RULING(S) BY MR. DEPUTY PRESI-DENT (MR. ABDUL MATIN CHAUDHRY)—

Miscellaneous—

On the Demand for supplementary Grant in respect of Salaries and other Expenses in connection with Agriculture, discussion about the separation of Sind is out of order.
2151, 2152.

RULING(S) BY MR. PRESIDENT (THE HONOURABLE SIR SHANMU-KHAM CHETTY)—

Amendment(s) to Bill(s)—

An amendment as standing on the Order Paper, if its consequence would be to increase the duty, is out of order. 2057.

An amendment restricting or controlling prices to a Bill which seeks to give protection to an industry is not in order. 2066-67.

Bengal Criminal Law Amendment
Supplementary (Extending) Bill—

A violation of the Habeas Corpus law cannot be construed as in any way affecting the allegiance of the subject to the Crown, and therefore the — is intra vires of the Legislative Assembly. 576-77.

Bill(s)—

If an Honourable Member do not give any valid reason to permit his being allowed to move a motion for the postponement of the consideration of a Bill, the Chair does not propose to allow him to move it. 1472.

So far as Government Bills are concerned, the Member in charge of a Bill is deemed to be any one acting on behalf of Government for the purpose. 1530.

The third reading of a — must be confined to the principles arising from the clauses of the —. 428.

RULING(S) BY MR. PRESIDENT
(THE HONOURABLE SIR SHAN-MUKHAM CHETTY)—contd.

Demand(s) for Grant(s)—

The Government of India are not precluded to bring forward or the Legislative Assembly to pass a Demand for Grant for a specific object which is within the purview of the Provincial Government.
2156.

Demands for Supplementary Grants—

Token cuts for discussion of policy cannot be permitted on —. 2130.

The Indian Army (Amendment) Bill—

The amendment of Sir Abdur Rahim seeks to define the status and powers of the Indian Commissioned officers who are to be created by the present Bill, and it is open to this Legislature to define what the power and status of those officers will be. This House has, therefore, got the right to define the status and powers of the Indian Commissioned Officers. 1542-44.

Indian Iron and Steel Duties Bill—

The only principle to which the Legislative Assembly will be committed, by referring the — to a Select Committee, is that the iron and steel industry of India requires protection. 986.

Indian Naval (Discipline) Bill—

According to section 66 of the Government of India Act, the Indian Legislature is empowered to adapt the Naval Discipline Act of England with such modifications to suit Indian conditions as the Indian Legislature may deem expedient. Therefore, when the — is before the Select Committee, it would be perfectly open to any Member in the Select Committee to ask for the incorporation of any section of the Naval Discipline Act, either wholesale or with such modifications as he wants to make.

Miscellaneous—

As regards rulings, the chair is always the Chair, whether it is the President or the Deputy President.
1974.

Honourable Members should not walk across the floor of the House.
165.

Question(s)—

Honourable Members cannot repeat — which have already been answered. 864.

No — can be asked about the detention of the ruler of an Indian State.
1457.

RULING(S) BY MR. PRESIDENT
(THE HONOURABLE SIR SHAN-MUKHAM CHETTY)—contd.

Votable expenditure—

A votable expenditure must ultimately be sanctioned by a vote of this House. If, on the strength of the Standing Finance Committee's approval, Government proceed with the expenditure on a particular item and then come for the vote of the House subsequently, then it is perfectly open to the House to reject that vote. In that case, unless that vote has been legalised by some other section of the Government of India Act, the person who was responsible for the expenditure will be surcharged by the Auditor General. 192.

Voting—

It is perfectly in order if any Honourable Member voted wrongly and immediately corrected the mistake.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

COUNTING TOWARDS PENSION OR GRATUITY OF THE SERVICES OF DISMISSED POSTAL EMPLOYEES.

1. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what rule or policy they adopt in regard to counting towards pension or gratuity, the previous service of a Government servant in the Postal Department, who has been dismissed after putting in some years' service and is again employed in Government service ?

(b) If Government do not count such service towards pension or gratuity, will they be pleased to state their reasons for not doing so ?

(c) If they do take into consideration such service, will Government be pleased to state if such a rule is followed in practice ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). The rule which is applicable to all Government Departments and is laid down in Article 418 (a) of the Civil Service Regulations is that dismissal from Government service entails forfeiture of past service and ordinarily disqualifies from future re-employment.

(c) Does not arise.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member whether that service would be counted again or not.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I will read the answer again :

"The rule which is applicable to all Government Departments and is laid down in Article 418 (a) of the Civil Service Regulations is that dismissal from Government service entails forfeiture of past service and ordinarily disqualifies from future re-employment.

(c) Does not arise."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : One supplementary question, Sir : Does the Honourable Member know that there are two methods in connection with the dismissal of public servants ? One method is that when an officer is dismissed, his dismissal is notified in the Gazette ; and the other method is that when such a dismissal is notified in the Gazette, the notification in the Gazette says that he will not be taken up in service. I would like to know whether the rule that the Honourable Member is referring to applies to both classes of dismissals or to only one class ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : That, Sir, is a question which could more suitably be answered by my Honourable colleague, the Finance Member, as it deals with the interpretation of Civil Service Regulations, for which I am not responsible, but I take it that this rule applies to both the classes mentioned by the Honourable Member opposite. He will notice that the words used are "ordinarily disqualifies from future re-employment". There may be cases in which there is no disqualification from future re-employment.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I will not disturb the Honourable the Finance Member on the very first day, but I would like to know from the Honourable Member himself whether any such instances have occurred in the Postal Department where people had actually asked that their service should be counted and it has been counted ?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I should certainly require notice of that question.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I would also request the Honourable Member to consider this question from the viewpoint of both the methods I have mentioned and give me a reply later on, if not now.

APPOINTMENT OF GUARDS IN THE DINAPUR DIVISION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

2. *Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Is it a fact that in response to a representation made last year the Railway Board passed orders that no direct appointment of guards should be made in the higher grade ?

(b) Is it a fact that two Anglo-Indian guards were appointed in April, 1934, by the Divisional Superintendent, Dinapur, in Grade A, and that the claims of about 50 B class Indian guards, who have been drawing maximum salary for many years, were ignored ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) I am not aware of any orders issued last year on the subject. Perhaps my Honourable friend is thinking of the rules for recruitment issued in 1931, where it is provided that direct appointment to the highest grade of guards will not be made.

(b) In accordance with the policy of the East Indian Railway to offer employees, who fail in eye test, employment on pay as near to their original pay as possible, one Anglo-Indian fireman and one Anglo-Indian shunter who were in receipt of Rs. 120 and Rs. 150 respectively and who failed to pass the periodical re-test of eye-sight in Class A1, but were certified as fit for Class A2, were absorbed as guards grade I.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : May I know if the claims of the Indian guards were ignored in the two cases cited by the Honourable Member ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have just stated that these two persons were offered employment, because they had failed in the eye tests for their previous posts and were absorbed in some other posts for which their eyes were suitable.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Had they passed the examination for posts of guards ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am afraid I must ask for notice.

Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : Are those orders still in force ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : That is the general rule.

MALADMINISTRATION IN THE DINAPUR DIVISION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

3. *Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government please state if it is the policy of the Railway Board not to interfere in matters of administration ?

(b) Are Government aware that the attention of the Railway Board has been drawn to various cases of maladministration in the Dinapur Division of the East Indian Railway, by a large number of questions asked by various Members of this House during the last twelve months ?

L168LAD

A2

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, will Government please state if the Railway Board have taken any action in any matter? If they have, what action has been taken, and in which cases?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) It is the policy of the Railway Board not to interfere ordinarily in matters which lie within the competence of Agents of State-managed Railways.

(b) Government are aware that a number of questions have been asked, for many of which, I believe, my Honourable friend himself was responsible, about the Dinapur Division of the East Indian Railway.

(c) Government obtained information from the Agent in certain cases and after examination they came to the conclusion that their interference was not called for.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Will the Honourable Member kindly explain the meaning of the word "ordinarily"?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I would suggest to my Honourable friend that he should consult a dictionary.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if the Honourable Member and the Railway Board have laid down a dictionary meaning for the words "ordinary" and "extraordinary", and if they have been sending for reports relating to "ordinary" cases and "extraordinary" cases?

Mr. P. R. Rau : May I ask the Honourable Member to repeat the question?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know the meaning of the words "ordinary" and "extraordinary" according to the Railway Board's dictionary?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Railway Board have not published a dictionary of their own.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Have they laid down any policy in black and white with regard to their interference in "ordinary" and "extraordinary" matters?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No, Sir; we follow the ordinary dictionary meaning.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if since the last Session there have been any cases in which the Honourable Member himself treated ordinary cases as extraordinary after calling for reports from the Agents?

Mr. P. R. Rau : My Honourable friend who put the question knows that because he was very insistent on a particular case being re-examined, it was re-examined by Mr. Colvin, a Member of the Railway Board.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : To the credit of the Honourable Member I must say that he also did interfere.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : In view of the fact that all questions relating to the subordinates in the Railway service cannot be asked in any Provincial Council except in this House, is it not a fact that the Railway Board is responsible for the action of all their subordinates to this House?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Sir, I have pointed out many times on the floor of this House that to discharge that responsibility the Railway Board must delegate certain powers to their Agents.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : That is not my question. Delegation is an internal arrangement between the Railway Board and their Agents with which we are not concerned. What we are concerned with is this. The Railway Board is responsible to the Legislature for all the action taken by their subordinates in the Railway Department as distinct from the general administration for which the local officers are responsible?

Mr. P. R. Rau : These questions ordinarily relate to matters which are within the province of the local administration.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Certain questions were asked about the Dinapur Division of the East Indian Railway. Then the Honourable Member cannot shove the responsibility to the Agent, because the Agent cannot answer any of those questions in the Legislature and so the Railway Board is responsible for all the actions of their subordinates here, and I should like to say that they should not shirk their responsibility to the House.

RE-ARRANGEMENTS OF THE GANDHARA AND PRE-HISTORIC GALLERIES.

4. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) With reference to their reply to question No. 550 given on the 27th March, 1934, will Government be pleased to state which officer is responsible for the recent re-arrangements of the Gandhara and pre-historic Galleries? Is it the Superintendent of Archaeological Section, Indian Museum, or is it the Assistant Superintendent, Archaeological Survey, Eastern Circle?

(b) Is it a fact that the Central Iron Screen, arranged in a square, in the Gandhara Gallery has reliefs, etc., hanging on it on both sides without any common background to these sculptures?

(c) Are the other sculptures in the Gandhara Gallery placed at a right angle to the windows or along the walls? Are Government aware that light is very important for the effect of sculptures?

(d) Were these changes in the Gandhara Gallery, detailed in parts (b) and (c), carried out under the instructions or with the approval of the Director General of Archaeology?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (d). The Galleries in question were re-arranged by Mr. N. G. Majumdar under the instructions of the Director General of Archaeology in India. Mr. Majumdar was entrusted with the completion of the Guide Books to the collection of antiquities in the Archaeological Section of the Indian Museum and it was considered that the task could most suitably be entrusted to him. The superintendents concerned concurred in this arrangement.

(b) Yes. The present arrangement is not ideal but cannot be improved on, partly because of the limitations of space and partly for lack of funds which prevents acquisition of suitable show-cases.

(c) The larger sculptures in the Gandhara gallery are arranged on masonry benches, along the four walls, and parallel to them and every endeavour has been made to utilise the lighting capacity of the rooms to their best advantage.

RECRUITMENT OF INDIANS IN THE INDIAN LAC RESEARCH INSTITUTE.

5. *Mr. K. C. Neogy : With reference to the answers given on the 27th November, 1933, to the starred question No. 1181 and the supplementary questions connected therewith, regarding advertising the posts in the Indian Lac Research Institute and recruitment of Indians when the contracts of the present incumbents expired, will Government be pleased to state whether the Lac Cess Committee was duly apprised of the desirability of taking action on the lines suggested ? If so, with what result ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Yes. The matter will be considered by the Lac Cess Committee at their next meeting which will be held in October or November.

PROTEST BY MUSLIMS AGAINST THE SACRILEGE OF THE GRAVES AND MOSQUES IN DELHI.

6. *Lieut. Nawab Muhammad Ibrahim Ali Khan : (a) Is it a fact that in 1930 when the work of clearing the site for the Irwin Hospital in New Delhi was taken in hand, the Muslim community of Delhi had made a vehement protest against the sacrilege of the graves and mosques situated there ? Is it also a fact that Government had to stop the work under orders of the Deputy Commissioner, Delhi, which read as follows ?—

“All work that was being carried out on the site of the New Hospital has been stopped until the issues that have cropped up now are not thoroughly investigated. The issues will be decided in consultation with respectable members of the Muslim community.”

(Sd.) A. H. LAYARD,

Deputy Commissioner, Delhi.”

Dated 16th September, 1930.

(b) Is it a fact that several notice boards bearing these orders were fixed at the site, and that a few of them are still in tact at the site ?

(c) Is it a fact that in pursuance of the notice referred to in part (a) above, the Local Government held three meetings on the 4th November, 1930, the 19th November, 1930, and the 3rd December, 1930, for consultation with the Muslims of Delhi ?

(d) Is it a fact that at these meetings the Muslims made the following demands, viz. :

(i) re-construction of the demolished mosques,

(ii) reservation of the rights of public entry therein, and

(iii) preservation of their present approach roads to the places ?

(e) Is it a fact that at the meetings referred to in part (c) above, the Muslims submitted the Fatwas of the Ulemas, as well as the proceedings of a special meeting held at Jama Masjid, Delhi, as appeared in the Aljamiat of Delhi, dated the 13th and the 18th November, 1930, to impress upon Government the consensus of opinion of their religious leaders and the public with regard to their demands ?

(f) Is it a fact that at the last meeting held on the 3rd December, 1930, the Chief Commissioner, Delhi, promised to consider the results achieved by the discussion with the Muslim leaders and to make his recommendations to the Government of India ?

(g) If the replies to parts (a) to (f) above be in the affirmative, will Government please state whether the Chief Commissioner, Delhi, made any recommendations to the Government of India in the matter ? If he did, what were his recommendations and what orders were passed thereon by the Government of India ? Were the orders of the Government of India communicated to the Muslim leaders who took part in the proceedings of the meetings held by the Local Government ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) to (f). Yes.

(g) No orders were passed on the suggestions made by the Chief Commissioner in 1930, as, on account of financial stringency, the execution of the project had to be postponed. In the revised lay-out every attempt will be made to give effect to those suggestions as far as possible.

Lieut. Nawab Muhammad Ibrahim Ali Khan : With regard to part (d) of the question, may I know how many mosques have been demolished and under what authority ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : So far as my information goes, not a single mosque has been demolished, and, therefore, the question of authority does not arise.

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar : May I know if the Gurdwara in the locality of the Lady Reading Hospital will be treated as any other Moslem monument ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : So far as I am aware, there is no Gurdwara situated in this particular locality.

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar : There is litigation going on there.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Neither my local knowledge of the particular place nor the information that has been supplied to me by the P. W. D. shows that there is any Gurdwara in that locality.

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar : But I may inform the Honourable Member that the Gurdwara is situated very near the Lady Reading Hospital.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The question is not about the Lady Reading Hospital, but about the Irwin Hospital.

GRAVEYARD OF MEHDIAN AND THE DURGAH OF KHWAJA MIR DARD IN DELHI.

7. *Lieut. Nawab Muhammad Ibrahim Ali Khan : (a) Will Government please state if the present routes branching from the circular road outside Delhi and Turkman Gates for approaching the three mosques which are situated on that land, the grave-yard of Mehdian and the Durgah of Khwaja Mir Dard Dehlvi, which have been shown as preserved monuments in the revised plan of the site, have also been kept in view ? If not, why not ?

(b) Are Government aware that the grave-yard of Mehdian is the burial place of the renowned Muslim doctors of Divinity like Maulana Shah Abdul Aziz Mohaddis, Dehlvi and others, and is for this reason held sacred by the entire Muslim community in India and visited frequently by pilgrims ?

(c) Are Government aware that the Durgah of Khwaja Mir Dard Dehlvi is for similar reasons as mentioned in part (b) above held sacred by the Muslim community?

(d) Are Government aware that the religious feelings of the Muslim community will be severely injured if they are deprived of their right of visiting the shrines, which have been proposed to be blocked up by enclosing them within Government buildings without leaving any access to them?

(e) Is it a fact that both the shrines mentioned in parts (b), (c) and (d) are admitted to be preserved monuments of Class d (iii) in the Government publication of the Archaeological Department named "Mohamedan and Hindoo Monuments of Delhi Zail", Volume II, page 65, like the Gurdwaras of Bangla Sahib and Rakab Ganj mentioned on pages 10 and 229 ibid, as well as Hanuman Temple and Jain Aggarwal Temple shown on pages 9 and 14 ibid?

(f) Is it a fact that the Gurdwaras and the temples referred to in part (e) above have been allowed large compounds, boundary walls and access by main roads?

(g) If the replies to parts (e) and (f) be in the affirmative, will Government please state why the shrines referred to in part (e) above have not been equally enclosed within boundary walls and by providing them with suitable approach roads?

(h) Is it a fact that the shrine mentioned in part (b) above has been surrounded by clerks' quarters in such a way that it has become totally invisible to the visitors from outside, and that a cattle byre is proposed to be built in its vicinity with a gate just opposite to the shrine?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai: (a) The three mosques in the first part of this question presumably refer to the graves and mosques mentioned in his preceding question, I have dealt with them in the answer which I have just given. The grave-yard of Mehdian and the Durgah of Khwaja Mir Dard Dehlvi are quite outside the lay-out of the proposed Irwin Hospital, which in no way interferes with the approach to these two monuments.

(b) and (c). Government are aware of the sentiments of the Muslim community.

(d) Does not arise.

(e) Yes.

(f) Government have not allotted any areas to the Gurdwara or any other shrine. The space left unbuilt on at any point, and the fencing, etc., have been adapted mainly to the general lay-out of adjacent roads and buildings.

(g) Suitable means of access will be provided to the two Muslim monuments referred to in part (a) of the answer, and it is also intended to enclose them.

(h) This shrine has been surrounded by new quarters, but an adequate space has been left on all sides, and roads giving access to it from the east, the south and the west are under construction. The proposal to build a cattle byre in the vicinity has emanated from the New Delhi Municipality. Government will consider whether the byre cannot be located elsewhere.

REDUCTION IN THE STRENGTH OF THE RAILWAY GANGMEN ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

8. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the strength of the Railway gangmen on the North Western Railway lines has recently been reduced from 20 men per four miles to 15 men?

(b) Is it also a fact that instead of the old system of through backing on the line, batch-backing, wherever necessary, has been introduced?

(c) Is it also a fact that the gangmen have been ordered to work in the station yards on particular days? If so, why?

(d) Is it a fact that this system was introduced by Mr. Robi while he was acting in place of the permanent Chief Engineer, Lieut.-Colonel W. Macrae, R.E.? If so, what were his reasons for doing so?

(e) Are Government aware that the Permanent Way Inspectors, who actually work on the spot, find the new system inefficient, harmful and inconvenient?

(f) Do Government propose to go into this matter and issue proper and suitable orders so as to make the system safe and efficient?

Mr. P. R. Rau: (a) Government are informed that this has been done on some sections.

(b) Through packing as a regular yearly operation has been suspended. Maintenance of track is now done according to a time-table which includes all the necessary operations, such as patch packing.

(c) Yes, station yards also require maintenance.

(d) The new system was proposed by Mr. E. B. Robey and was introduced by Lieut.-Colonel W. Macrae in order to reduce expenditure on maintenance without materially impairing efficiency.

(e) No reports to this effect have been received by the Railway administration.

(f) Government see no reason to interfere.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: May I know whether the present Agent, Lieut.-Colonel Macrae, is also of the same opinion?

Mr. P. R. Rau: I have just stated that the change was introduced by Lieut.-Colonel Macrae.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: I did not hear the Honourable Member's reply to part (e). May I know whether the permanent way inspectors were against this system and even now they do not think that that is a suitable system?

Mr. P. R. Rau: I am not a technical man; neither, I believe, is my Honourable friend. But I prefer to trust to the opinion of our expert advisers, the Chief Engineers of the line, and I do not think I can take the opinion of permanent way inspectors as against the opinion of Chief Engineers.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: May I also know from the Honourable Member if, when these people are working in the station yard, their work is not suffering on that account?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am sure, the administration will take sufficient steps to see that no necessary work is neglected.

AMALGAMATION OF THE QUETTA AND KARACHI DIVISIONS OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

9. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of line-clear stations in the Quetta Division of the North Western Railway ?

(b) Are Government aware that in comparison to the other Divisions of the North Western Railway the Quetta Division is too small to remain as a separate Division ?

(c) Are Government aware that the present Divisional system on the North Western Railway is not approved by the public and by those who are in the know of its internal working ?

(d) If the reply to part (c) above be in the affirmative, are Government prepared to undertake an enquiry to find out whether or not it would be advantageous if the Quetta and Karachi Division offices be re-organized, and a head office of both the Divisions created and located at Sukkur, which is the central place ? If not, why not ?

(e) Are Government aware that several suitable and commodious buildings of the Lloyd Barrage are at present lying vacant and could be profitably obtained by the North Western Railway and used for locating the proposed head office of both the Karachi and Quetta Divisions ? If so, do Government propose to move in the matter ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) 51.

(b) Quetta is a comparatively small division but owing to its geographical position cannot be amalgamated with any other division.

(c) The question of reduction in the number of divisions on the North Western Railway was re-examined in detail by the Railway Board recently. They also obtained the opinion of Mr. Pope on the subject. Mr. Pope's opinion was that it would be a mistake at the present time to embark upon a reorganisation of divisional boundaries with its resultant upheaval and change of control. The Railway Board agree with this view and decided to drop for the time being the proposal to reduce the number of divisions on State-managed Railways.

(d) and (e). A division formed by the amalgamation of Quetta and Karachi Divisions would be unwieldy and impossible to manage. The fact of buildings being available at a certain place cannot obviously be a deciding consideration in fixing the headquarters of a division.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I ask if my Honourable friend knows that Sukkur is the central place in the railway section of Sind, and why advantage has not been taken of the Barrage buildings and the central office located there ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I believe everybody will recognise that Karachi is the most important place in the Karachi Division.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I do recognise that Karachi may be central, but it may not be convenient for all.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Are Government aware that the shifting of the divisional headquarters from Karachi to Sukkur Barrage is not liked by the majority community in Sind ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am not aware of that, but I think it would not be liked by anybody.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I did not follow the answer to part (c). Are Government aware that the present divisional system on the North Western Railway is not approved by the public and by those who are in the know ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government are not aware of that.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Do the Government agree ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government do not agree at all.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I ask my Honourable friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, whether he is in possession of anything to show that the majority community is against the division being located at Sukkur ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Certain friends have informed me that Muslims do not like.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I think you are incorrect if you rely on their opinion.

REFUSAL OF THE COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX TO REFER CERTAIN CASES OF SIND TO THE HIGH COURT.

10. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that prior to the decision of the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Sind in the case of Bulchand Keshavdas versus Commissioner of Income-tax, Bombay (25 Sind Law Reporter, page 182) the Commissioner of Income-tax had refused to refer to the High Court under section 66 of the Indian Income-tax Act questions of law raised by appellants from Sind on the plea that no reference lay to the Court of Judicial Commissioner ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the number of cases for each year separately in which the Commissioner refused to refer such questions for the decision of the Court of Judicial Commissioner, Sind, on the above plea ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state why no reference was made by the Commissioner to the High Court of Bombay, which was also within his jurisdiction, and whether they consider the Commissioner acted properly in refusing such applications ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The answer to the first part of the question is in the negative and the other two parts do not therefore arise.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : There is no definition in the Income-tax Act whether High Court means a Chartered High Court, and, therefore, may I take it that, when references are made to the High Court, they could be made to the Sind High Court which is not a chartered High Court ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : It does not seem to me to arise out of this question, and, therefore, I must ask for notice.

AMENDMENT OF SECTION 9 OF THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX ACT.

11. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to state if it is contemplated to amend section 9 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, in view of the divergent rulings of the various High Courts, especially the following :

- (i) In the matter of Chuni Mal (A. I. R., 1929, Lahore, 503) ;
- (ii) Mahomed Naqi versus Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab, A. I. R., 1931 (Lahore, 656) ;
- (iii) Chunamal Saligram versus Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab (A. I. R., 1931, Lahore, page 433) ; and
- (iv) in the matter of Krishnalal Seal (A. I. R., 1932, Calcutta, page 886) ?

If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : No. Of the four cases mentioned by the Honourable Member barring case (ii), viz., of Mahomed Naqi which appears to refer to a different matter, cases (i) and (iii) were decided by the Punjab High Court and case (iv) subsequently by the Calcutta High Court. The latter Court has fully considered the previous judgments of the Punjab High Court and disagreed therefrom giving reasons therefor. The Government of India agree with the Calcutta High Court and in consequence consider that there is no necessity to legislate as there is nothing in the Income-tax Act in this connection which needs any amendment.

GRIEVANCES OF THE PRINCES OF THE MOGHAL DYNASTY.

12. *Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have received a copy of the Oudh Akhbar, dated the 2nd May, 1934, in which was published an article on the troubles of the princes of the Moghal dynasty, and in which Government have been requested to bestow their best consideration on the said matter ? If so, will Government please place a copy of the same on the table for the information of the Members of this House ?

(b) Will Government please state plainly whether the whole case, as prepared by Kudratullah Siddiqui and printed in the said paper, or any part thereof is correct ?

(c) Will Government also please state the steps they are taking to remove the said difficulties and troubles ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : With your permission, Sir, I will answer questions Nos. 12—15 together. The information is being collected, and will be given to the House in due course.

PENSIONS PAID TO THE MEMBERS OF THE OLD ROYAL FAMILY OF DELHI.

†13. *Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : Will Government be pleased to state if the members of the old royal family of Delhi who are residing in this province are receiving Rs. 5 or Rs. 6 per month as pension from Government ? Is that pension being paid from the Government Treasury, or from the properties of the members themselves or from the money which the late Bahu Begum Saheba, mother of the late Nawab Vazir Asafuddowlah, had deposited with Government and the interest of which is thus being paid ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 12.

LOAN TAKEN BY GOVERNMENT FROM THE LATE BAHU BEGUM, MOTHER OF THE LATE NAWAB VAZIR ASAFUDDOWLAH.

†14. *Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they had taken a loan of one crore, eight lakhs and fifty thousand rupees in 1814 from the late Bahu Begum Saheba, mother of the late Nawab Vazir Asafuddowlah, and if a mention of the fact is made in the Treaty No. 38 ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state what portion of the interest on the above amount is now being paid to the descendants of Mirza Sulaiman Shikoh, Prince of Delhi, who went and resided at Lucknow (Oudh) and whose name is to be found at the top of the list attached with the said treaty, and who was the recipient of the biggest portion of the interest ? If nothing is being paid to any of his descendants, what is the amount of the accumulated interest, and, out of the said amount, what work is being done in the interest of public or Government ?

MONEY EARMARKED BY A VAZIR OF OUDH FOR THE PENSION OF PRINCE JEHANDAR SHAH'S DESCENDANTS.

†15. *Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Is it a fact that Nawab Vazir Saadat Ali Khan, Vazir of Oudh, earmarked a portion of the money mentioned in the Treaty of 1801, amounting to Rupees two lakhs four thousand yearly for the pension of one of the Princes of Delhi, stationed in the United Provinces at Benares and named Jehandar Shah, and laid down that this amount should be paid from the income of some villages handed over to Government for the said purpose ?

(b) Is the amount mentioned in part (a) still being paid to any of Prince Jehandar Shah's descendants ? If so, to whom and what amount ? If it is not being paid, how is this money being utilised ?

ALLOWANCE PAID TO MR. KUDRATULLAH SIDDIQUI OF LUCKNOW FOR DOING LOYAL PROPAGANDA FOR THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT.

16. *Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : Will Government be pleased to state if Mr. Kudratullah Siddiqui of Lucknow, United Provinces, is paid any allowance for doing loyal propaganda for the British Government among the depressed classes and ex-royal families of India ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The answer is in the negative.

TRADE DELEGATION SENT TO KABUL.

17. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Is it a fact that a trade delegation was sent to Kabul ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the names of the members of the delegation and the result of the negotiations ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 12.

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a) Yes.

(b) The members of the delegation were :

Mr. W. W. Nind.

Lala Shri Ram.

K. B. Syed Maratib Ali.

They were accompanied by Mr. W. D. M. Clarke, His Majesty's Trade Commissioner in Bombay, who had been nominated by His Majesty's Government to represent British trade interests.

The delegation has submitted a report to the Government of India, which is under consideration.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to lay a copy of the report in the Library of the House ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : I am afraid that is not possible at present.

Mr. B. Das : May I know whether that report will some day see the light of day so that the mercantile community may take advantage of that trade mission's report ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : We may all hope so, Sir.

IMPORT OF FOREIGN RICE INTO INDIAN PORTS.

18. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the result of their negotiations in regard to import of foreign rice into Madras Presidency ?

(b) What steps have been taken by the Government of India and by the India Office in regard to import of foreign rice into Indian ports ?

(c) What quantity of foreign rice has been imported into India since January, 1934 ?

(d) Do Government propose to impose import duty on rice to safeguard the interests of Indian rice-growers ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a), (b) and (d). The negotiations have not yet been completed. The question as to what action, if any, should be taken is still under consideration.

(c) A statement is laid on the table.

Statement showing the quantity of foreign rice imported into India since January,

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : May I ask when we may expect the result to be known to the public ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I am afraid I cannot fix the actual time.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it a fact that this question was discussed in a Conference a month or two ago ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : This question, that is to say, the question of the rice crop, along with that of a number of other important crops, was considered by the Crop Planning Conference last month.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : What is the recommendation of the Conference in connection with the import duty on rice ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : My Honourable friend already seems to be aware of their recommendations. If he wants the precise terms, I will lay a copy of the report in the Library of the House.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Do the Government agree to the recommendation of the Conference in connection with the import duty on rice ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : That is asking for an expression of opinion. The Government are merely considering the recommendations at this stage.

INDIANS IN CERTAIN PARTS OF YEMEN.

19. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government be pleased to state how many Indians were in Hodeida, Sanaa and in other parts of Yemen in the end of April, 1934 at the time of attack by Saudi army ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state what steps were taken to save the lives and properties of Indians ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state briefly the condition in Yemen ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a) 300 at Hodeida, five at Sanaa and four in the Yemeni Part of Luheiya.

(b) With regard to Hodeida the Honourable Member's attention is invited to the Press communiqué on the subject, dated the 14th June, 1934, a copy of which is laid on the table. No steps were necessary to protect Indian subjects in other parts of the Yemen.

(c) So far as Government are aware the condition in Yemen is peaceful, peace having been concluded between His Majesty King Ibn Saud and the Imam of Yemen.

Press Communiqué.

Intimation has been received that the merchants of Aden, who have commercial interests in Hodeida, addressed a letter to the Chief Commissioner, Aden, on the 14th May, 1934, expressing their gratitude for the arrangements made for the protection of the lives and properties of British subjects at Hodeida during the period between the Yemeni evacuation and the Sa'udi occupation of that town.

A copy of the letter received follows :

"After tendering due respects, we beg to submit our thanks to Your Excellency for the necessary arrangements you have kindly made for the protection of the lives of the subjects of the British Government and their properties at Hodeida. Had you not taken interest in making these arrangements, looting and killing, would have taken place in the country. By means of your endeavours, both the British subjects and other inhabitants there have been saved of looting and killing.

We therefore offer you our sincere thanks for the same. All the Muslims in the other countries are also thankful to you.

We request you kindly to convey our thanks to the Commander of H. M. S. 'Penzance' for the interest and energy he has taken in protecting the interests of the inhabitants."

A. F. EMMER,

Assistant Secretary to the Government of India.

FOREIGN AND POLITICAL DEPARTMENT,

SIMLA;

The 14th June, 1934.

STEP TAKEN BY THE BENGAL GOVERNMENT FOR SALT MANUFACTURE IN BENGAL.

20. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Are Government aware of the steps taken by the Bengal Government for the salt manufacture in Bengal ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state in what way the money which has been given to the Bengal Government out of the salt duty, has been spent by them ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : (a) Yes.

(b) I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the statement laid on the table of the House on the 24th January, 1934, by my predecessor in reply to parts (c) and (d) of Mr. S. C. Mitra's starred question No. 1437, dated the 16th December, 1933.

COCHIN HARBOUR CHANNEL LIGHTING SCHEME.

21. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Is it a fact that the Government of India have sanctioned the Cochin Harbour Channel Lighting Scheme ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state (i) what the cost will be and (ii) who will bear the cost ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhoré : (a) The scheme has been sanctioned by the Government of Madras.

(b) The estimated cost of the scheme is Rs. 1,39,952. The expenditure will be met from the Cochin Port Fund.

(b) At about 7-15 P.M. on that day a North Western Railway engine which had come into a siding to remove a wagon adjacent to a dead end burst into the wagon, resulting in two of the Port Trust staff receiving bruises and other minor injuries. The matter is being investigated.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Have these people been given any compensation ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhoré : I am not aware of that, Sir, but I informed the House that the matter was still being investigated.

VALUE OF GOLD EXPORTED FROM INDIA.

23. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state the value of gold which has been exported from India since Britain went off gold standard, up to the 30th June, 1934 ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Approximately 200 crores.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know the policy of the Government of India and also the policy of the Honourable Member himself as to whether the Government are going to allow any further exports of gold ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That anticipates question No. 25.

Mr. S. G. Jog : May I know at least the views of the Honourable the Finance Member as to whether there is going to be a change in the policy as regards the export of gold, or is the said policy to continue ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I can only repeat that that arises on question No. 25 and I would ask the Honourable Member to wait for the answer to that.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Are Government contemplating putting an embargo on gold exports as distinct from....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order. That question will arise on question No. 25.

CHANGES IN THE COURSES OF INSTRUCTION IN THE DELHI UNIVERSITY.

24. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Do Government propose to shorten the secondary course and to have a three years higher secondary course for a smaller number of students in the Delhi University ?

(b) Do Government propose to make arrangements for teaching all subjects except English through vernacular ?

(c) What changes are Government contemplating in the courses of reading of the Delhi University ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a), (b) and (c). The Honourable Member presumably refers to certain suggestions made in paragraphs 11 and 12 of a letter addressed by the Government of India in the Department of Education, Health and Lands to the Chief Commissioner, Delhi. As indicated in that letter, Government have invited the opinion of the University on these suggestions and await a reply. No decisions will be reached until the views of the University have been considered.

IMPOSITION OF AN EXPORT DUTY ON GOLD.

25. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Do Government propose to impose duty on the export of gold from India ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply which my predecessor gave to question No. 340 asked by Mr. Badri Lal Rastogi on the 1st September, 1933. (Laughter.)

Mr. B. Das : May I ask the Government of India whether it will not be advantageous to them, by putting an embargo on gold exports,.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : That is asking for an opinion.

Mr. B. Das : May I inquire if Government are at present considering any policy of putting an export duty on gold as they put on gold mined in India ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : If the Honourable Member will refer to the answer to which I have already referred, part (b) thereof says that " Government do not give intimation in advance of their intentions about taxation ".

Mr. B. Das : Had Government put a duty of ten per cent. only, they would have got Rs. 20 crores to meet the deficit Budget of the Government of India.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Is it not the case that the old policy of the Government in the matter of the export of gold needs review and revision in view of the present circumstances ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is evidently the Honourable Member's own opinion, and I think he will not expect me either to agree or to disagree with him.

Mr. H. P. Mody : Do Government regard with undiluted satisfaction the continued draining away of gold from this country ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That amounts to an expression of opinion.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Has there been any correspondence with the Secretary of State in the matter of imposing a duty on gold, and may I ask if that correspondence can be laid on the table of the House ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I must have notice of that. There has certainly not been any correspondence in the last ten weeks.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Do Government propose to take any action with respect to the export of gold that is going on for nearly two years now ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is precisely the question that I answered in reply to question No. 25.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : In view of the statement made by His Excellency the Viceroy at the time of the depression that we must depend upon our reserves of gold—and that was made at a time when the export of gold amounted to 125 crores, while now it has risen to 200 crores—may I ask whether the time has not come when you should put an embargo on gold exports ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The Honourable Member is again asking me to go beyond the answer I have already given, and I am not prepared to do that.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Do I take it that the Government wish to continue the same policy ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That also is a question which I have already answered.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : May I ask if the Honourable Member will be able to publish the previous correspondence, that is, that took place before the last ten weeks for the information of the House ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I must look up whether any exists before I can answer that question.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it a fact that the reason for not imposing a duty on the export of gold is that the Secretary of State does not want any duty on the export of gold ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The Honourable Member is expressing his own opinion.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I want to know the fact—whether that is a fact or not.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Perhaps the Honourable Member will be good enough to put that question on the paper.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi : In view of the fact that several new Honourable Members have come in, will the Honourable Member kindly read out the answer to the question of Mr. Rastogi, instead of referring to the answer given some time ago ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Shall I read out the answer to the relevant part of the question ? It is this :

" Government do not give intimation in advance of their intentions about taxation."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I will repeat my question. I want to know whether the Honourable Member is going to pursue the same policy to which he has referred and which was adopted by the former Finance Member, or whether he has now thought out the problem afresh to see if he can now change it.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I have already answered that question to the maximum extent I am capable of answering it.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Has there been any communication between the Government of India and the Secretary of State about this export of gold ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That question has been answered.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware of the strong feeling that exists in this country with regard to the unrestricted export of gold out of this country ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Government are aware of all relevant considerations.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Including the strong feeling that exists in this country ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Yes, and of every other relevant consideration.

Mr. B. Das : Are Government aware that the statement in the Controller of Currency's report that a very little percentage of this 200 crores of exported gold is distress gold is untrue and that the belief of the mercantile community is that more than fifty per cent. of this gold is distress gold ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I am aware of the opinion expressed in the statement of the Controller of the Currency, and I am aware that different opinions are held by other people.

Mr. H. P. Mody : Have Government any information as to whether all this gold is distress gold or comes out of surplus hoards ? Are Government in a position to say anything with regard to the quantity of gold which still remains ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The only official information is that contained in the report of the Controller of the Currency.

STRIKES OF THE TEXTILE WORKERS OF BOMBAY.

26. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government be pleased to make a full statement about the strikes of the textile workers of Bombay ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state (i) whether they have received any correspondence from the Local Government in this connection, (ii) the reasons and the extent of the strike, (iii) the action taken by the Local and the Central Government, (iv) the demands of the labourers, (v) the number of the lathi charges made by the police, (vi) the action taken by the millowners to meet the labour grievances, and (vii) whether the trade unions of the workers have been recognised by the employers ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I have called for certain information from the Government of Bombay and will lay a reply on the table of the House in the course of the next few days.

Mr. S. G. Jog : May I know what action precisely has been taken by the Government of India and by the Local Government, so far as these strikes are concerned ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I venture to think that, that question would be more relevant after I have laid the reply which I propose to lay on the table of the House.

Mr. B. Das : Has the attention of the Honourable Member been drawn to a Press report issued two or three days ago that the Bombay Government are contemplating to have another inquiry regarding the wages of the workers of the Bombay mills ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : The Bombay Government have already had an inquiry regarding the wages that are paid in the cotton textile industry of Bombay, and the report on that subject has already been published.

Mr. B. Das : Is the Press report correct that the Bombay Government are contemplating a fresh inquiry on the wages of the textile workers ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I have no information at present on that subject.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Are Government aware that more than a month ago notice of this question was given ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Yes, and action was taken immediately. The Honourable Member will understand that the situation in Bombay has changed considerably from time to time. I was very anxious to give him the latest information on the subject.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : But the result is that we did not get any information.

LETTING VALUE LEVIED BY THE MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS OF BOMBAY AND KARACHI FROM LANDLORDS ON ACCOUNT OF MUNICIPAL TAXES.

27. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the percentage of annual letting value allowed to bona fide landlords in the cities of Bombay and Karachi respectively, as allowance on account of repairs in connection with the payment of income-tax under the head "Property" ?

(b) What is the percentage of letting value, respectively, levied by the Municipal Corporations of Bombay and Karachi from bona fide landlords on account of municipal taxes ?

(c) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the fact that, in view of the heavy municipal taxes on house property in the cities of Bombay and Karachi, the allowance referred to in part (a) is miserably insufficient ?

(d) Do Government propose to amend section 9 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, so as to make due provision for an allowance with regard to the municipal taxes also ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : (a) One-sixth of the annual letting value is to be allowed on account of repairs in all cases where repairs are to be executed by the landlord concerned.

(b) 16 per cent. on gross rental valuation for Bombay and 14 per cent. for Karachi, as far as the Income-tax Department is able to ascertain.

(c) No. An allowance on account of repairs has, as a matter of fact, nothing to do with the payment of municipal taxes.

(d) No.

INEQUITY IN THE MATTER OF THE LEVY OF INCOME-TAX IN CONNECTION WITH THE OWNERS OF HOUSE PROPERTY.

28. Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the percentage of income permitted to owners of house property as allowance exempt from the payment of income-tax to Government ?

(b) What is the percentage of income permitted to owners of business as allowance exempt from the payment of income-tax to Government ?

(d) Do Government propose to do away with the inequity in the matter of the levy of income-tax in connection with the owners of house property?

The Hon'ble Sir James Grigg : (a), (c) and (d). The Income-tax Act does not prescribe any such percentages. The last two parts of the question do not therefore arise.

(b) The various allowances to be made in computing (a) income chargeable under the head "Property" and (b) business income, are laid down in sections 9 and 10 of the Act, respectively.

TRANSFER OF THE POST OFFICE AT NIBKARORI IN THE DISTRICT OF FARRUKHABAD.

29. Lala Hari Raj Swarup : (a) Are Government aware that the Post Office at Nibkarori in the District of Farrukhabad, Tehsil Farrukhabad, where it was located for 60 years was removed to Bihar, another village, about two years ago? If so, what were the reasons for its removal to that place?

(b) Are Government aware that on a representation being made by the residents of Nibkarori in the matter, an enquiry was made by the District Magistrate through the Tehsildar, who reported that Nibkarori was a much larger village with a larger population and a market?

(c) Are Government aware that the Tehsildar also reported that Nibkarori has better claims for a Post Office than Bihar?

(d) Are Government aware that the Post Master General passed an order for the retransfer of the Post Office to Nibkarori?

(e) Are Government aware that the order was not carried out?

(f) Are Government aware that it is a fact that the District Magistrate twice recommended for the retransfer of the Post Office to Nibkarori, and that his recommendation was not heeded, and the Post Master General, United Provinces, revoked his previous order?

(g) Are Government aware that a representation was again made in March, 1934, for the location of the Post Office at Nibkarori?

(h) Will Government be pleased to state what steps, if any, are being taken on that representation?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) A permanent post office was opened at Nibkarori on the 1st April, 1902. As it was found in 1931, that it was working at a loss, the question of reducing its cost was taken up. The Extra Departmental Branch Postmaster of the office did not agree to any reduction in his allowance and as no other suitable man could be found for the charge of the office at Nibkarori it was, with the concurrence of the District Magistrate, removed to Bihar on the 11th March, 1932.

(b) to (e). In consequence of representations received from the residents of Nibkarori, the Postmaster-General, United Provinces, made further enquiries into the case through the district authorities and on the recommendation of the District Magistrate ordered the removal of the post office from Bihar to Nibkarori. The residents of Bihar, however, protested and the Divisional Superintendent of Post Offices was asked to investigate the case personally. He recommended that the post office should remain at Bihar, but that the residents of Nibkarori should get a daily delivery of their letters. Arrangements accordingly were made and the orders for the removal of the post office to village Nibkarori were cancelled.

(f) Conflicting recommendations have been made by the District Officers at different times as to the relative suitability of Bihar and Nibkarori for the location of the post office. The circumstances in which the Postmaster-General cancelled his order for the shifting of the post office from Bihar to Nibkarori have been explained in the reply to the previous parts of the question.

(g) Yes.

(h) It is under the consideration of the Postmaster-General, United Provinces.

FREE SUPPLY OF STATISTICAL PUBLICATIONS TO UNIVERSITIES.

30. Lala Hari Raj Swarup : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what statistical publications of the Government of India used to be supplied free to the various Indian Universities?

(b) Is it a fact that recently Government have passed orders stopping the free supply of such publications to the Universities?

(c) Are Government prepared to consider the advisability of re-starting the free supply of statistical publications to Universities which often carry researches in various directions?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : In the existing procedure which has been in vogue since 1928, the Universities can purchase publications of the Government of India at concessional rates, i.e., ordinary published prices less 25 per cent. discount, if applications are made through, and supported by, the Local Government concerned. Some of the publications, which are of interest to Universities, are being supplied free or on exchange basis. No orders have been issued since 1928, altering this practice or discontinuing the free supply of statistical or other publications, where made. Steps are being taken by some Departments to resume the free supply of certain statistical publications to Universities, which was discontinued in 1928. The lists of publications asked for in (a) of the Honourable Member's question are not readily available.

ABSENCE OF SENIORITY LIST ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

31. Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : (a) Are Government aware that there exists great dissatisfaction among the officers of the East Indian Railway on account of the absence of a seniority list?

(b) Is it a fact that none can say who is senior to whom?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No. There is at present a seniority list. Certain representations have been made regarding the information shown in this list. These are under examination by the Railway Board in consultation with the Public Service Commission.

(b) No.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I ask, Sir, whether these seniority lists are revised ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have just informed the House that certain people have represented against that seniority list and its revision is now under consideration.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : When do the Government hope to publish this seniority list, the absence of which is a source of great confusion ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : As soon as the seniority has been fixed after consultation with the Public Service Commission.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : How long will it take ? Will it take an infinity ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I cannot say when it will be published, but it will certainly not take infinity.

TENURE OF OFFICE OF THE AGENTS OF RAILWAYS.

32. *Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Are Agents of Railways appointed for a period of five years, or without time limit ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No tenure has been fixed for these posts.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know, Sir, why the tenure has not been fixed when we know that even the tenure of the Executive Members is fixed ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : There are many posts for which no tenure has been fixed.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : In view of the fact that the Board does not interfere in the work of the Agent, why should we not be given longer time to understand his business ? Is it not a fact that most of these Agents have been there only for a short period, and during this time they are incapable of initiating any new reform except one, namely, to manipulate for their successor ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am replying to that question in the next question.

AGENTS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

33. *Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state the names of the Agents and the periods of their service in the East Indian Railway since 1924 ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Sir George Colvin was the Agent of the East Indian Railway from the 30th September, 1921, to the 28th March, 1933, a period of nearly 12 years ; Sir Hugh Hannay from the 29th March, 1933, to the 29th April, 1934 ; Mr. A. V. Venables was appointed to officiate from the 29th April, 1934.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is not Mr. Venables going to retire next year and another man will be appointed for another year ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am afraid I do not know when Mr. Venables is due to retire.

ALTERATION OF AGE OF PERSONS IN THE RAILWAY SERVICE.

34. *Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : (a) What is the method of altering the age in case of persons already in Railway Service ?

(b) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the alteration of the age of Mr. L. Robinson by ten years (vide classified list of subordinate officers, East Indian Railway, 1924, page 37) ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No specific evidence has been prescribed, but it must be such as will satisfy the sanctioning authority, e.g., a birth certificate.

(b) The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that no alteration has been made in the date of birth of Mr. Robinson.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know, Sir, if the age is decided on the certificates of registered Surgeons or registered medical practitioners or only by the Railway Surgeons ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : It has nothing to do with the Railway Surgeons. I was talking of a birth certificate.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I have given the chapter and the verse in this particular case, and hence the opinion of the Agent was unnecessary. Did the Honourable Member consult the particular reference that I gave in my question ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Agent has reported that no alteration was made and that is, I think, conclusive.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask whether the Honourable gentleman consulted the classified list of subordinate officers of the East Indian Railway, page 37 ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I cannot see how, by consulting a particular classified list, I can find out whether an alteration has been or not.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : If the Honourable gentleman had consulted the classified list of 1924 and the present classified list, he would have found the discrepancy. In this particular case, it is a question of printed facts.

Mr. P. R. Rau : Then it must be a clerical error.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Does the Honourable Member mean to say that the reports published by Government contain clerical errors ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Surely my friend is aware that even in printed reports there may be mistakes.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Do Government propose now to consult the classified list ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : For what purpose ?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : If the reports published by the Railway Board are full of clerical errors, then we will not know where the Administration is, and where we are ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : There may be clerical mistakes in any printed report.

METHOD OF PROMOTIONS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

35. *Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : On what principle are promotions given on the East Indian Railway—seniority or efficiency ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Both factors are taken into consideration.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Is there any third element ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am not aware of any.

CERTAIN CONCESSIONS GRANTED TO THE STAFF OF THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR GENERAL, POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS.

36. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government be pleased to refer to my unstarred question No. 187, answered on the 13th March, 1934, and furnish more elaborate reply giving the names of those employees who got the concessions although they (i) were actually employed in Director General, Posts and Telegraphs Camp Office, Simla/Delhi, (ii) were actually employed after the issue of the letter, (iii) were actually transferred to Director General's office from some other office after the issue of the letter, (iv) were actually holding temporary appointment in the Director General's Camp Office or at headquarters on and after the date of the issue of the letter, and (v) never maintained their homes in or in the neighbourhood of Calcutta ?

(b) If the concessions were granted to any of those mentioned in (i) to (v) of part (a) above, will Government be pleased to furnish details of their eligibility in accordance with the letter ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to quote the names of those employees who were refused the concessions although, prior to the issue of the letter, (i) they were made permanent, (ii) they were actually employed in Director General's office at Calcutta, and (iii) they maintained homes in or in the neighbourhood of Calcutta ?

(d) If the concessions were refused to any of those mentioned in (i) to (iii) of part (c) above, will Government be pleased to furnish details about their ineligibility in accordance with the letter ?

(e) Will Government please state more elaborately the reasons for refusing the grant of concessions to certain non-concessionists on their permanent transfer from Simla to Delhi and for not compensating them for their annual loss of at least Rs. 1,000 each which they drew as part of their pay in the shape of allowances, etc., from the date of their employment, that is, continuously for more than ten years and in some cases 20 years ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) to (d). The concessions referred to were sanctioned by Government in 1926 subject to the conditions laid down in the Department of Industries and Labour letter No. 17-P.T.E., dated the 5th August, 1926, a copy of which was appended to the reply to the Honourable Member's previous unstarred question No. 187 in this House on the 13th March, 1934. Those clerks who satisfied the conditions received the concessions. So long an interval of time has elapsed that the collection of the details asked for by the Honourable Member would involve an expenditure of time and trouble incommensurate with the value of the results.

(e) The concessions were refused in the case of 19 clerks for the reasons explained in the replies given in this House to Mr. Anwar-ul-Azim's starred question No. 482 on the 19th March, 1928, and to the cut motion moved by the Honourable Member himself on the 13th March, 1931. As regards the question of compensation the position was fully explained in part (b) of the replies to starred questions Nos. 134, 135 and 953 in this House on the 4th September, 1929 and the 16th March, 1931, respectively. There is nothing I could usefully add to these explanations.

ADVANCES FOR HOUSE BUILDING.

37. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government be pleased to refer to the reply given to starred question No. 386, dated the 20th February, 1930, regarding advances for house building and state if the replies are based on practice or on any rule ? Is that practice or rule still in force, or has any modification been made ? If the latter, what are the modifications ?

(b) If advances for building houses outside New Delhi area are not granted to employees of the Government of India, will Government be pleased to state for what purpose Chapter 9, Article 155 (a), of the Civil Account Code, Volume I, has been made and what is the necessity for inserting Note 3 to Rule VII of the Article, vide correction slip bearing No. 173, dated the 9th July, 1928 ?

(c) Is it a fact that the allotment of plots of land in New Delhi area are now made by public auction only ?

(d) Do Government propose to consider the matter soon and make necessary provision in the rules to enable those ministerial staff of the Government of India and Attached Offices who, without additional hardship, are unable to meet the recurring expenditure of paying house-rent from their pay below Rs. 200 per mensem, to purchase land from Government on considerably low price within their means with inheritory right in New Delhi for building their own houses, if so desired ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : (a) The reply given to parts (b), (c) and (d) of question No. 386 was based on Articles 154 and 155 of the Civil Account Code. As regards parts (c) and (d) the rate of interest is fixed annually on the basis of current borrowing rates of the Government of India. The reply given to part (a) was based on executive orders. The order prohibiting the grant of advances for the construction of houses in old Delhi has been relaxed in a few exceptional cases, but it has recently been decided that it must now be more strictly enforced in view of the re-opening of the New Capital Project.

(b) Article 155 (a) of the Civil Account Code does not apply only to the headquarters of the Government of India. Note 3 to Rule VII of that Article was inserted because under the existing rules a house-building advance could only be granted to a person who possessed full proprietary rights in the land upon which he intended to build or had a lease which was not due to expire for a considerable number of years. Under the rules relating to the allocation of sites in the New Capital, perpetual leases could only be granted on production by the applicant of a certificate signed by the Chief Commissioner certifying that the buildings had been completed in accordance with the agreed conditions, and it was therefore necessary to amend the rules to enable advances to be given in such cases.

(c) Yes, except in certain reserved areas.

(d) I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to part (g) of the statement which was laid on the table on the 27th of March, 1934, with reference to his starred question No. 378.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : With regard to question No. 38, the Chair has to inform the House that under Legislative Rule 8 (2), His Excellency the Governor General has decided that it infringes Rule 8 (1). The question has, therefore, been disallowed.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : But you, Sir, admitted the question.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member may refer to the Legislative Rules in which it is pointed out that wherever there is any doubt with regard to the applicability of Rule 8 (1), the decision of the Governor General shall be final, and, in accordance with that power, His Excellency the Governor General has held that this comes under the mischief of Rule 8 (1).

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know who referred the case to the Governor General ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair has explained the proceedings to the Honourable Member. Apparently he is not acquainted with the rules.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Not quite.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Then he must refer to the rules.

MEMORANDUM SUBMITTED BY THE ALL-INDIA POLICE ASSOCIATION TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.

39. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government kindly make available the memorandum submitted by the All-India Police Association to the Secretary of State for India, protesting against the proposal to transfer police force to a responsible Indian Minister ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The attitude of the Indian Police Association in regard to the transfer of law and order is indicated in paragraph 2 of the memorandum submitted by them to the Joint Select Committee. The memorandum is included in Volume IIA of the Committee's Minutes of Evidence, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Was the memorandum submitted by the Members who are actually in service ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I think the memorandum is intended to represent the views of all serving Members. The Indian Police Association is an Association in the main at any rate of serving Members.

EMPLOYMENT OF PANAMA NATIVES BY THE SIND INDIAN MERCHANTS.

40. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Are Government aware that the Panama Government have served notice on Sind Indian merchants residing there to employ in each firm three natives of the place, and that those Indian merchants who have refused to abide by this order have been asked to vacate the island within a prescribed period ?

(b) Do Government propose to make an enquiry into this matter ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : Government have received no information beyond that laid on the table in answer to starred question No. 275 asked by Mr. Lalchand Navalrai during the Simla Session of 1933.

(d) Enquiry is being made from His Majesty's Minister in Panama and the result will be communicated to the House in due course.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I ask if there is any agreement or convention with the Panama Government that the merchants who settle down there should be allowed to do so without any restrictions ? Have any restrictions been since placed upon them ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : I am not aware of any particular convention. If the Honourable Member will put down a question, I will obtain information for him.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : The question arises out of the question I have already put. If I put down a separate question, it may take some time to be admitted.

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : I am not at all sure that the Honourable Member's supplementary question arises out of the original question.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member whether it does not take a long time to have correspondence with the Panama Government and in the interval the merchants there are suffering. Will it not be a quicker process if the Honourable Member would communicate by telegram with the Panama Government ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : We have written to the Minister, and we hope to get a reply by telegram.

WITHDRAWAL OF THE CONCESSION OF FREE RAILWAY JOURNEY FROM PERSONS TRAVELLING FOR ANTI-RABIC TREATMENT.

41. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Are Government aware that the concession of free railway journey to indigent persons in Bihar and Orissa, travelling for anti-rabic treatment hitherto granted by the railway administrations, has been withdrawn from the 1st July, 1934, and that the local bodies in the province have accordingly been warned that from this date they will have to bear extra charges on account of railway fare of indigent patients within their respective areas proceeding for anti-rabic treatment ?

(b) Why has this concession been withdrawn by the railway administrations ?

(c) How many such indigent persons in Bihar and Orissa have been allowed this concession every year during the last five years by the railway administrations ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). The Indian Railway Conference Association decided recently to withdraw the concession of free travel for such journeys on the ground that if free travel was necessary it is for Local Governments to defray the cost of such journeys. The sacrifice of railway revenue involved could not be justified on commercial grounds.

(c) Government have no information. I may add that it was estimated that the loss to all railways by the grant of the concession was in the neighbourhood of Rs. 35,000 per annum. The annual number of free tickets issued was in 1931 about 14,000.

Mr. Bhuput Sing : Do Government realise that in Bihar and Orissa, owing to the earthquake, the local bodies have been hard hit, and they have suffered a great deal on account of the withdrawal of this concession ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am not sure whether this concession is asked for only for the province of Bihar and Orissa, and not for all other provinces. We could not possibly make a distinction between one province and another in this matter.

Mr. Bhuput Sing : Has this concession been withdrawn from all Local Governments ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Yes, Sir.

Mr. B. Das : Did the Railway Board write to all Local Governments requesting them to defray the railway journey expenses of indigent persons ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I think the decision to withdraw the concession was communicated to all Local Governments.

Mr. Bhuput Sing : Do Government realise that, before withdrawing the concession, the local bodies were not warned to make provision in their budgets, and not having done so, will Government advise the Railway Board to give this concession till the next budget of the local bodies is framed ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : My Honourable friend is probably not aware that due notice was given of the withdrawal of this concession.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Was the fact of withdrawal of concession communicated to the Education Department who are managing the Kasauli Institute at great expense, as the question of abolition of this Institute may arise ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The question of abolition of this Institute does not arise.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Was the fact of withdrawal of concession communicated to the Education Department ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Certainly.

FRESH BATCH OF POLITICAL PRISONERS SENT TO THE ANDAMANS.

42. Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : (a) Is it a fact that a fresh batch of political prisoners has been sent to the Andamans by the middle of May ? If so, on what date and how many ?

(b) Will Government please supply the names of the prisoners sent in the batch referred to in part (a) above ?

(c) Is it a fact that formerly the local Governments used to publish the names of political prisoners who were sent to the Andamans ? Why is this procedure not being observed at present ?

(d) Have Government considered the fact that most of the relatives of the prisoners cannot avail themselves of any chance of interviewing the prisoners before they leave the shores of India ? If so, are Government prepared to announce the names of the transported prisoners so as to afford to the relatives the facility of knowing the movements of the prisoners ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) I presume the Honourable Member refers to terrorist prisoners. 17 such prisoners were sent to the Andamans on the 13th May, 1934.

(b) Government are not prepared to publish the names of the prisoners.

(c) Government are not aware of any such practice as is mentioned in the first part of the question. The second part does not arise.

(d) Arrangements are made for the relatives of prisoners earmarked for the Andamans to have an opportunity of interviewing them before deportation.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Were the relatives of these prisoners informed that these terrorist prisoners have been transferred to the Andamans ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I said :

“ Arrangements are made for the relatives of prisoners earmarked for the Andamans to have an opportunity of interviewing them before deportation.”

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : In view of the fact that terrorism has gone down, may I know if the Honourable Member is going to change his policy and not send these prisoners to Andamans ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : There is no suggestion of changing the policy.

TRANSFER OF MR. BIMALENDU CHAKRAVARTY, A POLITICAL PRISONER, FROM THE ANDAMANS TO THE ALIPORE CENTRAL JAIL.

43. Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : Is it a fact that S. Bimalendu Chakravarty, a political prisoner, has been brought back to the Alipur Central Jail from the Andamans ? If so, when, and what is the reason for his transfer ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The prisoner was returned to Bengal on May 3, 1934, as he is suffering from mania.

WITHDRAWAL OF PERMISSION OF INTERVIEW GRANTED TO MR. SUSIL DAS GUPTA, A POLITICAL PRISONER IN THE ANDAMANS.

44. *Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : (a) Is it a fact that the permission granted by the Chief Commissioner, Andamans, to interview S. Susil Das Gupta, a political prisoner, was subsequently withdrawn by the same officer without assigning any reason ?

(b) Have Government any objection to state the reason for withdrawing the permission to interview political prisoner, S. Susil Das Gupta once granted by the Chief Commissioner to Mr. Benoy Das Gupta ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) and (b). On an application by Mr. Benoy Das Gupta, for an interview with Mr. Susil Das Gupta, a terrorist prisoner in the Andamans, the Chief Commissioner informed the applicant that an interview would be permitted provided the Bengal Police raised no objection. On receipt of the views of the Deputy Inspector-General, Criminal Investigation Department, Intelligence Branch, Bengal, the Chief Commissioner decided that it was not expedient to grant an interview.

CERTAIN FACILITIES TO DIVISION III PRISONERS IN THE ANDAMANS.

45. *Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : (a) Is it a fact that the political prisoners in the Andamans are not allowed to have money deposited in their names with the jailor ? If so, how can the Division III Prisoners get the necessary stationery at their own expense ?

(b) Is it a fact that in reply to my starred question No. 609 of the 4th April, 1934, Government said that the Division III prisoners in the Cellular Jail, Andamans, are permitted to buy stationery at their own expense, and will Government please state what facilities the prisoners have to do so ?

(c) Are Government aware that under the Bengal Jail Code the deposit of money with the jailor for all classes of prisoners is permissible ?

(d) Are Government prepared to see their way to permitting the same facilities to the prisoners in the Andamans, who enjoyed this privilege in Indian jails ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to the rules for the treatment of terrorist prisoners in the Andamans, a copy of which was laid on the table of the House on February 16, 1934. It is not a fact that C class prisoners are not allowed to have money in the custody of the Superintendent of the Jail. The second part does not arise.

(b) The answer to the first part is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, permission for the purchase of any article of stationery is granted by the Superintendent of the Jail.

(c) Yes.

(d) Does not arise, in view of my reply to part (a) above.

LIGHTS ALLOWED TO PRISONERS IN THE CELLULAR JAIL, ANDAMANS.

46. *Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : (a) Are Government aware that under the Bengal Jail Code, lights are allowed to be used by the prisoners at any time at night and there are similar rules in other provinces also ?

(b) Will Government please state why lights are allowed in the Cellular Jail, Andamans, only up to 10 P.M. ?

(c) Are Government aware that the prisoners in the above Jail suffer difficulty for want of light after 10 P.M. in case of going to the latrine, etc. ?

(d) Do Government propose to remove this difficulty and allow lights being used at any time at night ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) I presume the Honourable Member refers to lights for reading ; if so, the answer is in the negative.

(b) Lights for reading are allowed in the cells up to 10 P.M., but the lights in the corridors and yards of the Cellular Jail, Port Blair, are kept burning throughout the night for general supervision.

(c) No.

(d) Does not arise.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Does the Honourable Member remember that last year, when we discussed the situation in Andamans, the Honourable Member promised to look into the matter of making more concessions as regards rules in the matter of lights and giving them more time to read during nights ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : A very substantial concession was made by allowing lights for reading up to 10 P.M.

RELEASE OF MR. NIKHIL GUHA ROY, A POLITICAL PRISONER IN THE ANDAMANS.

47. *Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : Will Government please refer to my question No. 955 of the 15th September, 1933, and state what action has been taken to release S. Nikhil Guha Roy, now in the Andamans ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The Honourable Member's attention is invited to the statement laid on the table on the 5th December, 1933.

REFUSAL OF A PASSPORT TO REVEREND B. OTTAMA.

48. *Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : (a) Is it a fact that a passport has been denied to the Reverend Bikkhu Ottama, the famous Buddhist monk of Burma, desirous of visiting America and Europe on Buddhist mission for the last four years ?

(b) Will Government please state if anything unconstitutional, illegal or seditious has been found in the conduct of the said monk during the last four years ?

L168LAD

(c) Are Government aware that the Reverend Ottama is even willing to give his word of honour or undertaking to take no part in any political work whilst outside India in order to facilitate grant of a passport?

(d) Do Government propose now to reconsider the question of granting a passport to the Reverend Ottama for his religious mission?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Yes. I would refer the Honourable Member to the replies given in this House to question No. 1068 on the 23rd March, 1931, and to question No. 682 on the 23rd September, 1932.

(b) Government are satisfied that there has been no change in his views or intentions.

(c) Yes.

(d) No.

Mr. B. Das : Is it not a fact that Rev. Bikkhu Ottama is an anti-separationist, and, therefore, the Government of Burma refused a passport to him to go abroad?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir. These are not the grounds on which the passport has been refused.

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

LLOYD BARRAGE SCHEME AT SUKKUR.

1. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) With reference to the statement laid on the table on the 18th December, 1933, in reply to my starred question No. 22, dated the 23rd August, 1933, will Government be pleased to state what the boat traffic below Sukkur was before it was impeded by the Sukkur Barrage?

(b) How much goods, so impeded since the construction of the barrage has been diverted to the railway?

(c) What will be the cost if a lock system is established now in the Sukkur Barrage?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) and (b). I regret that no information is available, beyond that already communicated to the Honourable Member.

(c) In 1919, the cost of a lock was estimated at Rs. 15 to 20 lakhs, and it was anticipated that the cost of maintenance would be high. Government adhere to the view that the benefit of a lock system would be quite incommensurate with the expenditure which such a system would involve.

APPLICATIONS FOR REFERENCE OF CASES IN SIND TO THE HIGH COURT UNDER SECTION 66 OF THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX, ACT.

2. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table of this House a statement showing for each year separately the following information in connection with the applications for reference to the High Court under section 66 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922?

Year.	Number of applications for Sind for reference to High Court.	Number of applications from the rest of the Presidency.	Total applications for reference under section 66.
1930-31	..	..	..
1931-32	..	..	..
1932-33	..	..	..
1933-34	..	..	..

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The required information is not available, and as its compilation from thousands of revision petitions for the past four years will entail enormous labour, it is regretted that it cannot be supplied. On account of drastic retrenchment, the staff employed is barely strong enough to cope with its ordinary duties and without serious detriment thereto, it cannot be asked to do any such extraneous work. Assessors do not, as a rule, put in separate applications for a reference to the High Court. The majority of them simply put in petitions for revision of their assessments under section 33 of the Income-tax Act and add a request for a reference to the High Court in case the Commissioner was unable to grant relief.

APPLICATIONS FOR REFERENCE OF CASES IN SIND TO THE HIGH COURT UNDER SECTION 66 OF THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX ACT.

3. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to lay on the table of this House a statement showing for each year separately the following information in connection with the applications for reference to High Court under section 66 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922?

Year.	Number of applications from Karachi in which the Commissioner refused to refer to the High Court points of law raised by appellants.	Number of applications from the rest of Sind in which the Commissioner refused to refer points of law raised by appellants.	Number of applications from the rest of the Presidency in which Commissioner refused to refer points of law raised by appellants.	Total.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to my reply to his question No. 2. As explained therein, it is regretted the required details cannot be supplied.

OVERBRIDGE AT THE ALIGARH RAILWAY STATION.

4. Rai Bahadur Kunwar Raghbir Singh : (a) Will Government be pleased to state why an overbridge at the railway station at Aligarh has not been reconstructed?

(b) Are Government aware that great inconvenience is caused to the public for want of a footpath bridge?

(c) Are Government also aware that many accidents have occurred since the Kathphula bridge was broken by a railway crane?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information, but have sent a copy of the question to the Agent, East Indian Railway, for consideration.

MOTIONS FOR ADJOURNMENT.

WITHDRAWAL OF NOTIFICATIONS DECLARING CERTAIN MUSLIM ORGANISATIONS AS UNLAWFUL IN THE NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

Mr. President : (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I have received a notice from Mr. Maswood Ahmad, that he proposes to ask for leave to make a motion for the adjournment of the business of the House today for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance as follows :

12 Noon. "The attitude of the Government regarding the Muslim organisations in the North-West Frontier Province for not withdrawing the notifications declaring them unlawful and for not lifting the ban on them."

I have to inquire whether any Honourable Member has any objection to this motion.

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan (Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, I object.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : As objection has been taken, I request those Honourable Members, who are in favour of leave being granted, to rise in their places.

(Less than 25 Members stood up.)

As less than 25 Members have risen, I have to inform Mr. Maswood Ahmad that he has not got the leave of the Assembly to move his motion.

COMMUNAL REPRESENTATION IN THE SERVICES.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I have received another notice from Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar, that he proposes to ask for leave to move a motion for the adjournment of the business of the House today for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance as follows :

"The Resolution of the Government of India on communal representation in the services published on the 7th of July, 1934."

I have to inquire whether any Honourable Member has any objection to this motion.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad (Patna and Chota Nagpur cum Orissa : Muhammadan) : Sir, I object.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : As objection has been taken, I would request those Honourable Members, who are in favour of leave being granted, to rise in their places.

(Less than 25 Members stood up.)

As less than 25 Members have risen, I have to inform Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar that he has not got the leave of the Assembly to move his motion.

BAN ON THE RED SHIRT ORGANISATION IN THE NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I have got another notice from Maulvi Shafee Daoodi, and I would ask him to let me know how his motion is different from the one of which notice was given by Mr. Maswood Ahmad.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi (Tirhut Division : Muhammadan) : Sir, the motion, of which Mr. Maswood Ahmad gave notice, refers to Muslim organisations in the North-West Frontier Province, and my motion relates to another matter altogether, namely, the discrimination made by Government in removing ban from a branch of Congress organisation in the North-West Frontier Province known as Khodai Khidmatgar Organisation (called by Government as Red Shirt Organisation) and other Congress Organisations in British India. So this organisation is different and includes both Muslims as well as non-Muslims, and, therefore, this motion is broader than the one given notice of by Mr. Maswood Ahmad.

Mr. President : (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Is not the Muslim organisation, with regard to which the ban has not been lifted, the same as the one contemplated by Maulvi Shafee Daoodi?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig (Home Member) : The Khodai Khidmatgar organisation is what we generally call the Red Shirts and that was described or it described itself as a branch of the Congress. That is the position.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : That is the Muslim organisation contemplated by Mr. Maswood Ahmad.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : The one which is contemplated by Mr. Maswood Ahmad is a Muslim organisation and the one which is contemplated by me is the Congress organisation which includes both Muslims as well as non-Muslims ; and I remember there are some Christians also in it.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member refers to a Congress organisation in the North-West Frontier Province known as the Khodai Khidmatgar organisation, and called by Government the Red Shirt organisation. Is it not the same Muslim organisation as contemplated by Mr. Maswood Ahmad?

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : No, I say that my motion contemplates a much broader organisation than what Mr. Maswood Ahmad contemplates. He refers clearly to the attitude of Government regarding the Muslim organisations in the North-West Frontier Province. I refer to something broader and greater than that which includes Muslims as well as non-Muslims.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member may contemplate such a contingency, but if, as a matter of fact, there is only one Muslim organisation in the North-West

[Mr. President.]

Frontier Province, with regard to which alone that question of ban arises, then it is substantially the same motion.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : But my Honourable friend, Mr. Maswood Ahmad, did not know what the organisation is. I knew the details, and, therefore, I have put it rightly, and I think it is different from the one which he put forward. I have made it quite clear.

Sir Abdur Rahim (Calcutta and Suburbs : Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, I may be allowed to submit that the organisation which Mr. Maswood Ahmad contemplated was a communal organisation consisting of the Muhammadans of the North-West Frontier Province, but the notice which has been given by Maulvi Shafee Daoodi is with reference to an organisation which is a branch of the Congress. It is not a communal organisation, and there might have been good reasons for the Government to take action against a certain communal organisation, and there might not be sufficiently good reasons for taking action against a part of the Congress.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : I may add that in some organisation only Muhammadans are members, but in the Congress sub-committees anybody can be a member.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Does the Congress organisation known as the Khodai Khidmatgars consist only of Muslims ? (Several Honourable Members : "No, no.") Then I would give the benefit of the doubt to the Honourable Member.

I have received notice from Maulvi Shafee Daoodi that he proposes to ask for leave to make a motion for the adjournment of the business of the House today for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance as follows :

"Discrimination made by Government in removing ban from a branch of the Congress organisation in the North-West Frontier Province known as Khodai Khidmatgar Organisation (called by Government as Red Shirt Organisation) and other Congress organisations in British India."

I have to inquire whether any Honourable Member has any objection to this motion.

Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan : The Red Shirts and the Khodai Khidmatgars are one and the same thing, and, therefore, I object.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : As objection has been taken, I would request those Honourable Members, who are in favour of leave being granted, to rise in their places.

(Less than 25 Members stood up).
As less than 25 Members have risen, I have to inform Maulvi Shafee Daoodi that he has not got the leave of the Assembly to move his motion.

GOVERNOR GENERAL'S ASSENT TO BILLS.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I have to inform the House that the following Bills, which were passed by both Chambers of the Indian Legislature during the Delhi Session, 1934, have been assented to by His Excellency the Governor General, under the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 68 of the Government of India Act :

- (1) The Indian Tariff (Amendment) Act, 1934,
- (2) The Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934,
- (3) The Imperial Bank of India (Amendment) Act, 1934,
- (4) The Wheat Import Duty (Extending) Act, 1934,
- (5) The Indian Medical Council (Amendment) Act, 1934,
- (6) The Cotton Textile Industry Protection (Amendment) Act, 1934,
- (7) The Steel and Wire Industries Protection (Extending) Act, 1934,
- (8) The Khaddar (Name Protection) Act, 1934,
- (9) The Indian Finance Act, 1934,
- (10) The Salt Additional Import Duty (Extending) Act, 1934,
- (11) The Indian States (Protection) Act, 1934,
- (12) The Indian Tariff (Textile Protection) Amendment Act, 1934,
- (13) The Trade Disputes (Extending) Act, 1934,
- (14) The Sugar (Excise Duty) Act, 1934,
- (15) The Sugar-cane Act, 1934, and
- (16) The Matches (Excise Duty) Act, 1934.

PANEL OF CHAIRMEN.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I have to inform the House that under rule 3 (1) of the Indian Legislative Rules I nominate Mr. K. C. Neogy, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, Rao Bahadur M. Rajah and Lieut.-Colonel Sir Henry Gidney on the Panel of Chairmen for the current Session.

COMMITTEE ON PETITIONS.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I have to announce that under Standing Order 80 (1) of the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders, the following Honourable Members will form the Committee on Petitions :

- (1) Mr. K. C. Neogy,
- (2) Sir Hari Singh Gour,
- (3) Rai Bahadur Kunwar Raghubir Singh, and
- (4) Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi.

According to the provision of the same Standing Order, the Deputy President will be the Chairman of the Committee.

STATEMENTS LAID ON THE TABLE.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig (Home Member) : Sir, I lay on the table the information promised in my reply, dated the 28th March, 1934, to Mr. S. G. Jog's starred questions Nos. 570 and 571 regarding the arrest of certain persons in Delhi.

PERSONS ARRESTED WRONGLY BY THE DELHI POLICE FOR CERTAIN ALLEGED OFFENCES.

*570. (a) and (b). There has been so far as I am aware one case since March 1st, 1933, in which a person was arrested as a result of mistaken identity. He was released by the police as soon as the mistake was discovered.

ARREST OF ONE CAPTAIN G. M. SEKHRI BY THE DELHI POLICE.

*571. (a), (d) and (e). The identity of persons arrested is always verified by the police so far as possible before arrest.

(b) and (c). The facts are that in January, 1934, an individual calling himself Captain G. M. Sekhri committed the offence of cheating in the shop of Messrs. Devi Chand and Company, Lahore, by obtaining goods on the strength of a dishonoured cheque. The Lahore Police registered a case and issued a warrant of arrest in pursuance of which Captain G. M. Sekhri, A.I.R.O., was arrested by the Delhi Police on the 25th January, 1934. Captain Sekhri was immediately released on bail by the Delhi Police and directed to appear before the Lahore Police. On arrival at Lahore it was found by the Police Officer investigating the case that Captain Sekhri was not the individual who had swindled Messrs. Devi Chand and Company and he was at once released.

(f) There is no provision for the grant of compensation to persons wrongly arrested.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I lay on the table :

- (i) the information promised in reply to parts (a), (b), (g) and (j) of starred question No. 478 asked by Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury on the 14th March, 1934 ;
- (ii) the information promised in reply to starred question No. 569 asked by Sardar Sant Singh on the 28th March, 1934 ;
- (iii) the information promised in reply to unstarred question No. 327 asked by Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad on the 7th April, 1934 ; and
- (iv) the information promised in reply to unstarred question No. 371 asked by Seth Liladhar Chaudhury on the 16th April, 1934.

INSPECTORS OF POST OFFICES AND HEAD CLERKS TO POSTAL SUPERINTENDENTS.

*478. (a) and (b). The facts are as stated by the Honourable Member.

(g) Yes, if by "two selection grade appointments" the Honourable Member means appointments in the two selection grades.

(j) No. Appointments up to and included in the grade of Rs. 150—200 in the Calcutta General Post Office were reserved for officials of that office, but appointments in the grade of Rs. 200—300, whether in the Calcutta General Post Office or elsewhere, were open to officials in the entire circle.

EXAMINATION IN GURMUKHI HELD BY THE POSTMASTER GENERAL, LAHORE.

*569. (a) The reply to the first two parts is in the affirmative. I may, however, explain that the examination held on the 22nd October, 1933, was not in order and, therefore, another examination was held on the 19th November, 1933. As regards the third part, 22 candidates appeared in the examination on the 19th November, 1933, of whom one only passed.

(b) The purpose of the examination is to ensure that clerks shall be able to dispose of postal articles, bearing names, addresses, etc., written in Gurmukhi, correctly and quickly.

(c) Yes, The object is to test their ability to read freely Gurmukhi characters.

NON-OBSERVANCE OF THE THIRD VACANCY RULE IN THE RAWALPINDI ENGINEERING DIVISION.

327. (a) No.

(b) No.

(c) Does not arise.

REVERSION OF CERTAIN POSTMEN AS PACKERS IN THE AMRITSAR POST OFFICE.

371. (a) The fact is not as stated. Owing to reductions in the cadre of postmen the two officials in question, who are permanent packers but who were officiating as postmen, were reverted to their substantive posts of packer. For calculating the communal proportions for the purpose of retrenchment, the permanent and not the officiating status of the officials is taken into account. The reversion of the two officiating postmen to their substantive posts of packer, therefore, involved no infringement of the orders regarding the maintenance of the communal ratios before and after retrenchment.

(b) Does not arise.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg (Finance Member) : Sir, I lay on the table :

- (i) the information promised in reply to unstarred questions Nos. 294, 295 and 296 asked by Mr. Sitakanta Mahapatra on the 3rd April, 1934 ; and
- (ii) the information promised in reply to starred questions Nos. 595 and 596 asked by Mr. Sitakanta Mahapatra on the 3rd April, 1934.

CANCELLATION OF THE ASSESSMENTS OF INCOME-TAX IN ORISSA.

294. Figures for 1928-29 and 1929-30 are not available. The numbers of cases during succeeding years in which assessments were cancelled under section 27 of the Indian Income-tax Act were :—

(i) 1930-31	..	..	..	..	..	19
1931-32	..	..	..	..	..	28
1932-33	..	..	..	..	..	20

1931-32	..	..	..	2,915	610
1932-33	..	..	..	4,224	..

The assessee in most cases did not require refund of tax already paid, presumably because they wished the amounts to be retained for the purpose of adjusting the demand after re-assessment.

(iii) and (iv). The information could not be compiled without an inordinate expenditure of time and labour.

DISPOSAL OF INCOME-TAX CASES IN BIHAR AND ORISSA ON GAZETTED HOLIDAYS.

295. (a) Income-tax Officers have had to work on some holidays and fix dates for hearing of assessee's cases on holidays, but not against the consent of assessee. Non-appearance of parties in such cases is treated as default, but the objection of an assessee on the ground that he did not appear because it was a public holiday is treated as a valid objection.

(b) Statement showing the number of cases fixed by Income-tax Officers during the Christmas holidays of 1931, 1932 and 1933 district by district in Bihar and Orissa and the number of cases which were assessed under Section 23 (4) :—

NON-REFUND OF INCOME-TAX AFTER THE CANCELLATION OF ASSESSMENTS IN THE ORISSA CIRCLE.

*596. In the case of assessments cancelled under Section 27 of the Indian Income-tax Act, any tax already levied is refunded at once without waiting for an application for refund from the assessee. Refunds due on an appellate or review order or an order passed as a result of a reference directing a fresh assessment to be made are not granted unless the Assistant Commissioner or the Commissioner gives a direction to that effect in his order.

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby (Army Secretary) : Sir, I lay on the table the information promised in reply to unstarred question No. 197 asked by Mr. S. G. Jog on the 14th March, 1934.

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

197. (a) Government have no knowledge of the letter referred to.

(b) Government stated in their letter referred to that the case of the particular Indian officer was not affected by the recommendations of the War Pension Committee. The attention of the Honourable Member is drawn to the last sentence of the recommendation as quoted by him.

(c) It is impossible to give a general definition of the types of disability which will not be considered as attributable to military service. In cases of this kind, which, though they arise during service, have no connection with that service, Government have to be guided by the circumstances and merits in each individual instance.

Mr. P. R. Rau (Financial Commissioner, Railways) : Sir, I lay on the table :

- (i) the information promised in reply to starred questions Nos. 828—834 asked by Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen on the 12th September, 1933 ;
- (ii) the information promised in reply to parts (a), (b), (c) and (e) of starred question No. 1050 asked by Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury on the 20th September, 1933 ;
- (iii) the information promised in reply to starred questions Nos. 1105—1110 asked by Mr. S. C. Mitra on the 21st November, 1933 ;
- (iv) the information promised in reply to unstarred questions Nos. 213, 214 and 215 asked by Mr. S. C. Mitra on the 27th November, 1933 ;
- (v) the information promised in reply to unstarred questions Nos. 265 and 266 asked by Sardar G. N. Mujumdar on the 5th December, 1933 ;
- (vi) the information promised in reply to starred questions Nos. 1364, 1365, 1366 and 1378 asked by Sardar Sant Singh on the 11th December, 1933 ;
- (vii) the information promised in reply to starred question No. 403 asked by Lala Rameshwar Prasad Bagla on the 7th March, 1934 ;
- (viii) the information promised in reply to starred question No. 633 asked by Mr. N. M. Joshi on the 4th April, 1934 ;
- (ix) the information promised in reply to starred question No. 688 asked by Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal on the 14th April, 1934 ;
- (x) the information promised in reply to starred question No. 708 asked by Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar on the 14th April, 1934 ; and
- (xi) the information promised in reply to starred question No. 709 asked by Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar on the 14th April, 1934.

APPOINTMENT OF LILLOOAH APPRENTICES.

*828. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that the Anglo-Indian referred to was held to be the best all round man for the appointment by the officer who examined him.

He was not a failed man but passed the Technical School examination in the Second Class. He possessed the qualifications necessary for the appointment of Train Examiner and it is considered his selection has been justified by the standard of his work since his appointment. He is now drawing Rs. 150 per mensem in Grade III and is actually doing work which was previously performed by a Grade I Train Examiner so as to release him for supervision work in the yard.

APPOINTMENT OF LILLOOAH APPRENTICES.

*829. (a), (b) and (c). The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that the information furnished by him in September, 1932, which was repeated in the reply given by Government to Mr. S. C. Mitra's question No. 22 (c) of 5th September, 1932, was based on information supplied by the then Superintendent, Rolling Stock of the Howrah Division, who is no longer in service and that the records now available do not enable him to furnish the information now asked for regarding a transaction which occurred in 1930.

(d) Government do not consider that there is reason for further enquiry into this matter and have no grounds for thinking that the selection for filling the Train Examiner's post in 1930 was improperly conducted.

(e) Government are unable to agree that racial discrimination was made in this case.

(f) The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that these two ex-apprentices were invited to appear before a Selection Committee in connection with appointments on the 14th August, 1933. One of the two men did not appear. This other was placed 12th on the list by the Selection Committee, but was not appointed as there were only 6 vacancies.

APPOINTMENT OF APPRENTICE TRAIN EXAMINERS FOR THE OPERATING DEPARTMENT.

*830. (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to the information laid on the table of the House in reply to his question No. 843 asked on the 21st March, 1933. The recruitment is still suspended.

(b) Does not arise.

APPOINTMENT OF LILLOOAH APPRENTICES.

*831 (a) The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that between the 29th March, 1930 and 21st August, 1933 one ex-Apprentice of the Lillooah Workshops was appointed :

- (i) Mr. C. Keys.
- (ii) Howrah Division.
- (iii) 2nd Division in final Technical School Examination.
- (iv) Train Examiner.
- (v) One Anglo-Indian.
- (vi) Rs. 85 on three months' probation and confirmed on Rs. 95.

(b) Six time expired Apprentices of the Lillooah Workshops were appointed in August last on the Howrah Division and none on other Divisions. Government are aware of the replies referred to.

(c) The vacancies in other Divisions were filled by surplus Train Examiners and time expired Apprentices trained on these Divisions under the old East Indian Railway system who were waiting to be absorbed as Train Examiners. In this connection I would also invite the Honourable Member's attention to the information laid on the table of the House on the 13th March, 1933, in reply to part (b) of Question No. 23 asked by Mr. S. C. Mitra on the 5th September, 1932.

(d) Divisional Superintendents have already been advised. I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the information laid on the table of the House on the 13th March, 1933, in reply to part (a) of Question No. 23 asked by Mr. S. C. Mitra on the 5th September, 1932.

APPOINTMENT OF LILLOOAH APPRENTICES AS TRAIN EXAMINERS.

*832. (a) Yes.

(b) Yes. The majority of the candidates selected were not the first to have passed out of the Technical School. One of the most junior men to be appointed passed in the Honours Division and stood alone in that distinction. One senior man who was selected refused the post as he was already in employment and drawing more salary than the pay offered by the railway. The appointments were made by selection, thus obtaining the best men available for appointment.

(c) A properly organised Selection Committee composed of senior officers selected the men whom they considered to be most suitable for the posts. Every candidate's case was given full consideration and all things being equal, the candidate who had qualified first was given preference. In making a selection, the fact that candidates appointed would have in time to come to take independent charge of a train examining station entailing control of a large body of labour had to be given due weight, and the Committee selected the most suitable candidates in all respects.

The Anglo-Indian ex-apprentice appointed in 1930 was selected as the most suitable man by the then Superintendent, Rolling Stock, and he has justified his selection by doing good work.

Of the six men selected in August, 1933, four were Hindus, an Anglo-Indian and a European.

(d) Does not arise.

(f) The following Train Examiners have been appointed under the Superintendent, Howrah, East Indian Railway, since 1931:—

Anglo Indian	1
European	1
Hindus	4
Muslims	Nil.

The communal proportion of Train Examiners and Assistant Train Examiners is as follows. It will be seen from this that the progressive Indianization has been followed:—

	Train Examiners.	Assistant Train Examiners.
Europeans	5%	Nil.
Anglo-Indians	14%	2.55%
Hindus	60%	66.7%
Mahomedans	19%	28.2%
Indian Christians	2%	2.55%

(e) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply given to part (g) of question No. 832.

APPOINTMENT OF LILLOOAH APPRENTICES AS ELECTRICIANS AND TRAIN EXAMINERS.

*834. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that:

(a) Six ex-apprentices were appointed in August, 1933. It is not possible to say how many more will be appointed this year.

(b) (i) Howrah Division	8
Asansol	4
Dinapore	Nil
Allahabad	Nil

(ii) Train Examiners.

APPLICATIONS FOR LEAVE BY THE GUARDS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

*1050. (a) Yes, the guards are subordinate to the station masters and the latter have to make arrangements for relief.

(b) 159 applications for leave were received from guards by the station master, Gya, during 1932. Leave was refused in one case while in five other cases the applicants were required to wait for a few days before their leave could be sanctioned.

(c) Yes, the guards have a right to appeal to the Divisional Superintendent but all such appeals are to be submitted through the station masters concerned who are not authorized to withhold such appeals which must be submitted with their remarks. The Divisional Superintendents have full authority to sanction leave to staff under them whether applications for leave are submitted direct or through the proper channel. The submission of applications for leave through the proper channel is however insisted on for administrative reasons.

(d) This is not a fact. The latter part of the question does not arise.

RACIAL DISCRIMINATION ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY IN THE MATTER OF APPOINTMENTS.

*1105. (a) No.

(b) I would refer the Honourable Member to the information laid on the table of the House in reply to part (c) of starred question No. 832 asked by Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen on 12th September, 1933.

(c) I would refer the Honourable Member to the information laid on the table of the House in reply to part (b) of starred question No. 833 asked by Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen on the 12th September, 1933.

(d) The apprentice was called for an interview and there was no racial discrimination in this matter. Latter parts of the question do not arise.

(f) and (g). I would refer the Honourable Member to the information laid on the table of the House in reply to part (b) (iii) of unstarred question No. 266 asked by Sardar G. N. Mujumdar on the 5th December, 1933.

(h) I would refer the Honourable Member to the information laid on the table of the House in reply to part (g) of starred question No. 832 asked by Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen on the 12th September, 1933.

APPOINTMENT OF APPRENTICES OF THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOPS.

*1106. (a) to (c). I would refer the Honourable Member to the information laid on the table of the House in reply to parts (a) to (c) of starred question No. 829 asked by Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen on the 12th September, 1933.

(d) and (e). I would refer the Honourable Member to the information laid on the table of the House in reply to parts (e) and (d) respectively of starred question No. 829 asked by Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen on the 12th September, 1933.

APPOINTMENT OF APPRENTICES OF THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOPS.

*1107. I would refer the Honourable Member to the information laid on the table of the House in reply to parts (a), (b) and (c) of starred question No. 829 asked by Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen on the 12th September, 1933.

APPOINTMENT OF APPRENTICES OF THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOPS AS TRAIN EXAMINERS AND ELECTRICIANS.

*1108. I would refer the Honourable Member to the information laid on the table of the House in reply to part (b) of starred question No. 834 asked by Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen on the 12th September, 1933.

Six time expired apprentices of the Lillooah Shops were appointed on the Howrah Division in August, 1933, and none on other Divisions. Of the six men selected, four were Hindus, one Anglo-Indian and one European.

As regards vacancies lying unfilled, I am informed that there was one vacancy for an Electrician at Lucknow which was not filled up in view of reorganisation which resulted in staff retrenchment in the Train Lighting Department. Two vacancies in the grade of Train Examiners on the Lucknow Division which are lying vacant will be filled up by the surplus Train Examiners existing on that Division.

The ex-apprentices appointed were given Rs. 95 each as starting salary.

APPOINTMENT OF APPRENTICES IN THE PRODUCTION DEPARTMENT OF THE LILLOOAH WORKSHOPS.

213. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports :

(a) The reply given to starred question No. 920 (d) is correct and this will be apparent from the enclosed copy of a certificate given by the Controller of Inspection, Calcutta, to Mr. T. C. Ghosh. Mr. T. C. Ghosh was not the first apprentice to work under the Production Engineer.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) The reason for appointing an ex-apprentice of 1931 in preference to an apprentice of 1930 is that when the vacancy in the grade of Rs. 50—10—90 occurred the ex-apprentice of 1931 who was appointed on 16th February, 1931, had been trained in the Production and Progress Section and had therefore the requisite experience. Mechanics who had no previous experience in production methods, were appointed to make use of existing staff and thus save them from retrenchment.

(d) It is pointed out that endeavours have since been made to secure employment for Mr. Ghosh. Advice was received from him that his services with the Indian Stores Department had been terminated owing to financial stringency on 31st January, 1932, and he was given an introductory letter to the Chief Mechanical Engineer, North Western Railway, on 7th January, 1933, which however appears to have produced no result. On 25th May, 1933, a vacancy having occurred in the Drawing Office Mr. Ghosh was asked to call to be tested but he replied that he was in the employment of the Nepal Government Railway as a Loco. Foreman (temporary) on Rs. 150 plus Rs. 12-8-0 consolidated allowance and free quarters.

(e) Government do not consider any enquiry necessary.

APPOINTMENT OF EX-APPRENTICES ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

214. The names of the two Indian ex-apprentices referred to are Messrs. Mohammed Mohiuddin and Mahadeo Prosad.

L168LAD

APPOINTMENT OF EX-APPRENTICES ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

215. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports :

"(a) No suitable apprentices or ex-apprentices were available at the time of Mechanic Shallcross's transfer to the Sawmill, that is none with any Sawmill experience whatever. Mechanic Shallcross being the son of the former Sawmill Foreman had gained some knowledge of the work from him and was selected for that reason in preference to appointing an outsider.

The Kiln Operators appointed from outside who had no other training except timber seasoning were retained after the closing down of the Kiln Seasoning plant as a purely temporary measure and when this temporary work was completed they were discharged and no question of replacing them arises.

(b) Every consideration is given to the question of employing ex-apprentices but owing to financial stringency and the prior claims of retrenched mechanics, opportunities at present are remote except only where the ex-apprentice has received special training in a new section, e.g., Heat treatment."

INDIAN STORES DEPARTMENT,

OFFICE OF THE CONTROLLER OF INSPECTION,

CALCUTTA CIRCLE.

Dated 2nd February, 1932.

Mr. T. C. Ghose was employed as an Examiner of Stores in the Indian Stores Department from 10th February, 1930, to 31st January, 1932. During this period he was employed under an Assistant Engineer (Inspection) in connection with the inspection of orders for wagons and components. His services were terminated owing to financial stringency and the necessity for reducing the staff.

INTRODUCTION OF THE PREVENTIVE SYSTEM OF CHECK BY POSTING GROUPS OF TRAVELLING TICKET EXAMINERS.

*1364. The Agent, North Western Railway, reports :

"(c) to (g). The group system has not been abandoned. Each group men work under the charge of a Headman or group-in-charge who is responsible for checking all trains and stations on the section allotted to him.

At the discretion of Divisional Superintendents a group in-charge may divide his group into sub-groups of two or detail the members of his group to work individually on occasions when this may be desirable. While working in sub-groups or individually all members of a group continue to work under their group-in-charge.

(h) On occasions more than one Travelling Ticket Examiner may have worked on one train, but this was not usual."

INTRODUCTION OF THE PREVENTIVE SYSTEM OF CHECK BY POSTING GROUPS OF TRAVELLING TICKET EXAMINERS.

*1365. The Agent, North Western Railway, reports :

(b) The strength of ticket collectors on the North Western Railway is shown below against the dates given :

1st October, 1930	..	..	..	1,054
1st January, 1931	..	..	..	1,053
1st March, 1931	..	..	..	1,053
1st June, 1931	..	..	..	988
1st June, 1933	..	..	..	970

(c) The reduction in strength since 1st October, 1930, has not been progressive. The reduction in 1931 was made as part of the retrenchment campaign when train services were curtailed.

(d) The precautions taken include the erection of fencing when funds permit and instructions to inferior staff employed at road side stations to guard the ends of platforms and to endeavour to prevent ticketless passengers entraining.

- (e) On 31st May, 1931, the staff employed on checking tickets on running trains were Travelling Ticket Examiners to the number of 128. The strength on 31st August, 1933, of Special Ticket Examiners who may be employed alternatively on checking work on running trains and at stations was 236.
- (f) There is no staff now employed exclusively for ticket checking on running trains. The system now followed with Special Ticket Examiners covers both the prevention of ticketless travelling and checking in trains."

PREVENTION OF ILLICIT TRAVELLING ON RAILWAY TRAINS.

*1366. The Agent, North Western Railway, reports :

- "(c) It is presumed that the Honourable Member alludes to Messrs. Mathra Singh and Shah Niwaz Khan, who were officiating in Grade III (Group-in-charge) and after trial were reverted to their substantive posts in Grade II having been found to be inefficient as Group-in-charge and unworthy of promotion to Grade III. They were replaced by others selected from Grade II."

ALLOWANCES OF TRAVELLING TICKET EXAMINERS.

LEAVE GIVEN TO RAILWAY STAFF AT JAMALPUR AFTER THE EARTHQUAKE SHOCK.

*403. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports as follows :

- "1. Workshops and Deputy Chief Mechanical Engineer's Office at Jamalpur were closed from the 16th to 21st January, 1934, on account of the earthquake and the enforced absence of staff during this period was given special consideration. I decided that staff of all departments other than those who are paid according to the number of days worked and who were unavoidably absent from work owing to the earthquake or who were allowed to leave work in order to take their families away should be allowed casual leave up to a maximum of 6 days over and above the usual limit of 14 days for such leave.

2. In the case of the staff of the above categories who rendered assistance in the emergency during the period when ordinary work was suspended as a result of the earthquake I decided that they should also be similarly allowed casual leave for a corresponding period over and above the limit of 14 days after conditions have settled down, and when they can be spared but not later than the 31st December, 1934.
3. I would state that during the five days from the 16th to the 20th January, 1934, the 21st January being a Sunday, there were two holidays in the workshops, one on the 17th January—a paid holiday and the other on the 20th January, 1934—an unpaid holiday. Certain workshop staff who are paid according to time worked and therefore excluded from paragraph 1 above were absent from work between the 16th and 20th January, 1934, and in their case it was decided that the period of absence should be covered by leave in those cases where this was due and in other cases the embargo that men must be present at work immediately prior to and immediately following the paid holidays was lifted in order that the men might get the benefit of holiday pay on the 17th January, 1934.
4. I authorized the issue over the East Indian Railway of additional passes to allow staff employed at stations effected by the earthquake to send their families away, and to remove furniture to other stations when for want of house accommodation they could not safely keep their furniture where they were working."

The Government do not consider it necessary to take any further action.

APPOINTMENTS OF FIREMEN AT BULSAR ON THE BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.

*633. The Agent, Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, reports as follows :

- (a) Yes.
- (b) The appointments were from apprentices but this does not prevent any fireman, who can pass his examination for the special grade, being placed in that grade, as the number in the grade is not limited. The special grade is given for English speaking and writing.
- (c) There were only two retrenched firemen, who have been re-employed.

FOOT OVERBRIDGE AT THE ROHTAK RAILWAY STATION.

*688. (a) The Agent of the North Western Railway has reported that a foot overbridge for the use of the public is in course of construction at Rohtak Station, towards the east of which a contribution has been made by the Municipal Committee, Rohtak, and not by the Vaish High School.

- (b) and (c). The overbridge will be opened as soon as it has been completed.

TRAINS, ETC., ON THE FEROZEPUR LUDHIANA SECTION OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

*708. The Agent, North Western Railway, reports that there are three trains daily each way between Ludhiana and Ferozepur, the same as 20 years ago. As regards the time taken by them, the minimum time taken in 1920 was 5 hours and 30 minutes whereas it is now 3 hours and 15 minutes. It is not possible to reduce the time further as the run is a short one of 77 miles and trains stop at all stations. The existing volume of passenger traffic does not warrant an increase in the number of trains.

The Agent also reports that during the year 1928-29, an additional train (totalling four) each way was tried but had to be withdrawn for want of adequate patronage.

PROVISION OF CERTAIN AMENITIES ON STATIONS OF THE REWARI-FAZILKA AND KOTKAPURA-FAZILKA SECTIONS OF THE BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.

(a) A statement showing the train service on the Rewari-Fazilka Section is appended. The Agent, Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, reports that the policy on the Metre Gauge system is to run mixed trains on Branch lines and that, if the mixed trains on this Section are converted into passenger trains, it will cost the Railway Administration an additional sum of Rs. 3 lakhs per annum.

(b) The Agent reports that there are waiting halls at all stations on the above section except at certain flag stations.

(c) and (d). The Agent reports that the work of providing pucca booking offices, waiting sheds, etc., at Roranwala and Ramgarh stations has been held over for want of funds.

STATEMENT RE. NET EARNINGS OF CERTAIN NEWLY CONSTRUCTED RAILWAY LINES.

Mr. P. R. Rau (Financial Commissioner, Railways): Sir, I lay on the table a statement, giving the information at present available as to the net earnings of certain newly constructed railway lines during the financial year 1932-33, and a comparison of the return given by these earnings on the capital outlay with the return anticipated in the original estimates.

Statement showing net earnings during the financial year 1932-33 of new lines opened after 1st October 1927 throughout for traffic for a full year.

Serial No.	Name of project.	Working railway.	Gauge.	Mileage.	Date of opening.	Net income creditable to the project for 1932-33.	Percentage return of income (column 7 on capital outlay).	Estimated percentage return of income on capital outlay some years after opening as estimated originally.	Remarks.

* This line was sanctioned for construction on the assurance that a minimum output of 35,000 tons of manganese ore annually by the Sandur Mining Company would be enough to guarantee the railway against loss.

† Loss to the extent of Rs. 20,000 guaranteed by local Government so as to obtain a return of 5.5 per cent. on capital outlay.

‡ Includes a guarantee of Rs. 4,00,000 payable by the Bombay Government.

§ The annual loss in working the Sind Left Bank Feeder Railways was estimated at Rs. 4.66 lakhs during the first five years after opening and Rs. 2.63 lakhs after the first five years of opening for Traffic. To recoup the loss the Government of Bombay will pay a fixed sum of Rs. 4 lakhs annually for each of the first five years and thereafter the actual loss in working subject to a maximum of Rs. 2 lakhs per annum.

¶ The line was considered unremunerative but the District Board of South Arcot, who were interested in it, have expressed their willingness to Government of India against loss, if any, arising out of the construction and working of the line.

(a) Excludes net earnings of the existing lines from new traffic interchanged with new Railway.

(b) The estimated percentage return took into account a maximum payment of Rs. 41,000 to be made good by the Madras Government against loss.

(c) The estimated percentage return took into account a maximum payment of Rs. 1,39,000 guaranteed by the Madras Government against loss.

(d) Calculated on capital expenditure only excluding interest during construction.

(e) Includes maximum guarantee of Rs. 1,30,000 from the Government of Madras.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : May I know whether I will be permitted to ask any question or to review the statement laid on the table ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member knows the rules about the asking of questions.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya (Madras : Indian Commerce) : Some information has been given about certain starred questions; but there were other starred questions about which information was required, and I would like to know when that information will be laid before the House.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Some information promised, is it ?

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : I had put some questions about subsidiary coinage, and I wish to know when I can expect information about it.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair does not understand the Honourable Member's question at all.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Information with regard to certain starred questions has been furnished now. But there are other questions for which information has not been given, and I would like to know when the information about those questions will be laid before the House.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : You mean some information with regard to a question, which was promised by some Member of Government ?

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Yes : is there any time limit within which the information should be given ? It may be given at the end of the Session when it can be of no use to us.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Some reply has been promised to the Honourable Member in the last Session with regard to some question of his, and he now finds that the answer has not been supplied even now : that is his difficulty ?

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Yes : I should like to know whether replies should not be given within a reasonable time.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : This is a new question to me, and I will certainly look into it and let the Honourable Member know : in any case, information will be given to him as soon as it is available.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : It may be available at the end of the Session when it may be of no use.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair thinks if Government promised some information during the last Delhi Session, they should make an endeavour to supply that information as early as possible.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : This is a new question to me,

THE INDIAN DOCK LABOURERS BILL.

PRESENTATION OF THE REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore (Member for Commerce and Railways) : Sir, I beg to present the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to give effect in British India to the Convention concerning the protection against accidents of workers employed in loading and unloading ships.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : With regard to the agenda of this week, Honourable Members will observe that Thursday, the 19th, has been set aside for non-official Bills. The Chair would here point out to Honourable Members that the Temple Entry Bill was sent out for circulation : opinions are still being received, and even those that have been received are so voluminous that they would not perhaps be received from the press sufficiently in time to enable Honourable Members to get copies before the 19th, if the ballot favours subsequent motions on that Bill. So, to meet the convenience of the House, the Chair is prepared to make a change, and, in fact, His Excellency the Governor General has also agreed that, in case the House so desires, he would agree to make the change also. Thursday, the 19th, is the first day for non-official Bills. If Honourable Members agree, that day may be allotted to official work, and then Thursday, the 23rd August, will be given as a day for non-official Bills. The effect of this will be that the first day for non-official Bills will be Thursday, the 2nd August, which gives reasonable time for Honourable Members to study the papers that will be supplied to them. If the House agrees, the Chair will have this arrangement made. (Honourable Members : "Yes, Yes ; we agree.") Then the Chair would announce to the House that His Excellency the Governor General has cancelled the allotment of Thursday, the 19th instant, for non-official Bills, and the Chair directs that that day be devoted to official business. The Chair has also to announce that it cancels Thursday, the 23rd of August, for official Bills and that His Excellency has agreed to allot that day for non-official Bills.

DEATHS OF SIR BEPIN BEHARI GHOSH AND MR. ARAVAMUDHA AYYANGAR.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore (Leader of the House) : Sir, death has removed two old Members of this House since last we met, namely, Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh and Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar. Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh was only with us for a short time, but that was sufficient to endear him to those with whom he was brought in contact. A member of a distinguished family which has given to the country one of the highest legal talent, he was himself, I understand, one of the most efficient Judges who have graced the Bench of the Calcutta High Court ; but we here will always remember him for a singularly amiable disposition which endeared him to us all and which we will not soon forget.

I am sure also that Members of this House must have read with deep regret of the death of Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar. Death has prematurely terminated a career which gave promise of a brilliant future. Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar was a member of the Audit and Accounts Service. In every post that he held he showed an outstanding ability and a devotion to duty which are the distinguishing marks of an ideal civil servant. Those qualities were in evidence in every post in which he served, and he served in many important posts. He was, Sir, an Under Secretary to the Government of India in the Finance Department during the time of Sir Basil Blackett's Currency Bill. He was a Budget Officer to the Government of India, and he was also Secretary to the Hilton-Young Currency Commission. He had, Sir, a most unassuming manner and a singularly attractive personality. Government and the country have lost a most valued public servant in him, and I hope, Sir, that you will communicate to the relatives of both the deceased the deep sympathy of this House in their bereavement.

Sir Abdur Rahim (Calcutta and Suburbs : Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, I associate myself entirely with what has fallen from the Leader of the House regarding the late Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh and Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar. I had the privilege of knowing Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh somewhat intimately for a long time. He had a distinguished career both in the University of Calcutta and also in the legal profession, of which he was a successful member until he filled the post of a High Court Judge with distinction. As a Judge of the Calcutta High Court, as has been observed by the Honourable the Leader of the House, he made a mark for himself, and he continued the traditions of his family for legal acumen and legal attainments. He was the brother of the late Sir Rash Behari Ghosh, well-known to every lawyer throughout India as a most distinguished writer and learned lawyer, and Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh, as a Judge of the High Court, was conspicuously successful.

We had the pleasure of knowing Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar here, and there can be no doubt, as has been stated by the Honourable the Leader of the House, that he was a most valuable officer of the Government of India where he had served in various capacities. Sir, I associate myself entirely on behalf of my Party with all that has been said regarding these two deceased gentlemen, and would ask you to communicate the expression of sorrow and sympathy of this House to the members of the families of the deceased gentlemen.

Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi (Madras ceded Districts and Chittoor Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I associate my Party and myself with the sentiments that have just been given expression to by the Honourable the Leader of the House and by the Leader of the Opposition over the sad death of Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh and the demise of Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar. Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh was a Member of the Executive Council here for a short time. He came here after a distinguished career at the Calcutta Bar, and also after presiding over the Calcutta High Court as a Judge with great distinction. He belonged to that great family of legal luminaries, of which his famous brother, Rash Behari Ghosh, was a member, and whose name is known throughout the length and breadth of India as a distinguished lawyer and philanthropist. During the short time Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh was a Member of the Executive Council here, he had endeared himself to every one, both to the Members of the Government as well as to the Opposition. Sir, we all mourn his loss.

DEATHS OF SIR BEPIN BEHARI GHOSH AND MR. ARAVAMUDHA AYYANGAR. 65

With regard to Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar, he belonged to a most intellectual family of Southern India. His father-in-law was a Professor of Mathematics in the Engineering College in Madras. The late Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar gave very great promise from the commencement of his career. After a distinguished scholastic career, he joined the office of the Accountant General in Madras. His abilities were soon recognised and he was translated to the Finance Department of the Government of India. He was Budget Officer for some time in the Finance Department. Apart from his regular duties, he served with great distinction as Secretary to the Hilton-Young Commission. He also worked very recently as Secretary to the Banking Inquiry Committee, and in this capacity he was of immense help to the country. Besides that, as Budget Officer, he had also to act as Secretary to the Public Accounts Committee, of which I have been a member for some time, and as such I have had occasion to come into closer contact with him. He was of immense help to the Finance Member; he was absolutely thorough with all the facts and figures in the Public Accounts Committee relating to all the Departments of Government which come under review, and, therefore, every Finance Member under whom Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar had the honour and privilege to serve liked him immensely and he was marked out for a very great appointment. It is quite natural that after the Reserve Bank Act was passed, he was proposed to be the Secretary of that Bank, and in order to give him more training, he was appointed Deputy Controller of Currency in Calcutta. But, just before he took up that office, he had a very bad attack of typhoid, and we were very glad that on that occasion he was rescued from the jaws of death. We all thought that he would survive to serve his country and the Government. He went to England to recoup his health, but we now hear of his sad demise. We all mourn his loss. Sir, we feel that the Government have lost a brilliant public servant and the country has lost a distinguished gentleman. The cruel hand of death has taken away one of the most brilliant careers in India. With these words, I request you, Sir, to communicate our warm feelings of sorrow to the bereaved families of both Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh as well as Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar.

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria (Bombay Northern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, on behalf of the Centre Party, I join in expressing our deep sorrow at the deaths of our two colleagues.

Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh, during the short period that he was here, had endeared himself to everybody by his unfailing courtesy and unassuming manners. The Honourable the Leader of the Opposition has already said things about his career which I need not repeat. Mr. Ayyangar was one of the most brilliant Indians that one could ever hope to come across. During the debates on the Reserve Bank Bill, I had come in some contact with him, and I feel myself in a position to say that in matters of currency and finance Mr. Ayyangar's want would be long felt in this country. I feel quite sure that had he not been cut off at such an early age and in such tragic circumstances, he would have in the very near future occupied a very responsible Government post, for it is no exaggeration to say that Mr. Ayyangar sacrificed himself in the service of the State. Sir, there is no armour against death, and we, his colleagues, can only mourn his loss. I join the previous speakers in supporting the motion for sending our sympathies to the bereaved families.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to associate my Party and myself with the remarks that have fallen about our departed friends. Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh endeared himself to the Opposition as this House so well remembers. When the Opposition was seething, that great man was smiling away. Amidst great activity on the Opposition side, he was taking the most restful view as one ought to take in one's life, as Lord Sri Krishna says in the Bhagavad Gita. A great career richly endowed was dedicated for the good of his profession and the greatness of his country. Like his great brother, Sir Rash Behari Ghosh, Sir Bepin Behari leaves on the sands of time footprints which generous generations will follow at great sacrifice and with great admiration.

Now, coming to the passing away of that financial genius, Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar's death is too deep for words or tears. We knew how very enthusiastic he was of the great days, of the spacious days opening before our beloved motherland. A great patriot himself, he knew that the solution of the financial difficulties would solve the national problem. In spite of weak health, he went on a great enterprise, on a great adventure, a great work, and we were all looking forward to his coming back to our country with greater and richer experience to guide us, to guide the ship of State through rocks, steering clear of the Scyllas and Charybdises of the future. And we feel that his passing away is a great national loss. Sir, in the midst of life we are in death, and we can only pray that his family which lies prostrate in dust may derive some satisfaction that a greater family, the nation, shares their great grief. Sir, we sympathise with the bereaved families of the late Sir Bepin Behari and the late Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar.

Sir Leslie Hudson (Bombay : European) : I wish to associate myself and my Party with all that has fallen from my colleagues in this Honourable House with regard to the loss that India has suffered in the deaths of Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh and Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar—the former, a noble ornament to the legal profession, who had risen with honour to himself and to his country to the highest judicial post in Bengal, and the latter, an efficient servant of the Government of India, who, as the previous Honourable Member has stated, had given his life for India. We all of us looked forward to a career of great promise for Mr. Ayyangar. His past experience in Government Departments led us to believe that he would rise to very great distinction. I shall be glad if you will convey the sympathies of the European Party along with those of the other Parties when writing to the families of the deceased.

Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi (Dacca cum Mymensingh : Muhammadan Rural) : Mr. President, I associate myself with what has fallen from my colleagues at the loss of the two great Indians, Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh and Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar. Both of them were my intimate friends, and I mourn their loss as a personal one. Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh was a gentleman first and everything else afterwards.

I was shocked when I read in the newspapers yesterday of the passing away of my dear old friend, Mr. Ayyangar. His untimely death must have been a shock to all who knew him. A meritorious officer of the Government of India, an officer of conspicuous ability, he made his mark during the period when Sir Basil Blackett was the Finance Member of the Government of India. The House deeply mourns the loss of these two great gentlemen, and I would request you, Mr. President, to convey to their families our sincere condolence and our grief at their loss.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I rise to pay my tribute of tears to the memory of the two great departed Indians. Mr. Ayyangar was known to us as a brilliant officer, and his unassuming manners and financial abilities were prized by every one. He was a friend of almost all the Members of this House. He was known to every one of us, and we sincerely mourn his untimely loss.

As regards Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh, I cannot find words to express the feelings which are uppermost in my mind at the present moment. He was to me more than an elder brother. He came from the same place as myself, we practised at the same Bar, and probably, not even excepting the present Law Member, I am his oldest acquaintance present here in this Chamber, and I looked upon him as my eldest brother. Sir, if I rise to mourn his loss, it is a sacred and solemn duty which I not only owe to the departed, but to myself also. I can only end by saying that his was a life of which it can be truly said that :

Life's work well done,
And now comes rest.”

With these words, Sir, I beg to pay my tribute to the memory of the great deceased.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I wish to associate the Chair with the tribute that has been paid to the memory of the late Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh and Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar. Though Sir Bepin Behari Ghosh was a Member of this House for a very short period, he had not merely inspired confidence in every section of the House, but by his charming personality he had made himself one of the most popular Members, and we mourn the loss of one who was loved so well while he was a Member of this House and whose work in the cause of the public has been well appreciated by his colleagues.

In the death of Mr. Aravamudha Ayyangar, we have lost one of the most efficient and devoted of our public servants. Honourable Members have had many opportunities of judging the devotion to public duty and the efficiency with which he discharged the daily task that was entrusted to him. He showed undoubted promise of a great future for himself and greater service for the country, and we all mourn the tragic and untimely death of such a devoted public servant. It shall be my duty as the spokesman of this House to convey to the families of our departed colleagues the deep sympathy and sorrow of this House at the death of those two colleagues whom this House loved so well and whose services this House so greatly appreciated.

THE BENGAL CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT SUPPLEMENTARY (EXTENDING) BILL.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig (Home Member) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to extend the operation of the Bengal Criminal Law Amendment (Supplementary) Act, 1932.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That leave be granted to introduce a Bill to extend the operation of the Bengal Criminal Law Amendment (Supplementary) Act, 1932."

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE ASSAM CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT (SUPPLEMENTARY) BILL.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig (Home Member) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to supplement the Assam Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1934.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That leave be granted to introduce a Bill to supplement the Assam Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1934."

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE REPEALING AND AMENDING BILL.

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar (Law Member) : Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to amend certain enactments and to repeal certain other enactments.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That leave be granted to introduce a Bill to amend certain enactments and to repeal certain other enactments."

The motion was adopted.

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : Sir, I introduce the Bill.

THE INDIAN PETROLEUM BILL.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the import, transport, storage, production and refinement of petroleum and other inflammable substances be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. H. P. Mody, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, Mr. S. C. Sen, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Kumar Gupteshwar Prasad Singh, Mr. L. C. Buss, Haji Chaudhury Muhammad Ismail Khan, Mr. Sitakanta Mahapatra, Mr. E. W. Perry, Mr. S. G. Grantham, and the Mover, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Sir, my name appears rather more frequently on the agenda for the business of this week than I could wish, but I trust the House will find that the legislative programme that I am putting before it is not so formidable after all. When I moved as long ago as last September that this Bill should be circulated to elicit opinion, I gave an account of our reasons for entirely recasting the present Indian Petroleum Act, 1899, and of the salient features of the new Bill. As the minds of Honourable Members may have been wearied by varied and contentious legislation since then, a short summary may help their overburdened memories.

I explained last September that, though the short and simple Act of 1899 was sufficient for the needs of the time when it was passed, there had been such great developments in the use and technique of mineral oils that many of the provisions of the Act had become defective or obsolete. I also pointed out that developments in the use of mineral oils were still occurring and that the Bill had been cast into a form which we hope will provide a framework adequate to carry, for some years to come, the further amendments that will in all probability have to be made.

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) vacated the Chair which was then occupied by Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury).]

I referred also to the present cumbersome procedure in making rules, whereby model rules are usually drafted in my Department and promulgated by the various Provincial Governments; and I drew the attention of the House to a prominent feature in the Bill designed to simplify this procedure, namely, the centralization of the rule-making powers in the hands of the Governor General in Council.

My motion for circulation was adopted by the House without dissent, and in the period elapsing since then the Bill has been circulated very widely and the opinions we have received have been very carefully considered by my Department. The volume of opinion elicited has shown a lively public interest in the provisions of the Bill, which is as gratifying as it has been to me rather unexpected. Though it is by no means light literature, this Bill may almost be said to be a burning question. The suggestions we have received are very numerous, and I would divide them into three classes. The first class contains the great majority of the suggestions submitted to us or rather submitted to this House and, although these suggestions have been made in the proper spirit of constructive criticism, I hope to persuade the Select Committee that they do not justify any amendment of the Bill. The second class, which is a small one, consists of suggestions which we accept and are prepared to recommend to the Select Committee. The third class, also a small one, comprises suggestions which Government wish to discuss with the Select Committee before making up their own mind. It is satisfactory and is, if I may say so, a tribute to the skill with which the Bill was drafted that the suggestions are all on points of detail and that none of them attack the fundamental principles of the Bill. This, I think, justifies the hope I expressed last September that the Bill would prove to be entirely non-controversial.

I should like to draw the special attention of the House to one or two of the more important suggestions which have been made. Burma has an Act of its own, the Burma Oilfields Act of 1918, which regulates the operations of winning oil in the Burma oilfields. The Government of Burma, and the Burma authorities and interests generally, would like to see all mention of production excised from the Bill. Whilst we fully appreciate the special position of Burma in this respect, and are prepared to have the Bill amended in Select Committee so as to 'save' the provisions of the Burma Act, we are not, as at present advised, prepared to go to the length of excluding production entirely from the Bill. The demand for such exclusion has not arisen in any other part of India, and [Sir Frank Noyce.] it seems desirable to follow the line of the present Petroleum Act and to retain a power to control production in the event of fresh discoveries of oilfields outside Burma.

Again, the scientific definition of petroleum contained in the Bill covers commercial turpentine and other substances of vegetable origin known as "terpenes". It may be desirable, in the interests of the turpentine trade, to exclude these entirely from the scope of the Bill and the Select Committee will be asked to advise on this point.

Lastly, clause 11 excludes from control all petroleum which has its flashing point not below 200 degrees. It has been strongly represented that this limit could be lowered with safety, and with a resulting saving in cost and in trouble all round. We shall be glad to take the advice of the Select Committee on this point.

The other matters brought out in the opinions received are points of drafting or technical matters of detail which it would be out of place for me to discuss at this stage. I have full confidence that this Bill, which vitally affects the interests of large producing and distributing agencies and safeguards the public from dangerous accidents, will, when it emerges from the Select Committee, be entirely acceptable to the House.

Sir, I move.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Motion moved :

"That the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the import, transport, storage, production and refinement of petroleum and other inflammable substances be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. H. P. Mody, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, Mr. S. C. Sen, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Kumar Gupteshwar Prasad Singh, Mr. L. C. Buss, Haji Chaudhury Muhammad Ismail Khan, Mr. Sitakanta Mahapatra, Mr. E. W. Perry, Mr. S. G. Grantham, and the Mover, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, since this Bill is going to the Select Committee, I do not think I shall be justified in making any lengthy observations at this stage. All the opinions that have been received on this Bill will, I am sure, be carefully sifted in the Select Committee. There is just one point which I should like to mention and which I think the Government would be well advised to look into, as well as the Select Committee. I am referring to clause 12 of this Bill. Clause 12 of this Bill says :

"Nothing in this Chapter shall apply to petroleum which is the property or is in the possession of Government or of any duly authorised officer acting in the execution of this Act."

Now, Sir, this Chapter is very important, because it relates to the custody of petroleum and the way in which petroleum is to be stored, so that it may not be dangerous to public health and safety. Sir, in this connection I should like to refer this House to some opinions with regard to this particular point. I am referring to the opinion of the Director of Industries who objects to this particular clause being retained in this Bill. The Director of Industries of the United Provinces says :

"In my opinion, this clause is objectionable. If the analogy of the Indian Explosives Act, 1884, can be pressed into service for incorporating this new clause into the present Bill, the analogy of the existing Indian Factories and the Boilers Acts, as well as the proposed Factories Bill, is against exceptional treatment being granted to Government property or concerns. If the importation, possession, storage and transport of petroleum require regulating in the interests of public safety, these considerations are equally applicable to petroleum which is the property or is in the possession of Government or of the duly authorised officers. It is to be noticed that petroleum possessed or owned by railways except in their capacity as carriers has not been exempted, vide clause 10 of the Bill. My experience of the administration of the existing Petroleum Act and similar laws as a Magistrate is that precautions taken in respect of Government property often tend to be inadequate."

Sir, this is the opinion of the Director of Industries of the United Provinces. Objection has also been taken to this clause by the Chamber of Commerce of Bombay, the Burma Shell Oil Storage and Distributing Company of India, Limited, Delhi, Indo-Burma Petroleum Company, Limited, the Upper India Chamber of Commerce, Cawnpore, and also the Bengal Chamber of Commerce. I am not going to read out the opinions of all these bodies. I will only refer to the opinion of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce which is to be found on page 6 of the opinions. It says :

"The intention is presumably to ensure that Government officials will not be hampered in the execution of their duties, but as the principal aims and objects of the Act are to safeguard the public in respect of the handling of dangerous commodities, this clause in its present form, which exempts Government in all circumstances from the necessity of complying with the conditions of Chapter I, seems undesirable."

I will only hope that the Government as well as the Members of the Select Committee will carefully weigh the opinions on this particular point as well as on other points and make suitable amendment so that when the Bill comes out of the Select Committee, it may not be open to the objection to which it has been as it stands at present. With these few words, I commend this motion to the acceptance of the House.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I need hardly say that the point raised by my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, will be dealt with very fully in the Select Committee. I think it will be found that the Government are by no means adamant on the point.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the import, transport, storage, production and refinement of petroleum and other inflammable substances be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. H. P. Mody, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, Mr. S. C. Sen, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Kumar Gupteshwar Prasad Singh, Mr. L. C. Buss, Haji Chaudhury Muhammad Ismail Khan, Mr. Sitakanta Mahapatra, Mr. E. W. Perry, Mr. S. G. Grantham, and the Mover, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN ARMY (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby (Army Secretary) : Sir, I move :

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Army Act, 1911, for certain purposes, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Sir Abdur Rahim, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi, Mr. B. V. Jadhav, Mr. Bhupat Singh, Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah, Rai Sahib Badri Lal Rastogi, Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar, Mr. G. Morgan, Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar, Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan, Dr. R. D. Dalal and the Mover, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

[Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby.]

Sir, though this Bill has a considerable number of clauses, there is really only one main object underlying it and that can be simply stated. It is to make legal provision for an important change which is now taking place in the constitution of the Indian army as a result of the gradual development of the policy of Indianization. In a few months time, the first batch of cadets will pass out of the Indian Military Academy at Dehra Dun and will receive their Commissions.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : How many of them there are ?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : Sixty. As the House is already aware, when they pass out of the Academy, these officers will constitute an entirely new category of officers in the Indian army, and it is to make legal provision for them that this Bill has been primarily introduced. These new officers are the Indian commissioned officers referred to in clause 5 of the Bill. They will receive the King's Commission of exactly the same type as that now held by the officers of the Indian Air Force. These Commissions are very much the same as those held by officers of the permanent forces of the self-governing Dominions, and I think I am right in saying that the form of Commission which is to be introduced for the Indian commissioned officers and which has already been introduced for the officers of the Indian Air Force is almost word for word the same as the Commission held by the officers of the Canadian Permanent Forces.

With the advent of these officers into the Indian army, there will be in it three different categories of officers. The definitions of these three types will be found in clause 5 of the draft Bill. First, there comes the "British officer", in which term is included the Indian officer who has received his Commission after training at Sandhurst or Woolwich. Then, secondly, comes the new type of officer, the "Indian commissioned officer", for whom it is proposed to make legal provision in this draft Bill; he will be the officer who comes into the Indian army after training at the Indian Military Academy at Dehra Dun. And, thirdly, comes that fine body of men to whom the Indian army have owed, and still owe, so very much, who are known at present in the Act and throughout the army as "Indian officers", but whom it is proposed to call in future "Viceroy's commissioned officers" in order to distinguish them from the Indian commissioned officers.

Of these three categories, the British officer will gradually decrease in numbers and ultimately disappear altogether as Indianisation progresses and his place is taken by the Indian commissioned officer. The same is true of the Viceroy's commissioned officer, as was announced on the floor of this House. I think as long ago as 1928, by Field Marshal Sir William Birdwood. His place will also be taken by the Indian commissioned officer, because, in an entirely Indian army, there will be no place for two categories of officers, both of them Indians, holding different commissions. And so, in time to come, the Indian commissioned officer will be the only kind of officer left in the Indian army; in fact it is correct to say that this first batch of officers who will be passing out shortly from the Indian Military Academy will be the prototypes of the officers of the national Indian army of the future.

There is one difference between the British officer and the Indian commissioned officer that I wish to point out. While the British officer is subject to the Army Act, it is proposed in this draft Bill to make the Indian commissioned officer subject to the Indian Army Act. I think the House will probably agree that this is an essential step if, as must be the case, the Indian army of the future is to be governed by one single Act, covering both officers and men, and that an Act which it is within the power of the Indian Legislature to amend. The alternative would be that any amendment to the status of the Indian commissioned officer would have to be legislated for by the British Parliament, that would surely be a retrograde step.

In this connection there is one point that I wish to emphasise most particularly, and that is that, in spite of this difference that I have just pointed out, the Indian commissioned officer will have within the Indian army exactly the same powers and privileges as are at present enjoyed by the British officer; it is intended that there shall be complete reciprocity between these two categories of officers. Any other kind of arrangement would, for obvious reasons, be administratively almost unworkable. Of the forty-two clauses of the Bill, some two-thirds have to do with making legal provision for the Indian commissioned officer. They deal with such things as his right of appeal, the punishments which may be awarded to him, the penal deductions that may be made from his pay, the position that he will occupy on courts martial and all the other provisions that have to be made for him and which are already made for the British officer in the Army Act. There is another small group of clauses which make more specific provision in the Act for the warrant officers who are subject to it. The few remaining clauses aim either at making provision for certain minor changes which have taken place in the constitution of the Indian Army in recent times or at bringing the Indian Army Act into line with the Indian Air Force Act or with the Army Act. I take it that the House would prefer that the Select Committee should go into these matters of comparative unimportance rather than that I should try and add now to the details which are already given with regard to them in the Notes on Clauses attached to the Bill. Sir, I move. (Applause.)

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Motion moved :

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Army Act, 1911, for certain purposes, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Sir Abdur Rahim, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi, Mr. B. V. Jadhav, Mr. Bhuput Singh, Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah, Rai Sahib Badri Lal Rastogi, Sirdar Harlaun Singh Brar, Mr. G. Morgan, Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar, Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan, Dr. R. D. Dalal, and the Mover, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I congratulate the Army Secretary for his lucid maiden speech. (Applause.) He has given us to understand that the system proposed is almost identical with the system now in force in the case of the Canadian Army. I would like to know, and I hope he would reply later on in what way these rules differ or agree with the rules applicable to the British officers trained at Sandhurst.

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : All I said was that the wording of the Commission is almost identical with that of the Commission given to officers of the Canadian forces. It is only the form of Commission I was referring to, and not the rules.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya (Madras Indian Commerce) : Also the faults or shortcomings of the Canadian rules.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I was talking of the present Bill now before us. This particular Bill and the provisions therein are identical with the provisions in a similar Bill applicable to the officers trained in Sandhurst.

Lieut. Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : That is not what I said.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : The point which I want to know is this. Whether these rules are exactly the same as are applicable to similar army in England and applicable to the officers trained in Sandhurst or do they differ? If they differ, in what way do they differ?

Sir Abdur Rahim (Calcutta and Suburbs : Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, I think it is a very important Bill which has been just now introduced by the Honourable the Army Secretary. It is not possible for us to study and understand fully the significance of this measure unless and until we have a more detailed exposition of the objects of the Bill. I happened to be a member of the Indian Military College Committee and now, I believe, this is the first time when a certain number of officers will have passed out of that college. We should like to know, for instance, how many officers will pass out this year for whom and for whose successors this Bill intends to make certain legal provisions. The Army Secretary has told us that the object of this Bill is to have an Indian Act regulating the administration of the Indian army. He has also held out a vision before us that in due course of time—a phrase with which we are very familiar in this House,—there will be an Indian national army, and it is, therefore, necessary to anticipate that event and to provide for it by this Act. He has further told us that in that future, whenever it may happen, it will be necessary and it will be wise to have an Act which can be amended by the Indian Legislature. There I should like to ask one question, and it is this. Does the Honourable Member mean that the Army Act which is going to be amended will be entirely at the disposal of the Indian Legislature to amend it in any way it likes, including also the control of the army and the regulation of the policy of army administration? I should like to have a definite answer to that question.

Then, Sir, while the Honourable Member was making his speech, a question was interjected, when is the Indian army going to be completely Indianised, if I may use that expression. It may sound somewhat anomalous that the Indian army should require to be Indianised, but that is the fact in the present situation of the country. So far as I recollect, at present there are only about 160 Indian King's commissioned officers out of more than 7,000.

Lieut. Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : There are 3,200 British officers.

Sir Abdur Rahim : I am talking of all the King's commissioned officers, and I am taking all the fighting forces.

Lieut. Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : The 7,000 include the officers of the British army.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Yes. There is a strength of 3,000 odd King's commissioned officers in the Indian army, and the Indianisation began, I believe, somewhere about 1925, and in the course of these eight or nine years, we have about 160 officers. I should like to know how long it will take at the present rate for the Indian Military College to produce a sufficient number of officers to Indianise the whole of the officer personnel of the Indian army.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Two hundred years.

Sir Abdur Rahim : I understand, and that was the decision of the majority of the College Committee and the final decision of Government, that the Viceroy's commissioned officers will be scrapped and that is also the case put forward by the Army Secretary. If the Viceroy's commissioned officers disappear, then naturally there will be need for more King's commissioned officers than is the case at present; and, therefore, I should like the Honourable Member, when he answers my question, to take into account what would be the required strength of the King's commissioned officers or rather the Indian commissioned officers, as now contemplated under his Bill, in order to replace the entire officer personnel including the King's commissioned officers and the Viceroy's commissioned officers by the officers who will be turned out by the Indian Military College.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till a Quarter Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at a Quarter Past Two of the Clock, Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) in the Chair.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Sir, before the adjournment, I was raising the question as to how far this Act would give us or would tend to give us an Indian army whose policy would be controlled by the Indian Legislature. So far as I can gather from the speech of Colonel Lumby, this Bill has nothing to do with the army policy. All that it aims at is to regulate the discipline of the Indian army or rather the Indian officers who will obtain their Commissions through the military college in India. He has also told us in answer to a question put by my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, that this Act is analogous to the Dominion Armies Acts, particularly of Canada, mainly in the matter of form of Commission and not as regards the substance, that is, so far as the question of policy is concerned. We have at present a certain number of Indians in the Indian army holding the King's Commission whose discipline, privileges and status are regulated by the Indian Army Act which was passed by the British Parliament. The object of this Bill is to amend that Act by an Act of the Indian Legislature in those respects without being under the necessity of going to the British Parliament. What I would like to know and I think what the House would like to know clearly and definitely from the Government is this: in what respects will the privileges, status and the discipline of the officers who will be recruited by the Indian Military College be different from those of the Indian officers who now hold the King's Commission? I think I saw a statement in some of the newspapers that the future recruits to the Indian Officer personnel will have a different scale of pay, and, I believe, also in respect of other privileges such as leave and leave allowances and things of that character. I think the House would like to be informed whether the question of pay of the future officers of the Indian army has been decided upon by the Government and, if so, why was not the Legislature taken into confidence? This is a matter of very great importance, and I do submit that no decision should be arrived at until the Legislature has the fullest opportunity of pronouncing upon the powers, pay and privileges of the future Indian officers. We know that, under the White Paper Scheme, the whole of the Indian forces will be placed, as regards policy, under the British Parliament; and, certainly so far as the scope of this Bill is concerned, if the pay of the future officers is going to be altered in any way to their disadvantage as compared with other Indian officers who hold the King's Commission now, this is a matter of the greatest importance, and I do ask the Government, before coming to any sort of decision on the point, to consult this House. I do not want at this stage to discuss the question of pay and privileges of these officers on their merits, but, so far as I have been able to look into the Bill, there is no indication in it as to what the pay and other privileges of the Indian officers recruited through the Military Academy at Dehra Dun are going to be. It is very difficult from reading the Bill to grasp its full scope. We want to know what will be the difference in the matter of pay and other privileges, their power of command and prospects in the army between those officers who already hold the King's Commission and those who will in future be recruited from the Dehra Dun Academy. We have been told that the clauses of this Bill, at any rate many of the clauses of this Bill, have been copied from some of the Colonial Acts.

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) resumed the Chair.]

I do not think that the Honourable Member meant to convey that this Bill is identical in all respects with the Colonial Acts that govern the Colonial armies. So far as I know,—I speak subject to correction, because I am not really familiar with the army matters as the Honourable Member is,—the Colonial Governments have the fullest control over their army, and I believe that is provided for in their Acts. If I am wrong, I am sure the Honourable Member will correct me in his reply. Therefore, it comes to this, that the scope of this Bill is to make certain differences, to emphasise or to create certain differences between the officers who hold the King's Commission at present and the future recruits. I should like, if I am correct in this supposition, that the Honourable the Army Member should explain to us in detail what those differences are. I believe recruitment through Sandhurst and other British Military institutions has been stopped, and, therefore, the Indian officers will in future be recruited entirely from the Dehra Dun Academy, except perhaps those who will join the Air Force, because we have not got as yet an institution for the training of Air Force officers.

As regards the form of the Commission, I am sure that this House would like to be satisfied as to what has made it necessary to make a change in the form of the Commission. We have at present a few Indian Officers,—I believe more than 100,—the number is about 160 or something like that,—who hold the King's Commission, and, so far as I am aware, these officers are at present getting on very well with their brother British officers in the Indian army. I am not aware that any difficulty has arisen by giving King's Commission to Indian officers. It is true that in most of the self-governing dominions, if not all the Dominions, the Dominion army officers hold what is called the Dominion Commission, but there is a significance in that which is wanting in the present circumstances of India. The dominions are entirely self-governing; they have entire control, I believe, over their army policy, and some of them, I believe, are still agitating to establish their right to conduct their own foreign relations. There are Dominion Parliaments which are opposing any idea of their dominions being forced into war without their consent. That is the position so far as the dominions are concerned. In India, on the other hand, we have no control whatever over the army policy or over foreign relations, and I do not think it is proposed by His Majesty's Government to confer these powers on the future Government of India. Therefore, in the case of self-governing dominions, there is a significance, there is a meaning in their officers being called dominion officers, but in our case it is the British policy that governs the army, the strength of the army, the expenditure on the army and the regulation of foreign relations. The Indian army is really a part of the British army controlled by the British Parliament....

Mr. B. Das : Quite so.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Therefore, I should like to know from the Government where was the necessity for calling our officers of the future Indian commissioned officers instead of continuing to call them King's commissioned officers. If we had the same form of self-government as the self-governing dominions have, and for which we have been clamouring for years together, then one could understand that there was substance in the Bill which has been now put forward. It is all very well to go before the world and say that we Indians have got an Indian army, that we have got Indian commissioned officers and so forth, but what does it really come to? Is it an Indian army because the rank and file, that is, the other ranks, as they are called, are Indians? The whole army policy is controlled by the British Parliament. But does not that make all the difference, the fact that the army policy is controlled by the British Parliament, while, on the other hand, the case is just the reverse in the dominions. I do say, so far as I can see at present, unless the Honourable Member is able to persuade us that there is some substantial ground for making this distinction, for creating this new name, which is not, after all, a very happy name,—there is no reason why should we not continue the name of the King's commissioned officers? Would it make any difference? That is the point which I want to be explicitly explained to us by the Honourable Member. Or is it merely a change of name, then why this change? Has it any significance at all? Has it a significance in favour of the future officers, or has it a significance adverse to their interests? If it is a mere name, I do submit that there is no necessity for changing the name. As a matter of fact, there is a feeling in India at present that the design of this Bill is, and the effect of the Bill will be, to reduce the status and position of the future Indian officers. We should like it to be made absolutely clear that that is not the design of the Bill and that it does not contain any provisions which can be worked to that effect. I know the Bill is couched in very general [Sir Abdur Rahim.] terms, but the Honourable Member must know what is the real object of this Bill.

So far as discipline of the army is concerned, we have not a word to say against the principles on which discipline is enforced in the British army, and we are prepared to accept it wholesale. Nobody has yet objected to it. I am a great admirer myself of the army discipline, and I should indeed like that the spirit of this discipline should spread even to our civil life. But that cannot be the entire object. There must be some other object, because there is no provision as regards the pay or privileges of the officers in this Bill, though, I dare say, power will be taken in order to make such alterations as the army authorities may think fit. Sir, Indian opinion, as voiced in the Military College Committee, was that the future recruits should enjoy absolutely the same rights and privileges, the same power of discipline over the men, the same sort of regulations as now prevail in the British army. That was the basis on which we worked on the Committee, and, so far as I am aware, not a word was said at the time that there was going to be any change or alteration made even in the pay of the future recruits. If the Indian Legislature want to reduce the pay, undoubtedly they will do so in the interests of India itself. We know the Indian finances—I speak in the presence of the new Finance Member—are not in a very flourishing condition. I do hope parenthetically that he will be fortunate enough to give us a better budget than we have been used to for several years past, but whatever may be the nature of the next budget, there can be no doubt that India, in the opinion of all Indian public men that I know of, finds herself very much handicapped in meeting the heavy military expenditure of this country. Therefore I fully recognise and realise that if we could reduce that expenditure, we should certainly do so. But we should like to know beforehand what is in the contemplation of the Government, what will be the status and privileges and salaries of the British officers who will be serving in the same regiment, in the same battalion, what will be the prospects of promotion of the Indian officers of the future vis-a-vis the British officers of the Indian army. Will this Bill give power to Government in any way or to the military authorities by any executive order to make any alteration in that respect? These are very important matters. This House is well aware that Indian public opinion lays very great stress on the question not only of military expenditure but of the Indianisation of the army. We want to be self-contained and self-sufficing with reference to our defence, and we want our defence expenditure to be regulated and controlled according to the actual necessities, and not fancied contingencies. At the Round Table Conferences and before the Joint Parliamentary Committee the Indian delegates strongly advocated that a time limit should be laid down by which the defence of India would be made a responsibility of the Indian Legislature and the Indian Legislature alone. So far as that is concerned, I know that my Honourable friend, the Army Secretary, will say that this Bill has nothing to do with that. I know that that is not the scope of this Bill, but it has an indirect bearing. We want to know why there should be any alteration in even the designations of the officers unless we are within sight of being responsible for the defence of the country. We do not want merely names. It may be a very good thing to put forward before the world that there is an Indian army with Indian commissioned officers, and, therefore,

India has been given the same status as the self-governing dominions. But that is not the fact. India is not being given, and I do not see when it is going to be given, the status of a self-governing dominion within any near future.

So far as the present Bill is concerned, I do not oppose the motion for reference to a Select Committee. It is going to the Select Committee, but we should like to know, before we are going to give a final decision even on this point, why this Bill has been introduced now, what are the circumstances which have made it necessary that this Bill should be brought forward before the Legislature and an Act must be passed like this amending the Indian Army Act. If we are satisfied that this Bill only wishes to place in the hands of the Indian Legislature the question of the discipline of the Indian army of the future—if that is the real scope of the Bill, I do not think that there will be any dissentient voice. But we are not yet satisfied on that point and it will be for the Honourable Member to explain on behalf of Government whether that is the whole scope of the Bill, and at the same time I do hope he will explain to us what are the exact difficulties that have arisen in the present state of the law which have to be met. So far as I am aware and so far as we have heard from the Government from time to time, I do not think any sort of difficulties have arisen with respect to the Indian commissioned officers, and I believe these officers are acquitting themselves well to the satisfaction of the army authorities.

Now, Sir, as regards the Viceroy's commissioned officers, that is another point on which there was a difference of opinion in the Military College Committee. It was strongly urged by some of us that the Viceroy's commissioned officers served a very useful purpose and that was strongly evidenced by the fact that it was not intended to do away with the Viceroy's commissioned officers so long as there were British officers in the Indian army. But it was definitely proposed by the military authorities that when Indian officers are recruited in India with a view to Indianization, at present of one Division, then in that case it would be superfluous to retain the Viceroy's commissioned officers. In that connection I should like to ask my Honourable friend whether the new scheme will not be indeed more expensive than the present arrangements under which the cost of the Viceroy's commissioned officers is much less than that of the King's commissioned officers, both Indian and, still less, of British. Perhaps the Honourable Member will explain to us whether the proposed scheme of doing away with the Viceroy's commissioned officers will not entail a larger number of King's commissioned officers, or Indian commissioned officers as they will be called in the future, and, therefore, a much larger expenditure will be involved. What, Sir, is the justification for it? I remember it was cited to us that neither in Britain nor in any continental army were there these two classes of officers. That is so. I accept that as a fact as it is stated by the military authorities, but even then, things have been going on very well indeed under the present arrangements.

Then I should like to ask where is the necessity for altering that arrangement so as to increase considerably the cost of the Indian army? Sir, that is a question also which has to be answered by the Honourable the Army Secretary. I should like, therefore, my Honourable friend to explain to us in as clear a language as possible what is the present scope of this Bill, what will be its effect on the future recruits vis-a-vis the British officers, who, under the present definition, will include also the King's Indian commissioned officers. Sir, if there is not going to be any difference of substance, then I do submit that it is extremely embarrassing—and not only embarrassing to the public, but I think it will be extremely embarrassing to the officers themselves to have so many classes of officers at the same time. There will be British officers of British origin, there will be British officers of Indian origin, there will be Indian King's commissioned officers, there will be the Viceroy's commissioned officers, apart from the non-commissioned officers. Now, I ask, is that desirable? It may be said that this is purely a military matter, but why have so many nomenclatures and so many distinctions? Indian opinion, as the Honourable Member must be aware, is extremely sensitive, and naturally so under the present conditions, as regards any distinction being drawn between officers of Indian and British origin serving in the same regiment or even in the same office in a civil Department, and I do think it is a wrong policy on the part of the Government to go on multiplying classifications and nomenclatures unless the Government have something substantial and distinct in view. It may be said that Indians by nature are very suspicious and sensitive. Let it be so. Why not take that fact into consideration? Why create all sorts of further difficulties when there is no necessity?

Now, take, for instance, this fact. There will be not only a distinction between Indian commissioned officers and British commissioned officers of British origin, but there will be a distinction between Indian commissioned officers and the Indian officers holding the King's Commission. Now, that is not going to ensure the smooth working of the army. Remember that in the army it is absolutely essential that there should be absolute discipline and contentment. It would be a disaster if there should be any sort of feeling created in the officer personnel of the Indian army or rather one class of officer personnel that in some way or other they are not on the same footing as the other officers. Surely, Colonel Lumby ought to be the first man to realise that as vividly as anyone else. Is that desirable? We know in the civil Departments how much heart-burning is there over any distinctions that are made between two officers discharging similar duties on the ground that one officer is recruited from overseas and the other officer is recruited in India. Colonel Lumby must have heard of Lee concessions. He must know, because they have also been extended to the army. He should know what considerable bad feeling has arisen owing to the Lee concessions both because they entail a very heavy expenditure indeed and also because they create a distinction between two officers engaged in performing the same duties from day to day. Now, it will not be merely in name that the distinction is going to be created, for the Honourable Member has told us in so many words that there is going to be reduction in salary and other privileges also. I should ask him and the Government seriously to consider whether that is a desirable step to take now. Sir, I had been a member of one important Public Service Commission which for three years collected evidence from the officers of Government as well as from the public, and nothing impressed us more than the undesirability of drawing distinctions among the same class of officers unless it can be shown that one class of officer is discharging duties of a different order from another class of officers. Sir, if the result of this Bill in the long run be that power will be taken in order to affect the salary and the privileges of the future recruits without the full consent of this Legislature as representing the public, then I do say that it will be adding another trouble to the troubles that are already there.

I do not wish to take any more of the time of the House, because, if the explanation that we expect from the Honourable Member is given to us and is found satisfactory, we shall go to the Select Committee and there we shall have full opportunity of discussing all the details, but we do want at this stage to know very clearly what the exact scope and effect of this Bill is going to be. If the Honourable Member is able to satisfy us that there will not be any change of the nature about which I have expressed an apprehension, then in that case there will be no difficulty whatever. In the course of his speech he suggested—I do not think he meant to convey it—that this Act is likely to place us in the position of being master of our defence policy. I do not think he meant that.

Mr. B. Das : He did not mean it.

Sir Abdur Rahim : I know he did not mean it. If that were so, we should have hailed the advent of the Honourable Member in this Assembly with acclamation which no other Honourable Member has yet received. But I know the policy does not lie with him, nay it does not lie even with his Government. His Government are to carry on the dictates of the Whitehall. We know that fully well. We know from our day to day experience that the Government of India are not the masters of the situation. They are a mere agent of the Secretary of State who, in army matters, is to be guided by the Army Council and by the policy of the British Government. Sir, I do not think that this Bill will in any way take us one step further than where we are at present so far as the control of the army is concerned. It may be a mere change of name, though I am not clear about it. I have suggested that it might create further difficulties. If it be a mere change of name, even that is not desirable. But if it is going to create any distinctions of a substantial character in the privileges of different classes of officers, I am sure, this side of the House will not give its support to the measure.

Mr. B. Das : Sir, in a way it is but appropriate that our old friend, Colonel Lumby, should pilot this measure on the floor of this House. Let me take this opportunity to join hands with Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad to congratulate him on his able maiden speech. To some of the old Members of the House Colonel Lumby is not a stranger. We met him in the Skeen Committee and we also met him, as the Leader of the Opposition pointed out, in the Indian Military College Committee and in other Committees. We have found that he has a heart of gold and a heart which is full of sympathy, but, Sir, as Army Secretary he is helpless. He is utterly helpless, because, not only the Army Secretary, but also the Government of India are in the grip of the vice of the British War Office which is grinding the Government of India and which is committing India into too excessive expenditure for the imperialist policy of Great Britain, not only in Asia, but all over the world. If our gallant friend, Colonel Lumby, therefore, is unable to give a satisfactory answer to those very pertinent questions that the Leader of the Opposition has addressed him, we will excuse him, because he is entirely helpless. He is under the dictates of his master, the British

[Mr. B. Das.]

War Office. Sir, as one who has studied behind the scenes, I mean from the floor of this House, the doings of the Round Table Conferences and the Joint Select Committee.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : This House is not behind the scenes !

Mr. B. Das : Behind the scenes of the Round Table Conferences and also the Joint Select Committee, and if I have read aright that paper known as the White Paper which is dubbed as the Black Paper for India, the army portfolio is going to be a completely reserved subject. It will be under an Army Councillor. Some people gossip—I have seen it in the newspaper gossip—that Indians are also considered fit to be an Army Councillor provided they are benighted Knights and provided also they are harmless and sufficiently safe, so that without having any power of voting in the future Federal Assembly he will come and read his sermon and his homily to the elected representatives of the Assembly. I must not forget that these representatives to Federal Assembly will no longer be elected. Already, it is in the air that the Federal Assembly will have indirect election. So, Sir, what is the hurry to have this Bill ? Why not wait for another two or three years ? Let the new Constitution Act come. Let us see what is the position of the army under the new Constitution.

My Honourable friend, Colonel Lumby, has tinkered with the Skeen Committee report and with the other Committees' reports regarding the policy of Indianisation. I know my Honourable friend, Captain Sher Muhammad Khan, is very anxious to speak and he will talk of the Indianisation of the eight units. He will talk of many things on Indianisation, but I wish that he will give us the figures as regards the question that was put by the Leader of the Opposition, and he will tell us when the Indian army will be completely Indianised. I am not talking of the British section of the army, I am talking of the Indian section of the army. There was a wave of Indianisation all round. The Simon Commission report, and the Government of India Despatches are now dead letters. But a scheme was given for Indianisation by one Member of the Executive Council. I do not know if he is present, because all old friends are going away, they are translated elsewhere or they retire. In the Government of India Despatch, paragraph 107, it is said :

"A scheme contingent on exclusion of defence:—In this connection one of our number wishes to draw attention to a scheme which in his view would deserve careful consideration, if it were found possible in agreement with Indian opinion to place the administration of the army and the defence of India in the hands of the Governor General."

Sir, it went on to suggest to have an Indian army under the Governor General in Council, to Indianise the army completely and by and by to do away with the British army in India. If that was not acceptable to the majority of the Executive Council, then, in 1930, when this Despatch was sent out, how could it be acceptable today to the die-hard British Government which has gone back on its pledges not once, not twice, but hundred times. How could that scheme, put forward by the Indian Executive Councillor, be acceptable to the British now, and here I pay my tribute to that Executive Councillor, whoever he is, I pay him my tribute as well as the tribute of the Indian nation for conceiving and boldly putting forward that scheme before his colleagues in the Governor General's Executive Council.

As I was saying, what was the hurry for this ? What will happen ? The Army Secretary's only plea is, what would be the position of these few students who will come out of the Indian Sandhurst ? They will be still army officers. If they do not get this Indian Commission, they will get the King's Commission. As I read the other day, the Statesman was trying to propound that riddle. The Statesman suggested that if the Assembly throws out this Bill, then naturally these officers will hold King's Commission. I do not mind their holding the King's Commission or any other Commission. But, at this stage, I would have expected the Army Department to have brought forward this Bill two or three years ago. They did not do so. At this stage, we know that the whole question of the army is on the anvil and we also know that we are going to get nothing. The British army has completely entrenched itself in India. This view I have expressed on the floor of the House. While Britain talks of peace in Europe and speaks of disarmament in Europe, Britain creates in India a huge army, so that Britain could fight Japan and fight the menace to Australia and to other dominions that defy Britain herself and do not spend any money on the army. The Indian army which conquered China and which helped Britain to conquer Egypt will go to fight for Australia, although Australia is a white man's country and Indians are banned from entering that country. I do not find my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, here to contradict me that Indians have got certain rights in Australia. That is the British policy and those of us who have read the White Paper line by line, those of us who have understood the implications of the White Paper know it for certain that the Indian army, that an army under the Viceroy or the Government of India is a myth and an impossibility. If that is so, then I do not care, I do not want this Indianisation of these small units, providing a few jobs to a few of the old officers' sons or the sons of non-commissioned officers or other Government officers. What is the result ? Will Colonel Lumby, when he replies, tell us how many of these Indian Lieutenants and Captains have been cashiered, have been disqualified ? Do they receive equal consideration from the European officers in the army ? Do they receive equal pardon from the Army officers ? How many of them have been shunted off, as officers looking after the Cantonments ? How many Indian army officers are cantonment officers ? That shows that they want to prove that the Indian has no army mentality. They want to prove that the Indian is unfit to command armies. My Honourable friend Captain Sher Muhammad Khan might have commanded a regiment. I do not know what he did. But when it comes to the brass tack and when it comes that an Indian like Captain Sher Muhammad Khan should lead an army, that British officers should serve under him, they say, "no, that should not happen". If that be the case, I do not want this Bill. I would like to wait, I would like to see the whole picture, the complete picture that our Round Tablers have brought to us from England. I find very few of them present here, even our friend, Mr. Ghuznavi, is not here at the present moment. To Britishers, they would leave all the bigger issue ; they never thought of the huge army expenditure that is sucking India's life blood like an octopus. I am always sceptical, and at this moment also I am sceptical. The present Army Secretary and his predecessor, knowing as they did that the Capitulation Tribunal was going to enquire into the whole question, yet had blocked the House from discussing that point. The previous Army Secretary said, no, it was not going to enquire into the bigger question of India's defence problem, but yet when the report came out, we found that it dealt with the whole subject. Sir, I am divulging no secret of the Public Accounts Committee when I say that in that Committee there was a certain document from the Home Auditor which said that the net result of the Capitation Tribunal award was that India should not pay a penny to England and that England will not pay a penny to India and the former Finance Member on the floor of the House felt elated to talk to us that he got a windfall of Rupees two crores which will tide over his difficulty. Of course it has tided over his difficulty momentarily. He has left the shores of India and, if any further difficulty comes in, it is the new Finance Member that has to face the payment to England on the heavy capitation charges and other home charges. Neither the Finance Member nor the Army Secretary ever took this side into their confidence and told us that the net result of the British War office award was zero. India gains not a pie; India pays on for the arbitrary charges of England for maintaining a huge British army in India,—the capitation charges for British infantry and the Royal Air Force balance the War office contribution of a million and four thousand pounds. Is it not a shame, Sir? Where is the give and take policy in this House from the side of Government to this side of the House? We moved two adjournment motions on the Capitation Tribunal. The Finance Member made speeches and asked us to demand for more contribution from England, but the whole story was not given out. It is for the Opposition to find out the real position. So, I am not sanguine that even the present Army Secretary who is so friendly will impart the secrets of the War office or the Army Council, and rightly, therefore, has the Leader of the Opposition asked him the main question as to what is behind it all. There is something behind it. This camouflage will not do, this smoke screen will not do. No longer will a few non-commissioned officers' sons trained at an Indian Sandhurst or a London Sandhurst satisfy India. India wants to know where she stands. And we will not know it until the new Constitution Bill is passed, until the Joint Committee report comes out, trickled down and whittled down by the die-hards in England like the Churchills and the Rothermeres. Until that is done, then, in spite of assurances, in spite of fond hopes from this side, we will not believe that the people of India, the elected representatives of India in the future Legislature, will have any control over the army. So, what do we care for a few army officers which, as the Leader of the Opposition pointed out, number only 163? And he put the question, when it will be Indianised? I said, two hundred years. Not even in two hundred years, because the human span of life is only 30 years; and, through the merciless cashiering policy of military Generals and British officers, most of these officers will be decapitated from service before they become Captains.

Sir, the Army Secretary said that if this Bill was not passed here, it would be an Act of the House of Commons. I will prefer that it should be an Act of the House of Commons. Then, all the sins of omission and commission will be on England. We say and we maintain that Britain is maintaining an impressed army here. So we are not going to allow any legislation on the army and navy to be passed on the floor of this House, let it be legislated in the House of Commons. Even under the new Constitution Bill, as it is contemplated,—I am subject to correction by my new friend, the Honourable the Law Member,—80 per cent. of the finance will be controlled by the Financial Adviser and not the elected Financial Minister in this House. So, 80 per cent. of the finance will be controlled by means of legislation in the British Parliament. So, why not let the whole army question be controlled by legislation in the House of Commons? That is my view and, for that reason, I oppose this Bill. I oppose this Bill and I believe that on that account the slow process of Indianisation will not be stopped. It will continue, but let the British Parliament legislate. Let it segregate these Indian officers to a different rank. And, as the Leader of the Opposition rightly pointed out, the dominions enjoy dominion status. Therefore, the dominion officers have a status of their own. In India the new Constitution Bill is bringing us nothing; it is perpetuating our slavery for another 50 or 100 years unless another great war begins or some revolution takes place in England whereby India gets her freedom and gets at least dominion status. If India does not get dominion status, what is the use of this puny, tiny legislation, making a few Indian boys think they are commissioned officers of the Government of India? And what is this Government of India? (Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar: "You, Mr. Das.") The Government of India I am talking of is a slave of the British Government. If I live up to that age, when I become a member of the Dominion Government of India, then we will not be slaves of the British Government. We will be equals of the British Government and of all the Dominion Governments. That kind of Government I contemplate, and until that Government comes, this kind of Bill is trash and useless, and, on these grounds, I oppose the Bill.

Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar (Nominated Non-Official): Sir, I join my Honourable friends, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad and Mr. Das, in congratulating the Army Secretary on so ably explaining the objects of the Bill.

Before I deal with the objects and the necessity of the Bill, I should not forget to say a few words about my Honourable friend, Mr. Das. My Honourable friend, Mr. Das's speech is a blank shell to me as we fire blank shells in manœuvres without any result. I do not think my Honourable friend has read the Bill. He has talked of the policy of the army, but I do not believe that my friend has given any attention to the object and the necessity of the measure. As far as I understand, the necessity of the Bill is, that, within a short time, the first batch of the Indian army cadets will come out of the Indian Military College and their designation will be Indian commissioned officers. In this Indian Army Act, there is no word as Indian commissioned officers. This deals only with British officers, Indian officers, warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men. So we must have a provision, before the first batch comes out from the Indian Military College, to bring them under the Indian Army Act.

Sir Abdur Rahim: Why should they not get the King's Commission?

Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar: I am coming to explain that. There are two kinds of Commissions at present in the army. King's commissioned officers and Indian officers with the Viceroy's Commission. The King's commissioned officers are of two kinds, Indians holding King's Commissions and Englishmen holding King's Commissions in the Indian army. Any person holding a Commission in His Majesty's forces,—does not matter whether he is an Indian, Canadian, New Zealander or English,—is a British officer. So we have two kinds of officers in the Indian army, British officers and Indian officers with the Viceroy's Commission. Now, the object of the Bill is that we want to bring the Indian commissioned officers who are coming out from the Indian Military College under the Indian Army Act. We must have a definite provision for that purpose, and that is the object and necessity of the Bill. The British officers and Indian officers are already under the Indian Army Act, and these officers from the Indian Military College have to be brought under that Act. My friend, Mr. B. Das, says that we should wait till the new Constitution comes. It will take I do not know how many years, but the first batch is coming out next year from Dehra Dun, and we have to bring them under the Indian Army Act. That is why this Bill has been introduced.

My Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, asked, why should we not make the same rules and regulations for the Indian army as for the dominion army?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I said for the British army. I am told the Canadian army rules are the same.

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : I only referred to the form of the Commission which is the same as that held by the officers of the Canadian permanent forces. I did not refer to the rules.

Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar : That was what the Honourable the Army Secretary meant, that the form of the Commission is just like the form of the Canadian Army Commission. The Canadian Army Commission, as I understand, is given by the Governor-General of Canada on behalf of the King-Emperor and signed by him. In the same way, these Commissions to be given to the Indian commissioned officers will be given by the Governor General in India on behalf of the King. That is what the Honourable the Army Secretary meant, that the form of the Commission is just the same as the Canadian Army or the New Zealander or Australian. I understood the fear of my Honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, Sir Abdur Rahim, to be this : that now that the total strength of active officers is 3,200 and we are only giving 60 Commissions annually, how are we going to fill the wastage?

Sir Abdur Rahim : I said the total number of Indian officers holding the King's Commission is about 161. What was the number recruited last year and this year? I think it was about 23.

Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar : I do not believe the Government will stick to this 60. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief said in the Indian Military College Committee :

"Our first task is to create a steady flow of fine young officers. Once that is established, we can then proceed to expand as much as you like. Up to that point, however, I see no alternative to developing Indianization within a definite field. Accordingly we must fix our intake to start with, and trust to increasing that figure as soon as we are assured that a regular supply of candidates of the requisite qualifications is forthcoming, and that the class of candidate we are getting is of the right type."

Sir Abdur Rahim : What is the actual number that has been recruited from Dehra Dun so far?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : None yet : the first batch is going to pass out at the end of this or the beginning of next year ; it is for that reason that this Bill has been brought forward.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Has not a certain number passed out of Dehra Dun?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : Not from the Indian Military Academy.

Sir Abdur Rahim : I was told about 23.

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : No, no.

Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar : At present the total strength of officers on active list is 3,200. Under the new scheme, the Indian commissioned officers coming from Dehra Dun will replace Viceroy's commissioned officers in Indianised units. At present the total strength of British officers and Indian officers is 13 and 19, respectively, in each unit of cavalry or infantry. When these Indian officers are completely replaced by the Indian commissioned officers from Dehra Dun, the total strength of officers in a unit will be about 28, as in the British army. As far as I understand, the new designation is introduced to differentiate between Viceroy's commissioned officers and British officers ; and, as long as the Viceroy's commissioned officers and British officers exist in the army, we must have this new designation to bring them under the Indian Army Act, because now, as the Commission will be given by the Governor General in Council on behalf of the King, these officers are not entitled to be called British officers ; there will be no difference, simply bringing in the word Indian commissioned officers to distinguish them from the others. There will be no difference either in the power or the status or dignity of these Indian commissioned officers. I questioned the Honourable the Army Secretary privately and asked him : suppose in one Brigade there is a British unit and an Indian unit and an Indianised unit and there are Indian officers coming out of Dehra Dun called Indian commissioned officers ; if he is a senior, will he command the whole Brigade and have the same power of command? Then my friend told me that there will be no difference at all between Indian commissioned officers and King's commissioned officers in status, power and dignity.....

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar (East Punjab : Sikh) : They will introduce the 8 unit scheme, so that Indians will never have Britishers under them.

Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar : But when the units are combined, there will be no difference at all. As regards Indianisation of the army, there is no doubt that when these Viceroy's commissioned officers are replaced by the Indian commissioned officers, then the total strength of one unit would be increased and there will be about 6,000 officers altogether. Then we will have to increase the number—we cannot stick to this figure of 60. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief himself has said this in his first note that when the experiment proves successful, the number can be increased : the present number will not suffice to fill the gap of the wastage caused when we have 6,000 officers.

[Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar.]

Therefore, I am sure that when the time comes, the number of Commissions will have to be increased if we are to replace the British officers.

As regards the Viceroy's commissioned officers, I quite agree with my Honourable friend, Sir Abdur Rahim. I opposed and protested against the disappearance of these officers; they have served the Indian army for a century and have served well and ably during the Great War even when they were not given a chance to command. In the old days, the highest ambition of an Indian sepoy was to be a Subedar-Major or Risaldar-Major; but, under the new scheme, when the Viceroy's Commission disappears, the ambition of the new educated recruit will be to become a Commander-in-Chief: he can become one if he obtained all the required certificates after passing the course at Dehra Dun; he can rise to the highest post if he is able to pass the Staff College. If the Viceroy's Commission disappears and these boys get this education and this privilege of joining the academy at Dehra Dun, they can rise to the highest rank.....

Mr. B. Das : Can he become the Commander-in-Chief and command the British officers or the British regiments in India?

Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar : When he is Commander-in-Chief, he will command every unit, no matter what nationality it is.

The other question is about the complete Indianisation of the army: that question was discussed in the Round Table Conference also: I quite agree with my friends who are anxious to rapidly Indianise the army: a Resolution was moved in Delhi and it was carried: I have every sympathy with Indianisation; but, at the same time, we should not lose efficiency: and, if this one Division scheme is successful, then the number of Commissions will be increased and we will get more rapid Indianisation as soon as possible. With these few words, I support the motion that the Bill should go to Select Committee.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav (Bombay Central Division: Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to support the motion of the Honourable the Army Secretary that this Bill be sent to a Select Committee. But, at the same time, I must say that I am not still convinced of the necessity of this Bill.

An Honourable Member : Then why support the motion? (Laughter.)

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : At this time the reason given is that a new batch of cadets from the Indian Academy at Dehra Dun will come out some time next year. But I do not see why a special nomenclature should be invented for them. The cadets that came out of Sandhurst are now classed as British officers, because they are holding the King's Commission. The officers that will come out of the Indian Academy are also going to hold His Majesty's Commission. I am reading from clause 5 (b) (2) where it says:

"(2) 'Indian commissioned officer' means a person commissioned, gazetted or in pay as an officer holding His Majesty's Commission in the Indian Land Forces, and includes, in relation to a person subject to this Act when serving under such conditions as may be prescribed, a person holding a Commission in the Indian Air Force."

Now, Sir, if this officer, who is coming out of Dehra Dun, is to hold a King's Commission, I do not see any special reason as to why he should be called an Indian commissioned officer and why there should be a difference in the commissions of the persons who come out of Dehra Dun and those who come out of Sandhurst or Woolwich. Sir, I want to be convinced of the necessity for the change in nomenclature. If there is necessity for the change in nomenclature, then, of course, the amendment of the Bill will be justified. We are assured by the Honourable the Army Secretary that, under the Indianization scheme, as time goes on, the number of the British officers will be reduced and ultimately they will disappear, and also under the new scheme adopted by the army as regards the Indianized units the Viceroy's commissioned officers will diminish gradually and ultimately they will disappear. Much has been said against this policy of doing away with the Viceroy's commissioned officers. My friend, the Leader of the Opposition, has given his reasons, and I entirely agree with them. The Indian army is a very expensive machinery, and this side of the House has been calling upon Government to reduce the army expenditure. I understand that under the new scheme the officers, who will come out of the Indian Academy, will receive a smaller salary than the British officers coming out of Sandhurst. As a measure of economy, I shall not say anything against it, but I think this differentiation in pay will spell a lower status and a lower dignity, and, therefore, I do not support the new scheme of reduced salaries. British officers will receive a higher salary than the Indian officers serving in the same unit, and perhaps the Indian officer may be senior to a British officer; but still if he is not to receive the same salary, the differentiation will be very much felt by the Indian officers. And, Sir, it is a well known fact that service in the army at least during the first few years is not remunerative and that the army officers are generally indebted to the money-lenders in military stations. If their salary is still reduced further, how can the new officers maintain their dignity and their status? If they do not keep up the same position, the inferiority complex will come into operation and the Indian officers will be held in contempt by their colleagues who come out of Sandhurst or Woolwich. That is also another reason why the new scheme should not be supported.

Then, Sir, if the reduction in the salary of the Indian officer is necessary in the interests of economy, why add expenditure by substituting the Indian commissioned officer for the Viceroy's commissioned officer? That also will entail very heavy expenditure, and ultimately it will be found that the army expenditure will increase enormously and that will place a heavier burden on the revenues of India.

Then, Sir, there is another point in doing away with the Viceroy's commissioned officers. At present each Indian regiment is provided with 12 British officers, that is, officers who have passed out of Sandhurst. Under the new scheme, 28 officers will be required, and so the rate of Indianisation will be retarded by two and one-third times. If Indianization would have taken place within a number of years, now it will take 2-1/3 years for it. That is an additional burden, that is an additional impediment thrown in the path of Indianization. Sir, the army discipline must be maintained. The army is a very necessary thing, and India is always proud of her army. The Indian army has distinguished itself not only in India, but also in foreign countries, and I know that Indian officers have done their best to maintain the credit of their country and add to the lustre of her fame. Indian officers will continue to do the same. We have now only 60 admissions to the Indian Military Academy, but normally wastage is between 120 and 180. According to the estimate of some it is about 180, while others estimate it at 120. But when the Viceroy's Commission is done away with, the wastage will still be greater, and I think it will be about 240. With the yearly wastage of 240, only 60 cadets will come out of the College every year. That is a very small number, and, therefore, there is necessity for at least quadrupling the number. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief has promised to look into this matter later. He wants to see the actual working of the Indian cadets who have come out of Sandhurst; when they actually attain the status of company commanders, then he will see whether the Indianization scheme is going to succeed or not, and only then he is going to consider the question of increasing the number of admissions to the Military Academy. I hope, Sir, that time will soon come and that the Military Academy will be enlarged.

Now, Sir, this Amending Bill seeks to add to the category of officers in section 7 of the original Bill. I have already stated that I do not see any necessity to add another category. At the time when the Bill was passed in 1911, the Indian officer was known only as the Viceroy's commissioned officer, but now another category of officer is sought to be added to it, and in process of time it is intended that the Viceroy's commissioned officer only will disappear. I do not like this contingency of the disappearance of the Viceroy's Commission, and I do hope that, in the interests of efficiency and economy, the Army Department will see the necessity of keeping it. At present they propose to Indianise only one Division. In other Divisions the Viceroy's commissioned officers will remain and there the new men from the Academy will be posted also. In that case there will be two categories of Indian officers,—the Indian officers from the Military Academy and the Indian officers who are now known as Viceroy's commissioned officers. So, in the non-Indianised units these two officers will work side by side, and if that does not come in the way of efficiency—and there is no reason why it should come in the way of efficiency, because we have seen that the Viceroy's commissioned officers have discharged their duties very creditably on the field of battle and also in service in peace time,—so, if in the non-Indianised units the presence of the Viceroy's commissioned officer does not come in the way of military discipline and efficiency, there is no reason to say that in the Indianised units the number of Viceroy's commissioned officers should gradually dwindle down until they disappear altogether. So I think the Army authorities should reconsider the question, and I would ask them to retain the services of the Viceroy's commissioned officers. I do not like the idea that the new officers that will be trained in India should have a lower status than their brethren who come out from the British Sandhurst or Woolwich. It is necessary for the good discipline of the army that there should be no class distinction. Class distinction should be abolished altogether and all should be on a footing of equality. At the same time I must raise a voice of protest against the insinuations of my Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das, that the army officers are generally recruited from the sons of commissioned officers and non-commissioned officers. It is not so. 30 admissions are made every year to the Military Academy from the young men who offer themselves from the various colleges. These men have generally no previous connection with the army, and, in this way at least half the strength of the army will be from those who are generally not previously connected with the army. Therefore, there is no reason to say that the army is a preserve kept for the sons of men who are actually serving in the army. The cadets that are taken directly on the results of a competitive examination are treated in the same way as the cadets who are taken from the ranks, and although those who are taken from the ranks have got a good deal of previous training, the period of training at the Military Academy now has been kept the same, that is 2½ years I think. I may say that the cadets from the army who have actually served in the ranks for some years are not treated as well as those who have come up on the results of a competitive examination; the latter are treated actually better. So, those who have not got any military traditions behind them have not got any grievance at all and their advocates, I think, should take all these things into consideration and abstain from making irresponsible statements.

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : If in my speech this morning I gave the impression that this Bill dealt with the policy of army administration, I must apologise to the House. What I wished to convey was that it dealt wholly and solely with discipline. The Indian Army Act is the Act which at present governs the discipline of the Viceroy's commissioned officers, warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and other ranks of the Indian army, and now it is proposed to include the new type of officer coming out of the Dehra Dun Academy in the Act as well. The first batch of these Indian commissioned officers will be leaving Dehra Dun at the end of the year, and it is essential that some arrangement should be made for their status and discipline. That is the reason why this Bill has been brought forward now and why we do not consider that it can be kept over until the new Constitution, as suggested by my Honourable friend, Mr. Das, comes.

As regards the Indian commissioned officer, it was said by the Leader of the Opposition that everything in connection with these officers had been done secretly and that the House had not been taken into the Government's confidence. As far as I know, all proposals connected with the Indian commissioned officer have been made known from time to time in this House, first of all, by Field Marshal Sir William Birdwood in 1928 and at various times since then by the Army Secretary in his Budget speeches. At the time of the Indian Military College Committee, His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief certainly made a statement to the Committee as regards the reduction in pay; and a press communiqué was also issued announcing this fact. It has always been known to all the cadets who have now been for two years at the Academy. But the point that I want to make is that, though there will be this reduction in pay to bring the Indian commissioned officer on to an Indian scale of pay instead of the British scale of pay drawn by the Indian officers trained at Sandhurst, there is every intention that otherwise his powers and privileges, and certainly his powers and privileges under this Act shall be the same as those of the British officers of the Indian army with whom he will be serving.

[Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby.]

The rate of pay which it is proposed to give the Indian commissioned officers is based, like the rate of pay that is now being given to the officers of the Indian Air Force, on the pay that is drawn by the British service officer serving in England. That seems to me to be a reasonable arrangement. Then, again, the Indian commissioned officer is to have different leave terms to the British officer. That, again, seems to be a reasonable arrangement; for he has not ordinarily got to return some thousands of miles to his home when he goes on leave and there is no point in giving him leave concessions which, for an officer living in his own country, would be over-generous. The fact that the Indian commissioned officer will thus be in certain respects on a different footing to the British officer, particularly in the matter of pay, is one of the reasons why he is being given the separate title of Indian commissioned officer. Another reason is that he and the officer of the Indian Air Force were born together in the mind of the Government; and it is Government's desire that they should both be on the same footing. It seems much more logical to insist that the officer of the Indian Air Force and the Indian commissioned officer of the Indian army should be on the same footing in all respects than that there should be an exact similarity between the British officer of the Indian army and the Indian commissioned officer.

Then, as regards my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad's, question as to whether the rules which it is proposed to make under this Act for the Indian commissioned officer are the same as those which govern the British officer who gets his commission after training at Sandhurst or Woolwich, I can assure you that the various clauses in the Bill which deal with matters such as right of appeal, penal deductions, punishments and the like, are based on the corresponding clauses of the Army Act, and, therefore, it may be said that the British officer, though he is under the Army Act, and the Indian commissioned officer, will, to all intents and purposes, be governed by exactly the same rules. I am afraid I know nothing about the detailed rules by which the officers of the Canadian forces are governed. The only thing I know is that the form of Commission which they hold is almost word for word the same as the Commission which is being given to the Indian commissioned officer and which has already been given to the officers of the Indian Air Force.

There is another point with regard to the proposal to institute this separate category of officers. If the officers coming out from Dehra Dun were given the same type of King's Commission which has been given to the officers who came out of Sandhurst, the cost of a battalion or of a cavalry regiment of the Indian army would be no less than it is at present; and if it was proposed, as is the case, to adopt a homogeneous officer establishment for these units, the cost would be far greater than it is at present. Actually, the establishment, which is proposed for the future, with nothing but Indian commissioned officers will be cheaper than the present establishment consisting of British officers and Viceroy's commissioned officers.

With regard to the sad fact that it has been decided that the Viceroy's commissioned officer shall gradually disappear out of the Indian army, I would merely say that this decision was reached on grounds of efficiency as much as anything else, and I would add that everything possible is being done to provide the class who formerly could rise from the ranks to obtain the Viceroy's Commission with other openings in the army. As has already been stated this afternoon, their sons have allotted to them at the Indian Military Academy fifty per cent. of the vacancies, and in addition there will be in the new battalions and regiments of the Indian army a number of warrant officers who will have much higher status and a higher rate of pay than the warrant officer of the past has had. These appointments will give those of the rank and file, who cannot aspire to enter the Indian Military Academy, a chance of rising to positions in the army which, though not as high as the Viceroy's Commission, will not be very far behind.

I would refer now to the matters of policy which were raised originally by the Honourable the Leader of the Opposition. It is a fact that for the present the output from the Indian Military Academy will only be sixty a year. That output is based on the Division which, as was announced some years ago by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, it is proposed to Indianise as a start. In the same speech of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief to the Indian Military College Committee from which my Honourable friend, Captain Sher Muhammad Khan, quoted, His Excellency said that at the present time it was impossible to judge of the success of the experiment of Indianisation, but that he thought that probably in seven years' time it would be perfectly possible to judge. I think that statement was made in 1931. In any case the figure of sixty is no hard and fast figure. There is no reason why in time it should not be increased. The point I wish to make is that the time when it is increased and the extent to which it is increased will, as stated by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief when he opened the Indian Military Academy, depend in actual fact on the cadets who are now at the Academy and who will shortly be passing out of it, and on their successors. (Applause.)

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill further to amend the Indian Army Act, 1911, for certain purposes, be referred to a Select Committee, consisting of Sir Abdur Rahim, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi, Mr. B. V. Jadhav, Mr. Bhupat Singh, Rao Bahadur M. C. Rajah, Rai Sahib Badri Lal Rastogi, Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar, Mr. G. Morgan, Captain Sher Muhammad Khan Gakhar, Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan, Dr. Dalal, and the Mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN CARRIAGE BY AIR BILL.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the Bill to give effect in British India to a Convention for the unification of certain rules relating to international carriage by air be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. H. P. Mody, Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur, Rao Bahadur B. L. Patil, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Mr. K. P. Thampan, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Mr. N. N. Anklesaria, Mr. S. G. Jog, Sir Leslie Hudson, Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan, Mr. A. Raisman, Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan, and the Mover, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

[Sir Frank Noyce.]

Sir, there is, I think, very little I need say in support of this motion. As has been set out in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, the Bill has been framed to enable India to implement the provisions of an International Convention on the subject of carriage by air which was signed at Warsaw by certain Governments in October, 1929. India was not one of those Governments, and the Convention has not yet been signed on behalf of India; but its provisions have been carefully examined and we have found that they appear in all respects suitable to Indian conditions. It is, therefore, proposed to ratify the Convention, the provisions of which are, as will be seen, incorporated in the First Schedule to the Bill as soon as the Bill itself is passed. The Convention defines the liability of international air carriers vis-à-vis passengers and consignors and consignees of goods by air, the conditions which have to be fulfilled by the respective parties, the form of passenger tickets and consignment notes, and related matters. It applies only to international carriage by air, which is defined as carriage from the territory of one High Contracting Party to that of another, but, in certain conditions, carriage from one point to another within the territory of a single High Contracting Party is included. The House will see that by far the greater part of the Bill and its Schedules is devoted to the details of the conditions to be complied with, the form of tickets and consignment notes and such-like matters. It is, I think, unnecessary for me to weary the House with a detailed explanation of these matters. They were settled after examination, extending over several years, by a Committee of experts who had both legal and air-transport experience. This Committee (Comité International Technique d'Experts Juridiques Aériens) has for some time been engaged in the examination of questions of air law—a subject which has been found to contain many thorny problems. We who have not their wide knowledge and experience are not in a position to improve on their conclusions. There is one point to which I might perhaps direct the special attention of the House. The liability of air carriers is expressed in French gold francs at their last stabilised value. For the purpose of determining the compensation payable in a case brought before a Court in British India the sum will be converted into rupees at the current rate of exchange at the time judgment is passed. For example, the limit of liability in the case of death or injury of a passenger is Frs. 125,000 which is equivalent approximately to Rs. 22,000 today. A Protocol to the Convention provides that a Contracting State may at the time of accession make a declaration to the effect that the provisions of the Convention shall not apply to commercial operations carried out directly by the State. It is not proposed to make any such declaration on behalf of India, so that should the Government of India at any time operate a State air service and should that service engage in international carriage as defined in the Convention, then they would have the same obligations and secure the same protection as ordinary commercial operators.

I need not, in a House which has always shown special interest in air transport, dilate on its rapidly growing importance. It is not perhaps an exaggeration to say that new air services, both international and internal, are coming into operation in some part of the world every month. The merest glance at the map of the eastern hemisphere reveals one outstanding fact. India lies athwart every main route between the east and the west, with one exception, the trans-Siberian route; with that exception, no air service can be operated between Europe in the west and all the great countries of the east, China, Japan, Australia and the Dutch East Indies, without crossing India; and it is for that reason that it behoves us to set our house in order and to get our air laws on a satisfactory basis. A journey lasting only a day or two may take an air carrier across the territory of several States, and, in these circumstances, the desirability that the law governing contracts in relation to passengers and goods should be uniform requires no emphasis from me. There are already three international air services, the trans-India service operated in conjunction by Imperial Airways and Indian Trans-Continental Airways, the Royal Dutch Air Line and Air France, and the need for legislation has therefore become urgent. I should mention that the British and Indian companies operating the trans-India service have provisionally applied the conditions of the Warsaw Convention to their relations with passengers and consignors of goods, and that both France and Holland are signatories to the Convention. There is at present no specific law which governs the conditions of internal carriage by air in India, beyond the general law of contract and the law relating to carriers on land. Provision has therefore been made in the Bill giving powers to the Governor General in Council to make rules extending the conditions of the Convention, with such modifications and adaptations as may be necessary, to carriage by air within India. I think there can be no doubt of the advantage of applying a uniform system of law to regular air transport in India whether it be internal or international. I would only say in conclusion that, as this and the Bill in regard to which I shall be making a motion shortly deal with closely related subjects, it has been thought convenient that the same Select Committee should deal with both. The names I have mentioned will, therefore, also be put forward for the Select Committee on the other Bill which I am moving in regard to the control of the manufacture, possession, etc., of aircraft.

Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

“ That the Bill to give effect in British India to a Convention for the unification of certain rules relating to international carriage by air be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. H. P. Mody, Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur, Rao Bahadur B. L. Patil, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Mr. K. P. Thampan, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Mr. N. N. Anklesaria, Mr. S. G. Jog, Sir Leslie Hudson, Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan, Mr. A. Raisman, Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan and the Mover, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five.”

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I am sorry that I have to oppose this motion for Select Committee mainly because of the personnel. I find that by secret arrangement names are put in for Select Committees and at times certain Parties are shown a preference and other Parties are kept in oblivion. I have noticed that in the two previous Select Committee personnel, and, if I did not raise my voice at that time, it was because I was inquiring of the executive of my Party as to what was the reason behind it. I was told that I should not raise any objection now and in future more Members will be taken from my Party. I am not for that. I do record my protest and submit that two or three names at least should be added before I can accept the motion. I suggest, therefore, that to the personnel already suggested, the names of Mr. Jog.....

An Honourable Member : He is already on the Select Committee ! (Laughter.)

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : Then I suggest that the names of Mr. Sitakanta Mahapatra and Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar be added.

An Honourable Member : Also the name of Mr. Amar Nath Dutt.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : No, certainly not ; I am not for any Select Committee. If my suggestion is accepted by Government, I have no objection to the motion.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I can only say that, to the best of my knowledge and information, the usual procedure has been followed in this case. The Leaders of all Parties were consulted and the names were given to me as having been obtained from them.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The usual practice in the House is for the Member in charge of Government or some one representing him to get into touch with the Leaders or Secretaries of Parties and then give an agreed list of names for the Select Committee. Does the Chair understand the Honourable Member, Mr. Amar Nath Dutt, to say that his Party was not consulted ?

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : No, the matter was not put before my Party. Somebody went round and consulted one of the executive of the Party and suggested that we might not have two names or three names and might be satisfied with one only. Sir, this sort of dictation my Party will not accept.

Rai Bahadur Sir Satya Charan Mukherjee (Nominated Non-Official) : Sir, I approached Mr. Ranga Iyer, who is the Deputy Leader of the Party and I asked him to give me one name, because, according to the numerical strength of various Parties, only one member is usually taken from the Nationalist Party for every Select Committee. Just now I came to know that the number of that Party has gone up to 16, but so far as I knew, during the last Session, their number was 12 or 13. So I followed the usual practice and suggested to Mr. Jog and Mr. Ranga Iyer that they should give one name, but they did not object to it. That is how I got only one name from the Nationalist Party.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : In that case I propose that the other two names which I have already suggested be added to the names of the members of the Select Committee.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, apart from the controversy that Mr. Amar Nath Dutt has raised, as a personal reference has been made to me by the Deputy Whip, I believe, of the Government, Sir Satya Charan Mukherjee, whom I congratulate on his Knighthood, I rise to substantiate that he is absolutely correct in his reference in his statement about the arrangement.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Does the Honourable Member, Mr. Amar Nath Dutt, in the light of these facts, wish to make his proposal for additional names ?

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : I do propose.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : What are the names ?

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt : The names of Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar and Mr. Sitakanta Mahapatra.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore (Leader of the House) : I am afraid, Sir, the Government must oppose this proposal, because it is not in consonance with the practice which has been followed in the House, and, if we accept it, the proportion between the various Parties would be upset. For that reason and for no other, on behalf of Government, I must oppose this motion.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That the names of Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar and Mr. Sitakanta Mahapatra be added to the Select Committee.”

The motion was negatived.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The original question will now be open for discussion.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I had no mind to speak, but as nobody is rising, I have to intervene. This House has always honoured international conventions. As we have no nationalism, no national prestige, we should like to come through the backdoor of internationalism in gaining certain credit in outside world and certain equality of status within the British Empire and with the sovereign countries of the world. Therefore, I welcome this measure that has been introduced by my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce. Sir, I may say that India is getting air-minded. The other day we read in the papers that three Indian airmen reached London in three different aeroplanes and that they did not meet with any accident on the way and this is a matter of congratulation. I also read in the papers that one Indian airman was trying to have a world tour in an aeroplane of his own. If that be so, if Indians are going to participate in air tours all over the world, India will have to accept the international conventions, although, while these conventions were signed at Warsaw, I do not know whether the Government of India sent any representatives there and why that representative did not sign the air convention.

An Honourable Member : None was sent.

Mr. B. Das : I believe no representative was sent there. As is the practice so often, we find always the British representative signs something and afterwards the dominions, particularly subordinate Governments like the Government of India are made to accept. Sir, that is a point of honour with us, and, therefore, I speak on this motion. Although Indians at times visited these international conferences, yet in very few conferences they have equality of status with sovereign nations, in spite of India being an original Member of the League of Nations. I need not raise the topic that we raised during the last Assembly Session that the Right Honourable Sastri once signed certain naval conventions at Washington, and another gentleman signed certain other convention at Geneva, but usually what happens is this, that a British officer of the Government of India goes as an Adviser to the British delegate at these international conferences. However, I do hope that whatever be the fate of India under the new Constitution, the Government of India should in future assert themselves and send direct representatives, and not be the hand-maid of the British delegates. Of course, the Leader of the House might bring in the question of political complex of India, that India cannot negotiate direct any treaty with any foreign nation. If that be so,

[Mr. B. Das.] then why not walk out of the League of Nations? Let us have nothing to do with these European nations or with the sovereign nations of the world. But if the policy is that we will have to stand as equals, to be treated as equals, let us send our own representatives who will sign those treaties and conventions. I would have been very happy—and I take this opportunity to say again on the floor of the House—if my Honourable friend, Sir Joseph Bhowe, had signed the Indo-Japanese Agreement which, I understand from the papers, has been signed, I do not know, with what modifications. It will be to my pride that one of my representatives, not my own representative, but the Government representative signs it on behalf of India. However, that is another issue, but that is an issue that always crops up like the King Charles head. I welcome these two measures and I do not think the draft requires any drastic modification. But I was a little alarmed when my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, said that the Government of India reserved to themselves the right to make rules. Are the Government of India going to play the role of a bureaucrat or are they going to rise up to the dignity and status of a sovereign nation? If the rules can be applicable in Russia, in Germany, in France and other European countries and in Japan, if those rules are good for those countries, they are quite good for India also. Why not have a set of international rules rather than have a set of special rules and special powers reserved to the Government of India? Such rule-making powers may not be misused, but I do not like reservation of powers. We have had too many reservations and too many safeguards. With these few observations, I support the measure.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty): The question is:

"That the Bill to give effect in British India to a Convention for the unification of certain rules relating to international carriage by air be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Mr. H. P. Mody, Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur, Rao Bahadur B. L. Patil, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Mr. K. P. Thampan, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Mr. N. N. Anklesaria, Mr. S. G. Jog, Sir Leslie Hudson, Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan, Mr. A. Raisman, Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan, and the Mover, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

THE INDIAN AIRCRAFT BILL.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour): Sir, I beg to move:

"That the Bill to make better provision for the control of the manufacture, possession, use, operation, sale, import and export of aircraft be referred to a Select Committee, consisting of Mr. H. P. Mody, Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur, Rao Bahadur B. L. Patil, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Mr. K. P. Thampan, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Mr. N. N. Anklesaria, Mr. S. G. Jog, Sir Leslie Hudson, Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan, Mr. A. Raisman, Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan and the Mover, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Sir, there are very few, if any, fields of human endeavour in which progress has been as rapid during the last quarter of a century as it has been in that of civil aviation. And, yet aerial navigation in this country is still governed by an Act passed in 1911, though it is true that it was amended some three years later, and by Rules framed under it which are fourteen years old. An Act passed 23 years ago is obviously entirely inadequate to meet the present day conditions. We might have made efforts to patch it up but we have felt that here, as in the case of the Petroleum Bill, and also in the case of the Factories Bill, the better and more convenient course was to place an entirely new Bill before this House. One very important reason why new legislation has become imperatively necessary is that since the existing law was framed, India in common with a large number of other countries has entered into international commitments to unify the law with regard to aviation. I might perhaps interpose here to reply to the point which was raised by my Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das, a few moments ago. He is very jealous, and very rightly so, of our international status, and it might perhaps satisfy him if I explained that we were actually invited to the Warsaw Conference. As a matter of fact, we were represented by the British representative. We had no one here at the time whom we could spare very conveniently and for that reason we acted through the British representative who was instructed by us. I have no doubt that as this country develops in the matter of civil aviation we shall find it more convenient to have a representative of our own at such Conferences. As long ago as 1919, an International Convention for the Regulation of Aerial Navigation was signed by the plenipotentiaries of 27 countries, and Mr. Das will be very glad to hear that those 27 plenipotentiaries included one from India. This Convention was entered into with the dual object of establishing regulations of universal application and of encouraging the peaceful intercourse of nations by means of aerial communication. The Convention deals with practically all questions relating to international air navigation but its main principle may be summed up in the statement that it is an instrument designed to secure freedom of international air navigation among the contracting States. The fifteen years which have passed since the Convention was signed have, I think, very fully established the necessity for such an agreement and the manifold benefits which have resulted from it. The House may care to hear a few of the many important matters which are regulated by the Annexes to the Convention. These deal, amongst other things, with the registration and marking of aircraft, the certification of airworthiness, rules governing lights, signals, air traffic and aerodromes, the examination and licensing of pilots, navigators and other personnel, the production of aeronautical maps, the co-ordination of wireless and meteorological services and the unification of customs rules. They thus cover an extremely wide field. Under the existing Act, it has not been possible to implement many of the provisions of the Convention. Let me give the House two examples of this. The present Act provides no power to make rules for aerodromes. Consequently Government are not in a position to make a rule that every aerodrome must be provided with a wind indicator, though a wind indicator is obviously essential to secure safe landings. Again, the definition of aircraft is incomplete and does not include balloons. While there is a rule that articles may not be dropped from aircraft, there is nothing in the Act or the rules to prevent anyone from going up in a balloon and dropping bricks whenever and wherever he feels inclined. The present position is that we are muddling along under legislation which is already out of date and that the regulation of many important matters rests more on the good will of the flying citizens than on the power of the State to control them.

A stage has, therefore, been reached in which it is no longer possible to control air traffic efficiently and to implement India's international obligations without fresh legislation. The present Bill is designed to enlarge the rule-making powers of the Governor General in Council, in order to provide the necessary elasticity to meet modern developments, to enable Government to give full effect to the provisions of the International Convention and its Annexes and to provide for certain other matters on which legislation has become necessary. My friend, Mr. Das, objects to any enlargement of the rule-making powers of the Governor General. I may remind the House that we must have some elasticity in these matters, that it is not advisable that we should come before the House every time we want to make some small change in the law to meet some new and unexpected development, and that the rule-making powers are only given to us to the extent that the Legislature is prepared to entrust them to us. Rules can obviously be criticised and altered and that, I think, is the real safeguard.

I should like to draw the attention of the House to a few important principles which are incorporated either explicitly or implicitly in this Bill. In the existing Act Local Governments, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, are empowered to make rules dealing with many matters and in particular to declare areas prohibited to the navigation of aircraft. As a matter of fact, those powers have never been exercised by any Local Government. It is hardly surprising that this should be the case, for it is very difficult, if not entirely impossible, for a Local Government to make rules on matters of that kind without causing confusion or infringing the terms of the International Convention. In these circumstances, we have not thought it necessary to include any provisions of this character in the draft Bill.

Again, there is no statutory provision at present for the investigation of aircraft accidents which unfortunately occur all too frequently, though the number is not really very high in proportion to the number of air miles flown. For the last three years, although there is no statutory provision on the point, every accident which has occurred in India has been investigated by the staff of the Civil Aviation Department. For minor accidents, the local investigation is carried out with the assistance of the local technical personnel. When more serious accidents occur, an officer of the Civil Aviation Department proceeds to the scene. In all cases, the report is finally reviewed by the Director of Civil Aviation. The result is that we have a very valuable analysis of the underlying causes of accidents and that the knowledge we have thus gained is applied to the improvement of methods of training and to the introduction of modifications designed to reduce the risk. Last year there were 29 accidents to Indian aircraft which, after investigation, were considered to be more than minor mishaps and to justify classification as accidents. Successful investigation of the causes of these accidents at present depends entirely on the good will of the pilots, owners and others involved. It does seem to us essential that statutory powers should be taken to ensure that it rests on a more satisfactory basis than that, and whilst we have every reason to thank those who have helped us in this matter we think that it is desirable that we should have definite powers to investigate accidents.

Other points which deserve mention are that the Bill applies the provisions of maritime law with regard to wreck and salvage to aircraft at sea and that the administration of the customs law in respect of aircraft will be much simplified by the provision which is made for the application of relevant parts of the Sea Customs Act.

Finally, Sir, lest the old accepted doctrine of "usque ad collum" might be cited by an indignant landowner to prevent flight over his property, provision is made in the Bill to give aircraft the right to use the air without liability to suits for trespass or nuisance, so long as the method and height of flight are reasonable. I trust, Sir, that I have said enough to convince the House of the necessity for this legislation.

Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill to make better provision for the control of the manufacture, possession, use, operation, sale, import and export of aircraft be referred to a Select Committee, consisting of Mr. H. P. Mody, Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur, Rao Bahadur B. L. Patil, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, Mr. K. P. Thampan, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Mr. N. N. Anklesaria, Mr. S. G. Jog, Sir Leslie Hudson, Kunwar Hajeer Ismail Ali Khan, Mr. A. Raisman, Major Nawab Ahmad Nawaz Khan and the Mover, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Tuesday, the 17th July, 1934.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Tuesday, 17th July, 1934.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

DEDUCTION OF EXPENDITURE IN THE ASSESSMENT OF INCOME-TAX.

49. *Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : (a) Have Government issued instructions to Income-tax officers to allow and disallow certain items of expenditure in the assessment of Income-tax?

(b) Are Income-tax Commissioners empowered to frame their own instructions without reference to Government?

(c) Are the legal practitioners allowed to deduct expenditure on account of the maintenance of conveyance exclusively used for their professional work?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : (a) No. The Income-tax Act does not empower Government to decide which items of expenditure are to be allowed or disallowed with reference to any particular source of income. The Act itself provides for this in sections 8 to 12 and in the Instructions appended to the Income-tax Manual certain paragraphs have been added with a view to explain these provisions of the law.

(b) Properly speaking no such question can arise as there is nothing in the Income-tax Act which either empowers or authorises Government to empower Commissioners to frame their own instructions. Commissioners are vested under the Act with certain powers as regards individual assessments and in the exercise of these powers, they have to interpret the various provisions of the law, and they are free to communicate for the guidance of the officers under them their interpretation of a particular section of the Act, if they so desire.

(c) If the item referred to by the Honourable Member is of such a nature that it can be classed as "expenditure incurred solely for the purposes of the profession" referred to, and is not of the nature of "personal expenses of the assessee" concerned, it will be allowable under section 11 (2) (i) of the Act. Whether the item is exactly of such a nature will be a question of fact to be decided with reference to the proved facts of the case concerned.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Regarding part (c) of the question, is it only the legal practitioners that are allowed to deduct this kind of expenditure or there are others as well, such as medical practitioners and some other business men?

L174LAD

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The same answer would apply : it depends on the facts of the particular case as the Honourable Member will see if he refers to my answer when it is printed.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I understand that no instruction has been issued to the income-tax officers besides the one contained in the Income-tax Manual ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is my information.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask if a conveyance is used exclusively for a professional purpose, is it to be deducted from the returns of income or not ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is the question I have answered—"If the item referred to is of such a nature that it can be classed as 'expenditure incurred solely for the purposes of the profession' referred to and is not of the nature of 'personal expenses of the assessee' concerned, it will be allowable under section 11 (2) (i) of the Act".

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : The reply is of a general nature : I want to take a definite case, that if a conveyance is used exclusively for professional purposes, then will it be allowed ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is precisely the question I have answered—"expenditure incurred solely for the purposes of the profession". May I add that whether it is so used is a matter for determination by the Commissioner.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know whether in practice such allowances are being given or not ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : If they come within section 11 (2) (i), I have not the slightest doubt that they are allowed in practice.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I would submit that this clause is construed rigidly in practice by the Commissioners, and, therefore, I am asking whether the Honourable Member is in possession of facts whether during the last two years allowance is being given on such items ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : If they are not given the reason is no doubt because they are not usually allowable, but if the Honourable Member has any particular case which he wishes to bring to my attention, I shall be glad to look into it.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : As regards the instructions issued, is it a fact that instructions are issued by the Board of Revenue with regard to the correction or amendment of the Manual itself from time to time ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I imagine so, particularly in the light of decisions of Courts or other similar circumstances.

Sir Hari Singh Gour : May I beg to inquire what is the definition of the phrase "exclusively used for professional purposes" ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That question is not for me to decide.

Sir Hari Singh Gour : I thought that the Revenue Department of the Government of India would lay down certain instructions to the assessing officers as to what is exclusive use of conveyance for professional purposes, and what is not ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : No, that question is one for the individual Commissioner concerned on the facts of the particular case.

Sir Hari Singh Gour : But conveyances are used by legal practitioners all over India, and consequently it cannot be a local question or even a provincial question : and being a question in which legal practitioners all over India are interested, I should have expected the Board of Revenue would lay down certain rules for the guidance of income-tax authorities throughout the Provinces.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The section itself seems to me to be quite clear—"expenditure incurred solely for the purposes of the profession"—but no doubt the practice of legal practitioners in the use of their cars varies widely all over India, and I expect most of them do not use them solely for the purposes of their profession.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member, if a legal practitioner uses his car for his professional business and also takes it out for his evening ride, will any allowance be given ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is certainly not allowable.

FIXATION OF IRON WINDOWS IN CERTAIN QUARTERS IN THE RAJA BAZAR SQUARE AND LANE, NEW DELHI.

50 Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Is it a fact that there are revolving iron windows in most of the "D" type quarters in Raja Bazar Square and Raja Bazar Lane in New Delhi ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) above be in the affirmative, will Government kindly state the reasons for fixing the iron windows in those quarters only and wooden windows in all other quarters ?

(c) Are Government aware that the iron windows on account of being very heavy and unwieldy are causing great inconvenience and in some cases injuries to the tenants of those quarters ?

(d) If the replies to part (c) be in the affirmative are Government prepared to replace these iron windows by ordinary wooden windows like those fixed in all other Government quarters ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Yes.

(b) Crittal windows (which are the type which have been fixed) have many advantages over, and are generally regarded as superior to, wooden windows.

(c) and (d). No.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if the Honourable Member or any of his officers has visited the spot to see the inconvenience ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : No ; but I may mention for the information of the House that when this question was put on the agenda paper, I made special inquiries about these crittal windows : I asked whether there were any specimens of them to be seen in Simla so that I might find out for myself what they were like, and I discovered that they have been fitted in the west windows of the drawing room of the Viceregal Lodge. That is a sufficient testimony to their excellence.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member whether these windows jut out and when a man gets up, he gets injured ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I do not quite know what the Honourable Member means by jutting out.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : They are revolving windows and when they are opened inside, suddenly a man sitting near by gets up, he gets hit. (Laughter.) Will the Honourable Member make some improvement in this ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : As I said, I had a report called for in regard to these windows and it is to this effect :

"Crittall windows are being used extensively in upper class houses all over Europe and also in India. In many respects, they are much better than wooden windows. They admit of more light ; they are not attacked by white ants, they are anything but clumsy and generally speaking, distinctly superior to ordinary wooden windows. In fact, until a short time ago, they were looked upon as a luxury."

ASPHALTING OF, AND PROVISION OF MORE LIGHTS ON, THE ROAD PASSING THROUGH RAJA BAZAR SQUARE AND LANE, NEW DELHI.

51. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Are Government aware that the road branching off from Baird Road and passing through Raja Bazar Square and Raja Bazar Lane in New Delhi, is not asphalted and is therefore very dusty ?

(b) Are Government aware that there is not sufficient light on that road ?

(c) Are Government aware that there are about seventy-five Government quarters on that road ?

(d) Are Government aware that the road is very narrow and there is very little or no space left between the road and the Government quarters on either side ?

(e) Are Government prepared to remove the dust nuisance experienced by the tenants of the quarters in that locality by getting the road asphalted, and also to provide more lights on that road ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a), (b) and (c). Yes.

(d) The metalled portion of the road is 10 feet wide, and the berms on either side of the metalled portion are 6 feet wide. There is a space of 8 feet between the road berm and the walls of the quarters.

(e) It is understood that the road will be asphalted as soon as funds permit, and that the existing 25 Watt lamps are being replaced by 40 Watt lamps.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I am thankful to the Honourable Member for the sympathy he is showing in the matter, and I hope these improvements will be carried out at an early date.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Well, Sir, they will be done when funds permit.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Are these roads under the New Delhi Municipality or under the Government of India ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Honourable Member asked a question on this subject the other day in the Standing Finance Committee, and I think he was given a reply then.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Honourable Members of this House would like to know it here.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : My recollection is that these roads are looked after by the Public Works Department.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : By the Public Works Department directly controlled by the Government ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Public Works Department are the agents of the Municipality.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I understand that these roads are now looked after by the New Delhi Municipality and not by the Government ? Is it correct ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Municipality are a corporate Body consisting of 13 members, and I am quite sure that they won't go about looking after the roads. The roads are looked after by the Public Works Department under the controlling authority of the Municipality.

NON-MAINTENANCE OF LAWNS IN RAJA BAZAR SQUARE, NEW DELHI.

52. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Are Government aware that the lawns in front of Government quarters in Raja Bazar Square are not properly maintained and watered ?

(b) Are Government aware that there are absolutely no lawns in front of the quarters in Raja Bazar Lane for the children to play about ?

(c) If the replies to parts (a) and (b) above be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the reasons for the same ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) No. The lawns are being properly maintained and watered.

(b) Yes.

(c) As regards (a), the question does not arise. As regards (b), I may explain that the space between the road and the quarters in the Raja Bazar Lane is 10 feet wide and that as it is continually used as a path by the tenants and others it is impossible to grow grass upon it.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is it not a fact, Sir, that there are better conveniences in other quarters ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : The conveniences naturally vary with different quarters. It depends upon their location.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : In view of the complaints received in regard to these quarters, may I know from the Honourable Member whether he will extend his sympathy to the occupants of these quarters and ask some officer to go round and suggest some improvements ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : If the Honourable Member will suggest the sort of improvements he has in his mind, I shall be glad to do what I can in that direction.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Thank you very much.

PROVISION OF FLUSH LATRINES IN GOVERNMENT QUARTERS IN NEW DELHI.

53. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Is it a fact that Government have recently sanctioned additions and alterations to be carried out in all the existing orthodox quarters in New Delhi? If so, will Government kindly state the nature of the alterations to be carried out?

(b) Are Government prepared to consider the advisability of providing flush latrines in place of the existing ones in all the Government quarters in New Delhi, in the interests of better sanitation? If not, why not?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) The Honourable Member is presumably referring to the orthodox clerks' quarters in New Delhi. Government propose to provide additional electric light points in all these quarters during the current year at an estimated cost of Rs. 44,000. This expenditure was approved by the Standing Finance Committee on the 13th July, 1934. Government also contemplate certain re-arrangements of the rooms in 128 old type "D" class orthodox clerks' quarters. It is hoped that funds for this work will be made available in 1935-36.

(b) Yes. Modern sanitation is being installed in all Officers' houses in New Delhi, and will be installed in clerks' quarters as soon as the necessary funds (approximately Rs. 7½ lakhs), can be made available.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if it is a fact that the question of installing flush latrines in clerks' quarters is being postponed while these are being installed in officers' bungalows?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : That apparently is the case, Sir.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I, therefore, in the interests of the smaller people, ask the Honourable Member whether he is prepared to have a start made in regard to the installation of flush latrines in some of the clerks' quarters when they are being installed in some of the officers' bungalows?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : A definite scheme has already been approved, and I don't think it can be interrupted now. As I have said, we hope to get funds for installing these flush latrines in clerks' quarters as soon as possible.

PUBLICATION OF THE REPORT OF THE AFGHAN TRADE DELEGATION.

54. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : When do Government propose to publish the Report of the Afghan Trade Delegation, and their own conclusions thereon? Will this House be given an opportunity of discussing the same?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : The question of publishing the Report of the Trade Commission to Afghanistan is under consideration and it is not possible at this stage to say whether the House will be given an opportunity of discussing the report.

NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN THE KATHIAWAR STATES AND THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA IN CONNECTION WITH THE VIRANGAM CUSTOMS REVENUE.

55. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is there any proposal to pay annually about Rupees two lakhs, out of the Virangam Customs receipt, to Jamnagar State, or any other State?

(b) Will Government please make a statement on the subject of any negotiations between them and the Kathiawar States in this connection, affecting in any way the revenues of India?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to the Press Communiqué issued on the 7th June, 1934, announcing that His Highness the Maharaja Jam Sahib of Nawanagar is being allowed from the 1st April, 1934, to retain the customs duty on goods passing from the Nawanagar State, outside the limits of Kathiawar, up to a maximum of Rs. 5 lakhs a year.

(b) Government are not in a position to make any statement.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will a copy of the communiqué be laid on the table?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Certainly, but it has appeared in the Press, and it may be more suitable if I read it out.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Yes, you can read it out.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg :

"The issues arising out of the late Maharaja Jam Sahib of Nawanagar's protest against the re-imposition of the Virangam Customs Line against his State in 1927 were, by a Resolution of the Government of India, dated the 26th August, 1933, referred with the consent of the parties to a Court of Arbitration, consisting of the Right Honourable Viscount Dunedin, P.C., G.C.V.O., as sole member with instructions to report the results of his investigations to the Governor General.

The arbitrator has held that His Highness the Maharaja is entitled to a share in the customs collected at his ports on goods destined for British India, the Governor General being left to determine that share. The Governor General has accepted the arbitrator's finding and has fixed that share in accordance with an agreement arrived at between the parties disputing, His Highness the Maharaja being allowed from the 1st April, 1934, to retain the customs duty on goods passing from the Nawanagar State outside the limits of Kathiawar up to a maximum of Rs. five lakhs per annum, any balance over and above the figure of five lakhs being paid to the Government of India."

Sir Hari Singh Gour : May I know whether this arrangement is provisional or permanent or is likely to be altered in view of the impending constitutional changes?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is a hypothetical question which, I think, should be left over to be determined when the constitutional changes take place.

Sir Hari Singh Gour : Whether this agreement is provisional or permanent is not a hypothetical question?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : At this stage and so long as the present circumstances continue, it is not provisional.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : With regard to part (b) of this question, do I understand the Government to say that there are negotiations proceeding at the present moment between the Government of India and the Kathiawar States with regard to the question of the customs duty?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : All I say is that Government are not in a position to make any statement, and I think, if the Honourable Member will forgive me, it is not desirable that Government should at this stage make any statement.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I know whether this question of customs duty is still under consideration?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Which?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : The question of customs duty between the Government of India and the Kathiawar States?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is precisely the question asked here, and all I can say at the moment is that I do not think it will be in the public interest to make any statement.

Mr. B. Das : Is the Honourable Member aware that the public are in the know of things, and it has been already announced that Viscount Dunedin's award is to be given to Jamnagar ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The Press Communiqué was about that, and, as for the rest, as I said, I don't think it is desirable in the public interest to make any statement.

Mr. B. Das : Is the Honourable Member aware that my friend, Mr. Mody, made certain serious charges about the Kathiawar States during the discussion on the Cotton Excise Bill ? Is it not a matter of public importance, and are not the public entitled to know what action Government are taking in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is precisely the sort of consideration that the Government have got to take into account, and I believe my predecessor announced that the Government were taking certain action in the matter, but beyond that and the Press Communiqué I don't think it is desirable to say anything.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do I understand the Government of India to plead that they can settle negotiations with the Kathiawar States affecting the revenues of India without giving this House an opportunity to discuss the question ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : No, Sir ; I did not say anything of the sort. What I did say was that in delicate matters of this sort, I think it is only fair that the Government of India should be the judge as to when and how any public statement should be made.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Did the Government of India hold any conference to discuss this question this week ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The Honourable Member is trying to get me to make a statement, but as I have already said, it is not desirable to do so at present.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I want to know if the Government of India had a consultation on this particular question this week ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I am very sorry, but even if it is a definite question, I must give the same indefinite answer.

DIVERSION OF TRADE FROM BOMBAY PORT TO KATHIAWAR PORTS.

56. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : What steps, if any, are being taken to prevent the diversion of trade from Bombay Port to Kathiawar Ports ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The matter is engaging the attention of Government.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member if there is any move with the Government of India to arrive at a mutual understanding between Bombay, Karachi and Kathiawar Ports with regard to the trade diversion ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The introduction of the question of Karachi is a new question, and I must ask for notice, but even so I must say that the answer will almost certainly be of the same vague and indefinite character that I have already given.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : When the question of diversion of trade from Bombay to Kathiawar Ports is under discussion, I merely want to know if any mutual arrangement is going to be made between Bombay and Kathiawar ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is precisely the question which is on the paper and the one which I have answered. It may be unsatisfactory, but I have given the best answer I can at the moment.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : On a point of order, Sir.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : What is the point of order ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : This question arises out of the original question, and I only want a reply.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member is not asking a question which arises out of the original question. He is simply repeating the question which is on the Order Paper for which an answer has been given.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I am asking whether any arrangement is going to be made and to that I am entitled to a reply.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order. Mr. Mody.

Mr. H. P. Mody : I want to ask a straight question. Have the Government of India taken any active steps with regard to the strengthening of the Viramgam cordon and with regard to the prevention of the smuggling which is admittedly going on through Cutch, Pondicherry and other places ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : At last we have got a question to which I can give a definite answer. Estimates for extra staff for strengthening the Viramgam line were laid last week before the Standing Finance Committee and approved by them.

Mr. H. P. Mody : What is happening with regard to Cutch, Pondicherry, Ras Bela and other places ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is still under consideration, and I cannot make any statement on that point.

NON-PROVISION OF FANS IN CERTAIN SECOND CLASS COMPARTMENTS OF CERTAIN TRAINS ON THE BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.

57. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Are Government aware that there are certain second class compartments (No. 319) in which there are no fans provided, as in the special train provided by the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway administration (metre gauge) to His Highness the Rajdhiraj of Shahpura State (Rajputana) which proceeded from Sareri Station (Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway) on the 22nd May, 1934, to Dharangdhra State in Kathiawar ; or in the second class carriage (No. 472) attached to the Mail train (Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway) which left Delhi on the 21st May, 1934, upto Ajmer ?

(b) Do Government propose to take any steps to compel the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway to provide this ordinary amenity to second class passengers during the hot weather ?

(c) Will Government please state when the lease of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway is due to expire ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Government understand that on the metre gauge system of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, coaches, with second class compartments used regularly on all Main Line and Branch Line services, have been provided with electric fans, but certain upper class coaches, which are at the end of their lives, have not been so provided. These latter coaches are used only for relieving purposes and in certain cases for reservation when other stock is not immediately available. One of these carriages was reserved for the party of His Highness the Raja Dhiraj of Shahpura and used on the special train from Sareri to Dhrangadhra.

The second class compartments on the mail train between Ahmadabad and Delhi are provided with fans, but on the particular day referred to, the first and second class bogie carriage was under repairs, and one of the spare carriages not provided with fans, was utilised to replace it temporarily.

The Agent, Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, reports that the position has again been investigated and electric fans are being provided in eight more coaches.

(b) In the circumstances stated Government do not consider any action called for at present.

(c) On the 31st December, 1941.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do I understand the Government to say that the B. B. and C. I. Railway have agreed to provide fans in upper class carriages on the particular line in question ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : They are providing electric fans on eight more coaches.

MURDER OF INDIAN NATIONALS IN AMERICA.

58. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Are Government aware that the following verdict was given unanimously by a jury of 12, in America, relating to the death of Sher Singh Sathi, in June last year :

"That Sher Singh Sathi came by his death on 12th day of June, A. D. 1933 in this country, by gun shot wounds from gun in the hands of person or persons unknown on Morgan Ranch, 3 miles north, and 2 miles east of Holtville, California."

(b) Do Government propose to make an enquiry into the above, and state how this verdict can be reconciled with their statement made in this House in reply to a question of mine, that Sher Singh Sathi committed suicide ?

(c) Is it a fact that soon after the murder of Sher Singh Sathi, one Amar Singh and his companion were also murdered in that locality, and that the total number of murders of Indian nationals in America amounts to about 32 ?

(d) Do Government propose to make a thorough enquiry into the above matter, and make a statement on the subject ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a)—(d). Enquiries are being made from His Majesty's Ambassador, Washington, and his reply will be communicated to the House in due course.

RIOTS IN GIRIDIH COLLIERIES.

59. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government kindly make a statement on the subject of the recent riots in Giridih Collieries (East Indian Railway), indicating the causes, the number of casualties and the steps taken in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : On the morning of the 14th May, 1934, a serious riot broke out unexpectedly at the Serampur Colliery. Immediately on receipt of the news, the Deputy Commissioner and Superintendent of Police, armed with revolvers, accompanied by an unarmed Inspector of Police and a constable, proceeded to the spot where they found about 1,000 persons (many of them armed with lathis), round the Manager's office, most of the windows of which were smashed. Inside the office, were the staff and some loyal workers. Outside, three motor cars and a motor bicycle had been overturned and were in flames. The Deputy Commissioner and his party charged the crowd, which at first retreated, but on realising that the party consisted of four persons only, surrounded them on three sides and began throwing stones and bricks. As the crowd became more threatening, the Deputy Commissioner warned them that unless they dispersed at once he would fire. They replied with shouts and volleys of stones and brandished their lathis. In this grave and threatening situation, the Deputy Commissioner, and under his orders, the Superintendent of Police, opened fire. After 11 shots had been fired, the crowd broke. One man was shot dead and three were wounded, of whom one has since died. Meanwhile another section of rioters were attempting to set fire to the Deputy Commissioner's car, but when the firing began they also fled. The men returned to work in normal numbers a few days after the riot and no further trouble is anticipated.

2. The riot is believed to have been instigated by discontented labourers of another colliery who had protested against the lowering of the rates for coal-cutting in the Giridih Collieries. This reduction in rates, which came into operation for the week ending on the 9th of May, and was otherwise generally accepted, was introduced on grounds of economy and in order to bring the rates more into conformity with those paid in other coal-fields.

PROPOSED ADOPTION OF HINDI AS A COURT LANGUAGE IN DELHI.

60. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Have Government received any representation regarding the proposed adoption of Hindi as a Court language, along with Urdu and English in Delhi Courts ?

(b) If so, what is their decision on this subject ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) The Chief Commissioner, Delhi, has received a representation on the subject.

(b) In such matters the Delhi Administration follows the Punjab, as the Civil and Criminal Courts in Delhi, are subordinate to the High Court of Judicature at Lahore. Consequently so long as Hindi is not adopted as a court language in the Punjab, it is not proposed to consider the matter for Delhi.

Sir Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to say from whom this representation was received ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am afraid I have no information about that.

Sir Muhammad Yakub : Are Government aware that a very representative All-India Urdu Conference was held in Delhi in April last, presided over by the Honourable Major Akbar Khan, which entered a strong protest against making any alteration in the court language in Delhi ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, I was not aware of that.

Sir Muhammad Yakub : Will Government make enquiries and find out the proceedings of that Conference ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I do not think I am called upon to make any such enquiries.

THE HINDU TEMPLE ENTRY DISABILITIES REMOVAL BILL.

PETITIONS LAID ON THE TABLE.

Secretary of the Assembly : Sir, under standing order 78, I have to report that 1,262 petitions as per statement laid on the table have been received relating to the Bill to remove the disabilities of the so-called Depressed Classes in regard to entry into Hindu temples, which was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 24th March, 1933, by Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer.

DEATH OF SIR DINSHAW MULLA.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore (Leader of the House) : Sir, with your permission I should like to make good an omission for which I was responsible yesterday. I had not realised at the time that that great lawyer, the Right Honourable Sir Dinshaw Mulla, had at one time been a Member of this House. I need not say anything about his great legal attainments. The fact that he was a Member of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is evidence of his great eminence in that field. Those who knew him were always struck by his readiness to sacrifice all personal considerations at the call of duty. He never hesitated to sacrifice his lucrative practice when he felt that by so doing he could in some way serve the public. His personal simplicity, his great charm of manner, and his utter genuineness endeared him to all those who came into contact with him. I would ask you, Sir, to convey to the late Sir Dinshaw Mulla's relatives our deep sympathy with them in their loss.

Sir Abdur Rahim (Calcutta and Suburbs : Muhammadan Urban) : I associate myself and the Independent Party which I represent in this [Sir Abdur Rahim.] House with all that has fallen from the Leader of the House regarding the late Sir Dinshaw Mulla. We lawyers are familiar with his works and very few legal practitioners could do without some of those books. As has been said, he was undoubtedly a lawyer of very great distinction. I have not had the privilege of coming into contact with him, but certainly he was held in great respect by very large circles in India. We are very sorry to hear of his death. We hoped that he would be able to serve on the Privy Council for many a year, but apparently that was not what was decreed. Sir, I support the motion that has been made that the expression of the sorrow of this Assembly be conveyed to the members of the family of the late Right Honourable Sir Dinshaw Mulla.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I heartily associate myself and my Party with what has fallen from the Leader of the House and the Leader of the Opposition. Sir, the late Right Honourable Sir Dinshaw Mulla was a great lawyer and his books have always been appreciated by students as well as by members of the bar. He was of unassuming manners, and wherever he went and whatever work he put his hand to, he was always respected and his work was always crowned with success. We all expected that he would do a very great service to Indian law by pronouncing judgments from the Privy Council, but it has pleased Providence to ordain otherwise and his career has been cut short abruptly. He was a respected citizen of Bombay and was a great public servant and we all mourn his loss. I heartily support the motion brought forward by the Leader of the House to request you to convey the sentiments expressed here to the members of his family.

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria (Bombay Northern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, on behalf of the Centre Party, I associate myself with everything that the previous speakers have spoken about the late Right Honourable Sir Dinshaw Mulla. To every student of law, Sir Dinshaw Mulla's name is familiar. In fact it would be hardly any exaggeration to say that he was the most lucid legal writer which India has ever produced up till now. Sir, I support the motion for conveying our condolences to his bereaved family.

Sir Hari Singh Gour (Central Provinces Hindi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I heartily associate myself with the motion proposed by the Leader of the House to convey to the bereaved family of Sir Dinshaw Mulla the deepest condolences of this House. Sir, I knew Sir Dinshaw Mulla for the last forty years, and working as I have in the same field as he did, I knew how to appreciate his great acumen, earnestness and legal learning which characterised him in all his activities and all his forensic dealings with his clients and the judges. Sir Dinshaw occupied the high position of Law Member of the Government of India for a short time and it was not long after that he was elevated to a seat on the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council where he distinguished himself, but his failing health deprived that august body of a great Indian lawyer, and I am sure that everybody in this House feels the untimely death of Sir Dinshaw Mulla as a great loss to the nation. I associate myself with every word that has fallen from the previous speakers and the Leader of the House.

Sir Leslie Hudson (Bombay : European) : Sir, I wish to associate myself and my Party with everything that has fallen from the previous Honourable Members in regard to the sad demise of Sir Dinshaw Mulla. It is a year now that Sir Dinshaw Mulla, Bombay's eminent lawyer, left this country, and Bombay and India have suffered a great loss in his death. Sir Dinshaw Mulla, in addition to his great legal talents, had a very wide circle of friends in Bombay, and not the least among the European community. We all regret his demise, and I heartily support the motion before the House.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I associate the Chair with the tribute paid to the memory of the late Sir Dinshaw Mulla. Though it was not my privilege to know Sir Dinshaw Mulla personally, yet, as a student of law, I can bear testimony to the great respect in which he was held by the legal world in India. It shall be my duty to convey to the members of Sir Dinshaw's family the sense of sorrow of this House at the loss of one who was for some time our colleague.

THE FACTORIES BILL.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That the Bill to consolidate and amend the law regulating labour in factories, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration."

I do not think that it is necessary for me to make a very lengthy speech in support of this motion, but I should like at the outset to remind the House of the history of the Bill. After the recommendations of the Whitley Commission had been before the general public for some time, the Government of India circulated a Bill based on those recommendations, so far as they related to factory labour, to Local Governments and the interests concerned for opinion. As I mentioned to the House when I introduced this Bill at the September Session last year, we received a mass of opinions amounting to some 360 printed foolscap pages—more in volume than the Report of the Labour Commission itself. After receiving those opinions, we went very carefully through them in consultation with the Chief Inspectors of Factories from the various Provinces. We modified the Bill in the light of the discussions we had with them, and I introduced it in this House on the 8th September last year. I moved for reference to a Select Committee on the 15th September and the House accepted that reference. As I explained then, we wished to give Members plenty of time to consider the volume of literature which we placed at their disposal. For that reason the Select Committee did not meet until January of this year. When they met, they sat for some days, and went through the Bill with a care and thoroughness which I am very glad to have this opportunity of acknowledging on the floor of this House. In their examination of the Bill, they, as we had been before, were assisted by the Chief Inspectors of Factories—Mr. Johnson from Bombay, Mr. Macbride from Bengal and Mr. Abel from the United Provinces, and, I am sure, the members of the Select Committee will wish me to bring to the special notice of the House the great help that they derived from the presence of the Factory Inspectors at their deliberations. I am sure that the members of the Select Committee, like myself, were convinced of the desire of the Factory Inspectors to administer the Factories Act in the best interests of employers and employed alike, and, not only of their desire, but of their capacity to do so. The House will have seen for itself from the Bill which is now before it that the changes made by the Select Committee are very numerous, though, as I shall again emphasise later on, no changes have been made in any matter of fundamental importance. I had hoped that it would be possible to pass this Bill in the course of the last Delhi Session, but it had to be postponed to more urgent, though I would not admit more important, work. I have given this brief history of the Bill in the hope of convincing the House that there have been very few Bills which have been placed before it which have been examined more fully than this, and I trust that the House will be convinced that the measure in the form which is now placed before it is administratively sound and workable. As I mentioned last September, the Bill deals with a mass of detail. There are over 80 clauses and, this being so, the House will not expect me to deal at any length with the changes which have been made in the Select Committee. I propose shortly to mention one or two of these changes very briefly, but I should like to refer now to one point, the most important point in the Bill, namely, the question of hours.

When I moved the motion for reference to the Select Committee, I explained that the 54-hour week had been generally accepted by employers throughout India, but that there was one very important minority which had not yet accepted it, and that was the cotton textile industry in most parts of India and especially in the Province of Bombay. I hoped that the question of the 54-hour week would not prove a controversial one in the Select Committee, and I am very glad to say that that hope has been fulfilled. As the House will see from the note—it is not a minute of dissent, I am glad to say—appended by Mr. Mody to the report of the Select Committee he has accepted the shorter hours on behalf of the very important industry which he represents. I am also glad to be able to add that the Government of India have also been told by the Employers Federation of India that they also do not oppose the provisions of the Bill which relate to shorter hours. I think I am right in saying that that Federation embraces employers who have in their employ by far the greater part of the workers in our most important industries. I made an appeal on that occasion to Mr. Mody. Unfortunately he was not here himself to hear it, but I imagine that he read it in due course and that was to endeavour to induce the interests which he represents to introduce the 54-hour week in advance of the passing of the Bill. I recognised at the time, and I recognise even more fully now, that that was making perhaps too great a demand on human nature. But it is satisfactory to know that the Bombay Millowners' Association have gone some way to meet us in this respect. As the House will have gathered from the statements which have appeared in the Press recently, the Bombay Millowners' Association is introducing a system of standardised wages. Mr. Mody will doubtless be ready to explain to the House more fully than I can do exactly what is involved in that system. As I understand it, a system of minimum wages is being introduced. As regards time workers, it is provided that the scale, which is in no case lower than the scale which is, in most cases, I think, in the great majority of cases, being paid at present, provides that when the 9-hour-day is introduced, there shall be no reduction. So, the vast majority, at any rate, of workers in Bombay in the cotton textile industry who are paid by time will not suffer when the new hours are introduced. Mr. Mody will doubtless correct me if I am wrong.

Mr. H. P. Mody (Bombay Millowners' Association : Indian Commerce) : That is so.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : As regards the piece workers, the position is somewhat different. As I said last year, Government, at any rate, fully recognise that shorter hours must in some cases involve some sacrifice on the part of the workers. I am glad to say that the Bombay Millowners' Association are doing something to reduce that sacrifice. Their new scale is based on a 35 per cent. dear food allowance for the piece workers. When the 9-hour-day is introduced, they propose to raise that dear food allowance to 40 per cent, so that the sacrifice will be divided between the workers and the millowners. It is hoped, and past experience has shown that there is good reason to believe, that a considerable part of the difference in wages due to the fall in the output on the piece work system owing to the decrease in hours will be made up by increased efficiency. That has been the experience in other parts of India, and I have been told by one of the leading millowners of India—not in Bombay—that he regards the 9-hour-day which has been in force in his mill for a long time past as a good investment. I trust that Bombay will have the same happy experience. It was not to be expected that my Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi, would be content with this result. I should like here to say how deeply I regret his absence today which I am sorry to say is due to the fact that his daughter has been suffering from a serious illness. I am sure the House will regret the cause of his being away, will sympathise with him in his anxiety and will wish his daughter a speedy recovery. I have no doubt, in his absence, my Honourable friend, the Deputy President, will, as he so often does, ably represent his point of view. Mr. Joshi usually, if not always, gives expression in this House to what one is accustomed to call the socialist point of view, but nobody can accuse him of being a Fabian. There is no question of delay in his case. He wants the revolution in industrial conditions to be brought about at once. That, Sir, is not a point of view which we on these Benches, and, I am sure, the great majority of this House, can accept. We fully realise that progress should be steady, but we also realise the danger of progress by leaps and bounds.

Now, Sir, I should like to refer very briefly to one or two of the important changes which have been made in the Select Committee. In clause 2, the definitions of "worker" and "factory" have been modified. Clerical workers employed in separate rooms are specifically excluded from the scope of the Bill; and the term "factory" will, as it did in the Act of 1911, include the "precincts" of a factory.

In dealing with the Health and Safety provisions, the Select Committee have made several modifications. These modifications are not intended in any way to reduce the obligations of the employer, but we are anxious to see that the demands which are made on the employers should not be unreasonable. We desire that the Act, when it comes into force, should be administered with the minimum of harassment and friction. For example, in clause 16, the power to require measures to be undertaken for the cooling of factories—a new provision, and possibly a very expensive one from the point of view of the factory owners—is now confined to the Chief Inspector, and clause 31 has been amended to make the suspension of an order under clause 16 obligatory in the event of an appeal. Again, in clause 26, orders relating to dangerous buildings must be served in writing, so that there may be an appeal. In clause 32, the power which it was proposed to confer on the Local Government of requiring by rule the submission of wage returns has been eliminated as inappropriate. The reason for that is that we felt that if wage returns are required, they should be dealt with in a separate Act and that there is no reason why a call for such returns should be included here. The provision was the outcome of the desire to improve our statistical information generally, but other information will, of course, be required, so that it is much better that the whole subject should be dealt with in a single and comprehensive Act. In clause 33, the obligation to provide children's rooms will be limited to the provision of rooms for children under six years of age. A further important change in the clause is that the power to declare occupations to be hazardous has been reserved to the Governor General in Council, so as to ensure uniformity. I feel certain that that is a change which will commend itself to the House as it obviously would give rise to difficulties if an occupation declared hazardous in one Province were not regarded as such in another. There would obviously be a tendency to transfer that particular occupation to provinces in which no restrictions were imposed upon it. The Select Committee have also included a very necessary provision which permits the exclusion from employment upon hazardous occupations of persons not certified to be physically fit for them.

In considering the provisions relating to working hours which are contained in clauses 34—49, the Select Committee have made two important changes in order to avoid interference with legitimate shift systems. They found that the original provision for spreadover was too rigid, and, under clause 38, as they have amended it, relaxations are permissible. Similarly, clause 46, as originally drafted, would have caused difficulties in continuous process factories, and it is proposed to give Local Governments powers to allow relaxations. The recasting of the provisions of the Bill relating to notices of periods of work both for adults and for children, and the insertion of clauses 42 and 57 specifically prohibiting the employment of workers otherwise than in accordance with the notice of periods of work are deserving of mention. In clause 43, the Committee have provided for the exemption from the weekly limit of hours of workers in continuous process factories, for without an exemption of this kind the late arrival of a relief might lead to a stoppage of work or to a breach of the law. In clause 47, which deals with overtime, the references to Sunday work have been omitted, for it is obvious that, in this country, Sunday is no more sacred, than any other day of the week and the clause now allows overtime only for work in excess of normal hours. A special sub-clause has been added to provide for the fixing of time rates for piece workers, so that their overtime payments may be calculated.

The changes in the last two Chapters of the Bill do not require much explanation. Clause 60 has been recast and clause 61 provides for a gradual increase in the penalty for offence relating to hours of work and to adolescents and children. Clause 70, to which I shall refer again, repeats a general provision of the Act of 1911. The Select Committee have also provided that the member of a firm or association to be nominated as the occupier of a factory must be resident in British India, that the limitation for prosecutions should in certain cases be twelve and not six months, and that all rules made under the Act, and not only rules made by Local Government, should be subject to previous publication.

It will, I think, be obvious that, in a measure of this complexity and importance, further examination was bound to reveal deficiencies. The report of the Select Committee was laid on the table in January or February last. After that, we went through the Bill again in my Department with all the meticulous examination that, as the House knows, Mr. Clow brings to a measure of this character. We found a few loose ends which needed to be drawn together and that is the reason for the amendments. I must frankly confess to the House that I much dislike bringing forward amendments from these Benches to measures once they have been through Select Committee, and I do my best to avoid doing so, but there are occasionally cases in which it does seem that we can very definitely make improvements. This is one of them. No fundamental principles are involved, and, in fact, it is rather a question of omitting clauses than of modifying them.

I do not think I need say more about the amendments we propose to move now as they would be fully explained to the House later on and I trust we shall be able to convince the House that they are desirable and necessary. It is a matter of great satisfaction to me that the principle of this Bill has commended itself to the House and that it has emerged from the Select Committee strengthened and improved. Sir, I move. (Applause.)

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That the Bill to consolidate and amend the law regulating labour in factories, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration."

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (Assam : Muhammadan) : Sir, some of us in the Select Committee failed to persuade the majority of our colleagues to accept certain suggestions that were made by us, and, therefore, we have found it necessary to append a Note of Dissent to the report. Honourable Members are aware that labour is represented in this House by the solitary figure of my Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi. Sir, the position is necessarily reflected in the Select Committee. All that those who are interested in the cause of labour can do is to persuade Honourable Members by appealing to their sense of fairness, justice and sympathy and make all sorts of appeal to them to get support for their point of view. The task is rather a difficult one. Against the conservatism of these employers and the extreme cautiousness on the part of Government, and, what is still more difficult to tackle with, with the almost reactionary attitude of the small factory owners, it is almost an impossible and an uphill task to effect any substantial improvement in the Bill, and we must recognise that after all it is the capacity of the small factory owners to adjust themselves to changes that determines the rate of progress in these measures. I must admit, Sir, that Government also made some minor concessions and so did the big employers of labour. But on vital matters we failed to effect any improvement in the Bill, and the Bill comes out of the Select Committee without any great material changes. I shall only refer to one or two instances in which we failed to effect any improvement in the Bill. I must refer to the hours of work.

L174LAD

[Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury.]

The majority of the Select Committee supports the original provision in the Bill which fixes 54 hours a week for perennial factories and 60 hours for the seasonal. Our view is that 48 hours should be the weekly limit for the perennial factories and 54 for the seasonal, but this did not get much support from the majority members of the Committee. It is only in this direction of reducing the working hours that we can afford some relief to the workers in this country. I think it was in the year 1921 that the Washington Convention accepted the eight hours a day for the workers all the world over. The majority of the countries in Europe and other places have accepted this eight hours a day and are working that provision, but we failed to persuade our colleagues on the Select Committee to accept that point of view and they have supported the original provisions in accordance with the majority recommendation of the Labour Commission about 54 hours a week for the perennial factories and 60 hours for the seasonal.

There is another point about which we wanted to effect some change, and that is about the definition of the word "factory". When the Bill was first referred to the Select Committee, I tried to point out that it is in the case of the smaller factories that the conditions are more deplorable than in the case of the bigger factories, and it is those factories that needed closer supervision. Mr. Clow, on behalf of the Government of India, assured us that Government were contemplating to introduce a Bill to deal with small factories; but if they had accepted our suggestion reducing the number of workers necessary to constitute a factory, many of the factories, that are at present outside the scope of the Factories Act, would have been included in it, and I think to a great extent that would have obviated the necessity of bringing out a separate legislation for this purpose.

There is only another point to which I want to refer, and that is with regard to the welfare orders. I was surprised to find that the Government of India refused so persistently to accept the recommendation of the Royal Commission with regard to welfare orders. We had hoped that in the Select Committee we would be able to persuade Government to accept our suggestion for framing rules with regard to welfare orders, but there too we failed in our efforts. Though we have failed in many of our efforts to effect improvements in the Bill, I fully recognise that it is undoubtedly an improvement upon the present conditions, and for this reason I heartily support this motion that is before the House. I also want to join Sir Frank Noyce in paying a tribute to the help that we received from the Factory Inspectors whose advice has been very valuable to us in our labours.

Mr. G. Morgan (Bengal, European): Sir, the Bill has been greatly improved by the Select Committee, and I congratulate the Honourable Member in charge on having at last been able to bring this improved measure before the House. But I would just like to make one or two general observations. We have always felt that the Bill is too general in its application. The recommendations of the Whitley Commission were taken as the basis, but we have always felt that the revision of the Bill should have been done in such a manner that at any rate, the major industries should have received special attention and the law applying to each major industries be framed to meet its requirements on the analogy of the British Factories Act. I think, in the near future, after this Bill has been in operation, it will be found that special legislation will be necessary for at least some of the major industries.

Then, another point which emerges from this Bill is this. We feel that the powers of the Local Governments and the Inspectors have been extended rather too much. Of course, this being a co-ordinating Act and an all-India Act applying to all industries, it becomes a Bill of clauses for the Local Governments to take action and make exceptions, and so on. But we feel that the powers have been extended rather too fully. It will only be in actual operation that we shall be able to see whether the Local Governments translate into action the various powers that are given and whether their actions are beneficial to the industries or not. We think that the discriminating powers of the Inspectors in specifying measures to be taken are very wide. I have some amendments to that effect. It is a difficult position we know, but we do feel that the Inspector would have to be almost a superman to be able to specify measures to be adopted for improvement in everything and it should be the object of legislation to minimise the likelihood of appeals in every way possible. I do not think Government will accept my amendments, but we trust that if those particular parts of the clauses become part of the Act, the Local Governments will, at any rate, before actually allowing the measures to be put into force, take every precaution to see that the employers and the Factory Inspectors are consulted jointly in the matter. And, then, again, comes the difference between the Provinces, and that, of course, is a very difficult question. The only co-ordinating clause in the Bill is clause 80. Even today the Honourable Member has pointed out that where hazardous occupations are concerned, it has been necessary to put it under the control of the Governor General in Council, because there might be differences of opinion between various Provinces as to what constitutes a hazardous occupation. We feel that that attitude may emerge on almost every clause throughout the Bill, and we hope that Government will treat clause 80, not merely as a nominal control, but that they will definitely scrutinise the rules and regulations sent up to them to see whether they are advisable or not and whether there is co-ordination between the Provinces on matters relating to more than one province in India.

Then, there is the wording in clause 44 (2)—"exceptional press of work". This is a very important clause, and, here again the views of different Inspectors may be quite antagonistic. I do not know really what "exceptional press of work" will mean. I do not think it will apply to anything except probably some engineering works or ship-building works or some thing of that kind.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: May I mention for the Honourable Member's information an example which possibly comes home specially to us here, and that is pressure of work in connection with printing the proceedings of this House?

Mr. G. Morgan: That is all right; but this is of general application and can be in force for two months under the clause. It will be very difficult to say what will be "exceptional press of work" in any of these industries, such as cotton mills and jute mills : I can quite understand that there may be, in engineering, some special piece of machinery which has to be done very quickly, and it may be necessary to apply for exemption in order to get this piece of work done within a specified time ; but I think this exceptional press of work wants very careful watching.

Mention has been made by my Honourable friend, the Deputy President, in regard to the smaller factories and the idea that another Bill might be brought in later to meet that case ; but, under clause 5, the Local Governments have power to bring in factories which have only ten or more workmen. At the present moment, when everything is being done to encourage what is called cottage industries which can be defined on a wider basis than actual cottage industries, it seems to me that we could have reduced the number from 20 to 10 without any particular disadvantage to the Bill.

I have nothing more to say now. When the various amendments come up, I will discuss the actual merits of each clause as it comes along, but I want particularly to stress the point that this Bill is too wide in its application ; and, in supporting that this will be taken into consideration, I should like to put on record that it would have been better if the Act had been revised in such a manner that each industry would receive special attention. Sir, I support.

Dr. R. D. Dalal (Nominated Non-Official) : Mr. President, I crave your permission to offer a few remarks on the Factories Bill now before the House, and what I have to say is the outcome of considerable experience of factory inspection work as a public health expert in the southern registration district of the Bombay Presidency.

In the first place, I congratulate the Honourable the Member for Industries and Labour on bringing forward this Bill, which satisfies the requirements of wholesome and progressive legislation. It is a sound and beneficent measure ; and it will be the means not only of ameliorating the condition of the toiling masses in factories, but also of serving in the long run the best interests of the employers and of the industries upon whose prosperity the welfare of the country so largely depends. It is said that Englishmen are drawn to India by nothing more than the pay. Well, Sir, payment for work done is one of the conditions of labour all the world over. But this is a sordid view to take of the connection. Let us look behind it, and we shall find the sense of responsibility, of devotion to duty, of love for the country, and of sympathy with the people. My Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, is actuated by these sentiments, and by a genuine desire to advance the prosperity of this country ; and, I am sure, his complete mastery of the subject, his assiduous industry, and his constant anxiety to conciliate all interests have won for him glowing admiration and high regard of every section of this Honourable House.

The most contentious and important item in the Bill is the one dealing with hours of work. At first the millowners and Merchants' Chambers were adamant in their opposition to any alteration of the 60-hour week. But they reconsidered their position and withdrew their opposition, and it is a matter of general satisfaction that there is a substantial agreement as regards the reduction of the hours of work to the 54-hour week. In this connection, I desire to express my high appreciation of the extraordinary devotion, energy, tact, and skill displayed by my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, in bringing about this satisfactory result. The deep underlying motive of the reduction of hours of work is the avoidance of fatigue. The question of hours of work is intimately bound up with the question of industrial fatigue, and the subject of industrial fatigue is of cardinal importance to efficiency. So, Sir, with your permission, I shall explain to the House very briefly the subject of industrial fatigue and its implications.

The human being is the most important machine in industrial development ; so all measures, designed to improve the efficiency of the human machine, are matters of economic importance. Public health, with its two main functions of preventing disease and of increasing the welfare of the individual, is of fundamental importance in the industrial development of a country, more so in India, where labour is less organised, where the prevalence of parasitic infections and epidemic diseases and diseases associated with mal-nutrition, such as tuberculosis, is excessive, and where climatic conditions and environment generally are exceedingly unfavourable. It is fallacious to take the bodily sensations as a guide, much less as a measure of fatigue, for there may be diminished capacity for work before any signs of fatigue appear in sensation. There is a limit beyond which the human machine can no longer produce satisfactorily ; but if this limit is exceeded, there is an impairment of quality and reduction in the quantity of work, damage to health results and accidents may occur as a result of fatigue. This question of fatigue is fraught with a great peril. Spirituous drink offers its dangerous relief to a fatigued body. Industrial fatigue results from the action upon the tissues of the carbonic acid and lactic acid formed by the chemical dissolution of the glycogen of over-worked muscles. These products, locally produced, not only cause fatigue in the local neuro-muscular apparatus, but since they find their way into the blood stream, they affect higher nerve centres in the brain ; and since the nerve cells are liable to fail from exhaustion before the muscles become affected, the problem of industrial fatigue is an almost wholly problem of fatigue in the nervous system. Fatigue results not only from the exhaustion of substances supplying chemical energy for work, but also from the accumulation of the waste products of the chemical changes. These chemical products of activity are removed from the tissues by the blood, but time is required both for their removal and for their subsequent excretion from the body. The accumulative results of fatigue damage the general health. The stale and tired feeling may result in a craving for change and excitement, and may lead to over-indulgence in spirituous drinks. The evil effects of fatigue are cumulative, hence the necessity for frequent rest-spells, Sundays, and holidays. An early and important sign of fatigue is a want of co-ordination and failure in the power of concentration. This may be shown objectively in an increased frequency of accidents. The available tests of fatigue in practice are the output of work and accidents occurring in the course of work, the proportion of mistakes or spoilt work, and medical reports of conditions of ill health attributable [Dr. R. D. Dalal.] to overwork. It is now recognised that for the most economical conduct of an industry the human machine must operate under optimum conditions. Work under optimum conditions of duration, healthy surroundings, good feeding and housing not only promotes health and efficiency and greatly reduces industrial sickness but also leads to an increase in the quality and quantity of production, and eventually in the long run diminishes its costs, while increasing the well-being, content, and sobriety of the workers.

Now, Sir, I turn to another important point. This consolidated enactment does not touch the important question of prohibition of employment of women in factories before and after child birth. Experience has shown that cessation from labour for a month preceding confinement renders the pregnancy more likely to proceed to the normal term, and infants in consequence are stronger and more fully developed at birth. As women have generally poor physical powers and have to bear the strain of domestic duties, maternity, and claims of offspring, cessation of work for four weeks before and four weeks after confinement is, in my opinion, absolutely necessary. It should, therefore, be required by Statute that employment of women, in factories for four weeks before and four weeks after confinement, should be prohibited. I do not, of course, deny that there are difficulties to be faced, but I think it can be shown that if the position be closely examined and if maternity benefit schemes be introduced, the objections will be found to be a good deal less formidable.

Now, Sir, this leads me to another important point. Serious results accrue from the practice of mothers leaving their homes during the day to work in factories. Infants are, as a consequence, deprived of their natural food and of the care of their natural guardians. Some mothers give even opium to infants before leaving their homes. Infant mortality attributable to the practice of married women engaging in factory work amounts to one-fifth of the total infant mortality. The remedy that at once suggests to us is to compulsorily provide Day Nurseries or Creches, which afford facilities for feeding and looking after the child, and for detecting the onset of illness when the creche is under skilled supervision. Many employers object to creches, but it is impossible to see how the needs of mothers industrially employed are to be otherwise met. So the provision of properly staffed and adequately equipped and efficiently supervised creches should be made obligatory in factories employing women in substantial and appreciable numbers.

Now, Sir, I shall just say one word as regards the Inspectorate. In view of the fact that provision of medical inspection and medical supervision is most important and essential for the proper administration of the Factory Act, there should be a statutory provision that the Assistant Director of Public Health of his district should be the Medical Inspector of Factories, with power of entry at all times and with the right to inspect vital statistics registers, and to report and to administer on all health matters, and to carry out effective inspections. Adequate inspection of a factory from medical and public health point of view requires expert technical knowledge. The Assistant Director of Public Health is technically qualified; so he should be the Medical Inspector of Factories for his district. This suggestion will prove of great utility, because it will enable the Assistant Director of Public Health to keep in close touch with the District Magistrate, who is under the Act an Inspector of Factories for his district. Statutory provision would give the Assistant Director of Public Health authority and status and standing in the eyes of the employers. In pre-war days, throughout India, Civil Surgeons were Medical Inspectors of Factories.

Now, Sir, I shall pass to the next point, and that is as regards the certification of children. Before I take up this point, let me explain the term anthropometry. By the term anthropometry is meant the measurement of the human body with a view to determining its average dimensions and the proportion of its different parts at different ages. Now, Sir, as regards the certification of children, the value of anthropometrical data cannot be over-estimated. Height in itself is not of so much anthropometrical importance as it is in relation to weight. Height and weight are indications of nutrition. If height be found to be deficient, it may indicate insufficient food, or an excessive expenditure of energy in mental or physical work, or the onset of some disease. I would suggest that each Province should appoint an Anthropometrical Committee, which should work out its own anthropometrical standards having due regard to racial and environmental differences for the guidance of certifying surgeons, and that physical standards should invariably be prescribed. So, in my opinion, the words "if any" should be deleted from the fifth line of sub-clause (2) (a) of clause 52 in Chapter V of the Bill.

Now, Sir, I pass to the next point. In England, a child receives efficient elementary education before the age of 15, at which age only the child is employed into a factory, and the child must have obtained a certificate of proficiency in elementary education; but in India nearly the whole mass of industrial labour is illiterate, so the education of industrial labour demands special attention and, in my opinion, this disability could be made good by means of factory schools. I would suggest that every factory, in which more than 15 children between the ages of 12 and 15 are employed, should maintain a factory school for their benefit, and that attendance at such school for three hours every working day should be obligatory in the case of each child, and that no fees should be charged for the instruction given in these schools. I urge this suggestion on the grounds of justice and humanity. It is not unfair to expect that factory owners, who make money out of these children, should hold themselves responsible for the education of these children. Under the Act, a child between the ages of 12 and 15 will have to put in five hours' work in factory; so the time-tables of these schools should be so arranged as to suit these children. These factory schools should be efficiently supervised by the Education Department, and the cost of the factory schools should be borne by the factory owners, Government, and the local body concerned.

Then, Sir, there is another point. The Act should include an injunction that all factories and medical attendants should be required to notify industrial diseases, such as anthrax, phosphorous poisoning, mercurial poisoning, lead poisoning, compressed air illness, etc., to the Chief Inspector of Factories. The object of notification is to bring these industrial diseases within the operation of the Workmen's Compensation Act.

[Dr. R. D. Dalal.]

Now, I shall refer to one other point, and that is as regards the records of sickness and disease. In factories accurate records of sickness and disease should be kept, because they are needed to be studied with a view to the adoption of preventive measures. In factories the necessity for the accurate maintenance of records of sickness and mortality is not realised, but without these it is impossible to determine variations in health at different periods or to estimate the effects of expenditure upon prevention of disease. So, all factories should be required to maintain accurate birth and death registers, sickness registers, and epidemic disease registers.

Now, Sir, I have one more point to mention. An annual conference of Factory Inspectors to compare notes will be useful in keeping factory administration on the same level of efficiency in all parts of the country. So, in the interests of uniformity and efficiency of factory administration, an annual conference of Chief Inspectors of Factories and Directors of Public Health should be convened and held under the chairmanship of the Honourable the Member for Industries and Labour.

Now, Sir, I come to the last point. Welfare work in factories is to the mutual advantage of the employer and the employee. In my opinion, there should be a statutory method by which a uniform minimum standard of welfare could be secured, where the nature of the processes carried on or the special conditions and circumstances of employment demand it. So the issue of welfare orders, as is done by the Ministry of Health in England, in relation to sanitation and housing, would conduce to the efficiency, contentment, and happiness of the workers.

Now, Sir, in conclusion, I have one observation to make. I have already pointed out that I have had considerable experience of factory inspection work in the southern division of the Bombay Presidency. Let me present a picture of the conditions which obtain in factories today. At present men, women, and children work for unlimited hours. The system of shifts affords every opportunity for work and employment beyond legal limits. In the large majority of factories, children are little better than beasts of burden uncared for and untaught. The most ordinary sanitary safeguards are uniformly neglected. In nearly every industrial area, the housing conditions are most unsatisfactory. I do not think it is an exaggeration to say that the present system is a vast sacrifice of human life. But, Sir, by this factory legislation, by this consolidated enactment, the labours of my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, will be the means of ameliorating the deplorable conditions of a stunted, sickly, ignorant population, at present wholly unfitted to hold its own in the growing stress and strain of acute industrial competition in the labour markets of the world, and of making our industrial population an infinitely more efficient productive machine, and of making India a great industrial and producing country, and it is because this Bill takes a substantial step in the direction of reform that I strongly support it, for I firmly believe that by means of it we shall proceed one degree farther in the path, which it is as much our interest as our duty to travel.

Mr. H. P. Mody : The Bill before the House is of far reaching importance to the workers in the factories. It marks a considerable improvement over present day conditions, and my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, is to be congratulated on being responsible for a measure of so beneficial a character to the interests which this Bill seeks to befriend. I recognise the very moderate way in which my Honourable friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, put his case, but I am afraid he was not entirely fair to the Honourable the Industries and Labour Member. I think it was largely due to the spirit of fairness and strict impartiality which Sir Frank Noyce showed, and the confidence which he inspired in his capacity to hold the scales even between capital and labour that we had what is practically a unanimous report on almost all the provisions of the Bill. Speaking "anthropometrically", Sir Frank Noyce completely dominated the proceedings of the Select Committee. (Laughter.)

I shall not refer to the many important provisions of the Bill before us. I shall confine myself to the most dominating feature, which is the provision with regard to the 54-hour week. My Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, has referred to the opposition which this provision evoked from important industrial interests. I would like to tell him that the textile interests were not the only interests opposed to this provision; there were other interests also which were equally opposed. I would like to say exactly what their opposition was based upon. The argument upon which they lay great stress and which they continue to emphasise at every opportunity that they can get is that conditions in India are vastly different from those prevailing in the highly industrialised countries of the west. For, as long ahead as one can see, there cannot be anything like over-production in the technical sense of the word. The bogey of over-production is largely responsible for the various devices which are being resorted to at International Conferences in order to curtail production, and hours of work are the most important feature of these devices. But that stage has not yet been reached in India. It will be many years before it can possibly be reached, and to cramp the industrial development of India, by laying down unduly low hours of work, would be to do a very great disservice to the country. Another consideration is the measure of efficiency of the worker. Here, again, India is leagues behind most western countries and behind Japan. The other day, in a statement which I issued to the press, I made what was regarded as a rather startling assertion, namely, that, compared to output, the Bombay mills were paying, until recently, that is to say, until March, 1933,—I say until that date Bombay mills, relatively to output, were paying the highest wages in the world, barring, of course, the United States. There cannot possibly be any basis of comparison with the States, where perhaps every third or fourth worker can afford to go to the factory in a Ford car. I hope such a condition of things, which we can now only dream of, will some day come about, but I trust the modest pushbike will be within the means of every factory worker within a reasonable measure of time, particularly as Japanese bicycles can now be had, thanks to the policy of our Government, at Rs. 15 a piece. Sir, these are the reasons why, in spite of all that international philanthropists may say at Geneva, this country has got to evolve a labour code of its own. No one can point the finger of scorn at India, because her record in the matter of labour conditions is one of which she can legitimately be proud. We were amongst the first to ratify the Washington Convention with regard to the hours of work. Even Great Britain, for [Mr. H. P. Mody.] reasons of her own, did not ratify the Convention; Japan certainly did not ratify it for years together, with the result that she enjoyed a very considerable advantage in labour conditions over this country, which advantage was largely responsible for the great progress she made at the expense of this country. That being the case, we are not afraid of evolving labour codes of our own and of being able to stand up to the world and say, "what we are doing is fair and just to our workpeople having regard to Eastern conditions". But, Sir, while I felt always confident that our opposition to the fifty-four hour week could be justified on the ground of the peculiar conditions of India, I felt, more particularly in response to the appeal made by my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, that a gesture of sympathy and goodwill might very well be made, and I was able to induce my colleagues, the Bombay millowners, to withdraw their opposition to the fifty-four hour week. I was able to go further, and, in my capacity as President of the Employers' Federation of India, was able to get the members of the Federation to withdraw their objection to the fifty-four hour week. I may just say in passing that the Federation includes all the major industries in India—jute, tea, coal, textile, mining, metallurgy and practically every other major industry that exists in India—and on their behalf it gave me much pleasure to accord my support to the fifty-four hour week. (Mr. B. V. Jadhav : "Very good of you !") I hope so.

Now, my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, said that it was rather a pity that we did not find it possible to introduce a fifty-four hour week straightaway. We did think about it, but we found that it was not fair to many of our members outside Bombay to introduce such a change without due consultation with them, which it was not possible to effect within the time at our disposal. So far as my Association is concerned, the membership is scattered all over India, and for such an Association to introduce a fifty-four hour week straightaway would mean forcing on everyone of its up-country members a far-reaching reform without giving them an opportunity of having their say.

I should have thought my Honourable friends, Mr. Joshi, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury and others, who represent labour interests, would have welcomed such a gesture of goodwill on the part of the industrial interests. After all, let them not forget that we are agreeing to shorter hours at a very considerable sacrifice. So far as the textile industry is concerned, it may mean a difference of half an anna per pound. When it is taken into consideration that the profit is not even a quarter of an anna per pound in these days, a loss of half an anna is a matter of great moment to us, particularly to Bombay, which, during the last few years, have lost enormous sums of money. I should have thought that this gesture of practical sympathy shown by industrial interests would have been appreciated by my Honourable friends, but I was sorry to find that a minute of dissent was thought necessary showing that my Honourable friends would like to go even further and introduce a forty-eight hour week. Now, Sir, I would not cavil at that provided a few conditions were satisfied. If my Honourable friends are content to reduce the standard of life of the operatives—because the less you work, the less pay you get—if my Honourable friends are agreeable to increasing the efficiency of labour, or at any rate to accord their approval to measures concerted by employers to increase the efficiency of labour, if my Honourable friends are agreeable to according their fullest support to measures of protection, then let them suggest the forty-eight hour week by all means, but my Honourable friends do not want that. My Honourable friends do not want to accord their approval to measures of rationalization. They shout against all measures of protection and the only thing in respect of which they want protection is in the matter of wages.

Now, Sir, I cannot conceive of an industry which can reduce hours of work, which can remain satisfied with a low level of efficiency, which can do with a low measure of protection and yet be able to pay high wages to its operatives. The only factory I know of which can go on producing wealth without trouble, and which obviously would be in a position to pay a high scale of wages would be the Royal Mint : and if we were in the position of turning out five-rupee notes in our factories, we should be only too happy to provide for lower hours of work and a very high scale of wages.

Having said that, I should just like to pass on to a matter which is of very considerable importance, and that is the conditions which prevail in the Indian States. I recognize the constitutional difficulties in the way of trying to impose labour standards upon Indian States. That would impinge upon their autonomy, and I do not think that any rough and ready solution can be found, but I certainly think that the Government of India ought to exert all their influence—and that is very considerable—to bring the Indian States into line with British India in matters of labour standards. Already many of the Indian States are enjoying considerable advantages over British India. The conditions of labour are very low, there is hardly anything in the nature of factory inspection, the hours of work are long, living is cheap, taxation—thank goodness, there are some parts of the world where this is the case—taxation is low. For all these reasons there is a tendency for industries to migrate more and more to Indian States, and if more burdens and higher standards were to be imposed on British India, that tendency would be very strongly accentuated. For these reasons, it is very essential that some action should be taken by the Government of India with regard to the Indian States in order to bring them into line, particularly in regard to the provision for a fifty-four hour week, and I hope my Honourable friend will, in the course of his reply, be able to deal with that point. I recognize that it is rather difficult for him to say anything definite, but I just want an assurance that the Government of India are alive to the danger and that they are going to do everything in their power in order to bring Indian States into line with British India.

Sir, I have very little to add. This is a measure upon which the Government of India can congratulate themselves. This is a measure upon which this House can also congratulate itself, and it is a very happy circumstance that almost all the major provisions of the Bill have been accepted with unanimity in the Select Committee. Sir, I support the Bill.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadian Rural) : Sir, I must confess that I am not a factory man and I must also confess that I am not a worker in a factory. But, as one of the lawyer Members of this House, I have given my attention to this Bill, and I hope to place before the House certain observations which require this Bill to be still improved. Those are very necessary improvements on account of which [Mr. Lalchand Navalrai.] the advantage of this Bill will be given to all those for whom it is necessary.

The first point that I wish to place before the House is with regard to the scope of this Bill. The definition of "factory" which has been provided for in this Bill applies to those factories which are worked by power, but its scope has been restricted only to those factories where 20 or more men are workers. I would submit that if full advantage of this Bill has to be given, then it must be extended to those factories where ten or more people are working.

An Honourable Member : Why make it ten ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Because it has been shown that if the number is less than ten, there will be very little power that will be working in a factory. Though, as I said, I am not a factory man, yet I have some experience of the factories, at least in the mufassil, and I know that there are factories where the same safeguard is necessary as it is in those factories where there are more than 20 men. I do not know why it should not be, when the Legislature is legislating an Act in the interests of the workers that it should not apply to those factories where there are ten or more men. On this point I do not go by myself alone. We have on this point the opinion of a recognised leader of the workers and to it support has been given by our Deputy President, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, and also Mr. Thampan has joined hands by putting in a dissentient note on this point. Sir, it is said in the minute of dissent :

"In the definition of factory we would like to substitute the word 'ten' in the place of the word 'twenty'. We consider that time has come when the provisions of the Factory Act should be made applicable automatically by this Bill itself to all factories using power where ten or more workers are employed and it is not enough merely to give to Local Governments power to do it."

I am conscious of the remark that was made by the Honourable Mr. Morgan that the power under clause 5 has been given to the Local Governments. In my humble opinion, it is not sufficient that the power should be given to the Local Government in this respect, when I see that the leaders of the workers and some other gentlemen, who have got experience of this, are of opinion that it should be extended even to those factories where there are ten or more men. Besides that, we are conscious of the difficulties. When the power has been given to the Local Government and it has been decided by the Legislature that the only factories which have 20 or more men have to be protected, the Local Governments also will demur to come to the help of other factories. Then there are several other difficulties. Why should these difficulties be solved by Local Governments ? I submit, therefore, that it is very necessary that this Bill should be extended to those factories which have ten or more workers.

The next point which I wish to place before the House is with regard to certain provisions that have been taken away from the original Bill by the Select Committee. As an instance, I will mention clause 12. Clause 12 refers to the appointment of medical practitioners for the factories. I see that an amendment has been made to the original Bill by making a medical practitioner as one who is a registered medical practitioner. I certainly agree that it is a very sound principle that the appointment should go to a man who is competent and qualified. But, then, there is another thing, and I really wonder why it has been done in that manner. There was a clause in the original Bill, sub-clause (2), which provided that if the medical practitioner was a man directly or indirectly concerned with or had an interest in the factory, he should not be appointed. I cannot understand the reason why in the Select Committee's report this clause has been actually eliminated. There is a similar clause with regard to the Inspectors. I cannot understand why it should not be said that the medical practitioner, though registered, should be a man who must be impartial and should have no interest in the factory. If you are not going to put this restriction, then a man belonging to the factory might act as a medical practitioner who has to perform several functions. He is to certify that a certain individual is of a certain age and he has also to certify the fitness of the workers, and it may be that he may be interested in throwing out workers. It will be easy for him to give a certificate that the man is unfit. There is no higher officer of health or of Medical Department to help the worker, as my friend, Dr. Dalal, was saying. In the absence of that inspection by the higher officer, it is absolutely fair that a man who can act impartially should be a medical practitioner. The reason given by the Select Committee for the deletion of this clause will be found in the report of that Committee under clause 12. There they say :

"We have modified clauses 13 and 14 to provide that only registered medical practitioners may be appointed as certifying surgeons."

Sub-clause (2) of clause 12 has been omitted which provided that the medical practitioner should not be concerned with the interests of the factory either directly or indirectly. And what reason have they given for it ? It has been omitted on the ground that it might give rise to practical difficulties. Now, I cannot understand what those practical difficulties are. There are a number of medical practitioners nowadays. You just advertise for a post and you can get a thousand applications. Why should there be any difficulties of selection ? So, I do not think this reason is going to appeal to the House. On this subject I have put in an amendment and will speak later. The second reason which the Select Committee have given is that it might unduly limit the field of choice. This is no reason at all.

Now, let me proceed further and come to clause 13. That clause refers to sanitation. On this subject I have some experience, and, therefore, I feel competent to place those facts before the House, and I hope the House will help in getting that nuisance removed. Clause 13 reads thus :

"Every factory shall be kept clean and free from effluvia arising from any drain, privy or other nuisance, and shall be cleansed at such times and by such methods as may be prescribed and these methods may include lime-washing or colour-washing, painting, varnishing, disinfecting and deodorising."

Sir, I am now referring to those factories which I have myself seen in

1 P.M.

Sind where there are no drains at all, and, I am sure, the House will be satisfied with my statement, because I am going to place before it my own personal experience. In a way, the point is that there are certain factories which are worked by power. Say, for instance, there is a rice-threshing machine. What do we find there ? They are boiling rice within the premises. The hot water cannot go out, because there are no drains in those factories to take the water out. How do they dispose of the water ? The water is spread out in the premises, and this has also come to the notice of Factory Inspectors. They are able to do nothing. Therefore, I submit, you must provide a clause which insists that drains should be kept in the factories, so that it may lead to cleanliness. Unless and until such a provision is made, the factory owners will not lay out drains. I think my Honourable friend, Mr. Hamid Ali, who was a Collector of Larkhana and who has seen these factories will bear me out that the water from these factories goes out into the public roads which are municipal roads. The Municipality says it is not responsible and asks people to go to Factory Inspectors for redress. When the Factory Inspector asks the factory owner to lay out a drain, he says that the water is going out into the public roads and so the Municipality has to provide drains. The Factory Inspector says, "No, you must provide", but this is not done by the factory owner. In this way the things are going on. If anybody passes through these roads, they are simply stinking from foul smell. I, therefore, submit, it is necessary to modify this clause so as to make it incumbent on the factory owner to lay out a proper drain for the water to go out. Therefore, I have put in an amendment with regard to that.

An Honourable Member : Who will do it in future under the Act ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Of course the employers. The factory owners have got to keep the drains and make provision for them. What is done in towns is that the water is taken out to the sewage. But if it be obligatory on the factory owner to lay out proper drains, so that everything might be kept clean, then he will attend to it.

Now, I come to the question of hours. I confess I am not quite competent to speak on this question. But considering all the facts that have been placed by Honourable Members, I can give my opinion on this question. I do see there has been a good deal of sympathy with regard to this question from the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce and also sympathy from Mr. Mody, because it is only after these two Honourable Members have joined together and come to a certain level that a salutary provision has been arrived at and embodied in the Bill. The point is this. All over the world, there is a cry that factory owners are hard upon workers. In England and other places—I have gone to those countries also—I find that factory owners are not so unreasonable as I used to find them here and time was when they did not recognise that without co-operation and conciliation among factory owners and workers, work will not go on and bickerings will continue. For a long time that has been the complaint in this country. I will call it a chronic complaint. The old Act which is now being amended provided for 60-hours work a week. What I find is this. In the Select Committee, where, I was told, the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce dominated the whole show, and, I think, very rightly too, because without some dominating personality nothing could have been achieved in the Select Committee, I find the Select Committee have come to a very good conclusion. I know there are places where the workers require 40 hours work. There are other places where they ask for a little more. An expert like my Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi, asks for a 48-hour week. I think he ought also to be reasonable on account of the present conditions. When I referred to the note of Mr. Mody, I found it very appealing to me. For the present, looking to the economic pressure which is working so much nowadays, we should have this 54 hours tried for sometime. Mr. Mody says in his Minute of Dissent :

"In signing this Report, it is necessary to state that the interests I represent have withdrawn their opposition to the 54 hour week solely out of consideration for the welfare of the workers in the factories. While they opposed the change in the first instance, they recognised that it was bound to come some day, and they would have been prepared to welcome it at the proper time."

I am very glad that they hold that times are changing and so they have also to change. They have also to divide their profits with other people and not be the sole masters of all their earnings. I submit, therefore, that so far as the hours are concerned, I am not dissatisfied for the present, and I think it is good provision to try 54 hours.

The next point, referred to by Dr. Dalal, is that some provision should be made for the education of the children of these workers. If you do not provide for their education, there will be difficulties and inconveniences to the workers. You have now provided certain conveniences for their families and there ought to be this provision also for their children. I am glad that Dr. Dalal has placed this point before the House, and I entirely endorse his appeal for such a provision. The reason is that other employers do make similar provision with regard to the children of their workers. If you go to the railways, you find that the children of railway servants are being educated in schools maintained by the railways. That is all to the credit of the railways. Why not take a lesson from the railways and provide schools for the education of the children of factory workers. I, therefore, hope that some consideration will be given for a provision of this nature in the Bill. I find no amendment to this effect, but I hope, under the rule-making powers given to the Governor General and to the Local Government, a provision would be made to this effect.

There are certain other provisions for which I have given notice of amendments. I come to clause 60 which refers to punishment. The punishment for the very first offence is a maximum fine of Rs. 500. From my experience as a lawyer, I can say what a Magistrate thinks is minimum if the maximum is fixed at Rs. 500. He may find that Rs. 200 is the minimum when you have such a high maximum. Therefore, I submit that this question of punishment should also be taken into consideration. There are some specific amendments on this question and I will say more when I come to them. On this point, however, say, for instance, that there is a provision that, if a factory owner does not supply sufficient drinking water, he will be punished and the Magistrate can fine him Rs. 500. Just consider if this would be reasonable.

Then, I come to the second point with regard to prosecutions. Prosecutions are to be filed by these Factory Inspectors, and now that these Factory Inspectors are to be appointed in accordance with the provisions of this Bill, I hope responsible men will be appointed. Otherwise, I know what those small Inspectors have been doing and how they have been launching prosecutions without any sanction, simply shoving any man into Court and leaving him to the mercy of the Court and his own anxieties and expense. I do say that there is one safeguard that is absolutely necessary, and I think this will appeal to the Honourable Member in charge of this Bill. This Bill provides two kinds of offences. One is direct offence, e.g., the example that I gave just now about not supplying sufficient water. But there are certain offences with regard to which the Inspector has to give notice in writing in the first instance to the factory owner to do certain things which he wants according to the rules and the Act. If the factory owner does not do that, a provision has very wisely been made in this Bill for a safeguard against the Inspector's order. That lies in the factory owner going in for an appeal, and if that appeal is decided one way or the other, and if the factory owner does not abide by the decision of the appellate Court, then a prosecution has to be launched. In that case, I do not see that it is necessary for the Inspector to have any further sanction to launch that prosecution. That is quite sufficient; but what about those direct offences for which he is not to give any notice and which do not come within the purview of the provisions with regard to appeal? In the case that I mentioned, namely, non-supply of sufficient drinking water, the Inspector sees a certain defect and he can bring the factory owner to Court. In that case some safeguards are needed, and I have put in a very reasonable safeguard in my amendment. I have not asked that the Local Government should give sanction for that, but I have asked only one simple thing. According to this Bill you are appointing Chief Inspectors also. So, why should not the Factory Inspector, who detects a thing and acts just like a policeman, report to the Chief Inspector and go to Court only after the Chief Inspector gives the sanction? This would not take much time, and from my own large experience of the Courts, I can say that very often without any sanction people are unnecessarily dragged into Court and acquitted.

The last point on which I wish to dwell is with regard to the launching of the prosecution within a certain time. The Bill provides that within six months a prosecution can be filed, and, furthermore, it provides that if an order has been given in writing to the factory owner or factory occupier (which is the word used in the Bill) and he has disobeyed the order, the Inspector will launch the complaint within 12 months, and, if it is not in writing, he can do it within six months. I say this is a very objectionable provision. The time is too long and this will be a sword hanging over that man for six months. Why should the time for launching the prosecution be six months if the order is not in writing and twelve months if it is in writing? I do not see the logic of it, and, therefore, I have tabled an amendment with regard to this also. I hope I have convinced the House that the points I have raised are not such as should be thrown away. They should be given consideration, and I hope sufficient consideration will be given to them. I will say further when I move my amendments.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half Past Two of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

Mr. S. G. Jog (Berar Representative) : Sir, this is one of the most important pieces of legislation which, just at the fag end of our legislative career, we are passing. In the former legislation relating to the welfare of the workers, I had occasion to take part in the Select Committee proceedings. But unfortunately I had no occasion to serve on this Committee.

However, my interest in the welfare of the workers has not slackened a bit; but I find that it is rather unfortunate that the real welfare-seeker of the workers,—I mean my friend, Mr. N. M. Joshi,—is unfortunately absent today, and in his absence it is our duty to guard the interests and see to the welfare of the workers.

As a layman, I should like to take advantage of this opportunity to make a few general observations. India is not sufficiently industrialised. Up till now there was a great divergence of opinion between the employers and employees and also the Government. It is really a fortunate circumstance that all these three interests are gradually coming closer and closer to each other to the extent that practically the angle of vision of all three is practically the same,—the welfare of the labourer and of the working classes. I have no mind to examine the details of this Bill, but I should like to make a few general observations which arise from the provisions of this Bill.

My friend, Dr. Dalal, has made a very touching reference to one omission, and that is about the education of the workers in these factory areas. I think it should be the duty of the factory owners to see to the education of these people, and the bringing forward of this measure is, I think, a very good opportunity of making some provision, throwing some responsibility on the factory owners, to make some provision for the education of their workers.

Another point which I should like to bring to the notice of the Member in charge is this: the question of the refreshments that are provided in the factory areas. Many of these workers, during the recess hours, partake of this food, and so far as I know, there is no proper check over these refreshments, with the result that at times very bad refreshments are provided which has a very bad effect on the health of the workers. I think either in this legislation or in the rule-making power, Government should introduce a provision for issuing licences to these refreshment vendors or some responsibility should be thrown on the factory owners to see that good refreshments and healthy refreshments from the workers' point of view are provided. This is a suggestion which I would like to make on this occasion, and I would earnestly request the Member in charge to introduce this suggestion either in the rule-making power or in the legislation itself.

The third point to which I would like to draw the attention of this House is with reference to the note which my Honourable friend, Mr. Mody, has submitted. Since the last Session, I find that he has raised a battle-cry against the Indian States. He may have his just grievances, because the trade has been diverted from Bombay to some of these States. My friend has also raised a revolt even in this Bill by saying that similar provisions should be introduced in Indian States and that similar factory laws should be introduced there. I do not know what grievance my friend, Mr. Mody, has got. If the circumstances in the Indian States are such that the workers there get more facilities, I see no reason why Mr. Mody should complain about it and try to put any handicap in those cases. It is only very recently that some of these States are becoming industrially-minded—they are just introducing some industries in their States—which will have a great effect in the welfare of their subjects: their industries and factories are still in the stage of infancy, and I see no reason why the British Government, with a view to helping themselves, should try to introduce handicaps on the prosperity and progress of industries there. Besides, I find that the British Government at present have got the power of enforcing these laws in the Indian States. On the contrary, I do not think it will be proper to force any such legislation on the States. As I said already, some of these industries are just being introduced in the Indian States and they must have sufficient time to prosper, and we must see that more industries are introduced in these States. After all, the workers and labourers in these States will, after some time, be able to realise their own rights, and probably the rulers of these States will sufficiently guard the welfare of their workers. I do not, therefore, entirely agree with the view expressed by my friend, Mr. Mody, in his note attached to the Select Committee report.

As I have said, this is a most important piece of legislation which will go a great way to improve the conditions of the labourers. It is a general charge that the Indian labourer is unskilled, that he has no education, no sense of responsibility and no sense of duty, and, therefore, it is not proper to reduce the working hours. May I appeal to my friend, Mr. Mody, and ask him, who is responsible for this state of affairs? In Bombay and many other places, factories were started and mills have been working for a long time and no sense of duty has been created in any of these workers. I think it is the neglect of these millowners that they have not created a sense of responsibility and sense of duty in the workers, by neglecting their welfare. Up till now, the workers were treated as animals. These millowners and others never thought that the working classes had any human rights, that their interests and rights should be protected and guarded or that they had comforts which must be looked after by the millowners. But it is really a good indication that both the employers and the employees are now coming closer and closer, and both have begun to realise their responsibility. India has made a great advance in industry, but the progress of an industry depends upon a clear understanding of the two sections engaged in it, and India's industrial prosperity will only advance, when both the workers and the employers realise their responsibilities to each other, and also when the Government will be thoroughly nationalised. With these words, Sir, I really commend the work that has so far been done by legislation, and I heartily congratulate the Honourable Member in charge on his achievement that during his régime he has really made a great deal of progress by means of legislation in furthering the welfare of the labouring classes. Sir, I commend this motion for the consideration of the Bill.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi (Tirhut Division : Muhammadan) : Sir, it is very gratifying to note that our Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, has availed himself of the great opportunity that was awaiting him in his Department. This, like all other Departments in the category of nation-building Departments, has been starving, and few Honourable Members have given it the attention that it deserved. So many beneficial measures are awaiting decision. I am glad to find that in Sir Frank Noyce we have a very sympathetic heart which prompted him to bring forward legislations of such important character. He has pushed on many such measures during his short régime, but still there are a number of them requiring decision and action. In connection with this Bill, I admit that Sir Frank Noyce has definitely won over the capitalists and brought them down to 54 hours a week, but that is not going to satisfy the labouring classes. I am sure they will not agree to this 54-hour week. My experience of labour in Bihar is that every factory owner is himself trying to satisfy the labour by giving them 48 hours a week. To my knowledge, even small factory owners in Bihar have been employing their labour for eight hours a day, with an hour's interval at midday. Sir, India is a hot country, and one cannot expect these labourers to do more work efficiently for a longer time. The more efficient you want them to be, the less time you should require them to work for. It is strict supervision that is required over the labourers of this country if they are to work efficiently. If the capitalists would not have more people to supervise labour and would not teach labour how to work hard, they will not get much out of longer hours. The longer hours will not benefit even the capitalists. Shorter hours with adequate supervision over the labourers is the one thing which will help both the labourers and the capitalists. I find that much has still to be done in this connection by the Honourable Member in charge of Industries and Labour.

The distinction that is sought to be drawn between one factory and another is also somewhat anomalous. I do not find any reason why a man employing labour in power-houses should be exempt from the provisions of this Bill. A man employing even ten persons in a power house has to look to the same principles of welfare of human life as a man employing a larger number of people in factories. That distinction will have to be removed some time or other. But constituted as this House is at present, we cannot expect to get better results than what our Honourable friend has been pleased to give us, and, therefore, we should be satisfied with what he has done, but it does not mean that we feel sure of the grounds on which we have been put. With these words, I don't oppose the consideration of the Bill.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I need not repeat all the encomiums that have been expressed by the previous speakers. They are very well-deserved by the Honourable Member in charge of this Department. He has shown his broad heart by introducing a really good piece of legislation. But, Sir, when I say this, I do not say that there is no room for improvement in the Bill. My Honourable friend, Dr. Dalal, has laid down in a very fine speech this morning a number of principles which ought to be borne in mind when one is considering the improvement of the lot of the labourers. The factory labourers of this country had been up to this time a neglected body. Time was not far distant when they were required to work for 12 hours a day continuously, and in order to reach the factory they had to leave their homes before break of day and return to their homes one or two hours after sunset. In this way, at that time, it was said that the children of the workers did not know their fathers, because they could not see them in day time, and during the night time the children were in bed. When the period of 12 hours was reduced to 11 hours, a great howl was raised by the millowners and other employers and they prophesied that their industry would be ruined. But in a very short time they got themselves reconciled to the change and they found that they did not suffer in any way in the output of work on account of the reduction in hours. Now the period of 11 hours a day has been reduced to 10 hours. That too is a very long period no doubt, but the factory owners and the millowners of Bombay and other places raised their protest when the Government of India intended to reduce it to nine hours a day, that is, 54 hours a week.

[Mr. B. V. Jadhav.]

Now they have seen the wisdom of not opposing Government in this respect and they have given their consent, or at all events, they are submitting in despair to the inevitable. But, Sir, even nine hours a day is too long a period for the labourers. Dr. Dalal has explained the theory of individual fatigue. It is well-known that in a cold climate, persons can put on more hours in work without much fatigue than they can do in a hot climate like that of India. If in England and other Western countries 48 hours a week or even 44 hours a week is prescribed, much more is it necessary for India to have 48 hours work a week. But, now the present Bill lays down that the workers will be obliged to work 54 hours a week. As a step towards the goal, I think we may accept it with a protest and with a hope that in a very few years, Government will see the necessity of reducing the 54 hours a week to 48 hours a week or 44 hours a week. We know from experience how much time is wasted by every labourer in a Bombay mill. Although nominally the working day is of nine hours the labourer hardly puts seven or eight hours' work a day. He loiters a great deal because his physical power is of a very low standard, and he cannot work continuously nine hours a day. So, even if the time be reduced to eight hours a day, I do not think there will be any material loss to the factory owner because then the one hour will be cut off from the loitering time.

An Honourable Member : They will go on loitering still.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : They will not go on loitering, because they have to earn their wages, and generally the labourers in a factory are paid on piece work, and therefore the less they do the smaller will be their wages and they will suffer, and the labourer understands his interests very well not to do it. (Interruption.) The capitalists have always been claiming that they are the friends and protectors of the labourers, but the labourers have come to find out the hollowness of the pretensions of the employers. There are other matters also. There is the question of maternity benefits, and that too is a very good thing. It is very necessary that one month before delivery and one month after it a woman ought to get complete rest and if she has worked zealously during the previous period then her wages ought to be paid by her employer. In Bombay, that legislation has been passed by the local Legislature and it has been found very useful for the women workers in Bombay, and I am very glad that those benefits are to be extended to women workers in other parts of the country. I need not take the time of the House any further. I heartily support the motion that this Bill be taken into consideration.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : The Bill is a great disappointment to me, not so much for what it contains but for what it does not contain, and this I should like to point out very briefly. Let me say at first, that I do not represent labour, and they say, capitalists may exist, capitalists may go, but long live labour. They say, factories may exist, factories may die, but labourers must prosper. Nor do I represent the capitalists who say, labour may live, labour may die, but they must have a fat dividend. I represent neither the one nor the other, but I take a common sense point of view of the whole Bill. Let me first deal with what the Bill does not contain but which ought to have been in this Bill. The Bill provides for medical inspection, but, according to Dr. Dalal, who unfortunately is not present now, this requires the development of a new science called anthropometry. Unless this particular science is introduced in the study of medical science and men trained in it are brought into existence the whole of the medical inspection, according to Dr. Dalal, will be a mere farce. I do not take up the scientific point of view which my Honourable friend, Dr. Dalal, took, but let me take only the common sense point of view. Medical inspection is there, but it has not been provided who will be the proper authorities which will carry on the inspection, whether the inspection of an ordinary Hakim or Vaid or an ordinary sub-assistant surgeon would be sufficient, or whether each cooly and each labourer would have to get a certificate from the civil surgeon and pay him a fee of Rs. 16. Further it is not provided who will pay this amount. It is all right to talk about medical inspection, but when we come to details of its working, enormous difficulties would appear. These difficulties are being shoved on to the Local Government, but as was pointed out by Mr. Morgan, there is only one clause which is the co-ordinating clause, that is clause 80, and in this case each Local Government may go in its own way. One Local Government may accept a certificate of a Hakim or a Vaid, while another Local Government might insist that the certificate must be obtained from the civil surgeon of the place. And my Honourable friend, Dr. Dalal, says that whoever they may be, they will all be unfamiliar with the science of anthropometry because this particular branch of the science is not yet taught in our medical schools and colleges. Therefore it is not merely sufficient to prescribe medical inspection in such a brief manner in this Bill, and leave out all important details.

The second thing which has been avoided is the question of contractors of labour. Attention was drawn to it by the Royal Commission on Labour at page 23 of their report, and nothing has been mentioned in this Bill about overcoming the difficulty about the contractors of labour. In fact, the trouble is not so much about labour as about the contractors of labour, and there is no provision in this Bill about them. No rules are provided in this Bill to guide the actions of contractors. When I come to the contractors I will give a definite illustration. Again, there is no mention in this Bill of the very class of labour which are employed by, what I would call, the orphan department. I do not mean to refer to Mr. Mody's orphanage which I have previously described on the floor of this House. There is another department which I would call the orphan department, and that is the Railway Department. It is called orphan, not because it has not got a master, but because the master is so much engaged, on account of insufficient staff, with the work of another department, the Commerce Department, that he cannot find time for this department. The Railway Department is a department which is not looked after by anyone. I find that the Royal Commission on Labour had two chapters, that is, Chapter IX and X, on the employment of labour in Railways, but there is no mention of it in this Bill. Probably, my Honourable friend might say that, all this will be the subject matter of another Bill, a Railway Bill which will be brought forward by the Railway Board or the Railway Department. But from our experience of yesterday, I feel that the whole thing, if left to the Railway Board, would probably never be done.

It was pointed out on the floor of the House yesterday, and all my civilian friends will be shocked to hear, that in the Railway Department even the seniority list does not exist; and when I asked how long it would take to prepare a seniority list in the Railway Department, I was told that it would take a little less than an indefinite time. Now, my friend, Mr. Rau, is not here, he was a mathematician in his younger days, and I should like to ask, what is the period, which is a little less than an indefinite period,—and I hope there is only one answer and that is that that period is also indefinite. My Honourable friend, Mr. Grantham, who is also a wrangler, will tell you—it is infinity. It means that seniority list will never be published. So this is really an important thing, that there ought to have been some provision in this particular Bill, about the employment of railway labour, because their condition is just as important as the condition of the labour in factories and elsewhere. The second thing about the contractors of labour which I said was that there should be a sound system of contractors for coolies on the railways,—and we know what that contractor system is. We know how much begar these coolies have to do. Now these contractors really charge the Railway Department for loading and unloading, and it is all really done by their own coolies, and nothing is paid for it. You will find this to be the case at Benares, and many other stations on the E. I. Railway. If an inquiry is made, I can supply ample information on this point. Now the important thing to which I should like to draw attention is that there is no mention in this particular Bill about the condition of labour in the Railway Department. There is one more omission—and it is agricultural labour. Now the factory labourer is comparatively much better off than the agricultural labourer. There is mention of factory labourers but no mention is made about the agricultural labourer whose condition I say is much worse. So these are a few points to which I draw attention. If I were to begin to mention in detail what the Bill does not contain, I am afraid I will have to go on for many days and as long as Members of the Assembly, and you, Sir, have patience to bear, but I would just draw attention to one or two defects of this particular Bill. Sir, there has been a good deal of discussion about the hours of work. There has been a regular pull between the protagonists of labour on one side and of capitalists on the other; and the whole thing was decided by the neutral and masterly mind of the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce, as has been admitted on the floor of the House. Sir, I think we could take another view of this whole question and that view is that we should utilise this particular problem in solving the problem of unemployment and this is one of the things we ought to do. We have seen that the Railway Department had to give forced leave of one month or fifteen days to their labourers in order that more people might be able to find work. Now if we could possibly have a less time with these labourers in order to employ a larger number of persons, it would help to solve the problem of unemployment. What we have to do in this case is that we should fix up locally, from the local conditions, the wages of a particular hour. Now the wages must differ in different towns, because the wages in Bombay cannot possibly be the same as the wages in a smaller town. But suppose we fix a wage for each hour according to the standard of living. It may be one anna per hour or two annas per hour and let us say that it will be 48 hours a week; then they will be paid for 48 hours. Similarly for 58 hours a week, they will actually be paid for 58 hours, and the Local Government by a consideration of the local conditions may simply fix up the wage of one hour; thus, one hour a week per month, multiplied by so many hours, in order to get a month's wages. If this is agreed upon, I am sure all the labourers will come forward and say, "we would like to work longer hours" and the capitalists will say, "probably we will employ some other men with fresher minds". So if they are paid at the rate of working one hour a week and the wage being fixed locally and multiplied by the number of weeks they are willing to work, then the whole problem will be solved and the tug-of-war between labour and capital will disappear.

3 P.M.

[Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad.]

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Do you accept that, Mr. Mody ?

Mr. H. P. Mody : Entirely !

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : In this particular case if labourers will try to press for 48 hours a week, they will find room for more work and that will help the problem of unemployment. If on the other hand the capitalists say, "no, they should work for 54 hours or 60 hours", though they may be putting more money into the pockets of a few persons, they will not be helping the problem of unemployment; and so I think if we fix upon this idea that the wages should be fixed by local conditions and a particular amount should be fixed for working one hour a week per month and then multiply their wages by as many hours as they actually work, I am sure the whole fight between capitalists and labour about the hours of work will disappear and in fact the demand will be reversed. Labour will demand longer hours in order to demand more money and capitalists will say, "we will give you shorter hours in order to get fresher hands".

The next point to which I should like to draw attention is the enormous power given to Inspectors in this Bill. We know that the Income-tax Commissioner in the British administration has enormous powers. He listens to the appeals and practically he is the final authority and he can do whatever he likes and every person from the highest to the lowest is practically at the mercy of the Income-tax Officer.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : The Finance Member is not present now.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : But he will read my speech all right.

Now, they are creating a new post, parallel to the Income-tax Officer, called the Inspector of Factories. Practically now, in future the destinies of future factories will depend entirely upon this Inspector. Our trade, our industries, our arts will entirely be at their mercy. They can do whatever they please and there is very little room for any Bill of any kind. So we are now creating a very peculiar magnate in this Bill, with enormous powers.

Mr. B. Das : He is already there.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : But we are giving him more power. We know what the boiler inspectors are, and we know what actually they do and how they trouble the persons who have not got influence of one kind or other, and we are afraid that if these Inspectors are created, they may hamper the smaller industries and particularly the cottage industries of our smaller towns; they will hamper them so much that it will be impossible for them to flourish. We know the condition of the cottage industries in our smaller towns. Sir, they live from hand to mouth, they just get enough to keep themselves in existence : and if any extra burden is imposed by these inspectors, we will practically be doing a very great harm to these minor industries and they may practically in fact shut up.

Sir, the next thing to which I would like to draw the attention of the House is the new definition of factory. It is now supposed to be defined by the Local Governments under clause 5 of this Bill. The definition of factories has now been established. Every Local Government knows and everybody knows what a factory is. The factory is a place of manufacture which employs some kind of power, electric or mechanical, and employs 20 or more persons. This definition is an accepted definition. Now, it is proposed to give power to the Local Governments to give a new definition of the factories. That is to say, the factories may not use power at all or they may employ as few as 10 persons. I am afraid that this will very much affect the cottage industries in smaller towns. Every small industry usually employs some kind of labour and, at least on one day in the year, they may employ as many as 10 persons and, therefore, they will come under this particular law and will be so much hampered by the Inspectors that they will suffer enormously. Therefore, I appeal to the House that the definition of the factories which has been fixed by tradition and also by the Act of the Government should not be changed and should remain intact and the Local Governments should not be empowered to impose a new definition on the factories. There is one great apprehension which I have in my mind. We have passed the Sugar Bill already. There we have said that the sugar manufactured by the khandsari system, produced by factory system, will be taxed at half the rate, and the sugar which is not produced by the factory system will be exempted altogether. But if this definition of factory is altered as it is proposed to be altered, the United Provinces Government may give a new definition to a factory. It may say that a factory is a place of manufacture which is worked by hand and which employs 10 persons, and the result will be that the excise duty on sugar will be charged at the same rate as the sugar produced by the khandsari system worked by machinery. So, I am afraid that this new definition, which is being introduced in this Bill for an entirely different purpose, may be misused by Local Governments. I am very strongly of opinion, therefore, that this definition should not be altered as it has been definitely fixed and it is also understood by everybody.

vinces, with the result that the industries relating to the same article will be handicapped in one province and will prosper in another province. Another thing is that the provinces which have easy conditions for labour will attract labour from those provinces which have got more stringent conditions. Therefore, the movement of labour will be from province to province according to the nature of the enactment created by the province and will very much upset the balance of industries in India.

There is one other point which I would like to emphasise and that is the conditions prevailing in the Indian States. If the Indian States did not impose the same stringent conditions as we are imposing in British India, the effect would be that the labour would shift from British India to the Indian States. The capitalists will not open their factories in British India but in the Indian States and the difficulties will increase enormously.

Mr. S. G. Jog : Where is the harm if they go to the Indian States ? They are also part of India.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : My friend says that there is no harm if they go to the Indian States, but he forgets the fact that unfortunately we have to pay the taxes and keep the Government of India going, and if our industry is shifted to Indian States, then our income-tax which is already very high will be further increased and there may be another instalment of 25 per cent. increase which my Honourable friend, Mr. Jog, ought to be ready to pay. If the conditions of manufacture become easier in Indian States than they are in British India, then I am sure our labour and our capital will be diverted from British India to the Indian States, and it is exceedingly desirable that, whatever conditions we impose upon labour in British India, ought also to be imposed on the labour in Indian States. No doubt on paper the Indian States differ from the British India but in practice they do not, because there are a large number of persons who have got interest in both and it is very easy for them to shift their interests from Indian States to British India. They are not like two different States in Europe but they form part and parcel of one country and that is Indian India.

Mr. G. Morgan : May I ask my Honourable friend a question as regards what he said about labour and capital ? Does he mean to say that labour is going to fly away because of the provisions of this Bill, when we are conferring more benefits on it ?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : My point is that the conditions of labour, and, whatever legislation we may make, ought to be uniform for all the provinces and also for Indian States. If the Local Governments and the Indian States apply different conditions, then the labour and capital will gradually move to those places where the conditions are easier. Sir, these are the few points to which I wanted to draw the attention of the House at this stage and I will discuss these points in greater detail when the Bill is taken up clause by clause.

Before I sit down, I would, however, like to mention one point. And that is this. So long as there is a tug-of-war between labour and capital, it is impossible for the industries to flourish. We should now be able to find out a formula by means of which we can establish good relations between the capital and labour, and those of us who represent neither, like myself and my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, are in a position to establish good relations between them. Unless this is done, it is impossible to find a good solution either by means of an enactment or otherwise.

Sir Abdur Rahim (Calcutta and Suburbs : Muhammadan Urban) : Sir, I feel that I ought not to allow the second reading of this Bill to go through without offering certain observations and making certain suggestions that have occurred to me not only in the course of this debate but on reading the report of the Royal Commission on Labour, on which this Bill is founded. Sir Frank Noyce has very rightly pointed out that, so far as this House is concerned, there is no difficulty in pushing through legislation of this character, but the difficulty lies in the House wanting more and more of legislation of this kind. This is really the attitude of this House. I think it ought to be quite clear in our minds that when we talk of legislating for improving the condition of labour, we cannot take the question as isolated from the question of the development of our industries. It would be a foolish fallacy to suppose that labour can benefit if the industries are crippled, and equally fallacious it would be for the industrialists to assume that they can carry on their business with profit to themselves or to the country, unless the condition of workers is improved and labour is made much more efficient than it is at present. We have heard repeatedly, on the floor of this House, statements made by employers of labour, that one of the causes of the depression, in so far as it has affected India, one of the reasons why Indian industries of certain categories are unable to compete with foreign countries, was that labour here is inefficient. Therefore the real problem is, as the Royal Commission has stated throughout its report, how to improve the condition of labour without in any way handicapping the growth of industries in the country. The two problems are so intimately connected that we cannot look at one aspect of the question without considering its effect on the other aspect. Let me here say that, when I went through the report of the Royal Commission on Labour, I was extremely impressed by the impartiality, the sound judgment with which Members of the Commission weighed every aspect of the very difficult and complicated problems before them. They have issued a report, which in my opinion, ought to be accepted in full by this House and by the Government. Throughout the report there is evidence, very prominent evidence, that they have not allowed any aspect of the problem to be ignored, they have tried not to be unduly sympathetic or lenient towards labour at the expense of factory owners. Their recommendations are extremely cautious and extremely well considered. Sir, the problem, as the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce told us, is of an extremely complicated character, and it is not possible for any one on the floor of the House, in the course of a debate, to do justice to all the questions that have arisen. We should, therefore, accept the recommendations of the Royal Commission, excepting those that can be shown to be evidently out of date or based on some wrong assumption of facts. Throughout the debate on this Bill, and bearing in mind the speeches made by the Honourable Member in charge on previous occasions, I do not think any one has pointed out in this House that any of the important recommendations of the Labour Commission are founded on a misconception of facts or that such recommendations must be treated as out of date or inappropriate having regard to new circumstances. Sir, I think that ought to be the general attitude of this House. The report of the Royal Commission is a voluminous one and, it has dealt with so many questions in detail that, it would not be possible for anyone to do justice to them in the course of this debate. So far as this Bill is concerned, I join those who have expressed their cordial appreciation of the sympathetic attention which has been devoted to this important subject by the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce assisted by the officials of his department. I also agree that Mr. Clow, who unfortunately is not here, did extremely valuable work on the Labour Commission itself and I believe that the recommendations of the Commission were greatly influenced by him. As regards the Bill, it only touches one aspect of the problem, though a very important aspect, that is, the conditions in which labour is to be employed in the factories themselves. The report of the Royal Commission deals with many other connected problems which have to be faced, if you are really going to improve the condition of labour and at the same time its efficiency to the advantage of the employers. Sir, I have had occasion in this House, more than one occasion, to remark that our Government, which devotes so much attention to other matters, devotes very little attention indeed to problems affecting the general masses of the people. Here at least we have before us a report of a very important and authoritative Commission which deals with problems affecting a fairly large section of the general population of workers and if their recommendations were carried out by the Government in the spirit and the letter of the recommendation of the Royal Commission, we shall be advancing a certain stage in that social legislation which is now the feature of every country throughout the world, excepting our own. Sir, it was that which impressed me very much. If our Government, I do not say by this Bill alone, but by a number of Bills if necessary and, not only by legislative measures, but by acting in concert with employers and by giving necessary directions to municipalities and district boards, would see that the main recommendations of the Royal Commission were given effect to, then we should have made a very fair advance indeed towards the goal which every nation has in view.

I have a few words to say as regards some of these clauses of general nature, but before I come to them, I wish to draw the attention of Government to certain omissions that there are to be found in this Bill, and I hope, the Honourable Member, is going to assure us that, the other questions which have been dealt with in the report of the Royal Commission are going to be taken up by them as soon as they find it practicable. It is now more than three years since the Commission reported. I admit the report deals with questions of a difficult and complicated character and they could not be disposed of in a hurry; but surely they have had sufficient time to consider these questions. The Royal Commission toured all round India, consulted Local Governments, local officials, non-officials, employers of labour, representatives of labour and came to their conclusions after considerable deliberation and consultation with the various parties interested, with the various persons who were in a position to throw light on the questions they had to deal with. In those circumstances, I do submit respectfully that, Government ought to be in a position now to tell us definitely, what are the recommendations which they accept and what are the recommendations which they are not prepared to accept, and give their reasons to satisfy us that the Royal Commission had gone wrong in any of those respects. My Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, has told us that he first prepared a consolidated Bill and had it circulated, received voluminous representations and [Sir Abdur Rahim.] I had the Chief Inspectors of Factories in consultation, and that the Chief Inspectors also assisted the Select Committee in their deliberations. But I should have liked to hear from my Honourable friend, what are the important recommendations of this Commission which Government are not prepared to accept or whether they are still considering some of those recommendations and are only waiting to find time to embody them in the form of a Bill or to take such executive or administrative action as the case might require. Sir, I heard the Honourable Member's speeches on the two occasions when the Bill was introduced and when it was referred to a Select Committee. But he has not yet given us any information regarding the attitude of Government as to the other questions raised in the Royal Commission's report. For instance, I will give some examples. Take the housing problem, the housing of the workers. Whatever provisions there are in this Bill regarding provisions for health, sanitation and things of that character, they apply only to the premises of factories. I believe I am correct in that. This does not touch the question of housing the workers. Now the Royal Commission have made a number of recommendations on that subject some of which could be embodied in an enactment and the others could be carried out by the moral influence of Government exercised on the employers. As the Royal Commission points out, those employers of labour who have taken proper steps to house their workers, to initiate and establish welfare work for their benefit, have not lost by the efforts they have made, but improved their own position. In the report we find evidence that in quite a number of factories the owners have been doing excellent work for the benefit of the workers in the matter of housing them and in the matter of looking after their welfare generally. And they point out, and that is the impression I gather from the report, that as a matter of fact the local authorities and the Local Governments have not risen to the height of the occasion. They have not realised the responsibility that lies upon them although some of the employers have done so. They mention a number of factories and mills where excellent work is going on for the benefit of the workers. They point out that there is a triple responsibility in this respect, the responsibility of Government, the responsibility of the local authorities and the responsibility of the employers. My Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin, mentioned the case of the Railway employees. For that Government are directly responsible, but I find that the report points out several very important respects in which the Railway authorities have not done their duty by their workers as they are expected to do. As regards the local authorities, municipalities and district boards, I am afraid the Royal Commission have stated facts, and basing their conclusions on those facts, have condemned the local authorities generally; and they have also indicated measures which ought to be taken in order to meet those difficulties and shortcomings.

I should like to hear from Government, when my Honourable friend speaks next, what they are going to do in respect of all these matters. I am perfectly aware, and so was the Royal Commission, that some subjects, like public health and sanitation and matters of that character are in the charge of Local Governments. But surely if some of the local authorities have not proved equal to their duties, it is for the Central Government to see that sufficient pressure is put upon them so that they discharge their duties properly. I do not say that this Bill itself should include all those provisions that may be necessary, but what we ought to be satisfied about at this stage is that the Government is alive to the fact that there are many things to be done by the local authorities, the Local Governments and the Government of India itself, in order to ameliorate the condition of labour. I am not one of those who want to throw all the burden on the employers. On the question of housing, no doubt, some responsibility does lie on the people who found factories and thereby attract large numbers of people to work there. There is also the responsibility of the municipality to make arrangements for sanitation and the supply of proper drinking water, to see that they are properly housed and that their health does not suffer as far as this can be provided for by the municipal authorities.

Then there is the Local Government and the Government of India. The question of housing is an all-India problem; it is a problem which has been, and is being, tackled all over the world except by the Government of India. I have never heard any Member of the Government here get up and say that they have even been considering that problem. They say: "Oh, this is impossible in a country like India, with a population like India's." But the Royal Commission, which was also a very responsible body, a very authoritative body, which toured all round the country, considered all the evidence, saw the situation, knew the difficulties of the Government also, came to the conclusion that it is not an impossible problem to solve and that a beginning must be made. The general conclusion they have arrived at is that it is too often that commissions and committees make recommendations and that it is very seldom that the Government carry them out in their proper spirit. They lay down that it is perfectly practicable, perfectly feasible, for the Government to lay down a general programme which can be worked out, though not at once, but by gradual stages. I want to know and, I hope my honourable friend will tell us if the Government, after having considered the report of the Royal Commission, has formulated, or, they are going to formulate, any scheme of the nature which has been proposed by them.

The Royal Commission throughout its report emphasises the fact that nothing really can be done to improve the condition of labour, to improve the efficiency of labour, unless steps are taken by the employers to see that labour is sufficiently paid. In some factories, by some employers of labour, they are paid very fair wages; but that is not the case everywhere; and they point out, for instance, the case of the tea plantations in Assam, where it is very difficult for them to assess or ascertain what really the wages altogether amount to; and they have suggested a board for that purpose. They have also suggested and said that it is quite possible to institute a board for fixing the minimum wages and they have suggested legislation, I believe, for seeing that there be not undue deduction of wages. They have pointed out, as my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin, has stated, that too often, in too many places and in too many industries, the workers are paid through sardars and contractors. The result is that in many cases, in most cases, the workers do not receive their proper wages: a good portion of it sticks to the contractor or the middleman. They have also suggested a remedy for this: they have suggested that the middleman should be done away with and that a labour official should be appointed and they have suggested a way in which this could be done. I should like to know from the Honourable Member, whether he has considered these points also, and whether he is going to take any action in respect of these matters.

If I were to deal with all those questions, it will be impossible within the time at the disposal of this House to do justice to them; but I have given just one or two instances of very important matters for which the Bill makes no provision whatever. It does not purport, I admit, to do that; but all that I want to be satisfied about is whether the Government are going to take steps to give effect to all the important recommendations of the Labour Commission. If they are not, I think it is due to this House that the Government should tell us what are the recommendations which they are unable to accept. I consider this to be a very great opportunity for this Government, and, I do hope the Government will not allow this opportunity to pass without taking full advantage of it. Something has to be done for the masses, whose poverty, the Royal Commission says, is indescribable. They were horrified at the way these workers have to live; they point out that the standard of living is so low that it is really idle to expect much efficient work from them. They point out that all this can be greatly ameliorated, but so far as this Bill goes, it only provides for certain matters within the factory itself. If my Honourable friend will tell us what the attitude of the Government is in regard to the other matters, I for one at least will know how the position lies.

As regards some concrete questions that have been raised in the course of this debate, the question of hours is undoubtedly one of some difficulty. My own opinion is that 54 hours is too long. That is to say, a worker has to work continuously for 4 or 4½ hours, then he will have rest for say an hour, and then again he will have to work for another 5 or 4½ hours. As my Honourable friend opposite has pointed out, labour is not a machine. You cannot tax it beyond a certain limit. That nobody can deny, and after a worker is exhausted, the employer cannot expect from him anything more when his capacity for work has declined. But I am prepared to accept the recommendation of the Royal Commission. I am not prepared to pit my own personal opinion against the conclusion arrived at by the Royal Commission after taking full evidence and after taking all the manifold facts into consideration, and their conclusion is that, at present and having regard to the circumstances of this country, it would be rash to reduce the hours of work beyond 54 hours. I am prepared to accept that conclusion, but if I accept a conclusion like that against my own personal judgment, I do so in deference to the fact that the Royal Commission had an advantage which I do not possess. It is, therefore, only fair for me to ask that, under those circumstances, the other important recommendations of the Royal Commission should be accepted by the Government in their spirit.

My friend, Mr. Mody, in the course of his speech, stated that the proposals of Mr. Joshi and others were of a revolutionary character. So far as I remember, Mr. Joshi differed from the majority of the Commission on the question of the hours of labour and also in one or two other matters of detail. Sir, I do not consider that the reduction of hours to 48 hours would be revolutionary. My own belief is that the employers will gain by it, because efficiency will be increased, and it will be a short-sighted policy to keep the efficiency of labour in this country at its present low level, because in the long run, if labour continues to be so inefficient, it will be impossible for the industries in this country to compete with those of foreign countries. Here I wish to make one remark as regards the apprehension that has been expressed that if the provisions of this Bill and the other recommendations of the Royal Commission are enforced in British India, then the industries may migrate to Indian States. My Honourable friend, Mr. Jog, said, "well, what harm is there if this does happen?" I think it has been properly pointed out to him that the revenues of British India will suffer, but there is another answer to this, that those who think that by improving the conditions of labour in British India the factories will suffer, they are under a misapprehension. If that was so, it would be very difficult to support this Bill or the other recommendations of the Royal Commission, because, if the industries suffer, labour necessarily must also suffer. If the conditions of labour improve, then, as the Royal Commission has found and which finding I accept entirely, labour's efficiency will also improve. The industries will not suffer, but they will gain immensely, and the Commission have given instances where certain factories, by looking after their labour much more carefully than the other factories, have in fact improved their own position, they are in a far more prosperous condition than those industries which are apprehensive of doing anything for their labour.

Sir, I wish now to draw the attention of my Honourable friend to some of the general features of the clauses. It seems to me, as has been pointed out by my friends, Mr. Morgan and Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, that the Local Government has actually been given a sort of carte blanche. Factory legislation is an All-India legislation, and I believe the Round Table Conference and the Joint Select Committee came to the conclusion that labour ought to be a central subject with concurrent powers of legislation in the provinces.....

[At this stage, Mr. Amar Nath Dutt was observed walking across the floor of the House.]

An Honourable Member : Order, order.

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : No order.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member should not walk across the floor of the House.

Sir Abdur Rahim : I do think that the clauses in the Bill, at any rate in all essential matters, should lay down the law definitely, without giving any discretion even to the Local Governments whether to apply the law to any particular factories or not. I shall point out those clauses when they are discussed. Again, the Chief Inspectors who will certainly be responsible for administering the Act, they have been given very wide discretion. The general feature of that discretion is this. If a Chief Inspector finds out and comes to the conclusion that, for instance, a factory is not adequately ventilated, he is not compelled even then to enforce the Act against that factory. The Bill says, he may do so. I do not know whether in cases like that, the Government really intended that the discretion should be given to the Chief Inspector or not. It may be said that sometimes 'may' is interpreted by the Courts as 'shall', but as the clauses stand here, there can be no doubt that in spite of the Chief Inspector coming to the conclusion that certain things are necessary, certain provisions have to be made by the factories in order to carry out the intention of the Act, still he will have a discretion whether to apply the Act or not. I will give one or two instances. Take, for instance, clause 14, sub-clause (3) :

"If it appears to the Inspector that in any factory gas, dust or other impurity generated in the course of work is being inhaled by the workers to an injurious extent, and that such generation, or inhalation could be prevented by the use of mechanical or other devices, he may serve....."

Now, I ask if the Inspector finds as a fact that this is happening in a certain factory and it can be prevented, why should he have any discretion in the matter at all?

I say no officer ought to be given a discretion like that. I can understand the Inspector being responsible for finding what the facts are and even what is feasible. I concede so far as that, but once the Inspector has come to the conclusion that certain factories are not complying with certain provisions and there is really no reason why they should not comply with those provisions, why should he have any discretion at all whether to apply the Act or not? Take, the next one, clause 16 :

"If it appears to the Chief Inspector or to an Inspector specially authorised in this behalf by the Local Government that the cooling properties of the air in any factory are at times insufficient to secure workers against injury to health or against serious discomfort, and that they can be to a great extent increased by measures which will not involve an amount of expense which is unreasonable in the circumstances, the Chief Inspector may serve....."

I submit that this is absurd. I feel almost certain that that could not be the intention of the Government. When the Inspector has found all the facts against the factory, why should he have any discretion? Take another clause 17, sub-clause (2) :

"If it appears to the Inspector that any factory is not sufficiently lighted, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing, specifying the measures which in his opinion should be adopted....."

Here, again, "may". I can go on giving clause after clause where "may" appears instead of "shall". It is absolutely wrong legislation. If a judge, for instance, finds that facts are in favour of the plaintiff or in favour of the defendant, is it to be suggested by the Government of India that the judge has a discretion to refuse a decree to the plaintiff or to dismiss the case? Most certainly not. I venture to think that perhaps it was an omission, or perhaps the draftsman thought that the word "may" may be interpreted as "shall". I know, as a matter of fact every lawyer knows, that the word "may" is sometimes interpreted as "shall". But why put this onus on the Court? I say that in these clauses the Court will have to interpret "may" as giving a discretion to the Inspector. I do not wish to dilate on the other provisions of the Bill. I do hope that matters of this kind Government will be good enough themselves to take into consideration, apart from any amendments which may have been put in or not.

As regards the Local Government, I do say, again that this is a matter of an all-India concern, and if you run through the Bill, you would find that in most cases it is really left to the discretion of the Local Government whether a certain factory should have the Act applied or not. This sort of power to draw invidious distinction between factory and factory ought not to be given. If the facts are there, the law is there, and why should you give discretion to any Local Government, which means, of course, certain officials of Government,—it may ultimately turn out to be the Chief Inspector himself,—whether to apply the law or not? It will come to this, that the factory owners, at any rate a good many of them, will simply crowd the secretariat with applications pleading: "Here are special difficulties why the Factories Act should not be applied to our factories", or they will go to the Chief Inspector and put pressure on him and try to persuade him by any means in their power that such and such provisions of the Act should not be applied. I do think that to create such a situation is not fair either to the Local Government or the Chief Inspector of Factories, nor is it fair to the factory owners themselves. There will be unhealthy competition among the factory owners for winning the favour of the Local Government and of the Chief Inspector, and I strongly protest against such competition being introduced.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I am glad to find from the eloquent speech which the Leader of the Opposition has just delivered,—I wish I possessed a small portion of his eloquence,—that he shares with us on these Benches a very sincere admiration for the report of the Royal Commission on Labour and that he is as anxious as we are that the recommendations of that Commission should be implemented as far as possible and as quickly as possible. But, Sir, it came to me as a great shock to find that he thinks we have done nothing in the direction of implementing those recommendations and that he feels he has no information as to what we propose to do. In spite of his eloquent appeal, I do not propose this afternoon to accept his invitation to review the whole field of labour legislation. There are 375 recommendations in the report of the Royal Commission, and if I were to explain to this House what is happening in regard to those recommendations, what we think about them and what Local Governments think about them, what we have done to carry them out and what Local Governments have done to carry them out, what our difficulties are and what the difficulties of Local Governments are, I should keep this House for the rest of this afternoon and for the whole of tomorrow.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Can we have a written statement from the Government showing what recommendations have been accepted and what recommendations have not been accepted?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I am coming to that. I was just going to say that there is the less necessity for my making that explanation to the House, in that the House will find in its own Library, placed there quite recently, the Second Report on the action taken by the Central and Provincial Governments on the recommendations made by the Royal Commission on Labour in India. Here it is. It is a document of some 114 pages, and I shall be very happy to send to my Honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, a copy of it for his perusal.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Will other Members also have a copy?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I shall be glad to have a copy sent from my Department to any Member who desires to have one.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I shall thank you for one.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I am very glad to find that Honourable Members take such an interest in it.

L174LAD

Sir Abdur Rahim : I have never suggested casting any reflection but we wanted to know what were the recommendations that the Government have actually accepted. What has the Honourable Member done to carry out the other recommendations ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I accept my Honourable friend's assurance ; I never thought for a moment that he was casting any reflection on myself or on my Department. But I am sorry that this report has not come to his notice before. I do think that our legislative programme, in regard to labour, is one on which we may look with some satisfaction,—I do not say, I am very far from saying, complete satisfaction. This is the third measure I have brought before this House which I think may be described as being of first-class importance. There was the Assam Tea Districts Labour Bill,—my Honourable friend specially mentioned the case of Assam, so I would draw his special attention to that,—there was the Workmen's Compensation Bill,—both of them now Acts,—and there is this Bill which, if I may say so, covers no small part of the field covered by the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Labour. Then there were two other smaller Bills—the Pledging of Child Labour Bill and the Land Acquisition (Amendment) Bill. The mention of the latter Bill brings me to one important point raised by my Honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, the question of housing. I doubt myself if there is very much more that the Government of India could have done in regard to housing than we did in that Bill by which we made it easier, by an amendment of the Land Acquisition Act, for employers to get land for housing schemes. I cannot but wonder whether, if the Government of India were to bring pressure to bear on municipalities, district boards and the like to go ahead with housing schemes for labour, my Honourable friend would not accuse us of undue interference in a provincial transferred subject and say that it is no business of ours at all. That is the difficulty ; my Honourable friend knows our limitations in regard to provincial transferred subjects, as well as I do, and that we have to leave matters of that kind to the good sense of the Local Governments. I can only assure him that we shall continue to go ahead as rapidly as we can with the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Labour. He knows that in Mr. Clow, the Joint Secretary of my Department, we have in the Department a member of the Royal Commission who has lost none of his enthusiasm and that, even if I were to show any signs of being listless in these matters, which I hope the House will agree that I have not so far shown, Mr. Clow would keep me up to the mark. I may mention that we have another Bill which has been introduced in this House,—the Bill to regulate the payment of wages. It is a Bill on a subject to which my Honourable friend referred. We shall go ahead with that as soon as possible, but I do not propose to make any further motion in regard to it this Session for I must frankly confess that the criticisms which we have received in regard to it, when it was circulated for opinion after introduction make it inadvisable that it should go to a Select Committee in its present form. I hope to take advantage of the interval between this and the Delhi Session to get it into a form in which it is more likely to be acceptable to the House. I trust that I have answered the Leader of the Opposition to his satisfaction, if not to his entire satisfaction, and that he is convinced that we really mean what we say in this matter and that we will do what we can to get on as fast as we can with the recommendations of the Royal Commission. There are very few of them with which we disagree. I think that my Honourable friend will find sufficient explanation in this pamphlet to show why we disagree where we do disagree, and I may explain that this is an annual production and that it affords Members of the House an opportunity for seeing what we are doing and for keeping us up to the mark. I do not propose to follow my Honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, into his excursion into constitutional problems. Both he and Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad appeared to think that we were creating a Frankenstein which will destroy us in that we are giving Local Governments and Inspectors of Factories far too great powers. Well, Sir, all I would say in that connection is that we are merely following the existing Act. Local Governments get no more powers in future than they have done in the past except, of course, where some new fields of activities have been introduced, and there they get the same powers in regard to the fresh field that they have in regard to the existing one ; that also applies to the Chief Inspectors and Inspectors, though in some ways we have, I think, improved the procedure in regard to appeals from Inspectors to the Local Government.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Does my Honourable friend wish to retain the discretion that has been given to the Chief Inspector ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : There again we are following the existing Act, which, so far as I know, has worked satisfactorily. If there had been any objection to the discretion which vests in the Inspector in the existing Act, I cannot but think that the point would have been brought up in the Select Committee where we could have thrashed out the question. It was not mentioned by anyone in the Select Committee and I think, therefore, that it may be taken from that that the provisions of the existing Act have worked satisfactorily in this respect and that there is no necessity to change them. As regards the other criticisms of the Bill made by Honourable Members opposite, these appear to me to fall into two classes. The first class consists of those which are covered by amendments which have been brought forward to the Bill. I do not think I need say anything very much about them now because I shall have an opportunity of dealing with them when we come to deal with the amendments. The second class consists of criticisms which are not covered by amendments which have been brought forward and, for that reason, I do not think I need say very much about those either. My Honourable friend, Dr. Dalal, gave us a most interesting lecture on the medical aspects of health in factories. In pressing that maternity benefits should be included in the scope of this Bill, he has, I think, overlooked the fact that those are dealt with in his own province by a separate Act,—the provisions of which have recently, I believe, been adopted in the Central Provinces. It would, I feel, be a mistake to include questions of maternity benefit and also of education, as both he and my friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, also wished to do, in a Factories Bill. They are much better dealt with in separate legislation. Some, at any rate, of the other suggestions put forward by Dr. Dalal have, I think, much to commend them and I have no doubt that, as we progress in this country, and as the science of anthropometry is developed, they will be duly considered when future amendments of the Factories Act come up for discussion. There is a series appearing in England at the moment entitled "If I were a Dictator", and I could not but feel, when Dr. Ziauddin

[Sir Frank Noyce.]

Ahmad was speaking, that he had been invited to contribute to that series and that he was giving us an advance chapter of his book. He expressed great disappointment not at what the Bill contained but what it left out. I was a little surprised at that for it seemed to me somewhat inconsistent with the amendments he has on the Agenda suggesting that certain clauses of the Bill should be omitted, one of which gives the worker a weekly holiday. He also wanted the clause giving Local Governments power to extend provisions of the Act to factories which employed ten persons omitted and he seemed to think that, by including that clause in the Bill, we were introducing some new principle and that we were out to destroy cottage industries. Well, Sir, I can only say that, if my Honourable friend had studied his papers as thoroughly as he must have done in the old days when he was at Cambridge and when he attained the high reputation as a mathematician that he now possesses.....

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I read just as carefully every paper that comes to me.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Then I can only say that the Honourable Member does not read as effectively, for if he had looked at the existing Act, he would have found that the power taken in the Bill to extend the provisions of the Act to factories employing ten persons is a mere repetition of the existing Act.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : The existing Act was not supplied to me.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I will read to the Honourable Member the provisions of section 2 (3) (b) of the existing Act, which run thus :

"Factory means any premises wherein, or within the precincts of which, on any one day in the year, not less than ten persons are simultaneously employed and any manufacturing process is carried on, whether any such power is used in aid thereof or not which have been declared by the Local Government, by notification in the local official Gazette, to be a factory."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Will you send me a copy of the existing Act ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : By all means. It is, Sir, merely a question of re-drafting. We have re-arranged the Bill and we have, instead of including the small factories in the definition of 'factory', allowed the Local Government to extend the provisions of the Act to them in another clause. There is nothing fresh there at all.

Then, Sir, my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin, wanted us to deal with the recruitment of labour in this Bill. If he will look at the title of the Bill, he will see that it deals with labour in factories. I do not know how far it is possible to deal with recruitment of labour into factories by legislation. That is a matter which would require close study and I must confess that I do not recollect all that the Royal Commission on Labour recommended in regard to it. But here we are dealing with the labour which is inside the factory and we do not purport to do more than that. My Honourable friend also referred to labour at railways. The position there is that, if railway workshops come within the definition of factories, they stand in exactly the same position as any other factory. He seemed to be under the impression that they are being completely and entirely left out of the scope of this Bill. That is not the case. They stand on exactly the same footing as every other factory. And, if they do not come within the definition of factory, then they do not come within the scope of this Bill.

My Honourable friend, Mr. Mody, raised the question of Indian States with possibly to him somewhat surprising results. His suggestions in that direction did not attain such a common measure of agreement as he might perhaps have expected. I can only say that, as far as the Government of India are concerned, we shall examine the question and see what, if anything, can be done. I am glad to find that my Honourable friend himself realises that the question is a difficult one.

I do not think I need say any more except to thank the House for its reception of this measure. I should like to divest myself as speedily as I can of by far the greater portion of that which has been given to me but is due to others, credit for this Bill goes to some one else. In bringing it forward in this House, I have merely carried on the good work inaugurated by my predecessor, the present Leader of the House, in implementing the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Labour. In the preparation of the Bill and its passage through the Select Committee and also, as I hope, in due course through this House, I have to acknowledge the great assistance given by my Department and especially by Mr. Clow, by the Chief Inspectors of Factories and last, but very far from least, by the Select Committee. I have no doubt that in due course I shall also have to thank the House.

Mr. B. Das : May I just ask a question of the Honourable Member ? Does my Honourable friend accept the two formulæ about unemployment which were suggested by Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad during the course of his speech ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill to consolidate and amend the law regulating labour in factories, as reported by the Select Committee, be taken into consideration."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 2 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Sir, my amendment to clause 2 (j) runs thus :

"That in clause 2 (j) of the Bill, for the word 'twenty' the word 'ten' be substituted."

Sir, with regard to this clause, while I was speaking generally upon the motion that the Bill be taken into consideration, I said and I repeat it now that, unless and until this Bill is extended to benefit those factories also where there are less than 20 men working, it will not be said that the whole benefit has been taken by workers. Now, Sir, many words are not necessary to convince the House especially in view of the fact that the Select Committee itself has in clause 5 given power to the Local Government to apply this Bill to those factories where there are ten or more workers. Therefore, as this Bill is a Bill from the Central Government why should we not legislate from the very outset that the definition of a factory would mean a place where there are ten and more people working. I think it will not be denied that if there are even small factories working on the same principle and with the same power and with the only difference that there are lesser number of men working there, why should not the same benefits be given to the workers there. The Bill is being enacted for the benefit of the workers. Why should you make that invidious distinction when they are doing the same work and when they will be exposed to the same dangers which the workers in factories where there are more than 20 persons will be exposed to. For instance, the working hours. They are working with the same power, and the employers, not being bound by this Act, might increase the number of working hours and take more work from them and then the advantage which this Legislature wants to give to the workers will not be fulfilled at all. Therefore, I think it is very necessary that the scope of the Bill should be extended, and, with that view, I have tabled this amendment. On this point three Honourable Members have put in their Note and they are of the same opinion. I do not understand why this provision should be left in the hands of the Local Governments to implement. It has been suggested, in the speeches that were made today in the House, that the Local Governments might not exercise their power properly and they might do it on a different system. There is that fear and why should we leave to the Local Governments to work this Bill in a different way and not in a uniform manner. A labourer is a labourer in every province. He has to work for so many hours in every province and why should we allow that the Local Governments may make different provision. Properly speaking it is the duty of this Legislature to enact a provision such as the one suggested in my amendment, because if we leave the definition so loose and leave it to the Local Governments to decide, I submit the very object of the Bill will be defeated. I therefore submit that it is very necessary that this amendment should be accepted.

The next point raised by some Members is, that I am increasing the expenses for the employer in a small factory by making him amenable to this Act. Even in a small factory, the question of expenses should be no consideration, where there is danger—the factory working by power. Why should we not make provision to cover the risk in that factory? Therefore, the question of expenses should not stand in the way of this provision being made in the Bill. In these days of progress, these factories, specially where there is some danger, ought to be regulated and if the regulation is going to be made in the way in which this Bill is going to be passed why should not the small factories be also regulated. It seems to me that the very fact that you have put in clause 5 shows,—and even the Honourable the Mover of the Bill has accepted it,—that this Bill will apply even to small factories. That being so, why should the power be given to the Local Governments. I would request the Honourable Member to take into serious consideration this amendment. Even now there are small factories and inspectors for them. I see the work is not going on so regulated and not so very well as it ought to be. Under the present Bill when it is enacted into law, I expect the Government is not going to appoint inspectors of the nature we have now. The question of boiler inspectors has been commented upon by Dr. Ziauddin and I do join hands with him. I know the boiler inspectors are harassing the factory people. Therefore, the idea should be—and I hope it is also the idea of the Honourable the Mover of the Bill—that there ought to be responsible inspectors, and, in that case, why should it not be that these small factories also should be under the guidance of these inspectors. The employers may play any prank and nobody would check them. Considering it from all points of view, I need not detain the House on this amendment. I have already said on the general discussion and I have repeated my reasons and I see that this has a very salutary effect which the Central Legislature should take into their own hands and define once for all what a factory is. I know that the numerical strength of the House is such that I am not sanguine about the passing of this amendment. But I have every hope that the Honourable the Mover of this Bill, who has been sympathetic, and who has explained certain things in the Select Committee to the satisfaction of the other side, I hope that the Honourable the Mover will be sympathetic on this point also and I appeal to him to accept the amendment. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

“ That in clause 2 (j) of the Bill, for the word ‘ twenty ’ the word ‘ ten ’ be substituted.”

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar (Law Member) : Sir, before this House accepts the amendment which has been moved by my Honourable friend opposite, I would beg of them to consider one aspect of the result of the amendment being carried. My Honourable friend started by saying, why this invidious distinction between ten and twenty? Why not change twenty into ten? May I follow that process and say why this invidious distinction between ten and nine, why not make it nine? Why not proceed a step below and make it eight? Therefore the question is we have got to take some reasonable figure and we cannot proceed by that kind of argument. The result of the acceptance of this amendment will be that many a small struggling cottage industry which need not come and are not intended to come within the operation of this Act at all will be strangled or in any case seriously embarrassed. If I may give a concrete example, Honourable Members will find that a clerk is not included within the definition of a worker. So we need not consider the question of clerk who is working separately. But consider a case and I am giving you one from my own experience. I know that some people, three or four brothers, helped by a cousin, carry on the manufacture of ink and they do use to a small extent some kind of power.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : But a very harmless power, I believe.

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : That depends upon how you use it. These four or five brothers, they have not got much staff, but they must have a sweeper to clean the place and if you look at the definition, the sweeper who cleans the premises is roped in by the definition. Therefore, the sweeper counts as one. He has got to keep some durwan for taking care of the manufactured goods and necessarily if you want to keep watch for twenty-four hours, you must engage more than one durwan. Probably for carrying his goods to the depots for sale, he keeps in the compound somewhere a car with a driver and a cleaner and that makes up ten and they will all be roped in by the definition. I am not complaining of the definition, but I am pressing upon Honourable Members to consider this, that if you make this figure so low as ten, the result will be that very small industries which cannot be described as nothing but cottage industries will come under the operation of this Act. The work of the inspectors and of the authorities will increase inordinately, while the object gained, in many, if not in most cases, will be what is not desirable, and was never intended. Surely that is not the intention of the framers of this Bill. I submit, therefore, for your consideration that twenty is a reasonable number.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Sir, if the Honourable Member will excuse me.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order.

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I would have been very glad, Sir, to answer the question of my Honourable friend if you had kindly given him an opportunity to put it.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member may put his question.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I am thankful to Sir Nripendra Sircar for giving way to my question. If the number ten is not such as would make the factory of the kind explained by the Law Member, why is it that the Local Government has been given power to allow that factory of ten to come under the definition ?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I should have thought that the reason is obvious. I have taken an example which is very near one limit. If you proceed further away from the border line there may be cases where the employment of ten men may be very similar as regards its effect and so on as the example of twenty. In the example which I gave, really the ten was made up of men like the sweeper, the durwan, the chauffeur and the cleaner of the car. But there may be another case where there may be ten people using power and working in a room, under certain conditions, which ought to attract the Act. Therefore, a certain amount of latitude, which has been given, is but proper ; and the more the framers of any legislation propose to specifically lay down with minutest detail the conditions for applicability of certain sections, the greater will be the difficulties later on.

Then, I heard something further about Inspectors. About Inspectors I find that there are two cross currents. With our desire to help the labourer we are glad that this is being introduced. At the same time, in the minds of some of the Honourable Members, there is a fear that we are creating officials who will have some power. These two opposing forces have got to be balanced. If the labourer has got to be helped, the Inspector must come in. Somebody must exercise the powers given under the Act for the benefit of the labourer. I do not desire to take the time of the House further on this question, but the sole question is whether the number 20 should be reduced to ten. I think that the Select Committee has gone into the matter carefully and a great majority of them have come to the conclusion that twenty is the proper number and they had the benefit of consultation with people like Inspectors and others who were competent to give them advice. I, therefore, oppose this amendment.

Mr. Abdül Matin Chaudhury : Sir, the Honourable the Law Member has asked that if we reduce the number to ten, why not to eight, or nine or seven, and so on ? It may surprise the Law Member to know that originally, when the first draft of the Factories Act was made, they included in the definition of factory only those premises where manufacturing process was carried on, quite irrespective of the number of persons employed. So there is nothing absurd in suggesting that the number should be reduced from 20 to 10. The Law Member has said that many of the struggling industries will be embarrassed. The purpose of this Act, Sir, is to confer some benefit on the factory workers and not to make the position easier for the factory owners. That is only because the Factory Inspectors, in their evidence before the Royal Commission on Labour, strongly pressed that in the smaller factories the conditions are more deplorable than in the bigger factories and these smaller factories require stronger supervision than is necessary in the case of the bigger factories. It is only for this purpose of roping in all the smaller factories that we have suggested this amendment.

Mr. S. C. Sen (Bengal National Chamber of Commerce : Indian Commerce) : Sir, I oppose the amendment. I was surprised at the modesty of my Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, in choosing the number ten. I thought he would give up the whole number and say, "any place where any manufacturing process is carried on by means of power should be a factory". That would be the perfect logic of the arguments of both my friends, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai and the Deputy President. They want all factories to come under the Factories Act, namely, any place where any manufacturing process is carried on by means of power. The ordinary man, who grinds flour in a shop in Calcutta by means of electricity, should come in and his small shop should be considered a factory. He shall have to keep and engage a medical man to look after the health of himself and others, whoever those others may be, and he has to keep a space for the rest-time use of the members of the factory and so on. So it would be ridiculous if we take the matter to its logical conclusion. The number twenty is a decent number where we have to take into account the health of twenty people. And I should have thought that having regard to the condition of industry in India the number should have been more. Sir, we want small industries. We do not want big industries which my Honourable friend, Mr. Mody, is capable of conducting. But so far as Bengal is concerned, we are content with the small industries which are growing apace. For instance, three or four persons who are chemists, graduates of the University, have opened a small factory and probably two or three coolies are engaged there for the purpose of carrying their commodities. Is that to be considered a factory ? How are we to go on if these small factories are to be treated in exactly the same manner as factories where about ten thousand people are employed ? Sir, in these circumstances, I oppose this motion.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I have considerable sympathy, as had the Royal Commission on Labour, with my Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai's amendment. The Royal Commission, in fact, suggested a general extension to unregulated power establishments of a few sections of the Factories Act, Local Governments retaining the power to apply selected provisions of the Act other than those automatically applied. Our provision is permissive and not mandatory as my Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, would like it to be. The real difficulty in the way is not the question of strangling the small cottage industries,—an aspect on which my Honourable colleague, the Law Member, laid stress yesterday,—but the financial difficulty. The Royal Commission knew, as we do and as the House does, that the effective application at this stage of the Factories Act, to unregulated power establishments and to establishments not using power, would involve serious practical difficulties. The difficulty, as I have said, is really a financial one. There lies the trouble. We realise that there are many of these small factories in which conditions are very far from being what they should be and that it is desirable that those conditions should be improved. But,—and this is the objection to the Royal Commission's recommendation,—if you are going to extend a few sections of the Act to these factories, you must have inspection, and, if you are going to have inspection, you might as well extend all the provisions of the Act as we have given the Local Governments power to do. Automatic extension at this stage would mean placing a very heavy financial burden on Local Governments. They will probably, in any case, have to increase their staff to carry out the provisions of this new Act, which involves, as the House knows, a very considerable addition to the existing duties of that staff. To add to them, the inspection of small factories would be placing on Local Governments a burden which we know that their finances cannot stand, and that is the reason why we have left the matter to the Local Governments themselves. As their financial conditions improve, and as they are in a position to strengthen their staff and, above all, as and when public opinion in the province impels them to the regulation of these small factories, they will have power under the Act to bring them into the field of inspection of the factory staff. It is mainly, almost entirely, a financial question. That is the reason why I regret that I am unable to accept my Honourable friend's amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in clause 2 (j) of the Bill, for the word 'twenty' the word 'ten' be substituted."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 2 was added to the Bill.

Clause 3 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 4 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Sir, I move :

"That in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 4 of the Bill, for the word 'may' the word 'shall' be substituted."

This Bill divided factories into two classes, seasonal factories and non-seasonal factories. The importance of this division comes in here, because in the case of seasonal factories the working hours have been fixed at 60 hours a week, while, in the case of non-seasonal factories, it has been limited to 54 hours. The Royal Commission recommended that those factories which do not work more than 180 days in the year, that is more than half the days in the year, shall be classed as seasonal and others as non-seasonal factories. The criterion that they lay down was whether the factories worked for 180 days in the year or more. This is significant, because the discretion lies in the hands of Local Governments to declare, whether a certain factory is seasonal or not. What we suggest is that no discretion should be left in the hands of the Local Government. What is left optional with the Local Government should be made obligatory because the Labour Commission never made any suggestion that this matter should be left to the discretion of the Local Government. I therefore move my amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 4 of the Bill, for the word 'may' the word 'shall' be substituted."

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I regret that I am unable to accept this amendment. I would, in the first instance, invite the attention of the House to the wording of the proviso which says :

"Provided that the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare any such factory in which manufacturing processes are ordinarily carried on for more than one hundred and eighty working days in the year, not to be a seasonal factory for the purposes of this Act."

I would invite the attention of the House specially to the word "ordinarily", and ask how it is possible to reconcile it with the word "may". It is quite obvious that the word "ordinarily" gives the Local Government considerable discretion even if you substitute "shall" for "may". The Local Government has still to interpret the word "ordinarily".

To come back to the merits of the case, the real object of this proviso is to provide for hard cases. There may be a case in which the factory,—a tea or rubber factory,—is working for 181 days in the year, and it does seem a little unreasonable to differentiate it from one next door which works for 179 days in the year. I am quite prepared to undertake, in addressing Local Governments, to point out what we are aiming at. We will call their attention to the intention which underlies this clause and ask them to use it with discretion. I may mention for the information of the House that there has been considerable opposition to including tea and rubber factories in this class at all. That opposition, I am glad to see, has not taken the form of an amendment,—but I do feel that it is not desirable to make conditions any more difficult for that class of factory than they will be under the clause as it stands at present. For these reasons, I regret that I cannot accept the amendment, but I trust my Honourable friend, the Deputy President, will be satisfied with my assurance that we will draw the special attention of Local Governments to what is our intention.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 4 of the Bill, for the word 'may' the word 'shall' be substituted."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 4 was added to the Bill.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Wednesday, the 18th July, 1934.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Wednesday, 18th July, 1934.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

FOOD SUPPLIED TO HAJ PILGRIMS ON BOARD SHIPS.

61. *Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : (a) Is it a fact that every pilgrim to Mecca is required to pay for his food on the boat ?

(b) Have Government fixed the price and the menu of the food to be given to Hajjis ? Have Government also fixed the quantity of meat in the menu ?

(c) What is the menu ?

(d) Are Government aware that this year the Company supplied in the morning nothing but some kind of liquid known as tea without biscuit or toast ?

(e) Are Government aware that most of the Hajjis who could afford, did not avail themselves of the food supplied by the Company, and purchased food from hotel which supplied better food ?

(f) Are Government aware that some Irani and Afghan passengers, being dissatisfied, cooked their own meals ?

(g) Have Government fixed the number of servants which the Company should appoint for cooking and serving meals ?

(h) Is it a fact that the service of the morning meal could not be finished before 3 P.M. on account of insufficient staff ?

(i) Are Government aware that the Company uses mostly vegetable ghee in cooking food for Hajjis ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir, with your permission, I shall answer questions Nos. 61, 62 and 99 together. Pilgrims to the Hedjaz, proceeding by a pilgrim ship, are provided with tickets in which the cost of food is included. The number of meals, which a pilgrim is entitled to receive daily, in return for the compulsory charges for food, and the articles included in the menu, are stated in Rule 80 of the Indian Pilgrim Ships Rules, 1933, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House. Pilgrims, travelling by the higher classes and requiring better food, can obtain their requirements on extra payment according to the tariff prescribed by Rule 81 of the Rules referred to. A number of complaints in regard to the arrangements made for the supply of food to pilgrims have been received and are under examination. Government propose to refer these to the Standing Haj Committee of the Central Legislature as soon as possible and hope that, as a result of their own examination of the matter, and with the advice of the Committee, it may be possible to remove defects that come to light. The question of the adequacy of the personnel employed on cooking and service will also receive examination. So far as the rules are concerned, these provide that the number of cooks and attendants employed for cooking and serving the pilgrims' food must be such as the Inspector may consider necessary and subject to a maximum of three per 100 pilgrims.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state whether this question will be discussed in the Standing Finance Committee in this Session ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I think my friend refers to the Standing Haj Committee.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Yes, Sir, I refer to the Standing Haj Committee.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Well, Sir, it will be discussed before the end of the present Session.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state whether any tenders were called for the supply of food on board the ship to the pilgrims ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I answered that question in the last Session and said that the Shipping Company who were responsible in this matter had not considered it necessary to call for tenders.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : Have Government received any suggestions from the Bombay Port Haj Committee to improve matters ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : As a matter of fact, the Government, when they received these complaints, invited the two Haj Committees primarily concerned, namely, the Haj Committee in Bombay and the Haj Committee at Karachi, to submit a report on the working of the feeding arrangements at the end of the pilgrim season. As far as I recollect, the Report of the Haj Committee from Bombay has been received, and that from Karachi, and also I believe from Calcutta, are still awaited.

Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : I hope all these reports and the suggestions will be placed before the Standing Haj Committee ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : All relevant papers will be put before the Haj Committee, including the Report which has been received from His Britannic Majesty's Minister at Jeddah.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it a fact that the contractor is a relative of a member of the Port Haj Committee at Bombay ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I am afraid I have not investigated the relationship between the contractor and the members of the Port Haj Committee.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it a fact that an application was sent to the Government stating that the rate at which food was supplied by the contractor would be lower than the tender given by the present contractor ? Is it also a fact that in the same application it was stated that, if any Haji purchased food on the ship, the amount would be paid after deduction and Government refused that application and gave the tender to the present contractor ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I think, Sir, I have made it clear more than once that Government have nothing to do either with the accepting of tenders or the rejecting of tenders. The matter is entirely within the purview and competence of the Shipping Company concerned.

Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : Are Government prepared to consider the question of breaking up the monopoly of contract which has been given to one person in regard to the feeding arrangements of pilgrims on board the ship, and to substitute the system of opening hotels or some such arrangements for the benefit of the pilgrims, so that they may not be forced to deal with only one contractor ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir, as I stated a little earlier, in replying to one of the supplementary questions, the intention of Government is that the working of the entire system of these feeding arrangements on board the ship should come under review by the Standing Haj Committee, and the question as to whether a monopolistic system is undesirable and there should be several contractors working, would be open to any Member of the Standing Haj Committee to raise.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order. The Chair would point out that when this House has constituted a Standing Haj Committee, detailed questions of this nature must, in the first instance, at any rate, be thoroughly discussed in that Committee. The Chair would like to know whether an opportunity has been given to that Committee to discuss that question.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir, the position as regards that is this. The intention of Government was to put their proposals as well as the complaints received in regard to the working of these arrangements before the Haj Committee after reports about the Haj had come in. They were not in possession of Government at the time when the Assembly adjourned last. They have come in since. They can only be submitted to the Standing Haj Committee, Sir, during the present Session of the Legislature, and it is our intention to put those matters before the Haj Committee as soon as all the relevant material is available.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Sir, the great trouble is that Government select only those Members whom they like to the Standing Haj Committees and hold conferences with them, and these Members do not take sufficient interest, and that is the reason why we have to put down these questions on the paper, and ask supplementary questions.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member whether there are kitchens in the steamers so that the pilgrims can cook for themselves, or are these people bound to take their food from the caterer ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The basis of the amendment made by this House, a little over a year ago, in the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, was that private cooking should be prohibited.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : Are Government aware of the fact that the numerous complaints received by the Government are due to the fact that the shipping companies have made very bad feeding arrangements through their caterers ? If that is so, then the Government should take very drastic action against the shipping companies for not using proper judgment and discretion in selecting their caterers ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The complaints began to come in to Government only after the pilgrim season had started. Obviously one could not pay any attention to hypothetical complaints. The question for consideration then was whether each individual complaint should be considered individually or singly or whether there should be a comprehensive review of these complaints at the end of the pilgrim season, and the latter course was the one which commended itself to Government.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Sir, I am not a member of the Haj Committee, but there is one point which I should like the Haj Committee to consider particularly, and it is this, that the same caterer supplies very bad food and at very unpunctual hours to these pilgrims in regular meals, but if they took food in hotels, he supplied them with very good food, and very expeditiously.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : It is a statement which does not require an answer.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Are Government aware that this system has been disapproved by all the Mussalmans in India ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : My friend lost no opportunity, even before the system was introduced, of saying that all the Mussalmans in India had disapproved, were disapproving and would continue to disapprove. In the circumstances, it is not easy for me to subscribe entirely to the partisan statement which he has just made.

FOOD SUPPLIED TO HAJ PILGRIMS ON BOARD SHIPS.

†62. Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the press reports, published in numerous vernacular papers, with regard to the unsatisfactory arrangement for the provision of food to the Hedjaz pilgrims on steamships carrying Indian pilgrims to Jeddah and back during the last pilgrim season ? If so, are they now prepared to remove the new restrictions for the pilgrims and to amend Indian Merchant Shipping Act accordingly ? Has the attention of Government been drawn to the article published in the bi-weekly vernacular paper, Al Jamiat of Delhi, dated the 5th June, 1934, on page 1 under the heading, "Jahaz men Aziman-i-Hijaz ko takleef", on behalf of Maulvi Amir Ahmad, M.A., Deputy Collector ?

(b) Are Government prepared to investigate the allegations made in the article referred to in part (a) and state whether they are true, and if so, what action they propose to take in this connection ?

(c) What is the name of the Captain who is guilty of negligence and who failed to discharge his duty on the said steamer ?

(d) With a view to safeguarding the health of the Hedjaz pilgrims on the voyage, what precautionary measures do Government propose to take in future ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 61.

DISTRIBUTION OF THE JUTE EXPORT DUTY AMONG THE JUTE-GROWING PROVINCES.

63. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Are Government aware that the amount provided for distribution among the jute-growing provinces as their share of the jute export duty in 1934-35, has been reduced by Rs. 63 lakhs from Rs. 1,89 lakhs to Rs. 1,26 lakhs ?

(b) Is it a fact that half of the jute export duty in 1934-35 will not be paid to the jute-growing province ?

(c) If the reply to part (b) be in the affirmative, in what proportion will the export duty on jute be distributed among the Central Government and the jute-growing provinces ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The Honourable Member has correctly quoted the figures in the estimates. For the rest, his attention is invited to my predecessor's speech on page 4227 of the Legislative Assembly proceedings of the 20th April, 1934.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : What is the reply to part (b) ? Is it a fact that half of the jute export duty in 1934-35 will not be paid to the jute-growing Provinces ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Yes, that is so. I understand that the Assembly in the last Session postponed the date of operation of the match excise. Therefore, the revenue for financing the grant to Bengal was not available, and so the grant was reduced.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Was the reason for this reduction this that the match excise duty had not been passed by the Assembly ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is so, as the Honourable Member will see if he refers to the passage from my predecessor's speech to which I have already referred.

AMALGAMATION OF THE DIFFERENT LOCO. SHOPS WITH THAT AT JAMALPUR.

64. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to an article on page 4 of the Pilot, Amritsar, dated the 13th May, 1934, headed "Lucknow Loco. shops" ?

(b) Is it a fact that different Loco. shops are to be amalgamated with that at Jamalpur ?

(c) Do Government propose to take such steps that their experiment may not affect any community adversely and the percentage of different communities in the amalgamated shop may be maintained in the proportion as it now stands ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No.

(b) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to a memorandum placed on the 19th of April, 1934, before the Standing Finance Committee for Railways, which will be found in the proceedings of the Committee, Volume XI, No. 1.

(c) The orders of Government with regard to recruitment will be strictly observed.

TRANSFER OF THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY WORKSHOP FROM JHANSI TO BOMBAY.

65. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it a fact that the transfer of the workshops from Jhansi, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, to Bombay has affected the Muslims adversely ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Did the Government enquire about this from the Agent of the G. I. P. Railway ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Are Government aware that these experiments which are made on the different railways have affected the Muslim community adversely ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : To what experiments is the Honourable Member referring ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Sometimes mixing two workshops and sometimes abolishing one workshop.

Mr. P. R. Rau : No. Government have no information about that.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Has the attention of the Government been drawn about the Paksey workshop ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I think my Honourable friend is anticipating the next question.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : I want to know whether this fact was referred to the Government and whether the Government have enquired into that matter or not.

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am replying to it in the next question.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I should have thought that Government should say "yes" or "no", and a mere statement that they have no information is not right, and it is merely shirking the responsibility.

CLOSURE OF THE MARINE SHOP AT PAKSEY, EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.

66. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Is it a fact that the marine shop at Paksey, Eastern Bengal Railway, has been closed ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Muslims were in majority in that shop ?

(c) Is it a fact that the shops on Eastern Bengal Railway, where Muslims were in minority, were not closed ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) Government have no information.

(c) The decision to close or keep open Railway Workshops is governed by economic and not by communal considerations.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to say whether they have received any representation in connection with the Paksey workshop or not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have not seen any.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will my Honourable friend in charge of the Department say whether he has received any representation from myself or not ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore : I do not remember whether I have or not. If my Honourable friend will put a question down on the notice paper, I will give him a definite reply.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to examine the allegations that all these experiments, which are made, especially on the E. B. Railway and the G. I. P. Railway, have affected the Muslim community adversely, and all those workshops where the Muslims were in a majority have been closed down and those workshops, where Muslims were in a minority, have not been closed down ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore : As Mr. Rau has explained, these matters are dealt with purely on economic grounds, and I do not think that we can depart from the principle which has been applied in deciding this question.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Do Government propose then to take all the men who are working in those workshops in other workshops ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore : I do not think that that would be possible.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : Irrespective of communal considerations, should not Government enquire into the complaints made by the Honourable Member in this question ? He has made a definite complaint as regards a particular community being economically put to more trouble than others. Is it not a matter which requires consideration at the hands of Government ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore : I think I have explained the matter. No one would regret it more than myself if, owing to the closure of any particular workshop, any particular community were penalised, but I am afraid that we could not allow the effect that any action like that might have on a particular community to influence our final decision in a matter which must be definitely decided on economic grounds.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it not a fact that the Railway Board have issued circulars to the administrations that first opportunity for appointment should be given to persons who have been retrenched ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Retrenched persons are borne on a waiting list, and when vacancies arise, attempts are made to provide them with appointments.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Government will give a similar opportunity to those persons who have been retrenched in this particular case ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Yes.

Bhai Parma Nand : Will the Honourable Member tell us whether in those workshops the Muslims were less than 25 per cent., because I find from the new decision of the Government that the Muslims have got a right to get 25 per cent. of the posts ?

Mr. P. R. Ran : As I have said, Government have no information on the point, but as my Honourable friend from Bihar has said that they were in a majority, it is obvious that they could not have been less than 25 per cent.

ARTICLE HEADED "TRAVELLING TICKET EXAMINERS" PUBLISHED IN THE "PILOT."

67. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the article "Travelling Ticket Examiners", published on page 7 of the Pilot, dated the 13th May, 1934?

(b) Is it a fact that the matter is under consideration of the Railway authorities concerned?

Mr. P. R. Ran : (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

SEARCH IN THE "SOHO HOUSE" AND THE RESIDENCE OF MR. MUHAMMAD TAHIR KHAN IN BOMBAY.

68. Sir Muhammad Yakub : (a) Is it a fact that "Soho House", a firm at Lohar Chawl, Bombay, and the residence of its managing partner, Mr. Muhammad Tahir Khan, were searched by the Bombay Collector of Customs in August 1932, and during the course of the search of the house, even the personal luggage of respectable guests, who happened to be staying with Mr. Tahir Khan, was not spared in spite of a protest on their behalf?

(b) Is it also a fact that subsequently the Bombay High Court declared that the search made by the Collector of Customs was illegal?

(c) Is it also a fact that on the strength of certain documents and books seized by the said Collector of Customs during the illegal search of the house mentioned above, the Custom authorities charged Mr. Muhammad Tahir Khan before the Chief Presidency Magistrate, Bombay, under section 420, Indian Penal Code, which resulted in his acquittal on May 15, 1934?

(d) What action do Government propose to take against the Collector of Customs, Bombay, who was responsible for carrying out the illegal search in the "Soho House" and the residence of Mr. Muhammad Tahir Khan, and for causing annoyance and insult to him and his guests?

(e) What compensation is proposed to be given to Mr. Muhammad Tahir Khan for the heavy expenditure which he had to incur to get the search declared illegal and to defend the criminal case against him? Who will be responsible for the compensation?

(f) What measures do Government propose to take in order to avoid recurrence of such cases?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : (a) The premises mentioned were searched on a warrant issued by the Chief Presidency Magistrate, Bombay. According to my information no protest in regard to the conduct of the search was made to the Collector of Customs.

(b) and (c). The answer to the next two questions is in the affirmative.

(d) None in view of the fact that the Collector acted on a warrant issued by the Chief Presidency Magistrate.

(e) Government do not consider that this is a case in which they would be justified in awarding compensation.

(f) The attention of Collectors of Customs generally has been drawn to the High Court ruling in regard to the issue of search warrants in such cases.

Sir Muhammad Yakub : Is it not a fact that the warrant of search was not issued by the Magistrate of his own accord, but it was issued at the request of the Customs Officer at a time when no criminal case was pending against the firm in any judicial Court?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I am not quite sure of the exact implications of the legal procedure. My only information is that the premises were searched on a warrant issued by the Chief Presidency Magistrate.

Sir Muhammad Yakub : Will Government kindly enquire if the facts stated by me are correct—that the warrant was not issued by the Magistrate of his own accord, but it was issued on the application of the Collector of Customs at a time when no judicial proceedings were pending in any judicial Court? If so, will Government reconsider their decision about the answer which they have given to part (d) of my question?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : As regards the first part of the supplementary question, the warrant is always issued at the instance of the Collector of Customs. What particular significance the qualification "at a time when no judicial proceedings were pending" has, I could not say without notice. I will certainly look into this matter again, but I am bound to say that I have already gone into it very carefully, and I am pretty convinced that there is no case for any action against the Collector, nor is there a case for compensation to the firm concerned. And, as far as the future is concerned, we have done our best to stop the recurrence of such an incident by calling the attention of Collectors of Customs to the ruling of the High Court in regard to the issue of search warrants.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member, if the Collector of Customs does not apply for a warrant, who else can?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is what I said in reply to the first part of the supplementary question.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : These facts were communicated to the Members of the Central Board of Revenue at the time when all this was going on and no action was taken by them.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Is not the Honourable Member making an assertion and not asking a question?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I just want to ask this question, whether when this information was given, any action was taken by the Central Board of Revenue and whether the Central Board of Revenue made any enquiries about when "information" was supplied to them?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I am not quite sure what information the Honourable Member is referring to. Certainly the answer I have given is based on information furnished by the Central Board of Revenue. Presumably, they could not have obtained that information without making enquiries.

TRANSFER OF THE RESEARCH INSTITUTE FROM PUSA TO DELHI.

69. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the Research Institute at Pusa (Bihar) is going to be transferred to Delhi ? If so, when, and why ?

(b) What will be the cost of the transfer ?

(c) What will happen to the lands and buildings in Pusa in the event of the transfer of the Institute to Delhi ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (b). I would refer the Honourable Member to the memorandum on the subject submitted to the Standing Finance Committee of which he is a member. A copy of the memorandum has also been placed in the Library of the House.

(c) The question will be considered if necessary later in consultation with the Local Government.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact, as stated in the Indian Nation of Patna, dated the 13th July, that the idea of transfer originated long ago with the Imperial Service Officers in charge of the Agricultural Research Institute at Pusa, who envied their colleagues in other services the enjoyment of facilities afforded by the Viceregal headquarters ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : That statement is completely devoid of foundation.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that the Agricultural Commission of 1928 were appealed to for a redress of this grievance ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Not so far as I am aware of.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Has not this matter of transfer been under frequent correspondence since then between the experts and the Government of India and the Secretary of State ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : No, Sir.

Sir Muhammad Yakub : Is it not a fact that the present buildings of the Pusa Institute have been damaged by the earthquake to such an extent that it would be impossible to repair them and that they can only be demolished and re-built, and what would be the cost of re-building them ? (Hear, hear.)

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir, the statement made by my Honourable friend correctly describes the position as regards the Laboratory ; it will cost something like seven lakhs of rupees to re-build.

Sir Muhammad Yakub : Is it not a fact that, on account of the recurrence of earthquakes in Darbhanga and its vicinity, the place has become very dangerous for any public institution to be located there ? (Hear, hear.)

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I should not like to express an opinion too definitely on that point ; it is a question for the geologists. I gather, however, that this particular region is supposed now to be more subject to earthquakes than certain other parts of India.

Sir Muhammad Yakub : Is it not a fact that the Agricultural Research Institute at Pusa makes it very difficult for the central office at Delhi to exercise such direct supervision as it could do if it were near the headquarters ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Sir, the inaccessibility of Pusa has been a handicap in more ways than one.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know what will be the cost of the transfer of this Institute to Delhi or elsewhere ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The figure is stated in the memorandum to which I have already referred ; it is estimated at Rs. 36 lakhs.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it the intention of the Government to lay all correspondence on the table of this House before any action is taken in this matter ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : As far as I know, there is no correspondence to lay on the table of the House.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it not a fact that the Government of India have obtained the sanction of the Secretary of State behind the back of this House, and will Government be pleased to lay that correspondence on the table of the House at least ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I did not quite appreciate the allusion to our having obtained the sanction of the Secretary of State behind the back of this House. Government undoubtedly have certain executive responsibility which they discharge in accordance with the established procedure. My Honourable friend would have a grievance if Government had actually proceeded to start the construction of these buildings without the constitutional procedure being followed of placing the proposal before the Standing Finance Committee.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : I take it that the expenditure on the new buildings in the vicinity of Delhi will, in due course of time, come up for the vote of the House ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : It is a votable item of expenditure, Sir. If the decision is proceeded with, undoubtedly the matter will come up before the House.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Will it be any loss to the Province of Bihar and Orissa if the Institute is removed from Bihar ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : That undoubtedly is a matter of opinion. Members coming from Bihar and Orissa definitely feel that it would be a loss to the Province if the Institute were removed ; but, considering the functions of the Institute, which has to minister not to the requirements of a particular Province, but to the needs of agricultural research for the whole of India, I am not prepared to admit that it would be a particular loss to Bihar.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Is there no other place in Bihar where the Institute could be transferred ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : If it were transferred to any other place in Bihar, the defect of inaccessibility would still exist.

Sir Abdur Rahim : You mean all places in Bihar are inaccessible ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I would not say that places in Bihar are inaccessible from particular points in Bengal or particular points in Bihar, but when we consider accessibility, we have to consider India as a whole.

Mr. B. Das : Is it the policy of the Government of India to locate all activities of the Imperial Agricultural Council in Coimbatore, Cawnpore and the neighbourhood of Delhi, and not to locate them in Provinces like Bihar and Orissa, Bengal, or Assam ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I do not know that there is any consistent policy of the Government of India as regards location of Institutes. Each particular case will have to be considered on its own merits.

Mr. B. Das : May I inquire further whether the Government of India consulted in this matter the Government of Bihar and Orissa, and what is the opinion of the Local Government in the matter of the Pusa Institute ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Government of India have not consulted the Government of Bihar and Orissa for the reason which would be obvious from the views expressed by the Bihar Members already.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Have the Government of India consulted any other Local Government in the matter of the location of this Institute in the event of its transfer from Pusa ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Inasmuch as the matter is one for the decision of the Central Government, it is not necessary to consult Local Governments.

Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : Has the principle on which the Institute was originally started at Pusa been now abrogated, and are the Government of India prepared to consider whether some other place should not be chosen for placing the Institute in the Province of Bihar itself ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The principle which determined the Government to select the site near Delhi is the one of maximum utility to India as a whole. The circumstances which led to the selection of Pusa, when Pusa was constructed in 1902 or 1903, were somewhat different.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state whether their scheme is designed to close the Pusa Institute and to shift it to some place near Delhi or to keep the Pusa Institute as well ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : No, Sir. When a new Institute is constructed at any other centre, then, when that Institute begins functioning, so far as the Government of India are concerned, Pusa will cease to function.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state what they propose to do under their scheme with regard to the fields in Pusa which are under them and about those buildings which are already there ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I have already answered that in my reply to part (c) of the question, namely, that the disposal of the land and buildings will be considered later in consultation with the Local Government.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Do Government propose to examine this question as well, that if they keep the Institute at Pusa as well and do not give away the lands on account of that place being in the centre of North Bihar, it is essential to have such an Institute there ? Do Government propose to consider this question also ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : My Honourable friend presumably means to suggest that, in order to tackle the peculiar agricultural problems of Bihar, it is desirable that some facilities for research should exist there. I submit that is primarily a question for the consideration of the Local Government. If the Local Government want the use of these buildings or any portion thereof and of the land for that purpose, Government will undoubtedly consider any such suggestion that they may wish to make in that behalf.

Sir Abdur Rahim : I take it that when the Institute was established at Pusa, the Government of India must have obtained and did investigate all the facts which were appropriate and relevant for the establishment of the Institute at Pusa. If that is so, what has happened since then, except the earthquake, which has moved the Government of India to transfer the Institute now ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : According to my information and such researches, as I have been able to make, the primary consideration which influenced the Government of India in 1902-03 to locate the Institute at Pusa was the availability, free of cost, of land. What has happened since to influence the decision of the Government of India, apart from the earthquake which everybody deplures, is the opinion of the Royal Commission on Agriculture in India, and the opinion of Dr. Keen who came out as Director of the Institute—an opinion which has been only recently repeated.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it not a fact that the Bihar Government have got no Agricultural College ? And if the Institute at Pusa is removed from there, the people of Bihar will go without any agricultural education ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Bihar, so far as I know, has no Agricultural College.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do I take it from the Honourable Member's reply to the question put by the Honourable the President that this House will be given an opportunity of discussing this question before any action is taken with regard to the removal of this Institute from Pusa ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : My position as regards that is that the House will have the ordinary constitutional opportunity of discussing the matter when it comes before it in the ordinary way.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Does the Honourable Member mean to say that this House will be consulted after the money has been spent and the Government have been committed to the policy ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I did not say that. I say that the ordinary constitutional procedure in this case is open to the House.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : What is that ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : My Honourable friend need not unnecessarily generate heat. He has been a Member of this House....

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do not have personal feeling in the matter.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Very well, I shall call it provincial feeling. My Honourable friend has been a Member of this House longer than I have been, and he knows perfectly well what the procedure in regard to proposals involving expenditure is. A proposal is put before the Standing Finance Committee. If the Standing Finance Committee, which is representative of this House, approves of a particular proposal, Government consider that they are perfectly justified, on the strength of that approval, to go on with the expenditure. Then, when a vote is needed, they come to the House.

Mr. B. Das : May I, Sir, ask your ruling arising out of this particular statement of the Honourable the Secretary of the Department of Education, Health and Lands ? May I enquire if the Government have the power to incur an expenditure if the Standing Finance Committee approves of it ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : A votable expenditure must ultimately be sanctioned by a vote of this House. If, on the strength of the Standing Finance Committee's approval, Government proceed with the expenditure on a particular item and then come for the vote of the House subsequently, then it is perfectly open to the House to reject that vote. In that case, unless that vote has been legalised by some other section of the Government of India Act, the person who was responsible for the expenditure will be surcharged by the Auditor General.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do I understand the procedure to be that if the Standing Finance Committee approves of this proposal, it will come up for sanction before this House before the close of this Session ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I would suggest that that question be addressed to the Honourable the Finance Member who generally moves the demands for grants.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I am asking the Government to reply. Will the Honourable the Finance Member kindly reply to this question ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : As far as I know, except as provided for by the Government of India Act, no expenditure can be finally sanctioned except by the authority of this House.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Then this question will come up before this House before any action is taken by way of a supplementary grant ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : It is bound to come up before this House. I am not in a position at this moment to give a pledge that no expenditure will be undertaken before the vote of the House is taken. Certainly no expenditure will be undertaken before the decision of the Standing Finance Committee has been taken.

Mr. H. P. Mody : May I know, Sir, what happens if a Member incurs expenditure illegally before this House has sanctioned it and then disappears ? (Laughter.)

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order. The House appears to be getting into a debate on this question. Next question, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh.

DEPORTATION OF ONE KARAM SINGH FROM CHINA.

70. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that one Karam Singh, who was sentenced to one month's imprisonment and deportation from China, in 1929, on a charge of sedition, was arrested and brought before the police court in Shanghai recently, and that he was awarded the maximum sentence of two months' imprisonment, followed by deportation from China ?

(b) Do Government propose to enquire into the matter and state why he was deported from China and for what offence ?

(c) Is there any representative of the British Government, or of the Government of India, in Shanghai ? If so, what steps, if any, were taken by him in this connection ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a), (b) and second sentence of (c). Enquiries are being made from His Majesty's Minister, Peking, and the result will be communicated to the House in due course.

(c) There is a British Consul General at Shanghai.

RESERVATION OF THE QUEEN MARY ZENANA GHAT IN PUSHKAR, AJMER, FOR THE EXCLUSIVE USE OF WOMEN.

71. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Are Government aware that the Queen Mary Zenana Ghat in Pushkar (Ajmer) was built exclusively for the use of women, and that it is being used by males also, no restriction being enforced in this connection ?

(b) Have Government received any complaints about this from Pandit Sohan Lal Sharma, President, Hindu Sabha, Pushkar, and from certain ladies also ? If so, what steps were taken on these representations ?

(c) What action have Government taken, or propose to take, to reserve the Queen Mary Zenana Ghat for women ?

(d) What amount of money is spent annually on the maintenance and repair of the said ghat, and from what funds ?

(e) Is it a fact that Pandit Sohan Lal Sharma wrote to the Commissioner of Ajmer-Merwara, offering to appoint a woman to enforce the rule reserving the ghat for the exclusive use of women ? If so, what action was taken on the suggestion ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a) The answer to the first part is in the affirmative. Notices have been put on entrances prohibiting its use by males. Trespassers are liable to prosecution under section 448, Indian Penal Code.

(b) and (c). Yes. Some complaints from Pandit Sohan Lal and one from a lady. Enquiries were made, notices as already stated, were put up and the Police have been asked to take cognizance of such offences as are reported to them. Pandit Sohan Lal has been asked to report specific cases to the Police.

(d) The construction of the ghat having been completed recently there has been no necessity to spend anything yet on its repairs or maintenance. It was built with the amount collected by charitable the funds propose to raise the funds similarly for future maintenance and repairs.

(e) Yes. No action was taken.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : With regard to answer to part (a), will Government take it from me that I myself visited this place in the course of the last two months and found that there was no person to guard it from the trespass of male persons and that male persons were freely going into this particular ghat which is said to be reserved for Zenana ?

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Did the Honourable Member himself also go there ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : The answer which I have just read out was only received from the Local Administration within the last few days. Possibly some measures have been taken since the Honourable Member visited the ghat.

INCOME OF THE BARAHJEE TEMPLE IN PUSHKAR, AJMER.

72. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) What is the approximate annual income of the Barahjee temple in Pushkar (Ajmer), and how is this money spent ?

(b) Is it a fact that no part of the income is spent on the maintenance and repairs of the temple ? If so, why ?

(c) Who has got the control over the temple ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a) No official information is available. The income is reported to be about Rs. 300 per annum. It goes to the general funds of the Shamlat Committee. Subscriptions are reported to be raised for repairs from time to time.

(b) Does not arise in view of (a).

(c) The Brahmins of Bari Basti, Pushkar, through their representative committee.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if that temple is a public temple ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : So far as I am aware, it is open to the public if that is what the Honourable Member means.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : With regard to part (b), how is the income spent ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : I cannot give the Honourable Member exact information about that, but I think the Honourable Member will get some more information in reply to the next question.

(b) Is it a fact that no part of the proceeds of the Jagir is utilized towards any of the objects mentioned in part (a) above ?

(c) Are Government aware that in civil suit No. 280 of 1925 the Sub-Judge, first class, Ajmer, in his Judgment, dated the 7th February, 1930, has commented that "The accounts were not maintained by the Shamlat Committee properly", that "A major portion of the Shamlat income is spent after litigation", and that "The members of the Shamlat Committee were not managing the affairs properly, and were not keeping proper accounts" ?

(d) Are Government aware that Mr. Ram Swaroop, Tehsildar, has also condemned the accounts of the Shamlat Committee, or the Jagir Committee, in his note on the resolution book of the Committee in 1932 ?

(e) Are Government aware that in cheques Nos. 102 to 757, from 1930 to 1933, of the Jagir Committee, a number of entries such as expenses over the supply of milk, and sweet-meats, etc., to officials, providing costly garlands to officials, and similar other items have been made ? If so, will Government please state whether such presents were really made to officials ?

(f) Have the accounts of the Shamlat or the Jagir Committee been ever audited by any official, or duly qualified auditor ? If not, why not ?

(g) Do Government propose to appoint a committee to enquire into the accounts and administration of the Jagir Committee ? If not, why not ?

(h) Have Government or local officials received representations from voters, and from some members of the Jagir Committee itself, complaining about the accounts of the Committee, the latest representation to the Assistant Commissioner, Ajmer, being the one dated the 27th March, 1934, signed by a majority of voters of the Jagir Committee and also by two members of the Committee itself ?

(i) What steps do Government propose to take in this matter ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a) The reply is in the negative. A reference is invited to paragraph 64* of the report of the Committee on Jagir estates, dated the 16th May, 1874, printed at page 579 of the Ajmer Regulations, Volume II (H-L).

(b) Does not arise.

(c) Yes.

(d) Yes.

(e) No. The second part of the question does not arise.

(f) Yes, by the Revenue Girdawar (Supervisor) half yearly, vide the reply to question No. 89 (c), already given in the Government of India, Foreign and Political Department letter* No. F-10-I/29, dated the 7th February, 1929, addressed to the Honourable Member.

(g) No. As the accounts are examined in the manner indicated in the reply to part (f) of this question and are exhibited to the public, Government see no necessity for such action.

*Copy enclosed.

(h) Representations have been received and duly examined. An application dated the 27th March, 1934, is under enquiry.

(i) None.

Copy of paragraph 64 of the report of the Committee on Jagir estates dated the 16th May, 1874, printed at page 579 of the Ajmer Regulations, Volume II (H-L).

64. The Jagir of Pushkar is of very ancient date. The oldest Sanad on record is one of the Jahangir, arranging how the rival parties should divide the gifts of pilgrims, and continuing the village "dar wajh madad maush kaum pokhuriya sunnadaran." The land of Pokhur is minutely divided; 418 sharers have been recorded as in possession of land at the present measurement.

From
The Deputy Secretary to the Government of India in the Foreign and Political Department,

To Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, M.L.A.,
12-E, Ferozshah Road,
New Delhi.

Dated New Delhi, the 7th February, 1929.

Questions regarding Pushkar.

Sir,

At the meeting of the Legislative Assembly on the 28th January, 1929, Sir Denis Bray informed you that the information asked for by you in questions Nos. 89, 90 and 91, regarding Pushkar was being collected and would be communicated to you in due course. The information has since been obtained and the replies to your questions are as follows:

No. 89.

(a) Government have no definite information on this point.

(b) The Mughal Emperors conferred about 14,000 bighas on the Brahmans of the Bari Basti and in the Sanad granted by the British Government the area is shown as 5,328 acres, viz., 13,320 bighas. In the decennial settlement the area entered in the Shamlat Khata was 6,962 bighas including land under water. Some encroachments have been made by the Brahmans of the Chhoti Basti, who are perpetually quarrelling with the Brahmans of the Bari Basti. Civil litigation is in progress with regard to these encroachments. The revenue papers now show 6,493 bighas as in possession of the Shamlat Committee. It is, however, misleading to compare this figure with the figure entered in the Sanad, as the former figure relates only to common Shamlat land and does not include the land separately owned by the numerous Brahmans, among whom the Jagir is divided.

(c) Accounts are kept by the Shamlat Committee according to rules contained in a decree of the Civil Court. They are checked by the Revenue Girdawar half-yearly and a copy is hung up in a public place in Pushkar for the information of the Jagirdars and copies are sent to the Collector and the Tehsildar.

(d) Under the terms of Sanad permanent alienation of land is not permissible. In some cases the transfer of Biwadari rights may have occurred with the sanction of the Collector under the Ajmer Alienation of Land Regulation, 1914.

(e) It is not understood what is meant by "the Shamlat Committee of the Local Government." The Jagir is divided among about 400 sharers who enjoy and utilise the income from their shares. Income from pilgrims is received and enjoyed by individual Pandas. The Local Government and the Shamlat Committee have nothing to do with either source of income.

No. 90.

P. Sohan Lal and Gopikishen were elected in April, 1924. Under the provisions of the Shamlat Committee Rules the Collector, Ajmer-Merwara has discretion to refuse sanction to the election of any particular persons and this discretion was used in this case. No application or telegram appears to have been received by the Chief Commissioner but it is understood that an application in this connection was made to the Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwara. Enquiries were made by the Commissioner which indicated that many, and probably most of the persons whose signatures were appended to the application had signed at the instance of P. Sohan Lal and Gopikishen without knowing what its purport was and without agreeing with the statements made in the application. No further action was therefore taken on it by the Commissioner.

(b) The Pushkar Jerun Udhar Fund which amounted to Rs. 19,200 has been utilised as follows:

	Rs.
Clerks pay	69
Silt removal	543
Ghat repairs	2,851
Patanki Pol construction	11,665
Balance with Alliance Bank	3,931
Balance with Imperial Bank	81
	19,200

No. 91.

The number of shops existing in Pushkar has not been counted but the number is considerably less than a hundred. The place is a small town with a population of about 2,400 and is of very little importance except as a pilgrimage centre. There is therefore no scope for a Municipality there, nor has any request for its establishment been made. The actual number of pilgrims that visit Pushkar from Ajmer during the year is between 1 and 2 lakhs.

(b) There is no Municipality and no need for one. Special arrangements are made by the District Board during the time of annual fair for sanitation, lighting and other arrangements for the pilgrims. A temporary dispensary is also established there at that time. The question of establishing a permanent dispensary at Pushkar is receiving consideration. The Funds of the District Board and the Shamlat Committee are not sufficient for the construction of metalled roads throughout the town.

(c) The reply is in the negative.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

(Sd.) H. WILBERFORCE-BELL,

Deputy Secretary to the Government of India.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh: With regard to the remarks made by the officer as quoted in part (c) of my question, what steps do Government propose to take in order to see that the accounts are kept in a regular way?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe: I have already explained that the Government do have the accounts examined by the Revenue Girdawar half-yearly, which they consider to be sufficient.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh: With regard to part (e), do Government think that it is a justifiable expenditure to supply milk and sweetmeats,

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : Government do not admit for a moment that any of the funds are spent on such purposes.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Have Government taken care to inquire that these items already appear in the account books of the Shamlat Committee ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : I am informed by the Local Administration that no such items of expenditure have been incurred.

ESTABLISHMENT OF A MUNICIPALITY AT PUSHKAR, AJMER.

74. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is there any proposal for the establishment of a municipality at Pushkar (Ajmer) ? If not, why not ?

(b) Why has no hospital been yet established in Pushkar (Ajmer) ?

(c) Is it a fact that a tax of one anna per head is levied on all persons who purchase railway tickets for Ajmer ? If so, are Government aware that a good number of such visitors are pilgrims to Pushkar, which is a famous sacred place of the Hindus ?

(d) Is it a fact that the entire proceeds of this tax is spent on Ajmer Municipality, and no part is spent on the improvement of Pushkar ? If so, why ?

(e) Do Government propose to spend a fair portion of the tax for the establishment of a municipality and affording sanitary and other facilities to Pushkar ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a) No, vide the reply to question No. 91 (b), already given in the Government of India, Foreign and Political Department letter† No. F-10-I/29, dated the 7th February, 1929, addressed to the Honourable Member.

(b) Owing to financial stringency.

(c) Yes. A fraction only of the persons purchasing tickets for Ajmer are pilgrims to Pushkar.

(d) and (e) Yes. The tax is intended to provide sanitation amenities in Ajmer and as matters stand at present no part of the proceeds can be spent elsewhere, but Government would be prepared to consider the question.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : With regard to part (b), is it not a fact that the Government admitted on the floor of the House that the establishment of a hospital at Pushkar was a necessity ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : I am not aware of any such admission, but if the Honourable Member will call my attention to the particular debate in which the admission was made, I will have the matter looked into.

AMENDMENT OF THE CROWN LANDS ORDINANCE OF KENYA.

75. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government kindly state if the Kenya Government propose to amend the Crown Lands Ordinance, so as to permit transfers of leases of Sub-divisions of agricultural lands created for industrial and commercial purposes, from Europeans to Indians, and vice versa, without any restrictions, in view of representation made by the Indian Chamber of Commerce ?

†See starred question No. 73.

(b) Do Government propose to make an enquiry into this matter, and state what objection there is in removing this restriction in the transfer of lands, based on racial considerations ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) The Honourable Member presumably refers to the representations reported to have been made by the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry of Eastern Africa to a Select Committee appointed by the Legislative Council of the Colony, "to examine the position regarding residential, commercial and industrial development on land leased from the Crown for grazing and upon or agricultural purposes and the alleged change of user incidental to such development and to furnish a report". The representation was to the effect that unrestricted inter-racial transfer of commercial, industrial and residential plots outside townships be permitted. The Committee made no recommendation in the matter as they regarded it as outside their terms of reference. So far as the Government of India are aware, the Government of Kenya have no proposal before them to amend the Crown Lands Ordinance in the sense suggested in the question.

(b) It would appear that within the boundaries of municipalities, townships or trading centres, inter-racial transfers of agricultural lands used for industrial and commercial purposes, may be permitted. Outside such boundaries, transfers are not permitted as a matter of course. Exceptions have, however, been made where the property is, in fact, part of an area used for commercial purposes, whether or not the area has been specifically declared to be a township or trading centre.

PROVISION OF A TERRITORY FOR HIS HIGHNESS THE AGA KHAN.

76. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is there any truth in the report published in the papers that His Highness the Aga Khan has asked Government to provide him with a territory in India over which he may rule, in recognition of the services rendered by him to the Empire ?

(b) Have Government received any communication on the subject ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a) and (b). A confidential communication was received from His Highness the Aga Khan, but Government are not in a position to disclose its nature.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member if His Highness the Aga Khan wanted Sind ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : I have already stated that I am not in a position to disclose the nature of the communication received from His Highness and I have nothing more to add.

Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : Is it a fact that Muzaffarpur, where the house of my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, is situated, is to be made the capital of His Highness the Aga Khan ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I shall welcome him.

Sir Muhammad Yakub : Will Government please enquire how a confidential communication like this leaked out from the office of the Foreign and Political Department and was published in the papers ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : My Honourable friend is so ignorant that he does not read the papers. It appeared in the newspapers at the time.

Sir Muhammad Yakub : I am not more ignorant than my Honourable friend. My question was whether the Government will make an enquiry how such a highly confidential information leaked out from the office of the Foreign and Political Department and appeared in the newspapers ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : I am not prepared to admit for a moment that the information leaked out from the office of the Foreign and Political Department. There are a great many other sources from which it might have leaked out.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Is it not a fact that the Political Department receives numerous confidential communications ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : It certainly is a fact.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Is it not the practice of the Department not to reveal the contents of those communications ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : That equally is a fact, Sir.

Mr. B. Das : Are Government prepared to entertain similar applications from aspiring landholders who want to be feudatory chiefs in Bihar and Orissa and Bengal ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : That question does not arise.

RESTORATION OF THE CUTS IN SALARIES OF THE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES IN BIHAR AND ORISSA WHO SUFFERED FROM EARTHQUAKE.

77. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do Government propose to restore the salary cuts of those employees of the Central Government in Bihar and Orissa, who may have suffered from the earthquake ? If so, what are their exact proposals ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No such proposal is under the consideration of the Government of India.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government be willing to consider this proposal of restoring the salary cuts at least of those officials who are serving in the Province of Bihar and Orissa and who have been adversely affected by the earthquake ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I should not suppose that that would be a convenient way of dealing with any necessity there may be in individual cases for giving assistance.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Before I put the next question, I wish to point out that there is a mistake in the question. The special magistrate refers to Allahabad and not to Calcutta.

ENFORCEMENT OF THE RULE PROVIDING FOR 24 HOURS BOOKING ON RAILWAYS.

78. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the following comment of the Railway Special Magistrate of Calcutta, Rai Saheb Lal Mohan Banerjee, published in the Amrita Bazar Patrika, dated the 7th June, 1934 (page 6) reading—

“ The Railway authorities ought to insist upon a strict enforcement of the rule providing for 24 hours booking and reduce the chances of congestion ” ?

(b) Are Government aware that in the above case, a pick-pocket was arrested at the counter of the Railway booking office ?

(c) Are Government aware that the rule quoted above is not strictly enforced at all Railway stations ?

(d) Do Government propose to issue any fresh instructions in this matter ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) Government have no information beyond that contained in the newspaper report referred to.

(c) The rule referred to applies only in the case of certain large stations as notified by Railways in their tariffs, and Government are not aware that it is not being strictly enforced at such stations.

(d) Government consider this unnecessary. If any instances of the rule not being observed occur, they can—and, Government have no doubt, will—be brought to notice by members of Local Advisory Committees at meetings of the Committee.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government issue instructions to the station masters to see that the rule which they have prescribed is strictly followed ? As a matter of fact, at very important stations, where the booking is supposed to be for 24 hours, the rule is not followed in practice ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : It is unnecessary for Government to issue any such instructions. It would be better if my Honourable friend would bring to notice any particular case of breach of the rule, so that it may be taken up with the local administration.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I say that station masters may be instructed to see that the rules are strictly observed in those cases.

Mr. P. R. Rau : The rules are intended to be followed. The mere fact that the rules are published implies that it is the duty of the station masters to follow them.

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE RESERVE BANK OF INDIA.

79. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : When is the Reserve Bank of India likely to come into existence ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The matter is under active consideration, and it is hoped that an announcement can soon be made.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if it has been decided as to who is to be the Governor and who are to be the Deputy Governors ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I should be grateful if I am allowed to keep to the statement “ that it is hoped that an announcement can soon be made ”.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : In view of the dissolution of this Assembly, we would like to know when and how many Members of the House have the chance of being nominated as Directors of the new Bank.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I am afraid the Honourable Member is asking me to anticipate the announcement that I hope to make soon.

Mr. B. Das : May I know what will be the approximate time when the Government expect to call for shares for the Reserve Bank from the public ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Surely my Honourable friend does not want me to give him advance information like that.

Mr. B. Das : Does the Honourable Member anticipate any fluctuation in the share market if an announcement is made now ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I am not in the least responsible for market rumours.

Mr. B. Das : Does the Honourable Member anticipate that there will be any marked fluctuation in the market if the Government announce that such and such is the date when the shares of the Reserve Bank will be on sale in the market ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Whenever an announcement of the issue of shares is made, the Government of India naturally take into account the possible effects on their own borrowing operations.

Mr. B. Das : May I enquire why this inordinate delay in coming to a decision about the starting of a Reserve Bank? This question of starting a Reserve Bank was decided as long ago as 1928 when the whole framework was settled.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : First of all, I deny that there was any inordinate delay for which the Government of India were responsible. I am not sure whether the Honourable Member himself has not certain responsibilities for a certain amount of delay in the matter.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Then, is the Secretary of State responsible for the delay in starting this Reserve Bank ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Certainly not.

Mr. B. Das : Was there not a special Session of the Assembly held in Delhi to get this Reserve Bank Bill passed, and what is the reason for the Government in delaying the promulgation of the Reserve Bank ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : There is being no avoidable delay in making an announcement or promulgating any decision.

GOVERNMENT ATTITUDE TOWARDS THE INDIAN NATIONAL CONGRESS AND ITS COMMITTEES.

80. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Will Government be pleased to make a full statement of their present attitude towards the Indian National Congress, and its Committees ?

(b) Has civil disobedience ceased in the estimation of Government ?

(c) What is Government's view with regard to the All-India Congress Committee's decisions arrived at at Patna ?

(d) What is the opinion of respective provincial Governments in India with regard to the present attitude of the Congress and its Committees ?

(e) Is it a fact that Bombay Government have reported to the Government of India that the policy of civil disobedience movement of the Congress has not yet ceased ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) to (e). I would invite the attention of the Honourable Member to the statement made by the Government of India in the Home Department Communiqué, dated the 6th June, 1934, to which I have nothing to add.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member give me a reply specifically to (e) ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I think the Honourable Member may conclude from the fact that the Government of Bombay have just released Mr. Vallabhbhai Patel that in their view the Civil Disobedience Movement in Gujerat has now ceased.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Am I then to understand that there was a report from the Bombay Government that the Civil Disobedience Movement had not ceased and that since then Government have seen fit to release Mr. Patel ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir ; the position was that, in view of the special conditions in Gujerat, it was necessary for the Government of Bombay to observe those conditions carefully for some time.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state whether the ban has been lifted from all the provincial branches of the Indian National Congress ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : As far as I am aware, the ban has been lifted from all the regular provincial branches. (Laughter.)

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to state what he means by the word "regular" ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : There is a difference of opinion between me and my Honourable friend in regard to a particular organisation, I think, but the House did not show sufficient interest in the matter to debate the question the other day, and, therefore, I had no opportunity of dealing with it fully.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Are Government aware that the Khudai Khidmatgar organisation of the North-West Frontier Province is a branch of the Indian National Congress ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am aware that it has been so described.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Has the Civil Disobedience Movement stopped in all the Provinces of India or is there any exception ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I have not received reports recently of any Civil Disobedience Movement activities.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state whether they have lifted the ban from the Khudai Khidmatgar organisation of the North-West Frontier Province ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Certainly not, Sir.

Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to state the reasons for not lifting this ban when they have lifted the ban from all the other provincial branches of the Indian National Congress ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I think my Honourable friend has a question on this subject a little later.

Mr. B. Das : Do I understand the Honourable Member to say that Government have released all the Civil Disobedience prisoners in all the regular Provinces, and that there are no Civil Disobedience prisoners in jail now ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir ; I said nothing of the kind.

Mr. B. Das : But did not the Honourable Member say that the Government of Bombay have released the Civil Disobedience prisoners, including Mr. Vallabhbhai Patel ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir ; I said that the Government of Bombay have released Mr. Vallabhbhai Patel who was held under the Regulation.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Now that, according to the statement of the Honourable the Home Member, the Civil Disobedience Movement has ceased in all the Provinces, do Government propose to release the Civil Disobedience prisoners now in the jails ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The Government of India and the Local Governments, Sir, propose to continue the policy which is already in existence of expediting the release of those prisoners.

REMOVAL OF RESTRICTIONS PLACED ON THE INDIAN NATIONAL CONGRESS AND ITS COMMITTEES.

81. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will Government be pleased to state if they have removed the restrictions and bans placed against the Indian National Congress and its Committees owing to their civil disobedience policy, if so, which restrictions and bans have been removed and how far ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I would refer the Honourable Member to the Communiqué of June 6th, which states the policy that is being carried out.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I should like to have a specific reply to this question, viz., whether all the restrictions that were placed upon these people, on account of the Civil Disobedience Movement, have been removed, or are there still some that have not been removed ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I think, if the Honourable Member refers to the communiqué, he will find an answer to his question.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I do not remember that Communiqué now, and, therefore, I want the Honourable Member to tell me what it is, so that I may put further supplementary questions.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I shall be very glad to lay a copy of the Communiqué on the table, in case Honourable Members have not had an opportunity of reading it.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : So the Honourable Member himself knows that there were restrictions and there were notifications. I am asking if that Communiqué now shows which restrictions have been removed and which have not been removed.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : As far as I am aware, the restrictions to which the Honourable Member refers are merely notifications under the Criminal Law Amendment Act declaring certain Associations to be unlawful.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Has it been decided now that the Congress and all the Committees including the Working Committees and the All-India Congress Committee have been declared to be lawful ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The policy is very clearly stated in the Communiqué, and I really must ask my Honourable friend to be kind enough to read it.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I only want to have one reply to my question, viz., whether all the Associations and Committees have been declared lawful or not or are they still unlawful ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I will refer to the Communiqué :

"The Government of India have decided, in consultation with Local Governments, that the notifications declaring the various constituent parts of the Congress organisation unlawful should be withdrawn."

Later on, we went on to say :

"During the course of the Civil Disobedience Movement, many revolutionary organisations were proscribed which were distinct from the Congress though working in more or less close association with its objects. Local Governments will not withdraw the notifications against any such revolutionary organisations or any organisations which, in their opinion, are a danger to the peace of the country."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if there are any revolutionary Associations connected with the Congress ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Certainly, Sir.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Are they connected with the Congress ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The words were "distinct from the Congress though working in more or less close association with its objects."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Are there any such that are working in sympathy with the Congress ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : There have been, certainly. I cannot say what they are doing now.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member mention them ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir ; there are a great number of these Associations.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member mention at least one or two ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir ; I am afraid I cannot enter into details.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it the assertion of Government that there are terrorist associations affiliated to the Congress ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir ; these are not merely terrorist associations. They are associations of various descriptions.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : May I know who is the authority to determine what are the constituent parts of the Indian National Congress ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : This is an executive decision, and the determination must rest with Government.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : Is not the Indian National Congress itself the authority and has not the acting President, Mr. Jammal Bajaj, made it clear to the Honourable the Home Member that the Khud-i-Khidmatgar organisation in the Frontier Province was affiliated to the Congress in August, 1931, and was acting in accordance with the principles of the Congress and is prepared to abide by the decision of the Congress as had been given at Patna in regard to the Civil Disobedience Movement ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am very sorry that I did not have an opportunity of putting the facts fully before the House in connection with the abortive motion of my Honourable friend opposite, because I think I should have had no difficulty in proving to the House that the Red Shirt organisation did not observe the professed principles of the Congress and was quite definitely a revolutionary body.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : Is it not a fact that the authorities in the Frontier are confusing....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Order, order. The House had an opportunity of discussing the question of this organisation in the North-West Frontier Province, and the House deliberately decided not to discuss this question. The Chair cannot allow the occasion for supplementary questions to be utilised for raising a debate on that.

Mr. Muhammad Azhar Ali : Do Government still hold that the object of the Indian National Congress is in any way of the terrorist or revolutionary type ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The objects of the Indian National Congress at the moment seem to me to be somewhat uncertain.

FIGHTING OUT THE ISSUE OF THE WHITE PAPER REFORMS CONSTITUTIONALLY THROUGH THE INDIAN LEGISLATURE BY THE INDIAN NATIONAL CONGRESS.

82. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is it a fact that Government threw a challenge to the Indian National Congress to fight out the issue of the White Paper Reforms constitutionally through the Indian Legislature ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I think the Honourable Member has been placing too literal an interpretation on certain journalistic phrases.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member if there was no challenge from the Government, whether there was a challenge from the Congress itself that it will come to this House and break this White Paper ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I think it is perfectly true that the Congress or rather the body which hoped to emerge as the revived Swarajist Party did show an inclination to adopt the constitutional line described by the Honourable Member.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Was it, therefore, that the Government allowed this Assembly to come to a close and elections to take place ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : That decision was taken on full consideration of all the circumstances.

SHORT NOTICE QUESTION AND ANSWER.

SOUTH AFRICAN COLONIZATION ENQUIRY COMMITTEE REPORT.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : Will Government please state what action they propose to take on the South African Colonization Enquiry Committee Report ?

12 NOON.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Government of India have informed the Government of the Union of South Africa that they will formulate their views on the Report only after Indian opinion, both in South Africa and in India, has expressed itself fully. They have so far received no indication of the reaction of Indians in South Africa to the Report. They propose to consult the Standing Emigration Committee of the two Houses of the Indian Legislature, as soon as they can place before the Committee representative expressions of Indian opinion in both countries. Communication of their own conclusions to the Government of the Union is, therefore, likely to take some time.

Mr. B. Das : Is it not a fact that the South African Indians made it clear that they will have nothing to do with the recommendations of this preliminary Colonisation Committee Report and that they will not like to get out of South Africa at the request of these people, and is it not ill grace on the part of this Committee to recommend and suggest how Indians can find a colony for themselves, and do the Government of India approve the method in which this Colonisation Committee have suggested how colonies should be found for Indians ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : So far as I know, the South African Indian community has not yet expressed any opinion on the recommendations made in the Report. There is a section of South African Indians who decided to non-co-operate with the Committee which was appointed by the Government of the Union. But the most representative organisation of Indians in South Africa, that is to say, the South African Indian Congress, appointed a representative to serve on the Committee and also gave evidence before it.

My Honourable friend's next question was as to whether the Government of India approved of the Committee in South Africa arrogating to itself the function of advising India as to where it should find an outlet for its redundant millions. Government would prefer to express no opinion on either this or the other recommendations of the Committee until they have had time to consult Indian opinion here and in South Africa.

Mr. B. Das : Were the Government of India aware at the time of the investigation when they advised the Agent General in South Africa to render all help to that Committee, that the Committee was going to recommend ways and means as to how the Government of India should have colonies of their own for the Indian people?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The Government of India at the time, when they invited their Agent to assist the Committee, had merely the terms of reference of the Committee before them. The procedure of the Committee and the formulation of the views of the Committee were undoubtedly subsequent processes.

Mr. B. Das : May I suggest to the Government of India to appoint a Committee to advise the South African Government as to how they should function as a civilised Government?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I think that would be a labour of supererogation on the part of the Government of India.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware that there is strong feeling in this country against the recommendations made in that Colonization Committee Report?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : From my perusal of comments in the Press, I should say that my Honourable friend's conclusion is justified.

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

RESOLUTIONS, PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS RECEIVED FOR OR AGAINST THE HINDU TEMPLE ENTRY DISABILITIES REMOVAL BILL.

5. Pandit Ram Krishna Jha : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of (i) resolutions, (ii) petitions, (iii) memorials, and (iv) opinions received by them till the 15th of June, 1934, either for or against the Temple Entry Bill now pending in the Central legislature? Will Government be pleased to state how many of each are for and how many against the Bill?

(b) Will Government be pleased to lay a statement on the table showing :

- (i) the names of the individuals and their addresses,
- (ii) the names of the public bodies or associations,
- (iii) the names of the religious institutions or religious heads, and
- (iv) the names of the Government officials, the provincial Governments and the courts in British India, from whom Government have received such resolutions, petitions, etc., as aforesaid against the said Temple Entry Bill?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I will answer this and the next question, No. 6, together. Resolutions and memorials relating to the Temple Entry Bill which have been received either by the Legislative Assembly Department or through the Home Department have been already placed in the Library of the House and I lay on the table two lists of such representations received upto the end of June, the great majority of which are against the Bill. The opinions received on the Bill will be printed and circulated to Honourable Members in due course. Some petitions on this subject have already been reported to the House and others will be reported in due course. According to the directions of the Committee on Petitions, all the petitions will also be printed and circulated. The material for the information required by the Honourable Member is either already available or will be supplied to him before the next motion relating to the Bill is taken up.

I

If so, from which individuals or public or religious bodies?

(b) Have Government received any complaint to the effect that opinions submitted by the Sanatanist individuals, and public bodies, to the local officers, are not accepted by such officers of the locality?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state what steps, if any, have they so far taken to ensure a satisfactory mode of circulation of the Temple Entry Bill for opinion amongst the Sanatanist individuals and bodies likely to be affected by the Bill?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) and (c). The Government of India received some representations. Steps were taken when the Bill was circulated to Local Governments to draw their special attention to the necessity of securing its effective circulation, and Local Governments were subsequently addressed on two occasions and asked to ensure that opinions were obtained from as wide an area as possible.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 5.

COMMUNAL COMPOSITION OF THE STAFF IN THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT, BIHAR AND ORISSA.

8. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government be pleased to state :

- (a) the total number of gazetted and non-gazetted officers employed in the Income-tax Department, Bihar and Orissa, and the number belonging to each of the following communities, viz., Bihari Hindus, Bengali Hindus, Muhammadans, Oriyas and Christians ;
- (b) the number of new appointments made after the passing of the Emergency Finance Act, 1931, in the following Services of the Income-tax Department, Bihar and Orissa, (i) Assistant Commissioners, (ii) Inspectors of Income-tax, and (iii) Clerks ; and
- (c) the number of promotions made after the 1st April, 1932, from lower to higher grades of the gazetted and non-gazetted services of the Income-tax Department, Bihar and Orissa ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I propose to answer questions Nos. 8, 9 and 10 together. The information is being obtained and will be laid on the table in due course.

COMMUNAL COMPOSITION OF THE STAFF IN THE OFFICES OF THE ASSISTANT COMMISSIONERS OF INCOME-TAX, BIHAR AND ORISSA.

†9. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government kindly lay on the table a statement showing the number of Bihari Hindus, Bengali Hindus, Muhammadans, Oriyas and Christians employed as Head Assistants, Assistants and Second Assistants in the Offices of the Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax, Bihar and Orissa ?

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST THE SUPERINTENDENT IN THE OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX, BIHAR AND ORISSA.

†10. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that the Superintendent in the office of the Commissioner of Income-tax, Bihar and Orissa, has much to do with the transfers, promotions, etc., of the establishment of the Income-tax Department, Bihar and Orissa ?

PROPOSAL TO SHIFT THE OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX FROM RANCHI TO PATNA.

11. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government kindly state whether there is any proposal to shift the office of the Commissioner of Income-tax from Ranchi to Patna ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The answer is in the negative.

MAINTENANCE OF THE FAMILY OF HYDER ALI AND TIPU SULTAN.

12. Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : With reference to the starred question No. 1, dated the 22nd August, 1933, will Government kindly lay on the table a copy of the original scheme regarding the maintenance of the family of Hyder Ali and Tipu Sultan ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : Sir, I lay on the table a copy of the relevant articles of the Partition Treaty of Mysore, 1799, which contains the original provision for the maintenance of the families of Hyder Ali and Tipu Sultan.

Partition Treaty of Mysore—1799.

Treaty for strengthening the Alliance and Friendship subsisting between the English East India Company Bahadur, His Highness the Nawab Nizam-ud-Dowlah Ausuph Jah Bahadur, and the Peishwa, Rao Pundit Pradhan Bahadur and for effecting a settlement of the dominions of the late Tippoo Sultan.

Article 1.

It being reasonable and just that the allies by this Treaty should accomplish the original objects of the war (viz., a due indemnification for the expenses incurred in their own defence, and effectual security for their respective possessions against the future designs of their enemies), it is stipulated and agreed that the districts specified in the Schedule A hereunto annexed, together with the heads of all the passes leading from the territory of the late Tippoo Sultan to any part of the possessions of the English East India Company Bahadur, of its allies, or tributaries, situated between the ghauts on either coast, and all forts situated near to and commanding the said passes, shall be subjected to the authority, and be for ever incorporated with the dominions of the English East India Company Bahadur, the said Company Bahadur engaging to provide effectually, out of the revenues of the said districts, for the suitable maintenance of the whole of the families of the late Hyder Ali Khan and of the late Tippoo Sultan, and to apply to this purpose, with the reservation hereinafter stated, and an annual sum of not less than two lakhs of Star Pagodas, making the Company's share as follows :—

	Canterai Pagodas.
Estimated value of districts enumerated in the Schedule A according to the statement of Tippoo Sultan in 1792 ..	7,77,170
Deduct provision for the families of Hyder Ali Khan and of Tippoo Sultan, two lakhs of Star Pagodas, in Canterai Pagodas ..	2,40,000
	(Rs. 7,00,000)
Remains to the East India Company ..	5,37,170

Article 6.

The English East India Company Bahadur shall be at liberty to make such deductions from time to time from the sums allotted by the first Article of the present Treaty for the maintenance of the families of Hyder Ali Khan and Tippoo Sultan, as may be proper, in consequence of the decease of any member of the said families ; and in the event of any hostile attempt, on the part of the said family or of any member of it, against the authority of the contracting parties or against the peace of their respective dominions or the territories of the Rajah of Mysore, then the said English East India Company Bahadur shall be at liberty to limit or suspend entirely the payment of the whole or any part of the stipend hereinbefore stipulated to be applied to the maintenance and support of the said families.

APPOINTMENT OF EX-APPRENTICES IN THE LILLOOAH RAILWAY WORKSHOP.

13. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) With reference to (i) starred questions Nos. 828 to 834 of the 12th September, 1933, (ii) starred questions Nos. 1106 to 1110 of the 21st November, 1933, (iii) unstarred questions Nos. 213 to 215 of the 27th November, 1933, and (iv) unstarred questions Nos. 265 to 266 of the 5th December, 1933, regarding the appointments of the ex-apprentices of the East Indian Railway Workshop, Lillooah, will Government please state whether they have now received the required information from the Agent, East Indian Railway? Are Government aware that the answers are long overdue?

(b) If Government have not received any information as yet, how long more will it take them to lay the replies on the table and what are the reasons for such long delay?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The information was laid on the table of the House on the 16th July, 1934.

WAITING LIST OF EX-APPRENTICES OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

14. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) With reference to the answer to unstarred question No. 19 of the 5th September, 1932, will Government please state why the waiting list of the ex-apprentices on the East Indian Railway has not been arranged according to seniority and the divisions they passed in the Technical School (as is done everywhere)? Are Government prepared to arrange the waiting list according to seniority and the divisions they passed in the Technical School and send the copies of the same to the Deputy Chief Mechanical Engineers, the Chief Engineer, the Chief Operating Superintendent and the Controller of Stores, without further delay? If not, why not?

(b) If the answer to part (a) above be in the affirmative, will Government please lay a copy of the waiting list on the table of this House? If not, why not?

(c) Will Government please place on the table of this House a list showing the names of mechanics, chargemen and draughtsmen who have been appointed in the East Indian Railway Workshop, Lillooah, since 1932, with the following particulars :

- (i) dates of completion of apprenticeship training ;
- (ii) particulars of training ;
- (iii) divisions in which passed in Technical examination ; and
- (iv) starting salaries ?

If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Government have no information. The matter is within the competence of the Railway Administration and Government are not prepared to interfere.

(b) and (c). The information is not available, and Government consider that the time and labour spent in the compilation is unlikely to be justified by results.

APPOINTMENTS AND PROMOTIONS IN THE LILLOOAH RAILWAY WORKSHOP.

15. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Are Government aware that it has been stated in reply to the unstarred question No. 26 of the 5th September, 1932, that one Anglo-Indian, who had no mechanical training at all, had been appointed as a mechanic in the Saw Mill in the East Indian Railway Workshop, Lillooah?

(b) Are Government aware that it has been stated in reply to starred question No. 924 of the 7th November, 1932, that one outsider, who had no training (except timber seasoning) in Carriage and Wagon Department, previously, was first appointed as a Kiln Seasoning Supervisor, that after the abolition of Kiln Seasoning Operation he was appointed as a mechanic, and that the claims of many ex-apprentices of the same workshop who were on the waiting list were ignored?

(c) Will Government please state whether the Anglo-Indians and outsiders who had no mechanical training at all, as referred to in parts (a) and (b) above, are better qualified for the posts of mechanics in the Carriage and Wagon Department, East Indian Railway, Lillooah, than the ex-apprentices who were trained for five years in the Carriage and Wagon Department? If so, will Government please state the reasons?

(d) If the answer to parts (a) and (b) above be in the affirmative, and to part (c) in the negative, will Government please state :

(i) why the ex-apprentices who were trained for five years under them are not able to manage the works ; and

(ii) whether those two mechanics are proposed to be replaced by the ex-apprentices who were trained in the same workshop and who are waiting? If not, why not?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The reply referred to will be found on page 1992 of the Legislative Assembly Debates, Volume III, No. 1, dated the 13th March, 1933. It contained particulars of the training and experience of a Foreman and Assistant Foreman in the Saw Mill.

(b) The reply referred to will be found on page 1985 of the Legislative Assembly Debates, Volume III, No. 1, dated the 13th March, 1933. It contained a statement showing the names of mechanics, chargemen and draftsmen appointed since January, 1930, in the Lillooah Carriage and Wagon Workshops.

(c) and (d). Government have no reason to believe that the selection made by the administration was not justified and are not prepared to interfere.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE LILLOOAH RAILWAY WORKSHOP.

16. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government please state whether they have acted in accordance with the procedure cited in answers to starred questions Nos. 296 (b) and (d) of the 10th September, 1929 and 471 (d) of the 5th March, 1930?

(b) If the answer to part (a) above be in the affirmative, will Government please state why Mr. N. C. Nandy has not been given the Charge-man T. T. grade?

(c) Are Government prepared to take immediate steps against such action of the Railway administration who are acting deliberately in contravention of the repeated assurance given by Government? If so, in what way? If not, why not?

(d) Are Government prepared to promote Mr. Nandy in the Charge-man T. T. grade without further delay and issue necessary orders to the officer concerned? If not, why not?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Information is being obtained and a reply will be laid on the table later.

APPOINTMENT OF EX-APPRENTICES IN THE LILLOOAH RAILWAY WORKSHOP.

17. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Is it a fact that a vacancy will occur in the grade of mechanics owing to the retirement of a mechanic who is working in Production Department under the Deputy Chief Mechanical Engineer, East Indian Railway, Lillooah ?

(b) Is it a fact that arrangements have already been made to appoint a junior ex-apprentice of 1932, ignoring the claims of many seniors of 1930 and 1931 who are still waiting for appointment ?

(c) Are Government aware that it has been stated in reply to a question that many ex-apprentices of 1930 and 1931 worked in Production Department ?

(d) Are Government aware of the assurance given in reply to the unstarred question No. 23 (b) of the 5th September, 1932 ?

(e) Are Government aware that it has been stated in reply to starred question No. 472 of the 5th March, 1930, that the senior ex-apprentices have prior claims to their juniors who completed their training at later dates ?

(f) If the answer to parts (a) to (e) above be in the affirmative, will Government please state whether they are prepared to :

- (i) put a stop to such practice of appointing juniors ;
- (ii) take necessary steps to appoint a senior ex-apprentice from the waiting list ; and
- (iii) issue necessary orders to the Chief Mechanical Engineer to this effect ?

If not, why not ?

(g) If the answer to part (iii) of part (f) above be in the affirmative, will Government please lay a copy of the order on the table ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information in regard to the detailed points raised in the question which are within the competence of the Railway Administration to decide. They have forwarded a copy of it to the Agent in order that any assurances given by Government may be borne in mind by him.

APPOINTMENT OF EX-APPRENTICES IN THE LILLOOAH RAILWAY WORKSHOP.

18. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Are Government aware that three posts of draughtsmen had fallen vacant in 1933 under the Deputy Chief Mechanical Engineer, East Indian Railway, Lillooah ?

(b) Are Government aware that all the ex-apprentices were informed by letters ?

(c) Are Government aware that they were put to test by the Head Draughtsman ?

(d) Are Government aware that they were given Drawing No. 3203 to draw sections through certain portions of a first class compartment, but no dimensions were given to them ? If so, why ?

(e) Are Government aware that no drawing except some standard parts can be drawn without dimensions ?

(f) Are Government aware that arrangements were made beforehand to appoint a tracer and an Anglo-Indian junior ex-apprentice ?

(g) If the answers to parts (d) and (f) above be in the negative, are Government prepared to institute an early enquiry into the matter and take necessary step ? If so, in what way ? If not, why not ?

(h) Will Government please supply the names of those who were appointed as draughtsmen in 1933, with the following particulars :

- (i) general education (university examination passed),
- (ii) technical education (division passed),
- (iii) particulars of training, and
- (iv) starting salaries ?

If not, why not ?

(i) Will Government please state whether they propose to transfer or promote mechanics and chargemen from other workshops or section which are under the Chief Mechanical Engineer, in cases of all future vacancies, and appoint ex-apprentices from the waiting list to the successive vacancies and issue necessary orders to the East Indian Railway Administration to this effect without further delay ? If not, why not ?

(j) If the answer to part (i) above be in the affirmative, will Government please lay a copy of the order on the table of this house ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information. The selection is within the competence of the Railway Administration and Government are not prepared to interfere.

APPOINTMENT OF EX-APPRENTICES IN THE LILLOOAH RAILWAY WORKSHOP.

19. Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Will Government please state the number of the vacancies that occurred in the grade of Train Examiners and Electricians under the Chief Operating Superintendent, East Indian Railway, since October, 1933, and the number of the ex-apprentices of Lillooah workshop who have been appointed, with the following particulars :

- (i) the name of the Division and the number of vacancies,
- (ii) names of the ex-apprentices, if any, and
- (iii) starting salaries ?

(b) Will Government please state separately the number of vacancies that have occurred under the Chief Engineer and the Controller of Stores since 1932 and the names, if any, of ex-apprentices of East Indian Railway Workshop, Lillooah, who have been provided there with posts, as referred to in the answer to starred question No. 918 (d) of the 7th November, 1932 ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information.

STATEMENTS LAID ON THE TABLE.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST THE CONDUCT OF TROOPS IN MIDNAPORE.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig (Home Member) : With reference to the allegations against the conduct of the troops and civil officials in Midnapore made in this House on the 19th March, 1934, by Mr. S. C. Mitra, in the course of the debate on the Finance Bill and to the undertaking I gave on the 21st March to treat these allegations as I would a question and obtain a report on them from the Government of Bengal, I now lay on the table a statement showing the result of the enquiries made by the local authorities, which are fully endorsed by the Government of Bengal.

Statement.

Allegations. (Extracted from Mr. S. C. Mitra's speech in the Legislative Assembly, dated the 19th March, 1934.)

Remarks.

The soldiers in batches of 20 to 25 with a circle officer or a special magistrate or a sub-deputy collector and one or two sub-inspectors of police and other police officers are sent to different thanas as from the sub-divisional town. Four or five camps are fixed up where they stay for three or four days. Each thana is being visited by different batches of troops in different routes.

(1) Reception.—Police officers give verbal or written notices to shopkeepers and prominent villagers to decorate shops and to erect gates in the routes to be followed by a party of troops and to receive them. Teachers of schools within a distance of three to four miles have also to erect gates and to receive the soldiers with their boys who should carry flags and shout "jais" to give them ovation. The school sub-inspectors have to take particular care that no one remains absent. Absentee teachers though small in number, are being deprived of their grants-in-aid. Each school has generally to serve more than one turn and the little boys have to remain standing for hours on each occasion. Several hundreds are collected at the instance of thana officers by general subscriptions. Defaulters are threatened with condign punishment. Processions with flowers, festoons, bugles and drums are to be arranged by villagers.

(2) Extortion of Tea Parties, Dalies and other Entertainments.—Well-to-do persons have no escape from giving either a tea party or a dali. A poor man, if he has sometimes incurred the wrath of even the chowkidar, has to pay for it and present dalies. The deputy Babu or the daroga Babu would send for persons and bid them present dalies with such articles as are put in the list they would supply. Any pleading to be excused with less costly or more easily available things would earn for the offender the

(1) During the combined civil and military operations shop-keepers and prominent villagers were invited to welcome the troops and in accordance with the time-honoured custom of the country on account of ceremonial visits they erected arches and decorated their shops.

It is not true that teachers and students were compelled to appear against their will to greet the troops; on the contrary, the school children in most places eagerly clamoured for permission to be present and evidently regarded the arrival of the troops as a festive occasion. In no case has any teacher been deprived of his grant-in-aid on account of his absence from such festivities, or threatened with such deprivation.

(2) It is entirely untrue that any person was compelled to give tea parties or dalies to the troops; on the contrary, on the advice of the civil officials, the military in many places refused to accept tea parties or dalies. Only well-to-do persons of known loyalty and sufficient standing were allowed to entertain the troops and the entertainments consisted of simple tea parties at which the troops were supplied with country sweetmeats, etc.

STATEMENTS LAID ON THE TABLE.

Allegations. (Extracted from Mr. S. C. Mitra's speech in the Legislative Assembly, dated the 19th March, 1934.)

filthiest language and the grossest insult. Men of position and honour have to remain standing for hours supplicatingly to receive orders from the officers just to avoid greater insult at their hands. Cash moneys are sometimes extracted in lieu of dalies. Teachers and members of school committees have in some cases to arrange tea parties or send dalies, as otherwise they would be deprived of their stipends. If they do not dance attendance on the visiting party, they are suspended or their aids are cancelled at the orders of the school sub-inspectors, who as a rule, play a most prominent part in the reception.

(3) "Union Jack" Salutation.—Notices are served particularly on Congress workers, to salute the Union Jack on a particular day at a particular camp. If they do not turn up, their houses are searched and household articles are pillaged. They are flogged and members of their families are insulted, roughly handled and sometimes assaulted. The workers are arrested and taken to the camp, and if they refused to salute the Union Jack, they are subjected to inhuman torture in the shape of flogging, kicking, knocking their heads against the grounds, and the like. They are also kept in confinement for long periods with their hands tied up or otherwise.

(4) House searches and Destruction of properties.—In these cases, too, the Congress workers are the targets. Besides, those persons, who have been deemed wanting in proper respect for the daroga Babu or any other officer, had their houses searched, household articles destroyed, and also received usual insults. Sometimes ladies are also assaulted and are subjected to humiliation.

Great excesses have so far been committed by searching parties. Properties have been destroyed, cash and ornaments have been robbed, houses have been desecrated, householders, from children to old men, have been flogged, ladies have been molested and even outrages on women have been committed.

(3) Prominent inhabitants of the villages concerned, whether Congress workers or not, were invited to attend flag saluting ceremonies and the great majority of them expressed satisfaction at being invited. At some of these ceremonies as many as 7,000 or 8,000 people were present, and great enthusiasm was shown. It is not true that those who were invited but did not attend were tortured, their houses pillaged and their families roughly handled. The Additional District Magistrate was on tour almost continuously during the operations and talked to many hundreds of the people concerned; in no case was any complaint of this nature made to him. Written complaints were afterwards received in respect of Ashutosh Roy Choudhury and Ramanath Maity, but enquiry showed that the complaints were either false or grossly exaggerated. Neither of these gentlemen made any attempt to represent their grievances to the Additional District Magistrate, although that officer was several times in their locality and twice sent for Ashutosh Choudhury.

(4) It is not true that houses have been searched because disrespect had been shown by their owners to the local police. During the course of the operations information was from time to time received which made it necessary to search houses; such searches were conducted by the Police, and the troops provided the necessary cordon. The troops did not enter the houses at all.

The allegations of flogging, looting, wanton destruction and molestation of women, are all utterly unfounded and not in a single case have such allegations been substantiated. Only one specific allegation of the molestation of a woman has been made and this was found on a judicial enquiry by a officer, quite unconnected with the operations, to be completely false. The complainant has since been prosecuted for giving false evidence and the case was still under trial at the time of the local Government's report.

Allegations. (Extracted from Mr. S. C. Mitra's speech in the Legislative Assembly, dated the 19th March, 1934.)

Remarks.

(5) Durbars.—The District Magistrate or the Additional District Magistrate holds a darbar in each thana. Notices are served particularly on Congress workers or Congress sympathisers for attendance. Darbar speeches are full of threats that the people should be careful to keep free from all sorts of movements, otherwise military help would be resorted to to suppress them.

(6) Watch and Ward Committees.—Watch and Ward committees are being formed by Circle Officers in villages. In the durbars, the members of such committees, who in many cases have been coerced to serve as such, are awarded sandaks which warrant them to help in cases of dacoity in the villages. But in the darbar speeches they are directed that they must give information to the police whenever a library or a gymnastic club, or a school is started in the village or if there is any meeting, political or otherwise, or there is any newcomer and so on.

(7) Notices on Congress workers.—Those Congress workers, who have not submitted to the coercion by refusing to salute the Union Jack or to be a member of the Watch and Ward committee and those who have been considered incorrigible are being served with notices under the Bengal Suppression of Terrorist Outrages Act, 1932, to report to thana officers each week and to assist in the maintenance of law and order in connection with the combined civil and military operations to be carried out in the district from 15th December until the 31st April 1934.

A few significant cases will give some idea about the serious situation.

(8) During the small hours of the night of the 25th January, 1934, a number of Garhwali soldiers surrounded the house of S. J. Murari Mohan Sasmal of Jukhia in P. S. Bhagwanpur in the Contai sub-division, and one of the soldiers committed rape on the wife of S. J. Bhuban Chandra Sasmal, the elder brother of Murari Babu. Both the brothers were absent from home and the neighbours were prevented by soldiers and policemen from coming to the rescue of the unfortunate woman.

(5) The facts are that prominent gentlemen, including Congress adherents, were invited to the durbars and were told clearly that neither Government nor the District authorities were prepared to tolerate subversive or anarchical movements and that Government were determined to use every possible means to stamp out terrorism. Emphasis was placed upon the fact that the villagers themselves stood to lose by such movements and that it was their duty to come to the aid of Government in restoring order and tranquillity.

(6) The Watch and Ward Committees were told in the Darbar speeches that their main function is to keep their eyes open and to collect information relating to anything which may affect the public tranquillity. If for example a new school is opened, they are to ascertain whether it is a genuine school rendering useful service to the community or whether it is merely an institution for terrorist or Congress propaganda. Similarly the Watch and Ward Committees were told that if a stranger comes to the village, they are to satisfy themselves that he has not come with the intention of carrying on terrorist propaganda or otherwise disturbing the public peace. The duties thus entrusted to the members of the Watch and Ward Committees are the ordinary duties of a public citizen. Unwilling persons have not been compelled to serve on these Committees.

(7) During the operations, information came to light which made it necessary to keep in touch with the movements of certain persons, and notices under the Bengal Suppression of Terrorist Outrages Act were accordingly served upon them. The total number of persons on whom notices were so served was 43 out of a district population of three millions. In most cases the purpose of the notices has now been served and the orders have been or are about to be withdrawn.

(8) The case has already been mentioned above [vide item (4)]. A judicial enquiry was held and the complaint found to be false and a prosecution for false evidence was instituted against Murari Mohan Sasmal.

Allegations. (Extracted from Mr. S. C. Mitra's speech in the Legislative Assembly, dated the 19th March, 1934.)

Remarks.

(9) On the 11th January, 1934, the junior sub-inspector of police of P. S. Kedgree in the Contai sub-division, with a party of Garhwali soldiers, constables and chowkidars, surrounded the house of S. J. Jogendra Nath Patra of Silli-bari in P. S. Kedgree. Jogen Babu being absent from home, they enquired about Jogen Babu's wife, who at the sight of the soldiers, had run away from the house with her two children and had been trying to take shelter in a neighbour's house. The sub-inspector, with some constables, chased her from one house to another for a distance of 1½ miles, assaulted whomsoever they came across, held an identification parade of women to find her out and created a great panic throughout the village.

(10) During the search in the night of the 3rd January, 1934 (3 A.M.) in the house of S. J. Indra Narayan Bera of village Katranka in P. S. Patasur in the Contai sub-division, one of the soldiers of the searching party, headed by Mr. Dharendra Nath Mukherjee, the special magistrate of Contai, and S. J. Jagat Taran Chatterjee, the senior sub-inspector of police of P. S. Potashpur, with the apparent evil intention dragged Shrimati Rajanibala Bera, the daughter-in-law of Indra Babu, inside a room and the lady could only save her honour by threatening to make an end of her life with a knife. Shrimati Rajanibala was a Congress worker; she was asked to salute the Union Jack.

Serious damages were done to the properties of the Beras, male and female members were seriously assaulted—not even children excepted, and gold and silver ornaments were robbed.

(11) (i) After search in the house of S. J. Kumar Narayan Panda, on 27th December, 1933, a bundle of currency notes amounting in all to Rs. 2,635 was found missing.

(ii) Every article in the house of Kailas Chandra Maiti of Balichak, P. S. Kedgree, was smashed during search, and ornaments and other articles were robbed.

(iii) Cash payments were extorted from Jhatu Charan Maiti of Paschim Sarpai, Iswan Chandra Karan of Dakshin Nisehintia, P. S. Contai, and others on the 31st December, 1933.

(iv) On the 10th December, 1933, S. J. Ashutosh Ray Chowdhury and S. J. Ramanath Maiti (Congress workers) of Balyagovindpur, P. S. Potashpur, were flogged, threatened with their lives and kept in confinement for their refusal to salute the Union Jack, and their household articles were given over to pillage during search on the 9th December, 1933.

(9) No complaint of this kind has been made to the district authorities.

(10) No such complaint has been made to the district authorities. A complaint of a similar nature was received from Kumud Charan Bera of the same village and on enquiry by the District Magistrate was found to be totally and maliciously false. It may be noted here that the allegations made in paragraphs (10), (12), (17) and (25) should, if true, have been made the subject of criminal complaint. No such complaints were made and the fact that these allegations are now for the first time brought to the notice of the District authorities affords a very reasonable presumption that they are false.

(11) (i) See remarks against item 23.

(11) (ii) and (iii). No such complaints were made to local authorities.

(11) (iv) A complete reply to these allegations was given in the statement laid on the Assembly table on the 31st January, 1934, in answer to Mr. S. C. Mitra's question No. 49.

Allegations. (Extracted from Mr. S. C. Mitra's speech in the Legislative Assembly, dated the 19th March, 1934.)

(12) On the 16th January, 1934, S. Sashi Sekhar Mandal of village Ektarpur, P. S. Potashpur, was arrested and taken to the soldiers' camp, and, on his refusal to salute the Union Jack, was flogged, slapped, kicked and otherwise assaulted for several times, was kept in confinement, tied up in a post, and his head was knocked against the ground before the Union Jack again and again and he was subjected to the most inhuman behaviour.

There are many other cases of the like.

(13) On the 3rd January, 1934, school masters and students were assaulted for no fault of theirs, and their stipends were suspended, because Mahatma Gandhi and Chittaranjan's photos were found in the school. Two little boys were also inhumanly treated.

(14) Potashpur Police Station.—The first instance of military excesses was committed on the 9th December last by a detachment of the Royal Garhwali Rifles, encamped at Manglamaro, in connection with house searches in the villages of Ballyagovindpur and Palpara under police station Potashpur; there Sjs. Ashutosh Ray Choudhury, Ramanath Maity and Kalipada Mahapatra were flogged and otherwise harassed for their refusal to salute the Union Jack. Another detachment encamping at the Argosy Bungalow, on the 1st January, 1934, led by the special magistrate, Mr. D. N. Mukherjee, and the sub-inspectors, Messrs. Jagat Taran Bannerjee and Khondakar, committed similar atrocities at the village Katranka on the occasion of searching the houses of the Bera on the 3rd January, 1934. Floggings, lathi blows upon the inmates, not excepting ladies, and loot and destruction of property were freely indulged in by the soldiery. Sjs. Kumud Chandra Bera, Churadhari Bera, with his wife and the son, Monaranjan Bera, Nilkanta Bera, Indra Narayan Bera, with his wife and the daughter-in-law, Sja. Rajani Bala Bera; Kartick Ch. Bera, with his sons, Priyanath, and Bholanath Haridhan Bera, Gajendra Nath Bera, with his sons, Arjun, Arun and Bharat, and Satis Ch. and Narendra Nath Bera were amongst the victims. Assaults were due to the refusal to salute the Flag and furnish information leading to the recovery of the Congress Cyclostyle Machine.

(15) Contai Police Station.—Prior to the arrival of the Royal Garhwali Rifles at Contai, the S. D. O. issued warrants to the local gentry directing them to join the reception of the troops and the Flag Salutation ceremony on the 16th December and the Ceremonial Parade

(14) This is a repetition of the allegations made in items (10) and (11) (iv) above.

(15) The use of the term "warrant" in this para. is wholly misleading. Notices were served upon the local gentry requesting them to join in the reception of the troops and these notices (which were in Bengali) were couched in the honorific or polite form of Bengali. It the 18th December, 1933. Here dalies or, in u. thereof, cash payments were extorted on the local people upon the threat of beleting the soldiery on their houses.

(16) Ballyagovindpur.—On the 9th December, 1933, a number of soldiers of the Royal Garhwali Rifles, headed by a havildar, surrounded the house of S. Ashutosh Ray Choudhury of Ballyagovindpur village under Potashpur police station. S. Ray Choudhury was asked to salute the Union Jack. But before he could understand the situation, he was secured with a rope, his hands being tied on behind, and was severely belaboured by the Havildar. In the meantime, on the plea of a search, the soldiers entered his house and pillaged everything inside. With S. Ray Choudhury in their custody, the house of S. Ramanath Maity was next visited. He too was given a good thrashing and his house was also given over to similar pillage. Both of them were then taken to the Soldiers' Camp at Manglamaro and detained there for two days. On the 10th, at 5 P.M., both of them were taken to the Parade Ground and ordered to salute the Flag. On their refusal, there they were mercilessly belaboured, and, moreover, threatened to be shot dead. At last they were forcibly made to salute the Union Jack.

(17) Palpara.—On the 9th December, the house of S. Kalipada Roy Mahapatra of Palpara was also surrounded by soldiers. Kalipada Roy was roughly handled for his refusal to salute the Flag and subsequently made a prisoner. His house was searched with considerable damage to property. But, persisting in his refusal to salute the Flag, he was again assaulted by the Havildar at the Parade Ground. They wanted him to execute a bond, but, as he was not agreeable to this, he was again given some fifty lashes.

(18) Banamali Chatta.—At this village, a detachment of the Garhwali Rifles searched the houses of S. Sree Nath Chandra Jana and Kanganal Chandra Jana, on the 26th December. Although nothing incriminating was found, the searching party broke into pieces several earthen jars, looking glasses and earthen pots; tore open mattresses and quilts and scattered rice and dal on the floor. At Kanganal Babu's place, despite being offered keys, they wantonly broke open a safe and mutilated important documents inside. In the evening, the local gentry were summoned at the Parade Ground and ordered to send dalies for the troops. There Ananta Das of Kamardah and Bhagabat is quite untrue that dalies were extorted from the local people. Attention is invited in this connection to the remarks made against item (2) above.

(16) This is a repetition of the allegations made in items (11) (iv) and (14) above.

(17) See remarks against item (10) above.

(18) The remarks made against items (10), (4) and (2) apply also to these allegations.

Allegations. (Extracted from Mr. S. C. Mitra's speech in the Legislative Assembly, dated the 19th March, 1934.)

Chandra Jana of Laudan were abused in the most filthy language, roughly handled and forcibly made to salute the Union Jack.

(19) Bantrakunda.—Here a party of soldiers searched the houses of S. Achinta Kumar Panday and Kumar Narayan Panday on the 27th December. At the former place, a box and a portmanteau were broken open and paper inside destroyed. Foodstuffs were all scattered on the floor and got mixed up. At the latter place, three boxes four portmanteaus, and one safe were broken open and the contents therein soiled pouring oil over them.

(20) Behari.—Here S. Byomkesh Das, a teacher of the Namaldiah, U. P. School, was summoned by the Havildar of a detachment, visiting the place on the 26th December, to salute the Union Jack with the local volunteers. In the absence of the Flag that day he had to salute the bare flag-staff then and there, and reappear the next day for proper salutation. Dali was also extorted from him, and also from Kumud Bandhu Panday, a local zamindar and the President Panchayat of Union No. IV. He had also to arrange for a dinner in honour of the Officer Commanding Captain Murray, where no less than 62 Garhwali soldiers were among the guests.

Katranka.—Headed by the special magistrate Mr. D. N. Mukherjee, and a Havildar among others, a batch of soldiers surrounded the house of the Bera at 3 A.M. on the 3rd January, 1934. While searching the house of S. Kumud Chandra Bera, his younger brother, S. Churadhari Bera, was kicked and dealt with 20 or 25 stripes and lathi blows. He got a nasty cut in his head two inches long and serious injuries in the right cheek and the little finger of the left hand. Kumud Babu's nephew, Sreeman Manoranjan and his mother each got five to six stripes. A soldier tugged the portion of the saree covering her head and the breast. The searching party then broke open wooden safes and robbed gold and silver ornaments approximately worth Rs. 100. Important documents and papers in connection with the estate of Kumud Babu's master have also been destroyed. The cost of other damages amounts to nearly Rs. 30 to Rs. 40.

S. Nilkanta Bera's house was also ransacked. Here, among other things, a few Charkas were smashed. Not satisfied with this, the soldiers went to the length of answering calls of nature in two rooms. Apart from damage to property, here they insulted Indra Babu's wife and a daughter-in-law, named Sja. Rajanibala Bera, a local Congress worker. A soldier enquired of her about the Cyclostyle Machine and asked her in Hindi to salute the Union Jack. Before she could make out what the soldier meant, she was struck with a lathi. Not satisfied with this, the soldier, with the apparent evil intention, tried to push aside the mother-in-law, while dragging the daughter-in-law inside the room. At this Sja. Rajanibala threatened to make an end of her life with a knife and thus saved her honour.

At S. Kartick Ch. Bera's house, his son, Priyanath Bera (16—17) years, was asked about the Cyclostyle Machine. Having no satisfactory answer from him, the special magistrate, Mr. Khondakar, and the Havildar, one after another flogged him 40 to 50 times. They broke two canes on his back. He was then removed to the Argaola Military Camp and forcibly made to salute the Union Jack in the evening. He had nothing to eat during the night and was let off at 4 P.M. the next day. Sreeman Bhola-nath (10 years), the youngest son of Kartick Babu, was also given a few stripes. The military visited the house of S. Haridhan Bera, who was laid up with dysentery for several months, and gave him 5 to 6 stripes for withholding information about the Cyclostyle. For similar supposed offences, his sons, Arjun, Arun and Bharat were also flogged. S. Gajendra Nath Bera got kicks and stripes; Sreeman Satish Chandra Bera (13 years) and Narendra Nath Bera (14 years) had their heads knocked against the wall and also flogged for not disclosing information leading to the recovery of the Machine.

I shall now give the English rendering of Notices of Reception and Flag Salutation Ceremonies:

"WARRANT No. 1.

(21) You are hereby informed that the Royal Garhwali soldiers of the Government will reach Contai on the 16th December, 1933, at 3 P.M. You are, therefore, directed to be present at the Dak Bungalow compound for their reception and the salutation of the British Flag at 3 P.M.

(Sd.) D. M. SEN,

Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Contai."

Dated 15th December 1933.
Court Seal.

(21) The notices have already been discussed in item (15) above. The headings "Warrant No. 1, Warrant No. 2" are misleading translations, presumably intended to suggest that some form of compulsion was connected with these notices. The actual heading of the notices was "Parwana", a word which connotes notices of all kinds.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

[18TH JULY 1934.]

Remarks.

"WARRANT No. 2.

You are hereby informed that the Ceremonial Parade of the Royal Garhwali Rifles will be held in the compound in front of Khas Mahal Office on the 18th December, 1933, at 11 A.M. You are directed to be present there at the appointed hour without fail.

(Sd.) D. M. SEN,

Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Contai."

Dated the 16th December, 1933.

Court Seal.

I shall now refer to some of the circulars issued by some of those reception committees. I read now one circular which was issued to all the male members in a village :

(22) "As you have been appointed a member of the newly constituted watch and ward committee of Union No..... you would be so good as to be present at the Janka police station compound on Monday, the 9th January at 10 A.M., for the reception of the honoured District Magistrate and the acceptance of the sanad to the satisfaction of all. Absence will be deemed as a mark of disloyalty.

Yours faithfully,

(Sd.) PROFULLA KUMAR MAITY,

Chairman, Reception Committee."

I want the House to note that absence is punishable as a mark of disloyalty. In the judgment of a famous sedition case, disaffection has been defined as want of affection.

(23) "On the morning of 27th December last, at about 8 A.M. a band of soldiers accompanied by the police Inspector..... and the sub-deputy collector, Contai, surrounded my house. No male members were then present. Ladies were ordered out, and one of them fainted away. Then they broke open three wooden boxes. The largest of these contained a bundle of currency notes made up of fourteen 100-rupee notes, one hundred and twenty-three ten rupee notes and one five-rupee note, amounting in all to Rs. 2,635 only. All these things were destroyed in the presence of my brother, Sj. Ramanath Panday. I was at Amratala Chak for settlement work and reached home on receiving the news. On hearing from my brother, I searched for the bundle of notes. But I did not find it, it was missing.

(22) The notices in question were issued by a loyal gentleman who was himself taking considerable interest in the formation of the Watch and Ward Committees. He felt it to be the duty of his fellow citizens to attend the reception of the Additional District Magistrate and receive their sanads appointing them as members of the Watch and Ward Committees, and he expressed his opinion that absence would be deemed (by him) a mark of disloyalty. No suggestion of any kind was made in the notice that absence would be punishable.

(23) Kumar Narayan Panday made no attempt whatever to lodge a criminal complaint regarding the alleged destruction of notes amounting to Rs. 2,635. It is incredible that had such destruction taken place no attempt should have been made to seek redress or to recover from the authorities the value of the notes destroyed.

(Sd.) KUMAR NARAYAN PANDAY."

Then, I should like to read the story of an attempted outrage. This is the statement :—

(24) "I was a Congress worker, but have given up Congress work for the last 1½ years owing to pecuniary difficulties, and have been practising medicine. On the 25th January last, I went out on a call and was informed on the next day that the soldiers and the police had visited my house, and rape had been committed on a female member of our family. On my return, I heard of the following incident from my sister-in-law and kinsmen. I wanted to send a wire to Mr. R. Maiti, M.L.C., but the post office at Kajlagarh refused to admit the wire as it was against the police."

This is how the Postal Department has been functioning—

"At about 4 A.M., that is, towards the later part of the night of the 25th January, a batch of police and soldiers surrounded my house and the house of my kinsmen. They got entrance inside the compound probably through the broken portion of the boundary walls. Finding nobody there, they went into the courtyard of my uncle (Girish Babu). As both my elder brother Bhuban Babu, and myself were away from home, my brother's wife, Sm. Janakibala Sasmal with three children, was sleeping in a separate bed in Girish Babu's house. The sound of the steps of the soldiers and the flash of torch-lights awoke Girish Babu's mother who tried to awaken my sister-in-law by calling her. At this, some soldiers caught hold of her (Girish Babu's mother), while others of the party wrapped up my sister-in-law's face with a piece of cloth and tried to outrage her. She had a sudden break of her sleep. There were the shrieks of horror of my uncle's mother on the one hand and such a brutal attack on herself on the other, that she became so much nervous that she lost all power to fight against this outrage. At the cry my uncle's mother, my uncle (Girish Babu) and a brother tried to run up to the place, but they were prevented by some other soldiers from doing so. The wife of Girish Babu, who was sharing the same bed with my uncle's mother, was also being dragged with apparent evil intention by one of the soldiers, but she ran away, got into a room and barred the door. In the morning (26th January), the sub-inspector of police of the Bhagwanpore thana arrived with Sjt. Dwarkanath Sasmal, the collecting panchayat, and searched the house and got a statement signed by Girish Babu, Sjt. Abinash Chandra Sasmal, Hemanta Kumar Sasmal and Adhar Chandra Bera that 'Nothing incriminating has been found and no property damaged'. Before they had signed this, they informed the sub-inspector and the panchayat of the outrage and requested them to take down the information. But they said nothing, and went away to the Mugbaria Camp.

Another case is :—

(25) (a) "My name is Chowdhuri Charan Patra, of village Sillibari, in P. S. Kedgree. On the 10th January, 1934, a batch of Garhwali soldiers, the junior sub-inspector of the thana (Kedgree P. S.) and some chowkidars and dafadars visited the house of Jogendra Nath Patra of our village who was not at home. They did not find Jogen Babu's wife, too, at her house, and they reached my house in search of her. They were assaulting whomsoever they came across. At this, there was a commotion and I began to flee away towards the north of my house. The sub-inspector assured me of safety, and, as I went up to him, he enquired of Jogen Babu's wife and, on my pleading ignorance, he began to belabour me. At this time, my wife, daughter and other female members of my family, being horrified, began to run off to the east. The sub-inspector asked me to call them back with an assurance of safety. As they came back, he enquired of me whether there was Jogen Babu's wife in their midst and, on being answered in the negative, he again belaboured me. Then, he arrested me and all the womenfolk and took us to Ramhari Babu's house. There he ordered the dafadars and chowkidars to see whether there was Jogen Babu's wife in their midst. They examined each one of the ladies who were

(25) (b) "Mr. Muzafer Hussain, the junior sub-inspector of P. S. Pataspur and the sub-deputy collector of Contai, with a party of soldiers, surrounded my house on the 10th January, 1934, and commenced searching my house. When I was informed that they wanted me, I went up to them and the sub-deputy collector gave me some stripes and the S. I. kicked me * * *

(25) (b) See remark

At about 11 o'clock, I was taken to the Palpara Camp. The subedar asked me to salute the Union Jack. On my refusal, he gave me 15 or 16 stripes. Then, my hands were tied up with a rope and I was tied from head to foot with a post. An hour later, I was brought down, was threatened to be shot dead and was made to sit with my face towards the sun for an hour. At about 1 P.M., I was taken inside the camp * * * In the afternoon, the S. I. tried to convince me that I should salute the Union Jack. But I remained adamant. In the midst of the discussion, he suddenly began to administer fists and slapped me on my face and eyes, made me fall flat on the ground and kicked me freely. Then, I was taken to the Parade Ground and was ordered to salute the Union Jack. On my refusal, under orders of the officers, two chowkidars knocked my head against the ground. Not satisfied with that, the S. I. joined them and knocked my head 15 to 20 times against the ground. I was also given 15 to 20 kicks. There was a public gathering then at that time. I felt pain all over the body, there were bruises in the body and the head, and I was given no food or bed in the night. In this condition, on the 11th, I was made to walk a distance of 11 miles and I reached the soldiers' camp at Datalghat at 11 o'clock. I was again urged to salute the Union Jack, and, on my refusal, the senior S. I., with the help of some chowkidars, made my head knock against the ground thrice and turned me out at noon. No food was given this day too."

Allegations. (Extracted from Mr. S. C. Mitra's speech in the Legislative Assembly, dated the 19th March 1934.)

Remarks.

(26) This is another case :

"On the 3rd January, 1934, when the troops were passing through the village Karanji (P. S. Ramnagar), two boys of the village shouted "Bande Mataram". The soldiers gave a chase after them and assaulted whomsoever they came across. They entered the Karanji upper primary school and seriously assaulted the head pandit, S. Ramkrishna Jana, and the students of the school. They searched the school and seized the photos of Mahatma Gandhi and Deshabandhu Chittaranjan. The teachers were asked to go to the Balisi camp with the boys who shouted "Bande Mataram" although they were not students of the school. In the afternoon, the two boys, Sm. Bijoy Krishna Sahoo and Sm. Abala Kanta Das, were made to stand in the sun for 2½ hours with their heads caught by their hands passing under the thighs and the hips upwards. They were crying piteously through pain. After 2½ hours, they fell at the feet of the subedar and the circle officer of Egra. The circle officer gave them kicks and flogged them, and at last made them rub their nose against the ground for a distance of 30 cubits. The sub-divisional inspector has stopped the stipend of the said upper primary school and has called for an explanation from the teachers asking them why they purchased the pictures of Mahatma Gandhi and Chittaranjan."

COLLECTION OF OPINIONS ON THE TEMPLE ENTRY BILL THROUGH THE POLICE AT KARACHI.

*376. (a) and (c). No. It was the case however that the Superintendent of Police, Karachi and Tatta Districts, was asked by the District Magistrate, Karachi, to give his opinion on the Bill. The Superintendent asked for the views of his senior officers, and they doubtless consulted Hindu members of the force and non-officials with whom they came in contact.

(b) Yes.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Sir, I lay on the table the information promised in my reply given on the 17th April, 1934, to Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal's starred question No. 765, regarding traffic control at Naya Bans, Khari Baoli and Nai Sarak in Delhi.

TRAFFIC CONTROL IN KHARI BAOLI AND NAI SARAK IN DELHI.

*765. (a) Yes.

(b) It is reported that there has been a very slight rise in tonga fares, but that there has been no increase in the rates charged by thelawalas.

(c) As stated in my reply to Mr. Bhagat Chandi Mal Gola's question No. 177, asked on the 10th March, 1934, the arrangement in question is reported to be working satisfactorily. Further enquiries made show that there has been no adverse effect on the business community residing in the areas mentioned. Government do not therefore propose to take any action.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Sir, I lay on the table :

EXTENSION OF TIME LIMIT FOR PAYMENT OF INCOME-TAX IN THE EARTHQUAKE STRICKEN AREA IN BIHAR.

*735. (a) and (c). Income-tax Officers of the areas affected by the earthquake have been instructed to grant time liberally for payment of tax in cases where the assesses have suffered from the earthquake. The Government do not think it necessary to postpone the issue of further notices for the realisation of income-tax.

(b) No.

(c) The Commissioner of Income-tax visited the earthquake affected areas twice once in January immediately after the earthquake and again in March.

(d) No. Each individual case of hardship is being dealt with sympathetically by the local officers.

COINS MINTED AND ISSUED FROM INDIAN MINTS.

*683. (a) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to pages 48, 49 and 53 of Part IV (a) of the Financial Statistics of British India published by the Director General of Commercial Intelligence in 1908, which gives the required figures from 1835-36 to 1906-07 ; the figures for 1907-08 to 1919-20, are contained in tables 8 and 9 at pages 20 and 21 of Volume II of the same publication issued in 1922, while the figures for 1920-21 to 1929-30 are given on pages 326-329 of the Statistical Abstract for British India published in 1932. Later figures are available in the Reports on the Administration of the Mints.

(b) (i) Silver half and quarter rupees were coined in pursuance of Act XVII of 1835. So far as can be ascertained, silver one-eighth rupees were first struck in 1842. Nickel eight anna and four anna pieces were introduced in 1919, two anna pieces were introduced in 1918 and one anna pieces were introduced in 1907.

Copper double pice, single pice, half pice and pies were also coined in pursuance of the Act referred to above.

Bronze pice, half pice and pies were introduced in 1906.

(ii) Silver one-eighth rupees are still legal tender but since June, 1925, they are being withdrawn from circulation because of the comparative unpopularity of the coin since the introduction of the nickel two anna piece.

Nickel eight anna coins were called in with effect from the 1st of October, 1924. This coin never became popular with the public mostly owing to the appearance of particularly good counterfeits shortly after its introduction and partly also owing to its resemblance in size and shape to the single pice.

L179LAD

The coinage of double piee has been stopped since 1880 owing to the inconvenient size of the coin. Other copper coins were discontinued from 1906 on account of their shorter life and greater cost in comparison with bronze coins.

(c) It is not possible to state the loss on destruction of each type of coin, as no separate accounts are maintained.

(d) (i) No.

(ii) Government have no information.

(e) (i) Nickel coins have been introduced because they last longer and are more convenient, cheaper and more difficult to counterfeit.

(ii) It is not considered desirable to publish the correspondence.

(f) The metal is purchased by the Secretary of State in London. Government do not consider it desirable to disclose the details of the transactions.

(g) The coinage of four anna nickel pieces was discontinued in 1923, and only silver quarter rupees are now being coined. It is not proposed to reintroduce the two anna silver coin, as the popularity of the hard-wearing nickel coin is attested by the absorption figures.

REVISION OF THE WATER AND SCAVENGING TAXES IN THE AMBALA CANTONMENT.

111. (a) Yes, except that, with reference to part (v), the minimum scavenging tax, in the case of a building having a rental of Rs. 3 per annum, is annas two per mensem, unless the house has a private latrine, when the tax is annas eight per mensem.

(b) No. Only two members voted against the proposals.

(c) (a) and (d) The revised proposals were published on February 14th, inviting objections up to 16th February, 1934. The latter date was a misprint. The following day they were re-published giving a period of thirty days and inviting objections. Under the Cantonments Act, these proposals did not require to be published by the Cantonment Authority for criticism. But as the connected bye-laws required previous publication, they were published along with the proposals for the convenience of the public.

CRITICISM BY CANTONMENT BOARD MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

115. (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) Government are not aware of the views of the elected members of the Board. The attention of those concerned is being drawn to the fact that criticism of a particular executive act performed by Government does not involve per se a failure to discharge the obligations recited in the oath of affirmation set out in section 13 of the Cantonments Act and that therefore the ruling was incorrect. At the same time Government are satisfied from the inquiries they have made that the ruling was given under considerable provocation and that the President has certainly no desire to stifle legitimate criticism of proposals coming before the Board.

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

*408. (a) To the fullest extent possible. It is unquestionably the duty of administrative officials to watch the interests of men serving under them and to act as claimants for pension purposes. This only refers, however, to cases where a reasonable claim exists.

In the first case quoted the soldier was granted a temporary pension for the period his disability lasted, i.e., from June, 1918, to June, 1920. A medical board held on him in 1920 decided that he was suffering from no disability.

As regards the second I would invite attention to the reply laid on the table to the Honourable Member's question No. 414, dated the 7th March, 1934.

As regards third, medical boards held in 1922 and 1930, held the individual concerned to be suffering from no pensionable disability.

Having regard to the previous history in each case the commanding officers concerned acted within their powers in deciding not to submit the appeal to higher authority.

(b) It is not proposed to lay down any limitations, as commanding officers do not hesitate to submit any claim in which there is any degree of doubt.

(c) The right of petitioning higher authority already exists in paragraph 379 and Appendix VII of the Regulations for the Army in India.

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

*410. Government are prepared to act up to their orders to the fullest extent. The answer to the Honourable Member's second question is in the affirmative. The first memorandum quoted by him refers to the case of a man who is suffering from disability certified to be less than 20 per cent. There is no record of its ever having been more severe. The acceptance of attributability does not commit Government to the waiving of the other conditions governing the grant of disability pensions.

The second memorandum referred to deals with a case which was carefully investigated in 1932. The man concerned was invalided in 1915 with a gratuity at a time when a great many other reservists were also discharged on medical rounds merely because they were too old for further service. A medical board held in 1930, certified that he was not then suffering from a disability attributable to military service. In such circumstances Government would not be justified in granting a disability pension.

L179LAD

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

181. (a) Cases in which individuals refused to undergo operations were covered by the provisions of paragraph 1039, Army Regulations in India, Volume I (1915), which read as follows:

"Any person who aggravates, or retards the cure of, his wound or injury in the hope of obtaining a pension or gratuity will be dismissed the service, without reference to his claims."

(b) Government are not aware of any such case.

(c) There is no conflict between the terms of the recommendation and the memorandum of instructions referred to. The latter merely gives discretion, when a man refuses to undergo an operation, to admit or withhold a disability pension according to certain specified principles.

(d) The effect of the memorandum was to explain an existing policy and perhaps enable deciding authorities to take a more generous view of refusal to undergo an operation than the letter of the regulations might suggest. There could be no question therefore of "adverse retrospective effect".

(e) No. What the Deputy Controller of Military Pensions stated was that the acceptance of Recommendation No. V, did not concede that the mere statement of an individual, uncorroborated by any documentary evidence should be accepted as conclusive proof of his disability having been contracted on field service. In the case referred to the available evidence consisted of the report of a medical board held in 1915 that the Indian officer's disability was not due to field or foreign service.

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

223. (a) to (f). Government have on reconsideration decided to admit the claim to which the Honourable Member refers from the 1st January, 1922, instead of from the 24th January, 1924.

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

285. (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) and (d). Do not arise.

(e) and (f). The individual case was submitted to the Government of India who passed orders after careful consideration. I may mention that the man concerned received a grant of Rs. 120 early in 1933, from the Indian Army Benevolent Fund, for the purchase of artificial limbs.

(g) Attention is invited to the Regulations for the Army in India, Appendix VII, and India Army Order No. 560 of 1933. Government are satisfied that commanding officers forward petitions in all cases in which the slightest element of doubt exists as to the finality of the previous decision.

SUPPLY OF RULE BOOKS TO THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY EMPLOYEES.

*13. (a) The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that the service agreements of subordinate employees drawing Rs. 15 and upwards (except menials) contain an acknowledgment from all staff, other than clerical, that they have received a copy of the Government Servants' Conduct Rules, the General Rules for Indian Railways, and the Subsidiary Working Rules in force on the East Indian Railway, and that the clerical staff shall be supplied with a copy of the Government Servants' Conduct Rules and a copy of certain paragraphs of General Rules for Indian State Railways, which paragraphs form an enclosure to the agreement. The Government Servants' Conduct Rules have been published in full, as also extracts therefrom from time to time, in the East Indian Railway Weekly Gazette. As regards the General and Subsidiary Rules, these have been printed in three parts and copies of a part, or parts, supplied to the staff concerned, with the Rules contained in that particular part or parts.

(b) The Agent, East Indian Railway has been instructed to supply copies of the rules to such staff as are entitled to receive them in accordance with their service agreements or, in the event of it not being necessary to supply certain portions of the rules to certain staff, to make the necessary modification in the relevant clause in the agreement.

FILLING UP OF VACANCIES OF SUB-HEADS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

135 and 136. Controller of Railway Accounts reports that the matter was looked into and no further action was considered necessary.

EMPLOYMENT OF STAFF ON WORKS OTHER THAN THOSE TO WHICH THEIR PAY IS CHARGED ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

*1188. (a) The Agent, North Western Railway, reports that the orders referred to in Railway Board's letter No. 6862-F., dated the 26th March, 1931, are carried out on the Karachi Division.

(b) and (c). The Agent explains that there was surplus staff in certain categories, and the persons referred to, were utilised in other capacities, as an alternative to discharge. He has been informed that the pay of the persons in question should have been charged to the posts in which they were actually employed.

RETRENCHMENT DUE TO THE AMALGAMATION OF THE EAST INDIAN AND EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESSES.

(249.) (a) 78 industrial hands were retrenched.

(b) Yes.

(c) I lay a statement on the table of the House.

(d) Staff surplus to requirements have been retrenched:

(i) No additional staff have been appointed during the past two months. In August, 1933, 2 Photo Litho Operators, 1 Litho Machineman and two Litho Fly boys were appointed. This is the only Press in India apart from the Survey Office which has such a plant and the staff pay for themselves owing to the pricing system. One Mono Learner was appointed in July, 1933, on account of the installation of additional plant. One of the Fly boys is a retrenched hand. Therefore only 4 new hands have been appointed with special qualifications.

(ii) No abolished posts have been filled up, but 23 boys have been engaged temporarily for specific work, such as stripping covers from old books in order that the Boards can be re-utilized for other purposes and sorting stocks of printed forms returned from stations.

(iii) The personal pay received by certain press employees is admissible under their conditions of service.

(e) 52 binders have been retrenched as they were surplus to requirements.

(f) Paper issuers are now classified as binders and it was necessary owing to their qualifications to retain the two men, named, - Abdul Majid and Nawab Ali Chaudhuri, in the service.

(g) and (h). Advance copies of the memorials from the Eastern Bengal Railway Staff, which were forwarded by the Honorary Secretary, Press Employees' Association, Calcutta, have been received. I have placed copies of two sample memorials in the Library.

The matter is under reference to the Agent, East Indian Railway.

RETRENCHMENT DUE TO THE AMALGAMATION OF THE EAST INDIAN AND EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESSES.

250. (a) Telegrams were received from the President, Press Employees' Association and General Secretary, Press Employees' Association, Calcutta. No action was taken on the said telegrams, as the matter was one which is within the competence of the Agent to deal with. A copy of the telegram in question is given below:

Member in-Charge Railway and Commerce, Simla.

Please postpone present retrenchment of Compositors, Distributors, Binders, in East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railway Presses Members. My Association facts in our possession prove retrenchment unnecessary and inequitable great discontent among workers letter follows:

President Press Employees Association, Calcutta.

Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore Windcliffe, Simla.

Arbitrary retrenchment and demotion in East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railway combined press, Calcutta. Beharilal Ghose's demotion is recent instance great panic and discontent prevails among workers all my members please take immediate steps and postpone demotions and retrenchment memorials of Beharilal Ghose and our memorandum follows.

General Secretary Press Employees Association, Calcutta.

(b) A letter was received from the Secretary, Press Employees' Association, dated 12th September, 1933, as the matter was within the competence of the Agent, East Indian Railway, to deal with, no action was taken at the time, but the Railway Board are now in correspondence with the Agent, East Indian Railway, on the question.

RETRENCHMENT DUE TO THE AMALGAMATION OF THE EAST INDIAN AND EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESSES.

251. (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) Retrenchment of surplus staff has taken place. No reduction was made in the supervising staff, as there was no surplus.

(d) The total output from the amalgamated Presses is approximately the same as when the Presses were separated, but owing to the co-ordination of the work, fewer industrial workers are required. The Agent reports that the amalgamation did not justify any decrease in the supervising and clerical staff.

(e) No, the total amount is Rs. 13,328 per annum.

(f) The question has been given full consideration, the retention of the supervising and clerical staff is essential and not uneconomical.

(g) (i). I lay a statement on the table.

(ii) I lay a statement on the table.

(iii) The average savings per annum in the Cost of Staff is estimated at Rs. 1,33,276.

Statement 'A'.

AMALGAMATION OF THE EAST INDIAN AND EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESSES.

252. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports : (a) Yes.

(b) (i) Rs. 86,530-0-0 approximately.

(ii) Rs. 40,090 approximately.

(iii) Engineering Department of the East Indian Railway.

(iv) Under the Agent's orders.

EMPLOYMENT OF A HIGHLY PAID MECHANIC AND ASSISTANTS IN THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

253. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports : (a) One Mechanic and 4 fitters re employed.

(b) No.

(i) All repair work was formerly sent to the Block Signal Workshops but when the Mechanical Composing Plant and Rotary Printing machines were installed, the Chief Engineer considered it advisable that the Printing Department should be in a position to undertake the major portion of their own repairs.

(ii) No outside experts have been employed other than those required for dismantling and re-erecting the Meible and Linotype machines owing to the amalgamation. The cost of this work amounted to Rs. 667-8-0.

(iii) There have been considerable savings but as the practice of sending repair work to the Block Signal Shops practically ceased in 1927 it is not possible to supply figures.

QUALIFICATION, PAY, ETC., OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

254. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports : (a) and (b). The expression "Passed Printers" is not understood, and is not used in England.

(i) The Superintendent of the East Indian Railway Press is a competent printer and efficient Manager.

(ii) Assistant Printing Superintendent, East Indian Railway Press.

(iii) Rs. 800 per month as substantive pay.

(iv) Mr. E. E. Joy is a Printer of many years experience, both in England and in this country, and possesses a sound knowledge of printing in all its branches, he has been in the trade since boyhood and received his training in England where he worked about 10 years. He joined the railway in 1908, and has proved that he is exceptionally well qualified for the duties of Printing Superintendent. His management of the Printing Department has been most efficient and economical.

(v) Mr. Joy was appointed by the Agent, East Indian Railway Company. His appointment to the post was confirmed by the Board of Directors and approved by the Railway Board. He was promoted to the post of Superintendent in July, 1924.

(vi) Initial salary on promotion to the post of Superintendent Printing was Rs. 1,000 per mensem. His present salary is Rs. 1,000 plus sterling overseas pay £30 per mensem.

(vii) Mr. Joy's age is 54 years and he has 20 years' service in the Railway.

BINDERS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

255. (a) Yes.

(b) Yes. In this connection, I would draw the Honourable Member's attention to paragraph 8, of the Government of India Communiqué, dated the 6th June, 1932, a copy of which is already in the Library of the House.

(c) Yes.

(d) No, but leave due and admissible was granted.

(e) Government are not aware of any such memorial.

(f), (g) and (h). The employees were reinstated in their former posts without loss of service, the intervening period being treated as leave to the extent due and in respect of the balance as dies non.

BINDERS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

256. (a) Yes.

(b) No, but machine and press staff are occasionally employed in packing forms and on despatch work, when their machines, for various reasons, such as a breakdown or want of work, are idle.

(c) Overtime is only allowed in special circumstances to meet urgent demands. As regards extra hands engaged, I would draw the Honourable Member's attention to the reply given to part (d) of Question No. 249.

(d) Government do not see any reason to retain surplus staff to meet occasional demands.

COMPOSITORS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

257. The Agent, East Indian Indian Railway, reports : (i) 91, (ii) 102, and (iii) 123.

INTRODUCTION OF NEW SYSTEM OF SERVICE IN THE EAST INDIAN AND EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESSES.

258. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports : (a), (b) and (d). Yes.

(c) The average monthly working hours of the East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railway Presses were not the same prior to the revision of scales of pay in 1930, hence, the increase of pay allowed to the employees of the two presses also varied.

The average monthly working hours of the two presses were 145 hours of the Eastern Bengal Railway and 152 for the East Indian Railway.

The method of fixing the initial pay of the men in the new scales of pay, on the 200 hour basis was approximately the same for both Railways as shown below :

Category of staff.	Eastern Bengal Railway.	East Indian Railway.
Monthly rated staff ..	$\frac{\text{Pay} \times 200}{145}$	$\frac{\text{Pay} \times 200}{152}$
Hourly rated staff ..	As above ..	As above.
Piece workers ..	Piece earnings No. of hours work $\times 200$.	Mean average of piece earning rate per hour and class* rate $\times 200$.
		* On the East Indian Railway the piece workers received pay at class rates for work which could not be piece rated.

PROMOTIONS IN THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

259. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports : (a) No.

(b) Yes, because some junior industrial hands owing to superior qualifications were recruited on higher initial hourly pay than some senior hands and their average earnings were also more when they were working on piece. Therefore when the monthly rates system was introduced in 1930 their average earnings were greater in some cases than the senior hands and their pay was fixed accordingly.

(c) Appointments are as a rule filled by promotion from a lower class or grade. To fill the posts of 2 overseers and one press mechanic, outsiders were engaged, there being no hands already employed in the Press with the necessary qualifications.

(d) (i) The present Assistant Binding Foreman was appointed to the service on 25th June, 1929 :

(ii) No, the post was created in 1930, as it was necessary for it to be held by a man who could read and understand work, orders and correspondence written in English.

(iii) So far as can be ascertained. No.

PRINTING OF "ECONOMY REPORT" IN THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESS.

260. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports : (d) No Economy Report was printed in the Eastern Bengal Railway Press in 1930.

(b) Does not arise.

CERTAIN APPOINTMENTS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA PRESS, CALCUTTA, AND THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

261. (a) The proportion of supervising staff to industrial staff in the East Indian Railway Press is about 1 to 6.9 and that in the Government of India Press, Calcutta about 1 to 7.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) The number of men now holding the following appointments in the Government of India Press, Calcutta and East Indian Railway Press, Calcutta and Howrah is as follows :

East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railway Press amalgamated.	Total Number of men.	Government of India Press.
Workshop Accountant ..	1	Computers .. 21

		Labourers .. 50

The figures given above are those for appointments and not "men holding appointments". The Calcutta Press is at present undergoing a substantial reduction of establishment, and the number of employees is therefore reducing. If figures for "men holding appointments" are required, the data with reference to which the figures should be prepared may kindly be specified.

(d) After the amalgamation of the East Indian and Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway Presses, the number of supervising and clerical staff in the East Indian Railway Press was increased by 6 per cent. After the amalgamation of the East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railway Presses the percentage increased in this connection was 18.

(e) Figures for 1930 are given below. Figures from 1919 are not available.

EXTRA WAGES OR CREDIT LEAVE FOR COMPOSITORS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS WORKING ON HOLIDAYS.

262. (a) Compensation leave for attendance on gazetted holidays not falling on Sundays, on which the Press is closed, has been entirely abolished from 1st July, 1928, and the employees, both salaried and piece, are now entitled to extra payment for attendance on "closed" holidays only. The salaried industrial employees who were in service before the above date have, however, been given the option of either continuing to enjoy the compensation leave or to get extra payment for attendance on "closed" holidays. For attendance on a Sunday, a compensatory holiday is usually granted. In rare cases where the compensatory holiday has to be withheld, extra payment is made for attendance on a Sunday.

The Clerical Staff is entitled to compensation leave in lieu of attendance on all holidays, but the question does not evidently relate to them.

(b) No. Industrial staff are given 25 per cent. addition to their day's pay for working on shop holidays.

CUT IN THE PAY OF THE INDUSTRIAL EMPLOYEES OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY PRESS.

264. (a) Yes, the emergency cut in pay is enforced on all employees of the East Indian Railway Press.

(b) For purposes of holidays, industrial staff are treated in the same way as workshop staff.

(c) Ministerial staff are eligible for holidays like similar staff of the headquarter offices at the discretion of the Agent. The industrial staff are allowed the leave sanctioned under Annexure II of the Government of India, Railway Department, Resolution No. 8373-E. of 20th February, 1930, plus 13 days shop holidays with pay.

(d) Yes, for purposes of economy overtime has been curtailed and is not allowed except in special circumstances to meet urgent demands.

(e) Overtime is worked to the extent necessary to meet urgent demands. Grade increases are sanctioned as they become due.

(f) Yes.

(g) It is a fact that they mentioned that they were made to work compulsorily for about 47 hours a month more than what they did under the old system, but this is not correct.

(h) Government do not see any reasons for exempting them from income-tax and emergency cut which is applicable to the other staff.

WITHHOLDING OF HOUSE RENT ALLOWANCE FROM THE TRAVELLING TICKET EXAMINERS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

310. "Agent, North Western Railway, reports: (g) to (k). From enquiries, it transpires that on certain Divisions some of the present Special Ticket Examiners have been wrongly admitted to the concession of free quarters or house allowance in lieu.

The condition for the grant of free quarters or house allowance in lieu, only permits this concession to those who, at any time during the course of their previous service, held a post which carried the privilege of rent-free quarters or house allowance in lieu, whenever in the course of their subsequent service, they were transferred or promoted to posts which carried the same concession before 1st August, 1928. As the old Travelling Ticket Examiners never enjoyed this concession and the present category of Special Ticket Examiners has not been admitted to it, the old Travelling Ticket Examiners now classed as Special Ticket Examiners are not entitled to this concession; and steps are being taken to stop any further grant of this concession to them wherever it is now being given.

The irregular grant of this concession to some of the old Travelling Ticket Examiners now classed as Special Ticket Examiners will possibly be found to arise from the fact that when the scheme for old Special Ticket Examiners (Flying Squads) was introduced in 1926, as a trial, it was staffed with men drawn from different classes, some of whom were entitled to free quarters or house allowance in lieu in their substantive positions, and it was decided that those who formerly enjoyed the privilege of free quarters or house allowance in lieu would continue to do so during the period of their service with Flying Squads, the remainder being required to pay rent on the same basis as they did in their substantive posts."

ALLEGED ABUSES OF RULES AND REGULATIONS BY THE AGENTS AND SUBORDINATE ADMINISTRATIVE AUTHORITIES OF RAILWAYS.

1425. (a) The reply to the first query is in the affirmative. On the 1st September, 1933, the Railway Board drew the attention of Agents of State-managed Railways to the fact that the submission of advance copies of appeals serves no useful purpose and that instructions should be issued that the practice should be discontinued. The Railway Board do not consider that the practice of sending advance copies of appeals calls for disciplinary action and they have advised the Agent, East Indian Railway, accordingly.

(b) Government do not consider that special action is called for.

(c) Yes.

APPEALS WITHHELD BY CERTAIN DIVISIONAL SUPERINTENDENTS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

*1510. (a) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to the reply to part (a) of his question No. 1425. The Financial Commissioner of Railways was not aware of Board's letter No. 2035-E.G., dated the 1st September, 1933, to Agents of State-managed Railways, when he replied to a supplementary question No. 795 on 12th September, 1933.

(b) and (d). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to rules 10 and 11, of the rules regulating the discharge and dismissal of State Railway non-gazetted Government servants, copies of which are in the library. As stated therein in ordinary matters no appeal lies beyond the officer next above the officer passing the original orders. Appeals in contravention to these rules are not forwarded to the Agent and so obviously the Agent cannot and does not look into them.

(c) It is regretted that the detailed information asked for is not available. Government do not consider that the labour involved in collecting this would be commensurate with the results to be obtained.

PROMOTIONS IN CERTAIN GRADES ON THE LUCKNOW AND MORADABAD DIVISIONS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

HEAD TICKET COLLECTORS IN THE MORADABAD DIVISION OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

*450. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports : (a) to (e). Yes.

(f) (i). The old head ticket collectors were not promoted to the posts of Assistant Head Ticket Collectors on restoration of their pay, as senior men had to be provided for and there are not sufficient posts to accommodate all.

(ii) No junior men are holding these posts.

(iii) Yes, on occurrence of vacancies and in order of seniority.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER No. 1023-E., DATED THE 25TH AUGUST, 1925.

Fining System.—The system of punishing by fines has already been abolished on State Railways in respect of clerical and office staff, but it still remains in force in respect of the remaining staff. The Government of India recognise the difficulty of maintaining discipline among the large staff of employees, many of whom are ignorant and illiterate men, and of punishing breaches of rules (many of which are concerned with the safety of the public) slackness carelessness absenteeism and the like, without resort to a system of fines, and they are aware that the fines are credited not to the Railway administration, but to separate fine funds. But they trust that Railway Administrations will make a careful survey of the various offences, at present punishable by fines, with the object of gradually reducing fines as much as possible so as to eliminate avoidable hardship.

REFRESHER COURSE AT KOT LAKHPAT, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

*576. The Agent, North Western Railway, reports : (a) The object of Refresher courses is to enable the staff to keep themselves up to date in their professional duties and so assist them to fit themselves for promotion when the time comes. Failure in a Refresher course does not result in forfeiture of appointment, unless the removal of an individual whose duties are connected with the safety of the travelling public is considered necessary because he is likely to endanger the lives and safety of those travelling and cannot be found alternative suitable employment.

(b) and (c). Staff of the following classes of the Commercial Branch are required to attend Refresher courses at intervals of 5 years, irrespective of whether they have previously failed or not, up to the age of 45 :

Goods clerks.

Booking clerks.

Parcel clerks.

Ticket Collector, Grade I.

The result of each course has no immediate effect on commercial staff, but as promotion to higher posts is by selection, failure reduces an individual's chances of securing a recommendation of fitness for promotion to a higher post.

CREATION OF A POST OF SUPERINTENDENT FOR CO-ORDINATION OF PERSONNEL BRANCHES ON VARIOUS DIVISIONS OF THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

272. The Agent, North Western Railway, reports as under : (a) to (d). The reply is in the affirmative.

(e) Steps already taken to ensure co-ordination of personnel work in the various offices on the Railway as alluded to in parts (c) and (d) of the question, were found to be insufficient, and it was therefore considered necessary to augment this, by placing an individual with experience in establishment matters on special duty to visit and inspect the various offices and assist them with advice in the proper organisation of the work of the personnel branch on a uniform basis. This step towards co-ordination has been taken with the object of securing uniformity, increasing efficiency, reducing correspondence and last, but not least, securing economy.

(f) A special standard report form has been designed outlining in detail the principal points to which special attention is to be directed by the Superintendent when visiting an office, and has been applied, so far, to three divisions, and copies of his report furnished to the divisions for the use of the Divisional Superintendent, his Divisional Personnel Officer and the office, to enable them to effect an improvement in methods and to secure a uniform procedure in all offices.

(g) The necessity has not arisen.

L179LAD

The special standard report form provides for observation during the inspections whether the business of all branches of a Divisional office is being conducted properly and in accordance with the orders of the Headquarters office.

PAY OF THE ASSISTANT CONTROLLERS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

*648. The Agent, North Western Railway, reports : (a) The Assistant Controllers re-confirmed with effect from 1st January, 1931, retained the same scale in grade Rs. 500—10—350 previously held by them.

(b) No.

(c) Their re-confirmation was ordered after a detailed and careful examination of the whole question.

(d) and (e). Do not arise.

SUB-LETTING OF VENDORS' CONTRACTS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

ANNOUNCEMENT RE INFORMATION PROMISED BY GOVERNMENT IN REPLY TO QUESTIONS.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair has to make an announcement regarding the practice which the House now follows in placing on the table information promised by Government in reply to questions. The present practice of reading out a list of such statements involves an unnecessary waste of the time of the House, and, in addition, involves some delay in actually placing such statements on the table. To avoid these two inconveniences, the Chair has directed that in future this list will not be read out to the House, but a circular will be sent to Honourable Members containing a list of such statements placed on the table as soon as possible after the statements are received in the Assembly Department. The statements will, as usual, be printed as part of the proceedings of the House.

THE FACTORIES BILL.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The House will now resume consideration of the Factories Bill.

The question is :

"That clause 5 stand part of the Bill."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I beg to move :

"That clause 5 of the Bill be deleted."

Before I advance my arguments, I should like to mention a great piece of humour which I read in the newspaper today. The Associated Press reported that I suggested and pressed that this Factories Bill should be applied to the Navy. I thought it was a great humour. I suggested that certain provisions ought to be applied to the railway workshops, but railway workshops are quite different from the navy, which the Associated Press reported as having been said by me. I was told by my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, the other day that I did not read so carefully all the papers supplied to me as I used to do when I was younger and a student in Cambridge. But unfortunately he does not take into consideration the fact that the papers which are supplied to his Secretary are not supplied to me by my Secretary, I mean the actual Acts, the amendment of which we are going to discuss, are certainly in the hands of the Honourable Member, but unfortunately they are not in the hands of Members of the Opposition.....

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour) : I am always very happy to supply the Honourable Member with any copy of any Act that he desires. I take it that this Act and all the other Acts are in the Library of the House to which he has ready access.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I was just coming to it. Sir, in the Library there are a limited number of copies, and there is always a race between Members as to who would take them first, and, I daresay, sometimes I win the race, but not always. If a few more copies are placed at the disposal of the Secretary of the Assembly Department for the use of those Members who would like to consult these Acts, it will be very convenient. We are handicapped by not having a copy of the original Act when we discuss its amendment. Very often we find that the Act is not available, because it has been taken away from the Library by a Member who is more enthusiastic than the one who goes to the Library a little later. Therefore, Sir, I would take this opportunity to request you to have several copies of the original Act placed at the disposal of the Legislative Assembly Department whenever we discuss its amendment, so that those Honourable Members who are interested in reading the original Act can have easy access to it.

Now, Sir, coming to the clause itself, I was told that this clause existed in the old Act, and this particular clause was copied from one of the old Acts. I should like to know whether this particular clause has ever been applied by any of the Local Governments. If it has never been applied, if it has remained a dead letter, then I think it is high time, when we are trying to consolidate the whole position, that this obsolete clause is deleted altogether. Sir, I have certain apprehensions that if this clause is applied by the Local Governments, some of them, who are more energetic, might very much misuse it. For example, there is nothing in the provisions of this Act debarring any Local Government from applying this clause 5 to any places where wheat is taken out from husks. Now, the definition of "manufacturing process" is given in clause 2 (g), and it says :

"Manufacturing process means any process for making, altering, repairing, ornamenting, or packing or otherwise treating any article or substance with a view to its use, sale, transport, delivery or disposal."

Sir, husk is an article which is being transformed into wheat. Therefore, according to the definition given under 2 (g), all places where wheat is taken out of husk can be included in the category of factories. There are places where more than ten persons are employed on a particular day, and if these places are declared as factories, then it will mean a great hardship to the poor people and agriculturists. It is a good thing that the Local Governments have not so far applied this Act to such places, but if they do apply it to such places, there is considerable room for misusing this particular clause. Therefore, I say that if it is not to be applied, then there is no use of retaining it; if it is to be misused, then it will be mischievous. Therefore, in either case, it will be undesirable to retain it. The fact that this particular clause was in the original Act is no reason that we should incorporate it in the present Bill.

Then, Sir, the second apprehension which I have, if we retain this particular clause, is that khandsaris, which do not use power and which employ ten persons only, are now exempt from the excise duty, and I am afraid that if these khandsaris are declared as factories, then the excise duty may be imposed on them. Of course, great injustice has been done by us to the khandsari system on account of the propaganda of the sugar manufacturers, and, I am afraid that by this Bill further harm will be done to this cottage industry. If this clause is misused or misapplied by the Local Governments, then they will kill a large number of cottage industries. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That clause 5 of the Bill be deleted."

Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan (Agra Division : Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I would like to point out a difficulty which I experienced in this matter some time ago, while I was the Chairman of a Municipality, in the administration of this particular clause. There is the Water Works Department in which we employ only a few people, but there are a few other people who are employed as mechanics, labourers, and so on, and all people included in it were found that they had just one more number than the required number, and we were forced to.....

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : May I ask the Honourable Member what the required number was? I presume it was 20?

Mr. Muhammad Yamin Khan : Yes, it was 20, but this particular clause seeks to reduce that number to ten. I think, Sir, it will be a great hardship, because places which are not really intended to be included within the purview of this Act will ipso facto be brought under it. These people will have to apply for a licence and they will come under the Factories Act, which will mean great trouble and hardship. I think the arguments advanced by my friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, are sound to a certain extent in that we had experienced a difficulty in the past, but I feel that this amendment has some force behind it. So I support it.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I also support this amendment, and I would support it by the argument which my Honourable friend, the Law Member, used yesterday with regard to a similar amendment which was moved. In the definition of a factory, it was proposed yesterday to bring down the number of working people from 20 to ten, but the Honourable the Law Member in his admirable speech, to which we all listened with interest, opposed that amendment. The very same argument applies mutatis mutandis to the present case. This particular clause seeks to empower the Local Government to declare any premises, in which a manufacturing process is carried on, whether with or without the aid of power, and in which there are ten or more persons employed, a factory.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : It is "may", and not "should".

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Yes, it is stated there "may be declared a factory" by the Local Government. This will work a great hardship in regard to some of the small cottage industries which are carried on by members of the same family with the aid of a few more persons, an example of which was given by my Honourable friend, the Law Member, yesterday. Therefore, I say this clause is objectionable, and, without taking any more time of the House, I would request the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill to accede to the request made by us on this side of the House and agree to the deletion of clause 5. With these few words, I support this amendment.

Mr. Bhuput Singh (Bihar and Orissa : Landholders) : Sir, I also rise to support this amendment. Besides the point mentioned by my friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, the definition says that the factories which are run without the aid of power will be included in the purview of the Act if the Local Government so desires. Therefore, it will be better to delete the whole amendment, so that it may not be abused by the Local Governments, because small factories and cottage industries are likely to feel a great hardship.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Ordinarily I will not oppose any measure that comes from our very able friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, but I feel compelled to oppose this amendment. It was only yesterday, when my amendment was before the House, that it was objected to—that the meaning of the word factory should be restricted to only 20 persons and more. If that amendment had been agreed to, I would have been in accord with this amendment that has been proposed by Dr. Ziauddin. Yesterday it was not done so. Now, here, they find a difficulty. The difficulty is, even those factories which are worked with hand are going to be also in the hands of the Local Government. I wanted to cover that defect yesterday, but it was not agreed to. Therefore, I am sorry to say that it would mean that if I now accept this amendment, a factory, in which ten or more men work, can never come under the Factories Act, and that will be a great disadvantage. Yesterday, when the Law Member for the first time spoke and spoke very ably, he gave us a distinction between factories where ten men will work with power and that factory which is smaller and has the same dangers and same risks will come under clause 5, and the Local Government will allow only such factories. He gave an example, but I think it is an extreme case. I have no such fear. Now that a factory means, according to our central legislation here, a factory which has 20 men and over, if I agree to this amendment, it would mean absolutely putting a bar on any factory, having only ten or more workers, being regulated and given the benefit and the privileges of a factory if this clause were deleted. On these grounds, I would even request my Honourable friend to withdraw this amendment.

Mr. A. Hoon (Allahabad and Jhansi Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : I am sorry I have got to oppose this amendment as proposed by Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, because I feel that clause 5 of the Bill is a very salutary one by itself. Yesterday we had a discussion on the floor of this House as to whether the number of workmen should be limited to ten in respect of what the Act calls a factory, and the Honourable the Law Member explained that it would entail an amount of hardship on those people who do their work on a small scale. That idea I had in my mind when the clause was gone through in the Select Committee, and if I remember well, I think I put forward the point of view that workmen, when they are only ten, should not ordinarily be considered to form a factory, because, in a business like a laundry, or a soda water factory, or a sugar making mill on a small scale, or a flour mill, what we call Ata chakki,—it is possible that members of the same family may all combine and work, and, when members of a family are working together under the head of the family, it could ordinarily be assumed that they would not be allowed to overwork.

Clause 5 leaves a discretion with the Local Government to declare a certain group of men working under certain circumstances a factory, and I think that the discretion would be exercised only when the Government come to know that it is not a combination of the members of the same family, but it is an employer employing ten men at a time. If an employer is employing ten men at a time and if he is doing things there in order to get more profit which the ordinary principles, on which the Factories Act is based, do not permit, I think it will be perfectly right that the Local Government should step in to declare that that combination of men should be called a factory.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I might have taken exception to the amendment put forward by my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, on the ground that it was placed in my hands after I came into this House yesterday morning, and two clear days' notice of it had not been given, in spite of the fact that my Honourable friend has had at least six months in which to study the report of the Select Committee on this Bill. But I am quite prepared to deal with the amendment on its merits. It represents one extreme point of view, as does the subsequent amendment which my Honourable friend, the Deputy President, is moving to this clause the other, and I fear I shall have to oppose both of them. I cannot believe that this House would agree to what can only be described as a retrograde step. As my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, pointed out, this clause repeats the provision which is to be found in the existing Act. Our Bill is intended to mark an advance in the direction of regulation of factory labour and the omission of a clause dealing with small factories would, I consider, be a blot on the whole Bill. The Royal Commission on Labour wanted to go considerably further than we have been able to do. They wanted to extend the Act in a far greater measure to factories which do not at present come within its scope. We have not been able to accept that point of view at present, though we hope later on that it may be possible to deal further with some of the unregulated factories. But for the time being we have had to confine the scope of our Bill to such factories as already come within the scope of the existing Act. The reason is, as I explained yesterday, mainly the financial one as the Provinces, in their present financial condition, are not in a position to engage the staff that would be necessary if any further large number of factories were to be placed under the operation of the Act. That, Sir, is the position, and it is for that reason that I regret I must oppose my Honourable friend's amendment. He wished to know how far the present section is being used. I am afraid I cannot give him any information on that subject as I do not know whether it is a dead letter or not. I hope it is not, but what I can assure him is that we do not intend that it should be a dead letter in the future. We hope that Local Governments will use all the powers which are conferred on them by this clause, and we have no doubt that they will use them with discretion and not to the harassment of the small industries. It seems to me quite obvious that it is the small factories which are in the greatest need of regulation. It is in such factories obviously that machinery is most likely to be carelessly looked after, or is most likely to be insecurely fenced, and that conditions of work of children are most likely to be of an unsatisfactory character. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That clause 5 of the Bill be deleted.”

The motion was negatived.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (Assam : Muhammadan) : Sir, I beg to move :

“ That in sub-clause (1) of clause 5 of the Bill, for the word ‘ ten ’ the word ‘ five ’ be substituted.”

This clause, as will be evident from the further discussion which has taken place just now, gives power to the Local Government to declare any premises as a factory which employ ten or more persons. My amendment is to reduce that number to five. Sir, these powers that are being given to the Local Government are purely discretionary. A Local Government is not compelled to declare any factory that employs five persons as a factory ; but if they find that the circumstances are such, that the conditions are so revolting that they must interfere, then I submit they must have the power to deal with such factories. In the speech which I made, when the Bill was referred to Select Committee, I referred particularly to the case, of biri factories in Madras and bangle factories at Firozabad, and I pointed out what the conditions were in those factories. What we want is that if a Local Government find that they must interfere, so as to improve the conditions in those factories, they must have the power to deal with them. This only gives them power to deal with such situations, and it will act somewhat like a check on the small factories having unsatisfactory conditions in those factories, and it will operate as an incentive to them to improve their working. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

“ That in sub-clause (1) of clause 5 of the Bill, for the word ‘ ten ’ the word ‘ five ’ be substituted.”

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I have very little, if anything, to add to what I have already said in regard to this amendment. I have already pointed out the great difficulty that Local Governments would have in dealing with factories employing from ten to nineteen people. It is obvious that that difficulty would be very greatly enhanced if the number were reduced to five, and I would very much deprecate placing a provision on the Statute-book which would certainly be a dead letter for many years to come. Sir, I regret I am unable to accept the amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That in sub-clause (1) of clause 5 of the Bill, for the word ‘ ten ’ the word ‘ five ’ be substituted.”

The motion was negatived.

Clause 5 was added to the Bill.

Clauses 6 to 10 were added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That clause 11 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. G. Morgan (Bengal : European) : Sir, I move :

“ That in clause 11 of the Bill, for sub-clauses (b) and (c) the following be substituted :

- ‘ (b) make such examination of the premises and plant and take on the spot or otherwise such evidence of any persons as he may deem necessary for carrying out the purposes of this Act ;
- (c) make, during working hours, such examination of any prescribed registers, and take on the spot or otherwise such evidence of any persons as he may deem necessary for carrying out the purposes of this Act ; and
- (d) exercise such other powers as may be necessary for carrying out the purposes of this Act ’.”

The reason for this amendment, Sir, is that although in the first instance we thought of moving an amendment for “ a reasonable time ”, we came to the conclusion that that is a very difficult thing to define. We do feel, however, that in connection with the examination of registers and documents, which, I take it, are generally kept in the office part of a factory, it would be better if the words “ during office hours ” were inserted for the examination of any prescribed registers and documents. It is quite possible that Government may not view this in the same light as we do, but we feel that there might be a certain amount of trouble and harassment if people were coming at odd hours when offices were closed to examine documents and registers. Sir, I move.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I regret I am unable to accept this amendment. I will give the House an instance of how it might work in practice. Suppose the Factory Inspector believes that a ten-hour day was not being adhered to. He endeavours to make a “ raid ” on the factory, but he finds on arrival that work has just stopped. Is he to be precluded from comparing the work registers there and then with the facts as known to him ? If so, the register will probably be faked by the following day. That is the reason why I am unable to accept this amendment. The Inspector turns up at the factory out of working hours ; the factory authorities who have or may have been guilty of an infringement of the Act are not called upon to produce their registers ; by the time those registers are available for the Inspector’s examination, it is perfectly possible that the entries in the register may have been altered. I think the House will agree that that is a very good reason for not accepting this amendment. The Local Governments have ample opportunities for taking disciplinary action in any case in which it is called for, in which this power of inspection is abused. All powers of inspection are, of course, open to abuse, and that is a risk which we have to face. We have to trust Local Governments and the Factory Inspectors to do their best to avoid unnecessary harassment. I may note in passing that in any case it would have been impossible to accept the amendment in the form in which it has been tabled, as Mr. Morgan does not seem to have been able to decide whether the taking of evidence should also be limited to working hours or not. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That in clause 11 of the Bill, for sub-clauses (b) and (c) the following be substituted :

- ‘ (b) make such examination of the premises and plant and take on the spot or otherwise such evidence of any persons as he may deem necessary for carrying out the purposes of this Act ;
- (c) make, during working hours, such examination of any prescribed registers, and take on the spot or otherwise such evidence of any persons as he may deem necessary for carrying out the purposes of this Act ; and
- (d) exercise such other powers as may be necessary for carrying out the purposes of this Act ’.”

The motion was negatived.

Clause 11 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That clause 12 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Sir, the amendment which stands in my name runs as follows :

“ That after sub-clause (1) of clause 12 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be inserted and the existing sub-clause (2) be re-numbered as sub-clause (3) :

- ‘ (2) No person shall be appointed to be a certifying surgeon under subsection (1), or, having been so appointed, shall continue to hold the office of certifying surgeon, who is or becomes directly or indirectly interested in a factory or in any process or business carried on therein or in any patent or machinery connected therewith ’.”

Clause 12, Sir, allows certain medical practitioners to be appointed to perform the functions which are required by this Bill, and those func-

things. One is the protection and the welfare of children and the second is the protection to the employers also as well as to the workers. Now, these two things are very important—one, this business of holding that a certain person, a child, who is of twelve years of age or any adolescent, who is fifteen years of age, is fit for such work, has to be decided by a certificate given by a medical officer; and also as regards the fitness of a person who can be allowed to go to a factory, that also has to be decided upon mostly upon the certificate that that surgeon gives. Now, the point is this. My amendment says that that person, who should be a medical officer, should be a disinterested person, should be an impartial person, should be a person who has no interest of his own to manipulate his certificate. In other words, I only want purity, honesty and impartiality of service. Sir, I do not think we can find anywhere else that a person can be the judge in any function in which he himself is interested. Take the Criminal Procedure Code which governs the whole of India. Under that Code, the Judges are appointed and if they are interested in any matter that comes before them, the law decides that the case will be transferred from their Courts. I cannot understand why in this Bill an unlawful procedure, an extraordinary procedure and a most objectionable procedure should be adopted. I really wonder how it came to be that this provision was deleted by the Select Committee at all. With due deference to the Select Committee, I must say that I do not understand what must be the motive behind their decision. I must, however, give the House the real facts before I go into the reasons given by the Select Committee. Referring to the old Factories Act, which is now going to be amended, I find that sections 6 to 8 refer to this very subject and under the old Act a surgeon had to be appointed by Government. It is mentioned in section 6 which I will read to the House. It runs thus :

“The Local Government may appoint any qualified medical practitioner, as it thinks fit, to be a certifying surgeon for the purpose of this Act within such local limits as it may assign to him respectively.”

Then there is another section which says :

“The certifying surgeon can delegate his powers to another registered medical practitioner.”

Now, Sir, these sections do not say that the certifying surgeon will be a disinterested person, but, ordinarily, when a man is taken into the service of a business like this, he must be disinterested in order to be impartial. The presumption is, according to the old Act, that if a person was interested, he should not be appointed. Now, what has happened is this. The changes were made in the present Bill by the framer of the original Bill before it went to the Select Committee. Instead of appointing a surgeon in the first instance and then asking him to delegate his powers to the medical practitioners, they simplified the matter. They found that at present any number of registered medical practitioners can be had who are fit enough. So, the framer of the Bill decided to put in only registered medical practitioners. Later on, it appeared to him to make it more clear by saying that the certified medical practitioner should be a person who should be disinterested. Therefore, they put in actually a clause, which is clause 2 in the original Bill, exactly in the same words as is my amendment. Then, when the matter went to the Select Committee, they, for ought I know, decided to delete clause 2. In other words, they say that they would be satisfied with any doctor. Let him be a dishonest man, let him be concerned directly or indirectly with the factory, let him be even the manager of the factory itself. They do not mind all that. Sir, I cannot understand the reason of this deletion. Sir, I can only say that the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill is putting in a thing which has never happened in any law. I do not think the Honourable the Law Member will get up and speak on this motion and say that we want such persons who may be interested directly or indirectly with the factory. I, therefore, submit that if my amendment is accepted, it will make the law remain as it is and will make the Bill absolutely pure from this defect. In other words, if this Honourable House is to be a party to a measure like this, it must see that it is an impartial measure. Therefore, looking at it from that general point of view, I think it will be but right to revert back to the position in which we were when the Bill was framed by the Honourable Member himself. If the Select Committee has made this change, then we can reject it. After all, their decision is not the Gospel truth and the old clause can be put in. Sir, I do not wish to give any lengthy reasons, because the point is so clear. Therefore, I submit that my amendment should be accepted by this House.

Now, I wish to say one word more with regard to the reasons that the Select Committee have given and then I have done. I already referred to them yesterday at the consideration stage of the Bill, but for the benefit of those who were not in the House yesterday, I will just refer to them again. We find that in their report on clause 12 the Committee says :

“This clause combines the provisions contained in clauses 13 and 14 of the Bill as introduced. We have modified them to provide that only registered medical practitioners may be appointed as certifying surgeons. Sub-clause (2) of clause 13 has been omitted.”

This sub-clause (2) referred to the surgeon being a disinterested person. They are going to omit this sub-clause and the reason that they have given for doing so is this :

“On the ground that it might give rise to practical difficulties and might unduly limit the field of choice.”

I fail to understand, Sir, what difficulty can there be in finding out a suitable man from amongst hundreds of medical practitioners that we find in India ?

Mr. E. Studd (Bengal : European) : There will be the greatest difficulties.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I am surprised to hear that statement from a Member who hails from Calcutta where we can find so many surgeons and so many medical practitioners, and yet the Honourable Member says that there will be difficulties. What is the difficulty, may I ask ? I pause for a reply. (No reply.) Sir, I do not find any difficulty.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I cannot allow that statement to pass unchallenged. I shall, in due course, explain what the difficulties are.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I hope you will consider the purity point of view also. I cannot understand how there can be any difficulty. Even supposing there is some difficulty in considering the question of finding out suitable certifying surgeons, you have to place the difficulties, if any, on the one side of the scale, and on the other you have to put impartiality and see whether it will be right to appoint such surgeons. I, therefore, submit that even though there may be some difficulty which, I think, may only be fanciful or fantastic, yet these difficulties should not deter us from giving due consideration to the question of purity and impartiality of service. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty): Amendment moved:

"That after sub-clause (1) of clause 12 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be inserted and the existing sub-clause (2) be re-numbered as sub-clause (3):

(2) No person shall be appointed to be a certifying surgeon under sub-section (1), or, having been so appointed, shall continue to hold the office of certifying surgeon, who is or becomes directly or indirectly interested in a factory or in any process or business carried on therein or in any patent or machinery connected therewith."

Mr. S. C. Sen (Bengal National Chamber of Commerce: Indian Commerce): Sir, I have listened very carefully to the able arguments adduced by my Honourable friend, Mr. Navalrai, but they have not convinced me in any way to change my views which I, as a Member of the Select Committee, have expressed in the note which I have appended. The position is this. The medical officer to be appointed must be a registered one. We all know what that means. My Honourable friend does not know and I gather from his speech that he is apparently ignorant of the condition of mufassil villages, even of his own Province, not to say of Bengal or other Provinces of India. In the mufassil towns, you will scarcely find a doctor who is a registered one.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: Question. There are several.

Mr. S. C. Sen: Because my Honourable friend has no knowledge of Bengal, he cannot speak of that Province. I should also say he has no knowledge even of his own Province.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: I have of my own Province fully.

Mr. S. C. Sen: I can say without fear of challenge that mufassil towns and villages in Bengal, most of them, do not possess a single registered medical practitioner. There may be unqualified medical practitioners, such as kavirajes and hakims, but there are very few registered medical practitioners. Supposing there is one in a particular village, and supposing there is a factory open in that village, and supposing it is mainly controlled by people in whom the medical practitioner is interested, then, according to my Honourable friend, the onus is on the factory to get a medical practitioner who is not interested in the factory to function. My Honourable friend waxed eloquent on purity, etc. Now, Sir, what are the duties of this medical practitioner? He shall have to certify whether a particular boy is below the age of 12 or he is an adolescent capable of working in a factory. Supposing he certifies a man who is unworthy to be certified, then whom does he favour? Is he favouring the boy or is he favouring the factory? The factory will lose by employing such a boy. Therefore, his being interested in the factory helps whom? The factory loses by getting a man who is unfit. Therefore, this question of purity is all a moonshine. This question of purity haunts the minds of people who have no knowledge of the conditions in mufassil towns. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. E. Studd: Sir, I had not intended to speak on this amendment, but as my Honourable friend, Mr. Navalrai, has challenged me on the question of difficulty, as a plain straightforward businessman, I can tell him the difficulty as I see it. I will not deal at any length with his contention that, because a doctor happens to have some interest, he could not be trusted to give a perfectly fair and impartial opinion. I entirely disagree with that point of view. The point I want to lay stress upon is the practical difficulty. I, Sir, am not a legal expert, but reading his amendment in which he says "no person shall be appointed to be a certifying surgeon if he becomes directly or indirectly interested in a factory" which I interpret to mean "any" factory, the result would surely be that those who happen to hold shares in a tea company or a jute company could not be appointed to be a certifying surgeon even for a cotton mill.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: That is not my interpretation.

Mr. E. Studd: I have already said that I do not claim legal knowledge, but that seems to be the interpretation, to the ordinary plain man in the street, of the amendment as it is worded. But even if that is not so, how is it possible, practically to know whether a doctor has any interest in a factory or not. Is it feasible to examine all his interests and all his investments and see whether amongst them there is anything which has either direct or indirect interest in any factory? I submit that even if that was feasible, if you found a doctor who was dishonest and who particularly wanted to get an appointment of this sort, it would be perfectly easy to cover up his interest by transferring his shares into the name of somebody else. I think, Sir, from the point of view of the plain man in the street, there are very grave practical difficulties in the way of this amendment, and, I, therefore, oppose it.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh: I quite realise the difficulty which has been pointed out by my Honourable friend, Mr. Sen, and my Honourable friend, Mr. Studd. I should like to ask one question as to how the amendment of which notice has been given by my Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, found a place in the original Bill when it was introduced for the first time last year. In the original Bill, when it was introduced, it was clause 13, sub-clause (2) of which reads as follows:

"No person shall be appointed to be a certifying surgeon under sub-section (1), or, having been so appointed, shall continue to hold the office of certifying surgeon, who is or becomes directly or indirectly interested in a factory or in any process or business carried on therein or in any patent or machinery connected therewith."

This is exactly the amendment which has just been moved by my Honourable friend. I should like to know from the members of the Select Committee or from the Honourable Member in charge of this Bill as to why this particular clause which found a place in the original Bill has been deleted. I would certainly assume that, before the Bill was originally introduced, all the difficulties, which have been pointed out by my Honourable friends, who have just preceded me, must have been present before their minds. I cannot really believe that they drew up the original Bill in a hurry without looking at all into the relevant circumstances, but, even as it was, I find that this clause found a place in the original Bill and the onus lies on the Government and on the members of the Select Committee to explain what considerations weighed with them in deleting that clause in the Select Committee.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: Sir, my Honourable friend, Mr. Navalrai, has advanced a curious theory of the position of the Member in charge of a Bill when it comes before a Select Committee and that theory appears to have found a certain measure of support from my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh: I am not supporting Mr. Lalchand Navalrai.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: I am told by my Honourable friend, Mr. Navalrai, that I ought to have stood on my rights, that I ought to have insisted that this clause should remain in the Bill when it was under discussion in the Select Committee. Well, Sir, I have served on some Select Committees with my Honourable friend, and I have not noticed that he then held that the Member in charge of the Bill should stand strictly on the letter of the Bill, that he should accept no change at all in the course of the discussions in the Select Committee and that he should be entirely impervious to any arguments advanced in support of change. My Honourable friend would be the first to contest that view if it were brought forward in support of any other amendment than his own. It is obvious that the passage of legislation through Select Committees and through this House would hardly be facilitated if Government were to take that attitude. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh is perfectly entitled to ask why we dropped this clause which Mr. Lalchand Navalrai now seeks to restore. The reason is that it was not a well considered clause. We do endeavour to take all relevant considerations into account when we are drafting Bills, but it is bound to be the case that sometimes they escape our notice and this was frankly a case of that character. It was only in Select Committee that the difficulty of working the clause was fully revealed.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: May I know if there is any such clause deleted in any other Act?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: I have not the slightest doubt that many clauses in Government Bills are deleted in the course of their passage through Select Committee. I am quite certain that every Member who has served on any Select Committee could bring forward instances of that kind.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: I did not mean that. What I asked was whether there is any other instance where a clause like this has been deleted that no man should be appointed in any capacity if he has got an interest in that business either directly or indirectly.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: I do not know whether any such clause has ever appeared in any Act, but, if the Honourable Member will allow me to continue, I will point out the difficulties in working this sub-clause. It runs:

"No person shall be appointed to be a certifying surgeon under sub-section (1), or, having been so appointed, shall continue to hold the office of certifying surgeon who is or becomes directly or indirectly interested in a factory or in any process or business carried on therein or in any patent or machinery connected therewith."

The interpretation put on the sub-clause by Mr. Studd was perfectly correct and was upheld by our legal advisers. We found on further examination that the possession of a share in a company owning a factory anywhere in India would be a disqualification for appointment as a certifying surgeon. I admit that we ought to have foreseen that, and it is a matter for regret that we did not. That is the position. My Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, is at a disadvantage in that he does not know exactly what happened in the Select Committee. We did discuss in the Select Committee at very great length whether we could not get round this in some way or other and whether we could not insert a provision that a certifying surgeon should be disqualified from acting in respect of any particular factory in which he was directly or indirectly interested. But we found there were difficulties in regard to that. It is very difficult to define "direct" and still more difficult to define "indirect" interest. Take the case of a man who is appointed certifying surgeon for a factory, many of the superior officers of which are his patients. Would you say that he was directly interested or indirectly interested in that factory? He is obviously interested, but it is very difficult to say whether his interest is direct or indirect.

And then there is the case which has been brought forward from Assam, the difficulty of finding certifying surgeons for factories on tea estates in remote parts of Assam, or indeed in other parts of India. It is obvious that where a tea estate in such parts has its own doctor, it may be very difficult to find any other doctor near at hand to act as a certifying surgeon.

These are the reasons why we deleted this clause and they seem to me to be convincing ones. I trust that they will prove equally convincing to the House.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty): The question is:

"That after sub-clause (1) of clause 12 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be inserted and the existing sub-clause (2) be re-numbered as sub-clause (3):

"(2) No person shall be appointed to be a certifying surgeon under sub-section (1), or, having been so appointed, shall continue to hold the office of certifying surgeon, who is or becomes directly or indirectly interested in a factory or in any process or business carried on therein or in any patent or machinery connected therewith."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 12 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty): The question is:

"That clause 13 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: Sir, I beg to move:

"That in clause 13 of the Bill, before the words 'Every factory' the following be inserted:

"Every factory shall be provided with drains for dirty, bad smelling and sullage water with suitable escapes outside the premises without causing any nuisance inside or outside, and."

I need not say many words on this amendment, though I feel that it is a very important one which should also appeal to the Member in charge. Yesterday I gave examples of certain factories which are worked with power which have no drains at all, and I gave my personal experience of several such factories where they throw the drain water into the premises itself, and the Inspectors who are in charge are unable to help them. If they throw the water outside, the municipalities come and prosecute them. If they throw water inside, there is a nuisance and the Inspectors say that there is no such rule that there ought to be a drain. There was in the former Bill also a similar provision about cleansing of drains, and it may be interpreted to mean that, where it is provided that the drain should be cleansed, it presupposes that there is a drain. But that is not the view that is being taken in practice. Therefore, I have put in this amendment to make it quite clear that when there is sullage water or some other dirty water which has got to be removed, there ought to be drains and also escapes outside which should be done by the factory owners. I, therefore, do not think this amendment should be opposed.

Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That in clause 13 of the Bill, before the words 'Every factory' the following be inserted :

"Every factory shall be provided with drains for dirty, bad smelling and sullage water with suitable escapes outside the premises without causing any nuisance inside or outside, and."

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar (Law Member) : Sir, I should like to point out to the House that this amendment is wholly unnecessary. If the House will turn to the language, which has been used in the draft clause 13, it will be found that :

"Every factory shall be kept clean and free from effluvia arising from any drain, privy or other nuisance, and shall be cleansed at such times and by such methods as may be prescribed, etc."

So it is clear that all that is wanted in the amendment is covered by the provision about drains being cleansed at such times and by such methods as may be prescribed. I think, therefore, that the amendment is unnecessary. Moreover, the amendment, as it is drafted, is rather inappropriate. It says, "Every factory shall be provided with drains, etc". There is no reason why every factory should be provided with drains for dirty water. It is quite conceivable that there are factories where there is no accumulation of dirty water. I ask the House to consider whether it is necessary at all to put in this amendment and I submit that it is not.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Sir, in view of the interpretation which the Honourable the Law Member puts upon it, and which, I say, is also an interpretation which is susceptible of being put, I would ask the House to give me leave to withdraw this amendment.

The amendment was, by leave of the Assembly, withdrawn.

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I beg to move :

"That in sub-clause (3) of clause 15 of the Bill, for the words 'specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted' the words 'that effective measures shall be taken' be substituted."

This and my subsequent amendments are in identical terms and are moved for the same reason ; therefore, what I shall say on this amendment applies to them all. What we feel is that the powers given to the Inspectors are too varied and extensive. Under this clause and the following clauses, he has to specify the measures which should be carried out. There might arise the question, if we say merely "effective measures", as to what "effective" means : I quite grant that, and I do not see any way out of that. Under clause 31(3), an appeal can be lodged within 30 days. Now, suppose the Inspector specifies measures which have to be carried out and gives a short date for those measures to be carried out, what is to happen when an appeal has been lodged and the appellate Court has not got time to take up the case and come to an early decision on that matter ? The Inspector has already specified the measures and he has specified the date and an appeal has been lodged ; the appellate Court cannot sit at once ; and although the decision may be in favour of the owner of the factory, he may have already been compelled under the clause to carry out the measures specified by the Inspector. That, to my mind, is one of the difficulties of this definite wording of specified measures. What I say on this amendment applies to all my subsequent amendments—they are exactly on the same basis. The difficulty seems to be about the appeal in clause 31 (3). Section 16 is all right. But the appellate Court may not be able to come to a decision before the date expires, and meantime the specified measures have to be carried out. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved.

"That in sub-clause (3) of clause 15 of the Bill, for the words 'specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted' the words 'that effective measures shall be taken' be substituted."

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I must confess that I was under the impression that my Honourable friend, Mr. Morgan, represented the employers' interests in this House. The amendment which he has just moved throws very considerable doubt on that point in my mind, for I trust that I shall be able to convince the House that this amendment is in the interests, neither of the employers, nor of administration. My Honourable friend, Mr. Morgan, is evidently of opinion that the employers should have an opportunity to decide what steps should be taken to remedy defects and that so long as effective steps are taken, that is all that should be required. But, as a matter of fact the effect of his amendment is to introduce fresh causes of dispute and to confuse the procedure at every possible stage. I will endeavour to show how that comes about. The position at present is that the employer has to be given full particulars of the measures he is expected to take and that he can appeal against the order on such grounds as that the conditions in his factory are satisfactory, that the measures are impracticable of execution, that they are not likely to be effective, and that there is a better way of achieving the end in view. Mr. Morgan proposes, in the first place, to remove the safeguard that the employer has to be given full particulars of the measures he is expected to take. I would remind the

[Sir Frank Noyce.]

House that, in the course of the discussion yesterday, great stress was laid on the necessity that, in administering this Act, we should be as definite as possible. If Mr. Morgan's amendment were adopted, the Inspector need not and should not specify the measures which the factory owner is called upon to take. I submit to the House that even a well qualified manager of a big factory would be greatly assisted in framing his appeal and in deciding whether to appeal or not, if he knew what the Inspector thought sufficient. The manager of a small factory may be in very considerable perplexity as to the measures he should take. A further result of Mr. Morgan's amendment would be that all the grounds of appeal would be cut out except the first, that conditions in the factory were satisfactory. Having given its finding on that point, whether conditions in the factory are satisfactory or not, the tribunal has no further authority, and all the other matters must be left for the decision of the less pleasant and much less well-qualified criminal Court before whom the manager may be dragged for failure to carry out ideas of which he is ignorant. In short, the manager has complete protection against unwise orders in the appellate provisions of the Bill, but Mr. Morgan reduces the appellate authority to one which can in most cases pronounce on the Inspector's initial finding of fact. From the point of view of the Inspector, the position would be equally unsatisfactory. If he and the manager fail to agree regarding the necessary measures, he can only get what he regards as necessary by prosecuting; then complicated technical issues may come before the Courts which are ill-equipped to examine them. I trust that the House will be convinced that it would be unwise to accept Mr. Morgan's amendment. The only reason he has put forward seems to be that he is in some doubt about the question of appeal. If that is the case, I should have thought that he would have moved an amendment to the clause relating to appeals which he has not done. I do not think there is really any very great danger of an Inspector being unreasonable. If his requirements are extensive, he must obviously give sufficient time in which to enable them to be carried out; and during that time, the appellant will be able to go to the appellate authority and get the order suspended. There is no real danger, I think, that the Inspector will direct that an order involving a factory owner in any considerable expenditure must be carried out within a period so short that he will not be able to go to the appellate Court and get the order suspended. Here, again, I think, we have to trust our Inspectors to see that orders are reasonable and leave the Local Government to see that the Inspectors carry out their duties in the proper spirit. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in sub-clause (3) of clause 15 of the Bill, for the words 'specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted' the words 'that effective measures shall be taken' be substituted."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 15 was added to the Bill.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Thirty-Five Minutes Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Thirty-Five Minutes Past Two of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Does Mr. Morgan wish to move his other amendments?

Mr. G. Morgan : Yes, Sir, I should like to move them.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 16 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I beg to move :

"That in clause 16 of the Bill, for the words 'specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted' the words 'that effective measures shall be taken' be substituted."

I have nothing to add to what I have already said on clause 15. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in clause 16 of the Bill, for the words 'specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted' the words 'that effective measures shall be taken' be substituted."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 16 was added to the Bill.

Clause 17 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Where is clause 18 in the Bill?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, there appears to be a misprint in the Bill. 18 should appear before (1) where it is stated that a factory shall be sufficiently lighted during all working hours. The number "18" is unfortunately missing.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Does the Honourable Member mean that the paragraph referring to lighting should be 18?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Yes.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 18 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I beg to move :

"That in sub-clause (2) of clause 18 of the Bill, for the words 'specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted' the words 'that effective measures shall be taken' be substituted."

Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in sub-clause (2) of clause 18 of the Bill, for the words 'specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted' the words 'that effective measures shall be taken' be substituted."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 18 was added to the Bill.

Clauses 19 to 22 were added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That clause 23 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I beg to move :

“ That in sub-clause (2) of clause 23 of the Bill, for the words ‘ specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted ’ the words ‘ that effective measures shall be taken ’ be substituted.”

Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That in sub-clause (2) of clause 23 of the Bill, for the words ‘ specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted ’ the words ‘ that effective measures shall be taken ’ be substituted.”

The motion was negatived.

Clause 23 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That clause 24 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I move :

“ That in sub-clause (2) of clause 24 of the Bill, for the words ‘ specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted ’ the words ‘ that effective measures shall be taken ’ be substituted.”

Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That in sub-clause (2) of clause 24 of the Bill, for the words ‘ specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted ’ the words ‘ that effective measures shall be taken ’ be substituted.”

The motion was negatived.

Clause 24 was added to the Bill.

Clause 25 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That clause 26 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I move :

“ That in sub-clause (1) of clause 26 of the Bill, for the words ‘ specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted ’ the words ‘ that effective measures shall be taken ’ be substituted.”

Sir, I move :

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That in sub-clause (1) of clause 26 of the Bill, for the words ‘ specifying the measures which, in his opinion, should be adopted ’ the words ‘ that effective measures shall be taken ’ be substituted.”

The motion was negatived.

Clause 26 was added to the Bill.

Clauses 27 to 31 were added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That clause 32 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Sir, I move :

“ That in clause 32 (c) of the Bill, the words ‘ other than Railways subject to the Indian Railways Act, 1890 ’ be omitted.”

This section gives power to the Local Government to provide against dangers arising from the use of mechanical transport in factories, “ other than Railways subject to the Indian Railways Act ”. If the use of mechanical transport involves a danger, they must be guarded against, and we do not understand why the Indian Railways should be excluded from the category of mechanical transport from the use of which dangers may arise.

Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

“ That in clause 32 (c) of the Bill, the words ‘ other than Railways subject to the Indian Railways Act, 1890 ’ be omitted.”

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Sir, I understand, during the course of the general discussion, that the provisions of this Bill would also apply to railway workshops, and I do not see why in this particular clause the railway workshops are explicitly excluded. In fact, if there is any need for protection anywhere, it is in the railway workshops, because they are not regularly inspected by non-railway men, and it is, therefore, very desirable that the safety of the men employed in railway workshops should be properly looked into by the executive and judicial officers in the same manner as they would do in regard to men working in any other factory. Therefore, I support this motion.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, In the first place, I should like to point out to the House that there is no special exemption for railway workshops in this provision. The provision is against the danger arising from the use of mechanical transport in factories other than railways subject to the Indian Railways Act of 1890, and the position is that all railways within the precincts of factories, whether they are railway factories or not, are subject to the Indian Railways Act of 1890. There is no discrimination here in favour of railway factories. They are exactly in the same position as other factories, and other factories are exactly in the same position as railway factories. In the minute of dissent, Mr. Joshi, Mr. Thampan and Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury said that they were not sure whether there was adequate provision to guard against dangers arising from the use of mechanical transport in those factories within the precincts of which there are railways subject to the Indian Railways Act, 1890. I can assure the House that there is adequate provision, and I will explain to the House exactly what that provision is. As I said at the outset, all railways within the precincts of a factory are subject to the Railways Act. Under section 47 (i) of the Railways Act. General rules must be made for regulating the mode in which and the speed at which rolling stock used on the railway is to be moved or propelled. General Rules 147 to 155 made under section 47 (i) of the Act refer particularly to shunting and securing of vehicles in station yards and sidings, while certain others of the General Rules, e.g., those relating to signals, points and speed, are also applicable to the movement of vehicles on railways in factories. Each railway administration has issued subsidiary rules to those General Rules, giving more detailed instructions to meet local conditions. Every accident such as is described in section 83 of the Indian Railways Act, which includes any accident attended with, or of a description usually attended with loss of human life or with grievous hurt, has to be reported to the Inspector appointed under section 4 of the Act. The duties of these Inspectors in connection with enquiries into and reports on such accidents are detailed in rules 7 to 12 of the rules issued under the Railway Department Notification No. 1926-T, dated the 19th March, 1930. Furthermore, these Inspectors have power to inspect any railway or rolling stock used thereon, under section 5 of the Act. Our position in this matter is that the Railway Administrations and the Railway Board know much more about the railway working than the Factory Inspectors, and, if there is any question of choice between rules under the Railways Act and rules under this Act, we prefer rules under the Railways Act. It is not advisable that there should be any conflict in this matter between rules issued by the Local Government and rules issued under the Railways Act. I think I have said sufficient to show that adequate provision to guard against dangers arising in the use of mechanical transport in factories within the precincts of which there are railways subject to the Indian Railways Act does exist and that there is every justification for excluding such railways from the operation of the Factories Act. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“That in clause 32 (c) of the Bill, the words ‘other than Railways subject to the Indian Railways Act, 1890’ be omitted.”

The motion was negatived.

Clause 32 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“That clause 33 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Sir, I move :

“That in sub-clause (1) of clause 33 of the Bill, after the word ‘factory’ the words ‘or a class of factories’ be inserted.”

This clause provides that, when in any specified factory 150 persons or more are employed, the Local Government may make rules providing adequate shelter for the use of workers during periods of rest. Our suggestion is this. If the Local Government is empowered to make rules with regard to any specified factory, it should also be empowered to make rules in regard to a ‘class of factories’, because what may be considered necessary for a specified factory may be equally applicable to the case of a class of factories of that kind. That is why I move this amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

“That in sub-clause (1) of clause 33 of the Bill, after the word ‘factory’ the words ‘or a class of factories’ be inserted.”

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I regret that I am unable to accept this amendment. The matter was very fully discussed in the Select Committee which came to the conclusion that it was desirable that the Local Government should have the circumstances of each individual factory before them when deciding whether a room should be reserved for the use of children under the age of six years. Conditions in different localities, and, indeed, in the same locality, may vary considerably, and the Select Committee wanted the Local Government to give attention to each individual case before making a rule. That, I think, is the simple explanation of the change made in the Select Committee. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“That in sub-clause (1) of clause 33 of the Bill, after the word ‘factory’ the words ‘or a class of factories’ be inserted.”

The motion was negatived.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Sir, I formally move the next amendment :

“That in sub-clause (2) (a) of clause 33 of the Bill, after the word ‘factory’ the words ‘or a class of factories’ be inserted.”

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

“That in sub-clause (2) (a) of clause 33 of the Bill, after the word ‘factory’ the words ‘or a class of factories’ be inserted.”

The motion was negatived.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Sir, I move :

“That after sub-clause (4) of clause 33 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be inserted :

“(5) The Local Government may also make rules, requiring that in any factory or class of factories, where the conditions and circumstances of employment of the nature of the processes carried on are such, as to require special provisions to be made at the factory for securing the welfare of the workers or any class of workers employed therein, in relation to matters regarding the supply of protective clothing, ambulance and first-aid arrangements, arrangements for preparing or heating and taking meals, the supply and use of seats, accommodation for clothing, facilities for washing, supply of drinking water, arrangements for supervision of workers and the provision for rest rooms :

Provided the rules made under this sub-section are placed on the table of the Legislative Council of the Province concerned and provided further that the Council does not pass a resolution within forty days after the rules were placed on the table, disapproving of those rules.”

By the insertion of this sub-clause, we want to insert matters with regard to welfare orders. The Labour Commission very specifically recommended that the Local Government should be given power to issue welfare orders, and these welfare orders relate to matters like protective clothing, ambulance and first-aid arrangements, facilities for washing and matters of that kind. In England, the Ministry of Health has got power to issue such welfare orders, and the Labour Commission was convinced that these welfare orders have contributed materially to the wellbeing of the workers. I have not been able to understand why the Government of India chose to reject this recommendation of the Labour Commission, particularly when the Governments of Bombay and Madras supported the recommendation of the Royal Commission and when they also said that there was no danger of this power being abused by the Local Governments. We have also laid down a provision that the views may be placed before the Local Council, and, if they are not approved by the Council, they may be rejected.

Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That after sub-clause (4) of clause 33 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be inserted :

"(5) The Local Government may also make rules, requiring that in any factory or class of factories, where the conditions and circumstances of employment of the nature of the processes carried on are such, as to require special provisions to be made at the factory for securing the welfare of the workers or any class of workers employed therein, in relation to matters regarding the supply of protective clothing, ambulance and first-aid arrangements, arrangements for preparing or heating and taking meals, the supply and use of seats, accommodation for clothing, facilities for washing, supply of drinking water, arrangements for supervision of workers and the provision for rest rooms :

Provided the rules made under this sub-section are placed on the table of the Legislative Council of the Province concerned and provided further that the Council does not pass a resolution within forty days after the rules were placed on the table, disapproving of those rules."

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I should like to point out, in the first instance, that much of the contents of this motion are already covered by the existing provisions in the Act. As far as I have been able to discover, the explanation for the form which this amendment has taken is to be found in section 7 of the British Police, Factories, etc., (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1916, the provisions of which have been copied without any regard to the extent to which they are already covered by the other provisions of our Bill. It is very dangerous to copy legislation in other countries without rather more detailed examination than I venture to think has been given in this instance. Now, Sir, I would invite the attention of the House to the extent to which we have dealt with the matters mentioned in this amendment in the provisions of our Bill. Take the supply of protective clothing. It is possible to make rules under clause 33 (4) (d) which will enable the imposition of a liability on the management to supply protective clothing to workers employed in hazardous operations. Ambulance arrangements are more a business of a hospital than of the factory management. First-aid arrangements are covered by clause 32 (b) which makes a provision for the maintenance of first-aid appliances. Facilities for washing can be secured for workers employed on dirty processes under sub-clause (3) of clause 19, and sub-clauses (1) and (2) of the same clause provide for the supply of drinking water. Rest rooms can be secured for workers under sub-clause (1) of the clause to which the amendment is tabled. As regards accommodation for clothing, I do not think that the Indian labourer has much clothes for which he requires accommodation when he is at work. I do not quite know what is meant by the supply and use of seats. If by that phrase the use of seats in rest rooms is meant, I do not think the Indian labourer requires much in that direction. He usually prefers to lie on the ground than to sit on a seat. There are only three items in this amendment which are really not covered by our Bill in some way or the other. These are firstly arrangements for cooking and eating meals. I cannot say how far they would be a success in any place in India that I know of. Cloak rooms, I have already mentioned. What is meant by arrangements for the supervision of workers, I am not certain.

Now, Sir, I come to the reasons which led the Government to take a view in this matter which differs from that of the Royal Commission on Labour. They were very fully explained in our letter on the subject to Local Governments which I will read to the House :

"In one important respect the recommendations of the Commission have been varied in the Bill. On page 64 of their Report, the Commission suggest that, following the principle embodied in British Legislation, Local Governments should be empowered in general terms to pass orders applicable to particular classes or groups of factories relating to welfare. 'Welfare' is a wide term and the Commission have given some indication of the variety of subjects which can be included under this head. The Government of India are provisionally opposed to such wide extension of the rule-making power as this recommendation would involve. They consider it preferable and more in consonance with the principles underlying the Act, that fresh requirements of the kind regarded by the Commission as desirable should have the approval of the Legislature and should not be imposed on factory-owners by the Executive Government. While, therefore, they have embodied in the draft Bill amendments designed to carry out the specific recommendations of the Commission in respect of welfare, (that is a point on which I would lay special emphasis) they have not made provision for any such general order-making power as the Commission contemplated."

It seems to me that whatever we do on this side of the House in this matter of rules, we certainly cannot please all the sections of the House on the opposite Benches. When we take power to make rules, the criticism is brought forward that we are placing too much power in the hands of the Executive. When we say that we do not wish to take power to make rules and that we would prefer to bring concrete measures before this House or that concrete measures should be brought before the Provincial Councils for their approval, we are also subjected to criticism. My own view naturally is that which has been accepted by the majority of Local Governments and also by the majority of the Select Committee, namely, that it is desirable that these welfare orders should be embodied in definite and concrete amendments to the factory legislation which should receive the sanction either of the Central Legislature or of Provincial Legislatures. It is for that reason that I am compelled to oppose the amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That after sub-clause (4) of clause 33 of the Bill, the following new sub-clause be inserted :

"(5) The Local Government may also make rules, requiring that in any factory or class of factories, where the conditions and circumstances of employment of the nature of the processes carried on are such, as to require special provisions to be made at the factory for securing the welfare of the workers or any class of workers employed therein, in relation to matters regarding the supply of protective clothing, ambulance and first-aid arrangements, arrangements for preparing or heating and taking meals, the supply and use of seats, accommodation for clothing, facilities for washing, supply of drinking water, arrangements for supervision of workers and the provision for rest rooms :

[Mr. President.]

Provided the rules made under this sub-section are placed on the table of the Legislative Council of the Province concerned and provided further that the Council does not pass a resolution within forty days after the rules were placed on the table, disapproving of those rules."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 33 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 34 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Sir, I move :

"That in clause 34 of the Bill, for the word 'fifty-four' the word 'forty-eight' and for the word 'sixty' the word 'fifty-four' be substituted."

The purpose of this amendment is to reduce the working hours in perennial factories from 54 to 48 and in seasonal factories from 60 to 54. This provision in the Bill is based on the recommendation of the Royal Commission on Labour. I would like to point out that that recommendation was not unanimous. Three of the Members of the Commission, Mr. Cliff, Mr. Joshi and Diwan Chaman Lall, have advocated 48 hours a week for the Indian factories and they based their arguments mostly on the climatic and physical grounds. I regret very much that my friend, Mr. Mody, is not here, because he is one of the vigorous opponents of this 48-hour week. Yesterday, while giving his reasons for opposing the 48-hour week, he said that the conditions in India and in Western countries are not similar. We quite agree with him that the conditions are dissimilar. For example, as my friend, Mr. Jadhav, yesterday very lucidly explained, if you cannot expect a worker in the cold climate of England to give his best if he is required to work for more than eight hours a day, how can you expect efficient work from the Indian workers in this tropical heat of India if they are required to work for ten hours a day. This very dissimilarity of climatic conditions makes it all the more necessary that Indian workers should have lesser hours of working than even what prevails in England. Then Mr. Mody said that the Indian workers were inefficient. Sir, if you want efficiency, you must give them lesser working hours, because you cannot expect your Indian worker, working under Indian conditions, to keep up sustained effort for ten hours a day. Efficiency depends upon other factors also. It depends upon the standard of life of the worker, and that again depends upon his wages. If Mr. Mody is not prepared to give American wages to the Indian workers, then he cannot expect American efficiency from them. Mr. Mody said that he would be agreeable to accept 48 hours if simultaneously with the reduction in working hours, we reduced the wages also and if we gave him protection without grumbling. Sir, we gave him protection all right, though we grumbled to a certain extent, and as regards reducing the wages simultaneously with the reduction of working hours, well, if Mr. Mody were here, I would have reminded him of what is happening in America. There, Sir, in the textile industry, under the new law, the working hours have been reduced by 25 per cent., and, at the same time, the wages have been increased by 30 per cent. That only shows a reduction of working hours and an increase in wages are not incompatible. Then, again, Mr. Mody took great credit for having induced the Employers' Federation in India to agree to fifty-four hours a week. Well, that is no advance from the present position. If you take the case of the jute industry—I think my friend, Mr. Morgan, will correct me if I am wrong—workers in the jute mills which work single shifts do not work more than 54 hours, and, with double shifts, more than 44 hours a week; and, in the case of the engineering trade, they do not work for more than fifty hours a week, and, in the metallurgical works at the Tata Iron and Steel Workshops at Jamshedpur, the workers do not work for more than 50 to 54 hours a week, and, in some cases, not more than 48 hours a week. So, it is no credit for Mr. Mody to say that he induced the Employers' Federation to grant this so-called concession, because that means no advance at all on the present position. Actually, many workers are working a less number of hours; and if you want to make an advance in the direction of reducing the hours of work, it should be in the direction of reducing them to 48 hours. Sir, I have reminded the House on many previous occasions of what is being done in other countries, particularly in Geneva, about working hours. Only last year a Conference at Geneva adopted a Resolution supporting 40 hours a week for the workers. We are satisfied with forty-eight. Though it is too much to expect Government to accept our suggestion, still we contend that our claim is a modest one. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That in clause 34 of the Bill, for the word 'fifty-four' the word 'forty-eight' and for the word 'sixty' the word 'fifty-four' be substituted."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Sir, the discussion on this particular amendment very much depends upon the subsequent clause which is to follow, but at any rate I take it for granted that the clause will continue to exist. Now, in this case, I should have thought that it would always be correct if we fixed the wages of labour for each hour. Taking the average wage of a worker to be fifteen rupees a month, I think it will work out to about one anna per hour. If we fix up wages at that rate, then we will find that the labourers will always be willing to work as long as they possibly can in order to get more wages, and I think if we fix the wages in proportion to the amount of work done, then we will find that the labourers will always be clamouring for more work, because each hour will bring more money to them and you will find that the pull will be from the opposite direction. Labour would always try to work more and draw more wages, and employers will try to give them less work in order to employ a larger number of men in the hope of getting more efficient work. Now, if we fix the whole thing not in the manner of the time spent actually on work and fix it at one anna per hour, that will come to Rs. 15 a month and that will be a good method of adjustment and then the tug-of-war as to whether the working hours should be 54 or 50 or 48 will come to an end, and then there will be no definite test by means of which you can decide this particular question. That, to my mind, is the simplest way of doing it, and the Local Governments should, for each district, fix up the minimum wage on which a person can comfortably live under conditions in which labour usually lives in that particular locality, and then they should fix the wage for each hour and leave it to the employers and the workmen to decide as to what should be the amount of work, but it is not fair for us to lay down that a man should not work for more hours. By working for more hours he will earn more and we should not prevent him from doing so. Therefore, I believe we ought to change our formula altogether, and, instead of fixing the number of hours for each week, we should always regulate the value of each hour in a particular locality dependent upon the nature of the work and also upon the nature of the workmen and then leave it to the employers and the workmen, and, as long as there is room for work, the workman should get as much as possible and as much as he likes and then this struggle between capital and labour will practically disappear.

There is one more point which I have been thinking about. Since there was a joke about it in the morning, I have been thinking about one other thing. I was wondering whether a book is an article or not. I think everybody will say that a book is an article. Then, I thought it over in my mind as to whether a Bill is an article. A Bill is an article. Then, naturally, under the definition in clause 2 (j), the Legislative Assembly can be declared under clause 5 to be a factory by the Chief Commissioner of Delhi. Well, we are otherwise treating an article here and this can be declared to be a factory. Then in that case I think all these things will apply to us. I think the Associated Press ought to have used the words "Legislative Assembly" to which this Factories Bill will apply instead of Navy. Sir, I should like to emphasize that, in this matter of fixing the hours, we ought not to discuss what is the minimum number of hours a worker should work, because many workers can work for ten or twelve hours a day, provided they are paid for it. The objectionable thing is that you ask them to work, but do not pay them for it. Sir, the value of each hour ought to be fixed by the local conditions and once these have been fixed by the Local Government, then the whole question about hours of work will automatically be settled. Under normal conditions, eight hours a day I consider to be a good amount of work which a person may be expected to do. I think this is really fixed practically everywhere, and, really speaking, in factories, which work continuously for 24 hours, they usually have three shifts, each shift consisting of eight hours. It is automatically settled that every workman will have to work for eight hours if you agree to the following amendment which I am going to move to delete, but if you do not agree to delete, then six days will become the week and six times eight will become 48. Either you have eight hours a day and keep the following condition, or, otherwise, the Government have no alternative but to accept the amendment moved by my Honourable friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, that is, 48 hours, though I myself would prefer that there should be no maximum or minimum and the wages should be settled according to the amount of work done by each worker.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment. The fifty-four hour week has been put in the Bill, and, taking into consideration the present work that is exacted from the labourers in factories, it is a great advance in favour of the labourers. But it must be pointed out that the hours of labour in Western countries are still further reduced and for very good reasons, because it has been found that a man cannot work efficiently for longer hours, and, therefore, he must get sufficient rest. In England, the hours of work are 44 or 48, and, as was pointed out yesterday, the Indian conditions require that the hours of work here should be even less ; because, in the enervating climate of India a man cannot put much energy for longer hours.

I was really interested in the mathematical problem placed before the House by our Professor of Mathematics, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad. In the Arithmetic classes, I have worked examples in which it was said that if a work could be done by ten men working four hours a day, how many men will be required to do the same work if the hours of work are raised to six. Of course, according to mathematical calculation, the number of men will be found to be about two-thirds. But there one great assumption is made that a man works uniformly the same quantity of work every hour that he is working. But it is not found to be actually the case. Early in the morning, when a man is fresh and has taken his breakfast, he could put in more work than when he is exhausted or when he is hungry. In the same way, if, as the Doctor says, the wages should be fixed on the number of hours put in, he assumes that the work done for every hour, whether it is ten or nine or eight, will be the same, and, therefore, it will be to the advantage of the employer and also of the employee. But actually it is not so. The employer himself has come to realise that it is more to his advantage to have fewer hours than to have longer hours.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : On a point of personal explanation. I said if we accept the formula, the position would be reversed, that is, the capitalist employers would demand less hours and the labourers would demand longer hours, just the opposite of what we are doing now.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : I do not think I need enter into this discussion further, because the absurdity of the Doctor's proposition is self-evident. In the printing presses, whenever there is pressure of work, the owners ask the compositors to put in longer hours of work, and they do get more wages certainly. But the compositors, who have already worked for eight or nine hours, find it very tiresome to work any further and they usually grumble. So the point which the Doctor wants to make that the labourer will be very willing to work longer hours is not borne out by experience even if he is to get more wages. I need not take any further time of the House. I do feel, Sir, that the Government are not in a mood to accept this amendment at present, and I would, therefore, request them to make a note of it and to bring in an amending Bill at the earliest opportunity reducing the working hours to forty-eight.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, this provision is undoubtedly the most controversial one in the Bill, but it has already been so thoroughly discussed in the general discussion that there is very little that I can add to the arguments which have been already adduced. I would, however, remind the House of what the Royal Commission said on this subject, and add that our position on these Benches is exactly that of the Leader of the Opposition. He expressed the view yesterday, with which I entirely agree, that we should not be justified in going any further than is recommended by the Royal Commission which explored the subject most thoroughly and whose ability and capacity to come to a decision on the subject cannot be questioned. As I said, I should like to remind the House, as probably Members have not looked up the report of the Royal Commission for sometime past, of the reasons why the Commission was unable to accept anything below 54 hours. They point out :

"The introduction of the lower limit would involve a change of hours in the great majority of the perennial factories and it would mean a very heavy reduction in the factories now working 60 hours. Many operatives would have to face large reductions in their earnings and, while we do not doubt that part of this loss would be made good before long, we are not convinced that the operatives as a whole are in a position to regain their old standard in any reasonably short period. From the point of view of industry, the employer is entitled to claim that, until the worker is ready to approximate more nearly to western standards of discipline, it is unreasonable to attempt an eight hour day, and even an eight and half hour day would involve an amount of dislocation that would be serious. It may be possible in the future, when efficiency has risen further, to go lower than 54 hours. But efficiency is not likely to be raised so surely by a sweeping reduction as by a smaller one, and there will be nothing to prevent a further reduction if the results of the smaller change which we advocate indicate that this is desirable. Finally, we believe that the 48 hours limit which some of our colleagues advocate could only be operative at present if great latitude was given in the matter of exemptions. In our view, the worker will be better protected by a limit which can only be relaxed in exceptional circumstances than by one to which many exceptions have to be attached."

That, Sir, was the view held by seven of the eleven members of the Royal Commission, the dissentients being Mr. Cliff, Mr. Joshi and Diwan Chaman Lall, who wanted a 48-hour week and Sir Victor Sassoon who, at that time, was not prepared to go below sixty. The point which I wish to emphasise is that this Bill is only an instalment of progress. It is undoubtedly the biggest instalment which has been made since the Factories Act was passed, but it is only an instalment.

Mr. H. P. Mody (Bombay Millowners' Association : Indian Commerce) : I hope the next instalment will be long in coming.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I am afraid I cannot altogether subscribe to my Honourable friend, Mr. Mody's view. There are many directions in which I should like to see more rapid advance made than he may wish. But my point is that, as I have said, the Bill is an instalment. Let us try the effect of the 54-hour week before we move in the direction of anything shorter. I do not think, Sir, that there is any further argument that I can adduce in opposition to my Honourable friend, the Deputy President's amendment. The matter was, as the House knows, discussed in the Select Committee, and, as in the case of the Royal Commission, there was a minority view. Government stand by their original proposal, and I have to oppose the amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 35 stand part of the Bill."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Sir, I beg to move :

"That clause 35 of the Bill be omitted."

Clause 35 runs thus :

"No adult worker shall be allowed to work in a factory on a Sunday....."

and then certain provisos follow. Sir, if it is intended to give some relief to the workers, I do not see why Sunday or any other day should be specially selected. As far as the Muslim workers are concerned, they would prefer to have a half-holiday on Fridays and in the whole month of Ramzan, and a few other holidays, such as the two Id days, so that the total may come up to 52 days, instead of giving them 52 holidays on the 52 Sundays of the year. Similarly, the Hindu workers would, I am sure, prefer a week's holiday during the Dusserah, four days during Holi, two days on the occasion of the Diwali and other holidays on religious festivals, and it should be arranged in a manner so that the total may come to 52 days in a year which would be equivalent to the 52 Sundays. So, instead of giving them 52 holidays on the 52 Sundays, it would be better appreciated if you give them holidays on religious festivals. And, I am sure that the holidays given on the occasion of festivals will be employed usefully and in social and religious work which will be appreciated by the family and the society, and these holidays will not be misused. As regards the holidays on Sundays, of course leaving out the morning hours when some workmen may go to church, if you take the opinion of the wives of the workmen in the west, probably they would in large majority be against giving them a holiday, because they employ their time in a manner which their wives seriously object to. So, if they are given holidays on days when they have no work and nothing to do in the way of recreation, I am afraid their time will be spent in a manner which, not only their wives would object to, but possibly the police may also object to, and this is a thing which may possibly develop. So it is really not a good thing to keep these workmen free without any work. Although I appreciate the idea of giving them some kind of relaxation, I do not like that they should be given relaxation in the manner provided in this clause, so that they may spend the time in the manner I have just described, which would be objectionable to two categories. So it would be much better if this relaxation were given on the occasion of religious festivals which certainly the workers would appreciate, society would appreciate, and the capitalists and employers of labour who follow some religion or other would not seriously object to. Therefore, I do not see any reason why this particular clause should be there.

The other objection which I have is that if they regularly take off one day in a week, then the amount of work per day will work up to about nine hours, and I think nine hours is not really a suitable limit for each day's work. Eight hours in a day has always been considered to be a good limit. There is an old slogan which I think still holds good, that a day is divided into 24 parts and one-third is reserved for sleep, one-third for recreation including time spent on meals, and one-third for work.

I think that is a good slogan and we ought to follow that. But if we accept this particular clause, this slogan will be violated, because he will have to work for 54 hours in six days, that is, about nine hours a day, which is really not very desirable. Therefore, I would very much like that this clause should be removed altogether and that some new clause may be added according to which holidays may be given on the days on which there are religious festivals and not on days when these workmen have nothing to do and might possibly utilise these holidays in a manner which may not be considered to be desirable by one class or the other whom I have mentioned.

Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

“That clause 35 of the Bill be omitted.”

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I have seldom listened to more confused thinking aloud than has been given us in my Honourable friend's speech. His amendment is that clause 35 of the Bill should be omitted ; in other words, that all the workers in this country shall be deprived of their weekly holiday. I do not think that an amendment of that character is likely to commend itself to this House, if for no other reason,—and there are many and very important reasons,—than that we are bound by international obligations to the weekly holiday. We have ratified the Weekly Rest-Day Convention for Industrial Undertakings. My Honourable friend suggests that something should be substituted for the weekly holiday. There is no amendment to that effect before the House. He has not thought out the effect of his proposal and put it in a concrete form and we have to take this amendment at its face value and realise that, if we accept it, there will no longer be any weekly holiday. My Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin, suggests that Muhammadan employees should have their weekly holidays on Fridays and that Hindu employees should have their holidays on other days. He sees no reason why Sunday should be a general holiday. There is no reason why Sunday should be a general holiday, and, in point of fact, Sunday is not a general holiday ; there is nothing whatever to prevent employers of labour, under this provision, fixing any day of the week they like for the weekly holiday, any day that suits them or their employees. The reason why Sunday is mentioned here is that, it is the first day of the week and is, therefore, a convenient starting point ; but the weekly holiday can be arranged according to the circumstances of each factory. I trust that I have said sufficient to convince the House that there is really less to be said in favour of this amendment than of almost any other amendment that has so far been brought forward, and I trust the House will reject it.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“That clause 43 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I beg to move :

“That in sub-clause (2) (b) of clause 43 of the Bill, after the figures ‘34’ the figures ‘35’ be inserted.”

This is an amendment to claim exemption under clause 35 for workers on preparatory or supplementary work. Preparatory and supplementary work is generally done before the factory is started or after the factory has closed ; and generally work in connection with transmission of power and water supply which may have to be done probably on every day of the week. We think, therefore, that the exemption from clause 35 also should be included amongst the exemptions which have been given in this clause. There are generally long intervals of rest between the periods during which they are employed and they may be required to work on a Sunday for a few hours. We think, therefore, that it should be within the power of a Local Government to grant exemption from clause 35 for preparatory and complementary work. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

“That in sub-clause (2) (b) of clause 43 of the Bill, after the figures ‘34’ the figures ‘35’ be inserted.”

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I oppose the amendment. I trust that the House will by this time have discovered that I am opposing amendments equally whether they are put forward on behalf of labour or from representatives of capital. I oppose this amendment on general grounds. We are allowing exemptions from the weekly holiday of workers engaged on urgent repairs, the production of articles of prime necessity, seasonal or irregular processes and engine room work. The point is that in all these cases there is a common factor, which is, that, for widely varying reasons, continuity of work is essential. This factor is not necessarily present in the categories with which this amendment and the following amendment that Mr. Morgan has put forward deal. For the sake of convenience and, with your permission, Sir, I am dealing with the two amendments together. In many cases intermittent workers might come under the exemptions allowed for urgent repairs. I cannot see any reason why workers engaged on preparatory or intermittent work should not as a rule get their weekly holiday ; where there is exceptional press of work, clause 44 (2) would apply. Workers, who are engaged in complementary or preparatory work, have, I think, if anything, an even stronger claim to a weekly holiday than other workers as their hours on week days are normally longer. The same argument also applies to persons whose work is intermittent except in continuous process factories ; and, if they work in such factories, exemption from the weekly holiday can be granted under clause 43 (2) (d). For this reason, I oppose both this amendment and the following one. I can see no reason why these two classes of workers should be deprived of their weekly holiday.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in sub-clause (2) (b) of clause 43 of the Bill, after the figures '34' the figures '35' be inserted."

The motion was negatived.

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I beg to move :

"That in sub-clause (2) (c) of clause 43 of the Bill, after the figures '34' the figures '35' be inserted."

This refers to intermittent workers and the clause explains what "intermittent" means. I think I am correct in saying that under the present Bill, section 30, exemption can be granted from the provisions of clause 22 of that Act,—and I do not see why any exception should be made in the Bill before the House ; though the Honourable Member has already replied, I move my amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in sub-clause (2) (c) of clause 43 of the Bill, after the figures '34' the figures '35' be inserted."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 43 was added to the Bill.

Clauses 44—48 were added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 49 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I beg to move :

"That for clause 49 of the Bill, the following be substituted :

"49. The Local Government may, subject to the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, make rules providing that in any specified class or classes of factories work shall not be carried on by a system of shifts save with the permission of the Local Government and subject to such conditions as it may impose either generally in such rules or in the case of any particular factory. Such shifts, if permitted, shall be so arranged that not more than one relay of workers is engaged in work of the same kind at the same time."

This, I may say, at the outset, is an amendment put forward by special constituents whom I represent here. The Bill is of general application, and, therefore, there is no other way by which they could put forward their views. Sir, with your permission, and, in order to save a long description of the reasons for this amendment, I will read out the views expressed by the Jute Mills Association desiring me to put forward this amendment. They say :

"The Association finds it difficult to see how the position of the Factory Inspection Department will be greatly improved so far as the checking of registers and working hours is concerned so long as 'end-on' shifts are allowed. For unless machinery is stopped between shifts and the mill cleared, it will always be possible for a worker employed in the first shift to continue at work throughout the whole or part of the succeeding shift. 'End-on' shifts are of course necessary in certain industries where the process is continuous, but in the jute mill industry they are not, and if the control aimed at is to be effective, separate legislation in respect of jute mills is essential, and that is impossible under the present Act."

Sir, the interests represented by this Association put forward this view ; they think it would strengthen the hands of the Local Government in preventing any abuse of the "end-on" shift system if this clause were amended as proposed by me. Sir, I have nothing to add to the views I have expressed, and I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That for clause 49 of the Bill, the following be substituted :

"49. The Local Government may, subject to the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, make rules providing that in any specified class or classes of factories work shall not be carried on by a system of shifts save with the permission of the Local Government and subject to such conditions as it may impose either generally in such rules or in the case of any particular factory. Such shifts, if permitted, shall be so arranged that not more than one relay of workers is engaged in work of the same kind at the same time."

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I oppose this amendment very strongly. It is not designed to control labour in factories, but to control production. The object aimed at in the amendment is, as I have said, to secure control of production, and to bring that about it is proposed to impose a restraint which I can only call absurd on the employment of labour in factories throughout India. We propose to control over-lapping shifts, while Mr. Morgan proposes to control all shifts and to prohibit over-lapping shifts altogether. It is a great pity that my friend, Mr. Mody, is not here. He would have explained that, as a part of the schemes for the rationalisation of the cotton industry in Bombay, it might be desirable to resort to over-lapping shifts which this amendment seeks to prohibit. Mr. Morgan may answer that what is good enough for the cotton industry may not be good enough for the jute industry and that special exemption should be made in favour of the jute industry. We might be prepared to accept that view if we could be convinced that this exemption was in the interests of the factory labour. But it is our considered view that it has nothing whatever to do with labour at all. It is merely designed to reduce over-production, and, for that reason, Sir, I am emphatically opposed to it.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That for clause 49 of the Bill, the following be substituted :

"49. The Local Government may, subject to the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, make rules providing that in any specified class or classes of factories work shall not be carried on by a system of shifts save with the permission of the Local Government and subject to such conditions as it may impose either generally in such rules or in the case of any particular factory. Such shifts, if permitted, shall be so arranged that not more than one relay of workers is engaged in work of the same kind at the same time."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 49 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 50 stand part of the Bill."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Sir, I beg to move :

"That for clause 50 of the Bill, the following be substituted :

"It shall be the duty of the Manager to send every child worker, who has not completed the twelfth year, to a recognised school for at least three hours in a week."

but it should be three hours in a day.

In the original clause, it is stated that no child who has not completed his twelfth year shall be allowed to work in any factory. This particular clause is practically taken from other countries where education is compulsory. Boys up to the age of 12 in all civilized countries of the world attend schools, but in India we all know that education is not compulsory, and a very small proportion of the children actually attend schools. Besides that, Sir, our country is a very poor country, and very often every member of the family has to work in order to earn a living. We have seen that in country places, men, boys and girls, all work together in the fields to complete their daily work. We also know that at present wages are so meagre that every member of the family has to work to make both ends meet. Very often both father and mother go out for work, and if the child which is, say, between six and 12 is not allowed to work and there is no school which it can attend, what will it do the whole day? The child will really waste the time in a society which is anything but desirable. So when such children are employed, the managers of factories ought to be compelled to send the children to schools for at least three hours every day, so that they may get some education and be able to earn a better living. In the absence of facilities of schools, the boys will practically waste their time in the streets and spend it in a manner, as I said, which is anything but desirable. The original provision in the Bill might be very salutary in countries where every child has to attend a school up to the age of 12, but, in our country, where the Government unfortunately have not provided sufficient educational facilities for want of funds, it is very necessary that boys between the ages of six and 12 should be kept occupied, but they should be sent to school by the managers for at least three hours every day. We should not merely follow the conditions prevailing in the civilized countries in all respects; we should see our own conditions and judiciously apply them to this country. In this particular case, our conditions are different from those obtaining in other civilized countries where they have compulsory education. In those countries, every boy at the age of 12 is at school and he is not found in the streets as we see them here. In this country, the majority of the boys below 12 do not attend schools, but waste their time. Such a state of things is not good for society. Therefore, the managers should be compelled to send the children working in factories to schools for at least three hours a day, so that they may learn something, and they will also get into the habit of doing some work. If you allow a boy up to the age of 12 to do absolutely nothing, then he practically loses the habit of doing work, and, if at the age of 13, he is asked to do some work, he would refuse to do it, because in all the previous 12 years he had never done any serious work. Therefore, I suggest that the situation in India being very peculiar on account of the absence of educational facilities, and on account of the absence of compulsory education, we should not follow blindly the practice of the West. Therefore, we should impose a condition that if these boys are employed in factories, the managers should be compelled to send them to schools for three hours every day. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That for clause 50 of the Bill, the following be substituted :

"It shall be the duty of the Manager to send every child worker, who has not completed the twelfth year, to a recognised school for at least three hours in a week."

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I put in an amendment? "Three hours a week" must be changed into "three hours a day".

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Very well.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I support this amendment. It is very necessary in the interests of giving education, and a provision of this kind must be made. I recommend that the amendment be accepted.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, according to this amendment it is to be the duty of the manager to send every child worker, who has not completed his twelfth year, to a recognised school for at least three hours a week—that has been altered into three hours a day. The necessity for alteration is, if I may say so, evidence of the haste with which this amendment was formulated, and also of haste in other directions. The amendment refers to child workers who have not completed their 12th year. From the speech of my Honourable friend, I gathered that he thinks that children under 12 work in factories. If he had studied the Bill, he would find that no children under 12 can be employed in a factory.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Do you mean to say, not in one created under clause 5 of this Bill?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Clause 5 deals with power to declare premises to be factories. "No child, who has not completed his twelfth year, shall be allowed to work in any factory"—that is the clause he is dealing with.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I want to delete that and substitute the other.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : That makes it even worse. I did not realise that. I am sorry I misunderstood my Honourable friend. I apologise for doing so. I gather that his proposal is that children under 12 should be allowed to work in a factory. That is his proposal. If this clause is deleted, you can send children of the age of three or four to a factory, as unfortunately they did in England at the time of the Industrial Revolution. If the House accepts that position, well and good, but I know this House better than that. As I have said before, every Member of this House is a member for the protection of children, and I am quite certain that they will not agree. I strongly oppose this amendment, even more strongly than I did when I did not realise its full implications, and I am astonished that it should ever have been put forward.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That for clause 50 of the Bill, the following be substituted :

"It shall be the duty of the Manager to send every child worker, who has not completed the twelfth year, to a recognised school for at least three hours a day."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 50 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 51 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I move :

"That for clause 51 of the Bill, the following be substituted :

'51. No child who has completed his twelfth year and no adolescent shall be allowed to work in any factory unless—

(a) a certificate of fitness granted to him under section 52 is in the custody of the manager of the factory, and

(b) he carries while he is at work a token giving a reference to such certificate."

The clause, as it is in the Bill, only necessitates that while at work in the factory they should carry either the certificate itself or a token giving reference to it. We hold that it will be very much better to prevent children wandering from factory to factory and getting employment elsewhere, if the certificate remains in the custody of the manager of the factory and the child or adolescent carries a token with reference to the same. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That for clause 51 of the Bill, the following be substituted :

'51. No child who has completed his twelfth year and no adolescent shall be allowed to work in any factory unless—

(a) a certificate of fitness granted to him under section 52 is in the custody of the manager of the factory, and

(b) he carries while he is at work a token giving a reference to such certificate."

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : My Honourable friend will, I am sure, rejoice to hear that he has at last put forward an amendment which we are able to accept. There is no doubt that children never do carry their certificates of fitness with them when they are at work, and it is, therefore, rather absurd to retain a provision which recognises this alternative. I am, therefore, prepared to accept this and the next amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That for clause 51 of the Bill, the following be substituted :

'51. No child who has completed his twelfth year and no adolescent shall be allowed to work in any factory unless—

(a) a certificate of fitness granted to him under section 52 is in the custody of the manager of the factory, and

(b) he carries while he is at work a token giving a reference to such certificate."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 51, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 51, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Clause 52 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 53 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. G. Morgan : I move :

"That in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, for the words 'carries either the certificate itself or a token giving reference to it' the words 'carries a token giving reference to the certificate' be substituted."

This is consequential on clause 51, as amended. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, for the words 'carries either the certificate itself or a token giving reference to it' the words 'carries a token giving reference to the certificate' be substituted."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 53, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 53, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Clauses 54 to 57 were added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 58 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I move :

"That at the end of clause 58 of the Bill, the words 'such certificate to be granted within a period to be specified in the rules' be added."

The clause, as it stands in the Bill, does not provide for any date by which the certifying surgeon is to grant the certificate, and we feel that it is necessary to have some time limit with regard to the granting of the certificate. Therefore, the period should be specified in the rules within which such certificate should be granted. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

"That at the end of clause 58 of the Bill, the words 'such certificate to be granted within a period to be specified in the rules' be added."

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I am afraid I cannot accept this amendment. For one thing I think my Honourable friend has omitted to notice that the amendment assumes that a certificate will be granted. That assumption is entirely unfounded. There is no reason why a certificate should be granted in every case, and for that reason alone the amendment is unsuitable. But apart from that, I think the point which he has in mind is sufficiently covered by the rule making power given under clause 59 (c), which provides that the Local Government may make rules regulating the procedure of certifying surgeons under the Chapter. The Local Government could, under that rule, direct that no undue delay shall take place in the medical examination and the grant of a certificate under clause 58. It would be difficult, I think, to prescribe a time limit suitable to all cases, and a general provision of the type that my Honourable friend is asking for does not seem either necessary or desirable. For these reasons I regret that I am unable to accept his amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty): The question is:

"That at the end of clause 58 of the Bill, the words 'such certificate to be granted within a period to be specified in the rules' be added."

The motion was negatived.

Clause 58 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty): The question is:

"That clause 59 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. G. Morgan: Sir, after what the Honourable Member has said in regard to clause 58, I do not think it is necessary for me to move my amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty): The question is:

"That clause 59 stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 59 was added to the Bill.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad: Sir, I beg to move.

"That after clause 59 of the Bill, the following new clause be inserted and the subsequent clauses be re-numbered accordingly:

'60. The medical fee for obtaining certificate shall be paid by the manager.'"

Sir, this thing is not quite clear from the Bill as to who will pay the medical fee—whether it will be free or some fees will have to be paid; and I am afraid if such fees have to be paid by the labourers, then most of them will go without medical certificates and will not get employment. Sir, a good many of these labourers, when they come, are just on the point of starvation and do not have even a pice with them to pay for a fee for the medical officer. So, unless some provision is made for inspection being either free or at the expense of the Government or of the manager, most of these people will never get employment; and, instead of securing employment for those who are unemployed and who are really destitute, you will really be giving employment to people who are sufficiently rich to pay medical fees. I would request my Honourable friend, the Member in charge, to consider this point. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty): Amendment moved:

"That after clause 59 of the Bill, the following new clause be inserted and the subsequent clauses be re-numbered accordingly:

'60. The medical fee for obtaining certificate shall be paid by the manager.'"

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: Sir, I think I can re-assure my friend on the subject-matter of this amendment. As far as we know, no medical fees are charged for this inspection at all. We have looked up the rules of three Provinces, Bombay, Bengal and the Central Provinces, and find that no fee is ordinarily levied for the medical examination of workers in general. I imagine the position is the same elsewhere, and, therefore, it does not seem necessary to include any explicit provision on the subject. For that reason, I oppose the amendment.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad: This point is not specifically mentioned in this Bill, but we are expecting that it will be regulated by the rules of the Local Government?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: All the rules we have been able to trace show that no medical fees are charged.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh: In none of the Provinces?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: I imagine the position is much the same elsewhere as it is in Bombay, Bengal and the Central Provinces. I have no reason to believe that medical fees are charged, though I cannot speak definitely except for these three Provinces.

Mr. F. W. Hockenhull (Assam: European): No medical fees are charged for this purpose in Assam.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: I am obliged to the Honourable Member for the information, which goes to confirm my own conviction.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad: Will these doctors examine these labourers free, or somebody pays them the fees? If so, who would pay the fees?

Mr. F. W. Hockenhull: Such examination is part of the routine work of the doctor's business.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi (Tirhut Division: Muhammadan): Sir, there must be some indication in the Bill itself as to who will pay the fee of the medical officer. It is easy to say that the rules in three Provinces provide like that, but the Honourable Member ought to provide for this specifically somewhere as they are giving powers to the Local Governments to make rules, so that on that head the Local Government may make rules with regard to the party that will pay if at all for the medical inspection of the labourer. There must be some indication somewhere in the Bill. This word of mouth won't do.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: Sir, I am glad to say that the point has now been verified by my Department, we know that nowhere in India are fees charged for this medical inspection, and, as far as I know, there is no intention of charging such fees. It is regarded as part of the duty of the certifying surgeon whose pay as a whole-time or part-time officer is met by the Government.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh: What is the objection to making it express in some part of the Bill? What is the objection to making this point clear?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: The objection on the part of the Government is that there is no specific amendment before us except this one that the medical fees for obtaining certificates should be paid by the manager. As there is no fee charged at present for a medical certificate, why throw a new burden on the manager? There is no specific amendment here.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh: Who is going to pay such fee?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce: As I have already explained, this is regarded as part of the duties of the certifying surgeon who, whether as a whole-time or part-time officer, is paid by the Government, and there is no intention whatever of altering that practice, and, therefore, there does not seem to be any necessity for making any specific provision in this Bill.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Take the case of a particular district, say Aligarh, and there is a factory there. Then the labourer will have to go to the Civil Surgeon or the Assistant Surgeon. Do I understand that it is the duty of the Civil Surgeon or any of his Assistants to give them certificates free of charge?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Yes, certainly.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : But this is not the case in practice.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : If the Honourable Member's information differs from mine, I shall be glad to have full particulars as to how it differs.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : The fact is, anyone who wants a medical certificate is charged a fee of, I believe, Rs. 16 in the case of the Civil Surgeon, except in the case of those persons who are already in the employ of Government. At least this is the practice in the smaller towns.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Do I understand my Honourable friend to say that the United Provinces certifying surgeons charge a fee for this purpose? Is that my Honourable friend's statement?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : That is my information.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I shall be very glad to have that definitely verified from the United Provinces Government, and, if the facts are as stated, to consider the question further, but at the moment my own information is that no fees are levied anywhere, and, for that reason, it does not seem necessary to make any specific provision here.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Then, with the assurance given that my Honourable friend will have further inquiries made, I beg to withdraw my motion.

The motion was, by leave of the Assembly, withdrawn.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That clause 60 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. E. W. Perry (Government of India : Nominated Official) : Sir, I move :

"That in sub-clause (a) (iii) of clause 60 of the Bill, the words and figure 'of sub-section (2)' be omitted."

At present, there are no sub-clauses in clause 32 of the Bill, and the words and figure in question were not eliminated at an earlier stage of the consideration of the Bill by an oversight.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in sub-clause (a) (iii) of clause 60 of the Bill, the words and figure 'of sub-section (2)' be omitted."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. E. W. Perry : Sir, I move :

"That in sub-clause (a) (iv) of clause 60 of the Bill, for the words and figures 'or under section 32' the words, figures and letters 'or under clause (b), clause (c) or clause (g) of section 32' be substituted."

This amendment merely makes matters more precise, by omitting from this sub-clause reference to those clauses of section 32 which are provided for elsewhere in clause 60 or are not clauses which should be made subject to penalties.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in sub-clause (a) (iv) of clause 60 of the Bill, for the words and figures 'or under section 32' the words, figures and letters 'or under clause (b), clause (c) or clause (g) of section 32' be substituted."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. E. W. Perry : Sir, I beg to move :

"That for sub-clause (c) of clause 60 of the Bill, the following be substituted :

'(c) there is any contravention of any of the provisions of sections 39 to 41 inclusive or of any rule made under section 39, section 41 or section 47, or of any condition attached to any exemption granted under section 41 or to any modification or relaxation made under section 44, or '."

This amendment, together with the amendment which I will subsequently move, is designed to make this clause complete as regards all offences by managers or occupiers.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That for sub-clause (c) of clause 60 of the Bill, the following be substituted :

'(c) there is any contravention of any of the provisions of sections 39 to 41 inclusive or of any rule made under section 39, section 41 or section 47, or of any condition attached to any exemption granted under section 41 or to any modification or relaxation made under section 44, or '."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. E. W. Perry : Sir, I beg to move :

"That in sub-clause (f) of clause 60 of the Bill, the words, figures and letter 'or under clause (d) of section 59' be inserted at the end."

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That in sub-clause (f) of clause 60 of the Bill, the words, figures and letter 'or under clause (d) of section 59' be inserted at the end."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Sir, I move :

"That in clause 60 of the Bill, for the words 'five hundred' the words 'two hundred' be substituted."

I find that four amendments prior to this have fortunately been accepted, and I hope mine will also have the same fate. However, I submit that my amendment refers to a penalty clause that is provided in this Bill. Clause 60 refers to offences or acts which have been penalised, and it will be noticed that clause 60 refers to those offences which are first offences. That is to say, in clause 60, the punishment of Rs. 500 has been provided for a first offence under the Bill. My submission is—and I would request the House to consider it—whether for the very first offence the punishment should be to the extent of Rs. 500. I have referred to some clauses which go to show what offences are going to be punished. Amongst them there are such trivial offences as not keeping sufficient water in the factory for drinking, and I think the maximum fine of Rs. 500 is too much for such an offence.

[Mr. Lalchand Navalrai.]

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) vacated the Chair which was then occupied by Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury).]

I should say it is ridiculous. It might be said that it is in the hands of the Magistrate to give the minimum punishment, which might be a fine of one or two rupees. But, Sir, experience has shown that the maximum fixed is the standard from which they make the minimum and the middling course. It may be that the Courts will impose a very small fine in trivial cases but in a way the fear is there. And why should we leave that fear to remain and to leave the Court to its whims. It is just possible that a man might be punished very heavily for a trivial offence. I, therefore, submit that for the first offence the maximum should be reduced to Rs. 200.

Sir, I move.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Amendment moved :

"That in clause 60 of the Bill, for the words 'five hundred' the words 'two hundred' be substituted."

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I am sorry that in spite of my Honourable friend's appeal, I am unable to accept this amendment. This maximum fine of Rs. 500 was introduced in 1922 and no cause has at any time been shown since then as to why it should be reduced. Unscrupulous employers often grow rich in various ways, such as employing children in out of the way ginning factories and I think it is desirable that, when those offences are discovered, the defaulter should be heavily dropped upon. I doubt if the experience of many Members in this House who have knowledge of the working of the factories is the same as that of Mr. Lalchand Navalrai. I am quite certain that Inspectors of Factories would be very glad if it were. The complaint which they always make is that the fines imposed are altogether too trivial and that instead of working from the top downwards, Magistrates are inclined to work from the bottom upwards and to impose fines of a few rupees for what are really serious offences. I see no reason why we should alter any of the penalty figures suggested in the Bill, all of which have the approval of the Select Committee. The arguments which I have adduced in the present instance apply to the similar amendments brought forward by my Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That in clause 60 of the Bill, for the words 'five hundred' the words 'two hundred' be substituted."

The motion was negatived.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That clause 60, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 60, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That clause 61 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Sir, the fate seems to be against my amendments, and I, therefore, do not want to move my amendments.

Clauses 61 to 65 were added to the Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That clause 66 stand part of the Bill."

Mr. G. Morgan : Sir, I do not wish to move amendment No. 41, but I move amendment No. 42 which runs as follows :

"That to clause 66 of the Bill, the following Exception be added :

Exception.—This provision does not extend to the use, in accordance with such precautions as may be prescribed, of a naked light in the course of a manufacturing process."

It is now known that naked lights are used for some particular processes of manufacture and the clause in the Bill would prevent those lights being used. I hope Government will see their way to accept my amendment which lays down that in accordance with such precautions, as may be prescribed, naked lights can be used in the process of manufacture.

Sir, I move.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : Amendment moved :

"That to clause 66 of the Bill, the following Exception be added :

Exception.—This provision does not extend to the use, in accordance with such precautions as may be prescribed, of a naked light in the course of a manufacturing process."

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I am quite ready to accept this amendment. We have ourselves made inquiries on the point and we have found that naked lights are used in singeing jute and that this is in practice which is free from danger. Mr. Morgan, as the House will see, has drafted his amendment in such a form that precautions may be prescribed for the use of naked lights, and that removes all our objections. I am prepared to accept the amendment.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That to clause 66 of the Bill, the following Exception be added :

Exception.—This provision does not extend to the use, in accordance with such precautions as may be prescribed, of a naked light in the course of a manufacturing process."

The motion was adopted.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

"That clause 66, as amended, stand part of the Bill."

The motion was adopted.

Clause 66, as amended, was added to the Bill.

Clauses 67 to 69 were added to the Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

“ That clause 70 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. E. W. Perry : Sir, I beg to move :

“ That clause 70 of the Bill be omitted and that all amendments consequential on the omission including the re-numbering of clauses and the correction of references be made accordingly.”

Sir, clause 70 of the Bill provides a sweeping up clause as regards offences by managers and occupiers. Clause 60, by reason of the amendments made in it, has become complete as regards those offences. Clause 70 also provides that any workman, who contravenes any of the provisions of the Bill, is liable to punishment. This Department, after examining the question very carefully, is of opinion that clause 72 provides adequately for all ordinary offences by workmen which are not covered by such special clauses as clause 66 which provides penalties for using naked lights. Clause 70 also provides for breaches of the Act by third parties. Important breaches of the Act which might be committed by third parties are also provided for in other clauses. Therefore, for two reasons, it is now considered by the Department that this clause is better omitted. The first reason is that all the necessary provisions are made by other clauses and the second consideration is that a number of acts and omissions which should not be made penal, such as the failure by the Judge to appoint assessors under clause 31 (2), are made penal by this clause. After a very exhaustive examination by this Department and the Legislative Department, Government have come to the conclusion that this clause should be omitted. Sir, I move.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

“ That clause 70 of the Bill be omitted and that all amendments consequential on the omission including the re-numbering of clauses and the correction of references be made accordingly.”

The motion was adopted.

Clause 71 was added to the Bill.

Clause 72 was added to the Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury) : The question is :

“ That clause 73 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. E. W. Perry : Sir, I beg to move :

“ That clause 73 of the Bill be omitted and that all amendments consequential on the omission including the re-numbering of clauses and the correction of references be made accordingly.”

Sir, clause 73 of the Bill repeats section 45 of the existing Act. This clause seems to have escaped criticism in the Select Committee and also when the draft Bill was circulated for opinion. But soon after the report of the Select Committee was published, the Honourable Member from the Bombay Millowners' Association pointed out the objectionable characteristics of this provision. We then had it carefully examined and we find that it has very little to commend it. The repetition of offences is provided for by section 71 of the Indian Penal Code and the best course in a matter of this nature is to allow the general law of the land to apply to the special Act. Apart from that, this clause is very difficult to interpret, and, as far as we know, has never been called into use in any proceedings of any Court. I, therefore, move the omission of this clause.

[At this stage, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) resumed the Chair.]

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That clause 73 of the Bill be omitted and that all amendments consequential on the omission including the re-numbering of clauses and the correction of references be made accordingly.”

The motion was adopted.

Clauses 74 and 75 were added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That clause 76 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Sir, I beg to move :

“ That in sub-clause (1) of clause 76 of the Bill, before the word ‘ Inspector ’ the word ‘ Chief ’ be inserted.”

Sir, I find clause 76 reads thus :

“ No prosecution under this Act, except a prosecution under section 66, shall be instituted except by or with the previous sanction of the Inspector.”

Sir, my object in moving this amendment is that there ought to be some safeguard against prosecutions specially when the offence is detected by the Inspector himself. It would mean that the person who detects an offence also goes to Court and brings the accused before the Court without any other safeguard. In this Act, it has been provided that wherever there is an Inspector who finds that any offence has been committed of a certain nature, there he has to give notice to the factory owner or occupier with regard to that offence. Then the factory owner or the occupier has got the right of going to an appellate Court to have that order set aside. In some offences, where the Inspector has not got to give notice in writing, no appeal lies. I, therefore, submit that why should it not in all cases be that there should be a safeguard with regard to the doings of Inspectors, and, specially when the Bill provides for a Chief Inspector, why should it not be that he should get the sanction of the Chief Inspector to drag the man to Court. In that case, no delay will happen and the papers could be laid before the Chief Inspector who could go into the matter and give sanction to go to Court if necessary. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

“ That in sub-clause (1) of clause 76 of the Bill, before the word ‘ Inspector ’ the word ‘ Chief ’ be inserted.”

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I regret I must oppose this amendment. In permitting Inspectors to sanction the institution of proceedings, we are merely following the present Act. If we were to transfer that duty to the Chief Inspectors, it would throw an intolerable burden of work upon them and the result would undoubtedly be congestion and delay. My Honourable friend talked about safeguards. Surely the safeguard is, in reality, the Magistrate before whom the case is brought. If it should be discovered—I know of no cases in which it has been discovered—that Inspectors are instituting vexatious prosecutions, that fact would undoubtedly come to the notice of the Chief Inspector. All the reports of cases in which prosecutions are instituted are brought to the notice of the Chief Inspector, and if we were to find that an Inspector brought forward a number of cases which proved unsuccessful, he would doubtless take suitable action and bring the matter to the notice of the Local Government, so that any disciplinary action necessary could be taken. I do not think there is any sufficient reason for altering the present procedure, and I must, therefore, oppose the amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“That in sub-clause (1) of clause 76 of the Bill, before the word ‘Inspector’ the word ‘Chief’ be inserted.”

The motion was negatived.

Clause 76 was added to the Bill.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“That clause 77 stand part of the Bill.”

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Sir, I move :

“That in clause 77 of the Bill, for the word ‘six’ the word ‘three’ be substituted.”

Clause 77 refers to the time within which a prosecution under this Bill can be instituted, and a period of six months has been provided within which the Inspector can file a prosecution. It appears to me that so much time is not needed for offences under the Factories Act. There is no reason why the matter should hang on for six months. I have put in three months, and I hope the amendment will be accepted. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

“That in clause 77 of the Bill, for the word ‘six’ the word ‘three’ be substituted.”

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I am afraid I must also oppose this amendment. This six months’ limitation was provided by the Act of 1911 in section 49. It has, therefore, been in force for over twenty years, and there does not seem any good reason for reducing it. My Honourable friend says he sees no reason why matters of this kind should hang on for six months, but the point is that the factory staff, as the House is aware, is not very strong, and that it takes them a good deal of time to get round and inspect all the factories in their charge. It is for that reason that a six months’ limit is necessary, and my Honourable friend’s complaint is the first that has ever been voiced against that limit. In these circumstances, there is no justification for a change.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : question is :

“That in clause 77 of the Bill, for the word ‘six’ the word ‘three’ be substituted.”

The motion was negatived.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Sir, I beg to move :

“That the proviso to clause 77 of the Bill be omitted.”

This proviso is a new one altogether, and I do not think the able Member would be in a position to say here that the former Act provides a certain thing and, therefore, it should be retained. There is no reason that because the former Act provided certain matter, therefore we should stick to it. It may be that the Factories Act at present needs certain improvements, and we must make improvements. With regard to this amendment, I may say that the new proviso altogether and it reads thus :

“Provided that when the offence consists of disobeying a written order by an Inspector complaint thereof may be made within twelve months of the date on which the offence is alleged to have been committed.”

I cannot understand any logic in this that if it is a written order, the matter should hang on for 12 months, otherwise it will be six months. Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Amendment moved :

“That the proviso to clause 77 of the Bill be omitted.”

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, my Honourable friend is perfectly correct in stating that this is a new provision. It was suggested by the Chief Inspectors of Factories and was inserted in the Bill by the Select Committee for reasons which appeared satisfactory to them. I will, I trust, also prove satisfactory to this House. The point is that there are certain remote factories which are inspected and indeed can be inspected not more than once a year. As I have said, the police staff is small and it takes a good deal of time to get round the factories to be inspected. The Inspector goes to a certain factory, he finds that something has to be done, he gives an order in writing that it should be done, he gets a report that it has been carried out, but when he goes there again, which may be several months later, he finds that the statement that his orders had been carried out is not correct and the offence continues.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : He must be an idle Inspector who does nothing there only after 12 months.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I would invite my Honourable friend to read the reports of the Factory Inspectors. He would get a little more of what their duties are and not make statements of that kind. I submit to the House that when definite orders are given and those orders are not carried out, it is equitable that the complaint should be instituted when it is found that the orders have not been obeyed, when the Inspector next visits the factory. I cannot see any objection to the factory owner in that. It is obviously desirable that some [Sir Frank Noyce.] of limitation should be fixed, and with the approval of the Select Committee, it was fixed at twelve months. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That the proviso to clause 77 of the Bill be omitted.”

The motion was negatived.

Clause 77 was added to the Bill.

Clauses 78 to 84 were added to the Bill.

The Schedule was added to the Bill.

Clause 1 was added to the Bill.

The Title and the Preamble were added to the Bill.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I move :

“ That the Bill, as amended, be passed.”

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

“ That the Bill, as amended, be passed.”

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I have refrained so long from taking part in the debate on this Bill, as I thought that it is a salutary measure and it has given some stronghold to the workers all over India. Sir, something has been attempted and something done, and I can say that my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, deserves the congratulations that he received from both sides,—from the workers' representatives and from the representatives of the Employers' Federation, my Honourable friend, Mr. Mody. Mr. Mody particularly paid a compliment to Sir Frank Noyce that he was an admirable Chairman or rather he balanced well both sides, the employers and the workers, and that he anthropometrically analysed Mr. Mody's constitution. He perhaps found that the employers have become a little rickety and the workers have become a little stout. However, if the Honourable Member for Industries and Labour maintains that impartial attitude and tries to give the workers their just dues, much will be done to ameliorate the condition of the workers.

Sir, I was a little pained to hear the speech of my friend, the Deputy President, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury. I know that he is working singlehanded and has no helpmate in this House due to the unfortunate absence of Mr. Joshi owing to the illness of his daughter which we all deplore. Yet Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, in spite of his great love for the workers, ought to realise that a landmark has been reached in the matter of legislation on behalf of the workers. My friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, ought to realise also that this legislation is placing a certain amount of handicap on the employers. Each piece of beneficent social legislation places handicaps whereby the employers will have to spend more money. Although, when this Bill was introduced and was under the consideration stage, I made certain observations, and was under the consideration stage, I made certain observations, after the speech of my friend, Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury, that the time has come when the workers in India must think that they must get an economic wage, they must not follow the Third International ideals of Russia and demand standard wages which, in the present economic conditions of India, the industries cannot pay. This is a subject which requires very careful attention both from the employers and from the workers. I am equally a good friend of the workers and of the employers ; and the recent strike in Bombay demonstrates—although I know it was not inspired or started by sober labour leaders like Mr. N. M. Joshi or our Deputy President, but by a batch of men who rather want to keep up strikes, not so much for the benefit of the workers, but to keep up their leadership and their flag flying with their undigested ideas of third internationals and other socialist ideals which our present labour leaders in India have not themselves digested. That is a phase which I advise labour leaders in India to cogitate upon. It is for them to meet—whether it is Mr. Giri of the Railway Labour Federation or whether it is the Trade Union of workers in mills and factories—they have to see whether their demand of standard wages is not something ephemeral and ethereal. Have not the prices gone down ? Has not the ordinary man, the middle class man, been putting up with wages which are 30 to 40 per cent. below the standard of income which he was getting three or four years ago ? Today, if the Indian workers go on demanding increments in wages—I have not seen one single labour leader in India who says that the economic depression and the low prices prevalent all over India require that the wages should be reduced—I hope sanity will be restored amongst the labour leaders all over India and that they will think of all these things.

I will also offer one word of advice to the employers, particularly to Mr. Mody, the President of the All-India Employers' Federation, who is present here. The employers and workers must work harmoniously. It is no use my friend, Mr. Mody, saying “ I have graciously condescended and agreed to a 54-hour week ”. Unfortunately world ideals, socialist ideals and ideals from Moscow are wirelessed and broadcast, and so the labour leaders in India, though they may not digest them fully, get hold of these ideals and demand a 48-hour week in India. Whether the time is ripe in India to have a 48-hour week, I am not at present in a position to give an opinion. But I think the time has come when the employers in India, however big and however aristocratic they might be,—they are Indians mostly and I even appeal to my friend, Mr. George Morgan, and other capitalist employers sitting in those Benches,—should understand and appreciate the workers' difficulties and the workers' conditions and they should have harmonious and human relations with the workers. If that is done, there would be no strikes ; there would be no bad blood between the workers and the employers.

I am grateful, and the House is grateful to Mr. Mody for referring to one aspect of the issue in his note of dissent, which he also mentioned in his speech. It is the advantageous position in which Indian States are placed owing to the incompetence and ineptitude of the Government of India. Today, the Government of India, as they stand, cannot apply and enforce humanising legislation on the Indian States. Yet I have seen representatives of Indian States and Indian princes visiting Geneva as representatives of India. I cannot understand how they are [Mr. B. Das.] allowed to grace those International Conferences, whether it is the League of Nations or the I. L. O., when they do not submit and subscribe to the Conventions, and when they do not ratify these Conventions. If they are within the British Empire—I am not here discussing questions of paramountcy, I am glad my Honourable friend, Mr. Metcalfe, is here, I am not talking of sovereignty or paramountcy—these two things I have talked about often and I will get ample opportunity to talk later—but if they are in the British Empire, they are part of the British Empire, and they must ratify these Conventions which the British Government and the Government of India ratify; and, however much these princes may bluff and blubber outside, they are still subordinate to the Government of India; and if the Government of India do ratify these labour Conventions, I want to know what justification there is why the Government of India are so incompetent that they cannot enforce on these princes to adopt these Conventions in their States. There is forced labour prevalent in almost every State. The Honourable Mr. Glancy admitted that there exists forced labour in the Indian States. How can over-worked capitalists like my friend, Mr. Mody, with all this legislation and Factory Inspectors, and the Honourable Member for Industries and Labour keeping an eye on behalf of the workers, how can he compete with industries that are started in these Indian States and may be worked by forced labour, and this Government has no means today to abolish forced labour in the Indian States? This Government has no means to compel these Indian States that they must adopt a 54-hour week. There are other things too. There is no income-tax in many of these States. In India, the employers pay so much income-tax—if the British Indian employer had not to pay income-tax and super-tax to the Honourable the Finance Member, then he would have been able to pay one or two annas more a day to the workers.

An Honourable Member : Question.

Mr. B. Das : He might spend more money to start social welfare work and to start creches for the children of the women workers that work in mills and factories for which Dr. Dalal gave us such a delightful speech and advice which I do not think the present Government of India will ever accept. But we have noted it down in our minds, and when the time comes and when we get that opportunity, we will see that some of those beneficial measures are carried through. But, Sir, the Government of India stand pilloried. The Honourable Member for Industries and Labour was silent in his reply to the particular charge which Mr. Mody levied in his note and also in his speech, but if Government sleep over it today, they will have to face it tomorrow; the problem will certainly have to be faced. Whether there is going to be a Federation or no Federation, the present Government of India or their successor will have to face that problem, and they will have to face that problem, not only for the sake of humanity to keep one uniform standard in the so-called Indian Empire of His Majesty the King-Emperor, but to maintain an equal standard of working conditions for all working classes, both in British India and in Indian India. It is no use penalising the working classes in these Indian States, and if they are penalised, it is the Government of India and the British Government, under the dictates of high political issues, who are parties to penalising the working classes in the Indian States, and the indirect consequence of it is that the employers in India are penalised; they are working at a certain disadvantage. Sir, I do hope that my friend, the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce, will be able to say something as to what steps the Government of India have taken in the matter, whether they are in touch with the administration of these Indian States, and whether they are trying to make the Indian States, the princelings and princes conform to the conditions obtaining in British India, whether the Government of India will make them accept all those labour legislations that exist here, particularly all those Conventions that the Government of India have ratified and to which the I. L. O. is a party.

STATEMENT OF BUSINESS.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable the Leader of the House will make a statement with regard to the list of business for tomorrow.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Leader of the House) : Sir, I ask your permission to make a statement with reference to the List of Business for tomorrow which is already in Honourable Members' hands. The order in which legislative business is shown in that list proceeded on the assumption that the business entered on the original list for the 16th, 17th and 18th July would be disposed of before the House rose today. That assumption has not been realised; and, therefore, Government desire to dispose of the business entered on the original list for the 16th, 17th and 18th before embarking on the new business entered in the list for tomorrow. A revised List of Business will be issued accordingly.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Thursday, the 19th July, 1934.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Thursday, 19th July, 1934.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

IMPORTANT GOVERNMENT BILLS PENDING BEFORE THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

83. Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is it a fact that Government want to pass all their pending important Bills through the present Legislative Assembly in order to avoid the same coming up before the next Assembly ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore : The anxiety of Government to complete, as much as possible, of their pending legislative programme, during the course of the present Session, is inspired, not as the Honourable Member appears to suggest, by any apprehension that the attitude of the next Assembly would be less favourable to that programme than the attitude of the present Assembly, but in part by the fact that many of the items in the pending programme are in themselves urgent and in part by the fact that the postponement of any considerable proportion of the Bills, now pending, would inevitably lead to an undue congestion of the business requiring to be transacted during the opening Sessions of the new Assembly.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I did not follow even one word of what my Honourable friend said. I would request the Honourable Member to repeat the answer.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore : This is the first time that I have been charged in this House with incoherence.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I have not charged the Honourable Member with anything at all. There was noise on this side of the House and I could not hear.

Some Honourable Members : No, no. It was on account of the rains.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore : I have no objection to reading it out again. (Reads out the answer again.)

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Will Government kindly give us a list of all the Bills which they intend to lay before the Assembly for being disposed of in this Session ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore : I am afraid I could not give him the information straight off, but if it will be of any assistance to the House, I shall endeavour to do so at the earliest possible opportunity.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : It will be of very great assistance to us, because we would like to co-operate with Government and with the President to finish them in time so that we may go back as early as possible.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I gratefully accept my Honourable friend's offer of co-operation.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I ask the Honourable Member if some of the contemplated work cannot be postponed till the next Assembly?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : If they could have been postponed we would not have made an attempt to get them through the present Assembly.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if the Government Benches will be ready to sit on Friday and Saturday.

Several Honourable Members : No, no.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : May I know whether any more new Bills are to be introduced?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : As I said just now, I am not in a position to give complete information at the present moment, but I shall endeavour to supply that information to the House at the earliest possible opportunity.

COMPULSORY RETIREMENT OF POSTAL EMPLOYEES HAVING OVER 25 YEARS' SERVICE.

84. *Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : (a) Have Government issued any circular for compulsory retirement of all servants in the Postal Department who have put in 25 years service, irrespective of age?

(b) If the orders issued are not to the effect stated in part (a), will Government be pleased to state the exact terms of such orders?

(c) Are those orders applicable to all grades of services gazetted, ministerial and menial?

(d) Do these orders apply to persons serving in the offices of the Director General and the Postmasters General?

(e) Are these rules framed only for the Postal Department, or for all departments under the Government of India? If these rules have been framed for the Postal Department only, what is the reason for this differentiation?

(f) Are Government aware that the Superintendent of the Postal Department, Fatehgarh (U. P.) Circle, issued orders stating that voluntary retirement of certain persons were accepted, and that he changed those orders into compulsory retirement in consequence of a protest from the servants concerned?

(g) If Government have accepted the principle of compulsory retirement of persons who have put in 25 years' service, will they please state whether the rule also applies to high officials, e.g., Postmasters General, Director General and others? If not, why not?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) No.

(b) A copy of the order is laid on the table.

(c) and (d). Yes.

(e) The orders referred to are applicable to all Departments under the Government of India.

The second part does not arise.

(f) It is a fact that some confusion arose owing to the issue of wrong forms by the Superintendent of Post Offices, Fatehgarh Division, but the mistake was subsequently rectified by the cancellation of the original orders and by the strict application of Government orders on the subject.

(g) Does not arise in view of the reply to part (a).

Order referred to in part (b) of reply to starred question No. 84.

Selection of Individuals for Discharge.

A. Retrenchment of permanent personnel should be effected in the following order, subject to the maintenance to the nearest practicable figure in each category of the ratio between the various communities represented by their present numbers in the category:

(i) by the acceptance of voluntary resignations or retirements;

(ii) by the discharge of officers whose work is considered to be so consistently unsatisfactory that to retain them on the cadre, while others are discharged from it, would be unjustifiable;

(iii) by the discharge of selected men from among the following:

(a) those who have attained 55 years of age,

(b) others with 30 years' service or over,

(iv) by the discharge of selected officers of 25 years' but less than 30 years' service;

(v) by the discharge of selected officers with less than 10 years' service;

(vi) by the discharge of selected officers with 10 years' but less than 25 years' service.

B. Temporary staff should be treated entirely separately from permanent staff, and, if less than the whole temporary staff is to be reduced, the same principles should be followed as in reducing permanent staff.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member if any officers' posts in the Director General's Office, such as, Directors of Post Offices and Deputy Directors and Assistant Directors, have been retrenched?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I must ask for notice of that question.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask whether the rules framed for compulsory retirement are applicable only to the subordinate staff or both to the subordinate staff and the officers?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : No, Sir. They are applicable to all staff, but if the Honourable Member wants definite information on the point, I would ask him to put down a question on the order paper.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Then, they are applicable to the Director General, Postmasters General and everybody else?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : The question of retrenchment?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Compulsory retirement after 25 years' service—that is what I am asking about.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : No, Sir.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : In theory no doubt the rules are applicable alike, but are they in practice applied so ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Presumably orders on the subject are being carried out.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I think the Honourable Member might kindly reply to part (d) of the question.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : The answer to part (d) is, yes.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Then may I know who those persons are ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I cannot give the information offhand. I do not carry all these details in my head. If the Honourable Member will put down a question, I will endeavour to answer it.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to make enquiries on this point, because my information is that this rule is applied only to peons and not to other officers ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I have already said that if he will put down a question, I will answer it.

REFUND OF CUSTOMS DUTIES CHARGED AT INDIAN PORTS ON GOODS ENTERING KASHMIR.

85. Lala Hari Raj Swarup : (a) Is it a fact that for purposes of customs Kashmir State is regarded as a foreign province like Afghanistan and is allowed a complete refund of customs duties charged at Indian ports on goods entering Kashmir ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government please state if Kashmir also will be regarded as a foreign power for purposes of Indian excise duty on sugar and a refund of excise duty allowed to the manufacturers of sugar as on other exports of sugar out of British India ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : (a) As the result of a treaty concluded with Kashmir in 1870, the customs duty collected on goods imported at British Indian ports and transmitted through British India to Kashmir is made over to the Kashmir Durbar.

(b) The treaty does not cover excise duties levied on goods produced in British India, and the Government of India at present see no sufficient reason to grant a concession in respect of the excise duty on sugar.

TRANSFER OF THE RESEARCH INSTITUTE FROM PUSA TO DELHI.

86. Lala Hari Raj Swarup : (a) Is it a fact that the Pusa Research Institute is proposed to be transferred from Pusa to some central place near Delhi ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, what are the reasons that have impelled the Government to make this change ?

(c) What will be the cost of the new institute and what will happen to the old institute at Pusa ?

(d) What are the places that have been considered for the location of the new institute, and which place has been finally selected ?

(e) By what date is it expected to start the new institute ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I would refer the Honourable Member to the answer given to Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh's question No. 69 yesterday.

REDUCTION OF THE RATES OF JAVA SUGAR AT THE INDIAN PORTS.

87. Lala Hari Raj Swarup : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the fact that Java is continuously reducing its rates for sugar at the Indian ports in order to undersell Indian sugar and to dump its own old stocks ?

(b) Is it a fact that the price of Java sugar has now been reduced to about three rupees per maund ex-Indian Port without duty ?

(c) Is it not a fact that in the Sugar Protection Act the Legislature gave power to the Governor General in Council to increase import duty on foreign sugar whenever it was found that Java was selling below four rupees a maund at the Indian ports ? If so, why have Government not taken any action under those provisions as yet in order to protect Indian industry ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhoré : (a) No. The prices of Java White sugar at the ports have remained practically steady during the last six months.

(b) The present price of Java sugar at the ports corresponds to Rs. 3-3-6 per maund ex-duty.

(c) Under section 4 of the Sugar Industry (Protection) Act, 1932, the Governor General in Council is competent to increase the duties imposed by the Act, if he is satisfied that sugar is imported into British India at such a price as is likely to render insufficient the benefits intended to be conferred upon the sugar industry by such duties. The Act imposes no obligation on the Governor General in Council to increase the duty whenever the price of imported sugar at the ports should fall below Rs. 4 per maund ex-duty, though one of the recommendations of the Tariff Board was that an off-setting duty of 8 annas per cwt. should be imposed on the occurrence of such a contingency. The existing margin between the import and excise duties, however, already includes the off-setting duty recommended by the Board.

COST OF MAINTAINING REGULAR OFFICERS OF THE ARMY BORNE BY THE TERRITORIAL BUDGET.

88. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that three regular King's commissioned officers and two regular Indian officers during the period of their secondment for duty with each Provincial Unit draw the pay from the Territorial Budget of that unit for more than nine months in a year even when they are not required for duty with that unit ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, why is the Territorial Budget made to bear the cost of maintaining regular officers of the Army during the period when they are not needed for duty with the Territorial Force ?

(c) Why are not the Territorial officers of suitable qualification employed in place of these regular officers throughout the non-training periods when generally these regular officers are not needed for duty with Indian Territorial Force ?

(d) In view of the liabilities of the officers of the Provincial Units of the Indian Territorial Force to perform military service at any time during the year, are these officers regarded as officers of the Indian Army for the purposes of paragraph 58 of the R. A. I. and are they considered as belonging to a branch of Government service whenever such a term is used for the rest of the officers of the other departments of Government ?

(e) Are not the officers of the Indian Territorial Force considered eligible for appointment to the Regular Units under the new Indianisation scheme ?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : (a) Yes.

(b) The Territorial Force Budget is not separate from, but is part of, the Defence Services Budget. Regular King's Commissioned Officers and Indian Officers are seconded from the regular Army, for duty with the Indian Territorial Force, for periods of three years. During this time the Indian Territorial Force has first call on their services. When their Indian Territorial Force units do not require them, they return for duty to their regular units.

(c) During the non-training period Indian Territorial Force units are not embodied. During this period the work of these units is carried out by the Administrative Commandant who is a Regular King's Commissioned Officer employed with the Indian Territorial Force throughout the whole year, and there are no duties upon which Indian Territorial Force officers could be employed. Opportunities are, however, provided annually for the attachment of a certain number of officers of the Indian Territorial Force to regular units for training in the non-training period.

(d) Regulations for the Army in India, paragraph 58, applies to officers of the regular Army. Officers of the Indian Territorial Force are, however, under certain conditions eligible for appointment to the Cantonment Department. Personnel of the Force, not being members of the regular Army, cannot be regarded as being in Government Service in the sense in which that term is ordinarily used.

(e) Officers of the Indian Territorial Force are not eligible for direct appointment to regular units, but members of the Force are eligible for Indian Army Cadetships at the Indian Military Academy under the same conditions as apply to personnel of the regular Indian Army.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member if Indian officers are being allowed in the Indian Territorial Force and if there are any such officers now ?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : Certainly. There are senior grade officers and junior grade officers. I cannot give the exact number offhand.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I mean Indians.

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : They are all Indians.

INSTALLATION OF A SEISMOGRAPH IN NORTH BIHAR.

89. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do Government propose to instal a seismograph in North Bihar in view of frequent earthquakes in that part of the country ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the information laid on the table of the House on the 7th April, 1934, in reply to part (h) of Mr. Nabakumar Sing Dudhuria's starred question No. 435.

Mr. B. Das : Might I suggest to Government that they should instal a seismograph in Muzaffarpur so that my Honourable friend may get out his bed at night in case there is an earthquake.

CONCESSION IN RAILWAY FREIGHT FOR THE CARRIAGE OF GOODS AND PACKAGES TO EARTHQUAKE AREA.

90. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it proposed to terminate the Railway freight concession for the carriage of goods and packages to earthquake area in the near future ? If so, is it not a fact that during and after the rains, it will be necessary to convey food-grains, building materials, etc., for relief in those areas ?

(b) Do Government propose to continue the Railway concession facilities for some months more ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The freight concessions originally granted terminated on the 30th June, 1934. Government understand that there is no longer any necessity for importing materials for the immediate relief of distress, and that operations have now reached a stage at which they are directed entirely towards the permanent reconstruction of damaged buildings and public works.

(b) The question of allowing certain other freight concessions for the carriage of materials has been raised by the Government of Bihar and Orissa and is now under examination.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : Are Government aware that the relief committees in the Tirhut Division have all applied for the continuance of the concession of the railway freight ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Government of India understood from the Government of Bihar and Orissa that there was no longer any necessity for importing materials for the immediate relief of distress, but the Government of Bihar and Orissa have put forward certain other proposals for the carriage of materials. They are under consideration.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : May we know the gist or the substance of that proposal ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am afraid I do not remember the exact proposals, but if my memory is correct, they are contingent on certain firms making reductions in the prices of materials.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : I would like to inform the Honourable Member that there is a strong feeling against the discontinuance of the concession which was granted at the time of the earthquake and all the Relief Committees in North Bihar have unanimously resolved that the Railway Department should be pressed on that point.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do I understand the Government to say that Mr. Brett, the Relief Commissioner in charge, has agreed to the discontinuance of this railway concession ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : To the best of my recollection, the Government of Bihar and Orissa have agreed to it.

Mr. Bhuput Singh : Will Government consider the question of giving concession to food grains if they are required for relief work ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : That is a hypothetical question.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government aware of the alarming reports in the Press today and yesterday that very serious floods have overtaken Motihari and other parts of North Bihar and that urgent measures of relief are very essential ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have seen those statements in the papers.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do they produce any effect on the Railway Board of the Government of India ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Local Government will certainly draw our attention to the subject, if they consider that there are any special steps that we should take in this matter.

ATTEMPT TO REACH MOUNT KAILASH BY THE INDIAN HIMALAYAN EXPEDITION CLUB, DELHI.

91. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Have Government refused permission to the Indian Himalayan Expedition Club, Delhi, to attempt to reach Mount Kailash on the ground that the Tibetan Government might raise objection ? If so, were the Tibetan authorities consulted in the matter ?

(b) Were the Tibetan Government, or the Nepal Government consulted, and their previous permission obtained, when the British Expedition visited India last time on a similar mission ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a) The Government of Tibet have the strongest objection to visits by foreigners to their territory without their previous permission, and no mountaineering or scientific expedition has ever been allowed by the Government of India to visit Tibet until the express permission of the Tibetan Government had been obtained. It came to the notice of the Government of India that an expedition describing itself in the terms stated in the Honourable Member's question, had advertised its intention to proceed on a mountaineering expedition to the neighbourhood of Mount Kailas and Lake Mansarowar. The equipment of the expedition was stated to include rifles, cinematograph and other scientific apparatus, together with large quantities of tentage, baggage, and transport. As is well known, a number of Hindu pilgrims visit these places annually, and no protest has been made by the Tibetan Government in the case of such bona fide pilgrims. As, however, the advertisements of the proposed Kailas expedition, which were widely published in the Press, were likely to come to the notice of the Tibetan Government, who would conclude that the expedition did not consist of pilgrims, the organiser was asked not to proceed with his plans without first obtaining the Tibetan Government's permission. No application has been received from the organisers for obtaining such permission and no reference has therefore been made to the Tibetan Government.

(b) The Honourable Member is no doubt referring to the British expedition which attempted to climb Mount Everest in 1933. The previous permission of the Tibetan Government was obtained. The Nepal Government were not concerned.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Was the previous sanction of the Tibetan Government obtained with regard to the British expedition which visited these places last year ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : The permission was obtained through the Government of India who applied through the Political Officer, Sikkim.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Why was not the same procedure followed in the case of the Indian expedition which wanted to go on the same errand ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : Exactly the same procedure would have been followed had the organisers of the expedition taken the trouble to ask us to obtain the permission for it ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it not a fact that even before this foreign expedition applied to the Government of India, it was widely advertised in the Press, both here and in England, that such an expedition was coming out from England.

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : That, Sir, is not the case.

Mr. B. Das : Is it not a fact that the Tibetan Government is apprehensive of disasters....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member cannot go into the reasons which actuated the Tibetan Government.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it not a fact that the British expedition came out with the same sort of equipment—rifles and other things—for self-protection ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : I am not aware that any rifles were taken, but I do not see how that affects the matter. In the case of the British expedition, it was definitely a mountaineering expedition and it was acknowledged as such. The permission of the Tibetan Government was obtained for it, but in the case of the expedition, to which the Honourable Member refers, no permission was asked for whatsoever.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : How does the constitution of this Indian expedition differ materially from the constitution of the British expedition for which the Government asked the permission of the Tibetan Government ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : I am afraid I have not made myself quite clear. As I explained, the advertisement of this expedition clearly differentiated it from the ordinary pilgrimage, which could have proceeded without any objection whatsoever.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it not a fact that the equipments were widely advertised for months together and even an aeroplane was also being built, before the Government of India applied to the Tibetan Government for permission?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : I have already stated that this is not the case. The permission of the Tibetan Government was obtained before, so far as I know, any advertisements appeared in the Press.

RESTORATION BY GOVERNMENT OF CONGRESS MONEY AND PROPERTIES.

92. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Will Government kindly make a statement showing separately the amount of money, and the properties, of the Congress forfeited, or taken possession of by them in different provinces, and restored to the Congress after the recent withdrawal of notifications?

(b) How much money, and what properties, are still held by Government, and what action is contemplated in respect of them?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) I regret that I have not the information for which the Honourable Member asks.

(b) No action is contemplated in respect of funds and movable property forfeited to Government. Immovable property which has been taken possession of under the provisions of section 17A of the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908, as amended by Act XXIII of 1932, will be returned when the notification under that section ceases to be in force.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : With regard to part (a), do I understand the Government to say that they are engaged in collecting the information and will lay it on the table?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I think my Honourable friend is under a misapprehension.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member who is to decide in these matters—the Local Governments or the Government of India?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The return is made automatically under the law when the notification is cancelled.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Have any press been returned?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I do not think that presses would come under the description of immovable property.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE NEW HOWRAH BRIDGE.

93. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government in possession of any information to show when the new Howrah Bridge is going to be built, and what steps, if any, are going to be taken to give preference to Indian steel and other materials in its construction?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore : The subject matter of the Honourable Member's question is primarily the concern of the Government of Bengal and the Government of India have no official information on the points raised by the Honourable Member.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know how the materials are to be obtained with regard to the construction of the Howrah Bridge—through the High Commissioner in England or the Indian Stores Department; or how?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bore : My Honourable friend has overlooked the fact that even tenders have not been called for. The question of obtaining materials has not yet arisen.

RELEASE OF SARDAR VALLABHBHAI PATEL.

94. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Has there been any correspondence between the Government of India and the Government of Bombay relating to the release of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Yes.

GARHWALI SOLDIERS IMPRISONED FOR DISOBEYING MILITARY ORDERS IN PESHAWAR.

95. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) How many Garhwali soldiers were convicted and imprisoned in 1930 for disobeying military orders to fire on a peaceful crowd in Peshawar?

(b) How many of them have been released before their term, and why have not the rest of them been released yet?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : (a) and (b). No Garhwali soldiers were convicted and imprisoned for disobeying orders to fire on a peaceful crowd in Peshawar. The Honourable Member presumably has in mind the seventeen Garhwali soldiers who were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment for mutiny and who formed the subject of Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer's starred question No. 1653, dated the 12th December, 1932. In reply to that question it was stated that eight of those soldiers had been released. Five more have since been released under the orders of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief. The cases of the four men still remaining in jail have been considered by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, but in view of the gravity of their offences he has not seen fit to grant any remission.

REFUSAL OF PASSPORT TO REVEREND B. OTTAMA TO ATTEND THE SECOND PAN PACIFIC BUDDHIST CONFERENCE IN TOKIO.

96. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Have Government received any communication on the subject of the refusal of passport to Reverend Ottama, who has been invited to attend the Second Pan Pacific Buddhist Conference in Tokio?

(b) Why has a passport been refused?

(c) Was he refused a passport in 1932 when he intended to proceed to London?

AGE LIMIT FOR COMPETITIVE EXAMINATIONS FOR GOVERNMENT SERVICES.

97. *Sir Cowasji Jehangir : (a) Will Government be pleased to state for which services Government have competitive examinations ?

(b) Is it a fact that some of these examinations have not been held annually due to retrenchment ?

(c) Is it a fact that an age limit is prescribed for candidates for these services ?

(d) Are Government aware of the fact that a number of candidates who would have been within the age-limit had the examinations been held annually will now be debarred from appearing ?

(e) Are Government prepared to amend the rules for all services for which examinations are held, so as to enable such candidates to get a chance of appearing at the next examinations ?

(f) Are Government prepared to make the age-limit rules the same for all services with regard to subordinates in Government service appearing for these examinations ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) A statement is laid on the table.

(b) and (c). Yes.

(d) and (e). I would refer the Honourable Member to my reply to Mr. Maswood Ahmad's starred question No. 16, on the 1st February, 1933. Government see no sufficient reason for amending the rules.

(f) The answer is in the negative. The age limits for each examination are fixed with reference to the requirements of the particular service to which recruitment is to be made.

PILGRIMS TO HEDJAZ BY OVERLAND ROUTE BY MOTOR LORRIES.

98. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) Is it a fact that a number of Hedjaz pilgrims left India during the last Haj season by motor lorries, and if so, were they given pilgrim passports by the Government of India after satisfying themselves that the new route was quite safe and comfortable for the intending pilgrims ?

(b) Is it a fact that pilgrims were refused passports by lorry route in the previous year on the plea that the road was not suitable for lorry traffic, and if so, on what ground were passports issued last season ?

(c) How many pilgrims proceeded to Arabia by lorry traffic during the last season ?

(d) Did they reach their destination in time to perform the duty of pilgrimage fixed for 9th of Zilhij every year ? If not, who is responsible for the loss of expenses and trouble sustained by the Indian pilgrims ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a) The Government of India are aware that certain pilgrims went from Delhi to Mecca, by the overland route, during the last Haj season. Pilgrim passports are issued by Local Governments, all of whom were requested to warn intending pilgrims against using the overland route. This warning was conveyed by the local authorities at Delhi to all pilgrims who applied for passports or passes.

(b) So far as the Government of India are aware, no pilgrims were refused passports either last year or this year, merely because they wished to use the overland route. All pilgrims were, however, warned on both occasions of the difficulties which they were likely to encounter and a similar warning was conveyed by the Deputy Commissioner of Delhi to the Muslim Trading Corporation, Limited, who were undertaking the venture and providing the transport.

(c) Thirty-five.

(d) The responsibility appears to rest upon those who insisted on disregarding the plain warnings given to them by the Government.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE BY THE SHIPPING COMPANY FOR FOOD OF HAJ PILGRIMS.

†99. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : Are Government of India aware that the deck pilgrims generally who proceeded by various steamers to Arabia, are dissatisfied with the arrangements made by the Shipping Company for their food on the voyage to Jeddah and back, and if so, how do Government propose to solve the problem ?

INDIAN PILGRIMS TO HEDJAZ.

100. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : Will Government be pleased to state the figures of Indian pilgrims who proceeded to Hedjaz in each year during the last five years from each of the Indian ports, respectively ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : A statement giving the figures for the five years ending 1932-33 is laid on the table. Figures for the Haj season 1933-34 are not yet available.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 61.

Statement showing the number of Indian pilgrims who proceeded to the Hedjaz from Indian ports during the five years ending 1932-33.

Pilgrim Season.	No. of pilgrims who proceeded to the Hedjaz.
	From Bombay.	From Karachi.	From Calcutta.	Total.
1928-29	10,611	3,368	1,009	14,988
1929-30	7,528	2,957	557	11,042
1930-31	4,341	2,566	370	7,277

1932-33	3,634	2,778	278	6,690

SANCTION GIVEN BY GOVERNMENT TO PILGRIMS TO PROCEED TO HEDJAZ BY MOTOR LORRIES.

101. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : Has the attention of Government been drawn to a note published in the Daily Hamdam, dated the 20th June, 1934, page 3 with regard to the sanction given by Government to Indian pilgrims for proceeding by lorry traffic ? If so, will Government be pleased to lay on the table all the correspondence which passed between them, the Hedjaz and other Governments in this connection upon which sanction was given by the Government of India ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : Yes. As explained in my answer to the Honourable Member's question No. 98, Government gave no sanction to any Indian pilgrims to proceed to the Hedjaz by the overland route ; but, on the other hand, did all they could to dissuade them from doing so. The sanction of the Government of India was neither given nor was necessary for the expedition and the last part of the question does not therefore arise.

BLOCKING OF TRAFFIC ON THE CART ROAD IN SIMLA BY THE POLICE.

102. *Mr. Bhuput Singh : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to an article headed "Simla Road Scandal", "Colonel's passage blocked by policemen", published in the Hindustan Times, dated the 22nd May, 1934 ?

(b) Are Government aware that such things frequently happen on the Cart Road when Their Excellencies are expected to motor down to Kalka ? If so, are Government aware that the blocking of the only road between Kalka and Simla puts the public to a great inconvenience ?

(c) Do Government propose to devise means by which the traffic should not be held up at any one spot on the road more than 20 minutes ? If not, why not ?

(d) Will Government be pleased to state whether the allegations of the writer that this sort of blocking traffic on the road is never allowed by any other Government in the world excepting the Indian Government, is true ? If not, do Government propose to prosecute the writer of the article for making false allegations ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Yes.

(b) Government are aware that some inconvenience is occasionally caused.

(c) It is impossible for the Government to undertake to observe a definite time-limit, but as little inconvenience will be caused as is compatible with effective measures for His Excellency's safety.

(d) Government have no information. The second and third parts of the question do not arise.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member kindly say if he has read the paper which made the allegation referred to in sub-clause (d), namely, that in no other Governments does any such system prevail ? I want to know whether the Honourable Member has actually read that statement in the papers.

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I did read an extract from the paper which is referred to in this question, but, as I have said in sub-clause (d) of my answer, Government have no information whether this particular allegation is correct or not.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : And the Government have remained indifferent and is not going to make any inquiries about that ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Government are content to deal with affairs in India. (Laughter.)

AFFAIRS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR OF CONTRACTS, ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

103. *Mr. Bhuput Singh : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of cases during the last three years in which clerks in the office of the Director of Contracts, Army Headquarters, have at first been condemned in their confidential reports and then in the following year or thereafter, enlogised and promoted or in the first instance praised and subsequently condemned, their promotion and annual increments being all stopped ?

(b) Is it a fact that at the present moment some permanent clerks are under charge sheet with a view to dismissal ? If so, what are the exact charges against them ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state whether the office of the Director of Contracts is the only office in the Government of India where such practices as described in parts (a) and (b) are permitted ? If so, will they be pleased to state the action, if any, they propose to take to ensure the prospects of the Indian clerks ?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : (a) Government are not prepared to give information in regard to entries in the confidential reports of their employees.

As each report is based on work performed during a specific period, it is only natural that, if an individual's efficiency varies from year to year, this fact should be reflected by a corresponding variation in his reports.

(b) No, Sir.

(c) Does not, therefore, arise.

DUTIES OF THE ASSISTANT MASTER GENERAL OF ORDNANCE WHILE ACCOMPANYING THE MASTER GENERAL OF ORDNANCE ON TOUR.

104. *Mr. Bhuput Singh : Will Government please state the duties of the Assistant Master General of Ordnance when the latter accompanies the Master General of Ordnance on tour ?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : The duties of the Assistant Master General of the Ordnance when on tour with the Master General of the Ordnance are such as the latter officer may assign to him.

Mr. Bhuput Singh : If there are no particular duties to be performed, why does this high officer accompany the Master General of the Ordnance ?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : He is not always accompanied by him.

Mr. Bhuput Singh : Is it a fact that other M. G. O's. in previous years did not have any Assistant M. G. O. ?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : The appointment of A. M. G. O. is a quite recent one. At the same time, previous M. G. O's did tour often by themselves ; the other officers of the M. G. O's Branch toured separately.

Mr. Bhuput Singh : Is it a fact that the A. M. G. O.'s function is that of an A.-D.-C. to the M. G. O. ?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : No, Sir.

Mr. Bhuput Singh : Then those duties can be done by a small petty officer ?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : That is quite incorrect, Sir.

TRAVELLING OF POLICE CONSTABLES IN AN INTERMEDIATE CLASS COMPARTMENT BETWEEN KALKA AND SIMLA.

105. *Mr. Bhuput Singh : (a) Will Government please state whether on the 20th April, 1934, three police constables in uniform, with their rifles, were permitted to share, with the general public, inter class accommodation between Kalka and Simla by the train which arrives at Simla at 1-16 P.M. ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) above be in the affirmative, will Government please state whether police constables on duty are entitled to inter class travelling ? If so, why was no reserved accommodation provided for the three constables referred to in part (a) above, and why were the public made to sacrifice comfort on their account ?

(c) Do Government propose to take action against the Kalka Railway staff for such illegal actions of theirs ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Government have no information.

(b) The question of the class in which police constables are entitled to travel is one for Provincial Governments to decide. It is understood that ordinarily police constables on duty are not entitled to accommodation in intermediate class, but, so far as the railway is concerned, if they hold intermediate class tickets they can travel in that class. Reserved accommodation is not provided for constables unless charges for reserved accommodation, as prescribed in the railway's tariff, are paid.

(c) Government cannot see, from the facts in the Honourable Member's question, that there was any illegal action on the part of the railway staff.

Mr. Bhuput Singh : May I inquire from the Honourable Member whether soldiers or police in uniform are generally allowed to accompany ordinary passengers in the train ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : If they hold tickets, they are certainly entitled to travel in that train.

Mr. Bhuput Singh : Having their uniforms and their rifles with them ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am not aware of any rule forbidding intermediate class tickets to be sold to people in uniform.

TRAINING SCHOOL AT CHANDAUSI FOR REFRESHER COURSE OF INDIAN ASSISTANT STATION MASTERS AND COMMERCIAL CLERKS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

106. *Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the articles published in the Mazdoor, dated the 13th September, 4th October, and 28th October, 1933, 8th January, 20th April, and 28th May, 1934, regarding the Training School at Chandausi for Refresher Course of Indian Assistant Station Masters and Commercial clerks of the East Indian Railway ?

(b) Have Government received any representation from the Indian Assistant Station Masters of the East Indian Railway, protesting against the system of training given in that school ? If so, what action has been taken by Government ?

(c) Are Government aware that there is grave discontent among the Indian Assistant Station Masters of the East Indian Railway over the Refresher Course training which is given by the lower subordinate staff possessing no academical qualifications ?

(d) Is it a fact that previously gazetted officers were appointed as instructors in the same school ? If so, why have they been replaced by lower subordinate staff to teach people of their own rank ?

(e) Is it a fact that on no other State Railway such a school for Refresher Course exists ? If so, what is the necessity for maintaining such a school on the East Indian Railway only ?

(f) What is the annual cost of maintaining the School ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Government have seen some of the articles referred to in the question.

(b) An appeal from the Indian Assistant Station Masters of the Dinapur Division was forwarded to the Railway Board by the President of the East Indian Railway Union, Dinapur (Khagoul), but as this is not a recognised union, and as the matter is one that lies within the competence of the Agent, East Indian Railway, no action was taken on the appeal.

(c) As stated in the reply to part (b) above, a copy of an appeal from certain Assistant Station Masters has been received, which indicates that there is discontent to some extent.

(d) Government understand that gazetted officers were not appointed previously to all the Instructors' posts. If more of these posts are now held by non-gazetted staff than was formerly the case it is no doubt due to the fact that the Administration consider it a more suitable and economical arrangement.

(e) The reply to the first part of the question is in the negative ; the latter part does not arise.

(f) About Rs. 73,000 per annum.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : In view of the complaints of this nature which have already been made and are now being made, has the Honourable Member thought fit to inquire from the Agent and make some arrangements to give them such conveniences and to see whether the school is going on very well ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no reason to believe that the school is not going on very well.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I am asking the Honourable Member's Department to inquire from the Agent and then give a reply, after the Government have got the information from the Agent. We will then accept the answer, as I think the House will require to know whether anything is really being done, or the mere assertion is being repeated by Government that they have got no information. May I inquire from the Honourable Member if he is now really going to make some inquiries ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Sir, the main complaint in this question seems to be that gazetted officers were appointed instructors in the school before, and now they have been replaced by lower subordinate staff to teach people of their own rank. Government do not consider that the mere fact that gazetted officers have been replaced by officers of subordinate rank is any justification for their making an inquiry in the matter.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : If the present system of training is to be continued, will Government see their way to employ better teaching staff ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no reason to believe that the present staff are not equal to their duties.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Have the Government got any information with regard to the staff ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No, Sir ; Government see no reason to call for any information.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I would like the Honourable Member to explain why the Government think so ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Next question. Mr. Maswood Ahmad.

JUDGES OF HIGH COURTS AND CHIEF COURTS IN INDIA.

107. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of the permanent and temporary judges of the different high courts and chief courts ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state how many judges in different high courts and chief courts are Muslims ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) and (b). I lay on the table a statement giving the information Statement showing the present strength of the High Courts and the Chief Court, Oudh, and the number of Muslim Judges.

Name.	HIGH COURTS.
	Strength.		Muslim Judges.

JUDGES IN THE BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

108. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the number of the judges in the Bombay High Court ? How many of them are Muslims ?

L186LAD

(b) Are Government aware of the feelings of Muslims of Bombay, including Sindh, against the exclusion of the Muslims from the Bench?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Sir, with your permission, I propose to answer questions Nos. 108 and 109 together. There are ten Judges and one Additional Judge in the Bombay High Court of whom the Additional Judge is a Muslim.

Government are aware that the Muslim community would welcome the appointment of more Muslim Judges. As stated before in this House the main criterion in filling up vacancies is necessarily that of legal qualifications subject to which the claims of Muslims receive careful consideration.

APPOINTMENT OF MUSLIMS AS JUDGES OF HIGH COURTS AND CHIEF COURTS.

†109. Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Are Government aware that many matters affecting the Muslim community come up before Honourable Judges of the High Courts and the Chief Courts?

(b) Are Government aware that the Muslim community is an important community in India?

(c) Do Government propose to make an effort so that in the Bench of any of the High Court or Chief Court Muslim community should not be unrepresented?

WINNER OF THE PRIZE FOR THE DESIGN OF AN IMPROVED BONE-CRUSHER.

110. Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will Government please state when they will declare the winner of the prize of Rs. 3,500 offered by the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research for the design of an improved bone-crusher for which designs were submitted to the Secretary, Imperial Council of Agricultural Research, before the 1st November, 1931?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : A design has been selected and will shortly be put to the actual test of construction and working. The result of the competition will be announced thereafter.

BOOKING OF ACCOMMODATION ON RAILWAYS.

111. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the following paragraph in the Roy's Weekly, dated the 18th June, 1934 (page 8) :

"Recently a very high Indian official of the Railway booked accommodation for his people, and discovered it had been allotted to some one else—perhaps for a consideration. But for the fact that the official disclosed his identity he would have had no relief: the Railway official concerned would find explanation easy."

(b) What are the facts of the case, and are Government aware that non-official Indian passengers are frequently treated in a similar, or worse manner by Railway administrations generally?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 109.

(b) Government have no information regarding the case referred to. They have received no complaints. As regards the second part of the Honourable Member's question, Government have no reason to believe that such incidents are common.

RED SHIRT ORGANISATION IN THE NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

112. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : What is the evidence in possession of Government to show that the Red Shirt organisation in the North-West Frontier Province is engaged in unlawful and subversive activities?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the statements issued by the North-West Frontier Province Government on the 24th and 28th December, 1931 (copies of which were laid on the table in reply to Kunwar Hajee Ismail Khan's question No. 417 on the 22nd February, 1932), which set forth the activities which led to the declaration of these organisations as unlawful.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : Will Government say whether the events that took place in 1931 or 1932 will now in 1934 be construed as unlawful for the purpose of declaring this organisation as an unlawful one?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : There is no question of a new declaration. The declaration has been in force ever since 1931 when the facts detailed in these statements very abundantly justified the action.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Have not the circumstances changed in 1934 in view of the decision of the Congress?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The circumstances may have changed, but the intentions of that organisation were, as I have said already in this House, of a definitely revolutionary character and cannot be permitted.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : May I take it, then, that there has been no allegation against this organisation of an unlawful character recently, say, since the beginning of this year?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : It may be said not to have been in existence since 1931. At any rate, it has not had any lawful existence.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Is there any written declaration of the policy of this organisation?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am not sure what written declarations there may or may not be, but for a considerable period of time its activities were clearly directed to violent revolution.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Are Government in a position to place all their evidence on the table of the House which would go to substantiate their allegation that this particular organisation is connected with revolutionary activities?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : As I have already said, the evidence is contained very fully in these two statements, one of which consisted of three printed pages and the other of 28.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Have these statements been laid on the table of the House?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : They were laid on the table of the House in 1932.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : What evidence is there to connect this organisation, of which the Honourable Member has just now spoken, with the one which is a branch of the Congress organisation? What evidence is there to connect the two?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : It was at the time that it was proclaimed on account of its revolutionary activities described as a branch of the Congress organisation.

MISERIES OF INDIANS REPATRIATED FROM BRITISH GUIANA.

113. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the following public statement of Dr. Lanka Sundaram, regarding the miseries of the 500 Indians repatriated from British Guiana, Fiji, South Africa, and other places, and now living at Matia Burz Camp (Calcutta) :

"I have examined their cooking establishments, and it is terribly distressing to confess that they are subsisting on a few handfuls of rice which they succeed in collecting from the neighbouring people."

(b) Have Government made any enquiry into this and will they please make a statement on the subject and state the action taken in the matter?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) A report has been called for from the Local Government. On receipt of it the Government of India will consider whether any action is called for.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will that report be placed on the table of the House?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I shall consider that suggestion.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Thank you.

APPOINTMENT OF INDIAN EX-CADETS OF THE INDIAN MERCANTILE MARINE TRAINING SHIP "DUFFERIN" AS LEADSMAN APPRENTICES IN THE BENGAL PILOT SERVICE.

114. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that Government received a representation from the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, protesting against the appointment of seven Indian ex-cadets of the Indian Mercantile Marine Training Ship "Dufferin", as leadsmen apprentices in the Bengal Pilot Service, and urging the continuance of the policy of appointing Europeans on the ground of efficiency?

(b) What is the result of the representation?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) The Government of India have received a representation from the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, suggesting that the present method of recruitment to the Bengal Pilot Service should be so changed as to permit of the appointment of a certain percentage of Europeans, until such time as Government and the various interests concerned are assured, that Indianization of the Service is not likely to impair its efficiency.

(b) After careful consideration of the representation, the Government of India have come to the conclusion that there is no sufficient justification at present for making a change in the method of recruitment on the lines suggested by the Chamber.

PLACE OF ORIGIN ON IMPORTED GOODS.

115. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the following Resolution adopted by the Federation of the Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry, held in Delhi, on the 31st March, 1934 :

"The Federation draws the attention of the Government of India to the imports of foreign goods without any marks of origin, similar in form and design to corresponding swadeshi products, and urges that the lacuna in the Merchandise Marks Act be removed by a provision imposing an obligation for the country of origin being distinctly shown on all imported goods."

(b) Are Government aware that a great deal of confusion arises owing to the place of origin not being indicated on imported goods, and do Government propose to take any steps in the matter?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) Yes, Sir.

(b) Government have received representations to that effect and propose taking steps in the near future to review the existing body of commercial legislation in India. The question of the amendment of the Indian Merchandise Marks Act will be a subject of examination in that connection.

ABSENCE OF AN ENCLOSED BATHROOM FOR THIRD CLASS WOMEN PASSENGERS AT PHULERA RAILWAY STATION.

116. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : With reference to my question No. 234 of the 25th February, 1931, regarding the absence of any enclosed bathroom for third class women passengers at Phulera Junction Station (Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway), and the subsequent statement of Government (vide Railway Board's letter to me, No. 903-W., dated the 2nd April, 1931) that "the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway administration agree that the provision of bathing facilities at Phulera Station for third class passengers is necessary. An estimate of cost of erecting two enclosed bathrooms on the platform is, therefore, under preparation", are Government aware that nothing has yet been done in the matter, and the grievance continues as before? What is the estimated cost, and when is the work likely to be taken in hand?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Enquiries are being made from the Railway Administration, and a reply will be laid on the table in due course.

DIVERSION OF TRADE FROM BOMBAY PORT TO KATHIAWAR PORTS.

117. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : What steps have Government taken, or propose to take, in the matter of the diversion of trade from Bombay Port to Kathiawar Ports, and with what result?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I would refer my Honourable friend to the reply which I gave to question No. 56.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I ask whether within the time, when the Honourable Member answers the former question and today, has he come to know that there is any diversion of trade from Karachi to Kathiawar ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : No, Sir ; I have not had time to get answers from Karachi yet.

LOW PLATFORMS ON CERTAIN IMPORTANT STATIONS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

118. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Are Government aware of the considerable inconvenience of the travelling public on account of the very low platforms at such an important junction station as Kiul on the East Indian Railway ?

(b) Do Government propose to take steps to remedy this grievance ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). This suggestion has been brought to the notice of the Agent, East Indian Railway, for consideration when preparing his programme of works.

PROVISION OF A SHED OVER THE PLATFORM AT KALKA.

119. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Are Government aware of the considerable hardship caused (particularly during the summer months and the rains) to the travelling public owing to the absence of a shed over the platform at such an important station as Kalka on the North Western Railway ?

(b) Do Government propose to take steps to remedy this ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). This suggestion has similarly been brought to the notice of the Agent, North Western Railway.

INSTALLATION OF FANS IN INTERMEDIATE AND THIRD CLASS CARRIAGES.

120. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Are Government aware of the sufferings of the Intermediate and Third Class Railway passengers, especially during the summer, for want of electric fans ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to take early steps to instal them in such carriages ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Honourable Member's attention is invited to the reply given by me to Mr. Thampan's question No. 752 on the 7th September, 1933. I may add that the question has been put down for discussion at the next meeting of the Central Advisory Council for Railways.

NON-CARRIAGE OF MAILS BY THE HOWRAH-DELHI-KALKA MAIL.

121. Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : (a) Is it a fact that the train described in the Railway Time Tables as the Howrah-Delhi-Kalka Mail carries no mails ? If so, are Government aware that the word "Mail" misleads the public in posting letters ?

(b) Do Government propose to change the name of the train from "Mail" into "Express" ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) I understand a mail van is run on the up train from Moghal Sarai to Kalka and on the down train from Kalka to Delhi. Government understand that there have been cases where the public has been misled by the nomenclature.

(b) The suggestion is being considered.

PRECLUDING THE RAISING OF A QUESTION DISCUSSED AT THE MEETING OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL COUNCIL FROM BEING RAISED WITHIN A YEAR AFTER SUCH DISCUSSION.

122. Mr. Bhuput Singh (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the fact that one of the members of the Indian Medical Council, recently formed, raised a point of order at the meeting of the Indian Medical Council held on the 12th of June last with regard to Regulation 4 (1) (b) framed by the Governor General in Council and issued by notification on the 27th January, 1934, precluding the raising of a question which had been discussed at the meeting of the Council from being raised within a year after such discussion ?

(b) Is it a fact that the President of the Indian Medical Council ruled that the Regulation 4 (1) (b), mentioned above, does not preclude such discussion ?

(c) Are Government prepared to take any action on this matter ?

(d) Have Government consulted their legal advisers as to the legality of the steps taken by the President at the meeting of the Indian Medical Council held on the 12th of June, 1934 ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b), (c) and (d). The President ruled that the motion in respect of which the point of order was raised was admissible, and, under Regulation 22 of the Regulations referred to by the Honourable Member, he was competent to do so and his decision is final.

FORMATION OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL COUNCIL.

123. Mr. Bhuput Singh (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : (a) Are Government aware that the Indian Medical Council Act (Act XXVII of 1933) has a provision under section 18 of the Act that "the Council may with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council make regulations for the mode of appointment of the Executive Committee" ?

(b) Is it a fact that an executive committee was appointed by the Council at its meeting held on the 9th and 10th of March, 1934 ?

(c) Is it a fact that at the time of such appointment no regulation indicating the mode of appointment of the executive committee as contemplated under section 18 of the Act was framed either by the Indian Medical Council or by the Governor General in Council ?

(d) Have Government taken the opinion of their legal advisers on the point whether the formation of the executive committee before the regulations for its mode of formation had been framed, is in order?

(e) Have Government taken the opinion of their legal advisers as to whether any action taken by such an executive committee regarding the appointment of Inspectors, etc., could be challenged by any person affected by such order?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) The Committee was appointed by the Council at its meeting held on the 9th March, 1934.

(c) Yes.

(d) Under sub-section (2) of section 18 of the Act, a regulation in this behalf might have been made by the Governor General in Council but, in fact, was not made. When the Council proceeded to appoint the Executive Committee no regulation on the subject of the making of appointments to the Executive Committee was in force. The Council, in deciding to proceed in a particular manner, was not framing a regulation under section 18, which is subject to the previous sanction prescribed by the law, but were taking an ad hoc decision as to their mode of procedure in the absence of a regulation. It was open to the Council, in the exercise of its power, to constitute an Executive Committee and, in the absence of a regulation, to take the action which it took in appointing the Committee in a particular manner.

(e) Does not arise.

PROPOSAL TO EXCLUDE THE SECRETARY OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL COUNCIL FROM ACTING AS AN INSPECTOR.

124. *Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact :

(a) that a member of the Indian Medical Council had proposed the exclusion of the Secretary, appointed by the Governor General in Council, from acting as an Inspector in March last at the meeting held on the 12th June, 1934; and

(b) that the members of the Medical Council in the service of Government had been approached, before the meeting held on June 12, by officials to delete their former resolutions passed at the meeting of the 10th March on the same subject?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) The regulation framed by the Council on the subject referred to in (a) was subject to the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council under sub-section (1) of section 18 of the Indian Medical Council Act, 1933. The Council met on the 12th June to consider the request of Government that this particular regulation be reconsidered. The Government have no reason to assume that, in deciding this matter, members of the Council, whether officials or non-officials, did not give their verdict in favour of what they considered to be the right course.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member what were the reasons for the member who recommended the exclusion of the Secretary as is mentioned in part (a)?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I suggest that it be addressed to the member who suggested the exclusion of the Secretary.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Were no reasons given which have come to the notice of the Government?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : What came to the notice of the Government was that the Council by a majority had framed a regulation to the effect that the Secretary should be excluded from the inspectorate. The reasons were not there.

Mr. B. Das : Is it not a fact that all the non-official members of the Executive Committee of the Medical Council say that they were against the appointment of the Secretary as Inspector?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : That is not so.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : What is the general custom in the British Medical Council?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I want notice. I cannot say what the custom is in England.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it not a fact that, while discussing the Medical Council Bill, it was emphasized that none of the members of the Inspection Committee should be a person engaged in teaching in any University and there was no mention about the Secretary there at all?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : If my Honourable friend wishes to suggest that at no stage in the course of the discussion it was said that the Secretary shall not be an Inspector, then I agree with him.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : What I meant was that a person engaged in teaching should not be a member of the inspectorate.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The position according to my recollection is that any one actually engaged in teaching shall not be an Inspector for the purpose of inspecting the college where he teaches.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : What was the proportion of those who were for and against the appointment of the Secretary as an Inspector?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The position is that in March there was a majority in favour of exclusion, and in June there was a majority in favour of inclusion, and I cannot exactly state the mathematical proportion between those for and against.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : What was the reason for revising the opinion later on?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I have already stated that the Governor General in Council, to whose approval the regulation is subject, asked the Council to reconsider the decision.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Can they alter a decision taken in the same year?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I have already answered the question. Not in regard to this particular matter, but in regard to another matter that was raised, the President of the Council, whose decision in regard to questions of interpretation of the regulation is final, decided that the point could be taken into consideration by the Council.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Did the Government consult their legal authority on the matter ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : My Honourable friend may rest assured that Government do not authorise anybody to give an answer without taking all the advice that is necessary.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Was there any rule or regulation allowing the Secretary to be included instead of being excluded ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I do not follow what the Honourable Member means by "rule".

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Rule is a rule, and any dictionary will give the meaning. What I mean to say is, if there was any provision to allow the Secretary to be included instead of being excluded from the Council ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I shall gladly follow my Honourable friend's advice to study the dictionary. In this particular case, the point is that there is no rule made in regard to the Secretary by the Government. A regulation was made by the Council itself excluding the Secretary. That regulation was subject to the previous approval of the Governor General in Council and previous approval of the Governor General in Council to the original regulation excluding the Secretary was not forthcoming.

Mr. B. Das : May I enquire if in the Select Committee the Government representatives did not give an assurance that the Secretary should not be an Inspector ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : No, Sir.

Mr. B. Das : Has not a statement been made in the Press and have Government contradicted it ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I do not remember to have seen any statement in the Press to the effect that Government had given an assurance that the Secretary shall not be an Inspector. Any how, if such a statement has been made and has escaped my notice, I hope that the contradiction which I have now given will receive due publicity.

Mr. Vidya Sagar Pandya : Was due notice given, for the subsequent change, in the agenda ? Was the subject sprung upon the Council subsequently and the alteration made ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : No, Sir. The subject was not sprung upon the Council. The items of the agenda were circulated to the Council in due time.

FORMAL COMPROMISE AGREED TO AT AN INFORMAL MEETING OF THE MEMBERS OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL COUNCIL.

125. Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware that at an informal meeting of the members of the Medical Council with the House a compromise was agreed to but was subsequently rejected ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state the reason why such a compromise was not given effect to ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) No.

(b) Does not arise

APPOINTMENT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE INDIAN MEDICAL COUNCIL.

126. Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : (a) Is it a fact that Mr. Macrae, the Secretary of the Indian Medical Council, was appointed on the recommendation of Sir Norman Walker, the President of the British General Medical Council in England ?

(b) Is it a fact that the provisions of the Indian Medical Council Act contemplate the appointment of a Secretary who could also act as the Treasurer ?

(c) Is it a fact that there is no provision in the Act for the appointment of the Secretary as one of the Inspectors ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) No. The initiative in Mr. Macrae's appointment was taken by the Government of India who acted in the usual way through the High Commissioner for India. The High Commissioner reported that Mr. Macrae was exceptionally qualified for the post of Secretary.

(b) Section 9 (1) (c) of the Act empowers the Council to appoint a Secretary who may also, if deemed expedient, act as Treasurer.

(c) There is no provision in the Act prohibiting the appointment of the Secretary as one of the Inspectors.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Was this gentleman formerly connected with the British Medical Council ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : He was, I understand, one of the Inspectors on behalf of the General Medical Council of Great Britain.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it not a qualification ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Government certainly think so.

RETRENCHMENT IN THE ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

127. Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : (a) With reference to the following clause at page 39 of the pamphlet entitled Some Facts and Figures about Indian Defence, 1933-34, issued by the Army Department :

"On the one hand, without any relaxation of financial control—and the Retrenchment Committee were satisfied after full enquiry that the contract system involved no such relaxation—the financial authorities have found it possible on this account to make considerable reductions in their own staff ; and the decrease of work thereby secured has contributed towards such reductions in the Staff of Army Headquarters as have been found possible in the last few years.....", will Government please state (i) the number of King's commissioned officers employed in each of the following Branches of Army Headquarters before the inquiry of the late retrenchment committee, and (ii) the number of such officers in employment there on the 1st of June, 1934 :

General Staff Branch,

Adjutant General's Branch,

Q. M. G.'s Branch, and

M. G. O.'s Branch ?

(b) Will Government please state whether before writing the pamphlet mentioned at part (a) above, steps were taken to ensure that all unnecessary officers' posts were abolished at Army Headquarters?

(c) Will Government please state which posts of officers in Army Headquarters were abolished as a retrenchment measure, and have since been revived?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : (a)—

(i) General Staff Branch	44
Adjutant General's Branch	32
Quartermaster General's Branch	31
Master General of the Ordnance Branch	30
(ii) General Staff Branch	40
Adjutant General's Branch	28
Quartermaster General's Branch	27
Master General of Ordnance Branch	27

The total reduction is 15 officers.

(b) Unnecessary appointments did not, and do not, exist. The decrease of work referred to in the extract quoted by the Honourable Member enabled some appointments to be dispensed with, while others were reduced owing to the urgent need for economy and their duties distributed between the holders of other appointments.

(c) One first grade staff appointment, in the Adjutant General's Branch, has been revived and another simultaneously abolished.

One third grade staff appointment, in the General Staff Branch, has been revived, but without causing any extra expense owing to economies effected elsewhere.

In addition, the Signal Officer in Chief, whose headquarters were moved from Army Headquarters to Jubbulpore, has been brought back for administrative reasons to Army Headquarters without replacement in the latter place.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know how many of these 15 officers, who have been reduced, are Indians and how many Europeans?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : I think they all must have been British.

SANCTION OF THE POSTS OF AN OFFICER SUPERVISOR AND FIVE TECHNICAL MILITARY CLERKS FOR THE MASTER GENERAL OF THE ORDNANCE BRANCH.

128. Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : (a) Is it a fact that an extra post of officer supervisor and five technical military clerks have been recently sanctioned for the M. G. O. Branch? If so, for what work and for what period has this additional staff been allowed?

(b) Will Government please state the cost of this extra staff?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : (a) One temporary appointment of Officer Supervisor has been sanctioned, for a period of six months, in the first instance, and three, not five appointments of Technical Military Clerks have been sanctioned, two for four years and one for two years. This staff is for the revision of Equipment Regulations, India, and the preparation of a combined indent and ledger form for annual allowances of units. The Honourable Member, in whose name this question is down on the paper, will remember that the Military Accounts Committee recently enquired about this revision the necessity for which was brought to notice by the Military Accountant General in his audit certificate.

(b) The cost of the Officer Supervisor will be Rs. 3,250 and that of the three Technical Clerks approximately Rs. 14,040 per annum.

HOLDING OF A COLONEL'S COMMAND BY A MAJOR-GENERAL.

129. Mr. Bhuput Sing (on behalf of Mr. S. C. Mitra) : (a) Will Government please state the number of posts which are tenable by general officers of the Indian Army, and the number of general officers (other than Medical) who are maintained on the Active List?

(b) Is it a fact that two Major-Generals of the Indian Army are in command of Brigades which are Colonel's appointments? If so, is there any precedent for this in the British Army, i.e., a Major-General holding a Colonel's command?

(c) Is it a fact that the state of affairs stated at part (b) above is due to an overflow in the cadre of general officers of the Indian Army?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : (a) The number of appointments tenable by General Officers of the Indian Army varies between 22 and 23. The sanctioned establishment is 25.

(b) Two Major-Generals of the Indian Army are commanding Brigades at present. One of them has only recently been promoted to that rank and will vacate his command on the 4th August, 1934, in accordance with the rule under which an officer is only permitted to continue for three months in the appointment he is holding at the time of notification of his promotion to the rank of Major-General. A similar rule prevails in the British Army. The other is holding one of the three appointments of Brigade Commander in which His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief is authorised, for administrative reasons special to India, to employ a Major-General.

(c) No. The small surplus of the authorised establishment of General Officers of the Indian Army over the actual appointments available for them is designed to provide a margin for selection and to make available officers of appropriate rank to officiate in long leave vacancies in the higher Command and Staff appointments.

DUTIES OF THE ASSISTANT MASTER GENERAL OF ORDNANCE.

130. Mr. Uppi Sahab Bahadur : (a) Is it a fact that in the M. G. O. Branch at Army Headquarters, the incumbent of the post called Assistant Master General of Ordnance, costing about 25,000 rupees per annum, which is classed as a first grade staff appointment, has no regular duties to discharge?

(b) Is it a fact that some duties which had hitherto been performed by the officer supervisor of the Branch, have been transferred to the Assistant Master-General of Ordnance ? If so, will Government please state the duties so transferred ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Assistant Master General of Ordnance is also responsible for the following duties :

Writing office orders ; reading files released by the M. G. O. ; arranging clerical and menial personnel for the Branch Camp Office at Delhi ; visiting the Imperial Bank for cashing office cheques ; dealing with papers of the Simla Gymkhana Club while in office ?

(d) Will Government please state the names of the posts in the G. S., A. G. and Q. M. G. Branches to which identical duties pertaining to those branches are assigned ?

(e) Are Government aware of the prevailing feeling that the duties enumerated above could be easily performed by a clerk drawing pay not more than Rs. 100 per mensem ? If so, are Government prepared to abolish the expensive post of Assistant Master General of Ordnance at the earliest possible moment and relieve the tax-payer of this unnecessary burden ? If not, why not ?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : (a) No.

(b), (c) and (d). The duties of the Assistant Master General of Ordnance are concerned primarily with co-ordination of matters affecting policy, including those relating to mobilisation and preparation for war, in so far as they relate to the Master General of the Ordnance Branch. For reasons of administrative convenience, certain duties formerly performed by an Officer Supervisor have been transferred to the Assistant Master General of Ordnance, but these comprise an insignificant part of his work. In the course of his duties he naturally has, like officers of all Branches at Army Headquarters, to read the files which come to him, but otherwise it is ordinarily no part of his duties to concern himself with any of the matters included in the Honourable Member's list.

(e) No. The other questions consequently do not arise.

APPOINTMENT OF ASSISTANT MASTER GENERAL OF ORDNANCE.

131. *Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : Will Government please state whether the appointment of Assistant Master General of Ordnance exists on the staff of the War Office ?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : No ; the first grade appointment held by the officer of the Master General of Ordnance Department of the War Office who is responsible for the duties corresponding to those performed at Army Headquarters by the Assistant Master General of Ordnance carries a different designation.

COMMUNAL COMPOSITION OF THE STAFF IN THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT, BIHAR AND ORISSA.

132. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Will Government be pleased to furnish a statement showing (i) the number of Bihari Hindus, domiciled Bengalis, Muslims and others in the various gazetted and non-gazetted posts of the Bihar and Orissa Income-tax Department as it stood on the 1st April, 1931, and (ii) the number of Bihari Hindus, domiciled Bengalis, Muslims and others recruited for appointment after 1st April, 1931, up-to-date ?

(b) Will Government please further state whether it is a fact that two new appointments of clerks have just been made in the Income-tax Department, Bihar and Orissa, and whether one vacancy was filled by a Hindu and the other by a Bengalee and none by a Muslim ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, will Government please state why the claims of the Muslims have been ignored ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : With your permission, Sir, I propose to answer questions Nos. 132, 133, 135, 138 and 139 together. The information is being obtained and will be laid on the table in due course.

OVER-REPRESENTATION OF DOMICILED BENGALIS IN THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT, BIHAR AND ORISSA.

†133. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it a fact that the domiciled Bengalis are over-represented in all grades of Bihar and Orissa Income-tax Service ? If not, what is their exact proportion ?

APPOINTMENT OF OFFICERS IN THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT.

134. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it not a fact that the appointments of all officers below the rank of Commissioner of Income-tax are made on a provincial basis ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The answer is in the affirmative as regards officers appointed by Commissioners of Income-tax under section 5 (4) of the Income-tax Act.

PREPONDERANCE OF ONE COMMUNITY IN THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT, BIHAR AND ORISSA.

†135. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it not a fact that the Government of India attach importance to the observance of their instructions regarding the necessity of securing that members of no community should have undue preponderance in the public services ? If so, will Government please state why no steps have been taken to avoid the preponderance of one community in the Income-tax Service, Bihar and Orissa ?

APPOINTMENTS, PROMOTIONS, TRANSFERS, ETC., IN THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT.

136. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Have Government any control in the matters of appointments, departmental promotions, transfers, etc., in the Income-tax Department, and do Government periodically review the orders of Commissioners in these matters ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Under section 5 (4) of the Income-tax Act, Assistant Commissioners and Income-tax Officers are appointed by Commissioners of Income-tax subject to the control of Government, and to this extent, appointments and promotions to these posts are under their control. As regards transfers, they are ordered by the Commissioner of Income-tax concerned and Government do not exercise any control over them. The answer to the last part of the question is in the negative.

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 132.

APPOINTMENT OF A MUSLIM AS AN ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER OF INCOME-TAX IN BIHAR AND ORISSA.

137. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the glaring fact that there is not a single Muslim Assistant Income-tax Commissioner in Bihar and Orissa, and that there is no likelihood of any Muslim becoming one for at least another 25 years, in view of the cadre of the Income-tax Officers being composed of young men recruited during the course of a few years ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, what steps do Government propose to take in order to remove the grievance of the Muslims ?

(c) Are Government, with a view to adjusting the communal inequality, prepared to transfer one of the two Assistant Income-tax Commissioners to other Provinces and secure in his place the services of a Muslim officer ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : (a) It is the case that neither of the two Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax in Bihar and Orissa is a Muslim and that the prospects of a Muslim being promoted to one of these posts, in the near future, are not bright.

(b) But I am afraid that there are no steps that the Government could usefully take in the matter.

(c) Assistant Commissioners are not liable to transfer from one Province to another and it would be in the interests neither of the Department nor of the Muslims of British India as a whole that they should be made so.

TRANSFERS OF ASSISTANT COMMISSIONERS OF INCOME-TAX.

†138. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : Is it a fact that the Income-tax Assistant Commissioners are not transferred from one circle to another and are left in charge of one Circle for almost the whole of their lives unless they get a lift or otherwise quit the service of Government ? If so, why ?

GRIEVANCES OF THE STAFF IN THE INCOME-TAX DEPARTMENT, BIHAR AND ORISSA.

†139. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the series of articles published in the Searchlight, Patna, about the Income-tax Department of Bihar and Orissa ?

(b) Have Government, or the Commissioner of Income-tax, or his Assistants, or any other officer of Government, ever examined the reasons which are creating dissatisfaction and discontent among the staff and among the inhabitants of Bihar and Orissa about the Income-tax Department and about the appointments made in that department ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 133.

(c) Do Government propose to ask the Commissioner of Income-tax Department to receive suggestions from the representatives of the people to examine the grievances mentioned by them and to try to remove their legitimate grievances ?

INSANITARY CONDITION OF THE LAND SITUATED OUTSIDE TURKMAN GATE, DELHI.

140. *Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : With reference to my starred question No. 1245, dated the 1st December, 1933, will Government kindly state :

(i) when the land situated outside Turkman Gate, Delhi, was transferred to New Delhi Municipal Committee and on what terms ; and

(ii) how long it will take to remove dumping rubbish from outside the Turkman Gate and improve the vicinity in general ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (i) The boundaries of the Municipalities of Delhi and New Delhi have not yet been revised so as to include this area within the jurisdiction of the New Delhi Municipal Committee.

(ii) The land is Government nazul land, and work has already commenced on clearing and levelling the area with a view to converting it into a park. It is hoped to complete the process of levelling in about two months' time, and steps to complete the lay out, and plant the area with grass, will be taken in due course.

FARMANS, ETC., OF THE MOGHAL EMPERORS RELATING TO THE GRANT OF LANDS TAKEN BY THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT.

141. *Sir Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state where the records of the Moghal Emperors, including the Farmans relating to the grant of lands, were taken by the British after the deposition of the last Moghal Emperor ? Are these documents open to public and can copies of the same be obtained ? If not, why not ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : With your permission, Sir, I shall reply to questions Nos. 141 and 142 together. Enquiries are being made and the information will be laid on the table of the House in due course.

RECORDS OF GRANTS OF VILLAGES MADE BY THE MOGHAL EMPERORS TO THE SYEDS OF AMROHA IN THE MORADABAD DISTRICT.

†142. *Sir Muhammad Yakub : Will Government be pleased to state if they have got any record of the Moafi (Revenue free) grants of villages made by the Moghal Emperors to the Syeds of Amroha in Moradabad District ? If so, will copies of these documents be available to the Syeds of Amroha ?

CONTROL OF MONEY-LENDING AND RATES OF INTEREST.

143. *Sir Muhammad Yakub : (a) Are Government aware that I moved a resolution in this House on the 17th September, 1931, regarding the control of money-lending and rates of interest, and that replying on behalf of Government, Sir James Crerar, the then Home Member, said :

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 141.

" I should like to assure the Honourable Member that we shall press this upon the attention of the Local Governments as a matter requiring very prompt consideration " ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state what action was then taken by the Local Governments in this connection ?

(c) Has any law on the subject been passed by any Local Government in India ? If not, are Government prepared to press upon the Local Governments the necessity of taking prompt action in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c). Acts have been passed in Bengal, Central Provinces and Assam, limiting the rates of interest. In Madras, Bombay, the United Provinces and the Punjab, Bills dealing with the subject have been introduced either by Government or non-officials. The matter was also discussed at the Provincial Economic Conference held at Delhi in April last, and I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to paragraph 5 of the Finance Department Resolution No. F-16 (1)-F-34, dated the 5th May, 1934 (published in the Gazette of India of the same date), from which it will be seen that the general view of the Conference was that the diversity of the conditions of the agricultural classes in India was so great, both in respect of land tenures and general economic status, that any legislative measures to afford relief must be primarily provincial. It will also be seen from the Resolution referred to that Local Governments are fully alive to the necessity of taking steps to meet the situation. I shall, however, forward a copy of the question and this answer to them.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : Have the Government of Bihar and Orissa done anything in that direction ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I do not think any action has been taken so far in Bihar and Orissa, as far as I remember.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : May I know whether they said anything in the last Economic Conference as to whether they were going to take any steps in that direction ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am afraid I shall have to ask for notice of that question.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Should not this question be left to the Local Governments and their local Legislative Councils ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : That, Sir, undoubtedly was the feeling in the Provincial Economic Conference.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Will Government be pleased to circulate the proceedings of the Economic Conference among the Members of the Legislature ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I think, Sir, it is a document of which the Finance Department is in charge, and perhaps my Honourable colleague would consider the suggestion.

PROVISION OF A BATH ROOM IN THE FIRST AND SECOND CLASS WAITING ROOM AT BAREILLY JUNCTION, ROHILKUND AND KUMAON RAILWAY.

144. Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : (a) Are Government aware that there is no bathing place in the First and Second Class Waiting Room at the Bareilly Junction Station of the Rohilkund-Kumaon Railway ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to remove the inconvenience of the First and Second Class passengers by providing a separate bath-room for bathing purposes ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information, but I have sent a copy of the question to the Agent of the Rohilkund and Kumaon Railway for such action as he may consider necessary.

EXPIRY OF THE TERM OF AGREEMENT OF THE DEHRA DUN HARDWAR RAILWAY.

145. Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : (a) Will Government please state when the term of the agreement of Dehra-Dun Hardwar Company-managed Railway will expire ?

(b) Was there any condition made with the Company to construct a Rope Aerial Railway for carrying the goods to Mussoorie Hills ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) be in the affirmative, will Government kindly inform this House what action so far has been taken by the Company to construct the Rope Aerial Railway for Mussoorie ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) 31st December, 1939, or, if not terminated then, at intervals of 10 years thereafter.

(b) There is no such provision in the contract entered into with the Company.

(c) Does not arise.

PILGRIMS TO HEDJAZ FROM EACH PROVINCE OF INDIA.

146. Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : (a) What was the total number of pilgrims to Hedjaz from each Province of India during the last Haj season ?

(b) How many of them died abroad and how many returned to India ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (b). The information is not at present available. It will be laid on the table of the House, when received.

PILGRIMS TO HEDJAZ BY OVERLAND ROUTE BY MOTOR LORRIES.

147. Kunwar Hajee Ismail Ali Khan : (a) Is it a fact that a large number of pilgrims to Hedjaz went from India by overland route by motor lorries ?

(b) Have they performed the Haj safely and have they returned to India without any trouble ?

(c) What was the number of those pilgrims who went by motor lorries ?

(d) Who conducted the tour for them, and at what cost ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a) and (c). The number of pilgrims who went by this route is reported to be thirty-five.

(b) The pilgrims arrived in Mecca two or three days too late for the pilgrimage having lost their way at least once. Out of 35 pilgrims who went by this route, 18 returned by lorry, 6 remained in the Hedjaz and 11 arranged to return to India by sea.

(d) The Muslim Trading Corporation, Limited, Daryaganj, Delhi. It is reported that the charge for the journey from Delhi to Mecca and back was fixed at Rs. 500 per head.

SAFEGUARDING OF THE INTERESTS OF INDIANS IN ZANZIBAR.

148. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that the Government of Zanzibar have passed, or are about to pass, two Bills which are calculated to prevent Indians from acquiring land, and which deprive them of their ancestral rights of dealing in the only important local industry there, viz., cloves?

(b) Are Government aware that there are about fifteen thousand Indians in that territory, and that they have invested about eight million rupees as capital in business?

(c) What steps have Government taken in the matter to safeguard the rights of Indians?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a), (b) and (c). The Honourable Member is presumably referring to recent legislation in Zanzibar regarding which telegraphic representations have been received by the Government of India from the Indian National Association of Zanzibar and also from certain public bodies in this country. The Government of India had no previous notice that such legislation was before the Zanzibar Legislative Council, nor were the texts of the various decrees before them when the first representations were received. Government could, therefore, only suggest postponement of legislation. This request was not successful. The text of five of these decrees, as published in the Zanzibar Gazette, has recently become available, and certain representations have already been made to the Secretary of State. On receipt of the detailed comments of the Indian community in Zanzibar on the measures, further representations will be made, if necessary. I can give the Honourable Member the assurance that the Government of India will do whatever lies in their power to safeguard legitimate Indian interests in Zanzibar.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if up to this time Indians in Zanzibar have acquired land or was there any restriction in acquiring it?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Until these decrees were passed, transfers of land between the Arabs and the natives on the one hand and Indians on the other were not subject to any restriction or regulation. The recent decree on the subject makes such transfers subject to the previous approval of the Resident of Zanzibar.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I take it that in fact they do possess land?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Certainly, Sir.

Mr. B. Das : Had Government appointed a Trade Commissioner at Mombassa, would it not have been easy for Government to get information in right time and take adequate steps?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : That, Sir, is a hypothetical question as to what would have happened if something else had happened.

Mr. B. Das : May I ask the Leader of the House what are the causes of the delay in the appointment of the Trade Commissioner at Mombassa which was settled four or five years ago?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : Does that arise out of this question, Sir?

FORCIBLE ABDUCTION OF ONE SRIMATI GORI FROM DHAN JOLANGRA IN MALKAND AGENCY.

149. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that a lady, named Srimati Gori, wife of Lala Dina Nath of Mardan, was forcibly abducted from Dhau Jolangra, in Malkand Agency? Will Government kindly make a statement of the case, and state the steps taken to prevent recurrence of such outrages?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : Information is being obtained from the Local Government and will be given to the House as soon as it is received.

Pandit Satyendra Nath Sen : Are Government aware that cases of abduction have become very frequent during the last few years?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : I gather from the Press that there have been a certain number of cases of abduction in British India, but I do not think that arises out of this question which refers to tribal area.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Have Government ever inquired into the causes of these abductions now-a-days?

TURKISH SOLDIERS IMPRISONED IN INDIA.

150. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it a fact that about 1,000 Turkish soldiers and others are still imprisoned in India ever since the repatriation of Turkish prisoners on the cessation of hostilities in 1919? If so, under what circumstances have such Turkish prisoners continued to be kept in India, and what is being done to repatriate them?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : The answer to the first question is in the negative and therefore the other questions do not arise.

FRESH EXPEDITIONARY PARTY FROM ENGLAND FOR THE "CONQUEST" OF MOUNT EVEREST.

151. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it intended to bring out a fresh expeditionary party from England for the "conquest" of Mount Everest? If so, have the Governments of Tibet and Nepal been consulted, or will their agreement be obtained?

(b) Have Government given their sanction?

(c) Is it a fact that an Indian party, with the same object, was refused permission by Government? If so, why?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a) There is no such proposal at present.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) If the Honourable Member is referring to the proposed expedition by an Indian Club to the neighbourhood of Mount Kailas in Tibet, he is referred to the answer given to his starred question No. 91.

RELEASE OF KHAN ABDUL GHAFFAR KHAN.

152. *Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : (a) Is it a fact that Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan, has lost weight in Hazaribagh Jail on account of his being provided with an unsuitable cook ?

(b) How much has he lost in weight ?

(c) Do Government propose to release him ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) and (b). Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan has lost 21 pounds in weight since his incarceration in December, 1931 ; but this is not attributed to any unsuitable cooking of his food. The medical reports show that he has kept and is keeping good health.

(c) I would refer the Honourable Member to the answer given by me to Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad's question No. 701 on the 6th September, 1933.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Do I understand Government to say that there has been no change in the policy of Government with regard to the release of Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan since that answer was given last year ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Yes, Sir ; the answer given was that he will be released when Government are satisfied that his detention is no longer essential in the public interest.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : How long will it take Government to be satisfied on this point ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : That depends on conditions generally. But I must make it clear that the Government of the North-West Frontier Province, in view of the activities of Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan when he was at liberty, cannot at present foresee the time when it will be safe to allow him to return to the Province.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Then do I understand Government to say that the Local Government of the North-West Frontier Province are at present opposed to the release of this gentleman ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Yes, Sir, the Honourable Member may certainly assume that.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : Is it a fact that Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan was convicted of an offence committed in prosecution of the Civil Disobedience Movement and not on account of any crime involving violence ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : He is held at present not as a result of any conviction, but under Regulation III, and he is so held in respect of activities which very definitely included incitements to violence.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member please say if Government are prepared, until he is released, to take care that he does not lose weight ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : Weight, Sir, is not the only consideration in keeping good health. (Laughter.)

Maulvi Sayyid Murtuza Saheb Bahadur : Is it not a fact that, under the leadership of Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan, the Pathan people proved true to the creed of non-violence, and, if that is a fact, does it not follow that he richly deserves release ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir ; I must differ entirely from my Honourable friend. They were not at all true to the creed of non-violence, and various very violent acts were committed.

STATEMENTS LAID ON THE TABLE.

Information promised in reply to starred question No. 819, asked by Mr. S. C. Mitra on the 21st April, 1934.

CORRESPONDENCE WITH HIS RELATIONS OF MR. SATIN SEN, A STATE PRISONER IN THE CAMPBELLPUR JAIL.

(a) and (b). Mr. Satin Sen is allowed correspondence according to the ordinary rules in force, but he himself appears to be reluctant to correspond with his relatives.

(c) No application for an interview has been received by the Jail Superintendent from his brother.

Information promised in reply to part (b) of starred question No. 297 asked by Mr. Muhammad Anwar-ul-Azim on the 26th February, 1934.

DESPATCH OF BOOKS TO OVERSEAS STATIONS BY THE CENTRAL PUBLICATION BRANCH.

The expenditure incurred during the eight months from the 1st June, 1933, to the 31st January, 1934, on account of the freight and other incidental charges in sending consignments of books from the Delhi office of the Central Publication Branch to the office of the Deputy Controller, Stationery, Calcutta, was Rs. 1,384.

Information promised in reply to Mr. S. G. Jog's unstarred question No. 308 asked on the 4th April, 1934.

PROMOTION TO THE POST OF INSPECTOR IN THE DELHI HEAD POST OFFICE.

(a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) The posts of Town Inspectors on conversion from the selection-grade rate of pay to the time-scale rate of pay are filled by selection from amongst the ordinary time-scale clerks belonging to the respective first-class head post office group. The passing of the Lower Selection Grade or Accountants Examination or the possession of degrees in Science or Law are not prescribed qualifications for appointment to the post of Town Inspectors. No question of supersession arises as Town Inspectors continue to retain their position in the seniority list of time-scale clerks.

(d) No. I may add that in making appointments of the kind no question of communal representation arises.

(e) Some officials appealed to the Postmaster-General, Punjab, who rejected the appeals for the reason mentioned by the Honourable Member. All such appellants were senior to the clerks against whose appointment as Town Inspectors they appealed. Even though such appellants were senior in the gradation list it does not follow that they were necessarily better experienced or better qualified for the appointments in question. The first-class postmaster is the proper judge of the suitability of any official for the appointment.

(f) Government have no information nor do they propose to collect it, as they understand that the posts of Town Inspectors in the ordinary time-scale of pay are being filled in accordance with the orders issued by them in 1933.

(g) Does not arise in view of the replies to parts (c), (d) and (f) above.

Information promised in reply to unstarred question No. 291, asked by Mr. Sitakanta Mahapatra on the 3rd April, 1934.

REALISATION OF INCOME-TAX DEMANDS BY CERTIFICATES OR DISTRESS WARRANTS IN ORISSA.

Figures pertaining to years prior to 1930-31 are not available. Those for the years 1930-31, 1931-32 and 1932-33 are embodied in the following two statements (A) and (B) :

A

Statement showing the number of cases in which Income-tax Demands were realised by certificates or distress warrants in each district in Orissa and in the Ganjam District during the period 1930-31 to 1932-33 and the amount of income-tax revenue realised by such processes each year :—

DEVELOPMENT OF THE SOURCES OF SALT SUPPLY IN ORISSA.

The Government of Bihar and Orissa have undertaken to consider carefully every application for permission to manufacture salt in Orissa. One of the applications received is for permission to manufacture Karkatch salt at Gurubai in the Puri District, and the Local Government have undertaken to provide temporary buildings at their own cost for the preventive staff and to bear the cost of that staff for the first three years. Another application for permission to manufacture salt for the Bengal market on the South Orissa coast has not been followed up by the applicants. Arrangements for taking brine readings, as recommended in Mr. Pitt's report, have been made by the Local Government.

Information promised in reply to unstarred question No. 270 asked by Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad on the 3rd April, 1934.

COMMUNAL COMPOSITION OF THE STAFF OF THE NEW DELHI MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE.

(a) The information is as follows:—

	Hindus.	Muslims.	Sikhs.	Total.
Secretary's Office	26	12	4	42
Office of the Electric and Water Works Engineer.	13	3	2	18
Health Office	2	1	..	3
Total	41	16	6	63

(b) Hindus	..	..	..	40
Muslims	..	..	..	16
Sikhs	..	..	..	5

Since the 1st April, 1933, two appointments (one Hindu and one Sikh) have been made.

(c) (i)	..	..	..	7
(ii)	..	..	..	9
(iii)	..	..	..	2
(iv)	..	..	..	2
(v)	..	..	..	2
(vi)	..	..	..	4

Of these 17 are Hindus, 8 are Muslims and one is a Sikh.

(d) The four persons referred to in part (c) (iv) and (v) are qualified as follows. The Sanitary Inspector is a qualified Sanitary Surveyor of the Royal Sanitary Institute of London, and the Sanitary Sub-Inspector has 20 years' practical experience of sanitary and conservancy work. One Vaccinator has recognised Sanitary Inspector's qualifications from Lahore, and the other is a qualified compounder. The answer to the second part of the question is in the negative, and the remaining portions do not arise.

(e) In the Electrical and Water Works Section Muslim representation is inadequate. It is proposed to rectify the deficiency as vacancies occur.

(f) The superior staff to which the Honourable Member presumably refers consists of the Secretary, the Electrical Engineer, and the Assistant Electrical Engineer. The Secretary is an Indian Christian whose services have been secured for the Committee by the local administration from the Punjab Government. He was specially selected for his responsible post in view of his qualifications and past experience. The Electrical Engineer and the Assistant Electrical Engineer are Hindus, and were formerly Government servants. In common with the rest of the staff of the Electrical Department, they were transferred as a unit to the Municipality when the responsibility for electric supply was handed over to the Municipal Committee. The Honourable Member will appreciate that the question of recruiting successors to these three officers will not arise until they relinquish their present posts. When this happens it is hoped that the Municipality will make fresh recruitment. They will pay due regard to the claims of qualified Muslims.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST BRITISH OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS.

(e) Government are not prepared to admit that there is any long standing nuisance as suggested by the Honourable Member. It has been ascertained that in recent years only two cases have occurred on the larger railways in which conduct of the nature indicated in the question has been alleged. For these reasons and because Garrison Military Police are posted for platform duty at important cantonment stations, Government see no need for any special action.

I may mention that I enquired personally into one of the two incidents referred to at the Honourable Member's request and found that the officer who was involved had behaved correctly and that the matter had been amicably settled.

Information promised in reply to unstarred question No. 69, asked by Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin on the 19th February, 1934.

APPEALS DETAINED BY THE EXECUTIVE OFFICER, AMBALA CANTONMENT BOARD.

(a) The answer is in the negative. The exact position is that the original appeal, which was submitted on the 19th January, 1934, was kept till the Board meeting on the 31st January, 1934. It was forwarded to the Northern Command, on the 5th February, 1934, with the replies of the Cantonment Board to the points raised therein. It is understood that in order to avoid delay provisional replies approved by the President, Ambala Cantonment Board, together with a copy of the appeal were forwarded to the Northern Command in advance.

(b) and (c). Do not arise.

Information promised in reply to unstarred question No. 70, asked by Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin on the 19th February, 1934.

ALLEGED INFLUENCE OF THE NORTHERN COMMAND ON THE EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF THE AMBALA CANTONMENT BOARD.

(a) The following is the exact statement which was made in the replies sent to the Northern Command:

"The Executive Officer is doing his duty. He is under the influence of General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Northern Command, whose orders he is endeavouring to carry out under difficult conditions."

(b) Under section 24 of the Cantonments Act, 1924, the Executive Officer is responsible for carrying out all the duties imposed upon him by or under the Act, and consequently he is bound to carry out the orders of the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief the Command, under the Act, without unnecessary delay. Such orders do not always require to be confirmed by the Board before they are carried out.

(c) to (e). In part (c) the Honourable Member is apparently referring to the fact that the Executive Officer was desired by the Officer Commanding-in-Chief the Command to inform, and did inform, the persons directly concerned, first that, if the building applications submitted by them were sanctioned by the Cantonment Authority, the Officer Commanding-in-Chief the Command would use his powers under clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 52 of the Cantonments Act to suspend the sanction, and secondly, on the building applications being sanctioned by the Cantonment Authority, that the Officer Commanding-in-Chief the Command had so used those powers. The Government of India consider that the action taken was properly taken and that the Executive officer would have failed in his duty if he had acted otherwise. They therefore see no justification for the suggestions conveyed in part (d) and the first part of part (e), and they do not consider that occasion for the issue of any instructions by them has arisen.

SELECTION OF SENIOR GRADE OFFICERS FROM THE BOMBAY GRENADIERS, AJMER.

642. (a) Yes.

(b) Yes. Although three of the eight candidates were considered suitable for Senior Grade Commissions, it was decided not to select more than one on this occasion in order to avoid having several officers in the same battalion of exactly the same seniority.

(c), (d), (f) and (g). Government are not prepared to make public the proceedings of the Unit Advisory Committee which are of a confidential nature. They are, however, satisfied that the Committee exercised its discretion as regards selection correctly and in accordance with paragraph 5 of Appendix VII to the Regulations for the Indian Territorial Force, 1930.

RULES FOR THE RECRUITMENT AND TRAINING OF SUBORDINATE STAFF ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

1326. (a) and (b). The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that the rules have not been published in the East Indian Railway Weekly Gazette as this was not considered necessary and that the rules have not been withheld from the staff, a sufficient number of copies of these rules having been supplied to all offices for reference purposes.

(c) These rules govern the promotion of subordinates to officiating appointments.

(d) Does not arise.

(e) Yes.

(f) Assistant Train Examiners and Train Examiners are normally appointed from among the technically trained apprentices who are recruited and trained in accordance with the rules for the recruitment and training of Apprentice Mechanics and Trade Apprentices in the Mechanical workshops of State-managed Railways. A separate circular on the subject was issued by the Agent in April, 1933, and circulated to the departments concerned.

(g) Yes.

(h) Yes.

(i) The scales of pay of the posts in question are as follows:

Gunner Guards.—

Rs. 85—10—125 (East Indian Railway Company).

Rs. 85—10—115 (State Railway).

Pilot Guards.—

Rs. 130—10—210 (East Indian Railway Company).

Rs. 120—10—180 (State Railway).

Guards, Grade I.—

Rs. 105—5—110—10—210 (East Indian Railway Company).

Rs. 90—10—180 (State Railway).

Guards, Grade II.—

Rs. 45—5—100 (East Indian Railway Company).

Rs. 30—5—70 (State Railway).

(j) (i). Direct recruitment of guards is made in accordance with rule 17 of the rules for the recruitment and training of subordinate staff.

L186LAD

(ii) Gunner Guards are in a different category, their channel of promotion being to the post of Pilot Guards whose maximum pay equals that of ordinary guards and both Pilot Guards and ordinary guards are eligible for promotion to Assistant Yard Master and Assistant Station Master.

(k) Does not arise.

RULES FOR THE RECRUITMENT AND TRAINING OF SUBORDINATE STAFF ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

1327. (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) The posts of Relieving Guards are filled by qualified men from the ordinary grade I Guards' and Pilot Guards' lists.

(d) It is not the practice to promote Grade II guards or gunner guards to the post of relieving guards. Their normal channels of promotion are from Grade II to Grade I and pilot guards respectively.

(e) Yes.

(f) No. No other subordinates below the grades specified in part (c) of the reply are normally considered suitable for direct promotion to Relieving Guard.

RULES FOR THE RECRUITMENT AND TRAINING OF SUBORDINATE STAFF ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

1328. (a) Yes.

(b) The Agent reports that the normal avenue of promotions of the Ticket Checking Branch staff is as follows:

POSTS OF TICKET COLLECTORS AND TRAVELLING TICKET INSPECTORS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports as follows:

(a), (b) and (c). Yes.

(c) It was first introduced as an experimental measure for six months.

(d) The sanction for the crew system was extended from time to time but the periods of extensions varied.

(f) No. Some of the grades in the crew system were higher than some of the grades in the old ticket collecting and (travelling) examining system and vice-versa.

(g) and (h). On the abolition of the crew system on the 1st June, 1931, most of the crew staff were absorbed in the new system and only those who were considered unsuitable were discharged.

(i) On the introduction of the new system, all the men were brought on a common seniority list irrespective of the source of recruitment. Relative seniority was determined by the pay drawn and where pay was equal, by the length of service.

PAY, ETC., GRANTED TO THE OLD OUDH AND ROHILKUND RAILWAY STAFF ON PROMOTION.

The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports as follows :

(a) and (b). It is not a fact that old Oudh and Rohilkund Railway employees who are serving on the old East Indian Railway section are forced to accept the East Indian Railway grades on promotion. In 1928, the revised co-ordinated scales of pay were introduced for subordinate staff and old Oudh and Rohilkund Railway and East Indian Railway staff were given the option to elect these scales. With the exception of such of the old staff who elected the revised scales of pay and who are therefore governed by them the position in respect of old Oudh and Rohilkund or East Indian Railway staff is briefly stated below :

If an Oudh and Rohilkund Railway employee is transferred to the old East Indian Railway area, the old Oudh and Rohilkund or the equivalent East Indian Railway scale whichever is better automatically becomes his scale of pay.

The same principle applies to men of the old East Indian Railway when transferred to any station on the original Oudh and Rohilkund Railway area.

AMALGAMATION OF THE OUDH AND ROHILKUND RAILWAY WITH THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

(b) and (c). Government are informed that except in respect of educational assistance, the staff appointed between the 1st January and 30th June, 1925, have been treated in the same way as staff appointed earlier, but in so far as educational assistance is concerned, staff appointed prior to the 1st January, 1925, are governed by the old Oudh and Rohilkund Railway rules as notified in Gazette, No. 4 of 1921 and staff appointed to the old Oudh and Rohilkund Railway between the 1st January and 30th June, 1925, have been governed by the East Indian Railway rules.

(d) Staff appointed on and after the 1st February, 1929, and also those appointed prior to that date who have elected to come under the new rules for educational assistance published in paragraph 1134 of East Indian Railway Gazette No. 41 of 1930, are governed by the said rules.

(e) and (f). It was recently brought to the notice of the Railway Board that the East Indian Railway rules regarding educational assistance had been applied to staff appointed on the old Oudh and Rohilkund Railway between the 1st January and the 30th June, 1925, and that this had caused hardship. It has been decided that such staff should be allowed to remain under the old Oudh and Rohilkund Railway rules.

- (a) Yes.
- (c) Yes.
- (d) Yes.
- (e) Yes. The previous clerk in charge of the Copying Branch was a Grade IV stenographer.

(f) and (h). The Agent, North Western Railway, reports that it was decided in December, 1931, to hold in abeyance the post of Grade IV stenographer in charge of the Copying Branch as a measure of retrenchment. The Stenographer, Grade III, who was subhead of the Copying Branch and happened to be a Muslim, was ordered to look after that Branch in addition to his duties as a stenographer to the Divisional Transportation Officer.

(g) Yes, but it has since been found to be incorrect.

NON-RECOGNITION OF SERVICES RENDERED DURING THE GREAT WAR BY THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY EMPLOYEES.

The reply is in the negative. The East Indian Railway was not a State-managed Railway when the Home Department Resolutions Nos. 1099 and 2165, dated the 8th August, 1919, and the 15th September, 1921, respectively, were issued and forwarded to the State-managed Railways for information and guidance. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that employees who proceeded on war service with the approval of the Railway Administration have been allowed to count their war service for the purposes of retiring gratuity, seniority and increments on the East Indian Railway. Cases of non-railway employees, who had rendered war service were dealt with on their merits by the late East Indian Railway Company.

INTRODUCTION OF NEW CONDITIONS OF SERVICE IN THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY PRESS.

(a) to (d). Yes.

(e) The staff of the press were divided into five categories.

(f) No. In accordance with the instructions in Railway Board's telegram No. 229-E.G., dated the 20th December, 1930, industrial press employees of the Eastern Bengal Railway were given 20 paid holidays to conform to the number of holidays given to corresponding employees in that Railway's workshops.

(g) Yes.

(h) and (i). The conditions of service remained intact except that the number of holidays for Press Industrial Staff was made to conform to the number allowed to the East Indian Railway staff. The conditions on which the staff were to be transferred, including the above mentioned exception, were intimated to them by a notice issued by the Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, in July, 1933, before the transfer actually took place.

(j) No. Readers, copy-holders, time-keepers, etc., were in category II prior to the amalgamation whereas industrial superior establishment were in category IV (a).

(k) Readers, copy-holders and time-keepers are allowed shop paid holidays on the East Indian Railway and such other holidays as may be declared as closed holidays by the Agent, East Indian Railway.

DISCHARGE AND RE-INSTATEMENT OF EMPLOYEES ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

(a) to (c). The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that the number of non-gazetted employees discharged, dismissed, re-instated and re-appointed in the Dinapur, Allahabad, Asansol and Lucknow Divisions of the East Indian Railway during the year 1932 and 1933, excluding staff discharged on medical grounds or on account of retrenchment, is shown in the enclosed statement.

The figures of staff discharged on the Asansol Division are high as compared to similar figures in other divisions owing to a large number of staff absconding and overstaying leave, which is peculiar to the coal-fields area.

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

(a) Recommendation No. XII of the War Pensions Committee deals with cases of discharge on medical grounds for disabilities contracted on field service or attributable to such service. A discharge certificate of the kind referred to in the question cannot be regarded as sufficient proof of invalidment from the service by a medical board for a disability (wound, injury or illness) of the nature mentioned above.

(b) The fact that a man has been declared medically unfit for active service does not mean that he must have been invalided from the service on account of a physical disability contracted on, or attributable to, military service in a field, foreign or ordinary peace service area. Yet he must satisfy the latter condition to be eligible for a disability pension.

(c) No.

(d) The nature of proof required is that usually contained in invaliding rolls, hospital records, medical history sheets and documents, and other service documents showing details of field or foreign service and of periods of leave during such service due to illness, etc.

(e) I am not clear as to the object of this part of the question, but if the Honourable Member wishes to know whether the mere fact that the case was disposed of before the War Pensions Committee sat precludes its being reconsidered, the answer is, in the negative. Before it can be reconsidered, however, the fresh facts referred to in the note to Recommendation No. XXI must be proved by the claimant.

(f) The medical history sheets and original Medical Board proceedings are not now available. It is, however, definitely established that the reservist was invalided in 1915 with a service gratuity at a time when a great many other reservists were also discharged on medical grounds as too old for further service, and in addition a medical board held in 1930 certified that he was not then suffering from a disability attributable to military service. In face of these facts Government are unable to grant him a disability pension.

Information promised in reply to unstarred questions Nos. 78 and 80 asked by Mr. S. G. Jog on the 21st February, 1934.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE WAR PENSIONS COMMITTEE.

78. (a) and (c). The 20th April, 1932, was the date of the Indian Officer's application for the revision of his pension. It was fixed as the date from which the revised rate of pension should be granted after full consideration of the merits of the case.

(b) No.

RELATED CLAIMS FOR FAMILY WAR PENSIONS.

80. (a) and (c). Each case is considered on its merits under paragraph 96, Financial Regulations for the Army in India, Part I.

(b) Family pension claims are not time-barred.

Information promised in reply to parts (c) and (e) of starred question No. 319 asked by Mr. S. G. Jog on the 2nd March, 1934.

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

(c) The reference quoted deals with a case which was carefully investigated in 1932. The man concerned was invalided in 1915 with a gratuity at a time when a great many other reservists were also discharged on medical grounds merely because they were too old for further service. A medical board held in 1930 certified that he was not then suffering from a disability attributable to military service. In such circumstances Government would not be justified in granting a disability pension.

(e) Pension Controller's memorandum of the 6th December, 1933, related to a case in which the extent to which arrears of pension should be granted had already been settled by the Government of India. Instructions have been issued that appeals against such decisions should be forwarded to the Government of India for reconsideration, provided they comply with the provisions of the Note to Recommendation No. XXI of the War Pensions Committee.

The memorandum of the 23rd October, 1933, from the Officer Commanding, 2/6th Rajputana Rifles, merely covered the transit to the Pension Controller of an appeal in a case in which the Government of India have since issued orders.

RETRENCHMENT ON STATE RAILWAYS.

(a) During the second block retrenchment after June, 1932, the selection for discharges was based on length of service, but the Agent reports that all temporary staff were not discharged. Temporary staff having over one year's service were, under the rules regarding retrenchment, treated on the same footing as permanent employees for this purpose.

(b) There was no block retrenchment of officers and no special instructions were laid down by Government for discharge of officers on railways, but a large number of temporary engineers were actually discharged.

(c) A statement showing the number of temporary engineers and other temporary officers discharged from the State-managed Railways as a measure of retrenchment is placed on the table of the House.

(d) Only one of the officers in the statement referred to above has been re-appointed temporarily. He is a temporary engineer on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway.

PERCENTAGE OF FAILURE OF STUDENTS IN THE RAILWAY SCHOOL OF TRANSPORTATION.

1931-32	10 per cent.
1932-33	23 per cent.
1933-34	36 per cent.
(First half)

(b) One, who is a Cabin Signaller. Although he had passed the School Examination he was subsequently found unsuitable for the higher post of Assistant Station Master.

(c) Government regret that they cannot place on the table information regarding the marks obtained by individual students. Government are informed that marks are given in all cases except when a student has definitely failed in any branch of a subject in which case he is generally not further examined in that subject.

(d) The Agent reports that in most cases this is not so but it is not always possible to provide an examiner who has not also lectured in the same subject. In the case of written examinations papers are set by the Superintendent and examined by him.

(e) Three additional instructors have been added to the School Staff as it has been necessary to duplicate the probationary Assistant Station Masters' course. The provision previously made to train probationers was not sufficient to meet the requirements of this railway and in consequence the course had to be duplicated.

(f), (i) and (j). The men were discharged by the School Superintendent. With a month's pay in lieu of notice on and from the 1st April, 1933. This order was subsequently cancelled as there were no orders for retrenchment of staff on special terms at the time. The men were recalled to duty and their absence from the 1st to the 30th April, 1933, was treated as leave without pay. (The Agent.) It has since been decided that as these men were considered to have been incorrectly discharged and were re-instated in their former posts the period of one month should be treated as leave with pay so that they will not be put to any financial loss.

LOWER GAZETTED SERVICE APPOINTMENTS SANCTIONED FOR THE ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT OF THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

(b) (ii) Nil.

(iii) The balance of posts in the Lower Gazetted Service has not been filled. There are ten officers of the superior service in excess of the sanctioned cadre for superior officers of the Engineering Department and there are five temporary engineers who have been retained in service or re-appointed as a special case.

Information promised in reply to Lala Rameshwar Prasad Bagla's unstarred question No. 18 on the 5th February, 1934.

REVERSION OF CERTAIN CLERKS IN THE UNITED PROVINCES POSTAL CIRCLE.

(a) The fact is not as stated. Ten officials of the ordinary clerical time-scale who had been holding in an officiating capacity posts in the cadre of Sub-Divisional Inspectors of Post Offices and Head Clerks to Superintendents of Post Offices in the selection grade of Rs. 160—10—250 against available permanent vacancies in that cadre were reverted to ordinary time-scale posts.

(b) For reasons explained in the reply to part (d) of Mr. N. M. Joshi's starred question No. 398 in the Legislative Assembly on the 19th September, 1932, none of these officials had been given permanent promotion to the Rs. 160—10—250 grade, but were appointed only in an officiating capacity.

(c) The Honourable Member apparently refers to the orders issued in June, 1933, according to which selection grade posts of Town Inspectors were to be replaced by ordinary time-scale posts by the transfer on their own pay of the existing substantive holders of those selection grade posts to the existing and future permanent vacancies in the cadre of sub-divisional Inspectors and head clerks to Superintendents of Post Offices.

(d) The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. The reply to the second part is in the negative. The last part does not therefore arise. In this connection, the Honourable Member is referred to the reply to part (b) above.

(e) The fact is not as stated. While the officials in question were officiating in the selection grade posts on Rs. 160—10—250, their permanent posts in the ordinary clerical cadre were kept unfilled. On reversion from their officiating posts, they were at first posted to work as Town Inspectors in the ordinary time-scale of pay without liens on their substantive posts in the clerical cadre. The position has since been regularised by the Postmaster-General, United Provinces.

(f) It is a fact that in some of the other circles, there are still some Town Inspectors in the Rs. 160—10—250 grade whose posts have not been converted to the time-scale for want of vacancies in the cadre of Sub-Divisional Inspectors and Head Clerks to Superintendents to which they could be transferred. In the United Provinces, all the posts of Town Inspectors have been converted to the time-scale as there was a sufficient number of vacancies in the cadre of Sub-Divisional Inspectors and Head Clerks to Superintendents to which they could be transferred.

(g) The permanent vacancies on Rs. 160—10—250 in the cadre of Sub-Divisional Inspectors and Head Clerks to Superintendents of Post Offices mentioned in part (a) above were correctly treated as 'existing vacancies' for purposes of the orders referred to in part (c) above. Government do not therefore propose to take the action suggested by the Honourable Member.

FIXATION OF HOLIDAYS FOR DUSSEHRA AND DIWALI ON PROPER DAYS IN THE UNITED PROVINCES POSTAL CIRCLE.

(a) The Local Government of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh declared, under section 25 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, September 26th to September 29th, 1933, as the Dussehra holidays, and October 18th, 1933, as Diwali holiday. The last day of the Dussehra being the most important day of the festival the 29th September, 1933, was declared as a Post Office holiday on account of Dussehra and the 18th October, 1933, was declared as a Post Office holiday on account of Diwali in the United Provinces Circle. Government are satisfied that postal holidays for Dussehra and Diwali were fixed on proper dates in the United Provinces.

(b) Representations were received by the Postmaster-General, United Provinces, from the members of the staff of some Post Offices in the United Provinces Circle requesting a change in the date fixed for the Post Office holiday on account of Dussehra from the 29th September to the 28th September, and on account of Diwali from the 18th October to the 19th October. The dates were not changed in view of the notification already made by the Local Government fixing the dates for the observance of these two holidays no change in which was made by the Local Government.

(c) Government do not propose to take any action as they consider that the holidays were fixed on the correct dates.

DEPUTATION TO THE RAILWAY BOARD REGARDING THE RATIO OF POSTS TO BE HELD BY THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY AND OLD OUDH AND ROHILKUND RAILWAY OFFICERS.

- (c) The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that this ratio could not be worked to satisfactorily in practice in case of officers and in fact its abolition was pressed for by the officers themselves. It was never observed in respect of promotions of subordinates to officers grades; such promotions were based on merit and seniority. There would in these circumstances be no point in now introducing for the promotion of subordinates to officer's grade a ratio already found unsuitable for officers.

DIRECT RECRUITMENT OF SOME OF THE EX-CREW INSPECTORS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

Question No. 180.

The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports as follows:

- (a) On the introduction of the crew system, it was found necessary to increase the strength of the ticket checking staff and consequently direct recruitment was made.

- (b) When the crew system was introduced a few of the travelling ticket inspectors were taken over from the Accounts Department against appointments for which they were most suited. A travelling ticket inspector was selected as an inspector, Crew Training School, Fyzabad, as he was fully qualified in the duties required under the crew system.

- (c) No.
- (d) Yes.
- (e) Yes.
- (f) Yes.

- (g) No. The crew scale was fixed independently in accordance with the conditions prevailing in 1926.

- (h) The maximum pay of a crew inspector was Rs. 460 and that of a travelling ticket inspector was Rs. 300.

SENIORITY OF THE TICKET CHECKING STAFF ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

Question No. 181.

The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports:

- "Yes. The term 'service' used in connection with seniority invariably means permanent service."

SENIORITY OF THE TICKET CHECKING STAFF ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

Question No. 182.

- (a) The letter referred to in this part of the question was specifically intended to regulate the policy of retrenchment.

- (b) No. Except, in so far as the selection of men for discharge was concerned. Certain recommendations of the Court of Enquiry were accepted by the Government of India and announced in Government of India Communiqué of the 6th June, 1932, a copy of which is already in the Library of the House.

- (c) The Agent's circular No. 464 of the 26th January, 1927, only dealt with the question of co-ordination of the rates of pay of subordinates on the old East Indian and Oudh and Rohilkund Railways and is not superseded by the Railway Board's letter of the 3rd March, 1931, which referred to the retrenchment of staff made subsequent to March, 1931. The former had no connection with the latter.

- (d) The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that as neither the Railway Board's letter nor the Agent's circular were in his opinion applicable to the crew staff who are all temporary, the fixation of seniority by pay and length of service was resorted to as being the fairest method.

- (e) As stated in part (c) above Railway Board's letter No. 6839-E.G. of the 3rd March, 1931, applied to retrenchment of staff and had no reference to fixation of seniority of staff.

INAUGURATION OF THE CREW SYSTEM OVER THE DINAPUR DIVISION.

Question No. 183.

The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports:

- (a) Yes. Out of the 36 posts of crew inspectors and assistant crew inspectors sanctioned for the Dinapur Division, 21 were filled by direct recruitment and 15 by promotion of suitable travelling ticket inspectors and head ticket collectors.

- (b) The old travelling ticket inspectors who were not selected to fill vacancies of crew and assistant crew inspectors were absorbed as crews-in-charge.

- (c) After training the newly recruited crew and assistant crew inspectors were examined, 13 passed and the remaining eight men who failed were reduced to lower ranks and replaced by suitable old travelling ticket inspectors."

- (b) Yes.
- (c) Yes, except that the number of holidays was altered to conform to the practice on the East Indian Railway.
- (d) Yes.
- (e) The hours of work of the staff of the Eastern Bengal Railway Ticket Printing Section transferred to the amalgamated press were increased to correspond to those worked by the similar staff of the East Indian Railway on the 1st November, 1933, under the orders of the Agent, East Indian Railway.

(f) Yes.

(g) In conformity with the statement made by the Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore on the 24th February, 1934, in reply to a cut motion moved by Mr. S. C. Mitra, certain grievances of the State Railway Press Employees are to be examined by the Railway Board. A Committee has been appointed by the Agent, East Indian Railway, to enquire into the matter and as this is one of the alleged grievances, the matter will be further considered by Government on receipt of the report of the above-mentioned Committee.

NON-ADOPTION OF THE MOODY-WARD SCHEME OF TICKET CHECKING ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

359. The Agent, North Western Railway, reports as follows:

- (a) Yes. Orders were issued in 1932 and 1933 that a group may at times be further subdivided into sub-groups of two men each and at times Special Ticket Examiners may even be allowed to work singly though they always form part of the group to which attached.
- (b) The orders referred to in part (a) above were issued in 1932 and 1933 whereas the instructions alluded to in reply to part (d) of question No. 475 were issued on the introduction of the present system on the North Western Railway in 1931.
- (c) (i) Yes.
- (ii) There are two instances where the Divisional Superintendent, Ferozepur, has, due to the unimportance of certain sections, not provided a grade III post for the groups-in-charge; he has since been instructed to provide grade III posts for all groups-in-charge.

NON-ADOPTION OF THE MOODY-WARD SCHEME OF TICKET CHECKING ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

360. The Agent, North Western Railway, reports:

- (a) The group-in-charge in the course of his programme supervises and checks the work of the Special Ticket Examiners who are working to a similar programme.
- (b) The amount of correspondence which a group-in-charge is called upon to undertake is not such as to preclude him from working to the programme of a Special Ticket Examiner and supervising the work of his group. As already stated in reply to part (c) (ii) of question No. 359, the Divisional Superintendent, Ferozepur, has since been instructed to provide Grade III posts for all groups-in-charge.

NON-ADOPTION OF MOODY-WARD SYSTEM OF TICKET CHECKING ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

361. Government are informed that (a) checking group is required to be detailed to a Section for three months and then changed over to another Section. A change of headquarters is not essential in order to permit of this, and the Rawalpindi and Lahore Divisions are the only ones in which the headquarters of the checking groups are changed, but this is done very infrequently and when it becomes necessary three days' joining time is allowed to effect such a transfer.

The attention of the Agent, North Western Railway, has been drawn to the inconveniences referred to by the Honourable Member as attendant on frequent transfers of headquarters and he has been requested to reduce such transfers as far as possible.

RULES IN CONNECTION WITH APPEALS REGARDING PAY AND ALLOWANCES ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

(a) to (c). Orders also exist on the East Indian Railway about the submission of appeals regarding pay and allowances. These orders were issued by the Agent, East Indian Railway, in Notification No. 1315 of Weekly Gazette No. 49 of 9th December, 1925. The orders are still operative except that submission of appeals in cases of discharge and dismissal is now governed by Rules regulating the discharge and dismissal of State Railway non-gazetted Government servants, a copy of which is already in the Library of the House. I place a copy of the Agent's Notification referred to above on the table of the House.

(d) Agents of State-managed Railways have full powers to deal with non-Gazetted Staff with certain exceptions. Memorials regarding pay and allowances do not fall under the exceptions and as such they lie within the competence of the Agent.

Weekly Gazette No. 49 of 9th December, 1925.

1315. Notice to subordinate staff:

The staff are aware that under the new organisation Divisional Superintendents have powers very largely in excess of the powers formerly given to District Officers.

L186LAD

In fact their powers are very much greater than those formerly exercised by Heads of Departments. On a very large system such as the East Indian Railway has now become, without such a decentralisation of authority and work the administrative organisation in the head office tends to become over-burdened.

As a further step in this decentralisation the staff are advised that, while I am fully prepared to give the most careful personal consideration to all appeals regarding dismissals, discharges and loss of gratuity, if received through the proper channel, appeals against all other orders passed on their cases can in future only be to the officers immediately above the officer passing the orders. For example, if a Divisional Superintendent has reduced a member of the staff, or has superseded him by another man, the member of the staff may appeal to the Chief Operating Superintendent, or, if he be one of the Engineering staff, to the Chief Engineer. In such cases appeals should not be addressed to me.

G. L. COLVIN,

Agent.

FUND CREATED FROM THE PERSONAL PROPERTY OF RAJA RAGHUJI III.

The amount of the fund in question, as it stood at the time of its creation, was about 19½ lakhs. Since the annual charges of the Palace stipends khasee lists and religious endowments which were to be defrayed from the fund considerably exceeded the interest that would have accrued from its investment, the fund was credited to Government who undertook to bear these charges in future. Pensions to the Bhonsla family are paid from general revenues. The Nagpur District Gazetteer is not an authoritative publication and the statement made therein is incorrect.

TENDERS FOR BODY VARNISH HARD DRYING INSIDE.

Question No. 667.

(a) The Honourable Member has not stated the particular year or period for which the information is required. The Indian Stores Department calls for tenders annually for paints, pigments and varnishes including Body Varnish Hard Drying Inside. No Indian Stores Department specification has been framed for this particular class of varnish, but samples are tested to see if they satisfy the Indian Stores Department specification for Copal Varnish. The tender of Messrs. Jenson and Nicholson for Body Varnish Hard Drying was accepted for the annual contract for 1931-32.

(b) No.

(c) No.

(d) No.

(e) The answer is in the negative in so far as it concerns contract referred to in part (b) of the question.

The circumstances connected with the transaction which appear to be referred to by the Honourable Member are as follows:

The East Indian Railway placed two requisitions No. I.S.D.-22425, 4[Gb5]CST-53, dated 7th November, 1930, for 200 gallons and No. I.S.D.-22445[4]Gb5[CST]53, dated the 12th November, 1930, for 1,300 gallons of varnish Body Hard Drying Inside with Jenson and Nicholson (India), Ltd., Calcutta. The varnish so ordered was to conform to a special sample approved by the East Indian Railway. Through a misunderstanding the Indian Stores Department Inspectorate tested this varnish against an Indian Stores Department standard sample and as the varnish offered for supply did not conform to this Indian Stores Department standard sample it was rejected. When the East Indian Railway pointed out that the varnish ordered was to comply with an East Indian Railway sample which had been found satisfactory in service, it was re-tested by the Inspecting Authorities and found to conform to the East Indian Railway sample and was, therefore, accepted.

(f) The reply to the first part of this question is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, no case existed for an application of the rule.

(g) No reasons exist for Government enquiring into the matter.

(h) No, but if specific cases are given, the Government will enquire into these cases.

CONTRACT FOR THE SUPPLY OF READY MIXED BLACK PAINT TO THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

Question No. 686.

(a) The answer to the first part is in the affirmative. With regard to the second part, three years' working test in service was carried out by the Eastern Bengal Railway and found satisfactory.

(b) Yes.

(c) It is understood that the paint manufactured by Messrs. Jenson and Nicholson, called special black paint ready mixed for wagon bodies and underframes, and supplied to the East Indian Railway, was of the same quality as that supplied to the Eastern Bengal Railway. It is not possible to ascertain from analysis whether the black pigment contains 3 per cent. carbon black or not, but paint of the quality has been found to give satisfactory results in service although exposure tests of paint of similar composition made on panels tested under non-service conditions were not satisfactory.

(d) Does not arise.

(e) Jenson and Nicholson (India), Ltd., are a Company registered in India with Rupee capital. No information about shareholders is available.

(f) I invite the Honourable Member's attention to the "Rules for the supply of articles required to be purchased for the Public Service" in which the policy of Government in regard to the preference to be shown to articles produced by indigenous industries is clearly laid down.

(g) It is not a fact that against the tender in question contracts were given to three firms for supply of black paint to Indian Stores Department Specification No. G.O.P.[21]1 with 3 per cent. carbon black.

Against tender No. 04[M., for 1932-33 contracts for black paint were awarded as follows:

(1) Messrs. Napier Paint Works for Indian-made Paint Black Stiff to Indian Stores Department Specification No. G.O.P.[121], which lays down that the paint should contain 20 per cent. lamp black.

(2) Messrs. Jenson and Nicholson for Indian-made Paint Black Stiff for underframes and wagon bodies. No Indian Stores Department specification was stipulated for this supply but paint was to be supplied exactly as previously supplied to the Railway.

L186LAD

- (3) Messrs. Murarka Paint and Varnish Works for Paint Black Stiff for underframes and wagon bodies to Indian Stores Department Specification No. G.O.P.121, which lays down that the paint should contain 3 per cent. carbon black.

- (4) Messrs. Murarka Paint and Varnish Works for "Muraco" special Black ready-mixed paint for underframes and wagons.

Messrs. Jenson and Nicholson quoted Rs. 9-7-0 per cwt. for their particular paint and Messrs. Murarka Paint and Varnish Works quoted Rs. 8-10-0 per cwt. for their black paint stiff. The paint of Messrs. The Murarka Paint and Varnish Company was tested by the Alipore Test House.

(h) The East Indian Railway did not place orders with Messrs. Murarka Paint and Varnish Company, for the black paints stiff tendered by them at Rs. 8-10-0 per cwt., but did place orders for 23,000 gallons of "Muraco" special black ready mixed paint manufactured by that firm.

(i) The difference in price between the two tenders referred to is As. 13 per cwt. and not As. 14 as stated by the Honourable Member.

With regard to the second part of the question, Government do not consider there has been any loss in revenue, as the price of paint is not the sole index of relative value nor do Government consider that undue patronage has been shown to any particular firm.

(j) Does not arise.

A statement showing for the last two years the names of clerks in the office of the Chief Auditor, Railway Clearing Accounts, who applied for leave to prepare for the Subordinate Railway Accounts Service Examination, the leave granted to them, and the reasons for refusal or postponement of the leave is laid on the table of the House. PROMOTION OF THIRD DIVISION CLERKS IN THE ARMY HEADQUARTERS.

(a) Permanent Third Division clerks in Army Headquarters may, if they wish, sit for the Public Service Commission examination for the Second or the First Division, provided they satisfy the ordinary rules for the examination. They are not required, however, to qualify for the Second Division before being promoted into one of the vacancies set apart for departmental promotion. A man so qualified would naturally receive preference.

Seven clerks who qualified for the Third Division have been confirmed in the Second Division. This occurred in a single branch of Army Headquarters before the introduction of a Third Division in that Branch. The men concerned had proved their fitness for the Second Division.

(b) and (c). The reply to the first portion of (b) is in the negative. The remaining portion of (b) and part (c) do not therefore arise.

(d) No Third Division clerk has so far been promoted to the Second Division under the concession referred to. The reply to the last portion is in the negative.

(e) The orders referred to were waived, as a special case, to provide for the absorption in the Second Division of 18 supernumerary Second Division clerks and eight Third Division clerks, who were qualified for the Second Division, but whose promotion to that Division was retarded on account of the absorption of the 18 supernumerary Second Division clerks.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) The administrative instructions referred to were issued in 1922. As they are confidential, they cannot be laid on the table. At the same time I shall, however, be glad to show them to the Honourable Member if he will call at my office at any time convenient to himself.

(e) The answer to both the questions is in the negative.

(f) No further definition of the term has ever been laid down, nor is it necessary.

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

393. (a) The subsequent medical board was held to consider the eligibility of the person concerned for a disability pension under the 1922 rules. It had been decided that he was ineligible for a pension under the 1915 rules.

(b) As strict evidence is not required in the case of field and foreign service disabilities the question does not arise.

TREATMENT OF THE ex-STRIKERS IN THE ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY AT NAGPUR AS A NEW ENTRANT ON RE-INSTATEMENT.

658. (a) Yes, if re-appointed in a vacancy after the 16th July, 1931.

(b) Yes. The Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, reports that this was at variance with the standing orders and happened through a misunderstanding of the orders in the Transportation Department. The orders are being correctly observed now.

(c) The men were correctly dealt with in accordance with the orders in force.

(d) The difference arose owing to a misunderstanding as referred to in part (b) above. No difference now exists in the different Departments.

RE-INSTATED ex-STRIKERS IN THE ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT OF THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY AT NAGPUR

659. (a) and (b). The Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, reports :

(i) Ex-strikers were taken back as vacancies occurred and hence some were re-engaged within two months.

(ii) No such rule is in existence on the Railway.

(c) and (d). Do not arise.

RE-INSTATEMENT OF CERTAIN ex-STRIKERS OF BHUSAVAL AND NAGPUR ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

663. The Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, reports :

(a) Yes.

(b) Individual cases differed, but mostly they did not offer to resume duty by the date specified in the communiqué.

(c) An enquiry was held in November, 1930, by the Deputy Agent, Staff, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, in accordance with the announcement made by the Railway Board at the first half-yearly meeting with the All-India Railwaymen's Federation, and as a result it was decided to place on the waiting list the names of certain ex-strikers who were found to have complied with the terms of the Government of India Communiqué, dated the 1st March, 1930. Government do not consider any further enquiry necessary.

REDUCTION OF MEN ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

664. The Honourable Member's attention is invited to the reply given to his starred question No. 660 on the 9th April, 1934. It is not possible to forecast the number of staff likely to be reduced on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway.

FREIGHT ON RICE FROM PATNA TO DELHI.

The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports as follows :

1. With reference to the Railway Board's letter No. 4910-T., dated the 24th March, 1934, I beg to observe that from enquiries made in the matter it is ascertained that :

- (i) There have been no despatches of rice from Patna to Delhi during the last 12 months. On the contrary Patna usually imports rice from stations on the East Indian Railway's loop line section and the Bengal Nagpur Railway.
- (ii) The rice merchants of Patna do not appear to be interested in the Delhi market as they consider there is small prospect of any movement of rice from Patna to Delhi.
- (iii) The rice merchants in Delhi also appear disinterested in the proposal to obtain supplies of rice from Patna.
- (iv) Delhi usually consumes a better quality rice than that obtainable at Patna.
- (v) Rice was received at Delhi during 1933-34, as follows :

	Mds.
From the Province of Bengal	1,20,632
From the Province of Behar and Orissa	2,461
From the Province of United Provinces	9,209
From the Province of Central Provinces	4,879
Total	1,37,181

2. So far as the Province of Behar and Orissa is concerned rice moved to Delhi from Sultanganj, Karmatar Sarak, via Bukhtiarpur, and via Futwah, and it is significant that the freight charges from these points to Delhi are higher than the rate from Patna.

3. Indeed, it is of even greater significance that of the total despatches from Bengal 65,963 maunds of rice were drawn from Howrah at a rate of Re. 0-11-2 per maund as compared with a rate of Re. 0-9-0 per maund from Patna.

4. In these circumstances it is obvious that there can be no justification for introducing a reduced rate for rice from Patna to Delhi.

(b) Yes. This rate has been in force since 1921.

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

329 and 330. The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the answer I gave on the 11th December, 1933, to part (a) of starred question No. 1386. The Secretary of State has since confirmed the decision of the Government of India on Recommendation No. IX. This is the only recommendation of the War Pensions Committee on which his orders were required.

Information promised in reply to starred question No. 333 asked by Mr. S. G. Jog on the 2nd March, 1934.

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

(a) and (c). Government have the reason to believe that the Deputy Controller of Military Pensions, Lahore, is not acting in accordance with their intention. If the Honourable Member will furnish particulars of any case he has in mind, enquiries will be made.

(b) No. Soldiers' Boards are non-official organisations, and for purposes of pension claims, are only investigating and forwarding authorities.

(c) Yes.

(d) and (e). The channels of submission are different in the case of Jangi Inams. While claims to family pensions are submitted through the deceased soldiers' Commanding Officer, Jangi Inams are transferred from the 1st to the 2nd holder without the intervention of the Commanding Officer of the deceased soldier on account of whom the Jangi Inam was originally granted. I do not understand the difficulty which the Honourable Member fears may arise through this difference of system, but if he will furnish details of any case he may have in mind, enquiries will be made.

RULES FOR THE PROMOTION OF PASSENGER DRIVERS TO MAIL DRIVERS ON STATE RAILWAYS.

(a) The rules governing the promotion of passenger drivers to mail drivers on the State-managed Railways are as follows:

North Western Railway.

Mail Drivers and passenger drivers are not separate classes. Mail drivers are drawn from the most senior men with a good record as driver.

Burma Railways.

Whenever a vacancy occurs in the links of main line fast-passenger and ghat services, the best and fittest engine-man irrespective of district, salary or length of service is selected for promotion.

East Indian Railway.

Promotions to mail drivers from passenger drivers are made by selection, seniority being observed if the driver is considered suitable, has a good record and is reported on satisfactorily. Promotion is subject to a driver passing a satisfactory examination in a knowledge of the rules and in enginemanship.

Eastern Bengal Railway.

The most efficient men are selected to work on the Mail Link.

Great Indian Peninsula Railway.

Mail and passenger drivers are on the same rate of pay, viz., Rs. 310 for A grade and Rs. 235 for B grade and the mail and passenger services are worked on a combined link. Promotions to this grade or pay are made from goods drivers.

(b) In the past there was a system of selecting covenanted and non-covenanted drivers on the East Indian Railway alternately for promotion irrespective of the order of seniority. This was discontinued from the 1st November, 1926.

(c) The alternate system of promotions was due to the fact that covenanted drivers were formerly recruited on the original East Indian Railway with superior British railway training and experience on account of which they were given a certain degree of preference.

(d) The practice, referred to, has been discontinued on the East Indian Railway. It was never in existence on other State-managed Railways.

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

(a) No. The memorandum quoted by the Honourable Member relates to a follower who was no longer fit for his peace time duties on account of old age. There was no question of war-unfitness.

(b) Government are aware of this publication.

(c) There is no such difference. The Ministry of Pensions have not adhered strictly to the official Nomenclature of Diseases in the table in question, but have for the sake of convenience grouped various conditions under the heading "debility".

Medical Boards in India are required by the regulations to adhere to the diagnosis given in the Nomenclature of Diseases and in consequence patients in whom debility is a marked symptom are invalided, not for debility, but for the disease from which the debility originated.

(d) No. I would refer the Honourable Member to the answer given on the 10th March, 1934, to parts (a) and (b) of his question No. 182.

QUOTATIONS FROM THE INDIAN SHIPPING COMPANIES FOR THE CARRIAGE OF GOVERNMENT MATERIALS.

Consequent on the acceptance by Government of Sir Lalubhai Samaldas's Resolution in the Council of State on the 15th March, 1922, particulars of Government stores purchased by the High Commissioner for India and ready for shipment, were given regularly to Messrs. Devitt and Moore, Limited, the London Agents of the Scindia Steam Navigation Company, Limited, of Bombay, which is believed to be the only Indian Company operating in European waters. Messrs. Devitt and Moore, Limited, did not, however, submit any freight tenders, nor were any applications for cargo ever made by them. It is understood that the Company have no regular sailings from Europe to India. The High Commissioner had ascertained some time ago from them that in the event of any of their steamers returning from the United Kingdom after repairs or of new steamers proceeding to India after construction in the United Kingdom, they would be interested only in whole cargoes or in very large consignments; but in consequence of the altered arrangement for shipment of stores under Rupee Tender Rules such large consignments are not now shipped by the High Commissioner's Store Department.

The High Commissioner is prepared to consider any proposals which might be placed before him by any Indian Shipping Company.

CONSOLIDATED ALLOWANCE TO SPECIAL TICKET EXAMINERS ON THE NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

(b) to (e). The Agent, North Western Railway, reports as follows:

(L) Yes.

(c) and (d). Mr. Labhu Ram Teji was not a temporary Travelling Ticket Examiner but on 12 months probation from the 15th November, 1930. Had the old Travelling Ticket Examiners' posts not been abolished with effect from the 1st June, 1931, he would have been confirmed as Travelling Ticket Examiner from the 15th November, 1930. On representing this point of view to the Chief Accounts Officer of this Railway he agreed that the spirit of the Railway Board's orders covered such cases and he was accordingly admitted by this office to the concession alluded to in part (a) above and not by the Divisional Superintendent, Delhi, as stated in the question.

(e) Messrs. Mathews, Labhu Ram and M. Abdulla of the Lahore Division were placed on probation as Travelling Ticket Examiners on the 30th June, 1930, 9th June, 1930, and 9th June, 1930, respectively. Due to a reduction in the number of Travelling Ticket Examiners' posts on the Lahore Division, they reverted to their substantive posts of Ticket Collectors on the 20th March, 1931, 3rd September, 1930, and 20th March, 1931, respectively, prior to the abolition of Travelling Ticket Examiners' posts and were not utilised as Special Ticket Examiners until the 25th February, 1932, 29th November, 1932, and 13th February, 1932, respectively, whereas Mr. Labhu Ram Teji who was still working as a Travelling Ticket Examiner on the 1st June, 1931, was given the option of selecting a post of Special Ticket Examiner when Travelling Ticket Examiners' cadre was abolished. It will thus be seen that these are not parallel cases.

SENIORITY OF EAST INDIAN RAILWAY AND OLD OUDH AND ROHILKUND RAILWAY STAFF.

(a) Thirty-three old East Indian Railway subordinates are working in the senior post on the Oudh and Rohilkund Railway area and 12 subordinates of the old Oudh and Rohilkund Railway are working on the old East Indian Railway area.

(b) Yes. In this connection, I would refer the Honourable Member to the information laid by me on the table of the House on 12th December, 1933, in reply to starred question No. 1017 asked by Mr. E. H. M. Bower on 18th September, 1933. The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that separate seniority lists are maintained for the Engineering staff of the old Oudh and Rohilkund Railway and the old East Indian Railway for administrative purposes and to avoid hardship to old Oudh and Rohilkund Railway Engineering staff who would suffer if they were brought on the revised scales of pay for the purposes of a common seniority list.

(c) All departments, except the Operating Department, are governed by the same set of rules. The question of rules for staff in the Operating Department is under consideration.

(d) No. The only change which has been made is that the period of absence from headquarters by which daily allowance can now be earned is more than four hours between 9 P.M. and 5 A.M., instead of more than eight hours on each day, beginning and ending at midnight.

(e) There is no separate allotment of posts in grades I and II for the Oudh and Rohilkund Railway Inspectors; promotions to these grades being made by selection. So far one Oudh and Rohilkund Railway Inspector of Works has been promoted to grade II.

(f) The revised scales of pay of 1928 were promulgated with effect from the 1st August, 1928, and have been applied generally to new entrants appointed since that date. There have been exceptions in certain cases where it was considered necessary.

(g) There is no such restriction imposed on the staff of the Operating Department. As regards the staff of the Engineering Department the amount of allowance has been limited to the number of nights out which the Divisional Superintendent considers it sufficient for the proper maintenance of the line. It has not been considered necessary to impose a restriction on officers.

(h) The staff whose vision requires testing in the interest of public safety are periodically examined.

DISABILITY PENSION TO MILITARY EMPLOYEES INVALIDED DURING THE GREAT WAR.

(a) To the fullest possible extent.

(b) In accordance with the instruction in clause (viii) of the Note to the Government orders on recommendation No. XXI of the War Pensions Committee, it is necessary for an applicant claiming the benefit of recommendation No. XIII to show that the rejection of his original claim was based on the absence of records which under rule should be permanently retained. In other words, it is necessary for a claimant to produce some evidence to indicate that his discharge from the Army was due to a disability incurred on or attributable to military services during the war and that some particular document or documents should be in existence to confirm his claim. In neither of the two cases mentioned has any such evidence been produced and it is obviously impossible for the Government to accept the unsupported statement of a claimant that his discharge from the Army was due to a disability of the kind mentioned above. All that is on record in the two cases mentioned is that the men concerned were discharged on medical grounds; many men were discharged during the war for disabilities other than those contracted on or attributable to military service; and there is no evidence in these two particular cases to show that the disabilities were so contracted or attributable. It was not, however, merely on the absence of such evidence that the claims were rejected. One of the two men was found in 1931 to be suffering from no disability whatever, while the disability of the other in the same year was limited to the minimum degree of 20 per cent. The disease from which he was suffering, namely, defective vision, was not of a kind that improves by lapse of time, and it is therefore most improbable that he was suffering from a pensionable degree of disability at the time when he was discharged. As a special case, however, in view of his long service, this man has already been granted a special pension of Rs. 4 and has therefore already been treated more generously than would have been strictly justifiable under the regulations.

VENDORS' CONTRACTS IN THE DINAPUR DIVISION OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

(a) Yes. A copy of the report is annexed.

(b) Yes. The new agreements provide for termination on six months' notice.

ANNEXURE.

Letter No. A. A.-109/Cal/4, dated 2nd June 1934 from the Agent, East Indian Railway, to the Secretary, Railway Board.

Vending in Dinapur Division.

I beg to say that on consideration of the results of granting on the Howrah Division, as an experimental measure, the contract for the Hindu and Muhammadan Refreshment Rooms at Burdwan, the Hindu and Muhammadan Tea Stalls at various stations, and the vending of Indian sweetmeats, food stuffs and miscellaneous articles at certain stations to one firm of caterers, it was decided to continue the system of extended contracts for the sale of such articles but to a more limited extent. This proposal had the general approval of the Calcutta Advisory Committee. It was also decided that there should be separate Hindu and Muhammadan contractors and that the contract should be for all sales at a large station, and would include an area of say 25 to 30 miles from that station.

In settling the contracts on the Dinapur Division, it was found impracticable to adhere to the limited distances contemplated, for the reason that on such small areas there was no possibility of doing any appreciable vendor's business. Consequently areas were enlarged in order to make them sufficiently remunerative for the contractors to give good service to the public.

The Dinapur Division was split up into four areas as shewn under:

- (a) Moghalserai area .. From Moghalserai to Tarighat and Sasaram (inclusive) 110 miles.
- (b) Gaya area .. Manpur (inclusive) to Sasaram (exclusive) and Daltonganj branch—141 miles.
- (c) Patna area .. Athmal Gola (inclusive) to Bhadaura (inclusive) and Patna Junction to Chakand (inclusive 175 miles.)
- (d) Kiul area .. Jhajha (inclusive) to Barh (inclusive) Luckeeserai to Paimar (inclusive) and Kiul to Dharara—164 miles.

The old contractors were petty tradesmen and none of them had the necessary professional experience, knowledge or capital to run area contracts and institute proper supervision which is essential to improve the service to passengers. Consequently their services had to be terminated and new contractors were appointed. Owing to the inability of the Divisional Superintendent to obtain suitable contractors for the above four areas, it was necessary to give two areas to one man, i.e., one Hindu and one Muhammadan respectively for the vending of Hindu and Muhammadan food.

I would, however, point out that the contractors appointed were most reluctant to take over the small intermediate stations, but that the Divisional Superintendent, Dinpur, insisted on them doing so as it is at these stations that most improvement is necessary which can only be brought about by proper inspection and organisation.

The placing of these contracts is fully within the competence of the Divisional Superintendent, and I am fully satisfied that his action was undoubtedly in the interests of the travelling public.

The Calcutta Advisory Committee have, in view of the circumstances, agreed that these revised arrangements should be given a fair trial.

VENDORS' CONTRACTS IN THE DINAPUR DIVISION OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

Starred question No. 729.—The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports as follows:

- (a) Out of a total number of 138 contractors only 11 were ex-Railway employees.
- (b) There is no record of any policy laid down in 1919. It is within the Divisional Superintendent's powers to make catering contracts on their Divisions. The present policy is the outcome of a suggestion of the Calcutta Advisory Committee, the object being to raise the standard of catering which was low.
- (c) Complaints were frequent against contractors under the old system and their standard was acknowledged to be low.
- (d) No. It is not the policy of the Railway to call for tenders, but applications are called for.
- (e) The new contractors are paying the same rate of fees, and rents as the old ones were paying. No premium for the contracts was paid by the old contractors and none is paid by the new ones.
- (f) No record is maintained of the province of origin of the contractors as it is not the policy of the Railway necessarily to confine themselves in any area to the inhabitants of that area. Of the four new contractors employed, three were already employed in Bihar.
- (g) Passes in accordance with the duties required of them have been issued.
- (h) No definite information is available. It is understood that Messrs. Ballavdhas Eshwardas were for years contractors on the Bengal Nagpur Railway and resigned the contract with the concurrence of the authorities. They received excellent certificates from that Railway.
- (i) The same firm held Refreshment Room contracts on the Howrah Division and had been given the contract for the new Refreshment Room at Gaya on its completion on the 15th February, 1931.
- (j) With the object of employing as many as possible of the petty vendors, and their servants in order to continue their livelihood, the new contractors were asked to take them on as their employees, if suitable. Where this has been done, service agreements have been executed. The contracts have not been sublet.
- (k) Subletting is not permitted under the terms of the agreement and is always punished when discovered.

(j) Yes. These were duly received on March 5th and 12th.

m) (i) The various portions of the contracts were taken over on various dates between March 25th and April 10th. The details of the contracts were completed on various dates between 21st February and 10th March.

(ii) A copy of the agreement form is annexed.

(iii) Because the matter was within the Divisional Superintendent's powers.

n) The Divisional Superintendent has no cognisance of the recommendations of the Local Advisory Committee, except recommendations which are accepted by the Agent and are forwarded by him to Divisional Superintendents with instructions to implement them.

VENDORS' CONTRACTS IN THE DINAPUR DIVISION OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

Question No. 763.—(a) No. The selection of individual contractors is an executive matter not requiring previous consultation with the Local Advisory Committee.

(b) The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. The system now in force was discussed at a Local Advisory Committee meeting and it was agreed to give the present scheme a trial.

VENDORS' CONTRACTS IN THE DINAPUR DIVISION OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

Question No. 764.—It is too early to say yet. The Railway Administration expect to gain by the approbation of passengers of the much improved arrangements. They will also gain by a great decrease in clerical work. In actual fees for rents, vending and hawking they have not gained, and do not look to gaining anything.

POSTS OF YARD SUPERVISORS, YARD FOREMEN ASSISTANT YARD MASTERS AND YARD INSPECTORS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

(a) The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that there are no Yard Supervisors or Yard Inspectors on the East Indian Railway. Yards are controlled by Yard Masters, who frequently have Assistant Yard Masters or Yard Foremen working under them in eight-hour shifts. The Yard Foreman works under the supervision of an Assistant Yard Master. Some yards do not have any Yard Foremen.

(b) The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that Yard Masters and Assistant Yard Masters must have the same qualifications as Station Masters and Assistant Station Masters and in addition must have special aptitude for yard work. Yard Foremen are generally promoted from literate gunners but are not responsible for train passing.

(e) and (g). The East Indian Railway Administration do not consider it necessary to provide special facilities for guards, Indian Assistant Station Masters and Head Number-takers for their promotion to the posts of Yard Masters, Assistant Yard Masters and Yard Foremen. Before staff can be considered eligible for promotion to higher posts, it is necessary for them to qualify by passing such examinations or tests as may be necessary and must possess the qualifications required for such promotions.

(f) The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that Head Number-takers have little or no knowledge of the duties of a gunner or of yard work and in consequence cannot ordinarily assume the duties of Yard Foremen.

PROMOTIONS IN THE OFFICE OF THE AGENT, NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Agent, North Western Railway, reports :

(a) Hindu members of the staff, as well as those of other communities, once declared unfit for promotion from a lower to a higher grade are given further chances to prove their fitness.

(b) and (c). No such case is traceable. A Grade I Hindu clerk who officiated in Grade II in leave vacancies in 1933, however, was reverted while again officiating in the same grade in 1931 on account of reduction in establishment, because he was found to be less efficient than another clerk junior to him in the same Grade. This individual did not, however, officiate in Grade II in 1925 and he is not being given a trial now in Grade II. He has, however, been recently transferred to another Section in his substantive grade, Grade I, to see whether he can earn a recommendation of fitness for promotion to Grade II.

(d) and (e). An employee once declared unfit is not debarred from subsequently earning a recommendation of fitness for promotion. This applies to all classes of staff irrespective of community.

ABSENCE OF A SHED ON THE PLATFORM OF THE HARDWAR RAILWAY STATION.

The Agent, East Indian Railway reports as follows :

(b) A portion measuring 12' x 140' or 1,680 square ft. of the station is covered. The shedding is sufficient to meet normal requirements. Special arrangements are made for mela traffic. There is a shelter for the third class passenger outside the platform covering an area of 6,875 square ft.

(c) The platform and station buildings at Hardwar are 9 feet higher than the public road level which is 320 feet away and therefore the several exit gates leading to the platform have a gradual slope.

(d) The reply to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. The reply given by the Divisional Superintendent, Moradabad, was that it was impossible to consider the amenities suggested at present.

(e) Figures of gross and net earnings of the station are not available. Passenger earnings at the station were as follows :

Year ending—	Period.	Local. Foreign.
		Rs.	Rs.
31st March, 1933		253,545	611,415
31st March, 1934		265,378	751,416

(a) Yes.

(b) Because Rutlam and Godhra are not in British India, and the provisions of the Factories Act therefore do not apply. The same is probably the case with the other places to which the Honourable Member refers.

(c) No, because (i) the staff concerned do not favour any change and (ii) the application of the Hours of Work Regulations to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway is under consideration.

APPOINTMENT OF LILLOOAH APPRENTICES AS ELECTRICIANS AND TRAIN EXAMINERS.

375. It is assumed in the replies to this and the next question that Mr. C. Keys is the Anglo-Indian apprentice referred to :

(a) The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that Mr. Keys holds a certificate of having passed the Jamalpur Technical School in the Second Division. When he left the St. Xavier's College, Calcutta, he was in the 8th standard, which is above Junior Cambridge and Matriculation standards.

(b) (i) Mr. Keys received his training in the Machine, Fitting and Mill-wright shops and the Drawing Office of the Carriage and Wagon Workshops at Lillooah.

(ii) Yes.

(c) The European in question was trained in the Machine, Fitting and Under-Frame Production Sections and Drawing Office of the Carriage and Wagon Workshops, Lillooah, and was selected by the Selection Committee convened to make the selection. The Committee besides taking into consideration the results of the examination also considered other qualifications such as initiative, general intelligence and ability to command labour before making the appointment.

Government understand that the selection was not based on racial considerations.

(e) and (f) Government are informed that the cases of all time expired apprentices will be taken into consideration by a special selection committee when suitable vacancies occur.

SELECTION OF LILLOOAH ex-APPRENTICES FOR THE POSTS OF TRAIN EXAMINERS.

376. (a) The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports as follows :

- (a) (i) The candidates appeared before a Selection Committee, who considered the qualifications of each candidate carefully before making their choice.
- (ii) The Selection Committee was composed of three Senior Scale Officers of the Operating Department.
- (b) No. The Selection Committee selected candidates who appeared to them most suited for employment at the time they appeared before the Committee.
- (c) Government are informed that the appointment was made in 1930 and the information asked for is not now available.
- (d) There were only five apprentices.
- (i) Train Examiners in the 1933 batch, who passed out of the Technical School and of these only one was an Indian, who obtained 54% marks in the final examination. The ex-apprentice who was appointed obtained 84% marks.
- (d) (ii) and (f) The men referred to were considered by the Selection Committee to be the best all round men for the posts. If seniority is to be taken as the determining factor in making selections of time-expired apprentices, there would be no necessity for appointing selection committees to select the best men offering.
- (e) Government do not consider their intervention is called for.

THE FACTORIES BILL.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The House will now resume the third reading of the Factories Bill.

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria (Bombay Northern Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, the amount of agreement and approval which this measure has commanded in this House ought to be a matter of congratulation for my Honourable friend, the Mover. Some of that agreement and approval may be due to the popularity which my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, enjoys in this House, but while some of the agreement in this House to the present measure may be due to the personality of the Honourable the Mover, I think a great part of that agreement should be ascribed to the intrinsic merits of the measure. From the point of view of the workman, from the point of view of the employer and from the point of view of the country at large, there is abundant material in the measure itself which should command approval in and outside this House. This very welcome phenomenon of agreement of the non-official Benches with an official measure like the present is all the more remarkable when one considers that the initiation of the very first measure on factory legislation in India in the early seventies was due almost entirely to the jealousy which the nascent cotton textile industry of India had aroused in Lancashire. It is remarkable that during the whole of the debate I have heard not a single Honourable Member mention the very name of Lancashire. It is possible that it is a happy augury of the movement to which my Honourable friend, Mr. James, alluded at the last Session. The representative of the employers, Mr. Mody, blessed the measure with his complete approval, Mr. Mody—the enemy of labour and the avowed friend of labour leaders. My Honourable friend, the Deputy President, no doubt had some criticism to offer and he said that many “vital” matters concerning labour were omitted in this Bill and he instanced the non-provision of restricting the hours of labour to 48 hours per week. My Honourable friend, the Deputy President, ought to realise that there is a distinction between the ideal and the practical, that there is a distinction between conditions obtaining in Europe and conditions obtaining in India. The principle of the Bill is the protection of the country from the evils which are inherent in the factory system based on the institution of capital. But that principle so far as India is concerned has to be viewed in the light of more than one consideration. It must be remembered that India is industrially a backward country. It has got to compete with foreign countries which have developed their industrial system unshackled by restrictive legislation like the present. We must also remember that the industrial areas of British India are surrounded and interlaced with native States territory where restrictive legislation like the present does not obtain or if it obtains at all not to such a degree as it does in British India. When the Honourable the Finance Member, last year or in 1932, brought forward his Bill for taxing foreign income, my Honourable friend, Mr. Mody, and I warned the Government against the danger of British Indian capital, on account of restrictive industrial legislation to which this country was subjected, taking flight to the neighbouring native States.

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Say Indian States.

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria : I am a native of India, and I do not see why I should not call them native States.

There is a second consideration which should affect the framing of a measure like the present, and that is the fact that the Indian industrial labourer is first and last an agriculturist. Industrial labourer as a whole-time worker, as a class, has not yet developed in India and, as you are aware, Sir, human effort in India is more extensive than intensive as it is in Europe. That is to say, the Indian labourer having his traditions in agriculture produces much less in a given period of time than the European labourer, and if you restrict his hours of labour unduly, you restrict unduly his means of earning his livelihood. Protection, Sir, should not be a protection which protects the Indian labourer out of his means of livelihood. If you look through the Bill, you will find that these various conflicting considerations have been given effect to in a well balanced manner.

Lastly, Sir, I would point out that, however beneficent a law may be as regards its provisions, the beneficent effect which it produces in the country depends very much upon the men who administer it and the way in which it is administered. I was very glad to hear the name of Mr. Johnstone, the Chief Factory Inspector in the Bombay Presidency, and I have got personal experience of the way in which Mr. Johnstone administers the factory law in the Bombay Presidency. Unfortunately, all the Factory Inspectors in India cannot be Mr. Johnstones.....

Mr. B. Das : How do you know it ?

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria : It is impossible, I say ; just as everybody cannot be Mr. B. Das, so every Factory Inspector in India cannot be Mr. Johnstone. And, Sir, I would respectfully suggest to the Government that as regards the provisions regarding prosecutions, some latitude may be allowed for withdrawal of prosecutions in cases where there is no contumacy, and the offence appears to be merely a technical one. Sir, with these few words I support the Third Reading of this Bill.

Mr. G. Morgan (Bengal : European) : Sir, whatever disappointment I may have felt in that Government could not see their way to accept the majority of my amendments, it is nothing to the shock I got when my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, said he had come to the conclusion that it was evident I neither represented capital nor labour. I hope, however, my Honourable friend will change his opinion in the near future.....

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce (Member for Industries and Labour) : I am not sure if I heard my friend correctly, but I never said at any time that he represented neither capital nor labour. I know perfectly well what interests he represents, and those interests, to the best of my knowledge, might not unfairly be described as the interests of capital.

Mr. G. Morgan : I am sorry if I have misunderstood the Honourable Member, anyhow I do not take any offence at all, but I think my Honourable friend said something to that effect in his reply to one of my amendments.

With regard to the Bill, I wish again to emphasise the opinion I have already put forward, namely that the Bill is of too general application and that the revision of the present Act should have been such as to give special attention to each major industry. The different industries such as the cotton mills, jute mills, engineering companies and shipbuilding works, saw mills, rice mills and jute presses are all combined and brought under the purview of this measure. Therefore, as the Bill is of general application, I would now ask the Government to give us an assurance that under clause 80 there will be careful scrutiny of all rules and regulations made by the Local Government so that the power under this clause may be effective. It is a co-ordinating clause, and we do feel that there may be great difficulty between province and province, and I would ask the Government of India to scrutinise carefully all those regulations and rules so that they can exercise the powers under clause 80 properly and equitably to prevent differences and difficulties arising out of the Provincial rules and regulations. Sir, I support the Third Reading of this Bill.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I offer my sincere congratulations to the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce for successfully introducing and piloting this Bill. This Bill is conceived in the right spirit and is intended to ameliorate the conditions of Indian labour. India was in former times a country of cottage industries and the factory system was almost unknown. After the advent of steam power, big factories began to rise and the capitalists came forward to take advantage of the factory system. It is a well-known fact, Sir, that the capitalists in India had only one point of view, and that was to get as much profit as possible. They looked upon the Indian labourer in the same way as they looked upon the machinery they had purchased. They wanted to take as much work from them as they could, but, Sir, foreign philanthropists began to raise a voice against the exploitation of Indian labour, and Government were obliged to give up their attitude of laissez faire and they started inquiries. I am reminded of the Factory Commission that was appointed in the good old days, in which the late Dr. Nair of Madras took a prominent part, and he was assisted by another philanthropist Rao Bahadur Narayan Meghajee Lokhande of Bombay who had himself risen from the position of a worker in a mill. As a result of that inquiry certain legislative provisions were made, and at that time the hours of work were regulated. Before that they used to work for very long hours and contrary to the advice of my friend Dr. Dalal, Mr. Anklesaria comes forward to justify long hours in the case of Indian labour....

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria : In their own interest.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : When you say in their own interest, perhaps you mean in the interest of the capitalists and not in the interests of labour. I might state here, Sir, that a human being is a human being. Whether he is born in the West or in the East, I think he has to obey certain laws. Fatigue is common to both. If a labourer in England or in Europe is fatigued after constant work for a certain number of hours, it does not follow that a brother labourer in India will be able to maintain his vigour and strength for longer hours on account of the heat of this country. They say heat expands. I do not think it expands the staying power of a man ; on the contrary, heat is injurious to it. Although I do not accept the theory of Mr. Anklesaria I leave him to the enjoyment of the credit of having expounded a new theory in this House.

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria : Not a new theory at all.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Is it as old as you ?

Mr. N. N. Anklesaria : As old as yourself or anybody else.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Another point I may allude to here is the organisation of labour. As soon as the factory system came into India, poor indigent persons began to go there for labour and earn their livelihood. They found that the conditions there were not suitable to healthy living, and philanthropists came forward to teach them how to get their grievances redressed by combining. The instances of labour unions in England and other western countries were followed and the labour movement in India began. At present it is not very well organised, but there are the seeds of organisation. It is a pity that the Indian labourer is generally misled by political propagandists. One reason for his being misled is his ignorance. He is wholly illiterate, he has got a very narrow outlook on life. He is priest-ridden, superstitious, and therefore very easily gullible. Political propagandists have found that the Indian labourer is a very convenient material to handle. The conditions of Indian labour favour these propagandists. The labourer is ill-fed, ill-clothed, and ill-housed. Nobody looks after his comforts. There are certain organisations which do some welfare work, but it is very perfunctorily done and leaves the labourer a discontented man. The political worker or agitator who has borrowed his ideas from books, and not from any experience....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member is covering a very much wider ground than is warranted in the Third Reading. The whole field of labour legislation and labour problems is not open for discussion. The Third Reading must be confined to the principles arising from the clauses of the Bill.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : I shall curtail my remarks. In short, socialistic doctrines are making a steady progress among the Indian labourers and the apathy of the capitalists is responsible for it. The capitalists have done very little for them, and, therefore, they fall an easy prey to the preachings of the agitator. The capitalists in general ought to recognise that more and more clamour will be raised in favour of the labourer. Government have now awakened to the necessity of dealing evenly with the labourers and therefore they appointed the Whitley Commission and they are legislating according to the recommendations of that Commission. More and more Bills of this nature will, I hope, come forward and help the Indian labourer to get what is due to him. With these few words I again congratulate the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill.

Sir Abdur Rahim (Calcutta and Suburbs : Muhammadan Urban) : I welcome this measure despite its obvious limitations and defects. I admit it is some improvement on the present law, and, as such, we ought to be thankful to the Government for having effected this improvement. The improvement is to be found especially in the reduction of the hours of labour from 60 to 54 hours a week for perennial factories. I have already said that my own personal opinion is that it should be further reduced to 48 hours, but in deference to the report of the Royal Commission, throughout which I find strong evidence of sympathy for labour and a desire to improve their conditions of life,—in deference to their opinion, especially as they had had the advantage of consulting the various parties interested and of anticipating the difficulties that might arise if proposals of a somewhat radical character were made, I am content for the time being with the reduction that has been proposed in this Bill. In the second reading I pointed out to the Government and made suggestions with a view that certain defects that were apparent in the Bill should be removed by them. In the present state of attendance of Honourable Members in this House, it was impossible for me to expect that any amendment that we put forward would be carried to a division. I therefore appealed to my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, if he would see his way to accept the suggestions that I made. I was aware that there were no amendments to that effect, but that would not stand in the way of the Government themselves, if they thought my suggestions were reasonable, to accept them and to amend their Bill accordingly. I am alluding to two defects which appear in the Bill.

One is the extremely wide powers that are left to the Local Governments, so much so that I feel apprehensive that the uniformity which is desirable in a legislation of this character and which is desired by the Government, by the employers and by the representatives of labour, may not be secured. I am also apprehensive that some of the provinces which are industrially developed may be loath to advance as far as my Honourable friend opposite would like to, and certainly they may not be eager to advance as far as the Royal Commission had in contemplation. But, Sir, there is a much more serious objection still left, and that is the discretion, almost uncontrolled discretion that is given to the inspecting staff. I pointed out in my last speech that when the Inspector has found that certain things are necessary according to the provisions of the Act and those things can be done and suitable measures can be adopted by the owners of factories without any undue cost, even then he is at liberty to enforce or not the provisions of the law. He has a discretion in the matter. Even when for instance he finds that there is not sufficient ventilation in a factory, that there is not sufficient sanitary arrangement and things of that character, still, the Bill, which will soon be passed into law, gives him a discretion whether to apply the provisions of the Bill or not. The only answer that I got from my Honourable friend was that the word 'may' occurs in the old Act itself. If the old Act was satisfactory, why did the Labour Commission find that the state of things was such that legislation on a very wide scale and in different aspects has to be undertaken if the condition of labour was to be improved. I do not think that my Honourable friend is in a position to state that the old Factory Act has been so successful that we ought to repeat the provisions of that Act. That is not the case, but I hope that, even in spite of these defects, the Local Governments under whom the inspecting staff will have to work will see to it that the provisions of the Act are fully carried out. I hope that, in the near future, labour and all that concerns labour and industries will be entirely in charge of ministers responsible to the legislature and no doubt my Honourable friend opposite will say that it will depend on the responsible ministers to see that the inspectors do their duties properly and carry out to the fullest extent the provisions of the Act. Sir, I also hope that the future Government will realise their full responsibility in this respect. My only doubt was that having regard to the fact that labour is so thoroughly unorganised and capital is so well organised in this country, that even responsible Ministers may find it difficult sometimes to resist pressure proceeding from influential quarters. When I was speaking at the Second Reading of the Bill, I asked for information from the Government on various other matters which are dealt with in the Royal Commission's report. My Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, has been good enough to send me a copy of the report of the action taken or contemplated by the Central Government and the Local Governments on the various recommendations of the Commission. I have gone through them, I don't say with great care. I have looked into them and I find that that book gives almost all the information that I wanted. I wish we were in a position at this stage to deal with that report and make such suggestions with respect to it as might occur to us for the consideration of the Government, because there are many cases in which decisions have not been arrived at by the Central Government or the Local Governments and some Local Governments have expressed opinions on certain matters on which it might have been helpful to my Honourable friend opposite to hear what we have got to say. May I suggest to the Government and to the Leader of the House that, whenever a Bill or any measure is placed before us based on the report of an important commission like the Labour Commission, when the matters are of a complicated and diverse nature and the Central Government after consulting the Local Governments and other bodies have either arrived at certain tentative conclusions or consider that certain steps have to be deferred for some reason or other, I submit it will be a source of great convenience to us, on this side of the House, if we had a report of that kind placed in our hands before the discussion on the measure in question began. I do not think it would prejudice the Government in any way. I know the report was laid on the table of the library but a report like that, I do submit, ought to be in the hands of every member of the House, so that they will know exactly what action the Government has taken and what action they are not inclined to take or do not find it feasible to take. At any rate if I had a report like that, my speech might have been shorter than it was on the last occasion and that would have been some gain to the House. The benefit that will be derived from an Act of this nature will not be anything up to the expectations of those who are interested in the welfare and efficiency of labour in this country, unless other measures of a connected nature are also passed in order to supplement the object of this Bill. Some other Acts have already been passed on the report of the Commission. I am also aware that Government have under consideration and have also prepared certain other measures which will be placed before us. It is only on the cumulative effect of all these measures that we shall be able to judge how far really the position of the workers in this country is going to be improved. The Whitley Commission repeatedly pointed out that the question of raising the standard of living of the workers is one of crucial importance and it is upon that really that the efficiency of the workers and their well-being depends. That is a matter upon which I do not think the present Government would be inclined to think of legislating. I do not know what the future Government will do. I know in many civilized countries Governments are taking steps to raise the standard of living of their people. Our Government, on the contrary, is very far from any such idea, and it will depend, as the Royal Commission pointed out, mainly if not entirely, in the present circumstances, on the efforts of the workers themselves and their leaders if they are to improve their position in respect of wages and the general conditions in which they have got to live and work.

There is another matter of very great importance, of fundamental importance, upon which the future development of industries in this country as well as the well-being of the workers themselves depends, and that is the education of the workers. So far as the education of the masses generally is concerned, we know that India occupies the very lowest place among the important countries of the world. I do not think there is any other country in which illiteracy and ignorance is so overwhelming and universal among the people as in India. The Commission made suggestions by which a beginning could be made in the factories at least in all concerns which employ labour on a large scale, for educating if not the adult workers at least, the juvenile workers employed there. Sir, I do hope the Government will not take up the attitude that the question of education ought to be dealt with by the Local Governments and that they here at the Centre have no concern with the question of education. This is one of those matters which depends largely upon the initiative of the Central Government. Time after time it has been pressed on the Government of India, not only by Indian public opinion, but by men holding responsible positions who are not Indians, that until the Central Government comes to the aid of Local Governments, definitely in this matter, no progress, at any rate no substantial progress, is possible. It is possible that some of the provinces have done their best to promote primary education, but I know at least in my province of Bengal primary education has not advanced to any appreciable extent. Now, Sir, when we are dealing with the Report of the Royal Commission, I should like to impress upon the Government of India that so far as the recommendations of this Commission regarding education are concerned those should be accepted by them and carried out in the spirit in which the proposals are made. Sir, my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, said in reply to my speech on the second reading that he was shocked that I did not appreciate what the Government had done with respect to.....

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I do not think I said that, "I can well understand that the Leader of the Opposition might be shocked by what Government have done or have failed to do". What I said was that I was shocked that he did not know what we did or failed to do. That is not quite the same thing.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Of course I could not have anything like all the information which that report gives because that report was not available to us. It might have been in the Library but there are heaps of books and pamphlets in the Library and we are not expected to read everyone of them before coming here and discussing the Bills that are placed before the House. That is not a possibility which I think the Government ought to contemplate. Some Honourable Members opposite tell us that we ought to consult dictionaries when we ask them certain questions. Also we are often referred, in answer to our questions, to some paper that was laid on the table two years back. I do submit, Sir, with all respect to you, that the Government are not helping this side at all if they refer us to some papers that were laid on the table of the House two or three years back. Sir, I do say I was perfectly justified in asking for information from my Honourable friend as to what action the Government had taken with regard to the various recommendations of the Royal Commission; and because I was ignorant on that point, as regards the action or steps taken by them, because they did not supply us with that information, I am not prepared to plead guilty to any charge that the Government might bring of not having taken care to know the facts. However that may be, I do not want to prolong this debate. Speaking from this side of the House I have been feeling for the last few days very great difficulties in criticising the action of the Government because our own men do not take any interest in important matters of this character. If my Honourable friend complained on that ground, that any criticism which emanated from me, speaking from the empty Benches on this side of the House, was shocking, I would plead guilty to that charge. Sir, I have come to realise that it depends more and more upon the Government themselves whether they do the right thing by the people or not. We do not seem to be in a position to force them to do it. We can only appeal to them to do the right thing. If they do it, well and good. If they discharge the responsibility which they have assumed towards the people, they would be clearing their own conscience. Sir, I am not in the habit of indulging in compliments but I must admit, having read the report, that my Honourable friend and his Department have not been sleeping over the matter. I admit that fully. They have been examining every single recommendation of the report and calling for reports from the Local Governments as to what they think about those recommendations and what action they are prepared to take. They are doing their duty, but still I must say that my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, Mr. Clow and the rest of the Department deserve every credit for the interest they have shown in this matter and the earnestness with which they are taking steps to see that the recommendations of the Royal Commission are carried out and given effect to as fully as possible.

One appeal, that I would like to make to my Honourable friend, is this. Now that the Act will be passed, rules will have to be framed. I take it that the Government of India will see that proper rules are framed. After the rules have been framed, as I pointed out, the administration of the Act will be entirely in the hands of the Local Governments, especially the Chief Inspector and the inspecting staff. I believe that the present law, at any rate, does not debar this Central Government from exercising full supervision and control over the administration of this Act and other Acts relating to labour. Even under the future Constitution, I believe, labour legislation is going to be a Central subject or at least a concurrent subject. Even then, I take it, the Central Government will have the power to see that these Acts are fully enforced by the Local Governments through the local officials.

Sir, I have nothing more to say. I do hope that this Act and other similar Acts that have been passed will be of real help to the workers. If the workers benefit, if they are made happy, if they are made more efficient, then the industries of the country will prosper and everybody will be benefited by the prosperity which the development of our industries will necessarily bring about. I therefore earnestly hope and pray that this Act along with the other labour Acts will bring about the beneficial results that are anticipated by us and the Government.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions: Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I appreciate the honest attempts of the Honourable Member and his Department to carry out the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Labour and I congratulate my Honourable friend, Sir Frank Noyce, for the able manner in which he has piloted the Bill in the Assembly, although I must say that, as he was quite immune to all the arguments brought forward from this side of the House, he is also suffering like his other colleagues on the Treasury Benches from what I called the intoxication of the fourth type. Sir, in discussing these questions, as was pointed out by my Leader, Honourable Members on the Treasury Benches entirely forget that the position in India in this House is different from the position in the British Parliament. In the British Parliament, the Opposition had been the Government at some time or other, but in our case the Government is a permanent Government and we on the Opposition Benches have never been in the place of Government and therefore are not in a position to know all the facts and documents which are at the disposal of the members on the Government Benches. Talking of the Library, it reminds me of a story that in a college library, a member of the governing body, before sanctioning the money for the purchase of a new library, demanded that a certificate must be produced by the librarian to the effect that the students have finished all the books now in the library before fresh books could be purchased. I suppose a similar certificate perhaps might be demanded from the Secretary of the Legislative Assembly to the effect that the Members of the Legislative Assembly have read all the statements, documents and reports that were placed in the Library in order that they may be sure that we come here well prepared; Sir, I feel very unhappy regarding this particular Bill about certain points and if this measure is passed then I shall feel still more unhappy about the whole thing. The first thing that I wish to say is, as was pointed out by my Leader and also by Mr. Morgan, that we are giving too large powers to the Local Governments, and when these Local Governments have used these powers and have made their regulations, and if you then read this Bill with all divergent regulations, you will find that the Bill that we passed was entirely a different thing. The second point, about which I am very unhappy, is the large powers that we have provided for factory Inspectors who are like:

Their position will be very similar to the position of the Income-tax officers against whose orders practically there is no appeal and the only thing that you can do in that case is to abide by their decisions without question. Similarly the factory owners will do well to abide by his decision, good or bad, if they want really to carry on their business. The third thing, about which I feel very unhappy, is the provision that is in the Bill about medical inspection. My friend, Dr. Dalal, has pointed out that so few men are really versed in the science of anthropometry. It is certainly a new science and I am sure that it has not yet been included in the medical course of our medical schools and colleges.

Then the inspection, according to his ideals, will practically be only in theory, and it will be cursory, because those men who will give certificates are ignorant of this very important new science which has now got a great future on account of the new legislation that we have introduced. It will be exceedingly hard for the labourers to secure a certificate as the expense, legitimate and illegitimate, may be enormous. My Honourable friend has pointed out that he would look into the matter. I suggest that he should have adopted a different course, instead of demanding a medical certificate, before beginning the service, he should have introduced the system of medical inspection to those labourers in factories on the same lines as we have got medical inspection to school children.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Does my Honourable friend also suggest medical inspection for Members of this House?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I would very much welcome medical inspection, for in that case the seats of those members who are medically unfit would be declared vacant and the opposition will be strengthened. I suggest that instead of demanding a medical certificate at the outset we should introduce a system of medical inspection to these labourers on the same lines and in the same manner as the medical inspection to school children. In that case the burden on the labourers will be minimised. Any person who is found unfit for a particular kind of work, may be shifted to another kind of work and if he is quite unfit he may be removed to a hospital or a sanitarium and a thing of this kind will exceedingly be beneficial to them.

Another thing, on which I am exceedingly unhappy, is the entire discussion on the hours of work. Everybody will admit that our labour is inferior in quality to the labour in the West and this deficiency in quality can only be made up by quantity and so we cannot apply the same principle to Indian conditions as exist in the West. Otherwise, if the labour is inferior in quality and we insist on the same quantity as in other countries because production will increase then in the competition of the world, we will be very much handicapped. This is an important factor which you cannot ignore. We have really to compete in the production with the rest of the world and we cannot increase the cost of production because the whole industry would fail. In this connection, in order to improve the quality, my Leader has pointed out two important factors which we ought to carry out. The one is education. Unless we have compulsory education it is impossible to get an intelligent class of labourers. This is a thing which we ought to press in season and out of season, relevantly or irrelevantly. The Government must take up this question of compulsory education in order to train efficient labourers. The second thing is about the housing problem, because a person who is accustomed to live comfortably will also be able to do more efficient work than a person who is practically keeping awake all night for want of a proper house and who may be suffering on account of unhealthy surroundings. He cannot be expected to do any efficient work in the morning. The next point, on which I am unhappy, is clause 5, in which Local Governments have got power to extend the definition of a factory. Of course my amendment was rejected by the House but I think the Government ought to have accepted at least one thing that in this particular case, before a Local Government may extend the definition, the permission of the Government of India ought to have been obtained. At least in this case they ought to have kept this in their own hands in order to see that this extension of the definition, which is a very important item, should be used very sparingly and with great discretion and not used with enormous diversity in different provinces.

After giving certain arguments as to why I am very unhappy, I now come to another class of arguments and I appeal to the House that we should reject the whole Bill. My first argument for the rejection of the Bill is that India is an agricultural country pure and simple. The factory labourers are comparatively very few. I have not got a copy of the census report, and when I asked the librarian, I was told that the book was out. This is really the condition of the Assembly Library.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : That shows that our Library is being very well used by Members.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I quite admit that the Library is so much used by the Members that some other Members have not got the chance to use the Library because, in the race for getting books first, others get preference. I was saying that I have not got the figures before me, but I may say that the factory labour is a very small part and the bulk of the labour in this country is agricultural labour and they form something over 90 per cent. It is well known that the Commerce Department is doing everything for a small minority and they are overlooking a large section of labourers, that is agricultural labourers who are practically starving and living from hand to mouth. We have passed several Bills, and we had several Commissions and we have carried out all the instructions of the Labour Commission, but we have not carried out the recommendations of the Agricultural Commission and no Bills have been brought forward to safeguard agricultural labourers in this country. It is still an unsettled question whether agricultural labour is in the Department of Industries or in the Department of my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I can answer that at once. It is under the Department of Education, Health and Lands.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I see this Department is not so strongly represented in the House and therefore we are not having as many Bills to safeguard agricultural labour as we have for factory labour. Whenever we talk of the poverty of India, we always keep in mind the labourers in the villages who are practically starving and who depend for their livelihood on the cultivators in the villages who occasionally employ them to help them in their fields. We are producing Bills after Bills to ameliorate the conditions of factory labour and nothing has been done to improve the conditions of agricultural labour and, I hope, my Honourable friend, Mr. Bajpai, whom I now see in the House, will be able to help the agricultural labour, and, though he may not be able to produce 12 Bills, I hope he will produce at least half a dozen Bills to improve the conditions of agricultural labour. That is one reason why I oppose this Bill, because you are doing everything for a microscopic minority and doing nothing for the labourers who form a majority. The second argument why this Bill should be rejected is, that the kind of action that we have been taking to settle this question between capital and labour is not the proper one by which we can solve this problem. We ought to attack this problem from an entirely different point of view. I believe that by these measures we do not compose the differences between employers and the employee, the capital and labour and the solution of the problem will become more remote. We ought to handle this problem in a different manner and by that method alone we hope to solve the problem. Before I come to that argument I would like to make passing reference to strike. The origin of the strike of labourers lies in the fact they have got the idea that the capitalists are using the whole of their labour for their personal benefits. This belief is impressed in their minds that the capitalists are making huge profits of 20 or 30 per cent. and they are giving insufficient wages and making fat dividends at the sacrifice of the labourers. I was in Bombay in May last and some of the leaders of the labourers told me this definitely. I know they were wrong in their statement but they actually believed it and that was the cause of the strike. But they said that all the millowners of Bombay were making fat profits and giving fat dividends at the sacrifice of the labourers who are given very poor wages. When this idea is present in their minds it is impossible to find a solution; and I thought that, instead of having a Bill of this kind, we should tackle this problem in a different manner and no legislation will in future be necessary. That remedy is that you ought to create a feeling by means of which the interests of the workers and the interests of the capitalists ought to be identical. The workers should be made to believe that their interests are the interests of the employers and the employers should be made to believe that their interests are the interests of the labourers. They should be unified together, and, unless this ideal condition is achieved, it is impossible to avoid strikes and to create good feelings between the employers and the labourers. You try to create legislation but the effect of the legislation will be the creation of greater and greater discontent among these two classes of people.

Now, Sir, I will tell you how you can have these two things combined together and how you can have uniformity of interests between the labourers and the employers. In the first place the labourers should be made to believe that the employers do not make a profit entirely for their own good. If there is any profit in the factory it will go proportionately to the labourers as well, and if there is a loss to the factory this loss will be borne to a greater extent by the employers and to a smaller extent by the labourers. If there is a profit it will be shared equally. The moment you make the labourers believe that the profits are used for their advantage as well, then I am sure they will never go on strikes and the diversity of interests between the labourers and the employers which exists at present will practically disappear. And this can be done in this way. First you legislate that every factory will be allowed to have so much profit and the profit which is supposed to be reasonable is that you allow so much for depreciation, and so much for the reserve fund, and so much for interest charges and so much for profit. After allowing for all these four things, whatever additional profit is left must be divided proportionately between the labourers and the employers. If it goes entirely to the employers, and no share is given to the labourers, then you produce discontent among them and they will demand a direct share in the way of increased wages and if you do not agree to that they will go on strike. But if you make the labourers believe that they are entitled to get their share from these additional profits that accrue in that particular factory, then the question of strikes will practically disappear, and therefore to achieve this object the ideal way is that you should have your union of these labour employees and that union should be represented in the directorate. They should have access to the accounts and they should know definitely what are the profits that accrued to this particular company.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member can resume his speech after Lunch.

The Assembly then adjourned for Lunch till Half Past Two of the Clock.

The Assembly re-assembled after Lunch at Half Past Two of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Sir, just before the lunch interval, I was developing my point in order that I might convince my colleagues to vote with me and reject the entire Bill. The first argument that I advanced before lunch was that India is primarily an agricultural country.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair has allowed very considerable latitude to the Honourable Member in his speech. The condition of agricultural workers and any scheme of profit sharing in factories are subjects entirely outside the scope of this Bill, and, if he continues his remarks on these subjects, the Chair will have to say that he is irrelevant.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I have said quite enough on this topic before lunch (Laughter), and I need not recapitulate them for the benefit of Members, because I hope that they will remember what I said. I will take up the topic from the place I left, without further recapitulation.

The fundamental object of this particular Bill, which I am going to oppose, is that it seeks to provide better understanding between capitalists and labourers. The object is that industries may flourish under better conditions and everybody may live a contented life and strikes may be a thing of the past. Strikes are a modern institution; they were unknown to ancient India; and it is really one of the achievements of modern civilisation and we should try to meet strikes by modern methods and not by the old system. We should create an atmosphere in which capitalists and labourers may live contented lives with mutual understanding. If mutual understanding is achieved by the methods I described, then it will be quite unnecessary to have this kind of legislation and we can achieve our object by more direct methods. When there are two parties fighting, as is the case with capital and labour, then there are two ways of settling the fight. One is to fix by rules and regulations the jurisdictions, limitations and the other restrictions that we can lay upon them so that they may all work within their particular spheres. The other method is to make them both come together on friendly terms so that all these limitations and rules and regulations may be unnecessary. My friend, the Member in charge of Industries and Labour, tries to settle the question by the first method; he wants to regulate the jurisdiction of labour and capital by a series of enactments. I want to solve it by the second method, by having friendly relations between labour and capital, so that all these enactments may be quite unnecessary. There are these two different points of view, and if I can convince my Honourable colleagues on this side that the second method is the more practical method and will achieve the end desired, then this Bill and similar Bills which might follow would become absolutely unnecessary, and this is what I wish to emphasise. In order to have amicable relations and good understanding between labour and capital they should realise that their interests are identical. So long as they feel that there is divergence of interest, it will be impossible to talk of any kind of union between them. But if we can secure by some method that the parties realise that their interests are identical, that they can work in harmony, then legislation of this type is quite unnecessary. The managers should enter into the feelings of their labourers and realise what they desire: they must understand that the workers are ignorant people, without the benefit of education which the managers have got; that the workers do not know the methods of recreation and how to use their time and live comfortably; the managers ought to enter into their society and establish clubs at their own expense and teach the workers how to live cheerfully and nicely. The labourers also should be contented as their minimum wages are ensured; they should realise that while factories work at a loss they will get only the ensured minimum wage, while if factories work at a profit, they will get additional bonus and this is quite possible to be achieved. The capitalists should realise that they are entitled to some kind of minimum out of the profits, and, if they make over and above that minimum, they should not take the whole of it but should share it with the labourers and others who helped to produce the profit.....

Mr. B. Das : And also the Finance Member of the Government of India.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : As regards the Finance Member, I am afraid, I tried my best to convince this House that this Legislative Assembly should be considered as a factory, but unfortunately my view was not shared by all ; otherwise the Finance Member and ourselves would have derived some benefit out of the revenues of the Government of India.....

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar (Law Member) : If this is a factory, it is a gas factory.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : But my view, which I expressed the other day, in connection with clause 5 of the Bill, was unfortunately not accepted by this House, and, therefore, the view that my Honourable friend has accepted has been ruled out of order by his own votes.....

Mr. B. Das : What I implied was that the surplus profit of the employers must be shared by the parties which my Honourable friend mentioned, and also by the Honourable the Finance Member who draws it in the shape of income and super-taxes.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I quite understand that the income-tax that has to be levied is really a legitimate expenditure and I am thinking of the profit after paying all these legitimate dues. In this case if the labourers realise that they have a legitimate share in the earnings.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member is continuing his irrelevancy.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I am just coming to the practical side.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member's suggestion may be very practical, but it will not be relevant to this Bill, and I would ask him to come to relevant suggestions.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I am coming to them. If we follow the methods I suggest, this Bill is unnecessary, and that is the point which I say is relevant ; as I am opposed to this Bill and I want to convince the House that the method I suggest is more practical for achieving the results sought in this Bill, and unless I advance my argument it is impossible for my friends to vote with me. As I said, Sir, we must have uniformity of interests in these cases ; the employers should take part in the recreations of the employees ; while on the other hand, the employees should have one of their representatives on the directorate of the company, and that person should take part in all discussions that may take place concerning not only the welfare of the employees but also the general progress of the company, but he should have no votes, because the labourers will then know what is the real income of the company, and if the labourers are convinced of the true position of the company, if they are taken into confidence by the company, if they are shown the balance sheets and all the relevant papers which are placed before the directors, then they will realise that it is not right for them to demand higher wages. They will then realise that if there is a loss made by the company, it is not right to demand higher wages ; they will also feel sure that if there is a loss made by the company their wages will not be cut down, that they will be paid out of the reserves which they are going to build and the capitalist alone will suffer ; but if on the other hand there is any profit, they will get a proportionate share. But they should be told always what is the total amount of profit earned by the company so that they may get their legitimate share of it. Sir, I consider that the legitimate share of a capitalist may be classified under four heads. In the first place, there must be some fund reserved.....

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, I rise to a point of order. My friend is endeavouring to persuade the House to reject this Bill in favour of some solution which he is putting forward. I would ask you whether it is relevant to discuss that solution in view of the fact that there must be some legislation to control factories in the interval until a happy utopia which he is advocating is reached ?

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : My intention is simply this. If I want to convince my colleagues on this side to vote for me and reject this Bill, I can only do so by persuading them to accept a better method of achieving the object than the method which is suggested in this Bill.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair would point out to the Honourable Member that a detailed discussion with regard to profit sharing, or, what ought to be the legitimate charges on the profits of a company, is irrelevant to this Bill, and the Chair would again point out that what he has been talking after lunch is absolutely irrelevant. If he continues in his irrelevancy the Chair will have to ask him to resume his seat.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : If you consider, Sir, that any discussion on this Bill in favour of my suggestion with a view to throwing out the Bill altogether and take up a better view of the solution of the problem of capital and labour is out of order, then I have no alternative.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Quite so. Now, the Honourable Member has come to the point of his irrelevancy. If the object of this Bill were to find a solution for the conflict between capital and labour, then all his remarks would be relevant, but the object of the Bill is not so wide as all that. It is very much restricted ; it is only to regulate the conditions of workers in factories, and for that purpose all the remarks that the Honourable Member is making are absolutely irrelevant.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : My point was that there are two ways of solving this particular problem either by means of regulation or.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : But the problem is to regulate labour in factories.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : With which I do not agree. I do not agree for a moment that the methods suggested in the Bill to regulate labour are correct methods, and, therefore, I oppose the whole Bill, and I say that the methods which I suggest are the correct methods.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair can only tell the Honourable Member that he is absolutely irrelevant.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : If you do not want me to speak, I shall not continue.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member can certainly speak anything relevant.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I consider what I say to be quite relevant, but if you consider it to be irrelevant, I shall not say anything.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I hope I am not standing up to prolong the agony of irrelevancies on this occasion, but merely to convey to the Honourable Member in charge the cordial approbation of this side of the very useful measure which he has almost passed in this House.

Sir, under this measure, there will be less difficulties for the people whom the Bill is intended to benefit.

As many of us are anxious to get away from this Session to the plains to face new difficulties,—I believe I am echoing the sentiments of many a Member of the Opposition when I say that we want to conclude discussion, not only on this Bill, but on other Bills as well, so that the Government may be able to release us from an inevitable bondage—staying up here.

Sir, I congratulate the Honourable Member in charge for bringing forward such a useful measure.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai (Sind : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, I do not propose to be lengthy, nor do I propose to take up the time of the House with any irrelevant matter, but I shall confine myself strictly to the Bill itself. I support it, I am not for its rejection. I have taken part in this Bill at its former stages. The first time that I took part in the discussion of this measure was at the time of its consideration, and I said then that this Bill was in the interests of the workers, and that with certain improvements, which were absolutely necessary, it would be a very sound enactment. Sir, I then thought that it would be much better to present certain difficulties and improvements which I thought were necessary by way of amendments. I put forward several amendments, and though almost all the amendments that have been put forward, not by me alone, but by several other Honourable Members, have been rejected, yet as an optimist I must say that I am not disappointed. I take it that this Bill, as it is going to be passed, is the first instalment of the attempt in the direction of improving the welfare of workers, and I hope that the Honourable Member in charge of this Bill will consider seriously all the suggestions that have been made and see that they are carried out in the spirit in which they were made. The improvements which we have suggested are not such as not to be considered to have no substance in them at all. Sir, there are very strong grounds for making those improvements, and I hope that the Honourable Member in charge will watch carefully the working of this measure and devise means to make the improvements we have suggested.

With regard to the Bill, the first thing that I want to draw the attention of the House to is the attitude of the Government Benches in connection with Bills that emerge from Select Committees. This is a typical instance to show what their mentality is. Certain provisions there were in the original Bill and some of them have been eliminated by the Select Committee. It cannot be said that those provisions have no substance in them or that they were really such as to be rightly eliminated. I was not on the Select Committee, reasons might have been given, but I do not know how the Select Committee were persuaded to eliminate at least one clause about which I had put in an amendment. I, therefore, submit that the attitude of the Government Benches should not be that they are infallible. The Government's attitude should be an open one, and when there are any amendments the duty of the Whips or of the speakers on their side should not be that everything that has been passed by the Select Committee should be carried through at all costs. No doubt, our representatives are there on the Select Committee, but all the same when the Bill comes to us, does it come to us only to be passed as a matter of course by us ? Then where is the necessity of giving time to the House for consideration stage, then discussion clause by clause and then the Third Reading ? I therefore hope, that the attitude of the Government will not be that every amendment, however good and sound it may be, should be thrown out. The first omission is about the surgeons or doctors who, though they are interested directly or indirectly, may be appointed for the purpose. I hope the Honourable Member in charge will, at no distant date, bring in an amendment to the effect that the certifying doctor should be a man who is not interested. Instances were given to us of difficulties that would arise if this were done. Mr. Sen, who was a member of the Select Committee, thought that he could not budge an inch from the reasons that were given in the Select Committee for taking away this clause. I have always a liking and regard for him, he knows it, but when he says that Bengal has not got registered medical practitioners in the mufassil, it is discreditable if it is true. But nowadays in the mufassil there are places where there are medical practitioners, and if they are not actually in a village, they are within a stone's throw ; there are tahsils where there are such men. I wonder how that could be advanced as a reason why honest, impartial doctors could not be put for the purpose of the functions under this Bill. If my Honourable friend will come to my part of the country, I will show him registered practitioners in the villages, and then he will go to Bengal and say that they also require medical practitioners in the villages. But I suggest that Bengal is certainly more advanced than our place. (Interruption.) I do not doubt it, though I doubt about Bihar and Orissa. Another reason,—and this was put forward by the Honourable the Mover—was that the doctor might have very insignificant interest, and in that case how could he be refused ? My reply to that is that even if there be such little interest, he could leave it so as to enlist the confidence of the people that the certificate that he was giving was a right one.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : If the certifying surgeon is interested in a factory situated in Tuticorin, is he to be prevented from performing any duties in regard to a factory in Assam ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : If he has got some shares and if he does not come under the definition of directly or indirectly interested, then I shall have no objection. I would be even willing if a man has an indirect interest in such a thing, that it should not stand in the way of the medical practitioner being appointed for the purposes under the Act, but in that case the word "indirectly" should be taken away. The fundamental principle is that a man who is interested cannot be the judge in his own case. It is plain even to a layman. I have said that I am an optimist, and I hope that the Honourable Member in charge will at least issue instructions to the Local Governments that, when these surgeons are appointed, they should avoid as far as possible any doctor being appointed who is an interested person. Let me come to the next point with regard to the hours of work. From the very beginning I have taken the view that we should not run too fast, nor should we walk too slow, and, therefore, I have not put in my objections to the 54 hours prescribed by this Bill. I was told that the principle in other countries now is that it should not be more than 40 hours.

An Honourable Member : Where is that ?

Mr. B. Das : Are you thinking of the civil service trade union ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I got it in the papers and I have got a copy of it, though not here. But I believe I am supported in this by the Deputy President. You know the International Labour Conference in Geneva and they have held now that it should be 40 hours a week.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I am sorry I did not quite catch my Honourable friend. Did he say that the International Labour Conference at Geneva had approved a 40-hour week ?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Yes.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : That is not so.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Excuse me. I have sent for that paper, and I hope my Honourable friend, the Deputy President, would enlighten us on that point a little more.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury (Assam : Muhammadan) : What I told my Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, was that last year in the Tripartite Conference held at Geneva to discuss the hours of work and to reduce the hours of work having regard to unemployment in all the countries, they passed a resolution recommending 40 hours a week.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : But the International Labour Conference has not done so.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : No. I said the Tripartite Conference which was held in January last year.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I am not disputing the correctness of what the Deputy President says. He is perfectly right, I am disputing the correctness of what my Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, said. He said, if I understood him correctly, that the International Labour Conference at Geneva had approved a 40-hour week. That is not so. They have postponed further discussion of the subject till next year.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I am in possession of some papers which 3 P.M. I have promised to send to the Honourable Member.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I can claim to know a little more about the International Labour Conference at Geneva than my Honourable friend. I am very closely connected with it, as Member in charge of the Industries and Labour Department. My Honourable friend is mixing up two things. He is mixing up the views of a preparatory conference with the views of the International Labour Conference itself. The preparatory conference prepares the work to be discussed at the Sessions of the International Labour Conference. The two things are quite different and the fact that a preparatory conference passes any resolution does not mean that that is accepted by the International Labour Conference. The position in regard to the International Labour Conference is as I have just stated. The question of the 40-hour week has been postponed for further discussion until next year.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I do not feel myself more competent than the Honourable Member himself. I do accept that, but what I mean to say is I have read both and.....

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member need not pursue that point. The Chair can tell the Honourable Member that the International Labour Conference has not yet passed that Resolution.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I accept the statement of the Honourable Member in charge, and I do not think there is any need for the Chair to support the Honourable Member. So, what I mean to say is, that there is a great difference over this. 54 hours is not a standard which is a permanent standard or a standard which is accepted by all. At least that much will be accepted. The expert member for the labourers, Mr. Joshi, has put in a dissentient note the figure of 48 and there is the Deputy President also joining him. I do not mean that the Bill should have necessarily put it at 48 or 40. I am saying this only as a warning to the Member in charge. He should really watch the situation and see if this 54 hours is objected to, whether it is too much and so on and then the amendments may be made. This is only the first instalment.

Then I come to this point, that the Factories Act is being worked through certain Inspectors and these Inspectors have not given satisfaction. I think the Boiler Inspectors enjoy a much higher position than the Factory Inspectors. I do not know whether I am correct. That at any rate is my opinion. I hope that when Inspectors will be appointed, care will be taken to see that very responsible persons are appointed and that their work will be so watched that there may be no complaint of the nature that has been brought to the notice of this House. The Inspectors are the pivot of the whole system and it is they who have to carry out the functions under this Bill. Especially when an amendment I placed before the House with regard to the supervision in prosecutions has not been accepted, I request that in the working of this Bill care should be taken to see that things are done straight.

Coming to the question of punishment, I was told that the magistrates consider the question from the bottom, that is the minimum punishment. I accept the statement that came from the Honourable Member. This is going to be a new improved Act and I hope that magistrates will give careful consideration and pass sentences very leniently.

Lastly, I would say that prosecutions should not be launched after a very long time. There should be no delay. Six months and twelve months are going to be given and the Inspector should hurry up things and they ought to see that the cases are disposed of as quickly as possible. The Honourable Member should also keep in mind the question of the schooling of the children. Conveniences should be given to the family living in the premises, and, as the children are also going to work, the question of education is very important. We have been saying that there should be compulsory education. I say the railways have been generous enough to give them schools and I hope these factories will give better facilities to these labourers and I would appeal to the Honourable Member in charge to give attention to this question of schooling also.

Mr. Sitakanta Mahapatra (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadian) : Sir, I congratulate the Honourable Member in charge of Industries and Labour on his honest attempt to ameliorate the grievances of factory labour in India, however haphazard the attempt may be, and although most of the recommendations of the Whitley Commission have not been given effect to in the Bill. I wish Government had taken as much interest in the improvement of the wages of factory labour as they have taken in cutting short their working hours. Sir, I cannot say anything about labour conditions in other parts of India, but I know that about one lakh able-bodied men from my parts migrate to the Calcutta side every year, for about three or four months a year during slack agricultural seasons, in order to supplement their earnings. I believe, Sir, that labour in cities is mostly rural labour. The Whitley Commission also found this in urban areas. The rural mass in India find it difficult to make their both ends meet out of their agricultural earnings and so a large number of able-bodied poor people go out to industrial cities to earn some extras in order to pay their rents, interest and other obligations. So they would have been much more grateful to the Honourable Member in charge if he could have found some means to improve their wages. Sir, they are not so much keen about other factors as they are for their earnings. My information is that in Japan the highest salary in a factory never exceeds five times the lowest salary. But in India, while the ordinary labourer gets ten annas a day, the man at the top draws Rs. 10,000 a month. A very large percentage of the people of India is agricultural labour and I believe the Honourable Member for Industries and Labour, who has so much interested himself in labour conditions in India, will soon interest himself in improving their lot. A splendid beginning may be made by making laws for abolishing forced labour and cheap labour in both British India and Indian India. Besides Indian landlords who indulge in forced labour and in cheap labour, the Government of India themselves, Sir, indulge in such contemptible methods and it is a standing reproach on the Government of India, I shall quote only a few sentences from a book—"Condition of India"—by Mr. Bertrand Russell being the Report of the Delegation sent to India by the India League in 1932. This Delegation included three Members of Parliament. On page 447, it says :

"In Orissa, another plague spot of labour, the ordinary labourer receives four annas a day, while the Government extracts forced labour at about half that wage rate."

Then, Sir, on page 452 it says :

"The Government in India employs forced labour and, as we have already pointed out, remunerates at scales lower than the miserable ones that prevail in the area."

We came across this problem acutely in Orissa. Time did not permit us to investigate it as well as we should have liked to do, for we felt certain that the practice obtains legally and illegally on a large scale.

In the Angul District, which is governed under the Angul Laws Regulation (Act III of 1913), Government officials exact forced labour. Orders are sent to local officials for supplies of goods and services, which are enforced by penalties.

We have in our possession copies of orders issued under the authority of the Deputy Commissioner of Angul, and stated to be under the seal of his office, which calls on the local official to supply coolies for serving officials, beaters for shooting parties for the Political Agent and for providing cows, vegetables and other provisions for Government officials. (Hear, hear.) These orders threaten penalties and are very peremptory in their character.

The practice of Forced Labour is not confined to Angul. In other parts of British India also it obtains. Begar is enforced in the villages and much resented."

Mr. B. Das : Has not this book, Sir, been proscribed ?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : To the best of my recollection, my Honourable friend is correct. I think the book is proscribed. I have just sent to ask the Honourable the Home Member if this is so or not.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : It has already been ruled, Sir, that a proscribed book can be read in the House.

An Honourable Member : Mr. Mahapatra has got the book in fact from the Library. (Laughter.)

Mr. Sitakanta Mahapatra : I, therefore, ask the Government to show practical sympathy for the labourers and set their own house in order and, before attempting to reform labour conditions in factories and mills, to follow the adage, "physician, heal thyself". There is, Sir, another side of the question. By this enactment we have curtailed the hours of work of workers in British India. But in Indian States, forced labour and cheap labour is the rule rather than the exception. If the suzerain power cannot put a stop to this system in Indian States, it will hit hard the Indian industrialists and it is quite possible that British Indian capital will fly to Indian States. Sir, coming as I do from Orissa, I may say that three-fourths of that country is Indian State. I personally know to what extent the system of forced labour is in existence in most of the States. Very recently the begar system has gone to such a high pitch in a neighbouring State that the town of Cuttack has been simply flooded with refugees from that State. It is a shame, Sir, on the part of a power that boasts of suzerainty, not to be interested in such things and allow a sort of slavery to be continued in this the twentieth century. Now, if a factory is established in such a State, will any factory in British India be able to compete with it ? It is time, Sir, that the Political Department should make a searching inquiry into labour conditions in Indian India and particularly in the Orissa Feudatory States. Sir, conditions, particularly labour conditions in India, are quite different from labour conditions in England. Will it not be better to treat Indian conditions in a different way than English conditions ? I trust, Sir, that the Government of India have in their possession information about forced labour in both British India and Indian India and they will be able to put a stop to such barbarous system before long. With these words, Sir, I resume my seat.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Sir, I only want to say a very few words, referring to the observations of the Honourable Sir Frank Noyce. Sir, we have not been able to achieve a good deal of what we wanted, but still I consider that this is a very considerable improvement on the present position. Sir, my friend, Sir Frank Noyce, has told us that this is only an instalment, and that other instalments will come in in due course. We hope that the efforts of the Department of my Honourable friend to implement the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Labour will continue unabated. I still entertain the hope, Sir, that at no distant date the workers' demand for a 48-hour week will be acceded to. Sir, my friend, Sir Frank Noyce, has described this measure as one of the three measures of major importance which have been produced by his Department in implementing the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Labour. If, Sir, I am able to look back at all with satisfaction on any work that I have been able to do in this Assembly in co-operation with the Government, it has been in connection with these progressive measures that have been introduced in this House by my friend, Sir Frank Noyce. Our legislative records during the past few years have not been a very happy one. But, Sir, if I may say so, I have always regarded that the only silver lining in that cloud of reaction through which we have passed have been the measures that have emanated from the Department of Industries and Labour. I only want to express my appreciation to the enormous amount of work that has been done by that Department in connection with the measure that is about to be passed.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : Sir, we have spent three days on this measure which cannot, I think, be considered a disproportionate amount of time considering its complexity and importance. I do not wish to prolong the discussion more than I can help, and I shall, therefore, confine myself strictly to the measure before the House and not attempt to follow my Honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, or, my Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, into an excursus on the economic and educational policy of the Government of India.

I should like, at the outset, to say that I fully appreciate the position in which my Honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, was placed by lack of information, and I realise that his view of what the Government of India have done in the direction of implementing the recommendations of the Whitley Commission's report would have been expressed differently yesterday if he had had the report I sent him subsequently then before him. I would mention for his information that we are now in process of collecting the material for a third report on the action taken by ourselves and the Local Governments on the recommendations of the Commission,—the one I gave him yesterday was the second. Those reports are beginning to come in. A consolidated report will be compiled as rapidly as possible and, before the next Session of the Assembly, the third report will be ready. I shall be very glad to have copies of it placed at the disposal of all the Members of the House. (Sir Abdur Rahim: "Hear, I hear.") I might perhaps mention in this connection, though it is hardly as relevant today as it would have been yesterday but it may interest the House, what the Chairman of the Royal Commission himself thinks about the progress we have made. He said at the end of a series of four important articles which appeared in the English Times about a year ago:

"My colleagues on the Commission will, I think, join in my appreciation of the progress made in the first legislative periods since the issue of the Report, and in my hope that the advance made in the second may be equally good. When political questions occupy the centre of the stage, industrial and social reforms risk being side-tracked. It is to the credit of the present Administration, in India, (I could wish that he had added that it is also to the credit of the present Legislature), that this has not happened so far as official action is concerned."

Now, Sir, before I come to deal at comparatively brief length with the main criticisms which have been brought against this Bill, I should like to get one or two small points out of the way. My Honourable friend, Mr. Anklesaria, suggested that provision should be made in the Act for the withdrawal of prosecutions when the offence is merely technical. It was rather late, at this stage of the discussion on the Bill, to bring forward a suggestion of that kind, but there is no reason to believe that, where an offence is merely technical, Inspectors indulge in prosecutions merely for the sake of doing so or that the Court is not prepared to deal with the matter leniently and let off the offender lightly.

My Honourable friend, Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad, made an assertion yesterday about medical inspection in the United Provinces. He definitely said that fees were being charged for such inspection. I promised to find out whether that was so or not. I thought I should have to inquire from the United Provinces Government, but I found that we have, as indeed we ought to have, the information here and that there is a definite rule that no fees should be charged for such examination or for the grant of a certificate in pursuance thereof. That, I think, deals sufficiently with that point.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I know what is the rule which the Honourable Member has just quoted? Is that the order of the Government of the United Provinces?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : It is a rule of the Government of the United Provinces under the Factories Act. I do not propose to deal with the points raised by my Honourable friend, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai. Apart from the fact that he is not here, all the points that he raised were very thoroughly gone into in the discussion on the amendments. I now come to the main criticisms which have been brought against this Bill, both of which were raised by the Leader of the Opposition, and one or other of which was also taken up by other speakers. The first criticism which has been brought against the Bill is that it confers too wide powers on Local Governments and a suggestion was made that the Government of India should utilise very freely the powers which have been conferred upon them by clause 80 of the Bill, which makes the rules promulgated by Local Governments subject to the control of the Government of India. Now, Sir, I do not want the House to be under any misapprehension on this point. "Control" is quite a different matter from "previous sanction". When a Local Government has to obtain the previous sanction of the Government of India to the promulgation of any rules under an Act, it means that those rules are subjected to meticulous scrutiny by the Department concerned. But when rules are subject only to control, they are only subjected to post-facto examination.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Are not the Local Governments bound to inform the Government of India beforehand that they are going to frame such rules?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I am not sure. I do not think so. I think they send us the rules after they have been framed. The control which is exercised is a ex-post-facto examination to the best of my knowledge.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Even then may I suggest that the Government of India can give directions to Local Governments.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : I am coming to that, Sir. What I wish to emphasise is the reason why this should be so in the case of the rules under this Bill. My Honourable friend, Mr. Morgan, complained that the Bill covered a vast number of factories, cotton, jute, tea, rubber and the like, and that it was a disadvantage that there should be a general Act, and not a special Act, dealing with different industries. It would be very difficult and would take an immense amount of time to deal with industries in that way. I would submit to the House that the purpose Mr. Morgan has in view is served by giving Local Governments wide discretion in regard to the framing of rules. They know all the local circumstances and they can frame their rules to meet the varying conditions of different industries. There is no reason why they should impose meticulous uniformity on different industries and, similarly, there is no reason why the Government of India should impose meticulous uniformity on all provinces in which climatic and other conditions differ so widely that a uniform code would probably be unworkable. If there is any serious divergence between the rules in force in different provinces and it is found that they work to the disadvantage of one province or another, that could always be set right if it were brought to the notice of the Government of India or if they discovered it themselves by an examination of the rules. The point really is that the control of the Government of India exists under clause 80 and can be exercised if necessary. I may mention a case, for example, which lately occurred in which a certain province, there is no necessity to say which, issued a Notification under the Workmen's Compensation Act, which we found would not bear examination. We suggested that it should be amended and it was amended. We could do the same here. If we were to examine these rules meticulously, if we were to decide that they should be subject to the previous sanction of the Government of India, it would mean a tremendous increase in our staff and there is also the great disadvantage in that we have no expert advisers in these matters. We should certainly have to add one to our Department if we were to insist that Local Governments could not make or amend the factory rules without our prior sanction.

My Honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, if I heard him correctly, suggested that provinces which were industrially developed might not be willing to advance as far and as rapidly as others. I do not think that is our experience. I think our experience of the two most advanced industrial provinces, Bombay and Bengal, is that the Local Governments of both provinces are even more anxious to insist on the proper regulation of labour in their factories than are some of the others and that they naturally have Inspectors with more experience and use them accordingly. The second main criticism of the Bill has been that the powers conferred on the Chief Inspectors are too wide and my Honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, has specially drawn the attention of the House to the use of the word "may" instead of "shall" in regard to those powers. The criticism under this head seems to fall under two classes. The first criticism is that Inspectors have powers which they may abuse and the second is that they have powers which they may not use. The second criticism is the one which my Honourable friend, Sir Abdur Rahim, has advanced. I, Sir, am not a lawyer and I do not know what was in the minds of the framers of the original Bill when they used the word "may" instead of "shall". It is difficult to say how far "shall" is of a more mandatory character than "may". But I imagine that what was in the minds of the framers of the original Bill was something like this. It was that, after all, it is a mistake to use a Nasmyth hammer to crack a walnut. There may be cases in which, in order to bring about some small but desirable improvement, it would be necessary to incur an amount of expenditure out of all proportion to the value obtained by that improvement. I think their idea must have been that it was necessary to leave the Inspectors a certain amount of discretion in this matter. For instance take clause 14 (3) of this Bill :

"If it appears to the Inspector that, in any factory, gas, dust or other impurity generated in the course of work is being inhaled by the workers to an injurious extent, . . . he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing, etc."

It might be possible that the injurious extent is very small indeed but that the installation of proper ventilation would cost the manager of the factory several lakhs and might indeed lead to the closing down of the factory completely and to what would really be far more serious injury to the workmen employed in it. That, Sir, is, I think, the reason why the existing Act was drafted as it is and we have seen no reason to depart from it. My Honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, said that, if the Factory Act is working properly, why was it necessary to appoint a Royal Commission to make recommendations regarding it. I think the answer to that is that the Royal Commission did not criticise the actual working of the Factory Act in any way. There is not to the best of my recollection any criticism in their Report of the actual working of the Act, or of its administration of the Act. I do not say it is perfect. No one claims that it is perfect. But, at any rate, there is nothing in the report of the Royal Commission to suggest that the actual working of the Act requires rectification. The point of their Report was that the Act was working so well that they wanted to extend it to other factories and in other ways to existing factories. We, Sir, have no reason to believe that Inspectors, or Chief Inspectors abuse their powers either by omitting to do what they ought to do or by doing what they ought not to do. As regards doing what they ought not to do, the point was raised by my Honourable friend, Mr. Morgan. As regards his criticisms Inspectors have far too extensive powers to require the factory owner to do certain things; the answers to that is that there is a provision for appeal, in the case of the factory owner, to the appellate authority appointed by the Local Government and that, in the case of prosecution, the alleged defaulter has the protection of the Court. I think, Sir, that is all I need say on these two points except that I would add that the point raised by Sir Abdur Rahim in regard to the use of the word "may" instead of "shall" in the Bill is a point that is well worth noting and discussing with Local Governments if and when we propose to amend the Act further.

I do not propose to walk into the trap set for me by my Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das, and to discuss the condition of labour in the Indian States. I have really nothing to add to what I said in replying to Mr. Mody which was that the point raised in his minute of dissent is under the consideration of the Government of India. Mr. Das knows the constitutional position as well as I do, though he chose to ignore some of its aspects in the remarks he made on the subject. But lest the House should think that his picture of labour condition in the Indian States was entirely correct, I should like to remind it that there are quite a large number of States which have followed the Government of India in regard to the introduction of [Sir Frank Noyce.] labour legislation and which have Acts more or less on the lines of the Indian Factories Act. I cannot give the House a complete list nor can I say how far their legislation differs from that which we have passed. But amongst the States that have labour legislation are such important States as Hyderabad, Mysore, Baroda, Gwalior, Travancore, Indore, Jodhpur, Cochin, Jhind, Porbandar and Rajkote,—amongst them the States which are most advanced industrially and otherwise.

Mr. B. Das : I am very glad to hear it.

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : How far they will again be prepared to follow the example of the Government of India in regard to introducing a further instalment of legislation remains to be seen, but I think their record is such that it is at any rate permissible to hope that they will be able to do something in that direction.

That, Sir, I think concludes all that I have to say except to thank the House most gratefully for the very great assistance it has given me in placing this important piece of legislation on the Statute-book. It represents a very marked advance in the amelioration of labour conditions in this country ; it represents an important step in establishing that contented labour force on which alone the industrial development of India can be securely based. To those gentlemen on the Opposite Benches who have criticised us for not going further and faster, I would venture to read the following extract from the report of the Whitley Commission. They say :

“ This brief outline of the history of certain features of factory legislation in India shows that from the beginning the principle of factory regulation, here as in other countries, has been gradually to extend the area of protection afforded to the industrially employed worker. This principle has been effected in three ways—by regulation affecting specific classes of workers, by regulation affecting specific classes of establishments and by powers given to Local Governments to include under such regulation smaller places of a similar kind. The value of a policy of gradualness has been clearly demonstrated in the history of factory legislation in India in the past and the dictates of common sense and practicability confirm us in the belief that the same policy should continue to actuate future developments in factory legislation.”

That, Sir, is the policy which we have followed in this Bill and that is the policy which we shall continue to follow. We recognise that the Bill has defects : we recognise that it will need to be supplemented in various directions as time goes on, but we feel that caution is necessary and that we cannot adopt the policy that some of my Honourable friends opposite have advocated and to take leaps in the dark. (Loud and Prolonged Applause.)

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

“ That the Bill, as amended, be passed.”

The motion was adopted.

Bahadur, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, Rai Bahadur Sukhraj Roy, Mr. N. N. Anklesaria, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Bhai Parma Nand, Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar, Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin, Mr. E. Studd, Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi, Mr. A. J. Raisman, Mr. S. G. Grantham and the Mover, with instructions to report on or before the 25th July, 1934, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five.”

Sir, the Bill to which this motion relates is a comparatively simple measure, the nature and purpose of which are clearly shown in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. When my predecessor introduced this Bill into the House on April 20, he hoped that it would be possible to take it into consideration at once ; but objection was taken, and he, therefore, agreed to a motion for circulation for the purpose of eliciting opinions by the 30th June. The House is now in possession of the opinions which have been elicited, and this motion is in accordance with the procedure laid down by the Standing Orders for the subsequent stages of a Bill which has been circulated.

The object of the Bill, Sir, is twofold. It is to protect the revenue from the excise on matches, and it is also to protect the indigenous match manufacturing industry from the abnormal development of the use of mechanical lighters which would otherwise result from the imposition of an excise duty on matches. It is a matter of practically universal experience in other countries that the imposition of an excise duty on matches does give an abnormal stimulus to the import and production of mechanical lighters, with the result that other countries have found it absolutely indispensable to take measures of this kind in order to protect their revenue. Honourable Members will no doubt have discerned from a perusal of the opinions which have been received a certain tendency to believe that this measure, i.e., this imposition of an excise duty on mechanical lighters, is unnecessary and that the fears for the match revenue on which it is based are, to say the least of it, exaggerated. Against this we have, apart from the experience of the other countries to which I have alluded, the testimony of the Excise Commissioner of Burma. This is given on pages 2-3 of the printed collection of opinions. The significance of this is that for some time there has been in existence in Burma an excise duty on matches, and therefore in Burma we can see a concrete example of what happens as a result of the imposition of an excise duty, and,—I may say,—an excise duty much lower than the one which has just been imposed on matches in India as a whole. The figures of imports of mechanical lighters into Burma are conclusive evidence that the apprehensions on which the Bill is founded are not at all unjustified. In the six months pending the introduction of this measure into the Assembly the number of lighters imported into Burma was over 150,000, and a very simple calculation will show that that is at the rate of 300,000 a year. The majority of persons who have been consulted on this Bill are either in favour of it or have made no comments at all. A few of them, however, think that a duty of Rs. 2 per lighter is excessive ; but I would like to point out that the proper criterion in looking at a measure of this kind is not the ad valorem incidence of the duty, but the number of matches the consumption of which will be supplanted by the use of an individual lighter. The duty of Rs. 2 is equivalent to the excise duty on one gross boxes of matches each containing 80 sticks. I do not think it can be contended that this is an unfair measure of the efficiency of the ordinary mechanical lighter, and from this point of view the duty proposed is certainly not excessive, particularly if we have regard to the vital importance of safeguarding revenue and the Indian match industry as well.

A few critics have observed that the scope of the definition of mechanical lighters is too wide and that it would include toys which amuse children by emitting a spark. On this, I may say at once that I shall be quite prepared to modify the definition so as to avoid this undesirable and unintended effect. That certainly is a point which can be much more conveniently dealt with in Committee. Detailed drafting is more suitably done there than on the floor of the House. I do not think I need add anything more. I am of course not the father of this Bill, merely the step-father. Step-mothers are generally supposed to be extremely hard on their step-children.

An Honourable Member : What is the position of the step-father ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : But the same is not necessarily true of step-fathers. At any rate, I adopt this child with a due amount of cordiality. Certainly, the House having passed the legislation for an excise duty on matches, I think it is only fair to ask the House, in order to safeguard the collection of the duty on matches and to safeguard the indigenous match manufacturing industry from the abnormal effects which are incidental to such legislation, that it should complete its work and pass this measure.

Sir, I move.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Motion moved :

"That the Bill to provide for the imposition and collection of an excise duty on mechanical lighters be referred to a Select Committee, consisting of the Honourable the Law Member, Mr. B. Sitaramaraju, Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury, Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur, Mr. Lalchand Navarai, Rai Bahadur Sukhray Roy, Mr. N. N. Anklesaria, Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Bhai Parma Nand, Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar, Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin, Mr. E. Studd, Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi, Mr. A. J. Raisman, Mr. S. G. Grantham and the Mover, with instructions to report on or before the 25th July, 1934, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Mr. B. Das (Orissa Division : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I rise to oppose the reference of this Bill to Select Committee. It is in fulfilment of an announcement I made on the floor of this House when it was introduced, and now that this new baby, which I find is an unwanted baby, comes to be considered on the floor of the House, I will oppose it tooth and nail. One is surprised to see that different Finance Members leave unwanted children to be adopted by their successors. The frenzied financial policy of Sir Malcolm Hailey gave lots of trouble to Sir Basil Blackett, and the latter's ratio baby gave so much trouble to Sir George Schuster that he had to raid the Indian homes and was instrumental in the outflow and export of gold to the extent of 200 crores, fifty per cent. of which is distress gold. Even with that Sir George Schuster was not satisfied. He could not balance his Budget and so he stole a march upon the future Federal Assembly and the future federal financial resources, the matches and sugar excise duties that were reserved to the future federal finance and for autonomous provinces to work out their provincial autonomy in their full measure. Sir George Schuster stole a march and drew on the future credit of the Governments federal and provincial.

He was not satisfied with the Match Bill alone. This Bill is not a gigantic baby,—it is a tiny little thing,—it is an unborn babe, but Government have already found a step-father for it. One cannot understand why the Finance Member should have conceived of this Bill or whether the Members of the Select Committee were parties to it, whether they understood that 20 years hence somebody might set up a mechanical lighter manufacturing plant and that Sir George Schuster was not only safeguarding the interests of his successor, the present Finance Member, but of the future batches of Finance Members and Finance Ministers that will succeed him. I will just quote a line from my own speech while I was speaking on the former Bill. (Laughter.) There is no need to laugh. I foreshadowed other babies too, but I think, when the present Finance Member will have time, he may, as a necessary corollary to this Mechanical Lighters (Excise Duty) Bill, if it is not thrown out, introduce other Bills, because his predecessor has foreshadowed that he may introduce a Flint Bill and a Coir Bill, because flint and steel and tinder are used to produce mechanical light in the interior of India, and so when the Finance Member is hard up and wants a little more money, and finds that people are not buying more matches than is absolutely necessary, he will put a tax on flints, and introduce a Flint Bill or a Coir Bill and he and the Central Board of Revenue or the Customs Department will send batches of people to go round the villages and when they see in the grocer's shop or the biriwala's shop a rope or straw coir hanging, which is always burning for people to smoke from, the myrmidons of the Finance Member will snatch that piece of rope or straw bundle and say "Why should people do like this? They must buy matches: the revenue under the head matches is going down".

An Honourable Member : The Bill refers to mechanical lighters, mechanical in the sense that it produces a spark.

Mr. B. Das : That rope burns and there is the spark and light. I will discuss about flint later. I said at the time :

"I am surprised that my Honourable friends in the Select Committee did not bring out another baby called the Flint Bill."

Whereupon Sir George Schuster said :

"There is plenty of time; we might get it ready before the Session is out if my Honourable friend wants it."

I do not myself want it; but, as a necessary corollary, I would advise the Honourable the Finance Member to have a Flint Bill and also a Coir Bill.

Now, Sir, I call it a panicky legislation. What is the necessity for this Bill? Do you think that people will buy these four-anna mechanical lighters all over the country? Of course, the Finance Member quoted from the statistics supplied by the Burma Government; the other Provincial Governments completely ignored the Bill. They thought it was a huge joke played by the Government of India. When we visit provincial metropolitan towns we see that they always laugh at Simla and Delhi; they say that the Government of India have little work to do and sometimes they perpetrate jokes, and this Mechanical Lighters Bill is one of the huge jokes that comes out from Simla and Delhi. Sir, I had little respect for Punjab, but I find that even the Punjab Government have taken a very sensible view in this matter; so also the United Provinces.

[Mr. B. Das.] Government. This is what the Finance Commissioner to the Punjab Government, Mr. J. F. Fergusson, says :

"The danger, in my opinion, of such an industry being established in the near future, appears to be very slight. As remarked by Mr. Bhuput Singh, there is not, as yet, any established industry in the manufacture of mechanical lighters in India; it cannot be established in a day as the necessary machinery will have to be obtained from abroad in the first instance. With such a high duty of Rs. 2. per lighter, there is no chance of this industry being ever established in India."

I do not know if any secret order has gone from the Government of India to the Punjab Government over this impertinence on the part of a subordinate official of a Provincial Government passing such remarks on a Bill drafted by the all-highest Finance Member of the Government of India. Sir, the Finance Member said that this is a very simple Bill, yet they have devoted three pages. There are 16 clauses to this simple Bill as it is called, and I do not know how many hours the Draftsmen spent in drafting this Bill, with which none of them were satisfied at heart, but for which, thank God, a step-father has been found. Sir, the United Provinces Government said this :

"The excise duty levied on mechanical lighters should not be so high as to prevent altogether the development of this new industry."

The United Provinces Merchants Chamber of Commerce, the Upper India Chamber of Commerce and the Indian Chamber of Commerce, Lahore, all oppose this excise duty on mechanical lighters. I can understand how Sir George Schuster, and his advisers and the Draftsmen of the Government of India as well as the Law Member, who was advising him at the time, jumped to the conclusion that if they must have an excise duty on match they have to apply the similarity of conditions to mechanical lighters. Sir, one of the officers has remarked that the mechanical lighters, that could be bought for four annas, just light for a few minutes and then they get out of order because people light them too often with the result that they soon get out of order. Knowing that, I do not understand why, not only this revenue duty of Rs. 2-4-0, but also an excise duty is proposed to be imposed. I could buy in England one of these mechanical lighters for a shilling.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad (United Provinces Southern Divisions : Muhammadan Rural) : For six pence.

Mr. B. Das : Somebody told me that there is an excise duty of a shilling, am I correct ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : There is certainly an excise duty on mechanical lighters in England ; I am not sure how much it is, but I think it is six pence.

Mr. B. Das : It might be a shilling ; but still these lighters are sold for six pence at certain places in England, and for the Government to conceive the idea of putting an excise duty of Rs. 2-4-0 on each lighter, if it can be manufactured in India, is, to say the least, simply absurd and ludicrous.

that nobody should manufacture these lighters in this country, then I can understand the object of introducing this measure.

Now, Sir, regarding flint, it is no use saying that flint, steel and tinder, are not mechanical lighters. The Commissioner, Nagpur Division, has made some very pertinent remarks on this which I hope the Finance Member has read and cogitated upon. I should like to quote a little in extenso, because it forms very good reading, and since there is more sense today among the provincial satraps and provincial officers than in the Government of India. This is what he says :

"I would suggest, however, that, in order to obviate any possible misinterpretation of the definition of 'mechanical lighter', it should be specifically provided that the Bill does not apply to the ordinary flint and steel carried by members of the aboriginal tribes. In this province practically all adult male Gonds and Korkus carry a flint, steel and tinder with which to make fire. The actual mechanism in a lighter is, as a rule, of the simplest possible kind and is designed to bring a flint in contact with a steel so as to produce a spark which shall ignite a wick soaked in petrol or kerosene. It seems to me somewhat doubtful whether the production of a spark to ignite tinder by bringing a flint in contact with steel by hand differs essentially from performing the same operation by rotating a wheel with the finger as in many mechanical lighters. It will not be desirable, in my opinion, to subject the ordinary apparatus for producing fire which is used by the poorest class of the population and which, in the broadest sense of the term, must be described as a mechanical device, to any duty."

Sir, it is a very sensible view that has been expressed. It is not that the Finance Member is contemplating the eventuality of making these lighters in this country, but as we are going down and down in the downhill grade of our financial bankruptcy, a time will come, at least five years hence, when the Honourable Sir James Grigg will be contemplating to bid good-bye to India, when he will be thinking to leave some little surplus money to his successor, then he might think of manufacturing this new baby called the flint baby. That is an eventuality to be considered only when a man is in despair, because a drowning man catches any straw, and when the Government of India are bankrupt of any financial brains, when they are bankrupt of any scientific financial or fiscal policy,—by linking the rupee to the sterling, by having the 18/1 ratio, they have not only made the Government of India bankrupt, but they have made the people of India poor, so poor that today the people of India cannot pay their taxes, nor can the Finance Member, including his ally the Commerce Member, find new sources of tariff and taxation by which they can fill the coffers so that the Government Budget can be balanced. That is the whole trouble and that is why these unwanted children, these unwanted Bills are manufactured. The Honourable the Finance Member himself has noted the difficulty about the definition of mechanical lighters. It is best to drop the Bill. Why go and worry our heads over an explanation and ask the Law Member to devise a proper wording without leaving a loophole, as to what a mechanical lighter is ? As the Commissioner of Nagpur has pointed out, it is best to drop the Bill. It is very difficult for ordinary human mind to define a mechanical lighter, and knowing as I do the ingenuity of my legal friends, both inside this House and outside, if they are in a mood for mischief they can turn the definition to any interpretation they like, and if the Government also are in a mischievous, litigious mood, they could prosecute anybody who produced a fire or light. Even if I fail in my opposition to the Bill and this House does not throw out the Bill, I do hope that the Select Committee will not be as foolish as the other Select Committee was. They should [Mr. B. Das.] I do not think of legislating for an excise duty on mechanical lighters which may be produced 20 years hence. So I would suggest that clauses 5 and 6 should be dropped. Clause 6 deals with the bringing in of mechanical lighters into British India from the territory of any specified Prince or Chief in India. I do not know if the Princes or Chiefs could produce mechanical lighters, but most of us pass through these Indian States. Everywhere the customs department or the excise department which will go on increasing in numbers—as soon as we come to the railway station, our pockets will be searched if there are any mechanical lighters, and knowing as we do that in Kathiawar Ports, the French Ports and Portuguese Ports, the Japanese mechanical lighters will be sold at four annas a piece, the Government of India cannot prevent the Ports of Kathiawar, Jamnagar, Bhavnagar and other places from selling mechanical lighters at four annas a piece, and if accidentally we pass through such territories and come into Viramgam line or elsewhere in British India, at once the policeman or excise man will come and search our pockets and then we have to be troubled to produce a certificate that the particular mechanical lighter was purchased in London and not at Porbander or Jamnagar. So, the whole idea of an excise duty on manufactured mechanical lighter should be dropped, and, if Government are so anxious to make a little money out of the mechanical lighters that are dumped by Japan, they can have it. Supposing my Honourable friends in the Select Committee with their inner knowledge of the facts that would be placed before them,—but from the opinions that have been collected I do not think the Government of India have more facts because the Finance Member has not put forward any new argument on the floor of the House,—supposing they think that they should have to legislate for an excise, I would suggest that they should legislate for the control and licensing of manufacture of mechanical lighters, but no excise duty should be levied. Such a duty can be collected but it must be returned to the manufacturers if Government want to have certain control as they have even now a method of collecting taxes at ports and then refunding them to those who import these articles. Sir, with these few observations, I oppose the reference to the Select Committee.

Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi (Dacca cum Mymensingh : Muhammadan Rural) : I support this motion for reference to a Select Committee. My Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das, has perhaps forgotten under what circumstances this Bill was introduced in the last Session of the Assembly. When we were discussing the excise duty Bill on matches, it was pointed out to us by the manufacturers in India that unless a duty on the lighters also was put on, it would hit them very hard. It was not included in the first Bill that had already been passed. Therefore, it was, firstly, for the benefit of those manufacturers in India, and, secondly, for protecting the revenue that would be derived by the sale of the matches that this Bill was introduced in the last Session.

Mr. B. Das : But the capital is foreign, either Swedish or Japanese.

Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : As I said in the last Session, when my Honourable friend, Mr. Joshi, was giving us a lot of trouble, the best way of silencing Mr. Das would have been for the new Finance Member to have included Mr. Das in the Select Committee.

Mr. B. Das : I am opposing the Bill, and I do not want to serve on the Select Committee.

Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : Sir, it is stated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons :

“There is a serious danger that, with the imposition of a considerable duty on matches, there will be an abnormal development of the use of mechanical lighters. This would mean a loss of duty and interference with the business of the Indian match manufacturing industry.”

It was solely in the interests of the match manufacturing industry in India that this Bill was introduced. As regards the various other objections which my Honourable friend.....

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury (Bengal : Landholders) : I do not want to interrupt the Honourable Member, but will he give us any information as to whether the manufacturers themselves have asked for this measure ?

Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : I will say to this House that those manufacturers, who were present before us in the Select Committee, asked us, the Members of the Select Committee, to introduce a Bill of this kind to protect them from this.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : May I know from the Honourable Member who are the manufacturers of matches who came before the Committee ?

Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : Manufacturers came from Bengal, Bombay, and other places. They came on our invitation to tell us how the industry would be affected by that Bill. We had to go into the whole question with them and then we fixed the duty which has now been passed into an Act.

Mr. B. Das : Was it not trade jealousy and trade rivalry of match manufacturers ?

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : It may not be, but how could the manufacturers of matches know at that time that there were manufacturers in India of mechanical lighters when there was not a single factory doing it ?

Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : They did not say about the manufacture of lighters in India. Their apprehension was that the importation of foreign lighters.....

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : That is true, but this is an excise duty.

Some Honourable Members : Both.

Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi : This is for lighters, both imported and manufactured here. It is not merely an excise on lighters made here. It is also for the lighters that are imported into this country. As regards the other objections that my Honourable friend, Mr. Das, has raised, he may wait till the Members of the Select Committee make their report. Perhaps we will meet all the objections that he has raised on this question. With these words, Sir, I support this motion for Select Committee.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh (Muzaffarpur cum Champaran : Non-Muhammadan) : Sir, I regret I cannot subscribe fully to the ideas to which expression has been given by my friend, Mr. Das, on this side of the House. This Bill seeks to achieve two objects. One is to impose an import duty on mechanical lighters which are imported into this country from foreign countries, and another is to levy an excise duty of the same amount, namely, Rs. 2 per mechanical lighter, which may be manufactured in this country. Now, with regard to the first object, namely, the imposition of an import duty on foreign mechanical lighters, I am quite at one with the object of this Bill. My Honourable friend, Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury, is evidently under some misapprehension when he says that there is no such provision in the Bill.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : There may be a provision, but it is not in the Preamble.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : When he reads the last clause, he will find it is stated :

" Provided that, mechanical lighters as defined in the Mechanical Lighters (Excise Duty) Act, 1934, shall be liable in addition to a duty equal to the amount of the excise duty imposed by that Act on mechanical lighters manufactured in British India."

Now, Sir, on principle I am opposed to the importation of foreign goods into this country, so far as practicable, and to that extent I am heartily in sympathy with the proposed import duty on mechanical lighters. When we passed the Match Excise Duty Bill, the manufacturers of matches in India were naturally apprehensive that if steps are not taken to discourage the importation of mechanical lighters in this country their industry would suffer, and they were quite justified if I am to take the word of my Honourable friend, Mr. Ghuznavi, who was a Member of the Select Committee. They were naturally apprehensive that unless steps are taken to supplement the provisions of that Act by means of a fresh legislation discouraging the importation of mechanical lighters from foreign countries, their trade would naturally suffer. I am in hearty agreement with that part of the Bill which seeks to impose an import duty on foreign mechanical lighters ; but I find some difficulty in accepting the other part of this Bill in which it seeks to impose an excise duty on mechanical lighters which may be manufactured in this country. As a matter of fact, it is stated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons :

" There is not, as yet, any established industry in the manufacture of mechanical lighters in India."

To that extent the imposition of an excise duty seems at best to be premature. It will adversely affect those persons in this country who may think of starting an indigenous industry in this particular line. My friend, Mr. Das, has already quoted certain opinions which are opposed to the imposition of an excise duty on mechanical lighters and I need not trouble the House by reading out those extracts. I may merely refer in passing to the opinion of the Commissioner of the Assam Valley Division who says : " My personal opinion is that the danger of a flood of mechanical lighters has been greatly exaggerated and that there is no necessity for such a Bill. I regard the rate of duty proposed as exorbitant."

This also is the opinion of the General Manager of the Assam Railways and Trading Company, Ltd. The opinion of the Government of United Provinces has, I think, been referred to by my friend wh-spoke, as well as the opinion of the Upper India Chamber of Commerce, Cawnpore.

Now, with regard to that part of the proposal, I have got one submission to make. In the first place, I am not very sure whether it is advisable to impose an excise duty on mechanical lighters which may be manufactured at some future date in this country. In the second place, I am opposed, even if it be assumed that an excise duty on mechanical lighters is advisable to safeguard either the revenue of India or from any other considerations, to a duty of Rs. 2 per lighter. I quite agree to the duty of Rs. 2 on mechanical lighters which may be imported into this country from other countries, but if an excise duty is to be imposed at all, I should think that the duty should be considerably less. Some opinions favour the imposition of eight annas or at most one rupee per mechanical lighter as excise duty. I am therefore of opinion that if an excise duty is to be levied at all it should be of a small amount, so that it may not seriously interfere with the establishment of an indigenous industry in the future. I have no doubt these points will be carefully considered by the Members of the Select Committee, and I hope that when the Bill emerges out of the Select Committee it will be a more acceptable measure than the one before the House.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer (Rohilkund and Kumaon Divisions : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : After the speech of Mr. B. Das answered fully by Mr. Ghuznavi and partly by his own friend and neighbour from Bihar, I think I should not at this late hour of the day take up the time of the House, but I am compelled to intervene on account of an unique observation by the previous speaker who said 'on principle we object to the importation of foreign articles into this country'. It is an amazing principle, and if I were to support this Bill, I rise to make assurance doubly sure that Members seated on this side of the House do not subscribe to that principle.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Buy Indian goods.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Are you speaking on your own behalf ?

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : I am speaking on behalf of every sensible man in this House.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : I think you are taking the hat to your own head.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : I always put my hat upon my head.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : That is right.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : In this House I do not talk through the hat as the Honourable gentleman does, nor do I leave my head outside and bring only the hat inside. (Laughter.) Leaving the latter portion of the argument, any man who does not talk through his hat will say that if we do not buy foreign goods, foreigners will not buy our goods. (Laughter by Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh.) That is an economic principle which the loud laugh that speaks the vacant mind does not seem to appreciate. Here is a very useful institution, a mechanical lighter. Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh does not smoke.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Sir, on a point of order. You have ruled on a previous occasion that no demonstration of any article will be allowed on the floor of the House.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair did not see that lighter.

Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : Here is the mechanical lighter (showing it) which seems to have caused some disorder on the Opposition Benches. (Laughter.) It is good to derive some customs revenue by paying a duty on a thing like this, and even my friend, Mr. Studd, who possesses this valuable thing will not object to it. But if you were to prohibit the importation of foreign articles, I suppose even the cause of the earthquake in the Province of Bihar will not find much money because one part of our revenue will be cut off. So much for the spokesman of the Democratic Party.

Sir, I think we have had more light than lightning on these mechanical lighters today and I hope that, without much ado, this House will place this Bill on the Statute-book. It is a very old Bill, as this House is aware. Sir George Schuster did not have the time to pass it through this House and therefore his successor has taken it up and I think the Select Committee can pass it without very much discussion. I do not see why we should waste the time of this House by talking such interesting things as the Honourable Member from Bihar was able to talk just now. Sir, all I need say is this, that in simple matters like this, I hope the House will not follow the example of the previous speaker and waste the time of this House.

Mr. Muhammad Muazzam Sahib Bahadur (North Madras : Muhammadan) : Sir, I give my wholehearted support to this measure. Once the Bill, which has now become law, imposing an excise duty on matches has been passed, and when it is remembered that the amount recovered in the shape of a revenue duty on matches has been found necessary to meet the deficit in the Budget, and when we remember that that excise duty cannot be fully realized if there is a loophole such as the one which this Bill is meant to counteract, then I think the measure before us is more or less a consequential measure upon the one which we have already passed.

Sir, this Bill aims at levying a customs duty on imported mechanical lighters, and at the same time it is meant to levy an excise duty on indigenous manufactured mechanical lighters. So far as imported mechanical lighters are concerned, I do not think there is any one in the House who has got to say anything against it, at least so far as the customs duty is concerned. The whole trouble seems to arise with regard to the mechanical lighters manufactured in this country. With regard to that, Sir, I feel it is absolutely essential that such a duty must be levied because it is admitted that these manufactories are not in existence at the present moment and they want to spring into existence because of the increased duty on matches. Otherwise they would not come into existence. Now they want to take advantage of the fact that the excise duty is being levied on matches to an abnormal extent, and advantage is sought to be taken of that fact. If that duty had not been levied, the proposed factories probably would not have come into existence. I say this, arguing in the way in which my Honourable friend, Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh, has done, we have necessarily to come to the conclusion that, if an impetus is given to the starting of indigenous manufactories, the result, after the lapse of a certain number of years when this excise duty on matches is done away with, will be that all these manufactories will come down with a crash. They may make some profit for the time being, to the detriment of the revenue which the country would otherwise derive, but the moment the excise duty on matches is taken away, the result will be that all these manufactories which may be set up will have to close down their business, so that both from the point of view of the customs duty which is to be levied on mechanical lighters as well as from the point of view of the excise duty that is sought to be levied on the Indian manufactured article, I think the Bill is rightly framed and I heartily support this motion.

Mr. B. V. Jadhav (Bombay Central Division : Non-Muhammadan Rural) : Sir, this Bill, I think, is intended to prohibit the importation as well as the manufacture of lighters. It is not a revenue Bill. I do not think the Finance Department can expect any substantial revenue in consequence of the passing of this Bill. There is not a single factory at present in India which is manufacturing mechanical lighters and, with this heavy excise duty, I do not think there is any capitalist who will invest any money in the starting of a new factory. So this Bill does not expect any revenue from the excise side of it. Now we shall see what revenue is expected from the articles imported into India. In addition to the present duty on lighters, clause 16 of the Bill levies an additional two rupees per lighter. The price of each lighter will therefore, I think, be nearly Rs. 2-8-0.

The Honourable the Finance Member has told us that the amount of Rs. 2 was calculated as the price of a gross of matchboxes each containing eighty splints. If one were to calculate how many matches a man uses in a year, it would fall considerably short of a gross of matches, and a mechanical lighter, I think, is not a very permanent thing—it goes to pieces or goes out of order in a very few months; and therefore it will not at all be advantageous for any gentleman to purchase a mechanical lighter, with this heavy duty put upon it. So I think that as the sale of mechanical lighters will be stopped on account of the heavy duty put upon it, the customs revenue from the imports of mechanical lighters will almost be nil. So this Bill is not intended to bring revenue into the coffers of the Government of India but is plainly intended to prohibit the use of mechanical lighters altogether, and the Finance Member has told us that this Bill is intended to encourage the indigenous match industry. I do not know why the Finance Member should be so very harsh upon the future manufacturers of mechanical lighters and in favour of the manufacturers of matches. Manufactures of all sorts ought to be encouraged in a country, and to discourage imports. But the present policy appears to be to completely prohibit the one and to foster the other. I submit, therefore, to the House that the excise and import duty of Rs. 2 per mechanical lighter is an excessively heavy one and ought to be reduced when this Bill is considered by the Select Committee. This excessive amount is not at all warranted by the exigencies of the case unless the Government is determined to prohibit the import as well as the manufacture of mechanical lighters. Now, Sir, clause 6 refers to the importation of mechanical lighters into British India from a territory of any specified Prince or Chief in India. If a factory is started in an Indian State, the mechanical lighters manufactured there will not be allowed to be brought into India even after paying the excise or import duty, while the manufactures of foreign countries are allowed under clause 16. I think this is discrimination which ought not to be tolerated. The manufacturers in an Indian State ought not to be treated worse than the manufacturers in any foreign country.

Sir, I have got to say something about the definition of a mechanical lighter. Under the present definition, a mechanical lighter means any mechanical or chemical contrivance which is portable and is intended for producing a spark or flame whether by itself or when brought into contact with gas and includes a mechanical lighter issued from a manufactory in an incomplete state or requiring for its completion the addition of a flint. It has been stated here by my Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das, that from time immemorial the people of this country have been using a piece of flint with a piece of steel and some pieces of tinder to get fire. This contrivance is in use all over the country and from very ancient times and for the poor and indigent people it is the only way of producing fire. Under the present definition, I am afraid that that contrivance may be called a mechanical lighter because any mechanical contrivance which is portable is so called. It is called chakmak in my part of the country and I think the name appears with certain changes all over the country. So, chakmak is a mechanical contrivance which is portable and intended to produce the spark. What I am afraid of is that the chakmak may be brought under the definition as at present drafted, and zealous excise officers may harass poor people. It is therefore necessary that care should be taken to state clearly that a chakmak does not fall into the category of mechanical lighters. Sir, I have shown what I consider to be the object of this Bill. I do not know what feelings the step-father has towards the Bill. He has brought it forward and placed it before the House. It has been received with mixed feelings. Some are very fond of this child, others are condemning it as ugly. As it is sponsored by Government and is helped by Members who love more foreigners than their own countrymen, I think it has got every chance to pass. But for myself, I must raise a voice of protest that this Bill is intended solely in the interests not of Government revenue but in the interests of the match manufacturers. Government is deriving a good deal of revenue from the manufacture of matches and therefore in gratitude to those who provide a large amount as excise duty on matches, this Bill is intended in their benefit. I do not see any reason why I should oppose the reference to the Select Committee. But if the Bill is not satisfactorily modified, I shall have to oppose it at a later stage.

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar (Law Member) : Sir, I would not have risen at this late hour, but I desire to satisfy a curiosity of my Honourable friend opposite, Mr. B. Das. He asked,—I have taken down his words,—how could the Honourable the Finance Member, helped by the Law Member, jump into the framing of this Bill? I can assure my Honourable friend that so far as the Government Members are concerned, jumping is not their method of locomotion. (Laughter.)

Mr. Amar Nath Dutt (Burdwan Division, Non-Muhammadian Rural) : The Oriyas are expert in that.

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : Once the excise duty was imposed, the framing of this Bill was reached by very easy and very short steps and the reasoning has been clearly explained by the Honourable the Finance Member. Then, my Honourable friend, Mr. B. Das, described the bankruptcy of India and his heart was melting when he did so. I hope that will induce him to protest against the creation of bankrupt Provinces like Orissa. (Applause.) Then, I heard also from one of the Honourable Members who, while opposing the calculation of the Honourable the Finance Member, said that matches are lost. That is so. I have very often lost matches, but what I have lost has been the corresponding gain of someone else. So, let us not complicate calculation by any consideration of lost and gained matches. The calculation of the Honourable the Finance Member may safely be accepted.

With regard to clause 6, I might just remind the House that the provision contained therein is exactly the same as in the case of the excise duty. No new method has been followed so far as this Bill is concerned.

The only other matter with which I will just speak for a moment is the fear of my Honourable friend, Mr. Jadhav, that the chakmak might be hit by this definition. If there is any danger of the chakmak being hit, of course that can be corrected by drafting in the Select Committee, but I do not see how the chakmak can be hit. It is not a mechanical or chemical contrivance. Striking a piece of iron or steel is not a mechanical contrivance, as much as striking a person down with a lathi is not a mechanical contrivance. Then, again, he laid stress on these words "in an incomplete state or requiring for its completion the addition of a flint". But, there, I am sure, the Honourable Member will notice that that is controlled by the words which precede and includes a mechanical lighter issued from a manufactory in an incomplete state. That cannot possibly hit the chakmak with which the aborigines are supposed to be moving about.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : After the speech of my Honourable colleague, I think there is very little left for me to say. He has dealt with the question of the too all inclusive character of the definition and he has dealt with the question of clause 6 which relates to the power to prohibit importation from the States. Perhaps I can give the assurance to the House generally that there is in my adoption of this Bill no ulterior motive and it has no relevance whatever to the rival views which are held about the question of whether India can live in a self-contained way or whether it cannot. It has nothing whatever to do with that. The sole purpose is that, this House having passed the excise duty on matches, in the absence of some such measure as this, the excise duty will be extremely ineffective and the finances of India will be correspondingly damaged. That is the primary purpose of the Bill. The secondary purpose is that you have got in India a considerable industry, the match industry. Not only in the absence of this measure will the revenue be damaged seriously but an already existing and prosperous industry will be damaged severely for the sake of an industry which does not yet exist and even if it could ever exist could only exist as a very small and puny infant. Sir, I have nothing more to say.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The question is :

"That the Bill to provide for the imposition and collection of an excise duty on mechanical lighters be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Honourable

[Mr. President.]

the Law Member, Mr. B. Sitaramaraju, Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury, Mr. Uppi Bahadur, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, Rai Bahadur Sukhraj Roy, Mr. N. N. Anil Rao Bahadur S. R. Pandit, Bhai Parma Nand, Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar, Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin, Mr. E. Studd, Mr. A. H. Ghuznavi, Mr. A. J. Ramesh, Mr. S. G. Grantham and the Mover, with instructions to report on or before the 25th July, 1934, and that the number of Members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

The motion was adopted.

STATEMENT OF BUSINESS.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore (Leader of the House) : Sir, next week, apart from motions for leave to introduce any new Bills which may be ready, we propose to proceed in the first place with the unfinished business on today's list in order in which it stands in that list. Thereafter, the House would be asked to consider and pass the Indian Dock Labourers Bill on which the report of the Select Committee was presented on Monday last and the Indian Trusts (Amendment) Bill which was passed by the Council of State and laid on the table during the course of the last Session.

The Assembly then adjourned till Eleven of the Clock on Monday, the 23rd July, 1934.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Monday, 23rd July, 1934.

The Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at Eleven of the Clock, Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

CHANGE IN THE OFFICE HOURS OF THE RAILWAY BOARD.

155. *Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : Will Government be pleased to state if the office hours of the Railway Board have been changed from 10-30 A.M. to 4-30 to 9 A.M. to 6 P.M. ? If so, will Government be pleased to state the reasons which led to this change ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The office hours have not been changed, but the clerks in one of the branches, where the work has fallen into arrears, were asked to work somewhat longer hours as a temporary measure.

FINDINGS OF THE POPE COMMITTEE IN THE RAILWAY BOARD'S OFFICE.

154. *Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : (a) Is it a fact that the investigations of Mr. Pope in the Railway Board's office revealed many irregularities and condemned a large list of the present ministerial staff ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what action, if any, has been taken in the case of :—

(i) those who were sent in for medical examination ;

(ii) those who were declared unfit for upper division ;

(iii) those who were reported very badly by their branch officers ; and

(iv) those who were found habituated to taking narcotic drugs like opium, etc., during office hours ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay a copy of the findings of the Pope Committee in Railway Board's office on the table of this House ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Mr. Pope and Mr. Case examined the procedure in the Railway Board's office and made certain suggestions in regard to improvement which are at present under the consideration of the Board. Incidentally Mr. Case tested the work of some members of the staff and reported unfavourably on a few of them.

(b) Government are unable to identify the cases referred to by the Honourable Member, and cannot get any assistance in this direction from Mr. Case's report.

(c) No. The report is a purely departmental document and not intended for publication.

METHOD OF PROMOTIONS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA DEPARTMENTS.

155. *Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the objects of maintaining seniority lists in all the Departments ?

(b) How are promotions from one grade to another made in the case of (i) branch vacancies and (ii) general vacancies in the Departments of the Government of India ?

(c) How are transfers arranged from the routine branch to the regular branches of the Government of India Secretariat ? Are the men in the lower division promoted, if they are considered fit to perform the necessary duties, by seniority, or is it left to the establishment section to nominate anybody, even though he may be junior-most, to be promoted in the vacancies that occur ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) The object of maintaining seniority lists is to find out readily the relative positions of the employees in a Department when necessary.

(b) All vacancies to be filled by promotion are treated as vacancies in the Department as a whole and filled on the basis of merit combined with seniority from the general list of the establishment. In the case of short vacancies, however, particularly in the grade of Superintendent, it is open to Departments to make such arrangements as may be most convenient from the point of view of departmental work.

As regards the Railway Department, I invite attention to the reply given to clause (a) of Mr. T. N. Ramakrishna Reddi's question No. 1004 on the 28th March, 1933.

(c) Promotions are made by the officer in charge of the establishment, or other competent officer, who takes into consideration all the relevant factors such as exigencies of work, merit, seniority, qualifications and individual suitability for the particular work to be performed.

TEMPORARY INFERIOR ESTABLISHMENT IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA SECRETARIAT.

156. *Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if certain temporary establishment is charged to contingencies in the various Departments of the Government of India Secretariat ? If so, how long have these men been in service and what are their duties ?

(b) What are the duties of watermen ? Do their duties include those of a peon ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) In the Government of India Secretariat, chaukidars, farashes (who see to the dusting and cleaning of officers' and office rooms), bhishties and sweepers are paid from contingencies. In some cases temporary peons are also paid from contingencies. I regret I cannot give particulars of the length of service of each of these individuals.

(b) The duties of watermen are to supply water and do not include those of a peon. In the Railway Department, however, whole-time watermen are employed and they are occasionally called upon to perform the duties of a peon when not otherwise engaged.

BUSINESS CARRIED ON BY THE MINISTERIAL STAFF OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

157. *Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if enquiries were made by the Accountant General, Central Revenue, regarding the receipt of fees, honoraria, bounties, etc., by the ministerial staff of the offices of the Government of India under the following classifications :

- (i) amateur doctors, mostly homœopathic, receiving fees ;
- (ii) working after office hours as coach in schools, athletic associations, and other institutions, and receiving remuneration for that ;
- (iii) working as contractors during the time of move of the Government of India for the carriage of records ; and
- (iv) carrying on business of insurance or money-lending in the names of their minor sons, wives or other relatives ?

And if so, what action, if any, was taken ?

(b) Are these incomes shown in the annual income-tax returns, and is income-tax paid on them ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : (a) No.

(b) Section 54 of the Income-tax Act debars me from giving this information.

ACCEPTANCE OF PRESENTS FROM SUBORDINATES IN THE RAILWAY BOARD'S OFFICE.

158. *Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : (a) Is it a fact that it is customary in the Railway Board's office to accept presents from their subordinates ?

(b) Did Government receive any letter to this effect ?

(c) If the reply to part (b) be in the affirmative, what action, if any, was taken by Government to crush this evil ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) So far as Government are aware, the reply is emphatically in the negative.

(b) No.

(c) If they are furnished with evidence in support of the allegation, Government will take suitable action.

PURCHASE BY THE INDIAN RAILWAYS OF Poppet Valves BY MR. F. A. POPE.

159. *Mr. Uppi Saheb Bahadur : (a) Is it a fact that a valve has been patented as Poppet Valve by Mr. F. A. Pope who recently conducted an investigation on Indian Railways, jointly with the makers of this valve ?

(b) How many of these valves have been ordered by Indian Railways for their use ?

(c) What is the total amount spent by Indian Railways on these valves during the last three years ?

L197LAD

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No. I am afraid, my Honourable friend has been misled by the name.

(b) There are at present about 200 locomotives fitted with Poppet valves.

(c) The information is not readily available.

IMPORT DUTY ON SUGAR.

160. *Seth Haji Abdoola Haroon : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that this Assembly have passed Sugar Industry (Protection) Act, 1932, Act No. XIII of 1932, which gives power to the Governor General in Council to increase the duty imposed by section 2, as under :

"If the Governor General in Council is satisfied, after such enquiry as he thinks fit, that sugar not manufactured in India is being imported into British India at such a price as is likely to render insufficient the benefits intended to be conferred upon the sugar industries by the duties imposed by Section 2, he may, by notification in the Gazette of India, increase such duty to such extent as he thinks fit."

(b) If the answer to part (a) above be in the affirmative, has the attention of Government been drawn to the fact that sugar not manufactured in India is at present being imported into British India at such a price as renders insufficient the benefits intended to be conferred upon the sugar industries by the duties imposed by section 2 ?

(c) If the answer to part (b) above be in the affirmative, have Government set up any committee to enquire into the matter, and if not, when do they propose to do so ?

(d) Are Government aware that according to the Tariff Board's recommendations, least protection necessary for the sugar industry, as soon as the price of foreign sugar dropped to below Rs. 4 per maund c. i. f. Calcutta, was Rs. 7-4-0 plus Annas 8, total Rs. 7-12-0 per cwt. ?

(e) Are Government aware that the present prices for foreign sugar have dropped to considerably below Rs. 4 per maund c. i. f. Calcutta level, and rule around Rs. 2-13-0 or Rs. 2-14-0 per maund, reduction below Rs. 4 amounting to Rs. 1-2-0 to Rs. 1-3-0 per maund ?

(f) Are Government aware that in view of the above further reduction in the prices of foreign sugar below Rs. 4 per maund c. i. f. Calcutta the protection of Rs. 7-12-0 per cwt. referred to in part (d) above does not render sufficient the benefits intended to be conferred upon the sugar industry by the duties imposed by section 2 ?

(g) If the answer to part (f) above be in the affirmative, do Government propose to give relief to the sugar industry, and if so, how and when ?

(h) If the answer to part (f) above be in the affirmative, do Government propose to increase the protection by raising the rate of present duty on imports of foreign sugar ?

(i) If the answer to part (h) above be in the affirmative, do Government propose to announce their intention early ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhoré : (a) Yes.

(b) and (f). Government are not satisfied that the position is as stated.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) Yes.

(e) The present price of Java sugar at the ports works out at Rs. 3-3-6 per maund ex-duty.

(g), (h) and (i). Do not arise.

CADETS UNDERGOING TRAINING IN THE INDIAN MILITARY ACADEMY, DEHRA DUN.

161. *Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if the full quota of cadets is undergoing training in the Indian Military Academy at Dehra Dun ? If not, since when has the number been less than the quota agreed upon ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if the number of cadets actually undergoing training at the Royal Indian Military Academy, Dehra Dun, is not short of the quota, agreed upon, by three cadets ? If so, do Government propose to fill up the said vacancies before the next term of the Academy and thus man the Academy with the full strength ?

Lieut.-Colonel A. F. R. Lumby : (a) and (b). At the end of the last term, on the 9th June, the Academy contained its full proportionate quota, that is 120, of cadets under training for commissions in the Indian Army ; it will only reach its full authorised strength of 150 when it re-opens next month. All vacancies which occur during the course of a term are filled up not later than the beginning of the following term.

The Indian States Forces Cadets have been under strength owing to lack of qualified candidates since August, 1933, and the deficiency last term reached 15 in an authorised strength of 40.

ALLEGED RACIAL DISCRIMINATION IN THE MATTER OF RECRUITMENT AND PROMOTIONS OF INDIAN GUARDS IN THE HOWRAH DIVISION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

162. *Mr. Nabakumar Sing Dudhoria : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the Indian Guards on the East Indian Railway under the Divisional Superintendent, Howrah, appealed to the Railway Board complaining against racial discrimination in the matter of their recruitment and promotions ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, what action has been taken by the Railway Board on that appeal ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) No such appeal has so far been received by the Railway Board.

(b) Does not arise.

GUNNER GUARDS IN THE HOWRAH DIVISION, EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

163. *Mr. Nabakumar Sing Dudhoria : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) the total strength of Gunner Guards under the Divisional Superintendent, Howrah ;

- (b) the percentage of posts held by Anglo-Indians and Indians in the cadre of Guards ;
- (c) the scale of pay of the Gunner Guards ;
- (d) whether the Gunner Guards are supposed to work trains on the main line ;
- (e) the number of Indians who are drawing the maximum of Grade II and the number in Grade I ; and
- (f) the total number of Guards in Grade I and in Grade II, respectively ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) to (f). I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to pages 94 to 96 of Volume III of Mr. K. M. Hassan's " Report on the representation of Muslims and other minority communities in the subordinate railway services " which contains the information in the possession of Government regarding the staff referred to.

PASSES FOR GUARDS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

164. *Mr. Nabakumar Sing Dudhoria : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the Guards on the Eastern Bengal Railway are entitled to second class passes when their pay and mileage allowances exceed Rs. 125 a month ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, why are not the Guards of the East Indian Railway given second class passes, when their pay and mileage allowances exceed Rs. 116 ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes.

(b) The rules for the issue of passes over the East Indian Railway are not identical with those over the Eastern Bengal Railway. The question of having uniformity in the pass rules over the State-managed Railways is under consideration.

REDUCTION IN THE NUMBER OF PASSES ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

165. *Mr. Nabakumar Sing Dudhoria : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that on the East Indian Railway employees drawing pay of Rs. 116 and above are entitled to four return or eight single journey passes, whereas employees drawing pay of Rs. 75 to Rs. 115 are entitled to three return or six single journey intermediate class passes and those drawing pay of Rs. 74 and under are entitled to three return or six single journey third class passes ?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, what is the reason for reduced number of passes for those receiving lower scales of pay ?

(c) Is it a fact that no question of pay is taken into consideration in the case of officers who are entitled to first class passes ? If so, why is there consideration of pay for the subordinate staff in the matter of granting them passes ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) Yes, except that employees having not less than 20 years' service are entitled in addition to one return or two single journey passes.

(b) and (c). Certain arbitrary limits have to be fixed in order to determine the class of accommodation an employee should be allowed. In view of the large number of employees in subordinate ranks, pay limits are the only possible criteria. The number of passes admissible in a year is limited according to the class of pass, as it is obviously necessary for administrative reasons to set some limit to the grant of this privilege.

TEST OF STAFF ATTACHED TO TRANSPORTATION WORK ON RAILWAYS.

166. *Mr. Nabakumar Sing Dudhoria : Will Government be pleased to state if the Railway Board propose to examine the question and issue an uniform rule for all Railways in the matter of testing the staff attached to transportation working as is in existence on the Eastern Bengal Railway ? (On the Eastern Bengal Railway Officers and Inspecting Officers, when visiting a station on inspection, take oral examination of staff attached to Transportation working.)

Mr. P. R. Rau : Presumably the Honourable Member refers to some oral tests to which transportation staff may be put by Inspecting officials to see that they are conversant with general and subsidiary rules. The question of what tests are desirable in the case of staff of the different Departments of a Railway is one which lies within the competence of Agents of Railways and Government are not prepared to prescribe a uniform rule or procedure.

APPOINTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION INSPECTORS, COMMERCIAL, ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

167. *Mr. Nabakumar Sing Dudhoria : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that recently sanction has been accorded to the appointment of seven Transportation Inspectors, Commercial, in the various divisions on the East Indian Railway and that for the purpose of filling up the appointments the Chief Operating Superintendent has invited recommendations from the Divisional Superintendent and the Chief Commercial Manager ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state what the percentage is of the appointments that are held by the Anglo-Indians and Europeans and by Indians respectively, in the cadre of Transportation Inspectors, Commercial ?

(c) Is it a fact that the recommendations made by the Divisional Superintendent for the new appointments of Transportation Inspectors are all in favour of Anglo-Indians and Europeans and none for Indians ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government have no information. The creation and filling of these posts is within the competence of the Agent. Government are confident that the selection for these posts will be made on grounds of merit and not on communal considerations.

ANTI-INDIAN LEGISLATION IN ZANZIBAR.

168. *Mr. B. Das : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the Press report that the Zanzibar Government are legislating (or have already legislated) whereby Indians in Zanzibar will lose their right to acquire land and further Indians will be restricted in their trading rights ?

(b) Are Government aware of the feeling of perturbation and anxiety created all over India on account of this restriction of rights of Indians who have been settled for long in Zanzibar ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state what latest information they have in their possession and whether those four Bills are already placed on the Statute-book ?

(d) What steps have Government taken so far to protect the accruing rights of Indians in Zanzibar ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : With your permission, Sir, I will answer questions Nos. 168, 169 and 170 together. The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given by me to Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh's question No. 148 on the 19th instant and to connected supplementary questions.

Mr. B. Das : Will Government kindly state why is it that the Colonial Secretary did not inform the Secretary of State for India in time that such an anti-Indian legislation was being introduced in the Zanzibar Council ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I am afraid I cannot say why the Secretary of State for the Colonies did not inform the Secretary of State for India.

Mr. B. Das : Did the Secretary of State possess any earlier information than the information which was given to him by the Government of India ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I am sure he did not possess any earlier information, because in that case he would have consulted the Government of India.

Mr. B. Das : Has the attention of the Honourable Member been drawn to the speech of the ex-Attorney-General of Zanzibar, Mr. Wiggins, who stated that the policy of the Zanzibar Government for the last three years has been entirely anti-Indian ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I have perused that speech, Sir.

Mr. B. Das : Does the Honourable Member agree with that view ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : That, Sir, is asking for an expression of opinion.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask whether the Government of India received a copy of the Land Alienation Restriction Bill mentioned in question No. 169 (a) ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : We have got in the normal course a copy of the Zanzibar Official Gazette in which the Bill was published.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it possible for the Honourable Member to lay it on the table ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I have only one copy and I am afraid I cannot spare it at the present moment as I need it for my own personal use, but I have asked for another copy. If my Honourable friend would like to have a look at my copy, I can lend it to him temporarily, with pleasure.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is it not a fact that the Zanzibar Government wants to force out Indians by these indirect methods ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I am not prepared to subscribe to that inference of my Honourable friend.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : What is the difficulty in giving me that reply ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The difficulty is that I do not entirely agree with my Honourable friend, that is all.

DISQUALIFICATION OF INDIANS TO POSSESS LAND IN ZANZIBAR.

†169. Mr. B. Das : (a) With reference to the cablegram received by the Imperial Indian Citizenship Association (Bombay), from the Indian National Association, Zanzibar, and as published in the Sun of the 4th July, 1934, will Government be pleased to state if the Land Alienation Restriction Bill does not specifically aim at disqualification of Indians to possess land in Zanzibar ?

(b) Is it not a fact that the formation of Clove Growers Association by Decree No. 2 is aimed at keeping Indians from taking part in clove growing business or trading in cloves ?

(c) Is it not a fact that Decrees Nos. 3 and 4 are aimed at destroying Indian business in Zanzibar ?

SECURITY FOR THE INVESTMENTS MADE BY INDIANS IN ZANZIBAR.

†170. Mr. B. Das : (a) Are Government aware that the Indians in Zanzibar have invested 80 lakhs of rupees in business and mortgage of the Arabs' and natives' properties ?

(b) If the Land Alienation Restriction Bill, as contained in Decree No. 1 comes into operation, what security will the Zanzibar Indians have for all this large sum of money invested there ?

(c) Is it not a fact that the connection of India with Zanzibar is much older than the Christian era ?

DEPUTATION OF SIR LANCELOT GRAHAM TO LONDON.

171. Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if Sir Lancelot Graham has been sent on deputation to London to help in the draft of the New Constitution Bill ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, will Government be pleased to state the date from which Sir Lancelot Graham is placed on his deputation work ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) and (b). Sir Lancelot Graham has been deputed to the India Office for work generally in connection with Indian Constitutional Reform. He was placed on deputation with effect from the afternoon of the 14th June, 1934.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Is it not a fact that we have another officer already there in the person of Sir James Dunnett, doing somewhat similar work ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : That is quite true, Sir.

† For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 168.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : What additional duties will Sir Lancelot Graham have to perform there ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I shall be replying in the next question as to the duties that Sir Lancelot Graham may possibly be entrusted with. I may anticipate to this extent that it is a matter entirely for the Secretary of State and we cannot say on what matters Sir Lancelot Graham will be employed.

DEPUTATION OF SIR LANCELOT GRAHAM TO LONDON.

172. Mr. B. Das : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the Press report that the Joint Committee will report on the Indian Constitution some time in mid November this year ?

(b) Is that Press report true, and if so, will Government be pleased to state if Sir Lancelot Graham will assist in the preparation of the New Constitution Bill prior to the presentation of the Joint Committee Report to the Houses of Parliament ?

(c) What is the special nature of work in which Sir Lancelot Graham will be required to help the Parliamentary draftsman ?

(d) Is it a fact that Government contemplate deputing a few ex-Round Tablers to assist in the drafting of the New Constitution Bill ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c). Government have no information other than has appeared in the Press regarding the probable date of the presentation of the Joint Committee's report to Parliament. The nature of the work on which Sir Lancelot Graham will be employed is a matter entirely within the discretion of the Secretary of State. On this point reference is invited to the answer given to the Honourable Member's immediately preceding question.

(d) So far as I am aware there is no such intention.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : In view of the fact that Sir Lancelot Graham will be assisting the Secretary of State and the India Office, do I take it that the cost of his deputation will be borne by His Majesty's Government and not by the Indian Government ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I am not prepared to make any declaration on this point without notice.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : May I take it that Sir Lancelot Graham has been sent to London on the requisition of the Secretary of State and not on the initiative of the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : The Government of India were undoubtedly consulted by the Secretary of State.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Who took the initiative ? Was it at the suggestion of the Secretary of State or was it the Government of India who sent him there in addition to Sir James Dunnett ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I am not prepared to be precise on that point without specific notice.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will the Honourable Member kindly inquire about this matter and inform the House ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : If my Honourable friend will put a question down, I will see.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Will the Honourable Member kindly take this as a notice ?

Mr. B. Das : Are Government prepared to ask the Secretary of State to ask the British Government to bear the cost of Sir Lancelot Graham's deputation ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I am not prepared to give my Honourable friend an immediate answer to this question.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask whether the question, as to who should pay the deputation allowance, was ever discussed by the Government of India with the Secretary of State ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I am not aware, Sir, whether that question was specifically considered.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : If it was not discussed and he was asked by the Secretary of State, then naturally he should be paid by the British Government.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : That is my Honourable friend's inference.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I am asking the Government of India whether it is not a fact that he ought to be paid by the British Government.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : That is also a matter of opinion.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Has not India got the prescriptive right to foot such little bills ? (Laughter.)

RESEARCH CONDUCTED UNDER THE LAC CESS COMMITTEE.

173. Mr. B. Das : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the articles in the Searchlight of Patna of the 13th May, regarding the Lac Cess Committee ?

(b) Is it a fact that research under the Lac Cess Committee is mostly concerned with Applied Chemical, Physio-Chemical and Electrical Research ?

(c) Is it a fact that there are no Industrial Chemists, Physicists or Electrical experts on the Lac Cess Committee ?

(d) Is it a fact that there is a Research Sub-Committee of the Lac Cess Committee ? What is the personnel of the Sub-Committee, and what are the qualifications of each member for expert knowledge and research ?

(e) Will Government be pleased to state the personnel of corresponding research sub-committees in England and the United States of America, and the qualifications of their members in research work ?

(f) Are Government satisfied that the three sub-committees in India, England and America are at par in personnel and expert knowledge ?

(g) Are Government prepared to put in a few suitable scientists in the Lac Cess Committee and amend the Lac Cess Act accordingly ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) Yes.

(b) The branches of research referred to by the Honourable Member have recently assumed great importance.

(c) One member of the Committee is a qualified industrial chemist.

(d) and (e). A statement showing the composition of the Sub-Committee of the Indian Lac Cess Committee and of the Lac Research Sub-Committees in England and in the United States is placed on the table.

(f) The three Committees are complementary to one another.

(g) The question is under consideration.

Statement showing the composition of the Research Sub-Committee of the Indian Lac Cess Committee and of the Lac Research Sub-Committees in England and in the United States.

(a) India—Sub-Committee of the Lac Cess Committee.—1. The Director of the Lac Research Institute. Is a Chemist with 11 years' experience of Lac Research.

2. A member nominated by the Bihar and Orissa Government. At present the Commissioner of the Chota Nagpur Division.

3. The Conservator of Forests, Bihar and Orissa. Has knowledge of Lac production in forest areas and specialist knowledge of the trees which are the hosts of the Lac insect.

4. Mr. W. F. Dines. An Industrial Chemist with experience and knowledge of both the manufacture and utilisation of Lac.

5. Mr. T. C. Mukerji, representing the Shellac Manufacturing Industry. Has commercial knowledge and experience of the different qualities of Lac and of the trade in Lac.

6. The Imperial Entomologist. Has Research experience in applied entomology. At the first meeting of the Sub-Committee Dr. Aldis, Physical Chemist at the Lac Research Institute, was co-opted to it.

(b) England—Advisory Committee on Lac Research.—1. The High Commissioner for India.

2. The Indian Trade Commissioner.

3. Mr. W. Duval, Chairman of the London Shellac Trade Association.

4. Dr. L. A. Jordan, Director of the Paint and Varnish Research Station, Teddington.

5. Mr. W. Bayley-Parker, Chief Chemist to the British Thomson Houston Company, Research Laboratories, Rugby.

6. Mr. A. Nutton of Messrs. Angelo Bros. Shellac Manufacturers.

7. Mr. A. J. Gibson, Special Lac Officer.

(c) United States—The American Lac Research Bureau maintained by the United States Shellac Importers' Association.—1. Director. Dr. Gardner—Research Chemist.

2. Consultant. Dr. Olsen.

3. Consultant. Dr. Whitmore.

(The Board of Directors of the Association is also advised in matters of research policy by a Chemists' Committee comprising four Chemists employed by four manufacturing firms who are members of the Association.)

Mr. K. C. Neogy : With reference to the answer to clause (a) of this question, will the Honourable Member be pleased to state whether any action is being taken by Government with regard to the various criticisms that have appeared in the Searchlight ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I would invite my Honourable friend's attention to the answer which I gave to part (g), that the question is under consideration.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Was that the sole point involved in that article ? I thought there were several other points.

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : All the points, which were raised by my Honourable friend, during the November Session of the Assembly in Delhi and in regard to which I gave an undertaking that they would be considered by Government, are receiving consideration.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Will the Honourable Member be pleased to state whether he proposes to lay a statement on the table showing the result of the consideration of this question by Government ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Certainly, Sir, I shall lay a statement on the table, but in due course ; that is to say, when the results of the consideration become available.

Mr. B. Das : With reference to the reply to part (d), does not the statement show that the Committees in England and America are all composed of experts, while, in the Indian Committee, the personnel, barring one, is all composed of laymen ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I would not go so far as to say that they are all laymen. There is one layman on it.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask whether the statement will be laid before this Assembly, as otherwise the whole question will lapse and the Honourable Member would not be bound to lay it on the table before the next Assembly ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : My Honourable friend does not surely imply that the next Assembly will be less interested in this subject than the present ?

Mr. S. C. Mitra : May I ask whether Government have considered the question of putting on the Committee in its future reconstruction more chemists who are adepts in this particular line of expert work ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : The position is that the whole structure of this Committee is under consideration by Government at the present moment.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : On a point of order. May I ask whether, after this Assembly has been dissolved, the Honourable Member will lay a statement without any fresh question being asked or whether a fresh question would be necessary.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : There is no point of order in that.

LEGISLATION ON THE PROTECTION OF STEEL INDUSTRY.

174. *Mr. B. Das : Will Government be pleased to state whether they are bringing any legislation on the protection of steel industry in the current Session of this House ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : The Honourable Member is referred to the Government of India, Commerce Department, Press Communiqué, dated the 12th July, 1934.

Mr. B. Das : May I know when the Bill is likely to be introduced ? I am sorry I have not seen the Communiqué.

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I hope that it will be possible for me to introduce the Bill on some day this week.

DISPOSAL OF SURPLUS SILVER.

175. *Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether they are giving an early day in this House for ascertaining the view of the Legislature regarding disposal of surplus silver ?

(b) What effect, if any, has occurred on prices of silver on account of the Roosevelt policy of conservation of silver in America ?

(c) What is the present policy of Government regarding conservation of silver for India ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : (a) I would refer the Honourable Member to the reply which my predecessor gave to Sir Cowasji Jehangir's question No. 125, on the 13th February, 1934. In accordance with the undertaking then given, the matter was placed before the Standing Finance Committee on the 12th and 20th of March, 1934, and the Committee expressed a general approval of the arrangements proposed by Government for the disposal of the surplus silver to be retained by Government when the Reserve Bank is created, on the understanding that this would not debar them from criticising the Government's policy with regard to the sale of silver. These conclusions of the Committee have been made known to Honourable Members by the circulation of their proceedings, and no member of the Committee has suggested that a discussion in the House is necessary.

(b) The price of silver per ounce in the London market on the 12th March was 20½d. ; on the 12th April, 20¼d. ; on the 12th May, 19½d. ; on the 12th June, 19½d. ; and, on the 12th July, it was back at the price (20½d.) which ruled on the 12th March. I must leave the Honourable Member himself to draw from these quotations any conclusion he can as to the effect of Mr. Roosevelt's action on the prices of silver.

(c) Our policy has been explained in Sir George Schuster's speech, proposing the ratification of the Silver Agreement, on the 21st November, 1933, and in Mr. Taylor's speech, in the Council of State, on the 14th December, 1933. I would refer the Honourable Member to these speeches.

Mr. B. Das : With reference to part (a) of the question, did not the predecessor of the Honourable the Finance Member give an assurance on the floor of the House that the House would be given a day for the consideration of the question of the disposal of surplus silver ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : My reading of his assurance was that if there was a general desire for a discussion, a day would be given, but my understanding of the position is that no such general desire has manifested itself.

Mr. B. Das : May I tell the Honourable Member that there is a general desire on this side of the House to have a discussion ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : Whenever the Government undertake to give a day for the discussion of a particular subject in case there is a general desire on the part of the House, then it is up to the Leaders of Parties to get into touch with the Leader of the House and arrange for a discussion. The proceedings of the House cannot go on smoothly if every individual member of a Party gets up and says, on his own responsibility, that there is a general desire.

Mr. B. Das : With reference to part (b) of the question, apart from my own inferences about the Roosevelt policy, is it not the present policy in America to conserve their resources of silver ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is a question very difficult to answer in the short space customarily allowed to answers to parliamentary questions. I shall be glad to discuss it with my Honourable friend in private : I think it will take too long to do it here.

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE RESERVE BANK OF INDIA.

176. *Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state what action has so far been taken to constitute the Reserve Bank of India since the Reserve Bank Act was placed on the Statute-book ?

(b) What is the probable date when shares of the Reserve Bank will be placed on the market ?

(c) Have Government so far incurred any expenditure on the Reserve Bank, and, if so, to what extent ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : (a) The detailed arrangements for setting up the bank have been under active investigation and are now in a fairly advanced stage of preparation. A senior officer is shortly to be placed on special duty to see to their completion, so far as that is possible before the Central Board is actually constituted.

(b) After the supplementary questions that my Honourable friend has put, he will not be surprised to hear that I am not yet in a position to make any announcement.

(c) No, except in so far as expenditure is being incurred on working out the detailed arrangements I have mentioned under (a).

Mr. B. Das : Is it not a fact that the Honourable Member's predecessor announced that Mr. Darling of the Punjab will be placed on special work in connection with the work on rural credit facilities ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is only one side of the preparatory work for the Bank ; it is a very important side ; but, if my Honourable friend, will allow me to say so, it is not the main purpose of the Reserve Bank and the other preparations are even more important.

Mr. B. Das : Have not Mr. Darling's services so far been requisitioned by the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I understand that Mr. Darling will very shortly land in India.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask whether the Finance Member will lay the matter before the Standing Finance Committee for the confirmation of expenditure in this connection ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I do not think the Honourable Member can have heard properly my reply to part (c) of the question. The question was :

“ Have Government so far incurred any expenditure on the Reserve Bank, and, if so, to what extent ? ”

The answer to it was :

“ No, except in so far as expenditure is being incurred on working out the detailed arrangements I have mentioned under (a) ”.

The main expenditure is the placing on special duty of a senior officer and that has not yet occurred. Most of the preparations have been done in the ordinary course of the Finance Department's work.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : My question was, will the matter be laid before the Standing Finance Committee before the expenditure has actually been incurred ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I can give no such pledge, because the main purport of the questions addressed to me from the other side of the House has been that we were being too slow in preparing for the setting up of the Reserve Bank. As then there is a certain amount of urgency about it, I can give no sort of pledge that we would obtain the approval of the Standing Finance Committee before incurring any expenditure at all.

Mr. B. Das : Has the attention of the Honourable Member been drawn to the Press report that Mr. Shankar Rau is being placed on special duty in connection with the Reserve Bank ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I have said that a senior officer is shortly to be placed on special duty to see to the completion of the arrangements.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : Should not the House be in possession of the probable date when the shares of the Reserve Bank will be placed on the market ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : No, Sir.

Maulvi Muhammad Shafee Daoodi : Why not ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I should have thought the answer to that was obvious.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Is the Honourable Member's disinclination to place the matter before the Standing Finance Committee due to shortness of time or is it based on grounds of policy ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : It is based on an unwillingness to commit myself to doing something which it may be quite impossible to do in any case.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Why does the Honourable Member think at this time of the year that it will not be possible for him to summon the Standing Finance Committee to do the work ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Because practically no expenditure has yet been incurred.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Supposing the expenditure has to be incurred and supposing this House is still in being, does the Honourable Member still think that it will not be right on his part or feasible to summon the Standing Finance Committee to be consulted ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : It is the universal rule, I think, in every parliamentary institution in the world that Members in charge of Departments are exempt from answering hypothetical questions. I must plead the same privilege.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Did the Honourable Member just now say that some expenditure with regard to the details in the setting up of the Reserve Bank has already been incurred ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The answer is no, except in so far as expenditure is being incurred in the near future, and that expenditure is simply the placing on special duty of a senior officer.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Why was not this particular item of expenditure, namely, that involved in the placing of an officer on special duty, placed before the Standing Finance Committee ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Because it has not yet been incurred.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : The Honourable Member, I take it, has decided to incur it without consulting the Standing Finance Committee ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : The business of Government must be carried on.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Has the Honourable Member come to the conclusion that the business of the Government cannot be carried on if the Standing Finance Committee is consulted ?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : There appears to be a great deal of misunderstanding in the questions and answers with regard to this point. Definite rules have been laid down as to what are the items of expenditure which ought to be placed before the Standing Finance Committee, and the Chair takes it that the Government in the usual course will comply with this rule.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Certainly, Sir ; but I have just been reminded that in this particular case the whole of the expenditure which has been incurred, which is negligible, and that which will be incurred by the placing of a senior officer on special duty is non-voted, and, therefore, there is no obligation to bring it before the Standing Finance Committee.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know, Sir, if the expenditure, which is being incurred or which is likely to be incurred in connection with the placing of an officer on special duty, is all non-voted or there are some votable items also in that connection ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : My information is, it is all non-voted.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhuri : Is it not a fact, Sir, that cases of non-voted items of expenditure also should be placed before the Standing Finance Committee for approval ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Speaking off-hand,—I have had no experience of these matters,—I understand there is no necessity to bring items relating to non-voted expenditure before the Standing Finance Committee.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Is it not a fact that non-voted items come before the Standing Finance Committee for approval when expenditure relating to new services has to be incurred ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Only if they are presented in connection with new services involving voted expenditure.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Will the Honourable Member comply with the rules and practices that have hitherto been observed in this matter ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Certainly, whatever they are.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : May I know approximately the amount of expenditure which is likely to be incurred in connection with the placing of that senior officer on this particular work ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I will look into that.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if any rules have been made or any policy laid down in regard to recruitment for the establishment of the Reserve Bank ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is precisely why a senior officer is being placed on special duty—to investigate some of those matters.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know if the recruitment will be made through the Public Service Commission, or, if it is not so, how will it be made ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I cannot possibly make any statement about that just now.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member make some statement about it some day when he can ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : When I can, but not before.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it not a fact, Sir, that the Honourable Member, in his capacity as Chairman of the Standing Finance Committee, is himself the custodian of the rights and duties of that Committee ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Yes, and those privileges and duties will be fully safeguarded.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Will he be pleased, as Chairman of the Standing Finance Committee, to ask the Finance Member of the Government of India to see that the privileges and duties of that Committee are fully carried out and that no departure is made from the practice hitherto followed ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I will certainly ask myself that question, and I hope that I shall give myself a sensible answer.

Mr. B. Das : May I know, Sir, if this non-voted officer is not being assisted by a chaprassi and stenographer, so that part of the expenditure is still votable ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : I must have notice of that, Sir.

Sirdar Harbans Singh Brar : Is it not a fact, Sir, that in previous years, cases of officers placed on special duty, whose salaries were non-voted, were placed before the Standing Finance Committee for approval as in the case of the Honourable Sir Harry Haig who was placed on special duty twice or thrice before he was appointed Home Member, and sanction was always obtained of the Standing Finance Committee ?

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : I hope the Honourable the Finance Member is not departing from the rights and privileges which have hitherto been followed by the Standing Finance Committee ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : No.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Chair does not think it was the intention of the Honourable the Finance Member to announce any departure from the recognised policy of the Government in placing matters before the Standing Finance Committee.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : That is quite so. What I refused to give was any undertaking that no expenditure should be incurred or no action taken until the Standing Finance Committee had actually approved. I understand that the rules of procedure in this country provide for the Government taking action in cases of urgency in advance of the approval of the Standing Finance Committee. I am quite unwilling to waive those rules.

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : In any case, it is not the intention of the Honourable the Finance Member to vary the practice that has so far been followed with regard to the placing of such matters before the Standing Finance Committee ?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg : Not at all, Sir.

REPORT OF THE INDIAN COLONIZATION ENQUIRY COMMITTEE OF SOUTH AFRICA.

177. Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they consented to the preliminary investigation report of the Indian Colonization Enquiry Committee by the Government of South Africa ?

(b) At the time of giving such consent, did Government of India agree to the point that this alien Committee should recommend as to how and where India should provide a colony for her surplus population ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table of this House all relevant correspondence that passed between them and the South African Government ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (b). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the replies given by me to the supplementary questions asked by him on the 18th instant, in connection with Mr. Ranga Iyer's short notice question on the subject of the Report.

(c) Government regret that they are unable to lay a copy of the correspondence on the table of the House.

APPOINTMENT OF A JOINT COMMISSION TO EXPLORE COLONIZATION SCHEMES FOR SOUTH AFRICAN INDIANS.

178. Mr. B. Das : (a) Will Government be pleased to state the reasons which prevented the appointment of the Joint Commission as was agreed at the 1932 Round Table Conference ?

L197LAD

(b) Will Government be pleased to state if the 1932 Agreement regarding appointment of a Joint Commission to explore colonization schemes for South African Indians still holds good, and if so, when will such a Joint Commission materialise?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (b). The initiative in this matter rests with the Union Government who decided to appoint a preliminary Committee in South Africa first.

REPORT OF THE INDIAN COLONIZATION ENQUIRY COMMITTEE OF SOUTH AFRICA.

179. Mr. B. Das : What correspondence have the Government of India sent to the Government of South Africa on the advice of the Committee over colonization of India? Will Government kindly lay on the table all letters and cables that have passed between them since the publication of the report?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : I would invite the Honourable Member's attention to the answer I gave to Mr. Ranga Iyer's short notice question on the 18th instant. Government have not yet formed or communicated their views on the recommendations of the Committee to the Union Government.

Mr. B. Das : Has the Union Government addressed any letter or cable to the Government of India on the matter?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : Merely a communication, Sir, inquiring as to whether the Government of India will be agreeable to the publication of the Report on a certain date.

TOTAL CAPITAL EXPENDITURE ON ROLLING STOCK.

180. Mr. K. P. Thampan : Will Government be pleased to state :

(a) the total capital expenditure on rolling stock—stating figures separately for locomotive engines and wagons—for the years 1919 to 1934 ;

(b) how much of it was spent in India, Great Britain and foreign countries ; and

(c) what steps they are taking to make this country self-contained in respect of the requirements of its Railways?

Mr. P. B. Rau : (a) The total expenditure on locomotive engines and wagons, during the 15 years referred to, amounted to 30,49 and 41,86 lakhs, respectively.

(b) The detailed information is not available, but I would inform the Honourable Member that locomotives are only manufactured in India at the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Workshops at Ajmer. During the last few years an average of 15 Metre Gauge locomotives per annum have been built at Ajmer at a cost of approximately Rs. 62,000 each.

Wagons complete, with the exception of certain components such as wheels and axles, buffers, etc., are manufactured in India and railways' requirements of I. R. S. wagons are ordered from Indian builders.

(c) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the Government of India, Industries and Labour Department Resolution No. S-217 dated the 12th December, 1929 [printed as Appendix I (A) in the State Railway Code (Revised)], a copy of which is in the Library of the House. The Railway Board are actively following the policy therein enunciated, for encouraging indigenous industries. The subject of constructing locomotives in India is now under consideration.

CLERKS WORKING AS DESPATCHERS AND DIARISTS IN THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA DEPARTMENTS.

181. Mr. K. P. Thampan : (a) Will Government be pleased to state whether there are some clerks in certain departments drawing more than Rs. 200 per month, who do only despatching work or work as diarists?

(b) If the answer to part (a) be in the affirmative, how many such clerks are there and in which departments?

(c) What is the highest salary now drawn by such a clerk?

(d) Have Government considered whether they cannot in the interests of economy be put on some more responsible work elsewhere, or retrenched?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I lay on the table a statement containing the information required by the Honourable Member.

Statement showing the number of clerks in the Government of India Secretariat who are drawing pay of more than Rs. 200 a month, and who are doing work as diarist or despatcher.

Name of Department.	No. of clerks.	Pay.	Remarks.
Education, Health and Lands.	1 (Despatcher) ..	Rs. 300 (substantive) Rs. 325 (on probation).	There is only one post of despatcher in the Department, and as the work is very heavy at all times and at times of a confidential nature it is necessary to employ a senior and trustworthy clerk. The existing incumbent is nearing the age of superannuation.
Finance	2 { 1 Despatcher .. 1 Diarist ..	268 236	It is not considered desirable to transfer them to other work or to retrench them, as the despatcher is nearing the age of superannuation and the diarist's work is considered to be as responsible as most of the other duties which can be entrusted to a clerk of his pay and status.
Foreign and Political.	1 (Despatcher) ..	350	He is the senior despatcher. The special nature of work in the Foreign and Political Department makes it necessary to have senior man to do the despatching of secret and confidential work.

LIBRARIANS ATTACHED TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA DEPARTMENTS.

182. *Mr. K. P. Thampan : (a) Will Government please state whether there are separate librarians attached to every department ? If so, how many ?

(b) What is the grade of their salary and the amount actually drawn by each at present ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I lay on the table a statement containing the information required by the Honourable Member.

WAIVING OF THE DISQUALIFICATION OF CONGRESS CANDIDATES CONVICTED FOR OFFENCES IN CONNECTION WITH THE CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE MOVEMENT.

183. *Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : (a) Will Government be pleased to state if they propose to waive the disqualification under rule 5, sub-rule (2) of the Legislative Assembly Electoral Rules and Regulations, in the case of Congress candidates convicted of any of the offences under any of the Ordinances, or, the Indian Penal Code, in connection with the Civil Disobedience Movement ?

(b) If the reply to part (a) be in the affirmative, do Government propose to (i) issue a communique stating their general policy in regard to such cases, or (ii) deal with each individual case ?

(c) If the reply to part (ii) of part (b) above be in the affirmative, will it be left to Local Governments to deal with such cases ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a), (b) and (c). Provision is made in the Electoral Rules that on application made by a person disqualified under Rule 5, sub-rule (2), and with the previous approval of the Governor General in Council the Local Government may remove the disqualification. There is no intention of departing from the procedure laid down in the Rules. Any person who wishes his disqualification removed will have to apply to the Local Government. The Government of India are at present in correspondence with Local Governments in regard to the treatment of such applications.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Are there any Rules for such exemption ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The Rule is that to which I have just referred,—Rule 5, sub-rule (2).

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Do I take it then that the Government have decided not to issue any general orders waiving the disqualifications in the case of Civil Disobedience prisoners ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : They have decided not to make any amendment in the existing Rule ; but, as I have said, they are in correspondence at the present moment with the Local Governments in regard to the application of those Rules.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : Have Government received any applications till now ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No applications have reached the Government of India so far.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Will the result of their correspondence with the Local Governments be communicated to the public by means of a communiqué ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir ; that is not our intention.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Is it a fact, Sir, that, so far as the Bengal Government are concerned, while the Executive Councillors are in favour of removing the disqualifications, the "popular" Ministers are all opposed to such removal of the disqualifications ?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I do not think I can...

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : The Honourable Member need not answer that question.

AERIAL BOMBARDMENT ON THE SOUTHERN WAZIRISTAN IN THE TRANS-FRONTIER AREA.

184. *Mr. M. Maswood Ahmad : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the article Sarhad par Gola bari shroo ho gai, published on page 5 of the Khilafat, Bombay, dated the 14th June, 1934 ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to state whether the news, as published, is correct and if it is correct, what were the reasons which led to the aerial bombardment on Southern Waziristan in the trans-frontier area ?

(c) Will Government be pleased to state (i) on which villages the bombs were actually dropped, (ii) how many bombs were dropped on each village, and (iii) what were the estimated losses of each village ?

(d) Do Government propose to change the policy of aerial bombardment on the population of the trans-frontier area ?

Mr. H. A. F. Metcalfe : (a) Yes.

(b) The report is entirely without foundation and an official contradiction was published on the 13th June, 1934, when the report first appeared in the Press.

(c) and (d). Do not arise.

INTRODUCTION OF CREW SYSTEM AND MOODY-WARD SYSTEM OF TICKET CHECKING ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

185. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) Did the Agent, East Indian Railway, ever report to the Railway Board that the old system of checking tickets (when it operated) was not efficacious ?

(b) Did the Agent, East Indian Railway, desire the introduction of Crew system and Moody-Ward system on his Railway of his own initiative or did he simply approve of their introduction when a suggestion was made to him from different quarters ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). I cannot trace any such report, but the Agent, East Indian Railway, was a member of the Committee which recommended in 1926 the introduction, as an experimental measure, of the crew system as a means primarily of preventing passengers from entraining without tickets. In 1927, he recommended its extension over the entire East Indian Railway system. As regards the system recommended by the Moody-Ward Committee, the Agent, East Indian Railway, agreed with the view that the crew system should be abolished and the arrangement recommended by the Moody-Ward Committee adopted.

Lieut. Colonel Sir Henry Gidney : Will the Honourable Member, who is also the Financial Commissioner for Railways, inform this House what approximately is the cost of maintaining the crew system on the East Indian Railway, as compared with the gain accruing from the traffic of passengers travelling without tickets and excess fares ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I think, Sir, I must ask for notice of that question.

Lieut. Colonel Sir Henry Gidney : Is it not a fact that the Audit Department has not up to date been able to obtain this information ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : It is a difficult matter to ascertain what would have been the earnings if the crew system had not been introduced.

Lieut. Colonel Sir Henry Gidney : Is it not a fact that various Agents of various Railways have condemned the crew system and have gone back to the old ticket collecting system, for instance, on the Bengal Nagpur Railway and the E. B. Railway, and that none of the Company-managed Railways have the crew system in force ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I believe, Sir, the crew system is not at present in existence except in isolated sections of certain Railways.

Lieut. Colonel Sir Henry Gidney : Is it not a fact that the crew system has been foisted on State Railways by the Railway Board ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have just replied to that question.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is the Honourable Member in a position to make a statement with regard to the complaints which have been lying with the Honourable Member regarding the revision of their allowances ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I think, Sir, that does not arise out of this question, but it arises out of a later question.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : I did not quite follow the Honourable Member's reply to part (a). Did the Honourable gentleman say that the Agent definitely said that the old system was not efficacious ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I said I could not trace any such report.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Is it not a fact that the Agent expressed no opinion, but the Railway Board took the entire initiative to change the system ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : As I have already informed the House, the Agent of the E. I. Railway was a member of the Committee which recommended the crew system.

Mr. Abdul Matin Chaudhury : Is it not a fact that the value of the crew system lies in the deterrent effect which it has on people travelling without tickets and it cannot be measured in terms of money ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : That was its object.

ILLICIT TRAVELLING ON RAILWAYS.

186. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) Are Government aware that the Agent, East Indian Railway, in reply to part (c) of question No. 155 (reply laid on the table of this House on the 9th April, 1934), states that now the Travelling Ticket Examiners perform other services to the public and will Government be pleased to enquire and state whether the performance of these "other services" is incumbent on them in view of the fact that their "main duty is detection" [as admitted by the Agent in part (b) of the question] ?

(b) Where are these other duties tabled and announced to the employees ?

(c) What are those various other services ?

(d) Were such services not performed under the old system by the Travelling Ticket Inspectors controlled by Accounts ? If not, why not ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I propose to reply to questions Nos. 186, 190 and 191 together.

I have called for certain information from the Agent, East Indian Railway, and will lay a reply on the table in due course.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Now the Honourable Member can reply to my question. Has any consideration been given to the complaints of these ticket examiners with regard to their allowances ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am afraid I must ask my Honourable friend to wait a little bit more. That arises under question No. 193.

ILLCIT TRAVELLING ON RAILWAYS.

187. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) Are Government aware that the Agent, East Indian Railway, says "The only test of efficiency is the prevention of illicit travelling", and in this connection, will Government be pleased to state if it is not a fact that it has lately been admitted that the efficiency of a Travelling Ticket Examiner is judged from his earnings ?

(b) Is it a fact that the efficiency of the system depends on prevention of illicit travelling, which means no earnings by the Travelling Ticket Examiners ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The reply to the first part is in the affirmative. As regards the second part, I shall be glad if the Honourable Member will tell me by whom and when such an admission was made.

(b) If the ideal can be attained and no passenger travels without a ticket, Travelling Ticket Examiners will obviously have no earnings to credit to the Administration.

EMPLOYMENTS OF TWO SQUADS OF SPECIAL TICKET EXAMINERS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

188. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) With reference to the reply given to starred question No. 553 (a), (b) and (c), as laid on the table of this House on the 7th April, 1934, will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that the men utilised belonged to Workshops, etc., and drew much less pay than what was offered to them for this ticket checking work ?

(b) What was the pay of each individual in his former capacity ?

(c) Why were they given higher rate of pay ?

(d) On what considerations was it thought necessary to have this auxiliary check by Watch and Ward conducted by purely Anglo-Indian and European boys ?

(e) On what considerations was it thought necessary to have this auxiliary check in addition to the existing number of 650 Travelling Ticket Examiners ?

(f) Was any such auxiliary force ever thought expedient when the Travelling Ticket Inspectors worked under the Accounts control and were about 150 in all as against 650 (Travelling Ticket Examiners) employed now ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The men were employed in Locomotive Running Sheds under the control of the Chief Operating Superintendent. The reply to the second part of the Honourable Member's question is in the affirmative.

(b) The emoluments of various individuals varied from about Rs. 12 to about Rs. 30 per mensem.

(c) The pay given approximated to that drawn by Travelling Ticket Examiners, as the nature of their work and the conditions under which it had to be performed were similar to those of Travelling Ticket Examiners.

(d) and (e). The Agent, East Indian Railway, considered it desirable to institute an intensive auxiliary check as he was satisfied that this had become necessary. The men were selected from amongst those who were temporarily surplus to requirements and who had no possible connection with staff then employed as Travelling Ticket Examiners or Ticket Collectors.

(f) I regret it is not possible to say at this distant date what auxiliary checks were previously exercised.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask whether this Watch and Ward is also to look after the work of the railway servants ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Watch and Ward Department's function is different, but there is nothing to prevent its being used for this purpose as well.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Will they employ the Watch and Ward to look after the work of the officers also ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I have not heard any proposal to that effect.

FORMATION OF SQUADS FOR TICKET CHECKING ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

189. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) With reference to starred question No. 835, parts (a) and (b), reply to which was laid in this House on the 7th April, 1934, will Government be pleased to state, why the choice of such auxiliary check was made in respect of Watch and Ward department ?

(b) Is it a fact that dealing with excess fare matters is purely a commercial or audit concern and is not the function of the Watch and Ward ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Anglo-Indian and European boys who were utilised for the purpose had no previous experience in ticket checking work ?

(d) Is it a fact that they never passed any qualifying test ?

(e) Why was no Indian utilised for this auxiliary work and on what definite considerations was it exclusively monopolised by Anglo-Indian and European community ?

(f) Were these men surplus for requirements, and why was extra and higher pay given to these men ?

(g) Why was this extra expenditure incurred during these days of depression when cut on the pay of employees still continues ?

(h) Was this auxiliary force set up as a "special experimental scheme", and was any special report submitted by the Watch and Ward authorities on the experience gained by them? If not, why not?

(i) Has this experiment been successful?

(j) What conclusions were drawn by the Railway Board on the results of the check by these squads under Watch and Ward and independent of Operating control?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) and (b). The Agent, East Indian Railway, reports that it was considered desirable that the check should be carried out under the control of a Department, independent of the Department normally responsible for the check and collection of tickets. The Watch and Ward Department was considered suitable for this purpose, as it was an organisation operating over the entire system and had staff who could be utilised to close exits at unfenced stations while the gangs were working on trains.

(c) and (d). The staff utilised had no previous experience, but were given a course of instruction in the duties required of them and qualified in this respect.

(e) Government understand from the Agent, East Indian Railway, that the Administration were anxious to ensure that none of the staff employed on this auxiliary work was in any way connected with the ticket examining and collecting staff at stations.

(f) Government understand that these men were temporarily surplus and that the pay given approximated to that ordinarily given for this class of work.

(g) The Agent reports that the position as regards illicit travelling necessitated an intensive check with a view to ascertaining whether any change in the existing arrangements was called for.

(h), (i) and (j). This was an auxiliary check arranged by the East Indian Railway Administration on their own initiative and without a reference to the Railway Board, the matter being within the Agent's own competence. The Agent has reported that there is ample evidence to show that the action of the Divisional Superintendents, along with the appointment of these gangs, has brought about a very great improvement in the working of the ticket examining staff.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Was the fact brought to the notice of the Railway Board that the Watch and Ward passed a railway ticket at Aligarh Station, while the ticket was only for a small station about ten miles away from Gaya, under the impression that this station was between Delhi and Aligarh?

Mr. P. R. Rau : No, Sir.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Will the Honourable Member kindly make enquiries from the Divisional Superintendent, Allahabad, about this case?

Mr. P. R. Rau : If my Honourable friend will give me particulars of this case, I shall look into it.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : From these questions it appears as if this Watch and Ward is manned only by Anglo-Indians. Is that so?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Watch and Ward Department is not entirely manned by Anglo-Indians.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : I am asking about this particular Watch and Ward.

Mr. P. R. Rau : These are men who were employed in the locomotive running sheds under the control of the Chief Operating Superintendent.

GETTING INTO RUNNING TRAINS BY TRAVELLING TICKET EXAMINERS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

†190. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) With reference to the reply to starred question No. 816 (a) and (b), given in this House on the 21st April, 1934, that it is against orders for a Travelling Ticket Examiner to get into the moving train, will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that this action of these people is being tolerated by the administration? If so, why?

(b) Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of these orders (prohibiting the Travelling Ticket Examiners from getting into moving train)?

(c) Has any Travelling Ticket Examiner ever been punished for the disobedience of these orders, specially ever since the introduction of Moody-Ward system?

(d) If a Travelling Ticket Examiner is dealing with some case on the platform and before he has finished with it the train starts, then is it essential for him to attempt to board the train or should he remain back and miss the train?

(e) Will Government be pleased to state what is the size of the satchel and whether the Salter's spring balance can be put into it?

(f) Will Government be pleased to state what is the length of the spring balance (Salter's) without hook and ring and with hook and ring? Will Government be pleased to exhibit it and the satchel in this House?

SPRING BALANCES CARRIED BY THE TRAVELLING TICKET EXAMINERS ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

†191. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) With reference to the reply to starred question No. 815 (e), given in this House on the 21st April, 1934, will Government be pleased to state whether Travelling Ticket Examiners are expected to weigh passengers' luggage with their own hands?

(b) Is it a fact that Travelling Ticket Inspectors under Accounts Department were provided with peons who carried the scale and weighed the luggage?

(c) If it is necessary to weigh luggage in trains, then why are the scale peons not provided now?

(d) Is it anywhere mentioned in the Moody-Ward Report that the Travelling Ticket Examiners in this scheme will, on amalgamation of peons and Travelling Ticket Inspectors, perform combined function of detection, prevention and weighment?

† For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 186.

(e) Is it a fact that in order to fix up a suit case or a box in the hook of the spring balance it is necessary to turn the articles over and then raise for weighment?

(f) Is it expected of a Travelling Ticket Examiner to pull out luggage from under the berths or bring down from upper berths?

(g) If a Travelling Ticket Examiner is unable to do so, is he expected to ask for passenger's help in this direction?

(h) Are Government prepared to look into the matter?

(i) Is it a fact that on account of the jerks caused by a moving train no correct reading can be ensured, which might lead to overcharge?

MOODY-WARD REPORT ON THE TICKET CHECKING SYSTEM ON THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.

192. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) With reference to the reply to starred question No. 817 (c), dated the 21st April, 1934, in this House, will Government be pleased to state whether the Director of Finance was consulted before giving effect to Moody-Ward recommendations in respect of pay and allowances and in respect of Operating control of Travelling Ticket Examiners? If so, did he agree to the recommendations?

(b) Is it a fact that the Moody-Ward recommendations have been made public, and the remarks of the dealing authorities kept confidential? If so, why?

(c) Was the opinion of Mr. Scott, inventor of the Crew system, solicited on the Moody-Ward recommendations and did he agree to them?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a), (b) and (c). Copies of the Moody-Ward Committee's report were placed in the Library of the House. Government regret they cannot state which of their officers were consulted before orders were issued on the recommendations contained in this report, and they consider it undesirable in the public interests to publish the opinions of such officers as may have been consulted.

MILEAGE ALLOWANCE AND GRADE PROMOTION TO THE OLD TRAVELLING TICKET INSPECTORS OF THE ACCOUNTS DEPARTMENT.

193. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to an article headed "a suggestion to the Railway Board", published in the Railway Times, Bombay, dated the 23rd June, 1934? If so, what action do Government propose to take on these suggestions?

(b) Is it a fact that the question about mileage allowance and grade promotion of the old Travelling Ticket Inspectors of the Accounts Department is still under the consideration of the Railway Board?

(c) Is the complaint contained in paragraph 6 of the said article regarding seniority true? If so, has it by now been redressed? If not,

(d) What action do Government propose to take on the suggestion made in the concluding paragraph of the said article?

Mr. P. R. Rau : (a) The reply to the first part is in the affirmative. As regards the second part Government do not consider that any action is called for.

(b) Memorials from the travelling ticket examining staff of the North Western Railway, and from the ticket examining staff of the East Indian Railway are under the consideration of the Railway Board in consultation with the Agents of the Railways.

(c) Government have no information. The question is within the competence of the Agent to decide.

(d) Government do not propose to make any change in the organization of this department at present.

Lieut.-Colonel Sir Henry Gidney : With reference to the Honourable Member's reply to part (d) of the question, will he kindly inform the House why the Government do not propose to take any action?

Mr. P. R. Rau : Is it with regard to (d)?

Lieut. Colonel Sir Henry Gidney : In regard to part (d) of the question.

Mr. P. R. Rau : Government do not propose to take any action, because they do not consider that any change is necessary.

Lieut.-Colonel Sir Henry Gidney : Will the Honourable Member kindly repeat his answer? I cannot hear a word.

Mr. P. R. Rau : It is mutual, I am afraid. (Laughter.) Government do not propose to make any change in the organisation of the Department at present, because they do not consider that any change is required.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member, now that my question is pertinent, how long it will take for the Agent to come to a conclusion on this point?

Mr. P. R. Rau : The Railway Board is in communication with the Agents. I think a reply has not been received from one Agent, and, as soon as his reply is received, the matter will, I hope, be settled.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Does the Honourable Member know that in the meantime some injustice is being done to these Ticket Examiners and that, owing to their incessant complaints, they are being transferred from their section to distant parts as a punishment? Is it or is it not a fact?

Mr. P. R. Rau : I am not in a position to reply to that question without notice.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Will the Honourable Member tell the Agent not to pursue this policy?

(No answer.)

HILL ALLOWANCE TO TRAVELLING TICKET EXAMINERS POSTED AT HARDWAR.

194. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) With reference to the reply to starred question No. 135 (a) and (d), laid on the table on the 12th April, 1934, will Government be pleased to state if it is a fact that when the list of staff eligible for hill allowance was compiled, the Travelling Ticket Examiners were under the Accounts control and so their names did not appear ?

(b) Is it a fact that with the introduction of the Moody-Ward system the posts of the Travelling Ticket Examiners and the Ticket Collectors have been amalgamated ?

(c) Is it a fact that the Travelling Ticket Examiners posted at Hardwar during melas are utilised not as Travelling Ticket Examiners, but as Ticket Collectors ? If so, why are they not held eligible for hill allowance allowed to the Ticket Collectors ?

(d) On what considerations is the hill allowance sanctioned to certain employees stationed at Hardwar and to others it is not ?

(e) How many Travelling Ticket Examiners were utilised in all at Hardwar and other stations in connection with Adh Kumbh mela in other than their legitimate duties and what duties were allotted to them ?

Mr. P. R. Rau : With your permission, Sir, I shall reply to questions Nos. 194 and 195 together. The information is being obtained and will be laid on the table in due course.

PERCENTAGE ALLOTTED TO EUROPEANS AND ANGLO-INDIANS OF THE CONTROL STAFF ON THE BOMBAY, BARODA AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.

†195. *Khan Bahadur Haji Wajihuddin : (a) Is it a fact that the strength of the Control Staff is maintained at 50 per cent. Europeans and Anglo-Indians, and 50 per cent. Indians, on Metre Gauge System over the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway ? If so, why is such a high percentage allotted to Europeans and Anglo-Indians ?

(b) Has any Indian Controller been promoted to Station Master's Branch, like European and Anglo-Indian Controllers, Messrs. Bickers and Garlings ? If not, why not ?

(c) Is it a fact that Messrs. Hemmer and Lamas are over and above the percentage and have been given Rs. 50 promotion from Rs. 70 to Rs. 120 as probationary Controllers ? If so, why ?

(d) Is there any Indian trained (probationary) Controller being given any such promotion ? If not, why not ?

(e) Is it a fact that European and Anglo-Indian probationary Controllers, after having their extraordinary lifts, changed their designations to Guard ? If so, why ? Is any Indian trained Controller treated in this manner ? If not, why not ?

(f) Is it a fact that the staff in general get some promotion after qualifying themselves for some higher grade and Indian trained Controllers are debarred the privilege ? If so, why ?

(g) Is the Agent, Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, ready to remove the racial discrimination from Metre Gauge and to accord equal treatment to the Indian trained Controllers with due consideration of their arduous duties, and to grant some promotions ?

†For answer to this question, see answer to question No. 194.

ANTI-INDIAN LEGISLATION IN ZANZIBAR.

193. *Mr. C. S. Ranga Iyer : (a) Will Government be pleased to state their position in regard to the anti-Indian legislation in Zanzibar and place on the table of this House relevant correspondence on the subject which passed between the Government of India and that of Zanzibar ?

(b) Will Government be pleased to furnish to this House all the information in their possession on the subject ?

Mr. G. S. Bajpai : (a) and (b). The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given by me to Mr. B. Das's questions Nos. 168—170. Correspondence in regard to this matter is still in progress and Government therefore regret that they cannot lay a copy on the table.

EXEMPTION OF SAMPLES FROM CUSTOMS DUTY.

197. *Lala Rameshwar Prasad Bagla : (a) Have Government received any representation from the public regarding the exemption of bona fide samples from Custom duty ? If so, when and from whom ?

(b) In view of the existing trade depression, are Government prepared to consider the desirability of so amending the Indian Tariff Act as to provide for the exemption of bona fide samples ?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) Yes, Sir, a representation on the subject was recently received from the United Provinces Chamber of Commerce.

(b) Under existing orders, import duty is not collected on samples, if they are practically valueless, in that they are unfit for consumption or for any other use than as samples for inspection, or if the quantity of a consignment is not in excess of the quantity ordinarily sent as a sample to an individual customer or potential customer. Government see no reason for extending the scope of the exemption, especially as Indian Customs practice in this respect is substantially in accord with the recommendations made by a body of experts to the Economic Committee of the League of Nations in connection with the International Convention for the simplification of Customs formalities.

(e) Are Government now prepared to adopt the same measures to encourage the "Buy Indian" propaganda as are being taken by the British and American Governments?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : (a) Government are aware of the "Buy British" campaign, but not of the extent, if any, to which the British Government are assisting it. They have no information of its American counterpart.

(b) Yes : from the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry in April last.

(c) The Post Office have used the motto "Support Indian Industries" for some years past. Government have also supported exhibitions of Indian products and one object of the creation of the proposed Industrial Intelligence and Research Bureau is to develop this line of propaganda. Government, however, place more confidence on the practical assistance they are giving to Indian industries than on propaganda.

(d) and (e). Government will be very glad to examine any suggestion as to the lines on which such propaganda may usefully be developed.

Mr. B. Das : May I inquire if the activities of the Industries Research Bureau of the Department, which the Honourable Member is creating, will not come under the Ordinances of his colleague on his left?

Mr. B. V. Jadhav : May I know from the Honourable Member what industries are contemplated to be taken under the new Department?

The Honourable Sir Frank Noyce : All industries that can usefully take advantage of the facilities that it will afford.

INDIA'S MEMBERSHIP OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

199. Lala Rameshwar Prasad Bagla : (a) Will Government please state the amount they pay as annual subscription to the League of Nations?

(b) Will Government please state the number of Indians at present in the service of the League of Nations?

(c) Will Government be pleased to place on the table for the information of this House a statement showing the amount of subscription paid to the League of Nations by each of its member States and the representation given to each in regard to the employment of its people in its Secretariat?

(d) Did Government receive any representation from the public to the effect that India should resign the membership of the League? If so, when and from whom?

(e) Is it not a fact that, in spite of the numerous protests from the public, it was considered desirable by Government to continue the membership of the League? If so, why?

(f) Are Government prepared to consider the question of resigning the membership of the League now?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : (a) The amount is not fixed but is arrived at in each year by calculating the proportion of the total estimated expenditure for that year which is payable by India under the system of allocation for the time being in force. The amount for 1934 is one million, seven hundred and four thousand, two hundred and two decimal gold francs which is equivalent to fourteen lakhs, ninety thousand and thirteen rupees.

(b) Six Indians are at present permanently employed in the Secretariat of the League of Nations including the International Labour Office. It is believed that there are also three temporary Indian employees.

(c) The Honourable Member is referred to pages 1258 to 1293 of the League of Nations Official Journal, 14th year, No. 10, Part II, a copy of which is in the Library.

(d) No.

(e) Government have received no protests and have never contemplated resignation from the League, a step which in their opinion would represent at once an abandonment of an international duty and an abdication of international status.

(f) No.

Mr. B. Das : Is it not a fact that the representatives of the Government of India at the League of Nations and also the delegates to the I. L. O. have always insisted that the League of Nations and the I. L. O. should employ more Indians than at present?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : That is my impression.

Mr. B. Das : Have the Government of India addressed any letter to the Director of the League of Nations that they should give effect to the recommendations which the representatives of the Government of India have addressed to the Government of India?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I am not exactly aware of what happened before my time, but in my time I have done it.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : What is the proportion of Indians in the Secretariat of the League of Nations, and what is the proportion of our contributions to the funds of the League of Nations?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : The answer to part (c) of the question refers to a journal in which all the details are given, and that is available in the Library.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : But the proportions are not worked out there?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : No one can do it better mathematically than my friend over there.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask whether the Honourable gentleman can find out for his own benefit whether the proportion of the service is equivalent to the proportion of our contribution?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I would accept even Dr. Ziauddin's mathematical calculations.

Mr. K. C. Neogy : Even!

Sir Abdur Rahim : Is it not a fact that Lord Lytton, when he was in one of the delegations, protested against the amount which was levied from India as contribution to the League of Nations?

L197LAD

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I should have been glad to answer that question if I had the information before me. I have not got it before me. If required, I can inquire into it. I require notice.

Sir Abdur Rahim : Are the Government of India considering whether it is not desirable to ask the League of Nations to substantially reduce the contribution from India?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I am not prepared to answer that question just now, but speaking offhand, I would say that it is desirable.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : The Princes are taking part in the delegation. Who is to meet the cost of the Princes?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I do not think that the Princes are charged any costs, beyond a fixed payment.

Mr. D. K. Lahiri Chaudhury : They are represented also in the League of Nations and what is the Government of India's contribution to the Princes, when they go there, towards their expenses?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : A fixed sum is paid to the Prince, who may be a member of the Indian delegation.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : May I ask whether the Government of India bear the entire cost of the delegation irrespective of the fact whether the members belong to the Indian States or British India?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : My information is that a fixed sum is spent for the Prince.

Mr. S. C. Mitra : Is it not a fact that this contribution bears a certain percentage to the revenue of a particular State and its population, and that it cannot be fixed from other considerations?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : To the best of my information, no.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Does the representation of India in the League of Nations mean the representation of British India only or British India plus Indian India?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : It means India as a whole.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Should not the Indian Princes also be asked to contribute their share towards the expenses incurred on account of the League of Nations?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I want notice, because I have no information with me just now.

Mr. B. Das : Is it not a sad commentary on Government's financial policy that, before linking the rupee to the sterling, we paid nine lakhs of rupees and now we pay 14 lakhs?

Mr. President (The Honourable Sir Shanmukham Chetty) : It is not asking for information.

Mr. B. Das : Is it not a fact that, before the rupee was linked to sterling, we paid Rs. 9 lakhs and now we are paying 14 lakhs through the wrong financial policy of the Government of India?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : What was paid in each year is a question of fact which can be ascertained from documents. I express no further opinion on that.

Mr. H. P. Mody : Is the Honourable Member in a position to inform the House whether the Government of India contemplate making a representation with regard to the reduction of the contribution?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I think I have answered that question. I cannot answer that definitely now. The question was by Sir Abdur Rahim. I want notice.

Mr. H. P. Mody : Sir Abdur Rahim's question was, whether Government considered it desirable to make a representation. I want to know whether the Government of India actually contemplate making any representation.

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I am not prepared to answer that question just now without notice.

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Are the Government of India contemplating making the best use of our contributions by giving effect to the recommendations of the delegation which they themselves send from time to time?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I do not think it arises, but the Government of India always contemplate doing the best for India.

Sir Abdur Rahim : If it is a fact that India is an original member of the League of Nations—and I believe that is so—then, is the Honourable Member prepared to explain to us what is the meaning of "original member"? Has India a voice in the League of Nations independent of that of Great Britain?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : To answer that question, I require notice, because I have not come prepared to answer that as arising legitimately out of these questions.

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : Will Government seriously consider the question of asking the Indian States to make a contribution towards the expenditure of the League of Nations in view of the fact that the expenditure incurred by India in respect of the League of Nations represents, not only that appertaining to British India, but the Indian States as well?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I want notice. But I can answer now only one portion of the question, viz., whether they will seriously consider the question. Sir, if they consider it at all, they will do so seriously and not in a light-hearted manner. (Laughter.)

Mr. Gaya Prasad Singh : As usual!

Dr. Ziauddin Ahmad : Did the Government of India ever ask that India should have a permanent membership in the Council of League of Nations?

The Honourable Sir Nripendra Sircar : I want notice; I have not come prepared to answer all these questions.

ESTABLISHMENT OF MUSLIM CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE.

200. *Lala Rameshwar Prasad Bagla : (a) Are Government aware that a Muslim Chamber of Commerce has recently been established in Bihar and Orissa and that similar Muslim Chambers of Commerce are being opened in other Provinces?

(b) Will Government please state if they have recognised the Muslim Chamber of Commerce in Bihar and Orissa?

(c) Are Government prepared to consider the desirability of instructing the Provincial Governments to adopt in future such measures as may be deemed necessary to keep the two communities—particularly the commercial section—united?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : (a) The Government of India are aware of the establishment of the Bihar and Orissa Muslim Chamber of Commerce and also of the Muslim Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta, but have no information regarding the formation of Muslim Chambers of Commerce in other provinces.

(b) Yes.

(c) This is a matter for the communities and not for Government.

Mr. B. Das : Are Government aware that there is no communal colouring in trade and commerce? Is the Honourable Member aware that there is no communal colour in the sphere of trade and commerce all over the world?

The Honourable Sir Joseph Bhore : I am not aware that trade and commerce have any colour at all, Sir.

ARTICLE HEADED "COMMUNALISM IN JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT" IN THE Sind Observer.

201. *Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : (a) Has Government's attention been drawn to an article which appeared in the Sind Observer, dated the 5th June, 1934, under the caption "Communalism in Judicial Department"?

(b) How long do Government propose to continue their policy of recruitment in the Judiciary on a communal basis?

(c) Is it a fact that in certain provinces, like the Punjab, it has now been definitely made a rule that judicial appointments at least be filled on merit alone by open competitive examinations?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : (a) Yes.

(b) I presume the Honourable Member is referring to recruitment to the provincial judicial services which, as he is no doubt aware, is a matter the responsibility for which rests with the Provincial Governments.

(c) I understand that the Government of the Punjab have made rules regarding recruitment to the subordinate judiciary which aim at redressing communal inequalities. Candidates are selected by the High Court after considering the results of a qualifying examination, not a competitive examination.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member whether the point raised in clause (c) of the question has been or will be referred to the Bombay Government and other Governments in order to ascertain their reply?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir, I do not think that is the concern of the Government of India.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know from the Honourable Member whether it is not the duty of the Government of India to see that justice is properly given and that judicial recruitment is nicely made?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : The responsibility, Sir, for the administration of justice is laid primarily on the Provincial Governments.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : Is there no responsibility laid on the Government of India also in the matter if they come to know that the judiciary is deteriorating in the Provinces?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : I am not prepared to accept the assumption of my Honourable friend that the system of recruitment of the subordinate judiciary in the Provinces leads to any deterioration of the administration of justice.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I know—as I put this question and I also gave the testimony of a paper which says that it is deteriorating—whether the Government of India are prepared to see that the Local Governments are alive to the point?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir. The Government of India propose to leave the matter to the Local Governments.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I take it from the Government of India that the Government of India are not prepared to take any action so as to correct any such impression in India?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir. The Government of India are not prepared to accept the estimate of the Honourable Member.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : May I, therefore, ask if the Honourable Member is prepared to verify this fact to find out if there is any truth in it and, if so, to ask the Provincial Government to behave better—if there is any truth in the allegation?

The Honourable Sir Harry Haig : No, Sir. I do not think that the facts disclose any cause for an inquiry by the Government of India.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai : I am very sorry.

IMPOSITION OF IMPORT DUTY ON INDIAN SUGAR BY THE KASHMIR STATE.
