grant made by the Central Government specifically for its establishment ? Are the Trustees empowered to alter the salary of an officer without the previous sanction of the Government of India ?

(b) What is the source from which the pension of officers and servants of the Indian Museum is met, and who sanctions such pension ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to refer to the Annual Return of the Trustees of the Indian Museum, showing a detailed statement of permanent establishment existing on the 1st April for the year 1928-29, and state whether the name of any non-gazetted Government servant is omitted from the Annual Return of the previous year and, if so, the reason for such action ?

(d) What was the scale of pay shown for the post of the said officer ? Can the substantive pay of such an officer be reduced without any allegation of inefficiency or misbehaviour against him ?

(e) Did the said officer make any representations for the redress of his grievances ? If so, with what result ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The powers of the Trustees of the Indian Museum in relation to their officers and servants, who are paid out of the grant made by the Central Government are defined in section 9 of the Indian Museum Act, 1910 (No. X of 1910), to which the Honourable Member is referred. The Trustees are not empowered to alter the salary of any of their officers without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

(b) Charges on account of pension are met from the fund created by the annual grant-in-aid sanctioned by the Government of India for the office of the Trustees, and pensions are sanctioned by the Trustees.

(c), (d) and (e). The information asked for is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member later.

CONSTRUCTION OF QUARTERS FOR THE CLERKS OF MOTIHARI HEAD POST OFFICE, BIHAR AND ORISSA.

150. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) With reference to my unstarred questions No. 139, dated 4th September, 1928, and No. 255 of the 25th February, 1929, is it a fact that only two sets of quarters have been constructed for the clerks of Motihari Head Post Office (Bihar and Orissa), out of the six sets of the proposed quarters ?

(b) Is it a fact that out of these two sets of quarters one has been allotted to the Deputy Postmaster, and the other one to a clerk ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Postmaster General, Bihar and Orissa, has submitted his scheme for the construction of these remaining sets of quarters to the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, for his approval, and the grant of additional funds for the purpose ?

(d) If the answers to parts (a) to (c) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for the delay in completing these constructions which causes much hardship to the clerks ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a), (b) and (c). The answer is in the affirmative.

(d) The Honourable Member is referred to the answer already given to Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan in reply to his unstarred question No. 100 of to-day's date.

PAY OF THE HEAD ASSISTANTS, ACCOUNTANTS, ASSISTANTS AND CLERKS EMPLOYED IN THE STATIONERY AND PRINTING DEPARTMENT, CALCUTTA.

151. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number and pay of the head assistants, accountants, assistants and clerks in Grades I and II employed in the various branches of the Stationery and Printing Department in Calcutta ?

(b) Is it a fact that they submitted a memorial for the betterment of their pay and prospects in February, 1927 ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to refer to the Industries and Labour Department letter No. A-431, dated the 19th July, 1929, and state the number of head assistants, accountants, assistants and clerks in Grades I and II whose salaries have been proposed for enhancement as the result of the memorial ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state the circumstances under which the salaries of the assistants and clerks in Grade I have not been proposed for enhancement as the result of the memorial ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The information is given in the attached statement.

(b) Yes.

(c) and (d) The letter referred to by the Honourable Member is a confidential document which cannot properly have been communicated to the Honourable Member, and I am not prepared to discuss its contents.

Statement showing the number and pay of the Head Assistants, Accountants, Clerks, Grades I and II, employed in the various branches of the Stationery and Printing Department in Calcutta.

NATURE OF DUTIES AND PAY OF THE EMPLOYEES OF THE PRINTING AND STATIONERY DEPARTMENT, CALCUTTA.

152. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of graduates and non-graduates in the ranks of head assistants, accountants, assistants and clerks in Grades I and II employed in the various branches of the Printing and Stationery Department in Calcutta ?

(b) Is it a fact that the assistants in charge of sections in the Central Publication Branch do exactly the same nature of duties as those performed by the head assistants of the Central Stationery Office ?

(c) If the reply to part (b) be in the negative, will Government be pleased to state the number of drafts and cases passed through the head assistant to the Assistant Manager or the Manager of the Central Publication Branch out of the total number of letters issued and cases disposed of in that Branch ?

(d) If the reply to part (b) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the circumstances under which assistants in charge of sections under the branches of the Central Stationery Office are not allowed to deal direct with the officers like the assistants in charge of sections in the Central Publication Branch ?

(e) Is it a fact that to add efficiency to the working of the Printing and Stationery Department, assistants and clerks in Grade I with high University qualifications have been recruited ?

(f) Is it a fact that persons referred to in part (e) are more highly qualified than the head assistants and accountants ?

(g) If the reply to part (f) be in the negative, will Government be pleased to state whether (i) any inquiry to this effect was ever made by any special officer, or (ii) any orders were passed stopping the recruitment of graduates to those ranks ?

(h) If the reply to part (f) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the circumstances under which the salaries of the assistants and clerks in Grade I have not been proposed for enhancement as a result of the memorial submitted by them in February, 1927 ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I propose to deal with questions Nos. 152 and 153 together. The Controller of Printing and Stationery is responsible to Government generally for the efficient administration of the various branches of the Printing and Stationery Department in Calcutta, and Government do not propose to call for information regarding these administrative details, which are matters for his discretion.

METHOD OF FILLING VACANCIES IN THE STATIONERY AND PRINTING DEPARTMENT, CALCUTTA.

†153. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether a combined Gradation List of the staff under the Printing and Stationery Department in Calcutta is maintained ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state :

(i) the number of officiating and permanent posts which fell vacant in the Printing and Stationery Department in Calcutta during 1928 and 1929 ;

(ii) the names of clerks with their position in the Gradation List who were appointed to those posts ;

(iii) the circumstances under which the seniority in position in the Gradation List was not followed ;

(iv) the number of applications submitted protesting against the procedure adopted in filling up those vacancies ; and

(v) the number of applications withdrawn under pressure from the officers of that Department ?

(c) Is it a fact that the above vacancies were filled up by promotions (i) sometimes on the ground of seniority in the Gradation List, (ii) sometimes on the ground of educational qualification, (iii) sometimes on the ground of merit without any previous remark to that effect in the service book or the character roll, and (iv) sometimes on the ground of purely administrative convenience ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state the circumstances under which no uniformity of principle was adopted in filling up the vacancies mentioned in (b) (i) above ?

(e) Do Government propose to inquire into the above matter and frame uniform rules for promotions and filling up officiating vacancies in the Stationery and Printing Department in future ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to unstarred question No. 152.

VALUE OF THE STORES AND STATIONERY OF THE CENTRAL STATIONERY OFFICE, CALCUTTA, CONDEMNED IN THE YEARS 1924 TO 1928.

154. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the value of condemned stores of stationery during 1924 to 1928, year by year, in the Central Stationery Office ?

(b) Is it a fact that a post of gazetted officer with a fully equipped laboratory is maintained in the Central Stationery Office for regular examination of stationery stores ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state (i) the number of cases of complaint from officers drawing stationery from the said office about the inferior quality of stationery supplied ; (ii) the number of cases in which exchanges of supplies were effected ; and (iii) the amount of extra expenditure incurred by Government thereby from 1924 to 1928 year by year ?

(d) Is it a fact that stationery articles are purchased on tenders after the samples submitted by the tenderers are properly examined ?

(e) If the replies to parts (b) and (d) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state whether the amount of extra expenditure, as mentioned in (c) (iii) above is (i) written off against Government, or (ii) realised from the contractors for supplying defective articles, or (iii) realised from the Store Examiner and Store Keeper of the Central Stationery Office, in view of the Circular issued by the Finance Department of the Government of India recently ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Inquiries are being made and the results will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

SYSTEM OF PURCHASE OF STATIONERY FOLLOWED BY THE PRINTING AND STA-TIONERY DEPARTMENT, CALCUTTA.

†155. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the total value of the stationery articles (i) manufactured in India, and (ii) not manufactured in India, purchased in India by the Printing and Stationery Department during 1926, 1927 and 1928 ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state (i) the number of complaints from various indenting officers against the quality of such articles, (ii) the value of such articles condemned and (iii) the value of such articles lying stocked in the Stationery Store, as mentioned in part (a) above ?

(c) Is it a fact that these articles are purchased by the Controller of Printing and Stationery on the test reports of the Store Examiner ?

(d) Is it a fact that stationery articles of inferior quality are purchased from certain selected contractors overlooking the superior quality of the same articles tendered by other firms ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to unstarred question No. 154.

(e) Is it a fact that no action is taken against those suppliers even if they fail to deliver the stationery articles within the time stipulated in the order placed by the Stationery Office even though local purchases of those articles are resorted to at a higher price to meet urgent demands of the indenting officers ?

(f) Will Government be pleased to state whether any Committee was ever appointed (i) to inquire into the system of purchase of stationery articles followed in the Central Stationery Office and (ii) to suggest any method to prevent the recurrence of the state of affairs as mentioned in part (b) above ?

INTERPRETATION OF THE WORDS USED IN TAKING THE OATH OF OFFICE BY MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

156. Mr. E. L. Price : Will Government be pleased to state whether as regards the oath taken by Members of this House and the words " that I will faithfully discharge the duty upon which I am about to enter ", there is any interpretation, authoritative or otherwise, that modifies the literal meaning ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : There is no interpretation other than the literal one so far as I am aware.

GOVERNOR GENERAL'S ASSENT TO BILLS.

Mr. President : I have to inform Honourable Members that the following Bills, which were passed by both Chambers of the Indian Legislature during the Delhi Session, 1929, have been assented to by His Excellency the Governor General under the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 68 of the Government of India Act :

The Indian Limitation (Amendment) Act, 1929.

The Hindu Law of Inheritance (Amendment) Act, 1929.

The Presidency Towns Insolvency (Amendment) Act, 1929.

The Indian Tariff (Amendment) Act, 1929.

The Workmen's Compensation (Amendment) Act, 1929.

The Indian Finance Act, 1929.

The Trade Disputes Act, 1929.

PETITIONS RELATING TO THE HINDU CHILD MARRIAGE BILL.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, under Standing Order 78, I have to report that forty-seven petitions, as per statement laid on the table, have been received relating to the Bill to regulate marriages of children amongst the Hindus which was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 1st February, 1927, by Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda.

STATEMENTS LAID ON THE TABLE.

CONTRIBUTIONS MADE BY PORT TRUSTS TO INSTITUTIONS MAINTAINED FOR THE BENEFIT OF INDIAN SEAMEN.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : I beg to lay on the table the information promised in reply to a supplementary question by Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh in connection with starred question No. 1195, asked by Mr. Sarabhai N. Haji on the 22nd March, 1929, regarding contributions made by Port Trusts to Institutions maintained for the benefit of Indian seamen.

Calcutta :

The Port Commissioners have not made any contribution to any institution connected with the welfare of Indian seamen, nor have they ever received any applications for such contributions.

Bombay :

Apart from certain hospitals to which the Port Trust has contributed, there are no other recognised institutions in Bombay connected with the welfare of Indian seamen. The establishment of an Indian Sailors' Home in Bombay has been under consideration for some time, and a Committee appointed by Government (on which Mr. Neilson is serving as Chairman) is now considering the whole question. The Trustees have already agreed to provide a suitable site or sites free of charge for the purpose and to assist in the furtherance of the project.

Madras :

The records in the Port Trust's Office do not show that any contribution has been made by the Trust to institutions connected with the welfare of Indian seamen.

Rangoon :

There is no institution at Rangoon directly for the welfare of Indian seamen. The institutions indirectly connected with that object to which the Port Trust contribute are (1) the General Hospital, (2) the Pasteur Institute and (3) the Ramkrishna Mission Sevashram.

Karachi :

The Port Trust contributes Rs. 1,200 per annum towards the upkeep of the McHinch Memorial Seamen's Rest at Keamari, the object of which is to promote the welfare of all seamen, irrespective of nationality or religion.

The Rest was built with funds raised by subscriptions from Government, the Municipality, members of the Chamber of Commerce, the public and the Port Trust. The Port Trust also bears the cost of annual repairs to the building.

The Bombay and Rangoon Trusts have specially mentioned their contributions to hospitals, but it does not follow that the other Trusts, who have not mentioned them, do not in fact contribute.

PROVISION OF FENCINGS FOR RAILWAY LINES.

Mr. P. R. Rau (Financial Commissioner, Railways) : I beg to lay on the table the information promised by Mr. A. A. L. Parsons on the 27th February, 1929, regarding the results of the inquiry instituted by Government on the provision of fencing on railways.

COPY OF LETTER NO. 553-W-21, DATED THE 24TH JULY, 1924, FROM THE SECRETARY, RAILWAY BOARD, TO THE SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY, PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

I am directed to refer to your letter No. D-291-Ry., dated the 9th July, 1921, (Serial No. 1), on the subject of the provision of fencing on railways, and to express the regret of the Railway Board that so much delay has taken place in addressing the Bombay Government further on this matter. In that letter the following arguments were put forward :

- (a) that Railway Administration should not be permitted to keep their lines unfenced for an indefinite period, specially those in the neighbourhood of towns and villages where cattle are numerous ;
- (b) that there is no law under which poor cattle owners can obtain compensation for cattle that are run over, though a Railway Administration can prosecute the owners where cattle are knowingly or wilfully allowed to stray on the line, whether fenced or not ; and
- (c) that railways should be held liable for damages where fences have not been maintained to prevent cattle from straying on to the line, or that measures ought to be taken for enforcing the provision of fencing under Section 13 of the Railways Act by orders of the Governor General in Council.

2. A preliminary reply was given in this office letter No. 553-W-21, dated the 22nd February, 1922 (Serial No. 3), in which it was explained that the heavy and unremunerative expenditure entailed in the provision of fencing on railway lines would not in the opinion of the Railway Board give commensurate advantages in preventing cattle accidents, but that the Board had decided to examine the whole question in consultation with railways. The result of this correspondence, in the course of which all railways were consulted and not only those in the Bombay Presidency, is that the Board have collected a great deal of information on the subject, and I am to forward herewith a summary of the figures available in the tabular statement attached (Serial No. 4/1). This summary shows for broad gauge Railway Administrations, for Administrations having both broad and metre gauge, for metre gauge railways, and for narrow gauge railways separately, the number of miles of line fenced and unfenced and the average number of cattle accidents that occurred annually over a period of three years on the fenced mileage and unfenced mileage under these different categories. It will be seen that out of a total of about 37,000 miles of railway in India about 15,000 miles are fenced, and 22,000 miles are unfenced, that the numbers of cattle accidents on fenced lines were slightly higher than those on unfenced lines in those 3 years, and that the number of such accidents per mile per year is .26 for fenced lines and .17 for unfenced lines. These figures, in fact tend to bear out the view which was held by the Railway Board that the protection obtained by the ordinary methods of fencing railway lines in this country is not such as to encourage Railway Administrations to adopt a more general policy of fencing in the future.

3. The cost of fencing one mile of railway line at present is roughly Rs. 4,000 with the type of fencing which has hitherto been in general use, but it would appear from what is stated above that to be really effective a far superior and more expensive type of fencing would have to be adopted. It is notorious that villagers and others, who are in charge of grazing cattle, are in the habit of cutting the wires of the railway fences or tying them together in order to allow their cattle to get on to the precincts of the railway line, where better grazing can frequently be obtained than is available elsewhere in the neighbourhood, and this is specially noticeable in places and in seasons when fodder is short. The Railway Board, while recognising that there are certain obligations on the railways in this matter, desire to point out that another aspect of it exists in that it is a source of danger to the travelling public when cattle are permitted to graze on the sides of railway embankments, etc., as a cattle accident may, and frequently does, cause the derailment of a train. It is therefore, in the interests of the railway itself to try and prevent cattle from straying on to railway lines, and it has long been the practice to provide fencing along sections of railway where the numbers of grazing cattle are appreciable and where fast trains are run.

4. The adoption of a superior style of fencing, however, has only found favour in a few localities which are very populous and where the danger to human life as well as fear of cattle accidents is considered to make it worth while to incur the very much higher expenditure involved, and in view of the great desirability of setting aside as much money as possible for new lines the Government of India are not generally in favour of an advanced policy of fencing which would involve unremunerative expense.

[Mr. P. R. Rau.]

5. Again, for the reason mentioned in paragraph 3 above as regards the danger to the travelling public caused by cattle grazing on railway embankments, the Government of India are not in favour of providing by statute for compensation for cattle run over, for such a measure, as it seems to them, would be to offer a premium on cattle trespass and would only result in an increase of accidents by making owners less careful of their stock. While, therefore, the Government of India have considerable sympathy with the owners of cattle that may be run over on railway lines they hardly think it advisable to take steps for any such enactment at the present time.

6. There remains the question of taking action under section 13 of the Railways Act, and the Railway Board have been considering whether they could lay down any general principles as to the conditions which require a railway line to be fenced, for instance, by defining the density of railway traffic, the density of population in the adjoining areas or the character of the adjacent land (whether heavily cultivated or desert, etc.), and laying down some general rules for guidance in this form. They have, however, for the time being not found this a practicable solution of the difficulty, and the Government of India have come to the conclusion that the most satisfactory course is to consider the necessity of fencing any particular section of line on the merits of the case. While therefore it is not considered advisable to provide by statute for making railways liable for damages in running over cattle, the provision of fencing can, wherever this is shown to be necessary, be enforced under section 13 of the Railways Act and it is open to the Local Government to represent the need for fencing any particular section.

STATEMENT BY MR. PRESIDENT RE THE DIGNITY AND INDEPENDENCE OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY AND THE AUTHORITY OF THE CHAIR.

Mr. President : I desire to make a statement on a question concerning the dignity and independence of this House and the authority of the Chair which arose out of the address delivered in this Chamber to the Members of the Central Legislature on the closing day of the last session by the Governor General. As Honourable Members are aware, it has been my constant endeavour, since I have been elected to this Chair, to uphold the dignity and independence of this House and the authority of the Chair to the best of my capacity. I have always maintained, and will continue to maintain, so long as I am in this Chair, that the House and the Chair are, subject to the constitution, supreme within the four walls of this Chamber, and I would be unworthy of the confidence reposed in me by the House if I failed on any occasion to raise my voice in protest against any action, which in my view seemed to challenge or undermine that supremacy. I accordingly thought it my duty to address the following letter to His Excellency the Viceroy on the 8th of May last :

" HOLCOMBE ",

Simla, 8th May, 1929.

MY DEAR LORD IRWIN,

It was with considerable pain, surprise and sorrow that I listened the other day to your address to the two Houses of the Indian Legislature. Of course, it goes without saying that Your Excellency is entitled under the constitution to summon the Members of the two Houses at any time for the purpose of addressing them, but I am quite clear that Your Excellency's action in utilising the occasion for criticising the Chair's ruling is not only unprecedented and calculated to affect both the dignity of the House and the authority of the Chair, but also constitutes, in my opinion, a departure from constitutional usage and traditions. For these reasons it is impossible for me to acquiesce in the course Your Excellency has thought it right to adopt. Such a precedent might be repeated by your successors, and it is my duty, as President of the Assembly, to enter my strongest protest against it as soon as I can. The only question I am considering is whether I shall be right in making known my protest now by communication to the Press, or whether I should not wait till the Assembly meets and do so more appropriately from the Chair of the Assembly.

Perhaps Your Excellency will agree that, though we have in the past more than once differed on matters relating to the Assembly, such differences have never been publicly displayed. It is a matter of regret to me that Your Excellency should have departed from that practice.

The proceedings of the Assembly would have disclosed that there was, to say the least, room for honest difference of opinion. The person occupying the Chair had, in the circumstances and in the situation that arose, to interpret the rules and lay down procedure as best as he could in the exercise of his undoubted powers, and you yourself were frank enough to admit in your address that the only appropriate person to interpret in either House of the Legislature the rules under which it works is the President of the House himself. In a matter of interpretation of the Rules and Standing Orders, the only safe guide is to go by their language. Your Excellency will agree with me that I could only proceed on the Rules and Standing Orders as they stand at present and according to the best of my lights and could not go in search of an " original intention " apart from the language of the Rules. While so, it is somewhat surprising that, in more than one place, Your Excellency refers to yourself and to your Government not being satisfied as to my interpretation being in conformity with the original intention. The emphasis laid by Your Excellency on my interpretation not being in accordance with the original intention, on my ruling being calculated to interrupt the work of the House, and upon the Legislature being prevented from forming its own judgment on the question whether or not it could usefully conduct its debates, the reference to the technical difficulty created by my ruling standing in the way of your sharing the responsibility of protecting the ordered state with the Legislature, the intention announced in Your Excellency's address that the proper authority will so amend the Rules as to prevent the President of either House from impeding the progress of legislation ; all these appear to me, in the circumstances and in the context, nothing short of a censure passed by Your Excellency upon my ruling. I need hardly point out that under the Rules and Standing Orders I am the sole and final authority on all questions relating to order arising in the House (Hear, hear), and if my conduct is to be impugned, it can only be impugned by a direct appeal to the House upon notice of motion properly given, when a straight issue would be laid before the House and an amendment be moved which shall test the judgment of the House. In no other manner and by no other authority could the ruling of the Chair be subjected to any criticism or censure within the Assembly Chamber of which I am the President. (Applause.) Such indeed is the sanctity attached to the rulings of the Chair by constitution and by convention.

For obvious reasons I do not desire to embark on a discussion on the merits of the point of order before the House, though I still maintain that I was right in the ruling which I gave and that it was the only possible ruling consistent with the fundamental right of free speech and debate of the Members of the House and with the House functioning as a deliberative Assembly.

It is not my purpose, and indeed it is not within my province, to deal with the question as to the necessity for any amendment of the Rules, nor am I concerned with the point as to whether the occasion warrants such amendments. I need hardly point out that the fact of Your Excellency having to fall back on your powers under section 72 of the Government of India Act in the circumstances that have happened neither enters into the merits of this communication, nor could it be an element in the decision I arrived at on the point of order.

I write this because it is possible that Your Excellency might not be in this country when I make my statement, and I thought it was proper that I should let you know my intentions. Since you made your speech, I was searching for some precedent from the proceedings of the Parliaments of the Dominions in support of your action, and I am in a position to inform Your Excellency that never before has any representative of the Crown such as you have chosen to criticise any ruling of any Speaker of any of the Parliaments of the Dominions in the manner in which you have criticised my ruling.

Yours sincerely,

(Signed) V. J. PATEL."

On the 15th of May I received from His Excellency the following reply :

VICEREGAL LODGE,

SIMLA,

15th May, 1929.

DEAR MR. PATEL,

His Excellency has received your letter of the 8th May and desires me to thank you for the courtesy that prompted you to acquaint him with your intentions.

The action which you have felt impelled to take is based upon the assumption that, in his address to the Legislature, His Excellency passed criticism or censure upon your ruling. His Excellency feels that there has been in some quarters misapprehension both of the purpose of his address and of the language which he employed to give expression to it, and therefore welcomes this opportunity of making plain in greater detail the precise implications of the action he thought it his duty in very difficult circumstances to take.

Without entering into the question of the merits of your ruling which, as you correctly point out, are not now in issue, His Excellency desires me to say that it was no part of his intention by his address, as indeed within the House he would consider it improper, either to criticise the ruling you had given or pass censure upon you for it, and His Excellency regrets that his words should have been so interpreted by yourself or others. Such an interpretation in the circumstances in which the address was delivered was perhaps inevitable, but His Excellency wishes me to make plain to you, and through you to the Assembly, his entire concurrence with your view that within the House it is the President, subject only to the House itself in the established form as indicated in your letter, who is the sole and final authority under the Rules and Standing Orders on all questions relating to order that may arise. His Excellency indeed defined his position in his address, by emphasising that in his view the only person qualified to interpret within either House the rules under which it works was the President of the House concerned. His Excellency accordingly desired to confine himself to pointing out the practical results that followed from the ruling, and to stating the action which in his view was imposed upon himself and upon Government for the proper discharge of their own responsibilities.

I am desired by His Excellency to add that he fully shares your anxiety to maintain the dignity of the House and the authority of the Chair. He earnestly hopes, and has no doubt that such hope is entertained by the President, that the passage of time may see the gradual establishment around the Chair of the Assembly, in the constitutional conditions of the Indian Legislature, of such a body of tradition, as has, in the sphere of the House of Commons, enabled each of a long line of Speakers to be successively accepted as the impartial guide and trusted friend of all sections of the House. To this end His Excellency trusts that he and the President may continue to co-operate.

[Mr. President.]

Since His Excellency has made it clear that it was not his intention to criticise your ruling, he does not feel it necessary to discuss the argument which you adduce upon the subject of Dominion precedents.

As regards the question you raise as to whether you should make your position known by publication of your letter and of His Excellency's reply through the Press, or by direct statement in the Assembly, His Excellency would suggest that the more convenient course would be that you should read to the Assembly, on as early a day as convenient, your letter to him and his reply. His Excellency feels that the matter is one in which all Members of the Assembly are directly interested and that it would be proper that the correspondence should be directly presented to them.

Your sincerely,

(Signed) G. CUNNINGHAM."

I breathed a sigh of relief when I read that reply which, in my opinion, constitutes a sufficient vindication of the dignity and independence of this House and the authority of the Chair which I thought had been seriously assailed. The Governor General has here made it plain that he has no intention of criticising or censuring the ruling. He has also said that he would consider it improper for him to do so within the House. And more than that, His Excellency has expressed his entire concurrence with that part of my letter which defines the position in this respect that, within the House, it is only by the House itself that the ruling of the Chair can be subjected to criticism and censure.

His Excellency has further made it clear in the reply that, in the circumstances in which the address was delivered, such an interpretation on his words as I and others have put was perhaps inevitable, and he considers it regrettable that his words should have been so interpreted. In view of what His Excellency has said, I am convinced that it was not his desire to establish a precedent derogatory to the dignity of the House, and I am sure the House will agree with me that the incident must now be treated as closed.

I desire to state, in conclusion, that nothing has pleased me more in His Excellency's reply than the sincere expression of his anxiety to see the establishment in this country of best Parliamentary traditions and conventions and to co-operate with the Chair for that purpose, and I need hardly assure His Excellency and his Government that I fully echo his desire in this respect. (Applause.)

THE TRANSFER OF PROPERTY (AMENDMENT) BILL.

PRESENTATION OF THE REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter (Law Member) : Sir, I beg to present the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, for certain purposes.

THE TRANSFER OF PROPERTY (AMENDMENT) SUPPLEMENTARY BILL.

PRESENTATION OF THE REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter (Law Member) : Sir, I beg to present the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to supplement the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act, 1929.

THE INDIAN RAILWAYS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Railways Act, 1890, for certain purposes. In a single word, this Bill seeks to empower the Government of India to carry out the obligations that it has incurred under two international conventions regarding the hours of work and the periods of rest of railway servants.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for certain purposes. It is not necessary for me to give any explanation of the objects of this Bill. I think it is sufficiently explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons published with the Bill.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX (PROVIDENT FUNDS RELIEF) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for certain purposes (Indian Income-tax Provident Funds Relief). I think I owe the Assembly some explanation of why I have thought it necessary to deal with two amendments to the Indian Income-tax Act in separate Bills. The reason is this : I gave an undertaking a few months ago to introduce legislation for the purpose of conferring privileges on private provident funds. I am very anxious that that undertaking should be honoured and given effect to in time at least for the next Budget. The Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Bill that I have just introduced may take some time to pass into legislation. I am hopeful, however, that this second Bill may become law within the course of this Session without delay.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE SALE OF GOODS BILL.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter (Law Member) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to define and amend the law relating to the sale of goods. I do not desire to say anything at this stage, except that the Bill seeks to revise Chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act, which was enacted so far back as 1872. This branch of the mercantile law in India required revision.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE INDIAN CONTRACT (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter (Law Member) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to amend section 178 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. I need only say that this is consequential on the Bill which has just now been introduced : that Bill deals with sale by ostensible owners ; and the present Bill deals with pledge by ostensible owners.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE INDIAN SOFT COKE CESS BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the levy of a cess on soft coke despatched by rail from collieries in the Provinces of Bengal and Bihar and Orissa. The object of this Bill is to raise funds which can be expended for the purpose of propaganda to popularise the use of soft coke. The original suggestion came from the colliery proprietors who are interested in the production of soft coke, and the Bill has their full support. I do not think I need say more.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE INDIAN CENSUS BILL.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Home Member) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for certain matters in connection with the taking of the census. Honourable Members are aware that the census, as in most other countries, is taken decennially in India, and in accordance with precedent, this Bill provides for certain matters in connection with the taking of the census, and I hope it will prove entirely non-controversial.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE INDIAN BOILERS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Boilers Act, 1923, for certain purposes.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, for a certain purpose (amendment of sections 13, 16, 35, etc.). This Bill refers to the amendment of sections 13, 16, 35, etc.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS (SECOND AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, for a certain purpose (Insertion of new section 85A). In this case also I feel that I owe the Assembly some explanation of why it has been thought necessary to deal with the matter in two Bills. The Bill which I have just introduced is a revival of a Bill which was formerly introduced in 1927. I propose in that case to ask at a later stage for reference to Select Committee, the task here being to deal with a subject which has already been to some extent dealt with. In the case of the present Bill, I propose to ask for leave to circulate the Bill. A different procedure will thus be necessary in the two cases.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE CANTONMENTS (HOUSE-ACCOMMODATION AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham (Army Secretary) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Cantonments (House Accommodation) Act, 1923, for certain purposes. The statement attached to the Bill and the Notes on Clauses give, I hope, a full and sufficient explanation of the Objects and Reasons of the Bill. It deals with no new principles and is mostly intended to remedy certain defects and to make improvements in procedure and drafting which experience has shown necessary.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE BENGAL PILOT SERVICE (CENTRALISATION OF ADMINISTRATION) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Calcutta Pilots Act, 1859, and the Indian Ports Act, 1908, in order to vest the control of the Bengal Pilot Service in the Governor General in Council.

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

ELECTION OF THE PANEL FOR THE STANDING COMMITTEE FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I move :

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect in the manner described in the rules published in the Home Department Notification No. F-49, dated the 22nd August, 1922, as amended by the Home Department Notification No. D-794-C, dated the 30th January, 1924, a panel consisting of 9 members from which 3 will be nominated to serve on the Standing Committee to advise on subjects in the Department of Commerce."

[Sir George Rainy.]

The Advisory Committee of the Commerce Department, Mr. President, was last constituted as the result of the elections held in the two Houses of the Legislature in September, 1928, and it came into existence in October, 1928. It is necessary, therefore, that at this Session of the Assembly the Committee should be reconstituted for another year. It is for that reason, Sir, that I make this motion.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I am in no mood to oppose my Honourable friend Sir George Rainy, but as he is always a very sympathetic man, I should like to ask him one very simple question, and it is this. Why does he not take the hint of this House which has helped him on many occasions in matters of this kind. His Honourable colleague, Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra, who is sitting on his left has had to deplore his action on a previous occasion when a panel was to be selected for the Roads Committee. The Honourable Sir George Rainy, in moving his proposition, has quoted some notifications in the Home Department, but as everybody knows, this House is guided by Rules and Standing Orders. Can the Honourable Member quote any legislative rules from the Legislative Manual under which he can ask us to elect a panel from which he can select only three Members as he pleases? Why does not he ask us to choose three Members to advise the Commerce Department? I also ask him to take a hint from the fact that another sister Department of his, the Education Department, could not get the Members elected by this method. I submit, Sir, that we on this side are in no mood to be trifled with like that. If he wants us to give him advice, then he should come to us and say, "I want three Members from you; elect the best three from you". What I am particularly interested in is this. I want to know under what legislative rules the Home Department issued this particular notification. Specially, what is uppermost in my mind is the particular rule which has been so recently amended by the Secretary of State. Now, if the Secretary of State, His Excellency the Viceroy, and everybody else is so particular about these Rules and the amendment of these Rules, why does not my Honourable friend try to bring this particular Committee under certain Legislative Rules? Members of the Public Accounts Committee are elected under the Legislative Rules. If you want a committee to advise a particular Department, you should amend the rules. There is your master, the Secretary of State, sitting 6,000 miles away, and he can easily amend the rules for you without consulting us. So I do not want to take any very serious objection, but I want the Honourable Sir George Rainy to reply to me, because he is always anxious to cultivate sympathy from this side of the House. I want to know how long this kind of play will go on on that side of the House. I might tell my Honourable friend that this side will not elect any panel from which he can choose anybody he pleases.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, I have only a word or two to say in reply to what my Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das, has just said. I quite understand the difficulty certain Members on the other side of the House feel about the panel system of constituting these Committees, and I doubt whether there is any Member of the Governor General's Council who would be prepared to go to the stake in defence of that particular procedure. Knowing as we do the strength of feeling on the subject there is in certain quarters of this House, I am quite prepared to say that we should be prepared to reconsider the question how these Standing Advisory Committees should be constituted. A more convenient opportunity will perhaps occur for that in the cold weather Session when most of these Committees will require to be reconstituted. Meanwhile, after what I have said, I trust that the House will give me my Committee on the present basis, when I give them the assurance in the classical words that it "is only a very little one."

Mr. President : The question is :

"That this Assembly do proceed to elect in the manner described in the rules published in the Home Department Notification No. F-49, dated the 22nd August, 1922, as amended by the Home Department Notification No. D-794-C, dated the 30th January, 1924, a panel consisting of 9 Members, from which 3 will be nominated to serve on the Standing Committee to advise on subjects in the Department of Commerce."

The motion was adopted.

ELECTION OF THE STANDING COMMITTEE ON ROADS.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I move the following :

"That this Assembly do proceed to the election, for the financial year 1929-30, in such method as may be approved by the Honourable the President, of six members to serve on a Standing Committee on Roads, which will be appointed by the Governor General in Council to advise him on certain matters connected with roads, and which will include in addition a Member of the Assembly to be nominated by the Governor General, a second nominated official Member, and three non-official Members to be selected by the Governor General from the panel of six already elected by the Council of State. The Member of the Governor General's Executive Council in charge of the Department that deals with roads shall be the Chairman of the Committee; and the members of the Committee who are Members of the Legislative Assembly will form the Finance Sub-Committee of the Committee, which will be presided over by the Chairman of the Committee if he is a Member of the Legislative Assembly, and otherwise by the official member of the Committee who is a Member of the Legislative Assembly."

This motion is introduced to give effect to the recommendation contained in paragraphs 79 and 96B (10) (b) of the Report of the Indian Road Development Committee of 1927-28. I brought a somewhat similar motion before this House on the 2nd April last. (An Honourable Member : "What what effect?") But in that motion I had provided for the election by this House of a panel of 12 members, from which 6 members of the Standing Committee would be nominated by the Governor General. As I explained to the House on that occasion, in making this provision, I followed what I considered to be the intention of the Indian Road Development Committee, based on the actual wording of a specific recommendation of that body. In the course of the debate in this House, I was, however, told by various Members who had served on that Committee that that was not their intention. In the result the House refused to adopt my motion. I have accepted the statements made on that occasion about the intention of the Committee, and I have also accepted the verdict of the House; and in the motion now before it I have provided that the House should elect its representatives on the Standing Committee in such manner as you, Sir, may approve. I trust that my action will have the approval of the House and that it will be pleased to adopt the motion.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : I may inform Honourable Members that for the purpose of election of Members to the panel for the Standing Advisory Committee for the Department of Commerce and the Standing Committee on Roads, the Assembly Office will be open to receive nominations up to 12 Noon on Thursday, the 5th September, 1929. The election for the Standing Committee on Roads, if necessary, will take place in this Chamber on Monday, the 9th September, 1929, and the election to the panel for the Standing Advisory Committee for the Department of Commerce, if necessary, will be held on Tuesday, the 10th September, 1929. The elections will be held in accordance with the principle of proportional representation by means of the single transferable vote.

THE INDIAN MERCHANDISE MARKS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. K. C. Neogy (Dacca Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill further to amend the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889, be continued. I trust that the House will treat this as a formal motion ; it is intended to revive a Bill that has lapsed under the proviso to Standing Order 4 (2). Under that proviso all Bills in respect of which no motion has been made during two successive sessions shall lapse unless the Assembly, on a motion by the Member in charge of the Bill in the next session, makes a special order for the continuance of the Bill. This particular Bill was introduced by me some two years back and it was circulated on a motion carried in this House.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member does not want to treat this as a formal motion ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I just wanted to let the House know the circumstances under which this Bill came to lapse and the stage at which the Bill at present stands. The Bill was circulated on a motion carried in this House and opinions have since been collected. The next motion with reference to this Bill will be to refer it to a Select Committee. I trust the House will be indulgent enough to carry this formal motion.

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Tuesday, the 3rd September, 1929.

(a) Total number of applications for extension of time received under section 45 of the Act ; and

(b) How many of these were granted ?

ISSUE OF NOTICES FOR COMPLIANCE ON SUNDAY BY INCOME-TAX OFFICERS IN CERTAIN DISTRICTS.

42. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that in some cases the Income-tax Officers of the Karachi and Thar Parkar Districts issued notices for compliance under section 23 (2) and 22 (4) of the Act for Sunday ?

(b) If so, do Government propose to stop such a practice ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Yes. In some cases work has been done on Sundays in the desert tracts of the Thar Parkar district in order to expedite assessment work, or to enable assesseees to return to their homes as soon as possible, or to reduce the period of halt of the Income-tax Officer and his staff in view of the hardships involved in touring in these areas. In some instances assessments have been made on Sunday at the request of the assesseees themselves.

(b) The circumstances in these areas are peculiar and the Government of India propose to take no action except to direct that, if an Income-tax Officer wishes to take up cases on Sunday, he shall give assesseees the option of attending on some other day.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is the Honourable Member aware that the people of the Thar Parkar district feel that there should be no hearings on Sunday and that they feel it very inconvenient ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I have told the Honourable Member that, in future, if the Income-tax Officers undertake cases on Sunday, they should always give the assessee a chance of objecting.

PERIOD OF TIME ALLOWED TO ASSESSEES BY INCOME-TAX OFFICERS IN SIND FOR PAYMENT UNDER SECTIONS 29, 31, 32 AND 33 OF THE INCOME-TAX ACT.

43. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the usual time given by Income-tax Officers in Sind to the assesseees for payment under sections 29, 31, 32 and 33 ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state in how many cases notices of demand under section 29 of the Act were issued in each of the charges of the Income-tax Officers in Sind during each of the years 1927-28 and 1928-29 allowing for payment a longer period than 30 days from the date of demand ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to give the cases in Sind in the years 1927-28 and 1928-29 in which no time was fixed for payment under sections 29, 31, 32 and 33, and assesseees were compelled to pay on the 1st day of the 2nd month following the date of the service of the notice or order ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) The period allowed for payment of a demand under section 29 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, is usually thirty days. No period has been fixed for an amount specified as payable in an order under sections 31, 32 or 33 and the time allowed depends on the circumstances in each case.

(b) A statement is laid on the table.

(c) The compilation of the information for which the Honourable Member asks would involve an amount of time and labour which is disproportionate to any possible advantage that could be obtained. The Government are therefore unable to comply with the Honourable Member's request.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to realise that if certain information is necessary, it would be helpful if an extract or some idea of the information wanted is given ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I have gone very carefully into this case, as into a number of other cases where the Honourable Member asked for complicated returns to be compiled, and I have come to the conclusion that it would not be in the public interest to devote the time necessary. The object gained does not justify the amount of time and labour involved.

NUMBER OF ASSESSEES IN 1927-28 AND 1928-29 ASSESSED BY EACH INCOME-TAX OFFICER IN SIND IN RESPECT OF REMITTANCES OF PROFIT FROM FOREIGN BUSINESSES.

45. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to state the number of assesseees in each Income-tax Officer's charge in Sind who were assessed income-tax in each of the years 1927-28 and 1928-29 under "other sources" in respect of remittances of profit from foreign businesses and the number of cases in which the production of foreign books was called for ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The compilation of this information will require an amount of time and labour which is disproportionate to the result obtained, and the Government of India regret to be unable to supply it.

PETITIONS SUBMITTED BY TAX-PAYERS IN TATTA, KARACHI DISTRICT, IN REGARD TO THE WORKING OF SECTIONS 4 (2) AND 22 (4) OF THE INCOME-TAX ACT.

46. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that certain tax-payers in Tatta, Karachi District, submitted petitions to the First Member, Central Board of Revenue, in regard to the working of section 4 (2) and section 22 (4) of the Act in 1928 and 1929 ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what action has been taken in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Yes.

(b) No action was taken by the Central Board of Revenue since the points raised were, either outside the competence of the Board, or of such a nature that in the opinion of the Board no action was called for.

PRACTICE INTRODUCED BY INCOME-TAX OFFICERS OF OBTAINING THE SIGNATURES OF ASSESSEES TO REPORTS ON THE EXAMINATION OF THEIR ACCOUNTS.

47. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that recently a system has been introduced by Income-tax Officers of obtaining the signature of assessee or their clerks to the reports on the examination of their accounts in token of the correctness of the reports ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : It is not the fact that there has been any recent introduction of the system referred to. It has, however, been ascertained that the practice has been followed by Income-tax Officers in two or three districts only. The Central Board of Revenue do not approve of the practice and have issued orders directing its discontinuance.

REFUSAL OF INCOME-TAX OFFICERS IN SIND TO SUPPLY, ON REQUEST, COPIES OF ORDERS PASSED BY THEM UNDER SECTION 23 OF THE INCOME-TAX ACT.

48. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that in a number of cases in the year 1928-1929 the Income-tax Officers in Sind refused to supply, on request, copies of the orders of assessment passed by them under section 23 of the Act which, under the orders of the Central Board of Revenue, have to be supplied free of charge on request to the assessee ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the number of cases in which applicants were called upon to state the purpose for which the orders were required ?

(c) Do Government propose to put a stop to this practice ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) and (b) The facts to which the question apparently refers are not exactly as stated, for there was no case of refusal by the Income-tax Officers in Sind in 1928-29 to supply copies of assessment orders to assessee at their request. The facts in this case, which I think the Honourable Member has in mind, were that one particular Income-tax Officer, before granting copies inquired the purpose for which the copies were required in order to ascertain whether any stamp duty was leviable. This procedure was incorrect and, when it came to the notice of the Assistant Commissioner, was discontinued. It is not possible to state the number of cases in which applicants for copies were asked to state the purpose for which the copies were required as no record of them was kept.

(c) No further action is necessary as the practice referred to has already been stopped.

DEMAND BY INCOME-TAX OFFICERS IN SIND FOR CERTIFICATES FROM REGISTERED FIRMS SHOWING THAT THEIR CONSTITUTION REMAINED UNALTERED.

49. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that Income-tax Officers in Sind have called upon "registered firms", who applied for renewal of registration for the years 1928 and 1929, to furnish certificates showing that the constitution of such firms remained unaltered during the said years ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the number of cases in which such requisitions were made, and under what rules or orders they were made ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) and (b). Under rule 6 of the Indian Income-tax Rules an application for renewal of a certificate of registration must be accompanied by a certificate signed by one of the partners of the firm that the constitution of the firm, as specified in the instrument of partnership remains unaltered. If, in any case, therefore, such a certificate was not forthcoming, it was an act of kindness on the part of the Income-tax Officer to ask for it. The Government see no need to call for statistics showing the number of cases in which Income-tax Officers asked for such certificates.

PASSING OF ASSESSMENT ORDERS IN SIND IN THE ABSENCE OF ASSESSEES.

50. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that in Sind assessment orders have, since the last few years, been discontinued to be passed in the presence of assessee or their representatives and that they are generally passed several days after interview with the assessee or of the discussion of the reports of the examiners of accounts ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The facts are not as stated, and as a general rule, assessment orders are passed in the presence of assessee or their representatives. It is inevitable, however, that there should be some exceptions to this practice, in cases of a difficult or important nature, or where further inquiries are necessary. For the disposal of such cases the Income-tax Officer must obviously, on occasions, need time for consideration.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Do Government propose to instruct the Income-tax Officers to communicate the decision to the assessee forthwith in these exceptional cases ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I will look into the matter and try to give effect to the Honourable Member's desire.

NUMBER OF CASES OF PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF BOOKS BY INCOME-TAX OFFICERS IN SIND.

51. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to give for each of the years 1927-28 and 1928-29 the number of cases in which each Income-tax Officer in Sind personally examined the accounts of assessee, noted the fact as such, and based the assessment orders on such personal examination of books?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The practice usually followed is that the books produced by assessee are scrutinised in the first place by examiners of accounts, whose reports are examined along with the accounts by Income-tax Officers when they frame their assessments.

The statistics for which the Honourable Member asks can only be compiled at the cost of considerable labour and to the detriment of the current work of assessment, and the Government of India regret to be unable to furnish them.

LACK OF OPPORTUNITY AFFORDED TO ASSESSEES IN SIND TO REBUT INFORMATION DISCLOSED BY INCOME-TAX OFFICERS' INQUIRIES.

52. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that in Sind no opportunity is given to assessee to rebut the information disclosed by the Income-tax Officers' inquiries in cases in which there are no accounts?

(b) Do Government propose to issue suitable instructions on the point?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that such inquiries are made by the Income-tax Officers through their clerks in cases in which either there are no accounts or in which accounts have been rejected on the plea that they do not reflect at a glance the position of the assessee?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) Yes.

(b) Suitable instructions will be issued by the Central Board of Revenue.

(c) No such inquiries are made by Inspectors.

PAYMENT OF Bhatta AND TRAVELLING EXPENSES TO WITNESSES SUMMONED BEFORE INCOME-TAX OFFICERS.

53. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : With reference to my starred question No. 141 (b), put on the 5th September 1928, will Government be pleased to state the information since ascertained by the Central Board of Revenue with regard to the practice of payment of bhatta and travelling expenses in the different provinces and the instructions the Board have issued in consequence thereof?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The reports received from Commissioners of Income-tax showed that very few witnesses had been summoned by Income-tax Officers at their own instance, and that the payment of expenses had not been uniform since a considerable percentage of the witnesses resided at the place where their evidence was given and did not claim expenses. The Central Board of Revenue, therefore, issued a circular (of which a copy is laid on the table), directing that the expenses of all witnesses summoned by the Departments should be paid to them on the scale laid down for civil courts.

CIRCULAR No. 43 OF 1928 (D. DIS. No. 544-I.T.) 28, DATED THE 8TH NOVEMBER 1928, FROM THE SECRETARY, CENTRAL BOARD OF REVENUE, TO ALL COMMISSIONERS OF INCOME-TAX.

Allowances—Bhatta and travelling expenses to witnesses summoned by the Income-tax Department—Instructions regarding — Paragraph 67 of the Income-tax Manual.

In the last sub-paragraph of paragraph 67 of the Income-tax Manual it is laid down that the scale of diet money and travelling expenses for witnesses summoned under section 37 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, should be that prescribed for attendance in civil courts in the Province concerned. Inquiries show that, in cases where Income-tax Officers have summoned witnesses of their own accord, the payment of diet money and travelling expenses has not been uniform. The Board, therefore, directs that the bhatta and travelling expenses should be paid to all witnesses summoned by the Department on the scale laid down for civil courts, and the cost met from contingent grant of the officer concerned.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will that payment be made by the Government or by the assessee?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Payment will be made by the Government.

PERIOD ALLOWED UNDER NOTICES ISSUED UNDER SECTION 22 (2) OF THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX ACT.

54. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : With reference to my starred question No. 145, asked on 5th September 1928, will Government be pleased to state the information the Central Board of Revenue gathered with regard to the period of notices under section 22 (2) of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, and the instructions issued by the Board in consequence thereof?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The information obtained by the Central Board of Revenue was to the effect that the provisions of section 22 (2) of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, regarding a minimum period of 30 days were observed. No instructions were therefore issued.

In any case instructions are not necessary because, if a period of 30 days is not allowed, the assessment would be illegal and could therefore be set aside.

ISSUE OF NOTICE TO INCOME-TAX ASSESSEES TO RECEIVE REFUND ORDERS.

55. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : With reference to my starred question No. 151, asked on 5th September 1928, will Government be pleased to state what information the Central Board of Revenue collected and what instructions they issued on that point?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The information collected was as follows :

1. (a) Reduction in assessment on appeal under section 31.—Except in Assam and Burma, in which provinces the practice was not uniform in all the districts, either a refund voucher was sent at once without waiting for a claim from the assessee, or a notice was issued to the assessee to come and receive the refund.

(b) Re-opening of assessments under section 27.—The time allowed for payment of tax is seldom less than 30 days, whereas an application for the re-opening of an assessment made under section 23 (4), must be made within one month from the service of the notice of demand. The occasion for a refund therefore seldom arises. In those rare cases in which such occasion arose, the practice in the provinces varied, the tax being refunded in some of the provinces immediately pending fresh assessment, while in others the tax was held back for adjustment against the fresh assessment, except in cases where an assessee desired a refund.

2. The following instructions were issued :

(a) As regards cases under section 31, Assam and Burma were asked to follow the practice of other provinces.

(b) As regards cases re-opened under section 27, tax was ordered to be refunded in all cases without waiting for any application from the assessee.

RESTRICTION OF PRESENT UNLIMITED REPRESENTATION BEFORE INCOME-TAX OFFICERS.

56. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to state whether they intend to amend section 61 of the Indian Income-tax Act so as to restrict the unlimited representation by any person before the Income-tax Officers now allowable to the assessee? If so, when?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Yes, during the present session.

ASSESSMENT BY INCOME-TAX OFFICERS IN SIND OF FOREIGN PROFITS BROUGHT INTO INDIA.

57. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if, in assessing income-tax in Sind on foreign income, the Income-tax Officers do not allow a set-off in respect of loss of profits or gains sustained by assessee in foreign countries in a previous year? Is it the intention of section 4, clause 2, of the Income-tax Act that only the net amount of profits received or brought into British India have to be assessed?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to direct the Income-tax Officers to allow such a set-off?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I regret that I am unable to understand the Honourable Member's question, but I state for his information the law and practice governing the levy of tax on foreign income, which, needless to say, are the same in Sind as in other parts of India.

Under section 4 (2) of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922—

" Profits and gains of a business accruing or arising without British India to a person resident in British India shall, if they are received in or brought into British India, be deemed to have accrued or arisen in British India and to be profits and gains of the year in which they are so received or brought, notwithstanding the fact that they did not so accrue or arise in that year, provided that they are so received or brought in within three years of the end of the year in which they accrued or arose "

It will be observed that what is taxed is not the whole of the foreign profits but only that portion which is brought into British India during the year of assessment. Profits of a foreign business are computed in exactly the same manner as profits accruing or arising from a business in British India—that is to say, no set-off is allowed in respect of losses carried forward from previous years; and out of the profits so computed, the profits that are actually brought into British India are taxed.

If the Honourable Member will let me know more clearly what his difficulty is, or give me the details of the case or cases that he has in mind, I will have the matter investigated.

INSISTENCE BY INCOME-TAX OFFICERS IN SIND OF THE PRODUCTION OF BOOKS MAINTAINED IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

58. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Are Government aware that the Income-tax Officers, Karachi and Thar Parkar Districts, insisted upon the production of actual books maintained in foreign countries in order to find out the profit or loss of the assessee resident in British India, and refused to accept, from the merchants of Tatta, valid certificates or balance sheets produced from the foreign country, testifying to such loss or gain?

(b) Are Government prepared to consider the inconvenience, loss, expense and the delay in obtaining from a foreign country such books for the inspection of the British Income-tax authorities, and do they propose to direct the Central Board of Revenue to make suitable orders in relief thereof?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) The answer is in the negative, but I must confess that I do not understand the meaning of the term " valid certificates ".

(b) The question whether remittances to British India from places outside British India are the profits of a business for the purpose of section 4 (2) of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, is frequently of a complex nature and can only be decided satisfactorily by the production of the accounts of the foreign business. It is to the interest of the assessee that such books should be produced and examined, and, since the accounts are for a previous accounting period, and in a large number of cases have already been sent to the head offices of the concerns in Sind, the conditions postulated in the question do not, as a rule, arise. The Government of India do not propose to issue any orders in the matter.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Do Government realise that there is a great deal of trouble and expense involved in bringing all the books from foreign countries?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I am afraid a certain amount of trouble is always inevitable in order to obtain accurate information where businesses have foreign interests.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I suppose the Honourable Member realises that the trouble here is more than in other cases?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Does the Honourable Member mean that the trouble in Sind is more than in other cases in India?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Not that, but to bring books from foreign countries would take a long time and great expense and trouble and....

Mr. President : The next question, Mr. Lalchand.

REQUISITIONS BY TAX OFFICERS IN SIND OF ACCOUNTS OF PURCHASES AND SALES AND PROFITS AND LOSS.

59. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to state the result of their inquiries with regard to clauses (b) and (c) of my starred question No. 355, put on the 4th February 1929, with respect to requisitions by Income-tax Officers in Sind to prepare and produce accounts of purchases and sales, and profit and loss ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The information for which the Honourable Member asked in parts (b) and (c) of the question referred to was supplied to him by the Central Board of Revenue in a letter, dated the 23rd February, 1929. It was to the effect (i) that it is only in cases in which a full set of accounts, with a purchase and sale account worked out, is believed to exist, that the assessee is called on to produce a purchase and sale account, and (ii) that it is only in cases in which an Income-tax Officer has reason to believe that accounts containing a purchase and sale account have been maintained and have not been produced that the assessee is required to produce them, together with a profit and loss account worked out on the basis of the purchase and sale account.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Question No. 60, Sir.

Mr. E. L. Price : On a point of order, Sir. A question to be admissible under Standing Order 15, sub-section (3), must not contain defamatory statements. My objection is concerned with paragraph (d) which does contain defamatory statements against constituents and friends of mine.

Mr. President : The President has, after full consideration, admitted the question, and no Member of this House has a right to question his decision.

POLICY OF GOVERNMENT IN REGARD TO THE GRANT OF SUBSIDIES TO AERO CLUBS IN INDIA.

60. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many aero clubs in India have been given Moth aeroplanes free and what is the amount of subsidy paid every year to each of these clubs ?

(b) How much is Government going to pay to each of these clubs for the construction of hangers ?

(c) Are Government aware that some of these clubs are not only giving joy rides in their respective places, but are also lending machines on hire for long distance flights ?

(d) Is it a fact that one of the Moth aeroplanes of the Karachi Aero Club was given on hire to a gentleman, who flew over to Lahore, gave joy rides there and made money out of the bargain a few months ago ?

(e) Is it a fact that the machines of the Karachi Aero Club are also hired for cross-country flights in the province of Sind ?

(f) Are these planes intended for the training of local pilots within the limits of the city where the Club is located, or are they intended to be hired out ?

(g) Do Government propose to announce their policy in this regard and communicate it to the aero clubs concerned ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Four light aeroplane clubs are at present being subsidised by the Government of India, who have provided each club with two Moth aeroplanes ; these aeroplanes remain the property of the Government of India. An annual grant of Rs. 20,000 is being paid to each club.

(b) Rs. 9,000.

(c) Yes. A member of a club, who is a qualified pilot, is entitled to hire a machine for cross-country flights, subject to such conditions as the Committee of the club may lay down.

(d) A member of the Karachi Aero Club, with the approval of his Committee, hired a machine in April last and flew to Lahore where he gave four pleasure flights. These flights were duly paid for at normal rates and the proceeds were handed over to the Club.

(e) Yes.

(f) The four flying clubs were formed in order to popularise and develop civil flying in this country and to enable the art of flying to be learnt and practised at a comparatively low cost. Cross-country flying is an integral part of the advanced training of a pilot and Government see no reason to impose restrictions on such flying.

(g) No. The flying clubs are already aware of the views of the Government of India in this respect.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : What is the amount of money which was collected and handed over to the Club ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am sorry I have no information because the money was not handed over to Government.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Do I understand that the Committee permitted these long distance flights, I mean the Committee of the Club ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That is my information, Sir.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to say if, when the money (Rs. 9,000) has been given for the construction of hangers, it is binding on the Club to maintain an Air Force mechanical workshop also ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, I submit that does not arise out of the main question. If the Honourable Member had put in that as part of the main question, I would certainly have made inquiries.

PRESENT POSITION AND FUTURE PROGRAMME OF THE DACCA-ARICHA RAILWAY PROJECT.

61. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : Will Government be pleased to make a full statement regarding the present position and future programme of the Dacca-Aricha Railway project, with particular reference to the following points :

(a) the circumstances that influenced the determination of the amount provided in the current Railway Budget for expenditure on this project during 1929-30 ;

- (b) the circumstances that may have led to the curtailment of the said amount, and the resulting restriction of the programme for the current year ;
- (c) the probable time that would be taken in completing the project, if work proceeds at the present pace ;
- (d) whether, taking advantage of the modification of the present year's programme, certain commercial interests in India and England are carrying on a campaign against the project ;
- (e) whether any formal or informal representations, urging the abandonment or postponement of the scheme, have been received from any quarter ; and
- (f) whether the programme is likely to be affected in any manner by any such representations or the agitation that is being carried on in the British-owned Press in India on behalf of interested parties ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) The amount provided during 1929-30 was a proportion of the total funds available for the various new constructions, allowance being made for the time which would be occupied in the preparation of the plans and documents connected with land acquisition and the process of acquisition.

(b) The final location survey and the preparation of the land acquisition documents have taken longer than was anticipated and a general review of expenditure on constructions and open line works, including rolling stock, has led to a redistribution of funds, in which part of the allotment for the Dacca-Aricha Railway has been transferred to other works which were more in need of money.

(c) The project will probably take three years to complete from the time active construction is put in hand, which will probably be in 1931.

(d) and (e). Formal representations, both for and against the project, have been received.

(f) Government have found no reason to modify their opinion that the line should be constructed as soon as financial circumstances permit. I hope to lay on the table, at an early date, the representation received from the Bengal Chamber of Commerce and the reply which is being sent.

DISSEMINATION OF WEATHER FORECASTS AND WARNINGS AGAINST FLOODS TO INDIAN AGRICULTURISTS BY THE METEOROLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

62. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Did the Meteorological Department foresee the heavy rain and floods in Assam and Akyab that visited these areas in June last, and were warnings issued in time against the possibility of heavy rain and floods on these occasions ?

(b) If so, what are the places in the affected areas to which the warnings were communicated, through what agencies and when ?

(c) Does the Indian Meteorological Department forecast river stages and floods, as in the United States of America and European countries ? If not, why not ?

(d) Have Government any organisation for the quick dissemination of weather forecasts and warnings to the Indian agriculturist, so as to make them useful for agricultural operations ? If not, do Government propose to set up any such organisation ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) Telegraphic warnings were communicated to the Port Officer, Akyab, from May 29th to June 4th, to the Deputy Commissioner, Kyaukp-pyu on the 1st June, and to the Superintendent, Telegraph Engineering, Akyab, on the 2nd June. Similar warnings were also communicated to the Governments of Burma and Assam, to the Superintending Engineer, Maymyo and to the Press.

(c) No. The Meteorological Department does not possess the organisation which would be required to collect data of river levels without which floods cannot be foreshadowed.

(d) The Central Government have none, and in all probability Local Governments have none. Weather forecasts are sent to Local Governments, and no doubt Ministers in charge of Agriculture can come to a decision how far weather forecasts can be useful to agriculturists, and in case they are useful, what organisation is needed by them for their dissemination.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : With reference to clause (c), will Government be pleased to consider the desirability of undertaking the forecast of river stages and floods ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I shall give proper consideration to that suggestion of my Honourable friend, but I have reason to believe that he wants to reduce the expenditure of the Meteorological Department.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I do not know where the Honourable Member has gathered that impression from ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I may be entirely wrong, but I have gathered that impression from some newspaper reports.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : The Honourable Member should not rely too much on these newspaper reports, nor on his memory either ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Very well. I stand corrected, Sir.

LOCATION AND PARTICULARS OF THE COMPOSITION OF THE INCOME-TAX OFFICE AT CHITTAGONG.

63. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to state for what purpose the office of the Income-tax Officer, Chittagong, has been shifted to a place in an unfrequented part of the town ? Are Government bound to find quarters for the Income-tax Officers stationed at Chittagong ? What is the arrangement now in vogue there ? Is it permissible for the Income-tax Officer to live on the premises by cramping the office accommodation ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state when the Income-tax office was first started in Chittagong ? What is the total strength of the office now and how many of the staff are Moslems, (i) including the menials, and (ii) excluding the menials ?

(c) What is the qualification of the Head Clerk? What are his duties? Do Government propose to put a man with standard qualification there in that position?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) The building in which the Income-tax Office at Chittagong was located in 1923 was given up in 1927 on the recommendation of the Executive Engineer, Chittagong Division, who found the building unsafe, and suggested some improvements, which the landlord refused to make. There was no suitable building available near to the courts or the business portion of the city, and the present office was accordingly taken. The Government are not under any obligation to provide quarters for the Income-tax Officers stationed in Chittagong, but as accommodation was available in the upper storey of the building taken as an office it was let to the Income-tax Officer on the payment of rent. The occupation of these quarters by the Income-tax Officer has not caused any inconvenience, as the rooms available on the ground floor of the building are sufficient for the office.

(b) In 1923. Five clerks and four menials are employed, all of whom are Hindus.

(c) The Head Clerk has passed the Matriculation examination of the Calcutta University and is therefore qualified for employment in an income-tax office. His duties include the supervision of the work of the other clerks in the office and such clerical work as the Income-tax Officer may make over to him.

Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will the Honourable Member kindly tell us what is the number of Muhammadan clerks now, in 1929. The information that he has given relates to the year 1923.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I do not think I have the information available, but I will be pleased to furnish it to the Honourable Member.

DATE OF CLASSIFICATION OF SERVICES IN INDIA INTO MAJORITY AND MINORITY COMMUNITIES.

64. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state when the division into majority and minority communities was introduced in the services of the Crown in India? What is the meaning of communal inequality which Government Members so often speak of in their reply to interpellations?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I cannot assign a precise date for any formal recognition of the existence of majority and minority communities in the services of the Crown in India, but for a general review of the subject I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the debate in the Assembly of March 10, 1923. The meaning to be attached to the term "communal inequality" depends on the context in which it is used, and I regret that I am unable to give a definition of the term which would be of universal application.

DATE WHEN ENGLISH WAS MADE THE COURT LANGUAGE IN INDIA.

65. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : When was English made the Court language in India?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The Honourable Member is not correct in assuming that English is the language of all courts in British India. It is the language of the High Courts, Chief Courts and Judicial Commissioners' Courts, and as far as Government are aware has been since their creation. In courts subordinate to High Courts, the power to prescribe the language of the court vests in the Local Government.

NUMBER OF PEONS, OVERSEERS AND CLERKS RECRUITED TO CERTAIN POST OFFICES IN CHITTAGONG.

66. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many people have been recruited as (i) peons and (ii) overseers during the last five years by the Inspectors, Chittagong North and Chittagong South Postal Circles, and how many of them are Moslems?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state how many clerks have been recruited in the Chittagong Head Office and the offices subordinate thereto, and how many of them are Moslems?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) (i) By the expression "peons" the Honourable Member presumably means postmen. Eleven postmen were recruited by the Inspector of Post Offices, North Chittagong sub-division, of whom three were Moslems; fifteen postmen were recruited by the Inspector of Post Offices, South Chittagong sub-division, of whom four were Moslems.

(ii) Overseers are not recruited direct but these posts are filled by the promotion by Divisional Superintendents of competent senior postmen. Six overseers were so appointed, none of whom were Moslems.

(b) Eight clerks were recruited in the Chittagong Head Office and the town offices under it, of whom four were Moslems.

Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will the Honourable Member kindly tell us whether this low recruitment of three and four Muhammadans respectively was due to the fact that the qualified Muhammadans were not available even to become peons?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : I could not say that, Sir; I can inquire.

(1) VALUE OF MERCHANDISE THAT PASSED THROUGH THE PORT OF CHITTAGONG IN THE LAST FINANCIAL YEAR; (2) FREQUENCY OF DAMAGE TO THE DREDGERS "KARNAFULI" AND "PATUNGA".

67. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what the value of the trade that passed through Chittagong Port during the last financial year has been? How does it compare with the trade incomes of the last five years? What are the relations between the Collector of Customs at Chittagong and the Chittagong Port Trust?

(b) What are the qualifications of the Appraisers for the Port of Chittagong? How do they fix the ad valorem duties and duties based on bazar prices ? Are Government likely to lose any revenue if they are not strict in their valuation ?

(c) How many times have the dredgers "Karnafuli" and "Patunga" been damaged and why ? Is that due to their defective working ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : May I first clear up, Sir, the point with reference to the supplementary question asked on question No. 63 by the Honourable Member ? I misunderstood the Honourable Member's question. The figures which I gave him for the staff in the office were the figures as at present. They are the figures now ; they are not the figures of 1923.

In reply to question No. 67 :

(a) The following statement gives the information required :

| Year.         | Imports.Rs. | Exports.Rs. | Re-exports.Rs. |
|---------------|-----------------|-----------------|--------------------|
| 1924-25 .. .. | 1,06,15,854     | 9,49,90,927     | 67,769             |
| 1925-26 .. .. | 1,00,30,125     | 7,31,77,808     | 40,419             |
| 1926-27 .. .. | 1,64,81,542     | 7,74,45,479     | 42,985             |
| 1927-28 .. .. | 2,81,65,836     | 8,70,03,308     | 26,988             |
| 1928-29 .. .. | 2,34,95,530     | 7,38,64,078     | 35,945             |

The Collector of Customs, Chittagong, is a member of the Chittagong Port Trust.

(b) The appraisers at Chittagong are included in the cadre of appraisers at Calcutta, where they are trained as appraisers before being sent to Chittagong. Goods assessed under section 30 (a) of the Sea Customs Act are valued with reference to actual bazaar prices—as ascertained by inquiries—in certain cases, and in others with reference to catalogues, etc., where such sources of information are available.

Goods assessed under section 30 (2) are usually valued with reference to invoices either of the goods imported or of similar goods.

The answer to the concluding part of the question is in the affirmative.

(c) The dredger "Karnafuli 1" has not been in commission since the arrival of the new dredger "Patunga" in April 1928. Prior to this date there is no record of the dredger being damaged.

The dredger "Patunga" was commissioned in July 1928 and, as is usual with the new dredgers, certain defects manifested themselves during the first six months' working, which were rectified at the builders' expense. Outside this period there has only been one instance of defect, viz., when a valve of one of the engines fractured, which in the opinion of the Engineer and Ship Surveyor, Chittagong, was attributable to the faulty fixing of a screw by the builders. No further repairs have had to be executed other than those due to fair wear and tear.

TOTAL MILEAGE AND NUMBER OF WORKSHOPS ON THE ASSAM BENGAL AND EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAYS.

68. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state what is the total mileage of the Assam Bengal Railway and Eastern Bengal Railway ? How many workshops does each of the two railway systems maintain and at what cost ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The total route mileage on the 31st March, 1929, was :

Assam Bengal Railway.....1,185.

Eastern Bengal Railway.....1,847.

The Assam Bengal Railway has one locomotive and carriage workshop (Pahartali), the expenditure on which approximates to Rs. 19,92,000 per annum.

The Eastern Bengal Railway has two workshops for the broad gauge and two workshops for the metre gauge, the expenditure on which approximates to Rs. 96,10,000 per annum.

NUMBER OF MOSLEMS APPOINTED BY THE COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, CHITTAGONG, DURING THE LAST TWO YEARS.

69. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many vacancies have been filled up by the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, during the last two years, and how many have gone to Moslems ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether any clerks in the Customs Office, Chittagong, are relatives of the Office Superintendent ? If so, how many ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) The statement below gives the information asked for :

|------------------|-----------------------------------|-------------------------|---------------------------------|-------------------------|
|                  | Clerical.                         | Other thanclerical. | Clerical.                       | Other thanclerical. |
| 1927 and 1928 .. | 5                                 | 2                       | 3                               | Nil.                    |

(b) There is only one clerk in the Chittagong Custom House related to the Office Superintendent, and he is a distant relative.

NUMBER OF MOSLEMS APPOINTED TO CERTAIN POSTS BY THE CHIEF AUDITOR, ASSAM BENGAL RAILWAY.

70. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state how many vacancies amongst (1) clerks, (2) Travelling Ticket Inspectors and Examiners, (3) Audit Inspectors, have been filled up by the Chief Auditor, Assam Bengal Railway and how many of them are Moslems ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The number of vacancies filled during the twelve months ending the 30th June, 1929, is as follows :

Clerks, 24,

Travelling Ticket Examiners, 10,

Travelling Inspectors of Accounts, nil.

L2CPB(LA)

As regards the second part of the question, with your permission, I shall reply to that and the second part of question No. 72, questions Nos. 73 to 75, and the last four parts of question No. 76 together. The information in connection with communal representation in these railways will be found in the Report on Indian Railways for 1927-28, a copy of which is in the Library. The statistics were formulated in the form they are given after consultation with and acceptance by the Central Advisory Council for Railways, and Government do not consider it in the public interest to supplement them by details regarding individual officers or posts.

Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will the Honourable Member kindly tell us what he means by "public interest"?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The position of the Railway Department in this matter has been very clearly explained by Mr. A. A. L. Parsons on the floor of this House and I do not hope to better the explanation.

NUMBER OF NEW RECRUITMENTS MADE BY THE ASSAM BENGAL RAILWAY FOR NEW LINES TO NAZIR HAT, DOHAZARI AND BELONIA.

71. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state how many new recruitments have been made by the Assam Bengal Railway in connection with their new lines to Nazir Hat, Dohazari and Belonia?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Seventy-five, excluding menials (whose number vary from day to day).

PERCENTAGE OF MOSLEMS APPOINTED TO VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS ON THE ASSAM BENGAL RAILWAY UP TO JULY 1929.

†72. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state how many clerks have been appointed by the various Departments of the Assam Bengal Railway up to July 1929, and what is the percentage of Moslems therein?

Mr. P. R. Rau : During the 12 months ending 30th June, 1929, the number of clerks appointed is 230.

NUMBER OF MOSLEM STATION MASTERS ON THE EASTERN BENGAL AND ASSAM BENGAL RAILWAYS.

†73. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state how many station masters there are in the Eastern Bengal Railway and Assam Bengal Railway and how many of them are Moslems?

PERCENTAGE OF MOSLEMS DRAWING RS. 100 AND RS. 500 ON THE ASSAM BENGAL RAILWAY.

†74. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state how many officers there are in the Assam Bengal Railway drawing a salary of rupees one hundred, and five hundred and what is the percentage of Moslems therein?

†See also answer to question No. 70.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 70.

NUMBER OF MOSLEMS EMPLOYED AS CHIEF CLERKS IN THE ASSAM BENGAL RAILWAY.

†75. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state how many Chief Clerks there are in the Assam Bengal Railway, and how many of them are Moslems?

1. METHOD OF GRANTING INCREMENTS TO CLERKS ON THE EASTERN BENGAL AND ASSAM BENGAL RAILWAYS.

2. NUMBER OF MOSLEMS IN CERTAIN OFFICES IN THE ASSAM BENGAL RAILWAY.

†76. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what method is adopted by the Eastern Bengal and Assam Bengal Railways in giving increments to their clerks?

(b) How many clerks are there in the Co-operative Stores Office of the Assam Bengal Railway and how many of them are Moslems?

(c) How many Permanent Way Inspectors and Permanent Way Apprentices are there in the Engineering Department of the Assam Bengal Railway and how many are Moslems?

(d) How many clerks are there in the Chief Engineer's Office, Traffic Manager's Office, and the Agent's Office, and how many of them are Moslems?

(e) How many clerks are there in the District Engineer's Office, and how many of them are Moslems?

Mr. P. R. Rau : On the Eastern Bengal and Assam Bengal Railways the clerical staff are in various grades, in which the scales of pay are progressive. Increments in the progressive scales are given annually, subject to satisfactory work and good conduct. Promotion from one grade to another depends on vacancies and competence for the work in the higher grades.

PERCENTAGE OF MOSLEM REPRESENTATION IN STATE RAILWAYS DURING THE LAST FIVE YEARS.

77. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state what has been the percentage of Moslem representation in State Railways during the last five years, and what is the "increase" or "decrease" due to?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The percentage at the end of 1923 and 1928 were as follows:

|                             | In 1923.                                                                | In 1928.        |
|-----------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------|
| Officers .. .. .            | 3.41 per cent. .. ..                                                    | 4.33 per cent.  |
| Senior Subordinates .. .. . | 3.15 per cent. .. ..                                                    | 4.65 per cent.  |
| All classes .. .. .         | In 1925(the figures for 1923 are not available).29.10 per cent. | 29.50 per cent. |

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 70.

†See also answer to question No. 70.

The increases under Officers and senior subordinates is presumably due to the policy of employing Indians in larger numbers in the higher grades.

Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will the Honourable Member kindly tell us what is the percentage of Muhammadans in the total population of this country ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am afraid, I do not know, Sir.

PERCENTAGE OF MOSLEM CLERKS IN THE INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT, EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY AND IN THE CUSTOMS OFFICES, AT KARACHI, BOMBAY, AND CALCUTTA.

78. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state what is the percentage of Moslem clerks and officers in the Indian Stores Department, Eastern Bengal Railway and in the Calcutta, Bombay and Karachi Customs Offices ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The following is the percentage of Muslim clerks and officers in the Departments named :

|                                                                | Officers.                                                                                          | Clerks including stenographers. | Technical subordinates.            |
|----------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| Indian Stores Department (including provincial organisations). | 3.2Officers excluding clerks and Superintendents and members of the Imperial Customs Services. | 12.6                            | 7.9Clerks and Superintendents. |
| Calcutta Custom House ..                                       | 8                                                                                                  | ..                              | 13                                 |
| Bombay Custom House ..                                         | 10                                                                                                 | ..                              | 5                                  |
| Karachi Custom House ..                                        | 13                                                                                                 | ..                              | 14                                 |

Members of the Imperial Customs Service are on an All-India cadre and have therefore been excluded from the above calculations.

In regard to the Eastern Bengal Railway, Government regret that, as has been previously explained in this House, they are not prepared to supplement the figures with regard to communal representation given in Appendix F in Volume I, and Appendix C in Volume II, of the Annual Report of Indian Railways by details for individual offices or appointments.

CONVEYANCE OF MAILS IN THE TOWN OF CHITTAGONG.

79. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (1) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact :

- (a) that tenders were obtained twice for a motor service for conveyance of mails in the town of Chittagong ;

- (b) that there were some offers from men of means to run the service by motor vans on the present subsidy sanctioned for the existing pony cart service ;
- (c) that the present contract for the pony cart service provides a condition whereby either party can terminate the contract by giving a previous notice and that the present contractor has had benefit of the contract by carrying it on on a subsidy increased from time to time for a number of years ;
- (d) that the present contractor of the pony cart service is a staunch Swarajist who condemned Government in a public meeting held last year at Chittagong for not releasing the political detenus ;
- (e) that the present contractor, who got the contract originally from one Ahmed Khan, the previous contractor, on a promise of pecuniary help to the family of the latter, has discontinued the help after continuing it only for some time ;
- (f) that the present contractor has practically waged a war against the Postmaster, Chittagong, after the latter has proposed a motor service and secured men of means to undertake the proposed motor service on a monthly subsidy not exceeding the present subsidy sanctioned for the existing pony cart service ?

(2) If so, will Government be pleased to state who is responsible for the delay of about a year in the introduction of a motor service at Chittagong despite the fact that it would cost nothing extra ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (1) (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. Government have no information in respect of the latter part.

(d) and (e). Government have no information.

(f) There has been some friction between the Postmaster and the contractor.

(2) The contract for the present mail cart service is not due to terminate till the 30th September, 1930, and the Postmaster General has advisedly postponed the introduction of a motor service till its expiry.

GRANT OF RELIEF FROM ATTENDANCE ON HOLIDAYS AND SUNDAYS TO THE POSTMASTER, CHITTAGONG.

80. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Is it a fact that the Postmaster, Chittagong, has to attend office on all Sundays and post office holidays for the custody of cash and insured articles and that he has therefore to attend office on all the 365 days of the year ?

(b) Cannot an arrangement be made to relieve him of Sunday and holiday attendance, as is done in other similar or bigger offices with more cash in their custody, by allowing the group officer on holiday duty to keep a sum in a separate safe in joint custody with the Treasurer for holiday transactions ?

(c) Is an office room of 16 ft. by 10 ft. provided for the Postmaster, Chittagong ? Is it proposed to provide him with a more commodious office ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes, but no complaint was received from him.

(b) The matter has now been brought to the notice of the Postmaster General, who will make the required arrangements.

(c) Yes. A larger office room cannot be provided in the existing building.

UNSATISFACTORY ACCOMMODATION PROVIDED FOR OFFICIALS OF CHITTAGONG POST OFFICE.

81. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Is an office room of 23 ft. by 11 ft. provided for the Treasury of the Chittagong Head Office to accommodate 1 Treasurer, 1 Assistant Treasurer, 3 Treasurer's assistants, 17 cash overseers and 12 postmen (to receive and return cash for M. O. payment) ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Treasurer has not got any public counter to transact business ? Is not the Treasurer obliged to allow the officials and members of the public into the Treasury to transact business ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes, but the Treasurer and his staff are not all on duty at the same time, nor do cash overseers and postmen transact business in the treasury room.

(b) There is no public counter. The reply to the latter part of the question is in the negative.

ABOLITION OF THE RANGE OFFICE AT DACCA IN CHARGE OF THE DEPUTY POSTMASTER GENERAL.

82. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the range office at Dacca in charge of a Deputy Postmaster General would be abolished shortly ?

(b) Was not the abolition recommended by the Inchcape Committee ? If so, what has delayed it so long ?

(c) Is not the range office a source of heavy and recurring expenditure on the Post Office ?

(d) Does the office serve as more than a transmitting agency between the Circle Officer and the Divisional Superintendents and 1st Class Postmasters necessitating only duplicating and triplicating work ?

(e) When would this office be abolished ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The Postmaster General, Bengal and Assam, has been asked to examine the question.

(b) No. The latter part does not arise.

(c) The maintenance of the office undoubtedly leads to a certain amount of expenditure. But the amount is certainly not heavy. Whether it is possible to secure economy without detriment to the efficiency of administration is a matter which is already under examination by the Postmaster General, Bengal and Assam.

(d) Yes, the office has certain administrative advantages.

(e) This will depend on the decision taken by Government when they receive the report of the Postmaster General, Bengal and Assam, and the recommendations of the Director General.

HOLDING OF THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING OF THE LOCAL POSTAL ASSOCIATION IN THE POST OFFICE AT CHITTAGONG.

83. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Is it a fact that the Postmaster, Chittagong, has been taken to task by the Deputy Postmaster General, Bengal and Assam, Dacca, for having allowed the holding, on Sunday, the 28th April, 1929, of the Annual General Meeting of the local Postal Association in the Post Office premises ? If so, do Government think the objection is consistent with the policy of the Department ? If not, do Government propose to correct the officer in his attitude towards the service associations ?

(b) Was not the Postmaster, Chittagong (who is a gazetted officer), who is in charge of the buildings, competent to permit the holding of such meetings in the Post Office premises ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) The Postmaster, Chittagong, was not taken to task by the Deputy Postmaster General, Dacca. He was asked for a report by the Postmaster General. No objection was taken. Instructions regulating the matter have since been issued.

(b) Yes. This has now been made clear in the instructions.

DEATHS OF PASSENGERS IN THE S.S. "CHENAB" IN APRIL AND MAY 1929.

84. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what treatment was accorded to the passengers on board the S.S. "Chenab", which reached Calcutta on the 3rd May 1929 ?

(b) Is it a fact that 24 passengers died on board during the voyage ?

(c) If so, will Government be pleased to say who are responsible for the lamentable loss of life of these persons ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The passengers on the S. S. "Chenab" received every care and attention during the course of their voyage. The ship carried a medical officer with British qualifications, four compounders, and nurses, attendants, and stores of medicines in full compliance with the rules. Her general condition was found satisfactory when she was inspected upon arrival in Calcutta by the Protector of Emigrants and Medical Inspector.

(b) Yes.

(c) So far as the Government of India have ascertained, no responsibility attaches to anybody for the unfortunate loss of life. Most of the passengers who died were old and decrepit, or suffering from chronic diseases, and 19 of them on embarkation were certified as invalids, though the state of their health was not so grave as to justify their being forbidden to sail. The Government are, however, considering the question of taking the matter up with the Government of Trinidad.

REPRESENTATION OF MINORITY COMMUNITIES IN APPOINTMENTS IN THE POSTAL AND TELEGRAPH STAFF.

85. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Is it the intention of Government that at least one-third of the minor communities should be represented in the postal and telegraph staff ? If so, have Government issued orders to so adjust the preponderance of the majority community as eventually to bring the minority representation to one-third ?

(b) Are Government aware that, if the existing preponderance is to remain unadjusted and the future recruitment is made according to the one-third policy, the net representation would never come to one-third of the minority communities, and the majority community would ever remain overwhelmingly preponderant ?

(c) Do Government propose to go into this matter and issue necessary orders to adjust the disproportion ?

(d) Is it the intention of the orders that two-thirds of the vacancies must invariably go to the majority community, regardless of the local conditions and despite a greater percentage of population of a minority community from which suitable candidates are available ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The intention of Government is to prevent the preponderance of any one class or community in Government employment, and to this end to reserve one-third of all permanent vacancies for the redress of communal inequalities. Orders to this effect have already been issued. It is not their intention to fix for any one class or community any definite share of appointments in any particular office or service.

(b) In view of my answer to part (a) this question does not arise.

(c) Government do not at present propose to issue any further orders in this matter.

(d) The intention has been clearly stated in the reply to part (a) of the question.

SCALE OF TRAVELLING ALLOWANCE GRANTED TO POSTMASTERS.

86. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Is it a fact that gazetted Postmasters who have to visit and inspect their town post offices, get, for the actual expenses incurred, a travelling allowance only at the rate of four annas a mile for visiting and inspecting the offices ? If so, is the rate adequate considering the actual expenses incurred by them ?

(b) Have Government ascertained the rates of the hired conveyances prevailing in different towns, and if so, what was the basis on which the uniform rate of 4 as. a mile was fixed for all the towns ?

(c) What mileage is granted to a Divisional Superintendent of Post Offices for travelling ?

(d) If the rates are different what justifies this differential treatment ?

(e) Do Government propose to look into this question again carefully ? Is it the intention of the Government that the Postmasters should be given at least the actual expenses incurred by them ?

(f) Is it a fact that Postmasters, who use their own motor-cars for visiting and inspecting the offices under them are entitled only to a rate of three annas a mile ?

(g) Have Government ascertained what rates are fixed for taxis at different towns ?

(h) Has the rate of 3 annas a mile been fixed after due consideration of the wear and tear, etc., of the car ?

(i) What is the basis of the calculation of the rate ?

(j) Do Government propose to look into this matter again carefully ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : It will perhaps be convenient if I answer the Honourable Member's question as a whole.

The mileage rates of 4 annas and 3 annas referred to in parts (a) and (f) of the question are intended to cover the actual conveyance expenses incurred by the gazetted postmasters in connexion with their inspection visits. They were fixed tentatively in February 1928 and reports on their suitability were recently obtained from Heads of Circles. As these reports indicate that the rates in many places are inadequate, the whole question of these allowances is under review. These allowances are granted to gazetted postmasters in respect of journeys falling within a five mile radius of their headquarters. Superintendents of Post Offices are not ordinarily entitled to any travelling allowance for such journeys, except in certain of the larger cities, e.g., Calcutta, Bombay, Madras and Rangoon, where conveyance allowances are granted on this account.

PAY AND TRAVELLING ALLOWANCE OF POSTMASTERS.

87. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) Is it a fact that Government has admitted that the responsibilities and the nature of administration of a gazetted Postmaster is heavier than that of a Divisional Superintendent of Post Offices ? What then does justify the higher maximum pay of the Superintendent ?

(b) After what length of service does a Postmaster get Rs. 300, which a Superintendent gets on starting ?

(c) Is not a Divisional Superintendent of Post Offices a gazetted officer with a starting pay of Rs. 300, while a Postmaster drawing the same pay with a number of years' service at his credit, is not a gazetted officer ?

(d) What justifies this disparity ?

(e) After how many years' service is a Postmaster expected to get the gazetted rank ?

(f) Is it a fact that a proposal is already on foot to bring the maximum pay of a gazetted Postmaster to the level of that of a Superintendent of Post Offices ? If so, when is the proposal likely to materialise ? If not, do Government propose to remove the disparity between the pay of two classes of officers of the same Department ?

(g) Is it a fact that a Superintendent of Post Offices, starting on a pay of Rs. 300, is entitled to first class travelling allowance for transfer, while a gazetted Postmaster drawing even Rs. 700 or thereabout, does not get more than a second class travelling allowance ? If so, what justifies this differential treatment ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The reply to the first part is in the negative. With regard to the latter part of the question, I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to

(i) Item (b) of the statement furnished to him in connection with his starred question No. 156 in this House on the 23rd August 1927, and

(ii) Items 10 and 25 of 16th January, 1926 and 11th February, 1926, respectively, of the proceedings of the meeting of the Standing Finance Committee, where the Committee, for the reasons placed before them, agreed to the introduction of the existing scales of pay for gazetted Postmasters and Superintendents of Post Offices.

(b) Vacancies in the grade of Postmasters on Rs. 250—20—350 are filled by promotion within the Circle in which they occur, and as they take place at irregular intervals, it is impossible to state definitely the length of service at which an official can expect to reach the stage of Rs. 310 (there is no stage of Rs. 300).

(c) The reply is in the affirmative. I may, however, point out that Divisional Superintendents, other than those directly recruited, have considerable service in the Department at their credit before they are appointed as Superintendents on Rs. 300, while direct recruits are required to serve for two or three years as probationers before they are confirmed as Superintendents on Rs. 300.

(d) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to item (f) of the statement referred to in reply to part (a).

(e) Postmasters do not reach the gazetted grade until late in their service, and the period for which they have to remain in the non-gazetted grade depends on the occurrence of vacancies in the gazetted grade, and on their fitness for promotion to such grade.

(f) Government have no information. With regard to the latter part of the question, Government do not consider that there is any disparity, as the method of recruitment and qualifications of the two classes of officers are entirely different. As a matter of fact the maximum pay of some gazetted Postmasters is higher than that of Superintendents of Post Offices.

(g) Yes. Superintendents of Post Offices are classed as first class officers for the purposes of travelling allowance in consideration of the nature of their duties. These considerations do not apply to gazetted Postmasters.

GRANT OF PASSAGE CONCESSIONS TO SUBORDINATES OF NON-ASIATIC DOMICILE.

88. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether, at the request of the Secretary of State, they have been considering for some considerable time past the question of the grant of passage concessions to subordinates of non-Asiatic domicile ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether the concession referred to in part (a) has already been granted to ex-military clerks of Army Headquarters who have continued to be employed as such ?

(c) If the replies to parts (a) and (b) are in the affirmative, do Government propose to expedite orders in respect of the remaining classes so that they can avail themselves of the concession in the spring of 1930 ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a), (b) and (c). The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to the question by Mr. S. (Mitra) on the 18th September 1928 (No. 391). The matter is being expedited as much as possible.

CONSTRUCTION OF A RAILWAY FROM THE TANGAIL SUB-DIVISION OF THE DISTRICT OF MYMENSINGH TO THE HEADQUARTERS OF THE DISTRICT.

89. *Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Will Government be pleased to make a detailed statement regarding the present position of the proposal to connect the Tangail Sub-division of the District of Mymensingh by railway with the headquarters of the district ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : In view of the heavy construction programme which we have in hand at present, I am unable to say what the prospects are of the construction of the line being considered during the next two or three years.

DISASTROUS FLOODS IN ASSAM AND BENGAL.

90. *Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware that a disaster of unparalleled magnitude has overtaken Sylhet in Assam and Comilla in Bengal on account of the heavy floods of June last and, if so, what steps have been taken to alleviate the sufferings of the people in the affected areas ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Government are aware that serious floods have occurred in the Sadar and Brahmanbaria sub-divisions of the Tippera district in Bengal and in the Assam Valley in Assam. The Local Governments concerned have taken all possible steps to alleviate distress in the affected areas. In Bengal, in addition to loans from co-operative banks and private relief funds, rupees one lakh have been allotted by the Local Government for agricultural loans and Rs. 1,50,000 for gratuitous relief. The Government of Bengal are in close touch with the local officers and will sanction further amounts, if necessary. In Assam, the Local Government up to the end of July last, had sanctioned the grant of rupees one lakh seventy-six thousand for gratuitous relief, and rupees fourteen lakhs sixty thousand for agricultural loans. This does not, however, include their full commitment on account of the rice which has been commandeered and distributed. Relief funds have been opened by His Excellency the Governor of Assam and by local committees. Special measures have been taken to prevent epidemics, and every effort is being made to furnish seed grain for replanting of crops wherever possible. Distribution of agricultural loans has also been carefully organized throughout the affected areas.

NUMBER OF PERMANENT AND TEMPORARY COMMISSIONS, ETC., GRANTED TO EUROPEAN AND INDIAN OFFICERS IN THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE.

91. *Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) How many officers have been given permanent commissions in the Indian Medical Service since 1920, stating for each year separately the number of Indian and European officers so taken up ?

(b) How many officers have been given temporary commissions in the Indian Medical Service since 1920, stating for each year separately the number of Indian and European officers so taken up ?

- (c) How many Indian and European officers, originally recruited on the temporary basis, have been given permanent commissions in the Indian Medical Service, giving separate figures for each year since 1920 ?
- (d) How many Indian and European officers, originally recruited on the temporary or short term basis, have been holding civil appointments or collateral civil charges, giving the figures for each year since 1925 ?
- (e) How many Indian and European officers, originally recruited on the temporary basis in the Indian Medical Service, have been retired since 1920, and how many of them had put in eight years or more of service, prior to retirement, stating separately for each case, the exact number of years' service so put in, and the terms and conditions, if any, on which the retirement took place ?
- (f) How much did an Indian and European officer originally recruited on temporary or short term basis, and finally retired, cost the Government, on the average per head, and per year of service, giving separate figures for each year and each rank since 1920, including the cost of passage, bonus and allowance drawn ?
- (g) How many Indian officers have been given commissions, permanent or temporary, in the Indian Medical Service, since December 1921, giving separate figures for each year, according to the provinces to which the officers belonged ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : A statement giving the information asked for in parts (a) to (d) and (g), so far as it is available, is placed on the table.

The collection of the information asked for in parts (e) and (f) would entail an amount of time and labour which would be incommensurate with the results, and Government regret therefore that they are unable to give the information asked for.

Note.—(1) The figures relate only to officers actually holding temporary commissions in the Indian Medical Service. It would be very difficult to give figures for all those who had originally been given temporary commissions and subsequently granted permanent commissions in the Indian Medical Service.

(2) Temporary Indian Medical Service officers are recruited entirely for military employ.

(g) See the statements given under (a) and (b).

Recruitment is made on an all-India basis and figures are not therefore maintained according to Provinces.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member please inform this House with reference to his answer whether Government have taken any action on a similar matter that I brought forward in the last Delhi Session, when we discussed the grant to the Army Department ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I am afraid I must ask for notice of that question.

REINSTITUTION OF THE COMPETITIVE EXAMINATION FOR THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE.

92. *Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Will Government be pleased to state when the competitive examination for the Indian Medical Service is proposed to be reinstituted and to explain why this examination has not yet been restarted either in England or in India, when similar competitive examinations for the Civil, Police and other all-India services, which were stopped during the War, have been held for some years past ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : This time last year it was stated in reply to a question in this House on the same subject that Government proposed to wait and see what effect the reorganisation of the Indian Medical Service would have on recruitment before taking up the question of re-introducing the competitive examination.

There has been some improvement in recruitment since the reorganisation, but there is still a serious shortage in the authorised cadre, and I am afraid last year's answer must therefore hold good for some time longer. I can assure the Honourable Member that Government are continuing to watch the situation closely and that they are as anxious as he is to see matters reach a state in which the revival of the competitive examination would be justified.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member inform this House what objection Government has to reopening the competitive examination for the Indian Medical Service ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Government do not consider that it would be wise to reopen the competitive examination until there is some chance of getting people to compete.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is it a fact that if this examination was held simultaneously in England and in India, you would have ample candidates competing ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : That is a matter of opinion.

RECRUITMENT OF MUSLIMS IN DIVISIONAL WIRELESS OFFICES.

94. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to refer to the first part of starred question No. 228, answered on the 8th September, 1928, and state whether Government are prepared to say that equally qualified Muslims were not available when the recruitment of clerks was made ; if so, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement separately for each Divisional Wireless Office, showing :

- (1) Name of each clerk with designation,
- (2) Educational, technical and special qualifications of each clerk,
- (3) Date and place of recruitment of each clerk,
- (4) Starting pay of each clerk,
- (5) Present pay of each clerk,
- (6) Scale of pay of each clerk ?

(b) Were the appointments advertised in any paper ? If so, what is the name of the paper and date of its issue ? If not, why not, and why were the interests of Muslims overlooked ?

†This question was cancelled owing to the resignation of the questioner.

(c) Has any permanent or temporary clerk been appointed in either of the Divisional Offices after the issue of the Home Department Office Memorandum No. F. 176/25-Ests., dated the 5th February 1926, and the Director General's letter No. A.M.-516/12/27, dated the 22nd November 1927 ? If so, will Government include the name of the newly recruited clerk in the statement mentioned in part (a) above ?

(d) If the newly recruited clerk be a non-Muslim, will Government be pleased to state in detail the reasons justifying the employment of non-Muslims only in the Divisional Offices of the Wireless Branch ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : No useful purpose would be served by undertaking an examination of the facts connected with the recruitment of clerks in Divisional Wireless Offices before the issue of the Director General's letter of 22nd November 1927, quoted in part (c) of the Honourable Member's question, in which heads of offices in the Indian Postal and Telegraph Department were instructed to adopt, in all future recruitment, the principle of reservation of one-third of all permanent vacancies for the redress of communal inequalities. The number of permanent recruits taken in Divisional Wireless Offices after the issue of the Director General's letter is four of whom one belongs to a minority community, though he is not a Muslim. Of these four appointments, 2 were advertised for, viz., one in the Statesman of 5th August, 1928, and the other in the Statesman and the Forward of the 13th October 1928. In the case of the first of these appointments, only three applications were received from Muslims, out of a total of 21, and in the second case, no Muslims applied out of a total of 74 applicants. As the facts mentioned show that the requirements of the orders of Government have been complied with, Government have not attempted to compile all the information required to answer in detail the various items of the Honourable Member's question.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is this the attitude of Government, that where injustice is done to Muslims in a particular Department, an inquiry will not be made ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : There is no question of injustice. After the issue of the order of 1927, four recruits were taken and out of those four, one was a member of a minority community. Therefore the orders have been fully complied with, and the question of injustice to the minority communities does not arise.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it believable that out of 75 applicants, not a single one was a Muhammadan ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have stated the facts ; the Honourable Member can form any conclusion he wants to draw from those facts.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : What is the procedure for advertising for these appointments and calling for applications ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have stated the facts so far ; but I shall state, for the Honourable Member's information and for the information of other Members of this House, that in consequence of these interminable questions, I am arranging that recruitment of clerks in the Indian Posts and Telegraphs Department should be on the basis of competitive examinations, one-third of the vacancies being reserved for the redress of communal inequalities.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Are Government aware that during the regime of Lord Reading the principle was quite different and that during the present regime of Lord Irwin of course somebody is officiating for him now the attitude of the Government has been changed ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am afraid the Honourable Member has forgotten the facts. I think I have told him, time after time on the floor of this House, that he has misunderstood what Lord Reading had said in his day.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Are Government aware that Lord Reading declared in 1925 and that a circular was issued in 1925—probably on the 31st December from the Home Department that at least one-third of the appointments should be confined to the Muslim community, and that the percentage may go up to 45 per cent. if suitable candidates are available from that community ? If that is so, and if the answer is in the affirmative, do Government propose now in the public interests to qualify the answer given just now ? (Laughter).

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The precise circular is already quoted in the question of my friend, Maulvi Muhammad Yakub, to which I replied a short time ago. The purport of the circular is not as stated by my friend, Mr. K. Ahmed, but as stated by me in the course of my reply.

Mr. K. Ahmed : In view of the fact that the answer is not given accurately by the Honourable Member, and in view of the fact that he himself has brought up this matter in the Assembly by answering the question himself, may I avail myself of the opportunity to put a question whether this present Government has done away with that circular of December 1925, issued during the regime of Lord Reading ? If that is not so, do Government propose now in the public interests, to cite quotations from any circular issued thereafter from the Home Department or the Department of Industries and Labour ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The number and date of the correct circular is already referred to in the question of my friend, Maulvi Muhammad Yakub. I do not know of any other circulars. If the Honourable Member has reason to believe that there are other circulars, I would ask him to put down a question on paper, and I am sure my Honourable friend, the Home Member, will then be able to ascertain whether the statement of the Honourable Member is correct or not.

Mr. K. Ahmed : In view of the fact that the Honourable Member is now placed in a somewhat awkward position, and in view of the fact that the Honourable the Home Member has listened to these questions, do Government propose, in the Home Department or the Industries and Labour Department—I do not mind which—in order to clear up the situation, to make a statement now whether they have followed their old policy of 1925, or have come down to the new policy enunciated by the head of the Department of Industries and Labour ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : My friend over there is perfectly unintelligible to me ; he talks of a circular of December 1925 and he talks of some old policy of 1925. As I have told him, the Home Department circular is one of February 1926, and in my reply to my friend, Maulvi Muhammad Yakub, and in reply to various unintelligible questions of my friend, Mr. K. Ahmed, I have referred to that circular.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Is the Honourable Member entitled to make a defamatory statement with reference to a Member of a Royal Commission ?

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : May I ask, Sir, if the circular referred to laid down certain principles for safeguarding the interests of minority communities, and how, in view of the answer given to my supplementary question, the Honourable Member proposes to safeguard those interests consistent with the principle laid down in that circular ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I think, Sir, I have already answered that question, but for the information of my Honourable friend, Sir Abdul Qaiyum, I will make it more clear. The usual practice is that if you recruit clerks by examination,—I think that is what he has been referring to,—you reserve one-third of the vacancies for the redress of communal inequalities. That is, roughly speaking, you fill two-thirds of the vacancies from among those who stand in order in the examination, and you hold back one-third of the vacancies ; and if you find that within the two-thirds you have not got the necessary number of candidates belonging to the minority communities, you fill the one-third reserved for the purpose of redressing communal inequalities by taking in qualified candidates belonging to the minority communities.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : That is, I suppose, with respect to the posts which are competed for, or rather which are given by open competition ; but what about the other posts for which there is no competition and which are at the mercy of the departmental officers ? I want to know how they select candidates from the various communities in view of the principle laid down in that circular ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : What they are doing at present in the Postal and Telegraph Department is something like this. They advertise for recruits who will accept employment, and even now they subject them to some sort of test to find out who are the most suitable people. If there are three vacancies two of them are given to the most suitable candidates. The third vacancy is kept back for a member of a minority community, if either of the two appointments which have been filled by selection on the test of merit has not already gone to a member of a minority community.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : Do I understand, then, Sir..

Mr. President : Order, Order.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE ADMISSION OF VISITORS TO THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY AND FOR GUARDING THE ASSEMBLY CHAMBER AND BUILDINGS.

Mr. President : I desire to make a statement on a question which has been engaging my attention since the bomb outrage in the Delhi Chamber on the 8th of April last. It has not been found possible to ascertain exactly how the perpetrators of the outrage got admission into the Visitors' Gallery on that particular day, though we have heard it stated that they did so without tickets, and before the arrival of the police who check visitors' tickets at the entrance to the gallery. Whether this statement is true or not, the fact remains that some modification is called for in the system of check over admission of visitors, and perhaps also in the issue of tickets with a view to minimise opportunities of mischief of similar or any other kind in future. With that end in view, and in consultation with the Chief Commissioner, Delhi, I appointed Mr. Gupta to examine the whole question, and in particular the existing practice and procedure in regard to both these matters, and report whether any, and if so what, modifications were in his opinion necessary.

Mr. Gupta has made his Report, a copy of which was sent by him to the Chief Commissioner, Delhi, under my orders. The Chief Commissioner has since sent me a note prepared by the Senior Superintendent of Police, Delhi, who, while endorsing all the proposals made by Mr. Gupta, makes other additional suggestions. The Superintendent of Police, Simla, has also, in his letter dated the 5th August to Mr. Gupta submitted certain proposals for my consideration. I have carefully examined all these proposals, but they are so many, and some of them are so sweeping in character that I thought, before passing final orders, I should have them further examined by a Committee of this House and take their advice for my guidance. In the meantime, and pending the Report of the Committee I am about to appoint and my final orders thereon, I have introduced, as Honourable Members are aware, certain changes in the existing practice and procedure of the issue of tickets, and I have no doubt Honourable Members will do their best to co-operate with the Department in carrying them out. I am aware these changes fall far short of the proposals of Mr. Gupta or the two Police Officers, but in my opinion they are adequate enough for the purpose in view, at any rate until I have the views of the Committee of the House and am in a better position to take final decision.

It is neither necessary nor perhaps desirable that I should state my views at this stage on the proposals in question beyond indicating the general principle which in my judgment should guide the Committee in their examination of the proposals. That principle is that, while we should, and indeed we are bound to, take every precaution to ensure that no undesirable and suspicious character finds entry into any of the galleries, precautionary measures to be taken must not be of such a character as to operate as a source of harassment, annoyance or humiliation to the general public visiting the Assembly building for any bona fide purpose.

Arising out of the question under consideration, there is one other matter of no less importance which has occurred to me, and I should like the Committee to examine it on its merits and advise the President. Under the existing arrangement, the police guard the precincts of the Assembly building including the galleries, but they are not responsible to the President, and it has been even doubted whether they are under his orders while on duty when the Assembly is in Session. In the House of Commons, on the contrary, the galleries are entirely in charge of and guarded by Messengers in the Department of the Sergeant-at-arms who is the officer of the House responsible to it, and the lobbies and the floor of the House are guarded by the door keepers on the staff of the same Department. The police do not enter the galleries, lobbies or the floor of the House while the House is sitting, the only exception being that there is a constable in plain clothes present in what is known as the Members' Gallery. All other outside places within the Westminster Palace are guarded by the police who are always subject to the orders of the Speaker while they are on duty. The idea that has occurred to me is whether the time has not arrived to introduce in the Assembly the system of door keepers and messengers in charge of the floor of the House, its lobbies and galleries as in the House of Commons leaving all other parts of the Assembly building to be guarded by the police under the orders of the President. With these observations I hereby appoint a Committee of the following Members with Rai Sahib D. Dutt as Secretary—

- (1) to examine the proposals made by the Secretary of the Assembly, the Senior Superintendent of Police, Delhi, the Superintendent of Police, Simla, as also the changes recently introduced by the President, Legislative Assembly, in the system of issue of tickets and make such recommendations in regard to each of them as the Committee deems proper ;
- (2) to consider and recommend whether the time has arrived for the Assembly to entertain its own staff for the purpose of guarding the floor, the galleries and the lobbies, as also of regulating the admission of visitors and to leave it to the police, under the orders of the President to guard other parts of the Assembly building, and if so, what should be the number of door keepers and messengers required, their remuneration, method of recruitment, conditions of service, etc. ;
- (3) to make such other recommendations as they consider necessary in the circumstances ; and
- (4) to report on or before the 15th October, and if there are any point or points on which immediate action beyond what has already been taken by the President of the Assembly is in the opinion of the Committee necessary, to make interim recommendations.

Names of Members.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Chairman),
 Maulvi Mohammad Yakub,
 Mr. K. C. Roy,
 Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi,
 Mr. E. L. Price,
 Mr. K. C. Neogy,
 Mr. M. S. Aney,
 Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar, and Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh.

I also hereby direct that the Secretary do make the following papers available to the Committee :

1. Report of Mr. Gupta.
2. Note of the Senior Superintendent of Police, Delhi.

L20PFB(LA)

[Mr. President.]

3. Letter dated the 5th July from the President of the Legislative Assembly to the Clerk of the House of Commons.
4. Reply dated the 18th July from the Clerk of the House of Commons to the President of the Legislative Assembly and the enclosures.
5. Letter dated the 5th August from the Superintendent of Police, Simla, to the Secretary, Legislative Assembly.
6. Circular No. XX embodying the changes recently introduced under the orders of the President in the system of the issue of visitors' tickets.

In addition to these documents, the Committee will, if necessary, invite Mr. Gupta and the two Superintendents of Police to further explain and elucidate their proposals and also consult other officials and non-officials who in their opinion are likely to give useful information.

RESOLUTION RE AMENDMENT OF THE INDIAN LEGISLATIVE RULES.

(POINT OF ORDER REGARDING ITS ADMISSIBILITY).

Mr. President : The House will now proceed to Resolutions.

I have received a telegram from Mr. Yusuf Imam, in whose name the first Resolution stands, that I should permit Mr. Satyendra Mitra to move the Resolution on his behalf. I should like to point out to Mr. Mitra that the Resolution as it stands has become out of date in part. When the Resolution was tabled, the Secretary of State for India had not accorded his sanction to Rule 17A. He has done it since, and therefore that part of the Resolution which asks the Governor General in Council to convey to the Secretary of State for India the considered opinion of this House that the Secretary of State should not accord his sanction to the proposed rule without consulting this Assembly has become out of date. Of course the Honourable Member is entitled to amend the Resolution in the light of altered circumstances, and if he will tell me in what form he wants to amend it, I will consider whether I should allow it or not.

Mr. S. C. Mitra (Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : With your permission Sir, I should like to put the Resolution in this amended form :

" This Assembly recommends to the Governor General in Council that he be pleased to convey to the Secretary of State for India its considered opinion that :

- (i) by according his sanction under section 129A of the Government of India Act to the enactment of rule 17A he has forfeited the confidence of this House and the country,
- (ii) the part played by His Excellency Lord Irwin in the enactment of this rule is highly reprehensible, and that,
- (iii) steps be taken forthwith to make this House the master of its own procedure by empowering it to make and unmake its own rules for the conduct of business "

Mr. President : Is that the form in which the Honourable Member desires to move the Resolution ?

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Yes. I should like to move it in that amended form.

Mr. President : Before I accord permission to the Honourable Member to move the Resolution in that form, I should like to point out to the House that part (ii), which relates to the part played by His Excellency Lord Irwin in the enactment of this rule, is of doubtful admissibility, and I should like to hear if the Honourable Member has got anything to say on that point.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : With great respect for your observation, I should submit that my proposed Resolution is perfectly in order. I think, Sir, that so long as my Resolution does not contravene any of the provisions of the Standing Orders or Rules, I submit, that my Resolution is in order. The Standing Orders that are concerned are Nos. 59 and 60.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member is now reading the paragraphs of the Manual.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Paragraphs.

Mr. E. L. Price (Bombay : European) : We find it very difficult to hear at this end.

Mr. President : I cannot give the Honourable Member ears.

Mr. E. L. Price : My ears are all right.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Page 116 of the Manual, and Legislative Rules 22 and 23. So far as I see, my proposed Resolution does not contravene any of the provisions of the Standing Orders or the Rules. But when you refer to clause (ii) of my Resolution, I think you are referring to Standing Order 29. With great respect I submit that Standing Order 29 refers mainly to speeches and not to Resolutions ; it does not govern the Resolution at all. It is not my intention to reflect in any way on the conduct of the Governor General in my speech. Even if the occasion arises, I think the time for ruling me out of order will come then, but so far as my Resolution is concerned, I submit that Standing Order 29 does not affect it at all. Of course, it may be said that, under the inherent powers of the Chair, you may intervene, but in that case I would submit that the Honourable the Law Member stated on the 5th April last :

" With reference to a body like the Legislative Assembly, which is a creature of statute, all its powers are confined within the four corners of the Statute creating it. You may not stray one hair's breadth. When I say the four corners of the statute, I include, of course, the Rules and Standing Orders made under the statute. You may not stray one hair's breadth from the four corners of the statute, and the rules and orders made thereunder....."

Mr. President : Does the Honourable Member agree with that view ?

Mr. S. C. Mitra : I do not share the Honourable the Law Member's views. I think the conditions are absurd. The House must have and the President must have the right to interpret these rules, because if you are to depend on every occasion on the Governor General, he may be miles away from the centre, from the seat of the House, and the President and the House cannot decide the point, and if the President is deprived of the inherent right, work will be impossible. As I have said before, I do not accept that view. But I beg of you that this is not an occasion when the inherent right of the Chair should be exercised to disallow this part, when it is fully within the four corners of the Standing Orders and the Rules.

Mr. K. C. Neogy (Dacca Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I should like to add a few words to what has been stated by my Honourable friend, Mr. Mitra. He has made reference to certain Standing Orders already. I will just draw the attention of the House to Rule 23 of the Indian Legislative Rules. That lays down the restrictions on subjects for discussion in connection with Resolutions. Now, three different kinds of matter have been excluded specifically ; first, any matter affecting foreign relations—I am just summarising the provisions for the sake of convenience,—secondly, any matter affecting the relations of the Government with Indian States, and thirdly, any matter that may be sub judice. So, that is the only positive exclusion from the purview of Resolutions which the Rules contemplate. Now, as has been already stated, the only immunity which the Governor General enjoys is laid down in Standing Order 29, and that says that, whilst speaking a Member shall not reflect on the conduct of the Governor General. My Honourable friend, Mr. Mitra, has not yet made his speech. When he makes his speech it is for you to decide as to whether he makes such reflections upon the conduct of the Governor General as to entitle you to stop him from making any further observations. Now, so far as the wording of the Resolution goes, I do not know how you, Sir, can possibly rule out the particular section to which you have drawn attention. Then there is another point. Reference is made to the part played by His Excellency Lord Irwin. Now, let us consider what is exactly the present position of Lord Irwin. Is he, the Governor General, entitled to the immunity of the Standing Order.....

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Home Member) : On a point of order, Sir. I submit that what the Honourable Member now wants to say is not relevant to the point of order before the House.

Mr. President : I am afraid what the Honourable Member says is not relevant. The question before the House is whether Mr. Mitra's motion is in order or not.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I say that having regard to the fact that we cannot possibly have two Governors General.....

Mr. President : That is not the question which we are considering.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I do not know how we can possibly avoid that question altogether, because I take it that the only immunity which Lord Irwin could claim under the Standing Orders would be in his capacity as the Governor General.

Mr. President : That question will arise when the Resolution is moved and the immunity is claimed, not now. For the present we are considering the question whether the Chair has got the inherent power to disallow this Resolution on the ground that it involves an abuse of the forms and procedure of this House.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I have already submitted that there is no express provision in the Rules or Standing Orders which would authorise you to rule out this particular clause.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : On the point of order, I submit that the part of the Resolution to which you, Sir, have referred to is entirely out of order. In the first place I would invite your attention to the terms of Standing Order 29. The relevant words are as follows :

" A member while speaking shall not reflect upon the conduct of the Governor General ".

I now invite attention to Standing Order 61. That prescribes that the Member in whose name the Resolution stands on the List of Business shall, when called upon to move the Resolution, commence his speech by a formal motion in the terms appearing on the List of Business. In other words the formal terms of the Resolution constitute a part of the Honourable Member's speech. That, I submit, attracts the restriction of Standing Order 29. The terms of the Resolution are a part of the Honourable Member's speech and the Honourable Member, when speaking, is precluded by Standing Order 29 from reflections, in the sense which is conveyed by the terms of this Resolution. I submit for your consideration, Mr. President, that if a matter appears in a Resolution which is expressly precluded by Standing Order 29, it is impossible for that part of the Resolution to be debated. For that reason also this portion of the Resolution is out of order.

Mr. President : Under what rule ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : My suggestion is if that stands as part of the Resolution, it cannot be debated.

Mr. President : If a debate on a motion is not possible, is the Leader of the House contending that the Chair can rule it out ? Under what power ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : My point is that this portion of the Resolution is definitely out of order in view of the terms of Standing Order 29, read with Standing Order 61.

Mr. President : Supposing the Chair holds that the proposing of a Resolution is a different thing from a speech on the Resolution, will the Honourable Member tell me under what powers given to me by Standing Orders or Rules he asks me to disallow this part of the Resolution ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : On that construction of the case I could not point to any particular Standing Order. But I rely on the correct interpretation of Standing Order 29, read with Standing Order 61.

Mr. President : What I want the Leader of the House to tell me is this. In case the Chair comes to the conclusion that the proposing of a Resolution is a different thing from making a speech on it, will he tell me under what powers he asks the Chair to disallow this particular part of the Resolution ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I am not able to quote any specific Standing Order on that point, but I have already explained, Mr. President, that I rely on Standing Orders 29 and 61, which expressly declare that this portion of the Resolution is out of order.

Mr. President : Surely this is a point on which the Chair expects the Law Member to throw some light.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter (Law Member) : Standing Order 29 refers to speech. What I submit is this. If the Resolution is in terms such that you cannot embody the wording of the Resolution in your speech, then surely you cannot make a speech in support of the Resolution. That being so, how can that Resolution be debated?

Mr. President : Under what express provision can I disallow it?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : If you come to the conclusion that objectionable matter must necessarily be in that speech, then, on the true construction of Standing Order 29, you can disallow it, because you have to enforce the Standing Order.

Mr. President : In that case I can stop the Honourable Member from making a speech. How can I disallow the motion?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : If he cannot make a speech he cannot move. The motion must necessarily be an essential part of the speech, because that is the motion. If that motion is objectionable, then the speech in support of it should be ruled out of order. If that is ruled out, then the motion necessarily falls with it. I do not know whether I have made myself clear. Supposing the objectionable portion formed the Resolution, and there was no other part. The Member moving the Resolution must make a speech in support of that Resolution. Now that Resolution in terms is objectionable in a speech. It would indeed be an essential part of the speech itself and all the other matters in that speech must be in support of it. They are complementary to the objectionable portion. That being so, the whole speech becomes out of order. And that is so on account of the wording of the Resolution.

Mr. President : The Honourable Law Member's contention the other day was that the Chair and this House were the creature of a statute and unless express power were given to them to stop discussion or to disallow a Resolution on the ground that it involved an abuse of the forms and procedure of the House, they could not do so. His contention was that the Chair had no inherent power. I would like to know whether there is any express power which he can quote which will enable me to rule this motion out of order.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : As I have said, Sir, beyond Standing Order 29 there is no other Standing Order or Legislative Rule covering this point. My submission is this, that you, being the authority charged with interpreting these Standing Orders, on a strict interpretation of them, you can and should rule it out.

Mr. President : I am quite convinced that the motion itself involves an abuse of the forms and procedure of the House; I have not the slightest doubt about that. The question is whether I am entitled to rule it out in the absence of any express power in that behalf.

Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan (United Provinces : Nominated Non-Official) : Standing Order 58 allows you to rule it out of order.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Probably you were referring to your last ruling. Let there be no misunderstanding about it, Sir. That was about quite a different matter and is clearly distinguishable. Your last ruling was upon a matter which was already in the possession of the House. This matter would not be in the possession of the House till you allow it. Therefore it is a matter entirely for you now. It is not a matter which is before the House. That being so, your last ruling is clearly inapplicable to the present case. Therefore, I will not say anything more about that last ruling. But what I do say is that, on a strict interpretation of the two Standing Orders, it is impossible for any Member to move the Resolution, because it must necessarily involve his stating that Resolution in a speech and making a speech in support of it; and if the essential part be bad, then the rest must necessarily be bad also. Your power flows from those Standing Orders, because you have to enforce them.

Mr. President : I should like to know from Sir Darcy Lindsay whether he thinks the Chair has inherent power to disallow this Resolution on the ground that it involves an abuse of the forms and procedure of the House.

Sir Darcy Lindsay (Bengal : European) : It is very difficult to hear the proceedings from this part of the House and I have been quite unable to follow the arguments put forward by the Mover and also some of the arguments put forward by the Home Member. I do not even know, Sir, what is the amended Resolution (Hear, hear). I speak on behalf of this part of the House when I say that we are very severely handicapped. You ask me, Sir, to put forward my views in the matter. It appears from your very remarks, Sir, that you should disallow the Mover from moving the Resolution at all. He has made an attempt to so amend a Resolution put forward by another Member as to put it in what may appear to be an objectionable form, a form contrary to certain regulations. You find difficulty, Sir, in ruling the objectionable portion out of order because there is no rule or Standing Order that directly empowers you to do so. On the other hand, Sir, you have expressed your view that the wording is open to objection, and on these grounds, Sir, I submit to you that you should disallow the Member from moving the Resolution.

Mr. President : In the absence of any express power?

Sir Darcy Lindsay : Does it not lie with you, Sir?

Mr. President : I think I have the power.

Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan : Sir, under the Standing Order that is quoted on page 47 of the Manual of Business a Member who wishes to move a Resolution shall give fifteen days' clear notice of his intention.

Mr. President : That is not the point we are discussing. The point we are discussing is whether that part of the Resolution of Mr. Mitra, to which objection has been taken, is in order or not on the ground that it involves an abuse of the Standing Orders.

Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan : Yes, my point is, and I am raising this point of order, that not only a portion but the whole Resolution, which he seeks to move, is out of order.

Mr. President : We are not concerned with that. We are concerned with the particular part of the Resolution to which I have taken exception.

Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan : My point of submission to you is that.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member may raise another point afterwards ; we must confine ourselves to the point that we are now considering.

Mr. E. L. Price : Sir, it is laid down by Standing Order No. 61, that a Member must necessarily begin his speech with the motion that he is moving. The motion, therefore, itself is the exordium, an integral part of his speech. He cannot, however, utter in his speech words that are prohibited by Standing Order 29. But, Sir, you are asking how you have specific authority to bar the motion. I suggest, Sir, that that is beginning at the wrong end. It is rather this, that you have specific authority to admit a motion that is in order and then a motion is submitted in an undesirable form, in a form that is not in accordance with the Rules or Standing Orders, you will refuse to admit it ; you will not assume authority to admit a motion in a form that you yourself condemn.

Diwan Chaman Lall (West Punjab : Non-Muhammadan) : I should like to know, Sir, whether the reflection that is contained in Mr. Mitra's Resolution relates to such action in official capacity or not.

Mr. President : It is a very curious coincidence that this question, viz., whether the Chair has inherent power to disallow a motion or rule a motion out of order on the ground that it involves an abuse of the rules and procedure of this House should arise on the very Resolution which seeks to protest against the action of the Governor General in Council and the Secretary of State in enacting a rule purporting to deprive him of such power. It is a very curious coincidence, and I sympathise with the Opposition as well as the Government for the attitude they have got to take up in putting their respective cases. The Opposition, so far as I have been able to gather, contends that the Chair has got no express power to disallow this motion and, therefore, it must rule it in order, although the motion might involve an abuse of Rules and Standing Orders.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Has anybody contended that ?

Mr. President : It has been contended that the Chair has no express powers, and therefore it cannot disallow this motion. On the other hand, Government contend that, although the Chair has not in so many words the express power given to it, it must disallow this Resolution, because, under Standing Orders 29 and 61, read together, the very moving of the motion constitutes an abuse of Standing Orders. As I said, I really sympathise with both sides of the House. This is all very amusing, but that does not absolve me from the responsibility of deciding the point of order that has been raised on the floor of this House. The question I have to decide is.....

Mr. K. Ahmed (Rajshahi Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Take the vote of the House and decide it.

Mr. President : Order, order—whether the part of the Resolution in question is in order. There is of course no rule or Standing Order which gives the Chair express power to rule it out of order. At the same time there is no doubt that the Resolution cannot be moved without referring to matters which have been prohibited by Standing Order 29. In fact the only matters that could be relevant are those which come under prohibition. I am convinced, therefore, that no debate is possible on this motion without wholesale infringement and abuse of the Standing Order in question, and yet I would be bound to admit the Resolution and put it to the vote of the House if I had no inherent power to rule it out. This would result in absurdities. I have no doubt in my mind that every occupant of the Chair of a deliberative assembly possesses and ought to possess, if he is to function as such, inherent power to prevent the abuse of the forms and procedure of that body. It is no doubt true that these discretionary powers are liable to abuse, but for that the remedy is obvious. If the occupant deliberately and grossly misuses or abuses these powers, the Assembly can remove him by a vote of no-confidence. The remedy does not lie in the direction of endeavouring by any rule or resolution to restrict or take away those powers. I am convinced that the Chair has got the inherent power to rule a motion out of order on the ground that it involves an abuse of the rules and procedure, and I have no doubt that this motion does involve such abuse. I, therefore, rule that part of the Resolution out of order, and will allow Mr. Mitra to move the other parts of the Resolution.

Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan : May I raise my point of order now ?

Mr. President : Order, order. The Honourable Member will have an opportunity later. Before, however, Mr. Mitra proceeds to move his Resolution, I should like to make one suggestion. I know several Honourable Members are annoyed because the Secretary of State has sanctioned Rule 17-A, particularly at this juncture when this Assembly was going to meet and when the Resolution on the subject had been tabled and balloted. But before I really make any suggestion to the Honourable Member, I should like to know exactly what the attitude of Government would be in regard to proposals for the amendment of rules in future, so that the Honourable Member (Mr. Mitra) and the House may know exactly how matters stand. If Government have no objection to state what their attitude in regard to the future proposals for the amendment of rules was going to be, I hope they would disclose it to the House.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, I am much obliged to you for giving me this opportunity of stating the position of the Government with regard to the making of rules regulating the course of business and the preservation of order in the Chambers of the Indian Legislature. Government considered this matter very seriously and they have come to a definite conclusion, and, as you, Sir, want to know the attitude of the Government, I shall state it as briefly as I can.

Under the Government of India Act, the whole duty and responsibility in respect of the Indian Legislative Rules are laid on the Governor General in Council and the Secretary of State in Council, subject always to the control of Parliament. The Governor General in Council cannot, under the constitution, refuse to discharge this duty, nor can he share the responsibility with any other body. That is, Sir, the constitutional position. But the matter is not concluded by that in so far as the Government attitude is concerned. Honourable Members will realise that the Government of India Act makes no provision for consultation with the Legislature. Although there is no provision in the constitution, yet there is nothing in it to exclude the establishment of conventions or understandings whereby the Executive, charged with the duty of making the rules, may adopt the practice of approaching the Legislature for advice, before proposing any amendments. So far back, Sir, as May 1924, it was definitely announced in the House of Commons, "that the desirability of consulting the Legislature before changes are made in any statutory rules is always considered when the proposed change could suitably be made the subject of such consultation". It would be observed that this policy, which has been the policy of the Government of India, contains a two-fold reservation. In the first place, the proposed change must be one which could suitably be made the subject of consultation with the Legislature, and, in the second place, the desirability of consulting the Legislature in that particular case, when the first condition is fulfilled, is to be considered. In accordance with that policy, I can cite instances when the Legislature has been consulted before alterations have been suggested in the Legislative Rules. Thus, rule 48-A, which makes provision for the Railway Budget being discussed separately from the General Budget, was inserted after and as a result of acceptance by this House of a Resolution moved on behalf of Government for the separation of the Railway finance from the General finance. The present attitude of Government is a further step in advance, and they agree to bring before the House all important alterations in the Legislative Rules before reporting them for the sanction of the Secretary of State in Council. I am sure Honourable Members will realise that this represents a very considerable advance on the present convention. Government have given their most anxious consideration to this question and desire, so far as possible, to meet the wishes of the House in this matter. In this connection I would also make it perfectly clear that when amendments have been considered by the Legislative Assembly, the Government will undoubtedly give the most careful consideration to the views of the House, but they cannot bind either themselves or the Secretary of State to do more than that, because, after all, the ultimate authority is the Secretary of State. I also want to make it clear that Government must retain one reservation, and that is a reservation in cases of emergency. Without such a reservation they cannot but feel that they would be doing precisely what I have said under the constitution they are not permitted to do, that is to say, they would be seeking to share the responsibility which is laid upon them by the Government of India Act with the Indian Legislature. If the Government must discharge the responsibility vested in them, they must remain the judges of what constitutes such an emergency as to require them to proceed without consulting the Legislature in respect of the change of any of the Legislative Rules. Subject to such exceptional cases, which it is the sincere hope of Government, will be of the rarest occurrence, Government are in full sympathy with the establishment of a convention by which both Houses of the Legislature should be consulted before any important change is made in the Rules. That, Sir, is the Government's attitude.

Mr. President : To put it briefly the attitude of the Government is that henceforth, in all matters of important amendments of rules, they would consult the Legislative Assembly before they submit, their proposals to the Secretary of State, except in case of emergency, and the Assembly is not in Session at the time. In that case they reserve to themselves the right to approach the Secretary of State without consulting the Assembly. Such cases, according to them, would be very, very rare and exceptional. That being so, one point the Honourable Members have gained, namely, that henceforth they would be consulted before any proposal containing an important amendment of the rules is taken up.

The further question proposed to be discussed by the Honourable Member from Bengal really concerns the President no less than the House, and by common consent, you have appointed me as the custodian of the rights and privileges, of the honour and prestige of this House and the sole director of its procedure, and I feel that no useful purpose would be served by discussing or recording a vote of censure against the Government of India or the Secretary of State for not consulting the Legislature in regard to this particular amendment, because, so far as I have been able to gather during my experience of four years in this Chair, what the Assembly wants is not merely the right to be consulted, but full power to make and unmake its rules of business, irrespective of the Government of India or the Secretary of State. They are not going to be satisfied with the right to be consulted, but what they are concerned with is the main thing, namely the right to make its own rules and unmake them. That being so, I am clearly of opinion that no useful purpose would be served by discussing this vote of censure on the Secretary of State and the Government of India. Honourable Members are also aware that the whole of the Government of India Act, every rule and regulation made under it are in the melting pot and who knows what is going to come out of it. This particular rule, which has been recently sanctioned by the Secretary of State, is also in the melting pot and in the meantime, I know, as your President, what the self-respect and the dignity of this House demands, and if any occasion arises, I hope it will not arise, when it is necessary that I should fight for the liberties of this House and the dignity of the Chair, I hope Honourable Members have sufficient confidence in me to believe that I shall rise to the occasion.....

Mr. K. Ahmed : The Honourable President is doing it now.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member must be very careful in dealing with the Chair. I therefore trust that the Honourable Member from Bengal will accept my advice and not raise this discussion at this juncture.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Sir, I know full well that the House has complete confidence in its President (Applause). I have taken into serious consideration the letter that His Excellency the Viceroy wrote for this House which was read yesterday by you and also the statement made by the Honourable the Law Member. Although we object, and very strongly object, to the reservation of power in cases of emergency, yet I think I will be well advised to accept your suggestion and I therefore beg leave of you not to move this Resolution.

RESOLUTION RE THE ESTABLISHMENT OF PANCHAYATS IN VILLAGES.

Mr. K. V. Ranagaswami Ayyangar (Madras : Landholders): Sir, I beg to move :

"This Assembly recommends to the Governor General in Council that he do appoint a mixed committee of officials and non-officials to examine the rural conditions obtaining in the various provinces, and to recommend ways and means for establishing in each village, or group of villages with a population of not less than 1,000 inhabitants, an efficient panchayat which will mainly be elected on the adult franchise system, and possess sufficient legal powers and financial resources for administering all village concerns, such as agriculture, minor irrigation and forests, cottage industries, village sanitation, education, co-operation, trade and banking, and for deciding civil and criminal suits up to a certain limit, subject only to the general control and technical advice and appellate jurisdiction of District and Provincial officers and Courts of Law.

Sir, the subject of the Resolution which I have moved is one for which I crave the Honourable Members should evince a great deal of interest and also of patience. I may point out that, last year, my Honourable friend, Mr. Acharya, wanted to move this Resolution at a time when the Simon Commission was here and I had then my own misgivings about the wisdom of moving that at that particular time. I wanted him to wait for some time longer before this question could be brought up before the Assembly when feeling was not running high and when it was in a mood to hear as patiently.

Now, Sir, coming to the subject of my Resolution, for the last half a century, two schools of political thought have been exerting their best powers to bring about a better state of things in the economic, political and moral condition of the people of India, and it will be pertinent to the subject if I should briefly describe the directions in which these two parties have been working to bring about that common goal.

During the beginning of the Congress, the one school of political thought that guided the destinies of that institution was that of the founders and builders of that great institution—the National Congress—as represented by the late Messrs. Hume, Ranade, Gokhale and Wedderburn and others. They really thought that “spade work” in the geographical and political unit of this country, that is, the village was essential, so that people there should be made to live a better life and be made to think very strongly on the injustice done to them, either by their own upper classes, or by the Government, and also to evince a feeling of gratitude for the benefits conferred on them and thereby become true citizens of the State.

Without making the masses feel that, and thereby the true political fire of the nation being kindled in these people, the founders of the Congress thought that India could not have a better form of government and India could not efficiently put a brake on the economic exploitation of the country. Up till a recent period this school of thought guided the destinies of the Congress, and they carried the day. But for the last 15 or 20 years the other school of thought came to loom large in the destinies of the Congress, and this party thought that this up-hill task of working from the village unit was impossible without having a voice in the government of the nation and wished to put pressure on the Government to grant Home Rule and this party came to be styled the “impatient idealists” or the “extremist party”, and they are adopting their own methods of educating the country by expressing their resentment against the present form of government, and of bringing pressure upon Government to delete or withhold all objectionable legislation. Their methods have till now been confined mostly to the Councils and a little outside it by various experiments as “non-co-operation”, “hartals”, “abstention”, “boycott”, etc. These are within the knowledge of the Members of the Assembly. I recapitulate this before touching upon the subject matter of this Resolution, only to focus the attention of the country on the vast work that lies before it in the villages, and also to seek the help of Government, on behalf of the former set of political thinkers I have described above, who were the founders of the Congress, to effect some serious reforms among the masses of India, without which I think the nation is bound to deteriorate day by day. With all the impatient zeal for getting Swaraj all at once, I was faced many a time with the cold logic of that great saint Mahatma Gandhi, that political emancipation is not a plum to drop of its own accord into the hands of a lazy and unsacrificing nation. Many of the impatient idealists are made to feel the truth of the practical motto of such workers as the Servants of India Society, that every nation deserves the government that it has, and so India should elevate itself to deserve Swaraj.

It may be contended that the subject matter of the Resolution is a provincial subject, and every item noted in this Resolution is a transferred subject now administered by the elected representatives of the local Councils. Being in that category, there will be many zealous friends here, as well as outside, to hold that it will be appropriate to move it in the provincial Councils, instead of making the Government of India interest itself in that matter. I am aware of the constitutional point of view involved, and let me state that my object in bringing this question up here is to co-ordinate the results of the many committees and commissions which have been the subject matter of inquiry by and for the Imperial Government. We have had the Report of the Agricultural Commission and if at all the suggestions of this Agricultural Commission should have any practical result, there should be a village working unit effectively to carry out the suggestions of the Commission by having experimental farms in the villages and having the agriculturists of the villages better protected. The Ministers in charge of the subject cannot be dictated to by the Central Government. Will the Research Institute create a village unit and make it a living organisation to carry out the instructions and advice of this central organisation? Fortunately this institution of the Agricultural Research Institute is not a transferred subject under a Minister, but it is directly under the control of the Government of India.

Now, there is a Banking Inquiry Committee. There are no doubt in it members of the Co-operative Societies. Co-operation is a transferred subject, but the Banking Inquiry Committee was instituted by the Government of India. If my object in bringing this Resolution is to suggest that instead of these Co-operative Societies being a transferred subject in the provinces they should be directly administered by the Government of India, will I not be in order in having brought this subject before this Assembly? I am not concerned with what it is at present, but I am concerned with what it ought to be, and so my suggestions should not be dismissed lightly because it is a transferred subject. I am sure co-operation can have better credit with a cheaper rate of interest, and usury and idle waste will be stamped out of India if this allied department of Indian banking, that is co-operation, is administered directly by the Government of India. It may be that at present it is administered in an efficient manner under the transferred Department, but my suggestion for the Government of India taking control out of the hands of the provinces may be appreciated because the vast credit that is required for Co-operative Societies may be had only if the Imperial Government take it over upon themselves. The Committee I am recommending to be constituted by this Resolution may consider this point, and by the time the Banking Inquiry Committee finishes its investigation, it may make known to the Government of India whether the Co-operative Societies in the villages and the urban banks in the districts cannot be administered by the Government of India direct.

Government cannot divest themselves of their responsibilities of the trusteeship of the masses of India, and as such, it is a thing to be regretted that the responsibility of nation-building departments is shifted from the shoulders of Government to that of the Ministry, many of whose communal activities in the provinces are not conducive to the efficiency of the departments governed by them. Such departments as education, agriculture, co-operative and panchayats should be directly administered by the Reserved half, or by the Government of India themselves. In the Co-operative Department something like five to ten crores will be required to wipe off the indebtedness of the agriculturists,—at least in some of the big districts like Tanjore and Trichinopoly. Can you find credit for these five or ten crores if it is to be administered by the Transferred half? We should have the credit of the Government of India to back them up so that they may have these five or ten crores at their disposal to liquidate all the usurious loans the agriculturists have contracted, so that they may have greater happiness, and co-operation may be a living factor and a more useful factor in the villages. Sir, it will no doubt be a strange confession from one who has belonged to the extreme wing of the Congress for the last quarter of a century, to say that the development departments should be managed by the non-communal and unbiassed British element. But I cannot help giving out what I feel on the subject. I may, at the same time, voice forth my opinion that the best way of training Indians for befitting them for higher forms of self-government and the management of their own affairs would be more to associate them intimately in such departments as the Army, Railways and foreign relations.

Even as regards the giving of universal franchise for the election of members to the Central Legislature I have my own views. A village panchayat, elected by universal suffrage in the village, will be the foundation of the entire structure of the British Government and the Central Legislature in India. This panchayat will in turn elect the members of the Indian Parliament. Some of us wanted to suggest, even last year, when Sir John Simon was here, that, instead of a direct representation or having a member to represent about  $\frac{1}{4}$  million of the population, as suggested in some other popular report, it would be far preferable to elect 500 members through the franchise of the five hundred thousand panchayats, formed at the rate of one panchayat per village or two. But we could not do it for various reasons last year—there was the political issue and we had to obey the fiat of our leaders. But the ignorance of the villager is appalling, and to let loose communalists and other prejudices to excite their sympathy for voting for a particular candidate and also the adoption of other doubtful means such as we have been witnessing these years, is not conferring a boon on the country. I do recommend therefore indirect election through the panchayats and not direct election in the present state of the masses. The local Ministry at Madras is now trying to do away with the taluk boards and in their place to create the village unit to work out the problems of village education, roads, settlement of civil disputes, co-operation, etc. The scheme that I am asking Government by this Resolution to investigate is only to develop the village institutions directly responsible to the Central Government, and to elect members to the Legislature. The ideal scheme of a central government can be evolved from the village units which elect a district government and which, in its turn, is controlled by the central government. By this scheme these costly provincial governments may be done away with and one central ideal government may be thought of. But in these days when provincial autonomy is on the lips of every one, this ideal of a district autonomy responsible only to the central government may, at the outset, look fantastic. But, Sir, that is the form of government obtaining in the United States of America and it may be copied in India. District autonomy will be the most ideal form of government that can be adopted for the administration of India. The wrangle for linguistic provinces, like Utkal, Andhra, Karnatic, or the separation of Sind, will all go away, and village institutions will be better managed in each district. Each district being as big as the average Indian State, these districts may be self-governing units under the control of the central government. We have been working the present Reforms for the last ten years, and if they are to be worked on the present lines, I do not know how long it will take for the masses to understand the Government and to discriminate between the political issues, and to imbibe the political instinct of the Western nations. Indian politicians, even of liberal instincts, who have seen the advantages obtaining in the foreign countries, when they come to India, have to look at things as they appear here and have to defer to the communal prejudices which set at naught the true interests of the country. Everything is not aright with the village artisans, with the economic conditions of the village, with their education and with their moral standards; and he is no leader of the country who does not feel the ills and diagnose the same and take his courage in both hands to expose the weakness and seek the aid of the custodians of the popular welfare, that is, the present Government, in order to better the condition of the people. There is no use becoming touchy or sentimental when the weak spots in our character or our social evils are pointed out, or denying the same where they exist, or pointing out such evils or worse conditions in the habits of a foreign nation. The true well-wisher of the country must begin the spade work that was begun by the late Mr. Hume or Mr. Gokhale or Sir William Wedderburn, in the villages. We have a few workers in the villages and they are becoming rapidly popular, and we want the aid of the Government to help and to come to their aid.

By these words I do not mean to speak disparagingly of the work of some of the leaders of our country, who think that they can bring in a better state of political and economic conditions by their endeavours to rectify the Government from the top, and that they should therefore begin at the top. What I want to say is this: let us not forget the other side of the work, such as is being done by the Servants of India Society, Mr. Kelkar and others, that is, work from the bottom, the village unit. I shall only give expression to my view that real and honest efforts lie in unostentatious work in the village unit, which, I see, many are doing and have begun to do. My friend, Mr. M. K. Acharya, will tell the Assembly how the late Mr. C. R. Das himself came to feel like that in his later days. It is depressing at the present moment to see the conditions prevailing in the villages. No worker can be optimistic of the future of India if he were to scrutinise the moral and material degradation of the people daily. It is to bring in a better state of things and to create a powerful village unit that I venture to seek the aid of the Government to help the workers in this direction. With these words I beg to move my Resolution.

Mr. M. K. Acharya (South Arcot cum Chingleput : Non-Muhammadian Rural): Sir, I am thankful to my friend, Mr. K. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar, for having placed this Resolution in the very clear manner in which he has done before this House. I should confess that I am responsible for the wording of this Resolution, but only for the wording. I have no right to take any credit for the central idea, which belongs to some one else, to one far greater than myself, I mean, the late Deshabandhu C. R. Das; and I am glad to see that, unlike other Resolutions subjected to the scrutiny of Members, this Resolution has not got any amendments so far tabled under it. I find no amendment of any kind; and I hope therefore I may take it as an indication that there is not much difference of opinion with regard to the subject matter of this Resolution. Nevertheless, Sir, I have just a few words to say in pointing out what I consider are the issues involved in this Resolution. I will state them in the form of a few questions and answers.

The first question is whether rural autonomy on a wide scale is desirable. This Resolution wants rural autonomy on a wide scale; and it recommends to Government to appoint a mixed committee of officials and non-officials to inquire into the rural conditions at present existing, and to suggest various means for organising rural autonomy on a wide scale. Now, my answer to that question is, yes, both for administrative efficiency and for constitutional development; and my authorities are these. In their Report, the Decentralisation Commission, which visited this country about 20 years ago, said this:

"The foundation of any stable edifice of local self-government, which shall associate the people with the administration, must be the village".

This is what they have said on page 439 of their Report. Secondly, even according to the Preamble to the Government of India Act, the policy of the British Government in India is declared to be:

"The development of self-governing institutions with a view to progressive realisation of responsible Government in India".

The development of self-governing institutions, therefore, must begin in the village; the village is and has always been our lowest administrative unit. And lastly, I rely on the authority of the late Mr. C. R. Das, than whom there was no stauncher patriot or greater statesman in India. In his famous speech delivered at the Gaya Congress, he said this:

"To me the organisation of village life and the practical autonomy of small local centres are more important than either provincial autonomy or central responsibility".

In this one sentence, that most powerful exponent of rural autonomy has practically given all his thoughts on the subject. He has said in another place:

"If to-day the British Parliament grants provincial autonomy in the provinces with responsibility in the Central Government, I for one, will protest against it; because that will inevitably lead to the centralisation of power in the hands of the middle class. I do not believe that the middle class will then part with their power. How will it profit India, if in place of the white bureaucracy that now rules over her, there is substituted an Indian bureaucracy of the middle classes?"

Therefore, in his opinion, if any true scheme of Swaraj is to be evolved, and all India should mourn that he has not been spared to us to evolve a suitable scheme for attaining Swaraj on right lines, we ought to begin with the village as the starting unit. So, Sir, on these three authorities I come to the conclusion that rural autonomy is desirable, and indeed very necessary, both for administrative purposes and for constitutional advance.

The second question is this: Is not such development of rural autonomy to be left entirely in the hands of the Provincial Governments? My answer is, no; because after the recommendations of the Decentralisation Commission in favour of the village panchayats, the progress made in that direction by Provincial Governments during the last twenty years has been very tardy. Even after the Act of 1919 came into force, even after local self-government has been made a Transferred Subject and placed in the hands of Ministers, the progress made during the past nine years has been very tardy indeed, if the figures are to be trusted. The House may remember that some time last Session I had given a number of questions asking for statistics; and these are the figures I got from Government. For the whole of India the total number of towns and villages is 500,042, according to the last census. The total population is 246.9 millions. The total number of villages with a population under 500 is 346,138; the total number of villages with population above 500 and below 5,000 is 133,573. And there are only 2,313 towns in British India, of which less than 750 are big enough to form municipalities. The number of district boards and municipalities is 224 and 749 respectively. The number of union boards and village panchayats for the whole of India is only 9,747 for five hundred thousand and odd towns and villages. There have been established during the past ten years in all the provinces put together only 9,747 village unions, village boards, village panchayats, of any kind. This is ample proof, I contend, to show that the subject of local self-government has been handled by the Provincial Governments, by the Ministers responsible in the various provinces, in a manner not at all conducive to the best interests of the country. The figures show something very deplorable indeed. Therefore, I say that because the Local Governments have been doing their work in a manner which is neither to their credit nor to the advantage of the country, the matter must be inquired into, in order that some comprehensive scheme could be evolved. I repeat that no efficient scheme has so far been evolved in any province up to date. Therefore, Sir, I think the time has come, before any large step in the direction of constitutional advance is taken, for us to tackle this question seriously.

Now, Sir, the next question I propose to answer is: Why should the Government of India deal with this subject? Well, I have already given some of my reasons. The Central Government should tackle this problem as provincial Governments have failed in their duty. I might also give some other reasons; and here are some: The Government of India ought to take steps to emphasise rural autonomy as the basis of provincial autonomy and central responsibility. The late Mr. C. R. Das has pointed out how it is only the Central Government that can take effective steps to evolve some scheme of Swaraj or responsible Government which will integrate together rural autonomy, village autonomy, provincial autonomy and central responsibility, all into one living comprehensive whole. Secondly, we want some comprehensive scheme integrating rural and provincial autonomy, which can be adapted to provincial conditions; and thirdly, we should find a solution to the problem of a proper and workable franchise to the Provincial and Central Legislatures. For this purpose the development of the panchayat system, or rural autonomy is very necessary ; it deserves to be carefully inquired into. I may show how it is very necessary in a minute. For example, universal adult suffrage in present Indian conditions for the Provincial and Central Legislatures is quite impractical and undesirable. If universal adult suffrage is introduced, it will be fraught with most undesirable consequences. The demand has been made, for instance, by the Nehru Committee, who, in their Report, suggest 500 seats for the House of Representatives corresponding to the Assembly to be elected by all the people, men and women, of all grades and sections above the age of 21. This will mean at least 125 millions of voters, roughly, calculating the adults to be half of the total population ; that is to say, one quarter of a million for each seat, or two and a half lakhs of votes for every seat in this House. Two and a half lakhs of voters for every seat ! My European friends do not know what it is to go about in a constituency and get votes. Two and a half lakhs of votes for every seat in the Lower House of the Legislature is a number which I should consider to be fantastically too large, because of the 250,000 not more than four per cent., or 10,000, can be expected to take any intelligent interest in the many questions that may come before them or on which they may have to send up their representatives ; and all the remaining 96 per cent., for at least the next 50 years to come, will be people who will be amenable to every kind of demoralisation that takes place in the course of an election. This is an instance to show that direct election to the Central Legislature in the years to come will be a problem of very great intricacy.

It is in view of all this that the Resolution recommends that there should be a preliminary inquiry into the conditions prevailing in the various provinces. It recommends that the inquiry should be conducted by a committee of officials and non-officials. It further recommends that the inquiry should not be a blank inquiry conducive to no purpose, but an inquiry which should try and find out ways and means by which village panchayats can be established, based on the ideal of full rural autonomy. I know there are some nominal panchayats already established in many provinces, and in my own province particularly. These panchayats are not, however, autonomous. There are separate different panchayats for different matters. These are disunited ; and that is a thing which is very, very undesirable. The Government do not care to study what the Decentralisation Commission twenty years ago wrote about these things. Having a number of small committees or small panchayats, in the rural parts, in one and the same village sometimes, is rather dividing the attention of the people and not concentrating it. I want integration and not division. Therefore, we have got it stated in this Resolution, moved by my Honourable friend, Mr. Rangaswami Ayyangar, that practically all the very many directions in which the people should develop, such as, agriculture, minor irrigation and forests, cottage industries, village sanitation, education, etc.,—all these very many sides of the life of the village people should be entrusted to one and the same village panchayat. Such village panchayats should be elected, and they alone or the adult franchise system, because there the people know what problems concern them most. They know what leaders they would like to have in each village panchayat. That was how, in the past, as has been often pointed out, these village panchayats had been small little republics, each one a republic in its own area ; and that would probably be the very best kind of self-government we can have in the future as well. With integration greater and greater, higher and higher, embracing the villages, the districts, and provinces, and the whole of the Empire—in that way the whole scheme is to be involved. These are some of the ideas that have been in my humble mind ever since I first heard, and pondered over the words of my late revered leader, the great Deshabandhu Das. Therefore, Sir I support with all my earnestness the Resolution which has been moved by my Honourable friend, Mr. Rangaswami Ayyangar, and I hope the House will accord to the Resolution the careful consideration that it deserves, the very sympathetic consideration that it deserves both from the standpoint of administrative efficiency and from the larger standpoint of constitutional advance. I support the Resolution.

Mr. President : The House stands adjourned till a Quarter to Three.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till a Quarter to Three of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at a Quarter to Three of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

Sir Frank Noyce (Secretary, Department of Education, Health and Lands) : Sir, I had hoped that it would be my good fortune to remain a silent Member of this House until such time as I have become better acquainted with its forms and procedure and more inured, if I may say so, to its atmosphere, but the fortune of the ballot has not been kind to me and no less than three of the five Resolutions on the Agenda for to-day affect the Department which I have the honour to represent in this House. I can only crave, Sir, in these circumstances that indulgence which you and the Members of this House, I know, invariably extend to new Members.

I do not propose, Sir, to follow the Honourable Mover of this Resolution in the details of the constitutional changes, the far-reaching constitutional changes, which he proposes. As I understand it, he wishes to abolish Provincial Governments entirely and desires that the Government of India should deal directly with a multitude of village authorities. I prefer, Sir, to take the facts as they exist and to state as clearly as I can the attitude which the Government of India has always taken on this question and the attitude which they propose to take to-day. It is impossible to see the Honourable Member's Resolution in its proper perspective without a brief resume of past history, but I promise not to make this longer than is absolutely necessary. The Report of the Decentralisation Commission of 1909 may be said to have brought the question of the village panchayat system first into prominence, though the possibilities of providing some organisation for the development of village life had been discussed from time to time before that. In the section of the Report of the Decentralisation Commission which is devoted to the village panchayat, that Commission indicated the lines on which, in their opinion, such panchayats should be developed. They did not contemplate, I may point out in passing, any additional machinery for the promotion of local self-government in the sense in which that term had been used in previous official literature. It was their desire to develop the corporate life of the individual villages and to give the villagers in them an interest in and some control over local affairs. They recognised very clearly—and that is a point which I wish now to emphasise—that the differences in character of villages, not only in different provinces but in different parts of the same province, necessitated caution in taking up the policy of developing panchayats. While they indicated certain general functions and powers which might be allotted to panchayats, they were careful to explain that there should be no question of developing them on an uniform system. The next stage was reached in the Resolution of the Government of India on local self-government in 1915, in which the Government of India expressed their general concurrence in the lines on which the Decentralisation Commission had proposed to develop the panchayat system. They again left the matter in the hands of Local Governments, but suggested certain general principles as indicating the lines on which advance was most likely to be successful. I need only here refer to the first of these. They are eight in number, and it is unnecessary to read them all. The first of them lays down that experiments should be made in selected villages or areas. It was this Resolution of the Government of India which may be said to have given the first stimulus to the development of the panchayat system. In 1915, the Government of Assam passed a Local Self-Government Act, which provided for the constitution of village authorities under the aegis of district boards, which might delegate minor duties to the village authorities and make grants for the performance of those duties. A special committee investigated and reported on the subject in the United Provinces. Again, Sir, we have another Resolution of the Government of India in 1918, in which they desired that the matter should be further pursued and, with certain exceptions, concurred in the views contained in their Resolution of 1915. They recommended that, where it was decided to call a panchayat into existence, the legislation entailed should be as simple and as elastic as possible, with full liberty to fill in details as experience demanded. They considered it, however, very necessary that action should be taken as soon as possible, and the result of the Resolution was that every major province between 1919 and 1922 passed a Village Panchayat, Village Self-Government, Village Administration or Rural Self-Government Act, with the exception of Assam, which already had one, and which passed a new Act in 1926. My object in giving here this historical retrospect is twofold. In the first place, I wish to point out that, even when the Government of India had far more extensive powers in regard to local self-government than they have to-day, they recognised that the development of village panchayats must be a provincial matter. In the second place they emphasised time and again the impossibility of imposing any uniform system of panchayats owing to differences of local conditions, which are no less striking to-day than they were then. The progress which has been made in the different provinces since the beginning of the Reforms era has shown the soundness of this view. I am sorry that the figures I have regarding the number of village authorities are not quite up to date, as they were prepared for the Statutory Commission, but I think they are more up to date than those quoted by the Honourable Member of this Resolution.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : I got the information from your Department.

Sir Frank Noyce : I hope they gave you the latest figures. In Bengal, for example, there are about 2,800 union boards.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : How many villages ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I cannot quote the number off-hand. I can only say that there are about 2,800 union boards in Bengal, and it is reported that they have justified the hope that an advance in local self-government may be based on village organisation.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : I think there are about 5,000 villages.

Sir Frank Noyce : In the neighbouring Province of Bihar and Orissa, there are only a few hundred, and most of them are reported to be apathetic. In the United Provinces, which had in 1926, and probably to-day has, more village panchayats than all the other provinces put together, it is stated that they have in many cases justified themselves and done useful work. In the Central Provinces and Bombay, on the other hand, they have not met with any great measure of success, and in both these provinces in 1925, a committee of inquiry was appointed to find out the reasons why no greater advance had been made. I think, Sir, the action of the Governments of the Central Provinces and Bombay shows the best method of dealing with this difficult question. It is evident, I think, that no all-India Committee could hope to deal with it successfully, and that it is a matter which Local Governments must tackle for themselves. In these circumstances, Sir, I do not propose to comment at any great length on the wording of the Resolution, though it seems to me to be open to criticism, and very strong criticism, on several points. I waited with great interest but in vain to hear the reasons which induced the Mover of the Resolution to confine his village panchayats to villages with a population of not less than a thousand. I am quite sure that there are many villages to-day with a much smaller population in which panchayats are working successfully. Then, again, Sir, he has given no clear definition of financial resources, nor has he given any idea of the extent to which these panchayats should expect grants-in-aid from Provincial or Imperial revenues. These, Sir, he probably regards as sordid details into which it is unnecessary to enter. I do not want to weary the House by quoting the provisions existing in the various Acts, which empower village panchayats to impose certain taxes and fees. The prospect of allowing village panchayats to administer all village concerns—agriculture, cottage industries, trade and banking—can hardly be regarded with equanimity. It would appear to afford excellent scope for socialistic activities but it would, I venture to think, involve measure of interference with individual liberty which would hardly tend to the successful working of the system. Sanitation, education, improvement of village amenities generally, civil and criminal jurisdiction in petty cases, are all duties which have been assigned to village panchayats under all or some of the various Acts under which they are administered. Trade and banking seem to fall rather outside the scope of panchayats.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : Why ?

Sir Frank Noyce : It is difficult to see what useful work they could do in that direction, especially in regard to banking.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : Go to the villages and see.

Sir Frank Noyce : Then, again, Sir, the Honourable Mover proposes that the panchayats should be subject to the technical advice and jurisdiction

[Sir Frank Noyce.]

tion of district and provincial officers and courts of law. This proposal, if I may say so, is entirely opposed to the true panchayat spirit. Local Self-Government is essentially a matter of decentralisation, whether as between the Government of India and the provinces, or as between the provinces and the village authorities. I am not quite sure whether the Honourable

3 P.M.

Mover has envisaged the results of the acceptance of his proposal. He asks that panchayats should be set up immediately in all villages with a population of a thousand and over. In the province from which both he and I come, there are about 13,000 villages with this population. I would invite the Honourable Mover's attention to the grave risk of failure which should follow if panchayats were set up in these 13,000 villages at once without the villages being ready for this form of administration. I cannot help thinking that district and provincial officers and courts of law would look with dismay at the prospect of appeals from this multitude of village panchayats. This, Sir, is however somewhat of a digression. I can only repeat that the matter is entirely one for Local Governments. Progress in this domain has not been uniform throughout. The reason is to be sought.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : Has it been satisfactory anywhere ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I think, Sir, later speakers, with a more intimate knowledge of provincial conditions, will be able to tell the Honourable Member something about that. My point is that the rural conditions vary from province to province, and the best avenue of advance is to be explored by Provincial Governments. The Government of India cannot impose a committee of the character asked for by the Honourable Mover of this Resolution on Local Governments, and they have at present no evidence whatever that they would want or would welcome it. All I can promise, Sir, on behalf of the Government of India, is that the Government of India will gladly forward copies of this debate to Local Governments for their opinion and for any action that they consider suitable. I do not know whether this will satisfy the Honourable Mover of the Resolution, but it is all that the Government of India are prepared to do.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to support this Resolution in a general way. I say "in a general way", and it is not necessary to say more than a few words for the purpose of generally agreeing with the main purport of the Resolution. As anticipated, the Honourable Member for Government has brought forward the patent objection to the motion that already village panchayats have become a matter of provincial administration. We on this side of the House, I think, are well aware of that fact. Many of the matters mentioned as subjects for consideration in this motion are already transferred subjects in the hands of Provincial Governments. That also we know, but what perhaps the Mover of the Resolution wants this Government to do is to evolve, if possible, a centralised policy for the guidance and acceptance of Provincial Governments. We have been promised to-day that the debate in this House on this motion will be circulated among the Provincial Governments. But perhaps that is not quite enough. We would like the Government of India to do something more and better, namely, to formulate a central policy for the guidance of Provincial Governments. There was a nice opportunity for dealing with this subject when the Agricultural Commission sat and went to its business. Of course they were mainly dealing with cultivators, but the cultivators, we must know, are the principal inhabitants for whom we are asking for village panchayats. It is not as if the Agricultural Commission did not touch this subject of village administration or village welfare. It is no use making a complaint now about the Agricultural Commission, but this must be said, that they touched this subject in a somewhat distant way. It is not as if they did not go into it, for they gave, in my opinion, disproportionate place to the work that is being done at Gurgaon, and went into details for the guidance that might be given to the village people with regard to their welfare. That they did. They also mentioned the agencies in a general way through which this work of welfare could be done in the villages. But my complaint is that they did not touch this subject of the village panchayats, as such with a single word either of commendation or criticism. I really fail to see how the Agricultural Commission could not see their way to deal with the village panchayats in a closer manner. The complaint embodied in the Resolution seems to be that Government have not cared to tackle this problem in as full a measure as they should have done.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain (Member for Education, Health and Lands) : Which Government ?

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : The Central Government.

The Decentralization Commission has been referred to on both sides of the House and that Commission made concrete suggestions for the formation and the work of the village panchayats. Later on, Provincial Governments passed Acts in their Legislatures to deal with village panchayats. That is true. But as a result of the working of the administration of the village panchayats in the different provinces, 20 years after the report of the Decentralization Commission, we find that there is a lot of variety in the work of the administration of the departments dealing with village panchayats. In some provinces we find local self-government is left entirely to its own sweet will and discretion to deal with the village panchayats. In other provinces we find Government taking a hand in the guidance of the village panchayats and directing their affairs and supplying them with finances. In that way, the fortunes of the village panchayats have naturally varied in different provinces. It may be claimed on behalf of Government that they have, by this, done all that they wanted to do or could do, but I would just refer the Honourable Member on the other side to Sir Malcolm Hailey's preface to the book entitled "Village uplift in India" by Mr. F. L. Brayne, and I will just read a passage out of that. In the opening portion of the preface he denies the allegation that Government have not so far done as much as they should have done in this respect. But later on he makes an admission which is strictly relevant, and which is also very valuable. He says :

"But the charge is to this extent true, that we have never made a direct and concerted attack on this problem; we have never deliberately attempted to effect that change in the psychology of the peasant, and in his social and personal habits without which it is impossible materially to improve his conditions of life. The reason did not lie entirely in the immensity of the task. It was obvious that we should have to encounter an enormous dead weight of conservatism and apathy; there were many who not unreasonably feared the result of preaching to the villager that discontent with his own conditions of life which was necessary to their improvement; and not many of us, to tell the final truth, have had the missionary spirit necessary for the enterprise."

[Mr. N. C. Kelkar.]

He is here speaking for Government.

"For the villager has the keen instincts of a man who lives very close to nature; he will not be persuaded by those (and this is the most important part of it) whom he has not learnt to trust, charm they never so wisely, and he will not trust those who do not seem prepared to put aside all other claims and considerations, in order to live with him, to learn his troubles, and to support him through them."

Now, I maintain that these last words of the quotation must be interpreted to mean more closely, more strictly to the village panchayats, for it is the village panchayat people who live among the villagers and throw in their lot with the villagers and share their troubles and fortunes and misfortunes. These village panchayat people will ultimately be the people who will be expected to do what is good for the villages in the nature of village welfare. Therefore, I take it, that Sir Malcolm Hailey, in the remarks I have just quoted, had probably in his mind the village panchayats or the people who constitute the village panchayats.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : No ; he had you and me in mind.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Now, as the Mover has himself suggested, the point is that a committee should be set up to inquire into these matters and to make recommendations. As I said in the beginning, it is not necessary to agree with him in every word, and if Government say that they do not see the necessity of actually appointing a committee of officials and non-officials, I can understand that. They may make a departmental inquiry if they like, but the point is that an inquiry is needed, whether it is by a committee or by a departmental agency associated with non-officials. I do not know about the fortunes of village panchayats in other provinces. If our friend, Mr. N. Gopalaswami Aiyangar, were here, he might have told us about the success of the village panchayats in the Madras Presidency. I was told by him, if I remember aright, that in the Madras Presidency they succeeded in forming a very large number of village panchayats and that the working also there is very successful. My friend, Mr. Aney, tells me that in Berar also the experiment has been a success. Unfortunately, on the other hand, in my own province, the Bombay Presidency, the working of the village panchayats is not successful. I could not exactly catch the words of the Honourable Member on the other side when he referred to the working of the Bombay Presidency. I do not know whether he said that the work was successful or unsuccessful.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : It has been unsuccessful.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Then, I entirely agree with him. Now, I may tell the House why, in my opinion, the result there has been different from other provinces, and what is the cause of the unpopularity of the village panchayats in my Presidency. In my opinion the success of the village panchayats, would depend mainly on two things, viz., the powers given to the village panchayats in respect of settling village disputes, and the powers of taxation. In both these matters the Bombay Act relating to village panchayats has clearly contradicted the recommendations of the Decentralisation Commission, as I will presently show.

In 1918 I think it was that a Local Self-Government Committee was instituted in my province and our worthy President was a member of that Committee, and I remember to have been a witness before that Committee. That Committee itself wanted to go into the question of village panchayats if possible, and this point was also stressed by many of the witnesses that appeared before it.

I am absolutely certain that if the consideration of the village panchayats had not been excluded from the purview of the Local Self-Government Committee, to which I have referred, then very good recommendations might have been made. The Committee, I am quite sure, would have made recommendations to follow directly the lines of the recommendations made by the Decentralisation Commission. But Government excluded that matter from the inquiry entrusted to that Committee and took it upon themselves to pass an Act by itself specially for the village panchayats. In doing so, they acted in contradiction to the specific recommendations made by the Decentralisation Commission, the one relating to powers and the other relating to taxation. First of all, I will take the point about the powers. I have got in my hand the Bombay Act relating to village panchayats, and I do not find there any reference to any of the powers such as I have been referring to and such as have been recommended by the Decentralisation Commission. The Commission says :

"A panchayat should have civil and criminal jurisdiction in petty cases arising within the village."

This has not been done in the Act :

"We were told in the Punjab that the Native States of Patiala and Faridkot had recently instituted zail, or village panchayats, for the disposal of petty civil and criminal cases and that the results so far had been good. Some witnesses hold that the exercise of such powers might lead to injustice, through faction, corruption or undue personal influence; and the opinion has also been expressed that as popular sentiment has become accustomed to regular courts, it would not now tolerate a more summary and informal procedure. On the other hand, such jurisdiction is already exercised by individual headmen or munsifs in several provinces, and it seems to us that it would be still better discharged by a small collective panchayat. It is also most desirable to relieve the regular courts, to prevent the people from having to undertake long journeys for the settlement of paltry disputes, and to check the habit of undue litigation, which is so prevalent in some parts of India. Village benches may no doubt occasionally make mistakes, but neither are the stipendiary courts infallible; and false evidence, and the power of the purse, have less chance of prevailing in a tribunal which is directly under the influence of local public opinion and which can readily ascertain the real facts."

Sir, I do contend that in this important respect the Bombay Act has given entirely the go-bye to the specific and well-considered recommendation of the Decentralisation Commission. With regard to that, speaking about my own province, I would lay stress on this, because in my province at any rate there has been a good tradition, a well established tradition of village panchayats settling the village disputes, and in taking back that tradition to the beginning of the nineteenth century, I would refer this House to Mount Stuart Elphinstone's Report on the working of the panchayats in the Mahrashtra province from which I come. He says :

"But with all these defects, the Mahratta country flourished, and the people seem to have been exempt from some of the evils which exist under our more perfect Government. There must, therefore, have been some advantages in the system to counterbalance its obvious defects, and most of them appear to me to have originated in one fact, that the Government, although it did little to obtain justice for the people, left them the means of procuring it for themselves. The advantage of this was particularly felt among the lower orders, who are most out of reach of their rulers, and most apt to be neglected under all Governments. By means of the panchayat, they were enabled to effect a tolerable dispensation of justice among themselves; and it happens that most of the objections above stated to that institution do not apply in their case....."

[Mr. N. C. Kelkar.]

I do not wish to read to the House any more extracts, but the point is this. Till the beginning of the nineteenth century, these village panchayats had exercised elementary judicial powers with success. That is what Mount Stuart Elphinstone says, and with the break from that tradition perhaps the wrong began. Even after the specific recommendation of the Decentralisation Commission to give back to the village panchayats these elementary judicial powers, the Bombay Act took the matter out of the hands of the Local Self-Government Committee which they had appointed, and passed their own Act, and took special care to exclude this judicial jurisdiction from the powers of the village panchayats. That is one of the strong reasons why the village panchayats had not been popular, I do not say, successful. In my province of Bombay, the village panchayats are not as popular as they should be.

Then, I refer this House to the second point about the violation of the specific recommendation of the Decentralisation Commission by the Bombay Village panchayats Act in respect of taxation. By the by, before leaving that point, I would just mention that, a few moments ago, I asked my Honourable friend, Mr. Aney, as to the condition of the village panchayats in his province, because Berar and the Maharashtra are parts of the same province; the same mentality and the same social conditions prevail in both the provinces. The Village Panchayat Act of Berar gives that elementary judicial jurisdiction to the village panchayats, and my Honourable friend assures me that the village panchayats have been very successfully working, and that they are very popular. My contention is that it is a wrong done to Bombay by the Bombay Panchayat Act.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : By whom ?

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : By the Government which passed this Act.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : It was passed by the Bombay Legislative Council.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : We know what Councils we have got, at least in certain provinces. That is why I say the Reforms have failed in that particular respect at any rate.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : They have distinctly.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Turning to the point about taxation, I would read from the Report :

" We consider it essential to the popularity and efficiency of the panchayat system that it should not be associated with any new form of local taxation, for the evidence shows that the imposition of taxation of this character has made such bodies as the existing unions and sanitary committees unpopular. Still less should such bodies receive power to raise such loans....."

I will not go into the details as to the sources from which the panchayat revenue should be derived in the opinion of the Decentralisation Commission, but one single sentence from the Report I will read :

" Finally, it is most desirable that the work of panchayats should be free from interference by the lower Government subordinates. Men of this class have their own reasons for opposing any real local control."

And the bad effects of this interference have been seen in the proposals for taxation. To put it briefly, the Commission say, in a general way, that the starting of village panchayat should not be concomitant—I am using the words of the Report—with the levy of new taxation by the village people for the village people. Not that the Decentralisation Commission was not aware that revenues were wanted for the administration of village panchayats, but they wanted to give revenues by methods which had not been followed in the Bombay Presidency. Therefore my particular point is this.

These two important specific recommendations of the Commission have been grossly violated by the Bombay Government. After all, the Act may have been passed by the Legislative Council, but the Bill was a Bill of the Bombay Government, and when they did not themselves introduce these matters, or went about it in the wrong way, we of course could not expect that the local Council should have exercised such influence upon legislation that it should be put as it should be. (A Voice : " Why not " ?) I am asked, why not ? I will just refer my Honourable friend to the proceedings of the Council and ask him to find out for himself why is why. Here is Mr. Jayakar, who was at one time the leader of the Bombay Council, and he will perhaps be able to say how the Government officials went round in the Council itself to canvass for votes and to win their case. Of course I was not a Member of the Bombay Council.....

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham (Associated Chambers of Commerce : Nominated Non-Official) : I was a Member of the Bombay Council.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Then the Honourable Member can settle it with my friend over here.

The long and short of it is this : If the points that I have raised are correct, then they distinctly prove that the recommendations of the Decentralisation Commission have not been strictly and closely followed. They have been departed from in material respects and therefore that makes out a case in my opinion for the Government of India proceeding to formulate a central policy by way of advice, if not enforcement, to the Provincial Governments in the matter of the administration of their village panchayats.

Mr. E. F. Sykes (Bombay : European) : Sir, I should like to say, first of all, that I oppose the motion. In view of the manner in which Government have agreed to meet the Honourable the Mover, I am surprised that he has not accepted the offer and withdrawn his Resolution. As he appears to wish to take the sense of the House it is necessary briefly to indicate the grounds of my opposition. I need not waste time in saying that there is no difference between the Honourable the Mover and myself as to the desirability of encouraging the growth of local self-government. I do not think there is any difference between Members of any part of the House on this subject.

To admit this, however, is by no means to admit the propriety of accepting this Resolution. It is true that the objection that this is a provincial transferred subject, and therefore outside the province of this House, is by no means decisive.

On the other hand, in cases of this kind, the necessity for the intrusion of the Central Government into the provincial transferred sphere needs to be well established, and I regret to say that, as far as I have been able to hear the Honourable Member's speech, I have heard no arguments of any weight on this point, and in the absence of a conviction of such necessity, the duty of the House is to reject any such proposal.

[Mr. E. F. Sykes.]

There are other reasons why I am not prepared to support the Resolution in its present form, but you, Sir, have supplied the House with an argument which to me appears to be final. In advising the Honourable the Mover of the motion, which stood just before on the paper, not to proceed with his motion, you were pleased to observe that the questions involved were in the melting pot, and the discussion of them at the present time would serve no useful purpose. I submit that the same argument applies equally to the Resolution now before the House. The statutory inquiry now in progress can hardly fail to deal with the question of local self-government, and to send an independent committee cutting across its tracks would be obviously a waste of time, money and effort.

Khan Bahadur Mian Abdul Aziz (Punjab : Nominated Official) : Sir, in rising to speak on this subject, I do not wish to utter a single word in a spirit of controversy, but I do think that a certain amount of information which is available might be useful to the House, because the Honourable Member who has moved this Resolution has in that Resolution desired that panchayats be formed for dealing with such subjects as Agriculture, Minor Irrigation, Forests, Industries, Village Sanitation, Education and Co-operation. Now, Sir, the information that I want to give the House is that, in the Punjab, the Punjab Village Panchayat Act of 1921 was enforced in 1922. In this Act, apart from the power of trying certain criminal offences given to these village panchayats, and apart from the powers given to these panchayats to deal with civil suits up to the value of Rs. 50, and apart from dealing with certain other questions that arise naturally in the every-day life of the village, like the cleansing of their streets and drains, certain administrative functions were assigned to these panchayats, and I shall give a brief list of some of these administrative functions. Section 18 defines the administrative powers of the panchayat which are, to require by notice, given within a reasonable period, the owner or occupier of any building to remove any encroachment, to set right any pool, ditch, latrine, etc., the cleansing, removal and disposal of any street rubbish, and a number of other things. Cottage industries and various other activities are also included in the sphere of action of a village panchayat. Then the rules are such that these can very easily be extended to give these panchayats very much wider powers over the life of the village as it is. The Honourable Member who moved this Resolution of course said in effect, take the Government of India to the village. That is a matter which, merely as a matter of theory, has my support : but when I examined the working of these panchayats in my district two years ago and again last year, this is the difficulty that I found. In this Panchayat Act the most wholesome provision is that the panchayat shall not entertain any clerical establishment. That is clearly given in the Statute and for a very simple reason. We had this Act in 1921. We had an Act in 1912, which was repealed by this Act. We have found by experience over and over again that, when there is a mohurrir under a panchayat or in a Bench of Honorary Magistrates, the mohurrir becomes the master, and the panchayat and the Honorary Magistrates assume a subordinate position. It is an unfortunate thing, but that is the fact. So there is this most wholesome provision in this Act that the panchayat must work by itself and must not have any clerical establishment.

Now, Sir, in my last district, out of 1,008 villages, I think the panchayats are working satisfactorily only in 20, and in those 20 I often had the difficulty of finding a literate sar-panch. I tried to extend this list by another 18, and I invited petitions, and I found that, although I had selected only 18,—I give these facts so that the House may judge of the enormous difficulties that stand in the way,—out of these 18, two or three could not work the panchayats, and in the large remainder, i.e., in 970 villages excluding these 38, at present the demand is not there. I do not really wish to say a word in a spirit of controversy. Hasty reformers want to impose their will on the village and they do not want to act as the servant of the village. My wish on the other hand has always been that the villagers should think for themselves and get rid of their habit of blind obedience. What I have attempted is to let them come forward and say what they want ; but for each sub-division of the province the factors of the problem are really different, and an all-India inquiry or an all-India solution is something impossible. You cannot do it ; it must grow from within, from that village. The Honourable Mr. Kelkar, of course, laid his finger on the real root of the trouble, and it is this, that village panchayats will not work because of the necessity which is involved in efficient working, of imposing taxation. That is really the whole root of the trouble. In the whole of my district, it was only with great difficulty that I was able to induce one panchayat to impose a very nominal tax in order to achieve some sort of elementary cleanliness. But that is not all. In the working of this system, if Honourable Members will ever take the trouble to see some provincial Report dealing with the working of this Panchayat Act in the villages, they will find that there is a long statement at the end. On the top of that are given the sections showing whether the panchayat has taken action under, for instance, sections 14, 18, 18 (a) and so on.

They will see that the only thing that panchayats touch throughout consistently is this : the panchayats will exercise their criminal powers to a certain extent ; they will deal with civil cases to a certain extent ; but in so far as their administrative functions are concerned, so far as village sanitation and other cognate subjects are concerned, the statement attached to the provincial Report will show that the column showing administrative work done in the course of the year is almost blank because those people at present have not been educated up to the level of seeing that that is a greater duty than merely dealing with petty cases. I say that, Sir, because I am thinking of the village, not as it is on paper, but as it exists there in actuality. I mean to say, I am thinking of their hearts, their traditions and their relations with one another : that is the village ; it is not merely the area in which a few mud huts exist that is the village ; it is not the insanitary condition that is the village ; it is the traditions which those people have, the interrelationship of one group of residents with other groups of residents—the landlords and the menial classes for instance—that, and the whole continuous life which they live, that is the village ; and I found often and often that even, with the very limited franchise that we have at present by which only a certain number of rate-payers can elect the panchayat, the difficulties of reconciling all interests are enormous. Of course the election is entirely by majority and there is no communal feeling, but the Mover in his Resolution has insisted on an adult franchise. I believe those of us here who have lived in villages will at once realise....

Mr. M. K. Acharya : Have you first-hand knowledge of the districts and villages ?

Khan Bahadur Mian Abdul Aziz : For twenty five years.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : As an official—not as one who lives in villages, but as a taskmaster.

Khan Bahadur Mian Abdul Aziz : I am a servant, and I have always been one, and I am yours too. As I say, at present the franchise is limited. Suppose you desire to apply adult franchise. Take the case of a village where there are 50 landowners and 950 tenants, and apply the adult franchise to them, and you will at once find out the difficulty of the landowner. The landowner may be a very reasonable man and may have every sympathy with his tenants and menials, but I doubt whether he will approve of this adult franchise as it is contemplated in this Resolution. That is also partly the reason why, where these panchayats are popular to a certain extent because their decisions in civil and criminal cases are just and not open to question, still, when they come to deal with questions that affect the everyday life of the other people, for instance, the broadening of streets and the removal of encroachments and the like, they find it difficult to touch those subjects and they do not want to touch them.

But, Sir, there is another aspect of this matter. My Honourable friend, Mr. Acharya, asked me if I had ever been to a village. Since I spoke last in this House, I have been to about more than fifty villages, and to about more than two hundred houses in each village, inside. I went there to beg those people, in accordance with my policy—I never want them to obey as I want them to think and then if it appears to them to be right, I want them to carry it out into practice—I went there to beg of them not to keep cattle in their own dwelling houses—particularly in the places where they slept. If I were a cynic, I could say that those human dwelling places were really not fit for cattle and it was hardly fair to human beings to be compelled to live there. But I have worked for the villager and I really mean to serve them, and therefore I went to argue with them and persuade them to keep their cattle separately a little removed from the place where they slept, and as I said I went very nearly through fifty villages and two hundred houses in each village on this little mission ; and I found that in connection with this question of dealing with cattle alone, the village panchayats are particularly powerless, though cattle are the most important element in their agricultural operations. They are powerless in this way. A large number of menials who live in the villages and who for grazing all their cattle and feeding and housing them, depend to a very great extent on the sweet will of those in authority are not in a position to do the needful. It is all right if everything is harmonious. But suppose you introduce this adult franchise. I say, with due respect, you will be plunging the villages more into anarchy than improving their condition.

There are one or two other facts which I took note of when Honourable Members spoke on this subject ; and the point which appeared to me of importance in particular was that the Honourable the Mover of the Resolution said that co-operation might be made an imperial subject instead of remaining a provincial subject. The interest that I have taken in the subject shows me that, in so far as the Punjab is concerned, the suggested change might perhaps—I speak with due deference—not be useful. The Honourable Member's object was that usury should be stamped out. Those were his very words. I may inform the House that in the Punjab co-operation has been successful ; it has been successful in a large number of places ; but where it has been pre-eminently successful, the original members of those co-operative societies, during the last ten years, have been able to take out a loan without paying a penny of interest. That is a thing that is really unique. But there are several such cases. Similarly, we have not only the lending societies ; but we have societies of every kind specially suited to the requirements of our various villages ; and strangest of all, I can inform the House that even Mussalmans are now not so shy of co-operation as they were at one time. At one time, of course, it was something horrid to think of asking a Muslim to join a co-operative society.

It occurs to me that one part of this co-operative movement might be affected materially for the worse if the subject is brought under the control of the Central Government, and that part is the one for which I believe the Punjab, under Messrs. Calvert and Darling's great lead, has already earned a very great reputation—I mean the consolidation of holdings. On account of our unfortunate laws of inheritance, the holdings in a large number of villages have become fragmented to an extent which it is perhaps not possible to conceive for those who have not seen it actually on the spot. In a district where I had the honour of serving there were not more than five hundred small villages ; and in each village there were more than fifty fields of a size that could not profitably be cultivated. A grandfather left five fields of a fairly workable size ; and there are now about ten grandsons who have split up those five fields in fifty different portions on all sides of the village and each one had to take his cattle to ten different places, as the plots were divided up on all sides and the holding is no longer an economic unit. This fragmentation goes on not only in regard to land, but even as regards water channels and in other directions also energy is frittered away. My object in referring to the proposal to make co-operation a Central subject is simply this : that it is through the co-operative movement that we have been able to advance very remarkably in the direction of consolidation of holdings. If the Provincial Government loses control of that subject, I doubt very much if the Central Government will take any interest in it.

Another aspect of the matter that was urged in the course of the debate was that the social and personal habits, as well as the psychology of the peasant, required considerable improvement. Sir, I have very great admiration for the peasant, even as he is to-day. One has to live with him, work with him, and work for him to realise the real greatness of the man. It is very easy to condemn him and to say that he is superstitious, sentimental and so forth, but one has really to work with him and live with him to realise that the Indian peasant has some noble characteristics still left in him, characteristics better than those that the average man in the city can claim to possess. I have worked for the jangli and I have in some respects yet to find better gentlemen than the janglis. What has really happened is that, on account of the very complex social and religious system, the peasant has been ground down to a kind of obedience to certain conventions which are very difficult to get out of him. It is not the peasant who does not want to get out of those conventions ; it is the higher strata of society which want him to adhere to those time-honoured conventions. He is not given an opportunity to progress himself. He is not given an opportunity by the leaders of public opinion to improve himself in social matters. . . . (An Honourable Member :

* [Khan Bahadur Mian Abdul Aziz.]

"By the Government".) I will give a definite instance, if necessary, but I do not want to say anything controversial. All that I want to say is, by all means give the peasant the best institutions that will give him the very best of life that any man can have on the face of the earth, but do not blame him that he is backward or that his social and personal habits are such that it is impossible for him to progress. All that the peasant wants is that a great deal of his money should not go away in fruitless endeavours to better his condition through legal processes. I will not say anything more. Therefore, I would very respectfully suggest that those who advocate the establishment of village panchayats, or those who will very kindly assist in the betterment of the panchayats that already exist, will kindly drop that note of accusation against the peasant, because he is, after all, not a bad fellow; he is willing to obey. As I said, instead of accusing the peasant, those who advocate the establishment of village panchayats will be really doing a great service to the peasant if they will take up this work as servants of the peasant.

I believe my Honourable friend, Mr. Kelkar, said that there should be a centralised policy for the guidance of Local Governments. Now, Sir, I only wish to say this once again on the basis of actual experience derived from actually working with the people, that this House will be doing its duty by the country if it gives the peasant an opportunity to feel that he is being treated by his own people fairly and equitably, and that the people of the country who advocate the village panchayat system are his co-workers and not his masters. Therefore, what we want is not a centralised policy, but real sympathy for them to enable them to express what they want and what they consider is best suited for them. If this is conceded, then I suppose it obviously follows that the suggestions contained in the Resolution before the House are not suited to the requirements of the country as a whole.

Mr. M. S. Aney (Berar Representative) : Sir, I do not want to make a long speech, but as reference has been made to me by my Honourable friend Mr. Kelkar, I think that it is necessary for me to intervene in the debate to explain a few points at this stage of the discussion. One Honourable gentleman mentioned, in opposition to this Resolution, that the proper place for the discussion of a question like this was not the Central Legislature but the Provincial Legislatures. It is true that, under the existing constitution, the subject of village panchayats is a provincial transferred subject, and the proper place for the discussion of this subject would ordinarily be the Provincial Councils. But I am not looking at the question purely from a technical point of view. The Central Government have a great responsibility in this very vital matter, and I am sure they cannot altogether ignore it. May I hope that they will be ready to shoulder that responsibility at this late hour at least?

The first point which I want to make out in this connection is, the whole question of the self-government of India has been kept by the British Parliament entirely dependent on the fulfilment of conditions laid down in the Preamble to the Government of India Act, and the policy that is behind it is that there should be the development of local self-government all over the country, and it is the success of these self-governing bodies that is going to determine the measure of self-government which this country is to be deemed fit for. Now, that is a policy to be worked out, not merely by the Provincial Governments, not by the people of this country, but by the Government of this country also. In fact, the responsibility for carrying out this policy is all the greater upon those who have enunciated it. If the development of self-governing institutions and their success are going to be the criterion of the measure of self-government which this country is to be given, then who are going to work for the creation of these self-governing bodies all over the country? If this question is put, can the Government of India say that during the last nine years that the Government of India Act has been in force, they have made any very serious attempt for the sake of developing these self-governing institutions in the villages? The answer is that, so far as the Government of India is concerned, they have done nothing of the kind; if anything, they have done very little.

The Honourable Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain : Nothing at all.

Mr. M. S. Aney : On the other hand, that the people have shown some sort of earnestness in this direction is amply borne out by the fact that, in the various provinces, the Ministers in charge have tried to give such encouragement to these institutions as they could possibly do within the limited means at their disposal. We have been hearing that question of the limited resources of the Provincial Governments discussed times out of number on the floor of this House, and various claims have been made on behalf of various Provincial Governments for getting something out of the Central Exchequer for their own development. So their own means are no doubt very limited, but within the limited means at their disposal, the Ministers are making an earnest effort. But what I find is this, that the implication of the policy that underlies the Government of India Act has not been sufficiently realised even by the Provincial Governments; that is real and an undesirable evil. They will be able to realise this only if there is an impetus from the Central Government goading them on to know what their responsibility in this matter is, and all that this Resolution demands to-day is to give some sort of impetus to the Provincial Governments by organising a committee to investigate into these matters and find out what is the proper way to encourage them on the path on which they are already making some progress. That is what this Resolution really stands for, and if you take this particular view of the question into consideration, the technical objection which seems to have been raised by some people will not loom large and will not in any way prejudice the real question which has been raised by the Honourable the Mover of this Resolution.

Secondly, there were apprehensions in the minds of the people some years ago that the villages themselves would not take kindly to these new and novel institutions. In the first place, this was an ill-founded apprehension, because, if there is anything deeply-rooted from times immemorial in the hearts of the Indian people, it is the institution of the village panchayat itself. Its external form may be somewhat different from the one which we propose to set up, but that there was a village panchayat or some sort of institution in every village which practically administered and managed the village affairs, without being in any way impeded or interfered with by any Central or Provincial Government, is a fact that no student of history can afford to deny today. This is the oldest institution in this country, and it has continued and survived according to the historian's verdict, in spite of the various causes operating against it and the storms of political revolutions that have blown in this country. Here we have a natural, old, time-rooted conception which it should be the duty of every Government to develop. I am not going into the question how the time-honoured, old institution has been destroyed. I am not here today to apportion the blame for the same to anybody, but there is the fact that, under the British Government, that institution has practically become lifeless or extinct even. But fortunately the Government of India have now taken to a policy where the development of such institutions is deemed essential for the further progress of this country. Now at least, in this limited sphere of activity, there is a common ideal for both the people of the country and the Government of India to work and strive for. The development of these village institutions is an essential thing in the case of both. That being the case, we are not working now against each other or for anything that is entirely new and alien to the conception of the people; we have to work together for an idea which has been innate, inherent in the people of the country. So, that is one aspect which is undoubtedly favourable.

Again, the actual experience of the policy during the last ten years, which I have had in my own province, encourages me to say that, if proper steps are taken to encourage the people on in this direction, the villagers themselves will come forward and take to these things more cheerfully, and will also work for them in a spirit to develop them as rapidly as possible. In my own province the experience was for some years that all our efforts to induce the villagers to apply for an institution like that used to prove futile. On one day we used to go among the villagers, meetings used to be held, there used to be consultation with a number of their leaders and the villagers used to say, "yes", and even an application was sent signed by all the villagers in the locality. Then an officer used to be sent down to make inquiries, and he used to bring out a report that there was strong opposition to the establishment of a new institution.

Now, it simply puzzled me and other friends to see that they were the same identical villagers who said "yes" to us, and who wanted that a panchayat should be established, but who, the next day, somehow or other turned round and said "no" to the inquiring officer. That sort of thing went on for a number of years, and the village panchayat system could not make any progress. After all we found out the real reason. We tried to understand why this was so, and we have found out that somehow or other, though the general policy of the Government of India in this matter was not avowedly adverse, the officers of the Government themselves were not imbued with the spirit which was behind it, and they thought that the development of self-governing institutions was a nuisance. They felt that they had enough difficulties in dealing with these municipalities, district boards and such other things and they would have no more by allowing each little village to have a municipality of its own. It was in their opinion going to prove a new source of nuisance, and they thought therefore that they had neither the inclination nor the time to look into these matters. Therefore there was a sort of apathy on the part of local officers and district officers and provincial officers. For that purpose what we first insisted upon when the Ministers came to take charge of the provincial departments, was that the Provincial Government should appoint a provincial Panchayat Officer. When that officer moved among the villagers with the authority of the Government, we found a slow change coming over all these district despots or Deputy Commissioners. They began to take first kindly and then seriously to the idea, and to co-operate with those who were working for this reform. If there is some progress in the development of these institutions in my province, I give much credit to the provincial officer who was appointed by the Provincial Government at the insistent demand of the Provincial Council. When that officer moved among the people, the district officials also thought that that was the policy of the Government and therefore that they must do something in that direction. Immediately their angle of vision was changed, and the people who did not want these institutions before, also began to appreciate the virtue of village panchayats. There are nowadays numerous applications made every year by the villagers for the establishment of village panchayats in their own villages. In fact, I understand there are more applications than the Deputy Commissioners and the district boards can conveniently dispose of. I am told that there are nearly 50 applications pending in my own district, not to speak of the whole province. In my own district, 50 applications have been pending for the last few months, and they have not been disposed of. Nearly thirty panchayats have been established, excluding the seven or eight which were established before, some five or six years ago. That shows that the people have been taking to it kindly and the report of the Provincial Government on the administration of these panchayats shows that, though there is much need of help and advice to those who are working on these panchayats in the different villages, still the general spirit in which they are working has been commended by the Government as promising and hopeful.

These are facts which clearly show that we have to work under conditions which are favourable and not unfavourable. Now a grant of Rs. 300 is given to every village for the first year as soon as the panchayat is started. So the question of monetary difficulty is at once solved and the Budget of the Central Provinces Government has made provision for a few thousand rupees for the sake of helping the establishment of these panchayats in the province. Again, both the Ministers and the popular leaders are working for the sake of multiplying these institutions, by persuading the district boards also to surrender a part of their revenue from those villages where these panchayats are formed. One source of revenue of the district boards in my province is bazar revenue, and certain district councils have deliberately resolved that, if there is a village panchayat formed, a certain portion of the bazar revenue from that village should be surrendered by the district board. In this way these panchayats would hereafter get another source of income. Another thing which is making these panchayats popular and worth having in Berar is the conferring of judicial powers on the village panchayat under the Village Panchayat Act. This was the crux of the whole thing. It was at one time apprehended that these village people who used to quarrel among themselves like anything, and among whom a factious spirit existed, were unfit to be entrusted with judicial powers. Now, some 30 village panchayats have been invested with these powers in my district and some 20 more are in the process of formation. These 30 panchayats have been working satisfactorily. Appeals are sometimes preferred to the district officers against the judgments of the panchayats, and the result of those appeals shows that, on an average, the panchayats are not less endowed with judicial capacity than the stipendiary magistrates or the honorary magistrates who are appointed by the Government of their own accord. In fact, their judgments show that these panchayats possess the same judicial acumen as is possessed by average honorary magistrates, who are so implicitly trusted by the Government that they are first entrusted with third class magistrate's powers, then soon after, with second class magistrate's powers and ultimately within two or three years, with first class magistrate's powers.

These things show their capacity. If the villagers in Berar, which is not educationally a very advanced province, as compared with the neighbouring province of Maharashtra, have been showing this aptitude, it is certainly not due to any exceptional capacity in them. The main reason is that both the Provincial Government and the provincial public men have taken earnestly to this question and have been making an honest effort to tackle this problem in a spirit of mutual sympathy and ultimate hope of success of the righteous cause.

It is that spirit of sympathy which is wanted, and you cannot create that spirit without some sort of goading on from the Central Government, asking the Provincial Governments to tackle the question seriously. All that is asked for in this Resolution is that the Government should give the necessary stimulus.

There is one other reason why I like this Resolution. In a number of provinces, the village panchayats are developing in their own way. Each province may have its own problems to solve. There is bound to be some variety in the functions of the panchayats in the different provinces. In my opinion an attempt at co-ordination is a necessity, and it is time for the Government of India to take stock of the position and find out whether there are not certain parallel lines along which village panchayats all over the country should simultaneously develop, so that they might have a common object to achieve and a common morale to create among the Indian villagers. From that point of view also, a general inquiry seems to be eminently desirable.

Lastly, my Honourable friend, Mr. Sykes, stated that, "the Statutory Commission is there and this is not the proper time to waste over a discussion of a question like this". I cannot understand that attitude. If we think that the development of these village institutions is an essential condition for the political progress of this country, then an expression of opinion on the part of this House and the active steps taken by the Government of India in that direction would, in my opinion, be a help to that Commission. Even if we on our part do not attach much value to that Report, it certainly would help the Commission and show them what the people of this country are thinking in regard to this subject. It will also form a very material piece of evidence which they cannot afford to ignore. The expectation of this Report, instead of being an argument against the consideration of this question, is, in my opinion, an argument in favour of a prompt and immediate decision of this question by this House.

Something was said by my Honourable friend Mr. Aziz about the loss of the Provincial Governments' control and the consequential evils which are likely to flow from it. It is apprehended that, if the adult franchise system was adopted, it would plunge the country into some serious difficulty. That is what I believe my friend had said. I want to bring to his notice the last portion of the Resolution, which clearly indicates that there is no reason to fear that the control of Provincial Governments and district officers would be altogether abolished. The idea is that there should be general control, technical advice and appellate jurisdiction of district and provincial officers and courts of law. That control will remain there. Lastly, I have only to say that there is a general movement going on in this country for the uplift of the village. What is the Government going to do? Is it going to sit silent or take any active step in that direction? That is a simple question which is raised in the form of this Resolution, and the attitude of the Government on this occasion will enable the people outside to understand as to how far the Government really wants to stand, even at this late hour, by the promises they have given or more correctly the professions they have made in the Preamble to the Government of India Act.

Rai Bahadur A. K. Mukharji (Bengal : Nominated Official) : My only excuse for rising to speak is that I am very much interested in the subject matter of this Resolution, which has been so ably moved by my Honourable friend Mr. K. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar. Sir, I come from Bengal, and in my province a very interesting experiment in village self-government— which I take to be in short the subject matter of this Resolution—is being carried on for the last ten years. The Bengal Village Self-Government Act was passed in 1919, and since then we have had some experience of the working of these village bodies. Now, Sir, if we analyse this Resolution, we find that the Honourable the Mover wants that there should be, in each village or group of villages, an efficient panchayat; secondly, that this body will be mainly elected on the adult franchise system; thirdly, that it will possess sufficient legal powers and financial resources for administering all village concerns; fourthly, that this body should decide civil and criminal suits up to a certain limit; and fifthly, that this body should be subject only to the general control and technical advice and appellate jurisdiction of district and provincial officers and courts of law.

Now, Sir, the Bengal Village Self-Government Act, to which I have referred, satisfies all the conditions laid down by the Honourable Member. This Act empowers the Government to divide a district into unions which are composed of groups of villages, and to establish unions in each village. Under section 6 of the Act, the board is composed generally of nine members, two-thirds of whom are elected and one-third nominated, but the Local Government has the power to declare that all the members should be elected. One-third of the members are nominated at present, as the electorates are inexperienced. That meets the first requirement of the Honourable the Mover.

Then as regards the second point about the adult franchise system, section 7 satisfies it. This section lays down that every male person of the full age of 21 years, resident within the union and paying a cess of rupee one, or a union rate of one rupee at least, shall be entitled to vote at an election of the members of the union board. The franchise is as low as it can be possibly made in present circumstances.

[Rai Bahadur A. K. Mukharji.]

Then as regards legal powers, I will invite the attention of Honourable Members to sections 26 to 35 of the Act. Besides the control of the rural police, they have been given powers to provide for sanitation, conservancy and drainage, cleansing of unions, to control the erection of buildings, to provide for proper water supply, to make roads and construct bridges, to improve water-ways and provide for the lighting of roads, to establish primary schools and charitable dispensaries. In fact, the powers given to these boards are in some cases even greater than those given to the municipalities in Bengal.

Then, Sir, about financial resources, these boards have been given the powers under section 37 (a) and (b) of the Act, for levying a rate under section 37 (a), for the maintenance of the rural police, and under section 37 (b), for the other purposes mentioned in the Act. We may say that these purposes are for the fulfilment of the work of nation-building or village uplift, by whatever name you may choose to designate it. Then, Sir, about criminal cases and civil suits, chapter VII of the Act authorises the Local Government to constitute union benches and union courts in each union to try criminal cases and civil suits, respectively. The union benches are empowered to decide simple cases of assault, public nuisance, theft, etc. The union boards can decide suits for money due on contracts, for the recovery of moveable property or the value of such property, and suits for compensation for wrongfully taking or injuring moveable property, where the value of these suits does not exceed Rs. 200.

As regards control, they are under the general control of district boards and the district officers. Members of the Bengal Junior Civil Service also work as circle officers for inspecting these union boards and audit their accounts. As regards appeals against the decisions of union benches and union boards, we, Sir, have gone further even than the proposals made in this Resolution. In fact, under the Village Self-Government Act, there is no appeal from the decisions of union boards and union benches. Only the District Magistrate and the District Judge have the power to revise such decisions. It is thus clear, Sir, that everything that is wanted by the Honourable the Mover of the Resolution has been incorporated in the Bengal Village Self-Government Act, so far as this province is concerned. I do not say that the Act is not capable of improvement, but for all practical purposes, it is a very workable Act, which enables these village bodies to administer their every-day concerns. I therefore fail to see the necessity of the Committee proposed by the Honourable Member. The problem of village self-government is essentially a local problem and every province should be left to work out its own salvation. My Honourable friend, Mr. Acharya, in his speech, urged that there has not been sufficient progress, and that the matter should therefore be taken up by the Government of India. I can assure him, however, that, so far as Bengal is concerned, the progress achieved has been remarkable. From the Administration Report of 1927-28 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Department it appears that, out of 70,000 square miles, 30,000 square miles are covered by union boards. That was, Sir, in 1927-28. Since then there has been further progress, and now I think about two-thirds of the province is covered by union boards. In fact almost all the districts have been either already divided into union boards or are in the course of being so divided. The policy of Government is to have all the province divided into union boards, excluding only the very backward tracts. It appears, Sir, from the Administration Report of 1927-28 that the union boards spent about Rs. 21 lakhs in that year on what may be called nation-building or village uplift work. They also paid special attention to the improvement of the water supply, and some of these boards also constructed and were maintaining small irrigation works. A number of dispensaries were maintained by union boards, and in some places a good deal was done to promote or assist primary education. Union boards also interested themselves in the construction and upkeep of village roads, and a few boards even went in for small town-planning schemes and for systems of street lighting. Several union boards in the Howrah district maintained a conservancy establishment. In some unions anti-malaria work was also engaged in. Well, Sir, so far as this Report shows, and so far as my own personal knowledge goes, the progress has been very satisfactory.

As regards the working of the union benches, I will read out certain remarks from the Report on the Administration of Criminal Justice in the Presidency of Bengal :

"The reports of the districts, in which union benches have been established under the Bengal Village Self-Government Act, show that, in some districts, the benches are viewed by the public with appreciation and are affording a fair measure of relief to the magistrates, while in others they are gaining the confidence of the people and are expected to afford relief to the magistrates to some extent in the near future."

In fact where there has been a set-back in Bengal, it has been caused by the activities of some members of the Swaraj Party.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division: Non-Muhammadan Rural) : May I hear again what the Honourable Member has just said ?

Rai Bahadur A. K. Mukharji : There has been a set-back due to the opposition of some members of the Swaraj Party. In fact I was agreeably surprised when I found that this Resolution is being moved by my Honourable friend who is sitting opposite on the Swaraj Benches ; but I think that this opposition is now dying down, and I think, in the course of the next four or five years, the districts will be completely divided into union boards in Bengal. As I have already said, these boards are working successfully in Bengal. I am not aware of the position of the other provinces in this respect. Of course, if the principle of the Resolution is that the village should be the cradle of self-government, nobody will quarrel with it, but I think, Sir, that in this matter where uniformity is certainly not attainable in all the provinces, this is a matter which should be left to the provinces. My friend, Mr. Aney, has told us that the Central Government should give a "goading" to the Local Governments so that the pace may be increased. But as far as Bengal is concerned, I can safely assure him that they are doing all that is humanly possible to constitute these union boards and to see that they work satisfactorily. Sir, I will not take up any more time of the House. I oppose the motion.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Wednesday, the 4th September, 1929.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Wednesday, 4th September, 1929.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock,
Mr. President in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

GRANT OF ALLOWANCES AT FAMILY RATES TO LADY CLERKS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

95. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that lady clerks in the Office of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs are given concessions at family rates admissible under the Simla Allowance Code ? If so, will Government be pleased to place on the table a statement showing their names, pay, local allowance, house-rent allowance and names of those who are wholly and solely their dependants, together with copy of Government sanction permitting lady clerks to draw Simla allowances over and above their higher rates of pay ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : Of the four lady clerks employed in the Office of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs, three are given concessions at family rates admissible under the Simla Allowance Code.

The statement required will be supplied to the Honourable Member. Government sanction to such allowances is contained in the Simla Allowance Code.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : May I know who are these three lady clerks ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : I think that information will be given to the Honourable Member in answer to a subsequent question, but the names of the lady clerks are Miss deMonte.....

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : May I inform the Honourable Member that the names of those three lady clerks are (1) Miss deMonte, (2) Mrs. Harrington, and (3) Miss N. Fox. Am I not correct that (1) is the youngest sister of Mr. F. T. deMonte, Postmaster General, and has no dependant, (2) has no legal dependant at all, and (3) is the only daughter of Mrs. B. Fox, a retired Sub-Postmistress, who is a Government pensioner ? I should like to ask if it is not a fact ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : I think the answer has been given to the Honourable Member in the statement which is going to be supplied to him.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Very well.

NAMES AND QUALIFICATIONS OF LADY CLERKS EMPLOYED IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS SINCE 1923.

96. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that the lowest qualification fixed for a clerk is Matriculation ? If so, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the names and educational qualifications of lady clerks employed in the Office of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs since January 1923 ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : It is presumed that the Honourable Member is referring to the Director General's Office. If so, it is a fact that, prior to January, 1928, the minimum qualification of a clerk was the passing of the Matriculation examination. The minimum qualification has, however, since been revised, and is now the passing of the Staff Selection Board examination. An exception is made in the case of typists and stenographers, whose selection depends on their proficiency in shorthand and typing.

The statement desired by the Honourable Member is being sent to him. All lady clerks employed in the Director General's Office since 1923 are typists or stenographers.

TOTAL NUMBER OF EUROPEANS, ANGLO-INDIANS, HINDUS AND MUSLIMS EMPLOYED IN THE RAILWAY SUPERIOR SERVICES (ENGINEERING) AT THE END OF 1927 AND 1928.

97. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will Government be pleased to state, under separate heads, the total number of Europeans, Anglo-Indians, Hindus and Muslims in the Railway Superior Services (Engineering) at the end of 1927 and 1928 ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Honourable Member will find full information about the position at the end of the financial years 1926-27 and 1927-28 in Appendix F of Volume I of the Railway Board's Report on Indian Railways for 1927-28.

EMPLOYMENT OF NIGHT CONDUCTING GUARDS ON ALL MAIL AND PASSENGER TRAINS.

98. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : Will Government be pleased to state if the services of the night conducting guards have been appreciated by the travelling public and, if so, do Government propose to consider the desirability of employing them in all mail and passenger trains in all the State Railways ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I understand that the services of conductor guards detailed to accompany certain night trains on the North Western and East Indian Railways have been appreciated by the public. I am sending a copy of the Honourable Member's question and my answer to other Railway Administrations to consider whether the local conditions on their lines necessitate such a provision.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : We have never heard of night conducting guards on the East Indian Railway.

ACCELERATION OF THE SPEED OF MAIL AND PASSENGER TRAINS.

99. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Are Government aware that the "Frontier Mail", run by the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, is the fastest train in India, covering a distance, as she does, of 865 miles, from Colaba (Bombay) to Delhi in 23 hours 35 minutes, while the 7 Up Express from Howrah to Delhi via Agra City—a distance of 909 miles—takes 25 hours 44 minutes, and the Punjab Mail from Howrah to Delhi covers a distance of 903 miles (i.e., 6 miles less than the 7 Up Express does) in 26 hours 34 minutes ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to explain the cause of this delay in the running of the Punjab Mail from Howrah to Delhi ?

(c) Are Government prepared to consider the desirability of accelerating the speed of mail and passenger trains in all the railways, particularly in the East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railways ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The timings of the trains are as stated by the Honourable Member.

(b) The through speed of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Frontier Mail is 36 miles an hour, that of the East Indian Railway 7 Up Express 35 miles an hour and of the Punjab Mail 34 miles an hour. It is not ordinarily possible to run trains on different railways at uniform through speeds. Varying conditions, such as the number of halts to be made, the number of branch line connections, and the weight and length of the train affect the through speed.

(c) Railway Administrations are actively alive to the desirability of accelerating the speed of mail and passenger trains, as far as possible, and Government do not consider that any special action on their part is necessary at present.

ACCELERATION OF THE SPEED OF THE DARJEELING MAIL TRAIN ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

100. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Are Government aware that the Darjeeling mail, run by the Eastern Bengal Railway, invariably arrives late in Calcutta ?

(b) If so, do Government propose to accelerate her speed to enable her to run to time ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) I think the Honourable Member has been misinformed, Sir. I believe the Darjeeling Mail does reach Calcutta in time quite often.

(b) I have drawn the attention of the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, to this point.

UNSUITABLE CONDITION OF RAILWAY WAITING ROOMS AT SILIGURI STATION ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

101. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : Are Government aware of the inadequate accommodation of both the ladies' and gentlemen's waiting rooms at the Siliguri station on the Eastern Bengal Railway and of the untidy condition in which they are kept, particularly of the filthy condition of the bathrooms attached thereto ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information in the matter, but I am sending a copy of my Honourable friend's question to the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, for any action he may think it desirable to take.

INFERIOR QUALITY OF FOODS SUPPLIED IN RESTAURANT CARS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

102. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : Are Government aware that the food and tea supplied by restaurant cars on the East Indian Railway compare very unfavourably with those supplied by restaurant cars in other railways ?

Mr. P. B. Rau : Government have no reason to think so.

DEFECTIVE ARRANGEMENTS FOR SECURING RESERVED ACCOMMODATION LABELS IN RAILWAY CARRIAGES.

103. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Are Government aware that the Reserve labels put outside the first and second class compartments are not secure, and the Reserve cards inside the carriage are too small to fit in the brass pockets and are not infrequently blown off, thus depriving the passengers concerned of the privileges of reserved accommodation ?

(b) If so, do Government propose to take steps to remedy these defects ?

Mr. P. B. Rau : Government have no information in the matter, but I am communicating a copy of this question to the Agents of all Class I Railways for such action as they may consider necessary.

IMPROVEMENT OF RAILWAY STATION WAITING ROOMS AND REDUCTION OF CHARGES FOR WAITING ROOMS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

104. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Are Government aware of the magnificent and well-equipped retiring rooms provided in the Victoria Terminus, Bombay, by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway ?

(b) Do Government propose to consider the desirability of improving all the existing retiring rooms on that model ?

(c) Are Government aware that the Great Indian Peninsula Railway charges Rs. 5 for the occupation of the retiring room for 24 hours from the time it is engaged, while the North Western Railway charges Rs. 3 for 12 hours from 6 A.M. to 6 P.M., and Rs. 4 for 12 hours from 6 P.M. to 6 A.M. ?

(d) For the convenience of the travelling public do Government propose to consider the desirability of altering the rates of the North Western Railway to Rs. 3 for 12 hours or Rs. 5 for 24 hours, the period of occupation to commence from the time the room is engaged ?

Mr. P. B. Rau : (a) Government are aware that comfortable retiring rooms have been provided at the Victoria Terminus at Bombay.

(b) Owing to structural differences at different stations, it would not, I am afraid, be possible to make all existing rooms conform to the model of those at the Victoria Terminus.

(c) Yes.

(d) Government do not consider it necessary or desirable to require railways to charge uniform rates for retiring rooms as conditions vary on different railways and at different stations.

STRIKE OF STUDENTS AT THE INDIAN SCHOOL OF MINES, DHANBAD.

105. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : Will Government be pleased to make a detailed statement regarding the recent strike of students at the Indian School of Mines, Dhanbad, giving particularly the allegations made by the students in justification of the strike and the result of any official inquiry therein ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : A statement giving the required information is being supplied to the Honourable Member, and a copy will also be placed in the Library of the House.

DISCUSSION IN THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF THE RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE INDIAN STATES COMMITTEE.

106. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : Do Government propose to give this House an opportunity to discuss the findings and recommendations of the Indian States Committee in so far as they affect the interests of British India, particularly the following paragraphs of the Report, before taking any action thereon :

Paragraphs Nos. 69, 70, 75, 82, 85, 86, 87, 88, 93, 94, 96, 99, 100 and 104 ?

Sir Denys Bray : The whole Report is still under consideration, and Government are not at present in a position to make any detailed statement. In the event, however, of any question arising, which seriously affects British Indian interests, the Assembly will be given an opportunity for discussion before a final decision is reached.

AIR SERVICE FROM KARACHI TO DELHI.

107. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : With reference to the proposed subsidised air service from Karachi to Delhi, with future extension to other places, will Government be pleased to state :

(a) whether it is not a fact that tenders received from intending Companies up to March 1929 did not conform to the terms and conditions laid down by the Standing Finance Committee, and concurred in by Government, regarding the eligibility of any company for the subsidy ;

(b) if the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, whether fresh tenders have been called for in the light of the said terms and conditions, or whether informal negotiations have been carried on with any chosen company or individual in that connection ; and

(c) whether there is any possibility of inaugurating the service according to the original time-table ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I regret, Sir, that I am not in a position just yet to give a complete answer to the Honourable Member. The position is that negotiations are still proceeding in the light of the conclusions reached in discussion with the Standing Finance Committee last March. I hope, however, to be able to make a statement to the House on the subject later on during the present session.

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE BY A CONFERENCE OF MEDICAL MEN IN 1928.

108. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Are Government aware that a Conference of members of the medical profession from all over India was held in Calcutta in December 1928, and have they received a copy of the resolutions passed by the said Conference ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, what action, if any, do Government propose to take on the recommendations made by the said Conference ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Government received in July a copy of the Resolutions passed by the All-India Medical Conference held at Calcutta in December last.

(b) Those of the Resolutions which concern the Government of India are under consideration.

AMOUNT OF SILVER SOLD AND GOLD SECURITIES PURCHASED BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA IN 1927, 1928 AND 1929.

109. *Mr. N. C. Kelkar : (a) Will Government state the amount of silver sold by them in India and in England in the years 1927, 1928 and 1929 ?

(b) Will Government state whether the amount realised from time to time by the sale of silver in India or England, was in each case used for the immediate purpose of buying "gold bullion" or otherwise building up the gold reserve ? If so, what was the amount of gold or gold securities added to the reserve in each case by each purchase ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) I would call the attention of the Honourable Member to the answers given to similar questions, asked by Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, in the Assembly, on the 6th February, 1929, and by Sir Phiroze Sethna in the Council of State on the 17th September, 1928. The market in silver is a sensitive market, and dealings on a large scale have to be handled with great discretion and secrecy in order to avoid speculators taking advantage of the position, or any demoralisation of the market. For these reasons I do not think that it would be in the public interest if I were to give any further detailed figures at the present stage.

I am, however, devoting my attention to devising some means by which fuller information can be given to the public on these points without actual damage to the public interest, together with a fuller explanation of the Government's policy. If the Honourable Member will come to see me I will explain to him fully what is involved in this question. For the present it may interest him to be reminded that at the date which the Currency Commission took as the basis for their Report in April 1926, the stock of silver in the Government reserves was 85 crores of rupees, and on 22nd August, 1929, it was 110½ crores. Further, I can tell him that, with the exception of one lot of nine million ounces of fine silver, which was actually sold for delivery in India, all the remaining sales hitherto made have been of unrefined silver, not acceptable on the Indian market. This silver has been sold for special purposes abroad. No sales have yet been made of fine silver produced at the new Bombay refinery. There has been no instance of fine silver suitable for the Indian market being sold abroad with a possibility of being shipped back to India.

(b) The proceeds of the sale of silver have hitherto always been invested in what may be described as gold securities, generally British Treasury Bills.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Is it a fact that the refinery at Bombay has been working, and, that the Directors of the Bullion Exchange in Bombay have removed the discount on silver refined in India ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : It is a fact that the Bombay refinery has been working now for some months and I am glad to say that the discount has been removed, the removal to take effect from October.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : That then removes the main handicap on the Government selling Indian refined silver in India ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : That does remove the handicap, and I hope that all the fine silver produced in the Bombay refinery will find its place in the Indian market.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Do I take it that Government will take advantage of this removal of the handicap and will sell silver in India which is the largest consumer of silver in the world.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I hope to include a statement as regards the policy of the Government in selling the silver in the statement which I mentioned in my answer to the question I had under consideration. I would ask the Honourable Member not to press me any further on this matter. I am fully alive to the public interest that is taken in this question, and I am sure the Honourable Member, on his side, is also fully alive to the fact that the silver market is a very sensitive market and that we have to proceed with great caution in this matter ; otherwise we might depreciate the price of silver unduly, and the price of silver is a thing which affects the interests of almost everybody in India. If the Government is not very ready at the moment to say exactly what it is going to do, it is not because it wishes to keep anything back from the public ; but simply because we have very much in mind these important points to which I have referred. I am sure the Honourable Member will recognise that it is not my practice to withhold information from this House, and I very much regret that I cannot at present say anything more. But it is because I feel it is in the public interest that I should not say more at the moment that I am keeping silent.

Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla : Will the Honourable Member kindly say why the proceeds of silver were not utilised in purchasing gold bullion instead of gold securities ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The Honourable Member will realise that the acquisition of gold from time to time may be a matter of some difficulty. It might perhaps interest Honourable Members if I gave the House the figures of the holdings of gold and gold securities and of silver as they stood in June 1927 when the policy of selling silver was first commenced and as they stand to-day.

In June 1927, the total note issue was 172.57 crores; the gold holdings in the paper currency reserve and the gold standard reserve combined were 32.6 crores; "gold securities" stood at 50.46 crores, and the silver holding at 107.34 crores. On the 22nd August, 1929, the total note issue was 185.72 crores, the gold holding was 35.1 crores, the holding in gold securities was 52.52 crores and the holding in silver was 110.43 crores. That is to say, the note issue has been expanded by about 13½ crores, the holding in gold has been increased by 2½ crores, the holding in gold securities has been increased by just over 2 crores and the holding in silver has been increased by just over 3 crores. If the Honourable Member will examine those figures I think he will find some answer to the charges that have been made against the Government, and to the suspicion which exists.

Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla : Was it not one of the conditions, or rather one of the recommendations of the Currency Commission that the sale proceeds of silver should be utilised for purchasing gold bullion and in view of the fact that opportunities were offered to replace silver stocks by gold bullion, why were those opportunities not utilised and instead of that money was invested in good securities?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I think that the Honourable Member's supplementary question will arise more properly in connection with the answer to question No. 110. With your permission, Sir, I should like to deal with that point in answer to that question.

Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla : Will the Honourable Member kindly give an undertaking that in future when silver sales are made, the proceeds of such sales will be utilised in purchasing gold bullion and not gold securities?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : It would be very difficult for me to give a categorical undertaking of that kind. It may not always be possible to apply the particular proceeds of a particular sale in that way. At the same time, I am very much alive to the strong public feeling which exists on this point. I am giving the very fullest consideration to it and in any general statement which I may make as regards the Government's policy I will deal with that point. I think any further explanation on this point will arise more appropriately on the next question.

RECOMMENDATION OF THE HILTON-YOUNG COMMISSION FOR BUILDING UP A GOLD RESERVE.

110. *Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Will Government state how far they have carried out the programme of building up the gold reserve recommended by the Hilton-Young Commission?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I presume that the Honourable Member is referring to the recommendations of the Commission in paragraphs 78 and 145 of their Report. Strictly speaking, all the recommendations of the Commission were dependent on the formation of a Central or Reserve Bank, and the programme which they laid down for the increase of the holding of gold and for the reduction of silver stocks dated from such formation. As the Government's proposals for the formation of the bank were not accepted by this Assembly, it may be said that the opportunity to give effect to the Commission's recommendations has not arisen.

On the other hand, as I have stated on a previous occasion, the Government still consider the formation of such a bank to be ultimately desirable, and one may conclude from the Report of the Currency Commission that they would have thought it appropriate to carry out certain of their recommendations in advance of the formation of the bank if that were to be, as at present, delayed. It is clear, for example, that the Commission thought that, in any case, the silver holdings were excessive, and that it would be desirable to increase the gold holdings. As regards the latter, the Commission recommended that the gold holdings should be brought up to 20 per cent. of the liabilities of the issue department after the end of the fifth year from the formation of the Bank, and to 25 per cent. at the end of the tenth year. They further recommended that in no case should the gold holdings be less than 30 crores. At the date which the Commission took as the basis for their Report, (namely, April 1926), the total note issue outstanding was just over 185 crores, and to this liability the Commission added a liability of 50 crores in respect of what they called "rupee redemption", thus making the total liabilities 235 crores. At that time the total gold holding in the Gold Standard Reserve and the Paper Currency Reserve combined was 29½ crores, that is to say, the gold holding represented just over 16 per cent. of the note issue and 12 2/3rds per cent. of what the Commission called the total liabilities. On the 22nd August, 1929, the total note issue was 185.9 crores, and the gold holding in the two reserves together was just over 35 crores. That is to say, the gold holding had been increased by 5½ crores to a figure representing about 19 per cent. of the note issue, and just under 15 per cent. of the figures which the Commission took as the "total liabilities". The increase in the gold holdings from 12 2/3rds of the total liability to 15 per cent. does represent a considerable step along the course recommended by the Commission and I would remind the Honourable Member that more than half this increase has been made since November last.

Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla : Is it a fact that this percentage has been increased on account of the contraction effected in the currency?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : There has been no contraction effected in the note issue. I gave the figures to the Honourable Member. At the date which the Commission took as their basis, April 1926, the outstanding note issue was 185 crores. On the 22nd August last, it was 185.9 crores.

PARTICULARS OF UNIVERSITY TRAINING CORPS UNITS IN INDIA.

111. *Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Will Government give information for all the University Training Corps units in India under the following heads :

- (1) Name of University Training Corps.
- (2) Name of Station.
- (3) Total allotment for this Corps in 1929.
- (4) Number, grades and salaries of Indian and European officers attached to the Corps.
- (5) Expenditure on uniforms.
- (6) Expenditure on rifle practice.
- (7) Expenditure on Camping life?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (1) and (2). The Honourable Member will find the information at pages 727 to 731 of the Indian Army List for July 1929.

(3) The allotment for University Training Corps is included in the budget for the Indian Territorial Force as a whole, and I am afraid it is impossible to separate out the information required by the Honourable Member. It is estimated, however, that one company of the University Training Corps costs approximately Rs. 90,400 in the first year and Rs. 33,500 in subsequent years.

(4) I will furnish the Honourable Member with a statement giving this information.

(5) Officers receive an outfit allowance of Rs. 300 on appointment. The rank and file get free clothing and equipment, the cost of which per company is about Rs. 40,400 in the first year and Rs. 6,100 in subsequent years.

(6) The annual expenditure on ammunition is approximately Rs. 5-6-0 per man.

(7) Rs. 77,447 have been provided in this year's budget for expenditure in camp by units of the University Training Corps. This sum excludes the cost of transportation, tentage and the pay of officers.

NUMBER OF ASSISTANT ENGINEERS TO BE RECRUITED IN ENGLAND AND IN INDIA IN 1929.

112. *Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Will Government state the number of Assistant Engineers to be recruited for the year 1929 in England and India? If there is to be no recruitment in India, will Government state the reasons for the same?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Nine Assistant Executive Engineers (which is the designation of officers recruited into the Indian Service of Engineers), will be recruited in England in 1929, provided that the full number of suitable candidates is available. As regards the number of officers to be recruited in India for the Service, proposals regarding the rules to regulate such recruitment have been submitted to the Secretary of State. On receipt of his orders (which are expected shortly), the rules, as approved by him, will be published for general information. Thereafter the number of candidates to be recruited thereunder for the first time will be announced. As, however, an unavoidable delay occurred in the submission of the proposals to the Secretary of State, it will not be possible to effect any recruitment under the rules referred to until the beginning of 1930.

The number of recruits to the Indian Railway Service of Engineers during 1929-30 will probably be four in England and 14 in India.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Will the deficit in the recruitment due to the delay in passing the rules be made up this year?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The deficit will not be made up this year. As I have explained, the recruits who would have ordinarily been taken in during the year 1929 will be taken in about the beginning of 1930. Thereafter the precise time of the year when the recruitment will be made will depend on the arrangements made by the Public Service Commission.

RESULT OF RECENT CONFERENCE ON THE FUTURE POLICY OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE REVENUE DEPARTMENTS.

113. *Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Will Government place on the table a summary of the proceedings of, or at least the results arrived at by, the Conference recently held at Simla between the Central Government and representatives of Provincial Governments, on the subject of the future policy of the administration of the Revenue Departments?

Sir Frank Noyce : The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the Press Communiqué issued on the 15th May, 1929, a copy of which has been placed on the table of the House. The promised Resolution will be published shortly.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, HEALTH AND LANDS.

Simla, the 15th May, 1929.

Press Communiqué.

The Government of India have had under consideration for some time the question of surveying the salient features of land revenue administration in the non-permanently settled provinces in British India. It will be remembered that the last comprehensive examination of this question was undertaken by the Government of Lord Curzon, who issued a Resolution on the subject in 1902. The Government of India accordingly invited the Governments of Madras, Bombay, the United Provinces, the Punjab, the Central Provinces and Assam to depute their Honourable Revenue Members to a Conference at which the adequacy of the existing system of land revenue administration to meet present conditions might be examined. The Conference, which was presided over throughout by His Excellency the Viceroy, was attended by the Honourable Sir Norman Marjoribanks, K.C.I.E., C.S.I., Revenue Member, Madras, the Honourable Mr. J. L. Kieu, C.S.I., I.C.S., Revenue Member, Bombay, the Honourable Mr. G. B. Lambert, C.S.I., I.C.S., Finance Member, United Provinces, the Honourable Khan Bahadur Mian Sir Fazl-i-Hussain, K.C.I.E., Kt., Revenue Member, Punjab, the Honourable Sir Arthur Nelson, C.I.E., C.B.E., Kt., Finance Member, Central Provinces, and the Honourable Mr. A. W. Botham, C.S.I., C.I.E., Finance Member, Assam. Mr. J. W. Smyth, I.C.S., Revenue Secretary to the Government of Bombay, and Mr. W. L. Scott, C.I.E., Director of Land Records, Assam, also took part in the Conference. The Government of India hope to publish shortly a Resolution setting out the main conclusions reached by the Conference on the important questions discussed. But as land revenue administration is primarily the concern of Local Governments, being a reserved provincial subject, and the divergences of local system of settlements and local conditions make it essential that any general principles that may be enunciated should be framed with due regard to these factors, the Government of India propose to issue the Resolution after prior consultation with the Local Governments.

ESTABLISHMENT OF AN ADVISORY BOARD FOR THE BAFSI LIGHT RAILWAY.

114. *Mr. N. C. Kelkar : (a) Will Government state whether the Railway Board had at any time recommended to the Barsi Light Railway Company the desirability of establishing an advisory board for that Railway ?

(b) If so, what was the reply received from the Company ?

(c) Is it not a fact that many grievances of passengers using that Railway go unheeded for want of such an advisory committee and the absence of direct control over the Railway by the Railway Board ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes, in 1922.

(b) and (c). No reply was received at the time, but when the question was again put to the Agent recently, he expressed the opinion that an advisory committee is unnecessary. The Railway Board are addressing the Agent further in this matter.

COST OF A RAILWAY BRIDGE ACROSS THE BHIMA RIVER NEAR PANDHARPUR AND AMOUNT OF SPECIAL TRAFFIC RATES LEVIED BY THE BAFSI LIGHT RAILWAY.

115. *Mr. N. C. Kelkar : (a) Will Government state what was the total expenditure incurred by the Barsi Light Railway Company on the construction of the railway bridge across the Bhima river near Pandharpur ?

(b) Is it a fact that this Railway Company was allowed by the Railway Board to levy special traffic rates for recovering this expenditure on the bridge ? If so, for how many years were the special rates enforced, and what was the total amount recovered by the Company by these means ?

(c) Will Government please state whether any portion of the excess of the recovered money over the expenditure on the bridge was spent in providing passenger coaches, in view of the heavy passenger traffic to Pandharpur at least twice a year ?

(d) Did the Railway Board ever make any inquiries as to whether excess money was recovered by the special traffic rates levied by the Barsi Light Railway Company over the amount of expenditure incurred on the Bhima bridge ? If so, with what result ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The total cost of constructing the bridge was Rs. 5,78,000.

(b) Yes. The special rates were levied for about eight years from 1915 and the total amount recovered was Rs. 10,09,964.

(c) The earnings were credited to revenue in the usual way and not set aside for any special purpose.

(d) No.

LIST OF BOOKS AND PAMPHLETS ON RUSSIA PROSCRIBED SINCE 1918.

116. *Mr. N. C. Kelkar : (a) Will Government lay on the table a list of books or pamphlets or general printed literature in any other form on the subject of Russia, proscribed under their orders since the year 1918 ?

(b) Will Government obtain from the Home Office in London a list of books and literature on the subject of Russia proscribed under the orders of the Home Secretary in London, and lay it on the table of the House ?

(c) Will Government please state what steps they took to keep a watch on literature which may be undesirable from their point of view, but which is printed neither in India nor in England, and imported into India through the Post Office or by shipments from foreign countries ? What are the steps generally taken with regard to such books and literature ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) From the information in the possession of the Government of India up to the end of 1928, no literature on the subject of Russia appears to have been forfeited under the Press Act of 1910, or proscribed under section 99-A of the Criminal Procedure Code. A list has been placed on the table showing literature relating to Russia, or emanating from Russia, which has been prohibited under the Sea Customs Act.

(b) I do not think that the Government of India could properly take the action suggested.

(c) In regard to undesirable literature imported or likely to be imported into India, if its entry has been already prohibited, the Customs and the Postal Departments are asked to keep a watch on its importation and to intercept it, if discovered. If its entry into India has not been prohibited, the literature is examined in order to see whether prohibition is necessary.

Literature relating to Russia or emanating from Russia which has been prohibited under the Sea Customs Act.

1. Bolshevism and the Islamic Body Politic by Maulvi Md. Barkatulla.
2. Gale's journal of revolutionary Communism (a magazine).
3. Soviet Russia.
4. All publications issued by the Red International of Labour Unions.
5. Economics and problem of national revolutionaries in the countries of the Near and Far East, Moscow.
6. Publications issued by the Communist International or organisations controlled by the Communist International.

SUGGESTION BY SIR CLEMENT HINDLEY THAT THE RAILWAY DEPARTMENT MIGHT BE MADE DIRECTLY RESPONSIBLE TO PARLIAMENT.

117. *Mr. N. C. Kelkar : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the speech of Sir Clement Hindley before the East India Association, London, in June last or thereabouts, on the subject of Indian Railways and particularly to the reference therein to the possibility of the Railway Department in India being made responsible to the Parliament by special Statute ?

(b) Will Government please state whether the idea has been mentioned by any responsible authority in India in its correspondence with Home authorities or with the Government of India or before the Simon Commission?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) Government have seen the speech referred to by the Honourable Member. The passage to which he refers runs as follows :

" In Canada, Germany and Belgium State railway administration has been commercialised and made a separate authority subordinated by Statute to Parliament. But whether such a solution is likely to be found by the makers of India's future constitution remains to be seen "

It is obvious, I think, that by " Parliament " Sir Clement Hindley meant in each case the Legislature of the country concerned, and that when he spoke of a similar solution in India, he was thinking of a statutory body subordinate to the Indian Legislature.

(b) So far as Government are aware, no one has ever suggested that the administration of the Indian railways could be entrusted to a body directly subordinate to the British Parliament.

ISSUE OF RAILWAY BONDS BY GOVERNMENT TO RAISE FUNDS FOR RAILWAY PROGRAMMES.

118. *Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Have Government in their contemplation any idea about raising funds for railway programmes by issuing railway bonds, open for purchase even by people outside India?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The question of how best to raise money for the future development of the railways in India is one which has been constantly in my mind during the past year ; but I cannot say that there is any such proposition as is referred to in the question definitely under consideration by the Government of India at present. I am not quite clear what the Honourable Member has in his mind in using the words " open for purchase even by people outside India ". All Government of India securities are open for purchase by anybody regardless of his domicile. If the Honourable Member has any special ideas or suggestions on this subject, I should be very glad to discuss them with him.

NAMES OF RAILWAY PROGRAMMES HELD UP DURING THE LAST SIX YEARS FOR WANT OF FUNDS.

119. *Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Will Government name the railway programmes, if any, which had to be held up during the last six years for want of funds totally denied or curtailed by the Railway Finance Committee, or which were not placed before the Committee for fear of such curtailment or refusal?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I lay a statement on the table showing the proposals placed before the Standing Finance Committee for Railways which were either not accepted by them, or accepted in a modified form.

I am not aware of any not placed before the Committee for the reason mentioned by the Honourable Member.

INSUFFICIENCY OF WATERWAYS ON THE ASSAM-BENGAL RAILWAY.

120. *Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : (a) Are Government aware that the insufficiency of waterways on the railway line between Fenchugunj and Moglabazar Section of the Assam Bengal Railway has been responsible for much of the havoc done by the floods in a considerable portion of the Sadr sub-division of the Sylhet district ?

(b) Do Government propose to increase the number of waterways in this particular section of the Assam Bengal Railway ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Government have made inquiries on this point from the Agent, Assam Bengal Railway, who reports that the waterways are amply sufficient for normal floods. This year's flood was two to four feet higher than anything previously recorded or remembered by living man in the district.

(b) It is understood that the Government of Assam have called for a report as to the sufficiency or otherwise of the waterways provided by the Railway Company and Government will await this report before taking action.

CONTROL OF RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE OFFICIALS BY SUPERINTENDENTS AND INSPECTORS OF THAT SERVICE.

121. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Is it a fact that the Railway Mail Service officials are controlled by Superintendents, Railway Mail Service, and Inspectors, and not by the head record clerk ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : The position is not exactly as stated by the Honourable Member. A head record clerk is empowered to appoint, transfer and punish porters and lower grade staff and also has certain powers of control over sorters, including the power of temporarily transferring such officials.

AMALGAMATION OF THE GRADES OF POSTMASTER-GENERAL, DEPUTY POSTMASTER-GENERAL AND ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

122. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : With reference to Government reply to my question No. 329 in the last Delhi Session, will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the grades of Postmaster General, Deputy Postmaster General and Assistant Postmaster General are different from one another ? If so, do Government propose to consider the question of amalgamating the grades of the Postmaster General, Deputy Postmaster General and Assistant Postmaster General into one, as has been done in the case of non-gazetted Postmasters and Deputy Postmasters ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. With regard to the rest of the question, Government see no reason to adopt the course suggested by the Honourable Member as the status, duties and responsibilities of each of the three classes of gazetted officers referred to are widely different, and there is no analogy between the case of these officers and the case of Postmasters and Deputy Postmasters.

RESERVATION OF FUTURE VACANCIES IN THE POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS DEPARTMENT FOR MUSLIMS TILL THEY FORM ONE-THIRD OF THE TOTAL EMPLOYEES.

123. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : (a) With reference to Government's reply to my question No. 330 in the last Delhi Session, will Government be pleased to lay on the table the procedure followed by the Departments in order to see that Government orders are strictly observed by the recruiting officers ?

(b) Do Government propose to reserve the vacancies henceforth occurring in the Posts and Telegraphs Department for the members of the Moslem community till they form one-third number of the total employees ? If not, when is the community likely to get its proper share according to its numerical strength ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) In the Indian Postal and Telegraph Department, the composition of new recruits according to various communities will be given in a statement which will be introduced in the Administration Report of the Department with effect from 1928-29.

(b) The reply to the first part is in the negative. The Honourable Member has evidently not understood the intention of the Government orders on the subject. The policy of Government in this matter is to prevent the preponderance in Government service of any one community, and one-third of the vacancies in any office or Department are reserved for such adjustments as may be necessary in pursuance of this policy. This is quite a different thing from reserving one-third of the vacancies for any particular community.

GRANT TO SECOND CLASS HEAD POSTMASTERS OF POWER TO DEAL WITH THEIR SUBORDINATES.

124. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that second class Head Postmasters are experiencing much difficulty in managing Head Offices, as they have no power to deal with the subordinates of the clerical cadre ? If so, do Government propose to invest them with full powers to deal with their subordinates ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : Government are not aware of any such difficulty. The latter part of the question does not arise.

RESERVATION FOR MUSLIMS OF TWO-THIRDS OF THE VACANCIES IN APPOINTMENTS IN THE POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS DEPARTMENT.

125. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to state the circumstances under which Government reserve only one-third of the vacancies for the Muslim community ? Are Government prepared to reserve two-thirds of the vacancies for that community and one-third for the communities who are already in overwhelming numbers in these departments till the number of the Muslim community reaches its proper level ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : If the Honourable Member's question is intended to relate to the rules regarding recruitment to certain services and Departments under the Government of India, I would refer him to the statement made by the late Sir Alexander Muddiman in another place on 2nd March, 1925. It will be seen that the reservation of one-third is for minority communities generally which fail to obtain adequate representation in the Services. As at present advised, Government are not prepared to make any change in the policy already adopted after mature consideration, but I shall be glad to have any representation which the Honourable Member may wish to communicate to me on the subject.

NUMBER OF MUSSALMANS APPOINTED AS OFFICERS AND IN SUPERIOR AND INFERIOR GRADES IN THE POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS DEPARTMENT SINCE ISSUE OF GOVERNMENT'S ORDERS RESERVING ONE-THIRD OF VACANCIES FOR THAT COMMUNITY.

126. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Will Government be pleased to call for and lay on the table statistics from the Posts and Telegraphs Department showing the vacancies which occurred in the officers' and the superior and inferior grades from the date of the issue of the Government order reserving one-third of the vacancies for the Mussalmans and the number of vacancies in the various grades filled up by Mussalmans and others, and state whether the orders were strictly observed ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I would refer the Honourable Member to the explanation I have just given in reply to his question No. 123, in view of which the statistics asked for by him do not appear to be necessary, and the concluding sentence of his question does not rise.

ARTICULARS OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY CARRIED ON IN BRITISH BALUCHISTAN AND NATURE OF SUPPORT GIVEN TO IT.

127. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what commerce and industry, and to what extent, are prevailing at present in British Baluchistan ?

(b) How are they administratively managed ?

(c) Do the Political Officers on the spot give any support to them and, if so, which and to what extent ?

(d) Have the Commerce and the Industries Departments of the Government of India any practical hand in it and, if so, which and to what extent ?

(e) Do the Commerce and the Industries Departments of the Government of India give any financial support to the commerce and industry of this province and, if so, how much ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to the last Administration Report of the Baluchistan Agency, copies of which are in the Library.

(b) to (e). Official functions relating to the commercial and industrial development of British Baluchistan are performed by local officers under the authority of the Agent to the Governor General and Chief Commissioner, who acts in this capacity on behalf of the Government of India, in the Commerce and Industry Departments. The expenditure incurred in the performance of these functions is borne by the Central Government.

EXTENT OF FINANCIAL BURDEN TO THE INDIAN TREASURY OF BRITISH BALUCHISTAN.

128. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if British Baluchistan is financially a burden on the Indian Treasury ?

(b) If so, to what extent, and for how many years has it so remained ?

(c) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state if they have any idea of attempting to make the province self-supporting ? If so, how ?

Sir Denys Bray : (a) Yes.

(b) From the beginning. Excluding expenditure on Political and Frontier Watch and Ward, which are Central heads everywhere, the deficit last year was nearly 22 lakhs.

(c) With over 1,200 miles of vulnerable land frontier, there is, I fear, no prospect of Baluchistan becoming self-supporting ; but this frontier province is of course doing work for the whole of India.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I understand that it is hopeless for British Baluchistan to improve ?

Sir Denys Bray : Certainly not, Sir. But even British Baluchistan cannot attain perfection.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Then I would expect Government to make some endeavours to improve matters there.

Sir Denys Bray : Government are constantly making such endeavours with the result that Baluchistan is in many ways a model for the rest of India, especially Sind. (Laughter.)

GRANT OF CONTRACTS FOR MILD STEEL SECTIONS FOR THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

129. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state to whom contracts for items Nos. 17 to 23, 25, 26, 35 to 37, 101 to 104, 129 to 132, 134 to 137 and 139 to 142 of the North Western Railway tender for mild steel sections for the year 1929-30 was given, and what was the successful firm's offer for these items ?

(b) What was the offer of Messrs. Ramchand Jethmal, Karachi, for these items ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I shall reply to questions Nos. 129 and 130 together. I lay a statement on the table giving the information required in part (a) of both questions. As regards part (b), the ordinary practice, both of the Railway Department and the Indian Stores Department, is not to publish names or amounts of tenders of unsuccessful tenderers, and Government can see no good reason to depart from it in this matter.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to give me an idea, if the statement does not contain it, of what was the tender of Messrs. Ramchand Jethmal, and what was the other tender which was accepted ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The statement gives information about the successful tenders : about Messrs. Ramchand Jethmal I have already stated that I am unable to give an answer.

GRANT OF CONTRACTS FOR CANVAS HOSE FOR THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

†130. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state to whom the contract for canvas hose of various sizes of the North Western Railway tender for Miscellaneous Stores of European Manufacture for 1929-30 was given and what was the successful firm's offer for different sizes ?

(b) What was the offer of Messrs. Ramchand Jethmal, Karachi, for these items ?

INCLUSION OF THE NAME OF RAMCHAND JETHMAL OF KARACHI IN THE LIST OF FIRMS ASKED TO TENDER FOR STORES FOR THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

131. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Is it a fact that tenders were invited from Messrs. Ramchand Jethmal of Karachi for casual requirements of the North Western Railway ? If so, why were they not included in the list of Indian firms which were asked to give their quotations, as stated in letter No. 3925, dated Simla, the 20th May, 1929, from the Deputy

†For answer to this question see answer to question No. 129.

Director, Railway Board, in reply to question No. 439, asked in the Assembly by Haji Abdullah Haroon, M.L.A., on the 3rd April, 1929 ?

(b) Is it a fact that invitation of such tenders from the firm of Messrs. Ramchand Jethmal of Karachi has been discontinued ? If so, why ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I understand invitations for casual tenders were invited from the firm named in the past, but it has now been removed from the list, along with 85 other firms, with a view to reducing the list which had become unnecessarily long.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to say what was the reason for taking away the names of this firm and other firms ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Because the list had become unnecessarily long, 86 names were removed from the total list.

PUBLICATION BY THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY OF PARTICULARS OF THEIR PURCHASES.

132. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Are Government aware that the Indian Stores Department of the Government of India publish their purchases in an Indian trade journal ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Great Indian Peninsula and East Indian Railways publish their purchases similarly ?

(c) If so, why does not the North Western Railway publish its purchases ?

(d) Do Government propose, in the interests of the trading firms, to ask the North Western Railway to follow a similar course ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b), (c) and (d). In March, 1924, the Railway Board instructed the State Railways to publish, in the Indian Trade Journal, extracts of items of purchase through public tender, the names of the successful tenderers and accepted rates.

The Great Indian Peninsula Railway publish acceptances of all advertised annual tenders for items exceeding Rs. 5,000 in total value. The East Indian Railway publish accepted tenders in the East Indian Railway Stores Bulletins, which are supplied regularly to the Director General of Commercial Intelligence and Statistics, Calcutta ; but it is understood on inquiry that, through some misunderstanding, these results are not being published in the Indian Trade Journal. Steps are being taken to put this right. The North Western Railway have not been publishing accepted tenders in the Indian Trade Journal, except for sleepers, as in 1927 the Director General of Commercial Intelligence advised the Agent that he was unable to provide the space required for detailed lists of accepted items on annual tenders ; but lists of all accepted tenders are posted on the notice board outside the headquarters office, Lahore. The Railway Board have now arranged with the Director General of Intelligence and Statistics to publish the North Western Railway accepted items in the same way as in other State Railways.

NUMBER OF MUSLIMS APPOINTED TO THE ARMY DEPARTMENT SINCE OCTOBER 1927.

133. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : With reference to my questions Nos. 861 and 862, asked on the 5th September, 1927, will Government be pleased to state what action has since been taken by the Public Service Commission, to add more Muslim candidates to the list of qualified candidates and how many Muslims have been appointed in the Army Department since October 1927 ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Since September 1927, the Public Service Commission have added, on the results of the competitive examination held in November, 1926, the names of 15 Muslims to the list of candidates qualified for employment in the Government of India Secretariat and the attached offices. Seven Muslims have been appointed, either permanently or in a provisionally permanent capacity in the Army Department Secretariat since October 1927.

PAY AND ALLOWANCES OF CERTAIN CLERKS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

134. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to refer to the statement below and state whether it is correct, and also state :

- (a) The reasons why the lady clerks are allowed to draw higher rates of pay and allowances than the senior male clerks ?
- (b) Whether the clerks at 18 and 19 of the statement have been allowed any concession in view of the huge reduction in their emoluments on account of their retention at Delhi ? If so, what and, if not, what are the reasons ?
- (c) Whether the staff of Director General's Simla Camp Office, especially the clerks of second Division, included the clerks who have been allowed the Delhi transfer concessions ; and, if so, why such clerks have been given preference over the affected clerks who have been deprived of the concessions ?
- (d) Whether it is a fact that one lady typist, who was appointed only last year (1928), is in receipt of a pay of Rs. 125 per mensem (in the grade of Rs. 55—155), plus Simla local allowance, Rs. 65 per mensem, plus house-rent allowance, Rs. 300 ; that is, she is allowed to draw the allowances at family rates over and above her higher rates of pay and, if so, why the male clerks who, although much more senior to her, are in receipt of much less pay and allowances ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The statement furnished by the Honourable Member is correct. The scale of pay and allowances for lady and male clerks is identical, but as, under Government orders lady clerks are given a higher starting pay, the actual pay drawn by them may be higher than that of male clerks of possibly longer service.

(b) No. Because the compensatory and other allowances under the Simla Allowances Code are not admissible to those clerks who are required to remain permanently in Delhi.

(c) Yes ; some of them, because they were selected as more suitable for employment in the camp office.

(d) Yes ; as regards her higher pay, the position has already been explained in my reply to part (a) above. As regards allowances the rates vary according to pay, and higher pay carries higher allowances.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : What is the reason that they are considered more suitable for camp work ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That, Sir, is a matter of opinion on the part of the head of the office. In his opinion these individuals are more suitable for the work of the camp office than perhaps other people who are placed in a less fortunate position.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Are these lady clerks given more pay because they are required to do some additional work besides their office work ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : There is no question of additional work besides office work.

EMOLUMENTS OF CLERKS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS PERMANENTLY LOCATED IN DELHI.

135. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to refer to the reply of the Honourable Mr. A. C. McWatters to Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim's unstarred question No. 414 in the Legislative Assembly on the 20th September, 1928, and say how many clerks from among those who have not been granted any "concessions" sanctioned on the permanent location of the Office of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs at Delhi were permanently located in Delhi this year, and how the percentage of reduction in their emoluments compares with that of the increase in the emoluments of their confreres, who were transferred from Calcutta ?

(b) What amount of compensation has been given to such clerks in view of the huge reduction in their emoluments and in view of the fact that their confreres were given a special increase in pay and other concessions on being permanently located in Delhi ? If no compensation has been given, what are the reasons ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Four, of whom two have been retained in Delhi on promotion to the higher grades. In the case of the other two, the percentages of decrease of emoluments are 49 per cent. and 52 per cent. respectively, representing the Simla Local Allowances ; while the proportionate increase in the emoluments of the clerks of equal standing who were transferred from Calcutta are 9 per cent. and 18 per cent. These increases are due to their temporary personal pay which, under the rules, will be gradually absorbed in annual increments. In a few years' time the pay for the two classes in Delhi will be equalised.

(b) As they are no longer attached to the Simla camp office, they are not entitled to draw the compensatory and other allowances under the Simla Allowances Code, nor have they any claim to concessions enjoyed by clerks transferred with the permanent office from Calcutta to New Delhi, as they did not fulfil the conditions on which those concessions were granted. There is therefore no question of compensation.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Was any undertaking given to the clerks recruited in the Calcutta office that they were to serve in the town of Calcutta only, and if all of them belonged to that town or to suburbs how much did they lose financially by the move ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : So far as I am aware, though this is ancient history, no written undertaking of any kind was given to the clerks referred by my Honourable friend, but there was undoubtedly that understanding. When the clerks were recruited, the headquarters of the Office of the Director General were at Calcutta, and only a section of the Office used to move up to Simla. Therefore, Government considered that it would be only treating these clerks fairly if they were given some compensation for a change in what they understood to be the conditions of their service. I regret I do not possess the statistical information which my Honourable friend wants, and at this distance of time it would be impossible for me to start investigations to collect all that statistical information.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it not a fact, Sir, that the majority of the clerks affected are low paid Mussalmans and the conditions of their service were specially mentioned by Order No. 17-P.T.E., dated the..... 1929, and that 200 clerks got something more by way of concessions ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I can assure my Honourable friend that no question of communal discrimination arises in the matter. The Director General had to follow the orders based on standard rules of the Finance authorities.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Well, Sir, another question. Would not these clerks have got the concessions if they were on duty in the Calcutta office instead of in the Simla office, like the other clerks who were transferred to that office from Simla before the change of headquarters ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I shall be glad if the Honourable Member will repeat his question. It is so long that I could not catch it.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Would they not have got the concessions if these clerks had been in the Calcutta office instead of in the Simla office like the other clerks who were transferred to that office from Simla before the change of headquarters ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I shall be glad if the Honourable Member will put down that question on paper. It is so complicated that, though I have tried my best to catch it, I am afraid I fail to see the point of it.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will it not be proper to leave the details of office arrangement to the Department itself ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That is not a question ; it may be an answer to my friend Maulvi Muhammad Yakub's last question.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : I congratulate the Government for having secured an adviser.

REPORT ON THE SPECIAL SUPPLY OF WAGONS DURING JANUARY, FEBRUARY AND MARCH, 1929, ON THE EAST INDIAN AND BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAYS.

136. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they have received the Report of the Committee appointed to examine the question of special supply of railway wagons during January, February and March, 1929, for the carriage of coal, on the East Indian and Bengal Nagpur Railways, and other connected questions ?

(b) Is it a fact that instances of gross irregularities have been brought to light in the course of the said inquiry, and that the Committee have left it to the Railway Board to decide whether further investigation should be made into these cases ?

(c) What action do Government propose to take upon the Report, and when is it likely to be published?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) Yes. I am placing a copy of the Report on the table of the House.

(b) Yes.

(c) Action has already been taken by the Railway Board on most of the recommendations of the Committee, after obtaining the concurrence of the Indian Mining Association and Indian Mining Federation and the Agents of the East Indian and Bengal Nagpur Railways.

I propose to discuss the matter with the Railway Central Advisory Council at a meeting during the present Session.

WAGON SUPPLY COMMITTEE.

REPORT.

June 10th, 1929.

The Committee appointed to examine the question of the special supply of wagons during January, February and March, 1929 and to investigate the method by which the bases for the allotment of wagons to Collieries are fixed vide Railway Board's letter of the 25th March 1929—held its first Meeting on the 8th April and subsequent ones on the 17th April, the 3rd, 14th and 17th May and the 7th of June.

Terms of Reference.

That the Committee should investigate the whole question of the special supply of wagons during January, February and March 1929 for loading coal for (a) Government requirements and (b) Public Utility Concerns with special reference to :

- (1) The genuineness of the indents for wagons on these accounts.
- (2) The necessity and possibility of the Railways exercising a stricter check on the genuineness of the indents with a view to keeping the numbers of wagons to be supplied under the above two heads as low as possible.
- (3) The necessity for the Railways exercising a greater check than was done in the actual booking of the wagons that were supplied under the above heads. For the purpose of the above investigation the Railway Administration will produce such records before the Committee as are pertinent to the investigation.

The Committee should further investigate the method on which the bases of Collieries are fixed.

Members of the Committee.

C. S. WHITWORTH, Esq., C.I.E., Chief Mining Engineer, Railway Board.

A. A. F. BRAY, Esq.,
W. D. PANTON, Esq., } Representing the Indian Mining Association.

M. N. MUKERJEE, Esq.,
S. C. GHOSH, Esq., } Representing Indian Mining Federation.

A. BURBIDGE, Esq., Representing East Indian Railway.

G. S. PELLY, Esq., Representing Bengal Nagpur Railway.

Report of Committee.

1. The genuineness of indents for wagons on account Government requirements and Public Utility Concerns :

A very large number of indents were not genuine. We were informed that on the Bengal Nagpur Railway inquiries were always made into doubtful cases before wagons were supplied, but on the East Indian Railway—up to the middle of March—there was no regular check of any description. If a Colliery indented for wagons on account "Government" or "Public Utility" they were supplied without question or reference and we are convinced that a large number of wagons supplied against genuine indents were misused.

3. The necessity and possibility of the Railways exercising a stricter check on the genuineness of the indents with a view to keeping the number of wagons under the above two heads as low as possible :

On the East Indian Railway a stricter check is now being exercised than was in force in January, and the Bengal Nagpur Railway claim that they have always exercised considerable care in dealing with, and investigating the genuineness of indents. At the same time we are of opinion that the the strictest check should always be exercised—whether wagons are plentiful or not.

We are of opinion that the following priority list should be put into force as early as possible :

- (a) Shipment Coal under the Coal Grading Board Act, 1925.
- (b) Loco Coal including Railways, Mail Steamers and Port Trusts.
- (c) Military requirements certified by Chief Mining Engineer, Railway Board.
- (d) Public Utility in the following orders :
  - (i) Power Stations, Gas Works, Water Works, Municipalities.
  - (ii) Tramways.
  - (iii) Inland Steamers (for their own consumption).
- (e) Iron and Steel Works—

Note.—We are all agreed that the Iron and Steel Works must have their coal supplies assured, but we do feel that they should maintain stocks at the various works representing a minimum of 30 days consumption, on which they should draw in times of wagon shortage.

(f) Coke Works—

Note.—The Indian Mining Federation object to special supplies being given to Coke Plants on the ground that they are situated in the Coal-fields.

A list of the Public Utility Concerns—prepared from the Railway records—is appended, and we recommend that this list be given to both Railways for their guidance. Any concern which considers it is entitled to be given priority under any of the Public Utility Sub-Heads would place its application before a small new Committee. We consider that a Committee formed somewhat on the lines of the Coal Grading Board would be suitable for this purpose.

The Railways would be relieved of all responsibilities by this Committee and the Trade would be dealt with by the Trade.

The Indian Mining Association consider that Consumers should be represented on the Committee but the Indian Mining Federation think, that in view of the fact that it is not possible to obtain a representative of all Consumers from any of the local Chambers, the Committee should be composed of representatives of the Coal Trade only.

All wagons supplied under priority should be consigned to the actual consumer and not to contractors.

(g) Public Supplies.—On the Bengal Nagpur Railway the actual daily allotment is done by an Officer personally, but on the East Indian Railway it is left to subordinates, and we strongly recommend that this very important work be done by Officers in future.

We are convinced that closer co-ordination between the two railways, in the distribution and working of both empty and loaded wagons, and between the Railways and the Port Commissioners, would be of considerable benefit to all concerned.

We are also of opinion that the Coal Manager, Bengal Nagpur Railway should have his Headquarters in Calcutta and not in Adra. (The Bengal Nagpur Railway representative objecting.)

3. The necessity for the Railways exercising a greater check than was done in the actual booking of the wagons that were supplied under the above heads.

Until the middle of March wagons on the East Indian Railway could be booked to any destination without much fear of detection—irrespective of the station they were indented for—but we are told that an effort was made at the Weighbridges to ensure that wagons allotted for “Upwards” were not despatched “Downwards” and vice versa. The Coal Manager, East Indian Railway explained that he had not the staff to make any other checks.

We were informed that on the Bengal Nagpur Railway consignments were checked at the Weighbridges to ensure that they were despatched to the destination indented for.

4. Method on which the bases of Collieries are fixed.—The method was supposed to be as follows :

The stocks plus raisings, of a colliery for the period January to June 1928 were used to fix the basis of a Colliery for the period January to June 1929, but on investigation of the East Indian Railway records for four days only we found an extraordinary state of affairs.

In the first place we should like to express our surprise at the careless manner in which the Dhanbad Daily Allotment Books were kept, making it extremely difficult to examine them properly. The Coal Manager, East Indian Railway, assured the Committee that this matter had received immediate attention.

In the course of the examination of the Allotment Sheets for four specific dates only we detected 19 cases where the bases had been changed and in some cases the figure was increased by as much as 500 per cent.

The following are a few typical cases :

- (a) A Colliery had a basis of 5 wagons on 1st January 1929. This was changed to 15 wagons on 21st February 1929 and to 25 wagons on 28th February 1929.
- (b) A Colliery had a basis of 12 wagons on 1st January 1929. This was changed to 35 wagons on 21st February 1929 and to 40 wagons on 28th February 1929.
- (c) A Colliery had a basis of 18 wagons on 1st January 1929. This was changed to 25 wagons on the 7th January 1929, to 30 wagons on 21st February 1929 and to 35 wagons on 28th February 1929.
- (d) A Colliery was given a basis of 8 wagons on 8th February 1929 and this was changed to 20 wagons on 26th February 1929 although the Colliery had been closed for two years.

Several Collieries were also given bases far exceeding their siding capacities.

The East Indian Railway representative on the Committee was asked to examine these irregularities, and he reported that apart from one or two solitary instances where he himself had changed a basis on a sound representation, the whole of the other figures had been changed in his office, without his knowledge and without any authority.

In view of the fact that 19 cases were detected in the records of 4 out of 90 days the total number of irregular alterations during the three months must have reached an astounding figure and the committee view it in a very serious light.

We leave it to the Railway Board to decide whether any further investigation is necessary.

Regarding the method on which the bases of collieries should be fixed in future, we are of opinion, after considerable discussion of the question, that the system for the next six months should be as follows :

1. For the quarter—July to September 1929—the bases should be fixed on the raisings—without regard to stocks—of the quarter January to March 1929.
2. For the quarter October to December 1929 on the raisings—without regard to stocks—of the quarter April to June 1929.
3. For the quarter January to March 1930 the two Railways will be in possession of exact figures of raisings and despatches of all Collieries. The stocks of coal on the 30th June are to be arrived at by deducting the despatches of the quarter April to June from the raisings for the same period.

The stocks thus obtained are then to be taken into account in fixing the bases for the quarter January to March 1930.

This method is a simple one because the East Indian Railway now work the bases out on quarterly figures instead of half yearly as hitherto and the Bengal Nagpur Railway continue to work on quarterly figures.

The difficulty previously has been to check the stock figures submitted by Collieries, and in practice figures given by them have had to be accepted as correct.

Our above recommendations are intended to overcome this difficulty and the present is an ideal time for starting the system, as generally speaking there are practically no stocks at Collieries.

A Colliery with two sidings—one on the East Indian and one on the Bengal Nagpur Railway—should be called upon to declare the proportion of its raisings that it wishes to despatch from either siding as we understand that at present a Colliery in this position is able to obtain double the basis to which it is entitled.

Figures of bases should be made available to the public either in booklet form or otherwise.

We are of opinion that Railways should not have the power to alter the wagon basis of any Colliery during a quarter and that cases requiring special treatment should be referred to the proposed new Committee who would be empowered to make alterations if, in their opinion, the circumstances warranted it.

NOTE BY MR. A. BURBRIDGE, COAL MANAGER, E. I. RAILWAY.

2. The necessity and possibility of the railways exercising a stricter check on the genuineness of the indents with a view to keeping the number of wagons under the above two heads as low as possible.

There is no doubt as to the necessity and there is also no doubt as to the impossibility of railways exercising an efficient check on the genuineness of indents without long correspondence and consequent delay in meeting requirements.

3. The necessity for the railways exercising a greater check than was done in the actual booking of the wagons that were supplied under the above heads.

There is no doubt that a very close check on the actual booking of wagons is essential when there is a heavy demand for coal but this work requires an experienced staff. The railways have not been in a position to train the necessary staff. As there have been only 8 weeks of pressure in the coal trade when indents were not met in full during the last 4 years, it is obvious that the staff, even had they been retained during these years, would not have been able to gain the necessary experience to enable them to deal efficiently and expeditiously with the situation.

The check to be effective must be complete both in the Allotment Offices and at the Weighbridges.

To be complete it must be fairly elaborate and consequently expensive.

It is computed that the monthly cost will not be less than Rs. 3,000 per mensem.

Since March, 1925, short supplies in the coalfields on the E. I. Railway have lasted only two months.

L3CPB(LA)

Obviously, the organisation must be a permanent one. Temporary staff for a period of stress would be worse than useless. Temporary men would have nothing to lose.

An expenditure of Rs. 3,000 a month in the circumstances is particularly hard, if not impossible, to justify.

I am of the opinion that Section 8 of Act XXXI of 1925 authorising preferential treatment of indents for wagons on account of Graded Export coal should be strictly observed and that all other indents whether for Loco. Public Utility Concerns, Government purposes or otherwise, should be treated alike and allotment made on basis pro rata to the number of wagons available.

A. BURBIDGE.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Has any action been taken against the Coal Manager of the East Indian Railway ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The officer to whom, I think, my Honourable friend refers,—I am speaking from memory, I do not remember if he was the Coal Manager himself,—this officer whose conduct is criticised by the Committee, was, I believe, already out of the service of the Railway before the Committee reported.

REPORT OF THE INDIAN CINEMATOGRAPH COMMITTEE.

137. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : What stage has been reached in the consideration of the Report of the Indian Cinematograph Committee, and what time are Government likely to take in reaching their final conclusions in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The views of Local Governments have been received on some of the recommendations and the report is under the consideration of Government who have not yet come to a decision. I am unable to say at present when final conclusions will be reached.

Mr. E. L. Price : May I ask the Honourable Member whether he realises that the introduction of the "Talkies" has altered the whole situation ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I appreciate the fact that this new development in the art may possibly have very considerable relevance to the recommendations now under consideration.

CONSULTATION OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ON MATTERS RELATING TO EGYPT.

138. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the statement made in the House of Lords on behalf of the British Government by Lord Passfield, as cabled by Reuter on the 25th July, in connexion with Lord Lloyd's resignation of the High Commissionership of Egypt, to the effect that "in this, as in other matters, there had been as much communication as practicable with the Dominions and India" ?

(b) Are Government usually consulted in matters relating to the British Government's policy in Egypt ? If so, does such consultation take place with the Government in India or with the Secretary of State for India ?

Sir Denys Bray : (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) Yes ; with both.

PROMOTION OF LOCAL TRAFFIC SERVICE OFFICERS AND QUALIFIED SUBORDINATES TO THE SUPERIOR TRAFFIC SERVICE.

139. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) With reference to the reply to my starred questions Nos. 501 and 502 of the 11th February, 1929, and the statement made by Mr. Parsons to the effect that the proportion of 20 per cent. reserved for the promotion of Local Traffic Service Officers and qualified subordinates to the Superior Traffic Service was increased in 1928-29 to remedy shortages in the two previous years and that there was no intention of increasing this proportion, and with further reference to the same gentleman's reply to Pandit H. N. Kunzru's supplementary question to starred question No. 388 of 4th February, 1929, to the effect that 36 per cent. of the vacancies had been reserved in 1929-30 for the promotion of Local Traffic Service Officers and subordinates, will Government please refer to the figures given in reply to my starred question No. 502 of 11th February, 1929, and explain clearly how the proportion of 36 per cent. for the year 1929-30 has been arrived at ?

(b) If the prescribed 20 per cent. is going to be exceeded for the year 1929-30, in spite of Mr. Parsons' statement that it was not intended to increase the proportion, will Government please state the reasons therefor ?

(c) With reference to the following statement of Mr. Parsons in reply to Pandit H. N. Kunzru's supplementary question to starred question No. 388 of 4th February, 1929, namely, "Actually this year we filled 33 1/3rd per cent. of the Indian recruitment by promotion from the Local Traffic Service", will Government please state if one Mr. Absell, a subordinate of the East Indian Railway, has only recently been promoted to the Superior Traffic Service, and also if this appointment is one of those to be filled by promotion in 1929-30 ?

(d) Will Government please state the names of the other persons (Local Traffic Service officers or subordinates) besides Mr. Absell who have been promoted to the Superior Traffic Service to fill the vacancies reserved for the year 1929-30 ?

(e) If no other Local Traffic Service officers or subordinates have yet been promoted, will Government please state the reasons why ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) At the time Mr. Parsons made that statement, the promotion of four subordinates was in contemplation, the total number of vacancies expected being 11.

(b), (d) and (e). The question of the number of vacancies to be filled by promotion and the selection of individuals for promotion is now under consideration.

(c) Mr. Absell's promotion dates from October 1928 and counts against the promotions of 1928-29.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member inform this House whether the Railway Board has arrived at a decision as to whether they are going to abolish the Local Traffic Service ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The question of the re-organization of the whole cadre is at present under the consideration of the Railway Board.

L3CPB(LA)

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : How long is this consideration to last ? Is it not a fact that this subject is being dealt with by Mr. Hayman, the Labour Member ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The appointment of an additional Member to the Railway Board will, I hope, hasten the solution of this question.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Many thanks. I hope so.

PROMOTION TO THE SUPERIOR TRAFFIC SERVICE OF MR. ABSSELL, A SUBORDINATE, IN PREFERENCE TO A PERMANENT INDIAN LOCAL TRAFFIC OFFICER.

140. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) What is the total number of vacancies which have been or will be filled in 1929-30 by the promotion of Local Traffic Service Officers and subordinates ?

(b) What was this number for the year 1928-29, and how many were actually promoted ? How many of them are Indians and how many Europeans and Anglo-Indians ?

(c) Is it a fact that there are about six permanent officers in the East Indian Railway Local Traffic Service ? If so, what were the reasons for having promoted Mr. Absell, a subordinate, by ignoring the claims of the permanent Local Traffic Service Officers ?

(d) Is it a fact that there is one Indian Officer in the East Indian Railway Local Traffic Service (drawing more pay than Mr. Absell) who has been working as a permanent officer on that Railway for many years ?

(e) Will Government please refer to Mr. Parsons' reply to my starred question No. 502 (k) of the 11th February, 1929, and state if the confidential reports of all the permanent Local Traffic Service Officers on all the State lines who are senior to Mr. Absell, who was hitherto only a subordinate, were sent to the Public Service Commission, and also whether the said body approved of the appointment of Mr. Absell in preference to the permanent Local Traffic Service Officers referred to ?

(f) Government please refer to Mr. Parsons' reply to my starred questions Nos. 501 (b) and 502 (f) of the 11th February, 1929, and state what the present age of Mr. Absell is ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) As I stated in my reply to the last question, the question is under consideration.

(b) Six, including Mr. Absell who counts against the 25 per cent. European recruitment. Of the rest, two were Indians, and three Anglo-Indians.

(c) There are 10 officers substantively holding appointments in the Local Traffic Service of the East Indian Railway. In reply to the second part of this question, I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given by Mr. Parsons to Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru's question No. 388 on the 4th February, 1929, in which he explained that in making selections for vacancies in the superior traffic service no distinction will be drawn between persons directly recruited to the Local Traffic Service, persons promoted to that service from the subordinate establishment, and persons now serving in the subordinate establishment.

(d) Yes.

(e) Mr. Absell belongs to the East Indian Railway cadre. Confidential reports of all permanent Local Traffic Service Officers in that cadre were forwarded to the Public Service Commission, and Mr. Absell's selection was approved by them.

(f) Mr. Absell was born on the 11th December, 1879.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Arising out of the Honourable Member's reply to (b) of this question, will the Honourable Member please inform this House whether for such posts Anglo-Indians are considered statutory natives of India or not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Of course.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Arising out of that reply, will Government tell this House why they encourage such a differentiation like this in its reply ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : That is beyond me.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : I mean this differentiation in answering such questions ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Will the Honourable Member who asked this question remember this precept himself ?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will you do the same yourself ? On a point of order, Sir. Is it correct for an Honourable Member to address another Honourable Member except through the Chair ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I addressed the Chair.

Mr. K. Ahmed : You cannot address the Chair.

PERMANENT APPOINTMENT OF CERTAIN EUROPEANS AND ANGLO-INDIANS TO THE LOCAL TRAFFIC SERVICE.

141. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) With reference to Mr. Parsons' reply to my starred question No. 502 (h) and (i) to the effect that between August and October 1927 seven persons were confirmed in the Local Traffic Service and that they are either Europeans or Anglo-Indians, will Government please state the exact periods for which each of the seven persons referred to therein officiated in the Local Traffic Service from time to time before he was confirmed in that service ?

(b) Are there not several Indians who have been officiating in the Local Traffic Services of the East Indian, Eastern Bengal, and North Western Railways for a similar or almost similar length of time ?

(c) Do Government propose to appoint them permanently to the Local Traffic Service on the same ground, viz., that they " had been officiating in it for many years " ? If so, when ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The Officers in question had officiated for periods of six to nine years before their confirmation.

(b) There are two such Indians in the East Indian Railway. On the Eastern Bengal and North Western Railways, there are no Indians who have officiated for six years or more.

(c) Promotions are made by strict selection. The claims of the subordinates referred to in (b) will be fully considered when selections are being made.

PAY OF EUROPEAN AND ANGLO-INDIAN AND INDIAN OFFICERS IN THE LOCAL TRAFFIC SERVICE.

142. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Is it a fact that the Indian Local Traffic Service officers on all the State Railways, with perhaps one exception or two, draw much less pay than European and Anglo-Indian officers in the same service and even European and Anglo-Indian subordinates officiating in it ?

(b) Will Government please give :

(i) the total number of permanent Indian Local Traffic Service officers on all the State Railways ;

(ii) the total number of permanent European and Anglo-Indian Local Traffic Service officers on all the State Railways ;

(iii) the sum total of the pay drawn by (i) ;

(iv) the sum total of the pay drawn by (ii) ;

(v) the sum total of the number of years of service put in by (i) ;

(vi) the sum total of the number of years of service put in by (ii) ;

and similar information in respect to persons now officiating in the same service ?

(c) Is it a fact that European and Anglo-Indian Local Traffic Service officers and subordinates on promotion to the Superior Traffic Service are placed over the heads of persons who had been appointed to that service before and under some of whom some of the former might quite possibly have worked before such promotion ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes, roughly speaking, the reason is that the Indian Officers are mostly junior.

(b) (i), (iii) and (v). There are 12 permanent Indian Local Traffic Service officers, drawing a total pay of Rs. 4,560 per mensem and having a combined service of 89 years.

(ii), (iv) and (vi). There are 12 European and Anglo-Indian Local Traffic Service officers, drawing a total pay of Rs. 8,110 per mensem and with a combined service of 281 years. Information as regards persons officiating in the Local Traffic Service is being collected.

(c) It may happen that on promotion to the Superior Traffic Service, a Local Service Officer or subordinate may, under the rules, become senior to persons already appointed to the superior service. But this may happen to a member of any community.

PROMOTION OF EUROPEANS AND ANGLO-INDIANS TO THE SUPERIOR TRAFFIC SERVICE IN PREFERENCE TO INDIANS.

143. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Will Government please refer to Mr. Parsons' reply to my starred question No. 502 (e) of the 11th February, 1929, to the effect that four out of the six men promoted to the Superior Traffic Service in 1928-29 are Europeans and Anglo-Indians, and also to the recent promotion to the Superior Traffic Service of Mr. Absell, a subordinate, and say if it is their intention to absorb, as far and for as long as possible, Europeans and Anglo-Indians in the vacancies, viz., 20 per cent. of the total Indian recruitment, reserved for promoted Local Traffic Service officers and subordinates, in preference to young Indian Local Traffic Service officers with high University qualifications, some of whom had also requisite railway training in the United Kingdom ?

(b) Do Government realise that, by their action in putting promoted European and Anglo-Indian Local Traffic Service officers and subordinates over the heads of persons already in the Superior Traffic Service, they are doing a positive injustice to the latter and creating needless and avoidable discontent ? If so, are they prepared to issue orders that Local Traffic Service officers or subordinates, on their promotion to the Superior Traffic Service, must, under no circumstances, be allowed to take precedence over officers already in the latter service, even though the former might be in receipt of higher pay at the time of promotion ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The answer is in the negative. Promotions are made by strict selection of the most qualified person without any racial discrimination.

(b) The question of the seniority which should be allowed to Local Traffic Service Officers and subordinates on their promotion to the superior service on account of their past service with the railway is under consideration by the Government.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member inform the House whether the possession of a degree for the Local Traffic Service is a sine qua non ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : It is not a sine qua non, but I believe it will be taken into consideration along with other qualifications and experience.

NATIONALITY OF THE DIRECTORS AND MANAGING AGENTS OF THE COMPANY ABOUT TO OPERATE THE AIR MAIL SERVICE BETWEEN KARACHI AND DELHI.

144. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) When is the air mail service between Karachi and Delhi likely to come into operation ?

(b) To whom is the contract given, or is likely to be given ? Will Government be pleased to state the names and nationalities of the Directors and Managing Agents, or those having a controlling interest in the Company ?

(c) How many shares do Government hold in this Company, and how many do others hold ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Company is only a tributary of the Imperial Airways, Ltd. ?

(e) How much yearly subsidy is to be paid to the Company, and for what time ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given by me to Mr. Neogy in answer to his question No. 107.

REGULAR AND PROMPT DELIVERY OF THE ENGLISH AIR MAIL AFTER ARRIVAL IN KARACHI.

145. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that there has been some dissatisfaction among the public and in commercial circles at the irregularities and delays in the delivery of the English air mail after its arrival in Karachi, due to the mail sometimes missing railway connection on its journey to Calcutta ?

(b) Is it a fact that Government mails in the various provinces have never missed a train, and that a special Inspector accompanies each Government mail bag on its journey from Karachi ?

(c) What steps have been taken to ensure more regular and prompt delivery of air mail ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes, on three occasions only.

(b) There is no distinction between Government mails and other mails, except that a few special bags closed by the Government of India or the India Office are sent in charge of an Inspector.

(c) Special arrangements have been made with the railways by which connections at junction stations will be secured for the air mails ; and, with the increase in the volume of the air mail, arrangements have also been made for their conveyance by a shorter route. This route, however, is not the most reliable.

AIR MAIL SERVICE BETWEEN INDIA AND ENGLAND.

146. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government be pleased to make a statement regarding the actual position and the prospects of the air mail service between India and England, with special reference to the allegation that it has not yet fulfilled the expectations regarding mail and passenger traffic ?

(b) How much subsidy, if any, is being paid annually to the Company by the Government of India, and the Government in England, and for what period ?

(c) How many aeroplanes, or other machines are now in actual use by the Company for service between India and England ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Honourable Member no doubt understands that the Government of India are not directly concerned with the operation of the air mail service between India and England, which is conducted under an agreement between the Government in the United Kingdom and Imperial Airways, Limited. For this reason I am not in a position fully to answer his questions, but I give what information I have :

(a) The weight of mails despatched by the air mail service from Karachi to England has increased from 297 lbs. on the 7th April, 1929, to 608 lbs. on the 18th August, 1929. The incoming mail has increased from 226 lbs. on the 6th April, 1929, to 586 lbs. on the 17th August, 1929. It will be seen that the traffic is growing, and it may be anticipated that the institution of an air mail service from Karachi to Delhi, to be extended later on to Calcutta and Rangoon, which, as the Honourable Member is aware, is contemplated by the Government of India, and about which, as already mentioned I hope to be able to make a further statement later on this Session, will result in an increased use of the facilities provided. The Government of India have no information as to the actual numbers of passengers carried between India and England or between various points on the route.

(b) No subsidy in cash is being paid to the operating company by the Government of India, but housing and landing facilities and wireless and meteorological services at Karachi are being provided by Government free of charge to the Company for a period of five years. The Government of India have no information as to the actual amount of subsidy being paid to the Company by the British Government in respect of the London-Karachi service. They understand that a comprehensive agreement covering all subsidized air services operated by Imperial Airways, Limited, has been entered into between that Company and the British Government, operative for a period of 10 years from the 1st April, 1929. This agreement provides for payment of subsidy on a descending scale.

(c) The Government of India have no official information as to the number of aeroplanes or other machines in use on this service.

Sir Darcy Lindsay : Have the Government of India any intention of representing to His Majesty's Government the extreme importance to India of accelerating this air mail service ? Her Grace the Duchess of Bedford has recently shown to the world that the journey can be made.....

Mr. President : Order, order.

Sir Darcy Lindsay : Are Government aware of the journey that has recently been made by Her Grace the Duchess of Bedford in seven days from England to India and back again ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Government are aware of the various facts mentioned by the Honourable Member in the course of his question. As regards making representations to His Majesty's Government for accelerating the service the matter will receive consideration after the existing service has been established for some time.

ALLEGED NON-EXTENSION TO INDIA BY THE PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAMSHIP COMPANY OF THIRD CLASS ACCOMMODATION FOR PASSENGERS PROVIDED ON OTHER ROUTES.

147. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the P. and O. Steam Navigation Company are introducing third class passenger accommodation on certain mail ships, but that this innovation is not to be extended to India ?

(b) Will Government please state how much money is paid out of the Indian revenues annually to this steamship company for carrying mails, or on other accounts ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Government understand that two of the ships of the P. and O. Steam Navigation Company on the Australian service, which do not ordinarily call at Bombay, are being converted to carry first and third class passengers instead of first and second class passengers.

(b) The only amount regularly paid to the P. and O. Steamship Company out of Indian revenues is an annual contribution of approximately £22,000 towards the subsidy paid by the British Post Office for the carriage of the Indian mails. Apart from this, there are certain payments for freight and passages, which Government have to meet in the same way as the private customers of the line, but no figures are available to show the annual expenditure under these heads.

REPORT OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE OF THE INDIAN SANDHURST COMMITTEE
PRESIDED OVER BY MR. M. A. JINNAH.

148. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Are Government aware that Mr. M. A. Jinnah, M.L.A., who presided over the Sub-Committee of the Indian Sandhurst Committee has publicly contradicted the statement recently made by the Secretary of State for India in the House of Commons that the difficulty in consenting to the publication of the Report of the Sub-Committee was that the witnesses before it understood that they were expressing personal, and to some extent confidential, views ?

(b) Are Government aware of the statement of Mr. Jinnah that no witness was left under the impression that his evidence would not be published, or was to be treated as confidential, barring the Indian cadets who were examined in camera for various reasons ?

(c) Did the Government of India send up any communication to the Secretary of State on the basis of which his statement was made ; and do Government now propose to rectify the error, if any, or take steps to publish the Report ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) and (b). Government are aware that Mr. Jinnah has made the statement referred to in part (b), but they cannot agree that it in any way contradicts the statement by the Secretary of State quoted in part (a). The accuracy of Mr. Jinnah's statement, which he has frequently made before, has never been questioned, but he himself admits that some of the witnesses understood that their evidence was confidential, and he has never denied, nor do I think he is in a position to deny, that the remainder understood that they were expressing their personal views and not necessarily the views of the Departments of His Majesty's Government in which they were serving. It was for this reason, as has been explained before, that the Departments in question, as they had every right to do, declined to permit the publication of their evidence.

(c) The statement of the Secretary of State was not based on any communication from the Government of India. The second part of this question does not arise and the answer to the last part is in the negative.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it a fact that Mr. Jinnah has definitely stated that no witness that appeared before the Sub-Committee carried away the impression that the evidence he was giving was confidential ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : That is a fact, and it is correct.

Diwan Chaman Lall : If that is so, how does the Honourable Member reconcile that statement with the statement made by the Secretary of State for India that the evidence will not be published because the evidence is confidential ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The Secretary of State's statement was not that the evidence would not be published because it was confidential, but because it was partly confidential and partly given in a personal capacity.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Do I take it that the evidence given in a personal capacity is not confidential ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Not necessarily.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Does the Honourable Member wish to state that the personal evidence given was confidential ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : It is not a question whether it was confidential or not. It is whether the evidence given by certain witnesses represented the views of their Departments or whether it represented their personal views. The Departments considered that the evidence did not represent their views but represented the personal views of the witnesses and for that reason the Departments declined to allow that evidence to be published.

Diwan Chaman Lall : If the evidence is merely personal and confidential, there can be no objection, apart from the reasons that the Honourable Member has given to the publication of the Sub-Committee's Report ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The objection is only that of the Departments concerned.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it merely the ipse dixit of the Departments or is it the view of the members of the sub-committee ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : It is the view of the Departments of His Majesty's Government.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Has the Department consulted the members of the Sub-Committee in this regard ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : There was no necessity for the Departments of His Majesty's Government to consult the members of the Sub-Committee in a matter of this kind.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Member aware that certain members of the Sub-Committee held that the Sub-Committee's report should be published ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Yes, I am aware of that.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : On what authority did the Secretary of State carry away the impression that the witnesses were expressing merely personal and confidential opinions ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : On the authority of the heads of the Departments concerned.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I take it that the Government of India sent a despatch to the Secretary of State on this point ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : No, Sir.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Which is the particular Department concerned ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I am not in a position to say unless I know which particular witnesses the Honourable Member is referring to.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : The Honourable Member just now stated that it was on the authority of the Department concerned. My question is, what is the Department which gave him the authority to make the statement ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : It depends upon which witnesses the Honourable Member is referring to. Some came from the India Office and some from the War Office.

Mr. President : It is not one Department.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Apart from the fact that the evidence was personal, is there any other objection to the publication of the Sub-Committee's Report ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Not that I know of, except of course that certain witnesses gave their evidence in a confidential capacity, which Mr. Jinnah himself admits.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether he is prepared to consult the witnesses concerned whether they would be willing to the publication of the Sub-Committee's Report or their evidence ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : It is not for the Government of India to consult the witnesses because they are the servants of the Departments of His Majesty's Government and not of the Government of India.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it merely the personal view of the Departments or is it the view expressed to them by the witnesses themselves ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Departments do not possess personal views.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Did any of those persons whose evidence is considered to be personal express any opinion in regard to the publication of their evidence ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I presume they must have done so.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Has the Honourable Member any definite information or is it merely presumption ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The information is that contained in the Secretary of State's statement.

NUMBERS OF PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS RECEIVED FOR AND AGAINST THE HINDU CHILD MARRIAGE BILL.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : (1) Will Government be pleased to state how many petitions or memorials have been received up to date (a) for and (b) against the Child Marriage Bill of Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda, as reported by the Select Committee ?

(2) What is the total number of signatories (a) for and (b) against ?

(3) How many resolutions from meetings or conferences have been received (a) for and (b) against the proposed legislation ?

The Honourable Sir James Orerar : The figures up to the 2nd September, 1929, are as follows :

1 (a) 4 representations.

(b) 155 petitions and 552 other representations.

2 (a) 10.

(b) 52,171 signatories on petitions and 20,554 on other representations.

3 (a) 6.

(b) 353.

It may be observed that in many cases the same representation has been received from several persons and bears a large number of signatures in different scripts which it is not possible to verify. Only those communications which fall under Standing Orders 83-85 and are in the proper form for presentation to the House have been treated as petitions for the purposes of the reply to this question.

Mr. K. Ahmed : May I ask how many signatories among the petitioners were members of the fair sex ? Have any of their associations signed these memorials ?

The Honourable Sir James Orerar : I must ask for notice of that question.

FEELING AMONGST THE MUSSALMANS OF INDIA ABOUT THE WAILING WALL CONFLICT IN PALESTINE.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (1) (a) Are Government aware that there is an extensive feeling and great sensation amongst the Mussalmans of India over the Buraq (the Wailing Wall) question at Palestine, which has resulted in a serious conflict between the Jews and Arabs ?

(b) Are Government aware that the Holy Places in Palestine are held in great reverence by the Mussalmans all over the world ?

(c) Are Government aware that the announcement recently made by Mr. Balfour is greatly agitating the minds of the Indian Mussalmans as regards the future of the administration of Palestine, which is one of the most sacred and holy shrines of the Mussalmans throughout the whole world ?

(d) Are Government prepared to convey to the British Government the feelings of the Mussalmans of India regarding the Palestine affairs and inform them that any injustice or harm done to the Arabs in Palestine will cause the greatest resentment amongst the Mussalmans of India ?

Sir Denys Bray : I am able to assure the Honourable Member that, on the outbreak of the rioting in Palestine, immediate steps were taken to despatch ample forces to restore order and safeguard the lives, honour and property of all communities, Muslim, Jewish and Christian, and that there is now reason to hope that normal conditions are, or shortly will be re-established.

The deep concern of the Indian Muslim community over this deplorable conflict that has arisen round the Wailing Wall, and indeed—in view of the great reverence in which the Holy Places of Palestine are held by Muslims in India—over the whole question of the administration of Palestine, has already been represented by Government to His Majesty's Government. But a copy of this question and this answer will now be transmitted to His Majesty's Secretary of State.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : I will now put my second question :

“ Will Government be pleased to make a full statement about the state of affairs in Palestine, Haifa and Jaffa showing the measures which have been adopted to safeguard the lives, honour and property of the Muslim Arabs in that country ” ?

Sir Denys Bray : I must apologise to the Honourable Member. I had assumed that he had already put that question to me and the first sentence of my answer was supposed to be an adequate reply to the question now put.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will the Honourable Member give answers to my questions in the order in which they are put ?

(No further answer was given.)

THE COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC PETITIONS AND THE PANEL OF CHAIRMEN.

Mr. President : Under Standing Order 80 of the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders, I have to appoint a Committee on Public Petitions and under rule 3 (1) of the Indian Legislative Rules I am required to nominate a panel of not more than four Chairmen from among the Members of the Assembly. In view of the short Session of the Legislative Assembly I have decided that the existing panel and the existing Committee should continue for this Session also.

PETITIONS RELATING TO THE HINDU CHILD MARRIAGE BILL.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, under Standing Order 78, I have to report that fifty-five petitions, as per statement laid on the table, have been received relating to the Bill to regulate marriages of children amongst the Hindus, which was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 1st February, 1927, by Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda.

THE HINDU CHILD MARRIAGE BILL.

Mr. President : The Assembly will now resume consideration of the following motion moved by Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda on the 29th January, 1929 :

“ That the Bill to regulate marriages of children amongst the Hindus as reported by the Select Committee be taken into consideration.”

Mr. Acharya.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar (Madura and Ramnad-cum-Tinnevely : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I want your ruling as to whether I will be in order in opposing the motion at this stage or whether I should wait till the dilatory motions are disposed of.

Mr. President : What motion ?

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : The motion before the House is that the Bill as reported by the Select Committee be taken into consideration. I want to oppose that motion.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member will have an opportunity of opposing the motion. I have already called upon Mr. Acharya.

Mr. M. K. Acharya (South Arcot cum Chingleput : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to move the following amendment :

“ That the consideration of the Bill be postponed in view of the late publication of the Report of the Age of Consent Committee, and in view of the desirability of assessing, with the help of adequate evidence, the real value of that portion of the Report which deals with the marriage laws and customs obtaining among Indian communities.”

I desire to state at the very outset, Sir, that I am as anxious as anybody in this House can be, that we should, at as early a date as possible, come to some final conclusion or other upon this old bogey of my friend over there. Therefore if to-day I am forced by a sense of the responsibility that I owe to this House and to my constituency to ask for time to consider calmly and dispassionately the momentous issues that are to be settled and which would affect later generations for a long, long time to come, it is because I feel that otherwise we shall be not acting in conformity with the commitments to which we are already pledged. I desire particularly to refer to what we did on the last occasion when my very enthusiastic and Honourable Rai Sahib friend moved, on the 29th January 1929, that the Bill, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration. On that occasion I had the privilege, Sir, to point out that an inquiry was already going on outside the four walls of this House, and that rightly or wrongly that inquiry related to a great extent to the subject-matter of this Bill; and I had the privilege to move that we should postpone consideration with a view that all the Members of this House might be in a position to have before them the evidence that was being collected by the Committee then at work. The terms of the amendment to which this House agreed on the 29th January, 1929, were as follows :

“ That the consideration of the Bill be postponed till the Report of the Age of Consent Committee becomes available to the Members of this House.”

That, Sir, was the commitment to which we are now pledged. When the House accepted that humble amendment of mine, I believe, Sir, that they agreed with my view that the evidence that was being collected was going to be valuable evidence, and the Report was going to be, in some respects at least, a valuable Report. That, Sir, is the commitment at

[Mr. M. K. Acharya.]

though to-day we are dealing with something divorce.

“ Before the House can reasonably be asked to accept this measure to say that it ought to stipulate that there should be a reasonable body show that the communities concerned desire and demand an amendment of the law.”

This is what the Home Member then said and truly. Therefore, it is our duty to satisfy ourselves beyond the least shadow of a doubt that the communities concerned in this particular instance desire and demand a change of the law, as is contemplated in the present legislation. I do urge that the words which the Honourable the Home Member used in 1927 and 1928 are as forceable and true to-day as they were then. The Honourable the Home Member was eloquently supported on that occasion by many other Honourable Members, and by none I should think more strongly than by my friend Mr. J. C. Chatterjee, who, I notice, is a signatory to the Report to which I have been referring. With regard to the general principle which should guide us he used the following words :

“ Then again on religious grounds I feel I must absolutely oppose it, because to the majority of Christians in this land, and especially to the Roman Catholic Church, marriage is a sacrament. It is therefore not right that we should at any time support a Bill that strikes at the very root of that idea, and that I believe strikes at the very root of society. It may be that some people do desire certain changes in the law of divorce, but after all it is the thin edge of the wedge, and once this process is started, we do not know where it will end, and to my mind the Honourable Mr. Ranga Iyer has put it rightly when he said that it would mean a revolution in society.”

These were the words of caution uttered on the floor of this House with regard to a measure exactly similar to the one under consideration, which was disposed of that very day and has now ceased to exist. But this measure is still continuing, and more than one statement that was made in connection with the Divorce Bill is applicable to the motion before us. What I am urging is that we should be very careful that we do not, in this final stage, hurriedly and without having before us all the possible materials which should guide us, take this last step either of passing this Bill or rejecting it. Whichever position we may take, whether in favour of or against the Bill, I most earnestly beg of every Member to realise that we must come to our decision only after a very careful consideration and a most vigilant scrutiny of every available and relevant material that might be placed before us.

Now, Sir, my humble submission is this. I got this Report just as I was leaving Madras. I think I got it on the 24th August and on the morning of the 25th I left Madras for Simla. Of course, I tried my best to read the Report in my railway berth, though my friends would not allow me to do it, as I would have wished to do. However, I tried my best to go through it. There are friends of mine, like Mr. Rangaswami Ayyangar, who got the Report only yesterday or the day before. Some of my friends were complaining that they were yet to receive the Report. In any case, the Report was received with a slip pasted on it saying that it must be made available only on the 26th of August. On the 26th August the bare Report was supposed to have been published. But if I mistake not, we wanted not only the Report but all the evidence collected by this Committee, to which, at any rate, I, when I moved my amendment last year, attached the greatest importance. This is what I said then:

"Whatever the value of that Report is going to be in the eyes of individual Members, the fact is there that an inquiry is going on and there is going to be a Report and in that Report we shall have the benefit of various kinds of evidence taken by the Committee whatever their conclusions may be."

Therefore, I expected that I should have all the evidence made available to us, whether it was in favour of one side or the other. I now urge most humbly that we have every right to get a copy of the evidence. Of course, my Honourable friend, Mr. Harbilas Sarda, is not responsible for the publication of this Report so late as the 26th of August, nor for the non-publication of the evidence. Neither he nor I am responsible for this, but whoever may be responsible for it—I suppose it is the Government—if they were as serious as my friend Mr. Harbilas Sarda is about this measure—seeing that the Report was ready and signed on some day in June, they could have published this Report in July, that is at least one month before the Assembly Session began. But nothing of the kind has been done. The Report was received by us just on the eve of our departure from our homes; and even now the evidence has not been supplied. I do not know how a humble man like myself can possibly check every statement made in this Report, or the inferences drawn upon the strength of the evidence recorded by the Committee. My own humble self has been referred to in the Report: but I do not believe that my evidence has at all been properly and fairly summed up. There may also be trouble with regard to many other witnesses. Therefore, my humble submission is that, before we take up the further consideration of this Bill, I would like every Member to put this question to himself whether we have got all the material before us to-day which is relevant to the present motion, as we pledged ourselves to on the 29th of January.

Now, Sir, the Report is a very interesting one, and even without the evidence, it is a fairly big book. It contains 353 pages. Even to me, who is a bookworm and is accustomed to pour over books in volumes, to read the whole of it at a stretch in half a dozen hours proved an impossible task. I do not know whether even my friend, Mr. Jayakar, who is accustomed to go through huge volumes of law—for good consideration of course—would be able to wade through the Report in two or three or even four days, to dissect every statement therein and weigh it. I wonder if he can scan, scrutinise, analyse, sum up and be prepared on the fifth day to say what value should be attached to the various recommendations that are made by that Committee. However, whatever the great geniuses of the House may decide, to a humble man like myself it looks very difficult to come to any reasonable conclusion during this short period of time.

Then, Sir, there is a further difficulty. There are statements in the Report which are sometimes contradictory; and it is very difficult for me to make up my mind one way or the other. With some statements I agree, while with others I disagree. Some of the things seem to be wise, others seem to me to be utterly foolish. It is very difficult to reconcile the two. I will just refer to one instance. They have quoted a number of statistics to strengthen the position they have taken up. I may say at once that the statistics prove nothing of the kind.

present before us; and being so committed, I believe we now, without making sure that everyone of us has got the Report, that everyone of us in this House has got a copy of the evidence that the Committee has been collecting—and I would like to know if my friend there has got it—hurriedly take the Bill into consideration. Until everyone of us is in possession of the Report—and far more valuable than the Report will be the evidence upon which that Report is based—for us to proceed to pass legislation of this kind, so serious in its character and so fraught with potentialities, if we do that, I believe, Sir, we shall not be acting consistently with our responsibilities. I would particularly remind the Honourable Home Member—I am sorry he is not in his seat—I would remind his Government of the excellent canon pronounced by Sir James Crerar on the 15th September, 1927, in this very House and over this very Bill. When the motion was to refer the Bill to a Select Committee, the Honourable Home Member was for circulating the Bill for opinion, and then he made this pronouncement with regard to the responsibilities of the Government of India:

“ One of the responsibilities, and a very heavy one on the Government of India is to secure that, where measures undoubtedly impinge very deeply upon the religious ideas and the social customs of very considerable sections of the population, all legitimate interests ”

—mark, Sir, all legitimate interests—

“ and all legitimate opinion should be carefully, fully and fairly ascertained.”

Well, Sir, the next important thing seems to be this. Legislation, however well-intentioned—and I am ready to agree that the proposed legislation of my friend over there is very, very well-intentioned—should be cautious. We all know the old adage, Sir, that good intentions pave the way to a very uncomfortable place. Legislation, however well-intentioned, if it is hasty, is not likely in the end to promote the purpose for which it is intended; and therefore my object, Sir, is not that there should be no legislation of any kind—though I am not enamoured of this legislation—but that the legislation should not be hasty, or ill-considered and should not be carried by the heated passions of the hour—it should be legislation of legislators acting with a due sense of the very high and serious issues before them. Two years, Sir, is nothing in the life of a nation; it is a drop in the ocean of time. I am here, Sir, only to urge this that so far as I am concerned I am here to place my difficulties before this House. “ Two years have passed.” If the matter were as serious and as important as my friend would have us believe, it was open to Government to bring the Bill before a special session. I am here only concerned, not with the period but with the manner in which we should go about this Bill; and I personally agree with what Sir James Crerar then said. I may remind the Honourable Home Member of what he declared on a very similar occasion, when dealing with a very similar measure. He may now depart from the canons to which he then pledged Government on the floor of this House; yet I venture to remind him of the canons which he himself enunciated. He said, Sir, in dealing with another pet of my old friend, Sir Hari Singh Gour, who is not here now—he said in connection with the Indian Divorce Bill, on the 8th of September last year, just a year ago, this:

“ Any kind of legislation which impinges upon social customs, usages and status ought not to be undertaken without the greatest caution and deliberation, and that is particularly true of the law relating to divorce ” have a smaller female population than male population and it is very difficult to find enough wives even for the grown up men. As I have said, it is not very likely to affect us very much, but at the same time I should like the age to be fixed at a higher limit. This is only my personal opinion: But the principal question on which I wanted to speak and for which I tried to catch your eyes is this, whether the postponement of the measure for three months or so in order to enable us to read and consider the Report of the Age of Consent Committee and if possible to see the evidence too will make much difference in the passing of the Bill. I thought that after the very eloquent speech made and the very convincing arguments that were advanced on this particular point, by my Honourable friend the Pandit Sahib, nothing more was needed to convince the House that the world would not change if the matter was postponed for two or three months. The evil, if any, has been there for the last thousand years or more, and if we pass an Act even today it is not likely to bring about any great change in the life of the people in the course of three or four months. That is a point which has not yet been made and that is why I asked my Honourable friend Mr. Jayakar to throw of more light on the subject. He tried to do so, and his language was very sweet and appealing, but I could not find much substance in his speech. I therefore desire to support the amendment of Mr. Acharya, but if that fails, I shall quite light-heartedly go on with the consideration of the Bill and will perhaps vote for passing the Bill.

Some Honourable Members : Let the question be put.

Mr. President : I have considered the question of closure and I have come to the conclusion that, in view of the grave importance of the question, I should not accept closure at this stage. I am, however, prepared to consider the question once again if Honourable Members are prepared to sit till 10.30 tonight.

(Cries of “ Yes ”, and “ No ”.)

The House stands adjourned till Monday next at 11 O’Clock.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Monday, the 9th September, 1929.

Mr. M. K. Acharya: I dare not call myself a Brahmin. A Brahmin is one who is a God-seer; and if there be one in this House who is a God-seer I shall be quite ready to go down on my knees before him and do whatever he commands me to do.

I am not such a Brahmin; and I dare not therefore assume to myself an authority which I do not possess. To proceed however, very often the statement is made in this House and elsewhere that early marriage is responsible for a great deal of infantile mortality and things of that kind. Here is paragraph 232 of the Age of Consent Committee's Report, at page 102. It does not seem that the authors of this book are authorities even in the English language, and therefore bad grammar abounds in this book. In paragraph 232, they say:

"It has been shown in paragraphs 358 to 368....."

that is 126 paragraphs later on! How I wish their logic were not as bad as their grammar; but I fear, it is no better. They say:

"It has been shown in paragraphs 358 to 368 of our Report that early maternity is an evil and an evil of great magnitude."

This is what they say (an inaudible interruption was made). Well, let me see how these gentlemen who are interrupting me are going to espouse their cause without referring to these points and meeting them.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee (Nominated: Indian Christians): If the Honourable Member had no time to study the Report, then how is it he is able to refer in minute detail even to the smallest paragraphs in the Report? How does he reconcile these two statements?

Mr. M. K. Acharya: A schoolboy can answer this question. What I said was that I had no time to scrutinise the whole of the Report from beginning to end. I was able to study only those paragraphs in which I felt interested. I was interested to know whether early marriage led up to infantile mortality. Therefore I looked up the table of contents of the Report, of which the Honourable Member is such a distinguished signatory, and I found out easily what I wanted. I must speak the truth, pleasant or unpleasant, but it is not my fault. Only certain paragraphs in which I was interested, I read. I am not a newspaper correspondent to fly through the whole volume of a thousand pages in two hours and to summarise it all in half a dozen paragraphs, almost always giving very questionable summaries of the Report. I am not accustomed to do that. Let me read this wonderful sentence of theirs:

"It has been shown in paragraphs 358 to 368 of our Report that early maternity is an evil and an evil of great magnitude. It contributes very largely to maternal and infantile mortality, in many cases wrecks the physical system of the girl and generally leads to degeneracy in the physique of the race."

Well, Sir, if I said anything to the contrary, you will put me down as an old and good for nothing fellow. But what do the wonderful compilers of the Report themselves admit at page 165, in one of the very paragraphs referred to, namely, in paragraph 362, that is in the midst of paragraphs 358 to 368. In paragraph 362, under the heading is, "Relation between early marriage and maternal and infantile mortality", just the very subject that we are interested in, and they say:

"From the figures of 1921 census quoted in Appendices VI-C and VII-C, in some provinces of India it appears that, where more girls under 15 are married, greater infantile mortality exists....."

—mark the words, "in some provinces," and then—

"though not in the same proportion as the number of girls married....."

—a very beautiful admission!—

"In other provinces",

—a still more beautiful admission!—

"In other provinces, this sequence of cause and effect however does not hold good....."

—that is, of early marriage and infantile mortality does not hold good! But to continue:

"While in Burma",

—a still more beautiful admission!—

"where hardly a girl is married below 15, above 200 infants die per 1,000 births".

This is in Burma where the girls are married hardly below 15, where my Honourable friend's legislation is not wanted.

Now, Sir, a humble ordinary reader like myself cannot reconcile the two statements, the one in paragraph 232 and the other in paragraph 362. In one place they say it has been shown beyond the possibility of doubt (Hear, hear)—my friend over there echoes it. Well, Sir, if any statement, true or false, is just repeated a thousand times, many people come to believe it is true. In 1884 during the days of Lord Ripon when the old controversy on the Ilbert Bill was going on—I happened to look up those debates yesterday—even in those old days, one gentleman who occupied the position of a Member of the Viceroy's Executive Council said: "Repeat anything a hundred times, it comes to be believed". This is our unfortunate psychology—that a man in the street who reads a statement often soon succumbs to it. But our duty as sane, serious and responsible legislators is not to yield to the cries in the streets of little girls or old maids, or of old men or young boys. We have to do our work, according to my humble interpretation in a much more responsible manner. This is by the way. To continue: this is an instance how I am a little non-plussed, how I am unable to understand whether this paragraph is right or that paragraph is right. Of course newspapers do not find any trouble. One morning a copy of the Hindustan Times was placed in my hands containing attractive head lines. I really wondered what it was that the lines conveyed. I read the startling head line, "Orthodoxy Completely Answered." And then something like "Shrinivasa Sastri's quotation at the end of the book completely answers the orthodox position." When the paper containing these statements was put into my hands, I looked up the Appendix to find out who were those high authorities who completely answered the orthodox standpoint, for I myself am anxious to answer them. For instance when I went back to my constituency in October 1927, after supporting the first or original Bill of my friend, several of my constituents asked me how I had dared to support the Bill. So, I was very anxious myself to meet the orthodox viewpoint, and so I looked up the quotation announced in the newspaper. Now, what did I find in the Appendix to the Report? I found a "Quotation from the book, 'The Marriage age of Dwija girls' in Sanskrit by Pandit T. V. Shrinivasa Sastry, Professor of Dharma Shastra, Mylapore Sanskrit College, Madras." When I read the extracts, I found that there was very little difference after all between what that gentleman has said and the orthodox view. I could not see how, as the Hindustan Times declared, can get, legitimate opinion from all legitimate interests. In a word the Committee was not fully representative. Sir, every word that I say in this connection, I utter with a full sense of my own responsibility. If I am wrong, my friends will correct me, but let them not be angry with me if I speak out my mind frankly. I consider first, Sir, that this Committee was not fully representative.

Mr. M. K. Acharya: I dare not call myself a Brahmin. A Brahmin is one who is a God-seer; and if there be one in this House who is a God-seer I shall be quite ready to go down on my knees before him and do whatever he commands me to do.

Secondly, the qualifications of the members are not unquestionable. I put this very question before the House last year, and I asked the Honourable the Home Member whether the House could be taken into his confidence. This was my question :

“ Will the Government be pleased to state :

- (a) the purpose for which the Age of Consent Committee has been appointed ;
- (b) the special qualifications, if any, of its members ;
- (c) whether any representations have been received from the Presidency of Madras or elsewhere, requesting the Government to nominate as member a representative of orthodox Hindu opinion on it ;
- (d) and, if the answer to clause (c) be in the affirmative, why the Government have not chosen to accede to the request ? ”

To that the Honourable Sir James Crerar was pleased to reply :

“ The Home Department Resolution No. 382/27, dated the 25th June, 1928, a copy of which has been placed in the Library, states the terms of reference to the Committee and also the qualifications of the members. Government have received representations asking for the nomination of representative orthodox Hindu opinion and have accordingly appointed Rai Bahadur Paudit Kanhaiya Lal.”

This was the reply given to me by the Home Member ; and therefore I took care to go and find out what this Home Department Resolution was. I had a copy here from the Library this morning, but somehow it has disappeared—perhaps some fairy has taken it away ; but, I have got the terms of reference and all the relevant matter in this book itself. The Resolution says that the Government of India, in pursuance of certain answers they gave to some questions, propose to appoint a committee consisting of the following members :

“ Sir Moropant Vishwanath Joshi, B.A., LL.B., Kt., K.C.I.E., late Home Member of the Executive Council of the Governor of the Central Provinces—Chairman.

Rai Bahadur Pandit Kanhaiya Lal, M.A., LL.B., late Judge of the Allahabad High Court—Vice-Chairman.

Mr. A. Ramaswami Mudaliyar, B.A., B.L., lately a Member of the Madras Legislative Council.

Khan Bahadur Mahbub Mian Inam Baksh Kadri, B.A., LL.B., O.B.E., lately a District and Sessions Judge in the Bombay Presidency, and now Chief Judicial Officer of the Junagadh State.

Mrs. M. O'Brien Beadon, M.B., B.S. (London), L.S.A., Superintendent, Victoria Government Hospital, Madras.

Mrs. Brij Lal Nehru.”

These were the six names given in that notification to which the Home Member referred my ignorant self for information. My question was, what special qualifications did any of these members possess ? I tried to read every line and to spell every word to find out wherein, in that wonderful notification, were given the special qualifications of these members, if any. I could not find them. Probably more talented members will find in these bare names and letters attached to them, the qualifications of the members of the Committee, specially qualifying them for the task entrusted to them. My poor humble self could not find anything on the point ; and therefore I wondered whether it was a joke that the Home Member was practising upon himself or upon me when he showed me that particular sheet of paper as giving the particulars I wanted. I do not know what qualification the Chairman of the Committee had, except that he was “ the late Home Member of the Executive Council of the Central Provinces ”. There may be many late and present Members of the Executive Council of many provinces : but what his or their special qualification be to inquire into and report upon the law of the age of consent, my poor brain could not understand.

Then, No. 2. is Mr. A. Ramaswami Mudaliar. I know him very well, because he stood for election to the Madras Legislative Council from my own constituency, and I managed to get him defeated in 1926. He is a B.A., B.L. and of course he is very well qualified for any job that he ever practised. Then it is said that he was lately a Member of the Madras Legislative Council. Yes, he was a Member during the first six years of that Council ; he was not elected in 1926. In this book he is shown as the President of the Madras Corporation, but not in the 1928 June Notification, for the simple reason that he was not then such President : he has been President only for the past few months...

Pandit Thakurdas Bhargava (Ambala Division : Non-Muham-madan) : What should have been the qualifications of these members ?

Mr. M. K. Acharya : If I were to answer that question, I would say this : if I had been the Government or the Home Member, I should certainly have taken care to state what the special qualifications of these members were qualifying them for the appointment to which I was appointing them. But so long as I was not the appointing person, what does it matter what qualifications they should have had in my opinion ? Sir, my question to Government was what the special qualifications were of these members ; and a straightforward answer would have been—if the Government ever gave any straightforward reply to any question of this kind—that they appointed them all from recommendations received from certain favourite persons : at any rate that is how I know Mr. Ramaswami Mudaliar was appointed : that was his qualification.

Now, Sir, my friend there put me the question as to what should be the qualifications in my estimation. The qualification of a doctor, of a research scholar, of one who has studied the latest books upon sociology, of one who has studied the latest literature on the feminist movement in America and in England—some such qualifications I would regard as entitling a man to become a member of this Committee, where he would have to consider this problem of the relationship of the sexes, when the relationship should commence, when it should cease and all that. A B.A., B.L. might be a very good man ; and all these gentlemen are, I dare say, very good men, all eminently good in their own way ; but I say that they have no special qualification for laying down that this or that is the manner in which a husband and wife should live together. Persons who have made a special study of the subject, investigators, men like Havelock Ellis or Ellen Key or others, if any, in this land who have made a special study of this subject, would have been the proper persons for membership of this Committee. Not even ordinary doctors would be enough, because doctors ordinarily do not know anything beyond quinine for fever and such simple remedies. I therefore wish to enter my very emphatic protest against the way in which the Government have dealt with this very serious question. How can we have confidence in such a Committee, appointed by such a Government, although we are going to pay for it? The Government says in reply to my question: "Find out the qualifications from that notification." (Interruptions.) There is nothing in it. Sir M. V. Joshi is the Chairman.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member is repeating himself.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : If I am interrupted, what can I do?

Mr. President : The Honourable Member has no right to repeat.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : Will you kindly protect me, Sir, from being harassed in this fashion? The next Member is Rai Bahadur Pandit Kanhaiya Lal, "M.A., LL.B., late Judge of the Allahabad High Court". He might have pronounced opinion in several cases, civil and criminal, brought before him; but what special qualification he had to inquire into the Age of Consent Bill, as to what it should be, and all that, I do not know; probably, as a Judge, he might have had some cases involving the age of consent before him; but that is all. The reply given here is that he was nominated in response to representations made to Government asking for the nomination of a representative of the orthodox Hindu opinion. I do not know how Government found him out; on whose nomination—whether the Bharata Mahamandal suggested his name, or the Brahmana Mahasabha of Madras or the Brahmana Mahasabha of Bengal, or any other orthodox Hindu Association. If there was really going to be a representative of the orthodox Hindu opinion, on whose recommendation and on whose certificate this gentleman was nominated, I do not see; because, Sir, I may be pardoned if I say that I cannot take Sir James Crerar's certificate that the gentleman is representative of extreme orthodox opinion as very satisfactory, since on that matter I believe the Home Member may be no wiser than myself. Therefore, it is difficult for me to understand from the official statement whether, and to what extent, Rai Bahadur Kanhaiya Lal was an accredited representative of orthodox Hindu opinion, who could represent "the legitimate interests" of the orthodox section in the words of the Honourable Member himself. I know nothing about the Rai Bahadur. He may be an excellent person; what I say is that he is not a representative qualified to express, on behalf of the orthodox Hindu community, any views in regard to this particular question. He might express his own views, orthodox or heterodox: everybody thinks of course that his own views are orthodox and every others' views heterodox.

The third is a Muhammadan gentleman, Khan Bahadur Mahbub Mian Imam Baksh Kadri.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member is taking a very long time over a comparatively unimportant point.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : I thank you, Sir, for reminding me of it. I am very anxious to pass over this part of my argument. I will therefore conclude by saying that, so far as I can see, this Committee is not representative. None of the Members of this Committee—except perhaps the lady doctor who presumably gave some of her medical experiences to the Committee—is an authority upon any of the questions which had to be decided by the Committee; none of them had any special qualifications for the job, any more than any man in the street. None of them had any special qualifications as research scholars or scientific investigators or as recognised authorities in science, law, philosophy or religion, in all of which the Committee have dabbled.

My third criticism with regard to the personnel is that there was no Member on the Committee who could properly be said to represent purely orthodox Hindu opinion. After the certificate given to one of the Members of that Committee by the Honourable the Home Member, I read a second time and a third time the minute written by Rai Bahadur Lala Kanhaiya Lal to see how far we orthodox people, at any rate my orthodox friends, could regard him as our representative, and how far his views could be taken to represent purely orthodox Hindu opinion. I tried to judge by his own note. When I read his minute, not once, but twice and thrice, because the Honourable the Home Member has given him a certificate installing him in the guru pitha, or sacerdotal chair—when I tried to find out how far the Rai Bahadur represents the purely orthodox Hindu opinion, I must confess, Sir, I was very disappointed. I see that an attempt is made in the minute to give what seemingly is called the orthodox view of the question, but there is neither orthodoxy in it nor scholarship. And in order to corroborate what I say, I think I should read a few sentences from his minute. This gentleman says that in Vedic times post-puberty marriage was the law of the land. Here I think I should dwell on this aspect of the matter for a minute. If it can be proved to the satisfaction of the orthodox community that, in Vedic times, post-puberty marriage was the law and pre-puberty marriage came into force later, as a kind of interloper, then I think much of the objection will cease. Now, this gentleman admits that "Vedic texts lay down no specific age for marriage;" "they however indicate that in early times a marriage was essentially a union of two persons of full development". When a statement of that kind is made, when it is admitted that there is no specific age mentioned in the old texts, then we have merely to draw our own inferences, and then we get on to very delicate ground. However, I was patient enough to read and find out what were the authorities on which this gentleman relied, and on going through those very authorities I find that those authorities do not support the view of the member of the Committee at all. There are prayers in the Vedic hymns which say to the wife "Happy and be prosperous with your children", and so on. In another place, in Rig. Veda X.85, 41 and 42, it is said:—

"Be ye not parted: dwell ye here; reach the full time of human life, with sons and grandsons, rejoicing in your own abode."

Now the gentleman says that none of these hymns are applicable to the conditions of pre-puberty marriage sacrament. Sir, to every girl who comes before an elderly man in a Brahmin family, the Brahmins say even to-day:

"Dasayan putran adehi, patim eka dasam kuru"—

Do thou bear ten sons and treat thy husband as the eleventh.

This is merely a blessing. In the light of all these authorities, therefore, I cannot understand how the Rai Bahadur can draw his pet inference; or how the Honourable the Home Member regards the Rai Bahadur as the most accredited representative of orthodox Hindu opinion. I, for one, really cannot accept his statement.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

[4TH SEPT. 1929.]

[Mr. M. K. Acharya.]

Sir, the Honourable the Home Member had a different canon to apply when the Indian Christian Marriage Bill was under consideration. He quoted the authority of the Bishop of Calcutta and other Bishops in considering the question of Christian Marriage and Divorce; but when an important question affecting the entire Hindu community is under consideration, when a question affecting the marriage customs of the orthodox Hindu community is under consideration, it is not the authority of any Sankaracharya which is cited; it is not the authority of any great Pandit that is quoted; it is not the authority of any Mahamahopadhyaya of Benares which is taken; it is not the authority of any great Pandit whom our esteemed Leader could nominate from among the great Mahamahopadhyayas of Benares that may be consulted, but it is the authority of somebody who, in the opinion of the Honourable the Home Member, represents the Hindu orthodox opinion. Now, Sir, I put it to the Honourable the Home Member in all humility, is this kind of Committee likely to satisfy the demands of the orthodox community who sent up representations asking that orthodox opinion should be represented on the Committee? That is how I look upon the personnel of the Committee.

Next, whatever its representative character, coming to the Report, based on and judging it on what my lawyer friends would call relevant evidence, what do I find? The Report is based on a wrong interpretation of the terms of reference. They were asked to inquire about the age of consent. Now, the terms of reference to this Committee do not directly include the question of prohibition or of penalising of child marriages; but among other things the Committee say they had to consider how far the existing law with regard to the age of consent was effective, and whether any remedy could be suggested to make it more effective, such as penalising marriages before a certain age.

They say :

"It was impossible to debar the witnesses from suggesting the latter as a better and more effective remedy to check the evil intended to be dealt with by the law of the Age of Consent, if they thought fit to do so."

They admit :

"When the law of the Age of Consent alone was contemplated by its promoters as a remedy for protecting tender girls, it might possibly have been out of place to consider any other remedies; at present, however, Bills suggesting both the remedies are before the Legislature;"

I ask my lawyer friends and the Honourable the Home Member what is the procedure to be followed when you have a Committee with definite terms of reference?

The Committee say :

"It is impossible to avoid the consideration of what might be looked upon as a direct attack by way of fixing a minimum age of Marriage rather than a mere flank attack by raising the age of Consent."

They say further :

"The Legislative Assembly has postponed the consideration of Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda's Bill pending the Report of this Committee."

But this postponement by the Assembly was fully six months after the Committee began their work. My contention is that this is a wrong interpretation of the terms of reference, and I am supported in this contention by what another Committee appointed by the Government in a very similar predicament did. Let me refer to just one or two sentences in the Report of the Indian Taxation Committee. They were asked to inquire into the Indian taxation. The terms of reference to them were these :

"To examine the manner in which the burden of taxation is distributed at present between the different classes of the population.

To consider whether the whole scheme of taxation—Central, Provincial and Local—is equitable and in accordance with economic principles, and, if not, in what respects it is defective.

To report on the suitability of alternative sources of taxation."

One of the great sources of taxation being land revenue, the question most naturally came up before them of land assessments, and settlements, and therefore they say in a paragraph which runs as follows :

"One item of revenue which has excited more interest and criticism than all the others put together is that derived from the land. In respect of this matter, the Committee's instructions differ in some respects from those relating to other parts of the system. They are to include in the inquiry consideration of the land revenue only so far as it is necessary for a comprehensive survey of existing conditions. They are not required to make suggestions regarding systems of settlement."

Thus, Sir, when kindred questions turn up, the terms of reference are interpreted as strictly as possible. This is a parallel precedent. When making an inquiry into the age of consent, incidental questions relating to systems of marriage come up to the extent to which marriage systems bear directly on the age of consent—to that extent and to no more and no further. Yet, this Committee go on dabbling in marriage questions and a greater portion of the Report deals with the law of marriage. I therefore contend that it was a wrong interpretation of the terms of reference and the only inference to be drawn is that the terms of reference were exceeded.

Then, Sir, the Report is based on a disingenuous questionnaire, full of leading questions. I cannot understand how a question like this can be set out as a straightforward, plain question for eliciting opinion.

"Do you consider that penal legislation fixing a higher age of consent for marital cases is likely to be more effective than legislation fixing the minimum age of marriage?"

In other words, my contention is that, before this Committee started its inquiry, they had made up their minds for fixing the minimum age of marriage, and they put this leading question. The natural answer will be the fixing of the minimum age of marriage. The questionnaire is not meant to seek honest opinions of people to whom it is sent. My lawyer friends will call a question like this a leading question, one put in order to get the answer best suited to them. This question is therefore very disingenuous in this way. If I say that the fixing of the minimum age of marriage is better, I am bound to vote for 14, because the law already penalises marital intercourse below 13. Is this the kind of question which a Committee unbiassed, unprejudiced, without any definite views in their minds, and anxious only to find out what is best, anxious only to find out what honest opinions are held in the country—is this the kind of questionnaire which such a Committee will frame? They had made up their minds, I say, that marriage legislation is a better remedy ; and they went on elaborating it ; and my contention now is whether this can be regarded as a proper questionnaire upon which the opinions expressed can be considered to be relevant, "legitimate opinion" from people who have "legitimate interests" and no more.

Sir, lastly and the most serious of all, is this, that the Report is based on admittedly inadequate evidence,—quite inadequate as admitted by the Committee itself. In this Report they say :

"The questionnaire was sent out directly to about 6,000 persons and to 1,930 more through the various Local Governments, of whom about 1,200 responded."

- which is less than 15 per cent. I almost wonder whether there had not been a greater response to the Simon Commission from those who were interested in the constitutional questions raised by that Commission. Yet these gentlemen conclude :

"The response to the questionnaire was wide and general."

In the first sentence they say that the questionnaire was sent to 7,930 people, out of whom only 1,200 responded. And in the very next sentence they say that the response "was wide and general"! Sir, I cannot comprehend this sentence. If I invite 100 people and only 15 turn up, I must consider that the majority did not respond.

Mr. K. Ahmed (Rajshahi Division : Muhammadan Rural) : 85 per cent. belong to your school.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : Sir, I have no school. All schools I leave to my Honourable friend over there.

As regards orthodox ladies' opinions, we have a very valuable admission at page 6 of the Report :

"The Committee has taken care to have the views of this latter class on record ; ..... The Committee, however, notes that, although efforts to get the opinions of orthodox ladies by direct evidence were made, they were not very successful."

Any they give the reason as to why it was not successful on another page, that :

"The more conservative ladies are deterred by environments from an expression of opinion" (page 172).

I am yet to know that in Southern India—I do not know about Northern India—I am yet to know that any ladies are deterred by their environment from giving their opinions upon any important subject in which they are vitally interested ; because in Madras our ladies go about quite freely, whenever necessary. The pernicious purdah system or the very good purdah system, whatever it is, does not prevail there. I may, for instance, inform the House that two very respectable orthodox ladies came on the deputation to His Excellency the Viceroy only the other day. Although they are accustomed to live and rule in their own homes, they came all the way to Simla, because they were greatly stirred by the matter which was before the Legislative Assembly. They appeared before His Excellency the other day as members of the deputation ; and one of them was an eloquent lady, as eloquent as my Honourable friend, Mr. Jayakar, or any other Honourable Member.

She spoke, I am told, in a manner so simple, so free and so touching, that any member here might very well emulate her. Here again there is evidence.....

Mr. President : Will the Honourable Member say how long he is going to take ?

Mr. M. K. Acharya : I have got so many more points to deal with that I fear I may take an hour more.

Mr. President : Does the Honourable Member realise that there is a large number of Honourable Members who desire to take part in this debate ? If the Honourable Member is under the impression that no closure will be accepted he is very much mistaken. He will merely deprive other Honourable Members from taking part in this debate.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : If I am debarred under the rules.....

Mr. President : I do not say so. I have merely asked him to bear in mind the fact that there is a large number of his colleagues who desire to take part in this debate. If he takes a very long time, it means that he will deprive other Honourable Members of an opportunity of taking part in this debate.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : I am bound to place the whole of my humble submission, Sir.

Mr. President : Then it is your pleasure !

Mr. R. S. Sarma (Bengal : Nominated Non-Official) : On a point of order, Sir. Is the Honourable Member entitled to embark upon a detailed criticism of the recommendations of this Committee ? He himself has admitted that he has not had time to study it and his amendment itself is based upon the plea that more time should be given to the Members of this House and the public to get themselves acquainted with the recommendations of the Committee.

Mr. President : Mr. Acharya.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : Yes, I want more time. Let my colleagues study the Report, come back and enlighten me, so that I may be converted to their view, because I am open to conviction. The Committee has not inspired confidence in the minds of the orthodox section, and no orthodox ladies will go before them. But here is a telegram from a lady in Kistna which reads :

"On behalf of women Kistna Child Marriage Consent Age Raising Bills condemned strongly interfering religion".

Here is another telegram from another lady from Kumbakonam, the home of orthodoxy :

"Large and influential Brahmin ladies' public meeting, Kumbakonam, held first September, under my presidentship, unanimously protests against Sarda's Marriage Bill pending Assembly and Committee's Report. As Hindu marriage is sacrament mixed legislatures incompetent pass social or religious legislation, still less penal legislation. Select Committee members being social reformers unrepresentative of communities affected and prays throwing out Bill or exempting Brahmins."

The telegram is signed by Valambalammal of Kumbakonam.

In the light of these telegrams, would any of my colleagues be right in taking the obiter dictum of this Committee that the environment in South India debarred orthodox ladies from expressing their opinions ?

Mr. President : Order, order. The House stands adjourned till half past two.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half Past Two of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : Sir, as I was saying just before we adjourned.....

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya (Madras : Indian Commerce) : May I draw the attention of the Chair to the question whether we have got a quorum yet ?

Mr. President : Yes, we have got a quorum.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : Sir, I was saying that the evidence, even according to the admissions contained in the Report, was inadequate in two respects. There is no response from orthodox ladies. Also it is admitted in the Report, on page 7, that the Moslem representation was very meagre. They say :

" It has been pointed out that very few Muslim witnesses and theologians have appeared before the Committee. The questionnaire was sent to every Muslim gentleman, whose name was suggested by any member of the Committee; and a special request was conveyed to some prominent Muslim theologians to give evidence before the Committee or to send their written statements. At the end of the tour the Committee re-assembled at Delhi; and a second opportunity was given to the witnesses whose evidence, some of the members considered, it was highly desirable to obtain. But in spite of this the response was meagre. This is regrettable; but though the opportunity to give evidence was not largely availed of by orthodox Muslims, we feel that all that could be stated from the theological point of view has been stated by the witnesses of various schools of thought who have assisted us in our inquiry and it is extremely doubtful if any fresh light can be thrown by them on the subjects under consideration."

That is what the Committee in general say. But our esteemed friend, Maulvi Muhammad Yakub, who was on the Committee, expresses a different view and he says in his minute :

" My first recommendation is that additional Moslem evidence should be brought on the record before the Marriage Bill comes up before the House for final disposal." Thus this Report is based on inadequate evidence and a distorted questionnaire. We have got this admission from the Committee itself. They nevertheless come to the conclusion that a case for legislation has been made out. They have done this, so far as I am able to see at present, by way of magnifying the demand for, and by minimising the objection to, the Bill in question. Thus, Sir, last year, in reply to a question of mine, the Government gave the statistics. On the 3rd of September, 1928, this was the answer given. I am sorry I have mislaid the papers. They gave the opinions for and against that were received.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member might take up some other point.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : The statistics given by the Government were so thoroughly convincing, the number of opinions received for the Bill were so few, and the number of opinions received against were so many, that the signatories against were by tens of thousands and the signatories for were only by hundreds, and yet the Committee come to the conclusion that the opposition to the legislation is very negligible.

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : These petitions were not before the Committee.

Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda (Ajmer-Merwara : General) : I myself presented a petition signed by several thousands of opinions in favour of the Bill.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : The Committee were expected to know all the materials that were supplied by the public as they are public property, as also all the information that has been given by the Government on the floor of this House in September last. When the Committee were doing its work, not knowing how many opinions were received by Government, not knowing what answers were given by Government or obtained by Government, they were to blame in the first instance. That is exactly my complaint, that they have ignored everything that was unfavourable and minimised the opposition and magnified the points in favour. They say :

" There is no doubt that a certain amount of dissatisfaction will be caused among the orthodox Hindu and Muslim classes."

This can only be taken for granted as an expression of opinion, not based on facts. The new legislation, they admit, would affect these classes as they were never affected before. On the other hand, if the legislation is not passed, the dissatisfaction will be equally great, if not greater, among the reformers. Therefore, Sir, it shows that, in order to avoid dissatisfaction among the reformers, this Committee recommend that the Government may defy the dissatisfaction of the orthodox people, although the bulk of the people are orthodox in this country, as perhaps in any other country; the number of people who stick to the old order of things, is always larger. But this Committee says, that it does not matter. If the Committee had paused to consider what happened when steps were being taken by the late Amir of Afghanistan to reform the social order and customs in his country, to force reforms on an unwilling people which they did not like, however sound and rational they might be in his opinion, they would not have made this recommendation. I wish the Committee had given saner advice to Government. Sir, the Home Member was right in saying that Government should carefully consider as to how far legislation, however well-meant, if introduced against the wishes of the people, might create more harm than the harm intended to be rectified. Luckily the lady member of the Committee, almost instinctively—because ladies are always more shrewd than men—feels that mere legislation will never succeed, and she writes something like the following that : After all, we must depend upon propaganda, upon the spread of ideas, upon the natural development of the order of things.

And yet, by a majority, the Committee disregard the opinions of those who oppose it, and they distort the evidence, limited as it was, and quote only the opinions which are favourable, and dismiss the opinions which are unfavourable. These are some of the defects that I noted, and I want more learned speakers coming after me to help me, if possible, in assessing the true value of the Report. My provisional conclusion,—and I say it with all deliberation subject to correction by others—is that the Report of the Committee shows that they have failed to investigate all legitimate interests, that they did not possess special qualifications for the task entrusted to them, that the Report is based on a wrong interpretation of the terms of reference, on a faulty questionnaire, and on admittedly inadequate evidence; that it has been prompted by a desire, however well-meant yet indiscreet, prompted in the by a regrettable zeal to manufacture somehow a case for legislawill take the trouble to convince me that I am wrong, I am still open to correction. If I am convinced of the contrary view, I will give up the very points that are so dear to me, so far at least as I am personally concerned, although I cannot bind the constituents whom I represent in this House. Therefore, I beg of you, Sir, and through you I beg of the House, to give their most serious consideration to the various issues involved in the legislation before we undertake it hastily, in response to the vocal few; because it is only these vocal few on either side who have expressed their views and opinions in newspapers. The bulk of my countrymen and countrywomen do not come under the class of the vocal few. They do not know how to agitate on European lines. They do not know how to bring their girls and make them stand in the street and create public opinion. These things are foreign to our genius. They have been utterly foreign to the genius of the legislators and seers of ancient India. In a word, I appeal that in this responsible task we must not be hasty, and we must not be guided by newspaper reports, and things of that kind.

Lastly, Sir, I appeal to you and through you to the Members of the House for a moment to pause and consider what will be the situation created in the country; and how far, as I have already said, it will be consistent with our own responsibilities as legislators to ask Government to thrust this penal legislation down the throats of people that are not prepared for it. Let there be reform by all means; let there be propaganda by all means; let the reformers go about canvassing more and more members to their League. But we should not be hasty in passing this legislation. However much we may be assailed by the currents of the ocean, we must take care to see that they do not undermine the foundations upon which the ancient society of India has been established. I beg of you therefore, Sir, that, in this matter, we must consider the pros and cons very carefully; we must have before us all the evidence which this Committee has collected, because even at the time when they made their Report, the conclusions of the Committee were not at all supported by adequate evidence. There are a great many statements in this Report with regard to which, without the help of the evidence upon which they are based, it is very difficult for a humble man like myself to come to any conclusion. It was because of this that I moved this morning that we should adjourn the consideration of this Bill, that we should calmly and dispassionately try to judge the issues. Some friends may wish to help my Honourable friend over there; yet, if in spite of their wishes to help him, they are convinced that the legislation is not necessary, they should not force the legislation on us. Sir, we are a heterodox body representing many diverse interests; and I appeal to all my Honourable friends not to press for this legislation at this stage. Now, Sir, as I do not want to take more time, I give up all the other points that I had noted; and I hope that other friends who will speak after me will detail them and make the position much clearer than I have been able to make it. I hope Government will also beware of the fact that, after all, they are not the makers of India's destiny. India's destiny is in the hands of her own people. If the Government, to pressure brought to bear on them whether from home or elsewhere, decide to thrust this legislation on us, a time will come when some the Bill. We will sweep this Government away. I tell them, beware, let them take a lesson from Afghanistan.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division: Non-Muhammadan Rural): Sir, I think I shall be failing in my duty if I did not again raise my humble voice against this proposed legislation. I shall avoid inflicting a long speech on the unwilling ears of my colleagues, but I cannot do without making a passing observation on the Report which we received only seven or eight days ago. It seems that some of the Members of this House think that that Report is worth serious consideration. But I regret to observe that that Report deserves to be thrown into the waste-paper basket if you closely examine it in the light of the evidence recorded.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta (Bombay City: Non-Muhammadan Urban): Also the Report of the Select Committee on the Transfer of Property Bill!

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt: I have no objection if it is also thrown into the waste-paper basket.

If you take a cursory glance through some of the pages of this Report, you will find that many things have been misreported and many untrue statements have been made about which there is no evidence. My attention was drawn only an hour before to a certain observation made in that Report by a certain member which is wholly false and not warranted by the evidence on record. Some members of the Committee have based their observation on their own imagination in order to draw up an indictment against certain witnesses, I therefore say that such a report deserves to be thrown into the waste-paper basket as it has not properly sifted and weighed the evidence on record, and probably did not attend to the statements of witnesses when they deposed.

Leaving aside any consideration of the Report of the Age of Consent Committee, let us look into the merits of the present Bill. Sir, having had sufficient experience of this House and the methods of so-called democracies within our ken, I am painfully aware of the futility of any attempt to alter opinions which are resultants of various forces interacting on each other. Personal idiosyncracies, want of toleration of others' views, subtle influence of political power, and last but not least, the present conflict of ideas of the East and those of the West, have contributed not a little in shaping the bias, the sub-conscious cerebrations and the prejudices and obsessions of this House. In these circumstances, I have thought fit to proceed on uncontrovertible grounds. Whatever may be our own views about the marriageable age of our boys and girls, we have to keep in view the fundamental fact that no one has any right to thrust his own views upon others in domestic and social matters, far less any Legislature has a right to compel people to accept a rule of conduct which the people consider as an unwarrantable interference with their religious convictions and beliefs, as evidenced by the thousands of protests that are daily pouring forth from various parts of the country. Their voice is more loud in volume and insistence than that of those who support the Bill, and they are sincere and cogent from their point of view, and as such they are entitled to our respect and serious consideration. People from far-off parts of the country have come up to Simla at a great personal sacrifice to place their viewpoint before us, and among them there are men of high social position, great learning and piety, who command more confidence of the masses of our countrymen than the so-called social reformers.

I must warn the Government not to be misled by the clamours of a handful of men, unless their intention is to create further dissension.

LSCPB(LA)

[Mr. Amar Nath Dutt.]

among the people, as they have done by nursing the growth of communalism. Those who honestly believe that shastric injunctions would be interfered with by this legislation should have as much liberty in their own spheres as those who want this legislation. If Bertrand Russel thinks of "tyranny of public opinion" in England in clearly made out cases of moral turpitude, we may very well characterise this attempt to fix the age of marriage by legislation, of diverse races and communities as nothing but "tyranny of subsidised opinion".

In this connection I beg to quote a few observations of Dr. James H. Cousins :

"It is necessary to remember that it is the privilege of a nation's life, that can be made into commodities for cultural exchange, its roots and branches remain fixed in its own soil, they can rarely be slipped and ceded with success, they cannot be removed without disaster. Life and form hold fruitful converse within their own domain, but only life can move safely beyond the borders of nativity. Form adopted or imposed from without, is certain of death, for it has renounced spiritual fecundity".

Legislative penalisation of marriage age is a form imposed from outside. If there has arisen a real need for advance in the marriage age, as in town life, it is evident, this coercive legislation will, I am afraid, retard the healthy progress of that advance, for every form of outside compulsion provokes and nurtures a spirit of revolt. Moreover, I cannot tolerate the only legitimate inference from penal legislation that the social reform is not a spontaneous growth of a healthy life in society, but must be supplemented by legislative stimulant injected into an unwilling system. It means moral defeat of the reformers.

My next objection is based on the cry of the age, which is rampant all over the world. Mr. C. E. M. Joad is a well known free thinker in the English literary world. He it is who has made familiar the words "herd mentality" and "herd morality". He describes it as follows :

"Take a sheep and stand it on its hind legs and its resemblance to a human being is scarcely noticeable ; but stand a flock of sheep on their hind legs and, so far as psychology and behaviour go, you have a crowd of men. In other words, taken severally, men may be individuals, taken together, they are a mere transmitting medium for herd emotion. Their individual stupidities are added together, but their individual wisdom cancel out".

So, he thinks,

"The rigid enforcement of uniformity is hostile not only to freedom of action but also to independence of thought", and therefore in his opinion,

"morality, which is the name we give to law-abiding conduct, is a device on the part of the rulers to ensure subservience and contentment on the part of their subjects".

Needless to add that the proposed law is intended to create a sort of morality, by which the ruler, I mean both the Legislature and the Executive, will have got only the device, which is condemned by the writer. The creation of "hard morality" benefits only the stronger and by far more extensively and intensively the organised stronger, as against the disunited and disorganised weaker. And in this sense, it is absolutely reactionary. I maintain that Government and parties and politicians are not alive to the highest thoughts that the greatest thinkers are promulgating for the further progress of humanity. Otherwise, this piece of legislation should have been nipped in the bud under section 67 (2) (b) of the Government of India Act. The Government is trying to play the rôle of a Ram Mohan Roy and a Ranade, to divert the attention of the politically minded people from the life works of Surendranath Bannerjee, Dadabhai, Naoroji and Bal Gangadhar Tilak, which is the legitimate sphere of their activity. True nationalists should beware of this and should not join in the chorus of siren songs, sung through one of their own organs, who was in their service, and who still receives their pension. Are we to believe that a Government which deports and imprisons men like, Tilak, Gandhi, Lala Lajpat Rai, Aurabindo Ghose and others and is at the present moment callous to the suffering of the hunger-strikers at Lahore, has suddenly developed a great desire for the well-being of our community ? Or is it to create one more dissension amongst the orthodox and the unorthodox ? Certainly the Government is fully aware how vehemently the late Pandit Vidyasagar of widow remarriage fame, the late Sir Romesh Chandra Mitra, the first to hold the office of Chief Justice in British India, moved against the first Age of Consent Bill ; yet now, at the height of a movement of marrying girls at not less than 14 years of age, the late Keshub Chaudhar Sen, married his own daughter just after 12 ; how surreptitiously the polygamy in Bengal fell into disuse, how surely the economic causes are raising the marriageable age of girls, and how modern conditions are doing away with various social evils. If they had only kept themselves abreast with the most up-to-date thought currents of sociology, then they would not have raised this countrywide opposition to social reform itself.

Mr. J. A. Hobson, one of the greatest social thinkers of modern times in his latest work on "Freethought in Social sciences", concludes his book, after acknowledging the likelihood of a world catastrophe, with the following pregnant observations :

"If we are right in holding that the most urgent business of our age is to devise better laws of conduct in the arts of human governments, within and beyond the limits of nationality, success depends upon stimulating in as many spots as possible, the largest number and variety of independent thinkers, constructing and maintaining among them the best conditions of free intercourse and co-operation and finally enabling their creative thought to play freely in criticism and reform upon the existing modes of political and economic life."

India is the only spot where marriage law, being diversified in different communities, should be maintained in their existing modes so that the creative thoughts of the youths of India may play freely in criticism and reform. This is the sine qua non of progress. I know, I may be accused of generalisations. But there is some fundamental misconception which I have tried to clear out.

I pray to all real well-wishers of the country not to be misled by hypnotism of words, such as, "progress", "advance", "emancipation", and "twentieth century". I have therefore to go into the whole question of race-idiosyncracies, and condition of free-thought and activity.

The Honourable Members of this House have been deluged with pamphlets, opinions, dicta, principles, statistics and old and new theories about sex. The members of the itinerary Committee have enjoyed "the lure of the sex itself masquerading as 'scientific interest'"—I mean "legislative interest". Can any one say that he has viewed the question from the point of view of disinterested science, which alone can lead us to right conclusions ? Nor is there any material before us for inquiry into the question from the point of view of disinterested science.

Therefore, in this medley of bias, and interest and struggle for dominance in the body politic of India, I take up the only honourable attitude for a legislator, I cannot stigmatise the youths of India as unworthy of trust with a girl by passing this penal legislation. I move for freedom of thought and freedom of action of our youths and for the rejection of this Bill lock, stock and barrel.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : Sir, this morning when I came into the Assembly building, I was greeted with a big placard with these words in bold print, "If you oppose Sarda's Bill, the world will laugh at you". I am glad, Sir, that I shall have an opportunity of being laughed at by the world. I am equally glad that, in that position, I am in the company of very great men : I am in the company of the ancient Rishis of this country : I am in the company of the great legislators of this ancient country ; I am in the company of the modern savants of the Continent ; I am in the company of great doctors, sociologists, medical experts and gynaecologists. If that is so, I would certainly like to be laughed at by that section of the world who would laugh at me if I oppose this Bill. I would in turn, after opposing this Bill, laugh at that section of the world which would laugh at me for having opposed this Bill.

Sir, I oppose this Bill with all the vehemence that I can command. The Bill, Sir, I feel, is not a social reform legislation, but a religious revolution, and not merely a revolution, but in the words of Mr. Justice Mackay of the Madras High Court, "a seismic disturbance of age-long practice". That, Sir, is the real character of this Bill.

In opposing this Bill, Sir, let me consider the various arguments that were advanced by the Honourable Mover when he moved this motion last time. In the last Delhi Session he started observing that the views of the women of this country have to be considered, for it affects them more, and he instanced three all India Ladies' Conferences supporting his position, and he threw out a challenge by asking, "Do you find a single protest meeting by the ladies of this country?" I dare say that he has by this time come to know that very many ladies' meetings and conferences have been held since then loudly protesting against his Bill, and not only against his Bill but also against the other Bill of Dr. Gour. And I may inform this House and the Honourable Mover that there have been at least half a dozen meetings,—decent gatherings of which I am aware,—meetings held in Kumbakonam, of ladies, meetings held in Triplicane, Madras, meetings held in Benares, and last but not least, there was a meeting held in Cocanada just a week ago. Now, all these ladies' gatherings were very influential, were well-attended and were thoroughly representative, and in every one of these meetings loud and vehement protests were made against this Bill. They called it a most pernicious Bill, and they protested against it on the sole ground that it undermined the Hindu religion in this country, and they also went to the length of saying that, so far as their own experience was concerned, there was absolutely nothing to justify the demand for a legislation like this. That, Sir, is the burden of the song in all these ladies' conferences, and I dare say that, by this time the Honourable Mover will have been satisfied at the proceedings of these conferences, that there really have been very many ladies' gatherings that have protested against this Bill ; and if there are not more conferences held, the principal reason is this. This House knows that Indian womanhood is principally in-door ; and if here and there there are a few meetings convened by interested social reformers consisting of ladies, these meetings consist, in the words of an itinerant lecturer on Hindu religion and usage, "of ladies strayed out of the ancient Indian manner of feminine ideal and conduct and who therefore are not free from criticism by their sister folk". That, Sir, is the situation, and in every one of these ladies' gatherings, giving support to this Bill, you will find that invariably one or two or a handful of social reformers are also at work. That is significant.

Then, Sir, the Honourable the Mover cited with approval the opinion of one Mrs. Gomati Amenal of Tinnevely in my constituency. This lady, as the House will find in page 56 of part III of the opinions collected, confesses that she really does not know what the Shastras say in this matter. The entire burden of our song is that this Bill is un-Shastric and goes against the fundamental tenets of the Hindu religion. When a lady of that stamp proclaims that she does not know what the Shastras say and yet gives her support to this Bill, the House will really see what that approval comes to.

Then, Sir, the Honourable the Mover cited with approval the opinion of one Mrs. Bhagirathi Amenal of Madras. She openly avows that she is not concerned with the Shastras at all, she openly avows that she is not concerned with the life beyond death but only with the life here. "Save us from the situation that we are in" was the plaintive cry alleged to have been made by this lady to the Honourable the Mover. Here, again, is a case of directly flouting the Shastric injunctions upon which we take our stand. That this lady should absolutely reject the Shastras and claim only the pleasures of life in this existing life when our ancient ideal looks also to the life beyond, that clearly is a line of demarcation as to where you must collect opinions, as to what opinions you must record and what is not. In fact, Sir, the whole difference between these two view-points is this. They think lightly of the life beyond ; and our entire religion concerns itself with the Shastras, which proclaim their faith in and which also inspire confidence in us as to the existence of a life beyond this ; and if the whole Shastric injunctions relating to our course of conduct and if these are the basic ideals upon which our courses of conduct have been enjoined by the Shastras, and if these are clearly lost sight of, I absolutely devolve upon that central idea of a past life and a future life, submit to the House that the opinions of these people who do not realise these Shastric injunctions and the ideals lying underneath them, are not entitled to any weight, especially when the orthodox section is crying itself hoarse that it entirely rests its opposition to this Bill upon the Shastras and upon the ancient texts of this land.

Then, Sir, the Honourable the Mover was obliged to fall back upon a resolution passed by a meeting of the ladies of Kumbakonam, which is largely an orthodox centre. I submit that I know Kumbakonam myself. The deputation from Southern India, which waited upon His Excellency the other day contains gentlemen from Kumbakonam. But what is this ladies' meeting which the Honourable Member wanted to rely on ? That, I gather, was a meeting which was attended by five ladies, or four and a half, as it was humorously called by one of the reporters. Only five ladies met on that occasion. All of them happened to be Theosophists whose belief in Shastras is well known. These five Theosophical ladies met in Kumbakonam and sent out their voice by way of support to this Bill, and if the Honourable the Mover has to fall back upon that kind of support in his favour, I simply pity him for the support upon which he relies.

[Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar.]

Then, Sir, he went on to say that, so far as the Madras Brahmins are concerned, they are hardly three per cent. of the population in that Presidency, and that any amount of protest which may be sent by the Brahmins of Southern India would not be of much avail. But he must have, by this time, realised that, since then, all other *Dwij*a communities, i.e., Sourashtras, Komati Chettis, and Vaishyas, etc., who believe in a second birth from the Upanayan Samskara have held meetings of protest against this Bill on the main ground that it fundamentally affects the structure of Hindu society and is diametrically opposed to the Hindu Shastric injunctions. So that the opposition is not confined to the Brahmins of Madras alone, but extends to all the *Dwij*a communities of the Province of Madras. All the sections of the *Dwij*as, people who believe in a second birth by the upanayana samskara, all these people, Kshatriyas, Vaisyas, Komati Chettis, Sourashtra Brahmins, and other communities who believe in the existence of a second birth, and who also themselves undergo the purification ceremony of upanayana for being spiritually re-born, all these people have clearly protested against this pernicious Bill. In the collection of opinions from the various districts of Madras,—I am glad that the Government of India have taken care to see that in Madras the Collector of almost every district was addressed and asked to collect opinions in each district—I find from those opinions—I will not weary the House by going into them in detail and reading extracts from every opinion—I shall only mention collectively that the Collectors of Salem, Anantapur, Bellary, Krishna, Chittoor, Ramnad, Tinnevely, West Godaveri, Kurnool, Coimbatore, Madras, Nellore, North Arcot, Cuddapah, Trichnopoly, East Godaveri, Madura, South Arcot and Tanjore have all invariably given expression, in their opinions collected, to the fact that, within their district, there exist all the *Dwij*a communities who have invariably raised their voice of protest against this Bill. Is there not enough for the Honourable Member to be convinced of the stout opposition which this Bill has evoked in the Madras Province in almost every district that counts there?

Sir, I am very much pained to see that the Honourable the Mover was rather cruel upon the High Court Judges of Madras. He flouted the opinions of these eminent men on the simple ground that Madras is a province which has not solved the problem of untouchables to his satisfaction, and therefore the gentlemen who are appointed as Judges in that backward province are not entitled to have their opinions considered by him. That was the line of reasoning taken by the Honourable the Mover. I say that that does not disclose that balance of mind which must characterise a legislator who has come forward with a Bill of this kind. I shall read a few extracts from the opinions of these eminent Judges of the Madras High Court. They are entitled to the greatest weight obviously for this reason: some of them happen to be Indian Judges and some of them Brahmin Judges as well; most of them have had district experience as District Judges and as Sub-divisional Officers; they have risen from the lower ranks of the I.C.S., and they have got up to the High Court Bench, after having served in various districts as executive officers and as district judges throughout the Presidency. Therefore their opinions are entitled to great weight, and some of them are European Judges. I am speaking so strongly and so vehemently for the obvious reason that Madras feels very strongly over this matter. It is Madras opinion that must count with you, for this reason, that the opinion in Madras is very strong against this Bill, probably because it is the place where orthodoxy still remains in its pristine simplicity and purity. That is why I submit to my Honourable colleagues in this House that Madras opinion is so strong.

I shall invite the attention of the House to three or four extracts only from these opinions. Justice Ramesam is an ardent social reformer himself; but all the same he does not relish the idea of this penal legislation on the lines suggested by the Select Committee. This is what he says:

"Incidentally, one observation I wish to make, that the statement of Sir H. S. Gour made at least twice, i.e., once in his Statement of Objects and Reasons to his Bill, and once in the discussion in the Legislative Assembly, after the Report of the Select Committee on Mr. Sarda's Bill, viz., that Hindu girls do not attain maturity until the age of 14, though it may be correct as to Northern India, is absolutely incorrect as to Southern India. It is a matter of common knowledge that in Southern India Hindu girls attain puberty generally, as an average, at the age of 12..... I am not going to waste time by considering how far the belief is justified, whether the smriti on which it is based contains an interpolation, or whether the primitive Hindu societies imposed such an injunction. The fact is there, that such a belief now exists and it is a religious belief."

He also says, "In my opinion the law ought to be more enabling and less compelling". (An Honourable Member: "He is not opposed to this measure.") He is opposed to it in the form which is now before the House.

Justice Mackay says:

"I would only observe that, so far as South India is concerned, it is certain to provoke vehement opposition..... That would be not merely a revolution, but a seismic disturbance of age-long practice....."

Justice Pakenham-Walsh says:

"I agree with Justice Mackay that the Act, if passed, will create vehement opposition at least in South India. If there were any widespread feeling against the existence of child-widows it would surely be reflected on a large and growing use of the widow Re-marriage Act. That Act has always been and still remains a dead letter, the cases of re-marriage under it being infinitesimal. I would take the use of that Act as a barometer to gauge the real degree of popular support behind the present Act. When we find it extensively used, we may conclude that public opinion has really moved. I agree with Reilly, Jackson and Mackay J.J. in their criticism as regards procedure."

Now, this is a very important observation because there are two aspects to be considered in this connection. If the Widow Re-marriage Act has been in existence on the Statute-book for nearly 75 years; and if it has remained a dead letter, what does it mean? It means that conservative opinion still holds good in the country. It means that the reformer has not been able to advance a bit during the last 75 years in the direction in which he wanted to. That Act was a permissive legislation; and again, if after fifty years of social reform activities, these social reformers should come to the Legislature and ask that we should pass penal measures to aid them in their work does it not betray failure on their part? If they have worked for social reform for the last fifty years and if they have not been able to do anything at all in that direction, but have to come here and ask for more powers, and penal powers in addition, to enforce their fashionable fads, as I would call them, what does it show? It shows an utter confession of failure.

I shall now read a few extracts from the opinion of Mr. Justice Tiruvankata Achariyar:

"I do not see how the Government can by legislation interfere to prevent or penalise the marriages of girls between 11 and 14, which is the period when 90 per cent. of the marriages take place, without seriously offending the religious feelings of the orthodox section of the community, who still wield much influence over the rest of the community, and at the same time causing among the moderate and most influential section of the community, which prefers to progress in social matters on sound lines though slow, taking the community as a whole with them, save a few impatient idealists, who with more conceit than wisdom, consider that the social and material salvation of the Hindu community can be attained only by their being forced to cast off wholesale their age-long customs and adopt in their stead the (according to these idealists) rational and beneficial customs of modern Europe and America, ignoring the fact that you cannot have a common standard between countries which differ from each other materially in the conditions of life."

He also remarks :

"It should not be overlooked that the choice of the bride or bridegroom is subject to various restrictions, legal as well as social, and that the parents or those who stand in loco parentis are the best judges of what is conducive to the welfare of their children, and that neither the State nor the Legislature can usefully take over their responsibilities on its shoulders."

In spite of this, what is aimed at by the Honourable the Mover now is to ask this Legislature to intervene, and the State to intervene, to put this Bill on the Statute-book. That is hardly a thing that should be favoured by this Assembly. And further on he says :

"Coercive legislation like that proposed in the Bill will not only be of doubtful utility, but like quack remedies may produce evil consequences, which we either do not at all or only dimly foresee at present."

Then, Mr. Justice Venkatasubba Rao would agree with Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya and fix the age at eleven for girls.

Then again Mr. Justice Devadoss, a Christian Judge, says this :

"The Bill attempts at impossible things. Who is to determine what the age of the girl is. Births are not registered and horoscopes are notoriously unreliable."

Mr. Justice Odgers says that :

"The Bill seems to have small chance of passing into law."

And lastly, Mr. Justice Kumaraswami Sastri says this :

"I do not think this is a matter on which the Legislature should interfere. It is rather for educated public opinion to assert itself and to take steps by educating the masses to put an end to this and other social evils."

I submit, Sir, that these are the considered opinions of the Judges of the Madras High Court, and the Honourable the Mover was certainly not in the right when he brushed aside these valuable opinions of the Madras High Court Judges by adopting the line of argument that he chose to adopt.

Then, Sir, lastly he said there is a cry that religion is in danger and that it is a false cry. The Legislature ought not to be misled by this cry that religion is in danger because it is a false cry in his opinion. I submit, Sir, that is a prejudiced view. He betrayed prejudice by attributing prejudice to us, the orthodox community. My friend is entirely wrong in his view. Unfortunately, the cry that religion is in danger is very real and sincere. If that were not real, Sir, how do you account for the fact that these deputationists have travelled for thousands of miles and come up to Simla to place their case before the authorities here and before His Excellency the Viceroy. There are, as the House probably knows, two lady members in the deputation. How does the House account for the numerous petitions and memorials from various parts of the country and for the one thousand and one ways of making known the representations to the powers that be, urging that this measure should not be passed, and that if the Legislature passes it, praying His Excellency the Viceroy to veto it at once if the feeling behind it is not genuine and strong? Why should all these things be done if the cry that religion is in danger is not a true cry, a sincere and an honest cry? The House should consider all the hardships to which the deputationists have voluntarily submitted themselves to to come up to Simla in this cold season to present their case to the powers that be. I would go further and submit to the House that there is a good deal of truth and force in this statement, because this Bill really jeopardises the religion of the Hindus in this country.

Sir, it has been said over and over again that marriage with Hindus is a religious sacrament. I remember a learned lawyer of great legal eminence in this Assembly once put a question, "What is a sacrament?" Sir, I would satisfy the House by giving the definition of the word "sacrament", as obtains in the Oxford Dictionary. Sacrament is a religious ceremony or act regarded as an outward sign of inward and spiritual grace. It cannot be improved at all. If that is so, Sir, the definition placed authoritatively upon the word "sacrament", that it is a purification ceremony for spiritual re-birth, cannot be disputed for a moment, and if we Hindus believe that marriage is a sacrament, and if sacrament is a purification ceremony which is performed at the age of spiritual birth, then it becomes a religious performance, and it is directly a religious act fit to make a man or woman spiritual and divine through service and self-control. She is in material existence already, but in addition to her material existence, she is re-born as a spiritual agent. So, for the creation of a spiritual existence to enable her to evolve out her own existence, this initiation ceremony of marriage is necessary for a girl. Now, if Upanayana is a sacrament enjoined upon every Brahmin boy at the age of 8, the only Samskara, or purification ceremony, the spiritual ceremony which is enjoined on a Hindu girl is the sacrament of marriage. So that, if marriage is a sacrament which a Hindu girl is enjoined by Shastras to submit to, does it not necessarily follow at once that marriage is a religious sacrament? And that is a ceremony which is enjoined by Shastras to which the girl must submit herself. It is also obligatory as a Samskara. Now, what is a Samskara? It is a religious act, fit to make a man or woman spiritual and divine through service and self-control. If that is the definition of the word Samskara, and if marriage is a Samskara which is enjoined obligatorily on the Hindu girl, and if it is not performed at the right time, then at once the religion lying underneath it is in danger. So that there is absolutely no ground to distrust the statement that religion is in danger if you introduce this pernicious measure, because the fundamental idea of Hindu society is that marriage is an obligatory purificatory ceremony, and the Hindu Shastras fix the age at which this Samskara ought to be performed for a girl, and if that age falls far short of that which is stated in the Bill, which is 14, then religion is really in danger, because our Shastras lay down the age of 8 for the marriage of a Hindu girl. Eight is the minimum age for a Hindu girl to be given in marriage, because that is the age fixed for the boy for his Upanayana ceremony. In fact, what Upanayana is for a boy at the age of 8, so marriage is for the girl. It is equally a Samskara; it is equally a sacrament, so that the minimum age at which the girl can be given in marriage, according to Shastras, is 8; but it can be prolonged. If circumstances would not enable her to be given in marriage at the age of 8, it might be extended to 11 or 12. No age is fixed, but it must be performed before she attains puberty.

[Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar.]

That is the limit beyond which the marriage cannot be postponed. To start with, 8 is the minimum age laid down, but she can be given in marriage at any age before she attains puberty. That is the limit, the range within which the girl ought to be given in marriage according to Hindu Shastras, and the medical opinion, as this House knows, never puts the age of puberty in this country beyond 12. 87 per cent. of girls attain puberty, according to the best medical testimony, only at the age of 12. So that, if 12 is the age generally when girls attain puberty in this country, and if this Bill introduces the minimum age of 14 instead of 12, does it not directly contravene the Shastric injunctions? That is a question which I want to put to every Member of this House. If the hypothesis that I have placed before the House is correct, if the Shastras do lay down the injunction that the girl ought to be married before puberty, and if the medical opinion fixed the age of puberty generally in this country to be 12, and if you try to fix the minimum age at 14 in spite of the medical opinion, then I submit you are acting directly in contravention of the Shastric injunctions.

Sir, I have practically come to this conclusion. If the hypothesis which I have enunciated is correct, then this Bill is certainly a flagrant violation of the religious principle of marriage as recognised in the sacred Dharmashastras. So the only question is, should this House be a party to committing this flagrant violation? Sir, I am very much pained to see that my Honourable friend the Mover, the author of "Hindu Superiority", should now give up his respect for the ancient ideals and plead for a Bill, a Bill which sets at nought the Shastras altogether, a Bill which sets at nought our ancient ideals of marriage altogether. With us, Sir, marriage is religion, and if the author of that famous book "Hindu Superiority" condescends to persist in setting at nought all the religious injunctions and the Shastras, I must say that his fall has been very great. Sir, it pains me to think of his fall. As I have said, the Shastric injunctions are clear; pre-puberty marriage and early post-puberty consummation are ordained by the Shastras. In this connection I might also remind the House that there are certain texts from various Smriti writers which are here and there relied upon by the Honourable Mover in support of the position that he has taken. I admit that in the texts of the Smritis we do find passages which, on the one hand invariably persist in maintaining that marriage ought to be performed before the girl attains her age, but in only one sloka of Manu there is a passage that if the girl having attained the age has not been given in marriage in time by her parents or guardian, they can choose for her a husband within three years, and if even then her parents and guardians do not do it, she can choose her own husband. There is no doubt of the existence of this text. Upon this text the interpretation is this, "Look here. The Smriti writers certainly accept the position that even post-puberty marriages are allowed." Sir, the interpretation of statutes we know, we lawyers are familiar with. If there is an apparent conflict, and I appeal to my Honourable friend the Law Member, if there is a conflict of texts, the best thing is to reconcile the texts, and not to emphasise the conflict—there cannot be conflict. If all of them have the same end in view, real conflict there cannot be, apparently there may be a conflict. If there is a conflict, we must try to reconcile them. Our Shastras invariably enjoin pre-puberty marriages as the ordinary rule. Now, there are two aspects; there is the material aspect of marriage, sonship, inheritance, etc., etc.; there is the spiritual outlook also. If, in addition to the material advantage, you must also have the spiritual outlook in view, then marriages must be pre-puberty. That is the general rule. If the girl remains unmarried owing to causes beyond the control of the girl, she commits no sin by remaining a spinster. She is entirely under the control and guidance of her guardians for the time being, and if for some mistake, or inadvertence, or owing to other causes, she could not be given in marriage earlier, she can wait for three years and then she can marry herself. Thereby her marriage is legalised for all material purposes—her sonship is recognised for the purpose of inheritance, etc., etc., but the spiritual advantage is gone. She has not committed any sin because other people are guilty of having omitted to give her in marriage in proper time. That is the only way in which these two apparently conflicting texts can be reconciled, and I submit to the House that these texts would not by themselves give any handle or ground whatsoever to the Honourable Mover to persist in his interpretation of them by saying, "Look here, there is a text which apparently authorises marriage, which apparently sanctions marriage post-puberty." It does not sanction the marriage for spiritual purpose because for spiritual outlook Samskara is ordained, and the only way to reconcile these texts would be this and nothing else. If material and spiritual outlooks are necessary, pre-puberty marriage is ordained, but if, owing to inadvertence, etc., pre-puberty marriage becomes impossible, then the marriage is recognised legally with reference to sonship, succession, inheritance, etc. The Smritis are therefore clear. If the social reformers or those who have lost faith in our Hindu Shastras do really believe that this state of things ought not to continue, they have no reason to wound the susceptibilities of their brethren in this country. Either they are in the majority or they are in the minority. If they are in the majority, no statute is necessary. If they are in the minority, they cannot force their fashionable fads down the throats of unwilling men simply because they have lost all faith in the Shastras. It is no good, therefore, to force certain texts out of the context and then try to misinterpret them to give a handle or to give support for certain imaginary positions.

The whole thing considered, I think there is no parallel in the civilised world for inflicting punishment on marriage which is valid in law, ordained by religion and sanctioned by immemorial usage.

We are also told in season and out of season,

"Look here. Other countries have moved far ahead. They have got similar marriage laws passed by their legislatures. Why not in India too?"

Sir, our lives, our visions, our standards are entirely different. Is there any parallel anywhere in the civilised world which has got this outlook on marriage which we Indians have? If that is the distinction between the outlook of other civilised countries and the outlook which we Indians are accustomed to from very far off times, that clearly is a ground why we should not apishly follow what is going on in the countries of the West. If one instance can be given of similar conditions obtaining where legislation has been attempted, then I can take that as a precedent, otherwise not. It is no good, therefore, advancing the argument that other countries are moving in this direction and why not we also.

The question, then, that arises is who are the best judges to remove the defects....

Mr. President : Will the Honourable Member now conclude his observations ?

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : Very well, Sir. I am not going to repeat my arguments ; in fact, I am not accustomed to repeat them at all. I assure you that I won't repeat one word or one argument that I have advanced. The question will be, who are the best judges to find out what really pinches this country, what really is necessary, what remedial measures, if at all, are necessary. The best judges are not the laymen who are at it, are not the Brahmo Samajists who are not Hindus according to ancient ideals, nor the Arya Samajists, nor the Theosophists, but the real judges who are competent to judge of the effect of this law upon our customs in this country would be our spiritual heads in the first place.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Sir James Crerar or Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda ?

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : We Indians have got several sects and each sect has got its own spiritual head. Today there are these sects or associations working, over which the Archbishop so to say presides. We have the Sankaracharya Mutt, we have the Dwaita Mutt and we have the Visishta Dwaita Mutt. The Sankaracharya of the Adwaita Mutt has given his opinion in this matter, and that is recorded in one of the petitions sent to us. This is from Sri Sankaracharya Swamigal Mutt and dated the 15th February 1928. Their opinion is this :

" The proposed legislation is clearly against the religious tenets and principles of Brahmins, which every orthodox Brahmin ardently believes and follows. While even a permissive measure of this kind is calculated to disturb the religious and social amity of the community, a penalising legislation such as the one now proposed is, to say the least, most unwarranted and unjust and ought not under any circumstances be permitted to become law "

Then it is stated that,

" The Bill introduced by Harbilas Sarda is in direct opposition to the sacred principles of Hindu religion practised by the orthodox Brahmin community from time immemorial without any interference till the present moment "

That, Sir, is the considered opinion of the spiritual head of the Sri Sankaracharya Swamigal Mutt, which has got disciples all over India and commands immense influence among its followers.

Then there is the Ahibilum Mutt. It has also got disciples all over India. This is the mutt to which I have the proud privilege to belong and this mutt has given this opinion :

" Marriage among Hindus is not a civil contract even when the parties to the marriage possess full contractual capacity, but a religious sacrament ; in the case of girls it is a samskara enjoined by the Sastras to be performed before the girls attain a certain age. The non-performance of the samskara is a transgression and is believed to be productive of spiritual ruin. . . . . The policy of the so-called social reformers who pilot the Child Marriage Bill is short-sighted and cannot therefore be accepted by the Government as a wise course to follow. The one aim of these reformers is material prosperity of the country. . . . . They are totally ignorant of the virtues of the rules of conduct laid down in the Shastras and of the spiritual efficacy which our customs and practices possess. In the Hindu mind is implanted a firm and unshaken faith in those rules and customs, and no westernised savant can eradicate it without injuring the society which he wants to help."

Then, Sir, there is the Udipi Mutt. The Swamiji of this Mutt actually presided over the Varnashrama Dharma Conference held in March last in Madras and he helped the Conference with his guidance and advice and he also came to the conclusion that the Bill is opposed to the Hindu Shastras altogether. Then there is the Prathivadi Bhayankar Mutt of Bombay, which has also a large following.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : How many followers ?

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : I am told not less than two lakhs of followers.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Out of two crores ?

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : Anyway he has got two lakhs of followers, and commands a large following in Bombay, and if he is not able to command such a large following as the other two mutts whose opinions I have quoted, there is no reason why the opinion of this mutt should not be entitled to weight. The head of this mutt also distinctly says that the Bill is opposed to the Hindu Shastras. If the Bill is passed into law, it will prove to be a calamity to the Hindu community and not a blessing. That is his opinion. Then again " According to Hindu Shastras a marriage cannot be dissolved ". The mutt also questions the competence of this Legislature to pass a law of this kind. I am only concerned here with the point that he also is of opinion that this Bill affects Hindu society, and that it is against the Hindu shastras.

Mr. President : I think the Honourable Member must now give a chance to the next speaker.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : In addition to this, there are various conferences in my part of the country and also throughout India—in Benares, Calcutta and other places. In the districts of the Madras Province several conferences have been held and several memorials have been sent. I would instance principally the All-India Conference held at Benares. In fact, I think all the leading communities of this country have raised their voice of protest. I submit that the main objections to this Bill resolve themselves into 12 or 13. I would simply mention them categorically. The Bill destroys the foundations of Hindu society because marriage is religion. It creates a conflict between positive and religious law. It is against custom, long established and widely prevalent. Marriage is not only permitted but enjoined. The orthodox far outnumber the heterodox reformers. There is no mandate or demand from the communities affected. The Bill will inflict untold miseries upon millions of people all for a fashionable fad of social reformers. To say that the human species is unfit for matrimony before 18 and 14 is a mere fad. It is not an established fact and it is opposed to biological science. Medical experts are agreed in thinking that it is difficult to fix the age and that it involves immodest examination and interrogation. Those most competent to speak are arraigned as accused. Early marriage by itself is not an evil requiring legislative interference and the " enlightened individuals " should not force their views upon the unwilling many. According to Havelock Ellis, marriage legislation is unnatural. Sir, I would not encroach upon the time of other Members, but I would confine myself to one or two medical opinions which have a bearing upon this matter. The usual grounds upon which this Bill is made to rest are the fundamental grounds that early marriages produce sickly children and cause infantile mortality. I shall produce the opinion of two experts. Dr. C. A. Bentley, Director of Public Health, Bengal, attributed the abnormal death rate among children under fifteen in Bengal chiefly to want of a good and nourishing diet and Colonel MacTaggart also mentions that the only potent cause which really accounts for this heavy mortality is the want of nourishing diet. In Europe, where it was very high, although no child marriage existed, it was brought down by the amelioration of the economic and sanitary condition of the people. Then in the Census Report of India for 1921, it is mentioned that in Burma, where there is no child marriage, the infantile death rate is greater than that of Bihar and Orissa, which is the most early married part of India. Then, though Europeans have a general prejudice against child marriages, we find the following in page 303 of the Census Commissioner's report :

In spite of the general prevalence of early marriages, the percentage of feminine mortality to male mortality is 89 in Behar, 91.2 in Bengal as against 90.5, the average in Europe. Behar is the most early married part of India. . . . . The Hindu woman's chances of life are better than those enjoyed by the adherents of any other religion, male or female. . . . . In point of longevity there is little difference between Muhammadan and Hindu males. But Hindu women appear to live longer than their Muhammadan sisters though the proportion of Muhammadan females married below the age of ten is half and that between 10 and 15 is three-fourths of that of the Hindus."

Sir, there is another point upon which this Bill is made to rest, and it is that there is not sufficient growth of physical development of the children, and that consummation during immaturity is improper. That assumes that there is a relationship between the growth of the body and its healthy reproductive capacity. That is an assumption which is in itself unwarranted. Dr. Weissman, the celebrated German biologist, found that the reproductive cells are independent of the somatic cells which build up the body. If the mother is weak and sickly, the growth of the germ cells is arrested, and this would be so whether the parents are young or old. In Nature we do not find reproduction commencing after the cessation of growth, for example, animals and plants. The capacity to bear children begins and ends with catamenia. Its commencement is Nature's sign that the reproductive organs are now fit to perform their function. When sex attraction and craving commence, that is a natural indication that girls are now fit to be mothers. I submit, Sir, under the circumstances, to intervene arbitrarily and fix an age arbitrarily would be absolutely unwarrantable, regard being had to high medical opinion. Lastly, Sir, it has been found that early pregnancy yields good result. One of the greatest authorities on sexual matters, Havelock Ellis, says in "Studies in the Psychology of Sex", page 6 :

"Wide observation supports the Hindu view that girls become fit to be mothers on the first onset of menstruation."

Ellen Key, a prominent leader of the feminine movement, advocating free love, free divorce and motherhood without marriage observes :

"Sexual morality is impossible without early marriage. Postponement leads to prostitution, spread of venereal diseases and the evils of self-abuse and abstinence. In early marriage only, the highest form of love is possible."

If this House will consider the verdict of the medical world, I would ask this House to pause before it gives its assent to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Home Member) : Sir, though my original intention was to deal somewhat more fully with the grave issues which are before this House, in view more particularly of what fell from you, Sir, in regard to the course of the debate, I am reluctant to encroach unduly upon the opportunities which other Honourable gentlemen may desire to have to intervene in this important debate ; and I shall therefore, in what I have to say, confine myself to the fewest issues and the fewest words possible. I desire, Sir, in the first instance, to re-affirm what I have already on more than one occasion affirmed in this House, that this measure has the most cordial sympathy and the strongest support of Government. (Loud applause.) The Honourable Mover has on a previous occasion been good enough to acknowledge that Government and the officers of Government have given him material assistance in the formulation and in the promotion of his measure. I thank him for the acknowledgment, but that indeed, Sir, is no more than the truth ; and I should like to add this, that if Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda has the satisfaction of seeing this measure placed upon the Statute-book during the course of this Session, I hope to be one of the very first to congratulate him upon that happy consummation. I understood the Honourable Member from Madras, Mr. Acharya, to do me the honour of quoting me in more than one passage in a sense which, if I have understood him correctly, represented me and the Government of India as advocates of the doctrine of leaving things as they are, of the practice of being purblind to facts, and of being slow to take or to assist in any remedy that may be proposed. On the other hand, the Honourable gentleman opposite, Mr. Amar Nath Dutt, charged me and Government with a totally different offence. In respect of the attitude and conduct of Government with regard to this Bill, he charged us with the sinister and Machiavellian design of instigating and inspiring this measure with the object of promoting discord among different classes of His Majesty's subjects in India. May I remind the Honourable Member that on the first occasion when this Bill was debated in this House, and on subsequent occasions, three of the most strenuous advocates of the measure were the Deputy Leader of the Congress Party, the late Lala Lajpat Rai and my Honourable and learned friend from Bombay, Mr. Jayakar, whom I am glad to see in our midst to-day. Is the charge then, Sir, credible that Government, with a design so sinister, succeeded in having on their side champions so redoubtable ? The real truth, Sir, with regard to the attitude of Government in this matter, as in other matters of social legislation, is one which I think I may state in a few words. It occupies, I frankly admit, a middle course. I suggest, indeed I most strenuously contend, that in the extreme of rash, hasty and intemperate legislation and the opposite extreme of obscurantism and purblind conservatism the dangers which lie are hardly distinguishable in their magnitude. What I have always contended for is that, if important projects of social legislation are to be undertaken as they must be undertaken, it should be after a careful and deliberate examination of the evils which you are endeavouring to correct, and after the fullest ventilation and consultation of public opinion ; and that in matters of that kind we should make every possible endeavour to ensure that, behind such measures as we undertake, we should have that degree of public support which is in fact essential to the effective administration of any legislation in such matters.

Now, Sir, when, in the last Session of this Assembly, Government supported the motion for postponement of the consideration of this Bill, we were exposed to a great deal of misrepresentation and blame. At the time I confess I was very sensitive to that criticism. But the reason which was then propounded as the reason for postponement of discussion was that a committee of inquiry was then on foot, which would probably find it necessary to consider, as an incidental though a very important

LACPB(LA)

[Sir James Crerar.]

incidental inquiry, the subject-matter of this Bill. I hoped, Sir, that the inquiries of that Committee would have the effect of concentrating public opinion upon this grave and important issue, that it would give the amplest opportunity for opinion of every grade of every complexion to express itself, and that we should have the considered opinion of that Committee if we in this House were to resume consideration of this measure. Now, Sir, I venture to say that every one of these anticipations has been fully realised. I say that the country is now more alive to the gravity of the evils with which this Bill is intended to deal. I say that public opinion has had very ample opportunity of expressing itself, and that the Committee have taken the amplest opportunity of considering and weighing that opinion in framing their recommendations and, as a result, much valuable and additional material is now before the House. An Honourable Member, I think it was Mr. Acharya, contended that the Committee was not a representative Committee. Sir, I do not think that any Honourable Member who takes the trouble to read and study that Report with the care and attention which it deserves, can fail to recognise or be compelled to admit that it constitutes a land-mark, and I hope and trust a land-mark of advance, in the controversy with which it deals. (Hear, hear.) I maintain, Sir, that the Committee was representative; it was representative of different classes and different races in this country. I contend that it had a high measure of the legal, the administrative and the medical qualifications which are most essential qualifications for the consideration of this question. And I am the more surprised that the Honourable Member should have so disparaged the qualifications of the Committee when it appeared that his immediate purpose was to demand a longer time for the consideration of its recommendations. Sir, I repeat that in my opinion—and I think it will be the opinion of every one who, without prejudice and with adequate care, reads, re-peruses and studies that Report,—Sir Moropant Joshi and his colleagues on that Committee have rendered a very great public service for which the gratitude of this House and the country is due. (Applause.) And, Sir, what is the first conclusion that can reasonably be drawn from the contents of that Report? The first and the most reasonable conclusion, the inevitable conclusion in reference to the particular contents of this Bill, is that there exists a great and a corroding evil in this country which is clamorous for a remedy. That evil, Sir, is one which afflicts, in the first instance, the most defenceless, innocent section of the community those who have the greatest claims for our protection. The evil is not only limited to that. It is not merely the large number of young girls who year by year either die or sustain serious bodily injury, but those who are acquainted with the case, those who have studied the evidence, those more particularly who have come into contact with the practical facts and the practical consequences, cannot contemplate them without—I put it no higher than this—the most serious searchings of mind, heart and conscience. (Hear, hear.) It is not merely that generation after generation of young girls should be exposed to or should suffer from these evils, but there are dangers to the future generations of the country from which, if the country is not willing to adopt a remedy, it will undoubtedly suffer in its most vital and important interests.

Well, Sir, when I have said so much, I do not desire it to be understood that I in any way under-estimate or depreciate the earnestness and the sincerity of the opposition to this Bill. I do so fully and frankly, and I do feel this, that any measure which modifies the law in a social matter, any measure which it is anticipated will disturb the customs and habits of long duration, is one which for a time will naturally provoke a large measure of opposition. But I hope myself, Sir, that the improvements in these matters which we have reason to hope will result from this Bill will in course of time—and I hope in no long time—reconcile to the principle of this Bill and to its practical application even the most stringent opposition with which the measure is at present confronted. At any rate, Sir, I wish to make my position, the position of Government, perfectly clear beyond any shadow of doubt. It is this. We are convinced that this evil exists; we are convinced that the measure of Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda is, at any rate, a first step in the direction of seeking a practical remedy. Where we find so great an evil and where we find a promising remedy, we feel that we must support what we think to be right. I trust, Sir, the great majority of this House will concur in that view. I trust they will concur in the view that this measure is a measure in the right direction and that it is their duty to support it with their suffrage. (Applause.)

Mr. K. C. Neogy (Dacca Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I have no doubt that the Honourable the Home Member spoke with great conviction and with great sincerity, but what I missed in his speech was any reference to the attitude of the Local Governments in this matter. I am sure he is anxious to see that, if this measure is passed into law, there must be an effective administration of it, and there are two essential factors necessary to ensure that. First of all, a large amount of public support and, secondly, the loyal support and co-operation of the Local Governments. The Honourable Member, I have no doubt, knows that the provinces primarily affected are Madras, Bengal, the Punjab and Bihar and Orissa. The Honourable Member has not told the House that these four provinces are not wholly in favour of this measure. Some of them have advised Government to drop it. The Government of the Punjab suggest that it ought not to be made applicable all at once, to all the provinces, but that it ought to be left to the discretion of the Provincial Governments to extend its application within their borders if they so think fit, with the concurrence of their own Legislatures. The Government of Madras, in a few words, dismiss this Bill. The Government of Bihar and Orissa contend that it can only be put into operation at the instance of black-mailers. They will have nothing to do with it. The Government of Bengal say that the Bill should be dropped. Now, I should like to know from the Government as to how they propose to work this measure if the principal instruments of administering this legislative enactment find it difficult to co-operate.

Now, with regard to public opinion, the Honourable the Home Member has stated that he is assured that a very large measure of public support can be counted upon.

~ An Honourable Member : He is right.

Mr. D. V. Belvi (Bombay Southern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : He is not.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I beg of my Honourable friends to permit me to proceed. I do not claim to speak on behalf of Bombay or any other province, but so far as Bengal is concerned, what better witnesses in this House can you expect to get on this point than my Honourable friends, Mr. Kelkar and Dr. Moonje. (Applause.) It was only last week that a session of the Bengal Provincial Hindu Conference was held at Dacca under the Presidency of my Honourable friend, Mr. Kelkar, and in the immediate presence of Dr. Moonje. And what happened there? And, mind you, this is a reforming body. You have only to look at the Resolutions which this body adopted at Dacca to find out the sort of people that attended it. It has nothing in common with orthodox Hindu opinion. When a Resolution was proposed in this Conference supporting Mr. Sarda's Bill, it was defeated by an overwhelming majority, in spite of the personal efforts and the personal influence of my Honourable friend, Mr. Kelkar.

Mr. N. O. Kelkar (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I did not make any personal effort.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Your presence was enough, and also that of Dr. Moonje. What more evidence does the Honourable the Home Member desire to have as to whether this measure has public support in Bengal? Now, Sir, in my own humble way, I tried to ascertain the opinion of my constituency on this particular measure. I broadcasted a few thousands of letters inviting the opinions of my constituents on this Bill without giving any indications as to what my opinions were. I caused that letter to be published in all the vernacular newspapers of Bengal, and Honourable Members might like to see the response that I have received. How many do the Honourable Members think, out of this huge bundle, are in support of the Bill? Not more than half a dozen. Look at the number of telegrams and letters that I received. I want to make it perfectly clear that these are not in the nature of public petitions with which we are all familiar; these are not merely the resolutions of public meetings with which we are all familiar. But these are mostly letters individually addressed to me, in response to an appeal which was sent by me to my electors. (Laughter.) Am I not entitled, Sir, in this House to draw attention of Honourable Members to the response that I had to my letters?

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Does it mean that, except those who have written, the rest are in favour of the Bill?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Only six persons out of these are in favour.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I am referring to the rest of those who have not written to you.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I can tell you this much. So far as the people that are going to be affected are concerned, they are mostly ignorant about the provisions. (Laughter.) Most of us who are sitting here to-day are not going to be affected. The communities to which we belong are not going to be affected by this measure. If Honourable Members would refer to the Bengal Census Report, first Volume, page 272, they would find that I have the privilege of belonging to a community that takes the palm in the matter of social reform. It is a small community to which I have the honour to belong. In that community this evil of child marriage is almost absolutely unknown, so that I am not affected by this measure at all, nor the community to which I belong. But, Sir, by this measure at all, nor the community to which I belong. But, Sir, the whole issue, as it presents itself to me, is this : Am I going to impose my opinion by legislation, by legislative coercion if you please, on an unwilling people, a people in whose name we claim to be speaking and voting in this House? Now, Sir, as I have already stated, most of these letters, almost all of them, with the exception of about half a dozen, have protested against this measure. I do not want this House to carry the impression that they are all very orthodox Pandits who have quoted scripture in support of their contention. It is nothing of the kind. Some of them came from very unexpected quarters. I may inform Honourable Members sitting on the front Government Benches coming from Bengal—I mean the Honourable the Law Member and the Honourable Member in Charge of Industries and Labour—that the great Kayastha community of Bengal, rather the Kayastha Samaj, has passed resolutions protesting against this measure. These resolutions have been forwarded to me over the signature of another Mitra—Sanat Kumar Mitra—a name which may be familiar to some of the Honourable Members. It is not that the members of the Kayastha Samaj practise child marriage. What is there that makes them object to this measure in spite of the fact that most of them do not practise child marriage in their own homes?

Now, I will attempt to divide these numerous letters into several categories. They can be divided into several classes. First, those who are alarmed at what they consider to be an attempt at interference with religion. Second, those who, whatever their views about social reform, do not want to be affected by legislation. Third, those who are positively against child marriage but do not support the present Bill either on the ground that it is premature or because of its penal provisions. They think that it should be preceded by intensive educative propaganda by reformers. They particularly point out the absence of any adequate provision for the education of girls in the villages. They further point out that, even without the aid of legislation, the marriageable age of girls is bound to go up; it has gone up remarkably during the last few years. (A Voice : "Question") : It has gone up during the last few years. The fourth class comprises those who are apprehensive about the practical result of postponing the marriage of Hindu girls beyond the average age of puberty. I will refer to the position in Eastern Bengal. It is a very unpleasant subject, and I have no desire to dwell upon it any more than by merely referring to the numerous cases of abduction of Hindu girls that are taking place every day in Eastern Bengal, on which subject there is no greater authority than my Honourable friend, Dr. Moonje. (Laughter.) He has studied this very serious question on the spot and he will be able to tell you whether there is not anything substantial in the apprehensions of the people in Eastern Bengal.

Now, Sir, the fifth class comprises those who are medical men in Bengal, including an eminent medical man like Dr. Bamandas Mukherjee, who is about the best authority that we have in Bengal on gynaecology. These persons are anxious to have a proper scientific study made of the problems of sex, puberty and maternity, which have baffled even the best scientific minds of the West, some of these medical men complain that the Report of the Age of Consent Committee is in the nature of a propagandist effort. They point out that the authors of the Age of Consent Committee Report have not dealt fairly and impartially with statistics and information placed before them. The views of medical men who did not happen to agree with their pre-conceived ideas were absolutely brushed aside. They further complain—and I have this specifically in writing from one eminent doctor of Calcutta who gave evidence before the Committee—that they were asked to criticise certain statistics furnished by Dr. Audiseshan which forms part of the Report as an Appendix. When they submitted their criticism of these statistics the Committee allowed Dr. Audiseshan to revise the statistics because, in the light of those criticisms, the conclusions which the Committee sought to draw up could not be justified. This complaint was published in the newspapers.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney (Nominated : Anglo-Indians) : Why did the All-India Medical Conference at Calcutta support the Bill ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I will tell the House how that support was brought about. I am quoting from a medical journal. My Honourable friend's intervention is sometimes very helpful. (Laughter.) This is what the Medical Review of Reviews said, and I am giving a quotation from that :

"Not to be outdone, the medical men assembled in the All-India Medical Conference, 1928, who, by the bye, had remained perfectly unconcerned so long, though they of all people were expected to realise the good and bad implications of the Bills to their full extent, suddenly woke up to a sense of their duty and responsibility and passed a resolution in hot haste, warmly supporting the Bills at the fag end of the session in a thin house, consisting almost exclusively of the ardent reforming spirits, and at a time when the majority of the members had already left the meeting to attend a pre-arranged lecture in another place in the town (Bose Institute)."

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : That is a distorted statement for I was present at the Conference.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : But you never contradicted it. It appeared in a medical journal and it ought to have drawn the gallant Colonel's attention long ago.

Sir, I have no desire to weary the House any more, but I have given sufficient reasons to justify my attitude, and I do not think I will be taken to task for not being able to support this measure, although I am prepared to give all credit for sincerity and good intentions to my Honourable friends.

Mr. Abdul Haye (East Punjab : Muhammadan) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment of my Honourable friend, Mr. Acharya. In doing so I want to make it clear that almost all the Mussulman Members of this Assembly have decided to adopt this course for certain reasons. Let it not be understood that we, the Mussulman Members, have no sympathy with the most laudable object with which this Bill has been introduced. But our difficulty is that we feel that somehow or other Mussulman public opinion has not sufficiently clarified itself to enable us to arrive at a definite decision. I do not know who is to blame for that. It is not easy to apportion the blame on this occasion. Perhaps it is due to the fact that the Government of India did not rise equal to the occasion and discharge their responsibility properly when they announced the personnel of the Age of Consent Committee. At that time no adequate and effective representation was allowed to the Mussulmans. Only one Muhammadan, to begin with, was appointed, and even he was not a distinguished public man, but only a retired District and Sessions Judge. I also do not want to conceal the fact that this state of things is perhaps due to the apathy that has been displayed by the Mussulman Ulemas, the Mussulman public and the Mussulman Press over this question, and I want to send this message from my seat in the Assembly.....

Mr. T. A. K. Shervani (Cities of the United Provinces : Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, I rise on a point of order. I am told that my Honourable friend has made a statement that almost all the Mussulmans are against this Bill.

Mr. President : That is not a point of order.

Mr. Abdul Haye : Sir, I want to send this message to my co-religionists abroad that, if they want their representatives in this House to discharge their duties efficiently and properly, they must take more interest in these public matters than they have done in the past. Sir, placed as we are, we the Mussulman Members of this Assembly are considerably handicapped in the matter of consideration of this Bill. Our opinion is sharply divided, and whatever opinion has been expressed is absolutely inadequate. Even the opinions that have been sent to the Government of India do not contain the views of more than half a dozen Muhammadans. This is what my Honourable friend, Maulvi Muhammad Yakub, said in his minute of dissent which supports my contention :

"The fact remains that the Muslim point of view is not sufficiently represented, and I do not think it would be proper and safe to introduce a measure of vast social and religious importance until additional Muslim opinion, specially that of distinguished theologians, is placed on record."

Whatever opinion has been expressed is sharply divided, and we, the Mussulman Members, have not been able to come to any definite conclusion. There is a section amongst us who honestly believe that the Mussulmans do not require this legislation. They say that the evil of child marriage does not exist in any appreciable degree among the Muhammadans of India and they further say that if it exists at all we have got sufficient safeguards provided by our own personal law inasmuch as widow re-marriage is not prohibited, and the personal law also allows a child wife, on attaining majority, to repudiate the marriage which has been contracted on her behalf by her guardians. There is still another school of thought which says that marriage among Muhammadans according to the Shariat is a civil contract, and if it is a civil contract it ipso facto follows that the contracting party must arrive at an age of discretion before that contract can be entered into. Sir, there are others who hold the view that, even if this social evil exists, according to the Shariat, no non-Muslim authority is competent to legislate on this matter. There is still another friend of mine who has told me that he is in possession of very valuable and important literature which he has obtained from Egypt, and he says that the Parliament of Egypt has enacted a law somewhat on the lines of the present Bill and that enactment has been placed on the statute-book with the consent of the Ulemas of Azhar. So what I at this stage want to impress upon the House is that we are considerably handicapped. You must stay your hands if you want to carry us with yourselves. If the consideration of this Bill is not stayed and is proceeded with, I am afraid that a considerable portion of the Mussulmans of this Assembly will be compelled to oppose this Bill. But if the consideration is delayed for a few months, I am sure that we will be able to bring round those who at present are standing aside, and it may be possible for us to give unanimous support to this Bill with certain modifications. I want to make it clear that at present we are not in any way opposed to this Bill, but we have got certain conscientious objections and we have got certain difficulties that have to be got over.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Thursday, the 5th September, 1929.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Thursday, 5th September, 1929.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

TRANSFER OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF ADEN TO THE COLONIAL OFFICE.

149. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government please state if they sent any suggestion to His Majesty's Government regarding the meaning of "Aden", when the Government of India (Aden) Bill was pending in Parliament? If so, why did this elucidation become necessary now?

(b) Was the Government of Bombay consulted with regard to this transaction? If not, why not?

Sir Denys Bray : (a) While the Bill was before Parliament, the question arose whether the expression "Aden" covered its dependencies like Perim, or whether a specific reference to them was desirable. The Government of India, on being consulted, advised the latter.

(b) There was no necessity to consult the Government of Bombay since the point was one not of substance but of drafting.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it not a fact that, in the Bill as originally introduced, there was no specific mention of the hinterland of Aden being included in the term Aden?

Sir Denys Bray : I think my Honourable friend is under some slight misapprehension. What he says is perfectly true; but the point actually before Parliament was not that, but this : Aden, for the purposes of the Government of India Act, include Aden settlement and also certain dependencies, like Perim and the famous Kuria Muria islands, the inhabitants of which comprise one patriarchal family, and an unstated number of noxious insects. (Laughter.) The only point in Parliament was whether the term Aden automatically included Kuria Muria and so forth, or whether those dependencies should specially be referred to in the Bill.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that the Government of India made a suggestion to His Majesty's Government defining the expression Aden, after the introduction of the original Bill in Parliament?

Sir Denys Bray : That is so, Sir.

ASSISTANCE GRANTED BY GOVERNMENT TO LIGHT AERO CLUBS AND NUMBER OF INDIANS TRAINED IN THEM.

150. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government be pleased to state what assistance, if any, has been given by Government to the light aero clubs now in existence in India, and how many Indians have completed their training, or are now under training in each of them ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to part (b) of the reply given in the Legislative Assembly on the 29th January, 1929, to his starred question No. 203.

The number of Indians who had completed their flying training for private pilots licenses at the Clubs up to 26th August was 15. The number now under training is 46. The figures by clubs are as follows :

Bombay Flying Club—7 have completed training and 9 are under training.

Bengal Flying Club—1 has completed training and 5 are under training.

Delhi Flying Club—1 has completed training and 13 are under training.

Karachi Aero Club—6 have completed training and 19 are under training.

EFFECT ON THE MEERUT TRIAL OF THE RESUMPTION OF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH SOVIET RUSSIA.

151. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that the Government of India have addressed a communication to the British Government to the effect that the Government of India would feel considerably embarrassed in the conduct of the Meerut prosecutions if diplomatic relations are resumed with Soviet Russia while the Meerut prosecution is pending ? If so, what reply has been received ?

Sir Denys Bray : No, Sir.

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN ENGLAND AND RUSSIA ON THE QUESTION OF THE RESUMPTION OF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS.

152. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government please state if they have received any communication from His Majesty's Government regarding the resumption of diplomatic relations with the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Russia ? If so, do Government propose to place the correspondence before this House ?

Sir Denys Bray : The answer to the first question is in the affirmative ; to the second in the negative.

NAVAL DISARMAMENT.

153. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government be pleased to state if they have received any communication from His Majesty's Government in regard to the subject of naval disarmament ? If so, what do Government propose to do ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : His Majesty's Government have kept the Government of India informed of the discussions on the subject of naval disarmament. In view of the size of the Royal Indian Marine in comparison with the naval forces of other countries, the Government of India do not anticipate any necessity to do more than watch the progress of the discussions.

SETTLEMENT OF INTERNATIONAL DISPUTES.

154. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government please state if there has been any correspondence with His Majesty's Government regarding settlement of international disputes, and the signing of an optional clause decided in the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice ? If so, do Government propose to place the matter before the Central Legislature before final decision is taken thereon ?

Sir Denys Bray : The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative ; to the second in the negative.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask why Government are not prepared to place the correspondence on the table of the House ?

Sir Denys Bray : Because they do not think it would, at the present juncture, be in the public interests to do so.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Have the Government any intention of asking the opinion of this House before coming to a final decision in this matter ?

Sir Denys Bray : The final decision is at present being discussed in Geneva.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Do not Government find it therefore necessary to consult the opinion of this House in regard to the matters now pending at Geneva ?

Sir Denys Bray : I would point out to my Honourable friend quite seriously that this matter of the optional clause has been before the world and the House for the last seven or eight years. Until this moment, I do not remember any interest displayed by the Honourable Member in the subject ; but without being in any way indiscreet, I can tell him that our attitude on the subject is in favour of adherence, and the form of adherence is now under discussion.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether, in view of the fact that the Government of India are in favour of ratification, that will affect the size of the standing army in India in case the optional clause is ratified at Geneva ?

Sir Denys Bray : I would hardly like to venture on an answer to so momentous a question over a supplementary question, but naturally the whole creation of a body of new international ideas universally operative must eventually have their effect upon the standing forces of every nation in the world.

INTRODUCTION OF A NEW RAILWAYS ACT.

155. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it in contemplation to draft a new Railways Act in the light of modern requirements, as suggested by the Aeworth Committee in 1921, and admitted by the Government in reply to starred question No. 275 of the 7th February, 1927 ? If so, when is the draft likely to be ready for introduction ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The question of the revision of the Indian Railways Act, IX of 1890, has recently been referred to the President of the Railway Rates Advisory Committee for his recommendations. I regret that it is not possible at present to say when the draft is likely to be ready.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : When was it referred to the Rates Committee ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I believe in May last.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE BY GOVERNMENT FOR REPORTING THE MEERUT TRIAL.

156. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the Director of Public Information visited Meerut in June, in connection with the reporting work of the Meerut trial ? If so, what were the arrangements settled on that occasion ?

(b) Have Government their own official reporters, or is an arrangement entered into with any particular news agency ? If so, which ; and on what terms, if any ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The Director, Public Information, was present at Meerut during the opening stage of the Magistrate's inquiry. The objects of his visit were to see that satisfactory arrangements were made : firstly, for the convenience of Press agencies and newspaper representatives ; and secondly, for three Government reporters, who had been sent to Meerut, to obtain for Government a verbatim report of the opening address of Mr. Langford James.

(b) As stated above, Government sent their own reporters for the purpose of obtaining a verbatim report. The Press agencies do not undertake the verbatim report of proceedings of this character and length, since their clients require only a summary or abstracts.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do I understand the Honourable Member to say that they have got an official Press reporter there ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : On that occasion they did.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Not now ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Not now, so far as I am aware.

ESTIMATED COST TO GOVERNMENT OF THE MEERUT TRIAL.

157. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government please state what is the estimated expenditure sanctioned by Government towards the cost of the Meerut conspiracy trial, and the amount of money paid up-to-date to the different prosecuting Counsels ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : It is not possible to make an estimate of the cost of the Meerut trial as this will depend on various factors which cannot yet be accurately forecasted. The expenditure on the trial is being met so far from the normal budget of the Director of the Intelligence Bureau.

I have no information of the actual amount paid to the prosecuting counsel up-to-date. There are two counsel, one of whom is paid a fee of Rs. 1,020 per diem and the other Rs. 85 per diem.

REASONS FOR THE PROHIBITION OF THE BOOK "SHIVA, OR THE FUTURE OF INDIA".

158. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the book called "Shiva or The Future of India", by one Mr. R. J. Minney, has been prevented entry into India, on the ground that it deals with certain subjects in a way which would give offence to Indian opinion ?

(b) Is it a fact that the book also denounces some aspects of the Government and foreign exploiters in India ?

(c) Are Government aware that the following are some of the passages in that book :

(i) "There is no gainsaying the fact that, so far as the commercial community is concerned, the attitude of the Whites to the Blacks is one of complete contempt";

(ii) "During the past seventy years, Britain has reformed herself in India, rather than the vast mass of native humanity";

(d) Is it not suggested in that book that the white population should identify itself more whole-heartedly with the interests of the country ; that money earned in India should be spent in India, and not brought to England by the white exiles, and that then India would be the greatest and most prosperous country in the world instead of as at present one of the poorest ?

(e) Is it a fact that the book has been banned more for its denouncing the Government than for any other reason ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) to (d). Yes.

(e) No. The importation of the book to India was prohibited because it deals in an offensive manner with sex matters and social evils, which it was felt would give justifiable offence to Indians in general and Hindus in particular.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware that Miss Mayo's book dealt with sex matters also ? Why was it not prohibited ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : We were not aware of the contents of Miss Mayo's book before it was imported ; whether or not it would have been desirable to prohibit it is a matter which has already been dealt with in this House, and I have nothing to add to the replies I then gave.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether Government are prepared to review their policy of banning books merely on the authority of some official or other ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I see no reason for reviewing the policy which is at present pursued.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Government aware that the policy is a very discriminating policy, in view of the fact that Mr. Minney's book casts aspersions upon the conduct of the Government of India and the conduct of Great Britain in India, whereas Miss Mayo's book does not ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I have already replied on the subject of Mr. Minney's book ; I have not been able to obtain a copy of it.

and I am therefore not in a position to agree or disagree with the Honourable Member.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member accept a copy from me ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I shall be delighted.

NON-PROHIBITION OF THE BOOK, "THE LAST HOME OF MYSTERY".

159. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware that a book, called "The Last Home of Mystery" by one Captain R. Alexander Powell of America, contains attacks on some of the religious beliefs and customs of India ? Why has this book not been refused entry into India ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I would refer the Honourable Member to the answer given by me on the 2nd to his question No. 6.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government prepared to ban the entry of this book into India now ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I think, if the Honourable Member will refer to my reply on the 2nd September, he will find an answer to that question.

REPRESENTATIONS TO BAN THE BOOK, "LIFE AND EXPLOITS OF GENERAL DYER".

160. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that some representations were received by the India Office from this country, urging the desirability of banning from India the recently published "Life and Exploits of General Dyer" ? If so, who made those representations and, with what result ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The Government of India have no information beyond what was stated in the House of Commons by Lord Winterton in reply to Mr. Thurtle, viz., that he had no knowledge of any such representations.

DATE OF COMPLETION OF "INDIA HOUSE" IN LONDON.

161. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government please state when the building of the new India House, London, is likely to be completed ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The building is likely to be completed in the spring of 1930.

DISSATISFACTION OF THE CLERICAL STAFF IN GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS REGARDING SALARIES AND CONDITIONS OF SERVICE.

162. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that Government propose to appoint a Retrenchment Committee to explore avenues for curtailing expenditure in the various Departments of Government ? Is it the intention to bring about further reduction in the clerical staff, instead of curtailing the salaries of high-placed officials ?

(b) Are Government aware that there is considerable dissatisfaction among the Indian clerical staff in regard to their salaries, housing accommodation, and conditions of service generally ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to my statement of 5th March, 1929, in which I suggested that the time had come for the Government to review the whole of their expenditure. In pursuance of that suggestion, detailed information is now being collected as to the growth of expenditure during the last few years, and the statistics when complete will be examined and analysed in the Finance Department in the first instance. I am afraid it is not possible for me, at this stage, to give the Honourable Member any definite statement as to what action will be taken thereafter.

(b) Government are not aware of any serious dissatisfaction among the Indian clerical staff in regard to their salaries and conditions of service generally, but they are aware that dissatisfaction exists among them in regard to housing accommodation especially as Simla ; and they propose to inquire into the matter.

CONVERSION OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS INTO THE TELEGRAPH BOARD.

163. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that the Office of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs is being converted into the Posts and Telegraphs Board ?

(b) Is it a fact that a despatch on the subject has been, or is being, sent to the Secretary of State ?

(c) If replies to parts (a) and (b) are in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to furnish the House with a copy of the despatch ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). The reply is in the negative.

(c) Does not arise.

PRACTICE IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS OF SUBMITTING ANNUAL INCREMENTS OF CLERKS FOR SANCTION.

164. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that in the Office of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs cases of annual increments of each clerk are submitted to officers for sanction every year ?

(b) Is it a fact that this practice causes delay of several months in the drawing of annual increments ?

(c) Is it a fact that this practice is not followed by any other Department of the Government of India ?

(d) Is it a fact that under the Fundamental Rules annual increments of clerks and menials should be drawn as a matter of course ?

(e) If replies to parts (a), (c) and (d) are in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons which necessitated this peculiar procedure to be followed in the Office of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs only ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes, since last year.

(b) No such case has been brought to notice.

(c) No.

(d) The Fundamental Rules merely lay down that an increment shall ordinarily be drawn as a matter of course unless it is withheld.

(e) As already stated the procedure in question is not confined to the Office of the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs. It was introduced for administrative reasons.

FEASIBILITY OF TRANSFER TO THE SECRETARIAT OF AN UNPASSED CLERK IN A SUBORDINATE OFFICE.

165. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state whether a permanent clerk, employed in an attached or subordinate Department of the Government of India, who has not passed the Staff Selection Board's or the Public Service Commission's examination, can ordinarily be transferred to the Secretariat proper by applying for the same ? If so, will Government be pleased to quote instances ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative. As to the last part, the standard of work required of assistants and clerks (other than routing clerks) in the Secretariat is higher than that expected in attached offices, and consequently exemption from passing the examination with a view to employment in an attached office does not entitle an assistant or clerk to employment in the Secretariat.

PROHIBITION OF WILD BOAR SHOOTING ON THE BANKS OF THE JAMNA RIVER.

166. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if wild boar shooting is prohibited on both banks of the Jamna river in the province of Delhi ?

(b) Is it a fact that the peons of certain tent clubs prevent people from shooting wild boars on the Jamna banks ?

(c) Is it a fact that by this prevention, the number of wild boars has gone up considerably and the boars are doing great damage to the crops on and near the banks of the river Jamna ?

(d) If any parts of the Jamna bank in the Delhi Province are preserved, do Government propose to mark the boundaries of, and put sign boards in, such places ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) No.

(b) So far as I have been able to ascertain this is not the case.

(c) The information I have received shows that the number of wild boars has decreased greatly in recent years, so that the damage to crops should be less than it was previously.

(d) There are no preserves in the Delhi Province.

APPOINTMENT OF A SIKH TO THE SUPERIOR STORES ESTABLISHMENT OF STATE RAILWAYS.

167. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that there is no Sikh in the Superior Stores Establishment of the Indian State Railways ?

(b) Do Government propose to take a Sikh candidate this year ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) It is not the intention of Government ordinarily to make further direct recruitment for the Stores Department. The majority of vacancies will be filled by transfer of officers from technical departments and a small number by promotion of qualified subordinate staff. Full particulars of the present arrangements will be found in the memorandum on the re-organisation of the superior stores establishment of State Railways, placed by Mr. Parsons before the Standing Finance Committee for Railways in July 1928. (Vide Vol. 5, No. 2, of the Standing Finance Committee's proceedings.)

APPOINTMENT OF SIKHS TO THE SUBORDINATE (TRANSPORTATION) SERVICE OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

168. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Will Government please state the number of Sikhs drawing Rs. 250 and more per mensem, in the subordinate (transportation) service of the North Western Railway ?

(b) Is it a fact that no qualified Sikh has been taken in the senior subordinate (Transportation) service of the North Western Railway for the last three years ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to take steps to recruit qualified Sikhs or give promotion to deserving Sikhs in order to correct the inequality ?

(d) If the answer to part (b) be in the negative, will Government please state the names and designations of those Sikhs who have been recruited in the last three years ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to the North Western Railway Classified List of subordinate staff, a copy of which is in the Library.

(b) No.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) Twenty-three appointments and promotions of Sikhs to posts on rates of pay from Rs. 100 to 500 were made since August 1926. Particulars of service of the employees concerned will be found in the North Western Railway Classified List.

HIGH FARES PAID BY THE MILITARY AUTHORITIES TO THE CLIVE TRANSPORT COMPANY FOR CARRYING OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS BETWEEN PATHANKOTE AND DALHOUSIE.

169. *Lala Hans Raj : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) Whether it is a fact that the Military Department pay to the Clive Transport Company Rs. 19-8-0 and Rs. 13, respectively, per first and second class seat for officers and soldiers with military travelling warrants between Pathankote and Dalhousie ;

(b) Whether they are aware that the Clive and other licensed companies are charging Rs. 13 for a first class and Rs. 6-8-0 for a second class seat, and Rs. 40 for a full motor car for 4 passengers, and often accept even cheaper rates ; and

- (c) Whether it is a fact or not that when Civil and Military officers travel between Pathankote and Dalhousie without warrant, they do not as a rule travel by the Clive Transport Company, but by other transport companies' motors, paying much smaller fares ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Yes.

(b) Other Companies charge the rates quoted by the Honourable Member, but Government are informed that the charges of the Clive Transport Company are those stated in part (a).

(c) Government have no information.

HIGH FARES PAID BY THE MILITARY AUTHORITIES TO THE CLIVE TRANSPORT COMPANY FOR CARRYING OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS BETWEEN PATHANKOTE AND DALHOUSIE.

170. *Lala Hans Raj : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) Whether they are aware that no serious motor accident has ever taken place between Pathankote and Dalhousie since motor traffic began ;
- (b) Why the Military Department pay such heavy rates for officers and soldiers travelling between Pathankote and Dalhousie when equally efficient service is available at half or even less than half the rates they are paying to the Clive Transport Company ;
- (c) Whether tenders were invited before such heavy rates were fixed with the Clive Transport Company ; and
- (d) If so, why the contract was not given to the lowest tenderer ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) I believe that the statement made by the Honourable Member is correct.

(b) Government understand that the rates were normal in 1925 when a five years' contract was made with the Clive Transport Company.

(c) and (d). Tenders were called for, but could not be considered because the civil authorities at that time were not prepared to allow any other company to run cars for passenger traffic on this particular road.

INVITATION OF TENDERS FOR THE CARRIAGE OF OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS BETWEEN PATHANKOTE AND DALHOUSIE.

171. *Lala Hans Raj : Will Government be pleased to state whether in future they intend to invite tenders rather than pay for their officers and men much higher fares than what other officers and respectable persons are paying to the other firms plying between Pathankote and Dalhousie ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Yes. Tenders will be called for shortly. The contract with the Clive Transport Company expires on January 31st, 1930.

COST OF CARRIAGE OF MAILS BETWEEN PATHANKOTE AND DALHOUSIE.

172. *Lala Hans Raj : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) Since when the mails from Pathankote to Dalhousie and back are running only once a day ;
- (b) Whether it is a fact that before the Clive Transport Company was given the contract to carry mails, the mail service between Pathankote and Dalhousie ran twice a day ; and
- (c) How much per annum Government had to pay when the mail service ran twice a day, and how much per annum it has been paying since that service runs only once a day ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Since the summer of 1918-19.

(b) At one time there was a service twice a day, but this had been reduced to a service only once a day before the Clive Transport Company got the contract.

(c) Prior to 1918-19, Rs. 14,496 were paid for a service twice a day. As the contractors were working at a loss the service was reduced to once a day and the subsidy raised to Rs. 24,911. The proportionate share of the subsidy now paid to the Clive Transport Company representing the amount of the Pathankote-Dalhousie line is less than this amount.

Lala Hans Raj : How does the Honourable Member know that they were running the service at a loss ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : They said so, Sir.

COST OF CARRIAGE OF MAILS BETWEEN PATHANKOTE AND DALHOUSIE.

173. *Lala Hans Raj : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) Whether any tenders were invited on each occasion when the contract for carrying mails was given to the Clive Transport Company ;
- (b) How many times the contracts for carrying mails between Pathankote and Dalhousie were given to the Clive Transport Company, and in what years ;
- (c) What was the lowest tender on each occasion ; and
- (d) Whether Government are spending more money for an once-a-day service between Pathankote and Dalhousie than they were spending when the mail service ran twice a day ? If so, why ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) No. Only on the second occasion.

(b) Twice, in 1920 and in 1925.

(c) As already stated no tenders were called for on the first occasion. Rs. 60,000 was the lowest tender for combined services on the Pathankote-Dharmasala Cantonment, and Baijnath-Pathankote-Dalhousie lines on the second occasion.

(d) Yes, but the subsidy paid for the service twice a day proved inadequate and had to be increased as explained in my reply to part (c) of the question I have just answered.

RE-INTRODUCTION OF A TWICE-A-DAY MAIL SERVICE BETWEEN PATHANKOTE AND DALHOUSIE.

174. *Lala Hans Raj : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) Whether they intend to invite tenders when the current term of the Clive Transport Company expires, and whether they propose to introduce again a twice-a-day mail service between Pathankote and Dalhousie ; and
- (b) Why the retrograde step of reducing the twice-a-day mail service to an once-a-day service was taken ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. With reference to the second part, it will be considered, when inviting fresh tenders, whether a second despatch of mails from Dalhousie to Pathankote is practicable and justifiable.

(b) Because there was no practical advantage to be derived from the additional cost which a second service would have entailed.

GRANT TO THE CLIVE TRANSPORT COMPANY OF THE CONTRACT FOR THE CARRIAGE OF MAILS BETWEEN PATHANKOTE AND KULU.

175. *Lala Hans Raj : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) Whether the Clive Transport Company are carrying mails between Pathankote and Kulu ;
- (b) How much they are paid per mensem or per annum, and what are the terms of their contract ;
- (c) Whether any tenders were invited when the contract was given to them, and if not, why not ;
- (d) Whether they are aware that the Clive Transport Company have obtained from Mandi State the monopoly for carrying passengers through the State ;
- (e) Whether it is a fact that the monopoly for carrying passengers was put forward as a strong reason for obtaining the contract for carrying mails ; and
- (f) Whether they are aware that the Mandi State has given the monopoly to no firm or company for carrying goods ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes. The Pathankote-Kulu line comprises three sections—Pathankote-Dharmasala Cantonment-Baijnath ; Baijnath-Guma ; and Guma-Kulu.

(b) The total subsidy for the three sections amounts to Rs. 6,066-1-0. The terms of the contract contain the usual stipulations for the carriage of mails. A copy of the standard form of contract will be supplied to the Honourable Member.

(c) The Honourable Member is referred to the answer to part (a) of his question No. 173 of to-day's date. No tenders were called for in respect of the Guma-Baijnath and Guma-Kulu sections of the line. The first named was an extension of the Pathankote-Baijnath line and it was felt that separate contracts over a single line would not give a satisfactory service. The same conditions operate in the case of the Guma-Kulu section.

(d) Yes.

(e) No. The main reason for entering into contracts was that they resulted in an appreciable saving, amounting on both extensions to approximately Rs. 9,000 per annum, and that the carriage of mails would be accelerated.

(f) On the contrary it is understood that the monopoly conferred on the Clive Transport Company covers the carriage of goods and parcels as well as passengers.

RATES PAID TO THE CLIVE TRANSPORT COMPANY FOR THE CARRIAGE OF FRUITS FROM KULU.

176. *Lala Hans Raj : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) whether any special rates have been fixed by Government with the Clive Transport Company for importing fruits from Kulu ; and
- (b) whether it is a fact that the Agent of the Clive Transport Company was allowed to alter his tender after the tenders of other firms were found to be lower ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes, fixed rates for the carriage of fruit over the Guma-Kulu and Baijnath-Pathankote sections of the service maintained by the Company have been applied to the V. P. postal parcel traffic originating in the Kulu Valley.

(b) The answer is in the negative.

RATES FOR THE CARRIAGE OF GOODS BETWEEN PATHANKOTE AND DALHOUSIE CHARGED BY THE CLIVE TRANSPORT COMPANY AND THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

177. *Lala Hans Raj : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) whether it is a fact that the Clive Transport Company charge for goods at the rate of Rs. 1-6-0 per maund between Pathankote and Dalhousie when they are not employed as Agents for the North Western Railway ;
- (b) whether Government are aware that other transport companies charge less than the Clive Transport Company ; and
- (c) Whether the North Western Railway has fixed the rate at Rs. 3-4-0 per maund between Pathankote and Dalhousie ? If so, why ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). Government have no information.

(c) I understand the rate is Re. 1-12-0 per maund for ordinary packages and Rs. 3 per maund for bulky packages. Such rates are usually settled by the Railway Administration after investigation of local conditions and with the approval of the Local Government.

Lala Hans Raj : Was it done in this case, Sir ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I believe so, Sir.

EARNINGS OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY FROM GOODS CARRIED FOR THEM BY THE CLIVE TRANSPORT COMPANY.

178. *Lala Hans Raj : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) how much of the Rs. 3-4-0 per maund realised by the North Western Railway for the Dalhousie Out-Agency is received by the Railway and how much is paid to the Company ;
- (b) how much per annum has the North Western Railway earned from the Dalhousie Out-Agency since the Clive Transport Company were appointed Agents ;
- (c) whether the rate of Rs. 3-4-0 per maund was fixed after inviting tenders ;
- (d) whether Government intend to lower the rate ; and
- (e) whether new tenders are proposed to be invited ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). No portion of the out-agency charge is received by the Railway.

(c) The out-agency was given to the Clive Transport Company in 1921, because the civil authorities had given them a monopoly for plying their motor cars on the Pathankote-Dalhousie Road. The rate agreed to at that time was Rs. 2-4-0 per maund for ordinary packages, and Rs. 3 for bulky packages.

In 1924, at the initiative of the Clive Transport Company, the rate of Rs. 2-4-0 was reduced to the existing one of Rs. 1-12-0.

(d) and (e). The rates for out-agencies are at present under examination by the North Western Railway.

PURCHASE BY THE CONTROLLER OF STORES, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY, OF 40 LAKHS OF DOG-SPIKES FROM MESSRS. RICHARDSON AND CRUDDAS, BOMBAY.

179. *Diwan Chaman Lall : (i) Is it a fact that a purchase order (July 1928) was placed with the firm of Messrs. Richardson and Cruddas of Bombay by the Controller of Stores, North Western Railway, for the supply of 40 lakhs of dog-spikes ?

(ii) Will Government be pleased to state the name of the said Controller of Stores ?

(iii) What was the total value of this order ?

(iv) Is it a fact that the said Controller of Stores had no authority to issue a purchase-order of such an amount without the sanction of the Railway Board ?

(v) What is the maximum amount for which, under similar circumstances, the Controller of Stores has the authority to place an order without obtaining the sanction of the Railway Board ?

(vi) Is it a fact that Messrs. Richardson and Cruddas were paid 90 per cent. of the amount of the bill for 40 lakhs of dog-spikes supplied by them under this purchase order ?

(vii) Is it a fact that subsequently it was discovered that the dog-spikes supplied were defective and not according to plan and specification ?

(viii) Who was responsible for passing these at the time of original inspection ?

(ix) Is it a fact that 19.3 per cent. represents the percentage of the spikes that can be used on the line ?

(x) Is it a fact that it was suggested that payment to this firm should be stopped ?

(xi) Was this firm's name removed from the "A" class firms, entitled to get 90 per cent. payment on presentation of railway receipt ?

(xii) Was this firm's name reinstated ?

(xiii) Why was the name of this firm reinstated and by whom ?

(xiv) Is it a fact that, after all these discoveries were made, the Agent, North Western Railway, without informing the Railway Board of these discoveries, and after nearly a year had elapsed since the purchase order was given, wrote to the Railway Board for sanction for this important and valuable order ?

(xv) What is the name of the Agent of the North Western Railway ?

(xvi) What action do Government intend to take against the Controller of Stores, and the Agent, North Western Railway, and to prevent a recurrence of such incidents involving serious loss to the railways ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (i) Yes.

(ii) Mr. Victor Bayley.

(iii) Rs. 2,85,000.

(iv) Tenders were invited in India in the expectation that an indigenous supply could be arranged, in which case the purchase would be within the Agent's powers. It was found, however, that the most suitable tender was for imported dog-spikes. As the dog-spikes were urgently required, an order was placed, and the Railway Board were subsequently asked to sanction the purchase of imported dog-spikes. This sanction was accorded in due course.

(v) In this case the Agent had no authority to sanction a purchase costing more than Rs. 10,000.

(vi) Yes, in terms of the contract entered into.

(vii) and (ix). About 40 per cent. were found to be not up to specification. The defective spikes are being reconditioned at the cost of the contractors and all will be used.

(viii) Arrangements for inspecting the dog spikes were made by the Indian Stores Department, who instructed the Consulting Engineers to the Government of India.

(x) Yes.

(xi), (xii) and (xiii). The firm named was originally removed by the Agent from the List of "A" Class Contractors. After investigation it was found that they were not to blame for the defective supply, and moreover they agreed to bear the cost of reconditioning defective spikes. The firm was consequently reinstated by the Agent.

(xiv). Sanction for the purchase was applied for in June 1929, about 11 months after the contract was entered into—it having been overlooked in the Agent's office that this transaction required the Railway Board's sanction. The defects in the dog-spikes were discovered about the end of April 1929. After making the arrangements mentioned above with the firm to cover any loss to the Railway, the Agent brought the matter to the notice of the Railway Board in July, in order that they might take steps, in consultation with the Indian Stores Department, to prevent a recurrence of such case.

(xv) Colonel Walton.

(xvi) The question of revising the procedure is under consideration by the Railway Board, in consultation with the Indian Stores Department. Government did not consider any specific action against the North Western Railway Administration necessary, except bringing to their attention the necessity for obtaining their prior sanction to such purchases.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether he is satisfied, as he says in his statement, that the contractors were not to blame ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : From the facts reported to the Railway Board by the North Western Railway it appears that the contractors were not to blame.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether he is aware that the original order was placed for dog-spikes of British make ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am not aware of that.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Member aware that, instead of supplying British specification dog-spikes, this particular firm, in spite of the order being for British dog-spikes, supplied half Continental and half British ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I thought, after answering an exhaustive question containing 16 parts, I would be spared the necessity of answering any further questions.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I tell the Honourable Member that this is a very serious matter and will he give a categorical reply to my question, whether it is not a fact that this firm actually cheated the Railway Administration by supplying them with dog-spikes, half of which were British and half Continental, although the order was entirely for British dog-spikes ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I understand the Continental dog-spikes were quite satisfactory.

Diwan Chaman Lall : My question is—I repeat it—whether the original order was for British dog-spikes, and whether the firm is or is not to blame for having supplied half British and the other half Continental ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am not aware of that.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member make inquiries and give me a reply on the floor of this House ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : If I am to give a reply on the floor of this House, the Honourable Member will have to put down a question on the paper.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether he is serious in his reply that this matter of the order was overlooked in the Agent's Office ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : That is what the Agent reports to me and I must believe him.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Member prepared to make an inquiry into this matter and inform the Members of this House as to whether the statements he has made are correct or are not correct ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : So far as I am aware, the statements are quite correct.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether he is prepared to accept the challenge that those statements are absolutely false ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I should like to reply to this point. I should like to say that naturally any suggestion which is made by an Honourable Member will of course be inquired into by the Railway Board.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask whether the Honourable Member will then inform me after making inquiries, as to whether those statements made by the Honourable Member are correct or not ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Certainly.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Will the Honourable Member inform the House ?

DEFECTIVE CONSTRUCTION OF THE KHYBER RAILWAY BY THE PRESENT CONTROLLER OF STORES, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

180. *Diwan Chaman Lall : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the Controller of Stores, North Western Railway, was, previous to his present appointment, Executive Engineer and Superintendent of Works on the Khyber Railway construction ?

(b) Are Government aware that this gentleman was responsible for the proper construction of the Khyber Railway ?

(c) Are Government aware that the executive report on the accounts of railways in India for 1927-28 on page 27 states as follows :

LOSS DUE TO DEFECTIVE CONSTRUCTION.

" 50. North Western Railway.—The fifth revised estimate of a construction project showed that out of the total excess of Rs. 43 lakhs over the fourth revised estimate an excess of Rs. 15.71 lakhs was due to some bad work done in tunnels, which required dismantling and rebuilding at places and relaying at others and that, besides this Rs. 15.71 lakhs, a certain amount, which was not specified, was due to rebuilding a tunnel which had collapsed.

The tunnel collapsed within a few days of the opening of the line to traffic and as a result of investigations made departmentally and also by an expert imported from the Geological Survey Department, it was found that defective construction existed in almost all the tunnels.

The loss to Government from the defective construction is a serious one and the question of fixing responsibility for bad work is one for consideration."

LACPB(LA)

(d) Have Government succeeded in fixing responsibility for this serious loss ?

(e) Is it a fact that the said Executive Engineer has been promoted and is getting nearly double the pay he was drawing as Executive Engineer ?

(f) Is it a fact that the title of C. B. E. was also conferred upon him ? And was this in recognition of his services on the Khyber Railway ?

(g) Is it a fact that the services of an Indian Sub-Divisional Officer were terminated in this connection or that he was reduced ?

(h) What action do Government propose to take (1) against the persons concerned, and (2) in order to prevent a recurrence of such incidents involving serious losses to the railways ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Mr. Bayley was an Executive Engineer on Khyber Railway Construction from November 1920 to March 1924 and Superintendent of Works from March 1924 to September 1925.

(b) Up to March 1924, he was responsible for the work in the section under his charge, and thereafter for all the work done throughout the line.

(c) Yes.

(d), (g) and (h). Government considered that Mr. Bayley and the Assistant Engineer employed under him and four subordinates were to blame in certain respects ; they also considered there was inadequate supervision, but in view of the great difficulties involved in the construction and his very good record, they decided that it would be enough to convey to Mr. Bayley their conclusion that he was responsible for an error of judgment in one respect, and for work of bad quality which called for criticism. At the same time they told the Agent that they did not consider that the Assistant Engineer should be employed as an engineer of gazetted rank on difficult construction or open line, although they would not be opposed to his further employment on surveys in which he was very experienced. I understand he is since being employed on light construction on a somewhat lower pay. They left the Agent to deal with the four subordinates whose work merited censure.

(e) Mr. Bayley was appointed Controller of Stores, North Western Railway, in 1927 on the sanctioned pay of the post.

(f) The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. As to the second part, it is not the practice of the Government of India to notify the reasons for which these titles are conferred.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I take it that the Indian Sub-Divisional Officer was put down on a lower pay because he was found to be blameworthy ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Yes.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I take it that the same gentleman who was responsible for the previous question, namely, Mr. Bayley, was, instead of being put down on a lower pay, given a higher pay in his new appointment ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The appointment of Mr. Bayley as Controller of Stores was due to his special qualifications in that matter.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I take it, he was given higher pay ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The pay of the Controller of Stores is higher than that of an Executive Engineer.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I take it that the policy of the Railway Board is, when they find a particular officer blameworthy and guilty of having caused a loss of nearly 60 lakhs of rupees to Government, that he should be given a higher appointment carrying a higher salary ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The policy of the Railway Board, as of all other Government Departments, is to take all matters into consideration when filling up vacancies.

An Honourable Member : Including the losses that are sustained ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I take it that that policy means that, when an Indian is concerned, he is to be reduced to a lower pay, and when an officer of the type of Mr. Bayley, a European, is concerned, he is to be promoted to a higher pay ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : No. The Honourable Member is not entitled to infer that that is the policy of the Government.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask whether the facts of this case bear that out ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : No.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it a fact that Mr. Bayley has got double the pay that he was getting when he was discovered to be blameworthy of acts mentioned in my question, and is it a fact that the Indian Sub-Divisional Officer was put down on a lower pay ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Double is an exaggeration ; it will be more correct to say 50 per cent.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it higher ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : It is higher.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member inform this House whether it is a fact or not that the chief reasons why there was this breakdown in the Railway was, (1), defective geological survey, and (2) the very difficult political relations with the tribesmen who insisted on being contractors and coolies in the boring of these tunnels ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Honourable Member is quite right.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask whether it is quite right that it was owing to the difficult political situation in that part of the country that this loss was caused ? Is the Honourable Member serious in making that statement ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The whole question was discussed before the Public Accounts Committee some time ago, and I would suggest to the Honourable Member that, if he waits till the evidence is before the House, he will get a full reply to all his questions.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member tell me whether he is serious in making that statement that the loss was caused to the Railway because of the political situation prevailing on the North West Frontier ?

L4CPB(LA)

Mr. P. R. Rau : I did not hear that question. May I ask the Honourable Member to repeat it ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : Colonel Gidney's suggestion was to the effect that it was due to the difficult political situation in that part of the country. Is the Honourable Member to admit that ?

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Sir, I rise to a personal explanation. I did not say that.

Diwan Chaman Lall : It is a fact that the loss was actually caused because of the incompetence of the man who was put in charge ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Why does the Honourable Member find him blameworthy then ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Because there was defective supervision and error of judgment. The heavy expenditure on the construction was partly due to the geological nature of the country.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Was it in some part due to the incompetence of the officer in charge ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have already answered that in my reply to the main question.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Does the Honourable Member admit that the officer was found blameworthy because he was not competent ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : If the Honourable Member will read my reply at leisure he will find an answer to his question.

Diwan Chaman Lall : The Honourable Member does not probably know that I know much more about it than he does.

TRAINING OF INDIANS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY FOR APPOINTMENT AS TRAFFIC INSPECTORS.

181. *Diwan Chaman Lall : (1) (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the following policy declared in 1923—vide "India in 1923-24" by L. F. Rushbrook Williams, page 176 :

"In the Resolution adopted in the Legislative Assembly in February, 1923, particular attention was directed to the case of Traffic Inspectors. Railway Administrations have now been called upon to make special endeavours to recruit and to train Indians with a view to their becoming qualified for advancement to these posts" ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to say whether the Traffic "Pupils" were recruited by the North Western Railway Administration in response to, and in the true sense and meaning of, the above declaration ?

(c) If so, have the North Western Railway authorities been making arrangements to appoint them as Traffic Inspectors after their final examination without delay ?

(d) Is it a fact that their training period ends in another four months and, if so, will Government please say what arrangements have been made to provide them with the jobs for which they are trained ?

(2) Will Government please say whether these "Pupils" during their course of training have passed all the prescribed examinations both in school and on the line as required by the agreement ?

(3) (a) Is it a fact that these "Pupils" possess educational qualifications equivalent to those of Indians in the Superior Traffic Service ?

(b) Is the probation period of the Traffic "Pupils" of the same duration as that of the Superior Service probationers ?

(c) Do the reports of the officers under whom they have worked show that their work has been satisfactory, and that they have shown themselves "above the average" railway servants, as required by the terms of the agreement ?

(d) Will they come under the category of subordinates drawing Rs. 250 per mensem and more ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (1) (a). Yes.

(b) They were recruited with a view to eventual advancement to the posts of Traffic Inspector if qualified.

(c) It is not possible to say at present what particular appointments individual Traffic Pupils may eventually be offered. It is not, however, likely that any would be offered immediate appointment as a Traffic Inspector, though it is hoped that some at least of those who may be offered appointments, will eventually show their fitness for promotion as Traffic Inspectors.

(d) Government understand that the three years' period of training which these Traffic Pupils are undergoing will terminate early in January 1930. The intention is that, on the results of the examination and from the reports of the officers under whom the Pupils have worked, it will be decided whether a Pupil should be offered a permanent appointment on the railway and, if so, in what class or grade.

(2) Yes, with the exception of one Pupil who was prevented by a physical defect from attaining the standard set for telegraphy.

(3) (a) They possess similar educational qualifications.

(b) The period is the same—three years—but the Traffic Pupils are not probationers.

(c) The Agent reports that the work of these Traffic Pupils has up to date been uniformly satisfactory. Whether they have shown themselves above the average of railway servants in any particular grade is a question to which consideration will be given when the period of training is completed.

(d) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply to parts (1) (c) and (d) of his question.

PERCENTAGE OF SIKHS IN CERTAIN DEPARTMENTS OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

182. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) What is the proportion of Sikh clerks in the North Western Railway Stores Department ?

(b) What is the total number of Permanent-way Inspectors and Permanent-way Apprentices in the Engineering Department of that Railway and how many of them are Sikhs ?

(c) If the percentage of Sikhs in both of the above Departments is small, do Government propose to issue orders to make up the loss to the Sikh community by appointing Sikhs in all future vacancies? If not, why not?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). The information in the possession of Government in regard to communal representation on the North Western Railway will be found in Appendix F to Volume I and Appendix C to Volume II of the Annual Reports by the Railway Board on Indian Railways, copies of which are in the Library.

(c) The North Western Railway Administration are aware of the policy of the Government in regard to the representation of minority communities, and Government have no reason to believe that their directions in this matter are not being complied with by the North Western Railway Administration.

APPOINTMENT OF SIKH OFFICERS TO THE INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT.

183. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) What is the total number of Inspectors of (1) Stores, (2) Purchase and (3) Inspections, in the Indian Stores Department and how many of them are Europeans, Hindus, Muhammadans and Sikhs?

(b) Is it a fact that there is not a single Sikh officer under this Department although the fact has many times been brought to the notice of the authorities?

(c) Are the Home Department instructions on the recruitment of members of the minority communities followed at the time of the selection of the officers? If so, why are Government ignoring the claims of Sikhs?

(d) Do Government propose to take Sikhs in future vacancies to give them their full share of representation? If not, why not?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The total number of officers of the rank of Inspector of Stores in the Indian Stores Department is 28, in addition to whom there are two probationary Inspectors. Thirteen of these are Europeans, one is an Anglo-Indian, 15 are Hindus and one is a Sikh.

There are no officers with the designation of Inspectors of Purchase and Inspectors of Inspections in the Indian Stores Department.

(b) No.

(c) and (d). The claims of Sikhs, among members of the other minority communities, to appointment to gazetted posts in the Indian Stores Department are given due consideration at the time of recruitment.

APPOINTMENT OF SIKHS AS EXAMINERS IN THE INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT.

184. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) What is the cadre of Examiners in the Indian Stores Department and how many of them are Sikhs, Muhammadans, Hindus and Europeans?

(b) How do Government justify the total absence of Sikhs in this line?

(c) Do Government propose to appoint Sikhs in future vacancies?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The total number of Examiners in the Indian Stores Department is 31, of whom 25 are Hindus, three Muhammadans and three members of other communities. At present there is no Sikh employed as an Examiner.

(b) Sikhs with the requisite qualifications have not presented themselves for appointment.

(c) The claims of Sikhs to vacancies in the cadre of Examiners will continue to receive due consideration.

APPOINTMENT OF SIKHS AS METEOROLOGISTS.

185. *Sardar Kartar Singh : Is it a fact that six probationers in 1927 and two in 1928 were taken for Meteorologist's appointments and all of them were either Madrasis or Bengalis? If so, do Government propose to consider the claims of Punjabis and especially Sikhs at the time of the next selection? If not, why not?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Eight probationers were appointed as stated; of these five were Bengalis, two Madrasis and one was a Parsi. With regard to the remaining part of the question, I would refer the Honourable Member to the answer I gave on the 7th February, 1927, to part (b) of Sardar Gulab Singh's starred question No. 312.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Should appointments for all-India Services be made on the basis of religion and province, or on the intrinsic merits and fitness of candidates?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : All I can say is that, in regard to this particular service, namely, the Superior Meteorological Service, appointments are made on the recommendations of the Public Service Commission.

APPOINTMENT OF PUNJABIS AS INSPECTORS OF STORES UNDER THE METALLURGICAL INSPECTOR, JAMSHEDPUR.

186. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that all the five Inspectors of Stores under the Metallurgical Inspector, Jamshedpur, are Bengalis? If so, what are their educational qualifications and experience?

(b) How is recruitment for this service made?

(c) Do Government propose to consider the claims of Punjabis at the time of the next vacancies?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The reply to the first part of the question is in the negative. The second part does not arise.

(b) Recruitment is made through the Public Service Commission.

(c) The Public Service Commission no doubt give due consideration to the claims of all communities at the time of recruitment.

PROMOTION OF SIKHS TO THE UPPER DIVISION AND SUPERINTENDENTS APPOINTMENTS IN GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS.

187. *Sardar Kartar Singh : Is it a fact that a qualifying examination is to be held by the Public Service Commission for promotion of the present incumbents in the different Departments and their attached offices to higher grades? If so, do Government propose to take into consideration the total absence of Sikhs in the Upper Division and consequently in the Superintendents' grade in almost all the offices, and pass such number of them as would give them a due share in each Department? If not, why not?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The reply to the first part of the Honourable Member's question is in the affirmative. As regards the rest, he is incorrect in supposing that there are no Sikhs in the Upper Division. The examination to which the Honourable Member refers is for the purpose of departmental promotion, while the orders regarding the recruitment of members of minority communities refer to initial recruitment only and not to promotion.

APPOINTMENT OF SIKHS TO THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF ARCHÆOLOGY.

188. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) With reference to the reply given to my question on the 20th September last, will Government please state whether any Sikh has since been appointed in the Office of the Director General of Archæology? If not, why not?

(b) How many vacancies have been filled up in that office since then and by candidates of what communities?

(c) Were the Public Service Commission asked to nominate a Sikh for any of these vacancies and did they nominate any?

(d) If not, did the Director General endeavour to recruit a Sikh from other sources temporarily subject to his passing the Public Service Commission examination later? Did he do so in the case of Muhammadans? Vide the advertisement referred to in my question of September last. Why was not this method tried to appoint a Sikh in that office?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) No Sikh has been appointed as no suitable Sikh candidate applied.

(b) Two temporary vacancies have been filled up since then, one by a Christian and the other by a Muhammadan.

(c) Yes, but the Commission were unable to nominate a Sikh.

(d) Yes, but no suitable candidate from the Sikh community was available.

APPOINTMENT OF SIKHS TO THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF ARCHÆOLOGY.

189. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Did the Khalsa Young Men's Association, Simla, submit a representation to the Director General of Archæology in July, 1929, requesting him to appoint a Sikh in his office?

(b) Have Government seen the reply given by the Director General to that representation that recruitment in his office is made through the Public Service Commission, to whom the Association should address their representation?

(c) Is it a fact that he invited applications from only Muhammadans last year for appointment in his office and, if so, how is it that he did so when he is not authorised to recruit directly?

(d) Does the responsibility for appointing members of various communities in an office rest with the Public Service Commission or the head of the office? If it rests with the latter, how do Government justify the reply given by the Director General?

(e) Is it a fact that, while the Director General gave the Khalsa Association the above reply, he was at that very time endeavouring to appoint a Muhammadan in a fresh vacancy?

(f) How do Government propose to remove this long-standing grievance of the Sikhs?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) Yes. The Director General of Archaeology in India was authorised by the Public Service Commission last year to recruit directly as a special case.

(d) The responsibility for appointing members of various communities in an office rests with the head of the office. The intention of the Director General of Archaeology's reply to the Khalsa Youngmen's Association was that the Association should address the Public Service Commission, through whom recruitment is effected.

(e) Yes. The Director General considered that a Muhammadan was required to replace a Muhammadan transferred to another Department.

(f) The Director General of Archæology fully recognises the claims of the Sikh community and will endeavour to recruit a Sikh in the next vacancy, provided that a suitable candidate is available.

LOSS SUFFERED BY THE NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY ON THE PURCHASE OF TIN INGOT.

190. *Diwan Chaman Lall : (1) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the heavy loss suffered by the North Western Railway mentioned on page 26 of the Executive Report on the accounts of Indian Railways, 1927-28, in connection with the heavy purchase of tin ingot?

(2) Is the maximum limit for stores of indigenous origin three months?

(3) Is the maximum limit for stores of foreign origin six months?

(4) Is tin ingot of foreign or indigenous origin?

(5) Is it a fact that in the purchase of this commodity (if of indigenous origin) the loss to the North Western Railway amounts to Rs. 69,000 and (if of foreign origin) the loss amounts to about Rs. 30,000?

(6) Will Government please state whether the Controller of Stores, North Western Railway, is responsible for this loss?

(7) Is it a fact that the Controller of Stores, North Western Railway, issued orders for this commodity in excess of requirements and, if so, what action has been taken against him?

(8) Do Government propose to institute an inquiry into the conduct and action of the Controller of Stores, North Western Railway?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (1) Yes.
(2) and (3). Yes.

(4) Foreign.

(5) In the Executive Report above referred to, the Accountant General estimated the loss up to February, 1928, at Rs. 69,000. In his subsequent Appropriation Report this estimate was revised by him to Rs. 52,000. The price of tin fluctuates considerably, and consequently any estimation of loss or gain depends on the date for which the market rate is taken, compared with the date on which the actual purchase was made.

(6), (7) and (8). The loss, whatever the amount, was due to the fact that subsequent to the purchase of the tin referred to, the Railway Board issued instructions to modify the composition of bearing metal which has resulted in a considerable saving in the cost of repairs to rolling stock. These instructions were issued in December 1927. The action taken by the Controller of Stores, North Western Railway, was based on the information he had available at the time.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether it is not a fact that the loss was caused owing to the fact that an excess quantity of tin ingot was ordered by the Controller of Stores?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The excess was due to the change in the percentage of the tin ingot.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether, in ordering this excess, he exceeded the maximum limit?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Not that I am aware of.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member make sure of his facts and let me have a reply whether he did not exceed the maximum limit? Will the Honourable Member give me a reply to parts (1), (2) and (3)?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I said "Yes".

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Member then aware that the maximum limit was exceeded?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I said I am not aware of that.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is this the same gentleman who was responsible for the loss on the Khyber construction?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am not sure of that.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it the same gentleman who was responsible for condoning the fraud committed by Messrs. Richardson and Cruddas?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The Honourable Member is perfectly aware that Mr. Bailey is Controller of Stores in the North-Western Railway. Therefore he has the information already.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I merely wanted to inform the House through the Honourable Member.

VALUE OF ORDERS PLACED WITH INDIAN AND EUROPEAN FIRMS BY THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

191. *Diwan Chaman Lall : (a) Will Government lay on the table a statement showing the total amount in rupees of orders placed with Indian and European firms, respectively, two years previous to the present Controller of Stores, North Western Railway, taking charge and two years subsequent to his taking charge?

(b) Do Government propose to institute an immediate inquiry into this matter and make the information available to the House?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The information required cannot be compiled without an inordinate expenditure of time and labour.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Member aware that the policy of Mr. Victor Bailey, the Controller of Stores, has been to knock out Indian firms and register European firms?

Mr. P. R. Rau : If the Honourable Member will give me the facts substantiating that allegation, I am sure the Railway Board would be glad to inquire.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Member aware that he can get at the facts much better than I can?

Mr. P. R. Rau : It is easier to make allegations than to substantiate them.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I am prepared to substantiate every word of what I say on the floor of this House.

Mr. P. R. Rau : I welcome that.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member give me every facility to look into the registers of the Controller of Contracts on the North Western Railway? (Applause.)

Mr. P. R. Rau : I must think over that.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member inquire into this matter and place a list of contractors whose names have been knocked out on the table of this House?

Mr. P. R. Rau : That is anticipating a further question, Sir.

NUMBER OF INDIAN AND EUROPEAN FIRMS REMOVED FROM THE LIST OF APPROVED CONTRACTORS OF STORES FOR THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

192. *Diwan Chaman Lall : Will Government be pleased to state the number of firms removed from the list of approved contractors of the Stores Department of the North Western Railway by the present Controller of Stores and for what reasons? How many of these are Indian and how many European?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The North Western Railway have removed the names of 86 firms from the list of firms to which inquiries are sent for requirements outside advertised demands. Of these, 75 are understood to be Indian and 11 to be European. This does not, however, affect the eligibility of such firms to tender for the ordinary purchases made by the North Western Railway which are publicly advertised.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Member aware that the allegation I made on the floor of this House is substantiated out of his own mouth ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The number of firms retained on the register are ten, of whom six are Indian and four European.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether he will repeat that reply again as to the number of firms whose names have been knocked out ? Is it a fact that 75 Indian firms have been knocked out ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Yes.

Diwan Chaman Lall : What is the number of European firms ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have already given that number.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member repeat it ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : 75 are Indian and 11 are European.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Member satisfied that my allegation is correct ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : No, Sir. The Government are not satisfied that the Honourable Member's allegation is correct. If the Honourable Member will look at the reply, he will find 75 out of 81 of the Indian firms and 11 out of 15 of the European firms were removed from the List. I do not think these figures substantiate the allegation.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Member aware that, since notice was given of this question, certain Indian firms have been brought back on to the register ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : No, Sir.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member make an inquiry and discover that the allegation I am making is correct ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I cannot undertake to give a guarantee that I shall find that the Honourable Member's allegations are correct.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I am prepared to prove my allegations.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I can assure the Honourable Member and other Honourable Members of this House, that when they make suggestions of that kind, naturally the Government of India will inquire into them. We do not assume that Honourable Members are irresponsible.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I take it that, on this side of the House, we also assume that Honourable Members, when they give their replies, are responsible.

INCURRING OF EXPENDITURE IN EXCESS OF THE BUDGET FOR STORES ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

193. *Diwan Chaman Lall : (a) Is it a fact that the North Western Railway budget of stores was exceeded by about 60 or 70 lakhs during the first year of the present Controller of Stores' incumbency (1927-28) ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Controller of Stores, North Western Railway, was told not to spend any money in excess of the allotted budget for 1928-29 ?

(c) Is it a fact that the same thing happened the following year and the budget was exceeded by over 30 lakhs (1928-29) ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state what action they have taken against the person or persons responsible for this state of affairs ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (c). If, as I presume, the Honourable Member means the Stores Suspense figure, which includes a number of other account heads in addition to the balances of stores proper, the budget figure was exceeded by 62 lakhs in 1927-28 and by 23 lakhs in 1928-29.

(b) The Agent was instructed to devise measures by which his expenditure could be kept within the limits of the total budget grant for capital expenditure fixed by the Railway Board.

(d) The excessive stores balances were in a great measure due to circumstances outside the control of the officers and staff of the North Western Railway. The action being taken by the North Western Railway has already resulted in a reduction of the stores balances.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether it is a fact that the Controller of Stores, who is responsible for this, is Mr. Victor Bailey ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I believe he was the Controller of Stores in the years mentioned.

INCREASE OF STORES BALANCES UNDER THE PRESENT CONTROLLER OF STORES, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

194. *Diwan Chaman Lall : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what were the stores balances on the North Western Railway on the 31st of March, 1927, previous to the present Controller of Stores joining his Department ? What were the stores balances on the 31st of March, 1928, and 31st of March, 1929 ?

(b) Do these figures show a remarkable increase ?

(c) What action has been taken by the Controller of Stores, North Western Railway, in this connection ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). The stores balances of the North Western Railway as a whole are as follows.

|                          | Lakhs. |
|--------------------------|--------|

A report as to the exact measures taken by the Controller of Stores to reduce his balances has been called for. I shall communicate with the Honourable Member on receipt.

Diwan Chaman Lall : If the Honourable Member finds that there is something wrong in this increase in stores, will he be prepared to take action against the Controller of Stores ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : That will be considered by the Railway Board.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member institute an inquiry into all these matters referred to in my question and take action against the Controller of Stores if he is found to be blameworthy ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The Government of India cannot answer hypothetical questions.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Asking for information is not putting a hypothetical question.

DEATHS OF DECK PASSENGERS ON BOARD STEAMERS BRINGING INDIAN EMIGRANTS BACK FROM BRITISH GUIANA.

195. *Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that since the Imperial Indian Citizenship Association made a representation to the Government of India in September 1928 regarding deaths of deck passengers on board steamers bringing Indian emigrants back from British Guiana, more deaths have taken place on one of these steamers in April 1929 ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what action they have taken to put a stop to this avoidable loss of Indian life ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The Honourable Member is presumably referring to the deaths which occurred among Indian repatriates on board the S.S. "Chenab" which arrived at Calcutta on the 2nd May, 1929, from Trinidad. If so, the reply is in the affirmative.

(b) The Government of India are still in correspondence with the Government of British Guiana regarding the deaths which occurred last year amongst emigrants returning from British Guiana. They are also considering whether any action is required in the case of the deaths on the S. S. "Chenab".

PAYMENT OF ADDITIONAL STRIKE BONUS TO TRAIN EXAMINERS, HOWRAH COACHING, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

196. *Rai Bahadur Tarit Bhusan Roy : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) Whether it is a fact that the loyal railway men of the Howrah district in the employ of the East Indian Railway were paid extra strike bonus for their exceptional services during the last railway strike which originated at the Lillooah Carriage and Wagon shops ?

(b) What class of employees were paid this extra bonus ?

(c) What was the Agent's circular regarding reward to the loyal staff ?

(d) Whether it is a fact that a large number of Train Examiners and Assistant Train Examiners, Howrah Coaching, who sacrificed all comforts to maintain all the stock of local, through and mail trains, English mails and tourist special trains, were deprived from participation in the second strike bonus in violation of the Agent's circular No. 481/A.L.-1393 regarding reward to loyal staff ?

(e) What was the nature of the petition of the Train and Assistant Train Examiners, Howrah Coaching, dated 30th June, 1929, and submitted to the Divisional Superintendent, Howrah, through the Head Carriage Inspector ?

(f) Whether they propose to make an early inquiry into the matter and redress the grievances of a section of loyal employees who have been deprived of the second strike bonus ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) to (c). I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given on the 6th March, 1929, to part (a) of starred question No. 925 by Mr. V. V. Jogiah.

(d) The Agent reports that the additional bonus was only given to those who fulfilled the conditions mentioned in paragraph I (2) of his Circular and all the Divisional staff, including the Train and Assistant Train Examiners, were dealt with in this manner by the Divisional Superintendent personally.

(e) It was a petition to be granted the additional bonus.

(f) Government do not propose to interfere with the discretion of the Agent, East Indian Railway, in this matter.

RATES OF PAY FOR COOLIES AT CERTAIN STATIONS ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

197. *Rai Bahadur Tarit Bhusan Roy : (a) Are Government aware of the fact that the coolies at Sealdah, Goalundo-ghat, Khulna and Parbuttypur on the Eastern Bengal Railway exact from intermediate and third class passengers rates much higher than the scheduled rates ?

(b) Do Government propose to see that the scheduled rates of the coolies per load are prominently displayed both in English and in the vernacular on the platforms at Sealdah, Goalundo-ghat, Khulna and Parbuttypur ?

(c) Do Government propose to make immediate arrangements for drastic action being taken against any coolies tyrannizing the passengers and compelling them to pay at Sealdah, Goalundo-ghat, Khulna and Parbuttypur, or demanding from them, rates higher than the scheduled rates ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have received no information as to excess charges being levied at these stations on the Eastern Bengal Railway. A copy of the Honourable Member's question has been sent to the Agent for any action he may consider necessary.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY FOR CARRYING PASSENGERS TO THE KUMBHA MELA IN 1930.

198. *Rai Bahadur Tarit Bhusan Roy : Will Government be pleased to state what arrangements the Eastern Bengal Railway are making for carrying passengers on the occasion of the forthcoming Kumbha Mela at Allahabad in 1930 without exceeding the approved carrying capacity of the carriages and without using wagons or trucks for carrying pilgrims ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Agent of the Eastern Bengal Railway reports that necessary arrangements will be made to provide for the carriage of passengers over that railway without inconvenience or overcrowding on the occasion of the Kumbha Mela at Allahabad in 1930. The running of certain special through services is at present under the consideration of that Administration.

PROVISION OF ADDITIONAL ACCOMMODATION FOR THIRD CLASS PASSENGERS IN LOCAL TRAINS ON THE BENGAL NAGPUR AND EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAYS.

199. *Rai Bahadur Tarit Bhusan Roy : (a) Are Government aware that during week-days local trains on the Bengal Nagpur Railway and Eastern Bengal Railway carry passengers much in excess of their capacity and that frequently passengers are seen hanging on to the foot-boards of the carriages ?

(b) Do Government propose to take proper and prompt action for the better accommodation of intermediate and third class passengers in local trains by increasing the number of intermediate and third class carriages in each train or by running a larger number of local trains ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Since the beginning of this year, a system of census checks of the number of passengers in individual trains, as compared with the actual seating accommodation, has been brought into operation on railways, and the results of such census checks are discussed with the Local Advisory Committees of Railways. The checks so far made on the Bengal Nagpur and Eastern Bengal Railways do not show that the number of trains overcrowded is high. Action is being taken by the Railway Administrations to improve matters where overcrowding is disclosed.

PROVISION OF LATRINES IN RAILWAY CARRIAGES IN LOCAL TRAINS ON THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

200. *Rai Bahadur Tarit Bhusan Roy : Are Government aware that in most of the local trains on the Eastern Bengal Railway there are no latrine arrangements in any class of carriages and, if so, do Government propose to take steps for providing latrines in all carriages in local trains ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government are aware that carriages on suburban trains on the Eastern Bengal Railway are not provided with latrine accommodation. In this particular they follow what is the usual practice in India and is, so far as I am aware, invariably followed in Europe and America.

The conditions under which suburban trains work make such provision unnecessary and undesirable.

NAMES AND DESIGNATIONS OF PROVINCIAL OFFICERS NOMINATED AS MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY AND COUNCIL OF STATE SINCE 1921.

201. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state the names and designations of officers who have been nominated from time to time since 1921 as Members of the Legislative Assembly and the Council of State from each Province ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Statements are laid on the table giving the information required.

RESULT OF THE INQUIRY INTO THE FIRE IN THE OFFICE OF THE EXECUTIVE ENGINEER OF THE KANGRA VALLEY RAILWAY AT PALAMPUR.

202. *Mr. Abdul Haya : (a) Is it a fact that the office of the Executive Engineer of the Kangra Valley Railway at Palampur was destroyed by fire, and that the records of construction of the said Railway were burnt ?

(b) Is it a fact that Government suspected foul play and instituted an inquiry into the causes and circumstances which led to this fire ? If so, will Government please state what the result of this inquiry was, and also lay on the table all the papers relating to this inquiry ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have received no information, but are inquiring into the matter.

COST OF CONSTRUCTION OF THE KANGRA VALLEY RAILWAY.

203. *Mr. Abdul Haya : (1) Is it a fact that the original estimate of the construction of the Kangra Valley Railway was Rs. 1,34,00,000 ?

(2) When and by whom was this original estimate prepared ?

(3) On what date was the construction work of this Railway started ?

(4) Is it a fact that subsequently on the representation of the Agent, North Western Railway, this estimate was revised and it was raised to Rs. 2,17,46,000 ?

(5) Is it a fact that even this revised estimate has been exceeded and the total cost of the construction of this Railway is likely to exceed three crores of rupees ?

(6) What was the object which Government had in view when the construction of this Railway was taken in hand ?

(7) Will Government please make a full statement regarding the financial aspect of this project, stating the rate at which this Railway is at present yielding profit ?

(8) Is it a fact that in spite of the guarantees given by the Punjab Government, Government are sustaining a severe loss annually which amounts to lakhs of rupees ?

(9) If the answer to part (8) be in the affirmative, will Government please state what steps they have taken or propose to take to prevent such a drain on the Central Revenues ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (1) Yes.

(2) The estimate was prepared by the North Western Railway Administration in 1925.

(3) About May 1926.

(4) and (5). Yes.

(6) The object was primarily the provision of railway communication in the Kangra Valley. The introduction of railways in this area in order to open out the rich Kulu and Kangra Valleys had been under consideration for a long time, but matters were brought to a head by the proposals of the Punjab Government, early in 1925, to construct a tramway in connection with their Uhl Hydro-electric Scheme as a necessary means of transporting heavy plant and machinery to the headworks, and subsequently to sanction a line of communication between the Kangra Valley and the plains of the Punjab. Discussions with the Local Government showed that the tramway, which was in course of being designed by them, would undoubtedly be a source of embarrassment in the future, and it was, therefore, decided to construct a narrow gauge railway with a guarantee from the Local Government.

(7), (8) and (9). The Railway was only opened to traffic in April last, and it is impossible at present to say what return can be expected. It is understood that the traffic carried in the first two months shows promise that the earnings may prove better than was originally anticipated and the loss may not be as great as would appear from the large excess in the cost of construction over the original estimate.

ERECTION BY THE MILITARY DEPARTMENT OF A NEW ARSENAL AT LAHORE.

204. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (1) Is it a fact that the erection of a new arsenal in Lahore has been decided upon by the Military Department at a big cost and a site has already been selected for the same, and that the present arsenal at Ferozepore—which has been equipped at a very heavy cost—is to be reduced to a depot ?

(2) If this be true, will Government be pleased to state the approximate cost estimated for the above and the reason or reasons for undertaking this new work ? Is it a fact that the existing arsenal at Ferozepore.

has for years rendered service during all the Frontier expeditions that took place in the last fifty years or more and in the last World War ?

(3) Are Government aware of the fact that the strategical position of Ferozepore has been admitted to be more important than that of Lahore, and the former considered more healthy than Lahore, and that Lahore was a few years back condemned as being unhealthy by a Military Medical Board ?

(4) If the Ferozepore arsenal be considered not up to date scientifically, do Government propose to make it so ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative and the remaining parts do not therefore arise. Ferozepore arsenal will continue to be used to its full capacity.

Sardar Kartar Singh : Is there any proposal that an arsenal should be constructed at Lahore at a cost of Rs. 10 crores ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : No, Sir.

FILLING UP OF THE POST OF DEPUTY SECRETARY OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DEPARTMENT.

205. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to state when the sanctioned post of Deputy Secretary of the Legislative Assembly Department will be filled up ?

(b) Is the appointment being delayed pending the framing of the Rules by the Secretary of State for India ? Why is this vacancy being held up when other appointments in the Department of the Legislative Assembly have already been made in anticipation of the Rules ? Is it anticipated that the Secretary of State for India will not sanction the post of a Deputy Secretary for the Department of the Legislative Assembly ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The rules governing the appointment were published in the Government of India Gazette of the 31st August. Steps will now be taken to have the appointment made.

(b) The delay has been due to the cause suggested. The answer to the second part of the question is that the first appointment of Secretary and Assistant Secretary could be made on a temporary basis because the first appointments to those posts are not required by the rules to be made from among persons recommended by the Public Service Commission. The first appointment of Deputy Secretary, on the other hand, is required to be made from among persons recommended by the Public Service Commission, and before this procedure could be followed, it was necessary that the conditions of service should be expressly laid down by the Secretary of State in Council by rule made under section 96-B of the Government of India Act.

The answer to the third part of the question is in the negative. The post has already been sanctioned.

DUTIES, STATUS AND FUNCTIONS OF THE DEPUTY SECRETARY AND SECRETARY OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DEPARTMENT.

206. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) What will be the duties, functions and status of the Deputy Secretary of the Legislative Assembly Department ? Will he have the same status and position as the Deputy Secretaries of other Departments of the Government of India ? If not, why not ?

(b) What are the duties, functions and status of the Secretary of the Legislative Assembly Department ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) In the despatch of the Government of India in the Legislative Department, No. 2 of 1928, a copy of which was laid on the table of this House on the 17th September, 1928, the duties of the Deputy Secretary of the Legislative Assembly Department were described as follows :

"The principal duties of the Deputy Secretary will be to dispose of such work as the Secretary delegates to him and to be available to assist the President when the Secretary is engaged at the table or otherwise preoccupied, and lastly to take the place of the Secretary when the Secretary is engaged on work on behalf of the President or for any other reason is not in a position to sit at the table."

The status of the Deputy Secretary of the Legislative Assembly Department, as compared with that of the other Deputy Secretaries to the Government of India, will now be taken up.

(b) As regards the duties and functions of the Secretary of the Legislative Assembly Department, the Honourable Member is referred primarily to the Indian Legislative Rules and the Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly. In addition to the duties expressly laid upon him by those Rules and Standing Orders, the Secretary is in charge of the establishment of the Legislative Assembly Department. The question of the status of the Secretary of the Legislative Assembly Department as compared with that of other Secretaries to the Government of India will now be taken up.

RECRUITMENT OF MINISTERIAL ESTABLISHMENT THROUGH THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

207. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that recruitment for the ministerial establishment in all the Departments is made through the Public Service Commission ?

(b) Yes. There are a few exceptions.

(c) Has any deviation from this practice been made in any of the Departments ? If so, what was the justification for such an action ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Yes. This is the usual practice.

(b) Yes. There are a few exceptions.

(c) Such exceptions have been allowed by reason of the special or technical nature of the work involved.

MUSSALMAN ACCOUNTANTS IN THE OFFICE OF THE CONTROLLER OF RAILWAY ACCOUNTS.

208. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : What is the total strength of the Accountants in the Office of the Controller of Railway Accounts, and how many of them are Mussalmans ? Why is it that no junior Muslim Accountants have been appointed ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The total number of Accountants in the office of the Controller of Railway Accounts is seven. At present none of them is a Mussalman. I am afraid it is impossible for each individual office, and a small one at that, to be recruited on communal lines.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will the Honourable Member repeat his answer ? I could not hear him.

Mr. P. R. Rau : The total number of Accountants in the office of the Controller of Railway Accounts is seven. At present none of them is a Mussalman. I am afraid it is impossible for each individual office, and a small one at that, to be recruited on communal lines.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is there any Mussalman officer in the whole of the Railway Board ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Yes, Sir, there is one.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : When was he appointed ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : To the best of my recollection, about three years ago.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : What is the total number of all the officers ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I cannot reply to that off-hand.

Sardar Kartar Singh : How many of them are Sikhs ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : And how many of them are Rajputs ?

INDIANS HOLDING POSTS OF OFFICER SUPERVISORS IN THE ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

209. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : What is the total strength of the permanent Officer Supervisors in the Army Headquarters and how many of them are Indians ? What are the rules regulating promotion and appointment to this post ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : There are at present 17, of whom one is an Indian.

The appointments are made entirely by selection and not by seniority.

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it not a fact that two of these posts are reserved for Indians ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Not that I am aware of.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is it not a fact that when a soldier clerk is appointed as an Officer Supervisor in the Army Headquarters, he is given the rank of a Major, irrespective of his length of service or previous grade ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I do not think that question arises out of the answer that I have given.

APPOINTMENT OF AN INDIAN AS CIVIL SURGEON OF SIMLA OR DELHI.

210. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that no senior Indian medical officer has ever been posted as Civil Surgeon either at Delhi or at Simla ? If not, why not ?

Sir Frank Noyce : The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. It will be observed from the Annexure to the Press communiqué, dated the 10th May, 1928, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House, that both the civil surgeoncies in Simla and one of the two civil surgeoncies in Delhi are reserved for European officers of the Indian Medical Service. In filling the remaining civil surgeoncy in Delhi, the claims of Indian officers of the Indian Medical Service are and will continue to be given due consideration.

RECRUITMENT IN THE INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT.

211. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the name of the Chief Superintendent of the Indian Stores Department ?

(b) Will they be pleased to state the percentage of Punjabis that are now employed in that Office ?

(c) Are Government aware that the Chief Superintendent refuses to entertain men of the other provinces ? If not, do Government propose to inquire into the matter ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The name of the permanent incumbent of the post of Chief Superintendent of the office of the Chief Controller of Stores is Rai Sahib Kirpa Ram.

(b) I understand that the Honourable Member desires to know the percentage of Punjabis in the clerical establishment of the Office of the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department. The percentage is 49.

(c) No. The Chief Superintendent has no authority to reject the applications of any individual for appointment to a post in the Indian Stores Department. The second part of the question therefore does not arise.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : How many of them are Biharis ? (Laughter.)

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I shall require notice of that question.

DEPARTMENTAL QUALIFYING EXAMINATION OF THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

212. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the personnel of the late Army Canteen Board have been permitted to sit in the next Departmental Qualifying Examination of the Public Service Commission ?

(b) If so, by whom and under what rules and for what reasons ?

(c) Are they treated as departmental candidates ? If so, how ?

(d) Is it a fact that the retrenched men of other Departments and Offices, such as that of the Master General of Supplies and other Branches of the Army Headquarters, who served as temporary clerks for about the same period, have not been permitted to sit for the same ? If so, why ?

(e) Do Government propose to extend the privilege to the men mentioned in part (d) above ? If not, why not ?

(f) How many retrenched men of other Departments are allowed to sit for the next departmental examination ? If none, why ?

(g) How many applications from the retrenched men of the Government of India for permission to sit in the said examination have been received by the Public Service Commission, and what action have the Public Service Commission taken on them so far ?

(h) Will Government be pleased to state the names of the applicants who were not allowed to sit for the examination and the reasons in each case ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a), (b) and (c). I would refer the Honourable Member to the very full reply given by the Army Secretary to starred question No. 191 on the 14th February, 1928.

(d) and (e). Temporary men who served in the Branches of the Army Headquarters named and have since been discharged are not being permitted to sit for the next examination as it is a qualifying examination for purposes of departmental promotion for departmental men only.

(f), (g) and (h). The Public Service Commission have not received any application from retrenched men of other Departments to be allowed to sit for the examination. They are not aware that there are any.

EXTENSION TO DEPARTMENTS OTHER THAN THE MEDAL SECTION, ARMY DEPARTMENT, OF THE PRIVILEGE OF SITTING FOR THE DEPARTMENTAL EXAMINATION OF THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

213. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the men of the Medal Section of the Army Department are being permitted to sit in the Departmental Examination of the Public Service Commission without any restriction of age limit or educational qualifications ?

(b) Is it a fact that this privilege has been denied to men of all other Departments of the Government of India Secretariat ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for this preferential treatment ?

(c) Is it a fact that there are men in other Departments who are age-barred, but who are willing to sit for the examination ?

(d) Are Government aware of any such cases ? If not, do they propose to inquire from the different Departments and offices of the Government of India whether there are any such cases, and if there are any, do they propose to extend the same privilege to them ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) It was decided to allow eleven clerks of the Medal Section of the Army Department to enter for one more qualifying examination, without insisting on the ordinary conditions as to age and educational qualifications.

(b) The clerks of the Medal Section were given special consideration because they had been serving in a temporary capacity for many years when the Section was located in Calcutta and had had no opportunity of appearing at the earlier examinations of the Staff Selection Board.

(c) and (d). There are probably such cases, but Government do not propose to take the action suggested by the Honourable Member, as they are not satisfied that there are sufficient reasons for exceptional treatment in other cases.

PROVISION BY THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION OF PERMANENT APPOINTMENTS TO ALL PASSED CANDIDATES.

214. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Have the Public Service Commission provided all passed candidates with permanent appointments ? If not, why not ?

(b) Is it a fact that a good many passed candidates have become age-barred ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) No. Passed candidates can only be provided with permanent appointments when vacancies occur.

(b) Yes.

RECRUITMENT OF THE STAFF OF THE OFFICE OF THE IMPERIAL COUNCIL OF AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH THROUGH THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

215. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research are going to recruit a good many clerks, typists, etc. ?

(b) If so, do Government propose to bring that office under the Public Service Commission ? If not, why not ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The number of clerks and typists recruited by the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research up-to-date is 11.

(b) The matter is under consideration.

APPRENTICES EMPLOYED IN DEPARTMENTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

216. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Are there any apprentices entertained in the Government of India Departments ? If so, in what Departments ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to furnish the House with a list of the apprentices, if any, with their names ?

(c) Is it a fact that there are apprentices in the Finance Department and in the Foreign and Political Departments ? If so, under what rules ?

(d) Is it a fact that such men are, after a certain period, always provided with some sort of temporary appointment in preference to passed candidates of the late Staff Selection Board and the present Public Service Commission ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a), (b) and (c). Two apprentices were employed in the Foreign and Political Department, one in the Finance Department, and one in the Home Department for short periods this year. They are not now employed. There are no definite orders against the employment of apprentices, but the practice is to allow it only in very rare cases.

(d) The reply is in the negative.

APPOINTMENT IN THE FIRST DIVISION IN THE FINANCE DEPARTMENT OF TWO UNQUALIFIED CANDIDATES.

217. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that two men who were only qualified for the second division were recruited in the first division in the Finance Department about two years ago ?

(b) Is it a fact that these two men were recruited in preference to other applicants who were passed candidates?

(c) Is it a fact that these men were recruited subject to passing the first division examination? If so, were they sent up for the Public Service Commission examination for passing the first division test? If not, why not?

(d) Is it a fact that these two men have been confirmed in the first division in the Finance Department without passing the said examination? If so, why?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) and (b). I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to part (a) of the reply given by Sir Basil Blackett on the 21st March, 1927, to a similar question by Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta regarding these same two appointments.

(c) The men were recruited subject to their passing the First Division examination; but they were not sent up for that examination because the Public Service Commission declared them to be qualified to be appointed to that Division without passing that examination.

(d) The men were confirmed in the First Division of the Finance Department without passing the First Division examination, for the reason stated in my answer to part (c).

RECRUITMENT OF THE STAFF OF THE RAILWAY DEPARTMENT THROUGH THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

218. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that recruitment to all the Departments of the Government of India Secretariat is done through the Public Service Commission?

(b) Is it a fact that the Railway Department is treated as a Department of the Government of India Secretariat?

(c) Is it a fact that the recruitment to the Railway Board is done independently of the Public Service Commission? If so, why?

(d) Is it a fact that several men who had failed at the first division examination of the late Staff Selection Board for a number of times were confirmed in the first division under the Railway Department?

(e) Do Government propose to hand over the recruitment of the Railway Department of the Government of India and all its attached offices to the Public Service Commission? If not, why not?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply just given by the Honourable the Home Member to question No. 207.

(b) Yes.

(c) The Railway Board has been allowed to recruit qualified staff from railways as well as for special reasons from the Accounts and Finance Departments for work of a special nature.

(d) Four men have been confirmed who failed to pass the Staff Selection Board examination for the first division.

(e) The Honourable Member is referred to Mr. Parsons' remarks in the budget debate in this House on the 26th February last, in which he gave an undertaking that as regards appointments of a purely clerical, as distinct from a technical nature, they would in future be filled, as are appointments in other Secretariat Departments, through the Public Service Commission.

NAMES AND EXPERIENCE OF MEN RECRUITED TO THE OFFICE OF THE CONTRACT DIRECTORATE OF ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

219. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of men with commercial experience recruited in the Office of the Contract Directorate of the Army Headquarters during the last two years?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the names of each of such men with commercial experience, together with the period of such experience and the line in which they had such experience in each case before their recruitment?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Six.

(b) Government are not prepared to disclose the names and qualifications of the individuals concerned who are still in their service.

RECRUITMENT IN THE OFFICE OF THE CONTRACT DIRECTORATE, ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

220. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that a number of men without commercial experience have been recruited in the Office of the Contract Directorate of the Army Headquarters since January 1929?

(b) If so, what is the total number of such men and why were they so recruited?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Yes.

(b) Five. They were recruited in temporary vacancies in the most junior grade, and possessed qualifications which rendered it probable that they could assimilate the necessary training in the office itself.

METHOD OF RECRUITMENT OF THE STAFFS OF COMMISSIONS AND COMMITTEES.

221. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that Commissions and Committees generally recruit their staff from the permanent hands of the Departments of the Government of India?

(b) Are experienced men from outside who served Government for at least one year entertained? If not, why not?

(c) Have Government ever inquired whether they can get experienced men from outside on less pay?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) and (b). As is suggested in the Honourable Member's question, Commissions and Committees choose their own staffs, and while no doubt they find it an advantage to select for appointment men from the Departments of the Government of India, who have previous acquaintance with the subject under inquiry, or experience of similar inquiries, I have no reason to suppose that experienced men from outside who apply are excluded from consideration.

(c) The question does not arise.
L4CPB(LA)

ALLOTMENT AND CLASSIFICATION OF GOVERNMENT QUARTERS IN SIMLA.

222. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the men who elected the new rates of house rent are entitled to have preference over those who elected old rates of house rent in the matter of allotment of Government quarters ?

(b) Is it a fact that, on the 16th January, 1923, as the result of a question by Rai Bahadur L. P. Sinha, the classification of the New Delhi quarters was changed from Indian and European to orthodox and unorthodox ?

(c) Is it a fact that Government quarters in Simla are still classified as European and Indian ? If so, will Government be pleased to state why this racial discrimination in matters of allotment of quarters is still being retained in the Government of India ?

(d) Is it a fact that the New Delhi quarters and the Simla quarters are under one and the same Superintending Engineer ?

(e) If so, why did he not take any action in doing away with this racial discrimination ?

(f) Do Government propose to do away with this racial discrimination forthwith ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes at Simla, but no at Delhi.

(b) No. (The New Delhi building scheme made no distinction of the nature alluded to at the time a reply was given to the question referred to in the question.)

(c) Yes. The main reason for the classification of quarters as European and Indian in Simla is that, by far the greater number of clerks' quarters are built in blocks of tenements. This is necessitated by the geographical conditions in Simla, and it has never been considered advisable to have Indians and Europeans mixed up in the same blocks. The Indian clerks' quarters cannot be said to be either orthodox or unorthodox. They are suitable for use by both classes, and as far as Government are aware, no desire has hitherto been expressed by either community that the present condition should be changed. On the contrary, it is believed that both prefer the existing classification to continue.

(d) No.

(e) Does not arise.

(f) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given by me to part (c) of the question.

ALLEGED RACIAL DISCRIMINATION IN THE ALLOTMENT OF GOVERNMENT QUARTERS.

223. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that there are a good many Government quarters which are at a distance of only a few minutes' walk from the Secretariat which have been reserved for Europeans and Anglo-Indians ?

(b) Is it a fact that, to give preference to Europeans, the classification has not so far been changed into orthodox and unorthodox ?

(c) If not, why has the racial preference been so long maintained ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes. There are 44 quarters at Kaithu, Simla, which are classed as European clerks' quarters.

(b) and (c). The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given by me to part (c) of question No. 222.

NAMES OF MEN IN THE SECRETARIAT GIVEN THE OPTION OF REVERTING TO OLD RATES OF HOUSE RENT.

224. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the final and ultimate selection of the old rates of house rent and the new rates of house rent by men of the Secretariat was made some years ago ? Since then in how many cases was option given to men to revert to old rates ?

(b) What are the names of those who were given such option after the said final selection ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The reply to the first part is in the affirmative. As to the second part, two men were allowed to revert to the old rules, on medical grounds.

(b) I am sending the information to the Honourable Member.

MEMORIAL FOR MORE PAY BY THE STAFF OF CIVIL OFFICES OF THE ARCHAEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

225. *Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the memorial submitted by the ministerial establishment attached to the Circle Offices of the Archaeological Department in October 1928 through their Director General for the revision of their scales of pay has been received by Government ?

(b) What action do Government propose to take in regard to the case ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The only memorials which Government have received were from the ministerial establishment of the Superintendent, Archaeological Survey, Eastern Circle.

(b) The memorials have been rejected.

REJECTION OF APPLICATIONS FROM THE STUDENTS OF THE KING EDWARD COLLEGE, AMRAOTI, FOR ADMISSION TO THE NAGPUR UNIVERSITY TRAINING CORPS.

226. *Mr. M. S. Aney : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether applications for admission to the Nagpur University Training Corps from the students of the King Edward College, Amraoti (Berar), were rejected ? If so, what were the reasons for the same ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to say whether they have received any communication from the Government of the Central Provinces in regard to this matter ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) and (b). Government have received a communication from the Local Government, recommending that students of the college should be allowed to enrol in the Nagpur University Training Corps. It is impossible to accept this recommendation at present, because the enrolment of subjects of Indian States who continue to reside in the territories of their respective States, is not permissible under the Indian Territorial Force Act. A Bill to amend this Act is, d2 however, being introduced this Session in another place, and is intended to make such enrolment possible under certain circumstances.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : Is it or is it not a fact that subjects of Native States are at present enlisted in the Territorial Force ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Certain numbers have been enlisted under a misapprehension of the law. That is why the law is being amended.

ADMISSION OF STUDENTS AND CITIZENS OF BERAR TO THE TERRITORIAL AND AUXILIARY FORCES.

227. *Mr. M. S. Aney : Will Government be pleased to state whether they propose to introduce, in the current session of the Legislative Assembly, any Bill to amend the Territorial Forces Act and the Auxiliary Forces Act, with a view to render the students as well as citizens residing in Berar eligible for admission to the membership of the Territorial and Auxiliary Forces ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The Honourable Member is referred to the answer I have just given to the preceding question, so far as the Indian Territorial Force Act is concerned. There is no intention at present to amend the Auxiliary Force Act, 1920. That Act imposes no restriction on the enrolment of residents in Berar, as such, but does not permit the enrolment of any person, wherever resident, who is not a European British subject or a British subject of European descent in the male line.

ADDITIONAL SECURITY REQUIRED FROM SHROFFS IN THE CURRENCY OFFICE, BOMBAY.

228. *Mr. M. S. Aney : (a) With reference to the reply to my starred question No. 700 (c), sent to me on the 28th February, 1929, will Government be pleased to state whether they propose to make inquiries from the Currency Office, Bombay, to find out whether the shroffs in the Bombay office were or were not required to deposit additional security over and above the insurance security required by the Code ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether they propose to instruct the Currency Officer, Bombay, to refund the amount of all deposits of additional security, if such an inquiry discloses that the shroffs were required to make these deposits ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Inquiry is being made, and a reply will be sent to the Honourable Member in due course.

GRANT OF A PROVIDENT FUND TO THE STAFF OF THE CURRENCY OFFICE, BOMBAY.

229. *Mr. M. S. Aney : With reference to the reply given to starred question No. 380, put by Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla on the 4th February, 1929, and to my starred question No. 698 (a) and (b) on the 23rd February, 1929, relating to the final decision as regards Provident Fund system applied to the Currency Office staff, will Government be pleased to state what action has since been taken and when they are likely to notify their final decision ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The Government of India propose to institute a contributory Provident Fund, on the usual terms, for the non-pensionable employees in the Treasurers' Departments of the Currency Offices. The proposal is being placed before the Standing Finance Committee, which is now sitting and, if the Committee approves, it will then be placed before the Currency Association. I hope that it will be possible to issue final orders before the beginning of the next financial year.

PETITIONS RELATING TO THE HINDU CHILD MARRIAGE BILL.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, under Standing Order 78, I have to report that thirty-four petitions, as per statement laid on the table, have been received relating to the Bill to regulate marriages of children amongst the Hindus which was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 1st February, 1927, by Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda.

STATEMENT OF BUSINESS.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Leader of the House) : Sir, I desire, with your permission, to make a statement regarding the probable course of official business during the week beginning September the 9th. For Monday and Tuesday, the 9th and 10th, a joint list has been prepared consisting exclusively of legislation. Motions will be made :

To take into consideration and pass the Bill further to amend the Calcutta Pilots Act, 1859, and the Indian Ports Act, 1908, and the Bill to amend the Indian Boilers Act, 1923 ;

For the circulation of the Bill to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, by the insertion of a new section 85-A ;

To refer to Select Committee the Indian Income-tax Act (Amendment) Bill (Provident Funds Relief) and the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Bill ;

To take into consideration and pass the Indian Census Bill ;

To refer to Select Committee the Indian Railways Act (Amendment) Bill ;

To take into consideration and pass the Soft Coke Cess Bill and the Cantonments House Accommodation Bill ;

To refer to Select Committee the Bill to define and amend the law relating to the sale of goods and the supplementary Bill in connection therewith to amend section 178 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872 ;

To re-commit to Select Committee the Indian Income-tax Act (Bogus Companies) (Amendment) Bill ;

To refer to Select Committee the Bill to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (sections 13, 16, 35, etc.), and the Dangerous Drugs Bill.

On Wednesday, the 11th, any business left over from the 10th will be taken first, and thereafter motions will be made to take into consideration and pass the Bill to amend the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and the supplementary Bill in the same connection.

On Thursday, the 12th, will be taken any business left over from the 11th.

THE HINDU CHILD MARRIAGE BILL.

Mr. President : The House will now resume further consideration of the following motion :

" That the Bill to regulate marriages of children amongst the Hindus, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration "

Mr. N. C. Kelkar (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan, Rural) : Sir, I wish to give a definite vote for the original motion and therefore I do not like to give a silent vote. It is better to be despised for the views I express on the floor of the House than be misunderstood on the floor of the House as well as outside by giving a silent vote. I will straight away say that I wish to support the original motion that the Bill be taken into consideration (applause). I must say, at the same time, that I do not support the Bill exactly as it stands, because I have myself put in a number of amendments to amend the Bill. I may say in general that the Bill may not be acceptable to me if most of those amendments, which are in my opinion very reasonable, are not carried out by this House. But the point at this stage is that the amendments cannot be reached if the original motion is rejected ; and for the sake of those who want the Bill as it is as well as for the sake of those who want an amended Bill, the original motion must be passed and the Bill should be proceeded with. I will simply say this, give the Bill a chance. That reminds me of a very wise caution board put up by the side of a lawn in England by a thoughtful gardener. On that board, he did not say, " Don't trample upon the grass " ; but he said, " Give the grass a chance to grow ". Applying the same wording to this Bill, I will not say, do not trample upon the Bill, for I know even the opponents of the Bill do not want to trample upon it ruthlessly or unnecessarily ; I will simply ask them to give the Bill a chance, a fair chance. That is all I am asking. Again I must say that if when that chance is given—I do not say this as a threat—I must express my sincere conviction, if none of the amendments which I consider reasonable are carried out, and if by the sheer force of majority the Bill is taken right up to the end without any of these reasonable modifications being made, then, I shall not say what I will do, but I shall say that I will reserve the right to do what I like best under the circumstances. (Laughter.)

Mr. President : He has always the right to reserve.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : This is a very serious and even a very solemn occasion at least for a man in my position, and I carry on this occasion on my shoulders a full sense of responsibility in what I am doing. This question obviously bristles with thorns and angularities arising out of a feeling that religion is affected and so on. On the other hand we have got the utilitarian solicitude for the social welfare of the people. And therefore a clear cut way has got to be found out between these angularities and these thorns so that I may achieve the end I have in view as well as not injure or bruise myself. I have got in my mind a three-fold duty which I must perform. My first duty I think, under the present circumstances, is to my own individual conscience, and I have absolutely no hesitation in saying that the principle of the Bill is one which I can support in all conscience. But at the same time, I can not forget that I am here in a representative capacity, and therefore I have got to look to the conscience or the opinion of my electorate as well. In that respect, however, I find that I am in a somewhat more fortunate position than my Honourable friend, Mr. Neogy, over there. For though personally he is not against the Bill, he is perfectly right in obeying the mandates of his electorate. In my own case, fortunately I have got no such mandates. I can at this distance only guess what my electorate may be feeling in the matter. However, I may mention I have got one telegram from a taluqa Hindu Sabha meeting which asks me to vote against the Bill.

At the same time this is the only telegram or the only mandate that I have received, and therefore I think I can make one of three alternative suppositions. The first is that my electorate is in favour of the Bill, which is of course to their entire credit, but I do not make that supposition. Then my electorate may be indifferent to the Bill, and the third alternative, which is perhaps creditable to me, is that they trust me to do the right thing on the spot.

[5TH SEPT. 1929.]

In supporting this motion and giving my general support to the Bill I must say, at the outset, that I have the greatest respect for the opinions of the opponents of the Bill, but I must have respect for my own opinions as well, and therefore I have no hesitation in supporting the Bill, though I find that they oppose it. At the same time I must say that, judging by the public opinion in Maharashtra, I can say this at least, not necessarily that they are in favour of the Bill, but I can positively say that enlightened public opinion, or even public opinion among the electorate, is in favour of the particular social reform that has been taken in hand. I make that distinction quite clear. Perhaps many of them may not be in favour of the Bill itself, but it is to a certain extent sufficient for my purpose here that I may reasonably presume them to be in favour of the particular social reform that is embodied in this Bill. And in a case like that, when I can make certain presumptions about public opinion in my electorate, and I have got no specific mandate to vote against the Bill, I can do what I think best. Here is a case like the one that has recently arisen here. It has been pointed out, and it has been found out in fact, that there can be no express provisions in the rules and regulations of this House to guide the President to give his rulings on any imaginable question that may arise. I am also in a similar position. The question of this particular Bill was not before my electorate when I stood for election, and we all know that only on certain presumptions people are sent to the Councils, and when questions like this come up on the spur of the moment, one has got to do his best. There can be no exhaustive mandate given at the time of elections for all possible and imaginable questions that may come up in the course of the life of the Council.

I am perfectly aware, Sir, that I was one of those who were opposed to the Consent Bill in 1891. But I will only say this, that much water has flowed down the rivers since then, and in this respect that this Assembly is now a more representative body than it was before in 1891. There were practically no elected people in this House, no people who voiced the popular feeling here. On the other hand we have now got a fair representation of the Hindu community as Members of the Assembly and therefore I think this House is sufficiently representative to consider a question like this.

(At this stage Mr. President vacated the Chair, which was taken by Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.)

Then, there are some further considerations. This, Sir, is not a Government Bill; it is a private Bill. Then, again, it has not been introduced by a non-Hindu, but it has been introduced by a Hindu. On that point, however, let me say that, even the non-Hindus have, of course, a right to vote for the Bill, but they may not like to vote on a Bill like this because it is a communal or sectional Bill. They may please themselves. (Voices: "It applies to all".) As regards the Muhammadans, their position was made absolutely clear yesterday by my Muhammadan friend over there. They do not say that they are absolutely opposed to the Bill on the merits or on principle, but that they are not yet agreed on the course they should adopt. It is for them therefore not to oppose the Bill, but to support it as much as they can. As for Government, I will say this, that in a matter like this I will only expect them to be generous and not to issue a mandate to their nominated Members, or even to the official Members. It is not a matter to be decided by official discipline, and even for the sake of my opponents, I expect that Government will give a free choice to the Members on their side.

Then I come to consider the merits of the Report of the Select Committee, and I will tell the House why I plead for the Report of the Select Committee being taken into consideration, and in doing so I will take up the analytical method of dealing with it. This Bill was twice referred to Select Committee and opinions have been elicited on the Bill from all quarters, at least paper opinions. I cannot say anything about the complaint that sufficiently representative witnesses did not appear before the Committee. Whether it was so or not, some of the Members here who were members of the Committee will explain, but I have got nothing to say about that. I will only say this, that apart from the Bill being twice referred to the Select Committee, opinions have been elicited in the usual manner on this Bill. Due publication also has been given to it. Then the Select Committee was sufficiently representative. In the first place I will say that it is not a fact that any new names or other additional names were proposed for the Select Committee and were rejected. This Committee of 18 people was unanimously accepted by this House (Cries of "No", "No"). In any case I take the Select Committee consisting of 18 people to be a sufficiently representative body. The personnel shows that there were three Muhammadans on it, two Europeans, one Anglo-Indian, one Indian Christian and eleven Hindus; and from the Hindu point of view, I think it was sufficiently representative, especially as our greatest Hindu leader was on that Committee, namely, Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya. He is a Hindu of Hindus in India, than whom no more respected Hindu exists in this country.

Now, with regard to the Report of the Committee, we find that there are certain minutes of dissent on that Bill. I will first of all keep out of consideration the two European members, the one Anglo-Indian member and the one Indian Christian member who have not given any minutes of dissent. But on the other hand, I admit that these people belong to a very highly advanced community, who are not likely to express any dissent upon the Bill. Therefore I do not lay much store by their not giving minutes of dissent. As for the Muhammadans they have, in their Minute of Dissent, stated that they do not intend to apply the Bill to their community. Therefore they are out of court as far as the scanning and analysis of the Report of the Select Committee is concerned, but again I say that they do not oppose the Bill on principle even in their Minute of Dissent. Out of the 11 Hindu Members—my calculation may be wrong—there were six Hindus of well known advanced views in social matters and five about whom that sort of description could not be given; but in any case these 11 were sufficiently representative of the Hindus on the Select Committee. Some of them were of advanced views, and others I may describe as either orthodox or semi-orthodox. That covers the whole list.

[Mr. N. C. Kelkar.]

Now, Sir, what about the dissenting minutes that have been written by the Hindu Members? The Hindu Members who hold advanced views have not written any dissenting minute. Only four gentlemen have written dissenting minutes, of whom I may describe two as of advanced views, and the remaining two as orthodox or semi-orthodox. Among the semi-orthodox or orthodox I may include Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya and Kumar Ganganand Sinha; and the two whom I may describe as of slightly advanced views are Pandit Nilakantha Das and Mr. Bhargava.

I shall now go through their minutes to find out what is really contained in them. Is their objection based on any ground of principle? I shall first take Mr. Bhargava. His objection is based on the ground that the procedure mentioned in the Bill is not what it should be. He objects to the burden of proof being thrown on the other side, that is, on the accused himself. I entirely agree with him in that, and I have handed in an amendment to that effect. He has also said something about sureties and about registration of marriages. That disposes of his minute of dissent.

Then I come to Pandit Nilakantha Das's minute. I cannot make much out of the first part that he has written. In the second part he mentions what is a matter of inconvenience, not a matter of principle or of religious sacrilege. He says—and I quite admit the point of the complaint—that there may be instances where a poor man may require to marry two girls together, or a dying parent may like to see the child married before death for various reasons, and other cases of like nature. Constituted as our society is at present, things like that may happen, and if there is going to be any amendment brought forward in respect of any exemptions to be provided in the matter of the operation of the Bill, I am one of those who will support that exemption. I think in the Baroda State Act, governing this very subject, there is provision for exemption; and I do not see why a similar provision should not be inserted in this Bill. The point is that we do not want to inflict any hardship on any class of persons; and I therefore think we should provide for some measure of relief, some sort of exemption in respect of those for whom it may be said that it would be very hard lines for them. We need not be so harsh upon the whole community. Mr. Nilakantha Das's objection is confined only to that. He says that some room should be given for such hard cases, and suggests the authorities who should have the power to give such exemption. His objection is based on the ground of procedure—not of principle: he does not bring in religious sacrilege nor the question of coercion of a class of society. He does not object to any of the principles embodied in or underlying the Bill.....

Mr. D. V. Belvi (Bombay Southern Division: Non-Muhammadan Rural): How could that be done? The Select Committee cannot go back on the principle of the Bill.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar: Those principles were such as were accepted by the House itself; we accepted the principle of the Bill when it was committed to Select Committee, so those principles are binding on us. Then, I take Kumar Ganganand Sinha's minute. He bases his dissent on the ground of age. It is perhaps a question whether that can be called a matter of principle; but I will assume for the present that it is a matter of principle, though strictly speaking it is a matter of detail; for supposing the age is brought down from 14 to 13, or from 13 to 12, or from 12 to 11, then it ceases to be a matter of principle. Therefore the age is not the principle in this matter but only the legal provisions which may operate to coerce the population. In any case, Kumar Ganganand Sinha makes no reference to any religious tenets being violated. He mentions age, and of course he may be presumed to say that if the age is brought down to 12, no religious mandate will be violated. As I shall subsequently show, that is a matter of opinion rather than of fact.

Lastly, Sir, I come to the very important minute of dissent of Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya. He also, like Kumar Ganganand Sinha, would like to fix the age at 12, though he himself has proposed 11. If that is passed, then perhaps he has got no other objection to the Bill itself. He makes no suggestion as regards procedure or the other clauses of the Bill, including the clause providing for punishment.....

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (Bhagalpur, Purnea and the Santhal Parganas: Non-Muhammadan) : He is against imprisonment.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : Quite right and I will say that I agree with him entirely on that point. I also agree with him when he says that the line of least resistance should be adopted in this matter by all those who want it to be a success. Taking his minute, therefore, as the strongest and most representative on this point, it appears that he dissents on the ground that the age is 14 and not 12 and that the Act is perhaps a little more harsh than it should be. These are his only two grounds.

Therefore, Sir, I would sum up the issues thus. There are three points: one is that the Bill is an interference with religion; the second is that it amounts to coercion of social classes; and the third is that this Legislature is not competent to deal with the Bill. But except the first point, no objection is taken on the second and third points in any of the minutes of dissent. No one has spoken of the coercion of the social classes; neither has any one spoken of the incompetence of this House to deal with the Bill. The only point to be considered is whether fixing the age at 12 would necessarily mean religious sacrilege. But as I have said that is a matter of opinion. I shall now deal with the objection that the Bill amounts to coercion of social classes. That is perhaps the greatest objection that has been taken to this Bill. In this matter I want to use the very minute of dissent which wants to fix the age at 12 against this argument that the Bill amounts to coercion of social classes.

Let us suppose for a moment that, instead of 14, the Bill provides for 12. Then what happens? See what a miracle at once is achieved by the marriage age being brought down from 14 to 12. It is not a matter of social coercion. Then it becomes at once a necessary measure, a measure of national importance, a humane measure. It does not violate religion; it causes no inconvenience to any class; it causes no coercion, and even if coercion is caused by the reduction of the marriage age limit to 12 then such coercion will be justified. That is the direct inference that can be drawn, and this applies, of course, to girls who are below 12. Imagine for a moment that this House accepts the age of 12. What about those classes in which the girl is married at the age of 11? They will say we must have freedom, and the objection about the coercion of social classes relates more to the liberty of opinion and action rather than to religious principle. Now, take the case of girls who would be married at 11, 9, 8 and so on. Our friends Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya and Kumar

[Mr. N. C. Kelkar.]

Ganganand Sinha would not object, if the age 12 is conceded, to coerce the other social classes among whom the practice of child marriage to the extent of 11 obtains at present. Therefore, I take it that no objection remains on that ground except that of social or religious sacrilege. Therefore, the field of conflict and the objection about coercion, etc., is narrowed down to a very small compass, namely the ages between 12 and 14. There is nothing else that remains objectionable in the Bill. Therefore, let us consider the case of this margin between 12 and 14. I will first of all see whom this Bill will not affect. Supposing the age is fixed at 14; there is a definite class to whom the Bill does not apply, and they will not be coerced. That class is a class among whom marriages are performed after 14. They are not affected by this Bill at all. They are not affected by the minimum age being fixed at 14, because among them already marriages are performed after 14, and the appendices to the Report showed me that the percentage of this class of girls, I mean girls who are married after 14, forms about 45 per cent. of the total female population. (An Honourable Member : It is about 50 per cent.)

I am thankful to the Honourable Member for the correction. My calculation showed me that it was only 45 per cent. Anyhow, if this Bill is passed, it will not apply to that 50 per cent. of the female population. Then to whom does it apply? It will apply to classes marrying below 10 and these form about 15 per cent., and my friends Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya and Kumar Ganganand Sinha would be prepared to coerce these classes, because the practice of marrying girls below 10 obtains among them. If the age is fixed at 12, they have no objection to the Bill being made applicable to those classes. Therefore, from the point of view of conflict and reconciliation of interests, these two classes I would straight away take out. The 50 per cent. to whom the Bill does not apply, and the 15 or 20 per cent. whom my friends are prepared to coerce, may be taken out.

(At this stage Mr. President resumed the Chair.)

Therefore, we are at one with them. Both of us are prepared, in the national interest, to coerce this class of people to reform themselves and to marry their girls at a later age. Therefore, the only question that remains to be decided is about the classes who marry their girls between 12 and 14. This class comes to about, I suppose, 30 or 35 per cent. Now, when 65 per cent. or 75 per cent. of the female population is thus taken away absolutely from the operation of the Bill, let us consider the case of about 30 per cent. who remain and who will be affected by the Bill. But ex hypothesi, if they already marry their girls at 12, what harm is there in their going a little further and marrying their girls at 14? They are advanced already, because they do not marry girls below 12, and between 12 and 14 the difference is only of two years, and therefore they may make up their minds to come into line with the others.

But some of the objections of my friends are based on Shastric injunctions. They say that, by marrying girls after puberty, they would be violating the Shastric injunctions, but straight away I say I join issue with them in this matter. I am no classical authority; I am no religious authority; certainly not; but I have taken some interest in these matters for a number of years. I have heard discussions on this topic by erudite sanskrit pandits. I have attended, nay I have even presided over meetings held to express opinions about the Resolutions passed at the Akola Conference in the Brahmin Sabha, as well as the Resolutions passed by the All-India Brahmin Conference at Benares, and there was a consensus of opinion in those meetings that the marriage age of girls should be raised; the public opinion in those meetings was in favour of a late marriage. I do not say that the public opinion was in favour of violating the Shastric mandates, but it was definitely in favour of making the marriages at a late age. But with regard to the arguments that religious mandates will be violated, I say I am prepared to join issue with those gentlemen who adduce such arguments and say that our Shastras and Smritis necessarily demand early marriage or even marriage before puberty. Sir, this is not the proper place to go into details or arguments about it. I am one of those who have got the highest respect for Smritis, but I do say this, that Smritis are in conflict with each other, and therefore what the elite of the enlightened people of the time, what the progressive people of the time determine must be the governing factor even in religion.

“*Shrutir vibhinna Smritiyashacha bhinna,
Naiko muniryasya matam pramanam ;
Dharmasya tatwam nihitam guhayam,
Mahajano yena gataha sa pantha.*”

Sir, in olden times we know that when the Kings wanted to get the rules interpreted, they used to call disinterested Pandits and Brahmins. We here are also disinterested Brahmins. We are not in favour of this legislation for any personal aims. We are absolutely disinterested, and though we might perhaps be a little more progressive than some others are, I claim this, that we have at our heart the largest national interest possible. I may be committing an error in supporting this Bill, but I will lay this unction to my soul that I shall be committing that error with a larger view of the national interest of this country. I suppose nobody can say that I am giving my vote with any personal aims. I have already said that I bow in all humility to the opinions of the opponents of this Bill. All I want to point out is that this is a debatable matter. The opinions are not unanimous on this point, as I have already pointed out.

Then again I will come to the most important point on this matter. I admit, for the sake of argument, that the Shastras want pre-puberty marriage. But who doubts that even the Shastras give some relief for any violation in their injunctions? Supposing an error is committed, the Shastras suggest a prayaschitta to the man who has committed that error. By prayaschitta the man who commits the error loses nothing; he is re-admitted into society. That is a very important point. Admitting for the sake of argument that there is some violation of the religious principles on the ground that marriage is performed after puberty, even then the Shastras lay down that there is purification by prayaschitta and we know how prayaschitta is easy and less costly than the fines embodied in this Bill.

Mr. M. S. Sessa Ayyangar (Madura and Ramnad cum Tinnevely : Non-Muhammadian Rural) : Not for voluntary sins.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : That also is a debatable point. You can never expect unanimity on this point in this House or even outside it. You can rest assured of that. Therefore, the trap door of relief and redress is left open even by the Shastras, and those who think that they are made to violate the Shastras and religion by this law, may use that remedy of prayaschitta and come back into society. Even if it is a sin, it is a sin for which expiation is provided. Prayaschitta is not costly. No one is made an outcast in these progressive days even if girls are married after 14. I can take any Member of this House from village to village and point out this stern fact to him that in particular cases in that village girls have been married after 14. There is no sense of violation of religious principles, and they are no outcasts on that ground. Things are going on as smoothly as anything, the reason being that society is intensely progressive now-a-days and is intensely tolerant also.

Mr. M. K. Acharya (South Arcot cum Chingleput : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : So no legislation is wanted.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : There remains only the case of the conscientious objector. Even if I say that a prayaschitta is provided for, the conscientious objector may say, "I do not want to avail myself of that prayaschitta. I have got a much more dignified view of religion than you gentlemen possess. I have a conscientious objection on the ground of religion." Then what happens is, that we come to a deadlock, a kind of stalemate, and there is no way out of this. If the conscientious objector does not wish to avail himself of the eight-anna prayaschitta, an easy and less costly relief than is provided in this Bill, then he is welcome to take the consequences of the Bill. When I say that, I am perfectly conscious in my mind that that sort of remark of mine will apply to only a very few cases. There will be at any time very few conscientious objectors who will regard themselves as polluted by marrying their girls after puberty. Nobody among the progressive and enlightened classes is going to complain that this Bill has been passed ; and as for those people who are ignorant, uneducated and therefore marry their girls even below the age of 10, as I have already pointed out, my Honourable friend Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya and my Honourable friend Kumar Ganganand Sinha are at one with me in coercing these people and bringing them into line with the advanced classes. Therefore, that objection does not hold good. With regard to the conscientious objector, I will say he is welcome to go to jail and learn a little bit of jail life. If one is prepared to non-co-operate in politics, one should be prepared to go to jail for the sake of one's conscience and one's religious beliefs. After having discarded all the doors of relief that I have pointed out by my finger, this, that and the other,—even after that when he is not persecuted, when he is not made an outcast, when there is the remedy of prayaschitta, when he is tolerated and maintained in his own status and position in society—even after that if he says, "I am a conscientious objector on the ground of religion", he is welcome to take the consequences, and I do not think I am concerned to care for this sort of gentleman, not because I have no respect for him,—I bow my head to the conscientious objector, because we see in the matter of vaccination, people undergo punishment and pay fines and do not vaccinate themselves because they have a conscientious objection. Similarly also in political matters we disobey the laws because we do not like them. Similarly in a case like this I think they should, in the last resort, accept the consequences of the law, and in that respect also I am going to make the law as gentle and as little harsh as possible to them. After supporting the original motion, my next step will be to make the law as gentle as possible to the conscientious objector.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : You won't succeed.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : That is another matter.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member must make room for the next speaker.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : I have only one more point.....

Mr. President : It is now 40 minutes.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : I think the real difficulty is there is no clock in front of us.

Mr. President : Honourable Members are aware that there is a large number of speakers who desire to take part in this debate. I reminded Honourable Members yesterday, and I remind them today, and I hope no Member will exceed fifteen minutes.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar : In concluding I will only mention one point, and that is the point of the benefits which are going to accrue to the people. In the first place, it saves a lot of widowhood. I have got figures to show in how many cases widowhood is caused on account of there being early marriage. Then there is the increased scope for education. We are demanding adult suffrage both for males and females. Women are already our voters ; they are appointed to high offices ; they can become Members of Legislative Councils, and ad hoc Commissions also. Is it right that we should say that they should not have the necessary opportunities for education ? And how does education and expansion of education go with early marriage—can any one tell me that ? The question is, can all this be done by propaganda or by the Bill ? It can be done by propaganda, and that is being done, but I think that more can be done by strengthening the propaganda by a Bill of this sort, and for that reason I support the original motion for the Report of the Select Committee being taken into consideration.

Mr. L. K. Hyder (Agra Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to support the Bill brought forward by my Honourable friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda, and to oppose strongly, clearly, without reservation or equivocation, all amendments, all efforts which will destroy the little social good that is embodied in that Bill. I have listened with great attention to the speeches delivered by the opponents of the Bill, and to me it is a revelation—the attitude which some of the Members have taken up. My Honourable friend, my very orthodox friend from the South, wants more evidence, more deliberation, as if the evidence of centuries were not enough. My Honourable friend wants more figures, as if the figures collected during the last sixty years by the writers of the census reports were not enough. What is the story unfolded in these figures ? The very tragic story of child wives, child widows, early deaths, high birth rates and high death rates, and from the qualitative point of view, the gradual deterioration of the race. If that evidence is not enough for him, I do not know what more evidence will satisfy him. If he has not lost his vision, and his ears and heart are not sealed up, let him come with me and I shall show him visual evidence, not the evidence of figures. Let him come to the hamlets of India at evening time and see the lighted fires.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

[5TH SEPT. 1929.]

[Dr. L. K. Hyder.]

What are those fires ? They are the funeral pyres—of little girls who have been sent from the nuptial bed to the funeral pyre. That is the evidence that will convince him, and if that will not convince him, I do not know what else will convince him. It is useless to say that you want more time and more deliberation. A friend of mine tells me that he belongs to a community which does not observe the custom of early marriage. He is an honourable gentleman. He shows a great deal of public spirit. He says that it does not matter because he is alright and there is nothing wrong with him. It reminds me of a man who went to church and prayed " Oh, Lord, save me and my wife, brother John and his wife, us four and no more ". The Brahmins, the Vaidyas and the Kayasthas of Bengal, because they are literate, because they have a greater command of worldly possessions, have freed themselves from this evil, but the cultivating classes of Bengal and those classes which want to force an entry into the fold of religion are to be kept out and not given the benefit of an enlightened piece of legislation.

Then, Sir, there are some gentlemen who say that it is not at all desirable that the State should interfere with religion. I will say this : that many of the things which come up before us in this House deal with the facts of social life and with social phenomena, and I ask gentlemen to consider whether they would subscribe to this doctrine that the State cannot interfere in a matter of this kind. If that were so, then a large part of those things which would increase the well being of the people of this country would have to lie outside and would not come up before this House. Then, Sir, it has been said by some, " Apply this law to others, but do not apply it to us ". That, Sir, is also a dangerous doctrine. Laws are passed by the State and they apply to all the nationals of the State. There is no exemption in a modern State. Laws apply equally to all the nationals and all the subjects of a State. So that point is ruled out on that ground. If there is an evil, surely what is bad for one section of His Majesty's subjects is equally bad for another section of His Majesty's subjects. I look at the matter from a more worldly point of view. It has been said that marriages are made in Heaven. I do not hold that view and I cannot shut my eyes to the fact that the principal agents arranging a marriage, to take an example, would be, Mr. Acharya and his wife and Mr. Aiyangar and his wife, settling matters relating to age, beauty, stridhan and other things of that kind. These are all material things, things which are of this world, and have nothing to do with the other world. Sir, this measure attempts at minimising one of the evils, namely the practice of child marriage. All the European countries have secular laws and no evil has come out of them.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : No evil ?

Dr. L. K. Hyder : None whatever. One particular writer has said that the custom of early marriage is characteristic of primitive tribes, for instance, the bushmen of Australia and the Hottentots of Africa. I ask, Sir, whether Honourable Members living in this century are prepared to subscribe and give their support to institutions which would place us on an equality with primitive races. If so, I cannot for the life of me think what can become of our other efforts in other spheres. We cannot be astronomers and astrologers at the same time. It can be only one thing.

There is no doubt about it that it shall be only astronomy and not astrology.

Sir, I had occasion, in the last hot weather, to examine, the answers of students coming from the whole of the United Provinces, the whole of Rajputana and the whole of Central India to a question in which they were asked to account for the high rate of mortality among infants. I found, Sir, that one and all, about 1,200 young men, attempted to answer that question, and they said that one of the principal causes of this high mortality was this practice of child marriage. There is more and more evidence to this effect coming from the Universities. Universities in the United Provinces and some colleges in the Punjab have adopted a rule in which they lay down the conditions of admission, and one of the conditions is that they shall not admit a married student who is of a certain age. Sir, things are moving outside.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : Then why do you want legislation ?

Dr. L. K. Hyder : We require legislation in order that the spirit of obscurantism may be removed from our people. Well, Sir, there are a number of other things also included in the qualitative aspect of the population question. You will have to consider in the future, what is it that you want. Quantity or quality ?

Mr. M. K. Acharya : One of the things we want is the quality of the race.

Dr. L. K. Hyder : Then you are the man who ought to be on this side of the House against this practice of child marriage, against breeding too many, against breeding too early and sending them to a very early grave. If my Honourable friend is concerned over the welfare of cows and would therefore have a better kind of cow, why not then a better kind of human being. There is physiological evidence for it, only if you do not seal your hearts or ears against it ; and this question, Sir, is a question which is of vital importance to this country.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member has only one more minute.

Dr. L. K. Hyder : We shall have to decide whether we are going to have among our people persons who are individually as well as collectively incapable and inefficient. If we want a better kind of rice, a better kind of wheat, a better kind of jute plant, surely it is up to us to breed up and not to breed down. Apply the same principle to human beings. They say that science can give no lead whatever. That was the remark made by my friend, Mr. Neogy. Well, Sir, science does throw light on it and that light is this, that definite physical defects are transmitted, and one definite physical defect which we find here is that of consumption, pthisis. If a little girl, who ought to be playing and skipping about, has to function at a tender age as the mother of the race, well, Sir, science says, " The function is too great for her ", and she suffers, and she transmits her defects. What science does not tell us is how, in what way, the diverse characters are transmitted, but there is a large presumption, and that this, that just as in the case of plants and animals, similarly in the case of human beings, you can grade up the quality. Sir, I give my wholehearted support to this measure, and I say that it is time that we, notice the forces at work outside, everywhere, seeing the Chinese cutting their pigtailed and discarding the practice of having small feet for their women.

L4CPB(LA)

and finding other Oriental nations also, whether they like it or not, doing away, in one way or another, with many of their institutions, came round to the view that it is high time for us to discard some of these practices which do not conduce to the well-being of our people. (Applause.)

Mr. E. L. Price (Bombay : European) : Sir, it might be asked why do I, a European, rise on this subject ? In the first place, Sir, because I am a man, and I share the feelings of common humanity,—“ One touch of nature makes the whole world kin ”—and in the second place, if I be segregated here, in my own home-town, I am not segregated there ; I am a man and a citizen, and so I realise to the full the earnest desire of my fellow-citizens for reform in the direction indicated by this Bill. Sir, there is not one of my fellow-citizens in Karachi but would expect me to give my support to this Bill, and I hope not to fail them. I come from the most enlightened Presidency. (Hear, hear.) We have been afflicted lately with grave misfortunes, some arising from the wickedness and folly of man in Bombay proper, (laughter), and now in Sind there have been misfortunes which are the visitation of God, first cholera and then these floods. But for all these misfortunes, the white light of faith has never burnt dim in the Bombay Presidency. Never have we faltered in the high hopes of our destiny in the future as one of the most advanced provinces, and I claim, Sir, that in such a matter, the opinion of the Bombay Presidency must carry great weight even here. (Applause.) And what is public opinion in the Bombay Presidency ? Sir, you will find it hard to put your finger on a spot where that opinion is not in favour of this Bill.

Mr. D. V. Belvi : Question.

Mr. E. L. Price : If you go to Sind and Karachi—excepting the Commissioner in Sind, an official whom I do not think the Benches opposite will be very willing to follow—you cannot find any one, either among officials or the public who has one iota of ill-will to this Bill. Opinion is unanimous.

Now, Sir, I am not dealing with transcendental philosophy, but with the ugly facts of every day life, with the world we live in which is often nearer Hell than Heaven. I make no pretence to say that Karachi lives on one plane and that the highest. On the contrary, we have our faults, and we are making them known continually to one another, in a brotherly way. But we have at least this virtue, that I can challenge anybody here to find in Karachi a thinking man or woman who would wilfully protract the sufferings of children. I insist on the word “ children ”. Look at the evidence given in Karachi about these child wives, the records of Hospitals and Criminal Courts. A child wife of 11½ years of age is raped by her “ husband ”, a man of 32 years,—gravely injured requiring hospital attention ! A child wife between the ages of 11 and 12 years raped by her “ husband ” (save the mark !), a man of 28, involving her death, and there are half a dozen similar cases lately tried in the Sind courts. All the world knows that for every one such case brought to justice there are 50 cases where the child's sufferings go unavenged. (Voices : “ Thousands. ”) The crux of the matter is that, despite the limit of age for consent in the Penal Code, so long as there is no limit to the age of marriage, no national marriage law, children, female children of tender years will be looked on as fair game for sexual practice. That vile point of view has got to be eradicated, and this Bill will possibly help to do it. After all, it has never approved itself to anything that hurts the feelings of any Member of this House, not, doing be remembered that he who strikes a blow in defence of another Bill will not, doing may well be excused if he strikes hard. (Applause.)

Mr. K. C. Roy (Bengal : Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, (Applause.) the clear enunciation of policy made by my Honourable friend Dr. Hyder. Dr. Hyder comes from the University of Aligarh, the seat of Moslem learning and culture. The message that he has given to this House will radiate from here to all stations in India and bring home to the youth of India a new message of hope and charity. It will also rally most of the Moslem waverers in support of this Bill. This is a hope which I fervently express.

The Bill which is now before the House reminds me of many more legislations of similar character already considered. The first I can recall was the Consent Bill of Sir Andrew Scoble, and the second was the Age of Consent Bill to which reference has been made by my friend Mr. Kelkar. The third one was a Bill introduced by the late Mr. Bhupendranath Basu, whose name is well-known to the Members of the House, dealing with the special Hindu marriages. And the fourth one was the Hindu Marriage Validating Bill, with which the name of our President will ever be associated. What was the kind of response which these Bills received? The same sort of reception portrayed by Mr. Acharya and by my Honourable friend Mr. Neogy. In those days most of the opposition came from Bengal. Bengal then had ceased to be for the time being the home of liberty of thought, liberty of conscience, the home of light and culture and of reform movement at the time when the first Age of Consent Act came into being. When my Honourable friends Mr. Neogy and Mr. Amar Nath Dutt spoke on this Bill, I, as a man coming from Bengal, felt humiliated. My Honourable friend Mr. Dutt will not even look at the Bill because the Committee appointed by an alien Government has reported upon it. My Honourable friend Mr. Dutt forgot for the time being that Mr. Harbilas Sarada was not a member of an alien bureaucracy. He is really a native of the soil; he comes from Rajputana, which we all know, and the Bill is not the product of an alien Government.

Then, Sir, what about the Select Committee to which my Honourable friend Mr. Kelkar paid an eloquent tribute? That Select Committee was not the creation of a Satanic Government. It was the creation of this legislative body. He also forgot that for the time being. Lastly, Sir, the Committee, I am very sorry to say, has been very adversely criticised by my Honourable friends Mr. Amar Nath Dutt and by Mr. Acharya. On that Committee, representing the Congress Party to which my Honourable friend Mr. Dutt belongs. Mr. S. C. Mitra, to whose sincerity of purpose and to whose devotion to duty, I can pay a well-merited tribute. The Nationalist Party was represented by Mr. Thakurdas Bhargava, an ardent scholar of social reform well-known all over Northern India. Who else were there? Sir M. V. Joshi, a Liberal of Liberals, a man of great political acumen, a trained lawyer and administrator, and one who is well-known to us. I will only mention two more names. Rai Bahadur Pandit Kanhaiya Lal a Judge of the Allahabad High Court, whose name is well-known to Padit Madan Mohan Malaviya, one than whom a more distinguished son of Hindu culture could not be found. Only one word about the European doctor, Mrs. M. O'Brien Beadon, a member of the Women's Medical Service, than whom a woman more acquainted with the conditions of women's life in India it would be difficult to find today. These are the people who reported on the Age of Consent Bill. I was very glad that the Honourable the Leader of the House defended them in eloquent terms, and as a witness who appeared before them, it is my proud privilege to defend them. A better committee could not have been chosen and a better Report could not have been obtained.

Now, I come to my Honourable friend Mr. Neogy with whom I rarely disagree. He and I have been friends for many years, and the tribute which Mr. Price paid to him is entirely and whole-heartedly shared by me. Mr. Neogy has been carried away by a misrepresentation. Mr. Neogy is one of the most sincere workers I have ever known, but in this particular case I cannot help feeling that he has been misled by the orthodox tyranny of East Bengal, and particularly from my district, of which he is the elected representative. (Hear, hear.) The position which Mr. Neogy voices is the position which existed in 1882. I will now read an extract from the speech of Sir Andrew Scoble. This is what he says on the motion pressing for the consideration of the Age of Consent Bill, 1882 :

"The discussion which has taken place with regard to this Bill during the last ten weeks has had many good effects. It has shown, among other things, that outside Bengal, there is very little real opposition to the measure; that in Bengal itself the extent and importance of the opposition have been by no means so great as has been represented, and that as regards the objections raised to the Bill, its supporters have everywhere had very much the best of the argument."

Precisely the same conditions exist today. I want to know who were those who received those postcards and letters protesting against the Bill, which my Honourable friend Mr. Neogy produced yesterday. My Honourable friend Mr. Neogy has prided himself that he belongs to a community which is not affected by the Bill. Might I ask Mr. Neogy to remember the agitation which followed the passing of the Age of Consent Bill? Who was the promoter of the organisation which led the opposition to that Bill? A gentleman well-known and very much revered in his own community. His name was Mr. Krishna Prasanna Sen, who died as a Sadhu in the holy city of Benares. Who was the other one? Who was the law-giver? A celebrated Bengal divine, but who was just a divine and who knew nothing of the life of modern conditions. His name was Pandit Sasadhar Tarkachuramani and he is well-known all over Bengal. Mr. Neogy has done nothing more. He has dug up the old archives and I wish that, for the good name of Bengal, he had not done so.

Now, Sir, I shall say a few words about the duty of this House. It was my Honourable friend, Mr. Sesha Ayyangar, who raised the question as to who should be the judge. Certainly not the clerics and divines belonging either to the Hindu or the Muhammadan community or the Christian community. The decision belongs to us. The decision belongs to the Governor General in Council, and we are the Council. The decision belongs to us; and we must take the right and correct decision. I am very glad that the Honourable Sir James Crerar has upheld the policy laid down by a distinguished predecessor of his, who also came from the Province of Bombay. Sir Andrew Scoble clearly laid down, that, "It was the clear right and duty of Government to adopt such a course if the necessity for State interference was established". I claim, Sir, that the necessity of State interference has been established beyond a shadow of doubt in regard to this Bill. I am sure, Sir, that the encouragement which has been given to the Bill by the Leader of the House has earned for him the gratitude of all right thinking men. (Hear, hear.)

[5TH SEPT. 1929.]

[Mr. K. C. Roy.]

Now, Sir, I will make one or two observations before I close. What is our duty in the matter? My Honourable friend, Mr. Acharya wants the consideration of the Bill to be postponed, and he has blamed very seriously the Government for not publishing the Age of Consent Committee's Report earlier. What is the position? The position is clearly this. That for two years the Sarda Bill has been before the country. Two Select Committees have reported on it. Not a single day has passed without some criticism or other appearing in the newspapers all over India. The Provincial Governments have reported upon the Bill. The Age of Consent Committee also has approved the Bill. Then what justification can there be for delaying the Bill any further? As my Honourable friend, Mr. Price has clearly pointed out, the object of the Mover of the amendment is quite different and I hope that the House will not permit him to gain his object.

Before I resume my seat I may say I forgot to mention a very important fact, and I think that really does credit to Bengal. My Honourable friend Mr. Mukherjee, an official from Bengal has drawn my attention to that point. This is the first time that I hear, in this Council, that my Honourable friend Mr. Neogy has great reverence for the opinions of the Government of Bengal. I do not quarrel with him on that account. Now-a-days the Bengal Government is not the same Government as it used to be. It is no longer the same powerful Government it used to be. It is a very small unhappy unit of administration today. But it must be said in fairness to the Government of Bengal that they do not for a moment doubt the utility of the Bill. This is what the Bengal Government say:

"Having regard to the object with which the Bill has been prepared, the Governor in Council considers that there can be no doubt as to the desirability of fixing a minimum age so that the chances of Hindu girls becoming widows as children with the result that they are debarred from re-marriage may become fewer."

This is the accepted principle of the old Bill. But of course the present differs from the old Bill. Towards the conclusion the Bengal Government say:

"In conclusion, I am to say that, in the opinion of the Governor in Council, the question is one for Hindus and if Hindu opinion is on the whole in favour of legislation, he would not oppose it."

This is a fair and unequivocal support which the Bengal Government have given to the measure.

Now, Sir, about our own position. We are all clamouring for political advancement, and when that advancement is in sight, let us prove to the outer world with which I am more familiar than those who are absolutely severe critics of the Bill, let us prove to the world that we want to go forward in every direction of our social, civic and political life. Then, we shall get what is our due.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Twenty Minutes to Three of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Twenty Minutes to Three of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha: Sir, as one on whose motion this Bill was referred to a Select Committee some time ago, and as one of those who signed the Report of the Select Committee which we are considering, I think it is hardly necessary for me to say that I oppose all dilatory motions that have been tabled, and support the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration.

Mr. M. S. Aney (Berar Representative): Is there not one tabled by you?

Kumar Ganganand Sinha: My friend from the Nationalist Benches reminds me that there is one motion tabled by me which is in the nature of a dilatory motion. I would at once say that I would explain in the course of my speech why I tabled this motion and why, on subsequent thought, I considered it advisable not to move that motion. I think, Sir, it has been rightly pointed out by some of the Members who have preceded me that this Bill has been very long before this House and before the country. It was introduced on the 1st February, 1927. It was referred to a Select Committee by a motion of this House on the 15th September, 1927. The Select Committee reported in March 1928. The Bill was in the meanwhile circulated, and after the Select Committee reported it was re-circulated. So the country had the opportunity of considering the Bill not on one occasion but on two occasions, and from the opinions that were received it was evident that it was thoroughly considered by all the provinces. After the opinions were gathered for the second time the Select Committee again went through the opinions and the considered Report of the Select Committee is now before the House. The House is well aware that in January last the consideration of the Bill was postponed on the ground that the Age of Consent Committee, which was then functioning, was going soon to report on allied matters, and it was worth while to wait a few months and to know what their conclusions were. Well, Sir, before we met, we got that Age of Consent Committee's Report. Besides that there was so much of Press and platform propaganda both for and against the Bill since its introduction that it cannot be said that it was not fully considered. It may be that all the provisions of this Bill are not acceptable to the Honourable Members, but is that a reason why we should not consider the Bill at all? I consider that that is exactly the reason why we should consider the Bill, make such improvements as we consider desirable to the best of our lights, and make this Bill a law in order that the evils which it wants to eradicate might be done away with.

On the question whether we should have this legislation or not—and this is the question which we consider now—I took special care to ascertain orthodox opinions, because I find that among the Hindus it is chiefly what is called "orthodox opinion" which is opposed to the legislation. You will remember, Sir, that on the 15th September, 1927, when the question was whether the original Bill introduced by my Honourable friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda should be circulated for public opinion or should be referred to Select Committee, my friend Mr. M. K. Acharya himself, who has now moved the dilatory motion that is before the House said:

"I say Hindu orthodox opinion will not object to our legislating that marriage before a certain minimum age—my own opinion is that it must be ten at the present day—is against the Shastras and so null and void."

Mr. M. K. Acharya: I still say it.

552

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

[5TH SEPT. 1929.]

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : I am glad to find that my friend Mr. Acharya is not objecting to the legislation still.

He is in favour of the legislation ; but he knows full well what the effect will be of this dilatory motion. It has been pointed out this morning by one of my Honourable friends on the European Benches that the object underlying all dilatory motions is practically to wreck the Bill. He is right. If we want legislation, let us proceed with the Bill, and let us consider it at once, instead of postponing it for any further period. It is no use carrying on this guerilla warfare and trying to kill the Bill by postponements. Let us take the bull by the horns. My object in giving notice of the amendment that is on the agenda paper was to incorporate in this Bill certain provisions in the light of the Age of Consent Committee's Report, such as marriage register, provisions for marriage certificates, birth registers and such others, as may be necessary effectively and smoothly to administer the law. I find, Sir, that we shall be under the necessity of making such provisions when this Bill is passed into law by bringing in a Supplementary Bill or by amending sections of the existing laws ; and I wanted that, instead of waiting to amend these provisions subsequently, we should incorporate those provisions in this Bill. But I find that the feeling in regard to the essentials of this Bill is running so high that it is harmful in the national interest to wait, and imperative to put the Bill on the Statute-book as soon as possible. It is better to leave it to the House and the Government to make such alterations in details when we have agreed on the essentials. It is no use keeping this Damocles' sword hanging over the country. The country will remain in suspense and uncertainty for a further indefinite period, and I am afraid much harm may be caused thereby. For these reasons I do not think that any dilatory motion, even that modest motion of mine, would help the cause at this stage. It is true that it would have been very helpful both to the Members of this House and to the country outside if the evidence volumes of the Committee's Report had been published as they were taken even before the Report was published. In that case the people might have been in touch with the nature of the evidence that was adduced in the various provinces on this question. But even when that has not been done, I do not think that it in any way strengthens the case for further postponement. We know the opinions for and against this measure. It has been before this country, as the House is well aware, for a very long time, and if people have not thought over the matter, if they have not cared to ascertain the views for and against the measure, I think it is primarily their fault. I was looking into the opinion of the province from which I have the honour to come and I find that the Government of Bihar and Orissa is in favour of legislation of this kind. They have got a suspicion that the legislation in its present form may be a dead letter, and that the legislation as it stands might be abused, but they have no doubt on the point that this legislation is a necessary piece of legislation. They report that seven District Judges, including four Hindus, and two Subordinate Judges are in favour of this Bill and that four District Judges, including one Hindu, are against. Amongst non-officials, eleven Bar Associations are in favour of the Bill, while five Bar Associations and two recognised associations are against it. Now, Sir, our province is one which is considered to be a backward province in the matter of social advancement. (An Honourable Member : "No.") (Laughter.) The Age of Consent Committee reports that child marriage is very prevalent in my province ; and when I say that it is considered to be a backward province I do not mean that it is really backward, but that it is the opinion of many that on the score of early marriage, it is a backward province. Therefore, when I find that opinion in that province is decidedly in favour of legislation of this kind, I am strengthened in my view that this piece of legislation must be passed into law without delay. The Age of Consent Committee has, in a very instructive appendix, stated the number of witnesses for and against marriage and consent laws. For Bihar and Orissa, the total number of witnesses is 64 : out of which as many as 44 witnesses want a marriage law ; and only four witnesses do not want it at all ; while eight have not said either way. This figure itself will show what is the demand in my province for a marriage law.

Sir, Shastras have been quoted to show that the provisions of the Bill violate their injunctions. I took care also to ascertain opinions from people learned in the Shastras in my part of the country. Of course there is a considerable amount of feeling with regard to the prescribed marriageable age ; but so far as a marriage law itself is concerned, they are of opinion that, if it is brought down to a certain age, they will have no objection to it at all. Then so far as the texts are concerned, the Honourable Members, if they will turn over the pages of the Age of Consent Committee Report, will find at once that, even in the Parishads of Pandits, they could not come to any final decision about what the marriageable age should be. In page 106 of the Report, the third question in the Conjeevaram Parishad of April 1912 was : "Do any of the Shastras prescribe post-puberty marriage for Brahmin girls or at least permit such marriage as inferior alternative ?" In answer, eight Pandits held that the Shastras prescribed post-puberty marriage for Brahmin girls ; two Pandits held that some prescribed and others merely permitted such marriages ; 21 Pandits held that the Shastras permit that, under certain cir-

3 P. M. cumstances, marriage can be performed for a period of three or four years after puberty. Nine Pandits held that the Shastras permit such marriage only under unavoidable circumstances, and three Pandits held that, though permitted by the Shastras under certain circumstances, such marriages should be against the practice of the pious and the learned, and should not be adopted, and seven Pandits held that the Shastras prohibit post-puberty marriages. Of course, we know that the Pandits who interpreted the Shastras are all very learned people, but when there is such a divergence of opinion on this point, it is really very difficult for persons like me to come to a decision on a controversial matter like this. If Honourable Members will be good enough to refer to subsequent pages, they will find that there is a wide divergence of opinion among the learned Pandits who had the opportunity of learning those Shastras on other matters too ; and when such great Pandits differ fundamentally on many of these points, it is really difficult for a layman like me to come to a decision merely on this Shastraic basis. We have therefore to act to the best of our lights and according to the public opinion prevailing in different parts of the country. Sir, I think I am not competent enough to speak from the Muslim point of view, but I also took care to ascertain, as far as I could from the published papers, their opinion. I find that the Age of Consent Committee tried to get the views of Muslim theologians, but they do not seem to have come forward to tender evidence in sufficient numbers before the Committee. Whose fault is this ?

Mr. President : The Honourable Member must now finish.

Kumar Ganganand Sinha : And I find, Sir, that one of the members of the Committee, Mr. Kadiri, has said that he wanted more Muslim theological opinions to be gathered only if the passage of the Bill was not delayed. I would only repeat the appeal to my Muhammadan colleagues here that they should not delay the passage of the Bill. I again appeal to the House, Sir, to reject the dilatory motion and face the issues boldly and squarely. They may not be satisfied with the Bill as it is, but they are perfectly within their rights to amend it, and they will get that opportunity only after they have passed this motion for consideration. Sir, I support the motion for consideration.

Mr. D. V. Belvi : Sir, I may say at the very outset that I am opposed to the further consideration of this Bill, and my reasons are these. I oppose the consideration of the Bill not because I am an orthodox man myself. I am not an orthodox man in my private life. (Hear, hear.) What has been laid down in the Bill has already been translated into action in my own case, and I have said so in this House more than once. But the main reason why I oppose this Bill is that the controversial tone which was adopted by the Honourable the Home Member in the discussion of this Bill prompts me to tell him very frankly that he is entirely wrong in supposing that he has got behind him a large mass of public opinion.

Several Honourable Members : He certainly has a large mass of public opinion behind him. How can you say that he has not ?

Mr. D. V. Belvi : I say, he has not. I will make myself clear. The opinion has been ascertained in a certain way, or rather in the usual way, but it should have been ascertained in quite a different way in the case of a Bill of this character. I put a question to the Honourable the Home Member in the last session of this Assembly at Delhi as to whether the religious heads of the various castes and sub-castes had been specially consulted about this Bill, and the reply given to me was that public opinion had been consulted in the usual way. I submit, Sir, that this is a wrong way of ascertaining public opinion in a matter which is of a quasi-religious nature. This is a Bill with which the educated people of the country, or at any rate a large mass of the educated people, do sympathise. I am one of those who sympathise with the Bill, but the people who will be mainly affected will be the masses of the people. Now, Sir, what is the state of the country at present ? You know that, even after the advent of British rule in this country for over 150 years, the percentage of literacy has not gone beyond 10 per cent. It means that not even 10 people out of 100 are able to scribble their names, which means that the large mass of the people are still ignorant. It is no use taking the opinion of the English educated gentlemen in a matter like this. They are all in favour of this Bill, I know. The opinions of High Court Judges, the opinions of District Judges, the opinions of District Magistrates do not matter much. These things count for very little. Properly speaking, the District Magistrates should have been asked to ascertain the opinion of the people of each village through their Mamlatdars and through their Tehsildars from village to village. It would not have been very difficult for Government to ascertain the real opinion of the people in that way. If that had been done, surely I would have found my way to support this measure if I found that the bulk of the people were in favour of this measure. And I do challenge the assertion which was made in a very dogmatic, in a very controversial manner, I may say in a very pontifical manner by the Honourable the Home Member. I was very much surprised to find that he should have taken, on behalf of Government, such a dogmatic position in the matter as he did. Government is entirely wrong in supposing that public opinion has been sufficiently consulted in this matter. That is my first reason for opposing this Bill.

My second reason is that the Members who are now sitting in this House have no right to legislate on a matter like this without having the support of their constituents. Were they sent to this Assembly to legislate on social matters ? Was this matter before the public when we were returned to this House as representatives of the people ? Is it not a fraud upon the public ? (Several Honourable Members : "No, no.") It certainly is. I am entitled to hold my view. I say it is a fraud on the people to pass a social legislation of this character without consulting the people, without consulting our constituents who returned us to this House. Sir, I have been asked by some of my constituents to oppose this Bill stoutly. (Honourable Members : "How many ?") How many people have you consulted in this matter ? You have consulted only a very small percentage of the people. (Several Honourable Members : "We have consulted hundreds and thousands.") In the first place, 10 per cent. is not even the standard of literacy in this country, and what are you after all ? You are only an infinitesimally small fraction of the people. You are only, in the words of Burke, half a dozen grasshoppers making a lot of noise in the forest, while there are hundreds of big animals resting under the oak. What is your percentage as compared with the total population in the country ? You talk English very well here. You are people who have got very few scruples. You can eat anything, you can drink anything. You do not know either the civilization of Europeans or the civilization of the Aryans. You are such people.

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mr. D. V. Belvi : You are Hindus only in name, and intellectual hybrids. That is my view of the matter.

My third reason, shortly, is this. We have not been commissioned by our constituents to pass a legislation of this character. A meeting was held the other day in the city of Ratnagiri, and I was specially written to to oppose this Bill. That is the view of my constituency. Now, Sir, I ask the Honourable the Home Member whether he does not know anything of the constituency which I represent in this Assembly. He is a civilian from the Bombay Presidency. He worked for several years in my part of the country, namely in the district of Dharwar. Does he not know that every caste, every sub-caste, has got its own Guru there ? Why were not these people consulted ? Why are Government afraid of consulting these people ? Are they afraid of having the opinion of people who will express themselves freely and frankly, and is it intended that these people should not be consulted at all ?

An Honourable Member : Were they prevented from giving their opinion ?

Mr. D. V. Belvi : How could they give their opinion unless they are approached in the proper manner ? You do not ask them in the first instance and you do not ascertain opinions in the way in which it should be done, and you say now, because these people did not come forward to oppose the Bill, therefore you presume that the majority of the people are in favour of it. This is a double wrong to the people.

My next reason is that the original Bill has been transformed out of recognition. Originally it was a civil Bill, pure and simple. It was a Bill intended to apply to Hindus only. When it went to the Select Committee, it assumed a new form altogether ; from a civil Bill it came to be a penal Bill and a Bill which is intended to affect the whole country. I find the Mussalmans, many of them at any rate, are opposed to this. The Mussalmans do not want this Bill. (Some Honourable Members : "No.") It is no use interrupting me simply because I am opposing the Bill. I have outlived such interruptions on a thousand occasions, and I assure you that if you go on interrupting me I won't stop. We were told yesterday by our Honourable friend Mr. Abdul Haye that the Mussalmans as a body are opposed to this Bill. (Cries of "No, no.") (An Honourable Member : "What did Mr. Shah Nawaz say ?") There are some Muhammadans in favour of the Bill, I know, but the great mass of the people, at any rate, the mass of orthodox people as represented by the Ulemas under whose authority a fatwa has been issued to thousands of people—and I have got with me a copy of the fatwa—are opposed to the Bill. The Ulemas say that, even in the time of their Great Prophet, child marriage was in vogue. It is said that the Prophet himself had contracted child marriage, that he married a girl when she was only six years of age. I do not know whether it is true, but this thing has been published under the imprimatur of the authority of the Ulemas, and I suppose the Ulemas are the same as our Pandits. At any rate, I find the whole of the Muhammadan community is not in favour of the Bill.

Then I find that it is intended to make this a penal law binding upon the whole country. Is it intended to send our sons, and our sons-in-law to jail ? Is it intended to drag our daughters and sisters and daughters-in-law into courts ? You want to have two ages, one for marriage and another for consummation. If you want to have an evil, let us have one evil. If you can satisfy me that the mass of the people is with you, then I am surely willing to accept the whole Bill ; not only that, but I am even willing to go further. Some of my Honourable friends have persuaded me to agree to marriage at 12 in the case of a girl. I say, no. Either have it 14 or even 15, or reject this Bill altogether. It is no use tinkering with the matter. If you are afraid of people like Miss Katherine Mayo, and if you bring in this Bill simply to make an impression upon the people of America and Europe that you are progressing very fast in matters social then pass a Bill once and for all fixing the age even at 16 or 18 for women and 25 or 30 for men. But have it once and for all and boldly. Don't tinker with the thing. There can be no compromise in a matter like this. If you are prepared to ignore the religious convictions of people then be bold and have this measure passed. If you speak in a disrespectful tone of the Shastras you may do so, but there are hundreds and thousands of those who respect the Shastras ; it is a matter of religious conviction with them. I was told by one of my friends here that the Shastras make provision for penance in the case where the marriage age is exceeded. The exception and is an exception to be made the rule ? We were told that the conscientious objector may go to jail, may pay the fine, I think it is only a desperate remedy ; it is not a piece of sensible legislation. Sensible legislation should only proceed with the consent of the people. We should remember that the Government in this country is not a foreign Government. Some Europeans may live in this country for twenty years, and yet they would not be able to appreciate our feelings. This is instanced by what the Honourable the Home Member said yesterday. They live in complete detachment and they do not know what our minds. They only come in contact with people who talk in words and who say, yes and ditto to whatever they say. They do not approach people who would speak to them frankly and tell them the truth. That is their weakness. The Honourable the Home Member was obviously mistaken in his belief. There are bound to be fresh converts to our country in the course of a year or so. Nothing will be the result of one year. This question will be placed before the Government in the course of one year. These reformers, hot and hasty reformers, are returned, and I am also returned fortunately, I shall be one with them, and I shall be the first to advocate a measure of this kind. But let us wait. Let us wait for one year. The heavens are not going to come down if you wait for one year. We are told we have grown physically weak owing to early marriages. Every one of us here sitting is the product of a child marriage. I am myself a son of parents who were married when they were children and I do not think I am very weak. (An Honourable Member : "You would have been stronger.") I am not going to take up the time of the House by narrating my own personal history. But I tell you this, that mighty intellects, great warriors and great scholars have been brought forth by men and women who were married when they were children. Do you mean to say that you should follow all the customs and manners of Europeans and Americans ? If so, read the literature on the subject, read the latest book "Uncle Sham" and you will see what is going on in America, how the American unmarried girls are behaving themselves. Look at the opinion of Judge Lindsey, and one writer says that it is very difficult to find a marriageable girl there who has not had carnal intercourse with a man. That may be an ex parte statement, but at any rate, I am not going to follow in the wake of people who have got different civilisations of their own. It may be true, or it may be false. My opinion is that we should follow our own civilisation. We may promote social reform in our own humble way and social reform should come from within and not from without. The marriageable age of boys and girls has gone on upwards considerably. You will be surprised to hear that, when I married my first wife, she was only five years old. When I married my second wife she was 12 years old, and my mother was married, she used to tell me, when she was a baby of six months. You will be agreeably surprised to find that social reform is making progress steadily. My own daughters were married after they had actually completed 14 years. My sons have married girls who were not less than 14 at the time of their marriage. Society tolerates this, but society will not tolerate your oppression or coercion. You have no right to force down the throats of people your own views. You must persuade them. What have these reformers done to persuade people to make progress socially ? They come here and move Resolutions. They come here and move Bills simply to have their names put on the Statute-Book, that such and such a Bill was passed on that opinion, I would simply hang my head in shame; and I would say to myself that I have got very timid companions to work out the salvation of this country. I should think that my friends ought to know better. They ought to know that this matrimonial tie is brought about by many considerations—considerations which are too numerous to enumerate. I would however place before you one or two which are very important and they are these. I think you will agree with me that this evil exists in the lowest strata of society. (An Honourable Member : “No”.) That is my experience. Personally I do not know of any educated family which is the victim of this practice. My experience is that this evil exists only amongst the lower classes of the people. Why is it there? Try to find out the genesis of it. My diagnosis of the evil is that the man does not understand the fundamental principles and value of life. Sometimes the man is incapable of keeping his daughters unmarried because he cannot provide them with sufficient food. If a man has five daughters consecutively he cannot provide all the daughters with sufficient food, and thinks it more convenient that some of them should be married, so that their husbands might provide for them. Many instances of this kind have happened to my knowledge, and therefore I say that you should try to eradicate these evils which are the root cause of child marriage. Try to educate them, give them primary education, make primary education compulsory throughout the length and breadth of the country. Make the economic condition of the people better than it is at present, and last but not the least, the evil of untouchability is the greatest evil of the country, and I believe every human being who has any sympathy with mankind would think that a country in which untouchability prevails is not a country worth living in. Since the awakening of India, untouchability has been in the forefront of all reforms.

(At this stage Mr. President vacated the Chair, which was taken by Mr. Deputy President.)

I have never heard that there is such an evil as child marriage, and that this should be eradicated before we can go further. I have never heard of it. If my friends are so zealous of reforming this evil, have they not got other means of doing it? Is it that they cannot do it without the aid of the Legislature? Do you want that the Legislature should invade the private life of a family? I should shudder at that idea. The evil might be eradicated in a few cases with the help of this legislation, but the evil cannot be eradicated in the case of the poorer people who, on account of their economic condition, ignorance and other causes, are accustomed to this sort of evil practice. Therefore my humble suggestion to my friends is not to abuse the power of legislation which they have got in this House. It should be utilised at the proper time and not in matters which concern so vitally the private life of the people of this country. If legislation is considered to be necessary by our Hindu fellow-countrymen for the removal of this evil from their society, I should tell them that they should not make a universal law for the whole of India. They must realise that India is a vast country. A man in Madras is not at all the same as a man in the Punjab. Go to the two places, and you find it out. The custom in the Punjab is quite different from the custom in Madras. Therefore, in a vast country like this, to have a universal law for the whole length and breadth of India is simply enforcing a thing which the country cannot endure for long. I would therefore advise that this universal nature of this Bill should under any circumstance be removed. Sir, I think that the difficulty of this nature in the Bill was foreseen in the very beginning when my Honourable friend, Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda was good enough to put in a Bill to regulate the marriages of children amongst the Hindus. That was his idea at that time. Later he had a talk with me. I said, "All right, if you think that you cannot reform your society by education, and propaganda, then of course you may have your own way and for the Hindu children you may have legislation". Sometime after we heard that it was going to be applied to the Mussalmans also. We have not had any authoritative statement as to how the Mussalmans were dragged in. I have not yet heard anything about that which can be said to be authoritative. The Select Committee's Report, which has been given to us on this occasion, does not mention a word as to how the Mussalmans were included. I thought that this omission might be supplied by the Honourable Home Member, who was speaking so ardently on this question. But in his speech he was absolutely silent over this point. He did not tell us how we came in. Under whose authority have the Mussalmans been dragged in?

An Honourable Member : Look at the paper that has been given to you.

Maulvi Mohammad Shafee Daoodi : Tell me which referred to. I would tell my friends on this side of the House as on the other side that the Mussalmans have got law of their own so far as marriage relationships are concerned. All personal questions we have got a complete code of our own governed by such vague and doubtful theories which you may see across in your own case. We have got definite pronouncements, sanctions in our religion. For everything there is a provision. For when she is married against her will there is a provision for her to repudiate the marriage when she attains puberty. There are traditions of our Prophet—peace be on him—that a Mussalman should not marry a girl unless she understands what marriage is, and so on and so forth. I need not dilate upon that. My friend, the Deputy President, Maulvi Muhammad Yakub, has mentioned some of them in his minute of dissent. However, this is not the place where I should argue these things. How Mussalman children are protected by our Shariat from the evil doings of their guardians I need not dilate upon. You may rest assured, Sir, that our Shariat contains everything, and it is therefore that the Mussalmans are protected by their Shariat. They have only to know their laws, and it is for that reason that we have never heard any complaint of child marriage amongst the Mussalmans.

An Honourable Member : Question.

Maulvi Mohammad Shafee Daoodi : I say I never heard any complaint. Take the questionnaire which has been so framed as not to give an opportunity to Mussalmans to express their opinion on questions affecting them. It is so framed as to indicate that they apply to the Hindus alone. My friend, Maulvi Muhammad Yakub has described, in the Report itself, as to how Mussalmans generally and a large body of them learned in theology could not be examined before the Commissioners.

An Honourable Member : Why?

Maulvi Mohammad Shafee Daoodi : I do not know. However whatever that may be, it must be clearly understood that the Mussalmans as community do not require any legislation whatsoever on this question. It would be, I should say, a very cruel encroachment on the rights of the Mussalmans, on the personal law of the Mussalmans if this House was going to impose this Bill on the Mussalmans also because the non-Muslims are so many here and we are so few in this House, and as it is now the age of the rule of the majority over the minority.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Can a minority rule the majority?

Maulvi Mohammad Shafee Daoodi : Sir, I heard with rapt attention what my friend, Dr. Hyder, was saying. I should not say more than is necessary. It might be unpleasant. Dr. Hyder's support should not be considered—I emphatically and strongly assert—as the support of the Mussalmans. (Hear, hear.) He has an individuality which he has always made use of, no matter what the Mussalman opinion is.

An Honourable Member : What constituency does he represent?

Maulvi Mohammad Shafee Daoodi : I should say that the Honourable Members on the Government and on the Opposition Benches should not be misled by Dr. Hyder's support. Dr. Hyder clearly said he would not talk of the religious aspect. But he should know that his presence here is due to the fact that he professes Islam.

An Honourable Member : Is he not a Mussalman?

Maulvi Mohammad Shafee Daoodi : Still he would think it beneath his dignity to quote the Mussalman opinion on this question, and to consider what his constituency has got to say on this point. I do not want to take any more time on this question. But I would like, in the end, to say that the religious practices and the social life of my community in India should be held very sacred both by the Government as well as by the majority community. I should like to impress upon my friends in this Assembly that light-hearted actions in matters like this may lead us into a very serious situation. It is not only one aspect of life that will be affected, but, as I foresee, the whole aspect of our society will be affected by legislation on this question. As I said before, the prosecution will be not for the sake of getting those who have done wrong according to this Bill punished, but it will be mostly launched out of spite for some previous grudge. We know very well that in this House there are so many minority groups. (An Honourable Member : "Are there?") I should think so. If you do not admit that fact, you do not admit what is like day-light. That is how I look at it. (Laughter.) And every group which is represented here has got its own social customs and religious practices.

Mr. Rafi Ahmad Kidwai (Lucknow and Fyzabad Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Does Dr. Hyder represent a group?

Maulvi Mohammad Shafee Daoodi : I should say that these customs and religious practices should not be interfered with by other communities. I will give an example to make my point clear, so that it might be understood by the official group which is so zealously supporting this Bill. Take, for instance, the social customs prevailing among our Anglo-Indian friends. Many of them I should say are so harmful to our society in India that we would like to stop them if we had our own way. Take, for instance, the dress of their ladies. The way in which they dress themselves is not at all compatible with the notions of decency which we Indians have. I would have thought that on this question of dressing oneself the notions of decency of Indians would have been respected by our Anglo-Indian friends. Still it is not at all desirable to have any legislation to put a ban on persons going about in public and on the roads without covering themselves sufficiently. I should say that this is one of the many examples which I could cite on this occasion. It is enough for my purpose to show that the religious practices and social customs of the various communities inhabiting India are so different from each other that one universal law cannot be said to be applicable to all of them. It is therefore much better to leave the question of the reform of such evil customs to the community itself. If the Mussalmans want a legislation on this point, certainly the Mussalmans will consider the pros and cons, and come up with their suggestions, which will be helpful to the society. But it is not for one community to impose its will on the members of another community. With these words, I support the motion for the postponement of this Bill, which was moved in the very beginning. If that motion fails, then I would not like to come in the way of my Hindu friends to have legislation for their own community, but I would not in any circumstance consent to have any legislation for the Mussalmans of India on the matter before us.

L4CPB(LA)

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee (Nominated : Indian Christians): Sir, I rise to oppose, as strongly as I can, the amendment put forward by my learned friend Mr. M. K. Acharya, and to support, as strongly as I can, the motion moved by my Honourable friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda in its entirety. It may be asked why I should have intervened in this debate? My reason briefly is that, in the first place, I was elected by this House as a member of the Select Committee to whose care this Bill was twice committed. Secondly, it seems to have been forgotten that this Bill does not refer only to one community but applies equally to all communities. Therefore, I think, that a Member, whatever his community may be, has a right to speak on this Bill. As regards the speech of my friend Mr. Acharya, who, I regret to say, is running away, I need only say that his arguments need very little refutation for he refuted his own arguments himself. He wanted delay because he had not considered the Report of the Age of Consent Committee and in the two and a half hours oration he delivered he showed clearly that, not only had he read it carefully, but had even studied the biographies of the gentlemen and ladies who composed that Committee. (Laughter.) Sir, so far as he is concerned, he made it quite clear that he thought the Report was not worth the paper on which it was written. Therefore, what need has he to consider the Report, which he thinks is of no value at all, and on the views of whose members he tried to pour ridicule. All that is clear from his motion is that he has tried to make a last attempt, like a drowning man who clutches at any piece of straw. He thinks that his cause is a lost cause, and therefore he wants to delay the passage of the Bill in the hope that the delay may wreck it. He asked what are two years in the history of a nation. Those are strange words in the mouth of a gentleman who belonged, a little time ago, to a certain party. I should like to know what his erstwhile friends would have said to these words of his in regard to other matters. He quoted me and said that I had at one time pleaded that marriage was a sacrament. But he did not remember that what I said was that a section of the Christian Church, namely, the Catholic Church, believed marriage to be a sacrament. At that time my objection to the measure was in the interests of women, just as my support to the present Bill is also in their interests. That was a Bill to make divorce easier. When divorce is made easier who suffers? Women. Similarly as I believe that this Bill is in the interests of women I support it whole heartedly.

As regards the long speech of my Honourable friend Mr. Sesha Ayyangar, I do certainly have great respect for what he has said. He certainly spoke from conviction, and I believe he had a right to speak, and to put in his plea, because the provisions of this Bill very largely affect the community which he represents. But, at the same time, I regret that it should have been left to him to take that stand,—he ever so learned a gentleman coming from ever so learned a Presidency as Madras. He made great play over half a dozen meetings which had been held in different places and which condemned the Bill. He made much capital of the opinions of two orthodox ladies who we are told have come on a recent orthodox deputation and who have spoken against this Bill. I ask him if he honestly maintains that women do really oppose this Bill, even women from his own part. Has he ever heard of Dr. Reddy, whom his own compatriots have elected Deputy President of the Legislative Council of his Presidency? Is not her opinion worth any weight as against the opinions of people that he has quoted? Then again I ask him, is the opinion of two or three women or even of 50 women who have been asked to put their thumb impressions on petitions worth anything? I will remind him of another piece of legislation which was enacted many years ago, the legislation for the abolition of sati. It is well known that at that time a memorial was presented to the Governor General on which the thumb marks—I do not suppose they could write in those days—of 50,000 women were placed. These women pleaded that if the law against sati was passed, if sati was prohibited, then their religion would quiver and that they would commit satyagraha. Those 50,000 women have passed away, and no satyagraha took place. The present Bill is exactly the same kind of legislation. I think it is very much more important because in the case of sati, it was one in ten thousand or even one in a million women who became a sati, whereas in this case, it is a long drawn out sati. In the case of millions of child widows, it is worse than sati, it is a long drawn agony. My Honourable friend Mr. Sesha Ayyangar made great play on the problem of "the Beyond". He brushed aside the opinion of women who support this Bill, (after all it is the women who are concerned in this Bill) by saying that these women were concerned with the pleasures and happiness of the present world only. My Honourable friend says "We are a great nation, we are a great people, what do we want with the present life or with the present world? We only think of the life beyond". He also said that women who possess piety and patriotism only love the life beyond. They do not want the present world, nor do they want the present Bill. So that all the arguments that he urged amount to this. We are men, we have got vested interests and so we alone have got the right to live for the present world. We love the present world, we want to enjoy life. This is what men say. So far as women are concerned, men leave to them the world beyond and so deny them the pleasures of the present world. That is the argument usually advanced by men who have got vested interests. Anybody who has got the power might say to him when he wishes to oppress,

[The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee.]

"There is the world beyond for you". If we say that, can not other people turn round and say to us : "You are the people who believe in the world beyond. There is for you the world beyond with all its eternal ages. Why do you worry about the present?" How would my Honourable friends meet an argument such as that? I wish that, for the benefit of my Honourable friends, we could have a vision of the world beyond. I wish we could see the shades of victims on whom terrible sufferings were inflicted by those as the result of this pernicious custom. If only we could look into that world of spirits, we would find the shades of ancient sages, of ancient Rishis and of ancestors of the orthodox Brahmins, who were my ancestors as well as the ancestors of my Honourable friends from the South. We would hear them say : "Alas ! How have our descendents misinterpreted the views of ancient Vedas, and distorted the ancient customs which prevailed when India was at its greatest." Then they would point us to the shades of millions of child wives, of child widows who suffered life-long agonies and lay on the funeral pyres, so feelingly referred to by my Honourable friend Dr. Hyder. All these call for vengeance on those who started this pernicious custom which prevails today and also on those who want to continue it today.

But, Sir, what does the "world beyond" mean? It does not only mean the world that is passed; it also refers to the ages yet to come. In the days when the agitation against the prevention of sati was started, it was fortunate for those who favoured the retention of that custom that there were no Legislative Assemblies, and there were no official reporters to take down their words. The words of those who wanted sati to be upheld were not taken down by any reporters. So fortunately all that they said in support of sati has been forgotten. But, now-a-days there are such things as official reports and the reporters record every word that is uttered today. I wonder, Sir, what the great granddaughters of those who oppose this Bill will think of their ancestors when they come to read the proceedings of the debate on this Bill. Will they be proud to read the orations of gentlemen who stand up today and want to uphold these customs?

When my Honourable friends Mr. Acharya and Mr. Sesha Ayyangar saw groups of girls of tender age outside the Assembly, their hearts bled. It is possible that some of the women who were demonstrating before the Assembly Chamber may have suffered from these evils themselves and perhaps that is why they were supporting the Bill. But when my Honourable friends saw this, their soft hearts bled. Yet their soft hearts do not bleed at the cry that rises up from every part of the country. A short time ago, a certain paper in this country said that it would be a very good thing if a wireless set of apparatus was put in the confinement chamber of child wives and child mothers, and connected with the homes of those who protest against this Bill and who want to keep up this tyranny. I do not desire to add to the harrowing pictures painted by Dr. Hyder or by Mr. Price. That would only give material for the compilation of literature and books such as have been so often criticised here. Yet I hope, Sir, that the cry of pain, the cry of great distress that goes up from hospitals, from numerous homes in villages and towns, from the orthodox houses, from out of educated houses and ignorant homes may reach and torment the ears of people who have the power to set things right and to save these poor girls from such terrible tyranny.

As for my Honourable friend Mr. Neogy, his words are entitled to the greatest respect. He does not as a rule mince matters. Therefore when he made his last speech, he prefaced by saying that he belonged to a community which did not practise child marriage but he did not want others to do as his community did. He wanted others to do as he said. In other words he does not want them to benefit by the example of himself or that of his community.

(At this stage Mr. President resumed the Chair.)

Now my Honourable friend Mr. K. C. Roy has ably answered the points raised by Mr. Neogy. He quoted the opinion of the Bengal Government.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan). He misquoted. He quoted from a wrong extract.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : I believe certain injustice was done to my Honourable friend Mr. Neogy by Mr. Roy quoting the opinion of the Bengal Government on the first Bill.

Mr. B. Das : He misquoted.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : Possess your soul in patience and I shall explain. My Honourable friend Mr. Roy committed a slight mistake unintentionally. He quoted the views of the Bengal Government on the first Bill, whereas Mr. Neogy quoted the opinion of the Bengal Government on the second Bill. Both were right. Mr. Neogy referred to the second Report while Mr. Roy referred to the first Report.

All the same Mr. Neogy also quoted from the views of the Government of the Punjab and he quoted from the first paper and not from the second paper. I believe this is a mistake that we have been constantly making in the course of this debate. The Bill as first brought in by the Honourable the Mover was circulated for opinion, subsequently the Bill as amended by the Select Committee was also circulated. The Provincial Governments recorded opinions on both cases. In several instances their subsequent opinion was quite different to that expressed in the first instance.

As regards the views put forward by Mr. Abdul Haye and my Honourable friend who spoke from the seat opposite, their main contention especially Mr. Haye's was that the Muhammadans have either not been properly consulted, or that they have not had sufficient opportunities for expressing their views. Now, Sir, I put it to you, whose fault is it that the Muhammadans did not express their views? Is it or is it not a fact that a distinguished Muhammadan gentleman, the Deputy President of this House, Maulvi Muhammad Yakub, was a member of the Select Committee that he presided at the meetings of the Select Committee on both occasions when this Bill was before the Select Committee and that on the first occasion he signed the Report of the Select Committee without any note of dissent? Mr. Yakub is in intimate touch with the Ulemas. He could have easily persuaded them to give their opinion. He certainly had ample opportunity. Secondly, when this Age of Consent Committee was formed is it or is it not a fact that every party was consulted as to who should be their representatives on the Committee? Two Muhammadan gentlemen I believe, nominated by their own party, were made members of it.

Mr. Muhammad Rafique (Calcutta and Suburbs : Muhammadan Urban) : After the questionnaire was framed and circulated.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : That is a very small matter. They could have amended or added to the questionnaire.

So, Sir, in the first place this proves that the Age of Consent Committee was representative, because the gentlemen on it were not selected by Government but nominated by the leaders of different parties, and secondly that the Muhammadan members on it were the choice of their own party. Consequently it is very difficult, at this stage, to maintain that Muhammadans did not have time to express their views. Moreover, it is quite clear that a large number of witnesses who were Muhammadans appeared before the Committee. I find that Mr. Sayid Hassan Nizami who, in the words of our Deputy President the other day, was described as a famous religious leader and a distinguished author of the day, appeared before the Committee and has expressed very distinct views favouring this legislation. So also the Honourable Saiyid Wazir Hussain, a Muhammadan Judge, has very strongly supported it. Dr. Mufti Muhammad Sadeq of Kadian, also a great Muhammadan leader, I understand, has given very strong support to it. Therefore, at this late hour, to come and say that Muhammadans have not had an opportunity to express their views is a claim very difficult to support from the facts before us. If we analyse the evidence and the statistics given in the Age of Consent Committee's Report, we do not find that the majority of Muhammadans have spoken against the Bill.

As I heard Mr. Price's speech, Sir, I was full of admiration for what he said. I do not think there was any need for him to apologise for hitting hard. I believe the apology must come from us that it should have been left to an Englishman to hit hard for this cause—the cause of our girls and women. I do hope that his speech at least will rouse people, will rouse those who are zealous for the honour of their country, to support this Bill.

Then lastly, Sir, I want to ask my friends who oppose this Bill. Are they honestly convinced that the women of our country, of any community whatsoever, are opposed to the Bill? I put it to them that if this House were today made up of as it should have been, half of men and half of women, would there be any doubt as to the issues? Therein lies the real test. Let us not forget, that this Bill is in the interests of women and concerns them much more than it does concern men. My friend over there said yesterday, "If you want to learn wisdom, if you want to ask for information, do not go to the girls and children such as implored us yesterday, but go to the old and learned gentlemen, for they are the people who alone can guide you correctly." Sir, it has been said that, "Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings comes truth." The incident of today is an excellent proof of the correctness of that saying. Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings the truth has come, not out of the mouths of learned Pandits.

I have only got one last word to say. We are at the present time clamouring to be regarded as an advanced nation, as a nation qualified to take our place whether it may be in the Assembly of Nations or in the category of free nations. Sir, even if this Bill were to remain a dead letter, for it has been said that if this Bill were passed into law it would remain a dead letter,—its passage will have done something to raise our national self-respect. The eyes of the outside world are on us. If this Bill is not passed, can we stand up and claim that we are a civilised nation? Look at the Appendices given at the end of the Age of Consent Committee's Report. I do not want to take up the time of the House by quoting statistics of child widows under five years of age, the statistics of girls married, or shall I say condemned, between the ages of five and ten, or even below. Are we a civilised nation, if such statistics, and the hard facts they prove, can be quoted against us? But if we pass this Bill today, we shall have advanced, we shall have been able to show to the world that we desire to advance not only in political matters, but in matters that do count even more, and would make us into an A-1 nation, then and only then we shall be able to take our place among civilised and great nations. This is what hangs in the balance today. I am not competent to speak from the religious point of view, yet the history of India is the heritage of every man and woman who is an Indian. So let me remind you of the great age of the Vedas or the great age of chivalry, the age of Ramayana. Who was the ideal of womanhood in that age? Sita. Sita still remains the ideal of countless women and girls in this country. And was Sita married at the age of three? No. She selected her own husband after she had come to the years of discretion and she, I have always been told, is the ideal of Indian womanhood. Let us therefore give our little girls, the same freedom and the same chances, that were given to Sita. With these words, Sir, I strongly support the motion of my friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda and oppose the amendment of Mr. Acharya.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya (Allahabad and Jhansi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, when this Bill was first introduced, I supported the principle of it, which is that some legislation should be resorted to in the totality of the circumstances of the situation to protect children of tender age. I still adhere to that view. I am still of opinion that, in the unfortunate circumstances which exist in the country today, a Bill to restrain marriages at too early ages is needed. I do not desire that this Bill should be dropped; I do not desire that it should be blocked unnecessarily. But having said this, I consider it my duty to invite the attention of the House to the matter that is now before it with a view that it should be judged dispassionately upon the merits. Some times the attitude a particular Member may take up in putting forward a proposal affects the attitude of other Members towards the proposal. Without meaning any disrespect to any friend who has taken part in this debate, I beg Members to look at this proposition in an impartial light. What is the proposal before the House? The amendment moved by Mr. Acharya is that the consideration of the Bill be postponed—not that the Bill be dropped—in order that the evidence which has been collected by the Age of Consent Committee should be made available to this House before it comes to a decision upon it. Now I ask all Honourable Members whether in their own lives, in their own experience, they have ever heard of a judgment alone of a judge of a lower Court being relied upon by any higher or appellate court in order to arrive at a conclusion on the matter dealt with by it. This Assembly is like an appellate court or final court, whichever way you may put it. The Age of Consent Committee was appointed professedly, as the Home Member made it clear, in order that the evidence which it would collect and the opinions it would gather from the people of the country should be made known to the Legislature before it should come to a decision on the principal provisions of this Bill relating to the fixing of ages of marriage. The Age of Consent Committee collected evidence which, I understand, has been printed; they also prepared a Report and that Report is before us; the Government have supplied us with that Report. I ask every Member to consider whether it is a fair or unfair demand that the evidence upon which the conclusions in that Report have been based should be made available to the Members of this House before they are asked either to accept the recommendations of the Age of Consent Committee or to reject them. That is the whole issue before this Assembly at this moment, and all the remarks which have been made on the merits of the Bill and the opposition which has been shown to the proposal itself, are, I submit with great respect, entirely beside the mark. The point before the House at present is whether this request that the evidence which has been collected should be made available to the House is a reasonable or unreasonable one.

Now, Sir, I wish that, in coming to a conclusion on this matter, Members will bear a few facts in mind. They should bear in mind that this question of the early marriages of children is a very ancient proposition in India. They should also not be carried away by the very lurid and sometimes insulting remarks which have been made in describing the evils of early marriages. No man living is more painfully alive to these evils than I am, but I am grieved that, in discussing this question any Member should exaggerate the evils which are already great in a manner which hurts the feelings of those whom it most deeply concerns. We know that early marriages of children do lead to great evils; but you must remember from what period these evils have become so glaring and so oppressive as they are at present. This system of marrying girls at early ages, as I have said, is not a new one. Hindus have lived under it for thousands of years; they prospered under it; for long time it was not the evil that it becomes in many cases at present. I am anxious, as much as any of my friends here, European, Muslim or Hindu, that the evils of this system should be ended as early as possible. But I wish to act like a surgeon who has to cut out the rotten portion of the flesh: I wish to be scrupulously careful that I do not use my knife carelessly to hurt the flesh that is not rotten; and I feel that, in discussing this question, the advantages which have accrued, the great advantages, from the system of marriage at an early age have been overlooked, and we have been painted as if we had all along lived in a very rotten state of society. The system of early marriages prevailed even at the time when, not more than a century ago, the Mahrattas re-established Hindu padshahi over the greater portion of India. It prevailed when the Rajputs fought for the honour of their race. It prevailed when Guru Govind Singh lived and worked for the freedom of his country. It does exist today, and yet there are thousands, nay millions, of men who are quite as brave as any mortal man to be found anywhere else in the world. I do not wish to be misunderstood. I submit very respectfully and very humbly that none of my brethren present here can be more tenderly solicitous to remove this evil than I humbly claim I am; but I want everyone to understand that there is another side of the question. I agree that we should do away with or modify this system so as to provide against its evils and in this connection let us remember that early marriage does not always mean early consummation. If it meant that, Hindus would have been swept off the face of the earth by this time; and in order that we should appreciate the attitude of the Hindus in the past towards this system, you must go into it with a desire to understand the opinions of those who lived under it. You will find that in the ancient days, when this practice was introduced, there was a psychological reason for the proposition that girls should be married before they had attained puberty. Hindus attach the highest weight to the chastity of women. It was because of this sentiment that they honoured a sati, a woman who died on the funeral pyre of her husband, like a deity upon earth. She was honoured because she made the highest sacrifice in life that any mortal could. She was honoured because she lived and died a chaste woman. And so, having this very high regard for chastity, they contracted marriages of girls just at the time when psychologically they would begin to think of amorous ideas. The idea was that, before they grew into womanhood, before they reached adolescence, they should know that there was one particular individual to whom they had been wedded and that all their thoughts should centre round him. Now, Sir, I do not claim that this was a perfect system; I am not advocating a disregard of the wishes of the girl altogether. But what I do plead is that, when you compare one system with another, it will not be so easy to say that this system under which a marriage was arranged by the parents had all the evils and that the systems of late marriages with full freedom of choice exercised by young women, which exist in other countries, have all the advantages on their side. The Rishis laid it down, as they believed it to be on the whole a beneficial system and under this system Hindus lived and prospered for a long time. But for 150 or 160 years, nay, since India came under foreign domination, things have gone from bad to worse. Our religious instruction has been very much absent; the foundations, the organisations which existed to inculcate high ideas of purity and sanctity have been very much wanting. The result has been that we have deteriorated—not deteriorated merely because our girls were married at an early age deteriorated because we came under foreign rule, which is the greatest curse which can befall any country. Under foreign rule the life of a nation is sapped. The religion of the country does not receive sufficient attention. There is no system for imparting instruction in the tenets of religion; there is no organisation for inculcating all those high moral religious and spiritual ideas which constituted the glory of the Hindus in days gone by. ....

Mr. E. L. Price: What about the untouchables?

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya: What about the untouchables of England? But now does that question arise here? I wish the Honourable Member showed a better appreciation of the question I am dealing with. ....

Dr. B. S. Moonje (Nagpur Division: Non-Muhammadan): What about the untouchables that England has created?

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya: If the remark made by my Honourable friend opposite (Mr. Price) delights him I wish him joy over it. I have no heart to retort, and I am sorry I retorted even to the extent I did. We are talking of serious matters, and I hope that the Honourable Member will be serious for a moment. What I submit is this: We have had this evil growing; girls have been married early; girls used to be married early even before; but the system gave them greater protection; consummation was reasonably delayed. If young men are married sufficiently late and if brahmacharya was observed between the period of marriage and consummation, as it was observed in ancient days, there would be much less of this evil than you hear of today. The Shastras were better understood and followed before. I so much wish that my people should go back to the purest dictates of the Shastras, and that we lived under the old system, which was not half so bad as it is today. If you have so many deaths from phthisis in India today, do not ascribe them all to the system of early marriages; ascribe them partly to the foreign system of domination. You spend 56 crores every year for maintaining a huge army, but you cannot find sufficient money to promote industries in the country which will give food to the people. You must ascribe the present state of affairs to the profound ignorance that prevails in the country, to the sad neglect of education which has gone on in this country under the present rule in spite of the repeated prayers and protests of the educated community. If my friend over there raises the question of untouchability, let him know that the responsibility for it lies in no small measure upon the British Government in India. (Applause.) (Some Honourable Members: "No, no.") I say it does. If we can get power next year, as I hope we will, I assure my friends that within a few years' time the question of untouchability will have been a matter of past history, and the question of the evils of early marriages will also have been a matter of past history.

Sir, my Honourable friend the Home Member never made a more eloquent speech, so far as I am aware, than the one he made in supporting this Bill. I was wondering what the reason for it was, where the fire had suddenly sprung from. I was wondering whether he remembered at the time, while he and other friends were now very anxious to push this Bill through,—because this is the only point under consideration,—who was responsible for the present state of things in the matter of child marriages. In 1823 Mount Stuart Elphinstone wrote in words which ought to be remembered by every administrator, that the surest remedy for removing the evils of child marriage was general universal education. That was in 1823, Sir. We are now in the year of grace 1929. For 106 years the Government which has existed in this country has not found money to promote education among the people throughout the land. What is it but education that makes my friends here, who are supporting the Bill, put forward the ideas that they do? I am certain that my father and my grandfather, as well as the father and grandfather of many of my friends here who have so strongly supported this Bill would have shared the sentiments of those who oppose it. It is the education of the modern type which we have received which has made the whole difference. And if the Government had done their duty in scattering education broadcast in the land among the men and women of this country, we should have not had to discuss this proposition today. Therefore, I submit, Sir, that when my friends who desire to change the existing system, show an inordinate zeal in removing it in a moment, they should remember that the responsibility for the long and painful delay which has occurred in removing it and in improving the existing state of things lies largely at the door of the Government.

I want my European friends to consider this question quite seriously. I do hope that they will take the assurance from me that I want this Bill to pass. I have supported it from the very first; I stand by it today. But I do feel that, in dealing with the proposition which is before the House, they have not shown that attitude of considerateness towards those whom the Bill most concerns, which we should expect from them. In a matter in which an important section of the Hindu community has convictions as deep as any religious convictions can be, should their feelings be lightly disregarded? No man can deny, whatever differences one might raise about the interpretation of the Shastras, no man who knows the Sanskrit language can deny that the Smritis lay down:

(Tasmat dudvahayet Kanyam yavannar tumati bhavet.)—

"Therefore, a girl should be wedded before she begins to menstruate."

It does not say consummation should be allowed; it merely says a girl should be wedded before she attains puberty, and if a suitable husband cannot be found, the parents should wait for three more years, that means up to 16. The Shastras allow it. It is the conviction of a large number of men as well educated as any man in this Assembly, some of them are sitting there in the gallery,—men who have come from Madras and Bengal. It is their conviction that it is their duty, in the interests not merely of their souls but also in the interests of their daughters or granddaughters, to settle a marriage and to see it performed before a girl attains puberty. That is their deep conviction. They will feel oppressed if they are not able to do so. They do not put it forward as the plea of an agitator, of a man who wants to create opposition for opposition's sake; they are men of honest convictions. Are we going to trample under foot their convictions? Is it right that this Assembly should ignore what they say? Will it not be right that we should pause to consider if we can reconcile the needs of the welfare of the girls as most of us understand it with the convictions and sentiments of their own parents? It is not a question of a majority or no majority. These being the convictions of a large section of Hindus, a respectable section, whichever you like, what is the duty of Government? The Government are not free; I submit if they want to do their duty, they should say that they will not support the Bill as it stands today, but will support the amendment before the House. If they do not say that, I submit that they will not be doing their duty by the people. The Government have promised that they will not interfere with the personal laws of the Hindus and Mussalmans. They have promised it, and they adhere to that promise to a large extent. Why should the Government now, in a matter of such delicacy, undertake not merely to give their blessings to the measure before the House, but also compel every Honourable Member sitting on the opposite side, who belongs to the Government group, to vote with the Government? I submit it will be immoral if they do so. The whole position has to be realised in order to come to the right conclusion. To my British friends I say, we honour you for your convictions. But place yourselves in our position. Just imagine an Assembly in which as many as you are here are Hindus, and where a question of your domestic law is under consideration, a matter which affects your society, whether it be marriage with a deceased wife's sister Bill or any other measure of that kind—Imagine what your feelings would be if, while a respectable body of your opinion was opposed to the measure, which was being pressed in an Assembly consisting mostly of say Hindus and Mussalmans, 40 or 50 Hindus or Mussalmans were to put in their whole weight in the scales against you. Who are concerned in this Bill? Hindus, Mussalmans, Sikhs, Christians and Parsis who are living in India. I do not say for a moment you should not help us. I do not suggest that you should not take an interest in the matter. I respect Mr. Price for the deep solicitude which he showed for the welfare of our girls. I regret that he overstated the case, but I submit, Sir, that I am not one of those who spur the sympathy of my fellowmen among Englishmen. I honour them for showing their sympathy with our cause. I respect them. I want their sympathy, but I want their sympathy with a little more consideration for the feelings of those whose views are not in their estimation correct at present. I ask that instead of disregarding the views of those like my friend Mr. Acharya and Mr. Sessa Ayyangar who have pleaded not for dropping the Bill, but for postponing its consideration till January,—I think it is wrong to say that Mr. Acharya, by this motion, whatever his other intentions might be, wants to wreck this Bill, but even if he wishes it he cannot wreck it, because there are so many others who will save the Bill,—the House should respect their views. Nor do I think that Mr. Sessa Ayyangar wants to wreck the Bill altogether, though he has opposed the Bill. The amendment of Mr. Acharya simply says that the consideration of the Bill should be postponed until the evidence collected by the Age of Consent Committee has been made available to the House. The position, therefore, is that you have got some Hindus, not in a majority perhaps, but you have got some Hindus whose sincerity you will not doubt, who plead that the matter should stand over till January next. There is a large number of Mussalmans who say that they are not opposed to the Bill, but they also want more time in order to make sure whether they should lend their support to the Bill. Their attitude is not unreasonable. This Bill affects the marriage laws of both Hindus and Mussalmans. We should allow them reasonable time in dealing with them. We should not deal with them in a hurry and repent at leisure. Therefore I respect the attitude of my Mussalman friends when they say that they want a little more time to consider this matter. In such a state of things, for the Members of Government to say that they will throw in their weight with those who are against this amendment,—if that is their meaning, if I have not misunderstood them and I should be very sorry if I have misunderstood them—I submit is not right. And I appeal to the other Members of this House, both Hindu and Mussalman, in the same sense. I want this Bill to pass with some modifications which I consider necessary. I believe it is needed in the interests of the welfare of our children, but I do think that, while we have allowed so much time to pass, to allow three months more to pass to enable Members of this House to study the evidence which has been collected, and to give an opportunity to those who are opposed to the Bill as it is, to make further representations if they like, will not be a great calamity.

In this connection I should draw attention to the note which Mrs. Rameshwari Nehru has appended to the Report of the Age of Consent Committee which I have read with great respect. She has shown a true womanly heart; she has shown a womanly appreciation of the vital importance and complexity of the question, and has written as only a woman could write on such a question. I wish every Member to read that note and to read also the other notes to see how very complicated the questions involved in the Bill are. Many amendments have been put forward by earnest men who want the Bill to pass, but they too want to examine the provisions. Further I have been here three days. I have been every morning reading this Report, and I am sorry to say that I have not been able to finish it. I have been reading it of course with care, noting every word in it, and I do not think that all the Members have yet read it. I therefore submit that, in a matter of such great importance, in a matter where Hindu and Mussalman interests are so vitally involved, it will not be wrong if my Hindu and Mussalman friends, who are earnestly, honestly solicitous that the Bill should be passed at the earliest opportunity, will yet show consideration for the views of those who plead for a postponement till January next, and I hope that they will do so. We have to remember that the most important thing for the success of a measure like this is that it should receive the co-operation of the people. Let the House remember that the system of early marriages has gone on for a long time, and that this is the first time it is going to put a penal legislation on the Statute-book to check it. It is a penal legislation. You are going to pass it for the first time. Is it too much to ask that three months more should be allowed for its consideration? Is it too much to ask that we should have an opportunity, those of us who are in favour of a measure like this, to talk to those who are opposed to it, and try to make them realise what some of us realise the enormity of the evil and the necessity of early action? If we enlist their sympathy, we shall carry the measure through with success, and it will have a beneficial effect in the country. We will go wrong if we start with antagonising an important section—it is not mere numbers that count, it is the quality of men that counts, and among the men who are opposed are men of great weight, of great learning. I differ from some of them in some of these matters,—I am sorry to say that I do not represent their views fully. They know it. I did urge in the beginning that, if we fixed the minimum age at 11, there would be no orthodox opposition in the country. I found that the opinion of the House was not at all in favour of it, I then agreed to Kumar Ganganand Sinha's amendment that it should be fixed at 12. (An Honourable Member : "No.") I am not discussing that point now. Have patience please. They do not agree with me in that matter. They do not regard me as representing their views, but I am certain that, if there is more opportunity we may utilise, we should be able to utilise that opportunity to understand each other better and to arrive at conclusions in which the whole-hearted support of every reasonable man in the country may be secured to the measure. Very intricate and complicated questions have been raised. Birth registers, investigation, trial, the employment of the police, punishment, imprisonment and fine—all those are matters of delicate human concerns. If a husband is punished, the fate of the wife has to be considered, as the Committee have considered it. Therefore in all these matters I submit there is great advantage on the side of allowing a little time when there is reason for it. If there was not the evidence already collected, I should not be taking up the time of the House. But there is the evidence available, and I submit that it is there, and for nothing but reasonable that this amendment should be accepted, and accepted in the right spirit, accepted generously, as showing an appreciation of the difficulties of those who are at present arrayed against the Bill. I submit these are points which deserve consideration, and I hope they will receive the due consideration of this House. (Applause.)

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz : (West Central Punjab : Muhammadan) : Sir, I rise to support the motion that the Bill to regulate the marriage of children, as reported by the Select Committee, which would make it applicable to all communities, be taken into consideration. Sir, the consideration of the Bill was postponed pending the Report of the Age of Consent Committee, of which I had the honour to be a member. The Committee has travelled far and wide and I assure you that the Committee has inquired into the matter with an open mind and with absolutely no bias. In fact, before I joined the Committee I was under the idea that the evil of early marriage, early consummation, and early maternity was not so great as it was represented to be. But now, I have seen the things with my own eyes, I have heard the evidence with my own ears. (An Honourable Member : "Where is that evidence?"). The evil is widespread and things are far worse than they are described in the Report because we did not think it advisable to excite or provoke unnecessarily the feelings of orthodox people, which though few in number, form an important minority. My Honourable friend Pandit Malaviyaji says that the evil is not so great. But I feel it my duty, as an honest man, as an honest Member of this Assembly that a true statement of most painful affairs must be said in the interest of the public. He says that early marriage does not necessarily mean early consummation. I can believe him that in each and every case early marriage is not followed by early consummation. The Committee which consisted of eight Indians and one European lady has found as a fact that wherever a girl between the ages of 10 and 13 is married to a boy of 18 years or more she is in a majority of cases consummated, before she arrives at the age of puberty. (Some Honourable Members : "It is not true.") It is perfectly true of Bengal. (Cries of "No, no") (An Honourable Member : "You have no right to speak of Bengal.")

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz : I was a member of the Committee. There is the finding of the Committee. You may accept it or you may not accept it. I say as an honest man and as a judge that this is a true finding. It is a perfectly true fact in Bengal.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Bardwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : It is not true at all.

(At this stage there were several interruptions from Honourable Members.)

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz : You yourself said in your evidence

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz : The Honourable Member himself said in his evidence that in many cases there was illegal consummation.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : I challenge that statement. On a point of personal explanation, Sir.

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz : I am not going to give way, you may rest assured of that. Here is your evidence.

(There were some interruptions.)

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz : Sir, this is what the Committee says :

"It is admitted on all hands and the fundamental fact is undeniable that early consummation almost inevitably follows early marriage amongst both Hindus and Muslims. It is also established from the evidence that pre-puberty consummation is common and that violations of the Law of Consent occur in many cases". (Page 67 of the Report.)

Well, Sir, in Bihar and Orissa things are quite bad but they are not so bad as they are in Bengal. As I say, we inquired into the matter with an open mind. We invited all evidence, including that of the orthodox men. From Madras the orthodox opinion was strongly against the Bill. Out of those orthodox gentlemen who have come here, many were examined and they were surprised when I identified every one of them and I know the evidence of every one of them by heart. I say that orthodox opinion was perfectly representative and the Hindu opinion except the opinion of a section of the orthodox opinion, is almost unanimously in favour of the Bill. A large body of Mussalman opinion was invited and there was a fair response. Orthodox Muslim opinion was also represented, though it was not so representative as it ought to have been. Muslim opinion on the whole is in favour of the Bill. At its proper time and when the motion of Mr. Rafique to the effect that the Muslim should be excluded from the operation of the Bill, comes before the House I shall read to you what the Muslim witnesses have said. Therefore, Sir, it is quite wrong to say that Muhammadan opinion is adverse to the Bill. We have fully considered the views of all the schools of Muslim orthodox opinion ; we have considered their opinions anxiously, carefully and with respect. We had before us the religious laws and marriage laws of Turkey and Egypt and laws of marriage of almost all the civilized countries, and we have come to a definite conclusion and you cannot challenge the honesty of the members of the Committee that this Bill in no way interferes with the religious laws or custom of the Hindus and the Muslim. Sir, I cannot share the view of Pandit Malaviyaji that the evil is not so pernicious and widespread.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : As some people represent it.

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz : I have heard the most shocking evidence. The educated women of India rightly say that they have been the victims of the evil custom of early marriage, early consummation and early maternity. The women of India are most vitally affected by this evil custom. They feel rightly that they are victimised and tyrannised. They claim justice at the Bar of this House.

With these preliminary remarks, I desire to approach the subject with perfect calm and without passion. I will not exaggerate at all. The first objection raised by the opponents of the Bill is that the legislature and the Government have no business to interfere in socio-religious matters. It must be remembered that in every country legislation has been used as a remedy to remove social injustice and other evils of that kind. In matters affecting marriage and consent in particular, I know what is the law. Legislation has been resorted to in almost every civilized country, including Egypt and Turkey. In Egypt, the history of the law of marriage begins from 1864. The Royal Decree of 5th January, 1864, which regulated the law of marriage, prohibited marriage of a boy below 18 and a girl below 15. Under Article 1, however, dispensations were allowed in rare cases by the Khediv on the report of the Minister of Justice. This continued to be the law till 1923 when Law No. 56 of 1923 was enacted. Under Article 2 of Law No. 56 of 1923, a contract of marriage between a boy below 18 and a girl below 16 is absolutely void. In Turkey the age limit which is not subject to any exception, is 15 for the boy and 15 for the girl. There also the marriage is absolutely void. In several Indian States, also, such as Baroda and Indore, such laws have already been in force for some years. The law of sati and widow remarriage, the removal of the ban on inheritance by converts and the law of civil marriage, are some of the instances in which legislation has trenched on customs and religious injunctions.

[5TH SEPT. 1929.]

Well, Sir, it has been argued that this Bill is against the Smritis texts and against the injunctions of Islam. Whatever may have been the origin of the practice of early marriage, it is certain that what counts most with orthodox Hindu society at present is the existence of certain customs. It is an accepted principle of Hindu Law that in a conflict between custom and a Smriti text, custom shall be the rule of decision. There is such diversity of opinion amongst the Hindu theologians as regards the texts that no interpretation can be said to be decisive. The Committee, after a careful examination of the texts, came to the conclusion that the Smritis texts are only recommendatory and not mandatory and are not binding for all times. As regards the Muslim, I can say without hesitation that the principle laid down in the present Bill is not at variance with the Muslim Law of marriage. Now, Sir, the religious law of Islam is derived from four sources, the Quran, the Hadis, the Ijmah and the Kayas. Everybody knows that the Quran does not prescribe any age for marriage.

There is nothing in the holy book of the Muslim which is inconsistent with the provisions of the present Bill. A Muhammadan father or grandfather may marry a minor boy or a minor girl for the benefit of the girl or the boy, but I regret to say that they are the slaves of the custom of early marriage and have no regard for the welfare of their minor children. The privilege given to them has in most cases been abused.

I now come to the Hadis. It is admitted on all hands that the Prophet desired that girls should be married when they arrived at the age of discretion, that is to say when they arrive at the age of fifteen. So the sayings of the Prophet are not at variance with the present legislation, which is before this House. The third source of religious injunction is the Ijma, i.e., consensus of learned men, both holy and legal men. But unfortunately there is no ijmah in this country. (An Honourable Member: "Why?") (Another Honourable Member: "You should have patience; do not go in for impatient legislation.") The opinion among the Ulemas is so very conflicting. Khawaja Hasan Nizami says that the present legislation which would penalise marriages of girls below 14 is most beneficial in the interests of the Muhammadans, and must be passed and the same are the opinions of Maulana Suleman Nadvi and Maulana Mohamed Ali, who has translated the Quran. Two witnesses from the United Provinces representing the Deoband school, say, that the legislation can be resorted to but must come from a Muhammadan king. But the present Government, being a foreign Government, cannot make such a law. The future Government of the country will consist of Hindus, Mussalmans and others. Do these learned and holy men mean that, so far as the Mussalmans are concerned, the evil of early marriage and early consummation is to go on for an indefinite time? Again Maulvi Ahmad Said, the Secretary of Jamiat-ulma is against the Bill. The last source of religious legislation is the Kayas. It certainly favours legislation when once it is proved that it is in the interests of the Muslims. I have referred to the Egyptian and Turkish laws of marriage. We can easily follow the example of Egyptians who like Indian Mussalmans are Hanfis. The weight of Muslim opinion in different provinces is more or less in favour of the present Bill. I will go through the Muslim evidence at the proper time. At present I am debarred by the procedure of the House to go into the details of such evidence.

In the circumstances of this country and the Muslim society, I think the Egyptian law of marriage is the best guide. I am therefore of opinion that this legislation is not in any way inconsistent with Muslim religious law. In fact it is consistent with the true spirit of Islam, namely, that ordinarily a Muslim girl should not be married until she arrives at the age of discretion, so that she should have a voice in the selection of her husband. Brahmans, however, tell us that a Hindu girl cannot possibly have any voice in this matter. She should have no independence.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya: That has its beneficial aspect.

Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan (United Provinces: Nominated non-Official): What is your objection to postponement?

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz: Postponement will serve no useful purpose. Well, Sir, the Committee finds, that the most effective remedy to check the evil of early marriage and early consummation is to penalise marriages of girls below fourteen years. We know perfectly well, and almost all witnesses have admitted, that the law of the age of consent at 13 has been broken and these cases seldom come to court.

Mr. M. K. Acharya: Where is the evidence?

Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz: You may say what you like, I remember you perspiring under the weight of cross-examination at Madras when you appeared before the Committee. There is overwhelming evidence that the law fixing the age of consent at 13 has positively been broken and violated. (See page 173 of the Report.) There are thousands and thousands of husbands—it may be a dreadful fact to say so—who have been guilty of crime. This is the finding of the Committee. Are you going to say that this is not correct? (An Honourable Member: "Bring in the evidence.") Sir, when a girl of ten or eleven is married to a boy of eighteen years of age or so, she is constantly tantalised, and the intercourse follows before she is thirteen. Nobody is interested to report the matter to the police; the neighbours do not care for it, and therefore the law has remained a dead letter. Is it not far better to prevent this evil by penalising marriages? Prevention is certainly a better cure in this case. Therefore, Sir, I appeal to you that you must go ahead with this Bill, otherwise you cannot show your face to the outside world. Sir, we have given votes to women to elect members to the Legislatures. They can be members of any local bodies and any legislature. They claim justice, pure and simple. Must they be forced to marry before they arrive at the age of puberty? (An Honourable

LACPB(LA)

Member : "Who says that?" If you cannot do justice to your women, you are not fit to claim self-government. Must there be pre-puberty marriages among the Hindus? With leathern heart you refuse rights to women to which they are entitled. No wonder that the educated and young women threaten a revolt. Are you going to destroy the happiness and peace of your homes? If you will not pass the present legislation, you will do a great injustice to one-half of the population of India. It is no use postponing this important and urgent measure of legislation. The substance of the entire evidence is given in Chapter IV of the Report of the Age of Consent Committee. It is not possible to reduce the age stand in the way of this Bill, but if they do, the sooner you get rid of them, the better it will be for the Hindus. (An Honourable Member : "On your authority?") In conclusion I say that it would be a disaster to exclude the Muslims from the operation of this Bill. With these remarks, Sir, I support the Motion that the Bill be taken into consideration.

Several Honourable Members : The question may now be put.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Well, Sir, in intervening in this debate at a very late stage, my justification is that I want to put before this House, a few considerations against those which have been urged with such great effect by my esteemed leader to my right. (Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.) It is always a very painful duty, Sir, to have to oppose, on the floor of this House, a person of his knowledge and learning.

Added to that is the circumstance that I happen to be his deputy on my Party, always taking commands from him.

If I had not felt that it was a part of my duty as a Member of this Assembly not merely to record my vote silently against the postponement of the motion, I should have very much preferred to remain quiet. I can assure the House and my esteemed friend to my right that I am 99 per cent. in agreement with what he stated on the merits of this Bill. My pain, therefore, in opposing his speech is great, and it becomes still more because, I may say, that by instinct, tradition and training I have a reverence for the past. I was brought up in very religious surroundings and in my early life I sat at the feet of learned Mimanskas and Pandits. I have therefore instinctively a great reverence for the point of view which they represent on this controversy. I shall therefore not make a partisan speech. It is not in my nature, as my Honourable friends who have sat with me for years in this House will vouch, to make a partisan speech in the evil sense of the word. But I do think that I ought to warn this House that it would be most unwise and would lead to no good at all to agree to the postponement of this measure. (Hear, hear.) That is the narrow point to which I shall address myself, I shall deal with as much reverence as I can with the arguments which have been advanced with such force by the learned Pandit to my right. I am reminded of a little incident in the Mahabharata of a duel between a great sage and his pupil, and I shall recall to the Pandit's mind that the fight began by the pupil throwing a few arrows at the feet of his Guru, as an indication that it was a part of his duty to oppose him with modesty in the contest. The Pandit's plea is —and I do not believe in that plea, I wish I could believe in it—that, given a little more time, he expects to get on the side of the Bill the orthodox sentiments of the country. I wish I could feel as optimistic as he does.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : I pleaded for postponement because of the fairness of allowing the evidence which has been collected being made available to the Members. My main point is that you have collected the evidence and printed it and therefore you should allow Members of this House to read that evidence upon which the Report is based, so that they may judge it for themselves.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : That was one of the grounds on which the plea of postponement was rested by the learned Pandit in his fascinating speech. I have a note of his argument, and he said that one of the grounds on which postponement was asked was that those who are in favour of this Bill should have the opportunity of reconciling orthodox opinion. He further pointed to the gallery and said that very learned men had come from Madras and Bengal. I too esteem their learning and reverence. He said that he had had talks with them and to a certain extent he agreed with their views but in certain other points did not agree with their views. He made out a very powerful plea with the characteristic fascination which he always exercises over this House that he wanted time to convince the conservative elements. He wanted three months. If I could share his view I would be prepared to give him three years, but my misfortune is that I do not share his hopes that he would be able to get for this Bill the willing support of a large body of orthodox opinion in the country. Incidentally the learned Pandit made a very powerful appeal to the Government Benches. I must frankly say that when he did so, I began to tremble in my shoes. I wonder if the Government would be frightened by the powerful appeal which he made, asking that the Government should not vote on this measure at all. He said that the Government ought to be neutral on questions relating to the personal laws of the Hindus and Muhammadans. As I listened to his powerful speech, I wondered whether the Honourable the Home Member was going to succumb to that plea and walk into the Pandit's attractive parlour.

One ground which the learned Pandit adduced is : let the evidence which the Age of Consent Committee had before them be published. We had a few minutes ago a little foretaste of what controversies that would cause. While the previous speaker was referring to the evidence of only one witness out of several, the challenges went up from some Members on this side that the evidence was not true. My Honourable friend Mr. Amar Nath Dutt got up and said that the statements made by that witness were not true of Bengal. My Honourable friend Mr. Shah Nawaz protested and said that he was going to read from the evidence, but Mr. Amar Nath Dutt retorted that whatever the witness might say, his picture of Bengal was not true. This is a foretaste of future controversies, and I would like to warn the Honourable Members of what would happen on the floor of the House if the plea so well made out by the Honourable Pandit were to be granted. Supposing the evidence before the Joshi Committee is published, then the question will be raised that the evidence is not truthful, that it does not really represent the facts, that it is a one-sided and inaccurate picture. We will then be told—and a gentle beginning of that effort has been made by Mr. Acharya in his alternative amendment,—that all this evidence is one-sided, it is not truthful, it is not an accurate picture.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

[5TH SEPT. 1929.]

[Mr. M. R. Jayakar.]

Then, some Honourable Member will get up and move in this House, in the terms of Mr. Acharya's alternative amendment,

"That the Sarda Bill as reported by the Select Committee be recommitted to a new Select Committee composed of Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda and others with instructions that the Committee do scrutinise the Report of the Age of Consent Committee so far as it deals with the subject matter of the Bill under reference, obtaining, if need be, further evidence from representatives of the communities that will be affected by the proposed legislation."

I am not a prophet, but I have a little instinct in political matters, and I can assure the House that, if we agree to the thin end of the wedge now sought to be introduced, I am clear in my mind that we will be asked, with considerably more plausibility than now, that the evidence laid before the Joshi Committee should be supplemented and reassessed by another committee. Mr. Acharya has already started suggesting that the Joshi Committee was not representative, that Sir Moropant Joshi did not understand female hygiene. If the evidence is published, and I should ask Government to be very cautious in deciding to publish it for this purpose, another cry is sure to go up.

That cry will then take this form, that that evidence is not really the whole picture and that there ought to be another inquiry by an independent Committee of a contradictory character on the ground that the salient facts stated before the Joshi Committee were doubted. Well, Sir, if such a cry should go up, I personally think it would be difficult to meet it. Let us therefore make up our minds now on this Bill, whichever way it is. I do not care whether ultimately we throw this Bill out. If we pass the Bill, well and good, but if we think that this House should never interfere in matters of religion, that the sentiments involved in this question are too delicate for our interference, that the sense of the country does not show itself clearly, that it is doubtful which way public opinion goes, then cadit quaestio.

On the last point, I may just point out that in no civilized country has it been recognised that legislation should only be initiated upon clear evidence of favourable public opinion. Even in England it is a very doubtful question whether measures of reform and progress were always based on the clear ascertainment of what public opinion was. All measures of reform, even in advanced countries, have often to be initiated by the few progressives, who think in advance of the times. My Honourable friend Mr. Mulla pointed out to me only this afternoon one instance, and I am much indebted to him first. Take for instance, the case of economic reform in England. Honourable Members will find it stated in Prof. Dacey's book that economic theories of reform began with the initiative of Adam Smith and then the State took them up and passed the necessary legislation. If it is so in England, it is more so in India where there is a large amount of ignorance and illiteracy and Government have per force to make themselves the custodians of progress and advancement. I congratulate the Honourable the Home Member on having risen on this occasion to the full height of the dignity of his mission, as the spokesman of the Government. He spoke on behalf of the Government which, in my opinion, must always constitute and regard itself as the representative of the enlightened sense of the community over which it has been called upon to rule. I must congratulate the Honourable the Home Member on the beautiful speech which he made as the representative of the Government on this question. (Hear, hear.)

The narrow point before us now is this. Are we convinced that this is a good measure? If we are not so convinced, then let us drop the Bill. But if we are convinced that it is a good measure, then it is better to pass it as soon as possible. The cry is now too late, my Honourable friends will realize, that this House has no power to interfere in matters of religion. It is too late to raise that plea. It is too late for my Honourable friend Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya to say today that too deeply cherished sentiments are involved in this measure and therefore this House should not touch the question. This plea could have been urged with considerably more force, e.g., in 1860. Since that date I can recount at least four cases out of several where even more deeply cherished sentiments of the Hindu community have been interfered with by the predecessors of this House. Honourable Members will be able to recall from the books of the period what great dismay and consternation went up in Hindu society when that piece of legislation was passed by the predecessor of this House—the Old Imperial Legislative Council—when the law was laid down, involving a far greater departure from Hindu sentiment than this humble Bill aims to make, that a member of a Hindu joint family could become a Christian and yet retain all his rights and interests as a member thereof. What greater departure could be made from the spirit of the ancient system of Hindu joint family than this, that a devoted and loyal son of a Hindu father on whose religious activity the father's soul depended for its salvation could espouse Christianity and yet retain his place and rights in the family? What greater inroad could have been made upon the orthodox sentiments of the Hindu people than the provisions of Act III of 1872, whereby a Hindu could momentarily forswear his religion and marry any non-Hindu woman he liked and the next moment after marriage could come back to Hinduism if he chose? What greater invasion could have been made upon Hindu conservatism, than when it was laid down that a Hindu widow could re-marry and retain, except under certain limitations, the property of the first husband or of his family. I could go on multiplying such instances. But I do not wish to do so at this late stage. I could go on giving instances completely justifying the claim of this House that if this House is once convinced—and it is solely the privilege of this House and none else to do so—that progress and enlightenment demand that certain changes should be made in the laws of the country I say that if the House is once convinced that the combined sense of the progressive elements in the country demands that certain changes should be made, then these changes have to be made even if they affect the religious beliefs of certain communities. Speaking for myself, I would be sorry if this House should forswear its claim to be the sole judge of what is right and what is wrong for the country. The House should say to itself, the choice between progress and conservatism is before us, we will choose rightly; we are not going to be frightened by orthodox sentiments. The difficulty of reconciling that sentiment, as I will state in a few minutes, is very great indeed. Just like the Honourable Pandit, I too have had the occasion of meeting a few of the orthodox Pandits, who have arrived in Simla to canvass opinion. I met them with the same sympathy and reverence as my Honourable friend Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya. I claim to be the product in many ways of the culture of which they are the ancient custodians. I shall always feel very much indebted to the Pandits and the Mimamsakas who taught me the Shastras and the ancient traditional learning. But I cannot help feeling that their point of view is very different.

[Mr. M. R. Jayakar.]

I rever them for their learning and piety, and have great respect for their purity of life. I shall therefore never be guilty of a single word of irreverence, as some of the speeches made here have been; but what I feel is that the views of these orthodox Pandits are irreconcilably different from modern ideas. No attempt can, in my opinion, be successfully made within three months, as the Honourable Pandit hopes, nor even within three years—perhaps the next thirty years may suffice—to reconcile their views with ours. We have got definitely to make up our mind how we shall choose between progress and orthodoxy. The two will remain irreconcilable for a long time yet.

I may recall to the minds of my Honourable friends that one member of the deputation went up to the Viceroy, a revered lady, named Lakshmi Ammal, she was a member of the orthodox deputation, and stated to the Viceroy—I am quoting from a report which appeared in a newspaper—

“Sir, I was married when I was three years of age. My husband’s age was 11 years, yet I am healthy and happy”.

Well, is this House going to adopt this ideal of conjugal felicity? The point of the thing is this. The texts which are quoted—and one of them was quoted by my Honourable friend to my right—belong to a system of conjugal life which in spirit has long departed from most Hindus. (Hear, hear.) I will yield to none in my admiration for ancient Hindu culture. I agree with the Honourable Pandit when he says that the evils of our social system have been aggravated by the Government refusing to give us free compulsory education. I am not a reformer in the sense that I deery the past. But I do maintain, without any fear of serious contradiction, that the past was a chapter in our evolution and there are parts of it which cannot be revived. The texts quoted and made so much of belong to a scheme of family life which in spirit and essentials long ago departed from Hinduism. These texts have remained like a shell, from which the kernel has gone. These texts belong to an age and system when woman was regarded as an object of perpetual tutelage. The father protected her in infancy, the husband in youth, the son in old age, she was to be always under the protection and tutelage of some one. I do not say it was a wrong scheme of life, it had its own purpose and it served it well in those times. But we cannot revive it now. The spirit of the age is against it. We cannot put life into husk from which life has departed. I am not condemning the past of my country or religion, but my plea is more limited. I say that the spirit of the ancient scheme of life left us long ago and cannot be revived. Even if man wanted to do so, the woman would refuse. As Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya very rightly remarked in ancient days, she entered matrimony before the sexual passions arose in her. She never troubled to make her own choice, but regarded her husband selected by another as the one person round whom all her affections and loyalty clustered. She regarded her boy—husband as the idol of her affection and love. She was content to accept the choice of her parents and lived contentedly in the protective and affectionate atmosphere of the husband’s family. But how many Hindu families can secure her such affectionate and protective atmosphere under modern conditions? Not many. The other day, I listened to an excellent speech made by the great Bengal patriot, Mr. Shyam Sundar Chakravarthi who is a member of the orthodox deputation. He told me an instance, which I well venture to say is now to be found in very few Hindu families. Few families, under the stress of modern ideas and economic conditions, have been able to maintain the social and cultural traditions of ancient times, under which alone the system worked. I will relate here the incident narrated by Mr. Shyam Sundar Chakravarthi because it is typical of the purity of the ancient family life of Bengal. He said that his mother once saw him talking to his girl wife in secrecy before they had met as man and wife. A severe punishment was meted out to him for that sin. It was then regarded as a sin to talk to a girl wife before consummation. It was bad manners in the sacred atmosphere of the family home. May I know from my orthodox friends, in how many families this atmosphere still survives, and where it does not so survive, whether it is possible to revive it? Therefore my plea is this. It is no use being guided by Shastras alone in this matter. And turning to my Honourable friend from Madras, Mr. M. K. Acharya, may I say that I was very much surprised that he despised all these demonstrations and propaganda which are being carried on outside the House to secure support for this Bill. My Honourable friend knows these demonstrations and propaganda are recognised means of creating public opinion. I do hope my Honourable friend has not forgotten the days, not long ago, when he himself with another agile friend from Madras, carried on a violent propaganda against Jala Lajpat Rai and my Party in the Punjab at the behest of his then political chief.

Mr. M. K. Acharya : But I never brought out little girls into the streets.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : My Honourable friend felt pained when he saw these girls shouting “Support Sarda’s Bill”. Did not his own province use women for political propaganda? These are recognised methods of propaganda, and one need not affect a pious horror of them. But in the matter of the Shastras, may I say a few words to him. I know a little of the Shastras having learnt them at the feet of well known Pandits. And what are the Shastras? They are an ocean of learning, one can get texts on one side as well as on the other side. Therefore it is necessary to exercise the caution which an ancient Hindu sage uttered. Confused by the diversity to texts he said that it is not every text of the Vedas that is important but only those texts which accord with our own notion of logic and rationality. I am quoting from a very old commentary on the Vedanta Sutras called Bhāmī. My Honourable friend knows that the Vedanta is considered superior to all Shastras. May I quote to him a Sanskrit verse in translation.

“The Shastras are like jackals and their howls are silenced when the lion of the Vedanta roars.”

I am therefore purpose relying on a verse from an old and authoritative book on Vedanta which praises all Shastras. May I quote the original Sanskrit verse for the information of my Honourable friend and his associates from Madras :

“Tatparavati shrutih pratyakshat balavati, na shrutimatram”.

Freely translated, the text means that :

“Only that text of the Vedas is to be accepted as of greater authority than the evidence of our senses, and experience, which accords with our notions of logic and rationality; not every text of the Vedas.”

I am quoting a very ancient and not any modern rule of interpretation. I am not putting old wine into new bottles; I am quoting from a very

384

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

[5TH SEPT. 1929.]

[Mr. M. R. Jayakar.]

ancient and perhaps, the most authoritative exposition of the Vedanta, which is ever above all Shastras. The author of this text warns us that we should not be confused by the diversity of texts, but regard only those texts as binding which accord with our own notions of logic and reason. This was said in the course of the process, which often went on in ancient India, when the centre of gravity of religious consciousness was sought to be shifted from authority to experience. This process goes on in every civilized country. In England, e.g., Bentham is the most recent exponent of it. Changing from time to time the centre of gravity from authority to experience has been long recognised in Hinduism as a process of adaptation. If I had time, I could give this House many instances. All reformers in the past have tried this process of adaptation why should not we in our time do the same? Therefore let me tell my orthodox friends that we are doing nothing new here. We are doing exactly what India has done in the past, what Hinduism has done from time to time. I am therefore very anxious that this Honourable House and the Government in particular should not be frightened by the array of texts, but should decide the case on merits. If we think that the Bill is bad in principle then it should be abandoned. By all means let us then throw out this measure. But in doing so, I just wish to warn my Honourable friends not to be frightened by the ugly picture of the cataclysm which is said to be likely to overtake society if this Bill were passed. It is very easy to become a Cassandra in these matters. I may tell my Honourable friends that no cataclysm has overtaken society, no great revolution social or religious has taken place in provinces where such Bills have been passed, e.g., Baroda, by Houses far less representative than this House.

Therefore let us not allow this red herring to be drawn across our path. I agree that it is not a question altogether free from difficulty, but we have to exercise our minds on the question and decide finally. The case of the girl wife and child mother has been long waiting for redress. For two years this Bill has been before the country. My Honourable friends will remember that it first came before the House as a piece of civil legislation, applicable to Hindus only. A Mahomedan Member of the then Select Committee held the view that if we really wanted the Muhammadan sentiment to be in favour of this Bill the age limit must be raised to 14. He was of opinion that if the Bill was to be made penal it should be made applicable to all communities and not to Hindus only, and that if it was to be applied to Moslems the age must be 14, for Moslems rarely married girls before 14. I am therefore very glad that, although at one stage an appearance was being given to the debate as if it was a question between Government and the Hindu Shastras, speakers like my Honourable friend, Dr. Hyder, and Mr. Price interfered and gave a cosmopolitan turn to the debate, showing that it was not a question of the Hindus only but a question of humanity to the girls of India: I am very glad that that turn was given to the debate.

I here wish to tell my Muhammadan friends that they have got to make up their minds. The hope that, given more time, they will be able to bring their orthodox Ulemas to their view, is as vain as the Pandit's optimism of getting the Hindu Pandits round. I personally do not share that optimism. As I said above, the two points of view are different, and if we really want to pass this Bill, we have to judge for ourselves, as the custodians of the country's sense of right and wrong. But let us not be misled by this specious cry "Oh! we want to look into the evidence before the Age of Consent Committee". I have already told the House that if that evidence is published,—and I agree in this matter with my Honourable friend Mr. Shah Nawaz,—it will be a most harrowing piece of information. It will make our hair stand on end. I was not a member of that Committee and did not hear that evidence, but I had friends on that Committee who have told me that that evidence, if published, will be a relentless story of cruelty and selfishness. I am not afraid of that. What I am afraid of is this, that that evidence when published will surely raise a cry for further inquiry. I would challenge anybody to say that I am likely to be wrong in my anticipation. It is sure to raise this cry. Some Honourable Members will then assert that the evidence is only a part of the picture and not the whole, and that therefore the country must have another and more independent inquiry. An innocent-looking amendment of Mr. Acharya's has already made the beginning. He has already doubted the representative character of the Joshi Committee. In an alternative amendment he asks that another Committee should be appointed to take contrary evidence. We shall eventually be drawn into all kinds of bitter controversies and I can assure my Honourable friends that this Bill will then be hung up for another half a dozen years.

Some Honourable Members: The question may now be put.

Mr. President: Is that the general desire of the House? (Cries of "Yes, yes" and "No, no.")

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Home Member): Sir, the debate has now been very prolonged, and we have had all points of view presented before us. In that view of the matter I think the question might now be put.

(Cries of "No, no; we will go on.")

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum (North-West Frontier Province: Nominated Non-Official): Sir, I am glad I caught your eye, and I think I am rather fortunate in that I have got to speak on this subject after the very many eloquent speeches that have been made.

(At this stage Mr. President vacated the Chair, which was taken by Mr. Deputy President.)

My task has been rendered very light, as I cannot produce much to add to what has been already said on the subject. I shall therefore be as brief as possible in putting my observations before the House. In the first place I sympathise with the author of this Bill, my friend and colleague, Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda. I know that he is very sincere in his endeavours to bring about this social reform. He has tried his best to fight for it, and is now facing very strong opposition. There are others too who are as anxious as he is to bring about reforms in their communities through legislation. I can name one of them, Sir Hari Singh Gour. All these reformers, as I have said, are quite sincere in their wishes; and if it had been possible for them to achieve what they want to achieve through platforms and private endeavours, they would not have come to this House for help. But the necessity arises, because there is not a very strong public opinion behind them to back them up in their ideas. There is this difficulty, and that is why they have recourse to this Legislature. I know that there is occasionally strong public opinion on political matters, but the country is very often divided on matters of this sort; and in view of these difficulties, such reforms have to be brought into

Mr. Ram Narayan Singh (Chota Nagpur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : On a point of order, Sir. Is the Honourable gentleman relevant ?

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : Government can certainly introduce a small piece of legislation with a few clauses to stop these evils.

In the first place, we must secure for the people the liberty of thought and action. That will not require very elaborate legislation. If we put in one little section in a Bill that all roads and wells will be open to everybody in the country, irrespective of his caste or religion, that cannot be objected to by anybody. Similarly, I think in the matter of prohibition there can be no difference of opinion. If Government were to introduce measures of this character calculated to promote the happiness of the people, they would earn the gratitude of the country, and I can assure the Government that they will be supported whole-heartedly by this House.
I do not blame the Government, as some of the speakers who preceded me did and attributed ulterior motives to Government for supporting this measure, because I feel that Government are perhaps quite earnest, and they intend to adopt a bolder policy in the future in matters like these.
They have got the representatives of the country in this House behind them. These have been returned by the people of the country, and if Government will only lay matters of this character before the House and discuss them and leave the questions to be decided by the vote of this House, they will be saving themselves from the trouble of appointing Committees and Commissions, taking evidence and spending lakhs and lakhs of rupees over them, because we find that, after all the time, labour and expenditure spent over these Committees, there will still be room. according to my friend Mr. Jayakar, for difference of opinion. Mr. Jayakar thinks that all the evidence that has been collected and taken by the Age of Consent Committee will be of no use if the question has to be reconsidered more patiently and for a longer time. I think my friend Mr.
Jayakar is right in thinking that, by postponing the consideration of this measure, it will only complicate matters. If this is so, let there be no Committees, no inquiry and no evidence in future, but matters of this sort should be left to the vote of the Members of this Assembly. The elected members will have to satisfy their constituencies of the correctness of their decisions, and if they fail to satisfy them, that will mean the end of their term ; because the constituencies would see that they return to the Assembly men who are in better touch with their sentiment.

Now, Sir, as regards the Bill itself. I am not an authority to dwell on the religious aspect of it. I will therefore only confine myself to the common-sense point of view. Before I do that, I might as well inform the House that, from a meeting of the Muslim Members of this House, I gathered that they were almost unanimous on the point that, since the Bill and the Report as well as the evidence, taken by the Age of Consent Committee had not been fully considered by the Mussulmans, it would be better to postpone the further consideration of the Bill until the next session. As my friend Maulana Shafi said, we do not know how this Bill, which was originally meant for Hindu marriages, was made applicable to Mussulmans also. Perhaps, there may have been suggestions from Mussulmans themselves to make the Bill applicable to them as well, but we should like to know who those Mussulmans were who made these suggestions, and in what capacity they asked for the application of this measure to Mussulmans. (A Muslim Member : "Mr. Jayakar has already told you that Mr. Jinnah was responsible".) Even in the Agenda the Bill is called the Hindu Child Marriage Bill. (An Honourable Member : "That has been changed since".) It may have been changed in the Committee, but as I said, the Mussulmans have not yet heard how the change came about or how it was made applicable to them. I know that my friends Dr. Hyder and Mr. Shah Nawaz have spoken in support of this Bill and have suggested that it should be taken into consideration all at once, but we must bear in mind the quotation given by my Honourable friend opposite, Mr. Kumar Gangaiand Sinha, that even in the body of the Report it is mentioned that a sufficient number of Muslim witnesses had not come forward before the Committee to give their opinion. At least there were very few Muslim theologians, who gave their opinion in support of the change. Khwaja Hasan Nizami is the only person who has been quoted in this connection. But the House knows that he is more of a politician than a theologian, and his opinion I do not think will carry much weight with the orthodox sections of the Mussalmans. The Mussalman representation on the Committee was also in such a proportion as if they were going to secure some jobs for themselves in the services. It is generally one-third or one-fourth of the total seats on such Committees, while in matters like this there should be no fixed numbers. The services are quite different. In services there is the question of loaves and fishes, but in the matter of application of a law to the community I think they must be fully represented, at least more fully than they have been on this occasion.

[5TH SEPT. 1929.]

[Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum.]

Sir, my personal opinion on the subject under discussion is somewhat definite and if the Bill ever reaches the final stage or what they call the third reading stage, my Honourable friend Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda will perhaps find my vote on his side. My personal opinion of it is that it is a very useful measure, a very necessary measure, and that it does not go against our Muslim law of marriage. Of course, that is only my personal opinion. I come from a high class priestly family, but I am ignorant of these religious laws, and as I have said before, I am only taking a common sense point of view of the matter and I base my opinion on the past history of the Mussalmans in this respect. I know that from the very beginning of Islam up to the present day, marriages have been contracted at very tender ages and also at very advanced ages. There is nothing, so far as I know, which prevents a Mussalman from entering into a marriage alliance at a young age or at the advanced age of 100 or even more. That being the case, and there being no special prohibition about it, I think I am allowed to use my own discretion, and according to my discretion, we must fix the limit at some higher age, as it is really an evil and must be put an end to. The Bill as it is, whether you raise the age to 20 or 30 or lower it to 3 or 4, will not affect us much in the North. We do not as a rule go in for these early marriages. As a matter of fact, my family or the clan to which I belong do not enter into marriage alliances before the age of 25 in the case of men and of 20 in the case of women. Whether that is based on religious laws, or on climatic conditions, or on economic reasons, I do not know, but there is one fact which I have noticed and that may have been the principal cause of it. It is that we

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Monday, 9th September, 1929.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

GRANT OF GRATUITIES ON RETIREMENT TO THE STAFF OF THE CURRENCY OFFICE, BOMBAY.

230. *Mr. M. S. Aney : With reference to the reply given to my starred question No. 798 (d), on the 23rd February, 1929, relating to the grant of gratuity to the staff in the Currency Office on retirement, will Government be pleased to state :

- (i) what distinction they make between the position of the employees of the State Railways and the staff in the Currency Office drawing the same salaries ; and
- (ii) what are the detailed grounds on which they see no justification so far for setting up the system of granting gratuities in the Currency Offices ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Much of the purpose of the Honourable Member in asking this question is, I imagine, satisfied by the answer I gave him on the 5th September, 1929, to question No. 229. For the rest, I must explain that the granting of gratuities in addition to pension, or in addition to the Government contribution in a contributory provident fund, is not found in Government service except in the Railway Department. The decisions of the Government of India regarding the staff of the Currency Offices have been taken with reference to the conditions of service of Government servants in general. I trust the Honourable Member will agree with me that this, and not the comparison which he invites me to discuss, was the correct comparison to take.

DUTIES AND STATUS OF TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES IN BOMBAY.

231. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Is it a fact that after the revision of 1927, the knowledge of investigation, as required by rule No. 238-II of Post Office and T., Volume IV, published by the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, is one of the essential qualifications for a Town Inspector at the Presidency Towns and First Class Head Offices, as in the case of Sub-divisional Inspectors in the mofussil ?

(b) If so, are Government aware that Town Inspectors in Bombay were relieved of this important duty since the lowering in status of these appointments to the ordinary time-scale of clerks in 1920 ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The answer is in the affirmative.

L5CPB(LA)

(b) I understand that the statement of which the Honourable Member seeks confirmation is not wholly correct, and that what actually happened is as follows. To end of December, 1919, all Town Inspectors in Bombay were doing investigation work. From January, 1920, investigation work was concentrated in the hands of two Inspectors who initially received a pay of Rs. 100—150, and from September, 1920, the ordinary time-scale rate of pay.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it or is it not a fact, that from the 1st December, 1919, the Town Inspectors were appointed out of the clerical cadre based on time-scale ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I cannot say, Sir. Possibly that is the position. I did not make the selections.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it or is it not a fact that these Town Inspectors were equal in status to the other clerks in the time-scale of 60—5—160 ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I cannot say anything on that point. I was not here in 1919. I have collected, for the Honourable Member's benefit, the information which he had asked for and I cannot now say what was or was not a fact in 1919 and 1918. If the Honourable Member wants further information in regard to past history he must give me notice of questions.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : It is not past history. It is relevant to and connected with the question I have asked, viz.: Are Government aware that the Town Inspectors were relieved of this important work of investigation since 1920, and whether or not since this clerical grade came into force from the 1st December, 1919, in the city of Bombay the Town Inspectors were appointed from these clerks without any questions of seniority, merit or the passing of any examination ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Honourable Member seems to be imparting and not asking for information.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Because.....

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : There is no question of "because". I have given the Honourable Member the information which he asked for, and if the Honourable Member wants to have further information I shall require notice of that.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : My question was.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member has asked for notice.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : The Honourable Member has put words into my mouth which I have not used. I asked him whether it was not a fact that Town Inspectors were relieved of the duties of investigation from 1920 and that they were mere clerks from that day till 1927.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have already given him the answer to that question.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it not a fact that the Inspectors were in the same grade as that of clerks, i.e., time-scale of pay ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I shall repeat the information which I just gave to the Honourable Member and I would request him to listen to it carefully :

"To end of December, 1919, all Town Inspectors in Bombay were doing investigation work. From January, 1920, investigation work was concentrated in the hands of two inspectors who initially received a pay of Rs. 100—150 and from September, 1920, the ordinary time-scale rate of pay."

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Sir, this is not an answer to my question, viz.: Is it or is it not a fact that there were Inspectors who had no investigation work and that they were mere clerks appointed as Inspectors ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That obviously follows from the answer I have given.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Were there or not clerk-inspectors who were not in charge of investigation work ? I am referring to them only.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : If the Honourable Member had listened carefully to my answer he would have found that that was the position.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it not a fact that these Inspectors who had no investigation work between 1920 and 1927 were given charge of investigation work after the revision of 5th August, 1927, although they were mere time-scale clerks ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I do not quite follow the Honourable Member's question.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I shall repeat it with great pleasure. I am asking whether these time-scale clerk-inspectors who were not doing investigation work prior to 5th August, 1927, were after that date invested with the work of investigation over the heads of their seniors in the time-scale ? Is that so or not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I cannot answer that question. I have given the Honourable Member the information which he wanted and if he wants any further information the Honourable Member will have to give me notice of that.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I have referred to the date of the order under which this revision was made in 1927. I cannot understand what notice the Honourable Member wants. I want to know from the Honourable Member whether or not these clerk-inspectors who are not in charge of investigation work before 1927, were from the 5th August, 1927, placed in charge of investigation work, although they belonged to the lower status of clerks on time-scale ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I shall require notice of that question.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : May I refer the Honourable Member to his answer of 6th February, 1928, in which he says.....

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : If I said so, then the Honourable Member does not want any further information.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : As the Honourable Member has himself admitted, the inferior status of these clerk-inspectors in his reply of the 6th February, 1928, why has he sanctioned now the supersession of 350 seniors clerks in the city of Bombay for the benefit of their juniors in the time-scale ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I submit, Sir, that does not arise out of this question. If the Honourable Member will give me notice of that question, I shall certainly try my best to answer it.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : That does arise from part (a) of my question.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member wants notice in any case.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I am prepared to oblige him.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : It is not a question of obliging. This question does not arise out of part (a) of the question. I shall read part (a) of the question :

“ Is it a fact that after the revision of 1927, the knowledge of investigation, as required by rule No. 238-II of Post Office and T., Volume IV, published by the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, is one of the essential qualifications for a Town Inspector at the Presidency Towns and First Class Head Offices, as in the case of Sub-divisional Inspectors in the mofussil ? ”

That, Sir, is the question. That does not refer to matters of supersession. Therefore as I said the Honourable Member's supplementary question in regard to supersession does not arise out of his main question.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : With all this specious pleading, I think, Sir, it arises, because it says that investigation was one of the essential qualifications which the clerk inspectors did not possess.

Mr. President : Order, order. Even if the question does arise, the Honourable Member wants notice. Is that correct ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Quite so.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I shall give him notice.

APPOINTMENT OF TWO INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES IN BOMBAY IN CHARGE OF INVESTIGATION.

232. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Is it a fact that two posts of the status and pay of the Sub-divisional Inspector were subsequently created in 1923 in Bombay for pure investigation duties under the designation of Inspector of Post Offices in charge Investigation ?

(b) Is it a fact that these two new appointments were not given to the then existing Town Inspectors, as they did not possess the requisite departmental qualifications such as the passing of the departmental examination, though they had actually put in more than three years' service in that line ?

(c) Is it a fact that in 1923 the Postmaster General, Bombay, had to appoint to these new posts a clerk-Town Inspector who had qualified himself for Inspector's appointment and had already been on the waiting list, and another subject to passing the examination ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The reply to part (a) of the question is in the affirmative except that two new posts were not created, but the pay of two existing posts on the ordinary time-scale rate of pay was raised. The answer to part (c) is also in the affirmative. In regard to part (b), Government understand that one of the new appointments was given to a qualified Town Inspector on the time-scale rate of pay and the other was given to an official as reward for field service and subject to passing an examination, which he subsequently did pass.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it a fact that when in 1923 these Inspectors' posts were created for the purpose of investigation, the existing Town Inspectors, on time-scale, who were nine in number, were not given any of these two posts because they were inferior in status and qualifications ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I shall again read the answer I have given :

“ Government understand that one of the new appointments was given to a qualified Town Inspector and the other was given to an official as reward for field service and subject to passing an examination, which he subsequently did pass.”

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : But none of these was given—is it correct or not ?—none of these two posts was given to any of the nine Town Inspectors selected from the clerical grade for want of the necessary qualification ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I do not quite follow the Honourable Member's statement. If he wants to impart information to me, I am quite willing to take it.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I want to obtain information as well as admissions.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : So far as I am concerned, I have given him the information which I have collected on the subject.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will he please give me the information whether or not none of these newly-created posts were given to any one of the then existing nine Town Inspectors as were inferior in status and qualifications, although they were called “ Town Inspectors ” by courtesy ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : This is the information I have got. One of the new appointments was given to a qualified Town Inspector.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : One of the new appointments was given to a truly qualified Town Inspector properly so-called ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : If you say the qualified Town Inspector must have been one of the men who was previously on a time-scale rate of pay, and the other was given to an official as reward for field service and subject to passing an examination which he subsequently did pass.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Sir, this is not answering my question. I am asking, “ out of the nine Town Inspectors who were in the clerical time-scale, was any one given any of these two posts ? ”

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, I cannot tell the Honourable Member more than I have told him. If he cannot understand my reply, I am very sorry.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I quite understand your replies but they are not the replies to my question.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : They are replies to the question, if the Honourable Member will read them at leisure. At present, apparently he seems to be very much imbued with a certain amount of prejudice. If he will read the reply I read out, he will see that he has got the reply to his question.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Sir, is the allegation of the Honourable Member that I am imbued with prejudice an answer to my question? He is himself dripping with prejudice. I am asking the Honourable Member, Sir, whether or not it is a fact, when these two Inspectors' posts for investigation were created in 1923, not one of them was given to any of the existing nine Town Inspectors because these were of the clerical grade on time-scale and were inferior in status, although they were called "Town Inspectors" by courtesy?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I shall, Sir, repeat the answer I have given :

"Government understand that one of the new appointments was given to a qualified Town Inspector and the other was given to an official as reward for field service and subject to passing an examination, which he subsequently did pass".

Mr. President : Order, order. I think this is sheer waste of time. The Honourable Member wants to know whether any of these posts was given to any of the nine Town Inspectors. If the Honourable Member has no information, he might say that he requires notice.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, as it is, I have got nothing more to say. My friend, Mr. Jamnadas Mehta wants to know whether any of these appointments was given to any of the existing nine Town Inspectors. If he had listened to my reply, which I shall repeat....

Mr. President : Order, order. He is not giving the answer to the question. Mr. Mehta wants to know whether any of these nine people were given any of these two posts. That is a clear-cut question, and if the Honourable Member wants to make inquiries, he might ask for notice. It is no use reading the same answer, which does not fulfil the requirements of the question.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, it is not a question of my making further inquiries. I was saying that one of these appointments was given, and I was then proceeding to explain how that was apparent from my answer.....

Mr. President : Order, order. If one was given, say "one was given".

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That was part of my answer, Sir.....

Mr. President : The Chair did not understand the Honourable Member to say so in so many words.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I am very glad to hear the Honourable Member say "one was given" to one of these nine inspectors. Then I have nothing further to say except that my information is quite to the contrary.

APPOINTMENT AS INVESTIGATING INSPECTORS OF TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES FOUND UNSUITABLE PREVIOUSLY.

233. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Is it a fact that the incumbents of Town Inspectors' posts between 1920 and 1927, who were found unsuitable in 1923 to hold the newly created posts of Investigating Inspectors on account of want of necessary qualifications, and who have not yet qualified themselves by passing any examination, have been considered competent since their orders of August, 1927, to hold these posts in supersession of the claims of their seniors in the general line?

(b) If the reply to part (a) is in the negative, will Government be pleased to state why they have, since 1927, appointed them to the posts of Town Inspectors in Selection Grade?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Government understand that the appointments were made by the Postmaster General with reference to the orders of Government contained in their letter of 2nd October, 1928, as he considered the men to be competent to hold the posts.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Now can they be declared to be competent to hold the posts, when they did not possess the qualifications laid down and were not even senior to hundreds of their colleagues?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The appointments were selection appointments, and it was for the officer who made the selection to decide whether the men were competent to hold the appointments or not.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : These are selection grade appointments, but after what tests and out of whom? Selection out of the entire clerical grade?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Yes.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it a fact that a person who was 351st in the grade was selected as Town Inspector without possessing any special qualifications over 350 people who were senior?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I do not know, Sir, and I am not prepared to discuss the merits of selection made by responsible officers who were authorised to make selection.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it a fact or not, I say, that there was no selection on merit, those who were unfit for the work for seven years were suddenly considered fit for the same work? Is it a fact or not?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I should say, no. The officer was authorised to make the selection and he made the selection.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is the Honourable Member aware of Order No. A.O.-14, dated 14th November, 1921, of the Presidency Postmaster in his connection where he says :

"No official can now claim to be appointed a permanent city inspector. By virtue of a city officer being on the time-scale, pay his appointment is interchangeable with a clerk on the time-scale pay".

Was there any question of merit?

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I quite understand your replies but they are not the replies to my question.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : They are replies to the question, if the Honourable Member will read them at leisure. At present, apparently he seems to be very much imbued with a certain amount of prejudice. If he will read the reply I read out, he will see that he has got the reply to his question.

33. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Is it a fact that the incumbents own Inspectors' posts between 1920 and 1927, who were found unsuitable in 1923 to hold the newly created posts of Investigating Inspectors on account of want of necessary qualifications, and who have not yet qualified themselves by passing any examination, have been considered competent since their orders of August, 1927, to hold these posts in supersession of the claims of their seniors in the general line?

"No official can now claim to be appointed a permanent city inspector. By virtue a city officer being on the time-scale, pay his appointment is interchangeable with clerk on the time-scale pay".

Was there any question of merit?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am not aware what the Presidency Postmaster had said in the year 1921. I am aware that the Postmaster General, who was the officer authorised to make the selection, made the selection.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : But between 1921 and 1927 no special qualification attached to these posts of Town Inspectors which were interchangeable with any clerk on time-scale pay ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : It may have been. That does not in my opinion affect the question.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Therefore, there can be no question of special merit ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That may be the opinion of my Honourable friend ; it is not my opinion.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I am quoting from an order of the Presidency Postmaster.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : It may be, but the Honourable Member is applying some interpretation of his own to the Presidency Postmaster's order.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it a fact or not that when this clerical grade on time-scale was in force between 1920 and 1927 the Town Inspectors in Bombay were selected from clerks without reference to seniority, because the appointments gave them no special advantage and for all practical purposes, they were clerks ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That may have been. I do not understand what the Honourable Member means by " practical purposes ". The position was this. Before 1927, these appointments of Town Inspectors were included in the grade of the ordinary time-scale clerks, but still the persons who were appointed to fill the posts of Town Inspectors were selected by the Postmaster General. In 1927, the rates of pay of Town Inspectors were raised ; the posts were put into the selection grade. They were selection grade appointments, and the Postmaster General was the officer who was competent to make the selection. He made his selection and put in certain people into that grade. I am not prepared, on the floor of this House, to discuss the action of the Postmaster General in making selections for appointments for which he was the authority competent to make selections.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I am not referring to the position as after 1927 at all. I am asking whether or not between 1920 and 1927 the Town Inspector in the city of Bombay was a clerk and nothing more so far as his pay and status were concerned.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : He was obviously not a clerk. I have said that he was included for purposes of pay in the ordinary time-scale, but he was specially selected for filling the particular appointment.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Was he selected as an Inspector because he possessed the qualifications of an Inspector with knowledge of investigation work ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I do not quite understand the Honourable Member's question.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Does the Honourable Member mean to say that he was selected as Inspector because he had the specific qualifications of an Inspector properly so called ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Obviously, it was because the Postmaster General or the Presidency Postmaster considered him to be more fit for that appointment than anybody else that he selected him to perform the duties of a Town Inspector.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it or is it not a fact that the Honourable Member is quite misinformed on the question of the duties of Inspectors in the City of Bombay as compared with the duties of ordinary Inspectors of Post Offices ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am fully aware of that difference, but the question which the Honourable Member has asked was whether I was aware of the fact that the Inspector was purely a clerk.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : But is it or is it not a fact so far as Bombay City is concerned ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The answer to the question whether the Inspector is a clerk or not is in the negative.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : But is it or is it not a fact that he was only a clerk ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : He was graded with clerks for the purpose of pay. But, obviously, as an Inspector he has got to inspect post offices ; he is not performing the duties of a clerk.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it not a fact that as this clerk had to do out-door work with the public instead of being called a clerk, he was called an Inspector to impress the public of Bombay ? If this Bombay Town Inspector was a real Inspector, will the Honourable Member describe the difference between the duties of ordinary Town Inspector of Post Offices and the Town Inspectors of Bombay ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I shall require notice of that question. If the Honourable Member had asked me for that information in his original question I would have supplied him with a statement giving the various duties. He can find them in the Post Office Manual. If he will give notice of that question, I will supply him with the information.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will he accept it from me that their substantial difference.....

Mr. President : Order, order. The Honourable Member is giving information and not seeking it.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : The answer to part (b) of my question has not yet been explained. Why were these clerk Inspectors appointed to selection grade posts in 1927 when they were ordinary clerks on time-scale ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have already answered that. The pay of these appointments was changed in the year 1927. They were put into selection grade appointments. The Postmaster General is the authority who is competed to make these selections and he selected them for these posts.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Does the Honourable Member realise that this statement is quite contrary to fact and that his reply is inconsistent with the reply which he gave on the 6th of February, 1928, when he said :

"No. A selection grade of Rs. 150—10—250 was introduced from 1st September, 1927, for Town Inspectors in Calcutta in the Government order dated 5th August, 1927, but it was clearly stated in that order that with the introduction of the revised scales the duties and responsibilities attaching to those posts would be enhanced. By a subsequent Government order dated 15th September, 1927, it was announced that the existing incumbents would possess no exclusive right of appointment to the new posts in the selection grade by virtue of their having held charge of the old inferior posts of Town Inspectorships."

Does he now admit that these Town Inspectors in the City of Bombay were inferior Inspectors and not the selection grade Inspectors created by the order of 15th August, 1927, and that their appointment to the new selection grade amounted to supersession of hundreds of their seniors on time-scale ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I do not admit that, Sir. What I said in these various answers to which my Honourable friend has referred was absolutely correct. There is no question of inferiority. Certain new appointments were created. It was definitely laid down that the people performing the duties of Town Inspectors at the time had no absolute claim to the new appointments, but still they were selection grade appointments. The Postmaster General was the authority who made the selection and it rests with him to select men for these appointments.

(Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta wanted to put another supplementary question.)

Mr. President : Order, order : Next question.

PAY OF TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

234. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Is it a fact that the question of appointments of Town Inspectors on the revised scale of Rs. 160—10—250 was discussed in a conference of the Postmasters General held after 1927 ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what the recommendations of that conference were in connection with Town Inspectors' appointments ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Postmasters General were also separately consulted about this subject and, if so, what were their recommendations ?

(d) Have Government accepted any of the recommendations referred to in parts (b) and (c) above and, if so, why ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to place all papers in this connection on the table of the House ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) to (e). The Postmasters General's Conference is a purely departmental conference of a confidential nature, and Government are not prepared to communicate to the House either the recommendations of the Conference or the decisions arrived at by Government on those recommendations.

REINSTATEMENT OF DISPLACED TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

235. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Is it a fact that the Government of India Order No. 14-P.T.E., dated the 2nd October, 1928, relates to the reinstatement of certain displaced Town Inspectors only on the occurrence of vacancies in the Town Inspectors' line ?

(b) Are Government aware that the Director-General has supplemented these orders by his No. 279-III/27, dated the 15th October, 1928, by ordering the Postmasters General to reinstate the displaced Town Inspectors by creating vacancies for them by transferring the senior incumbents, who were appointed ad interim as Inspectors, to the general line ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state why they have committed a double supersession by transferring the senior men and filling the vacancies thus created by the displaced Inspectors ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The letter quoted deals with the matter mentioned amongst others. A copy of it was laid on the table of the House on the 28th January, 1929, in reply to Khan Bahadur Sarfaraz Hussain Khan's unstarred questions Nos. 98 and 133.

(b) Yes, the supplementary instructions were issued by the Director General with the concurrence of Government.

(c) In order to give some relief to officials who had been displaced from posts of Town Inspectors in First Class Head Offices and were considered by heads of Circles to be competent to discharge duties of Town Inspectors, special measures to restore them to their former posts were taken by the transfer of the newly appointed Town Inspectors to other posts on equal pay where this could conveniently be done. This action does not amount to a double supersession.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is the Director General's letter of 15th October, 1928, to be taken as superseding the Government of India's letter of the 2nd October, 1928, inasmuch as both are inconsistent ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : There is no inconsistency in the two.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Does the Honourable Member admit that in the second letter of 15th October, 1928, the Director General wants the heads of circles to give special consideration to these Town Inspectors even by readjustments of posts, whereas the orders of Government, dated the 2nd October, 1928, does not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am sorry I have not got a copy of the letter here.

(Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta supplied the Honourable Member with a copy of the letter.)

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : There is no inconsistency as I thought. The Director General's letter simply refers to certain supplementary instructions. He says definitely :

"In giving effect to the orders of the Government of India, the Director General desires that the following supplementary instructions should be followed."

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Although they are called supplementary, they go far beyond the order of 2nd October, 1928. Is it not a fact that what did not exist in the order of 2nd October, 1928, is to be found in the order of the 15th October ? Does not the latter require that whether there is a vacancy of a Town Inspector, or not, it is to be created for the benefit of these clerk Inspectors by transferring the incumbent of the Town Inspectorship to the general line ? This was not in the original order.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The answer to that is in the negative.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will the Honourable Member read the order of the Director General which calls upon the heads of Circles to find jobs for these clerk Inspectors and by a certain date to report to him what has been done with reference to the Town Inspectors ? Was this in the original order ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That is perfectly all right ; but it does not follow that any instructions that were issued by the Director General in that letter were in any way inconsistent with the order of the Government of India.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Was there anything in the letter of the Government of India of the 2nd October, 1928, whereby the existing incumbents of Town Inspectors' posts were to be transferred for the purpose of making a vacancy for these clerk Inspectors ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : No ; but what the Government of India said was that people who had been displaced from the appointments of Town Inspectors, if they were considered competent by the Heads of Circles for the newly created appointments of Town Inspectors, should be put back into those appointments as soon as convenient.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Even by creating vacancies where there were none ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I am afraid my Honourable friend will never be able to understand the position. These are selection grade appointments and it absolutely rests with the Postmaster General to select anybody to fill these appointments.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : He can do so when a vacancy occurs.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Obviously : if there is no vacancy, the appointment could not have been made.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Does the Honourable Member know that vacancies were ordered to be created by the letter of the 15th October, 1928 ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Vacancies cannot be created ; they can only be created by the creation of new appointments which the Postmaster General is not authorised to sanction, or by getting rid of somebody.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is the Honourable Member aware that some people were transferred to posts of Head Clerks in the general line in order to create vacancies for these clerk Town Inspectors ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The vacancy then is in the selection grade itself. I have for the last 15 minutes or half an hour tried to impress upon my friend the nature of these appointments. They are all selection grade appointments and in these appointments are included Town Inspectors, Head Clerks, and people of that sort. But every appointment to a selection grade is made by selection which is done by the Postmaster General himself. Therefore, the matter rests entirely with him. In the first place, he has got to select a man for promotion to the selection grade and then he can post him to any particular duties, provision for the discharge of which is included in the selection grade.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it then the fact that in selection grade posts the selection is made purely arbitrarily and that the existing order.....

Mr. President : Order, order. The Honourable Member is going far beyond the scope of supplementary questions.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : You will notice, Sir, that the Honourable Member has not answered even one question of mine ?

Mr. President : The Honourable Member must then table a Resolution.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : I have tabled a Resolution already, but there is no likelihood of its being reached.

NUMBER OF DISPLACED TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES AND NUMBER OF MEN SUPERSEDED BY THEM.

236. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the senior incumbents of the Town Inspectors' posts who were appointed ad interim since 21st May, 1928, were found unfit or incapable to efficiently discharge their duties ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the number of such displaced Town Inspectors in the whole of India and the number of senior men whom they have superseded ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Government have no information on the subject. In this connection the attention of the Honourable Member is invited to part (a) of the reply given in this House to his starred question No. 898 on the 5th March, 1929.

(b) I do not quite follow this question as I do not understand what is meant by "such displaced Town Inspectors". Part (a) of the question does not help me as it does not refer to any displacement. In any case Government do not consider that any useful purpose would be served by collecting any information on this subject.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it not a fact that all over India about 4,000 people have been superseded for the benefit of eighty people ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I do not know, Sir.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will the Honourable Member please inquire ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : No, Sir. I have already said that in the opinion of Government no useful purpose would be served by making that inquiry.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Are the claims and rights of 4,000 people no matter of importance to Government ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : It is not a question of 4,000 people. I have already said that there are no absolute claims. It is purely a question of selection, that is, these people were admitted to selection grade appointments by the Post Masters General with whom the fullest discretion lay. By making inquiries, I shall be simply weakening the responsibility of the Post Masters General in the matter.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Does the Honourable Member realise that, although these were selection grade posts, it is obvious that appointments should depend on some minimum qualifications either of seniority or of passing an examination. In this particular instance, no such rule is being observed simply because these 80 people are concerned ? Is it so ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : It is not a fact.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : What is not a fact ?

EXAMINATIONS FOR POSTS OF SUB-DIVISIONAL INSPECTORS AND HEAD CLERKS TO SUPERINTENDENTS OF POST OFFICES.

237. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Is it a fact that departmental examinations were in vogue since 1912 only for the posts of Sub-divisional Inspectors and Head Clerks to Superintendents of Post Offices ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons that led them to grant exemption from the examination to the existing incumbents ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes, in the Bombay Circle only. The system was subsequently introduced in other Circles.

(b) It is presumed that by the term "existing incumbents" the Honourable Member refers to those Town Inspectors who were attached to First Class Head Offices. In the first order, dated the 5th August, 1927, existing incumbents of Town Inspectorships were, among others, exempted from passing the selection grade examination. In their final orders No. 14-P.T.E., dated the 2nd October, 1928, Government restricted this exemption to those Town Inspectors "who have already rendered three years' satisfactory service in that capacity" and added that their confirmation should be at the discretion of the Director General. The exception was made in view of the long period for which these men had already discharged the duties of these posts satisfactorily.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will the Honourable Member state what he means by "long period" ? Is it not that in some cases, the 'long period' will be three years, only this year ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I do not know, Sir. It must have come to three years before this year because the men were confirmed apparently before this year.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Long period in any case, often comes to three years. Is that a fact, Sir ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : As the Government order stands, three years of satisfactory service is the period provided for.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is the Honourable Member aware that clerks in the same time-scale before 1927 who held these posts for more than three years are not getting these selection grade posts, and will he say, why ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Quite possible, because it is not only three years, but it is three years' satisfactory service. I have come across cases where the Post Master General would not retain a man in the selection grade or confirm him in the selection grade although he had put in three years' service, because the Post Master General did not consider the service satisfactory.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is there any authority or proof of the statement that the Honourable Member is making ? On the contrary is it not a fact, one of these favourite Town Inspectors, whose services was considered satisfactory, was found stealing stamps ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have no information.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will the Honourable Member kindly refer to the book, I have just given him ; there he will find that some of the Town Inspectors were found guilty of offences of stealing stamps ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I know nothing about that. On this point, if the Honourable Member would give notice of a question, I shall inquire.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is it a fact that these Town Inspectors will, under the new orders, have the right to the selection grade post without examination while those who supervised their work will be subject to the new examination ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I do not quite see how those people could have been supervising Town Inspectors ?

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : The Head Clerks who are now subject to this examination will be supervised by the Town Inspectors who have not passed the examination ? The Town Inspectors are not required to pass the examination because they have been exempted.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I understand that the work of Head Clerks is not supervised by Town Inspectors.

RULES FOR PROMOTION OF TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

238. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Is it the intention of Government that a three years' tenure in the post of a Town Inspector in the grade of Rs. 60-5-160 should make the incumbent fit without any test or examination, seniority or juniority, to hold the superior post of a Town Inspector in the Selection Grade ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, why is not the same rule applied to the incumbents of the same Selection Grade in the general line and why are officials not kept on probation for three years and exempted from examination before confirmation?

(c) If the reply to part (a) is in the negative, will Government state the reasons for exempting the displaced Town Inspectors from appearing for the examination?

(d) Will Government state why they do not apply to the displaced Town Inspectors the principle of seniority adopted by them for the appointments of Sub-Postmasters, Kalbadevi and Mandvi, and Assistant Postmasters, Bombay G. P. O., which posts have been recently raised to gazetted rank?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) The Honourable Member is referred to my reply to part (b) of his question No. 237.

(d) I would refer the Honourable Member to the explanation given in letter No. P.T.E. of the 2nd October, 1928, a copy of which was placed on the table of the House on the 28th January last.

INCONSISTENCY OF ORDERS REGARDING APPOINTMENTS OF TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

239. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Was not the revised order of the Government of India No. 11-P.T.E., dated 15th September, 1927, as interpreted by the Director General in his letter, dated 11th February, 1928, issued by both the authorities after deliberate consideration?

(b) Was the order of the Government of India No. 14-P.T.E., dated 2nd October, 1928, as supplemented by the Director General in his No. 229-III/27, dated 15th October, 1928, issued by both the authorities after careful consideration?

(c) Are Government aware of the inconsistency between order No. 14-P.T.E., dated 2nd October, 1928, and the Director General's order No. 229-III/27, dated 15th October, 1928? If so, will Government please state the reason and also state if they propose to take immediate steps to set this right?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) There is no inconsistency. The Director General's orders of the 15th October, 1928, were supplementary to the Government letter of the 2nd October, and the measures suggested in it were designed to ensure the earliest possible relief to the displaced Town Inspectors, consistent with the decisions taken by the Government of India.

JUSTIFICATION FOR THE ISSUE OF ORDERS REGARDING THE REINSTATEMENT OF CERTAIN TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES.

240. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Will Government please state the justification for the issue of orders No. 14-P.T.E., dated 2nd October, 1928, after the considered reply (vide Legislative Assembly Debates, dated 1st February, 1928) of the Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Legislative Assembly Debates for the 1st February, 1928, do not show any considered reply given by me on the subject of appointment or pay of Town Inspectors. The Honourable Member over there has probably been misled by some of his friends who suggested this question. The justification for the issue of the orders contained in the letter from the Government of India in the Department of Industries and Labour No. 14-P.T.E., dated 2nd October, 1928, a copy of which is in the Library, will be found in the letter itself.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Instead of the 1st February, it ought to be 6th February.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : That is quite a different story.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : In view of the change in the date, will the Honourable Member kindly answer now?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : If he now puts down 6th February, I shall certainly examine the question. I only looked up the papers of the 1st February and the answer that I have already given was with reference thereto.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : There is no question of any of my friends having misled me. On the other hand, it is only their enemies over there who may be misleading.

CONFIRMATION OF A SUB-DIVISIONAL INSPECTOR OF POST OFFICES IN THE BOMBAY CIRCLE.

241. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Is it a fact that the confirmation of one Sub-divisional Inspector in the Bombay Circle, who was decorated with the title of Khan Saheb for meritorious work earlier, and who has put in eight years' satisfactory service in that capacity, is made dependent upon the passing of a departmental examination?

(b) Do Government propose to treat this Sub-divisional Inspector as less qualified and less efficient than the displaced Town Inspectors who have been favoured with these appointments with an exemption from the departmental examination?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The officer referred to was, as a reward for field service, appointed in 1921 as Inspector, subject to his passing the departmental examination. He appeared at that examination and failed to pass it.

(b) The answer is in the affirmative.

PROMOTION OF CERTAIN TOWN INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES AND OTHER OFFICIALS IN THE SAME CADRE.

242. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Is it a fact that Assistant Postmasters General and Superintendents of Post Offices are considered officers of the same cadre for purposes of promotion, even though the former get a duty allowance in addition to their substantive pay?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state why the same principle should not be made applicable to Town Inspectors in the grade of Rs. 60-5-160 and other officials of the same cadre?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) There is now no separate cadre of Town Inspectors. Town Inspectors attached to offices other than First Class Head Offices draw pay according to the ordinary time-scale, together with a duty allowance. Posts of Town Inspectors attached to First Class Head Offices carry the pay of selection grade appointments in view of the nature of their duties and responsibilities.

LOCATION OF THE WIRELESS BRANCH OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

243. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to refer to starred question No. 226 answered on the 8th September, 1928, and state :

- (a) re para. (i) whether the Director of Wireless is required to go on tour during the Simla season ;
- (b) re para. (ii) why the Director General's Camp Office only is required in Delhi during winter and not the remaining portion of the Wireless Branch also ;
- (c) re para. (iv) as to what are those conveniences which are obtainable for Wireless Branch by remaining in Simla and which are not possible for the Branch to obtain by any means while in Delhi during cold weather ;
- (d) re para. (v) why not ; what is delaying the matter and why the Branch is not treated like other Branches in all respects ; and
- (e) re para. (vi) what are the modifications under consideration and when the decision in the matter is likely to be arrived at and whether that will affect the Wireless Branch in any way, if so, how ; if not, why not ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes, occasionally. But during the winter he is required to be on tour more frequently.

(b) In the interests of economy and for want of accommodation it has not been practicable to have the Wireless Branch as a whole moving between Simla and Delhi.

(c) The Honourable Member presumably desires to know what are the advantages referred to in the reply to the previous question. There are a number of administrative reasons, of which the most important is the difficulty of obtaining sufficient residential accommodation in New Delhi and the additional expenditure which would be incurred in allowances if Government accommodation could not be provided.

(d) For the reasons already stated.

(e) The modification referred to has already been made by reducing to a minimum from this year the strength of the Director General's Office which moves to Simla, but it is too early to state how this modification will affect the Wireless Branch.

WORK DONE BY THE WIRELESS BRANCH OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS DURING WINTER.

244. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state in detail the nature of work done in Simla by the Wireless Branch during winter, that is, during the absence of the Director of Wireless, and which is not at all possible for the Branch to perform if it migrated to Delhi ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : There is no work done in Simla by the Wireless Branch during the winter, which could not be done in Delhi if the whole Branch migrated accompanied by its records.

NAMES OF ATTACHED OFFICES RETAINED IN SIMLA THROUGHOUT THE YEAR.

245. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : What are the attached offices (excluding a few Branches of Army Headquarters) retained in Simla throughout the year like the Wireless Branch ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : In addition to some Branches of Army Headquarters, the following attached offices remain in Simla throughout the year :

- (1) Office of the Military Adviser-in-Chief, Indian State Forces ;
- (2) Government of India Press, Simla ;
- (3) Office of the Superintending Engineer, Simla Imperial Circle ;
- (4) Office of the Director of Army Audit, Simla ; and
- (5) Wireless Branch of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs, of which only a portion moves to Delhi.

REPORT BY RAI BAHADUR GANGULI ON THE WIRELESS BRANCH OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

246. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table (i) a copy of Rai Bahadur Ganguli's report on the Wireless Branch of the Office of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs ; and (ii) a copy of Government decision on the suggestions made by Rai Bahadur Ganguli about the migration and location of the Wireless Branch ?

(b) If the papers asked for cannot be laid on the table, why not ?

(c) If no action has been taken in regard to this matter, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a), (b) and (c). Mr. Ganguli submitted a report on the Office of the Director General as a whole, which contains various paragraphs relating to the work of the Wireless Branch. The report is a departmental document of a confidential character which is not in print, and is not intended for publication. A copy of it cannot therefore be laid on the table of the House. The various suggestions made in it are being examined by the Director General gradually, and orders of Government are being taken from time to time where these are required under standing arrangements. It is not possible to deal with all the suggestions simultaneously without causing a disorganisation of work in the Office of the Director General.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know why the Government of India do not issue all orders marked "Confidential" so as to burke any discussion on the floor of this House?

Mr. President : Order, order.

REASONS JUSTIFYING THE MOVE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF THE WIRELESS SECTION OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS AND THE STENOGRAPHER TO THE DIRECTOR OF WIRELESS TO DELHI FOR THE WINTER.

247. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that only the Superintendent of the Wireless Section and the stenographer to the Director of Wireless move between Simla and Delhi with the migratory portion of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs' Office during the winter since the formation of that section (1920), whereas the other clerks remain in Simla throughout the year because the headquarters of that section is located in Simla?

(b) If reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state reasons in detail justifying the move of these two officials only every year?

(c) Is there any specific order of Government that only the Superintendent of Wireless Section and the stenographer will continue moving every year with the migratory portion of Director General's Office and other clerks will not? If so, will Government be pleased to furnish the House with a copy of order?

(d) Is not the presence of Superintendents of Sections necessary at the headquarters in the interest of the service? If so, what is the necessity for the Superintendent of the Wireless Section to move?

(e) Has the Director of Wireless ever considered the question of the move of the Superintendent of his Section? If so, will Government be pleased to furnish the House with a copy of the decision arrived at in the matter, and if not, to state reasons?

(f) Did not the Director General consider the question of moving the Superintendents of Directorate and decide that Superintendents will not, in future, move with the migratory portion of Director General's Office? If so, when will that decision be given effect to?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) The facts stated by the Honourable Member are substantially correct.

(b) The Superintendent is the only official who is conversant with the different classes of work done in the Wireless Branch, and is of particular use in the absence of the Director of Wireless on tour. The stenographer attached to the Director must obviously accompany this officer.

(c) The reply to the first part is in the negative. The latter portion does not therefore arise.

(d) The interests of the service are best served by moving the Superintendent with the Director of Wireless for the reasons already stated in reply to part (b) above.

(e) The Superintendent is taken to Delhi as the result of due consideration every year and for the reasons already stated.

(f) No such decision has been reached, but it was decided for the current year that the Superintendents should remain in Delhi.

REASONS FOR APPOINTMENT OF A JOINT SECRETARY IN ADDITION TO A FINANCIAL ADVISER IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

248. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) The number of clerks in each grade, officers and special officers, in the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs' Office before the appointment of the Financial Adviser, Posts and Telegraphs.
- (b) The number of such clerks and officers as at part (a) during 1926, 1927 and 1928.
- (c) The necessity for appointing a Joint Secretary in addition to the Financial Adviser; if due to increase in the work of administrative and other nature in Posts and Telegraphs Department, the necessity of placing the services of Rai Bahadur Ganguli again and again at the disposal of the Director General to examine the work of Posts and Telegraphs Department with a view to make every possible reduction in the Department (both Directorate and Circle Offices).
- (d) Whether the Administration of Posts and Telegraphs Department became unmanageable and beyond the Director General's control, which necessitated the appointment of a Joint Secretary and reduction in the clerical staff?
- (e) What is the present position of the Director General in regard to his administrative and executive powers, etc.?
- (f) If any important administrative or executive powers of the Director General have been recovered and given to the Financial Adviser and Joint Secretary to justify their appointments; if so, what are those powers, and if not, what special and additional powers do these officers possess?
- (g) From which Department's Budget the pay, etc., of the Joint Secretary is drawn and under what 'Head'?
- (h) What are the numbers of (i) Secretaries, (ii) Deputy Secretaries, (iii) Under Secretaries and (iv) Joint Secretaries and how many of them are non-I. C. S., and the Departments to which they are attached?
- (i) What are the appointments reserved for I. C. S. men in which non-I. C. S. men cannot be appointed?
- (j) What the reasons are, in detail, justifying the appointment of a Joint Secretary in addition to a Financial Adviser, Posts and Telegraphs?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). A statement will be sent to the Honourable Member.

(c) The Financial Adviser represents the Finance Department, whose powers he exercises in respect of all Post and Telegraph matters. He is not concerned with the secretarial or administrative work of the Department of Industries and Labour or the Posts and Telegraphs Department. The appointment of a Joint Secretary is a temporary measure designed to give the Member in charge of the Department of Industries and Labour secretarial assistance in dealing with cases of the Posts and Telegraphs Department.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know why the Government of India do not issue all orders marked "Confidential" so as to burke any discussion on the floor of this House?

Mr. President : Order, order.

REASONS JUSTIFYING THE MOVE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF THE WIRELESS SECTION OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS AND THE STENOGRAPHER TO THE DIRECTOR OF WIRELESS TO DELHI FOR THE WINTER.

247. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that only the Superintendent of the Wireless Section and the stenographer to the Director of Wireless move between Simla and Delhi with the migratory portion of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs' Office during the winter since the formation of that section (1920), whereas the other clerks remain in Simla throughout the year because the headquarters of that section is located in Simla?

- (j) What the reasons are, in detail, justifying the appointment of a Joint Secretary in addition to a Financial Adviser, Posts and Telegraphs?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) and (b). A statement will be sent to the Honourable Member.

(c) The Financial Adviser represents the Finance Department, whose powers he exercises in respect of all Post and Telegraph matters. He is not concerned with the secretarial or administrative work of the Department of Industries and Labour or the Posts and Telegraphs Department. The appointment of a Joint Secretary is a temporary measure designed to give the Member in charge of the Department of Industries and Labour secretarial assistance in dealing with cases of the Posts and Telegraphs Department.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) and (b). Government have not issued and do not consider it necessary to issue any general orders on the subject, as the question of office hours is, within limits, one for each Department to decide for itself.

(c) The Honourable Member is referred to the answer which I gave on the 15th February, 1928, to Mr. Kelkar's question No. 93. Since then one more office, that of the Audit Officer of the Indian Stores Department, has been permanently located in New Delhi.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I know, Sir, what is the definition of a "menial" ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : It is not clear to me, Sir, how the question arises.

Diwan Chaman Lall : The question relates to clerks and menials. What is a "menial" ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I think, Sir, this should more properly be addressed to the Honourable Member who put the question.

ACCOMMODATION IN SIMLA OF THE WIRELESS BRANCH OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

251. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to refer to starred question No. 227, answered on the 8th September, 1928, and state :

- (a) Regarding paragraph (i) whether the question of accommodating the Wireless Branch in the Kennedy House was ever considered, and if so, when ?
- (b) Regarding paragraph (iii) why and what would have been and would be the additional expenditure by moving the remaining portion of the Wireless Branch containing two junior officers, a few clerks and menials ?
- (c) Regarding paragraph (iv) is not the under-mentioned additional expenditure incurred annually for the accommodation and also due to the location of the Wireless Branch in a separate building ?

- (d) Regarding paragraph (v) why the rent of the rooms, etc., occupied by the Wireless Branch is charged for if the Central Telegraph Office building is the property of the Posts and Telegraphs Department at the disposal of the Director General ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Yes. In 1923 when the Director General's Camp Office first moved into "Kennedy House".

(b) The remaining portion of the Wireless Branch is considerably more than what has been suggested by the Honourable Member and the cost of moving it between Delhi and Simla would approximately amount to Rs. 2,100 per annum, excluding the cost of carriage of records, an expenditure which Government do not consider justified.

(c) I am unable to follow the Honourable Member's calculations and can only repeat my previous assurance that, so far as can be estimated there is no additional expenditure.

(d) The charge is a formal one, and is for the purpose of the allocation of expenditure of the various Heads of accounts under Telegraphs and Radio.

GRANT OF CONCESSIONS TO CERTAIN CLERKS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS ON LOCATION OF THAT OFFICE IN DELHI.

252. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) Whether all the clerks serving in the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs' Office at Calcutta were granted the "concessions" on the location of the Director General's Office in Delhi ?

(b) What of these clerks who were recruited in Simla ; if any, why the condition of recruitment did not operate in their case ;

(c) If such clerks were granted the "concessions" because of their transfer to the Calcutta office some time before the move of the office to Delhi why those clerks who were not so transferred from the moving office before the move, in the interest of service, but located in Delhi permanently when the exigencies of service demanded after the move, should not be accorded the same treatment and granted compensation ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) A few clerks originally recruited in Simla and subsequently transferred to Calcutta became entitled to the concessions as they fulfilled the prescribed conditions.

(c) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to the reply given in this House to part (a) of Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim's starred question No. 482 on the 19th March, 1928.

GRANT OF CONCESSIONS TO CLERKS IN THE MOVING SECTION OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS DETAINED IN DELHI.

253. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many of the clerks of the Office of Director General, Posts and Telegraphs who were not granted the "concessions" because of their having been recruited in the moving section of the Director General's Office were compulsorily detained in Delhi last March ?

(b) What amount of "compensation" to the clerks who have been so detained has been given for the loss of about 80 per cent. of their emoluments ? If no "compensation" has been granted, what are the reasons for it ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Three.

(b) No compensation has been granted. In this connection the Honourable Member's attention is invited to the reply given in this House to part (b) of his starred question No. 135.

SCARCITY OF RESIDENTIAL ACCOMMODATION IN NEW DELHI FOR GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS.

254. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that a large number of Government officials is seriously suffering from a scarcity of residential accommodation in New Delhi ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to consider the question of building additional quarters without delay or of granting land either free or at normal price to those of the staff who want to build their own quarters ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes. There is a shortage of accommodation in New Delhi.

(b) The question of building additional quarters is receiving the attention of Government. It is not considered desirable to give free grants of land to members of the staff who wish to build their own quarters ; but facilities are given, by means of advances, for building and cost of land at normal rates, to those who wish to build for themselves.

ALLEGED PREFERENTIAL TREATMENT OF A LADY CLERK IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

255. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) Whether a sufficient number of quarters was allotted in Delhi for the migratory portion of the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs' Office before the staff was ordered to move from Simla in October last ; if so, why was one lady typist (subsequently transferred to Wireless Section) permitted to remain in Simla pending allotment of quarters in her name ?

(b) If no arrangement for allotment of quarters to certain clerks could be made before they were ordered to move from Simla, why the affected clerks also were not given the same preference as was given to the lady typist ?

(c) If Government could not make arrangements for allotment of a sufficient number of quarters for the migratory portion of the Director General's Office, why the suggestion made in paragraph (vi) of starred question No. 226, answered on the 8th September, 1928, was not reconsidered with a view to give every possible effect to that suggestion ?

(d) Whether there are any special orders to give preferential treatment in cases of lady clerks only : and if so, whether Government will be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the orders ? and

(e) Whether it is a fact that one clerk who was previously transferred to the Wireless Section was retransferred to the Delhi Office in the arrangement of the subsequent change referred to in the second part of the question at part (a) above ; if so, why ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) The reply to the first part of the question is in the negative, and the second part does not arise.

(b) Because the services of the men could not have been utilised in Simla.

(c) As previously stated in my reply to the question referred to the arrangement suggested was not feasible.

(d) No.

(e) Yes, because it was considered that it would be easier for him to find accommodation in New Delhi than for the lady typist.

APPOINTMENT OF COLONEL STANWAY ON SPECIAL DUTY ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

257. *Diwan Chaman Lall : (a) Will Government please state whether it is a fact that Colonel Stanway was placed on special duty on the North Western Railway ?

(b) What was the period for which he was placed on special duty ?

(c) What was the nature of the duty allotted to him ?

(d) Will Government please place on the table a list of the names selected by Colonel Stanway ?

(e) Will Government please state whether they apprehend civil commotion or war or the declaration of martial law ?

(f) Will Government state whether the activities of Colonel Stanway were connected with such apprehensions ?

†This question was withdrawn by the questioner.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) No, Sir. Colonel Stanway holds the military appointment of Commandant of the Nucleus Dépôt of the Railway Reserve Regiment.

(b) The tenure of this appointment at present is two years.

(c) He is in command of the Nucleus Dépôt and is in charge of the enrolment, payment, administration and records of the reservists.

(d) The enrolment of reservists has only recently commenced and I do not think that any useful purpose would be served by giving the names of those, if any, who have been enrolled.

(e) and (f). The answer is in the negative. The formation of a reserve with a view to the performance of special railway duties in time of war is part of the normal peace organisation. I am indebted to the Honourable Member for giving me the opportunity to make the point clear.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member tell us what were the instructions or terms of reference issued to Colonel Stanway for the inquiry he conducted ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : There was no inquiry, Sir. Colonel Stanway was simply appointed to command this Railway Reserve Regiment. That is all.

ALLEGED DIFFERENCE IN TREATMENT OF EUROPEAN AND INDIAN UNDER-TRIAL PRISONERS.

8. *Diwan Chaman Lall : (a) Will Government please state in detail the differentiation between the treatment of European and Indian under-trial prisoners ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Lahore hunger-strikers have protested against their treatment ?

(c) Will Government please state the reasons why the same treatment was not meted out to the Lahore hunger-strikers as is meted out to European under-trial prisoners irrespective of the nature of the offence ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The rules relating to under-trial and other prisoners vary in detail from province to province. In regard to the differentiation now in question, it may be said, broadly, that the principle adopted is to establish conditions, which will maintain the health of all prisoners and will, at the same time, not impose undue expenditure on the State. In pursuance of this principle regard is paid to the previous mode of living of prisoners in the rules, relating to diet, bedding and, in some provinces, to accommodation. I may, however, state that all under-trial prisoners are permitted to supplement their food at their own expense and to have their own bedding. In the Punjab, as in most other provinces, the special rules framed for European prisoners do not apply exclusively to Europeans. These rules provide for their application to Indians whose standard of living is similar to that of Europeans.

The above statement relates to under-trial prisoners and also to those convicted persons who have not been classified as special class prisoners. In regard to special class prisoners, no distinction is recognised in the rules between European and other prisoners.

(b) The Government of India have received no protest from the Lahore hunger-strikers. In regard to their treatment, I would refer the Honourable Member to the communiqués of the Punjab Government, dated the 6th of August and the 9th of August, 1929.

(c) My reply to part (a) of the question provides the explanation desired by the Honourable Member. Presumably the under-trial prisoners in question are not eligible under the rules for the treatment prescribed for European prisoners. I may, however, again refer the Honourable Member to the Punjab Government communiqué, dated the 9th of August, 1929, from which it will be seen that the cost of the diet allowed to these prisoners is in excess of the cost of the diet allowed to Europeans.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member as to why the particular rules which are applicable to European under-trial prisoners were not made applicable to the hunger-strikers in Lahore ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I have explained the principle under which the Punjab rules applicable to European prisoners are equally applicable in certain circumstances to Indian prisoners. The matter is within the discretion of the Superintendent of the jail, who no doubt came to the conclusion that the particular prisoners in question were not eligible for these particular rules.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask whether the Government will see their way to granting the request of the under-trial prisoners at Lahore that they should be treated on a par with European under-trial prisoners ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The demands made by the under-trial prisoners at Lahore are considerably more extensive than those suggested by the Honourable gentleman. I am afraid I cannot give him an assurance in the terms which he suggests.

Diwan Chaman Lall : What I am asking the Honourable Member to do is this : is he prepared to recommend that the same rules should apply to Indian under-trial prisoners as apply to European under-trial prisoners ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : That is a matter which in this instance is within the discretion of the local authorities, with which I should not be prepared to interfere.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : May I know how that is a matter for the Local Government to consider ? The Penal Code governs these matters and the Criminal Procedure Code, and the rules are made by the Government of India to apply to all prisons throughout the country. How is that a matter for the Local Government ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I think the Honourable and learned Member is under some misapprehension. These matters are not regulated by the Criminal Procedure Code, but by rules made by the Local Governments under the Prisons Act.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : That is why I mentioned the rules also—under rules approved by the Government of India : is there a single rule made which was not approved by the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Local Governments within the limits prescribed by the Act which I have mentioned are empowered to make rules.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : Do the Local Governments submit those rules for the Government of India's approval or not ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Ordinarily, they do not.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : Will the Government of India ask the Local Governments to submit those rules and consider them before allowing them to be put into force ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the communiqué recently issued by the Government of India in which an inquiry into the rules relating to under-trial prisoners and special class prisoners has been undertaken.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : But cannot Government, pending that inquiry, accede to the request that has been made by my friend, that the same rules should apply to the Indian under-trial prisoners as apply to the European under-trial prisoners ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The whole question of the rules relating to under-trial prisoners will come under examination.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask whether the Honourable the Home Member is aware of the urgency of settling this problem and may I ask him whether the Government will not be prepared to issue instructions for modifying the rule and not wait until the report of the inquiry is out ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I should not be prepared to issue specific instructions in a particular case in a matter which is within the discretion of the Local Government.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether he is not aware of the fact that the Government of India have been taking a very keen interest in this matter, in spite of the fact that this is a Local Government matter and, therefore, would it not be better for the Government of India to issue instructions of the kind that we are asking for in order to put an end to the trouble that has arisen at Lahore ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I am not prepared to agree with the Honourable Member that that would be a proper course for me to take.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable the Home Member whether he puts it on the ground that it is not a proper course for him to take or that the Government of India are unable to interfere with the discretion of the Local Government ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : My reason is that I am aware that the Local Government and the Governor of the Punjab are taking a very close interest in this matter.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : May I know whether the Government of India is not aware that what is taking place at Lahore is attracting the attention of the whole country and that the whole country feels interested that the matter should be settled early in a fair and humane way ? If so, should the Government of India wait until an inquiry has been made generally into this question or should they not, in view of what is taking place at Lahore, accept the proposal that the same rules should apply to Indian prisoners as apply to European prisoners until the matter should have been further considered ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I am quite aware that the incident to which the Honourable Member refers has attracted and is attracting a great deal of attention in this country, and it was partly at any rate in recognition of that fact that the Government of India instituted the inquiry to which I have referred.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : The country wishes to know whether the protest which these under-trial prisoners are making has had its effect upon the Government and whether they are prepared to extend the same humane treatment to Indian prisoners as is extended to European prisoners ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I must remind the Honourable Member that the particular demands made by the under-trial prisoners to whom he refers are of a much more extensive character and the reasons which have been stated in the Government communiqué—at least one of them is with which the Government of India cannot see their way to comply.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : Will the Honourable Member tell us what are the demands which he considers to be excessive and which he is not prepared to concede ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I would refer more particularly to the demand made that persons who are convicted of offences committed for an alleged political motive should receive special treatment on that ground alone, without any regard to the character of their offence.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : The offence of which they are being tried or any other offence ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : No, Sir ; the demands to which I have referred relate not only to the under-trial prisoners but to persons already convicted.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : But are the persons already convicted before the court as under-trial prisoners or are they there to undergo their sentences before the court ? I take it that the persons who have been convicted have had their sentence passed upon them ; and if while they are undergoing those sentences, the Government choose or think it right in the public interests to prosecute them on another charge, should they not be treated in regard to that charge as under-trial prisoners as any other person accused of that charge ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : My point is this: the demand made by the under-trial prisoners—and I fully recognise the distinction between under-trial prisoners and convicted prisoners—refers not only to the under-trial prisoner but to convicted prisoners also.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : What I submit is that, whether a man has been convicted of one or more offences, he is before the court as an under-trial prisoner in regard to the charges which have to be investigated by that court, and so long as he is before that court as an under-trial prisoner he ought to be treated on the same footing as any other under-trial prisoner. I am sure the Government does not wish to add to the punishment which a court has inflicted upon a person convicted of an offence, that of depriving him of the right of an under-trial prisoner to have reasonable freedom and facilities of making a proper defence.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : As regards the treatment of these under-trial prisoners, I would invite the Honourable gentleman's attention to the Punjab communiqué, to which I have referred, and he will find that having regard to the probable strain of a possibly protracted trial, the Punjab Government have sanctioned in their case exceptionally favourable conditions.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : But the Honourable Member is aware that that has not satisfied those persons : they ask for equal treatment of Indian and European prisoners.

SHORT NOTICE QUESTION AND ANSWER.

ACTION OF THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA IN CONNECTION WITH THE VISIT OF MAULANAS MAHOMED ALI AND SHAUKAT ALI TO THAT COUNTRY.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the statement of Maulana Mahomed Ali, which has appeared in the Times of India of the 31st August, 1929 ? If so, will Government be pleased to state what action they have taken in the matter ?

(b) Are Government aware of the strong feeling in the minds of the Muslims against the order of the Union Government ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table the correspondence that has passed between the Union Government and the Government of India ?

(d) Do Government propose to adopt similar measures on behalf of the Government of India against the nationals of South Africa ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Government have seen the statement in question and have already taken some action as mentioned in the said statement.

(b) Yes.

(c) and (d). No. It will serve no useful purpose. The matter is still under correspondence, and it is best to rely on friendly representations to the Government of the Union of South Africa.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : Will Government be pleased to state how long these negotiations are likely to last ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I cannot say.

Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla : Are Government aware of the inconvenience that is caused to Maulana Shaukat Ali and his party who have already reached South Africa ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Government are in full possession of the facts.

Maulvi Mohammad Shafee Daoodi : Are Government aware that Maulana Mahomed Ali left his home with his wife and daughter and has been stranded at Bombay for the last ten days ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Yes, Sir.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask when Government began their negotiations with the Union Government ? Was it after the protests that appeared in the newspapers or after they received information from the Union Government ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Government began their negotiations with the Government of South Africa as soon as they received intimation of the circumstances from Maulana Mahomed Ali.

PETITIONS RELATING TO THE HINDU CHILD MARRIAGE BILL.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, under Standing Order 78, I have to report that five petitions as per statement laid on the table have been received relating to the Bill to regulate marriages of children amongst the Hindus, which was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 1st February, 1927, by Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda.

ELECTION OF THE STANDING COMMITTEE ON ROADS.

Mr. President : The House will now proceed to elect six members to the Standing Committee on Roads for the financial year 1929-30. There are nine candidates whose names are printed on the ballot papers which will now be supplied to Honourable Members in the order in which I call them. One of them, Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan, has since withdrawn his candidature.

(The ballot was then taken.)

THE CODE OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Home Member) : Mr. President, I move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, for a certain purpose,—for the insertion of a new section 540-B. I do not wish at this stage to add anything material to the Statement of Objects and Reasons, but I wish to say this, that Government had hoped that the circumstances which had arisen might have so changed as to have rendered it possible for them to avoid introducing this measure. In that hope they were most unfortunately disappointed and they have felt it their duty, as the matter is one of definite urgency, to lay this Bill before the House at the earliest possible moment. Sir, I move.

Pandit Nilakantha Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : On a point of order, Sir. I am very sorry that I have got to raise this point of order at this stage, for we have been having for so long a convention that at the stage of introduction of a Bill there should be no speech or objection from the other side. (Some Honourable Members : “Louder please”.) This Bill refers, as I understand, primarily to the case of Lahore prisoners who are now on hunger strike and I am afraid in the course of the debate we cannot but enter into the conduct of those prisoners there. Therefore, under Standing Order 29 (2) (i) it would be an abuse of the procedure of the House. We could have raised this point of order at a further stage, but I am afraid under the new Rule, after once the House is seized of the Bill we may not raise this point of order. Therefore we have to raise this point of order at this stage and I submit that this motion should be ruled out of order.

Mr. President : I have considered this point already and I have come to the conclusion that the matter which the Honourable Member proposes to raise by this Bill could be debated without going into the merits of the pending case.

The question is :

“That leave be given to introduce a Bill further to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, for a certain purpose.”

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE BENGAL PILOT SERVICE (CENTRALISATION OF ADMINISTRATION) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I move that the Bill further to amend the Calcutta Pilots Act, 1859, and the Indian Ports Act, 1908, in order to vest the control of the Bengal Pilot Service in the Governor General in Council, be taken into consideration.

This is quite a short Bill, Mr. President, with a definite and simple object, and its scope therefore is very restricted. As the House, I think, is aware since the date of the Reforms in 1921 a good many matters in connection with mercantile marine administration have been Central subjects, but the Government of India did not at once assume direct control of the actual administration. I might mention two matters, namely, lighthouses and the administration of the Merchant Shipping Act, with regard to which legislation had been passed during the last two years transferring the statutory powers formerly vested in Local Governments to the Governor General in Council. This Bill may be described as another step forward in the same direction. Since 1921 the pay of the Bengal Pilot Service has been a Central charge but all the statutory powers have remained with the Local Government and the Government of India have had to exercise their control by issuing instructions and directions when necessary, to the Local Government. It is obvious, I think, that if the Bengal Pilot Service is to be a Central subject, sooner or later the Government of India must assume direct control and take steps to have the statutory powers transferred to themselves. That could not with advantage be done till the Commerce Department of the Government of India had its own expert staff who could advise it in regard to these matters. That condition is now satisfied and it is for that reason that I have brought forward this Bill. Its provisions are very simple indeed. The Calcutta Pilots Act provides for the trial of pilots, and if the Government of India is to administer the service, I think it is clear that the statutory powers ought to rest with it and no longer with the Government of Bengal, for unless these statutory powers were transferred to us, it would be very difficult for us to administer the Act. In the second place, as the cost of the pilots falls on Central Revenues, and as our intention is that the service should be self-supporting, that is, that the amount collected from pilotage fees should be sufficient to defray the whole cost of the service, it is obvious, I think, that the fixing of pilotage fees must rest with the Government of India. That is in fact what the Bill proposes to do. It proposes to give the Government of India power to fix the rate of pilotage fees in the port of Calcutta and it transfers to the Government of India all the statutory powers under the Bengal Pilots Act.

THE BENGAL PILOT SERVICE (CENTRALIZATION OF ADMINISTRATION) BILL. 425

The only other provision is a very small one due to the fact that the Bengal Pilots Act was passed as long ago as 1859. We have taken the opportunity to substitute for the words, “Magistrate of Police”, which are now obsolete, the words, “Presidency Magistrate”. I think, Sir, what I have said will make it clear to the House what the object of this Bill is. I do not think it is necessary that I should amplify on the subject further. Sir, I move.

Mr. President : The question is :

“That the Bill further to amend the Calcutta Pilots Act, 1859, and the Indian Ports Act, 1908, in order to vest the control of the Bengal Pilot Service in the Governor General in Council be taken into consideration.”

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2, 3 and 4, were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, I move that the Bill be passed.

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN BOILERS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill further to amend the Indian Boilers Act, 1923, for certain purposes, be taken into consideration. Sir, this is a very simple Bill. It seeks to amend the Indian Boilers Act of 1923 for certain purposes specified in it. These purposes are two, and they are set forth in clauses 2 and 3 of the Bill. The reasons for proposing these amendments are explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons and I do not propose to take up the time of the House by paraphrasing that Statement. Sir, I move.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That the Bill further to amend the Indian Boilers Act, 1923, for certain purposes, be taken into consideration.”

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2 and 3, were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : Sir, I move that the Bill be passed.

The motion was adopted.

THE NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS (SECOND AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill further to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, for certain purpose (Insertion of new section 85-A) be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinions thereon. This is a small Bill, containing only two clauses, and very simple in its purpose. Its object is so to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act as to make it clear that the Act affords protection to bankers in India against forged or unauthorised endorsements of demand drafts drawn by one branch of a bank upon another branch of the same bank. The question first came up for consideration by the Government of India in 1926, at the instance of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, which pointed out that it was doubtful whether, under the Indian law, the protection which is afforded to bankers under the English law would apply. At that time the Government of India thought that legislation was unnecessary. The question was now ever again raised at the meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce at the end of 1926, and they pressed that the Government of India should take action in the form of legislation, because the exact effect of the Indian law was in doubt and they preferred that prevention of difficulty should be undertaken rather than that we should wait till the difficulty arose and then trust to the decision of the Court. Since then there has been one obiter dictum of the Calcutta High Court, which would appear to indicate that that Court would have taken the view that the protection which we seek to give to bankers in these cases would apply ; but that was only an obiter dictum and I understand that a very large circle of commercial interests feel that, as this matter is in doubt, the doubt ought to be cleared up. On the other side, the Government are led to believe that some doubts as to legislation are felt in certain other commercial circles, and in these circumstances the Government are of opinion that, in the first instance, the Bill should be circulated in order to obtain full opinions upon it. Sir, I move.

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX (PROVIDENT FUNDS RELIEF) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I move that the Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for certain purposes (Provident Funds Relief), be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. G. L. Winterbotham, Mr. J. Y. Philip, Mr. H. P. Mody, Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla, Mr. N. C. Kelkar, Mr. S. C. Mitra, Mr. B. P. Naidu, Mr. Sarabhai N. Haji, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla, Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi and the Mover, with instructions to report on the 16th September, 1929, or as soon as possible thereafter, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be six.

Sir, the object of this Bill is to extend relief in respect of income-tax to private Provident Funds. At present certain Government Funds and allied Funds receive measures of relief, and it has long been felt that similar measures ought to be accorded to private Provident Funds. This question has had a long history and has been under discussion continuously for the last three years. The Government of India were from the beginning sympathetic to the demand, inasmuch as anything that we can do to help Provident Funds and subscribers to Provident Funds is an encouragement of thrift. But the Government felt certain difficulties in the matter and had to consult Provincial Governments upon it. The consultation and the decision about further action took a considerable time, and it was pressed very strongly upon me when I attended the Annual Meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce in Calcutta last December. I then gave a definite undertaking which has since been repeated in this House. The substance of the undertaking was that the Government, wishing to encourage thrift, were prepared to treat those who subscribed to Provident Funds exactly in the same manner as those who paid premiums annually on a life insurance policy ; that is to say, as a man who pays an insurance premium is entitled to abatement of tax up to one-sixth of his income on the amount that he pays, so we intend to give exactly the same benefit to subscribers to Provident Funds and to enact that, to the extent of one-sixth of the income the employee's subscription combined with the employer's subscription to the Fund shall be exempt from taxation. I wish to make the nature of the undertaking quite clear because, since the matter has been under discussion, I have been pressed to extend further privileges to private Provident Funds and to put them entirely on the same basis as Government Provident Funds. That was never undertaken by me and there are certain privileges which apply to Government Funds which cannot quite appropriately be applied to private Provident Funds. On the other hand, in substance, what we are now proposing goes very considerably further than the original undertaking, because not only will the subscriptions paid annually into the Fund be exempt from income-tax, but the income on the investments held by the Fund will also be exempt from tax, and in this way private Provident Funds will get very substantial relief.

The question of introducing safeguards against possibilities of abuse is a very complicated one and as a result the preparation of the Bill has been a matter of considerable difficulty. I wish to make it quite clear that in this Bill we regard the position as though we were starting an experiment and we therefore have not attempted to legislate for every possible contingency. We have thought it better to provide for a fairly wide discretion to be exercised by the Governor General in Council for making rules on certain points. I believe that that will in practice be found to be the best method, and that, by virtue of the rule-making power, we shall establish regulations which will fit in with the needs of the Funds and will also give the Government the protection which is necessary in the public interest. The most interesting part of the discussion on this Bill will have to take place in Select Committee, as the Bill is of a highly technical nature. I therefore do not think I need say anything more about it now, and I beg to move the motion standing in my name.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham (Associated Chambers of Commerce : Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, in support of this motion I should like, if I may, in very few words to put before the House the position of those whom this Bill is designed to benefit. In the first place, Sir, as we have heard from the Honourable the Finance Member, though the Income-tax Act provides for exemption of income-tax for those Provident Funds to which the Provident Funds Act, 1925, applies, this latter Act does not apply to private Provident Funds, that is to say, Funds maintained by Firms and Companies and other bodies for the benefit of their employees. It only applies to Government Funds and quasi-Government Funds. Those of us, Sir, who have been engaged in the struggle with Government have felt for a long time that this is an inequality in the law, which amounts to a grave injustice to a large number of deserving people ; that is to say, the members of these private Provident Funds ; and we have held, and I hope that this Bill will show that we have held successfully, that it is a position for which there is no conceivable justification. Secondly, Sir, under the law as it stands, the incidence of taxation on the savings of individual members of private Provident Funds is not equitable. An individual's savings in a Fund are composed of his own contributions, his employer's contributions and the accumulated interest thereon. A man's own contributions pay tax at the time when they are paid into the Fund. The rest, that is to say, the employer's contribution and the interest is not taxable until it is paid out on the member leaving the Fund either on his leaving the firm on retirement or on death. It is then treated as part of his income in the year in which he leaves the Fund and taxed accordingly. Honourable Members will readily understand that if to a man's ordinary income for one year is added a lump sum representing his employer's accumulated contributions over the whole period of his service together with the accumulated interest on both his own and his employer's contribution for that whole period, he will almost certainly have to pay tax at a higher rate than is applicable to his yearly income proper and he may even in certain circumstances be called upon to pay a considerable sum in super-tax. These two grounds, Sir, have formed the basis of our claim for exemption from income-tax for private Provident Funds—firstly, the inequality of Government servants being treated differently from others in this matter, and secondly, the unfairness of the rate of tax on the accumulated balance paid out to individuals. The Bill, Sir, before the House, represents the climax of a long struggle. We should, as the Honourable the Finance Member made it plain, have preferred that the matter had been dealt with by making the Provident Funds Act, 1925, applicable to private Provident Funds, but we unfortunately have to accept the position that there are insuperable objections to this course.

I should like, Sir, if I may, say how very grateful we are to the Honourable the Finance Member for the way in which he has promptly tackled this long-standing grievance of the commercial community. Ever since he came on the scene towards the end of last year, he recognised the justice of our claim, and I should like to say that we readily acknowledge that this Bill represents a generous interpretation of the undertaking which he gave at the meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce at the end of last year in Calcutta. I do not think that there will be any difference of opinion about the principle of this Bill, which is the encouragement of thrift. I will only add, in case my speaking has raised any doubts in the minds of Honourable Members, that I am not myself a member of any private Provident Fund, and that the position of employers in respect of relief from income-tax on private Provident Funds will be exactly the same under the provisions of the new Bill as it is at present.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That the Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for certain purposes (Provident Funds Relief), be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. G. L. Winterbotham, Mr. J. Y. Philip, Mr. H. P. Mody, Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla, Mr. N. C. Kelkar, Mr. S. C. Mitra, Mr. B. P. Naidu, Mr. Sarabhai N. Haji, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla, Mr. A. H. Ghuzna and the Mover, with instructions to report on the 16th September, 1929, or as soon as possible thereafter, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be six.”

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for certain purposes (Amendment of sections 14, 25-A, 31, etc.), be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Sir Darcy Lindsay, Mr. H. P. Mody, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, Mr. D. F. Mulla, Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla, Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be six.

Sir, this Bill brings together a number of minor amendments, mostly of administration and procedure, which have been found necessary in the course of working the Income-tax Act. The Bill is, it is hoped, non-controversial. It contains 12 groups of amendments, of which eight relate entirely to machinery and procedure, two to penalties for false or fabricated evidence in income-tax proceedings, and two to very minor points of substance affecting the burden of taxation. These points of substance relate to the grant of relief in all cases of hardship, neither of which is important from the point of view of revenue, though, from the point of view of individuals concerned, the hardship operates at times quite harshly. Sir, I do not think it is necessary for me to say any more on this Bill, which raises no questions of principle but confines itself to details of administration.

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN CENSUS BILL.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar (Home Member) : Mr. President, I beg to move :
“ That the Bill to provide for certain matters in connection with the taking of the Census, be taken into consideration ”.

[Sir James Crerar.]

I move for consideration because this Bill is of a purely formal, and, I think, of an entirely non-contentious nature. Similar measures have been enacted for a considerable number of decades past for the purpose of providing for the taking of the decennial census. It is not necessary for me to remind the House that the taking of the census, which should be done in a comprehensive and accurate way, is a matter of great importance. The results of the census are indispensable for nearly every branch of administration and for nearly every form of public work. It is, of course, a general review of the population and other matters of great importance bearing on the national life of the country which is undertaken in every civilised country of the world. The principal object of this Bill is to confer upon the large number of non-official agents, who are necessarily employed in so great an undertaking, the position and protection of public servants, and also to secure that the necessary information shall be provided by those who are responsible for doing so. It is obvious that non-official agencies must be employed to a very large extent in a work of this kind, and it is very much in the public interest that this should be done because, if assistance is given by persons who have local knowledge of the facts, much less inconvenience will be caused to the public, and the work of the census can be carried out with greater accuracy and despatch. I think, Sir, that there is not likely to be any opposition in any part of the House, for the principle is so plain and so advantageous to the country, and I do not propose, therefore, to add to these few remarks in making this motion.

Mr. N. C. Kelkar (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I would just like to make one or two observations at this stage of the Bill with regard to a particular provision of the Census Act, which is contained in clause 6. Mine is a matter of general comment and not a specific amendment or correction of a particular section. Therefore, I raise that question in a general manner when this motion is being considered, and I hope the Honourable the Home Member will give me permission to do so. It is on a point of information that I am speaking. My point is that clause 6, for instance, refers to the instructions to be issued by Provincial Governments to Census Officers and to be published in the Local Government Gazette. Now, the question is whether these instructions, as issued in the Government Gazette, will be final, or whether they will be subject to revision in view of public opinion expressed on those instructions. It will be admitted at once that Census reports have a great importance, especially in these days both from the point of view of religion and political administration. I need not, of course, go into details. My point is that it is only fair to the public to let them know what the instructions are that are to be issued to Census Officers, so that if any corrections have got to be suggested with regard to these instructions appertaining to the enumeration, etc., there should be time enough for the representatives of the people in the country to put themselves in communication with Provincial Census Superintendents and to get what they want in this matter. I confess that I do not know exactly what the procedure is and what sort of instructions are issued regarding the taking of census. And referring to the Census Report for the last two times, I find that the actual instructions issued to the Census Officers are not given in the Census Report itself. Therefore, I do not know what sort of instructions are actually issued. But, I presume that instructions issued to the Census Officers govern a number of points and one of the points is enumeration by religion or caste, etc. There are a number of headings under which enumeration has got to be made, enumeration by sex, enumeration by age, enumeration by religion, etc. What I am concerned with is enumeration by religion or caste, and in this I do not allege that the Census Officers have in themselves any communal bias. But it is quite possible that the provincial Census Superintendents may have got some a priori ideas of their own as to classification of particular people under particular headings. To give an idea as to what I mean I will refer this House to the Census Report of 1911, in which I found that an attempt was made by the provincial Census Superintendents to put forward their own a priori ideas about the incoherence of the Hindu religion, and they seem to have prescribed a sort of catechism or questionnaire to decide for themselves whether particular sects could be included among Hindus or not. Though I am speaking at present for the Hindus, the difficulty may equally apply to Muhammadans and to people of other religions also. But I am here particularly concerned to speak from the point of view of Hindu religion. Here is a list of questions which I found were actually issued to the Census Officers in the process of enumeration. The central idea seems to be that the Hindu community is not coherent and in order to bear out that impression, that is that the Hindu community is not coherent, a list of specific questions were given. I will just give those questions, so that an idea may be obtained as to what detailed instructions were given to census enumerators. Supposing they were followed, what misleading results would they possibly lead to? The census enumerators were asked to prepare a list of Hindus of all the minor castes which qua caste, (1) deny the supremacy of the Brahmans, (2) do not receive a mantra from the Brahmans, (3) or recognise a Hindu guru, (4) deny the authority of the Vedas, (5) do not worship the great Hindu gods, (6) are not served by good Brahmans as family priests, (7) have no family priests at all, (8) are denied access to the interior of the Hindu temple, (9) cause pollution by touch or presence within a certain distance, (10) bury their dead, (11) eat beef, and (12) show no reverence for the cow, etc. One really fails to understand the significance or the inner meaning of such an inquisition and I also fail to understand how an ordinary person will be able to answer questions like these, and whether there is really any time for the census enumerator to go into these details and put the man under the proper sub-head. Now, there are things on the other side also. In the same Census Report, I find, that while doubt has been thrown upon the Hinduism of certain Hindus who worship Muhammadan saints, no such doubt was raised about certain Christians, like the Uyomaya Christians in Travancore, who offer ceremonial benedictions after the manner of the Brahmans. Why should doubt be raised in the case of Hindus because they worship certain Muhammadan saints, and why should no such doubt be raised in the case of Christians who follow Brahminical observances? One principle seems to be applied in the one case, while another principle seems to be applied in the other case. That makes out, I will not say, conscious—an unconscious communal bias on the part of certain Census Officers.

In another report, I find this. It is of course a question whether animists could rightly be called Hindus by religion. In this connection, the Census Officer says that it is very difficult to say at what stage the man ceases to be an animist and becomes a Hindu. The point seems to me to be this : here is an inclination to treat animists as far as possible as

[Mr. N. C. Kelkar.]

"animists" and not as "Hindus". A line seems to be stressed or emphasised after which an animist becomes a Hindu and before which he does not become a Hindu. These are all very elaborate matters. My submission is that when a man calls himself a Hindu, he must be put down on the record as a Hindu. In that Report the Census Officer says that it does not by any means follow that a man gives up his inherent animistic beliefs because he seeks the help of Brahmans or makes offerings at a Hindu shrine. That is the reason given for not regarding animists as Hindus. But I have given two illustrations on two different sides and I will put the concrete result like this. In one case the census return would refuse to show a man as a Hindu because, as pointed above, he was not served by Brahman priests on the one hand and in the other case, the census return would refuse to return an animist as a Hindu, though he said that he sought the help of Brahman priests or was making offerings at Hindu shrines. This will make it possible for certain Census Officers or Census Superintendents to set about their business with certain a priori notions of their own as to classifications, etc., and if they go into elaborate details like these, I do not know what it will lead to. It will lead to this, that enumeration will be wrong, unfair and unjust to certain classes. I believe that generally in a census return a man should be entered by the description he gives of himself. If he says, "I am a Hindu", he is a Hindu, if he says, "I am a Muhammadan", he is a Muhammadan. That is all. But, I do not quite see the purpose of issuing such detailed instructions in order to note down sub-caste, sub-sub-caste and so on. Also, in regard to beliefs, I do not think it is right that the Census Officers should institute a sort of inquisition into the peoples' religious beliefs and ask them what they do or do not believe in and so on. Perhaps these questions would be useful from a theoretical or a philosophical point of view, but they would not serve any useful purpose from our present point of view, and I really do not know whether there is time enough in the census operations for all this sort of questions. I think that these sorts of questions and other things really go to vitiate the ultimate calculations of enumeration. My point therefore is this, that if any instructions are issued by Provincial Superintendents, the public or its representatives should have a fair opportunity to go into those instructions, and make proper representations to the Provincial Government before those instructions are finally adopted and gazetted in the Local Government Gazette. I do say that this procedure should necessarily be followed. My point is that the Provincial Governments ought not to make any inquiries behind the back of the public in these matters. Before issuing any instructions of the nature referred to by me to the provincial Census Superintendents, they should be published in the first instance and the instructions likely to be issued by the Provincial Superintendents should also be tentatively published in the Government Gazette or otherwise, or they should be supplied to the Press or the journalists in order that discussion might be raised on those instructions. That is absolutely necessary, for if these instructions are finally prepared and published by the Provincial Governments in their gazettes without consulting the public, they become final. There is no relief to be obtained by the people who feel that they are injured by those instructions. Therefore my point is that that matter is one which is governed by clause 6. Of course I do not want to raise that point because there is no amendment or anything sought on that section, but I want to point out that particular section at this stage and ask the Honourable the Home Member whether he realises the particular point that I have brought to his notice and what attitude he is going to take with regard to that and whether he is going to issue any instructions to the Provincial Governments under this Act in view of the observations which I have made.

1 P.M.

Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan (United Provinces : Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, we are all Indians ; whether we are Mussalmans or whether we are Hindus would not matter, if it had been confined to taking the census only, i.e., counting the population. My friend, Mr. Kelkar objects to these details in the Census Report, but I think these details are very essential. They are very useful and helpful to us in deciding many matters. I think the word "Hindus" is such that it even implies the Sikhs in many matters, and it will not be fair to those communities and those sections who, though they call themselves Hindus as distinguished from Mussalmans or Christians, are still not real Hindus in the sense in which my friend wants to take them. These details are very necessary for determining many matters which arise from time to time. I at least do not agree with the suggestion which my friend Mr. Kelkar has put forward before the Honourable the Home Member, and I think he will not be doing any service by this suggestion to the country and to many communities who want to know their numerical strength and the basis on which they are calculated. For instance, take the sweepers. My friend wanted to include them among the Hindus.

Several Honourable Members : "They are Hindus".

Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan : If anybody who is residing in India can be called a Hindu, as distinguished from one who is not residing in India, then I think the Mussalmans also can be counted as Hindus if that is going to be the literal translation of Indians because the people of Arabia and of America and other places do not call us Indians but they call us "Hindi". Even the Mussalmans, when they go to Arabia, are not called Mussalmans but "Hindi". This is a term which is applied to all people residing in India, whether Mussalmans, Hindus or Christians. This word "Hindu" was given by the Mussalmans to all the people who were residents of India, whether they were idolators or worshippers of other objects or believed in the Arya Samaj or any other religion. Therefore if you want to know the details about the different religious beliefs of the people you have to make this distinction in the Census Report, and that is always helpful in coming to certain conclusions which we require from time to time. I was surprised at the speech which was made by my friend Mr. Kelkar. I do not know with what motive he made it, unless it was for some political purpose, for which he wishes that the Report, which can be comprehensive, may not be comprehensive and may serve a certain ulterior motive for which he is working.

Mr. E. L. Price (Bombay : European) : Sir, with regard to these instructions I do not want to express any opinion on what Mr. Kelkar was saying, but in the last census operations there came to my notice two cases where these instructions were used to harass domestic relations. In one case I understand a man was living with a woman and there was a dispute in his community whether she was his lawful wife or not. In the other case it was a Hindu who had married a widow, and I believe his castemen arrayed themselves against him. In both these cases I understand the households were severely harassed by the questions of the Census Officers, which were evidently prompted by their social opponents. It seems to me, Sir, that if a man and woman say that they are man and wife, it ought not to be permissible for them to be harassed on the question of the legality of their union by Census Officers.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadian Urban) : Sir, my Honourable friend Mr. Yamin Khan does not appear to have understood Mr. Kelkar at all. The point that Mr. Kelkar put before the House has nothing communal about it. The point, as briefly put, is this, that it is not the business of a Census Officer to go into the religion of the citizen and catechise him as to details in order to find out whether his own description about himself as a Hindu, Muhammadan or Christian is just and proper. The option ought to be left entirely to the citizen whether he will call himself a Hindu, Muhammadan, or Christian, and it is not the business of the Census Officer to catechise him about further details with a view to find out, for some ulterior purpose, political, religious or otherwise, whether his description of himself as Hindu, Muhammadan or Christian is correct. That is the point made by Mr. Kelkar. In order to illustrate it, I will take the case of a Christian. Is it permissible to the Census Officer, if the citizen calls himself a Christian, to further interrogate him with a view to find out whether his description of himself as a Christian is well-founded? Would it be permissible, e.g., to the Census Officer to ask him whether he believes in the Ten Commandments and if so which of them,.....

Mr. E. L. Price : Whether he was baptized, that is the Christian test.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Or whether he was baptized, or whether he believes in the Transfiguration of Christ or in certain parts of the Bible as apocryphal, or whether he believes in the Chapter on Genesis. If the Census Officers were to be allowed to put these questions, he would become a court of appeal for the purpose of deciding, what is entirely a matter for the citizen to decide. Take the case of a Muhammadan, and I will ask Mr. Yamin Khan to note the interrogatory. Can a Muhammadan, after he has described himself as one, be further asked whether he believes that Muhammad was the Prophet of God or had greater or less divinity. Supposing a Muhammadan were asked to state whether he believed in a particular religious theory, or whether he subscribed to a particular Muhammadan tenet, how would it look? Is it permissible to the Census Officer to go into all these questions? I can assure the House that, if we once give the right to the Census Officer under clause 6, to put questions which are entirely outside the proper scope of a census, we will only introduce friction and irritation. The result of such a power will be that it will be entirely in the hands of the Census Officer to weaken, at his will, the position of certain religions or strengthen that of others. I therefore submit that such a power is entirely outside the purpose of that clause or even of Census operations. I do hope that the day will soon come in India when denominational headings in religion will be entirely dropped from the census register, as it is done in some European countries, where, nobody bothers about the religion of the citizen; but until that day comes, I think the Census Officer ought not to have the liberty of stirring up religious difficulties under the guise of census operations. His business is to leave it entirely to the citizen to say under what religious category he will rank himself; he may call himself a Hindu or Moslem; it is entirely for him to decide the matter; the Officer should not go further and interrogate him with a view to distinguish whether he is an orthodox Hindu or Moslem or whether he is 14-annas orthodox or 12-annas orthodox. Let us read some of the questions which Mr. Kelkar read out, which Hindus had to answer. "Do you deny the supremacy of the Brahmin?" "Do you receive mantras from Brahmins?" "Do you deny the authority of the Vedas?" "Do you not worship Hindu gods?" "Are you not served by good Brahmins as family priests?" "Have you any family priests?" What is the reason for putting these questions, which are entirely a matter of details of personal religious belief and of internal regulation for a particular community? What can be their meaning, except that the motive was to point out that, although some people might call themselves Hindus, they were only 8-annas Hindus or 6-annas Hindus or 3-annas Hindus. That is an inquiry which, I do submit, and I am sure the House will agree with me, is entirely outside the proper scope and purpose of a census; if I may say so quite frankly, the Officer who puts these questions is using the census for the purpose of political or religious propaganda. I do submit that that ought not to be allowed to be done in the name of a census, and I do hope that the Honourable the Home Member will admit the good sense of the proposal made by Mr. Kelkar and see that these mischievous interrogatories which are entirely outside the purpose of a census are not allowed.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum (North-West Frontier Province : Nominated Non-official) : Sir, I do not intend making a long speech on this motion. All that I want to say is that unfortunately our division of society is based upon religion, faith and creed. These divisions do exist in the country and we cannot get rid of them in our present-day life of India. Even the words "majority community" and "minority community" are based on these lines. The majority community which is composed of numerous races and sects has nothing very common about it as far as social habits and customs go, except perhaps that it chiefly consists of people who believe in religions and faiths that have sprung up from India; and the minority communities mostly belong to the religions that have come into India from outside, such as Judaism, Christianity, Islam and Zoroastrianism. That being the case, it is most essential that we should describe these various faiths, which exist in the country, as elaborately as possible, if not for the sake of religious beliefs, at least for the political questions that always arise in this House and elsewhere.....

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : That is it : the cat is out of the bag.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : If we had some other divisions of society in this country, such as exist in other countries of Europe and America, viz., Capitalism, Labour, Socialism, Bolshevism, Communism, Conservatism, Liberalism (An Honourable Member : "Communalism") and, yes, Communalism, we would have been quite all right; but all these "isms" do not exist to any great extent in this country, and the division of society mainly rests on our faiths, beliefs and religions.

[Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum.]

Even the other day a friend of mine, although I do not think his community is more than one per cent. in the whole of India, wanted to know how many of his Sikh brethren were taken in a certain Department of Government service. Unless they know how many Sikhs there are in the different parts of India, Government will not be able to give a satisfactory reply to such questions. Similarly, we the Mussalmans do not understand why we alone should be separated from the rest of India by being termed "Muhammadan constituency", and calling the rest of the people "Hindus". I can say that there are more differences of faiths and creeds among the various sections of the Hindus than there is a difference of religion and belief between a Muslim and a Hindu; and if with all those differences of faith and belief they still call themselves Hindus, it must be for the sake of political gains and objects, and we are consequently losers to a great extent by this isolation. I shall explain this in a moment. For instance, even the depressed classes and untouchables come under the category of Hindus, while I think that the depressed classes, and especially the untouchables, are open to all the various religious communities to be reclaimed. The Muslim religion, as I believe it, is more accessible to these classes and can take them more readily in its lap than any orthodox Hindu community or section. I believe that in the south of India the majority of the population is Hindu, and still, if Government were not able to know the percentage of the Brahmin and non-Brahmin population in the Madras Presidency, I do not know how they would have been able to answer many of the questions that are raised here every now and then. In short I think the more elaborate the description of the various sections that exist in this country that is given by the Census Officers in their Report, the better it will be for all intents and purposes. At least it will do no harm. I cannot follow the argument of my friend, Mr. Jayakar, who asked, "Why should the Census Officer ask a man whether he believes in the Ten Commandments of Moses, etc., etc.?" I think that was stretching the point too much!

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Can the Honourable Member deny that to ask a Hindu whether he believes in the Vedas is like asking a Christian whether he believes in the Ten Commandments or not?

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : I was just going to explain the point according to my own lights. I mean that perhaps it will not be necessary to sub-divide the existing religious sects in the country by putting too many questions of that sort to a citizen of the country; but whatever sections or sub-sections do exist, whether among the Muslims, such as Ahmadis, Shias, Sunnis, Sufis, Wahabis or Hanafis or among the Hindus, who have certainly many more sections among themselves than the Mussalmans, I say that the citizens may be asked to tell the Census Officer to which particular existing section they belong. These questions will serve us in many ways: at least it will do us no harm at all, since these differences are there and for this purpose I think there is scarcely anything which is unnecessary in the present system of the census taking in the country.

Dr. B. S. Moonje (Nagpur Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I entirely associate myself with what my friends, Mr. Kelkar and Mr.

Jayakar, have said. From the point of view of scientific curiosity, if all these details have been put down, I have no objection. But as my friend, Sir Abdul Qaiyum considers that there is also a political importance to be attached to it, when the question of who should call himself a Hindu or a Muslim comes up, here therefore the importance of the instructions to be given to Census Officers comes in. I therefore want to know if these instructions that are to be issued under this Bill will be permanent instructions, or will be amenable to modification and change according to representations that might be made by the several communities in India. I have known of cases during my travels, particularly in Southern India, in which a Christian girl is married in a Hindu house and she is accepted in the House as a Hindu. In the same way, a Hindu girl is married in a Christian house, and if those people choose to call themselves Christians, they are entitled to do so. Therefore, if the discretion is left to the Census Officers to describe as to who is a Hindu and who is a Christian, difficulties will arise and there is a likelihood of some injustice being done to the parties concerned. I know personally that there are some Hindus who have some respect for and worship the Aga Khan, and who call themselves Aga Khani Hindus. If therefore a Census Officer were to classify such Hindus according to his own belief or according to his own predilections, he might classify them as Mussalmans, simply because they worship the Aga Khan, though those people themselves might say that they are Hindus.....

Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan : No man can be called a Mussalman who worships the Aga Khan. Only those who worship Allah can be called Mussalmans.

Dr. B. S. Moonje : That is perhaps the definition of my friend Mr. Yamin Khan, because I know of certain persons who worship the Aga Khan and yet call themselves non-Mussalmans. Therefore, the importance of the instructions to be issued under this Bill should be very carefully considered, and we should like to know from the Honourable the Home Member whether these instructions are permanent and fixed, or whether they will be liable to be changed according to the representations of certain communities. It will therefore be seen how very vitally important it is for the Central Government to issue fundamental instructions of general applicability as to who should be called a Hindu and who a Moslem and so on.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I had no mind to take part in this debate, but when my friend Mr. Yamin Khan observed that Mr. Kelkar's objection was due to some political motive, I thought that he wanted to fit the cap to others which exactly fits him. Sir, I do not know whether the Honourable the Home Member will again be annoyed with me if I again point out to him that these instructions have been issued with a deliberate political motive. They are intended merely to lessen the number of Hindus, and the cat came out of the bag when my friend Nawab Sir Abdul Qaiyum said that those instructions were necessary in order to ascertain the percentage of each community in the services.....

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : It did not come by chance. I meant it.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : I can well understand the reason why an intelligent Government like the present one (Laughter)—I won't use the word "intelligent" if some of my friends object to it. (An Honourable Member : "It is your own word".) Sir, I have been fighting for the last six years to change the description of Hindus as non-Muhammadians, but the Government will not agree to it. I have been sending notices of Resolutions on this subject; I have also been putting questions several times, and the Government will not agree to the change. Why could they not agree to the change if there was no political motive behind? The fact is, that if they divide the country in census matters, they will have achieved their object. But there is another motive why they do not agree to the change, and that is to lessen the number of Hindus, to divide the Hindus by the Marriage Bill, as I have already stated, and Government also wants to divide the depressed classes and the untouchable classes. Sir, I for one have had ample experience of village life in Bengal, at least of West Bengal, and I can say that there are no such things as depressed classes or untouchables (Applause) in my part of the country. I know that these people are allowed to enter the temples; they partake of the same festivities, and they call themselves Hindus. They might have been non-Aryans and accepted Hindu culture and Hindu religion as their ideal, but they are entitled to describe themselves as Hindus. Now, Sir, I reiterate and re-assert that this classification is being made with a view to divide the people of this country, it has been done with a deliberate object, with a deliberate political motive behind, though Honourable Members on the opposite Benches might deny this charge. I may also say, Sir, that it is their guilty conscience that makes them cowards and they always protest and say that there is no motive behind their proposals. If they had been honest and sincere, they would not have taken part in Bills like the Child Marriage Bill; they would have remained absolutely neutral; if they had been honest and sincere, they would not have divided and sub-divided the country in this manner. So, Sir, I submit that, if they are honest and sincere,—at least they want to appear to be honest before us,—let them do away with all these distinctions.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : They are the divisions made by Manu.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Please do not speak of Manu.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : How can anybody do away with those distinctions made by your great Law Giver, Manu?

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Do not speak of Manu.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : Mr. President, it appears to me that I was unduly sanguine in my hopeful anticipation that the measure before the House would prove entirely non-controversial. But indeed I think, in point of fact, in spite of what has fallen from Honourable Members on both sides of the House, that I may still say that, so far as the great bulk of this House is concerned, and so far as the particular points which have been raised are concerned, and with which I shall presently deal, the Bill still remains non-controversial. No one, I think, denies the necessity of the census; no one denies that for all the purposes of a modern civilized nation, whether for administration, whether for public work or indeed for almost any purpose contributing to the advancement of the life of a nation, the accurate figures provided by the census are the indispensable material of the statesman and the public man.

Well, Sir, I hope I shall not be called upon to plead to the charge that there is any political motive behind this Bill. Government are merely discharging, in bringing this Bill before the Assembly, their manifest duty, and I may perhaps refer to the fact that the particular provision which has been specifically mentioned has appeared over and over again during the course of several decades.

Now, Sir, I shall proceed to the point taken by my Honourable and learned friend Mr. Kelkar and also by my Honourable and learned friend Mr. Jayakar, and by one or two speakers who followed them. What Mr. Kelkar said, I think, both in its purport and in its intention, is perfectly reasonable. The question of the classification and the denomination of castes and sub-castes has been in recent times very carefully examined, and I am quite convinced that in the census to be carried out in 1931, it will require very careful and very intelligent handling in the light particularly of the observations which from time to time have been made in this House. Mr. Kelkar asked me in particular what the intention was with regard to the instructions issued under clause 6 of the Bill, and I hope I shall be able to give him a clear and satisfactory reply.

I think it a very reasonable proposition that when the Local Government publish the instructions contemplated by that clause, they should also, before those instructions come into operation, give a reasonable time for representations to be made with regard to them. It is also reasonable that when representations are made to the Local Government they should be carefully considered, and if a good case for any modifications in those instructions is made out, that the Local Government should make such modifications as are so required; and I am perfectly prepared to communicate to Local Governments the views which have been expressed in this House on that point. I hope that will satisfy Mr. Kelkar and other Honourable Members who have spoken on the Bill. For the rest, I think I may with some assurance still hold the view that the Bill is not controversial and that, subject to what has been said on this particular point, it will be unanimously or almost unanimously approved of by the House.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That the Bill to provide for certain matters in connection with the taking of the Census, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Twenty Minutes to Three of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Twenty Minutes to Three of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

Mr. President : The House will now proceed to the consideration of the Bill to provide for certain matters in connection with the taking of the Census clause by clause.

Clauses 2 to 15 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I move that the Bill be passed.
The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN RAILWAYS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I move that the Bill further to amend the Indian Railways Act, 1890, for certain purposes, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. N. C. Kelkar, Mr. K. C. Neogy, Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum, Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan, Mr. R. S. Sarma, Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta, Mr. S. C. Mitra, Pandit Dwarka Prasad Misra, Mr. Ram Narayan Singh, Sir Darcy Lindsay, Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney, Maulvi Muhammad Yakub, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be six.

This Bill, Mr. President, is a very short one and has only one operative clause empowering the Governor General in Council to make rules to regulate the hours of work, and periods of rest of railway servants, or any class of railway servants, and it is explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons that the necessity for this legislation arises from the obligations which the Government of India have undertaken in the Washington and Geneva Conventions. Under the Washington Convention we undertook that the principle of the 60 hours' week should be adopted in such branches of railway work as might be specified for the purpose by competent authority. Similarly, under the Geneva Convention, the weekly day of rest must be extended to the same classes of workers. Now, Mr. President, although the Bill is a very short one the subject with which it deals is obviously of great importance. Since the Government of India ratified the Conventions, a good deal has been done towards introducing the principle of the 60 hours' week and the weekly day of rest, but the progress has not been as rapid as I should have liked to have seen it, and it has become clear that for the purposes of specifying the branches of railway work to which these two things are to apply, there is no competent authority in India excepting the Legislature itself. What the Bill proposes to do is to make the Governor General in Council the competent authority, but I quite recognise that, in a matter as important as this, the more usual practice would have been that certain substantive provisions should have found a place in the law itself. That is what has been done in the Indian Factories Act, but we have found it a difficult and complicated business to work out exactly what provisions should be made applicable to Indian railway servants, and we have not been able, so far, to put forward definite provisions which could be incorporated in an Act of the Legislature. I feel that it would not be fair to this House to ask them, short though the Bill is, to proceed with this legislation in a hurry. I was anxious to bring the Bill before the House this Session in order to make it clear that it is the intention of the Government of India to legislate on this subject but on the other hand I think it is reasonable that, before the House is asked to pass the Bill, and before the Select Committee is asked to formulate its recommendations, the House and the Committee should have before them the rules that we propose to make if this Bill passes into law. They exist already in draft form, but they have still to be discussed with the Agents of railways, and I think it will also be necessary to discuss them with the representatives of labour in one form or another. Therefore, if the House accepts the motion which I am moving, I do not anticipate that the Select Committee can usefully sit until some date in January. By that time I hope that the rules will be in a form in which we can place them before the Select Committee. The general principle of the Bill, Mr. President, may be said to be this. We are asking the Legislature, if it accepts this motion, to affirm that the time has come when, by legislation, a competent authority should be set up to specify the branches of railway work to which the weekly day of rest and the principle of the 60 hours' week should apply. We do not ask the House to do more than this. There will be room for a great deal of discussion in the Select Committee and in the House at a later stage as to whether the present form of the Bill is satisfactory, or whether amendments are not required. I do not think I need dwell further on this subject, Mr. President, because we can discuss the whole question much more fully and much more usefully when the Bill comes back from the Select Committee. For that reason, I will content myself with what I have said and with moving my motion.

Diwan Chaman Lall (West Punjab : Non-Muhammadan) : May I suggest that the name of Mr. K. C. Roy be added as a member of this Committee ?

Mr. President : The question is that the name of Mr. K. C. Roy be added to the list of members of this Committee.

The motion was adopted.

(Mr. K. C. Neogy rose in his place.)

Mr. President : Does the Honourable Member wish to speak ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy (Dacca Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Yes, Sir, I have a formal amendment to move also, that the name of my Honourable friend, Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda be substituted for my name in the list of members of this Committee. Sir, I wish to say just a few words in connection with this Bill. Although I am alive to the importance of the measure, I would say that this House would have been fully justified in refusing to help Government to place this measure on the Statute-book without even looking at the merits of this measure, because, Sir, it will be within the recollection of Honourable Members that the question of the wholesale revision of the Railways Act has been under consideration for some years. It was 8 years ago that the Acworth Committee made the recommendation that the Indian Railways Act required wholesale revision, and they made the further recommendation that, as soon as the Railway Rates Advisory Committee were appointed, one of the first duties that should be assigned to the Chairman of that body ought to be the revision of this Act. Eight years have elapsed and I do not think that any tangible action has been taken by Government in this direction beyond making a reference, very lately, to the Chairman of the Railway Rates Advisory Committee on the subject. I would like to know from the Honourable Member in charge what time he is likely to take in bringing forward a comprehensive amending measure. I do hope that he will realise that it is not just and fair on his part to ask this House to amend the Railways Act in dribblets when we are very keen on having the whole Act revised.

Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury (Assam : Muhammadan) : Sir, I want to offer a few brief remarks on this Bill. While supporting this motion for reference to a Select Committee, I cannot help expressing my regret that, in giving effect in the Washington Convention, the Government should have taken shelter under the exceptional clause of the Convention, "a ten-hour day", instead of accepting the general principle of an eight-hour day. Honourable Members are aware that the Washington Conference, while limiting the hours of work in Western countries to a forty-eight hour week, in industrial undertakings made an exception in the case of Japan and India, prescribing a sixty-hour week for these countries. It was urged in the Conference that in highly-developed countries like those of the West eight hours a day was as productive as nine or ten hours a day in other countries of primitive methods and with a trying climate, and it was said that if Japan and India were brought into competition with the European countries on the same level of hours of work, that would destroy the mass of Indian industries, and to attempt to do so would be to court failure. Mr. Masumito, the Japanese Workers' Delegate, and Mr. Joshi lodged a protest against this discrimination, but whatever justification there may or may not be for a ten-hour day in industries which are faced with the competition of the world, I submit that there is no justification for a ten-hour day in an undertaking like the railways, which is a State monopoly, and which has not to face competition from anywhere else. Moreover the railways are paying very fair dividends, and it is quite meet and proper that Government should introduce measures to humanize the conditions of labour in India, and to bring them into line with the other progressive countries of the West. This is a matter in which the Government can take the lead, and my sole regret is that they have not been as generous to labour as they could afford to have been in this matter. While dealing with the Bill, Sir, we are very much handicapped for want of adequate materials. We have been asked to sign something like a blank cheque,—to empower the Governor General in Council to frame rules without knowing what the rules are going to be, what particular classes of railway employees are going to be included, and what is more important, what particular classes of persons are going to be exempted from the operation of this rule. I am glad however that the Honourable the Commerce Member has given an assurance that the draft rules will be placed before the Select Committee, and I hope that when the Bill comes out of the Select Committee the substantive portion of the rules will be incorporated in the Act itself.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Sir, I rise to support the protest made by Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury. I think he is perfectly right in stating that it is time that the Honourable Member in charge of this Bill should look upon the question of the hours of work on railways not from the point of view of the Washington Convention but from the point of view of modern conditions prevailing throughout the world. I would like to correct one impression that my Honourable friend might have carried away in regard to a statement made by Mr. Matin Chaudhury as to the action taken by Mr. Joshi at Washington. No doubt his reply to Mr.

Chaudhury would be that Mr. Joshi at Washington agreed to this exception as regards India,—the exception that a ten-hour day is essential for countries like India. Mr. Joshi was working under a very grave difficulty and he agreed to it at that stage as a matter of compromise and for no other reason. Since 1919, ten years have elapsed, and the Honourable Member ought to be aware of what has been going on in other parts of the world in regard to working hours on the railways, and there is no justification whatsoever for him to come before this House and demand a ten-hour working day for railway workers in India. The only ground on which that exception was passed at Washington was that conditions of work in countries like India and other Eastern countries are different to the conditions of work prevailing in European and American countries. Now I would like to ask the Honourable Member whether it is not necessary, because of the difference in conditions of work here, that Indian workers should work less hours than European workers in European countries, considering the climatic conditions and other conditions which ought to be taken into consideration. Therefore I hope that, when the matter comes up before the Select Committee, the Honourable Members who are on the Select Committee will look upon this question, not from the point of view of the Washington Convention, to which lip service is now at this late stage given by Government, but look upon it from the modern point of view and realise that the Indian worker ought to be brought on a par with the workers in other parts of the world, particularly in Europe, as far as the hours of work are concerned.

I also agree with my friend, Mr. Matin Chaudhury, that it is wrong in principle to leave the regulation of the hours of work to be decided upon by rules to be made by the Governor General in Council. It may be a convenient method for the Government, but I hope that some sort of statutory obligation will be placed upon the Railway Administrations in India to make it absolutely certain that Indian workers will not work more than eight or even six hours a day. My own preference is for six hours. I see my Honourable friend, Mr. Rau, laughing at this suggestion, but he must be aware of the agitation that is going on in Great Britain in regard to six hours; at any rate he ought to be aware, being the Financial Commissioner of Railways, of the serious agitation that is going on in regard to this question of the hours of work, and he ought also to be aware of the fact that, in Great Britain, I believe the hours have been fixed at eight. I would like to demand from the Government some explanation as to the justification which they can urge in favour of a ten-hour working day for railways in India.

I hope, Sir, when this matter is discussed in Select Committee, all these points will be taken into consideration, and that the Honourable Member will look upon this question, not from the point of view of the Washington Convention, but from the point of view of modern conditions in Europe as well as in America.

Mr. M. S. Anay (Berar Representative) : Sir, in supporting the motion before the House, I wish to place before the House some information about this measure. Last time when the Standing Finance Committee for Railways met, a proposal was placed before the Committee to sanction certain expenditure for the purpose of carrying out the recommendations of the Washington Convention with regard to railway labour. At that time a memorandum was also placed before us which indicated that the Government of India intended shortly to introduce a Bill like this.

Then, at that time the discussion centred upon this point and there was a formal recommendation made by the Standing Finance Committee that, before the Honourable the Commerce Member could introduce any Bill in the Assembly, the draft Bill should be placed before the Central Advisory Council of the Railways for its consideration and discussion along with such draft rules as the Governor General in Council proposed to make under the enabling clause of the Bill. So that, the Government of India should have the advice of the Central Advisory Council as regards the precise nature of the rules to be made, or as to which of those rules should be incorporated in the Act itself. That was a suggestion discussed in the Committee. There was some little difference of opinion among certain members no doubt. However, there was no meeting of the Central Advisory Council after that. I am glad to find, at any rate, that the Honourable Mover of this Bill had given us a definite promise that the draft proposals in this respect will be placed before the Select Committee for their consideration.

I found there was some outline of the proposals which the Government of India had in their mind with regard to the rules to be framed under the Act, and one of them indicated that the Agent shall be given very wide powers as regards the exemptions of certain classes of labour from the operation of this Act and the concessions thereunder. I would particularly draw the attention of the members of the Select Committee to this fact with a view that they should very carefully scrutinise the draft rules to be placed before them for their consideration, particularly because I feel that a general power of exemption granted to the Agent is likely to be very detrimental to the best interests of the labour, whose interests this Bill is intended to promote. That was the only thing which I wanted to bring to the notice of those who are likely to serve on the Select Committee. With these few words I support the motion moved with the amendment that is moved by my friend Mr. K. C. Neogy.

Mr. V. V. Jogiah (Ganjam cum Vizagapatam : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I wish to say a few words before the Bill goes to the Select Committee. The object of this Bill is to create a competent authority which would specify the branches of railway work and frame rules. The Governor General in Council is made under the Bill the competent authority. The question is whether in a country like India, where the employers with respect to railways are the Government, the Governor General in Council will be the competent authority to make rules. I will therefore suggest to the Select Committee to consider whether the competent authority cannot be the representatives both of the Government, which is the employer, and the representatives of the employees such as those selected by one of the properly constituted railway bodies, such as the All-India Railway Federation. Unless a committee consisting of representatives of both the Government and those of the employers is appointed as "the competent authority", I fear the rules framed for purposes of fixing the hours of work or allotting days for weekly rest, cannot be satisfactory. It is unjust that "the competent authority" should be one-sided. I therefore suggest that "that competent authority" should be made to include representatives of both the Government, private Railway Companies and the Employees. This is the only suggestion I would like to make to the Select Committee.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I would like to add only a word or two to the observations which have been just made by my Honourable friend Mr. K. C. Neogy. The Acworth Committee, so far back as 1921, recommended that the Indian Railways Act required revision in many directions. Then, again on 7th February, 1927, the Government of India, in reply to a question on the floor of this House, admitted that the Act required revision. I should like to read out to the House a portion of the reply which was given on that occasion. Government said :

"Government are aware that in some directions the Act requires revision. Various suggestions as to the revision received from time to time from Local Governments and Administrations are under consideration, and it is also proposed to take the advice of the Rates Advisory Committee on the subject."

And in the course of that reply it was stated further on that steps would be taken to bring the matter to the notice of the Rates Advisory Committee.

The other day I put a question on the subject and I learnt that it was only in May or June last that the matter had been referred to the Rates Advisory Committee. That reply was given in 1927, and in the year of grace 1929, the matter was referred to the Rates Advisory Committee. There are many anomalies in the existing Railways Act, and it is high time that there should be a fairly comprehensive revision of the provisions of the Act. So far as this Bill goes, I have nothing to say against it ; but it would have been better, if, in revising the Railways Act, a comprehensive Bill dealing with some of the other provisions of the Act were brought before this House and considered.

That is all I have got to say.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : My Honourable friend, Mr. Neogy. Mr. President, said he thought the House should be thoroughly justified in refusing to consider this Bill because it was not a Bill for the complete revision of the Indian Railways Act. Now, if no other parties were concerned except the House and the Government, I do not say that my Honourable friend's suggestion would have been altogether unreasonable, but in view of the fact that the people most intimately concerned in this Bill are the railway workers in India, I am afraid my Honourable friend would have hardly been justified in taking up that attitude. He asked me to say when it is likely that the Government will be able to place before the House a comprehensive measure for the revision of the Indian Railways Act. I am afraid that I cannot give him any definite indication as yet. I am sorry that it took us such a long time to refer the matter to the President of the Railway Rates Advisory Committee, but I do not know that the delay was altogether regrettable, because during the intervening years the President of the Committee has been gaining additional experience of a very important branch of railway work, and I have no doubt that the experience thus acquired will give greater value to any recommendations that he may place before us. On this question of a comprehensive revision I would like to say this to my Honourable friend Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, that if my official experience has taught me anything, it is this, that if you want to get an inconvenient question out of the way, you have only to say we will take it up when there is a general revision of the Act. (Laughter.) Therefore if you want in any particular branch to get something done, you do not wait for a general revision of the Act, but take it up straight away as I have done in this case.

I do not propose to attempt to answer the suggestion made by my Honourable friends Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury and Mr. Chaman Lal to the effect that the Washington Convention, so far as India is concerned, did not go far enough. It will be within the competence of any member of the Select Committee on this Bill to raise questions of that sort. But, obviously, it would require considerable space of time to discuss these important matters fully and, as I have said, I think the House will be in a far better position to discuss these matters when the Bill comes back to it from the Select Committee.

My Honourable friend Mr. Aney drew attention to a recommendation of the Standing Finance Committee for Railways that the rules, before they were made, should be laid before the Central Advisory Council. Now, I think that is a very reasonable suggestion and I have nothing to say against it. But in this case, as I am hoping to place the first rules before the Select Committee, there might be a difficulty supposing both the bodies considered the rules and came to different conclusions. On this occasion it may be best that I should place them before the Select Committee, and if I do so, it may not be convenient to place them also before the Central Advisory Council. But I see no objection, with regard to any future amendments of the rules once they are made, to making it ordinary practice to refer them to the Central Advisory Council.

I think there is only one other point to which I need refer. That was the suggestion made by Mr. Jogiah, that the Governor in Council was not a suitable or a competent authority for the purposes proposed. I should like to draw his attention to the fact that, so far as the State-managed railways are concerned, the Governor in Council is already a competent authority, and that it is only in respect of the Company-managed railways that there is, except the Legislature, no competent authority at present to do what is needed. In any case, the question is one which can be dealt with in Select Committee.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member said nothing about the amendment of Mr. Neogy.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I have no objection to the amendment, Sir.

Mr. President : Did the Honourable Member obtain the consent of Mr. Neogy to serve on the Committee?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I obtained his consent through the usual channel, that is, through the officials of his party. I understand that there has been some change about that in the party.

Mr. President : Will the Honourable Member, Mr. Neogy, explain why he, having given his consent once, now wants to drop out?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Sir, on the question which the Select Committee will have to consider my Honourable friend Mr. Sarda would be a much better authority than myself. That is the reason why I seek to substitute his name.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member knows the practice of this House, that no names are included in the list unless members themselves agree, and after once agreeing, it is not right for any of them to decline.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : May I mention that this has been done as a result of the revision of the understanding that was arrived at in the party with regard to the Members who were to represent our party on the Select Committee.

Mr. President : It is very difficult for me to understand it.

The question is :

“ That the name of Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda be substituted for the name of Mr. K. C. Neogy ”.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That the Bill further to amend the Indian Railways Act, 1890, for certain purposes, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. N. C. Kelkar, Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda, Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum, Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan, Mr. R. S. Sarma, Mr. Jannadas M. Mehta, Mr. S. C. Mitra, Pandit Dwarka Prasad Misra, Mr. Ram Narayan Singh, Sir Darcy Lindsay, Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney, Maulvi Muhammad Yakub, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, Mr. K. C. Roy, and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be six.”

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN SOFT COKE CESS BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I beg to move :

“ That the Bill to provide for the levy of a cess on soft coke despatched by rail from collieries in the provinces of Bengal and Bihar and Orissa, be taken into consideration ”.

Sir, this Bill is modelled upon two Acts of the Legislature, namely the Tea Cess Act and the Lac Cess Act. But it also embodies another departure. These two Acts provide for the levy of a cess on the export of tea and the export of lac from British India, the proceeds being devoted to propaganda, scientific research and certain other purposes. In the case of this Bill, what we propose is the levy of a cess on the despatches of soft coke from the collieries, the cess to be expended mainly on propaganda. The novelty therefore is that the money raised is to be devoted not to the promotion, principally, of the export trade, but of the internal trade of the country in soft coke. I think it must be fully two years ago that the members of the Committee of the Indian Mining Federation brought the matter to my notice. They pointed out that, owing to the state of the coal market, there was a very small demand for any class of coal except first class coal, and that the proprietors of the smaller collieries who were interested chiefly in the coal that was not first class coal, found great difficulty in disposing of their output. They pointed out that, in so far as soft coke could be substituted for cow dung, for instance, it would be a really valuable thing in the interests of India as a whole, because the land would not be deprived of the manure which it so badly needed. They asked that the matter might be considered. The original proposals they put before the Government were somewhat larger in their scope, for they included the levy of a very small cess, not only upon soft coke, but on all kinds of coal despatched from the collieries. That was considered, but it was found that we could not proceed with it because the support received from the coal trade generally was not sufficient. In respect of these cesses it has been the practice of the Government of India to legislate only when they have the great bulk of trade behind them. This Bill is, therefore, limited to the collection of a cess on the despatches of soft coke from the collieries and the regulation of the expenditure of the money thus raised. The detailed provisions of the Bill do not, I think, require a great deal of explanation. They are modelled in the main on the provisions of the two Acts to which I have already referred, namely, the Tea Cess Act, and the Lac Cess Act. Under clause 4 of the Bill a committee will be formed, which will be presided over by the Chief Mining Engineer of the Railway Board, and will contain representatives of the Government of Bengal and of the Government of Bihar and Orissa, one member elected by the Indian Mining Association, and seven members elected by the Indian Mining Federation. The reason why the majority of the committee will be elected by the Indian Mining Federation is this. Practically all the proprietors of the collieries which produce soft coke are members of the Indian Mining Federation, and as the money which will be raised is to all intents and purposes their money, it is natural that the control of the expenditure should remain in their hands. The usual provisions are made for the periodical audit of the accounts of the committee, and there are one or two other clauses, mainly machinery clauses, for administrative purposes, on which I do not think I need dwell. It is right to inform this House that we have consulted the Indian Mining Federation about the Bill and that they very strongly support it. It is a case, therefore, in which the Government of India are acting on the recommendation and with the full support of the trade concerned. I do not think I need say very much more on this Bill. It is in one respect a novelty and I have no doubt myself that it is a salutary novelty. When any trade comes to the Government of India and shows that it is prepared to combine, that it is prepared to submit to the levy of a cess of this kind to be spent on propaganda for popularising its products, it is quite reasonable that Government and the Legislature should accord their support. I hope, Mr. President, that, if this Bill becomes law, it will be found beneficial to the branch of the coal trade which produces soft coke, and that it may have a material influence in bringing about increased prosperity to that section of the trade. Sir, I move.

[Sir George Rainy.]

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 2 to 9 were added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, I move that the Bill be passed.

The motion was adopted.

THE CANTONMENTS (HOUSE-ACCOMMODATION AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham (Army Secretary) : Sir, the motion standing in my name on the paper is that the Bill further to amend the Cantonments (House-Accommodation) Act, 1923, for certain purposes, be taken into consideration. It came to my notice this morning, Sir, that certain Honourable Members of this House desire that the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee. Government have no objection to that course ; in fact I should have myself moved for reference to a Select Committee if I had known earlier that there was any desire on the part of Honourable Members that that course should be adopted. It would therefore save a certain amount of the time of the House if I could be permitted to alter my motion ; and I ask for permission to do so. Sir, I move :

"That the Bill further to amend the Cantonments (House-Accommodation) Act, 1923, for certain purposes be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru, Dr. B. S. Moonje, Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum, Mr. Ismail Khan, Mr. E. L. Price, Sardar Kartar Singh and Mr. Dwarka Prasad Misra with instructions to report on the 16th September, 1929, or as soon as possible thereafter, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be four."

Sir, I had hoped until this morning that the provisions of this Bill would prove entirely non-controversial. They are intended to secure an object which, I am sure the House will agree, is reasonable, namely, to secure accommodation for military officers in those cantonments in which, on account of their profession, they are compelled to live. The principle that special powers are required for this purpose has been accepted for a very long time, and the present Bill is necessary only because it has been found that the present procedure is somewhat cumbrous and also because experience has brought to light various other defects in the working of the Act. The points in the Bill on which I understand certain Honourable Members consider that further discussion is advisable are mostly points of detail, which can be discussed more suitably I think in Committee than on the floor of the House. I have no doubt that, as a result of discussion, the Committee will be able to reach agreement as to the particular form in which the amendments should be made.

Sir, I move.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar (Madura and Ramnad cum Tinnevely : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I am somewhat relieved to find that the original motion has been given up in favour of the present motion to refer this Bill to a Select Committee. I wish to mention two or three points to be considered by the Select Committee. In the first place I am very glad that the present cumbrous committee of arbitration is being given up and the reference is hereafter to be made only to the civil court. That is the only salient feature that I find in the Bill ; but unfortunately even there I find in clause 12, sub-section (3) of the proposed new section 29, that :

"An appeal preferred under this section shall be deemed to be an appeal from an order within the meaning of section 108 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908."

That is somewhat limited. I wish the Select Committee would consider the advisability of making it a regular appeal if it is possible.

[Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar.]

Then, Sir, in sub-clause (b) of clause 4 there is a proviso :

“ Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to affect the right of the Government to avoid the lease in any such event as is specified in clause (c) of section 108 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 ”.

In this particular matter, I find from the Notes on Clauses that the intention of Government is not to depart from the principle of section 7(3) (a) of the present Act which is already more than usually favourable to the lessor, but it is said that :

“ They see no reason why they should be excluded from the latter benefit mentioned above ”.

That is, the benefit given under the Transfer of Property Act in favour of lessees. But Government seem to forget that the particular Act provides for more or less involuntary dispossession of property which Government are allowed to continue to do under this Bill ; and in the case of ordinary lessors and lessees there is usually freedom of contract obtaining. But in this case the act of appropriation is more or less involuntary, and I do not think that in a case like this Government should also be given the benefit of the provisions of section 108 (c) of the Transfer of Property Act. To work it that way would be derogatory to the actual rights of the lessor. I would submit that the Select Committee will please consider whether this provision is necessary and this extra privilege, so to speak, should be vested in the Government.

Then, Sir, I refer to clause 3, new section 6 (b). This clause actually strengthens the hands of the military section of Government and also widens the powers of Government, because the provisions are very comprehensive and elastic. It is stated like this :

“ (b) the Officer Commanding the Station is satisfied that there is not in the cantonment a sufficient and assured supply of houses available at reasonable rates of rent by private agreement to meet the requirements of the military officers and military messes whose accommodation in the cantonment is, in his opinion, necessary or expedient ”, etc.

That, I submit, is rather wide and very comprehensive. Such extraordinary powers ought not to be given, in my humble opinion, to an Officer Commanding the cantonment, to find whether there are not sufficient houses for the occupation of the military. Similarly there is a corresponding weakening of the rights of private house-owners as we find mentioned in sub-clause (a). Once a military officer stationed in a cantonment states that he is unable to secure suitable accommodation in the cantonment on reasonable terms from private gentlemen, and that no suitable house or quarter belonging to Government is available for his occupation and the Officer Commanding the station is satisfied of the truth of the facts so stated, he may take the necessary action. That, I submit, is clearly an infringement upon the rights of private owners of houses in the cantonment area. That might be somewhat lessened by making it really available only in such cases as are absolutely necessary. This clause ought to be modified in such a way as not to tighten the grip of the Government and at the same time not to weaken the rights of private house-owners in cantonment areas. With these observations I support the motion.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Sir, I can assure the Honourable Member that the points which he has just raised will be taken into very careful consideration when the matter is discussed in Committee. The first point he raised about clause 12 of the Bill is a legal point with which I am afraid I am unable to deal at the present moment. The second point regarding the proviso in clause 4—that is section 7 of the Act—is also a point that I admit had not occurred to me but I will look into it. The third point that he made with reference to the wording of clause 3 of the Bill was that it gave too large powers to Government. On that point I can only tell him that the Act, as it stands at present, gives even wider powers to Government. The only provision in the Act, as it stands at present, as to the powers of the Officer Commanding to appropriate houses is contained in section 8, which reads as follows :—

“ The Officer Commanding the District shall not sanction the issue of a notice unless he is satisfied that the house in respect of which it is proposed to issue the notice is suitable for occupation by a military officer or a military mess, and that there is not in the cantonment, or if the Act is in force in a part only of the cantonment, then in that part thereof, a sufficient number of houses already available and suitable for occupation by military officers or messes.”

That is the existing law. It gives the military authorities even wider powers than we propose to give under this Bill, which we have drafted in such a way as to bring out expressly the intention of the Government, namely, that the provisions of the Act should not be made use of until every attempt has been made to reach a voluntary agreement with the house-owner concerned. That is why we put in clause 3 in place of existing section 6 providing, firstly, that an officer can apply for accommodation to be appropriated for him only after satisfying the Officer Commanding that he has made every reasonable effort to find a house for himself by private agreement with one of the house-owners in the cantonment, and secondly, making it incumbent on the Officer Commanding the station, before he takes any general action under the Act, that he should be satisfied that houses are not available on reasonable terms by private agreement with the house-owners. We had thought therefore that this particular clause was a distinct improvement on the existing Act. However, I am quite willing, and I am sure that the Select Committee will be quite willing, to take all these matters into consideration.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That the Bill further to amend the Cantonments (House-Accommodation) Act, 1923, for certain purposes be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru, Dr. B. S. Moonje, Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum, Mr. Ismail Khan, Mr. E. L. Price, Sardar Kartar Singh, and Mr. Dwarka Prasad Misra, with instructions to report on the 16th September, 1929, or as soon as possible thereafter, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be four.”

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN SALE OF GOODS BILL.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter (Law Member) : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill to define and amend the law relating to the sale of goods, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. D. F. Mulla, Mr. M. R. Jayakar, Mr. K. C. Neogy, Mr. M. A. Jinnah, Mr. Abdul Qadir Siddiqi, Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz, Mr. N. C. Chunder, Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar, Mr. V. V. Jogiah and myself, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be four. The law relating to the sale of goods is an important branch of the mercantile law. It affects the big merchant as well as the petty trader. The Indian law on the subject is now contained in chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act of 1872, which was enacted 57 years ago. It consists of a set of elementary rules based mainly upon English judicial decisions as they stood in the sixties of the last century. The object in view, then, as stated by Sir James Stephen, was to provide a body of law so expressed that it might be readily understood both by English and Indian Judges without extrinsic help from the English law libraries. In other words, what was needed, in the seventies, was a guide for the Judge who had but little legal training, derived little or no assistance from the Bar, and worked at a distance from any law library. When Sir James Stephen moved the Indian Contract Bill in the Indian Legislature, he admitted that it was not and could not pretend to be a complete code upon the branch of law to which it related. The Special Committee, whose report is annexed to the Bill, reported as follows :

" Whatever merit the simple and elementary rules embodied in the Indian Contract Act may have had, and however sufficient and suitable they may have been for the needs which they were intended to meet in 1872, the passage of time has revealed defects the removal of which has become necessary in order to keep the law abreast of the developments of modern business relations. The law relating to the sale of goods appertains mainly to mercantile transactions. There can be no doubt that during the last half-century conditions in this country relating to trade and business have undergone material changes. Methods of business have largely altered and new relations have arisen between man and man. In dealing with these relations, it has been necessary to give recognition to new principles, and the Indian Courts have found that a law enacted more than fifty years ago is entirely inadequate to enable them to deal with these new relations or give effect to the new principles. The result has been that on various occasions the Courts have had to hold that Chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act is not exhaustive, and to import therein analogies from the decisions of the English Courts.

The English law relating to the sale of goods which was admittedly the basis of Chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act has itself, since 1872, undergone drastic changes, and was finally codified in 1893 by the present Sale of Goods Act (56 & 57 Vict. C. 71), which discards many of the old common law rules upon which Chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act was based, in favour of provisions more suited to modern conditions or more convenient in actual practice."

It is obvious, Sir, that this branch of the law in India required thorough overhauling. When my Honourable and learned friend, Mr. Mulla, was temporarily in charge of the Legislative Department last year, he prepared a Bill on the model of the English Sale of Goods Act, 1893. This Bill was referred by the Governor General in Council to a Special Committee consisting of Mr. Mulla, my Honourable and learned friend, Mr. Jayakar, the erudite Advocate General of Madras, Mr. Alladi Krishnaswami Aiyar, and myself. We examined the Bill closely, and, our Report, with detailed notes on clauses, is in the hands of Honourable Members. I do not wish to take up the time of the House by repeating all that is contained in that Report. But I wish with your permission, Sir, to draw the attention of the House to one or two passages in it. The Bill referred to us was mainly based on the English Sale of Goods Act, 1893. This Act has stood the test of nearly thirty-five years of practical application, and in the words of Lord Parker, " is a very successful and correct codification of this branch of the mercantile law ". As is shown in Appendix B to our Report, most of the Colonies and Overseas Dominions have adopted and re-enacted the Act with only such small variations as have been found necessary to adapt its provisions to local circumstances. It is also remarkable that the Uniform Sales Act, passed in 1906, in the United States of America, and adopted in twenty out of fifty-three States and territories, is based very largely on the English Act. These facts constitute striking evidence of the completeness and the universal suitability of its provisions.

In mercantile transactions a conflict of laws should, as far as possible, be avoided. Uniformity of law in various countries, particularly in those which have business or trade dealings with one another, is highly convenient and desirable.

The Special Committee go on to say :

" We, therefore, approve of the proposal to adopt the provisions of the English Sale of Goods Act so far as they are suitable to Indian conditions as the basis for the present Bill, and thus to make the Indian Law relating to the sale of goods as nearly as possible uniform with the law in force in other parts of the British Empire.

The provisions of the English Act are far more elaborate and comprehensive than those of Chapter VII of the Indian Contract Act, and in their arrangement the English Act is more logical and methodical. As we have already observed, it has revised and brought up-to-date the rules of the English Common Law. Moreover, the adoption of the English Act as the basis of the present Bill will enable Indian Courts to interpret its provisions in the light of the decisions of the English Courts."

That, Sir, is the nature of the Bill. It is modelled on the English Sale of Goods Act and adapted to local conditions. Sir, I move.

Mr. President : Motion moved :

" That the Bill to define and amend the law relating to the sale of goods, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. D. F. Mulla, Mr. M. R. Jayakar, Mr. K. C. Neogy, Mr. M. A. Jinnah, Mr. Abdul Qadir Siddiqi, Mian Mahommed Shah Nawaz, Mr. N. C. Chunder, Mr. M. S. Sessa Ayyangar, Mr. V. V. Jogia, and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be four."

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya (Madras : Indian Commerce) : Sir, I wish to bring to the notice of the Honourable the Law Member, who just made the motion, that the Committee consists entirely of lawyers. This is a matter mostly for business men, and I think, Sir, there should be some non-lawyers and business men on the Committee.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member might mention the names he wants to add without comments.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Sir, I would therefore suggest that the names of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas and Mr. H. P. Mody be added to the Committee.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the names of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas and Mr. H. P. Mody be added to the Committee."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the Bill to define and amend the law relating to the sale of goods, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, Mr. H. P. Mody, Mr. D. F. Mulla, Mr. M. R. Jayakar, Mr. K. C. Neogy, Mr. M. A. Jinnah, Mr. Abdul Qadir Siddiqi, Mian Mahommed Shah Nawaz, Mr. N. C. Chunder, Mr. M. S. Sessa Ayyangar, Mr. V. V. Jogia, and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be four."

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN CONTRACT (AMENDMENT) BILL.
Honourable Sir, President

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter (Law Member) : Sir, I move that the Bill to amend section 178 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. D. F. Mulla, Mr. M. R. Jaykar, Mr. K. C. Neogy, Mr. M. A. Jinnah, Mr. Abdul Qadir Siddiqi, Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz, Mr. N. C. Chunder, Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar, Mr. V. V. Jogiah and myself, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be four.

Sir, this Bill refers to only one section of the Indian Contract Act, and that is the section dealing with pledge of goods by ostensible owners. In the Bill relating to the Sale of Goods, sale by ostensible owners is dealt with. It is now contained in section 108 of the Indian Contract Act. There has been a considerable amount of litigation over the meaning of the words "possession". Some Courts say "possession" means possession, other Courts say "possession" means juridical possession, while other Courts again say "possession" means physical custody. Anyhow, there has been a considerable body of case-law and uncertainty on this subject. In the Bill relating to the Sale of Goods, attempt has been made to give a clear meaning to the word "possession". That relates, as I have said, to sale by ostensible owners. Section 178, which deals with pledge, is outside the scope of that Bill. It is necessary that pledge by ostensible owners should be brought into line, so far as possession is concerned, with sale by ostensible owners. That is the purpose of this Bill. Sir, I move.

Mr. President : I understand Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya would like to add the names of two non-lawyer Members.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya (Madras : Indian Commerce) : Sir, I propose that the names of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas and Mr. H. P. Mody be added to this Select Committee also.

Mr. President : The question is that the names of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas and Mr. H. P. Mody be added to the Select Committee.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That the Bill to amend section 178 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, Mr. H. P. Mody, Mr. D. F. Mulla, Mr. M. R. Jayakar, Mr. K. C. Neogy, Mr. M. A. Jinnah, Mr. Abdul Qadir Siddiqi, Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz, Mr. N. C. Chunder, Mr. M. S. Sessa Ayyangar, Mr. V. V. Jogiah and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be four.”

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX (AMENDMENT) BILL.
(AMENDMENT OF SECTIONS 2, 23, ETC.)

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for certain purposes (amendment of sections 2, 23, etc.), as reported by the Select Committee, be recommitted to a Select Committee consisting of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, Haji Abdoola Haroon, Mr. H. P. Mody,

( 454 )

Sir Darcy Lindsay, Mr. M. S. Aney, Mr. K. C. Neogy, Mr. Mukhtar Singh, Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi, Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz, Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim, Mr. K. C. Roy, Mr. V. K. Aravamudha Ayangar, Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Mr. T. A. K. Shervani and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be seven. This is a measure of legislation which has been before the House for some time. It was originally referred to a Select Committee and the Select Committee, after dealing with the Bill, concluded their Report as follows :

Report as follows :

“ As we stated in the opening part of our Report, the Bill has not been essentially altered in principle, but the radical alterations in detail which we have made in clause 4 and the substitution of Boards of Referees as appellate tribunals in place of the High Courts undoubtedly raise questions which require the fullest consideration. We, therefore, as required by sub-order (4) of Standing Order 41, record our opinion that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication.”

The Bill was then circulated for opinion and we have now received the opinions from all parties concerned. The opinions are generally favourable, but they contain various suggestions, and I think it will be in the public interest if the matter is again referred to a Select Committee. Sir, I move.

The motion was adopted.

THE NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : I beg to move that the Bill further to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, for a certain purpose (amendment of sections 13, 16, 35, etc.), be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, Mr. M. S. Aney, Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla, Mr. Anwar-ul-das, Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla, Sardar Kartar Singh, Mr. Jamnadas M. Azim, Mr. D. V. Belvi, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, Mr. D. C. Stewart-Smith, Mr. G. L. Winterbotham and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five.

Sir, the object of this Bill is to provide that negotiable instruments, including cheques and bills of exchange, which are expressed on the face of them as drawn to bearer, shall not in any circumstances lose their character as bearer instruments on account of their having been endorsed. The Bill is identical with that which was introduced by my predecessor Sir Basil Blackett on the 25th January, 1927. At the consideration stage of that Bill my Honourable friend, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas moved for its reference to a Select Committee, and, in doing so, he made it clear that if it was necessary to interpret the principle of the Bill as applying to all negotiable instruments without exception, then he would have to oppose the Bill altogether and that in moving for reference to a Select Committee he did not wish to be understood as accepting the universal application of such a principle. My Honourable friend was satisfied at that time with what was stated by Sir Basil Blackett, and on the present occasion I do not ask any Member of this House to commit himself further than my Honourable friend did when the Bill was previously considered.

L5CPB(LA)

[Sir George Schuster.]

The brief history of events leading up to my re-introduction of the Bill this Session is that, on the previous occasion, a Select Committee was appointed, but for various reasons no progress could be made during that Session, and in succeeding Sessions other business of greater interest intervened so that this matter was never followed up. The original Bill having now lapsed, the Member in charge of it having made no motion on it during the last two Sessions, it has become necessary for me to re-introduce it. The failure to arrange any meetings of the former Select Committee raised perhaps a natural presumption in my mind that the matter was not one of burning interest. But I have since heard from the Associated Chambers of Commerce and I have been informed that opinion among their constituent bodies has, if anything, strengthened since the subject was first brought up and that they definitely consider that this legislation is necessary. I understand at the same time that my Honourable friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas still feels the same doubt as he did before about some of the provisions and that his feelings are based on opinions expressed by various Indian Chambers. In the circumstances, I have felt that the right course will be for me to revive the Bill, but on this occasion I have myself taken the initiative to move for its reference to a Select Committee. I cannot ignore the strong opinion expressed by the Associated Chambers of Commerce, but, on the other hand, I equally cannot ignore the fact that strong Indian commercial interests feel that it is desirable to move cautiously in the matter of legislation. In these circumstances, Government certainly do not wish to rush the matter without ample time for careful consideration of the provisions of the Bill which are of so technical a nature that the best form of consideration will be a Select Committee. With that explanation, I beg to move the motion standing in my name.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas (Indian Merchants' Chamber : Indian Commerce) : Sir, I rise to oppose the motion of the Honourable the Finance Member. I must say at the very outset that the Honourable the Finance Member, in making his motion, did put the case to the House in a very fair manner. I have special reason to oppose this motion today. As the Honourable Member said, my opposition, or rather my hesitation in accepting all that was meant by the principle underlying the Bill in 1927, was based on a different basis altogether. Today I take up a different position, and I say that the Government of India are not justified in submitting this Bill to this House at this stage.

The Bill was referred to a Select Committee in 1927. There were, I think three meetings of that Select Committee, and as my Honourable friend Mr. Neogy who presided over the Select Committee may very vividly recollect, the Government found that they were unable to carry the Bill further, with the result that the Bill was allowed to lapse. I am fully aware that one branch of Indian commerce, as represented by the Associated Chambers of Commerce actually prompted this Bill at the start, and the Honourable the Finance Member has frankly told this House that he has taken up this Bill at this stage because of pressure from the Associated Chambers. It is my regret that the representative of the Associated Chambers in this House is not the same today as he was in 1927, for whilst I am glad to see my Honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham here, if Sir Walter Willson were here today, I am sure he would have confirmed me in what I am now about to submit to the House.

The Bill, Sir, deals with one of the most important instruments of credit in this country, namely, the hundi. The complaint of the Associated Chambers of Commerce regarding the law as it stands is based on only one case, a case in which Messrs. Forbes Forbes Campbell and Co., Ltd., were defendants and which that firm eventually lost and had to make good Rs. 2,500 because they paid a bearer hundi, which was made payable to order, to the bearer. Since that case was decided against this firm in Bombay, as far as I am aware and as far as my Chamber are aware, there has been no further case to justify the Associated Chambers in pressing the Government of India to bring the motion now before the House. While the Associated Chambers of Commerce asked for this amendment of the Act, I am sure the Honourable the Finance Member will not forget that the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce, a body representing not less than 30 Indian commercial bodies, forwarded to Government a resolution unanimously passed at one of their meetings, asking Government to drop this legislation. In 1927, I, as representing the Indian Merchants' Chamber, agreed to act on the Select Committee on the understanding which the Honourable the Finance Member has mentioned to the House, but today I feel, with all deference to him, that the Government of India are not justified in asking this House to proceed further with this Bill. My reason is this. The Government of India have appointed a Banking Inquiry Committee and this question is included in the questionnaire of that Committee. Instruments of credit are going to be very exhaustively inquired into by that Committee, and I ask the Honourable the Finance Member if he, as the representative of the Governor General in Council, considers himself justified in voting for this motion when he knows that he himself has appointed a Committee which is charged with this task, namely, to inquire into what are the instruments of credit which are necessary for this country and suggest such modifications as may be required to meet the convenience of the commercial community. I do not wish today to take up the time of the House in explaining how the change which is sought to be made in this Bill regarding hundis will very seriously handicap the Indian commercial community. It will certainly, Sir, very materially handicap the Indian indigenous banker, the class which handles hundis most and which practically finances the large masses of India. Nothing should be entertained by the Government at this stage which interferes with what has been customary, and what I submit has been very safe as far as instruments of credit are concerned. I therefore feel, Sir, that this House would be very ill-advised in undertaking any amendment of the existing Act on this one case only of Messrs. Forbes Forbes Campbell and Co. Ltd., a case which goes back to seven or eight years and since when there has been no other case similar to the one complained of.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya (Allahabad and Jhansi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Will you explain what that case was ?

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Certainly Sir, but, I do not know if the House will have the patience to hear that. Briefly, Messrs. Forbes Forbes Campbell and Co. had, a hundi drawn on their head office in Bombay by their Lahore agent. The hundi was payable to bearer. The man who held the hundi had endorsed it on the back saying, it should be paid to X. Y. Z. When the hundi was presented in Bombay, the head office of the firm, not examining the endorsement, paid it, not to the man in whose name the endorsement was made, but to somebody else, the presenter of the hundi. After the hundi was paid, the party to whom it was made payable by the last endorsement claimed the money. There was a case in the Small Causes Court, Bombay. The then Chief Judge of the Small Causes Court, Bombay, Diwan Bahadur K. M. Javeri, decided the case No. 1762/18636 of 1922 against Forbes Forbes Campbell and Co. in January 1923. On appeal this was confirmed by Diwan Bahadur Javeri and Mr. Dadachanji. The case was taken to the High Court as far as I remember, but I speak subject to correction; the learned Chief Judge's judgment was eventually upheld. The Associated Chamber thereupon took up the case and we have been hearing of this for some years now. Sir, the change which is sought to be made by this Bill is that a hundi, when drawn payable to bearer, should remain payable to bearer, irrespective of any endorsement on it. I do not, however, want to go into the merits of this, but I feel that the change should certainly not be made until the Banking Committee has inquired into the subject. The proposed change will mean that hundis will have to be sent by registered post by shroffs, and it will involve an enormous change in the whole system of working.

I therefore feel that the House would be badly advised in proceeding with this on the opinion of one section of the commercial community only. I would certainly like to pay due attention to the opinion of that section, but I would like the House to pay greater attention to the opinion of the Indian commercial bodies which deal with the vast masses of India. I therefore have no option but to oppose this motion at this stage.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya (Madras : Indian Commerce) : I am very sorry that I have also to oppose this motion made by the Honourable the Finance Member. I was also a member of the Select Committee at which this subject was thoroughly gone into, and after the most careful consideration, we found that the hundi, which is one of the most important instruments used by the business community in India, should not be interfered with in any manner. But the European Associated Chambers of Commerce are able to exert a great deal of influence with the Government. I am reminded of a vernacular proverb :

“ Mianji bole, aur

meaning, “ As soon as the man speaks his beard moves ”. The European Chambers speak and the Government follow. The majority of the Committee were against the change, and it was clearly demonstrated to the satisfaction of the last Finance Member that it was very difficult to amend the Act in such a way as to keep out hundis altogether. Still the Government wants to oblige the Associated Chambers, and the real fact is that the European Bankers in India want to follow the English practice. They are under the impression that because a cheque is drawn originally payable to bearer it always remains payable to bearer. Under the Indian law it is not so. In case they want to have some special facilities for these bankers, it will be better to make some amendment of the law relating to cheques only, but we should not under any circumstances interfere with the law of hundi. It affords a great deal of protection to the holders of the hundis. Otherwise it will mean taking away a very important and old right from the holder of a hundi if you interfere with it and make it payable to the bearer. I should certainly, Sir, oppose this in the light of the experience and discussion we had had at three or four meetings of the Select Committee and it was hoped that the Bill would be brought in in some amended form, but so far as I see—I speak subject to correction—I do not think there is any alteration made in the provisions of the Bill and we have it again here just in the same form as before. The Associated European Chambers of Commerce want the Bill to be passed in the same form as before and the obliging Finance Member is also prepared to meet their wishes. Sir, I oppose it.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham (Associated Chambers of Commerce : Nominated Non-Official) : Mr. President, Sir I am really grateful for the compliment which the last speaker paid me in implying by the quotation of his Indian proverb that I, as representing the Associated Chambers of Commerce, have the Government of India in my pocket. I only wish, Sir, that this had been true because in that case on many important questions on which we are almost daily engaged in waging war with the Government of India we should have saved ourselves an enormous amount of troubles. But the truth is that it is only on very rare occasions when we have the best of cases that the Government of India have listened to us and accepted our arguments. (Laughter.) Well, Sir, that may not be accepted by the Honourable Member, but I can assure him, having worked in the capacity of President of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, that it is nothing but the bare truth. Well, Sir, I am very sorry that I cannot agree with my Honourable friend who represents the Indian Merchants' Chamber in opposing the motion moved by the Honourable the Finance Member. I am all the more sorry because I agree with some very wise words spoken by Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas last year that it ought to be possible for all shades of commercial opinion and all brands of commerce in this country to work together. But there are bound to be differences of opinion and in this case I do not myself see any justification for postponing consideration of this Bill in Select Committee by reason of the fact that the Banking Inquiry Committee has been appointed. That Banking Committee has got to deal with an enormous variety of very important subjects, and I do not think that this particular point, which is a comparatively small technical one, is one which will engage an enormous amount of their attention. Quite apart from that, Sir, we have heard previously this afternoon the statement that it is not always wise to argue that if there is an important bit of legislation under consideration, it should be held over pending the consideration of the whole subject later on. And when that argument was uttered, I distinctly heard my Honourable friend, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, say “ Hear, hear ” in a loud voice. Now, Sir, there are two points. One, which has been suggested by my Honourable friend, is that the whole question of the use of hundis is affected by this Bill. That definitely is not so. This emerges—I do not know whether I am in order in quoting this—from the summary of the question put before the Select Committee, when the Bill was previously sent to them, by the then Finance Member, Sir Basil Blackett. The other point of objection is that of my friend, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, who suggested that all shades of Indian commercial opinion were against this Bill. That, again, Sir is definitely not the fact, because from the same note it appears that there were only very few bodies who were opposed to the Bill, and those not on very strong grounds. There was a very large body of Indian opinion, including small Indian banks, who were in favour of legislation. That is incontrovertible. The evidence is available and I do not enlarge on that point. But on the question of hundis, Sir, it is a curious fact that my Honourable friend should argue that the Bill will adversely affect the development of banking, because one argument which Sir Basil Blackett at that time advanced was that, unless this Bill was passed, progress in banking would be impeded in the country. There we have two exactly opposite opinions, and I am bound to say from my study of the question which I have only recently taken up from this file which is available to me, that I prefer on that point the opinion of Sir Basil Blackett, with all due deference to my friend on my right.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Very unwise.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : I may point out Sir, on this question of what hundis were going to be affected, that it was found that hundis were of two varieties, I regret I cannot pronounce either name, the Shah-jog and the Dekhadwar. The former class of hundi, which I understand forms the majority of hundis, has been ruled by the Courts as not being of the bearer type. So the consideration of what hundis would be affected by this proposed legislation is confined to the question of the Dekhadwar class ; I apologise if I pronounce it wrongly. This is only used in a comparatively small number of business centres. Finally, Sir, my Honourable friend, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, argued that the necessity for this legislation was based on one case only. That is only one case which has been fought in the courts ; but it is not the fact that cases do not arise. They do arise continually. Only two or three days before I came up to Simla for the Session of this Honourable House there was a case in my own office of a bearer hundi which bore six or seven endorsements, all in vernacular and not all in the same vernacular, which had, in spite of all inquiries that could be made, been paid to the wrong person, and there is the possibility of trouble arising out of that. Well, Sir, I can only assure Honourable Members that this is not a question where opinion is divided between European commercial interests and Indian commercial interests. Very far from it. I would ask the Honourable House to study the opinions which were given from all sources when this Bill was referred to a Select Committee in 1927. It seems to me to be a particularly important piece of legislation in the interest of the spread of banking facilities in India ; and if it is argued that the holder of a bearer hundi loses the protection afforded by the law if he cannot endorse it, then I would reply that banks and others have a much stronger case when they claimed that they have no protection at all if a bearer instrument can be altered from its class by endorsement. Sir, I strongly support the motion moved by the Honourable the Finance Member.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar (Tanjore cum Trichinopoly : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I desire to support the suggestion made by Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, and my only excuse for being here to make a speech is that I was on the earlier Select Committee on this Bill. I do not want to enter into any technical discussion as to the nature of the hundis which will become negotiable and the nature of the hundis which will not become negotiable. I leave that to the commercial magnates here to consider. But, Sir, when I was on the earlier Select Committee, we were dealing with two definite classes of people which to the average commonsense man seem to be equally worthy of consideration. There is, first of all, the man who draws a cheque or a bill or a hundi, or whatever it is, and I say it must be open to the man who draws or to the man to whom it is endorsed to make it not merely a bearer security but also a "payable to order" security. That is a right which every man has who is in possession of a negotiable security. That right will be taken away by the provisions which are now proposed by this Bill. The proposal is that so long as the original security is drawn to bearer, it shall not be altered by any holder thereof to be payable to order. That, Sir, is taking away the right of the holder of these securities. On the other hand, they say, the banks require protection. So long as a cheque is enfaced as payable to bearer, the bank must be relieved of the responsibility of finding out whether it had been endorsed in favour of anybody or had been endorsed to be payable to order. I say, Sir, so far as this country is concerned, we have not advanced to the stage in the expansion of credit in which these credit instruments can pass from hand to hand in place of currency notes as it were, but that is what the Associated Chambers of Commerce want to do with these bearer-drawn securities.

I say that in this country it is necessary to protect the holders of these documents when they want to protect themselves and to see that they are not stolen from themselves and passed off as currency. It must be open to them to have them endorsed as payable to order and thereby to protect the properties.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : Let them draw the hundi to order.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : Every man who is in possession of a bearer bond ought to be in a position to secure his property therein by having it properly endorsed. It is a valuable property in this country and the trouble which the bank is put to, having regard to the transactions which the banks have to do in this country, is very small indeed. They have simply to look at the back of the paper and find out whether it is endorsed or not. Just in order to relieve the banks of this ordinary precaution you are asking the owners of these bonds to subject themselves to the risk of their properties being stolen away. That, I say, is the position of the common man of business, and in this country until we evolve a system of development of credit by which the cheque is more commonly in use, I say, Sir, that it is unwise immediately to adopt the law in this country on the same basis as the law or practice in England. I recollect also that, during the course of the discussion in the Select Committee, the legal point was argued with exceeding thoroughness by my friend Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar.....

Mr. President : Order, order.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : I am sorry, Sir. So far as the question of law is concerned, I do not think it has been conclusively established that the law in England is exactly as this Bill would describe it to be. In fact, the repeated Select Committees that have been appointed on the Bill show that there is much room for doubt in this matter. On the whole, this is a very important matter, a thing which, as the Honourable the

[Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar.]

Finance Member and Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas said, rightly affects the question of the expansion of credit facilities. It is a matter which the Banking Inquiry Committee would be in a better position to sift and to make the proper recommendation as to how best to expand this credit without merely accepting the ipse dixit of the Associated Chambers of Commerce.

Mr. E. L. Price (Bombay : European) : I was much surprised, Sir, to hear Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas say that this was purely a European question. When this judgment was given years ago in Bombay, the first person I heard about it from was an Indian banker, a friend of mine, who told me that such a decision would absolutely upset the method of working in his bank. Now, Sir, at the present time, there are two sorts of documents, one to bearer and the other to order. But the effect of this decision is really to knock out the bearer document entirely. When we get a bearer document in any other part of the world, we do not go into any endorsement details at all. The holder submits it for payment to the bank; he is paid the amount on its face and they are quits. But once you enter into the question of endorsements, you bring the "bearer" immediately into line with the "order" document, the result of which is that the commercial world is deprived of the benefit of the "bearer" document, because in actual practice in both cases you have got to look at the back, at the other side. And where I am told this has occasioned great annoyance and inconvenience to certain Indian merchants is this. In the old days before this decision, they got a bearer cheque which they presented in the bank. It was paid on its face value at once and no questions asked. Now, they are expected to stand there, identify themselves and often put an endorsement on it before getting paid. The net result of this decision is that the commercial world has been absolutely deprived of that useful document, the "bearer" document.

Mr. K. C. Neogy (Dacca Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I do hope that this House will refrain from entering into legal discussion now on this very complicated question. As a member of the last Select Committee I can say this much, without having to incur your displeasure, that it was not by mere force of numbers that this Bill was turned down but that the Committee was so impressed with the complexities of the whole question that the Honourable the Finance Member's predecessor did not think it proper to proceed with it further. He had ample time after the last meeting of the Select Committee was held to proceed with the measure if he had thought it right, but the very fact that he did not choose to take any action proves that he at any rate, was reconciled in the end to the Bill being dropped.

Now, Sir, Mr. Winterbotham has referred to two opposing opinions. On the one hand, he had the opinion of our Honourable friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, who has voiced the opinion of the Indian commercial community on this subject.

Mr. G. L. Winterbotham : Part of it.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : I do not know what authority my Honourable friend has got to say that.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Mr. Winterbotham speaks for only 13 commercial bodies; I speak for 30.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : When the Indian commercial community wishes to make any representations, there is one particular channel through which it demands to be heard. That is the Federation of Indian Chambers and this is the resolution that was adopted by that Federation :

"This Congress protests against the proposed amendments in the Negotiable Instruments Act declaring any restrictions endorsed by a holder in due course on a cheque as null and void and requests the Government to drop the recent Bill on this subject."

Therefore, I take it that, so far as the Indian commercial opinion is concerned, it is definitely opposed to this measure. We find the representative of the Associated Chambers of Commerce in this House supporting this Bill. Here is undoubtedly a conflict of opinion on a very important question. The Honourable Mr. Winterbotham himself has admitted that this is a very important question. If the importance of this question is so very great, why cannot you wait for the considered opinion of the Banking Inquiry Committee when you find that the Indian opinion is entirely opposed to it?

Now, Sir, I do not think it right to make this a racial issue at all. As a matter of fact, when we considered this Bill in the Select Committee this aspect of the question was not at all brought forward before us. When we considered the matter there, it was as an independent question, which had nothing to do with the interests of the Indian community as against the interests of Europeans. I am therefore very sorry that this question has been raised on this occasion. I appeal to the Honourable Member in charge not to press this motion but to wait till the Report of the Banking Inquiry Committee is available.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : Sir, I must confess at the outset that the discussion which my motion has aroused has come to me somewhat as a surprise. This Bill was, as I informed the House before, introduced on a former date, and my friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas actually on that occasion himself proposed its reference to a Select Committee. I thought that, on the present occasion, in taking myself the initiative in proposing the reference to the Select Committee, I was amply meeting the views of those who, I knew, felt doubt about some of the provisions of this Bill. I cannot accept the historical account which Mr. Neogy has given us with regard to this measure. He spoke as though the Bill was definitely turned down or deliberately dropped. Investigations into the past records have given me a different view of the matter. I quite recognise that there were serious difficulties which developed in the discussions on the Select Committee, and it then appeared, as far as I could judge, that my predecessor, who was very much occupied, as no doubt every one will remember, after 1927 with other affairs, could find no time to go on with it. The matter was really left in a very unsatisfactory state. The discussion had not been concluded in any way.

It seems to me that the question really before the House is whether this complicated technical question should be thrashed out by a Select Committee of this House or should be discussed by the Banking Inquiry Committee. That is really what it comes to. I should like to say at the outset that I never had the slightest desire to force this measure in the teeth of great opposition. I wanted to initiate a discussion on a measure which it seemed to me required discussion.

[Sir George Schuster.]

Now, Sir, as regards the proposals that this should be referred to the Banking Inquiry Committee, I naturally am always pleased when I find that the Banking Inquiry Committee is being regarded as a Committee of value to which useful tasks can be assigned. But, I do think that it is most important not to overload that Committee. That Committee has got a very big task before it, and I am extremely doubtful—and I am sure that my Honourable friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas from his knowledge of the amount of the work which he sees before him must share my doubts—I am extremely doubtful whether the Committee will have time to thrash out detailed questions of this kind. I say detailed questions, although I fully recognise the importance of this particular question, but in a sense as compared with the task the Banking Inquiry Committee has got before it, this is detail.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : I suppose the Honourable Member will agree that the Banking Inquiry Committee cannot avoid going into questions as important as these according both to him and my Honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I quite agree with my Honourable friend that this is a question which is germane to the inquiry which that Committee will conduct. I do not for a moment suggest that it is not. But I do think myself that that Committee's recommendations might be greatly facilitated by a careful examination of this particular detail affecting banking transactions by a Select Committee of this House. My contention is that the Banking Inquiry Committee will not have time to give detailed consideration to a measure of this kind.

Now, Sir, there have been suggestions by certain speakers—I am very glad that Mr. Neogy did not associate himself with them—that this is in a sense a racial measure, that the Government is trying to support European interests in bringing forward this legislation. I think, Sir, that the constitution of the Select Committee, which I myself proposed, is an answer to that charge. I am sure that it cannot be said that the Committee is unduly weighted in favour of European interests. I have little doubt that, if my Honourable friend Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas really persists in his unqualified opposition to this measure, he will have ample opportunity to make his wishes effective on that Select Committee.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Why waste time ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I confess that I did not understand that my Honourable friend did offer unqualified opposition to this measure. Reading the past debate, I think I was entitled to draw a different conclusion. I understood that he saw dangers in the measure if it were made of universal application at that time, but certainly he admitted that it was an important question which deserved serious discussion. I believe the only point, the only new factor, which has arisen now and which has induced him to change his view is the inauguration of the Banking Inquiry Committee which, he thinks, affords a more proper body for discussing this measure. That, Sir, is where I regret to say, I differ from my Honourable friend. I believe that the Banking Inquiry Committee will be assisted by the discussion which would take place on the Select Committee which I propose.

The Government, Sir, in this matter is really trying to adopt an impartial attitude. We have no particular interest in it one way or the other. But on a study of the evidence, on a study of what has passed before, I have convinced myself that this was an important question which ought not to be left longer in abeyance. I therefore wanted to throw it open again for discussion on a Select Committee where every interest would be fairly represented. I have not the slightest intention, as I said before, of trying to force through legislation contrary to any determined opposition. I will say, here and now, that if in the course of the discussion of the Select Committee I became convinced that there were serious differences of opinion, and that there were serious grounds for those differences, and that they could not be got over, that in fact we had failed or that we were going to fail altogether to find a measure which would command common agreement, then I would be quite prepared to take steps to delay legislation until the Banking Inquiry Committee had reported. I am quite prepared to say that. But I do feel that, in justice to the interests on behalf of which my Honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham has spoken, and on behalf of other interests affected, for which he is not entitled to speak, I do feel, Sir, that I should not be right in failing to make an endeavour to get this important question discussed now without waiting possibly for two years until the Banking Inquiry Committee has reported. I would ask the House to express their views on my motion subject to the explanation which I have given.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah (Bombay City : Muhammadan Urban) : May I ask the Honourable Member why, in view of his own admission that the subject matter of this Bill will be germane to the Banking Inquiry Committee, pass this measure before that Committee makes its Report ? Supposing the Banking Inquiry Committee in their Report do not approve of this legislation, what will happen ? Will the Honourable Member introduce another Bill to repeal it or amend it ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : In answer to my Honourable friend I would say that at this stage the House is not being asked to pass this Bill, but merely to refer it for consideration by the Select Committee. My contention has been that that examination by the Select Committee will advance the study of this question by a very important stage, and I do not think I should be justified in refusing to propose at least this step. I do not think it is likely that the Select Committee will furnish a Report which is completely inconsistent with the recommendations of the Banking Inquiry Committee. If it did so happen—I cannot myself conceive that it is at all likely to happen—but if it did so happen that this House passed legislation which was afterwards condemned by the Banking Inquiry Committee, a situation would arise which no doubt would have to be seriously considered by the Government. I do not think, Sir, I am called upon to consider so unlikely a situation in advance.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : One more question, Sir ? Will the Honourable Member give an assurance to this House that, if this motion is passed, the final stages of the Bill will be proceeded with after the Banking Inquiry Committee concludes its inquiry ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : No, Sir. I am not prepared to give an assurance to go so far as that. I want to try and reach an agreement in the Select Committee by producing a measure which would command the general consent of commercial circles in India. I think that the assurance which I already gave was quite sufficiently strong to meet my Honourable friend's point.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the Bill further to amend the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, for a certain purpose (Amendment of sections 13, 16, 35, etc.), be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas, Mr. M. S. Aney, Mr. Fazl Ibrahim Rahimtulla, Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim, Mr. Ghanshyam Das Birla, Sardar Kartar Singh, Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta, Mr. D. V. Belvi, Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya, Mr. D. C. Stewart-Smith, Mr. G. L. Winterbotham and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

THE DANGEROUS DRUGS BILL.

The Honourable Sir George Schuster (Finance Member) : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill to centralise and vest in the Governor General in Council the control over certain operations relating to dangerous drugs and to increase and render uniform throughout British India the penalties for offences relating to such operations, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney, Dr. B. S. Moonje, Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava, Mr. V. V. Jogiah, Pandit Nilakantha Das, Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz, Mr. Abdul Haye, Mr. W. A. Cosgrave, Mr. H. L. Stevenson and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five.

This Bill was circulated by order of the Assembly last Simla Session. When moving for circulation, my predecessor, Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra, explained that the Bill, in spite of its size, was really a simple one. It is intended to unify and improve the law governing certain operations relating to dangerous drugs, law which is at present spread over a number of statutes; and the main object is to embody those provisions that reflect the obligations which have been undertaken by the Government of India by their ratification of the Geneva Dangerous Drugs Convention of 1925. This intention has necessarily confined the scope of the Bill within definite limits. In some respects, the Bill deals with matters which technically belong to the provincial transferred subject of Excise, and when the consent of the Local Governments was obtained to this intrusion upon what is constitutionally their sphere, it was on a clear understanding as to the limits which should be set to this intrusion. It is therefore impossible to enlarge the scope of the Bill in any such way as was suggested by Mr. Duraiswamy Aiyangar when he spoke on the motion for circulation on the 21st September, 1928. This aspect of the case has been generally recognised by those who have sent in their opinions, and it may therefore still be said that the Bill is simple and non-contentious. At the same time a number of points of detail have been raised in the opinions received, and I feel that the best place for examining these will be in Select Committee. Sir, I move.

Mr. President : The question is :

" That the Bill to centralise and vest in the Governor General in Council the control over certain operations relating to dangerous drugs and to increase and render uniform throughout British India the penalties for offences relating to such operations, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney, Dr. B. S. Moonje, Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava, Mr. V. V. Jogiah, Pandit Nilakantha Das, Mian Mohammad Shah Nawaz, Mr. Abdul Haye, Mr. W. A. Cosgrave, Mr. H. L. Stevenson and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Tuesday, the 10th September, 1929.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Tuesday, 10th September, 1929.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock,
Mr. President in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

PROHIBITION OF THE ADVOCATES OF INDIAN HIGH COURTS FROM PRACTISING IN SUBORDINATE COURTS IN BURMA.

259. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) Are Government aware of the fact that the Bar Council of Burma framed a rule prohibiting the Advocates of other Indian High Courts from practising in the subordinate courts of Burma without obtaining the express permission of the presiding Judge in every case ?

(b) Are Government aware that the Bar Councils have no power to make rules with regard to subordinate courts ? If so, was the attention of the Burma Bar Council drawn to the rule being ultra vires of its powers and the necessity for cancelling the same ?

(c) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a statement made by Earl Winterton in the House of Commons, promising an inquiry regarding the said rule made by the Burma Bar Council ?

(d) Has the Government of Burma been addressed on this point ? If so, will Government place on the table any reply that may have been received ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b) The validity of the rule has been questioned, and I understand that it is likely to be brought before the Courts. I am consequently not prepared to express an opinion.

(c) Yes.

(d) Yes. I do not think it would be proper to lay on the table correspondence which deals with issues which are likely, as above stated, to be shortly sub judice.

NAMES AND LOCATION OF DULY CONSTITUTED TRADE UNIONS IN INDIA.

260. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : Will Government be pleased to state if there exist any duly constituted trade unions in India ; and if so, will Government be pleased to give their names and also the names of the respective provinces in which they have been established ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : A list of trade unions, duly registered under the Indian Trade Unions Act, 1926, in the various provinces will be sent to the Honourable Member and a copy placed in the Library of the House.

NAMES OF LABOUR LEADERS RECOGNISED BY GOVERNMENT IN DIFFERENT PROVINCES.

261. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : Will Government be pleased to give the names of the labour leaders, as recognised by Government in the different provinces ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I take it that the Honourable Member has in mind some form of formal recognition as is accorded by Government to approved Associations of Government servants. The Government of India have not made any attempt to distinguish in a similar manner certain labour leaders from others.

REMOVAL OF DISABILITIES OF WOMEN AS REGARDS FRANCHISE FOR AND MEMBERSHIP OF INDIAN LEGISLATURES AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATIVE BODIES.

262. *Mr. E. L. Price : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (1) The disabilities of women as regards franchise for and membership of, (a) local administrative bodies, (b) Provincial Councils, (c) the Indian Legislative Assembly, and (d) the Council of State ;
- (2) What steps can be taken in India, without reference to the India Office, to remove those disabilities ; and
- (3) In what cases, if any, have such steps been taken ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (1) The question of disabilities of women as regards franchise for and membership of local administrative bodies is not primarily the concern of the Governor General in Council. As regards the Council of State, the Legislative Assembly and the Provincial Legislative Councils, the Honourable Member is referred to rules 5 (b), 7 (b) and 22 (b) of the Electoral rules of both the Chambers of the Central Legislature and to the rules of the various Provincial Legislative Councils.

(2) and (3). Women have been enfranchised in all provinces having Legislative Councils, without reference to the India Office. They are eligible for election or nomination to the Legislative Councils in Madras, Bombay, United Provinces, Punjab, Burma, Bihar and Orissa, Central Provinces and Coorg and to the Legislative Assembly from these provinces if they are otherwise qualified. As regards the Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara constituencies of the Legislative Assembly, the sex disqualification for election and nomination has been removed, but women have not been enfranchised in these provinces and therefore cannot stand for election to the Assembly, though they can be nominated.

ALLEGED RACIAL DISCRIMINATION IN THE APPELLATIONS USED ON PASSES ISSUED TO EMPLOYEES ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

263. *Mr. M. S. Aney : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the Agent of the North Western Railway, while issuing railway passes has lately discontinued the practice of using the words " Mr. ", " Lala ", " Mian ", and " Sirdar " before the names of employees who are Hindus, Muhammadans or Sikhs, and retained the use of the word " Mr. " in the case of employees who are Christians, Anglo-Indians or Europeans ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for this racial discrimination ?

(c) Do Government propose immediately to take steps to remove the same ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) & (c). I understand this was due to the inability of the North Western Railway Administration to determine what was the proper prefix to be used, as certain objections were raised to previous practice, but I am glad to say the question has been settled by the decision to use the innocuous term " Mr. " in all cases.

Mr. K. Ahmed : I understand, Sir, that Indians generally like to be styled as " Mr. ", and they would prefer that to " Lala ", " Sirdar ",—what is the other name " Mian ", and so on, isn't that so ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No further complaints have been received.

RETENTION TILL THE AGE OF 60 OF CAPABLE MEN IN CERTAIN OFFICES IN BOMBAY.

264. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many persons from the higher grades (Superintendents, etc.) were due to retire in the year 1928-29 for having completed the age of 55 or above in the (i) Accountant General's Office, Bombay, (ii) Income-tax Office, Bombay, and (iii) Currency Office, Bombay, and how many of them were granted extensions from each office ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that extension in services up to the age of 60 to capable men can be granted by the head of the Department ? If so, why in most cases was it refused in the Accounts and Income-tax Offices, Bombay ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether the persons from the Accountant General's and Income-tax Offices, who had attained the age of 55, were all held to be incapable of doing any further service, or whether they were required to go only to make room for others ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state whether the grant of extensions up to the age of 60 to those who are in graded appointments and who have not reached the maximum and are allowed to remain in that grade for three years, enables them to get the full benefit of that grade when they retire ? If so, why are no chances given in the above two offices only to the persons who are capable of serving up to 60 years of age ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) The facts for the year 1928-29 in the three offices mentioned by the Honourable Member are as follows :

(i) In the Accountant General's office seven Superintendents and Divisional Accountants attained the age of 55 or over. Of these, three retired without asking for an extension of service, three were granted extensions, and one, who had been granted previous extensions aggregating 2½ years, was refused a further extension.

(ii) In the Income-tax office no person in the higher clerical grades attained the age of 55 or over.

(iii) In the Currency Office the only persons in the higher clerical grades who attained an age of 55 or over were a Deputy Treasurer and an Assistant Treasurer. They were both granted extensions.

(b) Fundamental Rule 56 (b) lays down that a ministerial servant may be required to retire at the age of 55 years, but should ordinarily be retained in service, if he continues efficient, up to the age of 60 years. The figures I have just given show that an extension was refused in one case only, and that that was a case in which the officer had reached the age of 57½.

(c) On the facts as already stated this part of the question contains a misleading implication. In the single case in which an extension was refused, the fact that eligible juniors were awaiting promotion was undoubtedly taken into consideration.

(d) The amount of a ministerial servant's pension depends upon his pay during the last three years of his service, and there is consequently advantage in reaching the maximum of a time-scale three years before retirement. It is obvious therefore that if a Government servant reaches the maximum rate less than three years before he attains the age of 55, it would be to his advantage to continue until he has completed the three years, i.e., beyond his age of 55 but not necessarily up to the age of 60.

RETURN OF SHROFFS OF THE BOMBAY CURRENCY OFFICE OF ADDITIONAL SECURITY TAKEN FROM THEM.

265. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : With reference to the reply to starred question No. 700 (c), put by Mr. Aney in the last Delhi Session, that shroffs are not required in Bombay or elsewhere to deposit additional security, do Government propose to issue orders to return the additional security taken from the shroffs in the Bombay Currency Office as early as possible ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : With your permission, Sir, I will deal with questions Nos. 265 and 266 together.

Inquiry is being made and a reply will be sent to the Honourable Member in due course.

PAY OF TEMPORARY SHROFFS IN THE BOMBAY CURRENCY OFFICE.

†266. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the difference between the rate of pay of temporary shroffs and temporary hamals engaged on a daily wage basis in the Bombay Currency Office before 1929 ?

(b) Do Government treat them both equally ? If so, why ? What steps do Government propose to take to increase the rate of pay of the temporary shroffs ?

PROHIBITION OF THE ADVOCATES OF INDIAN HIGH COURTS FROM PRACTISING IN SUBORDINATE COURTS IN BURMA.

267. *Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : (a) Are Government aware of the fact that the Bar Council of Burma framed a rule prohibiting the advocates of other Indian High Courts from practising in the subordinate courts of Burma without obtaining the express permission of the presiding Judge in every case ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 265.

(b) Is it not a fact that the Bar Councils have no power to make rules with regard to subordinate courts ? If so, was the attention of the Burma Bar Council drawn to the rule being ultra vires of its powers and the necessity for cancelling the same ?

(c) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the inquiry promised by Earl Winterton in the House of Commons regarding the rule made by the Burma Bar Council, prohibiting the advocates of other Indian High Courts from practising even in the subordinate courts of that province ?

(d) Have the Government of Burma been addressed on this point ? If so, will Government be pleased to place on the table the reply received ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The Honourable Member is referred to the reply which I have just given.

IRREGULARITY IN THE TRAINING OF STUDENTS FOR CERTAIN EXAMINATIONS IN THE NORMAL SCHOOL, AJMER.

268. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that the students of the Normal School, Ajmer, who were declared successful in the P. T. C. examination in 1929, were admitted to the school after the summer vacation on the 6th July 1929 as students of the V. T. C. class, in contravention of paragraph 227 of the Education Code ? If so, what action do Government propose to take against the officer or officers responsible for the violation of the rule ?

(b) Is it a fact that the students mentioned in part (a) were discharged from the school without even one day's notice after a few days' attendance in the second week of July 1929 ? If so, do Government propose to take adequate disciplinary measures against the officer or officers responsible for it and for the circumstances necessitating it ?

(c) If what has been stated in parts (a) and (b) be facts, were the stipends from the completion of the P. T. C. course till the disbanding of the V. T. C. class in July 1929 given to the students concerned ? Is it a fact that these students were kept waiting for the V. T. C. and, were therefore, unemployed in the summer vacation, and actually attended the V. T. C. class for some days after the vacation ?

(d) If the answer to the first part of part (c) is in the negative, do Government propose to disburse the stipends to the students concerned ? If not, why not ?

Sir Frank Noyce : With your permission, Sir, I shall deal with questions Nos. 268 to 272, and 277 and 278 together. The information asked for in these questions, excepting question No. 272, is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

As regards question No. 272, if the Honourable Member will be good enough to name the institution to which he refers, inquiries will be made.

IRREGULARITY IN THE ADMISSION OF CANDIDATES TO CERTAIN CLASSES IN THE NORMAL SCHOOL AT AJMER.

†269. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact :

- (i) that before the summer vacation of 1929 the Assistant Superintendent of Education, Ajmer-Merwara, informed the Headmaster, Normal School, Ajmer, that no admission to the P. T. C. class of that school would be made in the next session in July 1929 ;
- (ii) that after the reopening of the school the Assistant Superintendent of Education notified that admissions to the P. T. C. class would be made for the said session that had already begun ;
- (iii) that no dates were given for selection and admission in the said notice ;
- (iv) that the selection for admission was made in less than ten days after the issue of the notice, whereas in previous years selection was made after more than a month from the date of the issue of the notice ;
- (v) that the period intervening between the issue of the notice and the selection was too short for candidates from the remote parts of the district to appear for selection ;
- (vi) that candidates continued to come in for admission for a number of days after the board of admission had met for selection ; and
- (vii) that for a number of working days in July 1929 the Ajmer Normal School teachers had no students to teach, in consequence of the late selection and admission of candidates ?

(b) If what are stated at part (a) above are facts, do Government propose to take adequate disciplinary measures against the officer responsible for this state of things ?

GRANT OF COMPENSATION TO CERTAIN VERNACULAR TEACHERS IN AJMER-MERWARA REFUSED ADMISSION TO THE NORMAL SCHOOL, AJMER.

†270. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that certain men appointed as vernacular teachers in Ajmer-Merwara sent for admission to the Normal School, Ajmer, in 1929 were neither admitted to the Normal School nor allowed to return to the posts they held prior to their being sent up for admission to the Normal School ? If so, are Government prepared to grant compensation to the teachers concerned ?

REFUSAL OF TRAVELLING ALLOWANCE TO CERTAIN STUDENTS OF THE NORMAL SCHOOL AT AJMER.

†271. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that the stipendiary students admitted to the Government Normal School, Ajmer, in 1929 were not given travelling allowances on the occasion of their joining the school, in contravention of paragraph 231 of the Educational Code ? If so, will Government please state the circumstances justifying the violation of the rule ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 268.

VIOLATION OF THE EDUCATION CODE IN REGARD TO VACATION AND HOLIDAYS BY AN ANGLO-VERNACULAR SCHOOL AT AJMER.

†272. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that an Anglo-vernacular institution at Ajmer aided and recognised by the Department of Education, Ajmer-Merwara, and inspected by the Assistant Superintendent of Education, Ajmer-Merwara, has not observed the provisions of the Education Code in regard to vacation and holidays ever since its recognition ? If so, will Government be pleased to state what action was taken against the school ; if not, why not ?

(b) How many times has the Assistant Superintendent of Education, Ajmer-Merwara, visited the school since its recognition ?

(c) Did the Assistant Superintendent of Education object to the violation of the said provisions of the Education Code in any of his inspection reports of the said school ? If so, when ? If not, why not ?

VIOLATION OF THE PROVISIONS OF THE EDUCATION CODE REGARDING RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION BY A HIGH SCHOOL AT AJMER

273. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that a High School in Ajmer, aided and recognised by the Department of Education, Ajmer-Merwara, and inspected by the Assistant Superintendent of Education, Ajmer-Merwara, has been violating the provisions of paragraph 90 (a) of the Education Code in regard to religious instruction ever since its recognition ? If so, will Government please state what steps were taken against the institution ? If not, why not ?

(b) How many times has the Assistant Superintendent of Education inspected the D. A. A. V. High School since 1925 ?

(c) Did the Assistant Superintendent of Education object to the violation of paragraph 90 (a) of the Education Code in any of his inspection reports of the said D. A. A. V. High School ? If so, when ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) If the Honourable Member will be good enough to give the name of the institution to which he refers to me or to the Educational Commissioner, inquiries will be made.

(b) Three.

(c) Yes, in 1929.

PURCHASE BY THE STUDENTS OF THE NORMAL SCHOOL, AJMER, OF CERTAIN TEXT BOOKS WRITTEN BY THE HEADMASTER OF THAT SCHOOL.

274. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that certain books written by Mr. S. C. Chatterji, then in charge of the Normal School, Ajmer, which were not prescribed, recommended or suggested for the C. T. course, had to be purchased by each and every student admitted to the C. T. class of the said school in 1929 ? If so, will Government inquire if the books had to be purchased by order of the Headmaster ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 268.

(b) Were the books referred to in part (a) used for regular class-work ? If so, was permission to introduce them in the regular course obtained from the Superintending officers or from the authorities prescribing the C. T. Course ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) & (b). The answer to the first part of each of these questions is in the negative. The second part does not arise.

RESULTS OF EXAMINATIONS OF SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES IN AJMER IN 1928 AND 1929.

275. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government please put on the table of the House a statement comparing the external examination results of the Government College, Ajmer, the Government High School, Ajmer, the Moinia Islamia High School, Ajmer, and the Government Normal School, Ajmer, in 1929, with those in 1928, and showing the number of students sent for each examination by each of the said institutions, the number of students successful, and the percentage of successful students ?

Sir Frank Noyce : A statement is placed on the table.

POOR RESULTS AND INCREASED COST OF GOVERNMENT EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS IN AJMER IN 1929.

276. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Are Government aware that, except in the case of the Government Normal School, Ajmer, the external examination results of all the Government institutions in the town of Ajmer in 1929 are worse than in 1928 ?

(b) What are the reasons for the fall in the percentage of success in the examination results ?

(c) Is it a fact that the expenditure incurred by Government on the maintenance of each of the said institutions was greater in 1928-29 than in 1927-28 ?

(d) What steps do Government propose to take in the interests of education and the proper use of public money ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) & (c). Yes.

(b) & (d). The matter is under inquiry.

APPOINTMENT OF AN UNTRAINED TEACHER AS HEAD TEACHER OF THE VERNACULAR SECONDARY SCHOOL, BHIM.

†277. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that an untrained teacher has been confirmed as Head Teacher of the Vernacular Secondary School, Bhim, with effect from the 1st August, 1927 ?

(b) Is it a fact that the said confirmation was made on the recommendation of the Assistant Superintendent of Education, Ajmer-Merwara ?

(c) Is it a fact that there were orders on record previous to the confirmation of the said teacher, to the effect that he could not be confirmed till he was trained, and that the said order was not mentioned or referred to by the Assistant Superintendent of Education in recommending the confirmation of the teacher ?

(d) Is it a fact that the confirmation of the said teacher was subsequently cancelled by the Superintendent of Education, Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara ? If so, who was responsible for the wrong confirmation and what action was taken against the officer responsible ?

(e) Is it a fact that the said teacher had been drawing for more than a year the higher pay of a post in the Government Normal School, Ajmer, when actually working as Head Teacher of the Secondary School, Bhim ; while another teacher actually worked in the said post of the Government Normal School, Ajmer, at the lower pay of a secondary school head teacher ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the rules under which the department concerned was justified in making this arrangement ?

NAMES OF RELATIVES OF MR. P. B. JOSHI, ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION, AJMER-MERWARA, EMPLOYED IN THE AJMER-MERWARA EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

†278. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to put on the table a statement showing the names of the relatives of Mr. P. B. Joshi, the Assistant Superintendent of Education, Ajmer-Merwara, in the service of the Ajmer-Merwara Education Department, stating which of them were appointed in the said Department after Mr. P. B. Joshi's appointment as Assistant Superintendent of Education, Ajmer-Merwara ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 268.

APPOINTMENT BY MR. P. B. JOSHI, ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION, AJMER-MERWARA, OF A RELATIVE OF HIS AS SECOND MASTER OF THE NORMAL SCHOOL, AJMER.

279. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that in 1926 Mr. P. B. Joshi, the Assistant Superintendent of Education, Ajmer-Merwara, recommended to the Superintendent of Education only two teachers, Mr. Nand Kishore Joshi and Mr. Durgapal Joshi for the second-mastership of the Government Normal School, Ajmer ?

(b) Is it a fact that the said Mr. Nand Kishore Joshi is the brother of Mr. P. B. Joshi ?

(c) Is it a fact that the said Mr. Durgapal Joshi is a relative of Mr. P. B. Joshi ? If so, what is the relationship ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to put on the table a list of all the trained graduate assistant masters in the employ of the Ajmer-Merwara Education Department, stating their names, qualifications and grades, when the recommendation mentioned in part (a) was made ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to state the ground on which the Assistant Superintendent of Education was justified in recommending only Mr. Nand Kishore Joshi and Mr. Durgapal Joshi for the post mentioned in part (a) and excluding all other trained graduate teachers from the recommendation ?

(f) Did the Assistant Superintendent of Education consult the Headmasters of the two Government High Schools in Ajmer before making the recommendation mentioned in part (a) ? If not, why not ?

(g) Did the Assistant Superintendent of Education consult the Headmaster, Normal School, Ajmer, before making the recommendation in part (a), under whom the teacher to be appointed was to work ? If not, why not ?

(h) Is it a fact that Mr. Nand Kishore was appointed to the vacancy mentioned in part (a) ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) & (e). Recommendations from an officer of Government to his superior officer on questions of personnel are confidential.

(b) Mr. Nand Kishore Joshi, brother of Mr. P. B. Joshi, was in 1926, appointed a master in the Government Normal School, Ajmer.

(c) Government know of no one of the name of Durgapal Joshi.

(d) A list of the trained graduate assistant masters in the employ of the Ajmer-Merwara Educational Department in 1926, with their names, qualifications and grades is placed on the table.

(f) & (g). Government understand that the Assistant Superintendent of Education consulted the headmasters named before submitting his recommendations in 1926, for filling a post which was then vacant.

(h) Yes.

LACK OF QUALIFICATION OF MR. TARLEKAR FOR THE HEADMASTERSHIP OF THE MOINIA ISLAMIA HIGH SCHOOL.

280. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that the teacher appointed to officiate as Headmaster of the Moinia Islamia High School, Ajmer, in April 1928, did not possess even the minimum qualifications for the Headmastership of a High School prescribed by the Board of High School and Intermediate Education with which the Moinia Islamia High School was then affiliated ?

(b) Is it a fact that the said teacher did not possess the qualifications for service laid down in paragraphs 150 (a) and 222 (c) of the Education Code ?

(c) Is it a fact that the High School examination result of the Moinia Islamia High School for the academic year 1928-29, in which the school was under Mr. Tarlekar's Headmastership, was 8 out of 21, against 8 out of 13 in the preceding year ?

(d) Is it a fact that the majority of students from the Moinia Islamia High School, Ajmer, who were unsuccessful in the High School Examination in 1929, failed in the subjects personally taught by Mr. Tarlekar ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) & (b). Yes. But he has educational experience as head and assistant master of schools for a period extending over thirty years. He is a graduate in arts and was in the Educational Service long before the rules quoted by the Honourable Member were brought into force.

(c) & (d). Yes.

APPOINTMENT OF MUSLIMS TO THE UPPER DIVISION IN THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, HEALTH AND LANDS.

281. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the total number of ministerial officers in the Upper Division in the Department of Education, Health and Lands, and the number of the Muslims holding (i) temporary and (ii) permanent appointments in the Upper Division in the Department (1) at the time of the amalgamation of the Education Department with the Revenue Department and (2) at present ?

(b) How many vacancies occurred in the Upper Division in the Department of Education, Health and Lands during the last three years and how many of them were filled by Mussulmans ?

Sir Frank Noyce : A statement containing the required information is laid on the table.

more suitable for the appointment than the officer in charge, Medal Distribution, who is an Anglo-Indian, or the Senior Superintendent of the Army Department Secretariat who is an Indian ?

(b) Is it a fact that Mr. Gardner's duties as Assistant Secretary, Army Department, are mainly concerned with work that comes to the Secretariat from the General Staff Branch of Army Headquarters ?

(c) Is it a fact that Mr. Gardner has never been employed in the General Staff Branch of the Army Headquarters ?

(d) If the answer to part (a) is in the negative, will Government please state the reasons for which the officer in charge, Medal Distribution, or the Senior Superintendent, Army Secretariat, was not appointed to be Assistant Secretary, Army Department, and what, if any, are the general or special qualifications possessed by Mr. Gardner and not possessed by the other two for the appointment ?

(e) Do Government propose, on the return of the permanent incumbent of the appointment of Secretary, Army Department, Mr. G. Mackworth Young, in the chain of whose vacancy the officiating appointment of Assistant Secretary held by Mr. Gardner occurred, to continue Mr. Gardner's incumbency of the appointment of Assistant Secretary, or do they propose to appoint to the post one of the men in the Army Department Secretariat ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) No, Sir.

(b) No, Sir, more than half Mr. Gardner's work comes from other Branches.

(c) Yes.

(d) Because, in the opinion of the authority whose business it was to make the appointment, the abilities of both the officers mentioned by the Honourable Member were definitely inferior.

(e) On the return of Mr. Mackworth Young the vacancy in which Mr. Gardner is now officiating will cease to exist.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Admitting that Mr. Gardner is a man of superior abilities, will the Honourable Member please inform this House whether he, Mr. Gardner, as an outsider in the Department, has any claim or a better claim than a man in the Department who, by his continuous service, is obviously fit for promotion ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Nobody, Sir, has any claim to a post of this kind, which is a selection post.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member inform this House whether Mr. Gardner has ever served under him and, if not, who made this appointment, and what superior qualifications he has for this particular appointment ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Mr. Gardner has never served under me before. I did not make the appointment ; the appointment was made by the Army Secretary, Mr. Mackworth Young, with the approval of His Excellency the Army Member. His qualifications for this appointment are his superior ability.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : In the event of a similar vacancy arising in the Department on the return of Mr. Mackworth Young, will the Honourable Member be prepared to promote an efficient member of the Department who has an inherent claim to the post, or is it his intention to re-employ Mr. Gardner ?

Mr. President : It is a hypothetical question.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is the Honourable Member aware that great unrest exists in the Department and in the Secretariat over this unusual appointment and procedure of bringing in an outsider into an office in which he had no previous experience whatever ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : No. I am not aware of it.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member ascertain whether there is such unrest ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I do not think any public purpose would be served by doing so.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : That is a matter of opinion.

ADMISSION, FREE OF CHARGE, TO MILITARY HOSPITALS OF THE WIVES AND CHILDREN OF WARRANT AND OTHER OFFICERS OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

285. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Will Government please state if it is a fact that, under paragraph 382 of Part II, Pay and Allowance Regulations for the Army in India, the wives and children of Warrant Officers and Non-Commissioned Officers of the India Unattached List are entitled to admission into British military hospitals free of any charge ?

(b) Are the wives and children of Warrant and other officers of the Indian Medical Department entitled to admission into the British military hospitals free of any charge ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes, except the wives and children of Senior Assistant Surgeons holding the King's Commission who, like all other King's Commissioned Officers are required to pay hospital stoppages when they or their families are admitted into hospital. The last part of the question does not arise.

GRANT OF RAILWAY CONCESSION TICKETS TO WARRANT AND OTHER OFFICERS OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

286. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is it a fact that, in the revised rules regulating the concessions allowed to officers and men of the British and Indian Armies,—C. S. No. 17 of 1st December, 1928—railway concession tickets are restricted to Warrant Officers and Non-Commissioned Officers of the India Unattached List, etc., without any such particular mention of Warrant Officers of the Indian Medical Department who also belong to the British personnel ? If so, why ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Yes, Sir. The omission of the Indian Medical Department was unintentional and I am seeing that the Indian Railway Conference Association is approached with a view to their inclusion.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

SAFEGUARDING THE INTERESTS OF MUSSALMANS FOR APPOINTMENTS IN THE UPPER DIVISION AND SUPERINTENDENTS' GRADE OF DEPARTMENTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

282. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) What is the total number of (i) Upper Division, (ii) Selection Grade, and (iii) Superintendents' appointments in the several Departments of the Government of India Secretariat ; and how many of these appointments in each Department are held temporarily and permanently by Mussulmans ?

(b) In the event of the share of Mussalms in these appointments being disproportionately poor, do Government propose to consider, in consultation with non-official Muslim Members of this House, effective means for safeguarding the interests of Mussalms in the services mentioned above ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The information is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member on receipt.

(b) The number of Muslims in the clerical staff of the Departments of the Government of India has risen from 8.7 per cent. in 1911 to 15.6 per cent. in 1927, and Government have no reason to think that their orders on the subject have failed to promote their object. I shall, however, be glad to receive any suggestions the Honourable Member may desire to offer.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE KASHIPUR KALAGARH RAILWAY.

283. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) Whether the sanction of the Government of India has been obtained for the construction of the Kashipur-Kolagarh Railway ?

(b) Has the work of the survey of the line been taken up ?

(c) When the work of construction of the line is likely to be taken in hand, and

(d) When the line is likely to be opened for traffic ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) & (b). The survey report of the Kashipur-Kalagarh Railway has been received and considered, and it has been decided to construct the railway when funds can be allotted for the work.

(c) The programme for 1930-31 has not yet been considered and whether this line can be taken up or not during that year depends partly on the total amount of funds available for capital expenditure.

(d) The line will be ready for opening in about 2 years after commencement of construction.

ALLEGED RACIAL DISCRIMINATION SHOWN IN THE APPOINTMENT OF MR. J. B. W. GARDNER AS ASSISTANT SECRETARY, ARMY DEPARTMENT.

284. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. J. B. W. Gardner, an officer supervisor in the Royal Air Force Headquarters was appointed as Assistant Secretary in the Army Department Secretariat because he was an European and was for that reason considered

PROMOTION OF OFFICERS OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL DEPARTMENT pari passu WITH THOSE OF THE INDIAN MISCELLANEOUS LIST AND INDIAN ARMY ORDNANCE CORPS.

287. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Is it a fact that the members of the Indian Miscellaneous List receive commissioned rank after 18 years' departmental service ?

(b) Is it a fact that a member of the Indian Miscellaneous List as well as the Indian Army Ordnance Corps at Army Headquarters, when appointed an Officer Supervisor (of only a Branch), receives promotion to the rank of Major, irrespective of whether he is only a Warrant or junior Commissioned Officer ?

(c) Is it not a fact that men of the Indian Medical Department, both in Civil and Military, holding posts of much greater responsibility and higher status than those referred to in part (b), e.g., Civil Surgeoncies of Districts, Sub-Medical Charge of 1st Class British Military Hospitals and Managers of Medical Store Depots—do not receive any such promotion ?

(d) Will Government please state what steps they intend to take to rectify this inequity ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Yes, if recommended and considered suitable for a commission.

(b) Yes.

(c) The tenure of one of the posts mentioned by the Honourable Member does not necessarily entail the grant of the rank of Major.

(d) Government do not admit that there is any inequity. Military Officer Supervisors must be given the rank of Major to avoid the anomaly of having men of higher rank serving under them. The rank does not affect their pay. There is no similar necessity in the case of the medical appointments referred to.

NUMBERS OF HINDU AND MUSLIM MEMBERS OF THE PESHAWAR MUNICIPALITY.

288. *Mr. Abdul Haye : (a) What is the total strength of the Peshawar Municipality ? Will Government please state the number of elected and nominated members separately ?

(b) Does a system of communal representation by means of separate electorates obtain in Peshawar Municipality ? If so, when was this system introduced, and what number of seats have been allotted to Hindus and Muslims separately ?

(c) On what principle has this allotment been made ?

(d) Will Government please state the figures of the Hindu and Muslim population of Peshawar City according to the last census ?

(e) If a system of communal representation has been introduced in Peshawar Municipality, was it in accordance with the wishes of the Hindus, or was it introduced in spite of their opposition ? Were various communities consulted before the introduction of this system ?

(f) Do Government propose, in the near future, to allow this Municipality to elect its own non-official chairman ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The Municipal Committee of Peshawar consists of 20 members, all of whom are nominated.

(b) The answer to the first part is in the negative. The second part does not arise.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) Muslims 63,202 ; Hindus 12,220.

(e) Does not arise.

(f) The question has not been considered. Government will, however, invite the opinion of the Chief Commissioner, North West Frontier Province, on the suggestion.

Nawab Sir Sahibzada Abdul Qaiyum : Is it a fact that certain memberships, by election, were added to the nomination and, if so, how many ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I am referring to the present state of affairs. I understand that changes are in contemplation, but the facts as stated in the reply are those which now exist.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : What is the percentage between the Hindu and Mussalman rate payers in the Peshawar Municipality ?

(No answer was given.)

PROGRESS OF LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT IN THE NORTH WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE DURING THE LAST THREE YEARS.

289. *Mr. Abdul Haye : (a) Will Government please make a statement regarding the progress that has been made during the last three years in the matter of local self-Government in the North West Frontier Province ?

(b) Are there any boards or municipalities in this Province that at present elect their own non-official chairman ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) There has been no change either in the constitution or the administration of local bodies during the last three years. These bodies continue to make progress in their internal administration as far as funds permit.

(b) No.

GRANT OF PERMISSION TO THE DELHI MUNICIPALITY TO ELECT ITS OWN NON-OFFICIAL PRESIDENT.

290. *Mr. Abdul Haye : Have Government ever considered the desirability of permitting the Delhi Municipality to elect its own non-official President ? If so, when and with what result ?

Sir Frank Noyce : There was some correspondence between the local Administration and the Municipal Committee between 1919 and 1921, which resulted in the Municipal Committee recommending that there should be a non-official elected President, with an Executive Officer.

At that time, the Punjab Municipal Act, which is applicable to Delhi, contained no provision for the appointment of an Executive Officer, but it was hoped that the Act would shortly be amended, and pending the necessary amendment, the question was dropped. No amendment has, however, been made and nothing further has been done in regard to the matter in Delhi.

The Revd. J. C. Chatterjee : Is it a fact that the Delhi Municipality have not yet asked the Government for a non-official President ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I think it is.

DIFFERENCE IN PAY OF INDIAN, EUROPEAN AND ANGLO-INDIAN MECHANICS IN THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOPS, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

291. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Are Government aware that in matters of appointment racial distinction is still observed in the East Indian Railway, especially in the Lillooah Workshop ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the negative, will Government state whether there is any difference in the starting salaries of Indian, Anglo-Indian and European mechanics ; that is, do Indian mechanics get Rs. 60, whereas Anglo-Indian and European mechanics get Rs. 160 ? If so, why ?

(c) Is it a fact that Indian mechanics are kept on probation for years whereas Anglo-Indian and the European mechanics are confirmed within six months ? If so, why ?

(d) If the answer to part (c) be in the negative, will Government state whether the following mechanics are still on probation on Rs. 60, and if so, why :

Mr. P. B. Rau : With your permission Sir, I propose to answer questions Nos. 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297 and 298 together. I am making inquiries from the Agent, East Indian Railway, and will communicate with the Honourable Member in due course.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Which part of the question are the Government going to make inquiries about ?

Mr. P. B. Rau : All the questions from 291 to 298.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : I am asking this question with reference to question 291. There are four parts in it, (a), (b), (c) and (d). With regard to which part of this question do Government propose to make inquiries ?

Mr. P. B. Rau : Government have asked for a report on all the questions, Nos. 291 to 298.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Are Government really unaware of the difference in the starting salaries of Indian, Anglo-Indian and European mechanics ?

Mr. P. B. Rau : Yes.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Has not the position in the East Indian Railway Workshop been brought previously to their notice ?

(No answer was given.)

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask whether the Honourable Member ever reads the proceedings of this House ?

APPOINTMENT IN THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOPS OF OUTSIDERS IN SUPERSESSION OF THE CLAIMS OF MECHANICS AND APPRENTICES ALREADY ON PROBATION.

†292. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Are Government aware that in the Lillooah Workshops, outsiders are recruited ignoring the claims of mechanics and first grade bound apprentices ? If the answer be in the negative, will Government please state whether the following outsiders were appointed directly, and if so, why ?—

|                   |                            |                         |

| „ Everson ..      | Mechanic ..                | Wagon Repairing Shop.   |

(b) Is it also a fact that, since the appointment of the Establishment Officer, illiterate mistries are promoted to mechanics' grade and confirmed, ignoring the claims of mechanics, who are already on probation, and also of matriculated technically trained first grade bound apprentices ?

PROVISION OF APPOINTMENTS FOR APPRENTICES OF THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOPS.

†293. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that all the first grade bound apprentices, who complete their apprenticeship at Lillooah Workshop, are not provided with posts at the end ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 291.

(b) Do Government propose to provide the surplus first grade bound apprentices at Lucknow and Tatanagore Workshops, or similar workshops in the State Railways? If not, why not?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, then why are the apprentices who have already completed their course not provided as yet?

LIST OF INDIAN MECHANICS PROMOTED AS FOREMEN AND ASSISTANT FOREMEN ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY SINCE IT BECAME A STATE RAILWAY.

†294. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government please lay on the table the lists of Indian mechanics promoted to the Foreman's and Assistant Foreman's grade since the taking over of the East Indian Railway by the State?

ALLEGED PARTIALITY SHOWN IN APPOINTMENT OF APPRENTICES TO POSTS IN THE JAMALPORE WORKSHOP.

†295. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : Is it a fact that first grade bound apprentices, who stood very high in the final examination of the Technical School, Jamalpore, have not secured any appointment in the Workshop, whereas Messrs. T. E. De Roze and E. G. Duke, who failed, and Messrs. F. MacDonald and D. Whaley, who barely passed, have been provided in the Workshop as mechanics on Rs. 160?

FAILURE TO APPOINT FIRST GRADE BOUND APPRENTICES AS CHARGEMEN AT THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOPS.

†296. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government please state whether at Jamalpore first grade bound apprentices are appointed as Chargemen in technically trained grade, whereas at Lillooah, Indian first grade bound apprentices of the same qualification are appointed as mechanics on much lower pay? If so, why?

(b) Is it a fact that there is a circular from the Agent that first grade bound apprentices, after completion of their training, should be appointed, provided their services are required, as Chargemen in technically trained grade, the grade being from Rs. 110/115—20—250?

(c) Why are those who are qualified for Chargemen in technically trained grade not kept on probation in that grade in the Lillooah Workshop?

(d) Why is the Agent's Circular not observed at the Lillooah Workshop?

LIMITATION OF THE NUMBER OF FIRST GRADE BOUND APPRENTICES ADMITTED TO THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOP TO THE PROBABLE NUMBER OF POSTS LIKELY TO OCCUR.

†297. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government please state what percentage of qualified first grade bound apprentices, who passed out of the Lillooah Workshop in the last two years, have been provided with posts?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 291.

(b) Is it a fact that a much larger number of first grade bound apprentices are taken every year though there is no chance of providing for these men when they complete their course? If so, why?

(c) Do Government propose to limit the number of first grade bound apprentices to be taken each year to the probable vacancies that are likely to occur?

PAYMENT OF THE SUBORDINATE SUPERVISING STAFF FOR WORK ON GAZETTED HOLIDAYS.

†298. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Are Government aware that the Lillooah Workshop is not closed on some of the gazetted holidays?

(b) Will Government please state whether the supervising subordinate staff are paid overtime when they are required to work on gazetted holidays? If not, why not?

(c) Do Government propose to order payment being made to the supervising subordinate staff who have to work on holidays that are gazetted holidays?

NATURE OF ACTION TAKEN UNDER THE PUBLIC SAFETY ORDINANCE.

299. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what action has been taken under the Public Safety Ordinance re—

(i) arrest of any persons for deportation;

(ii) confiscation of any property;

(iii) deportation of any persons?

(b) Has any other action been taken under the said ordinance?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I would refer the Honourable Member to my answer to Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh's question No. 4 in this House on the 2nd September, 1929.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : That was about the arrest of persons. There are other questions about confiscation of property, etc.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I think my reply covered all action.

PREVENTION OF FLOODS.

300. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the article which appeared in the Pioneer of the 15th August, 1929 (page 4, column 3), under the heading 'Floods and their prevention'? If so, will Government be pleased to state whether any investigation has been made by the Flood Committee as a result of unstarred question No. 202 answered on the 4th September, 1928?

(b) If reply to the second part of (a) above be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to furnish the House with a copy of the Flood Committee's report on the subject?

(c) If reply to the second part of (a) above be in the negative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons in detail?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 291.

(d) Will Government be pleased to state whether any provision has been made for prevention of floods in the area referred to in question No. 202 referred to in part (a) above ; (i) if so, what amount ; (ii) if not, do Government propose to make necessary provision for the same in the next Budget, and if not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The reply to the first part is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, so far as the Government of India are aware, no flood committee has made any investigation in the area referred to in the unstarred question which has been cited by the Honourable Member.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) The Government of India have no information, as such committees are appointed by the Local Governments.

(d) Any provision thought necessary will be made in the budget of the Local Government.

Mr. B. Das : Is it not a fact that the Government of India lent the services of their Consulting Engineer to assist in the inquiry of the Orissa Flood Inquiry Committee ? The Honourable Member just now says that Government had no knowledge of what the Local Governments have done.

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Honourable Member has apparently not studied the question. My Honourable friend Maulvi Muhammad Yakub is not referring to Orissa, the land which is so dear to my Honourable friend Mr. Das, but to some part of Bihar.

Mr. B. Das : In view of the reply of the Honourable Member that the Government of India have never appointed a Committee to inquire into the causes of floods, what prevents the Honourable Member from appointing such a Committee to go into such matters ?

(Mr. President called for the next question.)

PROHIBITION OF THE ADVOCATES OF INDIAN HIGH COURTS FROM PRACTISING IN THE SUBORDINATE COURTS IN BURMA.

301. *Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : (a) Are Government aware of the fact that the Bar Council of Burma framed a rule prohibiting the advocates of other Indian High Courts from practising in the subordinate courts of Burma without obtaining express permission in every case ?

(b) Are Government aware that the Bar Council has no power to make rules with regard to subordinate courts ? If so, was the attention of the Burma Bar Council drawn to the rule being ultra vires of its powers and the necessity for cancelling the same ?

(c) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to the inquiry promised by Earl Winterton in the House of Commons regarding the rule made by the Burma Bar Council prohibiting the advocates of other Indian High Courts from practising even in the subordinate courts of that province ?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(d) Have the Government of Burma been addressed on this point ? If so, will the Government place on the table the reply received ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The Honourable Member is referred to the answer just given by me to a similar question asked by Mr. Neogy.

AMOUNT OF SPECIAL SECURITY REQUIRED FROM THE TREASURER, CHITTAGONG HEAD POST OFFICE.

302. *Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim : Has the Treasurer, Chittagong Head Post Office, been required to furnish any special security ? If so, what amount ? What is the daily average of cash and stamps handled by him ? Has he been given any special pay for the monetary responsibility for which he had to furnish the special security ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : The matter is being inquired into and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

NEWSPAPERS SUBSCRIBED FOR BY THE DEPARTMENTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

303. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many copies of the following papers are subscribed for by the Home Department of the Government of India ?

- (1) Statesman (Calcutta).
- (2) Englishman (Calcutta).
- (3) Amrita Bazar Patrika (Calcutta).
- (4) Pioneer (Allahabad).
- (5) Leader (Allahabad).
- (6) Hindustan Times (Delhi).
- (7) Daily Chronicle (Delhi).
- (8) Civil and Military Gazette (Lahore).
- (9) Tribune (Lahore).
- (10) Times of India (Bombay).
- (11) Bombay Chronicle (Bombay).
- (12) Hindu (Madras).
- (13) Madras Mail (Madras).

(b) How many copies of the above papers are subscribed for by the different Departments of the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) and (b). I have laid a statement on the table containing the information asked for.

concerned took the precautions necessary when an outbreak of an infectious disease was apprehended.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : What is the authority for the Honourable Member's statement that precautions were taken when he does not know the precise nature of the precautions taken.

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I think the Honourable Member will gather that from the context of my reply.

INELIGIBILITY OF INDIANS TO HOLD LAND IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

305. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that, under the decision of the United States Supreme Court in 1923, British Indians in that country are ineligible for citizenship, and incapable of holding lands in their possession ?

(b) If so, has any time been given for the Indian landowners in the United States to dispose of their properties ? If so, what time ?

(c) Is there any similar law in India, by which Americans are made ineligible for holding landed properties in this country ?

Sir Denys Bray : I have traversed most of the ground covered by the question in previous answers, but as the subject has stirred much public interest and misapprehension still exists about it, I propose, with your permission, Sir, to state the general position anew.

In 1923 the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that Indians are and always have been ineligible for American citizenship, seeing that it is restricted under revised Statute 2169 to persons of Caucasian and African race. The rigid application of this ruling would have involved the denaturalisation of several hundreds of naturalised Indians, and in States like California where the holding of lands by aliens even on lease is prohibited, summary eviction from the landed property they had bona fide acquired. From the outset their unhappy predicament engaged the close and continuous attention of the Government of India and His Majesty's Government. The difficulties of the case seemed almost insuperable, for the ruling that an Indian is ineligible for citizenship under the American constitution is the final ruling of the Supreme Court. At first it looked as if the full rigour of the American law would be exercised, and some 30 unfortunate Indians were made to suffer the disabilities of denaturalisation. But concurrently with various alleviations that were from time to time secured, the position became gradually established that a certificate of naturalization could not be withdrawn without a process of the Courts in each separate case—a procedure which acted in the natural course of things as a salutary brake. And now I am glad to say we seem to have reached the stage when we can safely anticipate that, in the absence of any outside stimulus,—the Honourable Member will forgive me if I here refer pointedly to the unwisdom of the tentative suggestion in his last question—no further proceedings will be taken against Indians who acquired or were thought at the time to have acquired American citizenship prior to the decision of the Supreme Court. Hard as is the case of the 30 Indians who have suffered denaturalisation, it is gratifying that immunity has thus been secured for several hundreds of their more fortunate fellows.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member whether the position now is that no Indian can own any property in the United States of America ?

Sir Denys Bray : That, Sir, is not the case except in those States in which the holding of land by aliens is prohibited.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it a fact that in most States the holding of land by aliens is prohibited, and particularly Indians ?

Sir Denys Bray : It is not "particularly Indians" in any case. If I understood the Honourable Member's question aright, he was asking whether the prohibition obtained in the majority of States. The answer, as far as I know, is in the negative.

CONSTRUCTION OF A RAILWAY FROM RUTLAM TO GALIAKOT IN PREFERENCE OF ONE FROM DOHAD TO GALIAKOT.

306. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that a traffic survey has been undertaken by the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway from Dohad to Galiakot, via Jhalod ? If so, when is the result likely to be available ?

(b) Have Government considered the question of constructing a line from Rutlam, which is a very important junction station, to Galiakot, as likely to be more remunerative, and more conducive to public convenience than one from Dohad ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). Traffic surveys are being undertaken both from Dohad and from Rutlam, to see which route will be best for the proposed railway. The results are not likely to be available till after April next.

PROVISION OF CONVENIENCES FOR PILGRIMS AT RAMNAGAR STATION.

307. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Has the attention of the Government been drawn to a letter published in the Pioneer, dated the 1st July, 1929, (page 11), under the heading "Badrinath Pilgrims and the Railway" ?

(b) Are Government aware that thousands of pilgrims returning from Badrinath gather annually at Ramnagar Railway Station (Rohilkhand-Kumaun Railway) to go to different parts of the country, between April and September every year ?

(c) Are Government aware that the passenger shed at Ramnagar Station is quite insufficient, and situated on a low level, which makes it extremely inconvenient, especially during the rains ?

(d) Are Government aware that the sanitary arrangements there are extremely bad, and the drinking water for the pilgrims, in the words of the Medical Health Officer of Naini Tal, "is far from satisfactory. The channel carrying water from the canals to the reservoir requires cleaning" ?

(e) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the following remarks made by Rai Saheb Dr. A. N. Das, District Medical Officer of Health, Naini Tal :—"There is only one train running to and from Ramnagar. The outgoing train leaves early in the morning. There were two trains running till May 31st, 1929.....The water supply at Ramnagar is very very bad. I noticed goods wagons being used on the 6th and 7th June, 1929, for herding in the passengers. This only shows the extent of the congestion at Ramnagar " ?

(f) Are Government aware that booking facilities at Ramnagar are extremely meagre ; and that there is only one booking clerk to cope with the huge rush of traffic ?

(g) What steps have been taken, or are proposed to be taken, to improve the state of affairs there ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) to (g). The Agent of the Rohilkund and Kumaon Railway has been asked for a report, on receipt of which I shall be in a position to reply to the Honourable Member's question.

OBJECT OF THE RECENT VISIT OF THE RIGHT HONOURABLE SRINIVASA SASTRI TO EAST AFRICA.

308. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government be pleased to make a statement regarding the object of the recent visit of the Rt. Hon. Srinivasa Sastri to East Africa ; and its result ?

Sir Frank Noyce : At the invitation of His Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Government of India deputed the Right Honourable V. S. Srinivasa Sastri as their representative to help the local Indian communities in East Africa to state their views to Sir Samuel Wilson, the Permanent Under Secretary of State at the Colonial Office, on matters arising out of the Hilton Young Commission's Report, and to be at the disposal of Sir Samuel Wilson if he wished to make use of him in dealing with the Indian deputations. It is premature to talk of the results of the visit, but the Right Honourable Srinivasa Sastri has promised to furnish a report shortly.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : May I know whether, prior to the Right Honourable Srinivasa Sastri's visit, the Government of India was informed that on the two most important questions upon which the Hilton Young Committee made recommendations, including the joint electorate, the Government of Great Britain had come to the conclusion that a change was not to be made, and that they communicated the same to the Government of India.

Sir Frank Noyce : I do not think that arises out of the question.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : It is not for the Honourable Member to say that it does not arise. It is for the Chair to rule it.

Sir Frank Noyce : My appeal was to the Chair.

PROVISION OF A DEPUTY SECRETARY FOR THE INDIAN CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF THE SIMON COMMISSION.

309. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the Government of India received any request from certain members of the Indian Central Committee of the Simon Commission, before their departure for England, to provide them with the services of a Deputy Secretary, or any other official, of their own community, to help them to write a separate dissenting minute, if need be ; but the request was not granted ?

(b) Have the services of Mr. Coatman been requisitioned in England for this purpose ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) No such request was made to the Government of India.

(b) No.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Has Mr. Coatman resigned ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : No.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is he coming back ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I hope, so, Sir.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I am glad.

REMODELLING OF CAWNPORE RAILWAY STATION.

310. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government please state if the work of remodelling the Cawnpore Railway Station (East Indian Railway) has been taken in hand, and when it is likely to be completed ?

(b) What is the total estimated cost of it ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The work is about half completed, and is expected to be finished in March 1931. The cost is Rs. 77 lakhs.

APPOINTMENT OF MESSRS. GRIFFITH JONES AND L. MILLER TO THE COAL DEPARTMENT OF THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY.

311. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government please state if it is a fact that Messrs. Griffith Jones and L. Miller have been appointed in the Coal or any other Department of the Bengal Nagpur Railway without any advertisement or public notice, and that thereby other colliery managers, and qualified persons have been debarred from competing for these appointments ? If so, why ?

(b) If the posts have been advertised, will Government please give the names of newspapers, and the dates on which the notice appeared ?

(c) Have Government received a representation, dated 1st August, 1929, from the Indian Mines Managers' Association on the subject ?

(d) What are the antecedents, and qualifications of the two persons appointed ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a), (b) and (d). Selection for appointments on the Bengal Nagpur Railway is entirely at the discretion of the Administration.

(c) Yes.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do Government exercise any sort of control over Company-managed railways in the matter of superior appointments ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government do not interfere with the discretion of Railway Companies in the matter of choosing their staff.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Have they got the power ? That was my point.

Mr. P. R. Rau : Not ordinarily.

BROADCASTING OF THE ACTIVITIES OF THE EMPIRE MARKETING BOARD IN INDIA.

312. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what steps they have taken to broadcast the activities of the Empire Marketing Board in this country ; and with what result ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Empire Marketing Board is directly or indirectly connected with Imperial preference in matters of industry, trade and commerce ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) The Imperial Council of Agricultural Research has been requested to circulate to Local Governments and other bodies in India a memorandum explaining the constitution and functions of the Empire Marketing Board, the conditions on which grants are authorised from the Empire Marketing Board's Fund, and the procedure to be followed in submitting applications for grants.

(b) The answer to the second question is in the negative. Grants from the Empire Marketing Fund are made independently of any considerations of the fiscal policies adopted by Empire Governments and of the question whether such policies include or exclude Imperial preference in any form.

CHANGE OF POLICY IN THE APPOINTMENT OF COMMISSIONERS OF INCOME-TAX.

313. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) With reference to the reply to my starred question No. 832 of the 27th February, 1929, admitting that, according to the sanction of the Secretary of State, Commissioners of Income-tax were to be recruited entirely from the Income-tax Departmental Officers, but that Indian Civil Service Officers are going to be taken permanently as Commissioners of Income-tax now, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for this change of policy ?

(b) Is the officer who scrutinises the report of the work of Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax with a view to ascertain their fitness for the post of Commissioner, himself an Indian Civil Service officer ?

(c) Is it a fact that, in making appointments of Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax, the Public Service Commission have to be consulted ; but in making appointments of Commissioners of Income-tax, no reference to the Public Service Commission is made ? If so, what is the reason for this discrimination ?

(d) Is the post of Member of the Central Board of Revenue reserved for the Indian Civil Service ? If so, why ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) I think the Honourable Member is under some misapprehension. What was said, in reply to his question of the 27th February, 1929, was that it had been recognised that, for some years, at all events, it would be necessary for members of the Indian Civil Service to be Commissioners of Income-tax, but that it was expected that eventually officers of the Department would be found fit for promotion to these posts, and that actually two substantive posts and one acting post, that is to say, three posts out of a total of eight Commissioners, were then filled by promoted departmental officers. There has been no change of policy.

(b) The officer who scrutinises the work of the Assistant Commissioner is, in the first place, the Commissioner, who may or may not be an Indian Civil Service Officer. As already stated, at present 3 out of 8 Commissioners are not I. C. S. Officers. The recommendations of the Commissioner are then considered by the members of the Central Board of Revenue and finally by the Finance Member, whose approval to all appointments of this kind is necessary.

(c) When appointments are made to a Central Service Class I (to which posts of Assistant Commissioners may be said to belong) by promotion from a provincial or a subordinate service the Public Service Commission is called upon to advise on the qualifications of the candidates recommended by the Local Government or the head of the Department. Such advice is not, however, considered to be necessary when appointment to that service is made by selection from another Central Service class I or an all-India Service (whether I. C. S. or not) which has at least the same status. Nor is their advice considered necessary when departmental promotion is made from the rank of Assistant Commissioner to that of Commissioner.

(d) No.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I take it, Sir, that the order of the Secretary of State in this connection is confidential ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I am not aware, Sir, of any particular order of the Secretary of State. I have informed the Honourable Member of the practice on which we are acting now and the position which that practice has produced.

AMENDMENT OF THE INCOME-TAX LAW AND REMOVAL OF THE HEADQUARTERS OF THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT IN BIHAR AND ORISSA TO PATNA.

314. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the President, and Secretary of the Bihar and Orissa Chamber of Commerce and certain other gentlemen met Mr. Gaskell, Member, Central Board of Revenue, in Patna in July last ; and, among other matters, represented to him (i) the desirability of removing the headquarters of the Income-tax Department from Ranchi to Patna ; (ii) the difficulties in obtaining copies of orders passed ; and (iii) disposal of revision petitions, which are some of the points I raised in my speech in this House on the 28th March last, and in my question on the 31st August, 1927 ?

(b) Are Government aware that there is dissatisfaction in the Province of Bihar and Orissa with regard to the above points ; and the administration of Income-tax law in many matters ? And do Government propose to effect necessary improvements by amending the law, and taking such other steps as may be desirable ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) The reply is in the affirmative.

(b) The Government of India are not aware that there is general dissatisfaction at the manner in which the Income-tax law is administered in Bihar and Orissa, or regarding the three points specially mentioned by the Honourable Member in the first part of his question. I propose, however, to deal with each of these points in detail.

As to the first point, as explained to the Honourable Member last year, the Commissioner's headquarters were located at Ranchi because, if they had been located at Patna, it would have been necessary to build an office and a residence for the Commissioner. As the Government do not believe that any appreciable inconvenience is caused to the public, they do not feel that they would be justified in incurring the expenditure involved in the change.

As to the second point, the question of securing the more expeditious grant of copies of orders passed is at present engaging the attention of the Commissioner and the necessary steps will be taken to this end. Moreover, it has been proposed, in clause 13 of the Bill which was introduced in this House on 2nd September, 1929, to amend the Income-tax Act so that the time taken in obtaining copies shall be excluded in calculating certain periods of limitation.

As regards the third point, although, as stated in the reply to the Honourable Member last year, an assessee who has presented an application in revision has no legal right to be heard in person or by pleader, the Commissioner has arranged to give a hearing in as many cases as possible.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Sir, have Government taken legal opinion on the point that the assessee has got no legal right to be heard in person or by pleader ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I am not aware of any particular reference on that point for legal opinion. Government have taken that view of the interpretation of the law.

INTERCEPTION OF MONEY AND LETTERS SENT TO MR. BRADLEY AND OTHER ACCUSED IN THE MEERUT CONSPIRACY CASE.

315. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that about £80 or so were sent from England to Mr. Bradley, an accused in the Meerut Conspiracy trial, and that this money has been withheld from the accused by the Government of India ?

(b) Is it a fact that letters or other articles intended for some of the accused are being intercepted under orders of Government ? If so, why is a handicap being placed in the way of their defence ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Under the orders of the Government of India two telegraphic money orders, each for Rs. 527-8-0, addressed to Mr. Bradley from England and received in India some days before the arrests in the Meerut case were made, were detained by the Government of Bombay under section 26 of the Post Office Act. On a representation by Mr. Bradley that the money was required for purposes of his defence the Government of India directed that, subject to the orders of the special Magistrate, Meerut, the money should be paid to him. Under the orders of the Magistrate payment has been made to Mr. Bradley.

(b) Communications received and sent by the accused are subject to examination by the Superintendent of the Jail, in accordance with the rules prescribed in the United Provinces Jail Manual. The Government of India issued instructions some time ago that no correspondence relating to the defence should be detained unless it contained objectionable matter, in which case the accused should be informed.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Sir, are Government aware that so late as on the 30th August, Mr. Bradley complained in the Court that he had not received books sent to him from London for being used in his defence, and that those books were found in the prosecution office ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : If the Honourable Member will put down a question, I shall ascertain the facts.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Member as to the time that elapsed between the receipt of these telegraphic money orders and the handing over of the money to Mr. Bradley ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I have no precise information on that point, but if the Honourable Member desires me to inquire into the matter, I would ask him to put down the question and I shall be glad to inquire.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member see to it that no restrictions are placed on the receipt of books, documents, etc., required by the accused in their defence ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I am perfectly prepared to assure the Honourable Member that every proper facility will be given to the defence.

†316—323.

METHOD OF RECRUITMENT OF THE BENGAL PILOT SERVICE.

324. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the Government of Bengal advertise in the Press for candidates for entrance into the Bengal Pilot Service ?

(b) (1) Is it a fact that about six men have been appointed to the Bengal Pilot Service since July, 1928 ?

(2) If the answer to part (b) (1) is in the affirmative, how many of them were recruited in India ?

(3) Did the Government of Bengal advertise for these appointments before making these selections ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) (1) Yes. Seven were actually appointed.

(2) One.

(3) It was originally intended to recruit three leadsmen apprentices during the year 1928-29, and advertisements for these vacancies were issued by the Government of Bengal. Only one vacancy could, however, be filled locally. After the issue of the advertisement, it was found that, in order to keep the cadre of the Bengal Pilot Service up to strength, four more appointments would have to be made during 1928-29. As only one vacancy out of the three advertised for a few months before this decision was reached could be filled locally, it was not considered necessary to advertise again in India for the additional appointments. The High Commissioner for India was therefore requested to fill the appointments by recruitment in England.

†These questions were withdrawn by the questioner.

APPOINTMENT OF MR. T. R. E. BOILEAU TO THE BENGAL PILOT SERVICE.

325. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : With reference to the reply communicated to me by the Secretary, Commerce Department, to my question No. 1353, dated 2nd April, 1929, will Government be pleased to state if they have come to a final decision with regard to the selection and appointment of Mr. T. R. E. Boileau to the Bengal Pilot Service ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : As the Honourable Member has already been informed, Mr. T. R. E. Boileau could not be admitted to the Bengal Pilot Service as he has a defect in vision which is likely to increase with age.

NAMES OF MEN APPOINTED TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA SECRETARIATS WITHOUT EXAMINATION BY THE STAFF SELECTION BOARD AND THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

326. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of unpassed candidates that have been provided in the Government of India Secretariats and their attached offices in permanent vacancies since 1920 ?

(b) Will they be pleased to state the names of such unpassed candidates and the reasons in each case for which they were exempted from the examination of the late Staff Selection Board or the present Public Service Commission ?

(c) Is it a fact that men are recruited directly sometimes for technical reasons ? Will Government be pleased to state whether they advertise such posts in the newspapers and ask for applications from those having that particular technical knowledge ?

(d) If the answer to part (c) is in the negative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for not advertising such posts ?

(e) Is it a fact that relations of Superintendents, Assistant Secretaries and the like are generally provided in the Government of India Departments by this back door ?

(f) Are there any such cases in the Commerce Department, Foreign and Political Department, Legislative Department, Army Department and Army Headquarters ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) and (b). The collection of this information will entail an amount of labour which would be totally disproportionate to the results and Government do not propose to undertake it. I may state for the Honourable Member's information that definite orders were issued in December last in regard to recruitment to the Secretariat and its attached offices which require that, subject to exceptions in special cases, which will require the concurrence of the Public Service Commission, all recruitment to permanent posts except by promotion shall be effected as the result of examinations to be conducted by the Public Service Commission.

(c) and (d). The information is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

(e) and (f). I have no information, but from the reply given to (a) and (b) it will be clear that relations of officials employed in the Departments can now only enter the offices under the Government of India by qualifying at an examination conducted by the Public Service Commission.

INCONVENIENT TIMINGS OF TRAINS BETWEEN HISSAR AND BHIWANI.

327. *Mr. Abdul Haye : (a) Is it a fact that recently there have been complaints that the train timings between Hissar and Bhiwani are very inconvenient ?

(b) Is it a fact that no train leaves for Bhiwani from Hissar between 10 and 22 hours ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Bhiwani Municipality and the Bhiwani Bar have made representations to the Railway Department regarding the inconvenience felt by the public ?

(d) Will Government please state why no action has been taken on these representations to remove a public grievance ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No such complaints have reached Government.

(b) Yes.

(c) I have not been able to trace any such complaints having been received in the Railway Department.

(d) Does not arise.

DELAY IN DELIVERY OF LETTERS AT BAGRASI.

328. *Mr. Abdul Haye : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the complaint published in the Hindustan Times, dated 21st August, 1929 (page 17) under the heading "Postal Delay" ?

(b) Is it a fact that letters from Delhi and Aligarh take three days to reach Bagrasi (a town in the Bulandshahr District) ? If so, will Government please state why letters are not delivered promptly and within a reasonable time at Bagrasi ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The Postmaster General concerned has been asked to supply the necessary information, which will be communicated on receipt to the Honourable Member.

GRANT TO RAILWAY GUARDS OF THE POWER OF CERTIFICATION.

329. *Mr. Abdul Haye : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the letter published in the Hindustan Times of the 21st August, 1929 (page 17) under the heading "A Passenger's Grievance" ?

L6CPB(LA)

c2

(b) Will Government please state when this power of certification was taken away from the railway guards ?

(c) In view of the hardship and inconvenience felt by the public do Government propose to confer these powers again on railway guards ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the reply given by Mr. Parsons to question No. 133 asked by Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin on the 19th of August, 1926, on this same subject.

TEST EMPLOYED BY THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY SELECTION BOARD FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF SUB-ASSISTANT SURGEONS ON THAT RAILWAY.

330. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Are Government aware that the North Western Railway Selection Board assembled at Lahore in June last to select candidates for the posts of sub-assistant surgeons to be employed on the Railway ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state who were the members of that Selection Board ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state if the method of selection employed by the Board was merely to put formal questions as to the whereabouts of the candidates, their relationship, if any, with any railway employee, and such like questions ?

(d) If the answer to part (c) be in the negative, will Government be pleased to state what was the test employed and the considerations that weighed in selecting the candidates ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to place on the table the papers in connection with that selection, together with the questions put and the answers given by the respective candidates ?

(f) Will Government be pleased to state if they propose to have a non-official element associated with the official members of the Railway Selection Boards ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) Dr. Cairns, Chief Medical and Health Officer.

Dr. Chatterji, Deputy Chief Medical and Health Officer, and Mr. Muirhead, Deputy Agent.

(c) No.

(d) The candidates' general qualifications, education and practical experience were considered by the Selection Board.

(e) Government regret they are unable to comply with the request.

(f) Government see no advantage in changing the present system.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Government be pleased to say why they refuse to place those papers on the table ? Is it a fact that, as is stated in the question, only formal questions have been put to the candidates ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I do not think that it is the practice of any Selection Board to keep a record of the questions put and the answers given by the candidates.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is the Honourable Member aware that recently the Selection Boards issued advertisements that hundreds of candidates appeared for the examination, but the net result was that only those candidates were selected who were the sons of the employees in the railways, or who were the sons of retired railway servants ?

Mr. President : Mr. Lalchand Navalrai.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is the Honourable Member aware that in the Secretariat of the Government of India the ministerial officers or clerks are appointed by competitive examination ?

(Mr. President called on Mr. Lalchand Navalrai to put the next question.)

WAITING LISTS FOR APPOINTMENTS MAINTAINED BY THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY AND THE DIVISIONAL SUPERINTENDENTS OF KARACHI AND QUETTA.

331. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Are Government aware that the Office of the Agent, North Western Railway, and the Divisional Offices maintain waiting lists for filling appointments occurring in the interval between the sittings of the Selection Boards ?

(b) If so, are appointments made strictly in order of merit from these waiting lists ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to place on the table the waiting lists for the years 1928 and 1929 maintained in the office of the Agent, North Western Railway and the Divisional Superintendents of Karachi and Quetta ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). The information has been already supplied to the Honourable Member in Railway Department letter No. 7645-E., dated the 12th February, 1929, a copy of which is in the Library of the House.

(c) Government regret they can see no advantage in doing so.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member advise the Railway Board to be more careful about the procedure and acts of the Selection Boards in view of the fact that these Selection Boards are not overboard ?

(No answer was given.)

COST INCURRED IN ADVERTISING INDIAN RAILWAYS IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES AND NUMBER OF INDIANS EMPLOYED IN THE WORK.

332. *Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Will Government be pleased to state when the system of advertising the Indian Railways was started ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the cost incurred over advertisement in foreign countries from the time the work has been started (the expenditure incurred for each year should be given separately) ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state (i) the countries in which the advertisements are published and (ii) the number of passengers, on an average, coming to this country from those countries?

(d) Are there any foreign countries which follow such a propaganda for their railways in India? If so, what are the names of those countries?

(e) How many men are employed upon this work of advertising in foreign countries? How many of them are Indians? What is the maximum salary given to these employees?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Several of the principal Indian Railways have been advertising for many years in foreign countries to which, I presume, the Honourable Member's question refers. The year in which this practice originated is not readily traceable.

(b) Since an advertising campaign was organised by the Indian Railways' Publicity Bureau in 1927-28, the cost incurred has been :—

|                 | Rs.    |
|-----------------|--------|
| 1927-28 .. .. . | 24,000 |
| 1928-29 .. .. . | 29,000 |

(c) (i) and (d). Railways in England, France, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, Norway, Holland, Canada, U. S. A., Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Iraq exhibit posters at railway stations in India, and in return exhibit without charge an equivalent number of Indian Railway posters in their own countries. Some of these countries also spend large sums of money in advertising in newspapers in this country.

(ii) No information is available on this point.

(e) At present this work is concentrated in the publicity bureaux at London and New York. The superior employees there are three, of whom none is an Indian. The two posts in London carry a salary of £800 and £500 per annum respectively and the post in New York 6,000 dollars per annum.

AMOUNT OF EXPENDITURE INCURRED ANNUALLY ON TIME-TABLES, PAMPHLETS, ETC., PUBLISHED IN THE VERNACULARS OF THE DIFFERENT PROVINCES.

333. *Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) What is the amount of expenditure incurred every year on the time tables, pamphlets, handbills, etc., published by the several railways in the vernaculars of the province in which the different railways are run?

(b) What arrangements are made for the convenience of the passengers who do not know English to know the exact timings of the railways?

(c) Are the railway time-tables available in Urdu and Hindi, the well-recognised scripts of the country, and are they sold at the Railway book-stalls?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The information asked for is not readily available and I doubt whether the labour involved in the compilation thereof would yield an adequate return.

(b) All railways exhibit vernacular time-tables at their stations and most railways publish vernacular time-tables for their own systems which can be bought at the principal stations.

(c) Vernacular railway time-tables can not, for obvious reasons, all be issued in Urdu and Hindi. The vernacular languages in which they are printed must vary on different railways. For instance the Great Indian Peninsula Railway issue them in Hindi and Mahratti and the Eastern Bengal Railway in Bengali. I understand that vernacular time-tables issued by railways are ordinarily sold at the railway bookstalls of the railways who issue them.

RULES FOR THE EXPORT AT SPECIAL RATES OF GRAIN TO STATIONS IN FAMINE STRICKEN AREAS.

334. *Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Do the railways give special rates for the transport of grain from different centres to the famine-stricken areas? If so, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of those rules?

(b) Are the same special rates available for grain merchants exporting grain to famine-stricken areas as are available to the export trade to the different sea ports in the country?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state the names of the railway stations which were declared to be famine-stricken localities and to which such special rates for the transport of fodder were available?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No special rates are quoted by railways for transport of grain to famine-stricken areas.

(b) Certain low rates are quoted for certain commodities, including grain, to various Indian ports for reasons explained in the reply given by Mr. Parsons on the 25th August 1927 to the Honourable Member's question No. 336. These rates are ordinarily lower than the rates available for internal movement of grain.

(c) When special rates for the transport of fodder are allowed, it is at the instance of Local Governments who arrange with the Railway Administrations concerned to pay the difference between the railway freight and the rate the Local Government desires the consignee to pay. It is not ordinarily necessary for the Government of India to be approached in the matter. They have therefore no detailed information regarding the cases in which special rates have been quoted in the past.

APPOINTMENT PERMANENTLY OF ASSISTANT STATION MASTERS ENGAGED BY THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY IN 1926.

335. *Mr. Mukhtar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the North Western Railway advertised for assistant station masters in 1926? If so, was it also announced that these men would be temporarily appointed?

(b) Is it a fact that a number of persons who joined, in pursuance of the advertisement, came from other railways?

(c) Is it a fact that all these men were assured that they would be made permanent very soon, and in the case of a few of them, the officers entered into an agreement that they would be made permanent within a period of three months to one year?

(d) How many persons were then employed as assistant station masters, and how many of them still remain temporary ?

(e) How long are they to continue their services as temporary men ?

(f) Has any representation been received from these men ? If so, what action has been taken upon it ?

(g) Do Government propose discharging these temporary hands when local men are available ? If not, what is the difficulty in making these men permanent ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am obtaining the information which the Honourable Member asks for and will communicate with him on receipt.

PROTECTION OF THE INTERESTS OF MINORITY COMMUNITIES IN CONNECTION WITH EXAMINATIONS TO BE HELD FOR MINISTERIAL OFFICERS BY THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

336. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that the Public Service Commission is going to hold a qualifying examination for ministerial selection in the near future ?

(b) If so, are they going to make provision for the protection of the interest of minority communities ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) The Public Service Commission are going to hold a qualifying examination shortly for departmental candidates, the object being to give these candidates an opportunity of qualifying for promotion.

(b) There will be no new recruitment as a result of the examination, and the question of communal recruitment does not therefore arise.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Will the Honourable Member please state whether the Public Service Commission examinations for ministerial appointments are held in Delhi only ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I must ask for notice of that question.

OBSTACLES TO OBTAINING EMPLOYMENT PLACED IN THE WAY OF MUSLIM CLERKS IN THE INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT.

337. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that non-Muslim clerks employed in the Indian Stores Department, who get offers of appointment in other Departments, are relieved on the same day, while every obstacle is placed in the way of Muslim clerks who by chance get offers of appointment from elsewhere ?

(b) How many unpassed clerks are working in the Indian Stores Department, and what is the number of unpassed Muslims ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) No.

(b) The total number of persons employed in the clerical establishment of the Office of the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department, who have not passed the examination of either the late Staff Selection Board or the Public Service Commission, is 59, of whom 12 are Muslims.

If the Honourable Member is referring to the men appointed as a purely temporary measure in vacancies for which the Public Service Commission have been unable to nominate passed candidates, the figures are eleven and three.

PAY OF CERTAIN CLERKS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

338. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government please state whether the Simla Allowance was consolidated in the scales of pay of the clerical establishment of the Government of India Secretariat and other attached offices where it was admissible ?

(b) Why was it not consolidated in the pay in respect of such clerks of the Office of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs who have been denied the "concessions" sanctioned for the permanent location of that office in Delhi ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The Simla allowances were taken into consideration in fixing the new scales of pay of the clerical establishment of the offices referred to.

(b) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given in this House on the 26th February, 1929, by Mr. H. A. Sams to the latter portion of part (b) of Mr. S. C. Mitra's starred question No. 826.

CONDITIONS FOR THE GRANT OF CERTAIN CONCESSIONS TO CLERKS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS AT DELHI.

339. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government please state the reasons for attaching such conditions to the sanctioning of the "concessions" on the permanent location of the Office of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs at Delhi as debarred only a negligible percentage of clerks in that office from drawing these "concessions" ?

(b) Were such conditions prescribed in the case of any other Government Office ?

(c) Are Government aware—

(1) that men who were serving in the Director General's Simla Office for a decade, but not recruited in Simla, drew these "concessions" ;

(2) that some men who were recruited in Simla, but subsequently transferred to the Calcutta Office, drew these "concessions" ;

(3) that clerks who were transferred to the Director General's Office at Delhi at their own request drew these "concessions" ;

(4) that a clerk who was not even permanent in the Director General's Office and has since been transferred to some other Department of the Government got these "concessions" ; and

(5) that some clerks of the Wireless Branch, who have never even worked in Delhi Office, are in receipt of these "concessions" as well as Simla Allowances ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The "concessions" referred to were intended to compensate the staff concerned for the hardships and extra expense imposed upon them as a direct result of the transfer of the Director General's office headquarters from Calcutta to Delhi. The conditions attached to the grant of the concessions in the orders sanctioning the same were designed to prevent, as far as possible, the grant of those concessions to officials who were unaffected by the transfer.

(b) Yes.

(c) The answer to item No. (3) is in the negative, and the answer to the rest of the items is in the affirmative. The concessions were given in all cases in which they were permissible under the conditions laid down by Government.

LOSS OF PAPERS DEALING WITH THE GRANT OF CONCESSIONS TO CERTAIN CLERKS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

340. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that the papers dealing with the grant of "concessions" to the 19 clerks of the Office of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs have been lost for the third time? If so, have any steps been taken against the subordinates responsible?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative. The latter part of the question does not arise.

GRANT OF SPECIAL RATES OF PAY AND ALLOWANCE TO A LADY CLERK IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

341. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that one lady typist was employed in the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs' Office some time in April 1923 on Rs. 50 per mensem in the grade of Rs. 50—140, plus Rs. 50 per mensem Simla Allowance; that is, total Rs. 100 per mensem?

(b) Is it a fact that her pay has since been increased and she is now in receipt of a pay of Rs. 150 plus allowance at family rate, Rs. 65, that is, total Rs. 215 per mensem, whereas the male clerks, who are four to five years senior to her, are not in receipt of even Rs. 150 per mensem in all?

(c) If the replies to parts (a) and (b) are in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state reasons justifying the admissibility of Simla Allowance to the lady typist, in addition to her higher rate of pay, and to furnish the House with a copy of the Government order under which lady typists are allowed to draw Simla Allowance?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) The answer to the first part is in the affirmative and to the second part in the negative.

(c) Lady clerks are entitled to the Simla allowances under the same conditions as male clerks, and Government orders sanctioning such allowances are contained in the Simla Allowances Code, a copy of which is in the Library of the House.

SELECTION OF A CANDIDATE FOR THE POST OF SECOND CHEMICAL ASSISTANT IN THE CENTRAL STATIONERY OFFICE, CALCUTTA.

342. *Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the post of a Second Chemical Assistant in the grade of Rs. 150—300 has lately been sanctioned in the Central Stationery Office, Calcutta, under the Controller of Printing and Stationery, India, and if so, whether advertisements were given in the local newspapers inviting applicants for the post?

(b) Are Government aware that a second class M.Sc. has been provisionally appointed to this post in preference to many candidates holding first class M.Sc. degrees?

(c) Are Government aware that the present nominee is the Assistant Secretary of the Sir Gurudas Institute at Narculdanga, of which the present Store Examiner of the Calcutta Central Stationery Office is the Secretary?

(d) Is it a fact that the said appointment has been provisionally made, and if so, do Government propose to make an inquiry and appoint the best qualified candidate on expiry of the provisional period?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) to (d). The post of Second Chemical Assistant is a non-gazetted one, and the selection of individuals for the post rests with the Controller of Printing and Stationery. Government see no reason to interfere with the discretion vested in the Controller or to call for details of the points raised in the Honourable Member's question.

ADMISSION OF INDIANS AS ASSISTANT SURGEONS IN THE INDIAN MEDICAL DEPARTMENT AND TO CERTAIN COLLEGES IN CALCUTTA AND MADRAS.

343. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that there are two Medical Colleges at Calcutta and Madras to train assistant surgeons for the Indian Medical Department—financed by the Government of India—to which only Europeans and members of the Domiciled Community alone are admitted?

(b) Is it a fact that Anglo-Indians are qualified for all Indian services on the ground that they are Indians?

(c) Is it a fact that the assistant surgeon branch of the Indian Medical Department is reserved for Europeans and Anglo-Indians?

(d) Do Government propose to abolish the distinction and permit Indians to join the said Colleges and services?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Pupils are trained for the Indian Medical Department at Government expense in the Colleges mentioned.

(b) and (c). Yes, Sir.

(d) There is nothing to prevent Indians from joining the College, but Government do not propose to alter the composition of the service.

Sardar Kartar Singh : Has the attention of Government been drawn to the prospectus for the assistant surgeon's branch of the Indian Medical Department issued by the Office of the Director General, Indian Medical Service, and does not rule 2 provide that candidates must be Europeans or members of the Domiciled Community, and that they should be between the ages of 17 and 20 at the time of admission ? Are Indians not debarred from joining this College ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I am afraid I could not catch the Honourable Member's question.

Sardar Kartar Singh : I would refer the Honourable Member to the prospectus issued by the Office of the Director General of the Indian Medical Service, 1929 Edition, Rule 2. That rule provides that candidates must be Europeans or members of the Domiciled Community and that they should be between the ages of 17 and 20 at the time of admission.

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I think the Honourable Member is under a misapprehension. The medical colleges in Madras and Calcutta take a very large number of Indians. There are however military sections in those colleges, which are a comparatively small part of the colleges and which are reserved for students studying for the Indian Medical Department. It is only these particular military sections of the colleges that are reserved for Europeans and members of the Domiciled Community.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Is it not a fact that these medical students are the rowdiest lot, and that they have been creating a lot of disturbance in the hostel ?

Mr. K. C. Neogy : May I ask the Honourable Member to state the reason for such reservation ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : That question has often been asked before and the answer is this. It is because the duties of the assistant surgeons' branch of the Indian Medical Department are confined entirely to the medical care of the British troops.

Mr. Siddheswar Prasad Sinha : Cannot Indian assistant surgeons do that work ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : That is a matter of opinion.

Mr. K. Ahmed : What is the reason for allowing the Anglo-Indians and the Europeans alone to look after the health of the British troops ? Why not allow Indian medical officers also to look after the health of the British troops ?

(No answer was given.)

Mr. K. Ahmed : Does the Honourable Member realise that rule 2 of the prospectus quoted by my Honourable friend Sardar Kartar Singh provides only for admission of candidates belonging to the European or the Domiciled Community ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I cannot follow the Honourable Member.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Should not the Honourable Member in charge of the military department in the Assembly show to an Honourable Member of the Assembly the courtesy of answering his questions ? I expect an answer from the Honourable Member.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member has not understood the question.

Mr. K. Ahmed : I will put the question again, Sir. Will the Honourable Member please say why Indians are not allowed admission into these classes of the medical colleges financed by the Government of India out of the money paid by Indian tax-payers ? Why should Europeans and members of the Domiciled Community alone be allowed to get admission and not Indians ? Cannot Indians look after the health of the military as much as the European doctors ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I have already explained that Indians are admitted into these colleges.

Mr. K. Ahmed : I am asking the reason why Indians are debarred while members of the European community and members of the Domiciled Community represented by my Honourable friend over there (Lieutenant-Colonel Gidney) are allowed to study medical science in those sections of the medical college only to look after the health of the military. Why should not Indians also be trained along with others and allowed to look after the health of the military ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : Indians are permitted to study in the medical colleges and they do look after the health of Indian troops.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask whether it is laid down in the rules and regulations that European troops should be looked after only by European medical officers ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I am not aware of any such regulations.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Why is the care of the British troops then confined to Europeans and Anglo-Indians ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : That, Sir, is the established policy that has been in force for many years.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : Is it not a fact that the terms of the contract between the Indian Government and the War Office contain a provision that British troops in India will be provided with the same medical attention as they would receive in England ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I should like notice of that question.

Mr. K. Ahmed : Surely this question can be answered without notice.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I know if the policy has been laid down by the Secretary of State or by the Government of India ?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : I should like to have notice of that question also.

Sardar Kartar Singh : Is it not a fact that a candidate who seeks admission has to fill in a form and obtain a certificate from the Magistrate that one of his parents is a European ? Is it not contained in Appendix F of this prospectus issued by the Director General of Medical Service ? (Hear, hear.)

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : The Honourable Member must be aware of the conditions as well as myself seeing that he has the regulations in his hand.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Please answer the question.

Sardar Kartar Singh : The Honourable Member can see the prospectus now. It is contained in Appendix F.

APPOINTMENT OF MR. GREEN AS ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE ROYAL COMMISSION ON LABOUR.

344. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. Green of the Education Department has been appointed as the Assistant Secretary of the Royal Commission on Labour ?

(b) If so, will Government be pleased to state why the Assistant Secretaries or the Superintendents of the Industries Department were not appointed ?

(c) Is it a fact that Mr. Green was given preference only because he is an Anglo-Indian ?

(d) Is it a fact that he was appointed as Secretary of the Hartog Committee ? If so, is it a fact that he did not appoint a single Bengali on that Committee ? Were there any Bengali applicants for any of the posts in that Committee ?

(e) Is it a fact that he was appointed a few years back as Secretary of the Indian Mercantile Marine Committee ?

(f) Is it a fact that there were certain charges of maladjustment of accounts in that Committee ? If so, who was responsible ? Was the Secretary in any way responsible for that ? If so, how much responsibility was his ? Will Government be pleased to state why Mr. Green has again been appointed as Assistant Secretary of this Royal Commission ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Yes.

(b) Because it was thought desirable to appoint to the post an officer with previous experience of work on Committees.

(c) No.

(d) He was appointed as Assistant Secretary to the Hartog Committee. The clerical staff had already been appointed when he assumed charge of his duties. One Bengali reporter worked with the Committee.

(e) Yes, he was Secretary of the Indian Mercantile Marine Committee in 1923-24.

(f) The only case of irregularity brought to the notice of Government was that the members of the Committee, its Secretary and the clerical staff, drew daily allowance on the days of arrival at, and departure from, a place of halt. This allowance, though permissible under the Supplementary Rules, was not admissible to the Committee, as its allowances had been fixed ad hoc. The allowance was drawn by Mr. Green and also by the members of the Committee, in good faith and with the approval of the President, who did not understand that the Supplementary Rule in question did not apply to the Committee. In the case of Mr. Green, the excess amount drawn, viz., Rs. 47-8-9, was recovered from him. This irregularity does not amount to a maladjustment of accounts and the latter parts of the question do not arise.

REPORTS OF THE TARIFF BOARD ON (i) CHEMICALS, AND (ii) MAGNESIUM CHLORIDE.

345. *Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they have received the Reports of the Tariff Board on (i) chemicals, and (ii) magnesium chloride ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state when they expect to publish these Reports with their decisions on the same ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) The Government will publish these Reports and their decisions thereon as soon as possible, but they regret that they are unable at present to fix a definite date.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : How long is it since the Government received the Report ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I think the Report reached the Government at the end of June.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : What is the usual period that the Government take to arrive at a decision on the Reports of the Tariff Board ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I could not say that offhand. I quite admit that normally I should have hoped to publish the Report and the decision of the Government thereon before the Assembly entered on its Sessions. I think in ordinary cases it would have been possible.

SHORT NOTICE QUESTION AND ANSWER.

PUBLICATION OF SIR SAMUEL WILSON'S REPORT ON EAST AFRICA.

* Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) Will Government be pleased to inquire when Sir Samuel Wilson's Report regarding his mission to East Africa will be published ? Do Government propose to represent to the higher authorities that the main features of the Report should be published simultaneously in London and India ?

(b) Are Government prepared to urge on His Majesty's Government the necessity of publishing the Report sufficiently early to enable it to be discussed by the Legislative Assembly during this Session ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Government have already done so.

(b) His Majesty's Government have already intimated to the Government of India that no decision upon the subject will be arrived at before the Government of India are consulted. A representation has been made to the Secretary of State to the effect that Sir Samuel Wilson's Report should be published at such a time as will enable the Government of India to consult the Standing Emigration Committee and permit of the Legislative Assembly discussing the whole matter of the Hilton Young Commission's Report and Sir Samuel Wilson's Report before the Government of India formulate their views upon the subject and submit them to the Secretary of State.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Does that mean that the Report will be published before the end of this Session ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I am not in a position to say.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Did the Government of India urge that the Report should be published in time to enable its discussion by the Assembly during this Session ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I am not in a position to give the Honourable Member any further information than that contained in the answer to his question.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : May I ask the Honourable Member what the Government of India propose to do if the Report is published after the Assembly is adjourned at Simla ?

Sir Frank Noyce : The Government of India propose to consult the Assembly on the first possible opportunity.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Does that mean that no further action will be taken on the Report till after the Delhi Session starts ?

Sir Frank Noyce : That is the inference to be drawn from the reply I have already given.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : Have the Government of India ascertained whether His Majesty's Government are likely to wait for that period ?

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : Do the Government of India intend that the two points upon which His Majesty's Government have already arrived at a decision shall be open for discussion by this House ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I am not aware that His Majesty's Government have arrived at a final decision on any points.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : May I know exactly what kind of decision it is, whether it is final, or intermediate or ad interim ?

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is the Honourable Member aware that Sir Samuel Wilson communicated to the Indian deputation, on behalf of the late Secretary of State for the Colonies and His Majesty's Government, that the question could not be reopened ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I must ask for notice of that question.

Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas : If the Report is published at the end of the current month and it be necessary for the Government of India to arrive at a decision before the Delhi Session begins, do the Government of India propose to consult the Standing Emigration Committee between the 1st October and the beginning of the Delhi Session ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I venture to think, Sir, that that is a hypothetical question. The Government of India cannot decide on their course of action until they know definitely when Sir Samuel Wilson's Report is going to be published.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : I desire to know what is the present intention of the Government of India. Do the Government of India propose to let this House consider these two important questions, upon which it was stated that His Majesty's Government had already arrived at a decision ?

Sir Frank Noyce : To the best of my knowledge they have received no definite information that any final decision on any point has yet been arrived at by His Majesty's Government. The Honourable Member, as far as I am aware, is basing his information on newspaper reports.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : No, Sir. Are the Government of India aware, or are they not, that Sir Samuel Wilson did tell the Indian deputation, when they waited upon him in East Africa, that these two questions have already been decided ?

Sir Frank Noyce : The Government of India are aware of the newspaper reports, but what Sir Samuel Wilson told the East African deputation is not the same as official information to the Government of India. Sir Samuel Wilson was talking to the deputation and not to the Government of India.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : Did Sir Samuel Wilson speak with the authority of His Majesty's Government in East Africa when he said that these two questions have been settled by His Majesty's Government ?

Sir Frank Noyce : That is not a question which it is for me to answer.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : I want to know whether the Honourable Member is aware that he made that statement in East Africa ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Yes, Sir.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : Are the Government of India in a position to state whether that statement is correct or not ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I must ask for notice of that question.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I know whether Mr. Sastri, who was sent to East Africa on behalf of the Government of India, made a report on that matter to the Government of India or not ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Mr. Sastri has submitted a report but I am not in a position to state what its contents are.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Did the Government of India, after seeing the newspaper reports or receiving information from Indians in East Africa regarding the announcement made by Sir Samuel Wilson, communicate with His Majesty's Government on the subject ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I must ask for notice of that question.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask whether, before Mr. Sastri went to East Africa, the Government of India represented to the Secretary of State for the colonies not to decide against the reopening of the question of communal representation ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I must ask for notice of that question.

Mr. A. Rangaswami Iyengar : Am I to understand that Government have an absolutely blank mind as to what happened ?

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Are the Government of India aware that Sir Samuel Wilson did make this statement at all ?

Sir Frank Noyce : I have already said, Sir, that they are aware of that.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : What have the Government of India then done to clear up the position since the statement made by Sir Samuel Wilson ?

Sir Frank Noyce : As I have said before, I must ask for notice.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Government ought to be able to answer these questions without any notice.

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

ATTENDANCE ON GAZETTED HOLIDAYS OF THE STAFF OF CERTAIN OFFICES IN CALCUTTA UNDER THE CONTROLLER OF PRINTING AND STATIONERY.

157. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of local and gazetted holidays on which the following offices in Calcutta under the Controller of Printing and Stationery were (i) entirely closed, (ii) partially closed, and (iii) not at all closed, during 1926 to 1928 :

Government of India Press,

Central Stationery Office,

Central Forms Store, and Central Publication Branch ?

(b) Is it a fact that the system of granting compensator leave for attendance on holidays is followed in some of the offices noted above ?

(c) If the reply to part (b) above be in the affirmative, do Government propose to pass orders that whenever the observance of any local or gazetted holidays would not be possible in any of the offices mentioned in part (a) above for urgency of work, (i) attendance of clerks should be on a roster and (ii) the clerks required to attend will get compensatory leave afterwards ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : An inquiry is being made and the result will be communicated to the Honourable Member in due course.

ATTENDANCE AND REMUNERATION OF SHED-FOREMEN AND WEIGH-CLERKS AT THE HOWRAH GOODS SHEDS ON SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS.

158. Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the services of the weigh-clerks at the Howrah goods sheds were requisitioned on Sundays and holidays on small extra remuneration ?

(b) Is it a fact that their attendance on Sundays and holidays is necessary as on these days they can supervise the proper loading of the goods weighed by them previous to these holidays ?

(c) Is it a fact that they have been relieved of such attendance on holidays ?

(d) If the replies to part (b) above be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the shed-foremen and the assistant shed-foremen are continuing to attend on such holidays and are drawing heavy remuneration ? If so, why ?

(e) Is it a fact that these officers have no duties on such holidays unless the goods accumulated are weighed and loaded by the weigh-clerks ?

(f) If the reply to part (e) above be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to inquire and to state—

(i) under what circumstances the shed-foremen and the assistant shed-foremen are attending office on Sundays and holidays ;

(ii) into the nature of duty performed by them on such holidays ; and

(iii) whether the attendance of weigh-clerks is not necessary on such holidays to clear away the goods accumulated on the days previous to Sundays and holidays ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Information has been called for from the Agent. On receipt of the reply, I shall communicate with the Honourable Member.

NUMBER AND RANK OF OFFICERS EMPLOYED IN THE FINANCE DEPARTMENT, GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, IN CERTAIN YEARS.

159. Mr. K. C. Neogy : Will Government be pleased to make a statement showing the number of officers, together with their ranks, employed in the Finance Department of the Government of India, in the following years, respectively :

1910-11, 1919-20, 1922-23 and 1928-29 ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : I place on the table a statement showing the information desired by the Honourable Member.

AMOUNT OF WORK DONE IN BRANCH POST OFFICES AND AMOUNT OF ALLOWANCES PAID TO EXTRA DEPARTMENTAL AGENTS IN THE DISTRICT OF NOAKHALI.

160. Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the amount of the different kinds of work such as registration, savings bank, insurance, etc., done by the branch post offices in the district of Noakhali in any particular month—say January, 1929—and also the amount of work done by the extra-departmental branches of the same district in the same month, with a statement of the monthly allowances granted to the extra-departmental Agents of those post offices ?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : The information required is not available in my office. It will be collected and a statement will be sent to the Honourable Member in due course.

TYPES AND SOURCE OF SUPPLY OF LOCOMOTIVES USED ON RAILWAYS IN INDIA.

161. Pandit Nilakantha Das : (1) How many types of engines are used on Indian Railways :

(i) Broad gauge, (ii) metre gauge, (iii) narrow gauge on

(a) State and (b) Company-managed railways ?

(2) What are the advantages of different types ?

(3) How many specifications are there of engines, stating description, if necessary, for each specification ?

(4) If there is more than one type for one single specification, what is the justification for the difference in types ?

(5) Are there different types of engines for the same kinds of service, e.g., mail on broad gauge ? If so, is there any difference in make and price ? If so, please state the same with illustrations ?

(6) What are the lives of different types of engines, in actual run in miles ? And what is the average maintenance cost of the different types ?

(7) From what countries are the different types of engines purchased ? Please state the names of countries and the types ?

(8) Are any of the types of engines manufactured in India ? If so, where ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (1) Government are not aware of the exact number of types of engines on the broad, metre and narrow gauges of the State-worked and Company-managed railways in India. It is probable they number well over 100.

(2) and (4). Varying types have been introduced to deal with different classes of traffic on the several gauges under varying conditions as regards strength of line and bridges, severity of curves and grades. At different periods new types have been introduced as the improvements in design made possible the use of more efficient machines.

(3) Generally speaking all engines are built to one general specification. This is, however, modified to suit the requirements of particular types.

(5) Yes. New types of engines differing from old types are used on the same kinds of service and sometimes heavy engines are used on hill sections to haul the same train that is hauled by light types on more level sections. The price of locomotives varies generally with the weight and the level of world prices when tenders are invited.

(6) The number of miles run by a locomotive before it is condemned varies within wide limits, and depends on the conditions under which it works, the class of service in which employed and the desirability of re-boiling when its original boiler requires replacement. The maintenance cost of the different types of locomotives is not available.

(7) Indian locomotives have been purchased from Great Britain, America and Switzerland. Government have no information as to the number of types obtained from each of the countries mentioned above.

(8) The Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway manufacture a few locomotives at Ajmer.

TYPES AND SOURCE OF SUPPLY OF COACHING AND GOODS STOCK ON INDIAN RAILWAYS.

162. Pandit Nilakantha Das : 1. What are the types of coaching and goods stock in use in (a) Company and (b) State-managed railways on the (i) broad gauge, (ii) metre gauge and (iii) narrow gauge ?

2. What are the specifications of coaching and goods stocks or their parts ?

3. What are the sources of supply of the different parts of the coaching and goods stock ? Which of those parts are entirely manufactured and supplied from an indigenous source ?

4. Which are the parts imported ? What are their prices ? What is the country of their origin ?

5. Are tenders called for, and if so, from where ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : 1. There is a very large number of types of coaching and goods stock in use on the railways in India, and it would be impossible for me to describe them in detail in an answer to a question in this House. Broadly speaking, the types of goods stock most commonly used were formerly constructed to the Indian Railway Conference Association designs ; during the last few years what are known as the Indian Railway Standards designs have been evolved.

2. The specifications for coaching underframes and goods stock are technical documents obtainable on demand by interested manufacturers. There is, however, a general specification for carriage underframes and wagons which has been placed in the Library of the House for general information.

3. to 5. The sources of supply of the different parts of coaching and goods stock cannot be stated because there are several hundred components concerned, and owing to economic considerations the source of supply on one occasion may not be that on another occasion. However in all contracts entered into by the Railway Board it is laid down that the contractor shall not, without the consent of the buyer, import any but specified components, and before importing these he shall first give Indian manufacturers an opportunity to tender. It is an essential condition of the contracts for coaching and goods stock that a substantial part of the process of manufacture shall be done in India. During the last few years tenders for the bulk of requirements have been invited in India only.

DESCRIPTION AND PRICES OF AXLES USED ON ROLLING STOCK ON INDIAN RAILWAYS.

163. Pandit Nilakantha Das : How many kinds of axles are used in the rolling stock on railways in India ? Please indicate their load capacity on broad, metre and narrow gauge railways with quantities of each kind and price in each case ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I understand there are many kinds of axles used on the rolling stock on Indian railways ; but I have not been able to ascertain the exact number. Practically all are of steel. Their load capacity varies and is calculable on a basis of journal diameter, wheel spacing, and similar factors. It would therefore be impracticable to collect the information asked for by the Honourable Member regarding the quantities of each kind in use on the various railways and different gauges. As far as prices are concerned, these vary from time to time according to size of axle, world prices of steel and similar commercial considerations.

DESCRIPTION AND PRICES OF WHEELS USED ON ROLLING STOCK ON INDIAN RAILWAYS, AND RESULT OF ATTEMPTS TO MANUFACTURE THESE AND OTHER PARTS IN INDIA.

164. Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) How many kinds of wheels are used in the rolling stock on broad, metre and narrow gauge railways in India ? Please indicate quantity and price in each case ?

(b) Are axles, wheels and tyres manufactured in this country ? If not, what attempts have been made to manufacture them in India and what are the effects of those attempts ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) On a rough computation, the number of wheels and axles in use on Indian broad, metre and narrow gauge railways exceeds 330,000. These are of many different types and sizes and have been purchased during the last 40 years. I am sure my Honourable friend will realise that it is impossible for Government to answer this question.

(b) So far as Government are aware, axles, wheels and tyres are not manufactured by commercial firms in India.

Government have no information on the second part of the question.

LOSS OF LETTERS BY AIR MAIL POSTED AT KARACHI.

165. Mr. E. L. Price : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether the attention of Government has been drawn to complaints of the non-delivery at destination of letters by air-mail posted at Karachi ?

(b) Are Government aware that the suspicion is that the missing letters were stolen for the sake of the stamps ?

(c) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the statement made by the Director of Posts and Telegraphs, Sind and Baluchistan Circle, published in the Daily Gazette of 21st August that the loss of a few, though regrettable, can hardly be considered a very serious matter?

(d) What measures for re-establishing postal security are proposed?

Mr. P. G. Rogers : (a) Government have seen some complaints in the Press.

(b) Yes, but Government are not satisfied that the suspicion is in all cases well-founded or that the thefts can be ascribed entirely to post office employees.

(c) Government do not concur unreservedly in the Director's statement.

(d) It would be inexpedient to disclose the precautionary measures which suggest themselves.

ALLEGED SPREADING OF CHOLERA BY STATE RAILWAYS.

166. Mr. E. L. Price : (a) Are Government aware that the present cholera epidemic started in the United Provinces and spread, chiefly along the railway routes, through the Punjab into Sind, thus ravaging three Provinces?

(b) Are any measures for the prevention of the spread of such scourges by State Railways contemplated?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Cholera extended from the endemic areas of Bihar and Orissa and Bengal to the United Provinces in March and April last. A further extension into the Punjab occurred in April and May, but cholera in this province did not assume a severe epidemic form. In July the disease extended into Sind, probably by extension from the above mentioned provinces, and it has now assumed a severe epidemic form in Larkana and Sukkur. The extension of cholera through the Punjab into Sind was probably along the railway routes.

(b) A scheme for the medical inspection of pilgrims returning from big fairs by railway with a view to check the spread of infectious diseases is at present under the consideration of Government.

ELECTION OF THE STANDING COMMITTEE ON ROADS.

Mr. President : I have to inform the Assembly that the following Members have been elected to serve on the Standing Committee on Roads :

1. Mr. E. F. Sykes.
2. Kumar Ganganand Sinha.
3. Mr. M. R. Jayakar.
4. Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim.
5. Mr. Muhammad Ismail Khan.
6. Diwan Chaman Lal.

ELECTION OF THE STANDING COMMITTEE FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE.

Mr. President : I have to inform the Assembly that originally thirteen nominations were received for the panel for the Standing Committee for the Department of Commerce, out of which four candidates namely, Sardar Bahadur Sardar Jawahar Singh, Mr. J. Y. Phillip, Mr. G. L. Winterbotham and Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda have since withdrawn their candidature. As the number of remaining candidates is equal to the number required for the panel, no election is necessary. I therefore declare the following persons to be duly elected :

1. Mr. H. P. Mody.
2. Mr. Sarabhai Nemchand Haji.
3. Mr. Fazal Ibrahim Rahimtulla.
4. Mr. R. S. Sarma.
5. Sir Darcy Lindsay.
6. Mr. Mohammad Yamin Khan.
7. Mr. B. Das.
8. Lala Rang Behari Lal.
9. Mr. Muhammad Rafique.

THE TRANSFER OF PROPERTY (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter (Law Member) : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill further to amend the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, for certain purposes, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration.

The Select Committee on the Transfer of Property Bill generally approved of the Bill, but made certain alterations. Some of them are decided improvements upon the original Bill and some are of a drafting nature. There is one point on which the Select Committee did not come to any final decision, but left the matter for this House to decide, and that is, whether transfer of properties of the value of Rs. 100 and under should be compulsorily registrable or not. That is a matter of principle which has been left to this House to decide. Under the existing law, transfers of properties, of the value of Rs. 100 or under are not required to be effected by registered instruments. The proposal in the Bill was that all transfers, irrespective of the value, should be effected by registered instruments. That is a matter which is now before the House to decide.

There are two amendments, one dealing with sales and the other with mortgages on this point; and speaking on behalf of Government, I am prepared to accept those amendments, that properties of the value of Rs. 100 and under should not be required to be transferred by registered instruments.

The principal changes which the Select Committee have reported are the following :

In the Bill it was provided that registration should be notice in all cases. A difficulty arises in certain cases. A property may be situate in one district, but the registration may take place in another district. It would happen in this way : supposing a transfer covers more than one property and these properties are situate in different districts ; but if the document be one, it would be registered in one district : that is, it would not be registered in the district in which one of the properties is situate. In such a case it would be difficult for a transferee, by a search in the registration office, to know of that particular transfer till the registration office in that particular district gets notice of this registration from the district in which it was registered. In order to meet that situation, the Select Committee has made suitable provision.

The second point is notice to an agent. The Bill provided that notice to an agent would be notice to the principal, and the Select Committee made it clear that the notice should be of a fact which is material to the course of business in which the agent is engaged, and the agent must not have fraudulently concealed the fact from his principal. That is the ordinary law, but the Select Committee felt that instead of leaving it to case law on the subject, for the guidance of the courts, it was much better that the law should be clearly laid down in the Act itself.

The next important change made by the Select Committee is with regard to transfers by and to corporations. The expression in the existing Transfer of Property Act, as well as in the Bill, is "a living person"—transfers by or to living persons. There have been cases in which the question has arisen whether living person should include a corporation. Although courts have held that the Transfer of Property Act does apply to corporations, still, the Select Committee thought it better to make the point clear that corporations should be governed by the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act.

The next point in which the Select Committee suggested a change is that a definition of mortgages by deposit of title-deeds should be inserted in the body of the Act and that has been done.

The Select Committee also considered the question whether a lease for a period of less than a year should be effected by a registered instrument. The existing law is that a lease for a period of a year or under need not be effected by a registered instrument. In the Bill the period was reduced to a month, but the Select Committee restored the provision which is in the existing Act.

An important change was made with regard to relief against forfeiture of a lease for causes other than non-payment of rent. In that case the Bill provided that cases of forfeiture for causes other than non-payment of rent, if remediable, should be remedied within thirty days ; but the Select Committee thought that no hard and fast time limit should be prescribed, but that it should be left to the circumstances of each case ; and instead of thirty days they suggested that "reasonable time" should be substituted.

These are the principal changes which have been suggested by the Select Committee ; otherwise they generally approved of the other clauses in the Bill. Sir, I move.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar (Madura and Ramnad cum Tinnevely : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, in the first place I owe an apology to the House. I had been elected by this House to serve on the Select Committee ; but unfortunately during the sittings of the Select Committee in Simla I was practically disabled from attending.

This is an Act which is nearly fifty years old and it is a difficult Act. Only practitioners in active practice and judges who have to deal with this branch of law can appreciate the magnitude of the difficulty of this Act, and during the last half a century when this Act was in force, time after time defects have been noticed by the judges, and all those defects have been sought to be removed by the Select Committee ; and here and there there has been considerable room for diversity of opinion and different interpretations of several of the sections of this Act. Wherever sections gave room to conflicts of view, all the conflicts have been set at rest by this draft Bill, and by the Select Committee's Report on the Bill ; and in setting at rest those conflicts, the saner view has always been uniformly adopted. Also there have been doubts existing in the interpretation of some of the sections, and wherever these doubts existed, the Select Committee have uniformly striven to clarify the provisions of this Bill, and the aim that was operating in the mind of the Special Committee that sat to draft this Bill and also of the Select Committee was simplicity and certainty in the law and also the correct interpretation of the law as well as clarifying the existing state of the law. Sir, the aim is very laudable and it has been achieved more or less by a ruthless recasting of several of the sections of the existing Act ; and in cases where it was found necessary that some sections ought to be eliminated, they were also eliminated ; and certain other sections have been substituted in the new Bill for the old sections. In this way the attempt has been successfully made by the Select Committee to set at rest completely all the conflicting decisions and to present to this House now a Bill which is at once simple and reasonable and at the same time workable. The House is also aware that a special Committee of distinguished lawyers was asked to sit and scrutinize the existing Act and to draft this Bill. They have done their work ; and the Select Committee also did not fail, as I see from several of the provisions of the Bill, to exercise their own independent judgment thereon ; and though, as a matter of fact, the Special Committee sat and drafted this Bill, it did not disable the Select Committee from exercising their own judgment, and I see that in three notable instances the Select Committee have not accepted the recommendations of the Special Committee. In the first place, I am glad that the Select Committee was not prepared to accept the provisions contained in clause 54 of the Bill as originally introduced, which sought to provide that a lease of immoveable property for a term exceeding one month only must be made by a registered instrument. The Select Committee recognise the consensus of opinion upon this point, and they add :

"The consensus of opinion is opposed to that proposal, and we ourselves consider that it would lead to inconvenience and hardship out of proportion to the benefit to be expected from it."

That, Sir, is the first instance in which the Select Committee did not think it fit to adopt the recommendations of the Special Committee.

The next instance, Sir, is found in the present form of clause 12 of this Bill. Here also the Select Committee thought that the clause as drafted by the special Committee would unnecessarily restrict the operation of the principle of "the estate feeding the title". They would not recognise that kind of operation of the principle, and therefore they recognised that a limitation of the right of a transferee to an interest which may would happen in this way : supposing a transfer covers more than one property and these properties are situate in different districts ; but if the document be one, it would be registered in one district : that is, it would not be registered in the district in which one of the properties is situate. In such a case it would be difficult for a transferee, by a search in the registration office, to know of that particular transfer till the registration office in that particular district gets notice of this registration from the district in which it was registered. In order to meet that situation, the Select Committee has made suitable provision.

The second point is notice to an agent. The Bill provided that notice to an agent would be notice to the principal, and the Select Committee made it clear that the notice should be of a fact which is material to the course of business in which the agent is engaged, and the agent must not have fraudulently concealed the fact from his principal. That is the ordinary law, but the Select Committee felt that instead of leaving it to case law on the subject, for the guidance of the courts, it was much better that the law should be clearly laid down in the Act itself.

The next important change made by the Select Committee is with regard to transfers by and to corporations. The expression in the existing Transfer of Property Act, as well as in the Bill, is "a living person"—transfers by or to living persons. There have been cases in which the question has arisen whether living person should include a corporation. Although courts have held that the Transfer of Property Act does apply to corporations, still, the Select Committee thought it better to make the point clear that corporations should be governed by the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act.

The next point in which the Select Committee suggested a change is that a definition of mortgages by deposit of title-deeds should be inserted in the body of the Act and that has been done.

An important change was made with regard to relief against forfeiture of a lease for causes other than non-payment of rent. In that case the Bill provided that cases of forfeiture for causes other than non-payment of rent, if remediable, should be remedied within thirty days ; but the Select Committee thought that no hard and fast time limit should be prescribed, but that it should be left to the circumstances of each case ; and instead of thirty days they suggested that "reasonable time" should be substituted.

These are the principal changes which have been suggested by the Select Committee ; otherwise they generally approved of the other clauses in the Bill. Sir, I move.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar (Madura and Ramnad cum Tinnevely : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, in the first place I owe an apology to the House. I had been elected by this House to serve on the Select Committee ; but unfortunately during the sittings of the Select Committee in Simla I was practically disabled from attending.

This is an Act which is nearly fifty years old and it is a difficult Act. Only practitioners in active practice and judges who have to deal with this branch of law can appreciate the magnitude of the difficulty of this Act, and during the last half a century when this Act was in force, time after time defects have been noticed by the judges, and all those defects have been sought to be removed by the Select Committee ; and here and there there has been considerable room for diversity of opinion and different interpretations of several of the sections of this Act. Wherever sections gave room to conflicts of view, all the conflicts have been set at rest by this draft Bill, and by the Select Committee's Report on the Bill ; and in setting at rest those conflicts, the saner view has always been uniformly adopted. Also there have been doubts existing in the interpretation of some of the sections, and wherever these doubts existed, the Select Committee have uniformly striven to clarify the provisions of this Bill, and the aim that was operating in the mind of the Special Committee that sat to draft this Bill and also of the Select Committee was simplicity and certainty in the law and also the correct interpretation of the law as well as clarifying the existing state of the law. Sir, the aim is very laudable and it has been achieved more or less by a ruthless recasting of several of the sections of the existing Act ; and in cases where it was found necessary that some sections ought to be eliminated, they were also eliminated ; and certain other sections have been substituted in the new Bill for the old sections. In this way the attempt has been successfully made by the Select Committee to set at rest completely all the conflicting decisions and to present to this House now a Bill which is at once simple and reasonable and at the same time workable. The House is also aware that a special Committee of distinguished lawyers was asked to sit and scrutinize the existing Act and to draft this Bill. They have done their work ; and the Select Committee also did not fail, as I see from several of the provisions of the Bill, to exercise their own independent judgment thereon ; and though, as a matter of fact, the Special Committee sat and drafted this Bill, it did not disable the Select Committee from exercising their own judgment, and I see that in three notable instances the Select Committee have not accepted the recommendations of the Special Committee. In the first place, I am glad that the Select Committee was not prepared to accept the provisions contained in clause 54 of the Bill as originally introduced, which sought to provide that a lease of immoveable property for a term exceeding one month only must be made by a registered instrument. The Select Committee recognise the consensus of opinion upon this point, and they add :

"The consensus of opinion is opposed to that proposal, and we ourselves consider that it would lead to inconvenience and hardship out of proportion to the benefit to be expected from it."

That, Sir, is the first instance in which the Select Committee did not think it fit to adopt the recommendations of the Special Committee.

The next instance, Sir, is found in the present form of clause 12 of this Bill. Here also the Select Committee thought that the clause as drafted by the special Committee would unnecessarily restrict the operation of the principle of "the estate feeding the title". They would not recognise that kind of operation of the principle, and therefore they recognised that a limitation of the right of a transferee to an interest which may accrue to his transferor up to the date of a decree in a suit instituted to enforce that right might work injustice, and they did not feel justified in adopting the decision reported in 18 Madras, 492 (I. L. R.).

Sir, the third instance which I find, broadly put, in which the Select Committee did not choose to accept the recommendations of the Special Committee is this. In the Supplementary (Amendment) Bill they say :

“ We are not convinced by the reasons given by the Special Committee for deciding not to insert a provision giving the Court power to extend the time for the payment of the amount due from a mortgagor after a preliminary decree for the sale of the mortgaged property has been passed. We think this is a power which the Court may well be trusted to exercise in proper cases and on proper terms ”.

They have, therefore, inserted a new sub-rule (2) in this rule on the lines of sub-clause (ii) of clause (c) in sub-rule (1) of rule 2. They say that the “ abuse of such a provision is prevented by providing that the extension of time cannot be granted after the final decree for sale has been actually passed ”.

Sir, it is refreshing to see, therefore, that the Select Committee have chosen to exercise their independent judgment and have adopted these changes in the provisions drafted by the Special Committee. Sir, every human endeavour is bound to be imperfect, and I do not for a moment submit to the House that the Bill as it has emerged from the Select Committee is perfect in itself. No doubt, there are bound to be some defects here and there ; but, generally, looking at the small number of amendments which have been tabled so far, it might be taken as positive proof that the Bill is acceptable to the House. I may also submit for the consideration of the House that, so far as certain salient features of the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act are concerned, they have been submitted to a close scrutiny by the Select Committee, and the form in which they have emerged from the Select Committee is very commendable. I may, for instance, refer to a few clauses of the Bill. In clause 3 the Select Committee want to delete the words “ Hindu ” or “ Buddhist ”. I am aware, Sir, that my friend Mr. Aney has tabled an amendment for the retention of the old clause. Sir, that amendment may have the merit in retaining this.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member might deal with the amendment later.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : It is only by the way, Sir, that I mention this. The present clause of the Bill has the merit of establishing by law, certainty of title. No doubt, the opposite rule might also be commendable ; for, though it might be apparently superfluous, it only recognises the statutory principle to which the Government stand committed.

In the next place, Sir, the Honourable the Mover of this motion said that it has been enacted in this Bill that registration is notice, and he also mentioned that the rigidity of this rule is sought to be relaxed by Explanation I to clause 4. Though no doubt there is some relaxation in the rigidity of this rule, I, coming from Madras, must mention to the House that Madras has always been in direct opposition to the view that has been adopted in this Bill ; but I am not unconscious of the fact that the present provision of the Bill has the merit of being very simple. But, Sir, I must also mention this, not because it is the Madras view, but because the fact is that India is a continent of villages. We have got about seven lakhs of villages in India, and I would ask the House to consider how many registration offices there are operating in this country. There are numerous villages which have not the benefit of registration offices working there, and if registration is going to be notice, it would certainly work as a very great hardship upon the vast masses of this country residing in the villages where there are no registration offices. If therefore registration is to be taken as notice, it would enhance, I submit to the House, the hardships which the masses of this country are already put to owing to the absence of registration offices in very many of the villages.

Then, Sir, I would refer to clause 10 of the Bill. Sir, it is very refreshing to find that the law of perpetuity, which gave room to considerable conflict of decisions in the various High Courts, has been set at rest ; because three new sections in place of the old section, have been inserted, namely 16, 17 and 18. I am glad also to observe that the present provisions are made to rest on a very intelligent basis and it is equally refreshing to refer to section 18. It enacts a wholesome proviso as regards transfer in perpetuity for the benefit of the public.

Sir, the third salient feature in this Bill is the provision relating to the proposal to give statutory recognition to the principle of part performance. Practitioners in active practice alone can appreciate the contentions that centered round the phraseology of “ contentious proceeding ” and “ active prosecution ” as obtained in the old Act. It has given room to a multitude of conflicts of rulings on the subject, due to the interpretation of these two words. Now, Sir, the rule has been very much simplified, and the adoption of the change suggested by the Select Committee would simplify matters in future.

Then, Sir, the next clause of the Bill which requires attention is clause 15 relating to section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act with regard to fraudulent transfers. Sir, there is one clause in the Bill which actually avoids multiplicity of proceedings, and it is this :

“ A suit instituted by a creditor (which term includes a decree-holder whether he has or has not applied for execution of his decree) to avoid a transfer on the ground that it has been made with intent to defeat or delay the creditors of the transferor shall be instituted on behalf of, or for the benefit of, all the creditors ”.

That at one stroke avoids the multiplicity of proceedings which would otherwise have entailed in such cases.

Then, Sir, the most important feature in this Bill is the provision relating to part performance. For a long time past, the Courts have recognised the operation of part performance in contracts, and it is for the first time that we have got statutory recognition of the principle in this Bill ; and it is a healthy move in the right direction.

Then, Sir, as regards clauses 17 and 21 taken together, they relate to transfers of property of a value less than Rs. 100. The Honourable the Mover has already signified the assent of the Government to the retention of the old law as it stands now, about which I have tabled two amendments, and it is for the House to consider whether that retention is healthy or not, and it is for the House to consider when I speak on the amendments that I have I shall dilate upon that point when I speak on the amendments that I have given notice of. It is a very correct attitude that, though the Select Committee themselves stood for a compulsory registration of all transfers of property, yet they thought it necessary to leave it to the sense of the House. They have made special mention of that fact in the Report saying that they would abide by the decision of the House.

So far as the law of mortgage is concerned, which practically occupies the bulk of this Bill, that has been completely overhauled so to say ; there have been enacted new sections and there has been substitution of new sections for old sections also. One salient feature regarding the change in the mortgage law is this, that the rights of the mortgagor, though they were somewhat tardily recognised in the existing Act, have been cleared and amplified by certain special provisions of this Bill. I refer especially to clauses 24, 26, 31, 36 and 38 of the Bill. These provisions of the Bill, I submit, have totally amplified the rights of the mortgagor. This is a healthy move and a move in the right direction. In conclusion I would say that the Act has been very much simplified and the Bill as it is presented to the House today is full of sensible suggestions, and I would therefore support the motion that this Bill be taken into consideration.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That the Bill further to amend the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, for certain purposes, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration ”.

The motion was adopted.

Clause 2 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President : The question is that clause 3 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. M. S. Aney (Berar Representative) : I rise to move the amendment which stands in my name, that clause 3 be omitted and consequential amendments be made. Before making a few observations in support of this amendment, I should like to express my appreciation of the work done by the Special Committee which was entrusted with the task of revising the statute. That has been done with an ability and thoroughness which is bound to elicit the admiration of Honourable Members of this House, and if I am now moving an amendment, it is not because I do not realise the force of the arguments which have been advanced by the members of the Special Committee and the members of the Select Committee, but because I feel that there are certain other weighty arguments which should be considered by this House before coming to a definite decision on this question.

This change which the present Bill seeks to make by the omission of the words “ Hindu ” and “ Buddhist ” from the saving clause amounts to a repudiation of the policy to which the Government of India have stood pledged from the time they assumed administration of this country. The ground on which it is defended is this, that Chapter II contains no provisions whatsoever which are in any way in conflict with the well-known rules of Hindu law. That being the case, they say that the retention of the words “ Hindu ” and “ Buddhist ” is unnecessary, that those words are superfluous, and that as the statute is now under revision, those superfluous words should be taken out. That is the simple ground on which this change has been supported, and it has now been carried out in the Bill which is before the House.

As regards this point, I should like to urge that it is not a sufficiently strong ground for the removal of those words. If the retention of those words has caused any kind of inconvenience in the administration of the Act or in the administration of those provisions which clause 2 of the Act sought to control, I can understand the propriety of the proposed change ; but no such inconvenience is being felt or is even alleged to have been caused ; and I wish to add that even the progressive development of that law is not in any way hampered by the retention of the saving clause. I therefore submit to the House that it should not lightly strike out certain words which undoubtedly embody an enunciation and reaffirmation of the principles to which the Government of India stand pledged. That is my first ground for urging that clause 3 of the Bill should be deleted.

This saving clause which was inserted in the Act of 1882 was inserted with the full knowledge, as my Honourable friend the Law Member will admit, that the provisions of Chapter II of the Transfer of Property Act did not in any way conflict with the rules of Hindu law. If so, then we have to see what was the reason for inserting that clause. When this Act was passed in 1882 by the old Imperial Legislative Council, it was known to those who made this law that the provisions of Chapter II of the Transfer of Property Act were not in any way in conflict or inconsistent with the well-known rules of Hindu law, and yet, in spite of that, they inserted that clause. It is therefore evident that there was something more in their minds in having that saving clause put on the Statute-book. The question is therefore reduced to this. Whether the necessity which they felt in those days for retaining that clause in spite of this knowledge still exists today or not is the simple question which this House has to decide today. I will now refer to the debate which took place on this subject and to the speech which the Honourable Mr. Stokes, who apparently was in charge of the Bill, made on this point :

“ The Honourable Mr. Stokes also moved that the further and final Reports of the Select Committee on the Bill to define and amend the law relating to the Transfer of Property be taken into consideration. He said that only six of the amendments described in those Reports were of sufficient importance to require mention in this Council. The Committee had declared that nothing in Chapter II should be deemed to affect any rule of Hindu, Muhammadan or Buddhist law. It did not, in his opinion, affect any such rule, otherwise than by putting Natives as regards their power to make settlements on unborn persons, on the same footing as Europeans. But it laid down, in accordance with the decisions of the Courts, a rule against perpetuities, and two of the Native Members who much disliked this rule, and who thought that judge-made law was more likely to be altered than statutory law, press the Committee to exempt their personal law from this chapter. They had also saved the rules of Hindu and Buddhist law from the provisions of the chapter on gifts save only that which required, in the case of a gift of land, writing, registration and attestation. The rule that a Hindu father might, in case of necessity, resume gifts made to his son would thus remain unaffected.”

My object in reading this extract is this, that those who were responsible for bringing this law on the Statute-book were fully aware of the fact that, in incorporating certain provisions in Chapter II, they were not doing anything inconsistent with the rule of Hindu law, and still they wanted this saving clause to be retained and the reason was this. In the matter of the rights of the citizens in disposing of their property, they wanted to assure the people that Government did not intend to do anything that would conflict with the fundamental principles of the personal law by which the people were to be governed. The question is whether that assurance needs to be reaffirmed by the Members of this House today. That is the sole point. If they feel that no such assurance is needed and that they would want to have “ their affairs between parties and parties ” to use the language of the British Statute; settled in all affairs only by the statute law made by this House, then there is certainly no necessity for a reaffirmation of that principle. I quite appreciate that position. The House has to make up its mind. I am sorry I could not agree to this position in the Select Committee or even now. The matter is one which affects the question of pledges given to the people of this country, and it is for the representatives of the people assembled in this House in their representative capacity to say whether they stand in need of their personal law. If they want their affairs to be settled by statute law made in this House, they have every right to say so. My Honourable friend Mr. Jayakar said the other day that this House has got that right. I thought the proper place to come to a decision of this question was this House and that is the reason why I wrote a note of dissent to the Report which was otherwise unanimous. By striking this discordant note, I thought an opportunity would be afforded to this House to have a full dress debate on this question, which is a fundamental question in that it not only affects the Transfer of Property Act but may affect the future policy of the Government of India in dealing with many other spheres of our social and religious life. I feel that the question should be decided once for all. It is for that reason that I have brought this particular amendment. In spite of a friendly suggestion from my friend the Law Member a few minutes ago, I had to tell him, with some reluctance, that I am keen on bringing this question to a decision, and if necessary even pressing it to a division.

There is another thing. If we look to the opinions that have been received, I find that two important Local Governments have expressed themselves against the omission of the words "Hindu and Buddhist law". I do not want to take up the time of the House by reading them. The Government of Bombay have expressed themselves against it, so also the Government of the Central Provinces. Out of the important Bar Associations, the Western India Pleaders' Association, about which my Honourable friends Mr. Jayakar and Mr. Jinnah might have a better knowledge than I can lay claim to, has clearly expressed the view that the omission of the words "Hindu and Buddhist law" should not be made. So also certain Bar Associations in the Central Provinces, particularly the Akola Bar Association, has expressed itself unreservedly against it. Besides I find that some Bar Associations such as that at Lucknow have said that, if you are going to omit Hindu and Buddhist law, then it will be better to omit the word "Muhammadan" also. I do not want the word "Muhammadan" to be omitted. That is not my point. The House ought to grasp the precise significance of the retention of the word "Muhammadan", and I thought that it would be able to grasp it better if it would thoroughly discuss the point and then come to a decision on this important question. If we pass this clause as it is, it will be for the first time that the law of the land is going to be made applicable differently to different communities. We will be sanctioning a differential or discriminative application of an important Act like the Transfer of Property Act. Once that differential application is recognised by this House, we have to see what is likely to come out of it. A uniform law applicable to all the communities in this country should be the sole aim and object of this House, and for the sake of that uniformity we must be ready even to put up with some small inconveniences. I have shown, that during the last 40 years that this Act has been in force, the existence of this saving clause has not in any way fettered the discretion of the courts in properly and equitably interpreting the sections of Chapter II. No difficulty in the administration of those provisions has been found. On the other hand, if we allow this thing to be passed today, we virtually lay down a precedent to this effect that in the case of Muhammadans they will be governed by their personal law, but in the case of Hindus, they will not be governed by their personal law so far as the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act are concerned. That is a new situation which is being created; and I therefore urge that even the Government Benches should seriously consider whether they should be a party to the inauguration of a policy like that for the first time now.

Then, there is another thing which is of importance in my opinion. When this Bill was under consideration in the Select Committee, at that very time, I tried to consult the opinions of two very representative bodies of Hindus, because I felt that, when you are going to deal with the personal law of a community as a whole, the opinions of the representative bodies of that community ought to be known and duly considered before you come to any decision. That being my feeling, I tried to ascertain the opinions of two very representative bodies of the Hindu community. One was the Hindu Mahasabha, of which my Honourable friend, Dr. Moonje, is the President, and the other the Hindu Law Research and Reform Association. As regards the former, I do not know whether that Sabha has, at any meeting convened by them, considered that question, but there was a telegram from the Secretary of that Mahasabha which I duly communicated to my Honourable friend, the Law Member. It has been stated there that the omission of the words "Hindu" and "or Buddhist" and retention of the word "Muhammadan" will make this Bill look as if it was a sort of discriminative legislation. As regards the opinion of the other body which I consulted and of which some of the most enlightened lawyers and students dealing with Hindu law in the country are members, that body also has submitted its opinion, of which I believe the Honourable the Law Member has already got a copy. That body held its conference in Poona last May, and there they discussed this question, and there they appointed a committee consisting of Mr. Justice Madgaonkar, Mr. Gharpure and Mr. Kane. The latter two gentlemen are well-known research students of Hindu law, and Mr. Justice Madgaonkar is a Judge of great experience. That committee has considered this question carefully for a long time, and ultimately, having gone through all the connected papers, it had given its deliberate opinion that no case for the omission of the words "Hindu" and "or Buddhist" from section 2 had been made out. That opinion they have given. So, so far as I can gather, the opinion of the Hindus through their representative bodies has not been in favour of the omission of these words from section 2. Now it is stated, "Well, if you do not lose anything, what is the harm in omitting those words?" Here I have also got some doubt on that point and that is what I want to place before this House and for the consideration also of other Members whose opinions on points of law I very much value. I find, Sir, it is stated in section 2 of the Act that :

"Nothing in the second chapter of this Act shall be deemed to affect any rule of Hindu, Muhammadan, or Buddhist law".

It is laid down in the Act that nothing inconsistent with Hindu law should be in that law. Once you take away that safeguard, there is no guarantee, be in that law. Once you take away that safeguard, there is no guarantee, in these days when ideas on property and laws relating to the same are developing so rapidly, and it is impossible for any one to say that amendments inconsistent with rules of our personal law will not be introduced into this Act even within a few years and that ideas and principles unknown to Hindu culture may not gradually creep in. So up to this time there is nothing inconsistent with rules of Hindu law, is not, in my opinion, a sufficiently strong ground for now removing that one safeguard which has probably kept the law consistent with Hindu law during the last 40 years. Secondly, Sir, if we remove these words, some new difficulties in interpreting certain rules and certain provisions of Chapter II are likely to arise. For example, I may mention one illustration, and I believe my Honourable friends who have got to deal with the profession of the law will carefully listen to that illustration. Suppose a man makes a transfer to a person who has got generally limited interests in the property according to Hindu law, and there is no express mention in the deed as to what interests, absolute or limited, that man wants to transfer to that person. At present the presumption is that, if that transfer is in favour of a person who has got a limited interest under Hindu law, and there is no express mention in the deed of the nature of interests that man wants to transfer to that person, the presumption is that limited interest is presumed to be transferred in favour of that person. And why? Section 8 of the Act lays down the rule for the operation of transfer:

E

[Mr. M. S. Aney.]

"8. Unless a different intention is expressed or necessarily implied, a transfer of property passes forthwith to the transferee all the interest which the transferor is then capable of passing in the property, and in the legal incidents thereof."

At present the position as gathered from the case law is that absolute interest passes to a person who has ordinarily limited interest under Hindu law only when there is an intention of transfer of such interest clearly expressed or necessarily implied in the document. Otherwise the presumption is in favour of a transfer of limited interest in such a case in spite of section 8 of the Act. Why has that sort of presumption arisen? It is because of the fact that section 8 is modified to some extent, in my opinion, by the saving clause, by the wording of section 2, viz.:

"Nothing in the second chapter of this Act shall be deemed to affect any rule of Hindu, Muhammadan, or Buddhist law."

Suppose that safeguard is taken away, what will be the effect? If there is no qualification as regards the interest which one man passes in favour of another, it is very likely that the presumption will be that absolute interest passes. What I urge is this, that there is scope for an ambiguity of this nature which up to this time did not exist on account of the safeguards there. I also do not know what will be the position as regards other clauses if this safeguard is taken away. The above illustration casually struck me yesterday as I was reading the Bill with the Act. It cannot, then, be said, as I urge, that there is nothing inconsistent with Hindu law in the Act. I still want that those provisions of Chapter II should not be interpreted in a spirit inconsistent with the rules of Hindu law; and what I fear is that probably the rules of construction which ordinarily we apply at present might undergo considerable modification later on at the hands of Judges who will no longer feel bound by the principle of Hindu law but by the letter of the law itself. They will say, "Here is the law as laid down by the Legislature", and they may not look into the principles of Hindu law as modifying the sense or the spirit of the provisions. That is a situation which is likely to arise, and what will be the effect? The most acute lawyer will feel difficulty and he will not be in a position to say exactly that no difficulty will ever arise with regard to any provisions in Chapter II. So my argument is that, up to this time, the existence of this safeguard has not disclosed any inconvenience in the administration of the provisions of Chapter II. If you accept the amendment of the clause at present, it notoriously absolves Government from an obligation to which they stand pledged from the time they have assumed administration of this law. Then it is not quite true also that there will be no difficulty in interpreting the provisions of Chapter II if this safeguard is taken out.

With these three facts clearly made out, I believe a stouter case ought to be made out for the deletion of the words

1 P.M.

"Hindu and Buddhist". Otherwise the House will be justified in asking the Government to retain section 2 as it is and not delete the words "Hindu or Buddhist". After having said all this, I do not like to read out the extracts from the Report, as they only reproduce what I have been saying. The Buddhist law, of course, is a thing which exists in Burma; so far as I know it is not to be found in any part of India. And the Honourable the Law Member and the Select Committee have all mainly relied as regards their information, if I mistake not, upon the opinions received from the Local Government of Burma and the High Court of Rangoon. In this connection I would also like to enlighten the House of the fact that the Transfer of Property Act is not extended to that province. I am open to correction on this point. In fact, that is what I have gathered from the note of the Special Committee itself, because one of the points to be considered by the Committee was whether this Act should be extended to that province.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah (Bombay City : Muhammadan Urban): There are Buddhists in India also.

Mr. M. S. Aney: So far as the Select Committee or the Special Committee are concerned, they have relied upon these two authorities. Now, if this Transfer of Property Act is not extended to Burma, it is difficult for them to see what will be the effect of the provisions of this law upon their customary law by which they work. It is difficult to give an opinion upon a technical law like this. Besides, no Buddhists in India have been ever consulted. Some of the Hindus were consulted, but no Buddhists in India have been consulted. That is my information. If I am wrong, I can be corrected. The only two bodies that have been consulted were the Local Government of Burma and the High Court of Rangoon. I do not know the personnel of the High Court of Rangoon at present, but I know the personnel of the Local Government, at least the head of the Local Government. He is not expected to know the Buddhist law. My point is this, that in a matter of this kind when you are interfering with the policy that you have so scrupulously observed for so many years, is it just that you should try, on such flimsy evidence, to do away with a salutary safeguard which was placed on the Statute-book after full consideration of the circumstances? I have therefore clearly shown that, as regards the Buddhist law, I take it for granted that the Government do not possess sufficient evidence, and I would not regard the opinion of the Provincial Government or that of the High Court which has not had the opportunity of administering this law at any time, as a sufficient criterion for taking a jump in the dark. It will be nothing short of a leap in the dark for we do not know how rudely we may interfere with their customary law and what rude shock we might give to their customary rights. I therefore warn the House not to be a party at least to a step of this nature, unless they know perfectly well that they can take the verdict of the Government of Burma and the High Court of Burma as the most reliable word on the subject. Sir, these are the grounds on which I think that the omission of the words "Hindu and Buddhist" from section 2 is not desirable.

[Mr. M. S. Aney.]

I do not wish to recapitulate those reasons which I have already given. Unless the House is prepared to absolve the Government of India hereafter of all obligations arising out of the solemn pledges to respect the personal law, it will not be justified to alter section 2. Nothing will be lost if you retain section 2 as it is and not unnecessarily amend it in the manner in which the Law Member wants you to do. With these words, Sir, I move my amendment and commend it for the acceptance of the House.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : Sir, at the outset I would admit that much can be said both for retaining the original provision and for the omission of the original section ; but I am constrained to observe, that if there was a sufficient ground for the introduction of the words "Hindu and Buddhist" in the law as it at present stands, then it is for the Honourable the Law Member to make out a clear case for its omission at present. From the literature on the subject that I have been privileged to study as a member of the Select Committee, I am constrained to say that really no case has been made out, and if it is admitted that the retention.....

Several Honourable Members : Speak up please ; we cannot hear this side.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : From the literature on the subject that was made available to me as a member of the Select Committee, I am constrained to observe that no case has been made out by the Government for the omission of the words "Hindu and Buddhist" in clause 3. On the other hand, if it is conceded for a moment that it does not affect the Hindu personal law or the Buddhist personal law for the matter of that, I really cannot follow the reasoning that might be adopted for the omission of these two words from the present Act. The only outstanding merit of the omission is this, that the law ensures certainty of title. But the House has to consider whether, as against this outstanding merit of the law being rendered certain by the omission of these words, we should not also take into consideration the fact that the existence of these two words in the present Act, unless a clear case has been made out for their omission, is necessary, and that the House ought not lightly to interfere and say that these words should be omitted.

The second objection to his clause 3 is this. Rightly or wrongly, if the word "Muhammadan" is retained there, it would unnecessarily give room for an apprehension of an invidious distinction being made in that direction. I do believe that there was nothing like that at the back of the Government Member's mind or at the back of the minds of the members of the Select Committee, but unfortunately to the outside public it is open to that grave objection. Unless, therefore, the Honourable Mover of this Bill clears these two doubts and makes out a strong case, I, for one, am for the retention of the old section.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, I oppose this amendment and I shall show to the House that an overwhelming case has been made out in favour of deletion of the words "Hindu or Buddhist". Sir, it is one of the elementary canons of drafting that you should avoid words which are superfluous or unnecessary. If I can satisfy the House that these words are superfluous, I hope the House will vote in favour of the omission. And the next point which we had in view in omitting these words is a very important one, and that is the certainty of title. Sir, in matters dealing with property, certainty is of much greater importance than even the substance of the law. Here I make two points. First, that these words are not necessary and, in the second place, in the interests of certainty of title and removal of ambiguity, it is necessary that these words should be omitted. My Honourable friend Mr. Aney made three points. The first is that the retention of these words in the Act has caused no inconvenience since 1882 when these words were inserted deliberately. These words were deliberately inserted in 1882, because at that time it was necessary to insert them. At that time the Disposition of Property Act had not been passed and one of the most important rules of Hindu law was still in full force, that is, that no gift could be made to an unborn. Several sections in Chapter II of the Transfer of Property Act deal with transfers generally, including transfers to unborns. That being so, in view of the well recognised rule of Hindu law that no gift could be made to an unborn, a saving clause was necessary and hence the provision in section 2 that no rule of Hindu law should be affected by anything in Chapter II. That was absolutely necessary. Therefore, the argument that since 1882 no inconvenience has been felt is not a valid argument because it is no question of convenience or inconvenience. The insertion of the words was necessary in order to save the rule of Hindu law that no gift could be made to an unborn.

The second point which my Honourable friend made was that the deletion would make for differential application of the Act to different communities. The Transfer of Property Act, 1882, does make that differential application because the existing section says that no rule of Hindu or Muhammadan or Buddhist law would be affected by anything contained in Chapter II. That means this, that in the case of Hindus, the rules of Hindu law would prevail, in the case of Muhammadans, the rules of Muhammadan law would prevail, and in the case of Buddhists, the rules of Buddhist law would prevail. There is this differential application, already. We are not introducing any new principle of differentiation. The differentiation is there already. What we are seeking to do is this, that by omitting the words "Hindus and Buddhists", which are no longer necessary, we are only saving the personal law of the Muhammadans because the Muhammadan law of gift, for instance, is totally different from the rules embodied in the Transfer of Property Act. It is necessary that those rules of Muhammadan law should be saved and, therefore, the retention of "Muhammadan" is necessary. It is not for the purpose of making any differentiation, it is for the purpose of saving rules which need protection. Where no protection is needed, there is no necessity for the retention of a saving clause. Sir, the only rules of Hindu law in 1882 which needed protection were the rule against gifts to unborns, the rule in regard to gifts to classes and the rule against perpetuities. These are the three rules. Now, as regards gifts to classes among Hindus, the Privy Council has held in a number of cases that Leake versus Robinson is not applicable, that the whole gift will not fail, but that the gift will be good in respect of those who are capable of taking, but that it would fail in respect of unborns. That is the principle which has been laid down under the existing law by the Privy Council. That being so, and having regard to the fact that the Hindu Dispositions of Property Act has been passed, these two objections, on the ground of rule against gifts to unborns and on the ground of the rule as regards gifts to classes, are no longer valid.

Now remains the question about perpetuities. Certainly for the last sixty or seventy years, the rule against perpetuities has been recognised among the Hindus. Thus, in Chapter II, there is no single rule which militates against any rule of Hindu law at the present moment. If that is the state of the law, and my Honourable friend admitted that there is nothing in Chapter II which militates against any rule of Hindu law, then, why retain the word "Hindu"? Is there any necessity? If there is no necessity, then the ordinary elementary canon of legislative drafting requires that anything unnecessary or superfluous should be rigidly avoided.

The last point which my Honourable friend made was that it was still necessary in view of section 8 of the Transfer of Property Act. If I understood him correctly, he said this. Suppose there is a gift by a Hindu to one who can only have a limited estate. By virtue of section 8, the construction of that document would be made in accordance with the rule of Hindu law, but if the saving clause from section 2 is taken away, the construction would be made irrespective of any rule of Hindu law. I understood that was his argument. I submit that that argument is not well founded, because all that section 8 says is this, that "Unless a different intention is expressed or necessarily implied the transfer of property passes forthwith to the transferee all the interest which the transferor is then capable of passing in the property and in the legal incidents thereof". Therefore the point of the whole section is this: the Court has to gather the intention of the donor—whether that intention is expressed or can be necessarily implied from the words used. In construing a document, the intention is to be gathered from the language used. No rule of Hindu law comes in there. From the language used in the document, the Court may come to the conclusion that the donor intended to give the whole interest. From the language used, the Court may come to the conclusion that the intention was only that a limited interest should pass. It would sometimes depend not merely upon the language of the document but the relation of the donor to the donee and the prevailing ideas in the community to which they belong, not to any rule of law.

Thus, a gift of land by a Hindu husband to his wife is presumed to carry a limited estate.

Mr. M. S. Aney: What is the reason for that presumption?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter: The prevailing ideas of Hindus what I am submitting is this, that in construing a document, no rule of Hindu law comes into operation. The Court has got to gather the intention of the donor from the document itself. That is all that is necessary under section 8. Section 8 is in no way controlled by section 2. I do not know of any case in which section 2 has been invoked in construing a document. Rules of Hindu law would apply when these rules have to be applied ad hoc. For instance, a gift is made to an unborn by a document. So long as that rule obtained amongst the Hindus, the Court would say the gift is bad because of the rule of Hindu law, not upon any construction of the document under section 8.

Now, Sir, my Honourable friend Mr. Sesha Ayyangar said that no case had been made out for the deletion. In the first place, as I have submitted, it is admitted on all hands that there is no necessity for the retention. If there is no necessity for retention, what justification is there, what argument is there for retention? In a legislative enactment, you are not allowed, in proper drafting, to retain anything superfluous.

Then, the second point I wish to make is this. Certainty of title is a matter of great importance to all concerned. The transferee and the transferor ought to know where they stand. Instead of that if you keep something nebulous, or mysterious, that some rule of Hindu law may affect the whole transfer, that would reduce the value of property. It would always keep a cloud over the title of the transferee, and that is a contingency which should be avoided if possible.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar: Does the retention necessarily make it uncertain?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter: It does. Take the case of a person taking a transfer from a Hindu woman. If the Bill be passed as it is, the transferee would have no hesitation, if otherwise the title is good, in taking the transfer. But if you expressly say that no rule of Hindu law is affected by Chapter II, then the transferee will hesitate. There may be some unexplored rule of Hindu law, some unknown manuscript may come into existence, and then, the whole title may be disturbed because the transfer is taking from a person who in some circumstances is a limited owner. If you retain this you retain a perpetual cloud upon the title; and, therefore, I say that when we are overhauling the whole of the Transfer of Property Act, when we are trying to secure title, when we are giving certainty in place of ambiguity, when we are removing all doubts and conflicts, when we are making such an attempt, let us not spoil the whole thing by retaining something vague and unknown which will keep a cloud hanging over title for all time. Sir, I oppose.

Mr. D. V. Belvi (Bombay Southern Division: Non-Muhammadan Rural): Sir, I have listened with very great attention to the views of the Honourable the Law Member, but I confess that I am not convinced. I submit that his argument as regards section 8 of the Transfer of Property Act is not quite convincing. I may illustrate what I mean by taking two instances. Suppose a Hindu who has got some self-acquired property makes two gifts. He gives one field to his son and another to his wife or widow. Both the documents are in exactly similar language. The presumption which the Court will draw under the existing law will be that the gift to the widow was a gift of a limited interest, namely, that, on the death of the widow, the property must pass to the heirs of the husband and not to the personal heirs of the wife. If the word "Hindu" is deleted from the Transfer of Property Act, the Judge will surely say that these two documents have been written in exactly similar language and phraseology and why should a distinction be made in favour of the son and why should not the same distinction be made in favour of the widow? The Honourable Law Member himself said that, when this word "Hindu" is deleted, the title of the donee will be free from a cloud. That means that the widow to whom the gift was made by the husband will be free to alienate the property to any one and the alienee will have a good right to say that he purchased it from a widow who had full title to the property, because there is nothing in the law which says that the Hindu widow has only a limited interest in the property. That is just the reason why it is necessary to retain the word "Hindu". That a Hindu widow or a Hindu woman generally takes a limited interest in immoveable property in some cases is a proposition of law which is well-known under the Hindu law, and therefore I submit that it is necessary to retain the word "Hindu".

On general grounds also I submit that it is absolutely necessary to retain the phraseology as it now stands. It is for those who wish to introduce changes to satisfy us that such a change is necessary. There should be no unnecessary legislation, just as there should be no unnecessary medicine or unnecessary physic. We are very often told that the effect of unnecessary physic is always deleterious; similarly it is not the law as it stands now which creates a cloud in the case of any title, but it is the abrogation of the law in the way suggested by the Honourable the Law Member which will surely give rise to litigation. On these grounds I submit that it is necessary to retain the words "Hindu" and "Buddhist" as they have been on the Statute-book for a long period of time.

Mr. N. C. Chunder (Calcutta : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, there is some amount of misunderstanding as to the scope of section 8 of the Transfer of Property Act. As a matter of fact when a gift to a widow has been held to convey only a widow's estate, or a limited estate, it has been held so not on the ground that section 8 or section 2 of the Transfer of Property Act applied, but on the ground that the intention of the Hindu making the gift to the widow is necessarily to give her a limited estate, unless it was expressly stated that the widow was to take some higher interest. When there has been a gift to a daughter, the Privy Council has equally held invariably that the intention must be assumed, without any words of qualification, to be to convey to the daughter an absolute estate. So that it is really a question of construction of a particular document, and whether we have the words "Hindu" and "Buddhist" in the Bill, or whether we take them out of the Bill, it does not make any difference whatever. That being so, it is necessary that we should not have in the Bill any word which is superfluous, because that would really be making it absurd. The provisions of the section would look absurd when as a matter of fact no rule of Hindu law is affected by this Bill as it now stands, I mean, the Transfer of Property Act as it will stand after this Bill is enacted into law. There will really be no difference between the principles of Hindu law and the principles embodied in the Transfer of Property Act and to have a section referring to rules of Hindu law and things of that kind will really make the whole thing absurd and an absurdity has always to be avoided in legislation.

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava (Ambala Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, we have been given to understand that one of the canons of amending laws is that superfluity is to be avoided; but so far as the amendment of this law is concerned I understand that the principles were given in the Report of the Special Committee on page 3, paragraph 10, from which I will read out :

"In the Bills submitted to us the policy which appears to have been followed was that no amendment should be attempted which would merely effect an improvement in wording, but that new principles of importance which had been judicially recognised since the passing of the Act should be incorporated. In our opinion it is a sound course to follow, particularly in an Act which has been in force for forty-five years and to whose phraseology the general public and the legal profession have become accustomed. Again, it is not safe to alter any wording which has received judicial interpretation, when the interpretation has not led to any inconvenience in practice or miscarriage of justice."

I understand that any person who wants to amend the law must show a clear case for such amendment. If I take an illustration which has just been given by the Honourable the Law Member, it appears that, if these words "Hindu" or "Buddhist" remain in that section, then the interpretation of section 8 would be different from the interpretation which has been put to the words of that section.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : No, I never said that. I said it is immaterial.

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : I understood you to say that, if these words are there the interpretation would be uncertain.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : What I said was that the construction of section 8 is never controlled by section 2. It is immaterial whether section 2 is there or not. That was my contention.

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : If there is a cloud on account of these words remaining, then it means that the construction can possibly be different.

Now, the following words occur in section 8 of the Act :

"Unless a different intention is expressed or necessarily implied, a transfer of property passes forthwith to the transferee all the interest which the transferor is then capable of passing in the property, and in the legal incidents thereof."

And my humble submission is, that to find out what are the legal incidents of property inhering in a particular person, you have to look to the personal law of that man. In the ruling reported as 27 Punjab Record, 1898, when property purported to be conveyed to a widow, the construction placed was that, unless a contrary intention appeared from the particular words used in the document, the legal incidents of property were those which appertained to a widow's property. So, unless these words are there, the interpretation to be put on certain expression in deeds also would be different. Therefore I submit that on this ground also these words "Hindu or Buddhist" should be retained in section 2.

As regards the Buddhist law, I will refer the House to Dr. Gour's book (Transfer of Property Act), in paragraph 50, where he says :

"The Act has not been yet extended to the whole of British Burma. Ceylon is out of British India, and as such outside the operation of the Act. Buddhist law is contained in the Dhammathats of Manu Kyay, Manoo Womana which, while recognising the authority of Manu, differs from the great Hindu lawgiver on many points. Of the Buddhist law-books Manu Kyay is considered in Burma to be a book of paramount authority. Thus a purchaser of a debt sold in execution was held not to be affected by section 135 of the Act before its amendment." (15 Mad. 383.)

Mr. M. R. Jayakar (Bombay City : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Has the Honourable Member verified that authority? (Laughter.)

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava : This is the authority given in Dr. Gour's book. Unfortunately the burden of proof is not upon me. I am only submitting that, unless a clear case is made out for amending the law on this point, we should not agree to this amendment. In these circumstances, I would submit that the argument of the Law Member that some uncertainty would be removed, has got absolutely no force; for he now admits that if the law is retained as it is, then the interpretation of any other section would not be different. I would therefore submit that these words should be retained.

Mr. D. F. Mulla (Bombay : Nominated Non-official) : Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment. In the first place I want to remove a misimpression that the Transfer of Property Act does not apply in Burma. The whole Act was extended with effect from December 1924 to the whole of Burma with the exception of certain specified areas.

Mr. President : What about Dr. Gour's book ?

Mr. D. F. Mulla : Perhaps, Sir, my Honourable friend has an old edition of Gour in his hands. It was said that a solemn pledge was given by the Government of India years and years ago since they first took up the reins of administration in their hands. I take it that the reference is to the Charters of the Supreme Courts that were established in India where it is stated that the Hindu law was in certain matters to be applied to Hindus and the Muhammadan law to Muhammadans. You find the same provision in the Government of India Act of 1915 : and not only there ; but in almost every Civil Courts Act you will find a section to say that, so far as the law of marriage, succession, adoption, etc., is concerned, the courts ought to be guided by the rules of Hindu law. All that is a reference entirely to personal law as distinct from property law ; it has got nothing to do with property law at all. So far as the property law applicable to Hindus and Muhammadans is concerned, their law has been entirely superseded by the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act commencing with Chapter III, which deals with sales of immovable property. Where is the Hindu law of sale now ? Where is the Hindu law of mortgage ? Where is the Hindu law of gift except in certain matters ? Where is the Hindu law of exchange ? And for the matter of that, where is the Muhammadan law of sale or the Muhammadan law of exchange or of mortgage ? Therefore, that pledge related entirely to the personal law of Hindus and Muhammadans. As regards the personal law of Hindus, that has been unaltered. The law of succession, the law of marriage, the law of adoption, the law of maintenance, the law of guardianship—the Government of India has not touched it, except so far as the Guardians and Wards Act is concerned as to certain matters of procedure. But the personal law remains intact, and we are not at present concerned with the personal law at all. We are concerned entirely with the law of property, and the only reason why, when passing the Act of 1882, the words “Hindu” and “Buddhist” were introduced was because there were certain sections of the Act which did not apply to Hindus at all ; and those were sections 13, 14, 15 and 16, because it was held that you cannot make a gift to an unborn person, and that was the reason why these sections did not apply. That rendered it absolutely necessary to say that, so far as this chapter was concerned, nothing contained in the chapter was to be affected by the Hindu law, and that is in fact what was stated by Dr. Whitley Stokes when he presented the Report of the Select Committee. It was read out by my Honourable friend, Mr. Aney :

“The Committee had declared that nothing in Chapter II should be deemed to affect any rule of Hindu, Muhammadan or Buddhist law. It did not, in his opinion affect any such rule, otherwise than by putting Natives as regards their power to make settlements on unborn persons, on the same footing as Europeans.”

And if you cannot make a gift to an unborn person at all, there is no room for the operation of the rule against perpetuities, which is referred to in the speech of Dr. Whitley Stokes.

Now, so far as the Muhammadans are concerned, the rule now is entirely the same as it was in 1882. A Muhammadan cannot make a gift to an unborn person ; but as regards Hindus, the law was changed, first in 1914 so far as the Madras Presidency (excluding the City of Madras) was concerned. Then came the Hindu Disposition of Property Act, 1916, which extended to the whole of British India except where the Madras Act of 1914 applied. Then came the Madras Act of 1921, which applied to the town of Madras. So, the position is that, so far as the Hindus are concerned, Hindus now can make a gift to an unborn person, subject to the conditions which are mentioned in section 14 of the Transfer of Property Act. But so far as Muhammadans are concerned, their case stands on a different footing. What then is the use of saying “if you drop the word ‘Hindu’, drop also the word ‘Muhammadan’ ?” What is the use of saying that ? The two systems of law as they are to-day are entirely different. Therefore the sentimental argument that, by dropping the word “Hindu” you will be creating communal legislation is, I submit.....

Mr. D. V. Belvi : That was not the argument.

Mr. D. F. Mulla : Out of respect to those gentlemen who said so, I used the word “argument”. I submit therefore that that contention cannot stand.

Then again as regards Muhammadans, there are other considerations why the word “Muhammadan” should stand. Gifts in futuro are not recognised by Muhammadan law ; contingent gifts are not recognised by Muhammadan law ; conditional gifts are not recognized by Muhammadan law. Are then the two systems of law so akin, that if you omit the word “Hindu” or the word “Buddhist”, you must also omit the word “Muhammadan” ? With respect, I submit, not.

This Bill, Sir, was first considered by an expert committee and that committee consisted of three Hindus and one Parsee who himself is half a Hindu. Then it was referred to a Select Committee consisting of three Hindus and three Muhammadans. There was not a word of dissent, not so far as the expert Committee was concerned, not a note of dissent so far as the Select Committee was concerned.....

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : There were four Hindus on the Select Committee.

Mr. D. F. Mulla : Yes, there were four Hindus on the Select Committee. Thank you for the information. Then, 35 opinions were received, out of which 25 are in favour of omitting the word “Hindu”. Out of the remaining seven, four are halting, and out of the remaining three, they seem to proceed upon an entire misconception of the meaning of section 2, clause (d). Section 2, clause (d), does not say that the Chapter is not to apply at all to Hindus and Muhammadans. All that it says is that it is not to affect any rule of Hindu or Muhammadan law. So that, the preponderance of opinion is in favour of dropping the word “Hindu”. Sir, I listened with close attention to what was stated by my Honourable and learned friend, Mr. Aney, that a committee had been appointed consisting of three gentlemen, namely Mr. Justice Madgaonkar, Mr. Kane and Mr. Gharpure, and that they were against the omission of the word "Hindu". But, Sir, no reason is given. And how, Sir, as a man of reason, can I accept anything which is not based upon reason?

Mr. M. S. Aney : No case has been made out. That is the reason.

Mr. D. F. Mulla : I take it, Sir, that following the advice of my learned friend the Committee must have said to themselves, "The burden lies on Government to prove their case, and therefore let us sit and resolve that no case is made out".

Then there was a point made by one of my friends, that if a Hindu makes a gift to a widow and by the same document makes a gift to a son, so far as the gift to the widow is concerned, it will pass a limited estate, and so far as the gift to the son is concerned, it will pass an absolute estate. As regards that, all I say is that there is a conflict of opinion upon the point and the law is not at all clear.

The question then is whether the word "Hindu" should be retained or not. I do not very much rely upon the ground that it is superfluous. I rely particularly on the ground that in law it is highly desirable that there should be certainty. So far as the Hindu law is concerned, it was given to the Hindus by their great Law Givers some centuries ago, and so far as I am concerned, I am proud to say that the system is such as could be adapted to the requirements of modern life. So far as my Hindu friends are concerned, do they not want certainty so far as the power of disposition of property is concerned? Do they want their titles to be clouded in a fog? I say, Sir, that if you keep the word "Hindu", there is only one class of persons who will benefit by it, and I will tell you who it is. What is that which has hitherto been going on? A suit brought by one Hindu against another, and the question is raised whether a particular section of Chapter II of the Transfer of Property Act, does or does not apply to Hindus, and reliance is placed on section 2 (d). This involves an enormous waste of money. That has been going on for the last several years in almost every case, and I can say with certainty that in every case in which the point was raised, it was held that the particular section applied. That being the case, if you omit the word "Hindu", there will be certainty of title and certainty of law. No doubt, if you retain the word "Hindu" it will leave the door wide open for litigation; it will leave the door open for the exercise of the ingenuity of a class of persons who go by the name of lawyers. (Laughter.) For these reasons, Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : Sir, I have only one justification for intervening in this debate on this amendment.....

Mr. President : Would the Honourable Member like to continue after lunch?

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : I shall not take more than five minutes, Sir. I promise you it will be five minutes and no more. I do not wish to enter into the justification for this amendment, because a complete answer has been given, based on reasons and arguments by the Honourable the Law Member and my friend Mr. Mulla whom, I must congratulate for making such a powerful and lucid explanation. (Applause.) Sir, I have no respect for my friend Mr. Aney when he says that people will understand that you are favouring the Mussalmans and ill-treating the Hindus if you omit the words "Hindus" and "Buddhists". My friend also, in excitement, said, that if you drop "Hindus", you should drop "Muhammadans" also. I never expected that my friend Mr. Aney would advance such an argument. We were not concerned with the Hindu-Moslem question at all, and there was no idea of showing any disrespect or partiality to anybody. As a matter of fact, so far as I was concerned, I entirely left it to the Hindu Members to decide, and I said that personally I was convinced that the arguments were very powerful and that it was in the interests of the community itself, as Mr. Mulla pointed out, to secure certainty of title. As I said, I was not going to press the point even if I thought it was good for my Hindu friends if they had stoutly resisted it or opposed it. That is my position in this House to-day.

Pandit Motilal Nehru (Cities of the United Provinces : Non-Muhammedan Urban) : Sir, I want to.....

Mr. President : Does the Honourable Member wish to speak?

Pandit Motilal Nehru : Yes, Sir.

Mr. President : The House stands adjourned till Five Minutes to Three.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Five Minutes to Three of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Five Minutes to Three of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

Pandit Motilal Nehru : Sir, I rise to support the amendment of my Honourable friend Mr. Aney, and in doing so, I must make myself perfectly clear as to why I am doing it. I do not subscribe to the argument based on the sentimental ground that by removing the word "Hindu" we shall incur the displeasure of the Hindus and that retaining the word "Mussalman" will show that there was some favour done to the Mussalmans by the Indian Legislature. I am supporting that amendment purely as a lawyer and not as a Hindu, and I say that the provision in the Bill is not a safe provision for any Legislature to pass.

It is said that the object of the amendment is to avoid superfluity—that is No. 1—and that the amendment secures certainty—that is No. 2. Both very laudable objects no doubt and recognised as very valid reasons for the amendment. But are we quite sure that these words are so superfluous as they have been made out? Now, Sir, I have very carefully followed the speeches of the Honourable the Law Member, or I may say, the Honourable the Law Members, past and present, and I have been looking in those speeches for something which would show that such an exhaustive examination of the provisions of Hindu law has been made by the various expert Committees which have considered this Bill or by the Select Committee as to entitle them to say :

"We know the whole Hindu law on the subject and on the basis of that knowledge we can say that there is nothing in Chapter II of the Transfer of Property Act which infringes any rule of Hindu law."

[Pandit Motilal Nehru.]

Unless they are in a position to say so, they cannot claim that these words are superfluous.

In the course of the speeches of my Honourable friends, reference has been made to the rule of Hindu law that a gift in favour of an unborn person is not valid under that law, and it has been said that since the Hindu law on that point has been modified by statute, nothing remains which will bring the Hindu law into conflict with the statute law as contained in Chapter II of the Transfer of Property Act. It will be convenient briefly to deal with the history of that question. There are two rules of Hindu law which have been recognised time after time, beginning from the well-known Tagore case down to very recent times, even after the passing of the Hindu Disposition of Property Act. One of those rules is that a gift in favour of an unborn person is not known to the Hindu law and is invalid, and the other is that you cannot postpone the vesting of property under the Hindu law beyond the close of a life in being—I am repeating the very words of the Privy Council—and that rule has been followed ever since the case reported in 6 Moore's Indian Appeals, Surajmani Dasi's case and in a long string of cases up till last year. That being so, when it was felt by certain Hindus that it was an unnecessary limitation of the right of making a gift or transfer not to make it in favour of an unborn person—and in certain instances it certainly appeared to be very unnatural that a man should not make a gift in favour of the son or grandson of a relation who was not born then but was likely to be born at some future time—they came up to the Legislature to ask for a modification of the Hindu law on that point. Now, if you get the Legislature to say that in future the Hindu rule of law that no gift shall be valid if it is made in favour of an unborn person is to be abrogated, you must conform to some rule of the law of property which imposes a similar restriction on grounds of public policy. Well, that rule is the English rule against perpetuities, and to those who wanted the Hindu law to be modified in that respect, namely, that the gift might be made to an unborn person, it was said and properly said that you are now going out of the pale of Hindu law and must conform to some other law governing gifts. It was for this reason that, when the Legislature recognised the right of the Hindu to make a gift in favour of an unborn person, it imposed the restrictions contained in sections 13, 14 and other sections of the Transfer of Property Act and the corresponding sections of the Indian Succession Act. That is to say, the Hindu law of perpetuities being quite different to the English law of perpetuities, which has been incorporated in the Transfer of Property Act and the Indian Succession Act, if you want to escape the Hindu law, the only other alternative is that you must conform to the other rule of law of general application, because you cannot be allowed to make a transfer which is unknown to every system of law under the sun. It must come under some law, and therefore in the Hindu Disposition of Property Act it was laid down :

“ Subject to the limitations and provisions specified in this Act, no disposition of property by a Hindu, whether by transfer inter vivos or by will, shall be invalid by reason only that any person for whose benefit it may have been made was not in existence at the date of such disposition.

The limitations and provisions referred to in section 2 shall be the following namely :—

(a) in respect of dispositions by transfer inter vivos, those contained in sections 13, 14 and 20 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882,.....”

which enacts into a statute law the English law of perpetuities. Therefore since the passing of that Act, the Hindus who make either gifts or bequests in favour of unborn persons are subject either to section 14 of the Transfer of Property Act, or the corresponding section 101 of the Indian Succession Act, and they must not go beyond the limits imposed by the rule against perpetuities. But there is no case law, there is no statute law which has in any way modified the original Hindu law rule that no vesting of the estate shall be valid if it is delayed beyond the close of a life in being. Remember that the English rule of law goes further. The two rules are entirely different. Therefore I say that the rule of Hindu law has not been entirely abrogated by the Hindu Disposition of Property Act, and that is the only Act which has interfered with the original Hindu rule of law on the subject. That is one thing, but when you come to say that nothing contained in Chapter II of the Transfer of Property Act, a chapter which consists of something like 40 or 45 sections, affects any rule of Hindu law, you undertake to say that you have examined all the corresponding rules of Hindu law, and you are convinced that there is nothing in those rules which conflicts with the rules laid down in the sections of the Transfer of Property Act. Now, that is a claim which I submit no lawyer in his senses would ever make. It is impossible for anybody to anticipate the rules of Hindu law which may or may not be applicable to the vast variety of transfers of property. It was said by the Honourable Mr. Mulla that personal law is one thing and the law of property is another. Now, it is well known that personal law affects property. What is the Hindu law of gifts and wills if it is not the personal law of the Hindu? Are not the laws of gifts and the laws relating to wills laws of property as well? My Honourable friend is quite right in saying that, so far as the Hindu law of gifts to unborn persons is concerned, that part of the personal law of the Hindus has been substituted by statute law in India. But to say more than this is to make a claim which cannot be substantiated because you have to examine every provision of the Hindu law of gifts and wills and study other ways in which property may pass from one hand to another before you can make such a claim. As the law stands now, it does not work any hardship. I do not see where is the reason for this big claim being put forward and this House consisting perhaps of half a dozen lawyers passing this Bill which will have the effect of abrogating all conceivable rules of the Hindu law on the subject of gifts and wills. Now, it has been held by the Privy Council, and it is established law, that the law of gifts and the law of wills under the Hindu law are co-extensive. Can anybody say that no case will ever arise in future where some other rule of Hindu law, other than the rule against perpetuities and other than the rule against unborn persons, will be called in aid by one of the litigants either to support or defeat transfer? I submit that it cannot be said that these words are superfluous. What is the harm if section 2 of the Transfer of Property Act is allowed to remain as it stands. What is the trouble? That section simply says that nothing in the second chapter shall be deemed to affect any rule of Hindu, Muhammadan or Buddhist law. Now, it was said by the

[Pandit Motilal Nehru.]

Honourable Mr. Mulla that the practice has become so frequent for people to come and say, "Oh, well, the Transfer of Property Act does not apply to the Hindus". If people say that, they do not know what the law is and they ought to be told that that is wrong. All that the law says is that if there is a rule of Hindu or Muhammadan law or Buddhist law which is established to be contrary to the provisions of Chapter II, this Chapter will not affect it. The burden of establishing that there is a rule of Hindu law which is not the same as the rules contained in Chapter II of the Transfer of Property Act is upon the man who says that that chapter does not apply. It is not enough to say that Chapter II does not apply. It only says that, if there is a rule of Hindu law which is in conflict with any of the sections of Chapter II, that rule will not be affected by anything that is said in Chapter II. If you leave it at that, you leave the person who in future comes after the passing of the Hindu Disposition of Property Act, to say, "Well, I am not governed by section 14 or any of the other sections mentioned there". You will say to him "Where is the rule of Hindu law, produce it" and if he produces only these two rules you can confront him with the Hindu Disposition of Property Act and say that they are no longer applicable to Hindus. Why do you close the mouth of a litigant for all time to come—to rely upon some rule of Hindu law which may be thoroughly inconsistent, for aught we know, with the rules contained in Chapter II? Why should there be such a bar before the case actually arises? Now, we have heard from the Honourable the Law Member the two canons which are to guide legislation in these matters, namely, avoidance of superfluous words and the making of the law a certainty. We know that centuries have rolled by and no one has yet succeeded in making the law certain, and nobody will ever succeed in making it certain. Of course the aim is a very laudable one and we must keep it in view. It seems to me that the only certainty about it is the certainty about our ignorance of all the provisions of the Hindu law. For the rest, everything remains as it was.

It is on these grounds that I submit that it will be very unsafe for this House to pass a law which may have far-reaching effects which no Honourable Member can pretend to anticipate at this moment. All practical purposes are served when you say that nothing contained in the Act in Chapter II shall affect any rule of Hindu law which has not already been affected by such law. To me it appears that instead of trying to delete the words "Hindu" and "Buddhist" from that section, the proper course would have been to incorporate the Hindu Disposition of Property Act into the Transfer of Property Act as applying of course only to Hindus. However, that is not my business, and I am not here to improve the drafting or to include things that have been left out. Let me point out that when the Hindu Disposition of Property Act was passed, no such exaggerated claim was made by this Legislature. They confined themselves to the point. The disposition in favour of an unborn person was made legal. What did this House say? This House said, "If you are taking it out of the Hindu Law, sections 13, 14 and 20 will be applicable". It did not take it upon itself to say that all the rules of the Transfer of Property Act would apply, or that the whole of Chapter II would apply; and yet all that is said now as justifying the omission of the word "Hindu" is that now, after the passing of that Act, gifts to unborn persons can be made, and the rule of perpetuity has also been changed. If this is a valid reason, then the proper thing for this House at the time of passing the Hindu Disposition of Property Act would have been to say that, from this moment, gifts in favour of an unborn person shall be valid, and Chapter II of the Transfer of Property Act shall apply. But what they said was that these three sections would apply and no more, and they left everything else to Hindu law as it was and for the Court to determine what it was and how far it came in conflict with any of these rules. Therefore I say that it would be very unwise to make such a sweeping change as is involved in the deletion of the words "Hindu" and "or Buddhist" from this section. You must leave it as it is. The cases we have so far concerned ourselves with, the cases that come to our knowledge, are cases which are governed by the Hindu Disposition of Property Act.

These are my grounds, Sir, upon which I ask this House to be very careful and abstain from taking a leap in the dark. It should confine itself to the actual purpose and that actual purpose is served by the section as it stands in the existing Act. Then as to the voting, I submit that this is not a matter on which there need be any party voting or any mandate or a matter which the Hindus should make a Hindu question or the Muhammadans should make a Muhammadan question; in fact the Muhammadans have got nothing to do with it, as it does not affect them at all. The whole point is whether this is an amendment which has been so clearly made out to be necessary that you must go against the feelings and the opinions of the Honourable Members who have already spoken against the amendment. I submit that no such strong case has been made out. Of course I do not associate myself with any such sentiment as has been expressed by certain Honourable Members about the Hindus taking it ill or with their interpretation of section 8. I quite agree with the Honourable the Law Member and Mr. Mulla in their interpretation of section 8, but I take my stand on the ground, which has also been urged by previous speakers, that no necessity has been made out for the removal of these words as is claimed, and I submit that that claim is wholly without foundation and cannot be justified.

Mr. M. R. Jayakar: Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment of my Honourable friend, Mr. Aney, and to support what has been put before us by the Honourable the Law Member. I very much regret, Sir, that I have got to oppose the amendment, firstly, because it proceeds from an esteemed friend from whom I very rarely differ; secondly, because it has been supported, in a powerful speech, by another esteemed friend, the last speaker with whom it is always a pleasure to agree at least on non-political questions. (Laughter.) I beg the Honourable House to view this question from the cold and dispassionate point of view of the lawyer. I am very sorry, Sir, that a red herring was drawn across our path by Mr. Aney by giving a turn to the question as if the Muhammadan was retaining certain privileges and the Hindu was dropping them. I claim to be as staunch a Hindu as Mr. Aney, and speaking from that point of view, I beg of my Honourable friends that they will not look at this question as if it was a matter of rivalry between the Hindu and the Muhammadan. The only question is—and I may be permitted to state it even at the risk of repetition—whether the retention of the words

[Mr. M. R. Jayakar.]

“Hindu” and “or Buddhist” is desirable; and secondly, as some Honourable Members have said, whether it is likely to cause any harm if they are allowed to remain. My answer categorically to both these questions is that it is undesirable, and that it will cause most positive harm, and that it is desirable in the year of grace 1929 to do away with these words occurring in the Act of 1882. The technical aspect of the case has been put before the House by both my learned friends, the present and the past Law Member, and the simple question is, as the Honourable Pandit Motilal Nehru put it, whether, in dropping these words, we are incurring any risk at all from the point of view of the future development of the Hindu law. I claim to know that law a little, and my answer is in the negative. My Honourable friend, Pandit Motilal Nehru, put it very strongly when he said that no lawyer in his senses can say so. He observed:

“No lawyer in his senses can ever say that the rules of Hindu law are so well known in 1929 that we could say with accuracy and safety, there is no harm in deleting these words.”

I am a lawyer in my senses and claim to say that the rules of Hindu law being no different from the rules contained in Chapter II, these words may be safely deleted. I hold that position, Sir, and I am prepared to sit down with any Member of this House and examine section after section of that chapter and convince him, as my Honourable friend Mr. Mulla has said, that the rules of English law being after all the rules of commonsense happen to be practically the same as the rules of Hindu law. This is a matter of great congratulation for Hindus that the Hindu sages of ancient times promulgated centuries ago rules relating to the holding of property which are practically identical with the rules of English law evolved much later. So far from being humiliated or frightened as a Hindu lawyer I am rather proud that whereas other communal systems of law in India contain archaic rules which cannot possibly find a place in present day civilized systems of law the rules of Hindu law happen to be identical with the rules of English law and equity which are contained in Chapter II. I think that is a commendable feature of Hindu law and nothing derogatory to it. Therefore, Sir, the point that Honourable Members have to consider is whether in dropping these words we are doing anything derogatory to Hindu law or harmful to its future development.

I am entirely at one with my Honourable friend, Pandit Motilal Nehru, when he says that this House should do nothing in a hurry which will have the effect of arresting the further progress and development of the Hindu law. I am very keen about it, and if I could see like my Honourable friend the slightest harm not only to the exalted position of Hindu law but to its possible development in the right direction, I would be the first man to oppose the motion the Honourable the Law Member has put before us. But I am convinced, and I wish to convey to the House my conviction, that there is no such fear. On the contrary I feel that to allow these words to remain will not lead to any benefit to Hindu law, but, on the contrary,—and that is the point which laymen will bear in mind—it will cause an amount of unnecessary litigation. As a practising counsel I often claim a share of the expenses of such litigation; and, if I were looking only at my own interest, or that of my fraternity, I would certainly say, “Let these words remain. They will swell the coffers of lawyers.” As an instance I may mention that five days ago before I left for Simla this time, if the House will allow a personal reference, I advised an eminent solicitor in Bombay, that, on a certain section in Chapter 2, a possible litigation might arise on the ground that the rule of Hindu law was different from the rule embodied in that section. I however added a note that I personally saw no chance of success except for the uncertainty of the law and of the judicial mind. It is this feature which we have to consider here as legislators, and not as practising lawyers,—whether we are now allowing words to remain which will cause unnecessary litigation? If one scans, as I have done very often, the daily cause list of the Bombay High Court, one will find, and I am pretty accurate in my figures, that about 50 to 60 per cent. of the litigation is due to the complexities and uncertainties of the Hindu law. Nobody can gainsay that.

One of the features which every Legislative House has to bear in mind as an ideal is that the law of property should be made as clear and universal as possible. I am one of those who believe that a day will soon come when there will be one clear and simple law of property for all communities. Unfortunately, the law of the Muhammadan community happens to be different, and we cannot alter it until Moslems themselves desire that their law should be altered by legislation. I am sure that some day our successors here will do that. But until that is done their law will continue to be different on the three or four important points which were so clearly put before this House by my Honourable friend Mr. Mulla. Therefore, chapter second of the Act in question cannot apply to Muhammadans. But the Hindu law is not different. That is a very good feature. My Honourable friend Pandit Motilal Nehru said that the Hindu law of perpetuities is different from the English law of perpetuities. With great respect, I beg to differ. There is only one law of perpetuities and that is the English law. I know a little of Hindu law, and I can assure my Honourable friends that the Hindu law recognises no doctrine of perpetuities at all. The doctrine of perpetuities, stated in brief, is this that it does not allow property to be hung up or prevent it from coming into the market beyond a certain period of time. That is the principle of the English law of perpetuities. It had its origin in a country like England where the land is limited. If I were free to legislate today, I would say that in a country like India, where there are hundreds and hundreds of acres of land awaiting cultivation, and where it is in consequence necessary that land should be allowed to remain in the hands of one man or family from generation to generation, in order that they cultivate it thoroughly, we should have exactly the contrary law from the rule against perpetuities which is applicable to England where land is limited, and where it is in consequence necessary to bring it as often in the market as possible. Exactly, the contrary rule ought to prevail in India. But that is not the point now, rightly or wrongly that rule of English law has been made applicable to Hindus, as my Honourable friend opposite remarked, for the last 60 years. Even under modern legislation it has been made applicable to Hindus by a statute, namely, by the Setalvad Act of 1915. The material points on which the Hindu law was different in 1882 the date of the Transfer of Property Act were, speaking briefly, three.

One rule of Hindu law, which was contrary to English law, was that gifts could not be made to unborn persons. There, again, my own opinion is that the rule as stated is not a proper deduction from the texts of the Hindu law, but that principle was laid down years ago in a celebrated case by the Privy Council. A Hindu therefore could not give any property to a person who was not born at the time of his death. Another rule of Hindu law was that when property is given to a class of persons, even if certain members of that class cannot take, those who can take will take. This rule of the Hindu law was contrary to the English doctrine. And the third point was whether the English rule of perpetuities should be made applicable to Hindus. These are the three salient points on which the Hindu law differed in the year 1882, and therefore the legislators of those days enacted the wise provision that special rules of Hindu Law, if any, were saved from the operation of Chapter II.

Now, as my Honourable friend Sir Brojendra Mitter pointed out, all these three points on which the Hindu law differed from rules in Chapter II in the Transfer of Property Act have been met and provided for, some in a separate statute, e.g., the statute which was passed at the instance of Sir Chimanlal Setalvad a few years ago under which gifts to unborn persons are now allowed, provided they do not offend against the rule against perpetuities, and another section of the Transfer of Property Act and the Indian Succession Act, not material for our present purposes. The rule about some members of a class taking their interest, the rule has now been altered so as to suit Hindu sentiment. Therefore the only question now is, "Is there any important rule of Hindu law which, we think, should be saved from the operation of Chapter II in the interest of the further development of the Hindu law?" My answer is clearly in the negative. What is important in this connexion to note is that judicial decisions and rulings during the last 45 years in British courts in India and in the Privy Council have not disclosed any more difference between the Hindu law and law contained in Chapter II of the Transfer of Property Act. Surely, 46 years is long enough for the purpose of discovering these differences. As my Honourable friends are aware, judicial activity has been very great during these 46 years.

Texts have been looked into. The whole field of Hindu law has been examined, through texts and translations, and it is a sure and practically safe position for this House to take that, if during these 46 years in British India and the Privy Council no rule of Hindu law has been found which is contrary to the principles contained in Chapter II. I say it is fairly safe for us to say that there is no such rule of Hindu law which being contrary to the provisions of Chapter II requires to be saved. But it was suggested by Pandit Motilal :

"Who knows there may be a rule of Hindu law lying secreted somewhere in texts which are not yet translated, buried somewhere in Smritis which have not yet been found."

That is a possible argument. As against this, one has to consider very carefully the question whether, by the retention of the words in question, we will not leave behind a prolific source of litigation. I can assure this House that if we leave these words as they are in the old Act, we will be adding to the uncertainty of Hindu titles. I am one of those who hold that the titles of Hindu men and women cause a considerable amount of vexatious litigation. Those who are in legal practice will agree that I am right. Even under existing law in cases in which e.g., a Hindu woman is concerned, counsel cannot very seldom give definite opinion because the rules are so complex and uncertain, on which the titles depend. There may be e.g., some distant reversioner in the seventh or the eighth degree lying in the depths of distant and unknown places, and he may come forward and say, "I am the nearest reversioner, and none other." Therefore, I say that Hindu titles are more especially uncertain than others and cause litigation. Although a practising lawyer, I hold strongly the view that Hindu money should not be unnecessarily wasted in litigation. I am convinced and I am sure those who, like me, are daily witnesses to the enormous volume of Hindu litigation are convinced that this Legislature should take all steps to stop this enormous waste of money which goes on in litigation because of the uncertainty of the Hindu law.

Pandit Motilal Nehru : I do not want to interrupt the Honourable Member. May I ask him to point out how the new amendment which is now proposed will affect the rights of a reversionary heir? (Laughter.)

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : There is no occasion for laughter. I did not say that the amendment would affect the rights of a reversioner. I was mentioning that titles in Hindu Law are already uncertain, and we will be adding to the uncertainty of Hindu titles if we do not clear this particular point now under discussion. My Honourable friend will fail to trip me by the jugglery of his interruption. I know the Hindu law quite as well as he does. What I was mentioning, possibly the point escaped the attention of my Honourable friend in his anxiety to trip me, was that the uncertainty of the Hindu law was already very great and I mentioned the reversioner's right as one instance which causes that uncertainty. The point is that we shall be adding to that uncertainty considerably more by leaving a loophole. My Honourable friend says "who knows there may be a contrary rule of Hindu law." That is the argument of my Honourable friend. "Who knows." "There may be a rule of Hindu law somewhere in some text which may be affected by Chapter II." I take his words and say that it is exactly this feeling that will cause the uncertainty and consequent litigation. The solicitor will say to his client the purchaser, in the words of my Honourable friend, "who knows there may be a contrary rule of Hindu law in texts lying somewhere laying down a contrary rule. So beware." Therefore, I am on safe ground even as a layman in asking this House to remove this uncertainty and oppose the amendment. It is the duty of this House to see that money is not unnecessarily wasted on litigation by their failing to remove what is sure to be a fruitful source of unnecessary, harassing and extravagant litigation.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That clause 3 of the Bill be omitted and consequential amendments be made."

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That clause 3 stand part of the Bill.”

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That clause 4 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. M. R. Jayakar : Sir, I have an amendment.

Mr. Lalchand Navarai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I oppose the whole clause. I object to this clause being made part of this Bill. This clause refers to the last paragraph of section 3 of the Transfer of Property Act, and as it stands at present it reads thus :

“ A person is said to have notice of a fact when he actually knows that fact or when, but for wilful abstention from inquiry or search which he ought to have made, or gross negligence, he would have known it, or when information of the fact is given to or obtained by his agent under the circumstances mentioned in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 29 ”.

Now, Sir, the proposed amendment to this paragraph is this :

“ In section 3 of the said Act, for the last paragraph containing the definition of ‘ notice ’ the following shall be substituted, namely :—

‘ A person is said to have notice of a fact when he actually knows that fact, or when, but for wilful abstention from an inquiry or search which he ought to have made, or gross negligence, he would have known it ’.”

Then, Sir, an explanation has been added to this clause which runs thus :

“ Where any transaction relating to immoveable property has been effected by a registered instrument, any person acquiring such property or any part of, or share or interest in, such property shall be deemed to have notice of such instrument as from the date of registration ”.

Now, it will be observed that the first difference between the old part and the new one is that the words “ when information of a fact is given to or obtained by his agent under the circumstances mentioned in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section two hundred and twenty-nine ” are deleted. I have no objection to that at all, but then I submit that, to make registration a notice at all events and always is what I object to. Those who are conversant with the environments and conditions in the mofussil—in villages and rural parts of the country—are aware that to make mere registration notice will operate very hardly upon people. Apart from the many difficulties that prevail in many rural areas, there is no facility I submit, in the registration offices for knowing whether a particular document has been registered or not. There is no facility in many of the registration offices in the mofussil to get a ready reference to a particular document having been registered. The practice in most parts of the country is this : when you go to a sub-registrar and say that you want to know whether a particular document has been registered, the reply always is that it is not easy to give an answer ; that he has no index or indices to which a reference could be made readily, and that without expense and delay, the information could not be got. The practice is that they ask one rupee for a search for each year. You can imagine what happens when one goes to find out whether a particular document has been registered before or not the reply is given “ We have to wade through water and dive deep into the ocean of registers to find out whether it has been registered or not.” Take it for the sake of argument that there is a very old document, about 60 or 70 years old, no one knows whether it is registered at all, and when you go and ask for the information you are asked to deposit Rs. 60 in order to find out whether it has been registered ; and even then it is not easy to find it out. Other difficulties also arise. Even the sub-registrar himself is not able to find it out so soon and the difficulty with him is this. It is a well known fact that in villages and in many towns there is no city survey or town or village survey. Therefore the houses are not numbered at all, and when you register a document, which is not marked with a number, it is not easy to find out whether a particular house has been sold or disposed of before or not. Therefore it is difficult for the sub-registrar to find out from the boundaries only whether a particular document really applies to a particular property. In other words, it is very difficult to identify the property from the property that has been already disposed of. These difficulties arise not only with regard to illiterate persons, but also literate. It will be very hard to make mere registration notice with regard to illiterate people because they do not know what registration is or what will be the effect of a particular document having been registered beforehand. Even with literate people these are the difficulties that I have pointed out; and until India makes all registration offices possess indices of such a nature that you can find out at a glance what document has been registered, until that time, it will be premature to pass this clause.

As regards arable land also the same difficulties arise. Arable land is no doubt surveyed during settlement operations and the lands are numbered; but there again there are lands at places where there is no settlement at all—unsettled lands—and there they do not give any number and the same difficulty arises as in the case of houses. Therefore as regards arable land also there is the same difficulty.

4 P.M.

Now, the reason given for this attempt to amend the law is contained in Appendix B—Notes on Clauses; and there it is said that notice, as defined in section 3, includes both actual and constructive notice, and as there is a conflict of decisions whether the registration of a document under the Indian Registration Act is of itself constructive notice of a transaction entered into by that document it has become necessary to make this amendment. The High Courts of Bombay and Allahabad hold that it is; the Madras High Court held that registration does not amount to notice in any case. It was observed that, if the Legislature desired to regard registration as notice, it would have said so in express words. In some cases the Calcutta High Court took the same view as the Madras High Court.

Now, Sir, the reason given for this enactment is that there is a difference of opinion between the High Courts. I say that that is a point in favour of my contention. The High Courts differ not only in law but on facts with respect to this, and I submit that this is not a question of law on which we are removing diversity of opinion, but a question of fact; and I say it is a question of fact on this ground: that these High Courts have held the effect of registration differently at different places as a matter of fact depending upon the circumstances of each case and the facilities that are available in different parts of the country with regard to finding out the old documents from the registration offices. Therefore the very fact that there is a divergence of opinion on this even among the High Courts shows that it should be left to be decided by each High Court in every case that comes before it as a question of fact. I would rely for my contention upon the ruling of a very eminent lawyer and judge—Sir Lawrence Jenkins who was a well-known Judge of the Bombay High Court and who also had the experience of the Calcutta High Court. What he has said is this:

“ Apart from authority, I should have thought that with regard to statutes applicable to this country, the proposition involved is not one of law but of fact, and that as each case arises it should be determined whether, in that individual case, the omission to search the register taken together with other facts, amounts to such gross negligence as to attract the consequence which results from notice, and it may well be said that this test will serve to reconcile the apparent conflict of views that at first sight the cases suggest.”

It is only a conflict at first sight, Sir, and I submit that it is a question of fact and should be left to the courts to decide. Sir, this is not the only ruling. This view is continued to be taken in the Calcutta High Court and is followed in 48 Cal. 1. We find, Sir, in the placitum to the ruling, the Court in Manindra Chandra Nand v. Troyluckho Nath Burat held,—

“ That having regard to the statutes applicable in this country the proposition involved is not one of law but of fact,”— the same thing that Sir Lawrence Jenkins said.

Then, Sir, I submit, that those who belong to the presidency towns may not be able to appreciate the difficulty that is felt by people in the villages where there are no registration facilities, because in presidency towns there are registration offices and there may be facilities to find out certain documents at a moment's notice. But I appeal to the House, and to those Honourable Members who belong to presidency towns in particular, to consider the condition of the rural population in India in regard to this matter.

Then, Sir, it was urged that the view of the Bombay High Court was that registration was notice. But there also the same distinction has been made in 45, Bombay, at page 173, by Justice Heaton. This is what he says:

“ There seems to be a good deal of misapprehension about registration and its effect as notice. Registration does not necessarily give notice to anybody of anything. But if a registered document is so indexed that an inquirer anxious to ascertain whether there are documents relating to a property which he proposes, for instance, to buy, can find from the index documents relating to that property, then it will be held that he has notice of those documents; because if he made the inquiry, which as prudent man he ought to make, then they would come to his notice.”

I submit, therefore, Sir, that the conflict in the law would not necessitate a drastic measure like this to be applied generally to the whole of India. I do not wish to take much time of the House, but I submit that the Select Committee have realised one difficulty at least. I do not know whether this point was pressed on them or whether they considered the point that there are not adequate registration facilities in a large number of villages where there are no registration offices, but they have realised at least one difficulty, and that is in regard to cases where documents are not registered in a district other than the one in which the property is situate. That is an additional circumstance, Sir, which supports my case about the difficulty not only of finding out certain relevant documents but also of going to other places to find out the same, because when one goes to the office of the registrar, he has not only to look through the records of the office where the property is situate, but he has also to search the records of another registration office if a memorandum has been recorded under section 66 of the Registration Act. Now, the Select Committee say:

“ It has been pointed out that the provision that the registration of a document amounts to notice from the date on which it is registered, will cause difficulty in a case in which the document has not been registered at the place where the property is situate. This objection has some force.”

It will be observed, Sir, that the Select Committee have not considered the point that I have placed before the House, but they have merely considered from what date it should have effect. Then, further on, the Select Committee say :

" We have, therefore, added at the end of Explanation I the following words :— or if the instrument has been registered under sub-section (2) of section 30 of the Indian Registration Act, 1908, from the earliest date on which a memorandum thereof has been filed by any Sub-Registrar under section 66 of that Act."

Therefore, Sir, I submit that the addition of another paragraph suggested by the Select Committee does not remove the objection that I have brought forward, and I therefore appeal to the House not to accept this amendment without serious consideration.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : Sir, the whole of this clause is unexceptionable, excepting Explanation I to which I take objection. Coming as I do from Madras, the Madras and the Calcutta views have always been that registration by itself is not sufficient notice. Now, the High Courts in these provinces take up the English view ; even in England it is found that the system of public registry is still imperfect, and there the law is that registration is not by itself sufficient notice. The American practice is, however, quite different. There they hold that registration is by itself notice. Bombay and Allahabad stick to this view. I do not know why the Select Committee were enamoured of the American practice in preference to the English practice, and I am in entire agreement with my friend Mr. Navalrai when he said that registration is not, after all, a question of law but of fact. He was, while on this point, referring to a decision of the Privy Council, but unfortunately omitted to read the relevant portion therein. I am referring to the Privy Council decision in Tilakdhari v. Khedan Lal, I. L. R. 48 Calcutta, page 1, where it has been held that registration by itself will not operate as constructive notice to the world at large, though in certain cases, having regard to the peculiar circumstances thereof, it may be tantamount to notice. This is what their Lordships say in their decision :

" Whether registration is or is not notice in itself, depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case, upon the degree of care and caution which an ordinarily prudent man would necessarily take for the protection of his own interest by search into the common registry..... It is a question not of law but of fact "

Sir, I would hesitate to give my assent to Explanation I unless the Honourable the Mover gives the House cogent reasons why he should deviate from the very healthy principle enunciated by their Lordships of the Privy Council. Sir, in this connection I am not unconscious of the relaxation, as I said already, of the rigidity of this rule by providing in the italicised portion of this Explanation that,

" if the instrument has been registered under sub-section (2) of section 30 of the Indian Registration Act, 1908, from the earliest date on which a memorandum thereof has been filed by any Sub-Registrar under section 66 of that Act "

No doubt, there is some relaxation of the rigidity in the rule, but the relaxation of the rigidity of the rule would not certainly enable any one to accept the principle of the rule itself. Sir, I can also emphasise the fact that in this country registration is very imperfect, and there are not sufficient registration offices to provide easy facilities for all people resident in the villages to register their documents. Sir, this is a continent of villages, and as there are not enough registration offices, it will be very difficult, it will be a great hardship upon the litigant public of the villages to enunciate and follow the provision that registration by itself is sufficient notice. Therefore, Sir, for these reasons I oppose the Explanation I to clause 4.

Mr. N. C. Chunder : Sir, on the question of registration being notice, I frankly confess that I still keep an open mind. It is a very difficult problem. So far as Calcutta is concerned, it really makes no difference whether registration is made notice or not, because it is notice already. If anybody buys property in Calcutta and omits to search the registers which are very well kept, ordinarily, he will at once be affected with negligence, and therefore with notice. But so far as the mofussil is concerned, for the first time I was surprised to hear from my friend Mr. Navalrai—and that was confirmed by my friend Mr. Belvi,—that there is no maximum amount fixed in Bombay for searching the indexes for a particular property. In Bengal the maximum amount is Rs. 20 for any particular name or any particular property. In any case, Sir, this Explanation is not being given retrospective effect, and that is a good thing. There has been a glaring omission, and I understand that my learned friend Mr. Jayakar is going to get that amended, but whether even with that amendment the Explanation, as it will then stand, will work hardship on the people in the mofussil or not, I have no means of knowing. But I can describe to you the practice in the registration offices in Bengal. There they keep two sets of books for indexes. Mr. Navalrai said that it is very difficult to gather information from the indexes. It may be because one does not know how many indexes are kept. Each document is indexed not merely according to the number or description of properties, but also according to the names of the persons who either execute that document or who claim any benefit under that document. If proper indexes are kept, these can be searched, and a maximum fee is fixed in Bengal. Therefore, if this Explanation becomes a part of the law, it will not cause great hardship in Bengal in any case, and as it is not going to have any retrospective effect, I hope Government will take steps to see that the searching facilities are very much improved. One thing which can be said against giving the doctrine of notice so far as registration is concerned a sort of statutory rigidity is that in cases of small properties where people are buying properties worth Rs. 20 or Rs. 50 or Rs. 100, for them to spend Rs. 20, the maximum which is fixed in Bengal, even that may be a large enough item, while, on the other hand, the law as it has now been settled by the Privy Council in Tilakdhari Lal's case, 47 Indian Appeals, stands thus : whether registration will or will not be notice is a question of fact, and it depends on whether there has been any negligence on the part of the purchaser or not. In other words, whether the purchaser has made proper inquiries, which include in the circumstances of the case supposed whether the purchaser was bound to make any inquiries. No Court, even though Courts do sometimes give foolish decisions, will ever give a decision like this, that while you are buying property worth Rs. 100 or Rs. 80, you must spend Rs. 20 on searching for encumbrances in the registration offices. So, whether the law should be left in its present condition of elasticity, or whether it should be given a statutory rigidity, that will be for the House to decide, but in deciding that, we have to take into consideration the fact that, in the mofussil, especially if the facts are as they have been stated by Mr. Belvi and by Mr. Navalrai, it would be simply ruinous to poor purchasers or to holders of land in the mofussil if they could not sell their lands unless the purchaser satisfied himself by searching the registration offices. It might cost the purchaser Rs. 60, or 80 or even more, because there may be joint offices, and in each case you would have to pay Rs. 60. In that view of the case the poor vendors will get few buyers, because, after all, when a man buys a property, he takes into account all the costs that he will have to incur in buying that property. The incidence of all these expenses that are incurred naturally falls on the vendor, and if the facts are as they have been stated and if we do not get any contradiction of those facts, then I submit that the House will be well advised just for the present to omit Explanation 1 altogether.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : It is the very Privy Council decision in Tilakdhari Lal's case which is the occasion for the change proposed. The law, as has now been settled by the Privy Council, is this, that whether registration is or is not notice depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case, upon the degree of care and caution which an ordinary prudent man will necessarily take for the protection of his own interest by searching the registers kept under the Registration Act. The result of that has been that in every case when the issue of notice or no notice is raised long litigation follows, and in view of that, the late Dr. Rash Behari Ghosh says :

“ The test laid down by the Privy Council inevitably leads to much perjury and litigation.”

Before the Privy Council decision there was a considerable conflict of opinions in the different High Courts. While that conflict has been set at rest by the Privy Council decision, the effect of that decision is much perjury and litigation. In order to avoid that, the Bill provides that registration should be notice in all cases.

One objection raised is that there is difficulty of search, and other objection is, in case of small properties, that the cost of search is disproportionate to the value of the property. As regards the difficulty of search, that is a matter which can be easily remedied by amending the rules under the Registration Act ; that has got nothing to do with the Transfer of Property Act. If this clause is passed by the Legislature here, then, having regard to the change, it will be incumbent upon the Provincial Governments to revise their registration rules in order to make searches easy of accomplishment.

Mr. N. C. Chunder : Will they make them ? Registration is a transferred subject.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : It is a transferred subject. If the present Bill is passed, then it will be incumbent on all Provincial Governments to revise their registration rules—rules as regards search, rules as regards fee, and all the other rules relating to searches.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : That might take years.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : That is no reason. Because the Provincial Governments might take a long time in revising their registration rules, is that any reason why a salutary rule which is expected to have the effect of avoiding ruinous litigation and perjury—is that a sufficient reason why such a provision should be postponed ? Is it suggested that the rules regarding search should be revised first and then the law should be amended here in the Transfer of Property Act ? I do not think that any Honourable Member will make that suggestion.

As regards the point which was made by Mr. Sesha Ayyangar or by Mr. Navalrai—I forget which—that there may be irregularities or mistakes in registers, and if a transferee is affected with notice of anything contained in such registers he may be seriously prejudiced. Mr. Jayakar has tabled an amendment and I am going to accept that amendment making provision for irregularities and mistakes.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : What is that amendment ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : The amendment which has been tabled is this :

“ After Explanation 1 to clause 4 of the Bill, the following proviso be inserted :

‘ Provided that :

- (1) the instrument has been registered and its registration completed in the manner prescribed by the Indian Registration Act of 1908 and the rules made thereunder,
- (2) the instrument has been duly entered or filed as the case may be in books kept under section 51 of that Act, and
- (3) the particulars regarding the transaction to which the instrument relates have been correctly entered in the indexes kept under section 55 of the Act ’.”

If this amendment is accepted by the House, then that will meet the case of mistakes and irregularities. As regards small properties to which my Honourable friend Mr. Chunder referred, Mr. Sesha Ayyangar has got two amendments, which, as I have already said, I will accept. In that case small properties will be excluded from compulsory registration. There will then be no hardship on purchasers of small properties. Now, the first objection raised is the irregularity or mistakes in registers. The second objection is the difficulty of search and the third objection is with regard to small properties. If the amendments of Mr. Sesha Ayyangar and Mr. Jayakar are accepted, then all these objections will be met.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : What about the expenses of search ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : That is a matter for the Provincial Governments to make rules under the Registration Act.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : What guarantee is there that the Provincial Governments will do it.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : That is not a matter for us to consider now. I will make my position clear. At the present moment, all transfers of the value of more than Rs. 100 have to be registered. If exorbitant expenses are incurred under the present law, we cannot help it. In so far as the value of property, in respect of which registration is made compulsory, is concerned, we are making no change. It will be the same as now. If there be any hardship at the present moment, we cannot here do anything by way of affording relief. All we are doing here is this. In respect of properties of a higher value than Rs. 100, registration which is now compulsory will be notice. That is all that is proposed now. If there be facilities for search, then even under the present law it is notice. If there be no facilities under the present law, then under the Privy Council decision, it may not be notice. That is the state of things now. Therefore, whenever that question of notice or no notice arises under the present law, protracted litigation is always the result. If you make registration notice, all that litigation will be avoided. Thus it is a beneficent proposal. It saves small properties. It makes provision for mistakes and irregularities. As regards the revision of rules under the Registration Act, that is a matter for the Provincial Governments, which we cannot deal with here. For these reasons I submit that the proposal in the Bill should be accepted by the House.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : When we adopted this clause, the Honourable the Law Member will remember that he gave us to understand that the Government of India would take steps, as far as it lay in their power, to see that the Local Governments would make rules under the Registration Act, but his statement to-day.....

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : I was talking of this House. We cannot in this House do anything. Undoubtedly, if this Bill is passed, the Government of India will take every step to impress upon Provincial Governments that their rules under the Registration Act require revision. So far as the Government of India are concerned, the attention of Local Governments will be drawn to the matter without delay.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : I may tell the House that some of us in the Select Committee were compelled to come to the conclusion that registration should be notice. I do not wish to add anything to what the Law Member has said. As regards small properties, if this House will exclude small properties from registration, then that argument goes. Then really nothing is left except this, that the House should leave the people to litigate on a question of fact whether the purchasers had notice or no notice. It means long trial, evidence on both sides and lots of expense and costs. Having regard to the Privy Council case, if the property is registered, then in 99 cases out of a hundred, the Court will start with the presumption of notice. Therefore, instead of leaving the matter to be litigated in each case, is it not better that we should put an end to all this by treating registration as notice? After a great deal of consideration, we came to the conclusion that this course should be adopted.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Has the Honourable Member considered the question of cost of searching out whether there is any previous document registered?

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : The only expense is the expense of search. We considered that at great length. We made inquiries both as regards presidency towns and the mofussils, and we were told that in most places there is a system of registration, and the cost of search is very small. It is said that the cost of search is high. How high is that?

Mr. N. C. Chunder : It is Rs. 20 in Bengal.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : You are searching as a pleader or solicitor for a purchaser. You want to see whether the property has been dealt with previously. You go to the Registrar's office to search, merely to see from the register whether that property has been dealt with prior to your buying it. Surely you will try to ascertain what would be the cost of the search of that. It cannot be more than few rupees. (Cries of "No, no.")

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Excuse me when I say that, if it is not known whether the property has been dealt with, you may have to search for a number of years backwards and pay one rupee for each year's search.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : Supposing you should pay a rupee a year—and I take it that generally 40 years' title is good title, and in some cases you may go as far back as 40 years. (An Honourable Member : "Even more".) I should have thought 30 years is enough.....

Mr. N. C. Chunder : The Calcutta practice is to go back up to 1865.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : Well it may be, and I agree that there is the question of the cost of search. I will only say that we were not able to get any information that the cost was so heavy as the Honourable Member now points out to me. We were under the impression that the cost of search was very small. (An Honourable Member : "It is not".) Well in that case I again say this. I would appeal to the Honourable the Law Member to see that some redress is given for the purpose of search and to see that this heavy cost is reduced. But there is no other cost that I can think of. Either then, have this and pay Rs. 30 or Rs. 40 (at most it comes to that), or have a law suit and have pleaders on both sides, go on with your case, call witness after witness, which will lead to inconvenience to parties, to protraction of trial, to cost, but you will have to choose between these. Otherwise I see no remedy. And I know this perfectly well that, in so far as Bombay is concerned, there is no objection to the legislation.

Now, there is only one more point. The Honourable Member said that there is no facility for registration. Now that also we considered at very great length and we were told, at least by those Members serving on the Committee who were representatives of Commerce, that in all provinces now the system is being introduced and is growing. Now if you have got a register, and the register is kept according to the rules, and you search that register, and if there is no reference made to that property, then surely you cannot be said to have had notice. If it is there and you neglect to notice it, then you have notice; but if it is not in there, or if a book is not kept at all—in some parts of the Honourable Member's district there is no register kept—if no such register is kept, then you cannot be said to have notice.....

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : The Honourable Member did not follow me. I did not mean that no registers are kept, but that there are so many registers kept and there is no index to show it at a glance and so the Registrar has to go through all the registers and therefore the charge will be very heavy.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : The only answer I can give is that in that case I have no doubt that the Government of India will look into this matter and will urge upon the Local Governments to improve the keeping of their records.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : That is putting the cart before the horse.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah : It is not putting the cart before the horse. The very fact that the Legislature is going to pass this Bill, the very fact that the Government of India are responsible for it, and the very fact that the Government of India have given an undertaking on the floor of this House that they are going to see to it, I say that is sufficient for my purpose, and I say that the Government will carry it out, and if they do not carry it out, then surely the remedy is in your hands and you can certainly move this Legislature to act in whatever manner you like in the future.

[10TH SEPT. 1929.]

[Mr. M. A. Jinnah.]

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Wednesday, the 11th September, 1929.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Wednesday, 11th September, 1929.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President in the Chair.

MEMBER SWORN :

Mr. Herbert William Emerson, C.I.E., C.B.E., M.L.A. (Home Secretary).

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

RECRUITMENT FROM ENGLAND IN 1924 OF TWO SIGNAL INSPECTORS FOR THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

346. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Is it a fact that in 1924 on the East Indian Railway two Signal Inspectors were recruited from England on a temporary agreement of three years ?

(b) Were they confirmed in their appointment and, if so, when ?

(c) Were any subordinates in the Signals Department promoted to the Superior Railway Service during the period 1924 and till these two covenanted men were confirmed ?

(i) If so, how many ?

(ii) If not, did the Agent of the East Indian Railway obtain the sanction of the Railway Board before thus increasing the cadre of the Department ?

(iii) If not, what action do the Railway Board intend to take ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I propose to reply to questions Nos. 346, 347, 348, 418 and 419 together. A full report of the circumstances was called for from the Agent of the East Indian Railway and reached the Board only yesterday. I hope to be able to give my Honourable friend a full reply within the next few days.

NUMBER AND QUALIFICATIONS OF ASSISTANT SIGNAL INSPECTORS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

†347. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) How many Assistant Signal Inspectors are there on the East Indian Railway ?

(b) What are the special qualifications possessed by the two covenanted men and which are not possessed by Assistant Signal Inspectors recruited locally that called for their recruitment on covenanted service ?

(c) Were any of the Assistant Signal Inspectors ever allowed to officiate for any period as Signal Inspectors ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 346.

( 565 )

- (i) If so, who were they ?
 (ii) What were the reports of the officer in charge on their work ?

RECRUITMENT FROM ENGLAND OF TWO SIGNAL INSPECTORS FOR THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

†348. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) How many of the total cadre (grades 1 and 2) of Signal Inspectors excluding the two covenanted men referred to in the two preceding questions are :

- (i) covenanted men ;
 (ii) locally recruited ; and
 (iii) promoted from the grade of Assistant Signal Inspectors ?
 (b) Is it a fact that the training which candidates have to undergo before their appointment as Assistant Signal Inspectors now and for the past decade is and has been more rigorous than that underwent by the men mentioned in part (a) (iii) ?
 (c) Did the Agent, East Indian Railway, make any efforts at recruiting from among his worthy subordinates before confirming or continually employing the two covenanted Inspectors ?

PURCHASE OF PATENT TYPES OF ENGINES FOR INDIAN RAILWAYS.

349. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Are any patent types of engines purchased for use on Indian Railways ? If so, what are they ?
 (b) Which countries and firms supply them ?
 (c) What is the justification for the purchase of patent types in each case ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) While a number of locomotives purchased by Indian Railways incorporate certain patented features, Government understand that it would not be correct to describe any as patent types. Such locomotives as the Mallet, Kitson Meyers, Garratt, Sentinel and Clayton types probably include more patented features than the ordinary types of locomotive in service.

(b) Of the types mentioned above the Kitson Meyers, Sentinel and Clayton types are, it is understood, manufactured exclusively in Great Britain. The Garratt type is manufactured in Great Britain and on the Continent of Europe, and Mallets all manufactured in Great Britain, on the Continent of Europe and in America.

(c) I am afraid it is impossible for me to give a detailed answer to this question. The types of locomotives above referred to have features which make them suitable for special operating conditions, e.g., an articulated locomotive makes it possible to provide larger tractive effort with a lower axle load, and is peculiarly suitable for sections of railway with heavy grades.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : I wanted to know whether there were any advantages in the patent types of the articulated locomotives. Will the Honourable Member please enlighten me on this point ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 346.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Yes, Sir. When a locomotive is of a special kind, such as the articulated kind, it is common knowledge that it is probable that there would be more patent features than in an ordinary engine, just because it is a little out of the ordinary run.

TYPES OF ENGINES USED ON INDIAN RAILWAYS.

350. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Are there patent and non-patent types for one specification or one kind of service in the engines used on railways in India, e.g., Garret for articulated engines ? If so, in which case are such types used and with what justifications ?

(b) Which railways use articulated engines and in what numbers in each case ? What is the price of each type of articulated engine ? And which are the countries and firms from which each type is purchased and for what price in each case ?

(c) Have the tenders been called for for articulated engines all over the world ? If so, will Government be pleased to give a description in each case of tender and its acceptance ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) If the Honourable Member is using the word "specification" in the technical sense in which it is used on railways, the answer is that, generally speaking, locomotives are purchased against one general specification, which specification is amplified as necessary in particular specifications to cover whatever variations from the general specification are necessary. The Honourable Member is no doubt aware that it is common practice to specify certain patented fittings on engines.

(b) and (c). There are articulated engines in use on the North-Western, Assam Bengal, Burma and Bengal Nagpur Railways. I am trying to collect whatever information is readily available and shall communicate with the Honourable Member later.

NATURE OF GOVERNMENT CONTROL OVER COMPANY-MANAGED RAILWAYS IN REGARD TO PURCHASES.

351. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : What is the control of the Railway Board or Government in the case of Company-managed railways (e.g., the Bengal Nagpur Railway) in regard to the purchase of articles without calling for tenders, or the favouring of patentees or others by purchasing their articles at a higher price ? Have any such cases been discovered in audit ? If so, will Government be pleased to give a description in each case, especially in cases of the universal sleepers and Garret engines ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I am afraid it is impossible for me to give a general answer to the first part of the Honourable Member's question. The control exercised by Government over Company-managed railways is based on the contracts existing between the Government and individual Railway Administrations. Copies of these contracts are in the Library of the House. Any failure of the Railway Company to carry out the terms of the contracts, either in procedure or in incurring expenditure, would be taken up by the Government Examiner of Accounts and a record of important cases of that character will be found in the appropriation accounts of the Indian Railways. With regard to the second and third parts of the question, I am informed that Audit Officers have not called attention to the cases which I think the Honourable Member has chiefly in mind, namely, the universal sleepers and the Garret engines, and so far as the Garret engines are concerned, I am not aware of any reason why they should do so.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : My question particularly was if there is any control over the purchase of articles of Company-managed railways. Is there any such control provided in the contracts? That is my specific question.

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I cannot answer the Honourable Member's question fully if he means what are the exact powers of control. But I am quite prepared to say this that, if the Government of India found that a practice was growing up of not calling for tenders in cases where obviously tenders ought to be called for, or if it was found in the case of any article in general use that there was reason to believe that patented articles were being purchased where an unpatented article would serve the purpose equally well, and was cheaper, then without any doubt we should make inquiries on the subject and ascertain the facts, and I have no doubt that our powers of control, whatever exactly they may be, are quite sufficient to deal with such cases.

MANUFACTURE OF LOCOMOTIVES IN INDIA.

352. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (1) What are the attempts being made to manufacture locomotives in India?

(2) How many locomotive manufacturers are there in England, Germany, America, Belgium, Japan and other countries?

(3) What number of locomotives are produced on the average in each such country?

(4) What is the smallest number of locomotives manufactured in a single factory in any country which keeps on going without a loss?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (1) As far as Government are aware, locomotives are manufactured in India only by the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway at Ajmer.

(2), (3) and (4). Government have no information.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : May I ask the Honourable Member whether the Government of India are prepared to ascertain if a locomotive firm can be run in India and had there been collected any information to that effect by the Railway Board?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I am afraid we have no information about that. I cannot answer these questions.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Is the Honourable Member prepared to give any subsidy or bounty or guarantee for purchase if any private company wanted to manufacture locomotives?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I think, Sir, as regards the manufacture of locomotives the matter rests where it did after the report of the Tariff Board was submitted in 1924. The Tariff Board then recommended that it was not desirable to protect the manufacture of locomotives in India.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : May I know if this information was collected even when the Tariff Board inquired into the matter?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I was a member of the Tariff Board at the time, Sir, and I do not recollect that we had before us anything like such complete information as the Honourable Member has asked for.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : What has happened to the manufacture of locomotives at Ajmer by the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway? Is it continuing now?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : It is continuing at present.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Is it only for the locomotives or for the locomotive parts?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : If the Honourable Member refers to the railway workshop at Ajmer, I think it was about 20 years ago or more that they began to manufacture locomotives, and they have continued to do so ever since. The Government have recently instituted an investigation to ascertain whether the manufacture of locomotives at Ajmer can be justified on economic grounds and that investigation is not yet complete.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : In view of that, will the Honourable Member make an effort to collect the information required in parts 2, 3 and 4?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I am very doubtful whether, without the kind of inquiry which the Tariff Board might make, we can get accurate and reliable information on this point. It is a very difficult question to investigate what is the minimum number of locomotives per annum which makes an economic unit. The Tariff Board have always found that it was a matter that required very close investigation. Now, practically the Government of India are not in a position to carry out that kind of investigation.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Do Government suggest that, though locomotives have been manufactured at Ajmer for nearly 20 years, and although the Government have got a predominant interest in the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, and though they are the exclusive proprietors of the Rajputana-Malwa Railway, they still do not know whether the locomotives are being manufactured at economic prices?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : The Honourable Member may take it for granted that, if we already knew it, we should not have ordered an investigation.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta : Is there any reason why they did not know it?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : That question, I think, might be addressed to my predecessors.

PURCHASE OF RAILWAY MATERIALS IN INDIA.

353. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to give a list of imported railway materials which can be manufactured and are being manufactured in India, e.g., cast-iron sleepers and parts of under-frames, with an explanation in each case as to why the entire demand was not purchased in the indigenous market ?

(b) Is there any agency to see that purchases for Indian railways are directed as far as possible to materials produced in India ? If so, what is that agency, and has there been any report of such efforts ?

(c) Why is not the Indian Stores Department used in our railway purchases in India ? What is the advantage of making purchases through Agents of railways ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) I am afraid that the statement asked for by the Honourable Member could not be prepared without an expenditure of time and labour altogether disproportionate to its value.

(b) State-managed railways are required to send copies of all indents for the purchase of stores from abroad to the Indian Stores Department ; and these indents are scrutinized at monthly meetings by representatives of the Railway Board and the Indian Stores Department in order to see that they do not contain any item which can be purchased in India.

(c) This question has been discussed many times during Budget debates on the floor of this House and I think my Honourable friend will find the information he requires in speeches made by the Honourable Sir Charles Innes and by myself on this subject.

FUNCTIONS OF THE CONSULTING ENGINEER FOR RAILWAYS.

354. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) What is the function of the Consulting Engineer for Railways ?

(b) What has made it necessary for the Consulting Engineers to have a branch in India in future ? Cannot the functions of the Consulting Engineers be taken over by the Inspection Department of the Indian Stores Department ?

(c) Have Government prepared any estimate of the expenditure incurred on account of the Consulting Engineers as compared with that which would be incurred if the Inspection were taken over by the Indian Stores Department ?

(d) What is the percentage charged by the Consulting Engineers ? What is the percentage charged by the Inspection Department of the Indian Stores Department ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Presumably the Honourable Member is referring to the Consulting Engineers to the Government of India, who are consulted by most railways (including all State-managed railways) on engineering subjects. The post of Consulting Engineer for Railways was abolished a long time ago, and the functions of that post were quite different.

(b) The necessity for the establishment of a Branch of the Consulting Engineers in India has been fully set out in the Government of India's Resolution No. S.465, dated the 28th November, 1928, published in the Gazette of India, dated the 1st December, 1928, and I would refer the Honourable Member to that Resolution.

As regards the second part of the question, while the Inspection Branch of the Indian Stores Department acts as Consulting Engineers to some extent, its main function is inspection of stores purchased either by the Indian Stores Department, or by other bodies such as the Railways, who may require inspection to be done. It is not equipped to act as Consulting Engineers in a general way and not equipped for consultation work on railway projects.

(c) and (d). The Consulting Engineers do no inspection in India. The Indian Stores Department charges 1 per cent. on the contract value of the stores it inspects.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Does the Honourable Member refer to the Consulting Engineers for Railways who have opened a branch in India and who were given instructions to see whether the articles of purchase were to the specifications recommended by the various specification committees ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : I have said that they are not the Consulting Engineers for Railways. They are Consulting Engineers to the Government of India. I have also said that they have established a branch of their firm in India. If the Honourable Member wants more information on this subject, I would refer him to the memorandum placed before the Standing Finance Committee, dated the 14th January, 1928, with reference to which that body accorded their approval to the establishment of the branch of the firm in India.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : May I know if there is any firm of Consulting Engineers for Railways in England ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Not to my knowledge.

TYPES AND COST OF STEEL AND CAST-IRON SLEEPERS IN USE ON INDIAN RAILWAYS.

355. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Excluding the types sanctioned by the Permanent Way Specification Committee, how many other types of (i) steel and (ii) cast-iron sleepers are there in use on Indian railways for various sections of rails ?

(b) What are the advantages of these various types and what is the price of each as compared with the Railway Board types ?

(c) For how many years have the universal type steel and cast-iron sleepers been in use on Indian Railways, and what is the price and quantity purchased each year ? Are they used by any other railway than the Bengal Nagpur Railway ?

(d) How does the price of the universal sleepers both steel and cast-iron compare with the sleepers of the Railway Board type ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) and (b). Steel and cast-iron sleepers have been in use on Indian Railways for about half a century, during which a vast number of types have been introduced. Many such types were discovered to be defective in some respects, and have since been removed from running lines, but they are still to be found in obscure sidings. The types vary from steel to various combinations of steel and cast-iron. The Honourable Member will understand that the collection of the information asked for by him would involve great labour and time, as the drawings and records connected with the introduction of many of the types have been destroyed. The steel sleepers which survive to this day may generally be classified as the pea-pod type, sub-divided according to the nature of the fastenings used, such as keys, with or without auxiliary gibs, bolts and nuts with rail clips, etc. The surviving cast-iron sleepers may be divided into the pot type and the plate type, each having its adherents among the different Indian Railways, and each sub-divided into many different varieties. It is impossible to pronounce upon their relative advantages, as experts themselves differ upon the subject. The prices vary generally according to the weight, which itself is governed by the axle-loads which the sleeper is designed to carry. Speaking generally, the Railway Board types are somewhat cheaper, strength for strength.

(c) Government are not aware of any steel sleeper called the "Universal". The Universal type cast-iron sleeper was introduced in 1925. It has been mainly used by the Bengal Nagpur Railway, but is now under trial by some other railways. The number purchased by the Bengal Nagpur Railway in 1925-26 and in following years has been 800, 11,000, 32,000, 268,000 and 97,000. The price for the light type (which amounted to a quarter of the total number purchased) was Rs. 9 each and for the heavy type was Rs. 10½.

(d) The Railway Board's standard sleepers cost at present Rs. 8½ to Rs. 9 each.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Does the Honourable Member say that there is no "universal type" of steel sleepers?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I said that the Government were not aware of any steel sleeper called the "universal sleeper". There is a "universal" cast-iron sleeper.

PURCHASE OF STEEL AND CAST-IRON SLEEPERS BY THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY.

356. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Have sections 43, 47 and 73 of the Contracts relating to the Bengal Nagpur Railway system been fully and properly observed in the case of the purchase of the universal type of sleepers, both steel and cast-iron?

(b) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table all documents and correspondence regarding the tenders, if any, for the purchase of the universal type of sleepers?

(c) Is there an audit report in the case of purchase of the universal type of sleepers? If so, will Government be pleased to lay the report or reports on the table?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) No breach of these sections regarding purchase of sleepers has, so far as I am aware, been brought to the notice of Government by the Auditor concerned.

(b) These papers are not before Government and the question of laying them on the table does not arise at present.

(c) I am not aware of any such report.

PURCHASE BY THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY OF UNIVERSAL SLEEPERS PATENTED BY FORMER EMPLOYEES OF THAT RAILWAY.

357. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Is it a fact that the universal sleepers are contemplated in the patents Nos. 11281, 11282 and 11283 of 1926 granted to Messrs. R. D. T. Alexander, Henry William Joyce, and David Leslie?

(b) Is it also a fact that the three patentees referred to in part (a) above are and were Civil Engineers in the employ of the Bengal Nagpur Railway—Mr. R. D. T. Alexander—the Chief Engineer and other two assistants of the Bengal Nagpur Railway?

(c) Is it a fact that those Civil Engineers—the patentees—have arranged with Henry Williams, Ltd. and Burn & Co. for the manufacture and supply of those universal sleepers?

(d) Has the firm, Henry Williams, Ltd., any connection with the patentee, Henry William Joyce?

(e) Is it a fact that the universal type of steel sleepers is exclusively manufactured and supplied by Messrs. Henry Williams, Ltd.?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : Sir, with your permission, I propose to answer questions 357 to 360 together.

The Honourable Member was good enough to call my personal attention some time ago to some of the points raised by these questions. The information in my possession, however, is still incomplete, and a full report has been called for from the Agent. As soon as it is received, I will send the information asked for to my Honourable friend, and a copy will be laid on the table of this House.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : May I know in this connection whether the Honourable Member inquired particularly into question 357 (d), and if he has got any information at all?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I have got some information, but I would rather not make an incomplete statement on this subject. I have no desire to withhold any information from the House and I have promised to lay on the table of this House a copy of the full statement that I hope to send to the Honourable Member.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Sir, in this connection I may be permitted to draw the attention.....

Mr. President : The Honourable Member must ask a supplementary question.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Has the Honourable Member noticed paragraph 65 at page 31 of the Report of the Accountant General, Railways, for 1927-28, under the heading, "Land leased at nominal rates" in which it is stated in sub-paragraph (4) :

"A certain firm has been given a lease at annas 8 per 1,000 square feet per mensem of 2,97,870 square feet of land, whereon it has erected workshops which are not used exclusively for work done on behalf of the Bengal Nagpur Railway. The recurring loss to the Railway in this case comes to about Rs. 52,000 per annum."

Also in the first paragraph it is stated :

"There is no evidence of a compensating gain in the shape of lower rates, since some of the contractors who have been given the use of railway lands at a nominal for action on the lines indicated in the second portion of the Honourable Member's question does not arise.

TYPES AND COST OF INDIGENOUS AND IMPORTED POINTS AND CROSSINGS USED ON INDIAN RAILWAYS.

363. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) How many types of points and crossings are used on the Indian Railways ?

(b) Are they also made of cast steel, and if so, what is the percentage ?

(c) Is there any specification of points and crossings, and if so, what are they ?

(d) What is the annual average requirements of points and crossings of each railway and what percentage of the points and crossings have been purchased from indigenous sources year after year in each railway for the last five years ? Which Indian firm or firms manufacture and supply these points and crossings ?

(e) What are the prices paid both in India and England for each type of points and crossings ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Government have no information, but the number must be very large. The Railway Board are at present standardizing nine sets each for 115 lb., 90 lb., 75 lb., 60 lb. and 50 lb. rails, altogether 45 sets approximately. It is proposed that these standards should be used in future on State-managed railways.

(b) Crossings used to be made of cast steel, but the practice has been given up.

(c) Yes. I can supply a copy to the Honourable Member, if he desires.

(d) No information is available on this point. But so far as I know all sets ordered to the new standard designs have been obtained from firms in India. Points and crossings are manufactured by most of the Indian firms undertaking railway track work (such as Henry Williams, Limited, Burn and Company, Rishardson and Cruddas, and others).

(e) As I have already stated, the standard points and crossings introduced by the Railway Board have not, so far as is known, been ordered from England. The Indian prices vary for each set, and in each tender according to the current price of the raw materials : it is considered that the collection and tabulation of the prices from the different railways would involve an amount of expenditure and labour incommensurate with the value of the information obtained.

METHOD OF CALCULATION OF PRICE OF IMPORTED SLEEPERS, TIE BARS, KEYS AND COTTERS.

364. *Pandit Nilakantha Das : (a) Regarding the purchase of steel and cast-iron sleepers, tie bars, keys and cotteners, is it a fact that tenders are called for f. o. r. destination ?

(b) Is it a fact that orders are placed with Indian manufacturers f. o. r. destination and with European manufacturers f. o. b. their own ports and in their own money (vide Indian Trade Journal 28th March, 1929, page 713 and ibid, 18th April, 1929, page 147) ?

(c) Is it a fact that discrepancies long after purchase have sometimes got to be adjusted in exchange as well as customs duty of certain articles purchased in European markets (e.g., tie bars, keys and cotteners, which have been by mistake paying 10 per cent. ad valorem, may in future be calculated at Rs. 26 and 37 per ton with retrospective effect) ?

(d) Who will pay the money if in future more is to be paid on account of duty or exchange—Government or the supplier ?

(e) Do Government propose to demand tenders f. o. r. destination in Indian money from foreign manufacturers also ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) and (b). Orders placed with European manufacturers are usually placed f. o. b. at a European port. Large orders placed with Indian firms are usually placed f. o. r. at the manufacturing centre, and only in exceptional cases is the order placed f. o. r. destination, as for example when the goods require to be inspected before being taken over, and inspection at the manufacturing centre cannot be arranged. The Honourable Member's question has drawn my attention to the possibility that in such cases a comparison of the prices of Indian and imported articles may be unfair, because the railway freight from an Indian port to destination would usually be calculated at railway material rates and the freight on the Indian articles at ordinary commercial rates. I have asked the Railway Board to examine the question and advise what action should be taken.

(c) If the rate of customs duty on a particular article is varied between the time when the order is placed and the time of importation, it is obvious that the actual price may be higher or lower than the calculated price. Variations in the course of exchange may also have a similar result. I cannot accept the suggestion that the 10 per cent. duty assessed on the tie bars, keys and cotteners, is not the rate of duty actually imposed by the existing law.

(d) If by the contract of sale the price of the imported article is fixed in sterling f. o. b. a European port, the gain or loss arising from variations in the rate of customs duty or in the exchange accrues to or falls upon Government and not upon the supplier.

(e) With the introduction of the rupee tender system, contracts for the purchases of imported articles will be made in rupees. If the price is fixed c. i. f. an Indian port, variations in the exchange will not affect the price paid by Government, but changes in the customs duty will still do so. I think it unlikely that orders for imported articles will often be placed f. o. r. destination.

Pandit Nilakantha Das : Then am I to understand that Government are not going to arrange that they will quote prices,—as I understood it,—prices f. o. r. destination even in the case of imported articles ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I think it is very unlikely. It has not specifically come before the Government of India to decide what the practice will be when the new system comes into force and I am giving my own personal opinion that it is unlikely that this system will be adopted.

rent were paid exactly the same rates as other contractors who had not been provided with railway land by the Bengal Nagpur Railway."

Mr. President : What is the Honourable Member's question ?

Pandit Nilkantha Das : My question is, has the Honourable Member noticed this ? And may I suggest that it is the same Henry Williams, Ltd. ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I had not personally noticed this particular paragraph, but my Honourable friend Mr. Rau tells me that it has been noticed by the Railway Board, and I understand that instructions on that particular point have been issued.

CONDEMNED STEEL SLEEPERS OF THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY ALTERED AND RE-SUPPLIED TO THE RAILWAY AS UNIVERSAL SLEEPERS.

†358. *Pandit Nilkantha Das : (a) Is it a fact that the Bengal Nagpur Railway, as per a private contract, supplies so-called condemned steel sleepers to Henry Williams, Ltd., who in turn after making some slight alterations supply back those very sleepers to the Bengal Nagpur Railway as universal steel sleepers ? If so, what is the price per ton paid to Henry Williams, Ltd., for those additions and alterations in the so-called condemned sleepers ? What is the price per ton of the universal sleepers made therefrom ? What is the quantity of these steel sleepers supplied year after year by Henry Williams, Ltd. ? How many years had the so-called condemned sleepers been used before they were supplied to Henry Williams, Ltd., to be made into universal steel sleepers ?

(b) Was the price f. o. r. destination or f. o. r. manufacturing firm ? What is the price f. o. r. destination in each case compared with the price of Railway Board sleepers ?

QUANTITY AND PRICE OF UNIVERSAL CAST-IRON SLEEPERS SUPPLIED BY MESSRS. BURN & CO., AND BENGAL IRON, LTD.

†359. *Pandit Nilkantha Das : (a) Is it a fact that universal cast-iron sleepers are supplied exclusively by the combine of Messrs. Burn & Co. and Bengal Iron, Ltd. ? What is the quantity purchased year after year from them and for what price ? What is the price as compared with Railway Board sleepers ? Are tenders called for for universal type cast-iron sleepers ?

(b) Is the price f. o. r. destination or f. o. r. manufacturing firm ? What is the price calculated as f. o. r. destination in each case compared with the price of Railway Board sleepers there ?

PURCHASE FOR THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY OF STEEL AND CAST-IRON SLEEPERS BY MR. R. D. T. ALEXANDER.

†360. *Pandit Nilkantha Das : (a) Is it a fact that the Controller of Stores is entrusted generally with all sales of scrap and purchase of stores in the Bengal Nagpur Railway ?

(b) Is it also a fact that the supply of condemned steel sleepers to Henry Williams and the purchase of cast-iron and steel universal sleepers are entrusted not to the Controller of Stores but exclusively to the Chief Engineer, Bengal Nagpur Railway, Mr. R. D. T. Alexander, one of the partners of the patentees of these sleepers ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 357.

EXTENT OF BUSINESS ENTRUSTED TO MESSRS. HOARE MILLER & CO., BY THE BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY.

361. *Pandit Nilkantha Das : (a) What business of the Bengal Nagpur Railway is entrusted to Hoare Miller & Co. ?

(b) Are tenders called for for the supplies entrusted to Hoare Miller & Co., if any ? Has Hoare Miller & Co. any connection with R. Miller, Esq., Chairman of the Home Board of the Bengal Nagpur Railway ?

(c) What is the extent of the business entrusted to Hoare Miller & Co. by the Bengal Nagpur Railway ?

(d) What is the reason for getting the Mayurbhanj State Railway entrusted to the Bengal Nagpur Railway, sub-managed by Hoare Miller & Co. ?

(e) Are Hoare Miller & Co. a commissioned agent so far as the Mayurbhanj State Railway is concerned ? If so what is the commission paid to them year after year ?

(f) Are Hoare Miller & Co. entrusted with the management of any other Railway in India ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a), (b) and (c). Government have no information, but have called for a report.

(d) and (e). The Railway is the property of the Mayurbhanj Railway Company, of which Messrs. Hoare Miller and Co. are the Managing Agents. The line is worked by Government through the agency of the Bengal Nagpur Railway Company. The Mayurbhanj Railway Company are allowed, subject to certain conditions, Rs. 6,000 per annum to meet office expenses, and the Managing Agents' remuneration for the administration of the Company. They are also allowed actual expenses in connection with Directors' fees, Directors' and Managing Agents' travelling expenses, legal expenses, audit of office account, printing, advertising, stamps, etc.

(f) No.

ENCOURAGEMENT OF PRODUCTION OF RAILS BY MESSRS. TATAS.

362. *Pandit Nilkantha Das : Is it a fact that rails are purchased at Rs. 135 per ton in England as against Rs. 110 paid to Tatas ? If so, have the Railway Board made any attempt to encourage Tatas for supplying more rails than they are now doing at a price more than Rs. 110 not exceeding Rs. 135 per ton ? Have the Tatas been asked if they can increase their output of rails if they are given Rs. 135 per ton for the quantities purchased outside India ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Railway Board have a contract for the supply of 50 to 100 lb. rail sections with the Tata Iron and Steel Company for 7 years at Rs. 110 per ton. Orders are not placed abroad for these rail sections unless Tatas are unable to manufacture them, and as Tatas' capacity is considerably in excess of the current demands, the necessity

DISCHARGE ON THE EXPIRY OF HIS LEAVE OF BABU BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE FROM THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

365. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) With reference to the reply to Mr. Joshi's question, No. 927, in the Legislative Assembly on the 25th September, 1928, will Government please state if it is a fact that Babu Bankim Chandra Mukherjee was forced to avail himself of all the leave due to him, and that after the expiry of the leave he was discharged? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for which the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, stated that he was discharged with a month's notice in terms of the service agreement?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if the terms of the service agreement apply to employees engaged before the introduction of the service agreement? If not, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for which Babu Bankim Chandra Mukherjee should not be exempted from the operation of the service agreement? Is it not the fact that he entered the Railway Department on the 16th August, 1905, i.e., long before the service agreement was introduced?

(c) Is it a fact that Babu Bankim Chandra Mukherjee's request for communicating to him the charges and faults for which he was so dealt with was not granted by the railway authorities? If so, why?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The appeal of Babu Bankim Chandra Mukherjee shows that he was given the option of taking the leave due to him and resigning thereafter, or of being discharged in accordance with the conditions of service.

(b) The service agreements embody conditions of service which existed prior to their introduction.

(c) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given by Mr. Parsons on the 25th September, 1928, to question No. 927 by Mr. N. M. Joshi.

REASON FOR THE EXCLUSION OF THE RAILWAY BOARD FROM THE SCOPE OF THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION AND NATURE OF TECHNICAL WORK DONE BY CLERKS IN THAT OFFICE.

366. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the Railway Board is not within the scope of the Public Service Commission? If so, why?

(b) Is there any technical work for the clerks in the office of the Railway Board?

(c) If the clerks are required to do technical work, will Government be pleased to state the nature of the work?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes, the reasons for this are stated in the reply I gave on the 5th instant to part (c) of the Honourable Member's starred question No. 218.

(b) and (c). Many clerks in the Railway Board's Office are required to deal with work for which previous experience and training in accounts and finance, or of the work of the several operating departments of a railway are essential.

NAMES AND PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE OF STAFF RECRUITED TO THE RAILWAY BOARD BETWEEN 1ST JANUARY AND 1ST AUGUST, 1929.

367. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of persons newly recruited in the Office of the Railway Board from the 1st January, 1929, to 1st August, 1929, with the names and previous office experience in each case?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the number of applications received by the Railway Board from the 1st January, 1929 to 1st August, 1929, with names and previous office experience in each case? Is it a fact that the Railway Department recruited less experienced men during this period? If so, why were not the applications from the better experienced men considered?

(c) Is it a fact that Railway Department recruited their staff according to their whims?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No permanent appointments were made. A statement giving the information required in regard to temporary and officiating appointments is laid on the table.

(b) and (c). It is impossible to say at present what was the total number of applications received, as no note was kept of every such application. The main criterion of recruitment adopted by the Board was suitability and availability at the time the vacancy arose.

The question of preparing, with the help of the Public Service Commission, a list of suitable candidates from which temporary vacancies may be filled is at present under the consideration of the Railway Board

NAMES AND PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE OF CLERKS RECRUITED TO THE OFFICE OF THE CONTROLLER OF RAILWAY ACCOUNTS.

368. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the strength of the Office of the Controller of Railway Accounts and what percentage of clerks therein were recruited without examination ?

(b) If any clerks were recruited without examination, will Government be pleased to state their names and previous experience in each case ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). The permanent clerical strength of the Office of the Controller of Railway Accounts is 30. This office has not been and will not be normally recruited for by examination but by transfer of experienced men from other railway accounts offices. Of the number employed at present, 24 were transferred with their work from the Accountant General, Railway's Office, four from other railway accounts offices, one from the Office of the Audit Officer, Indian Stores Department, and one from the Postal Department.

REVISION OF THE PAY OF RAILWAY SCHOOL TEACHERS.

369. *Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the instructions issued to the Railway Administrations regarding the revision of pay of the railway school teachers ?

(b) To what Railway Administrations have the instructions been issued and when ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state how far those instructions have been carried out by each of the Railway Administration which have been addressed on the question ?

(d) Is it a fact that in Bihar the provincial basis of pay will serve to reduce the amount of the existing annual increment of the pay of railway school teachers ?

(e) If the answer to part (d) is in the affirmative, how do Government propose to deal with this and similar other cases ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). A copy of the instructions has been placed in the Library of the House.

(c) The last letter on the subject issued only in August, and I am unable to give a reply to this question at present.

(d) and (e). Government have no information. If such instances arise they would be considered according to the merits of each case but the general principle adopted in such cases is to apply the revised scales to future appointments and to permit existing incumbents to elect to remain on the old basis of pay if they prefer to do so.

ISSUE OF INSTRUCTIONS TO THE AGENT, EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY, REGARDING THE RECRUITMENT OF ANGLO-INDIANS.

370. *Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have issued any instruction to the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, with reference to his Memorandum regarding the recruitment of Anglo-Indians ?

(b) When was the instruction issued ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay a copy of it on the table ?

(d) Has the Agent of the Eastern Bengal Railway modified his instructions on the subject ?

(e) If so, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of his orders ?

(f) Till what time are these instructions to be followed ?

(g) Was any Railway Administration other than the Eastern Bengal Railway addressed on the subject ? If so, which, and with what results ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a), (b), (c), (f) and (g). A copy of the letter issued to all State-managed railways on the 23rd May, 1929, is placed on the table.

(d) and (e). Government have no doubt that the Agent of the Eastern Bengal Railway is following their instructions in this matter and they do not think it necessary to call for a copy of his orders.

COPY OF LETTER No. 2395-E., DATED THE 23RD MAY, 1929, FROM THE SECRETARY, RAILWAY BOARD, SIMLA, TO THE AGENTS, NORTH-WESTERN, EAST INDIAN, EASTERN BENGAL GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA AND BURMA RAILWAYS.

I am directed to invite attention to the following communications from the Railway Board :

(i) Letter No. 447-E. of 19th April 1923.

(ii) Letter No. 2395-E. of 4th February 1926.

L8CPB(LA)

(iii) Letter No. 7298-E., dated 20th October 1928.

The Government of India have reason to believe that their policy as regards the recruitment of subordinate establishments on the Indian Railways is not always clearly understood by Railway Administrations, with the result that Agents have sometimes issued circulars which, taken by themselves, are calculated to give an erroneous impression of that policy. They have therefore asked the Railway Board to issue fresh general instructions which will prevent unnecessary misunderstanding and embarrassment for the future.

2. The general principles to be followed are these :

- (1) No branch of the railway services should be reserved for any one class or community, but members of all classes or communities possessing the necessary qualifications should be eligible for appointment to any branch.
- (2) In order to secure adequate representation of minority communities, the rule is that, where recruitment is conducted by means of competitive examinations, one-third of the vacancies should be reserved for the redress of marked communal inequalities. Where recruitment is carried on otherwise than by competitive examination, steps should be taken to prevent an undue preponderance of any class or community.
- (3) Whatever method may be employed to redress communal inequalities or to prevent an undue preponderance of any one class or community, the efficiency of the services must be maintained, and no candidate should be admitted who does not possess the qualifications laid down as the minimum necessary for the work to be done.

3. The application of these principles to the Anglo-Indian community presents peculiar difficulties. Owing partly to reasons which are a matter of history and partly to the special aptitude displayed by members of the community for certain branches of railway work, a very high proportion of the appointments in these branches have for a number of years, been filled by Anglo-Indians. It appeared to the Government of India that this was a case which called for special treatment. The principles which in their opinion must be followed are these :

- (1) In those branches of the service in which a preponderant share of the appointments has fallen to Anglo-Indians in the past, opportunities must be given to members of other communities to show their fitness.
- (2) Whatever the qualifications considered necessary in order to justify the appointment of a candidate to a particular branch of the service may be, they must be the same for all.
- (3) No step should be taken which would produce a sudden and violent dislocation in the economic life of the Anglo-Indian community, and
- (4) In order to avert this danger, care must be taken, in the preparation of schemes for recruitment to the subordinate railway services, not to impose conditions which would in effect seriously restrict the opportunities of employment on the Indian Railways which Anglo-Indians at present enjoy.

4. It is important that undue stress should not be laid on any one aspect of the Government of India's policy in this matter. It is clear that to reserve in perpetuity a privileged position or a high proportion of appointments in any branch of the railway services for any one class or community would be contrary to all sound principle. It is inevitable that, as time goes on, a large number of members of other communities should be admitted to those branches of the service which have hitherto been manned mainly by Anglo-Indians, and the Government of India desire that steps should be taken to give members of other communities a chance of showing their fitness. But the change should be brought about gradually and slowly.

REDUCTION OF RAILWAY RATES ON FODDER.

371. *Kumar Ganganand Sinha : Has the question of reducing the railway rates on fodder been considered by the Indian Railway Conference Association ? If so, with what results ? How does the question stand at present ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Yes. The Indian Railway Conference Association have reported that the majority of railways already carry fodder at low special rates, and have asked railways to bear in mind the recommendations of the Royal Agricultural Commission regarding this commodity. Government are making further inquiries into the matter.

INTRODUCTION OF STAFF BENEFIT FUND AND RULES OF FINE FUND ON INDIAN RAILWAYS.

372. *Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Will Government be pleased to state which of the Railway Administrations has accepted the suggestions of the Railway Board regarding the Staff Benefit Fund and in what manner each of them is carrying them out so far ?

(b) What is the amount of Fine Fund in each Railway Administration and what is the contribution from revenue in each case ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay on table a copy of the model rules on the subject ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The Staff Benefit Fund has not yet been started on any railway. Government are still in correspondence with Railway Administrations on the subject.

(b) A statement showing the amount at credit of the Fine Fund of each railway on the 31st March, 1929, is laid on the table. No contributions from revenue are made to the Fine Fund.

(c) These rules are only in a draft form at present. When they are in their final form, they will be laid on the table.

VALUE OF (a) INDIGENOUS AND (b) IMPORTED STORES PURCHASED BY RAILWAYS.

373. *Kumar Ganganand Sinha : Will Government be pleased to state (i) the value of railway stores purchased in India, classing them into (a) indigenous and (b) imported and (ii) those purchased abroad, specifying the country from which they were purchased ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I would refer the Honourable Member to the Annual reports by the Railway Board on Indian Railways. Information for the year 1927-28 will be found in Volume II, Appendix A, pages 182—185 of the Report for that year. I am sorry particulars of the country of origin of imported stores are not available.

ORIGIN AND METHOD OF SETTLEMENT OF STRIKES OCCURRING SINCE APRIL, 1929.

374. *Kumar Ganganand Sinha : Will Government be pleased to state the number of strikes that took place since April 1929 up to date, and briefly mention how each of them originated and developed ? How many of them have been settled and how ? How many of them are yet unsettled, and in how many cases was use made of Trade Disputes Act ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the Press communiqué of the 21st August, 1929, publishing statistics of industrial disputes in British India for the quarter ending the 30th June, 1929, a copy of which will be found in the Library. Details in respect of subsequent strikes will appear in the next Quarterly Statistics, a copy of which will be sent to the Honourable Member when published. So far, the Trade Disputes Act has been made use of only in respect of the Textile Mills Strike in Bombay.

RECRUITMENT OF MECHANICAL AND ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS FROM STUDENTS OF THE ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT OF THE BENARES HINDU UNIVERSITY.

375. *Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have examined the course of training in the Engineering Department of the Benares Hindu University with a view to come to a decision regarding the recruitment of mechanical engineers and electrical engineers from among students qualified in that University ?

(b) If so, when, how, and with what results ?

(c) If the answer to part (a) is in the negative, will Government be pleased to state reasons for the same ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). The syllabus of the Engineering College degree course of the Benares Hindu University was recently examined. The recruitment to the Mechanical Engineering and Transportation (Power) Departments of State-managed railways is being arranged by training Special Class Apprentices in accordance with the prescribed regulations. The age limit for appointment as a Special Class Apprentice is 19 years, and graduates of Universities will not, therefore, ordinarily be eligible for appointments in these Departments after the training of the first batch of Special Class Apprentices has been completed. Meanwhile a certain number of appointments to these Branches will be filled in India by selection on the recommendation of the Public Services Commission if suitably qualified persons are available. Graduates of the Benares University, who have had some practical experience, will be eligible for such appointments.

Electrical Engineers required by the State-managed railways are recruited as and when there are vacancies, and graduates of the Benares University are eligible for appointment, provided they fulfil certain conditions regarding practical experience.

LIST OF UNDER-TRIAL PRISONERS UNDERGOING A HUNGER STRIKE, WITH PARTICULARS OF THEIR PRESENT CONDITION AND GRIEVANCES.

377. *Kumar Ganganand Sinha : (1) Will Government be pleased to lay on table a statement showing :

- (a) the list of under-trial prisoners who have been or are undergoing hunger-strike ;
- (b) the period of strike in each case and the strikers' present condition ;
- (c) the grievances for which they have resorted to hunger-strike ;
- (d) the extent to which their grievances have been remedied ; and
- (e) the specific grievances which have not been remedied so far ?

(2) Will Government be pleased to state what further action they propose to take in this matter ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (1) A statement has been laid on the table containing the desired information regarding under-trial prisoners who have recently been or are now on hunger-strike in the Punjab and Delhi Provinces. Government have not yet received similar information from other provinces, but will supply the Honourable Member with it, when received. Statement laid explains the action taken by the Punjab Government and the Government of India.

(2) In regard to the re-examination of the rules relating to under-trial and special class prisoners, the Government of India await the proposals of Local Governments whom they have asked to report with as little delay as is possible.

| The reason originally given by Nos. 1 to 13 for their hunger-strike was their desire to effect an improvement in the treatment of political prisoners, among whom they included prisoners convicted in the Punjab Ghadr Conspiracy Cases, 1915-1917, and the Kakori cases. Nos. 2-15 abandoned their hunger-strike on the 2nd September but Nos. 2, 3, 7, 9, 10, 14 and 15 resumed it two or three days later. The reasons given for their resumption are that Jatindra Das, one of the accused in the Lahore Conspiracy Case has not been unconditionally released, that is to say the case against him has not been withdrawn, and that Bhagat Singh and Dutt | Nos. 1-15. In so far as the treatment of the accused in the Lahore Conspiracy Case is concerned, the Honourable Member is referred to Punjab Government communiqués, dated the 6th and 9th of August, 1929, copies of which are attached. In so far as the re-examination of the rules relating to under-trial and special class prisoners is concerned, the Honourable Member is referred to the communiqué of the Government of India, dated August 10th, and to the Government of India letter No. D. 2789, dated the 17th of August, 1929, to Local Governments. LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

[11TH SEPT. 1929.]

LETTER No. D-2789, DATED THE 17TH AUGUST, 1929, FROM MR. H. W. EMERSON, C.I.E., C.B.E., SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, TO ALL LOCAL GOVERNMENTS AND ADMINISTRATIONS.

I am directed to address you on the subject of the re-examination by Local Governments of the rules relating to under-trial prisoners, and to the classification of, and the privileges granted to, convicted prisoners, and in this connection I am to enclose a copy of a communiqué issued by the Government of India on the 10th August, 1929.

2. In regard to the general character of the examination, I am to say that the Government of India attach great importance to the ascertainment of non-official opinion, and especially of the views of non-official visitors of jails. While they are content to leave to the discretion of Local Governments the manner in which such opinion should be obtained, they desire that no cause should be given for complaint that sufficient opportunity was not afforded for the expression of the views of representative non-officials interested in the question. If, however, the Local Government have recently carried out an enquiry into these matters and have on record the evidence of non-officials, it will be necessary only to supplement the record in such manner and to such extent as will attain the above object. It is the wish of the Government of India that the examination be undertaken and completed with as little delay as is consistent with a thorough review of the various issues involved. They consider that it is very desirable that the rules of the various provinces should be as uniform as possible, and in order to facilitate a comparison of the existing rules the Government of India will shortly forward to Local Governments copies of the relevant rules framed by the Local Governments relating to under-trial and special class prisoners. It is not, however, the intention of the Government of India that the object of the review should be limited to the introduction of changes based on a comparison of the rules now in force in various provinces. They contemplate that decisions will be reached on particular issues which may involve amplification and amendment of the existing rules. Some of the issues which are likely to arise are indicated below, but the Government of India do not regard them as exhaustive, and have no doubt that other points will be raised during the course of the examination. In regard both to under-trial and convicted prisoners, the rules as amended must be consistent with the safe custody of prisoners and the maintenance of jail discipline, and in regard to convicted prisoners they must be consistent with the principles of penal detention.

3. In regard to under-trial prisoners, the Government of India consider that the rules adopted should, where possible, be at least as liberal for prisoners of similar social standing as those which may be ultimately adopted for special class convicts. The main questions which appear to require review relate to diet, conveyance and accommodation. In regard to the first item, it is for consideration, firstly, whether the diet, in accordance with proscribed scales, of under-trial prisoners, should not be in all cases a charge on Government, and, secondly whether one or more special scales should be proscribed for under-trial prisoners, whose standard of living is definitely superior to that of the ordinary convict. As regards the second item, the Government of India recognise that the conveyance of under-trial prisoners is a matter of police rather than jail administration, and that the issues involved extend beyond the question whether special consideration should be paid to under-trial prisoners of social standing. The question is admittedly a difficult one and it may not be practicable to lay down hard and fast rules, but the Government of India are inclined to think that the discretion given in this respect to police authorities might be more clearly defined. It appears in particular to be desirable, that, in cases of conveyance of under-trial prisoners of social position by rail, sanction should be given to a fairly liberal scale of diet money, and to accommodation of a class higher than the 3rd class.

In regard to the conveyance of an under-trial prisoner between the jail and the court, the Jails Committee appointed by the United Provinces Government have drawn attention in paragraph 382 of their report to the waste of time and the embarrassment or inconvenience caused to under-trial prisoners when they have to be escorted on foot. They have accordingly recommended that where lock-ups are at a considerable distance from the courts, prison vans should be provided if this provision does not already exist. The Government of India commend this suggestion for the consideration of local Governments. Since, however, financial considerations may delay the introduction of this reform, it is a matter for examination whether, subject to adequate arrangements being made for the safe-custody of the prisoners, the police authorities should not be instructed to provide special means of conveyance for under-trial prisoners of good social standing in cases where prison vans are not available.

The problem of better accommodation of under-trial prisoners raises questions of new expenditure, which in some provinces may be on a considerable scale. For this reason it is probable that improvement in this direction can only be gradual. None the less the Government of India consider it desirable that the question of accommodation should be included within the scope of the re-examination, with the object of introducing, as financial resources permit, the reforms that may be found to be desirable. The observations of the Jails Committee of the United Provinces on this question are contained in paragraphs 384 and 385 of their report, and relate to the complete separation of under-trial prisoners by night and the more careful segregation by day, in order to prevent contamination by association with convicts or with other under-trial prisoners, whose previous record or alleged offences indicate depraved habits or tendencies. A further question for consideration is whether under-trial prisoners of good social standing should be provided with simple furniture, such as is allowed in some provinces to special class convicts, and, if so, whether it should be supplied at their own or at Government expense.

4. In so far as the suggestions made in the last two paragraphs relate to the privileged treatment of under-trial prisoners of good social standing, they raise the question of their classification for this purpose. Since the assumption must be made that under-trial prisoners are innocent until they are proved to be guilty, the nature of their alleged offences cannot be adopted as a criterion for the purpose now in question although it can, as suggested above, be adopted with propriety for the purpose of segregation of under-trial prisoners inter se. A suitable and perhaps the sole criterion for the grant of additional privileges to under-trial prisoners would appear to be the social status, education and character of the prisoners. No formal classification would seem to be necessary so long as the person is in police custody, and the requirements of the case would probably be met by the grant of discretionary powers to the police, combined with careful supervision by administrative officers that the powers are properly used. As soon, however, as an under-trial prisoner is committed to the custody of the jail authorities, a formal classification would be necessary, and it is a matter for consideration as to what authority should be responsible for the classification. It might be desirable to confer the necessary powers either on the District Magistrate or on the Superintendent of the Jail in consultation with the District Magistrate and the exercise of the powers might be subject, if this is considered desirable, to the confirmation of local Governments.

5. So far as the enquiry is concerned with convicted prisoners, it should be limited to the review of the rules relating to special class prisoners and should not include general questions of classification, e.g., the separation of casual and habitual offenders. Within the scope of the examination as thus defined, the three main subjects for enquiry will be :

- (1) The criteria for classification.
- (2) The classifying authority.
- (3) The privileges to be granted to special class prisoners.

6. With regard to the criteria to be adopted, I am to invite attention to paragraph 2 of the communiqué, in which are stated the tests now employed. I am to lay particular stress on the fact that the Government of India regard as fundamental the principle of differentiation between offences for the purpose of classification and are unable to contemplate any deviation from this principle which would introduce the criterion of motive regardless of the offences committed. Subject to this essential condition, the general questions that are likely to arise in this connection would appear to be the following :

- (a) Whether it is necessary or desirable to make classification depend, as in the Bombay Rules, on the nature of the imprisonment to which the convict is sentenced, namely, whether it is simple or rigorous ; or whether the nature of the offence regardless of the punishment inflicted should be uniformly adopted as a criterion.
- (b) If the nature of the offence is uniformly adopted, whether the list of offences, the commission of which exclude persons from classification as special class prisoners, should be extended in some directions and restricted in others. For instance a question for consideration will be whether the list should include, as in the Bengal rules, the following offences :
  - (1) The possession of bombs or other explosive substances or being concerned in their manufacture where there is a presumption that they are intended to be used subsequently to endanger life or property.
  - (2) The illegal possession of arms where there is a similar presumption.

On the other hand, the further question will arise as to whether it is necessary to include in the list all offences against property, or whether it is practicable to curtail the list by the inclusion of certain specific offences only.

- (c) Whether in place of the general description of offences by categories it is practicable and desirable to substitute a specific list of offences, stating the section of the I. P. C. or other enactments, conviction under which will exclude from classification as a special class prisoner.

7. With regard to the authority responsible for classification, the existing rules show considerable diversity in regard to the original authority, but it is probable that a fairly uniform standard is secured by the fact that the original classification is either subject to the confirmation of the Local Government or is submitted in the form of a recommendation for the orders of the local Government. The questions for consideration in this connection would appear to be the following :

- (a) Whether the system of confirmation by the local Government should be uniformly adopted.
- (b) Whether the rules should specifically provide for an application to the Local Government by a convict in regard to whom no recommendation has been made or order passed classifying him as a special class prisoner.
- (c) Whether the rules should specifically provide for action by a Local Government, on its own motion in cases where no reference is made by the original classifying authority.
- (d) Whether there are defects in the administration of the existing rules which are capable of remedy.

8. In regard to the privileges to be granted to special class prisoners, the desirability of uniformity to which reference is made in paragraph 2 above will indicate the scope for revision in accordance with the principles which are at present accepted. The further question will arise as to whether it is desirable to extend those principles in certain directions, and in this respect the following points will require examination :

- (a) In regard to diet whether it is practicable and desirable to fix one or more scales, superior to the ordinary scale and to be provided at Government expense, for those classified, in accordance with the criteria adopted, as special class prisoners, the scale varying according to the further classification, if necessary, of the prisoner as determined by his previous mode of living. If the answer is in the affirmative the further question will arise as to whether the scale or scales should include all the reasonable requirements of a prisoner, or whether he should be allowed as at present to supplement it from outside the jail. Another matter for consideration will be whether the existing rules provide sufficiently for variation in the diet.
- (b) The question as to what extent other privileges, which special class prisoners may now enjoy at their own expense, should be provided at the expense of Government.
- (c) The question as to whether the rules in regard to accommodation and separation from other convicts require revision.

9. I am to request that on the completion of the re-examination of the rules, the views of the local Government may be communicated, with as little delay as possible, to the Government of India. The course that will be then adopted by the Government of India will depend to a large extent on the measure of uniformity represented by the proposals of the various local Governments and for this reason I am unable at the present stage to indicate the procedure which may be followed.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA COMMUNIQUE, DATED 10TH AUGUST, 1929.

The Government of India make the following announcement for the information of the public.

The Punjab Government in a communiqué, dated 6th August, 1929, have stated certain facts relating to the treatment of prisoners in the Punjab. In view of the public interest which has recently been evoked in regard to the rules relating to under-trial and convicted prisoners, the Government of India consider it desirable to supplement the information contained in that communiqué by reference to certain general aspects of the question.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

2. Subject to legislation by the Indian Legislature, prisons and prisoners are a reserved provincial subject. The last revision of the rules was made by the various local Governments as a result of a Conference convened by the Government of India in 1922 attended by representatives of all the Provinces, at which a thorough examination was made of the subject. The rules are based on certain broad principles which, while allowing for differences of details between province and province, have secured a large measure of uniformity throughout British India. In the classification of convicts as special class prisoners the two criteria adopted are:—firstly, the character of his offence; and secondly, the social status, education and character of the prisoner. The rules framed by most of the local Governments provide that if the status, education and character of a convicted person merit the grant of privileges not accorded to the ordinary prisoner, he may be classified as a special class prisoner, provided that the offence for which he has been convicted does not fall within certain categories. The offences, the commission of which excludes a convict, whatever his station in life or motive may have been, from the privileges of a special class prisoner are broadly, those against property or involving violence, or the abetment of such offences, or the seducing of soldiers or police from their allegiance, or those committed in connection with political movements by persons who have been hired for the purpose. A convict whose offence does not fall within any of these categories is eligible for classification as a special class prisoner whatever the motive of his offence may have been, provided that his status, education and character merit such classification. On the other hand, no person convicted of any of the above offences can be so classified whatever may have been his motive. The principle of discrimination between offences for the purpose of inclusion within, or exclusion from, the benefits of the rules of convicted persons was adopted after very careful examination of the various considerations involved. The Government of India regard this principle as fundamental and they are unable to contemplate any deviation from it which would introduce into the rules of classification the criterion of motive, regardless of the offence committed.

3. A convict, who is classified as a special class prisoner, is entitled to certain privileges, the general nature of which, subject to differences of detail, has been stated in the communiqué of the Punjab Government.

4. As regards under-trial prisoners the rules show some local variations; but effect has been generally given to the following provisions:—Under-trial prisoners are separated from convicts, and a further separation is made between those under-trial prisoners who have previously been convicted of an offence and those who have not. Under-trial prisoners are not subjected to more restraint than is necessary for their safe custody, the maintenance of discipline, and the enforcement of jail rules. They are allowed to retain their own clothing, bedding, and eating and drinking vessels. They are permitted to purchase books or to obtain them from friends and they may supplement the prison diet by purchase or from private sources. They are granted all reasonable facilities for interviewing and communicating, either orally or in writing, with their relatives, friends and legal advisers. They are not required to labour; but they may, if they so wish, follow a trade and receive the earnings thereof.

5. The Government of India trust that the above statement will remove any misconception that may be present in the mind of the public in regard to the existing rules. At the same time they are conscious of the fact that public opinion is disquieted to whether these rules are sufficiently liberal in some directions, and they consider it proper that a re-examination of them should be made with the view of ascertaining and remedying any defects that may be found to exist. Such a re-examination in any case would have been necessary in the near future as a consequence of the report of the Jails Committee constituted in June, 1928, by the Government of the United Provinces to enquire into and report on the jail administration of those provinces. Their report, which is now under the consideration of the Local Government, raises various questions relating to the classification and privileges of convicted under-trial prisoners, and to the classification and privileges of convicted prisoners, and since any changes in the rules which the Local Government might desire to make would be referred to the Government of India, the opportunity would then have been taken of consulting other local Governments in regard to the issues raised. In order that the consideration of the general question may be expedited, the Government of India have decided to request local Governments to re-examine, with as little delay as possible, the rules relating to under-trial prisoners, and to the classification of, and the privileges granted to, convicted prisoners. Local Governments will be requested to consult non-official opinion in such manner as they may consider to be desirable and the Government of India hope that leaders of public opinion will assist Local Governments with their views.

APPOINTMENT OF A MUSSALMAN SECRETARY TO THE INTERMEDIATE BOARD OF EDUCATION TO BE PRESIDED OVER BY MR. KITCHLEW, AN OFFICER OF THE JAIPUR STATE.

378. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that an Intermediate Board of Education is being appointed at Ajmer ?

(b) Is it also a fact that Mr. Kitchlew, an officer of the Jaipur State, is to be appointed as the President of this Board ?

(c) If so, will the Government be pleased to state why an officer of an Indian State is appointed to administer the education of British subjects ?

(d) What arrangements have been made to protect the interests of the Mussalmans on this Board ?

(e) Do Government propose to consider the desirability of appointing a Mussalman as the Secretary of this Board ; if not, why not ?

Sir Denys Bray : (a) and (b). Yes. A Board of High School and Intermediate Education has been constituted with Mr. Kitchlew as the Chairman.

(c) Though Mr. Kitchlew happens to be at present in the service of an Indian State, he is a retired officer of the Indian Educational Service with about 30 years service in the United Provinces Educational Department. Moreover, though the Board is to have its headquarters in Ajmer, it is to control the education not merely in Ajmer-Merwara, but throughout Rajputana, Central India and Gwalior.

(d) Steps are being taken to secure the services of a suitable Muslim for the Board.

(e) It would clearly be improper to allow any consideration save educational qualifications to operate over the selection of the Secretary, at any rate in the first instance.

ADMINISTRATION OF THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT AT AJMER.

379. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that the Mussalmans of Ajmer are not satisfied with the present administration of the Education Department at Ajmer ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Head Master of the Moinia Muslim High School at Ajmer is a Hindu gentleman ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Assistant Superintendent of Education at Ajmer is also a Hindu gentleman ? What are his educational qualifications and what university degrees does he possess ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) No expression of dissatisfaction has been brought to the notice of the Local Administration.

(b) No.

(c) The Assistant Superintendent of Education is a Hindu M.A., B.Sc. of the University of Allahabad.

TRANSFER OF THE RAILWAY CLEARING OFFICE FROM DELHI TO LUCKNOW.

380. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that those responsible for the public health of the city of Delhi are now definitely of opinion that, unless the extra pressure caused by the railway employees on the population of the city is removed, the health of the city is bound to be affected ?

(b) Is it also a fact that, in order to remove this pressure on population, the question of building railway quarters at Safdarganj, a place seven miles from the city is being seriously considered ?

(c) Has it been estimated whether this project will involve a very big capital outlay ?

(d) What is the reason for Government not proposing to shift the Railway Clearing Office from Delhi to Lucknow ? Can the office not be located in the Central office building of the old Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway now lying vacant ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). The Delhi New Capital Committee have expressed the hope that the Railway Board will fix an early date for the completion of quarters for the clerks of the Railway Clearing Account Office so as to ensure relief of pressure in the Delhi City as soon as possible, and not to bring any more railway clerks to Delhi, until quarters have been provided for them. The question of building quarters has engaged the attention of Government for a considerable time, but the chief difficulty has been that of obtaining a suitable site for the colony. Safdarjang was one of the sites suggested, but it was not considered suitable for various reasons.

(c) The cost depends partly on the site selected, and the type and number of quarters finally decided upon. At a rough estimate I would put the cost at about 25 lakhs, assuming we build 1,000 quarters.

(d) Delhi has been selected in preference to Lucknow on grounds of efficiency and economy. I might add that there is no difficulty in Delhi as regards office accommodation ; nor is the building in Lucknow referred to by the Honourable Member now lying vacant.

APPOINTMENT OF MUSLIM OFFICERS IN THE RAILWAY BOARD.

381. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) What is the total number of permanent officers in the Office of the Railway Board and how many of them are Mussalmans ?

(b) What steps do Government propose to take to appoint a sufficient number of Muslim officers in the Office of the Railway Board to protect the interests of the Muslim nationals ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) 17 permanent officers, one of whom is a Mussalman, and a second Mussalman have very recently been appointed.

(b) I am sure that the Honourable Member realises the difficulty of staffing any particular office on communal lines, if efficiency is not to be sacrificed. Government are aware, however, of the importance which Muslims attach to the employment of members of their community on the staff of the Railway Board. It is always their desire to make sure that the claims of important minority communities are not overlooked when vacancies have to be filled.
LSCP(B/LA)

Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : What steps have been taken to see that this desire is fulfilled ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I think I have already answered that question : I said that a second Muslim had very recently been appointed.

GRIEVANCES OF MUSLIMS OF THE LOCAL FUND ACCOUNTS OFFICE, LAHORE.

382. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a printed open letter addressed to Sir M. Frederic Gauntlett, Auditor General in India, by the "Aggrieved Muslims" of the Local Funds Accounts, Punjab, Lahore ?

(b) What action, if any, was taken to investigate into and redress the grievances contained in this letter ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The letter has been referred to the Accountant General, Punjab, whose reply is still awaited.

NUMBER OF MUSSALMAN OFFICERS AND CLERKS IN THE HEAD OFFICE OF THE AUDITOR GENERAL IN INDIA.

383. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) What is the total number of (i) permanent officers, and (ii) permanent clerks, in the head office of the Auditor General in India, and how many of them are Mussalmans ?

(b) Was the Government of India's Circular of 1925 about the representation of minority communities in the Central Services, sent to the Office of the Auditor General in India ? If so, what effect was given to it in the said office, and how many Mussalmans were appointed since then ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : (a) (i) Nine officers, of whom none is a Mussalman.

(ii) The permanent strength of the clerical (including supervising) staff is 105. The number of Muhammadan clerks at present employed is seven, including two who are officiating in deputation vacancies.

(b) A copy of the orders in question was sent to the Auditor General. They apply to a service as a whole and not to any particular office to which members thereof are posted. The postings of Government servants to individual offices are not governed by communal considerations. The fact that there is at a particular moment no Muslim officer in a particular office is therefore of no real significance. There are at present 13 Muslims out of a total of 167 officers in the Indian Audit and Accounts Service. Of these 5 have been appointed in the last three years against 18 of all other communities taken together in the same period.

HIGH DEATH RATE IN THE TOWNS OF BEAWAR AND AJMER.

384. *Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : Has the attention of Government been drawn to the Hindi book, "Beawar ki Bheeshan Mirthyn Sankya" (Alarming death rate in Beawar) by Vyas Tansukh Vaid, describing the insanitary conditions of Beawar and disclosing the fact that the death-rate in the towns of Beawar and Ajmer in Ajmer-Merwara is abnormally high ?

Sir Frank Noyce : Government have not seen this book.

HIGH DEATH RATE IN THE TOWNS OF BEAWAR AND AJMER.

385. *Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : (a) Is it a fact that while in Delhi, Agra, Muttra, Lucknow, Ahmedabad and Baroda births exceed deaths, in Ajmer and Beawar on the contrary, deaths exceed births ?

(b) Is it a fact while in Delhi there are 75.7 deaths as against 100 births, in Agra 70.8 deaths against 100 births, in Muttra 84.3 deaths for 100 births, in Lucknow 83.5 deaths against 100 births, in Baroda 92.8 deaths against 100 births ; there are 110.3 deaths against 100 births in Beawar and 152.3 deaths against 100 births in Ajmer ?

Sir Frank Noyce : With your permission, Sir, I shall answer questions 385 to 391 together. Information is being collected and will be supplied to the Honourable Member.

EXCESS OF DEATHS OVER BIRTHS IN BEAWAR.

†386. *Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : Is it a fact that in Beawar with a population of 22,362 souls, deaths exceeded births during the decade preceding 1921, A. D. by 3,865 or 17 per cent. of the total population ?

DECREASE OF BIRTH RATE AND INCREASE OF DEATH RATE IN BEAWAR.

†387. *Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : Is it also a fact that the birth-rate in Beawar has gone down from 38.82 in 1922-23 to 34.68 in 1926-27 while the death-rate has gone up from 34.88 in 1922-23 to 42.79 in 1926-27 ?

EXCESS OF DEATHS OVER BIRTHS IN AJMER.

†388. *Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : Is it a fact that in Ajmer during the last 14 years since 1915-16, deaths have every year exceeded births ?

HIGH DEATH RATE OF BABIES BORN IN AJMER.

†389. *Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : Is it a fact that in Ajmer, taking the average for five years, 1922-23 to 1926-27, out of every 1,000 babies born, 448.5 died in the first year.

HIGH CHILD AND INFANT MORTALITY IN BEAWAR.

†390. *Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : Is it also a fact that in Beawar with its dry climate, average mortality (below 10 years) for seven years,

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 385.
L8CPB(LA)

1921 to 1928, was as heavy as 662.11 per thousand and infantile mortality during the first year of birth, 408.04 ?

BAD SANITARY CONDITION OF AJMER.

†391. *Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : (a) Is it a fact that in Ajmer, the Municipal Committee reported in 1922-23 that the " Sanitation of the City of Ajmer could hardly be worse than it is " ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state what effective measures have been taken by the Municipal Committee, Ajmer, or the Government to remove this reproach, and whether there has been any appreciable improvement in the death-rate of Ajmer ?

INVESTIGATION OF THE CAUSES OF THE HIGH DEATH RATES IN AJMER AND BEAWAR.

392. *Rai Sahib Harbilas Sarda : Do Government propose to take any action to investigate thoroughly the question of deaths exceeding births year after year in the City of Ajmer and the Town of Beawar, and to recommend measures to be taken to put a stop to the present sad state of affairs disclosed by the book " Beawar ki Bheeshan Mirthyu Sankya " ?

Sir Frank Noyce : When Government are in possession of full statistics regarding births and deaths in the City of Ajmer and the Town of Beawar, they will consider, in consultation with the local authorities, what action, if any, is necessary.

ENFORCEMENT OF VILLAGE LABOUR WITHOUT REMUNERATION TO GUARD THE RAILWAY LINE NEAR AJMER DURING THE PASSAGE OF THE VICEROY'S SPECIAL.

393. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a report published in the " Young Rajasthan " of Beawar, dated the 8th August, 1929, in which it is stated that, when the special train of H. E. the Viceroy passed through Ajmer about the 5th August last, a number of villagers from the surrounding villages were forced to guard the railway line on the previous night for 12 hours on the system of Begar, without being paid anything, and that they were not even allowed to go and take their food ?

(b) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the " Arya Martand " of Ajmer, dated the 8th August, 1929 in which the same allegation has been made ?

(c) Is it a fact that at the instance of the Superintendent of Police, the Commissioner of Ajmer-Merwara issued orders to the tehsildars and revenue officials to warn headmen of villages to comply with the station officer's demands to guard the railway line during the passage of the Viceregal Special ?

(d) Under what law were the villagers forced to guard the railway line, without being paid any remuneration ? Is the system of Begar legal in British India, or in Ajmer-Merwara ? If not, do Government propose to institute an inquiry into the matter, and put a stop to this practice ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 385.

Sir Denys Bray : (a), (b) and (c). Yes.

(d) Owing to the inadequate number of village chowkidars in Ajmer-Merwara, it has been customary to ask the village headmen to assist the police on the rare and obviously very special occasions when Viceregal trains pass through the district, but the question is now under examination.

With regard to the system of begar generally, I would refer the Honourable Member to the replies given to the Honourable Mr. V. J. Patel on the 11th February, 1924, and to the Honourable Sir Ibrahim Jaffer in the Council of State on the 12th September, 1927.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I want to know, Sir, if the system of begar is legal in the province of Ajmer-Merwara ?

Sir Denys Bray : I would refer the Honourable Member to the answers that I have just quoted in my answer. It is legal in special and rare circumstances, as, for instance, in emergencies arising from floods and so forth.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Under what law can villagers be forced to work on occasions of the passage of Viceregal trains ?

Sir Denys Bray : On such occasions under the law of common sense. (Laughter.)

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I take it then that there is absolutely no law on the subject ?

Sir Denys Bray : The law of common sense in such emergencies is surely overriding, ?

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : May I ask the Honourable Member when floods have occurred in Ajmer-Merwara during the last fifty years ? (Laughter.)

Sir Denys Bray : Touché ! (Laughter.)

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I ask whether it is proposed to examine this question and abandon the system of forced labour ?

Sir Denys Bray : I have told the Honourable Member that the question is under examination.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : For how long has it been under examination ?

Sir Denys Bray : The Honourable Member's question very properly prompted it.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I am glad to hear this.

DEFENCE IN A CIVIL SUIT BY THE PUBLIC PROSECUTOR OF AJMER-MERWARA OF A SUB-INSPECTOR OF POLICE ACCUSED OF ASSAULTING A VILLAGE HEADMAN.

394. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that last year on the occasion of the passage of the Viceregal special train, a Sub-Inspector of Police assaulted the headman of a village, and was found guilty by a court, and he was fined for the offence ?

(b) Is it a fact that in a civil suit brought by the said headman against the Sub-Inspector of Police, the Public Prosecutor of Ajmer-Merwara has been engaged to defend the Sub-Inspector ; and that he is considered to be on duty whenever he is required to attend court in connection with the case ?

Sir Denys Bray : (a) and (b). Yes. The reason why the Public Prosecutor has been instructed to conduct the case is that under section 42 of the Police Act, 1861, the Sub-Inspector having been criminally prosecuted is prima facie protected from being sued for damages on the same facts in a civil court. As the case is sub judice, it would obviously be improper to say more.

ESTIMATED AND ACTUAL COST OF THE KANGRA VALLEY RAILWAY PROJECT.

395. *Diwan Chaman Lall : (a) Will Government be pleased to state when the Kangra Valley Railway project was sanctioned, and the estimated cost of the project ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether detailed traffic, engineering and geological surveys were carried out and scrutinised before the project was sanctioned ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether the sanction of the project was in any way influenced by the demands of the Punjab Government ?

(d) Is it a fact that the Kangra Valley Railway project was not considered remunerative ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to state the number of times the original estimate was revised together with the periods of such revision and the amounts ?

(f) Will Government be pleased to state whether an undertaking was given to the Secretary of State at any stage that the estimate would not be exceeded ?

(g) Is it a fact that the actual expenditure did exceed all the estimates ?

(h) Is it a fact that under existing orders Agents of Railways are not permitted to incur expenditure on works beyond the amount of the sanctioned estimate and the allotment in the budget without the previous sanction of the Railway Board ?

(i) Is it a fact that expenditure on the Kangra Railway project exceeded the sanctioned estimate and the amount allotted in the budget without the previous sanction of the Railway Board ?

(j) What disciplinary action has been taken or is contemplated if the answer to part (i) be in the affirmative ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : (a) An estimate amounting to Rs. 134 lakhs was sanctioned in February, 1926.

(b) No.

(c) I would refer the Honourable Member to part (6) of the reply given to Mr. Abdul Haye's question No. 203 on the same subject on the 5th September last.

(d) It was considered that the Kangra Valley Railway would not prove remunerative without a guarantee from the Punjab Government.

(e) Revised estimates were received in March, 1928, amounting to Rs. 217½ lakhs, and in November, 1928, amounting to Rs. 301 lakhs.

(f) In reply to an inquiry from the Secretary of State, the Government informed him, on the 24th December, 1925, that the estimate of 134 lakhs was not likely to be exceeded.

(g), (h) and (i). Yes.

(j) The whole question is under my personal consideration at present.

COMMUNICATION TO THE OFFICIALS CONCERNED OF NOTES ON PAY ATTACHMENT ORDERS RECORDED IN THEIR CHARACTER ROLLS.

396. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : Is it a fact that a note of each 'Pay Attachment Order' received from courts on account of debts, etc., is recorded by the Head of the Department in the Character Sheet of the official concerned ? If so, is a copy of such 'unfavourable' note communicated to the official so affected ; if not, will Government be pleased to state reasons ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The information asked for is being obtained and will be supplied to the Honourable Member in due course.

RULES PERMITTING THE GRANT OF SECOND CLASS RAILWAY FARE TO LADY CLERKS DRAWING LESS THAN RS. 200 PER MONTH.

397. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that lady clerks in receipt of a monthly emolument of less than Rs. 200 are entitled to 2nd class railway fare on their move or transfer ? If so, will Government be pleased to furnish the House with a copy of rules, etc., permitting such concession to lady clerks only ?

(b) Do Government propose to modify the rules so as to enable the male clerks also to draw the same concession ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Yes. The orders will be found in the form of a note to Supplementary Rule 18 in the compilation of rules published by the Posts and Telegraphs Department, a copy of which will be found in the Library of the House.

(b) No, Sir. Government do not consider that it is necessary to extend to male clerks a concession which was given to lady clerks in consideration of their sex.

NECESSITY FOR THE TRAFFIC OFFICER OF THE WIRELESS BRANCH OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS TO PROCEED TO DELHI DURING THE WINTER.

398. *Maulvi Muhammad Yakub : (a) Will Government be pleased to refer to paragraph (i) of starred question No. 226, answered on 8th September, 1928, and state why the services of the Traffic Officer, Wireless, are considered necessary at Delhi whenever the Director of Wireless is required to proceed on tour or even during the presence of the Director of Wireless there ?

(b) Who is in charge of the Wireless Branch at Simla during the absence of the Head of the Branch and the next senior officer ; if a most junior officer, is he empowered and available to dispose of cases of other nature in addition to that of his own without consulting the senior officers referred to at part (a) above on the phone ?

(c) If answer to the second part of (b) above be in the negative, will Government be pleased to state who is responsible for the delay in the disposal of ordinary, early, urgent and immediate cases of purely traffic matters by sending them every day from Simla to Delhi to the Traffic Officer, Wireless, for disposal and return files back to Simla ?

(d) Are Government prepared to regularise this kind of irregularities, delays and unnecessary labour in the disposal of Government work and if not, state reasons ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) The facts are not as stated by the Honourable Member. The Wireless Traffic Officer is not summoned to Delhi whenever the Director of Wireless goes on tour, but only as special circumstances may from time to time require.

(b) The Director of Wireless remains in charge of the Wireless Branch whether in Simla or not, and in accordance with the usual practice the next senior officer at Simla disposes of cases or refers them to higher authority at his discretion or under the orders of the Director of Wireless.

(c) Government are not aware that any unnecessary delay occurs.

(d) Government do not admit these allegations and are therefore not prepared to take any special action in the matter.

GRANT OF HELP TO INDIANS WHO HAVE RETURNED TO INDIA FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

399. *Mr. Rafi Ahmad Kidwai : (a) Are Government doing anything to help the repatriates from South Africa to settle in occupations for which they are best suited ?

(b) Are there any officers appointed by Government to look after the interest and welfare of the repatriates from South Africa after their landing in India ? If so, what are their duties ?

(c) Is it a fact that a large number of repatriates from South Africa, finding conditions in India not satisfactory to themselves, have emigrated to Malaya and Fiji ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) Such officers have been appointed. Their duties are to look after repatriates and their personal property immediately upon their return from South Africa, to arrange for their despatch to their homes, and, if possible, to find them employment for which they may be suited.

(c) No. So far as is known, only 62 repatriates have emigrated to the Federated Malay States, and none to Fiji.

REPORTED HELP TO MEMBERS OF THE INDIAN CENTRAL COMMITTEE BY MR. J. COATMAN.

400. *Mr. Rafi Ahmad Kidwai : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the report in the Press that the services of Mr. J. Coatman have been secured by two members of the Central Committee co-operating with the Statutory Commission to write a minute of dissent on their behalf ?

(b) Has Mr. J. Coatman accepted the work himself with the permission or approval of the Government of India or have the latter placed his services at the disposal of the two members ?

(c) Have Government given any instructions to Mr. J. Coatman about the policy to be adopted in this minute of dissent on important constitutional and communal questions, or will he be free to advocate his personal view or the point of view of the two members ?

(d) Will Mr. J. Coatman receive any remuneration for this work ? If so, will he be paid this remuneration by the Government of India or by the two members concerned ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b), (c) and (d). The report is entirely without foundation and these questions therefore do not arise.

NUMBER OF VARIOUS COMMUNITIES IN THE CLERICAL STAFF OF THE FOREIGN AND POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.

401. *Maulvi Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing separately the number of Hindus, Mohamedans, Sikhs, Europeans and Anglo-Indians, Indian Christians and other communities in the clerical staff of the Foreign and Political Department ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : With your permission, Sir, I propose to reply to questions Nos. 401-408 together. I would refer the Honourable Member to the printed statements showing the communal composition of the clerical staff in the various offices of the Government of India on the 31st December, 1928, of which copies have been placed in the Library. These contain all the information he wants except in regard to :

(i) the offices mentioned in items (3) to (7) of question No. 406, and

(ii) those mentioned in items (2) to (5) in question No. 407.

Information in regard to these is being collected and will be forwarded to the Honourable Member in due course by the Departments of the Government of India concerned.

IMPORT AND SALE AT A LOW PRICE OF AUSTRALIAN WHEAT IN INDIA.

409. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Is it a fact that Australian wheat worth about Rs. 35 crores has been imported into India this year and that the said wheat is selling at Bombay at the rate of Rs. 3-7-0 per maund ?

(b) Is it a fact that practically no freight is charged for bringing the wheat from Australia to India ?

(c) Are Government aware that this large importation of Australian wheat has materially affected the price of Indian wheat throughout India and that the cultivators have been forced to sell their wheat at a very low price ?

(d) Is it a fact that Indian wheat this year is fetching less price than even gram ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 401.

(e) Have Government realised the consequences of this large importation of Australian wheat into India and are Government aware that consequent to the general fall in the price of wheat the zamindars have not, in most places, been able to pay the Government demands ?

(f) Is it a fact that, on account of the inability of the zamindars to pay, due to this extraordinary fall in the price of the wheat, the Government officers have felt greater difficulty in the realization of Government dues this year than in the previous years ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) From January to July, 1929, 630,000 tons of Australian wheat, valued at Rs. 891 lakhs, were imported into British India. Official quotations for Australian wheat at Bombay are not available. Special inquiries, however, show that it is selling at Calcutta at Rs. 5-2-0 per maund.

(b) The freight charge on wheat from Australia to India is 22 to 25 shillings per ton.

(c) The prices of Indian wheat per maund which were prevailing at Calcutta, Bombay, Karachi and Lyallpur at the end of last month were :

|          | Rs. A. P. |    |        |
|----------|-----------|----|--------|
| Calcutta | ..        | .. | 5 12 0 |
| Bombay   | ..        | .. | 5 7 5  |
| Karachi  | ..        | .. | 5 0 6  |
| Lyallpur | ..        | .. | 4 8 3  |

The price of wheat at Lyallpur in April of this year was Rs. 6-5-6 per maund and steadily declined as the new crop came on the market. The Indian wheat crop of 1927-28 was only 7½ million tons as against a five years' average of 9½ million tons. The final estimate of the crop for 1928-29 was 8.4 million tons. The average requirements of India for internal consumption are approximately 8½ million tons, compared with which a net import of 629,000 tons during the period April 1st, 1928, to the end of August, 1929, is relatively very small. The fall in prices since the beginning of April of this year appears to be mainly due to the Indian crop of 1928-29 more nearly approaching the requirements for internal consumption.

(d) The price of Indian wheat is lower than gram at Bombay and Karachi but higher at Calcutta.

(e) & (f) Government have no information, but, as already pointed out, the fall in wheat prices which, according to the most recent information, are tending to recover, has been due far more to the new crop coming on the market than to unusually large imports of Australian wheat.

ADVANTAGE TO THE IMPORTER OF AUSTRALIAN WHEAT OF THE PRESENT HIGH RATE OF EXCHANGE.

410. *Sardar Kartar Singh : Is it a fact that an importer of wheat into India gets an advantage of 12½ per cent. on account of the present high rate of exchange ?

The Honourable Sir George Schuster : The answer to the question, as I understand it, is in the negative.

ADOPTION OF MEASURES BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA TO ENABLE INDIAN WHEAT TO COMPETE WITH IMPORTED WHEAT.

411. *Sardar Kartar Singh : (a) Have Government opened experimental farms at several places in India to produce wheat ? Can Government afford to sell the wheat produced at these farms at the rate of Rs. 3-7-0 per maund ? If not, why not ?

(b) What facilities are afforded by the Australian Government to their farmers that they are able to sell wheat at the rate of Rs. 3-7-0 per maund in India ? Are the Government of India prepared to give the same facilities to Indian farmers so that they may be able to compete with the foreigners ?

(c) Are Government prepared to afford relief to Indian farmers by reducing the land revenue and water rates so that they may be able to hold their own against the Australian farmers ?

(d) If Government cannot see their way to reduce the land revenue and water rates, have they considered the advisability of imposing a heavy duty on foreign imported wheat with a view to afford relief to the agriculturists of India ?

(e) Have Government considered the advisability of stopping the import of Australian wheat into India ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Government farms are merely for the production of seed of superior quality of wheat. They are not run on a commercial basis and the seed produced in them is sold to cultivators at the lowest rate which will secure that it is used for seed instead of for domestic consumption. The price at which it is sold is, therefore, no guide to the price at which the cultivator can afford to sell his wheat.

(b) Government have no information that Australian wheat has been sold at as low a price as Rs. 3-7-0 per maund. The latest quotation is Rs. 5 2-0 per maund at Calcutta.

(c) This is a matter for Local Governments.

(d) & (e) No. The imports of foreign wheat into India have, in recent years, only been of importance, in the years 1921-22, 1928-29 and the early part of 1929-30 and, in each case, this has been due to the wheat crop of the preceding year in India being a partial failure.

SCHOOLS FOR THE SONS AND WARDS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA STAFF IN SIMLA.

412. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that schools have been provided for the education of the sons and wards of the European staff of the different State Railways at different places ?

(b) Is it a fact that such schools are maintained from the Central revenues ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons why no schools are maintained from the Central revenues for the sons and wards of the Government of India staff in Simla ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to furnish a statement of the European schools maintained out of Railway revenues showing the amount of grant given to each ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (c). I would refer the Honourable Member to the Report on the expenditure of the railways on the education of the children of employees in 1925-26, copies of which are in the Library.

(b) That Report also shows the extent to which railway schools are maintained from railway funds which are Central Revenues. Facilities already exist for the education of the children and wards of the Government of India staff in Simla. Grants are made from Central Revenues towards the maintenance of certain schools which have been established by private bodies for this purpose.

NUMBER AND QUALIFICATION OF TEACHERS AND FEES CHARGED IN THE LADY IRWIN GIRLS' SCHOOL, SIMLA.

413. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of teachers in the Lady Irwin Girls' School, Simla ?

(b) Will they be pleased to state the number of L. T.'s and B. T.'s out of the total number of teachers engaged in the School ?

(c) Is it a fact that very few of the total number of teachers in the School are trained teachers ? If so, why ?

(d) Is it a fact that the school fees for the students of the Lady Irwin Girls' School have been raised since the beginning of the year ?

(e) Are Government aware that the raising of the fees have hit hard the poorly paid staff of the Government of India ?

(f) If the answer to part (e) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what steps they propose to take to alleviate the hardships of the parents of the students of the said School ?

(g) If the answer to part (e) be in the negative, do Government propose to inquire into the matter from the Associations of the Secretariat and attached offices staff ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) There are at present nineteen teachers and one vacant post.

(b) Out of the nineteen teachers two are B. A., B. T.'s.

(c) Six are trained teachers. There are very few trained women teachers in India.

(d) Yes.

(e), (f) & (g). The matter will be re-examined.

GRANT OF FINANCIAL AID TO THE LADY IRWIN GIRLS' SCHOOL IN SIMLA.

414. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Are Government aware that the Lady Irwin Girls' School is deteriorating in staff owing to the Government grant being insufficient to meet the requirements of the School ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to make an annual recurring grant of Rs. 20,000 to the said School for improving the condition of the School ? If not, why not ?

(c) If the answer to part (a) above be in the negative, do Government propose to inquire into the matter ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) An application for an increased grant-in-aid to the school is under consideration.

DIFFICULTIES OF THE MOVING STAFF OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA FOR WANT OF A MOVING SCHOOL FOR THEIR CHILDREN.

415. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that there is no moving school for the sons and wards of the moving staff of the Government of India ?

(b) Are Government aware of the difficulties and hardships of the moving staff of the Government of India for want of such a school for their children ?

(c) If the answers to parts (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, what steps have Government taken so far to redress the grievances of the staff in this direction ? If not, why not ?

(d) Are Government aware that there is great dislocation of education of the children of the Government of India moving staff for about six months in a year ?

(e) Is it a fact that in the schools of Simla children are compelled to finish their course for 12 months in about six months of the year ?

(f) If the answers to parts (d) and (e) are in the affirmative, what steps do Government propose to take to remedy those difficulties ?

Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c). The Government of India have already asked the Government of the Punjab to explore, in consultation with the Chief Commissioner of Delhi, the possibility of making special arrangements at the Government High School, Simla, for the children of the moving staff of the Government of India so as to enable these children to undergo, whilst at Simla, the same courses of study as are taught in the schools in New Delhi ?

(d) and (e). No.

(f) Does not arise.

RECRUITMENT OF STENOGRAPHERS THROUGH THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

416. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Is it a fact that the Public Service Commission have on their list a few passed stenographers who have not yet been provided with permanent appointments ?

(b) Is it also a fact that in some Departments of the Government of India and attached and subordinate offices a few unpassed stenographers have been entertained ? If so, why ?

(c) Is it a fact that in the Office of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research there will be a few vacancies of stenographers in the near future ? If so, is it a fact that there has been a proposal to recruit unpassed men from outside to fill up those vacancies ? If so, why ?

(d) Are Government aware that recruitment of unpassed men is affecting adversely the interests of those who have passed the Public Service Commission test but have not yet been permanently absorbed in any of the Departments ? If so, do Government propose to issue necessary instructions to the several Departments to recruit only passed men so long as they are available ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : (a) Yes.

(b) The information is being collected and will be furnished to the Honourable Member in due course.

(c) There is, I understand, one post of stenographer vacant at present. Owing to the fact that the Vice-Chairman of the Council has not yet taken over formal charge, no definite decision has been reached in regard to the recruitment of the staff of the Council Secretariat through the Public Service Commission ; but there is good reason to suppose that the decision will be that the staff shall be so recruited.

(d) I understand that the claims of the passed stenographers on the list of the Public Service Commission are always considered before unpassed stenographers are newly recruited or allowed to officiate. When the information asked for in part (b) of the question has been collected, it will be considered whether any fresh instructions are necessary.

(There are six men on the Public Service Commission list awaiting permanent employment.

AMOUNT OF WORK DONE AT THE BRANCH POST OFFICE AT OUTSHAHI AND SUB-POST OFFICE AT SONARANG.

417. *Mr. S. C. Mitra : (a) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing separately the amount of the different kinds of work, such as letters, registration, savings bank, insurance, money orders, etc., done by the branch post office at Outshahi in the district of Dacca and the sub-post office at Sonarang, in any particular month, say January, 1929 ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Outshahi post office has to serve about six different villages ? Is it a fact that it has got only one postman ? If so, is it a fact that he has to work from 7 A.M. to 7 P.M. daily ? Is it a fact that in the past there have been several representations from the postman as well as from the public of the locality to increase the number of postmen ? If so, with what result ?

(c) Is it a fact that the income of the Outshahi Post Office has been for several years past much more than that of a sub-post office ? If so, will Government please state if they propose to raise the status of the Outshahi Post Office to that of a sub-office ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) to (c). The information required is being collected and will be furnished to the Honourable Member in due course ?

PROMOTION AS SIGNAL INSPECTORS OF ASSISTANT SIGNAL INSPECTORS TRAINED AT THE JAMALUPUR WORKSHOPS.

†418. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Is it a fact that the Signals is the only Department on the East Indian Railway in which

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 346.

Assistant Inspectors are not considered fit for promotion to Inspectorships ?

(b) If so, is the reason of their alleged unfitness due to want of ample training in the Jamalpur Workshops ? If so, do Government propose to change the training staff at these workshops and give suitable training to the Assistant Signal Inspectors, so as to avoid any further recruitment of covenanted men ?

(c) Is it a fact that Government is spending a large sum of money in training men in India for these appointments ? If so, how do Government justify this expenditure and yet pronounce these trained men unfit ?

PROMOTION OF 20 PER CENT. OF SUBORDINATES IN THE SIGNAL DEPARTMENT ON RAILWAYS.

†419. *Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : (a) Are the recommendations of the Central Railway Advisory Committee for the promotion of 20 per cent. subordinates in India to official grade being observed in the Signal Department ? If not, why not ?

(b) Do Government propose to give an assurance to this House that, if the two Inspectors are still retained on a temporary basis, they will be discharged, or, be employed in such a manner as not to block the promotion of the Assistant Signal Inspectors trained in the Railway Workshops, and that adequate opportunities will be afforded in future to the latter men to show their worth and capability to act as Signal Inspectors ?

REPORT ON THE INDUSTRIAL POSSIBILITIES OF THE NORTH WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

420. *Mr. Abdul Haye : (1) Is it a fact that an official of the Department of Industries, Punjab, was deputed by the Government of India last year to investigate and report upon the industrial possibilities of the North-West Frontier Province ?

(2) When was the report of the said officer submitted to the Government of India ?

(3) Have Government considered that report ? If so, with what result ?

(4) Do Government propose to establish a separate Department of Industries in the North West Frontier Province ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (1) An Industrial Surveyor whose services were borrowed from the Department of Industries, Punjab, was appointed by the Chief Commissioner, North West Frontier Province, for six months with effect from the 16th July, 1928, to undertake an industrial survey of the Province as a preliminary to the preparation of a programme for the expansion of technical and industrial education in that territory.

(2) The report has not yet reached the Government of India.

(3) Does not arise.

(4) No such proposal has been made by the Local Administration.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 346.

ESTABLISHMENT OF A CIRCUIT COURT AT DELHI.

421. *Mr. Abdul Haye : (1) Was there any proposal before Government to establish a circuit court at Delhi to hear and dispose of appeals from the Delhi Province pending in the High Court of Judicature at Lahore ?

(2) Were the Honourable Judges of the Lahore Court consulted, and did they favour this proposal ?

(3) Will Government please state how the matter stands at present ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The Honourable Member is referred to the answer given by the late Sir Alexander Muddiman to Sir Hari Singh Gour's question on the subject in the Legislative Assembly on the 25th January, 1926, which is published in Volume VII, No. 3 of Assembly Debates, page 148. The matter has not again been brought before the Government of India.

NUMBER OF LOCAL TRAFFIC SERVICE MEN TO BE PROMOTED TO THE SUPERIOR TRAFFIC SERVICE.

422. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) Are Government aware that Mr. Parsons stated on the 19th February during the last Railway Budget debate that, in order to abolish the Local Traffic Service as early as possible, the Agents of the Railways concerned would be asked "to report ..... in the order of their preference the names of the men whom they considered fit for promotion to the Superior Service" ?

(b) Have the reports of the Agents been received ? If so, will Government please state separately for each of the railways concerned what is the total number of Local Traffic Service men, how many of them are to be promoted to the Superior Service, and how many of the latter are direct recruits ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) The reports of Agents have been received, and the number of Local Traffic Service men in the different railways is as follows :

|                |    |    |    |
|----------------|----|----|----|
| Eastern Bengal | .. | .. | 4  |
| East Indian    | .. | .. | 9  |
| North Western  | .. | .. | 11 |

As I explained in answer to a question by Mr. Neogy on the 4th, the whole question of the number of promotions to be made in 1929-30 and the selection of the men to be promoted is under the consideration of the Railway Board.

TOTAL NUMBER OF INDIANS RECRUITED TO THE SUPERIOR TRAFFIC SERVICE IN THE CURRENT YEAR AND NUMBER PROMOTED FROM THE LOCAL TRAFFIC SERVICE.

423. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) What is the total number of posts in the Superior Traffic Service for which Indians have been recruited this year ?

(b) How many of them have been filled by promoted Local Traffic Service men ? How many of these men were directly recruited to the Local Service ?

L8CPB(LA)

Mr. P. R. Rau : None have been recruited this year.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is the Honourable Member aware that Mr. Parsons stated during the last Railway Budget that about 36 per cent. of the vacancies will be recruited from the Local Traffic Service men ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : As I said in reply to a question by Mr. Neogy on the 4th, at the time Mr. Parsons made that reply it was intended to promote four in 11 vacancies likely to arise in the course of the year, but since then the matter is being further considered.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Do I understand that no direct recruitment has been made to the Superior Service ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No.

APPOINTMENT TO THE SUPERIOR TRAFFIC SERVICE OF A SUBORDINATE IN THE TRANSPORTATION AND COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENTS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

424. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) Is it a fact that a subordinate in the Transportation and Commercial Departments of the East Indian Railway has recently been appointed to the Superior Service with effect from the 1st October, 1928 ?

(b) Was he officiating in the Local Traffic Service ?

(c) Were there no permanent men in the Local Traffic Service who were considered fit for promotion ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) Taking all the facts into consideration he was considered the most suitable man for promotion at the time.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Considering the fact that the Agents of the various railways have already reported that there are a number of men in the Local Traffic Service fit for promotion, may I know why their claims have been passed over in favour of a man who was a subordinate in the Transportation and Commercial Departments of the East Indian Railway ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The policy of the Government has been explained many times on the floor of this House. It is that when vacancies which ought to be filled by promotion arise, the claims of all subordinates, including the Local Traffic Service, will be taken into consideration, and those vacancies cannot be considered as reserved for Local Traffic Service officers only.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Are the Local Traffic Service men, who had been promised recruitment to the extent of 20 per cent. into the superior posts in 1921, to have preference over the subordinate service men or not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have already explained that the policy of the Government is that the claims of all subordinate service officers will be considered, and that one particular section of those officers will not be given any preference.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Does it mean that the rights accorded to the Local Traffic Service men in 1921 have been wiped out ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have nothing further to add to the reply I have given or to the statements made by Mr. Parsons on the floor of this House.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is the Honourable Member aware of the rules under which recruitment to the Local Traffic Service took place in 1921, that is, the rules promulgated in 1921, regarding the establishment of the Local Traffic Service ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am not aware of those rules. I am afraid my memory is not as good as that of my Honourable friend.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : As the Honourable Member is dealing with the subject and it has now come before the House, are we not entitled to know whether the rules under which the Local Traffic Service men are recruited are to be observed or not ?

The Honourable Sir George Rainy : I will certainly undertake to look into the matter and especially to examine the point as to any rights that may have arisen owing to the orders passed in the year 1921.

PROCEDURE FOLLOWED FOR PROMOTION TO THE SUPERIOR TRAFFIC SERVICE.

425. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) With reference to the statement made by Mr. Parsons on the 19th February during the last Railway Budget debate regarding the selection of Local Traffic Service men and members of the subordinate service for promotion to the Superior Traffic Service, will Government please state when they began consulting the Public Service Commission and what is the exact procedure followed by them in the matter ?

(b) Did the Public Service Commission interview the candidates concerned last year or had they to depend on the files sent to them by the Railway Board ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The Public Service Commission have been consulted since 1927. The Public Service Commission are supplied with:

1. A list of the men it is proposed to promote.
2. A statement of supersessions, if any, which would be involved in the proposed promotions.
3. The records and confidential reports of all the men concerned.

(b) I understand the Public Service Commission did not interview the candidates last year. They act in accordance with rule 6 of the Public Service Commission (Functions) Rules which are the statutory rules on the subject.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Will the Honourable Member repeat the last part of his answer ? I did not hear him.

Mr. P. R. Rau : I understand the Public Service Commission did not interview the candidates last year. They act in accordance with rule 6 of the Public Service Commission (Functions) Rules which are the statutory rules on the subject.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Does the Honourable Member refer to the rules for promotion from one post to another post ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Will the Honourable Member kindly repeat the question ?

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is the Honourable Member referring to the rules relating to the promotion of men from one post to another post ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am referring to rule 6 of the Public Service Commission (Functions) Rules.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Is that the rule relating to the promotion of a man from a lower post to a higher post ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : It refers to recruitment made by promotion to any permanent post in all-India or Central Services.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Are those rules required in the case of promotion of men to higher posts ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I take it that this is a question of promotion to the Superior Traffic Service, which is a Central Service.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Are the Public Service Commission required to give any opinion under the rules ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Railway Board always send up such cases to the Public Service Commission for opinion.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : As apart from the rules relating to the Public Service Commission ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am afraid I cannot give an answer to that question as regards the functions of the Public Service Commission. I do not recollect what are the particular functions of that body.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Would the Railway Board be entitled to interview the candidates personally or not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Railway Board ?

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : I mean the Public Service Commission.

Mr. P. R. Rau : If the Commission so desires. The Railway Board would not object to the interview of the candidates.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : Have they been informed of that, or are they under the impression that their business is only to consider the file or files sent to them ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I take it that is entirely for the Commission to decide.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : What were the rules which were communicated to them on the subject ? Under what rule is their opinion asked for in this matter ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : So far as I know, that is the practice of the Railway Board. I cannot say off hand what is the particular rule under which we have acted in this matter.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : In view of the answer given by the Honourable Member, do I understand that the selection by the Public Service Commission depends entirely upon the recommendation of the head of the Department concerned ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Public Service Commission are judges of their own procedure.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : That does not answer my question, Sir. Do I understand that the acceptance by the Public Service Commission of a candidate depends entirely on the recommendation of the head of the Department concerned ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : I think that is a matter of general principle and I may be permitted to reply. I have already, as a matter of fact, replied on this particular point to the Honourable and gallant Member. The reply is this. When a reference is made to the Public Service Commission under the rules which permit of an optional reference, as quoted by my Honourable friend, it is entirely for the Public Service Commission to make such recommendation, having regard to the facts in their possession, as they consider proper, and they are not bound by the recommendation of any authority whatsoever.

Lieut.-Colonel H. A. J. Gidney : By what recommendation are they bound ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : My reply is, they are not bound by any recommendation whatever, but only by their own judgment and conscience in the matter.

Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : The Public Service Commission not having interviewed candidates, on what recommendations have their opinions been based so far ?

The Honourable Sir James Crerar : The Public Service Commission have constantly interviewed candidates. Whether they interviewed candidates in this particular instance I do not know. But as my Honourable friend has said, the Public Service Commission, within the terms of their functions rules, are judges of their own procedure and of the particular action they take in a particular case.

Mr. B. Das : Is the Honourable the Home Member aware that the Public Service Commission is always guided by departmental experts, who always cross-examine the candidates, and the Public Service Commission is very often influenced by them ?

Mr. President : Order, order.

INTRODUCTION OF A NEW LAW IN BELGIAN CONGO REQUIRING INDIANS TO GIVE FINGER PRINTS FOR THE PURPOSE OF IDENTIFICATION.

426. *Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) Is it a fact that the Government of Belgian Congo have recently passed a law under which Indians will be required to give finger prints for purposes of identification ?

(b) If so, why has this new procedure been introduced and what are the documents for which finger prints are required ?

(c) Have the Government of India received any representation on the subject from the Indian Association, Dar-es-Salaam ?

(d) What action do Government propose to take in the matter ?

Sir Denys Bray : Government have no information on the subject beyond that contained in a representation, dated 12 Noon. the 4th August last, from the Indian Association, Dar-es-Salaam, on receipt of which His Majesty's Government were at once addressed.

NUMBER OF OFFICERS IN A UNIVERSITY TRAINING CORPS BATTALION HOLDING KING'S COMMISSIONS AND NATURE OF COMMISSION HELD BY PLATOON OFFICERS.

427. Pandit Hirday Nath Kunzru : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the article "U. T. C. Again" in the Servant of India of the 8th August, 1929?

(b) What is the prescribed number of officers holding the King's Commission in a University Training Corps battalion? Will platoon officers hold the King's or the Viceroy's Commission?

Mr. G. R. F. Tottenham : (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) The authorised establishment of officers for a battalion of the University Training Corps is 26—all of whom, including the platoon commanders, are eligible for the grant of senior grade commissions. The procedure at present prescribed for the submission of recommendations for the grant of these commissions is a lengthy one and I am afraid has resulted in some delay. Government therefore propose to place the matter before the next meeting of the Central Advisory Committee, to see whether the system cannot be improved. I hope that the meeting will be held this month.

UNSTARRED QUESTION AND ANSWER.

INDIANISATION OF THE GEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA.

167. Mr. K. C. Neogy : (a) To what extent is the principle of Indianisation being applied to the Geological Survey of India?

(b) Are the claims of Sub-Assistants for promotion to the grade of Assistant Superintendents regularly taken into consideration? If so, how many have been so promoted since the reorganisation of the department in 1921, and how does the number compare with the total number of vacancies that have been filled since that date?

(c) Are Sub-Assistants generally allowed to officiate in temporary vacancies in the grade of Assistant Superintendents?

(d) What is the difference in the nature of work generally done by Assistant Superintendents and Sub-Assistants, so far as field duties are concerned?

(e) What are the considerations that determine the number of Assistant Superintendents and Sub-Assistants, respectively, employed in the Geological Survey of India?

The Honourable Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra : (a) Recruitment to the Geological Survey of India is now ordinarily confined to Indians; a European may only be recruited if no qualified Indian candidate is forthcoming.

UNSTARRED QUESTION AND ANSWER.

(b) Assistant Superintendents belong to the Superior service and Sub-Assistants cannot claim promotion to that service as of right. They are however eligible for appointment to the grade of Assistant Superintendents in competition with candidates for direct appointment. The number of Sub-Assistants so appointed is one against 17 vacancies that have occurred since 1921.

(c) and (e). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given by the Honourable Mr. (now Sir) A. C. McWatters to parts (c) and (a), respectively, of his unstarred question No. 553 on the 24th September, 1928.

(d) The more difficult and responsible field work is entrusted to the Assistant Superintendents.

THE TRANSFER OF PROPERTY (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. President : The House will now resume further consideration of the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Bill, clause by clause. The question is :

"That clause 4 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. M. R. Jayakar (Bombay City: Non-Muhammadan Urban): Sir, I move :

"That after Explanation 1, Clause 4 of the Bill, the following proviso be inserted :

"Provided that :

- (1) the instrument has been registered and its registration completed in the manner prescribed by the Indian Registration Act, 1908, and the rules made thereunder ;
- (2) the instrument has been duly entered or filed, as the case may be, in books kept under section 51 of that Act, and
- (3) the particulars regarding the transaction to which the instrument relates have been correctly entered in the indexes kept under section 55 of that Act."

Stated briefly, the principle of the amendment is that registration is notice only when the registration has been duly made, and not when the registration is faulty for some reason as specified in sub-clauses (1), (2) and (3) of my amendment. As Honourable Members are aware, the rule is now for the first time made applicable to the whole of India that registration is notice. I have great doubts myself about the advisability of applying this rule in the present state of illiteracy in the country, as was pointed out by my Honourable friend Mr. Lalechand Navalrai. The rule has to be very cautiously adopted. Speaking of my own province, the rule of registration being notice has been prevalent in that province for a number of years, but its success requires that the processes of registration should be made as complete and perfect as possible. I am in complete agreement with the views propounded by Mr. Lalechand Navalrai in this behalf, and I note with satisfaction the assurance given to this Honourable House by the Government of India that they will take early steps to see that the rules in this behalf are revised, and the methods of registration are improved and perfected. My amendment intends to secure this. Honourable Members are aware that there may be mistake in registration about names, etc. The registration may be made in the wrong book or under a wrong name. In such cases registration will not be notice. It will be notice only in those cases where the matter required to be registered is registered duly in the proper books and in the proper place. I am therefore suggesting this amendment in order that the hardships which may be caused by the application of the rule that registration is notice may be mitigated to some extent.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter (Law Member) : This amendment is intended to cover possible mistakes and inaccuracies in registration. It is a salutary amendment and I accept it.

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That clause 4 as amended stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar (Madura and Ramnad cum Tinnevely : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I suggest, Sir, that Explanation 1 to clause 4 may be put separately, in view of the opposition to it.

Mr. President : Explanation 1 has been amended now.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : The earlier portion of the Explanation stands.

Mr. President : Is it the desire of Honourable Members to ask for a division on that ?

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : I submit to the Chair that Explanation 1 no doubt stands amended, but it remains there as it is. It was against that that the whole opposition was made yesterday. I do not know if it is not desirable to put that separately.

Mr. President : If there is a general desire on the part of the House to ask for a division, I am prepared to put it separately. Otherwise it will be only taking up the time of the House.

The question is :

“ That clause 4 as amended stand part of the Bill.”

The motion was adopted.

Clause 4, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Clause 5 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That clause 6 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. D. F. Mulla : (Bombay : Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, I move :

“ That in clause 6 of the Bill, for the word ‘ Explanation ’ where it occurs for the first time, the word ‘ paragraph ’ be substituted, and for the Explanation the following paragraph be substituted :

“ In this section ‘ living person ’ includes a company or association or body of individuals, whether incorporated or not, but nothing herein contained shall affect any law for the time being in force relating to transfer of property to or by companies, associations or bodies of individuals.”

The Select Committee has added an explanation to section 5 of the Act. Section 5 defines “ transfer of property ”. It defines transfer of property as an act by which one living person transfers property to another living person. The Select Committee added an Explanation which runs thus :

“ In this section, living person includes a company or association or body of individuals, whether incorporated or not.”

Now, Sir, this is too important an amendment to be included in an Explanation. Hence it is proposed to omit the word “ Explanation ” and to have it in a separate paragraph, paragraph 2. At the same time, with a view to save any special law relating to companies or associations, the proposed words have been added, beginning with the words “ nothing herein contained ” and ending with the words “ bodies of individuals ”.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, I accept this amendment.

The motion was adopted.

Clause 6, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Clauses 7 to 13 were added to the Bill.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That clause 14 stand part of the Bill.”

Does the Honourable Member (Mr. Mulla) wish to move his amendment ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, may I explain that that refers to the supplementary Bill, not to this Bill.

Clauses 14 to 16 were added to the Bill.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : Sir, I move that sub-clause (c) of clause 17 of the Bill be omitted. Sir, this amendment only restores the original provision of the Act which runs thus :

“ In the case of tangible immovable property, of a value less than one hundred rupees, such transfer may be made either by a registered instrument or by delivery of the property.”

It is a question of policy. This has stood the test of time. It has been found to be convenient. I submit, Sir, that it is not worth while for a purchaser or seller of property worth Rs. 15 to go to the registration office to get it registered. I may say we had an indication yesterday from the Honourable the Law Member that he was prepared to accept this amendment. Sir, I move.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, I accept this amendment.

The motion was adopted.

Clause 17, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That clause 18 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. D. F. Mulla : Sir, I beg to move :

“ That in sub-clause (b) of clause 18 of the Bill, for the words ‘ or any person claiming under him with notice of the non-payment ’, the words ‘ any transferee without consideration or any transferee with notice of the non-payment ’ be substituted.”

This clause, Sir, relates to vendor's lien ; and it is proposed by this amendment to give an unpaid vendor the right to proceed against the property not only in the hands of a transferee with notice of non-payment, but also in the hands of a transferee without consideration.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, I accept this amendment. The motion was adopted.

Clause 18, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Clause 19 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That clause 20 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. D. F. Mulla : Sir, I beg to move :

“ That in sub-clause (c) of clause 20 of the Bill the word ‘ and ’ occurring at the end of paragraph (i) be omitted and the following paragraph be added :

‘ (iii) after the words ‘ or partly in lieu of interest ’, for the word ‘ and ’ the word ‘ or ’ shall be substituted ; and ”.

This, Sir, relates to a usufructuary mortgage. The word “ and ” which stood there was a slip for “ or ”. All that it is proposed to do is to substitute “ or ” for “ and ”.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, I accept this amendment.

The motion was adopted.

Clause 20, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That clause 21 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : Sir, I wish to move :

“ That in sub-clause (c) of clause 21 the words beginning with the words ‘ the second paragraph ’ and ending with the words ‘ the property and ’ be omitted.”

Mr. President : Order, order. The Honourable Member has not passed on that amendment to the Chair, and I cannot allow him to move it at this stage.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : I have got it in writing, Sir. I shall pass it on.

Mr. President : What is the position of the Government ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, the position is this. This clause (c) related to mortgages of property of the value of Rs. 100 or under, but it contains some other provisions also. Notice was given of an amendment to omit the whole of this clause. I agreed to accept the amendment in so far as it relate to the value of the property but so as not to affect the rest of that sub-clause. Now the fresh amendment which my Honourable friend is asking for leave to move is that the portion relating to the value only be allowed to be moved. That is the position. If the amendment as it stands on the paper be moved, it will make the whole section meaningless. That is the trouble, Sir.

Mr. President : The Honourable Member has no objection ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : I have no objection, Sir.

Mr. President : Unless previous intimation is given to the Chair, how is the Chair to know that an Honourable Member wishes to substitute one amendment for another ?

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : I am sorry, Sir.

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : I am sorry, Sir. I crave your permission to move it in some other form, otherwise the amendment as it stands on the paper now is perfectly unintelligible.

Mr. President : Will the Clerk at the table get it ?

Mr. M. S. Sesha Ayyangar : I beg to move, Sir :

“ That in sub-clause (c) of clause 21 the words beginning with the words ‘ the second paragraph ’ and ending with the words ‘ the property and ’ be omitted.”

Sir, on principle, this stands on the same footing as clause 17. I move.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, I accept the amendment.

The motion was adopted.

Clause 21, as amended was added to the Bill.

Clauses 22 to 26, were added to the Bill.

Mr. President : The question is that clause 27 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. D. V. Belvi (Bombay Southern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, the amendment which I wish to move runs as follows :

“ That for clause 27 of the Bill the following be substituted :

‘ In section 63 of the said Act for the words ‘ at the same rate of interest ’ the words ‘ with interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum ’ shall be substituted ’.”

I am afraid that every Member of this Assembly has not got before him the text of the Transfer of Property Act. I find that in our Library here there are very few copies of the Act available, and it is a matter to be regretted that Government have not taken precautions to supply the Honourable Members with copies of the Act. I am told that copies were struck off (about 50 or so) of the sections which are intended to be amended together with the original sections standing in parallel columns, but unfortunately Members have not been supplied with those copies. It is necessary to look into the wording of section 63 of the Transfer of Property Act in order to understand what my amendment is. I had better read the text of the section for the information of the House. Section 63 of the present Transfer of Property Act runs thus :

“ Where mortgaged property in possession of the mortgagee has, during the continuance of the mortgage, received any accession, the mortgagor, upon redemption, shall, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, be entitled as against the mortgagee to such accession.

Where such accession has been acquired at the expense of the mortgagee, and is capable of separate possession or enjoyment without detriment to the principal property, the mortgagor desiring to take the accession must pay to the mortgagee the expense of acquiring it. If such separate possession or enjoyment is not possible, the accession must be delivered with the property, the mortgagor being liable, in the case of an acquisition necessary to preserve the property from destruction, forfeiture or sale, or made with his assent, to pay the proper cost thereof, as an addition to the principal money, at the same rate of interest.”

I need not read the rest of the section. My amendment relates to the last line of the paragraph which I have just now read. It is stated in the Transfer of Property Act, as it now stands, that the mortgagor has to make good to the mortgagee the cost of the accession at the same rate of interest. Now, the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill wishes to make it clear as to what the mortgagor should be called upon to pay. Clause 27 says that the mortgagor should be asked to pay the mortgagee the cost of the accession, together with such interest as is stipulated in the mortgage-deed itself, or, if no stipulation is to be found, then interest at the rate of 9 per cent. should be charged. My submission is that it should not be made a matter of difficulty to a mortgagor to redeem his mortgage. The path to redemption should be as smooth as possible. I know of mortgage-deeds in this country in which the rate of interest stipulated is generally very high. I have known of cases in which the rate of interest was as high as 24 per cent. I have known of numerous cases in my part of the country where the rate of interest was 15 per cent. I think that it will be very hard upon a mortgagor if he is called upon to pay interest on the amount of money that was spent by the mortgagee on the accession to the mortgaged property at the rate of 15 per cent., or even at the rate of 12 per cent. We know that mortgagors are generally needy people and they borrow money because they are in a necessitous condition and, therefore, I submit that they should be called upon to pay interest at the usual rate at which courts award interest. We know that according to the Civil Procedure Code, future interest is awarded generally at the rate of 6 per cent. We also know that in the case of negotiable instruments under certain circumstances interest only at the rate of 6 per cent. is allowed to the holder of the negotiable instrument. There is no reason why the rate should not be 6 per cent. in this case also. Perhaps it may be said in opposition to my amendment that, in asking this House to go behind the terms of the stipulation contained in a mortgage-deed, I am asking the House to go back upon the terms of the original contract. But, after all, we are here to look after the interests of the large mass of the people and we must see that redemption is made as easy as possible. My amendment is very simple and I hope the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill will be good enough to accept it.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, I oppose this amendment. There are two objections and I shall state them seriatim. If this amendment is accepted, then whatever may be the rate of interest agreed upon by the parties and mentioned in the instrument is to be given the go-bye, and interest at the rate of 6 per cent. is to be allowed to the mortgagee. If Honourable Members will look at paragraph 3 of section 63, they will find that in the case last mentioned the profits, if any, arising from the accession shall be credited to the mortgagor. So, the mortgagor is getting credit for all profits arising from the accession, which has been acquired at the expense of the mortgagee and is not capable of separate possession. Now, in such cases the question is what ought to be reasonable interest which the mortgagee ought to get. If Honourable Members will look at section 72 they will find that 9 per cent. is the rate which the Transfer of Property Act provides in similar cases when there is no agreed rate. Section 72 deals with salvage. If a mortgagee is bound to spend money on saving the property, then he gets interest on that money at the rate of 9 per cent. This is what the section says :

“ may, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, add such sum to the principal money at the rate of interest payable on the principal, and, where no such rate is fixed in the mortgage-deed, at the rate of nine per cent. per annum.”

Therefore the policy of the Transfer of Property Act is that when extra money is properly spent by the mortgagee he is to add that to the principal and that extra money carries the same rate of interest as the principal money. If there be no agreement on the subject, then 9 per cent. is the interest which is allowed. That has been the policy of the Transfer of Property Act since 1882. No one has objected to this rate of interest as being excessive and, as a matter of fact, 9 per cent. in this country is not an excessive interest on securities. So, my first objection is that it would be inconsistent with a similar provision with regard to salvage which is embodied in section 72.

My second objection is this. If the mortgagee is compelled to spend money for the benefit of the property which enures to the mortgagor and the profits of which go to the mortgagor, then it is not unreasonable that he should get interest at the same rate as the principal sum was carrying. Besides, in the absence of an agreement the mortgagor is not really paying 9 per cent. because all the time he is getting the profits from the accession. He will be paying less than 9 per cent. and that only in the absence of a contract. On these grounds, I oppose this amendment.

Mr. N. C. Chunder (Calcutta : Non-Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, it is true, no doubt, that under section 72, nine per cent. is stated to be the rate which is to be paid to the mortgagee in case the deed is silent as to the rate of interest. But, as a matter of fact, that rate is an anomalous thing because, under the Interest Act, if no rate is fixed in any document where interest has to be paid for the money entered therein, then the interest is to be calculated under the Interest Act, unless the Court otherwise allows a higher rate of interest, at six per cent., and it has been the universal practice of the courts in allowing interest, to fix it at six per cent. whenever interest is decreed in any case independently of a contract. Therefore, six per cent. is the rate of interest usually known in the market and is usually known in the courts as the court rate of interest. In this case, the expenses that have been incurred were unforeseen. The mortgagor had no means of knowing that he would be saddled with all these expenses ; the profits may be great or may be nil. Whatever it is, it is very hard lines on the mortgagor in this country, especially where under a deed he is made to pay very high rate of interest. I have seen mortgages carrying 36 per cent. I am told that in the mofussil 50 per cent. would not be unthinkable. So, in these circumstances I would appeal to the Honourable the Law Member to consider whether he should not fix the rate of interest at nine per cent. on those expenses over which the mortgagor had no control, neither had the mortgagee. Six per cent. would be the most equitable rate, but even if he cannot agree to six per cent., if he wants to keep the rate the same as in section 72, I should think that he might at least accept nine per cent. and not allow the contract rate which may be very much higher.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I support the amendment to clause 27 of the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Bill. It appears to me that the words “ same rate of interest ” are ambiguous and indefinite. Section 63 nowhere says any amount of interest that the man has to pay, so that it may justify a reference at the end of the section, "that in case of accession, the interest would be at the same rate". In other words, section 63 does not clearly show what interest has to be paid. Now, it is being interpreted that "same rate of interest" would mean the contracted rate of interest. This is not clear from the section at all. It may be an interpretation that might be put upon it. Therefore, it is very necessary that the rate of interest should be fixed. So far as the interest is concerned, I think it would be only reasonable that the court interest should be allowed. No doubt section 72 allows nine per cent., but that is no bar to making the interest payable at a lesser rate. But if the Honourable Member thinks that he cannot, under any circumstances, reduce it to six per cent., I would suggest that nine per cent. might be allowed. That is very reasonable.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah (Bombay City : Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, the last speaker said that the words of section 63 are not quite clear and the interpretation put upon it is that it must be the same rate of interest as the contracted rate of interest. That is very reasonable and the amendment makes it quite clear. Clause 27 of the Bill before us makes it quite clear and there is no doubt about it at all. What is made very clear is this, that where you have a rate of interest fixed by the contract, then the same rate of interest should be allowed. In the absence of any rate being fixed in the contract, nine per cent. is the rate allowed. Now, I ask the Honourable Members to realise the position of the mortgagee who will be running away with the rate of interest provided in the contract, in case of accession, or if no rate is provided will be running away with nine per cent. It does seem, at first sight, a high rate of interest. Therefore, I quite appreciate the desire of the Honourable Member to prevent the mortgagee from exorbitating a very high rate of interest. But on the other hand, I think the Honourable Members have not appreciated this position : that if you prevent the mortgagee from getting what is the current rate in this country, or getting the rate which is fixed by the contract—twelve or fifteen per cent., a very high rate of interest, I admit—if you prevent him from getting his contract rate, or nine per cent. in the absence of a contract, and tie him down to six per cent., do you realise that the mortgagee may create difficulties in acquiring the accession because it would not pay him to spend money and then at the end give all the profits to the mortgagor and get six per cent. interest. Do you think you will be rendering a service to the mortgagor ? I am very doubtful about it. Therefore, you must look at it from both sides and if you make any change, being under the impression that you are helping the mortgagor, you might find cases in which you would be doing him great injury because the mortgagee would not care to acquire any accession with difficulties. I will read out section 63 to the House. Section 63 says:

"Where mortgaged property in possession of the mortgagee has, during the continuance of the mortgage, received any accession, the mortgagor, upon redemption, shall, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, be entitled, as against the mortgagee, to such accession."

Therefore he becomes entitled to that accession and as the Honourable the Law Member pointed out, in the case last mentioned, profit, if any, arising from the accession shall be credited to the mortgagor. Now, if you therefore tie down the mortgagee's interest to six per cent. interest, I think you might do very great injustice to the mortgagor's interest.

Therefore, I would urge upon this House, that however much you may desire—and I quite appreciate the feeling—that you must cut down the rate of interest, it cuts both ways. Therefore I would prefer to give the mortgagee the contract rate, or nine per cent. which is the current rate. That was the original intention of section 63, but the words of that section are not very clear. The words are,

"as an addition to the principal money, at the same rate of interest", and that means that addition becomes principal and that the same rate of interest as the contract rate should be allowed on such an addition. I quite agree that my Honourable friend can argue like what he did in a court of law, but I think 999 judges out of 1,000 would decide against him.

Mr. D. F. Mulla : Sir, there is one misapprehension which I propose to remove. My Honourable friend Mr. Chunder said that, under the Interest Act, if there is no express stipulation for the rate of interest, the rate of interest fixed under the Act is 6 per cent. per annum. Sir, it is nothing of the kind. The Interest Act does not deal at all with the rate of interest. All that the Interest Act provides for is this, that if there is no stipulation as to the rate of interest in a particular document, in that case it is competent to the promisee to give intimation in writing to the promisor that from a particular date he will charge interest, and in that case it is open to the court to award interest to the promisee at such rate as the court thinks proper.

Then as regards 6 per cent., it is only interest on judgment that is awarded at 6 per cent., but as regards mortgages the rule laid down by the Privy Council and followed by all the High Courts in India is to allow interest at the contract rate to the mortgagee up to the date on which the amount is paid to him.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That for clause 27 of the Bill the following be substituted :
'In section 63 of the said Act for the words 'at the same rate of interest' the words 'with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum' be substituted.'"

The motion was negatived.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That clause 27 stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President : The question is :

"That clause 28 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. D. V. Belvi : Sir, the amendment which I wish to move runs thus :

"That in sub-clause (2) of clause 28 of the Bill for the words 'with interest at the same rate as is payable on the principal, or, where no such rate is fixed in the mortgage-deed, at the rate of nine per cent. per annum' the words 'with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum' be substituted."

Sir, I do admit that the reasoning which was applicable to my amendment in the case of clause 27 applies to a great extent in this case also. But I submit that we can differentiate the case which is embodied in clause 28 from the case embodied in clause 27. It is proposed to add a new clause to section 63 of the Transfer of Property Act which relates to improvements to mortgaged property made by the mortgagee. The previous clause,—clause 27,—referred to the case of acquisition of accession to the mortgaged property. In this clause provision is sought to be made for the expenses of the mortgagee in making improvements to the property mortgaged. The clause runs thus :

L8CPB(LA)

[Mr. D. V. Belvi.]

“ Where mortgaged property in possession of the mortgagee has, during the continuance of the mortgage been improved, the mortgagor upon redemption shall, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, be entitled to the improvement ; and the mortgagor shall not, save only in cases provided for in sub-section (2), be liable to pay the cost thereof ”.

Then sub-clause (2) says :

“ Where any such improvement was effected at the cost of the mortgagee and was necessary to preserve the property from destruction or deterioration or was necessary to prevent the security from becoming insufficient, or was made in compliance with the lawful order of any public servant or public authority, the mortgagor shall, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, be liable to pay the proper cost thereof as an addition to the principal money with interest at the same rate as is payable on the principal, or, where no such rate is fixed in the mortgage-deed, at the rate of nine per cent. per annum, and the profits, if any, accruing by reason of the improvement shall be credited to the mortgagor ”.

Now, it was argued by the Honourable the Law Member in his opposition to my amendment to clause 27, that the stipulated rate of interest must not be departed from. I submit that the stipulation contained in the mortgage-deed refers only to the rate of interest on the mortgage-money. I do not suppose that the mortgagor anticipates at the time he enters into the mortgage transaction that there will be any improvements made to his property by the mortgagee and he never contracts at that time to pay interest at the stipulated rate on the amount that may be so spent thereafter. The stipulation only refers to the rate of interest on the principal money. The stipulated rate is not necessarily the rate at which interest is to be paid on the amount that the mortgagee chooses to spend subsequently. This is a thing which must be borne in mind by the House.

Then, Sir, it is said that interest at 9 per cent. per annum is the policy of the Transfer of Property Act. I do not suppose that this policy of the Transfer of Property Act is to override common sense. It is not as if the Transfer of Property Act is something like the laws of the Medes and Persians and is not to be changed at all. We are sitting here as legislators to legislate for the benefit of the people. What is the use of saying that simply because section 72 of the Transfer of Property Act contains a provision allowing interest at the rate of 9 per cent. under certain conditions, therefore 9 per cent. should be taken as the invariable rate in all cases ? I fail to understand that there is any policy underlying the Transfer of Property Act. I am told that 9 per cent. is the usual rate of interest in this country. What interest does Government pay on deposits in the Savings Bank ? What interest does it pay on securities ? Does it pay even 6 per cent. ? What does it pay on postal certificates ? Why should it be forgotten that there are numerous cases in which interest is paid at a much lower rate even than 6 per cent. ? And 6 per cent. is not a small rate of interest to be charged to the mortgagor on whose property improvements are made, sometimes without his knowledge and sometimes with his knowledge, and sometimes even against his will. Mortgagors are generally illiterate people. Mortgagees are, as a rule in most cases, people who are able to read and write. Any recitals that are suitable and convenient to the mortgagee are inserted in the mortgage-deed, and if the mortgagor is to be called upon to pay interest at a high rate, even on a small sum of money that may be spent by the mortgagee for making certain improvements, it will really be a hard case for the mortgagor.

On these grounds I commend this amendment to the House. The House must see that their hands are not tied down to any definite policy underlying this Act, and each section should be examined on its merits.

The Honourable Sir Brojendra Mitter : Sir, I oppose this amendment. I am on still stronger grounds on this amendment than I was on the last. In this case the improvements are not fanciful or capricious or extravagant improvements made by the mortgagee, but they are in the nature of salvage. If the Honourable Members will look at the wording of paragraph 2 they will find :

“ Where any such improvement was effected at the cost of the mortgagee and was necessary to preserve the property from destruction or deterioration, or was necessary to prevent the security from becoming insufficient or was made in compliance with the lawful order of any public servant or any public authority ”.

In these cases only the mortgagor will have to pay interest on the outlay. These are really not improvements, but in the nature of salvage, as the mortgagee is saving the property. At this stage I must say that I am thankful to my Honourable and learned friend Mr. Jinnah for drawing the attention of the House to the consideration that it is in the interest of the mortgagor himself that the property should be preserved. Supposing a municipal authority makes a requisition that certain improvements should be carried out, and in default, what happens ? The municipality itself carries out those improvements and charges the cost against the owner of the property. Or, if the security becomes insufficient, the mortgagee may say that he will not wait for the due date but will immediately bring the property to sale. Is it to the interest of the mortgagor that the public authority should execute improvements at the cost of the mortgagor ? Is it to the interest of the mortgagor that the mortgagee, instead of waiting for the due date, should straight away go to court and bring the property to sale ? It is in such cases only that the mortgagee will be entitled to get the money which he has spent back from the mortgagor and will be entitled to interest,—not in a case of fanciful or capricious or extravagant improvement. It is entirely in the interest of the mortgagor that the mortgagee should spend that money ; and if he does spend that money, why should he be deprived of the contract rate of interest, or if there is no contract rate, why should he be deprived of 9 per cent. which, as my Honourable friend Mr. Jinnah pointed out, was the current rate of interest in this country ?

Pandit Thakur Das Bhargava (Ambala Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, the point at issue is not whether interest should be allowed ; the point at issue is whether the rate of interest should be the same as was stipulated in the original contract or whether it should be 9 per cent. or 6 per cent. I submit there may be cases in which an improvement is made in consequence of, or in compliance with the lawful order of any public servant or public authority. In that case it appears that the one safeguard which was provided in section 63, that the accession is to be made with the assent of the mortgagor, is absent in the case of an improvement. The mortgagor does not accede or consent to the improvement being made; the improvement is being made in spite of him; and it may happen that if interest is calculated at the stipulated rate of interest, the interest charges will be much more than the actual value of the property. Suppose the stipulated rate of interest is 18 per cent. or 25 per cent.; in that case the interest would amount to a much greater sum than perhaps the original amount of money which was secured by the mortgage, and it would be very difficult for the mortgagor in the circumstances to redeem his property. Suppose a well is sunk or other kinds of improvement are effected which save the property from deterioration. In such cases the amount secured by the mortgage may prove to be almost insignificant as compared to the amount which must come to the mortgagee by this section. I would submit that the argument used by Mr. Jinnah would only apply to cases in which it is to the interest of the mortgagor to have that improvement made; but it may happen that, though it may be to the interest of the mortgagor originally to have them made, the ultimate amount which may grow up may be such that it may not be within the competence of the mortgagor to redeem the property at all. So that, the real point at issue is that if the rate of interest is 9 per cent., it will be acceptable to the House; but if these words, "at the same rate" are allowed to continue in this section, then hardship will really accrue to the mortgagor. Therefore I submit that, as the mortgagor did not contemplate at the time of the mortgage that he would have to pay for improvements which would be made in spite of him, at a rate which was stipulated at the time of the mortgage, he should not be mulcted in the same rate of interest. On the contrary, if either 6 per cent. or 9 per cent. is secured to the mortgagee, it will be a safe investment for him, and it will repay him rather more than he would be repaid by advancing the amount in the ordinary way. Therefore it is only right that this rate should be either 6 or 9 per cent.; and these words, "at the same rate of interest as is payable on the principal" should be deleted.

LSCP(B)(LA)

Mr. N. C. Chunder : Sir, the issue has been very clearly stated by Pandit Thakurdas Bhargava. The real issue in the present instance is what should be the rate of interest? One thing which has not been noticed in this particular case, in the case of section 63-A, which differentiates it from the case in section 63 is this: in section 63-A it is a question of improvement, while in section 63 it is a question of accession—accession which everybody can see. It is a physical thing, which everybody can see, while in section 63-A the mortgagor may not know that any money has been spent on improvement, or that anything has been done by the mortgagee until he goes to redeem the mortgage. The question will not arise till the question of redemption is raised. That is one great difficulty. Supposing a municipal requisition is made—I will take an extreme instance—suppose a requisition is made that the house has become dangerous and therefore it has either to be pulled down or reinstated, and the mortgagee reinstates it; he spends money. The mortgagor may know nothing about it, because the mortgagee is in possession. Notice will be served on the mortgagee, who is in possession, and who spends the money, and ultimately the mortgagor, when he comes to redeem the property, finds that he has got to foot a bill of say Rs. 10,000 or Rs. 15,000, carrying interest it may be at the rate of 18 or 15 or 24 per cent. Is it equitable that he should be allowed to do that and to charge the mortgagor a very high rate of interest, while on the other hand if the mortgagor had been informed that the municipality had required the owner of the house to pull it down or reinstate it, he might have borrowed the money, even on his personal credit at 12 per cent. This is a case which is entirely different from the case in section 63; and if in any case a rate of interest ought to be fixed, it should be in 63-A. Again, the circumstances which are mentioned in 63-A. are really the circumstances which are implied in section 69 of the Indian Contract Act. Now, if I have a policy, and if I pledge it with my learned friend over there, and if my learned friend has to pay the premia in order to keep the policy alive, he will not be entitled to charge me the rate of interest which he is charging on the loan; he will be given such rate of interest as the court gives; and so far as Calcutta is concerned, I can assure you that it has been invariably the practice of the Calcutta Courts to grant only 6 per cent. interest. This case is therefore distinguishable from that in section 63, and I hope that at least in this case the Honourable the Law Member will fix the rate of interest at 9 per cent., if he cannot accept 6 per cent. as proposed by Mr. Belvi.

Mr. D. F. Mulla : Sir, I beg respectfully to point out that there is no question of consent here at all, so far as section 63-A. is concerned.....

Mr. N. C. Chunder : Nor of notice to the mortgagor either.

Mr. D. F. Mulla : Well, the position is this. The mortgagor is the owner of the house; probably he lives in the house; the house is about to tumble down; does the mortgagor require notice?

Mr. D. V. Belvi : Suppose he does not live in the house?

Mr. D. F. Mulla : Suppose he does not live in the house. There are two persons who are interested in the property: there is the mortgagor who is interested in the property, and there is the mortgagee who is interested in the property. Which of the two is more interested? The answer is, the mortgagor. Therefore it is to the interest of the mortgagor to know whether his property is coming down or not; and if he does not care to know, why should we have any sympathy for him? If he does care to know, the position is that he may, if he likes, make the necessary repairs.....

Mr. N. C. Chunder : Supposing it is a question of relaying the drains.

Mr. D. F. Mulla : Probably that will be something which neither the mortgagor nor the mortgagee will know about; the municipality will know about it and give notice to both the parties under the Municipal Act ; therefore that question does not arise.

[Mr. D. F. Mulla.]

Mr. N. C. Chunder : Under the Municipal Act the owner is the person who receives the rent.

Mr. D. F. Mulla : With very great respect to my learned friend, under the Municipal Act the owner is not necessarily one who receives the rent ; the occupier also is there ; so if the mortgagor is not to be found and if he is hiding, it is quite sufficient if the municipality gives notice to the occupier under the Municipal Act. Having done with these interruptions, I come to the point. The real point is this. As I said, there are two persons interested. There is the mortgagor and the mortgagee ; and I take it that, in the ordinary course, it is the mortgagor that will first come to know that the property is tumbling down. Then there are two courses open to him. He may, at his own cost and at his own expense, do the necessary repairs. If he has not got the money, the only course open to him is to go and borrow ; borrow on what ? On the security of another mortgage. At what rate of interest ? At such rate of interest as the new mortgagee may demand. Why then, so far as the improvements are concerned, should the position of the mortgagee in this respect be in any way different from the case in section 63 which provides for accession ? On the other hand, as I pointed out, under this section the case of the mortgagee is much stronger than the case of the mortgagor. Nobody compels the mortgagor to consent to the repairs being made. He is perfectly entitled to make the repairs. This section

1 P.M. does not say that he is debarred from making repairs if he is inclined to make the repairs. But if he has no money, he will have to go and borrow the money at a very high rate of interest, 40 or 50 per cent., which was mentioned just now by one of my learned friends.

Mr. President : The question is :

“ That in sub-clause (2) of clause 28 of the Bill for the words ‘ with interest at the same rate as is payable on the principal, or, where no such rate is fixed in the mortgage-deed, at the rate of nine per cent. per annum ’ the words ‘ with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum ’ be substituted.”
